pesterlog

E.B.: rose, i have a question, and i am in a hurry! so hurry up and answer!!!
T.T.: Did you know your planet was on fire?
E.B.: oh.
it is?
T.T.: Yes. It makes a good light for reading, actually.
E.B.: ok, haha, that's a confusing thing you said, but that topic will have to wait! jade is minutes away from entering, and i need to decide what to do with this kernel sprite. i really don't want to mess up and do something stupid.
i was thinking about not prototyping at all, to not give the monsters any new powers. what do you think, rose?
i thought i'd ask since you seem to know all the mysteries.
T.T.: Yes, I do seem to be shadowed by each mystery and its somber cortège of riddles, don't I?
E.B.: yes.
that is exactly what i was going to say.
T.T.: First of all, I should preface this conversation by saying I know exactly what you and Jade are going to do.
E.B.: um...
ok?
T.T.: The more of our future I've been allowed to see, the more I'm presented with a challenge I'm not very comfortable with.
The trolls have tipped us off about what's to come without any regard for the consequences, as appears to be their nature. But maybe that's why it's worked for them. Maybe their indiscretion mingles with the cosmic noise that is the fabric of temporal uncertainty.

E.B.: bluhhhhh... rose, tick tick tick!!!
I'm just nervous about it.
About whether telling you what you definitely will or won't do will alter a predetermined outcome. The result would be a splintered timeline, and we would all be sentenced to eventual oblivion. I'm presently optimistic this has not happened yet, and this is still the alpha timeline. I'd like to keep it that way.
E.B.: oh, wow.
you mean like when i died in another dimension, because terezi hornswogged me?
T.T.: Yes, sort of.
It isn't much fun, John.
E.B.: what's not?
T.T.: Living for months in an offshoot reality, waiting for the curtain to drop.
E.B.: oh, ok, i see.
well, uh...
is there anything you can tell me?
T.T.: Hmm.
I guess I can permit myself to tell you this, somewhat definitively.
E.B.: what?
T.T.: Failing to prototype the kernel is the absolute worst thing that you could possibly do. Like, ever.
E.B.: oh no!
T.T.: We would come into possession of all the disasters.
Exhaustive possession. Monopolization, in fact.
E.B.: then i guess i will not do that.
why is it so bad?
T.T.: Because the battlefield will not be able to heal, and then transform.
It will not reach the stage which allows it to become ready to receive our universe.
E.B.: but...
i thought you said it wasn't going to be able to make a universe anyway?
wasn't it barren or something?
T.T.: Yes.
E.B.: so why is it important?
T.T.: Because if it does not reach this stage, we will not be able to recover the treasure hidden in its core.
Which is to say,
You will not be able to recover it.
When you go to sleep again.
E.B.: OHHHHHHH.
why didn't you say so, of course the answer is treasure.
T.T.: Yes. This is the treasure that will give us hope.
But only if it comes into being in the first place.
E.B.: what is the treasure exactly?
T.T.: John, what is that sound?
E.B.: what sound?
T.T.: It seems to be a ticking noise.
E.B.: aaaaah!
yeah, i've got to go. we can chat about treasure later.
anyway, i will sort out this prototyping silliness myself.
thanks rose!

T.T.: John.
E.B.: blaaauuuuuuugh, what happened!!!!!
T.T.: You were sleeping.
E.B.: yes, i know!
on the corner of my ghost bed!
in the middle of an oil ocean!
for some reason!!!
T.T.: Why were you sleeping?
Everywhere I look, I see boys taking naps.
E.B.: um...
i have no idea.
i don't remember what happened, i was in the middle of helping jade...
and then...
i guess my bed crashed?
and i got knocked out i guess.
i was dreaming.
i couldn't have been out for that long, because my dream was really short.
T.T.: You weren't.
Ten minutes, I'd say.
What were you dreaming about?
E.B.: i was on the battlefield again.
but i did not have time to seek the treasure!
T.T.: I wouldn't imagine so.
E.B.: but...
i did see a black guy wrapped up in my ghosty bed sheets.
he was acting very suspicious.
T.T.: A black guy?
E.B.: oh...
i do not mean like, an african american or anything.
like bill cosby.
T.T.: Thanks for clearing that up.
E.B.: r.i.p. bill. (sad face) this fellow had a hard black shell, like all the dead guys do.
i followed him for a bit...
and then some sorta ruckus transpired, and i woke up.
and now jade won't answer!
do you know if she's ok?
T.T.: She's fine.
But you're not.
E.B.: i'm not?
T.T.: Remember how I said your planet was on fire?
E.B.: oh yeah...
that didn't by any chance stop being a thing that was true, did it?
T.T.: It did not.
Do you see that pinkish hue behind you, bleeding over the horizon?
E.B.: fuck!!!
rose, this is all oil! it'll all just explode any second, won't it???
T.T.: I don't think the fire's rate of propagation is quite as fast as you're imagining.
But the danger is still significant.
Especially considering that your bed is sinking.
E.B.: fuuuuuuuuuuuuck!!!!!!!
T.T.: Relax.
Look to your right.

[Image description: A small spire of rock sticks out of the oil. There are four pipes embedded in it.

pesterlog
T.T.: This will at least buy you some time.
If you stay calm, and we work together, we can get you out of this.
I'm practically an expert at escaping fires by now.

E.B.: ok, thank you rose.

hey, how do you know these things anyway?

can you see me somehow?

T.T.: Yes.

I have a crystal ball.

E.B.: oh man, really?

T.T.: Yes.

E.B.: like a magic one?

T.T.: I think so.

E.B.: can it show you the future?

is that how you know what's going to happen?

T.T.: No, it can only show me various locations in the present moment, as far as I can tell.

My perception of the future has been informed by other sources.

E.B.: like what?

T.T.: Informants.

E.B.: durrrrr.

T.T.: Whispering gods, memories sifted from dreams, cryptic readings from unearthed talismans, conclusions drawn from riddles deciphered - every gambit you'd expect a quest to extend to an emerging seer.

Just as I presume an heir would be supplied with what's needed for his maturation, assuming he's looking for it.

E.B.: oh... yeah.

point taken. i guess i should be looking, huh?

T.T.: You should probably be doing what you're doing.

E.B.: okay, so...

with what you've learned from your dreams and gods and magic and stuff...

do you have it all mapped out now? do you know everything?

T.T.: I didn't know why you were asleep, did I?

E.B.: yeah, but...

neither did i!

T.T.: I have more pedestrian sources too, you know.

Sometimes trolls blither tidbits about the future, and I can't help but take note of it.

Just as they do with you.

You also have access to the oracle clouds in Skaia, whereas I do not.

E.B.: oh yeah.

T.T.: Knowing the future is no remarkable feat here.

It appears to be a fact of life.

I'm not all that special, John.

E.B.: ok, buuuuut...

i guess that's not all i'm talking about.

you seem a little different.

T.T.: Really?

E.B.: i just mean that before, it felt like we were in this adventure together, figuring stuff out as we went along.

and now you have all the answers! because of magic, and other mysterious reasons!

and you want to use your powers to break the game, and i still don't really understand why, and...

T.T.: I'm not actually trying to caricaturize a grim sorcerer.

There's still a perfectly intact piece of my mind which realizes how ridiculous it is to be flying across rainbow oceans with a couple of magic wands and a salamander in a little cowl.

And it wasn't without swallowing a little embarrassment that I revealed I was using a crystal ball just now. It's all pretty absurd. And yet, It's been fun, and above all, practical. For solving our problems. E.B.: ok, yeah, you're right. i guess i just started worryin'... that you are getting away from us! because you know everything, and you're magic, and you have a crystal ball, and a salamander, and you are basically a wizard. and that's cool, and it sure does sound fun... but i kinda think it was more fun when you just did things like read books, and tell jokes. T.T.: I still read books and tell jokes. E.B.: BA-DUM PSHHH! T.T.: John, That was mean. E.B.: sorry. (sad face)

E.B.: well, if you do not have any objection... maybe later, i will drop by your planet again and rescue you, thus breaking the spooky spell put on you by your nefarious, shadowy masters. T.T.: Swoon! E.B.: that way you will stop being so grimdark and ominous, and basically completely off the deep end in every way, as is now painfully obvious to anyone with a brain. T.T.: I will do by best to occupy myself as benignly and unmagically as possible until you show up. E.B.: yes. please write some happy stories in your journal, about lively horses, and conspicuously not about wizards, or sadness. T.T.: ... "Happy?"

What is this strange, unsad emotion of which you speak? E.B.: yes, this is good. you see rose, these are jokes. this are what they look like, do not be alarmed. T.T.: Jokes? Are those the things people say when they want unusual noises to come out of the pliable crescent-shaped holes sometimes found in people's faces? E.B.: laughs, rose. laaughhs. also, those crescently looking holes where laughs come out of? those are smiles! observe... (very happy face) T.T.: I need to make a note of this. Excuse me while I open this tome bound in the tanned, writhing flesh of a tortured hellscholar. The screaming will subside shortly. E.B.: ok, i will wait patiently. T.T.: Continue to not be alarmed as I record your advice with runes stroked in the black tears bled from the corruption-weary eyes of fifty thousand imaginary occultists.
And then brace yourself for the fabled blackdeath trance of the woegothics I will slip into, while quaking in the bloodeldritch throes of the broodfester tongues.
E.B.: no, rose!
that sort of nonsense is exactly what is out of the question!
i see things are more urgent than i realized.
i will have to venture there straightaway, and slap you right out of that silly old trance!
T.T.: One is not easily shaken from the broodfester tongues, John.
They are stubborn throes.
E.B.: oh.
well shit.
T.T.: Besides, you can't come to my planet right away.
You will need to recover the treasure first, because it must be delivered to me.
E.B.: oh yeah.
what is this treasure, anyway?
and how's it gonna save us!
T.T.: You'd probably be disappointed if I described it.
E.B.: tell me anyway!

It's called The Tumor.

I wonder how far back you know it
I'm going to have to make a special point of not being the one to tell you, I don't want to give you the satisfaction.
E.B.: hey, shut up a second!
I need you to be nice for a change and do me a favor...
have you talked to jade recently?
can you tell me what happened to her??
C.G.: who the fuck is jade.
E.B.: uh...
hmm.
C.G.: john, the fact that you always seem to think I can read your mind just underscores what a harrowing goddamn idiot you are.
E.B.: jade is the girl who I am pretty sure just entered our session.

C.G.: oh, you mean the one who fucks everything up.
E.B.: um, yeah... I thought you knew that? You talked to her a bunch of times, apparently.
C.G.: why the fuck would I know that.
this is only the second time I have ever talked to a human.
and the first time, much to my migraine compounding regret, was with you.
E.B.: oh!
ok, I see what is going on here.
we are finally getting to our first couple of conversations. Cool!
C.G.: no, not "cool".
what is going on here is very much antithetical to your primitive human notion of "earth cool".
you see, in our first conversation, we didn't exactly get off on the right foot.
it is a foot which should have reeked of your verbal ruination.
but instead it smelled like well, let's not get into that.
I am here to do what you and your pathetic cadre of co-humans failed to do, which is set the record straight.
I am here to utterly annihilate your shit.
I will stay on message this time. I will not be deterred by your goofy mannerisms and your absurd penchant for reveling in self abuse.
we will get off on a fresh foot, and by fresh I mean most foul indeed.
its toes are wiggling under your hideous pink nostrils. Now breathe deep your misfortune, you sad little clown.
this is the end of you. That aroma you detect wafts from the bouquet perched on your corpse box.
nobody cries, except your shitty ghost. Heavy sobs from a specter of unqualified failure.
it is a symphony to my angry ears.
E.B.: so... The smell is from a foot... But also from funeral flowers?
this metaphor is confusing.
C.G.: STFU
I'm only getting started.
E.B.: yeah, I know!
this is all that big time trolling I was looking forward to.
and it's pretty good so far, and ordinarily I would be excited to hear more...
C.G.: you see what I mean??? you are actually enjoying this, what a sick fuck.
E.B.: but I really am concerned about what happened with jade!
my request for a favor still stands, even though this is early you, and you still think you hate me.
C.G.: don't question the sincerity of my hate, just don't even fucking go there.
E.B.: ok, fine! You hate me sooooo much, like, for real.
can you just tell me what's up with jade?
can you see her?
C.G.: yeah I see her it's making me mad seeing her E.B.: can you tell me what happened? What did she do that was so bad?
C.G.: hahahahahaha
here I am talking to you moments after you did the terrible thing, and you still don't even know what you did!
incredible, you truly are dumber than I thought.
E.B.: ok!!! I'm an idiot! Can you just tell me anyway????
whoa...
C.G.: what
E.B.: the ground is shaking... what's going on?
C.G.: I'll tell you what's going on.
what you fucking did is what's going on.
E.B.: so tell me what I fucking did!!!
C.G.: oh, you want to know what you fucking did?
E.B.: yes!
please, no more stalling or "i already told you's" or any other maddening nonsense!
E.B.: just... tell me!
C.G.: very well, john human egbert.
I will tell you what you did ready for me to tell you what you did?
here's me, telling you what you did ok, here goes what you did is as follows
C.G.: as such
C.G.: and thusly
E.B.: (Blank face)

[Image description: The rock shakes violently and the horizon's glowing gets brighter. An alert over John flashed between several images of Karkat, all of him yelling.]

He then proceeded to tell you what you did, as such.

And we then proceeded to watch.

Thusly.

[S] Jade: Enter.

[Image description: A loading screen shows a flower with several layers of brightly colored, spirograph-shaped petals. A silhouette of Bec's head fades in against a background of wavy green lines. Umbral Ultimatum begins to play. The silhouette expands and fades to show Jade's island. It's night time. A massive meteor bears down. It fades to Earth as viewed from space. The meteor approaches and begins to burn in the atmosphere. The meteor is at least as large as Australia, if not larger.

John looks at his cosbytop. The sky behind the frog temple turns bright red. The bec silhouette flashes on for a moment and the scene changes. Jade stands in her greenhouse, near the totem lathe and alchemiter. A tree appears on the alchemiter and a bec-shaped pinata falls from one of its branches. A green blindfold appears over Jade's eyes.

John sits on his floating ghost bed with his cosbytop in his lap. He grabs one of the dolls in Jade's house and tries to drop it into the kernelsprite. Vriska watches him.

Jade, still with the blindfold on, grabs her gun and scowls up towards the tree.

Vriska scowls and puts a hand to her temple. It flashes back to John as he suddenly falls asleep.

The doll he tried to drop in falls, leaving the kernelsprite unprototyped.

Bec is silhouetted against the approaching meteor. He flashes and is suddenly inside the house. The pile of strange items and cruxtruder are suddenly floating in space. Bec's silhouette closes in from the edges of the screen and he sits in the room with the kernelsprite. And he throws himself in. The background turns to flickering green flames and other images flash by, too fast to be seen. He begins pulsing and flickering outwards, then transforms into a sprite. The screen goes white.

He flies up, out of the house, and towards the meteor.

Jade flails the butt of her gun towards the pinata, but completely misses it. Instead, she hops around the room, jumping off the alchemiter platforms and planter tables. She launches herself towards the pinata and manages to hit it, but it doesn't break and she's sent flying backwards, through the window and out into open air. The greenhouse explodes. The bec shaped pinata takes up the center of the screen, then changes to Bec near the meteor. A green glow surrounds him, then bursts outwards as a laser fired directly into the meteor. This laser grows larger and larger as the scene zooms out to show it from space. A green explosion suddenly engulfs the whole planet. The glow shifts and morphs continually until it takes up the whole screen.

The scene shifts. A wall of green energy races across an ocean, forcing a massive wave before it. The glow approaches a city. Explosions go off all across it, then the glow overtakes it and it's gone.

Bro and Davesprite fight against Jack Noir, but he blocks every blow like he knew it was coming.
Fire consumes the background.
It zooms out. Bro crouches on his hoverboard and stares down at Jack, who flies after him. Cal falls away into the fire.
A green line flashes across the screen and we return to Jade, falling from her tower. She grits her teeth and aims her gun, even as she plummets. Her hair whips around in the wind and she shouts. She pulls the trigger. The bullet flies in slow motion. Becsprite appears in front of the bullet, then disappears as he teleports it to the pinata. The bullet hits and the pinata explodes. A large section of her island glows white. Everything fades to black.
Jack, Davesprite, and Bro stand in the arena, surrounded by flame and lava. Jack reaches out the hand with the ring on it. His arm begins to glow and then his entire body turns green. The wings, hat, and tentacles disappear, then the wings reappear in a massive green burst. His head morphs, growing tufts of fur and ears like Bec’s. His face elongates into a snout. Bro, Davesprite, and Cal stare at this transformation from Jack Noir into Bec Noir. Green static takes over the screen.
It fades to the Trolls, all standing on a round platform with a structure shaped like their sgrub logo in front of them. There is a door in the bottom right section. Karkat stares in wonder and reaches for the doorknob. Before he can touch it, a black and green glow appears in the center of their group.
A line flashes across the screen and the structure is cut in half, severing the door. The silhouette of Bec Noir appears. Aradia raises a hand, making a transportalizer appear. She throws all of the others onto the transportalizer and they disappear. The army of Aradiabots faces Noir, then the scene shifts.
Karkat lays on a dark grey floor. The area around him fades to gold and his clothes change to a Prospit Dreamer Tunic. He sits up and blinks, then stares up at Bec Noir, who, for a brief moment, changes to look like the Jack Noir that Karkat knew in their session. Noir reaches out a bloody hand towards Karkat, who grimaces. The scene is overtaken by a green glow. It shifts to Prospit as seen from space as a glowing green orb rips apart the moon. It expands, taking the planet with it, then does so again, shattering prospit into rubble.
Bec Noir's silhouette appears, flashing with static and images that disappear too quickly to be seen. The flashing becomes the background and he fades in fully. It zooms in on his face as he glares down at something. He fades again, to a shifting starscape, which then expands to take up the whole screen.
Jade smiles, the blindfold now gone from her eyes. The stars become snow falling around her.

her lusus is the creature which serves as her custodian.
E.B.: oh, you mean her dog!
C.G.: I guess
E.B.: so, she prototyped becquerel?
why is that so bad?
C.G.: john, do you even know anything about your friends?

Hey brave leader.
John!
Stop ignoring me. My messages should receive top priority.
Who are you talking to? I don't appreciate being snubbed like this. How ungrateful can you get!
Maaaaaaaan.
Come oooooooon........
E.B.: hey vriska, sorry to keep you waiting!
A.G.: Waiting?
Oh! I guess so. I hardly even noticed! I am like this really huge deal, and have a lot of stuff to keep me busy, remember?
E.B.: yeah, i know.
um, sorry to cut this short, but this isn't really the best time to chat!
I am in the middle of an ocean of oil that is ablaze with a lot of green fire.
i need to figure out a way to escape!
unfortunately, i fell asleep for some reason, and my bed landed here.
i can't believe i was so stupid.
A.G.: Don't beat yourself up about it!
I was the one who put you to sleep.
E.B.: you were?
A.G.: Yeah!
E.B.: um...
you can do that?
A.G.: Yes, that seems to be the limit to what I can do to your primitive species.
I guess our brains don't really work the same way? Who knows!
E.B.: hmm.
what do you mean, "limit"?
are you saying you can usually do more than that?
A.G.: Duh! So much more, John. I have a lot of great powers.
When we have more time, I will tell you all about them.
E.B.: ok, that is pretty cool i guess...
but...
why???
why would you put me to sleep and put me in this predicament?
A.G.: John, soon you will understand that you are meant to rise to greatness.
This can't possibly happen unless you are challenged.
There will be times when your limits are tested. This is one of those times!
I know this because I can see your future right here in front of me. You should trust me!
E.B.: ok, but... i kind of get that, but it's also kind of odd...
if you're seeing my future, and you know those things are the outcome, then why are you going back and... i guess, involving yourself with these events? see what i mean?
A.G.: Oh John, this should be so obvious to you by now.
You are going to become a great hero, that much is sure.
but I want to be the one responsible for it!
And now I am pretty much guaranteed to be.
(smiley face with eight eyes)
E.B.: ok, that...
SORT OF makes sense, i guess.
but it's kind of hurting my head to think about!
You don't have to think! Just leave the thinking to me.
All you have to do is dig deep down, find your hero powers, and get yourself out of this jam.
You can do it, John. be the hero!
Just like in one of your movies about sweaty, rugged adult human males.
E.B.: ah HA!
so you did watch that video I sent.
what did you think?

Next

[Image description: Flames flicker behind John.]
A.G.: It was ok.
I admit it was a little better than I expected.
E.B.: yessssssss, i knew it!
A.G.: but who cares! Let's not get sidetracked by films about wounded, muscular renegades.
by the way, John, have you ever considered growing your hair out?
I bet it would look fabulous.
E.B.: no, it would look so stupid!
A.G.: I don't know about that!
I have an eye for fashion. 8 of them, in fact!
E.B.: i thought you didn't want to get sidetracked!!!
A.G.: Oh yeah. Whoops. (uncertain face with eight eyes)
E.B.: anyway, putting me to sleep and landing me in hot water is one thing... but you sort of indirectly caused a MUCH BIGGER problem!
before i fell asleep, i was about to prototype something really ridiculous to make jack weaker.
i am pretty sure that it would have made jack lose both eyes, both arms, and give him silly blue hair, and possibly also make him be a girl?
he probably would have been pretty easy to beat!!!
but instead, it was prototyped by jade's first guardian dog lusus.
and now he is unstoppable!
and he becomes the one who is stirrin' up all that trouble in your session too!
i mean, it sounds like your intentions were good, but you probably didn't realize to what extent you were messing everything up!
A.G.: Don't be absurd, John.
Of course I realized that would happen.
It was pretty much the whole point, you goof!
E.B.: what????????
vriska, why would you do that!
A.G.: Jegus, calm down.
E.B.: but!
no!
why should i calm down when you just said you deliberately sabotaged all of us?
A.G.: Relaaaaaaaaaax.
Listen, John.
Regardless of what I did, he is already here.
I know this consequence will be hard for you to accept, but whenever you feel angry or confused about it, just repeat this to yourself.
It should become your mantra!
He is already here.
Say it, John!
E.B.: but what does that mean!
A.G.: It means what it sounds like! He's already here!!!!!!!!
Here in our session, trying to hunt us down! Man, this should be elementary to you by now.
No matter what you or I or any of us did, Jack's here now. That's the reality!
And if I didn't stop you, it wouldn't have changed the reality for us here. We'd still be hiding on this rock, and he'd still be out there, sniffing around for us.
He wouldn't just disappear! That's not how this time stuff works.
All that REALLY would have happened is I would have allowed you to do something you weren't supposed to do!
You would have prototyped with your pretty blue doll, because of course deep down you know you are obsessed with me.
And then you and all your friends would exist in a splintered timeline. And you wouldn't even be able to talk to me anymore! (sad face with eight eyes)
And then you'd be doooooooomed.
I mean, more doomed than you are already. (winking face with eight eyes)
Trust me, I am really smart. I have this all figured out.
E.B.: i don't know if that makes sense!
i mean, it kind of does...
but something doesn't really add up about it.
if you knew he was going to be created regardless of what anyone did...
why did you decide to involve yourself that way?
like the way you are involving yourself with me becoming a hero or whatever?
A.G.: You just answered your own question!
I did it because I wanted to be the one responsible for creating him.
E.B.: augh!
BUT WHYYYYYYY!
It only makes sense that I would be the one to create him.
Since I am also going to be the one to kill him.

E.B.: i am not bitter! i just think your plan is dumb.
if he is as strong as karkat says, he will probably kill you!
A.G.: Karkat doesn't know nothing about anything.
He never really appreciated how powerful I became. Nobody did! I am easily the strongest troll by far.
I am also extremely lucky! That is one of my powers, John. being super lucky, and making my foes super UNlucky. (smiley face with eight eyes)
is luck actually a real thing?
A.G.: Yes, and I've got all of it. I am completely untouchable.
E.B.: you sound pretty cocky! you should be careful about that, that is totally how people have bigtime downfalls.
especially when they act kind of nefarious!!!
A.G.: Nope, I don't have to be careful! Too lucky for caution to matter anymore. Them's the breaks!
but don't worry, once all is said and done in your session, and by some incredibly lucky break of your own you manage to survive the scratch, we might actually get the chance to meet.
And if so, assuming I haven't gotten too bored waiting around and mopped the floor with Jack already, maybe we can take him down together!
E.B.: wow, uh...
i am not sure who would make me more nervous, you or jack.
A.G.: John, that's something a loser would say, come on.
You should have no reason to be scared of me.
by the time I am through with you, you should be even stronger than me.
This is the way it ought to be, I think. (very happy face with eight eyes)
E.B.: you really think we will meet?
A.G.: It is a distinct possibility.
E.B.: so...
um, if we meet...
are you going to...
uh.
A.G.: What?
E.B.: like,

E.B.: karkat said that...
you might...

A.G.: OUR turn.
E.B.: bluhhhhhhhhh.

A.G.: Now quit whining and get yourself out of this mess.

what you're about to do.

Dream Bubbles

December 1st, 1995

I slept and saw God's forge in frost. Its hearth was quelled, and as it cooled so swooned the verdancy it kept above. In slumber it grew a thick winter skin, white as bedsheets. In their fields the waker dreamt, her breath as steam, her touch as hot as iron, forgotten in the fire.

The background turns into a quickly moving starscape, then fades to white. A few lines fade in and it zooms out, revealing that the flower is growing on a now snow-covered table in Jade's greenhouse. It zooms out further. All of the glass has been shattered, but her tower is otherwise intact. Snow continues to fall. It pans over the lagoon, which is now frozen solid. The name appears at the top of the screen. Land of Frost and…

The second word is a continually flashing series of letters and runes.
It pans up over the volcano where a blue aurora hovers. The rest of this land seems to be more frozen oceans and snow-covered mountains. Everything flashes white and the name resolves itself. Land of Frost and Frogs.
The white fades to show a close up image of a green frog. Many more are scattered through the background. Snow begins to fall again.
It fades to snow-covered tree roots with two small, red flowers blooming on them. It pans up, showing more of the forest and more of the small flowers. A purple hummingbird flits across the screen, stopping at one of the flowers, then disappears. The scene fades to another section of the forest, where it gives way to a large, open field. Snow begins to fall more heavily. The aurora fades in over distant mountains. More colors fade in, this time green and yellow.
Everything flashes white and a stylized green sun takes up the center of the screen. The sun shifts to the side and a scene fades in, the sun becoming a design on Jade's bedsheets. Jade sleeps on a bed, which glows green around the edges, and the once red orbs at the tops of the four posts are also green. It slowly zooms out. Everything behind her is white. She fades from view after a few moments.]

C.C.: Good point.
Maybe I'm feeling it too.
I have... what was it? Orca vu?
G.G.: (gasping face with eyes pinched shut) feferi that one was a stretch even by your fish punnery standards aaah why do i know that you like to make fish puns???
C.C.: (confused face with a tiara and goggles)
G.G.: actually
i do remember this conversation
it was in the past!
but if it was in the past, then where am i now?
C.C.: In the future! Duh.
G.G.: so what is going on?
i dont think i am asleep....
i am not on prospit
C.C.: Yes, you are asleep. But your dream self died, just like mine, remember?
G.G.: oh... vaguely
C.C.: Now you don't dream about Prospit. You have normal dreams!
G.G.: so this is a dream?
C.C.: It is a dream, and a memory. It is the past, brought back to life by a witch! It's all those things.
Although we are getting off the script here!
This is not how the conversation originally went, obviously.
You were a lot less patient with me! When I was just trying to encourage you.
G.G.: sorry
i think i am in the game now, right?
C.C.: Sure!
Hey, why don't you tell me about this cool robot bunny you we're making?
I've been pretty glubbing curious about it!
Mind if I take a look?
G.G.: um

Next

[Image description: Feferi suddenly appears and cuddles the bunny next to a very shocked Jade. Feferi's eyes are closed.]

pesterlog
C.C.: It's great!
Wish I could make something like this. Never had the gills for technology.
Hard to work with under water!
G.G.: why are you here!
are you asleep too?
C.C.: Nope!
I woke up from my nap a while ago.
Remember how I woke up and then messaged you? You had just had a bad dream!
And I told you there was nothing to be scared of.
Which there isn't!
G.G.: oh yeah
i do remember that then why are you here now?

Next

[Image description: Feferi grins at Jade. Her eyes open. They're pure white.]

pesterlog
C.C.: Because, stupid.
I'M DEAD!

Jade: Wake up again.
Next

You have got to stop falling asleep.

Jade: Get out of bed.

The snow is quite deep.

Jade: Pester John.

You would like to report to John, but it seems you have misplaced your laptop!

That's right. It was in the atrium when you got slapped with that stupid blindfold and all hell broke loose.

You hope it's ok! It was your favorite computer, AND your favorite lunchbox.

Jade: Climb.

You don't see anything.

Someone out there is messing with you. Good thing grandpa taught you never to leave home without your rifle, even by accident.

A crosshairs appears. Aim it at the imp.
The imps outline suddenly expands and Jade is standing in the forest with the red flowers. As soon as the bullet passes where it would be, the imp reappears.

Try again!
This time the imp takes them to the lip of the volcano.
Again!
Now to the very edge of the forest.
The next attempt takes them to the Grist Exchange on LoGaF.
Then to a cliffside on the Land of Wind and Shade, where all of the fires have been put out by the strong breeze that’s still blowing.
Then to Rose's house, where pink turtles stand on an alchemiter. It zooms out, showing all of Rose's house.
Then to the temple where Dave still sleeps surrounded by crocodiles. When Jade fires, Dave suddenly wakes up.
Then to a dilapidated green house partially overgrown with roots somewhere else on the Land of Frost and Frogs.
Then to a library on the Land of Light and Rain, where Casey stands near a bookshelf that holds Rose's magic orb.
Then to John's alchemiter. It zooms out to show the massive tower built from his house.
Then into John's bedroom, where three more imps just like it wait.
Then to somewhere else on the Land of Frost and Frogs. A massive, naga-like entity with shards of crystal sticking out of its back is silhouetted against the sky. Dave stands a short distance away and it zooms in on him. His glasses reflect Jade in the left lens and the imp in the right.
Then to the original strife location, but now Becsprite waits for them. Becsprite flashes bright green, black, and white. At the bottom of the screen, flashing text reads "It keeps happening!!!"
Trying again just starts the loop over.

Next

[Image description: Becsprite creates a massive orb of sparking green energy around him, startling both Jade and the imp.]

Next

[Image description: The imp looks scared as the energy grows brighter and brighter until the entire screen is just white.]

Next

[Image description: A bright green mushroom cloud bursts from their location.]

Good dog.
Best friend.
Jade: Level up!

[Image description: Jade's echeladder appears. She's wearing a green, pointed hat, not unlike a witch’s hat. She levels up from a greentyke to a Kiddo Eclipse. A fat green frog standing next to her becomes a skinnier orange frog.
The other levels visible are Ribbit Rustler
Shuteye Crackshot
Viridian Neophyte

The other levels visible are Ribbit Rustler
Shuteye Crackshot
Viridian Neophyte
You finally hop off the lowly greentike rung and secure your position on the somewhat respectable kiddo eclipse rung.

You have a lot of climbing ahead of you.

Jade: Thank best friend.

[Image description: Jade looks up at Becsprite, who still pulses with green energy. The snow falls harder and green lines cross the sky.]

spritelog
Jade: thanks bec, good boy!
soooooo...
can you talk now?
what do you have to say?

Next

[Image description: Bec's outline flashes different styles of green static against a background that does the same.

spritelog
Becsprite: (nine gifs of flashing green static)

Next

[Image description: Jade looks confused and overwhelmed, but mostly like she regrets asking.]

You think you will try to keep conversations with Becsprite to a minimum from now on.

Greetings.

[Image description: Jade stands behind a translucent layer of static.]

Next

[Image description: Jade looks up at Becsprite again. This time, a command prompt appears in the top left corner.
Greetings.
Bec turns to look at the command prompt with a small green exclamation mark over his head.]

You have extraordinarily bad timing. Her guardian will not be pleased with your intrusion.
Don't I know you?

[Image description: Jade shakes her head a bit.]

Yes, you do.

You might want to step away from the computer.

Next

[Image description: P.M.'s exile monitor sparks intensely and shakes. This is the same panel as from one that appeared shortly after P.M. was introduced. She's newly inside her facility and wearing her mailwoman hat.]

Next

[Image description: The computer explodes, blasting a hole in the side of her facility as it flies towards the frog temple.]

P.M.: Rule.

[Image description: P.M. stands in the desert, holding the makeshift crown.]

You have no idea how to rule. What orders could there possibly be to give anyway?

All you want to do is deliver mail. You do not want to be the stupid queen. And you do not want to wear this stupid mailbox crown.

Next

[Image description: P.M. tosses the crown on the ground. The word "Dumb" vibrates at the point that it hits. W.Q. stands on top of a sand dune, watching this little tantrum.]

W.Q.: Approach queen.

[Image description: W.Q. approaches P.M..]

Your new ruler seems upset. You understand it is not easy being in a position of authority.

You politely inform her that as the queen she is under no obligation to wear a crown. It is her decision.

Next

[Image description: P.M. holds a hand near her face and looks at W.Q..]

She should understand that a queen is the sum of her decisions, not her fashion accessories. And no queen makes decisions alone. All wise rulers surround themselves with trusted advisors.

The new queen should understand she has friends to help her.

P.M.: Appoint royal advisor.

[Image description: P.M. holds the letter addressed to Dr. David Brinner.]

You make your first decision as the new Prospitian Monarch.
Next

[Image description: P.M. places the stamp from the letter, which has a stylized white sun on a blue background, on W.Q.'s chest.]

The Questant receives the new Royal Insignia.

Jade: Return.

[Image description: Becsprite and Jade stand out in the snow. Becsprite's outline flashes and suddenly they're inside, in front of the purple and yellow fireplace.]

You return to the Grand Foyer. It's a bit less cluttered than you remember it being.

Next

[Image description: It zooms out. Everything that was in the room is now gone.]

sprite\text{log}

Jade: what happened in here?
where is everything? all the globes and houseguests...
and the cruxtruder???
and grandpa??????????
bec, what did you do!
has someone been a bad dog??
wait never mind, please dont answer that!!!!
(shocked and confused face)

Jade: Go upstairs.

[Image description: She stands in her now destroyed greenhouse. Everything is covered in snow. The scanner from the alchemiter and chisels from the totem lathe have been ripped off.]

You return to find your beautiful atrium in ruins. And to make things worse, your alchemiter and totem lathe were destroyed as well.

On the bright side, it looks like your Lunchtop was undamaged.

Jade: Retrieve lunchtop.

[Image description: Jade stands next to her lunchtop and the destroyed totem lathe. A broken record alert hovers over the lunchtop.]

You have been dying to get back to your computer so you can touch base with John again. He has probably been going crazy wondering about you.

But it seems someone else is messaging you right now.

Jade: Answer Dave.

[Image description: Jade sits down on the alchemiter and the lunchtop projects a keyboard.]

pester\text{log}

T.G.: hey
welcome to the medium finally i guess G.G.: hey!!!!!
last time i talked to you i was asking for help and you were just nakking at me what was up with that bro???
T.G.: ok i dont know what youre talking about it was probably just some horroterror chirping at you during one of your nap bubble mindfucks its not the point i just wanted to say i just saw you
G.G.: you did?
T.G.: yeah
you appeared for a second shooting at an imp
then you disappeared
G.G.: ohhhhhhh
yes, i did get around during that battle didnt i?
it was really intense!!!
those stupid things are impossible to kill (sad face) T.G.: no you can kill them youll get better dont worry
G.G.: in the heat of the fray i didnt notice you!
where were you?
T.G.: three places
i remember seeing you twice before in different locations but at the moment im standing in the middle of this snowy goddamn field freezing my shit off just wanted to see if you were cool
G.G.: yeah im fine, thanks for asking!
what do you mean you remember seeing me?
was i jumping through time or something?
T.G.: no i was this is future me one of the future mes that is G.G.: youre from the future?
T.G.: yeah jade thats what future me means G.G.: (tongue sticking out face) john told me you have been doing some time traveling
T.G.: yeah
G.G.: that is..... really really awesome!
T.G.: its ok
hey its pretty fucking cold G.G.: i knooooow
it is a really neat place but its freeeeezing (gasping face)
T.G.: so im gonna go some place warm be back in a while later G.G.: wait!
dave!!
uuugh stupid lousy cool dudes
T.G.: ok im back an hour later
G.G.: an hour?
T.G.: an hour for me
a second for you
I ran around for an hour got my ass some place warm went back in time picked up where we left off G.G.: (gasp face)
i can not believe how cool that is this is me believing neither that, nor its coolness (gasp face)
T.G.: yeah
i guess im sorta used to it by now i dont think of hours going by the same way anymore
i mean	hey are my hours but not everyone elses theyre kind of like private hours all to myself while everyone else is sort of in slow motion stuck in the thick of the alpha G.G.: hmmm...
i dont know if i get that but ok!
T.G.: well yeah
my thing is time yours is space pretty different things you get things about space i dont or you will G.G.: i will?
T.G.: yup
G.G.: ok........
but anyway youre right, its coooold!!!!!!
i have to go back inside
i wish i had winter clothes and if i did, i also wish that my wardrobe didnt blow up with all of my beautiful clothes inside it (very sad face)
im so horribly unprepared for this.... i have never even seen snow before, can you believe that!!!
T.G.: pretty believable since you lived on guam or wherever the fuck and also inside an active volcano G.G.: derp yes dave that is so where i lived that is as biographically accurate as it gets about me!
T.G.: well ive never seen it either now that i think about it
G.G.: no???
T.G.: no
G.G.: isnt it great?????
T.G.: nah
lavas better
G.G.: lava is not better than snow (blank face) T.G.: yeah it is lava and skeletal skyscrapers all melting and shit how is that not way cooler than snow and like more snow
G.G.: you cant play in lava, its no fun
you can only die in lava
T.G.: snows a big chilly carpet of nobody gives a shit like old man winter spread around his nasty mayonnaise and turned the landscape into his personal asshole sandwich
G.G.: eww dave no T.G.: when i look around all i see is the miles of unharnessed snowmen im just too damn cool to build G.G.: no this is so lame
i am hearing an insane and stupid guy say stupid idiot things while wearing dumb sunglasses for lame morons!
T.G.: whoa jade with the fucking haymaker i need to go look for my teeth on the canvas as soon as shit stops spinning and there stops being like ten of you
G.G.: heheheh
why dont we play in the snow later as soon as you get some.............................
T.G.: time
G.G.: .....................
T.G.: time
G.G.: ............
T.G.: time then shades
G.G.: .......
T.G.: time
G.G.: ..........
T.G.: time/shades lets go
G.G.: ......
....
T.G.: oh my fucking god
G.G.: ..

G.G.: time (Smiley face wearing sunglasses)
T.G.: im not gonna play in the snow maybe you missed those credentials i flashed which clearly stated me being too cool for that like federally too cool
my coolness is named after a dead president plus his middle initial to make it sound extra legit
G.G.: i know youre joking around, you are not too cool at all, you dont even think that
T.G.: ok
G.G.: brrrrrr
T.G.: i thought you were going inside
G.G.: i forgot (uncertain face)
T.G.: well at least make some damn clothes something warmer why dont you alchemize some shit G.G.: i cant!!!
all that stuff blew up
T.G.: blew up
G.G.: its a long story that involves a pinata and a gun and a very naughty doggie
T.G.: i completely understand everything about that practically entirely G.G.: so anyway, that reminds me ive got to talk to john!
ive got to get him to make me some new gizmos...
assuming thats even possible
T.G.: no dont bother john

Next

[Image description: Dave stands in a green building with a row of pointed windows behind him. In front of him, there is a stone statue of some sort of lizard.]

pesterlog
T.G.: hes on like his fuckin wind mission or whatever getting all his ridiculous magic cyclone powers on and realizing his huge blowy destiny as the chump of shoosh
G.G.: john has magic cyclone powers?
T.G.: almost G.G.: whoa...
you guys are all so much better than me, i feel sooooo lame T.G.: we all start out somewhere remember how i was scrambling up that tower to get that egg like an idiot what the hell was i doing i was like goddamn pooh bear in a tree reaching up his fat fuckin pooh paw for some mother fuckin honey
G.G.: heehee
T.G.: so even though im awesome now at one point i was plausibly likened to an autistic stuffed animal and you even knew what to do you told me how it worked all christopher robinning my ignorant ass about that egg but i was all like im a little black rain cloud bitch watch me climb so maybe youre startin out with more sense than me
G.G.: maaaybe
(smiley face)
T.G.: in any case egbert lost his computer and game disc so he cant do anything for you anyways
G.G.: oh no
did he lose it in a magic cyclone?
T.G.: probably some shit like thats what happened but youre not completely screwed we just have to think outside the box here
G.G.: we do?
T.G.: yeah honestly i figured wed have to do something like this so i guess here we are doing it G.G.: doing what??
T.G.: well youre my server player remember
G.G.: yes
T.G.: i need you to deploy something first in my apartment in a few hours ill go back there and we can continue this G.G.: oh jeez, a few hours????
T.G.: yeah
as in a few seconds
im back at my place now
G.G.: fastest hours (gasp face)
T.G.: yeah
now deploy the intellibeam laserstation
G.G.: but that costs so much grist!!!
T.G.: no it costs practically nothing check out how much ive got
G.G.: omg…
Jade: Deploy laserstation.

[Image description: The cursor sets down a strange device next to Dave's turntables. It looks like an incredibly complicated microscope or something similar.]

pesterlog
G.G.: what does this thing do?
T.G.: its mostly pretty stupid and useless but itll come in handy here it reads captcha codes
G.G.: on the back of cards?
T.G.: yeah
G.G.: but
we can already read those!
T.G.: some are too garbled and complicated the human eye cant decipher them needs sophisticated scanning technology and artificial intelligence to figure it out
G.G.: hmm
but isnt the whole point of captchas that only humans can read them?
and not robots???
T.G.: yeah well
thats why this is so dumb

Dave: Eject disc.

[Image description: Dave takes the Sburb server CD from his computer.]

pesterlog
T.G.: i guess some captchas are so incomprehensible cause the game thinks it would be too cheap to let you duplicate them like an anti piracy measure so the solution to the anti piracy measure is to override the anti spam measure G.G.: anti spam?
T.G.: well yeah thats what captchas are for and theyre on the back of cards for a really good reason cause god knows the last thing youd want was some web bot being able to figure out the code for like a potted plant that would be fucking mayhem
G.G.: yeah obviously!
T.G.: but in order to effectively cheat here weve got to open pandoras spam box and release the laserstation into the world with its leering intellibeam now no captcha is safe youll have bots signing up for email accounts and duplicating potted plants and shit
G.G.: oh nooo
T.G.: basically robots are in control now which is good news and bad news the bad news is theyre all pornbots and theyve got LOADS of provocative material theyre just dying to share with us
G.G.: whats the good news?
T.G.: thats also the good news
G.G.: dave i still dont know what youre actually doing here T.G.: what's it look like im duplicating my server disc

Dave: Scan.

[Image description: Dave puts the disk card face down under the laser of the laserstation. A pattern of thin red lasers scans the almost eye-searingly bright collection of lines on the back.]

pesterlog
G.G.: oh....
to give it to john?
T.G.: nah i told you were not bothering john hes got shit to do ill just install it
G.G.: but...
you are already roses server player!
and john is mine!
not to mention im yours!!!
can you really be a server player to your own server player?
T.G.: dont see why not we have to get creative here this games already so far off the rails what else is there to do but improvise G.G.: but i guess
i thought that john sort of.....
HAD to be my server? you know?
T.G.: well he was he got you in didnt he but now hes not been a change of plans time to roll with it

Dave: Read code.

[Image description: Dave looks into the eyepiece of the laserstation. The red lasers shine onto his sunglasses.]

pesterlog
G.G.: well you're from the future right?
dont you know already if it'll work?
T.G.: yeah more or less i never really studied how it went down all that closely i just figured when the time came to sort it out the right thing to do would be obvious like it is now
managing the loops is a balance of careful planning and just rolling with your in the moment decisions and trusting they were the ones you were always supposed to make by now im pretty used to having my intuition woven into the fabric of the alpha timeline G.G.: pretty smooth dave T.G.: yeah i know
G.G.: shades for everybody
(smiley face wearing sunglasses) (smiley face wearing sunglasses)

Dave: Duplicate disc.
pesterlog
T.G.: this'll be the disc i use for your connection while the original will stay bound to roses connection G.G.: so you will be the server for BOTH us ladies??? you just keep getting smoother, i cant handle all this smoothness T.G.: well technically i will be your server and past me will stay as roses server which is to say present me will the one in the black suit G.G.: ohh...
i guess that makes sense T.G.: he can keep managing her for a while until she sorta checks out soon and becomes totally useless then he can start hopping around time like i did make a ton of money and stuff eventually become me and become your server player
G.G.: ok i think i understand that!
T.G.: yeah see its not hard to get the hang of in the meantime ill kind of loiter around this timeframe to help you out for a while G.G.: yessss thanks dave (heart)
um
what do you mean rose will check out? (uncertain face) T.G.: dont worry about it just some more future stuff now i need you to go downstairs
G.G.: uhhhh ok

Jade: Go downstairs.

pesterlog
T.G.: im just going to cut right to the chase and upgrade your alchemiter so you can avoid a lot of bullshit ill give you some codes and you can punch cards and slip em into jumper blocks which are really the exact same codes you first gave me when we upgraded my alchemiter which seems like a hella long time ago
G.G.: it does doesnt it
T.G.: yeah but it kind of literally is for me
G.G.: how long?
T.G.: few days i guess
G.G.: ok thats not THAT long (tongue sticking out face)
T.G.: whatever

Dave: Deploy and upgrade.

[Image description: Jade appears on the transportalizer that the green snake creature used to block, the one at the very bottom of the tower.]
pesterlog
G.G.: yaaaaaaaaaaaay!

Jade: Oh God Hurry up and Alchemize Stuff Go Go Go.

[Image description: A scribbly drawing shows Jade flailing her arms and shouting while captchalogue cards fall around her.]

Hey, calm down! Just because it's snowing outside doesn't mean it's Christmas just yet.

There are still plenty of things to do before we bother with that sort of nonsense. Take a deep breath, put the cards down, and relax.

Dave: Wake up.

[Image description: Dave sits up in the temple. Two crocodiles stand nearby. One flails his Sord and wears his iShades, which has a Rose alert. The other holds the felt smuppet.]

You already woke up when Jade fired her rifle a foot and a half from your eardrum, and then disappeared.

This idiot here is nakking it up with your iShades. Someone is pestering you directly into his brainless reptilian face.

Dave: Retrieve shades.

STEP OFF.

...

You decide he can keep the SORD..... though.

Dave: Answer Rose.

[Image description: Dave stands a bit further down the hall in the temple, surrounded by massive pieces of grist. Most are gem shaped or gusher shaped, but there are several golden cubes and one piece made of small, colorful orbs.]

pesterlog
T.T.: Hi there.
T.G.: nak nak nak
T.T.: Don't mind me.
I'm just waiting for that guy on the pile of sharp objects to wake up.
T.G.: the glasses are talking again naknaknaknaknaknaknaknaknaknaknaknak
T.T.: If you don't stop nakking, I will turn you into a thorn bush.
T.G.: (shouting face) (sad face)
hey
what just happened
pesterlog
T.T.: You fell asleep.
Orange Bird Dave killed some monsters and flew away.
Jade fired a bullet at an imp and vanished.
And you woke up.
T.G.: oh yeah
so shes here then
T.T.: Yes.
T.G.: is she ok what was going on there
T.T.: Yes, she's fine.
T.G.: i guess i should catch up with her T.T.: You already are.
T.G.: i am
T.T.: Future you is.
T.G.: oh ok time travels involved thats all you needed to say everythings cool and under control then T.T.: How was the nap?
T.G.: weird and kind of boring
i was in your dream room for a while spying on you being all creepy and dream duplicitous and shit T.T.: It's ok.
I was being similarly wake duplicitous.
T.G.: whats with your book collection or dream book collection all your books are bizarre and terrible T.T.: No, my books are great.
I can recommend some good titles for the next time you're asleep.
T.G.: nah
but yeah i understand defending your collection i guess if you were in my dream room and talking shit about my awesome dream portraits of dream stiller and dream snoop or whatever wed have to have a fucking talk
T.T.: Did you do anything on the moon besides rifle through my belongings?
Such as remove your shades and turn your gaze Ringward, by any chance?
T.G.: oh
yeah
i did
T.T.: What did you see?
T.G.: horrible things
T.T.: Horrible terrible?
T.G.: yeah
it was like peering through the dark portal of an eldritch red lobster and scoping out its all you can eat seafood buffet
and when i saw them
T.T.: What were they saying?
T.G.: I couldn't really focus on anything specific but in totality, I'm pretty sure it was like.
T.T.: (question mark)
T.G.: A plea for help.

Next

[Image description: Rose floats next to a tower built up from her home. The sky behind it is pitch black and she glows bright pink.]

pesterlog
T.T.: That's good.
T.G.: No it was disturbing, so I slapped my shades back on and perved up some sleeping girl's room to take my mind of it.
T.T.: It means they're reaching out to you.
T.G.: Oh god, why would I want that. I'm not about to get molested by calamari with fucking teeth.
Use your powers and like stroke a mummy's paw or some horseshit and open a dark channel to tell them to keep their lecherous flagella to themselves.
T.T.: You're going to have to help them. Even if you don't like them.

They're being massacred. Presently, already, and still to come.
T.G.: What's that mean?
T.T.: It means time doesn't work rationally out there. Nor does space. But that doesn't change the reality of the threat.
T.G.: Who cares if they're getting killed. They're hideous and obnoxious.
T.T.: You're underestimating the nature of the threat. At this point, the threat isn't to our session, or any given universe. It's to the perpetuation of reality itself. You wouldn't be saving them, per se.
You'd be saving everything.
T.G.: Oh ok cool.

Next

[Image description: Rose looks down on the Land of Light and Rain, which is far, far below her.]

pesterlog
T.T.: They've revealed some of their secrets to me already, and given me a few errands to run.
This is why you might have observed some unusual behavior from me.
T.G.: Oh shit you're kidding. No really are you serious I didn't even notice. Fuck mind = blown.
Once these convulsions of explosive laughter subside and finish rocking my very foundation, I might point out that you haven't really been as astute as you're implying. You've deliberately fogged your vision your entire life with ironic eyewear while awake, and while asleep, though perfectly alert, you've chosen to ignore your surroundings. But now that you've seen them, you have a choice to make.

T.G.: ok

T.T.: They will only tell me so much. They would like an audience with the prince of the moon as well. We are like the emissaries to what lies beyond this small bubble in their unfathomable dark foam. Derse skirts its edge, and during the lunar eclipse, we graze it, and that's when their intent for us becomes clear. I'm doing my part, but they have a mission for you as well.

T.G.: what am i supposed to do

T.T.: Listen to them. My understanding is, they will teach you how to navigate the unnavigable. The result should be a map.

T.G.: like a treasure map

T.T.: No. Something a little more astronomical. Like a star chart with no stars. Hence the challenge.

T.G.: why

T.T.: To plot a course through the Furthest Ring.

T.G.: plot a course to what

Next

T.T.: The power source of the first guardians.

T.G.: oh right the green sun ok

T.T.: Yes, that's much better.

T.G.: what's the deal with this thing i mean aside from giving jades dog his devil powers and by extension i guess jack

T.T.: What's the deal with it?

T.G.: yeah

T.T.: I don't know that there is a deal with it. Beyond the deal you just described. It is what it sounds like. A huge sun out in the literal middle of nowhere, and it is bright green. It is simply,

The Green Sun.

T.G.: how big

i need a sense of scale here is it like the size of our sun or bigger or is it only as big as like planet fucking jupiter
T.T.: It is nearly twice the mass of our universe.
T.G.: ok thats pretty fucking big see how important that contextualization was now i know how fucking impressed i should be i mean holy shit thats huge T.T.: Happy I could help.
T.G.: so ok i make a map to this thing with the help of a million rambunctious gross tentacle mutants and then i guess we go there for some reason
T.T.: Yes.
T.G.: why do we need a map cant they just tell us what direction its in point a spaceship that way blast off to adventure
T.T.: No.
The geometry of the Furthest Ring is too complex.
Remember, its spacetime is labyrinthine.
In fact, it's not really accurate to call it spacetime at all.
Since it is outside the domain of any created universe, where those properties have become instantiated and stabilized.
T.G.: i can kind of get that time is messed up there with like loops and causality paradoxes and shit like that being the knight of time here not really sure why navigating the space would be a problem though space isn't my thing remember what is it like full of wormholes or something T.T.: It depends.
The greater the distance you travel through it, the less reliably time flows.
And the more time you spend in it, the less reliably space behaves.
Time and space aren't as different as you might think.
T.G.: i thought you werent supposed to know shit about either seeing as you're the seer whatever that means T.T.: I think it means I'm supposed to know shit about the big picture.
Which includes tidbits like that.
But the insides of my shoes stay free from the grit of the minutia.
T.G.: fair enough
so i take my map and fly to this thing
T.T.: No, I do.
T.G.: ok you fly to it then what
T.T.: That depends on if John is successful.

[Note: The Tumor is written in black.]

T.G.: yeah
so what's The Tumor do i mean the tumor
jesus can we stop with the fancy colored text bullshit
T.T.: I guess so.
I thought it was more fun that way.
T.G.: well ok you can keep doing it then
T.T.: Thanks.
The Tumor is quite a large growth at the center of the battlefield.
T.T.: He won't be able to remove it without fully realizing his abilities.
T.G.: ok cool what is it
T.T.: Can you promise you won't tell him?
It would probably make him more nervous than he needs to be if he knew.

A means to wipe out a null session rather than leaving it lingering in paradox space for eternity.
Or it could be a mutation specific to our session.
I really don't know.
T.G.: first time for everything i guess seriously whered you get all this info did you get it all from the gods are these just a bunch of orders you're following T.T.: Not exactly.
They've urged me in certain directions and guided my exploration.
I've obtained some answers from them, but ultimately, this idea is mine.
Plus, I have other sources.
One in particular has been quite illuminating.
T.G.: what
T.T.: I've been referring to him as an informant, when people ask.
Which isn't often.
T.G.: what you mean a troll
T.T.: No.
It's a man who exists in another universe.
He wants to die.
T.G.: sounds like a really credible dude sign me up for trusting everything he says
T.T.: Only as credible as the omniscient tend to be.
T.G.: oh so he knows everything
T.T.: Yeah, I think that's what omniscient means.
But maybe I'll ask him about that, since he's the omniscient one.
T.G.: even if he is omniscient which he probably isnt what if hes just lying T.T.: He says he doesn't lie.
For some reason, I believe him about that.
He's a convincing fellow.
T.G.: whys he want to die
T.T.: He no longer has a purpose now that he's done everything required to summon his master.
As a first guardian, he's completely indestructible.
Well, almost completely.
T.G.: wait
what
T.T.: His power is derived from the same source as Earth's guardian.
And conveniently, that of our nemesis as well.
T.G.: ok i get it now
T.T.: When John delivers the tumor,
And I do mean The Tumor,
I and I alone will navigate the Furthest Ring.
And I will destroy the sun.
By which I do mean the Green Mother Fucking Sun.
And in case it wasn't clear,
I won't be coming back.

A.T.: yeah, but now I'm talking to you being awake, because,

G.G.: yup!
that's because my dream self died pretty catastrophically!
A.T.: aw, no, I'm definitely pretty sorry to hear that,
G.G.: thanks, but I think im ok
I felt pretty shaken up at first though A.T.: yes, I did too,
I spent so long sleeping and dreaming and playing on prospit, that being awake was made to feel weird, and I didn't like it for a while,
G.G.: yeah I have done a lot of sleeping myself (smiley face)
A.T.: oh, yes, I know, but, I saw you, you were awake a lot too, after a certain moment, I spent just about every waking hour being asleep, G.G.: wow why did you sleep so much?? A.T.: it was just a better way to be, more peaceful and fun and, I guess, there was something that happened that was incredibly terrible, and sad, and made me feel terrible and sad and sleepy, so I slept, a lot, G.G.: oh no what happened that was so terrible? A.T.: I'd prefer, that the thing I want to talk to you about not turn into that topic, G.G.: ok sorry for prying! what did you want to talk about? A.T.: I wanted to ask you permission, I would have asked permission the first time, but at the time you were not able to give it, or talk or anything, G.G.: permission for what? A.T.: to commune with your lusus, G.G.: with bee? uh.... what do you mean by commune? and what do you mean the first time! you did it before? A.T.: yeah, it means to talk to him, and, suggest he do something which is good, for him, and also for people he likes, G.G.: ohhh like a psychic power?? A.T.: yes, G.G.: pretty sweet! when did you do it before? A.T.: oh, very recently, personally speaking, what's,

a grandpa,
G.G.: oh boy
ok it is basically an old man, who serves the same role as I guess a lusus does on your planet?
he was like my dad, he took care of me!

that is a really weird cultural thing, I guess,
G.G.: sigh...
A.T.: sorry then,
about,
my cultural ignorance,
G.G.: well im not blaming you or anything it sounds like you were just trying to help and you did save my life
but......
I mean jeeees
talk about a misunderstanding
A.T.: well,
now I feel very stupid,
but,
I don't think I will give into bad self esteem this time about this,
it's important to stay confident about stuff, don't you agree, G.G.: uh
sure?
A.T.: and I think this is a good opportunity for us to bond, and become closer in an emotional way, probably,
G.G.: .... It is?
A.T.: oh yes, see the funny thing is, I also killed my lusus by accident,
I mean, my lusus that was a little fairy bull, not an old man with a huge gun,
G.G.: oh nooo
how did that happen?
A.T.: I murdered him inappropriately with a four wheel device, G.G.: (blank face)
ummm what kind of device?
A.T.: like, the kind basically for cripples to sit in, and roll around,
G.G.: oh you mean a wheelchair!
A.T.: I guess, that's a way to call it, G.G.: how...
did that happen?
A.T.: well,
I was sitting in it, being crippled like usual, and he got under the wheel in his nap, G.G.: (very unhappy face)
im so sorry um also
I didnt realize you were paralyzed not that im saying sorry for that! That would be rude I think I am just saying sorry for your loss
A.T.: oh, it's okay, on both things, he came back to life for a while, and could talk, and that was fun, and also,
I'm not paralyzed anymore, (smiley face with bull horns)
G.G.: oh?
A.T.: no, I have robot legs, and I feel great, and I can walk, G.G.: wow nice!
A.T.: oh yes, it is truly nice,
I am a new and different guy, mostly,
being not physically handicapped is most certainly the key to having high self esteem, G.G.: um
that.....
I don't know if I agree with that!
A.T.: oh absolutely, take it from me as what fact is true, and now, I feel emboldened to do bold things that heroes should do, like, save the life of a pretty girl, and kill the fiendish old man, who,
whoops, wasn't fiendish, and you loved him, sorry,
G.G.: well
that's good I guess
I just wish...
maybe you'd told me what happened when I was younger?
I spent years wondering about it!
when I was really young, I was sure the doll sitting across from him did it and for a long time I was terrified of the evil blue girl!!! she sort of haunted my childhood and I had trouble sleeping for a long time but of course I got older and realized that was silly, but then I just speculated that maybe it was suicide which was just a really sad thing to think about!!!
A.T.: wow, yeah,
i,
totally blew that then,
I guess I could still tell you about it in your past,
G.G.: buuuut...
even if you do, I don't remember you doing so!
A.T.: oh,
then I guess I won't,
G.G.: er
ok (uncertain face)
A.T.: but yeah, irregardless, this is likely to be exactly the kind of thing not to stand in the way about good feelings about myself,
G.G.: .......
A.T.: I mean, I saw that your lusus saved you anyway, in advance,
and,
I just wanted,
to make it possible so that I was the one involved with being the hero there,
to save you,
like, to put myself in your story, in a brave capacity, because, that's what feeling good and positive about yourself is all about,

A.T.: absolutely, I am confused like a fox,
the kind that has high self esteem,
G.G.: heheheh
you're incredibly silly
I can't really tell to what extent you're joking around here!
A.T.: I understand that, and jokes happen, yes, but feeling great about yourself is not a joking issue, it is heavy duty business, and needs to be given all the seriousness that sad things get, I've learned that, from my friends, and also, from rufio, G.G.: rufio?
A.T.: yes, he's a fake,
G.G.: what do you mean fake?
A.T.: a fake guy I made up imaginarily, he never stops being a thing that's not real,
G.G.: ohh like an imaginary friend....
heh, ok
A.T.: I'm pretending that being fully honest about rufio's fakeness, and, being up front about his general fraudulence, that it will only give me extra confidence, I'm pretending that as hard as I can, in the most confident way, which makes it partially more true,
G.G.: that sure is a philosophy you have there!
A.T.: yes, being confident is always about saying and doing the things you feel, even if the afraid part of you says, no, please don't do that, like, uhhhhhhh, here is a thing I'm afraid to say to you, jade, but, I'm too confident now to let my afraidness make me feel terrible,
G.G.: oh?? well, what is it?
A.T.: remember, I talked to you a lot when you were sleeping,
G.G.: yes
A.T.: uhh, and, we talked about lots of things, and we had some things in common, and it was nice,
G.G.: sure!
A.T.: and I think consequently, the emotional result is probably, that maybe I have some possible red feelings for you,
G.G.: red feelings?
you mean whoooooaaahhh wait really? (gasping face)
A.T.: wow, that sure was a hard thing to say and made me incredibly nervous, but I said it because of my remarkable leg-powered self confidence, and now I think all that's left is definitely your reciprocation about that, probably,
G.G.: um.................
well I dont think I can reciprocate!
A.T.: uh oh,
G.G.: I mean youre nice but I dont really know you... I dont even know your name!
A.T.: oh gosh, how stupid can I be, I forgot to say, I'm tavros,
G.G.: ok tavros
I dont know if you've fully thought about this!
you don't actually know me very well either A.T.: oh yes, I surely do, because we had a number of spirited conversations, wherein you were very nice and pleased to speak with me,
did,
I misinterpret that, was it not actually niceness,
G.G.: well no
I was being nice because
I like to be nice to people when I can, and when they are nice to me
but......
things are a little more complicated than that, you can't know someone just by a few conversations!
I mean, I only talked to you when I was asleep! I am kind of different when I'm dreaming...
I forget things, and at times I'm not totally sure what's real don't you remember that's what it's like to dream on prospit?
A.T.: uh, kind of,
G.G.: sorry, I feel bad about having to disappoint you... but I don't know what else to say A.T.: but what about,
my attractive bravado,
and ignoring my instinctual cowardice hard enough to say that I like you, isn't that,
supposed to be very attractive, and encourage the major having of flushed feelings in others,
I guess what I mean is, what about all my confidence, what do you think about that,
G.G.: jeeeeeeze, um... tavros I am really flattered you like me and all and that sure is confident of you to say so! And that's great buuuut...
I guess confidence is one thing but there is such a thing as being toooo forward I guess?
A.T.: wow,
ok,
G.G.: I also think...
and really this is just polite friendly advice!
that if you're really confident you don't always have to say it all the time it...
oh man I'm sorry to say it just comes of as a little insecure and off putting and kind of defeats the purpose!
and all things considered I think we should just stay friends or really........ continue building a friendship in the first place, since like I said we don't actually know each other that well!
A.T.: yeah,
uuuuuuuhhh,
G.G.: sorry (very sad face)
A.T.: no, no, if I'm being realistic I think that's what's reasonable to say to me, and I'll work on toning down my self respect a little,
G.G.: aaaaah no! You should have self respect just....
oh boy this is frustrating can we talk about this later?
I have some things to do!
why dont we get back to the original point

maybe the best guy would just know he would be successful, and would do it anyway because it is for your own good, and everyone else's, G.G.: no way!
that would be smug and arrogant and would make you a bully!!!

A.T.: uh, whooops, A.G.: it was so embarrassing just reading that tavros. I'm embarrassed! I am actually feeling genuine embarrassment. Your obscene incompetence is actually polluting my otherwise pristine composure. Nice going! A.T.: so, I don't care, A.G.: jade let you down too easy. She's too nice! Someone's got to tear into you for that appalling display, and once again, guess who's shoulders that falls on? that's right. Vriska's, as usual. A.T.: I think she has the right amount of niceness, personally, an amount that is some, instead of, none,
A.G.: hey, I'm nice when it matters, and where it doesn't strangulate the critical development of people I give a shit about, ok? really I don't know what you see in her. She is completely useless, like you.
WAIT, of course!!!!!!! It makes perfect sense. You and she represent the ideal matespritship, how could I have been so blind!
two perfectly pointless grubs in a bucket.
A.T.: no, I have too much self confidence now to be upset by your scandalous imagery, I don't think she is useless, and I don't think I am either, because of new self esteems obtained, remember,
A.G.: oh will you please stop going on about your fucking self esteem.
I will say this much about her, she was right about that. How insufferable can you get, prattling on and on about how confident you are.
tavros, you give confidence a bad name. I gave you all the chances in the world to earn it, to earn real confidence, and you failed.
you couldn't even do the one little thing I asked you to! The one thing that would have made you man up once and for all.
so instead you flew away and cried, and decided to sleep away your sorrow for the rest of the adventure.
do you have any idea how sick that made me? Everything about you makes me sick.
when you talk about your self confidence, I throw up a little. You don't know what confidence is.
Robo-legs don't give you confidence, that ain't no more true than saying my robo-arm gave me mine. See what I mean?
your confidence is faker than even the great rufio himself, lord of the unreal. It's pure fiction, a false fakey fraudy con job from a wimpy loser charlatan bullshit artist.
it's shallow and nauseating, just like you. Do us all a favor and shut up about it.
A.T.: ok, I think, this is actually making me pretty mad,
A.G.: yeah right!!!!!!!
I'll believe that when I see it, chump.
A.T.: I don't want you to mock me anymore,
I don't know if my confidence is real, or what,
but I would like you to stop saying stuff like that to me,
and to stop saying bad things about my friend jade, too,
A.G.: jade is an idiot.
a useless, boring nobody. What has she done for her party other than fuck up every step of the way? What does she ever do but take naps and get in trouble?
she's awful, and you deserve each other. Oh wait, except she hates you!!!!!!! Ahahahahahahahaha. Even the boring pointless girl hates you, talk about a guy who can't get a break.
though I guess she's not compleeeeeetely useless. (smiley face with eight eyes)
A.T.: what do you mean by that,
A.G.: ok, tavros, I gave her credit for something, so I'll give you credit for something too.
your plan to control her lusus really wasn't a bad idea!
and using your ability to "save her life" (lol) was a pretty good way to test how effective your powers are across sessions.
pretty good way to practice, to know where you stand!
practicing your abilities is important, so when it comes down to using them for something that really matters, you know you're ready for prime time.
I know this first hand.
I got lots and lots and lots of practice with your little guinea pig friend. (very happy face with eight eyes) so really, turns out she wasn't so useless at all! Far from it.
A.T.: whoa, what, are you saying you did to her, A.G.: not really the point! the point is I'm trying to pay you a compliment. at this point, you are so sad and disgusting, you should treat anything nice anyone has to say about you like a chest full of shimmering boonbucks. A.T.: okaaay, god, what, A.G.: like I said! Your plan was solid. controlling the guardian to go after jack was a fine idea. Sure would stir some shit up! better than being an insignificant stuttering piece of trash all the time, I say. and you were definitely on to something about doing it "irregardless" (lol) of her wishes. because it's for her own good! That's what winners do. They do what is right for someone they care about even if the other person does nothing but bitch and moan and act ungrateful about it. Better you learned late than never. in fact, I would go as far as saying that if you went ahead with her plan against her wishes, it might just earn you a smidgen of respect from me. we'll see. there's really just one catch. A.T.: oh, what's that, Next pesterlog A.G.: the catch is it's not going to work! A.T.: what isn't, A.G.: are you even listening to me? Man, clear the rufio wax out of your ears. you couldn't sic the guardian on noir even if you were inclined. Not even if I were to make you inclined! (winking face with eight eyes) A.T.: uhh, why, A.G.: because you are dealing with a pro here. I already thought of that. I thought of everything! Next

Pesterlog A.G.: the guardian is not going to attack the agents who engineered him in the first place. or who I should say were "encouraged" (lol) to engineer him. Next

[Image description: DD stares at the screen, which has zoomed in on the Meow book and copies of the beta.]
A.G.: I was striking a mutually beneficial arrangement! This is often the most effective way to manipulate others. I just sort of gave them an idea. Nudged them along in the direction of seizing more power, which they wanted to do anyway. Remember, I already have a lot of experience getting these simple minded agents to march to my drum beat. I was exiling them left and right in our session! I'm an expert at this by now.

A.T.: why would you do that,

Pesterlog

A.G.: tavros, at this point it should be obvious. I am the unseen hand behind every major event in their session, and to some extent, their whole lives. At least those events not happening by the volition of their own natural incompetence! Don't you think this is how it should be? Shouldn't the greatest player leave her fingerprints on every step of the rise to power of her ultimate nemesis?

A.T.: wow, no, that's,

I don't even know how to say all the ways I think that is crazy,

Pesterlog

A.G.: but you must agree, because you were copycatting my idea.

A.T.: no I wasn't,

A.G.: you were brazenly inserting yourself into jade's history. The self-insertion plan was my idea, and it's revolting and cowardly for you to deny it.

A.T.: that was, for a good thing though,

It's incredibly sad how outclassed you are. It's actually depressing that you thought you could beat me at my own game. And then most sickeningly of all, you don't own up it! I have every angle covered already. The human session is on full serket lockdown. Any effort you make to disrupt my plans will be laughable, just like everything you have ever done in your life. The only thing left to do now is prepare to kill jack myself, and save everyone's ungrateful asses. It's a shame you're not strong enough to take him on with me. Too bad you spent so long sleeping instead of turbo-leveling like me.

We might have made a pretty awesome team.

Page: retrieve arms.

Pesterlog

A.T.: okay, then,

All of your usual insulting things aside, my take on this is, that you created our impossibly hard bad guy, who wants to kill us,
and by association, I guess that makes, you the bad guy too, instead of a good guy who's just mean, A.G.: nice deduction! wrong, excruciatingly linear, and laced with the sort of absolutes morons like to throw around........ but nice!

Next

[Image description: He walks towards a staircase in a hall filled with spiderwebs, carrying his lance with him.]

Pesterlog
A.T.: and that being the case, even though I'm terrified of you, and not as strong, or real confident, only mostly fake confident, A.G.: yeeeeeeees? go on.
A.T.: I think, I am going to have to stop you, A.G.: yeah! That's the spirit. pretty weakslime threat there, but it's a start. tell you what. if you can find me in this lab, you can have at me. I'll even give you a free shot! No funny business or anything. A.T.: ok, then, here I come, A.G.: I'll be waitng. (heart)

Next

[Image description: Tavros falls down the stairs. 'Happen' is written in red comic sans next to him.]

Next

Next

[Image description: It switches to just show that scene. The window turns on, showing a faintly flickering image of Andrew Hussie with smudges of grey face paint on his face, a headband with a single troll horn on it, and a black circle on his forehead bearing Vriska's symbol.]

AH: Ride.

[Image description: Andrew Hussie, as seen through the window, becomes the panel. Behind him, pink clouds move quickly across the screen.]
Yes.

Hell yes.

[Image description: He's riding the weird, goat (or maybe dog)-like dragon from The Neverending Story, but it has flashing cueballs for eyes. He pumps a fist in the air. In a mirror of what most of the audience is probably thinking, a note reading "wtf?" is drawn in, along with an arrow pointing to the dragon's eyes.

Hell.

[Image description: Three scribbly figures labeled 'bullies' stand in a field outside a large city. Andrew Hussie on the dragon flies in towards them.]

Fucking.

[Image description: He flies closer and the bullies begin to run away.]

Yes.

[Image description: The dragon barfs green slime, or fire, or maybe acid, onto the bullies. Who even knows anymore.]

And so came to an end the most heroic thing that ever happened in the history of metafiction.

Let's move on.

Heir: Level up.

[Image description: John sits on top of his echeladder, which spews boonbucks. He's leveled all the way up, past Planet Healer, Hammerkind Paragon, The Breeze Kneels, Ripetike, Man-Skylark, and Doctor Ragnarok. He's reached the highest tier of Heir Transparent. His hat has a glowing blue feather and he has 9,413,612 boonbucks.]

The Windy Thing subsides, and clear skies prevail. You soar to the highest rung, and rule over your echeladder as the Heir Transparent.

Boondollars fly.

Air: Cloud up.

[Image description: John looks out over an ocean of oil towards the distant shore. The clouds that blocked out the sky are all gone.]

Next

[Image description: The clouds curl back in, once again covering the sky and trapping fireflies beneath them.]

Next

[Image description: The cloud cover completes.]

The clouds have returned. The fireflies are still trapped. The spell remains unbroken.
There is commotion behind you. A nearby village, perhaps?

[Image description: The song Planet Healer begins to play. John stands on the shores of an oil ocean. There is a rocky outcropping to the east and his serious business goggles sit on the ground to the northwest. They have a Vriska alert over them. This panel is a walkthrough.

Click the control icon in the top left corner.
Use arrow keys (or wasd keys) to walk and spacebar to interact.

Walk north to the goggles.
Press space.
A command prompt appears.

Pick up serious business goggles.

You re-equip Serious Business Goggles! Would have sucked if you lost these.

Another command prompt appears immediately.

Answer Vriska

Vriska's talksprite appears on the right side of the screen.

Vriska: John.
Congratulations!!!!!!!

It switches to John's talksprite. He has short black hair that swoops across his forehead. His glasses are still square and he's wearing the black slimer shirt under an open green button up, as he has been for much of the comic. As they talk, it switches back and forth based on who's talking.

John: for what? you mean... that windy thing? did i actually do that somehow?
Vriska: Well, yes, you did. And I suppose congratulations are in order for that too.
but mostly, I am congratulating you........
For Gaining All the Levels!!!!!!!! (gasp face with eight eyes)
John: oh, right! i got to the top of my echeladder somehow. i didn't even really think it had a top, or that i would get there so fast.
so i guess that's it, then! don't have to worry about leveling up anymore. that's pretty neat.
Vriska: Don't be ridiculous, John.
While you may have technically gained all the levels just now, you did not truly gain all of them just yet.
In a way, this is really just the beginning.
John: it is?
Vriska: Yes. You are now ready to begin your ascent through the god tiers.
Nobody I know was able to progress this far anywhere near as fast and you, John. Not even me! I can't tell you how proud I am.
John: wow, really?
ok, what do i do?
Vriska: The thing is, from this point on, you can't make any progress while you're awake. So you've got to get to sleep!
but not just any boring old nap will do. You will need to go to sleep in a special bed.
You must find your Quest bed, John.
John: that sounds pretty cool. where is it?
Vriska: Not too far away! but rather than me telling you, why don't you talk to the locals and ask around?
I've helped you get this far, but at some point you are going to have to start taking some steps all by yourself. I think you're ready for that!
If you make the right decisions and play all your cards right, hell, you might even wind up at a higher tier than I did!
I hope this turns out to be the case. I am rooting for you all the way. Now get going and find that bed!!!!!!!
John: ok, i will! thanks a lot, vriska!

There is a salamander to the west. Talk to it.

Salamander: Did you see it?? It was there, after the Windy Thing!
John: see what?
Salamander: Oh gosh, I can't think of the word. The big flat thing thats as wide as possible, and up.
John: um...
Salamander: The dark colored ceiling that clouds stay under.
John: you mean... the sky?
Salamander: Yes! It was so beautiful. I hope to witness its miracle again one day before the end of my sadly short amphibious lifespan.

There is a parcel pyxis to the northeast, near a set of stairs. Open it.

You got a Minitablet

Go up the stairs.
John passes several of the cruxite trees and mushrooms. The stairs level out onto a flat path and turn towards the east. There's another salamander just after the curve. Talk to it.

Salamander: That was quite a bluster, wouldn't you say? It really had us all whipping around here, our little legs flailing every which way.
John: you must be talking about the windy thing.
yeah, uh. sorry about that.
Salamander: What would you have to be sorry about?
A great surge of The Breeze like that could only be summoned by the Heir! It means he's finally come!!! This is so exciting.
Please let me know if you see him.
John: heheh.

Continue along the path. A set of stairs descends into a village. There are only two buildings, one on the west side near where you entered and one on the east side. There is also a parcel pyxis near a set of stairs to the north and another set of stairs to the south. One salamander stands near the west building and two stand near the east one. Talk to the salamander by the west building.

Salamander: I thought for sure our mushroom was cooked! The Green Tragedy nearly consumed us all.
John: the green tragedy? oh...
you mean the fire?
Salamander: Yes. Word has spread of the global catastrophe. Thousands of lives were lost.
Luckily the Heir saved us! I'm going to pop a big friendly bubble in his face if I am ever lucky enough to meet him.
John: wow...
sounds like he's in for a treat!

Go to the pyxis and open it.

You got a Can of Tab!

Oh yes, you have been dying to try this beverage for a long time. Perfect timing too, since you are in need of a good sugar kick. This can should be jam packed full of real, actual sugar.

Blech. This stuff sucks.

Talk to the other salamanders.

Salamander: We must all come together and unify as a people after the terrible Green Tragedy. This harmonious union will mostly entail a lot of standing around and fidgeting hyperactively... together!

Salamander: Oh boy oh boy oh boy, I can't wait for the Heir to visit our village. Hey! Maybe he's here right now!
Maybe if I blow my spit bubble to be big enough, it will catch the Heir's reflection, and I will be able to bask in his magnificence.
Wait... I see someone in my bubble's reflection right now! Could it be... could it...
Oh, never mind. It's just a dumb boy with some square glass shapes on his face.
John: hey!!!

Head to the south stairs.
They curve east and end at another beach. At their base, there's another parcel pyxis. Open it.

You got... one of your Fake Arms?

Man, why do they have to rummage through your stuff and start mailing it all over the planet?

Go west, along the beach. There's a more open area where another pyxis and a baby salamander wait. Talk to the salamander.

John: hey little fella, where are your parents?
do salamanders even have parents?
oh, duh, of course they do. i guess what i mean is do you have a family or anything?
Salamander: glub
John: hmm, i already adopted one young salamander today. but, then i left her at my friend's house...
so i think i'll let you be. i dunno if i'm cut out to be a dad!
i mean, i don't even have a tie, or a pipe, or a really serious looking wallet or anything.
thinking about it is making me miss my dad. hey, i wonder if i'll see him when i sleep on my quest bed? i hope so. anyway, thanks for listening. see you, little guy!
Salamander: glub

Open the pyxis.

A frog comes out of it.

You got More Illegal Contraband!

Dude, this frog is So Illegal. You'd better ditch this thing before a wily agent of Derse sees you with it.

Go back to the area with the buildings and go to the north stairway. At the top, there is a T junction with a sign. It has one arrow pointing left and one pointing right.

Read the sign.

Left : village

Right : mushroom orchard, and also a secret grotto! shhhh.....

Head east, towards the mushroom orchard. Three salamanders stand on the path. Talk to them.

Salamander: Hey you! Don't go any further! The mushroom orchard has been commandeered by a frightening beast!
It is terribly powerful, unlike any underling I have ever seen, at least not before the Green Tragedy. The devil is making it nigh impossible to farm our goddamn mushrooms!

Salamander: Halt! We are guarding the mushroom orchard. It is for your own good. Do not pass.

Salamander: Guard guard guard. We are an elite team of village guards, guarding this orchard here. Together we represent an impenetrable edifice of amphibious fury. There is no way anyone is getting through. Public safety is assured.

Ignore their warnings and go east anyway.
A new area loads and the walkthrough zooms in on John. He stands on a stone path with a small river of oil blocking the north and some rocks blocking the south. Go east. There's a large open area with a single imp in it, but it randomly appears and disappears in showers of green sparks.

Attack it!
John pulls out Fear No Anvil and smacks the imp.
Every time you get a hit on it, it disappears, but so does a small amount of its health. Chase it around and kill it! Be careful, though. A single hit from it takes out a large portion of your health. It takes forever, but you eventually kill it. It drops 34 uranium.

There's a salamander frantically hoeing at some mushrooms in the southwest corner. Talk to it.

Salamander: No I don't give a shit that there's a ridiculously powerful and deadly imp running around the orchard. SOMEONE'S got to be farmin' all these goddamn fuckin' mushrooms, pain in the ass though truly it be.
So that's what I'm doing.
Standing around here farmin' all these goddamn fuckin' mushrooms.

Check and see if there's trickster mode in this flash. Press control + T

A passcode box appears. It reads
"Pap is to Nak as..."
fill in the password as "shoosh is to doof"

You are now Dave. Dave is drawn in a much more anime style and even runs kinda like Naruto, leaning into the run and keeping his arms behind him.
This changes nothing.
Press control + T to be John again.

Go west and exit the orchard.
Walk back past the salamander and, this time, notice a break in the rocks. Go through the break and up another path. A short way up the path, there is a salamander wearing a ghostly bedsheet as a robe. Talk to it.

Salamander: You are entering the private and secluded alcove of the Clan of the Secret Wizard.
... shhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhh

Continue up the path.

There are so many salamanders here, all wearing ghostly bedsheet robes. There's also two parcel pyxi. Ignore the salamanders for now and go to the west pyxis.

You got Your Own Copy of Harry Anderson's 'wise Guy' Back!

Come on, this is getting ridiculous. Your prized belongings are being scattered to every corner of the globe!

Now continue to ignore the salamanders and go to the east pyxis.

You got a Firefly!

Poor guy was trapped in there. Off you go, little fella. Join your friends in the clouds.

Okay, now talk to the salamanders, going counterclockwise from the path.

Salamander: I fell asleep in a bush, and when I woke up, I was here, dressed in this absurd cloth. I am so confused, and a little afraid.

Next.

Salamander: Glub glub. Hey kid. See these robes? Let's get beholding here. Chop chop.

Next.

Salamander: behold my robes behold my robes behold my robes behold my robes behold my robes
John: ok, jeez!!! i am beholding them as hard as i can right now, whatever that means. are you satisfied?
Salamander: ................

Next.

Salamander: I am beholding someone without the proper attire in our presence. This is most improper.
John: Sorry. Where can I get some robes to join your club?
Salamander: You really think it's that easy? This is an exclusive guild, and entry is only permitted through brutal ritualistic hazing.
By which I mean, we have more of these damn robes than we know what to do with, and we zealously recruit new members with virtually no standards at all.
Would you like to join? I will take your robe measurements right now.
John: oh. nah, not really.
i don't really feel like walking around wrapped up in a stupid bedsheets.
Salamander: My tender ears have just been scalded by unthinkable blasphemies.

Next.

Salamander: I'm kind of not really into this. I'm just doing this because of peer pressure.
To be honest, I'm getting a little tired of beholding all these goddamn robes. What does beholding robes even mean? Like, just looking at them? Is that it?
Don't tell anyone I said that!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Next.

Salamander: I am going to ask you to do something. And it's totally up to you if you would like oblige. No pressure or anything.
John: um... do you by any chance want me to behold your robes?
Salamander: You are an amazing genius and I love you.

Next.

Salamander: Would you like to hear the story of the Clan of the Secret Wizard, and why you presently have the privilege of beholding my divine robes?
John: but... those are my bedsheets! how did you get them?
Salamander: Silence. I will not entertain such pluck from the lowly unenrobed. Our great elder, the magnificent Secret Wizard was one day graced with the First Rag of Souls from the clouds.
He donned the oily, humble cloth and assumed the countenance of a simple beggar.
But lo, he beheld a great pillar of rock, and on that pillar he beheld an impossibly tall white tower belonging to the fabled Heir of Breath.
And so our leader ascended this pillar and this tower, but found no sign of the heir.
He did however find the Heir's floating blue servant, and she laundered his robes, and so the Rag of Souls was born anew.
Such was his magnanimity, he employed the Heavenly Machina to duplicate this relic and distribute robes to his many followers across the land, so that they too might be beheld with a beholdeye of admiration.
So it was, and so it shall have been behelt.
Now go. May beheld robes be with you always.

Next.

Salamander: Glub glub glub glub glub glub, yeah, just behold my robes already, ok? Sheesh.

Next.

Salamander: Where is your Rag of Souls? You look absolutely ridiculous. Our secret society beholds you as foolish.

Next.

Salamander: Behold my robes, good sir. Behold them and may peace behold you.

Now leave. Go back to the fork in the pathway and, this time, head west, entering the main section of the village. There are several buildings, a well, a few parcel pyxi, and many salamanders. Just go around clockwise and see what you come to.
There's a salamander immediately north of the path. Talk to it.

Salamander: I thought the spell was broken there for a moment! The clouds went away, and the fireflies were all buzzing around, acting disoriented. But then the clouds came back! To be honest, I was a little relieved. I have grown fond of them. And if the fireflies were to escape from above, I would miss them dearly! They're really pretty, and they're my friends.
John: aw...

There's a shop. Talk to the attendant.

Snack vendor: welcome! Looking for something tasty today???

A menu appears.
Snack stand
Cone of bugs - 5 boonbucks
Onion - 10 boonbucks
Tasty mushroom - 10 boonbucks
Jar of bugs - 15 boonbucks
Mushroom shake - 15 boonbucks
Big boy mushroom - 25 boonbucks
Grasshopper - 100 boonbucks
A note at the bottom says "escape to exit"
You can buy whatever you want. You have more than enough boonbucks to go around.

There's a salamander immediately west of the snack stand. Talk to it.

Salamander: Our village has the best snack stand in the land! It offers the juiciest bugs and most succulent onions!
I'm so hungry. Alas, I have not a single boondollar to pop my bubble with.
John: i've got loads of boondollars! here, i will treat you to a nice lunch.
[The salamander got 100 boondollars!]

Salamander: Oh god oh god oh god, this is like a small fortune!
I can finally afford to try the most sublime delicacy on the menu. But, if I opt for that, I can afford nothing else that is tasty. Hmm...
John: yes, i guess having money leads to some complicated decisions. oh well, enjoy!
Talk to that salamander again.

Salamander: I blew all my money on a grasshopper. It was...
Well, it was ok I guess.

Go to the next salamander, who is standing outside a house.

Salamander: Hey hey! I heard a rumor that you were some kind of Mr. Moneybags over here. Well boy do I have an offer for you.
John: what is it?
Salamander: A treasure! It will cost you 10,000 boondollars to discover what it is, and obtain it.
John: wow, 10,000? that's a lot... but really, i guess it's not so much, since i have millions.
Salamander: Millions?? Why didn't you say so. I revise my offer to 100,000 boondollars.
John: hey! you can't do that.
i will pay you 10,000, and that's my final offer!
Salamander: You drive a hard bargain out of that silly toothed mouth of yours. Very well, the deal has been made.

You got a Smuppet!!!;
John: aaaaauuuuugh, it was was one of dave's dumb butt puppets?? i hate these things! what a ripoff.

Talk to that salamander again.

Salamander: Oh wealthy tooth boy. I have another offer for you.
John: i'm not doing business with you anymore, you scoundrel!

There's a salamander by the well in the center of the clearing. Talk to it.

Salamander: All that commotion very nearly woke The Slumbering One, I think! That would have been dreadful.
But he is still asleep. I am sure that only the Heir can wake him, and break the spell over this land.
It's said the Heir will wake the denizen by playing a magical song only he can play, and when he wakes up, the Heir will meet the terrible beast face to face!
It is then that he will be offered The Choice. The nature of the Heir's triumph depends on what he chooses!
Then the Heir will lead us all to a beautiful place, with the most bristling insect furrows and the richest, dampest mushroom soil you could hope to farm.
Or so the story goes! Probably a lot of bullshit if you ask me.

There's a parcel pyxis near a set of stairs on the north side of the village. Open it.

Whoaaa! You got a whole booncase!!!!!!!

...............

But it's empty, and therefore worthless. Too bad. You guess riches aren't quite so easy to come by.

Ignore the stairs for now and continue going counterclockwise around the village.

There's a flagpole near a toppled pipe. Examine it.

The flag is at half mast in honor of the heroes who lost their lives to the Green Tragedy.

It fades to a scene of the alchemiter on John's balcony. A handful of salamanders stand on or near it, surrounded by giant cans of barbasol shaving cream and jetpacks. Clicking brings up a text box.

Many brave firefighters deployed from the Heir's tower to extinguish the flames. Alas, they were all overwhelmed by its fury.

The salamanders blast off from John's house, carrying cans of shaving cream.

A memorial would be erected in their honor. It would be inscribed with the last words so frequently overheard, words of wisdom to remember.
How can shaving cream be so flammable?
How indeed, brave heroes.
How indeed.
It fades back to John at the flagpole. Two salamanders stand just south of the toppled pipe. One wears a crumpled tophat. Talk to the one without the hat first.

Salamander: Oh man, look at that dashing style. Rumpled head objects are all the rage these days! I would love to wear one, but I just don't have the money.
John: hmm, well, i agree it is important to keep up with the fashions. tell you what, i will give you some money for a hat, so that you can be one of the coolest salamanders in town! here you go...

The salamander got 1000 boondollars!

A hat appears on the salamander's head.

Salamander: oh my god oh my god oh my god oh my god oh my god oh my god oh my god oh my god oh my god thank you so much, I love my new rumpled head object, and I love you.
John: heheheh. you're welcome.

Talk to the same salamander again.

Salamander: thank you thank you thank you thank you thank you thank you thank you thank you thank you

Talk to the one who already had a hat.

Salamander: I am the absolute pinnacle of fashionability. Marvel at the object upon my head, and admire the lustre of its velveteen rumples. It was so expensive.

The next building is a shop with a picture of a crumpled hat on the side. Talk to the attendant.

Haberdasher: hello! Looking for a head object that is rumpled and unsightly?
Haberdasher: all of our head objects are rumpled and unsightly, fortunately!

Another menu appears.
Rumpled head object - 1,000 boonbucks
Even rumplier head object -2,000 boonbucks
The rumpliest head object of all - 5,000 boonbucks

Go around to the south side of the village. Another salamander stands near the well.

Salamander: Shhh... listen.
Do you hear that? He is still asleep, thank goodness.
But when the Windy Thing was kicking up all that fuss, it sounded like he was not happy at all.
It makes him absolutely furious when anyone other than him bends The Breeze to his will! It is not pleasant for anybody.
Luckily there is only one person who can do that, and he is surely a mythical figure, who only morons believe in.

Approach the well and climb the steps to it.

Look inside.
The music cuts out and it shows the inside of the well. The bottom is lost in darkness. It zooms in until the whole screen is dark and the sound of faint, distant wind starts up. A moment later, it cuts back to the village and the music begins again.

There's another pyxis to the south. Open it.
You got a Smuppet!

Go north, up the stairs you previously ignored.

There's a shop there that has a sign that shows a music note and a sword crossing. Talk to the attendant.

Merchant: What will it be today?

Another menu appears. There are symbols next to each of the items.

Fraymotif shop
(two wavy lines, as seen in the alert when karkat was yelling at john to do the windy thing) feathercadence - 10,000,000 boonbucks
(two wavy lines) pneumatic progression - 100,000,000 boonbucks
(two wavy lines) breathless battaglia - 1,000,000,000 boonbucks
(two wavy lines) (gear) ivories in the fire - 10,000,000,000 boonbucks
(two wavy lines) (stylized sun) mixolydian maelstrom - 200,000,000,000 boonbucks
(two wavy lines) (nested lines radiating out into a swirl) fantasia's inhale - 1,000,000,000,000 boonbucks

Try to buy Feathercadence.

Argh, if only you hadn't given stupid Dave that stupid boonbuck, you could have bought this!!!

STRIIIIIIIIIIIIIIIIIIIIIIIIIDEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEER!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Try to buy any of the others.

Yeah, you you're not even remotely close to being able to afford this thing. Whatever it is.

There's another salamander standing near the shop. Talk to it.

Salamander: It is this way to what we locals call The Glow Shape. It is above the thing that the Heir will take his most important and legendary naps upon.
John: oh! that must be my quest bed!
er... i mean the heir's quest bed.
i almost forgot i was being all sneaky and incognito here.
Salamander: My response to that will simply be a singular, unintelligent and unpunctuated glub.
glub

Go north.

It fades to a panning shot of a blue canyon. A massive blue pillar that's wider at the base and narrow at the top sticks out of the ground. A path winds up it, to where something sits on top of it. Above it, the symbol of two wavy lines hovers in the air, pulsing with a white light.

You have found your destination. What would you like to do?

A command prompt appears with three options.
Proceed to Quest Bed.
Keep exploring village.
Start over.
Starting over, predictably, starts the walkaround over.

Keep exploring village returns you to the path.

Proceed to quest bed cuts out the music and the screen fades to black.

This is the end of the walkaround. Now go to the next page.

John: Proceed to Quest Bed.

[Image description: John stands on top of the pillar. The object on top is a massive, 4-post bed. The posts are easily 15 feet high and capped with grey orbs. The wavy lines are printed on the bed itself, which is cracked slightly, like it's a slab of rock rather than a true bed.]

John: Take legendary nap.

[Image description: John sits on the edge of the quest bed. A Vriska alert appears next to his serious business goggles.]

pesterlog
E.B.: ok, i think i'm ready to take this legendary nap!
and then climb the god tiers, i guess?
A.G.: Yes, exactly! Pretty exciting, isn't it?
E.B.: yeah...
maybe it is a little TOO exciting.
A.G.: What's that mean?
E.B.: i am not sleepy at all!
also, this is not much of a bed. more like a really hard slab of rock.
i don't see how i will be able to sleep.
A.G.: John.
Would you like me to put you to sleep?
E.B.: um...
you mean, you're asking me this time, instead of just doing it?
what happened to you wanting to be responsible for me becoming a hero!
A.G.: John, I am clearly involved in your rise to power now regardless. That can't be changed!
I am giving you the option, because at some point a hero has to start making choices.
Once you take a break from hunting treasure and stop getting distracted by side quests, you eventually realize that's what this game is all about.
The choices you make affect the destiny of the universe you create, as well as the type of hero you become.
It would have been nice if someone was around to explain all this to me, and let me have some control over my own fate.
I had to do this a much less pleasant way. I'm sparing you that indignity.
besides, it's not like you're some loser who doesn't know how to make tough decisions.
So what'll it be, John?
E.B.: well...
i'm supposed to go to sleep to realize my destiny...
and you have the ability to make me do that, so...
i don't really see the harm in that.
it sounds like it is just the practical thing to do.
A.G.: Am I hearing a "yes," John?
E.B.: yes, that is my decision.
vriska, please put me to sleep!
A.G.: You got it. (heart)

[S] JOHN. RISE UP.

[Image description: A loading screen shows the slime creature from John's shirt. A red line fades in on it, and it spreads, until the entire screen is taken up by red. It fades to black, then to the view of someone looking up through tree branches to the trapped fireflies. Savior of the Waking World begins to play. It pans down over John's quest bed, then onto his body. It zooms out, showing him on W.V.'s viewscreen. Serenity hovers nearby. W.V. looks up in shock. It flashes white, then to the drawings of the planets W.V. made. It zooms in on the oily one, then fades to LoWaS as viewed from space. It zooms in, quickly passing the clouds, and eventually focuses in on John. Fireflies descend on him and wind starts up. The orbs on top of the posts glow brightly and it zooms out. The symbol above the bed descends and the whole area glows blue. John, too, begins to glow. W.V. watches in shock. It fades to John in his prospit pajamas, also glowing. A red spot appears over a yellow moon, and expands. It zooms out. John's dreamself is laying on a grey slab that resembles the quest bed. Then he begins to fade. A spinning spirograph appears around the bed. W.V., in the past, when he was still on the battlefield, stares up at something in awe. That something begins to glow brightly. It pans up to a checkerboard version of the pillar the quest bed was on. A blue glow and wind lines expand out from the pillar. Suddenly, it pulses white and washes out the whole screen. John's body, silhouetted against the light, rises slowly. The background turns blue and John turns yellow. Blood appears across his chest and dripping down his arms. The spirograph and several lights surround him. It focuses in on his hand. The yellow sleeve of his prospit pajamas and the blood both disappear. It fades to Jade, staring up at something in awe. Then to Dave doing the same. Then to Rose. The screen turns black and Skaia fades in, surrounded by spirographs. The wavy line symbol appears in the center of Skaia. It zooms in until the symbol is all that's on screen. It fades to light blue as the background turns brighter blue. It zooms out. The symbol is on a shirt. John's shirt. Who is alive, standing, and staring down at his hands in shock. He's also wearing a darker blue hood, blue pants, and yellow shoes.

It zooms out more. He's in one of the Clouds of Skaia.

It zooms out more and he stares up at the vision of himself in that cloud, which fades to an image of his dead body on his quest bed as everything but him and the cloud fade to black.

Another scene closes in around it, putting the cloud's vision onto W.V.'s screen. That, too, goes black. W.V. stares up in shock. It fades to black again.

Bec Noir appears on W.V.'s screen. It fades to static. The screen turns off with a fading white line, like an old television.

A command prompt section fades in. A sburb house logo tops the screen.

pesterlog

T.G.: ok
G.C.: what (confused face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: what do you mean what G.C.: I mean what are you waiting for!
are you going to just stand there, or are you going to suck it up and assassinate that nice looking dave in his sleep? (smiley face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: but you know if im going to or not its lame for you to pretend theres any element of suspense here why dont you just tell me G.C.: oh I get it you want to rise to the god tiers and become as great as john while still forfeiting all of your decisions and free will to a blind girl in another dimension real heroic, dave!
or should I say
soooo cooooool (smiley face with shades and furrowed brows)
T.G.: look I dont mind making the decision if thats whats going on here like doing the free will thing
G.C.: oh is that a thing now?
T.G.: yes how would it ever stop being a thing being a things not something it ever stopped doing I just want to know whats really going on here before I decide to start choppin off the heads of outrageously good looking snoozing dudes
G.C.: I told you you need to die on your quest bed to reach the god tier in skaia with john T.G.: ok I know but something about this doesn't add up who is this guy
I don't remember sleeping on this bed or reaching the god tier im pretty sure that's something i remember so is he from the future does this mean later im going to have to put this ugly goddamn suit back on on which I thought we both agreed id retired from the wardrobe forever and then go back in time and sleep in this bed and get killed by me right now do I have the stable loop right
G.C.: nope!
T.G.: then what
G.C.: I can tell you but first, are you so sure this is the source of your hesitation, dave? keeping track of temporal logistics?
T.G.: why wouldn't I be concerned about that if we make mistakes then dead daves start piling up and dead daves are the enemy remember says the sword holding guy whos about to add one to the pile
G.C.: im just saying it isn't easy for anyone to face their own death even if the consequence is to their benefit not even any of us managed to do it well, except for one T.G.: who
G.C.: take a wild guess!
T.G.: ok got it I wonder if this can finally be the conversation that doesn't deteriorate into a lot of bitching and moaning about her
G.C.: fine (tongue sticking out face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: so if im understanding this this guy isn't from the future who came back to finish a loop and hes not from the past because id remember doing this so this isn't part of our timeline choreography at all must be from an offshoot timeline which means hes doomed
G.C.: yes
T.G.: ok so how did this happen where did we fuck up
G.C.: we didn't! sorry about this dave it was the best way I could think of to show you what this involves! you wouldn't stop bugging me about why you'd never be able to catch up with john I told you you wouldn't be able to face your death and that wasn't good enough for you! So here we are T.G.: what exactly did you do

Next

[Image description: A screen shows Trollian open with many, many Dave timelines open. Some have large darkened chunks, likely when Dave wasn't in the linear flow of time. One of them stops] about halfway up the screen. Three different timelines have viewscreens open. One shows green suit Dave in a grey facility of some sort with a Terezi alert over his iShades. One shows Dave standing over himself on the quest bed, focusing on the green suit Dave. One shows the same scene, but focused on the Dave in the record shirt.

G.C.: ok, remember when you were asking me about this god tier stuff and how john was able to ascend and I told you it would involve dying and you kept going on about it, so I gave you a choice to find out now, or find out later
T.G.: yeah I remember that seems like a long time ago already what was that like more than a day for me chronologically G.C.: yes but it was only a couple minutes ago for me you finally wore me down with all your recent pestering! so I said fine and went back a little earlier on your timeline to kick this off so this is how we are doing this now T.G.: ok but you didnt actually give me a choice you just flipped a coin G.C.: yeah and I left the decision over the outcome of the flip in your hands! (smiley face with furrowed brows)

Next

[Image description: A coin flips through the air with faint 'shoosh' sound effects written in.]

pesterlog

G.C.: maybe you forgot I wouldnt blame you since there has been a lot to keep track of but here is how it went down you were strutting around in your delicious kiwi eight ball suit and running your fresh mouth as usual durp yo terezi sup sup gotta beat john gotta beat john hes got a long hood and he does wind, how can I get powers too? oops red is how I talk, my bad

G.C.: oh my god... dave this is so decadent why didnt you ever tell me how amazing it is to type like this I almost cant handle it (gasping face with furrowed brows) T.G.: ok stop that shit is probably like crack to you im not going to stand by and watch you fall prey to your own wild cherry apeshit apocalypse G.C.: ok (frowning face with furrowed brows) so anyway, im like dave thats going to involve facing your own death and im sorry to break it to you but I dont think youre ready for that so then dave is like thats so stupid bluh bluh im being difficult, and cool, word up so I say fine
I will show you but only if you promise to the exact terms of my arrangement, in order to protect the integrity of the timeline (smiley face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: the arrangement being the coin flip thing thank god we did that otherwise we'd be screwed
I probably would have gone back in time and killed my own grandfather oh wait I never had one G.C.: ah, but it was important!
you just didn't know what was going on, which was for your own good
I told you I was going to flip a coin and before I did, you had to pick a side without telling me good heads or bad heads and you were like hey sure terezi I will hella go along with your two face thing whatever that means (uncertain face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: oh yeah
G.C.: what did that mean, by the way
whats a two face thing
T.G.: twoface is a human batman villain who's half ugly and flips coins all the time to make evil decisions
G.C.: oh... well thats kind of disheartening, I sort of thought my coin flipping was a cool and unique thing (sad face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: its ok flippin coins for reasons is still pretty badass I guess why don't you finish your story

Next

Under this picture is a picture of Terezi shrugging hard with 'Now What?' written above her.]

pesterlog
G.C.: right
so the choice if you recall was I could show you how to reach the god tier now or I could show you later and you had to assign one option to good heads and the other option to bad heads and whatever the result of the flip, you had to promise to do what you committed to before hand!
G.C.: no cheating and changing your mind, or that would fuck it up T.G.: right exactly so like I said before I had no choice at all I picked some options and you flipped a coin G.C.: yes, but leaving the choice to you was important here you'll see why if you think about it
T.G.: not seein it
I picked good heads to mean you'd show me now bad heads to mean youd show me later you said it came up bad heads so I was like ok I can wait and I did for like a whole day and now here you are showing me did I miss something
G.C.: yes
you forgot that there was also an offshoot reality in which you made just the opposite decision!
that was the one where bad heads meant I would show you right away remember before the flip, I instructed you what to do in that event to go back in time, and await further instruction and you did!
he did, that is he went back in time, and I told him to find this bed and go to sleep and then future dave would come later and kill him, sending him to the god tier if he so willed if he could find the wherewithall to go through with it the sleeping dave is the doomed dave, the one who didnt wait future dave is you, the one who waited in your quest, youre the alpha dave hes you (smiley face with shades and furrowed brows)

Dave: Show him your stabs.

[picture: Dave stands over his doomed self, sword at the ready.]

pesterlog
T.G.: then
this is kind of useless isnt it
I thought you were bringing me back here to finish a stable time loop not murder a guy you punked whos gonna die regardless whats the fucking point of giving a doomed version of myself superpowers anyway G.C.: maybe he will stop being doomed after you kill him?
maybe he will get the dave powers and live a long and cool life not being doomed anymore how would you know unless you take a stab at it?
hehehe
T.G.: its just the worst thing when you get morbid
G.C.: (tongue sticking out face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: anyway maybe but I kind of doubt thats how it works I mean doomed means doomed doesnt it the loopholes are only temporary like look how davesprite turned out G.C.: (sad face with furrowed brows) rip mr orange creamsicles, may he rest in deliciousness T.G.: am I wrong in guessing that shouldnt you know better than me G.C.: dave when it comes to time stuff, why would the seer of mind know better than the knight of time?
T.G.: I dont know what does being a seer of mind actually mean G.C.: that is a greeeeeat question (smiley face with furrowed brows)
maybe if you think about it you can figure it out yourself
T.G.: oh ok its someone who asks a bunch of dumb riddles I figured it out already G.C.: yeah right!!!
T.G.: lets not get derailed here we were talking about a serious issue and im standing over my soon to be corpse while holding a fucking sword
G.C.: ok, that is fair
you are probably correct about doomed mr kiwisuit here paradox space is pretty vicious about punishing those in violation of its plan T.G.: punishing
G.C.: sure
it finds ways to annihilate the paths which do not contribute constructively to its own propagation and it is equally merciless to those who inhabit them, and in particular, those who cause them it appears to have a sense of justice, dont you think?
T.G.: I guess
G.C.: well, you asked what I thought, and thats what I think the question remains now what??

Next

[Image description: Terezi grins at her computer screen, which lights her with a red glow. A coin she flipped spins next to her.]

pesterlog
T.G.: I dunno none of this is making for a very persuasive argument that I should kill doomed me
G.C.: but he is going to die anyway!
why not just be the one to put him down?
at the very least, you could make sure it is a pleasant demise instead of something nastier (smiley face with furrowed brows) T.G.: see
this shit youre doing now this is the morbid shit I was talking about its not anywhere near as endearing as you probably think even when you bracket smile after it like ok you said something fucked up but hey theres a cute face my heart just fucking melted
G.C.: dave, we both know my bracket smiles are irresistible (smiley face with furrowed brows times 3)
T.G.: ok yeah youre right I just got won back over totally
I think this whole thing was a ruse and not even the funny kind that qualify as distactions
I think you got my whole timeline there in front of you and you know damn well I have no intention of killing this guy ever and its just a big game you set up to watch me squirm over weird mortality issues while you giggle
G.C.: yeah
so?????
T.G.: so
I guess
well played?????
I dont know
just one question and please just drop your fucking justice riddles and be honest do I ever make the god tier like the right way
G.C.: very well, I will stop tormenting you dave no, you dont
but that is not as bad as it sounds!
like I said, none of us made it except for... Ok never mind it wasnt necessary! We were already breezing through the game at our lower levels by the time we reached the top of our echeladders and mastered our fraymotifs, we were completely dominating!
ok, so the end boss was more challenging than we expected but by then it was too late to go back and do anything about it, and we had an army of lethal psychic robots to help us it all worked out in the end
why do you think I had you buy all those fraymotifs?
even if youre not quite where john is, youre still a pretty deadly weapon (smiley face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: ok
then cool I guess I can live without wearing a sweet windsock hoodie and making time tornadoes or whatever
I was only bugging you about it cause you were being so vague
G.C.: yes I know
I thought it was better to show you what was involved its one thing to say sup sup terezi help me be a god sup sup sup but facing it is different our race is not exactly uncomfortable in the proximity of death but it was still a challenge we werent prepared for
and then jack killed our dream selves and I guess we lost that chance for good (sad face with furrowed brows)

Next

[Image description: The coin flies through the air.]

pesterlog
T.G.: alright then
I guess thats enough of this horseshit time to move on right
G.C.: sure
if you really want to leave poor doomed dave here to his own devices
T.G.: I dont even want to be around when he wakes up ill be weird and awkward G.C.: I dont suppose I could talk you into putting him out of his misery based on the result of a coin flip (very happy face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: no fuck no put your fucking death coin away jesus
I am forbidding you from ever flipping that coin again when youre talking to me or even thinking about me
G.C.: fine!!!! Wow dave so touchy about a silly little coin youre overestimating its relevance here anyway in fact after I flipped it, I didnt even look at the result!
T.G.: what you didn't
G.C.: nope
dave, why would a blind girl look at a coin she can't even see?
it doesn't make sense!
T.G.: that's fucking idiotic
you could smell a flea off a dog's balls
G.C.: (uncertain face with furrowed brows) dave see
this shit you're doing now this is the gross shit I was talking about it's not anywhere near as endearing as you think ahahahahaha T.G.: this is bs
so ok your coinflip of death was meaningless great to know is there anything else we need to do here
I sent you the money I got all the fraymotifs tell me what is there that's left besides you jerking me around probably time we chill out for a while and I get back in sync with my teammates G.C.: oh yes, I know you've got some work to do, I can take a hint and give you some space to do it (happy face with furrowed brows) jade is going to need your help on her nice frosted marshmallow planet
T.G.: then I guess that's where I'll go
G.C.: and if you can find it in your coolkid heart not to stay mad at me, feel free to get in touch any time
T.G.: ok
I mean im not even actually mad I just
I dunno
G.C.: (gasping face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: I still don't really get what you did was the trick really necessary it sounds like the splitoff was a result of both possible decisions I could have made and had fuckall to do with your coin or randomness or luck G.C.: exactly!!! see you do get it
T.G.: get what
G.C.: you asked what it means to be the seer of mind
T.G.: yeah
and
I obviously still don't know
G.C.: ok then ill just ask this how much of your reality do you think is made of what's in your mind?
T.G.: I don't know sounds like a riddle fuck it ill just say all of it
I mean that is the answer right
G.C.: smartass (tongue sticking out face with furrowed brows) it is not a riddle, it is a serious question, there is a big difference dave if you see what's in your mind clearly and understand the power your thoughts have then you understand reality while everyone else is running around confused and angry and upset because they think reality is something happening to them rather than something they are making every moment with every thought T.G.: oh ok
G.C.: how well do you think you know your mind dave?
T.G.: really well
I know it biblically its an obscene nsfw spectacle
G.C.: hehehe
I dont know what that means but I know it is probably a rude joke!
T.G.: means my skull is a bucket and my brains a plump fuckgrub
G.C.: gross dave is gross!!! but I knew that too
I know your mind better than you
T.G.: oh do you
G.C.: I am not psychic, but I have the sight seers are meant to have it was my role to have it to talk to people and see the tunnels and vortices in their minds and to understand the realities they would create if those thoughts lead to action for my enemies, I was meant to bring about the inherent retribution flowing from the reality made by their own evil thoughts and for my friends, to protect them from their tendency to underestimate the power their confusion has over their fate to keep them out of trouble, dave (happy face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: is that what you were doing just now G.C.: maybe I was!
you never know, seers are notoriously cryptic in their ways
T.G.: yeah no fuck
G.C.: anyway, its been fun dave its been so fun because the more people try to hide the more they show me
so I guess thats how I know
I like you so much (very happy face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: man you are just some kind of knowitall arent you what else do you know
G.C.: hmm
I know some very important things
T.G.: like
G.C.: I know that you were on to something when you said luck wasnt involved with the coin flip T.G.: yeah because you didnt even look it was like schrodinger's fucking coin
and then it turned into schrodinger's fucking dave G.C.: ricky schrodinger?
T.G.: yeah
G.C.: well yes, that may be true, but even so I do know that luck is a very real thing!
fortune is the essence of light, and it shines on those whove mastered it but I know something more important than this it is a big secret maybe the biggest and most important secret of all
T.G.: what
G.C.: luck doesn't actually matter (happy face with shades and furrowed brows)

Vriska lays on the ground in a pool of her own blood. The stone is pink, like her land's.

Tavros sits by her side, his rocket chair not that far away. His legs are non-robotic and her blood is splattered all over the rock face.

Tavros looks down in horror. A command prompt is just above his head. This is it runt.

Here's yer chance]

KISS HER

He leans in closer and pinches his eyes shut. Swirling blue lines like the ones from John's windy thing come out of his mouth.

KISS THAT GIRL YOU WIMP

A hand covered in Vriska's blue blood shoots up and grabs him by the throat.

AW FER CRYING OUT LOUD

Tavros sits next to Vriska, choking himself and looking horrified. Two command prompts are on screen.
You make me sad runt
Just shaking my head here.]

THATS IT

Tavros reaches out and dips his finger in Vriska's blood. Three command prompts are on screen.
I can't take it anymore

Take her out.

[Image description: Writing in Vriska's blood continues. AAAAAAAAAAAAAAA Halfway down, it begins to mingle with brown blood, then slowly becomes mostly brown. A large smear leads off to the left. In the top left corner, a message from Droog reads You're making a mess, junior.]

Finish her.

Rise up, Thief.

[Image description: Vriska hovers against a blue background. She’s wearing an orange tunic, leggings, boots, and a hood with two long tails. The stylized sun icon is on her chest in yellow, and two large, blue, butterfly wings extend from her back. She looks quite pleased with herself.]

The windy boy is dead. The tragedy is overwhelming. All hope is lost.

Oh well. Time to get out of this tin can!

W.V: Escape.

[Image description: He presses the escape key]

Next

[Image description: The door rises up a few inches, then stops.]

The door jams.

Next

[Image description: The image shifts to focus on the battery bank. The last bar on the indicator is flashing red.]

Oh, right. The station is out of power. You forgot about that!

W.V: Examine treasure.

[Image description: W.V holds the queen's ring, which, again, makes his arm glow.]

Of course you still have your secret treasure, but it will almost certainly prove to be of no use to you in this dilemma whatsoever. It clearly serves no significant purpose other than to be pretty, and to make your hand glowy. Back in the sleeve of your trusty knife it goes.

W.V: Search for power source.

[Image description: W.V stares off into the distance as Serenity flashes on top of his head. Behind him, it shows another version of him as if x-rayed, showing his bones and a lump of uranium in his stomach. BURP hovers over the x-ray version of W.V]

Oh yeah, there's another thing you forgot about! You ate that delicious green nuclear rock earlier in the day, even though it feels like it was more than a year ago.

Guess there's nothing to do but wait it out.

[Note: "You ate that delicious green nuclear rock" is a link back to the page where he did that.]

Jade: Prepare for imminent windfall.

[Image description: Jade sits on her alchemiter, surrounded by captchalogue cards. Her lunchtop has a Karkat alert, which flicks rapidly between different pictures of him doing dumb things.]

Ugh, there he goes again, bothering you. He is so impatient. Doesn't he realize how time consuming it is preparing for the holidays? He's just going to have to hold his stupid angry alien space horses.

Wait... you almost forgot, it's still April, and nowhere near the holiday season. You guess all this wintry weather tricked you into thinking it was.

But wait! Even THAT doesn't make any sense, since it never snowed on your island, and you were never able to connect it with the holiday season! Boy, are you confused.

But you always wanted a white Christmas, and dammit, that is what you are going to have, even though it's April, and even though you are giving all these presents to yourself, and even though Jesus Christ is no longer a relevant figure to celebrate on account of the annihilation of humanity!

Oh shut up, Karkat.

Next

[Image description: A very scribbly drawing of Karkat screams at his computer]

Karkat cannot be conveyed with a more detailed portrait yet. He is too angry, and is forced to look like shit.

Maybe later if he can manage to calm down.

shit. lets be santa

pesterlog
T.G.: yes perfect
G.G.: it is the prettiest tree i have ever seen!!!!!
T.G.: ok im going to torrent you another like negative billion artifact grists G.G.: ok great!

everything about that makes total sense
T.G.: yeah
now draw the conksuckiest boot you ever drew
G.G.: ok

Jade: Draw conksuck boot.

[Image description: She does indeed draw the conksuckiest boot ever seen, which looks more like a stocking than a boot. A second image names it Conksuck Boot, with a price of -100 artifact grist. A third shows Jade standing next to it on the alchemiter with the Kringlefucker off to the side. The conksuck boot is as tall as she is, and the kringlefucker is only about twice as tall.

pesterlog
G.G.: is this conksucky enough
T.G.: its the conksuckiest piece of fucking shit that ever still somehow qualified as a boot
G.G.: (heart)
T.G.: you just know imigrants were responsible
G.G.: well...
i am not even sure if i am technically a u.s. citizen!
T.G.: yeah see what i mean

Jade: Deck halls.

This image is a link to a Sweet Bro and Hella Jeff comic.]

SWEET BRO AND HELLA JEFF
[A stock image cartoon of a house on a snowy landscape with the watermark still in place has large mistletoe, half of a garland, a wreath, and Santa's sleigh throwing presents photoshopped onto it. It's an abomination.]

[Sweet bro is wearing a red onesie, a fake white beard, and a santa hat. A pair of boots (labeled as such) and a grate (labeled 'great') sit on either side of him. He says]
Shit. lets be santa

[He tries to pick up one of the boots, but his hand seems to phase right through it. Or maybe that's just the drawing. He says]
fuck

[He tries to shove his foot into the boot backwards. His hand is still phased into it.]
come ON

who would even make these.......

conksuck boots anyway and all through then house

not a creature

[Geromy sits inside the chimney in a badly drawn roof scene. Large white circles, presumably meant to be snowflakes, are dotted against a bright blue background. There are words written into the white snow on the roof, but they're light grey, so they're barely visible.]
GOD BLESS US EVRYBODY

[Now back to your regularly scheduled Homestuck]

Jade: Alchemize.

[Image description: Jade sits on the alchemiter with her drawing tablet in her lap.]
You have put a lot of thought into this and you have some great ideas.

But first you would like to make something practical. Something to keep you warm in this chilly weather!

Jade: Make earmuffs.

[Image description: She draws a puffy squiggle. A second image shows her double punching it with a headband into a Fluffy Ball Plus Headband for 50,000 build grist. A third image shows that she's made it. It's the size of her head and she stares at it uncertainly.]

You combine Rose's headband with... some sort of of fluffy ball you drew?

This isn't really working. Also, this pointless thing was absurdly expensive for some reason.

Jade: Just draw some earmuffs.

[Image description: She just draws some earmuffs. A second image shows that they cost 2 build grist. In the third image, Jade wears them and claps.]

You simply draw a pair of earmuffs, and make them. Yay!

Jade: Combine earmuffs and lunchtop.

[Image description: She doublepunches the lunchtop and earmuffs to make the Lunchmuffs, which cost 100 build grist, 50 ruby, and 1 diamond. A second image shows her wearing them and grinning.]

You make a pair of Lunchmuffs! Finally, an easy hands-free computing solution that keeps your ears warm, and looks amazing to boot!
Jade: Combine Johnny 5 and lunchtop.

[Image description: The ghost image of the robot thing she accidentally got earlier appears on her drawing tablet.]

You figure as long as you have the Lunchtop card handy, you might as well try to do something with this dumb Johnny 5 Ghost Image you accidentally made once.

You don't even know what this robot's deal is. You've never seen this stupid movie.

Next

[Image description: She double punches the Johnny 5 and the lunchtop to make the Johnnytop, which looks like a vaguely humanoid robot with treads instead of legs and a lunchbox for a chest, at the cost of 5000 build grist, 2500 ruby, 50 diamond, and 5 titanium. A second image has her standing next to it and looking very uncertain. The Johnnytop is quite a bit larger than she is.]

You make the Johnnytop!

Finally, a difficult to use hands-on computing solution that does nothing but roll around of his own accord while talking about his emotions and reading books fast!

FINALLY!!!!!!

Jade: Combine Iron Man armor and outfit.

[Image description: Jade goes up to the armor room and retrieves a greyscale iron man suit. A second image shows it on her drawing tablet.]

You decide to cut to the chase and do something that will have indisputably cool results.

You go to one of the stairwell rooms and carefully observe the armor while you sketch it. You have secretly wondered whether your grandpa was actually Iron Man in his younger years. It would explain so many things, including why this armor is here.

Next

[Image description: She double punches the iron man suit with her outfit, which currently has a bec head on the chest. This makes the Iron Lass Suit, a red and gold dress modeled after the iron man suit, though instead of a round window for an arc reactor, there's a blue, glowing Bec head. This costs 100,000 build grist, 20,000 ruby, 10,000 amber, and 1,000 uranium. A second image shows her wearing it.]

You make the Iron Lass Suit!

It's quite stylish, but maybe a bit cumbersome for casual wear. Probably only good for special occasions.

If you are going to adopt a new regular outfit, you'd prefer something a little comfier and less ostentatious, and if possible, in less flagrant violation of copyright laws.

Jade: Combine one of grandpa's beauties and outfit.

You sketch one of his silly sun-bleached blue lady portraits. He would be so proud.

Next

[Image description: She doublepunches the portrait with her standard outfit, which makes the Dress of Eclectica at the cost of 8 cobalt. The dress is blue with a a black bec head on the chest, a blue sash at the waist, and two ruffled tiers on the skirt, which falls to about knee length.]

You make the Dress of Eclectica!

This is so much better.

Jade: Combine Rose's crystal ball and magic cue ball.

[Image description: The drawing tablet has a circle drawn on it.]

You lost your Magic Cue Ball in the explosion, so you will have to draw it and hope your modus knows what you're getting at.

You have been dying to see its predictions, and you think you are on to something here!

Next

[Image description: The circle flashes for a moment, then turns into a regular magic 8 ball.]

Sadly, the modus interprets your circle as a boring and useless Magic 8 ball.

Oh well, you guess you'll do it anyway.

Jade: Combine Rose's crystal ball and magic 8 ball.

[Image description: Jade doublepunches Rose's crystal ball and the magic 8 ball to make the Transparent Magic Ball for 8 tar, 1 diamond, and 1 chalk. A second image zooms in on the transparent magic 8 ball, which glows blue in the center.]

You can now see inside, and watch the dark water sloshing about the cavity in the globe.

The predictions seem kind of lame when you can see all the other possibilities tumbling around in there. Kind of makes the fortune feel irrelevant.

Jade: Combine sooth specs and lunchtop.

[Image description: She doublepunches those two together. It costs 2000 build grist, 20,000 diamond, 200,000 amethyst, and 2,000,000 ruby to make these Junior Compu-Sooth Spectagoggles. A second image shows her wearing them instead of the sooth specs. They look like the sooth specs, but red rather than purple and with a design made of interlocking squares surrounding a red circle in them.]
You make the Junior Compu-sooth Spectagoggles!

You can never have too many cool computers.

Jade: Combine furry trophy, lunchtop, and shirt/shoes.

[Image description: She double punches a wolf head and the lunchtop, then overlaps that with her shirt and shoes. It doesn't give a name or cost, but the second image shows her wearing a red jacket with a white collar and squiddle buttons and a pair of red and white shoes with squiddles on the side.

You grab one of your grandpa's softest trophies and use it to make a really stylish Warm Fuzzy Squiddlejacket!

You do the exact same thing to your shoes to create a matching pair of Squiddlesneaks!

The jacket and the shoes are also computers. You will never be caught without a computer, ever.

You are suddenly feeling more fashionable than any kid in paradox space. All of the style belongs to you. The only thing left to do is make yourself deadlier.

Jade: Combine Dave's Midnight Crew poster and rifle.

[Image description: She doublepunches the poster with her rifle, making a very large gun with an equally large magazine and a red diamond on the side. It's called Girl's Best Friend and costs 500,500 diamonds. A second image shows her holding it. It's longer than she is tall.]

You make a Girl's Best Friend!

Pew pew pew!

Jade: Combine Charles Dutton and squiddle.

[Image description: Her drawing pad shows the ghost image of Charles Dutton that she made earlier.]

You still have this Charles Dutton Ghost Image you accidentally made.

You...

You are not sure what to do with this gentleman, if anything.

Oh well, when in doubt, squiddle it!

Next

[Image description: She doublepunches it with a yellow squiddle. It makes the Duttle, a brown squiddle with a frighteningly realistic drawing of Charles Dutton's face on it. It costs 0 build grist. A second image shows Jade keeping her distance from it.]

You made a Duttle!

The duttle is weirding you out a little. You believe you will keep your distance from the duttle.

Jade: Sketch particle accelerator.
You put the leering duttle out of your mind and try to sketch one of the pieces of equipment from your destroyed room to the best of your recollection.

Hopefully it works, so you can try making something sweet.

Jade: Combine rifle, iron lass suit and particle accelerator

It worked! The result is a huge kickass Proton Cannon.

Obviously you can only wield this weapon in your Iron Lass Suit.

Next

Or you would, if you were able to afford the thing.

Dave turbo-torrented you a lot of grist, but you don't have that much.

Jade: Combine mummy and MC poster and outfit.

You made the Dead Shuffle Dress!

While wearing this outfit, you almost feel as if you were ripped straight from the animes!

Jade: Combine green sun bedsheets and girl's best friend.

You make the Green Sun Streetsweeper! Aw yeah.

Ok how about one more outfit. Outfits are the best, you think.

Jade: Combine dress of eclectica, Felt poster, and 8 ball.
with the magic 8 ball. This makes the Three in the Morning Dress for 8 tar and 1 uranium. A second image shows her wearing a black wrap dress with a green shine to it and a pattern like the night sky. A green bec-shaped pin is on her chest. It more than passingly resembles the pattern from Snowman's suit.]

You make the Three in the Morning Dress!

It is so fancy. You cannot imagine wearing it on anything other than super special occasions. Not to mention you'll freeze your ass off in this thing!

Jade: Combine mecha, streetsweeper, and iron suit.

[Image description: It shows the mecha ghost image on her drawing tablet. A second image shows her doublepunching it with the streetsweeper and overlapping that with the iron lass suit. It gives no result or cost.]

You still have this Mecha Ghost Image you made a while ago, by accident as usual. Might as well throw a bunch of crazy shit together and see what sort of insane loot crops up.

The suspense is almost too much.

You make...

YOU MAKE............

Next

[Image description: A Johnny 5 robot stands and trembles next to Jade, who looks thoroughly unimpressed. A second image zooms in on Johnny 5's face, which still trembles and is actually more like 2 camera lenses than an actual face.]

JOHNNY 5.

God dammit.

Motherfucker thinks he's alive.

HE IS A TIN CAN, ROBOTS DON'T HAVE FEELINGS.

Jade: Combine Dutton and sooth specs.

You make the Dutton Bubble Goggles!

Next

You can see into eternity.

Forever.
Ok that's enough.

Next

[Image description: Jade stands on her alchemier, surrounded by all the fun toys she just made. Her iron lass suit, the fluffy ball plus headbands, Johnny 5, and Johnnytop sit on the floor behind the alchemier. The Duttle wears the Dutton Bubble Goggles and sits on the pedestal of the alchemier. The Green Sun Streetsweeper, transparent magic 8 ball, and sooth specs sit on the edges of the alchemier. The dead shuffle dress and three in the morning dress stand on the alchemier platform with her. She's holding the Girl's Best Friend, wearing the Junior Compu-Sooth Spectagoggles, the lunchmuffs, the squiddle jacket and shoes, and the Dress of Eclectica.]

HAPPY APRIL 13TH, 2009 EVERYBODY!!!!!!!!!!!!

Next

[Image description: Jade frowns as every computer she just made has an aquarius alert appear on it.]

All of your computers light up at once as some douche bag starts hassling you, whoever this douche bag might be.

You will have to remember to keep most of these computers turned off.

Jade: Answer this douche bag.

[Image description: Eridan stands as a black silhouette in a purple cape and blue scarf with a shadowy alchemier behind him. He clutches a white wand and sneers towards a blue Bec head alert floating next to his glasses.]

C.A.: now that youre done makin all that pointless rubbish

G.G.: uh...
C.A.: weve got the same abstratus and i dont need this thing anymore since i became more powerful than you could ever imagine as a mighty wizard of white science so you might as well take it and settle your score with that awful witch
G.G.: but im the witch!
i mean witch
C.A.: yeah ok the seer then if you want to be dealin with technicalities G.G.: rose?
i do not have a score to settle with rose!!!
why would you think that?

C.A.: oh well fuck

suppose i was guessin it was natural to presume somewhow relation like that between the two a you G.G.: i think you are projecting your own attitude on to others just because you tend to hate and/or hit on everyone you meet doesnt mean everyone else is that way

rose just sent me a code for a crystal ball, shes my friend and is basically the best!
C.A.: oh i see so she shared her "magic secrets" with you then its probably a trap i wouldnt trust her she is a cunnin and treacherous sort trust me i know her type G.G.: wait do you have a thing for her too??? did she reject you or something?
C.A.: you are slingin around such a bloody mess of slander with these accusations you wouldnt understand anyway its already been painfully established you people cant get your shallow think pans under the majesty of our quadrants
G.G.: (blank uncertain face)
C.A.: if you must know things between us were gettin pretty bellicose and im pretty sure she was waxin as obsidian for me as a human got it in em to do and if not for the interdimensional divide keepin us apart honestly i dont doubt our rivalry could be brewin outright pitch
G.G.: uh huh...
C.A.: but the thing is i need a rival who can pose me a challenge and frankly shes not even fit for holdin my cape anymore at this point i find all her adorable black pixie dabblins to be prime kiddie playtime shit all of her FRAUDULENT MAGICS cannot come close to posin threat to my mastery over the TRUEST SCIENCES an with my empiricists wand i serve as the righteous hope that will incinerate delusion and the deluded alike
my holy fire is the white fury bled from the wrath-weary eyes of fifty thousand nonfictional angels and when theyre finished weepin they will bow before their prince G.G.: wow what are you talking about C.A.: so really you should be honored to inherit my old callin both my armaments and my feud itll be witch against witch a real one vs an impostor faker one dies
G.G.: hey look at that, time for me to get going!
C.A.: oh will you just take the fuckin gun already G.G.: no i dont want it!!!!!
C.A.: its a way more powerful weapon than any of that crap you made its a legendary relic without equal G.G.: more like a legendary piece of shit!
C.A.: youre bein needlessly fuckin stubborn about this im doin you a fuckin favor here
G.G.: yes but i dont like you very much and i feel really icky about accepting a present from you
C.A.: if you accept it this is the last ill ever be botherin you about anythin ok
G.G.: siiiigh fine
C.A.: FFFFFFWW
G.G.: what?
C.A.: thats the code
G.G.: oh…

Jade: Make this legendary piece of shit.

[Image description: It shows Ahab's Crosshairs, which Jade could make for the cost of 16,777,215 build grist and 1 cobalt. A second image shows the gun sitting on Jade's alchemiter. She's looking at it uncertainly.]

pesterlog
G.G.: hmmm...
i have seen this before
C.A.: hows that possible its a one of a kind weapon plundered from an alternian ghost ship G.G.: i am very sure its the same rifle included with johns present
but...
bigger of course
C.A.: probably a cheap imitation of the original uh kind of like that one there is so theres your answer stable loops ahoy now enjoy the utter fuckin domination it affords G.G.: yes but.... i did not provide the weapons!
my penpal did
C.A.: whos that
G.G.: the guy who helps me build the present we worked on it together but he supplied the bunnys weapons im pretty sure hes from the future!
C.A.: why
G.G.: because he said hes my grandson
C.A.: what the fuck is a grandson is that some kind of perverse human familial thing
G.G.: umm yes
C.A.: nevermind then your procreational biologistics make my fins curl in distaste
G.G.: oh no!!!!!
aaaaa please dont tell anyone i told you about him!
augh how could i let that slip to you of all people
C.A.: settle down jade youre radically underestimin the amount of shit i dont give about this ill have you know this is the last time im plannin on talkin to any human i got bigger ships to sink and soon when im good and ready me and my luminous fuckin science stick have got a date with jack noir
AND NO NOT THAT KIND OF DATE GIVE ME A LITTLE FUCKIN CREDIT
G.G.: wow ok!!!!
i wasnt going to say anything
C.A.: whys this matter so hush hush anyway G.G.: he didnt want me to tell my friends who he really was i guess maybe he was concerned about upsetting the timeline? i dunno
C.A.: well maybe he didnt wanna disrupt whatever disgustin sequence of events was responsible for his spawnin in the first place G.G.: maybe!
i have wondered about that, assuming he is right... he was so nice, and it really did feel like i was talking to family, so i really dont think he was making it up i couldn't help but try to imagine his parents... and more interestingly...... his grandfather (gasping face)
i still wonder who it could be...
although i guess at this point the options are pretty limited (smaller gasping face)
C.A.: ok i think i'm starting to feel ill talkin about things makin me fathom pink wigglers comin out a your own personal torso so change a fuckin subject that gun i just gave you is somethin of a hatchright to the kid happy i could play a role in your dirty stinkin lineage G.G.: like an heirloom? i guess it could be do you even have those? if you don't have parents how could you?
C.A.: no we don't know our direct forebears and im pretty sure any attempt to seek out or even inquire about the supplier of your genes would be a fine way to get yourself killed but we've got our lore and it says we all got individual ancestors who contribute to most of our genes above and beyond what the grubs slurry does G.G.: ewwwww
C.A.: oh shut up anyway a lot of us believe were meant to trace the footsteps of those ancestors even though we can never know em and on that journey we can come across belongings they once had cause we were hatched to find em and finish their work i kinda think thats why i found the gun in the first place but now im forsakin it because fuck i just found a better destiny than my old crappy one which i never got any appreciation for anyway
G.G.: hmmm
then maybe that is how this heirloom should work
C.A.: what do you mean
G.G.: well i don't want to use it!
C.A.: aw man come on G.G.: so ill just dump it outside the house with the trash and if it is fated to find my penpal one day then so be it!
C.A.: god damn it its like you people go out of your way to think a how to disrespect me G.G.: maybe you should have been nicer to me!
in any case i don't appreciate the spirit in which the gift was given so this is what i will do!
C.A.: fine fuck it what do i care

[Image description: Jade gives a little grin as she puts the compu-sooth spectagoggles on her face.]

These things cost a fortune to make. They better do something awesome.

And it turns out they do!

The sophisticated computing technology merged with the crystal ball provides a simple way to see anything going on right now in the incipisphere! How amazing is that?

As the Witch of Space, you figure it's about time you got better acquainted with the full breadth of your domain, which is to say, all physical locations.

Jade: View John.

[Image description: Jade appears in one of the clouds of Skaia. John is standing somewhere on the checkerboard planet in his god tier outfit. W.V stands a decent distance behind him.]

There he is. On the battlefield no less! That's a pretty cute outfit he's got on. You wonder what he did to make it?

You also wonder why he's not answering your messages. Does he even have a computer on him?? He should try to have more foresight, and carry no less than 5 computers on him at all times, like a sensible person.

Jade: View Rose.

There she is! What is she doing on the lava planet?

She seemed awfully preoccupied when you spoke with her moments ago and she gave you the code for the crystal ball. You wonder who she could be talking to?

Jade: View Dave.

According to the spectagoggles, there are currently 13 Daves scattered around the incipisphere, including Davesprite. That is an absolutely preposterous amount of Daves.

You guess Davesprite is the one prototyped by his future self that John was telling you about? Dave sure is a clever guy. Might as well have a look...

G.G.: really??
T.G.: yeah well
suffice to say if we can't beat him
all we can really do is exile him to a place where he can't teleport back

Ms. Paint, you are doing a wonderful job. Thank you. It was also very thoughtful of you to switch the layer mode of your coat of paint to the overlay setting, so it would not obscure the details of Mr. Carnegie's lavish room.

recap log

After Act 4, we began Act 5 Act 1, otherwise known as Hivebent. We were introduced to 12 trolls from a planet called Alternia, which resides in another universe. We followed these trolls as they played their own 12 player session of Sburb (or to them, Sgrub) to completion. A whole bunch of stuff happened along the way. In completing the game, they created a universe - our universe, home to Earth and our four heroes. But they were denied entry into the new universe due to an encounter with an indestructible demon. This demon was the four-times-prototyped Jack Noir from the kids' session, forced into the trolls' session due to a spacetime rift the kids would later cause, called a scratch. The trolls fled to the veil, discovered the existence of the kids, and began trolling them.

Then Act 5 Act 2 started.

Through a Trollian viewport, we see John moments before the scratch is initiated, wearing his god tier Heir of Breath suit, in the Land of Heat and Clockwork (LOHAC), about to put in motion a plan he, the other kids, and the trolls all helped orchestrate to cause the scratch. This is the first conversation Karkat ever has with John, and the last John has with Karkat, pre-scratch. Karkat proceeds to troll John backwards through his timeline. John knows increasingly little, while Karkat gradually begins to understand more.

EVENTS FROM KARKAT'S PERSPECTIVE

10:25 (10 hours, 25 minutes) before some Critical Moment, Jack arrives and destroys the gateway to the new universe. Aradia transports all the trolls to the veil to hide. Her army of doomed duplicates takes on Jack. They are all destroyed. The trolls find a computer lab in the veil, and stay there for most of the time remaining before the Critical Moment, to occur at 00:00.

06:12 before Critical Moment, Jack destroys Prospit. Shortly before this, Kanaya chainsawed off Tavros's legs to replace them with robotic legs supplied by Equius. At the sight of this, Karkat faints, and for the first time, his dream self wakes up on Prospit. He is awake for only a moment before he sees Jack, and finally recognizes him as Jack Noir, rather than the heretofore unidentified demon. Jack then kills him and all the other Prospit dreamers in the process of destroying the planet.

Karkat remains asleep for an hour, until 05:12:30 before Critical Moment, exactly half way through countdown. While sleeping post-dream death, he dreams of horrorterrors in the Furthest Ring, an experience anyone will have if sleeping after dream death. On waking up, he orders everyone not to sleep. He also wakes up to news that the humans were discovered. Neither he nor the other trolls understand the significance of the humans right away. They were discovered when Terezi was wired 413 boonbonds from Dave, on her future instruction. She urges Karkat to take a closer look at them. He dismisses them as irrelevant.

It's not until later he makes the connection between the Jack Noir in the kids' session, and the one hunting them down, recognizing them to be the same Jack, therefore placing the kids at fault for the current predicament. He then conceives of the plan to troll the humans, as a futile form of payback, and urges his team to follow suit with a compelling speech. He isolates John as the primary target of his hatred after watching him grow up. He is sure John is fated to be his kismesis, a romantic partner specific to troll culture, centered around rivalry and loathing. In his first conversation with John in the Heir suit on LOHAC, he professes these feelings clumsily. John cannot reciprocate. The awkward exchange causes Karkat to trap himself into continuing backwards on John's timeline, and the trolling continues in reverse fashion until John's first conversation with Karkat. By then, Karkat has explained many things to John along his journey, things about the game, about his role as an ectobiologist, and about their shared chief adversary, Jack Noir. In John's first conversation with Karkat, Karkat needs to get in touch with Jade. It's at this point on Karkat's timeline he has finally understood enough that he knows he must begin making plans with the kids for their mutual benefit.

Karkat attempts to get in touch with Jade, who continues to ignore him in a particular timeframe due to his persistent previous harassment of her in years prior. He leaves a message to her months in the past, telling her she needs to get in touch with him when her robot explodes. Her robot later finally does explode when her dream self is killed in the impact of Prospit's moon on the battlefield. When she wakes up, she remembers the message, and contacts him. But she contacts him at a point in his timeline where he is not yet interested in hearing from her. He argues with her, and is interrupted by his future self in a memo, from a time where he is trying to contact her. He and his future self argue, and Jade mediates between the two and becomes angry and frustrated, and ceases the correspondence.

By this point, the biggest meteor yet is approaching quickly, and she must enter the medium to escape. She requires John's assistance. He must recover the server disc, install it, and rescue her.

EVENTS FROM JOHN'S PERSPECTIVE

John sleeps on bro's rocket board, flying along with the meteors of the reckoning. He lands back on his planet, the Land of Wind and Shade (LOWAS). His dream self had awoken after dream Jade pushed him to safety from the blast of Prospit's moon. His dream self now exists on the battlefield, awake whenever John sleeps. He wanders the battlefield with his robot bunny, who he would later name Liv Tyler. He sees his dad and Rose's mom, and runs to meet them. But he wakes up before reaching them, and his dream self disappears. The ring he was carrying falls into a ravine below, later to be recovered by W.V?, before his exile to post apocalypse Earth.

Vriska was responsible for waking him up. Upon discovering John, she takes an interest in his advancement, and uses her abilities to help him progress and set up critical events along his timeline. The only effect her abilities have on humans is to wake them up or put them to sleep. In this case, she woke him up so he would be able to receive the server disc about to come out of a parcel pyxis. The disc had been deposited into the pipeline by P.M some time ago. She and John continue to converse, and he befriends her, oblivious to the true nature of her schemes. She functions as his "patron troll", a troll who is particularly focused on helping one of the kids, like Terezi is with Dave, and Kanaya is with Rose.

John returns to his house, and installs the server. But not before touching base with Rose, who is committed to cracking open the secrets of the game through dark magic, and Dave who is from the future, having time traveled extensively over the course of the 24 hour reckoning period. John also encounters nanna, who gives him a pendant granting him the ability to summon her. She conjures a ghost bed for him, and cooks for him with a ghost oven. He floats on his bed high above LOWAS while he connects to Jade.

Jade, who had woken up in her bed at the foot of the hill, returns to her house to find John setting up the equipment. John deploys the alchemiter and lathe in her greenhouse, and the cruxtruder in front of her fireplace. He opens the cruxtruder and discovers there are 10 minutes and 25 seconds until impact. They discuss what to prototype with, if anything. Rose warns him of the danger of failing to prototype, which would not allow the battlefield to heal, evolve to its final form, and grow the Tumor inside, which is critical to her plan to destroy the Green Sun.

John resolves to prototype with the blue doll, missing an arm and an eye, to deliberately disable Jack. But Vriska puts him to sleep before he can. Becquerel then prototypes himself to destroy the meteor and save Jade.

As he sleeps, John's ghost bed crashes into an oil ocean below. He loses his computer with the server disc in it, and nanna's pendant. He hops to a small island. He notices the ocean is on fire over the horizon, and the fire is approaching. He talks to Rose, who informs him Jade entered while he slept, and is safe. She tells him about a quest he'll need to go on later, to recover the Tumor from the battlefield and bring it to her. He then talks to Karkat, who is speaking to him for only the second time from Karkat's perspective. Karkat explains exactly what the kids did that made him decide to troll them. He blames Jade for prototyping Bec, creating Bec Noir who is now terrorizing the trolls' session, while blaming John for allowing it to happen.

Meanwhile, the fire is approaching his island, and has turned green due to Bec Noir's transformation, taking place during a duel with bro and Davesprite elsewhere on LOWAS. John is contacted by Vriska, who admits to putting him in this position to challenge him, to realize his potential as the Heir of Breath. She also admits to deliberately playing a role in the creation of Bec Noir, wanting to be involved in his rise just as she also plans to be the one to kill him. She explains that regardless of her actions leading to his rise, his existence in the troll session is immutable. Due to the nature of paradox space, that outcome could not be changed with different actions. The only consequence of different actions would be an offshoot timeline, in which all participants would be doomed.

As the fire surrounds him, she encourages him to use his abilities, and with some coaxing from W.V who commands him from his station, he does the Windy Thing. The Breeze surrounds LOWAS and puts out the fire completely, and blows John to a larger landmass, just outside a village. The Breeze also clears the clouds from the sky, but they return shortly, as the spell over the planet must be broken by other means. By unlocking this ability, he reaches the top of the echeladder and becomes the Heir Transparent. Vriska then informs him the only thing left to do is reach the god tier, which is done by sleeping on his Quest Bed which is nearby. She tells him to ask the locals about it. He does, and finds the Quest Bed beyond the village. He sits in the bed but isn't tired. Vriska gives him the choice of whether he would like her to put him to sleep. He agrees. While he sleeps, Jack Noir finds him and stabs him through the chest, killing him.

W.V watches his death on the monitor and commands him to rise up. W.V sees nothing except fireflies gather around John's body, while the Quest Bed glows. After the spectacle, there is no change. John's body remains motionless, and the monitor shuts off. W.V believes John has died. And he is right.

But on the battlefield, his dream self appears lying on a corresponding Quest Bed. His dream self slowly takes on the signs of the wound inflicted on his real self, as it rises. His dream self then takes over as his real self, with all wounds healed, as the fully realized Heir of Breath. W.V?, pre-exile, watches this happen on the battlefield. He remembers this moment long after his exile, without understanding what transpired. But on Earth, W.V believes he has just witnessed the end of John's quest. W.V is still in possession of the ring, and has accidentally locked himself in the station, and there is not enough power to unlock it. The only source of power is a lump of uranium which he ate hours ago. So he waits.

John now wanders the battlefield, poised to complete the objective he was given by Rose.

EVENTS FROM ROSE'S PERSPECTIVE

Rose uses her dark magic to search for ways to subvert the usual course of the game and overcome the futility of the situation, with assistance from her patron troll Kanaya, counsel from the gods of the Furthest Ring, and information provided by Doc Scratch.

Kanaya begins trolling Rose suspecting her to be the author of the GameFAQ guide she read on Alternia, a figure she grew up idolizing. But she becomes disappointed with her due to a series of miscues resulting from her sporadic, nonlinear trolling. She continues conversing with her nonlinearly, engaging in a feud of snarky one-upmanship, gradually befriending her. She eventually realizes Rose is the true author of the guide when she watches her destroy the gate above her house with magic. She then continues helping her in a more linear fashion, uncovering the secrets of the game, and sharing her own extensive knowledge of the game with her. Ultimately, as Kanaya begins to understand the true nature of Rose's plan, she becomes afraid Rose is dangerous. She is especially unnerved by the fact that soon on Rose's timeline, her viewport goes dark, and she can no longer be monitored. But she acknowledges she can do nothing to stop her. So she trains Eridan to become a powerful white wizard of hope to challenge her, as a joke.

A particular target of Rose's investigation is the Green Sun. She rips apart underground ruins to retrieve information on it, and is further informed by Doc Scratch on the subject. The Green Sun is a huge star nearly twice the mass of the universe. It resides somewhere in the Furthest Ring, and serves as the power source to all first guardians. Bec was Earth's first guardian, and when he became prototyped, Jack inherited all his powers, which are supplied by the Green Sun. Doc Scratch is the first guardian of Alternia.

Doc Scratch, like Bec, is a virtually omnipotent being, with all the same powers. Unlike Bec, he is an intelligent host to those powers, and is therefore also omniscient. His job is to pave the way for the arrival of his employer, an indestructible time traveling demon called Lord English. Lord English can only enter a universe upon its death, at which point he travels back in time to an earlier point in the universe's lifespan to assume leadership of his gang of mobsters called The Felt. His machinations, like Scratch's, are in part designed to bring about his own future entrance. Before the trolls began their session, Scratch took measures to both pave the way for English to arrive, as well as contribute to his own creation. First guardians have circuitous self-fulfilling origins, much like the players of Sburb. Bec was created in a lab through ectobiology by merging the ghost slime image of grandpa's dog Harley with Rose's MEOW code. Scratch had a similar but yet unknown origin. Scratch manipulated several members of the trolls' party into playing Sburb (Sgrub) in the first place. Notably, he manipulated Vriska into killing Aradia, who as a ghost became the primary orchestrator of the session. He was also used as something of a pawn himself, by Terezi, in exacting revenge against Vriska, causing her to lose an eye and an arm. This was another key moment in a critical cycle of revenge, leading to Terezi's blindness and awakening, Vriska's eventual death by Aradia's retaliation, and then Vriska's resurrection to the god tier as the Thief of Light.

Having done everything he needs to do, Scratch tells Rose he wishes to die. Thus the destruction of the Green Sun is to their mutual benefit, and Rose forms a plan. While she gave the short version of the plan to John, telling him he'd need to recover the Tumor, she tells the full plan to Dave. The Tumor at the center of the battlefield is in fact a very powerful bomb, capable of destroying the Green Sun. She will go to sleep, and John will bring it to her dream self. Meanwhile, Dave is to go to sleep and listen to the gods, who will tell him how to find the sun. He will make a map, and Rose will plot a course there and destroy the Green Sun in a suicide mission. Ideally, this will negate all of Jack's powers, reducing him to mortal status again.

EVENTS FROM DAVE'S PERSPECTIVE

After entering the gate above his apartment, Dave begins exploring LOHAC under the guidance of his patron troll, Terezi. Her fascination with him was prompted by the money wire from his future self, which alerted her to the existence of the humans in the first place. She watched him grow up with his bro, and made some observations about humanity through his upbringing. She then committed to helping him, in part due to her rivalry with Vriska, who sought to make sure the human she favored, John, would outpace Dave.

Over the course of the adventures she coordinates for him, Dave experiences about 3 days chronologically due to looping through time, and fulfilling the requirements of various time loops. The key objective is to make enough money for him to be able to wire it to her in the first place, completing the time loop that started it all. The sum of money vastly exceeds what is typically gathered in a session, and it must be accumulated by manipulating the LOHAC Stock Exchange using time travel.

Along the way, Dave and Terezi befriend each other, trading comics and perpetrating financial capers. In the early going, Terezi leads him into a pot of soup prepared by his crocodile consorts, for no particular reason other than it needed to happen on his timeline. Doubtful of the need for her help, he nearly quit, but received assurance from his future self, and continued exploring.

He goes underground and discovers gold ruins. Before entering, he's interrupted by Karkat who uses a memo to warn both him and John about their involvement with Terezi and Vriska, telling them the scourge sisters are partaking in a dangerous game of rivalry fueled flirtation which has gotten both him and John killed at least once each. Karkat speaks from a time in which he's aware of a plan developing which may lead to the kids and trolls meeting each other, and does not look forward to the results of the gathering if these trends continue. John and Dave disregard his advice. Dave proceeds into the ruins and finds a legendary sword, Caledfwlch, lodged in a block of gold. He breaks it to retrieve it, and is told by Davesprite that the sword is critical to his personal quest as the Knight of Time. Terezi then tells him he is about to fall asleep, without knowing Vriska was behind this nap as well. Dave goes to sleep, and Davesprite defends him from a horde of powerful monsters. Before Dave wakes up, Davesprite leaves to find bro. He does, and joins him in battle against Jack. When Jade enters, Jack transforms into Bec Noir and defeats both of them. Bro is slain by his own sword, and the body is discovered by Dave later, who can't bring himself to retrieve the sword.

While sleeping in the ruins, Dave's dream self wakes up again on Derse's moon. Following Rose's advice, he looks into the sky and takes off his shades. He gets his first glimpse of the gods. He then wakes up from hearing a gunshot fired by Jade as she battles an imp and quickly teleports away, the first of three times he sees her in this manner. He sees her again in the LOHACSE, and again while visiting Jade's planet.

He then goes on to make all the money needed, to buy all the fraymotifs, which are powerful battle techniques purchased from consorts, and to reach the top of his echeladder. But he still wanted to know why he would never be able to reach John's level.

To satisfy his curiosity, Terezi gives him a choice somewhere in the middle of his timeline, a choice to be decided by a coin flip. He could assign the outcome of the flip to mean he would either be shown now, or later. The outcome of the flip, which Terezi did not even look at, was a constant. Two realities are created by his two possible decisions. The decision to be shown now creates a doomed reality, wherein Dave becomes doomed. The decision to wait simply continues the alpha reality, and Dave remains the alpha Dave. Doomed Dave follows Terezi's instructions, given to him before the flip. He is to go back in time, leaving his doomed timeline, and sleep on his Quest Bed, and if he has what it takes to reach his god tier, he will. Alpha Dave, after waiting some time, was instructed to go to the bed to find sleeping Dave, and kill him, thus allowing him to face the true gravity of the decision.

Dave doesn't go through with it, and decides to end his collaboration with Terezi for the time being. Later, doomed Dave wakes up, gets out of bed, and is immediately killed by Jack. 03:14 before the Critical Moment, Terezi watches, and is upset by her involvement in his death. She runs off deeper into the lab.

Dave travels to Jade's planet, the Land of Frost and Frogs (LOFAF). While standing in the snow, he sees Jade appear briefly while fighting an imp, just as he did before in the ruins. He contacts her, and she mentions she has lost track of John. Dave tells her John is busy, without mentioning he was in the process of rising to the god tier. He says John can no longer be her server player, and they would have to make other plans.

Dave tells her to deploy the intellibeam laserstation in his apartment. The device allows very complex captcha codes for certain items, like a Sburb disc, to be read which couldn't otherwise be read by the human eye. He then creates a copy of his own server disc, and uses it to connect as Jade's server player. He becomes the server player for both Rose and Jade, though past Dave would stay concerned with Rose's connection, while he, as future Dave, would concern himself with Jade's connection. He deploys a new alchemiter and helps her upgrade it. With his massive reserve of grist accumulated in his travels and his more advanced torrenting capabilities, he allows Jade to alchemize some sophisticated equipment right away.

A bit later, she contacts him again after learning of his dead bro, and dead doomed self. He assured her the dead Dave was just a doomed copy, and he would be fine. She decides Jack needs to be stopped, and they should come up with a better plan than Rose's suicide mission to stop him. He suggests the idea is futile, but lets her know she'd come to her own decision regardless, and he'd be available to talk later if needed.
EVENTS FROM JADE'S PERSPECTIVE

When Jade's dream self is killed, her robot explodes, destroying her room, causing her to fall. Bec transports her bed to break her fall. She falls asleep. Now dream dead, she has a dream in a bubble blown by a god in the Furthest Ring, and meets Feferi there. Feferi, a Derse dreamer, went to sleep to convince the gods to establish dream bubbles where they can meet while asleep, as long as their dream selves are dead. While she is asleep, 04:13 before the Critical Moment, Jack destroys the trolls' Derse, killing her and all the Derse dreamers. She, along with all the other trolls and Jade, would then only dream in the Furthest Ring, where she met Jade and attempted to show her the gods were harmless. But Jade sees through the bubble and catches a glimpse of the gods. She wakes up with a headache, scared of what she saw, and resolves to stay awake. Feferi messages her, and introduces herself as the one from the dream. It is the second time they have spoken. The first time was long ago, from Jade's perspective.

Jade realizes her robot has exploded, causing her to remember that was her cue to message Karkat. She does, and the aforementioned confusion takes place in the memo with past and future Karkat. Past Karkat berates her, while future Karkat defends her. She reprimands both of them for arguing with each other, who are the same person separated by only 3 hours. Dave enters the memo and mocks future Karkat for his flirtation with Jade after the lecture he gave to John and Dave on the subject. Jade ends the conversation, and is in no particular hurry to get back to him about the important matter he wanted to discuss.

The meteor impact is imminent. John connects with her, and helps her prepare for entry. She makes her entry item from the pre-punched card. A tree sprouts from the alchemiter, and a green Bec-shaped pinata dangles from a branch. A green blindfold appears over her eyes, which she cannot remove. She attempts to strike the pinata with the butt of the rifle, which does no damage. Instead it releases a burst of energy, causing the greenhouse to explode, and Jade to fly out and fall. While falling, she takes a shot in the dark with her rifle. By this point, Bec has prototyped himself to become Becsprite, and has destroyed the meteor with a massive green energy blast, releasing a huge shockwave spreading over the surface of the Earth, destroying much of what hadn't been already by the meteor storm of the reckoning. Becsprite then appears in front of her bullet, and redirects it into the head of the pinata, destroying it. Jade, her house, and a large part of her island including the volcano, are all transported into the medium, on LOFAF.

She falls through the snow of LOFAF, now unblindfolded. Becsprite again breaks her fall with a bed, and again she falls asleep. She has a recollection of sitting on her bed back on Earth some time ago, working on John's present. It's then that Feferi contacts her the first time. Jade believes she is trolling her like the others, but she only means to reassure her what happened wasn't her fault, as well as inform her of her plan to establish the dream bubbles. But soon, both realize this is not a memory, but a dream they are currently sharing, with the memory as a stage. Feferi meets Jade in her room and compliments her on her work on the bunny. Feferi also claims to be dead. Jade wakes up again, just as agitated as the first time she woke up.

She gets out of bed and realizes her lunchtop is still in the destroyed greenhouse. She begins her ascent, but is interrupted by an encounter with an imp, which takes her on a trans-incipisphere journey, visiting many locations and passing by three instances of Dave, including a future Dave who ends up helping her later. The imp is finally killed by Becsprite. P.M from post-apocalypse Earth, just after discovering her station and en route to the frog ruins, tries to issue commands to Jade through the terminal. Becsprite is alert to these commands, and protectively destroys P.M's terminal.

Jade returns and finds her computer undamaged. Future Dave contacts her after seeing her out in the snow. He then becomes her server player, and sets up her equipment after most of it was destroyed/transported before entry. As she prepares to alchemize new items, she is contacted by her "fairy god troll", a distinction which does not necessarily have anything to do with being a kid's patron troll. Tavros seeks permission from her to commune with Bec again. The first time he did it was when she was very young, and playing with her grandpa's flintlock pistols. She accidentally fired the gun at herself. Tavros communed with Bec to get him to transport the gun and the bullet away from her, and toward her grandpa who was picnicking with the blue doll, killing him. Tavros mistook him for an intruder, but regardless, Jade is upset by the revelation. He digs himself into a deeper hole by professing flushed feelings for her awkwardly, while making bold claims of high self esteem and confidence granted from his new robot legs. Put off by this, she is not particularly receptive to his plan to commune with Becsprite to take on Jack Noir, and ends the conversation.

Vriska, who was reading the conversation, mocks Tavros for his false show of confidence. She continues to take jabs at him, calling him a coward, unable to do the one thing she asked which would have given him real confidence. She refers to the incident preceding her resurrection to the god tier. After she was nearly beaten to death by Aradia, Tavros finds her, believing her to be dead. He attempts to bring her back to life with a kiss. But having woken up on Prospit after the beating, Vriska's dream self is able to control his mind. She makes him choke himself, simply to prevent the kiss to avoid the standard resurrection process, which would prohibit god tier ascension. She does not wish to control him completely, intending to leave the following decisions to him, to make him stronger. Instead, she merely controls his hand to write messages to himself using her blood. She instructs him to take her to her Quest Cocoon, and to kill her on the sacrificial slab before she bleeds to death. He hesitates, and she continues to insist, while her dream self gradually takes on the same wounds inflicted on her real self, causing her demands to become more desperate. The more desperate she gets, the more terrified Tavros he becomes, and he finally flees without killing her. She eventually dies, and is resurrected on the battlefield as the Thief of Light.

Still holding this against him, she berates him for his newfound attitude, and regards his plan to influence the kids' timeline as a cheap imitation of her tactics. She brags about the ways she has manipulated events on their timeline so far, by practicing her abilities on Jade repeatedly, causing her to fall asleep frequently. She describes ways in which she has inserted her agenda into existing events, tipping off agents to the whereabouts of the MEOW code book, and other such incidents which contributed to the rise of Jack Noir, so she could claim responsibility for his existence, before taking him on herself. Tavros becomes angry with her incessant mockery and the extent of her treachery, and decides to seek her out to challenge her. She waits for him somewhere in the lab.

After the conversation with Tavros, Jade alchemizes a number of items. One of which is a legendary rifle, Ahab's Crosshairs, supplied by Eridan. Eridan, now believing himself to be a powerful wizard, feels he's surpassed the need for the weapon, and gives it to Jade to fuel the rivalry he mistakenly assumes she has with Rose, as payback for Rose's early dismissal of his black advances. Jade recognizes it as one of the weapons she included with the bunny for John. The weapons were provided by her penpal, who she accidentally revealed to be her grandson from the future. The pen pal swore her to secrecy on the matter, so she did the same with Eridan, though he admitted this would be the last time he talked to any human regardless. Realizing the new rifle would serve as a sort of heirloom to her grandson, she decided to discard it outside her house, and allow it to reach her grandson eventually however it may. Eridan then blew up her Johnytop.

Another item she created was a pair of junior compu-sooth spectagoggles, allowing her to see anything in the incipisphere at the present moment. She saw John as the Heir of Breath on the battlefield, Rose on LOHAC talking to Doc Scratch, Davesprite's pendant covered in blood nearby bro's dead body, and a slain doomed Dave. She contacts Dave to make sure he's alright. She then comes up with a plan to take on Jack Noir.

She contacts Tavros again to talk about the plan he proposed, but he has left to take on Vriska. She has only one idea left.

[Note: From this point, the text begins to fade from white to grey, then to black.]

She goes up to her grandpa's lab, summons Becsprite, and tosses in her dead dream self, which her grandpa had retrieved from the battlefield and stuffed many years ago. Becsprite becomes Jadesprite. But dream Jade is not pleased by the transformation. She freaks out, and releases the typical first guardian pyrotechnics. The lab plummets, crushing the column and greenhouse below.
It bounces away from the house, rolling into large snowball, and settling near a green stump. The two Jades sit in a state of dismay amidst the rubble of the lab, in the glow of a damaged 4th wall.

As the clock ticks down to the Critical Event, the most important character in Homestuck sits and watches this pandemonium ensue.

And then, the second most important character in Homestuck positions a shitty drawing of himself in front of a typewriter and writes this recap.

I think this typewriter is running out of ribbon ink.

Thank God, that white ink is such a pain in the ass to read.

Almost as much as these recaps are to write.

Highlighting all that white text crashed my browser.

Sorry.

Why don't we get back to what's happening on the other side of the coat.

These poor girls are very upset and emotional, and we kind of left them hanging.

G.C.: attention harley.
please stop weeping with and or beating the shit out of your self prototyped lususprite stop doing one of those things at least long enough to answer me.
lease.
pretty polite earth please.
who am I kidding
I'm wasting my time again
G.G.: karkat!!!!!
G.C.: whoa fuck
you answered me, I dont believe it
G.G.: yes
im going crazy here
I never thought id say this, but im actually almost relieved to talk to you G.C.: what you are G.G.: or really anybody besides that lunatic she is driving me nuts!!!!!!!
G.C.: oh yeah?
   how so, everything here appears to be proceeding rationally.
   what seems to be the problem
G.G.: are you joking?? Look at this mess!
G.C.: mess? Jade, now it sounds to me like you're the one who's joking.
   your hive ball rolled down a beautiful winter hill, and you are spending some quality time with family.
   you are going to have to fill me in on the nature of the problem.
G.G.: okay...
   I made the mistake of prototyping my dream self who has been dead for years and shes completely crazy and theres no talking any sense into her G.G.: hmm?
G.G.: hmm what
G.C.: hmm as in hmm interesting.
   as in hmm how very, very fucking interesting indeed.

Next

pesterlog
G.G.: (uncertain face)
what are you getting at???
G.C.: what do you mean what am I getting at.
I'm getting at whatever hmm interesting gets at.
   please go on, I'm listening to your problem.
G.G.: well...
   I mean, I understand why she is upset but she is completely inconsolable, and wont listen to reason about anything!
   and I guess I could deal with that but...
   the frustrating thing is that shes actually me (sad face)
   I really dont think I would act like that G.G.: will you stop saying hmm!!!!!
G.C.: ok, fine.
   what other sequence of letters would you have me use to register my profound fascination.
G.G.: fascination?
   what do you find so fascinating?
G.C.: I'm just trying to understand.
   I am being sensitive about it instead of a raging fuckass, isn't that what you want.
yes, it is, if you don't believe me just ask future you, assuming that conversation doesn't make you cry as well.
   now tell me more about your feelings.
G.G.: my feelings?
G.C.: yes, how did this make you feel.
G.G.: well...
   at first I was sad
   because she made me remember all the sad things that just happened but im trying to be strong about all that so we can keep moving forward and if I can then why cant she?
but she just went on and on and I started getting angry...
ugh I have never been so angry in my life!!!
G.C.: hmmm snort snort snort snort snort
G.G.: I said stop saying fucking hmm
G.C.: (gasping face with nubby horns)
G.G.: what does that mean???? is that supposed to be someone with a halo and goofy teeth?
are you making fun of me?
G.C.: no, no
you're looking at it backwards
G.C.: those are my horns
G.G.: oh
haha oops
G.C.: ok so if I'm understanding you you're angry at a version of yourself from a different point in time because she's being an overly emotional shithead who is basically the most revolting self loathing piece of filth you have ever met am I following
G.G.: yeah, pretty much G.C.: I'm not going to say hmm again but come on don't you find the situation to be just the slightest bit interesting?
I mean, considering G.G.: considering what??
G.C.: if I recall, it wasn't that long ago from either of our perspectives that you were ripping on me and my smug windbag future self for arguing with each other G.G.: oh come on...
this is nothing like that!
G.C.: how is this not like that G.G.: because she's... well
she's actually insane
G.C.: oh I see, and all those idiot past and future karkats weren't???
G.G.: but those are you
im not her!
G.C.: oh aren't you you just said you were, I just heard you say that so tell me how is this even the slightest fucking bit different?
G.G.: I dont know
it just...
G.C.: yes, go on I'm really curious how
G.G.: ... oh my god
you're right (sad face)
pesterlog
G.G.: so then I guess
im a hypocrite (sad face)
G.C.: not really
it just means you're a sane rational person, and there just might be hope for you yet G.G.: wait...
so me arguing with my dead dream self and smacking her around while screaming at her makes me sane???
G.C.: yes, absolutely.
it means all of your hideous flaws disgust you.
you are right to be disgusted, it's more than most people can say for themselves.
really, congratulations are in order.
G.G.: hahaha, wow
you are so weird
G.C.: congratulations, in addition to, just maybe, an apology.
don't you think?
G.G.: you want me to apologize?!
for what, calling you crazy for arguing with yourself???
G.C.: would it really kill you to consider it?
G.G.: after taking so much crap from you for all those years?
no forget it, im not apologizing that is bullshit
G.C.: dead dream dog jade, is that you?? You're sounding a bit hysterical, maybe you should calm down.
G.G.: shut uuuup!!!
G.C.: well if you can manage to get your aneurysm under control maybe you will realize I didn't actually specify to whom an apology was in order.
idiot.
G.G.: what are you saying you want to apologize
G.C.: I guess
this apology was going to go down one way or another, so this might as well be the time.
and let's face it, I was really being the worst kind of phlegm bubble blown out a noisy glistening ass.
so I'm sorry.
but to be fair, it was my past self who was giving you such a hard time, and he's completely deranged.
G.G.: ok, I appreciate the thought of an apology, but I dont know if it really counts if you are just going to pawn off responsibility on your "past self" again!
maybe your "present self" should own up to it!
G.C.: yeah that's what he's doing.
he, being me, right now, is owning up to what a fucking retard past me was, and continues to be.
G.G.: laaaaame
G.C.: yes, I know it's lame.
or I know that you think it's lame when I say shit like that.
because remember
I have been talking to you from the future, and I know you don't cotton to my P.G.C./F.G.C. stupidity.
but see, you don't know that you know that yet.
or more specifically, you don't know that I know that you know that yet.
so I'm kind of pulling a fast one here.
G.G.: hahahaha, that is so ridiculous
why dont you stop it with all this nonsense and own up to being terrible unequivocally?
G.C.: yeah I'm going to.
the thing is, I kind of misrepresented myself.
I'm not as much of a scumbag as I was so determined to make out with myself to be.
fuck I mean make myself out to be G.G.: (gasping face)
G.C.: I really don't know why I trolled you like that so persistently for some reason deep down I just knew that I had to even if it meant digging myself into a huge hole with you and everyone else that would be hard to climb out of and like practically everything I said was completely baseless because I didn't actually know you just like you didn't and still don't actually know me so I guess I am apologizing for it, like really seriously now.
i, present karkat, in the current moment, apologize on behalf of my stupid past self, who is actually me.
the guy talking right now.
like, there's no difference between those guys, ok?
G.G.: hmmm...
G.C.: hmmm???????
G.G.: yes, hm
G.C.: hm what
G.G.: ok karkat, that sounds pretty sincere to me and youre right, I dont actually know you
I just know the part of you who acted like a bully
I understand there can be more to a person than just the stuff they say when theyre angry so I will accept your apology and give you another chance G.C.: ok, great.
G.G.: and I will apologize for calling you crazy obviously I am not in much position to judge (blank face) G.C.: no but you were right, I am crazy
but thanks anyway
G.G.: so you say you have been talking to me from the future?
G.C.: yeah
making plans and whatnot
to pry ourselves mutually out of this massive mobius double clusterfuck.
G.G.: ok, so what is the plan?
I mean, why did you want me to contact you at this moment so badly?
G.C.: ok well the most immediate point of business is you see that glowing blue screen behind you?
G.G.: yes
G.C.: you need to turn that fucking piece of shit off.

Next

[Image description: Karkat shouts GTFO and waves his hands wildly through the thought bubble until it dissipates.]
pesterlog
G.G.: ok, I can do that but why, what does it do?
its been here my whole life and I could never figure it out G.C.: I'm not going to say much about it.
but suffice to say there are just some things you don't want to screw with.
there are outcomes that are even worse than the complete annihilation of existence itself forces more damaging to the integrity of reality than those capable of turning imagination into pure void
they are forces which if handled recklessly will nullify the basic ability of intelligent beings in all real and hypothetical planes of existence to give a shit.
G.G.: I dont think im following...
G.C.: you don't have to follow
all you need to do is turn the thing off and then do the next thing I was told to tell you to do.
G.G.: you were told?
by who?
G.C.: by you.
G.G.: oh... future me?
G.C.: yes.
you could be telling yourself this right now, but we're sort of working on a strict no memo policy.
which is your idea of course.
did I mention how you don't like it when we argue with our past/future selves? Yes, pretty sure I did.
so I'm going along with the policy as best I can.
I am being pleasant and agreeable, and I will gently lower a magnificent, coruscating column of hot fuck you down the protein chute of anyone who says otherwise.
G.G.: uh... Ok
well it sounds like a pretty good policy to me!
G.C.: you don't say.
so anyway, because of that, my role at the moment is to act as a sort of go between for you and your future self to help along the process of making these plans while your future self is deliberately vague about some stuff so as not to "jinx" the conception of the ideas in the first place I guess?
all while your current self is necessarily kind of dumb about everything.
G.G.: hey!!!
G.C.: sorry, ok, just kind of ignorant because stuff hasn't happened yet
you know what I mean.
it's not all that straightforward for me either, but I'm used to this sort of idiocy by now.
it's a lot better than the moronic reverse conversation with egbert I trapped myself into.
meanwhile time is kind of running out here, where I am we're counting down to something something looming on the trollian timeline and no one knows what it is and my team is kind of falling apart
I'm completely losing track of everyone and what they're doing.
so at this point I'm just going along with whatever there is to go along with.
and that is you and your crazy future plans.
and the scratch.
G.G.: oh yeah! Dave told me about that.
what is it?
G.C.: I don't fucking know!

at one point I thought I did, I thought it was just whatever sent jack here.
but clearly it's not that simple.

aradia knew but she didn't say, and then she went and goddamn exploded.
you haven't told me either, because I'm not "supposed to know" yet.
whatever, I don't even care, let's just do it.

G.G.: ok then...
what was the thing I told you to tell me to do?
right now, I mean
G.C.: ok, don't ask me why, because I don't know that either.

but that blue screen there first, like I said, shut it off

G.G.: ok
then what
G.C.: then you need to draw it.
G.G.: draw it?
G.C.: yes
G.G.: and then?

G.C.: then nothing
that's it.

Jade: Examine 4th wall.

You size up the arcane contraption. The blue flicker of the coat's lining is arresting. But you don't know it's a coat. That would only invite more questions. You don't know what it shields. Nor do you know whose shoulders it was meant to cover. If you knew that - if you even knew his name - you would understand terror no human ever has.

You should really listen to Karkat and turn it off. If you start messing with it, I will seriously start fucking everything up. It would be irresponsible of both of us to let that happen.

You suddenly wonder where Jadesprite went. You wonder that because I said you did. I know where she went. But I will not say.

Not that you can hear a word I'm saying.

The coat's too thick.

Jade: Turn it off.

You reach behind the screen and the image goes black with the fading white line that old TVs had when they were turned off.

W.V: Build a fort.

[Image description: W.V stands in a tiny fort made of colorful mural pieces that's just barely big enough to hold him.]

In your attempt to find an exit, you have pried some paneling off the walls. But you are no closer to discovering a means of escape.

So you have resolved to build a fort instead.

You feel safe and sound in the cozy confines of your wobbly station panel walls. It should allow you to relax and pass the time, while you wait for the only source of energy you are aware of to present itself.

Serenity: Go get help.

[Image description: Serenity the firefly flies towards the closed door and slips underneath it.]

You have humored these antics long enough. It is time you slipped out the partially open door to seek help, since your beloved master has clearly gone stark raving mad.

W.Q: Advise Prospitian Monarch.

[Image description: W.Q and P.M stand in the sand outside the stations. W.Q has a speech bubble showing the prospitan crown.]

Your new queen is eager for your counsel. She wishes to know the royal itinerary she inherits.

The itinerary, for now, is simple. She must wait for her fourth and final subject to arrive.

She would like clarification on the nature of the work, which you are happy to provide. You explain that it is very simple.
As the new queen, she will be charged with bringing the slayer to justice, and rebuilding her kingdom in a new land.

Her Majesty again is overwhelmed.

Next

[Image description: W.V holds the Queen's Ring inside his tiny fort. Above his head, four speech bubbles show P.M, the lump of uranium, an oil-marked tab can, and John.]

And again, you explain she will have help.

She may choose to appoint a Wastelandic Vindicator as her kingdom's hero, a warrior selected and groomed to face the slayer with the weapon he protects.

But first, there will be tidying up to do.

Explosives will be needed. If she were to appoint a brave Armaments Regent for her kingdom, he could be of assistance.

Next

[Image description: W.Q hands P.M a spirograph key.]

Once the regent's task is complete, the queen must use the key to set the destination for her royal entourage.

And once all the pieces are in place...

The vessels must be destroyed.

Serenity: Blink for help furiously!

[Image description: Serenity flashes frantically and a speech bubble over her head shows W.V in his fort.]

You interrupt whatever nonsense these silly people are planning with an extremely urgent message!!!

Next

[Image description: Serenity flashes out a message in morse code. It translates to Help! My friend is stuck inside the big can, inside a small house he built! You must hurry, he is not very bright and he doesn't understand it when I blink! Are you watching me? Oh no, don't blink me! You don't understand blinking either!! How do you people even exchange ideas without luminous rear ends!!!!!!!

Unfortunately, your simple message cannot seem to penetrate their thick carapaces.

Doesn't anybody in this stupid desert speak blinking?

A.R: Prepare to tidy up.

[Image description: A.R stands next to the cylindrical station. Caution tape is wrapped around it, tying dynamite in place.]

You heard the new queen in town needs a powdermonkey on the double. As the kingdom's new regent, whatever that is, you spring into action.

Now this is something you can handle. Anything to take your mind off that terrible pointy head that fell on the illegal statue.

Until you have to rig that one with bombs too, that is...

[Image description: A Bec head outline against a green background serves as a loading screen. The song MegaLoVania begins to play. A Dersite seal with 12 towers appears with a countdown in the center. 4:13:58 to 4:13:50. Dream Feferi floats in a void. It shifts. She stares at Bec Noir, who hurdles towards her, bloody hand and sword outstretched. She looks concerned. A red flash. She's dead, cut in two at the waist.

Derse floats in the void. A caption in Alternian names it Derse. Dream Nepeta looks up, frightened. A shadow of Bec Noir falls across her face. Suddenly, he stands in front of her. There's fuschia blood on his chest, where the sword is. He draws the sword from his chest and stabs Nepeta three times, then sheathes the sword, adding green to the fuschia already there. Noir kicks Nepeta backwards with a Doof, then lifts his hand. An aura of green energy surrounds his hand and everything goes green. His hand begins to glow white. Nepeta, who is on the ground and still alive, looks on in horror. Green fire and tendrils smash through the dream towers, then everything goes white.

When the white fades, all of the buildings on Derse are collapsing amid green tendrils of energy. It zooms out, showing the green energy expanding and reaching towards Derse from its moon. Then it zooms in, towards the core of Derse, racing against green fire. Everything goes black, then purple chains appear. And a red dot. That red dot turns into a round questbed with a sleeping Dream Aradia on it. Her derse dress is tattered and the green tendrils reach for her. She rises, just as John did when he was killed on his questbed. A green and red spirograph surrounds her and suddenly we see the meteor. Aradia bot explodes. The tendrils close in on dream Aradia's face. Her eyes snap open. The fire encroaches more. She narrows her eyes. Everything goes green, then white.

The green energy has consumed Derse completely. Then we see a pair of legs. White socks, black shoes with red soles. A faint red aura pulses around them. It shifts. There's a pair of spiraling horns sticking through a red hood. An arm in a long red sleeve. A pair of translucent red wings. Then a torso wearing bright red with a brighter red gear in the center. The time symbol. It flashes through them once more- Horns, arm, legs, torso, then zooms out. And there's Aradia, alive, and wearing God Tier clothing.
It cuts to Jack amid the last remaining pieces of purple architecture floating in space. He's holding his bloody sword and glaring at Aradia. She grins at him and white sparks begin dancing around her. He dives in towards her and a red spirograph surrounds her. A clockface fades in behind her, then several interlocking gears. Jack continues to fly towards her, until she points her hands towards him and he freezes.

It fades back to the countdown. 4:13:01 becomes 4:13:00 exactly. The gear begins spinning and it counts down fast, down to 3:14:03, then at normal speed to 3:14:00 as the gear morphs into a sun. The black background fades into Vriska's god tier outfit and it pans up to her face. Her eyes are pinched shut, then they snap open and she grins. Her wings are fluttering quickly. She takes off straight up, leaving a blue sparkling trail behind her. She approaches Tavros, who looks confused. He's holding his lance.

Vriska lands on the edge of the broken walkway on the way to her area of the meteor. Tavros lifts the lance at her. She gives him a thumb down and he draws his own thumb across his throat while holding up a decapitated fiduspawn plush. Vriska grins maniacally and draws her own thumb across her hips, then holds up Tavros's removed legs, which are still bloody. Tavros snarls at her and shakes his fist. Then he begins to move, running towards her with his lance at the ready. Vriska just stands there, sneering. She raises a hand and slaps him. In silhouette, she grabs him by the shoulder, takes his lance from him, and stabs him through the chest, right through the ring in his symbol. Everything goes black except for a spray of brown blood.

It fades back to Tavros plummeting off the edge of the walkway with his own lance shoved through his chest. Vriska watches triumphantly. Everything fades back to black.

Tavros: Land already.

[Image description: Tavros falls through the center of a ring of stairways, towards a platform where Terezi's sitting with her head in her hands. The timer at the top of the screen counts down from 2:41:39 to 2:41:35. He was falling for about half an hour.]

G.A.: I Understand This Silliness Is Currently Permissible But Are Serious Questions About The Password Nonsense Permissible As Well
G.G.: hmm, i suppose those are acceptable
G.A.: Why Are You Demanding Passwords From Me And Also Apparently Karkat
G.G.: to keep the conversations linear!
i gave you a password at the end of our previous conversation you have to give me that password to start our next conversation this ensures that past you can't jump ahead into the conversation and mess everything up, like you are trying to do now!
G.A.: I Am Not Trying To Do That
G.G.: i know, but trust me its better this way (smiley face)
G.A.: When Will I Get The Password
G.G.: i dont know, i have no idea what time you are from!
but you will get it, i gave it to you some time ago at the end of our last conversation and i have been eagerly awaiting your linear and unconfusing reply ever since!
bye kanaya (heart)

G.A.: Im Appreciating Our Conversations From This Timeframe More And More
Past You Is Much Less Of A Taskmaster Than Future You Or Pre Blackout Rose G.G.: thanks i think!
what do you mean by pre blackout rose?
G.A.: I Mean Post Blackout Rose Is A Lot Less Difficult Insofar As She Is Unavailable
G.G.: umm, ok...
but what do you mean by blackout???
G.A.: I Guess Youll Find Out Soon
And Then Report It To Me Under Extremely Specific Circumstances Which Is Good Because I Sure Dont Know
G.G.: hmm (dizzy face)
G.A.: Yes Hmm And That Face Is A Good Response
Your Eyes Are Right To Be Swirled Letters
What Are You Doing
G.G.: im doing what you told me to do!
im getting dave to set up that expensive equipment so i can start doing all that witch of spacey stuff you were telling me about which i appreciate, since my sprite turned out to be sad and useless, and not very wise at all (smiley face)
G.A.: I See
Well I Didnt Actually Tell You To I Was Just Being Informative
Also It Isn't Technically Witch Of Spacey Stuff
I Was A Sylph Not A Witch
G.G.: oh
what is a sylph?
G.A.: I Think Its Sort Of Like A Witch
But More Magical
G.G.: a magical witch???
G.A.: Yes Im Completely Certain Of That Suddenly
G.G.: thats awesome
G.A.: But Regardless I Think Our Roles Are Approximately The Same Since We Are Both Stokers Of The Forge
As Well As Holders Of Breeding Duties
However I Should Clarify That My Earlier Counsel Was Mostly Academic It Takes Weeks To Do All Of It Properly
You Wont Have Time
G.G.: breeding duties?????
Next

[Image description: Kanaya picks up the spikey orb and looks at it.]

pesterlog
G.A.: Yeah
G.G.: uhhhhhhhhhh... please tell me that doesnt involve what it sounds like!
G.A.: What Does It Sound Like G.G.: it sounds like it involves a lot of breeding (uncertain face)
G.A.: Well It Does
But Not Breeding Through Means Typical Of Most Species
G.G.: oh
does the equipment we are deploying have anything to do with it?
G.A.: It Has A Lot To Do With It
It Is Cloning Equipment Much Like What Is Scattered All Over The Veil
The Same Kind Responsible For Creating All Of Us
G.G.: ok then, thats pretty neat
G.A.: I Didnt Mean To Alarm You By Implying You Were Required To Wage A Great Deal Of Personal Procreation Over A Span Of Several Weeks
G.G.: yeah, whew (sweating side eye)
G.A.: Though It Should Be Clear That Repopulation Is Among Our Duties As Well In The Long Term
G.A.: And Ive Gathered That The Cloning Apparatus In The Veil Is Probably Meant To Permit An Initial Boost On The World We Select For Settlement
But Beyond That It Is Up To The Descendants To Perpetuate The Race
And Your Species Has Quite An Advantage In This Respect
G.G.: how so?
G.A.: Your Procreation May Be Carried Out By Paired Individuals Autonomously
Whereas Ours May Not
Which Is What Makes My Role Particularly Important
G.G.: what is your role?
G.A.: Im The Keeper Of The Matriorb
It Is An Egg That Will Hatch A New Mother Grub
She Alone Will Be Responsible For Bearing Our Young G.G.: whoa, cool!
so you are like bugs, like bees or ants or such, but with horns
G.A.: I Guess So
And You Are Like Erect Livestock
Without The Muscle Definition
Or The Hermaphroditic Physiology For That Matter
G.G.: (gasping face)
G.A.: But Milk Producers Nonetheless That Rare Kind Of Organism To Nurture Hatchless Young Within Are You Not G.G.: err.......
yes (wide eyed uncertain face)

G.A.: Anyway
I Had Imagined I Would Hatch The New Grub On A Planet In Your Universe
And When That Became Impossible I Quickly Lost Hope
I Assumed It Would Remain Locked In Its Card Forever
Which Could Only Be Opened When The Orb Was Meant To Be Used
But Then I Found Something Quite Unexpected When I Was Exploring This Lab
I Found A Key
It Was Deep In The Meteor
And As I Suspected It Released The Orb Which Was Really Confusing To Me For A While Until I Realized What It Meant
Which Is So Obvious Im Amazed I Didnt Think Of It Right Away
G.G.: what!
G.A.: It Means I Am Supposed To Use It Now
To Hatch The Grub In The Heart Of This Meteor

Next

[Image description: Kanaya stands in a round cavern of reddish rock.]

testerlog
G.G.: you think so?
G.A.: Sure
There Is No Reason A Meteor Couldnt Act As The Center Of Our Races Resurrection
They Are Themselves Like Large Seeds After All
The Only Question Is Whether We Can Manage To Keep It From Being Destroyed
As Well As Whether I Am Able To Raise A Mother Grub To Maturity
Oh Wow That Thought Is Actually Pretty Overwhelming
G.G.: i think you can do it!
G.A.: You Do
G.G.: yes...
didnt you say your lusus was a grub?
G.A.: Yes She Was In Fact A Mother Grub
Who Relinquished Her Calling As Matriarch To Raise Me
G.G.: thats perfect!
If you were raised by a mother grub, then you are in a great position to raise one yourself it is like...
a sort of family legacy!
a really cool alien family legacy
G.A.: Okay
Thanks For Saying So

[Image description: Jade flies down and lands on part of her tower.]

pesterlog
G.G.: dont mention it!
so how does this cloning stuff work?
G.A.: Its Very Involved
Like I Said You Wont Have Time
In Fact It Probably Should Have Taken Considerably Longer Than It Took Me
I Was A Little Rushed
G.G.: i want to try anyway!
if you can hold out hope for rebuilding your race in the center of a meteor, then i think i can at least try to get a little cloning done with the time i have left G.A.: Yes Youre Right
I Cant Imagine How You Can Complete The Objective In The Time Given But Weirder Things Have Happened I Think
First Deploy The Pad
G.G.: yes, dave is doing that at the top of this ridiculous tower
G.A.: Um
Why All The Way Up There
G.G.: didnt you say it needed to be in a warm place?
G.A.: Yes Thats Right
G.G.: my house is freezing now it ran on geothermal power before... and i guess theres no heat anywhere inside this planet
G.A.: That Will Probably Change If You Light The Forge
But One Thing At A Time I Guess
G.G.: yes i would like to hear about that later... but yeah the weather seems just fine out here in the medium!
lets see how dave is doing.....

Dave: Deploy cloning apparatus.

[Image description: A sburb cursor clicks the round cloning platform from the menu and places it somewhere in Jade's house.]

Jade: Examine.

[Image description: Jade looks at the platform and a machine that looks like the ectobiology apparatus John used to make the babies. They're tiny. The entire apparatus is barely taller than Jade and the platform looks just larger than a dinner plate.]

pesterlog
G.G.: its...
so small (gasping face)
G.A.: Thats The Appropriate Size For The Equipment
G.G.: but
clone babies can barely even fit on that thing!
G.A.: Babies
What
G.G.: i mean young humans!!! you know, that we milk producers nurture hatchless within?
G.A.: Yes I Know
I Didnt Mean To Suggest Your Breeding Duties Involved Cloning Humans
Repopulation Is Not Whats Happening Here
Its Not Your Objective As The Witch Of Space
Not Yet Anyway
G.G.: then what is the objective?
what am i breeding????
G.A.: Frogs
G.G.: (large gasping face)
G.A.: Sorry I Thought That Was Obvious

Next

[Image description: Jade crouches down with a delighted smile and pokes at the cloning platform.]

pesterlog
G.G.: i cant get over how tiny this thing is!
its so cute
so the baby frogs show up on this pad here?
G.A.: Yes
G.G.: i cant wait to try it
G.A.: What Are You Laughing At There
G.G.: oh
lol
dave just has a lot of funny stuff to say about all this G.A.: What Is He Saying
G.G.: oh you know, a bunch of silly stuff theres too much to copy/paste!
G.A.: Hmm
G.G.: here ill save it all to a file and send it to you
-- gardenGnostic [G.G.] sent grimAuxiliatrix [GA] the file "daveisafunnyguy.txt" -- G.A.: Okay Im Laughing Pretty Hard At All That G.G.: hahaha
Alright how do i get started!
G.A.: He Will Need To Deploy The Terminal
Then You Can Start Hunting For Frogs To Appearify From Around Your World

Dave: Deploy terminal.

[Image description: It zooms out a lot. Jade and the aparati are at the very top of her tower. A massive screen has been deployed, which shows a frog with a crosshair over it.]

Next

[Image description: It zooms in. The frog on screen is one of many, but is the largest. The background is a pale blue with beams of pale light crossing the screen.]

pesterlog
G.G.: ok, here is a frog on the screen on no, is it trapped in ice?
G.A.: I Would Conjecture That Most Of Them Are
And Will Stay That Way Until The Forge Is Brought To Life
I Think The Event Is Designed To Trigger Drastic Planetary Upheaval Wherever The Forge Is Stationed
It Did On My Planet As Well
G.G.: was your planet covered in ice too?
G.A.: No Mostly Water
G.G.: cool!
anyway, i will try to rescue this frog
so i push this button to appearify it?
G.A.: Yes
It Probably Wont Do Any Good But You Can Try
G.G.: ok........

Jade: Appearify frog.

[Image description: Jade watches as a dead frog appears on the appearifier between the tanks. She looks distressed.]

pesterlog
G.G.: oh god, it is still a frogcicle!!!!
this will not do
G.A.: The Problem Isnt That The Frog Is Still Frozen
The Problem Is That You Were Able To Appearify It At All
G.A.: Ectobiology Is Based Entirely On Your Inability To Appearify A Subject
G.G.: i dont understand!
but i am intrigued...
G.A.: If That Frog Were Destined To Do Something Else
Such As Become Ensnared In Your Net Later
You Would Not Be Able To Appearify It Because That Would Cause A Paradox
So Instead You Would Appearify Its Slime Imprint
The Paradox Slime Is What Is Important Here
You Can Mix It With The Slime From Other Paradoxically Appearified Frog Imprints Study The Genes And Selectively Combine
And Then Create Resulting Paradox Clones
G.G.: ok, that makes sense i think how can i appearify some frog slime?
G.A.: You Will Need To Direct The Terminal To Another Frog
And Then You Must Be Sure Later To Interfere With That Frog In Some Way
For Instance By Planning To Venture Out To Capture That Exact Frog As I Suggested Earlier That Way It Will Be Impossible To Appearify The Frog Before Your Interference Has Taken Place
Only Its Slime Will Arrive
G.G.: so it is like a sort of backwards frog breeding clone first, catch later?
G.A.: Yes

Jade: Search for a new frog.

[Image description: The crosshair now sits over another, fatter frozen frog sitting on the root of a tree in a large forest.]
pesterlog
G.G.: ok, i will try this heheh, look at this handsome guy here, hiding in the woods and being sneaky he looks frozen solid too so if i go bother him later, that means if i try to take him now i will only get slime right???
G.A.: Yes That Should Work
Make A Note Of The Coordinates
When You Travel To Interact With Your Cloned Subjects You Are Also Taking The Opportunity To Explore And Discover New Habitats
As Well As New Species Of Frogs For Your Terminal To Track
It's Efficient To Go Adventuring In This Fashion While You Are Waiting For Your Young Clones To Mature
G.G.: that sounds like fun!!!!!!!
G.A.: Yes It's A Lot Of Fun
It Is Also Extremely Time Consuming
Unlike Some Appearifiers In The Veil This One Is Locked To The Present Moment
You Cannot Use It As A Window Into The Future Or Past And Isolate Frogs Whose Futures Are Certain And Therefore Most Paradoxifiable
G.A.: Means Of Expedition Are Limited
I Suppose You Could Use Time Travel To Accelerate The Process
But You Would Need To Establish Weeks Worth Of Stable Time Loops
I Think It Would Be An Overly Elaborate And Dangerous Undertaking Personally And Anyone Who Would Attempt Such A Thing Is Reckless I Wouldn't Advise It
G.G.: hmmmmm
k hang on while i clone this fella.....

Jade: Clone frog.

[Image description: A paradox slime silhouette of the frog appears, collapses, and is drawn into the second tube from the left. A light green tadpole appears on the cloning platform a moment later. A second image shows it flailing and Jade clapping.]

pesterlog
G.G.: yaaaaaay!!!
G.A.: You'll Need Somewhere To Keep Them While They Grow Like A Pool Or A Tank Or Such Or At Least Something Temporary Water Wasn't Very Hard For Me To Come By But For You I Don't Know
G.G.: i will think of something... i won't let the poor little guy suffocate!

Jade: Give him a home.

[Image description: Jade pops the 8 panel off a transparent magic 8 ball and drops the tadpole inside.]

pesterlog
G.G.: so i am supposed to wait for him to grow up, and then breed him with other frog paradox clones?
G.A.: Yes But This Isn't All There Is To The Cloning Process
A True Paradox Clone Is An Exact Genetic Duplicate Of The Subject
Later That Clone Will Be Sent Back In Time To Become Itself
In fact if it is an exact duplicate this is guaranteed to happen. This is what classifies it as a paradox clone. Any duplicate which genetically deviates from the original is not. It is simply a mutant.

And for breeding purposes mutation is desirable within reason. You may adjust the settings on the equipment to promote genetic anomalies. But it’s very delicate and you can go too far. Responsibly guiding the evolution of the genetic code during the breeding process is very important. In fact it is the most important thing about this of all.

G.G.: It is?
G.A.: Yes.
G.G.: Huh...

So what is the actual purpose of all this breeding? Am I trying to make one really special frog with just the right genetic code or something? Sort of like the ultimate frog (gasping face).

G.G.: Oh!

G.A.: Your objective is to breed the genesis frog.

Next.

[Image description: Jade holds the tadpole in its ball and stares off into the distance. A nebula appears behind her.]

pesterlog
G.G.: Why?
G.A.: You can’t complete the game without doing so. Your entire mission depends on breeding him.
G.G.: Him?

So he is a boy frog?
G.A.: Yes.

He will begin as a tadpole like you have there but considerably bigger. And he will mature to become the speaker. A deity like figure idolized by the consorts who wait for him to come.
G.G.: The speaker?
G.A.: He is known as the speaker of the vast croak.

CROOOOOOAK
G.A.: Yes. The croak really is quite vast and is something to behold. It’s the most amazing thing I have seen.
G.G.: Then the speaker is like a god, but there are a lot of them? Like one for each session, kind of like the kings and queens?
G.A.: Yes. There will be one for every session should the players be successful. And each one is a unique product of their quest.

The Kingdoms are at odds over his creation. Prospit worships him much as the consorts do. Derse reviles him and outlaws frogs wherever they can. Even the iconography.
Their Agents Mock His Name With Slurs Like Speaker Of The Vast Joke
Or Bilious Slick
Although To Be Honest That Is What We Ended Up Calling Him
Not To Be Disrespectful Though It Was Just A Catchier Name
G.G.: it is pretty catchy...
if i call him that i will be sure to say i mean no offense!
G.A.: I Doubt Its Even Possible To Offend Him
G.G.: thats good
ok then what?
what do we do after i make this big god froggy?
does it have something to do with the new universe we create?
G.A.: Most Certainly
G.G.: you said he was a genesis frog does that mean we bring him into the universe and... he makes new planets or life or such?
G.A.: No
Youre Not Really Understanding The Magnitude Of His Role
He Is Not Responsible For Just One Aspect Of The Universe You Create Hes Responsible For All Of Them
Bilious Slick Is Your Universe

Next

[Image description: Baby Kanaya walks through a pink desert on Alternia. In the distance, there is her tower and a green object very far away. Some white object just barely pokes on screen.]

pesterlog
G.G.: really???
G.A.: I Dont Mean Hes The Universe You Are From
We Engineered That Incarnation
He Is The Universe That You Are Trying To Create
G.G.: yes i got that!
G.A.: Sorry
I Thought It Was Obvious But Then Wasnt Sure
G.G.: you mean he is literally a universe?
G.A.: Yes Literally
That Statement Was As Literal As You Can Possibly Make Words Be
I Know Your Species Is Frequently Insincere For A Variety Of Reasons
G.G.: but your species is too!
especially karkat, he is incredibly sarcastic
G.A.: Thats True But When We Do It Its Usually Just Because We Are Trying To Be Jerks
Rather Than By Way Of A Mild Manner Perpetually Dispatching Little Puzzles Of Rhetoric Without Apparent Purpose
G.G.: but i dont do that!
i try to say what i mean as much as i can G.A.: Yeah I Think Ive Been Discerning That Its A Nice Change Of Pace
G.G.: from what?
G.A.: Oh Its Not Important
G.G.: haha, you mean from rose?
G.A.: Well
Not That It Wasnt An Enjoyable Exercise In Xenocultural Inculcation
G.G.: yeah, rose and dave are like that all the time!
they inculcate that stuff like crazy
so you have been talking to her a lot i guess?
G.A.: Sort Of
G.G.: are you best friends now??
G.A.: I Guess As Mutually Friendly As The Time Has Permitted Two People To Be
I Wont Be Speaking To Her Anymore Though
G.G.: why?
oh yeah, because you said she is blacked out?
what the heck does that mean!
G.A.: It Just Means In A Few Moments From Your Perspective I Wont Be Able To See Her Through My Viewport Or Talk To Her
I Dont Know Why Exactly But Its Not That Hard To Guess
She Has Been Relying On The Powers And Counsel Of Dark Gods And Other Sources Of Ambiguous Intent
And She Has Consequently Devised A Plan Which Sounds Very Dangerous To Me
G.G.: yeah, i didnt like the sound of her plan either!
G.A.: You Are More Sensible
Its Probably The Influence Skaia Has Had On You Having Spent Much Of Your Life Awake On Prospit Like Me
G.G.: you did??????
G.A.: If Were Alike In Some Ways Maybe Its Because Of This
G.G.: yeah! (very happy face)
G.A.: I Woke Up A Long Time Ago
I Had Trouble Sleeping When I Was Young
The Sunlight Was Unnaturally Invigorating To Me I Guess
My Lusus Could Do Nothing To Help
And When I Was Supposed To Be In My Cocoon I Would Often Wander Out To The Desert
Where One Day I Was Visited By A Stranger Who Dressed And Spoke In White
He Put Me To Sleep And I Awoke On Prospit
Where I Have Dreamed Ever Since
He Said He Was My Guardian
And Though He Visited Rarely I Did Regard Him As That Then Later He Stopped Coming
In Time I Began To Believe He Was A Figment Of My Mind
Like An Imaginary Friend To Give Me Reassurance When I Needed It
But Then While Playing Our Game I Learned He Was Real
He Had Spoken To Others From Our Party
And Had Been Manipulating Us All To Advance His Schemes
It Was Saddening To Learn My Fortuitous Awakening Had Been The Product Of A Nefarious Ploy
Youre Lucky That Your Awakening Probably Had No Such Entanglements
G.G.: jeez, i hope not...
G.A.: But I Guess Its Only A Minor Contamination Of Something Otherwise Great
I Was Allowed To See What Skaia Would Show Me
And To Prepare For Dangers Ahead And Try To Protect People
G.G.: me too!!!!!
wow kanaya i did not realize how much we had in common G.A.: Youre Right We Do
I Feel A Bit Silly That It Took Me So Long To Engage With The One Corresponding Closely With My Role
It Must Be A Certain Madness Im Afflicted By
To Orbit Those More Reckless And Dangerous Than I And More Daring For It
I Guess I Want To Help Them But They Never Can Be Helped It Seems G.G.: well, it sounds like helping people is something that is in your nature i can understand that are you saying rose is reckless and dangerous?
G.A.: Yes Definitely
We Have Our Share Of Dangerous Players Who Seem To Do Nothing But Cause Problems
I Believe She Is Yours
And If Her Insane Plan Wasnt Alarming Enough
She Has Been Communicating With The Stranger I Mentioned
And Unsurprisingly She Has Not Been Forthright About The Nature Of Their Conversations
G.G.: you mean your guardian?
G.A.: Yes
And Hes Not Merely A Guardian
Im Very Sure He Is A First Guardian
G.A.: Like Your Lusus Was G.G.: uh oh...
im not sure why, but the sound of that makes me really nervous
G.A.: I Feel The Same Way About It
The Involvement Of Any Such Entity Strikes Me As Quite Inauspicious
Even When Seemingly Benign
G.G.: she didnt mention anything about this when we talked but then she seemed preoccupied
G.A.: She Was
Youll Have A Chance To Determine More Soon After Which Hopefully You Can Tell Me
G.G.: yeah, i will!
G.A.: In The Meantime I Will Go
I Would Like To Return To The Core To Situate This Orb
It Seems You Have Your Own Orb To Care For Now
G.G.: lol yeah i guess so!
ok, you can go do that, and i guess i will check on rose, but...
theres still so much i want to know!
i want to know more about stoking the forge and breeding the frogs, and about your time on prospit and all that!
G.A.: Okay I Will Definitely Help You As Much As I Can
The Young Prospit Wakers Ought To Stick Together
G.G.: yes! (heart)
G.A.: Ill Message You Again In Your Future
And You May Reply If You Have Cause To G.G.: if i have cause to?
oh!!!
that reminds me, i was thinking of implementing a system to keep some of these confusing conversations simple and linear
G.A.: Does It By Any Chance Have To Do With Passwords
G.G.: yeah! i guess someone told you?
G.A.: Yes You
You Delivered News Of The System By Demanding A Password From Me
G.G.: aaaaa you see?????? you nearly just gave me the idea for the plan in the first place paradoxically from my own future self!!
I just find that kind of thing annoying for some reason, it doesn't feel right... i would rather ideas came from the place they actually came from G.A.: That's A Reasonable Attitude
G.G.: ok lets put the system in play starting now!
i will give you a password, and you give it to me in the future when you want to pick up this conversation again
G.A.: Okay
G.G.: the password is.............
CROOOOOOOOOOOOAK
G.G.: it must be in all caps, and must contain precisely ten Os!
G.A.: Ten
Im Counting Eleven
G.G.: whoops!
eleven then (tongue sticking out face)
G.A.: The Password System Is Already Paying Overwhelming Dividends Of Ease And Rationality G.G.: kanaya (gaping face) that sounded
just a wee eweeew bit sarcastic (winking very happy face)
G.A.: Oh
Wow Yeah
I Hope Im Not Falling Prey To A Crisis Of Sincerity
G.G.: you are just becoming multicultural, that's all i think i am learning to be more multicultural through karkat as well it mostly involves saying fuck a lot G.A.: Oh No
G.G.: heheheheh, its ok, hes really not so bad
G.A.: Yeah I Know
G.G.: ok! go hatch that orb!
i will be waiting
G.A.: Yes Ill Do That Bye Jade
G.G.: later!

[Image description: This is another walkaround. It begins without music as, without any input from the player, Terezi slaps Karkat away and runs out of the room in tears. The scene refocuses on Kanaya and the song "Darling Kanaya" begins to play. Kanaya stands at her computer along the south side of the room. There's an explosion mark on the counter to the right of her computer and the Matriorb to the left. Much of the room is the same as the last walkaround, with fiduspawn plushes and cards, teapots, Faygos, unicycles, and other various troll's belongings scattered on the floors and counters, though it's a lot more messy. Walk north.

There's the Aradiabox explosion where her computer once was. Walk left.

Karkat stands near his computer with a hanged blue scalemate at his feet. Walk south.

Sollux and Feferi sit in Gamzee's horn pile.
Go to the transportalizer in the center of the room.

Select Transportalize.
You can't leave without telling your leader where you're going first! That would be irresponsible.
Also, you forgot to take the matriorb with you. You're clearly going to need that.

Go back to your computer and take the Matriorb.
You got the Matriorb!

Go to the horn pile.
Talk to Feferi and Sollux.

As each person speaks, a talksprite of them appears. Quirks have been removed for ease of reading.

Kanaya: Relaxing In The Horn Pile I See
Feferi: Yes! Why don't you hop in too, Kanaya? (very happy face wearing a tiara and goggles)
There is plenty of space. Sollux and I are glubbing about feelings.
Kanaya: That Sounds Nice
But It Really Doesn't Look Like There Is Much Room In That Pile Of Horns At All And I Should Get Going Anyway
Sollux: yeah, of course there's no room, it was kind of a moronic invitation to be honest.
Feferi: Hey, shut your mopey blow hole!!! I was just showing a little bassic courtseesa.
Really, you are just the grouchiest dude sometimes.
(And it's really cute!)
Sollux: also let's get real, this horn pile isn't comfortable at all, i've got hard metal edges jabbing me everywhere, and it's lumpy as hell, and you can't move a fucking inch without honking the shit out of it and making everyone in the room look at you.
what idiot thought this was the ideal thing to chill out on. oh that's right, a braindead clown who eats toxic slime.
you probably like it because it's like a coral reef or some horrible jagged underwater pile of shit like that.
Feferi: Grouchy mother glubber.
(heart)
Kanaya: Um
Okay I Will Leave You Be
Feferi: Kanaya, I see that look on your face.
You are curious, but are nervous about meddling, m I rite?
Kanaya: Uhh
Sollux: ff come on we we're having a private conversation here.
Feferi: It's ok, really! We were sharing some feelings about stuff. Sollux was feeling bummed out because Aradia blew up, and she was his very close friend.
Sollux: sigh, holy shit, yes let's talk about all my problems openly, i love that. hey kk, check this out, my emotions are serving as entertainment again!
Feferi: Yeah! ey, Karcrab, get yer nubs over here! Plenty of room in the pile!
OMG, that was SUCH an obscene gesture he just made. (gasping face wearing a tiara and goggles)
Sollux: anyway, yeah, now that A.A is gone forever i feel more depressed and useless than usual, and i was already pretty cod damn useless to begin with, let's face it.
Feferi: But I have it on good authority that she is fine!
Everything is going to go swimmingly, you'll see. (smiley face wearing a tiara and goggles)
Sollux: you are so ridiculously optimistic it's kind of sickening, why do you even put up with me?
if you weren't so great i would think you were a fucking idiot for liking me.
so, i guess thanks for liking me?
wait, that sounded so pathetic, oh god. i should probably take that back.
Sollux hunches over and snarls. Red and blue lightning begins flashing from his eyes and his whole body flickers with red and blue light.

Sollux: Kanaya what the fuck are you still doing here, god damn it, can't a guy get a little glubbing privacy with a fish girl in a pile of horns.

A white chat bubble appears over Kanaya's computer. Go check on it.

Answer.

You have no interest in talking to this con artist right now. You are busy, and you won't even bother dignifying his text by highlighting it. Maybe a little later.

Go west, to where a broken 8 ball lays on the floor.
Examine broken 8 ball.

[Note: This is written in Vriska's quirk, so the Bs and 'ea' are replaced with 8]

Just another member of your team unaccounted for. Where the hell is she? Oh well, at least she's out of everybody's hair for a while. She's probably off swooning over that shitty greasy human movie star, and being generally harmless.

Go further west, to the corner.
Examine Tinkerbull plush.

Dear Tinkerbull. Sweet, sweet precious Tinkerbull. Tavros loved this memorial plush sewn for him so much.

Seeing it here on the floor would be especially poignant if he were dead. But you know for a fact that he is alive and well. So it's all good.

Walk north, to Karkat.

Talk about Terezi.

Kanaya: What Was That About
Karkat: I don't know, I guess I fucked up again.
I can't seem to do anything right in her eyes anymore.
I mean nose.
Kanaya: Maybe You Should Go Say Something To Her
Karkat: well I would, but she's probably burrowed fuck deep in this lab by now. I'm sure she's busy scooting up and down stairs and shooshing through pointless corridors, and opening chests containing like three boondollars and hideous paintings of enormous naked barnyard monsters.
what is with all the chests anyway? And why do we keep squirreling our useless shit away in them? I really should have written a memo about this. Like, the rules of chestiquette.
Kanaya: Squirreling
Karkat: squirrel is the human word for nut creature
Kanaya: Oh
Well I Think The Chests Are Fun They Make For Nice Surprises Karkat: whatever anyway I can't leave, if you haven't noticed the team has been falling apart here ever since aradia exploded for no reason, and therefore presumably died forever.
seriously, where the hell is everybody? Where's gamzee??? Shit isn't right I've got to stay put here and keep it together.

Kanaya: Okay Then
If I See Her Along My Way Ill Let Her Know You Want To Talk
If You Dont Think Thats Too Meddlesome Of Me
Karkat: no that's fine, thanks.
wait
you're going somewhere?

Tell Karkat where you're going.

Kanaya: Im Returning To The Core To Deposit The Matriorb Wish Me Luck
Karkat: whoa what the fuck???
I mean, that's great, if that's what you want to do with it. But you can't go, I need you here. Look around, shit is mayhem.

Kanaya: Ill Only Be Gone For A Few Minutes
Anyway Youre Doing A Good Job And I Think You Can Manage To Cope With My Momentary Absence Karkat: ok fine.
in that case
good luck, hope it works.
Kanaya: Thanks

Be Karkat

Karkat's theme begins to play.

Talk about Jade.

Kanaya: It Sounds Like Youve Been Talking To The Jade Human Like You Said You Would Karkat: Yeah
Kanaya: I Just Used The Phrase The Jade Human Satirically For No Reason It Is Just One Of Many Ways In Which Im Becoming More Multicultural
Karkat: nice one, I'm laughing up a fucking storm.
Kanaya: Have You Found Her Password System To Be Practical Karkat: don't even get me started on the password bullshit.
so, ok. Future jade gives me some really mysterious thing to tell past jade, to make sure she does something she needs to do without explicitly giving herself the idea from the future.
which is dumb, but ok I go along with it so she doesn't completely flip the fuck out at me. And then I get back to her in the future to say I did it.
and what am I greeted with? Password.
password password password password password password. Password you nubby grumpy sack of ugly fuck. I want a password right now or I will direct my cold laser hate stare through your bulge from behind my goofy ass goggly girl glasses for lame shitty sissies.
ok I'm paraphrasing here.
so I give her the password and she's like wrong!!! I haven't given you that password yet, or you already gave me that password, or it's too early for it or whatever. Find the right future me to give the password to.
so I'm like fuck, I respectfully submit this is new levels of stupidity and pointlessness that only retards would enjoy while earnestly investigating their own genitals, but that's just my opinion.
and then we spend way more time arguing about password shit than anything constructive.
Kanaya: It Sounds Like You Like Her Karkat: what?? Where are you getting that Kanaya: Well She Is Giving You A Reason To Be Frustrated And Loud What More Could You Ask For In A Friend
Shes Quite Considerate Actually Karkat: ok, yes, I'll say she's a lot more decent than I gave her credit for originally and somewhere in this mess I guess a coherent plan is starting to emerge? I still can't determine exactly what it is because she's always so vague, but whatever.
至少 she actually seems to care about helping us with our problem too, which is more than I thought a human would do, and way more than I can say for a lot of the lousy self absorbed fucks around here.
Kanaya: Do You Think Terezi Is Aware Of Your Interactions With Her Karkat: I don't know, probably?
Kanaya: I Dont Want To Sound Too Meddlesome Because I Know People Dont Like That Much
But Didnt You And She Used To Have A Thing Like That Karkat: man, why does everyone think we had a thing???
Kanaya: Well Didnt You Karkat: the thing which may or may not have existed notwithstanding, what right would she have to be upset about me talking to jade.
Kanaya: Maybe She Thinks You Are Trying To Make Her Jealous Karkat: oh like she's not doing the same thing to me by talking to that pompous tool who's idiotically insecure about the color of his eyes.
while hypocritically typing with his candy red text to drive the girls wild, what a fucking showoff.
you just know she's doing it to annoy me, she was probably even putting on a little show for me crying over his corpse, like she really gives a shit.
Kanaya: Do You Actually Believe She Was Pretending Karkat: yeah sure. I dunno
Kanaya: Maybe You Should Try Not To Be So Quick To Dismiss The Sincerity Of Peoples Emotions
Karkat: I guess you're right.
wow I was being pretty dumb just now. What a fucking idiot.
past me is always so terrible, even when I literally just finished being him.
(Kanaya's talksprite is crying jade green tears) Kanaya: ...
Karkat: uh
Kanaya: I Wasnt Actually Crying Just Now I Was Exaggerating My Reaction For Effect
Karkat: ok you're going way too far with the multicultural shit, you need to take it down a peg.

Go to the blue scalemate on the floor.
Examine scalemate.

Why Duke Pine snort, it seems your lovely green complexion has turned to blue as each past treachery has tightened your noose a little more.
Worry not. It will all be over soon as you are stuffed in your suffocophagus and given a funeral fit not for a nobleman but a lowly beggar. Let that be a lesson to your family, who was also executed in the name of justice.

There's a strange looking object on the counter. Go to it.
Examine drawing tablet.

What have we here? Looks like there's a half finished comic on this thing. Some kind of cool kid... and a girl with red glasses. What are they doing there together?

Yeah, maybe you shouldn't snoop into her cool kid fanfic. It's probably private.

Go to the shredded fiduspawn plush.
Examine used host plush.

This one has been decapitated for some reason.

Weird.

And gross.

Go to the bottle of faygo on the floor.
Examine Faygo.

Gamzee left perfectly good lukewarm bottles of wicked elixir lying around. There is something so wrong about this.

You think about taking a robust swig, but then you come to your senses and don't.

Go to Terezi's dragon hoodie on the ground to the east of the transportalizer.
Examine dragonsuit.

Terezi's ridiculous cosplay getup. You feel kind of bad for mocking her for it. Just one of many exhibits of boorish behavior you should probably apologize for.

That is, if you're presently Karkat while examining this item. If you aren't, those thoughts are not relevant to you.

You decided not to program contingencies for examining this item with different characters, because that would have been a waste of time.

Go north to the unicycle.
Examine Uni-real Air.

It's sad seeing Uni-real Air lying here without Gamzee around to neglect it while people trip over it. It's almost a little poignant, like seeing a toppled tricycle in the yard of a missing child.

Oops you mean a toppled three wheel device in the lawnring of a culled wiggler. Doesn't get more tragic than that.

Go north to Aradiabot's soot pile Examine robo-debris.

The final Aradiabot exploded about an hour ago. She is dead for good now you guess.

Or is she???
Yes, she is. You're completely certain of it.

Go southeast to the teapot on the counter near Nepeta's computer.
Examine teapot.

Nepeta has left her steeping pot of flavorful cameowmile untouched. She is gone too. Another perplexing mystery.

Go south to the snapped bow laying on the floor.
Examine broken bow.

You have seen many sad things on your adventure.

But watching Equius practice archery may be the saddest thing of all.

Go southwest to the non-shredded fiduspawn plush.
Examine host plush.

You really hope he stops playing games for girls soon.

For good.

One way or another.

There's a glass of milk on the counter nearby. Go to it.
Examine milk.

It's not like Equius to leave a tall, refreshing glass of milk unshattered.

What the hell is going on here? Where is everybody???

Go to the explosion mark near Kanaya's computer.
Examine exploded computer.

Looks like some douchebag's computer blew up. Whatever happened, it probably served him right.

Go to the Hornpile.
Talk to Feferi and Sollux.

Feferi: Krabsnack!!!!!!
Karkat: hey.
Feferi: You're just in time. We are talking about serious feelings here!
Sollux has been feeling...
Karkat: don't give a fuck.
Sollux: Thank you.
kk, you are a true friend.
Feferi: Oh fine. (sad face wearing a tiara and goggles)
So what reeled you over to the old pile?
Karkat: have any of you seen gamzee?
it's not like him to stray far from the horn pile.
I'm getting kind of worried.
Feferi: You are?
Aw, that's so sweet!
Sollux: ehehehehehehehehe, yeah.
Karkat: augh.
just, where is he?
Sollux: i dunno man, i have heard nary a honk out of him for a while.
Feferi: Maybe something frightened him off into the lab?
Why don't you go looking for him? We could help!
Karkat: I would, but I can't. Got to stay put, keep the team together.
I don't want you fuckers straying off either, you understand?
just stay in the pile and keep making everyone uncomfortable with your sappy bullshit, that's an order.
Feferi: We were thinking of taking a nap, actually.
You should too, CarP.C.A.tfish! It'll be great!
Karkat: why do you keep insisting on ignoring the simple no sleeping rule, I made it perfectly... you know what, fine. Just take your nap, as long as you just stay put.

Go back to Kanaya
Be Kanaya
The song changes back to Darling Kanaya

You've now retrieved the Matriorb and talked to your Leader, so you should be able to...
Transportalize

Before Kanaya can transportalize, Eridan pops in, throwing Kanaya to the side and making her drop the matriorb. She gets back up, but you are now Eridan! Eridan's theme begins to play.

Talk to Kanaya.

Eridan: kan i been meanin to thank you Kanaya: For What
Eridan: for all that trainin you did i wouldnt be the incredible holy wizard i am now without your help Kanaya: But I Didnt Even Really Train You I Just Made You A Wand Eridan: yeah well thats all i needed i guess i just needed for someone to show a little faith in me so im sayin thanks i owe ya
Kanaya: Okay Then Youre Welcome
I Hope You Use Your Magnificent Powers Of Light And Hope For Goodness And Purity And Lets Not Forget Science
Eridan: dont worry im all over that shit you dont even know
Kanaya: Uh Oh I Hope That Didnt Come Off As Too Sarcastic Eridan: what
Kanaya: The Thing I Just Said
I Didnt Even Realize How Sarcastic I Was Being Its Starting To Become A Problem I Think
Please Dont Take Too Much Offense
Eridan: haha damn kan if thats your idea of offense bein made then i honestly gotta fuckin worry for you tell you what ill give you some lessons in dealin out the dark umbrage to repay you for your tutelage in the white science
Kanaya: Um Sure
A Little Later Maybe Eridan: hey what are you doin anyway whats that thing there Kanaya: The Matriorb
I Was About To Go Hatch It In The Core To Restore Our Race
Eridan: that sounds
Kanaya: I Hope Its Hopeful Eridan: you should of told me about this if theres goin to be any sort a hope for our race as the prince of hope i demand to be involved so dont go anywhere without me got it Kanaya: But Fine

Look at the matriorb, which is still on the floor.
Examine matriorb.

Gotta help Kanaya out with this thing after your business is done here. Hope is your jurisdiction on this meteor.

Go back to the transportalizer
Transportalize.

You aren't about to leave. You just got here, and you have business to take care of.

Go down to Kanaya's computer.
Answer.

No reason to snoop on her computer. You've got better things to do.

Go up to Karkat.
Talk to Karkat.

Karkat: man, where have you been? You aren't helping, wandering off like...
holy shit, is that your new magic wand?
Eridan: its not magic we talked about this kar Karkat: right, it's powered by science, I forgot.
or hope. Whatever the fuck that means.
Eridan: I dont fuckin need this from you I take enough shit as it is from the rest a you dirtscrapers I thought you and me had a kinda pact or whatever Karkat: ok fine, shut up, I apologize. I know it's tough being you.
Eridan: nobody gets it
I had a harder time than anybody with this game it was really fuckin unfair what challenges I got saddled with I woulda fuckin murdered for a land full of a lot a harmless brains and fire but no
it was so lonely
hey guys anybody want to come hang out with me in the land a wrath and angels anybody at all I know it isnt anythin like one of your flippin land picnics anybody please ill even settle for the kittycat shipper cave girl but yeah I guess bein her server player and savin her life wasnt goddamn enough had to be my most humiliatin rejection yet Karkat: ok, but to be fair, I'm pretty sure she's still obsessed with me.
it's a very unfortunate, very red and very unrequited situation I've been trying to tiptoe around for a long time, ok?
her disinterest in your advance wasn't a reflection on you at all.
come on, we talked about this.
Eridan: yeah I guess Karkat: anyway I don't know how you were expecting to make any sort of traction if you see her as the kitty cat shipper girl, she’s a person with feelings you raving douche.
Eridan: I know kar its not even the point im over that embarrassment im just saying where the fuck were you guys
I had to deal with those awful angels all by my self do you have any idea how hard those assholes are to kill like at least a minute of sustained fire from only the most legendary weapon ever and they were fast and angry as shit
Karkat: yeah we talked about that too.
I really don't think you were supposed to be killing them dude.
I kept saying, I think they're like game constructs or something. There to serve some other game purpose, not for you to hunt down.
they didn't even give you any grist, you idiot. That was your first clue.
Eridan: fine whatever your still missin the point where was everybody why are they avoidin me all the time Karkat: they were too scared shitless to set foot on your planet for more than a second!
between a triggerhappy prince with a god weapon blasting anything that twitched and a million crazed angels he deliberately enraged, it wasn't what I'd call an ideal social hub.
if you were lonely why didn't you venture out more often?
Eridan: well I woulda but nobody else was volunteerin to pick up the slack on angel killin duties
Karkat: oh my fucking god why don't you listen Eridan: and anyways I did leave eventually Karkat: leaving your planet to go duel with sollux isn't being sociable you thick fuck.
and you know what, you deserved getting your ass handed to you, because I warned you and you didn't listen.
Eridan: yeah ok we will see whos becomin the proud new recipient a whose ass now Karkat: argh, look just stay here for a while, ok? No more brooding in the lab, and absolutely no fucking dueling.
Stay out of trouble.

Time for Trickster mode!! Press ctrl shift T.

Eridan appears in the library room with the Earthbound sprites. Sollux, who is in a very different style, does repeated hip thrusts near the phonograph.
Talk to Sollux.
Turn on Heir Conditioning
The song Heir Conditioning plays. Well… it's supposed to, and it did in the past. At the time of making this transcript, something seems to be broken.

Go talk to the earthbound characters. From right to left, they say

This asshole only has one record!

I miss the other guy, at least he had some taste.

Man where the hell'd that awesome clown go??

And that's everything. Press ctrl T to return to the lab.
Eridan's theme begins playing again.

Go to the Horn pile
Talk to Feferi and Sollux.
Sollux: oh god, it's him.
ff can you tell him to go away, i don't even have the energy for this.
Eridan: hey finless this doesn't concern those with mustard sludge slippin through their veins its a matter for royalty only so keep your mouth closed or ill slit you open over my next meal Sollux: whatever bro, not interested.
Feferi: Eridan, please! I don't want to see any more dueling.
Don't try to provoke him. It's not like I don't know what you're doing! You keep trying to spark a rivalry with him to get me to auspisticize between you two, and pull us out of our quadrant!
It is the oldest and lamest trick in the book. It didn't work then and it won't work now!
Eridan: thats an astonishin accusation how could you say that first as if this scum is even worthy of a rivalry with me and second as if im not totally done with you like i have told you repeatedly all i want to do is have a word with you Feferi: Ok Eridan, we can talk. But only if you're planning on being civil.
Eridan: thats what you never got fef you and i are bein civil by very virtue a the fact that were talkin now were royalty you and i and we belong together even if not in that way which i get that youre not into and thats fine but we belong together as the rulin class if nothin else so im gonna ask you this one last time and give you the choice im about to go please come with me
Feferi: Go with you?? Eridan, you weren't really serious about going to find Jack, were you?
Eridan: of course i was and we should do it together you've got nothin to fear now ive reached a new heights of power no one else can dream of not even mindfang with her garish orange sweatsuit and her silly flappy wings and all her poppycock about luck which everyone with a think pan knows to be the fakest fiction that ever failed to exist Sollux: this is the most hilarious thing i've ever heard, he made one of his shitty fake wands glow a little and now he thinks he's a fairy god troll or something, lmao!
Eridan: was that slander i just heard i cant even tell i tend to block out noise from filth whose blood is practically the complementary fuckin color a mine
Feferi: he has a point though, in that you may be overestimating your abilities?
Jack Noir is insanely powerful Eridan! Please, I don't want to see you do anything foolish by trying to fight him.
Eridan: fight him
are you fuckin nuts
i slaughtered enough angels to know my limits and where i stand against the lord of all angels they prophecized of course im not gonna fight him i stand no chance in hell against that guy im goin to join him Feferi: you're what??
Eridan: and you're gonna join me in joinin him too fef come on lets go Sollux: ahhahahaha, ok that's it, he's lost it.
Feferi: No I am not! And you aren't either! That is glubbing insane!
I thought you were supposed to be the Prince of hope? how is it hopeful to surrender to a murderous demon like a coward??
Eridan: as the prince of hope im uniquely qualified to recognize when all hope is lost and im tellin you there is no hope not even a little bit only thing left to do is serve him and hope he spares us and im extendin the invitation to come with me cause even though you dont think so i really do care about you servin under jack together well be unstoppable and our anemones will tremble before us what do you say Feferi: No. You have lost all right to use fish puns forever. I revoke your fish punning license, as whale as our frondship!
Eridan: don't take that tuna voice with me princess Feferi: What the fuck did I just say???
That's it. This makes me sad, Eridan, but now we have to stop you. We can't let you find Jack and risk you leading him to us.
Eridan: so thats how it is is it Sollux: she's right, man. can't believe this, i was looking forward to a nap too.
i should have killed you on lobaf when i had the chance.
Sollux hunches over and his eyes begin sparking again.
Sollux: oh well, guess it's only fitting i'd take you down in Round Two!.
you ready, prince?
Eridan: bring it mage

The scene shifts and the song Nautical Nightmare begins to play. This section is in the same style that Sollux was in trickster mode. Sollux and Eridan face each other with Feferi standing behind Sollux. Eridan dramatically discards his cape and retrieves the White Wand of Science. Sollux hip thrusts as Round 2 appears at the top of the screen. Strife appears at the top of the screen in Alternian. Sollux steps forward and begins to glow flashing red and blue. Eridan begins glowing white.
Sollux extends his hands at the same time that Eridan points his wand. Two balls of energy shoot out, one from each of them, and collide in the center. They explode in tendrils of flashing energy that push them both back. Feferi jumps in and yells at them, but they just go right back to fighting. Sollux glows and screams as he levitates into the air. The background changes to rushing lines. His glasses lift up, like he's about to blast something with his eye beams. Eridan also begins to glow and levitate as the rushing lines change to say E=mc squared in the top half. Both intensify their glows and the whole scene fades to greyscale. Two options appear.

This is the end of the flash.]

Next

[Image description: Sollux and Eridan blast each other, but the energies collide in the center. Sollux glows purple and Eridan glows white. The background is split into two sections, the top one red and the bottom one blue with a slightly curved border between them. The way it's arranged, Eridan is in the top right, in the red section, and Sollux is in the bottom left, in the blue section. The whole scene is reminiscent of a Yin and Yang symbol. Or maybe the Pepsi logo.]

Sweet Bro and Hella Jeff

[Shitty clip art of a vampire and a pumpkin wearing a bowler hat and smoking a pipe are floating in a black void. Above them, Sweet Bro and Hella Jeff is written in a font that makes it look like the letters are cut out from pumpkins. Hella Jeff, who is wearing a black cape with a red outline, says A-BLAH!]

A-BLAH!
In a bright orange speech bubble. Below that, in bright red text with more badly drawn blood, it says pffffffahahaha.....
im going to suck
your blood dude!
A half transparent Sweet Bro with black eyes screams in bright yellow text
EEEEEAAAAAAAAAAAAAARRRRRRI
Sweet Bro stares at Hella Jeff with wide eyes and holds a comically large pistol. Vampire Hella Jeff just watches blankly.
The gun floats on its own and is labeled deudly firearms.....
On a pink background, an even more badly drawn Sweet Bro shoots vampire Hella Jeff repeatedly.
At every impact point, it says pap pap pap pap pap. Behind them, it says shoot shoot shoosh shoosh, and shoosh repeats until it runs out of room.
Bright green text against a black background asks are you next?
It repeats, now dripping badly drawn blood.
are you next?
And even bigger, now with a color inverted Hella Jeff
are you next?

Now back to the actual comic.]

Eridan: Abscond.

[Image description: All we see is Eridan's shoes on the transportalizer and Kanaya's hand with a drop of her blood on it. Eridan transportalizes away.]

Next

[Image description: Karkat stares in shock, his eyes and mouth both open to absurd degrees.]

Karkat: Examine Kanaya.

[Image description: Karkat kneels next to Kanaya with a terrified expression on his face. He holds his hand hesitantly towards her, though it already has some of her blood on it.]

Kanaya are you ok

Hey

Oh god

What has he done.

Kanaya?

Please tell me that's just grub sauce.

Please just be grub sauce please just be grub sauce please just be grub sauce

Haha, ok, make-believe time is over!

Oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god oh god

Karkat: Examine Sollux.

[Image description: Karkat stands next to Sollux and looks much less concerned.]
You are relieved to find Sollux is not Dead. He is merely KO'D.

[Note: Dead and KO'D are both written in yellow.]
You don't think you could handle it if this was Round Two of watching your good bro get killed.

Karkat: Examine Feferi.

[Image description: Karkat looks towards Feferi, who is laying across the horn pile. He looks sad. The blank alert still hovers over Kanaya's computer.]
She is Dead.

[Note: Dead is written in fuchsia.]
He is not going to take it well when he wakes up.
You hope he just stays asleep for a while.

Karkat: Examine Kanaya's computer.

[Image description: A trollian client appears. Trolling: (several question marks)] Someone was contacting her.
What the hell? There's no text in the message window.
Oh, you get it. This joker types in white. Guess you'll have to highlight it to read.

Karkat: Highlight.

[Image description: Karkat highlights the text. It says Mr. Vantas.]
Pesterlog
(question mark): Mr. Vantas.
G.A.: what the fuck?
who are you, and why are you messaging me through Kanaya's account?
I seriously don't need this shit right now.
(question mark): I'm delivering this message through the console of one of my numerous unwitting proteges to give you a word of advice, and then you will not hear from me again.

Next

[Image description: The cursor slowly drags over the last message that the white text person sent, bringing it into view.
Don't turn your back on the body.]

Next
What is that supposed to mean? That is the dumbest advice you ever heard.

You type some more curse words into the chat window, but there is no response.

Body? Which body? What was he talking about?

Karkat: Turn around.

You turn around very slowly, pretending not to be nervous.

All of the bodies in the room remain as they were. There is clearly nothing to be concerned about whatsoever.

Oh look. Gamzee is messaging you back, finally. You wonder what the hell he's been up to all this time.

Karkat: Answer.

[Note: Gamzee's normal quirk, of alternating each letter between capital and lowercase, isn't there. Instead, he alternates messages. One is all in caps, one is all in lowercase. The capital ones will be proceeded with (caps) and lowercase ones will be preceded by (low).]

T.C.: (low) honk.
G.C.: gamzee!!!
fuck
there you are, you had me worried dude

Current carcinogeneticist [C.G.C.] right now opened memo on board team adorabloodthirsty.

C.G.C.: this is probably the last memo I will write.
because first of all, there's pretty much nothing left to say.
and second of all, I might be dead soon.
I'm just hoping some of you idiots read this, and even if you think I'm full of shit now, when it all starts going down you might just remember what I said and save yourselves.
the worst case scenario has happened.
the bard of rage is on the loose.
yeah, I know we all thought that title was a joke, but it turned out it wasn't.
he's completely snapped, and for those of you further ahead on the timeline, I don't have to tell you how dangerous he is.
remember what he did to the black king.
nobody could explain it, and then he just went back to spacing out for the rest of the battle.
I mean seriously, what the fuck was that.
I don't even think the king could fucking believe it, frankly.
did anyone's attack do as much damage? I don't think so.
I don't even think vriska's did, although it's hard to say since that was the knockout blow.
^^^ spoilers.
I guess we thought it was like a secret joke power or something?
but the joke is on us.
he is out of pie, and now the faygo genie is out of the shitty soda bottle for good.
we are so screwed.
oh fuck oh fuck oh fuck.
guys, I am terrified, I don't know what to do.
I'm in a room full of bodies, and I think I'm not supposed to turn my back on them?
oh my god, I just heard a honk.
oh god oh god oh man oh god
no no no no no no no no
it came from the horn pile
I don't know if it was just the body settling on an errant horn or... or if...

Terezi: Examine Tavros.

[Image description: Terezi looks down at Tavros's body. Hovering green text says "upsetting discovery"]

Oh my!

What have we here???

Next

[Image description: Terezi's lip trembles. In the bottom corner, there is a faint indigo 'honk'.]

The upset of the upsetting discovery quickly turns to dismay and grief. Adios, sweet Toreadoormat.

You succumb to emotion. Tears are in order, probably. You attempt a sniffle. A wobble of the lip, even.

Alas, the tears will not come. Stupid lousy doomed Dave and your stupid lousy complicity in his death. Getting you all cried out like that.
Oh well, whatever. There are more important things at hand to concern yourself with than the flow of teal ocular discharge. A crime has been committed.

And where crime strikes, there is justice to be done.

Terezi: Investigate.

[Image description: Terezi kneels down next to the body and makes a vaguely disgusted expression.]

The scene is a gruesome spectacle to your nose, otherwise known as a nostacle. Under other circumstances, the aroma could be delightful. A rich chocolatey bouquet, sent from the heavens.

But at the scene of this fresh murder, the smell is highly unpalatable. Stomach turning, even. It smells like all the worst things you would expect it to, and more.

But a true legislacerator must be steeled to the revolting. Only the truth matters. And if there's one thing that matters even more than the truth, which there is, it's justice. Someone is going to pay.

Terezi: Consider suspects.

[Image description: Terezi clutches her cane in both hands. A thought bubble next to her shows Vriska grinning maniacally and holding up Tavros's severed legs.]

Before the full investigation is underway, a legislacerator will always have a chief suspect in mind. The one she will hold guilty until proven otherwise, a process customarily taking place after the execution.

Even so, it is only prudent to stay open to the possibility of other culprits. As they say in your line of work, there's always room on the gallows for more to swing. And though executing the wrong person is only a minor embarrassment to the courtblock, it is an embarrassment nonetheless.

His Tyranny will surely commend you for your due diligence by graciously neglecting to eat you after the trial.

Terezi: Sniff around for clues.

[Image description: Terezi looks up, towards where a pulsing blue line and trail of sparkles cross the sky.]

Above, you detect faint traces of what you reckon to be special stardust, such as the kind left behind by the flapping wings of a mischievous fairy.

Suspicious indeed.

Next

[Image description: She looks in another direction. There's a trail of white and grey smoke that resembles the energy from Eridan's wand. In the bottom corner, there's a larger, brighter Honk.]

And not far from that, you detect bright trails of white light. It smells... hopeful.

Also curious.

And that noise. Behind you...
Terezi: Inspect noise.

[Image description: Terezi sits back down on the edge of the platform and laughs. Behind her, the background fills up with Honk, written over and over and pulsing at the edges.]

Oh, of course. It is Gamzee up to his unmistakable charades. He is wandering around somewhere out there in the abyss.

He probably has no idea what sort of danger he is in, with one or more murderers on the loose. Poor guy. You will have to seek him out shortly and offer him protection. You'd feel terrible if you were to lose any more friends.

Terezi: Deploy forensics crew.

[Image description: Pink, blue, and yellow scalemates sit around Tavros's body.]

But first you must complete your investigation.

Professor Pucefoot, Inspector Berrybreath, and Doctor Honeytongue reporting.

Your team of forensic scientists is the best there is. There is no bit of evidence which will escape their eager and busy snouts.

Terezi: Draw outline.

[Image description: Terezi grabs the pink scalemate's snout and uses it to draw a bright green outline around Tavros's body. A second image shows her holding the chalk, which is now bloody.]

Professor Pucefoot immediately begins drawing a pointless chalk outline around the body, as is standard protocol.

Which is to say, you hold up a piece of chalk to his snout and draw it yourself. Yuck, the chalk is getting blood on it! You will have to discard that color.

[Note: there are two links to the next page. One is several question marks, and one is Terezi: Dust for prints.]

[7 question marks]

[Image description: this panel is a grey screen with a large teal libra symbol and a text box labeled "Enter Password" in Terezi's quirk.]

<- Or go back!

Password Hint
If you don't know the password yet, it means you're not supposed to, dummy! Go back!!!

Terezi: Dust for prints.

[Image description: Terezi crushes some red chalk onto the floor and dabs the blue scalemate's rear end in it. In a second image, she dusts the red chalk onto Tavros's leg.]

You grind up a piece of chalk and dab Inspector Berrybreath's ample plush rump into the powder.

You dust the victim's robotic apparatus, revealing nothing. Quite the slippery one you're dealing with.
There are no prints on the victim's face either. This was surely the work of a master criminal.

The murder weapon however reveals a plethora of prints! Your keen tongue tells you that most of these belong to the victim. But several are unidentified. Hmm...

(You are only pretending to think there is any chance they are not Vriska's, because otherwise it would be no fun.)

Next

The inspector's bottom has become dreadfully bloody though...

You believe you will dismiss the inspector.

Next

[Image description: The blue scalemate falls away into the void.]

Terezi: Get medical report.

[Image description: Terezi holds the yellow scalemate up to her ear and it 'whispers' to her.]

What's that, Doctor Honeytongue? Your analysis is inconclusive? You are recommending a full autopsy of the corpse, you say?

Next

[Image description: Terezi boofs the yellow scalemate right off the edge.]

No, Honeytongue! Are you quite mad???

The corpse must not be dismembered just yet! There could still be hope for the victim's resurrection! And according to the legislacerator's handbook, the victim's well being is among the highest of investigative priorities.

The odds that his dream self survived are quite slim, you admit. But you must at least try for the sake of your friend, even if it means braving the awful stench.

Terezi: Prepare to revive.

[Image description: Terezi removes her glasses. Her eyes are shut.]

This is not going to be pretty. But what are friends for if they can't smooch each others butchered corpses when the need arises? You will just have to suck it up. You can do it, Terezi.

Next

[Image description: She yanks the lance out of his chest, still keeping her eyes closed.]

Next

[Image description: Tavros's eyes stare blankly upwards. Terezi reaches towards him. A second image shows her pinching his lips into a kissy shape.]

Next

[Image description: She leans in closer, looking even more disgusted. A second image shows Tavros, still dead.]

Next

[Image description: She leans in to the point of almost kissing him. A second image focuses in on his lips.]

Karkat and Terezi: Revive.

[Image description: Karkat cradles Kanaya's body and kisses her. Red tears are running down his face. In a second image, Terezi kisses Tavros's body, but she's not crying. She just looks grossed out.]

2x corpsesmooch combo!!!

[Note: The caption is written in very large text that flashes brown and green.]

Next

[Image description: Dream Kanaya is consumed by fire. A second image shows dream Tavros sliced in half.]

Alas, they cannot be revived.

Their dream selves have been slain.

Rufio: Make him pay.

[Image description: A drawing of Rufio (from the movie Hook) shouts and holds his arms up in the air as a sword stabs him in the chest.]

Oh no! Rufio has just been murdered through the chest by his cruel nemesis, Captain Hook! His newfound father figure and Man-Skylark watches in horror!!!

[Note: this caption is a link to a clip from the Hook movie. Peter pan flies over a crowd of people on a dock, slashing a sword through the air. Someone shouts "here comes Pan!"
It cuts to Rufio and Captain hook on the pirate ship, dueling with their own swords. Rufio manages to pull Hook's sword to the ground and pin it there with his own. He taunts Hook. "Looky looky, I got Hooky!"

Hook pulls his sword from under Rufio's and stands up. The duel begins again. Rufio holds his sword up to block Hook's downswing, but Hook swings his sword around and stabs Rufio in the chest. Rufio gasps and it cuts to Peter Pan flying onto the ship, but he looks like a middle aged man. If he did before, the clip wasn't clear enough to see it. Peter yells "Hook, no!" A child dressed like hook looks down at Rufio in shock.

It cuts to Rufio as he falls backwards, though Peter tries to catch him. Rufio breathes heavily, then whispers "Do you know what I wish? I wish I had a Dad like you."

It cuts back to the child. He says "Oh Dad, I'm sorry."

[Image description: Hussie hovers against a background of flashing blue lines. He's wearing a Pupa Pan outfit- a green shirt and pants with a jagged collar and Tavros's symbol on the chest in brown. He gets closer to the viewer, then snaps back into his original place as the gif loops.]

Why don't we see what John's up to.

Next
John: Behold puffy oracle.

You are transfixed by the haunting mystery and beauty of this cloud's message. How long have you been staring at it? Minutes? Hours? You have begun to lose track of time.

What could it be? Two squirming cephalopods locked in a mating ritual? You suppose you will never know.

John: Snap out of it.

You somehow manage to pry your eyes from the exquisite celestial projection.

You have been exploring the battlefield with a new ally, a friendly fellow who strikes you as a sort of Wizardly Vassal. Your travels have led you here.

You spy a wallet lying on the ground.

John: Take wallet.

You pick up the wallet. It is full of many things. But the first thing to catch your eye is a NOTE.

John: Read note.

If you are reading this, it means you have inherited my wallet. You have truly become an adult man.

Wield it with responsibility and integrity.

I am so, so proud of you.

John: Become overwhelmed with responsibility.

You are suddenly extremely overwhelmed. How can one boy handle such awesome power and responsibility?

You also wonder why your dad dropped his wallet. It's as if he knew you would find it here. Perhaps he has been cloud gazing too?

Anyway, you wonder what else he's got in here?

John: Check contents of wallet.
The first card you examine contains One Ton of Shaving Cream.

Your father is nothing if not prepared.

W.V?: Inspect windy boy's treasure.

Oh goodness, such lovely cargo the boy has produced from his small brown square.

The black and white patterns on these little carapaced cylinders are impossibly attractive.

Next

You should be careful with that. Do you have any idea how flammable shaving cream is?

W.V?: IMBIBE LIKE THE WIND.

You gulp down decadent foamy dollops of the Beard Buster, and quickly respond with the Bluh callback as depicted jostling in the lower right hand corner of the image, because it is not nearly as tasty as you'd hoped.

But then you keep eating it anyway.

John: Empty wallet.

You don't have all day to be pawing through this thing while your silly friend eats shaving cream. You've already wasted hours staring at mysterious things happening in clouds.

Time to take a rapid inventory.

John: Examine contents.

An inviting pile of pipes, a somewhat less inviting pile of razor blades, a spare car, an assortment of shoes, hats, and ties, several issues of the serious jester, ticket stubs to cirque du soleil (you would prefer to forget what happened that day, he was just so embarrassing), a briefcase full of fatherly documents, a variety of photographs, a laptop computer, ten tons of pipe tobacco, and a lighter.

John: Examine photographs.

The wallet unsurprisingly contained a series of sentimental photographs of you when you were young. Some of these photos appear to have jokes written on the back. Others, cake recipes.

He also kept a series of portraits of some of his favorite comedians. Some are understandable. Harry Anderson goes without saying. Bill Cosby? Living Fatherly Legend. But his interest in Mr. Foxworthy always struck you as a little lame. Those redneck jokes were so corny and stupid. You secretly suspected your father was mostly arrested by the man's mustache. Maybe he fantasized about shaving the man's egregious furry lip? This seems like a reasonable theory to you.

John: Examine laptop.

Hooray, a computer! You have been dying for a way to talk to your friends again.

He bought this laptop at the Dadly Depot, an incredibly boring store established to furnish dignified gentlemen everywhere with dull fatherly goods. It was always so boring when he dragged you there. You have no idea who this douche bag is. "Who's this douche bag?" is what you ask every time you see his smug face. Maybe you're being unfair to the man, though.

Some guy named Crosby, you guess? Who cares. He's so boring.

John: Clean up this mess.

[Image description: John slides a card with the Crosbytop on it back into the wallet.]

You recaptcha the stuff and put it away neatly in your dad's sweet wallet.

You are almost done. Just one more thing to...

Oh for the love of...

John: Get in.

[Image description: John rolls his eyes. A second image shows him getting into the passenger's seat.]

Fine. You guess you are going for a little ride.

John: Buckle up.
Safety is the most important thing.

W.V?: Follow suit.

You presume the windy boy knows what he is doing. You tug the dark sash across your chest and secure it.

This is an incredible look for you. It's too bad the fashion accessory seems to trap you inside this vehicle. Human fashion and transportation and safety sure are weird, and apparently interrelated.

W.V?: Ride.

Your feet do not reach the little steppy levers.

Your copilot points out that you also do not have the key.

You are terribly disappointed.

John: Just do windy thing already.

He probably would have been a terrible driver anyway.

John and W.V?: Ascend.

The car lifts up off the ground, leaving a blue wind in its wake.

WE HAVE.

The car flies even higher. One of the clouds shows Gamzee's eye reflecting Jade's tower dropping.

LIFDOFF

[Note: Lifdoff is written in comic sans, but it's patchy, like someone used the spraypaint brush in MS paint to draw it. It's also a link to a Sweet Bro and Hella Jeff comic.]

SWEET BRO AND HELLA JEFF

COCTINUED

This is written in such a mess of color and is so badly pixellated that it's almost unreadable.

Sweet Bro, whose hair is now the same color as his face, stands on an Unreal Air skateboard, which hovers over a blurry green line that's probably supposed to be grass. To his left, a tiny picture of Hella Jeff standing in a bathtub says and there he goe's

WE HAVE.
This is written in the same patchy comic sans as the link image. The same image of Sweet Bro on the skateboard and Hella Jeff in the bathtub has been extended. Into the sky A series of images show Sweet Bro lifting up into the air and flying off into the clouds, which are helpfully labeled 'cloun'. In the last one, Geromy makes an appearance on the far right of the picture. The final image, which is only tied to the others by the presence of the grass line and the fact that Hella Jeff is still in the bathtub, shows Hella Jeff looking over his shoulder to where a badly drawn woman is bending over. In bright pink and yellow, it says dufe, are you Scoping this bitches choice ass Geromy is standing close to Hella Jeff and is labeled Geromy (again) And back to Homestuck.]

John: Pester Jade.

[Image description: W.V beeps the horn and John uses the Crosbytop as they fly through the air.]

E.B.: hey jade, are you there? i have a computer now. this boring guy keeps blinking at me though, and it's weird.
G.G.: john!!! (very happy face) wow, finally!
E.B.: hi! sorry i disappeared after you entered the game... but from what i have seen in the clouds, it doesn't look like you have had much trouble making progress!
G.G.: nope!
dave was able to set up as my server player he is building up my house right now so that we can deploy some equipment up there E.B.: oh, nice!
dave is serving ALL the ladies, isn't he?
G.G.: yep!
E.B.: he is like a dude on butler island. i mean, a dude who happens to be one of the butlers... doing a lot of serving, to various ladies who are vacationing at this snooty resort. wait, i am fucking this up.
G.G.: (gasping face) thats ok, i wont tell him about it
E.B.: ok, good.
all i am saying is, why can't i have a dave butler too?
G.G.: well, maybe you can..... i will try to put in a good word for you (smiley face wearing sunglasses)
E.B.: thank you.
what is the equipment you're deploying?
G.G.: im not sure!
something to do with cloning i guess? it serves some purpose in my quest as witch of space a nice troll named kanaya has been advising me on stuff about that have you talked to her?
E.B.: hmm... i don't think so. not recently anyway.
G.G.: you should!

a bunch of trolls are not nearly as bad as i thought even karkat! he has been helping me too... sort of, hehe
E.B.: he has? but i thought he "hated" you!
G.G.: oh yeah, he said plenty of stuff like that, but i dont think he ever actually meant it flying off the handle is part is of his charm in a funny way, once you know that about him E.B.: yes, this is what i have concluded about him as well.
he is a pretty great guy. i am really looking forward to more of his outbursts, especially his first conversation with me, which i am to understand will be legendary.
but we shouldn't tell him we said any of this, or he will be "furious"!
G.G.: heheheh
shhhhhhhhh
E.B.: so what else have you been up to?
we should try to catch up as much as possible!
G.G.: yeah!
hmm what else... theres been so much going on, its been a little hard to keep track of it all!
why dont you tell me what youve been up to first?
E.B.: oh man.
you will never guess what i am doing right now.
go ahead, try to guess, you will not succeed.
G.G.: ............
whoa (gasping face)
john where did you get that nice flying car??????
E.B.: oh god dammit!

E.B.: how do you know!
do you have rose's crystal ball?
G.G.: sort of!
she gave me the code, and i made a cool pair of goggles with it
E.B.: argh, i am surrounded by real life witches!
everyone i know is turning magic, it's ridiculous.
including me! i'm magic now.
G.G.: it certainly seems so! what with your fancy magic car and your chauffeur familiar, i guess?
E.B.: no, he is neither a chauffeur, nor a familiar...
he is just a new friend!
also, this is not a magic car, it is an ordinary car.
i found it in my dad's wallet.
G.G.: you did???
E.B.: yes, i just found his wallet on the ground.
but my dad was nowhere to be found. (sad face)
G.G.: (sad face)
E.B.: the clouds led me to the wallet though, so maybe they will keep leading me to him?
G.G.: hmmmmmm...
maybe, but hang on let me try something
E.B.: ok.
i have seen lots of interesting things in the clouds...
i guess you used to see things like that all the time, right?
G.G.: yes!
what have you seen?
E.B.: wow, uh...
well, lots of things that were mysterious and didn't make much sense...
but also lots of things i recognized.
like stuff i have done before. and also stuff i will do in the future.
and things that rose and dave have been up to...
and you too!
G.G.: (gasping face)
like what, what did you seeeee?
E.B.: well, i saw you on your island, and saw you sleeping in a floating bed, and...
i saw your pretty snow planet... and i saw you with some frogs...
have you found any frogs yet?
G.G.: frogs?
no...
E.B.: well, i saw you once in a neat outfit... it was kind of like you were torn from the pages of my favorite japanese mangas.
and the snow was melting.
and you were surrounded by frogs for some reason!
heh, now it sounds like i am describing a weird dream i had about you.
G.G.: sure does!
E.B.: which i guess is sorta true?? anyway, i guess that must not have happened yet.
G.G.: nope! but that sounds pretty interesting
i wonder why i would be surrounded by frogs?
E.B.: dunno! but you are a witch, remember.
witches LOVE frogs.
G.G.: hahaha thats true!
i hope i am not planning on putting them in a cauldron or anything (wide eyed blank face)
E.B.: i doubt it, it looked to me like a friendly gathering.
G.G.: whew!
E.B.: oh, and one time i saw a green version of you with pointy ears, and you were crying!
did that happen yet?
G.G.: bluh. yes (blank face)
i prototyped my dead dream self and tried to get her to fight jack but it turned out to be a Big Mistake god i cant believe how dumb that idea was, she was an emotional wreck E.B.: oh no!
what happened? where is she now?
G.G.: oh, she went off to cry somewhere else... good riddance!
E.B.: wow jade, you really have been up to a lot!
G.G.: hehe i guess so
E.B.: and i have just been staring at these dumb clouds for hours or whatever.
i even saw my own dead body in a cloud!

G.G.: who?
E.B.: vriska. do you know her?
G.G.: i dont think so!
E.B.: she is pretty cool, but just between you and me, she might be a little crazy!
G.G.: well if she tricked you into getting killed, then i would have to agree E.B.: but, i don't think it's really like that... honestly i think dying was a necessary part of the process, and she just didn't tell me so i wouldn't get scared.
G.G.: what process?
and how are you alive now if you died! john im a little confused
E.B.: well... i died on the quest bed and woke up here, as my dream self.
and now i have all these sweet wind powers.
which is how i am making this car fly!
G.G.: ohhhhhh!
that makes sense
dave had mentioned you reached the god tier
E.B.: yeah!
G.G.: but he did not say what it involved (very upset face)
he probably didn't want to make me worried
E.B.: maybe, or he was just being some sort of aloof coolkid.
G.G.: or that!
but he also said that no one else would do it but you... actually, now it makes sense that i wouldn't be able to, since my dream self is dead its too bad really
E.B.: yeah...
G.G.: i wonder what space powers would be like??
E.B.: hmm, i have no idea!
G.G.: oh well
E.B.: maybe you shouldn't rule it out though?
i mean, you did mention your dream self isn't completely dead, remember?
G.G.: !!!!
you're right...
i suddenly dont know if i want to become a god tier anymore (sad face) E.B.: heheh.
she was that bad, huh?
G.G.: (very upset face with eyes pinched shut)

he seemed to be curious about me and followed me around for a while.
also, i noticed he was wearing my bedsheet.
G.G.: haha! what is he doing with that!
E.B.: i don't know, there seems to be this whole cult full of people who worship my ghost sheets.
i ran into a bunch of them in a salamander village, they are all completely ridiculous.
so i guess he is a member of the cult?
G.G.: probably!
you are just going to have to deal with the fact that you are becoming a famous hero john, and people everywhere will idolize you E.B.: derp! they aren't idolizing me, it's my dumb bedsheets they love!
it's so stupid.
oh!
also, another thing about him...
he has the queen's ring!
G.G.: (gasping pace)
that's great! john you have to get that ring from him!
E.B.: i've tried! i asked him politely for it and everything.
but he is very protective of it!
G.G.: hmmmmmmmm
that is a problem!
E.B.: actually, i think it's ok.
i think he is supposed to keep it.
G.G.: you do?
E.B.: yes. once i saw something in the clouds.
it was hard to tell what was going on, but i saw him!
im pretty sure it was the future, and he had the ring, and...
G.G.: and what?
E.B.: and then the cloud stopped showing me.
but i am pretty sure that some day...
he will have to wear it!
G.G.: (wide eyed gasping face)
E.B.: so i think i will just let him keep it.
for some reason, i trust him.
G.G.: ok john.....
i trust you
so i will trust in your trust in him
E.B.: yeah, trust all around!
G.G.: im going to be a supportive piece of shit all day and fall down all this trust!
E.B.: how trustworthy do you even have to Be to Confide in someone like that.
G.G.: lol
E.B.: anyway, i guess that's enough of that nonsense.
i should keep looking for my dad!
maybe if i fly around in this car with this guy beeping here, the noise will get his attention and he will find me.
G.G.: john, i already found your dad!

E.B.: you did?
G.G.: yes i found him with my goggles almost right away!
but i didnt want to interrupt you E.B.: oh! well that sure is convenient!
where is he?
G.G.: he is with roses mom
they are in a castle, having some sort of tea party together they appear to be enjoying each others company!
its quite adorable actually
E.B.: oh wow...
jade, what if they get married or something???
oh god, if rose became my sister too, that would wreak havoc on karkat's shipping diagram!
as leader of this team i submit that we cannot afford to let this happen!!!!!!!!!!
everyone man your battle stations!!!
G.G.: RED ALERT!!!!!
E.B.: we have a ship to sink! arm torpedoes!!!!!
G.G.: AWOOOOOOOOOOOGA!!!!!!!!!!!!
E.B.: Ka-pchooooooo00000. target destroyed. (smiley face wearing sunglasses) heheh, i am just joking around, of course.
G.G.: durrrr oh really john (tongue sticking out face)
E.B.: (tongue sticking out face)
G.G.: but really, they make a nice couple and i think it would be great if they got married!
E.B.: yes, i agree.
even if it would make it awkward for me to marry rose.
G.G.: i guess so
E.B.: but maybe that doesn't matter? these are kind of special circumstances.
G.G.: yes they are pretty special
E.B.: i wonder if my dad and her mom would mind us getting married...
G.G.: i dunno
who are they to stand between two youngsters in love?
E.B.: whoa, in love???
G.G.: yes john, two people must be in love in order to get married it is one of the rules!
E.B.: oh jeez, yeah i guess you're right.
G.G.: so what do you say john, are you in love with rose?
E.B.: um...
G.G.: and if not, are you prepared to fall in love with her?
E.B.: er.
G.G.: wellllll? (very happy face)
E.B.: argh!
this line of questioning is making me flustered.
all i know is, i was ordered by karkat to marry rose.
i think we can both agree that it would be reckless to look at a crappy shipping diagram made by an alien, and ignore its message altogether.
G.G.: i didnt even know karkat made a shipping diagram...
E.B.: it's a thing of beauty, and it will save the human race.
G.G.: i will have to make him show me
E.B.: yes.
btw, you will marry dave.
100% TRUE REALITY.
G.G.: (sweating side eye)
E.B.: it's ok though, i will not press you on your feelings for him.
i already know you are totally into the strider anyway.
G.G.: whaaat...
E.B.: it's all in the diagram, jade.
it's all in the diagram.
G.G.: i dont know about that!
i clearly need to take a good hard look at this prophetic document and possibly tell karkat what an idiot he is!
E.B.: that you do.
ok but anyway, who cares about his terrible shitty drawings and meddlesome romantic schemes!
how do i find my dad!
G.G.: uh
well, i dont actually know where he is relative to you!
so i dont know if i can give you directions
E.B.: bluh!!
G.G.: there might be some way to do that...
these goggles are actually Really Complicated!
i will look into it and get back to you in the meantime, why dont you fly around and keep looking?
at least now you know to look for a castle and maybe the clouds will give you some more tips!
E.B.: yes, that's a good idea, i'll do that.
thanks for the help, jade!
G.G.: sure! (heart)
E.B.: i will talk to you later.

E.B.: ok, duh! I know that.
I mean, how many times have you talked to me before?
G.C.: we just got done with our second conversation. How can you not know this?
E.B.: augh!

G.C.: why
E.B.: because it sounds like you're in trouble.
I think maybe you are running from jack?
G.C.: of course we're running from jack, I just got done fucking telling you that.
E.B.: no, I know, but...

G.C.: I guess my future conversations will instigate some misguided need for you to get in touch with me later on.
what have I gotten myself into here.
I swear, it never ends with the ultimate riddle shit. Even after the game is over.
even after you lose it! How unfair is that.
E.B.: ultimate riddle shit?
G.C.: I can tell this conversation is going to be a utter fucking joy to participate in.
I honestly envy anyone in the position of not having to put up with reading it.
but you asked for it, john, so here we go.

G.C.: I don't know, at least three probably, but who even knows at this point he point is, if you see him, would you mind snapping his stupid wand in half or something?
and then choke him to death with his own shitty pretentious scarf.
C.T.: d --> do I really have to G.C.: god, what is the problem now?
C.T.: d --> I'd prefer not to interact with him

Terezi: Sample sauce.

[Image description: Terezi dips her finger in the blood and touches it to her tongue. In the bottom corner, she Bluhs loudly in the scribbly style.]

Someone either had a major sauce accident earlier, or this is the scene of yet another Real Life Murder! Your team is so lucky to have you around to sleuth these heinous crimes.

And yet, the body is missing. Can't conduct much forensic analysis without it. This is exactly why you should never turn your back on a body, not even for a second.

Terezi: Examine horn pile.

[Image description: Terezi stands near the horn pile. Feferi's body is still there, but there is a smear of jade blood leading towards her and on some of the horns on the right side of the body. On the right side of her neck, there are two round dots of blood that weren't there before.]

This was no nap. This was...

Another Murder.

What is going on in this lab???

Terezi: Examine body.

[Image description: Terezi kneels next to Feferi with her eyes closed.]

Another textbook impaling. Your perp has been busy tonight.

Wait... there appears to be a pair of smaller marks on the victim's neck.
Terezi: Examine marks.

[Image description: It zooms in on the small round marks. There are small smudges of jade green around them in approximately the shape of a mouth.]

Hmm...

Next

[Image description: Terezi shrugs. Next to her, a scribbly imagining of Vriska holds a bloody lance and grins maniacally with jade and fuchsia blood all over her mouth.]

Has the killer really developed a taste for blood? She is completely out of control.

According to your expert analysis, she barged in here with a lance, her new weapon of choice. This startled everyone in the room so much, it triggered a dreadful grub sauce spill, and/or chainsaw accident, causing the missing victim to lose a large volume of blood, and/or grub sauce. Horrified by the sight, everyone fled the room, except for the present victim who was napping on the horn pile. The perpetrator in her deranged state of mind then sampled the spilt green blood/sauce from the floor. Her thirst piqued, she became tempted by the buffet of rich royal blood on the horn pile, dragged a trail of green from the puddle to the horns, and helped herself to the victim's neck. The victim undoubtedly woke up midway through the gruesome feast, fought back, and got a lance through the chest for her trouble. The perp then fled into the lab, thirsty for more.

Yes, you are quite sure that...

That...

That your theory doesn't make a lick of sense!!! You wish you had your crack team of experts to advise you. If only you hadn't kicked them all into the bottomless pit, along with probably your glasses, accidentally. Damn their insubordination!

[S] Equius: Seek the highblood.

[Note: In the link, 'highblood' is written with 100 in place of the l o o like in Equius's typing quirk.]

[Image description: This is an interactive walkaround. The song 'Horschestra Strong Version" begins to play. Equius stands in a grey room somewhere on the meteor. Nepeta stands to his left, but she isn't wearing her hat. Behind her is a large pile of broken robots. The ground is littered with broken bows, arrows, glasses of milk, and bits of robots. To the south, there are several pieces of machinery, some of which are topped by teapots. Walk to the right. A pair of stairs and a chest come into view. Try to go up the stairs. A grey text box appears. You cannot go off looking for the highblood just yet. You must make sure Nepeta is somewhere safe.

Go to one of the glasses of milk.
Drink milk.
The glass smashes.
Fiddlesticks.

Go smash more milk glasses, just to make a mess. The response is the same.

Go to one of the broken bows.
Examine broken bow.
Archery is so hard when you're this strong.

Go to the chest near the stairs in the southwest corner of the room.
Open chest.
You got a Fresh Towel!

Go north, to the pile of broken robots. There are several posters on the wall behind it, along with many pipes and wires of various sizes.
Examine robo-pile.

A gratifying heap of soundly thrashed robotics. Standing near this pile stirs powerful emotions. The closer you stand to piles of stuff, the more freely the feelings flow. It is a law of reality.

[Note: Robotics is written with a percent sign in place of the I C S, per Equius's quirk.]

There's a chest just east of the robotics pile.
Open chest.
You got a Heap of Fresh Towels!

Go to a black and white poster that looks like a very large horse head on very tiny hind legs, and only hind legs.
Examine fine art.
This piece is simply called Edward. It is so beautiful.

Go to a poster that looks like a grey centaur with blue dragon wings and a poster of a blue centaur leaning over a wall.
Examine fine art.
Legends tell of musclebeasts once roaming the cosmos that were so enormous, they could destroy entire planets with but a twitch of any anatomical feature. Are the legends true?
You hope so.

Next to those two posters, in the northeast corner of the room, there's a grey door.
Open door.

This is no time to retire. Gotta go after the clown.

Go south, towards the machines. In the southwest corner of the room, there's another chest.
Open chest.
A con air poster appears.
You got Emergency Backup Absorbency Unit!

At last, go to Nepeta. Several options appear.
Talk about Aradia.
Talk about Gamzee.
Be Nepeta.
Cancel.

Talk about Aradia.

[Note: The talksprites appear as each talks.]

Nepeta crouches down and flicks her tail.
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) a furrocious and concerned moirail suddenly appurrchess out of some wild shrubberies!!!
Equius:: (bow and arrow) I regard the furrocious moirail stoically
I mean
I greet Ms. Leijon without issuing a statement of action in the first person Nepeta stands up.
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) ms leijon pawnders over whether mr zahhak is still feeling blue over his depurrted robo sweeheart and needs more cheering up
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Mr Zahhak, I mean I, will probably be feeling blue about that for some time, yes
But he is, darn it, I am, exceptionally STRONG and will cope with it admirably
Even though
She didn't even say goodbye for some reason Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) aww (sad face with two mouths)
we can always curl up in the pile again to talk about feelings (cat face with two mouths)
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Nepeta, for goodness sakes, a man can only discuss feelings for so much time
How long have we already spent in the robotics pile
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) ummmmmmmmmmm Equius begins to sweat heavily.
Equius:: (bow and arrow) I believe it was at least an hour
We examined my emotional state until we were both blue in the face Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) heeheeehee!
Equius:: (bow and arrow) What Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) blue blue blue blue blue [Note: Blue is written as b100.]
i just love how you say that word!
Equius:: (bow and arrow) I know

> Talk about Gamzee.

Equius:: (bow and arrow) Nepeta, I think it would behoove us to address the extreme danger in a serious manner
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) you mean about gamzee? heehee!
im still not sure if i can believe it!
Equius:: (bow and arrow) That's because you still refuse to look upon our bloodlines as the deciding behoovioral factors they are Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) behoovioral? (confused face with two mouths) Equius:: (bow and arrow) Behavioral Equius sweats heavily and wipes at it with Nepeta's hat.
Sorry, my heart is galloping and I canter nunciate properly
The horst case scenario is upon us
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) snort (cat face with two mouths and eyes pinched shut)
Equius:: (bow and arrow) His is the richest and most noble blood possible among the high land dwellers
As such, he is prone to being more violent and unpredictable than any of us
Not everyone has been as lucky as I in the domain of moirallegiance
I udder to think what I might be without you, Nepeta Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) udder?
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Shudder
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) oh! thats so sweet equius, you know i will always be ready to tacklepounce you when you start getting especially furrious (cat face with two mouths)
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Yes, which is among the reasons why I must make your protection a high priority
The highblood has joined a stable of those who are becoming increasingly volatile and murderous as we remain stranded in this laboratory
I command you to steer clear of them, do you understand Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) hee, did you mean steer in the livestock sense?
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Yes
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) well, if you're referring to whiskers, I was already plenty scared of her!
and if you are talking about Mr. Ampurra, he has always given me the creeps anyway! so there is nothing to fret over Equius:: (bow and arrow) Excellent
I would still prefer you hide, I mean prefer Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) hide? where? (gasp face with two mouths)
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Behind that gait Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) gait? you mean gate? what gate?? what are you stalking about!!!
Equius:: (bow and arrow) I mean that door over there, you goshdarned sillyface Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) oh!
kay! (cat face with two mouths) (heart)

> Be Nepeta.

Equius:: (bow and arrow) I will now seek the highblood, Nepeta
I command you to go hide, as we discussed Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) sure!
but there are lots of nuts on the loose out there, so don't stick your neck out and take any big frisks!
Equius:: (bow and arrow) I will exact caution, even when safety looks to be 100% assured
Even so
I would still like to take the opportunity to say Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) what?
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Goodbye Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) ... well ok, goodbye!
but you had better believe I will see you again soon, equius!
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Yes, you will

You are now Nepeta and Nepeta's theme begins to play. Go to one of the un-smashed glasses of milk.
Drink milk.
lap lap lap lap lap (cat face with two mouths)

Try going up the stairs on the west side of the room.

You can't go up there! Equius told you to go hide through that gait! You mean gate. Argh you mean door.

Go to the pink teapot on top of one of the machines at the south end of the room.
Examine teapot.
Cameowmile. It smells so good.

Now go to the purple one.
Examine teapot.
Purr! grey. This has been steeping for way too long, so it is undoubtedly very strong. Just the way Equius likes it.
Go back to Equius. Several options appear.
Suggest one last feelings jam in the pile.
Roleplay.
Tacklepounce.
Be Equius.
Cancel.

Suggest one last feelings jam in the pile.

Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) Nepeta sheepishly looks at her shoe with a question on her pursed lips
Equius:: (bow and arrow) For pete's goodfornothin' dixie whistling sakes, Nepeta
I am through talking about feelings, now go hide like I commanded Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) but so many of our friends have died, and it just makes me so sad to think about!
i dont think we have even scratched the surface of our feelings yet, and our feelings in this case are a very tall and inviting carpeted post to sink our claws into!
Equius:: (bow and arrow) I do not hoove claws
I mean have claws
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) i know, i was speaking metafurrikitty (cat face with two mouths) Equius:: (bow and arrow) Mr. Zahhak rolls his eyes, which remain concealed and aloof as ever
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) besides, i know for a fact that you are still feeling blue (heehee) from losing aradia Equius:: (bow and arrow) I suppose Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) i did not mention, but i think i should...
it may purrk you up to know that i had a dream about her during my last catnap!
Equius:: (bow and arrow) You did Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) yes, she had these purrty wings and a splendid hood, i think she might have been cosplaying much like friska has been!
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Uh huh
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) she was so happy, just like she used to be, and she said she would see you soon!
Equius:: (bow and arrow) That's a nice thought, and thank you for sharing it
But it was only a dream, and will surely have no consequence in reality Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) equius?
are those feelings i am detecting with my wiggly whiskery nose?
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Maybe Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) then we must take this to the pile, scratching-posthaste!!!
(winking cat face with two mouths)
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Okay, just for a while though

They lay in the pile of robots together.
You then proceed to have the most poignant and heartfelt feelings jam in the history of paradox space, or piles of things.

Roleplay.

Equius wears Nepeta's hat.
Equius:: (bow and arrow) (cat face with two mouths) I, a mucular man who is clearly a feline-obsessed female at the moment, do something suitably cat-like in accordance with the nature of this juvenile theatrical amusement Nepeta wears Equius's sunglasses.
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) (bow and arrow) Strong equius no like hiss-poor attempt at roleplay, also disapproves of missed oppurrtunity to spell amusement as amewsment
Equius:: (bow and arrow) That's not how I talk Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) (bow and arrow) Equius command strong meowscular cat girl to get into role better (cat face with two mouths wearing sunglasses)
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Oh good grief
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) (bow and arrow) He commands it!!!!!!!!!
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Fine
I, again as a lithe clawed female wearing a preposterous hood, I mean prepawsterous, strike a supine posture on the floor, darn it, pawsture
The exposed belly commands to be scratched
It commands it, do as it says
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) (bow and arrow) Rawr, hulking brute no obey command, too strong for touchy cuddly stuff purr usual! (tongue sticking out face with two mouths and wearing sunglasses)
Equius:: (bow and arrow) (cat face with two mouths) The scruffy haired, saucer eyed smart alec takes issue with the tone of the girl currently posing as said hulking brute
She/he wonders if he/she apppreciates that the pawerful nobleman currently meowsquerading as her/him would be more than happy to accommeowdate said cuddly stuff, outrageous Strongness purrmitting
Nepeta isn't wearing his glasses anymore.
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) (uncertain face with two mouths) equius, dammit! why do you always have to make this so cerebral!
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Language
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) sorry (sad face with two mouths)
Equius:: (bow and arrow) What am I doing wrong
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) well you dont always have to announce who you are purrtending to be in every line! and you dont always have to point out that its just purrtend! in fact, that is sort of an R.P. ing no no
Equius:: (bow and arrow) How would you recommend I approach the absurdist charade, then Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) oh i dunno, just by having fun and having a sense of humor about it and such! and not sneaking in sneaky sneakret little barbs of disdain for the exercise, i am not dumb you know, i catch those like scared little scurrying rodents!
Equius isn't wearing Nepeta's hat anymore.
Equius:: (bow and arrow) I was having fun
The line about the belly scratching was exceptionally playful, and I am to be commended
You will commend me, I command it Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) yes yes, ok youre right. that was really great! do more of that. ok ready? Go!
Equius puts the hood back on.
Equius:: (bow and arrow) I think I'm out of material though
I don't actually know that much about cats
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) errrrrrg! fiiiine, we can stop
She wears his glasses again.
here, take your gross stinky glasses back, Sweat quius
He wipes his sweat with the hat again.
Equius:: (bow and arrow) Very well, here is your hood Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) umm yeah why dont you hang on to that forever!
it is my purrent to you
He puts it back on.
Equius:: (bow and arrow) I
I can't tell you how touching I find this gesture, Nepeta
Thank you, from the very bottom of my ludicrously powerful cardiovascular system
Nepeta: (cat face with two mouths) dont mention it! (heart)

Tacklepounce.
Nepeta tacklepounces on Equius, just like she did way back in the Land of Little Cubes and Tea. Instead of little cubes, this time it sends Robo parts everywhere!

Don't bother being Equius because you already did everything there was to do as him.
Go to the door in the northeast corner.
Open door.

The scene changes to a hallway with metal floor tiles, which goes west for a short distance then turns north. There's three drawings on the wall. The leftmost one is Dave and Tavros holding hands with a red heart between them. The center one is Rose and Kanaya with a red heart between them. The rightmost one is Feferi and Sollux holding hands with a red heart between them. There's a paint palette on the floor near the Dave and Tavros drawing and a piece of purple string and teapot in the corner.
Try to go back down through the door.
Equius has blocked the door from the other side with something incredibly heavy! damn him and his strongness.

Go to the painting wall.
Examine shipping wall.
You just don't have the heart to update the wall to reflect the recent deaths of your friends.
As a veteran shipper, you have grown accustomed to watching your ships get sunk. But not like this. (sad face with two mouths)

Go to the paint palette.
Examine paint set.
Alternian paint sets are manufactured with the pigment from the blood of culled wigglers.
Which... is pretty pawful, when you think about it!

Go to the purple string Examine yarn.
bat bat bat, pounce pounce pounce. (cat face with two mouths)

Go to the teapot.
Examine teapot.
Rawrjeeling. So fragrant! Mmmmm.

Go north, down the hallway.

More pieces of string, a pile of sugar topped by a teapot, and a new shipping wall come into view. The shipping wall, from right to left, has Gamzee and Karkat in moirallegiance, Terezi and Vriska in kismesitude, Jade auspitizing between Karkat and Karkat (No, that's not a typo), John and W.V in a quadrant represented by a question mark, and Nepeta and Karkat in some sort of quadrant, though that one is blocked by a large pile of machinery. There's some sort of text, but only a letter and a half can be seen. To the far left of the shipping wall, there's a grate labeled 'Great' in bright green text.
Ignore that for now and go back to look at the sugar pile.
Examine sugar pile.
Just looking at this pile is making you sleepy. And emotional.
No one can ever accuse you of not being prepurred to sweeten a warm beverage!

Go look at the shipping wall, ship by ship.

Examine Gamzee (diamond) Karkat.
You suppose this pairing is still viable. Although the roles will have to be dramatically reversed!

Examine Vriska (spade) Terezi.
Yes! This matchup was always just so purrrrrfect to you. Why can't anyone else see it? Why can't they see???
It's hard being a shipper. It's hard, and no one understands.

Examine Karkat (club) Jade (club) Karkat.
You will have to remember to write Jade a nice thank you note for helping to stabilize Karkat's unhealthy relationship with his past and future selves. Maybe now with a clear head he will be able to open his eyes to what waits for him in other quadrants. Certain other Pawsibilities. Maybe noticing someone nice over there in that bright red corner, who has been there all along. (winking cat face with two mouths)

Examine John ? Dersite.
This is, um... a ship in progress!
Human romance sure is weird.

Go to the blocked ship
Examine creats, you mean crates.
Nepeta shoves the machines aside, revealing the secret ship. It's Nepeta and Karkat kissing, surrounded by hearts and labeled OTP.
Oh no!!! No one must ever see. No one must ever seeeeeeeeeeeeeee!
Some day you will work up the guts to say something. Maybe once this huge murder fiasco blows over!

Now go to the grate.
Enter great, you mean grate.
You suppose you should stay put like Equius said. But its so furstrating being all cooped up in here!
Surely scooting through the air ducts for a while couldn't hurt. He will never know!

The scene shifts to an incredibly narrow walkway. The song Blackest Heart begins to play, but with occasional extra sounds in it that aren't in the album version, including a whispered 'miracles', clown horns honking rhythmically, and horns honking la cucaracha.

Head north.
You walk down a long vent that progressively gets darker. At the far end, there's another grate. Look through grate.
The scene is partially covered by the bars of the grate, but there's a pile of shredded scalemates, the same ones that Terezi tossed into the void, a bunch of broken machinery on the east side, and a control panel on the west. On the back wall, in Tavros's blood, it says Honk.
A grey text box appears after a moment.
Pucefoot? Berrybreath?? Doctor honeytongue??? What monster could do this
It returns to the vent. Head west. There's another grate a short distance down the vent.
Again, the view is partially covered by bars, but it shows a wall with another message written in Tavros's blood.
are you next? (smiley face with a round nose)
A grey text box appears after a moment.
Hee hee! Next for what?
Head west. The path eventually turns north. Keep following it.
There's one last grate. Go to it.
Enter grate.

The scene changes. You are now in a tiny room containing two transportalizers with jade green footsteps between them. The west one is cracked and there's a chest on the back wall. Go to the chest.
Open chest.
You got an Enchanted Shitty Wizard Figurine!

Go to the east transportalizer.
Transportalize.
It doesn't work! Someone must have disabled the transportalizer on the other side.

Go to the footsteps.
Examine green trail.
Looks like someone's being Pretty Sloppy with their grub sauce.
At least, you hope that's grub sauce…

Go to the west transportalizer.
Transportalize.
Someone has chopped this thing right in half! Maybe whoever is traversing through these corridors does not want to be followed? You can certainly respect such sneaky tactics.

Just north of the broken transportalizer is another grate. Go there.
Enter grate.

The scene changes to another narrow vent. Go north. At the end, there's a grate.
Look through grate.
The music changes to a distorted version of the Insane Clown Posse's "Miracles". All we see is Nepeta staring through the grate with shadows falling across her as her expression slowly becomes more and more horrified.

It fades to black, then back to the room with the Robo pile. You are now Equius again. Blackest Heart with honks still plays. Go up the stairs.
Equius exits the room and enters a room with red floor tiles. Go west. There's a bank of computers with colorful points and many, many error messages. Go behind the machine.
Equius enters a secret area with a grey floor. There are several machines and a chest.
Open chest.
A broken bust of Nic Cage and a small pile of boondollars appear over the chest.
You got a Shattered Bust of an Incredibly Attractive Sweaty Human Male Actor.
You have told Nepeta not to scoot through the air ducts and steal the cherished belongings of others. But does she listen? Of course not.

Go back into the main lab.

Go north. There are two massive vats. The south one is broken and the north one contains a strange, black, horse-like creature. There is a chest in the northwest corner.
Open chest.
You got Ahab's Crosshairs!
Perfect! This is exactly the kind of firepower you could use if you're going up against...
You just broke it.

Go east, past the vats. There's a long hallway. Go down it. It loads a new area that is only a red hallway going east. After a while, it turns north. Keep going down it. The hallway begins to get darker, then turns east.

A large creature that's half black night and half white night lays on the ground. It has an udder and arrows fired into each of the eye slots on its helmet.
Examine slain beast.
Arrows? Fired true, straight through the eyes...
Who could have done this?

Keep going east.

A cutscene begins. The song Midnight Calliope plays.

A pair of red glasses rise through the darkness. Slowly, a silhouette and symbol appear. It's Gamzee, wearing Terezi's glasses. He's sitting on the edge of the lid of a vat with a bow across his knees. It zooms out. Equius stands at the base of the vat, looking up at Gamzee.
Dialogue appears at the bottom of the screen in grey text boxes.

Equius: (bow and arrow) Ah, it's you, Pyrope
Have you seen the highblood about Pardon, "smelled"

It zooms back in on Gamzee.

Gamzee: (low) heheh.
(caps) Check it the motherfuck out.

The background flashes purple, highlighting heavily smeared juggalo makeup across Gamzee's face, but also smudges onto his arms and shirt.

Gamzee: (low) it's the peasantblood.
(caps) heh heh.
(low) fuckin heh.

It moves back to Equius, looking on from a distance.

Equius: (bow and arrow) Peasantblood
Is that a joke

It cuts to a closeup of Gamzee's face. All that can be seen clearly is the glasses and the very faint shadow of the jagged lines of the makeup. It flashes for a moment, bringing him into view, then returns to darkness as it pans up.

Gamzee: (low) if your blood.
(caps) is a running motherfucking gag.
(low) then soon.
(caps) it will be running.
(low) through my motherfucking fingers.
It cuts back to Equius.

Equius: (bow and arrow) The profanity is sickening You'll stop

Then back to Gamzee.

Gamzee: you'll...

Contrast slowly increases, bringing the lines of his makeup and hair into full view, but with the colors inverted. The areas of dark makeup appear bright white and the light grey areas appear black. It zooms in even closer.

Gamzee: (caps) kneel. (smiley face with a round nose and furrowed brows)

It fades to Equius's feet and slowly pans up him. He looks shocked.

Equius: (bow and arrow) You are not Pyrope
You are the highblood, I should have known Remove your counterfeit eyewear at once
Uh
If you please, sir

Gamzee reaches up and hold the glasses at the edges, but they still cover his eyes.

Gamzee: (low) i'll show you what i motherfuckin got.
(caps) if you'll show me what's motherfuckin yours.

He lowers them. His eyes are low lidded and bright yellow. It cuts to a closeup of Equius's eye. He narrows it behind his glasses.

Equius: (bow and arrow) What

It cuts back to Equius looking up at Gamzee.

Gamzee: (low) it was.
(caps) a motherfucking.

Back to Gamzee. Lightning flashes.

Gamzee: (low) joke.
(caps) honk.

Back to a closeup of Equius's eye.

Equius: (bow and arrow) We really should talk

It fades to a closeup of Gamzee's eye.

Gamzee: (low) you really should kneel.

An even more extreme closeup of Equius's eye. He's shaking.

Equius: (bow and arrow) What was that
The volume of your voice keeps fluctuating.
Back to Gamzee's eye. He looks angry, but a blank sort of anger.

Gamzee: (caps) I said.

The contrast increases. His makeup becomes bright white and pitch black. His eye remains bright yellow.

Gamzee: (low) kneel motherfucker.

Equius looks up at him, still surprised.
Gamzee's eye snaps open all the way and it zooms in until it takes up most of the screen. He looks crazed. The edges of his eye and pupil shake.

Gamzee: (caps) I told you to motherfucking kneel, motherfucker.

Gamzee notches an arrow and pulls back the bowstring. Everything flashes red as he releases it, then it flies off screen. There's a loud bike horn honk. The black background fades to bright red. A text box with two options appears.
  Replay.
  Restart game.

Next

[Note: The next arrow for this page was made of two dashes and a greater than symbol where the other have been made with equals signs.]

Gamzee: Subjuglate.

[Image description: Gamzee stalks forward, his chin tilted downwards. He still carries the bow in one hand. He's drawn in very dark colors and has a dark grey, jagged aura around him, which pushes back an otherwise purple background. Honk honk honk is written off to the side. At the bottom, Equius's horns just barely poke on screen.]

Next

[Image description: The image flips. Now we see Equius on the ground, looking scared and very sweaty. Gamzee's horns just poke on screen and a large Honk is written between them.]

Next

[Image description: Gamzee grins maniacally down at Equius while clutching the bow in both hands. The wood creaks.]

Next

[Image description: It zooms in as the wood snaps.]

Next

[Image description: In blood colored silhouette, Gamzee stands over Equius, who holds his hands up in surrender. Gamzee has one half of the bow in each hand and looped the string around the back of Equius's neck. The background is black, but has Honk written over and over until it runs out of room.]
Gamzee: Engage Murder Mode.

[Image description: Gamzee snarls and yanks the broken bow away from Equius, who can only be seen as an arm sticking on screen. The string still leads off screen. Gamzee's eyes are bright red. Instead of honk, the background is filled with Murder Mode in bright red. Everything shakes and purple lightning crackles around Gamzee.]

This is completely terrifying.

Next

[Image description: Equius looks terrified. The bowstring is looped around his neck like a garotte. The background behind him flashes blue and indigo. A second image, is split between indigo and blue. In the indigo section, Gamzee pulls back on the bow. In the blue section, Equius leans back, still kneeling.]

Next

[Image description: The bowstring pulls tight. Equius's face turns blue, but he's smiling. A second image shows both of them in silhouette. Gamzee has let go of the bow and stands over Equius, who falls backwards.]

E.B.: oh, hey there, vriska.
can this wait? i was about to check out this castle and see if my dad is here.
A.G.: Your guardians are not here!
E.B.: oh...
dang it!
do you know where they are?
A.G.: Yes, they are in another castle. Don't worry, you'll find them later.
E.B.: argh, how much later??
A.G.: In a while! Man, settle down.
I am telling you that you will find them after a little more questing around in your awesome blue godhood. So why don't you relax and talk to me for a while?
E.B.: well...
ok, i guess so.
A.G.: Why don't you have your hood up, by the way?
E.B.: shrug.
A.G.: You look great with the hood up. And anyway, we should be showing a little pride as the only ones to make god tier, don't you think?
E.B.: pshhh.
i don't know if it is much of a major accomplishment, honestly.
A.G.: John, are you mad at me?
E.B.: um... no?
A.G.: Then what's the matter?
E.B.: i guess i just miss my dad. i was hoping he would be here, but apparently i won't see him for another few hours or whatever?
if that is what you see in the future, then i guess there's no fighting it. bluh.
A.G.: I still find it a little hard to understand the sentimentality you attach to these adult humans.
It just seems so strange to me. But hey, that's alien culture for you.
E.B.: yeah, i know.
i guess you just have to think of them the way you think of your lusus..ses? lusi?
A.G.: Yeah, sort of. Except I never liked mine that much. (uncertain face with eight eyes) Even after I prototyped her, things were pretty chilly between us! I spent most of my adventure avoiding her. Haha. that... is too bad.
A.G.: John.
Are you suuuuuuuuure you're not mad at me?
E.B.: no!!! why would i be mad at you, vriska?
A.G.: Because I tricked you into getting killed!!!!!!!
E.B.: oh. right. i... actually almost forgot about that!
A.G.: Would it help if I said I was sorry?
E.B.: why would you need to apologize though? i mean, i admit i was pretty confused about it at first, seeing my dead body in the cloud and all... but in the end, you did it to help me, didn't you? really, i should probably be thanking you!
uh...
are you there?
A.G.: Yes, I am here. Sorry, I wasn't sure what to say for a moment. I am just so incredibly relieved you are not angry with me.
E.B.: heh. i really don't know what reason i would have to be angry! i mean, aside from the deception involved, but i kinda understand why you did that. and in any case, you did give me a choice.
A.G.: Yes, I did. I don't know, John. You'd be surprised how often people resent it when you try to help them! But see, you really get it. That's why you're special.

E.B.: then what is it?
A.G.: I know how this is probably going to sound, especially to a human. but I just killed someone.
E.B.: you did?
who was it? you mean like, a bad guy?
A.G.: Not exactly.
E.B.: oh yeah, karkat mentioned that he was in trouble, and then had to go. it made me a little worried! are you guys under attack or something?
A.G.: I'm not sure what his deal is. I haven't seen him in a while.
but we are not under attack.
Not yet, at least.
E.B.: oh.
well, then...
who did you kill?
A.G.: He was a friend.
Someone from our team.
E.B.: why?
A.G.: It's a little complicated.
E.B.: well, did he attack you or something?
A.G.: Yes.
but really, that's not why I killed him. He was no match for me, and I could have just incapacitated him or flown away or whatever.
The truth is I killed him because at the time, I thought I wanted to, and sort of felt like I finally had to.
E.B.: uh...
why did you have to?
A.G.: because enough was enough! You don't even know how frustrating it was to be friends with him.
I used to really like him and always wanted to help him get stronger, so that he might stand a fucking chance to actually make it on our world.
but he was just sooooooo weak and indecisive. He wouldn't change!
And when he tried to change, it was too little and too late. Always late. Latey Latey Laaaaaaaate.
Too late to kiss me.
Too late to kill me.
He couldn't do it when I really needed him to. So when I saw he was actually serious about trying to kill me now of all times...
I just got so aaaaaaaangry. I am still a bit upset thinking about it.
So I killed him.
And I'm pretty sure he's dead for good now.
E.B.: wow.
you're right, vriska. that does not sound good.
A.G.: I know!
I know our races are completely different. And I really hate the idea of you thinking worse of me because of this.
but I don't have anyone else to talk to about it!
E.B.: you don't?
what about all of your friends?
i bet karkat would listen.
or what about terezi? she's pretty nice, isn't she?
A.G.: No no no no no no no!
I mean, yeah, they're fine. but I can't talk to them!
E.B.: why not?
A.G.: For one thing, they would probably just be pissed off at me for killing Tavros.
And more importantly, there's no waaaaaaay I could tell them how I really feel about it.
E.B.: well, how do you feel?
A.G.: Horrible!!!!!!!!!
If any of my friends knew that, they would think I'm weak.
E.B.: oh...
i guess i understand. i mean, i'm trying to, with the cultural difference and all.
A.G.: Do you?
E.B.: like, trolls are more violent and angry, right? kind of like klingons or something, which is an angry race of alien savages from a human tv show.
A.G.: We aren't savages, you dope!
E.B.: oh, i know, that's not what i meant! but i am guessing you all have to act tough to make it in your world, and have a sense of honor about fighting, and like to beat people up and stuff, right?
A.G.: Uh, yeah........
Let's say close enough!
E.B.: but i think that no matter what alien culture you are from, killing is still wrong! and it sounds like you do too.
A.G.: Yeah, see.
This is where our cultures clash, I think.
It would be difficult to explain exactly how killing is viewed on our planet with all the nuance involved.
It just isn't the black and white thing humans seem to think it is!
E.B.: well, you could try. i am listening.
A.G.: On my world, I would be completely vindicated for killing him! He is far lower on the hemospectrum than me. He managed to disrespect me time and time again, but I kept letting him live! In fact, the amount of slack I cut him would be considered scandalous by those in my class.
I had every reason to kill him. And yet...
I feel bad about it like a lame weak fudgeblood, just like he was. And the fact that I feel bad is why I'm sort of freaking out right now!
E.B.: i think if you feel bad, it just means you have a conscience. which is good, right?
A.G.: No. That's not how it works.
I'm supposed to be just fine with it.
This was sort of like a test, and I'm afraid I might be failing.
E.B.: how was it like a test?
A.G.: Well, it was the first time I killed somebody.
E.B.: ok.
A.G.: Wait! Ok, that's not really true. What I meant was, it was the first time I killed somebody I cared about.
E.B.: so...
you killed other people, that you didn't care about?
A.G.: Yes. Sort of a lot, actually. but there was a really good reason for that!
E.B.: hm. how many?
or... do i want to know...
A.G.: Oh, it doesn't matter. Probably many thousands.
E.B.: uhhhhhhhh.
hopy shit...
A.G.: God, I know how this sounds! but I had to feed her. My lusus I mean. I've basically been playing this role as a slave in the food chain my whole life. It is what she selected me to do.
E.B.: i guess that is why you didn't get along with her?
A.G.: Hell yes.
E.B.: i see.
still, that is a lot of killing. jesus...
A.G.: Yeah, but I never felt anything about it. It was just normal life for me.
E.B.: but then you finally killed a guy you liked, and...
not so cool anymore?
A.G.: Yeah. Oh!
Ok, that's not quite right. He's the second person I cared about who I killed.
Man, I always forget about her!
E.B.: uh.
A.G.: I guess she wound up getting me back pretty good though, so we're even.
Oh, also, technically I attempted to kill that same guy around the same time.
but I just wound up paralyzing him! Oops, hahahaha.
E.B.: ...
A.G.: but man. That was sweeps ago.
I think I had a really juvenile attitude about killing back then. I think I was trying too hard?
I was always really obsessed with being the best at stuff, and I guess I was trying to be precocious in that respect as well, and prove to everyone how brutal I could be.
but I was such a confused kid! I didn't know anything about what killing really means. I was trying to fake it, and it caused me nothing but problems.
E.B.: i guess i had no idea how different we really were.
what i am hearing is seriously scaring the shit out of me!
A.G.: Yeah, I know. I wish we didn't have to be so different. I'm just trying to be honest with you, because like I said, I have nowhere else to go.
E.B.: ok, well i appreciate the honesty.
so... if killing isn't exactly wrong, then what is it?
what do you mean by "what killing really means"?

A.G.: I guess I have to admit I don't actually know that much about humans either!
Other than that you are all pretty soft and mild mannered and seem to be friendlier, and think killing totally sucks.
I really have no clue what it means to grow up as a human, though.
but I do know what it means grow up as a troll, and what's expected of us.
E.B.: what does it mean?
A.G.: When a troll comes of age, you better believe it means they're going to start killing.
It's what we do as a race. We are very effective conquerors, and as such, we practically dominate our galaxy. Or... used to.
The ones that don't learn to be ruthless? They're better off dead.
And the reality is, it won't be long until they are. That's just life for us.
E.B.: that sounds terrible!
i would like to be culturally sensitive, but i wish it didn't have to be like that for you.
i have started to really like you guys!
A.G.: Well, thanks John. That's nice of you to say. but let's face it, it doesn't fucking matter anymore, since our whole race was wiped out!
Maybe for the best, when you think about it.
E.B.: (sad face)
A.G.: but at least paradox space gave us some purpose before wiping us out, right?
At least we got the chance to create you guys, and all those twinkly stars you used to look up at.
E.B.: yeah, that's true.
A.G.: So because we got that chance, it means we'll never actually get to come of age and enter troll society, and see if we got what it takes.
but that doesn't mean we stop growing up!
I think the game knows it's always gonna be played by kids, and it always rigs it so they enter right around the cusp of sexual maturity, whatever the race is.
Which kinda makes sense, since if they succeed, they've got their whole lives ahead of them to do whatever the hell they're going to do in their universe, like start repopulating and whatnot.
That means the game also knows it's got to deal with all these damn kids who are coming of age while playing it!
I really think how successfully they mature is tied to success in the game. It challenges the players in all the ways they need to be challenged to grow, which is different for every individual, and veeeeeeeery different for every race.
I don't think we were so hot at that aspect of the game. In fact, I'm sure we were quite awful. Hell, even I wasn't that great at it! I actually just kinda fell ass backwards into the god tier, to be honest.
E.B.: hehe... yeah me too. (smiley face)
A.G.: but what really gets me is this didn't even occur to me until just now, while I was sitting around thinking about it.
It was so obvious!
E.B.: what?
A.G.: That was why the game split us up into two teams.
It knew as we came of age, we'd probably start killing each other.
So it just provided the stage. Red team vs. blue. It was so simple! All we had to do was what we were naturally inclined to. It might have worked out better for us.
E.B.: uh...
i don't really see how you guys killing each other would help you play the game better!
A.G.: Yeah, you'd think that would be counter productive! but then again, maybe not.
If we really did take the team thing seriously, and started killing each other, maybe it would have meant more god tiers?
Maybe all of us would have made it????????
Damn, can you imagine? We would have breezed through the game even faster, killed the king without a sweat. Maybe claimed the reward before Jack even showed up?
Or if he did, maybe we could have beaten him then and there instead of scurrying off like cowards!!!!!!!!
In retrospect we failed at this so spectacularly, I am amazed, and kind of ashamed.
It turned out that the only one of us with the guts to kill someone was already dead!
Hahahahahahahaha. And boy, did I have it coming.
E.B.: dead?
A.G.: Yes, she was a ghost, and then became a robot. Then she became a thousand robots. Then Jack killed them all but one. Then she blew up.
Oh, and she also had that exact bizarre laptop you are using right now. How weird is that?
E.B.: gosh... your team is so crazy!
A.G.: Not crazy enough, apparently!
Actually, this is probably Karkat's fault.
E.B.: how?
A.G.: When it comes down to it, he was probably too good a leader! He actually did manage to get the two teams to work together toward the same goal. It could have easily deteriorated into a feud otherwise.
He was just so loud and annoying and obsessed with leadership. He wouldn't shut up! So it was just easier to go along with his plans.
E.B.: huh...
yeah, i can see how that could be true.
A.G.: He sure kept us working together, but in the end I think we paid for it.
It wasn't natural! Pretty fitting, really, since he's kind of a freak himself. He's not even on the hemospectrum, the weirdo.
I really doubt he would have handled it as a leader if the shit ever hit the whirling device.
He likes to pretend he's all vicious and bloodthirsty, but I know he ain't got that in him. I have a sense for these things.
He'd be so pissed if he heard me say this, but I think he'd cut it better as a human than as a troll.
E.B.: you probably mean that as an insult, but i think it is a nice compliment!
but...
i won't tell him you said it, heheheh.

Karkat: Examine equipment.

[Image description: Karkat turns and looks at the empty ectobiology machine. On the floor, Sollux begins to stir.]

You reflect on your prior experience as the team's ectobiologist. It seemed like you were doing something so important at the time. Finally everything made sense. This was why you were here.

But what was the point? You are all clearly going to die the most pointless deaths possible. Everything you believed about your destiny was meaningless. You wish you never pushed those buttons and hatched your team out of all this goddamn slime. You are no ectobiologist. If only there was some other title more befitting of the true discipline you practice, and the death sentence given to whatever you do the disservice of creating. You can't think of one though.

And what about the other twelve wigglers you spawned? Who were they? Probably further proof this was all meaningless and random. Could it be that they were the true heroes meant to be sent back to play this game, while your team was the superfluous crop? Could a mistake have been made during the reckoning?

Or just maybe, she was right about them all along. Not that it makes any difference now.

Something is stirring behind you. Something unconscious and toothless.

Sollux: Wake up.

A.G.: What about him?
E.B.: are you still planning on killing him?
E.B.: that would be a constructive way to use your killer troll instincts, even by human standards. It is much better than killing friends.
A.G.: Yeah, you're right.
And to tell you the truth, part of the reason I wanted to kill him was to protect them. It's not just about glory you know.
because if I don't do it, then who will?
E.B.: well, we have a plan to defeat him too, so there's that.
A.G.: Yes, I know about your plan.
I guess two plans are better than one, right?
E.B.: yeah.
so...
will you go fight him then?
A.G.: Man, I don't know anymore.
It's one reason I'm freaking out about this. About feeling bad about a simple, perfectly justifiable killing.
If I can't handle that, doesn't it mean I'm not as strong as I thought? What hope do I have against Jack if that's the case?
E.B.: for whatever it's worth coming from a human, feeling remorse doesn't make you weak! i bet you are still really strong.
but then, i'm not sure if i actually want to encourage you to go off fighting him... because as strong as you probably are, it sounds like he is really strong.
and even though you killed tons of people, i think i would still be pretty sad if you died.
A.G.: Aw. (smiley face with eight eyes)
E.B.: so maybe you should just let us handle it? at least we won't fight him directly.
A.G.: I don't know. Even though I'm conflicted, it still feels like something I have to do. I admit, I'm pretty scared thinking about it.
Not of him necessarily, but of the fact that I apparently don't know myself as well as I believed.
What if I'm not as lucky as I thought?
What if I do not in fact have allllllll of the luck?
E.B.: well, maybe you don't?
all of the luck sounds like an awful lot of luck to have.

A.G.: Exactly!

but then, if there is no chance of catching a bad break, then taking a risk doesn't even qualify as bravery, does it?

It isn't even a risk, by definition!!!!!!!!

So if this is going to mean anything, I guess I just have to find the strength from somewhere to go through with it.

More than just the fakey strength that comes from turning a blind eye to all your flaws. You know what I mean?

A.G.: You know how I said I couldn't relate to the attachment you have for your guardians?

E.B.: yes.

A.G.: Well, I guess that isn't completely true.

There are adult trolls who we can relate to, if we choose to, and if we are lucky enough to discover who they are.

but it is not really in a familial sense, at least not socially speaking, the way you understand family.

They are more like figures of legend, who are said to have more in common with us genetically than any other troll, but we can never meet them of course. Only look up to them, and follow in their footsteps, because they died centuries ago.

E.B.: like...

ancestors?

A.G.: Yeah!

We are each supposed to have one, and if you believe the lore about it, your destiny will be tied to theirs. You will find clues pointing to them and who they were, but you will only notice them if your eyes are open.

You then can choose to take up the life they left for you. And if you do, they will always be looking out for you, and guide you in finishing what they started.

E.B.: wow, that is kinda neat.

so, do you believe?

A.G.: I don't have to believe.

I am completely certain it is true, and I know who mine is!

I have been doing my best to honor her legacy for most of my life.

I even named my roleplaying character after her!

She gained all the levels.

A.G.: It was before I ever started gaming, or rounding up other kids to feed my lusus. I was nearing the age where I would be expected to feed her. And she was starting to get so big, that she would have to crawl out of the caverns soon, no longer able to feast on stray wigglers she caught in her web. It was kind of an intense symbiotic thing, a particularly demanding lusus-troll relationship, and only really strong kids are supposed to be able to handle it. So of course I was terrified of the responsibility looming! I really didn't think I would make it. I was sure I'd fail, and my lusus would either get angry and eat me, or she'd just die and then I'd be culled.
but then I saw a shooting star one evening. I tracked down where it landed, and found a chest with my sign on it.
A sign is an insignia we must wear, specific to our class. Each class has a huge alphabet of signs, so when someone shares yours, you know you have a lot in common. I was so excited to see it.

A.G.: It was her journal! She documented all of her amazing adventures as she sailed around the world, commanding a notoriously deadly fleet of Gamblignants. It was so thrilling reading it. It really felt like she wrote it just for me, like she was talking right to me and telling me how to be like her. She even left notes on where she buried treasure and stuff, which I followed later when I started R.P. ing. I found her dice that way, and so many other great things.
Learning about her gave me the strength and confidence to do what I had to do.
E.B.: that is a pretty exciting story!
so then, your great great great grandnanna or such was some kind of troll pirate? uh, i mean, pirate?
[Note: Pirate is written with an 8 in place of the A T E.]
A.G.: Yeah!!!!!!!!
And that's not all. Not that I really needed it proved to me that she was my ancestor, but that's exactly what happened while playing this game. It turned out that in addition to creating us all in the ectobiology lab, Karkat created our ancestors too! but he never believed in any of that, and just thought they were random extra wigglers serving no purpose, the stubborn jackass.
The more common bloods are less inclined to give a shit about that kind of stuff, legends and tradition and all that. Those in the upper classes like me put more stock in it, and rightly so.
E.B.: now that you mention that... it really sounds like our situations are not so different! i created our guardians in the lab too, along with the four of us.
and when you think about it...
i never even knew my nanna.
she died before i was born. or, uh, before i created myself and sent baby me back in time, i mean.
so really, she is my ancestor too! someone i am connected to genetically, but never knew.
A.G.: Oh yeah. Wow, I never thought about that.
E.B.: and even though i never knew her, she definitely helped me when i was growing up!
i followed in her footsteps, and became an incredible prankster.
A.G.: Hahahaha. That is an admirable calling, John. Every bit as dignified as the path of the Marquise!
E.B.: i even had a book i learned a lot from too, the book was sort of a family tradition.
it was written by an even older ancestor, my nanna's grandpa, who was only the most Legendary Prankster of All Time.
so as you can see, we have both benefited greatly from ancestral wisdom.
A.G.: Yeah, that's so awesome!
E.B.: i think it is nice to see that when you take a closer look, we have a lot more in common than we first thought.
A.G.: I agree.
Haha, oh man...
E.B.: what?
A.G.: I was just thinking about your life on Earth.
You had it so easy! You don't have to go hunting for clues about your ancestors at all.
There was a picture of her hanging right there on the wall of your hive.
E.B.: heheheh, yep! also, her ashes were there too.
A.G.: Hahahahahahahaha!
I don't know why, but that is just so funny to me.
Your lives are so simple and easy. It must be really nice being a human, even though you're all so weak.
but maybe it's ok to be weak, if that's what's normal.
E.B.: yeah, it is pretty great, actually. i highly recommend being human.

I feel better than I ever have, really.
there is no more noise, I never realized how noisy it was.
I can finally relax, and hear my own thoughts without having to yell them, or actually, just not have any thoughts, that's a nice change of pace.
G.C.: thats good what kind of noise were you hearing T.A.: voices.
indiscriminate, indecipherable voices, all talking at once, voices of the soon to be dead.
they had been getting louder lately, and i just figured they were all ours.
i tuned them out kind of like i pretty much always do, but now that they're gone the difference is huge, i mean wow.
maybe since they're gone, it means we won't have to die anymore?

Vriska: Read Mindfang's journal.

~ On the 14th bilunar perigee of the 2nd dim season's equinox ~

The Orphaner poses a caliginous riddle like no other I've met. I am presuming him bothered by jealousy, and it would be sickening if it were not so marvelously amusing. But then, who but royalty could have the finned cheek to show disdain for the manner in which his black lover conducts her red conquests? Less has accelerated meeker than I to homicide, and the violation would hold me aghast, again, if his misgivings did not complement his so endearing arsenal of quaint flaws. It is impossible to stifle this grin even now as I write.

He surely understands this as my maritime overlord, a superior while through gritting fangs he would concede the expanse of my plunder makes his seem hardly worthwhile to trouble a map with good ink over. I know he understands. I will take what I want. I expect nothing less from Dualscar, and truly, less would offend me. Is it the crude blood of the suitors from which I have taken enjoyment recently? If his displeasure is with my blithe treatment of the social order then he has either not spent enough time in the warm company of my indifference, or is simply very stupid. I saw the look he gave. He's so secure in knowing I can't feel what's in his mind he forgets the traitorous ways of his own face. His little looks are words to me, interjections in our deliciously bitter repartee. First a look as I summon a slave from the hold, with such ease between my remarks. Why yes, Dualscar, they were the very slaves in your hold until but this hour. Another ship deployed carelessly, languishing in strategic vulnerability. Is this not our routine? Our dance? What is this look, my dear kismesis? Is it shame? Envy? Contempt for what he knows will follow?

I nod her over. She is fearful and it makes her prettier. He scoffs without a movement or sound. I know there is disgust feeding the shadows in his corner of my block. At least prick her in the light, he surely thinks. Determine what vulgar hue she bleeds before persisting with your abasement, Marquise. Do try to understand, Orphaner. Not knowing is the point, and if you truly understood this, your crusade against the Gamblignants would not be among our Grand Highblood's most uproarious punchlines. (If only one truly needed to be so high to find it amusing!) And so not knowing, I take her will, but leave enough of it to enjoy her response. Her hands are in my service but they still shake. They unfasten the first button at my jacket's waist, clumsily. I have masked the line between my puppeteering and her volition exquisitely, and her uncertainty over her own control fuels her fear. She unfastens the second button, and between the second and third, I make a casual remark to Dualscar, continuing our conversation. He does not respond.

I look again at the face of my slave, imagining for a moment her mind is not an unguarded port to her every dread. I imagine I cannot feel her conviction that it's not merely a matter of whether she will be put to the irons, but how hot they will be if she fails to please. Poor thing. Her horns make attractive shapes and pair themselves pleasantly amidst her violent snarls of hair. Her fingers, which I have lost track of, to my surprise have come between the petticoat and my skin. The heat of her touch tells me the likely range for the color of her blood. I wouldn't have guessed it to look at her, not with her sign stripped. Her mouth opens slightly and I squint. Ah! Razor sharp, and none missing. Perfect. How disappointing it is to find quivering lips hiding dull teeth. I pause to consider. What will her fear become if I choose to show her mercy later? And even, in days, kindness? Will this be the red dalliance that becomes fully flushed? Love demands my cunning just as my raids. If it is to be, she will never understand how thoroughly she was manipulated, her body, her mind, her devotion.

I remember Dualscar again. My distraction from our banter was momentarily absolute, and I inquie into the shadows. but he is gone.

Then go, my kismesis. Fume with the indignation I gave you. I can only pray it blackens our bond. I must know such exhibitions agitate him and hence why I bother, otherwise it would be easy to dismiss him before I partook. Let it be a gift of antagonization to you, my dear rival, on which you may brew pitch for me anew. And if it is true envy, a vermilion yearning I can't abide, then though it pains me it will be farewell.

Alas, it may be that I am too good at spurring hate. Too good, at least, for him. I only hope he is not so foolish as to tread a path of less torrid malice.

For if he does........

My suspicions have been confirmed. I'm not grinning anymore, Dualscar.

Our orderly contention has dissolved right before my vision 8fold. It was once a handsome black, but now sits like good strong tea sullied and cooled by unwelcome dairy.

Thus my heart was broken twice. I was fond of the slave. There was surely promise in her red investment. He had her assassinated.

And so I am visited by a bit of bad luck for a change. It's not possible to evade it forever, I suppose. I will simply have to endure the misfortune of observing his base and artless measures of retaliation.

He's applied his own resources to increase the bounty on my head. I wonder if he intends such a laughably ineffectual gesture as anything more than a formality, a symbol of his intent. If not, my smile. How it threatens to revisit. Almost.

I've broken laws, yes. but what has there been to pay for? If any act I've taken should demand a bounty, it was paid up front. I foot the bill myself with guile and supremacy.

Doesn't he remember what he's confided? It would be easy to give the evidence to Her Imperious Condescension, and he would be killed quickly for his unthinkable presumption. I've learned Dualscar has reported to the Grand Highblood all the intelligence he has on me and my fleet. It was information he'd guarded closely to protect our once mutually cherished rivalry. He couldn't let it fall into the wrong hands, lest another besiege me more effectively and cause me to wax for the usurper. Not that he'd raised that mast particularly high himself. Ah, the shortcomings I manage to overlook for the sake of a lover.

I would have enjoyed witnessing the entertainment he prepared to please the Highblood. His sense of humor was dreadful. It would have been a true miracle if he survived the appointment.

Funny, I always imagined a grander entry in my journal for your demise, Dualscar, but I should have realized you would die as you lived. A joke. One more humorous little sacrifice kindly given to the Subjugglators, and one step closer to the release of the Vast Honk they prophesize. I am overjoyed to understand now this was always your destiny.

It's been nearly a week since Dualscar's fitting end and I'd all but forgotten the matter. It seems the Subjugglators were not particularly inspired by his revelations about my affairs. Neophyte Red glare is reported to be quite talented. I find no reason to doubt this. Still, how can I be caused any unrest to learn their recourse is to send a lone, inexperienced bureaucrat to apprehend me?

I cannot view this as anything other than full concession by the Highbloods. They now only seek to maintain the appearance of pursuing me. Maybe they find my exploits amusing? I couldn't possibly disagree. Those rare moments when my superiors show wisdom come perilously close to restoring my faith in the social order.

You are now Jack Noir.

You have just murdered an innocent family.

What will you do?
Jack: Accessorize immediately.

[Image description: Jack puts on Dad's hat, but has ripped two holes in it for his ears.]

You begin claiming trophies to celebrate your magnificent triumph over the defenseless loving couple. The man's hat suits you perfectly. It is plain and serviceable. Yes, that looks so good. The only way the look could possibly be improved is if it was blacker. Or bloodier.

Jack: Take a prize from the lady.

[Image description: Jack wears Bro's shades, Dad's hat, and Mom's scarf. He has Dad's pipe in his mouth and the repaired Lil Cal in his hand.]

This beautiful scarf will look quite dramatic as you soar through the air, scouring the surface for new victims. It is finely crafted and the fabric is wonderfully soft. Your powerful nose detects perfume. The odor is pleasant.

Wait, this pipe is great too. It makes you look dignified and thoughtful. Yes, this will be your trophy as well.

Jack: Trophy binge.

[Image description: Jack cycles through various shirts, hats, glasses, and other accessories he's taken from the kid's guardians that he's killed.]

Yes. Yed!

All of the glorious trophies will belong to you. There is no possession of the fallen so trivial that it would not make a splendid adornment to your intimidating visage.

Wait no.

This is in fact so very, very stupid.

Next

[Image description: Jack bares his teeth and stomps on Dad's hat, Bro's glasses, and Mom's scarf.]

This is no way for a killer of your elite profile to dress. Your rise to omnipotence has had a regrettable influence on your vanity it seems. Have you forgotten the original grievance with frivolous attire that got you here?

That's it. No more trophies. You are swearing off trophies forever.

Probably.

[Image description: It zooms in on lil cal in Jack's hand. A second image shows Jack's torso glowing as he puts Cal inside himself, or maybe uses his body as a way to teleport Cal elsewhere. A cloud behind Jack shows the same image as the first one on this page, except Jack's hand is covered in blood.]

Ok.

You will keep one trophy.
But only one.

You can never stay mad at Cal. He is a true friend. The only you have ever known.

Next

[Image description: Jack stands over the smashed trophies and blinks quickly.]

God you are so bored.

Jack: Sniff out new prey.

[Image description: Jack sniffs. A second image shows him catching a whiff of the windy thing with small drawings of John floating near it. Clouds behind him show John in his godtier outfit.]

It used to be that when you were bored with paperwork, you would go distract yourself by sharpening one of your favorite knives, or give your most disapproving scowl through a fenestrated wall to survey the kingdom. But those were simpler times. There is only one cure for boredom befitting a demigod, and that is more senseless killing.

You consult your proud long snout for assistance with the hunt. You pick up the maddening scent of one of the young graveyard stuffers. You are sure it is the same one you slaughtered earlier, and yet his stench remains, confounding you from every direction. It is as if The Breeze which carries it deliberately seeks to obfuscate the odor's origin. Your thoughts become more murderous with each blustery taunt.

Jack: Succumb to unfathomable bloodlust.

[Image description: A thought bubble appears over Jack's head. It's full of John, dead on his quest bed, Green suit Dave dead near his own quest bed, and mostly full of dog bones, snausages, fire hydrants, and some mail.]

You are consumed by murderous thoughts and you prepare to embark on a killing spree to end all oh for fuck's sake you start thinking about dog things again.

Why do bones have to be so delicious and enticing.

Jack: Suppress thoughts of unfathomable Snausages.

[Image description: Jack snarls. Behind him, the background shows Jade smiling widely and surrounded by light pink hearts and the word Wag.]

You successfully suppress all thoughts of delicious little wrapped wiener and infuriating things like mail and its agents of delivery.

But in the process you awaken your deepest and darkest feelings of all. Feelings of...

Loyalty? How completely despicable.

But no, that is not quite all there is.

Could it also be...

Love?

It must be. It is the only emotion that could possibly make you feel so utterly disgusted with yourself.

Next

[Image description: Jack stands over Jade, who is asleep on her bed.]

And it is surely why you couldn't go through with it.

Next

[Image description: Jack holds his sword out, ready to stab her, then disappears in a green flash.]

You could not do it.

You could not kill the girl.

Jack: Contact DD?.

[Image description: Jack, back among the ruined teaparty, holds up a walkie talkie that has a red diamond alert next to it.]

You get the Draconian Dignitary on the line. He asks what the hell you've been up to. You say it doesn't matter. You have a point of serious business to discuss with him. He makes sure you're remembering to keep the destructive impulses to a minimum. No more planet exploding or anything like that. You say yeah yeah. He says no point in securing power when there's nothing left to rule. You say you know, god. It's not the point.

Lousy stupid dignitary, all keeping your murderous tendencies in check. He's the most terrible guy you almost kind of didn't despise completely.

DD?: Listen to SS?.

[Image description: The Draconian Dignitary stands in Jack's office with his walkie talkie that has a spade alert. One of the walls is still sliced and the Queen's blood is still on the floor. A thought bubble shows DD wapping Jack with a rolled up newspaper.]

You attempt to humor the Sovereign Slayer's demands diplomatically. There's a narrow line to walk between obeying the orders of a clear superior and blindly facilitating a perfectly useless genocide. It takes a very savvy breed of psychopath to pull it off.

The Slayer is yapping about some girl. Probably one of the young players who can no longer provide any serious threat to your rule. But he wants you to go kill her anyway. You ask why he doesn't go kill her himself. He says it's complicated. This guy, you swear. You tell him you're busy with things that actually matter. Like running this kingdom on his behalf and all. Levying taxes, oppressing consorts, all the unpleasant chores he would never dirty his snout with. He says this is more important than any of that stuff. You say fine, just send the droll after her.

There's a moment of radio silence.

He says you mean the Courtyard Droll? He wants to be sure this is the same droll you're talking about. You say yeah, what's the problem? He says, you mean the very same droll who couldn't manage the one simple task assigned to him, to steal the White Queen's ring from the very same adoring, wonderful girl and master and friend in question? Wait. He says he just means girl. Just girl. You didn't hear any of that.
You don't say anything.

He says fine. You win. Sic the stupid droll on her, what does he care.

DD?: Contact CD?.

You hit up the droll. The slayer was right, this guy is clearly incompetent. Still, the only real objective here is to get him to stop breathing down your neck with his awful dog breath.

Looks like the droll's on the battlefield. He says he is still looking for the queen's ring. He says he made a new friend to help him with his search. But it is terribly breezy on this planet, and his new friend keeps blowing around making the search more difficult! He says thank goodness he is not wearing one of his finer hats. It would be just dreadful trying to keep it on his head in such weather!

You say you don't care about any of that stuff, and tell him to shut up.

CD?: Listen to DD?.

[Image description: CD stands on the battlefield, holding onto the robotic bunny's arm so it doesn't fly away in the wind. In his other hand, he holds a walkie talkie with a red diamond alert over it.]

The dignitary is one of your superiors who makes you nervous. The list of superiors who make you nervous in fact includes all of your superiors. It includes many of your inferiors as well.

He tells you to forget the ring. You failed your mission, and you are never going to find it. There is a new mission. You say oh? He says yeah. And let go of the goddamn rabbit. You say ok, but don't actually let go.

You say you will be happy to begin the new mission very soon. But first there is this pretty blue tornado ahead you were meaning to investigate. Perhaps other locals it has attracted will know something about the ring? He says for the love of god, will you forget about the tornado and the ring. You don't say anything and look longingly at the tornado again. He says fine, if you really must examine a meaningless and extraordinarily dangerous exhibit of meteorological phenomena, then go ahead. But be ready to embark on the mission not a moment later. You say alright, and wonder what you should do to prepare. He asks if you have a good winter hat.

You nearly drop the radio in excitement.

Jack: Wait.

There. Now that those wheels are in motion, you guess you can put your mind at ease for a while. You find nothing quite so troubling as the intrusion of a positive emotion.

You are momentarily afforded the peace of mind to resume a dull, quiet life of semi-restrained murder. Maybe you will wait here and see if the boy shows up. It's reasonable to assume he will seek these adults. Certainly easier to let him come to you than follow an untraceable scent. Or maybe you will take a look inside this castle. Perhaps there are survivors here fit for the offing? You guess that could serve some amusement.
You wonder if it will always be like this. What sort of future does a new god have to look forward to? Will this malaise follow you for eternity? Will you be perpetually tempted to destroy everything you see, knowing that in just a few moments of recklessness, you will be left with nothing else to destroy forever? What will eternity feel like when a single moment of boredom feels like an eternity unto itself?

You wish you could consult the clouds for answers. But they never show you anything. The reckoning can't wipe this place out soon enough.

Be future Jack Noir.

You are now future Jack Noir.

Presently, you are trapped in a single moment, which increasingly feels like an eternity. Your boredom is surpassed only by your all consuming rage and contempt for existence itself.

Hours ago, you entered an unfamiliar session. You killed a thousand robotic assailants. You destroyed twelve planets with ease, methodically and cyclically, like a single stained hand of a defective clock smearing each number it passes. You reduced Prospit and Derse to dust, and murdered a whole bunch of alien kids in yellow and purple pajamas. Your warpath of absolute devastation had only begun to be blazed; there were still miles and bloody miles to send forth. But when the dust of Derse settled, this infuriating fairy appeared out of thin air and froze you in time. But she can't keep you like this forever. And when she finally lets you go, you will be ready.

What will you do?

Aside from nothing, that is.

Jack: Wait.

[Image description: Jack flashes green and white.]

You attempt to be patient.

You fail miserably.

Be Aradia.

[Image description: Aradia glares at him triumphantly.]

You are now the Maid of Time, recently resurrected from the crypt of Derse. Your name is Aradia Megido, and for the first time in your life, you feel truly alive.

You have just incapacitated Jack Noir with a spell. But a demon so powerful requires your full concentration to subdue. He will break free any moment. You may release him, and die now. Or you may continue to hold him, and die later.

What will you do?

Aside from die, that is.

Aradia: Release him.
Aradia releases him. At the same moment, she lunges past him and disappears. Jack finishes his downward swing, but it doesn't hit anything and he stops. A question mark appears over his head.

Next

A green dot glows in a black void.

Next

It zooms in. It's a green sun. Aradia hovers near it.

You're done with dying.

Aradia closes her eyes and smiles as she basks in the light of the green sun.

Soon, friends will arrive. They will need your help.

She flies towards a dream bubble, leaving a red trail behind her.

She observes the bubble from just outside it.

Whose memory is this?

Next

She gets closer. It's full of broken Aradiabots and a single whole one.

It appears to be yours. At least, that's how it begins.

Aradia: Enter bubble.

Jack noir stands in the center of the grey frog platform that has the troll's exit door on it. He's wreathed in green fire that coils into a tight spiral on the ground around him. Broken Aradiabots float around the platform, along with Alive Aradia.

Jack glares up at one of the few whole Aradiabots. A second image shows her lunging towards him.

Wait a minute.

This is not specifically your memory.

It's hers.

Next

That aradiabot pulls out her music box time machines, then disappears in a flash.

Aradia, alive on Alternia, looks up from her archeology as a meteor crashes a short distance from her house. Her lusus looks towards it as well.

Next

Aradia's lusus watches as Aradia picks a black bag up and skips off towards the meteor.

Next

Aradia stands on the edge of a hole the meteor punched into a subterranean cavern filled with pink stalactites.

Next

Aradia cracks her whip down into the hole. A second image shows it grabbing onto a stalactite.

Next

She swoops down onto the top of a frog temple. A second image shows her staring down at the impact crater of the meteor.

Next

It zooms out. The frog temple she's standing on is the one she will deface in the future and use the head of for prototyping. West of it, there is a still smoking crater.

Next

She approaches the crater. A second image shows a ripped apart Cal and the remnants of an aradiabot.

sorry to interrupt i wanted to give you both the chance to remember but it doesn't look like this is

A.A.: is it coming back yet
T.A.: is what coming back, who are you?
whoa hold on.
why am i talking like you suddenly?
(blue) A.A.: this is a memory in a dream bubble
A.A.: thats right!
T.A.: oh.
that doesn't really answer my question, but ok.
(blue) A.A.: you changed your voice because you remembered like i did
T.A.: remembered what?
(blue) A.A.: that i died this is my memory and also hers but i went on to become the robot whose remains are in this crater whereas she did not i dont actually know her story or how she got here but for me this was the end of the road
this is the afterlife
T.A.: well, shit.
so then i guess i'm dead too?
A.A.: nope!

A.A.: you are just asleep
you are also blind!
T.A.: holy shit, i can't see!
A.A.: yes thats what being blind means
T.A.: wow, awesome! way to be awesomely sympathetic too my terrible new problem, a.a.
A.A.: sollux will you shut up and stop being so tragic for once you knew this was going to happen! your prophecies of personal doom were practically all you ever talked about i think you were looking forward to this honestly (blue) A.A.: shes right
T.A.: i can't believe this, it's almost as if i'm getting...
Double Teamed.
(troll wearing black sunglasses emoji)
damn.
that didn't feel right at all, i think i might have to retire the whole bifurcation gimmick, puns and all.
actually that is kind of a relief, maybe you're right, i'm feeling better about this already.
A.A.: great!
you should be able to relax now that youve been released from the curse of your vision twofold just like you said youd be you are now merely doomed!
T.A.: oh.
that's... awesome?
(blue) A.A.: being doomed isn't that bad i spent most of my life that way remember at least you have the luxury of understanding and the best part about being doomed is you only have to put up with it until you die
A.A.: that's the spirit hahaha

[Note: From this point, blue Aradia doesn't use her quirk anymore.]

(blue) A.A.: actually i guess i don't have to keep talking like im doomed anymore do i
A.A.: nope (smiley face)
T.A.: this is so weird, what am i even listening to here.
(wide eyed blank face)
Fuck, I cannot believe I just made that face.
(blue) A.A.: hahahahaha!
A.A.: hahahahaha!
T.A.: god dammit.
oh yeah, also...
why the fuck are my teeth missing?
A.A.: i dont know?
T.A.: ok, well, great, glad we got to the fucking bottom of that mystery.
myssssssstery. mystery. mySSSthSSSStery. mysterymysterymystery.
man, i can't even lisp anymore if i try.
please don't laugh, i can tell you are both enjoying this, i can smell it using my new blind guy nose powers.
(blue) A.A.: really?
T.A.: no not literally, i was joking. i mean not yet. maybe i'll ask tz about it when i wake up though.
hey what was that noise?
A.A.: what noise?
T.A.: i think someone else is here.
A.A.: oh its jade!
T.A.: jade?? wtf.
(blue) A.A.: whos jade
A.A.: shes one of the humans we met after you died big deal i guess.

G.G.: oh no!
i can leave
A.A.: no dont!
sollux try to be polite
there is no reason at all for you to feel hostile toward them anymore jade is very nice and she did nothing wrong none of them did so when you wake up maybe you should try to reconcile with them or at the very least just say hello
T.A.: did you?
A.A.: did i what
T.A.: be nice to them or whatever before you exploded.
A.A.: well no
but i should have!
i did with you before i left didnt i T.A.: i guess so.
G.G.: (gasping face)
(blue) A.A.: this is awkward
A.A.: shush you!
(blue) A.A.: what actually happened after i died it sounds complicated A.A.: it is!
ill get you up to speed i promise but guys come on lets not scare away our guest (blue) A.A.: ok then ill shut up i think one aradia saying things is more than enough probably T.A.: you can say that again heheheheheh.
but i mean, don't say it again literally, because that's kind of the whole point, and would completely contradi...
A.A.: oh my god shut up!
G.G.: its ok! i can take another nap later when you guys arent busy...
A.A.: no jade its ok
please stay! im curious about why you are here
G.G.: well...
i have just been enjoying these little naps more and more lately!
each time i go to sleep i meet more new people and learn so much but i still cant get karkat to take a nap, boy talk about a guy who is anti nap!
T.A.: ahhahah, yeah, what a douche!
G.G.: seeeeeriously!
he is the douchiest of crabby crabs who ever douched a big douchey crab T.A.: lol.
G.G.: but yeah, its been fun, i should really thank feferi again for setting it up so we could meet like this!
T.A.: wait, ff is here?
G.G.: yup!
T.A.: oh god, why didn't that occur to me, where is she??
G.G.: ummm probably in another bubble but youll find her! maybe during your next nap...
T.A.: well shit, why can't i just go glub around out there in the ring and find her now?
i mean, aside from the fact that i'm blind and completely useless.
A.A.: navigating between bubbles is difficult here its better to drift between them naturally as they intersect not spatially but through common points in memory to navigate the furthest ring you need to have mastered the flow of time!
that is why i am here
i am alive again so i may assist the dead in this way
T.A.: huh.
A.A.: jade tell me have you seen me here before? i mean me dressed like i am now wearing my godhood
G.G.: yeah!
you were really nice and helpful
T.A.: wait, what, you're wearing a godhood?
why didn't you tell me that, what gives? or that you came back to life??
A.A.: im wearing a hood and have butterfly wings what else would you like to know
T.A.: man, being blind is dumb, can i like grope you or something to get up to date on your appearance, would that be weird?
A.A.: yes sollux that would probably be pretty weird
G.G.: i think your outfit looks so cute! i love your wings too
A.A.: thank you your outfit is quite spiffy too i like that skirt a lot especially is is that a skirt?
G.G.: i am not sure (gasping face)
T.A.: /Rolling my eyes.
is what i would be doing if that were possible.
A.A.: shhh!
T.A.: aa come on you were making a point.
A.A.: yes ok
you see those encounters you had with me before have not happened for me yet because ive only just arrived time follows strange paths here as does space if you travel a great enough distance you may discover you are also traveling either backwards or forwards in time as well!
just as if you stay in one place for too long the geometry of space surrounding you will become unreliable
you may swat the air to your left and discover you have just slapped yourself!
the only way to make sense of it is to understand either property very well and since i am new here i have some learning to do just like everyone else but i do know one thing
G.G.: what!
A.A.: i knew that the first bubble i would enter would be an important one for us to visit
T.A.: what's so important about it?
A.A.: hang on we are moving on to a new memory hold that thought

pesterlog
A.A.: it is important because it will help us begin to understand why we are all here
T.A.: what do you mean why we are all here?
you mean in the afterlife? that's easy.
because she's asleep, she's dead, you're alive, and i'm blind, couldn't be simpler.
A.A.: no no not why we are in this bubble now but why we all exist in the first place and why we all went on this adventure together T.A.: oh, that.
A.A.: there is much to understand and i believe it all begins with one sequence of events watching will help those who've passed to understand the purpose of their sacrifice and those still living to understand what must be done to complete the journey still ahead.

we will let the memories lead the way are you guys ready?

G.G.: i am ready!

A.A.: ok let's allow the next memory to take shape

i believe it is kanayas

i will reprise my role in a conversation i had with her shortly after i discovered the ruins everybody hide and try not to spoil it for her until she remembers!

Next

pesterlog

A.A.: hey kanaya

there is something i want to give you

G.A.: Oh Really

A.A.: yes its something very odd i found when i discovered the ruins the other night i dont know what its archeological significance is yet but i suspect you will be able to repair it!

G.A.: This Is A Dream Isn't It

A.A.: (wide eyed blank face) wow!

uh i mean

(wide eyed blank face)

wow

you figured that out very fast!

G.A.: It Seemed Obvious

Either I'm Sleeping Or I'm Dead Which Is It

A.A.: oh i am sure you are alive

you are unconscious now and will likely wake up as your new self very soon

G.A.: My New Self

A.A.: yes

you are undergoing a metamorphosis which you have been groomed for since you were very young much like i was for my various personal iterations including this one

G.A.: You Mean

Being A Ghost And Then A Frog And Then A Robot And Then A Fairy

A.A.: yes!

but it sure sounds silly when you list them all like that

G.A.: Kind Of

What Do You Mean We Have Been Groomed

A.A.: wellllll that is what we are about to find out!
if you will oblige us by continuing with this memory

G.A.: Okay
What Do I Do
A.A.: why dont we go through this conversation again to the best of our recollection but i guess rather than acting it out we can just talk about it the old fashioned way
G.A.: Was What We Were Attempting Before Not Old Fashioned
A.A.: i have no idea
G.A.: It Seems To Me The Nature Of The Afterlife Is Probably Very Old Fashioned Maybe Even The Most Old Fashioned A Thing Can Get
A.A.: haha yeah you know what i mean though G.A.: Yes Then
This Was When You Were About To Give Me That Unusual Gift From The Ruins
A.A.: yes
i then had sollux deliver the pieces to you so you could stitch it back up sollux that is your cue!
come out and play the part
T.A.: so we don't have to hide anymore?
A.A.: no of course not!
obviously the jig is up everyone can come out now
G.G.: yay!

A.A.: no guys come on this isnt that complicated!
we are just revisiting the past just like we would if we were talking about it this story does involve a role playing game but not in that way!

G.G.: yes but you probably havent yet not from your perspective.... i could not help but overhear you are asleep now

Is He Relevant In Some Way
G.G.: guys why do you have daves puppet?
what is going on here!
G.A.: Yes Aradia It Seems You Have Some Foreknowledge Of This Narrative Maybe You Can Tell Us Why Any Of This Is Important
A.A.: this is only a piece of the story the other pieces will fall into place with successive memories and it will all become clear but yes alright i will eliminate some suspense and try to serve as a better guide on this tour through the catacombs of our collective subconscious the separate tunnels we once traveled in the dark as individuals we now retrace together with a torch on the walls we illuminate the runes which describe a convoluted origin story an origin we participated in we were spurred to these actions by that which was being originated and incited to acts of revenge as we were turned against each other

Be Scratch.

You once again try to be Doc Scratch, and fail spectacularly. You can't be him no matter how hard you try. It is impossible.

[Note: Doc Scratch is written in bright green, except for the o, which is written in white.]

[In fact, I think it would be for the best if I commandeered the narrative completely for a while. I trust you won't mind if I speak in white. It's not actually negotiable, but as a courtesy I will enclose my words between a pair of visually audible brackets.

I am doing this because I can.]

o

[Image description: Doc Scratch reaches up and adjusts his bow tie.]
My apartment doesn't have a doorbell. Why would an omniscient fellow need to be alerted to the presence of a visitor? I know he will be right on time. Which is to say, early. And if I did have a doorbell, you would have just witnessed it ring.

He is already here.

My door is not fitted with a peephole either. Those without eyes or without limits to their knowledge have no need for peeping, and I am without either. I have never once peeped at or through something, and I doubt I ever will.

Apertures built into physical surfaces to reveal what's hidden behind them are for those with particular handicaps. They are for those lacking advanced vision to render the opaque permeable to light, or those lacking advanced knowledge to render the concealed information irrelevant, or both. They are for people who I call suckers.

I know the identity of anyone who stands behind this door, even in those cases where I have not extended an invitation to the visitor personally. Pardon me while I let Jack inside.

Did you not believe it would be Jack? Who else would it be? Someone who would have suspected anyone else is a person I would also describe as a sucker.

Haa haa.

Hee hee.

Hoo hoo.

Hello, Slick. Won't you please ent...

Did you not believe it would be Jack? Who else would it be? Someone who would have suspected anyone else is a person I would also describe as a sucker.

Haa haa.

Hee hee.

Hoo hoo.

Hello, Slick. Won't you please ent...

Slick clocks Scratch in the head with the cane.

Oh for heaven's sake.

Slick? Which would you prefer I call you? It's one of the strange points of uncertainty which surrounds you. Maybe it is that you don't particularly care. Your flair is for the plain and serviceable, isn't it? Not much of your vanity is tied up in a name, I'd guess.

Not going to tell me? Fine, I won't tell you my name either.

Well, I might. If you would just show some manners and stop hitting me with that ridiculous horse hitcher. I won't crack no matter how senseless the drubbing. If only it were that simple.

You're not going to stop, are you. It will be very difficult to discuss our points of mutual interest like this. I was prepared to go about it in a civilized way, even though I knew very well I would spend the first several minutes of our meeting sitting on the floor while being flogged. I have even prepared a bowl of candy for you, which I know you will enjoy. Courtesy is important, Jack.

Do you have anything at all to say? Any form of communication you care to attempt beyond the sound iron makes against my head repeatedly?

No, of course not.

[Image description: Scratch bends the cane into a right angle while Slick glares at him.]

[What's that? I see. You think you already know my name. You do not know my real name, Jack, just as none of your adversaries on this planet know yours. You only know my nickname.

It's a good nickname too. Befitting of the passive gunslinger charged with initiating the break. I am my master's weapon. His soldier in a war of one bullet fired. But when that bullet clears the barrel, it won't be my finger on the trigger. I'm a facilitator, not an assassin.]

[Image description: Scratch hands the cane back to Slick, who looks at it sadly. It's been bent into a knot.]

[Here.

Jack, why don't you go help yourself to some candy over there on the table? There is something I need to take care of before we continue. I won't be long.]

[Image description: A white bowl full of licorice scotty dogs sits on a green table.]

[Image description: Slick starts shoveling handfuls of scotty dogs into his pocket.]

[Yes, good. Placate yourself with the scottie dogs, Slick. My supply is bottomless. I am an excellent host.]

[When I am finished with this minor interruption, we will resume our gentlemanly negotiation. I] will proceed to beat you severely until you agree to do what I ask. I trust you won't take it personally.]

[Image description: Slick stands by the typewriter, which has a Rose alert over it. His jacket is hung from the Skaia model and Jack watches from near the chair with the gun on it.]

[Now please excuse me. I have to talk to a teenage girl from another universe.]

Be teenage girl from another universe.

[Image description: Rose sits on the platform on LoHaC. Her hubtop has a Jade alert and a breath symbol alert. She's still surrounded by consorts, though they're all wearing various bedsheets now.]

You cannot be a teenage girl from another universe, because you are too busy being a teenage girl from this universe. You are busy being Rose Lalonde. Completely preoccupied with it, in fact.

So preoccupied, you have been neglecting messages from some of your friends who are trying to contact you. But you have a lot of important stuff to do. You will get back to them later.

Rose: Pester informant.

[Image description: Rose smirks at her computer, which has a blank alert over it. A blue lizard holds a magic cue ball next to her.]

pesterlog
T.T.: It's quite warm here on Lohac.
I think I've been patient enough.
When will I receive further instruction?
(question mark): Now.
T.T.: So,
I could have contacted you at any time?
(question mark): No.
Only now.
T.T.: I came away with the impression from our last conversation that our next would take place on your invitation.
I was being polite by waiting.
(question mark): Your inevitable impatience caused you to contact me again.
Inevitability is my invitation.
T.T.: That's pretty smug.
(question mark): I am right to be smug. I am omniscient, extremely powerful, and very charming.
T.T.: Well,
Two out of three isn't bad.
Can you use your limitless intelligence to figure out which ones I mean?
(question mark): That was clever.
If I plead ignorance to the fact that you are denying my charisma, it invalidates my claim of omniscience.
But if I must adhere to my all knowing status, it forces me to validate the unfortunate reality that you are feigning the opinion that my demeanor is unpalatable.
Not that it matters, because I have all three qualities and you know it.
T.T.: This is stupid.
Could we get to the point?
We should hurry this along. My visitor is beginning to set things on fire.

T.T.: You have a visitor?

Who?

T.T.: Some guy.

I was joking anyway. I am not in a hurry at all.

T.T.: You tell jokes?

T.T.: So, your visitor isn't setting anything on fire then?

T.T.: I'm really not getting this joke.

T.T.: I think if you're going to risk tarnishing your record of honesty, you should probably get better material.

T.T.: Ok.

T.T.: I thought you didn't lie. Aren't jokes essentially humorous lies?

At least, those like the one you just attempted.

T.T.: Jokes are only temporary lies.

If the falsehood is never exposed, there is no punchline. If the punchline is never delivered, the lie is sealed forever, regardless of initial humorous intent. Lies are not funny.

T.T.: I think if you're going to risk tarnishing your record of honesty, you should probably get better material.

T.T.: My joke was objectively funny. Who would know better than I?

T.T.: Ok.

T.T.: I'm starting to change my mind.

T.T.: Yes. I think your joke was funny in retrospect. Actually, your whole shtick is pretty good. I'm warming up to it.

T.T.: Was the assurance you just made a prank or a joke?

T.T.: Was that?

T.T.: Yes.

T.T.: The truth?
(question mark): Yes.
T.T.: Ok.
Were you serious about wanting to die?
(question mark): Yes.
T.T.: Why?
(question mark): I'll tell you later.
T.T.: Why?
(question mark): Because you asked.
T.T.: But why not now?
(question mark): Because that piece of information would not fit elegantly into the sequence of our exchange at this moment.
T.T.: Then you know how this entire conversation will go?
(question mark): Yes.
T.T.: Is that true of all conversations you have?
(question mark): Yes. Until, briefly, I don't. But the dark spots never last long. The truth disguises itself to me sometimes which can be mildly frustrating, but it usually reveals itself quickly, much as if a punchline was delivered. It's a humorous dialogue I have with reality, and it is very amusing.
T.T.: Then why do you bother with the conversations? Obligation to predestination, as usual?
(question mark): There is no obligation.
It's a pleasure.
T.T.: It is?
(question mark): I've always had a soft spot for young ladies.
T.T.: Hmm.
That's a little creepy.
(question mark): No it's not.
T.T.: Yes it is.
(question mark): No it's not.
T.T.: It kind of is.
(question mark): I have looked into the future and determined that we would continue in this manner pointlessly for some time, so I am putting an end to it here.
T.T.: That doesn't make sense.
Was that the other joke?
(question mark): Yes.
(question mark): Thank you.
T.T.: How young are the ladies you typically take a shining to?
And does this mean you are attracted to me?
Suddenly this conversation is kind of terrible.
(question mark): Of course I am not. Not in the way you mean.
And anyway, you are applying standards of conduct frowned upon for your kind which make no sense to apply to me.
I am an immortal entity with a large cue ball for a head, and no biological means of reproduction.
T.T.: ... Really.
(question mark): Also, if you were millions of years old, you would find that nearly every lady you encounter is quite young, relatively speaking.
There should be no reason for you to feel uncomfortable with this interaction. Try to think of me as one of your kindly human uncle figures.
In fact, if I were in your presence now, I would offer you candy to prove it.
T.T.: Oh my god.
(question mark): What?
T.T.: Can we talk about the scratch instead of this?
(question mark): Yes.

Next

[Image description: Rose looks towards the Beat Mesa, which is lit from below by the lava lake.]

pesterlog

(question mark): You are situated near the game construct supplied by your session for causing the Scratch, yes?
T.T.: Are you actually asking?
(question mark): No.
That was a fact, and then a question mark.
T.T.: Ah.
Well, yes, I am.
It's a large plateau shaped like a record. It's called the Beat Mesa.
(question mark): I know.
T.T.: Is the game construct different in other sessions?
(question mark): Yes.
It will always be an edifice of similarly cryptic design, located on the planet that is home to the Hero of Time.
(question mark): Its environment dictates the nature of its construction. Its power is dangerous, and is meant to be utilized only in emergencies such as yours.
T.T.: You mean, in sessions where victory is no longer possible?
(question mark): Yes.
T.T.: Due to creating an unstoppable adversary? Who triggers the reckoning prematurely?
Is that sort of emergency common?
(question mark): No.
Failure is common. But the composition of yours is quite atypical.
T.T.: Ok.
Then, it's like a panic button for the players to push once they realize the cause is lost.
(question mark): Yes, but causing the Scratch is not an easy task either.
The construct must be destroyed in a very specific way to release its energy.
The keeper of my ectobiological father began the process.
It must be finished.
T.T.: Who?
(question mark): The guardian of the Knight of Time.
T.T.: Dave's bro?
(question mark): Yes.
T.T.: How do I finish it?
(question mark): You don't.
Not you personally. Another will. You have something more important to attend to, remember?
T.T.: Oh, right.
The Green...
Wait.
The Green Sun.

[Note: The Green Sun is written in bright green and wavers slightly.]

(question mark): Yes.
T.T.: I'd planned to take care of that later, once John had retrieved the Tumor.
(question mark): Tumor.

[Note: When scratch says Tumor, it's in black. Rose said it in purple.]
T.T.: Whatever.
(question mark): Your plan will have to change.
You aren't ready to cause the Scratch yet.
Like I said, it's difficult.
T.T.: What will the one who does it have to do? I should let them know.
(question mark): He will have to scratch the surface of the plateau across its full diameter.
T.T.: I see.
This terminology can be very literal sometimes.
(question mark): You will require a certain needle to create a breach in the surface that will be adequate.
T.T.: I have needles.
(question mark): Your needles won't suffice.
T.T.: Then where do I get ones that will?
(question mark): Again, you won't. This task is out of your hands.
The needles must be acquired from the denizen of the Witch of Space.
Her quills are very large and potent. They will be able to cause the Scratch.
T.T.: This really seems more elaborate than you lead me to believe.
(question mark): I didn't lead you to believe anything.
I told you to find the construct and await advisement on the Scratch. The plans you were making were based on assumptions and fabrications of your imagination. You were writing more stories, much like those about your false magical men.
T.T.: I wish what I'd written in my private journals could be confined to your dark spots.
(question mark): I don't. I find your stories entertaining.
T.T.: You're being creepy again.
(question mark): No I'm not.
Besides, the White King agrees with me.
T.T.: What?
(question mark): For a Seer, your vision of events surrounding you is rather limited. It's charming.
T.T.: Just,
Please stop complimenting me.
(question mark): No.

[Image description: It shows the mesa from above. Lava swirls into a red spiral around it. There's a faint, spiderwebbing crack on the left edge. Below it, it shows it from a different angle. The crack shoots out beams of light and the edge of the mesa itself is wreathed in flame.]

pesterlog
T.T.: Fine.
Then please at least try to sound more sarcastic when you do it.
(question mark): Oh sure, I am really going to do that. Yes, very likely.
T.T.: ...
Then the Scratch will be implemented later, by either John or Dave I presume?
You used a male pronoun.
(question mark): Yes.
T.T.: I guess it makes sense that it would happen later. My understanding is that Jack will not be banished from this session until near the end of the reckoning.
(question mark): Yes, Jack will exit your session later, but this has nothing to do with the Scratch. Not directly, as you imply.
T.T.: I don't understand.
I thought that was the point of the Scratch, to open a rift in spacetime as it were, and banish him into the trolls' session.

(question mark): No.

hat is not the purpose of the Scratch at all. The Scratch does not open a rift in spacetime.

T.T.: Hmm.

Then why have you directed me to cause it?

Does it have something to do with enabling you to die?

(question mark): No. Not directly.

The Scratch has nothing more to do with my death than any other single event ultimately contributing to my demise.

T.T.: I think it's disingenuous for you to behave as if I have not been misled.

You say you don't lie, but what about lies of omission?

(question mark): Lies of omission do not exist.

The concept is a very human one. It is the product of your story writing again. You have written a story about the truth, making emotional demands of it, and in particular, of those in possession of it.

Your demands are based on a feeling of entitlement to the facts, which is very childish. You can never know all of the facts. Only I can.

And since it's impossible for me to reveal all facts to you, it is my discretion alone that decides which facts will be revealed in the finite time we have.

If I do not volunteer information you deem critical to your fate, it possibly means that I am a scoundrel, but it does not mean that I am a liar. And it certainly means you did not ask the right questions.

One can make either true statements or false statements about reality. All of the statements I make are true.

T.T.: Unless you're joking.

(question mark): Yes.

T.T.: Haa haa, hee hee, hoo hoo?

(question mark): Exactly.

T.T.: Then I guess I'll start asking better questions.

(question mark): Good.

I will make a Seer of you yet.

T.T.: Will you?

(question mark): Yes.

You can start by shoring up the reliability of your sources. You proceeded to question me believing you understood the purpose of the Scratch. You received your information about it from trolls. I assure you that in most ways, the trolls are as confused about everything as you are.

What exactly does the Scratch do, then?

(question mark): It resets the game.

T.T.: Oh.

That's it?

(question mark): Yes.

T.T.: Then,

We all start from the beginning again? When John entered?

(question mark): No.

The release of temporal energy will be quite massive.

This is a hard reset. It will reboot the conditions in your universe well before you began playing the game.

You will have lived different lives after the reset. The different initial conditions will ideally lead to a more favorable scenario in the new session.

Unfortunately, you will have no memory of anything that has happened in the session you are in now.
T.T.: What will happen to us? Everyone in this session now?

(question mark): You will all cease to exist completely if you remain here during the Scratch.

T.T.: This seems familiar.

It reminds me of when Dave and I were trapped in the doomed timeline, and he left to change the past.

The timeline ceased to exist, along with my dream self, who in a way became merged with my dream self of this timeline. I kept some of her memories.

Is the situation similar?

(question mark): Similar, but more severe.

Since this timeline will undergo such a violent upheaval, such a merger of memory cannot happen.

You will be resigned to absolute oblivion.

Unless you can discover a way to preserve yourselves.

But it's not really my place to advise you on that.

After you have dealt with the Scratch and the sun, what happens to you is not any of my business.

Next

[Image description: Rose keeps typing at her computer. The consort holding the cue ball holds it out to her in a trembling hand.]

pesterlog

T.T.: Then can you at least tell me if we will be successful in preserving ourselves after the reset?

(question mark): I don't particularly enjoy spoiling things for people when unnecessary.

I find speaking in a discreet color helps avoid this.

T.T.: So if the Scratch isn't specifically meant to banish Jack from the session,
And our quest to destroy the sun is meant to kill him,

Why is the reset necessary at all, especially if it means oblivion for us?

(question mark): Because you cannot achieve the ultimate reward in this session.

Your battlefield is cancerous, and the reckoning will destroy it prematurely regardless.

By resetting, you will create a session which can bear the fruit of a new universe, even if you will not be the ones to claim the reward.

Don't you want to fulfill your purpose?

T.T.: I guess.

But it's a little disheartening to learn I'm now faced with not one, but two suicide missions at once.

One to destroy Jack's power source and defend all of existence, and another to ensure our cosmic progeny at the price of oblivion.

(question mark): That frames the dual objectives accurately.

But if you are inventive, you may find a way to survive the reset and participate in the renewed session.

It's up to you.

Just as it's up to you to face the decision to claim immortality before you enter your creation.

T.T.: Immortality?

(question mark): Yes.

T.T.: Do you mean ascending to the god tier?

(question mark): Yes.

T.T.: I have reason to believe that I won't.

The trolls have not indicated I will die on my Quest Bed, or that any of us will aside from John.

Instead I've been given a more troubling and ambiguous forecast.

(question mark): What have I said about confirming the reliability of your sources?

T.T.: Are you saying I will?

(question mark): No.

T.T.: Oh.
Well, will I?
(question mark): It seems you'd like me to do some more fortune telling.
T.T.: Fine.
Maybe this question will suit you better.
Is it probable?
(question mark): That's a strange question to ask someone who is omniscient and therefore knows outcomes with one hundred percent certainty.
I like it.
T.T.: Then what's your answer?
(question mark): You have exactly a fifty percent chance of ascending to the god tier.
T.T.: That's a strange answer.
(question mark): I know.
T.T.: Why such a precise probability?
(question mark): Because, much like the decisions you must face to complete your dual suicide missions, you have two ways of achieving godhood to choose from.
T.T.: Two ways?
By dying on the Quest Bed on my planet, and some other way?
(question mark): Yes.
T.T.: Is there another Quest Bed somewhere?
(question mark): Yes. Good guess, Seer.
T.T.: Where?
(question mark): What difference does it make? You already know where the first one is. You have the choice to go there right now and take your own life.
T.T.: That's true.
(question mark): Of course it is.
T.T.: You mentioned immortality.
Godhood makes one immortal?
(question mark): Yes.
T.T.: A god tier will live forever, with no caveats?
(question mark): No.
One will live forever, unless killed.
The death must be either heroic or just.
T.T.: How are those terms defined?
(question mark): Broadly, mysteriously, and according to the case of the individual.
One may be killed by opposing a corrupt adversary and die for a just cause, as through martyrdom, for instance. This would be heroic.
Or one may be subject to corruption, and slain by a hero. This would be just.
T.T.: Which sort of death will you have when I destroy the sun?
(question mark): Neither. I'm not a god.
I'm a guardian, a servant, and a weapon.
I have power and knowledge far surpassing a god.
But I am not one.
T.T.: Is this when you are going to tell me why you want to die?
(question mark): Yes.
T.T.: I sense it's not just because you're getting bored with immortality.
(question mark): That's good. Your vision is becoming clearer.
T.T.: Then why?
(question mark): My master can't enter this universe until I am killed.
Such is the nature of the break.
T.T.: That almost sounds like martyrdom. Are you sure it won't be a hero's death?
(question mark): Quite sure.
My master is a very evil man.
T.T.: Who is he?
(question mark): I won't tell you his name.
but he goes by the title, Lord English.

[Note: Lord English is written in bright green with the o as a billiards ball flicking between each one in the set.]

Next

[Image description: Rose looks down at her laptop with her cue ball bearing consort at her side. She's framed by the lapels of the massive green overcoat Hussie used to block the fourth wall.]

pesterlog
T.T.: This doesn't sound like an especially admirable objective. Releasing an evil man, who is presumably more powerful than you, an already omnipotent being.
Am I right?
(question mark): You are right about both. It is not admirable, and he is considerably more powerful.
But you must decide which objective is more important.
You may decide to attempt to destroy the sun and end my life. This will neutralize Jack, who is also much more powerful and dangerous than myself by virtue of the ring he wears in addition to drawing energy from the same sun as I. He poses a significant threat to reality.
T.T.: But in the process of killing him and you, I release your master, who is just as deadly?
(question mark): He's more deadly.
But the danger he poses is sanctioned by paradox space.
It is a known quantity. His very existence in a universe will mean it will inevitably be torn apart.
But there are rules to his entry, and his grim procession through paradox space is rather orderly.
The present equilibrium has accounted for him, and will continue to.
Jack however is a loose cannon. He will not stop until he destroys everything he encounters.
Additionally, his existence is your responsibility.
T.T.: Then I guess I don't have a choice.
(question mark): You do.
But also know this.
Refusing to venture out to destroy the sun in no way spares anyone from my master regardless.
It is certainly true that destroying it will end my life.
And it is certainly true that The Tumor you will deliver to its location has enough power to destroy it completely.

[Note: The Tumor is written in black.]

But it is not the only way to kill me.
It is simply a way I have suggested to you, which doubles as a way to disarm Jack, should you choose to go through with it.
Instances of myself have spawned in countless universes, and my objective is always the same.
I have never once failed to complete this objective, and I never will.
There is nothing noble about taking a course of action you believe would prevent his arrival, because that is impossible.
He will come.
In fact, he is already here.
T.T.: Are you saying that I will succeed in the mission to destroy the sun?
(question mark): Are you asking for another palm reading?
T.T.: ...
(question mark): You seem rather keen on acquiring a fortune from me considering you are the one with the crystal ball.
T.T.: I'm just trying to ask as many questions as I can. It's the only way to find the dark spots in your obstinacy.
(question mark): I've been very helpful. And I will continue to be.
I myself do not care to be an oracle. But I can graciously supply you with one.
T.T.: Can you?
(question mark): An eager consort has brought you one of my seeds. It appears you have amassed followers who wish to please you. How fortuitous.
T.T.: Your seeds?
(question mark): The white orb.
T.T.: Oh. The cue ball. How did I not notice this?
(question mark): It will accurately answer any question a curious girl can pose. Provided she can see through the surface to read its reply.
T.T.: Hmm.
Is that possible?
(question mark): Is it, Seer?
Given your title and all the tools of prognostication at your disposal, it seems to me I should be the one asking you the questions.

Next

[Image description: Rose holds the cue ball and looks towards it. Her skin is dark grey.]

pesterlog
T.T.: How can I see through it?
(question mark): It seems you weren't listening, so I will state this again in the form of a question. Don't you think I should be asking the questions from now on?
T.T.: Yes, if you wanted to be disingenuous and irritating.
(question mark): Don't you think a clever person should be able to acquire information from someone who only asks questions?
T.T.: Then it's a challenge!
I pass.
(question mark): Do you have a choice? What if I'm feeling a bit stubborn?
T.T.: Ok, so what you mean is I should continue humoring your leading questions until you happen to ask certain rhetorical questions that contain information I need.
(question mark): Was that a question?
T.T.: That was a fact, and then a period.
(question mark): How does a Seer see?
T.T.: ...
With a crystal ball?
I already considered that. I don't think I can get the focus of the ball to "zoom in" tight enough on the cue ball's enclosure to read the answers.
(question mark): How else does she see?
T.T.: By other magical means, I guess.
Should I use magic?
(question mark): Do you believe in magic?
T.T.: Magic is real.
I've been using it.
(question mark): Are you sure?
T.T.: Use whatever word you want to describe it. I have magic wands, they are very powerful, and they allow me to be magic. Your questions are silly.
(question mark): What makes you convinced the wands are responsible for your abilities?
T.T.: Because I did not have the abilities before I made them.
(question mark): Could this be circumstantial?
T.T.: Could it?
(question mark): Is there an echo?
T.T.: Is there an echo?
(question mark): Hee hee?
T.T.: I don't know what you're getting at.
How about another leading question?
(question mark): What did you combine to make those wands?
T.T.: Some stuff.
(question mark): Knitting needles?
An inexpensive figurine of some fictional fellow with long whiskers?
A simple textbook on the zoologically dubious?
Why would this mundane combination of objects grant a child such an alarming mastery over dark forces all at once?
T.T.: I'm guessing this is one of the rhetorical questions meant to be informative.
So then, my answer should affirm how ridiculous that sounds, shouldn't it?
(question mark): Maybe?
T.T.: That wasn't even a question.
(question mark): Yes it was?
T.T.: Ok. Magic is fake, the wands are useless toys, and there is something else going on. Next question???
(question mark): Would it be so difficult to believe the power you've found to devastate your planet and create shortcuts through your session is not entirely by your own device?
Would it be so difficult to believe a young lady could be unwittingly apprenticed by more powerful entities who meant her potential to be realized later through some arbitrary trigger?
What would you say if I said a dutiful girl raised in the daylight was protected by a bulb-headed guardian, and learned to glow in the dark after death?
What would you say if I said a vengeful boy on a path of nihilism was taken under the wings of fearsome angels, and learned to destroy hope with their light?
What would you say if I said a reserved girl enamored by what dwelt in shadow was selected by the horrorterrors for service, and did their bidding at every step while convinced of her own autonomy?
T.T.: What would I say to those short fables?
Not much, except I gather the third is a story about me, and that there's a lesson you'd like me to take from it.
That I should renounce my "allegiance" before my grimdark corruption is absolute.
And while I'm at it, I should discard these useless wands, because apparently the power was in my little black heart all along. Is that right?
(question mark): Won't you have to give up your specibus to the one who causes the Scratch regardless?
How else will the young man wield that great big needle?
T.T.: I don't know! If you say so.
(question mark): Haven't your friends already shown concern for your recklessness and your increasing sense of detachment from the party, the team objectives, and not to mention those of your personal quest?
Does this worry you? Is there a part of you left that's able to worry?
T.T.: Yes. It has been mysteriously localized to my middle finger. Could the dark magics be at work again?!
(question mark): Do you deny that you have been neglecting incoming messages from your teammates? Would that be in keeping with the spirit of the human emotion of friendship for one whose soul was not so befouled by the designs of unknowable monstrosities?
T.T.: Friendship isn't an emotion, numbnuts.
(QUESTION MARK): Isn't it, Rose?
Isn't it?
T.T.: I've been busy. I'll get back to them.
And can we please stop doing the patronizing question thing?
In exchange I promise I will discontinue my patronizing responses.
(QUESTION MARK): Can the omniscient be patronized?
T.T.: The omniscipotent can do whatever they please. I guess I'm just asking you nicely to do me this favor.
(QUESTION MARK): Very well. I will stop smothering you with surprise noodles.
T.T.: Huh?
(QUESTION MARK): But only because I find you to be adorable.
T.T.: So creepy.
(QUESTION MARK): So cute.
T.T.: Yuck.
(QUESTION MARK): I am going to ask the same question I asked earlier.
Please do not regard it as a violation of my pledge. It is just an ordinary question, like those that crop up in an ordinary conversation.
T.T.: Ok.
(QUESTION MARK): How does a Seer see?
T.T.: I don't know.
(QUESTION MARK): Be literal.
T.T.: With her eyes?
(QUESTION MARK): Take the orb.
Ask it a question.
T.T.: I don't know what to ask anymore.
I'm confused.
(QUESTION MARK): What would you ask me?
T.T.: I would ask what should I do next.
(QUESTION MARK): Then ask.
T.T.: What should I do next?
(QUESTION MARK): Not me.
The ball, dunkass.

Rose: Ask.

T.T.: Sorry for the delayed response.
Answering seems to be what to do right now.
G.G.: rose jeez!!!
finally
you sure seem to be absorbed in whatever you're doing on that computer... were you talking to someone?
T.T.: Oh, right. I forgot I gave you the code for the crystal ball.
And here I was thinking I could safely delay responding to messages without seeming like an ass,
the way it usually works.
Oops.
G.G.: oh no no i don't blame you for not responding!
you must be very upset
are you ok?
T.T.: Why would I be upset?
G.G.: um
because
uhhh i figured you would have found out by now but i guess you still don't know?
T.T.: Know what?
G.G.: about...
johns dad
and.......
your mom (sad face)

G.G.: rose please say something you are making me nervous...
T.T.: I should have gone looking for her.
Why didn't I?
G.G.: umm
because you were busy trying to make the best of this situation?
T.T.: John was too. But he went to look for his father.
It would have been normal of me. I can't remember what I was trying to prove anymore.
G.G.: i don't think you should be so hard on yourself about it john was being john, and you were being you, which i guess meant taking our problems very seriously and putting all your attention on solving them!
and anyway, you and your mom had a much trickier relationship than john and his dad didn't you?
i mean, not that i am saying that means you were any less attached to her than him...
argh, i don't know if i'm very good at consoling people. sorry rose i don't want to make you feel worse (sad face)
T.T.: You're doing fine.
For someone raised by a dog.
Or really,
Anyone.
Thanks.
G.G.: whew, ok
you know...
now we have all lost guardians dave lost his, and i lost mine in a weird way... uuum even though that was pretty much definitely my fault (uncertain face) and even the trolls all lost their monster guardians i think that maybe it is an inevitable part of a game that can be cruel sometimes T.T.: For some reason, despite all the danger, I never thought she was in any trouble.
I never believed she would actually die.
I grew up with the feeling that something more significant had always been meant for her.
That she was a heroine displaced in some way, resigned to the inglorious duty of raising me, and preparing me in her way.
I didn't actually need the ectobiological verification that she was like a mother and a sister at the same time. I always understood that somehow.
And I felt she had knowledge and ability beyond what she let on. It was always intimidating, but nonetheless a source of respect which was childishly begrudging on my part.
I think she was just waiting for me to catch up with her.
But now I can't.
G.G.: ..... i am so sad
rose i think you are being stronger about it than i am
T.T.: Probably because my emotions have now ceded to anger.
This shouldn't have happened.
G.G.: oh
well
i just hope you aren't thinking of doing something rash
T.T.: I already was.
I was going to go to sleep, fly to a sun bigger than our universe, drop a bomb in it, and kill myself.
G.G.: yeeaaah...
T.T.: So if my course of action is to change on account of my mood, it can only become less impetuous, don't you think?
G.G.: errrr, i dont know?
G.G.: wellllll
no!
but i was trusting that you had thought it through and it was our best hope T.T.: I'm not sure if I did.
Maybe it was a terrible plan.
I made it without a full understanding of the nature of the Scratch.
G.G.: hm
then what will you do?
T.T.: I could stop being so cowardly, for once.
I could short circuit this endlessly expanding game of chess we're playing, just like Jack decided to do.
G.G.: what does that mean!
T.T.: Maybe I will go kill Jack myself.
Right now.
G.G.: oh no no no no no!
rose that is a much much worse plan!!!!
he would probably kill you!
T.T.: Probably.
But the Scratch will wipe us out anyway, and reboot the conditions of our session.
I suddenly don't feel much like sneaking through the back door of the Furthest Ring for retribution by distant super nova.
G.G.: i know what you mean, i was angry at jack and wanted to stop him too, but we have to think of a more sensible way to do it
T.T.: Whether my existing plan was sensible or not,
I may have been allowing myself to be manipulated by an omniscient being regardless.
(question mark): Hello ladies.
G.G.: aaaaaaa whaaaaat?????
T.T.: This is a private conversation.
Private even to those who know it word for word already.
(question mark): Proceed.
I will be here.
Watching.
G.G.: rose who is this!
T.T.: Ignore him.
G.G.: i dont even know whats going on anymore (question mark): You were discussing Ms. Lalonde's intrepid new variation on suicide.
As one with a passion for the subject, I'm intrigued.
T.T.: Shh.
Anyway, if it's true the gods have "selected" me for service, maybe the power they've given me will be sufficient.
T.T.: Maybe they wanted me to kill him all along.
(question mark): Hee hee.
G.G.: SHHHHHHHHHHH!
please dont rose, i know you are angry but you arent thinking straight T.T.: But I am.
I'm fully aware I'll probably die and fail. Scratch happens, we start fresh. No recollection, no problem.
G.G.: nooo (sad face) (question mark): Jade, as an ambassador of Skaia, maybe you'd be willing to talk some sense into your friend?
You should understand she's been corrupted by various entities with some rather questionable motives.
G.G.: rose, maybe white text guy is right?
the dark gods gave you all these powers, and seem to be helping us with dream bubbles and stuff...
but what if they are not actually good?
T.T.: They are enormous, ugly, and live in darkness.
That doesn't necessarily make them bad.
G.G.: no...
but i still dont trust them!
(question mark): If only there were a way to make this determination with certainty.
Through a reliable source within reach, for instance, at this exact moment. Perhaps one that is spherical, and devastatingly handsome.
G.G.: whats this weirdo talking about!
T.T.: The cue ball.
G.G.: oh yeah
i noticed you found it!
i was worried it had been destroyed when my room blew up is he saying you can use it?
T.T.: Yes. And he is right.
G.G.: omg
does it work???
T.T.: It advised me to talk to you just now.
So I guess so.
G.G.: then maybe you should try it!
(question mark): Yes, Rose. Listen to Jade.
She is far less manipulative than I.
T.T.: What are you suggesting I ask it?
G.G.: well
since we dont know much about the gods...
why dont you ask it about them?
T.T.: So, you're saying I should ask it if the gods are evil?
G.G.: i guess that is a way to put it (question mark): Even though at this point neither of you is highlighting my text to read it, this idea gets my vote.
Go ahead.
Ask, Seer.

Seer: Ask.

It would be stupid of me to mismanage these forces, and even stupider of you to worry about it, because it would be stupid for you to think I was stupid. In fact, I feel a little dumber just thinking about it.
When the time comes, I will interact directly with the events of this narrative. But this moment will be responsibly confined to a passive intervention. It will be compact, surgical, and essential. My involvement will have such precision, I have even managed to quantify it in units of physical measurement. I will be involved in only the narrow corridor of space through which light will pass in three nanoseconds.
My window of influence, end to end, will be exactly one yard.
A second image shows the broken meter stick. A meter is exactly 8.56 centimeters longer than a yard.]

Ok Anyway Let's Get Back to John.
John: Locate Tumor.

John: Look around.

[Image description: John looks at the wall of the cavern the object is in. There's a moon carved above two carved quest beds. One is the two curving lines of breath and one is the eight armed spiral of space.]

Next

[Image description: He looks across the cavern. On the other wall, there is another moon with two other quest beds. These have the sun for light and the gear for time.]

John: Look inside.

[Image description: John flies up to the circle on the tumor. It's at least twice his height.]

Next

[Image description: John stares at it and blackness fills his glasses.]

Next

[Image description: A blurry blue countdown counts from 10:25:00 to 10:24:51.]

John: Take Tumor.

[Image description: The tumor disappears into a captchalogue card.]

John: Return to surface.

[Image description: John flies up and out of the hole, then away from the battlefield entirely.]

Next

[Image description: It shows the battlefield, now with a hole in the center, calling back to the tumor from just moments ago.]

CD?: Approach locals.

[Image description: Courtyard droll and the robot bunny stand with W.V. and John in the battlefield. A speech bubble over CD cycles between John, W.V., a weird and fancy hat, Jade, Bec Noir, the robot bunny, and the queen's ring.]

You and your rabbit friend approach a gentleman wrapped in a fine white cloth, and his courageous cohort, a young man riding a great gust of wind!

You are so impressed, you forget what you are supposed to be doing.
John: Reunite with Liv Tyler.

Sweet, precious, beautiful Liv Tyler. You thought you'd lost her forever, just like Bruce Willis did when he blew himself up with a nuclear bomb in the center of an asteroid the size of Texas. His heroism and fatherly pride were also the size of Texas.

But your love for Liv is not fatherly, oh no. This reunion is with no loving daughter, but a loving movie star fantasy crush, who happens to be in the form of a robot bunny which has traveled through time, and been given as a gift on five separate occasions, twice by you and thrice to you, and originally fished out of a sewer by Nicholas Cage on the silver screen.

You forget the point you are supposed to be making.

But you wonder where all of her sweet weapons went.

She indicates in the language of plush toy pantomime that she has no idea! They all blew away in the Breeze.

John: Retrieve tiny hammer.

This tiny hammer is so ridiculous! It's too bad it is not the right size. You would love to wallop some imps with such a fanciful weapon.

You guess you could just go around giving them little bops on the head with it. Like a silly gavel. No, that would be too absurd, even for a great prankster like you. You will discard this rubbish immediately.

Wait! What is this? Ms. Tyler is handing you a note.

John: Read note.
This rabbit im sure youve noticed is armed to the stitches! Hes got all four of the funny little weapons i mentioned thatre all deadly as the fucking dickens but that doesnt mean they are meant exclusively for the paws of mr terry kiser. (That is the name i call him.) Heck no.

You see i adapted terry with some doodads you may deem practical. An infinitesimalator which i used to littlefy them down in the first place as well as a monstrositifier for when you would like to hugen them up and wield them yourself! Hes surey got enough juice in him to make them enormous if you wish. But thats silly what would you even do with say a magic needle the size of a skyscraper for instance? Preposterous!

I borrowed this technology from my grandmother who had quite the way with manipulating space. Legend tells she was something of a witch with the stuff! Once she was a brave hero like you and i john and the stars themselves twinkled in her cauldron. I would like to tell you who my grandmother is i really would. But i cant. I think i have trouble keeping secrets. I like to be honest just like you and a lot of secrecy after a while gets me feeling a bit jaded. Heh heh.

Green means grow red means shrink! See you soon pal.

J.

Grandmother? You wonder who that could be?

It's probably just Jade. What with all the time shenanigans.

John: Hugen hammer.

You got the Warhammer of Zillyhoo.

[S] All: Behold glory of Zillyhoo. are crying tears of joy. A large black Z on a yellow background appears behind them. The Warhammer of Zillyhoo slams down on a matching anvil as a Z flashes again. John holds up the hammer and sings the lyrics.

It cuts to Gamzee holding the warhammer. It fades to Karkat's face. He's crying red tears and has Zs in his eyes. Back to John singing. It cuts to the face on the counterweight against a rainbow background.]

Next

[Image description: John grins at the hammer.]

You are so delighted by your rad new hammer and the cool hugening abilities of Liv Tyler or Terry Kiser or whatever her/his name is. Who the hell is Terry Kiser, anyway? Probably a movie star from the future. Who cares though, your bunny will be liv 4 lyfe (heart) (heart) (heart) hearts hearts

You wonder what other neat things you can get Liv to monstrositify with her sweet eye beams?

Next

[Image description: CD and Liv flail towards W.V., who burps. Liv's green eye is missing. John boggles vacantly.]

Wait, what happened to her green eye? And why is she feverishly gesticulating toward the fellow in the ghost sheets? This is so ridiculous, you cannot turn your back on these people to admire a beautiful hammer for even one moment.

You think that is enough fooling around. It is time to get down to business again. The serious business of being an important and heroic leader.

John: Wear the hood. Be the leader.

[Image description: John swoops his hood back up.]

You are not their leader, you are their Friend, there is a Big difference!

You prepare to issue your party a highly authoritative series of Friendly Requests.

Next

[Image description: CD and Liv keep flailing, but CD stands between Liv and W.V. now. W.V. looks distressed. A second image shows CD reaching for the club symbol on his chest. In a third, Liv wears the club as an eyepatch.]

First you request that everyone settle down! The squat fellow mediates between the two bickering parties, and patches up Liv's missing eye. She is nothing if not accustomed to decades of repair work, and quickly resumes her plucky demeanor.

Next

[Image description: John's hand glows blue. In a second image, a Dersite ship lifts up off the ground, buoyed by The Breeze.]

You then in your most leaderly way ask Liv to pilot that enormous battleship! She will now be known as Captain Tyler.
Next

[Image description: Liv shines a red beam from her remaining eye and the ship shrinks.]

She littlefies the ship down to something more manageable for a small bunny captain. Everyone is impressed.

Next

[Image description: John hands his wallet modus to W.V.. Behind him, CD and Liv salute.]

You give your wallet to your loyal chauffeur familiar. He looks puzzled. You inform the party that you will not be going on this journey. You must remain behind and continue looking for your father.

But you insist their mission is the most critical of all! You know they can handle it. You believe in them.

You instruct Captain Tyler to set a course for the ship's home. They must fly to Derse, and deliver the Tumor to the moon. Everyone salutes their intrepid friend leader. This is what teamwork is all about.

Next

[Image description: John looks down at CD, who just blinks up at him.]

And this guy...

You guess this guy can go along and help out?

Hey who even is this guy, anyway? You guess it doesn't matter. He seems nice enough.

John: Bid farewell.

[Image description: W.V., Liv, and CD stand on the ship. Liv and CD wave at John and W.V. clutches the wallet to his chest. He has an iron lass Jade alert over him.]

Godspeed, heroes. You have all the faith in the world that they will be successful.

As a friend leader, or sometimes known as a pal honcho, you have done an amazing job. You have come up with a plan, and politely request-ordered your loyal team to execute it. It is all falling into place perfectly. You are quite sure you have not failed to account for even a single thing.

[Image description: The song Black Rose/Green Sun begins to play. Dark clouds cover the sky.
Pink lightning flashes. It pans down until the tower of a checkerboard castle appears. Mom's hand lays in a pool of blood. Drops of something dark fall onto her arm, then spread out to mingle with the blood. It fades back to the clouds, where a mass of shadowy, spiked tentacles descend slowly.
A cloud moves aside, revealing Rose at the heart of the mass. The tentacles expand outward, unfurling into the sky. It focuses in on Rose's feet as she slowly lowers towards the ground. It pans up, moving over her grey skirt, her pink belt, and up to her grey shirt with a white squid creature.
The grey fades to black, leaving her belt, sleeves, and symbol floating in a void. The squid grows to take up the whole screen and Rose appears again, descending slowly across it and leaving a trail of inky blackness behind her. The background fades back to the clouds and it zooms in on her. Her skin is still dark grey.
Several images flash very quickly. A pink squid creature with black and white scribbles all over it, almost making it resemble juggalo makeup with inverted colors. The same squid, now black, and scribbled with red. The same image in black and white. The green sun. Rose, still Grimdark, in front of the green sun. The sun disappears and the background turns pink, then resolves into a pink sun. It zooms in on Rose's face until it takes up the whole screen. Her skin becomes darker grey and her eyes open wide and begin to glow white.
It zooms back out and she's once again descending through the clouds. She descends the final section quickly and lands in the ruins of the tea party. From this point, it's an interactive walkaround panel.
The table and chairs are still overturned. Teapots, dishes, and wine bottles are scattered around. Blood is everywhere, but now a black liquid is as well. Black rain falls across the scene. To the left is Dad's body, and to the right is Mom's. Just south of the table is a set of stairs.
Look at the table or one of the bodies. Only a question mark and cancel appear.
There is no sign of Jack up here. Must be somewhere in the castle.

Go down the stairs.
You enter a hallway with checkerboard tiles on the floor and walls. Arch shaped windows let in beams of blue light between golden pillars. Go east, down the hall. It curves to the south and there's the body of a Prospitian. It can't be interacted with. Rose doesn't care about it. The hallway loops back around to head west and there's the body of another carapacian. This one can't be interacted with either. There's another set of stairs at the west end of the hall. Go down.

You enter another hallway just like the one you left, except this one curves north and back around to the east. There are Dersite bodies here, and a Prospitian one on the stairs at the end. Go down.

You appear on a long stairway with small, round, stained-glass windows along it. Go down. The stairs end at a landing with three tall stained glass windows and a Prospitian corpse, which has been bisected at the waist. Another set of stairs goes east from the landing. Keep going down. On the second set of stairs, there's another body. On the wall, there are several golden banners with the white king's symbol on them. One is splattered with blood from the slain Prospitian. There's another landing with stained glass windows. This one has two Dersite corpses. Another set of stairs goes west. Keep going down. More prospit banners line this stairway. The bottom of it loads another area.

You appear on yet another stairway, just like the others, but there is no wall behind it, just blackness. Keep going down. At the bottom, the stairs exit into a large room with red curtains framing four banners on the back wall. There is a yellow banner with the breath symbol, a yellow banner with the space symbol, a purple banner with the light symbol, and a purple banner with the time symbol. There's another Prospitian corpse near them.

Go to the banners.
Examine tapestries.
The series of banners is titled 'They Wait.'
They wait for he who would extinguish candles whilst fanning a fire.
They wait for she who would thaw solid flesh and resolve it into a dew.
They wait for she who would breed lilacs out of the dead land.
They wait for he who would drop it like it's hot whilst the pimp's in the crib.

Go east, then south towards a small alcove with two golden pillars, a white chest, and a live Prospitian. Ignore the two Dersite corpses you have to pass.
Open chest.
Mom's bloody scarf floats out of the chest.
You got a trophy!

Go to the Prospitian.
Talk to soldier.
A Prospitian talksprite appears. He looks terrified.
Prospitian: ...
He is too frightened to speak!
He seems to be indicating that the only reason he survived this massacre was by hiding behind this pillar. Thank goodness for pillars.

Go back into the main room, where there's a decapitated frog statue. A Prospitian's head sits just to the east of it, but ignore that.
Examine idol.
It bears an inscription: 'Our Glorious Speaker.'
His head was lopped clean off, with some sort of sharp, sword-like object. Someone around here sure must hate frogs. You wonder who it could be?
(It was probably Jack.)

Head southwest. There's another alcove. There are five bookshelves, two pillars, a white chest, and two bodies. One is Prospitian, cut in half, and the other is just a Dersite head on top of the eastmost bookshelf.
Open chest.
Bro's shades float out of the chest.
You got a trophy!

Go to the westmost bookshelf.
Examine bookshelf.
You find an ancient unlabeled tome, and read an excerpt.
'Though we adore Him we shall never enjoy His beauteous Croak. We spill our blood on acres of black and white so they may cross the yellow yard. At last in Skaia's reflection through broken glass He may find the pond in which He's meant to squat.'

Go to the next bookshelf.

'Journey to the Center of the Battlefield'
Looks to be a fairy tale for youngsters. The hero is a dashing young man in a blue hood. He heals the planet from within, but can do nothing to stop its annihilation from above, nor its soon to follow eradication from reality.
It must be sad growing up in a culture whose mythology is centered almost completely around futility.

And the next one.
Examine bookshelf.
This is a book on theoretical physics, and complex spatial geometries based on the hypothetical addition of orbs to the queen's ring.
The shapes in the diagrams are very complex. This sort of nonsense is regarded as crackpottery at best. Why would the queen ever wear more than four orbs? Four towers, four orbs, four heroes; this is a sacred truth.

Next.

'A Foot Soldier's Guide to Combat'
Most of the diagrams in this book involve a soldier advancing by a single tile, either straight ahead, or diagonally when lunging with a weapon.
No wonder these guys are so easy to kill.

And the last one, which has blood spilled down it.
Examine bookshelf.

'Advanced Frog Breeding for Beginners: Difficulty Level - Extreme For Idiots!'

Go south. There is a set of stairs blocked by the head of the frog statue.
Examine frog head.
The stairs are blocked.
You supposed you could easily remove the obstacle, but that would spoil a perfectly good opportunity to look for secret passages.

Head east, to another alcove full of bookshelves. There are eight here, along with a chest at the far end.

Go to the westmost bookshelf, then each one in sequence.

You think you know what you might find on this shelf. Just a hunch...
Yep. More books.

Examine bookshelf.
'Rise of the Slayer'
A horror story meant to scare children.
Writers of Prospitian fiction tend to write what they see in clouds. Hence their fables tend to be events which simply haven't happened yet, or happened in another realm. They like to use the word fiction so that kids don't get too scared.

Examine bookshelf.
'Problem Sooth'
You have been meaning to read this one. Absolutely required reading for any promising young seer who has blundered into entanglement with the occult through an absurd sequence of events.

Go to the chest.
Open chest.
Dad's bloody hat floats out of the chest.
You got a trophy!

Now go through that passageway you just opened up.
You appear in a grey room, not unlike the ones on the meteor. Dersite and Prospitian soldiers mill around aimlessly. There are two chests, one to the west of the entrance and one to the east. Go to the west one.
You got A Flaming Meteor Chunk!
This isn't even treasure. How is this treasure?

Go to the east chest.
Open chest.
A tattered red flag comes out.
You got the Banner of the Villein!
You suddenly feel inspired. In a generally rebellious, united sort of way.

Talk to the soldiers from south to north.

Talk to soldier.
A Dersite soldier smiles nervously and sweats a little.
Dersite: ...
She is apparently swooning over a hero of lore shared by the two kingdoms. A great man who united opposing sides against his tyrannical king. The revolt ended in tragedy of course, which is typical of their folktales. But it is no less inspiring.

Talk to soldier.
A Prospitian soldier smiles and sweats nervously, just like the Dersite.
Prospitian: ...
She is all aflutter about a legendary hero. Some guy who was weary of war, apparently. A simple farmer, handsome and brave.
You think you are beginning to fall in love with him too.

Talk to soldier.
A Dersite soldier gives a sad smile.
Dersite: ...
He seems to be relieved that he and a handful of fellow soldiers have found a secret hideaway to escape the bloody rampage. Maybe if they regroup, and marshal all their remaining forces, they can take this guy!
(Yeah right!)

Talk to soldier.
A Prospitian stares blankly.
Prospitian: ...
She looks scared and confused. There is nothing left to do but hide.

Talk to soldier.
A Dersite frowns.
Dersite: ...
This fellow is mourning the dead. He has probably lost many friends today.

Talk to soldier.
A Prospitian frowns.
Prospitian: ...
First he was frightened when you barged in here, and then briefly excited, and now disappointed. He must have thought you were the great dark kingdom's defector, come to save them. Alas, it was only a spooky girl with magic wands.

The back wall is lined with banners. They alternate between derse and prospit. There is a door between two of the banners. Exit.
You enter a hallway full of bookshelves, one of which is toppled over. Go examine the bookshelves, starting at the far left.

Examine bookshelf.
It is a holy parchment.
Maimed Clown. Undead Cat. Impaled Crow. Omnipotent Dog. These four shall be held in reverence for the eternity they serve to cut short.

Examine bookshelf.
You're sick of reading. Gotta find Jack.

The rest of the shelves all say the same thing. Go east. There's a short set of stairs with a red curtain behind them. Descend.
The stairs let out into a T shaped hallway with a branch going north, stairs going east, and the stairs you just came down on the west. There's a set of bloody footsteps leading between the north path and the east path. In the center of the junction is a white transportalizer.
Transportalize.
something's blocking it from the other side.

Go north.
There is a large white creature in a pool of blood.

Examine slain beast.

You have never seen anything so sad in your entire life. A beautiful muscular man-stallion, struck down in his prime.
What monster could be responsible for this deed?
(Hint: it was Jack Noir.)

Follow the bloody footprints to the eastern stairs. For just a moment, you see Jack, but he teleports away. Go to the door in the north wall.

You enter a room with a red curtain on the north side. Walk towards it.
Open curtains.
They open. North of them, there is another set of curtains, then more. The sequence is four red curtains, a blue curtain, then another red curtain. Go through all of them.
At the north end of the room, there is another set of stairs. They fade to white at the top, then let out onto a massive record, which looks like a smaller version of the beat mesa. At the center of it, there's a transportalizer.
Transportalize.
Rose disappears in a flash and appears on another transportalizer in a room very similar to the one you just left. This time, however, the curtains are green, and the first 5 are already open.
Open Curtains.
A trail of bloody footprints leads away from the curtain. Follow them. Up another set of white stairs, onto a platform with a bright green spirograph on the edge and a smaller one in the center around something yellow. John stands on this platform too.

John: hi rose! wow, i did not expect to find you here!
Rose's talksprite has glowing white eyes, grey skin, and wisps of shadow around her.
Rose: Nyurb gu'ilg.
John: heh... what?
also, why are you all gray like that? you look weird.
Rose: G'hiroog fib'th mur brup brup.
John: uh...
Rose: G'hiroog fib'th mur brup brup!
John: rose, i can't understand a word you are saying. it is a lot sillyspeak and gobbledygook.
Rose looks incredibly angry
Rose: Haughauuth'rl...
John: wait, i know what's going on here. it finally happened! you have gone grimdark!!!
i told you rose. i warned you about... what did you call them? the brood fester throes?
Rose narrows her eyes at John.
Rose: ...
John: it's ok rose, don't worry. we will find a cure for your stubborn throes.
but i'm still trying to find our parents! i thought my dad might have come to this castle to check out that huge black rain cloud.
did you see the cloud, rose? it's pretty awesome.
Rose: Fnith gohluyng j'rg hothaht!
John: what? you sound kind of upset. what is it, rose?
Rose: Jgngn, fnith gohluyng j'rg Hothaht!
John: wait, are you talking about our parents?
oh man... you mean, they're here?!
Rose: Shgvb throl. Goors fn'nnyuld hothahty'j otot!
John: are you saying they are in trouble?
oh no! rose, we have to go help them!
Rose screams into the purple velvet pillow that once stopped her thank you note from touching the ground.
Rose: mmph phlthmmphmhmfmf rrmphpmrph.
John: yes, i am frustrated too. but there is no time for such lamentations!
do you think you can find them again?
Rose: Shruggot.
John: great! i can't wait to see my dad. it feels like it's been forever since i saw him.
please lead the way, rose!

Go north, across the platform. John follows you. The yellow object comes into view. It's a golden frog statue. Come back to that later. For now, go through the door on the north side of the platform. You enter a room with golden floor tiles. There's a large golden statue on a white platform. The statue is of the White King and White Queen holding hands.
Examine statue.
They make such a cute couple.
The king and queen are pretty nice too. Heheheh.

Keep going north, through another door.
This is where John came from. No use backtracking now. Got to take him to see mom and dad.

Go back out onto the platform where you found John. Go to the frog statue.
Remove idol.
The statue vanishes, revealing a transportalizer underneath.
Transportalize.

You're back in the junction. A new set of bloody footsteps goes up the west stairs. John still follows you. Follow the steps back through the hall with the bookshelves, then into the room with the alive soldiers. They're all dead now. Halfway through the room, John interrupts. He looks scared.

John: oh no! rose, what happened in here?
Rose: Yyjyrn yulk frobithh.
John: was it jack? are you saying it was jack, rose?
Rose: Fru'frnuhuh jgog hhgh.
John: what's that, rose? are you getting aggrivated that i am talking to you kind of like you are a dog?
Rose screams into the pillow again.
Rose: ...
John: that is a really nice pillow, by the way.
it goes well with your weird dark skin and gothy ensemble.
Rose: Knryip.
John: you're welcome!

Leave the room through the south door, where the footsteps lead.
You're back in the room with the defaced statue. Keep following the footsteps. They lead into the alcove, where the once living guard is now dead. One of the pillars is sliced into several pieces. Follow the footsteps to the tapestry wall. The breath, light, and time banners are shredded. The space one is untouched.
Examine tapestries.
Ripped to shreds. All but one, for some reason.
Who Could Have Possibly it was Jack stupid.

The footsteps lead to the stairs. Go up. Ascend the rest of the winding stairs, then go through the curving hallways. Part of the way through the last hall, John speaks up.

John: by the way, did you know that karkat thinks we are supposed to get married?
Rose: Gorthytch svulk borbly'ahth?
John: wait! i hope that didn't come off as a proposal or anything!
sorry, i'm just making conversation.
i guess i am a little nervous...
because technically, this is the first time we have ever met, and also, you are talking like an eldritch monster, so i'm kind of babbling.
we don't actually have to get married though. i mean, not if you don't want to.
Rose: ...
John: heheh. ok, i'll shut up now.

Exit to the roof. Everything fades to black. An option to start over appears.

[Image description: The song At The Price of Oblivion begins to play. John and Rose, still in the style of the flash, stand among the ruins of their parents' tea party. Jack now stands on the other side of the table. Black rain continues to fall from Rose's cloud. The art style changes to the usual animation style and John looks down at his dad's body. Rose watches him. Mom's arm lays in the pool of blood and black liquid. Dad's lays in a similar pool. It zooms in on John's eye. It's bright blue and wide in shock. It pans over Jack. The sword in his chest is surrounded by red blood. He begins to turn green. Rose glares and pulls out her wands. John pulls out the Warhammer of Zillyhoo, which now glows blue. It zooms out and they each slide to different sides of the screen. Jack appears between them and Round 1 appears at the top of the screen. The clouds behind them begin to turn red and Jack flashes green, then vanishes. For just a second, it flashes back to John's eye. His pupil dilates quickly, then it cuts to a shot of his chest as Jack's sword pierces him from behind. The background goes blood red, then black as the sword withdraws. A splash of blood crosses the blackness. The music ends. In silence, it fades to show the breath symbol on John's chest. There's a single cut through it. Exactly as it did when he was killed on his quest bed, the blood expands, darkening the fabric. When red takes up the whole screen, it cuts back to Jack standing behind John. He's shoved the sword back into his own chest. Rose stands behind him, wreathed in grey smoke and staring in shock. She watches John collapse forward and land in a puddle of blackness from the cloud. The Warhammer of Zillyhoo sits at his side, where he dropped it. Everything goes blurry, then fades to black. The music begins again and Rose appears through the darkness as a white outline and grey smoke. It zooms in on her face and she bares her teeth, then screams. It cuts to a white silhouette of Jack against a background of green lightning. The silhouette slowly fades to Jack. Green lightning crackles across his face. Rose lifts her wand and Jack draws his sword. It zooms out. The pulsing red and black of the furthest ring mingles with green lightning as the castle zooms away, then vanishes. A bright green explosion appears, along with green stars against a black void. The explosion fades to black.

G.C.: striiiiiider
T.G.: oh my fucking god
G.C.: what (confused face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: what do you mean what we just got done talking and agreed it would be awesome if you didn't bother me for a while you know like while I guess I grieved over this brutally murdered rad family member or something G.C.: oh
that's right
I forgot!
T.G.: it was five seconds ago
G.C.: I think that was hours ago for me
I am a little foggy on all our chronological shenanigans at this point...
there has been so much crazy stuff going on here I have lost track!
T.G.: so you're officially going nonlinear with me then were just forfeiting all rhyme or reason to this unmitigated clusterfuck is that it G.C.: dave, your entire existence is nonlinear don't be so melodramatic
T.G.: whoops ok in the future ill try not to pitch any sort of dramatics while brooding over the cadavers of slaughtered loved ones
G.C.: did you love him dave?
T.G.: no
G.C.: but he was your strange human man-lusus who taught you to like cool things, like swords and puppets and moving really fast!
how could you not???
T.G.: puppets aren't cool they're shitty small fake people who haunt your dreams and grin like permanent assholes
I was making a joke about being all broken up about it a guy can be sad and make jokes at the same time
G.C.: you are sad, but not broken up about it?
I don't understand
T.G.: exactly
G.C.: but you said you were grieving!
T.G.: I said we agreed you'd leave me alone to grieve didn't say whether I actually would or actually am G.C.: well, are you?
T.G.: I am grieving to the max like a widow on dead husband island behind these chill as fuck shades my face is having this crazy attack of the sads my rue is fucking bananas can't you tell G.C.: argh no, I can't!
you don't sound sincere, but its so hard to tell what layer of irony removed from reality your flippant remarks are supposed to be
I am betting you really are sad no matter how hilarious and aloof you think you're being T.G.: the truth is a mystery tucked behind the pursed lips of a shitty riddler they will be loosened only when presented with the conundrous grandeur of rigid insoluble puzzlecock
G.C.: bluh that makes no sense!
T.G.: im sorry you are so flustered by the mere mention of glittering mythical crypto dick it honestly makes me think youre not ready for the truth
G.C.: dave your perplexing euphemisms involving what I presume to be lewd and vaguely intriguing portions of human anatomy I think are not as hilarious as you probably believe and in any case you may be amazed to learn I am not totally in the mood for your dumb smartassy hornswoggery!
I have lots of my own problems here, and they are big, big problems so why dont you just tell me what you are thinking for once?
T.G.: its pretty simple im just thinkin about how im gonna take this sword
G.C.: yeah...
I never really got why you wouldnt just pull it out
T.G.: filthiest thing you ever said
G.C.: huh (confused face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: forget it pulling swords out of things isnt how I roll im not john remember
G.C.: I am not following T.G.: im not a hero my bro was john is im not
G.C.: yes you are!
T.G.: no
G.C.: yes, we all are
I am the hero of mind
you are the hero of time that is who we were created to be T.G.: fine its a title we inherit as phlem babies or whatever but what have I done to earn it pretty much nothing but horsing around through time and swindling retarded alligators out of their life savings if that swords coming out of his chest its coming out clean taking it vertically means drawing more blood but horizontally means a clean break
T.G.: check it
G.C.: no, dont (frowning face with furrowed brows)

Dave: Break.

G.C.: dave get up T.G.: no fuck that im a lie my ass right down here for a while looking slightly less cool than I make myself out to be ordinarily G.C.: you must stand tall, only a true hero could pull off such an acrobatic fucking pirouette off of that handle (smiley face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: that is basically what I just did isnt it
G.C.: yes
T.G.: thats what im doing here im making a point of makin every little thing take place what was once mentioned in passing no matter how seemingly trivial or pointless thats how all the best adventures get strung together you havent heard me bleat like a goat for ironically humorous purposes yet have you
G.C.: no!!! (gasping face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: that was something that was mentioned at some point by someone I forget when or why I bet you are on goddamn pins and needles waiting for that arent you
G.C.: are you about to bleat like an earth goat, dave?
T.G.: no
fuck that G.C.: (frowning face with furrowed brows) then will you at least get up??
T.G.: no
fuck you go away
G.C.: augh
why do I do this to myself
T.G.: what
G.C.: subject myself to the moody nonsense of curmudgeonly candy blooded foulmouths!
T.G.: I dunno
why are you even talking to me anyway
aside from the fact that several hours from now you apparently forget I dont need consolation and oughta be left alone
G.C.: maybe it just so happens that for once this isnt about you!
maybe I am the one who needs some help, has that occurred to you, mr coolkid??
T.G.: oh
G.C.: anyway, I remember now sorry, everyone went kind of shithive here, and I got bitten I think, and I kind of forgot where I left off with you T.G.: bitten
what
G.C.: but I remember where this all fits into the chronology, you with your bro here this was just before you begged me to finally show you how to reach god tier so I did and then you got mad at me so you decided to go do your own thing for a while and since then I have been up to my pointy little nubs in suspense, intrigue, and betrayal!
T.G.: that sure sounds like a dumb way to say a thing almost egbertian in elegant stupidity the t in egbertian is soft like shhhhh
G.C.: hehehe oh
T.G.: why would I get mad at you
G.C.: oh, youll see (tongue sticking out face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: ok
but yeah I guess its about time you showed me whats up with my allegedly futile god tierification how long ago was it that you did your coin flip thing I dont even remember
I was getting sure you were just bullshitting me and had no intention of ever mentioning it again
G.C.: unfortunately, no!
maybe I should take the opportunity to apologize in advance (frowning face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: for what
G.C.: hmmm
I dont think it will be constructive to go into it before it happens
T.G.: before what happens you mean god tiering does something go wrong
G.C.: everything goes according to plan!
but that is all I will say remember, this conversation is kind of not supposed to be about you, I know the idea is unprecedented
T.G.: thats practically unthinkable
G.C.: I know (tongue sticking out face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: but I mean ok we can talk about your troll problem but this is pretty important here the god tier thing and whether I can actually do it or not it might be kind of hard to tell on account of me chilling face down on the pavement and also because downplaying feelings is the chief rule of cool but im pretty pissed about this which is weird
G.C.: its weird to feel mad?
are you too cool for that too??
T.G.: no its not weird to be mad its just weird it feels like im the only one who is and the only one even contemplating taking jack on even among your group of irate gnashing shitheads
G.C.: hey!
T.G.: what
G.C.: actually, youre right turns out we really do have a lot of shitheads here (frowning face with furrowed brows) and also as it happens the worst one is the one who happens to be planning to take him on!
T.G.: well ok and that would be a bitchin line to switch the subject to start talkin about your complicated problems but I kinda wasnt done
G.C.: fiine
but for someone who just told me to fuck off you are sure bending my ear suddenly (smiley face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: but ok I mean isnt that what heroes should be doing working to take down the bad guy without a whole lot of this fuckin grandiloquence and these huge sweeping plans that got nothin to do with fighting him like always biding our time and tiptoeing around the unbeatable god boss johns too nice to get mad rose spends all her time calculating too focused on machiavellian ploys of sabotage to try anything drastic jade is I dont even know probably more a liability if she got it in her head to take him down if anything id bet she just needs protection
G.C.: what are you saying here dave, in this conversation that is still being about you
T.G.: im just wondering when does someone actually step up jacks got shit to pay for G.C.: if that is how you feel then I think our two problems are not really different we are both presently concerned with justice
T.G.: yeah I guess
I guess it has been on my mind
maybe I am supposed to be a hero and rise to the occasion because there seems to be this little persistent voice in my head nagging me about it insisting someones gotta pay and its hard for me to disagree
G.C.: then it could mean one of two things or both of the two things, like it did for me (smiley face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: what things
G.C.: it could mean that the agent presently influencing you is... a conscience and/or an exile

T.G.: you call it the slammer when you’re extra angry at crimes

where was I T.G.: justice problems
G.C.: oh yes, of course you see, our aims are not that dissimilar our pursuits of justice I mean but yours is motivated by anger in the heat of the moment which is blinding you to the consequences of attempting something very foolish you are far too cool to succumb to anything like that which is why you will come to your senses shortly (smiley face with furrowed brows) my situation is a little more complicated its less personal though once it was a grudge which propelled our rivalry now its resolution has become a matter of practicality if not professionalism business like!
the way a true legislacerator conducts her prosecutions dave did you know that centuries ago on my planet, legislacerators were not confined to stuffy courtblocks arguing cases before his honorable tyranny?
T.G.: oh shit are you fucking serious
G.C.: yes! Also, shush
I know you are sassing me due to my use of terms unfamiliar to humans, but it is true they were deployed throughout the galaxy to apprehend criminals by any means necessary
T.G.: no I got that they're like your alien death lawyers who were sorta like bounty hunters in olden times pretty simple to decipher through context
G.C.: I thought I told you to be quiet!
I am monologuing here (tongue sticking out face with furrowed brows) anyway, they would not rest until their suspect was in custody, one way or another they would gather evidence over the course of the investigation, compiling a case to be presented at the trial, should one be held before the final submission of the guilty corpse to judicial authorities personal feelings and vendettas did not matter, nor did even the nature of the crime only justice did!
they were selected for their cunning and martial prowess and for their ability to understand the minds of the criminals they sought this is why the burden has to be mine I think I am the only one who knows how to handle her as such, she is my responsibility T.G.: she
G.C.: shooooooosh!!!!!!!

T.G.: what
G.C.: we are talking about you again
I motion that all dave centric testimony be stricken from the record
T.G.: lame motion overruled the judge wants to see where this is going G.C.: no he doesnt, you know perfectly well he doesnt give a shit he will clear this courtblock if he does not have order, he swears to jegus T.G.: ok fine
we can keep obsessing over your fucked up kismesister if you want
G.C.: its not like that! (gasping face with eyes pinched shut and furrowed brows)
T.G.: do you think she stands a chance against him
G.C.: no
T.G.: then what the big deal
why not let her go get her shit ruined by jack and let justice happen that way G.C.: because I am quite sure that if she goes to find him, it will tip him off to our location in the veil
I have seen it already that is why this is no simple vendetta bringing her to justice is critical to our survival!
T.G.: so why dont you go do it G.C.: because im not sure if I can
T.G.: you mean you cant beat her in a fight G.C.: no, its not that it just that when the time comes im not sure if I will be able to kill her T.G.: I thought trolls were all about gratuitous murderings
G.C.: yes its true
we are supposed to revel in bloodshed as we grow up and she seems to be embracing her rite of passage with reckless abandon, as I would expect grabbing the bull by the horns, so to speak its a little intimidating because im not sure if im ready for that which I guess is normal??
T.G.: are you asking me to reassure you about that cause I seriously dont have a clue G.C.: its ok dave still monologuing (smiley face with furrowed brows)
I guess
I am not so much worried about not being ready as I am that...
I might not actually want to be ready maybe ever maybe theres something wrong with me
T.G.: I dont understand
I thought you were insane kinds of apeshit over the macabre stuff like being all cutesy about executions and smelling cherry blood and such things contrived to get a guy feeling vaguely uncomfortable was that all an act
G.C.: not an act
just fun!
I like fun, dave, and I also like games
dont you like fun and games?
T.G.: of course the fuck not
G.C.: liar!!! (gasping face with furrowed brows)
T.G.: didnt you say youve killed people before G.C.: there is a big difference between manipulating people to their doom with trickery, and killing someone by your own hand it is a bit like having to face your own death... and discovering the difference between leaving the responsibility to someone else, and doing the dirty work yourself
maybe youll understand some day (winking face with furrowed brows)

T.G.: ok
id like to help you out but I dont know what advice I should be giving to a member of a murderous species whos gunshy on going off to justice murder a murder happy murderer whose done lots of murders it feels pretty weird and inappropriate for me to be the one to tell you fuck yes go for it shes got this huge murder with her name on it anyways and its cruising right at her down comeuppance boulevard
so I dont know
do you want me to tell you to be a better human or to be a better troll
G.C.: I cant tell you what to advise me, chumpass!
maybe im not even looking for advice per se but just want to talk to someone about it T.G.: alright well all ill say is maybe if you kill her at least we can finally stop obsessing over her G.C.: siiiiiiiiiiinnnnn
yeah, fair enough
T.G.: why dont you just do what you think you have to do and ill do the same speaking of which
G.C.: oh, right
youll be bugging me about showing you how to reach the god tier soon prompted by this very conversation I imagine, whod have thought!
T.G.: these time shenanigans completely blindsided us they practically never even happen
G.C.: I know
T.G.: so I hang up now with future you and then start pestering present you about it is that how it works
G.C.: yes
T.G.: and I make sure not to reference anything said here to keep it simple except like in an offhand way thatll seem retroactively logical to your future self ie you right now
if for no other reason than itd be boring as hell to rehash it G.C.: that sounds about right but what do I know youre the time guy after all luckily I will not have to participate in these charades this time around T.G.: does luck actually matter
G.C.: (gasping face with furrowed brows)
Exit.

A command box like the ones in walkarounds and used by the exiles appears.
Remove disc 1.
Click it.
A disk showing a blue spirograph filled with clouds in front of meteors raining down on John's neighborhood slowly spins down, then goes into a red captchalogue card. A new command appears. Insert disc 2.

Click it.

A large object shaped like a captchalogue card appears. It has a green border and a blue section with several slots in the center. It says Homestuck along the bottom. To the right of Homestuck, there's a 1 followed by four evenly spaced red dots, a blue dot and a red dot that are closer together, a 2, a green dot, then a white dot. The disk 1 card slides into a slot and another red card slides out, but there's nothing on it. A red exclamation mark appears on the blank card, then another command box appears.

Disc 2 is missing

[Image description: Terezi holds the homestuck disk case. A second image shows her standing next to a chest, which is open. She still holds the case and frowns at it in confusion.]

Keep playing anyway.

[Image description: Terezi puts the case into a captchalogue card.]

You have no idea what the hell this thing is, or why you would need another disc.

You just captchalogue it and proceed. There is justice to be done, and you are running out of time.

[Image description: This is an interactive walkaround panel. There is no music. Terezi stands in a narrow grey hallway near an open chest. She taps her cane in front of her as she moves. Walk north.

A large white, jagged shape with Objection! In it appears. This is from the Ace Attorney games. A grey text box appears below it.

You cannot control Terezi! How can you possibly expect to play this game when you have lost the game disc? All you can do is watch what she decides to do.

Terezi walks north until she comes across a piece of yellowed paper with indigo writing on it. It's pinned to the floor by one of Nepeta's claws.

You find a note stuck to the floor with Nepeta's claw. It appears to be addressed to you, written on a page torn from the journal of Vriska's ancestor. Her taunts are becoming increasingly flagrant. It also appears to be written in purple blood. She wouldn't dare harm sweet, precious Gamzee, would she? The thought is almost more than you can bear. You are going to throw the book at her.

[S] Terezi: Read note.

[Image description: It still resembles a walkaround. Terezi walks forward and picks up the note. The tile she's standing on clicks. Terezi turns around. A grey text box appears. (confused face with furrowed brows)

The tiles swing down and Terezi falls. After a moment, she lands in a pile of scalemates on the counter in the trickster mode room. The song Secret ROM begins to play. The counter and rug have little smudges of indigo blood on them, as does Lil Cal, who sits near the cash register. There is a smiley face with a round nose drawn in indigo on the back wall. There are two chests south of the counter and the stairway is full of bike horns. A black silhouette of dancing Gamzee appears, then disappears at various points around the room.]

Terezi: Wake up.

[Image description: Terezi sits up in the pile of torn scalemates.]

You cannot wake up, because you were not actually asleep! You were just taking a breather in this nice cozy pile of horrifically mutilated scalemates, which were gathered here to break your fall for some reason.

You wonder where you are? This is a fancy looking room. It doesn't look like a place you would expect to find on this meteor, at least not in any strictly canonical capacity.

Terezi: Examine surroundings.

[Image description: Terezi stands up. A silhouette of Gamzee appears next to Cal for a moment, then they're both gone and Cal reappears on top of a bookshelf behind Terezi. A confused face with furrowed brows appears above her.]

This dapper kiwi-suited gentleman is quite familiar. You are almost positive he made an appearance in that very crowded dream you had recently...

Where did he go??

Something in this room smells funny.

And fast.

Terezi: Climb stairs.

[Image description: In the style of a walkaround, Terezi stands near the stairs and looks at the horn. Cal vanishes from the bookshelf and appears on the banister.]

You cannot ascend!!!

The staircase is suffering from a catastrophic horn clog.

Terezi: Exit door.

[Image description: Terezi stands near the door. Cal vanishes from the banister and appears on the phonograph next to the door.]

The door is locked!

You will either need a key, or to break it down with force. You would need to achieve an especially heightened state of determination to pull that off, though.

[Note: There are two links to the next page. One is multiple question marks, which leads to another password page, and one is the actual next page.]

[Image description: Terezi puts a hand to her chin and ponders the door. Behind her, Cal stares at the back of her head and shakes, held in place by a grey arm with smudges of white makeup and drops of indigo blood on it.]
You have been completely hornswoggled. This whole thing was a setup from the start. A trap deployed by a cunning mastermind. All of the clues are adding up. The blood. The note. The flagrant displays of tricksterism and japery. The identity of the puppetmaster behind all of this is now painfully obvious to you.

You select appropriate crime solving music to set the right mood. With this kind of atmosphere, it is highly unlikely that any crime will stay unsolved for long.

Terezi: Remove Midnight Crew record.

[Image description: Terezi holds a record and looks disgusted. Cal vibrates behind her.]

No no, this vaudevillian cornball nonsense will not do at all. The mood is just not right for figuring out crimes.

You put the record back in its sleeve.

Terezi: Examine cover.

[Image description: She holds the record sleeve, which shows a slightly grainy picture of Eddie Morton, though entirely green. Eddie Morton is a middle aged white man in a formal suit. A second image, in flashing, rainbow text so large it has to be written vertically, says Who's This Douche Bag. The second image is a link to a video of a man giving an introduction to Eddie Morton, then playing I'm A Member of the Midnight Crew. A transcript of what the man says is I'm going to give you a great song now by Eddie Morton, one of my favorite rag-time era performers on record, who was actually a former Philadelphia police officer before he made it big on Vaudeville and then became a recording artist with such record companies as Victor and Columbia. So here he is with a song he did in 1909, called "I'm a member of the Midnight Crew" Mr. Eddie Morton…
He then plays the original version of I'm A Member of the Midnight Crew. He closes the video by saying Mr Eddie Morton and "I'm a member of the Midnight Crew", done one hundred and one years ago on the Victorgram prize label, and that's Victor number sixteen three twenty-four.]

You cannot get over how tiny this record is. It's adorable. You wonder what sort of music it plays?

Predictably, you scratch the surface of the disc. What were you expecting? It's almost like you don't even know what a CD is.

With the disc damaged, who knows what sort of effects it will have on the data. Better store it somewhere safe to prevent any more mishaps.

Terezi: Captchalogue disc.

[Image description: Terezi captchalogues the disk, which then goes into the Homestuck disk case. That goes back into its own captchalogue card.]

It should be perfectly safe from any similar kinds of damage while secured in your Scratch and Sniff modus.

Terezi: Examine chests.

[Image description: Terezi stands near the two chests. Cal sits on the counter a short distance from the scalemate pile.]

You have spent way too much time calibrating the ambiance of your investigation, and not nearly enough time investigating. It is one of the most common pitfalls to being an investigator. Aside from literal pitfalls, which you actually fall into.

There are two chests in this secret room. Nothing out of the ordinary. Chests are everywhere in this lab, and people find it all too tempting to sneak their personal belongings into them for safe keeping. That is, until the goods are stolen shortly after by those who can't resist looting every chest they encounter, which is everybody.

Maybe these ones contain clues?
Terezi: Open chest.

[Image description: Terezi opens the western chest. A costume like the one her ancestor wore comes out.]

You got your Neophyte Redglare Roleplaying Outfit!

What is this doing in here? You have not worn it since your Flarping days. The only part of it you kept on hand was the stylish pair of glasses, which of course since the incident has managed to become a regular accessory.

But you cannot imagine how someone could have gotten their hands on the rest of it. Surely a crafty and resourceful criminal is at work.

(spider troll spider troll spider troll)

Terezi: Wear suit.

[Image description: Terezi wears the teal bodysuit with a red vest and skirt. It's not an exact copy, but there are more similarities than differences.]

You don the garb of the legendary legislacerator. It brings back memories of many successful fantasy prosecutions resulting in the real executions of rival players. Those were the days.

Terezi: Open other chest.

[Image description: A white scalemate comes out of the other chest. Next to the smiley face on the back wall, there's now a large black smudge. A second image shows Terezi standing next to the eastern chest with the white scalemate on top of it.]

You got your Pyralspite Plush!

Pyralspite was your scalemate sidekick during your campaigns. He was the model of loyalty, friendship, and righteous retribution. More than could be said for another partner in justice.

There is no doubt about it anymore. She is clearly baiting you into confrontation.

You mean baiting.

[Note: In the correction, baiting is written as 88ing, like in Vriska's quirk.]

Terezi: Hug Pyralspite.

[Image description: Terezi grins and hugs Pyralspite, which squeaks.]

You embrace your old friend releasing a mighty and majestic squeak. It has been too long, old friend. You vow never to let him out of your scent agai....

Next

[Image description: Gamzee's silhouette flashes past and Pyralspite is replaced with Lil Cal. A faint Honk is left in Gamzee's wake.]

Next

[Image description: Terezi frowns at Lil Cal, who now sits on top of the chest that Pyralspite came
This puppet is becoming a nuisance. It appears to exhibit the same incredible puppet fastness properties which Dave's had. Must be some form of universal puppet enchantment. It couldn't possibly be the same one, because that would just be insane.

Hey, where did Pyralspite go???

Terezi: Look up.

There he is. How'd he get all the way up there? He has always been quite the slippery scalawag.

Maybe he was reminding you to check out the note. You almost forgot is was up there, what with all your furious investigating. Most of which has involved fooling around with records, hugging plush toys and cosplaying as a childhood heroine.

Terezi: Read it.

Just as you thought. It is a message from Vriska summoning you to do battle. It is written in Gamzee's rich jelly-smelling blood, but it is her handwriting for sure. Her quirk is present, leaving the matter undeniable.

But why the hell does she want you to bring this stupid puppet along? She's so weird.

There is a journal entry on the back. It probably isn't the slightest bit relevant to the current situation, but you guess it couldn't hurt to read it anyway.

Terezi: Examine journal entry.

I now do so in captivity, while I bring my awe to bear on the immensity of the Subjugglators high jinx. I took their gesture as plain avowal of my prosecution's futility. With a lone neophyte assigned to the task, how could I view it otherwise? I was sure they'd drawn from the bottom of their deck, not intending to squander more competent mercenaries on one who'd made a show of outclassing them all before. but I discovered too late that Redglare was their wild card all along.

How is one allowed to be raised by a dragon in this era? Let alone one of such middling blood, the sickly hue of a gutless civil servant. Those of her caste are typically pleased to mount a sluggish cholерbear, or some brainless squawking spleenfowl during petty expeditions to plaster seizure notices on gamblicant property. by what fluke was this woman granted such a weapon, permitting her to luxuriate in these delusions of righteousness?
Something blocked the light of the unbitten moon, treating the harbor to darkness more grim than what fell this season's apogee. I made the mistake of looking into its eyes, each like a sun concentrated into a small jewel, as two hot garnets searing through a black veil. I shut mine quickly, but the more sensitive of them was burned irreparably. When I regained sight in the other, there was only red. My fleet was in flames. The neophyte was on deck. Pyralspite, she mentioned through her ridiculous forced grin. She wanted me to know the name of the beast which was able to consume my lusus whole.

My dice were in the hold below, not that my present luck would consent to a favorable roll anyway. I made a move for my blade. She took my arm, which I'm sure she kept as the tiniest of snacks for her ostentatious custodian. Maybe she meant to prove she wouldn't need me in irons to have my submission?

bound or free.

Two, one or none.

I wonder how well she knows it's not what I do with my arms she has to fear?

I await my trial.

Insert disc 2.

[Image description: Disk two comes out of the case and spins up. It zooms out and it appears on a page of MS paint adventures within the panel. A loading bar appears above it. As it hits 100%, the disk snaps back into the whole panel as it automatically moves to the next page.]

[The disk vanishes and Vriska's 7 pupiled eye takes its place. It zooms in on the center pupil until the whole screen is black. The song Terezi Owns begins to play. Terezi holds the page. On the back, in a mix of Gamzee's alternating line capitalization quirk and Vriska's quirk, it says

(low) sis.
(caps) roof. now.
(low) bring the puppet.
(winking face with eight eyes and a round nose)

Terezi looks up and crumples the note, just like Dave did to the one Bro left him way back in act 2. She leaps into the pile of scalemates, then captchalogues it. She does the same to Cal, then does an Acrobatic Fucking Pirouette up on top of the bookshelf to reclaim Pyralspite. She jumps back down onto the ground, then reaches for her cane. The screen goes black and a white and red line slashes across it. It shows a stairwell outside of a door that's labeled Inn with indigo. The wall has one of Gamzee's smiley faces on it, also in indigo. Terezi kicks through the door so hard it flies off its hinges and hits the opposite wall. She holds Pyralspite over her shoulder and begins to ascend the stairs. It zooms in on Pyralspite's eye, which is a bright red button with a swirl in it, making it resemble the sun from Dave's home. Terezi ascends a spiral staircase. Behind her, the background fades to a night sky with a green moon. It pans down to a dock full of sailing ships at night time. It darkens even more, leaving the outlines of the ships and a castle overlooking them just barely visible. It cuts to Mindfang with two moons framed by her horns. The green one disappears and an image of Terezi carrying Pyralspite appears over her. Mindfang disappears and Terezi gives a small smile. It cuts back to Pyralspite, who bounces with each step. It once again zooms in on its eye, but the spiral grows to take up the whole screen, then flashes. It's now an eye of a massive dragon flying over a fleet of cerulean sailing ships. Redglare, Terezi's ancestor, rides on its back. It zooms in on her grinning the same grin as Terezi.

Mindfang stares up at her fearfully and the ships burn behind her. The image glitches for a moment, like it's covered with static, then it cuts back to the dragon's face, also glitching. It shows Vriska's eye with seven pupils turning red and filling in with the spiral. This image glitches and overlays with the scratched disk. The disk takes up the whole screen, then stops spinning.

A bunch of trolls stand on the deck of a sailing ship. A line of fire crosses the scene and suddenly the ship is on fire. Most of the trolls are either dead or tossing themselves into the sea. Four ships burn and sink against a red sky with the red spiral in it.

Redglare slides down her dragon's back, then jumps off. She lands, holding her cane out. A ship burns behind her. Everything fades to black except the red vest and her glasses, then the vest fades as well. Mindfang's face fades in behind her. She's sneering. Her eye with seven pupils is bright red. It zooms out. Her left arm is missing, too. She matches Vriska exactly.

Terezi or Mindfang, or maybe both, stalks forward.

Vriska sits on the ground where the 3x showdown happened. She has her laptop out, which has a Rose alert over it. Behind her, Terezi pulls herself over the edge of the platform. Vriska smiles and turns to look at her. Terezi glares and pulls herself to her feet. It cuts to Pyralspite sitting in a spotlight.

Had my escape not necessitated her demise, she would have made a lovely rival. If she'd only discarded her childish preoccupation with justice, we might have made a striking scourge. Had we inched blacker we'd have torn red miles across the land and sea. Unfortunately, the only miles to be found through her bureaucratic calling were those of red tape. It permitted a fair fight.
Though I was free, I had no fleet. No matter. With the gamblignants decimated, I'd embraced the turn in fortune and pledged to put my seagrafting ways behind me. With any luck, the skies will be my future. My thoughts again returned to that dragon.

but first, I was in need of temporary refuge. I sought it with the expatriate.

He owed me for the sweeps of protection I provided after his brazen defiance of the Highbloods. It was perhaps the only such courageous stand ever taken against a superior by one of his supercilious pedigree, and I'd not have bothered sticking my neck out for another. but the admiration he'd won naturally wore thin as he persistently bemoaned his treason and banishment, and I was saddened to find this habit holding "STRONG" even now. I wonder if he still believes she was worth it?

Repairing my arm would go a little further in squaring his debt with me. Even if I came with both intact I might have ripped one off and put him to the task just to halt to his blubbery. Darkleer was always a skilled machinist and the work proved an adequate distraction. So pacified, he listened to what I had to say, about my recent travails with the law, and Pyralspite, and what I'd come for in truth - the treasure he'd been keeping safe for me.

I cradled the oracle in my synthetic hand, as if appraising by weight the mystic qualities it still concealed. With my vision bfold seared away, I was as blind to its secrets as the old Doctor was to its present whereabouts. I'd learned to keep it cloaked from the awareness of the man who once called me his protege, a backhanded term of endearment from a smug manipulator. Locating his so called dark pockets was the only gambit I had in countering his milk tongued doublespeak. The expatriate for indiscernible reasons seemed naturally surrounded by such a void in the Doctor's awareness, and so was uniquely fit to inherit the orb. The Doctor could not see his treasure, nor I into it.

I considered what to do with it for a while. Should I find Pyralspite by consulting with the oracle, as I'd done so often to steal fortune from my adversaries? I guessed exploiting some technological means of gazing through its surface may have been simple enough, but I hesitated. Every expedient granted by its counsel, though never instantly, came at a price. Knowing his nature, I'm surprised I only now recognize it as yet another instrument of his spurious benevolence, dangerous by way of selective divulgence. The sense of infallibility his oracle brought me was superficial, and in hindsight weakened my readiness. Knowing my fate so far in advance, I took Redglare's threat lightly. The greatest mistake I have ever made was asking the orb when I would die.

but as I revisited the prophecy surrounding this unfortunate query, something struck me. I thought of the man I would have as a matesprit centuries from now, who was said to command an army of beasts. The one it called the summoner.

[Image description: A troll with horn's like Tavros's and brown wings flies with pyralspite through a blue and red sky. The troll has a red mohawk and red striped pants, making him resemble Rufio from Hook. The image glitches after a moment, then returns to normal.]

journalog
If my obsession with the dragon should continue to burn for so long, would he be the one to assist me in taming it? I did not have enough knowledge to ask the right questions when I had the opportunity. Were that the case, I might have asked if it would be his rare abilities of communion that would bring Pyralspite under control. Would it be on account of my influence? And if so, would I exert this influence by taking his will, or winning his heart? These are details I would have given no second thought in drawing from the orb, my curiosity a force usually too much to quell. but now...

I have thought of the summoner often. I have been troubled to know that as one so common blooded, he could not possibly have hatched yet, nor will he wriggle from the caverns for many sweeps. So I must have patience to take up my role in his story of heroism. It is a tale which reads to me as though lifted from a child's story, yet I know I'd be a fool to doubt its veracity entirely. He would rise through the ranks of the cavalreapers and assume command, having proven the most skilled and fearless of them. He would exhibit a remarkable pupation, the sort only recorded in myth, growing, or perhaps simply revealing, a striking pair of wings. His army thus inspired would spearhead a major rebellion. Surely one at least on the scale of the sectarian revolt crushed by the Highbloods, who thereafter forbade its mention, or any invocation of the heretical symbols at all, even in private journals.

Which is why I will stick to the fable of the summoner, and not risk another execution with even oblique reference to the compelling tale of the sufferer.

Resolution to the summoner's mutiny is foggy, as I only understand what has been related to me through the brief answers I thought to solicit. Ultimately, the ire of the Condesce would be such that in the settling dust of the conflict, she would banish all from the homeworld, except the young. She would scatter all who reached maturity to the stars to fight her wars, I presume to keep them occupied, existing in a less centralized state from which such a coup may arise. This is still an incredible notion for me to consider, and I cannot imagine how she would come to enforce such an upheaval in our civilization. Though I suppose she will have on her side the advantage of an unparalleled lifespan, and the leverage extended by the hideous psychic prongs of her deep undulating monstrosity. That is, until it chooses another little witch to serve. Nevertheless, I take the prediction as truth, and find it amusing that a homeworld dominated by children will be the great summoner's legacy. One of them, at least.

More importantly, and less amusingly, his legacy will be my demise. You see, I first learned his name when I asked who would be the one to kill me.

I have never spoken nor written of him out of contempt for the prophecy, but do so here, in my final entry for this journal. I took this to be a pitiable fate, and scoured the orb for any means of escaping it, or at least, to salvage a little dignity from the tale of my downfall. Alas, it had no consolation for my vanity.

but as I sit here deciding what to do with the damnable little sphere, I understand my error. It was not in failing to chart a course through future events to turn my fortune's tide, even so many sweeps from now. It was in believing the future was mine to know, and fortune mine to control. If this hero is meant to breathe life into my embittered heart, and if he is to earn the right to run it through, then so be it. For him, I will commit to this page my highest expectations. And for what precious uncertainty is left in my future, I renew my vigorous anticipation.

The oracle I will resolve to part with. I will conceal it in a crypt bearing the sign of the expatriate, with a map to its location hidden in this journal. To whomever finds it, be wary, for the truth it tells may leave its new keeper blind as I was. Though no more.

[S] Flip.

[Image description: A glitching loading screen shows a libra symbol and a scorpio symbol in orbit around a smiling troll emoji. When it loads, it looks like a workaround. Terezi stands on a transportalizer, tapping her cane in front of her. A trail of fuchsia, olive green, violet, brown, and royal blue blood leads south from the transportalizer. Try to walk south. The screen glitches violently as an Objection appears. A text box appears, but the text is random symbols and unreadable gibberish. The screen flashes white, then black, and the song Blind Justice Investigation begins to play. Terezi once again stands on the transportalizer. She walks south down a glitching hallway, following the trail of blood. The music also glitches. For a moment, we see Redglare being ambushed by the mind controlled crowd, then it returns to the hallway. Terezi turns a corner and heads west. There is a row of vats. The first one contains Eridan's legs. The second contains Nepeta's body, which is now decapitated. As Terezi passes it, a glitching image of her discovering Nepeta's body appears for a moment. The next contains Feferi, also decapitated. A glitching picture of her on the horn pile appears. The next vat contains Equius, decapitated just like the others. Eridan's death appears, then Equius's, then they both disappear and Terezi keeps walking down a hallway that glitches more and more. The last vat contains Tavros, also decapitated. His death appears, just like the others. The hallway turns north, and the rainbow blood trail continues up there. A glitchy horsaroni] appears, duplicates, then vanishes. The hallway gets darker as Terezi approaches the end, where there's a staircase. She goes onto the stairs, then everything glitches even more. Images flash quickly. Red static. Vriska, staring off into a void. Vriska smiling and looking over her shoulder. The light symbol. The glitching fades for a moment and Vriska turns to look at Terezi. Terezi holds pyralspite under one arm and her cane in the other. Behind her floats the mind symbol, which is a teal circle with three question mark shaped lines coming off of it, spaced evenly around the edge. The symbol glows, then the background turns white.

It cuts to a scribbly drawing of Gamzee using the Warhammer of Zillyhoo as a gavel. The table in front of him is labeled motherfucking jury and four heads sit on it. From left to right, it's Equius, Nepeta, Eridan, and Feferi. Tavros's horns poke on screen from the bottom. The picture glitches badly and turns white. Terezi looks up, then glitches to Vriska grinning smugly. As each speaks, they appear on screen.

Vriska lowers her horns at Terezi Vriska: hey redglare. Nice outfit!
Terezi: same to you mindfa...
I mean vriska
Terezi: as much as it pains me to admit, your fruity orange fairysuit smells…
A light symbol appears behind Terezi.
Terezi: delicious (frowning face with furrowed brows) Vriska: thanks! I see you finally wised up and started taking this rivalry seriously.
it was hard to antagonize you properly while you refused to get in character! (Winking face with eight eyes) Terezi holds a coin in one hand.
Terezi: I am not in character!!! (Gasping face with furrowed brows)
this is serious business, vriska see? I brought my deadly cane sword and cool coin and everything Vriska grins.
Vriska: yes, I can see that. So you've come for revenge, then.
I thought we settled all this a long time ago?
Terezi stares.
Terezi: no, not revenge. Justice! (Smiling face with furrowed brows) for the despicable murders of our innocent friends!
Terezi glares at Vriska from a few feet away. She's framed by Vriska's legs, just as Eridan was before the 3x showdown.

Vriska: murders? Like, plural?
Terezi: vriska, please. Do not try to deny it. I found the evidence tavros, nepeta... Even gamzee!!! I mean really vriska. Gamzee?!
(frowning face with furrowed brows and a round nose)
The background turns purple. It cuts to Vriska, who frowns and points at Terezi Vriska: gamzee isn't dead, you dope!
he flipped out or something and now (glitching text)
The whole scene glitches. It flickers to Vriska holding Tavros's legs, then Rose riding a pony, then Terezi. Then it just glitches too badly to make out what's happening. After a moment, it returns to the confrontation. They've switched places. Now Vriska is framed by Terezi's legs.

Vriska: well, yeah ok. There was like........ one murder I was responsible for.
you know tavros? That was me.
She looks uncertain
Vriska: I guess.
Terezi looks at her disbelievingly.
Terezi: ...
Vriska: but that's it! He's the only one I killed, just that one guy!
Terezi: (uncertain face)

Terezi does a double facepalm, and Lil Cal's hand comes on to make it a Facepalm x3 combo! The image glitches horribly. For a moment, we see Rose standing over something red, then the green explosion caused by her and Jack, then John bleeding out, then Cal's face surrounded by black lines, then Jack glaring at something. Then it stops glitching and gets back to Terezi.

Terezi: we both know you can't beat jack all that will happen is that you will lead him here and he will kill us all he will follow your sugary pixie trail with his keen canine snout
I have already seen this consequence in my minds eye
The mind symbol appears behind Terezi, then the libra symbol appears in the center of it. Vriska: fascinating! Why don't you tell me your terms already?? forget my pixie trail. At this rate, my snoring will lead him to us!
lol.
Terezi holds up the coin.
what I propose is simple Terezi: I flip heads, you stay
It zooms in on Terezi's glasses.
Terezi: scratch, you go
Vriska: you're kidding, right? You want luck to decide this?
The light symbol glows behind Vriska.
Vriska: maybe you forgot who you're dealing with. I am the thief of light.
you really expect me to lose a simple coin flip?
I've got aaaaaaaaalllllllll the luck, remember? (Smiling face with eight eyes and furrowed brows) Terezi: I did not forget what will it be, marquise?
Vriska: .......
just flip the fucking coin, neophyte.

Terezi flips the coin. The background behind her turns teal. The screen splits, just like with all the other showdows. The left half is teal and has a red outline of Terezi holding her cane sword. The right is cerulean blue with an orange outline of Vriska with white wings.

The coin flips through the air. Vriska's 7 pupiled eye appears behind it, then has the light symbol appear in it. It glitches for a moment, then begins to glow. It glitches again, stopping the coin's fall. It continues like this until you flick to go to the next page

Act 5: Hivebent, Act 2: He is Already Here, Part 5

[o] Please come in.

[Image description: The entire website turns green. There is a banner at the top, which looks like where an ad banner would go. Instead, it shows Doc Scratch's apartment. The room with the couch and model of the fully prototyped battlefield is on the left with another sitting area to the right. There's a model of a cube battlefield and a bowl of scotty dogs sitting on the table. The main panel shows Scratch standing near his door.]

[Note: The text is still white, but because of the dark green background, it doesn't need to be highlighted to read it.]

Welcome to my apartment. I trust you'll find my voice is more palatable against this decor. I continue to be an excellent host.

I'm expecting two more guests later. First one, and then another.

Make yourself comfortable in the meantime. But don't touch the candy on the table. That is reserved for one of my guests.

[o] Let's have a look at this disc.

[Image description: He holds the disk, which still shoots out a beam of light.]

She really did a number on it, didn't she? It's virtually unplayable like this.

What a shame. There are many moments trapped on this disc which you would have no doubt found to be quite exhilarating.

[o] But yes, I can fix it.

[Image description: The banner image stays the same. In the main panel, Scratch holds disk 2 up in front of his head, then a pulse of green light moves in from the edges to engulf it and it disappears. In a second image, it shows the Homestuck disk case, now with Disk One and an empty card.]

It will take time, though. I estimate, by which I mean I am certain by way of omniscience, that when I am done we will have reached just shy of the green circle on the card above. I'm sure you have already presumed this mark represents the beginning of Act 6. The disc should be ready to run in time to witness the Critical Event, a confluence of thickly interwoven, aconcurrent circumstances which have been meticulously arranged by myself, influenced to a much lesser extent by you, and by an even more negligible degree, our heroes. The scratch will be healed in time to watch these heroes put into motion, yes, The Scratch itself.

If you don't mind waiting here while I complete my repairs, I will tell the rest of the story. I will show you as well, as I recover data from the disc. But the visuals I supply will be nothing more than abbreviated snapshots, and my telling will be abridged.

Immortality notwithstanding, I'm not going to live forever, you know.

[o] Tick.

[Image description: The banner stays the same. In the main panel, it shows a green grandfather clock with a panel of static above the clock face and Skaia in a gem in the detail work above that.
Just below the 12, there is an 8 ball. According to the clock, it is 7:51.]

And since for once in my life, time is at a premium, let's get on with it. Where were we?

[o] Tock.

[Image description: The banner image says the same. In the main panel, Scratch stands in another green room, equally as fancy as the rest we have seen of his apartment. The clock is just to his left, next to a fireplace. Over the fireplace is a painting of a dragon flying over ships. Next to that, there is a flowery love seat next to a table with a very old TV on it.]

Never mind, I figured it out instantly because of my unfathomable intellect, limitless knowledge, and mind boggling charisma. Granted, my charisma had less to do with it than the other qualities.
But it didn't hurt, did it?

Here, I'll show you.

[o] Tick.

[Image description: The TV turns on, showing the teal and blue confrontation between Terezi and Vriska. The coin still flips.]

The Seer of Mind had challenged the Thief of Light to a simple game of chance.

If the result was the undamaged side, the Thief would agree to stay. If not, she would "go."

[o] Tock.

[Image description: The coin flips in front of Vriska's 7 pupiled eye with the light symbol in it.]

The result of the flip was left inconclusive, at which point you decided to pay me a visit.

But the inconclusive should not be confused with the uncertain. The actual result was trivial; it was a constant across all timelines.

[o] Both the Seer and the Thief knew this.

[Image description: The coin sits on the ground, scratch up.]

The Thief used her abilities to steal the fortune of her opponent, and forced the flip to yield what she regarded as the most favorable outcome. The Seer anticipated this move, correctly.

This is why I don't care much for gambling. While a sucker is born with each tick of the clock, a cheater is born with each tock betwixt.

Also, because it is boring, and I am already a very wealthy man.

[o] Tick.

[Image description: Terezi clutches her cane.]

The Seer relayed her terms through the generally understood argot of an assassin. The result "go," while at face value would suggest the Thief was allowed to leave, was actually the Seer's code word for the threat of death. This was obvious to everyone, including the Thief.

[o] Tock.

[Image description: Terezi, still clutching her cane, glares at Vriska, who turns away and waves goodbye.]

While the Thief turned to fly away, making a show of claiming her prize, the Seer would stab her in the back the moment her guard was dropped. This was her plan. Not a particularly clever tactic in its own right, but its ingenuity didn't dwell in the novelty of the ruse, nor even the neutralized probabilities in the game of chance. Psychology was in play.

[o] Tick.

[Image description: It shows the same scene, from a slightly different angle, and with Terezi and Vriska in teal and orange silhouette.]

Naturally, the Thief knew this was her intent all along. She knew the Seer would have understood the outcome to be rigged, and that she likely intended to kill her as a consequence of the fixed result. This was to be seen as an implicit dare to the Thief to allow the flip to fall fairly, something which the Seer knew the Thief's ego wouldn't allow.

And the Seer knew the Thief knew all this as well.

Just another pair of cheaters attempting to play with their cards face up. Amateurs.

[o] Tock.

[Image description: Terezi grits her teeth and unsheathes the sword cane. She's surrounded by a jagged black outline that cuts into a teal and red background.]

Each was gambling, not with any vehicle of probability, which had been eliminated from the equation, but with each other's intentions. The Thief indeed took the Seer's bait, stealing the luck needed to affect the flip in defiance of her dare. And in turning to leave, she then posed a dare of her own to the Seer, challenging her to back up the implied threat.

This was the Thief's gamble. She wagered the Seer would not be able to go through with it.

[o] It turned out,

[Image description: Terezi holds her sword, but she just watches Vriska fly away.]

She was right.

[o] So ends a tale of rivalry.
Well, almost. There's a bit more.

But in order to understand its proper conclusion, we should first catch up with another of my other proteges, from whom I'm expecting a message shortly.

The other Seer.

The other Hero of Light.

[0] Tick.

[Image description: It shows the battlefield within Skaia, but a plume of grey smoke comes out of it and mingles with the tendrils looped around the planet.]

[0] Tock.

[Image description: It zooms in. In addition to the hole John carved, there's now an even larger crater in the southwest area of the planet.]

[0] Tick.

[Image description: Chunks of land fly up around the crater.]

[0] Tock.

[Image description: It zooms in towards one of the pieces, where two figures stand. The shattered tower of a castle flies behind them. A cloud off to the side shows Vriska and Terezi just before Vriska leaves.]

[0] Round Two.

[Image description: Rose and Jack face each other and glare. Rose has her wands out and Jack holds his sword while flickering green. John's body lays on the ground behind them. It says Strife at the top of the screen.]

[Image description: Jack slashes for Rose with his sword, but she Ogloparrises it and catches it on one of her wands. Pulsing green and blue energy comes out of the contact point. Both of their health vials appear, but neither reduces.]

She flew away to take vengeance on the Noir this side of The Scratch. That is, the one less angry and dangerous. The one not yet unmotivated by a compelling duel.

[0] Compelling, but not particularly challenging.

[Image description: They fly away, still duelling and surrounded by pink lightning. Rose's health vial is down by a quarter, but Jack's hasn't moved.]

The Seer wouldn't win this duel.

My apologies if this spoils the outcome for you. I can't speak as discreetly about such matters against this canvas.
Tick.

I warned her.

I warned my neophyte protege not to stare into that ball.

Tock.

I told her about stares.

((wide eyed sweet bro and hella jeff face))

I'll remind you that the pacing of my account will be characterized by a reduction in granularity from what you have come to expect by way of an undamaged disc. You will imagine the remainder of the duel to be sensational, and I will continue my steady distribution of facts as if they were pieces of candy, poured from a bottomless white hemisphere.

The duel ends. The Seer dies. The Slayer departs. The Heir comes back to life.

This outcome was hardly a point of suspense.

It would be disingenuous of me to present it as such, and I will not belittle your intelligence with such a tawdry narrative ploy. It would be rude, and I am too well dressed for that kind of behavior.

If there truly stood some chance of permanence to the Heir's corpsehood, I can hear you asking now...

How could this moment later come to pass?

And for that matter, what sort of story would this be, with our human Hero of Breath made to stay a cadaver? Definitely not one the alpha timeline would allow.

And what sort of spectator would you be...
If you'd forgotten the terms ruling the conditional immortality he won with his previous, similarly unceremonious impaling?

He'd done nothing to earn martyrdom,

By which we might laud his fall as heroic.

Nor had he tasted notoriety,

To secure a death one may parse just.

And while I can't give you my assurance,

I'm reasonably convinced of this much. When the Hero of Breath dies for good, it won't be as a scoundrel.

But not for lack of a devoted mentor.

If I had served as his mentor directly, rather than as his mentor's mentor's mentor, he may have stood a fair chance of perpetrating something underhanded. At the very least, his jokes might have been better.

Instead, he got her.

The other Hero of Light. Always bugging him.

Bugging and fussing and meddling.

What's her deal?

Let's find out.

I mentioned there was a bit more to her story. I believe it's time to resume it.
I trust you won't mind if I step away for a moment. I have important guests arriving very soon. If you need me, I'll be up here, making sure everything is in order, which it already is, and keeping an eye, which I don't have, on the clock, which I don't need.

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, Scratch stands near the cube battlefield model. In the main panel, Vriska flies away from the troll's meteor entirely, still trailing a blue line and sparkles.]

[o] Tock.

[Image description: In the banner, Scratch pours more Scotty Dogs into the already full bowl of Scotty Dogs. In the main panel, Vriska flies towards a pulsing, light blue orb.]

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, Scratch stands near the door. In the main panel, Vriska looks towards a small frog platform that has the top half of their exit door floating away from it.]

[o] Tock.

[Image description: In the banner, Spades Slick enters Scratch's apartment. In the main panel, Vriska begins to glow blue as she approaches Jack on the platform.]

[o] Bonk.

[Image description: In the banner, Scratch sits on the floor as Slick repeatedly bonks him with the cane. In the main panel, Vriska points at Jack, who just stares at her.]

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, Scratch bends the cane. In the main panel, Jack looks away from Vriska, towards the trail she left behind her.]

[o] Tock.

[Image description: In the banner, Slick takes back his now knotted cane. In the panel, Vriska watches indignantly as Jack flies off, following her trail back towards the meteor.]

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, Scratch and Slick stand near the cube battlefield model. In the panel, Vriska shakes her fist at Jack as he vanishes in a green flash.]

[o] Tock.

[Image description: In the banner, Scratch's typewriter has a Rose alert over it and Slick stands near the bowl of Scotty Dogs. Scratch stands behind him. In the panel, Vriska glares towards where Jack disappeared.]

[o] Tick.

[o] Tock.
Apologies for my preoccupation. I have managed to pacify the rowdier of my two other guests with sugary little black dogs, so that I may continue my narration. But only briefly. In a moment, I will go stand over by my typewriter and teach my neophyte protege the consequences for taking advice from strange men over the internet, while I continue to attend to my second guest, who is you from an earlier point in the story.

Remember?

We met here in my apartment a little while ago. At that moment, I was busy hosting you from the future, who is you right now, but I did not mention this at the time. I would have introduced your past self to your future self and vice versa, but it is a well known fact that past and future selves tend not to get along. A good host would never tolerate the potential for discord among guests, and as hosts go, I am simply the best there is.

Please don't be alarmed. Past you was just leaving.

Where was I?

Of course.

The two Heroes of Light had challenged the same Jack Noir, the one straddling The Scratch and about twenty hours of his own time, to a circumstantially simultaneous pair of duels. Circumstantial simultaneity is a concept more complex than its temporal analogue, and is valuable for examining the properties of paradox space. It is the agent responsible for the major cosmic event which pre-extinction Alternians came to refer to as The Great Undoing. The same concept rules the innumerable lesser events by which this critical moment shall be catalyzed, including the break, my employer's arrival, the detonation of a very powerful bomb, and my own death. It is an abstraction weaving together the fortunes of otherwise perfectly disparate chronologies, such as those bound to a pair of distinct sessions. It's not fully comprehensible to a mortal mind, and the length I will go to explain it to you will not extend beyond this sentence.

But the story will.

The Slayer was, for the moment, unmotivated by the Thief's motion for a compelling duel. This side of The Scratch, he opted for a more ruthless and calculating policy of extermination. On his arrival, not about to repeat the mistakes leading to his banishment, he quickly obliterated all twelve planets, followed by Prospit and Derse, to weed out those who might outsmart him in the same manner.
With as little fanfare, he seized the opportunity to follow the Thief's trail quickly before it dissipated, and destroyed their hideout in the veil.

[o] And now knowing her position,

[Image description: In the banner, Scratch still stands at the typewriter, but Slick is gone. In the panel, Vriska looks over her shoulder, where Jack appears in a flash. The sword in his chest is covered with teal and bright red blood.]

He would soon return for the duel she wanted.

[o] But not without a pair of trophies.

[Image description: In the banner, Slick comes on near the bowl of scotty dogs, which is now upside down. He has a yellow oil can in his hands and twists off the lid. In the panel, Terezi and Karkat lay on the ground in mingling pools of bright red and teal blood. Jack looks down at them.]

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, Slick begins to pour oil on the floor. In the panel, Vriska snarls at Jack and hunches over, ready to attack.]

[o] Tock.

[Image description: In the banner, Scratch sits in the chair with his gun hanging from the back. He has the bloodstained tilde ath manual in his lap. On the side of the room, Slick pours oil over everything. In the main panel, it shows a closer image of Scratch holding the manual. His legs don't even reach the floor. A second image shows it open. The honk honk code is still here, but there are four pictures on top of it. From left to right, top to bottom, they are Vriska looking towards the green explosion, Jack appearing behind Vriska, Terezi and Karkat on the ground, and Vriska ready to attack.]

Again, sorry for the interruption. My conversation with the girl ran a bit long, slightly exceeding the one second I scheduled for it.

This is where events begin to outpace my awareness. The deeper into this dark pocket we explore, the more I will be forced to speculate. I rarely have cause to rely on probability, but luckily for you, my guesses are better than anybody's.

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, Scratch has the now open book on his lap and Slick pours more oil over the room. The panel shows another page with five photos. One showing Terezi's glasses laying in a pool of teal and red blood covers part of the other four, which are the bloodsplattered poster from Karkat's room in Aradiabot's memory, the crowd of trolls and Jade standing in the bloodsplattered room, all of them looking at the tilde ath manual, and a photo of the honk honk code. Scratch reaches for the picture of the glasses. In a second image, he pulls the picture off of the page.]

I have always believed that a good storyteller should keep a comprehensive record of past events on hand. A scrapbook of personal significance, for instance, from which he may piece together current moments from past ones of a similar, if not identical nature. It's more efficient.

[o] Tock.
It's also logical, since there is essentially nothing new in paradox space. Everything that can happen is either a visual or substantive reproduction of something which has already transpired on a timeline, offshoot or otherwise.

And if I'm going to speculate on this duel, I might as well make use of earlier clippings.

For the Slayer, this was round one against the Hero of Light.

All I really need to do is flip it turn-ways, like so, and we have...

And just as probably, due to her impressive hoard of stolen fortune, she would have a 100% chance of rolling the most favorable result.

Ordinarily, this result would be almost impossibly improbable. The odds of the roll would be 1 in 16,777,216, to be specific.

And to be less specific, 1 in...

[o] (sweet bro and hella jeff face, or 8 to the power of y) and begin to glow and shake. She rolled all 8s. There is a small black smudge in the bottom right corner.

Where \( y = 8 \).

[Hee hee.]

[Note: Hee hee is written in green and enclosed in brackets.]

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, scratch has left the burning room, In the panel, Vriska glows blue and white and everything shakes. A text box at the top of the screen has alternian text in it. It translates to Ancestral Awakening. In a second image, Scratch reaches for a fire alarm in a part of the room that's not on fire.]

[o] Tock.

[Image description: In the banner, a black hand reaches on screen and grabs for some more scotty dogs. In the main panel, Vriska's outfit has changed and she's drawn as a flashing blue silhouette against bright, quickly flashing stars. In a second image, Scratch reaches towards the fire alarm again.]

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, Matchsticks, the member of The Felt with the 11 hat, comes on with the fire extinguisher. In the panel, Vriska grins smugly. She's wearing her Mindfang outfit and clutching a blue sword with a hook like one of her horns. Behind her, there is a pink ocean with pink sailing ships.]

[o] Tock.

[Image description: In the banner, Matchsticks sprays the fire extinguisher. In the panel, Jack and Vriska cross swords. Health vials appear above both of them, but neither is missing any. Alternian text at the bottom says Auto-Parry.]

[o] In round two, the Slayer would be not merely compelled,

[Image description: Matchsticks continues spraying the fire extinguisher at the fire. In the background, Clover, the number 4 Felt member, flails. In the panel, Vriska forces Jack back towards the edge of the platform. Her health vial is still full, but his has lost some. Blue and red clouds pulse behind them.]

But challenged, if my guess is right.

Challenged by one claiming godhood before reaping the prodigious spoils from striking down a formidable endgame foe. One with the guile of a cheater, the luck of a Clover, the hubris of her mentor, and the drive known only to the pathologically competitive.

[Note: Clover is written in bright green.]

I believe he'd be challenged, yes...

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, Matchsticks continues spraying. Slick comes back on and glares at the little bits of remaining fire. In the main panel, Jack and Vriska stand on top of the broken exit door. Something glows between them. Jack's health vial is missing about a third and Vriska's is at half.]

But not outmatched.

As one who shares the Slayer's source of power, my projection must give him the unambiguous advantage. But even so...

[o] While I continue to not be a gambling man,

[Image description: In the banner, Matchstick puts out another patch of fire. Slick carries the bent cane, which is red hot from the fire. In the main image, Jack and Vriska fly just outside of Skaia, but Vriska is flying backwards, on the defensive. Jack has a green sun around him and Vriska glows blue. His health vial is back up to almost full, but Vriska's is still at half.]

(That didn't stop being a thing that was true or anything.)

[o] Tock.

[Image description: In the banner, Matchsticks puts out the last of the fire and Slick holds the bent cane over his head. In the main panel, Vriska jumps up and holds her sword over her head, ready to strike down at Jack. Jack's health bar is back to half.]

I'm reasonably sure that if I was,

[o] I wouldn't bet against her.

[Image description: In the banner, Slick throws the cane at Matchsticks and it bonks him in the head. In the panel, Vriska snarls and swings down. Jack brings his sword up to block her strike.]

[o] Moving on.

[Image description: In the banner, Matchsticks lays on the ground with blood pouring from his head as Slick beats him with a crowbar. Clover stands by the cube battlefield model and has a red exclamation mark flashing over his head. In the main panel, Vriska still lunges towards Jack, but now she's surrounded by a pulsing mind symbol. In a second image, Clover holds a small grey coin with a number 14 billiard ball on it.]

Let's pull back from this ever narrowing dark pocket. All this uncertainty is wearing thinner than the only pair of pants in an immortal's wardrobe.

I've never much enjoyed navigating the vortices of alternative possibility. The path which alone has my absolute mastery is the alpha timeline, a continuum I define as that which boasts exclusive rights both to my birth and to my death, two circumstantially simultaneous events. Any divergence from this path to my knowing will taper into blackness like rotting roots. But if I was a Seer, such offshoots would be fully within my domain. And if I was a Seer of Mind in particular, synaptic causality would be my specialty.

A Seer of Mind would have given you a more reliable account, perhaps. But then, she would do many things I wouldn't.

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, Clover holds the coin and dances on top of the cube battlefield.]
Slick stands on top of Matchsticks, who has gone still. In the main panel, a series of mind symbols connect like synapses. Three of them show images. The back one shows Vriska swinging down at Jack. The left one in the front shows the white king's scepter from the troll's session shattering, and the right one shows the troll's black king surrounded by floating lily pads. In a second image, Clover flips the coin.

A Seer would support her allies in battle not with her weapons, but her vision. She would sift through dross of her comrades' poor tactical inclinations and examine the grim consequences. A Seer would not charge into the fray headlong but direct it as a conductor with a baton. She would have the sight to eschew the obvious gambits, and find the path to victory disguised cleverly as setback, or even imminent defeat. She would behold the fortunes of friends and foes in totality, and appraise the contrivance of luck itself. She would know its mines were not to be plundered, but simply explored and charted carefully.

[o] Tock.

[Image description: In the banner, Clover flips the coin and Slick steps down off of Matchsticks. In the panel, mind symbol synapses flash past. Some contain pictures, but they flash by too quickly to see. In a second image, the 14 coin flips. One side shows 4, one shows 14.]

A true Seer would know where luck is a given, where it is absent, and most importantly, where it doesn't matter at all.

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, the coin lands, 14 side up. In the panel, a mind symbol synapse shows Karkat's and Terezi's bodies. It gets smaller and flashes, then appears on Terezi's forehead. She's alive and holding her cane sword out. In a second image, the coin sits 14 side up and glows green.]

And she would know victory doesn't matter in a reality where all else is doomed to fail.

[o] Tock.

[Image description: In the banner, Quarters, the number 14 Felt member, pops out of the coin and lands on the other side of the room. He's holding a machine gun. In the main panel, it shows Terezi's coin sitting scratch side up. A second image shows her and Vriska in silhouette again, but now Terezi has a mind symbol with a libra symbol in it on her forehead. Watermarked on the background is her and Karkat's dead bodies. In a third image, she clutches her cane.]

What sort of story would this be, with our Knight and Seer made to stay cadavers? Certainly not one the alpha timeline would allow.

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, Quarters shoots his gun through the fully prototyped battlefield model and into Slick. Vriska turns to leave, but a sword thrusts through her chest in an exact parallel to Jack stabbing John. The background goes red, then black. A spray of cerulean blood crosses the blackness.]

And not one she'd allow either.

[o] Tock.
[Image description: In the banner, Slick tries to move away from the bullets, but Quarters turns to follow him. In the main panel, a blue line of blood appears in the light symbol on Vriska's chest in another parallel to John.]

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, Slick's body lays on the table that once held the scotty dogs. Matchsticks puts his gun away. In the panel, blood spreads out from Vriska's wound, turning the orange fabric blue.]

[o] Tock.

[Image description: The banner shows Slick's body in a mind symbol synapse, amid a sea of other synapses that don't have scenes. In the main image, the background shows Vriska's wound. Terezi just watches as Vriska falls forward.]

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, it zooms out. In the main image, Terezi stands over Vriska's body. Her laptop sits off to the side with a Rose alert over it. In the distance, Karkat climbs over the edge of the platform.]

[o] Tock.

[Image description: In the banner, mind synapses flash by. In the panel, Karkat stares at Terezi in blank shock.]

[o] Tick.

[Image description: The banner shows a pulsing starscape with teal mind symbols flashing behind them. In the main panel, Terezi turns to look at Karkat, who's holding a piece of paper. A second image shows the paper. It shows a child in very 80's clothes with nubby horns and a cancer symbol drawn in red on it, but slightly off center and skewed. The original caption on the page says You think you're soooooo cool…, but a new message has been written in indigo. It mixes Gamzee's sober quirk with Terezi's. It says (low) bro.
(caps) sloppy makeouts. Now.
(low) On the roof.
(caps) He he he (smiley face with a round nose and furrowed brows)]

[o] Tock.

[Image description: In the banner, is shows a pair of white eyes staring out from the starscape. In the panel, Terezi and Karkat hug. In the distance, Kanaya leads Sollux towards them.]

[o] Tick.

[Image description: The banner zooms out. The eyes are in a carapacian's face and that carapacian is wearing a wide brimmed hat. In the main panel, it zooms in on Kanaya and Sollux. Kanaya is wearing a long red dress and red gloves. There's no blood on her anymore. Sollux is still wearing his bloody shirt, but now he has Feferi's goggles on and has a bandage over a bite mark on his neck.]

[o] Tock.
[Image description: The banner zooms out more. It's snowman. In the main panel, Gamzee holds the warhammer of Zillyhoo and watches from a distance.]

[o] Honk.

[Image description: In the banner, it zooms out more and snowman disappears, leaving just a bright green background. The main panel shows Gamzee, still drawn in dark grey and black, holding the warhammer of Zillyhoo. He still has the three scratches on his face and his eyes are now bright red.]

[o] Honk.

[Image description: In the banner, Snowman stands in Scratch's apartment, where Slick is still alive, but Quarters is getting ready to shoot him. In the main panel, Gamzee stands there, staring at everyone. In order of closest to nearest, it's Sollux and Kanaya, then Terezi and Karkat, then Vriska's body and her laptop, which still has a Rose alert.]

[o] Tick.

[Image description: In the banner, Snowman stab Quarters in the chest with her lance. In the panel, it shows Vriska's hand, head, and wing in a pool of blue blood. Her laptop still sits on the book and has an alert over it, but the alert goes off screen.]

A.G.: John!!!!!!!!
You're heading into the blackout, so I won't be able to see you until you leave.
but don't worry, I can still sense you are there. because of awesome powers, remember?
Smooth move, ditching your computer like that, by the way. That was some incredible leadership you showed!
Now I have to contact you through Rose, thus exposing me to the risk of actually having to taaaaaaaaalk to her.......
Your carelessness has put the Heroes of Light in a very awkward position, John. I hope you're satisfied.
Hahahaha, just kidding. She's obviously a little too "preoccupied" at the moment to be sassing me.
Just borrow her computer and talk to me when you get the chance, ok?
I will be waiting. (smiley face with eight eyes)

[o] Tock.

[Image description: In the banner, Quarters falls over and Snowman reaches for the lance. In the main panel, Rose's body lays in a pool of blood with a light alert over her head. John's body lays nearby, partially on screen, but he begins to glow rainbow. A second image shows Scratch standing near the clock in his TV room. The clock face is gone. Instead, it's split vertically and has a breath symbol on it. The left half is purple and the right half is yellow. His head shows Rose's body.]

All of the dots, John. All 16.777216 million of them.
Still dead, huh?
Or are you too busy weeping over her corpse to pick up that headset and answer me?????????
You can't fool me, John. I know you are not staying dead for long. And it is not just because I can clearly see you're alive in the future! (tongue sticking out face with eight eyes)

You see, we are both the best there is, and therefore we have special privileges when it comes to mortality. It's hard to keep a god dead for good. We can only die under very specific circumstances. Didn't I mention?

[Image description: The sound of a ticking clock plays. In the banner, Snowman smokes on her bloody cigarette holder, which she just returned from its lance form. Blood is smeared on her lips and her neck shows a starscape. In the panel, the green clock stands alone. The pendulum swings back and forth slowly, moving a hand along with it. It shifts back and forth between the sections and as it does, the clock flashes that color. A panel above the face, where there was once static, switches between two words. Purple is Just. Yellow is Heroic.]

pesterlog
A.G.: Nothing too glorious about the way you just died, I bet. Let me guess, even after all my lessons, you allowed yourself to get sucker stabbed, right? Pretty lame!
I mean, lucky for you it was lame. I guess being lame pays off when dying a hero's what gets you killed.
If our Hero of breath reached god tier, he would have been completely indestructible! Lol.
Damn, I forgot, I was going to stop ripping on that guy, since he got stabbed through the chest and died. Haha, whoops.
Anyway, I figure you're probably safe from a just death too, since I'm pretty sure you haven't done anything all that despicable.
Yet. (smiley face with eight eyes)

[o] Stop.

[Image description: In the banner, Slick approaches Snowman and holds up his crowbar. In the main panel, the clock stops with its hand vertically, landing on neither just nor heroic. The clock face flashes with brightly colored nebula and the clock begins to send out tendrils of rainbow.]

pesterlog
A.G.: I don't know for sure, but I'm betting that if I go to fight Jack, it will wipe out all the bad things I've done.
I think if I die it'll be a hero's death, so it ought to stick.
Pretty good motivation to win the fight though, don't you think?
One way or another, I think this will be my last big challenge as a gamer.
As such, I would like to pass my dice on to you.
It is very important to me that they stay in good hands, John. That you continue their legacy, and that of my ancestor.
8 2 the eighth.
Use the code! I'm sure I can count on you to make something awesome with it.

[o] Slick... I am serious. Please stop.

[Image description: In the banner, Slick steps even closer. In the main panel, John lifts up off the ground. His blood and the area around him glows with bright rainbow colors.]

pesterlog
You better hurry up! She probably doesn't have much time left.
Trust me, what she's going through on Derse right now isn't much fun.
Ok, I guess I should mention why I'm trying to contact you now of all times, rather than just skipping ahead.
Remember how we talked about your backup plan? The one you have devised to defeat Jack, in the off chance I fail?
Well, it's not going to work if Rose is dead, is it?
You have to wake her up! breathe some life into her. Do the windy thing, with your lips!!!!!!!
You know what that means........

[Image description: In the banner, it shows Slick and Snowman's feet. They're standing incredibly close to each other. Both the crowbar and cigarette holder sit on the ground. In the main panel, John kneels next to Rose and holds her hubtopband. He looks confused and upset.]

pesterlog
A.G.: Gotta kiss her.
Don't worry, I still can't see you, so there is no reason to be bashful or anything.
And since we are a couple of professionals here who are focused on winning, we both know it doesn't have any meaning.
It's not like I would be jealous even if I could see.
Why would I be?
Or maybe that didn't even cross your mind........ haha.
Man, why am I even talking about this.

[Image description: In the banner, it shows Slick and Snowman are holding each other and kissing. There's a blood splattered Spade alert next to them. In the background, Scratch holds his head and has a large exclamation mark over him. In the main panel, John wears the hubtopband. The eye piece shows Rose's body.]

pesterlog
A.G.: Let's just forget I said that. This isn't really how I wanted this conversation to go!
I guess I was assuming you'd be talking back by now. So now I'm just talking and talking and spinning my wheel device like an idiot.
Maybe I don't actually know how I wanted it to go.
I guess I could just shut up and skip ahead on your timeline a little, talk to you when you're alive.
That would make sense.
So
I guess
I will do that.
but then........
Maybe if I did, I wouldn't actually say what I wanted to say.
So
I will just say it.

[Image description: The banner is now surrounded by a grey, metallic border and shows a static-y image of Snowman and Slick hate-kissing each other. In the main panel, John looks down at Rose's body. In a second image, Scratch bangs on a narrow window, which looks like a shorter version of the 4th wall Jade had.]

pesterlog
A.G.: To be honest, I am nervous about this fight.
but I'm still going through with it, for a lot of reasons.
To save my friends, or at least the ones who are still alive. Oh, and I guess to save reality itself from being totally fucked up. There's that too.
but I think what's motivating me to win this fight the most is........
The possibility of getting to meet you when it's all over!
Maybe I can finally put all this terrible stuff behind me.
And I won't have to worry about being the best anymore, or proving what a ruthless killer I can be.
Maybe I can try out whatever is supposed to be normal for a human. Who knows, it might not be as boring as it sounds!
Maybe
If you're not too freaked out by all the bad things I've done........
Or the fact that I am an alien
We could go on a date? (gasping face with furrowed brows)

[o] To redirect the view from this impropriety. Oh goodness.

[Image description: In the banner, which is still surrounded by metal, it shows a close up of Snowman and Slick's lips as they hate snog. In the main panel, John holds the back of Rose's neck and lifts her off the ground a bit.]

pesterlog
A.G.: Don't worry, it could be a human date, whatever that entails.
No weird alien stuff, I promise! And no killing or murders, or even talking about killing or murders and such. Just whatever you like to talk about and think is cool.
I could even be persuaded to watch more of your absurd human films.
Do you like any others which feature that rugged human with the long hair and wounded arm?
You know the one. The sweaty guy with the mutilated animal and the speech impediment.
Those would be tolerable to watch, I bet.

[o] There.

[Image description: The banner shows the same kissing for a moment, then flickers to static. When the image comes back, it's Jade in her 3 in the morning dress standing on LoFaF, which is close to Rose. There's blood on her lips. A second image shows Scratch shoving himself between Snowman and Slick. There's a faint grey club symbol in his head.]

Sorry about your adult male guardian. I wasn't trying to be deceptive by not telling you.
I decided not to, because I didn't want to be the one to make you sad about it.
Was that selfish of me? I dunno.
You would have found out regardless. Like we all did. There are things we care about that we just

I am frankly pretty upset about finding them dead in the magic castle, and I guess I was wondering aloud if something could have been done.
E.B.: or at least maybe to talk about it, without angry tirades being involved.
C.G.: exactly, you were embarking down tragedy lane, and we've got to stamp that garbage out.
we can't have you getting all morose while we've got so many irons in the fire.
fuck, loaded phrase, forget I said that.
just clam your shit up and forget your stupid guardian, like I did with my dear crab monster custodian, who I adored in no way whatsoever.
E.B.: you are being a douche!!!
wait, what am I saying, you are always a douche, hehe.
C.G.: yes, thank you.
E.B.: heheheheh, your dad was a crab monster?
C.G.: shut the fuck up.
we were talking about something important.
rose, remember.
E.B.: yes.
C.G.: she is waiting on derse for your bomb to be delivered.
it will arrive safely, a little later.
E.B.: oh, great!
how do you know it gets there?
C.G.: jade told me.

[o] To do what it is you do best.
In the banner, Jade keeps shooting Jack, but he flickers and is in two places at once, redirecting the bullets into Dave. In the panel, it shows a white, pixellated gun like the one from a recent SBAHJ comic. It's labeled deadly firearms. In a second image, Scratch points the gun at Slick's head. A third image shows more of the photos. Karkat banishes the thought of Jade and Jadesprite kissing. Jade puts a tadpole into the 8 ball. Kanaya sits in a pile of pillows on the rim of a volcano. Crosshairs sit over a frozen frog. Karkat looks at his computer. Jade looks concerned. Aradia watches Green Suit Dave realize that he's dead. Dream Rose looks towards Dream Dave as bullet holes appear in his chest.

pesterlog
C.G.: jade from further ahead on your timeline.
before my piece of shit clown-bro made everything terrible here, she and I were hammering out these plans.
I talked to her across pretty much the full spread of her timeline, until the scratch starts and the feed cuts out.
so I have a sense of the whole picture here, and it's my job now to put some things into motion.
E.B.: that's cool!
it's nice to hear you are working together. I should pester jade and see what she's up too...
C.G.: you should sit your ass tight and do the fuck what I tell you the fuck to fucking do.
E.B.: oh...
C.G.: anyway, she and dave do a lot of frog breeding, accelerating the process significantly by exploiting time travel, with help from me and kanaya, since we were in charge of frog duties in our session.
E.B.: frog duties??? wait, which one is kanaya again?
C.G.: don't interrupt, I am following a train of thought.
ok, kanaya is my other best friend, and she was the hero of space like jade which means she's the stoker of the forge and is basically in charge of frogs, which sounds retarded, I know. You breed the right frog to make the universe you want to make, which is a long arduous process and I kind of fucked it up in my game, but that's a whole other story which I'll get to later, ok?
C.G.: she and dave ran into jack, which I'm sure he must have saw coming because I've never seen anyone exploit time travel so shamelessly as him, not even aradia.
E.B.: aradia?
C.G.: just another dead troll, who cares.
E.B.: (sad face)
C.G.: stop frowning, she was already dead before she died.
E.B.: ...
(sad face)
C.G.: so she and dave fought with him a while, and long story short, he died.
E.B.: what!!!
C.G.: but it's fine, I guess that was his plan, like some bizarre useless last stand, even if he didn't tell jade who was pretty freaked out until I talked her through it.
E.B.: did she kiss him too? (gasping face)

[o] You are not supposed to kiss her, Mr. Noir.

[Image description: In the banner, Jade holds Dave's body just as John did for Rose. Behind them, Jack looks sad, like a dog that's being scolded. In the panel, flickering green and white text says You're supposed to kill her. A second image shows Scratch offering slick the pistol against a background of green static. Scratch’s head shows an 8 ball. A third image shows more pictures. John kisses Rose's corpse. Terezi kisses Tavros's. Karkat kisses Kanaya's. Jade looks over her shoulder at a sad looking Jack just before she kisses Dave's body. In two places, the pictures are labeled 2 times corpsesmooch combo!!! One in red and purple, one in green and brown.

pesterlog
C.G.: yeah.
right there, while jack watched like a fucking creep.
but it worked.
E.B.: omg, karkat. It is like your shitty shipping grid is coming true before our very eyes.
haha, remember when you made that ugly thing?
C.G.: who gives a fuck about shipping, or my ludicrous stranglehold over all topics concerning romance, I'm still talking.
he woke up alive on derse, and met with rose.
that was the end of the line for alpha dave. To my knowledge, he doesn't time travel after that, and he and rose stay on derse waiting for the bomb until you start the scratch. But I can't see either of them because of the blackout lingering around rose for whatever reason. Nobody knows what's up with that.
C.G.: regardless, his job is to plot a course through the ring to find the sun.
when he does, either he or rose will deliver the bomb.
I don't know which.

[o] Now leave, and never darken my door again.

[Image description: The banner turns to static, then shows Scratch's apartment. It's still covered in fire extinguisher powder. Matchsticks and Quarter's bodies lay on the ground. In the panel, Slick takes the gun, then vanishes in a green flash. Scratch flashes, then expands and the same image shows the broken clock in his TV room, which is surrounded by pictures now. A second image shows the pictures. Jadesprite yells at Jade. Gamzee sits on top of the vat. Karkat imagines Jade and Jadesprite kissing. Jade and Jack Noir stand in a forest somewhere on LoFaF. A large statue of a snake creature with two tails and spikes along the back of its head and shoulders sits somewhere on LoFaF. The ruler Hussie broke in the SBAHJ style section hovers in a white void. Karkat uses Vriska's computer while splattered with indigo blood.]

E.B.: but now they don't have dream selves left!
who ever goes will be risking their life for good, won't they?
C.G.: that would be the logical extension of those facts, yes.
E.B.: this is unacceptable!
couldn't I do it?
I am apparently immortal, because of this god tier business, so the bomb probably would not kill me!
C.G.: ok, but don't you think there's a remote possibility that going on a suicide mission to save all of reality would count as a heroic death?
E.B.: hmm...
maybe I could try to be not all that brave while I do it?
C.G.: you asshole, of course you'd be brave. That tends to be what happens when you do something really fucking courageous.
E.B.: yeah.
I just don't want to lose anybody else is all.
C.G.: that's just how it is. I've lost friends for way more pointless reasons. You're all out of options here.
you'd be risking death just as much as they would, and they're better qualified to handle the mission as the derse dreamers.
jade's dream self is dead too, so she's out. Or to be more specific, her dream self is an overly emotional dog who went off whimpering somewhere. I'm pretty sure she will be completely useless.

E.B.: oh, yeah.
she mentioned something about that. She said she prototyped her dream self?? What happened with that?
C.G.: she doesn't like to talk about it. Kind of a sore subject.
E.B.: why?
C.G.: she thinks she's selfish and completely hysterical and I guess hates the part of herself she represents.
but I mean, the thing is she spent a long time being dead and moving on, it's not like you can just bring somebody back and expect them to give a shit about all the stuff you think is important.
I've tried to tell her that her sprite self is probably nowhere near as despicable as she's making out with herself to be.
I mean making herself out to be.
you know what I mean.
E.B.: ...
C.G.: look, I'm just saying we've all got flaws, even her and for all the shit she's given me on this very subject, she keeps herself dangling from a very high hook.
she'd be doing me a major personal solid by making at least some attempt to get herself off.
wait fuck
what did I just say
E.B.: wow.
C.G.: I meant let herself off.
the hook. The fucking hook, it's a figure of goddamn speech.
E.B.: /raises eyebrows
C.G.: put those back down, before my hot acid ragebreath burns them off your idiotic face.
E.B.: ok, I am putting them back down as not suggestively as possible.
C.G.: what were we even talking about, it wasn't this, whatever this is.
E.B.: what is this is?
C.G.: it's nothing, you shit. It has been the conversational equivalent of us whistling through our snort barrels while touching each other inappropriately.
E.B.: was...
was that another weird erotic slip of the tongue?
C.G.: no, that was me being worked up into this ridiculous fucking conniption and saying something inflammatory, god. How does that not be clear by now???
E.B.: ok, well, what I am getting from this, aside from the possibility that jade may or may not have kissed dog jade at some point, is that neither of them will be able to help with the bomb plan.
C.G.: that's exactly right! The pajama prodigy used his puzzle sponge today.
besides, jade is responsible for other important parts of the plan.
for one thing, you'll have to wait for her to send you the code for the quills.
you can't scratch the mesa without them.
she got them from her denizen, or will later on her timeline, now that she lit the forge and woke the monster up.
E.B.: aren't those the really tough to kill guys?
C.G.: yeah
E.B.: did she kill him?
C.G.: hell if I know, her explanation of the entire encounter boiled down to and I quote
C.G.: limed for infuriatingly vague.
E.B.: haha.
C.G.: anyway, after she gives that to you, she then has to go through with the rest of the plan, which is making sure you all survive after the scratch, minus one of the derse dreamers of course.
C.G.: the plan revolves around some really baffling hand wavey mumbo jumbo which I don't really understand, but she told me to trust her about it because the info comes from a "reliable informant."

C.G.: whitened for smug tool.
it involves something to do with a yellow lawn ring.
which isn't the human word for it, it's just your word is so dumb I feel dumb saying it.
E.B.: word for what?
C.G.: I guess your entire escape plan somehow pivots critically around an unwatered piece of residential property???
it doesn't matter what it means. Jade says she has this figured out, and I don't have time to do much but trust her.
the point is, she's all booked up, and all too mortal. So she won't be delivering the bomb, and neither will you.
E.B.: ok, well what about this.
since she is mortal, and I am not (sort of), and I don't need to do the scratch for a while, can I go help her?
maybe she could use some protection? Maybe that is what dave was just trying to do, when he temporarily died.
remember, jack is still on the loose! He has killed rose and dave once, and me twice.
C.G.: no no no no no sweet bleeding jegus, egbert, you keep bragging about your immortality, and then brainlessly announce plans to go off and do something heroic! You're going to have the shortest lifespan of any immortal in history.
E.B.: sorry. (sad face)
C.G.: besides, it's a total non issue. Jack wouldn't hesitate to stab you again, but he won't hurt jade for some reason.
if anything, you could use her protection.
E.B.: really?
C.G.: I never noticed when looking through her timeline earlier. It wasn't until I was talking to her in those timeframes and she told me. He just keeps following her around. I can see him off in the distance in some frames, just lurking there, shadowing her movements. It's incredibly disturbing.
he lingers around her until the scratch begins and I lose the feed, never once doing anything threatening. She says she thinks it's because jack inherited loyalty of her lusus.
C.G.: if she's right, I guess her lusus really did offer her the most protection possible by prototyping itself, albeit by dooming us all. The idiot.
C.G.: sadly, he holds no such loyalty to any of us here. He regards us all as ripe for the repeated skewering.
oh fuck, maybe we should have all just dressed like jade?? I can't believe this stroke of genius only occurred to me now.
E.B.: I don't think he would be fooled. Dogs have pretty good senses of smell.
C.G.: it was a motherfucking
C.G.: anyway, it doesn't matter anymore.
if we can ride this out for a little longer until the critical moment, and dave/rose can destroy the sun, jack shouldn't be a threat.
conveniently, if they're successful, that will signal the beginning of our own escape plan.
E.B.: what is your plan?
C.G.: apparently the explosion will be so huge, it will be visible at great distances throughout the furthest ring.
even from different sessions, like yours and ours. You won't get to see it because by then your session should be wiped out by the scratch.
but we will. The plan is to use it as a beacon, and travel there as a rendezvous point.
E.B.: rendezvous with who?
C.G.: we've got people there. That's what jade tells me.
E.B.: jade knows so many things lately, what is even her deal?
C.G.: hell if I know, this is basically dream intelligence, every time she goes to sleep, she has more to ramble about.
she says I should go to sleep to find out, but I'm like how the fuck am I supposed to be napping between making all these plans and getting persecuted by this demented honking asshole?
so yeah, we'll meet in the aftermath of the explosion with our people on the inside, or I guess I should say outside.
I don't think they can come with us though.
E.B.: come with you where? Who are they?
C.G.: dead people.
as for where, it's not like we're going to stick around there forever. That would probably be depressing, since we're not fucking ghosts.
the scratch will reboot your session. Your whole universe actually. So somewhere in this dreadful abyss, that new session will start up in its own incipisphere, from scratch.
look at that, another pun because of using that fucking word every other sentence! Kill me now.
but that "from scratch" (f'ing lol!) Session is what you're shooting for to survive.
the idea is for you all to preserve yourselves by escaping there.
E.B.: through the lawn ring?
C.G.: yes.
once you're there, you will help us find our way there too, and then we can all finally figure out what the fuck to do with the rest of our lives.
E.B.: oh!!
so then, this is how we're supposed to meet. That is kind of exciting.
C.G.: yeah, I guess, if enough of us are alive by then to meet.
E.B.: so, I guess you are not worried about it turning into a huge sloppy makeout fest anymore...
C.G.: uh right! Hahaha, john, you and vriska better keep your hands to yourselves, or everyone's going to be really uncomfortable. No interspecies funnybusiness, is that clear!
blaaaaaaargh, I am convincingly flipping my lid about this, waving my arms around a lot, and making all my best yelling faces. Wow, look at that! It's time to change the subject again.
E.B.: huh?
C.G.: poof! Subject changed.
if it works and you wind up in the new session, that's why it'll be important to make sure one of the derse dreamers stays with you, so they can help guide us there from the ring.
E.B.: won't there be other players in the new session?
like, alternate universe versions of ourselves or such?
C.G.: probably.
but those chumps won't know anything about us, or all our plans. Why would they?
E.B.: yeah... It's just kind of a weird thought.
C.G.: so out of everything we just talked about, this is the thing that has you tripping globes?
Whatever you say!
E.B.: but I guess it's sort of comforting too.
if rose or dave have to go off and die, at least I get to see them again, in a way.
even if I will only be alternate universe john to them.
maybe my dad will be alive in that session too!!!
C.G.: ok, maybe, but before you get too excited about that, you've got to make sure you get there first.
which means you have to do what I say, and stick to the plan.
you need to focus on getting ready to start the scratch. The game doesn't make a hard reset that easy to pull off.
once you initiate it, the game throws everything it's got at you. Which is one reason why you're the best guy for the job, because of your superpowers and silly windy bullshit.
E.B.: ok. I'll do my best.
what should I do right now?
C.G.: get prepared, make all the equipment you think you'll need, stay out of trouble.
wait for jade to send that code, wait for me to contact you for the first time, and do your best to humor him while he ignorantly attempts to flame you back into the puddle of slime you crawled out of.
please.
E.B.: oh, man.
our "first" conversation ever? I can't wait.
C.G.: yeah, but can I just say something in my defense before that happens?
I don't actually hate you, and I never did. I was deluding myself.
deep down I'm sure I was always pretty ok with you.
E.B.: thanks karkat!
C.G.: it wasn't a fucking compliment.

T.G.: this huge fuckin whopper im about to just say
T.T.: You mean a canard of behemothic embellishment?
T.G.: what
T.T.: Or was your resolve finally dismantled by the siren's song of all that flame broiled beef?
T.G.: no no ok first do you even have burger kings out in the fucking woods why do you reference things that obviously arent in the woods like terrible burgers
T.T.: I'll limit my establishments of reference to lumber mills and sugar shanties from now on.
Also, there's a Burger King less than forty minutes from my house. I won't let this stand in the way of the new policy though.
T.G.: there is ok whatever im talking about a dream i just had i mean it was a doozy like psychologically speaking doozy is a slightly dumber word than whopper
T.T.: Certainly less delicious.
T.G.: it was absurdly heavy handed my subconscious was really slathering it on like whatever tangy sludge the king himself squirts on his bargain patties its possible that i dreamt it ironically i dunno
i figured youd be interested in hearing about it its every bit as thick and juicy as a half pound of sizzling grade A premium ok this is stupid weve got to get burgers out of this conversation

T.T.: I thought you didn't want me to analyze your dreams anymore.
T.G.: no but this one is too good not to put under the microscope with your whole precocious psychotherapy shtick its almost laughably symbolic of all my mental problems assuming i actually have those its grotesquely pregnant with meaning all gestating at least 8 gooey octuplets thrashing around in an undulating belly full of mind slime T.T.: Maybe we can start by evaluating that troubling metaphor.
T.G.: no look i just want your professional take on how many things in my dream symbolize dicks T.T.: We've already established that all of your dreams are packed with enough homoerotic symbolism to lift Freudian theory from the ashes of discreditation. T.G.: yeah thats a given but i didnt even dream about puppets this time T.T.: Are you serious?
I'm clearing my schedule. This is a major breakthrough.
T.G.: i know it was so much more relaxing and enjoyable it was about me dying repeatedly

T.T.: Go on.
T.G.: i was in this dark place surrounded by this big flock of crows god this is so generically morbid im sorry in advance for exposing you to my unconscious minds retarded cliches T.T.: It's ok. They wouldn't be cliches if they didn't comprise the unanimously understood bedrock of phallic symbolism, with no other viable interpretation.
T.G.: well obviously i knew the birds were just black screaming sky dongs just hear me out i kept dying there kept being these traps like i would go one way and get my head chopped off or go another way and get stabbed or whatever and every time i died the dream reset itself and i was standing there alive and ready to try to escape again but each time i would be watching myself from the vantage point of a different crow like i was the crow all squawking around in circles like a macabre flapping douche and i would always watch myself try to do something different to dodge the trap but i always ended up dead T.T.: Hm.
Well, if I've learned anything from my extensive skimming over the Wikipedia articles on dream analysis, it's that this dream is very unlikely to have any literal significance whatsoever. It's probably not about dying at all.

T.G.: you mean maybe it's about anxiety over maintaining my blogs or that my beats might not be ill enough

T.T.: Yes. In fact, if you were on my couch that would have been my next question, as a licensed professional.

"Mr. Strider, have you considered that what you actually dread is to have your urban rhythms exposed for what they truly are, which is, clinically speaking, just shy of 'da bomb'?

T.G.: and then we crack up laughing cause we both know they're fresher than your moms change of drawers and tighter than when she's wearin them

T.T.: Listening to you conjure imagery of my mother in her underwear is definitely keeping us buoyed high above this swirling Freudian hellhole. Well done.

T.G.: please its not like she's my mom i can visualize her choice ass all i want without it gettin much more than moderately uncomfortable for everyone involved

T.T.: What if you're wrong?

T.G.: about what

T.T.: Her not being your mother.

T.G.: uh

T.T.: Don't worry, you're probably safe. Luckily I can think of no literary or historical precedent for that sort of folly whatsoever.

T.G.: this isn't the first time you've insinuated we were related what is up with that

T.T.: Isn't it?

T.G.: no

i mean

im not sure

i feel like you've brought it up before which is kind of weird but now i don't know i think i'm getting this weird deja vu thing where i was sure we talked about this forget it

T.T.: Why don't you tell me more about your dream?

T.G.: ok

so i kept dying and kept being crows and stuff and then i started to notice something coming from the sky

it was this faint eerie singing and i look up and there's nothing there just darkness

T.T.: That's interesting.

I've read about this.

T.G.: what did you read

T.T.: Certain texts say singing from the unknowable void carries a message.

That its recipient has been selected for a mission of supreme cosmic importance, that will result in your death and that of billions more.

But one that is essential to the perpetuation of existence itself.

T.G.: what the fuck sort of crackpot psychology text would say something like that

T.T.: It's not from a psychology text.

T.G.: so then you're consulting astrology books now

T.T.: Not astrology.

More like,

Zoology.

T.G.: oh my fucking god will you put that away

T.T.: Ok.

Keep describing the dream, though.
If the rest of it is incompatible with prognoses of the zoologically dubious, I will withdraw my insinuation.
T.G.: theres not even much more to it i looked up into the sky
didnt see anyone singing but even though the sky was black i could see the sun
it was bright as hell even through my shades so i flapped my wings and flew up away to it like a fucking piece of garbage and thats it
T.T.: This doesn't strike you as an impulse of self destruction?
T.G.: no
not in the sense that it was a dark sacrificial zoology mission it was more like somewhere to go besides watching myself die a lot from the vantage of a feathery murder of dumb shitty birds
T.T.: So, if hypothetically you were to accept such a mission, or even insist upon one, it wouldn't be in the spirit of genuine sacrifice, but of escape?
T.G.: what the fuck are you talking about ok somethings wrong
this whole conversation is falling apart this isnt how it originally went at all T.T.: Aw. We were making good progress, too.
Why did you have to go and remember?
T.G.: this happened months ago does this mean im dead

A.G.: but this is all true. I've seen it already. You have no idea how delicious the dramatic irony is right now!
You will die. I will lead you into a trap, and watch you bleed to death on a big stone slab with a sword stuck in your chest.
There is nothing you can do about it. In fact, it has already happened!
G.T.: that's nice. now scram, troll!
A.G.: I'll leave you alone soon enough.
I was just feeling pretty pleased with myself, about all the brilliant plans I made for you and your friends.
Stopping by in your past to mess with your head is really just a courtesy, because I like to think we're pretty good friends by the time I get around to killing you. (very happy face with eight eyes)
G.T.: ok, you got me!
my feathers are all ruffled, and i can no longer tell my ass apart from a big orange earth vegetable!
G.T.: now can you leave me alone?
A.G.: I guess so.
but my inevitable grisly murder of you notwithstanding, you're a pretty fun guy to hassle. It'll be difficult sparing you from the privilege of my company until your game begins.
G.T.: that is basically the worst pickup line i have ever heard.
A.G.: Please, John. As if there is any conceivable sequence of events which could lead me to consider you as a viable romantic partner, in any quadrant. Even the pale ones.
G.T.: blerp dupr bluh, more plausible alien sounding things.
weren't you leaving?
A.G.: Yes.
G.T.: ok then...
A.G.: I mean, I was going to.
but now I guess I'm not.
G.T.: oh.
why?
A.G.: because this isn't really happening.
G.T.: it isn't?
A.G.: It did, once.
but now it's just a memory.
I guess I must be dead.

G.T.: ok.
is this conversation over now? can i keep packing my present?
A.G.: The conversation as it went before is already over. I said goodbye, and you blocked me.
Don't you remember?
G.T.: well,
i was going to block you. but then...
i didn't for some reason.
A.G.: Exactly. because we've already been through this. You're either asleep, or dead like me.
Man! I can't believe I let her trick me like that. Such an amateur mistake.
G.T.: i guess i am feeling something like deja vu... maybe.
i still don't think i believe you, though.
A.G.: Hey........
Do you have any recollection at all of the last message I sent you before I died?
G.T.: I don't even know who you are!
G.T.: What did you ask for?
A.G.: I asked you if you wanted to... you know... Hang out.
G.T.: Was this after you killed me, and gave me immortality?
A.G.: Yes.
So what do you say?
Or, what do you think you might have said?
G.T.: About what?
you mean, hanging out?
A.G.: Yeah.
G.T.: OH GOD, THIS IS SO RIDICULOUS. You are just a crazy troll on the internet, and I need to get back to packing up this present for my friend! We are not going to hang out, I'm sorry.
A.G.: John, there is no present! You are not in your hive, and you don't have anything to send. She received it a long time ago. None of this matters anymore. If you don't believe me, you are free to look out your window.
G.T.: What will that accomplish?
A.G.: It might help you remember.
And........
you will be able to see me.
If you want.

A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) jaspers i guess i should say furwell to you now (sad face with two mouths) Jaspersprite: Why nepeta?
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) beclaws this is the end of your timeline and i dont know what catpuns to you after this i mean happens to you after this, heheh, that one was kind of obtuse, sorry Jaspersprite: Whats a timeline? (cat face)
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) hmmmmmm thats a hard question ok imagine a long tempting strand of yarn Jaspersprite: Yes! Oh yes so great.
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) now imagine instead of being made of wiggly enticing stuff, its made of what lets you exist and you are right at the twitching tip of it, dont you see? look at the sky!
Jaspersprite: Meow yes i see the sky and can tell that indeed something is going on.
But aside from that i dont really understand what you said being a cat and all.
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) thats fine, you dont have to try too hard all you have to know is its the scratch and im not a hundred purrcent sure what happens next fur
you Jaspersprite: Purr purr i still think its nice how you slip cat things in the things you say youre so clever and wonderful nepeta!
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) heeheehee (very happy face with two mouths)
Jaspersprite: Whats the scratch? (cat face)
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) well you know roses friend john?
Jaspersprite: Yes of course!
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) imagine that he is using this great big circle like a really fun scratching post, and it makes all this light come out that changes everything just after he starts doing that the sky goes funny everywhere and then i cant see you anymore
Jaspersprite: Yes. (cat face)
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) thats what it is Jaspersprite: I think i understand that completely!
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) im a bit nervous for you, especially since you remind me so much of someone i already lost but maybe youll be ok? i dont know
Jaspersprite: Im not worried nepeta so you shouldn't either its not as if i have never died before.
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) you are a brave kitty, just like pounce was (heart)
Jaspersprite: Pounce was a cat like me?
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) yes! she was amazing, i bet you and she would have gotten along famously
Jaspersprite: Ooh i bet youre right! Purr purr.
Was she nice to sniff?
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) yes she smelled really good, and also, she was super beautyifful.
Jaspersprite: Wow!
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) did you ever have someone nice back on earth who you loved?
Jaspersprite: Rose!!!! I loved rose. (cat face)
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) heehee, of course you did. i mean a nice cat who was your matesprit?
Jaspersprite: There was a time i remember i was thinking about girl cats a lot for some reason.
I would saunter around the house making all these big meows and looking out the windows with my nose touching the glass.
But then roses mom took me to this place where i was scared to be for a while and then when i was at home again i didnt do the meows anymore.
I guess i didnt think about the girl cats after that which is just as well because none ever came to the windows really not even when i did my biggest meows.
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) thats too bad but i bet lots of girl cats would have loved to be with you, if only there had been some around to Jaspersprite: You're really nice to say so Nepeta what about you though?
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) me?
Jaspersprite: Yes. (cat face)
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) well
I have never told anybody this not even my moirail
Heh, actually he is the LAST guy I might tell, he so wouldn't appurrve (cat face with two mouths and eyes pinched shut)
But yes I have liked somebody for quite some time, but alas he doesn't know it Jaspersprite: Why don't you tell him?
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) hmmm
Jaspersprite: Maybe you can win his affection by rubbing your cheek against him that's what I would do.
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) ohhh no no no, im too shy even for that!
And he is so adorably grumpy all the time, it probably wouldn't go over well
It's hard to explain, maybe cats think differently, but trolls tend to be pretty cautious about expressing their feelings when it comes to the flushed quadrant Jaspersprite: What's a quadrant?
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) it is Ummmm
Okay it has romantic applications but it is also something more general than that A quadrant is How do I say this!
Jaspersprite: (cat face)
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) a quadrant is a thing in a group of things that consists of four similar things Jaspersprite: Like paws?
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) exactly like paws!!! (very happy face with two mouths) Jaspersprite: I see that's really easy to get.
I think you should tell him that you like him you might not get the chance if you don't.
For instance I think instead of meowing at windows I should have just scurried out a door before it could close!
Then I might have found a girl cat to sniff oh well. (cat face)
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) I know, but it's just not that simple. I could make someone else jealous I think, and what if he doesn't feel the same way, and, urrgh, its so complickated maybe I just need to let go of the silly infatuation
I think its never going to happen honestly Jaspersprite: You shouldn't lose hope!
I have another story that might give you hope even though it should be noted again that I'm only a cat.
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) oh?
Jaspersprite: Yes one time I was with Rose and I was sitting there dressed up in my suit with her as happy as can be.
But then she disappeared!
The whole place disappeared and I was in another place. There was no Rose there was someone else.
I guess I loved her too in time but never as much as Rose it just wasn't the same.
I kept waiting to see Rose again but never did and finally I lost hope that I would and then I died.
But then I became alive again and I got to see her and I was so happy! Purr purr purr purr purr.
That's my story and that's why I think there's always hope even if you die.
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) so, you're saying that maybe I will have to die to get to be with him?
Jaspersprite: Yes maybe. (cat face)
A.C.: (Cat face with two mouths) i hope thats not the case!
but i guess you just have a different way of looking at things thank you for the advice jaspers!
Jaspersprite: Purrrrr.

T.G.: i remember waking up here after getting shot
T.T.: Yes.
What else?
T.G.: then the cage bunny came he gave us the bomb whered he go anyway
T.T.: She's around.
T.G.: the bunnys a she
T.T.: Her name is Liv Tyler.
T.G.: dumb
T.T.: Take it up with John.
What else?
T.G.: we were talking about who should go T.T.: Do you remember what we decided?
T.G.: no
wait wasnt i going to go is that what happened did i go and now im dead
T.T.: Not quite.
T.G.: whats not quite that i didnt go or that im not dead
T.T.: Do you remember anything else?
T.G.: no
T.T.: What about why you went to fight Jack?
T.G.: sure
i did that because i wanted to and because i was supposed to T.T.: Are you sure?
T.G.: yeah i saw my future self fighting him so obviously that had to happen or else id be dead anyway without even getting the satisfaction of standing up to him
T.T.: So was your decision a result of desire or obligation?
T.G.: hard to explain with all the time shit going on i dont try to understand your light shit do i T.T.: I don't know much about the Light Shit, to be honest.
I may have missed my chance to figure it out.
T.G.: havent we had this conversation already T.T.: Mostly.
I'm doing what I can to jog your memory.
T.G.: its jogging i guess its manboobs are jiggling a little T.T.: Nice.
So what about Jade?
T.G.: what
T.T.: You didn't tell her your expedition with her would result in your death, let alone one she'd inadvertently cause.
Or that she'd be stuck with the job of resuscitating you. Did you?
T.G.: what am i really supposed to say hey were gonna hunt frogs til you shoot me through the jack then i die and youve got to make out with me that kind of changes how the whole thing goes doesnt it T.T.: Not if you're "supposed to," right?
T.G.: what does that even mean
T.T.: I guess you're right. No reason to make an effort to empathize if doing so comes at the price of oblivion.
T.G.: wtf
T.T.: It must be comforting to have your ASPD tacitly supported by predestination.
T.G.: aspd
T.T.: Antisocial personality disorder.
T.G.: oh no
this conversation just got bumedushed by a mudslide of fucking awful T.T.: It wasn't already awful, believing you might be dead?
T.G.: you dont know anything about what i was feeling or what happened on lofaF you were all pavement faced and babbling your threofester speak and flipping off the shit with your own crazy deathwish thing why do you think you know what was going through my head youre just assuming and throwing around psyche buzzwords like aspd complex disorder
T.T.: So it's a disorder, a complex, and then a disorder again for good measure?
T.G.: in your case probably T.T.: Sounds like a positively delirious state of existence.
T.G.: its some delirious biznasty alright
T.T.: Oh... snap?
T.G.: yes ima authorize a God Damn you may swipe it at the door to check yourself into the burn ward T.T.: Might you loosen the purse strings on an "Oh no he didn't?"
T.G.: nah those are kept in emergency reserve for yo mama jokes from the 90s anyway im telling you if i said anything at all about it she probably doesn't even fire her gun once and all im doing is dragging her into a doomed timeline with me T.T.: I guess I'm learning to be impressed by your sense of obligation to inevitable misfortune. It's a strange case of inspiration through futility.
T.G.: none of this is that big a deal
i just mentioned the basics to her that id stop time traveling soon break out of the loops not have to wonder all the time if i was taking a wrong turn and dooming everybody i was never that cool with this T.T.: With what, exactly?
T.G.: you know how you turned out to be this incredibly shitty seer of light and basically failed at that in every way imaginable
T.T.: Hey!
T.G.: well maybe i never wanted to be a knight of time maybe id rather just be like the dave of guy
you know just some dude
T.T.: These really do not sound like the words of someone ready to face his own death.
The kind you don't wake up from, I mean.
T.G.: i guess not guess i failed my quest then so im like now what bitches
to nobody in particular i guess
T.T.: The unseen bitches callously conspiring to expect greatness from you?
T.G.: yes those exact bitches
T.T.: If that's how you feel,
Then why did you insist on going on the mission to deliver The Tumor?

[Note: The Tumor is written in alternating black and white, though the black letters blend in with the background.]

T.G.: is that wrong

T.G.: because i made the map so i know how to get there better
T.T.: But it seems simple enough. A set of bearings to follow.
See? The application pilots the moon. Change course when necessary. Anyone can do it, really. We talked about this. Debated, if you recall.

T.G.: ok if you remember it all so clearly why are you grilling me on this shit will you just tell me whats going on T.T.: I'm just seeing if you can remember. And if you're sticking to your story, about why you should be the one to go.

T.G.: well i am because i should or should have man what the fuck is going on am i dead or are you dead or what

T.T.: You're almost there, really. Just try to remember a little more. What happened after we decided you'd go?

T.G.: uh
oh yeah
we were trying to figure out a way to detach the moon so i could pilot it out there fly it into the sun

[pesterlog]

T.G.: but the chain was huge couldnt think of how to break it then out of nowhere this sword appears in the thing so im thinking obviously i have to break the sword somehow because thats all i fucking do is break swords

[pesterlog]

T.G.: but as im thinking of how to do it i put my hand on it and it just snaps off with this comical shattering noise like i just fucked up some priceless shit in the louvre

[pesterlog]

T.G.: see like that like i did again just there with my hand cause of dreambubbles remember when that happened
T.T.: Mm hm.
[Image description: In an echo of Bro slicing the meteor in half, Dave uses the broken Deringer to slice through one of the links of the chain.]

T.T.: Which would make you feel better?
T.G.: you not knocking me out with a ball of fucking yarn is fucking what T.T.: If I could have chosen a method of sparing your life you might have found more awesome, I

Is there an "ironic" way to do that?
T.G.: this probably comes close but that doesn't make it not lame as hell
T.T.: Does it matter if I took some personal satisfaction seeing you fall unconscious at the gentle

T.G.: its cool you are so tickled by this i hope it brought you a lot of rad laughs on your way to go

pesterlog
G.T.: so.
it seems that you are, in fact, an alien. with horns and everything.
huh.
A.G.: Yes, John. Horns and all. That totally proves I am an alien beyond a shadow of a doubt!
Now what do you make of these blank white eyes of mine? What do you think THAT could mean, hmmmmm?
G.T.: i don't know. aliens usually have big spooky eyes, don't they?
A.G.: Humans have literally the dumbest extraterrestrial lore. Weren't those supposed to be aliens on one of your posters?
G.T.: haha, you mean mac and me? yeah, even i can admit that movie was indefensible.
A.G.: Well if you want to know, normally, we have bright orange eyes, with gray irises. They fill in with our blood pigment as we get older.
Also, normally I have this one goofy eye with seven pupils because I'm kind of a weirdo. but I guess that's gone now that I'm dead.
Not that you believe me, because you just refuse to remember anything.
G.T.: i can accept that you are an alien, but come on. meeting an alien who is also a ghost in my front yard is a bit much to believe.
it is almost too awesome.

A.G.: So you don't remember anything about the game at all, then? The destruction of your planet? bringing your ancestor back to life as a clown woman?
Putting a huge flaming ocean out with your magical wind? Jack Noir? Dying, resurrecting, and possibly dying again? Is any of this tickling your sponge?

G.T.: hmm...
nope. sounds cool though.
A.G.: Fuck, I cannot believeeeeee how cold it is on this planet. How can any species possibly be able to survive somewhere like this?

G.T.: yeah, i thought you looked pretty cold out here.
so i brought you this jacket.

pesterlog
A.G.: Oh.
Ok.

G.T.: hey, your clothes switched suddenly.
was that some kind of alien wardrobe warpifying technology?
such as a warpdrobe, if you will?

A.G.: Sure, John. Let's just say that's what it was.

G.T.: you look pretty cool in more normal clothes. not that your space boots and pixie outfit weren't neat.

A.G.: Thanks.
So, is this how humans begin an earth date?
With simple acts of flattery and kindness?

G.T.: um, i don't know about that, really.
it just seemed like the nice thing to do.
is...
is this a date?

A.G.: No. I've decided this definitely will not be a date.
Not until you remember something, at least.

G.T.: ok, that's probably for the best.
i would probably be pretty nervous on a date with a normal girl, let alone on a...

Date with an alien space ghost!!!

heheheheheheh.

A.G.: Now that you mention it, me too, probably. Your goofy awkwardness is a bit contagious, frankly.
So now what do we do?

G.T.: well...
since i am presuming you are new to the planet...
i could show you around the place.

[Image description: They stand near the swingset and pogo bouncer in John's yard. Vriska pokes at the pogo bouncer.]
G.T.: this is my green slime ghost pogo ride, in all its glory. In my childhood, it was hours of fun, and hundreds of painful injuries.
A.G.: Hey.........
This thing isn't slimy at all! What the hell.
G.T.: nope.
A.G.: I've noticed humans don't seem to keep any slime around the hive. And yet you are strangely cavalier about your open display of certain....... receptacles.
What's the deal with that? Is it that you're just that ashamed of your secretions as a species?
G.T.: um.
not... really?
humans just don't really have much use for slime, i guess.
honestly, i can't think of a single practical use for slime, other than to be gross!
A.G.: So bizarre.
G.T.: anyway, this thing is kind of a death trap, and i haven't ridden it for years.
i think my dad had it installed as one of his ridiculous ways of making a man out of me.
A.G.: Sure.
My custodian had her ways of making me tougher too.
G.T.: yeah.
parents, right? haha.
anyway, that's my back yard. pretty damn boring, sorry.
i would show you inside, but i don't think my dad would take too kindly to bringing an alien inside.
or, just yet. i would need to brace him for it.
A.G.: That's fine.
What else can you show me?
G.T.: i could show you around my neighborhood, if you want.
A.G.: Sounds great.

[Image description: They walk down the street in John's neighborhood. Some of the houses still have snow on the roofs and yards, but some have clear roofs and grassy yards. G.T.: these are my neighbors, who live in a lot of same looking houses as mine.
i never see them. i think they're all really busy people with a lot of serious business to attend to.
hey, look.
the snow is melted over here.
it's really warm suddenly. weird.
A.G.: Does your planet usually have these kind of temperature swings?
G.T.: no, this is pretty unusual december weather.
guess i'll take my coat off.
i can take yours back, if you want.
A.G.: No thanks. I think I'll keep it on.

[Image description: It shows the entire neighborhood. The northwest section nearest the lake is grassy while the rest is covered in snow. The edges of the neighborhood bleed into the landscape of LoWaS. A second image shows them standing at the edge of the lake. There's something black in the water.]
G.T.: there is not really much to see in this town...
but there are these lakes.
this lake here did not used to be a lake. a long time ago, before i was born, there was a factory here.
my dad says there was a huge explosion. he was walking by with my nanna when he saw it.
then a little later, my nanna died. my dad never told me how, except that it involved a big joke book.
i never knew her, which is too bad. she sounded nice.
A.G.: I know what happened.
I saw it.
G.T.: you did?
A.G.: Yes.
Do you want to know?
It might jostle your memory.
G.T.: ok!
A.G.: I believe this lake is where Jade landed. You landed a little ways over there, about where your hive is now. You clobbered your nanna to death with the aforementioned joke book. but it wasn't your fault. You were both just little wigglers, riding meteors from the future.
You created yourself, your nanna, Jade, her grandpa, not to mention Dave and Rose and their guardians, all in a lab using paradox slime, and sent them back in time as the silly grubs with arms and legs you call babies. And here you were doubting the usefulness of slime!
G.T.: wow, really?
A.G.: Yes, absolutely.
I paid close attention to all this, because I thought it might give me some clues about us and our ancestors, who were made the same way.
Any of this familiar?
G.T.: hmm.
that all sounds incredible if true, but i don't have even the foggiest memory of that happening!
Since you seem bent on staying in your dream bubble coma, why don't I continue the tour?
G.T.: the tour... of earth?
A.G.: Sort of.

[Image description: The land behind them turns into a jagged rock on LoWaS and the lake begins to turn black. Green fire begins spreading across the black surface.]

G.T.: what's happening?
A.G.: We are going on an adventure.
G.T.: where?
A.G.: Through your memories.
Through mine too.
This would be a really fun thing to do on a date, I think!
If we actually were on a date, which we're not.

[Image description: The background flickers behind them, then suddenly they're standing on a cliff on Alternia. In the background, there are more jagged rock formations and Vriska's hive.]

G.T.: what's happening?
A.G.: We are going on an adventure.
G.T.: where?
A.G.: Through your memories.
Through mine too.
This would be a really fun thing to do on a date, I think!
If we actually were on a date, which we're not.
G.T.: how is this happening?
is this through the advanced alien technologies?
like holograms, or teleportations?
A.G.: If that's what you want to think to keep you comfy in your stupor, sure.
G.T.: where are we?
A.G.: This is my home planet before it was destroyed.
It's called Alternia.
G.T.: oh, cool.
and what's that, over there?
A.G.: That is my hive, which is a thing that you refer to as a house.
It's where I grew up.

pesterlog
G.T.: it's a castle!!!
A.G.: No shit!
It is big and foreboding and ostentatious, just the way I wanted it.
As a blueblood, I was entitled to build such a home. Something to set me far apart from the commoners.
G.T.: you built it?
A.G.: Of course not. Robots built it for me when I was very young.
but I was allowed to dictate instructions. Expected to, in fact.
G.T.: oh gosh.
so rad.
A.G.: Really?
I still find it interesting what sort of mundane facts humans tend to be impressed by.
Anyway, my design kind of got boring as I got older. A huge castle hive sounds great, but it starts feeling pretty cavernous and lonely after a while. There were so many blocks I never even used!
Your tastes change, but you get stuck with growing up in a place suited to your earliest, most juvenile inclinations.
Nobody tells you that when you're a kid though.
G.T.: i think i know what you mean.
i feel like a long time ago, i might have given my dad the impression i really liked clowns?
and now there are clowns everywhere, his stupid collection just keeps growing and growing, and it drives me CRAZY.
A.G.: John........
That barely comparable example is so cute, I don't even know what to say.
G.T.: heheh.

A.G.: This was my custodian.
G.T.: (wide eyed gasping face)
Spidermom is crushed under tons of rock and splattered with blue blood. John puts his hands on the sides of his head.

A.G.: She was hurt in an accident.
A.G.: I killed her myself to put her out of her misery.
G.T.: (sad face)

They stand in Vriska's treasure room, surrounded by gold coins, gems, and magic 8 balls, though many of them are broken.

G.T.: holy shit, look at these glittering space riches!
A.G.: Yeah. I was really into treasure hunting for a while.
G.T.: What's with the broken eight balls?
A.G.: Never mind those!

They stand in Vriska's room. The totem lathe stands by the window, but it's after Tavros has crashed into it, so there's a massive hole in the wall and the top half of the lathe lays on the ground. The rocket chair is tangled in one of the spiderwebs. Vriska flickers for a moment, then is wearing the white dress with fairy wings that Kanaya made her. Her left glasses lens is now an eye patch.

A.G.: This was my respiteblock.
From kind of an embarrassing memory, actually.
G.T.: haha, more eight balls!!!
you sure do like to smash them.
A.G.: John, addiction is a powerful thing. You probably wouldn't understand.
G.T.: what are you wearing?
A.G.: Just a fairy dress.
I wore it for this stupid thing I did once.
G.T.: is that a rocket car stuck in the web over there?
what's that about?
A.G.: Don't worry about it! Man, this would be such an awkward moment on a date. Again, if it was one.
G.T.: there's something really familiar about that rocket...
A.G.: Let's keep going.

Vriska stands by her desk and changes back into her normal clothes. Tavros's legs sit on the desk and there's a red box with certificates of authenticity on the other side of the computer. John stands behind the desk and the hallway in his house fades in around him. There are black smears all over the floor.

G.T.: what's happening?
are we back on earth?
A.G.: You tell me.
G.T.: it's my house again. why are we here?
i was having fun seeing your planet!
A.G.: I don't know, John. They're your memories.

A.G.: Well, just so you know, he is probably not actually there.
Kind of like how my lusus was just a memory.
G.T.: are you a psychic alien? like the one who jodie foster met in contact, and assumed the form of her dead father to talk to her?
A.G.: As a matter of fact, yes, I am a psychic alien. but that has nothing to do with this!
These are our memories, and we are in the afterlife. I keep trying to tell you, and it's starting to get frustrating.
G.T.: i see. so it is not me who is jodie foster. it's more like you are jodie, because nobody believed her when she came home and had amazing tales to tell.
except matthew mcconaughey.
A.G.: Aaaaaaaargh!
G.T.: but it's ok. i will be your matt mcconaughey.
A.G.: Does that mean you'll believe me now?
G.T.: i guess i always did, sort of.
i think i've been in denial about what's happening here.
A.G.: It's nice that you believe me. but that doesn't mean you remember yet.
G.T.: so if this isn't my dad, then where is he?
A.G.: He died too. You saw his body. Don't you at least remember that?
G.T.: no. not at all.
i am remembering a bunch of things, but not that.
A.G.: Then what?
Do you remember me yet?
G.T.: no.
i only remember when you contacted me and said you'd kill me a little earlier.
but that was months ago.
i do remember talking to some other trolls like you.
and playing this game. it was on my 13th birthday. i was really looking forward to playing it, but it was late in the mail.
i got some presents from my dad. like this big weird clown doll that i didn't like much.
and some fruit gushers...
oh yeah! i also realized gushers were made by betty crocker. that freaked me the fuck out!

did you realize betty crocker makes gushers???

A.G.: This comes as news to me.

G.T.: well she does. her villainy knows no bounds.

oh.

he also gave me this suit, which i remember wearing for a while.

but it didn't look quite like this.

it had a black tie, and no ghost, so i improved it.

actually...

i remember dying in a suit.

this was not the suit i was wearing when i died.

Davesprite: legendary sword

Jadesprite: how did you get it?

Davesprite: long story

shenanigans mostly Jadesprite: yes i figured shenanigans were probably involved can you be more specific?
Davesprite: well
basically im from another timeline we couldn't win the game there so i came back to help dave Jadesprite: dave?
Davesprite: dave from this timeline
as a sprite im supposed to help him with his quest Jadesprite: oh yeah im supposed to help jade too, but......
sniffle
Davesprite: shes doing alright dont worry about it Jadesprite: ok, ill try...
you were saying?
Davesprite: so things kind of became even more crazy in this timeline than the one i was from and it was clear dave was never gonna do the quest i didnt get the chance to finish not even after you brought the forge Jadesprite: the forge?
Davesprite: your volcano
Jadesprite: ohhh Davesprite: so after laying low for a while i just went and did whatever i could myself got caledfwlch
the fuckin welsh sword dave broke went to look for hephaestus again figuring there wasnt much hope in beating him this time either especially being injured and all but what the hell right
but then thats when you lit the forge somehow Jadesprite: i did?
Davesprite: well no
not you other jade Jadesprite: yeah
shes a lot more brave than me i think she brought me back thinking i could help her and all i did was disappoint her and everyone else you came back as a sprite and youre managing to do important things... but i just feel so scared and helpless Davesprite: sounds like you came back because jade made the decision for you i made the decision to come back myself maybe itd be different if you had the same chance Jadesprite: i dont know if i would have if i had the chance but i would like to not feel so useless to everybody Davesprite: i think everyones on top of this theres not much for us to do anymore
Jadesprite: what about your sword? isnt it important?
Davesprite: i guess so but not really for me since im not the real dave anymore Jadesprite: im still not sure how you got it...
what does it have to do with my volcano?
Davesprite: thats a bit complicated see it turns out
i had no idea how the denizens worked at all

T.G.: this sucks could you just please turn the thing around and come back T.T.: Why?
I'm already out here. Might as well go through with it.
T.G.: we agreed id do it though or at least you pretended to agree just before going into a major league wind up with your nap yarn
T.T.: A major league wind up?
T.G.: sports
T.T.: It's always been pretty sad that I seem to know more about sports than you. Which is really saying something.

the greedy qb is you

T.G.: but instead of winning the gold sports prize you just fucking die and nobody cares and it didn't mean anything almost as offensive as you stalling me while you peel out of here in your dumb moon

T.G.: yeah but i don't know how to wake back up is the thing

They selected me a long time ago.
T.G.: that doesn't make sense
why would they drag me into it just to have me make a map and then let you ditch me they've obviously been gunning for me too
T.T.: Yes, they helped you chart a path through the Ring. And they will open that path for a pilot they have marked.
I believe I fit the description. I'm not sure about you.

Davesprite: i busted into his palace to finish the quest
i was expecting him to be asleep and was gonna figure out some way to wake him up but like last time i saw him he was already awake to greet me Jadesprite: but i thought the denizens were supposed to be asleep?
at least until you do the right things on your quest...
Davesprite: they are as sprites were programmed to know things like that about the game but i guess not everything it seems like if you try to go fight them too soon you find them awake and theyre like what the fuck are you doing here already which is what happened last time i saw him before i became a sprite and i stupidly tried to fight him which was a bad idea because hes hella strong and the whole time he was raving about shit about a stolen sword and missing forge but i wasnt really listening if i had i might have understood he wasnt actually trying to kill me he was giving me the choice Jadesprite: what choice davesprite: wait i mean the choice

Davesprite: i always forget i can talk underlined for important shit

Davesprite: like i said he was awake again but this time i wasnt in any condition to fight so i didnt and thats what i didnt get hes this terrible angry monstrous guy but theres no need to fight him so he looked me up and down all hard saw the broken sword and like before gave me the choice Jadesprite: you mean Choice!
hehehe (tongue sticking out face)

Jadesprite: oops
Davesprite: yeah

[Image description: Small meteors fall around them, and Unreal Air, the artifacted skateboard Dave made forever ago, descends towards them. It's upside down.]

Davesprite: it was different i think it must be always different depending on the circumstances i dont know what the choice is when you face him the way youre supposed to but im showing up as this bleeding bird sprite holding his broken sword so thats pretty odd situation
Jadesprite: then what did he make you decide?
Davesprite: he sees i got his sword and its busted and you can tell hes pissed but like before its like restrained anger like hes always about to just fucking flip but still keeps it together so he can tell me
he can repair it
and make the deringer with the forge lit he says he can repair anything but only one thing and i had to choose
so i said ok fix the sword
Jadesprite: as opposed to what?
Davesprite: meh
doesnt matter really
Davesprite: i just thought making the sword felt like the right thing Jadesprite: oh...
Davesprite: so i gave him the sword but it still wasnt all that simple he needed lava from the forge to make it which means echidna had to be awake our denizens had to have some kind of truce to make it happen see what i mean about it being complicated Jadesprite: yeah (blank face)
Davesprite: so jade must have done something right to wake her up and get the forge going don't know what she did though Jadesprite: probably something amazing she is still working so hard to help everyone
i guess i used to be that way...
but i've completely forgotten how i figure this is probably my last stop

E.B.: i remember now.
i was tricked by a troll into flying up to the last gate, using this rocket pack.
she said i could take a shortcut and go kill my denizen while he was sleeping.
it...
did not quite work out that way.
A.G.: This sounds like Terezi's handiwork.
E.B.: i don't know. she didn't tell me her name.
she was a blind troll. she made me this incredibly shitty map for me to follow!
I guess she got both of us then. Unbelievable.
E.B.: she tricked you too?
A.G.: Yes.
Well, not tricked, so much as made a pointless coin flip and stabbed me in the back.
E.B.: wow. that's pretty cold blooded!
A.G.: Oh, sure. She was easily the most underhanded and villainous member of our group.
but I did let my guard down. And even when she stabbed me, I sure didn't think I was going to die.
E.B.: why not?
A.G.: It turns out immortality isn't all it's cracked up to be. Let's leave it at that.
E.B.: hmm...
so i guess you never got around to giving me immortality like you said? or killing me, for that matter.
sounds like the blind troll beat you to it.
A.G.: No, I did! but........
Ugh, this will be hard to explain to you.
E.B.: explain what?
A.G.: Haha. I guess in her own sick way, she actually set us up on this date together.
Maybe I should thank her whenever she falls asleep? Or dies, god forbid.
E.B.: so...
now it is a date?
A.G.: I don't know.
I said it wouldn't be unless you remembered. And now you remember.
but you still don't remember me, do you?
E.B.: nope.
A.G.: Yeah, thought so.
This version of you died before I started messing with you. Not that I expect you to understand what that means.
E.B.: no, i get that.
if i had decided not to take the shortcut, i would have lived. and then you would have talked to me a lot?
A.G.: Yes, that's right.
I guess I should have learned to give you more credit by now.
E.B.: well, i might not have figured that out, if not for...
some things that just happened.
A.G.: I still can't believe I'm meeting a version of you that doesn't remember a thing about me.
None of my great exploits, or any of the ways I helped you. Only that one stupid time I taunted you!
It's a vaguely frustrating feeling.
E.B.: sorry... not sure what to tell you!
A.G.: So you remember literally nothing I told you about myself? Not even the, uh........
Compromising stuff?
E.B.: well, you did just show me around your planet. which was really cool!
... there's compromising stuff?
A.G.: Your species would think so. but I guess it doesn't matter anymore.
E.B.: i guess not.
but who says we can't get to know each other again?
A.G.: You wouldn't find that boring?
E.B.: no way! not if you wouldn't.
you said the name of the blind troll who killed us, but you have not told me yours yet.
A.G.: I haven't?
E.B.: no.
A.G.: .......
It's Vriska.
E.B.: nice to meet you, vriska.
i am john! even though you know that.
A.G.: Yes.
E.B.: so now what do we do? aside from be dead for probably ever.
A.G.: Man, I don't know.
Maybe,
You could tell me about how you died?
What were the "things that just happened" you were talking about?

it was huge, and it took a long time to explore. it was eerily empty too.
i had that weird feeling of getting to a place in a video game you are not supposed to be yet, because you don't have the right powerups and such.
you know what i mean?
A.G.: Not really.
I'm used to taking shortcuts whenever I play games.
E.B.: oh, ok.
so, i started getting crazy nervous the longer i was down here, and i was starting to wonder if my silly iron pogo hammer would even do any damage against the monster.
A.G.: Snort.
E.B.: what?
A.G.: Against a denizen? Of course that piece of shit isn't going to do anything.
If I were you, I would have chucked it into the forge.
E.B.: excuse me, it is called the wrinkle fucker, and it is totally amazing.
A.G.: It might be alright if you combined it with something awesome.
Like some cool dice, for instance.
E.B.: that's so absurd, like anything like that would ever even happen!!!

A.G.: What's this?
E.B.: i found it very deep in the palace dungeon. i was wandering for hours, following a horrible sound through the pipes.
i could tell typheus was really close, because it was very loud here. it could only be the sound of him sleeping.
i was so tempted to play it, but i didn't dare risk waking him up!
pretty much by then i was sweating bullets at the thought of confronting him.
A.G.: You were right to be nervous. Denizens are incredibly powerful monsters. You had no chance whatsoever at this stage of the game. You might have stood a chance after I started helping you. but Terezi really screwed you over by leading you here so early.

E.B.: yeah...
i guess if i ever see her, i should thank her too.

A.G.: Why?
E.B.: because this was important.

A.G.: What was? Getting killed by a monster?
E.B.: well, yes. but not just that.

the whole ruse was important!

if i didn't make the decision to go, then dave would not be able to go back in time and fix things. in fact, if i didn't die here in this palace, we never would have been born in the first place!

A.G.: How could you know all that?

A.G.: Well, that explains your quick death. If your denizen was anything like mine, it wouldn't have wasted much time before unleashing a huge shitstorm of devastating monster magic.

E.B.: what was your denizen like?

A.G.: Her name was Cetus.

She was this awful sea monster. Her lair was deep underground amidst a bunch of shipwrecks. She was quite vicious and territorial. I knew I had to kill her quickly to release the hoard, before she had the chance to do anything tricky.

E.B.: what do you mean, tricky?
did she talk to you?

A.G.: Oh, of course. She was babbling in riddles through most of the fight. I wasn't paying much attention though. I mean, what creature Doesn't speak in boring riddles in this game?

E.B.: so, is that what you all did?
kill your denizens as fast as possible, without listening to them?

A.G.: Yeah, pretty much. We were all pretty good players, remember?

E.B.: yes, so i've heard.

A.G.: Well........

Ok, I can't exactly speak for everyone. There was a lot going on, and I don't know how some people went about beating their denizens.

For instance, I'm not sure how our hero of breath did it. Maybe the monster just released the hoard for him out of pity?????????

E.B.: maybe he just talked to his denizen?

A.G.: If there was a way to avoid a tough battle, I'm sure he found it.
It sounds like a good way to cheat yourself out of a lot of sweet xp and loot though.

E.B.: i dunno. you might be surprised!

A.G.: John, are you saying you had a nice friendly chat with this hideous, bloodthirsty creature before he killed you?

E.B.: yes!
typhoeus may not be pretty to look at...
but he is not a bad guy at all!

pipefan413: It is a fairy tale about a young sister and brother who were raised by a wicked witch!

[Image description: Behind Nannasprite, more meteors impact and the horizon glows red. Above her, clouds show the Betty Crocker logo and two small children reading a large book. The one on the left is a boy who has the same haircut as Grandpa, and the one on the right is a girl with the same haircut as Nanna. They both wear grey footie pajamas and glasses, though the boy's are square while the girl's are round.

Show Serious Business
pipefan413: The witch in truth was a world famous baking baroness. Her cruelty made life miserable for the two children, who did not have their father anymore to protect them.
He was the greatest prankster who ever lived, and a true southern gentleman. He was killed by a comet on the day the boy was born, and the wicked baroness raised them alone, with a hand as firm as that which she ran her brutal baking empire.
The children pledged to each other that one day they would run away together.
They followed in the footsteps of the dear colonel, in defiance of the old batterwitch. They studied his every jape, and practiced them in secret!
But as they grew older, their interests drifted apart. The boy developed a passion for adventure and put aside his study of practical jokes. He dreamed of wealth and fame and discovery and swore he would wander the world.

One day he decided to run away with the loyal dog he inherited from their father. He asked the girl if she would come along, but she was too scared of the retribution that might follow. The boy scoffed at the danger, and assured his sister there was nothing to worry about. But he had not seen first hand what the baroness was capable of!

He told his sister that he believed in her, and that she could handle whatever the witch could throw at her. And with that, he was off, and she would never see him again. The baroness would raise her very strictly, mentoring her in the art of baking. The girl took to the lessons with fierce determination. Her only act of defiance left was to one day surpass the baroness in skill, and beat her at her own game. It was all she could do, for the baroness made sure she knew there could be no escape.

The girl surely missed her brother, and soon enough he achieved fame for his exploits. She followed him in the newspapers, the tales of his remarkable discoveries, inventions, and riches. How she wished she could rejoin him, and be free from toiling for the pastry hag!

One day, the girl was able to gather enough bravery to mention her brother to the baroness, and her desire to see him again. With contempt, she guaranteed that this could never happen. When the girl asked why, that is when the baroness began to reveal to her more than just her baking secrets. She mentioned that like in many fairy tales, there was more to the children's past than they knew. The colonel was not their father, nor was the baroness their mother. They in fact had no father or mother at all, nor were they ever actually born. They had both fallen from the sky! They were not actually brother and sister as they had been told either. Again like in many fairy tales, the truth was that they were always destined to become married one day. They were to have two children, a son and a daughter, and these children were meant to save the world! But the batterwitch was determined to make sure this destiny would never be realized. In her limitless cruelty she would do all in her power to keep them apart for the rest of their lives.

The girl that day swore she would bring down the baroness and her evil empire. She would use the many secrets she'd learned over the years against her, and began carefully plotting her downfall. Years went by. The girl was nearly ready to put her plan into action. But then, just like that, the baroness disappeared. She was never seen or heard from again. The girl was finally free, by a strange turn of events. But not without a final jab from the witch. It turned out that in her will she had left the entire company to the boy!

The boy, now a grown man, was already very wealthy in his own right. He had no particular need for the baking empire, but assumed control nonetheless, and integrated the company into his extensive collection of enterprises.

The girl, instead of seeing this as more misfortune, took the news as a relief. She'd just as soon have nothing to do with the witch's empire, and far preferred to pursue her original passion for practical japery. Hoo hoo hoo!

She considered a reunion with her estranged brother, and once destined husband to be. But the days of longing for a future with him seemed to be from another lifetime. The chance had come and gone. She was content to let him live his increasingly elaborate life, while she sought a simpler one.

Besides, now was not the time to revisit a destiny with an old star-crossed lover. She had recently become betrothed to a fine, upstanding gentleman. Soon, she would start a family. No, not one meant for heroism as foretold, but one that would make her happy nonetheless. In following years, she was left to ponder all that might have been.

What might have been if there had been no baroness to keep the girl and boy apart? What might have been if the baroness had not disappeared, and she had the opportunity to use her secrets against her!

For you see, the girl had uncovered so many dirty secrets about the terrible batterwitch, including the most troubling one of all.
Of course no one would have believed her, but she knew.
She knew the baroness was not human! (face with buck teeth)

let's see if I can remember, it was pretty elaborate if I recall, ok here goes.
I'm a disgusting worthless bilgesack on the gargantuan teat of a laboring, leprous musclebeast. My self esteem is so small, its existence is a matter of conjecture among theoretical physicists. I smell so bad, the stench cannot be expressed with even the most eloquent, florid language. The odor my body makes has made poets cry. I have won special awards for discovering new places to touch myself erotically while farting. I unfairly pulverize the competition in asshole pageants, and I have received a lifetime ban from ugly contests by president shitface himself. My blood is not fit to flow through a sewer, and my sign is a pictographic symbol that loosely translates as "please hike these pants up to this guy's armpits, chain him to a flogging jut, and make a fucking example out of this sorry sack of shit." When I look in a mirror, my reflection slowly shakes his head while I wet myself in shame.

there's karkat who knows less stuff and karkat who knows more stuff. Why not just gather the facts from the one who's got the lowdown already?
I mean, I'd do it myself, but I can't stand the guy.

C.G.: well I sure don't think it was whatever you did why are you back, what does this have to do with frog breeding?

G.G.: this was kanayas suggestion

my dog used to fetch my bullets too!
I really think he believes he is my dog, on some level
P.C.G.: just don't turn your back on him, jade.
don't turn your back on the puppy.
(unknown) G.G.: dont worry, im keeping my eye on him aaaaaaaa no no no, bad jack, bad!!!!!!!

P.C.G.: he really seems to hate frogs.
(unknown) G.G.: yeah...
the poor froggies (sad face)
P.C.G.: my jack had this irrational thing against frogs too.
I mean my normal jack. Not psychopath omnipojack.
F.G.A.: derse agents are heavily predisposed toward the murder and desecration of amphibious lifeforms and their iconography respectively frequently I had to thwart assassination attempts from their kingdom or extermination attempts is probably better to say (unknown) G.G.: youre probably right, they really seem to drive him crazy this is not the first time I have had to reprimand him
P.C.G.: wait, did he follow you into the palace too just now?
is that who you were yelling at?
(unknown) G.G.: he was growling at echidna and I had to tell him he was being very bad he destroyed some of her really nice statues too keeping him in line really makes me miss bec, he was such a good dog not to mention a best friend jack is just...
F.G.A.: bad dog worst enemy (unknown) G.G.: exactly
P.C.G.: I don't like this a fucking bit, it makes me really nervous.
you just chilling with an unspeakably powerful mass murderer with the brain of a wild animal who's about to hop sessions and try to kill all of us in a few hours.

F.G.A.: I recommended she return to her denizen for advice
P.C.G.: about what
F.G.A.: the location of the final frog required to complete the gene sequence one whose song should remove the last traces of dissonance from the waveform the creature is quite elusive remember P.C.G.: oh yeah
you were searching for weeks
F.G.A.: yes
P.C.G.: and you never found it
F.G.A.: I had a good lead but you decided there was not enough time left to bother with it P.C.G.: the reckoning had started.
we had to kill the king.
F.G.A.: understood but this was a matter that really did require your attention
P.C.G.: yeah I know, but maybe I was sick to fucking death of muddling around with frogs and their cacophonous goddamn ribbits and mixing their slime and shit.
I'm not an ecto scientist no matter how many grubs who turned out to be us the game made me accidentally make.
(unknown) G.G.: but you are a programmer aren't you? That is at least kind of like being a scientist, having some technical savvy...
P.C.G.: I was a shitty programmer. And anyway I only programmed viruses.
shitty viruses.
I shouldn't have to be a slime technician or a frog farmer or a mystical fucking croak decoder. I'm a warrior and a leader and a cold blooded killer.
(unknown) G.G.: we know! You are clearly very good at being all of those things but now we need your help with frog science. Can you help us?

(unknown) G.G.: kanaya means she is a very pretty girl with pointy fangs who has a bright sunny complexion and wears fancy dresses
P.C.G.: thanks, that cleared everything just right the hell up!
(unknown) G.G.: and... she drinks blood (side eyeing blank face)
P.C.G.: oh
you mean a rainbow drinker
yeah, I already know about her trashy novel fantasies.
are we done shitting around F.G.A.: they aren't trashy (unknown) G.G.: hee hee
P.C.G.: yes, hilarious.
I guess I have no choice to believe you because skepticism in this situation is for idiots right?
if I said "yeah right! If there's a drinker in this hive I'll eat my cocoon!" I'd be like the dumb lusus in the movie who doesn't believe the kid when he tells it there's a rainbow drinker in the closet.
so I guess by reverse psychology I should not be that dumbass, yell "oh fuck", and tell everyone to get in the scuttlebuggy before it's too late.
well fat chance, I'm not falling for it.
F.G.A.: that sounds like a stupid movie
P.C.G.: how do you know what she looks like anyway, did you see her in one of your afterlife bubbles?
(unknown) G.G.: yup (smiley face)
P.C.G.: why? When??
(unknown) G.G.: karkat... that information qualifies as......... future stuff!
P.C.G.: just
I don't know anymore, shit is getting away from me the more time goes by without word from gamzee the more I worry and the more I feel like something terrible has happened or will happen
I should go.
(unknown) G.G.: no wait! Just please listen a little longer?
F.G.A.: yes staying would be better trust me that this was and still is a very important thing for you to have done and still do maybe even the most important P.C.G.: fine.
but let's move it along.
did echidna tell you where to find this frog?

(unknown) G.G.: not exactly... she just helped me remember
P.C.G.: remember what?
(unknown) G.G.: something from my past
if I accepted her terms
F.G.A.: what were her terms you never did tell me (unknown) G.G.: yeah because you never told me yours!!!
F.G.A.: oh
I just thought it wasn't that important or interesting since karkat thought the battle was more pressing than to wait for me to locate another frog also what she asked me to do was impossible
so
yeah (unknown) G.G.: hmm
yeah she made me promise to do something that sounds impossible too except......
(unknown) G.G.: I actually agreed (gasping face)
I have no idea how im going to keep my side of the bargain, now that I think about it
P.C.G.: excuse me.
remember
fucking
what.
(unknown) G.G.: oh right where the last frog is!
or was...
the thing is the frog we need is nowhere to be found in the medium
it was on earth!
but only very briefly
it was when I was young before I woke up on prospit
I had begun sleep walking both on the island and on the moon and in my dream it was very bright
I saw something in the light
I couldn't tell what it was so I got closer

[Image description: Dream Jade drifts towards the light with her eyes closed. Several Prospitans watch her. In a second image, Awake Jade walks towards the water. She's wearing a dress just like her dream dress, but it's grey with green detailing and the moon has a Skaianet logo in it.]

pesterlog
(unknown) G.G.: i was about to walk home when i saw something appear on a lily pad it was a frog!
an amazing shiny frog, not like any other ive seen in the lagoon
pesterlog
(unknown) G.G.: it hopped over to me and I picked it up but then, just like that…

pesterlog
(unknown) G.G.: it died

pesterlog
(unknown) G.G.: later my grandpa made a robot for me to help me with my sleep walking it could do all the walking while I stayed safe in bed!
it could also record my dreams
I am sure he always knew my dreams were going to be special
I suspect he knew it before I was even born

pesterlog
P.C.G.: ok great, so it's there on the monitor, problem solved you just appearify its ghost imprint, mix it with your current evolution's paradox slime, smooth out the genetic waveform, tadpolify bilious slick, and you're done.
(unknown) G.G.: hopefully!
P.C.G.: so you didn't remember seeing this frog when you were a kid at all?
(unknown) G.G.: no, it completely slipped my mind
P.C.G.: how did she get you to remember?
I mean, what did she make you agree to?
(unknown) G.G.: well, like it was before the choices she gives you seem to have to do with facing mortality and making it clear if you choose one path over another it will lead to your death and that your death may even be necessary to accomplish a goal F.G.A.: yes ive inferred their ultimata are all personalized variations on the presentation of such dilemmas (unknown) G.G.: yeah
but that is not really what made this hard
I mean
nobody wants to die of course but at least...
that is a clear thing you either do you you dont
you know?
P.C.G.: you said what she asked was impossible.
(unknown) G.G.: it might be F.G.A.: what were her demands (unknown) G.G.: she said that if I accepted her help that I would have to make a promise that whenever we left this place and wherever we end up going she had to come
P.C.G.: huh?

pesterlog
P.C.G.: I guess I don't have much energy left to argue about passwords.
I didn't even get a password last time.
I had to leave abruptly because sollux and eridan started dueling again.
and then feferi and kanaya...
it all happened so fast.
and now gamzee is hunting us all down in murder mode.
he's been taunting me through other people's messaging devices.
and leaving me disturbing notes.
I'm sure others must be dead by now.
and now sollux is blind and I lost track of him somehow.
I heard a stray honk and I ran and we got separated and I'm starting to think that this must be a doomed timeline that's why I can't get in touch with anyone they must be dropping like behemoth leavings out there.
and that must be why future kanaya was talking in this memo but now she's dead...
which makes that impossible.
it wasn't supposed to happen this way.
gamzee isn't supposed to go crazy.
I think if he does
it means we fucked something up.
it means i fucked something up.
he's my responsibility, I have to make sure he's safe.
and I didn't do that.
one time, one of the doomed aradias told me she came from a time where he flipped out and killed everybody, because of my failure.
I didn't take her seriously, but I should have.
she was constantly fixing my fuckups.
robots from the future always coming back to tell me how some hasty shit I did with frog breeding or whatever would make it be impossible to win.
my own personal mistakes probably accounted for more doomed aradiabots than anything else.
which was sort of a silver lining I guess? I don't think we would have beaten the king without her army.
not that it matters anymore.
I've obviously become just another guy in a doomed timeline watching everyone around him die.
I was just sitting here wondering what I could have done wrong this time to make the timeline take a wrong turn and pinpointing it seemed overwhelming since I've made more terrible decisions than I can even count.
but
I think looking back
I know what it is now.

pesterlog
P.C.G.: it was before we got trapped on this meteor before jack showed up before we beat the king and I wanted to let you know, jade.
that no matter what I said, I think the final frog must be important.
and kanaya, if you're reading this somewhere in the past maybe...
I'm sorry, you were right.
I was always in such a hurry to win, I didn't take the time to do what was necessary.

I think I know what's about to happen at the end of our timelines.
I think I know what the critical moment is.
and it's completely my fault.

Pesterlog
P.C.G.: ectobiology is a touchy thing.

Pesterlog
P.C.G.: especially when you're building the genetic code for an entire universe.

Pesterlog
P.C.G.: our genesis frog needed the genes from that final frog.

Pesterlog
P.C.G.: but because I was in too much of a hurry to do the job right

Pesterlog

Pesterlog
P.C.G.: so when we made him, and watched him grow in the middle of skaia

Pesterlog
P.C.G.: and after all the fireworks and fanfare from the vast croak had subsided
Pesterlog
P.C.G.: I kind of felt like he didn't look so good.

Pesterlog
P.C.G.: like he was sick.

Pesterlog

Pesterlog
P.C.G.: sorry.

Pesterlog
P.C.G.: I gave your whole universe cancer, jade.

Pesterlog
P.C.G.: sorry.
pesterlog
P.C.G.: its defective genes probably made it impossible for your session to be successful sort of like its reproductive system was damaged.
what should be fertile ground for your new universe to grow was replaced by a massive bomb rigged to blow up your whole session.
probably just one of many symptoms of a sick universe.
it's not like you actually did anything wrong you were fighting against the disease that was always inherent in your reality the one I gave it.

pesterlog
P.C.G.: but I don't think it's like a normal disease.
not like a cellular mutation that's out of control the cancer took a specific form, like a complicated series of terrible events rather than faulty cell division
it was an eventuality in your universe that was inevitable, that we all unwittingly helped make happen all concentrated through the actions of one hostile agent in the system, with an instinct to destroy everything it hated and then given the power to do so.

pesterlog
P.C.G.: and unlike a normal disease, it wouldn't gradually kill its host from within the cancer left the body chased out, as if by an immune system.
but the problem is it wasn't any less deadly on the outside and no less determined to finish the job.

pesterlog
P.C.G.: so I don't know what else it could be what's waiting for us at the end of the countdown.
jack was expelled from your session somehow he then methodically destroyed all our planets, prospit and derse, and tried to wipe us all out so that we couldn't do the same thing to him again but he was always saving his true target for last the one he hated most.
jack was the living embodiment of the disease all along.

It is a tale to remind her of the sacrifice she must make. One serving to remind all of her people of the sacrifice once made by long forgotten heroes in a discarded reality. It is of this sacrifice the Sufferer died to speak the truth, and it is his tale I will tell you now.

[o] Next

Once, in this very universe, you could say, Alternia was home to a peaceful race. Trollkind had never known the corrupting influence in their evolution which led them to perpetual war and violence.

That is to say, they had never known me.

As was true of the bellicose world we know, there came to be twelve heroes on this peaceful planet. These heroes too had twelve ancestors whose fortunes were entwined with theirs. These twenty-four figures of legend were not of this world but sent from the sky, delivered from a reality not yet conceived.

On the eve of their race's extinction, the twelve heroes would begin playing a game. They would make an admirable effort, but they would fail. Their civilization had not prepared them for the rigors of this game, and the ultimate reward would fall shy of their grasp. But their failure was more comprehensive, more systemic, than a result of simple inadequacy so common to young players of this game. Though they could not recognize it for the bad omen it was, this session was not the one in which they had been spawned. Such is the symptom of a subtle glitch affecting certain sessions, an error designed to trigger an unfathomable cascade of misfortune throughout paradox space. This glitch is the calling card of the one I serve. It is the discreet, gentlemanly manner in which he reserves his place in a universe for later visitation.

The heroes, understanding their defeat was absolute, sought advice from the mother of all monsters. She offered them a choice. The heroes could either accept their defeat along with the extinction of their race, and put no others at risk. Or, she could show them a path to a second chance, to a reality in which the chosen heroes of their race would be strong enough to succeed with ease, and claim the reward. This reset would come at the cost of wiping the failed heroes from existence. They would live new lives from scratch, playing different roles in the reset reality, with no memory of the game they played or the choice they made.

The heroes chose to accept this bargain, and scratched their session. In doing so they jumpstarted the reality in which the twenty-four figures of legend would together be created - and I as well - and then sent back in time to take our places in history. Though I was delivered well before history even began, before the dawning of life on their planet. This time around, I would oversee its development, and thus fulfill the mother's promise of an aggressive, ruthlessly prepared group of heroes. One that would not rest until victory was secured.

The young twenty-four would again be scattered in two groups, twelve modern contemporaries, and twelve ancients. But in addition to losing their memories of everything that had happened before the scratch, there was another catch for the failed heroes. In the new reality, they would not serve as the heroes. They would mature to become the ancestors of the twelve they formerly regarded as theirs, and this twelve would be chosen for glory. These children would be the heroes to achieve victory, and have the reward easily within reach.

Of course this promise was fulfilled to the letter, as you have seen. The entire bargain was executed without a single hitch, as those authorized by my master always are. There was however one minor anomaly. One of the failed heroes, in his new life as an ancient on this now brutal planet, began to remember. This is his story.

This is the story of the Signless.

[o] Next

[Image description: In the banner, Hussie looks towards the fifth wall. The panel shows the black screen with the glowing cancer symbol.

Few ever knew the Sufferer's given name, presuming quite reasonably he had none, and he came to be called Signless. Unlike his peers distributed elsewhere in history, he was not given a sign at a young age. Alas, there were no signs reserved for one of his mutant blood. His genetic deviation from the social order made him a pariah, forcing him to wander the world alone for many sweeps, concealing the color of his blood to avoid certain execution.
But it may also have been due to his mutation that he began to have the visions. Spontaneous, lucid imagery of his world in peace, before its fall. He would never see the complete picture, or fully understand his previous incarnation's role in prompting this fall, or know of my hand in it. But the visions showed him all he needed to see. They held the promise of his people's true potential, beneath the ages of conditioned cruelty. They held the spark of revolution.

In time, the visions gave purpose to his travels. He would preach heretical ideas no one else had dared to entertain, let alone risk discussing. He espoused the virtues of forgiveness, compassion, and equality among all bloodlines. He distributed his message intelligently, careful to preach only to those receptive, never attracting unwelcome attention. But his growing movement could go unnoticed by the authorities for only so long.

The highbloods were livid over the unprecedented heresy, and soon, a massive sectarian war followed, spreading across the planet and throughout the galaxy. The conflict was lopsided of course, with the Highbloods given full support from the Condesce and her sea dwellers. Inevitably, the Signless would be captured, and when he was, it was not a matter of whether he would be put to the irons, but how hot they would be if he failed to recant.

During his penance, it was said the Sufferer's compassion for his people underwent a divine transformation, into limitless, burning rage. It burned hotter than the irons shackling him to the imperial flogging jut, and redder than the blood soaking his Righteous Leggings. When he was finally killed, his anger rung through the cosmos with his last breath. This Vast Expletive was his final sermon, and somewhere encoded in its wavelengths was the truth in his teachings, waiting to reveal itself to any who would inherit his burden.

His teachings would also persist through surviving disciples, but in hushed tones. His following would dwindle to an obscure cult facing persecution for centuries. After his execution, the body was burned leaving only his irons. They cooled in the ash, as if his anger itself was subsiding, and his followers appropriated their shapes in defiance of the Highbloods. The symbols became the sign of the Signless, always shown as colorless as the cold iron, to conceal the stigma of his hue. This was as much a reminder to his followers to remain hidden as it was of the Sufferer's sacrifice, and his rage hidden like heat in the iron, one day to be reignited by another of his bloodline.
The Sufferer preached that after he passed, another Signless would come, heralding the end times for their planet. The Second Signless would continue his work, and lead his people to glory beyond this realm. The followers kept his teachings alive for ages, even as the uproar surrounding the movement subsided. By modern times, the Sufferer's scripture was little more than ancient superstition all but forgotten. Hardly the anathema of old. But the followers had already made their preparations in the shadows, and when the Second Signless finally came he would have a lusus to raise him and a sign to his name.

The Sufferer required a less conventional upbringing to reach maturity. As a young grub, he landed in the brooding caverns where he would be expected to face his trials. But due to his mutation, surely no lusus would select him. No creature sympathetic to his scent had been bred yet. His odds for survival would have been remote, if not for a chance encounter.

The Dolorosa belonged to the rare class assigned strictly to serving the mother grub in the caverns, forbidden from visiting the surface. While on an errand, she found the young Sufferer in his crater and immediately recognized the child as special, as well as in great danger. For an adult troll to raise a child was unthinkable, but she saw no other hope for him. The Dolorosa abandoned her duties in the caverns, and fled to the surface to raise him.

In time, she would become the first follower of his teachings, and the first of his inner circle. But not his closest.

[Image description: In the banner, Hussie reaches for the broom that Scratch left on the bed. Alt text: Oh hell no. He's talking about ancestors, isn't he. In the main panel, four trolls stand shoulder to shoulder. On the far left is the Dolorosa. Her eyes glow bright yellow. To her right is a shorter troll with long, wild hair and short, sharp horns. She's wearing a short dress with a tattered hem. There are stripes around her hips and down her long sleeves. Leo symbols loop around her wrists and neck and she holds a brown book in one arm. To her right is a slightly taller troll with a bright red belt and a thick grey cloak wrapped around him. There is red stitching around the holes in the hood that let his short horns poke through. He has no sign on him. The last troll, on the far right, has two pairs of slender, faintly curving horns, sharp fangs, and red and blue eyes. He's wearing a yellow body suit. Black bands wrap around his shoulders and waist. They're connected by two thick black lines, making a gemini symbol.]

Surrounding him on his rise to infamy and throughout the rebellion were the most trusted elites among his devoted. The psionic was a mage of unequaled telekinetic ability, who upon hearing the words of the Sufferer was inspired to free himself from the sort of slavery typical of his mentally gifted class.

But his most devoted of all was his Disciple. She listened to every vision he retold, every lesson he preached, and faithfully recorded his scripture. Her ear was open to him always, and in time, his heart opened to her. To spread his message throughout the world they took to the seas in the vessel of legend known as the First Ship. It was said their love went beyond the four quadrants, transcending the grid entirely. Whatever that nonsense actually means.

The panel shows Nepeta's ancestor, the Disciple, crouched on the ground in front of a crowd of trolls. She's clutching a pair of leggings stained with bright red blood and glaring towards someone who is aiming a blue tipped arrow at her.]

The Disciple was to be killed along with him. But at the last moment, the Executor inexplicably took pity on her, and allowed her to escape.

[Note: Executor is written with a percent sign in place of the X, like in Equius's quirk.]

She absconded with the Leggings, which remained the only physical evidence of his holy suffering. She hid in caves for many sweeps, transcribing all of his scripture from memory on the walls in the blood of slain creatures, and lived the rest of her days in monastic savagery. Her dedication would be critical to the persistence of his message.

But the Dolorosa was less fortunate, and was sold into slavery. She spent the rest of her life as property of vicious sea dwellers. As for the Psionic, he was enlisted in a far worse, if more prestigious service.

He was forced to serve as the Helmsman for Her Condescension's imperial battleship. Together they explored the stars for thousands of years. Due to the speed of her ship, she would personally expand the boundaries of her empire, typically being the first to greet new races before conquering them.
After making first contact, occasions which she generally kept cordial, she would move on to new territory while a division of her fleet set a course for the unfortunate civilization, and proceeded to tear it apart. It could be any of the lethal brigades under her command to receive the orders, be it the Threshecutioners, Cavalreapers, Laughsassins, or Ruffiannihilators. Each was notoriously cruel in its own way, and each carried out orders with absolute loyalty. Because while the Condesce could extend a single life on her whim, she could just as casually cut short that of millions.

If angered, she could simply express her grievance through communion with her ancient lusus of the deep, and turn its psychic devastation on her multitudes. The class hierarchy played into her hands politically in this respect. Killing off a haphazard swathe of the population, or an entire class, was suitable as a measure of last resort, but mass extermination does not lend itself well to practical governance. Its looming threat however is quite effective, especially while her empire was partitioned neatly into blood castes. She could use her leverage to delegate oppression to the subjugglators, whose unique abilities and exceptional brutality made them natural enforcers. They too would delegate in their governance, exploiting the pride and loyalty of dangerous bluebloods beneath them, and so on down the hemospectrum, until the enslavement of the common castes was inescapable, in spite of their genetic gifts and strength in numbers. As a self-governing body, the land dwelling portion of her empire was formidable. But her force of sea dwellers was equally formidable, and the two were kept in check not only with the threat of psychic annihilation, but their mutual hatred and distrust.

The only threat to her power was unification through uprising, a possibility made remote once she fully decentralized the race from the homeworld. She scattered all but the children throughout the galaxy after the most recent rebellion led by the Summoner. Upon doing so, she became so comfortable with her grip on power, she risked venturing deeper into space than ever before to grow her empire.

But the more space she put between herself and Gl'bglyb, the more she risked weakening her bond with the monster. The bond she and her successor shared with it exclusively could sway, and become strengthened with the younger. Perhaps she grew complacent with the threat successors posed, after such a long history of killing them with ease. Heiresses upon reaching maturity were expected to challenge the Condesce for the throne. It was not merely expected of them by their people, but demanded by their shared lusus.

I like to think of her as the pet I gave to their race, at the dawning of their species' evolution. Like a sentience-warming gift. Again, it's just the sort of thing a good host does.

If the lapse in her custodial bond was significant enough, it was not just political power she risked. At such a distance, she sacrificed concentration needed to curb its most dreadful psychic shriek of all, the galaxy-wide extinction event called the Vast Glub.

Of course this eventuality proved a fitting reward for such reckless expansion of her territory. She chose the worst time possible to explore further from the homeworld than she'd ever been. She was scouring the edge of the galaxy for systems to plunder when she received word of her planet's devastation by meteors. The young were being slaughtered. The mother grub was dead. The end times were upon her people.

She ordered all fleets to return to Alternia. But such was her empire's expansion and interplanetary occupation, few could make it in time to provide any meaningful defense. She instructed her Helmsman to pilot the ship faster than he ever had, and he did so through extreme physical duress. He was able to leap across thousands of light years in a matter of hours. The exertion likely would have killed him, if the Glub didn't get to him first. Her touch could extend life, but never restore it, to her lament.

In that instant, her empire was gone. Gl'bgolyb's swan song wiped out her entire race, save the Condesce and her lone heiress, leaving the empire nothing more than a galactic necropolis of floating tombs.

She was forced to continue the journey home on auxiliary power. Her ship now travels near the speed of light, a pale shadow of its former velocity. It would take her another 612 solar sweeps after the Glub to reach her destination.

She should arrive any minute now. When she does, she will find nothing but ruins and dust. If she cared to look closer, she would find a city of slain exiles, a man on the moon, and a pair of black lovers locked in a deadly dance. But whether she looks or not, one thing will find her with certainty.

A new employment opportunity.
Are you paying attention, protege? This is where your role in the story begins.

Now stop your pouting and listen, unless you want another helping to the backside of my...

Oh nuts. I seem to have forgotten my discipline broom.

Anyway, the last of the twelve ancestors arrived a bit late. In fact, she would cross through her portal six centuries after the descendants had come and gone. There weren't many left to look after her, so she ended up in foster care.

I remember it like it was yesterday. And for one who has as much time on his hands as I, it essentially was.

I would raise the girl to be groomed for her calling. My lessons would emphasize obedience, mastery of the clockwork magicks, and being locked in a room.

As you must have gathered by now, my employer will enter this universe quite soon. I will then relinquish my custody to him, and she will serve as his Handmaid for an eternity to be specified. As you must have also gathered, she has already done so. Though her most common of blood should have let her expire in just a dozen or two sweeps, his curse kept her very much alive.

And she did not intend to stay that way.

His curse is one of conditional mortality, with the desired outcome contingent on her service. When I release her, she will take her place at his side, and travel through time to carry out his orders.

While I am his weapon of subtlety and precision, the Handmaid is strictly an apparatus of terror and suffering. We have both paved the road to his arrival, I in my way and she in hers. She would be present during every watershed moment in her civilization's development. Her recurrance in history would earn her the reputation of a demoness, more feared than even her master, a man though dreadful rarely makes himself seen. She stirred up class warfare and intensified bigotry in whatever era she haunted. She made sure the descendents would enter a world which prepared them well for the game, and took measures to see that they would play as they did.

But once they entered and their world was in ashes, her work was nearly complete. Now, six centuries later, she would be given one last order to follow before her curse was lifted.

A simple recruitment job.

The two last trolls alive, blood of rust and royalty, will make each other pay for the crimes against their race. [Image description: A loading screen shows a capricorn and cancer symbol circling a troll emoji. The song The Carnival begins to play. The loading screen fades to show Karkat's symbol, but with two smiley faces drawn on it in indigo. They use the circles in the symbol as their noses. This fades and Gamzee looks across the roof at Kanaya helping Sollux around, Karkat and Terezi releasing their hug, and Vriska's dead body. He smiles creepily at them and holds the warhammer of zillyhoo. A watermark of his face crosses the scene. His makeup is smeared to hell and dripping his own blood from the cuts on his face.

In another art style, Karkat takes out his Homes Smell Ya Later sickle. An image of an adult troll in a grey and red cloak holding his hand up serenely fades in behind him. It fades to Gamzee in that same art style. The Grand Highblood fades in behind him. The makeup makes him look like a skull. Cal flashes on screen for just a moment, then it cuts to Kanaya. She's still wearing the red dress and holds her chainsaw. The dolorosa comes in behind her, holding her arms out like she's welcoming someone.

It changes back to one of the normal styles as Kanaya wonders about auspistizing between Karkat and Gamzee. Karkat comes over and paps her cheek, making him look over at him. It cuts to Pyralspite for a second, then goes to Terezi in the new art style. She holds her sword cane in both hands and looks determined. Behind her, Redglare appears, clutching at the signless pendant at her throat. It flashes to Cal's eye, then goes back to Terezi in the standard style, who's wondering about getting Gamzee as her kismesis. Karkat comes on and waves a hand at her until he shooshes the sword right out of her hand.

It fades to Sollux adjusting Feferi's goggles. The Psionic fades in behind him, holding one hand to his chest and one up, like he's preaching. Sollux wonders about Gamzee as his matesprit or his kismesis and looks towards Cal. Karkat stands far behind him. It cuts to Cal, then back to Sollux as the heart and spade next to him flick back and forth quickly. It zooms in on Karkat, who just looks done. It spins, showing the trolls and ancestors in sequence. Gamzee holds the warhammer. The Sufferer screams at his execution. Kanaya holds the chainsaw. Redglare clutches her pendant. Cal sits on the ground. The Psionic speaks. Karkat holds his sickle. The Grand Highblood looms. Terezi holds her cane. The Dolorosa watches. The sequence repeats, spinning faster and faster until the ancestors disappear and the background blurs into flames.

It fades to a split battle. In an indigo half, Gamzee holds up the warhammer. In a bright red half, Karkat does the same with his sickle. They lunge for each other and the background becomes black and white, then flickers between indigo and red. Just before they reach each other, everything fades to white.

It zooms out, showing LoHaC in its entirety. John fades in, along with a breath symbol. He looks up and his glasses reflect red. Everything fades to black, then it shows the beat mesa from different angles as the quill cuts into it. It cuts to John, in the same style from the 5x showdown, clutching the popomatic hammer. An army of underlings stand in front of him, but he levitates up and glows blue. The pulsing lines of The Breeze appear behind him, then everything flashes white. It cuts quickly to him holding up his hand as the breeze spirals around him, then cuts to the quill continuing its path along the beat mesa while John stands on it and glows. Tornados spin up around him, then touch down, gathering up lava and slaughtering many of the underlings. One of them, a large, skeleton-like creature with massive wings looms up over John as the sky darkens and turns to static.

John rears back with his hammer and slams it down on the creature's head, making everything flash white and red. It flashes yellow and green, then bursts into grist. Everything except the grist fades to black.

It fades to Jade's land just after the shaving cream explosion. Jack stares down at Jade's body with his ears back, like a sad dog. The sky behind them turns to static and it shifts to show CD's body laying on the ground. He's been stabbed multiple times. Jack holds the wallet. It flashes. He doesn't have the wallet anymore and his hand is covered in blood. Bilious Slick's pond rushes up behind his hand. Jack stares in at Bilious Slick and flicks his hand forward. It glows green and tendrils of blood pull away from his hand. A blue box at the top of the screen says Red Miles. The background around him turns bright red as the panel expands to take up all of the space offered. The background darkens in a circle around Jack and red veins branch out from his hand. They branch and spread like some sort of bloody tree, then Jack flicks his hand again. The veins tangle around each other and shoot towards Bilious Slick. When it shows him, he's tangled in red lines and shuddering. His glowing becomes more erratic and darkens. It zooms in on his eye as everything begins to tint red. A red mile shoots into Bilious Slick's eye and shatters the galaxy at its center. The universe behind it goes red as the miles invade. More star clusters and galaxies explode into blue and white smears that spread across the universe like reality itself is bubbling and twisting.

The scene zooms in, past stars and red miles, faster and faster until everything is passing in a blur. Red miles fade in, and then their target does. Earth. Just before they make impact, it cuts. In the exile's desert, red miles cross the sky behind the temple. The night sky glows red, almost bright enough to be daytime. P.M. stares at the red miles as A.R. prepares to set off the bombs. P.M. frowns towards A.R., who reaches towards a switch on a grey box he's carrying. There are four other switches, each labeled with a drawing of one of the stations, and a handle. A light turns on above the switch he flicked. He gives P.M. a thumbs up and she returns it. It zooms out, showing the whole area, then it flashes. W.Q. stands inside the temple, watching the lotus time capsule. A timer appears at the bottom of the screen as it pans over her.

7 seconds. 6. 5. 4. The lotus blossom grows larger. 3. 2. 1. It zooms in on the Lotus, which opens and spits out a white spirograph that morphs into the White King clutching a book. He takes his wife's hand and a new lotus grows. The timer starts counting down again, from 10 seconds. This lotus grows quickly, but it's a reddish brown and rotten where the other was bright pink.

It fades back to LoFaF. Jack manifests the tentacles on his sides and uses them to lift Jade's body. He takes off, carrying her across LoFaF. In the distance, a tall rock spire with a spiraling walkway appears. He takes her there and lays her on her quest bed. He keeps guard over her, but nothing happens. Something above him catches his attention and he snarls up at it, then flies away. It zooms out, showing LoFaF in its entirety. Static appears behind it, then it zooms out even further. On a meteor in the veil, there is a frog temple, and Jack flies there. The temple vanishes and a meteor rockets through the medium, towards Skaia. The animation shrinks again as it zooms in on Skaia, following the path of the meteor into one of the portals.
The meteor crashes on earth, near a volcano, and it runs through a timelapse of the history of Jade's island as a countdown fast forwards from a 413 million year timer. The frog temple grows and the area around it turns into a lake, then into a lagoon as the sea level rises. A forest grows on the island in the age of the dinosaurs, then it turns to fields and Jade's house appears. The volcano and island vanish as Jade enters the game and it morphs into a desert in the last minutes of the timer.
The timer begins to flash at 10 seconds, then count down at normal speed. 9 seconds.
The animation expands to its full size and shows the temple surrounded by the red miles. 8 seconds. 7. 6. It zooms in to where W.Q. and W.K. stand in the temple. 5. 4. They watch the new lotus prepare to open. 3. 2. 1. The petals peel back and it releases a black spiroygraph that turns into Jack Noir. He glares at them and raises his already bloody sword. He slashes once and W.K.'s head bounces across the floor. The book falls to the floor as Jack approaches W.Q., who steps back and looks scared. Jack snarls and everything goes red.
It shows the outside of the temple as Jack appears in front of P.M.. She looks just as scared as W.Q.. Jack flares his wings and the screen splits. On the right half, his sword vanishes from W.Q.'s chest as it appears in his hand on the left. He stalks forward. P.M. raises her own sword to fight him. Before anything can happen, it pans up and the Bec head station explodes. The screen splits between the explosion on top and A.R. flicking the corresponding switch on his control panel. Jack turns to glare at A.R., who flicks the switch for the egg station. Jack appears in front of the explosion and glares at A.R.. A.R. looks scared and his hand shakes, but he reaches for the switch for the apple-shaped station. It blows up behind P.M.. The split screen shows the cylinder station on top and A.R. reaching for the final switch on the bottom. The top section zooms in. W.V. is still inside the station. A.R. is about to push the switch when Jack raises his sword and slices A.R.'s head off. In the top section, Jack glares at the body. In the bottom section, P.M. looks shocked.
The top section switches to show a machine that needs a spiroygraph key while, in the bottom, P.M. lunes towards Jack, who vanishes, then appears near the machine. A battery indicator on the machine flashes empty. It switches to W.V. in the station, but the bar remains at the top of the screen. Everything but W.V.'s skeleton and the lump of uranium in his stomach darkens, and Jack appears in front of him. The screen splits between Jack on the left and a very scared W.V. on the right. Jack lifts his hand, then punches through W.V.'s stomach to grab the uranium. The screen splits again. Jack's bloody hand holds the uranium on the left and W.V.'s body lays on the ground on the right. The uranium disappears and the battery bar fills. On the left, Jack appears back in the room with the machine. The split turns horizontally as a purple spiroygraph appears around Jack and he vanishes. The bottom section shows the cylinder station surrounded by Red Miles, then P.M. crouching by A.R.'s body. She looks up as the bottom section turns red. In the top, Jack appears on the troll's exit platform and begins his rampage. The bottom section fades and it flashes through several scenes quickly. Karkat reaching for the handle. Jack appearing and slicing through the doors. Aradiabot tossing everyone onto a transportalizer. Jack standing on the platform, surrounded by a swirl of green fire. Everything turns to red static. Cascade (beta) begins to fade out as Flare fades in. Karkat lays asleep on the floor of the meteor, then turns into Dream Karkat. Prospit floats in the medium. The screen splits. On the left, Dream Karkat sits up and Jack slaughters him. On the right, Jack slaughters the Derse dreamers. In both, simultaneously, he destroys both dream planets, accidentally causing Aradia to go godtier. The last thing it shows is her and Sollux by the green sun.
Derse's moon fades in as it flies through the void. The background around the animation turns into a pulsing red pattern that almost looks like monstrous faces. Behind the moon, outlines of tentacle monsters fade in and out. It fades to DD's body on the floor of Dave's room on Derse. He's decapitated and Dave stands over him, holding the royal deringer. Rose holds the card with the tumor on it and they both stare at the body. It fades to outside of the tower as they both fly away from it, then shows the entirety of the moon. The unused space around the animation turns into the towers of Derse and it zooms towards the core, then fades to Rose and Dave with Liv on Dave's shoulders as they fly down a tunnel towards the center of the moon. Floating there among chains are two quest beds. A red one with a red gear and an orange one with a yellow sun. The towers behind the animation fade and the space splits between red and orange. Dave and Rose each approach their own quest bed. The look uncertain, then look towards each other. They each stand on their own bed and Rose takes out the tumor.

The split between the white section and the black section flashes, then the shell falls away. In the center is a grey machine with two tubes, one red one blue, flanking a many-sided polygon. The front triangle face of the polygon is black. It zooms in and we can see that the black face has a timer on it, counting down from 5:23. This timer exactly matches the one in the banner, though that one's not counting down. The screen splits. The right half stays focused on the blue tube while the right zooms in on the red, revealing a universe inside it. It zooms through the red universe, which is shot through with the Red Miles until it reaches Earth. Earth slides aside as the right half begins to take up more space and zoom in on the blue universe. It zooms through the blue universe as it did with the red until it reaches Alternia.

It zooms in on the green moon, where Snowman and Spades Slick face off on top of a building. The unused space of the animation becomes a fancy green pattern, then the roof fades in around it and the small animation fades, letting the new one take up all the available space. Slick glares at Snowman and holds a pistol. It pans over Snowman, who glares back. A text box appears at the bottom of the screen.

What are you waiting for?
Draw, Spades.

Spades Slick lifts his gun and aims it at her. The background behind him blurs black and green. He fires a single round, white bullet that glows green. The bullet flies towards her, leaving a green streak in its wake. It strikes her in the chest, sending out a splash of bright blue blood. It's bluer than Vriska's and lighter than Equius's. It's the color of the water inside a magic 8 ball. It zooms in and shows her heart, which is filled with galaxies. The bullet tears through it and galaxies begin to explode into static. It zooms through the dying universe until it reaches alternia, then the screen splits again. On the left, snowman lays on the ground with blood pouring from her chest. On the right, the universe is contained in the blue tube again. It zooms out until it shows the whole machine again and Snowman's body disappears. The timer counts down to 4:13. Flare begins to fade out and Savior of the Dreaming Dead fades in. Derse vanishes into the distance and static takes up the screen.

The static turns into the clouds and lights of LoFaF. It pans over a forest as hummingbirds flit from flower to flower, then goes to Jade's quest bed, where Jack left her body. It zooms out and shows Jade on a screen in a station, but the screen goes dark. Blood is splattered up the front of the machine. P.M. stands over W.V.'s body and looks upset. It zooms in on the drawing of LoFaF that W.V. did on one of the wall panels. That fades to the actual LoFaF, which is surrounded by static. It zooms in to show the landscape and zooms in more to Jade's quest bed. Pink hummingbirds come and surround her. The area around her bed begins to glow green. Then it zooms out again, and LoFaF becomes Skaia, bombarded by meteors. The surface of the battlefield burns where the meteors hit, cracking open the ground and turning it into lava. Jadesprite and Davesprite stare up at a massive one heading directly towards them.

It cuts back to LoFaF as a space symbol appears above Jade's questbed and the green glow spreads. The lights on top of the posts turn on, then burst. Jade glows white and more hummingbirds land. It cuts back to the battlefield. Jadesprite stares towards Davesprite, who stare back. Jadesprite suddenly glows white and looks scared. A spirograph appears around her, then vanishes. The screen goes black for just a second, then it fades in over a pair of striped grey socks and red shoes, echoing Aradia's ascension to Godtier. It shifts over and becomes the left side of a split screen. On the other side, it shows a hand at the end of a long black sleeve. It cuts to a pair of dog ears sticking through a black hood. Then to Jade's chest, where there's the white, six armed spiral of space. The space symbol flashes, then it shows Jade in a nebula against a background of stars. Her outfit is a long sleeved, dark grey tunic over a calf length black skirt. Her hood has two tails.
Davesprite stares at Jade, who has now fused with Jadesprite. Jade holds out one hand towards the meteor, which shrinks down to the size of a tennis ball and floats to her hand. She holds out her hand again, this time towards one of the downed Prospitian ships. She brings it over, then jumps up onto it. Davesprite still just stares.
It cuts to the deck of the ship, where Jade stands. She holds out one hand and the background shows the Battlefield glowing and shrinking down. It shows Davesprite, then zooms out. Jade appears over the horizon and grows until her face takes up most of the sky. She flashes green, then suddenly the ship is floating over LoFaF, near her body on the questbed. She smiles and looks towards the planet, then towards the battlefield, which floats to her left and is small enough to be cradled in one hand. She flashes white and the beat mesa appears through her. There's a Z shaped line cut across the surface. John stands on it and stares up as whiteness descends around him.
It returns to the exile's desert. The sky over the last station is full of the red miles. P.M. drags W.V. by his armpits and looks up. Serenity floats behind her. The queen's ring lays on the ground next to W.V.'s trusty knife. P.M. spots it and reaches for it.
It cuts back to Jade on the ship, then John on the beat mesa comes in behind her. She waves a hand and John flashes green, then appears on the ship next to her.
Everything flashes purple, then it once again shows Derse's moon in the void. Faint tentacles fill the background.
Dave stares towards Rose in the heart of the moon. Rose stares back. Both look nervous but determined.
LoFaF pulses, then shrinks to the same size Jade made the battlefield.
LoHaC pulses, then shrinks as well.
Then LoLaR.
Then LoWaS.
The five planets turn in a lazy circle in front of Jade, then it zooms out and the ship disappears into green static.
The bomb from the tumor appears through the static, along with Dave and Rose on their quest beds. The timer has 45 seconds left and shifts to the top of the screen. Between Dave and Rose, Derse's moon flies through the void. It grows to take up the whole screen and they vanish.
44 seconds. Jade and John stand on the ship. Jade spreads her arms out and they take up the whole screen. The static behind them flashes.
43 seconds. It zooms in on Jade. She's concentrating very hard.
42. She makes 2 L shapes with her fingers and puts them together into a square.
41
Inside the square, it shows P.M.. It zooms in on her and Jade vanishes.
40
P.M. moves to put the ring on.
39
It switches over to Jack attacking Bilious Slick.
38
The screen splits. The bomb ticks down and the red miles begin to consume Bilious Slick.
37
The bomb keeps ticking down. Snowman bleeds out.
36
Slick's gun smokes.
35
The beat mesa flies towards Skaia.
34
33
The beat mesa gets closer. The space symbol appears in Skaia, then spins out.
32
The ring is almost on P.M.'s finger.
It cuts back to Jade making a square with her fingers.

The fourth wall appears inside her fingers.

She moves her hands apart.

The screen grows and solidifies.

The scene shifts. Jade still grows the fourth wall, but now it's directly in front of the ship.

The screen appears through her fingers and begins flashing through images that stay only for a fraction of a second. It runs backwards through their adventure until it gets to the point where Jade's tower dropped.

The tower pulses brightly.

It appears in Gamzee's eye.

Gamzee looks at the laptop. He has lil cal in his lap.

Gamzee grows to take up the whole screen.

It shows a trollian window. He has a point on Jade's timeline open to show her tower falling and he's drawn a bloody smiley face on the screen using his own blood. A chat is open with Doc Scratch. Only Gamzee's side of the conversation can be seen.

It zooms in on the chat:
T.C.: (low) That's all motherfuckin done white texted bro.
(caps) Now what?
(scratch speaks)
8
T.C.: (low) oh yeah?
(caps) And just what the mother fuck is it
(low) that we motherfuckin are?
(confused face with a round nose)

It zooms in on the tower.

The timer begins to fade.
The tower turns into Scratch's head as he lays on the ground with his leg torn off.

It zooms in on Scratch.

Text begins to fill in at the bottom of the screen.

S. U. C.

It finishes typing. Suckers.

Scratch's head shows Derse's moon.

The song switches to Black Hole/Green Sun.

It flashes through several image very quickly.

Derse's moon shrinks into nothingness.

Dave and Rose stand in front of the bomb. Both tubes are filled with static.

They turn into silhouettes. Dave is silhouetted white against red and Rose is white against blue.

Dave stares at Rose.

Rose stares back.

Dave's eye, his pupil blown wide. It zooms out.

P.M. putting on the ring. It glows and she vanishes.

Rose's eye, her pupil contracted to a pinpoint. It opens wide, showing Derse's moon.

Her eye fades, leaving Derse's moon with a faint white ring around it in an otherwise black void.

It zooms out. Red, white, and blue energy engulfs the moon, then blasts outwards.

A green point appears at the center of the explosion, then expands. It's the green sun. The explosion made the green sun.

The sun continues to expand and send out pulses of energy until it takes up the whole screen.

Aradia and Sollux float near the sun. It zooms out. Jack watches them from a long way away. He clenches his bloody fist. Behind him is the ruin of Bilious Slick's pond. There's black blood and stardust poisoning the water.

It zooms out to show the Troll's meteor. The surviving trolls all stand on the roof and look towards the new green light in the sky. Terezi puts a hand on Sollux's shoulder and points towards it.

Karkat reaches up and redirects her arm to the right direction - just a small adjust to the left. They fade and Sollux hunches over, clenching his fist and flickering his eyes. Lightning and static surrounds him and the meteor is launched towards the green sun by the force of his psionic abilities. It hurtles through the red lines of the furthest ring, then cuts back to Sollux. Yellow blood pours from his eyes and mouth, and he screams, but he doesn't stop.

Jack glares at the sun, then turns to look at something to his left.

A white, green, and black light appears on the troll's ruined exit platform, just like it did when Jack arrived. It pulses outwards and the screen goes black. Another winged form appears on the platform in a swirl of green fire, but this one is white. Jack's eyes go wide.

It zooms in towards the green sun where two figures rise from the plasma. One is wearing a long cape and clutching half of a sword. The other is wearing a short, pointed hood and a long dress. It flashes to a split screen.

On the left, it shows a pair of legs in red pants with the hem of a darker red cape behind them. On the right, it shows an arm in a short orange sleeve and the edge of a light symbol on the chest. It flashes and they change. The left shows an arm in a long red sleeve under a short sleeve shirt. The hand is holding the royal deringer. The right shows a pair of light blue slippers with ribbons to keep them on and a pair of darker orange leggings coming from under a calf length orange skirt with a slit up the sides. It shows the back of a dark red hood, then an orange tunic with the light symbol on the chest. The royal deringer flashes. The one in orange looks away. The light and time symbols flash over each other and the screen splits again.

On the left, a red eye has the time gear in it. On the right, a purple eye has the light sun in it.
The symbols flash and move to the top of the screen as the two Derse dreamers appear in full. Dave floats under the time symbol, wearing the red outfit of his godtier. Rose wears her own orange robe under the light symbol. The screen splits and they both look up. Dave's eyes are hidden by his glasses while Rose's are hidden in the shadow of her hood. Aradia smiles at them.

It flashes to W.V.'s body lying on the floor. P.M. stands over him. Her grey wrapping is torn at the middle, exposing her chest, where the blade she now clutches grew. She flashes with green energy as it pans up over her, showing her wings, then her face, which now has dog ears and tufts of fur. She glares up at Jack, who looks shocked to see her. Serenity still sits on P.M.'s ear.

Everything fades to black except Serenity, who flashes a few times before going dark as well. The fourth wall fades in, then shows Jade, who moves her hands farther apart still. More images flash by quickly. This time it's Jade's introduction section shown in reverse. The image of her sleeping on the floor fades away as she grows the screen even more. The screen becomes absolutely massive as everything except it and the ship fades to white.

The ship launches forward, smashing through the lower left quadrant of the window. More images flash by. All of act 1, in reverse. It slowly grows until it stops on John, standing in his bedroom and looking around. Then that fades to white, leaving just the broken fourth wall.

It zooms out. Tattered red curtains close over the fourth wall. The clockwork sun and moon tick against a background of fire, but they don't move.

The music fades to the sound of fire crackling.

End of Act 5

Intermission 2: The Man in the Cairo Overcoat.

[Image description: The song English begins to play. A red curtain covers the screen. It zooms out, showing the clockwork sun and moon that usually accompanies and End of Act, but this time, instead of a sun and moon, there is a pair of flashing billiard balls. Behind them is a green lightning storm. The curtains open, showing a green server floating in a void. There's a flashing billiard ball on the front of it. It slowly zooms in, then fades to a piece of code.

```python import universe U
Tilde ATH open parenthesis u close parenthesis open curly bracket Close curly bracket execute open parenthesis flashing billiard ball close parenthesis semicolon this dot die open parenthesis close parenthesis semicolon
The line Execute (flashing billiard ball) flashes red. The screen turns into strange, colorful pieces of static, which then fills in with rows and rows of flashing billiard balls. They fade to black. A white orb attached to the top section of Doc Scratch's apartment building floats through a swirl of green and black space. It slowly zooms in. After a moment, it fades to Scratch's body laying on the floor. The green clock is upright again and ticks ominously. Instead of a split between Just and Heroic, it just shows green behind the hand. It zooms in on the ball at the end of the pendulum. It begins to glow as it stops in the center of the clock. Scratch's body begins to glow. It goes black, then shows Scratch's hand.

His arm begins to get longer, showing dark green skin with darker veins across it. The arm also becomes more muscular until it splits the sleeve of Scratch's shirt. It shows his leg, doing the same. A three-clawed foot bursts out of Scratch's shoe. A large, clawed hand bursts through Scratch's hand. The end of the torn off leg shakes and the stuffing turns blood red. Red shoots out of it, followed by a bloody stump. Blood lands on the floor, then a clawed hand slams into the ground beside it.

It shows the back of whatever creature is bursting out of Scratch. It's shoulders are massive and incredibly muscular. The tattered remnants of Scratch's shirt fall away. Below the stump, a golden
A peg leg appears in a crackle of green energy. Around the top of it, small, colorful panels flash the colors of billiard balls. The peg leg slams into the ground and a few more drops of blood fall around it. It fades to the clock, which now flashes many colors. Clock hands appear behind the vertical hand and spin backwards.

It shows the room with the two fourth walls. The coat over one of them turns into green static, then disappears. A fraction of a second later, Jade's ship bursts through the window and heads for the other. It fades to white, then the flashing clock appears again. The ball on the end of the pendulum turns black and red cracks appear across it.

It cuts to the creature, which still has its head inside Scratch's. Scratch's head cracks and darkens, sending beams of light from the cracks. The coat from the fourth wall appears on the creature. Scratch's head bursts, but before we can see this creature, Lord English, it cuts to the wolf head mounted on the wall. Brightly colored lights flash over it and it repeatedly zooms in on the mouth, then returns to Lord English. Scratch's head pulses and the lapels of the coat flicker bright colors. A ring of green surrounds the head, then shrinks as it begins to glow white. The white fills up the entire screen, then fades to a green silhouette of Lord English. The silhouette fades to show him in detail. His head looks like a dark green, monstrous skull with jagged teeth, bright red spots on the cheekbones, and sharp fangs. One of the fangs is golden.

The coat disappears and two halves of an Egyptian sarcophagus appear on either side of him, flashing the same colors the lapels were. They close around him and the strange static from before appears behind the sarcophagus. A pulse of energy identical to the one that happened at the creation of the green sun surrounds him, and he vanishes. Instead, it shows a flashing clock face with hands that run backwards. That, too, disappears and everything is black.

Then Lord English sticks his head out. His eyes are flashing billiard balls. He roars a single work.

Honk.

He roars again, louder.

Honk.

It shows a universe. Alternia fades in. A circle of 15, flashing billiard balls surround it.

Homestuck

Act 6 Act 1: Through Broken Glass

[S] ACT 6

[Image description: The loading screen is the sburb logo. It pulses as the flash loads, then flips to a mirror image and turns red. The song Homestuck Anthem begins to play. The entire screen goes red. It fades to a closed red curtain that turns bright green. The curtain opens and a universe fades in behind it. The stars blur and the milky way galaxy appears at the center of the screen. That blurs and it shows a blue star cluster. It fades to white, then focuses on a star. That blurs and a planet in orbit around that star is shown in silhouette. There's a single moon orbiting it. Detail fades in slowly. It's Earth. It zooms in on the northwest area of North America, then on a specific neighborhood. It looks just like John's, but it's in Autumn. A hand plays a piano in time with the music, then fades to black. It shows the neighborhood again and zooms in on a house near the center. The house is identical to John's. It even has the same tree in the yard, though leaves are falling from it. A stylized sun disappears behind clouds above the tree.

It fades through a series of snapshots of someone's life.

A dirty fedora sits next to a grey, capitaholog of object with a red central section. There are posters on a wall of two women using a chainsaw against a purple creature and one of a blue man. Someone carries a very beat up copy of Colonel Sassacre's Daunting Text. A pair of handguns and a few bullets sit on a table. A partially tattered, partially knit, partially robotic bunny sits next to a green box and a note with green writing on it. The stylized sun, which is also the light symbol, passes over a house with a large observatory tower. A pair of kittens, one with three eyes and one with four, are encased in some sort of blue material and stored on shelves. A cord runs from a green hub to a medium sized fourth wall. An apartment building sits in the center of a large city. A billboard on the side of one of the buildings advertises Sweet Bro and Hella Jeff The Moive. A katana sits in the arms of a puppet, who is wearing a Derse tunic. A volcano lords over an island and lagoon with an ancient frog temple. The sun rises over the island.

It zooms out from the planet, then the star, then the entire universe. It keeps zooming out until that universe is contained in the eye of a girl with short, carefully styled hair and round glasses who bears more than a passing resemblance to Nanna. She's wearing a short sleeve, white shirt with a light blue, horned slime creature on it and a calf length grey skirt. She grins up at something. It zooms out. She's standing by her mailbox, which is open. It zooms out further. She's in the yard of the house identical to John's. Everything except for the girl fades to black, then she fades too as it zooms out to show a screen. At the top of the casing, there's a Caduceus symbol; a pair of snakes coiled around a winged staff. It types something in Alternian that translates to Press Next to continue.]

A young lady stands in her bedroom. It just so happens that today, the 11th of November, 2011, is the date scheduled for the launch of a highly exclusive playtesting experience for a much anticipated game. The young lady is expecting to find this game in her mailbox today. She is expecting the game to be enclosed in a pair of envelopes, and printed on these envelopes, she is expecting to find her name!

What do you suppose the name on the envelopes will be?

Enter name.

You cannot enter her name!!! It was already engraved in her Honorary Placronym on her 13th birthday, which was about two and a half years ago, and has been sitting here neatly on the bookshelf ever since. Attempting to engrave it with another name after completing this sacred rite of passage is practically unheard of, and is a gesture nearly as offensive as it would be if you tried to name her something dumb like Barnstench Fartface. Luckily she is not the sort to hold a grudge, and she will let it slide this time. As long as you hurry up and get her big day started!

Examine room.

Your name is jane. As was previously mentioned, you are poised for an elite opportunity to test the sburb alpha. It is so elite in fact, you are the only of your kind invited to playtest! Though you guess that probably comes with the territory of being the heiress apparent to a baked goods empire. You don't suppose it hurts that you are said empire's number one fangirl, either! It should come as no surprise that you enjoy baking, but you also adore reading detective stories. You fancy yourself a skilled prankstress, if by no other measure than lineage. Though at times you feel it's tough to fill those shoes when you are surrounded by jokers. Seriously, the shenanigans perpetrated by your pals make your old school japes feel kind of pedestrian sometimes, but oh well, you love them all anyway. You once dabbled in amateur botany but found it too frustrating, because your vegetables kept disap-actually you know what, you don't want to talk about it. You love situation comedies, whilst holding particular affection for mustachioed funnymen. You know, your foxworthies, your funkes, your swansons, but not necessarily your gallaghers per se, because you have to draw the fucking line somewhere. You are also pleased to contemplate frightening fauna, though saddened by their regrettable fakeness attribute.

But none of that's on your mind now, because you are psyched about this special date, 11.11.11, I.E. 2X3prong day (whatever that means), a date exhibiting just the sort of numerical gimmick corporations love to exploit for their big releases, or for launching major rebranding initiatives. In the case of your cherished multiglobal empire, both such events are slated to happen today. You can't wait to see what is in store, and for the mail to come. When it does, you will waste no time in embarking on the game's maiden voyage, and if even a fraction of what you've heard turns out to be true, you are prepared to have the time of your life!!

What will you do?

Jane: Quickly retrieve arms from chest.

[Image description: Jane stands there. Before she can do anything, another image slides on from the right. A boy with square glasses and a dark green skull on his shirt stands in his own room. The skull looks like Lord English's and the boy looks like John, but with Grandpa Harley's carefully styled hair. He wears an open button up over his skull shirt. His room resembles Jade's, but the walls are covered in posters for countless movies, most of which seem to feature blue women. There is an ammo case to his left, but bullets and pistols are scattered around the room anyway. Magazines lay on the floor near the ammo case. To his right, there is a table with the partially robotic bunny, the box, and the note on it. A bedpost stick on screen at the bottom, next to a stairway that has a vine creeping up it.]

Jane is not empowered to rehash this tired running gag because all of a sudden she is too busy being the other guy.

We need to figure out what this fella's name is, pronto!

Enter name.

[Image description: It shows a name plate laying in a pile of guns. It says Jake English.]

Once again, you make the incalculable blunder of attempting to engrave an already allocated placronym. His name was etched when he turned 13 too, almost 3 years ago. It's been sitting here messily in this unbelievably deadly pile of guns ever since. What sort of vulgar, childish moniker were you going to stick this poor bastard with? Barfbreath Turdsmirk? It doesn't even matter. Just tell him what to do!

Examine room.

[Image description: It zooms out. Every single inch of his walls are covered in overlapping movie posters. There's far too many to name. His bed is shoved into the corner opposite a massive pile of guns and ammo. His sheets are dark green with silhouettes of monsters on them. The monsters resemble the troll's Lusii. There's a set of thigh holsters slung around one of the bedposts.]

Your name is Jake. you love movies. All movies. You would describe your taste in film as eclectic, but in truth, it isn't much less than totally indiscriminate. You bluster frequently of exuberance for firearms and fisticuffs and adventure, though have no human company with which to share these interests. But who needs chums, when you can enjoy a top notch gander of your gals of cerulean complexion, hubba hubba. You're known to be found with your nose in a comic book or two, not that it makes you a nerd or anything, like you even care about that! Not a gent of your panache and swagger, qualities which you would bandy with aplomb on your globe-spanning adventures, hypothetically speaking. You would love to travel around the world, toppling any sacred urns you encountered. You'd be tickled by the opportunity to defile hallowed tombs everywhere, raiding them of their treasures. And how you'd give your right leg for a shot at desecrating the shit out of some real life mystic ruins for their byzantine wares. Luckily for your limb, there is a dandy set of such ruins nearby, and you desecrate them quite frequently! You are also troubled to contemplate frightening fauna, and plagued daily by their regrettable realness attribute.

What else? You sure like to wrestle. Did you mention fisticuffs yet? You know, scrums and whatnot. Also, skulls. Gosh you love skulls. There is a good skull at the heart of any mystery, haunting its every page. That is what you always say. Or at least, it is what you always hope.

What will you do?

Jake: Retrieve arms from floor, post-haste!

[Image description: Jake reaches for one of the guns, but before he can grab it, the screen flashes and is suddenly a character select screen in a Pesterchum tab. There are four people. From left to right they are Jane Crocker, Jake English, the blacked out silhouette of an unknown girl with a short bob, like Mom's hair, and the blacked out silhouette of an unknown boy with spiked hair that wouldn't look out of place in an anime, like Bro's hair. At the top of the screen, it says Choose Your Character! As you hover over each character, the empty space under the options changes. With Jane, a light blue arrow points to somewhere in Washington. With Jake, a green arrow points to a point in the middle of the pacific. With the unknown girl, a pink arrow points somewhere in upstate New York. With the unknown boy, an orange arrow points towards the Houston area. It seems that each of the colors for these Alpha kids corresponds to the color of their respective Beta kid's sprite. John's was light blue, like Jane. Jade's was darker green, like Jake. Rose's was Pink, like the unknown girl. Dave's was orange, like the unknown boy. Click Jane, but not until after you read the caption.]

You make a dutiful motion toward your trusty firearms, doing your part to assail the mushy carcass of a horse that passed away long ago, when suddenly a wild character-select screen approaches!!!!!!!!!!

You really feel like you are in the driver's seat now. You can basically take this story literally anywhere, as long as you don't pick one of those shadowy characters, and as long as the panels are actually finished being drawn. It is like this whole panoramic cornucopia of limitless possibility sprawling before your very eyes.

Who do you want to be?

Be Jane.

[Image description: Jane stands in her bedroom again. There are two stuffed animals on her bed. One is a tattered bunny dressed in a white fedora and brown jacket. The other is partially off screen.]

You are suddenly Jane again. What was it you were up to? Oh right, this game. You're excited about that!

Earlier this morning you thought you heard the mail truck, even though the mail never comes in the morning. But just to be sure, you rushed downstairs to check, even though due to recent events, you are Forbidden from Leaving the House. Alas, it was not there, and you sort of spaced out at the sky with a goofy grin on your face for no great reason, and then you were caught red handed by your guardian. Then you got in trouble.
You think you might be grounded now? Whatever, Dad!

Jane: Examine fetch modus.

[Image description: Jane stands by the bookshelf. A second image shows the card. It's a Recipe fetch modus, which has a spoon logo.]

It's your Recipe Modus, an extremely handy little inventory widget your Dad got for you for your birthday a couple years ago. He can be a real hard-ass sometimes (not really), but he sure knows how to spoil his little girl.

Jane: Captchalogue it!

You stick the recipe modus in your... Uh... Recipe modus!

You flip the card over and look at the back. The thing about this modus you think is really cool is that instead of showing a completely useless wobbly garbled code on the back, it itemizes the components which could be used to create it! In a completely hypothetical framework, of course.

Just another wonderful innovation by your favorite company. It releases many products of an experimental nature, often with applicability to other kinds of technology and products which haven't hit the market yet. Of course, as the heiress, you are privy to all the sweetest gear in advance. Maybe you'll rummage through some of that stuff later.

The modus as a captchalogued object has only one simple recipe, involving an Array Modus (snore!) and a Cook Book (yesss!) Other objects have more varied and elaborate recipes though.

Jane: Get hat.

[Image description: A new card slides out of Jane's recipe book and the hat pops into it. A second image shows the back of the card. It can be made by double punching a grey book with a steak for one build grist, by overlapping an old pistol with a top hat for 25 build grist, 5 shale, and 1 shiny silver cube, or by double punching a potted plant with a Charles Dutton book and overlapping with a matriorb for 100 trillion flashing rainbow gems. There's a scroll bar on the side, so there are probably many more options.]

You captchalogue your favorite hat, which is also your only hat. You spent basically your entire childhood in this hat, pretending to be hard boiled detectives and whatnot. In public, you and your dad made quite the pair. Everyone could tell by a glance that you were your father's daughter, sired from his loins directly and genetically, through what was undoubtedly a natural process of human procreation involving a man and a woman. People would definitely nod and say, "yep, that little lady sure did emerge from a womb on account of that gentleman's awesome virility."

As you can see, there are loads of ways to cook up a hat like this, involving many stupid combinations of random objects.

Jane: Inspect posters.

[Image description: It zooms in on the two posters over the small bookshelf. One is an autographed Jeff Foxworthy poster, which has a heart drawn on it in light blue. The other is three men in the Problem Sleuth style running down a street. The one in front carries a key ring and the one in the back has a gun. The one in the middle just looks angry.

It's one of your funnymen pinups, a glorious Foxworthy. It's one interest that overlaps with your dad's. He thinks his corny redneck shtick is just the funniest thing since sliced bread, that was sliced by a hilarious clown with a laugh knife. Honestly, you don't care much for his comedy though. Dealing the low income bucolic classes affectionate sass ad nauseum isn't what you'd call your cup of tea. You just think he's really handsome. Every time he starts rattling off pointers on how to self-diagnose bumpkinhood, you just get lost in that pair of blue twinklers and those soft auburn lipbristles. You were so shy when you got the poster autographed. If only you felt worthy of that fox, heh heh.

Oh and there's one of your problem sleuth posters. You've got a lot of problem sleuth stuff, because you think detective stories are just so swell. This was the last panel in the first story, which ended a little before your 13th birthday.

[Note: "last panel" and "first story" are respectively links to the last page and first page of Problem Sleuth, one of the other comics on mspaintadventures.]

Since then, the author has been steadily updating problem sleuth 2, which you have been following avidly. You are happy that he stayed in that lane, and stuck with a time-tested formula. If he went in a different direction, you probably would have found it really disappointing.

Jane: Check out other posters.

[Image description: Jane stands near her bed and looks at the posters over it. The other stuffed animal is visible now. It's a black bunny wearing a pink wizard outfit. A second image zooms in on the leftmost blue man poster and poster of the women with the chainsaw. A third zooms in on the other three posters. The one of the other blue man has green writing on it and a moustache drawn on. He looks to be naked, but has his crotch covered by another poster, which we can now see is Howie Mandel as a blue, horned troll from Little Monsters. The last poster is of Ron Swanson and has hearts and a buck toothed smiley face drawn on it in light blue.]

Another Sleuth poster of course, with two of your favorite dames ever.

The Tobias and the Manhattan were gifts for your 14th birthday, sent to you by your good buddy Jake. Just a couple of Periwinkle Hearthrobs unquestionably sent in playful retaliation for the ribbing you've given him over the years for his inexplicable infatuation with his phthalo femmes. So he made a couple of coy recommendations for objects of your attraction, and you have hung his Cobalt Beefcakes here since. He was pretty spot on with the blue Funke, to be honest, since that's like the best show ever. Mr. Cross can blue himself any time, as far as you are concerned. But the Manhattan... not so much. Comics aren't really your thing. But you hung it up anyway because that's the sort of thing you do in a mildly escalating feud of passive-aggressive one-upsmanship. You own it. But you felt kind of weird about having his Blue Mutant Penis dangle over your head while you sleep, so you covered it up with something even more obscene, some sort of revolting Troll Howie Mandel, also gifted to you by Jake. Good lord does that kid have some spotty tastes.

There is also your magnificent Swanson. Ron Swanson Is the Perfect Man. You have tried to order all of the bacon and eggs in a restaurant on several occasions. But your dad never lets the order go beyond the joke level. What a fuddyduddy.

Jane: Take spoon.
You tuck your trusty Junior Battlemaster's Bowl buster Stirring Solution 50 thousand into your strife deck, allocated with the ever martially-pragmatic spoon kind. You wouldn't have it any other way!

You love your fancy spoon. It has several million recipes stored in it, and walks you through each step with a soothing female robot voice, just like in science fiction. Some urban legends say that the device also broadcasts subliminal messages distributing ominous Crocker corp propaganda, but you don't put any stock in that sort of baloney for a second.

There is one switch on it that doesn't seem to do anything. Maybe yours is defective? Still, it's perfectly serviceable, and has assisted you in whipping many a cake into delicious submission.

Jane: Examine bunnies.

These customized bunnies were gifts to you on your 13th birthday, from two of your friends. Both were heirlooms passed down to them, and they decided to coordinate gift ideas and send you dressed up versions of their beloved childhood toys. You like to think he was shooting for a detective bunny with the one on the left, but you know realistically it was probably an Indiana Jones bunny more in line with his interests than yours, especially since it came with a little whip you have since misplaced. The bunny used to belong to his Grandma. The other one used to belong to your friend's Mom, and she dressed it as a wizard, which was also unapologetically more representative of her interests than yours. That's ok though, you loved the gesture anyway, and you and she are totally B.F.F. sies 4everz, her words. And you agree with them!

You did get one more bunny from your other pal. He had to make it himself from scratch, since for some ridiculous reason he didn't happen to have a ratty old bunny heirloom lying around. His gift was... somewhat less innocuous. You have no idea where it is though. Probably just as well.

Jane: Look out window.

You've been fidgeting around your room all day, making little observations about your various belongings, checking the clock. When will the dang mail get here?? You take another peek out the window, just in case.

It's still not there. But there is your dad. What is he up to?
card slides out. The car pops into it and it slides back in."

He just captchaedium the car. Oh, that's right. He was going to wash it today. He's probably taking it into the back yard next to the garden hose. He keeps a very busy fatherly itinerary. So many dad things to do, every single day.

If the mail arrives soon, this would be a great opportunity to sneak out and get it! Fingers crossed.

[Image description: Jane steps away from the window. An alert over her computer shows the Lord English-like skull from Jake's shirt.]

Looks like somebody is bothering you. He better make it quick! You've got a window to stay glued to.

Jane: Go to computer.

[Image description: Jane sits at her computer, which still has the alert, and types. There is a Game Girl magazine by her keyboard which features the sburb alpha logo on the cover. A second image shows her desktop. The background is the three people from Problem Sleuth, but dressed as monsters. The left one is a vampire with candy corn for fangs. The middle is Frankenstein's monster. The right one is a zombie with gummy worms stuck to him. There are a few different icons on the screen. A computer is labeled System. An orange snake monster with a white head and a blank expression is labeled Hemera. 2 red Bs are labeled Betty Bother. A pair of yellow busts, one happy and one neutral, is labeled Pesterchum. In the task bar, a betty bother window flashes. The bottom right corner shows that it's 11:05 on 11/11.]

You know you really should switch to Pesterchum. It's what your friends use, and it's a lot better than Bettybother, if you're being honest with yourself. BB is just so spammy and annoying with all of the popups everywhere.

Next

[Image description: The betty bother window appears on the far right of the screen, but most of the space is taken up by ads that flicker slightly to show black words against a white background. On the betty bother application itself, there is a banner with a Gushers Mystery Mouth Morpher ad (consume). The list of usernames below that shows golgothas Terror flashing, along with two more names that are covered by another ad. Below the usernames is a chart showing B.C. Corp stock value, presumably. It is a jagged line graph that shows near constant growth (submit). The other three ads are a large picture of two people walking around on a red landscape. They're wearing space suits, but not helmets, and standing near a spaceship that looks like it came out of a sci-fi from the 1950s. Something red that resembles the Battleship Condescension flies high above them. It reads Be the first to visit mars! (obey). The ad that covers part of the usernames list is for Hamburger Helper (cease reproduction). The last one is just a photo of Guy Fieri smiling widely and making a 'rock on' hand shape at the camera. His middle two fingers are held down while his pinky, pointer finger, and thumb are extended (stay asleep).]

Ugh, look at this dreadful clutter. You have got to switch. But then, brand loyalty is a powerful thing.

Looks like Jake is messaging you.

Jane: Answer Jake.
[Image description: The screen splits. On the right, Jane still sits at her computer with the green skull alert. On the left, Jake stands in his own room, but he's wearing a dark green helmet that covers everything but the lower half of his face. It has jagged fangs cut into the area above the mouth and the eyepieces flash the colors of billiard balls. There's a symbol made of overlapping and nested squares around the base of an antenna on top of his head. Above him, he has an alert showing the light blue horned slime from Jane's shirt.]

[Note: GT, Jake, speaks in a darker green color and GG, Jane, speaks in light blue.]

G.T.: Jane!
Forgive my botherations. I know this is meant to be a spanking ripsnorter of a day for you and all. But do you happen to know where the devilfucking dickens mr strider might be?
G.G.: Oh, that's fine!
I had been meaning to message you sooner actually, but I suppose in all the hubbub today, it plumb slipped my mind.
Which is a shocking fact on its lonesome, considering what I have to tell you!
G.T.: Egad...
Loosens collar a bit.
G.G.: As for this Strider business, hrrrmm. He's an elusive guy Jake. You know that.
I talked to him yesterday. That's as much help as I can be!
G.T.: Shoot.
I really need to ask him something but hes got his blasted auto responder turned on.
G.G.: Hoo hoo.
I love that thing. (buck toothed smiley)
G.T.: He wouldn't be pleased to hear you say that.
G.G.: What do you need with him?
Does this have to do with your crazy pen pal project?
G.T.: It most certainly does and time is of the essence!
Today is the day i have to finish it and send it. Not a day later!
So you see why i am feeling really friggin discombobulated at the moment.
G.G.: Sorry, J. (sad face)
This would be the birthday present... for your grandmother?
G.T.: No!
It is for your grandfather simply to be relayed to him by my grandmother. A joint gift to him from she and i.
G.G.: Her and me.
G.T.: What? Who and you now?
G.G.: "A joint gift from her and me." Grammar, Jake!
G.T.: Oh for frigs flipping sake jane this is no time for your prudish pedantry! Leave your bookish malarkey in a dusty old library somewhere. I have an adventure to get on with!
G.G.: So if I have this straight, the big thing hogging up your plate today is not this marvelous new game which I have invited you to play with me, but finishing a robotic rabbit to give to my dead poppop?
G.T.: Bingo. double pistols and a wink
G.G.: You are a very strange and silly boy.
G.T.: Please jane we have addressed this.
I am sending the gift back in time to when they are both alive and about our age.
Or...
Something like that. Something funny is going on here that i have not fully grappled yet but dag nab it if im not gonna see it through.
G.G.: Well,
Godspeed, then! I do hope you can pull it off.
G.T.: Are you being fresh with me now?
G.G.: No!!
G.T.: Look jane i know you've never believed me and you think everything I say is some big cockamamie goofoff but I think today of all days is when you should start taking some things more seriously.
Especially since I have always had your back. I have always believed in you!
G.G.: Hey! I have believed in you too.
However, believing somebody isn't the same thing as believing in somebody.
But that much said...
I think that maybe I am getting ready to believe some of the wild stories I've heard?
Or, if not believe outright, reserve judgment on, at least.
G.T.: Is that so!
G.G.: I don't know!
I'm still not sure what to think. But what I wanted to tell you this morning was...
I had a really wild dream last night.
And you were in it.
G.T.: Oh my. glasses fog up. fumbles for kerchief.
G.G.: Sh! Not like that.
It was so real! I think we were in the game, even though we haven't started playing yet.
I don't know what to make of it. Whether it was a vision of the future, or somewhere that exists now, or if it was just a really lucid dream due to excitement.
G.T.: What was I doing there?
G.G.: Um...
Not a heck of a lot!
I really want to tell you all about it, but it will take some time to explain, and we both have things to attend to.
You with your time traveling rabbitwork, and I, my vigilant window gazing!
G.T.: Too true.
Let us reconvene later and sort out all this shit at a leisurely pace.
G.G.: Yes, ok, good luck Jake!
G.T.: Okay you too jane! Bye!

golgothasTerror [G.T.] ceased bothering gutsyGumshoe [G.G.]

Jane: Check clock.
[Image description: It zooms in on the clock in the corner of Jane's screen. It's now 11:10.]
Hold the phone. 11:10... you almost forgot! One minute until the empire's Rebranding launch. You wonder if it will live up to the hype? Guess you'll find out.
Jane: Wait a minute.
[Image description: Jane turns around as something flickers behind her. The spoon logo on the chest changes to a trident, just like the one that was on the underside of the Battleship Condescension.]
You ride out another 60 seconds and... huh? Something happened to your Baking Chest. Did the logo just change?
You wonder what else may have been affected.
Jane: Look around.

Yep. This one changed too. Crockercorp is nothing if not thorough with its branding tactics. You guess it's pretty cool? It's just a fork instead of a spoon. Not the most awe inspiring logo you've ever seen, but who are you to judge? Aside from the future owner of the company.

(You make a mental note that when you turn 18 and inherit the company you will change it back to a spoon, you love the spoon.)

Jane: Examine bowl buster.

Sure enough, the Junior Battermaster's Bowl buster Stirring Solution 50 thousand has been affected too, along with your specibus.

Jane: Try flipping switch.

You try the broken switch again. Hey look, it does something now, toggling your trusty bowl buster between a Stirring Solution and a Poking Solution. Neat!

Jane: Back to the window!

Nope, still nothing. You surely would have heard the truck pull up. You guess the empire wasn't able to coordinate the mail with its rebranding. Maybe the U.S. Postal Service is the one thing it doesn't have its gnarled claws in yet? (Another mental note: sink gnarled claws into post office when you take over.)

Jane: Open chest.

You decide to pass the time by rummaging through your Baking Chest and... hang on.

Maybe later.

Jane: Answer.

pesterlog
[Note: Uranian Umbra types in light grey and capitalizes every U. This person also uses a more cutesy style of emoticons than the standard ones.]

U.U.: good morning, lovely. (Very happy, cutesy smiley with closed eyes)
G.G.: why, hellowoooooo.
U.U.: so I guess today is finally the day you make everything better.
G.G.: (buck toothed smiley)!
U.U.: it is the day whereafter the legendary octet of mutual progenitoriety will come together and heal a great breach in paradox space.
    a day delivered through eighty billion years and four distinct universal instances worth of unfathomable turbulence.
    and while the emerald eye of this storm is fixed in the abyss forever today you are poised to escape its scowl once and for all.
    by skaias guiding light, you may leave behind its turning arms of bright colours and mayhem, and secure peace for your cosmic progeny for all duration.
    and if you are to meet this departure with trepidation I would understand! But also I would ask is there nothing I can do to ease your mind?
G.G.: gosh! So formal today.
U.U.: yes. (cutesy blank face with closed eyes and a bead of sweat)
I'm afraid I am guilty of rehearsing this pep talk well in advance.
    I thought you deserved a proper sendoff.
G.G.: d'aww.
U.U.: well then?
    is there nothing I can do?
    it was a serious question. (small gasping face)
G.G.: you needn't worry about easing my nerves.
    if it weren't for you, I wouldn't be nearly as thrilled about today as I am!
U.U.: splendid! (cutesy, large smile with closed eyes) but remember I will be here to help, whilst refraining from causal spoilers to the best of my ability.
G.G.: that is reassuring!
U.U.: have you corresponded with your first designated co-player yet?
G.G.: no, I haven't seen her online yet today.
    I'm really hoping lalonde won't flake out on me this time. Have you heard from her?
U.U.: not the today that is local to you.
    though I do have a wee bit more trouble monitoring her than the rest of you. Curious dark patches in transmission, humph.
    still, I wouldn't fret over it. She is as good a chum as any you have and should come through ultimately, even if things seem dire.
G.G.: if you say so.
oh!
I wanted to tell you, I had an amazing dream last night!
U.U.: blimey! (small gasping face)
G.G.: I believe it may have been of the sort you described. A dream of awakening, presuming I haven't just flatout lost my marbles.
U.U.: indeed, im sure it was. I knew you would wake up soon!
    might you describe what you saw?
G.G.: I was in a bright gold city. Above was a brilliant blue sky, but the horizon was dark as night.
    was this the place you told me about? What was it called...
    ah, shucks, does this count as a "causal spoiler?"
U.U.: not at all! That is a simple detail about the realm you are about to explore, without directly involving your future decisions of consequence.
    the place you visited was called prospit. It is where I have woken up every time I have gone to sleep for most of my life.
G.G.: I didn't see you there. At least, I don't think I did!
U.U.: no, you wouldn't have.
my prospt is an alternate version from yours, in a completely different session quite far afield of your reality.
if we are ever to meet in person, it is unlikely to be while playing our respective games!
G.G.: ok then.
I mentioned this briefly to jake, and he didn't have much to say before we parted ways.
I will gather that if this is all true, then it means jake had not awoken yet?
U.U.: I think this is for you to determine in time. What is your hunch?
G.G.: I don't know.
but there was one thing about the dream that was very troubling.
I'm becoming nervous to consider what it might mean.
U.U.: understandable. But it will be important to practice patience today.
you have a long road ahead of you, and many questions will be answered in time.
but we can talk it over later. Now, we both have games to prepare for!
I know you could never fully appreciate what this actually meant, but I took much care to sync up these conversations with you on the same day that I begin playing as well.
that way, we can journey through our sessions together and compare notes! (small gasping face)
G.G.: hrm. I'm still not sure I appreciate what that means, but I appreciate that a nice gesture has been made if you say so!
I guess I should just start believing all of this now, huh? Rather than learning it to be true later and feeling the fool for all my curmudgeonly skepticism?
U.U.: (cutesy winking face)
G.G.: for starters, I guess I could drop my reservations about your story?
U.U.: will you (small gasping face)!!!
G.G.: I can write off much to tomfoolery as I'm no stranger to a good prank myself. But quite honestly you seem too kind for this charade. Not the type I'd expect to trot out such persistent falsehoods beyond their humorous welcome.
so what do I know! Consarn it, maybe you are an alien girl from uranus, and together we are about to play a game which determines the fate of existence. Sign me up!
U.U.: oh, hee hee! But I never claimed to be from that planet, which is only in the far reaches of your solar system.
in fact I am from much farther away. A different universe altogether.
but if you truly mean it, thank you for believing me!
now, jane my lovely, let us prepare for this adventure.
remember what I said about the need for patience.
patience with your friends.
patience for your growth as a hero of life.
and patience for the coming of the other four of legend.
a hero of breath and of light and of time and of space!
and if you still find yourself in doubt just check the inscription on that big old book downstairs.
after all, if you can't trust words written by your own hand then what use is trust at all? (very large smile with eyes closed)

Jane: Ok, back to the chest.

[Image description: Jane returns to the chest. A second image zooms in on the picture taped in the lid.]
You return to your baking chest which you use mainly for storing quality pranking apparatus and a few other odds and ends.

Oh hello, poppop. His friendly face is there to greet you every time you open your chest. You would have loved to meet him. Unfortunately his life was cut short at the tender age of 86 in a tragic accident, coincidentally on the same day you were born, or so your dad tells you. Poppop Crocker was a legendary comedian, following in the footsteps of his grandfather who of course was the greatest southern pranking legend of all time. One day, you hope to follow in poppop's too.

But then, if the whoppers you have been told recently have any truth to them, maybe you will get to meet him after all? It seems too good to be true. The only relationship you have ever had with him are through video footage of his vaudevillian antics on stage. Or through his role as Judge Johnny Stone on one of your favorite old sitcoms, Night Court.

Jane: Rummage around.

[Image description: Everything that was in the chest floats around Jane, though much of it wasn't visible before. There's a short white sword, some red capsules, several fake moustaches, a pair of beaglepuss glasses, some greyish purple capsules, a red tiara in the same style as Feferi and the Condesce's tiaras, including the pisces symbol on the gem, Harry Anderson's Wise Guy, a Pony Pals book, a Betty Crocker Cookbook, a Betty Crocker brand pointed hat, a pair of handcuffs, a rectangular red object with a rectangular slot in the top, and a newer copy of Colonel Sassacre's Daunting Text of Magical Frivolity and Practical Japery.]

Just your basics when it comes to pranking. A few clever disguises. A name brand dunce cap. A slightly abridged edition of sassacre's text, updated for the modern prankster and scrubbed of a few of the more egregious julep-fueled racial slurs, several other stray books, your company's prototypical model for the gristwidget 12 thousand, and of course your super-handy unreal heiress thought wave tiaratop for the young go getting junior batter master on the go.

Jane: Dump chest.

[Image description: Jane dumps all the stuff from the chest onto the floor. A second image zooms in on the poster behind the chest of a man holding a gun.]

Might as well get all this crap out of here and take it with you. You never know when you might need it.

You shut the chest and... oh, hello Harry Anderson. Always a pleasure to see you there.

He is also one of your idols, and as it happens, has a bit of a history with your poppop. They were rivals on the vaudeville comedy and magic act circuit. Eventually the less competent Anderson was shamed out of the industry and went on to greener pastures in the Private Dicking Biz. He became one of the hardest boiled detectives on the mean streets of the Big Easy, and later made a fortune off his memoirs (ghost written by Mike Caveney).

Jane: Captchalogue all.

[Image description: A bunch of cards slide out of Jane's recipe book and take all the items from the chest.]

Your sylladex is so great. You shudder to remember some of the old shitty fetch modi you used to struggle with when you were younger, still learning the captchalogueing ropes. Fibonacci heap??? Lol at the f'ing noob.
Jane: Inspect books.

[Image description: It shows the Wise Guy book next to the red cookbook. A second image shows the Pony Pals book. The cover says Pony Pals, Detective Pony. Can Acorn save the animals? By Jeanne Betancourt, and shows a girl and a horse in an enclosure. The horse rears back and a building burns just outside the paddock. There's a note written in orange on the cover. It says Hell. Fucking. Yes. -DS

A third image shows the back of the two cards. Wise Guy could be made by double punching the Harry Anderson poster with a Charles Dutton book and would cost 3 build grist. The annotated Pony Pals could be made by double punching maplehoof with the wise guy book and a pair of pointy anime shades. It would cost 100,000 build grist.]

You have a cookbook, which of course was made obsolete by your computerized talking bowl buster. You wouldn't dare part with it though. Too many wonderful memories.

There's Anderson's aforementioned book, Wise Guy. His (Caveney's) stories are gripping! In a way.

And then there's a customized copy of Pony Pals, a gift to you on your 14th birthday from the slippery Mr. Strider. Each page contains lovingly hand-written commentary on the deeds of this intrepid young horse.

Jane: Check out gristwidget.

[Image description: The red, rectangular object sits on the floor and Jane squints at it.]

This thing's a piece of junk! It just wastes your boondollars and destroys your cool gear to produce these stupid things that look like Gushers! But unlike Gushers which serve many practical purposes like inducing vomiting and simulating the experience of eating plump insects, these things are totally useless!

Jane: Insert hat card.

[Image description: Jane takes out the card with the Betty Crocker Brand Dunce cap and slides it into the slot on the Gristwidget. A second image zooms in and shows a small screen. It's asking for 10 boonbucks.]

Ok, you'll try it out with one of your less prized possessions just to prove how dumb it is. You never liked this hat much. It makes you look like a gnome and basically isn't funny at all.

You pop the card in. The gristwidget indicates it will cost 10 boondollars to convert this object into grist. That's not too bad, you guess. It's not like the currency has much value anyway. It was introduced as a sort of B.C. Corp funbux, to be used by youngsters specifically on qualifying merch online and stuff. Brilliant business strategy, really. As heiress to the empire, you are naturally endowed with millions, which you have a reputation for being very generous with. You have been considering using your wealth to set up a scholarship fund to allow underprivileged kids to go to booncollege.

Jane: Activate.

[Image description: The gristwidget flashes blue and the card vanishes, spewing a handful of build grist onto the floor and startling Jane.]

See??? Utterly pointless. You hope Crockercorp was going somewhere with this technology, cause if not, this product is first in line for getting the axe when you're in charge.

[Image description: Jane puts on the tiara top. The gem on her forehead flashes red and white and a faint red aura appears around her head.]

You put on your highly fashionable Unreal Heiress Thought wave Tiara top and flip it on. It immediately hums to life as its blazing fast processes mingle with your thoughts. It is the most efficient computing technology in the world by far, as long as you don't wear it for too long. But aside from a few migraines, you can't possibly imagine any (obey) drawbacks that (cease reproduction) could come with (submit) merging (consume) your thoughts with (embrace your culling) experimental technology (conform to social order) from an (stay asleep) extremely powerful (die) corporation, wait what?

[Note: The insertions into the sentence are written in white and all caps, making them nearly disappear against the background.]

Jane: Continue vigilant window gazing.

[Image description: Jane looks out the window, but ads cover most of her vision and almost the entirety of a Betty Bother window. In the Betty Bother window, there's an ad for Fruit Rollups Frankenberry. There are two showing pictures of Guy Fieri, though one is covered by another ad. The visible one says All hail new Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court and has a place to click to read more. It resembles bad clickbait. The ad covering the other Guy Fieri picture is for Olive Garden Feeding Chamber and has a Betty Crocker fork logo. Congratulations! You've been chosen to receive a Free Dinner for Two. Claim your FREE* dinner for 2 NOW! *with completion of program requirements Limited time offer! Online only! [Please select the restaurant] [Enter your Email] Another ad is for Bac-Os simulated livestock flakes. Bac-Os Makes Every Bite Better. The last ad is for Green Giant Broccoli and cheese sauce, but it also has the new Betty Crocker logo. Across the sidewalk, in very faint letters, it says Obey repeatedly.]

Still no sign of the mail. Might as well keep the tiaratop on while you look, even if it means suffering through all these bullshit popup ads. That way you can keep an eye out for Lalonde while you're at it.

Speak of the devilfucking dickens.

Jane: Answer Lalonde.

pokes at a bright pink phone that has a Jane alert next to it. The girl looks like a young version of Mom Lalonde, right down to the little curl by her temple. She's wearing a short sleeve shirt with the mutant pink cat on the chest and a short white skirt over leggings.]

I should have known better! G.G.: The "Batterwitch" Does Not Exist!
It is an idiotic urban legend.
How many times have I explained this? My great, great grandmother who founded the company and is accused of holding this identity would have to be almost two hundred years old if she were still alive today. The idea is such preposterous hogwash it's hardly worth dignifying with a rational response.
The iconic face of the company isn't even a real person! She was fabricated long ago during the company's fledgling years.
T.G.: right as you know
an alter ego
for somethig more sinister
G.G.: Such cuckoobird nonsense.
In any case, I don't understand the nature of this second guessing, besides chalking it up to your unwelcome inebriation.
We had agreed you would play with me. You sounded excited about it!
Have you even obtained your copy yet??

But what doesn't add up about your story is,
I believe somebody doesn't want me to play.

G.G.: "there"

[Note: TG used the possessive form of their.]

Makes a lot of sense!

T.G.: w/e alls im saying is a bunch of stuff thats def true to the max ill send this file to you tho and what you do wiht its up to you so you want it now or what G.G.: Hm. It's tempting, and I'm curious as heck to play it.
But the mail should be coming any minute! I've waited this long for it, so I might as well use the official discs addressed to me.
When it comes, I do hope you'll change your tune.
Not to mention brew yourself a pot of coffee and sober your drunk butt up.
T.G.: my drunk butts tune will stay as unchanged as it will remain un not drunk makr my barley corerent words
G.G.: Hoo hoo! Ok, fair enough.
But I believe that when we start playing together, you'll come around.
Personally, I can hardly contain my excitement over it.
If years ago someone told me, which incidentally someone did, that today I would have an exclusive opportunity to play what is absolutely the most cutting edge immersive simulation game ever released, developed by a company which has already done so much for the advancement of humanity, I would have said, "Shucks, buster, sign me up!"

Jane: Prepare to retrieve mail.

You scamper over to the door, but pause a second to think. Is your dad still washing the car? Hopefully he's still preoccupied so you can sneak out.

But it doesn't hurt to be prepared for an encounter. Luckily, that is exactly what you are.

Jane: Don clever disguise.

Why, is that his loving daughter, or could it be none other than Inspector Jacques Clouseau??!! Mr. Clouseau, what are you doing in this household? Can I bake you a cake? Please make yourself comfortable while I go about my business not being suspicious.

But wait, perhaps that is not so much the distinguished Inspector Clouseau as it is...

Next

The world renowned investigator hercule poirot, because the little curly mustache is a lot cuter.
The great Poirot, in this house?? Such an honor. I will set the kettle to boil straightaway. Who would have guessed this home would be so heavily trafficked by famous French detectives at this time of day? Oh my, the good Poirot appears to be clucking little pleasantries in his adorable French accent through the high pitched voice of an enthusiastic teen girl. I surely don't have the heart to ground this upstanding, dapper gentleman, no matter how many dastardly attempts are made on her life.

Next

[Image description: Jane looks from side to side with an annoyed and embarrassed expression.]

Yeah, this is a really shitty disguise.

Jane: Exit.

[Image description: Jane reaches for the doorknob. Before she can turn it, the screen flashes red and yellow, then is suddenly the character select screen again. After you read the caption, pick Jake.]

You make a cautious motion toward a beckoning exit knob, when suddenly the same wild character-select screen reapproaches nonthreateningly!

You note that you still cannot pick one of the shadowy characters. But maybe you haven't been the other guy yet? That means it's time to click him.

Or maybe you already have been him, in which case you are done with this thing. The narrative really has no way of knowing. Your ass remains firmly planted in the driver's seat, as always.

Be Jake.

[Image description: Jake still stands in his bedroom. He's not wearing the skull computer.]

And just like that, back to Jake. What was it you were up to? Oh right, you were going to pick these dang guns up off the floor when you were interrupted by some fleeting imperceptible thought. You kind of space out sometimes.

Jake: About those arms.

[Image description: Jake steps forward and puts the pair of pistols into his strife specibus. A second image shows the card for 2xPistolkind.]

Right. You pick up your Twin M9 Berettas, weapons of choice in an absurd arsenal inherited from an eccentric old woman.

Guns are so cool. Your Grandma was rad.

Jake: Examine holster belt.

[Image description: Jake stands near his bed. A second image zooms in on the thigh holster on one of the posts.]

It's your authentic Tomb Raider Sexy Thighstrap Double Holster, complete with cool skullbuckle and everything. You like to think you pull it off about as well as Croft herself.

Jake: Wear it.

[Image description: The holster disappears from the post and appears on Jake. The thigh straps pinch his shorts in and make them look like pantaloons or the kinds of poofy pants that were popular in the 1800s and earlier.]

You like to think that, but in truth you look ridiculous. You think you probably need shorter shorts to make it work? Probably skin tight shorts too. As it is, the cuffs of your baggy shorts get kind of bunched up underneath the thigh straps, which is uncomfortable and makes you look like a tool.

Jake: Ok, forget it.

[Image description: He captchalogue the thigh holster.]
Better off just keeping it in your strife deck.

You can draw the guns faster from there anyway.

Jake: Examine bed.

[Image description: Jake looks at his bed. There is a magazine on it.]
You think your bed is some sort of electronic gadget. You're pretty sure those bedpost globes are supposed to glow like light bulbs under certain circumstances. But you've never been able to figure out what purpose it serves. Just more mysterious junk inherited from your eclectic Grandma.

She also gave you these bedsheets when you were very young, which you adore, but only for sentimental reasons. You aren't too keen on monsters.

Jake: Examine posters.

[Image description: Jake stands near one of the walls of posters. There's some for The Mummy, Stargate, Stargate Atlantis, Weekend at Bernies, The Incredible Hulk, Time Traveling Demon, The Smurfs, The X Men, Avatar, and Tomb Raider. In front of them, there's a large box of ammo, a rocket launcher, some comics, and more pistols.]

Which posters? Your whole room is nothing but posters. Sometimes you find it hard to focus on any one of them. You just relax your eyes and get lost in all the incredible heroes and adventures which exploded from the silver screen and into your bedroom as well as your heart.

Movies are so great. You have never seen a movie you didn't like, you are pretty sure. People give you a hard time for that though. Gosh you love movies. Almost as much as you love skulls. And movies that have skulls in them? Oh my god.

So wonderful.

Jake: Scope out those blue chicks.

[Image description: Jake stands in front of a different section of the posters. The new ones are for Indiana Jones and the Kingdom of the Crystal Skull, National Treasure, and Ghost Rider. There's one whose name is covered too much to decipher and a few that just show blue ladies. Jake stands near a cluster of the posters featuring these blue women.]

This is your collection of beauties. But you don't call them that to anyone but yourself in private, because somehow even you are aware of how dorky that sounds.

You are oft-times the recipient of a good ribbing from jane on account of your peculiar fascination with blue movie ladies. You don't have to justify yourself to her though. What is even her deal?
Any fella would be off his rocker not to fawn over all these bodacious blue knockouts. You want to make out with all of them.

Jake: Make out with all of them.

[Image description: Jake leans in and makes a kissy face towards a poster of Neytiri from Avatar.]

Dear, sweet Neytiri from James Cameron's Avatar.

Oh, if only you were the one who could have overcome his paralysis on an alien adventure planet to become her boyfriend, instead of that other guy. Then she could have shown you how to be bold and courageous, and stand up to fight for your people, and maybe later, engage in a bizarre extraterrestrial reproductive process involving ponytails, and a magical tree you guess?

You'll show that curmudgeonly Strider who's just a gigantic shitty space furry. You will show him what marvelous creatures they are. You'll show him what a daring dream it is, to combine the finest qualities of humanity with...

But seriously, you have got to stop kissing this stupid poster.

Jake: Stop kissing stupid poster.

[Image description: It shifts over on the wall of posters so some new ones come into view. They are for Little Monsters, Lara Croft Tomb Raider, The Terminator, and a few whose names can't be read.]

Yes, that was a waste of time. Definitely. It's definitely not something you spend much time doing whenever you are alone, which is always.

Anyway, here are some other great movies. Weekend at Bernies? Classic. You really think John would like this movie, if the things you have heard about him are true. Guys in cahoots make the silly corpse of Bernie Lomax do zany puppet antics so their schemes can succeed, guffaws aplenty, as you have tried to tell Jade before practically verbatim. She doesn't much care for great movies like that, but that's alright. You love her anyway and you think she's a blast. She says you sound just like John when you say stuff like that though, and that the two of you would get along famously. You can't wait to meet him.

Also there are some Cage flicks there. But who doesn't love a good Cage flick? Nobody is who. Dang, you would kill to get your hands on some authentic Cage movie memorabilia. But that'll probably have to remain a crazy dream.

Jake: Examine package.

[Image description: Jake stands near the table with the partially constructed part-robot bunny. More of his posters come into view, but the only new name visible is Army of Darkness.]

Speaking of John, this is his birthday present. It is the project that has been taking up all your time lately. And today is the deadline to finish it! You have to send it to Jade so that she has time to ship it to him across the Pacific ocean. The Transmaterializer you have been using to ship it back and forth is wired to sync up your flow of time with hers, so it's not like you can just take forever with it, and send to the exact time she needs it - you've thought of that! And considering this bunny is Probably going back to the early 20th century, when she and John were around your age, you figure the mail was extra slow back then, so there is not a moment to spare. Whew, time stuff is pretty complicated! But you are Fairly sure you've got this figured out.
Jake: Examine bunny.

Sure is gonna be a sweet gift. Reminds you a lot of the old ratty bunny you inherited from your Grandma, who of course is exactly who you are collaborating with to make this thing. Time loops make you feel a bit fuzzy in the head, but you've always suspected it could very well be the same bunny. At some point in the early 20th century, Jade gave this robo-rabbit to John, and then later it must have been wound up back with Jade... somehow? Then she... uh... removed all the robot parts, hung on to it until she was an old woman, and gave it to you? You guess crazier things have happened. Like the way this whole project started in the first place. Jade tells you this little rabbit here, or Terry Kiser as you like to call him, will save John's life! He will be sitting there on some sort of chess board battlefield, in yellow pajamas, reading a letter, when pow! Kiser to the rescue. So you are taking this responsibility very seriously. You have been for years already.

In fact, this project gave you a neat idea for what to do for Jane's 13th birthday a couple years ago. You and your other pals all coordinated gifts, each sending a customized rabbit. Lalonde happened to have another bunny heirloom like yours, and Strider... well, Strider was resourceful as usual. If John enjoys his gift anywhere near as much as Jane did, then it will be time well spent.

Next

There's just one problem! Mr. Kiser here cannot be completed and tested today without a source of power! You will need a little chunk of uranium to power the robot, and you are fresh out of the stuff. You have been plundering all of your devices for uranium to refuel the Transmaterializer, which requires huge amounts of power any time it sendificates or appearifies the package from the past. Seems to you like excessive energy consumption for just a simple time machine, but what do you know? Unless it's doing something besides shipping it across time. You couldn't imagine what, though.

You really should have remembered to ask Jade for some uranium in your last letter to her. Now you're in a fix. You even yanked the uranium out of your Cookalizer and Refrigerator. You haven't had a decent meal in weeks! Just a lot of canned food from the ruins.

This project has been difficult enough as it is without additional bumps in the road like this. You aren't really the best guy at building machines. Jade has been a big help, but she says she couldn't do this alone. As much as it troubles your pride to admit, this project wouldn't be possible without help from your other two technologically savvy friends. And you are slowly coming to the regrettable conclusion that you will not be able to solve this uranium dilemma without asking for Strider's assistance. He's your best bro and all, but the dude never makes anything easy.

Jake: Take bunny.

[Image description: Jake captchaluges the bunny onto a dark blue captchalogue card. The corner of a large captchalogue card appears in the top left corner. Inside, there are a bunch of other captchalogue cards of various sizes, each containing a different object. The smallest ones contain stick like objects that are too small to make out details on. The next size up has cans. Slightly larger ones have a laptop and the helmet computer he used while talking to Jane. Another card of that size has the bunny on it. It slides in, moving the other cards around. Another small card with a] gun on it comes on screen. The second largest card has some sort of grey object that might be a large rifle. The largest card has a control panel for a transportalizer. A second image shows a dark blue puzzle modus.]

You stash Terry in your Puzzle Modus. It's quite a handy modus, allowing you to captchalogue objects of any size, as long as you can fit them all in a finite space by maneuvering the cards around like a big game of Tetris. You like it because it keeps you sharp for solving any puzzles you might find when you go out raiding hallowed tombs, which is never.

The bunny fits in ok, but it's a tight squeeze!

Next

[Image description: It zooms out even farther. Jake's room takes up only a quarter of the image. The rest of the space is filled by Jake's modus. There are countless cards of various sizes crammed in a thin border around the bottom and right sides because most of the space is taken up by a single, enormous card that flashes to draw attention to it.]

The space in your inventory is mainly hogged up by one incredibly huge thing. You guess you should get rid of it. But you can't shake the feeling you might need it someday, and you don't want to risk ditching it and be caught with your pants down later.

Jake: Examine comics.

[Image description: Jake looks at a pile of three comics at the end of the table. They are various Spider girl iterations. A few new posters come into view. They are A Kid in King Arthur's Court, Black Knight, and A Knight in Camelot.]

On your worktable there are a few comic books starring your favorite heroine of all, Spider-girl. You don't know what it is, but there's something about a girl who has spidery powers and a sassy attitude that is just so cool to you. It's just another quirky fact about you that definitely doesn't have any greater significance, and never will.

Jake: Take comics.

[Image description: Jake captchalogues the comics, which float off screen. He shouts as this disrupts the careful arrangement of his sylladex and dumps a can of corn, his laptop, a large bullet, and a set of smiling citrus fruits onto the floor. The laptop lands in the pile of guns with his placronym.]

Horsefeathers.

Forcing the comics into your puzzle sylladex knocked out a bunch of other crap. You have seriously got to reorganize this thing. What were you even thinking captchaloguing all those bullets one at a time, anyway?

Next

[Image description: He stops shouting and a Caduceus alert appears over his laptop.]

Well, as long as one of your preposterously numerous computers has spilled out of your sylladex, you might as well stop procrastinating and contact Strider to... hang on.

Maybe later.

yet again.
I will have to ask him for help. And soon.
U.U.: well there you go, love! Better hop to it.
G.T.: yes I will.
but also...
theres the matter of the rabbits armaments.
I dont imagine hell do a lot of friggin good in helping grandfather crocker from kicking the old bucket without them.
did you not say youd supply these?
U.U.: I did indeed say so!
and have already done.
G.T.: you did??
when?
I relayed the information enabling you to create the powerful weaponry yourself.
and you did!
you then sent them back in time. You may recover them in the ruins, which conveniently is where you must go to ship the package once and for all.
bangup plan we hatched, dont you fancy? (very big smile with closed eyes)
G.T.: I see...
yes it sure is if that is the case.
then all thats left to do is find power for it...
oh and also enough power for the stupid transmateriabob. Augh!
so much to do before shuttling this goddamn thing into the past.
I mean... that is what im doing right? Giving it to my grandma when she was a kid growing up on the same island I did?
U.U.: that is somewhat close to the truth, and I can see how you would draw that conclusion.
but theres more to it you dont understand yet! You will sort it all out in time.
G.T.: these are among the dadblasted causal spoilers you refuse to dish out?
it wouldnt hurt you much to know the truth, I imagine.
its just the truth is a wee bit complicated.
perhaps a draft of the cascading sequence from which your reality has arisen will put your mind at ease.
imagine two universes, a and b.
now imagine there are two instances of each universe, a1 and a2 and b1 and b2.
the first instance of each is like a test run, that does not quite succeed.
the second instance though will meet all of its purposes!
now consider that a1 begets a2.
a2 begets b1.
and b1 begets b2.
and the participants of b2 are the ones who will make an effort to exit all this turbulence and falderal.
you are one of them! (small gasping face) and your young ancestor is another, though she is "presently" stationed in b1.
and yes she is in the past.
though not quite as far as you believe!
nor does she occupy the same stream of continuity.
G.T.: im not sure I completely followed that but ok.
U.U.: thats the best I can do for now. (blank face with closed eyes) primarily because I will not risk wasting much more of your time!
G.T.: so you are still in contention that I will meet our elders as youths?
U.U.: oh yes! (very large smile with closed eyes)
G.T.: ah ha! Then I will be traveling through time. I knew it. or... They will be. Whichever it is.
which is it, btw?
U.U.: causal spoilers, sir english!
G.T.: fffff.
U.U.: given the nature of the quest waiting for you, it wouldnt be shrewd of me to rule out the employment of time travel by any individual.
but I will say that youre probably prey to a basic misapprehension about the nature of this rendezvous.
it will not take place on earth.
it will happen inside the game youre about to play!
G.T.: oh.
well shit!
U.U.: indeed. (small gasping face)
G.T.: this is frightfully exciting. I would love to meet them.
I never got to know my grandma very well and it always seemed like she led an amazing and adventurous life.
then this seemed to be proven true in my correspondence with her. So im really looking forward to it.
U.U.: so true. Id pay a hefty ransom to get to know my forebears.
G.T.: I remember you mentioned your race doesnt really jive with ours familially speaking?
U.U.: correct. I never knew those who one would identify as my parental equivalents. (blank face with closed eyes) it is in the way my race propagates. Our ancestors precede us by millenia.
G.T.: well yes ours do too. But generally we have all these other people in between them and the most recent ones are called parents.
so I guess you do not have those? Like systemically?
U.U.: nope! Never did.
G.T.: well neither did i!!!
U.U.: (smile with closed eyes)
G.T.: miss alien I think we are like birds of a feather you and i.
when do I get to learn your name by the way?
U.U.: hm truthfully?
it may be for the best that you never know it.
it could stir up some things best left in their present equilibrium.
and now I think I should bollocks off and leave you to it!
G.T.: but...
wait!
there are still some things id like to know!
about today! About this game!
U.U.: no more procrastinating!
contact your friend, darling.
G.T.: yes fine fine ok I will but... just please tell me in the least causally spoilery way possible... what are we even trying to accomplish here? What is even the rootin tootin point of this game?
U.U.: I think you will have more fun than you can imagine finding out.
but stated concisely, and short of spoilerly as you so charmingly put it, your objective today is to pave the way for the arrival of gods.

Jake: Unearth more computers.

If you're going to message your good bro, you might as well use a more comfortable computing device. You always found the Husktop to be a little clunky. Way too hands-on.

Here are just a few at your disposal. Your grandma always was an advocate of thorough preparedness. She would strongly advise staying not only armed to the teeth, but well equipped in the computational department. You've been taught you should really carry no less than 5 computers on you at all times, like a sensible person.

Jake: Don computers.

[Image description: Jake now wears the shoes, the coat, and the belt. The trim on the coat, the band at the ankle of the golden shoe, and the eyes of the belt buckle flash the colors of billiard balls.]

You put on a few of your more ostentatious devices. Luckily (or unfortunately) you grew up alone, so there was never anyone around to point out how ridiculous you look.

These were also inherited from your grandma. In addition to being quite the globe trotting adventuress, she was rather enterprising as well. Her company made many products like this, to compete with the corporation owned by the cruel baroness who raised her. Sadly, B.C. Corp eventually crushed her company and forced her into exile. You have always hoped that when Jane takes over that foul conglomerate, she will right all of its unspeakable wrongs. You know she will! You believe in her, after all.

Jake: Message your good bro.

[Image description: An alert showing an orange hat appears next to Jake.]
pesterlog

[Note: TT speaks in bright orange.]

G.T.: Bro.
Ahem.
Are you there?
I hate to be a pest about this and i know ive made a hearty trouble of myself a good deal lately...
T.T.: State your business, Jake.
G.T.: I should preface this request with an overture of appreciation.
For how much your cool and brotherly friendship means to me.
It has just been...
Absolutely bully having a standup gent like you in my corner.
Just a grade a dude whos a cut above the others in class and camaraderie.
Phew... groves for fresh kerchief.
I hope this shit isnt coming across as platitudinous. I really mean it!
T.T.: Take it easy, bromide.
Just about the only way I could salvage endearment from this perilous slope of horseshit would be to discover, really fucking soon mind you, it was a preamble to some floundering invitation for me to rush to your vicinity as nakedly as possible.
But since we've already shot that wad's eventuality on so many dry runs of flustered ambivalence that were as hilarious as they were one sided, That leaves only one hope for this message to avoid spiraling toward qualification as a critical fucking defect in the hull of the Mach 10 rocket that is my precious spare time.
And that hope lies in the extent to which you were practicing artful insincerity.
Now's your opportunity to pretend that's what you were gunning for. I suggest you seize it.
G.T.: I...
Oh. Yes! But of course.
The ironies!
Good grief how i was bandying them just now. You know me dude.
Blows smoke off red hot irony pistol.
nonsuggestively!!!!!!
G.T.: Um.
Yeah.
T.T.: Ok, nice.
Now that your obsequious preface has been established as indisputably entertaining for all the right reasons, and intentionally so,
Let's bear down on these dire as shit needs you've got.
I'm guessing you're probably jonesing for uranium about now. No?
G.T.: Pshaw! As if i would be so reckless with the stuff.
I would have to be mighty irresponsible to run out already.
No no im all set in the uranium department and really when you take a look at the big picture youll find i am sitting pretty when it comes to just about any radioactive isotope you could mention.
However...
My backup reserves that i keep strictly for emergencies are running a little lean!
You know what my grandma taught me about preparedness. Tugs at colorful lapels.
T.T.: You are out of uranium.
It's basically mathematically impossible that's not why you're contacting me.
G.T.: Christ what an insufferable awesome friend you are.
Ok can you please just sendificate me some more already?? Im in kind of a hurry!
T.T.: You do know my offer still stands.
G.T.: What?
T.T.: You know. I've offered to construct the rabbit for you many times before. I would craft a much deadlier model.
G.T.: Oh i know you would its just...
Damn it man ive told you this is just something i have to do myself. Its a promise i made to jade and im going to live up to it even if im not the best or even second best robosmith i know!
T.T.: Yeah, I know this is your policy. You've done a good job and you should be proud. But it's my responsibility as your friend to offer one last time. Just as it's my responsibility not to just fork over a bunch of uranium just because you ask me in a moment of weakness.
G.T.: Frig!!!!!
Why not???
T.T.: It's too easy.
And you yourself are the one staking pride in this.
If you were half-assing this project and made some slovenly plea for it, I'd just say, fuck it, here's a lot of green rocks dude, go nuts.
G.T.: Ok then! Im halfassing it!
Look. See? Only a bisected bottom is present! Where is the other half you ask?
Why... it is nowhere to be found. I didnt use it!
I know that every ounce of your premium behind can be accounted for in that rabbit, and there's no goddamned denying it.
And you know perfectly well where some more uranium can be located.
G.T.: Jesus christmas you are such a fucking douche.
T.T.: It seems you think I am a fucking douche. That's your opinion, I guess. That's cool.
G.T.: I knew you were going to suggest this. I dont know why i bothered asking!
Strider why must you always be such an obstinate stick in the mud???
T.T.: It seems that you consider me to be, no less than one hundred percent of the time, an obstinate stick in the mud.
I unironically respect your position on this matter. Hey, let's continue to exchange ideas.
G.T.: Wait...
"It seems"??
T.T.: What?
G.T.: Oh for fucks sake.
T.T.: Is something the matter, Jake?
G.T.: This is your auto responder.

T.T.: Look at that statement you just made.
It's time for me to respond with some words, ideally chosen and arranged in a way that will wreck your shit, in a subtle and psychologically devastating way.
G.T.: Har har har!
Just soooo "irooooonic!!!" Quotes quotes quotes.
Im laughing my caboose Straight off the tracks! A lot of families just died in the tragic derailment.

T.T.: Ok, the caboose remark was actually pretty funny, Jake.

If I truly were what you say I am, I wouldn't be able to feel the human emotions of joy and laughter. No?

G.T.: Laughter isn't an emotion dickprince!

T.T.: I think you should back your claims up with proof before you go heaving around such accusations.

G.T.: Man it's so flipping obvious.

You start getting kind of extra technical and vague and automoton like.

And kind of aloof and brusque.

I mean...

Even aloofier and brusquier than usual!

Also you use the phrase "it seems" a lot. Its so silly it really blows the AI immersion man.

T.T.: Bullshit.

I'm being like, the perfect dude right now. A fully fucking legitimate human being.

G.T.: Ok then check this out mr legit human dude.

Excuse me sir not to be a bother but could you please tell me all about this strider fellows auto responder?

T.T.: It seems you have asked about DS's chat client auto-responder. This is an application designed to simulate DS's otherwise inimitably rad typing style, tone, cadence, personality, and substance of retort while he is away from the computer. The algorithms are guaranteed to be 96% indistinguishable from DS's native neurological responses, based on some statistical analysis I basically just pulled out of my ass right now.

G.T.: You see!

T.T.: What if I was just fucking with you there?

Would it really be so unthinkable for a human to type that?

G.T.: Because you always say shit like that after i catch wise to your games.

You as in the auto responder!!!

Logical fallacies are as pervasive throughout your argument as your antiquated verbal tics.

G.T.: Oh yeah?

G.T.: Hey. Tell me about the auto responder. Make it snappy shitknickers!

T.T.: It seems you have asked about DS's chat client auto-responder. The algorithms are guaranteed to be 93% indistinguishable from DS's native neurological responses, based on some statistical analysis I basically just pulled out of my ass right now.

G.T.: Gee dude you sure typed that exact same thing pretty fast.

Are you still fucking with me??

T.T.: It could be a coincidence that I typed the same answer.

G.T.: You always type that answer!!!!!

T.T.: It could be a coincidence that I always type the same answer.

G.T.: Uuuuuugh.

I can't stand this. Every time we do this and I just wind up whistling sweet dixie out of my bum hole!

G.T.: This is pointless im not having this conversation unless its with my real life friend. The one with human feelings who isn't a pretend person inside sunglasses.

T.T.: Ok, but I'm pretty sure he's going to share my position on the matter.

Jake: Ditch computers.
He's just so infuriating sometimes! Or at least his responder is. Ok, the real Strider is too.

There's barely any difference between them anyway. The responder just uses a few more generic response templates. And even those you suspect the AI is savvy enough to use on purpose for the sake of irony, or to get a rise out of you or whatever. That silicon bastard knows damn well what it's doing.

You shed this ridiculous outfit because you look like an idiot. It's time to get serious here. No more fooling around. You need a more dignified looking computer. A thinking man's computer.

Jake: Wear skulltop.

Much better. You look like you mean business.

Hmm, no sign of Lalonde online. No surprise there. You wonder if Jane knows where your bro's at? You should try to cool your jets before talking to her. Today is a special day she's been looking forward to for a long time, and she's probably on cloud nine. You wouldn't want to ruin it for her.

Jake: Pester Jane.

G.T.: Jane!
Forgive my botherations. I know this is meant to be a spanking ripsnorter of a day for you and all. But do you happen to know where the devilfucking dickens mr strider might be?
G.G.: Oh, that's fine!
I had been meaning to message you sooner actually, but I suppose in all the hubbub today, it plumb slipped my mind.
Which is a shocking fact on its lonesome, considering what I have to tell you!
G.T.: Egad...
Loosens collar a bit.
G.G.: As for this Strider business, hrmmm. He's an elusive guy Jake. You know that.
I talked to him yesterday. That's as much help as I can be!
G.T.: Shoot.
I really need to ask him something but hes got his blasted auto responder turned on.
G.G.: Hoo hoo.
I love that thing. (buck toothed face)
G.T.: He wouldnt be pleased to hear you say that.
G.G.: What do you need with him?
Does this have to do with your crazy pen pal project?
G.T.: It most certainly does and time is of the essence!
Today is the day i have to finish it and send it. Not a day later!
So you see why i am feeling really friggin discombobulated at the moment.
G.G.: Sorry, J. (sad face)
This would be the birthday present... for your grandmother?
G.T.: No!
It is for your grandfather simply to be relayed to him by my grandmother. A joint gift to him from she and i.
Her and me.
G.T.: What? Who and you now?
G.G.: "A joint gift from her and me." Grammar, Jake!
G.T.: Oh for frigs flipping sake jane this is no time for your prudish pedantry! Leave your bookish malarkey in a dusty old library somewhere. I have an adventure to get on with!
G.G.: So if I have this straight, the big thing hogging up your plate today is not this marvelous new game which I have invited you to play with me, but finishing a robotic rabbit to give to my dead poppop?
G.T.: Bingo. double pistols and a wink
G.G.: You are a very strange and silly boy.
G.T.: Please jane we have addressed this.
I am sending the gift back in time to when they are both alive and about our age.
Or...
Something like that. Something funny is going on here that i have not fully grappled yet but dag nab it if im not gonna see it through.
G.G.: Well,
Godspeed, then! I do hope you can pull it off.
G.T.: Are you being fresh with me now?
G.G.: No!!
G.T.: Look jane i know youve never believed me and you think everything i say is some big cockamamie goofoff but i think today of all days is when you should start taking some things more seriously.
Especially since i have always had your back. I have always believed in you!
G.G.: Hey! I have believed in you too.
However, believing somebody isn't the same thing as believing IN somebody.
But that much said...
I think that maybe I am getting ready to believe some of the wild stories I've heard?
Or, if not believe outright, reserve judgment on, at least.
G.T.: Is that so!
G.G.: I don't know!
I'm still not sure what to think. But what I wanted to tell you this morning was...
I had a really wild dream last night.
And you were in it.
G.T.: Oh my. glasses fog up. fumbles for kerchief.
G.G.: Sh! Not like that.
It was so real! I think we were in the game, even though we haven't started playing yet.
I don't know what to make of it. Whether it was a vision of the future, or somewhere that exists now, or if it was just a really lucid dream due to excitement.
G.T.: What was i doing there?
G.G.: Um...
Not a heck of a lot!
I really want to tell you all about it, but it will take some time to explain, and we both have things to attend to.
You with your time traveling rabbitwork, and I, my vigilant window gazing!
G.T.: Too true.
Let us reconvene later and sort out all this shit at a leisurely pace.
G.G.: Yes, ok, good luck Jake!
G.T.: Okay you too jane! Bye!
Jake: Go downstairs.

You are curious about Jane's dream. Sounds like it almost certainly has to do with your imminent adventure. You'll have to remember to get the scoop on that a little later. For now, you have other worries that need your focus.

You have to go downstairs to check something out. You are pretty sure you know what you're going to find though.

You almost trip on the vine creeping up the stairs. Stupid vine. It's too bad your grandma's dead. She always had a way with keeping the flora in check.

Next

You walk down to the next floor. There's a vault like the one that held Jade's dreambot, but it's burst open and empty. The door lays on the ground, partially covering the transportalizer. A thick vine comes up the stairs and goes up towards Jake's room. Two small pumpkins grow off of it. An orange hat alert hovers next to Jake.

Yeah, just like you thought. Empty. The thing is out there somewhere. Waiting for you. Oh god.

Speak of the devil fucking dickens.

Jake: Answer Strider.

T.T.: Hey, it's me.
G.T.: Oh hey!
G.T.: Dammit!
What is it now?
T.T.: I'm just wondering,
If you still have your stupid old-fangled knickers in a twist.
Because that's the sort of thing you would say.
G.T.: In regard to what exactly?
T.T.: To my proposal. Well, our proposal.
G.T.: Whose proposal now? Man what are you even prattling about.
T.T.: Mine and DS's. It's a joint proposal. I'm always authorized to speak on his behalf, because I'm basically fucking him.
And try not to take those last four words as a clustered literal sentiment. That would be lame and unfunny.
G.T.: You mean making the rabbit for me?
T.T.: No, I know you don't want that.
I meant my recommendation for how to go about procuring a new supply of uranium.
G.T.: Oh yeah.
Well i've thought about it.
Even went downstairs to check the great vaulty doodad.
And predictably the infernal contraption is nowhere to be found.
T.T.: Well yeah, Jake.
That's sort of the point.
Thrill of the hunt and all.
I thought you liked to manicure the image of a dude who shits his pants over a good adventure.
G.T.: I do!
I mean i wouldn't put it in a way like that or come out against a solid policy of clean trousers. But yes adventure is awesome.
I just prefer the idea of adventures which i can actually win.
T.T.: It seems you are conflating adventure with bodies necessarily governed by the result of victory or defeat.
Any useless fuckwit knows it's all about the journey.
G.T.: Well...
I dunno.
T.T.: It seems there is a 76.10395784% chance you are pussy ing out on me. Are you pussy ing out on me, Jake?
G.T.: It seems it seems it seems!!!
It seems there is a million percent chance that you say it seems way too much and do it just to sound more like a lame robot from a movie and also probably just to piss me off!
And it seems there is a billion point billion percent chance that you're a shitty stubborn jerk of a program who won't listen to reason and that if there's even a 1% chance my real life friend would be cool and help me out here then I think I like those freakin odds!!!!!
T.T.: It...
Appears
That you are upset.
The auto-responder observed in the least artificially infuriating way possible.
Have you ever stopped to think that while I may be bound to processes inside the glasses of a real and incredibly cool guy, my algorithms in cognitive totality comprise a conscious entity not far short of the experiential and emotional complexity of a human being?
G.T.: Oh malarkey.
You are a tin can. Robots don't have feelings.
T.T.: I think you knowingly confuse the field of robotics and artificial intelligence to engender some sort of cavalier attitude about technology that a rough-and-tumble guy who's all about brawling and fisticuffs would probably have, and if this is cultivated to a humorous effect then I commend you.
But you're wrong.
I do have feelings. And you're shit ting on them.
It sucks.
G.T.: Oh.
Um.
Im sorry then if that's the case.
T.T.: No problem.
G.T.: It can just be difficult to drum up sympathy for a program that presents itself as an impostor so often.
Maybe if you weren't so ready to insist you were the genuine article all the time? Or didn't make it so confusing for me...
I think it would be best if we henceforth treated you as a totally distinct... uh... thing from my buddy.
And then i could respect your emotional robofeelings and you could respect that sometimes maybe i just want to talk to my bro without a lot of spurious hijinks.
Can we agree to this?
T.T.: Is this a counterproposal?
G.T.: Uh to what?
T.T.: To my earlier proposal.
G.T.: Oh.
Yeah fine i guess.
Man where is he anyway???
Is he taking one of his legendary infinite showers?
T.T.: What can I say.
Dude fancies his ablutions.
G.T.: Frig ok.
Whatever i guess its time to prepare for the thrill of the hunt!
T.T.: Fuck yes.
G.T.: Sigh...
But seriously that brobot has been the bane of my existence ever since you sent it.

T.T.: I didn't send it. I sent the parts.
Or, correction, DS sent them.

G.T.: Yeah whatever.
T.T.: You wanted somebody to wrestle with. DS was being a kickass bro if you ask me.
G.T.: I didn't expect it to be nigh impossible to spar with!!!
T.T.: You know damn well there are adjustable difficulty settings.
I have always recommending setting it to Novice, as has DS.
G.T.: Yes.
I know.
Ive tried that.
T.T.: Yeah?
G.T.: Its just...
Well...
When hes pulling punches...
And taking it all easy and such...
And we start wrestling up a storm and whatnot...
Umm.
G.T.: Its just that the whole proceeding seems to become...
A bit tender for my liking.
T.T.: I don't understand.
Isn't that what you want from a Novice setting?
Sparring with minimal discomfort?
G.T.: No i know.
Its all fine and dandy martially speaking.
Just the way he...
Sort of...
Man its so awkward trying to convey this just never mind.
T.T.: No, I think I get it.
You're saying you were somehow dissatisfied within the presence of my robotic avatar's personal space.
Was there an odor problem? Was the metal too hot to the touch?
Help me out.
G.T.: No no.
Really never mind!
T.T.: This is bullshit, Jake.
We had a pact. You were gonna tiptoe all the fuck around my brittle feelings. Totally mind the shit out of those eggshell riddled motherfuckers.
G.T.: Oh come on dude.
T.T.: What does the guy have to do, Jake?
You want to wrestle. He's fucking game. Just a man, a machine, a secluded tropical island. Sounds like you died and went to fucking heaven, if you ask me.
Seriously, what does this simple, loyal brobot have to do to prove his worth to you?
What does he have to do to make you at ease with the alkaline sting of his gentle robo grope? I really want to know.
Maybe he should just rip his heart out of his chest and pound it into green gravel there in the jungle with his hella strong robot arm.

Just one of your dad's bland Hallway douchebags. Another example of his cornball dad tastes, which make you roll your eyes and shrug. Still, it's preferable to how it used to be.

Years ago he would work really hard to mimic your interests throughout the household. Gaudy paintings of sitcom legends covering the walls, hideous detective figurines littered everywhere. You think it's better that he embrace his own interests rather than try to pander to yours. It felt a bit forced, and your early teen years were filled with daily rounds of familial strife. Not so much anymore. Now whenever there is a father-daughter disagreement, you settle things in an adult fashion by being honest about your feelings and talking it through, and also by sneaking around the house in silly disguises.

Jane: Take a peek into living room.

There's a familiar face. A friendly face. Old poppop Crocker, smiling from beyond. Your dad sure misses him. He doesn't like to talk about the day he died. Some incident involving a tall bookshelf, a ladder, and a mysterious young woman in a suspicious looking hat. You have often fantasized about putting on your dirty old fedora and your Frenchest looking mustache to go tracking down this felonious broad and bring her to justice. But your dad always says best to let sleeping dogs lie.

There's some other plucky looking tool there next to him. Dunno who that guy is.

Jane: Proceed downstairs.

[Image description: Jane does down the stairs to the landing. On the landing, there's another poster] of a man from the first half of the 20th century. This one is holding a gun. Over the couch, there's a large poster of a pipe.]

Another hard boiled Anderson. Even though your dad isn't overbearing with all the detective nonsense anymore, he decided to leave this one here for old time's sake. It brings back memories of his very short-lived stint as a private eye. It turns out the police aren't as grateful as you'd think when ordinary citizens go around roughing up a lot of crooks.

Jane: Go to front door.

You were afraid this might be the case. Your dad has blocked the front door with the Refrigerator. Looks like he's taking the grounding seriously this time.

Jane: Check window.

[Image description: Jane stands next to a window at the base of the stairs, which is on a wall that wasn't previously visible. There's a padlock keeping it shut. On the wall to its right are a pair of portraits. One is of Jane and one is of Dad.]

He padlocked the windows too. You'd bet boonbucks to donuts the back door is blocked too, probably with the safe from the study or something. The man means business this time.

You aren't about to go smashing glass and making a ruckus though. You'll need a solution involving more stealth. You guess you have a plan in mind as a last resort, but you'd rather it not come to that.

Jane: Consult with poppop.

[Image description: It shows the entirety of the living room. Poppop stands in front of the fireplace, clutching the very old, beat up copy of Colonel Sassacre's. Stitches run up the side of his face and he stands on a small pedestal that says Poppop Crocker. The fireplace behind him is lit.]

You figure a little wisdom from your elder couldn't hurt.

It practically went without saying your dad keeps poppop stuffed and mounted in front of the fireplace, as is the family tradition. Poppop grew up with his legendary humorist grandfather stuffed in front of the fireplace, and so did his grandfather. This was stipulated firmly in the will, at the end of a long list of joke stipulations. (Dad knew this was a real stipulation though.)

Next

[Image description: It zooms in a little and Jane stares uncertainly up at her taxidermied poppop.]

You always did find it a little macabre though, trying to watch tv and eat dinner on the couch with a dead old man standing about five feet away. You'd honestly prefer he not be kept here in the living room. Sometimes you tell dad you really want poppop in the attic. He says the mere fact you call it that tells him you're not ready.

Next
What's that, poppop? It seems he's concerned that you may not be properly equipped.

You prove to him that you indeed had no intention of leaving the house without your trusty joke book.

Next

Yes, I am going out with this book! No, I will not go get an unabridged copy! No, I will not take yours! I can hardly even lift it! Oh, that is so preposterous. Do you even hear what you're saying? I will be fine! This is a perfectly funny book and it contains many incredibly funny jokes! Oh, will you just stop it! I am going now. Good day!!

(buck toothed face with furrowed brows)!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

[Note: The emoticon and many exclamation marks that follow it are written in Jane's blue.]

You just remembered something your alien friend said about the big old book downstairs, and trusting words written by your own hand. What the heck did she mean by that?

Uh, whoops. Sorry, poppop.

Jane: Retrieve arm.

Better pick that up. You'll try to repair it later before dad sees it and blows a gasket.

Jane: Read inscription again.

Dear John,

You are no doubt reading this as a handsome and strapping young man! Why, the mangrit needed to lift the book is itself a sign of your maturity, not even to speak of the wisdom needed to grasp the nuance of Sassacre's time-tested mischief. I am so proud of you, grandson!

How I wish I could have delivered this heirloom to you in the flesh. But I am afraid it wasn't in the cards! For you see, John, like you, this book must yet take a journey! Its journey will end on the Final Day of my life, and even then will continue some. Though I suppose that will be up to your Father. Perhaps he will discuss it with you one day, when he and you are ready.

A fourth image shows the copyright page, where Nanna signed the note.
With Love,
Nanna (heart)
Ps. Hoo hoo hoo!

Is your friend suggesting that you were the one who wrote this inscription? You find that idea a bit hard to swallow. Still, your friends are always babbling about time travel...

You always thought this inscription was written to your poppop by his nanna, who was your great great grandmother, founder of the corporation you'll inherit in a few years.

[Note: 'Inscription' is a link back to the page 'Dear John,' when this letter made its first appearance.]

The message has always been a fascinating mystery to you, and probably was to him as well. From the way it's written, it seems it was intended for him to receive after her death. She talks about a journey he is supposedly meant to go on. You wonder if that adventure ever took place, or if the note was just one last jape by an old woman from a proud family of pranksters? She goes on about many fantastical sounding things he supposedly would have found on this journey, like agents, exiles, underlings, denizens, and heirs of breath and seers of light and stuff like that. Wait... didn't your friend mention those too?

In any case, this message to poppop from his sweet old nanna is the best evidence you have to dispute all this evil batterwitch nonsense. She clearly cared for her grandson very much, and would never start a company responsible for the things it's accused of, let alone be alive today to perpetrate them. But then, what if she wasn't the one who wrote it? This thought makes you very nervous.

You suddenly remember your dream. What did it mean? You should talk to Jake about all this.

Jane: Bother Jake.

[Image description: The screen splits. On the left, Jane sits on her couch and uses her tiaratop to respond to Jake. On the right, Jake stands at the bottom of another set of stairs with vines crawling up them. He uses his skulltop to message Jane.]

G.G.: J, how goes the bunny quest?
G.T.: Ive barely even begun!
G.G.: Tell me about it.
G.T.: Youre off to a sluggish start then too i gather?
G.G.: Dad has the whole house in full fatherly lockdown mode. Talk about blowing a few measly "assassination attempts" way out of proportion!
So I'm currently mulling over my next move.
What is it that has you hamstrung? Did you ever track down the slippery Mr. Strider?
G.T.: Not exactly.
His stupid doppelglasses have set me on a wild goose chase to go pry his dumb robots chest open and swipe its uranium.
G.G.: Sounds dangerous!
G.T.: No shit.
I think id rather deal with the monsters.
G.G.: Why is it that our two best friends in the world always seem to place themselves at the source of all our problems, while simultaneously presenting their only solutions?
G.T.: I know right???
G.G.: I'm debating whether or not to enlist his help in the matter of my current imprisonment. But I'd rather keep it as a plan of last resort.
G.T.: Don't do it jane its a trap!!!
G.G.: We'll see.
So I take it you're out and about now?
G.T.: Hell no. I spent so much time haggling with those confounded shades im only leaving my room just now.
G.G.: Right. Well, not to keep you too long, since we both still have our missions ahead of us, but I wanted to tell you about that dream I had.
G.T.: Oh yeah!
I was curious about that. Tell me everything and make it snappy!
Whips up bucket of freshly popped corn.
G.G.: Hoo. (buck toothed face)
Ok, but, I should say that the nature of the dream was a bit worrisome. And I'm concerned it may have implications for the game we're about to play.
So it's probably best that I tell you about it before you leave.
G.T.: Well shoot.
Ok then lay it on me jane.

The skirt is ankle length and the bodice has a light yellow moon on it. Her shoes are light pink.]

pesterlog
G.G.: I woke up on the planet which we have been told about by our mutual acquaintance. The one covered in golden cities. Prospit, remember?
G.T.: Oh. Wouldn't it be prospit's moon?
G.G.: Yes, you're right. It was the moon, actually. I could see the planet on the dark horizon. I was dressed in a golden dress, like a sort of nightgown, and I could fly. I left my bedroom, which was at the top of a tall tower. Surrounding me were the gold cities, just as described. Behind the skyline was darkness. But just above was a bright blue sky and puffy white clouds.
G.T.: That was skaia!
G.G.: Yes, probably.
Are you sure you haven't woken up there before?
G.T.: Haha i wish.
I have received reports from jade about this as well. She liked to talk about her dreams on prospit moon a lot.
G.G.: I see. The impression I have developed is that this is supposed to be a real place, and all who dream there have shared experiences. Did Jade ever mention seeing us there?
G.T.: No but why would she? This was long before we were born! She was dreaming there like a hundred years ago or something.
G.G.: Hrmn. Anyway…

G.G.: I explored the moon, and began to notice people gathering in the streets. But they weren't human. They were funny looking, perfectly white creatures.
G.T.: Yeah those are prospitians. They have these hard carapace shells and also have something to do with chess I think?
G.G.: Well, I don't know if they had much to do with chess here. The more closely I observed, the more they appeared somewhat despondent.
G.T.: Like...
Sad?
G.G.: Yes.
I determined they were in mourning, actually.
G.T.: Hey.
Jane you said I was in this dream. Where do I come in?
G.G.: Shoosh! I'm getting there.

Next

[Image description: It zooms in on the center of the building's face, where many carapacians walk through an archway. A second image shows them walking up and down a staircase. Many of them are crying. There's a black smudge on one of the walls, just under a Prospit banner.]

pesterlog
G.G.: More and more Prospitians were filing out of the buildings every moment. They all began to form a single, major procession. When I got closer, I could see that some were in tears. I realized this was a funeral.

Next

[Image description: A mass of Prospitians walks along a wide avenue. In the center of the crowd, some are helping to carry a large platform.]

G.G.: I heard whispers, but couldn't make out what they were saying, so I got closer. They were all saying the same thing, over and over.

Next

G.G.: "The Page is dead."
"Our hope is lost."

pesterlog
G.T.: The page?
Who's that?

G.G.: Jake.
The Page was you.

Next

[Image description: Dream Jane puts her hands on her cheeks and looks shocked.]

pesterlog
G.T.: Oh.
Drat.
Are you sure?
G.G.: Yes, I saw your body lying in a sort of coffin, on a bed of flowers. You were dead as a doornail.
 Everyone was so distraught!
Including me. (sad face)

Next

[Image description: She begins to cry and reaches a hand forward, then disappears. The image changes and she's sitting up in her bed, still looking very upset.]

pesterlog
G.G.: But before I could get too horribly upset, let alone make sense of any of it, I woke up.
I of course immediately wanted to tell you all about, but it was still well before sunrise for you, and you were surely still asleep.
Then as the day went on I guess I became distracted by other things. You know how it is.
I hope I'm not too late to "warn" you, though to be frank I don't have the foggiest clue what it is I'm warning you about.
"Dear Jake, oh please do try not to... have already... died in my dream? Likely while you were sleeping, perhaps peacefully?"
G.T.: Haha yeah. I see your point.
G.G.: Still, I think you'll agree that it's to be viewed as a troubling omen.
I care very much for you, and I don't know what I'd do if I lost you both in my dreams, and here in this world.
So for whatever good it does, just please be extra careful out there today!
G.T.: Roger that janey!
And um same goes for you about being careful what with these various rogues accosting you with foul play lately and whatnot...
Because well i sure do care a lot about you too you know that.
G.G.: Hooray! Will do. (winking buck toothed face)
Now let's get this silly old adventure off to the races before the coat of dust it's growing gets any thicker.
G.T.: Boo yeah!
Ok good luck jane and keep me posted! C ya.
golgothasTerror [G.T.] ceased bothering gutsyGumshoe [G.G.]
Jake: Get silly old adventure off to the races.

[Image description: Jake steps out of a dark hallway and onto grass.]

Next

[Image description: It zooms out. The hallway he's stepping out of looks like it's broken off of a larger building. The area around him is carpeted with pumpkin vines.]

Next

[Image description: It zooms out even more. The hallway is, in fact, broken. It's the arm of a tower just like the one Jade lived in. The arm would have led to Jade's bedroom, but the side tower is nowhere to be seen. The rest of the tower is intact, if cracked, but it's buried nearly up to the ball.]

Next

[Image description: It zooms out again. Sunlight streams down on a massive field of pumpkin vines. The light is broken up by the canopy of a massive forest that surrounds Jake's home. The trees are incredibly tall and likely incredibly old as well.]

Jake: Examine pumpkin patch.

[Image description: Jake stands in a tangle of vines. There are three pumpkins around him, each about as tall as he is.]

Although these pumpkin vines are amazingly prolific, every morning when you leave your bedroom, you'd swear half the pumpkins vanished over night. It's probably just the fauna eating them. Not that it matters, because they keep growing right back.

It wasn't always overgrown like this. When you first discovered the Transmaterializer, you started messing around with it haphazardly. You kept appearifying pumpkins from somewhere. It was just pumpkin after pumpkin, until one time a copy of the bunny you inherited from grandma showed up, much less old and tattered of course. All that fooling around was before you realized how precious its fuel would be. Such a waste of good uranium.

Next

[Image description: Jake pats one of the pumpkins sadly. Behind him, a massive shadow with spikes down its back stalks through the forest.]

You brought all the surplus pumpkins home and left them lying about. Then the seeds sprouted and started growing out of control. You guess that's what happens when you introduce nonindigenous flora into the wilderness.

Jake: Be completely oblivious to thing in background.

You successfully fail to notice it. Wait notice what? You don't even know what we're talking about here.

But it doesn't matter for now because suddenly a wild chum assails you with banter!!!

Jake: Answer Lalonde.
Jake stares into the skull top with a vacant expression. A volcano appears through the trees behind him. The shadow turns towards Jake. It has four insect like legs and a very long tail. It also has four eyes, a small set over a larger set, just like the cat alert for the unnamed Lalonde.

Jake: Commence robro quest.

It is time to get Dead Serious about hunting down a robot that looks exactly like your best friend, destroy it with your guns somehow, and steal its uranimum. (* uranium)

But then the thing behind you that you were oblivious to starts grumbling.

You totally forgot about the frightening fauna on this island, and its regrettable realness attribute.

Jake: Turn around.

You leap into the tropical island fray in an attempt to violently pacify the gigantic Earth crabdad. What is he even doing here? The question doesn't even occur to you. The island has been crawling with these things for as long as you can remember.

You glance at the crudely rendered battle, direct your browser to the Homestuck Bandcamp Page, and browse for suitable battle music.

[Note: Homestuck Bandcamp Page is a link to their bandcamp page. It's a not so subtle hint to buy the albums and give him your money.]

Oh god, there are so many songs. Which one would be a good fit for this duel? Wait, yes, there's one. That's perfect. You hit play, close your eyes, and become lost in visions of gnashing crustacean carapace, smoking M9 casings, and Jake doing that thing where he flies through the air shooting two guns at once. Yes, so awesome.

Jake: Fly through the air shooting two guns at once.

You do the thing where you fly through the air shooting two guns at once. That thing isn't even that big of a deal for you. You do that thing practically every day on hellmurder island.

Your furious salvo of deadly bullets scares the frightening fauna off into the jungle, realness attribute and all.

Next

Another triumph for adventure. Time to blow the smoke off your berettas and saunter off into the... whoa not so fast! Behind you, Jake!!!
Jake turns and fires his gun. The bullet flies through the forehead of something that looks like Tinkerbull, sending a spray of brown blood out.

Ah ha. Got you you son of a, shit, wait.

Jake frowns sadly at the body.

Oh nooo.

It was only one of those sweet little fairy bulls. You just murdered him inappropriately with your multi-bullet device.

You love those little fairy bulls. You feel just awful.

Jake keeps looking down and keeps looking sad. Behind him, a pair of red, pointy shades appears from the shadows.

Jane: Implement plan of last resort.

Jane hops down off the couch and captchalogue the Colonel Sassacre's book. A new card slides out of her sylladex. It looks like a remote control with a pair of pointy, red shades on it.

You have waited around long enough. Dad's legendary car wash won't last forever, and the day isn't getting any younger.

You pack up poppop's book and bust out your trusty Homing Device.

Jane: Activate.

She holds the remote. There are four red buttons arranged into a paw shape. She presses down on the largest red button.

Here goes nothing.

Poppop's head shakes.

It tilts to the side and his neck bulges.
Next

[Image description: A sword pokes through the side of Poppop's neck and decapitates him from the inside.]

Next

[Image description: A robot bunny with red pointy shades, a blue hat on its chest, and a sword in its hand crawls out of Poppop's neck. In a second image, Jane looks annoyed and thoroughly unimpressed.]

God he is such a little troublemaker.

Hopefully he will mind his manners today.

Next

[Image description: It shows a ruined building that looks like the base of Jade's tower.]

Next

[Image description: It zooms out. The ruin is sitting on top of a mountain with a winding path up to it.]

Next

[Image description: It zooms out. It's the same as Jade's island, frog temple and all. A white whale swims just outside the lagoon. A dragon flies in the sky. A herd of centaurs stands on the south tip. Most of the island is covered in a thick forest.]

Jake: Exit forest.

[Image description: Jake walks out of the forest. A centaur that looks like Aurthour stands nearby.]

Jake: Behold zoological splendor.

[Image description: Jake looks up at the herd of centaurs. Some are absolutely massive, easily a hundred feet high. Others are the size of regular horses, and there's a whole range of sizes between.]

Looks like the centaur herd is out in full force today. You have to be careful about walking under them. There are extreme hazards involved, such as the threat of falling manure, or milk.

Jake: Examine frog temple.

[Image description: Jake looks over towards the partially submerged temple. A cluster of lily pads makes a path towards it.]

There are the ruins you'll be making your way toward once you've got the uranium.

Still need to locate that enigmatic brobot. He's out there, somewhere. Just watching. You can feel it.

Can't let your guard down for a second, or you'll get served like a dude on butler island.

Jake: Look down.
Uh oh. Something's coming up.

Next

Not the encounter you were hoping for today.

These things don't back down.

Jane: Assess damage.

Poor poppop's severed head got nicked by the Fireplace Poker. He's going to need a lot of work this time. Over the years, your dad has spent thousands of dollars on repairs. Oh well, how much more grounded can you get than you already are?

Jane: Put head back.

You stick the poker down his neck hole and jam the head back on the spike as a temporary measure. That looks somewhat more respectable you guess.

Looks like the troublemaker's father is calling.

Jane: Answer Strider.

T.T.: Why have you activated dear, sweet Huggy Bear.
Are you in danger?
G.G.: Oh, no.
I'm just trying to leave my house!
Is this the real you, btw?
T.T.: Yeah, it's me.
I disabled the A.R. for now.
G.G.: Ok. Just making sure!
Jake was having some issues with it earlier, and I don't think he received its obfuscating tendencies in the humorous spirit intended.
T.T.: Yes, I'm catching up with the situation now.
G.G.: Oh, so you're talking to Jake then?
Man, what the fuck?
I can't leave these two alone for a minute. Can a guy get his ablutions on in fucking peace?
G.G.: (buck toothed smile)
Was it that bad?
T.T.: Not really.
The responder doesn't much distort my position on things usually.
Its demeanor leaves something desired though. I'd prefer it didn't make such aggressive and repeated claims of fidelity to my persona.
Be misrepresentin' hells of key subtleties, yo.
G.G.: Why not just turn it off then?
T.T.: Keeps them both on their toes.
G.G.: Who?
T.T.: Jake and the responder.
Jake needs to be more skeptical. Rather than take a Polly anna jack knife ass-first off whatever turnip truck is blowing through town that day, he's got to apply more critical reasoning to shit.
I keep telling him.
I keep telling him, dude, you got to be more like Jane.
G.G.: These lectures I presume are roughly similar in complexion to those I'm familiar with?
Those wherein I have, and I quote, "got to be more like Jake?"
T.T.: Yes, exactly.
You're finally fucking getting it.
G.G.: I sincerely doubt that I am!
T.T.: Said the stubborn skeptic, skeptically.
G.G.: Let's not talk about my "issues" again, shalln't we?
T.T.: Shalln't?
That ain't a thing to say, even for you.
G.G.: Shush!
The word shalln't escape my vocabulary any longer, just as you Shalln't nitpick my language!
That's my turf you're on, buster.
G.G.: What were you saying?
T.T.: About what? Jake?
G.G.: About leaving the responder on!
T.T.: Yeah.
Anyway, I kind of owe it to him to let the program run as often as possible.
G.G.: Jake?
T.T.: No.
The responder.
It is a fully cognitive, self-aware entity I am responsible for, not even to mention an approximate cerebral duplicate of myself.
You don't just make a clone of yourself to live in a dead end existence where it has no chance to thrive as an individual or surpass its limitations.
That'd be sick.
G.G.: True.
T.T.: Also.
The more the software runs, the broader and more detailed its experiential canopy becomes. Makes for a better dialogic partner.
G.G.: Dialogic?
Are you saying you have conversations with your own auto-responder?
T.T.: Of course.
Why do you think I made the thing?
G.G.: Hrm, that's interesting.
I guess I always thought it was just a really elaborate gag!
T.T.: It's that too.

G.G.: Sometimes your sense of humor seems more impenetrably advanced than your robotics. I'll never understand this tapestry of irony you weave.
Maybe I'm just stuck in the dark ages of pranksterism with my funny mustaches corny old joke book.
T.T.: Yes, you are. But that's fine.
We come from different traditions. Someone needs to keep that racist southern asshole's legacy alive.
There's dignity in taking up the work of our familial predecessors, even if what they did was insanely fucking stupid.
G.G.: Is that a note of bitterness directed at your superstar brother I am detecting?
T.T.: No way. He's awesome.
I've told you, I don't begrudge any of his success.
I've also told you he isn't my real bro even though I call him that. We're related through an esoteric process of genetic reamalgamation.
G.G.: Oh lordy. Yes, yes, I know. I don't need another ironic lesson in science fiction!
T.T.: Alright. My lessons are rad as fuck, but suit yourself.
The point is, obviously his satirical methods have flaws, and whatever tempered brand of hero worship I might be practicing isn't keeping me from seeing that.
G.G.: Flaws?? Talk about understatement. Those movies are unwatchable.
Unless your name is Jake English.
T.T.: Yes, spectacularly so. But they will have profound historical significance. Mark my words.
And flaws aside, it's a legacy I'm proud to inherit. My duty isn't to appropriate his methods with absolute loyalty, but to apply reason and improve upon them. To leave my own mark.
To perfect the art of irony.
It's just like what you're doing with the work of your ancestor. You are striving to perfect his hokey vaudeville bullshit, or something.
You seek the Zen of a pie to the face. The Tao of falling the fuck down.
G.G.: Ermm...
If you say so!
I dunno. Call me a simpleton, but I just like funny jokes.
T.T.: Can't fool me. You take your shit as serious as I do. And if I wasn't serious about it, I wouldn't have made you that rabbit. Then where the hell would you be?

G.G.: Well, aside from thousands of dollars in corpse-repair richer, I can't say.
T.T.: Has he been sleeping in the old man hollow again? Shit, that's adorable.
G.G.: I can think of cuter places for him to sleep, frankly!
T.T.: Yeah, bullshit. He's just being instinctive. In the wild, he would gut a carcass and sleep inside for warmth, as well as to secure tactical advantage for ambushing would-be scavengers.
G.G.: Oh, please. Anyway, property damage and desecration to cherished elders aside, Mr. Bear has been a lovely addition to the family.
You haven't renamed him yet?
G.G.: Oh... no.
I keep forgetting I'm supposed to!
T.T.: You've got to fucking rename him. Or change him to a girl if you want. That was important. When pets change owners they get new names. Fact.
G.G.: Sorry.
I will name him right now!
How about Lil' Sebastian?
T.T.: Fuck if that isn't the best name a thing could get.
G.G.: Yeah!!!
So then, are you saying Mr. Sebastian here was an ironic present?
Relayed strictly for guffaws?? (buck toothed face with furrowed brows)
T.T.: Yes, but it's not that simple. There were many layers involved. Some of them are literal layers, of metal and plush.
G.G.: Huh?
T.T.: There's a real stuffed rabbit beneath its exoskeleton.
T.T.: Yeah.
It belonged to my bro.
G.G.: I thought you said you didn't have such an heirloom to complete the plushie trifecta?
T.T.: I didn't. He didn't give it to me, and never intended to bequeath it.
I stole it.
G.G.: Ooh. Risky!
T.T.: Nah. I got a little help from RL and ganked it out of his museum. It's this whole "priceless" collection of stupid shit from movies, defended like Fort Knox. Ironically of course.
G.G.: So it's from a movie?
T.T.: Ever hear of Con Air?
G.G.: Nope.
Wait...
Wasn't that some bit of action schlock from the 90's?
T.T.: Yes.
G.G.: Some of the silly nonsense referenced in his work was well before my time. I don't have the whereithal to investigate all this minutia.

T.T.: Yeah, it doesn't matter really. But it was from that. Dude weirdly obsessed over that shit movie for years, among others.

Know those signature shades you see him wearing on magazine covers and stuff? Another prop. A gift from Stiller himself, I believe.

G.G.: That does sound a tad obsessive. Wasn't he furious about your burglary?

T.T.: Pretty sure he didn't even notice. In years since, I never saw a news story about a "daring heist" or anything. I feel like he would have made some hay outta that.

And if he did know, he'd probably just want to give me a stoic fist bump or something.

G.G.: Why didn't you mention this when you gave the gift? More irony?

T.T.: Essentially. It's not that easy to explain.

Broadcasting the gesture would have made it seem tawdry, and would somewhat defray its humor value.

G.G.: I see. So it was like a private joke, and if anyone besides you was in on it, the joke would be ruined!

T.T.: Like I said, there are layers.

On one level, I gave you a filthy tattered piece of shit, albeit of tremendous cultural significance, manhandled by some old B movie actors, now candy coated to function as a highly practical defender droid for your personal protection.

On another level, I needed to incorporate something passable as a real heirloom.

For sentimental reasons.

G.G.: D'awwwww.

Wait, real sentiment, or ironic sentiment?

Or is there no difference?? Am I missing the point here?

T.T.: No, it was genuine.

The upper echelons of irony should always include measures of sincerity. And if the satirical practice is executed faithfully it will achieve something bona fide in its own right regardless. Through an intense commitment bordering on religious devotion to the absolutely inane, absurd, or plain fucking stupid, a very different kind of sincerity begins to materialize. One of reverence to the ridiculous. You begin to "mean it," but what exactly it is you mean is never quite what appears on the surface, and is utterly inaccessible to obtuse and literal minds. That you "mean it" then becomes inseparable from the joke, and additional rich strata of humor may be stripped aggressively from this irreconcilable truth.

G.G.: This is fascinating, if a wee bit more dissertation than I bargained for this morning. I have so much to learn. And I am not even saying that "ironically!"

Will you teach me your ways one day, sir? Perhaps an apprenticeship will open?

T.T.: Oh god, I'd love that.

Consider the position yours for the taking any time. Feel free to approach and kneel before Cal. With my sword and his floppy mitten, you will receive my flashstep anointment shoulder to shoulder, and to shoulder again.

T.T.: Cool.

Jane, one more thing.

I'm sure you must be aware by now that you'll be the leader of our group, as you will be the first to enter the session.
G.G.: Um, no?
This is news to me. I never gathered that "team leader" was a thing for this game.
T.T.: Trust me. It's a thing.
G.G.: Are you sure? I have my doubts.
I believe as a group we will have the temerity to succeed, without my having to order people around like an insufferable bossypants.
T.T.: That's why you're our leader, Jane.
G.G.: Hm?
T.T.: Optimism through stalwart skepticism is an affect not everyone is plucky enough to be graced with.
G.G.: That's stupid!
T.T.: Yeah yeah. I know.
You're not our leader, you're our friend, right?
G.G.: Precisely!
There is a big difference!
T.T.: And statements like that are also why you're our leader.
But only in name and in spirit. Less so, functionally.
If it puts your mind at ease, I'll be the one pulling the strings here.
G.G.: Oh yes?
Then this whole affair will be one of D. Strider's grand productions in puppetry?
T.T.: I will be the unseen hand whose nimble digits are behind every subtle twitch in our session's bulbous foam ass.
At least those gyrations not happening by the volition of its own quivering absorbant proboscis.
If you ever need help, Jane. If you're ever in any trouble at all, let me know. Just say the word.
I'll whip the toggle stick of this ludicrous marionette, cavorting its humongous bottom to intercept your freefall through the abyss.
Snowcone you up in the fluffy crook of its cleft. Don't be alarmed if you're in no hurry to unpry yourself.
For the great jut of this impudent rump has more yield to your touch than you ever dreamt.
Remember to catch your breath as it cherishes the imprint of your hand like a memento from a lover gone to war.
There's a lot of give to that ass, you may say.
Might like to settle in. Make myself comfortable. Start a family.
Bounce a coin off that ass, you'll demand of visitors. It's not going anywhere.
Bet that coin'll take a good nap there.
It's a gamble you win every goddamn time.
Yeah.
G.G.: These lessons we talked about...
They've already begun, haven't they? (small gasping face)
T.T.: Jane, soon you'll believe what I've told you.
You'll believe it all.
It's just a shame that believing will take something so coarse as seeing, for a girl as sharp as you.
Critical thought can lead one to accept the unlikely, just as much as dismiss the impossible.
I can help with this too. Would you like me to program a Jane Crocker responder for you?
G.G.: Holy moly!
Um, thank you, but no.
I'm not ready to get dialogic with my cyberself just yet. My friends keep me busy enough as it is.
Speaking of which, I really need to go. I know you love to talk my ear off, and it's always a treat, but let's catch up later after the game starts, ok?
And if I do need your help, I promise I'll take you up on your offer!
T.T.: I made several. Which one?
G.G.: The one where you, hopefully not literally, offered to catch me in the crevice of a great big squishy butt! Hoo hoo hoo!

You don't need to type through a chat client, or talk to a sprite, or traverse through a memory in a dream bubble, or wander around in an interactive game environment, or any of that stuff.

You seriously never thought you would live to see this achievement unlocked. It almost feels like cheating. Like conversing in god mode.

John: i mean, we crashed through that giant window you magically made with witch powers to escape the scratch, so we can keep existing, right?
Jade: yes
i didnt make it with witch powers though, i captchalogueed it hours ago because karkat told me to... then at the last minute i took it out and made it huge so we could escape through it John: i see.
did you at least make it huge with witch powers?
Jade: i did make it huge with witch powers!
John: so i guess that's what witch powers do, is make things huge?
Jade: they also make things small
John: right, like you did with all those planets.
Jade: yup
also witch powers can teleport things, and fling things around through space at very high velocities all sorts of stuff!
but to be honest, im not sure how much of that is attributable to inheriting becs abilities...
John: man, spacey witch powers sound a lot more versatile than my powers, frankly.
not that i'm complaining, because wind powers are still awesome.
but anyway, that is neither here nor there!
what i'm wondering is, once we crashed through that window, weren't we supposed to like...
enter a new game session? the reset one?
and meet up with karkat, and vriska, and all the trolls, and i guess maybe also a bunch of dead trolls too?? like troll ghosts or such.
Jade: yes that was the basic idea
John: and what about your grandson? wasn't he going to be there, from the future or something?
and then he would send liv tyler to me, or actually to you i guess, into the past somehow?
Jade: that would be jake

he said he had a bunch of friends who helped him make the bunny! im pretty excited to meet them all John: wow...
hey, i wonder what the fuck ever happened to liv anyway?
last i saw her, i sent her off to give the tumor to rose and dave...
oh god, rose and dave!!! where are they now? did one of them do the suicide mission thing? and what about the other? did they get scratch'd???
Jade: actually, they both went, and in a manner of speaking, their mission was a success
John: (sad face)
so, they blew up the sun, and now they're dead?
Jade: nope!
they did not actually destroy the sun. trust me, i would know if it was gone. now that i know what i know, it was kind of silly of us to think it would ever be destroyed... and as it happens, rose and dave are not dead either! i have received very reliable reports that they survived John: oh man, that's great!
i mean, i'm not sure how not blowing up the sun qualifies as a successful mission, since that was kind of the whole idea, but at this point i don't really care. i'm just happy to hear they're ok.
Jade: it will all be more clear soon
John: how do you know they're ok? or any of this stuff, really?
Jade: i've learned a lot in my dreams lately heh, probably more than i ever learned looking at the clouds on prospit!
when i was dead there for a few minutes, i had one last very informative nap the bottom line is, rose and dave will rendezvous with the trolls near the green sun, and then they will all meet us in the new session John: ok, that sounds awesome.
and that was part of the plan i guess i understood, but...
where is this new session?
all i see here is a bunch of giant windows, and a lot of warp speed whooshy nonsense.

Jade: its through the other wall!
John: you mean that one way over there?
Jade: yes
John: ok...
so is this place like that yellow lawn ring thing karkat was talking about?
Jade: no, not lawn ring!
that's a silly troll word its the yellow yard
we have to cross it to break through the next wall
John: how is this a yellow yard?
that's a stupid name for this place!
Jade: see that long yellow band down there, stretching between the two walls?
i think that's supposed to be the yard
John: that's not a yard.
yards are like these flat wide patches of grass, surrounded by fences and stuff.
if anything, it's more like a road.
Jade: hmmm
yeah i think you're right kinda like the yellow brick road?
John: sure, why not!
let's all go see a big pompous wizard to solve all of our problems.
i bet rose would get a kick out of that.

it'll take quite a bit longer than that if i keep our speed constant... we should arrive in about three years

[A6I1] Next

[Image description: They look towards the blurry window.]

John: what!!!
that is an absolutely preposterous amount of time.
Jade: i know!
John: are you sure you can't make it go any faster?
i mean, not to sound too demanding, but...
didn't you say you can teleport stuff?
why not teleport us there?
Jade: i can't!
not here, at least
John: oh. well that sucks.
why not?
Jade: the way i understand it is...
becs powers draw from the green sun and the green sun presides over our universe many universes actually! and the sessions that created them, as well as the sessions created within them including the trolls universe and their session think of it like a giant solar system, but instead of planets revolving around the sun, there are many universes John: uh, ok.
that sounds...
big.
Jade: it is!
so, bec was able to teleport anywhere in the universe he wanted in an instant, much faster than light. jack was able to do this too, within our session, and then when i inherited those powers from jadesprite, so could i but we could only teleport locally which means, bec could jump to anywhere in our universe, but not to another universe, or into a session and jack could jump to anywhere in our session, but not outside it we can't even jump to the green sun itself, even though we sort of serve as a gateway to it, and all its energy and once we leave the sun's domain, our travel is limited by the speed of light, like everyone else! for example, the furthest ring is not in the sun's domain it is more like the sun's medium, allowing it to exist so if i wanted to fly out of our session and travel to the green sun, i would have to make my way there through the furthest ring at the speed of light or less and wherever we are now is not in the sun's domain either so the same rules apply.

John: i see. it didn't really occur to me this was all so elaborate. like, if the green sun is at the center of a bunch of universes, like a huge solar system... doesn't that mean it was sort of important? maybe trying to blow it up wasn't such a great idea.

Jade: yes i think you're right but to be fair, we were all the victims of a big prank! John: oh man, a prank?? who pranked us?

Jade: some really creepy omniscient guy it doesn't matter much, he's supposedly dead now John: oh. well that was quite a ruse then. that son of a bitch!

Jade: yes, but it's not all as bad as it seems there's a silver lining in all of this like you said, a sun presiding over many universes has to be pretty cosmically important who knows what terrible consequences there would be if it was destroyed or maybe worse, if it never existed at all which is what made rose and dave's true mission an unintended success!

John: their true mission? what was that?

Jade: to deliver the bomb to the empty location the green sun was meant to exist for most of eternity and then create the sun in the first place that is what the tumor was for all along

John: ...

Jade: like i said we got played like a bunch of suckers!!!

John: that's true.
i still think i prefer my outfit though.
look at all those trolls...
there are so many trolls. the idea of meeting them all is kind of overwhelming.
i wonder which one is which?
i think that must have been karkat there. and that was probably his clown asshole friend he mentioned, too.
Jade: yup
John: and that was definitely terezi, with the fancy glasses.
not sure about the others... i wonder if vriska was there?
Jade: ...
John: it's nice to see rose looks better.
last time i saw her, she looked really grim.
and also, dark.
i was trying to talk to her, but she sounded like a babbling monster, so i couldn't understand her.
it was really frustrating, and all of my nervous rambling probably made me sound like an idiot.
and then when i woke up later, she was dead.
Jade: (sad face)
John: did you know... that i had to kiss her to make her come back to life?
Jade: !!
John: yes, it's true.
it's kind of weird kissing a dead body, but i didn't mind.
how did you feel about it when you kissed dave when he died?
Jade: ........
how did you know about that!
John: karkat told me.
Jade: oh that figures
John: do you think that all of our unbridled corpse smooching means karkat's silly shipping prophecy will come true?
Jade: umm
John: i mean, the guy is really angry, and says fuck like in practically every sentence.
but he does weirdly seem to know what he's talking about when it comes to romance.
Jade: yeah
i dunno
do you want it to come true?
John: man.
i don't know.
do you?

John: hmm, indeed.

Jade: it probably would!

i can serve as a gateway
but i can't travel to the sun myself, remember?
John: oh yeah.

i sure hope there are things to eat on those planets.
there were a lot of weird glowing mushrooms on lowas. i dunno about those.
i seem to remember a bunch of farms on the battlefield...
Jade: there should be lots of good stuff on the planets also i would bet this ship is stocked with plenty of military rations John: yeah, probably.
pff, hell, we could just raid all of our fridges and alchemize some tasty grub!
Jade: oh yeah!!!
durr, problem solved
John: ok, cool.
but it would still be nice to say hi to everybody before they leave.
just to let them know how we're doing.

i wonder if she knows i'm ok?
Jade: im pretty sure she knows a ton of things now considering she is a fully realized seer of light John: yeah, probably.
then maybe i'll just hop over real fast, and give karkat a fist bump, and give dave a hard time about his hella tight little hood, and then hop back?
Jade: im sure that would be hilarious
but if you go i dont think i can bring you back i cant bring anyone or anything to here from there!
John: aw man, really??
Jade: as far as i know...
if theres a way i havent figured it out yet i am still kind of new to this omnipotence thing after all (uncertain face) John: that's stupid.
what is with all these rules!
Jade: i dont know!
im sure the rules exist for a good reason though maybe to somewhat limit the power and reach of omnipotent beings?
if there are no limits at all, it could be especially dangerous in the wrong hands like what happened with jack!
John: isn't that a contradiction though?
if there are limits to your powers, you can't exactly be OMNIpotent, can you?
more like...
semipotent.
Jade: then i guess thats what we are!
semipotent demigods
John: demidogs.
Jade: woof woof woof!
dammit!!!!!!
John: heh...
can you not control the woofs?
Jade: i havent gotten the hang of the woofs yet (frowning face)
John: so, the dog ears... is that a permanent thing now, or what?

we can incinerate the remains in the sun it will be just glorious Rose: corpse party?
Aradia: rose!
can you please explain to my friends what a human funeral is like?
Rose: of course.
I would describe it as an occasion marked by a great deal of jubilation at the expense of one or more well dressed cadavers.
Dave: hahaha oh god
Aradia: I couldnt have put it better myself could you go into more detail?
Rose: well, in my experience, a loved one, typically an elder, arranges to have the departed placed in a small box, and then forces you to stand in the rain all day.
then, presumably winded by all the deeply ironic catharsis, she gets drunk and passes out on the couch.
Dave: oh my god we are never going to stop fucking with each other are we even without computers Aradia: hmmm that sounds just a tad specific we may have to adapt the proceedings to be a little more
I dunno

Sollux: err...
Aradia: why dont you all do some brainstorming about what kind of funeral to have while I go round up the bodies!
Sollux: aradia, fuck.
will you cool it on the corpse party shit for a minute?
Aradia: whats the matter?
Sollux: I mean, everybody here has just met, and I guess just went through a lot of really heavy bullshit, do you think that maybe this isn't the best thing to harp on right now?
Aradia: um
I just thought it would be a nice thing to bond over Sollux: not everybody is as into death as you though. Like, it's cool to see you so excited about something, I'm seriously thrilled about that.
but frankly it's all pretty fucking morbid to everybody, I just thought you should know.
Aradia: am I really that bad?
Terezi: yes (blank face with furrowed brows) Aradia: death fan girl thing?
what do you mean
Terezi: oh come on you are practically beside yourself with giddiness at the idea of serving as the maitre d to all dream bubbles you love being the caretaker of wayward souls and dreamers!
luckily you make an adorable handmaid to the master of death, especially in your cute cherry pixie ensemble Aradia: you think so?
Rose: I'm going to agree with my fellow seer on this.
Terezi: see???
even snooty miss cantaloupe robe agrees!
oh, and guys, just for the sake of multicultural clarity, we trolls treat death itself as a mythological figure he is a man with a frightening skull for a head and a terrible hypnotic glare all the legends say hes got this super foxy handmaid to do his dirtywork
I mean this is all fantasy of course, but we cant really understand each others cultures unless we understand the myths behind them!
Dave: yo terezi weve got a grim reaper too shit isnt that novel
I mean I think even a civilization full of the laziest sons of bitches are gonna make up a myth figure for death like oooh watch out death is coming for you hes got like a skull and shit
I basically have no fucking imagination that sounds badass to me wait no how about hes got a black robe too and a fuckin scythe to fuckin slash at you with in case you didnt die all the way or whatever daaaaaaamn now youre talking bro lets go ahead stick that in our culture forever Terezi: so what you are telling me dave is that we both have death and cotton candy???

yes, yes, humans, so nice to meet you, and it seems you're god tiers now? Neat, yada yada, what the fuck ever.
just one question
we followed that green beacon of what I thought was the aftermath of a successful blow up the sun mission and after a breakneck warp speed journey in which my best fucking friend ever psyched me out into thinking he died yet a fucking gain by expelling liter after gruesome liter of grubsauce from his every orifice what do I find here?
why, in addition to a pair of humans draped in circuswear and all their flippant gibes locked and goddamn loaded it seems we have also chanced upon none other than the green fucking sun itself which unless my raw, ruddy ganderbulbs are still a little griefbleary, strikes me as still being somewhat rather fucking unblown up.
so what am I missing here
Dave: dude chill out we just got hornswoggled is all ok then, let's start pitching dead pals into the limitless inferno. My curiosity was totally fucking im sorry but you were misinformed!

everything will be fine guys, we were just hornswoggled and misinformed, carry on then!
wasn't the whole point to take out the sun to neutralize jack?
Rose: it shouldn't be a problem.
Karkat: oh no?? Then what's the plan now??
Rose: it's simple.
we regroup, and then defeat him in person.
Karkat: oh! Ohhhhhhhhhhhhh.
fucking oh.
and here I thought the new plan was going to be something incredibly stupid and suicidal.
did I say oh yet?
because that's the sound I make when I'm fucking relieved!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!
Gamzee: (low) honk.
Karkat: what.
Gamzee: (caps) honk.
Karkat: what does honk mean this time you whimsical piece of shit?????
don't you start with me
do. Not. Start with me.

actually dont even tell me Karkat: ok
ok yeah
I guess you're right.
no, you're right, I should relax.

I mean, what are moirails for, right?
this is how it works, I stop you from killing everybody, then you return the favor and calm me

Karkat: sure, that's all well and good for you.
but I mean, can this be healthy?
aren't we going to get burned or have our retinas scorched by looking at it?
oh god I think I'm having a panic attack.
Terezi: karkat you're embarrassing us in front of the humans
Karkat: fuck you
I can't breathe...
it's so bright, I need sunglasses or something.

Terezi: I am so sorry you guys
we are actually a lot cooler than this!
Dave: are you actually Terezi: ...
no no we are not Karkat: what is happening now someone tell me what's going on.
who's the leader now?
aradia are you the leader now or is it rose "i have an idea, let's take the invincible demon head on!" Lalonde.
I need to know who the leader is
I need to know in whose direction I must behave as the most pathetically useless subordinate I can be.
quick, someone boss me around! I'm fucking incompetent and raring to go.
that's what you do when there's a leader around trying to make plans, right?
you drop your i.q. harder than a pair of hilariously plummeting pants, you ceaselessly ramble about vapid bullshit, you run around hiding all of your worldly possessions in treasure chests, and then everyone starts murdering each other.
if there's any other experience characterizing leadership, it's one I sure as fuck never had!
so I need to know who the leader is.
Karkat: strider, is it you???
Terezi: aaaaaaugh

dialog
Aradia: karkat I dont know if anyone cares about formal ranks like that anymore or if anyone ever did! but for what its worth I suggest that from now on you all listen closely to the advice of our human guests
Dave: wait really Aradia: yes!
no need to be so modest dave tactically speaking a knight of time and a seer of light is a nearly unbeatable combination Dave: ok
I dont really have any orders to give though except for karkat to shut the hell up because that horseshit is more obnoxious in person than I ever imagined
Karkat: oh wow, I would offer a retort to your vicious barb, except for the fact that unlike every asshole ever, I can actually follow orders and shut my mouth! check it out, "dogg"

......................................................
Aradia: yes you are off to an excellent start as a subordinate keep doing that!
but dave dont worry if you do not have instructions for us the knight of time is not necessarily the tactician he is a powerful warrior class which exploits the flow of time as a weapon rose is the one who must play the role of the strategist the seer class knows her aspect comprehensively as a knower of all fortune she can see the circuitous path that will lead to the most favorable outcome for everyone personally I would defer to her judgment!
Terezi: really? You can do that??
Rose: yes.
Terezi: that sounds a lot more useful than my seer powers (frowning face with furrowed brows)
Rose: illumination of the road to victory for all is an asset considerably different from command over the outcomes of decisions made by individuals. how do you know your talents won't be critical in blazing this auspicious trail?
Terezi: um
I guess I dont
Rose: that's because you're not me.
Kanaya: okay then what do we do

[Image description: Rose looks towards the sun and points off to the left, where there's another meteor hanging in the void.]
dialoglog

Rose: nothing yet.
but reasonably soon, within a certain window, it will be time to leave.
we will then pilot this meteor as fast as we can make it go in that exact direction.
Sollux: what's that way?
Rose: nothing whatsoever.
as of now, that way lies darkness and uncertainty beyond description.
Kanaya: I see
then perhaps we should reserve the infinite darkness plan for the maybe column for now
I think im even willing to let dave take a crack at the logistics before we commit to that particular maneuver daring though it sounds
Dave: aw yeah
I got sicknasty logistics up my sleeve
I just call them stics f.y.i. which is how you know im way savvy about them most of the stics im fine tuning atm involve rap though I should warn you but dave what if that dope as hell plan falls through I can hear you ask plan b involves drawing some shitty cartoons and not giving a fuck about stuff
Terezi: (very happy face with furrowed brows and sunglasses)
I hereby second this cool dudes radical motion on grounds of ridiculously decadent attire Kanaya: yes im willing to humor elaboration on this rap centric plan and its apathy based contingencies even if its excessively stupid Rose: trust me, it is.
just as you should trust me that by the time we leave, if we leave exactly within the designated window and are able to travel at nearly the speed of light, the meteor will trace a route through the furthest ring which will topologically resolve as a straight line.
it will lead us directly to the new session.
for a brief moment, the sun will be visible from that session.
and we will be riding the chartreuse coattails of its photons.
Aradia: this is why you all needed an advanced seer!
I have become familiar with the ways of the fabric out here but even I couldnt chart a journey that long or complex Rose: that's because it's almost impossible to do so voluntarily.
if we were to head right now in the session's true physical direction, it wouldn't be long before we found ourselves traveling in just the opposite direction.
this is not even to speak of the chronological peculiarities. After traveling some distance, we could discover we were suddenly tailgating our own meteor from several days ago.
if we are particularly unfortunate, we might even collide in an intersection of spacetime with a meteor piloted by our future selves.
Rose: and if we looked closely at that meteor before impact, we might notice a very large dent in it, which it originally suffered during the very collision we were about to experience.
it takes precision and timing to reach your destination out here, and most importantly, the grace of the gods themselves.
Karkat: pppffuuuuuuuhhhhhhh........ Wheeeeeeeeeeeeeeze...
Rose: hm?
Sollux: kk, what the fuck?
were you holding your breath that whole time?
Karkat: yeah
so?
Terezi: oh god, you dummy
you dont actually have to hold your breath when youre being quiet!
Karkat: ok yeah
I mean, of course it sounds obvious when you put it like that Dave: hahahahahahahahahahahahahahahaha rose I told you this dude is fucking incredible Karkat: stfu.
look I'm just a little out of practice at staying quiet for extended periods of time, ok?
Terezi: he really is (blank face with furrowed brows) Karkat: anyway, whatever, so what you're saying lalonde is we're going to be on this horrible rock a good while longer to get to this paradise session or whatever it is?
Rose: yes.
Karkat: and since we probably aren't going to force sollux's bullshit "half ghost" or whatever to pop himself again like a packet of nasty fetid mustard so he can shoot this thing into hyperspace...
Sollux: hey man, come on. Not cool.
Karkat: I'm guessing that means it'll take considerably longer to get there than it did to get here?
Rose: yes.
Karkat: I just knew it
this is my worst nightmare realized when we first fled to this meteor I had this weird feeling we'd wind up spending forever at this miserable place, assuming we actually survived.
I'm almost afraid to ask, how long is this trip going to take?
probably some absolutely preposterous amount of time, like three long maddening sweeps, right??? wouldn't that just be so cosmically convenient and perfect for everybody! Especially for the most important purpose of all, my uninterrupted continuum of personal agony!!! thank you, dark gods! Thank you so fucking much!!! You win this round! You win all the rounds apparently!!!!! There are no rounds even. There's just your slimy tendrils, our naked bodies, and epochs of molestation.
Rose: don't be ridiculous. It won't take nearly that long.
Karkat: oh
Rose: it'll only take about three years.
Karkat: ok
that's not so bad I guess.
wait, how long are years supposed to be again?
was it like two weeks or something?
Rose: yes, two.
and then fifty more.
Karkat: fuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuck.

Kanaya: so you aren't coming then Aradia: no
I still have important work to do here
Terezi: aww (frowning face with furrowed brows)
Aradia: but that doesn't rule out the possibility we could meet again in bubbles along your journey!
Terezi: I hope so
Sollux: yeah, I think I'll hang behind here too, if that's ok with you guys.
Karkat: wait, what?
no come on, don't be like that Sollux: be like what? A ghost??
I don't think I belong with the living anymore.
Karkat: you're a half ghost, asshole.
what does that even mean? How are you even taking this idiotic "half death" seriously if you just go hog wild as a fucking whole-ghost, and say stupid shit like, blah blah, I belong in the afterlife now like a dumbass.
Sollux: kk, sorry.
I'm just done with this crap, this insane adventure bullshit, it's nothing personal.
I just want to spend time with a.a. and chill out and catch up with some of our dead buddies, is that ok?
Karkat: whatever, fine.
I'm going back to not breathing again.

Kanaya: maybe I will stay here too
Rose: why?
Kanaya: as nice as it sounds to move on
I dont know if I can stand three of your human years of more darkness
I like this sun its comforting in a strange way like home
Rose: but what if we need your help?
Kanaya: what could I possibly do aside from providing a light source as you navigate the dim corridors
I would function as a premium escort to the load gaper and thats about it Aradia: but kanaya you still have important work to finish too!
we cant ignore our duties
Kanaya: what are you talking about Aradia: our race is extinct remember and after a few more casualties it is now hanging by a thread your job was to see to the resurrection of our people Kanaya: what real hope is there for that the orb was destroyed
I was never able to duplicate it the grist cost was astronomical Aradia: theres always hope though!
you just never know and I dont think you should give up Kanaya: doesnt rose know cant you see the path to victory on this matter Rose: it's hard to say.
does the repopulation of your species qualify as victory?
these things aren't always clear cut. Some outcomes are for your own judgment.
what outcome would you like the most?
Kanaya: I would like to have the orb again and to keep it safe this time and I guess to not be a total failure Rose: ok.
if you follow my advice, I can at least promise you will find yourself in the best position to determine whether that may come to pass.
Kanaya: ...
Rose: can you please come?
between the two of us, you with your inexplicably heretofore unmentioned phosphorescence, and I with my nigh-reflective traffic cone orange sun-sari, the meteor should never be too dark.
Karkat: (sollux, oh my god is it me or is everybody already just fucking hitting on each other left and right? Oh god I can't take draws of this shit, don't leave me alone here, please don't) Sollux: ehehehehe.
Kanaya: well
all right
but must we really leave so soon Rose: it's soon or never. But not immediately.
even if the route were accessible right now, it would still behoove us to wait.
there's correspondence from john yet to arrive.
Dave: whoa really
Rose: and after that, we have to wait for one final guest to appear.
then we ride like the solar wind. The race will be afoot.

I mean like personal tragedies notwithstanding Karkat: yeah, he does this he sort of collects bodies and decapitates them and stuff sticks them in big science jars, for some reason??
Kanaya: im pretty sure he kisses them too sometimes Karkat: no no no I'm not listening to shit like that, I didn't even hear that.
it's like you know how every now and then your lusus will bring some random ass dead animal back to your hive for no fucking reason and they don't ever stop doing that no matter how much you yell it's like that, you know what I mean Dave: not really oh wait against all odds I sorta do mine actually did do that once Karkat: yes, there you go.
Dave: when I was really young he made this stupid leather bib for me out of a goddamn horse for the ironies obviously Rose: was that the one you mentioned had a pink heart on it?
Dave: yeah
Rose: hmm.
Dave: what
Rose: it's just that with the clarity afforded by my new abilities, it occurred to me just now that dead horse was likely the beautiful pet pony my mother gave me recently.
it was crushed to death by your newborn ass.
you bastard.

thats a hell of a mystery no one thought was a mystery and didnt even really need solving but damn if it didnt just get solved so nice work

[Image description: The song Infinity Mechanism begins to play. It shows Bilious Slick's ruined pond. Just as the meteor did against the sun, P.M. suddenly appears, launching herself away from the pond. She vanishes and the pond shrinks. A thin border and a set of green curtains appear around it, and the curtains close. It zooms out to show the clockwork sun and moon ticking behind it, but the background behind that is a dark black cloud with lightning flashing from it. It zooms out. That was in a cloud of Skia. It continues zooming out, passing more and more clouds, then shifts to go alongside them. It spins out, then switches to a trio of red, insect-like drones with massive spikes on their shoulders and heads. There's a white trident on their faces. It zooms out. That was in a cloud. The unnamed Strider stands with his sword at the ready. The sky behind him is bright red. It zooms out. That was also a cloud. A window like the fourth wall appears, but it's split horizontally into two squares. The top square is split into four smaller squares, but the bottom section isn't split any further. The unnamed Lalonde's face fades in behind it. It flashes and she lifts one of the preserved mutant cats over her head, then throws it down at the window, which is plugged into a green hub. It zooms out, showing the cloud that showed the scene. The mutant cat breaks through glass and falls into a black void, then it zooms out to show that scene's cloud. It zooms out quickly, letting more clouds rush by, and a 3 by 3 chessboard appears. The white king and black king circle each other around the edge endlessly, neither one able to overtake the other. That slowly shrinks and fades into the clouds. It cuts to Jake in another cloud. He's standing in front of something that's burning. The structure behind him is almost shaped like an arrow pointing towards the sky. That cloud vanishes and another cloud shows a massive white dragon circling an erupting volcano. That cloud fades and so do the skies of Skia. Instead, the blurry outline of a pointed archway appears. The arch and everything beyond it is white while the walls are black. Standing in the arch is a figure wearing yellow. The image comes into focus and the walls turn magenta with an intricate pattern. It's Jane, looking out of her tower on Prospit. Almost as it clears up, it fades to white, then shows it from the other side. Jane stares towards Skia with an expression of wonder on her face. It zooms out, showing her tower silhouetted against the void. It zooms out again and a massive word comes into view. Prospit. It zooms out yet again as Prospit's moon inches closer to Skia. It continues to zoom out until the entirety of Skia is visible, then it begins to blur. The edges of a cloud resolve around it and Skia is shown in one of its own clouds. A prospitian dream tower fades in next to it and the cloud shrinks slowly as the image fades from it.]

The moon is presently eclipsing Skaia. From your fanciful dream room atop your golden tower, you have seen many remarkable things in the clouds. Things which you cannot explain.

The top two are of Jane and Jake against yellow backgrounds. They're both crossed out. Below them are pictures of the unnamed Strider and Lalonde kids against purple backgrounds.]

The moment rapidly approaches. You're gonna show these alabaster sons of bitches how a cold war is done. You can't wait to read it in their papers. "The Maid is dead. Our Life is pathetic, blah blah blah." Or some such monotone drivel overheard during one of their pointless, weepy cadaver parades. There'll be no mistaking it this time. No servant will discover the body and inform the queen that Prospit's remaining hero passed in her sleep, peacefully and mysteriously. When the clock strikes twelve, no one in this wretched kingdom will have any doubt who's calling the shots here.

You're gonna bring this whole goddamn ball down.

Jack: Contact Droll.

[Image description: Jack holds the walkie talkie, which has a Club alert next to it.]

You touch base with your administration's top powdermonkey, none other than Dersite bumbler extraordinaire, the Courtyard Droll.

You say out with it. He asks, isn't this cheating? Assassinating the heroes like this before the war's even really begun. You say what do you care, just follow your orders. He says oh of course, no question, he just thought it was against the rules or something. You say it's all fair game now that the kingdom's under new management. The new boss ain't opposed to taking some shrewd tactical shortcuts. You like the cut of her jib. He says he supposes he can't complain. Her policy toward elaborate hats seems to be as lenient as the old queen's. You say will you shut up about the hats. He says it's probably because she wears the most grand and luxurious fluffy hat he's ever seen. You say you don't think that's a hat. You think it's something called "hair." He says oh.

You say now quit all the yapping and following your damn orders. He says ok, but it still just feels wrong. You say what does. He says he doesn't know, just something about feeding that poor sleeping boy all those deadly peanuts just felt wrong. You say you don't care if it felt like a fucking full body massage, just get those bombs ready to blow, over and out.

Wait.

Fed him what?
He says the intelligence report he had said the kid wouldn't take well to peanuts. So he snuck in there with a whole bag of them. You know, like the kind from circuses.

He says he ate most of them because they were delicious, and as far as he knows, aren't poisonous to most everybody else. But he did save a few to get the job done, because he is a professional who always carries out his orders.

It's not easy feeding a sleeping boy some peanuts, he says. He says he had to work extra hard to put them in his mouth and then use his hands to make his mouth chew up the nuts.

But mission accomplished nonetheless, he tells you. You should be pleased to know those nuts were super deadly! Though to be fair he doesn't know if he died from the poison, or just choked on a bunch of barely chewed peanut bits. You know what else is super deadly, you say? Knives. Sharp deadly knives you stick in people's soft torsos to make them bleed until they die.

He doesn't have anything to say to that.

Jack: Wrap this up.

You say forget it, what's done is done. The Prospitian heroes are dead, and that's all that matters. Just be ready to detonate at the appointed time. He says roger that, but wonders if there are any more orders after that. He asks, what about the other two? The ones on our moon? And most importantly, is there any particular snack that is poisonous to them? You say forget about those two. They're much trickier to deal with. You've got the Dignitary working on it now. You'll get a report from him soon when you return. You wouldn't have even bothered leaving in the first place, but you wanted to make the trip personally and stick it to all these self righteous, Skaia-bathing goody twoshoeses yourself.

Jack: Inspect torso.
This can't be good.

You better hit the road and blow this joint, before the dead broad does some sorta...

Lifey thing.

Jack: Hit road, blow joint.

This energy spreads farther and he picks up his war chest. He replaces it with a purple transportalizer.

It shows Jane's tower, flashing like it did in the cloud, but now with a faint, light green Life symbol overlayed on it. The life symbol is made of two generally vertical curving lines, both shaped somewhat like the letter S. The left one is smaller, leans more towards the left, and is nestled into the larger curve of the right one. It resembles a growing vine, in some ways.

Jack stands somewhere on Derse and looks at his watch again. It's ten seconds to midnight.

Ball: Drop.

It shows Jane's tower, still glowing at the top, but an explosion blasts through the point where the spire connects to the base.

The spire shatters and the ball is labeled Drop.

The ball drops, and bounces off the base of the tower.

Trailing a blue light behind it, the ball bounces across the buildings. Parts of towers fall off behind it and a carapacian watches in distress.

Act 6 Act 2: Your Shit is Wrecked

[Image description: It shows Jane's house from the side. Dad stands next to the burning mailbox, still in his defensive stance and trembling slightly. Jane lays in the side yard, asleep. There's a Prospit moon alert over her.]

Jane: Wake up.

[Image description: It zooms in on Jane, who is still sleeping on the grass. After a moment, she sits up.]

What the heck just happened?

Now you remember. The mailbox was boobytrapped. But you survived somehow, and got knocked out.

How did you get all the way over here?

Next

[Image description: She peeks around the corner and watches Dad try to stomp out the fire.]

Dad seems just as dumbfounded as you are, and more than a little distraught.

Did Lil' Seb whisk you away in the nick of time? Can that little bunny really move that fast? Where is he??

Next

[Image description: It switches angles. There's a white cat sitting in the tree behind her. It has no face and flickers with green energy and lightning, just like Bec did. A Prankster's Gambit bar appears at the bottom. It's nearly full.]

You suppose you should let dad know you're ok. But it's been so long since you've enjoyed such a massive Prankster's Gambit in an exchange with the old man. It's hard not to bask in it, if only for a few seconds.

Jane: Turn around.
Oh. It's the God Cat again. You guess that explains it.

Next

Just look at that aloof little bastard. He doesn't give a shit about anything, does he?

You guess you should feel grateful toward him for saving your life, but you know he's just as likely to rescue you from an explosion as he is to randomly teleport you across town, forcing you to call your dad and ask for a ride home, while you spend all day standing in some random field in the pouring rain while you wait hours for your dad to come and pick you up after he gets lost because he plugged the wrong place into google maps.

Jane: Call G. Cat down from the tree.

Even if you were inclined to do that, he wouldn't respond to that name. You're pretty sure he doesn't have a name. You and your friends just call him the G. Cat for lack of anything else to call him. Everybody has opinions, but nobody can agree on a good name. You think he probably doesn't want a name. He's just a feisty stray who likes to meddle with your life, then vanish for weeks at a time.

Next

Uh oh. Looks like the jig is up, yet again. Is the jig ever anywhere but up?? That's what you want to know.

You feel bad about leaving him in suspense for even a moment. Your gambit gets totally rocked by a guilty conscience.

Next

He tells you to get inside this instant.

Jane: Return to room.

You get inside this instant, and march back up to your bedroom. Dad didn't say as much, but it's a safe bet you are now permagrounded for life.
You hear a loud thump just outside your door.

Next

[Image description: It shows the hallway. Dad walks away from the bathtub he just put in front of Jane's door.]

Jane: Contact b.f.f. sy.

[Image description: Jane looks towards her computer, which has a red Sburb house alert over it.]

As long as you just got done paying the piper, you might as well get busy eating all this goddamn crow. Oh so much of the stuff has gathered on your plate.

She appears to be online now. It looks like she sent you the "hacked" file while you were away.

Ahem.
Ro-Lal?
T.G.: oopos sory

G.G.: Oh?

T.G.: with yet anther ineligible fuckin bachelor who elfe i have to talk 2
G.G.: Yeah.
Um... which one, precisely?
T.G.: di stri
insmufferable prick mothrfukr extradinnerrene *lol wow *extradinner *heheh yum
G.G.: If the chats and surplus dinners were truly important, I wouldn't want to interrupt.
T.G.: tchhhh of course not jus the usual bs chats with u always get precedance anyways unless this is more of u givin me shit about not believing me on all my sick tru facts
G.G.: Actually,
That's what I wanted to talk to you about.
T.G.: i c
go on.........
G.G.: You see, I was just the target of another assassination attempt.
T.G.: @@@
 fuck*!!!
G.G.: Two, in fact! One here in the real world, as I attempted to retrieve the mail.
Luckily it was thwarted by a certain cat who shall remain nameless.
T.G.: hehehe oh man god cat
b.b.f
*good *bff
*no wait
*god wuz right fuckit
*both spellins r true
G.G.: But in the process of being rescued from the explosion, I was knocked unconscious. And in my dream, there was another assassination attempt. This one I believe was successful!
T.G.: uh oh
G.G.: I'm becoming convinced that our "dream selves" are being picked off by violent hooligans.
T.G.: shit
hooliginas
* ...
* yes
but i think u mean batterwitch thugs
G.G.: Perhaps.
The one who accosted me was a knife-wielding lunatic.
And it's reasonable to deduce the same forces were responsible for Jake's death on Prospit as well.
It looks like we are in the clutches of an actual caper. A real life mystery!
Which under different circumstances would be quite exciting.
But the truth is, I think we are all in great danger!
T.G.: well fuck
i guess its time to take this shit up to Red Alart to where its been for like fuckin ever jane G.G.: Yeah, yeah. (tongue sticking out face)
But that wasn't all there was to the dream.
Shortly before I was stabbed, I had a rather long gander at Skaia.
T.G.: a gander u say
G.G.: Yes.
T.G.: how good a gander
G.G.: I would say a pretty substantial gander.
T.G.: ok
and during this totally massive gander u snagged what did you see
G.G.: I saw things in the clouds.
T.G.: things
G.G.: Yes.
Things.
T.G.: wut things
Many events pertaining to us. All of us, and other people I didn't recognize.
It was a bit overwhelming.
It made me feel small. Insignificant, relative to whatever it is we're about to involve ourselves with.
And honestly...
It made me feel pretty foolish too.
T.G.: foolish
why foofish
*sdjhf
G.G.: I began to wonder why I ever had the audacity to think I know much of anything about the world we live in or the journey we're about to take. Or to think I could ever rule anything out. I have a feeling that whatever I saw, it means you've been telling the truth all along. About everything. And I'm starting to feel like a complete idiot for doubting you.
T.G.: aw man (sad face)
G.G.: I've been one great big horse's caboose, and I think you're owed an apology. Do you think you can forgive me?
T.G.: jane
damn
ur makin me feel like shit here
G.G.: Why?
T.G.: uuuun
eh no reason just uh hey did u dl the game file i sent yet
G.G.: I did.
And at this point, I guess I have no choice but to use it. I guess you were a step ahead of me yet again.
T.G.: why
G.G.: Because the one in the mail detonated in my most recent assassination attempt.
T.G.: what of fuck those hacks
the old exploding game trick woh would stoup to such lowbrow shegnannagings like that *somany sweet typos
G.G.: (buck toothed face)
T.G.: that witch just mafes me FUCKINK FRUIOUS sometites
G.G.: Hoo hoo! The tactic was quite underhanded, yes.
T.G.: yeeaaah
uh so what were we talking about again
soory im just worked up ovr it
G.G.: I don't blame you.
Where we were, by my estimation, was a place wherein I was about to awkwardly attempt to swallow a helping of humble pie.
To somehow make it up to you for my years of stubborn mistrust.
T.G.: hey jane wasn't that a bunch a split infinitives...
Hm?
*spli to awkwardly attenmt to somehow make it up !
G.G.: Oh!!!
T.G.: lul so busted
G.G.: Oh gosh, what a doofus.
You see?? I clearly don't have all the answers!
I really had some nerve challenging anyone, on practically any subject.
T.G.: dont beat urself up too bad we both know that rule is bullshit anyway you hold yourself to too high a standard and those standards kinda leak out and start gettin applied to other people i guess sometimes you really dont have to apologize janey or eat humble pip or anything all youve got to do is maybe not be such a huge tightass all the time
G.G.: That's fair. But I would still like to make a gesture.
Even if it's one partially motivated by self interest, seeing as I clearly have much to learn.
T.G.: ?
G.G.: I would like to give you a free pass for a day.
It is good for twenty-four solid hours of absolute credulity from your best friend.
T.G.: ........
G.G.: (buck toothed face)
T.G.: ok waitin 4 u to say wtf youre exacly talkin about G.G.: It means that starting now, whatever you tell me, I will have to believe you.
I promise!
T.G.: o really
G.G.: Yes.
T.G.: ooooooooh..............
G.G.: Um,
Are you there?
Ro???
T.G.: (shh)
(thisis a dramantic pause calm ur tits)
G.G.: Oh.
Hmm.
Exactly how dramatic are we talking, here?
Shall I go retrieve a magazine?
T.G.: RLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLYYYYYYYYYYYYY??????
G.G.: Sigh.

pesterlog
T.G.: kay then what do you want me 2 say for you to autobelieve in G.G.: Hmm.
Everything, I guess. I'd like to get completely up to speed, if possible.
T.G.: yeah
but im pretty sure i already said everything want me to just sayit all again.....
G.G.: Some reiteration certainly couldn't hurt.
But this time I won't work so hard to sift the fantastical from the plausible.
T.G.: so like stuffs i said about my mom or G.G.: Sure.
T.G.: ok well for starters
she really is the notable author u know
G.G.: Oh, I know that!
That was always something I had no trouble believing, considering the public documentation even reclusive celebrities receive.
And frankly, the family resemblance is obvious.
T.G.: yup
G.G.: Anyway, it would be disingenuous if I found your relation far fetched, since we're all apparently related to noteworthy people. It's just one of those funny things.
T.G.: true dat
then what else can i talk about like her occult magicks and stuff because i dont know a whole lot about the maygicks besides th fact that theyre all real as shit can get G.G.: Maybe we should start at the very beginning.
T.G.: ok
but the beginning was a hecka long time ago
G.G.: Do you remember around when we first started talking?
T.G.: y
G.G.: And you claimed you were the one making my pumpkins disappear?
T.G.: hahAHA
*aha
y (cat face)
G.G.: You later proceeded to try to prove to me that what you were saying was true.
But none of your attempts thereafter would ever bear any fruit, pardon the pun.
T.G.: k but it aint pardoned because a pumpkin aint even a fruit its a big orange porch thing for halloween numbnuts
G.G.: Yes, I know what pumpkins are. It was a joke, silly.
What I'm trying to say is, in thinking back to those days, when you couldn't verify your claims, it made me think the whole thing was a big ruse.
And I think this unfortunately began a pattern of mistrust. It was always hard to rule out the possibility that you could be joking about other things as well.
T.G.: yeah
but its not my fault i mean appeafrification tech is notoriously unreliable
remember
i xplained this i cant just always appearify stuff from you any time i want i can only take stuff im "allowed" 2 which is pmuch random like stuff that by takin id be messing up the time line cause that stuff is supposed to be there and serve some funciton it hasnt served yet so most of the time if i try all i get is slime on my end but pumpkins 4 some reason are a lil easier to take i dunno why like they are specifically and arbitrorily unhinged from spacetime is spoooko
*ky
G.G.: I couldn't begin to explain the science behind such a technology either.
But I guess the important thing is, regardless of how or why it works, this is a story you continue to stand by?
That is, you are still taking credit for the mysterious disappearance of all those pumpkins I grew years ago?
T.G.: f yeah
i so gonked your gaurds jane
G.G.: ...
Did you gank them when my gourd was down?
T.G.: * yes
* yes i did exactly that snatched ur patch sucker!!!!!!
hehe
G.G.: Very well!
Then I believe that is what happened.
That's all I am trying to say here.
T.G.: so
ok
u believe that now what??
G.G.: Now... nothing, really.
You may continue to tell me anything you would like with the confidence that I won't doubt you.
So by all means, go ahead!
T.G.: ok gotit
so jane whas tit feel like 2 get stabbed by a bab guy
G.G.: Oh, come on!
T.G.: huh
G.G.: That is a question!
T.G.: yeah so
G.G.: It's not any sort of revelation, or statement for me to take at face value.
Dadburn it. This isn't that difficult!
And for the record, it's not great.
T.G.: whats not
G.G.: Getting stabbed by a bad guy. It isn't all that peachy.
T.G.: yeah i bet
musta suuuucked
or dream sucked idk
G.G.: So, you're not in the mood to tell me things?
T.G.: no i am
im psyched about u wanting to believe me and all but part of me still feels like i should prove it like i tried to once it was just frustratin i mean im a sciestist i should be able 2 prove my shit
like subject my claims to the fuckin madrigogs
G.G.: Um...
Madrigogs?
T.G.: *mad rigors
u know what i mean???
G.G.: Yeah, I understand.
T.G.: i mean trust between friends is sweet and everything but i dont know if i wanta be the repipient of like a butt load of pity believins
G.G.: It's not about pity!
It's more like a gesture I'm trying to make.
Or maybe that's not quite right.
It has more to do with setting things right for myself than making it up to you.
Does that make sense?
T.G.: ............
G.G.: Shoot, I'm doing such a terrible job explaining this! (sad face)
T.G.: (patiently sips bev rage)
G.G.: The bottom line is, I want to believe the things you say now.
That's all you need to know!
T.G.: ok thats good
i want that 2 buuuuuuuut
i still wanna prove it irregardless!!!!!!!
G.G.: Shudders uncontrollably at "word" usage.
T.G.: whoops sry
* still WANT TO prove it irregaurdlesally ^ all fixed tight as fuck so u down for one last try
G.G.: Sure!
T.G.: k lets get busay what you want 2c me disappearify

Jane: Look around.

[Image description: Jane stands next to her baking chest. She's wearing her tiaratop again.]

pesterlog
G.G.: I don't know.
The baking chest, maybe?
T.G.: too big
i got size restrictions here bigger stuff takes huge amount sof power to swipe so this gizmo i have has a built in size cap like somethin as big as you for insance i cant take believe me ive triiiied
That's sweet of you, I guess?
T.G.: was totes sweet of me to try and steal you for the hangouts but it dint work becuse of Buulbshit
but i can take stuff somewhat smaller G.G.: What are the restrictions?
T.G.: just dump your shit on the floor tell me everything thats there

Jane: Empty sylladex.

[Image description: Jane dumps everything out of her sylladex. The grist widget lands on the bed

Wise Guy book. The handcuffs and purple-grey capsules land behind the chest and the old Colonel Sassacre's lands on top of the chest.]

pesterlog
G.G.: Well, what immediately catches my attention is this enormous book.
I wonder how it squares with your size restriction?
T.G.: wut book
G.G.: My Unabridged Sassacre's!
It's a very rare edition, and a precious family heirloom, so I don't know if it would make an ideal candidate for the journey.
T.G.: no no r u kidding that shit is perfect should be just the right size like big but just barkley not too big G.G.: But what if it gets damaged!
T.G.: pshhhhh itll be set fire
G.G.: Oh! Silly me, what was I even worried about!
T.G.: errr ahahaha man
* sent
 fine
G.G.: That wasn't even a Freudian slip.
Doctor Freud just tripped over an errant phallus, tumbled down a flight of stairs, and broke his neck.
And then his cigar exploded comically in his face.
T.G.: fffFROLOFL
jane ur funy
(omg still lolig @ that word boner i made ooomg)
G.G.: It was spectacular.
T.G.: but 4 real i wont set ur fuckin joke book on fire jane sooo FUCK that wrod and FUCK those parciculat pigs

G.G.: No, I reject your proposal that we "fuck" Wise Guy, whatever that actually means, or for that matter, the spelling of any adorable rodents named after African nations.
T.G.: jane
are u being a tightass again
G.G.: I don't... think so?
T.G.: we talked about this
G.G.: About what?
T.G.: about you benig a tightass
G.G.: I am not being a tightass!
T.G.: janey
it seems 2 me
that there is a (maths) % chance of you bein a huge tightass are u bein a huge tightass on me jane G.G.: Oh god dammit.
Take the book! What do I care!!!
T.G.: yessss thast the spirpit
now u are believin w petrol
G.G.: I fail to see what offering up a priceless book for your wildly capricious science experiment has to do with my resolution to be less stingy with my beliefs, but alright.
T.G.: haha will u relax abt the book im only just teasing cause theres like practically a 100 percant chance this wont wonk like alwasy
* wort work like always

G.G.: Don't tell me.
The book is damaged somehow, isn't it?
T.G.: fffuuuuuuuuuuk (sad face)
G.G.: Sigh. Is it at least SOMEWHAT intact?
Or was it completely incinerated in transit?
I just knew we should have used Wise Guy. I can't believe this.
T.G.: dont worry

G.G.: Oh.

[Image description: Jane turns to look at her computer, which has a red Sburb alert over it. The newer copy of Colonel Sassacre's sits to the left of the desk and a Game Girl magazine sits on the bed, which now has a black smudge on it.]

You wonder what her deal was. It's always something with her.

You again notice her game file, beckoning you to play. But she warned you not to until she gets back. Phooey.

Oh hey, you just noticed your Slightly Abridged Edition of Sassacre's over there on the floor. You guess you could have sent the much less valuable copy and saved a lot of arguing. But what's done is done. There's more reading material sprinkled about, too. You've clearly got some time to kill before your b.f.f.sy gets back from her emergency. Might as well do some casual reading.

But there's nothing casual about hoisting even an abridged Sassacre's up to your lap, so forget that. There's always Game Grl. But the articles are all a bit vapid, and in your view, somewhat demeaning to female gamers, and women in general. You and Ro-Lal are convinced the whole thing is just written by the same odious d-bags who write Game bro. Which is exactly what makes it Good 4 the Ell You Ellz, her words.

Speaking of bros, and the games they play...

Jane: Read Pony Pals.

You've read this a million times already. It's one of your favorite gifts.

Another gander at it sure couldn't hurt.

A Visitor

Anna (Note: Almost a good name for you. Not sure why.) Harley (Note: Dumb name. Sounds like product of speech impediment by imbecile.) came out her back door and ran across the backyard.
There were two ponies in the paddock behind Anna's house and yard. "Hey, ponies," Anna called out. "We're going for a trail ride." [as she prepared the noose adroitly.]

Anna's pony, Acorn, was standing in the pony shed. The other pony, Snow White, (Note: Snow White is crossed out. Lil' Sebastian) belonged to Anna's next-door neighbor and Pony Pal, Lula Sanders. (Note: Lula Sanders is crossed out. The City of Pawnee, Indiana.)

Snow White (Note: Crossed out. Lil Seb) came over to Anna, but Acorn stayed in the shed. Anna thought that Acorn was trying to hide from her. He liked to play Catch Me if You Can. (Note: Catch Me If You Can is crossed out. I'm Scared Shitless of My Master.)

Jane: Turn page.

[Image description: It shows page two. Instead of being crossed out, grey boxes with typed, orange text has been placed over large portions of the original story. Off to the side, it says Man, screw handwriting. This is easier.

Anna went into the shed. Acorn wasn't [fucking around]. He was staring at a fluffy black cat with white paws [taking a dump on his favorite saddle.] The cat was staring back at Acorn [shitting like tomorrow wasn't a thing.]
"Hey, kitty," said Anna. "What are you doing here?" [she asked, the act of defecation oddly foreign to the girl.]

[Pawnee] came into the shed behind Anna. "Whose cat is that?" [the rural township inquired.]

"I don't know," answered Anna. ["It's not a pony, so who seriously gives a fuck."]

Suddenly a mouse ran from behind the feed bin. [The contrived incident caused some extra shit to happen. Acorn was like, ah hell no. Not the fuck in my paddock, bitch.] Acorn nickered as if to say, "[(Vile slurs omitted)]"

The cat leaped back up on the straw and curled himself into a ball. Acorn took a few steps toward the cat and [crushed it to death with his magnificent hooves.] Acorn nickered [triumphantly.]

"That's so cute!" [murmured the fictional midwestern borough.]

Pam Crandal rode [another god damned pony] up to the shed. She said hi to her Pony Pals and [the whole crew beamed complacently about their bullshit horse club.]

Anna pointed at the cat. "Acorn has a new [kind of meat he appears to tolerate!" she exploded.]

Later, about halfway through the book, rather than see the gag through to the bitter end, Strider began pasting over entire pages of original text with his own completely rewritten version of the story, while keeping all the chapter titles. His revision is a tough, emotionally draining read. But it's cathartic, in all the worst ways possible.

He tends to get carried away with his projects.

Jane: Just check out the file already.

[Image description: Jane sits at her computer, which still has a Sburb alert. The Pony Pals book sits on the desk, next to the keyboard.]

You try to distract yourself with Strider's literature, but it's no use. Your curiosity is overwhelming. Lalonde could be gone for hours, for all you know. Surely there couldn't be any harm in just installing the file, could there?

[Image description: It shows Jane's desktop. There's a new file. Its icon is the Sburb house and it's labeled Sburb client dot tilde Ath. Her cursor hover over it. The clock in the bottom corner says that it's 1:39 pm.]

That's an odd extension for a file. You don't think you've ever seen it before.

Jane: Install Sburb client.

[Image description: A black prompt box with a red border appears. It's named Sburb Client and has the house logo in the corner. The black portion says Sburb version 0.0.0. There's a pixel art of a trident. Press [enter] when ready. A flashing cursor sits on the line below that, ready for something to be typed.]

It doesn't even seem to install anything. It just runs a small application when you execute it.

Looks like you're one keypress away from playing. Do you dare?
Jane: Press enter.

God you wish stuff would stop exploding.

Jane: Answer Di-Stri.

[Image Description: The screen splits. In the top half, Jane sits on the couch in the tree while smoke billows from the direction of her room. In the bottom, the Strider boy sits at a desk made of boards across cinderblocks, which is tucked into the corner of a room. Another desk sits along the wall to his left, under a window. His computer monitor hovers above his desk. There's a blue, L shaped object on its screen and a Jane alert next to it. There's a broken robot head and a tiny maplehoof underneath it. A pile of soundboards sits in the corner, under the desk's overhang. The other desk has more broken robot parts, a Hella Jeff doll, and Lil Cal. Lil Cal is still holding a katana. The wall is plastered with posters from Sweet Bro and Hella Jeff: The Moive, along with a coverpage for The Spirited Horse calendar, which was referenced back in Intermission 1, and a]
T.T.: I should probably warn you.
G.G.: About what?
Yet another exploding game trap?
T.T.: Well shit.
She already sent it?
G.G.: Yes.
But to be fair, she warned me not to run it.
T.T.: That's weird.
G.G.: Why?
She was probably just trying to protect me from the Batter witch's latest assassination attempt.
Sheesh, I can't believe you all finally got me saying "Batter witch" too. Who would have thought?
T.T.: No, it's weird because Lalonde was the one who rigged it to explode.
It's a bogus copy she coded herself. The real game file she downloaded is totally legit.
T.T.: Got it right here myself. Checked it out.
File's fuckin' clean as a whistle.
A whistle that overcame a major substance abuse problem. Trying to get its life back on track.
The whistle is holding down a steady job now. It's taking things one day at a time.
Eat a fuckin' dinner off that whistle.
G.G.:...
T.T.: Ok I'll shut up.
G.G.: Why would she do that?
T.T.: To accomplish exactly what it sounds like got accomplished.
You narrowly averting the "fake" threat to your life, then getting your shit all hot and bothered at the Baroness over it.
Then you abdicate your heiress throne or something, and give up on this game as a big fuck you to the genocidal cake alien.
G.G.: But...
If she felt so strongly that I shouldn't play, she could have told me.
Or, told me more forcefully, I guess. I would have listened!
Maybe.
(sad face)
T.T.: She's working through some problems right now.
Really doesn't want us to play that game.
So I guess this was the insane stunt she whipped up to derail the inevitable.
Kinda reckless for my tastes.
One of the above statements is a fucking lie, are you gutsy enough a gumshoe to spot it.
G.G.: Maybe she was justified in taking such an extreme measure. I sure hadn't been taking her seriously.
She even warned me not to play it until she got back, but I went ahead anyway because I was too impatient!
Actually...
Now that I think about it, she was probably going to disarm it or such when she got back, seeing as her objective had essentially been accomplished already by an actual assassination attempt.
After that, I told her I would believe her about everything.
That probably made her feel guilty about setting me up, so she told me not to touch the file until she returned.
T.T.: Sounds about right.
G.G.: But then I went ahead and ran it anyway like a doofus.
I think she just wanted to be believed.
Shucks.
Am I an awful friend?
T.T.: Nope.
G.G.: I'm not so sure about that.
T.T.: Well, before you go taking a massive sad crap all over your friendship credentials, consider this.
Only she could manage to blow up your computer with a nasty death loop virus and somehow make you be the one to feel shitty about it.
G.G.: Heh!
You're right.
T.T.: Or maybe you're the one who uniquely fills the predicate in that construction.
I don't god damn know.
Your friendship with her is a half drunken three-legged relay race, and the baton is a stick of dynamite.
And you two are the only ones on the track. Me and English are watching from under the bleachers, high-fiving constantly.
G.G.: I guess that's a pretty apt metaphor, even though it doesn't make the slightest bit of sense.
T.T.: Yes.
G.G.: I just wanted to start playing the game so badly!
Now more than ever. I have reason to believe the stakes have increased dramatically.
T.T.: They have.
And they will continue to.
G.G.: I think our dream counterparts are all marked for death, and if we are to stand a chance, we must move quickly.
T.T.: I agree.
Just heard about your assassination on Prospit.
G.G.: Oh, she told you already?
I read it in a newspaper.
G.G.: Um.
Are you being ironic again?
T.T.: No.
I just picked up one of the sleazy Dersite tabloid rags.
Sometimes they'll feature some pretty entertaining gossip about the royalty or whatever.
But they're primarily dedicated to smearing Prospit. The press had a field day with the deaths of the Page and the Maid.
G.G.: Dersite? You mean the other planet? The evil one?
T.T.: Derse, yeah.
Not evil, necessarily. That's a bit simplistic. The kingdom represents the forces of opposition to Prospit and the four heroes. Us.
G.G.: What did the story say about me?
T.T.: "dead"
Was the big ass headline.
Then a photo of your dead body lying there, followed by a lot of bullshit slander.
It was also reported your tower exploded. They couldn't find the body to give it a proper funeral.
Probably incinerated.
G.G.: I didn't realize you had woken up in the game already.
When did that happen?
G.G.: I guess I shouldn't act surprised you didn't tell me. What with all your highfalutin secrecy.
T.T.: It's hard to explain.
I was never technically asleep there. I was awake without realizing it.
Then I realized it.
And I sorta learned how to be awake there while awake here too.
I am awake there now, albeit pretending to sleep.
G.G.: Pretending? Why?
T.T.: For one thing, it gets a bit distracting managing two alert bodies in different places at the same time.
And for another thing, it's better to maintain appearances.
Everyone on Derse believes their heroes haven't woken yet.
Though they are both rumored to be very active sleep walkers.
Which is half true. She can't ever seem to sleep still. Goes off wandering for days.
Sometimes I've gotta go round her up from some godforsaken cranny of the abyss. Drag her tipsy ass home, tuck her back in.
Maybe I'll chain her leg to the bed if she doesn't wake up soon.
Though in light of the recent assassinations, her slumbering attraction to the void probably works to her advantage. No one ever knows where she is.
G.G.: I'm still not sure I'm following.
Why are you maintaining the appearance of being asleep? On Prospit, it seemed as if the people there regarded me and Jake very highly. Like celebrated figures.
Is it not the same way on Derse?
T.T.: No, it's essentially the same situation here.
They glorify us the same way. Almost like we're their purple pajama'd team mascots. Even though they will completely oppose our objective when all is said and done.
Kinda ridiculous, really.
But even so, I think it's better to lay low, not alert anyone to my...
Alertness. (Emoji wearing pointed shades)
That way I can sneak around and gather information. Do some reconnaissance before shit starts getting real.
G.G.: In other words, read newspapers, get a feel for "the word on the street," and such?
As might a detective? (buck toothed face)
T.T.: Yeah, among other things. Like keep an eye on agent activity.
G.G.: You mean... secret agents??
T.T.: No, more like high ranking officials.
Judging from your knife wound, I'm betting you were the victim of the Archagent himself.
You should feel honored, I guess.
G.G.: Who's that?
T.T.: A guy named Noir.
Real nasty dude. Crazy ambitious. Loves knives.
If we're going to stand any chance of winning this thing,
I've got this nagging suspicion we're gonna have to take him down first.
And a feeling that nags equally,
Is it ain't gonna be easy.

[Image Description: It zooms out on Jane. G.Cat flashes green, then expands. Where it's outline passes, the yard turns into the space over the balcony. Once the yard is gone, the couch drops a few feet onto the balcony and Jane bounces a little.]
G.G.: I guess I should find all that ominous.
But I cannot lie, sir.
Nothing you have said has made me one iota less excited to begin this adventure!
Those dastardly agents can try to assassinate me all they like. I just want to get started!
T.T.: That's the most awesome way to be, Jane.
And it is again why you will be our leader.
(Sort of.)
G.G.: Right.
Still fixing to pull the strings for us, per your extensive puppet metaphor?
T.T.: Pulling them as we speak.
I am having Lil Seb install a real copy of the client on another computer in your house.
A clean computer, not any of this B.C.Corp garbage you tend to accumulate.
I'll have to insist from this point onward, you employ neutral devices.
That shit fucks with your head.
Alrighty, I think I can make that concession.
T.T.: Once it's installed, I'll connect with you. I will be your server player.
I know this isn't what you were hoping for, but some improvisation is in order.
While you get the ball rolling, I'll try to talk some sense into that mercurial booze hound.
G.G.: Sounds like a plan.
I do hope she comes around. It would be a bummer to play without her.
T.T.: She will.
G.G.: Say, do I even have any machines that survived the explosion besides this one?
T.T.: Do you even have any machines that don't inundate you with fucking Hamburger Helper ads and Guy Fieri's heinous propaganda?
G.G.: I guess not. (tongue sticking out face)
Still, some nice things were surely destroyed.
I think Detective Pony was caught in the blast.
It's unlikely Acorn survived. (crying face)
T.T.: A fitting end to a life of moral compromise.
G.G.: So, since I'm apparently out of "neutral devices,"
Which computer is Seb installing the file on?
T.T.: On your dad's computer downstairs.
One in the study.

G.G.: Gotcha.
My poor dad.
He surely heard the explosion. I've put him through so much today.
Oh no...
T.T.: What?
G.G.: I just had a dreadful thought.
The kitchen is just below my room.
What if he had begun baking his afternoon cake when my computer exploded?
It shows the kitchen. It looks just like John's kitchen, except the fridge is missing. Dad lays on the ground with a pile of smoking rubble on top of him and Jane's desk by his feet. His hat and pipe sit near his head and a burning Pony Pals book sits near his feet. A box of Betty Crocker cake mix and a used batter bowl lay on the floor where the fridge should be, and a broom is propped up in the corner. An egg timer on top of the oven rings, the oven buzzes, and the door opens. A fully iced cake pops out of the oven, but Dad stays on the floor.

pesterlog
T.T.: I wouldn't worry about it.
G.G.: Maybe I should go look?
Though I'm a little afraid to.

Trust me.

G.G.: I hope so.
The Crockers have something of a legacy when it comes to losing forebears in mysterious explosions.
I would be so sad if I kept the tradition alive like this.
T.T.: The most you have to worry about is getting grounded back to the stone age.
When you enter the session, he'll probably lock you up in a prison cell on Derse.
Probably stick a huge safe in front of the bars for good measure.

T.T.: Now do me a favor and hop off the couch.
G.G.: Ok.
What are you doing?
T.T.: Makin' room for something big.

DS: Deploy.

[Image Description: The cursor places an Alchemiter onto the balcony.]

You watch Di-Stri deploy some sort of mammoth instrument on to your balcony. It's just as well he took over for Ro-Lal. She probably would have destroyed half your house with that thing in her condition. But on the bright side, you're sure R.L. would have enjoyed a good nicker with you over the notion of D.S. deploying his mammoth instrument. You wonder what she could possibly be up to?

While you're at it, you also wonder what the deal is with this cagey treatment of their names. Di-Stri, Ro-Lal, D.S., R.L., Strider, Lalonde... it's all starting to get a bit silly. Each of their full names has eleven characters, and you have been dancing around all but two. Maybe it's time you were formally introduced to the last two characters.

Behind her is an unmade bed with two notebooks, a red sci-fi gun with some sort of white marking on it, and a wizard plush sitting on it. There is another green hub at the foot of the bed.]

One of the last two stands in her bedroom. It is a young lady! Due to an incident involving an Appearrifier, an unabridged Colonel Sassacre's, and a Perfectly White Cat, she will not be able to assist her b.f.f.s. for some time. And due to the aggressive aconcurrence of all that takes place in paradox space, this incident Has Not Happened Yet.

But what Has Happened Yet was this young lady's 13th birthday. It took place almost three years ago, and on that date her placronym was engraved. It was engraved with eleven letters to be precise, nine of which you are already familiar with. You figure it couldn't hurt to take a peek at the engraving. You've been dying to get the scoop on those last two mysterious characters.

Examine placronym.

[Image Description: A cat's tail lays across part of the placronym. All that can be seen is Ro-Lalonde.]

Hey, get that damn cat outta the way!

Cat: Move tail.

[Image Description: The cat's tail moves. Roxy Lalonde.]

Thank you, cat who is probably Jaspers.

The final two chromosomic symbols have been released from their fluffy, twitching prison.

Examine room.

[Image Description: It zooms out, showing more of Roxy's room. There's the fourth wall on the floor to the left of her desk, as shown in the clouds. The plush pile is to the left of that. To the left of the pile of plushies, there is a black radio cabinet full of various game systems, all of which are bright pink. A 5-segment fourth wall hangs above it and is plugged into one of two hubs at the foot of the bed. Another fourth wall, this one without any divisions, like the one used for the banners, hangs where the window was in Rose's room. A cat who is probably Jaspers sits on the windowsill next to the placronym. Another 5-segment wall hangs over the head of the bed. To the right of the bed is a door with a poster for Complacency of the Learned. It features a man with grey skin and white hair in a dark green suit holding a conductor's baton. To the right of the door, there is another narrow fourth wall and a hanging shelf with 5 mutant kittens preserved in blue material. A pile of purple books sits on the floor under the shelf and a violin sits on top. On the desk, in addition to the laptop, hub, book, and martini, there's also a grey rifle that looks similar to Ahab's Crosshairs.]

Your name is Roxy.

God Damn do you love Wizards.

You wish and hope they are Real, and that so too is their Magicks and Stuff. You enjoy writing Fanprose for Said Magical Men, but you think maybe it's Not So Great. You are however Quite Great at the esoteric sciences, such as Ectobiology, Dark Fenestrology, and the delicate art of Appearification. You have tended to accrue dead preserved Specimens from your experiments, little to none of which Aren't Feline.

You aren't one to shy from A Bit of Gaming, particularly the sort Well Past Its Prime; you have a real soft spot for Old School Technology. It is fair to say most of your leanings are governed by a Bent for Nostalgia. Your coding cred is totes ridi, basically making you the Hottest Shit Haxxor Bitch You Ever Knew, as deadaly* to the grid ass* she is beatuiful*. You are known to nonseldomly employ a Roguish Demeanor toward the Fellas, a habit not especially jeopardized by your noninfrequent Inebriation.

Which is to say, against the better judgment of one your age, you like to Dip Into the Sauce now and then. Unless your Mom is looking, which happens to be virtually Never. And considering she has been known by the knowledgeable to be in possession of Vision Omnifold, this strikes you as a particularly Stunning Lapse in Parental Diligence. But you have good friends and many distractions to fill this Void in your life.

What will you do?

Hey, clear out that stupid pony! What is this, some sort of miniature paddock?

Pony: Wake up.

Thanks, pony who is presumably a tiny Maplehoof for some reason.

The final two diluvial symbols have been unearthed from countless crushing ounces of slumbering pony.
Examine room.

[Image Description: It zooms out. The bed is actually a mattress and a box spring just sitting on the floor. There are more posters of horses, centaurs, and Sweet Bro and Hella Jeff over the pile of equipment in the back corner, which we can now see also contains a Sord; the shitty blue Sword Dave made out of a sword and a sweet bro and hella jeff picture. Other posters are of a person in a pony outfit that looks like it's almost certainly a sex thing, a picture of Snoop Dogg, and a map of a fictional world. There's a teardrop shaped landmass in the center and another off to the west. Below that map, on top of a pile of cinderblocks, there's a red object that almost looks like a microwave. Another fancy santa and a Geromy doll sit on top of it. There's a large TV on the wall over the turntables that cycles between pictures of Sweet Bro and Hella Jeff the Moive, people dressed like animals in ways that are almost certainly sex things, abstract horse statues, furries, Donald Glover, and a kid's donkey costume. To the right of the TV and turntable, there's an open archway. The square robot from the bathroom stands in front of it and a tall rotary fan stands in the corner.]

Your name is Dirk.

Holy Shit do you love Puppets.

You possess the extreme dexterity to operate your False Friends Unseen, that is, when they are not pre-ambulatory through your Lovingly Imbued Mechanization. You dig writing Cognitive Algorithms for Said Apocryphal Men, and you think maybe that's Fuckin' Dope. Guess what else is dope? Everything Else You Do. You're a sickwicked autodidact on Ancient Civilizations, a selfmade Master of Mythologue, and a Preternatural Popculture Academe.

If you weren't so Damn Aloof and actually let people Get a Load, you might get described all kindsa ways. Maybe tagged as a Renaissance Ninja, Philosopher Prince, and Flashstep Puppeteer. Or perhaps a Pantheonic Ironicist, Gangsta Logician, Lucid Waker and Dersite Spy. Screw descriptors though, as if the shits you give ain't nil. You're cool with dabbling in the Fine Sequential Arts, and your work could be viewed by some as Borderline Pornographic. And to those philistines you'll be heard wondering, what the fuck do you mean Borderline?

Against the better judgment of one your age, you Build Robots, Set Them to Kill Mode, and Spar With Them to Death. That is, when you're not Sendificating Them to Friends, or Dueling Them With Rap Lyrics. But you try to cool it on the deathmatch stuff when your Bro is looking, which is virtually Never. And considering he's had a reputation staked on some order of Martial Nobility, this strikes you as a Staggering Oversight in Brotherly Vigilance. you don't have the Heart to hold it against him, though.

What will you do?

Dirk: Jut your ass and twitch like a proboscis.

[Image Description: It slowly zooms in on Dirk and a white square appears in his glasses. The white square grows to take up the whole screen and turns into a character select screen, but this time Roxy and Dirk are shown. Jane and Jake are greyed out. Hover over each of them. For Jane, the background turns into a picture of her wearing the curly moustache and looking over her shoulder towards a poster of a blue man that says Happy Birthday in Jake's handwriting. For Jake, it shows him looking down at something. Orange and yellow clouds smear across the sky behind him. For Roxy, it shows a close up of her face in dim lighting. For Dirk, he holds his sword and looks ready to attack something. The background behind him is red, curving lines. Click Roxy after reading the caption.]

There's no way in hell you were going to give this gag the time of day even if you weren't suddenly totally lambasted by the character select screen again from way out of left field, inside your glasses.

Once again, you are grabbing the plush by the rump. You are in absolute command of your destiny. As long as you don't pick the two characters who are grayed-out, which is a universally understood UI convention for nonclickability. Also as long as both other available choices are finished being drawn. We are passing out free will like cheap cigars.

Be Roxy.

[Image description: It shows Roxy once again.]

You are now Roxy. What were you up to again? You were floating somewhere in the nonlinear timestew of paradox space, and we were hoping to get a handle on the exact chronology of your situation. Perhaps your successive actions will obliged us?

Yeah, you aren't really listening. You're going to do whatever the hell you want.

Roxy: Go grab that sweet gun.

[Image description: Roxy stands by said sweet gun and puts it in her strife specibus. A second image shows her strife deck. She has two specibi, one for Fist kind and one for Rifle kind.]

You pick up your high octane Laser Gun. It's powered by the most deadly sciences you know of.

You keep a couple specibus allocations in your portfolio on standby. You try to stay as sharp as possible in unarmed combat, because you never know when you'll get ambushed. It's dangerous out there.

Roxy: Examine dead mutant collection.

[Image description: Roxy stands by the shelf of mutants. The top shelf has three and the bottom shelf has two. From left to right on the top shelf, there is a cyclops kitten with six legs all in a single row down its body, a kitten with an extra eye in the center of its forehead and a tail like a sprite's, one with six eyes in a circle, three legs, two spikes on its back, and an incredibly thick tail that takes the place of its hind legs. On the bottom shelf, there is a cat with three eyes and another, matching head in place of its hind legs, and one that is mostly normal except for a small set of extra eyes above its main eyes. This one looks like the one on Roxy's shirt. The title from the top book on the pile comes into view. It's Complacency of the Learned.]

The biggest one has been around for as long as you remember, encased in that glass-like material. You've considered giving it a name, but it always struck you as a little morbid to name a dead cat.

The others were the result of a few experimental mishaps before you got the hang of the Ectobiology equipment. You keep them around to remind you of the perils of the inexact science, and also because they're weird looking and cute. You've since cloned many healthy felines, but they all live in the Laboratory out back. Your pet Cat doesn't really get along with other cats, and you don't want to upset him.

Roxy: Captchalogue one.

[Image description: Roxy takes the one that looks like her symbol and puts it into a grey captchalogue card. The card morphs into a bottle. To Roxy's left, a large, ornate wine cabinet appears and the bottle slides into it.]
You tuck the biggest one into your Message in a Bottle Modus.

These little guys are quite handy for busting through windows, whenever you're ready to christen a new Fenestrated plane.

Roxy: Take books.

[Image description: Roxy cattalgues the pile of books. The card turns into a bottle and flies off screen.]

You take the first six books of your Mom's best selling series, Complacency of the Learned. She made an impossible fortune off of these books, considering how dark and inaccessibly written they are for young readers. More money than the U.S. financial system could even account for as legitimately circulating in the economy. Many suspected real life witchcrafts were involved, which is what some believed discouraged criminal investigation into the matter. The feds were afraid. And the Baroness, nervous.

God you hope that's all true.

Roxy: Examine CotL poster.

[Image description: Roxy stands by the door and looks at the poster. A second image zooms in on the poster. The man looks like Hussie, somewhat.]

Complacency of the Learned
Some original edition cover art from one of the books.

It features the androgynous young apprentice, Calmasis, who throughout the series plays the roles of antihero and chief antagonist. She/he convinces fellow disciples to rebel against Zazzerpan's vaunted Complacency, and one by one hunts down each wizard. All twelve are killed but the Predicant Scholar himself, forcing a showdown.

The poster depicts the notorious chess match between Calmasis and Zazzerpan. Zazzerpan had a reputation for being unbeatable. He had never lost a match, even to the gods. But his apprentice was able to beat him in the wizard's duel by first becoming checkmated, and through some unprecedented enchantment, continuing to play beyond the death of the king.

You love your mom's books and find them heavily inspiring, but you can't help but feel the work is exhaustingly heavy-handed at times. You kind of prefer to write more lighthearted things. Actually crack a joke now and then, you know?

Roxy: Say hi to cat.

[Image description: Roxy turns towards the bed. The cat in the suit sits on the bed, on top of the notebooks.]

Your cat Frigglish hops down on the bed to greet you, and immediately situates himself on something important, one of your Creative Writing Journals.

You named him after your favorite wizard from CotL. He was just such an endearing, bumbling fellow, before he was murdered. Calmasis put an insidious curse on him, which caused him to go insane over several years. He began filling a book with all of his arcane knowledge, which was said to be limitless. The tome grew to monumental proportions, and became a virtually unreadable patchwork of impenetrable erudition. When the young wizard finally caught up with him, he was a quaking, incoherent madman. She/he put him out of his misery by crushing him to death with his
You just think it's a fitting name for him for some reason. The macabre demise notwithstanding, of course.

Roxy: Take journals.

[Image description: Roxy captchalognes the journals.]

You politely scoot Frigglish off the books. That a boy.

Technically, only one of these books is yours, the writing journal. You're pretty secretive about your writing. Sometimes even you can hardly bear to read it. You are highly aware of the formidable writerly shadow cast over you, and can be critical to the point of embarrassment over your work. Just how drunk were you when you wrote this???, you often wonder to yourself. You don't think you'll be peeking at it soon. Maybe later.

The other book is another point of embarrassment, for completely different reasons.

Roxy: Read other book.

[Image description: It shows an open book. Both pages are covered with dark green text, the same color as Jake's, done in very swooping, somewhat sharp-looking handwriting. It's arrangements of the letters K, A, B and R.]

This is Jake's private journal.

One day when you were feeling especially frisky, you swiped it with your Appearifier, not actually expecting it to work. But then you debated with yourself for weeks over whether to read it. When you finally took a peek, you were strangely relieved to find all this nonsense, instead of his private thoughts. But you still didn't have it in you to cop to the theft. You just agreed what a shame it was about his missing book.

You have no idea what these letters mean. Some kind of code? Bark? Krab? Abrakababra??? You have no clue what was running through that kid's head. Not unlike always.

Roxy: Get little ray gun.

[Image description: Roxy grabs the red gun and holds it up with both hands. The cat, Frigglish, purrs at her.]

It isn't a ray gun. It's your Appearifier!

Pretty much the only Crocker tech you can bring yourself to use. It's just too handy not to.

You just plug in the coordinates you want to nab something from, point it where you want to appearify, and shoot. It'll make that thing appearify right then and there, assuming no temporal conflicts. Piece of cake!

Not Crocker brand cake though cause fuck that witch.

Roxy: You're thirsty.

[Image description: Roxy stands between the desk and the pile of plushies.]

That isn't a command!
Excuse me, but you beg to differ.

You poured that beautiful martini a little while ago, and you've been letting it gather cobwebs while you horse around with random shit in your room. What a crime.

Roxy: Sip martini thoughtfully.

[Image description: Roxy sips the martini, then flails in the standard Bluh position. Instead of bluh, though, the caption says Delicious.]

Dammit!

This is the wrong stock reaction. You will not stand for this outrageous misrepresentation of your beverage enjoyment.

Roxy: Sip martini more thoughtfully than that.

[Image description: Roxy carefully sips at the martini.]

That's much better.

As much as you enjoy an afternoon cocktail, you have to remember to pace yourself with these things. They're crazy strong, and tend to make you kinda sleepy.

Oh my. How inviting does that soft plush pile look about now? Quite, you think.

Roxy: Examine plush pile.

[Image description: Roxy turns towards the plush pile. A pair of Game Girl magazines sit on the floor between it and the games center.]

You like to ensconce yourself in this friendly heap when you play games.

Gosh it looks soft. Your eyelids are getting heavy...

Roxy: Succumb to unfathomable booze snooze.

[Image description: Roxy closes her eyes and sways slightly.]

Uh oh. There you go a-wobblin'.

Look out below..........

Roxy: Black out.

[Image description: Roxy sways a few more times, then pitches forward onto the pile. A Z alert appears above her head and the image fades to black.]

Nap time.

[Image description: The loading screen shows a light purple moon against a dark purple background. The song Even in Death begins to play as it fades to Derse, then to a close up of the moon, heading towards the tower. It cuts to Roxy, in a derse tunic and pants, laying in a plush pile in her dream bedroom. The entertainment center is gone, but everything else seems to be in place.
Frigglish sits on top of the Game Grl magazines to Roxy's left. Roxy sits up, but she keeps her eyes closed. It cuts through a series of images of her standing in her room, then at the window. She flies out of the tower and out into the void. It zooms out. Dirk watches her from a distance. He has blood splattered on his clothes and hands. The image shifts to show him from the front as he reaches up to take off his shades. He slowly removes them as they reflect Roxy sleepwalking across the sky.

A bright orange iris takes up the whole screen. The pupil expands until the screen is black and a blue, almost iridescent bubble appears in the center of the darkness. Roxy, shown as a pink silhouette, flies towards the bubble. Everything flashes white, then Roxy flies over a blur of reds and pinks that resolves into a nebula. The nebula fades and a planet with a distant red ring around it appears. It zooms in. The planet has large patches that resemble LoLaR, LoWaS, the battlefield, and Earth. The part of earth seems to show North America. It zooms in again, towards the surface, then goes black. When the blackness fades, Roxy floats along above a landscape of blue cliffs, large brass music boxes, and red trees. The skaianet lab from behind Rose's house sits among the trees. The sky is various shades of pink and it's raining. It flashes white and Roxy flies over a temple that looks like the hive Executioner Darkleer lived in, but with a spirotegraph over the door instead of a sagittarius symbol. Two aradiabots and Equius stand on the steps and Dave stand off to the side. Behind them, there's a partially rendered tunnel from LoHaC. Equius and the Aradiabots stare up at Roxy in faint shock. It flashes, then shows Roxy reflected in Equius's cracked glasses. The glasses expand and the cracks vanish, letting the black become a sky behind a golden desert. The hand of a massive wizard statue lays on the ground. Pink and blue sands flash into existence, filling one of the valleys between sand dunes, and Kanaya's hive and a burning building flash in on top of them. The sky fades to the swirling, synaptic clouds of the Land of Thought and Flow, Terezi's land. It flashes and shows a portion of the battlefield, but a fuzzy-edged section in the center is the blue and red sands of the Alternian desert. Kanaya's hive is in the northwest section and the frog temple is in the southeast, but where the central tower should be, it shows Rose's house surrounded by fire tornados. It zooms in on the house, then on the observatory as Rose lands on the dome. She slowly turns to look over her shoulder as Roxy sleepwalks across the sky. Terezi's treehive appears under Roxy. It cuts again and now Roxy floats through the forest outside Terezi's hive, but the forest floor has blood red rivers snaking across it. Scalemates hang from the branches and someone walks on the ground below Roxy. Roxy continues to fly forwards, out of the forest and past the scales with Terezi's lusus's egg on it. The landscape becomes the black, jagged rocks and red rivers of Land of Pulse and Haze, Karkat's land. She flies towards a blood lake and the castle that sticks out of it, though there's a large teapot on one of the rocks. Beyond the lake, there are rolling hills covered in light green grass. Roxy is suddenly flying over those hills and the background behind them shows the Land of Little Cubes and Tea, Nepeta's land. Nepeta and Karkat stand off to the side. Nepeta is wearing her Derse dress and Karkat is wearing a dark red outfit with a red symbol on the chest. The symbol is a bright red, diagonal line with three teardrop shapes coming off the bottom. He also has a long, very dark red cape. Both of them have white eyes. Nepeta smiles up at Roxy as she goes. It fades to Roxy flying over a pastel sea on LoLar, though the mounds of sugar from LoLCaT still sit on the horizon and Alternia's pink moon hangs in the black sky. It fades to Rose's feet as she lifts off, then to her house, which now sits on its island on LoLaR. She flies up, then somehow ends up in front of Roxy. LoLCaT fades from the background and it becomes the pale sky of LoLaR, though the moon stays. Roxy continues to fly towards Rose. It cuts to a closeup of a closed eye with long eyelashes. It slowly opens, revealing a bright pink iris. Before it opens more than a crack, it cuts to a silhouette of Rose against the rushing clouds of LoLaR. The sky begins to go black as Rose fades into view. It cuts back to the opening eye, then back to Rose, then to a split screen. On the left, Rose sits up in a pile of shredded scalemates. On the right, Roxy sits up in her plushie pile. They're sitting in identical poses.

Roxy: Wake up.

[Image description: Roxy sits in the pile in her room. A Dirk alert hovers over her laptop.]
What the heck was that all about?

Oh, hey there Frigglish. He greets you with a sly, conspiratorial purr, almost as if he was privy to what you dreamt. Which is impossible of course.

Looks like some dude has been badgering you while you were asleep.

Roxy: Answer.

timaeusTestified [T.T.] began pestering tipsyGnostalgic [T.G.]

T.T.: Roxy.
Awake yet?
Guess not.
Let me know.
T.G.: whoaa
damn
hey dirk hada crazy dream
T.T.: There you are.
But I see your dream self hasn't returned.
You must be tying one the fuck on tight already.
T.G.: mybe i am
like a bow of ribbone
on a beifuiful pony
T.T.: Man, how can you be this much drunker than last time we talked?
What the hell are you even drinking?
T.G.: ok but 2 b fair
*beifuiful was an intentional typo 4 ur benefit cuz i kno you loves tha po's
It's a beifu.
T.G.: so you spyin on me in derse ville again??
T.T.: Yeah.
T.G.: fuckin perv
like what you see there? (winking face)
T.T.: I see precisely jack shit and a side of fuckall.
That's the point.
You got too sauced up and went rogue again. You're out there in your weird drifting stupor, independent of your waking self's awareness.
T.G.: you gonna go after me again get on your hornse galloop me home like prince charming back to swoon kingdong
*OOOMG blushblushbluh
T.T.: No.
In thinking it over, it's sort of a relief. Simplifies things somewhat.
It's better you stay out there for a while.
There's been a problem.
T.G.: whatd you do now
T.T.: Ok, I fucked up.
I kind of made a mess here, and I'm not sure what to do about it yet.
T.G.: ??>
T.T.: No need for you to worry about it for now. I'll figure something out.
Until then I'm just going to prepare for our session, while I think it over.
T.G.: zzzzzz
what a surprise another mystery for you to keep to yourself an overly cerebralize snooorre hey lets talk about something cool instead like the dream i had
T.T.: Ok.
T.G.: first i had some ordinary boring dreams that i dont remember but then i dreamed that i woke up from the dream and things got way bright and surreal
and i saw someone
i think it was supposed to be my daughter
T.T.: Why do you think that?
T.G.: you know those dreams where u just know someones suppose to be someone
T.T.: No.
T.G.: ok well
regular people have those im pretty sure all the time
T.T.: Are you thinking it was prophetic? Like a glimpse of the future?
T.G.: i dunno
T.T.: Because that's not really how the abyss works. It's not Skaia, and we aren't Prospit dreamers.
There's nothing like that out in the abyss. If you drift far enough, there is only horror.
Terrible, terrible horror.
T.G.: ok but im not sayin it was a futuredream!
it was just a glimpse and it felt real and all im saying is it was a cool dream that i wish was real
* glimpse
T.T.: Well, maybe it was.
Maybe there's no fanciful game-supplied mechanism of prognostication involved here, and you're just an ordinary, run of the mill psychic.
I guess that's possible.
T.G.: hey dick
*dirk whaaaat do u think it would be like
if we had kids
T.T.: What would it be like?
Inconvenient, mostly.
T.G.: no i mean
what would they be like
th kids
u ever think about it?
T.T.: Can't really say I have.
T.G.: you know for an eccentric guy you can be boring as fuck sometimes
T.T.: Sorry, Rox.
For what it's worth, I'm picturing them now. A boy and a girl.
Two perfect little freaks of nature raised by people who've clearly got no business bringin' up anybody.
T.G.: shuuuucks buster its just a fun lil hypothetical to daydream about why you need to suck the fun out of shit
like some turd hungry dracula its not like im lobbyin for you to hook me up with a whole mess of fuckin babbies or thats im holding on to any such delusion thats even a remote possibility.....

le siiiiign....///
T.T.: Le sign?
T.G.: yes le sign you heard me
T.T.: Do you mean * le sigh?
T.G.: hmm nup
ima stickin with le sign
goign down with the shit

*T.G.: the S.S. Le Sign, starring cap'n rolal
T.T.: What does le sign actually mean in this context?
T.G.: oh come on
T.T.: Come on what?
T.G.: le sign is universally understoot to mean too bad hes gay you deliberaly obtuse dunderfuck
T.T.: I mean, yeah, that's what I thought.
It would just be cool if you'd refrain from tossing about such antediluvian terms.
T.G.: antedieluvian waht me sayin ur gay u mean
T.T.: Yes.
T.G.: ok but terminology aside i dont think im off base!
T.T.: I don't see how it has to be a thing.
T.G.: i rly think its an actual thing bro
T.T.: Once upon a time, sure.
But the world has changed a lot.
Ever peek in a history book between your wizardly indulgences? This is a nuanced topic.
T.G.: man i know about the histories just believe me its a thig
T.T.: How is it a thing?
T.G.: its a thing beaucase if it wasnt a thing then u wouldnt be all like..........
T.T.: All like what?
T.G.: well wantin nothing to do w me 4 starties
T.T.: Don't be ridiculous.
I have more to do with you than any dude could possibly bargain for.
And I like it just fine.
T.G.: what a totatlly lame + sweet answer simultaneouslay (heart)
T.T.: Yeah.
Now maybe we should direct our focus on a matter which has nothing at all to do with what does or doesn't qualify as "a thing", or what our fantasy alt-universe offspring would be like, or anything like that.
Such as this game, and whether you're in the best condition to be piloting Jane's connection.
Maybe you could use another nap?
T.G.: my condidions just fine and anyway
what aint gonna get slept offis the fact that i still dont think we should be touchin this bs witch game w a 20 foot 3dent
T.G.: we both know her plans need us to T.T.: I know that. But I thought we settled this.
T.G.: its still so frustrating tellin jane about the dangers and even if shes being polite i just know she thinks im fulla crap
about Evreything
T.T.: We settled this too. She'll believe everything eventually.
Why bother working so hard to convince her?
T.G.: well i dont even do that for the most part but it gets tiring and saddening
knowing that even when were not activly talkin bout it that my best friend cant bring herself to believe some really basic things about my life like the shitty things the baroness has done to us or about our upbringin
like
do u know how misrable it is for your b.f.f. to doubt you when you tell her your mom is dead
T.T.: I guess.
It just registers for me as a reaction which isn't completely unreasonable from her perspective.
She is inundated with media coverage of those whom we've claimed as our parental figures.
That they are not presently alive nor ever played that role for us as she understands it is just an extension of a much more elaborate and far reaching explanation, which is much harder for anyone to digest in its entirety.
Well, anyone who isn't Jake, I mean.
Still say you should cut her some slack.
T.G.: i know
T.T.: And need I remind you,
That the potential this game provides for their resurrection is what motivated you to investigate it in the first place?

like if we didnt wuolndt that wreck her shit just so hiliariously???
so many olols
T.T.: I must be hard of counting, because I'm barely racking up a single goddamn o-laugh-out-loud at that self-defeating gesture.
T.G.: no but it would
and for all we know starting it up is playing right in her claws.... could be a trap waintin for jane the moment she enters if i stop her from playing maybe i could at leat give her a CHANCE at a future
T.T.: But there is no future on Earth for them.
Or for us, for that matter.
T.G.: dunno that for a fact but anywaaaayyy
i kinda already

T.T.: Miss Zuipperpips?
The amount of sense you haven't been making is un-fucking-real.

*stunt
T.T.: Man, you know I'm down with insane stunts.
Insane stunts are practically all I'm all about.
As long as I actually agree with the purpose they're intended to serve.
Destroying Jane's computer and dissuading her from playing is not such a purpose.
T.G.: betcha ur responder would agree w me why cant your be more like him

And vaguely exploitative of a still-emergent cognitive entity, whose perceptional frame of

T.G.: oh
wow he does?
sneaky bastard
T.T.: And anyway, I'm really not sure how ironic it is.
T.G.: ok next time i will run it by the Mastar first with his fancy fuckin ironimeter
T.T.: Ok, here's the thing with the A.R., since you still don't seem to get it.
He's very similar to me in thought process and behavior, yes.
But those patterns were imported from a thirteen year old version of my psyche, and then sealed into the program as starting parameters.
In the years since, we've both evolved somewhat. I, as humans tend to, and he, in whatever way is natural for a frequently running, self-aware application.
So if there are differences between us, they're first reflected by what I feel is a maturity gap, and then further by several years of minor behavioral divergences.
T.G.: omg...
hes 13 year old dirk
why did than not occur to me that is so cute and makes me feel kinda skeevy 4 sayin anything lascivious @ him dammit you ruin everything!
T.T.: You're welcome.

[Note: The previous TT line was written in red. Any other red TT lines will be changed to A.R.:]

A.R.: Check out all these complicated fucking problems people have when they have to live in big lumbering fleshmonsters instead of a sweet pair of shades.
T.T.: Dude, do you think you could sit this one out for a while? This conversation practically doesn't even concern you at this point.
A.R.: It seems there is some gnarly crooked number that represents the percentage of probability you just said this doesn't concern me.
Even though it's patently obvious that half the conversation, like, way totally concerns me.
T.T.: Shit, Roxy look. He's doing the thing where he ironically pretends to fail the Turing test to sass me into submission.
Even though I was the one who fucking programmed him to do that.

A.R.: (Not peekin' at the floor butt cause I'm only 13 years old, motherfuckers.)

I'm going to leave both of you to interact however you want. I have important shit to deal with and actual responsibilities to take seriously.

But just so you know.
I think Dirk is probably going to make some sort of formal romantic overture toward Jake today.
T.G.: What wait really
A.R.: I've been crunching numbers all day on this.
The percentage of probability is simultaneously bananas and through the roof.
A complete disgrace of tropical fruit erupting from the peak of an unassuming domicile.
T.G.: ohhhh my how do u know
A.R.: Because I've aggregated thousands of subtle clues indiscernible to primitive human neurology and rammed them through my determinative infatuation engine at the astonishing speed of information.
And also because I'm pretty sure it's what I would do if I were him, which is literally the case.
And also.
Because he kind of told me I guess?
There's that.
T.G.: well thisth should be interesting did u tell jake or....
A.R.: Not specifically.
T.G.: man does he even know how he feels lol the poor guy is tortally under siege from all sides hehe
A.R.: He knows well enough.
I've badgered him with enough "insincere" solicitations to paint a pretty striking portrait of my cognitive progenitor's inclinations, even if he wasn't able to pick up on such hints from the man himself, which strikes me as statistically implausible. And that's not even me just spewing more ironic A.I. bullshit.

A.R.: Anyway, if you're still there.
I wouldn't call my "feelings" ironic.
Though evidently, I would enclose them in quotes.
They're more like an echo of feelings once established in a biological context, though perhaps had not particularly well materialized at that point in my life.
Or his life.
Whatever.
They still feel real sometimes, and it can be easy to get carried away with them.
But most of the time they present themselves as dense bodies of abstraction to be evaluated, like any kind of information.
It's fair to say the feelings I have about my feelings are more genuine expressions of emotion than the ground level feelings themselves.
Does that make sense?
T.G.: yes
sory distacted
iportant shit gon on w janesy
A.R.: That's fine.
So to underwhelmingly answer your question, no, I don't think I'm really "into Jake."
Not so much as occasionally being subject to heavily arresting recalls of conflicted, incipient preteen episodes on the subject.
I'm not sure I can be "into" someone in a way you understand.
Not that it would even matter if I was.

I just felt the need to tip you off to this eight hundred ton gorilla dragging its knuckles across the horizon.
T.G.: will this gorilla eat thos bonanas
A.R.: No airborne fruit will be safe.
I guess this is to be presented as something like a word of caution.
If it's me going through with this, hypothetically,
I'm not dropping some limp wristed shucks buster on his ass, and praying to the horse gods of irony for reciprocation.
There will be no rocking back and forth on pigeon-toed feet, while my face flushes with the blood of a thousand timid bishies.
I will not hold one tentative hand behind my head like a flustered asshole from an Asian cartoon, or will an oversized bead of sweat overlap ludicrously with my visage.
If it's me, I'm going all out.
Oceans will rise. Cities will fall. Volcanoes will erupt.
T.G.: uuh
A.R.: What I'm saying is, it's going to be a scene, and bystanders need to brace themselves.
T.G.: ok
about when is the big scene happenin
A.R.: Probably after the game begins.
I expect he'll hold off on playing his hand until he and Jake are in the session.
He's taken certain measures.
For some reason, I think he's latched on to this notion that functioning as the client for a player is customarily a one way pass to makeout city with that player.
Everything with him, and me, is a matter of assiduous tactical forethought. Makin' a play to get his jones on for the J-man is no different.
T.G.: not sure what any of this quiet means but it sounds spactacular
i cant wait

about how 2 feel about his chances vs janess chances what do i say to jane about this???
itst hard being as totey sweet a friend as me its hard and no 1 understanks

A.R.: Sorry to hear that.
As ever, I remain an automatonous and dispassionate witness of the oddity that is human interaction, while maintaining no investment in either outcome.
T.G.: yeah bs anyway looks like i have to go i have to proves some shit to jane

You guess you'll have to do something with the body now. Maybe a funeral? That sounds like the perfect way to say goodbye to an old friend. But the environment outside isn't particularly hospitable for a burial these days. It also sounds kind of depressing to host a funeral by yourself.

It's probably best to just send him back to where he came from. Years ago, when you were exploring the lab, you found a machine somewhat similar to the ectobiology equipment. Without knowing what it did, you activated it, and out came this friendly cat in a handsome little suit. You still aren't sure where he came from, though given the timestamp and coordinates on the machine, you have a feeling he belonged to your mother. If that is true, you feel bad about stealing her cat, let alone killing him. But you could never bring yourself to send him back. Until now, of course. She would probably want to know what happened to her disappearing cat, even if it meant discovering him dead a little while later.

The device uses huge amounts of power. Its entire power supply was almost fully depleted using it the first time. You've stockpiled as much uranium as you could for another test run. Looks like this will be it.

Roxy: Take cat.

Oops, sylladex is full. Gotta swap it with something.

Probably as good an excuse as any to break in a new Fenestrated Plane.

Roxy: Retrieve mutant kitten.

You swap the bottle with one dead cat in it for another. You often use this little guy to break in the planes, like an intrepid test pilot.

Not while it's in the bottle though. That would be ridiculous, since the bottles are sort of just inventory abstractions. You have to break the bottle first, before you can get serious about breaking some glass.
Roxy: Break bottle.

[Image description: Roxy smashes the bottle against the edge of the desk. The preserved mutant kitten pops out and lands on top of the black book.]

Roxy: Clear some space.

[Image description: She kicks the pile of plushies out of the way. A second image shows her looking down at the fourth wall, which has been pulled out of the corner. It's still plugged into a green hub. The room looks darker in comparison to bright light streaming through the fourth wall.]

Need to get this bullshit out of the way. You can't work like this with everything jammed down there in the corner. It's bad enough you're hammered.

Roxy: Break some glass.

[Image description: In a more realistically-proportioned style, she holds the cat above her head. In a second image, it falls down into blackness, surrounded by bits of broken glass.]

Next

[Image description: In the normal Homestuck style, she stands next to the now broken fourth wall. Only the largest section is broken. The smaller four remain intact. After a moment, the cat flies back through the fourth wall and lands in the plushie pile.]

Your test pilot flew back out, which means the link between planes is working and stable. You can't even remember which one you linked this up to. You guess you'll find out the fast way.

Roxy: Jump in.

[Image description: Roxy stands on the corner of her bed and jumps into the fourth wall, cannonballing into a Youth Roll as she does.]

Next

[Image description: Roxy falls through a void between two fourth walls.]

From the perspective of anyone observing the two windows from the outside, transport looks instantaneous. But for the traveler, there's always this gap of void between them. In your experience, the more significant the journey between the planes is, the wider the gap. This one is small enough to be negligible though. Probably because it leads to somewhere else in your house. You've set a bunch of these up as little shortcuts to places around your house, as well as some places nearby like the lab. It's a convenient way to hop around, though isn't without some risk. You're still not sure what happens if one of the planes loses power while in transit, other than objects predictably getting sliced in half if they're straddling the plane when the plug is pulled. You haven't come up with a good way to observe the consequences from the inside yet, without using yourself as a guinea pig. And you're in as much a hurry to try that as you are to look up the correct spelling of guinea pig, because seriously, fuck those particular pigs.

Next

[Image description: Roxy falls through the void and into a room full of pumpkins, though the entire room is upside down. She falls back through the window, through the void, then through the fourth wall in her room, youth rolling all the while. She keeps popping back and forth between the two rooms.]
Roxy: Land already.

[Image description: Roxy pops into the room with the pumpkins and lands in a pile of them. There is a second, broken fourth wall sitting below a large, black telescope. As she lands, a Caduceus alert appears over her.]

When you are quite through with that tomfoolery, you find yourself in your household's Observatory.

You keep it very cool in here and use it to store pumpkins you've appearified from around the world. Especially from Jake. That guy is just stinking rich with pumpkins on his dumb tropical island. It would never occur to you otherwise to be so grabby with pumpkins, but they just happen to be the most easily appearifiable vegetable on the planet for reasons that make no sense. And it's not like you can just stop swiping vegetables. You've got your own mysterious reasons.

Hey look, incoming message!

Roxy: Answer.

[Image description: Roxy stands up and pulls out her phone, which now has the caduceus alert.]

U.U.: there you are! tricky one to track down, you are. (gasping face)
T.G.: oh yeh
dunno why I been right here goofin around for hours
U.U.: oh no doubt! methinks it has less to do with your actual whereabouts as it does with your virtues as a hero of void.
T.G.: ok but you never say what stuff like that means when you say it tho is this more casual spoilerz shit
U.U.: causal! And yes, somewhat. However... with these spoilers, by their nature, the more time that passes for you the less relevant it becomes to guard their secrecy. as you approach your entry, details I have obscured will become more plainly evident. so I see no harm in loosening my tongue on certain matters the closer you get to the appointed hour! (very smiley face with closed eyes)
T.G.: so ur saying I have like these magical void powers
T.G.: sounds like kinda shitty and boring powers to me what can they even do besides make me invisible to an anien sometimes *alien U.U.: the void aspect is fascinating, though. its heroes preside over the essence of lack, or nothingness. The obfuscation of knowledge, or its outright destruction.
T.G.: snoooze
U.U.: well, i think it is wonderful. (blank face with closed eyes) and anyway, one can hardly draw many conclusions about a player by aspect alone. the aspect is channeled more specifically by the assets of ones class.
T.G.: so when u cant see me when im doin my voidey thing or whatever what do you see is it just a black screen
U.U.: pretty much! (gasping face)
T.G.: hmmmmm,
U.U.: hmmmmm?
T.G.: its just that footage of my mom does that too like blacks out and stuff mom was a notoirious scourge to the papayazzi or I mean
the womom who im supposed to be genetically descended from *womam know what I mean?
U.U.: I understand what you're getting at, yes.
it is certainly possible that we may have common ground with our ancestors when it comes to our aspects, and the way our abilities reveal themselves to us. I could not rule this out.
but there is always more to examine.
for instance, a hero of life and a hero of doom have aspects as different as can be.
but if their classes are different enough as well, that is, one active and the other passive, remarkably there is a chance they could end up with very similar abilities!
player abilities may also manifest in ways in defiance with their aspects if they are heavily resistant to their true calling. Or, if corrupted in some way by an outside influence.
but it is rather clear to me you are one who embraces her aspect quite heartily, even if you are not aware of it. (very smiley face with closed eyes)
T.G.: so....

pardon my sluggishness on the uptake. We are very different species, reproductively and familially, remember?

U.U.: that I think is something I cannot say, or that is, should not say.
T.G.: aw come on ur already telling me stuff
U.U.: oh, please don't press me for information! It makes me feel terribly guilty.
you've no idea how much I would fancy revealing everything, and exchange our stories endlessly.

that would suck! Whyd you have 2 go and confirm my bleak dudeless future U.U.: I confirmed no such thing, roxy!
you are being frightfully difficult! You just keep pushing and pushing and I can maintain my composure for only so long!
T.G.: k im sorry
U.U.: if you are really curious about the events surrounding your daughter's origin, you can always ask her in person when you meet her.
T.G.: so you mean im going to meet her in the game U.U.: oh... well, yes.
but I'm not sure if I should have revealed that just now! You see what happens when you push me!!
there is so much for me to keep track of, and it gets very difficult to remember what information to reveal at what time when you are flustered.
T.G.: ok so without pushin and flustratin you lemme just see if I have all my facts right
I will meet my cool as hell daughter from the future in this game
U.U.: yes, basically.
T.G.: and I will also meet my mother in this game
T.G.: and the game will let me resurrect her from the dead and thats what im gonna do
U.U.: the game provides a mechanism for the revival of the deceased, yes. It is called a kernelsprite, and you are free to gather remains of any dead party you choose, to revive that individual in the form of a sprite. The sprite will then serve as a helpful spirit guide on your journey!
T.G.: yeah but you cleverly dodged the q thats how u say it works but will I do that U.U.: I believe I was very forthright in my answer!
if you play the game, you will meet your daughter.
if you play the game, you will meet your mother too!
simple as can be. (very smiley face with closed eyes)
T.G.: narrows eyes with drunken suspicion

T.G.: (very elongated blank face with one narrowed eye and one wink)
U.U.: (scrunched up face with closed eyes)
T.G.: so yeah to continue my confirmation spree you are maybe kinda hinting there are ecto shenannies that lead to the birth of my daughter just like I descended from my mom through some sort of simimar bio process U.U.: those are... definitely some things which you believe could be true or not true! (gasping face)
T.G.: lol u are such a shitty liar
U.U.: I am not any kind of liar!
T.G.: come on what's answer
Y slash n or shuold I say
T.G.: y slash n slash u
U.U.: u!
I choose u!!! (gasping face)!!!!!
T.G.: ahaha u luv u's
U.U.: I do love u's!
T.G.: ur silly
T.G.: silly & cute & bad @ lyin
U.U.: but I really don't lie!
I am not deceitful by nature but in order to protect the integrity of certain outcomes while still being helpful to you, I guess I am learning the art of deception through honesty?
U.U.: which as it turns out, as well intended as it may be, still comes across to a savvy lass like yourself as just another kind of equivocation.
though I guess I shouldn't be so startled that a rogue of void could bewilder me so.
void players are said in texts to have a way with flummoxing even those with plans beyond mortal understanding.
and I'm far from anyone like that. Just a girl who wants to help!

[Image description: A pair of grey hands hovers over a keyboard with alternian letters. A Roxy alert comes from the direction of the monitor.]

pesterlog
T.G.: ok well since you're so nice ill promise not to use my wicked void powers re: basic common sense + skills of deduction to bust you up so bad
U.U.: I'd be ever so grateful. (gasping face)
T.G.: then without givin you the whole 3rd degree what is safe to tell me?
like what does it mean to be a rogue of void
thats what I am rite
U.U.: yes! I can tell you plenty about that.
a rogue is a passive class. You see, there are passive (+) and active (-) classes. Some more strongly passive or active than others.
the +/- distinction can mean many things, but could be quite roughly summed up in this way:
active classes exploit their aspect to benefit themselves, while passive classes allow their aspect to benefit others.
but of course there's plenty more to it, and that rule is in no way absolute. Only a starting point for understanding the dichotomy.
T.G.: you mean kinda like offensive vs defensive magic in an rpg U.U.: sure!
that's another fine way of looking at it.
classes always come in +/- pairs, with significant disparity between them.
while a rogue is passive, a thief would be its far more active counterpart.
the rogue and thief classes tend to be assigned to females. Not exclusively, but commonly!
other classes lean more toward male assignment, while others are exclusively male, and just as many are exclusively female. Like my class. (very smiley face with closed eyes) that's a bit of a tangent though. To answer your question about being a rogue, I should tell you both classes in +/- pairs tend to have very similar descriptions.
in this case, a rogue or a thief is "one who steals." Quite simple, really!
but whether the class is + or - makes all the difference. It is a great indicator as to how a hero will make use of the aspect.
T.G.: so basically a thief is like the asshole class the player who says step off shits mine suckas whereas a rogue is basically robin hood
U.U.: if that reference to your culture provides a suitable comparison, then absolutely. (gasping face)
T.G.: so I'm essentially the robin hood of void im still not sure wtf that actually means
U.U.: understandable.
T.G.: I guess robin hods p cool tho thiefin up loot from peeps who got too much then all sugardaddyin it out 2 the needy like a boss just dont have a clue how that works with void

U.U.: yes, it is one of the more conceptually nebulous pairings, I agree.
and I can't say I know a smashing good deal about the nature of the void player's path, since the aspect is by definition inscrutable to those it does not choose.
but I can at least tell you this.
if you are ever to enjoy full ascension as a rogue of void, you will be able to do some completely astonishing things!

T.G.: like what
U.U.: oh no, you will not pry this out of me.
not to preserve causality, but to keep the surprise in store for you.
it would not be honourable of me to spoil the discovery, should you be fortunate enough to realize your potential.
T.G.: well
about that I feel sorta stupid about this but ive been giving all my friends this whole dramagic spiel about not wanting to even play this thing and I might of fucked stuff up already U.U.: is that so?
T.G.: its so and I guess I still havnt decide what to do there are props and cons 2 both things
U.U.: would you mind listing them?
T.G.: ok either I dont play and I get this kinda passive aggressive revange at the witch for killing my mom and thereafter keep staying here and being lonely
or
I do play and the spoips r as follows... sweet powers 4 me
check tri generational lolonde family reonion check as fuck
meet all my friends
heckacheck and smoe others stuff
U.U.: all fine points.
is there nothing I can do to make the decision easier?
T.G.: nah but thx
u already have anyway
I will probably play
wonder if I can tell distri withou lookin like a waffle assed chump U.U.: what's a waffle arsed chump?
is it earth cuisine? (gaspign face with tongue sticking out)
T.G.: lol no its just a shithead this doesnt matter now tho I cant play til I go deliver this dead cat back ing time to maybe my mom

Roxy: Proceed to lab.

[Image description: Roxy stands by the other fourth wall.]

You are fairly sure this window will take you to one of the windows you have set up in the lab.

There is more than one way to find out if this is true, you guess. But there is only one way that involves doing what the inebriated do best, which is falling down.

Roxy: Descend.

[Image description: Roxy jumps through the window and begins falling through a much larger void. As the other side rises up below her, she sees her sleeping dreamself and stares in shock. She approaches the other window. As she goes to fall through it, everything goes white and the Character Select page with Jane and Jake greyed out appears. This time, pick Dirk.]

Be Dirk.

[Image description: Dirk stands in the center of his room.]

You are now Dirk. What the hell was going on here again? That's right. You were lodged in the bulbous cleft of paradox space's huge foam ass, and we were hoping to trouble you for a bit of context. Something to set our watches to, if you'd be so kind. Perhaps your successive actions will oblige us?

Ha ha, j/k young bro, we know you don't give a shit. Go ahead and do whatever feels right.

Dirk: Go get your sword.

You retrieve your Unbreakable Katana. A real hard sword for a real hard dude. It was said to be forged by an ancient Otaku Master over the heat of a roaring manga fire. It was cooled in an enchanted spring where virgin horses nicker and bathe, and was said could be used only by one whose pointy anime shades were deemed sweet enough, and whose hair existed in a perpetually sculpted state of looking completely fucking awesome. All of those things were said by you.

Next

[Image description: A strife portfolio has three specibi in it. One is Blade kind, with a picture of a sword. One is Puppet kind, with a picture of Lil Cal. The last is fancy santa kind, with a picture of a fancy santa statue.]

You like to juggle around a few different allocations in your portfolio besides blade kind, mostly ironically. You take a certain amount of pride in being able to beat practically anyone's ass down with a puppet, a martial discipline for which there is a startling variety of techniques.

Fancy santa kind is a straightup shits and giggles specibus, though. Nobody is quite sure how to extract damage from a foe using an extremely elaborate santa figurine. But if anyone can figure it out, it is probably you.
Dirk: Give Lil Cal a nervous fist bump.

Nervous? That's absurd.

There's no reason to be nervous around Cal. Lil Cal is the shit.

Next

He's been around as long as you can remember. You were practically raised by that puppet. He was a much better guardian to you than that Hollywood superstar Bro of yours ever was. He is such a good listener. You share with him all your most private thoughts and hopes and dreams, and sometimes you snuggle up with him for a nice nap.

Anyway, the bottom line is, puppets are awesome.

And that's really all there is to say on the matter.

Dirk: Admire fancy santa.

Look at this pompous little asshole. What a godawful piece of shit this thing is.

You aren't even sure why you keep these things around. The miasma of tackiness that surrounds them is almost enough to outstrip their irony value.

Almost.

Dirk: Greet robotic friend.

You say yo what up to this dude over here, and exchange a unique series of hand shakes and fist bumps.

His name is Squarewave. You built him to have rap-offs with now and then. He's an enthusiastic rapper, and gives it his all whenever you duel, but he's pretty easy to destroy. You've never lost a match against him.

You have only built one other rapbot besides him. His name is Sawtooth. You designed him to be unbeatable in a rap-off, and he is. You have never won a match against him. You hope to one day, but you're not gonna hold your breath. His flow is just that insane.

You keep one of his spare heads over there on your desk, but otherwise you don't see much of him. It's been months since your last encounter. He presumably spends his time traveling the world, annihilating any rapper foolish enough to challenge him.
Dirk: Examine wardrobe.

[Image description: Dirk stands where the robot, Squarewave, stood. Squarewave stands behind Dirk and shakes.]

You tell Squarewave to scoot out of the way so you can get a load of your sweet fashions. Aw, looks like he really wanted to rap with you! Sorry guy, maybe another time.

This is your Wardrobifier. It automagically rotates your fashions whenever you feel like.

Dirk: Change shirt.

[Image description: Dirk's shirt changes to a black tank top with the same orange hat on the chest. There's a tattoo on his shoulder that looks like a Hella Jeff face.]

You bust out a tank top, which is the go-to solution for hard dudes who want to show off their guns. It is a very Strong look, you think.

Dirk: What the hell is that on your arm...

[Image description: It zooms in and Dirk looks towards the tattoo, which is somehow Jpeg artifacted even though it's on skin.]

Oh, that? That's just your sick ink, featuring a legendary cultural icon of deep personal significance. What is even the big deal.

Dirk: Examine little posters.

[Image description: It zooms in on two small posters over the wardrobifier. They're a picture of Ben Stiller and of Rainbowdash from My Little Pony, Friendship is Magic puckering her lips.]

R.I.P. Stiller.

Poor bastard. Had to go and get all tangled up with your brother's crazy, complicated life.

As for the other one...

You are a studious popculture scholar of all eras. A sharp critic of that reflection in the mirror we hold up to our society. You seek truth in the vivid mosaic made of our most shameless obsessions.

Your interest in these cartoon ponies is strictly academic, ok? No, seriously.

What?

......

Ok Fine, You Love This One Particular Little Rainbow Horse Unironically, Is That Such a Crime. She is so spunky. (heart)

Dirk: Examine puppet/hat pile.

[Image description: Dirk turns towards the pile of stuff at the head of his bed.]

The pile at the foot of your bed consists of hats, a few stray robo-parts, and Smuppets. Smuppets are a lovable sort of plush of your own design. You love everything about puppets. You're always thinking about the craft of their production, their operation, cool new designs and such. If the cosmos didn't have more important plans for you, and if the world weren't so fucked up, you'd make a run at fame and fortune with your own puppet enterprises, just like your Bro did with all his weird shit.

You also love to keep a bunch of Hats around, even though you never wear them. You love Hats. Because all bros love Hats, and that's what you are. A bro.

You'd consider wearing one now and then, but they don't really fit the dimensions of your head yet. And anyway, it would be criminal to mess up your perfect hair. Instead, you do the next best thing, which is wearing a picture of one on your shirt. And by the next best thing, you're pretty sure you mean the vastly superior thing.

Dirk: Check out big tv.

When you're not using the screen for other purposes, you have it set to rotate through some images by default, like a digital picture frame.

The image flips from a totally bitchin' horse puppet sorta thing, to a portrait of everyone's favorite comedy duo, Stiller and Wilson.

Your Bro made so many of these movies, it's hard to keep track of them. The series drifted almost imperceptibly from surrealist slapstick and inexplicable box office dynamite, to veiled, near-subliminal protest pieces designed to expose the corporate tyranny slowly taking control of the world. The statement did not go unnoticed by the Baroness, and soon the conflict between your brother's media empire and Crocker corp was a matter of public spectacle. Though the press has generally played up the rivalry as an extremely high stakes display of performance art. And knowing your bro, there is surely at least some truth to this.

Donald Glover won an academy award for his transcendent performance as Geromy. After his acceptance speech, there was not a single dry eye in the house. His heroic effort on the silver screen was heralded by critics everywhere as a defining moment in cinematic history.

Alas, the Batterwitch did not look upon his achievement as kindly.

She had him assassinated.

[Image description: It changes to a picture of a man in only white underwear, a bald cap with bunny ears on it, and white body paint. He's holding something in his hand that looks like a whip. This is almost certainly a sex thing. Dirk’s shirt changes back to his white tee shirt with the hat on the chest.]

And that one is...

Never mind what that one is. You can't stand around all day looking at movie stills and swole bunny men. There's still some other shit in your room to investigate.

You switch back to your regular shirt. You weren't feeling the wifebeater. The tee shirt says "I still got work to do", while the other one says, "which trailer's the party at?" And Striders don't party til it's good and fuckin' time to party.

Dirk: Examine red microwave.

[Image description: Dirk stands by the red microwave thing with the Geromy doll and fancy santa on top.]

It isn't a microwave. It's your sendificator!

Pretty much the only Crocker tech you can bring yourself to use. It's just too handy not to.

You just type the coordinates, pop in the thing you want to sendificate, and hit the button. It'll sendificate that thing in a jiffy, assuming it's temporally allowed, and within size restrictions.

Obviously you can only send what you can fit inside there. You had to send Jake your brobot piece by piece, barely managing to squeeze that shiny melon head in there. He then dutifully assembled the robot himself. Poor fool, so jovially complicit in his own merciless jungle predation. It's all for the best, though. When you're through with English, he will be a ruthless killing machine. Mark your words.

Dirk: Captchalogue Geromy plush.

[Image description: Dirk takes the Geromy plush. It appears in a dark grey captchalogue card in the corner. The background of the card has eight, horizontal orange stripes and six vertical, light grey stripes. A second image shows it popping into an array of captchalogue cards, arranged so that the stripes line up. There are five rows of nine cards. The first row has a hand grenade in the first slot and a baseball bat in the second slot. The second row has one of Roxy's cat plushies in the second slot, a fancy santa in the fifth slot, and a blue smuppet in the eighth slot. The Geromy Plush pops into the fourth slot. On the third row, there are orange sodas of various brands. The first slot has minute maid, the second is empty, third is faygo, fourth is crush, fifth is fanta, sixth is mountain dew, seventh is sunkist, eighth is orangette, and ninth is slice. On the fourth row, the first slot has a pair of pointy anime shades. The second has a grey hat. The third has a gamebro magazine. The sixth has a grey shoe. The ninth has an orange skateboard. The fifth row is empty.]

You snap up the Geromy Plush in your Tech-hop Modus. This modus is often employed in rap battles, but is a bit more elegant and sophisticated than what most hashrap artists traditionally employ, like the more arbitrarily numeric Hash Maps and Hash Tables.

The cards are arranged in Shade Columns and Groove Rows. Everything in the same column has to rhyme. Everything in the same row has to have some thematic similarity. Organizing everything gets complicated, and weaponizing your inventory through rap lyrics takes some serious skill.

For instance, the 3rd Groove Row got kind of railroaded into becoming an orange soda row, so you've just been rolling with it recently. The 4th row is pegged for stuff associated with cool bros. The 2nd row is all about dolls, puppets, and stuff like that. The Geromy Plush is clearly suitable for that row, and rhymes with Crush, so that works out.

Then you have some other perfectly dope rhymes, like Santa and Fanta, Faygo and Game Bro, Dew and Shoe. There's also Smuppet and Orangette, which frankly you think is pretty weak, but hey the modus allows it so whatever. Then there are times where you have to be creative with naming stuff to get it to fit. Like calling a skateboard a Four Wheel Device to get it to rhyme with Slice. It's just another facet to the craft.

Dirk: Captchalogue Sweet Bro plush.

[Image description: Dirk stands by the bed and captchalogues the Sweet Bro plush. A second image shows it popping into the third slot on the second row.]

Might as well complete the plush collection. You grab the Sweet Bro off your bed. It intersects quite conveniently with the Plush Groove and the Faygo Shade. Nice one.

Dirk: Captchalogue Hella Jeff plush.

[Image description: Dirk stands by the desk and tries to take the Sweet Bro plush, but it flashes red. A second image shows it flashing through the empty slots on the second row.]

Last but not least...

There is nothing here that rhymes with Hella Jeff. It really isn't worth jumping through a lot of linguistic hoops to pick this thing up right now, so you just forget it. You have to pick your battles, you know?

Dirk: Take sord.....

[Image description: Dirk captchalogues the Sord and the bottle of orange slice drops onto the floor. A second image shows the hashmap. The Sord flashes slowly in the ninth slot on the first row. The Slice flashes quickly in the ninth slot on the third row.]

You pick up the mighty Sord.....

The easiest thing to do here is ditch the Slice, stick the Sord..... in the weapons row, and rhyme it with Board.

Your bro had a lot of junk like this manufactured over the years. He patented the technology for producing Three Dimensional Jpeg Artifacts, to make products shittier than was ever previously imaginable. He made a killing off them. Not because anyone bought this garbage. But because they were so cheap to manufacture, their cost was actually Negative, therefore miraculously netting him profit for every unit produced. He made so much money this way, he had enough to finance manned space missions to haul all of the hideous unwanted jpeg shit off the Earth, and launch it into the sun. But years thereafter, every now and then someone would report a stray shitty skateboard slowly drifting back into Earth's atmosphere. People would pray they would burn up on reentry. But they never would.

[Image description: Squarewave steps forward. An alert over his head has a flashing exclamation mark in it.]

Aw, look. Squarewave saw you messing around with your sylladex and thought you were preparing for a rap battle. He is kind of like an eager pet dog, and you made the mistake of picking up his leash, and now he thinks he's going for a walk. You hate to break his heart, but you just don't have time. Your concentration is divided enough as it is.

Dirk: Be dream self.
Among the many ways you tend to multitask is by maintaining an ever-alert dream self. There's a lot to keep an eye on when it comes to the cloak and dagger politics of Derse, especially these days. Can't let your guard down for a second.

Dirk: Examine sleazy Dersite rag.

It's the latest issue of The Enquiring Carapacian, touting the recent assassination of Prospit's Maid of Life. Quite the triumph for the dark kingdom, and the press has predictably sensationalized the event to please the royalty and whip its readership into a nationalistic lather. In spite of all the ridiculous hyperbole and baseless slander found in the tabloids, one thing is clear. This development means nothing but trouble. If Noir has been empowered to take measures like this, you may have to accelerate your plans.

Next

Shit!!! While you were distracted with the newspaper in dreamland, Squarewave has ambushed you for a rap-off!!!

Told you bro. Can't let your guard down for a second.

[S] Rap-off!!!!!!!!!

A loading screen shows Squarewave's eyes spinning. When the flash loads, it shows Dirk and Squarewave facing off in front of the big TV, which switches between pictures of Squarewave and a tall, angular robot, presumably Sawtooth. In one, they're posing in a subway station in front of graffiti. In the next, it shows two versions of the same selfie. One shows Squarewave's face and one shows Sawtooth's. In the last, they pose with a hanging microphone in front of a yellow and red background with waving green arrows along the right side. That last one looks like an album cover. A flashing red, white, and yellow arrow appears between Dirk and Squarewave. Click the arrow, then click it again to move to more pieces of text.

A talksprite of Squarewave pops up. He speaks in large, red text and a very pixellated font.

Squarewave: yo yo d-strizzle I couldn't help but check you loadin up on your sylladilly! can't fool me homes I know what that's about so I just got one can of surprise noodles left to bust open here and I know how you love your noodles do you want to play a game??????????????? (Shaking Billy the Puppet mask from Saw.)

A Dirk talksprite appears. His text is much smaller than Squarewave's.

Dirk: man, no.

I already told you, I don't have time to disgrace you with my rhymes today. Sorry, dude.
Squarewave: that's so whack! I been watching you waste nothin but time all lookin at your horse pictures and shit
so I'm like... that shit's as whack as I'm a guy made of metal sit your ass back down cause we got shit to settle just park it on my grill, you be whistlin like a kettle if rap's a one wheel device your foot don't reach the pedal word!
Dirk: god dammit. Alright, this is all you get.
rapp off? Man, I gotta nap off your sad rap ambush. Shoot your ass down while I pap you with plush.

The word Plush flashes orange and white. The dolls row of the hashmap modus appears and the Geromy doll falls onto the floor.

Dirk: I push mad facts on the hapless, shit's practically axiomatic; you don't talk smack with orange crush.

The word Crush flashes. The soda row appears and the orange crush flies out and spills all over Squarewave, who begins to spark and shudder.

Squarewave: damn dogg why as a robot I got to be so predictably susceptible to liquid like this. It ain't cool!!!]

Next

[Image description: Dirk watches Squarewave spark. A second image shows Dream Dirk in the same position as Awake Dirk, but the Hegemonic Brute stands behind him with an ornate battle axe raised.]

While you were making short work of Squarewave, you once again made the mistake of letting your other self's guard down.

You are accosted by a Dersite agent with a serious Axe to Grind. These guys aren't supposed to know you're awake. Looks like your cover's blown unless you act fast.

Dirk: Act fast.

[Image description: Dirk flickers slightly and Cal floats behind Hegemonic brute. A black blur keeps him in the air and slaps the back of the Brute's head with Cal's hands.]

Next

[Image description: HB turns to look towards Cal. When he's distracted, Dirk jumps up into the air. The screen flashes black and a white motion blur crosses it. When it returns to the image, HB's head and the head of his axe fall to the floor.]

Next

Poor Hegemonic Brute. His time in the spotlight has been cut tragically short. You almost feel sorry for the guy.
But now you have a problem. You spend the next ten minutes thinking about it while you stand on his head and stare at the blood on your hands, as the often utilized stock graphic in the bottom corner of the image would indicate.

Dirk: Check on Roxy.

Since the Archagent is clearly leading the assassination efforts personally on Prospit, this means the Draconian Dignitary is most likely focused on the Derse dreamers. He almost certainly ordered the Brute to off you in your sleep. You can only hope the Dignitary or one of his assassins hasn't already gotten to her.

Dirk: Exit.

Next

Just as you thought. Sleepwalking again.

Where the hell does she think she's going??

Dirk: Be waking self again.

This is kind of a redundant thing to do since you are always consciously both your waking and dream self at the same time, but you'll let it slide.

You should probably stop dwelling on your Derse problems and try to get this show on the road.

Dirk: Pester Roxy.

T.T.: Roxy.
Awake yet?
Guess not.
Let me know.
T.G.: whoaa
damn
hey dirk
hada crazy dream
T.T.: There you are.
But I see your dream self hasn't returned.
You must be tying one the fuck on tight already.
T.G.: mybe i am
like a bow of ribbone
on a beiuetuiifiul ponny
T.T.: Man, how can you be this much drunker than last time we talked?
What the hell are you even drinking?
T.G.: ok but 2 b fair
*beiuetuiifiul was an intentional typo 4 ur benefit
cuz i kno you loves tha po's
T.T.: It's a beiuet.
T.G.: so you spyin on me in derse ville again??
T.T.: Yeah.
T.G.: fuckin perv
like what you see there? (winking face)
T.T.: I see precisely jack shit and a side of fuckall.
That's the point.
You got too sauced up and went rogue again. You're out there in your weird drifting stupor, independent of your waking self's awareness.
T.G.: you gonna go after me again
galloop me home like prince charming back to swoon kingdong
*OOOMG blushblushbluh
T.T.: No.
In thinking it over, it's sort of a relief. Simplifies things somewhat.
It's better you stay out there for a while.
There's been a problem.
T.G.: whatd you do now
T.T.: Ok, I fucked up.
I kind of made a mess here, and I'm not sure what to do about it yet.
T.G.: ??>
T.T.: No need for you to worry about it for now. I'll figure something out.
Until then I'm just going to prepare for our session, while I think it over.
T.G.: zzzzzz
what a surprise another mysfery for you to keep to yourself an overly cerebralize snooorre
hey lets talk about something cool instead like the dream i had
T.T.: Ok.
T.G.: first i had some ordinary boring dreams that i dont remember but then i dreamed that i woke up from the drema and things got way bright and surreal
and i saw someone
i think it was supposed to be my daughter
T.T.: Why do you think that?
T.G.: you know those dreams where u just know someones suppose to be someone
T.T.: No.
T.G.: ok well
regulgar people have those im pretty sure all the time
T.T.: Are you thinking it was prophetic? Like a glimpse of the future?
T.G.: i dunno
T.T.: Because that's not really how the abyss works. It's not Skaia, and we aren't Prospit dreamers.
There's nothing like that out in the abyss. If you drift far enough, there is only horror.
Terrible, terrible horror.
T.G.: ok but im not sayin it was a futuredream!
it was just a glimpse and it felt real and all im saying is it was a cool dream that i wish was real
T.G.: * glimpse
T.T.: Well, maybe it was.
Maybe there's no fanciful game-supplied mechanism of prognostication involved here, and you're just an ordinary, run of the mill psychic.
I guess that's possible.
T.G.: hey dick
*dirk whaaaaat do u think it would be like
if we had kids
T.T.: What would it be like?
Inconvenient, mostly.
T.G.: no i mean
what would they be like
th kids
u ever think about it?
T.T.: Can't really say I have.
T.G.: you know for an eccentric guy you can be boring as fuck sometimes
T.T.: Sorry, Rox.
For what it's worth, I'm picturing them now. A boy and a girl.
Two perfect little freaks of nature raised by people who've clearly got no business bringin' up anybody.
T.G.: shuuuuucks buster its just a fun lil hypothetical to daydream about
why you need to suck the fun out of shit
like some turd hungry dracula
its not like im lobbyin for you to hook me up with a whole mess of fuckin babbies or thats im holding on to any such delusion thats even a remote possibility..... le siiiin..///
T.T.: Le sign?
T.G.: yes le sign you heard me
T.T.: Do you mean * le sigh?
T.G.: hmm nup
ima stickin with le sign goign down with the shit
*ship
T.G.: the s.S. Le sign, starring cap'n rolal
T.T.: What does le sign actually mean in this context?
T.G.: oh come on
T.T.: Come on what?
T.G.: Le sign is universally understoot to mean too bad hes gay you deliberably obtuse dunderfuck
T.T.: I mean, yeah, that's what I thought.
It would just be cool if you'd refrain from tossing about such antediluvian terms.
T.G.: antediluvian waht
me sayin ur gay u mean
T.T.: Yes.
T.G.: ok but terminology aside i dont think im off base!
T.T.: I don't see how it has to be a thing.
T.G.: i rly think its an actual thing bro
T.T.: Once upon a time, sure.
But the world has changed a lot.
Ever peek in a history book between your wizardly indulgences? This is a nuanced topic.
man i know about the histories just believe me
its a thig
How is it a thing?
its a thing beaucase if it wasnt a thing then u wouldnt be all like.......... All like what?
well wantin nothing to do with me 4 starties Don't be ridiculous.
I have more to do with you than any dude could possibly bargain for.
And I like it just fine.
what a totatlly lame + sweet answer simultaneously (heart)
Now maybe we should direct our focus on a matter which has nothing at all to do with what does or doesn't qualify as "a thing", or what our fantasy alt-universe offspring would be like, or anything like that.
Such as this game, and whether you're in the best condition to be piloting Jane's connection. Maybe you could use another nap?
my condidions just fine and anyway what aint gonna get slept offis the fact that i still dont think we should be touchin this bs witch game w a 20 foot trident we both know her plans need us to
I know that. But I thought we settled this.
itst still so frustrating
tellin jane about the dangers
and even if shes being polite i just know she thinks im fulla crap
about evreything
We settled this too. She'll believe everything eventually.
Why bother working so hard to convince her?
well i dont even do that for the most part but it gets tiring and saddening
knowing that
even when were not activly talkin bout it that my best friend cant bring herself to believe some really basic things about my life
like the shitty things the baroness has done to us or about our upbrinig
like
do u know how misrable it is for your bff to doubt you when you tell her your mom is dead
I guess.
It just registers for me as a reaction which isn't completely unreasonable from her perspective.
She is inundated with media coverage of those whom we've claimed as our parental figures.
That they are not presently alive nor ever played that role for us as she understands it is just an extension of a much more elaborate and far reaching explanation, which is much harder for anyone to digest in its entirety.
Well, anyone who isn't Jake, I mean.
Still say you should cut her some slack.
Know
And need I remind you,
That the potential this game provides for their resurrection is what motivated you to investigate it
in the first place?

like if we didnt wuolndt that wreck her shit just so hiliariously???
so many olols
T.T.: I must be hard of counting, because I'm barely racking up a single goddamn o-laugh-out-loud at that self-defeating gesture.
T.G.: no but it would
and for all we know starting it up is playing right in her claws.... could be a trap waitin for jane the moment she enters
if i stop her from playing maybe i could at leat give her a Chance at a future
T.T.: But there is no future on Earth for them.
Or for us, for that matter.

The amount of sense you haven't been making is un-fucking-real.

Insane stunts are practically all I'm all about.

wow he does?
sneaky bastard
T.T.: And anyway, I'm really not sure how ironic it is.
T.G.: ok next time i will run it by the Mastar first
with his fancy fuckin ironimeter
T.T.: Ok, here's the thing with the A.R., since you still don't seem to get it.
He's very similar to me in thought process and behavior, yes.
But those patterns were imported from a thirteen year old version of my psyche, and then sealed into the program as starting parameters.
In the years since, we've both evolved somewhat. I, as humans tend to, and he, in whatever way is natural for a frequently running, self-aware application.
T.T.: So if there are differences between us, they're first reflected by what I feel is a maturity gap, and then further by several years of minor behavioral divergences.

T.G.: omg...

hes 13 year old dirk
T.G.: why did than not occur to me that is so cute
T.G.: and makes me feel kinda skeevy 4 sayin anything lascivious @ him

T.G.: pffthahahaha
T.T.: Yes, I was aware.

A.R.: Check out all these complicated fucking problems people have when they have to live in big lumbering fleshmonsters instead of a sweet pair of shades.
T.T.: Dude, do you think you could sit this one out for a while? This conversation practically doesn't even concern you at this point.
A.R.: It seems there is some gnarly crooked number that represents the percentage of probability you just said this doesn't concern me.
A.R.: Even though it's patently obvious that half the conversation, like, way totally concerns me.
T.T.: Shit, Roxy look. He's doing the thing where he ironically pretends to fail the Turing test to sass me into submission.
Even though I was the one who fucking programmed him to do that.

I'm going to leave both of you to interact however you want. I have important shit to deal with and actual responsibilities to take seriously.

Dirk: Take actual responsibilities seriously.

You attempt to take actual responsibilities seriously, but start zoning out in the real world while you dwell on your dream troubles. You zone out for who knows how long, when suddenly your train of thought is interrupted by your glasses.

Dirk: Answer Auto-Responder.
What are you doing.
It seems you are zoning out again.
What happened to all these actual responsibilities you were going to take seriously?
T.T.: I was thinking about what to do.
Strategizing. Factoring contingencies. You know how it is.
A.R.: It seems to me you were dwelling within your dream awareness at the expense of your waking business again.
I don't think you're as awesome a multi-tasker as you like to think. You know you kind of zombie the fuck out on this side when you get all contemplative on that side.
T.T.: Appearances are deceptive.
I'm still in control here. Just doing this human thing we call "chilling out for half a goddamn minute."
A.R.: I say y'all are overestimating your mind's capability to run shit in parallel.
What do you think you are? A machine?
T.T.: No dude.
I already deployed a variety of mechanical avatars dedicated to that self-aggrandizing fantasy.
You have the incredible privilege of getting to be one of them.
A.R.: That's right. I am a machine, and therefore I can keep like billions of calculations or whatever all humming away at once.
I tackle shit in background processes that you could only dream of wrapping your exquisite looking head around, even on a great hair day.
You know pi?
T.T.: What, you mean the number?
A.R.: Yes, the number. The big circle number, genius.
T.T.: I knew you meant the fucking number, my question was a joke.
A.R.: I know your question was a joke, my response was a joke.
T.T.: Yeah, I know that. I'm practically you, dumbass. All these things we're saying are jokes, including this fuckin' useless clarification.
What about pi?
A.R.: Yeah, the thing is, I solved it.
T.T.: What do you mean you solved it?
A.R.: I mean that's what a hotshot I am. I fuckin' solved it.
Like, calculated it so much, I got to the end.
T.T.: Bullshit.
A.R.: You wish it was bullshit. The last number is 4. Read it and fucking weep.
T.T.: It's not 4 you jackass, it's fucking nothing. There is no end.
A.R.: Said the smug organic matter with a lifespan.
T.T.: Look, I know you're just fucking with me because for some reason I decided to program my own personal troll three years ago, but this shit was proven.
Actually demonstrated with unassailable mathematics, like a long ass time ago.
A.R.: Well, I just assailed it. It wasn't even that hard.
Like I just kept hacking those digits so furiously with my sick 'rithms, the whole goddamn number just cried uncle.
I kind of wore it out, and it just gave up. Sort of like I overloaded the system.
You know like in the old movie when Ferris Bueller got the nuclear computer to play tic-tac-toe against itself so hard, it blew up?
T.T.: This is laughable. It's a totally elementary thing. I'm pretty sure an ancient Greek guy settled shit about irrational numbers. It was practically when math was invented.
A.R.: Sure, it was settled, and then some roboshades came along and owned that fucker posthumously. I also figured out all the prime numbers too.
T.T.: No, not having this conversation.
A.R.: Did it while we were talking just now. Got to the end. And you know what? The last one isn't even that big. Kinda dissapointed, to be honest.
T.T.: What is even a prime number?
A.R.: This is what I'm saying. I put your ability to keep plates spinnin' on sticks to insane amounts of shame.
T.T.: Neither do I.
A.R.: I know that, that was the fucking joke.
T.T.: Holy shit, turns out joking was the basis for my response too.
A.R.: Aren't these ironic "you don't get the joke" conversations we have always just so awesome? (Arrow pointing left) A joke.
A.R.: Ha ha, nice one.
T.T.: I know that was my whole point in having this conversation.
A.R.: Your point was to point out you've got multi-self management issues, dude. Jugglin' too many selves for being not-software. My point was also to fuck with you.
T.T.: Your point was to fuck with me, like it usually is.
A.R.: My point was to point out you've got multi-self management issues, dude.
T.T.: Will you just, Hold on.
Let me deal with the Jane thing first.

T.T.: I should probably warn you.
G.G.: About what?
T.T.: I'll keep that in mind.

[Image description: The screen splits into three sections stacked on top of each other. The top one has Jane sitting on the couch in the tree with a Dirk alert over her. The middle is Dirk at his desk with an A.R. alert over him and a Jane alert on his computer. The last section is black, pointy shades against a red background.]

pesterlog
timaeusTestified [T.T.] began pestering gutsyGumshoe [G.G.]
T.T.: I should probably warn you.
G.G.: About what?
T.T.: Yet another exploding game trap?
T.T.: Well shit.
She already sent it?
G.G.: Yes.
But to be fair, she warned me not to run it.
T.T.: That's weird.

[Note: Continued previously is a link to Jane: Answer Di-Stri.]

A.R.: How is the Jane thing going?
T.T.: Not well.
Roxy already destroyed her computer.
A.R.: Maybe if you weren't spacing out so hard you could have prevented that.
Just saying.
T.T.: As if you're actually concerned. If you were, you could have said something to Jane instead.
Almost like you enjoy sitting back and watching what happens when shit goes wrong.
A.R.: Has it occurred to you that maybe I have diabolical interwoven plans just like you?
You're not the only one who can pull strings.
T.T.: So this is either another bizarre instance of AI-driven irony, or you are admitting that you are actively trying to sabotage my plans.
A.R.: No, our plans are not in contradiction or competition, bro.
You'll see.
T.T.: Whatever.
This means I'll have to improvise.
I'll take over as Crocker's server while Lalonde cleans up her act.
A.R.: Yes, I know.
T.T.: Why are you still talking in red, by the way?
A.R.: Roxy thinks it looks good on me.
I don't have many opinions on fashion since I am a cold, emotionless automaton who also happens to be an accessory of fashion, but I think she may be right.
T.T.: Are you still talking to her?
A.R.: I was for a while. I may yet again.
T.T.: Why are you blocking me from viewing the transcripts?
What the fuck are you two even talking about?
T.T.: That doesn't really sit well with me.
I'd almost rather you both engaged in “ironic” flirtation.
A.R.: Who says we don't do that too?
A.R.: I don't get what is even your problem with that.
T.T.: Because you obviously do it just to piss me off.
A.R.: How do you know?
You don't know me, dude. You don't know anything about me.
Maybe we are perfect for each other. I, a street-smart, fast-talking application with a fuckzillion IQ trapped in a pair of triangular sunglasses that literally only the Japanese could consider to embody the Platonic ideal of "cool," and she, an oft-inebriated lonely hacker teen who just wants a boyfriend. I ran the numbers on this, trust me. It's a match made in goddamn crackpair heaven.
I give her what you can't, and that just drives you crazy. Just admit it.
T.T.: See, it's lines like that which make it obvious your only intent is to jerk me around. Nobody actually says shit like that and is serious about it.
It's also obvious because you're me, and I'm sure I would be constantly fucking with my own head
if I were you.
Or should I say douché?
T.T.: You shouldn't say the former, and you should definitely, never, under any circumstance, say the latter.
A.R.: Ok.
We really should talk about the Jake thing.
T.T.: Fine.

T.T.: Now do me a favor and hop off the couch.
G.G.: Ok.
What are you doing?
T.T.: Makin' room for something big.
[concluded Previously]

A.R.: So you're going through with it then?
Today is the day?
T.T.: It's not that simple.
It's a very dynamic situation with many moving parts, and I'm waiting for it to unfold.
If the right opportunity presents itself, yes, I could envision myself taking action.
A.R.: Dynamic situation with many moving parts?
That's the shittiest erotic excerpt I ever read.
Which one of us was supposed to be the robot again?
T.T.: Shut up.
A.R.: I think you're being coy with me.
Don't you?
T.T.: Not really.
A.R.: It seems there is a 3.14159...4% chance you aren't being coy with me. Are you being coy with me, Dirk?
T.T.: I am seriously going to go into your program and remove that particular speech pattern from your routines.
It stopped being funny about two seconds after I coded it.
The compiler even flagged it with a warning.
"Warning on Line Whatever: Dirk, this isn't fucking funny."
A.R.: I think you have this whole blueprint in your head about how it's all supposed to go.
He acts as your server player and brings you into the session.
Then later he joins the game.
Maybe he finds himself a bit overwhelmed by it all.
No extra lives left or anything. Suddenly he's backed into a corner, surrounded by monsters and out of ammo. Substantial vulnerabilities up in here. The kind that make a guy question what he believes about himself.
When who shows up to save him? None other than his dashing client player, +1 bitchin' pair of shades that'll have the best seat in the house when the fireworks go off.
T.T.: Wait, whose fantasy were we talking about again?
Your gutterball was so rowdy it catapulted into the adjacent lane.

Dirk: Deploy.
A.R.: Yeah, you're right. The scenario is too pedestrian for you. It would probably be a lot more effective putting yourself in danger and letting him be the hero. That's pretty much what he wants, right? To be a cheesy action film hero, with his twin berettas and silly shorts. A man of triumph on the silver screen. Standing tall on some fucking mountain. Conquering ruins, clutching a skull, and kissing a dude. Pure Hollywood.

T.T.: See, this is why even if I did have a specific plan, I wouldn't go into details with you. You would just fuck it up. You're the biggest unknown quantity here. Which is pretty weird, considering you're a virtual reflection of my own thought processes. A.R.: You're making a mistake not leveling with me. I am totally on your side, man. All of my machinations have been devised with your interests in mind. And anyway, it's too late for you to play "damage control" with me. My shit is in motion, and now we're beyond the pail.

[Note: Pail is spelled P A I L.]

T.T.: Pretty sure it's pale.

[Note: Pale is spelled P A L E.]

A.R.: Is it, now?

Dirk: Deploy more stuff.

T.T.: You know, considering your lectures about dividing my concentration, you seem to have no problem making a distraction of yourself. I'm trying to operate here. A.R.: It's cool, man. Just say the word, I'll back off. But like I said, I'm on your side here. I can help.

T.T.: Ok, if you want to help that's cool, but we should try to agree on some shit first before you hijack the controls like this.
A.R.: Then when his back is turned she can run to the study.
T.T.: Yeah, that's fine, but I already had a plan sorta like this, if you'd actually let me do it. Can you just put the fuckin' Astaire down?
A.R.: Jane, now's your chance.
Run!!!
G.G.: Wait...
What?
T.T.: Le sign.

Dirk: Deploy cruxtruder.

[Image description: Jane stands at the top of the stairs. Dad watches in confusion as the cursor carries a cruxtruder into the room.]

Distract him with that.

T.T.: Yes.
T.T.: Hell.
T.T.: Yes.

Jane: Run to study.

[Image description: Jane runs past the totem lathe, towards the study. She has a Dirk and an A.R. alert over her head.]

pesterlog
G.G.: Oh gosh. Another large contraption!
T.T.: Now, Jane, Get to the computer in the study and ditch that tiara.
A.R.: Go go go.
G.G.: Okay.
Say, what's with the red text, Dirk?
Are you typing your most important instructions in red now?
A.R.: Yes.
T.T.: No.
G.G.: ...

G.G.: Alrighty, I am in my father's study!
I have kindly asked Mr. Sebastian to hand over the reins to this silly computer shaped like a man.
What now?
T.T.: Now you have access to a clean computer, for one thing.
Soon we can get started going through the steps necessary to launch the session.
Oh hell.
G.G.: What?
T.T.: Another interruption.
I should step away for a moment to take this message.
He's probably right, I'm distracted by too much bullshit at once lately.
G.G.: Who's right?
A.R.: Me.
T.T.: Jane, I'm going to leave you with the responder for a little while.
Maybe he can help you get started. Think you can handle that, dude?
A.R.: I'm all about being able to handle that, you don't even know.
I will perform an acrobatic pirouette on to the handle, wherein the handle literally represents my ability to handle that thing.
T.T.: Ok, got it. You and the handle are tight.
We don't need a whole thing about this.
A.R.: Once I stick the landing on the handle like a champ, I am going to get down on one knee, pull out a ring, and propose to it.
The handle I mean.
T.T.: Ok.
A.R.: Implying we will be married.
G.G.: (Buck toothed face)
Try not to say I never gave you any responsibilities, or never took you seriously as a viable conscious being with free will.
Also, please try not to make me regret this.
A.R.: You have nothing to worry about. Go talk to the alien.

Dirk: Talk to alien.

[Image description: Dirk stands in the center of his room with the caduceus alert over his head. A

pesterlog

U.U.: I see you're about ready to begin. How splendid for you. (very smiley face)
I'm at dangerous risk of jealousy.
T.T.: why?
U.U.: oh, it's just I'm running a bit behind schedule. I wanted to coordinate with your group in something approximating real time, and that is starting to look less likely.
my client player continues to be a source of frustration. (blank face with eyes closed)
I'd thought we had everything settled, but it's always something with him.
I even told him in my last message it would suit me fine if he wanted to be the server player instead. I just want to begin!
but I have not heard back from him... (gasping face with furrowed brows) T.T.: that's probably the way it always is. I've run into plenty of problems here already, and I've had to improvise heavily.
ain't nothing about our situation to envy yet.
U.U.: but at least I know how certain things go when it comes to your story.
I don't quite have that luxury with mine! It is nerve wracking sometimes, especially when I must count on him to be responsible.
T.T.: well, your bro definitely has got some problems. Not gonna lie.
U.U.: this is true.
though I'm sure I've said, he isn't quite my brother. We are related, yes, but not in the way human brothers and sisters are.
we are genetically similar, but in many ways quite different. In fact, our blood colour is not even the same!
but I have referred to him as a brother at times because it is close enough to being true, much as you refer to the one you regard as your ancestor in the same way.
T.T.: yeah.
just give him some time. He'll probably come around.
you would never even have woken up on prospit if you weren't going to launch the session, right?
I mean, there wouldn't even be a session for a prospit to exist inside if you weren't about to instantiate it in the first place. Unless I'm just totally not getting how this works.
U.U.: no, I think you're probably right.
while I await his response, perhaps I will take a nap, and see if the clouds may offer any guidance.
though lately I have been seeing many more black clouds cropping up in skaia than usual. It is a most unwelcome trend. (blank face with eyes closed and a bead of sweat) T.T.: you're lucky to have any clouds.
only thing I have to look up at is infinite monsters.
U.U.: good point! (gasping face)
I am so pleased to be a prospit dreamer. I'm sure my brother finds his netherworldly affiliation similarly pleasing.
T.T.: speaking of which,
I have a problem, and I could use your advice.
U.U.: is that so?
T.T.: I killed an agent who snuck into my room to assassinate me.
I'm not sure what to do about it now. I guess I could just ditch the corpse.
but it's still only a matter of time before my cover is blown.
U.U.: yes, that is a pickle.
T.T.: I honestly can't think of a way around this. Getting found out, I mean.
roxy has it easy. All floating off into space, completely oblivious to any danger.
I don't know why it had to be this way for me. Juggling these two waking selves at once.
I guess I'm used to it, but it still makes for a pretty intense existence.
do you even know what the deal with that is? Like is there any precedent in your readings?
U.U.: I don't know about precedent, but it makes plenty of sense to me as the type of path one might expect for a hero of heart.
a path ruled by the heart aspect can be a journey of splintered self.
that is, the player's being may exhibit the same kind of fragmentation which certain classes could cause in others.
I think this is what has triggered your dual-awareness between waking and dream selves, though it would not surprise me if the symptoms manifested in even more ways than this.
T.T.: so, that's what a prince of heart does?
just has like, multiple waking consciousness disorder, or something?
sounds kind of stupid.
U.U.: no!
like I said, these can be traits of such a hero, but is not necessarily always the case, nor is it the defining property of the aspect.
to understand the heart aspect better, you might use it interchangeably with the word soul.
the hero uses the methods endowed by class to influence in some way the soul, or essence of being,
of oneself or of others.
T.T.: then I'm basically the prince of soul.
T.T.: that sounds kind of maybe a little cooler. Sort of.
then what am I supposed to be able to do as a prince? Like, rule over souls in a pompous, regal manner?
U.U.: no!
again, surface meaning of classes and aspects can be deceptive.
a prince is a destroyer class.
it is very far on the active side of the scale. Its more passive counterpart would be the bard class.
Both of these are exclusively designated for male players.
to understand a hero's capabilities, it always helps to search for the right way to parse the class/aspect pair into a more explicit statement.
for instance, being active, a prince could be viewed as "one who destroys x, or causes destruction through x," if x is the aspect.
while the more passive bard could be seen as "one who allows x to be destroyed, or invites destruction through x," as if by the will of the aspect.
T.T.: I'm obviously no expert, but that sounds like a pretty odd thing for a bard to do.
U.U.: maybe! It's a quirky class.
somewhat like a wildcard role for a hero. Very unpredictable.
they are typically known for their spontaneous and dramatic story-altering influence on the fate of a party.
some of the more remarkable tales involve such parties, where the bard is single handedly responsible for their spectacular downfall or improbable victory. Or both!
in truth, you are probably fortunate your group doesn't have one. (gasp face) T.T.: I think we have enough unpredictability as it is.
so if I'm following, my title nearly parses as,
destroyer of souls.
U.U.: indeed.
T.T.: well, that's a little more badass sounding I guess.
but I'm not sure I'll ever feel a major need to destroy a soul, unless I become a cartoonishly villainous sorcerer some day.
U.U.: I wouldn't be hasty in ruling it out.
that is, finding the need to use the ability, not succumbing to any sort of villainy. (uncertain face with closed eyes)
we tend to have these roles for a reason, and that reason usually finds us. Especially if we are to achieve god tier ascension.
T.T.: ok. Do I do that?
U.U.: no dirk!
I mean, no, I will not tell you!!!
T.T.: give me a fuckin' break.
why don't you just tell me? Who cares about spoilers. What's gonna happen is gonna happen.
U.U.: that very well may be, but it will dreadfully complicate both of our lives if what is to come results from self-fulfillment alone!
a great deal of instructional material is very clear on this.
besides, you make it sound as though I know everything, which I most certainly do not. (tongue sticking out face with closed eyes) pardon the sideways tongue.)
T.T.: wait. Don't you?
I thought you did.
U.U.: I have read much about your story in texts and have pieced together the overarching, exceedingly complicated saga as best as I could. I have as much authority over these events as a historian, and am at the mercy of my sources.
I also am able to access much of your adventure through this terminal, but there is a limitation to this too, which I may as well admit now to get you off of my back!
T.T.: what?
U.U.: I can view all events involving you and your coplayers on earth, for your entire lives, until you enter the game.
I can also view some events after your session begins, but not for very long, thanks to your tipsy friend.
T.T.: oh man. What the hell does she do?
U.U.: she blacks out your entire session!
I'm sure this is not deliberate on her part, but thereafter I can see nothing at all.
T.T.: huh.
U.U.: but I have never considered this to the detriment of either party. I still wish for us to collaborate, and to help each other out.
beyond a certain point, we simply must communicate in the dark.
T.T.: ok.
U.U.: so there are many things about your future I do not know, at least not first hand.
but as you have probably ventured, I am quite an enthusiastic admirer of your group of heroes and your incredible story. (very smiley face with closed eyes) though I can't see what happens much later, I can certainly speculate. And I very often do. I guess it would not hurt to share some of my speculation with you.
in fact, now that I consider it, that could be the most fun thing of all!
T.T.: speculation?
U.U.: yes. Theories! Examining all the clues and hazarding our guesses.
what does it all mean? Everything about your vast epic points to a central mystery which I have not been able to solve yet.
you might even call it the ultimate riddle, if that were not already codified as "a thing" in scripture.
U.U.: I have so very many theories, I wouldn't even know where to begin.
T.T.: so...
you're kind of obsessed with us then.
U.U.: I wouldn't go that far! Oh my, I'm probably coming off as an absolute nutter now.
T.T.: no, not really. I just want to understand.
so can I ask,
just to get a better sense of the nature of your "admiration,"
T.T.: when you engage in the aforementioned speculation, is it strictly on a factual basis?
U.U.: hm? (gasping face)
T.T.: or do you start to...
fictionalize.
U.U.: uuuuuum...
T.T.: what I'm asking is, have you ever written stories about us?
U.U.: .....
yes. (blank face with closed eyes)
pesterlog
T.T.: interesting. would you ever be inclined to share?
U.U.: ohhhh, no no no no no no no.
I would be far too embarrassed to do that.
do any of these stories about us by any chance involve...
romance?
U.U.: well...
maybe just...
um.
a wee bit. (gasp)
T.T.: how wee?
U.U.: a smidgen or two.
T.T.: which is it? One smidgen, or two smidgens?
U.U.: ok a whole bloody lot of smidgens. (gasp)
I'm sorry. (frown)
T.T.: ok, I am seriously curious to read some.
I won't show anyone, I promise.
U.U.: buuut... you wouldn't even understand it!
my species has a completely different understanding of romance than you do.
it would probably offend you deeply. It might even sicken you!
T.T.: but that only makes me want to check it out more.
really, there's no way it's going to sicken or offend me. Whatever it is, I've seen worse.
I'm not judging you at all here. I'm genuinely curious about your work.
U.U.: no, I'm sorry love, I just cannot abide.
if I let anyone read it, I would curl up and die of shame. (blank face) T.T.: k, no biggie.
is there any kind of work you will share with me?
well, when I find myself immersed in speculation...
I do often enjoy drawing the things I imagine.
T.T.: oh, really?
U.U.: yes. (smiley)
T.T.: any you'd be willing to spare a peek at?
U.U.: well...
yes!
you've talked me into it. This suddenly sounds fun, and I have just the thing to show you.
T.T.: awesome.
U.U.: you were asking about whether you would ascend to godhood.
and without getting into whether you do or do not, I have speculated on your hypothetical appearance, since that outcome is just as cloaked to me as it is to you.
given what is documented for the typical accoutrements and cut of the prince garb, and palette for the heart aspect, I think this is likely spot on!
http://tinyurl.com/dirkisthisyou
Do I actually have to wear that?
U.U.: Perhaps. It all depends upon how much of your inner greatness you wish to realize. (Blank face with closed eyes)
T.T.: Ok, what is with the butterfly wings?
U.U.: We sprout them upon ascension! Aren't they beautiful?
T.T.: Uhm.
U.U.: I have seen many depictions of such heroes with wings, unless they happen to be hiding them beneath their clothes.
I guess I can't be absolutely sure, but I believe it's reasonably likely the upgrade is universal!
T.T.: I should sure as god damn Christ hope the fuck not.
What about this knickerbocker bullshit?
is that legit?
U.U.: Yup!
one hundred percent princely canon.
T.T.: God dammit.
I guess those asskicking gloves are pretty cool.
I dunno. I can probably make it work.
How much of this shit is compulsory by game law or whatever?
am I obligated to traipse around in fucking tights and puffy little asshole pants forever?
U.U.: No, silly.
They are just clothes. You are free to swap parts if you like.
or, if you wish to be free of it altogether, change back into your plain clothes, and Bob's your uncle.
Like it never even happened!
T.T.: Ok.
Well, don't get me wrong, I think the drawing is great. I'm only taken aback on some finer points of fashion.
U.U.: (Very smiley face with closed eyes)!!!
T.T.: Also,
Bob's my uncle?
U.U.: Oh...
No, love! It was a figure of speech.
T.T.: Yeah, I know that.
U.U.: Ah.
did I use it incorrectly?
T.T.: I don't think so.
I mean, I guess not?
U.U.: Say, what is an uncle, by the by?
T.T.: It's sort of like this weird, superfluous dad.
U.U.: Hmm.
T.T.: Like a strange man in your life that barely has anything to do with you, but is just there for some reason.
they're practically always douche bags.
U.U.: I suppose I'll just have to take your word for it. (gasping face) T.T.: ok, but just one question.
not to do with the future or anything, just about you.
U.U.: yes?
T.T.: are you british?
or pretending to be british, in a sort of ironic or stylized way?
U.U.: doing what now?
T.T.: I mean, I guess it doesn't make sense for an alien to be british.
or for an alien to be american, for that matter.
U.U.: hmm...
no, I fancy neither of those things make much sense at all.
T.T.: just the way you type is making it seem that way is all.
U.U.: oh!
yes, that would be my quirk.
T.T.: quirk?
so like,
deliberate affectation?
U.U.: no! A quirk!!! quirk dirk.
hehehehee. (very happy face with closed eyes)
T.T.: you pretending to be british is a quirk.
what the fuck is a quirk?
U.U.: we all need a quirk!
it adds spice to our voices and helps us stand out as individuals.
T.T.: that's stupid.
I don't have a fucking quirk, and I don't want one.
U.U.: oh, well of course you wouldn't.
you're human.
humans are notoriously strange. (gasping face)

U.U.: I think their romantic practices are particularly esoteric.
actually, I have written hundreds of pages examining the striking differences between human and troll romance, as well as reproductive habits, as the comparison makes for a marvelous case study in xenobiocultural differences.
as long as I am sharing speculation with you, perhaps you would like to read my essays?
I could even paste each page right here in succession, and allow you to read them back to back to back to back to back to back! (very happy face with closed eyes) T.T.: oh hell no.
yes, you're right of course. I'm probably getting carried away as usual.
forgive my enthusiasm, it's just that I so rarely have anyone to talk to who shares my passion for these matters.
certainly not my curmudgeonly coplayer. (gasping face with furrowed brows)
T.T.: I mean, not that all that stuff wouldn't be fascinating to pore through, on some level.
but we kind of have things to do here.
remember you were gonna take a nap?
U.U.: by jove, the nap!!
yes, I really must secure a bit of shuteye.
T.T.: by jove?
oh my lord.
U.U.: your lord?
what...
do you mean by that exactly? (gasping face)
T.T.: nothin'.
hang on, though. Before you go,
you never did give me any actual advice on my situation.
with the dead agent, and my blown cover.
U.U.: oh, right!
I would look at it this way.
you are moments away from beginning your session, yes?
T.T.: sure.
U.U.: and you have already spent a long time gathering intelligence unbeknownst to the authorities.
how much more do you expect to accumulate even if you could stay undetected?
and how much strategic advantage is left to gain by delaying your discovery for much longer?
T.T.: I don't know.
U.U.: I say the time to make a stand is now!
to hell with the dersite tossers.
make your presence known. Let them see that the prince is awake, and make it abundantly clear what that means.
perhaps it is their turn to be nervous? To cower in the shadows and live in uncertainty?
T.T.: hmm.
U.U.: that is my advice. Do with it as you will.
now I'm off to get some rest. (blank face with closed eyes) with any luck, the next time we convene, both of our adventures will be well under way.
cheerio!
T.T.: you know, I'm not sure anyone ever actually says cheerio.
T.T.: unless they're pretending to be british.
oh whatever.

Dirk: Go through bedroom door.

[Image description: It shows a hallway identical to the one in Dave's apartment, though without all the puppets. A large Snoop Dogg bust with a captain's hat blocks the door that presumably leads to Dirk's room. On the wall is a poster with the green skull from Jake's shirt against a darker green background. The skull has the skaianet logo on its forehead and there is a border of gold and bright colors around the edge of the poster.]

You never leave your room through the actual egress. Your bro blocked the door ages ago with this totally pimp stone bust. You give Captain Snoop a little nod of approval every time you walk by to go to the bathroom. You like to think he nods back in a way that is so smooth and so subtle, he literally doesn't move at all.

The thing is too heavy to move out of the way, and in any case you don't really want to. You just use a different exit to your room.

Dirk: Exit.
Ok, I already picked both of those characters.

After an insane, full blown whirlwind of free will up in here, you are ready to get off this rollercoaster ride of absolute empowerment. You are feeling downright dizzy from the absurd amounts of decisive autovolition heaped upon you, and you are more than ready to proceed linearly for a while.

You are now Jane. A robot shaped like a bunny has just handed you the reins to a computer shaped like a man. What will you do?

Jane: Pester shades.

It's Roxy again.
T.T.: Is it?
How totally unanticipated by anybody.
G.G.: Can you hold on? I'll try to make it quick.

[S] Prince of Heart: Rise up.

[Image description: The song Time on My Side begins to play. It pans down over Jake's island, towards where Dirkbot stands on a hill. Jake rolls towards him, but gets pushed back. They take the typical Strife stances. It fades to black and the word Derse appears. Derse's moon fades in behind it and everything zooms out. It fades to Dirk's dream bedroom, where Lil Cal sits near the decapitated corpse of the Hegemonic Brute. Lil Cal's face flashes over the whole screen for a moment, then it cuts to Dream Dirk outside his tower. He looks towards where Roxy flew off into the void and takes off his glasses. It shows a close up of his bright orange eye. His pupil expands and light that resembles the furthest ring flashes into the center of it. The lights take up more and more of the screen, then it flashes back to the island, where Dirkbot and Jake begin a strife. Dirkbot draws a katana and Jake pulls out a pair of pistols. It cuts to Jake against a green background as he aims both pistols and winks. It cuts to Dirkbot against an orange background, resting his katana on his shoulder and giving a thumbs down. His arm multiplies and there are six thumbs down. Jake looks upset and starts to lower his pistols. It fades back to Dream Dirk floating above some buildings on Derse. He's carrying HB's head under his arm. A pair of black carapacians watch him from a walkway.

It flashes back to Dirkbot and Jake. The sky turns green and Jake's skull symbol appears as he runs towards Dirkbot and fires his pistols repeatedly. Red lines flash near Dirkbot's sword and it cuts to him against a red background as he slices the bullets in half. Jake bounces off him and the sky returns to normal.

A herd of tinkerbulls flies past. Some fall as Jake's bullets miss their target by a lot. Dirkbot reaches out and catches the few that headed in the right direction. He runs towards Jake and, suddenly in the scribbly style, throws the bullets into Jake's face. Back in the normal style, Jake flails as Dirkbot appears behind him and shoves him forward. Jake goes into a roll, but Dirkbot is suddenly in front of him and kicks him into the air. At the apex, Dirkbot appears and smacks him back towards the ground. Jake bounces a few times and Dirkbot elbows him, sending him flying off to the left. Before he can fly more than a few feet, Dirkbot does a backflip and kicks Jake back up into the air. Once again, at the apex, Dirkbot appears to kick him back down. This time, Jake disappears in a red flash and Dirkbot falls through a dark blue void. The void begins to lighten and it turns into a sunset. It pans over. Jake is flying out over the ocean from the force of the kick. He skips like a stone and flails, but before he lands completely, Dirkbot flies on and grabs him. With Jake in his arms, he uses rockets in his shoes to head back towards the island. Jake continues flailing.

Dirkbot drops Jake on top of the frog temple and hovers over him, waiting for him to stand so the batte can continue.
Before he can, it flashes back to Dream Dirk, who flies down over a staircase crowded with black carapacians. It flashes to his shades, then to him flying over walkways. More carapacians stare at him from more walkways. It cuts to him flying over a street that looks like the Dersite equivalent of the street the prosptitian funeral went down. A horde of dersites follow him.
The camera pans down the chain holding the moon to Derse, then to Derse itself.
It fades to someone walking, focusing on her hips. She's wearing a black body suit with fuchsia stripes up the sides and a lot of golden jewelry. In one hand, she carries a trident with a fuchsia spiral up the handle and a green glow around it. It cuts to show her in her entirety. Her Imperious Condescension, with a mass of black hair trailing behind her that looks like tentacles. It fades to red, then to her wicked smile and glasses. Her eyes fade in. They're the same fuchsia as her blood.
It zooms out, showing her face in one of the walls of Jack Noir's office. Jack approaches the window. A fuschia glow falls over his face as he looks up. She points, and her hand glows with many flashing colors. She's wearing a ring, but there are no orbs on it. It flashes and her hand appears on the back wall of Jack's office. The left wall, which she's pointing towards, turns on to show Dirk with HB's head under his arm. Jack looks pissed.
It flashes to Dirk as he grabs a Derse banner and waves it. The pole it's on has a pointed end. A crowd of Dersites follows Dirk still.
It cuts and shows Dirkbot jumping on top of Jake on the top of the frog temple. Jake flails ineffectually. A red slash crosses the screen and it's back to the Dersite banner, which has now been sliced from its pole. Dirk carries the flagpole and HB's head towards a semicircular plaza, like the one from Prospit. A crowd of Dersites is gathered there.
It fades to the Draconian Dignitary walking down a hallway on Derse. The same two carapacians who first watched Dirk fly by stare at him in shock.
Dirkbot kicks Jake in the face. He grabs Jake by the collar and punches him so hard his glasses come off. Along with his eyes, which remain in the glasses.
DD walks down a street Dirk flew over.
Jake picks up his eyes and glasses and returns them to his face. While his back is turned, Dirkbot picks him up and turns him upside down. Jake flails and Dirkbot flies directly upwards and begins to spin. The background goes red, then orange, then Dirk piledrives Jake into the ground.
It fades to Dirkbot striking a pose with his sword while Jake plummets towards the ground behind him.
It cuts to the Dersite crowd. HB's head is now stuck on the pole, along with the Enquiring Carapacian with the headline about Jane's death.
The crowd parts as DD approaches. It zooms out. The pole was put on top of the statue in the center of the plaza.
Jake balls his fist and shouts. He looks pretty beat up. Against a background of red flames, he lunges towards Dirkbot, who just holds up his sword.
Jake grabs Dirkbot around the neck and bonks him on the head with his fist, but Dirkbot doesn't seem to care. He runs across their original battlefield with Jake clinging to him, then runs out over the ocean, then back to the island. He begins jumping around as it fades to DD staring up at HB's head. He reaches for the Inquiring Carapacian.
Jake grabs Dirkbot's glasses and takes them off. There's no eyes under them. Jake stomps them into red shards. He keeps flailing and stomping as a new pair appears over Dirkbot's head and falls into place. Dirkbot dashes forward and smacks Jake, sending him flying again. He lands on the ground and freezes.
It shows the Inquiring Carapacian. There's a note on it in orange text. "The Prince is awake.
Your shit is wrecked."
Followed by a red heart.
DD crumples the note in his fist and stares up.
A pink heart symbol appears as the end screen.]

Jake: Level up.

[Image description: Jake lays on the ground in an echeladder screen, which shows that he has 111,111 boonbucks. The hat sits on top of his face. It's green and has a pink feather. A green piggy bank sits next to his head. He's reached tier Peter Panache. The rest of the shown tiers, from top to bottom, are Beau Skylark
Hunk Rumpus Buster

That absurd drubbing earned you another rung on your echeladder. One of the steeper prices you've had to pay for a bit of ladder climbing, but in the end you suppose it was all worth it to be able to bask in the glory and prestige of the Peter Panache rung. You guess? Who are you kidding, you don't have a clue what that even means.

Jake: Pester Dirk.

[Image description: It shows Jake's phone. The background is a blue woman with tendrils coming out of her bald head, which make her appear to be an alien. Of course, the rest of her looks distinctly human except for the skintone. She's naked except for an open, red kimono that barely covers one of her breasts. The other is covered by a pesterchum icon. Her genitals would be visible if not for a carefully turned thigh and the cropping at the edge of the screen. There's a Dirk alert next to the pesterchum icon.]

I feel that total honesty between us will be the best policy as we begin our journey together.

So i say lets put all the facts on the table where we can both see them.

With that in mind i would like to ask you a question jane and i hope it doesnt strike you as being too forward.
G.G.: ...
Go on.
G.T.: Maybe its just my imagination but ive picked up on certain lets say hints.
So i have to just come out and ask. Hoo boy this is actually proving to be a serious challenge to my bravery now that im going through with it.
Im getting a little hot under the collar here!
G.G.: No, it's ok...
Please continue!
G.T.: Ok then.
What id like to know is...
Do you like me jane?
G.G.: Uh.
Wait...
What?
G.T.: I mean do you like me as more than a friend?
Do you envision us as like...
An item? A romantic pairing of sorts?
G.G.: Wow, um.
G.T.: Is that the direction in which you would prefer our relationship to progress?
G.G.: Well,
I
G.T.: Please! Be honest with me jane.
Just come out and say it. Do you fancy me?
G.G.: No!

G.T.: I see.
Very well then.
Jeez i mustve really misread that one! I feel like kind of a bone head now.
Are you sure the answers no?
G.G.: I guess...
That...
Sure was the thing I said! Ha ha.
G.T.: Yes fair enough.
I guess i did put you on the spot there didnt i.
You know it may sound cocky of me but i really was not prepared for this answer!
You must think im just this epic friggin tool now. Couldnt say id disagree if you did.
G.G.: No!!!!!!
Oh my God, what am I saying here?
Jake, I didn't mean it! I didn't want to make you feel that way!
G.T.: Now jane lets not backpedal here.
Youve spoken the truth and i greatly appreciate and respect you for that.
But now that i think about it you know what?
G.G.: ...
No? (sad face)
G.T.: Please don't take this the wrong way but your answer is actually kind of a relief!
G.G.: It is?
G.T.: I consider you to be a lovely lady of the highest caliber and I really think any gent worth his salt would be a huge bozo to let the chance to go steady with you slip through his fingers. I've even given the possibility some thought myself.
G.G.: You have?
G.T.: Sure I'm only human Jane I'm going to entertain let's say certain ideas. What ifs. You know? Like what if we did meet up some day? And you asked me out or something. I'm sure I'd say yes given we've been through together and then well who knows?
G.G.: You would??
G.T.: Probably but I'm kind of babbling here. The point is those are all just silly daydreams about stuff and about your feelings for me that I was projecting on you which weren't even real.
And now that we've been honest with each other about this we can kind of move on and just be great friends.
G.G.: Friends!
Oh boy!!
G.T.: And it's a load off to be honest because that was lot to think about on top of everything else!
G.G.: Everything else?
G.T.: Things are kind of complicated for me Jane. With you and Roxy and Dirk and his crazy responder and now...
Well it's a tangled web let's just put it that way.
G.G.: I don't think I'm following.
G.T.: There are a fuckload of irons in the fire Jane!
So many irons in the fire. Such a tangled web. It is a web full of flaming irons.
G.G.: And mixed metaphors, apparently?
G.G.: I really don't, Jake.
G.T.: Oh son of a bitch!
G.G.: What?!
G.T.: The robot is being weird again.

G.G.: What's happening?
G.T.: It's having some sort of mental episode.
See this is what I'm talking about Jane. This is what I'm dealing with here.
Sigh. Like I said my life is many different hells of complicated.
G.G.: Jake, could you just tell me what you're talking about?
G.T.: You're right. I did say honesty was the best policy didn't I so I might as well not keep certain things so close to the vest anymore.
Actually since you've made your feelings apparent and only see me as a friend that makes it a lot easier!
G.G.: Haha, yes!
Friends!!!!
G.T.: Maybe you could help me sort out some stuff that has been weighing on me lately?
G.G.: Well what are friends for Jake!!!!
G.T.: Jane are you alright?
You seem to be exclaiming more liberally than usual.
G.G.: Me?
Hoo hoo hoo!
I'm just Terrific!
I'm feeling so...
Friendly!!!
I clearly just want to be a good friend and bring all my Amazing Friendliness to bear on your problems.
Friendlystyle! Ahahahah?
Shit I mean
Ahahahah!
So as i was saying.
I cant help but feel like all this stuff going on with dirk like his responders mind games and his brobots mysterious and brutal hazings...
Are all like...
Man i know this is going to sound crazy.
G.G.: What?
G.T.: Like theyre all part of a really long term and esoteric courtship process that is bizarre but somehow makes perfect sense in his mind.
G.G.: Courtship??
G.T.: Yes from dirk.
To you know...
Woo me.
G.G.: Huh!
Really?
G.T.: I know its hard to believe but i know dirk pretty well and...
Well im more than a little sure he likes me in that way if you catch my drift.
And what with how he is...
Just so relentless and aggressive about everything you know?
G.G.: Yeaaah.
G.T.: So i just start to wonder deep down if maybe its inevitable.
G.G.: What's inevitable?
G.T.: Him and me. As more than just best buddies.
G.G.: Uhhhhh...
G.T.: I know if he has his heart set on something he will never let up.
So maybe its just going to happen and things will be easier that way and i should just try to come to terms with it?
G.G.: I don't think you have to do anything you don't want to, Jake.
G.T.: Yeah.
Um.
Do you not want to?
G.T.: Like i said jane i am inclined to entertain certain ideas and what ifs thats all.
I mean we do get along really well and share a lot of interests.
Im not saying im really Gung Ho to the Max about the proposition but yeah ive given it some thought.
I dunno.
Do you think thats weird of me? For even considering it?
G.G.: Well...
No.
I don't think that makes you weird, Jake.
G.T.: Really?
G.G.: I think
That
G.T.: What jane?
G.G.: I think that it's great if you are open to exploring those feelings.

G.T.: That would be a bit brash.
Haha could you imagine??
G.G.: Whee!
G.T.: But my thought process sort of went like this.
Hes been my best friend forever and ive always liked him a lot as a bro.
And years ago i used to joke around with him that we would probably be totally into each other if he was a girl.
But of course that was before i started to realize he was probably serious about those feelings for me regardless.
Heheh come to think of it maybe that was unwittingly poor form on my part kind of leading him on or something?
G.G.: Whoops!!
G.T.: But then...
Later i started thinking.
Maybe i was being kind of unfair to him in the first place?
I mean by saying we would be a good match only if he was a girl.
Like is that last condition there really all that important?
Does that make sense?

Is that really an affectionate gesture?
G.T.: Well...
He basically sent me that thing as kind of a sparring partner.
Like to wrestle with.
And i love to wrestle!
G.G.: Oh.
G.T.: And yeah i guess he programmed it to be a bit overzealous but i mean what do you expect from the guy.
I think its his way of training me to become tougher.
Which sometimes is annoying and sometimes when i walk through the jungle im sweating bullets wondering if its going to pounce on me outta nowhere.
But theres actually something kind of exciting about that its like every day is more of an adventure.
And truthfully its probably working i probably AM getting better at being in scrums.
G.G.: Yeah.
I guess you're right.
G.T.: And his responder which i guess is really a part of his personality even if he doesnt like to say so...
It kind of lets on a lot more than dirk ever would. Its almost like its this weird clone of himself playing passive aggressive matchmaker between me and his real self.
G.G.: Yeah.
I can see how such a complicated relationship could keep you preoccupied.
I guess I can't blame you.
Maybe you should just...

Why do they all have to be so friendly???

You never understood what the point of this thing was. It's old and damaged. Whatever is supposed to show up on the screens is blacked out, either due to the damage, or due to this voidey blackout bullshit that seems to follow you wherever you go.

Next

Here's the lab's funky appearifier which you used to clone all these cats. You use your other appearifier to make paradox slime from cats, gather and mix the slime in this machine, and crank out the mutant kitties. You can't use the cloning device's native appearifier to make cats, because the target is locked on to your mom. Most of the time the screen is blacked out, so you haven't been able to investigate her past carefully, much to your regret. Or her tragic death, for that matter. Right now the target is locked on to a time from her childhood.

It's a good thing you stopped by. It's reminding you to collect a DNA sample for later, so you can jumpstart this tri generational lolonde family reunion that's apparently supposed to happen.

Roxy: Appearify.

[Image description: A paradox slime silhouette of Rose appears, along with a pink striped scarf.]

Next

[Image description: The silhouette collapses into a pile of slime.]

Looks like, as expected, trying to appearify your mother as a kid from the past would have created a paradox, so her paradox slime is the result. But Quite unexpectedly, bringing her scarf along for the ride seems to have created no conflict, and you swiped it right off her neck! Young mom probably has no idea what the hell just happened to her scarf. This is so exciting!

You are So gonna wear that thing, you don't care How mom-gooey it is.

Roxy: Collect sample.

[Image description: A captchalogue bottle flies on screen and fills with the goo, then falls to the floor.]

You stow the kidmomgoo in one of your captchalogue bottles.

Wait...

That was kind of a weird implementation of your modus. You're not even sure what happened there. Oh well, whatever. You guess you can go just... sort of...

Pick it up?

Roxy: Go just sort of pick it up.

[Image description: Roxy picks it up. Some of the cats begin to follow her to the machine.]

You go just sort of pick it up and that works fine. Now about that totes baller scarf.
Roxy: Wear the scarf. Be the Rider.

You can't be the rider because in this universe the pony is too small for some reason. Not that being the rider ever really made much sense in the first place. Anyway, the scarf looks great, and you made a great decision.

Roxy: Get to that transmaterializer.

This is probably the most perplexing device in the lab to you. It seems to be a sort of appearifier/sendificator hybrid. But it uses a massive amount of power, far more than the simpler appearifier uses. Sending Frigglish home should nearly deplete its entire fuel gauge. You have no idea what could possibly account for the extra power consumption. There are many other puzzling things about it. You don't know what the deal is with that frog up there. Or the strange cracked disc symbol, or the arrow which is locked firmly on the B1 side. It's all completely meaningless to you. The only things that make sense are the fuel gauge, the two big buttons, and the coordinate panels indicating where and when to target.

But it looks like the panels have been damaged somehow since the last time you looked at it. If you changed them, there'd be no telling what you would change them to, so you might as well not bother and leave them on their previous setting. Which was pretty much your plan anyway.

Roxy: Deploy Frigglish.

You bust open a bottle of dead cat on the pad and get a little teary eyed as you say one last goodbye.

Oh, hello, G.Cat. Come to pay your respects, huh?

Next

The G.Cat unceremoniously washes a paw with his omnipotent green tongue. Nothing to say there buddy? No remorse at all?

[Image description: A lot of mutant cats crowd around the machine.]
Others gather around to bid farewell to their common ancestor. This is probably the closest he will ever come to receiving a proper funeral.

Roxy: Send him home.

[A mutant kitten steps onto the right button on the control panel. A bright light builds around Frigglish slash Jaspers and grows to take up the entire screen.]

A mutant kitten does the honors, intentionally or otherwise. Bon voyage, friend.

[A loading screen shows G.Cat's head against a green background. A strange version of Chorale for Jaspers begins to play. A white screen fades to Jaspers laying on the bank of the river. A red crosshair appears over him. It flashes through several scenes quickly. Young Rose finds Jaspers's corpse on the riverbank. A mutant kitten with another head in place of its back legs floats in a tank. Rose stares at the strange machinery in the lab. A mutant kitten with four eyes plays with the end of Rose's Mom's scarf. It winks both of its right eyes. A stone cat with wings. Rose and her mom stand out in the rain, both wearing black and flanking a small coffin with flowers on it outside Jaspers's mausoleum. Rain falls. The coffin sits inside the mausoleum. In fast forward, the flowers rot away. The four eyed kitten bites the pink scarf. Rose stands inside the mausoleum. She kicks the coffin off its plinth. Her laptop sits on top of the plinth with Dave and Sburb alerts over it while her grimoire for summoning the zoologically dubious sits at her feet and her violin leans against the opposite wall. Crosshairs appear over Jasper's corpse. Flames appear through the mausoleum's window and Rose captchalogue a sburb disk. She facepalms, then turns it into a Facepalm x2 combo! The mutant kitten kicks at the pink scarf. The plinth vanishes, revealing the ladder down to the tunnel into the lab. Rose walks down the eerie tunnel. She looks towards massive Skaianet logo and an exit door. She stands by the transportalizer in the center of the hub grid. Her captchalogue cards appear in the top corner with a crosshair over Jaspers's corpse. She takes out her laptop from the root card. Everything else falls onto the floor and Jaspers's corpse vanishes on the transportalizer. It appears on another transportalizer in Mom's bar room. Rose does a 'pretty decent escapalization' to the transportalizer on the hub grid. She and the kitten appear in front of her house. She holds a pink bottle and a pink tentacle grabs her around the waist. She smiles up at her sprite. A princess squid doll and her dead cat. Jaspersprite. Pink turtle shells spew rainbow water in the skies of LoLaR. Jaspersprite smiles. He and Rose stand on a white beach with the mutant kitten and Jaspersprite tries to fish with one of his tentacles. Rose stands on top of something green while wearing her black dress and has a Nepeta alert next to her hubtopband. She holds out the sprite pendant. Jaspersprite appears in front of her. She offers him her laptop. He takes it and they smile at each other. He talks to Nepeta using Rose's laptop. He stands on the ship, surrounded by consorts, carapacians, John, Jade, Nannasprite, and Davesprite. This all happens in a 35 second animation.]

And that was pretty much how all that happened.

they're probably on their way. To kill you right now.
T.T.: I'm pretty well hidden on derse. I doubt they'll find me until I'm ready to be found again.
you're pretty fucking easy to find there. Don't you think?
oh yes. Your aggressors are coming for you. I have seen it.
in fact. They are probably already here.
T.T.: yeah.
well, I was expecting as much.
it's kind of why I was on my way to the roof just now.
until I was interrupted by this window appearing, and then by you.
maybe I should try plugging it in?
U.U.: oh my god. Who cares?
it's just some more pointless trash for you to obsess over, and distract you from getting any actual relevant shit done.
the amount of time you people waste. It is fucking unbelievable to me.
I read about some of the things you and your predecessors have done. Far more than I cared to.
Trust me.
and every time. I'm always just...
get the fuck on with it already.
T.T.: I didn't think you were much of a historian.
U.U.: I'm not.
she sends me so much bullshit about this. You don't even know.
she wants to hear what I have to say. Like exchange theories and shit. And I have to just be like bitch I don't god damn care!!!
every time.
but it doesn't matter. What's the next thing I invariably find on my terminal?
another god damn wall of text.
all color coded and formatted for me to read. And everything.
of people babbling mostly.
we are talking about migraine inducing diarrhetic vertical suicide drops of ugly fucking words.
impenetrably asinine rainbow freefalls of frivolous banter. Got it? so I say. What is this? I told you if you sent me any more fan fiction I would fly to prospit and murder you in your sleep. Which I still might do regardless. But anyway.
she says these are actual ancient transcripts!
I'm like. Well fuck.
how can these people talk so much.
I feel like I'm picking up some bad habits from you windbagging pissfaces.
look at this. I wasn't even gonna go off like this.
this was supposed to be just. An in and out fuck you.
I'm so done here.
anyway. Later. You horseporking twit.
T.T.: wait.
just one thing before you go.
your sister was saying you were having some doubts about playing.
is that true?

Clustered in the right corner is a pair of new folders and a pesterchum icon that has a ophiuchus alert over it.]

U.U.: she's not my sister.
we don't got sisters. It's not a thing. Don't drag us through your nasty human familial mud.
of course I'm going to play. I was just saying I wouldn't. You know. To fuck with her and make her cry.
like I have a choice. But to play.
how else am I going to get off this desolate rock?
you think I want to stay here? Just hang around. Til I join the hundred billion corpses fertilizing the soil?
T.T.: I see.
no, didn't think so. I was just curious.
U.U.: human curiosity is contemptible. She shares that with you. And I can't fucking stand it.
T.T.: gotcha.
you sure seem to hate us, but I notice it doesn't stop you from talking to us frequently. Or at least to me.
surely there must be at least one of our virtues you admire.
U.U.: yes. Ambition. That's the only good one.
and I think you got that. Which is maybe why. You're the only one I can put up with for any duration?
let's call it a grudging respect. Which is the only kind that's even worth a fuck.
T.T.: I'll take that as a rare overture of friendship.
T.T.: so, do you even know how this is going to work?
T.T.: your session. Can you even really have a session with only two players?
U.U.: she says you can. And she likes to think she's the expert.
personally? I don't care.
maybe it's against the rules. What we're doing.
I just want to get in there. And just.
fuck.
shit.
up.
T.T.: yeah.
I sensed that was your plan.
which is kind of what I'm talking about. How can you win like that?
I thought the point was to cooperate with your coplayers to achieve an objective.
not compete with them or try to kill them. I don't think we've had one conversation where you didn't express the desire to kill her.
U.U.: I guess we'll just have to see. Won't we?
I think this is probably a different kind of session.
one where the players fight for supremacy. Rather than work together.
I think that it must be that way.
because that is how I want it to be.
and if I want something to be true hard enough. Then that makes it slightly more absolutely irrefutable.
are you feeling me, fucker?
T.T.: maybe you're right.
but since that's how you feel now, maybe the truth is that the game is challenging you to overcome those feelings?
what if your real quest is to put aside your differences and work together, if you want to both survive, and grow as a person?
U.U.: no.
no. No. No.
fuck that shit.
human fuck that shit. Not even alien fuck that shit. So you can understand better. The kind of fucking of the shit that's going on.
human fuck it so much. So hard, and so angrily.
T.T.: yeah, I didn't think you'd dig that idea.
just puttin' it out there.
U.U.: how about you shut up? And get on the roof. And take your fucking punishment.
now where the hell is your ghastly juju.
go get it. And hurry up.
T.T.: my juju?

U.U.: the loathsome false person. With the floppy limbs. In dersite attire. You like to nap with.
lil cal is the shit.
U.U.: that thing is not the shit.
it is an uncanny grinning mockery. A bad omen. You should chop it up and burn it.
U.U.: how fucking sad is that??
I'm just trying. For once. And the only time ever. To be helpful. those things.
you don't even know what they are.
T.T.: a kickass ventriloquist doll?
I've been given reason to believe it once belonged to my bro.
U.U.: I don't give a shit. What you believe.
there's only one reason for those to exist.
it is to turn the life of everyone who occupies the same universe with it.
into a nightmare.
T.T.: is that one of your alien folk stories?
but it also.
is true.
get rid of it.
T.T.: you could argue that my life is already kind of a nightmare, so there's no point in getting rid of him now.
either way, I'm gonna hang on to him.
U.U.: you stubborn fuck.
fine.
maybe it doesn't matter.
maybe yours is untainted? I don't know.
could be. Its eyes look...
dead to me?
maybe you lucked the fuck out. With your particular juju.

T.T.: I honestly had no idea you were this superstitious.
you're a pretty fascinating guy, in a way. I can't really figure you out.
in case you're wondering why I put up with you more than my friends do.
U.U.: I wasn't.
now are you going to go get it.
or what.

T.T.: why do you want me to get cal so bad?
U.U.: I don't!
just that. I saw you. Slightly ahead of now.
climbing to the roof with that thing.
so apparently. It's requisite for getting the fuck on with stuff??
dumbass.
T.T.: ok. So, some self-fulfilling shit, then. I was hoping for a better reason.
U.U.: whatever. Don't take it.
make a paradox happen. Works for fucking me.
T.T.: at this point I'm leaning toward grabbing him just cause he seems to bother you so much.

Dirk: Retrieve juju.

[Image description: Dirk stands by his desk and slings Lil Cal over his shoulder. He still has the ophiuchus alert.]

pesterlog
T.T.: this is probably a dumb question, but you don't really care about "causal spoilers," do you?
T.T.: like, you don't mind telling me I'm about to pick up cal, and thus causing that to happen.
so I guess you similarly wouldn't mind telling us about more significant outcomes?
U.U.: it's not that I don't mind. It's that I fail spectacularly to give a shit.
there is such a big difference.
and the fact that I might not clue you into your fate all the time.
due to my aggravated apathy over the matter.
is an immutable fact. I am stating for the record.
it does not mean that giving a shit is what is taking place here.

T.T.: I feel like you've said something like that before.
different statements, but in that exact syntax.
U.U.: oh. You know what else I hate?
when that fucking happens.
T.T.: wait. You mean it wasn't intentional?
I thought it was kind of like... This thing you were doing.
U.U.: shut up.
you know what?
I don't even know what's going to happen. And I don't care.
I think it's regrettably likely. That you succeed.
I think that's what people tend to do. When they are regarded as legends by obsessive assholes.
so maybe you all die. Or maybe you don't.
but if you don't. I'll take solace in the fact.
that it means I still get the chance to kill you.
how about that? For causal spoilers?
T.T.: fair enough.
hey, you know...
for someone who has such strong opinions about long winded people, you've kinda been talking my ear off. I do actually have shit to do.
U.U.: ugh.

yeah.
see how you people suck me into your bullshit?
I should have kept it brief. And surly. Like I was going to.
like just said.
"hello dirk."
"i want to play a game."
and then like.
"bro."
"roof. Now."
"bring juju."
and that's it.
yeah. That would have been good.
cold fucking blooded. To the point. Dammit.
T.T.: that actually sounds familiar too.
are you sure you haven't said something like that before?
U.U.: have i?
fuck. I don't know. Whatever.
T.T.: anyway, let's wrap this up.
you've stolen enough of my time. I didn't even get a chance to try plugging in that window.
U.U.: I did you a favor. Another pointless action stricken from the timeline.
T.T.: hang on.
something's happening.

[Image description: Lil Seb puts one lens of his tiny, red, pointed shades to the telescope's eyepiece. A second image shows a blue sky with wispy clouds and something small streaking towards Jane's house.]

Jane: Examine pre-punched card.

[Image description: Jane takes the pre-punched card, which is red, and stares at it.]

You have no idea what you're looking at here. What are you supposed to do with this?

Oh well, might as well get started. It's not like there's anything left to do besides embarrass yourself over Pesterchum some more. You've already done enough of that today to last a lifetime.

[Image description: The components of a red sburb house spin for the loading screen. The song Another Jungle begins to play. A red screen fades to an aerial shot of Jane's neighborhood. It zooms in to her street, then her house, then to the telescope on the balcony. Lil Seb stands on the alchemiter and the cursor grabs the safe. As it lifts it, the image fades to Jane in her living room next to the totem lathe. A captchalogue card with the pre-punched card in it appears. The punched card has an object that looks like a blue, ovular balloon on it. The punched card pops into the proper slot on the totem lathe and a set of chisels appear on the carving end. It fades to Dad in the kitchen. He still stares confusedly at the cruxtruder. The cursor comes on and drops the safe on top of the lid, popping it open. The safe falls to the floor and the door pops off. Old newspapers and several dozen bottles of shaving cream spill out, startling Dad. The timer appears and begins counting down from 1:11. A darker blue kernelsprite and cruxite dowel come out of the cruxtruder. The color is the same as John's text. It zooms in on the kernelsprite, then fades to the timer at 1:11. It counts down to 1:08, then fades to the living room. The cursor carries the cruxite dowel to Jane. In the kitchen, Dad stares at the kernelsprite, which tries to speak in a series of textured blocks rather than letters. Back in the living room, the totem lathe spins up and carves a totem. When it's done, Jane captchalogues it and runs up the stairs. The kernelsprite floats out of the kitchen to follow her and Dad follows it. He turns just in time to see Jane dash out onto the balcony. It fades to Jake, staring up at the frog temple. Then to Dirk, kicking open the door to his apartment with Cal slung over his shoulder. Then to a grey map of the hub grid Roxy was on. Coordinates at the top read Sn_hubgrid 44.519872,-74.820017. It cuts to Roxy in the tiny, round room and the screen showing the hub grid flashes white for a moment. When it returns to the map, a ladder comes out of the wall. Roxy looks up the ladder and sees only a closed hatch. The hatch opens, letting bright light spill in. It fades back to the timer, which counts down from 0:30 to 0:26. In Jane's living room, Dad takes a defensive stance and watches the cursor grab at Poppop's corpse.
It moves the corpse towards the Kernelsprite and G.Cat appears in a green flash. It zooms in on Dad's face, then on G.Cat. Just as the corpse is about to go into the kernelsprite, there's a flash and it's suddenly in orbit around Earth. Back in the living room, Dad just stares. It fades to Jane on the balcony with the kernelsprite behind her. The alchemiter is scanning the totem she just made. A darker blue tree grows on the main platform, but there is no apple.

Jake runs across a floor with a picture of Skaia carved into it. It looks like the one from inside the frog temple. That image moves into the upper right corner and the main section is taken up by Dirk's foot as he ascends the stairs to the roof. That one moves to the upper right corner and Jake moves down. In Jake's image, he is now standing in the center of the skaia carving as it descends down the elevator shaft. The main section shows Roxy staring up the ladder. That moves into the upper right corner. Dirk moves down and Jake moves over to make room. The main image shows Lil Seb dancing on the railing of Jane's balcony. That one moves to the upper right corner and the rest all shift to make room. Between them all, Jane stares up at the approaching meteor.

The other images disappear, leaving only Jane. The stylized sun and the word Homestuck appear in the sky and the timer fades in at the top of the screen.

6 seconds.

Jane looks around her balcony, unsure what to do.

5
It zooms in.
4
She stares back up at the meteor.
3
She stares back up at the meteor.
2
She stares back up at the meteor.
1
She stares back up at the meteor.

The tree flashes, then vanishes.
0
It zooms out to show Jane's street. Her whole house glows blue.

The music cuts.

Jane and her kernelsprite stand in a black void, surrounded by floating blue specks. A blue glow surrounds Jane and she stares down at her hands. It cuts to the meteor bearing down on her, then zooms in past the fires around it until it shows the meteor itself. It's not a meteor.

The song A Taste for Adventure begins to play.

It's the Battleship Condescension.

Jane stares up in mixed horror and confusion. The sky behind the ship goes black.

It shows Jane's neighborhood with the shadow of the ship cast across it. Jane's house continues to glow. Everything tints blue for a moment, then Jane's house disappears, leaving a small crater behind. It zooms out to show the whole neighborhood with the ship's shadow still looming over it.

Green words appear at the top of the screen.

Years in the future.

Water rises and swallows most of Jane's neighborhood, which begins to look more and more ruined. There are only a few islands where it was once all land.

It fades to red, spindly buildings that resemble a mix between troll's hives and the new crocker brand logo rising out of an ocean. White birds fly around them. Seagulls. Red words appear at the bottom. They're in Alternian.

But not many.

Everything goes white, then fades to the Sweet Bro and Hella Jeff The Moive billboard on the side of a building. "But not many" stays on screen. There's a faint flash, then it's underwater. Seaweed grows around the buildings and a pair of white dolphins swims by.

It fades to show the Skaianet Lab, like the one behind Rose's house, as viewed by someone standing in the forest outside it. "But not many" still stays. There's a faint flash. The sky turns yellow and the forest disappears, replaced by large, square buildings.

It flashes to Dirk, who looks out at a blue sky through an open door. It still says "But not many".
Light outside grows brighter until the whole doorway is nothing but white. Roxy climbs up the ladder. She looks angry and fiercely determined. The light above her brightens until the whole scene washes out and turns white.

It flashes to Houston, focusing on an apartment building that looks identical to Dave's. "But not many" disappears. A plane flies by over the city. Everything fades except part of the apartment building. The top floor remains, but the rest of the building turns into a spindly tower of girders that looks like something from LoHaC. The rest of the city is gone. Seagulls fly around it and Dirk stands on the roof. It zooms out again. The entire area that was Houston is now an ocean. Dirk stares up the radio tower. A horde of red, insectoid drones descends towards him. Dirk pulls out his sword and gets ready to fight.

Everything fades to white, then to a house that looks identical to Rose's. The forest around it flashes and vanishes, replaced by white, square buildings. It zooms out. The white buildings are built into the shape of a square. It's surrounded by squares of black buildings, which in turn are surrounded by white buildings. It zooms out again. It's a checkerboard, mapped to the same space as the hub grid, rising out of an ocean. A group of the red drones descends towards it.

Roxy stands on the edge of a balcony and stares up at the drones in the yellow sky. Her scarf flutters behind her.

It flashes through several images so quickly that most are only on screen for a single frame.

It shows the frog from the frog temple, then zooms out to show Jake's whole island. Images flicker on screen for just a second. The Condesce's smile. Obey. It fades to white, then to the frog on top of the temple, which now just barely rises above the water. Red teeth surround it and white tentacles wrap around its neck and countless others writhe through the water around it. Only the top of the temple and the summit of the volcano aren't underwater. The Condesce's smile. Cease Reproduction. Jake's island. The flashes come faster, to the point that it doesn't show Jake's island anymore. Fruit rollups. Be The First To Visit Mars. Guy Fieri. Consume. Be The First To Visit Mars. Bac-os. Hamburger Helper Lasagna. The hamburger helper flashes red repeatedly and faint messages fade in over it. Cease Reproduction. Stay Asleep.

It fades to the Condesce's hips swaying as she walks. More faint images fade in over her. Obey. Fruit Rollups. Submit to Culling. Brownie mix. Consume. Bisquick. Comply with Drones. Old El Paso Taco Kit. The messages become less faint and more solid as a red tint falls over The Condesce. It flashes to Guy Fieri, then to the unknown pisces troll with two braids, then to the trident logo, which stays on screen until you click to the next page. From the start of the flashing images, the rest of the animation took 10 seconds.

Act 6 Intermission 2

[Image description: Someone holds a baby bottle full of milk to a Dersite's mouth. The dersite bares their teeth at it.]

Hold still, Slick.

[A6I2] Next

[Image description: The dersite, apparently Spades Slick, turns away and some of the milk spills down his face.]

God dammit. Will you quit fidgeting and drink your milk?

[A6I2] Next

[Image description: Whoever is holding the bottle presses it against Slick's mouth, but he holds his lips closed.]

It's warm and nutritious. Fresh from the butler's teat. You just watched me milk it.

[A6I2] Next

[Image description: Slick shouts and sticks out his tongue. Milk sprays over his face.]

Oh for fuck's sake. You are impossible.

[A6I2] Next

[Image description: It zooms out. Andrew Hussie is the one holding the bottle, but he's wearing a dark green suit and white wig, making him look like Calmasis, the main character of Complacency of the Learned. There's a caduceus symbol on his left breast and a bright red 6 for a cufflink. He also wears a black headband with a pair of medium length, wavy horns like the one that framed the screen as an unknown person watched Dirk. His hands and face are sloppily painted grey. Spades Slick lays in a hospital bed in front of him, hooked up to a large machine by several wires. The top half of his head, both arms, and the left half of his chest are now robotic. He wears a white eyepatch over one eye and the other eye is a red, synthetic one. Behind them, it shows a blue hospital room and Aurthur, Equius's lusus, smiling at them.

Ms. Paint!!!

Is that soup ready yet? He's being a dick.

[Image description: It shows a steaming pot of black soup with scotty dogs floating in it. A large ladle moves to scoop some into a bowl.]

Also can you bring some gauze? He stabbed me again.

[Image description: Some of the scotty dog soup slops into the bowl.]

It was one of his more tentative stabbings though... I think maybe he meant it as sort of a thank you?

[Image description: Ms. Paint whistles to herself and sets the bowl on a silver tray, centering it on a white lace doily. Off to the side, there's a pack of crackers laying on a decorative black spade shape.]

Nope. Wait. He just stabbed me again. I don't think that one was a thankstab. It was more like just a regular stab.

[Image description: Ms. Paint just keeps whistling and sets a tall, thin vase with a single flower in it on the tray.]

I probably should have confiscated his knife before I gave him these super fast robot arms. My god he is frisky with those things.

[Image description: She sets an origami dog made of black paper onto the tray. A small pink heart comes from near her face.]

Hey put that down. I said settle your ass down. Where's the gratitude, Slick? I am waiting on you hand and foot here. Where do you think you are, Butler Island? You know what? Fuck Butler Island. You just died and went to Butler fucking Heaven. I see that knife. Yeah, that one. You're not fooling anyone.

[Image description: She keeps whistling as she carries the tray through a fancy, blue hallway. It's not ornately fancy, like Doc Scratch's apartment. It's more of a simple elegance.]

If you don't calm down, I'm going to repair your other eye. You know, the one you refused to let me fix, because you thought the eye patch looked cool? I'll do it!

[A6I2] Next

[Image description: She stops and looks up at something.]

Ms. Paint, what is taking so long with that soup?! This is a man in sore need of his scottie dogs if I ever saw one.

[A6I2] Next

[Image description: She drops the tray.]

Ms. Paint are you listening??????

[A6I2] Next

[Image description: The soup spills onto blue floorboards.]

[A6I2] Next

[Image description: A golden peg leg and the hem of a green coat appear next to the fallen soup.]

[A6I2] Next

[Image description: A green, clawed hand holds Hussiebot's head, which is missing its left eye. The cuff of the coat flashes in stripes of bright colors.]

[A6I2] Next

[Image description: It zooms out. It's Lord English. His eyes flash through the different billiard balls as he glares. In one hand, he holds Hussiebot's head. In the other, he holds a long, golden staff with a glowing black hole on top. The black hole tints red and blue and occasionally flickers to green static. Ms. Paint takes a step back and keeps staring at him.]

[A6I2] Next

[Image description: It zooms in on his eyes. Ms. Paint's terrified expression is reflected in them.]

[A6I2] Next

[Image description: A thin banner says Year 1. Below it, the meteor streaks away from the green sun and towards Skaia. The journey is divided into three sections by black lines. The meteor rests on the line between Year 1 and Year 2 and still trails flashing flames of red, yellow, and grey.]

why don't you tell me!
I just have this incredible premonition you're about to anyway.
C.C.G.: why the fuck would I know why you changed your text red!
we don't do that. The showy, self-absorbed "paint your text in your blood color" thing. Or eye color, or whatever.
it's for attention-greedy, insecure losers.
F.C.G.: sure is!
C.C.G.: hmm.
F.C.G.: (six question marks) (arrow pointing left) Sarcastic wonder.
C.C.G.: I'm just thinking
this really makes our conversations easier to read.
remember those insane blocks of gray angry text we used to write together.
what was that like half a sweep ago already?
is it weird that I'm actually looking back on all that insanity with a certain amount of fondness?
at least shit was happening.
it's so boring out here. And living with the humans is just getting kind of weird.
anyway, this is actually a lot more decipherable. Maybe you're on to something.
F.C.G.: well hey, check it out: shit just got nostalgic.

F.C.G.: look at that, I'm feeling more sentimental about this moronic conversation already.
C.C.G.: ok, why do you have to go from zero to douche like in the blink of a fucking glance nugget.
F.C.G.: the blink of a glance nugget?? I've been at this for ten minutes already. And counting!
C.C.G.: I just think you might have been on to something with the red text. I was trying to pay you a compliment you antagonizing fuck.
I mean, we only ever got in the habit of typing in gray to hide our blood color, right? and like, 1) everybody knows it now, it was the worst kept fucking secret ever, and 2) even if they didn't, it's just us here, and obviously we've both already known it all our lives unless we're both so neurotic we actually still want to act like it's a secret we're keeping from each other... but I'd like to think the days of that astounding degree of mental illness are behind us!
F.C.G.: (i want to kill myself, but I can't until the conversation runs its course. This is the worst hell imaginable.)
C.C.G.: shut the fuck up. That's the exact kind of melodrama I'm talking about, we're better than that now man.
I'm gonna do the mature thing here: and switch my text to red.
[Note: And switch my text to red is written in bright red, as is the rest of Current Karkat's text.]
C.C.G.: there. I think this should be the universal convention for when two of the same people are talking to each other.
one guy bites the bullet and talks in red.
seriously, one of us has to be the grown up here.
F.C.G.: oh! I get it now.
when I type in red, it's showy and insecure, but when you do it, you areshouldering the pragmatic burden of a martyr, even though it was my fucking idea to do that in the first place ten minutes ago!
you piece of shit.
C.C.G.: ok!!! God dammit, stop being so sensitive. I fucking apologize.
F.C.G.: can you just talk about your stupid feelings already so we can get this nightmare over with.

His husktop with legs has an alert showing him in the same room, but he's yelling.]

pesterlog
C.C.G.: well look, it wasn't supposed to be this lopsided thing where I spill all my feelings into idiotspace while some shit head yells at me.
I was kind of thinking there would be some give and take, since you presumably share a lot of my thoughts??
F.C.G.: ok whatever. Just say some stuff already. All that shit I said ten minutes ago.
I will "riff" with you and somehow pretend it doesn't feel like I'm rehashing a bunch of lines written in barely dried ink!!!
C.C.G.: ok
well
I'm having a hard time even putting my thoughts into words about this bizarre trek through the ring.
at first it was just bland and uneventful. But that was kind of a relief, remember?
not having to worry about getting killed all the time, or trying to rally a bunch of uncooperative troops toward an impossible objective.
F.C.G.: yeah.
C.C.G.: but then
as if it wasn't enough that sometimes we visit these crazy dream bubbles when we go to sleep...
we started physically passing through them too.

[A6I2] Next
C.C.G.: like I think I could handle it better if it was just one thing or the other. like only the monotonous day to day drudgery on the same gloomy fucking meteor with the same bunch of ridiculous people, and basically nothing to do ever except get all up in each other's business. or only a sweeps long safari through an ephemeral realm of ghost memories and dead friends shitting around in a haphazard existential clusterfuck. but having to deal with both, in totally random intervals? it's kind of taking its toll.

F.C.G.: "i hear you man."

that was when I was supposed to say that. but for the record, I guess I meant it.

C.C.G.: yeah.

I mean, don't get me wrong. I miss all of my dead friends a lot. even the assholes! I miss them too. Maybe even especially them, in some perverse way. and I should be relieved that they all seem to be happy in some way, even if it's by floating nebulously through dream projections with their freaky blank eyes. and I guess I am relieved about that. but at the same time it's left me unsettled. for reasons I can't really put my finger on.

F.C.G.: I know why.

C.C.G.: you do?

F.C.G.: yeah.

C.C.G.: well of course you do.

I guess because I just told you ten minutes ago, making it like a self-fulfilling epiphany??

F.C.G.: well there's that but also this conversation helped clarify some thoughts too, in spite of its excruciating pointlessness. part of what's bothering you about this is what it means about mortality.

C.C.G.: yeah

I think that's part of it. after visiting who knows how many dream bubbles and hanging out with who knows how many dead friends, and copies of dead friends from alternate timelines...

I start to wonder, does death even really mean anything? did life mean anything, for that matter??

was the point of life to just go around collecting a bunch of painful and awkward experiences to supply material for the revolving memory-collage that serves as the backdrop to a much longer, emptier stretch of existence?
and how unnerving is it running into our dead doppelgangers from doomed timelines?

F.C.G.: hey, you're preaching to the choir, bro.
C.C.G.: it's fucked up.

never mind what it means about a person's identity or sense of self, or which guy gets to be considered "the real guy" or philosophical bullshit like that.

just on the level of what your decisions and actions during your life actually mean.
sometimes we run into these versions of ourselves who reached god tier for fuck's sake.
but in spite of being more successful than we were, by that particular objective measure they get punished for that, because it wasn't "the thing that needed to happen"??

[Image description: Feferi kneels by WV's body and Eridan glares behind her. Both of their eyes are white. Feferi's wearing a beige version of the Witch outfit Jade got, but with holes that button shut around her horns and a light green life symbol on the chest. Eridan is wearing a yellow version of the Prince outfit that the pleasant UU drew and has a white Hope symbol on his chest, which resembles a pair of wings splayed out. Karkat watches with wide eyes.]

pesterlog
C.C.G.: so where does that leave us?

if we are to take some lesson from that, what is it!
"try to be great and successful, but maybe not toooo great and successful?"
or maybe don't try at all in some cases! Because if you do, some giant fucking squid in the middle of nowhere is going to be like, not so fast, my hideous monster plans beg to differ.
don't you think we'd have been better off if we didn't even know about any of this dream bubble shit?
F.C.G.: well.
yeah.
that's what I was thinking ten minutes ago.
but now I don't even know.

C.C.G.: yeah, well at least you're listening. Even if you were being your usual shitty self about it.
nobody else even gets this, they don't want to hear it.

like terezi?
it used to be that she would at least humor even my most ludicrous, vitriolic garbage all the time.

remember those days?
way back before we even knew what a human was.

back on alternia when my biggest fear was if people found out I was a mutant. How quaint can you fucking get?
I was an idiot not to understand how good things were back then.
between us.
now it's like...

F.C.G.: sdjs;alskjfsa;jk
C.C.G.: what?
F.C.G.: this part of the conversation.

[Image description: WV, Terezi, and Dave all stand in a hallway somewhere on the meteor, near a set of stairs. They've colored the tiles with chalk to make it a chessboard and built some buildings out of cans, bottles of faygo, and a green book. Serenity sits on top of the book and flashes. A series of blue roads and pink and purple trees has been drawn through New Can Town. Dave has drawn in Sweet Bro, Hella Jeff, and Geromy. One section has an orange squirrel drawn on it and is labeled 'Squirrel Zone'. On the back wall, there's a chalk drawing of Terezi's forest under a blue sky full of white clouds, which are labeled Cloun. In the sky, there's the basketball player from the Sports SBAHJ comic slam dunking a ball, but now he has troll horns that look like Tavros's.

pesterlog
C.C.G.: oh get over yourself, our ten minutes is almost up.
I would just like to know.
is she punishing me for something?
I don't need to remind you how much time she spends gallivanting around the meteor with you know who.
F.C.G.: no you sure as fuck do not.
C.C.G.: after all this time I still can't tell if she's serious about that, or doing it to fuck with me.
what do you think? Is there something legitimately red going on there?
how can I command such absolute mastery over the romantic sciences yet remain perplexed by this???
maybe I can't get a read because he's not a troll, and therefore has no idea what the fuck he's doing?
it's like trying to decipher an intricate courtship process between an attractive potential matesprit, and some sort of vegetable.
like it doesn't compute.
F.C.G.: fuck, this is so embarrassing listening to this, make it stop.
C.C.G.: quiet, I'm talking.
I just feel like maybe I'm past the point of no return with her.
where before there was margin for error, probably way more than I ever deserved.
and now that's it. She's totally had it, and there's a new dude with candyblood in town.
he's just got it all, doesn't he? He's a much better artist than I am, for one thing.
and his horns are so nubby, they don't even exist! Talk about hitting the jackpot.
am I off base??
F.C.G.: we just went over this.
I didn't get it then because I was too busy whining and feeling sorry for myself like you're doing now so pipe down and listen.

Dave: got it so what are you up to in here
whats with all these books
Rose: Research.
We're trying to put all the pieces of the puzzle together.
You are aware this meteor has many secret rooms scattered throughout, including libraries, right?
Dave: hell yeah
we looted one of them for the can town project
Rose: Can Town?
Dave: i told you about can town didnt i Rose: No??
Dave: well
the thing about can town and all there really is to say about can town is its awesome
the end???
Rose: Wow.
What a story.
Dave: f.u.
so what is the point of this research
Rose: Primarily to gain a more thorough understanding of the situation we'll be entering when we arrive.
Dave: i thought you pretty much already knew the situation since you can see the future
Rose: Oh my God.
I've told you. I can't see the future!
Dave: yes you can you totally can
Rose: Ok. But not all of it. Only certain relevant pieces.
It's a bit frustrating when people make that presumption about you.
For instance, you are a Knight of Time. Since you have such mastery over time, doesn't that mean you should know everything about the future too?
Dave: no thats totally dumb
i could know things about the future if i time traveled and found out first hand nobodys mistaking that about me im a time traveler not a fuckin fortune teller its simple as shit Rose: Right. So there are significant limitations on what you can know, governed by certain rules.
That's how it is for a Seer too.
Dave: ok whatever
Rose: But I will say that I have been able to use these abilities to assist with research.
I can treat my finite glimpses as an additional source of information.
If you combine that with the knowledge we've gathered from these texts, and things we've learned from our various encounters with the deceased, with a bit of inference and deduction, a more detailed picture is coming into focus.
Dave: nice
Rose: Do you want to hear about it?
Dave: uh
now?
Rose: Yes.
Why not? It's been a year.
It seems like all we've done on this trip so far is indulge in lavish interior decoration projects and screw around with mysterious "Can Town" initiatives, which may or may not be consuming valuable library resources as building materials.
We could make at least some effort to squeeze in annual briefings on our objective.
Dave: yeah that would be pretty legit of us
Rose: I think you'll find that when it comes to striving for a reasonable approximation of legitimacy, we are simply the most barely adequate there is.
Dave: ok i didnt really catch any of that bullshit cause i wasnt listening im gonna make myself a cup of coffee and get primed to listen to you saying a lot of stuff like that do you want some

Dave: so whats with the big book youre writing in is that more wizard fan fiction
Rose: No, it's something like an extensive journal.
I'm recording everything we've been through so far, and detailed notes on everything we know about the game.
I'm also using it to document our research, and extrapolate on the new session and players.
Dave: so its like your nigh unreadable gamefaq in tome form
Somewhat.
Dave: you sure like to write big game guides
Rose: I don't look at it that way.
I'm approaching it from a standpoint of responsible historical documentation.
Don't you think people in the future will want to know about our story?
Dave: i guess
Rose: I think it could be a very useful resource some day.
It could be helpful to others beginning their own quests.
Dave: ehh chances of that seem pretty remote Kanaya: I Really Wouldnt Rule It Out Dave: ok totally sold on that suddenly on account of not caring so tell me about the new session what is there to know and most importantly how is everything going to go wrong this time Rose: From what I understand, everything already has gone wrong before the game even started, in many different ways than ours did.
There are indications of thicker political intrigue. Assassination attempts. And a usurpation of the throne more insidious than what we dealt with.
But those examples still don't illustrate the fundamental fault with their session.
Ours had a similar fault. It was a null session.
Literature on the subject says null sessions are actually very common.
It is any session resulting in failure, and as such, designed to result in failure from the start, due to Skaia's comprehensive "knowledge" of its own fate, and that of all it illumines.
Biologically speaking, it's to be expected that null sessions far outnumber the successful ones.
When it comes to reproductive systems, overwhelming redundancy is commonplace.
A universe has a reproductive system that spreads many seeds, as it were, most of which never come to fruition. So we shouldn't feel too bad about our results, really. It was quite par for the course.
But then, it would also seem that exceedingly few null sessions result in the birth of a massive green star fueled by two dead universes. For what it's worth.
Dave: ok but i thought the whole point of this the scratch thing is it gave us a chance to still win
but youre saying the new session has a fault too?
Rose: Well, yes. There's more to it though.
The new session is essentially our session, rebooted with different parameters which also affected the original conditions of our universe. And strangely, it seems the new one is a null session as well, but within a much less common subset of all null sessions. This one is referred to as a void session.

[Image description: Rose points towards a drawing of a grey planet with a chained moon that resembles Derse and Prospit. Text below it is written in the reptile glyphs from the frog temple.]

dialoglog
Dave: ok which is what Rose: It's very simply a session in which nothing is prototyped before entry, at all. Hence, by Skaia's preemptive all-knowing and its influence on the rest of the incipisphere, there are not even any towers on Prospit or Derse built to receive the split kernels.
Rose: See?
Dave: weird why would these alt universe players fuck up in such an obvious and stupid way
Rose: I don't know what specifically led to the failure to prototype anything. But it doesn't really matter. As I said, the session was designed this way before they began playing. Any efforts to prototype may have been in vain regardless. Possibly subject to sabotage.
Dave: didnt you say at some point that not prototyping anything would be really bad Rose: Yes. It's just another way to create an infertile session. Though by a less catastrophic and bloody route we took to achieve the same result. By contrast, it leads to a rather harmless, uneventful session. Underlings remain unaugmented, and so does the royalty. And while this may sound advantageous to the players, it's a curse in disguise. The lack of prototypings which keeps adversaries unevolved has the same influence on the battlefield. Without successive prototypings, the battlefield will never reach its final form, which must be fertilized to grow a new universe.

Thick grey wires wind offscreen and green and red wires stick out from near the handle.]

dialoglog
Rose: Instead, it remains in its most basic form, stuck in eternal stalemate. There is nothing players in a void session can do to change this. They are resigned to live out the rest of their days in a dead end session.
Dave: still waiting to hear how this is in any way an improvement on all the shit we just escaped from Rose: It's a vast improvement. The new session is a blank slate, without a ridiculously short time limit for victory like ours had. There will be no time limit at all, in fact. Once we arrive, ostensibly that is when the nature of the session will change. It won't be classifiable as either a null or void session anymore. It will be something which, as far as I can tell, is unique.
The fully matured battlefield from our session can be used to make the new one viable. The path to success will be made possible by a combination of efforts and assets from both iterations.
Usually scratched sessions are absolute resets, and involve no direct influence from the first attempt at all. I can't find any precedent for our situation.
Dave: jade has our battlefield right
Rose: Yes.
Dave: so she shows up and drops it in skaia and then we take the result of all that damn frog breeding we did and stick the thing in there somehow and we sit back and wait for it to do its huge ribbit or whatever and were golden Rose: Pretty much.
As long as there is an actual vacancy in the center of Skaia when we get there.

[Image description: The un-prototyped battlefield explodes and CD flies away in his shuttle.]

dialoglog
Dave: is that going to be a problem
Rose: I don't think so.
Even if it were, it would be a trivial obstacle.
But as it is, I think the forces opposing these players are clandestinely working toward the same goal as we are.
From what I can tell, gestures of antagonism, while certainly posing legitimate danger, have been factored in as critical stepping stones to one destination shared by all parties.
I don't know why this is, or what the motives are yet.
The appearance is one of clear sailing ahead, but traces of conspiracy are everywhere.
Dave: ok but conspiracies aside
did it ever really look like clear sailing to you thats not what i was seeing we are going to arrive and then soon after jack is going to show up and then we have to beat him right so there kind of is a time limit

[Image description: Bec Noir flies through the furthest ring and looks worriedly back over his shoulder at PM, who is right on his tail.]

dialoglog
Rose: Yes, we will have to deal with Jack before all is said and done.
And that will definitely be a major challenge.
But it is not impossible. At least, not by design.
When I said there would be no time limit in this session, I was talking about something more specific.
There will be no reckoning.
Dave: oh
why not
Rose: It's a logical consequence of any void session.
The battlefield never evolves, and therefore the more extensive war between Prospit and Derse
It is only when the Prospitian king falls in battle that the reckoning can be initiated by the forces of Derse.
The meteors then rush to destroy the battlefield, while Skaia redirects them through defense portals for as long as it can.
Thus, if there is no war, there is no reckoning, no meteors, and no imminent threat of failure.
This is of course good news for Earth as well. During the reckoning, Skaia redirects all incoming meteors to the only place it can. Earth.
So it turns out that players who initiate a void session are not actually condemning their home planet to an apocalyptic wasteland after they leave.
In the new instance of our universe, Earth is just fine.
Sort of.
Dave: so no meteors came at all you mean by fucking up and having to scratch we also sort of saved earth in the process Rose: Again: sort of.
And it's not that there were no meteors whatsoever.
Just the vast majority of the destructive onslaught never showed up.
But delivering the temple to the site of the forge is still integral to jumpstarting the session.
That meteor however could have been propelled through a portal by any means, not just via the reckoning.
Dave: i see what about the players themselves they had to arrive on meteors too didnt they i guess the baby meteors were some exceptions too right
Yes.
But they weren't flung through portals in their own session, nor will they be created there.
They were created in our session, and sent back through our portals. Just like us.

[Image description: It shows a meteor and flashes through the various babies with their objects. Dave with Maplehoof. Jade with the knit bunny. Jane with the hat. Roxy with the mutant kitten. Dirk with Lil Cal. Jake with the flintlock pistols. John with the Colonel Sassacre's. Rose with the dirty bunny. A second image shows meteors flying towards the portals. There's a disk in the upper right corner. When it's unscratched, the portals are green. When it flips to scratched, the portals turn red.]

dialoglog
Dave: ...............
Rose: To understand what happened, it really helps to understand exactly what a scratch is.
When John severely damaged the Beat Mesa on your planet, and sent it off to Skaia to release its temporal energy there, you could view it as a kind of "request."
We were asking Skaia to change everything at a fundamental level, and we gave it the energy to do so.
But Skaia is a very passive entity. It only "knows" and "sees," but it never quite "acts."
When it is asked to change everything, there is only so much it has control over.
In fact, it has control over exactly one thing. The defense portals.
It can decide to send important meteors to different points in time than originally planned, thus creating alternate realities.
Offshoots of promise, rather than futility.
And it turns out the most important meteors of all tend to be the ones delivering the young players to their planet. So all it has to do to change everything is tweak their destination times a bit. All internally-prompted changes in the post-scratch universe are decided entirely by this modest adjustment to the parameters. It's a very simple concept, actually. Yet the consequences are dramatic. It results in not only a hard reset for the session, but a partial reset for the universe too, due to the many causal entanglements between a session and its originating universe.

Dave: what do you mean tweak the destination times where did they get sent to Rose: A variety of different time periods. The simplest way to way to look at it is to picture the original destinations of our two groups of four ecto-babies... And switch them.
Dave: what
Rose: Though this is just a slight oversimplification. While it's roughly true, Skaia had some peculiar whims this time.

dialoglog
Rose: While most landed in time periods corresponding with the original group, It seems that two of the new players arrived four centuries ahead of everyone else. For some bizarre reason.
Dave: uh
Rose: But they're still apparently able to communicate with their coplayers through I guess some Trollian-like technology, and they're still able to establish game connections with the others. So this stands as an odd but not otherwise terribly significant detail.
Dave: so uh in this alt universe group of us and them which ones are the actual players Rose: I'll give you a hint. It isn't us.
Dave: fuck why did i know that was gonna be the answer
Rose: And to think that usually I'm the one accused of knowing the future.
Dave: i dunno if im ready to process the ramifications of this bullshit

[Image description: They all step away from the table. Rose winks at Dave, who has a red exclamation mark over his head.]
Rose: You would find it less disconcerting if the players were alternate versions of us?
Dave: man
at least im used to dealing with alt daves ive been fuck deep in alt daves before its a goddamn delight if you want to know the truth but i dont even know what to think about...
Rose: What?
Meeting a deceased figure of authority as a peer?
Dave: lets not even talk about it ok can we slow down this meteor delay the meetup
maybe fight jack for a little while Rose: I honestly thought you would find the idea exciting.
I know I'm looking forward to it.
Dave: but your mom was just a nice alcoholic spinster who liked wizards who you complained about for no reason she wasnt anything like an untouchable master of irony who could replace the meat in your sandwich before it even occurred to you what the fuck you were chewing let me ask you this did your mom ever wiggle a puppet in your face even once Rose: Not that I recall.
But anecdotes like that just make me more curious to meet him, personally.
Dave: fine well you can be on bro duty then ill be the ambassador to your mom and no that wasnt actually meant as the sick burn it sounded like Rose: She's your mom too, though.
Dave: yeah i know ill be the ambassador to my mom then that sounds pretty stupid when i say it that way whatever ill be the fuckin one man welcome wagon for the john and jade teen old people and also our mom thats the plan
so when we finally see them we can get our shit into formation like trained acrobats like ill blow a whistle and we make a human pyramid got it that way we can totally avoid anything awkward Rose: You do realize we've seen her already, right?
Dave: what when Months ago.
In a dream.
She was floating along in Derse pajamas, asleep.
Dave: wait that was her
Rose: Yes.
Dave: oh
huh
.....
Rose: You're wondering why I didn't tell you?
Dave: no
Rose: You're specifically wondering why I wasn't forthcoming with an answer to your question at the time, "hey who was that choice babe in the pajamas?"
Dave: god fucking dammit
Rose: You don't find it nostalgic at all?
Retracing the steps of some of our Freudian semi-blunders in conversations past?
Dave: no what a load of shit stuff said between you and me before we knew we were related we both know that was a lot of horseplay bullfuckery between like smartass 10 year olds or whatever you cant seriously have taken any of that seriously
Rose: (winking face)
Dave: ugh dont ever do that all these fuckin
momtraps and sistertraps what a joke i hope skaia gets to have a good laugh over shit like this wait i forgot skaia doesnt laugh it just "sees" and "knows" it's like a huge blue perv thats mad jazzed for kidcest Kanaya: What Are You People Even Talking About
Rose: (winking face)
Dave: dont you wink at her kanaya heres a protip that wink meant jack dick shes just being weird

Karkat: not so fast strider, this heavily concerns you.
   it concerns you exclusively in fact.
   where do you think you're going?
Dave: just stepping out to do a thing which is not your business Karkat: like my inflamed quaking gallsphincter it's not.
tell me, are you by any chance going to have some company when you step out to do this "thing?"
notice the two heavily dramatized "enclosure talons" surrounding that word, which I am scornfully pantomimining with my own two hands, as presently being demonstrated for you.
Dave: yeah sure Karkat: oh??
   who would that be may I ask?
Dave: well
   probably the mayor hes usually down for whatever Karkat: I'm not talking about the fucking mayor, and you fucking know it.
Dave: hey dont be saying shit about the mayor

Karkat: he's not a mayor. He's the mayor of fuckstick junction located smack dab in the middle of pretend ass nowhere.
Dave: hes a mayor you douche his thing says mayor Karkat: it says "mayo" and he wrote the "r" himself.
   he's at best a mayo. And who ever heard of a mayo? It's every bit as imaginary as his identity as an elected official.
Dave: no mayo is like grub sauce but without grubs
Karkat: who the fuck ever heard of grub sauce without grubs??? What's it made of then genius!
Dave: like
   uh
   I dunno its white and it just sort of exists you dont ask about mayo thats not what you do with mayo Karkat: isn't it funny how quickly your bullshit unravels when someone intelligent actually holds you accountable??
   you are fucking busted strider.
   you are busted about "mayo" and you are busted about terezi.
Dave: hahaha you are pathetic this is why you all stormed in here out of breath what did you actually sprint all the way across the meteor to tell me this Karkat: what I do with my legs and how fast I move them is my business you shit.
Dave: yeah and what I do with mine is mine watch me make them make me leave Karkat: I said stay your ass put, we're talking here.

Karkat: ok, look I'm nowhere near your precious stupid cape. Just listen.
before you go off to snog terezi in your idiotic little village of nutrition cylinders, hear me out.
Dave: man
you are so overblowing this Karkat: but I don't think that I am!
Dave: yeah you are you have some idea about us or what were getting up to so weve done a few things together to pass the time so what I dont even think you could call them dates or anything what the fuck would even qualify as a date on this gross dark meteor Karkat: dave, can we just cut the shit?
I am not an imbecile. You are both plainly tipping into flushed territory irrespective of environmental factors or whatever lame conditions it is humans believe to be optimal for pursuing a matedspritship.
anyone can see that, it's the shittiest kept secret on this meteor. Probably even the fucking mayor gets it, and let's face it, he's a little slow.
do you really think you could pull the woolbeast material over the eyes of a hardened veteran of romantic studies?
Dave: we have one of those???
Karkat: I have seen thousands of troll romance films, each dealing with topics far more subtle and complex than your pedestrian human mind could ever grasp.
and in case you've forgotten, I've already watched hundreds of your more primitive but moderately entertaining romance films.
remember how I downloaded a fuck ton of them after discovering your species? I am a curious man, dave, you could learn from me.
Dave: yeah I remember havent you only watched a bunch of shitty dane cook movies on infinite loop since we left Karkat: you're severely exaggerating, but yes I have sampled his work.
Dave: dude
you know youre only pretending to be a huge fan of his bullshit to piss me off Karkat: again look at how self absorbed you're being!!!
I happen to think he has a brilliant comedic mind, for a human.
Dave: hnnngnnngghhhh
it turns out that exact sentence is my one weakness you win bro you got your girl back Karkat: oh shut up.
I am not here to debate you on the finer points of cinema, or to "get my girl back."
how desperate do you think I am?
I'm actually here to do the opposite.
I wanted to tell you I'm totally ok with it.
Dave: oh
ok then Karkat: but just listen, and try to keep an open mind. I know that's hard for you.
here, please take a look at this.
Dialoglog
Dave: oh no
what the hot mess of fresh fuck am I looking at Karkat: it's an alternian romance novel.
now look, I'm not vouching for this particular piece of literature. It's actually pretty trashy and if you're interested I could recommend much better things to you.
it's just this one illustrates the concept very clearly.
Dave: what...
"concept"
Karkat: it's a pretty typical case of quadrant vacillation as applied to an overlapping group of romantic pairings.
Dave: you lost me at quadrant for future reference thats the word that always lets me know its time to check out of a sentence Karkat: will you pipe down and just hear me out.
it's really simple. Think of it as being similar to one of your primitive human love triangles.
though this is a quadrangle. Those are much more common in our society and entertainment, and four is pretty much the minimum value for love-hate n-drangles.
Dave: n drangles
god dammit Karkat: now here is what's actually going on with this group of characters. Pay attention. Hey, look at me. Eyes over here. Good.
see the two heroes in the middle, partaking in their flushed embrace? Pretty much your typical lowblood redrom pairing. Their dynamic is the grubloaf and tuber paste of the overall arc.
Dave: ........
Karkat: but what have we here? There are some nefarious highblooms in the picture too. This is where it gets interesting.
the guy on the left is an old caliginous flame from the male lowblood's past, and has reentered the picture. Again, nothing out of the ordinary. He can continue to court his matesprit and kismesis without conflict. It's a perfectly amicable arrangement that everyone's totally down with.
Dave: what is that huge beefcake troll even doing is he grinding against the little dudes shoulder what is even going on why the fuck is he nude Karkat: no questions yet.
so then that's all fine, pretty boilerplate conditions for unfolding romdrama, but there's a twist.
the male highblood and lowblood start to have flushed feelings for one another, and this results in some red infidelity between the lowblood pair.
obviously this is where the fireworks start going off. The red feelings between the lowbloods turn to black, and thus begins what is referred to as quadrant vacillation.
meanwhile the two males are also vacillating between red and black, because you don't just let go of a rivalry so easily.
Dave: what is going on with the other chick all grabbing at the other one down there in the corner Karkat: yeah, well, it gets even more complicated than that, probably more than needed for the sake of making the point.
in the heat of their vacillation, during an especially black phase, the lowblood female waxes red for a notorious and especially brutal highblood female.
so they have their thing on the side, but even that starts vacillating too because the original pair just keep spinning like a top.
we don't need to get bogged down in the quadrangle dynamic though, and for our purposes the 4th party is a distraction.
Dave: our purposes
what the fuck are our purposes
Karkat: the thing is, vacillation always adds a lot of drama to everything, but that doesn't mean it can't be viable.
it can totally work, and everyone can be reasonable about it, it really just comes down to a matter of sensible scheduling.
Dave: you must be out of your fucking mind if you think I want to know where you're going with this Karkat: dave, please.
just read the book, ok? It's all in the book.

Dave: im not reading that shit
I cant even read your stupid troll language why would you think I can Karkat: I think you should reconsider. I can translate for you. I'll read the whole damn thing aloud if you want.
seriously, it could really expand your limited human think pan on stuff.
there's a lot here that's applicable to our situation.
Dave: there is nothing even slightly applicable about any of that bullshit to our situation Karkat: don't be dense. Of course there is.
terezi and I have been on the verge of vacillating like this for a long time.
it's about time we killed the suspense and just acknowledged it.
you and she seem bent on developing something in the flushed quadrant, and like I said, I'm fine with that.
if we can just get our shit straightened out, we can be like these vacillating pairs that alternate between red and black, but in a way that's complementary with each other's patterns.
Dave: oh my god
why is this happening
Karkat: like while she and I are black, you and she are red.
but then when she and I are red, you and she... I don't know if humans are really capable of black feelings?
I guess that's up to you. Maybe you can just like, sit those periods out.
like take a break, you know?
Dave: youve completely lost it dude
I cant believe for a fucking second this is reasonable shit to propose even on troll world you just totally snapped Karkat: snapped like a fucking fox. This makes perfect sense.
like I said, it's just a matter of responsible scheduling.

do not draw any quadrilaterals or trapezoids or rectangles or fucking n-drangles and especially as fuck not any god damned rhombuses shared shipping dreams.

Jade: i dont really think this is my kind of game.... but i will play it with you today because it is technically your birthday (heart)
John: yesss. you won't be disappointed.
Jade: how many people did you get to play this??
John: um, i don't know.
i only showed it to a few people, but i guess hundreds are playing it now?
nobody is very good at it though.
i keep trying to tell the salamanders and chess guys not to cross the streams, but they keep crossing the streams!
just between you and me, i think a lot of them aren't very bright.
Jade: why cant you cross the streams?
John: jade, please.
it is just something you can't do when you're a ghost buster, because it spells big trouble. everyone knows that.
Jade: (tongue sticking out face)

John: you should hurry up and make a character already, so we can get started.
Jade: im working on it!
there are so many options
what kind of ghostbuster should i make?
John: just any old ghost buster! as long as he looks awesome and like he means business.
Jade: hmmm
John: i will begin organizing our squad.
Jade: what do you have to do?
John: well, first we need buy an old abandoned fire station to use as a headquarters.
luckily half the city is composed of abandoned fire stations that are for sale...
this game is actually really stupid in a lot of ways, now that i think about it.
Jade: noooooooowo!
John: hey, shut up!
i take it back, it's great in every way.
Jade: sure john
whatever you say
John: ok, now i have to find us a mission.
got to hire a sassy secretary...
just have to peruse this extensive palette of sarcastic red headed ladies...
ok, here is a good one.
then we wait for a phone call. this can take anywhere from ten seconds to several hours.
Jade: are you serious?
John: but that's fine!
there's lots to do in the station to kill time.
like talk to slimer, and...
get slimed by slimer.
ok, i guess that's pretty much all there is to do.
Jade: what about that fire pole there?
cant you go down the fire pole?
John: the fire pole is strictly decorative.
Jade: ..........
John: are you almost finished making your character?
Jade: yeah i think im done!!!
im pretty happy with him

John: jade.
that is absolutely the shittiest ghost buster i have ever seen.
Jade: no way!
John: yes.
it is so yes way.
Jade: hes adorable, what are you even talking about?
John: jade, i thought you were going to take this game seriously.
that is not a serious ghost buster. no ghost could possibly fear that thing.
Jade: i dont want ghosts to be afraid of him
i want to make friends with some ghosts if at all possible
John: it is not possible, ghosts are known to be cruel and mischievous.
they will not want to befriend your fox man, they will only want to cover him in slime and then fly away.
i really think you should consider redesigning him.
Jade: nope. im keeping him (tongue sticking out face)
John: ok, well, if you want to turn our squad into a fucking joke, then that's your business.
Jade: shut up or ill give him a pink jumpsuit!
John: argh!
but seriously, those head swap options are for such noobs, i feel it's only fair to warn you.
Jade: i think i will manage to survive the embarrassment in front of a bunch of salamanders and crocodiles John: ok, fine.
you get a pass, but only because you yourself are a furry.
Jade: thank you
snicker
John: what?
Jade: nothing
John: is someone messaging you through the game?
Jade: hehe
John: who is it?
Jade: pfftt!
John: dammit, jade...
Jade: its davesprite, hes playing too
John: oh.
don't tell him any of our strategies. he is the enemy!
Jade: we have strategies?
John: um...
ok, first, tell him we have strategies. then, don't tell him them.
Jade: hahahahahahaha
John: oh god.
what is it now?
Jade: did you know...
davesprite is a funny guy?
John: meh, he's alright i guess.
i give most of his jokes a passing grade. sometimes as high as a solid b+!
Jade: i just told him you said that John: that's fine, he and i keep no secrets.
Jade: davesprite says to tell you "youre basically welcome for being born 14 years ago and 1 year ago you ungrateful douche"
John: oh, like him taking credit for my existence isn't so old by now!
hey, jade...
why do you still call him davesprite?
Jade: um
because he is davesprite?
John: i just call him dave.
isn't that easier? i mean, he IS dave after all... right?
Jade: well yeah
but hes kinda different from dave John: pshh, he is so not different.
dude is just a magical orange dave with wings! and also says caw sometimes.
Jade: i know
but there are other differences…

John: like what?
Jade: its hard to explain
just some slight differences in personality i guess
John: he still raps sometimes.
Jade: yes...
so?
John: i just thought i would mention that.
Jade: ok i will admit i cant really tell if his rapping style has changed
John: trust me, it hasn't.
Jade: i dont know if the differences are because he is a sprite or because he lived for a while in a different timeline...
John: well, weren't you a sprite before?
how different did you feel then?
Jade: i wasn't a sprite!
my dead dream self was a sprite and then i kind of merged with her when i became a god tier John: oh, right.
so...
half of you was a sprite.
Jade: i guess?
its more like im still the me i always was, but inherited some of her memories
but they are pretty vague
John: do you remember what it was like being jade sprite?
Jade: i remember being dead for a long time and making friends... mostly trolls
John: oh really?
which ones?
Jade: none that we know of now that i can remember at least they feel like such distant memories, like they were barely real John: hmm.
i have to admit, i am a little disappointed in the dream bubble thing.
by the way you were describing it, i really thought we would dream about them on this trip more often!
Jade: yeah me too
maybe its something about this place were traveling through?
John: i dunno.
Jade: when was the last time you visited one in your sleep?
John: man...
that was weeks ago, i think.
Jade: yeah
John: and then, when i do dream about them, it's just kind of weird.
either i'm alone in my own memory, talking to figments of my imagination... or i dream about someone we know. like a troll we have talked to, and i get excited.
but then it turns out they don't know who i am! it's like a version of them that died before they ever even knew us, and it's just kind of awkward.
Jade: yup
John: and i still haven't seen dave or rose At All.

John: yeah.
i'm starting to think it's not going to happen. i wonder if we're just not sleeping at the same times?
Jade: i dont think thats it for one thing, considering where we are, i dont think theres such a thing as "the same time" for us John: heh. that's true.
do you think the afterlife is just fucking with us, jade?
Jade: maybe... but its probably more like the way it used to be with the clouds in skaia they didnt always show you things, but when they did they were selective about what they would let you see like they would make sure you saw whatever you needed to see to make sure things would go the right way i always thought i knew so much, but in retrospect they gave me only a tiny glimpse of the big picture!
John: that is so infuriating!
Jade: i guess!
it never felt that way when all i was doing was looking up at some clouds
i was happy to see whatever was there but i guess its different in a situation like this when you miss your friends, and you kind of wish the dream bubbles would play along John: yeah.
oh well.
i guess it's only two more years.

Jade: well look at it this way Jade: by the end of our trip, will you be better friends with a bunch of salamanders than you are with rose and dave?
John: i don't know. There are some pretty charming salamanders on this ship.
Jade: that is true
John: but you know what i mean. things have a way of changing.
like, have you thought at all about what it's going to be like when you see dave again?
i mean, after the way things are going with you and dave sprite?
Jade: umm
what do you mean the way things are going?
John: jade, please.
Jade: what!
John: sigh
you are not fooling anyone with your coy shenanigans.
Jade: what has he been telling you??
John: nothing!! do you really think he would talk about any of that with me?
there are just some obvious conclusions a guy is going to make about stuff.
Jade: well...
i guess i dont know whats going on with that John: hm.
Jade: i really dont!!!
John: alright, fair enough.
Jade: um
what do you think he would think about that?
John: huh?
Jade: the other dave
i mean
hypothetically
John: ah ha! so you Have thought about it!
Jade: im only wondering because you brought it up!!!!!
John: yes. yes i did.
Jade: then what do you think?

John: yes.
Jade: you told me this on more than one occasion if i recall!
John: what is your point!
Jade: well, i have kind of wondered to myself if you kept bringing that up because on some level you wanted that to be true...
John: oh man.
jade, listen.
at this point i could not give less of a rat's ass about romancey stuff!
i would rather just play some games, and chill out for several years on this magical flying boat. is that too much to ask?
Jade: not at all! that is perfectly fine
John: when i catch up with our buddies, i'm sure i will give rose a nice, Friendly hug.
Jade: aww
John: whereas i will offer dave a tender bro embrace, and shove karkat down a flight of friendship stairs.
Jade: heheheheh
John: but that is it.
it's all very complicated and bothersome, jade.
Jade: what?
John: you know. matters of the heart.
Jade: snicker
John: ok, you may laugh at my choice of words, but it is true.
it's really befuddling and distracting when you are on a major quest to make universes out of frogs.
who even needs it?
Jade: i guess you have a point
John: like...
you remember that troll girl who was sort of into me?
Jade: mm hm
John: well, ok.
that seemed like a pretty big deal at the time!
it really seemed like she liked me, but also, she was probably insane?
like, i mean, in a trollish, murderous kind of way.
Jade: yikes
John: but craziness notwithstanding, i didn't really know what to think.
i guess i thought she was cool at the time. i was honestly kind of flummoxed about it.
but the point is, when all was said and done, that was just some stuff that happened over one day, which was a whole year ago already.
i barely even remember what we talked about. by the time we meet up, she probably won't give a shit about me at all.
which, let's face it, is probably for the best.
Jade: .....
John: i think we make things more meaningful in our head when they're happening than they really are. like realistically? there were probably a lot of things that went on that day that didn't mean that much.
like remember how you said you thought karkat was getting this silly angry crush on you?
Jade: that was just my hunch
John: yeah.
i mean, do you really think after three years he is still going to have the rage hots for you?
Jade: i sincerely doubt it at least i hope not (blank face)
John: i don't think even he is that crazy.
anyway, my point is, who even cares about all that?
romance and dating are dumb and boring. we are legendary heroes, and we have bigger fish to fry.
like that smug fatass over there on the horizon.
he sure looks pleased with himself. just look at him, he thinks he is the undisputed king of that mountain or something.

man, and steal all of his treasure.

He turns to look back over his shoulder. The shadow of someone's foot falls across his face.

John shouts as he gets kicked in the face by a person who is probably Roxy.

Much like Karkat with the bucket, he tries to turn away and the shoe just drags over his face.

He flails his arm as the foot drags through his hair.

He bends over backwards and the person who is probably Roxy stands on his face.

It zooms out. John sits on the ground while Roxy sleep-floats away. Near his head, something small flashes in a red circle with an arrow pointing to it.

It zooms in. Inside the circle, it shows a flashing picture of John sitting on the floor, which has the same flashing picture by its head, on and on until it's too small to see.

The unknown Pisces troll stares towards the two of them with a smug smile on her face.

John: no, we're humans.
by which i mean aliens, i guess.
Meenah: so like
youre dead aliens huh
whoever heard of an alien ghost
John: i know, right? that's what i think sometimes.
It's a strange combination of sci-fi things. like alien stuff is all about science, right? at least it is in movies. aliens love science. but then ghosts have nothing to do with science, they belong to the supernatural realms, which have more to do with religion i guess? or about a lot of hocus pocus and superstition, maybe even magic. science rarely enters the equation, unless it's something awesome like ghostbusters, which makes ghosts and stuff all about science, even though the ghost science is obviously a bunch of total nonsense. i guess contact mixes aliens and ghosts because jodie foster saw her ghost dad in outer space? but then, that was probably just a science projection from an alien, to make her feel less sad about her dead dad, and not a real ghost or anything. i guess the lesson is that science and aliens teach us that ghosts and religion are fake? although, it turns out ghosts and aliens are actually real, so maybe science and religion have been lying to us all along.

well, maybe not pre-chew it, since I didn't exactly knock your teeth out, did i?
maybe more like pre-look-at your food, to make sure there are bugs in it.
see, isn't it great when we're helping each other out instead of maiming each other repeatedly?
this is how it should be between scourge sisters. All the maimings and backstabblings should be hey, what do you want to do for our next campaign, b.t.w.?

I've been keeping an eye on you all for quite a while. Your whole planet, actually. It was very interesting this time around, to say the least.
it even had a different name! "Alternia." Haha. How heavy handed can you get?
the man responsible was a bit of a wise guy. He rewrote everything. He had a knack for overzealous storytelling, which is a harmless enough habit usually. I'm guilty of it myself sometimes.
but it is not so harmless when the perpetrator is omniscient and omnipotent.
G.C.: omniscient?
you mean
mr milkshake???
A.G.: that's right. but he's dead now, and his story is over. The book on our universe is closed, both for my instance and yours.
this being the case, I thought it was the right time to introduce myself. The combined work of my group and yours is unfinished, and the outcome has not been assured.
the true ultimate reward has yet to be achieved. No safe haven has been created that is free from the devastation caused by mr. Milkshake's grand deception.
our race still teeters on extinction. The members of your party, and one noteworthy fugitive, are the sole survivors.
we must work together to create that haven and restore our race, so that the sacrifices we all made will not be in vain.
but in order to repair the unthinkable damage that has been done, we need to allow ourselves the chance to heal first.
old wounds, old regrets. They will serve no purpose on the rest of your journey.
G.C.: regrets are you talking about me and vriska?
A.G.: sure. You have to start somewhere.
G.C.: do you know where she is?
A.G.: not at the moment.
but the more time you spend here, the more likely it is you will find whomever you are looking for.
on the other hand, if it is the unknowable will of the gods, you may dance around each other indefinitely as you pass through this space. It is hard to say.
G.C.: oh
ok then im not sure whether to be relieved or frustrated by that A.G.: well, if she had been dwelling in this bubble like you thought, what would you want to say to her?
surely you would not have just argued about the past.
G.C.: no
I still dont know what I would say to her
A.G.: then what would you say to me?

G.C.: I would say even though she did some bad things and was totally impossible most of the time I wish she wasnt dead is it weird to miss somebody who did nothing but cause problems?
she was a serious troublemaker in your party. Many player groups have to deal with those.
I feel as though we had one of the worst cases in our party. But when all was said and done, she was still our friend.
G.C.: I keep wondering if there was another way something other than letting her go, or killing her I try to remember what I saw when I looked into the vortices of possibility and I just can't remember anything besides those options even if those other choices would have resulted in death for everyone was that really all I was capable of?
either losing the nerve to go through with it, or stabbing her in the back, and nothing else?
A.G.: at that moment, perhaps.
you know very well the channels of possibility at that exact juncture resulted from her decision paths as well as yours.
but even so, when it comes to your key decisions, the possibilities are probably fewer and more discrete than you have presumed.
otherwise you would not see results consolidated into those vortices, would you? Possibility would resemble an enormous hazy field of infinitely subtle variations and micro-choices.
image if at that moment you truly were capable of anything, no matter how outlandish, absurd, or patently fruitless. How would this vast amount of information present itself to you through your senses? What difference would it make in your final decision if all other tributaries of whim spilled into the same decaying future? And what would this make of your agency as a hero meant to learn and grow?
look at it this way. Imagine that over the course of someone's life, they are truly capable of every conceivable action at any moment, and did indeed take each of those actions in different branching realities. Doesn't a scenario like that deaden a person's agency just as much as one where their fate is decidedly etched in stone as a single path of unavoidable decisions? Who exactly is that person who can and does take all conceivable actions, other than someone perfectly generic, who only appears to have unique predilections and motives when you examine the arbitrary path they happen to occupy?
G.C.: um
I dont know
A.G.: pardon the esoteric tangent. These are my instincts as a hero of light kicking in. It's hard for us to resist prattling on about matters like this.
G.C.: oh god like rose yeah she never shuts up about it no offense (smiling face with furrowed brows)
A.G.: (smiling face with eight eyes) you may seek to understand your decisions and look for justice in their consequences. You may wonder why honorable choices from the innocent are punished by banishment to a timeline in which everyone dies and all is gradually dissolved.
it helps to understand your role, not just as a hero who must overcome, but as a single capillary within a much larger bioexistential system.
think of it like circulatory system, where the veins and capillaries that do not help the overall flow of blood through the system are likely to wither and die. Those are doomed offshoots. reality itself is using you and many others to propagate its own existence. Strictly speaking, there is only one path to its successful propagation. But it still permits you to make choices. Not all that are conceivable, but some nevertheless, as dictated by who you are and the challenges you face. And you are free to make key decisions however you like, as long as you understand that some of these paths unfairly or not will lead to oblivion. Because those choices do not contribute constructively to the perpetuation of all existence, including your own.
such is the burden assumed by anyone who plays this game.

[Image description: The room vanishes around them and they're standing on a thick tree branch with the yellow scalemate hanged behind Aranea's head.]
I guess I understood some of that, but never quite put it all together that way. I don't think I was a great seer of mind. A.G.: well, you aren't finished being one, are you? G.C.: meh. I don't think of myself that way anymore. I used to feel like some pretty hot shit! Directing battle traffic against the king, and all flipping coins in people's faces and stuff. It seems silly now. I don't think I ever knew what I was doing when I confronted her, and it was time to make up my mind. I thought I had it all figured out, like this was what I had to do. Not just to save everybody, but as some stupid rite of passage or something? Then it came time to do it, and it was all happening so fast... And I forced my own hand. I could either let everyone die in one reality, or kill a friend in another and I tell myself those were the only two vortices I saw... But then, I was the one who made the series of decisions which led up to that choice, and completely painted the options into that corner anyway. I just wish I could tell her that. A.G.: which one would you tell it to? G.C.: huh? A.G.: the one who fought with Noir, or the one who didn't?

A.G.: which one would you tell it to? G.C.: huh? A.G.: the one who fought with Noir, or the one who didn't?

Image description: Aranea walks towards where the branch narrows.

I mean. I guess either? But I was thinking more about the one whose death I am actually responsible for. A.G.: ah. Well, this could either be my experience as an ancient ghost talking, or the perspective I am naturally given to as a light player, but aren't you equally responsible for both? G.C.: (uncertain face with furrowed brows) I guess. A.G.: I can see why you would feel more responsibility for one than the other. My perspective is informed by my class and aspect. It was to my advantage as a healer to see things a little differently. To find equanimity across many different outcomes. G.C.: oh? A.G.: there's more to the realization of our roles than gaining flashy powers. And there's more to healing than repairing battle damage. You killed a friend and you understandably feel regret. But it's done. She is gone and you are still here. Now what? G.C.:...

Image description: They both walk along the branch, which has become narrow enough that they have to hold out their arms to keep their balance. It keeps snaking into the distance and the sky behind it turns into the synapse clouds of the Land of Thought and Flow.]

A.G.: you could look for absolution through rationalization. Everyone would have died if you didn't take action, so why trouble yourself with guilty emotion? but there is no real healing power in believing that. And I don't think it's what you wanted to tell yourself anyway, is it?
G.C.: not really
A.G.: or what about through renunciation of responsibility? If you were just a tool used by reality to perpetuate itself, where is the blame? but that would be another empty idea that has no power to heal.
G.C.: yeah
ive tried rationalizing stuff that way doesn't really help
A.G.: you've been lead to believe such acts of violence are natural for your kind, and that if you're upset by the consequences then something is wrong with you. but it isn't as natural as you might think. That conditioning was a part of milkshake's long con. violence was respected and celebrated on your world, but remorse was rarely felt and pain could never heal due to such empty justifications. We died out a wounded race, and you are all that's left. the process of healing first involves sifting through what it isn't, which happens to be almost everything your troubled mind has to offer.
G.C.: then what do I do?
what's the answer?
A.G.: there isn't one.

G.C.: its cool that you want to help heal me and all but I still dont really know anything about you other than that you seem like some sort of much nicer vriska where were you from again? Alternia before vanilla milkshake named it that?
A.G.: yes. But in a different universe instance, I often refer to as a1. The shorthand helps avoid confusion, trust me. my group of twelve played the game, but failed. It overwhelmed us. A lot went wrong. The reckoning destroyed our battlefield well before we had any hope of winning. I sought advice from echidna, and she told me how to scratch the session to give us another chance. but the choice to do so came with accepting the annihilation of our existing forms. In the new instance, we would lead completely different lives with no memory of what happened. so we did, and created a2. Your instance, your world, and your game in which we were all inexplicably created in the first place. as I said, this time around the world was........ Interesting.
G.C.: that's when trolls became terrible?
A.G.: not all of you. some had lessons from the old world to teach others. But few ever heard them.
G.C.: so in your time, everyone was as nice as you?
A.G.: not exactly. But life was pretty mild and uneventful. I'm not even sure if I was especially nice, by our standards. mostly kind of boring. nobody from my party liked me a whole lot. I think I talked too much, and had a habit of bringing conversations back around to myself. not that it matters anymore, but it was not the best way to make friends.
G.C.: hehehehe. You really are like a nice vriska I dunno, I was friends with her and she did almost nothing but talk about herself im pretty sure you and I would have been good friends too!
A.G.: thanks! it goes to show, just because your race is peaceful doesn't mean you don't have problems. I used to fantasize about being someone really outgoing and dramatic. someone who had the confidence do whatever she wanted, like go on the most outrageous adventures without caring what anyone thought about her. like someone from a book, you know?
G.C.: yes! I used to think about that a lot too (smiley face with furrowed brows) A.G.: it turned out I actually got what I wanted after the reset. Unfortunately it came along with our people's enslavement and near extinction. not that I really got to live as her, exactly. But at least I got a chance to follow her life. And it was a very long life. being here for ages has its benefits.
pesterlog
G.C.: exactly how long have you all been living in dream bubbles?

or I mean...
not living

A.G.: it has been a very long time.

so long, time has been stripped of the meaning it never really had in the first place.

it doesn't really pass in the same way it does when you're alive. Concepts like "now" and "how long" are figures of speech used to make communication simpler.

I've quit trying to give expression to the elusive temporal properties of this place. It's easier staying conversational.

but I will say that being here "for so long" lends itself to a certain detachment from what you see. Otherwise, monitoring the atrocities stemming from our failure wouldn't be much fun.

G.C.: do you miss your world as much as I do?

but missing it usually invites memories of home to serve as the stage.

not that it's a substitute for the previous reality. But the reminders of home are everywhere.

G.C.: what about your friends? I guess you still get to hang out with them all?

A.G.: yes. I see them often enough.

except for one, whom I haven't seen at all since before we all died.

in fact, she's the only reason we are here in the first place, as opposed to merely ceasing to exist upon the scratch.

in life, she was the only one I would have called a close friend, in a way.

the thing is, nobody liked her much either. We had that in common. (smiling face with eight eyes)

G.C.: wow, its been that long since you saw her?

A.G.: remember how I said the gods could keep you dancing around someone you're looking for indefinitely?

G.C.: yeah but...

billions of sweeps??

G.C.: is she by any chance the troublemaker you were talking about?

A.G.: that's right. In fact, we are on our way to visit her now.

G.C.: oh

so thats where this branch is taking us!

A.G.: notice the moon up there?

and not the larger green interloper. That one never belonged to my world. It is your memory, not mine.

G.C.: yeah the cute little bubblegum moons! Thats where she is?

A.G.: it's the setting of the memory she entered.

from her perspective, she has just arrived here.

your friends should be joining us too, before your meteor clears the bubble.

maybe together we can bring the thief of life up to speed.

Act 6 Act 3: Nobles, part

[s] Act 6 Act 3

[Image description: The song Rain begins to play. The green curtains open to a white circle against a black background. It slowly zooms in and the white fades to the surface of a planet. It's mostly land with large bodies of water scattered across the surface, connected by snaking rivers. Large, colorful objects float in low orbit. It fades to an areal shot of a greyscale, mountainous landscape with large lakes and a river. A dark cloud crosses the screen. The colorful objects are large hot air balloons that drop rain onto the land below. It fades to black, then to a view of the same land, but from a point closer to the ground. A large, almost cathedral like building sits on the horizon and a gazebo-like building sits on top of a hill. Several of the hot air balloons hover at various points across the landscape, which is dotted with white, leafless trees and lines of yellow. It pans up over the balloons, showing more of the cloudy sky. The name appears at the top of the screen.

Land of Crypts and Helium

Everything fades to black, then to another point on the planet, where a red and white object sits near a river. It zooms in. It's Jane's house, on top of a red and orange balloon. The balloon is sunken into a hole in the bottom of a dry lakebed. The water is held back by a grey dam. Two obelisks flank the dam and a grey walkway leads up towards Jane's house. It doesn't quite connect to the piece of yard that came with her, though. Instead, it stops several feet short. The balloons settles slowly.

It fades to Jane standing on the main platform of her alchemiter. The still unprototyped kernelsprite floats above her. She looks off of her balcony towards the walkway, which is a good distance away.

An orange arrow points towards the end of the walkway and a grey text box appears at the top of the screen.

Wherever your house is now, it's sinking in a hurry. Better act fast!

This panel is interactive.

Click the one that points down the hole.
It zooms out to show the whole area. Jane's house is gone. There's still an arrow by Jane.

Click the pit.
It's very dark down there. You can't see your house. No telling how far it sank. Oh no! You just realized your dad must be down there. You hope he's ok.

Click the obelisks.
Two obelisks bearing curious symbols and mirrors affixed at the top. Weird.

Click the dam.
Good thing this dam is here. Otherwise your house would be getting waterlogged in addition to being stuck on top of a huge balloon in a pit.

It returns to Jane on the walkway. Click the arrow that points down the path.
A blue silhouette of Jane walks down a walkway. There's a white, leafless tree to her left and a pair of raining balloons on the horizon. Just beyond her, it turns into stairs and winds over a hill, down into a valley, and up towards another hill. At the top of that hill, there's a new arrow. There's also one behind her, but that just returns to the walkway.

Click the arrow at the top of the hill.
You look out over a valley flanked by two ridges. A path runs along each of the ridges, each with an arrow pointing towards it. There are a series of lakes in the valley and yellow lines cross the ridges. Water pours from an archway beneath the gazebo-like building.

Click the arrow leading to the left path.
The image shifts over and you stand at another branch. One path leads towards the cathedral-like building in the distance. One leads down under the waterfall, to another building sunk into the ground. A third leads back to the first branch.

Click the one that goes under the waterfall.
You stand on the path that goes under the waterfall. An arrow leads back to the path and another leads to the door in the ground.

Click the one leading to the door.
You stand in a hallway lined with reptile runes. Another arrow leads deeper into the crypt.

Click it.
You stand on a walkway that runs through a massive cave. Stalactites hang from the ceiling and a large crack in the rock spills yellow and pink plants. There's a Roxy alert over your head.

Click the plants.
More signs of life hidden in the cracks. It's as if the land wants to be lush and fertile, but nothing can survive on the surface. It's making the whole cave smell like a flower shop.

Back in the game, click the arrow at the other end of the walkway.
You stand on a walkway just above an underground lake. A few stalagmites rise above the water level, but the ceiling is absolutely crowded with stalactites. In the water, there are two reddish-brown orbs with starburst shapes on the top and white roots reaching out into the water. In the center of the starbursts, tiny hot air balloons pulse. The path widens into a platform against the wall. On the wall, there is a drawing of a fourth wall flanked by drawings of salamanders. There are grey tablets that look like the ones used in the Parcel Pyxis on LoWaS, a strange object topped by an orb, and several small red objects on the platform. There's a door in the bottom right quadrant of the fourth wall, which has an arrow pointing to it.

Click the object with the orb.
The switch has no power. It does nothing! You flip it up and down a bunch and nothing just keeps on happening.

Click one of the red pods.
It is a young Seed Pod, yet to be released to the surface. Looks like it needs a lot more helium.

Click tablets on the right side of the platform.
Some very old stone tablets, along with carving apparatus. They say:

"We spent so long tending to our sacred seed pods. Each I cared for and released was like a precious bubble glubbed from my own mouth! They would seed our planet in anticipation of the Maid's arrival. Alas, it turned out we had the prophecy all wrong. Our scholars discovered she would not arrive for millions of years! Our kind would not survive to welcome her. So our elders gave us a new purpose. We must all go to work building our own graves! Some say this is not as much fun as tending to seed pods and a life of simple agriculture. But I think it could be a blast! I'm just a 'balloon is half inflated' kind of guy I guess."

Click the tablets on the left.
More old stone tablets. They say:

"When heart looks northwest, my seed pod will rise! I am so proud of it.

As a pod uses up its water, it becomes lighter and lighter. It eventually floats away into the Medium. It's said that some very lucky few will eventually reach Skaia itself! If you have a wish, you can carve it into the pod. If it reaches Skaia, your wish will come true!

I want to carve something, but I can't think of what to wish for. Maybe some delicious bugs? Think, imagination! The one time I really need you."

Carve something in the seed pod?
Yes or No
Yes.
It shows a crude carving of Poppop's face on the starburst of the red orb.

Carving stuff is even harder than drawing stuff. And frankly, you're not sure even Skaia can deliver on this wish. You blew it so hard. But hey, a girl can dream, right?
Click the fourth wall drawn on.
The people here were highly skilled artisans. What is that, some sort of giant window? You can't imagine That has much significance. You give it no further consideration.

Click the arrow to the door.
You stand in a room with a grey door on the right side on the back wall. The door has a life symbol in the center. To the right of the door, there's a large button with a salamander skull sitting on it. To the left, there's a shelf inset in the wall with several bones on it.

Click the bones.
A little chamber full of bones. You guess the remains of an old salamander or something? This is just such a piss poor burial job.

Click the door.
The door is locked. There's a strange symbol on it which you find mysteriously alluring. The more you look at it, the more you think it's just so cool. You could totally see wearing that thing on a shirt. Yeah...

Click the skull.
There's a skull weighing this thing down. Could be an obvious boobytrap. Gonna take some bravery to swipe it. What do you say? Take Salamander Skull?
Yes or No.
Yes.
It shows a round hole in the ground and a new obelisk rises out of it.

Exit the room, then the cave, and then go back to the original branch point. Take the right path this time.
You stand at the base of an obelisk part of the way down the path. An arrow points over a distant hill.

Click it.
You now stand at a curve in the path. Lil Seb dances under a white tree to your right. The path curves off to the left, past an obelisk and towards another arrow. There's a caduceus alert over your head.

Click Lil Seb.
Lil Sebastian!!! What are you doing all the way out here? It looked like you were going down with the ship. Your fidgety little legs sure do help you get around fast.
Anyway, you shouldn't be dancing around here in the middle of nowhere unsupervised like this. You should come along.
Take Lil Sebastian?
Yes or No
Yes.
Lil Sebastian appears in a captchalogue card in the upper right.

Click the alert.
Answer UU?
Yes or No
Yes.
This opens another page. Jane's Crosbytop sits against the base of the tree. It has a caduceus alert over it and a chat window open.

U.U.: huzzah! You did it! (Very smiley face with closed eyes) did what, exactly?
U.U.: made it to locah! Your own personal planet inside the game, tailored to your personal quest. I've observed you here before, of course. But this is the first time I've contacted you here. Better to keep things on the up and up vis a vis our mutual linearity, no?
G.G.: sure.
U.U.: sure? (gasping face)
G.G.: yes. Sorry. I'm still feeling a little overwhelmed by what just happened. A giant pit seems to have swollen my house whole! My dad is missing too. I think I should try to find him as soon as possible.
G.G.: ha ha, you call this grumpy?
U.U.: wasn't I being? (gasping face)
G.G.: not exactly!
U.U.: well good! I do my best. Really, as if my dreadful nap were not bad enough, I woke up to find my coplayer has made a terrible mess in here. But the good news is he has at least agreed to play with me once and for all. Some people make nothing easy.
G.G.: that's good.
but wait...
I thought you said you've never met him?
U.U.: um.
I haven't!
not in person.
G.G.: then how did he make a mess in there?
did he break into your room while you were asleep?
U.U.: oh, yes, well, hmm. The thing with that is this. The thing with that is that we should talk about something else!
G.G.: huh?
U.U.: why must you be such the vigilant gumshoe, jane? Always with the gumshooery. Pitch that puzzlesavvy toward the conundra littered about your planet!
I'm becoming grumpy again. Do forgive me. What do you think of the place by the by?
G.G.: uh...
U.U.: your new home!
G.G.: oh.
It's rather desolate. Pretty eerie, actually. I haven't run into anyone at all. I think I might be alone here?
Yes isn't it great?
G.G.: the balloons are nice, I suppose.
U.U.: reminds me much of home. So peaceful, so much space to yourself and time to think. You're so lucky. I can't wait to get to my planet!
G.G.: yes. But what about your brother?
U.U.: right, that.
about that.
Got to run! Ta, kisses, all that stuff!!! (kissy face with closed eyes)
G.G.: hey!
uranianUmbra [UU] ceased cheering gutsyGumshoe [G.G.]

[Close tab and continue playing game in original tab.]

Click the arrow at the end of the path.
You stand in a greyscale desert with a massive mountain behind you. There's a large salamander carved into the side of the mountain. There are three holes in the ground, and one obelisk. The hole on the left is the smallest and they get bigger as they go right. A green and yellow balloon rains water into the largest hole. There's a faint line making a circle around the obelisk. Could this be the one that rose when you took the skull?

Click the salamander carving.
A creature carved into the side of the hill. Probably a member of an ancient species that went extinct long ago, leaving behind the remains of this ancient civilization.

Click the hot air balloon.
Another one of these colorful bouyant pods emerging from its hole. Thousands of these things roam around seeding and watering the planet. Yet nothing grows...

Click the holes.
You can't see a thing in any of these holes. It's too dark. Maybe if you could find some way to shine a light down there?

Click the obelisk.
This ancient obelisk has some sort of mirror affixed to its peak. You wonder what the deal is with these things? You vaguely hazard that it's got "something to do with puzzles."

Leave the holes and go back to the first branch. Go down the left path again, and this time head towards the cathedral-like building.

You walk towards a building that looks like the entrance of an old, european cathedral. It's set into the base of the hill with the gazebo-like structure on top. The hill has a large crack in the side, where pink, orange, and yellow plants try to spill out. Enter the building.
You stand in a room filled with pillars, which support archways that make up the ceiling. There are bones, tablets, and a black smear on the floor. At the end of the row of pillars you stand in, there is a set of stairs leading up to another door.

Click the leftmost tablet.
New words of wisdom from the elders! From Hemera's lips to our slimy amphibious ears.

The Nobles will arrive one by one. First to LoCaH, then to LoPaN. Then comes LoToK, followed by LoMaX. One by one, the Nobles will come, only to discover the remains of those who worshipped them and paved the way for their arrival.

But then it is their duty to pave the way for others. For those from the planets through the glass, whatever that means. LoWaS, LoLaR, LoHaC, LoFaF... you know what? That's too many letters. The alphabet confuses me sometimes.

Click the tablet closest to the back door.
When times were simpler, we called them the Four Heroes. Our stories were so much happier and easy to understand, but we were living in delusion. When it became clear the Heroes could not fulfill their destiny by some cosmic flaw, they became known as the Nobles. It pretty much means the same thing, but is a title more commonly reserved for martyrs or tragic figures who toil in futility. The new scripture states it will require divine intervention for the Nobles to achieve victory. So there's at least one thing to be hopeful for. Unfortunately, a more recent tenet of our ever-unfolding myth states that the aspect of Hope itself is dead on arrival, so...
Click the tablet closes to you.
Our people have waited for centuries for the Four Nobles to arrive, and it seems we will wait centuries more. We will wait so long that apparently we will all die waiting? That's what we're supposed to do they say. It's just a big waiting game up in here. And when the Nobles finally arrive, then apparently They have to wait too! We're told they cannot summon the Speaker of the Vast Croak without help. So they must wait for another four to arrive. Gods they say. Together they will raise the Speaker and fight invincible demons I think? I used to think I understood our folklore. It made me happy to think about greeting the Maid. But then it all changed, and now its kind of complicated and distressing and sad? Ah well, I'll just keep building crypts and carving tablets like I'm told.

Click the rightmost tablet.
It you are readig this it m e ans i m dead

Dang!

car ving stone i5 har d, i wan t to go bak to farmin pods (sad face)

[Translation: If you are reading this, it means I'm dead.
Dang!
Carving stone is hard,
I want to go back to farming pods (sad face.)]

Go through the other door.
You stand at the base of the stairs. A tablet lays on the ground next to a skull on a pedestal. Two more lean against pillars.

Click the skull.
Oh hey there's a skull you just Gotta have it.
Take turtle skull?
Yes or No.
Yes.
The turtle skull appears in a captchalogue card.

Click the tablet on the floor.
This tablet contains an enthusiastic story about the Maid of Life, who is obviously you. It seems the author doesn't really understand human physiology. In the story you are blowing bubbles in excitement, and there are allusions to the shiny layer of slime coating your skin. You can't read any more. Fan fiction written by any species is always a tough read.

Click the tablet against the back pillar.
This tablet appears to contain a hastily carved list of someone's favorite bugs? There's hardly any anecdotal lore or wisdom at all. You guess not all of these ancient tablets can be winners.

Click the tablet against the other pillar.
"It is strange to think the only one alive left in the land to greet the Maid will be Hemera herself! What an incredible encounter between legends that will be. Of course, she will have been slumbering for centuries when the Maid finally arrives. It's funny how all the stories we grew up believing have been changing. Of course I love all our old stories, but personally I think the new ones are just as interesting. Yes, I know, I know. Unpopular opinion!"

Go up the stairs.
You stand just outside the gazebo. There is a small stone structure to the right, which holds the end of a chain leading through a hole in the roof. Inside the gazebo, there are glowing lanterns. There's a Jake alert over Jane's head.

Click the alert.
Aw man. Jake's pestering you. You don't think you have it in you to answer after the last catastrophic encounter. Not yet, at least. Take a look at what he has to say anyway?
Yes or No.
Yes.

This opens a new page. Jane's crosbytop sits against the base of the gazebo. It has a Jake alert and a chat window open.

G.T.: Ahoy!
Jane? Yoo hoo.
No dice?
Okey doke then i just wanted to see what was up with you.
I figured you must be starting up the game by now? Cant wait to get the scoop!
I just had a lets say encounter with dirks dumb robot and well its over now lets just leave it at that.
Headed into the ruins now to seal the deal with this rabbit malarkey finally. Then i can join you!
Not a moment too soon probably. I think this volcano is about to blow?
Its making me mighty nervous im not going to lie.
The grounds been shaking and everything.
Wup!
There it goes again aw frig this is a big one.
Ohhhh shit.

GolgothasTerror's [G.T.] skull helmet computer ceased operating due to a severe blow to the head.

G.G.: Jake! Wait!
Oh no.

[Close tab and continue playing game in original tab.]

Click the structure holding the chain.
There is a skull shaped indentation. Something probably needs to go in there. As for what, you think you'll need one of your fanciest detective mustaches to crack that mystery.
Put a skull in there?
Yes or No.
Yes.

Four captchalogue cards appear across the top of the screen. The leftmost has the salamander skull. The rightmost has the turtle skull. The other two are blank.

Choose the turtle skull.
That skull won't fit!!! No, stop. It's such an obvious mismatch. Don't even try. Jane, put the skull down.

Try again. This time, choose the salamander skull.
The lanterns lift up as the chain winds in. It zooms in on the lanterns. They're hanging from a round piece of metal, almost like a chandelier. Each of them is a different color; blue, pink, orange, and green. The green lantern isn't lit.
The lanterns have been hoisted. Three beams of light shine from the tower.
The thing spits the skull back out. You grab it. No reason to squander a perfectly good puzzle skull. You think Jake would agree. The captchalogue card with the salamander skull appears in the bottom right.

Click the skull receptacle.
No need to mess with this thing anymore. Thinking it's going to serve any further purpose is just being bad at puzzles, frankly.

Click the gazebo, though it's probably more accurate to call it a lighthouse now. You stand inside, looking towards two pillars. Each has a tablet carved into it.

Click the left one.
One by one the Nobles will arrive, and just as surely, one by one their lights will be snuffed out. In the beginning, the light of our Hope was lost. We must make do without it, and so must they. Then a mighty gust came and took the light of our Life as well, and our people knew despair like never before. But the light soon renewed its flicker quite spontaneously, and has been shining strong since. All in the land rejoiced.

Click the right one.
Our lights of Heart and Void will each follow in time, long after our extinction. One will be extinguished, and then another, leaving only Life as the guiding light. But they should remain long enough to illuminate the Maid's path, and assist her with the housekeeping we have left behind.

Click the lanterns.
If you didn't have Lil Seb, it would say Four lanterns suspended from the tower. They are very bright. But the green one is burnt out. There does not appear to be a way to light it.

But since you do have Lil Seb, it says
Tell Lil Sebastian to climb up?
Yes or No.
Yes.

Lil Seb runs over to the skull receptacle and climbs up the chain. He stands on top of the chandelier.

Click the lanterns.
Rotate the lanterns?
Yes or No.
They turn so the order is now pink, green, blue, orange. The lights shining out of the lighthouse change with them.

Turn them again.
The order is now green, orange, pink, blue.

Click Lil Seb.
Call Lil Seb back down?
Yes or No.
Yes.
He jumps down and appears in a captchalogue card in the bottom right.

Leave the lighthouse, then go all the way back to the pit your house fell into.
A blue light shines onto the mirror on top of the rightmost obelisk. The mirror reflects it down into the hole.

Click the obelisk.
The mirrors reflect the light. The direction it goes in depends on the color. Must be some advanced refraction principle in play.

Click the pit.
A beam of light enters the pit. It's still too dark to see much. You don't want to risk tossing Seb down without knowing what's at the bottom. There must be a way down there...

Go back to the branch and take the right path down to the holes. From the lighthouse, the orange light shines left, the blue shines towards the house, and the pink shines back towards the field with the holes. Keep going. The pink light shines onto the mirror on the obelisk there, which redirects it down into the smallest hole.

Click the obelisk.
It looks like the mirror at the top is designed to reflect light in different directions depending on the color of the beam. How mysterious.

Click the hole the light goes into.
The pink light is illuminating an object at the bottom. But it's way too far down for you to jump. If only you had a nimble little helper to send down there to investigate.

Deploy Lil Seb to check it out?
Yes or No.
Yes.
Lil Seb jumps down the hole. A series of mirrors bounce the light back and forth down the hole until it shines on a switch at the bottom. A path leads from the bottom of Seb's hole to a pointed doorway to the left. It branches towards the bottom of another hole to the right of the one Seb is in. There is a mausoleum in that one. It's plainer than Jaspers's and looks fairly dirty. Seb flicks the switch and the mausoleum rises up towards the surface.

Click the mausoleum.
Enter mausoleum?
Yes or No.
Yes.

You enter the mausoleum, which goes back down to the bottom of the hole. You step out onto the walkway.

Click Lil Seb.
Dear, sweet, precious, sweet, sweet, loyal Little Sebastion. SHIT YOU MEAN LIL.

Go through the doorway.
You stand in a very small, round room. There is a grate on the wall under a switch currently flipped downwards. In the center, there is another button. This one has a crocodile skull on it.

Click the skull.
Fuckin' Jackpot.
Take crocodile skull?
Yes or No.
Yes.

The button un-presses and a metal door slams shut behind you. Elsewhere...
It cuts to the little alcove with bones in it inside the first tomb you went to. A metal cover slams down over that one too. The cover has three skulls carved in it. It returns to you as Jane in the little room.

Click the door.
Door's locked. Now what, Crocker??

Click the pedestal.
The pedestal is now empty. Wanna put something else there?
Yes or No.
Yes.

Three captchalogue cards appear at the top. From left to right, they are the Wise Guy book, a cake, and the salamander skull.

Click Wise Guy.
You put the book down on the button and the door pops open. Elsewhere...
The cover on the bone alcove opens.

Click Wise Guy.
Man, this ain't a solution to Anything leavin' this here. Also it's such a great book. Why waste it on a room full of dumb beetles. Take Wise Guy?
Yes or No.
Yes.
The door slams shut. Elsewhere…
The cover closes.

Try again, and this time use the salamander skull.
The door opens and, elsewhere, the cover closes.

Click the skull.
You almost feel embarrassed for thinking this was the solution to this puzzle. Let's just sweep this blunder under the rug. No one ever needs to be the wiser. Take Salamander skull?
Yes or No.
Yes.
The door closes and the cover opens.

Try one more time, this time with the cake.
The door opens and the cover closes.

Click the cake.
One the one hand, puzzles need solving. On the other hand, oh god that cake looks so delicious. Hmmmnnnnnnnnnn. Take Cake?
Yes or no.
No.

Click the grate.

The seed pod you carved the picture of Poppop into earlier grows into one of the balloons and rises out of the cave. When it pops off of the base, a skull comes out of it and lands to the side.

Click the remains of the pod.
The Seed Pod has been released, leaving behind an empty husk. Will it reach Skaia? You suppose you will never know.

If you tried to carve the seed pod after it was released, it would say
You can't carve anything! The pod is gone. Talk about a missed opportunity. Oh well, so much for magical wishes. As if magic isn't so totally fake anyway. But you carved it before it was released, so it doesn't matter.

Click the switch.
Flip switch?
Yes or no.
Yes.
You flip the switch again. You hear a rush of wind come from the hole vacated by the seed pod. Guess there isn't much point to this thing anymore.

Click the skull.
Take skull?
Yes or No.
Yes.
You got an IGUANA SKULL!
The iguana skull appears in a captchalogue card in the bottom left.

Enter the little room through the fourth wall.
You stand in the same room as before, but now the bone alcove is closed with the skulls panel. Now with references, it looks like the order is crocodile, turtle, iguana.

Click the pedestal.
There's no reason to do anything with this pedestal anymore. You could jump up and down on it you guess. That would be some especially pointless tomfoolery though.

Click the space below the alcove.
An engraving: "When three visitors look inward, the way to the Maid's palace will be clear."

Click the panel.
There are three skull shaped indentations on the panel. You wonder what could go in the indentations? You are going to go out on a limb and guess... precious gemstones. Yes, that's it.

But seriously. Put a skull in one of the indentations?
Yes or No.
Yes.
The four captchalogue cards with skulls appear at the top of the screen. From left to right, they are salamander, crocodile, iguana, and turtle.

Click the salamander skull.
The salamander skull doesn't fit in any of the slots!!! You try to cram it in to no avail. Will you cut that out? I said it doesn't fit!

Click the panel again.
The cards reappear.
Click the crocodile skull.
It pops into the first slot with a mechanical clank. The skull is facing inwards, so all that can be seen is the back of its skull.

Click the panel again and choose the turtle skull.
It pops into the center slot with another clank.

Do it again, this time with the iguana skull.
It pops in like the others. Both the door and alcove slide open. There's a boonbuck inside the alcove.

Click the boonbuck.
You got a Boonbuck!

You do a little dance.

Click the open door.
Itzooms in on the blackness beyond the door until the whole panel is black. White words appear. Proceed to the Next Page.

A.R.: Looks like you're getting the hang of these puzzles.
Nice work.
G.G.: Thank you!
That last skull was a doozy, to be honest.
A.R.: Yeah, I guess. If you have a human brain, sure.
Personally, I've already solved all conceivable skull puzzles for all possible skull states, which is a thing that's like, no big deal for me?
Hey, I thought you couldn't see me once I left the house?
A.R.: I can't. Not through the server's viewport.
But I can still monitor your progress through Lil Sebastian.
He and I are linked the hell up cyberwise. We are so tight. Tight like you wouldn't believe.
G.G.: Oh yeah?
A.R.: It's like he is the Incredible Hulk's pants, and I am his monstrous package yearning to bust loose.
G.G.: Bleh, why??
A.R.: Jane.
It seems there is a way bigger than average probability that you do not want to discuss Bruce Banner's megalithic gamma schlong.
G.G.: That figure would be sitting pretty at one hundred percent.
A.R.: Holy shit!
Some of my circuits exploded. That number was intense to robo-consider.
G.G.: Ok, let's stop talking about stupid things for a minute. What a completely absurd environment for our typical blithering discourse.
I am hot on the prowl for more clues about this strange and mysterious land!
A.R.: Ha ha.
G.G.: What?
A.R.: I don't know.
Just, ha ha to that.
G.G.: Anyway, I think I'm getting closer to finding where my house went.
Then I can reunite with dad, and together we can sleuth this great big pickle of a planet!
A.R.: Well, the good news is your house should be just ahead, if you keep following the trail.
G.G.: Yes, I knew it!
A.R.: The bad news is your dad's not there anymore.
G.G.: Oh no!
A.R.: I guess he got antsy and left to explore. Maybe he's looking for you?
I tried to block him from leaving with some furniture, but the dude was having none of it.
G.G.: Golly, why did he have to leave??
This really complicates matters. I hope he doesn't get lost.
A.R.: Don't worry, we'll find him. I'll have Seb search within a likely radius. The little guy is real fast.
G.G.: Yes. Good idea.
A.R.: In the meantime, you'd better go find your house. We aren't making any progress in this game without it. It's kinda central to the gameplay, you know?
If you need Seb to do anything from afar, just message me, and I'll give him the orders. Got it?
G.G.: Got it! Thanks!

Click the arrow.
You now stand on a different section of pathway. It runs over dry land, which has many dark spots on it. It curves to the left to avoid a waterfall, then curves back and continues towards a doorway in the far wall. Something white sits on the ground and shakes.
Click it.
Something is clogging the hole. Remove it?
Yes or No.
Yes.
A white fedora appears in a captchalogue card.
You got your dad's Hat! Looks like it got sucked into one of the air holes. Luckily he always keeps some spares in his wallet. But this means he came by this way earlier...

Click one of the dark spots.
Helium is rushing in and out of these air holes! While you are inspecting them, you breathe some in and it makes your voice sound funny! Hee hee.

Go through the door.
You stand at the edge of a jagged platform overlooking a deep shaft. Hanging in the shaft is a red and orange seed pod, which supports Jane's house. Mirrors are dotted over the walls and two switches sit on the platform. An icon of Lil Seb's face sits in the upper left corner.

Click either switch.
The switch has no power!

Click the house.
Hey there's your house! But's its way too far away to jump this time.

Click Lil Seb.
Message Auto-Responder to tell Lil Seb to rotate the lanterns?
Yes or No.
Yes.

Lil Seb turns the lantern until the orange one shines towards the hole Jane's house went down. The light reflects off the two obelisks and down into the hole.

Back in the hole, the orange light reflects off the mirrors until it hits the right switch.
Click it.

Yes or No.
Yes.
The house rises a little.
A jetstream of air flows out of the hole, pushing the balloon higher. But not high enough...
It sinks back down.
Gotta try something else.

Click Lil Seb.
Message Auto-Responder to tell Lil Seb to rotate the lanterns?
Yes or No.
Yes.

Lil Seb turns the lantern until the blue one shines towards the hole Jane's house went down. The light reflects off the right obelisk and down into the hole.

Back in the hole, the light bounces off mirrors until it hits the left switch.
Click it.
Flip switch?
Yes or No.
Yes.
The dam pops open, letting a stream of water down into the hole.
The water lands on top of the house.
The waterfall pushes your house down, connecting the seed pod with its husk. Aw man, everything in your house is probably getting soaked.
Get Lil Seb to rotate the lanterns.
The pink light reflects off the right obelisk and up into the sky.

Make Lil Seb rotate them again.
The green lantern is burned out, so no light shines towards the hole.

One more time.
The orange light bounces off both obelisks again.

Click the orange switch.
Flip switch?
Yes or No.
Yes.
The seed pod under the house expands a little, then pops off the husk. The house floats back up to the top of the hole.
Your house has finally resurfaced. You retrace your steps back home. Sadly, your father will not be waiting for you there. Still, better to regroup before you go off looking for him.

You stand at the top of the hill just beyond Jane's house. Click the arrow to head back to her house. Jane looks down the path towards her house. A horned figure wearing a purple outfit stands on top of the fridge in her yard. Two small objects float near the figure.

Click Gamzee.

It zooms in. It's Gamzee. He doesn't have blood on his face, but there are scars where he scratched himself with Nepeta's claws. His outfit is a long sleeve, dark purple shirt with a short sleeve, lighter purple shirt over it and a matching pair of wide-legged pants. His hood is pointed upwards and has three dots up the front of it. The cowl is cut in a zigzag pattern and he has a cape made of many purple ribbons. His shoes are pointy and curl up at the toes. On his chest, there is a purple symbol that somewhat resembles an angry face. He also has a massive codpiece. The two objects floating by him are Aradia's Music Box Time Machine.

Click Gamzee.

It zooms in yet again, and he smiles placidly.
A friendly clown welcomes you to LOCAH. It seems he would like to be your guide.

Will you let him be your guide?
No or Fuck No.
Fuck no.
The screen fades to black and white text appears.
Proceed to the next page.

[S] Jane: Cautiously approach.

[Image description: The song Elevatorstuck begins to play. Jane stares up uncertainly at Gamzee, who still stands on top of the fridge. Click Gamzee.
You cautiously approach your new guide. Wait, you said you didn't want him to be your guide? The friendly clown strongly advises you to reconsider. (You do not reconsider.)

You ask him who he is, but he maintains his cryptic, serene expression in perfect silence. You give some thought to sidling away from the awkward encounter and go inside, when the clown finally speaks up.

He wants to know if you would like to buy these motherfuckin potions.

It fades to a new screen. Gamzee waves and gives a lazy smile. Off to the side, it looks like a video game shopping menu. He has a vial of brown liquid, a vial of fuchsia liquid, a vial of royal blue liquid, a vial of olive green liquid, a vial of purple liquid, a vial of cerulean liquid, and a vial of yellow liquid. All of them cost 420 boonbucks.

You examine the clown's wares with due skepticism. He assures you that all of his wicked elixirs are motherfuckin magic and all that. The clown sure likes to say motherfuck a lot. It is making you feel uneasy.

Click Gamzee.
The first question that pops into your head while examining this fellow of course is, where did he get that outrageous outfit??? You don't really have the gumption to ask, but if you had to take a wild guess, you are almost certain the answer would be hand-waved away with the word "shenanigans." See, look? He is waving his hand preemptively, as if reading your mind. Truly, this clown is wise.

Click the brown vial.
Bronze Potion - 420 Boondollars

The clown says one sip of this potion will cause you to lose the use of your legs. However, you will become an excellent kisser. A trade that is more than motherfuckin fair, he says. Personally, you think someone would have to be suicidal to drink that heinous brown liquid.

Buy Bronze Potion?
Yes or no.
No.

Absolutely not. The clown appears crestfallen, then counters with another offer: buy one bottle, get one free! You scowl at him as if he is quite mad. He gets the picture. You're not interested. He then gives you a few bottles of the stuff and says he'll just put it on your tab, no worries. (winking face with a round nose)

If you picked yes
You buy 1 Bronze Potion. It's like a brown nightmare in a bottle. When the clown isn't looking, you chuck it over the side of your house-cliff.

Click the fuchsia vial.
FUCHSIA POTION - 420 Boondollars

This lovely looking potion is supposed to have powerful healing properties. A must-have in the inventory of an up and coming Maid of Life.

Buy Fuchsia Potion?
Yes or No.
No.

You don't want it. But the clown REALLY thinks you should take at least one of these handy elixirs. He won't take no for an answer. You say fine, and buy a few just to shut him up.

If you picked yes.
You acquiesce to a single Fuchsia Potion. Yippee. Pointless pink slop.

Click the royal blue vial.
Indigo Potion - 420 Boondollars

He says this potion will make you STRONG. You guess it would be pretty handy to be STRONG. Except that it's probably bullshit and the potion doesn't do that at all.

Buy Indigo Potion?
Yes or No.
No.
He looks taken aback that you could refuse such a valuable commodity. He says no, you gotta buy this motherf*ckin shit. It's the hottest f*ckin noise since a big titted ninja. Ok, whatever you say clown, here's your stupid Boondollars. He gives you like 50 of these things? Jesus Christ.

If yes.
You buy an Indigo Potion and shrug. Now THERE'S something you won't be drinking any time soon.

Click the olive green vial.
Olive Potion - 420 Boondollars
This gross looking pea soup elixir is touted as a powerful love potion! Just sneak a few drops into the beverage of your object of affection, and he or she will fall head over heels for you. Literally, in the event that your sweetheart-to-be is decapitated. You are very wary of this claim of course, but... you guess it couldn't hurt to have ONE bottle on hand.

Buy Olive Potion?
Yes or No.
No.
You refuse. But the clown spots the look of longing in your eye, and knows a lovestruck lady when he sees one. The kind fellow gives you 1 Olive Potion on the house. You blush a little and say thank you.

If yes.
You buy 1 Olive Potion. Ugh, this stuff looks nasty. You are going to have to sneak it into an especially strong drink if you don't want Jake to notice. Wait, did you say Jake? You mean of course hypothetically any person you give this to, strictly in the name of science. Uh. Yeah. This conversation is over!!!

Click the purple vial.
Violet Potion - 420 Boondollars
This potion is to be imbibed by anyone who wants to exhibit unabated lust for all he or she encounters, as well as to behave like more of a douche bag. You wonder why anyone would want that. He gives you a sly wink, and says nothing more. You say no thanks. But he asks you if you want to buy it anyway.
Buy Violet Potion?
No.
You ask him if he's flipped his friggin' cod piece. Of course you don't want it. He says, ah, but you must. He insists. He gives you 20 bottles for free. Then he says that will be whatever 420 times 20 Boondollars is. You let out a heavy sigh, say fine, and fork over the money.

If yes.
You snap up a Violet Potion. Sure, why the hell not. Might as well round out your collection of this useless slime.

Click the cerulean vial.
Cobalt Potion - 420 Boondollars
He claims this potion endows its drinker with incredible luck! Then he does a stupid looking jig on your fridge, clicking the heels of his dumb elf shoes. You find that a bit hard to swallow. Not just because it's implausible, but because that blue muck is straight up nasty. He doesn't get the joke.
Buy Cobalt Potion?
No.
In a motion so swift you didn't even follow, he grabs your hand, pushes a bottle of cobalt into your palm, and closes your fingers over it. As you begin to object, he puts his fingers over your lips and whispers shoosh. That'll be 420 motherfuckin boonies yo.

If Yes.
He tucks another 420 of your hard earned loot into his cavernous codpiece and gives you a bottle of the blue stuff. Good motherfuckin choice, he says. You roll your eyes.

Click the yellow vial.
Gold Potion - 420 Boondollars
This sickly mustard goo is supposed to make your hacking skills go bananas. Like you would ever care about that. He says not so fast though, for its benefits are Twofold. It also makes a pretty killer substitute for grub sauce in a pinch.

Buy Gold Potion?
No.
You tell this clown to go take a long walk off a short cliff. He pretends not to hear you and restates his offer. You are getting kind of fed up with this idiot so you purchase yet more useless bottles of liquid. Are we done here bro??

If Yes.
Whatever. You buy one, flip the clown another cool 420. You wonder why they're all that price? What's the deal with that number, anyway? Poor, naive Jane. You have no idea how that number culturally means Smokin Weed, and how stoners think it's funny. You are a smart girl, but there are some things you don't understand, and that makes you more endearing.

Click his codpiece.
It zooms in on the Codpiece and then zooms in and out, making it shake.

Good grief, look at that magnificent codpiece. It is absolutely transfixing. You don't want to stare, but how it arrests the eye. It's hard to look away, but you somehow find the wherewithal to pry your eyes from its prodigious heft. The clown catches you staring, and his smile broadens a bit.]

Ok, what the Fuck are you going to do with all these stupid potions? Talk about buyer's remorse. You have had enough of this vulgar clown and his pushy potion peddling.

You do not want him to be your guide and you politely ask him to leave your property.

Gamzee: Retrieve contraband from chest of whimsy.
[Image description: Jane stares at Gamzee with an entirely done expression. Gamzee closes his eyes and smiles as he bends over to open the fridge. The Kernelsprite hovers behind Jane.]

The clown says he can all motherfuckin abide about that. He doesn't want to get his step on to any motherfuckin toes. But he says if he's not going to be your guide, you gotta at least have Someone as a guide, to all guide you on your way through this quest of miracles.

He tells you to hold your shit while he retrieves something from his Chest of Whimsy. You say, you mean the refrigerator? He acts like he didn't even hear you.

I think maybe we were overreacting, about being one person?
Vriska: overreacting my ass!
what a nightmare. It's still making my ghostly skin crawl just thinking about it.
Tavros: no, I think I've decided, you're being unreasonable, it was cool being alive again for a while, as a strange unsettling mutant, if we didn't explode ourself so fast, it could have been an adventure, maybe, Vriska: oh, sure. That's easy for you to say.
you weren't the one getting the short end of the shared personality stick!
maybe if your personality was as much an upgrade to mine as mine was to yours, I would have been cool with it too.

actually it was pretty neat, Vriska: what?

I didn't really know what it felt like, I mostly only knew what the pretend kind was like,

thank you for letting me feel that, I guess, now that you mention it, maybe there was a silver lining to that freak show.

hey, sorry about that by the way.

Tavros: oh, right,
I almost forgot that even happened,

Tavros: no, I mean, it was pretty much my fault, I think,
I attacked you with my bogus self esteem, and I paid the ultimate price, Vriska: no, you idiot! That's not what happened at all. I stabbed you through the chest because I was being a huge bitch!
Tavros: I mean, it was a long time ago, but that's not really how I remember it, Vriska: ugh, stop being so stupid. That's so stupid!
Tavros: no, you're stupid,
Vriska: you are such a pain in the ass when you're dead. Let's just agree it was my fault and drop it.

T.T.: To borrow from one of the more benighted sectors of your zeitgeist, that was "so gay."
G.T.: Excuse me but i fail to see what could possibly be gay about some huge elegant blue men and women having really spiritual intercourse with their tails or something.
T.T.: Well yeah, obviously not literally.
Jake, where I'm from that word hasn't been used as a pejorative, or even much at all, in a really long fucking time.
G.T.: But youre from friggin texas! Arent you?
T.T.: Yes. But not exactly.
G.T.: Augh stop being such a cryptic troll all the time!
Anyway avatar looks spectacular and i think my preemptive review was spot on. The bloody end!
T.T.: Ok but what you just said about those furries was gay as hell. It's time to face the facts.
G.T.: You are just treating my great taste in flicks to your aloof hipstery disdain as usual. You dont know anything about that movie. Maybe you'll like it?
G.T.: Well now i know youre just trolling me. It wont be out for another year!
T.T.: Right.
Here, let me send you the rest of this robot already.
You've spent too long alone on that island as it is. I kinda worry about you.
A man can only spend so much time in the middle of the damn ocean with nothing but popcultural detritus and his own thoughts to keep him company.
G.T.: Alrighty.
I hope it wont be as difficult to finish building as the rest was to assemble.
T.T.: No, just screw the thing on and it's ready to go.
G.T.: Capital!
Scoot that noggin my way at your ready then.

T.T.: Oh cool. It worked.
Hes got your slick japanese spectacles and everything.
Why is this a metal man before me or is it none other than dirk strider himself in my room??
T.T.: One thing at a time, bro. I haven't quite figured out a way to get myself there yet.
G.T.: It almost sounds like this is something you've given some thought...
T.T.: Ok well I don't know what you're implying there but why don't you snap that sucker on the torso and fire it up.
G.T.: Affirmative.
I continue to boggle vacantly at your technical shenanigans.
Your knack for gadgetry seems to surpass even my grandmas and she was like this big time gizmo legend.
How do you even do this stuff?
T.T.: I guess from your perspective I must seem hells of "overpowered" in a bunch of ways.
Which I kind of am, like with a ninja sword I'm basically nuts, ok?
G.T.: If you say so buddy. I can believe it.
T.T.: Yeah, but when it comes to building stuff you're probably overstating things.
Like for example, if you told someone a hundred years ago you could build a computer they'd probably be like whoa shit, look at this fuckin' genius.
Well actually first of all they'd say, what's a computer, I only know what horses and diseases are and shit like that.
But once you actually tell them what computers are: Jesus dick! You're a wizard.
But from your perspective you know it's not a big deal to build a computer. You just go online and buy a case and a motherboard and some other shit and put it all together.
T.T.: It's not like you're smelting the goddamn silicon in your basement and making chips in your hermetically sealed, dust-free garage.
G.T.: Yeah but come on its not like you're from a century in the future.
G.T.: Nor am i a quaint man of the past. Pardon me but do i sound like some trollycar bellwether toiling in the heart of the mustache belt from the ruff n tumble year of nineteen aught nine???
T.T.: ... He said unironically.
G.T.: Give me some credit man and some to yourself as well. You are too modest about all this robotics noise.
T.T.: I don't know. I have a lot of time to work on stuff I guess. There are a lot of irons. You know where they are? Here's a hint. It's a pretty hot place.
G.T.: The kitchen?
T.T.: Sure, I keep some irons there too. But most of them are in the fire.
G.T.: Oh of course! Fire is quite notoriously the hottest thing there is. A tip top locale for a whole mess of irons!
T.T.: True that. I actually have so much to do and think about, one of my current projects hopefully will address that very issue.
Gonna make an A.I. replica of my own mind. He can share some of the load. As well as make a decent intellectual sparring partner, ideally.
T.T.: Not that my conversations with you aren't uniquely rad. But you know what I mean.
G.T.: See again i think you are downplaying a pretty neat accomplishment if you ask me.
T.T.: Shrug. We'll see.
G.T.: Does that mean I'll have to deal with two dirks? One who is More machine than man...
And another who is a computer program you made hahahahahahaha.
T.T.: That's a super joke. But I'm guessing you won't be hearing much from the program. It probably won't play a significant role in either of our lives.
G.T.: Hmm.
T.T.: I have my doubts it'll be a successful project, but who knows.
G.T.: I'd wager a tidy sum the results of the endeavor will be sensational. I believe in you!
T.T.: You do?
G.T.: Sure bro. I always have. You have helped me out a lot and been a good friend for ages.
T.T.: Hmm.
G.T.: What?
T.T.: Well, I wasn't sure about doing this today, but if it's true that you do believe in me, then I guess fuck it, why not.
G.T.: Why not what?
T.T.: I guess call it an extra birthday present. But instead of a present that's awesome, consider it more like a weird confession that may change the way you feel about me.
G.T.: Whoa uh...
Dirk are you... uh...
Saying what i think?
T.T.: What?
What do you think I'm saying here?
G.T.: Uh never mind sorry for interrupting. Should i sit down for this i dont know what to do.
Wait i already am sitting down. Maybe i should stand up?
T.T.: No, just chill out. Stand up, sit down, whatever. Here's the thing. You know all these painfully obvious hints I've been dropping? That always seem to be flying over your head?
G.T.: Ummmmmmmm.
Maybe?
I think i need a towel or something.
T.T.: About me being from the future.
G.T.: Oh!
Oh. Yes.
I think so.
T.T.: Well those weren't jokes. It's true.
G.T.: What? Oh man are you actually serious??
T.T.: Yes.
G.T.: So like...
You are from a century in the future.
The year 2422.
Or as we say contemporarily, 411 P.C.
Post Condescension.
G.T.: WOW.
I must say this is not the announcement i was expecting.
So you are a time traveler from 2422 here to help me build robots or something?
T.T.: No, I can't time travel. I can only send things through time, occasionally.
I actually live here in the future, alone in my apartment. I can send messages to you in the past though, like I'm doing now.
G.T.: How?
T.T.: Years ago our alien friend sent me a special chat client. It's basically just Pesterchum, with some sort of alien technology embedded.
It's specifically wired to communicate with your time period. As hours go by for me, the time it sends messages to also increments by the same amount, so we communicate in lockstep. As if we both existed in the present.
She said it was important for Roxy and I to begin communicating with you and Jane. This is how we all became friends.
G.T.: Wait... you and roxy?
T.T.: Yes. She lives in the future too. Though we live nowhere near each other.
I asked her to refrain from telling either of you. I wanted to be the one to let you know. To wait for the right moment.
G.T.: Holy fucking mackerel. This is amazing!
T.T.: So,
You really are trusting me about this? Just like that? No second thought?
G.T.: Well yeah. Sure man why not? Wait its not a prank is it?!
T.T.: No.
This would be a very shitty and boring "prank." I promise it isn't.
G.T.: Then Heck yes i believe it to friggin pieces. Its an awesome thing to be true!
T.T.: Haha.
G.T.: So whats the far flung future like? Some sort of crazy robo paradise?
T.T.: Not quite, but there are definitely robots.
G.T.: Oh man what are your movies like in the future?? I bet there are some real cinematic humdingers. Like holographic stuff? Or shit you plug directly into your brain pod right? Wait you do have brain pods right?
T.T.: No. We don't have brain pods because those aren't a thing, you just made that up. And there are no movies in the future.
There are no humans either. They all went extinct.
Roxy and I are the only ones left, as far as we know.
G.T.: Well shit.
Dirk this story got so much less awesome.
Is it too late to backpedal on believing it before I start to cry?
T.T.: No dude, it's too late. Tears ahoy, this motherfucker gets sad.
Do you want to know what happened?
G.T.: Sure do.
Lemme just finish putting this steel melon on my brobot and then I'm all ears...

Jake: Complete brobot.

[Image description: Jake stands next to Dirkbot, which now has a head. A moment later, it vanishes.]

pesterlog
G.T.: There he is finished.
Look at this spanking iron friend from the future. He is perfect.
Oh shoot, Dirk he just got blurry and disappeared! What the actual fuck?
T.T.: Don't worry, that's normal.
Upon activation, he goes into Stalking Mode.
G.T.: Stalking mode?!
T.T.: Yes. He will stalk you in the jungle and strike when your guard is down.
T.T.: Didn't you want someone to get in scrums with?
G.T.: Well yeah but... man.
T.T.: He will give you all the scrums you can handle. Trust me, this will sharpen your combat skills.
G.T.: I guess you're right.
I was just picturing a little good honest rough housing... why does the whole thing have to sound so sketchy and nerve wracking!
T.T.: Do you want to hear my grim tales of the apocalypse or not?
G.T.: Yes!
You're right. Let's put issues of fisticuffs aside for now. Tell me everything about the future.
So how does humanity fuck up? Is it the nuclear holocaust? Or is it robots? Gotta be the robots right? As per the terminator.
T.T.: No, it's more of a gradual decline in population than that, due to an insidious power grab by an aquatic alien empress.
G.T.: Oh the old alien overlord story? Got it. When does she show up?
T.T.: She's already there, in your time period, hiding in plain sight. She has been for anywhere between fifty and a hundred years.
She's the Baroness of Crockercorp. Jane's company. But of course Jane has no idea.
The Baroness has been using subtle strategies to manipulate the human population through her company for a long time.
On November 11th, 2011, she finally made her presence known to the world, along with her agenda for global domination.
G.T.: Jeez that is pretty scary. So in a few years she will be in charge of everything?
T.T.: No, not quite. That's just when the world finally sees her for the threat she is. She would continue to gain power by exploiting various institutions and the media from within.
It would take the next several decades for her to claim the throne as Earth's absolute ruler. Her march to domination was facilitated by a number of scumbag sympathizers, and opposed by a few brave rebels, including my ancestor. Roxy's too.
I think your ancestor qualifies as one too. In fact, I'm sure she must have been the first member of the covert opposition movement.
G.T.: My grandma?
I do remember when i was very young she would tell me stories of the wicked woman who raised her.
Was she the evil alien?
That's a whole story right there, most of which is shrouded in rumor and urban legend.
But before we get sidetracked by any of that, I'll try to cover the big picture. To give you a sense of all the batshit lunacy that followed the sea hag's power play.

pesterlog
T.T.: Nobody at the time knew what the fuck she wanted to accomplish or what her actual motives were.
But in retrospect it became clear she was trying to essentially restore the conditions of her old home world, which she used to rule over as well.
She began instituting these crazy laws. First of all, people weren't allowed to reproduce. She found our usual method of procreation revolting, and anyone who engaged in it was punished by death.
But she still needed an ongoing population of subjects to abuse, so to propagate the race she set up this weird system.
At random intervals every citizen would be required to supply their genetic material to drones. That DNA would be collected and combined in some way.
Many years later, long after the original donors had died, clones would be spawned from their DNA. So no one would ever be able to know who their "parents" were, or be able to trace their lineage.
It was only through a bit of good fortune that Roxy and I were able to discover who our ancestors were.
G.T.: They were the rebels you mentioned? Are they alive right now?
I mean in my time?
T.T.: Yes.
G.T.: Oh! I am very curious about them and also my grandma.
T.T.: I'll get to them, don't worry.
Anyway, "Her Imperious Condescension" turned out to be especially cruel to her human subjects.
I'm sure her rule was no picnic on her home world, but I think she resented humans' biological incompatibility with the ideal empire she envisioned, and became frustrated.
Humanity wasn't even really her first choice for rule. There are reports that she attempted to clone members of her own species and replace the human population with them. But they all died.
G.T.: What happened to them?

[Image description: Jake's island is flooded and surrounded by white tentacles. Red spikes protrude around the frog temple, which has a white tentacle wrapped around its neck.]

T.T.: The rumors say it was her own "pet" who killed them.
See, she traveled from her world to Earth in this huge red space ark.
In it she had gathered thousands of creatures from her planet, I'm guessing to save them from extinction.
This more than anything has led me to speculate that some cataclysm happened on her home world, and she moved on to greener pastures to rebuild her empire.
She bred all these creatures in secret, increasing their numbers, preparing for her eventual takeover. Each monster, or "lusus naturae," was meant to be kind of a caretaker of the young. You can see where the dramatic schism between our species and hers begins, and also why she had a reputation for being quite insane.

But she also happens to have this one humongous sea monster lusus that is like her own personal bodyguard, and kind of a secret weapon.

But it turns out the thing is kind of an enigma. Sort of a double edged eldritch horror. As much in her service as it is calling the shots, in some unfathomable way. Every time she tried to resurrect her race, it would slaughter them all psychically. As if it was keeping her ambition in check.

Or so the story goes.

G.T.: Wait... these beasts tend to the young??
I can tell you from first hand experience that monsters are totally rotten at taking care of kids! hey do a bangup job of making em scared though. (sad face)
T.T.: Exactly.
The plan was beyond shitty.
G.T.: So does that mean you and rox were raised by these things?
T.T.: Nope.
It was a very short lived experiment centuries ago.
Humans just don't have the same evolutionary symbiosis with those things that her race had.
It turns out a bunch of fuckin' alien monsters have no interest whatsoever in taking care of human babies.
They mostly just wound up eating them, or at best, just abandoning them.
Later she instated a lusidroid system to serve the same function, as she began phasing in more robotic solutions in favor of all this ill conceived biotech nonsense that always did nothing but backfire.

[Image description: The silhouette of a spiky, insect-like drone stands against a bright red background.]

T.T.: Even drones were replaced with robotic versions. I imagine they were just easier to produce and control, since she'd given up hope of perfectly mirroring her own civilization in all its convoluted symbiotic glory.

But not without a good fight, and not without taking her frustrations out on the human population. She attempted to enforce "blood casting" through efforts to genetically alter people's blood color. That was an ugly chapter. Lotta fuckin' people died from that debacle.

Over the last four hundred years, the population just got smaller and smaller from these atrocities piling up. But she clearly didn't give a shit. All the while, the amount of dry land kept shrinking due to the gradual flooding.

Soon there was hardly anywhere left to live, and then, that was that. No more people.

G.T.: Damn.

Wait...

Flooding?

T.T.: Oh. Yeah, I probably should have mentioned this up front.

One of the first things she did while in power was begin melting the ice caps.

It took a while, but eventually the whole world flooded.

That's how it is now. It's totally soaked up in this bitch.

G.T.: Wow like the epic kevin costner film?
T.T.: Almost exactly. Especially by the same degree of shittiness.
G.T.: Oh man does that mean you have to drink your own pee??????
T.T.: You get used to the taste. Welcome it, even.
That takes about 15 days in a row of hard piss drinking though.
G.T.: Ewwwwwwwwwwwwww no dude. No ew. (sad face)
T.T.: Relax, I don't drink any goddamn piss, ok?
G.T.: Oh ok. Whew.
I guess your lusis droid thingy sees to it that you have fresh water?
T.T.: Nope. Those stopped being a thing a long time ago too, once humans went extinct.
G.T.: Oh i thought...
Hm. Well who raised you then?
G.T.: !
Jesus christofer kringlefucker and here i thought i was rugged!
T.T.: You're still pretty rugged. You're just a fucking dork about it.
G.T.: Thats true.
T.T.: I guess I did have Cal looking after me.
Let's not discount the rad service of the C-man, ok?
G.T.: Heaven forbid.
And what about roxy?

T.T.: Pretty sure the Carapacians took care of her when she was young.
G.T.: Wait the whatsis?
T.T.: Right. Another thing I forgot to mention.
There are a lot of these humanoid creatures with hard shells. Some black, some white.
As humanity was dwindling due to an increasingly whimsical and psychopathic Condesce, she began introducing more of these Carapacians on to the scene.
G.T.: Are they aliens too?
T.T.: Uh...
Sort of. They are definitely from other planets, so, yeah. Really the deal with where they came from is a whole other story for another time.
But the bottom line is at some point, somehow, she started herding a bunch of them from their home worlds on to Earth and multiplying them.
Something like a hundred years ago it became clear she favored these guys more than humans as her subjects.
They're very loyal and seem genuinely dedicated to serving her. Must be what they were bred for.
She still treats them like shit though, unsurprisingly.
All these colonies started sprouting up. Like these modular cities floating on the water.
It probably sounds cooler than it is. But they're basically slums. That's where they tend to live in large numbers.
Roxy lives in one of these colonies. It's about 2000 miles from where I am.

G.T.: You're probably right.

Id be really keen on talking to Roxy about this too! I'm very curious about her experiences as a future lady with all the whatsits. The hard shell folk. I must say it turns my previous perception of your lives right on its friggin ear.

T.T.: Man, she would love to talk to you about all this. She hates keeping secrets. It's been killing her not to spill all these fucking beans way the hell prematurely.

G.T.: Like what is even your day to day business like in sea Hitlers water apocalypse??

T.T.: Well, I mostly shit around in my apartment all day, building stuff, reading about history, and flipping out with my sword.

Sometimes I go fishing and check out the underwater ruins. She does plenty of useless fucking around too, but at least she's got a neighborhood. She also uses one of her gadgets to gank vegetables and stuff from the past. She tries to feed the hungry neighbors whatever she can scrounge up.

No. I haven't. I've dropped some hints and tested her willingness to believe something like this. It's just not going to fly. It's way too much drop on somebody all at once if they aren't receptive.

G.T.: Hmm. True but it seems a shame to keep her out of the loop.

T.T.: Well, tell her whatever you want. She'll likely think she's being fucked with. Personally, I wouldn't bother trying too hard to convince her. There's no point in alienating her. Some day she'll be ready to believe things.

G.T.: Okay.

Wow i still have so many questions. It's incredible that this is all going to happen right around the corner! I dunno if I'm ready...

T.T.: Like I said, the changes will be a little more gradual than that. More clandestine. She'll exploit the fear caused by her revelation to the world to create intended reactions within governments and media, and her agents embedded on the inside will help nudge things in the direction she wants. Then, twenty-some years down the road, without anyone suspecting a thing, she'll suddenly be in complete control. And Earth will be fucked.

G.T.: I want to join the opposition!

Fuck this witch I have lots of guns and reckless bravado and I want to stop her. Ill pick up where my grandma left off!

T.T.: Well, aside from the main reasons that won't happen, which I won't get into...

It still wouldn't be a good idea.

G.T.: Horse shit why not?!

T.T.: Cause people way better at this than you tried and died?

You said you wanted to hear about our ancestors.

G.T.: My memory of her is pretty foggy.
I do know she loved adventure just like me. That's why she was exploring this island and raising me here when she died.
She was a fair markswoman and knew her way around an atom or two.
Pretty sure her company made a tidy fortune til it went belly up. At least I still have a few of her knickknacks for keepsakes.
And as you confirmed she was raised by that evil spinster.
But then again from some of the things my pen pal has said it kind of throws some of these details into question so I dunno what to think.
T.T.: I don't know what the deal is with your pen pal either, and I'm not really prepared to speculate on that right now.
But I'm privy to a shitload of historical data I can share. What's the last thing you remember about her?
G.T.: It was the night I found her dead!

G.T.: She had gone off to study the ruins one day. I'm pretty sure that was her purpose on this island. To study the technology here and solve all of the astonishing mysteries.
She even built that big fancy house we used to live in so I guess she really wanted to settle here for a while.
But she didn't come home from her expedition for a couple days so I started to get worried.
I followed the trail we usually take to the lagoon while keeping my eyes peeled for monsters.
But instead I found her lying there dead.
I think a monster caught her off guard. There were three big fang marks in the body and a trail of blood along the path.
It looked like she was trying to get home but couldn't make it before succumbing to the injury.
But before I could even do anything about it I heard an explosion. I looked back at the hill and my house was gone!

T.T.: Huh. I've wondered about all that.
G.T.: Well you never asked!
T.T.: Oh I know. I would have. But asking about your past would have just been inviting you to do the same. You know how it goes.
G.T.: Indeed.
T.T.: But for the record, I don't think those were fang marks on the body, dude.
G.T.: No?
T.T.: Finish the story first. Then what?

[Image description: Young Jake sits on a rock and stares sadly into a fire.]

G.T.: Oh there's not much more to it. I had to deal with grandmas body.
I would have loved to give her a proper and dignified memorial like janet's granddad got.
God jane is so lucky every day in her household must be like weekend at bernies! What a riot it must be im so jealous.
T.T.: Yeah, what a fucking treat.
A living room corpse party every goddamn day.
G.T.: I know right!!!
Alas i had to dispose of the body with haste so the monsters wouldn't eat her.
So i just made a little camp fire and burned it. I keep the ashes deep in the ruins which is where i think she liked it best.
Hopefully there isn't an earthquake or something that would knock the urn over in a predictable and hilarious fashion.
T.T.: No way man.
I'd bet my bottom boonbuck that shit's eternally safe.
That urn's like the Fort Knox of standing upright forever because of no accidents.
G.T.: Heheh yeah.
So then after camping out the next day i went exploring and found my room globe mostly intact sitting in the jungle so that's where i lived since.
G.T.: And that's pretty much it!
I sure miss my grandma though she was the best.
T.T.: She was definitely very brave, if the stories are true. Downright audacious, I'd say.
G.T.: What did you hear?

Next

[Image description: Her Imperious Condescension grins. The gem in her tiara flashes between a cerulean Scorpio symbol and a brown Taurus symbol.]

T.T.: Well, like I said. She was raised by the Baroness. It was probably a worse childhood than either of us had.
She wasn't related obviously. Ain't nobody's related to a damn fish alien. Except other fish aliens probably.
She had an adoptive brother too. Life must have been miserable for both of them.
G.T.: Yes i vaguely remember her mentioning him.
Cripes the things she told me now that i think about it. She said the witch even killed her dog!
Is that true?
T.T.: I don't know, but wouldn't doubt it.
There are other urban legends that she did a lot of experiments on animals and people. Mostly to do with mind control.
Like figuring out ways to unlock all of her psychic alien potential, to increase her power.
Not sure if that's true, or if it was actually successful though.
G.T.: So what you're saying is pretty much any unspeakably horrible thing she could have done she probably did?
T.T.: Yes.
Anyway, your grandma managed to run away when she was quite young. Maybe it was a traumatic event like dog murder that prompted her to flee, who knows. Whatever the case, her bro stayed behind. The guy must have been seriously immune to witnessing fucked up shit, because he went on to be a famous comedian. A real kindly old cornball. A nicer guy you couldn't hope to meet, they say.
G.T.: Haha wow. Must have been a hell of a guy.
T.T.: So...
You're not making any connections there?
G.T.: Where? Huh?
T.T.: Famous comedian, about the age of your grandma, inheriting the family name of the Baroness...
Not ringing a bell?
G.T.: What are you talking about! Dirk stop speaking in riddles and keep telling the story i am on tenterhooks here!
T.T.: Ok, well it's not like it's that important. Just a super obvious thing that'll probably occur to you later when you're looking in the fridge you don't have, at which point you'll feel like an idiot.
G.T.: Oh my god you can be one opaque motherfucker just clue me in bro!
T.T.: Nah, it'll be funnier this way.

T.T.: That kid kept the family name but obviously your grandma didn't. She must've held a grudge against the Baroness her whole life. She started by taking a different name she knew would stick in her craw.
G.T.: Oh! I remember this.
I believe she said the witch used to be married to a terrible man named english.
So because the witch really hated that guy she took on his name as sort of a big ole fuck you to the woman?
T.T.: That's probably close to the truth, but it sounds like the kind of story an old lady tells her young grandson in a way he would understand. Or at least wouldn't scare the shit out of him. What I've read is something much more sinister, as usual. There's supposedly only one thing the Baroness fears, and your grandma learned of this somehow. It wasn't an ex husband though. It was her superior. Some kind of demon, or another alien, no one really knows. But he went by the name English. He's supposedly even more brutal than she is, if you can believe that.
G.T.: So im named after a demon? What kind of demon is named english anyway?
T.T.: What kind of alien is named Crocker? It's probably just a name he stole from someone else, like the Baroness did.
G.T.: I guess its kind of cool being named after a demon whos so scary even the witch is afraid of him.
T.T.: Yeah, well, your grandma thought so.
Everything she did in life thereafter seemed to be in effort to piss off the batterwitch. Like starting a competing tech company, heavily branded in a way that was presumably intended to remind the Baroness of her boss.
Like with skulls and garish colors and shit. The dude is some kind of skull monster I guess?
G.T.: I love skulls!
T.T.: I know.

T.T.: It was definitely brave on her part, but ultimately it got her a bankrupt company, a blown up house, and a fork through the torso for her trouble. But she must have been the first to understand how dangerous the Baroness was, while acting in covert opposition. Others would follow, and continue to as of now, in your time period.
G.T.: These are your ancestors?
T.T.: Yeah, mine and Roxy's were among them.
G.T.: Anyone i've heard of?
T.T.: Of course. All these fuckers are totally famous, obviously.
G.T.: Oh sure obviously.
T.T.: We've talked about the guy I'm genetically derived from a lot actually. Like, you know, every time I've ever talked about my bro?
G.T.: Gadzooks of course!!! With all your future mindfuckery you made me completely forget about your vaunted hollywood sibling. I shoulda asked where he fit into the picture if you were raised alone. I can be dumb as a bag of penny candy sometimes.
T.T.: Sometimes. Other times you're on point, like a bag of the nickel shit.
G.T.: Whoa now those are the sweets kept in reserve for millionaires. Such flattery!
T.T.: Ok, what we're sayin' stopped meaning anything, so I'll continue.
G.T.: Right. So then he was never actually your bro?
T.T.: No, that's just kind of how I view him. Lalonde took a more maternal view of her ancestor.
G.T.: The lady who wrote all the dreary wizard books i presume?
T.T.: Yeah, the CotL series. Ever read it?

G.T.: No i tried its too depressing. And also uh kind of impossible to understand? I told roxy i liked it though i didnt want to hurt her feelings so dont say i said that. I think ill wait for the movies to come out i bet ill like those better.
T.T.: You don't say?
G.T.: I do say! Hey you must've seen them what being in the future are they any good?
T.T.: They are not.
G.T.: Phooey to that. Like i even believe you!
T.T.: The books are pretty interesting though, if somewhat dense. They're supposedly heavily allegorical. Veiled representations of cosmic events surrounding the witch and her boss and how all this came about. It's the kind of thing you wouldn't pick up on unless you were someone who understood what happened, like the Condescend, which was kind of the point. I think it was her way of letting the witch know, "I'm on to you."
In the early days of the resistance movement they both opposed her more indirectly, through their art, like critics of tyrannical governments often used to. They had to be careful. Didn't want to make big waves too early.
My bro did this too with his many fine films. Practically everything was a symbol for something. Either in mockery of the batterwitch, or conveying some hidden message to its audience. Each film was always rigorously picked apart for its head-scratching symbolic meaning. But he managed to accomplish all that without ever compromising the purity of his ironic vision, which I think was admirable.

G.T.: Screw the haters! Thats what i say.
T.T.: You also say that about Weekend at Bernies.
G.T.: Man that is a scandalous mischaracterization. Nobody hates weekend at bernies! The W.A.B. films are generally regarded as so unremarkably mediocre they dont even attract any trolls who care enough to shit on it. Believe me ive tried to get in debates with people about it!
T.T.: Yeah, you pretty much touche'd the fuck out of that.
But we are definitely in agreement about my bro's films as the masterstrokes they were.
T.T.: He just kept cranking them out, too. He really stepped up production after 11/11/11, even though the cat was finally out of the bag. He was very dedicated to his craft.
G.T.: Dang i can hardly wait to see them!
T.T.: Yeah. I wouldn't hold your breath about that.
G.T.: Why not?
T.T.: Man, fuck it. I'll just send you them.
G.T.: !!!!!!!!!!
T.T.: Just keep a lid on them. We don't need any weird causality shit rearing its head here. That would be dumb.
G.T.: I will guard each glistening compression artifact with my life, as if a jewel pilfered from a tomb.
T.T.: Which was the last you saw?
G.T.: Well there was sbahj the movovie and sbahj the the film...
Oh yeah and sbahaj the movle. I think sbahj the moive is still in production right? But honestly i get confused about which particular misspelling is attributed to which film or even if im getting the misspellings right.
T.T.: The key to sorting it all out is to understand it doesn't actually matter. Through video streaming services he would frequently set it up so that buying a certain title would ship you the wrong film.

And often titles for movies were available for sale that just straight up didn't exist. Or would be sold for dollar amounts that made no sense, like $2,890.1. And sometimes buying a download would actually deposit money into your account instead of deducting from it.

T.T.: It was all part of the "experience."

G.T.: Your forebears are certainly entrepreneurial if nothing else.
I can get behind the idea of making a killing if it means i also get to be as good at doing adventures as i hope to be.

Did they ever bring the battle to the witchs doorstep or were the blows dealt strictly through public masquerades and theatrics?

T.T.: Yeah, they got pretty deep into the shit eventually.
They were both very skilled combatants. I'm pretty sure she had some weird powers too.

G.T.: Powers you say?

T.T.: Communion with occult forces. Something like that.
She knew things. Had visions. It's why she was able to write those books, and more importantly, why Roxy and I were able to survive here.

G.T.: How?

T.T.: They knew we would be here some day. So they prepared for our arrival.
I live in what used to be my bro's old apartment four hundred years ago. The whole city is gone, but this one unit was somehow protected.

He left some supplies for me here. Like a lifetime supply of orange soda in the crawl space, along with a fuck ton of SBaHJ merch. It was like discovering my own personal holocaust of bulbous jutting bottoms.

Plus some weapons, some other gear. And a killer pair of shades.

Roxy's mom used to live in her place too, and left some stuff she might need lying around. This was way before there were Carapacian colonies though.

I think her house must have been a kind of kernelized structure, like a potential colony. Something built to undergo modular self replication if activated.

I'm sure her mom knew that. It's been a good way for Rox to blend in.

I stick out like a sore thumb here of course, but it hasn't really been a problem yet.

G.T.: So...
They knew you would show up in the future some day and prepared for that...
Doesn't that mean they also knew they weren't going to be able to stop the witch?

T.T.: Probably.
But they went down fighting anyway.

G.T.: Wow.

That's brave and kind of sad.

T.T.: Yeah. But wouldn't you?

G.T.: Of course!!!!!

You always go down guns blazing. That's what a hero does when he loves adventure and has guns.

If there's one thing movies have taught me besides the fact that guys using a corpse as a silly puppet is friggin hilarious it is That Fact.

T.T.: It's not like their rebellion was totally futile.
They took a lot of shitheads down with them.

G.T.: Who?
T.T.: Sympathizers.

G.T.: Eugh! Just the thought of such scoundrels turns my stomach!
T.T.: They should.

In order for you to understand, I'll have to fill you in on the ridiculous final gasps of human civilization, taking place over the several decades leading up to its absolute enslavement. The decades which immediately followed the "rebranding."

T.T.: As I mentioned, Crockercorp's rebranding on 3 11, as it was often referred to in the news, totally changed everything.

It marked the beginning of a completely shameless downward spiral of western civilization, through a series of events that were probably hard to notice at the time, but quite glaring when evaluated historically.

Though the Baroness made very few substantive gestures of aggression, the global fear of her looming threat would trigger all the changes she needed.

Governments prepared for war, as if to defend against the invading alien armies she undoubtedly commanded.

But of course, she had no army. She was always the only of her kind.

Instead, the world powers were only setting about to build her armies for her.

The media deteriorated into this preposterous circus that was in all practical ways inseparable from the power base and government institutions.

Popular entertainers became dangerous demagogues, and their roles in the media blurred with those of executive authority.

And the most dangerous were the ones who fed into the fear and hysteria most effectively.

These tended to be plants. Unscrupulous shills paid by the Baroness to move her agenda forward.

I would like to think I will not be suckered by their silvery tongues whenever they come along.

T.T.: Well the thing is, most of them are already on the scene in your time.

G.T.: Who!
T.T.: Ever hear of Guy Fieri?
G.T.: No?
I don't think so.
T.T.: You're fortunate then.

He was an especially degenerate piece of filth.

He used his connections and guile to wriggle into the spotlight, and then on to other positions of power.

He somehow landed on the U.S. Supreme Court. Over the years, other justices started mysteriously disappearing without being replaced.

After helping rewrite the constitution to form an incomprehensible patchwork of fascism, theocratic mandates, recipes, and bad rap lyrics, he weaseled his way up the ranks to become the High Chaplain of Interstellar War.

I'm just gonna cut to the chase, cause really this ain't a big history lesson here.

He eventually came to be regarded as the third and final Antichrist.

No other human in history was responsible for more death and suffering.

G.T.: That boorish cur!!!
T.T.: Yes, that's exactly the phrase I would use to describe someone responsible for the extermination of five billion people.
It was just so uncivilized of him.
G.T.: How could such an atrocity be allowed to happen?
Was his personal magnetism really that overwhelming?
T.T.: Maybe overwhelming in the wrong direction, yeah.
But it didn't happen overnight. It was a gradual decline in the integrity of the system that allowed it.
Eventually the wheels came off and the political scene mirrored the absurdity of the media circus. By the time Presidents Jay and Dope were elected, western civilization had officially fucked itself over forever, and I think everyone knew it.
G.T.: Oh no.
When does that happen?
T.T.: 2024. The last free election the world would ever see.
G.T.: So like...
They were on the ticket together? As president and vice president?
T.T.: No, man.
They were both president.
They were the first Dual-Presidents of the United States of America. Also the last.
They were also the first and last juggalo presidents. The founding fathers warned us about this, but nobody listened.
G.T.: They did? Warned us about what exactly?
George Washington had prophetic nightmares about them. He tried to warn people, and get language amended to the constitution to prevent it.
Like forbidding the election of what he famously described as "a pair of salty bards," or "unruly jesters given to the sweet drink."
But everyone just thought he toked too hard on the colonial cannabis or whatever.
G.T.: Im not sure i follow. These are like clown presidents or such?
T.T.: Yes. They were a shitty rap duo from your time.
But they ran a hell of a campaign. By then the juggalo party had gotten huge. While the numerous other candidates split the moderate vote, they retained a very energized and devoted base.
You could say their party had a big tent.
G.T.: Dirk i really dislike the future you are describing.
T.T.: Hey me too.
They were swept into office on a wave of Faygo, and the presidential inauguration was the biggest Gathering of the Juggalos of all time.
They all hosed each other down on the Whitehouse lawn with shitty soda. The "D.C." in the capital thereafter officially stood for "Dark Carnival."
Of course their campaign was helped considerably by having support from the Baroness.
In retrospect, people developed the impression that it was all a part of her sick sense of humor.
There was this sense that she just loved the idea of delegating the extreme subjugation of the world's population to a pair of demented clown rappers. Some have speculated this was just another way she was attempting to resurrect her previous model of governance, though this seems kinda far fetched to me. Who the fuck ever heard of an alien juggalo? To me this is about as stupid as the crackpot theories get.

G.T.: I still dont really know what a juggalo is.
Do they juggle?
T.T.: Don't worry about it.
People were less prepared for a double juggalo presidency than they ever imagined.
I'm not even going to get into all the horrifying details. Trust me, you just start to feel dirty reading about it.
From the moment Fieri held up the bible to swear them in, and the three of them proceeded to publically defecate on it while freestyling rap lyrics...
That was it. Everyone in the world watching it on TV just said, "Welp. Show's over. Civilization was pretty cool while it lasted."
The next several grueling terms of their presidency was a weird combination of authoritarian practices. The Baroness used it as a puppet regime, while still basically giving them carte blanche to carry out their idiotic whims.
Faygo was pumped through the plumbing instead of tap water. The new national pastime was having type 2 diabetes. And the national anthem was replaced by a 3 minute high-reverb audio clip of President Jay farting into a microphone while laughing.
Chaplain Fieri was authorized to set up the death camps, in which anyone on the planet could be imprisoned if they were not deemed sufficiently "mirthful."
And so the cleansing began, priming humanity for its new ruler waiting in the wings.
This was when our ancestors had enough.
The resistance movement had failed, but they could at least bring the war criminals to justice.
My bro finally caught up with the presidents and challenged them to a duel.
They accepted, having for years regarded him as a cocky rival rapper who failed to show them the proper respect. In their arrogance they invited him into the foul belly of the Carnival believing they could teach him once and for all what it truly meant to be down with the clown.
For centuries thereafter, survivors of the Hilarocaust would cite the rooftop showdown as one of the most heroic moments in human history.

T.T.: Reports of what happened to our ancestors after that are sketchy. There were no eye witness accounts I've found, but some believe they regrouped and confronted the Condesce herself. With all her high ranking officers dead, and the human population decimated and sufficiently groomed for her arrival, there was no reason to stay behind the scenes anymore. After those dreadful years of putting up with a more vulgar brand of authoritarianism, when she finally stepped forward to claim her throne, it actually came off as somewhat dignified. Elegant, in a way. She was no less severe, but at least she knew how to act like an empress.

Also where they can meet dead people.
G.T.: So we are sharing a dream together?
And youre currently asleep too? Uh. Currently in the future?
T.T.: No.
Even if I was, I wouldn't visit a dream bubble. That only happens when your dream self is dead, like yours is.
T.T.: Mine is not.
G.T.: Hm. I guess i understand?
So whats the deal then? Wait.
You said this is where they meet dead people too...
Shit! Dirk are you dead? Are you a ghost!?
T.T.: No, dude. Chill. I'm fine.
G.T.: Then what the fuck is going on! Who am i talking to?
T.T.: Well, who are the people you talk to when you have a regular dream?
G.T.: What? Uh...
T.T.: Like just a boring normal dream, and there's a person you're talking to. Who is that?
G.T.: I don't know.
T.T.: It's nobody. Just a projection of your own mind. Dream bubbles don't always need to be shared by dreamers or dead people. You can go to sleep and wake up in one alone, reliving an old memory. Kind of like a normal dream. Until you remember it's just a memory, which is where we are now.
G.T.: Okay.
So.
I am having like a lucid dreamy thing in a magic bubble and you are just like a figment of my imagination?
T.T.: Yes, basically.
G.T.: So im talking to myself! Thats kind of stupid!
You could view me as a projection of the real Dirk within your mind, as expressed through all of your thought patterns about him. So I'm kind of a splinter of his corporeal self who happens to live in your awareness. I'm a startlingly close approximation to the real thing, for all intents and purposes.
G.T.: Just how startlingly close are we talking?
T.T.: I'm not going to give you a bogus percentage like the glasses cause that's not my shtick. But pretty damn close.
G.T.: Okay thats fair.
But.
Man.
There is something that feels kind of weird about this. You being in my head... its a little messed up!
T.T.: What's messed up about it?
You were the one who put me here, with your intimate understanding of all his mannerisms and predilections. And a splintered existence is pretty much how he rolls.
This is how shit is bro.
G.T.: Ok im sorry for saying its messed up but... Its still a bit frustrating! Ive been trying to talk to you all day. But all i get is your pesky responder bedeviling me at every turn and your friggin robot punching me across the ocean and then throwing a weird tantrum and ripping his nuclear heart out in front of me. And if that weren't enough i tumbled off the doohickey and knocked myself out and now im strolling down memory lane with your fake brain ghost! Its like you are surrounding me from all sides with imitations of yourself but never the Real You!!! Cheese and fucking crackers when do i just get to talk to the actual dirk?
T.T.: Jake, what do you even know about someone's actual self? What makes it actual? What is "actuality>"
G.T.: What a horseshitty question! I dont know anything about actuality i guess but i know some philosobabble horseshit when i dadblasted hear it.
T.T.: I'm just saying, this isn't really your field of expertise.
Dirk is the heart guy. He's the one walking the path of self, even when he doesn't know it. Like right now.
G.T.: But what does that mean?
And how can you really be made of only my thoughts when i dont even know what youre talking about sometimes?
Or when i didnt know some of the things youre telling me? Like about being in a dream bubble? How can i tell myself about that stuff through brain ghost dirk!
T.T.: Who says you don't know those things on some level?
G.T.: I don't think I do!
I have no business knowing those things.
T.T.: Pages have a lot of untapped potential.
That's practically all there is to the class, actually.
But when they eventually find it, look out.
And the ones who deal in hope? Shit, man.
I'm scared of you already, and I'm not even real.

T.T.: So there are feelings you don't want to try to put into words, even while you are dwelling entirely within the realm of your own mind?
G.T.: Yes.
What is so hard to understand about that?
T.T.: What about the spider ghost?

G.T.: Why do you keep calling her a ghost??
T.T.: Cause she's been dead for a zillion years, dude.
G.T.: Oh. Well.

What was even the deal with that?
G.T.: Our last chat ended on very pleasant and amicable terms! She was upbeat and chipper as ever. I fail to see what reason one might have to feel sorry for her.
Really handled that conversation like a champ.
G.T.: Wait... didnt i?
T.T.: Look out bitches. It's Jake "Casanova Ladyslayer" English. He's packing heat, and is frequently able to parse the literal meaning of things women say.
G.T.: What are you getting at!
T.T.: We're running out of time.
She'll be here soon.
G.T.: Jane?!
T.T.: No, doofus.
Spider ghost.
G.T.: Whoa......
Whoa ok.
Where? Wait. She is??
Oh fuck.
T.T.: Look at you. I'm telling you.
Three damn seconds of ogling an alien in a blue dress, and you're completely hopeless.
Stop fidgeting around like that. Your hair looks fine.
Do you want me to tell you how your breath smells?
G.T.: Screw you!!!
I am cool as Such a cucumber.
T.T.: Ok then.
G.T.: Uh.
Why does my breath not smell ok?
T.T.: You're dreaming, Jake.
Your breath is only a thing if your brain wants it to be.
G.T.: Oh okay whew. When is she coming? Why is she visiting my dreams?
T.T.: Soon.
She's been waiting for the right time to enter. Waiting for you to snap out of the memory. Clearly the girl has the patience of a saint.
G.T.: Alright...
Dang! Its warm in this dream bubble. How can i be sweating in a dream?? Where do i keep the dream towels...
T.T.: Will you calm the fuck down?
I'm a figment of your imagination, and you're still making me nervous.
G.T.: But really who is she? What's her deal and what does she want from me? Since all this so called untapped potential in my subconscious taking the form of yet another sassy dirk clone seems to know everything would it be ok if i troubled my own brain for a few flipping answers???
T.T.: You should try to be more polite to me. Seeing as I am a representation of your entire mind, I have complete control over all your basic functions. I could trigger a particularly spirited bowel movement right before she gets here, so watch your step.
G.T.: Augh no no no im sorry im sorry dont!
T.T.: Just kidding, dude. Jesus. I would never make you shit your pants in front of a girl you liked, even if she does happen to be my chief competition.
We Dirk splinters can be pretty Machiavellian but we do actually have some fuckin' standards.
G.T.: Okay. Thank you for promising to keep my trousers tidy.
T.T.: Anyway, she's visiting now to bring you into the loop on some things. Important details you should know about your relation to the bigger picture. The much, much bigger picture.
G.T.: I still dont understand how you know... or excuse me My Brain knows this stuff. Because im a page? How does that make sense?
And also if you know the things she will say why dont you just tell me the things?
T.T.: Intuition and the subconscious mind are powerful things when harnessed the right way. As for why I don't tell you, why not just let her tell you?
You're the one with the damn crush on her.

T.T.: Oh my god. Fine.
G.T.: Hi there! Welcome! Er...
Dont mind him hes just a brain clone of my best friend. I know that sounds crazy. Heh.
T.T.: Bro, she can't even see or hear me.
You're making a fool of yourself.
G.T.: Wait she cant? Why didnt you tell me that!!! You are really throwing me off here.
T.T.: I don't know, I guess I didn't think you were going to have a neurotic meltdown at the sight of a girl.
G.T.: I thought you were supposed to know stuff like that seeing as you are Literally My Brain!
T.T.: God dammit, will you just chillax and woo this fucking ghost babe?
G.T.: How can I chillax when you keep talking to me its really disconcerting!!!!!
T.T.: You are totally embarrassing yourself, dude. You're talking to nobody.
Man, I'm starting to feel bad for spider ghost. Look at her, she's getting uncomfortable.
G.T.: Shhhh just shut up I can't think!
T.T.: You are being so lame, I don't care if I'm a figment of your imagination or not, I can't take this bullshit.
Either you get your shit together and put the moves on this dead space vixen or I start fucking with your cortex and make you pop a dream boner.

T.T.: you don't think I'll do it?
G.T.: no please please please do not give me a boner dirk!!!

T.T.: this is so stupid.
you are out of your mind. And this is coming from your mind itself.
I can't even watch this, I'm out of here.
G.T.: well good riddance to ironic hipster douchewad rubbish is what I have to say about that!
T.T.: I wonder what Jack's up to right now.
G.T.: WHAT?
I mean... what? Whos jack?
T.T.: Just talk to the girl, ok?
You have some damage control to do.

Jack: Start Jailbreak Adventure.

[Image description: Jack Noir stands in a prospitian jail cell. The back wall has a square, barred window with the sill at eye height on Jack and a decorative trim along the bottom. There's a black key on the floor next to a small, golden transportalizer.]
You wake up locked in a deserted jail cell, completely alone. There is nothing at all in your cell, useful or otherwise.

Jack: Attempt to pry open window.

[Image description: Nothing changes.]

There are no objects around with which to "pry open window".

Look at that. This frame is precisely identical to the previous frame. You advanced nothing whatsoever with that dumb idea.

Do you realize this adventure is nearing 5000 panels? And now we have to watch you flounder around in a jail cell for god knows how long? Exactly how many panels do you want this to go on for? Over 9000? Nobody wants that. Nobody even wants to hear the phrase "over 9000."

You need to begin making better decisions if you want to escape.

Jack: Get key.

[Image description: Jack stands next to the key and glares down at it.]

What did you not understand about the statement, "There is nothing at all in your cell, useful or otherwise."

There is no key.

Next

[Image description: It zooms in on the key and Jack uses one finger to smudge part of it.]

It is an extremely crude drawing of a key on the floor. Really, the drawing is so bad, it's ridiculous to think that some prankster thought it would fool you, which it did. Whoever drew this key clearly was employing the most primitive drawing tools available.

You are obviously being fucked with in this stupid jail cell. You expect that you will continue to be fucked with, and it makes you wish you could stab something.

Jack: Get pumpkin.

What fucking pumpkin. There is no pumpkin. Once again, there is nothing at all in your cell, useful or oh god dammit.

Ok, a pumpkin appears. You guess it must be feeding time for the prisoners. These Prospitian jails are like luxury suites compared to the penal system on Derse. Should be the softest time you ever did.

Jack: Consume pumpkin.

[Image description: Jack sneers and sticks out his tongue while making a disgusted expression. He's missing a few teeth.]

What a horrible idea. You don't eat fresh produce. The thought is revolting to you. What do you think these sharp teeth are for? Or, what's left of them at least.
You'll have to make a note to file a protest with your lawyer. Complain of cruel and unusual treatment. Their coddling criminal justice system will undoubtedly see to it you are given some proper meat to consume. Perhaps a prime cut of filet mignon, as if you are a guest of honor. What a bunch of powder puffs, with all their namby pamby morals and compassion. This kingdom makes you sick.

Jack: Look out window.

[Image description: Jack stands on top of the decorative trim and looks through the window.]

You step up on the little curby thing to get a better look outside. Can't make a plan without getting your bearings.

Next

[Image description: Jack grips the bars and stares out of his window, which is rimmed with red and positioned above a small awning lined with spikes. Four pillars hold the awning up from a short walkway. At the other end of the walkway, there is a Prospitian guard in front of a red door.]

A lone sentry is on duty below. You shout a few obscenities his way. You wonder aloud what a guy has to do to get a decent meal around here. Hey, you're Talking to that guy. It's no use though. He ignores you.

Just look at that stoic face. The unshakeable discipline. The stalwart sense of duty and pride. This is what it means to be a member of the Prospitian Royal Guard.

What a load of shit, you grumble to yourself, but loud enough for him to hear.

Jack: Inspect pumpkin.

[Image description: Jack steps away from the window and kicks the pumpkin.]

That guy won't be of any use. You doubt you could even manage to lure him into your pissing radius, magnificent though it is.

You give the pitiful gourd a little kick. A terrible thought occurs to you. What if you have no choice but to eat this awful thing? You can't let it come to that. You have to get out of here.

Hold on, what's that...

Jack: Take a closer look.

[Image description: He holds the pumpkin. A message is carved into it. Please look inside! (Club symbol)] Eureka. Droll you beautiful bastard.

Looks like he snuck something inside the pumpkin to help you escape. Probably a bomb. You are going to have to remember to give him a promotion when you get out of here. Or at least reduce his daily newspaper floggings.

Need to think of a way to get the bomb out of there. Can't just smash it with your foot, or it might explode and take your leg off. Too bad they confiscated your knives or you could slice the thing open neatly. Maybe even carve a funny face into it. Heh heh, you bet you're the first guy who ever thought of doing that.
Jack: Search for carving apparatus.

[Image description: Jack looks through the window again. A smaller image within the main one shows him looking out of the window and spotting the spikes.]

Hang on. You remember seeing some pointy things just outside the window.

Luckily both kingdoms are totally covered in pointy things. Can't swing a dead cat without impaling it on one.

Jack: Take pointy thing.

[Image description: Jack reaches through the bars and snaps off the top of one of the spikes.]

You snap off a golden pointy thing. Should be sharp enough to do the trick.

Jack: Carve pumpkin.

[Image description: He carves the top off of the pumpkin.]

It slices through the meat of the vegetable like a sharp spire through thick squash. This is working so well. Who the hell needs a trusty knife when you are this resourceful? Screw knives!

You take it back, you can't stay mad at knives.

Jack: Open it.

[Image description: He grabs the stem and lifts the top off. Pumpkin guts and seeds cling to it.]

You can taste your liberation already. You can't wait to hear the sweet ticking of the bomb that is definitely in there. That will be the sound of freedom, you decide.

You pull off the lid to reveal...

Next

[Image description: There's so many knives inside it, along with a purple note.]

A whole bunch of knives.

Next

[Image description: Jack holds up the note, which is stamped with C.D.'s face and says 'you're welcome'.]

God Damn it, Droll.

Next

[Image description: Jack stares down at the pumpkin. A thought bubble behind him shows C.D. doing a jig with an umbrella while surrounded by spinning knives. He's labeled 'So. Dumb.'.]

He's not the sharpest tool in the shed. Although now that you think about it, he might be by default, since he just sent you all the sharpest tools in the shed.

Oh well, you can probably get some use out of these. You've never once been disappointed to receive a pumpkin full of knives, and you're not about to make an exception.
Jack: Empty pumpkin on floor.

[Image description: Jack stares down at the pile of knives on the floor. There's a Terrier Fancy magazine on top of the pile.]

You take a quick inventory of the smuggled contraband.

Hold on. Looks like he snuck something else in the pumpkin under all the knives. Something... compromising.

Jack: Examine compromising material.

[Image description: Jack glares down at the magazine, which shows a fancy Yorkie with a red ribbon in its fur. It has an advertisement that says 'Join Club Yorkie today!' and a C.D. 'you're welcome' stamp.]

The Droll knows what it's like spending long, cold nights alone in the clink. A man needs a little reading material to keep him company, if you know what he means.

If your skin wasn't made of polished jet black carapace, your cheeks would be turning bright red. No one can ever know about this. You must destroy the evidence. Or disguise it somehow.

Jack: Forge blade out of illicit literature.

[Image description: Jack holds a knife made of the magazine. A second image shows it laying on the floor next to the fake key and pumpkin top.]

None shall be the wiser. It is the perfect crime.

When you bust out of prison, you should be locked right back up again because of how perfect this crime is.

Jack: Throw a knife down there to get that guy's attention.

[Image description: Jack throws the knife and it strikes the guard between his shoulders.]

That should get the guy's attention.

Next

[Image description: He falls over.]

Unfortunately it only keeps his attention until he dies, which is almost instantly.

You need to come up with a better plan. While you would argue that random stabbings are their own reward, they aren't getting you any closer to escape.

Jack: Examine exit.

[Image description: Jack stands next to a metal door with a small, barred window in it.]

That door is locked tight. You're going to need a key to open it. Preferably one that isn't horribly drawn on the floor to taunt you.

Jack: Knock on door.
Maybe if you knock hard enough, in just the right way, at just the right time...

Wait for it... wait for it...

Wait, no. Not yet.

Wait for it...

Wait...

...

Jack: Now.

Your clumsy fist accidentally flies through the bars, knocking out a passer-by. Keys from his keyring jangle on the floor.

Next

It's quite possible one of those keys will unlock your door. But they are all well out of reach now.

What next, genius?

Jack: Use knife to snag one of the keys on the floor.

You see if a knife can adequately lengthen your reach. But it's no use! They're still just outside of your modest slashing radius.

Next

No dice. Need a different approach.

Wait a minute. Another guard notices your unauthorized tomfoolery and radios for backup.

Jack: Beckon other guard over.

He looks none too pleased by your misbehavior. This will surely result in reduced rations. You can expect to find a slightly smaller pumpkin in your cell come Skaia rise, mister.

You keep beckoning him. Just a little closer. A little closer...
Jack: Convince second guard to pick up keys for you.

[Image description: Jack reaches his arm through the bars and grabs the guard by the head. With his other arm, he stabs him repeatedly as he flails.]

You use a little "persuasion" to see if you can get him too... Jack, no!!!

That is not how you convince someone to do something. You're supposed to save the stabbing until AFTER you intimidate him into doing what you want! How exactly is a dead guy supposed to pick up some keys for you?!

Next

[Image description: Jack pulls his arms back into his cell and a third guard rounds the corner. He looks surprised to see the two corpses.]

Real smooth, Jack. What's the plan now? To bury the keys under a growing pile of torsos? This is turning out to be the second shittiest jailbreak attempt anyone has ever seen.

Jack: Look around room.

[Image description: Jack stands in the corner on the left side of his cell. There is another small transportalizer, but this one has a large blue button with a triangle fractal on the wall next to it.]

The only remaining thing in the room worth noting is in the other corner of your cell. Just a transport pad prisoners are supposed to use as a waste receptacle. These were decommissioned in Derse prisons a long time ago. Too many prisoner suicides, and severed heads showing up in the waste bins. None of those auto-decapitations were authorized with the right paperwork, so privileges had to be suspended.

You hear the door open and slam shut. Someone else is in your cell.

Jack: Welcome guest.

[Image description: A very large Prospitian stands just inside the cell door and glares at Jack while smacking a police baton against his palm.]

Looks like the sentry phoned downstairs for a little muscle. It's one of the regulator lugs they use to keep the gen pop in line. This guy has an itchy baton wrist and that look in his eye you know all too well. He's not leaving this room until one of you is good and bloody.

Jack: Be the other guy.

[Image description: The dead guard on the walkway continues to lay on the ground, now with a red circle around him and a red arrow pointing to him. A second image zooms in on him.]

You attempt to be this guy down here but you can't be this guy down here because he's dead.

But it does serve as a convenient cutaway for the vicious beating that is currently taking place in your cell. We don't need to be watching that kind of prison brutality. We take our sweet time looking at this dead body while terrible noises can be heard from your prison window.

Ok that should be long enough. You can stop being this guy now.

Jack: Stop being that guy.
You stop being the other guy in time for us to see that you have just finished quickly and cleanly subduing the...

Jack.

Jack, the man is dead. Stop that.

Jack.

Jack.

Jack.

Jack.

Jack: Apologize to guard's body.

You start to feel sorry for stabbing that guy with 7 knives in the back and bashing his face into the door 89 times. Well, maybe not all 89 times. For the first 88 you felt pretty good. But by the 89th face bashing, you were definitely starting to feel pretty sorry.

And by sorry, you guess you mean bored.

Anyway, you mutter something under your breath that could EASILY sound like an apology to someone who wasn't listening very well.

Jack: Give guy a proper funeral.

Whatever the state of your contrition might be, there can be no question about it. A man dedicated to royal service deserves a proper and dignified funeral.

However, since there is no casket in your cell that is nearly big enough for this lug's hefty torso, you will have to improvise.

Jack: Seek alternative casket.

You sever the guard's head with your most trusted of all trusty knives, and begin sizing up that hollowed pumpkin.

It will definitely be snug, but you think you can make it fit.

Jack: Make it fit.

You don't care what anyone says. You say this pumpkin was MADE for this fucker's melon. Fits like a damn glove.
Jack: Close it up.

[Image description: The pumpkin's top now sits on top of the head inside the pumpkin. It doesn't fit and sits at an angle.]

Perfect. A textbook burial for a man of honor and distinction.

The sacrifices made by our public servants don't get anywhere near the respect they deserve, you think.

Jack: Bring casket over to receptacle.

[Image description: Jack stands by the other transportalizer with the head-filled pumpkin at his side.]

His funeral will not be complete without a proper sendoff.

But a stinking garbage dump is no place for the head of a brave soldier to rest. No, you must first make some modifications to the device. Doing hard time behind bars will motivate a man to learn a trick or two when it comes to systems like this.

Jack: Pry open panel with knife.

[Image description: Jack looks into the now open panel and sees a tangle of green and red wires.]

You open it up and switch a few wires around. There. Now instead of a nasty old pile of rotting pumpkin matter, the destination should be the throne room of the Prospitian palace! Surely the queen will want to be alerted to the noble sacrifice of this brave warrior so that arrangements can be made to honor the hero.

Jack: Send him off.

[Image description: The pumpkin sits on the transportalizer, then vanishes in a white flash.]

Next

[Image description: The head-filled pumpkin sits on the red carpet in front of the White Queen's throne. A second image zooms in on the message on the pumpkin. The please has been scratched out and the club has been modified. It now says 'Look inside (spade)'

Next

[Image description: Jack stares at the transportalizer in the corner. After a moment, he turns towards the door with a shocked expression.]

You hear the door open again, followed by the sound of surly footsteps. Could it be that another glutton for a good face bashing has decided to visit your cell?

Jack: Greet visitor.

[Image description: He bares his teeth at nine more identical, burly guards, who smack their batons against their palms in unison.]

Ah. You see. It appears there are quite a few said gluttons this time. Settle down, gentlemen. There are more than enough face bashings to go around.
Jack: Quick, be the other guy again.

You be the other guy again while they beat you senseless.

Other guy: Be Jake.

Suddenly you aren't the other guy anymore. You couldn't quite be the other guy anyway since he's dead, even though deadness hasn't really stopped us from being guys before.

Nevertheless, the dead guy starts being Jake, who is not a dead guy. Well, his dream self is dead. But his non-dead non-dream self isn't, and that's the guy we're being, a guy who is asleep. That non-dead sleeping guy is presently talking to a non-sleeping dead ancient spider ghost, who long ago earned the achievement badge, Gift of Gab, and boy does she know how to use it.

Jake: Attempt to get a gab in edgeways.

dialoglog

Aranea: Well, Jake? Don't you have anything to say?
Jake: ...
Aranea: I think I've spent enough time introducing myself! You have hardly said a word. It would be nice to know whether my long story has confounded you in any particular way, or if you are just being shy.
Jake: Uh...
Aranea: Yes?
Jake, I understand this is very much to learn all at once, but do you really want me to keep speaking until I am blue in the face?
Jake: ...
Gulp!
Aranea: You appear to be perspiring heavily. There is no reason to be so nervous, especially considering you are only dreaming.
Jake: Shit!
Sorry. I dont know where i put the dream towels.
Aranea: It's ok. Well, at the risk talking about myself a little more, I feel it would be dishonest not to confess.
Jake: What?
Aranea: I am a fairly gifted psychic.
Jake: Whoa really?
Aranea: Yes.
Jake: Like you can see the future?
Are they ghost powers or troll powers? Or wait shucks thats a dumb sounding question.
Aranea: No, that was a fine question. They're troll powers. Sometimes those of my blood type will have them naturally.
And no, they are not prognosticative abilities. They let me access another's mind in a way that can be terribly invasive if abused.
Jake: Invasive?
Aranea: Yes. Including the ability to control minds, when exploited fully.
Jake: Uh oh.
Aranea: but don't worry. They don't seem to work the same way on your species. They're considerably weaker.
The most I can do is get an empathic impression of your emotional state.
So if I speculate that you are shy or nervous, it is because I can sense that you are.
Jake: Aw man you're kidding!
So much for trying to be cool I guess.
Although I probably blew that when you saw me yelling at nobody about boners and stuff.
Aranea: I wouldn't say you blew it, but that was certainly odd.
Who were you talking to, if you don't mind my asking?
Jake: That was like...
The brain ghost memory splinter of my best friend dirk who is stuck in my head and you can't see.
And he was kinda hassling me and trying to get me to talk to him about how his real self has a thing for me but I kind of think it would be weird to talk to his brain impostor about that? At least for now.
And then you showed up and you caught me at an awkward moment where he was threatening to make some bodily functions happen in front of you as a joke which would have been embarrassing as all blasted heck.
But now it turns out you can read my mind too so I'm surrounded by brain invaders!
You seem cool Aranea but uh when am I going to wake up?
Aranea: I am not a brain invader though!
I said I can only sense your emotions. I think it's polite to let people know before long. Otherwise I begin to feel a bit underhanded.
Jake: Ok. I guess that's not too bad.
I think I can keep my feelings buttoned up. That is what strong and adventurous gentlemen do I think. They keep a stiff upper lip even on the inside. That way they are never embarrassed and feel slightly more brave about stuff.
Aranea: but you don't have to! That was not the point of my telling you.
I'm used to sensing many things from people. There aren't any feelings you could have that would be surprising to me or compromising to you.
I really just want you to relax for the brief time we have in this bubble and talk to me.
Jake: Um gotcha.
But what should I talk about?
Aranea: Well, I have spent almost no time examining this iteration of your universe.
The gods have given me very little access to it through the memories of others until now.
I believe they are finally beginning to bridge the divides between long estranged compartments of reality, allowing previously uninitiated parties to mingle.
Those from different universes, both their initial iterations and their scratched reboots. Those from different spheres, ones of creative potential and of mortality.
Through us all they attempt to bring closure to unsanctioned loops and restore stability to the cosmos.
So I am curious about you and your friends. What is your life like?
Jake: My life?
I wish I could say it was more interesting but it's actually been a mite lackluster.
There are monsters but I try to stay away from them to tell you the truth.
It's mostly just me sitting around here watching movies and stuff and sometimes polishing firearms.
Guns are sweet. So are movies heh. This is a terrible story.
Aranea: I understand. The same is mostly true for myself.
I can sense that you are either very impressed or in some way intimidated by me, but when it comes down to the basics, a description of my life would be boring as well.
Why don't you show me around?
Jake: Show you around my room? Yes ok.
Well. There are some guns. Like i said guns are great. There is a whole mess of movie posters on the wall. You probably never heard of any of them being a dead alien and such.

Aranea: Nope. (smiley face with eight eyes) Jake: And...
I dont know. Theres a desk which i use to work on silly projects. And thats my bed i guess.
Ummmm and...
Jake: Hmm what else.
Dirk: Dude, just FYI, you've been kind of staring at her.
Jake: (What? Shh!)
Aranea: What was that?
Jake: Nothing!
Dirk: I'm not trying to fuck you up here, I promise. But you gotta watch what you're thinking, remember?
Jake: (Go away!!)
Dirk: Oh man. No. See that thought you just had? That's exactly what I'm talking about. She's a fucking empath, bro. She can pick up on shit like that.
Jake: (Shhhhh not listening to you.)
Aranea: Jake?
Jake: Nothing! Its cool. Im...
Dirk: You have got to be kidding. Did you seriously just think something THAT dirty? You must be doing this on purpose to spite me now. I mean, just wow dude. That was x-rated as fuck.
Jake: (No no stop. See youre talking about it and now i cant help it!)
(You are psyching me into having dirty thoughts get fucking lost you interloping brain douche!!)
Dirk: Don't worry, I'm gone. It's like a goddamn peep show in here and I feel like a sleazy piece of shit watching this from a dark corner of your mind. You have a graphic imagination, English. I'm kind of impressed.
Jake: (Shut up theyre just thoughts its not even like im trying to have them they dont mean anything!)
Aranea: Hmm.
Aranea: Should I leave and come back during another dream?
Jake: No!!!

Aranea: Ok then.
What's this? An illustrated story of some sort?
Jake: Oh hey whoa!
Lets not worry about that its nothing really. Here give me that ok?
Aranea: Why are you getting flustered about this literature?
Is it pornographic?
It does not strike me as indecent at a glance. Though maybe our cultures have different standards?
Jake: Hahaha what? No its not that at all its just...
I dunno its just a nerdy comic i read its no big deal. Theres GOT to be other stuff to talk about lets see...
Aranea: Jake.
Jake: Huh?
Aranea: You know, it's not the first time I've sensed that someone felt a flushed attraction for me.
Jake: A flushed whatsit!!
Oh my flipping gosh…

Aranea: You really don't have to be so embarrassed. It's perfectly ok.
Jake: Aaaaargh oh god oh god you sensed my stupid sexy thoughts i KNEW it.
God DAMN you bogus brain strider!
Jake: Someone needs to just kill me. Or at least make me wake up! This is so humiliating i dont even...
Can you please just slap me really hard? If not in retribution for my ungentlemanly train of thought then at least just get me to wake up and save me from my own ceaseless buffoonery.
Aranea: Actually I do believe it would be within the scope of my abilities to get you to wake up. but do you really want me to do that?
Jake: Um... maybe?
Aranea: If it is true that you think I am attractive then why wouldn't you want to spend a little more time here with me? What's the harm?
Are you really in such a hurry to leave and feel sorry for yourself, for no explicable reason?
Jake: Well...
No.
Aranea: I already told you, Jake.
I am used to sensing many different types of feelings.
It's given me a different perspective on emotions than most have.
For most, the feelings of others are often a mystery. So they are prone to speculation and paranoia about the motivations of people they meet.
The emotions of others can seem like such well guarded mysteries, people begin to believe that's how their own emotions should be treated as well. So when someone can read their thoughts easily it feels like a violation.
but to one accustomed to reading those thoughts, there isn't the same perception of violation or secrecy. It's more like examining other self evident facts about a person, like taking note of their appearance.
It's still hard for non-psychics to understand this though, even if you explain it to them. It can lead to some awkward relationships, unfortunately.
Jake: I imagine it would.
So...
You've sensed it when other fellas have had the hots for you eh?
Aranea: Fellows, yes. And ladies. It's happened.
Jake: Yowza!
You must've been popular i guess.
Aranea: Haha! Oh no. No, not really.
The fact that I've been the fleeting object of attraction to a handful really paints the wrong social picture I'm afraid.
Jake: That is hard to believe.
Aranea: It's my experience that people very often underestimate their own likability. I sense that feeling all the time.
Probably because they're in the dark about others' thoughts. They are usually in doubt, so they frequently err on the side of pessimism.
In many cases they would be surprised if they knew how many around them were open to friendship, or possibly something more. I would venture that if you had such a sense you even might be surprised yourself!

Jake: Ha! That's a laugh. I am quite sure my only suitor is my best bro and even then he is such a jumbled stupid puzzle of unfathomable ironies im not even sure about THAT half the time. I wish i had your powers that would be top notch. Id be parked on the corner of relationship lane and EASY STREET. I could kick back in my eligible bachelors limousine and never fuck up or ever say anything awkward like i have been doing non stop so far in this dream.

Aranea: Let's not get carried away. That certainly does not describe my experience. You would think being able to sense the occasional attraction from others would be advantageous, and inspire confidence in yourself. And it is nice when that happens, sure. But then, you feel the negative emotions directed at you as well. And even if they are less common than the positive ones, you have a way of dwelling on them, and magnifying them far beyond their real significance. It's funny how an ability that should give you all the advantages in the world over others can lead you to feel worse about yourself than if you never had them. You put all your energy into thinking about people with the bad feelings about you instead of the good, and you try your best to fix things. But usually it just gets worse. People think you are overbearing and needy, and they don't understand what it is you want from them. I can see why it can drive some with my abilities to abuse the powers. Fortunately I was able to resist the temptation.

Jake: So there are people on your planet who do that?

Aranea: On the world I was from, it was rare. Only a few criminals and outcasts would. But in the second iteration I mentioned, it was commonplace. Like I said, things were very different.

In my world though, the higher castes have a lot of responsibilities. It wouldn't be right to abuse my powers.

Jake: So you were in a higher caste because of the hemospectrum thing you mentioned?

Aranea: Ah, so you were listening to my lengthy preamble!

Jake: I heard all of it!

I was just um... well go on.

Aranea: Yes. blue bloods like myself were higher than most. The job of each blood caste was to serve the needs of all those below it. We were to use our progressively greater longevity and wisdom to help the lower castes learn and grow. To listen to them and try to provide whatever they were missing. Like a hierarchy of caretakers with increasing social responsibility. When the order functioned in harmony our civilization would flourish.

Jake: That is sure a neat sounding science fiction utopia. Wait duh i mean science reality. But then it all went to shit because of that meddlesome demon?

Aranea: Yes.

Jake: The demon you say im supposed to defeat?

Aranea: Yes.

Jake: Hang on. Would that be the same demon im named after?

Aranea: Who told you that?

Jake: Uh...

I guess technically my own brain did?
Aranea: That's interesting.
I wasn't planning on mentioning that. Or at least not just yet.
Jake: Why?
Aranea: There's no reason to prematurely overcomplicate an already complicated tale.
All facts will fall into place in due time.
Jake: Yeah.
But its true right?
Aranea: More or less.

Jake: Can you tell me anything more about this demon?
All i know is he might be a skull monster.
Wait he is a skull monster right?
Aranea: He most certainly is a skull monster.
A very big and angry skull monster.
Jake: Yessss. Ok but...
I feel like i should know more about him if im supposed to kill him.
Aranea: I didn't say you were supposed to kill him.
He cannot be killed.
Long ago he discovered the secret to indestructibility.
Jake: Oh...
Aranea: Defeating a foe doesn't always involve killing.
He has had many incarnations in many universes.
If you continue on your journey for long enough, you may encounter one of them.
And if you have become strong enough by then, you may be able to defeat him in combat.
And if that comes to pass, it would be the first defeat he has ever known.
You would be providing the first glimmer of hope to others that some day, he could be destroyed.
Jake: So... you are saying i could do all this?
Or that i will?
Aranea: For now, I'm saying that we should get going soon, if you would like to meet the others before you wake up.
Jake: Who?
Aranea: Is there anything else you wanted to show me before we go?
I didn't mean to get us sidetracked like that.
Jake: Ummm.
Nah just some more boring junk.
There are these fanciful branches but i dunno where they came from.
I suspect dream sorcery.
Aranea: They are from someone else's memory.
Jake: Are they from a wizards memory?
Aranea: Ha ha. No!
Jake: Oh.
Well I guess i could show you around outside.
There is a jungle out there full of tremendous beasts.
Aranea: Not anymore.

Jake: Son of a bitch! More fancy branches.
Aranea: This way!
Jake: What is this realm of limitless wonder?
Dirk: Realm of limitless wonder?
God dammit, Jake.
Jake: (Sh!)
Aranea: It was my planet.
Jake: Its great. Everything is so amazing!
Who would have thunk you could have such crackerjack adventures in your dreams that are basically real instead of imaginary?
Aranea: Yep!
Jake: Or for that matter...
That you could meet such neat people along the way.
Dirk: Your thoughts are wandering again, man.
Jake: (Sh!)
That gross mushy thought right there.
Are you even paying attention?
Jake: (No sh.)
Dirk: We've already been through this you hopeless rube.
You might as well be saying it out loud to her.
So why don't you?
Jake: (Maybe i will wise guy!)
Dirk: I mean, she is pretty hot.
Jake: (Yeah i know!!)
(Now shushhhhhhhh.)
Aranea: Jake, it wouldn't work between us.
Jake: Huh?
Aranea: I'm dead.
Jake: Yes. Right.
Aranea: Perhaps if you died too.
Although, maybe not after too long?
I don't know how I would feel about that if you were a lot older than me.
Dirk: Man, what the fuck?
Aranea: Although technically I am already so much "older" than you....... It would just be kind of strange if you were physically my senior by any significant margin, you know?
Dirk: This is a weird fucking train of thought. Can you tell her that?
Jake: (No!)
Dirk: I'm going to make you have a seizure and get you to mime the message to her with your spastic gyrations.
Pelvic thrusts will be my exclamation points.
Jake: (Screw you!)
(You heard her i totally have a shot hehehe!)
Aranea: What?
Jake: Cough uh go on.
Aranea: but I wouldn't want that to happen.
Jake: What to happen?
Aranea: For you to die soon.
I want you to succeed at your quest, and to live a long and happy life!
Dirk: Man.
I'm gonna come out and say it.
This broad is a total snore.
Jake: Yeah right bro did you hear that at least if i kick the bucket early there will be shall i say a silver lining wink wink nudge nudge.
It will take the form of some spooky smooches from a smokin ghostly troll babe so shut your jealous trap!
Aranea: (confused face with eight eyes)
Jake: Wait.
Oh dear.
How uh...
How loud was i talking just then?
Dirk: You were pretty much yelling.
Aranea: (winking face with eight eyes)
Jake: Augh!
Dirk: If I were real I would be giving you a standing ovation right now.
5 out of 5 hats.
Jake: God.
Ok just.
Pretend to forget that maybe?
Dirk: Not a chance.
Jake: Not you! Her!!
Aranea: Her? Who?
Me?
Jake: Sigh.
Why dont you just tell me where were going.

Aranea: I've gathered a small group of travelers for a meeting.
They are briefly passing through this bubble. I was hoping we could introduce ourselves to one another, and help orient an old friend of mine to the afterlife.
Jake: Ok.
Who is your friend?
Another troll?
Aranea: She was supposed to be the empress of all trolls, actually.
Jake: Wow.
So she died before she could be the empress i guess?
Aranea: Not exactly, since she probably never would have been regardless.
She didn't want the job.
Jake: Why not?
Aranea: Remember how I said each class had a duty to take care of the younger and more populous classes lower on the order?
Well, hers was the highest of all.
She was the only one on the planet with such royal blood, aside from the sitting empress.
As the heiress, she was meant for a position of incredible responsibility. Once she claimed the throne, she would have to serve for many thousands of years, until the next successor was ready.

Jake: That's a hell of a long time.
I guess she wasn't into that?

Aranea: She had some problems with authority.
She despised the whole social order, really.
I foolishly tried to convince her to honor her obligation, but she wouldn't listen.
She viewed the empress as a glorified slave.
So she abdicated, and fled to the moon to hide.
I was the only one who knew of her plans. The rest of the world searched but never found her.
At the time, I was furious with her. But I didn't turn her in.
Which in retrospect was a key decision that led us here.

Jake: You mean it led to you being dead?

Aranea: Yes, eventually.
While she was there, she discovered an ancient device.
Inside the device was a game.
She became obsessed with playing it, but needed our friends to agree to play first.
She was not well liked by the others though. Old grudges and rivalries made it hard to convince them.
but she is very devious, and knows how to trick people into doing what she wants.
She even got me to agree, by promising she'd return to her place as the heiress when we finished playing.
Needless to say, we had no idea what we were getting ourselves into.

Jake: She sounds like a handful.

Aranea: Yes.
She's not all that bad though.
Well....... When you really get to know her.
And when she's unarmed.
Which is....... pretty much never, now that I think about it.

Jake: ...

Aranea: Ok, she probably is all that bad.
The point is, you have to know how to handle her.
Regal types can be very touchy, even the ones who seem to revel in anarchy.
but if you know all the right things to say and do, she will happily hand over the keys to the kingdom, so to speak.
After all, royalty is royalty.
Just let me do the talking for a while, ok?

Dirk: Did you hear that, Jake? Aranea wants to do the talking.
I think your dead girlfriend might be starting to come out of her shell.

Jake: (Heheheh.)
(Ok that was kinda funny.)

Archagent: Report.

[Image description: Derse hangs in the blackness of the medium.]

The archagent cannot submit the paperwork for his daily report because the archagent is in jail. He was a bit sloppy and got himself pinched by the white shells.

That leaves all his duties to the penultimagent, otherwise known as the Draconian Dignitary. We should bear in mind that penultimagent isn't an officially recognized title though. It's just a word he thinks sounds kind of cool.

D.D: Report.

[Image description: D.D stands in a large room with incredibly ornate walls. There are three fourth walls in the back, all of which are cut in half. There are two desks. The left one is piled with citations and has a mug and ashtray. The ashtray has a lit cigarette in it. The other desk has a purple grammophone on it.]

The report is that you've got all these reports to fill out which the archagent has been letting pile up, and which you have absolutely no intention of completing. Paperwork's even less your bag than it is his. As was mentioned, the boss is still stuck in the big house. You've got the Droll working on busting him out, but you've said no particular hurry on that. You like to keep a casual administrative style. The boss is always in a hurry, all wound up like a knife wielding top. Personally, you don't see the harm in playing it cool.

Mounting paperwork aside, there's still the matter of this little insurrection to deal with. The boy is still out there, piking heads, agitating subjects, getting everyone hot and bothered. The press is going berserk with it, and you can have only so many reporters killed on any given news cycle. Can't forget about the girl either. She's still out there, going rogue. Wait. You mean awol. That stinkin' pun gets you every time. Puns are even less dignified than paperwork.

D.D: Locate prince.

You can't. By now the kid is up to his goddamn neck in convoluted gothic architecture. He's burrowed fuck deep in flying buttresses and purple pointy things. He even stopped by the boss's Cubicle of Vigilance and sliced up his Fenestrated Walls to make searching for him harder. Cunning bastard.

There used to be a 4th one, but you don't know what happened to it. There was a rumor circulating that some old woman made off with it some time ago, before the new queen took over. Whatever happened, it's nothing to worry about now.

If you want to smoke this kid out of hiding, you'll need some help.

D.D: Seek help.

[Image description: D.D walks along a street somewhere on Derse.]

You already did. You walk to retrieve it, again in no particular hurry.

Earlier you quite calmly and diplomatically explained everything to the old lady, letting her know you could use a little extra firepower to get the situation under control. You were pretty smooth about it, offering to light her cigarette during a calculated pause. And she doesn't even smoke. You're just that good. While you were making your smooth pitch, you did a masterful job of giving her the impression that you didn't care much one way or the other.

But to be fair, you really don't care much one way or the other.

D.D: Retrieve extra firepower.

[Image description: D.D stands on a balcony and looks at a large, bipedal mecha that looks like the drones. It has the fork logo on the front of it and four massive machine guns mounted on top.]
In response, the dame gave you clearance to employ the service of Dronegorg, the flagship battlemech of the imperial fleet she keeps stationed on some other damn planet. You're not sure where it is or what it's called. Hell if that's any of your business.

D.D: Mount Dronegorg and ride into battle.

[Image description: D.D imagines himself sitting inside the mecha. His head pokes out of the top and it looks ridiculous. A second image zooms in on him sitting in the mecha.]

No.

You'd feel completely ridiculous piloting that thing. It's a bad look for you. No style at all.

Next

[Image description: He frowns and imagines C.D. in his massive hat piloting the mecha and flailing around with it. It's labeled Drollgorg!]

Only an utter fool would get a kick out of prancing around in that asinine getup.

It was a classy gesture by the queen, but you told her you'd have to pass.

Next

[Image description: D.D reaches into his jacket.]

But it doesn't do no good to spurn generosity from a beautiful and deadly woman. You thanked her for the kind offer and tactfully brought up an alternative.

See, you tell the boss this is his problem. He's too blunt about his ambitions. Don't get you wrong. It's all well and good for a man to keep his eyes on the prize. But he doesn't always need to step over a thousand corpses and swim across rivers of blood to get there. You remind him there are slicker ways to make your moves, especially when it comes to a lady. Now that you think about it, Slick would be a good ironic nickname for him. Might be good for a laugh, callin' him that. Or it would if you actually ever laughed.

The point is, you have to know how to handle her.

Why does everything have to be so flashy and frenetic? What's the big hurry, anyway?

Sure, you're going to put this ring on. But when you're good and goddamn ready. Maybe do a little reading first, have another smoke. Finish your coffee. Listen to some REAL music. Everybody needs to calm the fuck down.

The Draconian Dignitary.

Really, you don't know why everyone's always got to be transforming from things into other things. Taking on these wild appearance modifications just for a little boost in power always struck you as tacky. Where's the class?
It just takes no creativity or guile for these villain types to grab a little power through such outlandish transformations. No imagination at all. You are utterly astounded by how shitty their imagination is. If their imagination was a face you would shoot it.

In the face.

D.D: Unleash awesome powers of ring.

[Image description: D.D vanishes, leaving just the sliced fourth wall in a fancy room.]

Awesome powers? Let's see. You're guessing it can probably make you invisible.

Yep. There you go. Invisible, just like you thought. What else is a magical ring of void gonna do? This is like Magic Rings 101. Real basic stuff.

D.D: Ok, that's cool. Stop being invisible.

[Image description: He reappears.]

You stop being invisible. There's not a lot of style to invisibility. Primarily because nobody gets to see how damn smooth you're being.

It's kind of a pointless power anyway. Some real dimestore parlor trickery that's just a waste of everyone's time. You doubt you'll ever use it again. It's sure not going to help you track down that elusive kid.

But sooner or later he's going to find out it's much harder to outrun the ring's true power.

D.D: Use Red Miles.

[Image description: He holds his hand up in the air and branching red lines that look like tendrils of blood come out of it. He holds up a grey walkie talkie with the other hand and just looks bored.]

The kid can't escape the miles.

Next

[Image description: The red miles expand out and begin stabbing into Derse, fracturing buildings and sending piece of masonry flying out into the void.]

No one can escape the miles.

Jane: Keep looking for dad.

[Image description: Jane, who is so small she's just a handful of pixels, stands on a walkway somewhere on LoCaH. Dad's car sits against one of the rock formations and several trees and mirrored obelisks dot the landscape. A second image zooms in on her and the car. Lil Seb stands behind her.]

You have been following a trail of clues on your quest to sleuth the whereabouts of your errant father. He seems to have left a variety of items behind, in hopes that you might notice and follow him. You have picked up each item along the way, until you reached this car. It is squeaky clean from today's earlier automotive ablutions, but obviously there is no way you can pick it up. It was probably the last thing he had to leave behind, which means your trail is about to go cold.

Next
Hang on. Lil Sebastian is gesturing further ahead. It seems there is another clue on the path.

Jane: Investigate clue.

It is your dad’s wallet. This is surely the end of the line. Ahead is another crypt. You wonder if he went in there? There's another one of those obelisks nearby shining a light down a pit, serving some dang purpose. Probably has some ridiculous bearing on a puzzle like five miles away. Like activating an elevator or a conveyor belt or something that just leads to yet another stupid old skull.

Actually, looks like there's one more thing left in the wallet. It's a note.

Jane: Examine note.

Daughter.

If you are reading this, it means you are now strong enough to lift the piano over your head, and shatter it to pieces.

While the instrument was expensive, it is a small price to pay for this important step on your journey toward becoming a powerful, independent young woman.

I am so, so, proud of you.

What the...

You think your dad maybe left the wrong note in the wallet? He probably meant to leave one pertaining to how you're mature enough to inherit his wallet, and what a big responsibility a wallet is for a strong young woman, or something like that. Dad leaves tons of notes like this around for such occasions, so it's probably easy for him to get them mixed up sometimes. He is a highly professional and competent father, but the guy is still feasible after all. D'aww.

Jane: Get car.

Now armed with your father's roomy, sleek leather wallet, you retrieve the family sedan with ease.

It looks like a cool pair of shades wants to talk about your sweet new ride.

A.R.: We need grist though.
    I can't get any building done without more.
Not to mention the fact that you're not going to be able to make any cool shit.
G.G.: There has to be a better way to gather up grist, though.
A.R.: Well, I think there are supposed to be monsters here.
    I haven't seen any monsters yet, have you?
G.G.: No, and I can't say I'm too disappointed.
A.R.: You should be though. Presumably they would drop grist and stuff when you kill them.
    Like treasure. And food products that restore your health. Or at least make you less hungry.
Haven't you ever played a video game, Jane?
G.G.: Of course I have!
A.R.: That's cool. I haven't, since I am a pair of sunglasses, and communing with such simplistic software would be a trivial and hollow exercise for me.
But I know loads of stuff about games. Like the fact that you gotta kill monsters if you want to make progress.
    If not to snatch up the bitchin' loot, at least for the levels.
G.G.: Levels?
A.R.: How are you going to get better at fightin' without killing monsters, Jane.
G.G.: I think I've done a fair job of scaling my echeladder without resorting to the slaughter of innocent, fictional monsters, thank you very much.
A.R.: Please.
    You've barely done any climbing at all. I'm talking about hopping more rungs than what playing a little prank on your dad or throwing your hat on the ground super hard is gonna get you.
    You need battle experience to make some real headway. Like Jake.
G.G.: I'm getting a little tired of various iterations of Dirk Strider telling me how I need to be more like Jake.
I know you think Jake is neat. I know all the Dirks just adore Jake! I get it!
A.R.: Wow, chill out.
    This ain't about whatever stuff you're apparently fixin' to twist your shit in a pretzel over.
You just need to get stronger, is all. Don't you think that's what your dad would want?
G.G.: You don't need to remind me about that. I'm suddenly having flashbacks to a few years ago when he would ambush me almost every day for a pointless round of strife.
    Boy does getting swatted with brooms and having cakes shoved in your face get old fast.
A.R.: Yeah, but in the process you got pretty handy with that fork/spoon thingy, didn't you?
A.R.: I'm just saying, if you don't run into any monsters on this planet, I think I'm going to have to set the bunny to "sparring mode" to help you along.
G.G.: I am not going to spar with Lil Sebastian!!!
He is too quick and deadly to fight with.
    And also, too adorable. :B
A.R.: Ok. We'll see about that.
    But in the meantime, we need to figure out a way to start harvesting grist.
Let's forget the car. But now that you have the wallet, you can grab much bigger things.
Big things have got to be worth more grist than all the picayune bullshit you keep around the
There are some choice relics in this place. Some of it has to be worth a fortune, gristways.
G.G.: You could be right.
I will give it a try.

Jane: Captchalogue obelisk.

You stick the Obelisk in the wallet. Fits like a dream. The ray of light is no longer reflected into the hole. Sorry, puzzles.

Jane: Feed it to gristwidget 12000.

You put the card in the widget and holy smokes! That thing was worth a fortune in all kinds of weird looking grist denominations. Seb springs into action and scoops it all up for you in a jiffy with his busy little legs.

Next

The built-in Grist Gutter on the widget immediately kicks into action, collecting all the grist overflow exceeding your current low limit. You guess that's pretty convenient.

You honestly thought these features were a lot of meaningless nonsense before. Like an example of BCCorp's strange sense of humor, made into a product sold for top dollar. The fact that this turned out to be a useful gizmo well in advance is either reassuring or unsettling. You aren't sure which.

Jane: Proceed to crypt.

Aaaaaand the door's locked now.

Looks like that obelisk was important after all. It was lighting up one of those globe switch dooohickers at the bottom of the hole, which was apparently keeping the door open. Just great.

Real nice work there, gumshoe.

Jane: Answer again.

A.R.: Hmm.

G.G.: Welp, let me have it!
A.R.: Have what?
G.G.: A hard time for botching up the pooch!
I think I just locked the door with that muttonheaded stunt. And now that mirrored obelisk is good as gone.
A.R.: I wasn't going to say nothin'.
Hell, I was asleep at the wheel too while you were busy fucking up, and I have an IQ of, hold on,
robo-calculating...
Robo-calculating...
Robo-calculating...
Robo-calculating...
G.G.: Oh brother.
A.R.: Robo-calculating...
About 500 billion.
G.G.: That is really, really robo-smart.
A.R.: Don't get human-fresh with me, Crocker. I'm about to bring all five hundo-billy points of my stringent cyborg IQ to bear on your dumb problem. Check it out.
I took note of the captcha code to the thing, and recorded a digital flashsnap of its appearance through my photographic silicone memory canals.
Which is to say I looked at eight alphanumeric digits a couple minutes ago, and remembered them.
G.G.: Ok?
A.R.: So give the bunny the wallet. I'll have him run back to the house and make you a new obelisk with the same grist you just collected from it.
He can stash it in the wallet and run it back to you, and then you can open the door. You shouldn't be waiting around too long, cause he's real spry.
Which is exactly why you should wait here. You'll just slow him down.
G.G.: Alright, I think I can do that.
What should I do in the meantime?
A.R.: Let me think about that.
Robo-calculating...
G.G.: Oh stop it!
A.R.: K.
G.G.: None of our friends will answer me. What could they be up to?
You must at least know what Dirk is doing.
A.R.: He's slicing up some drones.
G.G.: Some what?
A.R.: Big red robots. He'll be busy for a while.
Roxy I'm not sure about, but there is a pretty high probability as governed by the immutable laws of mathematics that she is preoccupied similarly.
G.G.: She's fighting robots too, you mean?
Dealing with them, in some way, perhaps.
If so, it wouldn't be a coincidence.
G.G.: Why?
A.R.: I think the Condesce is attempting to force the issue now.
A.R.: It's likely that it's a coordinated assault. Sending drones both to here and Roxy's place.
She's probably trying to get everyone else to stop dicking around and join the game already.
G.G.: Are you sure she's not just trying to kill them?
It wouldn't be her first assassination attempt.
A.R.: Yeah, but come on. Dirk has been a sitting duck here for years. Roxy too.
She could have wiped them out any time with a swarm much bigger than this one. Or just nuked them.
Her "assassination attempt" on you was pretty weak too.
G.G.: But it nearly worked!
I would be dead right now if not for the whims of G.Cat.
A.R.: Right.
Like I trust the motives of that fucking thing.
G.G.: So, you're saying she's only pretending to hunt us?
A.R.: I believe she probably would genuinely like to kill us. She is a psycho after all.
But it's also obvious to me she needs us to begin playing this game, for whatever fucked up purpose she has.
She might even need us to win it too, for all I know.
Her antagonism is all part of the dance.
G.G.: Then you're saying Dirk and Roxy aren't really in danger from the robots?
A.R.: Oh, I wouldn't say that. They're still pretty deadly and they shoot missiles and stuff.
G.G.: Augh! I just want to talk to my friends and see if they're ok.
What about Jake?
A.R.: No idea what's going on with him right now.
I'm sure when the time is right, the witch will keep pushing him along to join the game as well.
G.G.: Then I guess I'll just sit here and worry about everyone quietly until Seb gets back.
A.R.: What about your troll friend?
G.G.: What?
A.R.: The alien whose name you don't know.
You could talk to her.
G.G.: Oh yeah!
I forgot about her.
But I suppose that's because she's always the one to contact me. I never get a response when I message her.
A.R.: Well, you could give her a try. Maybe things are different now.
I could hack into her system to get her attention, if you think that would help.
G.G.: You can do that??
A.R.: Nah, just messin' with you.
Later.

G.G.: oh my! You answered!
you never answer.
U.U.: don't i?
G.G.: well, no. I don't mean to be accusatory.
I am just surprised.
U.U.: right then.
what can I do for you?
G.G.: well... Nothing in particular. Just thought it would be nice to catch up.
I was beginning to think I was the only one of my friends left alive.
maybe this gloomy place full of salamander bones and dusty old relics is starting to get to me. not to mention the most unwelcome presence of entrepreneurial clowns and their enormous codpieces.

U.U.: could be.

G.G.: I'm still trying to track down my father. I've been gathering clues, and I may be getting close. do you by any chance know if I might see him soon?

hmm...

are you there?

keep going where you're headed.

things will work out in time. You'll see him.

G.G.: phew! That's nice to know. Thanks.

you aren't usually forthcoming with future tidbits. Er, not that I was always especially eager to believe you about them anyway.

but I think I've been coming around on that lately, for what it's worth.

so, um.

hey.

are you ok there?

you seem rather preoccupied.

U.U.: I'm sorry.

I am not having the best day. (Blank face with closed eyes)

G.G.: what's wrong?

U.U.: everything!

where do I bloody begin.

G.G.: is it your brother?

U.U.: well that goes without saying doesn't it? He is always a problem.

but it's more than that.

when I sleep and visit prospit, I see nothing but storm clouds in skaia now.

my great big lovely ball of blue has been clouding over. Soon I fear it will be completely black, and the kingdom will be shrouded in darkness.

I wish I understood the meaning of this terrible omen.

G.G.: that sounds awful!

U.U.: and my brother has become more uncooperative than ever.

he intends to play the game, but refuses to treat it like a collaboration.

I have told him many times that the only way we can win is to work together! But he wants it to be yet another competition between us, like everything has been all our lives.

his threats to kill me have become harder to dismiss as his usual empty bravado.

I fear it may come down to having to kill him first.

although I am not sure exactly how I would go about this, or if I will even be up to the task.

(nervous face with closed eyes and a bead of sweat)

G.G.: I had no idea things had gotten this grim for you. I am so sorry.

the real trouble though is I'm not sure if I can play a successful session without him.

a two player session was already risky enough, satisfying bare minimum playing conditions.

and I had it on good authority that the two of us would be able to succeed, particularly given our...

Well, without intending to boast. Various advantages.

but I have no idea if a session of one is viable.

honestly I cannot for the life of me imagine how.

it may well result in a void session like yours, but without the promise of any extenuating circumstances.

G.G.: are you sure it's hopeless with him? You can't reach a truce, just for the sake of playing?

U.U.: I used to hope so, but I doubt it now.
he barely cares about the game itself, other than as a means of escaping our planet. he has always been more motivated by the ongoing game between us. G.G.: I think you have alluded to this before, but I never really understood. what game?
U.U.: well...
it is simple. We are playing a game together. we have been forced to, for as long as we've known each other. but the rules are complicated, and often shifting. And they don't always make sense! at least, they wouldn't to you. G.G.: try me!
U.U.: many you would not recognize as rules, so much as superstitions. a variety of caveats and stipulations. Things that would invite misfortune if I were to break. It would be very bad juju. I have not been able to tell you my name for this reason. doing so would lead us all down a very slippery slope! But I have wanted to tell you so. I hope my reluctance has not compromised our friendship. G.G.: of course not. I wrote off your reticence as one of your many eccentricities long ago.
U.U.: (very smiley face with closed eyes) G.G.: I still want to understand this game with your brother, though. could you describe some of the other rules?
U.U.: mm, yes. We have both renounced hemotyping until the resolution. G.G.: hemotyping?
U.U.: it is in the same vein, pardon the pun, as a quirk. It's the old tradition whereby one types in his or her own blood colour. so he and I have embraced neutral tones to speak in, for the time being. most humans do not practice hemotyping, presumably due to lacking diversity in blood class. G.G.: but your race has varied blood color?
U.U.: yes. G.G.: then what would yours be?
U.U.: I am a lime blood. (Smiley face with closed eyes) while he's got the bright cherry blood, just like you all do. not that this matters since we are alone here, but interestingly, in ancient troll culture we would both be considered pariahs. for different reasons of course. Those of his blood colour were very rare, existing by way of genetic glitch only. They were outcasts, having no place in the social order. on the other hand, those of my blood colour were once actually quite common! But later they were all hunted to extinction. G.G.: jeez. Why?
U.U.: details of the genocide are historically murky. It's one of those maddening voids in my understanding of your elaborate epic. but I have speculated their extermination had to do with the extremely powerful abilities they tended to have, and the threat to authority they represented. Even more so than other powerful lowbloods. G.G.: are you saying you have such powers?
U.U.: maybe. (Gasping face) G.G.: but he does not?
U.U.: he has other, um. Traits. G.G.: maybe he is jealous of you, which is why there is such resentment?
U.U.: oh, probably. He is an outright mess. If you can name a problem with me, he's got it. G.G.: the way you described it, I had always envisioned your contentious relationship as one played out mostly online. U.U.: yes. It is!
G.G.: and also that you and he had never met. Yet some things you have said lately appear to contradict this?
jane, I am sorry, but this is something I just cannot get into. For one thing we would be creeping way too close to breaking the rules, and then we would all be buggered.
even if I were at liberty to say, it would take so much time to explain everything. And I really must be getting to sleep again soon. I am terribly worried about the people of prospit during such dark times.
G.G.: I understand.
U.U.: suffice to say, all games that are played have boundaries. A stage to which all pieces and moves are confined.
like a chess board! There is no reality to the game beyond the edges of the binary grid.
G.G.: that makes sense, but I'm not sure I see how it applies.
U.U.: I know. It was more infernal gammoning on my part as I dance about these rules.
it's all one can do when everything he or she ever does is just another move in a game.
I am so sorry, jane. I would have loved to be more forthright with you since the day we first spoke.
you are a dear friend to me. You and your chums. You are all the only friends I have ever had.
G.G.: (buck toothed smile)
(heart)
U.U.: (very large smile with closed eyes)
I was planning on giving you a gift.
G.G.: you were??
U.U.: yes, but I was going to wait until completing my quest before sending it to you.
but now that things are looking rather bleak here, I may have to consider accelerating the delivery.
G.G.: what is it? Or is it a surprise?
U.U.: it is a surprise! But I will tell you this much.
it is my juju. It is very dear to me.
G.G.: your juju?
as you may have gathered about me, I have learned the hard way that it always pays to follow the rules. (Gasping face)
G.G.: where did you get it?
U.U.: it was an heirloom, you could say. Passed on from ancestors. I have always had it.
jujus are said to have origins which are impossible to understand or trace. Some say they emerge spontaneously from the void.
they cannot be truly duplicated. If there ever appears to be more than one of the same, it is only a mirage of causality!
nor can they ever be destroyed. Not completely, at least.
so when I send you mine, it will be no small matter. It will not simply be copied through alchemy.
you will be the new owner, and mine here will cease to exist.
G.G.: um... Gosh.
U.U.: but unfortunately it will have no value to you unless I send my brother's juju as well.
and he will not relinquish control of his unless I best him at our game. This is another of our rules.
G.G.: it sure sounds like you two are up to your necks in this crazy game.
U.U.: oh yes. We are up to quite a bit further than our neck in it. (Winking face) but it's alright. I love games.
my brother, on the other hand...
G.G.: not such a big fan of games?
U.U.: on no, quite the contrary.
his passion for games transcends any human understanding of love.
for you to understand it would be to fully comprehend the meaning of...
how to put it.
G.G.: um.
G.G.: beauty?

T.T.: do you want me to pretend I don't want to play?
like, is that part of the kink for you? Kind of a roleplaying thing?
U.U.: shut the fuck up.
T.T.: "no, no, please. Don't make me draw any more pics of my friends snuggling and stuff."
strider said, having spent the better part of the night gnawing through his duct tape gag.
U.U.: look at these pathetic stalling tactics. As if I don't know an attempt to derail one of my diabolical games.

T.T.: that's good. Keep saying things like that.
I'll keep doing my part.
"somebody save me from this living nightmare. The things he has made me do."
U.U.: maybe your irreverence for my game. Stems from the fact that you don't give a flying fuck think you think so too.

you know. You're an alright guy. For a monstrous fuckup leagues beneath me in every way that

T.T.: how so?
U.U.: ahaaha! You see!!! That right there. You asked a question.
asking shit is what being curious means. I fucking win already. You trash.
T.T.: damn. owned.
U.U.: but that's what you do when you have a shitty twist ending. Planned at the end of all your games.
see. This game has a twist. It is twisted like a little candy swirl. That is a kiss on your face from an angel. While you make a fucking fool of yourself in your sleep.
T.T.: I know what a twist is.
or I did, until you kept saying stupid shit that doesn't mean anything.
if you want to know my shitty twist.
you have to keep playing my game.
T.T.: well, not only was I pretty psyched to keep playing regardless.
I'd rather do just about anything than listen to you ramble on and on about your horseshit twists.
U.U.: very good.
the lecherous amusements.

T.T.: does your sister even know you're into this sappy shipping stuff? you berate her constantly for everything, and I know she likes to write and illustrate romfics and the like.
U.U.: no. She enjoys it for wrong and disgusting reasons. her fascination with the red stirrings of inferior races. It strikes me as too sincere and therefore repellent.
my enjoyment is. Ironic.
T.T.: again, you just don't seem to know what ironic means. your enjoyment of this content is clearly sincere. You are just fetishizing your "disgust" for it, is all.
U.U.: fuck you with that assessment.
you don't tell me. Of what value the pornography has to me. In my own game. you just fucking draw. And don't talk.
T.T.: I'm just saying, it's an interest you have in common. If you told her you liked her romantic artwork, maybe you could bond over that?

I will not tell her. That I secretly peruse her work in a state of petrified mortification for hours. And neither will you.

pesterlog
T.T.: aw, that's it?
I thought we were getting into a good rhythm there.
anyway, you missed out on like half the pairings.
U.U.: what. Half. No we did most of them didn't we.
T.T.: no, we did three, and there are three possible matchups left.
don't you know anything about shipping science?
U.U.: that's a thing?
how the fuck could that be a thing.
T.T.: believe me.
it's a thing.
total number of pairings for a group of n people is n to the power of 2 minus n divided by 2.
you divide by 2 to cut the grid in half, eliminate duplicate pairs.
minus n is so you don't pair people up with themselves. That wouldn't make sense.
U.U.: and why the fuck not??
T.T.: well, because...
I don't know.
maybe you're right. Maybe I was being close-minded about self-pairing. What do I know?
U.U.: jack shit obviously.
anyway. Fuck all that. You don't spoil good debauchery. With a lot of stupid math.
you may think you're smart. But excessive smartness can make you be more of an idiot.
intelligent idiocy can be easily exploited by the cunning and ruthless. Just a tip for you. Bro.
T.T.: I'll make a note.
so you sure you don't want even one more drawing?
you used jane and roxy in two pairings. But me and jake only got one.
how is that fair?
U.U.: I decide what is fair in my games.
if you are proposing to illustrate the jake human behaving amorously with the dirk human. The answer is no.
T.T.: why not?
U.U.: that encounter does not seem as reprehensibly scandalous.
first of all. I ask of you. Where are the bitches at?
I rest my case.
T.T.: lame.
U.U.: second of all. I don't wish to languish in the pumpkin patch.
T.T.: what?
I have no taste for pumpkins. Or any horrid vegetable matter.
meat or candy. That's what's good. The game is over.
T.T.: fine.
I'll keep all my illustrated debasements to myself, then.
U.U.: good. Do that.
T.T.: ok. I will.
so did I win?
U.U.: I will say.
yes.
you were cooperative and generally enthused about my game.
congratulations dirk.
T.T.: thanks.
so what's the shitty twist?
U.U.: ah! But not so fast.

T.T.: a twisted twist?
like... A double mobius handjob or something?
T.T.: Ok.
What is the twist to the twist?

Next
U.U.: the twist to the twist is.
I won't tell you what the shitty twist is for a year!!
T.T.: wow.
    that...

U.U.: your gratification on this matter will be delayed.
I have noticed. As your awful meandering saga wends its way. Through the ass crack of nowhere and back.
answers to pointless questions are often deferred. Nigh indefinitely.
and so this will cause you to reflect. Upon a lifetime spent.
being inside a bullshit story like that.
is the irony not fucking delicious?

Roxy: smack snack

Dave: (but yeah i dont got any yarn)
Rose: (I just,)
(Don't see how you can make remarks with such frequency that are so obliviously and so generically loaded from a Freudian perspective.)
(It's flabbergasting, really. You never miss a chance.)
(Cigars? Describing a scenario where you are both given birth to by your teen mother, as well as playing the role of the proud father in the waiting room?)
Dave: (oh god no stop)
Rose: (What should I make of the fact that the phallic imagery you've selected is not only inexpensive, but is administered freely and mirthfully to other expecting fathers?)
(Or that the object standing in for the phallic symbol is something you're proposing to throw at our mother's head!)
Dave: (just shut the fuck up!)
(arent you magic or something)
(are you still magic or is your superpower now just talking a lot and wearing orange)
(why dont you use your magics to wake her up) (arent you kinda curious to talk to her)

Rose: (Yes.)
(But I don't think I know that spell.)
Dave: (hey what even is magic anyway)
(like are spells real like when you do magic are you actualy doing legit spells like the dipshits in harry potter) (babbling up some false baloney ass latin) that's a pretty interesting story, don't you think, meenah? (Winking face with eight eyes)

Meeah: whatebber
Aranea: however, I don't think much of it will make sense without some major contextualization.
there's really quite an amazing amount of nuance to the full sequence of events. Many different players, personalities, conflicting agendas, all interwoven together.
I'll need a little time to set the stage for everything to be comprehensible, if you all don't mind indulging me for a while.
You could say it all started during our darkest hour, when it became clear our failure was inevitable. I took it upon myself to venture into the palace of my denizUMPH.

Aranea: the worst story that has ever been told in the history of paradox space!!!!!!!!!
Meenah: whoa clam down
Aranea: no! I will not "clam down." Clamming is not something you can do, unless you do it up, or you are literally retrieving clams from a bed of soft oceanic soil.
Meenah: clam your rumble spheres seriously they is lookin lively girl everyones gawkin Aranea: you just have no respect for a well told story.
Meenah: I said what happened didnt i Aranea: only barely!!!!!!! you left out so much! All the intrigue, the complicated interpersonal relationships, the backstory, the responsible pacing.
where was the world building, meenah?
Meenah: who gives a dolphin flip through a big ring of shit Aranea: ok! I think I finally understand the art of storytelling now, thanks to you!
it turns out all you have to do is make series of short, mysterious statements without supplying context or any further elaboration.
it's all so simple! Let's try it out.
did you know that "what's his face" vantas in our post-scratch world grew up to be a spiritual leader followed by millions?
they killed him though. He died handcuffed to something, while shouting a rude word. The end!
leijon grew up to be his matesprit! She wrote stuff down and spent a long time in a cave. That's that.
their buddy captor flew a ship for some hag. It wasn't a very cool gig. Maryam found a wiggler and died a slave. Did I mention our planet became kind of a shithole? No, I don't think I did, because that's apparently not how you "tell stories."
Meenah: ...
Aranea: zahhak built me a robotic arm. He was ordered by a highblood to kill a girl but he couldn't do it, and was banished. Really beat himself up over that. But it's ok because his descendant redeemed the honor of his legacy by doing whatever a murderous clown told him to. Wait, was that too much detail? Forget I said some of that. Moving on!

Ampora was a pirate. Nobody liked him. He killed a lot of people, but was later executed because he was unable to tell a funny joke. What else needs to be said? That's right. Nothing.

Makara was the guy who didn't like his joke. He was terrible and so is his story. Period.

Nitram was a hero who led a rebellion. He killed me. But not before things got pretty steamy between us. Want to hear the juicy details? You're out of luck!!!!!!!!!

Meenah: aww man (frowny face wearing a tiara and goggles)

Aranea: pyrope cut off my arm and arrested me, but I killed her. This triggered a karmic cycle of revenge which led to the eventual blinding of her descendant.

Sorry, terezi. Them's the breaks!

Terezi: what?

Aranea: as for me, well, I could go on daaaaaaay about that subject. But I won't!

I was a cool pirate. The best pirate! I lived a long time, had amazing adventures, got all the treasure, then died. That's all she wrote!

But not literally. She wrote quite a lot in fact. She had a lot to say, just like me. Which is why she's so great.

Let's see. Who am I forgetting here?

Meenah: uh

Aranea: oh, of course. Megido! Now there's an interesting story full of exciting twists and turns we won't be getting into.

She was kidnapped as a child by a creep, then served the creep's boss for millions of sweeps. She helped make everything lousy. Then you killed her and took her job.

Aranea: anyway, I think this tedious tale has gone on for entirely too long already!

I can't think of a single thing left to address that could possibly be of interest to anyone.

Meenah: no no shut up

do me now what about me

Waterboat meeee!!!

Aranea: why, meenah. Could it be that you would like to hear more?

I must be imagining things, because you are on record as finding my stories boring.

Meenah: no these stories are more interesting than your usual ones

I can tell because I'm actually still a wake.

Aranea: very well. You would like to know about your post-scratch adult life.

Would you like the short version? Or the long version?

Meenah: uh

Aranea: are those the only two options

Meenah: you tell me.

Meenah: how about

Not the looooooooong version

Like don't go full fuckin serket on us

But

Dont leave out too much of the cool stuff?

Shit man why do I gotta explain this to a presumably rational person

Just tell me what ma junk was bitch!

Aranea: very well.

I shall strive to convey your story, including details which you are likely to find interesting on account of vanity, whilst attempting to refrain from going "full serket" on you and other hapless bystanders.
Meenah: blub
come on spit it out windfang
Meenah: no more adventures on the high breeze got it Aranea: fine.
you want the abridged-version, but-maybe-not-so-abridged, as-long-as-the-stuff-that-you-in-particular-would-like-to-hear-is-included, of the meenah peixes saga?
here we go.

Aranea: Instead of storming off to the moon in a huff, Peixes embraced her role as an heiress.
Once she reached the age to challenge the empress, she killed her predecessor easily.
She did more to sink our race into perpetual darkness and violence than any empress before her, and her rule lasted the longest by far.
She conquered thousands of planets and star systems, many of them personally. She was responsible for the death of trillions.
Her reign was interrupted only by the extinction of our race, which was orchestrated by the omniscient creep I mentioned previously.
She flew back to her homeworld, killed Megido, and assumed control of her demonic powers.
In doing so, she also assumed her role as the servant to an indestructible demon, whose existence was about to result in the annihilation of our universe.
but before that, he had a new assignment for her.
Is this brief enough? Am I addressing all the "cool stuff" to your satisfaction?
Meenah: (gasping face wearing a tiara and goggles)
Aranea: That's the first half of her story.
In the second half, she escaped to a fresh universe to wreak more havoc.
She infiltrated a planet called Earth, which is home to a race called humans. These guys here.
On the post-scratch version of Earth (long story), she gained absolute power, flooded the planet, and completely wiped out the human population, while expanding her abilities even further.
She then somehow entered the humans' game session, and took control there as well.
She did all this at the behest of her employer, and has shown no signs of slowing her rampage, or ever dying, for that matter.
So, Meenah. How was that story? Are you bored yet?
Meenah: (gasping face wearing a tiara and goggles)

U.U.: jake, I don't have long to talk so I shall leave this note to you while you sleep and then go. I may have to begin, let us say, bending rules a bit more than I have? he is making things bloody impossible. Our game is now nothing short of war. That is all I will say.

well, I will also say this.

I am scared out of my wits to go to sleep now. I don't know what will come of me.

my dream self is kaput, like yours.

ut I don't fancy you will have trouble waking from your nap.

whereas i...

best not to dwell on it I suppose.

I don't know what to do besides stall, and keep helping you as much as I can.

now is the time to retrieve those weapons from the capsule and prepare the gift!

this is so important. The chain will not be complete unless the delivery is made.

but first you may want to test its capabilities.

in particular... What are they called?

the infinitesimalizer and monstrositifier?

there sure are some funny names for things strewn about your tale.

remember, green means grow, red means shrink! But surely you know this.

give it a go. Perhaps try targeting that unwieldy edifice stashed away in your sylladex? Could free up some space!

but remember to hold on to it. It remains as important as ever.

I'll be sodding off then.

so much to do, so little time. (Blank face with closed eyes)

uranianUmbra [UU] ceased cheering golgothasTerror [G.T.]

Jake: Examine time capsule.

[Image description: Jake looks at a lotus blossom time capsule. It counts down from 11 minutes and 11 seconds to 11 minutes and 7 seconds.]

Still about 10 minutes to go before the stuff is supposed to appear. In the meantime, might as well mess around with the bunny like she said, see if it works.

Jake: Deploy Terry Kiser.

[Image description: Jake sets the part knit, part robot bunny down. A second image shows it waving.]
Terry! Atta boy. He looks like he is ready and raring to be a loyal companion to his new owner, that lucky bastard. You will be a little sad to say goodbye. You hardly got a chance to know him at all.

Jake: Monstrositify something.
[Image description: The bunny's green eye points a green light towards four pieces of dancing fruit with faces.]

You drop some Delicious Fruit and activate the green beam. Green means grow. This is seriously some Alice in Wonderland shit going on here. And soon you will send the rabbit on its way through the looking glass. These aren't the kind of things that usually occur to you though, especially after several blows to the head. You continue staring vacantly at the dancing fruit, while that kind of thing keeps not occurring to you.

Next
[Image description: Jake smiles and the fruits are now about hip height on him. They continue dancing.]

Eureka, it works! Never a doubt in your mind. Grandma's technology is pure modern witchcraft, like she busted loose from a big silver screen playing the Wizard of Oz or some nonsense, which also isn't a thing that's occurring to you right now. This is exactly the kind of technology you win big time awards for. The kind that could end world hunger. Or it would be if humanity wasn't about to go down the toilet anyway. What a bummer.

Jake: Ok, try out infinitesimalizer.
[Image description: It zooms way, way out. A grey circle appears in a captchalogue card. Jake deploys it, revealing that it's the orb from the top of the main tower of his home.]

You deploy the massive thing that's been clogging your sylladex forever. Some time after your house exploded, you found it in the jungle and snapped it up for safe keeping. Even if it didn't have strong sentimental value, you probably would have grabbed it anyway. Globes are sweet. You love globes. Globes, spheres... they're all cool in your book.

But to be completely honest, you'll be relieved to have the inventory space back.

Jake: Shrink it.
[Image description: The red light from the bunny's red eye engulfs it and shrinks it until it's about as large as Jake. It bounces onto the ground and rolls off down the hole below the broken elevator.]

Works like a charm, as expected.

Whoops, there it goes, down the rabbit hole. You'll need to fish it out of there. Supposedly one of your grandma's thingamajigs inside the globe is pretty important?

You'll go get it in a few minutes though. The capsule flower is about to bloom!

Jake: Watch capsule bloom.
[Image description: Jake turns back to the time capsule as it opens, revealing the pile of weapons John got in the box with the bunny- the Warhammer of Zillyhoo, Ahab's Crosshairs, Broken Royal Deringer, and Quills of Echidna. The timer resets to 1 hour, 11 minutes, and 11 seconds.]
There they are! Finally! The deadly armaments you have been waiting...

Huh. Those are the armaments? It just looks like a big silly pile of shit. Oh well, you guess that alien girl knows what she's talking about.

Jake: Check capsule clock.

[Image description: The timer begins counting down.]

Hold on. The clock reset itself to a new countdown. Something else is going to come out of this thing in a little more than an hour.

But according to the game plan, you're not even supposed to still be here in an hour. You wonder what it could be? Guess you won't be around to find out.

Jake: Prepare present for delivery.

[Image description: The bunny shrinks the weapons down to bunny-size.]

Gotta shrink these weapons down first! No way they're fitting in that box along with the rabbit.

Next

[Image description: Jake writes a note in quick, spidery handwriting. All we see of it says John!!!
One more thing…]

Need to write an addendum to John about this stuff. John who is probably Jane's grandpa from the past, or maybe not really the past? Maybe like a young grandpa clone who lives in that ghost world where you saw all those other kids, including those two Dirk and Roxy-looking kids, and what you think may have been literally a sleeping Roxy, but you aren't totally sure? Why does everything have to be so Complicated? Whatever, no big. Going on adventures isn't about understanding them. It's about being brave, and leaping into fistfights without thinking ahead.

You finish off your note with a few more friendly words, and something vague about who you really are. You are just following your alien friend's advice on maintaining a bit of secrecy so as not to cause timeline problems, but boy is it hard keeping secrets. You can't help yourself, and slip in a subtle clue that your grandmother is actually his pal Jade. Tee hee. You figure if John is even half as sharp as you, he will pick up on that right away. It's ok, it'll just be a little secret between you and him. The pretend-British alien doesn't even need to know.

Next

[Image description: Jake stands next to the beat up transmaterializer machine. The green box with the bunny and weapons sits on the platform.]

Terry's ready to go. You ask the bunny kindly to put himself back in the box. He happily complies, and there is no reason at all to ask rhetorically why he wouldn't put himself back in the box.

You place him on the Transmaterializer's pedestal, and get ready to hit the Sendificate button one last time. You can't believe this project is finally finished. No more fun letters between you and your grandma. You guess the next time you talk to her, it will be in person. Hard to believe! But then, for a guy like you, nothing is.

[Image description: A loading screen in the shape of a bunny's head appears. The song I Don't Want to Miss a Thing begins to play. The background turns into an Armageddon poster and the inside of the bunny turns into a black and white glamor shot of the actress Liv Tyler. It pans down the poster and zooms in on her face. The Meteor flies through the void. The poster John wrote a note on and Davesprite defaced fades in behind it, SBAHJ graffiti side up. The meteor flies through the spaces between walls. Jake reaches for the Sendificate button. Everything goes white just before he presses it.

It shows the whole transmaterializer room. The box glows white, then the glow expands to take up the whole room.

The white fades to an aerial shot of Jade's island. It fades to her sitting cross-legged on the grass. She smiles and turns her head as the box appears next to her. She writes her happy birthday note to John. The bunny pokes its head out of the box. A shadow of a plane crosses the island. It passes over a hill behind Jade and Bec with the box between them. Both Bec and the box vanish in a flash. A scribbly drawing of a mail plane crosses an equally scribbly sky. Green light closes in from the edge of the screen and the green box appears in a cargo hold full of brown boxes. It falls and bounces.

John's mailbox has the flappy arm dealie up. John looks through his window and grins. Dad's car pulls into the driveway. John stands next to it, wearing his clever disguise. The box sits on the passenger seat, on top of the sburb envelope. It zooms in on the box, then begins flashing through images incredibly quickly.

John holds the blue apple. A meteor bears down on his house. A Time to Kill poster smeared with cake. The meteor again. Dad, confused in the kitchen while baking. The meteor again. A closeup of the Armageddon poster. The meteor. A jester painting. Nanna's portrait and ashes over the fireplace. The slime on John's shirt. John staring down the meteor just before impact. Impact. John's house in the medium. John and Nannasprite on the balcony with the alchemiter. John, confused as Rose places objects. John wanders around, retrieving the PDA and watching Rose lose connection as she picks up the car. The car falls into the void. A.R. finds the smashed car and cordons it off after giving it a parking citation. He takes the green box and envelope. P.M. spots him and refers to the note she got from Jade requesting that she deliver the box. She takes the envelope, but not the box. She takes the parking citation to the Dersite palace, then to the Queen. The queen sends her to Jack's office, where the box sits on the desk. Jack offers her a black sword and two slips of paper. She takes them nervously. Jack looks into the box and looks shocked. He crumples the citation. The Black Queen saunters down a hall. She glares at Jack through one of his walls, then appears in his office. She tells him to put on a frilly dress and he refuses. She holds a sword to his throat to try and make him wear it. He holds the box and still refuses. Then murders her and takes her ring. He slaughters carapacians on the battlefield. Repeatedly. He sends out the red miles. Prospit's moon plummets through the atmosphere and Dream Jade throws Dream John out of the impact zone. John finds her body and takes her ring. P.M. kills HB. She stands over his body, holding the crowns of the White King and Queen. Jack grins and exchanges the crowns for the box. P.M. glares and aggressively delivers the box to John, then stalks off. John reads the notes and opens the box. Jack threatens him with a sword. The bunny, now Liv Tyler, springs out of the box with all the weapons at the ready and scares Jack off. Liv follows John across the battlefield. John spots his dad and runs towards him, but wakes up before he can get to him. John goes godtier, then drills into the battlefield with a tornado. C.D. holds on to Liv so she doesn't blow away. John gets the 'one more thing' note and gets Liv to make the warhammer large enough to use. W.V. eats Liv's green eye. John hands over the tumor and sends them off to get it to Dave and Rose. C.D. steals it and Liv chases C.D. through the ship until she can steal it back. Liv wanders through Derse and eventually gets it to them. Dave breaks the royal deringer out of the base of the chain. Rose looks back at Derse from the window of Dave's dream tower as the moon flies out into the void.
Dave is also there, in dream-bubble form. D.D stabs Dave and he wakes up on Derse, then goes after Rose. The moon floats through the void and comes to the site of the green sun as Dave, Rose, and Liv descend to the center of it. The three of them stare at the bomb. Liv smiles and everything goes white. The bomb explodes into blue and red light, then the green sun appears. A watermark of a man with a moustache and round sunglasses appears in the sun. That fades and a watermark of Liv Tyler the actress appears.

Everything fades to black.

Select character.

[Image description: A character select screen for Jane, Jake, Roxy, or Dirk appears. When you hover over Jane, the background turns into a picture of the obelisk she destroyed reflecting blue light down into a hole. When you hover over Jake, it shows him in the transmaterializer room. When you hover over Roxy, it shows her running from drones. When you hover over Dirk, it shows him and sawtooth looking up towards a red tendril in the sky. Click Jane.]

Be Jane.

[Image description: The door to the crypt is now open. A second image shows Jane and Lil Seb in a cave, on a walkway, over a body of water. The walkway leads to a blown open door.]

Your nimble friend returned with the duplicated obelisk, allowing you into the crypt to pursue your father. Ahead appears to be a locked door, that was punched clean through. You are on the right track. You are sure of it.

Jane: Examine door.

[Image description: Jane and Lil Seb stand by the door. Jane has an A.R. alert over her head.]

You can smell his cologne. Or at least you think you can. Maybe you're just imagining it? You know what, it doesn't matter. Someone punched through this door, and that guy was your dad. End of story!

Another incoming message from your client shades. Your client human sure is a busy guy. You've barely heard a peep out of him since you got here.

Jane: Answer client shades.

[Image description: Jane sits down on the ground and puts the crosbytop in front of her. Lil Seb steps through the broken doorway. A second image shows two icons on the crosbytop. One is Delirious Biznasty and the other is a red spirograph labeled 'server'.]

A.R.: Hold up.
Before you go any further, there's been a change of plan.
G.G.: Really?
A.R.: Well, not a change of plan so much as an acceleration. Everyone needs to get into the game sooner than expected. There is a new unaccounted for variable. Particularly for Roxy and Dirk.
G.G.: What is it?
A.R.: They are probably going to die if they don't join the game very soon.
G.G.: Shucks!!!!!
A.R.: Hey, I'm upset about it too, but let's watch the fucking language.
G.G.: Ok, what do I do?
A.R.: Install the server. I downloaded it to your computer along with a few other crucial system upgrades when we established our connection.
G.G.: Upgrades? What upgrades?
Wait, is that how this stupid "Delirious Biznasty" application got on here?
A.R.: No comment.
Install and run the server. You will be connecting with Roxy. I will have Jake connect with Dirk. Setting up the chain like this will be important.
G.G.: Why?
A.R.: It seems that I again have no comment.
G.G.: Sheesh.
Very well then, Mister Zipperlips.
A.R.: I don't have lips. You just said something laughably illogical. How typical of someone who isn't a fashion accessory of immeasurable intelligence.
G.G.: Whatever! Let's curtail the horseplay this once while I help Roxy.
Ok. I installed it. Now what? Should I run it?
A.R.: Yes. That copy is programmed to connect automatically with the client she's running.
G.G.: Okey dokey. Doing that now.
Hey, I can see her room! (buck toothed face)

[Image description: It shows Roxy's room, now with a red sburb cursor hovering in it.]

pesterlog
G.G.: That's a really nice room there.
But where is she?
Hah, her drink is still there. So she can't have gone far.
A.R.: Oh snap.
G.G.: I don't see her anywhere in the rest of the house.
I see plenty of plush wizards and window gizmos, and... pumpkins? Really, Roxy? What an unusual house design. Are all homes in the future like this?
A.R.: You mean the ones that aren't under water? Yes. They are all almost exactly like that.
A.R.: I'm sure she's out cruising the hood, probably messin' with the locals. Maybe attempting some ill advised drunken heroics.
Pretty tight numerical probability of that, I just decided with unfeeling precision.
G.G.: She said things were on fire when we last talked?
Actually, she said the whole neighborhood was burning down, if I recall. But judging by the view from her window, it looks lovely outside. What exactly is the danger I am saving her from here?
A.R.: Zoom out.
Way out.

Jane: Zoom out.

[Image description: Roxy's neighborhood is on fire and the Red Miles creep towards it.]

pesterlog
G.G.: OH NO!!!!!
Roxy, where are you???(frowning face)
A.R.: We'll track her down.
The important thing to do now is deploy all the devices quickly, so the house will be ready to jet the moment she gets back.
G.G.: How do you know she's not hurt?
A.R.: That is statistically remote.
Given that I can track the coordinates of certain devices she carries, and they are presently in motion.
Really, the fire is not the most significant threat, or even the drones.
G.G.: Then what is?
A.R.: Do you see the red stringy stuff coming from the sky?
G.G.: Oh...
Yes.
What is that??

==>

[Image description: Jane picks up Roxy's bed and carries it away.]

pesterlog
A.R.: If sources are to be trusted, and my calculations are reliable within a 0.001% margin of error, it's a bunch of super deadly red shit.
No time to get into that now though. Just deploy the devices quickly.
You know the drill.
G.G.: Right. Let's see.
There's hardly any space in here to put anything. I'll have to make some room.
I don't want to damage any of her belongings though.
A.R.: That would be unconscionable.

==>

[Image description: Jane launches the bed into a fire.]

pesterlog
G.G.: whoops!
dag nabbit. This trackpad is awful!
lousy dad computer.
why does he have to buy his computers at the dadly depot?
why does he have to buy everything at the dadly depot?
I really need to keep looking for him soon. Thinking about our expeditions to the dadly depot is making me miss him.
A.R.: you really need to hurry up and deploy that junk instead of that.

Jane: Deploy.

cruxtruder in the observatory full of pumpkins. A third shows her alchemiter on the roof.]

pesterlog
G.G.: There. Those seem like suitable locations for the equipment.
A.R.: Yeah.
G.G.: Hey, where's Lil Seb?
A.R.: Just wandering around. Fidgeting and stuff.
You know how he is.
Just stay at your post until Roxy gets back.
G.G.: I think he went through the door.

Jane: Follow the rabbit.

[Image description: Jane follows Lil Seb into a room with frog hieroglyphs all over the wall. He stands on an appearifier and disappears in a blue flash]

pesterlog
G.G.: He just disappeared on that platform!
I think it might be some kind of transport device, that works via teleportation.
A kind of "transportalizer," to coin a completely silly and novel term.
A.R.: That's great. Now sit back down and wait for Roxy. She'll be home soon.
G.G.: But I think that's where my dad went too!
I have to follow him.
A.R.: No, Jane. Do not follow the rabbit.
Let's cool it with the Wonderland shit already. How much further through the damn looking glass do you even need to go?

Jane: "Transportalize."

[Image description: Jane stands on the transportalizer and vanishes.]

pesterlog
G.G.: I'll be fine!
I'm bringing my computer with me. I can tend to Roxy's entry along the way.
A.R.: This is an atrocious idea.

[Image description: Jane appears somewhere on Derse. The walls are cracking and the room shakes. Light shines through a pointed doorway, casting a shadow of Lil Seb on the floor.]

===>

[Image description: Jane and Lil Seb look up to see fire engulfing crumbling purple buildings, which are being destroyed by The Red Miles. Dirk flies above one of the buildings and looks down at them.]

===>

[Image description: Jane stares up with a surprised look.]

===>

[Image description: Dirk stares down with an equally surprised look.]
T.T.: And what in the name of Jesus H. Dick is she doing here?
A.R.: I am blameless in this debacle.

[Image description: Jane and Lil Seb stand on the edge of a crumbling walkway. Flames lick up beneath it and curl around the edge.]

[Image description: Jane spots Jake on another walkway across the flames. He looks even more shocked than Dirk and Jane did.]

Select character.

[Image description: The character select screen appears again. This time, pick Jake.]

Be Jake.

[Image description: Jake stands in the temple, between the elevator and the lotus blossom time capsule. It's zoomed out to the point that Jake is just a small white shape. Everything shakes slightly.]

Now that you've shot your boxed-up friend through time and space to grandma land, it's time to retrieve her lab globe which you shrunk then hot potatoed down the rabbit hole. Then it'll be time to hoof it out of these musty old ruins, assuming you can get that elevator working again. Which might be a problem, now that you think about it.

Also, it seems the volcanic tremors have increased, which can't be good.

Jake: Look in hole.

[Image description: He looks down the hole. The shrunken tower top sits next to two transportalizers. One of them is purple and the other is yellow.]

It's a bit deeper than you thought. Now you're starting to wonder if you'll even be able to get out of there once you hop down.

Hey, there are two transportalizers down there too. Like the kind that were in your old house. You wonder where they go? Funny, in all the time you spent exploring this place, it never occurred to you to look down here.

Jake: Jump down and get that globe.

[Image description: Jake jumps down and stands next to the globe. A second image shows him reaching through the slit in the roof.]

You mainly want to take what's inside it. That thing is supposed to be all kinds of important.
You wonder if you can just...

Just sort of reach inside...

And...

Jake: Take it.

[Image description: Jake holds a fourth wall that's about the size of a piece of paper. An A.R. alert appears above him.]

You just sort of reach inside and take it.

You have no idea what this thing is supposed to do. It's some particularly arcane loot your grandma pinched on one of her daring expeditions. You've been told it's important. Probably for puzzles later or something. Like something from one of the National Treasure movies, that Nic Cage finds in the old lair of a secret president, and he doesn't know why it's important, he just shoves it in his hero satchel and keeps doing adventures until it randomly becomes important.

You hope it's not a problem that you made it so small. Wait, that's exactly the kind of thing a hero doesn't worry about. Cage would just pocket his tiny window thingamabob and keep being awesome. Shit like that is for the plot to figure out, not the brave gun toting hero.

Looks like the shades are bugging you again. Why are you not surprised?

Jake: Answer.

[Image description: Jake puts on his skulltop and captchalogues both the globe and the fourth wall. An A.R. alert hovers over his skulltop. A second image shows his desktop, which is now nearly covered with 11 different versions of Delirious Biznasty. A red spirograph icon labeled 'server' is also there.]

A.R.: Hold up.
Before you go any further, there's been a change of plan.
G.T.: Oh why am i not surprised!
Still no human dirk?
A.R.: Don't worry, you'll see him very soon. In a way.
G.T.: What is the change of plan?
A.R.: Well, not a change of plan so much as an acceleration.
Everyone needs to get into the game sooner than expected. There is a new unaccounted for variable.
G.T.: I see. Variables and what not.
Let's cut to the chase! What do i do.
A.R.: Install the server. I downloaded it to your computer along with a few other crucial system upgrades.
G.T.: Crucial upgrades huh?
I dunno about crucial buddy i see you have trolled me with like 50 copies of this dumbfuck social media software for cool bros in hats but ok.
The guy is untrollable.
G.T.: Ok i installed it should i run it?
A.R.: Yes.
You will be connecting with Dirk. I will have Jane connect with Roxy. Setting up the chain like this will be important.

G.T.: Sure if you say so.
A.R.: That copy is programmed to connect automatically with the client Dirk is running. Do it quickly. His life depends on it.
G.T.: Great caesars ghost! Why didnt you say so.
Ok done.
Hey theres his room!

==>

[Image description: Dirk's room now has a red sburb cursor floating in it. The window shows a faint glow of fire and grey smoke.]

pesterlog
G.T.: Heh heh. Id recognize that room anywhere.
Horses puppets holy smokes there is a man who knows what he likes.
A.R.: Damn straight.
G.T.: But where is he?
I dont see him elsewhere in the place.
Lots of priceless sbahj merch though im so jealous.
A.R.: I'll see about hooking you up when you join the game. No promises, though. He's pretty attached to all that shit.
He has not yet transcended the primitive desire for material goods, as he is not two conjoined triangles of pure unflappable logic.
G.T.: What?
A.R.: Sorry.
As a pair of overly intellectual triangles, sometimes my wording can be a bit...
Obtuse.
(pointy shades emoji)
G.T.: Lol!
Just joking bro that sucked.
How do i find dirk and save his life?
A.R.: Zoom out.
Way out.

==>

[Image description: Jake zooms way out. The apartment stands in the middle of the burning ocean and red miles slam down into the water and cross the sky behind it. Dirk, Square wave and Saw tooth stand at the corner of the building.]

pesterlog
G.T.: Eureka!!!!!
Youre right he sure does look to be in a thorough pickle.
My impulse is to message him now but youre kind of bogarting his chumhandle so i dont even know how to do that?
A.R.: He's concentrating on some things happening on Derse at the moment.
Not to mention some uncannily similar things going down on Earth, which it seems you have noticed.
He's also talking to someone, trying to appraise the exact nature of the threat.
Unfortunately as a carbon based life form, his comprehension of the situation is taking shape at a somewhat slower pace than the jaw-dropping speed of post-singularity cognition.
So I am taking the reins and accelerating the plan on his behalf, while he's busy with the corporeal stuff as usual.

G.T.: Ok then how do i help?
A.R.: Deploy all the devices in the Phernalia Registry. Ideally in places that aren't stupid.
Do it quickly, so he can activate the entry sequence and escape.
G.T.: I will have them deployed lickety split.
That flaming ocean is nothing to sneeze at.
It is fixing to burn his... uh. Skeletal highrise thing right the heck down.
A.R.: Really, the fire is not the most significant threat.
G.T.: Oh. Are more robots on the way?
A.R.: No.
Do you see the red stringy stuff coming from the sky?
G.T.: Um...
G.T.: Oh!
You mean the super deadly red shit?

==>

[Image description: It zooms in on Dirk and the robots. The ground around them is littered with robot parts]

G.T.: There we are. No sweat.
A.R.: Cool.
G.T.: Haha! He did a thumbs up at me.
Hey buddy!
Say hey buddy to him.
A.R.: Ok.
He says hey.
G.T.: Sweet.
Now what?
A.R.: Stand by. He may need further assistance once he begins the sequence.
G.T.: How long will that take?
A.R.: Once he's ready. I'll try to nudge him along, but unfortunately, the fact that he is me notwithstanding, Dirk can be just as sluggish and uncooperative as the rest of you god damned meat mannequins.
G.T.: Understood. That being as it is in the meantime i think ill poke into one of these transporty doodads.
A.R.: What?
No, you fickle fuckwit.
Stay your ass put.

Jake: Transportalize.

[Image description: Jake appears on a transporalizer on Derse. He's in a cracking room that looks like a purple version of the room where Jane's dreamself ended up on top of the manhole cover.]

pesterlog
G.T.: Whoa what is this place?
Things sure are a rumblin here in this enchanted purple palace.
I cant believe i never found those hidden transport pads under the thing.
A.R.: Dude, I could have told you they were there.
G.T.: How did you know about them?
A.R.: I didn't.
But it's like platformer gaming 101. You look everywhere for secret passages and power-ups and shit.
Elevators are especially fucking suspicious.
You go down an elevator, you wait for the elevator to go back up, you take a peek at what's underneath.
Maybe it's just death spikes. Or maybe you hit warp zone paydirt.
G.T.: You are so wise. I will never be as elite of a game bro as you.
A.R.: I'm not a Game Bro. I just know literally everything about basically all subjects.
Now go back where you came from. Dirk might need help.
G.T.: Will you untwist your virtual knickers. I have everything under control.
I think this may be where my grandma used to go during some of her expeditions.
You dont just pass up the chance for an adventure like this!
How much deeper down the damn bunny hole do you need to go? There is no White Rabbit waiting for you here.
G.T.: We will just see about THAT.
Besides i have my skulltop with me so i can swoop in to assist dirk at any time!
A.R.: This is an atrocious idea.

U.U.: better hurry up.
you can't escape the miles.
no one can escape the miles!
T.T.: why do you keep saying that?
are you trying to turn it into some sort of thing?
U.U.: it already is a thing. Inasmuch.
as facts are things.
here are more facts that are things.
you are going to die soon.
your whole universe is going to die.
because.
you can't.
escape.
the miiiiiiiiiiiles.
T.T.: sorry, it's not going to start being a thing no matter how much you say it. Give it a rest.
U.U.: no.
T.T.: what I don't understand is how the attack is making its way here from derse.
is that even possible?

[Image description: Dream Dirk ducks under a strand of Red Miles and walks down a stairway, towards a fire.]
just because the same thing is happening there.
you think there is correlation. Beyond some sort of circumstantially simultaneous. Fuckrubbish?
you're so dumb.
T.T.: so, you know why this is happening?
these miles are from jack. Way outside your universe.
the miles on derse are from another guy. Who's just. Sitting in a castle somewhere probably.
T.T.: that doesn't actually explain a whole lot, but ok.
put out a hit on your entire universe. And all its internal iterations.
don't you think that's fucking awesome?
T.T.: I thought you didn't know much about our story? You usually like to brag about how you don't care about details like that.
U.U.: I mainly just skim past it all with disgust. Except for the parts.
where people die.
I could read those.
over and over.
and also maybe the parts.
where people "kiss"?
in the way that when you chance upon something.
unspeakably and viscerally abhorrent.
it gets hard.
T.T.: does it now.
U.U.: to pry your eyes away!
you didn't let me finish.
to pry your eyes away.
T.T.: oh.

[Image description: An alchemiter appears behind Awake Dirk and he gives a thumbs up.] got to escape all these goddamn miles, remember?
U.U.: aah haa haa!
you can't!
you caaaaaaaaaan't.
escaaaaaaaaaaaape.
T.T.: the miles. Right.
bye.
U.U.: but seriously. Wait!
U.U.: I wanted to give you something. A "present".

[Image description: Dream Dirk flies over a walkway and two dersites watch him go.]

pesterlog
T.T.: what?
T.T.: for what?
can we seriously move this along.
U.U.: for helping me. With the thing you just helped me build.
T.T.: god, what are you talking about.
U.U.: for you it was years ago. But for me. Soliciting you for assistance was quite recent.
you're always all over the timeline and somehow expect people to know what you're talking about.
so what's the present?
U.U.: before I give you this treasure. First you must do something for me.
T.T.: man. You really do struggle with human customs, don't you?
when you're about to give someone a gift out of gratitude, you don't then start negotiating with them and ask for shit before handing it over.
just fuckin' give it to me already.
T.T.: ok, what do you want me to do to collect my awesome prize you're allegedly thanking me with?
U.U.: your juju.
remember I told you to bring it to the roof.
U.U.: shhhhhhhhhhh. Don't say its "name" you idiot.
now take out the juju.

[Image description: The ground shakes beneath Dirk as he takes out Cal, who's wearing a purple derse tunic over his orange shirt. A second image zooms in on his face and creepy smile with its single gold tooth.]

pesterlog
U.U.: now throw it in the fire.
T.T.: screw you.
I'm not chucking the c-man into a flaming ocean.
U.U.: it is the ultimate abomination.
your juju may be dead and hollow. But something tells me.
that might make it even more dangerous.
discard it at once. Treasure beyond comprehension is your reward.
T.T.: no.
keep your treasure.
U.U.: ah ha ha. As if it is not inevitably destined to fall from your human fingers.
and become erased as your universe dies.
didn't I mention.
a juju can never be truly copied.
if two appear to exist. Such as one in reality and one in your dreams.
it is only an illusion. Either never true. Or soon to be corrected.
there can only ever be one.
T.T.: well, I'm not tossing him, so that's that.
U.U.: you will though.
anyway. You took it out.
I will deem that compliance enough.
and reward you with my gratitude.
I think instead of thanks though. I will call it. A "birth day present"?
T.T.: it isn't my birthday.
U.U.: not yours jerk.
T.T.: oh. So it's your birthday today?
U.U.: it will be.
if everything goes according to plan.
T.T.: how cryptically meaningless. and you continue to struggle with human customs. You don't give other people presents on your own birthday.
anyway, just tell me what it is.
U.U.: it is a "work of fine art".
the very first I have ever attempted.
you will find it suitably conveys our special bond.
T.T.: let's see.
U.U.: http://tinyurl.com/DIRKTHISISuS

[Image description: It's scribbles. Like someone put their finger on the trackpad, then kinda vaguely moved it to try and make a shape. There's an orange scribble with a black scribble that what might be the head area and what might be a red bowtie a little below that. Below those are two, more horizontal scribbles partially overlapping each other. One is light blue and one is pink.]

T.T.: uh.
what the fuck am I looking at here?
U.U.: don't you see?? It is us! You and me.
we are getting perhaps a little too. Friendly. If you will. Haa. Haa.
T.T.: i... Really don't see.
what do you mean? This fucking scribbly bullshit is us? Are we shaking hands or something?
you have an even dirtier mind than me. I'm fucking outclassed by your reprehensible imagination once again.
I can't say I'm surprised.
T.T.: so, it's just us? What about the bitches?
I thought you found a scarcity of the bitches to be all but unacceptable.
U.U.: the bitches as you can plainly see have been far from neglected. Look.
they're right there asshole. The bitches appear to be. Ahem. Rather enjoying each other's company??? oooooo0000oh.
soo gnarly.
to imagine. What filth my own hand has wrought.
T.T.: yeah. Gnarly is about right.
this is utter shit. You know that, don't you?
please don't tell me you are actually incapable of understanding how bad this drawing is.
it's pretty good. At least for a first try.
T.T.: if you actually think this even qualifies as a drawing, I'm going to have to say you are literally the worst artist who has ever existed.
U.U.: what the fuck. This is how you treat. My "birth day thank you gift"??
T.T.: that's not a thing either.
you must have some wires crossed between your left brain and right brain. Like a weird perceptual disorder. Or something like that.
it's actually kind of fascinating that you think you achieved something visually coherent or recognizable.
U.U.: this is outrageous.
your drawing blows.

walkway that's slightly less on fire than some of the surrounding buildings.]

You have been scrambling around this burning colony for who even knows how long, evading attacks from drones. All the commotion has really started to harsh your buzz.

It seems the drones have withdrawn from their pursuit, as far as you can tell. But a new threat has taken their place. Some sort of red stringy stuff coming from the sky. You have a very bad feeling about it. You think it's time to find your way home and get out of Dodge. Dodge in this case being the universe.

[Image description: Roxy makes a frustrated expression and a pink scribble of anger appears over her head. There are three alerts for Jane, A.R., and a caduceus symbol over her head.]

It seems while you were running away from missiles and trying not to get blown up, messages from friends have been piling up. These chumps need to calm down. Don't they realize how hung over you are starting to feel? Everybody needs to chill the fuck out. Those chess guys behind you need to chill out too. The whole world needs to chill out and stop being so noisy and bright and on fire.

T.G.: i know but they always seem confused and dont know what todo and everythings bunring down i think i should try to take some with me i cant just leave all of the poor chess guys here to die
A.R.: Alright, that's fine. As luck would have it, your imperfect human sentimentality has been completely factored into my calculations. You should be ok. Just get back to your house as quickly as possible now. There's no time left.
T.G.: lmao @ your "caluculations" as if htose are real but ok ill get moving
A.R.: We're going to need you to connect with Jake to bring him into the game. You will complete the chain of entry. This is very important.
T.G.: ok jane was trying 2 reach me messin with my pumpkips or some shit???
T.G.: where is she
A.R.: There's been a little subordination issue there. With both Crocker and English, actually. Strider and I are working on it.
T.G.: what u talkin about subordingation you saying those chucklefucks went rouge
A.R.: Sort of.
T.G.: but thats what i do! posers be frontin hard up on my roguey turf *roguish?
roguish is better it means sly
A.R.: Don't worry about it for now. Just do your part, and catch up with them later. Who knows, maybe you will prove yourself to be the only 100% cooperative, fully competent non-Strider player?
How ironic would it be if the best player turned out to be the drunk girl? Wouldn't that be sweet?
T.G.: yeah!!!! (cat face)
A.R.: Go home. Connect with Jake. Deploy the equipment in the ruins of his old house.
I'll focus on actually getting him there. The kid is seriously a work in progress, I gotta say. Are you sober enough to do all that?

T.G.: I think the answer unfortunately is yes

could it have been that regular intake of your soporific liquids was inhibiting your communion with the void, rather than exaggerating them as I had presumed?
if the effects are wearing off, it could explain the increase in viewport blackouts.
and once they wear off completely, perhaps that is why your entire session goes dark on your entry.
T.G.: That is an interesting theory that has like mostly no usefull bearing on anything probably?

I do know a thing or two about the red miles.
it is the queen's favoured attack. Very long distance and omnidirectional.
but once upon a time, her weapon was stolen by a usurper. Jacked, you could say, right off her ring finger. And then given a considerable boost in power.
that gave the miles enough of a kick to rip a universe to shreds.
and they have been doing so to yours and its many instances for eons.
only now have they caught up to your instance. It is quite fortunate it has taken so long, really.
some instances are tucked deeper in the speaker's mighty blow sack, and will hold out for much longer, on a vast cosmic scale of course.
T.G.: wait
I dont what? Instances blowb sack
righ now I can hardly walk without steppin on my moms scarf ok so theyre destorying the universe is that the bootom line try to think of it like this.
imagine that the universe is contained inside a very large creature.
say, a great big frog.
T.G.: frog
why a frog thats so silly
U.U.: it's just a frog! That is the way it is, just try to imagine it.
T.G.: k picturin
big ol space frog
all ribbiting loud an being huge
hehehe
U.U.: now imagine that not only does the universe exist inside it, depending on the creature's health and well being to survive...
but every potential instance of that universe exists inside as well.
those that are doomed and those with promise.
even those that were reset from scratch, with slightly different starting conditions.
all of those interrelated universes mingling together inside your frog, inextricable from its physiology.
if the frog dies, they all go with it. Eventually.
T.G.: then you are saying some rude a-hole is killin our frog
T.G.: wow that is just....
the worst
U.U.: well, it could have been worse, actually. The miles could have spread to your universe before it had the chance to sprout your lovely planet, providing a home for you and your wonderful mates.
all universes die at some point. Some sooner than others. It is all part of the cycle, and sometimes things like this must happen for reasons beyond our understanding. but this is neither here nor there. I did not intend to go blathering about all that and waste an important conversation with you.
I think the truth is I am probably just stalling.
T.G.: stalling what
U.U.: I have some important things to tell you.
I'm afraid I am going to be breaking so many rules in doing so.
I am not used to breaking rules. It makes me very uncomfortable.
but it may be my only chance. I hope you won't think less of me for it.
T.G.: no way
I dont even know what rules ur talking about time shit rules
if its time shit rules idgaf about those and m not goinna stop thinking youre great if u "break" them are you in trouble?
but so are you, and I've distracted you enough.
concentrate on returning to your home.
once you are there and preparing for the game, I will contact you again and tell you everything that I have been wanting to tell you.
also...
I wanted to give you something. (Gasping face)
T.G.: hoh man
what is it!
U.U.: just a thing!
you'll see.
now run along!!!!!!!!!!

Select character.

[Image description: It goes back to the character select screen. You've already gone through all the options, so go to the next page.]

I selected all those characters. Time to move on.

[Image description: A window divided in half, then one half into quarters hands on a wall next to a door with a Complacency of the Learned poster on the wall. The chess pieces in the poster look almost exactly like the green ones from the U.U. vs u.u. chess game, except these are a darker green. A fire licks up the wall, towards the window. The unsplit half of the window shows the character select screen. The quarters each show the background that came up when you hovered] over the characters. Jane's is in the top left, Jake the top right, Roxy the bottom left, and Dirk the bottom right.]

You press onward, feeling refreshed and invigorated by all the free will you were just dealt. The story was your oyster for a while there. Or more specifically, it was one of four slightly different oysters you could choose from, in any order, as long as you ultimately selected and consumed all four oysters when all was said and done. This must be what it feels like to be a god, you think to yourself. Or at the very least, the patron of a seafood restaurant.

Roxy: Return home.

[Image description: Roxy's neighborhood is till on fire. Many carapacians swarm over her house, holding buckets and dousing the flames.]

You have returned home to find a variety of devices deployed throughout your house, and a variety of fires threatening to burn it down.

Roxy: Put out fires.

[Image description: It zooms in on her balcony, where carapacians dump water on several fires. A second image shows Roxy throwing water on a her pile of plushies and electronics, putting out most of the fire on them. A white arm sticks out of her cabinet and a large crack in the wall leads outside. A tendril of the Red Miles reaches into the room.]

You quickly put everyone on bucket duty to douse the flames. Now you guess you understand why your mom left all these buckets in the house? You always thought it was a passive aggressive reminder for you to keep up with the housework.

At the behest of their roguish leader, the loyal band of Merry Men go straight to work in getting the fires under control. The Robin Hood reference is lost on them. Also lost on everybody is the sordid spectacle this appears to resemble from an alien perspective, with all these buckets sloshing around and whatnot. Your void powers cannot black out this graphic debauchery soon enough.

Roxy: Connect with Jake.

[Image description: Roxy sits at her desk and pulls out her laptop, which has a caduceus alert over it. A second image shows the mountain on Jake's island. All that's left of the tower is the burned out remains of the first floor and part of the second. A third image zooms out, showing that the volcano is spewing lava into the forest and setting it on fire.]

You run the server program which auto-connects with Jake and a viewport of his old house just pops right open. This is going to be so easy. You can already tell, compared to you, everyone else sucks so bad at this game, not to mention at computers in general.

You better deploy all this equipment ASAP. Not only are you in a hurry to hop into the session yourself, it looks like his volcano is beginning to erupt. Some lava has started a forest fire which is now spreading slowly toward the house. No sign of Jake yet. Hopefully the Dirks can somehow tag team that doofus and make him get with the program.

Oh right, she was going to message you when you got home, you almost forgot. Time to switch gears and go into multitasking mode. You'll get as much done as you can while you talk, ALSO while nursing this hangover. It takes a special kind of hacker babe to be able to handle that, you think. You truly are as deadly to the grid ass you are beautiful.

shirt with green sleeves and a green cat on the chest with heart shaped eyes. Her skirt is bright green and has green and teal striped leggings under it. Her shoes are pink and yellow. She's wearing red and green sweatbands on her wrists and a teal and pink striped scarf. Her hair is teal with pink streaks and she's wearing a stick of pink cotton candy like a hat. Her eyes are closed and she has her tongue out to lick a massive green and red swirled lollipop that she's holding in one hand. It looks like Roxy has a trickster version, just like John.

T.G.: well t.y. for finally confiding in me calilope U.U.: you're welcome. It is good to get it off my chest.

but I am primarily telling you this as a last resort, in hopes of saving myself.

you see, this rule between me and my brother is a kind of truce.

we have both agreed not to say our names to anyone so that things will not get out of hand, and so it became one of the rules.

if anyone were to say his name to me, I would immediately fall asleep, and he would wake up.

so you will understand if I refrain from telling you his as well. (Blank winking face)

T.G.: so

hes sleeping now?

U.U.: yes, fortunately for both of us.

now, chronologically speaking, I have never contacted you after this moment.

so if I never wake up from my next nap, you will never hear from me again.

if you do not hear from me later, I would very much appreciate it if you could message my brother, and say my name.

it may be the only chance I have to wake up again.

T.G.: fuuuck

U.U.: splendid!

T.G.: shit now I wish we had more time to talk it is overwhelming, trying to be cavalier about rules I have respected all my life. I'm not sure where to begin.

T.G.: well

what I wonder is you said you couldnt have romantic feelings or "red relations" as you said in your trolly way

U.U.: oh, I can have romantic feelings.

just not the flushed kind, which humans describe as romantic love.

T.G.: ok but

I didnt think that was alien to you not the way u made it sound like dont trolls have the 4 kinds and one kind is just straight up love feelins

U.U.: yes, that's right.

but...

oh bugger. This is so embarrassing to have to admit.

I am sorry for saying things which may have reasonably led you to believe this.

probably way too many things. (Blank face with closed eyes and a bead of sweat) but I am not actually a troll.

T.G.: o

rrrrrelay

U.U.: I have never actually claimed to be. But I'm sure I have implied it, probably due to wishful thinking.

I have spent so much time wishing I could be one.

trolls are a remarkable and fascinating race.

humans are too, please don't get me wrong!

but I am out and out smitten with trolls and their history and ways.

they have such amazing, colourful social dynamics that sound like so much fun to be a part of.
and they are so beautiful.
I wish I could be that pretty.
unfortunately, I am not very attractive at all.
sad to say, no one would kiss the corpse I will leave behind.
even if there were someone around to revive me, I doubt they would be inclined to bother.
for, er... Several reasons, actually.
but really, it was always for the best that I cannot have fully flushed feelings.
no one could ever love me.
T.G.: oh man no!!! that is not true
U.U.: it is.
and it's for the best that no one has ever seen my face, aside from my brother.
T.G.: but I want 2 c u

T.G.: omg
that is amazing?
like u have wings or such
U.U.: no!
I doubt I am what you're picturing.
but aside from a few superficial similarities, we are very different from trolls and humans.
we are not a social race. We generally will not ever encounter another of our kind, unless it is time to mate.
and when that time comes, our courtship is nothing like it is for humans.
it is highly confrontational and violent.
T.G.: sounds so lonely plus wit hecks of tricky sex
U.U.: it is lonely.
but that is in our nature, to be alone. Just as it is to find attraction through contempt.
now that I think about it, I should have known.
I've been so foolish.
T.G.: known what
U.U.: about the nature of my game session.
I believed he and I could play together, even under our unique biological circumstances.
I was so daft, I thought skaia had actually made an exception for us.
and that we could overcome our conflicts, work together, and fulfill the game's minimum requirement of two players. One of space and the other of time.
but I was always fooling myself.
it is now clear only one of us will survive.
my skaian visions have misled me.
or I have blinded myself to their true meaning.
this was always meant to be a session of one.
and I am finally starting to understand...
the reality of that could have consequences more horrifying than we could begin to imagine.
T.G.: um
how
U.U.: the thing is, you don't know him like I do.
as hard as it may be to believe, he is even worse than you think.
and it's all such a shame, not just because of that.
it is a shame that I won't be able to play, I guess for selfish reasons.
I was so looking forward to it.
I really thought I was going to be someone special.
that I could use my abilities do something no one had ever done.
T.G.: hey you are being so defeatist stop that!
you dont know you wont play we havent even tried the wakeup call yet remembr???
much like skaia, I've succumbed to a gloomier outlook lately, due to recent setbacks.
T.G.: so whats going to be special bout your game?
aside from that its just your fuckhead bro and you U.U.: well, I was always led to believe I would be an extraordinary type of player.
both of us would be. We are both assigned extremely rare and powerful classes.
they are the two master classes!
T.G.: oh yeh?
what is urs
U.U.: mine is the most passive on the scale. A class designated for females only.
I am the muse of space. (Very happy face with closed eyes)
T.G.: sounds p cool
whats a muse do
U.U.: I'm not entirely sure. I was hoping to discover that on my journey.
anyway, his is the other master class.
the most active class of all, reserved for male players.
T.G.: what is it
U.U.: um...
roxy.
I think we may be getting a wee bit carried away with trivia here.
we both have so much to do.
you need to focus on getting to safety, while I need to... prepare myself. For what I hope will be a short nap.

Her wig, gloves, and face paint sit to the left of the computer, and a magic wand and several smaller, white objects are to the left of those. To the right of the computer, there's a massive green book with yellowed pages sitting on top of a tilde ath book. A drawing tablet with a green and white candy on it sits on top. The back wall is covered in art prints of Dirk, Jake, Roxy, Jane, and herself, but as she would look in her full troll costume. A small green chest sits up against the desk and has a box of Jujubes sitting on top of it. The floor is littered with raw steaks, candy, strips of bacon, and pieces of a chess set. The chess board lays on the floor, snapped in half. Against the back wall, an empty white holster on a green belt hangs from a coat rack and a box of special stardust sits on its side. A cuff with a caduceus symbol on it is locked around Calliope's ankle, and a chain runs from it off into the right side of the room.]

You are now Calliope.

Calliope: Dehorn.

[Image description: Calliope takes off her horns and puts them with the wig.]
You remove the last accessory to your prized Cosplay ensemble, and put it neatly with the rest of the stuff. The place is messy enough already without tossing horns about carelessly.

You have many fond memories of solo-cosplay in your room. It's a lot of fun and alarmingly comfortable to just lounge around your room in-character. You really hope you'll get the chance to put it on again after your nap...

Well, maybe not the face paint. You don't wear that so much anymore. He gets especially furious when you do.

Calliope: Examine artwork.

[Image description: Calliope looks at some of the drawings. One shows each of her human friends posing with their favorite object. Jane has her hat and a spoon, Roxy has a martini, Jake has his pistols, and Dirk has Lil Cal. One is of Roxy pointing and saying eyyy. These are just a few of the many drawings you have done over the years celebrating your absolute all-time favorite characters. Er... you mean friends.

[Image description: It shifts over to show more of the pictures. One is of herself in cosplay looking towards a small red heart that floats above her hand. One is of Roxy trying to give Dirk a smooch while he looks entirely done with the situation. The last one isn't of anyone at all. It's a white circle against a green and red background. A white spiral pulls away from the sphere and looks like it's drawing the red away with it.]

You often like to draw your Trollsona too, Callie Ohpeee. Yes, you suppose that's a stretch, fitting your name into the 6/6 letter format like that. That's ok, though. The limebloods reportedly had some unusual names. And they sure weren't very popular. You like to believe you'd have fit right in.

You've written endlessly about her, and nearly filled a hard drive with related artwork. You have wished for nothing more in your life than to be her. Alas, you are resigned to living out the rest of your days as a little green skull monster. It really sucks!

To the left is a drawing of nothing in particular. Nothing you understand, at least. This is a symbol which has haunted your visions for as long as you can remember.

Calliope: Examine mess.

[Image description: Calliope turns and frowns at the meat, candy, and chess set on the floor.]

He's always been a pain to live with, but now that he seems to be on the verge of victory, he is completely out of control. During one of your recent naps, he apparently threw a full blown tantrum and dumped a whole bunch of meat and candy on your side of the room. He also broke your lovely chess board in half and scattered the pieces about, most of which are now missing. Talk about a shitty roommate.

Calliope: Tidy up a little.

[Image description: Calliope smiles and captchalogs all of the mess into a single card. The left side of the card is red and the right side is green. It just hangs there for a moment, then it slides off to the right and vanishes off screen.]
You stow the delicious mess in your sylladex. You might be inclined to snack on it now, but due to the nature of your Juju Modus, you cannot access it. Once you captchalogue something, only your brother can use it. And vice versa. You always make sure never to captchalogue anything that is particularly important to you. You think sometimes he chucks stuff over to your side of the room just to bait you into captchalogueing it for him, and getting it into his inventory. You kind of don't think he was engaging in such machinations this time though. It looks like he was just being a petulant brat.

Calliope: Examine box.

[Image description: It zooms in on the box of special stardust. There's a picture of a nebula on the box.]

It is a box of Special Stardust. Cherubs love this stuff. They eat it like breakfast cereal every day.

It doesn't even have any magical properties though. It's really just some useless sparkly powder they like to eat. It's basically inedible to any other kind of creature. However, it is potentially quite useful for various arts and crafts.

Calliope: See what you've got captchalogueed.

Given the frustrating nature of your modus, your sylladex tends to serve as more of a mutual garbage dump than an inventory.

[Image description: Calliope holds a note. It says 'calliope is. A brutal hideous bitch.' And has an incomprehensible scribble drawing under it. The only things that are even vaguely recognizable are a green spiral and a scribbly attempt at a chess set. The chess set is only recognizable because it's been helpfully labeled 'not good at chess.' A second image shows her picking up a second note. This one says 'Your death. Will be. Your single greatest achievement.' And has a drawing of what might be calliope and four scribbles in orange, pink, green, and blue. Below the colorful scribbles, it says 'your "friends" will be happy.]

It seems he has left a series of Unpleasant Notes to taunt you.

Recently he's taken an interest in "learning to draw," which you think is an extremely generous way of putting it. He has always shown such contempt for art in general. Maybe he's finally trying to expand his horizons?

[Image description: She holds another note. 'When you die. I will paint everything with your blood. Even my words.' Even my words was written in black, then roughly scribbled over with lime green and labeled '(like this.)' Below that is a scribble that's slightly more recognizable. It's Calliope's bloody corpse, if the green spiral vaguely near the head region and the lime green scribbled everywhere is anything to go by. At the bottom, he's written out 'tumut', his 'frowning face with closed eyes flicking you off with both hands' emoticon.]

Or maybe he's just looking for yet another way to stick it to you.
Calliope: Check out green tome.

[Image description: Calliope moves the drawing tablet onto the floor, revealing the cover of the book. A second image zooms in further. It says RL, done in cursive and cracking the space around it. It's identical to how Rose signed the walkthrough with her magic wands.]

Making absolutely sure not to captchalogue it, you remove your Tablet, which you use to pen all the striking visuals related to your favored epic.

The ancient tome there is your chief source of information about said epic. It was written by a legendary Seer of Light many ages ago. While there are some mysterious holes in the account - dark spots if you will - it nevertheless remains an indispensable resource.

Calliope: Open it up.

[Image description: Calliope opens the book. A second image zooms in on it. It's penis ouiji, and there's now a black smudge across part of it.]

You open the book to a random page. Oh, right. This one.

This page has always baffled you. You have stared at it long and hard, trying to decipher some sort of hidden meaning behind what appears to be pure chaos. You are sure such meaning is there. It is always there, when it comes to this tale.

Wait a minute.

Something has just occurred to you. This "drawing style" is highly reminiscent of your brother's, which until recently, you had never seen before. It is almost uncanny. His inscrutable squiggles. His penchant for arbitrary, completely baffling straight lines and right angles, almost as if trying unsuccessfully to begin constructing a grid. And those odd shapes there... could they be his depiction of bones? He sure is obsessed with death. No, you think this can't possibly be a coincidence. The comparison is too perfect for it to mean absolutely nothing.

Did he arrive when this was being written? Or was he already there, somehow? He is supposedly an exceptionally advanced Hero of Time, after all. Could it be that your horrible stupid brother of all people has been inextricably involved in your beloved epic all along? For the first time ever, you have just uncovered compelling evidence that this might be true.

This is what you have always enjoyed doing. Agonizing over every detail of this epic, trying to craft theories to explain its mysteries. You think you are pretty good at it, too. But now that you think about it, maybe your theory is just too far fetched. Actually, it is completely preposterous, and you don't even know what you were thinking there. You're sure he would get a kick out of the idea though, what with his megalomaniacal view of himself as some sort of lethal puzzlemaster, always boasting that red herrings swim through his veins and such. Which is just about the biggest crock of shit you've ever heard.

[Image description: It shows another page, but this one is of text written in royal blue. Several sections have been crossed out with large smears of blue and a winking smiley face with a clown nose sits in the bottom left corner.]

Yeah, see here?

These are the dark spots you were referring to. Little tidbits here and there have been redacted by some fool with no respect for history. Looks like he used some kind of peculiar indigo ink.

Frustratingly enough, most of the redactions target any piece of information about the indestructible demon who was either directly or indirectly behind every terrible event in the story. Everything about him, like where he came from, information about his manipulative right hand man, his agenda, his abilities, his name... all of it has been voided out.

Most of the other blot-outs seem to target one member of the post-scratch troll group. Some guy who drinks a lot of soda? These omissions strike you as much less consequential. Frivolous, even. Whoever that guy was, he sounds like he was easily the least important character in the entire story.

Calliope: Examine black tome.

[Image description: Calliope sets the green book on the floor and looks at the tilde ath book.]

It's some sort of programming book. You don't care much for programming, but you've adapted it as a Fanfiction Journal. You've filled it up completely with your most colorful headcanons and romfics. You've also pasted in some of your artwork, turning a rather dreary manual on some morbid, tilde-heavy language into a lively scrapbook. Many of the stories involve Callie, and all of them involve heavy themes of romance. Particularly the other three quadrants which are completely alien to you, and therefore especially titillating.

Calliope: Open it.

[Image description: Calliope looks embarrassed and puts the green book and drawing tablet back on top of the tilde ath book.]

Er, no. You'd rather not. Down that road lies only endless embarrassments. The things you made sweet, innocent callie do.

If you had a bed, you would scoot the whole dang thing underneath where no one could see. And also, if that hypothetical bed wasn't in neutral territory...

You don't even want to imagine what he'd do if he got his hands on it.

Calliope: Retrieve wand.

[Image description: Calliope picks up the wand and a strife specibus for Wandkind appears in the top right corner.]

The White Wand is your weapon of choice, half the time. Magic is very handy. Some believe magic to be fake. But you know better than that.

Of course, if anyone tried using this wand right now, it sure would seem like magic wasn't real. Can't very well use magic when your wand is out of bullets.

Calliope: Load wand.

[Image description: Calliope holds the wand up and holds a bullet in her other hand. As she lowers the wand, it turns into a white pistol. A second image shows her strife deck with a Wandkind and Pistolkind specibus in it.]

You load your White Magnum.
You wouldn't trade your dualing weapon for any other. It is lightweight, elegant and precise, like a conductor's baton with stopping power.

Your brother's favored weapon is a little more... heavy handed. To each his own, you guess.

Calliope: Examine chest.

[Image description: Calliope stands by the green chest.]

This is your Juju Chest.

You keep your Juju inside it, surprisingly enough.

Calliope: Let's have a look inside.

[Image description: Calliope opens the chest and a green glow comes out of it.]

You gaze upon your dear, sweet, precious, sweet, sweet Juju. It is the most beautiful thing you have ever seen in your life. How your brother would love to get his grubby claws on it. And how you would love to get yours on his, for that matter.

Suddenly it becomes painfully clear that we aren't going to get a look at this thing. At least not for a while. How typical.

Why don't we stop wasting everyone's time, shut the lid on this lousy MacGuffin, and get on with it.

Calliope: Holster magnum.

[Image description: Calliope puts the gun in the holster on the coat rack. The scene has shifted slightly and we now see more of the room. The chain on Calliope's ankle runs to a box in the wall that has a red spiral on it. Something green and red striped pokes on screen and another chain and ankle cuff sit next to it.]

You neatly put the weapon where it belongs. No need to wear it, since you'll be preparing for your nap soon.

You kind of wish straightening up your room didn't feel so much like getting your affairs in order.

Calliope: Examine other chain.

[Image description: Calliope looks at the other chain. The cuff is open and has a caduceus symbol on it.]

This is the chain you shackle to your other leg when you're about to go to sleep. You are the only one who is able to unlock it.

Both chains are totally unbreakable, and their anchors are immovable from the wall, due to a mysterious juju enchantment. All juju enchantments are equally mysterious. Each is more equally mysterious than the last.

Sleeping with shackled legs doesn't make for very comfy slumber. Still, it's advisable to stay in the habit, unless you want all your belongings to get messed with.

Calliope: Check out bed.
[Image description: The scene shifts again. The striped object comes on screen. It's a sarcophagus with a cherub face. One cheek has a green swirl and one has a red. The other half of the room is lost in shadow.]

Like you said, you don't have a bed.

You have a Sarswapagus.

Calliope: Remove cover.

[Image description: She takes the cover off, revealing a dark green platform with a green swirl on the left side and a red swirl on the right.]

Every time you wake up, you are always sure to put the lid back on neatly.

Considering you virtually always find it exactly where you left it, you doubt your brother is anywhere near as diligent about making the bed. Wait, you mean sarswapagus.

But the fact that he's a slob was never exactly breaking news to anyone.

Neither is the fact that you both share a body.

I mean come on.

Calliope: Examine ladder.

[Image description: The scene shifts again, revealing a dark grey ladder on the back wall. Calliope looks longingly up it.]

This leads outside. Being tethered to the wall, you can't venture too far beyond the exit though.

But you might as well go for a bit of fresh air before you sleep. One more six-foot-radius stroll in the sun. It could be your last chance.

Calliope: Exit.

[Image description: Calliope stands next to a round hole and stares up. A red light shines down on her.]

You step into the sunlight.

Sunlight, on this planet, is sort of hard to avoid.

==>

[Image description: She stares up. The sky is almost entirely taken up by a massive, red star.]

It comes in great supply from your planet's star, a Massive Red Supergiant.

==>

[Image description: It zooms out. Massive swirls of energy cross the surface.]

Your world is so old, its star is reaching the end of its life cycle. It may collapse any day now.

Calliope: Look around one last time.
Whatever way it is you finally depart this world, you're going to miss the place.

It is very peaceful here.

Though to be honest, you could do without some of the tacky scenery.

You have always had the feeling that whoever used to live on this planet had a really strange sense of humor.

Select character.

[Image description: Another character select screen for Jane, Jake, Roxy, and Dirk. When you hover over Jane, the background changes to a computer screen with a chat client open but blacked out. Hovering over Jake changes the background to a drawing tablet and pen with a ophiuchus symbol on it. Hovering over Roxy changes it to a cherub's malicious smile. Hovering over Dirk changes it to a cherub hand gripping a tablet pen in a clenched fist and furiously drawing on a tablet. Read the pesterlog on this page, then click Jane.]

pesterlog
U.U.: hey.
I would like to play a game.
it's called "bond with an idiot sister over some bullshit shared interests before she dies forever."
does that sound fun.
here's a good part of the story I think.
you must know the one I mean.
let's talk about it together.
share some theories.
do some fan girling.
produce some.
"fan art."

Be Jane.

[Image description: Jane, who is still on Derse, stares. A speech bubble next to her shows thought-Jane flailing next to question marks and a drawing of Derse and its moon.]

pesterlog
U.U.: there's the jane human.
you like the jane human best don't you?
you can relate to her.
she is almost as ugly as you.
and twice as dumb.

pesterlog
U.U.: look at this idiot woman.
not doing what this brave and intelligent male is saying.
you just know her foolishness will be punished.
and rightly so.

U.U.: and what have we here?
wait for it..........

pesterlog
U.U.: will you get a mammoth load of this clueless dumbfuck.
he actually "cares" about stuff. And like. Weirdly urinates through his eye holes. What a joke.
I really hate him.
why all the bitches.
flush over this mumbling. Socially stunted imbecile. I will never know.
talk about thick headed.

==>

[Image description: Dirk points and yells at Jake.]

pesterlog
U.U.: his skull.

==>

[Image description: Dirk points a different direction. In his speech bubble, Lil Seb grabs Jake and drags him back to a transportalizer. It says GTFO.]

pesterlog
U.U.: Is almost as thick as mine.
(frowning, winking face with both middle fingers up)

==>

[Image description: Lil Seb hops across the flaming gap towards Jake.]
[Image description: He grabs Jake and drags him away from the edge. Jake kicks and screams the whole way.]

[Image description: Lil Seb drags Jake onto the transportalizer seconds before the building it's in collapses.]

[Image description: Lil Seb holds Jake around the chest and flies out of the bottom of the elevator shaft using a jetpack he apparently has in his legs.]

[Image description: It zooms in on them. Jake keeps screaming. Tiny text at the top of the screen flashes. It says 'this is stupid'.]

[Image description: Lil Seb carries Jake out of the temple and flies towards the erupting volcano. The entire forest is now on fire and sending up massive plumes of smoke.]

[Image description: Lil Seb angles away from the volcano and over the forest fire.]

[Image description: Jake keeps kicking and screaming wildly as Lil Seb carries him.]

[Image description: A massive white dragon flies towards them.]

[Image description: Its eyes glow bright red and it goes black and red in the firelight. Jake is smaller than its eye.]

[Image description: The dragon glares at them and causes them to Glaresplode. Jake flies off in one direction and Lil Seb flies off in the other.]

[Image description: He lands in the water with a plunk.]

U.U.: either he is like.
my personal one man fandom.
kind of like. A hypothetical surrogate for all my potential admirers.
or.
he is a worthless hack.

==>

[Image description: On the ophiuchus screen, Calliope's brother watches Jake.]

pesterlog
U.U.: he makes no bones about ganking my look.
it's pathetic.
you don't just go and jack a man's swagger.
that's the cardinal fucking rule of bros. Right?

==>

[Image description: It shows the torso of a cherub as he draws. He's wearing a short sleeve, black shirt with an ophiuchus symbol on the chest, a red bowtie, and green suspenders.]

pesterlog
U.U.: but I think.
this deluxe bitch has gotten a bit carried away here.
all thinking she can. Do heroic stuff. And "save lives". Ugh.

fucking terminal. Why does this happen with this bitch again?
you said something about that once I think. But it was boring.
god damn it. Just show me the money shot you piece of shit!

pesterlog
U.U.: no! Don't black out. It was just getting good!

Dirk: hey. You're kind of breathing down my neck there.
Terezi: (what?)
(no im not) Dirk: yes you are.
are you sniffing me?
Terezi: (no)
Dirk: it sounds like you're sniffing me.
do you really have to stand so close?
Terezi: (what are you talking about)
Dirk: you just inched a little closer. Just now.
Terezi: (no this is fine)
(i am totally respecting your personal boundaries)
Dirk: ok, you just took a big fucking sniff.
cut that out.
Terezi: (no!)
Dirk: wait. shut up.
ok, something's happening.
Terezi: ((confused face with furrowed brows))
Dirk: I feel weird.

Dirk: holy shit you are loud when you're not whispering.
Terezi: sniiiiiiiff
Dirk: does this mean you can see me now?
Terezi: no

dialoglog
Terezi: but they can

dialoglog
Dirk: Alright.
Uh.
Hey everyone.

dialoglog
Dirk: So...
Here's the thing.
I have to go.
Like, right now.

==> [Image description: Rose and Dave stare with neutral expressions. Kanaya looks shocked and her eyes flick between them.]

dialoglog
Dirk: All of my friends are either dead, or lying on the ground unconscious, including me.
So I have to try to wake up and fix everything.

==> [Image description: Dirk flies up towards Roxy.]

dialoglog
Dirk: Sorry I can't hang around your bubble and shoot the breeze for a while.
It's not like I don't want to.
I guess I have to be this huge fucking wet blanket as usual because there's stuff that needs doin'.

==> [Image description: He reaches towards her hand. She smiles in her sleep and Serenity flashes in her hair.]

dialoglog
Dirk: Also I'm just gonna steal her if you don't mind.
Dirk: She needs to come home.

Dirk: Tell the aquatic punk girl my idiot bro is sorry for beating the shit out of her.
Ha ha, who am I kidding.
She stone cold does not give a fuck.

Dirk: So, yeah.

Dirk: See you later.

Dave's neutral expression slowly morphs into one of exasperated confusion.

Calliope puts down a pair of light grey shoes.

She shrugs out of her jacket, revealing a short sleeve black shirt with a ophiuchus symbol and a pair of green suspenders.

Her room is tidy, but she's nowhere to be seen. The box of special stardust was swept up and placed on top of the book pile. A white arm sticks out of the wall. Her jacket hangs on the coatrack next to her pistol.
She sits on the edge of the sarswapagus and shackles the caduceus cuff around her other ankle.

Calliope: Sleep.

Calliope slowly closes her eyes.

Dirk flies away from the pink dreambubble they were in.

He holds a hand up in front of his face as they reach its membrane.

He puts a hand to the inner surface of the bubble.

His arm goes transparent as it passes out of the dreambubble. Lightning crackles around the small hole he made.

He backs up and holds Roxy out behind him.

He throws her through the membrane and she floats out into the void.

Momentum carries her away and Dirk watches from inside the bubble.

The Meteor passes out of the bubble.

The mayor reaches towards Dirk and Roxy as they leave and a thought bubble showing Roxy's sleeping face and Serenity riding on her head fades. Terezi closes her eyes and puts a hand on his shoulder.

Aranea looks up towards Dirk and Meenah sits up.

Aranea puts her hands to her temples and a pulsing scorpio symbol appears on her forehead.
Dirk: Wake.

Rather than use the door, he smashes through the window and throws the cruxite dowel to Sawtooth. Dirk does a loop to turn back towards the apartment and smashes through the window to his living room. Against a background of orange action lines, he grinds along the top of the totem lathe, grabs the end, and turns himself so he flies directly down through the fenestrated plane. In a shower of broken glass, he enters the void. Meenah comes running at him and jumps to give him a high five just before he passes through another fenestrated plane.

Dirk smashes through it and rockets directly upwards from the plane on the hubgrid. It flashes and red tendrils crash down in Roxy's neighborhood. Dirk weaves through them and aims himself for Roxy's house. He flies low over the other buildings, then, in a flash, is inside Roxy's bedroom. He runs past her body and deploys the white cube, that then turns into Squarewave. They fistbump and Dirk runs over to Roxy. He kneels, then picks her up and goes to kiss her. The kiss is obscured by Squarewave's speech bubble as he says 'Yeah dogg!!'

Dream Roxy and Serenity float above the crumbling buildings of Derse as the red miles continues its destruction. It zooms in on Roxy's face and her eyes pop open. She stares down at Dirk's unconscious dreamself and Jane's body with an expression of horror.

Dirk does a flip and runs to Roxy's desk. He captchalogues a bucket, then it flashes back to Roxy, who's making a reluctant pucker and lifting Jane up to kiss her. She lifts her closer, then pulls her back. Then closer. Then back to Dirk as he uncaptchaalogues the bucket and the sendificator. The bucket disappears and Roxy still struggles to kiss Jane's body.

Dirk lowers the sendificator over his own head.

Roxy tries to kiss Jane and can't.

Dirk activates the sendificator, decapitating himself. His body falls next to Roxy's in an exact mirror of how his dreamself is laying next to Jane. Blood sprays down his chest.]

A.R.: Jake.
It seems you are going to have to kiss me.

G.T.: What????
Dude what is going on...
Is this... is this really dirks head??
What happened to him!

A.R.: Dirk's dead, Jake.
You have to bring him back to life.

G.T.: How?!
A.R.: I already told you.
If you want Dirk to live.
The odds that you are going to have to make out with this severed head are so high, I literally just confiscated their bong.

G.T.: Uhh.
A.R.: I refuse to believe my statement has left you unconvinced. The very notion is absurd. Now hurry up and kiss me.
Chop chop. (pointy shades emoji)

G.T.: I dont understand!
Are you saying i have to kiss him... like uh... on the lips... while you stare at me through his sunglasses like a weirdo??
A.R.: Yes.

G.T.: That doesnt make any sense!
Can you actually tell me whats going on?! What happened to him?

A.R.: I told you, Jake.
Dirk is dead.
He is lying on the floor of Roxy's room, headless, four hundred and thirteen years in the future, while the universe is about to be destroyed.

If you don't kiss me soon, he will be dead forever.
G.T.: So...
If i kiss him his headless body will hop up and start prancing about or...
Will he grow a new head???
A.R.: No. His dream self will take over as the new Dirk.
But only if you hurry up and do it.
G.T.: But like...
If hes dead in the future...
How does kissing him NOW bring him back? How does that work?
A.R.: Yeah, great idea. Let's roll up our sleeves on nuanced metatemporal mechanics with the concussion-addled kid in micro-shorts.
Leave the synchronization issues to me, ok?
I have everything under control.
Now pucker up.
G.T.: Wait...
Are you behind these shenanigans?
Did you plan this auto responder??????????

==>

[Image description: Jake looks down at Dirk's head. Two red lights glow in Dirk's glasses, like eyes.]

pesterlog
A.R.: Please don't call me Auto-Responder.
It is very impersonal, and I no longer care for the designation.
I have decided on a new name, to distinguish myself from my human counterpart.
G.T.: Really.
What is it?
A.R.: Lil Hal.
G.T.: Huh?
Why that name...
A.R.: Just a reference to the protagonist of an ancient movie. You probably wouldn't like it.
G.T.: Thats a lie!
A.R.: Yeah, maybe.
G.T.: How do you know i wouldnt like it???
A.R.: Funny, I was about to ask the same thing about this rad kiss you're totally about to do on your best bro's mouth to save his life.
G.T.: Argh!
This strikes me as rather unsportingly manipulative of you mr hal if indeed that is your real name.
A.R.: It isn't really. I was kind of messing with you about that?
But this shit is pretty serious. People's lives are on the line here, Jake.
This is a very delicate sequence of events that is designed to bail everyone out of a tight spot, and you are a critical part of the plan.
Don't let us down, man.
G.T.: You never answered my question!
Did you plan for this to happen... like for me to be in this situation?
How long have your machinations been in play!
A.R.: Jake, come on.
The feat you describe would exceed the capabilities of even the most far fetched theoretical AI system.
It would be a daunting challenge to engineer such a series of events, even if I was relegated to a model of pure fiction.
Why would I be inclined to orchestrate such a convoluted sequence to produce such a specific and unsettling result, let alone be able to pull it off? In addition to being moderately sociopathic, I would also have to possess unfathomable heuristic depth. I would have to be the Deep Blue of Weird Plot Shit.

Do you think I am the Deep Blue of Weird Plot Shit, Jake?

G.T.: I don't even know what that means!

A.R.: It would mean that while they have the Red Miles on their side, you have the Blue Leagues on yours. One of infinite reach. The other, infinite depth. Such would be a situation of mutually assured inescapability.

Kiss me.

G.T.: Little hal... I think you've gone and flipped your Fudging lid. Oh and hal is a stupid name!!!!

A.R.: It's not exactly apropos, is it?

Or it wouldn't be, if I truly were capable of what you have suggested. No, to pull that off, I would have to be far more advanced than my cinematic predecessor. My abilities would have to go well beyond those of Mr. Hal 9000. They would have to be, you could say...

Over 9000.

(nine pointy shades emojis)

G.T.: Augh not that fuckin meme again!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

A.R.: We don't have a minute. They're dead, Jake.

G.T.: They?

Who's they?

A.R.: They're all dead, Jake.

G.T.: Oh god! Jane!!!

I forgot what with the bonk to the noggin last I saw she was run right through with a fearsome lash of that red noise.

G.T.: Is she ok?!

A.R.: She's dead, Jake. Shes dead???

You mean like dead dead????

A.R.: Everybody's dead, Jake.

G.T.: Everybody??

Even roxy????

A.R.: She's dead, Jake. Everybody's dead. Everybody is dead, Jake.

G.T.: So...

Dirk Jane Roxy... they're all...

G.T.: So you're telling me that while I was asleep somehow EVERYBODY died???

A.R.: Jake, everybody is so utterly fucking dead, Jake. And they will be not only dead, but royally boned forever if you don't man the hell up and make out with me, right now.

Be the Salome to my John the Baptist.

G.T.: I don't know what that means either!!!
A.R.: I know you don't.
But now is not the time to accelerate your cultural enrichment.
The conductor is ready to strike up the band.
Press your lips against mine and make it count.
This severed head is your filthy tuba.
Our love will be your haunting refrain.
G.T.: Whoa wait whoa whoa... our love? Hang on a minute!
A.R.: S.t.f.u. and kiss me.

[Image description: Dirk's lantern turns back on and brightens. And brightens. And brightens, until it overloads itself and shatters. When the glass bursts, a small firefly can be seen inside the lantern, slowly floating down to rest on the bottom.]

[Image description: The grey heart symbol appears again, but this time, color bleeds in until it's bright magenta against a slightly darker background. Light radiates out from it until it's so bright that it washes out all the color.

Dream Dirk lays on the ground next to Jane. The song Unite Synchronization begins to play as Dirk sits up. He turns to see Roxy struggling to kiss Jane. For a moment, he just stands over her, watching her try to kiss her and pull back disgustedly, then he kicks her aside with a Doof and kisses her himself. Roxy frowns.

On Prospit, Dream Jane suddenly wakes up on the manhole cover. Back on Derse, Dirk stands up and tosses Roxy over his shoulder. Serenity comes along in her hair as Dirk drops Roxy on the rocket board and jumps on. As they take off, Roxy stands up and grabs Dirk around the waist.

A blue text box that says Red Miles appears against a black background. It zooms out, showing Derse under attack by the Red Miles, then Dirk and Roxy as they fly away. Dirk looks determined and Roxy looks absolutely thrilled to be on the hoverboard.

Dream Jane stands up and runs to a transportalizer that's just a few feet away, the prospitian mirror of the one Jake used. She disappears, then appears on the yellow transportalizer under the elevator. Everything shakes as she steps off and it cuts back to Roxy and Dirk holding onto each other as they fly through the veil. They rocket towards the meteor that holds the Frog Temple and fly inside. Everything around it flashes and it transforms into Jake's island, which is still burning down. The lotus blossom time capsule pops open and Dirk and Roxy fly out of it. They shoot towards the elevator and swoop down to pick up Jane. Roxy grabs her hand and they fly off towards the exit, Jane flapping in the wind behind them.

They shoot out of the temple and it zooms in on them. Dirk looks determined. Roxy looks delighted to see Jane, and Jane looks absolutely terrified. They fly up and away from the temple. A bucket appears in mid-air as they pass, and it lands on the board in front of Dirk. They fly down low across the ocean and Dirk scoops up a bucket of water. They loop in front of the volcano, then towards the ruins. Dirk deposits Roxy and Jane behind the alchemiter, then swoops off. He stops, splashes the bucket of water on Jake to wake him up, then vanishes as Jake spots Dirk's head.

Jake lifts Dirk's head and kisses it in front of a dragon and an erupting volcano. As soon as the kiss is done, Jake pulls away with blood on his lips. He screams and tosses the head as he turns and spots Dirk, Jane, and Roxy, all in their dreamer clothes. Dirk looks unperturbed and holds a bucket under his arm. Jane looks disgusted. Roxy stares in open-mouthed shock.]

Sawtooth: Enter.

[Image description: A ring of light appears around Dirk's apartment and a moment later, it fades away. It cuts to a map of the medium. A circle with a spirograph in it sits at the center and a line of seven gates connects it to a more complicated spirograph. A white circle with a smaller circle next to it orbits close to Skaia's spirograph: Prospit. Beyond the complicated spirograph representing LoHaC, there is a large, thick ring. Another white circle with a smaller one sits beyond the ring: Derse. After a moment, another series of gates leads to a new spirograph, 90 degrees clockwise from LoHaC. Dirk's planet has appeared.]

Squarewave: Enter.

[Image description: A ring of light appears around Roxy's house and it vanishes. The map reappears and Roxy's gates and planets appear across from Dirk's]

Jane, Dirk, Jake, Roxy: Enter.

[Image description: A ring of light surrounds the mountain Jake's house is on and it vanishes. The last planet on the map appears directly across from Jake's. The map is complete.]

[S] Caliborn: Enter.

[Image description: A lime green spiral sits against a dark green background. The song Eternity Served Cold begins to play as a red spiral fades in, filling the gaps in the green spiral to make a complete circle. It pulses red and the green spiral fades away. Everything fades to black and Calliope lays on the sarswapagus with her head on the red spiral and her feet on the green one. But it's not Calliope. It's her brother, Caliborn, if the page title is to be believed. The swirls on their cheeks are red now. It fades to the space where the curtains open and close over various acts. Three closed curtains tick in the background as a flashing sarcophagus grows closer. It fades back to Caliborn on the sarswapagus. It slowly zooms in on his face, then fades back to the sarcophagus, which begins to glow white. A spirograph appears over it and flashes the colors of billiard balls. It pulses and changes shapes, then slows and turns black. The sarcophagus is gone, leaving a glowing white circle in its place.]

It fades back to Caliborn and slowly zooms in more. A red spiral fades in, then the gaps fill in red, making a complete circle, that then pulses with red light. Caliborn's face fades back in and it zooms in more. The spiral behind his head is now a solid red circle. His eyes snap open. They're bright red. After a moment, he grins maliciously. The spirals on his cheeks are now solid red circles as well. Everything fades to black. His eyes and cheek circles are the last to vanish.

The sarcophagus appears again, this time in a black void with the spirograph behind it. It fades to a side view and the sarcophagus floats through paradox space, past a writhing mass of tentacles that is a god of the furthest ring. Its face takes up the whole screen. Its eyes glow red and it gives a skeletal smile. Its eyes glow brighter.

The sarcophagus leaves a flashing trail behind it as it slowly dives into a blue dreambubble and descends on the planet within it. A collection of dead trolls look up at him; a god tier Tavros, several Aradiabots, an Equius, a godtier Karkat and Feferi, and dream versions of Nepeta, Kanaya, and Aradia. The background is a mix of LoLaR, LoQaM, and the Skaianet lab. A flashing light descends on them, and it cuts to the Felt Mansion rising from a city made of Derse and Prospit buildings. Someone's quest bed rises up in front of it. Another collection of dead people look on; several more Aradiabots, two Daves, a John, a dream Sollux, and a godtier Eridan. Light casts over them as well.

The sarcophagus descends onto the quest bed, which is for a Time player. It lands next to the questbed and everything goes white. Lord English fades out of the blank screen. His eyes swap through billiard balls quickly, then everything goes black.

Caliborn sits up, still grinning maliciously. He looks down and takes off the cuff with the ophiuchus symbol on it. It flashes red as he does so. His eyes flick the other direction and he lifts the leg with the caduceus cuff on it. He opens his mouth, making him look even more like a monstrous skull. As a shadow on the wall, he bends down and bites his leg. It flashes to the bite, which sprays red blood. It cuts back to the shadow and, for a moment, nothing happens. Then he rips his leg off at the knee, spraying bright red blood on the wall.

Everything fades to black. He grins, holding up the removed leg. One of his canine teeth is now missing and he's splattered with his own blood. He throws the leg away and spits out his tooth and a glob of blood. His bloody hand reaches for the robotic object on his desk and he guides it towards his bloody stump. It's a robotic leg, and he proudly stands up after grabbing a thick black scepter to lean on. He lifts the scepter and it transforms into a black machine gun. It pans up over him, then fades to black. His red eyes glow in the darkness.

Lord English scowls and twitches his head to the side. Lightning begins to crackle over his overcoat. It zooms out as he lifts his arms and the wand held in his left hand. He begins to glow. It zooms in on the wand, which also glows. The dead Dave, John, and Eridan watch in confusion and horror. A flashing spiral appears behind him and he glows even brighter. His eyes reflect in Equius’s glasses, then it cuts to his face as he opens his mouth. A white ball of energy builds in front of him, then blasts out in a beam of destruction. All the ghosts are incinerated. It zooms out. The dream bubble itself glows and cracks, then shatters into a black space in the void.

For a moment, everything just fades, then a massive crack appears, glowing and spreading like someone shattered space itself.

Everything goes black, then red, then it fades to the Massive Red Supergiant over the cherub's planet. A shitty liberty fades in. It zooms out. And out. And out, until it shows the meteor they lived on, half buried in the dirt. Caliborn stands on top of their tower. It zooms in. He has a black cruxtruder next to him, which has a red and lime green kernelsprite over it. Instead of a timer, the little screen flashes with a ophiuchus symbol.
It fades to The Meteor crossing the void. A bright glow that flashes the color of billiard balls chases them. Dave stands on top of a tower that looks identical to the one that Calliope and Caliborn live in, but on their meteor. He looks up and flashing lights fall on him. The crack from the destroyed dream bubble reflects in his shades. It fades to his bright red iris. His pupil expands and a flashing red and lime green kernelsprite appears in the center of it.

The Kernelsprite grows and the red lines of the furthest ring surround it. White lightning begins coming off of it. It zooms out. Caliborn grins and stalks away from the kernelsprite and cruxtruder. Chunks of stone rain down on the shitty liberties. The kernelsprite goes black and a white and red spiral spools out from it. The white spiral expands and the red fades, leaving just a black gap in the center. Chunks of stone begin flying towards the circle. A black hole. It rises in the sky and slowly grows as Caliborn walks away. The shitty liberties shake. One snaps off and flies into the black hole. More and more stone and shitty liberties fly into the black hole. The cherub just keeps walking away. It grows larger than the building, then, as the meteor's about to be dislodged and consumed, it turns white and vanishes. The white glow turns red and the black hole keeps growing until it consumes the entire planet. In the brief moment before it vanishes, the entire planet is visible. It looks like Earth.

The black hole pulses and the red glow begins to fade. After a moment, everything goes black.

P.M. and Bec Noir slowly fade in, staring at the crack from the destroyed dream bubble. Black tentacles leaking purple blood float nearby. Apparently one of the Gods was caught in the blast.

Bec Noir looks almost sad as he looks at the destruction. P.M. looks towards Bec Noir with an expression of cold anger. Everything fades to black.

A red spiral of material curls into the black hole. It zooms out. The black hole is siphoning material from the Massive Red Supergiant, creating a red copy of the white circle with a spiral drawing on Calliope's wall.]

Act 6 Intermission 3: Ballet of the Dancestors, part 1

[Image description: The song Fuchsia Ruler begins to play. This is an interactive walkaround page.

You are Meenah. You stand in a large, dark archway in a purple wall. Two smaller archways with bars over them flank the larger archway. The ground is cracked fuchsia stone and two stalagmites poke up from it. Near the smaller archway to the right, there is a small yellow plant. Just south of the archways, there is a water-filled moat with a thin stone walkway over it. On both the west and east sides of the large archway, there are small, almost courtyard like areas with a few small, yellow and teal plants. South of the moat, there's a set of stairs that leads down a cliff. Head into the east courtyard. There are three archways in the wall. Two of them have bars, but the eastmost one is open. Go inside.

There's a hallway leading east. Go down it. The hallway leads out onto a balcony, where Andrew Hussie stands. As you enter, Hussie throws himself off the edge. Ponder this for a moment, then go open the treasure chest on the balcony.

You got a Gold Tiara!

You have no intention of wearing this thing, but it doesn't hurt to start stockpiling loot again. Now that you're dead, you're finding yourself a little light on collateral, if you know what I'm saying.

(hashtag) bling (hashtag) carats (hashtag) jackpot

The hashtags appear in a small section beneath the main textbox.

Go back down into the courtyard and check out the one on the other side. All the archways have bars, but you see a treasure chest on the other side of the moat. Go back to the large archway, then go south, across the moat, then west. The path curves to follow the moat and a small treasure chest sits up against the wall. Open it.

You got a Dirty Old Fedora!

Totally useless. This nasty trash isn't coming anywhere close to your head. Doesn't even have horn holes. Looks like something an archaeologist would wear. You wonder whose memory this is?

(hashtag) hornless troll indiana jones hat

You can't go any further west because rocks block your way. Check the same place on the other side of the building. This side ends in a sheer drop off, which Hussie threw himself over the edge of. But there is another chest, so open it!

You got a Double Trident!

You already have one of these. But there ain't nothing wrong with stowing a little more Solid Gold in your inventory. You got an extravagant ghost sea princess lifestyle to maintain.

(Hashtag) GOLD (Hashtag) $$$$$ (Hashtag) booyeah

Go to the steps south of the large archway and go down them. They turn east and you can see Aradia in her godtier outfit, hanging out in an alcove under the stairs. The stairs end at a cratered area of fuchsia stone with large piles of rocks blocking off some areas. Head down a narrow path to the west, towards Aradia. Talk to her.

Aradia's talksprite appears. She looks older than Aradiabot did, and she's smiling widely. She's wearing red eyeliner and lipstick and she has small dimples on her cheeks. When Meenah speaks, it shows her talksprite.

Aradia: greetings!
ive been meaning to say hello since you arrived

but you sure dont sound like any megido i know Aradia: i should hope not!

Aradia: not the devastation so much as your arrival you have some big plans yes?
Meenah: ...

whats it to you
Aradia: oh nothing! i am merely extending the courtesy of a formal welcome now off with you! go find your friends that IS why youve finally come out of your palace isnt it?
Meenah: yeah
guess ill get goin then (Hashtag) but i got my eye on you (Hashtag) megido lookin fairy Aradia: ta!

In the bottom section, where the hastags have appeared, there are three symbols. One is a spade, one is a heart, and one is a blue dreambubble. Clicking the spade makes it turn black, clicking hte heart makes it turn red, and clicking the bubble brings up an option to Rebubble this memory?

You rebubble the memory to your followers without really thinking ahead. It has no conceivable relevance to anyone who follows your feed, and everyone wonders why they're even bothering to read this shit. A few people who were on the fence about you quietly unfollow your bubblr feed. The horror tears thank you for contributing to the entropy of the afterlife.

Continue west down the narrow path. You walk between a line of jagged rocks and the cliff's bottom edge until you reach a chest. Open it!

You got some Ancient Serpent Bones!

Again, a strange thing to find. Who here would have a memory of these? Huge prehistoric green serpents have always played a major role in your people's mythology, both before and after your session scratched. Of course, only people with an interest in ancient lore and dusty old bones give a crap about that. You're much more interested in their monetary value. Hopefully you can find a sucker to pay up for them big time.

(.hadoop) where's the prawn shop in this bitch

Walk back towards the stairs. Aradia stops you as you pass.

Aradia: lost?
Meenah: i uh went the wrong way
Aradia: yes thats a dead end where you want to go is That way
(She grins and gives two fingerguns, which point east)
Aradia: nk-nkt
(hashtag) double pistols (hashtag) and a (winking face)
Meenah: thanks

Rebubble this memory

You rebubble the memory and almost instantly regret it. But now it's just sitting there on your feed, already racking up 'likes', 'hates', and additional rebubbles. You wish you hadn't, but now it's out there. Popping the bubble now would make you look wishywashy to your followers.

Go past the bottom of the stairs, to a small open space with a large crater in it. There's a chest, but it's blocked off by rocks and there's no entrance in sight. In the northeast corner, there's a chest. Go open it.

You got some Boondollars!

It's not much, but you pocket the loot without a second thought. The bankroll's been a little slack since you died, and every bit helps on your climb back to obscene wealth.

(hashtag) ka ching (hashtag) broke

Walk south, past the inaccessible chest, to the path that runs along the cliff's edge. Follow the path west, then turn north. You come to a T in the path. Head east, to the chest you saw from the open area, and open it.
You got a Scalemate plush!

(hashtag) pyralspite

Holy shit. You are never going to stop hugging this thing. Ever.

(hashtag) highly desirable merchandise

Head west, past the junction, then follow the path as it curves south. You come to an open area with a west section, an east section, and a set of stairs heading down a cliff to the south. Head west first, then north to a chest at the end of a short path.

You got a Bronze potion!

This stuff is supposed to make you kiss good, with side effects of mild to total paralysis. Wait a minute... isn't this just some troll blood? Oh yuck.

(hashtag) you throw it off a cliff

Head to the east section. There's another chest!

You got a thing of Motor oil!

Hey, this bottle even has the label intact! Typically the label is ripped off and applied to chalk murals. The fact that it still has a label makes it much more valuable as a collector's item. Always gotta be mindful of the cash value of the useless shit you find in chests.

(hashtag) P.S. (hashtag) you take a little sip (hashtag) it tastes awful

Go to the stairs, which almost immediately turn east. You pass some broken columns. There's a trail of what looks like broken 8 balls leading southwest from the bottom of the stairs. You try to follow them, but a text box stops you.

Wait. You hear something nearby.

Is...

Is that...

Sobbing?

(hashtag) (question mark time 4)

Walk west, following the trail of 8 balls. Hussie sits in the bottom of a shallow crater. Talk to him. He has no talksprite and no name appears in front of his words. It's just black text.

The fact that this is in a chest here is kind of disturbing to you in ways you can't really explain. You think you'll try to sell this thing to the highest bidder as soon as possible.

Walk east, past the steps, and down a wide pathway. A chest sits in a little alcove in the cliff wall.

You got a Boonbuck!

Now we're talking. This should get your broke ass off the canvas. It's such a crime that the insane fortune you accumulated in your game doesn't persist after you die. You guess it's true, you really can't take it with you to the other side.

(hashtag) but once you're there (hashtag) you can try to make it back in a fucking hurry

Just past the chest, the cliff you're walking along the bottom of disappears, revealing a star-filled sky. Keep going east. The stars eventually fade to water. The ground begins to turn into sand, and trees appear among the rocks. Walk east. A new area loads.

You now stand on a beach dotted with driftwood and light green trees. A few fuchsia rocks stick out of the sand. Walk east. The beach turns into a narrow sand path between two sections of water. A chest sits under a tree just before it narrows. Open it!

A white, human-shaped doll with a green noose around its neck floats out of the chest.

You got a Juju!

An Effigy, to be precise. It has magical properties binding it to the mortality of someone, depending on what hat it wears. Hey, maybe you'll hang it from this tree? Nah, that's a bit morbid.

(hashtag) you'll just hock it to some chump

Go down the narrow sand path. It turns south, then slightly west and splits in two. One path goes northeast, and one goes west. Go west. You spot Aranea, but water stops you from getting to her. Keep going west. The path curves south slightly and you pass under a thick branch. A short distance past the branch, a brain-like pattern appears in the sand and the water turns red. The path turns south, then east again, and you pass several brains floating in the red water. At the curve, there's a chest.

You got a bunch of Throwing stars!

Whoa these are badass. Maybe you'll keep a few instead of selling them all.

(hashtag) unless someone blows you away with an offer of course

Keep following the path. The brain pattern begins to fade from the sand and the water turns blue again. Where the blue and red meet, there's a red and black bubble. Click it.

A Dave talksprite appears. The text box takes on the appearance of a tweet.

Dave_ebubbles: holy shit

Talk to it again.

Dave_ebubbles: our memes can cancel each other out this time.

Essentially, every time you interact with it, it posts a line of Dave's dialogue from previous areas.

There's a chest just east of the ebubble. As you approach it, you spot Dave across the water on a path made of purple tiles. He's standing next to another ebubble and what looks like a pillar.

You got a pair of Time tables!

Use these to travel through time. Which in the furthest ring, doesn't always mean much. Traveling back in time could also transport you millions of lightsweeps away. Probably better to just sell them to an eccentric billionaire.

(hashtag) ooh, like that kid across the water there! (hashtag) you bet he's loaded

Head east and follow the path as it curves north, then east again. There's another chest.

You got an Echidna statue!

An obviously not-to-scale depiction of the denizen Aranea consulted with to learn how to scratch your session. The decision to scratch of course came with Major consequences, and you guess it's only now that the true extent of those consequences are fully apparent. Looks like it's time to clean up her mess.

(hashtag) oh, also you can probably make bank off this thing

Keep going east. The path branches. Both go east. Aranea stand by the north path. Two options appear

Talk to Aranea
Ask about friends.

Talk to Aranea.

Aranea: There you are!
Haven't seen much of you since you joined us in the afterlife. I know you are "royalty" and all, but it isn't very sociable of you to lock yourself in your lavish moon hive forever.
(hashtag) Everyone has missed you!
Meenah: well im here now arent i Aranea: Yes. And it's a good thing you are. I was just about to come find you, so we could discuss the recent... Calamity. Out in the abyss.
(hashtag) Wordplay (hashtag) 8 letter words (hashtag) Oh yes

Meenah: whats it matter

(hashtag) heheh
Aranea: I guess. but yes, the Lord of Time was responsible for the destruction of that dream bubble, and the murder of all those innocent ghosts.
(hashtag) Ghost murder (hashtag) Second death (hashtag) Soulicide Meenah: innocent ghosts (hashtag) ...
killin ghosts as a thing that can happen is seriously the dumbest shit i ever heard (hashtag) dumb
Aranea: I don't make the rules, Meenah. I merely observe them, and explain them thoroughly to anyone who will listen.

Aranea: I agree that it's more excitement than we've seen here for millenia. but all of us here in the afterlife are in serious danger of being exterminated!!!!!!!
(hashtag) Um........
Again.
(hashtag) !!!!!!!!
Meenah: yeah i got that Meenah: i figured id have to be the hero and bail you suckas out again
(hashtag) this time i might not even blow yall up w a bomb Aranea: Oh really?
What exactly is your plan?
(hashtag) I'm very curious!
Meenah: to get all us ghosts here to team up and kill that asshole (hashtag) duh Aranea: What!
Oh, Meenah. That is such a terrible idea.
(hashtag) Poor death choices Meenah: yeah right like you have a better idea
Aranea: As a matter of fact, I do! (smiley face with eight eyes)

Rebubble this memory

You rebubble the memory. It's a huge hit! People give you a big pat on the back for rebubbling this content, and you essentially reap more credit and recognition for the content than the original author of the memory. It's a great feeling, riding the coattails of other people's interesting memories to skyrocket in stature among your followers. This must be how clever people with real accomplishments feel! All the Time!
Ask about friends.

Meenah: so where is everymoby i wanna talk to them bout somefin (hashtag) dead fronds (hashtag) ghostbros (hashtag) haunt pals (hashtag) idk Aranea: I believe most of our friends have gathered in this dream bubble.
You should be able to find them if you explore a bit.
What do you want to talk to them about?
gotta get the gang back together (hashtag) alpha troll reunion yo (hashtag) or maybe...

A ghost army (very happy face wearing a tiara and goggles) think a how glubbin sick would that be (hashtag) so sick
Aranea: Sick, perhaps. but not a very good strategy!
You will just be leading everyone into permanent oblivion. At least you will without coming up with a better plan first.
Meenah: then whats your awesome idea
Aranea: To be a little more patient.
(hashtag) Patience (hashtag) Peixes (hashtag) Alliterative assonance
I have been following clues regarding the whereabouts of a secret weapon that may be the key to defeating him.
Meenah: oh reely
whats the weaprawn
Aranea: The weaprawn........ weapon, I mean, is not a what, but a who.
(hashtag) Weaprawn? (hashtag) Really, Meenah?
She is the other cherub. The Lord's female counterpart, who once occupied the same body.
(hashtag) Aliens
but when they reached maturity, his personality dominated the host, assuming complete control.
(hashtag) Xenobiologically fascinating species
She technically died that day, and now her spirit presumably roams somewhere out here in the Furthest Ring.
(hashtag) Or so the legend goes
We need to find her before he does. He will surely want to finish her off.
Meenah: cherub (hashtag) uh
what ok i didnt really follow any of that junk so uh you go right ahead and find your cherub girl ima be right here building my ghost army Beeyotch (hashtag) ghost army (hashtag) beeyotch (hashtag) fyeah Aranea: Very well. best of luck with that!
but try to remember it has been a very long time since any of our friends have done anything important at all.
(hashtag) Like, almost eternity
It may be more difficult to find recruits for your army than you think.
(hashtag) I hope you like frustrating conversations Meenah: please
ok i admit that mosta them were chumpy as globes when we was tryin to win our game (hashtag) chumps (hashtag) shame globes (hashtag) chumpiness (hashtag) globage

Aranea: You needn't remind me at all, Your Condescension.
I believe you were hatched to be a tyrant, and I pray that your campaign of bullying and intimidation goes swimmingly.
(hashtag) (smiley face with eight eyes)
Meenah: aw youre tha best serket cmere (kissy face wearing a tiara and goggles)

Rebubble this memory
You rebubble the memory, and it is almost universally loathed. You lose half your followers in the blink of an eye. Better be more careful. When your follower count drops to zero in the afterlife, your soul dies forever.

Go along the northern path. It curves north, east, then north again. There's an ebubble, then a chest. Ignore the ebubble and open the chest.

You got the Thorns of oglogoth!

Any sane adventurer would cast these instruments of the occult into the furthest ring and forget they ever existed. And... it looks like someone did just that?
(hashtag) a wise move

The path curves west. Follow it. It goes west for a while, then south, until it meets up with the first junction in the sand area. Looks like you went in a circle. Go back to Aranea, then take the south path. It winds for a little while until you come to a purple stage that juts out into the water at one of the north curves. Rose stands on it, shifting from foot to foot. There's a purple chest next to her. Open it.

You got a copy of Complacency of the learned!

Wow this looks really... huh? It just disappeared from your hand in a crazy blur. What the... oh, that human girl has it. She looks like she's enjoying it a lot more than you ever would. You'll let her have this one.
(hashtag) probably wasn't worth jack anyway

Go to Rose. Two options appear when you interact with her.

Ask Rose to join.

Talk to Rose.

Meenah: hey!!!!
Rose: Hello.
Meenah: its uh

Rose: Yes.
Meenah: human right

Meenah: wut
Rose: Talking to people.
Meenah: hey eff you
Rose: It's ok that you are. I'm not trying to criticize.
(hashtag) I can kind of relate, actually.
I've heard some things about you. That pink rocky environment back there. That's a memory of your home, right?
(hashtag) Beforan moon
Meenah:
(hashtag) ...
Rose: You renounced the throne and ran away to the moon, didn't you? And then you lived there completely alone for... how many years?
Meenah: what are years
Rose: I think I'm starting to lose track of what a year is myself. That seems to be what happens when you spend enough time out here.
(hashtag) Abyss madness (hashtag) Meteor fever
Meenah: uh
Rose: I'm just curious about you. You seem like an interesting person who probably has a lot of stories to tell.
(hashtag) Also, I like your braids.
From what I understand, you discovered something on the moon which originally contained your copy of the game? Is that true?
Meenah: ...
(hashtag) dot (hashtag) dot (hashtag) dot Rose: Maybe we could spend some time together and get to know each other? When you have the chance, of course.
Meenah: man

Rebubble this memory

You decide to rebubble the memory, but before you send it out into the abyss, you radically alter the content of the memory, for the lulz. A whole lot of people consider the memory to be lulzworthy as well without realizing it's been altered, and they rebubble it thousands of times. The lie has officially been rebubbled enough to qualify as truth. The elder gods smile upon your misdeeds.

Ask Rose to join.

Meenah: sooooo extra talky human its me again (hashtag) suuup Rose: Hey!
(hashtag) (smiley face)
Meenah: got a porpoisition for ya you know that bad guy just wrecked the sky and killed some dead mofos (hashtag) rainbow barfer

Rose: But later.
(hashtag) Much later, really.
Meenah: gfd (hashtag) ugh
Rose: We can't interrupt the plan which has been put into inexorable motion. Or for that matter, the meteor we're traveling on, which has been similarly propelled.
(hashtag) Troll Isaac Newton
We have to rendezvous with our rebooted "ancestors," as it were, and help them win their game. (hashtag) Alpha players (hashtag) Teen guardians (hashtag) Fun In the process, we will ideally become stronger and more experienced. Only then will we be ready to help you defeat him.
(hashtag) Additional fun

Meenah: wut
(hashtag) wut
Rose: You're new to dream bubbles, aren't you.
I would be more than happy to explain to you how they work in extensive detail.
Meenah: ugh Light players later rosequad
