Rating: Explicit

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Archive Warning:</th>
<th>No Archive Warnings Apply</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Category:</td>
<td>M/M</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fandom:</td>
<td>Harry Potter - J. K. Rowling</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Relationship:</td>
<td>Draco Malfoy/Harry Potter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Character:</td>
<td>Harry Potter, Draco Malfoy, Too Many Others to List - Character</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Additional Tags:</td>
<td>Trans Character, Deaf Character, referenced past abuse or trauma, Gender reassignment surgery, all the other tags from before Chapter 32 has a disturbing dream, Chapter 197 contains the suicide of a minor character</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Series:</th>
<th>Part 5 of Oi Potter</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Stats:</td>
<td>Published: 2019-03-01 Updated: 2020-03-06 Chapters: 388/? Words: 829123</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

Oi Forever

by IWillGoDownWithMyShips, ladyroxanne21

Summary

It's 2016 and Harry and Draco are still married and as in love as ever.

Notes

This is more like a chapter and a half, but I really like having Harry's email first, so, I ended with a Draco email :-)
Friday March 18th 1996
My other half,

Oi! Can you believe that our River is turning TWENTY in just three days?! How has time flown by so fast??!! It seems like just yesterday when you brought me to the hospital to meet the son you rescued, his tiny hand in ours as we brought him home...

And now 20?!

But to be fair, even though it feels like no time at all, I can vividly remember all the harrowing details - such as how many girls (and boys) he's snogged. How he's been downright broody for years and seems to be rebelling, but I have no idea against what. It's a bit like the time I walked in to find him fresh from losing his virginity. He was 17, so that was at least a bit of a relief in that he'd waited until he legally could consent, but he had been SO adamant for YEARS that he was going to wait for the right person, and then he just apparently said fuck that and got drunk and pulled a random stranger.

THANK MERLIN AND SALAZAR that they remembered to use protection!!!

But still, I stood there reeling in shock for probably a good ten minutes before I was able to gather my wits and shut the door to his hotel room so that I could go tell you what had happened and we could come up with a plan to deal with the situation. Meanwhile, he and his one off were passed out and had no idea that I was considering hexing them both!

Side note: I'm still rather surprised that with how very much River likes girls (and does his best to kiss every single one in the world, oi), he pulled a bloke. I wonder if he was simply going for a sure thing, or if he was actively trying to rebel in every way possible. Sigh...

WHY am I dwelling on this yet again?? I am trying to talk about how proud of River I am. How much I admire that he chose to learn his career from an early age and has been running his own successful business since he turned 17. And the fact that he personally goes to that safe haven park I created and volunteers his time to help kids with their homework or whatever else they might need.

He really is a diamond covered in gold and wrapped in a layer of angsty rebellion. And now he's going to be 20! I feel like I must be a hundred years old, sigh...

And despite the fact that he's been a challenge, at least we've got to 'keep' him. I still have no idea how we managed to make it through sending Viona, Eris, Orion, Hazel, Siri, AND Zwei to Hogwarts. Yeah sure, that still leaves Zaire, Jaz, Persephone, Lily, and Caelum at home with us, but it really feels like a huge part of my heart is missing having so many of them leave each September 1st.

Oh! I suppose I'm overjoyed we get to keep Shtara too. I'll never forget the day we first met her. We were in New York as you were having yet another book signing. She came into the book store looking and smelling like she's never bathed in her life, but her grin was SO brilliant as she rather engagingly told us all about how much she loves going to the library and reading your books. How she loves to imagine herself as part of our crazy life.

I'm dead certain you fell in love with her at first sight, but it took me probably five whole minutes to fall in love with her too. At first, we were just like: "Aww, she's precious, despite clearly having inattentive parents." But then her conversation turned to how she has had to temporarily steal a couple of your books from the library so that she could read them to her sick mum.

After a few strategic questions designed to NOT scare her off, we determined that she had no home (and thus no address to obtain a library card with), and that her mother has some form of cancer that is slowly killing her. Concerned, we naturally asked Shtara to stay in the bookstore and eat a sandwich and some biscuits while chatting with our Divas - as this was the last stop before they were going to be heading off to Hogwarts. Unsurprisingly, our Divas got along swimmingly with Shtara, despite the fact that they were 11 and she was only 9 at the time.

It was clear to all of us that our Shtara had a dynamic personality and that she would fit in like she was born to our family. I strongly feel like she was born to our family, she simply needed to take a bit of a detour before arriving.

As our Divas chatted with her and stuffed her full of food, they subtly cast cleaning charms on her to improve her smell and also repaired her tattered clothes. After a while, they asked if they could 'play with' her wildly curly black hair. I love her hair, and I know you hate when I go on and on about other people's hair, but her hair is just such a lovely riot that I think a person would have to be made out of stone to not like it.

By the time we were able to follow Shtara back to her hovel and meet her mother, Shtara looked like a shining angel. Everyone we passed on the streets clearly loved her, most saying hi, and quite a few expressing concern that she was being followed by two white men and a mob of children. I'm sure that the fact that some of the children didn't look like us made people wonder if we had nefarious intentions. Our support staff didn't seem to ease any concerns, strangely enough.

But of course we didn't have nefarious intentions.

We talked with Shtara's mother for a long time, learning that her illness made it hard for her to keep a job, and despite trying to utilize government programs, eventually, they'd been evicted and had nowhere to go. They'd tried to stay at women and children centers for a while, but those places are so crowded that it was too much for her to 'fight their way in' each day, and so they'd found a small patch of space under a bridge and made a bit of a nest.

You were definitely crying while listening to her, and I was damn close to crying as well. We told her who we were, proving it by showing her your picture on the back of your books, plus our IDs and a photo album of photos of us in Unity Houses around the world. We then asked if we could help them.

Shtara's mother looked so relieved to finally have a safe place and good people interested in helping them, that she... nearly died on the spot. We had to rush her to a hospital. But it was already far too late. The doctors said she was holding on by a very thin thread. She - more than likely through the power of sheer will - held on just long enough for us to have legal paperwork drawn up.

The moment the adoption papers were signed, poor Liz died. We gave her a lovely funeral, that was attended by a surprisingly large amount of people, and even though it could be claimed that it was all homeless people come to claim a free meal, it honestly was that they loved her and Shtara so much.
The only truly strange part of the whole thing was that a few people grumbled that if we were so rich that we could just adopt any old girl off the street, then why didn't we adopt or look after them ALL? I had to remind you that you've done more than your fair share of taking care of the less fortunate kids in the world.

That said, I immediately began work on plans to create a safe place for those kids - similar to the park I created in London.

Shortly after that, we brought our newest daughter home and put her in therapy.

Which was for the best, really, as she's now 13 and one of the happiest and most brilliant girls on the planet. She's muggle, so she stays home with us while the others are at Hogwarts, but that doesn't deter her in the slightest as she would much rather sing and dance at Elena's school.

Ugh! I'm clearly feeling nostalgic and overemotional because I've just blubbered on about our kids for over two hours. I think I need to sign off now and come find you so that we can snuggle up. Better yet, I should probably spank you.

River deep, mountain high,
Draco

Saturday March 19th
My Man,

You're surprised that an email that was going to be about how excited you are about our son turning twenty ended up being two hours of you blubbering on about our children? Have you met yourself? If anything, I'm surprised that you only went on for two hours. Did you have a pressing case you were working on or something? How did you manage to limit yourself? Inquiring minds want to know!

Alright, I will stop giving you a hard time. Merlin knows if I allow myself to wax poetic about any of our family members, I will either babble on endlessly for hours, or I will write nothing because my eyes will be too full of tears to be able to type. I actually had to stop partway through reading your own message to dry my eyes and calm myself. Thinking about where our sweet River was when we first found him, remembering the joys and drama of his teen years, and then his current victories? Oh my sweet little buddy can't be turning twenty! I won't allow it. Nope.

He has become such a wonderful man. His business is flourishing, he loves what he does and it shows. 'His' children at the Safe Haven are doing wonderfully. He has a wonderful relationship with his brothers and sisters. I want him to be less angsty for himself, because I think he'd be happier, but for myself there is nothing about him I am anything less than one hundred percent proud of. Being his Dad is one of the highlights of my life. Knowing I could have easily been nothing more than that guy who's married to his father makes every time he calls me "Dad" that much more meaningful.

When you talked about meeting him that first time at St. Mungo's and then went on to say you remember "all the harrowing details" I assumed you meant the details of his rescue and recovery. But no, you mean the harrowing details of his teenaged years. You, my love, are still most definitely the baby guy. Now that we have no babies, you're definitely the "little kid guy" and the "adult children guy" but you will never be the "teenager guy."

Honestly, your son who we spent his entire teen years chasing around to keep his mouth off every non-related teenager he could find, lost his virginity at seventeen years old. Which is older than you were I might add. And you still couldn't handle the knowledge. Stick to your lane sweetheart, leave the angsty teenagers to me.

I miss our angsty teenagers! I'm so glad our whole crew's coming home for River's birthday this weekend! We've got Elena, River, and Miles living on their own and six of our children off at Hogwarts, leaving most of our day to day life with only six kids at home. With Shtara, Zaire, and Jaz off at their day schools during the day, we end up with pretty much just the three littles at home. Our crazy crew of thirteen children has dwindled down to a trio of five-year-olds.

I suppose it's probably a good thing that these little almost triplets of ours are the feistiest of the family. I always knew our Persephone was going to be high maintenance. She's still the tiniest little thing, most people we meet assume she's about three years old, but her personality packs a punch. She was the first of the trio to walk, first to talk, and first to learn to wrap her Daddies around her fingers. She might be tiny but she will not get lost in the crowd.

Lily, on the other hand, was trickier. She spent her entire first year of life content to be held and fed, cooing and smiling at everyone, barely a fuss to be made. I thought we had another silently strong child like our Orion. No. Our Lissa was just learning all of our weaknesses to exploit them later. I'm making it sound like she's a monster. She's absolutely not. Her heart is enormous, but after the second time she emptied the Divas' closets in an attempt to donate all their clothes "to the poor children with no clothes, Daddies," I realized we probably needed to rein her in a bit.

Just as I knew Seph was going to be a handful, you were the first to realize that Caelum was going to keep us on our toes. He still keeps the oddest hours. When I go to check on him in the mornings, I never know which of his siblings beds he's going to be in. I'm glad we have the property warded to the teeth, because I've found him sleeping in the gardens three times in the last year.

The Troublesome Trio makes The Mischief Twins look like angels in comparison. It's probably a good thing we had these three last or we may not have had any more after them. Or perhaps they somehow knew they needed to be the spoiled babies of a large family and some higher power planned their births accordingly!

Although we did gain our Shtara after they were born, so they couldn't be all THAT much trouble! Or she's just that wonderful. You're absolutely right, it was love at first sight. It's funny because she's our only non-magical child, but when I try to think of words to describe her the first one that comes to mind is magic. Perhaps it's better for everyone that she doesn't have magic the way the rest of us do. All that charm and charisma, all that talent, the sheer joy that shines from her face … add magic to that and it would just be unfair to the rest of the world. She needs a little something to keep her a little humble!

To heck with it, screw humble, she's amazing! Humble is an overrated virtue in my opinion. As long as you're not being a braggart or a sore winner, take your worth and own it!

See? Set me free with a computer and thoughts about my wonderful family, and I can prattle on at length too!

You set my soul aflame,
Harry

Sunday March 20th 2016
My dearest,
I love how you always call it working on cases whenever I go into the office, even when all I am doing is going over ALL the paperwork filed regarding the raid I led on Wednesday to make certain there are no discrepancies. I get paid for the work, not the time it takes to do it, so I had no qualms about taking a two hour lunch break and then wasting it reminiscing about our children.

Today, however, is the big family dinner. All the kids came back from Hogwarts Friday night for the weekend - Including Viper's kids - and spent all of yesterday running around the Manor dueling each other. If this is how they act at school, I'm honestly surprised that we don't get more letters from McGonagall!

"Dear Misters Malfoy, your hooligans are at it again, kindly come to school and embarrass them atrociously, sincerely, Minerva McGonagall, Headmistress."

Anyway, Miles, Colm, Sammy, and Charlotte arrived last night for a sleepover, and all day today, members of our circle have been arriving. Including Mike and Jackie all the way from Australia. I look forward to having a nice long chat with them, mostly checking up on Unity Australia, which they've been working at for the past couple of years since retirement apparently didn't suit them.

I feel like I'm forgetting people, but you're literally here somewhere, and so, you'd know who I was forgetting - OH! There goes Sebastian, brooding over to the table to glare at everyone as he's almost certainly wondering why he's required to attend this large family function. Don't get me wrong, Sebastian and River have always gotten along, but Sebastian still feels like he should never have to leave his lab longer than it takes to go to the loo, haha.

The only person I can think of that HASN'T arrived yet is Mahafsoun. I'm excited to finally see her. When she originally moved to America, your ward but in the care of Portia, I thought that the most likely scenario was that she'd work on that vampire show of hers for a couple of months, and then it would end and she'd be back in no time. But then her show did brilliantly and she was asked to stay in America permanently.

She and Portia had been living together for about six months at that point, and Portia decided that it just made the most sense to adopt Mahafsoun. Thus, she's been living continuously in California for the last several years and we haven't seen her at all because we've just been too busy with tours, our regular traveling, staying on our Island whenever we've needed a break, and my occasional Auror work.

River has complained at length that we've never made time to go visit her, but since they talk via Magi-Skype every single night, he must still feel as if they are good friends. Maybe now that her show has ended - they felt that the vampire trying to fit in at human high school storyline had reached its natural conclusion - she might be ready to move back permanently. That said, Portia hinted to me via Insta-owl that the Producers have been trying hard to get approval for a spinoff in which Mahafsoun will play her vampire character as she lived throughout the countless centuries of her life.

Knowing Mahafsoun, all she'll have to do is bat her pretty eyes at any person necessary, and they'll fall all over themselves to approve the new show for her.

OOO! She's here!

-

Well... that was... unexpected...

Mahafsoun told us that her mother had magic but that she didn't, and so far, that has been true.
She's apparently tried a lot to use Portia's wand because she feels like it's part of her, but nothing ever worked, no matter how hard she tried. She was a bona fide squib - not that there's anything wrong with that.

But then she arrived in the Manor today and since I was the first to notice her arrival, I was the first to greet her. She is looking as lovely as ever. Actually, better than ever because she's a grown woman now and her inherent sensuality looks right, whereas before, it was weird to see on a child. Sort of mesmerizing, but still weird.

Here's the thing, and I suppose that it might explain why I fell for her at first sight...

So, after I'd greeted her hello with a nice squeezy hug and a kiss to the cheek, Eris spotted her and called out her name joyously (she always had gotten along rather well with our Divas), and THAT caught the attention of Orion and both Rivers. Orion looked very interested, but glanced nervously at his brother, because it's pretty well known that River has acted a bit territorial toward her in the past. OTHER River is very out and proud about being gay, so he was interested in her arrival solely because he's probably heard a LOT about her from our River.

In any case, I hadn't even had a chance to let Mahafsoun go yet when River ran over and tore her from my arms. "MAHAFSOUN!!" He shouted in a tone that really sounded like he'd just found his long lost best friend or... lover... Considering that he (as expected) gave her an entirely WAY too passionate kiss of greeting, which she responded to rather possessively and with an animalistic growl, I'm going to assume that he considers her most definitely his lover.

The fact that she promptly sprouted wings and flew off with him means that there was a reason I always thought of her as very like Blaise. I was reacting to an unawakened Veela, I just didn't think it was truly possible considering the fact that she had no magic. I've never met a Veela that wasn't magical. More importantly, unlike with Blaise, I wasn't immune to her because I wasn't a possible soulmate candidate. So all those times when I confused everyone - even myself - by being creepily possessive of her, it really was my desire to be like a father to her coming in direct conflict with her inherent powers influencing me.

Speaking of Veelas and Blaise, he burst out in a roar of laughter and said: "Well, it looks like we won't be seeing the birthday boy anytime soon!"

And that's when the rather obvious actually hit me. Mahafsoun had transformed because she found (been reunited with, whatever) her soulmate and awakened. Hence, River is her soulmate. Oi, why is it always OUR family that has the weird shit happen to them???

So... I guess this has turned from a family birthday dinner to a circle dinner with the birthday part postponed until the lovebirds emerge from their nest, and AH!!! I just realized that it's probably either HIS room in the Manor, or hers!

Oi, my love, the very beat of my heart, the flame in my soul, since the kids are here until next Sunday for the Easter Hols, what say we abscond tonight? Right after dinner. Take off as a family to our Island in the Maldives to lay out and bask in the sun for the foreseeable future? River can Insta-owl us when it's safe to return. What do you think?

Sigh... I have to sign off now and go attempt to stop Elena from laughing her arse off at me. Apparently the look on my face was 'priceless' - which I don't appreciate at all.

Even if we can't find Heaven, I'll walk through hell with you, love you're not alone, 'cuz I'm gonna stand by you,

Draco
Chapter End Notes

So now y'all know why Mahafsoun was such a different and difficult to treat person. She isn't magical in the traditional way of a witch, but she is a magical creature. Thus, the potions weren't right for her biology and ended up making her sick.

Lastly, THAT is the reason Draco was torn between wanting to be a dad to her and wanting to flirt outrageously with her. Her unawakened Veela allure was affecting him and making it hard for him to be completely paternal and nothing else.
Chapter 2

Chapter Summary

They're on Holiday at their private Island.

Chapter Notes

Warning, there's a very quick reference to previous traumatic events concerning the boy in the box, but I don't think it should trigger anyone.

Tuesday March 22, 2016

My Oblivious Love,

Greetings from sunny beautiful Maldives! Or from Malfoy Island as our brood has taken to calling it over the years. Coming out here was absolutely the right choice after the birthday party that ceased to be a birthday party.

Hindsight is twenty-twenty. Everyone's a Monday morning quarterback. Yadda yadda yadda. But in all seriousness, was this really an unexpected development? How did we not see this one coming? We both checked years ago to see if there was any latent Veela heritage in Rosalie's family background. We saw the way River flocked to Maha, the way she clung to "her River" and the completely creepy and inappropriate way you reacted to her. How did we all miss this?

Well, I suppose we see what we want to see. I have a feeling Mahafsoun will not be taking the spinoff telly deal now. I can see River being willing to move to California for her, but while I know I haven't seen her in person in years, Maha constantly went on about not wanting a flashy life. She wanted a quiet home, a husband who loves her, and a couple of children. Now that she has her River, and to be fair she's had him for years, I have a feeling there will be wedding bells and a couple of grandkids for us before we know it.

Maybe we should ask Greg to start drawing up some tentative plans for a home for them. We can have it be our wedding gift to them.

It's really a gift for everyone. If my memories of Blaise and Kisa's initial union can be trusted, then I think it's best that they have their own building. I know he has his little flat above his Spa, but that was definitely just a bachelor pad for him to sleep in, not a home.

I do think you're wrong when you say Maha doesn't have magic. True, she does not have a wizarding magical core and can't perform our traditional wand magic. But if she is a Veela, which is a magical creature, gives off the Veela allure, and sprouted wings? She has magic, it's just not what you're used to. You silly purebloods, always forgetting about magic that doesn't look like the kind you grew up on.

Anyway, I've had a blast so far today. I'm so glad Hogwarts', Traditions', and Durmstrang's spring hols synced up, it's been so nice having all of our kids, both of Pansy's, and the Quartet's together on his holiday. Minus our River of course. Even Elena has scheduled her school to have time off at the same time, so we have Lainie and Shtara with us as well. Not that we wouldn't have just pulled Shtara for the week anyway, but with classes off we get our Lainie-Girl as well.

You managed to get all of your paperwork done on Friday before the guests started showing up to the Manor. So all we have to focus on is enjoying the beach and keeping the children from destroying the island. Minnie's managed to keep them from destroying Hogwarts, so it shouldn't be too hard! I do think she breathed a sigh of relief when she found out the Russian portion of our circle was going to be sending theirs to Durmstrang instead of Hogwarts though. The genetic mixtures of you three Slytherins and us three Gryffindors all being at Hogwarts at the same time was probably a terrifying prospect.

I was initially a bit disappointed that my kids wouldn't be going to school with Ron and 'Mione's kids, but we see them often enough that I suppose a bit of absence probably makes their hearts a bit fonder. Our own children love each other desperately, but you can always tell they like each other a bit more at the start of hols than they do at the end!

Eri and Haz, as well as Siri and Zwei are probably the exception to the rule. Eri and Haz may as well be conjoined twins for all that they would be fine never leaving each other's sides. And I think Siri needs a bit more separate time but not much, so him being in the second-year dorm at Gryffindor compared to Zwei's first-year dorm and their separate classes is probably just enough time for his introverted self to regroup.

My sweet Zaire though, he misses his big brothers something fierce. I am pretty sure he's already counting down the days before he can join them at Hogwarts and convince the sorting hat to send him to Gryffindor with them. His best friend Jaz is probably the only thing keeping him from stowing away in their luggage every time they head back to the castle. That and the fact that you tell my Hogwarts Stowaway story so often that he's afraid he'll have to stand up in front of the entire student body and answer embarrassing questions if he ever did something like that.

I imagine when he does head off to Hogwarts that he will then start counting down for when Jaz will join them.

I could lounge around in the sun on the beach all day, I may just ….

Oh heck no you little monsters! I just got attacked by some devious little witches and wizards. This means war!

Love you Babe,
Harry

Wednesday March 23rd
My everything,

Speaking of Zaire, since we're relatively on the same side of the world, I've promised him a side trip to Africa, just him and me. Or well, I suppose him, me, and anyone else who wants to come. But the important part is that he wants to go visit some of the Zulu tribes and learn more about his heritage. We've had Leah learn everything she can about the Zulu people so that she could teach him about them, but he feels that an immersive environment is the best way to really learn things.

He's not wrong.
Considering that River sent us both an Insta-owl, I'm going to assume you already know this, but he apologizes profusely for flaking out on his own birthday celebration, and feels super embarrassed that every single person there knows exactly what he's been doing the past couple of days.

What you might not know is that I'd Insta-owed Portia to let her know what happened, and she says she feels a bit like a moron now. All these years, she's been doing her best to help Mahafsoun, but doing so through the rather narrow filter of the assumption that Mahafsoun must be damaged and acting out considering her past, BUT in the context of an unawakened Veela, her behavior is actually fairly normal.

Congratulations on winning the epic mini battle yesterday. Our kids may outnumber us enormously, but they're still only half trained and up against a war hero. They didn't stand a chance, hahaha! They don't need to know that I may or may not have been covertly helping you while pretending to take a nap in the sun.

The only other thing I wanted to mention before signing off is that while I was out shopping on one of the main islands last night with our Divas, two things happened. First, my friends the police spotted me, and apparently since I make quite the impression, they remembered me from five years ago, and came over to chat with me. It seems that they DID eventually solve the case of the boy in the box by finding the woman who more or less murdered him. She's now in prison and her daughter has been placed in a safe home. So... Justice served.

The second thing that happened was that Hazel mentioned that we were awfully close to Thailand - which just so happens to be THE place to go for gender reassignment surgery, and 'casually' mentioned that maybe it might be time to actually have said surgery. I know her hormone potions have been doing a beautiful job of helping her grow up more feminine than she otherwise would, but I'm not certain if it's even LEGAL for her to have the surgery at just 15. I, er... I basically deflected by saying that I would talk to you about it.

But here's my concern, even if she legally can have the surgery, what sort of consequences might there be for ALL of us if we let her have it before she's reached the age of majority? I know we're still very close with Unity House and the Department of Children and Families, so it's probably unlikely, but what if some ignorant malcontent reported us as terrible parents for letting our daughter 'mutilate' her body while she's still underage and under our jurisdiction. Even if we don't get in trouble with the DC&F, couldn't there still be some sort of legal repercussion if that theoretical malcontent protests hard enough?

Sigh... Parenting is hard enough without our children being wonderful people that inadvertently make it all that much harder. I look forward to snuggling with you tonight as we discuss this, before I take Zaire and anyone else who wants to come to Africa tomorrow.

I got you babe,
Draco
Thursday March 24th

Sweetheart,

I will certainly miss you and Zaire when you head off to do his cultural heritage immersion, but I think it sounds so perfect and amazing. I hope the two of you have a ridiculously wonderful time together. And I think it's best if just the two of you go. It's nice that you'd think to invite anyone in the family that's willing, but this isn't a vacation, it's a cultural quest. It's a journey to Zaire learning about where he comes from. Not a vacation destination for our world travelers.

I have to admit though, and I trust you will understand and not judge my feelings on this matter, I'm a bit jealous that you're taking "my" Zaire. I love all of my children equally. I do not have favorites. There have been times during each of their lives where I have felt closer to one or the other, but I truly do not have favorites, not loving or even liking them more or less than each other. But for some reason, and it's possibly because of the trauma they had getting to our family, River and Zaire have always been a bit more "mine" for some reason. Just like Viona, the tiny light of my life, has always been much more "yours."

Maybe that's why Z wants you for this trip. I'm a bit protective of him. Sometimes treating him younger than he truly is. You are much more likely to treat him like the brilliant and mature nine, almost ten, year old he is. Will you at least promise me you will take a million pictures?

Can you wait to take off until I bring the older kids home to get back to Hogwarts? I certainly wouldn't stop you even if you guys wanted to leave today, and I think Zaire would go along with whenever you wanted to leave. But until summer hols he's not going to get a whole lot more time with his siblings and I want them to have every moment together that they can. What do you say if Sunday you guys head off to Africa when the rest of us head back home? I've got our support staff, the Quartet, and Pansy and Ivan to help me wrangle the rest of our crew so don't worry that you're leaving me with too many!

I am so excited for him to be able to immerse himself in the culture. Immersion is almost always the best way to learn about anything. As long as you're not placing your desire to learn over the needs of the culture you're immersing yourself in obviously. It will be so much fun to hear Z tell me all about your trip! He's so cute when he's all worked up and excited about something. Don't tell him I said that though, he doesn't like it when I call him cute or adorable. Maybe he should stop being so damn cute and adorable then huh?
You know who else is adorable? River. Seriously little boy, you're embarrassed that your entire family knows you spent the last how many days shagging? What family did you grow up in ya little weirdo? Which of his family is going to think it odd that a healthy twenty-year-old man who hadn't seen his soul mate in five years was going to spend days in bed for the reunion? His polyamorous set of Aunts and Uncles? His kinky grandparents Lucius and Narcissa? His grandparents Molly and Arthur who popped out seven babies? Our sweet little prude.

I do love that we can still get him embarrassed! Embarrassing our children is one of the highlights of my life and most of ours are pretty immune to it at this point.

While you were doing yoga on the beach this afternoon, I did some fairly extensive research on Hazel's request for gender reassignment surgery. I've tried to keep up on current laws and standards over the years, having a transgendered child kind of makes it a necessity in my mind. So, we won't need to go to Thailand to get her the surgery she desperately wants. We can bring her to trusted healers that she's known throughout her childhood and still get her surgery before she's eighteen.

For the most part, no country is going to actively allow surgical changes on a minor. But "Age of Majority" is an arbitrary number that can vary from country to country. Holland's is only sixteen. Wizarding Britain is seventeen. However, in the United States, in California where we still own a home and still have Muggle paperwork with United States dual citizenship, stage three transitioning (surgery) is allowable on minors if a certain set of parameters are met.

If she has a legitimate diagnosis of Gender Dysphoria (often requiring two separate health professionals' opinions) … check!
If she has lived as her chosen gender for at least twelve consecutive months … check!
If she has done hormone therapy for at least twelve consecutive months … check!
If her parents agree to the procedure … check!

By the time we really sit down to have this discussion, research surgeons, and speak with the doctors and healers that cared for her when we lived in the U.S., she will have turned sixteen as her birthday is less than two months away in May. One year from the actual Age of Majority in wizarding Britain, and well within legal parameters in California. So, if she's truly ready, and you and I are both on the same page. I see no reason why we couldn't plan a trip to California for shortly after she gets out on summer hols from Hogwarts.

It's scary, any medical choices are inherently pretty scary. But if she's bringing up going to Thailand so she can feel right in her own skin? It sounds like it's time to me.

I can do anything with your hand in mine,
Your Harry

Wednesday March 30th
Othandekayo,

Part of me wishes you were here with us, and part of me is fervently glad that you aren't.

So, following your advice, I postponed Zaire's and my journey until Sunday when we could say goodbye to the Hogwarts crew and part ways in a more natural fashion than me just jumping right into it. I can't help it, all these years later and Zaire's (yes adorable) pleading eyes get me every time. All he did was look at me and say: "I wonder what it would be like to be trained as a Zulu warrior for REAL," and suddenly I was promising to bring him anywhere in the world that he needed.
I have no regrets!

That said, I do have a tiny concern - stop panicking, my fluffy little mutt. See, Sunday afternoon and Monday were taken up with trying to locate the actual tribe Zaire descends from - with Pippa's long distance help. As it turns out, Pippa and Leah (who we've asked to keep abreast of Zulu culture for Zaire) have already done most of the legwork, and so, when I told her I needed specifics, it only took her a couple of hours to trace down Zaire's father's lineage to a tribe in KwaZulu-Natal.

Monday night, using a combination of train rides and broom flying, we arrived at the Wizarding Zulu community. It's interesting to note that they have chosen a fairly remote location, but that they have modernized the village a bit more than the surrounding traditional/modern hybrid Zulu villages. The reason for this is that apparently the Wizarding community finds no sense in forgoing luxuries such as cooling charms and stasis boxes.

Anyway, Monday night was peaceful enough. The village elders greeted us warmly. They were delighted to find that we both speak isiZulu - admittedly, Zaire more so than me, but I knew enough to understand the gist of almost everything. After explaining our situation and why we were there, they had a bit of a discussion, and then decided to perform a ceremony officially welcoming Zaire into the tribe.

Here's where things get a bit tricky.

After the welcoming ceremony, we both snuggled up and had disturbed sleep. Zaire said he had vague nightmares about his father, and I'm not surprised as I woke up to find his ghost staring at me. Apparently the ghost had been wandering the land for a while after he was 'murdered' (justifiably killed), and the welcoming ceremony for Zaire 'called him' to us.

"YOU STOLE MY SON!!"

I basically rolled my eyes and did not interact with him at all. Zaire was staring at him with wide eyes, and looked apprehensive as we joined those in the village who wanted to have a communal breakfast with us. He followed us.

"You are a murderer and a child stealer!"

I saw that the village was curious about this turn of events, and decided that I should probably refute the accusation, if only to set their minds at ease.

"You were a monster who sexually abused his THREE YEAR OLD son, and you were killed while trying to steal him back from us after he was justifiably removed from your care. NOW, you are a ghost and cannot harm us, so do us all a favor and kindly go back to the hell you must reside in."

I was a tiny bit spooked when it seemed like the entire village flinched at that, but I assumed that they were simply horrified by the fact that this so-called man had once abused his son.

"Is that so?" He asked with a mild tone that could be interpreted as amusement, or it could be interpreted as a soft but evil threat. "I am Nomzamo, descended from the Zulu Wizard tribe, and THIS MAN stole my son while he and his husband murdered me!"

As he said: THIS MAN - he first pointed at me, and then stuck his ghostly hand into my chest. I was unimpressed, thinking that the most he could do was give me a chill. To my surprise, my heart started to hurt so badly that it really felt like a hand was squeezing it. I gasped out in surprise and pain, and may well have died if one of the elders - who clearly knows more about ghosts in Africa than I do - cast a spell to fling him back and - in essence - eject him from my body.

"Stupid foreigners," the elder muttered with an amused shake of his head. "You know nothing of our culture, and yet confidently insult spirits seeking vengeance?" He then sighed heavily. "If Nomzamo were still alive, he would be within his right to challenge you to a duel in which the two of you would fight with staves until one of you bled. NOT that we support child abusers, but all we know at the moment is that he claims you murdered him and stole his son, and you claim he abused his son and you rescued him. If that is true, we admire you."

Then he pointed at Nomzamo. "That said, the fact that his spirit is able to enter our wards means that he is legitimately descended from our tribe - despite the fact that he was not born and raised here."

I held up my hands respectfully. "I understand that I am a stranger to you and I have arrived with what appears to be a child stolen from your tribe, but I had anticipated having to prove the truth to you in order for you to accept Zaire as a legitimate descendant of your tribe. So, I have all the documentation with me. Zaire's original birth certificate, the file created when he was removed from his biological father's care, and Nomzamo's death certificate and the case file that states the police cleared us of murder as he clearly attacked us in our own home and forced us to defend ourselves and our family. I also have the Healer's report from the emergency magi-surgery that Zaire had to have because Nomzamo had damaged him so badly."

"LIES!!!" Nomzamo roared in outrage. "I was a loving father, and you RIPPED my son from my arms!"

I snorted derisively. "Oh sure you were, you loved him altogether TOO much."

Meanwhile, Zaire was doing his best to seem unaffected by the ghost, but was betraying his emotional state by standing in front of me, facing me rather than look at the ghost, and allowing me to wrap my arms around him and stroke his hair.

The elders collectively looked through the paperwork I'd brought and very shortly came to the decision that I was telling the truth, and that in his vengeful state, Nomzamo was misremembering things. Specifically, he was forgetting his own bad actions and focusing almost completely on what he perceived to be the wrong done to him.

Mlungisi - a sort of shaman? It's weird actually in that this is a Wizarding community full of magic, and in non-magical communities, a shaman is a person with spiritual power bordering on magic. Here, I suppose what I interpret as shaman doesn't denote a magical person so much as their spiritual leader. They of course have a completely different word for him, but it escapes me at the moment.

Anyway, Mlungisi stepped forward to explain things to me.

"As our honored elder - Londisizwe - already said, if Nomzamo were still alive - and his grievance were far less severe - he would be entitled to challenge you to a duel. As it is, he is a vengeful spirit clearly in the wrong, and now that he KNOWS where his son is, he will never stop haunting him and trying to exact his revenge."

I swallowed as this sounded rather serious now that I knew that Nomzamo could - in fact - hurt me.

"But not all hope is lost," Mlungisi continued. "There is something fairly simple we can try. See, in Zulu, we always give our people a proper burial. Once this is performed, a spirit can rest, and if it is not, he might wander until he is laid to rest. I will make it MY responsibility to track down whatever may remain of his body and of his most important possessions, and I will bring them back here to give them a proper burial. This MIGHT (with some strong encouragement) help him to be at rest."

"While he is gone, I will teach you those spells and other measures you will need to know to protect yourself from Nomzamo until he is put to rest," Londisizwe added, only mildly setting my mind at ease.

"And... what if he's not... put to rest?" I asked, glancing a bit hesitantly at Nomzamo, who looked ready to burst into flames and slam into me with the force of his rage.

"Then we have other - far less easy and definitely not as pleasant - measures we can try," Mlungisi informed me with a grin that really didn't reassure me either. I was most definitely tempted to take Zaire and Apparate all the way back home, but not only am I not powerful enough to do that in just one jump (or even a series), BUT they had already told me that this arsehole ghost would be able to follow Zaire. So... I guess we're staying here as planned, only now, we have to try to protect ourselves from malevolence while learning about Zulu culture AND exorcise (?) a ghost once everything is ready.

Erm... wish me luck?

With every beat of my heart,
Draco
Thursday March 31st
My Insane Husband,

Stop panicking? Seriously, you want me to stop panicking? Are you completely out of your mind? Some malevolent ghost that already caused extreme trauma to my family when he was alive is now targeting my son and my husband, I'm not going to be able to stop panicking. This creature has the spiritual balls to act as if we somehow stole his son from him.

First of all, Zaire is his own person in separate from others. He belongs to no one but himself. He owes nothing to anyone. It really shouldn't surprise me that this monster considers Zaire a belonging that he can own and then have stolen from him. Zaire might be sweet and kind but he also is magically powerful, probably his warrior heritage coming out, if he hadn't wanted us there is no way anyone could have forced him to stay with us.

This village wants to give him a proper burial? I am all for honoring cultural traditions but this piece of garbage doesn't deserve a proper burial. The only thing keeping me from apparating to you two and stopping this sham is the fact that it could keep you both safe from his power.

Speaking of power, if he is powerful enough to damage you while in spirit form then it would stand to reason that he can be damaged as well wouldn't you think? There has to be enough substance to his form that he can physically hurt a living being so that substance should theoretically be damageable right? If that's the case maybe I do need to get out there so I can exorcise this piece of garbage. I've spent years wishing I'd made his end worse, maybe this is my chance. Monster got off lightly the first time, we shouldn't throw away this opportunity.

Alright fine, I don't want to alienate this village that has seemingly accepted our Zaire and is willing to teach him about his history. I suppose I will let them try their way first. But if this Nomzamo doesn't go away after they try it their way then nothing is going to stop me from coming there and trying it my way!

He loved his son? Ha! He destroyed his son. That's not love, that's a psychopathic narcissist seeing people as belongings he can use for his own twisted desires. When I remember the pain our sweet boy was in when he came home to us I see red.

Okay, I have to get my mind off of this before I really do end up apparating out there, splinching myself, and then ending up infuriating the people we are hoping will teach Zaire about his heritage.

Things are going well here at home. Everyone's back to school. Leah and Jaz have been working all day at training Jaz's muscles and vocal chords to attempt speech. Her first few years of life it was easy enough to just have everyone around her learn BSL. It just made sense to make sure everyone could speak the same language. And our clever girl taught herself to read lips so when she goes out in public, as long as people look at her when they speak to her she can understand almost everyone. But up until now, if she wanted to be heard she either had to hope people were able to speak BSL, have an interpreter with her at all times (easy enough while she's seven but at some point she will want to go out alone), or write out everything she wants to say.

Leah is hopeful that she will be able to, but I'm a bit worried. It's not like Jaz is incapable of making noises, but even as an infant she almost never screamed or cried. I worry that she is as incapable of speech as she is of hearing and it will affect her self confidence. Ugh, I have to stop thinking that way. This is the baby that figured out apparition before a year old, she can do anything she sets her mind to.

Anyway, I had better run, I'm off to Dinner. River and Maha have mentioned they'll be joining us so I look forward to embarrassing and interrogating them! What are dads for?

Your Panicky Husband,
Harry

Monday April 4th
My much missed panicky husband,

Wow! Wizards in Africa apparently know how to get things done! Mlungisi left here on Thursday with a copy of all the paperwork I brought. He apparated straight to Cape Town, perhaps breaking it into smaller trips, and discussed with the police there how he was looking for a tribesman who hadn't had a proper burial.

The lovely thing about South Africa is that they respect a wide variety of traditions. So, once they were able to ascertain exactly which person Mlungisi was referring to, they told him exactly what had happened. Apparently, whenever a person is either unknown or unclaimed, they have a choice between a plain grave in the police area of a particular cemetery, or they can have the body cremated and store it in their evidence warehouse. Nomzamo was the latter.

Thus, they were able to fairly easily go into their warehouse and locate his box of ashes. All Mlungisi had to do at that point was prove that he was the shaman of their tribe - and that Nomzamo was a descendent of their tribe - and the ashes were released into his care.

That took fairly little time. What took longer was that Mlungisi then had to track down where Nomzamo lived and who might have some of his belongings. It took him a couple of days to track down Nomzamo's brother, but then the hard part wasn't finding belongings, it was building enough of a rapport with his brother to be given the ones that might appease his spirit when he's buried.

Here's what Mlungisi learned. Nomzamo had more than one child. That said, Zaire no longer has any biological siblings. Bheka had always thought that Nomzamo's children died of regular illnesses. It seems that when Nomzamo had them buried, he always listed something like Ebola as the cause of death, and apparently, this was plausible enough that the authorities didn't question it too hard. When Mlungisi showed Bheka the medical report on Zaire, Bheka reportedly cried in anguish that such things had happened practically under his nose and he never even suspected.
So, he not only gave Mlungisi the things that Nomzamo considered his most precious belongings, but ALSO decided to come back to the tribe to meet with and apologize to Zaire. That happened yesterday.

At first, Zaire was a bit freaked out to see a person that looks so much like his biological father - who he was very familiar with at this point since the bastard had been haunting us relentlessly those days Mlungisi was gone. That said, Bheka is much older than Nomzamo was when he died, and so, once it was explained who he was, inadvertently confirmed by Nomzamo - who accused Bheka of being a traitor by siding with us against him - Zaire was able to relax and chat a bit with Bheka.

So, those days that Mlungisi was gone, Londisizwe had upheld his promise to teach us to protect ourselves from Nomzamo. He taught us a variety of spells to repel spirits and actually harm them if they get too feisty. Plus things like shields - small specific ones to prevent a spirit from entering any part of our bodies.

All in all, I'm feeling rather confident that if I ever come up against any other malevolent ghost, I'll be able to kick its arse until someone has a chance to exorcise it.

Speaking of exorcise, tonight is the night that Mlungisi has prepared the burial ritual for. It's actually rather nice, there's going to be a feast featuring goat. Zaire is actually very excited to see and eat the traditional feast food here. Plus beer. But don't worry, it's a simple and not very alcoholic beer.

But before I sign off and join in - Zaire is currently being taught warrior dances - I just wanted to say that you've reminded me of something. Remember a long time ago when I was trying to work on contacts that Jaz could wear to translate talking for her if needed? Well I'd basically never had the time to focus on them until they worked, BUT that I DID work on them from time to time when I had nothing else to do, and so now, I do actually have a few prototypes that work. Better yet, it also occurred to me that she might need something to speak for her at times, and so, I also made a program for the magi-tablets so that all she has to do is type something and the program will say it for her.

But don't tell her that yet. Let her try to learn this skill without assuming that if she fails, she can just rely on a program. Also, I should probably apologize when I do give it to her since after finishing it, she had already learned to sign so well that she could communicate with ease, but she wasn't very good at writing yet, so I didn't feel like it would have been very helpful to her at that point. That said, I basically forgot about it and therefore didn't give it to her when she actually did know how to type.

Oops?

I'm just saying that maybe it's for the best as she will have a proper incentive to learn this new skill on her own.

You are my strength when I am weak, you give me faith 'cause you believe (in me),
Draco
P.S. Because I know you're probably still worrying and constantly reminding yourself that we're fine and you need to stay with our other kids (and nearly failing to do so anyway), let me just take a moment to reassure you. Aside from Nomzamo trying his best to get in Zaire's mind (which all of Zaire's therapy over the years has helped him to have a rather strong and impenetrable mind), Zaire is having a blast. He's been led through basic sparring skills and the like. And the thing that seems to really give him confidence - not to mention rather impresses the Zulu Warrior Wizards - is that I have been by his side every step of the way, learning all the skills with him so that he has someone of a similar skill level to practice with.

P.P.S. Note: Staff sparring is not too different than Krav Maga, so Zaire's actually better than they expected him to be.

P.P.P.S. The best part is all the Warrior dances! I look rather spiffy in these scanty warrior costumes, if I do say so myself. And Zaire is looking stronger and more confident than ever. He misses you and Jaz (and all the others) like crazy, but he's really flourishing here.

P.P.P.P.S. He and his uncle are getting along rather well. Bheka suggested an extended visit - or maybe a regular summer visit (summer for us, it would technically be 'winter' here). I said we'd think about it. You'll be happy to know that when Bheka also suggested that Zaire might do better in his care (being biological family able to raise him in their culture), Zaire said: "Oh hell no! There's no way in bloody hell that I'm giving up my dads, my sister Jaz, and all my other brothers and sisters! I'll visit, but I'm bloody well staying in Malfoy Manor!" To which I raised an eyebrow over his language, but basically didn't say anything because I was so very proud of him that a hug seemed far more appropriate than a scolding.
Chapter 5

Chapter by ladyroxanne21

Chapter Summary

Draco helps exorcise a ghost and Harry comes to help.

Chapter Notes

Warning: More references to child abuse, but they're brief and mostly in passing.

See the end of the chapter for more notes

Monday April 4, 2016

My Heart,

I am really hoping everything goes well tonight. I thought we were well done with that thing years ago and I am ready to know he's officially gone in every capacity. Please let me know the outcome as soon as you have the chance. I know I won't be sleeping tonight, wishing I were with my boys, but I'd rather be awake because I'm too wound up and happy about its success than up worrying about its potential failure.

I'm glad finding his ashes was easily accomplished. And it's quite lucky that some of his possessions were still around so the burial could go off as needed. And the fact that it had the happy coincidence of connecting Zaire with someone in his family (that isn't a monster) is great. Although I will admit when I read that he asked for a visit my first thought was, "Not without me!" because I wasn't going to chance someone taking my Z away from me. And then to find out he thought he would be a better option to continue raising my son? Yeah, I saw red again and as there was no one in the room with me I can't exactly ask anyone but I'm pretty sure I had one of my rage halos.

My sweet boy telling him in no uncertain terms that he is happy and content with his life the way it is has calmed me down quite a bit. I am going to try giving Bheka the benefit of the doubt. Maybe he was asking that as a test and gauging Zaire's happiness levels to make sure he's happy in his life with us. Kind of like when I immediately was thrilled at the prospect of leaving the Dursley's to live with someone I didn't know who'd spent the last twelve years in Azkaban should have been a red flag as to my real home life. Yeah, I think I am going to pretend that was his plan all along. But I'm still not letting Zaire visit out of my sight.

It's not like we don't love the excuse to travel anyway!

Once I got over the rage at the idea of our son being taken from us, and my worry about tonight's burial going well, I can't get over how sad I am for the poor children who weren't saved like our Zaire was. To think that he would have had even more siblings, more children we could have saved, more beautiful little souls that had a terrible ending to a too-short life, it just kills me inside...
Draco.

It's taken me a few years to really become comfortable with your work with the Aurors and with your cases you consult on with Hannah, but I really can see why you do what you do. Knowing that you have the potential to save children like those babies, and bring closure to parents and family worried about what happened to their loved ones? I would still throw a bit of a party if you decided to retire, but I'm also just full of pride for you and everything you do.

I'm also full of lust thinking about you in that barely there Warrior regalia. All that skin, and those tattoos of yours that make me drool. Your lithe muscles bunching and flexing, a sheen of sweat while you contort your body to create art with dance. I could be watching you dance, maybe around a fire while the light plays with the shadows from the muscle definition. And then you'd saunter over to me and …. Whoa! I've got plans with our babies tonight, I don't have time to fall down the rabbit hole of fantasizing about you. Stop it Harry, control yourself!

I, Shtara, Jaz, and the Troublesome Trio decided to fill our time with fun plans instead of sitting around missing you two. So tonight we're going to have a camp-out in the gardens. It's still a bit chilly but with warming charms and a bonfire we'll be just fine. We're going to have s'mores and tell spooky stories. I'm actually a bit terrified, you know what a performer our Shtara is and she says she's crafted a doozy of a story to tell tonight. Wish me luck!

I can't believe I forgot all about the tech you made for Jaz years ago! I suppose you're the one who made it and you managed to forget as well so I don't feel too terrible. I do think even if we had remembered the tech, this would be a good skill to see if Jaz is capable of anyway. You never know when a piece of tech is going to go down for some reason or what if she lost it or had it stolen. If she's just not physically capable of speech then we make do and life goes on, but if she can gain a new skill it's worth the try. Leah seems to be quite happy with her progress so far. She thinks it will work, Jaz has already made a handful of purposeful sounds. But it could take months before she's making understandable speech patterns even if it does work.

Well since starting this email I've now fielded six different inquiries about when I will be ready to start the camping. I'd better be off before one of the Trio decides to take matters into their own hands and accidentally lights my garden on fire. Narcissa would have my bollocks for that!

Give Zaire my love, I miss you both so much!

Yours,
Harry

P.S. Are you planning to be home by Saturday to celebrate Eri and Ori's birthdays? Or should I postpone the family celebration for when you both get back?

Tuesday April 5th
The fire in my soul,

You are THE MOST perfect man in the world. For me that is. I'm dead certain anyone else on the planet would have gotten upset with you, but I was just so damn happy to see you.

But let me start at the beginning.

The Zulu have very specific rituals for funerals. First of all, they believe that a body should be buried, and after a period of waiting, the person's spirit should respectfully be invited back into the family home. Obviously, none of that is going to apply here, and everyone understood that.

To that end, Mlungisi decided to change things a bit. We were still going to follow most of the traditions, such as sacrificing a goat and offering the meat to the ancestors for a bit before preparing it for feasting. Mlungisi also made a point to invite a lot of notable ancestors of the tribe, plus as many of Nomzamo's ancestors as necessary until they had one that was known to actually be a resident of this tribe. It seems Nomzamo's grandmother married an outsider and left the tribe before having Nomzamo's father. She was also the one who ensured they knew their magic before she died.

Alright, once everyone was invited, we danced and chanted until the feast was ready. In Zulu culture, unmarried women and men wear basically the exact same thing. Our Divas would probably call it a mini skirt, but it's two separate pieces. The back is made from animal hide, and the front can be made out of grass or animal hide. There's furry covering for the shins and arms, and each person can add other decorations as they like, but that's basically it.

The older a MAN gets, the longer the back part of his iBeshu gets, so mine is to my knees (whereas Zaire is wearing the shortest version) as I am still an active man and could participate in fights and battles if I wanted. Also, as a married man, I wear a headband. My father, being past the warrior phase in life, would wear an iBeshu down to his ankles.

The older a woman gets, the more likely she is to be engaged or married. Once she's engaged, a woman begins to wear a breast covering - which in this modern age usually means a plain or beaded bra. But it could also be an animal skin. Once she is married, a woman wears fully covering clothing to announce for the world to see that she is taken.

I suppose this only SOUNDS strange to me because in our culture, it would probably be the other way around. Young girls would be expected to keep everything covered and married women would be allowed to take things off - should our culture actually embrace nudity, that is. But you know how I feel about nudity, so I don't particularly care who is naked and who isn't.

Side note, that actually surprised our Zulu Wizard friends here. The first day, after we explained who we were and why we were there, they grinned at us and told us that we needed to strip off and don their attire for the welcoming ceremony (and it was obvious that they expected us to try to respectfully decline, being from Britain and all), but the two of us were already stripping before they even finished speaking, hahaha.

Then as Zaire is learning the traditional dances, he's just in a group of kids for the most part, and he really does look like he was born here (which he was, just not HERE here). He dances next to the girls like he's been living with naked girls all his life, and so one of the elders - who has traveled abroad and knows that most cultures feel nudity is sinful, especially in mixed company - asked us why Zaire didn't seem shy or embarrassed.

Zaire laughed, shook his head, and said: "I have EIGHT sisters! We often bath together as a family, and my dad (he jabbed his thumb at me) would never wear a stitch of clothes in his life if he didn't have to."

"That much is true," I confirmed with a grin. I then went on to explain how you and I had created a Unity House in South Africa, and surprise surprise, the MOMENT I mentioned my husband Harry in conjunction with Unity House, SUDDENLY they knew exactly who we were and had a lot of questions to ask about you, hahaha.

Interestingly, where more modern parts of Africa have adopted anti gay hate (remember how careful we had to be when we moved to South Africa and why?), the rural tribes that try to remain true to their culture remember that being gay has been a valid (even if not huge) part of their culture for ages. It seems that the Zulu people actually had a practice where younger men could be considered wives to older men until they reached an age where they might like to dissolve the marriage and take on boy-wives of their own.

Which means that while they may or may not have true acceptance, they at least respected the fact that I am married to a man. I suppose after that, it probably didn't seem so odd that we'd adopted an army of children. Oh alright, we only adopted half the army. We physically gave birth to the other half, hahaha!

But back to the funeral. Regular traditional clothing is typically shades of brown, green, and white from the animals and dried grasses. For funerals, they have special clothes that are more or less the same, but died black with bits of red for contrast.

We wore these special clothes and participated in the dancing and chanting until it was time to feast. During the feast, Bheka - being the only one there that actually knew Nomzamo - talked about him. He spoke of their childhood together. How Nomzamo was the younger son, and how their parents - despite being poor and struggling to provide for their family, had desperately wanted a daughter. Traditionally, children are named even before they are born, and children can actually have several names that talk about their parents' and family's hopes and expectations for them. Seeing as how their parents wanted a girl and were struggling in general in life, the chose a girl's name that meant struggle.

Now this might seem like an insult to you and me, but it's not meant to be so. It was meant to symbolize rising above the struggle and persevering. But then Bheka went on to say that things never seemed to get better for their family and Nomzamo himself eventually came to believe that he was a curse on his family. He vowed to do better for his own children when the time came.

Bheka never had children because he just didn't want the responsibility of providing for them in hard times, but he said he was always there to help Nomzamo. He felt close to all his nieces and nephews (there'd been three girls and two boys), and struggled to cope with their deaths when they died. They never talked about it directly, but Bheka strongly believed that his curse on the family had gotten stronger, resulting in the deaths of all his children.

When Zaire was born, he was given a name that meant River as it was their hope that he would be as strong as the Nile and able to overcome anything - even Nomzamo's curse.

It was at this point in the narrative that Nomzamo himself burst out angrily, denying that he was ever a curse on his family. Proclaiming that even though his life was a struggle, he had managed to overcome all odds and provide well for his family. Things like that.

A look crossed Bheka's face that suggested that he could now clearly see that his brother was not sane, and that he probably hadn't been entirely sane while still alive. This was a bit heartbreaking as I cannot imagine how I would feel if Sebastian or Gavin suddenly acted in a way that forced me to see how mentally imbalanced they were. Well... Gavin more so than Sebastian. As much as I love that prickly bastard, he DEFINITELY comes across as a bit, erm... eccentric at the very least.

Anyway, there was a lull in which we were all eating and the next part of the ritual had to wait until we were done. It was at this point that Londisizwe asked if I was the husband or the wife. I could tell by the sparkle in his eyes that he was joking. Others laughed and called out their guesses of: "Injonga!" (Masculine gay men, aka the husband), or: "Skesana!" (Effeminate man, aka the wife.)
One of the girls seemed to be asking Zaire which it was before guessing (by whispering in his ear), and he responded by shaking his head. "Neither."

This seemed to confuse Londisizwe. I chuckled, winked at him, and said: "Both!" Which actually seemed to make sense to almost everyone as they simply nodded in understanding.

At this point, if Nomzamo hadn't been pacing angrily around the 'bubble' we'd trapped his spirit in, I'd have called this a rather good time.

Eventually, the feast was done, the ancestors were honored, the grave was dug, and it was time to get on with the burial. The box of ashes and all of Nomzamo's possessions - things like his blanket, his favorite shirt, and his personal fork (apparently they like to keep things hygienic by giving each person their own set of utensils to eat with), plus his prized cow tail (it's a Zulu thing as far as I can tell) - were set in the grave.

Everything seemed to be going well until Mlungisi began chanting spells to seal the spirit into the grave. That's when Nomzamo started to fight, and all of the strength he was saving came out in full force now. He possessed Bheka before the man had a chance to cast a shield. Once inside Bheka, Nomzamo tried his best to get to Zaire and - I dunno. Take him??? Not sure he had a plan to be honest.

This is where things devolved into very NOT traditional territory at all. I'm not sure which culture it is, actually - Chinese maybe? - but there's a culture that believes that if a malevolent being kills someone, their spirit is trapped in that being's service until freed. It's NOT a Zulu belief, but I suppose that's not the thing that matters here.

What matters is that it seems that Nomzamo had a couple of women and his other children (their spirits anyway), bound to his. I learned this later, but apparently the mothers of his children always died 'in childbirth.' I don't know if you ever mentioned what happened to Zaire's mother, but if you did, that's probably what you said. Seeing the rest of them and the way they angrily fought under Nomzamo's command, I'm inclined to believe he murdered them somehow just after giving birth to his children, and then claimed it to be during the event.

I am sorely tempted to have a chat with the Authorities he dealt with to see if he had somehow bribed them to look the other way. Threatened maybe? I simply CANNOT believe they wouldn't noticed all these deaths of 'natural' causes happened to his wives and children. Sigh...

Anyway, as I was saying, suddenly there was a small army of ghosts - powerful and angry spirits possessing equally as powerful witches and wizards in an attempt to destroy me and keep Zaire at their side. I'm going to go ahead and interpret that as keeping his spirit in service to Nomzamo like the others - meaning murder him too.

But of course I was NOT about to let that happen!

And here is where that Auror training I had came in handy. I am used to commanding raids. I am used to assessing tactical situations and coming up with plans to deal with them. Thus, I had no problem at all defending myself and Zaire - and probably impressing the tribesmen, not that that's the important part. It took a bit of doing because I didn't want to hurt any of the bodies being possessed as they are actually innocent people. But basically, without any real communication, I decided to play the bait while Mlungisi and Londisizwe gathered up what they needed to perform a much less pleasant ritual that basically exorcises a malevolent spirit. It involves trance work and blood magic, and so, even if I was paying full attention to what they were doing enough TO describe it in exact detail, probably best if I don't.
It took a few hours and was well past midnight by the time that we defeated Nomzamo and forced his spirit to forever rest in his grave. The beautiful part was that we freed the women and children in the process and were able to give their spirits a lovely sendoff to the afterlife. So... that's that. Sorted!

Which naturally was when my perfect and most definitely panicky husband decided that it had been far too long with no word. You'd promised to stay up and wait for me to give the all clear, but considering that KwaZulu-Natal is 2 hours ahead of Britain, you must have assumed as it neared midnight that something must have gone wrong, and in your panic and worry, you burst forth a glorious rage halo and Apparated an insane distance to be by my side.

Still panting from a fairly rough spiritual battle, the tribe was in fight mode and considered you a threat. They cast spells at you that seemed to evaporate when they hit your halo. Fortunately, you didn't retaliate, instead looking around for me and Zaire. Zaire was extraordinarily happy to see you, basically abandoning the strong warrior mask he had been cultivating since we arrived so that he could run over and hug you.

"DAD!!!" He shouted giddily, even galloping (or so it looked) as he ran. He hugged you so hard I bet you wouldn't have been able to breathe.

"Harry!" I cried out in delight, not having to run to you since you had used me as a focus, and thus, Apparated to my side. I had not reacted to the first sight of you because I had to get my brain to shift from commanding a battle mode to: everything's fine and I have to calm my adorably furious husband mode.

As Zaire hugged the bloody hell out of you, I pulled you both into my arms and gave you a joyous kiss, ending by resting my forehead against yours. "I missed the fuck out of you!"

It had taken a moment, but the fact that we were hugging and kissing you turned off your rage halo and you gasped out in relief. "You're safe! I was so worried!"

"I know," I murmured in sympathy, stroking your hair.

Before you could say another word, the fact that you'd just expended a MASSIVE amount of magic caught up with you and you swayed a bit before fainting into my waiting arms. I kissed you again and carried you to the hut, erm… lovely house - that we're staying in. Luckily, the elders were smart enough to realize that you were you and not a threat, and so, let me carry you off without protest.

But I'll tell you this, you're still sleeping (it's coming up on noon here, so 10 am back home), and the tribewizards are having a lot of fun taking the mickey out of you for showing up clearly ready for a hard battle, just AFTER it had finished, haha.

But I don't care. I levitated your sleeping body out into the sunshine so that I can have your head in my lap as we eat our midday meal. I'm carding my hand through your hair and quite looking forward to giving you a kiss the moment you wake up. And don't worry, I'm shading you from the sun.

All my love, forever and always,
Draco
P.S. The Zulu have a large bet going on as to how long it'll take me to burn as red as a lobster, but I've already thwarted them by remembering to cast my basic skin healing spell every couple of hours so that I tan a nice golden color rather than burn. I'm looking rather gorgeous, if I do say so myself :-D
P.P.S. Zaire - the little stinker - decided to wind his uncle up by casually mentioning that his dad Harry does not take kindly to people not noticing child abuse going on under their noses. I don't think Zaire was trying to be an arsehole, just, erm, making it clear that he doesn't fully trust a man that couldn't figure out what feels (in retrospect) like it should have been rather blatant. So now, Bheka is a bit apprehensive of what you might do once you wake up. I'm secretly betting you'll be too preoccupied with my amorous attention to care that the rest of the world exists, heh heh heh!

Chapter End Notes

Note: While I'm not going to 100 percent say that Zulu culture is perfect - being a few things I do take issue with - there is actually a lot about the culture that I do admire and respect. For example, they really do believe that nudity is normal. That a girl's naked breast has no sexual connotation until she's engaged to be married. One of the things that just blows me away is how their entire society is accepting of this. They show it ON THEIR NEWS!!! Seriously, if you are interested to see how a society handles nudity on their news in a mature manner, go onto youtube and look up the Zulu Reed Dance/Ceremony and traditional Zulu weddings. Both will have plenty of videos in which nudity is just accepted. The Reed Dance in particular has practically every Zulu maiden in the country wearing nothing but a colorful miniskirt and some decorative beads, marching and dancing to the Zulu King's palace - thousands of topless girls shown right on their news. I was seriously impressed, and now I'm sure I sound like a weirdo going on and on about it, lol ^_^
Tuesday April 5

Draco,

If I never leave this building again I can avoid all the embarrassment I put myself into right? I just cannot believe I allowed myself to act like a ridiculous, over-emotional, temperamental teenager. I know it's certainly not the first time I've allowed myself to let my power and my temper take over. But there's usually some sort of justification. I was obviously distressed and worried for the two of you, but I was supposed to be home caring for our children and instead I just apparated across the planet to put myself in the thick of things.

I'm so glad that you and Zaire were both happy to see me but I don't understand how you possibly could be. I treated Zaire like the baby he insists I still think of him as. He must be so embarrassed to have had his father storm in and embarrass him in front of this tribe of people he's trying to learn from. You even said so yourself, you love me through my nonsense but anyone else on the planet would have been upset with me.

And after all of that I didn't even show up in time to help. And since I fainted as soon as I let go of the rage, even if I had gotten there in time I probably would have been useless! I would have been a liability, someone else you had to shield instead of worrying about your own safety. Will I ever be a mature, responsible adult? I'm thirty-five years old for Merlin's sake. When the emotional fifteen-year-old blows up Dumbledore's office after his Godfather (kind of) dies, you give him a bit of leeway and don't judge him too harshly. The middle-aged man not giving you so much as a four hour window before charging in like a bull in a china shop? Ridiculous.

What's even worse? I think you all expected it. You were happy enough to see me but didn't seem all that surprised. Zaire ran himself over to me and greeted me like he'd missed me, but he certainly didn't ask me "what are you doing here?" And in case you were thinking to yourself "Wow, Harry just left the five kids alone during their campout" that's not the case. Because your mum showed up shortly before I took off and told me she'd finish out the campout for me! She knew I wouldn't be able to keep myself from leaving!

So it's just like all those times when the Aurors have "allowed" me to help out with something, I ended up charging in and refusing to follow their orders, and then I find out they assumed I'd do exactly what I did!
As embarrassed as I am I suppose I should relax and enjoy the rest of our time here before I drag you boys home! Your message and the complete lack of malevolent spirits tell me the burial was a success. It would have been great if the only thing accomplished was sending that creature on his way to his earned afterlife, but to know that the souls of his children's mothers and the children themselves were able to be separated from him and find their own peace? That is such a relief to hear. I'm so thankful that Zaire's brothers and sisters, likely his own mum, and his siblings' mums can go to their own earned afterlife.

I should probably have a bit of a conversation with Bheka as well. It sounds like he truly wants to have a good relationship with his nephew. You know how I feel about extended family and the families we choose. Unless he turned out to be as dangerous as his brother or Zaire wanted nothing to do with him, I would never keep them from each other. As much as I would like to blame him for not seeing the abuse (and my subconscious still does, I don't have power over that!) he certainly wouldn't be the first well-intentioned person to miss something like that. I know more than anyone possibly that it's hard to see people we love for their flaws. It's almost as though we're hard wired to only see the best in them.

It took me a long time to come to terms with the fact that I could love my Father and Godfather, think they're good people, and still be angry with them for their bullying behavior. To allow myself to feel love for the Dumbledore that I truly was close to, while hating him for using him as a pawn in his war. It's easy to love someone when you ignore their flaws or when their flaws are easy to ignore. But it's human nature to put blinders on so you can't see your loved one causing damage. Dudley had to come to terms with these feelings as well. I know he hates what his parents put me through. What they taught him to put me through. I know he would have been willing to completely walk away from them if his own children had ended up with magic and his parents hadn't been able to handle it. But he still loved them. I would never tell him this, and I will call you a liar if you ever tell him this, but I'm so glad those two died before we found out all three Dursley kids had magic. He'll never have to find out if his parents would have loved him or them enough to live through having magical grandchildren.

Hell, your mum and Andi had to deal with their own feelings about loving a monster. If they found out Bellatrix had somehow survived, they would be the first people to put her down, but they still love her. Somewhere in their hearts holds all the love they ever felt for their sister. That kind of love doesn't go away.

I mean, I'd be willing to bet Lucius will still love you even though you insinuated that he's an elder, well past his warrior years, who wouldn't be able to do battle and may as well wear the long iBeshu down to his ankles. You do like to have all the knowledge you can though, so I should probably tell him you said that just to make sure he would still love you through that information. Yep. For science.

I am obviously kidding, before I left, when he and Narcissa came out to the tent, Lucius even told me to send you both his love. Right before he started complaining about how camping in a muggle tent should really be beneath him, and the things he does for his grandchildren.

Wait.

Lucius AND Narcissa came to cover for me while camping. They knew I'd come after you, but they also knew I had promised the kids to camp. So they must have wanted me to go just as much as I wanted to. And you know what else? When Kingsley or Bletchley or Robards have pulled me into things and I end up charging in, they say they expected it right? Then they wouldn't have pulled me in at all if they didn't want that. Do they WANT me to charge in but they only make it seem like they don't because it's against their Auror protocol?

Whoa.

And if that's the case, then you telling me all about the burial and the potential danger even though you know it would probably trigger my temper could have been on purpose. You even gave me a time it "should" have been over and I surpassed that by a few hours. Were you expecting and WANTING me to show up? Have you been secretly hoping to get me worked up enough to join you guys? Even poking me about Bheka's wanting to take Zaire into his own custody?

All of you people have purposefully been manipulating my temper to get what you want haven't you? And I'm such a naïve Gryffindor that I've never noticed you Slytherins playing me like a damn fiddle!

Although you probably knew I'd eventually figure this out and then you know I'd also realize it means you love me just as I am temper and all. Then I'd be pleased because it meant I hadn't embarrassed you or made you upset, but that you'd just be happy that your cunning plan worked out exactly like you hoped it would. Sneaky Snake.

Well, just for tricking me I am going to sign off, call you back into this room, and have you carry me out again. I might even pretend I'm injured for however much longer we stay just so I can force my hot Warrior to carry me around bridal style!

Your Tempestuous Gryffindor,
Harry

P.S. You should hurry up because I have a few arguments with the tribe I want to have. Which of us is the husband and which is the wife indeed. There's no wife, that's the whole point of our marriage. It would be like asking which chopstick is the fork!

Friday April 8th
The beat of my heart,

You and Zaire are taking ages to say goodbye to everyone before we return home, so I'm going to use the time to email you.

First of all, you are as popular here as everywhere. The Zulu Wizarding community actually swelled a bit while you were here these last few days so that others that don't normally stay in the village could meet you too. They all had so many questions, and not necessarily all about the War. Some - actually most - wanted to know what parts of your books were true. You even had a bit of a signing session here, hahaha.

Meanwhile, Zaire - who is already tall for his age and so strong and proud of his heritage (a far cry from the tiny little thing we adopted) - looked a bit like a peacock as he strutted around bragging that his dad was THE HARRY POTTER. But somehow, he managed to be humble about it too.

While you were signing and chatting away, Zaire and I were busy learning more dances, or just generally sparring. To my profound relief, our son is still too young to care about girls in the sense that they are a separate gender with interesting differences, thus, he was completely oblivious as a good half dozen girls his age did their best to flirt with him and capture his interest. They were actually doing this even before you arrived, so it wasn't something like him being extra special because he has a famous dad.
He's just bloody gorgeous, according to them.

Side note, before you arrived, a couple of fathers of daughters interested in Zaire asked me if our family would be interested in coming back to the village when he is older. I was a little confused at first, but apparently girls here are allowed to decide when they are ready to get married, anytime after age 16. There are elaborate ceremonies girls can go through if they can wait until they are 21 and still virgins before marriage. Also, a Zulu man can marry more than one woman, and since Zaire would have quite a bit of status in their village (being the son of a famous man and more than likely having quite a bit of wealth of his own when he comes of age), he would be able to marry as many women as he wants.

BEFORE either of us protest what sounds to be a very unfair system. The point they were getting at is that their daughters have already expressed interest in marrying him someday, and thus, our son is quite popular. NOT that he needs to be thinking about marriage for at least 10 more years.

But getting back to the original topic.

Zaire learned quite a bit about his cultural heritage in the not quite two weeks that we've been here. He seems to really like and respect his culture, and I won't be surprised if he refuses to wear anything other than the traditional Zulu clothing - at least at home and wherever he can get away with it.

So... remember once upon a time ago when you suggested that Elena would murder someone to have me teach alternative dances at her school? Well, I've decided that it might actually be a good idea. I would have to get permission from the students' parents, but I think a once a week class taught by me and Zaire in which we pass on traditional Zulu dancing, well... I think it would be interesting, no?

I know Elena would agree almost instantly because she's always loved the traditional African dances and never shied away from a bit of nudity. But I can also see the majority of parents not understanding the underlying point of the class, which is to pass on respect for a proud culture.

Of course, I would naturally come back to learn more about the culture and their dances throughout the years. I can actually see Shtara being excited to take the class. I think she comes from - well I KNOW she comes from New York, but I mean that I think she thinks her heritage is from a different part of Africa, and if she's ever interested, we'll try to track it down for her to learn about. But more importantly, I know she's interested in all cultures and would love this class.

In related news, I really think she will be the perfect one to take over the Potter Wizarding Cultural Center when she's older. Every time we go there, she's always so excited, looking fairly close to rapturous. I'm willing to bet she secretly has a ton of plans for what she could add if she had her druthers, hahaha!

Hmm... I keep rambling on about different things. No matter, it seems that you are finally ready to go. You look so good in traditional Zulu garb. I'm thinking we might have to make the most of our flight back home, heh heh. Probably a good thing for Zaire that Mr. Lott brought the rest of our non-Hogwarts kids and support staff with him on his way to pick us up. Thus, Zaire will have plenty of time to tell them all about his cultural education, and well have plenty of time to work each other up completely.

Oh! You just looked over and noticed me smirking at you. That seems to have given you proper incentive to say a final last goodbye and rush us away to the airport. Best sign off then!

Love, lust, and all the other emotions,
Draco

Chapter End Notes

Draco denies purposely leading Harry into showing up with a rage halo, but also will not deny that he planted a seed so that IF things had gone badly and Draco needed him, Harry could have waltzed in and saved the day. All in all, Draco's just glad everything turned out and Harry's with him.
Chapter 7

Chapter Summary

Draco gives Hazel some spectacular...ly bad advice.

Saturday April 9, 2016

My Best Friend,

Whew, we made it back in time for me to make Eri and Ori their birthday breakfasts. I was really worried it wouldn't happen. When that storm over Northern Africa came seemingly out of nowhere and we had to stop over in Morocco I thought this might be their first birthday I wouldn't be able to see them.

Even when they've been at Hogwarts I've been able to go visit the morning of their birthdays. When they were First Years their birthday landed on a Monday and we just kept them home for a three-day weekend. Then Second, Third, and Fourth Years you and I went and had breakfast with them in the Great Hall. You, of course, sat with Eris at the Slytherin table and I sat with Orion at the Ravenclaw table. We probably would have switched it up a bit, but once we sat that way their Second Year they seemed to think it was the tradition to do it that way.

I know Minnie wouldn't turn down any parent that wanted to join their child for meals, but I never would have thought to even ask if we weren't close with the Headmistress. I think my favorite part of us being in and out of Hogwarts so often with so many of our kids going to school there, meeting their friends when they bring them for visits while on hols, and attending all of the rituals again, is we're not celebrities there. When Viona was a First Year and Minnie embarrassed me in front of the entire student body, they treated me like a celebrity or an oddity. Now I'm just the dorky dad who volunteers at the school too much.

I honestly just love that when we go there I'm ___'s Dad. It just depends on the kid saying it for whose Dad they think I am. Most of the Gryffindors call me Sirius or Draco's Dad (it is so weird to hear people call him by his actual name and not Zwei!), the Ravenclaws all call me Orion's Dad, while most of the Hufflepuffs and Slytherins call me either Hazel's or Eris' Dad. I get the occasional Viona's Dad from Vivi's friends but I think the fact that Eris and Hazel might as well be my clones make it easiest for them to think of me as belonging to one of them.

I'm pretty sure that with at least half the student body owning at least one piece of Hazeris fashion they tend to be the Malfoy kids their non-friends remember. The fact that they're both outgoing little mouthy things helps as well.

All I could think about when we were sitting in Morocco was them arriving at home after Friday classes to an empty Manor (well, as empty as the Manor ever gets), Eri and Ori both going to bed at night not knowing if I'd be there to wake them up with their birthday breakfasts.

Thankfully we only had to wait out the storm for about an hour and a half and managed to get ourselves home around two in the morning. We dragged a sleepy Shtara, Zaire, and Jaz to their rooms and let the house elves levitate the sleeping trio to theirs. It was certainly no surprise that I was the first and only one up this morning to get breakfast ready. I was a bit surprised to see both Eris and Orion had brought friends home for the weekend. I know we gave them permission, but they hadn't told me they were.

Also, I was running on less than four hours of sleep so I was probably a little brain fogged. Orion and his friend Evan woke up happy enough, we chatted a bit about what they'd done the night before. I guess they spent most of the evening playing board games, and if Evan's smirking was to be believed, Orion spent much of his evening losing badly at the games because his eyes kept wandering to Eri's friend Natalie.

Eris and Natalie (And Haz obviously since she was in the same room) were less pleasant to wake up. I guess they stayed up quite late watching movies, snacking, and talking crushes. Apparently Natalie is a much better friend than Eri or Haz because she refused to give up any information on crushes our girls may have mentioned but Haz blurted out that Natalie might want to take her crush hunting. Not subtle ladies, perhaps don't reference your friend's crush's name-meaning when one of the people who named him is standing right there and is very aware of what his son's name means.

Ah, young love. It's adorable. I'm not going to say a word. I'm just going to sit back and watch the two shy little weirdos stare at each other longingly when they think the other isn't looking! I already have my hands full thinking about what's going on with River and Mahafsoun. Normally I wouldn't push or assume a relationship is headed in any direction. I learned my lesson the first time Elena brought home a boyfriend and I started picturing what our future grandchildren would look like only to have them break up the next week and then Lainie telling me in no uncertain terms that she is nowhere near ready to settle down with anyone.

But with the Veela thing, the Soulmate thing, and the fact that they've essentially been waiting years to be together, River and Maha likely won't be doing the slow-build relationship. And at the risk of pushing them into things they may not be ready for .... they WILL be making us the prettiest grandchildren!

Eventually. No rush.

No rush indeed, weirdo fathers already putting in offers for Zaire to marry their daughters in the future. He may be tall, but my little boy won't even be ten until next month. He's got at least a decade before he should start worrying about marriage. I hope you shut them down in no uncertain terms. Although, at least those girls have good taste. He IS gorgeous! He was gorgeous even when he was a malnourished, undersized tiny child. But seeing how he's been able to healthily grow into his best self is breathtaking. But there's a chance I may be a bit biased!

I like the idea of you and Z teaching a class at Lainie's school. And while I know you love the entire costuming and pageantry and any excuse to wear as few clothes as possible, even if the parents or Lainie herself don't give permission for the barely-there traditional dress, you can still teach them the dances in full clothing. Especially when it's in a performance school where most of their clothes are specifically designed to not inhibit movement.

And I am sure Shtara would love to take the class as well. Is there really any form of performance she wouldn't want to learn? Maybe Mime? Yeah, a type of performance where she wouldn't be able to use her amazing voice in any way is probably the only thing I can think of.

I should sign off though, everyone is finally awake, dressed, and starving. Let's head out to Café Exquis for a birthday meal with the whole crew!

Yours,
Harry
Sunday April 10th
My co-parent of the horde,

You think with how well known it must be that I am NOT the one comfortable with teenagers, they'd stop coming to me for advice. I will admit that having most of them in Hogwarts HAS helped me get through the teenage years with less angst on my part, but it's still not the easiest. That said, I must give fantastic advice or something because they still come to me when they want to know things I'd really prefer they never learned.

So earlier today, while Orion, Evan, Eris, and Natalie were playing a game of hide and hex out in the garden, Hazel came up to me and wanted a nice chat. And by chat, I mean advice on relationships. So, apparently she's REALLY interested in Natalie, but there's the problem of Natalie being interested in Orion, and Orion being interested in her in return. Hazel doesn't want to basically ruin everything for them and push them both away, but she also doesn't think that she should just give up before at least trying.

So, I sighed, ran a hand through my hair, and decided to be honest.

"You should really ask your dad this. HE'S a bloody Gryffindor and could tell you some fluffy shite about supporting them. Me, I'm a Slytherin, as are you, so all I can tell you is what a Slytherin would do. Here's what a Slytherin would do: First, arrange things so that they get together. Remember to be subtle, you want them to think this was ALL their idea, and since they are interested in each other, that part won't be hard. Once they are together, let them enjoy some time together, wait patiently until the initial glow of the relationship starts to fade. Eventually they'll start to bicker about little things, and that's when you make logical comments about how those little things aren't so little. Gently point out ALL their relationship flaws. DON'T be the wedge that drives them apart, but rather be the supportive friend/sister that makes sure that wedge is as big as it can get. Then when they break up, do your absolute best to comfort and console Natalie. That way, when she's ready for a relationship again, she'll already have you in mind."

I then smirked at Hazel and gave her a kiss on the cheek. "Of course, that's assuming that she has even the slightest interest in girls."

Hazel looked down to her hands in her lap. She's so beautiful that whenever I look at her, I can't help but see exactly how you would look if you were a girl - all delicate and petite and perfect. But don't take that the wrong way, you're perfect no matter what, I'm just saying you'd look good as either gender.

"See, that's the thing..." Hazel murmured, and since she's usually so confident and clear spoken, I was a little taken aback by her demeanor. "Somehow, word got around the school that I'm trans. So absolutely NO ONE is interested in me. I myself don't really like boys, but if I did, none of them would date me because I'm that pretty bird with a prick, and while girls are usually happy enough to chat with me about fashion and the like, if I start hinting I might like them, they never fail to tell me one of two things, and very often both. First, that they don't like girls like that. I personally NEVER said anything to imply that I'm anything less than a girl, but like I said, they all seem to know, so the second thing they'll tell me is that even though I am a boy who likes to dress up as a girl, I'm too girly and weird for them. I think they really just mean weird, because even girls who've been caught snogging other girls tell me exactly that."

Oh, my poor baby girl! My heart was just about breaking for her. I pulled her into my arms and rubbed her back, trying my best not to be happy that her love life was going to be postponed until she was old enough to find a mature person who can accept her for her.
"Oh love, it's not the end of the world. I know it SEEMS like the worst thing ever that no one is interested in having a relationship with you, but that just means that you will know when you find the right person that it was meant to be. I imagine it'll be when you least expect it, you'll realize that someone is interested in you, and it'll shock you but you'll be happy."

"Maybe..." She sounded unconvinced. "But... won't it just be easier once I'm fully transitioned. That way, if people try to claim I'm not a real girl - or some shite like that - I can just prove that I am and shut them up."

"As much as I find the idea of you flashing the entire Great Hall at breakfast one morning so very amusing, I really must point out that's the worst thing you could do. Doing so isn't going to stop people from believing what they want, and it'll probably just make them tease you. Or worse. Kids are arseholes! Wait until you're old enough that those you're interested in have grown up and matured."

She gave me a shrewd look. "You're just saying that because you don't like thinking any of us are old enough to be interested in relationships."

"I can't deny that, but I'm not telling you to wait for that reason. I really do think it's your best option."

"I should ask River for advice," she grumbled.

"Salazar no!!" I protested in alarm. "The only thing he'd be able to tell you is how to chat a girl up and snog the bloody hell out of her!"

Hazel gave me a look that announced clear as day: That's exactly what I want.

I sighed heavily and rubbed my hand over my face. "Look... I'm not certain, but if Pansy is to be believed, then girls will sometimes ask other girls to practice kissing with them - so they know they aren't bad at it when they are with someone they like. If that's true, then perhaps Natalie will ask you or Eris to do so with her. If she does, take advantage of it. Who knows, maybe if you two practice enough, she'll really like it. And then, when you're comforting her later on, she'll remember and want to do it some more."

This seemed to make Hazel smile genuinely. "That's brilliant!"

I actually had to disagree. It's SLYTHERIN, which as a father, doesn't feel quite right. Yeah, sure, if this was Eris or Viona dominating their Yarmates and getting exactly what they want from them, I'd probably just shrug and walk away, but this is my baby who always seemed more like a Hufflepuff than a Slytherin to me.

"I'm serious, go talk to your dad about this. I'm willing to bet he has even better advice to give, and there's nothing wrong with more advice. It's always best to gather all your options and weigh them carefully," I advised her. Cheerfully, she seemed to bounce off in your direction.

I'm not certain I want to know the results of your chat with her. That said, upon reflection, I will say that despite feeling that I gave her accurate Slytherin advice, I actually feel it was terrible advice for her. She really needs to chat with someone who is trans too. Someone who has been through all of this already and knows exactly what to do. Or at least try. Looks like we might be going out to a couple of Drag Shows soon so that we can ask about anyone who's transitioned fully so we can ask her questions, sigh.

But I don't want to think about that anymore at the moment. I want to shift gears to our son. Last night during dinner at Café Exquis, it came as no surprise to anyone that River and Mahafsoun were acting like they had some big secret they just couldn't wait to share. We tried to be patient and let them spill it on their own, but I swear, had they not finally gotten around to it during the second course, I'd have shouted at them to get on with it!

Thankfully for everyone, River took Mahafsoun's hand in his and gave it a kiss. "Everyone... we have an announcement to make."

We ALL gave each other a look that said: Oh really, you don't say.

After taking a deep breath and giving Mahafsoun a smile of pure adoration, River continued. "We're getting married on Saturday May 14th."

My first reaction was to be alarmed that it was so soon, but then I remembered that we only waited a bloody week. Surely if we could pull of such a fabulous ceremony in so short a time, they can definitely work with two whole months. As I was busy going over all the logistics in my mind, Mahafsoun leaned over and gave River a kiss.

"There's more," she added. I raised a brow because there's NO WAY they could know if she was pregnant already. I mean...it's only been three weeks since they got together, so I suppose they actually could...

"I've decided that I really like the woman I've become. That I like being an actress with a job that's literally made for me. I don't want to give it up completely, so I'm going to accept the new show that's been offered to me. Filming is set to begin in June and that means River will be moving to California with me, but not to worry, we're both committed to ensuring that River continues to do what he loves - that BOTH of us do what we love and yet still do whatever it takes to make our relationship work."

"For example, Maha wants our house to be this 'little' cabin in the woods about a two hour commute from her set. Anyone else would probably think that a crazy idea, but with floo and her wings, it's really not such a bad idea," River explained, looking nervous since we hadn't had a chance to react at all yet to anything.

I looked at you and you looked ready to burst out with a flood of happy tears. I took your hand in mine and kissed it, mostly to remind our son where he'd learned the gesture. "Well... congratulations. It seems we have a lot to celebrate."

Which of course triggered the happy wailing as you threw your arms around him and sobbed into his neck. Mahafsoun seemed surprised that you pulled her into a group hug. She really looked like she half expected you to hex her or something. Everyone else gave them hugs and kisses until it was finally my turn. She snuggled into my arms and hummed happily, probably once again remembering that none of this would have been possible without me. I held her tight and felt an enormous sense of pride fill me that I'd not only saved her from a terrible life, but that I'd indirectly helped her grow into the amazing woman she is today.

Apparently our hug went on a little too long as both you and River started growling. You yanked me and River yanked her, and this actually caused a rather unexpected reaction. Both Mahafsoun and I started laughing.

I pulled you close and gave you a possessive kiss. "There's nothing to be jealous of. Now that I KNOW that she's a Veela, I can put up some mental defenses to minimize my reaction to her."

Meanwhile, she was busy reassuring River. "Remember, married or not, we have a soulmate bond."
I couldn't do anything with anyone else even if I wanted to, which I assure you, I don't. I've had enough of that over the years.”

When the two of you were reassured and at ease again, dinner continued in a rather excited manner. The only person who was less than thrilled to hear about River’s upcoming wedding was Hazel, whose birthday is on the 13th of May, and has loudly protested that her event will be upstaged by his. She's not entirely wrong. Perhaps we can persuade them to wait until July - in which there are no birthdays until the end. Probably not, but worth a try, no?

Love you to the moon and back,
Draco
Chapter 8

Chapter Summary

Harry fixes things with Hazel and Draco wants to quit parenting.

Monday April 11, 2016

My Life

I love you so much, and I love the mixture of Slytherin and Gryffindor (with the occasional Ravenclaw or Hufflepuff) tendencies our children have gotten from us. But maybe don't tell your daughter to attempt to get someone together with HER OWN BROTHER to put herself in a position to snatch up his ex-girlfriend during the fallout. What on Earth am I going to do with you? For someone so brilliant at playing the long game when it comes to businesses or how to take a potion from an idea to a fully formed life-changing potion, you certainly didn't look at all the potential ramifications of the conversation you had with Haz.

What, may I ask, will you tell Orion when he comes to you asking for advice on dealing with the heartbreak of breaking up with Natalie? Tell him to set out a cunning plan to win her back from … HIS SISTER? Don't get me wrong, I am secretly a terrible person and if this situation screwed over someone that wasn't my kid, I would probably shake my finger and act like I was affronted while secretly being okay with it. But you are telling Haz to plan something that will hurt Ori.

Anyway, the dinner was lovely and I am just so very excited for River and Maha. I have said from day one that once she grew into herself and not who she'd been trained to be that I would respect her choices in life. And I also said that if River wanted her for the rest of his life, like he said he did when he was only fourteen, that I wanted that for him as well. So how in Merlin's name would I be anything less than ecstatic that they are coming together? They're adults. Maha is confident in who she is and what she wants. River might be moving to accommodate her life but it's been planned out so that he can continue to do his own things that fulfill him. I really think it's a good compromise and I wish them the best.

Although I am a bit hysterical at the thought of my baby living on the other side of the world. With the exception of his few visits to his Grandparents in Australia that we didn't have time to join him on, I've never been away from him for more than a handful of days at a time. I can't imagine not being able to swing over and meet him for lunch or have coffee with him before he opens for the day.

And what if they have children soon? Then my grandchildren would live on the other side of the world? How could I handle that? To know that every day they were growing and changing and I was missing everything because I didn't live close enough to visit all the time (within reason, I don't need to be THAT guy!). Oh Hell, this is what we did to your parents and Molly and Arthur when we lived all over the planet. I can't believe we did this to them! How did they ever forgive us? Oh my poor mums and dads! Hold up, I need to finish up my hysterics and then call Neville and have him send the mums some flowers from me.
Okay, I'm all cried out. I may have been slightly overreacting to the idea of River moving my grandchildren to the States when 1-They are his kids and it's his life to lead and 2-They don't actually exist.

And we'll have almost this entire summer to spend with him anyway. Once Hogwarts lets out for summer hols, we already have Hazel's surgery prep, surgery, and post-op all scheduled. Even with magical healing, recovery can take a bit so we'll obviously be spending most of the summer out there. The other kids can pop back and forth as they like, between most of them being old enough for port-keys and the ever-wonderful presence of Mr. Lott, I'm sure they'll have no problems enjoying their vacation and seeing their friends.

And there's always the fact that we're going to one of their very favorite vacation spots anyway. Can you just imagine Vivi complaining about having to be close enough to the ocean to be able to surf every day if she wanted? Yeah, me neither. If we can talk Maha into letting the kids visit, maybe one or two at a time, she'll at the very least have Shtara eating out of the palm of her hand. Can you imagine her sweet face lighting up when she finds out she might be able to go to an actual Hollywood set?

So, this morning, before I floo'ed the kids back to Hogwarts, I had a conversation with our Haz. When it comes to the crush on Natalie conversation, I pretty much just told her that playing the Slytherin manipulation game with one of her best friends who happens to be her crush and her brother's was probably just a recipe for disaster. She must have been running the whole idea in her head all night because she quickly agreed and said she definitely didn't want to hurt her family.

Then we got into a whole long talk about how she feels about kids being unwilling to date her because of her trans status.

"Baby come here," I held my arms out and she cuddled herself up into my chest and tucked her head under my chin. I stroked her beautiful hair for a moment to get my thoughts together before I spoke, "You are so wonderful, special and sweet. Brilliant and caring. Strong and confident. But at your age, so many kids just want to blend in. They want to feel normal. Plain. Easily overlooked. There are just so many parts of your personality that make blending in impossible. You're the child of Draco and Harry Malfoy, you own your own business, you're drop dead gorgeous, and yes you are also trans."

"But Daddy, I want to be normal too!" she cried into my neck.

"No sweetheart, you really don't. And someday you will be so thankful to be exactly who you are. If it weren't for the dating stuff, you'd probably already be there. And someday much sooner than Dad or I would like, there will be all sorts of people who want to date you. Not, are willing to look past your physical differences, but who will love all the aspects of you."

"Ugh, that's all I need, someone who has a trans fetish!" she spat out.

"No. You definitely don't want that Darling. You have to find the line between someone 'willing to put up with' your differences and fetishizing your differences. I can't say I know how you feel, because that would be a lie. But you know how much people wanted to date me because of my fame, and people who weren't willing to date me because of the drama my fame would bring. But I found someone who was fine being in the spotlight when needed, strong enough to stand up to people telling him he or I had chosen poorly, and wasn't with me because I was Harry Potter. He's with me because I'm his Harry. You'll be someone's Hazel someday. But for right now, you need to be YOUR Hazel."

I made her look at me and went on, "Right now, your differences feel like a weight around your neck, but I like to think of my own differences like a shield. They're a built-in arsehole detector. If someone was willing to date you until they found out you were trans, then you automatically know they're too narrow-minded for you."

She sniffled a bit as her fury tears tapered off, "Well, I know Natalie isn't like that. She's always known I'm trans and has never treated me any differently than she treats Eris. She's not an arsehole."

"This I can handle, tell me all about your crush sweetheart!"

And she did!

I like this Natalie girl, I approve of her for whichever of my children she's crushing on.

Loving You Always,
Harry

Monday April 11th
The sensible one,

See? I TOLD you that I was only good at giving Slytherin advice and that it didn't feel right for her. That said, you wondered what I'd have done once Orion came to me with a broken heart. I'm sorry, but in this instance, I find myself siding with Hazel over Orion.

Thus, I'd tell him that Natalie clearly wasn't the right person for him, and that he's a smart and gorgeous Ravenclaw. Not to mention mostly likely to be made Quidditch Captain next year. He's going to have his pick of girls in the future. There's no need to settle for the first one he likes.

Also, he complains about that girl named Farrah in every letter he sends home, so I sort of assumed that he'd eventually come to a different realization altogether. You know...

Anyway!

Just be thankful I stopped her from going to River for advice. She REALLY doesn't need to know the finer points of pleasing a girl just yet.

Remind me again why you wouldn't let me freeze them all at age 11?

At least my Jaz is still too young for boys. It's not too late, I could always give the potion to her, Zaire, Lily, Caelum, and Persephone. Hell! I can even give it to Shtara! She's only thirteen and not quite ready for boys (or girls) yet either!

Oh hold on, I'm getting a Magi-Skype call from Viona.

-I quit! I no longer want to be a parent! Our Darling Viona has just informed me that she has decided (inspired by River and Mahafsoun) to marry her favorite minion NEXT summer - so we have over a year to plan the wedding - but she expects it to be utterly fabulous and befiting a princess. I was at a loss for words and trying my best to be supportive, so I asked her his name. She paused for a long moment, and then said she didn't know and would have to ask him when she informed him of the happy news.
Sigh...

Come find me in the playroom and submit to a spanking.

I put a spell on you 'cuz you're mine,
Draco
Chapter Summary

Harry finds Draco ridiculous and Draco panics for a moment.

Thursday April 14, 2016

The Man in Denial,

You, my love, are ridiculous. You said that in THIS instance you find yourself siding with Hazel over Orion? In EVERY instance you side with Hazel over Orion. Now, before you get mad, I am not saying you play favorites or that you love one child over another. But you have always had a bit of blinders on when it comes to our Haz.

And honestly, with good reason. We wouldn't even have our Haz if it wasn't for you. You're the one who made me realize I could never give her up. You made me look into her eyes and think about giving her to someone else, knowing me well enough that it would mean coming home with a baby when we already had our arms so full of needy little ones. You see her as the one you always thought would be a Hufflepuff. Sure, she's sweet and little and the daintiest of princesses. But her cunning little mind has always been more Slytherin to me. And obviously the Hat agreed!

Because of her history as this polyjuiced orphan baby who looks exactly like the husband you're in love with, you tend to look in those big green eyes and are willing to go to extreme lengths so she never wants for anything. I get it, it's not like I'm immune to any of our children's charms. And I'm just lucky that Zaire really doesn't have a devious bone in his body or he would be playing me like a fiddle every day.

Anyway, I forgot to tell you, but after she spilled about the crush issue, Hazel and I talked a bit about her disappointment in River and Mahafsoun choosing the day after her birthday to have their wedding. I got her mostly calmed down about it, reminding her that with as large of a family as we have, it's hard to find any day that isn't someone's birthday or anniversary already. And as they're not scheduling it for the actual day, I'm not going to attempt to talk them out of it. Especially when I reminded her that they wanted to have a wedding before she had to be on set in June.

Which, by the way, not sure how you're doing your math or if you've failed to look at a calendar recently but their wedding is ONE month away, not two.

I mean, it's definitely birthday season right now. Teddy's birthday is tomorrow. A week from today Persephone turns six. Less than two weeks after hers, Zaire is turning ten. Less than two weeks after his is Hazel's. And six days after that Lily and Caelum turn six. Then comes our own wedding anniversary ten days later. And then it's June (which has additional birthdays like the love of my life turning thirty-six) and puts Mahafsoun smack dab into needing to leave for her show.

And then Maha actually knocked on the door and saved the day a bit. Haz had gotten to the point where she was a little disappointed still, and she has every right to be, but was resigned to be understanding and enjoy the hell out of her brother's big day. When Haz told her she could come in, Maha took a deep breath and asked Haz if she would do her a huge favor. She asked Hazel if she'd be willing to create her wedding dress!
After Haz stopped crying, she ran to her desk to grab her design notebook and started bombarding Maha with a million questions about style, color, cut, etcetera. I'm sure Eris will end up having some opinions as well, but it's pretty well known that Eris leans more towards designing the pieces for everyday wear and Hazel is more likely to design the specialty items. You know, like wedding dresses!

I ended up leaving them to it, I wanted them to have their moment and you know I have way too many opinions on wedding planning. I wouldn't have been able to keep my mouth shut!

What the hell?!? Speaking of wedding planning. Our Vivi wants to get married next year? I can't exactly say anything about her being too young for marriage without being an enormous hypocrite. But maybe she should know his name at least? And she's going to inform him?!? I suppose I shouldn't be all that surprised that a proposal for a Viona marriage includes her informing the groom. If he likes her enough to be her minion, he's probably well aware of what he'll be getting himself into.

I do absolutely refuse to start any Princess Wedding Planning before she learns his name though. I will put my foot down! I will tell her in no uncertain terms that ….. yeah, I'll end up doing whatever she wants. Why am I such a sucker? Oh bloody Hell, am I one of her minions? I should at least be her favorite minion, right?

I'm off to the playroom, come find me! My reddened arse has faded to a pale pink and I need a second coat!

Yours,

Harry

Friday April 15th
EEEK!!!

You're right! There's only a month! NOT EVEN a month! How in the bloody hell did we manage to do this in a week?!?!

Wait, calm down...

Okay, the Cheering Charm is working. I don't have to panic because I'm not the one in charge of planning. Portia - being brilliant - has come to stay in the Manor until the wedding, and she, Mahafsoun, and (best of all) Pippa have made up a list of everything that needs to be done and assigned things as necessary.

For example, Hazel is making the dress. Pippa and Portia are handling the flowers and decorating the yard - with help from my mother, who naturally loves any excuse to decorate the yard. The only thing I really have to worry about is taking River shopping for his outfit.

Also, as I understand it, you were assigned the task of contacting Julia for photography duty, and Café Exquis for catering - not that either task would be particularly hard because both are very eager to help out.

Oh... Hazel and Eris must be besides themselves with designing the entire wedding party worth of dresses. I mean I know they could do River's outfit too, but I think they are happy enough to have one less thing to make. But so far, the tiny peeks I've taken prove that they are DEFINITELY doing a fabulous job. Have you seen the Bride's dress? That thing with the back is sheer brilliance!
The only problem I can see is that Mahafsoun is going to need a very intricate, erm... style... In order to not cover the gorgeous details. Funnily enough, she came to me for an objective opinion on the various styles she wants to try, and the current decision is to try them all and take pictures to decide which one looks the best.

On a different topic, erm, do you have any idea what's upsetting Elena? Is she mad at River or something? She came to the Manor today to chat with Mahafsoun a bit, but the entire time she was here, she looked pale and withdrawn. I hope she's not coming down with something. Do you think I should bring her a Pepper-Up?

Oh! Before I forget, Viona called me back, looking even more, erm... cheerful, yeah I'm going to go with cheerful. Anyway, she introduced me to her minion via Magi-Skype. It seems that she does know his last name as she always calls him that. It's just when I asked his name, she realized that if they got married, she couldn't very well call him by his last name which would then be hers as well, and that's why she paused before saying that she'd have to ask.

So, his name is Alric Avery, and now that he knows that his fate is to marry our daughter, he looks a bit thunderstruck, like he just won the cosmic lottery or something and can't believe his luck. He was babbling something along the lines of being honored and promising to take good care of Viona. I think he was shocked to be given an opportunity to speak, to be honest, and was trying to impress me, but in actuality, rambling on almost incoherently.

Viona eventually rolled her eyes and told him to shut up before he made an even bigger idiot of himself, to which he immediately replied: "Yes Ma'am!"

So... I rather assume that if anything has happened between them, it was exactly as Viona wanted, which sort of puts my mind at ease, despite not really wanting to think about it too closely.

As for the wedding, she hasn't settled yet on which day in July, but she knows she wants to have it in Hogsmeade rather than at the Manor so that she can have a long procession. Apparently she's in love with Hogsmeade and is thinking about maybe moving there permanently once she's married. With a high end flat in London for her sure to be frequent business trips.

Thus, she has put me (and Pippa) in charge of everything for now because she's dead certain everything will book up quick. I suppose the date will be determined once we know what's available. Wedding of the century...

I'm not sure I'm going to make it through this...

Definitely going to go find you in the playroom!

Your sex takes me to paradise,
Draco
Chapter 10

Chapter Summary

Elena is a bit feisty at the moment.

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Saturday April 16, 2016

Danger! Danger!

Whatever you do, do NOT offer Elena a pepper-up. Also on the list of things to not offer her; a cheering charm, a Dad-hug, or a biscuit. Whatever is going on with her, she is not ready to talk about it. Maybe she just feels sick, but a homemade biscuit can usually help calm her down. That was definitely not the case when I asked her if she wanted me to make her a batch of her favorites. I was even already in the kitchen baking cupcakes for Teddy! It would have been very little effort to do the little polvorones she's so fond of and they were turned down! Well fine then, be that way. I will just bake them anyway and eat them all by myself!

Our oldest ladies are certainly a bit feisty right now aren't they? Did Viona really tell her … fiancé … oh that hurts my heart to say that in relation to my baby girl. So did she actually tell her fiancé to shut up and stop being an idiot? I know she's blunt and willing to say what needs to be said even when the truth isn't pretty, but should we be worried that she's already abusing her little minion? I mean, I'm all for a solid relationship where the female seems to be the dominant partner, but that made me feel all sorts of sick to my stomach.

Or maybe that was you doing your summary thing where I take you at face value but you essentially narrate her facial expressions as harsher than they came out. I worry for poor … Alric?

Wait. Alric? Alric Avery? As in MY little Alric? Our Princess is going to marry another Unity Royal? This is so exciting! Wedding of the Century indeed!

The nice part about River's wedding being in less than a month is that while it will be a stressful couple of weeks, it will at least be over in those same amount of weeks. I have a feeling our Vivi is going to be quite the demanding bride-to-be and now has fifteen months to drag it out.

Of course Alric should be acting as though he won the cosmic lottery by being with Viona, he did! She's brilliant and gorgeous, knows her mind, with her business savvy they will never want for money, and even without all of that, she's just fun to be around. And he'll get to be around her all the time. Lottery winner for certain!

But enough about the far off wedding, back to the imminent one. I have already checked with Julia, she did already have an event booked that day, but her client didn't specifically ask for her, so she's going to have one of her junior associates handle that. I asked her if she was sure and she told me in no uncertain terms that unless it was Arietty's own wedding, there's nothing she wouldn't cancel to be able to photograph one of our children's weddings. So I of course told her to keep an eye on what she schedules for next July since we'll be needing her services again.

I also called Café Exquis and they immediately scheduled us for catering. All they need is a rough guest list and then the week before the wedding they want a final head count. Not that they won't have enough food or anything if our numbers are a bit off, but you know how it is with businesses, they want to make sure they have enough so no one goes without and without wasting any more than they absolutely have to.

Ughhhhhhhhh, yes I've seen the Bride's dress. Hazel has outdone herself. I am in awe of that dress. Hell, I want that dress! Well, I don't know if I really have the shoulders to pull it off.

I finally have the hair though! I finally gave in last year and started growing out my hair for you again. I liked the short hair a lot, but I have to admit that having you brush it and braid it, just that quiet time in the evening and the mornings where it's only the two of us has been lovely. I don't think I'm going to let it get as long as it was years ago, but for the time being I will at least be leaving it long enough for a short braid or just pulled back the way you make me wear it when I go out on my bike.

Oh that's right, I should probably head out. I told Zaire I'd take him to Fatcat Motoparc for their Saturday Open Practice time. I think I'm going to take the trio as well. They've ridden around here enough and Fatcat has a "kiddie" track so I think they're ready for their first attempt at Fatcat.

Get your motor runnin'
Harry

Sunday April 17th
Beloved,

Thank you for the warning! I was actually planning to avoid Elena, not wanting to stick my foot in it by offering her a Pepper-Up when she clearly didn't want one. But then I walked into one of the galleries to find the portraits all watching avidly as Elena and River held a shouting match.

"What the hell's your bloody problem, Lainie?!!"

"MY problem?!?! For YEARS you've been the broody arsehole and we were all supposed to just ignore your behavior," Elena roared emphatically. "But suddenly now that you're all sunshine and rainbows, I'M not even allowed to be grumpy!!!"

"I was not a broody arsehole!" River protested indignantly. I tactfully did NOT say that he sort of had been.

Elena looked like things were about to get violent, so I decided to step in.

"River? Mahafsoun is looking for you," I lied.

"Right, I'd better go see what she wants," River practically jumped on the excuse to take off.

Elena glared at me, probably understanding that I'd just given River an out.

Trying to be sympathetic, I tilted my head to indicate the other room. "Looks like you need to spar, or maybe blow up some Crystal. Come, let's go do that."

Seething, Elena gave this some thought before nodding. Once in the crystal room, I cast a spell to make all the Crystal fly around randomly and occasionally try to attack us. You know, that spell I learnt during Auror training that I just love.

For a good half an hour, we each just did our own thing, protecting ourselves and each other, but then Elena seemed a bit calmer. It was then that I risked invoking her wrath.

"So... Who are you mad at?"

"Myself!" She burst out angrily.

"Alright... why?" I wondered.

"I did something incredibly stupid!" She wailed dramatically.

"Such as," I drawled in amusement and concern.

She screamed irately for a long moment, and this was when I truly felt a sense of foreboding. I've seen her mad, angry, and even righteously furious, but I've never seen her quite like this before. I knew better than to try to hug or comfort someone in that state, so I simply pretended to ignore her and focus on the crystal trying to attack us.

Eventually, she was ready to speak again, only it came out as a sob. "I had a bloody one off - which I have done before, so I wasn't expecting anything, you know? Just a brilliant shag."

I raised a brow in confused. "And... you fell in love?"

"Worse!" She exclaimed as more tears burst forth. "I STUPIDLY forgot the Merlin-damned protection charms and got bloody up the duff!"

I was speechless for a long moment, and then as the shock wore off, I couldn't help but feel relieved. The way she was acting, I'd been dreading her accidentally murdering someone or something. Smiling, I pulled her into my arms and gave her a kiss.

"Oh love, this isn't the end of the world at all. You're 25 and it's NOT like we're having this conversation when you were still 15. If there's anything this family is good at, it's babies."

That made her chuckle just a tiny bit even as she was stiffly trying to resist my hug. Then she exhaled a long-suffering sigh and melted into my embrace.

"That is true," she admitted. "I just... I always pictured myself waiting until I was in my 30s, settled down, possibly married, DEFINITELY in a meaningful relationship. NOT a stupid mistake during a one off!"

"Maybe your plans have gone awry, but you are your own boss. It's not like you can't just hire an assistant and arrange your schedule to be perfect for your needs. In fact, it might do you some good to be forced to slow down a little."

She rolled her eyes at me. "Dad, can anyone in this family REALLY be accused of slowing down?! Hell! Even River - who's practically lazy compared to the rest of us - has his own business in which he works a good 60 hours a week!"

"Surely that's a bit hard on the body," I murmured in concern, not realizing he worked quite that much.

Elena chuckled. "Well, only about 30 of those hours are actual massages. The other half are things like office work, managing his spa, scheduling, talking on the phone to customers, and building maintenance."

I nudged her in the rib with my elbow. "You only think that's practically lazy because you run an entire school on top of teaching individual classes and probably work 80 hours a week."

She sighed morosely and nodded.

I gave her a long hug, and then kissed her again. "Listen, it's not fair to be mad at River for finally being happy, just because you're currently mad at yourself."

She sighed in a tiny bit of aggravation. "I know... It's just that the timing of the two events coincided almost perfectly and I couldn't stop myself from transferring my anger to him."

"So... care to tell me about this bloke that got you pregnant?" I wondered, naturally curious.

Elena pushed me away, her anger returning in full force. "NO! He's just a stupid bloody one-off, and I was an idiot for forgetting the protection charms, and there's no need to ever think about him EVER AGAIN!!"

I was baffled as I watched her stomp away. She's a Ravenclaw, so I can't be certain, but if she was Slytherin, I could have translated that to mean: "I bloody care about him and hate that I do, and I'm afraid to talk to him about this in case he wants nothing to do with me."

Now that you know the problem, maybe you can do the fluffy understanding dad thing and get more information out of her?

In the meantime, I'm off to Hogsmeade to see what sort of logistics are involved in having a long wedding procession through the entire town. Wish me luck!

'Cuz I love the way you call me baby, and you take me the way I am, Draco

P.S. It's actually a bit weird when you call me babe or baby, but even though half of me wants to protest, the other half melts. It's baffling!

Chapter End Notes

So, as mentioned by Harry, Alric Avery is the toddler that had his own house elf who could back up the toilets for him so that he didn't have to potty train. Once he was adopted by his forever family, he really only saw Harry every once in a great while for Unity events that his parents brought him to - also keep in mind that our entire family moved around the world for about a decade - and so, Alric and Viona hadn't seen each other since they were really small, and had quite forgotten about each other by the time both went to Hogwarts. Alric is a year older than Viona, and so, will be graduating this year while she has another to go to. Hence why her wedding is not until next year ^_^
Monday April 18th
Babe,
I kid! I kid!

Alright, I am trying so very very hard to remain a perfect mix of fluffy dad combined with not pushing my own emotions and expectations onto Lainie. I'll tell you all about the talk I had with her in a moment, but first there is something I absolutely have to get off my chest …

Our baby is having a baby! We're going to be Grandpas again! A teeny little one that we can spoil endlessly, take an obnoxious amount of photos of, give them too many sweets and then send them home to Mummy. My little girl is going to be a Mum! And she might be freaking out right now but won't she be bloody brilliant at it? I can picture her continuing to teach her classes with a cute little baby belly. And then when baby is born, she'll just wrap them up in a sling and keep on dancing!

Ooh, actually you know what would probably be cool? I'm not sure if I should mention this to Lainie because you and I both know she often works too hard and should relax a bit, but maybe she could teach some prenatal dance and/or yoga classes. I know the idea of getting her to stop working so hard is completely out of the realm of possibilities, but if she spent less time hunched over her desk and more time dancing, I think this pregnancy will be so much easier on her.

I know how you are and you want to fix everything, so I am sure it is taking every ounce of your self control to keep from using your Legilimens abilities to figure out who this one off bloke is and then finding him and making him do whatever Elena wants him to do. So, what if we talk her into letting you help out in a different way? You were responsible for finding Tabitha for Unity House and Pippa for us so I bet it wouldn't take much to talk Elena into letting you find a good assistant to run the less fun aspects of the school.

Hell, I think she should have hired an assistant ages ago. The fact that she truly loves her job and it seems to fulfill her in so many ways is the only thing that's kept me from trying to get her to slow down. I panicked a bit when I read your email that she was in the crystal room with you using magic like crazy. Then I remembered that female pregnancies, since they're sustained with their actual biology, are not as magically restrictive as our pregnancies were.

Just so you know, I was just as ineffective as you were in getting any information out of Lainie as per the other half of the one-off. But I got the same vibe as you did. If it was just a one-off that meant nothing, she would either act like he completely didn't matter to her, or she'd be frustrated at raising a child with a stranger if he was going to be in the baby's life. She's really upset and that doesn't come from nothing. I'm honestly thinking about contacting Kisa and seeing if I can bribe her to divulge the details.

Although, not TOO many details. I'm not a prude by any stretch, but there are certain details I just don't need in my head.

The good news that came of my talk with Elena is that she must have blown up enough crystal to mellow out because she happily munched on the polvorones I made for her throughout our conversation. She sniffled a bit and climbed into my lap. "Dad told you huh?"

"Yeah he did, you didn't think he would be able to keep that in did you?" Has she met you?

"No, are you mad I didn't tell you myself?" My confident girl looked so worried, break my heart why don't you?

"Oh Lainie-Girl you know I'm not mad. I'm not mad you're pregnant, I'm not mad you didn't tell me, there's nothing about this that I'm mad about unless I find out the other half of the equation hurt you in some way." The 'because I'll kill him' went unsaid.

That's when she broke into full sobs, "Daddy, I'm so stupid, and now I'm pregnant but there's no way this is going to end happily. I don't know what to do!"

"I could kill him for you?" What?!? You know I had to ask!

That got me a sobbing giggle-snort at least. "No, don't kill him. Not that you could since I'm never going to tell you guys EVER!" And that answered that question. For now, we say nothing. Got it Draco? We wait for her to tell us. Because even though she says she's never telling us, her answer means we must know him, otherwise she would have said 'his name is Mike and you've never met him.' And if we know him, that means something is going on. And if something is going on, it is going to come out eventually. So, instead of breaking her trust and sleuthing, we are going to patiently wait for the shite to hit the wind charm.

I did have to ask her, "You know I'm waiting to hear how I'm allowed to respond to this news, right?"

Our brilliant Ravenclaw daughter looked at me with such confusion, "What do you mean allowed to respond? You already told me you're not angry. Were you lying? Are you actually upset with me?" Ugh, those huge eyes glistening with unshed tears.

"Of course not! I may occasionally evade the truth, but I have never and I will never lie to you." She seemed to settle a bit with my response. "I need to know if I should be excited about being a Grandpa again, if I should be figuring out how to help you through something you don't want to go through, or if I," and I took a deep breath to steel my resolve, "if I need to get you in to Healer Rowe before you hit the cutoff point."

"The cut off point? What cutoff … " her eyes got huge and she hugged her abdomen, "Oh Merlin Daddy, NO!"

I was so relieved, you know just how strongly pro-choice I am. You know how adamant I am about a woman's right to body autonomy. But I can't help but feel the way I feel about my own family.
"I'm still trying to wrap my head around not following my life plan to the letter, but this is happening. You are going to have another grandchild. I'm going to be this baby's mum. Maybe don't go shouting it from the rooftops or talk to anyone but Dad about it until I start telling people, but you can be as excited as you want." She smiled at me and shook her head like even after all these years of being my daughter, she still can't believe how ridiculous I am.

So I picked her up and swung her around while crying and giggling. Just as quickly as I picked her up I stopped and panicked, "Oh no! You aren't nauseous are you? With all of my own morning sickness, I didn't even think that through!"

Luckily she hasn't felt any nausea so far. Fingers crossed it stays that way and she gets through pregnancy more like you did without much in the way of sickness.

I love it when you call me big poppa,

Harry

P.S. I do not actually want you to call me that. I was kidding. Please don't ever call me big poppa!

---

Monday April 18th

MERLIN AND SALAZAR!!!

PLEASE TELL ME THAT YOU'RE NOT ASKING ME TO HAVE ANOTHER BABY!!!

Harry, I don't know if I can handle another baby right now, I mean the baby part is not so bad and I'd love to give you more if you wanted, I suppose, but those babies turn into TEENAGERS!!! Don't we have enough of those already?!!?!

"I love it when you call me big poppa
If you got a gun up in your waist please don't shoot up the place (why?)
'Cause I see some ladies tonight that should be havin' my baby, baby"

OH GODS REALLY???

pants into a bag

I'm... I'm going to be in the crystal room wrapping my head around this, come find me with that potion when you're ready...

Terrified,

Draco
Monday April 18th
Whoa whoa whoa! Calm yourself Iago!

I’m not asking you to have another baby. You said that thing about feeling weird when I call you babe or baby, so I opened my last email calling you babe.

Since I did that I thought Big Poppa would be a fun song lyric to end the email on. You know, like if you’re my baby then I’m your daddy. Who’s your daddy and all that.

Which by the way, is not my jam. I like when you’re my sir or my master. But uh, the daddy thing isn’t my thing. If you ever tried pulling off an “oh yeah, that’s right, who’s your daddy?” while we were shagging, I think my initial reaction would be to think about the three men I’ve considered my fathers; my actual father James, my adoptive father Arthur, and my extra father Lucius. None of those thoughts are particularly conducive to sexy times.

Yes, we have plenty of babies and so many teenagers. Not to mention our family is already growing by a new baby! I told you years ago that I was done, and while we did add Shtara, I think I’ve felt pretty content with no more pregnancies.

Wait. I just reread your email. I giggled and skimmed through yours initially because you were hysterical. I started to respond so I could alleviate your fears. But looking closer, you told me to show up with the potion? The potion?!? Were you actually on board with the idea?

I didn’t charge in and shout “Malfoy, it’s baby time” and throw you over my shoulder! Sneaky song coded sign off is not really my style!

Uhhhh, so now I have to ask since you agreed so readily; is that something you want? I thought we were on the same page with being done but your agreement has me questioning everything.

Confusedly yours,
Harry

Monday April 18th
Dictated while Draco paces the Crystal Room

Oh fuck Harry! You can't just spring that on me like that! You know I'm committed to giving you whatever you want and whatever will make you happy, but I can think of SO many reasons why this is a bad idea. We FINALLY have our bed all to ourselves. I have a career that - while not too time demanding - can be potentially dangerous, and so me carrying the baby is probably going to make your worry go into overdrive again. Plus we're both getting on in years and I'm not certain I want to go all the way back to the baby stage. This is a lot to ask! I mean I really will do anything for you, but can we PLEASE think this over a hell of a lot more before - oh, I just got an email from you...

Oh Thank Fucking God! That really scared me! I'm on FIRE with the jitters now, so you're getting a spanking until I calm the fuck down again.

Incoming!
Draco

Chapter End Notes

Yeah sorry, our boys are done having babies ^_^
Chapter 13

Chapter by ladyroxanne21

Chapter Summary

Harry is glad they are both on the same page and loves his freshly spanked arse, and Draco is called in to lead a raid on a potions lab.

Tuesday April 19th
My Dearest and Most Beloved Sir,

Being committed to doing anything or everything that makes me happy does not extend to having a child you don't want to have. I agree with all of those reasons your anxiety-ridden mind came up with as to why having a baby would not be the best idea.

I love having our bed to ourselves. We've had a few windows here or there over the years where our bed was childless, but for the most part it was almost fifteen consecutive years of bedsharing with at least one child, usually more. I adore our children, but individually they are a handful and we have at least fourteen of them. And yeah, there's no way I'd be comfortable with you continuing your Auror work while pregnant, so if we actually decided to have more, I'd only be alright with it if I carried or you took a sabbatical from your work.

I most certainly agree that I'd rather not start from scratch with the baby stage again. It's so nice to not have to deal with nappy changes and night feedings, teething and colic, not to mention morning sickness and mood swings.

But this is all a moot point because based on your panic and my feelings, we're not having a baby anyway. Promise me that whether or not we ever have more children, you will never have a child you don't want just because you think it would make me happy. Can you do that for me?

Although maybe I should actually make you think I want another one if it gets me the attention I got last night. My bum hurts so much this morning that just pulling up my pants hurt. And I even wore the silk ones hoping it wouldn't chafe as badly. I've actually been pacing while writing this because I'm not quite ready to attempt sitting. Gods I needed this. I feel so blissful this morning. Like I haven't quite come down from flying last night.

It's been a while since you've used the spanking bench. I assumed we wouldn't use it last night either. Especially since we started off with me across your lap. All the different ways you spank me are wonderful in their own way, and across your lap is one of my very favorites. From that angle you can't quite get the momentum to really give me the deep smacks, but it's just so intimate. My naked self pulled across your clothed body, the wool of your trousers rubbing against my skin, my cock trapped between your thighs. Mmmm.

But then once I was sufficiently warmed up you strapped me up to my bench and went all out. I have no idea how long you spanked me for. I was flying in no time. In my head, one moment I was taking it like a champ and the next I was waking up in our bed wrapped in your arms.

Yeah, our bed, alone. Because all of our children finally sleep in their own rooms! Which works out really well since I'm about to come either wake you up or take advantage of your sleeping body. Depending on how soundly you're sleeping of course!

Love you,
Harry

Tuesday April 19th
The one who knows me best,

My wake up this morning (nearly afternoon, whatever), was perfect. I absolutely loved drifting awake to your hot mouth on my shaft, your fingers in my arse casting the quick prep spells, and then you pushing into me before I'd even had a chance to open my eyes. I gasped out because I was already so bloody turned on and I wasn't even awake enough to wrap my arms around you and hold you tight.

Then you rode me roughly until I had the ability to grab onto you and kiss you. I was making all those noises that still manage to embarrass me when I think about them but that indicate that I'm very thoroughly enjoying myself. I gasped, panted, and then wailed as a powerful orgasm hit me and practically knocked me right back out. I could hear you groaning and feel you fill me up and a sense of sheer bliss filled me.

This is my absolute favorite way to wake up!

But then, not entirely unexpectedly, I heard a throat clear.

"So sorry to interrupt, but you have to get up now so that you aren't running late."

"Yes Pippa, I remember," I murmured with a mildly disappointed sigh.

"Would you like Muffy to bring your breakfast before or after your shower?" Pippa asked.

"Now is good," I replied. "That'll give me some time to talk to Harry before I have to leave."

"Try not to talk too long, your routine takes forever as it is!" Pippa admonished before leaving the room, presumably to call Muffy, who popped into the room while we were doing our best to sit up and snuggle without melting into a puddle of goo.

You brushed my hair out of my face and kissed me, whispering: "Still my favorite sight."

I raised a brow because I imagine that I looked atrocious, all flushed and sweaty and probably rather rough. That made you laugh and kiss me again. I love when you wake me up and we have even just a few moments together to laugh and just hold each other.

The moment Muffy had my breakfast arranged to her liking on a tray over my lap, she left the room. I dug into my scrambled eggs, accepting more kisses from you as I chewed.

"Important plans today?" You asked curiously.

"Yes, I didn't get a chance to tell you yesterday before I started panicking and ran off to the Crystal Room, but I got an owl from Robards requesting that I come in today and work on the pre-preparations for a raid tomorrow. That means that I'll be in the office all day today coordinating schedules and making sure that everyone who will be involved is notified, not to mention studying the raid site and coming up with a plan of attack. You know, the usual," I ended with a wry smirk.
"Sounds like your idea of fun," you remarked with a soft smile that told me you thought I was barmy for enjoying this so much.

"Quite. But it also means that I'll be in the office all of tonight, more than likely taking a mild sleep potion and taking a nap on my sofa so that I can be up and getting ready to go at oh... Probably 3 or 4 am. The raid team will be coming in and gearing up around 4 am so that I can brief them all on the final strategy and we can head over to the raid site to set up wards and the like by 5 am."

"Do raids really work better when conducted at the crack of dawn?" You wondered, smirking because it never fails to amuse you when I willingly get up before noon.

I shrugged. "Perhaps not the raid itself, but definitely setting up the wards. It reduces the risk of being spotted before the raid begins, and then also, depending on what it is we're raiding, we're usually able to sweep in and apprehend the lowest of the grunts without too much fuss before focusing on the higher ups who come in as the day progresses."

"Well... good luck..."

I kissed you tenderly. "I'll be in the command tent for the most part - using all the Magi-Tech I've created over the years to ensure that everything runs as smoothly as possible."

"I promise not to come barging in and shatter all the wards," you said with a small amused smile.

I kissed you again. "And I promise to send you updates when I can to let you know that everything is fine, my adorable little worrywart."

We got caught up in kissing for a few more minutes before Pippa popped back into the room, very overtly checking her watch. "You only have five minutes left to eat before you have to start on your morning routine, unless you plan to skip it."

"Yeah alright, I'll stop kissing my husband for now and finish eating," I stated and ran one hand through your hair as you rested your head on my shoulder, eating with the other.

I don't really need to describe word for word what I ate or how I went about my morning routine, getting showered and all dolled up to go to work. Nor do I need to describe every tedious detail of what I did once in the office, which was exactly as I'd already explained. The important thing is that I called and talked with you for a bit whenever I took a meal break, and also just before taking that mild sleeping potion.

- Wednesday April 20th

When I woke back up - about half three in the morning - I had a few moments of it just being Pippa and me. She's not officially on the Ministry payroll and probably technically shouldn't be on any of the raids with me, but she's my silent shadow and I don't think I could get through even an ordinary day without her. Besides, she simply stays in the command tent with me and watches everything so that she can document it all and help me write my reports - not to mention notify me instantly if I miss or overlook anything.

Anyway, since we had a few minutes before the others started arriving, we had time to have a chat as she brewed a variety of teas and coffees.

"I put that advert in the Prophet you asked for," Pippa informed me. "It actually ran yesterday and will continue until Friday."
"Excellent!" I praised. "That means I'll have all of tomorrow and Friday to finish up and go over my paperwork, then I can review the initial applications on Saturday and Sunday, and start on interviews on Monday."

"I've already booked your usual room at the Leaky," Pippa added.

"Thank you," I said, giving her a hug.

"Am I interrupting anything?" Robards asked in amusement.

"Just my usual morning staff meeting," I answered, waving my hand dismissively.

"Right, and you always hug your personal assistant?" Robards asked with a hint of challenge.

I smirked at him. "Often enough. I even kiss her too!" I promptly demonstrated by kissing her on the cheek.

Pippa rolled her eyes and shook her head. "He does, and there's no scandal involved, so kindly get back to the task at hand.

"Right," Robards stated with a nod.

Gearing up, briefing everyone on their positions and duties, and even setting up the wards at the raid site were all routine enough. Honestly, the entire raid was a bit like a well-oiled machine. Everyone was doing their jobs capably and well. All the grunts were being rounded up and none of the higher ups had stumbled into our trap yet.

So of course, that's when things went a little pear-shaped.

"Hey Chief, did any of the intel mention child labor or anything like that?" A senior Auror asked me.

"This is a potions ring, not child trafficking, right?" His younger partner added.

"What?!" I asked in alarm, checking the interactive map. The room that they'd just entered had been extra warded against spying spells, but appeared to be a simple storage room, so I hadn't anticipated it containing anything more than a well-guarded stock of potions, thus, there were only two teams of two securing the room.

Shaking off my momentary surprise, I asked the appropriate question. "Are the children hurt or in danger?"

"No Chief. They all appear to be safe and sound," the Senior Auror informed me.

"Although a couple are crying and a few seem to be suffering from a nasty cold."

The senior member of the other team chimed in just then. "There aren't any adults in here keeping an eye on them, but there are a few older children that seem to be looking after the younger ones."

"How many children are there?" I asked.

"Erm... 18, ranging from a baby on up to about 12 years old."

"Alright, erm..." I paused and sighed in frustration as I quickly thought over all my options. "Team 7, since you're the closest to area 11, once you finish securing the room you're about to enter, head on over to area 11 to provide back up if necessary. Pippa, take over in the command center for a few minutes while I go assess the children. Also, contact Tabitha and let her know she'll probably have a few guests at some point today."

"Yes sir!" Team 7 chirped before Pippa said: "Of course. Be careful."

"I will," I assured her before popping over to area 11. You know that the reason I went personally is because we have so many kids and I'm still used to helping out at Unity House when needed. I felt that I was the best person to keep the kids calm.

To my relief, none of them seemed harmed in the slightest. Yes, a few did seem to be suffering a cold, but I couldn't see bruising or other signs of abuse, nor did they look malnourished or neglected. I squatted so that I was just slightly below eye level of the girl who seemed to be in charge - judging by the way all the others either glanced at her or overtly tried to hide behind her.

"Hello, I'm Draco Malfoy. You may have heard of my husband Harry - used to be Harry Potter. Heard of him?"

They mostly all nodded, looking a cross between wary of me and excited to hear about you.

"Then you must have heard that Harry created a nice place for kids to go when they need a safe place to stay," I added.

"But we ARE in a safe place!" The leader protested fiercely.

I smiled at her reassuringly, even holding up my hands in a gesture of surrender. "Perhaps it's normally safe, but today, Ministry Officials are arresting everyone in the building."

This made all the kids old enough to understand me gasp in dismay.

"But why?!"

"Dad/mum's just working!"

"What's going on?!"

I made a soothing noise and lowered my hands a couple of times to silently signal them to calm down.

"Chances are, your parents didn't do anything worse than take a bad job. Unfortunately, because this is a bad job, they're being arrested until we can determine who actually is in charge, and who is actively doing bad things," I explained.

The leader jutted her chin out defiantly. "This is NOT a bad job! It's a normal job! My dad wouldn't take a bad job! He's a single dad just trying to do what's best for my sister and me!"

"Then what are you doing here, all alone in a room with a bunch of other kids and no adults to look after you?" I questioned gently.

"This is the daycare room. We look after the young ones," she gestured to herself and the two others that looked about 11 or 12. "And when it's lunch time, our parents come in and bring us food and eat with us!"

I took a good look around the room and noticed that there were a lot of toys and books and things to keep all of the children entertained. There was even a wireless playing soft and soothing music in the corner. Between the cushions, chairs, and prams, it really did look like their comfort and safety was a priority - if you overlooked the fact that they were using older kids to babysit the younger ones.

"Alright, I understand. You do feel safe here, but what I said is the truth. All of your parents are going to be arrested today, and during the raid, some of the higher ups might get a bit dangerous. All I want right now is to take you to Unity House so that you can have all the biscuits you want and play on their excellent playground and BE SAFE until this mess is sorted out," I explained.

Suddenly, a toddler groaned, sneezed, rubbed his eyes, coughed, and then vomited on the floor.

"Oh luv," I crooned soothingly, taking him into my arms. I brushed his hair out of his face and rocked him as I felt his forehead. "This one has a fever. He needs a Pepper-up Potion at the very least, and perhaps a visit from a Healer. Can you agree that staying HERE would be a bad idea for him?"

The leader faltered as I stared her down intently, waiting for her to make a decision like a true leader. Don't get me wrong, we were GOING to evacuate them if we had to immobilize them all in order to do so, but if I could gain their trust, it would be easier all around.

Slowly, she nodded. "Brian's been feeling bad for days, but we assumed that he was just teething. He seems worse today and probably should see a Healer."

"And I'm certain that you all want to stick together, right?" I inquired leadingly.

Once more, she nodded slowly. "Yeah... I'd feel sick if I wasn't able to keep an eye on everyone."

"Exactly!" I stated in agreement, giving her a brilliant smile. "So, you're going to promise to follow me and lead your friends nice and quietly, yeah?"

She nodded again.

"I promise that your safety is my highest priority," I informed her.

She smiled at me wanly.

"Pippa, I'm going to escort the kids out of the building and I need a clear route."

"Sure thing! Looks like teams 6 and 10 have just finished securing the last of area 9 - which means that you have a straight shot all the way to the exit."

"Good! Come on luvs, let's get out of here before trouble starts, yeah?"

The older kids nodded and took hold of the hands of or picked up and carried the younger ones. Steadily, not too quickly but certainly not dawdling, I got them to the exit, where Tabitha had a team of caregivers ready to take the kids to Unity House. I passed little Brian directly into her arms and gave her a kiss on the cheek before returning to the command tent.

The rest of the raid proceeded as normal, and now, I'm back in my office sorting through reports. I might be late getting home tonight, but since you were probably called in to help out at Unity, you more than likely won't be home until I am anyway. I guess I'll see you when I see you. All my love!

You love me and I love you, when you love, it's natural to, digga digga doo digga doo doo, digga digga doo digga doo,

Draco
Chapter 14

Chapter Summary

Harry and Draco are both exhausted.

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Wednesday April 20, 2016

My husband who would forget his head if it weren't screwed on,

Sweetheart, you will most definitely NOT be spending tomorrow going through your paperwork from the raid. If it's slipped your mind, your daughter turns six years old tomorrow. We have plans to spend the entire day with Persephone. All she asked for her birthday was to have a day out with her Daddies. As of right now, I believe she wants to spend some time at the water park and she thinks she wants to go see a musical but can't decide between Wicked or Into the Woods.

I just can't believe she's six. And every year around her birthday I get a little maudlin. What if she hadn't survived? What if I hadn't been able to keep her in long enough? And then when she was born and physically alright but I always worried she’d be behind developmentally due to her preemie status. I worried she'd never quite catch up. At her first birthday it seemed so obvious to me that Lily and Caelum, who were only eleven months, looked much more like one-year-olds than she did. She was so small, but fierce. The other two were toddling around furniture (Caelum) or taking actual steps on their own (Lily), but Persephone was running around like crazy.

On her second birthday, the differences were still there but the size difference seemed even more obvious. She was walking and talking. But by her second birthday not much of it was particularly comprehensible. Whereas Cael was practically speaking in full sentences and Lissa wasn't too far behind him. But our Seph had stopped saying much at all. Luckily, she grew up in a signing family and could at least communicate with us. And shortly after that second birthday, we found out she needed a procedure, similar to muggle ear tubes, because she wasn't hearing properly.

And now, at six, besides her diminutive size, she's just like any other six year old. Mischievous and running all over the place. Doing well academically. In physical seemingly perfect health. I am just so thankful that there's nothing left holding her back. I worried a bit that her size was a side effect of her preemie status, but Rowe just laughed and patted me on the head. She's just a peanut.

Anyway, that's tomorrow off your paperwork schedule. And Saturday won't be spent reviewing resumes either. That's the big April birthday celebration! Our April birthday list isn't quite as extensive as March (Holy Hell does our family like to get busy in June!) but we'll be celebrating six birthdays. Misha, Eri, Ori, Teddy, and Seph. And don't forget Kisa. Despite the fact that we mostly hold this party for the 'kid' birthdays, Kisa has told us in no uncertain terms that when it comes to celebrating her, she is Peter Pan-ing it with eternal youth.

Not that that bothers me any. I sometimes have a hard time seeing her as a grown woman. I think she will be forever that sassy nine-year-old I first met who panned me on our walk through the Valley of Geysers! And she's a grown woman with two children and a third on the way. When did we get so old Draco? I feel as though it's barely been a year since I married you out on the lawns and now our son is getting married and we're about to be grandparents three times over.

It sounds as though your raid went well. No injuries or casualties. We had a hectic day here at Unity. As you can probably tell since it's almost midnight and I'm not home yet. All of these children showing up was actually a bit harder than one of our usual huge influxes. Because we're running under the assumption that most of these children will be sent home within the next few days when it's found out their parents were just employed at the wrong place at the wrong time, we're not moving them into the permanent rooms with the other Kids. If we end up with any of these children on a permanent or long-term basis, we'll move them at that time.

But you certainly didn't lie to them, we filled them up with biscuits and spent hours at the Park. I brought Shtara, Zaire, Jaz, and the troublesome trio with to play. I possibly would have anyway just to have them nearby and they always love Unity visiting, but currently at Unity, they have quite a few toddlers and a few teenagers, but very few Kids in the age ranges to play with the new 'daycare' crew. I figured the five to ten-year-olds would like to have some kids their own age to play with.

The mouthy little leader you talked about, Angelica, refused to play. She seems to take her job as leader very seriously. She sat on one of the benches watching 'her' Kids like a hawk. Especially her little sister Elizabeth. Well, she watched all of them except for that little Brian. Most of the children were in good enough health, the colds were exactly what we thought, just colds. But poor Brian, his had turned into Pneumonia. So he didn't get to play at the Park, he spent the evening in St. Mungo's. He'll be just fine and most likely headed back to Unity sometime tomorrow morning.

Oh, what was up with Robards? Is he usually this weird with you? You've known him for how long and he thinks it's weird that you're physically affectionate with your friends? Does he have an issue with you? With Pippa? With PDA? Maybe he doesn't like hugs. Or joy. Hell, he probably kicks puppies. Okay, I think I might be getting a bit loony with exhaustion!

Anyway, I finished up getting the children to sleep, helping fill out their temporary intake paperwork, and now I'm headed home. I assume you'll be asleep when I get there since you had a very long two days. So I can't wait to climb into our cozy bed and snuggle up next to you.

All of my love,
Harry

Thursday April 21st
Mi Amor,

Lucky for me, Pippa consulted my schedule at some point yesterday and reminded me of our birthday date with Persephone. So she helped me to get everything done I could before coming home last night. She also made it be known that I wouldn't be coming into the office on Friday either, and so Robards would just have to wait for his neat and tidy paperwork until Monday.

After that, she heckled me, letting me know that if I had consulted with her to begin with, I wouldn't have forgotten Persephone's birthday. You know, she likes to think she's more on top of things than I am, but I've got her number. She needs that little Magi-Diary of mine to keep everything straight, otherwise she'd forget everything too. For example, she hadn't remembered the party until she was looking through my Diary and realized I planned to review resumes on a day that's already booked.
But enough about that. Persephone didn't seem to realize that we were quite serious about doing anything she wanted until you were discussing options with her as we flew around on the magic carpet. We were headed in the direction of the Water Park, which is in London where almost everything else she might want to do is. Suddenly, she sort of gasped in hope and asked:

"Does that mean we can go rock climbing?"

You gave me this look that clearly said: "But she's my tiny little baby!" I returned your look with one that said: "You DID say anything."

Sighing in defeat, you assured her that yes, we'd go rock climbing. So we went to an indoor place that had a lot of different options available. Persephone seemed happy enough at first, but she was also quiet and withdrawn, so finally you asked her if she had changed her mind and wanted to do something else.

She shook her head. "No, I want to climb rocks, I was just sort of hoping for real ones."

You looked a bit panicky again but nodded in agreement, knowing that we had all sorts of safety charms we could cast on her if necessary. We then spent the next four hours climbing a medium level cliff. It wasn't so difficult nor tall as to be impossible to climb, but it also wasn't a hill only babies would find hard. Once at the top of the cliff, we cast warming charms on ourselves and then dove into the chilly pond below.

She may be tiny, but our baby is certainly fearless. It's probably because she's grown up riding things like flying carpets and brooms. She's dead certain that we have enough magic to save her from anything, and so she doesn't give any thought to: What if there were rocks at the bottom of this cliff? Lucky for her, that was one of the first things you checked for - in case she fell during the climb.

We swam until we were all just too hungry to keep going, and it was just about perfect. We had just about enough time to grab a nice sit down dinner at a upscale muggle place. We ran short on time and had to skip dessert, leave enough cash to more than pay for our meal on the table, and then Apparate directly to the theater, but once there, we had enough time to find our seats and get settled.

Into the Woods was funny and dark all at the same time. I liked it, and I can certainly see why our mix of Slytherin and Gryffindor (I actually think Persephone's more Gryffindor than Slytherin) would just love this sort of show. Plus, you know, the singing ALWAYS makes me happy.

I think our darling daughter was hoping to make the most of her day by insisting that we do something after the show. Shopping or ice cream perhaps, but she was already so knackered from her day that she fell asleep at the very end when the cast was bowing and playing it up for the audience. I lifted her into my arms and let you Apparate us home so that we could tuck her into her bed and give her a thousand little kisses that made her adorable nose wrinkle in annoyance as she slept.

Feeling high on love and rather amorous, I invited you to dance with me in the ballroom until one of us was so overcome by lust that we attacked the other. To my delight, we got through three whole handsy dances - kissing almost constantly - before you pulled me atop you as you lay on your back and INSISTED that I have you that second.

And now I'm writing this from our bed as I watch you sleep. I'm quite possibly too exhausted to sleep - considering my long day of raiding and paperwork yesterday. But I'm going to curl around you and try my best to drift off, and if that fails, I can always fulfill my somnophilia kink with your unconscious body until I pass out. We'll see how it goes.

Now if we're talking bodies, you got a perfect one, so put it on me,
Draco

Chapter End Notes

Note: Since it's not addressed, the answer to Harry's question about Robards is that he's a bit more mainstream and disapproves of Draco showing what looked like rather intimate affection to someone other than his spouse. He might know that Draco is a flirt, but that doesn't mean he is accepting of it, lol.
Saturday April 23, 2016

My Own,

I'm up early as usual. I am just too excited for the birthday party today. It's weird, because we've seen the whole circle recently for River's big party, not to mention the subsequent beach trip afterwards, but things were so hectic with the whole Maha sprouting wings thing that I feel like we didn't really get enough time to catch up.

That's why I'm looking forward to the party. I want to hear all about how Blaise was able to talk Kisa into "just ONE more my love and then I promise we'll be done." I want to sit close enough to Elena and Kisa where I may be able to overhear Lainie spill some information to her best friend that she isn't spilling to her dads. I want to hear all about Mac's recent trip back to Machu Picchu to learn from the Shaman we met years ago on that mystical tour.

I'm sure Seph will spend most of the party regaling everyone of her rock climbing adventures interspersed with doing numbers from Into the Woods. She practiced all day yesterday. I can't wait to see people respond to her singing No One Is Alone. She's so tiny, and her voice is so sweet, and combining that with the haunting quality of that song is intense.

I still can't believe the two of you talked me into taking her rock climbing. I'm a bit helpless when the two of you turn those big eyes on me individually, but teaming up with each other meant I was pretty helpless to resist. Not that I'm ever particularly good at resisting. And she just rocked it didn't she? I mean, she's six years old and she was traversing that cliff like a seasoned climber. But she was practically raised on the ever increasing rock climbing wall at the Park at Unity, so I suppose I understand why she was initially disappointed when we went to an indoor climbing wall.

When we head to California we can take her out again. I've already looked some climbing areas up, I want to bring her to both Malibu Creek as well as Joshua Tree. Joshua Tree is just such an iconic location that it's thrilling just to go there and hike through the area. I imagine climbing while there will be awesome.

I'm kind of focused on all the fun things we'll be able to visit and see and do while in California because otherwise I'll have to focus on how nervous I am for Hazel's surgery. I realize she's wanted this for so long. We're so lucky that we have the option to have it done in such a safe environment and not have to wait an additional two years. But still, my baby is going to have surgery and it terrifies me. Probably more than I was terrified of Seph diving off of that cliffside! So when I keep pretending that this is going to be a holiday instead of a medical trip, I can trick my mind for a few moments to stop worrying.
Well, to worry less. It's me after all.

Oh speaking of me being a worrier, I talked to Seph a bit yesterday morning, asking her how she felt about her special day. Just one of our Seph and Daddy morning talks. I brought up how she isn't afraid of anything. And do you know what that sassy little thing told me? "Well I don't have to be afraid of anything, you worry enough for both of us Daddy!" That little stinker. She's not wrong, but she could at least play along and pretend I'm not ridiculous.

So, uh, before people start getting here I wanted to ask you something. After the party, when most of the younger kids head over to Grandma Molly's for their sleepover, should we invite some of the adults to spend the night here? For … fun times? Let me know what you think, I won't start the invites until I know you're interested in it.

Yours,
Harry

Saturday April 23rd
The beat of my heart,

You know, it's probably about time we had an all out orgy. We took quite a long time getting back to a place where we were mentally healthy and secure enough to play again. It was about two years of only playing with our other selves before one of us (it was probably me) got the urge to play with Luna. She's just so wonderful to play with that she's a bit like a gateway drug, hahaha.

From the morning after, when we had a chance to snuggle up and talk about how we felt, we decided to slowly work back into playing, having individual playdates with our various friends. The closest we've come to just inviting everyone over and having a play party was about a year ago when 3/4ths of the Quartet ran amok in our playroom to our pleasurable delight.

But tonight... Pretty much everyone we know will be here and so there's the potential to have a full orgy. I'm actually looking forward to it, but I'm also just a little bit nervous. I know it makes NO sense, but it's been so long since I've just been naked in front of everyone we know, and then there's the fact that at a play party - unlike with individual playing - there's the likelihood that a couple of people will just be standing back watching while waiting for their turns, and so now I'm wondering if I remembered to check my arse recently for signs of unwanted hair growth.

Erm... I'm going to be in the bathroom if you need me. My routine for today is going to be EXTRA thorough...

You're the breath that I breathe,
Draco

Chapter End Notes

WARNING: Orgy filled sexy times in the next chapter. If you are against non-monogamy or various kinks, please skip Draco's half of the next chapter. Oh and by orgy, I actually mean a lot of individual playing in the same room, lol.
Chapter 16

Chapter Summary

Harry feels violated and Draco is a devoted host. It's Party time!

Saturday April 23rd

Master,

I just got back from making sure the kids are all settled in with Grandma Molly, and as usual you don't want me in the playroom while you set everything up for tonight. So I may as well use my time wisely and talk about our Birthday Party/Circle Dinner we just had. I have a feeling with how long it's taking you to set up the playroom that my brain will have become mush by tomorrow so I may as well get my thoughts out now.

The only regular part of our Party that wasn't there was Mac. He was originally supposed to be home by now from his trip to Machu Picchu and then had planned on going back next month for Beltane and stay for an entire month but he refuses to miss River's wedding. So he decided to stay through Beltane and then come home in time for the wedding. I missed talking with him, but I'm sure he and I can have a nice one on one lunch date when he gets home. Then I'll have oodles of time to hear all about the trip since I won't have to spread my time across a party's worth of guests.

It seemed as though when we first started having children, everyone else in our lives were having children at the same time. Our children never wanted for playmates and cousins. But when everyone else seemed to be tapering off I worried a bit that our youngest children would end up the babies who followed the big kids around. I obviously couldn't have been more wrong. There was practically a gang of five-ish year olds running wild through the Manor. Persephone, Tristan, and Misha being the 'very big' six-year-olds, Lily, Caelum, Charlotte, and Diego representing for the five-year-olds, then Viper's Scorpius and Hyperion refusing to be left behind just because they're 'only four.'

We've known those boys for all of their four and a half years, even going to Tiger's Universe to attend their births, but it still shocks me to see how, as far as looks go, they may as well be part of our brood. Those identical little monsters are just Orion in miniature form. Minus the bookishness and adding a complete unwillingness to sit still. This must be what identical twins feel when their twin has a child. "But, but, but, that's MY face!"

It's been so nice these last few years growing even closer with Dudley and Donna. When we first got back on speaking terms, I immediately was drawn to Donna since she's wonderful, and seeing how much Dudley had changed was great. But the few family events we went to that Vernon and Petunia were attending as well made things a bit awkward. I'm not even sorry for what I'm going to say next: our relationship got so much better after their car accident. But these last five years since finding out that not only do they have A magical child, but all three? It's probably the closest I've felt to anyone besides our immediate family and my friendship with Ron and 'Mione. I wish I'd had THIS Dudley my whole life.

With how busy Durmstrang is this time of year with tests and end of term coming up, I was a bit surprised that the entire quartet came for the monthly birthday party. And Blaise has been so busy trying to expand your magi-tech business further into the Russian market. I suppose the fact that not only was one of their children one of the birthday kids, but that Kisa was a birthday kid too made for a really weak argument for staying back for this one. And Kisa being pregnant couldn't have helped matters.

You know, Ron and Blaise have always been as doting as possible when one of their girls has been pregnant; foot rubs, waiting on them hand and foot, puttin up with every mood swing - really, they've been great. And when Kisa and Hermione were pregnant with Tristan and Misha at the same time, the boys were run ragged catering to them. But it wasn't until Kisa was pregnant with Tatyana that I realized how in love with Kisa Hermione was.

I've called them a Quartet practically since they all got together. But in my head I had really separated things. Almost like a polygamous sister-wives situation where Hermione and Ron were a couple, Blaise was their third, Kisa and Blaise being a couple, but very little interaction between Kisa and Ron or 'Mione. But the four of them really seem to be together and in love individually as well as all together. I know Hermione loves me, I know she loves her children, but I've never seen her so soft as when Kisa was carrying Tatyana. She looked at the little blond mobster like she'd hung the moon.

And that sassy little Tatyana, I still can't get over how pale she is. She's Kisa's little clone. And if her attitude is anything to go by, I wonder if - despite being second-born - if she's not going to be Kisa's heir to the 'family business.' She's only three and I am quite terrified of her. Good thing for me she loves her Uncle Harry, and I am not ashamed to say I bribe her in near constant biscuits to keep things that way.

It probably works out perfectly that she's closest in age to Charlie and Neville's Alice. With Tatya's bossy disposition, she's a perfect match for Alice's sweet, mellow, go-with-the-flow attitude. Frankie is definitely a bit more like his fearless dragon-wrangling dad, while Alice is Neville from nose to toes. And I say nose to toes and not head to toe since she does at least have Charlie's trademark red hair.

Unfortunately, I wasn't able to hear Lainie spill any details to Kisa. Although Kisa must have noticed me listening in because she managed to freak me out enough that I fled to the other side of the party. The rest of the Quartet must have told her they were staying for Playtime, because she was mentioning to Lainie that she had the whole night free to spend with her since her loves were going to be shagging the night away. Then, she turns to me and says, "it's too bad Draco's my nephew and you never play apart because I'd love to be invited. I'd take a bite out of this for sure." And then she PINCHED MY BUM! Kisa pinched my arse and threatened to bite it! My bum!!

I feel violated.

Ooh! Speaking of violated, I think I heard you coming out of the playroom. Yay! It's showtime!

Your Boy,
Harry

Sunday April 24th
My own,

I didn't realize how much I missed having these parties until we had one. It's not the playing. It's NOT simply spending time with all our friends. It's being part of something that takes a lot of trust and at the same time is so much fun.
I take my duties as host seriously, so I started the night dressed to kill. Well... Perhaps not literally as I imagine that would involve something a lot more form fitting and able to blend into the shadows. Perhaps with your invisibility cloak as added insurance one won't be spotted in the act.

But as I was saying, I started the night wearing a fuckload of clothes to act as a visual and tactile cue to remain in charge. I wanted to ensure that all of our guests were having a good time before I let my hair down (so to speak) and joined in. To that end, I had no pants on, but I did have tight, form-fitting black leather trousers covering my legs. These were accented by sharp and thick, calf-high leather boots. On my chest, I had a crisp black button up shirt. Over that was my favorite gold waist coat, and over THAT was - in essence - a floor length waist coat that completely covered the gold one and made me look rather broody, in my opinion. BUT I was going for very dominant, and it certainly accomplished that.
You probably were able to accurately gauge just how into the playing I was at any given point in time by looking over and seeing how many of my clothes had come off, haha.

In addition to my clothes, I'd spent several hours in the bathroom grooming every part of my body, and so, even once naked, I was still dressed to kill - so to speak. My favorite part to begin with was the sheer attention I'd paid to my hair. Every single strand was styled to perfection. I may love your hair being long, but I think I'm definitely made to have hair that stays about ear length - which is enough to style, but not so much that it ends up everywhere.

Once I was ready - changing my clothes and restyling my hair after our circle/birthday party - I naturally went into our playroom to set things up. I wanted every single thing at the ready, but not just thrown about and cluttering things up. So all the play furniture was arranged so that it was accessible but still spaced far enough apart that nothing should get 'crowded.' The toys were taken out of the drawers and set up on racks, grouped near things they might be useful for. So the whips and other impact toys were near the spanking bench and X, while the various vibrators and ropes were next to each other - in case someone wanted to be tied up and 'raped' with a toy.

And by raped, I of course mean consenting to it but pretending to not want it.

Once the room was set up and everything seemed to be in the perfect place, I opened it up to let you in, and then cast a signal spell to let the others - who'd been changing in guest suites and more than likely casting spells to completely empty bladders/bowels and make certain everything was clean and ready to play.

It's no surprise to me that our friends started crowding into the room before you'd even had a chance to finish looking around. Once you did, you turned to grin at me in anticipation, not to mention practically drool over what I was wearing.

I won't list every single person who attended our orgy - as you were there and don't need me to remind you - but for posterity, I'll list everyone who comes to mind in the next 10 or so seconds.

Luna and her poly lovers, The Triad portion of The Quartet, Neville and Charlie, Viper and Tiger (who shook his head at what I was wearing as if I was being silly or something), the Patil Twins, Greg and Millie, Pansy, her husband Ivan and his brother Dimitri, Theo and Daphne, Derek and Yesenia, Tabitha, Astoria, Pippa, Leah, Padfoot, Hannah and her husband, Bletchley, Ernie, Susan, Cho Chang, and Hannah Abbott. I know there were more, but I just can't think of them off hand, or I've forgotten their names. For example, there's an Auror that's always on raids and Bletchley invited him and his wife to the orgy and they came, but I can never remember his bloody name - despite the fact that he seems to think we're good mates. I always call him Senior Auror number 9 (or some such rot) when I'm commanding a raid, hahaha!

Anyway, people were looking around and making plans for things to try, and also sizing up who looked interesting. Most of our guests are only very occasional players. For example, I'm surprised that Neville and Charlie came, as they only ever play with us and I think they have the rare one off with a random couple. But other than when they come to Glastofest with us, they just prefer to be exclusive - and there's certainly nothing wrong with that. Apparently, Neville was curious about something, and that's whether or not he's still bi - as he always insists he is - or if he really is just an old gay man mentally stuck in an old-fashioned train of thought.

To no surprise, Luna - who has five or six official lovers (I lost track at some point), including her husband Rolf - immediately took over the Whipping Wall. I stood by and watched as she secured you as her first victim of the night, clamping your hands in the cushioned but sturdy clamps provided. She was wearing a soft purple corset and black knickers, while you were wearing a bondage harness and satiny pink knickers with the most adorable red bow on them.

Wishing I could give you my full attention for the entire night, I forced myself to leave your side and watch as Rolf had one of his Poly Lovers secure him to the spanking bench. The moment I was certain they were doing it correctly, I walked over to find Astoria asking Hermione questions about the Sybian Saddle. Satisfied that our Ms. Know-It-All would be able to answer anything Astoria wanted to know, I moved on, circling the room and taking in everything. Answering questions when need be, and handing out various potions - such as the 4 hour stamina potion (as I really felt 12 hours might be a bit much for this party, heh heh).

The night was young and the guests were mostly watching those that were comfortable (such as Luna) start things off. Daphne was delighted to try one of our more powerful vibrators - the Hitachi Magic Wand. Parvati seemed keen to try the non-vibrator, clit stimulator called Womanizer (a terrible name, I know, but I didn't name it). I was actually interested to watch her as I'd never had occasion to use it, nor seen it in action. I'd only bought it because I was thinking about giving it to Pansy, only I found out she already had one and seriously LOVED the thing.

Sadly, before I got a chance to see the toy in action, I was called away by an owl Patronus. "Dad, can you come here a minute, please?"

It seems that Orion, Eris, and Hazel had come back to the Manor to grab a few things the kids had forgotten (a veritable suitcase of things they'd forgotten, oi), and had stumbled across Venus eating Persephone's beloved pygmy puff, Honey. They wanted to know what they should do, but got completely distracted with what I was wearing.

"Are you having a costume party without telling us?" Orion asked, eyeing me with an expression that let me know he found it disturbing how attractive I was - or so I assume. It was either that or he found it disgusting that I was dressed a bit like an angsty teenager - a hot angsty teenager about to slay vampires and werewolves (so long as they aren't part of our circle).

"Is that brocade?" Eris asked, feeling up the fabric of my long waistcoat.

"Ooo! That was HAND EMBROIDERED!" Hazel drooled, also inspecting the waistcoat very closely.

"I'm certain my tailor used an embroidery spell," I said with a very light sneer. "But back to the matter of the pygmy puff -"

"No wait," Orion interrupted me, bending over and inspecting my trousers. "Are those LEATHER???

"Yes, as I was saying, I think you should simply -"

"What's the theme of the costume party," Orion interrupted once again, clearly not able to wrap his head around this particular costume. I personally don't even think this is the strangest thing he's ever seen me wear, but maybe I look like I'm intending to shag 'til I drop and he's not quite sure what the look in my eye is. He fiddled with the gold dagger-through-the-heart earrings I was wearing and murmured: "Pirate?"

I snorted in amusement as Eris rolled her eyes and back-handed him across the chest. "You CLEARLY weren't paying attention earlier. Dad mentioned when he dropped us off at Grandma Molly's that he and dad were going to have a play party tonight."

"Why do you THINK they wanted all us kids out of the Manor?" Hazel added with an amused smirk.

"EW!" Orion blurted out in revulsion. "Aren't you two too old to do stuff like that yet?!

I laughed a tiny bit malevolently as I pulled him close for a hug and kissed his temple, delighted to inadvertently embarrass him. "I'm afraid to spoil your entire night, but your dad and I aren't going to be too old for stuff like this for YEARS!" After he shuddered and I'd chuckled a bit more, I finally managed to finish my sentence. "I think you should simply not mention to Persephone that you noticed anything wrong. Let her play tonight blissfully unaware of the tragedy, and then tomorrow, when you're all home, take her aside before she has a chance to find out on her own and tell her what happened. If you're lucky, your dad might even be awake already - but don't count on that as I'm determined to make him pass out until at least noon - if he is, he can help you have the unpleasant conversation.

"Yeah, alright," Eris murmured in agreement.

I gave them all hugs and kisses and sent them off via the floo to the Burrow. Then I returned to the party, sought you out, and kissed you even as Luna continued the flogging.

"You're such a good boy," I praised, stroking your hair. "My good little mutt, taking it so well for me."

You purred and practically wagged your non-existent tail. Luna growled softly at me and told me to either take over completely or back off and let her finish having her fun. With a smile, I walked over and kissed her in apology. Then I gestured for her to continue, only watching enough to know that both of you were definitely having fun.

I made the rounds again, and this time, almost everyone was doing something. Only Millie seemed to be doing nothing. Well actually, since she was watching her husband, I suppose that she was doing something after all. It seems that Greg still thinks blow jobs are the best thing ever and doesn't care who is giving them. Thus, he was reclining in a comfortable chair as Neville hoovered him like a champ.

I'll admit that that pairing hadn't ever occurred to me before, but it was disturbingly hot to watch.

Parvati came over to give me a thorough kiss to reward me for having the foresight to buy the Womanizer, as it is now her favorite toy and she plans to buy a couple for herself. She had my attention so completely that I didn't even notice her slipping her hands under my full length waistcoat until it was off and she quirked a brow.

"ANOTHER waistcoat???

I smirked at her. "I'm NOT getting naked until I'm ready to shag, and that's not going to be until after I've tortured at least three people."

She ran her hands over my trousers, squeezing my arse a couple of times for good measure.
"Shame. I might have to volunteer to be tortured then."

I grinned at her becomingly. "Ever been Sounded?"

"Er... can't say that I have," she murmured in confusion.

"I'm not saying that it offers the same benefits for a woman as it does for a man, but it's possible to do and I've actually never tried it on a woman. I figure it qualifies as torture - but don't worry, I know what I'm doing and won't hurt you."

"Alright... I'll at least take a look at what it is you want me to do and see if it's worth giving a go."

Elated, I led her over to that exam table we bought about 7 years ago - the one that reclines and has stirrups that feet can be restrained in. After showing her the entire set of Sounds and explaining what I was going to do, she gulped apprehensively, but then nodded in permission. I got her on the table and strapped her feet simply because I didn't want to risk her squirming too much and inadvertently hurting herself. I got a good look at her urethra and chose the appropriate size Sound, lubed it up, and gently pushed it into her, patiently letting it do most of the work.

"HOLY FUCK!" Someone squealed, grabbing my attention. I looked over to find Susan Bones trying to ride Blaise and - unsurprisingly - finding him rather a lot to take.

I looked around and noticed that Hannah Abbot, Cho Chang, and Leah were arguing over who got to try the Womanizer next, even as Hermione seemed to be forcing Ron to demonstrate the Sybian Saddle for anyone who was curious about it.

Over in the corner, my Auror friend and his wife were in a sandwich with Derek where she was in the middle, looking rather amazed. Yes, things were moving along nicely now.

Returning my attention to Parvati, I was happy to find that the Sound had penetrated her fully. A female urethra is much shorter than a male one, so it's a much smaller gesture to 'wank' it. I did so carefully, using my tongue on her clit to give her something else to focus on if it didn't feel good at first. She'd already had one orgasm earlier, so it didn't take too long for her to reach another. She looked amazed when it happened.

"That was WEIRD!" She panted out, trying to catch her breath. "The... The wanking me with the Sound... I'm not certain I liked it, but it was a different sensation than I'm used to, and it provided a little something extra with you tonguing me like that. I... I... don't know what to think about it!"

I shrugged, gave her a kiss, and then set about cleaning and sanitizing the Sound as her sister freed her feet from the stirrups. Padma held up my Violet Wand. Oh... I LOVE that thing!

"Care to give me a nice shock?" Padma asked.

"Definitely!" I agreed with an eager grin. "Just give me a moment to walk around and check on things. And actually, for that, you're probably going to want to be on the massage table."

She nodded in understanding and wandered over to said table as I made sure no one was disrespecting boundaries. We have brilliant friends, and so, no one was doing anything non-consensual, but since there was a little alcohol being drunk, I had to be certain no one had lost their reason. As I walked, I slowly pulled off my golden waistcoat, leaving me in just my shirt, trousers, and boots. Well, also those earrings and the matching necklace.

To my delight, you were now hanging upside down in a supportive Shibari tie that resembled frog pose - with your hands behind your back. Luna must have REALLY wanted to put you through your paces as she was still in charge, 'forcing' you to suck on her husband in your predicament. I trusted that she had taken all precautions and cast all safety spells, but I paused the scene so that I could ask:

"You cast the spell to make sure that the blood doesn't rush to his head and stay there, right?"

"Of course," she assured me with a kiss, groping me and clearly wondering if I'd be willing to submit to her at some point tonight too. "I also cast a spell so that he can breathe even if he's literally choking on a thick cock."

"Good. Sounds like he's probably having loads of fun," I murmured, caressing your back and pressing kisses to your thighs and arse before smacking it lightly. I know that despite the fact that you literally couldn't see me with Rolf in your face like that, you'd know it was me touching you, even if I hadn't spoken. "I love you. Keep up the good work! Make me so proud of you!"

You purred through the face-fucking, letting me know that you heard me and promised to do exactly that. With a few last kisses wherever I could fit them, I left you to it and finished my circuit. Pippa had Bletchley on his knees and worshiping her femininity exactly the way she liked it. Padfoot was all over Charlie, murmuring something about being attracted to gingers and never realizing it before.

Arriving at the massage table, I selected the attachment to the Violet Wand that is basically a cord that I can tape to my skin somewhere (I chose my abdomen, so I could have it under my shirt), which allows ME to become the instrument that shocks and tortures Padma. Each little tap of my pointer finger sent a zap into her. Running my hand just a few hairs above her skin had her shivering from the zings. Pressing kisses to any part of her body that looked sensitive made her squeak and squirm. All in all, I had so much fun and dragged it out for a long time because I kept stopping - with my hand hovering over her just so - in order to look around and make sure no one needed me for anything.

Eventually, she was begging for deliverance, her entire body so sensitive that she felt like one big nerve being teased to the point of orgasm, but not quite reaching it. I was not ready to shag yet, so I stood back and asked her if she had any objections to Neville taking over. It seems he'd reached the wanting to shag a woman portion of the night, and she was VERY wet and ready by this point. Since he has a fairly massive shaft, he needs all the lubrication he can get to ensure that the experience is good for everyone involved. Padma nodded and blurted out that she didn't care who bloody shagged her so long as it was good and hard.

With that settled, I made another round. You were now rimming Ron - also seemingly at Luna's command. Since this wasn't potentially dangerous in the slightest, I decided not to interrupt this time, aside from a gentle caress to your arse as I passed by.

Dimitri caught me as I wandered around and asked if I would be interested in shagging him. I thought this over as he kissed me. To be honest, I wasn't sure how I felt about the idea. I think that the problem was that I just wasn't ready to shag ANYONE yet - still very much wanting to torture at least one more person. So I stood there in indecision as he licked my neck and unbuttoned my shirt.

Once I was topless, I kissed him for a few long minutes, groping him even as he groped me. Then I pulled back and shook my head. "Sorry, but I'm actually in the mood to shag a woman. It doesn't happen all that often and that's what I plan to do first. Perhaps if I have any energy left after..."

He pouted in disappointment, but then nodded in understanding. Still, he had to try. "Are you certain? You seem to be teasing the women and not actually shagging any of them."

I grinned at him. "Foreplay. I want to be so worked up by the time I decide who to shag, that it could be a little old lady and I wouldn't even care."

He grinned at me. "Then perhaps I have a chance after all!"

I laughed and kissed him again before smacking him on the arse and pushing him away. "We'll see."

I looked myself over and noticed that I was perfectly attired to whip someone. So, I walked over to the Whipping Wall and selected a nice long whip that would crack and sting. I knew I wouldn't have to wait long for someone to run over and throw themselves against the wall as if they were being arrested. Sure enough, Hannah Abbot volunteered to be my victim before I even finished giving the whip a few good test swings. She was already completely naked and looked beautifully submissive.

"I'll do whatever you tell me too, under one condition," she murmured calmly, looking to the floor as if she was a servant addressing a master. "Please remember that I am a lesbian and am not interested in you shoving your prick in me once I start flying."

I nodded. "Of course. I assure you, I can dominate and whip you without expecting to shag you as my reward."

"Good," she sighed in relief. I could see why she was nervous, aside from Luna, the only women here who might normally be dominant like this, were currently occupied doing other things.

Rolling my shoulders and sort of hopping for a moment, I got into the right frame of mind and ordered her to brace herself against the wall. I expected her to respond to each stroke of the whip with a color to let me know how she was feeling. If she was good and ready for more, green. If she was not sure or needed a moment to take a breath, yellow. If she definitely needed me to stop, red. Once that was agreed to, I began the whipping.

Wow! She can take a lot! I mean I'm used to going a bit harder on you than I might like, but I think I made an unfair assumption about her based on her gender that she wouldn't be able to handle that same level of pain as you. I was sure wrong! She probably even took more simply because I got curious to find her limit and went a bit harder than I am normally comfortable going. Especially once the Viper came over, took a good look at us, and said:

"You're going easy on her."

"I'm not trying to," I replied. "I suppose that I am unconsciously holding back though. I'll stop doing that now."

The moan she let out after the next strike let me know that she appreciated it. "Green."

I continued on until she was flying, and then - to my surprise (although I suppose that it's really not that surprising) my doppelgänger volunteered to take over and see to her after care. He assured me that he didn't intend to molest her, but that he'd actually already had two rounds of shagging and needed a break anyway. So I left her in his care and walked around again.

Blaise was now giving out oral to anyone who wanted it. My Auror friend's wife was riding the Sybian. You were being plowed rather eagerly by Charlie, spouting a long string of broken curses. This time, I HAD to get involved, smacking Charlie's arse to encourage him to fuck you good and proper before walking around to give you kisses. I cast a charm to wet your mouth - which had gone dry from panting - kissed you some more, cast a modified Aguamenti so that your mouth would continually stay wet (but not enough water to choke on), and then slowly opened my long zipper so that my extremely hard shaft could burst free. I could see the moment you realized what I was doing; your eyes got an eager gleam to them and your mouth automatically opened.

I let you suck on me until I got pretty close to going off, then I stopped you because I was now definitely in the mood to shag someone and still wanted a woman. So, I kissed you, whispered my love in your ear, and then bade you to have fun as I wandered around looking for options.

To my surprise, Cho came over and dropped to her knees before me. She was naked and giving me smoky bedroom eyes. Her knees spread apart enough so that she could get a hand between her legs.

"Everything about me is petite - even my hole. I bet I'll feel so tight on you..."
"Mmm..." I moaned in lust. "Let's see, shall we?" I held out my hand until she put hers in mine, then I helped her up and walked her over to the large bed. It was already occupied, but not so full that we wouldn't fit. I gestured for her to sit on the edge in a place where there was enough room for her to lay on her back with her legs dangling over the side. Then I took the time to make sure she was nice and prepared for me.

Eventually she was whimpering in need and softly begging me to shag her already, and since I was more than ready to comply, I wasted no more time before sliding into her. Fuck! She was right! She IS tight!

Which was the beginning of my long and exhausting night. The best part was - of course - that moment when I was ready to pass out, and I found that you were already passed out in a pile, so I crawled my way into the pile, pulled you into my arms, gave you a tender kiss, and went to sleep.

MERLIN AND SALAZAR! I can't believe how much I needed a night of mindless shagging! But waking up to you kissing me? Better than all the shagging in the world.

You are my real Prince Charmin', like the heat from the fire, you were always burnin', and each time you're around, my body keeps callin' for your touch, your kisses and your sweet Romancin' Draco
Chapter 17

Chapter Summary

Harry makes poor after party choices, and Draco comforts Persephone after all.

Sunday April 24, 2016

My Smarter Half,

I make terrible choices. I mean, not all of my choices are terrible, but today's decision was a bad one. When I woke up, late for me but early for you, I went off to Molly and Arthur's to pick up our portion of the sleepover. That wasn't where I made the bad choices, that happened when I got everyone home.

I let the kids pick the day's activities since I felt badly about forcing them out of their home so we could have group sexy times with our friends. I really shouldn't have felt badly, since our choice of activities had no bearing on whether or not it was appropriate to send our children to a 'babysitter' especially a beloved set of grandparents. Also, they had a blast and probably would have chosen to have the sleepover even if we hadn't suggested it.

Fine! I let the children manipulate me into whatever activity they wanted to do! Eri, Ori, and Haz have my number and know I'm a pushover! Not to mention, under normal circumstances, the activity they chose is one of my favorite things to do. Except dirt biking for hours isn't the best activity for someone who spent the entire night before having their arse thrashed and being buggered until he cried.

I probably could have just healed everything but damnit, I earned that soreness! You know how much I hate doing the healing charms unless absolutely necessary. I probably should have considered them necessary. But since I already got through today, will you rub some of the mild healing potion into my skin? Maybe into my arse? Definitely into my arse. And then take me? Because last night was amazing, and falling asleep in your arms was wonderful, and waking up to kisses with you was perfection, but I didn't get to have you deep inside last night. Only complaint of the night! Although I did get that mouthful while I had an arse full of Charlie. Thank you for checking in with me so often. I felt so loved and owned. I never had a chance to feel as though every aspect of last night wasn't for you. I took Luna's torture for you, because I'm your good mutt. I did good work when I was tied up and choking on Rolf's cock. And even when you had a room full of sexy times happening around you, you made sure I was safe and secure.

I love that we're back to a point where a night of playing with others only makes us more secure in each other. Everything I did last night was for you, I was good for you, and you were proud of me. And I got to see you walking around the playroom in those sinful pants. I need you to wear them again for me and soon, I want to worship every inch of you while you wear nothing but those leather trousers and those arse kicking boots.

I assume you want the rest of my thoughts on last night's proceedings? You always want me to recap in case you missed anything and to make sure it was good for me. All these years later, you are still the best Master a mutt could ever have. I love you.
So apparently, according to you, we won't be too old for playing like this for years. Uh, I plan on having a ridiculous and extensive sex life well into our old age. Right now we have fun sex aids like plugs and floggers, but I plan on having intense sex past the point of needing aids like actual canes and sex swings with lumbar support.

Speaking of things that are hard to do or need support, I still can't help but laugh at all these weaklings who can't take Blaise. Amateurs! I was too out of it to realize what was happening or my competitive nature probably would have demanded that I show off to the entire party how I can take Blaise better than anyone. I can DP with one of the cocks being Blaise-sized. Who's that? Is that Harry? Is that the Boy Who Lived? No! It's Super Bottom!!!

I didn't get a chance to talk with Neville afterwards, did you? I'm curious whether he was able to answer his own question about his sexuality. I DO know that I managed to see him swallowing Greg all the way down and it was just as hot as you seemed to think it was. Look, I love watching a good buggering or rim job as much as the next 'Old Gay Man' (and don't think we're not going to talk about you using that moniker on someone exactly my age) but there's something about a blowjob that just speaks to me. And Neville, bi or gay or whatever way he identifies, sucks cock like a pro.

He looked as though he was enjoying shagging with Padma well enough, although I don't think he looked like he enjoyed it quite as much as he liked giving head. But I do realize much of that is probably my own bias as to which one I think is hotter to watch.

And watching Sirius and Charlie? Holy fuck was that hot. I even took a break from being tortured just to watch. And I have to argue with you when you think Millie wasn't actually doing anything when she was watching Greg and Nev. Voyeurism is certainly an activity in and of itself. It took a lot of effort to not throw myself in between Pads and Charlie, to keep myself to voyeur status and not active participant. Dear Merlin, all that pale skin on display. Mmmm.

Alright I should probably stop discussing the fun from last night and go deal with explaining to Seph what happened to her Honey. I am not looking forward to this conversation. Actually, I am the teenager guy and you are the little kid guy so maybe you should handle it? Please? You're just so amazing with Persephone, I think she would fare better emotionally having to hear this from you.

Damn it, there's no way out of this is there? Well, off to break my baby girl's heart.

Wish me luck,
Harry

Sunday April 24th
My perfect little mutt,

After seeing our Hogwarts set through the floo back to their dorms, hugging and kissing them goodbye, we put all the others to bed. Then it was time for just the two of us.

I started by rubbing a little bit of that minor healing potion you asked for into your arse, and actually, you had a few welts, meaning that there was definitely a reason you had a hard time biking with the kids. After those were faded - leaving as much of the general soreness as I could - I moved onto actually healing your warm and waiting passage, but I did so in a unique way. I cast the healing spell on your tail plug and put it inside you to work its magic for a while.
Not the whippy white tail, the fluffy brown one. Meanwhile, I decided that since you were wearing the tail, you might as well wear the matching magic dog ears, the floppy brown ones that look adorable on you. With those in place, I removed my robe to reveal that I was wearing only those black leather trousers and arse kicking boots - as you requested.

I'm not certain you were in full puppy mode, but you were definitely happy to have a chance to lick every part of me you could as I lay on the bed for you. As you licked, you kissed and nipped me - I think you were planning to mark me and reassert your territory, but you didn't get far, just a lovely little spot on my chest above my left nipple.

"Hey dads - Oh my GODS!!! What are you DOING?!?!?!!" Shtara squealed in mortification.

I laughed. "Haven't you learnt not to come in our room without knocking yet?"

"Yeah but, normally all I might accidentally see is you two shagging - NOT that I try to or want to see that. I just get so into what I'm doing that I forget to knock. But! But! That's just weird!" She was pointing at your dog tail, which was definitely drooping from disappointment.

"Nevermind that, love," I advised. "What is it you came in here for?"

"Huh? Oh! Seph can't sleep. She's too upset about Honey, so she's crying in her bed and Caelum came to get me because he says he knows better than to come in here when you two make goo goo eyes at each other when you tuck them in."

I snorted in amusement. "Well, that should have been a clue that you might want to knock!" I then kissed you before slipping out of bed. "Stay here mutt. I'll go dance our girl to sleep, and if you're still awake when I get back, we can finish what we started."

You whined softly in disappointment that we were being interrupted, but were also probably very grateful that you didn't have to pull on a robe to hide the tail while pacing back and forth with a distraught child.

So after a last stroke to your head, I followed Shtara to Persephone's room. Along the way, she was giving me some serious side eye.

"What?" I asked as if I had no idea what she was thinking.

"Why are you wearing those pants and boots, but no shirt?"

"I'm certain you don't actually want to know. Ask any of the older kids and you'll learn that your dad and I do LOTS of weird sh!te like this. One time, Elena caught me licking jam off Harry's back."

"Why???

I smirked at her. "I really wanted jam. Hmm... I actually really want jam now too, come to think of it. Muffy, bring a jar of strawberry jam to my bedroom and set it on the bedside table next to Harry."

"Yes master," Muffy replied from nowhere.

Once in Persephone's room, I found that she really was crying, but also seemed to be half asleep, poor little lamb. So I did exactly as I said by scooping her into my arms and carrying her to the ballroom so I could sing and dance her back to sleep. She eventually calmed down but started crying again when I tried to lay her down. So I'm currently dictating this as I dance her around the ballroom. I have no idea when she'll feel ready to go back to bed, but I have a feeling it won't be anytime soon.

I'll be sure to kiss your sleeping head when I curl up around you, and who knows, maybe I'll get my fill of jam and fulfill my somnophilia kink while I'm at it. Love you!

sings to both Persephone and the dictation device
Sometimes I'm happy, sometimes I'm blue, my disposition, depends on you, I never mind the rain from the skies, if I can find the sun in your eyes, sometimes I love you, sometimes I hate you, but when I hate you, it's 'cuz I love you, that's how I am, so what can I do? I'm happy when I'm with you,
Draco
Chapter 18

Chapter Summary

Harry feels like he hasn't seen Draco all day, and Draco is rushing around trying to get things done.

Monday April 25, 2016

My Adorable Love,

I haven't seen you all day! This is a travesty. Technically I have seen you twice now today, but not once while you were awake. So while I certainly enjoyed the view, it's not the same as getting to spend time with you.

Seph must have kept you up so late last night. You poor babies. I'm torn, I don't want to teach her that pets are replaceable or that everything can be fixed by a trip to the store, but I also want to go buy her five or ten more puffs to make it up to her. The reason I know she kept you up late is because I can tell you did not give in to your somnophilia kink. How do I know that? When I woke up, I still had my tail in, I was not covered in anything, and you were sound asleep next to me. Still wearing your trousers and boots, clutching a jar of jam. If I hadn't felt so badly for the both of you, that sight would have been almost as hilarious as when you fall asleep and your laptop hits me in the head.

I was going to see if you wanted to spend the day with me, I wasn't sure of your schedule of meetings or wedding prep, but while I was sitting down to breakfast, I got a message from Tabitha saying my presence would be helpful at Unity this morning. It seems all but three of the children were going home today. Fifteen children being returned to parents and three children changing from temporary to 'permanent' status can be quite the transition. Tabitha was clear that it wasn't any sort of emergency, but if I was available my being there would be helpful.

When I asked if I could bring the trio, Tabitha actually insisted they would be helpful playing with the younger kids as a bit of a distraction from the boring process of paperwork and the anxiety-ridden process of waiting for their parents to come and get them.

For the record, Angelica was right when she said her dad wasn't in on anything, he's just a single dad struggling to raise his kids and keep a job. Unfortunately for him, the promise of being able to bring his girls with to an in-house daycare was too good to resist. We put him and the other parents that were cleared of wrongdoing in touch with the Diagon Daycare center. They're going to bump them up the waiting list for immediate need. So as soon as any of them are able to procure another job, their children will have a spot waiting for them at an affordable care facility.

Two of the Kids staying, Eugene and Willa, belonged to the heads of the potion ring. So, they are on 'permanent' status. You know that permanent doesn't necessarily mean adoptable or truly permanent, but definitely not temporary. In theory, if another close family member without ties to the ring comes forward they can go home with them. Or their parents could request they not have their rights severed and then they will just stay at Unity until their parents are released from Azkaban. Not sure what their sentence was so I have no idea which of these is going to happen. So for now, they're permanent.
The other permanent Kid is little Brian. His parents were NOT part of the ring. They were let go on the charges the raid was designed to uncover. However, because Brian had gotten so sick without being brought in for care, the Department of Families and Children looked into his home life. It was not good. So he is an official Unity Kid.

On top of that, they found two other children there, the 'parents' (and I use that term loosely) had decided that even with free child care from their potions job, the five and seven-year-olds were plenty old enough to stay home alone all day every day and care for the house.

That all means today included fifteen children going home, three Kids status' changing from temporary to permanent and two additional Kids coming to Unity.

It was definitely a long day but seeing all those children being safe and sound was definitely worth it. I felt satisfied and exhausted, I couldn't wait to come home to you. After dinner was all cleaned up and the Kids were settling in for the evening, I was getting myself, Lily, Seph, and Cael ready to head home when River showed up unexpectedly.

"Dad! I'm so glad I found you. I need your help!" he started shrieking at me, looking like a mixture of relieved and panicked. Not sure how those can coexist in one look but he made it happen.

"Of course, maybe we should go to the sitting room to talk where there aren't so many young eyes watching you freak out?" I smirked at him.

He just nodded and we headed over to the sitting room. Where he verbally vomited a stream of panic, "I don't know what to do! Maha had to leave this morning to spend a few days in California, something about auditioning roles and wanting to see them act against her character? I don't know for sure. All I do know is the wedding is in nineteen days, Maha is going to be gone for at least six days, and we have so many things to plan for. What if I pick the wrong flowers? Or the wrong centerpieces? What if I forget to choose centerpieces and our wedding ends up centerpiece-less and Maha will hate me forever. Or she won't hate me, she'll just silently hold in her disappointment until it all bubbles over and she realizes she never really loved me, she really wants a man who can take care of business and I'm obviously not that man because I forgot the centerpieces!"

Oh. So am I right in assuming this is the nonsense you all have to deal with when we're less than twenty-four hours away from a gala with my name on it? I apologize. I can't promise I won't do it again, and I don't think you'd believe that promise anyway, but I am sorry.

That's around the time Muffy brought Lissa, Cael, and Seph home to you. Hopefully you were already done with all the paperwork you left for today and them showing up didn't mess up your schedule.

I spent the evening going down the checklist with River, helping him decide things that he could make the final call on, giving him the advice of messaging her about decisions I think she would definitely want some input on, and reminding him that you and I got married with a week of planning and things won't go all to hell if some decisions wait until she gets back.

Calming down a hysterical boy is not the easiest thing to do. You are a saint to put up with my hyperactive nonsense.

I just wish you'd still been awake when I came home. You must have still been exhausted from the lack of sleep the night before. So I snuggled up next to you and wrote about my day while taking short breaks to stare at your beautiful sleeping face.

Hopefully I get to see you tomorrow!
All of my love,
Harry

P.S. I can’t believe I was walked in on by my child while I was wearing a tail. This won’t scar her for life, right? Right?!?

Tuesday April 26th
My love,

This is going to be a quick note to let you know that I am going to be busy all day. Yes, I finished up all my paperwork for Robards yesterday, but Pippa had run an advert in the Prophet for me and I'm doing interviews all day. When I'm done, Elena will have a bright and shiny new assistant - which I will then have to introduce to her and do my best to survive what is certain to be a fierce storm until she calms down and warms up to the idea.

At the same time, Elena wants to go over what I might like to do with Zaire for an African tribal dance class. She's excited to be able to offer such a class, but wants to make sure that we put the proper level of attention to detail into it. I'd swear she must have forgotten what level of detail I tend to bring to things, but whatever, she'll see.

Lastly, I, erm… Well I have a different sort of opportunity altogether. It seems that the lead hand-to-hand combat trainer recently retired, leaving the Auror department short. Robards remembers how well I did during my training - and that I independently practice Krav Maga with our kids - and offered me first chance at the position. I'm... going to head into the Ministry at some point today and look around the facilities I'd be in charge of and see if they speak to me. If so, I might just take the job.

That's all for now, gotta run, love you!
Draco
Wednesday April 27, 2016

My Love,

How did things go yesterday with Tropical Storm Elena? I was a bit worried when you hadn't gotten home yet by the time I crashed into bed last night, but the fact that you were in bed and breathing when I woke up this morning seemed like good news.

Did you, Zaire, and Lainie get anything accomplished about the dance lessons? Or did you and Lainie just argue a lot while Zaire laughed at both of your antics? I think it's really cool that you're going to be doing these lessons, but do you think you'll branch out to other tribes or areas of Africa or just stick with the Zulu dances you were taught recently? I don't know a lot about it but I can't imagine the Amhara people of Ethiopia have the same dances as the Anlo-Ewe people of Ghana. They may be on the same continent but the countries are separated by 4,000 miles.

Ah! I just want to wake you up and talk with you! I didn't see you Monday, I didn't see you yesterday, and now your pretty face is just sitting there looking all flushed and pretty! I miss you!

Did you get a chance to stop in at the Ministry and look over the hand to hand combat training facilities? Is this something you're seriously contemplating? I have to admit it seems to have come out of nowhere. Years ago when you were deciding what direction to take your career, I had mentioned teaching and specifically training Aurors and you didn't seem all that interested. Preferring to take the training yourself and then hand pick the raids that interested you.

If you do this will it mean you'll back off to being 'just' a trainer? Quitting raids completely? Or going on less raids? Slowing your raid schedule at all? Fuck, this is not going to take you out on any less raids and just going to give you another job to do isn't it? Damnit Draco, I miss your face! How many times do I have to say it?

Screw it, I am going to wake you up and have my way with you while you're still here. Maybe I'll tie you up before I wake you so you can't get away!

Bwahahaha,

Harry

Wednesday April 27th
My beautiful husband,

I absolutely love that you tied me up before waking me this morning. It was a sensual and tactile delight to be helpless and struggling against my bonds as you teased the fuck out of me. First by finishing that licking and marking you started the other night - the jam was definitely involved - and then by having your glorious way with me.
You took me until we were both oh-so-close, and then stopped and teased me a bit more by kissing my tattoo of one of your love bites on my hip. Once you presumably calmed down a bit, you shifted until you could ride me. I feel as if I touched heaven at least twice before you were finally ready to shoot your load all over my chest. Some got on my face and you looked positively triumphant to have marked me.

You collapsed onto me and we lay panting for a long while. Then you untied me and we kissed for so long (you cleaning me up) that our kids got worried that they couldn't find you and came looking. Thankfully, all they saw was us kissing while naked, and so, don't have to wonder why daddy had daddy tied up. Caelum told us to stop being disgusting and then begged you to make him pancakes for lunch - since you were probably going to be making some for me to eat.

Actually, I've been eating ham and sausage diced and added to scrambled eggs lately, which Muffy had all ready to go, but you still gave in and promised to make them pancakes topped with plenty of fresh fruit, which damnit! Sounded REALLY good the moment you left the room!

In any case, I had time to read your email while I was eating and write this reply. Too bad you got called away before we had a chance to remember that talking was just as important as kissing.

In non-chronological order; Zaire and I did come up with a good course outline for the African Tribal dance class. Yes, we're going to branch out to other cultures since it could potentially get a little monotonous doing just the same few dances after a while. Elena loves the entire thing and is planning to personally speak to the parents of any student interested in taking the class to explain the cultural differences the students will be learning and why they are important to learn.

For what it's worth, the nudity thing isn't even the most important difference, in her opinion. The fact that a lot of the dances either are or resemble fighting, and that the students will probably learn a tiny bit of combat in the class as well, THAT'S what she thinks will actually make most parents balk. That said, once there are enough students with permission to take the class, it'll be a 2 hour class on Monday afternoons.

As for the Auror combat training, actually, despite it coming out of nowhere, I'm rather looking forward to it. See, back when I was taking Auror classes, I didn't want to do any sort of teaching, even though I do have skills they would quite like me to teach, because I wanted to focus on my own studies. But now that I'm settled into my role as the Chief of Raids, knowing that there's a need for combat training, and also, knowing that it's ultimately in my own best interest to insure that all people attending a raid be competent at defending themselves, well... I decided to take the job.

And before you groan that I will be out of the house even more, keep in mind that I usually only have to go on a raid once every month or two, so having a twice a week class (Monday and Wednesday nights for about two hours) means that I'll really not be too much more busy than I already am. Also, I made sure that any week that I do actually lead (or simply participate in, although that's really rare) a raid, Wednesday night class will be canceled. Remember that the Ministry likes to conduct most of their raids at the crack of dawn on Wednesday mornings so that Tuesdays can be preplanning, Wednesday the actual raid, and Thursdays for debriefing and paperwork. And Friday if there happens to be a LOT of paperwork.

Thus, a class on Monday wouldn't interfere with that anyway, and if Wednesdays are canceled any day I raid, then I don't have to worry about trying to do one more thing when I'm already exhausted. All in all, I think it'll work out nicely.

Alright, so I saved the worst for last, so to speak. What took the majority of the day yesterday was interviewing people for the role of Elena's assistant. I had a surprising number of applicants, but Perhaps word has gotten around over the years that we're a good family to work for. In any case, it took longer than I liked just to weed through them and narrow them down to the best applicants. They ALL seemed qualified in one way or another. At that point, it was basically my job to determine which person would get along best with Elena.

In that aspect, I felt a bit like I was arranging a marriage, hahaha. I wasn't, of course, but when I was deciding, I took things like Elena's favorite food into account. Oh sure, Elena wouldn't hold it against someone if they loved a food she hated, but I could see that if I had two perfect applicants to choose from, then choosing the one with similar favorite foods would be beneficial.

So, after a very vigorous process in which I FINALLY had just one applicant left, I brought him to meet Elena. Before I tell you how she took the news, let me briefly tell you about Rodrigo. He's... about 5'11" with black hair and eyes, and a swarthy complexion. Before you raise a brow and think this man sounds plain, let me assure you that he is not. If I hadn't come to the realization that he would be perfect for Elena, I seriously would have ejected him from the building for being too bloody handsome for his own good. No need to make Elena's life even MORE complicated from temptation!

But despite looking a little like a younger version of that Actor from Zorro - Antonio something? - he really was the most qualified and perfect for the job. Especially since the assistant would need an extensive background in the performing arts, and he definitely had that. He went to Beaubatons before going to a muggle school much like Elena's that's located in Spain. I have a feeling that they'll eventually get along like a house on fire.

But as for now, Elena is currently not speaking to me and claims that the only reason she is tolerating Rodrigo's presence in her school and office is that she's A: too busy to stop and toss his arse out, and B: knows that I'm paying Rodrigo as my employee until he either passes his initial trial or runs screaming for the hills. Her money is on the later. That said, it's literally costing her nothing to give him a try, and so, after I pointed out that she's going to need an assistant to help out when she gives birth anyway, she might as well start training said person in now and feel confident that things are in the right hands when the time comes.

Strangely, when I was leaving, having been dismissed from our beloved dictator's presence, I paused to look back at her and saw her rubbing her temples and grumbling under her breath something along the lines of: "First Ethan and now dad; what's next?"

So... yeah, I have no idea what's on her mind, but she's definitely stressed about something. That CAN'T be good for the baby. I think maybe we can solve River AND Elena's problems - at least temporarily - by telling River that Elena REALLY needs a nice relaxing massage - being pregnant and all - and then telling Elena that River REALLY needs her help as a dummy to test out a new technique on. She won't need to know until she's already on his table that that's a lie.

But as for River, I know that he's under a bit of stress himself, and so, I plan to help him out either today or tomorrow - we'll see how things go - by solving his staff problems too. Currently, he owns his own spa and since he doesn't want to sell it outright, he needs a person who can take over as a manager at the very least, and potentially someone else to fill his position as a Massage Therapist. The other therapists and estheticians will continue on the same as they are, but River wants to be certain that all of his clients are taken care of before he leaves. To that end, I think I'll start by interviewing everyone on his staff to see if any of them are capable of taking on the role of manager, and if not, find someone who is.

Call it part of my wedding present.

So... How's Persephone doing? Did you buy her a new puff or ten yet?
Love you beyond all reason,
Draco
Chapter 20

Chapter Summary

Harry feels they have a certified menagerie, and Draco decides it's time for a Spa day with Elena and River.

Thursday April 28th
My Heart,

Why do you have to end your message asking a question you already know the answer to? Yes, I got Seph a new puff. I also got her a new kitten. Because I'm a sucker and you know it. I was really confused why she would want a cat when it was a cat that carried out the initial puff assassination. Well, our little lady has decided that if she got a kitten and was able to train it from babyhood into being a protector of all things pygmy puff, that it would guard her new pet from Venus' future threats.

So now our house has three dogs, two cats, a cheetah, and a pygmy puff. Also a boatload of owls and peacocks. Plus the ferret and the snakes when the Hogwarts kids come home from school. We may as well get our home classified as an official zoo.

Congratulations my love on your newest job. I think you will be wonderful at it! You may be a bit snarky, but I think you're really a natural teacher. You turned me from that terrible mess of a dancer from the Yule Ball into a fully functioning dancer with the appropriate left and right feet.

I think I need to find myself something to keep me busy on Monday and Wednesdays while you're teaching. Well, really just Mondays. I know we don't go all the time, but Wednesday nights are still movie nights at Unity and I can start getting into a routine of attending all of them. Especially with the recent influx of Kids their age, Jaz and the Trio in particular have been wanting to spend more time there anyway.

And uh, speaking of our menagerie, I have another idea to keep the kids and I busy when you're teaching hand to hand combat and dances that look like hand to hand combat. I think we should get some horses. No, hear me out, we have those stables in the western part of the Manor grounds that no one has used since you and I have been together. I'm sure they were originally built for Unicorn or Thestral breeding as a business enterprise, but I think we should have some horses for the kids to ride and care for.

On a completely unrelated note, there are two rescue horses that Hagrid somehow found wandering through the Forbidden Forest. He has no idea how their un-magical selves got in, but he's thinking magic somehow found a way to let them in because they were probably escaping from something awful. They were malnourished, more than an animal would be just from wandering an unknown forest, and they had some marks on them that make him pretty sure they hadn't been treated properly.

So, they're not doing great near Hagrid's hut because the magic that would normally keep nonmagical creatures away seems to be bothering them, and he can't find anyone who wants to take on TWO skittish horses and he definitely doesn't want to separate them. And isn't it so lucky that while we have magic and we have intense warding, we don't have anything on our grounds that would keep away non-magical creatures. AND we have a stable! AND we have children who love animals and are super responsible when caring for animals!

Please?

And uh, maybe when I was researching how to care for rescued horses I may have come across a couple of horses in the muggle world needing help as well. Basically they are all in safe places, but not anywhere permanent and not anywhere that has been trained to deal with rescues. It's certainly better than nothing, but there is another (very full) set of stables that has been trained in caring for these poor animals and they are willing to help train me and the kids (and anyone else who wants the skills) so that their load for caring for these animals can be lightened a bit.

I'd only want to start with the two that are in immediate danger while we are learning, but eventually what do you think about me running a bit of a horse rescue from the empty stables? I think it would be immensely satisfying. Plus, any money spent on their care and rehabilitation could potentially be made back when they are strong enough to sell. Obviously with a thorough background check and some follow-up visits just in case. It's a business that won't make us money, nor should it, but I think eventually it could become a business whose sales can cover the cost of the upkeep and it will be financially even. And then there's the emotional bonuses that will come from doing something so worthwhile!

So this Rodrigo sounds 'terrible.' You say he looks like Antonio Banderas? You think the description you gave makes me think he'll be plain? Yeah, no, he sounds gorgeous. I hope Lainie warms up to him quickly, because even if he looked like a troll, he sounds like his qualifications mean he'd be perfect for the job.

But what in Merlin's name did she mean "first Ethan and now Dad"? Does she mean Unity's old music teacher Ethan? Or someone else? What did Ethan do? Did she hire him at the school or something? Did HE hire her a fit assistant as well? It's actually been a while since I've heard from him. Have you seen him recently? Maybe I should call him up and see how he's doing.

Yeah, I think I'll do that.

I want my name on your lips,
Harry

Friday April 29th
Harry my love, my heart, my soul,

I have safe playgrounds wherever I can fit them and they don't earn me any money. WHY would I insist that you make money off of helping horses? I actually think it's brilliant, it's sort of the same thing as creating Unity Houses all over creation, but better because these animals will be coming here. The only thing I insist on is that you have Dibly at the very least and possibly Muffy and a couple of the other elves - maybe even hire on a few new ones specifically - help you care for the horses. This will ensure that they are fully trained and able to take care of the horses if you ever can't - such as us going on a last minute vacation to our island for a week.

Actually, I love animals and so I look forward to seeing them. I'll leave the work to you as I sense this is a calling for you, but I'll come in and make sure they are familiar with my scent and my touch so that I don't scare them if I ever do need to help out for any reason.

While you're off with Hagrid today figuring out how to transport two needy animals to our stables, I'll be at River's spa. The purpose is twofold. One, I'm bringing Elena in if I have to petrify her so that she holds still long enough, and we're going to have a daddy daughter spa day. And two, after we're all nice and pampered, I'm going to do as I said I would and start interviewing River's employees for managerial capability.

How did your chat with Ethan go? You know, I should probably go ask him if he has any interesting new instruments. It's also about that time of year when I should really make sure that his parents are ordering a few extra instruments every shipment and putting them aside for me so that I can give them out to needy children for Christmas.

Lastly, unlike at Elena's school - in which I have to wait for enough students with permission to take the class - My Combat Class for the Aurors will be starting this Monday night. Thus, I only have two days to figure out what to wear. I might need to go shopping! Lucky for me, River has finally found time in his busy schedule to have me take him shopping for his wedding attire. He's leaning toward muggle tuxes so that their pictures won't look weird if muggles come over to their house and look at them. Plus, Mahafsoun is more than likely going to want to show at least a couple of pictures off to her co-workers. In any case, I have a feeling it'll be one of those shopping trips in which River likes everything and can't decide on the perfect thing for him, and thus, I'll be necessary to tell him things like how his arse looks and no, that cut looks terrible on him.

Business as usual.

Damn, I like me better when I'm with you, I like me better when I'm with you, I knew from the first time, I'd stay for a long time 'cuz, I like me better when, I like me better when I'm with you, Draco
Chapter 21

Chapter Summary

Harry tells Draco about his weird visit with Ethan, and Draco tells Harry about his day with Elena at River's spa.

Friday April 29, 2016

My Love,

I have just a few minutes here so this will be quick. Hagrid is actually swapping out Hogwarts' Express' usual train cars for a car that can transport the horses. I was checking my emails to kill time while he does that and your email reminded me that I did not tell you how weird my chat with Ethan went.

So I show up, and while it's been a while since I've seen him, I've known the boy for what, fifteen years now? You wouldn't think he'd react in any other way to my showing up except a "Wow, hi Harry, it's been a while." Right?

No. I knock on the door, he opens it and I greet him with a big smile. I've heard it's a fairly good smile. It's won Witch Weekly's Most Charming Smile Award multiple times! And again, I've known the kid since he was a pimply teenager. And then do you know what the arse says to me? Do you? "God damn it! Did Elena send you?"

I tried to play it cool, chuckled lightly to myself and said, "Of course not, you know she doesn't need anyone to do her dirty work."

Fine! I'm a terrible liar! I giggled really awkwardly and rambled nonsensically, mostly saying "What? Huh? Why would Lainie send me here?" Which of course made him clam up, apparently aware that he put his foot in his mouth a bit, and refuse to say anything else on the subject.

And to make matters worse, he tried to pull a complete one eighty and act like he hadn't said anything weird and acted like this was any other visit between the two of us. Offered me a cuppa, asked about the family, and avoided any conversation having to do with Lainie.

But the good news is he had already started setting aside instruments for your usual annual order.

Hope you're enjoying your daddy daughter spa day! I'm going to go fall in love with some horses.

Confusedly Yours,
Harry

Saturday April 30th

My sunshine,

Since you were already passed out by the time I got home last night, and it wasn't even that late, so you must have worked hard AND emotionally exhausted yourself working with those horses - that I took a quick peek at and they're gorgeous - I didn't get a chance to tell you what happened.

I'm currently at a pub with River. He's so wound up that we've had absolutely no success shopping, so I'm planning to get him just drunk enough to relax. Thus, I have some time to write an email before we go to the next shop.

So, yesterday when I arrived at River's spa with Elena, who was grumbling mutinously but there under her own volition, River had arranged it so that we really did have practically the whole spa to ourselves so that we could help him train in some new hires. He has two new Massage Therapists and two new Estheticians. They started by massaging us under River's supervision. River - being brilliant - got his hands on the parts of us he knew needed the most work, while his trainees worked on the rest.

After the massage, we had a little bit of a soak in the hot tub, followed by facials. This part had River on a chair next to us as his lead Esthetician took over the supervision of the trainees. After facials, we all had manicures and pedicures - which explains why my nails are all painted a shiny metallic blue, if you'd noticed.

All of that was more or less normal, as was the fact that we sipped on smoothies as the day progressed. Eventually, Elena relaxed enough that she no longer seemed like a bow ready to shoot an arrow. THAT'S when River started in on her.

"Dad told me you're pregnant, Lainie. How the fuck did that happen? You're usually so bloody careful!"

"Fuck off, Riv!"

"Were you drunk?"

"Fuck off!"

"High?"

"Fuck off!!!"

"So bloody turned on that you WANTED to have his baby?"

"GOD DAMN IT!!! There's no bloody reason you need to know that I was invited to shag Ethan and his wife and I wanted it so badly that I MORONICALLY FORGOT the MERLIN-CURSED protection spells!!!"

"WHAT?????" Both River and I blurted out in shock.

"FUCK!!!" She burst out angrily as she realized that she'd just told us exactly what had happened.

Since we were currently getting pedicures, I had no qualms about reaching over and taking hold of her hand. "Oh love... If you were invited, then why are you so upset?"

That's when she burst out wailing a bit. "Daddy, don't you see?! I've had a crush on him for SO LONG! I jumped at the chance, even though I knew it was stupid, because I wanted to do it and get it done and stop wanting him somewhere in the back of my heart!"

"Yikes," River murmured in sympathy, holding her other hand.

Sniffing and trying to stop crying, Elena continued the explanation. "Ethan was honest, you know?
He explained to me that he and his wife were having troubles ever since their second was born, and they thought that maybe adding some spice to their sex life would help. I KNEW that it was going to be a one time thing, and I thought that would be perfect to get him out of my system, but for me at least, it just made everything worse!"

"Does Ethan know?" I wondered since you'd mentioned Ethan being a bit arseholey as well.

"No. I didn't want to tell him until I was certain it wouldn't cause trouble for him and his wife, but then he stopped by my school the other day to tell me that him and his wife have decided to go to therapy, and that - NOT that I expected there to be - but there was definitely not going to be a repeat. I was in an irrational mood to begin with and hearing that just made me start screeching like a banshee. I shouted at him to get out and bloody well leave me alone. I may have even said that I never fucking want to see him again!"

Ah, so that explains why Ethan thought Elena might have sent you to talk to him on her behalf.

The good news is that by the time our spa day was over, Elena was a whole lot calmer and more at peace with life in general. Both River and I took turns giving her long hugs before we said goodbye to her, and she promised not to return to work, instead, spending the rest of the day just moping about her flat, eating ice cream and watching bad telly.

Then I terrorized River's employees - who are used to dealing with a Hufflepuff (because let's be honest, he would have been) - by interrogating, I mean interviewing them. Yeah, so, our little Hufflepuff has managed to hire a whole shop full of Hufflepuffs, which is wonderful when it comes to caring for clients, but TERRIBLE when it comes to managing a business full of employees. River does a good enough job of it because he's learned things from me, Pippa, and Viona over the years. He's not a manager by nature but knows enough about what he's doing to get by capably.

Therefore, if his business has any chance of surviving without him, he most definitely needs a person like Pippa running things while he's gone. So, Monday (before my Auror class), I'm going to be going back over all those applicants I just interviewed for Elena, and weeding through them with River in mind. It shouldn't take as long because I already asked a lot of questions and will be able to actually narrow down the selection before even calling any of them back for a second interview.

But as for now, River seems a lot more cheerful and less like you before a gala, so I think it's time to finish our shopping. Wish me luck!

Constantly, boy you played through my mind like a symphony, There's no way to describe what you do to me, You just do to me, what you do, And it feels like I've been rescued, I've been set free, I am hypnotized by your destiny, You are magical, lyrical, beautiful, You are, and I want you to know baby, I, I love you like a love song, baby, Draco
Chapter 22

Chapter Summary

Harry wants to curse a man, and Draco has his first class.

Sunday, May 1, 2016

He said nothing to me. He acted like nothing was wrong and like he hadn't taken advantage of my baby girl and her feelings and a decade of her crushing on him! He has the bollocks to invite me in for a cuppa, likely in the same house he got my baby pregnant in an attempt to what … save his marriage? What in the actual fuck.

And you and I both know that spicing up a sex life with outside influences is never going to be something that saves a marriage. It only works when your relationship is loving and stable and everyone is on board. It's not something you just throw out there because you think shagging a young beautiful woman will make you more in love with your wife!

I'm going to kill him. Maybe not kill him. Maybe I'll just go all Princess Bride 'to the pain' on his sorry arse. And he goes to her work, sees my baby girl is emotional and thinks telling her it's never going to happen again is the right choice? Hey, nice school you've built with your blood sweat and tears, sorry about whatever seems to be bothering you, but I just need to let you know I'm never going to shag you again. Ta! Thanks for the shag!

Maybe I don't kill him. Maybe I figure out one of those STD curses. You know what really brings an ailing marriage together Ethan? Makes you feel real close to your spouse? Chlamydia.

Breathe Harry, breathe. She was a fully consenting adult. You shouldn't kill him. She made her choices. He made his choices.

Alright, I will neither kill him nor curse him with some permanent affliction.

What about just a case of crabs? That's totally curable and not going to really hurt him in any way.

Fine. Be an adult about it. See what I care.

Anyway, our horses are doing well settling in I think. They both seem to be responding well to the constant petting and brushing and affection the children are giving them. As well as not being assaulted with warding magic. Plus a clean space to live, plenty of space to run, and as much healthy food as they need.

The not so great thing that happened though, I let the children name the horses. Obviously we don't know what their former owners named them, and Hagrid names animals terrible names. Seriously, a dragon named Norbert. Honestly man. But letting five-year-olds choose the names isn't all that much better. The gold colored mare is Cheesecake and the dark brown is Fondue. Yeah, our horses are named Cheesecake and Fondue. Not only should you never have small children name horses, but you definitely shouldn't have them do it while hungry.
How did drowning River's sorrows go last night? How can it possibly be this hard to find him a tux for his wedding? He's handsome, his frame is practically built for formal wear, and money is no object. Has he thought about asking Eris and Hazel to design one for him? They did such an amazing job with Maha's dress that I'm certain they could pull off something spectacular for him.

Grooms are crazy I tell ya! It's a good thing you and I were both so calm cool and collected on our wedding day!

Your Groom For Always,
Harry James Malfoy

Monday May 2nd

Why no, Elena, I have no idea why Ethan suddenly has Crabs.

See? I can sound utterly believable, and if you don't, I just might do it myself.

So today has been beautiful so far. You woke Zaire up to his traditional birthday breakfast, and apparently, he forced himself to stay in bed and pretend he was still sleeping this year. Then he helped you make breakfast for the rest of the kids.

We had a lovely family lunch in which he opened his presents. No surprise, but he got a lot of trains. I gave him a lovely red engine. You gave him another of those beautiful Disney train cars. My parents gave him an even bigger train track and set than last year. One might think that he'd be sick of them by now, but he never fails to be so amazed and grateful for each and every one he gets that I think it's mostly a competition to get him a bigger and better one than the year before.

Think we'll stop before he has his own full-sized, functional Hogwarts' Express?

After lunch, Zaire begged you to take him, Jaz, and Shtara to Unity Park. I was more than happy to not be included in those plans, and my parents were happy to watch the trouble-trio. Thus, after you left, I was able to finish up hiring a manager for River.

I got so into what I was doing that while I was introducing him to River (he's another gorgeous one, named Felix of all things, but I suppose we don't have to worry about River being attracted to him, and who knows, maybe his clients will LOVE having something nice to look at), I lost all track of time and nearly forgot about my first class.

Thankfully, Pippa reminded me when she noticed I wasn't already at the Ministry when I would have liked to be in order to prepare things for my class. After receiving her Insta-owl, I exclaimed: "Ah!" and kissed River on the cheek so I could rush off before remembering that I was wearing soft white cotton spa gloves to help protect my hands while some of that luxurious new hand potion of River's soaked in.

Anyway, lucky for me that I had on a very strange outfit. I was wearing what would be called yoga pants in America (male ones, over my heavenly silk pants) in black. I'm really not sure what we call them here as I don't recall ever seeing them in any of the local shops. I suppose yoga bottoms. Not important.

Since my bottoms were black, they worked well enough as suit trousers, so it wasn't immediately obvious that my suit jacket and waistcoat were paired with the wrong trousers completely. Under my waistcoat, I had a dark blue singlet. I completely forgot that I'd also had my hair ever so lightly frosted shades of blue at the tips Friday during my spa day, so I could have easily picked a green
Anyway, my hair was pulled back in a tight and orderly man bun to begin with, as I had wanted to make a good impression with the interviewees and orderly was the only thing my hair felt like doing this morning.

Thus, the first impression that my students had of me as I walked into the room a full two minutes late, was of a posh bloke in a bespoke business suit. Not a bad first impression, if I'm honest.

About half of the class was current Aurors who have worked with me before, who obviously need to maintain or refresh their hand to hand combat skills. The rest were students in training who still have no real idea what it means to be an Auror. They clearly think that it's a glamorous job, leading to glory as they bring in criminal after criminal. Their sheer naivety makes me want to terrorize them mercilessly so that they leave my class MUCH better prepared for reality.

Bletchley was on hand to introduce me to the class as he teaches Intro to Auror Techniques, and so, they've all been in his class or worked with him. "Listen up lads!" He called out even though there were three or four women out of the class of about 20. "This is Draco Malfoy and he'll be your combat instructor from now on."

"Thanks mate," I said with a friendly smile.

He looked me up and down in confusion. "You're planning to teach hand to hand combat in a suit? Very Kingsmen of you."

I grinned at him. "Good point. I'll have to do that eventually, not to mention have them wear FULL Auror uniforms as class progresses. But for now, no. I simply had other things to do today that required a bit more class." I explained as I pulled my spa gloves off (they looked like regular gloves, so that wasn't weird combined with my suit jacket). Then I pulled off my jacket and waistcoat in one go and slipped out of my shiny black business shoes, leaving me wearing only my bottoms and singlet (and pants, of course. No need to be even sexier than I have to be, heh heh). Well, naturally, I was wearing my wedding band and all my nails were still a nice, shiny, metallic blue.

I tried to act as if I was deaf, but I heard one of the women gasp: "DAMN!" A glance in her direction showed that she was very appreciative of the way I looked. You know, I'm not actually used to the people that I'm teaching or sparring with being attracted to me as they're mostly our kids, my aunt, and Unity Kids that need a bit of anger management.

She then glanced at a bloke who I hadn't had a chance to actually meet yet, but who was very overtly gay. He also looked like he was ready to eat me up. Clearing my throat, I pointed to the large mats all over the floor.

"These are as cushiony as I could make them, but don't get too used to them. They will be getting less cushioned until they disappear altogether. By the end of this course, you will be quite used to getting thrown up against a wall or a hard floor. You will be bruised in each class. You MIGHT break something and need a quick healing spell or a trip to a Healer. You WON'T leave here wondering why this class is necessary as I'll be sure to tell you all about various situations in which each skill has come in handy in the past."

As Bletchley was still on hand, presumably to answer questions should I need a second authority on hand, I decided to gesture to him and trap him into being my practice dummy. "You are all familiar with Bletchley, right? Well he's decently competent in combat, so I feel confident having him help me demonstrate a few things."
Bletchley immediately spotted his mistake and paled a bit, but nodded and gamely agreed to help out. "Erm.. right."

I then swept his feet out from under him. "First lesson, ALWAYS be on guard. You're going to be Aurors going into situations in which an unseen assailant could be lurking behind anything. THIS is what can happen if you aren't alert." I helped Bletchley up. "Or worse." I tossed Bletchley over my shoulder and immediately straddled his back with my pointer finger in his spine. "He'd already be dead if he was this inattentive on a mission."

"Oi!" Bletchley protested indignantly. "If you'd just give me a chance to prepare myself, I'd do much better!"

I leaned over and spoke softly, deadly, in his ear. "Are the criminals going to give you a moment to prepare?"

"Erm, no. I suppose not," he admitted in defeat. I stood up and helped him up again, only this time, I didn't attack him.

"These are only a couple of examples of the things you will be attempting to learn in this class." I looked a small and rather mouse-like young man in the eyes as he squirmed and clearly wished he could vanish on the spot. "But even if you never manage to master throwing a man over your shoulder, don't be discouraged. Learning how to BE THROWN is just as valuable as - if it happens - you'll know how to recover and roll so that you land safely. Your opponent will expect you to be dazed and disoriented, but you won't be."

I stopped looking him in the eye and returned to the center of the group. "So that's exactly what we're going to be starting with. I'm going to go around and toss each of you over my shoulder. You can try to defend yourself if you like, it won't work. As I do, I'll point out how to roll with the toss. Hopefully, by the time I'm ready to move onto showing you other things, you'll have accepted this part of it - as you will be doing a LOT of landing on your arse during sparring - and you won't be afraid of it happening. You'll be ready for it."

Then I smirked rather evilly. "Who wants to go first?"

Bletchley suddenly checked his watch and exclaimed: "Blimey! Is that the time?! I'm late for dinner and my wife's going to MURDER me!"

Since he's not one of my students, I let him go.

So... the good news is that all of my students survived their first class. The bad news is that none of them are the slightest bit competent in combat and would have died out in the field had this been a real battle. I took them out for a round of drinks after class, so if you wonder why I smell a bit ripe when you wake up, that's why. Unfortunately, I'm just tired and achy enough that I'm going to finish up this email, and then wrap myself around you before probably passing out.

Wake me up to your hot mouth shortly before noon, yeah?

'Cuz it makes me that much stronger, Makes me work a little bit harder, It makes me that much wiser, So thanks for making me a fighter,
Draco

P.S. By that, I mean you make me keep fighting for our best future together ^_^

P.P.S. River now has a gorgeous tuxedo that looks brilliant on him, so, he's a bit, erm... LESS panicky than he was. Honestly, all he really has to do is let Portia and Pippa do everything. And Mahafsoun once she gets back. Sheesh...
Chapter 23

Chapter Summary

Harry is curious about names and Draco has plans for Amala.

Tuesday May 3rd
MY Husband,

You know, with the new babies about to join our family, and then with these horses coming to our home and the subsequent naming of them, I'm just so curious about names lately. You know I've always been interested in names. For instance, what is the name of the Auror or Auror in training who looked at your body and declared "DAMN!"? Or what is the name of the obviously gay guy who looked at you like he wanted to eat you all up? You know, for curiosity.

I'm just so interested in names, 'the damn lady', 'the ogler', Ethan … all names I like having at my disposal.

Speaking of my baby who's having a baby, I was really surprised to find out you'd told River about Elena being pregnant. I thought we weren't supposed to tell anyone but each other. Or did you have to tell him since he and his team were massaging her? Are there certain techniques that are better for or can't be done on pregnant women? I'm sure as a man who's been pregnant multiple times in the past I should probably know this, but I lay down on that table and my brain just shuts off. I become nothing but a lump of muscles.

She probably knew why he'd been told then since she didn't start shrieking at you, or calling me if she thought he meant me, about how dare we give away her secret. She's a smart woman, this shouldn't surprise me.

What does surprise me, as it seems to still surprise you, is how in love with trains Zaire continues to be. I know a lot of small children like trains but usually they eventually outgrow the obsession. Our Z never did. I think they're pretty damn cool myself so I certainly don't blame the kid. I think it's funny that you ask if we won't stop until he has a fully functioning Hogwarts Express. You think we'd stop there if it goes that far? My boy can have a train that puts the Express to shame if that's what he wants!

Zaire Malfoy's Bullet Train they'll call it!

His day at Unity Park seemed a little more on brand for a ten-year-old boy. We ate way too many sweets, rode every ride at least once, giggled so hard we almost retched up the sweets we'd gorged ourselves on, and took about a billion pictures. I still can't get over our tiny little boy, who came to us so small and angry, malnourished and flinching, is now this tall embodiment of health and joy. He's so rarely without a smile. I did get caught up in the fun of the day, but every so often it would just hit me how amazing it was that this young man is here with us, safe and sound and HAPPY.

It's almost time for your wake-up call, and I've been up for hours. I got in a solid run this morning, stopping partway to check on Cheesecake and Fondue, came home and had breakfast, showered, made a few calls about some potential rescues that we may be getting this upcoming week, and wrote most of this email. I'm feeling pretty darn productive so far, and it's not even noon!
Oh, actually one of the calls I made was to my publishing house. We're roughly six months out from the 'final' book in my series coming out, Harry Potter and the Camping Trip from the Underworld. Which means right around the time we get back from California and start prepping for the kids to head back from Hogwarts I'll be headed out on what will likely be my final book tour. My first tour was long and extensive, my second a bit shorter and mostly local, the rest have been a mixture of the two. But this last one is going to be a doozy. I'm excited but nervous. Good thing I have months to really work myself up about it …

Alright, time to fulfill your request for a warm, wet alarm!

Love you,
Harry

Tuesday May 3rd
Silly puppy,

Why would I know the names of my students? It's not necessary unless they impress me or fuck up so badly that I have to write them up.

As for Elena, yes it's important for the therapist working on her to know that she's pregnant as they might need to avoid certain areas or use cushions or more comfortable positions. You never noticed because Aya always magicked her table to adjust to the bump automatically, I figured that River would be the one working on Elena and told him for that reason, and she deduced the reason the moment he brought it up. So she doesn't feel like I betrayed a confidence in this situation.

That said, she is resigned to the fact that River will probably chat about it with Viona, Eri, Ori, and Hazel, in which case, the whole family will know very soon, if they don't already. I'm not sorry as I feel that having Viona to talk to at the very least will be beneficial for Elena. Sisters and all that.

Ooo! So we're getting new horses already? I can't wait. The peeks I've taken have shown two beauties that need a lot of love. I witnessed Caelum hugging and kissing Fondue like he'd just found his best friend, so I rather think we might be keeping these horses at the very least.

But speaking of the horses, apparently the light scent I picked up while peeking at them was offensive enough to Amala that she pinned me down and growled as she rubbed her scent all over me, so I had to spend a few hours petting and massaging her and reminding her that she is still my pretty kitty. But... If I reek of Cheetah when you see me next, that's why.

Also speaking of Amala, I've decided that the first half of my Wednesday class, I'm going to bring them all here so I can make them run on your track as they all CLEARLY need to get in much better shape. And the moment they start complaining that I'm going too hard on them, I'm going to have Amala chase them to give them proper incentive.

But I'm fully awake and ready to start my day now - thank you so much for the wonderful wake up - so I'm going to hunt you down and see what you're doing. Who knows, maybe you'll be free and we can go dancing in the ballroom.

You're an obsession, you're my obsession,
Draco
Chapter 24

Chapter Summary

Draco's class is in for a lovely surprise.

Wednesday May 4, 2016

Darling,

At this point I don't think either of us can say a single word about the other smelling of wild animal. I have spent so much time in the stables since the horses got here, and even before they came just to prepare the space, that I am sure I smell of hay and leather at all times.

Yes, we are getting two more horses within the next day or so. I didn't expect to get more than these two magical rescues for a while but they were a bit desperate. Apparently one of the places the official rescue has relied on in the past to foster when they're full had a barn fire. So not only is the rescue almost dangerously full right now, but their usual overflow had to find placements for those animals. Normally they wouldn't risk rescue animals on an unknown brand new stable, but their desperation pushed them to make the call.

The fact that the owner of the rescue is friends with my connection at Muggle Children's Protective Services and Jenna was willing to vouch for me was the tipping point to trust me. I guess a decade and a half dealing with orphaned children made them think I might be able to be trusted with horses.

The two that are showing up soon are very likely to be temporary placements. Just until the burnt stables can be rebuilt or until forever homes can be found for them. I might be trustworthy, but I'm still a newbie so they are sending their two most rehabilitated horses this way. None that need a lot of extra attention. However, I am about ninety-nine percent sure that Cheesecake and Fondue will be here for the duration of their lives. Unless Caelum moves out someday and takes his horse with him. If you wake up in the middle of the night and find Cael is missing you'll probably want to add the stables to your list of places to check.

Are you actually planning on bringing your class here to run this evening? Do you want us to clear out and make sure to head to Movie Night at Unity? Or would you like me to hang back and run circles around your students? Maybe watching an old man like me leave them in the dust will motivate them to work a bit harder. And if that doesn't work, we sic Amala on them.

Maybe we don't sic her on all of them, perhaps just one or two. Possibly we decide based on who looks at you too long.

Wow, I don't normally get quite this possessive. I might have to take you and mark you up a bit before your class so they know exactly who you belong to. I am feeling quite territorial. Would you like that Love? Want me to mark up all that pretty skin so everyone knows you're mine? Leave your skin hyper sensitive so the slightest breeze can remind you of how it felt when I sunk my teeth into you? Hmm?

Or maybe I ask you so sweetly to wear some silky knickers under your joggers tonight. Every time you stretch to take on a combatant you can feel the silk slide across your pretty cock.

Or I can come find you and ride you until I come all over your chest. Then I can rub it into your skin until my claim on you is practically a part of your body.

Fuck, I've got myself good and worked up. Hope you have time for some or all of that before your class.

You are MINE,
Harry

Wednesday May 4th
My heart,

Whatever God I have to thank for you being very possessive and horny lately, remind me to sacrifice a 100 kilogram box of chocolates to. I LOVE the fact that you wanted to mark and own me. We spent a good three hours in bed this afternoon just being together and doing all those things you suggested.

You started by sucking a lovely bruise onto my neck, so even if I had a fully covering shirt on, it would still be seen. Then you rode me quite leisurely for a long time, making my toes curl and my back arch, but denying me my orgasm (not with a spell, just by simply slowing down) until you were ready to pump your load all over me. At that point, you sped up so that I could get there at the same time as you.

Then, just as you promised, you massaged your spunk into my chest so that I smelled very strongly of you. We lay curled around each other, simply kissing, until it was time for me to get ready for my class. At that point, you led me into the closet and picked out a nice pair of satin and lace knickers for me to wear under my track suit.

It was right about then that Pippa popped into the room to let me know that she had indeed seen to it so that my class had a floo connected directly to the Manor track. Also, she'd made sure to put up a large and very noticeable sign that told my students to take a pinch of floo powder, toss it in the waiting fire, and call out Malfoy Track as they stepped in.

Side note, we had a fire pit added just off to the side of the start of the track so that they can step out of the pit and be exactly where I need them to be.

Once I had my track suit on - which was fashionably done in shades of blue - you helped me pull my hair into a messy pony tail. I know, my hair is only just barely long enough for a pony or a man bun, but having it just fly however it likes when I'm running annoys me, so pony it is.

Once ready, it was about 10 minutes to 5 - which is the start of my class - so I had just enough time to grab a quick and small bite to eat, and actually, opted for a smoothie. You had already dropped the kids off at Unity House to play before we started our bed exercises, so you had nothing urgent to do until closer to 6 - which was when the movie starts.

So, you slipped your hand in mine and walked with me to the running track. Actually, you Apparated us to right next to the track and then we walked the last few feet from there.

"Eeek! Harry Potter!" The timid young man squeaked when he spotted you, clearly not expecting someone so famous to just casually walk up to a group he was part of.
"Just Harry is fine, or if that's too informal for you, he actually prefers Mr. Malfoy," I explained.

"Damn straight!" You exclaimed. "Actually not straight as I am very very gay."

I rolled my eyes and shook my head. "Still with that joke?"

"Always," you promised with a flirty smile at me.

"Harry, this is my class. Class, this is my husband Harry, yes used to be Potter. Any other time and he'd probably be delighted to shake hands and sign autographs, but right now, class is due to start in just two minutes and he's rather eager to get to running." I gestured to indicate your gorgeous track suit in shades of green, in case they somehow missed the obvious.

Then I realized that I actually hadn't explained that part yet. "So, as you've probably guessed by now, I've decided that none of you will be any sort of competent in learning hand to hand combat until you've improved your physical condition at least a little. I'm not expecting professional athlete here, simply fit enough to defend yourself from attackers who'd quite like to murder you. Depending on how well you do here, that may very well be me."

Then I paused so that I could kiss your hand. "Harry was delighted for the opportunity to help out. He LOVES to run and will remind me if I forget the important things like proper stretches. So, without belaboring the point, lets get right to it, shall we?"

Without waiting for an answer, I directed my students to form lines and maintain enough space to stretch without banging into each other. Once you nodded that they were sufficiently warmed up, having beautifully helped demonstrate the stretches when I described them, I stood in front of them and addressed them again.

"Harry here is going to lead the way. I'm purposely going to go slow enough to be the last runner so that I can observe you and let the stragglers know what they're doing wrong. The best advice for running is to pace yourself and remember to breathe. We are lucky in that there're actually a few handy charms to keep us hydrated and breathing steadily - as opposed to too fast. I'll cast those on you as needed. IF you think you are a decent runner already, feel free to try to keep up with my husband. IF you complain for any reason, I have a special treat in store for you. You'll love it, I promise," I vowed with a charming grin.

And with that, you took off and encouraged them all to follow you. As I'd 'lectured,' I'd noticed most of the students eyeing me and my love bite as if wondering how professional it was to show up to class looking like a stupid bloody teenager, but after glancing at you and seeing the gorgeously smug expression on your face, probably shook it off as me losing a bet or something. As the majority of the students took off right after you, it was only the two that previously had liked what they saw that ended up blushing with embarrassment as they realized that they were still standing there staring at me rather lustily while the other students were already chasing after you.

Probably more embarrassing for them was that I was giving them a rather pointed and not very friendly look, even crossing my arms and tilting my head until they got the point that I couldn't start running until after they were. Extremely red in the face, they took off like a rocket after you, clearly not following any advice on how to run without hurting themselves.

Oh well, I suppose that if they can't move tomorrow, they'll pay more attention the next time and get it right. Happily, the majority of the Aurors and trainees are actually required to use the Ministry fitness facilities on a regular basis, and while that certainly doesn't guarantee fitness, it does at least mean that most of them knew how not to overexert themselves in the first five minutes.

Twenty minutes later, almost everyone but you (and that one bloke that actually is a decent runner) had slowed down and was sort of half walking half running. More or less PRETENDING to run while really trying to half arse it. I was calling out encouragement.

"You call this running?! MY KIDS can run better than this!!! I bet my kids could kick your arses in hand to hand combat too! What ARE you DOING??! Impersonating a duck??!!"

At around 25 minutes, the thing I was waiting for happened. The man who coincidentally happened to be the least in shape gasped out: "This is insane! He's going to kill us!"

Laughing maniacally, I cried out: "Accio Amala!" This naturally had Amala at my side in about 10 seconds. I pointed at the complainer and commanded: "Get 'im girl!" To which she complied and he shrieked like a little girl and put far more effort into his running than he had all evening. As did a few others.

Lucky for him, five minutes later, I called Amala off and insisted that everyone walk sedately for five minutes before leading them through more stretches. Then I called for Muffy to bring out refreshments so that each person got exactly one of your freshly baked biscuits and a cup of tea - along with a big glass of water. As I ate my biscuit, I purred in enjoyment.

"Lemon Ginger, among my very favorite," I murmured, giving you a kiss.

You smiled and informed me that: "I was trying a new recipe that is supposed to bring out the ginger a little more, using maple syrup as a sweetener so that it's not TOO sweet, and yet, has a nice addition to the flavor."

"Delicious, as always," I praised, which made you happy. Then you sighed a tiny bit morosely.

"I should probably get to Unity while they're still making popcorn and snag a bowl and my favorite seat. I'll miss you."

"I'll miss you too," I assured you, letting you kiss me as much as you wanted before Apparating away.

Then I turned back to my class. "Right, so now that the easy portion of the evening is over, we'll return to the classroom and start on the hard stuff, yeah?"

Nearly all of my students groaned, and the one Amala chased looked like he might legitimately die if he had to get up off the ground anytime soon. As for my beautiful girl, she was purring and looking rather amused as she watched him. She sat on my feet and started chewing on my hand.

"Oh no, you're not coming, love. I don't need Kingsley hexing my arse because I let a wild animal loose in his Ministry," I informed her and she looked rather put out with me, even biting my hand hard enough to puncture me with one of her incisors. "Stop, now I'm going to have to heal that. Muffy, bring Amala to her enclosure."

Muffy popped up to do exactly that, but before she could, Amala decided to jump up and put her paws on my shoulders so that she could glare at me. I know she hates to be in her enclosure, but until I can trust that she's not going to bother your horses, I'm not willing to let her run free without supervision. I stared her down until she sighed and sat back on my feet. Then Muffy took her away.

After that, to my students' great dismay, I proved that I was serious about the rest of class. We returned to the training room, and then I paired them all up so that they could learn the maneuver to sweep a person's feet out from under them. It may seem like a strange thing to teach them in their second class, but remember, Krav Maga specializes in self defense in the most physically economical way possible, and so, relatively easy moves that can incapacitate an opponent are good to learn first. After all, what good does it to know how to punch a person if you can't get through their defenses?

You don't need to know every tedious detail, but I will just say that you were right about every movement in those knickers!

Hornily devoted to you,
Draco
Friday May 6, 2016

My Heart,

We are exactly eight days away from the wedding, heading into the last weekend before the big day. Mahafsoun is finally back in town, and tempers and anxieties are flaring all over the place. You won't judge me if I hide in our rooms for a while right? I love wedding planning, but all the different conflicting personalities are putting me on edge.

Maybe I can ask Tabitha to pretend there's some emergency at Unity that I'm needed for?

Oh! Never mind! I have something I can legitimately do that will keep me out of the line of fire. I need to give the horses some extra TLC. Normally myself and the elves take care of a lot of the actual chores and the kids are responsible for the loving stuff; talking with them, petting and spoiling them with apples, brushing them until they glisten. But this weekend they've got fittings for their wedding clothes and Maha has set them up with some fun project. I think they're decorating the runner or the arch? Which means those horses NEED me to go hide in the stables with them.

Don't judge me man! These people are insane!

I had to laugh when you said you wanted to sacrifice chocolate to whichever God or Goddess put me in this perpetual horny and possessive state. That led me to think about which deity would be considered the God of Horniness or Possessiveness. Uhhh .... all of them? They shagged and fought over their possessions all over the globe if the stories are all to be believed.

It has not abated at all. I want you constantly. I'd worry that maybe something is wrong with me, but I think you and I are both enjoying the side effects so let's just take it as the blessing it is alright? It's not too much different from usual, you and I shag A LOT. It's really just the possession that's different. And again, not so much different as more intense. I've always had a jealous streak when it comes you to.

You love it.

Your class on Wednesday was a bit eye opening. I am afraid for our world if those are the people defending it. Complaining after a mere twenty-five minutes of running? I wouldn't judge a civilian for being winded or tired after that short of a timespan, everyone has different limits and it's unlikely they will ever NEED to have the kind of stamina distance running requires. But what are these punks going to do if they're ever in a situation where they need to chase a perp? What if they end up in a lengthy duel? What if there are anti-apparition wards and they have to book it out of an unsafe situation?

While I enjoyed shaming them a bit, it's probably unfair of you to use "my kids can run faster than you and could beat you in hand to hand combat." Our kids have been running with me since they were toddlers and been training in Krav Maga from roughly the same age. It's not like getting their arses handed to them by any five or six-year-old, ours are an extreme example.

Although it would be hilarious to see any of them taken out by Seph. Can you imagine those grown adults being taken down by a pixie of a girl of 104 cm (41 inches) and only 17 kg (35 pounds)? How much do you want to bet they'd cry?

Probably as much as I wanted to cry when you told them that I'd normally love to shake hands and sign autographs. Not cool Draco, why would you say that? I'm going to end up running into some of them on Diagon and have to explain to them that you were being an arse and I don't actually ever sign autographs. To be fair, by the time that happens I am sure they will be well aware you're an arse!

We definitely missed you for Movie Night, but don't worry you didn't miss anything new. Next week we're doing Moana and I think you'll be upset to have missed that one. I hear the music is insane. But this past week we went old school. Movie Night happened to land on Star Wars Day! How could we not watch Star Wars? And since The Force Awakens just came out that's the one we chose. It was SOOOOOO good!

Alright, if I am going to hide in the stables I should probably head out there before someone finds me in here and puts me to work.

Yours,
Harry

Saturday May 7th
My brilliant husband,

I really must commend you for having horses who desperately need you at all times. It's sheer brilliance and astonishing foresight to have them come in exactly when you need THEM to keep you busy. I must say that I'd never really seen a glimpse of Slytherin in you like you say the Hat insisted, until now.

As for me, I'm spending the day with the happy couple and Portia. We're going cake tasting. Also, Mahafsoun has a dozen or so pictures of the various styles she likes that her personal stylist has tested out on her, and she'd quite like me and Portia to look them over and vote for our favorites.

So, I'm going to have the arduous task of sipping on tea, eating cake, and giving my opinion. I may not survive! Especially with River back in panicky mode.

I'll let you know if I'm in need of a rescue.

Love you like never before,
Draco
P.S. Before I forget again, I actually HAVE accomplished a lot over the past week without even realizing it. I've actually managed to book the entire town of Hogsmeade next year for Viona's wedding, and so, the date is now set: Sunday July 9th 2017

P.P.S. While I will admit to being an arse, you, my love, have made it part of your career to sign things and shake peoples hands - and sometimes even give them hugs. I didn't think I was being particularly arseholey by mentioning that, and besides, I DID tell them you didn't want to do it just then, hrmph.
Chapter 26

Chapter Summary

First it's Hazel's birthday, and then it's the Hen Party (and Stag Do).

Friday May 13, 2016

My Strength,

Remind me again why I didn't try to talk River and Maha out of holding their wedding the day after Hazel's birthday? I was only thinking about them not needing to change it since they were technically different days. But I didn't take into account that it would be stressful for ME!

Fine, fine, fine, apparently I have been very selfish since I purposefully scheduled an intake of rescue horses just so I wouldn't have to help with wedding planning. Next you'll probably say I was the one who started the barn fire which caused the issues in the first place! You know I did not plan this specifically to get out of dealing with panicky River duty. It just so happened to coincide and I took advantage of the situation. I might be part Slytherin, but there's definitely Gryffindor in me! I won't cause an issue to get my way, I'll only twist it around until it suits my own purposes.

Today was lovely with Hazel, I went to Hogwarts early in the morning to pick her up for birthday festivities and then grabbed the rest of our Hogwarts crew so they could be home in plenty of time for rehearsing tonight and then last minute wedding prep tomorrow. We got home where I had breakfast waiting, a bit of a change in our birthday routine but Haz assured me that she'd rather have my breakfast a bit late than sit in the Great Hall no matter how delicious the elves make the food.

You were there so I don't exactly need to go into vivid detail, but wasn't the design studio amazing? Obviously Hazel and Eris have been designing their own fashions for years, but this technology where you can essentially design and then create your own fabrics is so cool. This way they don't have to rely on pre-designed fabric to make their clothes. And the designers of the printing program seemed quite interested in Hazel's critiques.

I certainly didn't understand what they were talking about, but it seemed while she loved their tech there were some places she could see improvement that they hadn't necessarily thought about. She did apologize at one point, "This tech is amazing, I don't want you to think I'm anything less than completely impressed!"

They assured her that as long as someone's being respectful, constructive criticism can only benefit them. Basically letting her know that that's why they were so excited for her to visit them, they know her (and Eri's) work and were hopeful they'd get some ideas from a designers' perspective and not just their technological perspective.

I'm just waiting for dinner to come out of the ovens and I'll meet up with you and the rest of our group. I'm sure we'll talk about the wedding, but I'm just excited to have our whole family sitting down together and catching up. We have the best kids and I love seeing them all together.

Loving You,
Harry

P.S. You must not be paying attention very well when I sign things out in public. I ONLY sign things for children. With the exception of when I have signed a thing or two to auction off for a charity, I always politely refuse adult requests for my signature.

Saturday May 14th
Witch Weekly's Most Charming Smile Award Recipient,

What's that? You mean you DON'T sign anything that holds still long enough??? Weird.....

It's currently earlier than I like to be awake. Yesterday was interesting in that after our big family rehearsal dinner, it was time for Mahafsoun's hen party and River's stag do. They decided that it was time to split up so that they didn't see each other again until the wedding. So I went with Portia, Elena (and Kisa, who's in town to commiserate with Elena now that the whole story has come out. Remind me to check on Ethan's health and safety tomorrow), a few of Mahafsoun's friends from her telly show, and Viona, who is not technically old enough in the muggle world, but HAS reached the age of majority in the wizarding world. Plus Eliza, Della, Delphini, Leah, and Pippa.

Meanwhile, you were at River's party with Gavin, Philip, Mac, Tommy, Miles and Colm, Teddy, Finn, and most of River's spa employees. Apparently, even a few of his best clients came as well. I can only assume shenanigans were involved. Perhaps Sebastian even deigned to show up for five minutes to pass out potions as party favors, hahaha.

But as for the hen party, Holy Salazar! I'm not certain I've drank that much alcohol in YEARS!!! We were singing Karaoke (badly) and just generally having a lark, until Elena's surprise (not that much of a surprise, to be honest) of a half dozen male strippers showed up. That activated Mahafsoun's Veela allure, which even though SHE couldn't do anything, still affected everyone else. But before you panic that I participated in debauchery with TWO of our daughters - not to mention my sisters - let me assure you that things did not get any more out of hand than being really touchy feely and a bit of snogging.

I'm fairly certain Elena brought one of the strippers home with her and Kisa, but she IS 25, and I had to accept a long time ago that I couldn't think about things like that too closely.

The highlight of the night was when I was dancing with Mahafsoun and we were both rather pissed by that point. She started sobbing, which shocked everyone into silence - even the music was cut off. Wailing and highly emotional, Mahafsoun blubbered on and on about how she owes her entire life to me and how she could never thank me enough. She was hugging me so tightly that I could barely breathe and was feeling rather woozy. I rubbed her back and tried to soothe her like any other of my daughters.

Then she started demanding something that took me a few moments to understand because she wasn't exactly coherent.

"Will you?? Say you will!!! Merlin damnit, you HAVE to!!!!"

She was shaking me emphatically at this point and I had to break her grip on me and control the urge to vomit.

"Will I what??" I asked in bafflement.
"Will you walk me down the aisle?!!"

I was extremely manly and composed as I calmly agreed. Alright fine! So I was drunk and NOT in control of my emotions as I bawled and wailed, hugging her and stroking her, erm... back. I am pretty sure the word yes came out at some point, because she started sobbing and hugging me all over again. I'm dead certain one of our daughters - probably the pregnant (and thus sober) one, took plenty of pictures of the highly undignified moment, so you'll be able to see it for yourself.

After that, things are a bit blurry, but I'm pretty sure we devolved into drunken heathens and ended up in a barfight. Kisa almost certainly punched someone. Mahafsoun bit a neck. I think Viona may have broken a chair over someone's back. I recall possibly holding part of a shattered bottle against someone's chest... We were definitely tossed out on our arses (after winning the fight), and I'm reasonably certain Pippa paid them all off so that none of us woke up in jail on such an important day.

Speaking of waking up, I had SUCH a bloody hangover! It was so bad that I inadvertently drank COFFEE before the hangover potion kicked in! Blech!

I'm currently in with the bridal party (which unsurprisingly looks rather rough and hungover still) as everyone is having their makeup done, their hair styled, and any last minute alterations to dresses performed. I'm naturally in a gorgeous set of dress robes in soft green outlined in dark green and contrasted with gold. I had to have the style witches change my light frosting from blue to green and gold (done impeccably so that I don't look like I have moss or slime in my hair), and my nails were also changed from metallic blue to emerald green.

Hazeris have really outdone themselves with this wedding! I am seriously impressed, and that's after YEARS of seeing how amazing our girls are! But OH! It sounds like the music is starting, which must mean that it's time for me to stop writing and prepare to go escort my honorary and soon to be actual daughter down the aisle.

Love you more than I can imagine, so much that it still takes my breath away when I think about it, Draco
Chapter 27

Chapter Summary

It's River's wedding and Draco has an odd phenomenon on his face.

Saturday May 14, 2016 – just before midnight

Good Morning Husband Mine,
(Since you're sound asleep and won't read this 'til morning)

Today was beautiful. The first of our children to get married. I don't think I’ll sleep a wink tonight. I just keep thinking to myself, "my son is married" Married. How did your parents handle this when we got married? You were even younger than River, it was a week shy of your nineteenth birthday. River is twenty and I still think he's just so young. And since in my head he is perpetually five years old, it seems even younger.

Even without the Veela soulmate bond I would know she was the one for our River, so it's not that I think he'll change his mind. He's waited for her for five years, he knows his mind. And it's not as though this is going to keep him from seeing the world or realizing his dreams. There's nothing about this entire situation that is sad. So why is the idea of my tiny little buddy getting married, the boy who once clung so tightly to my hand, so heartbreaking for me?

I suppose I never thought the idea of you and I leaving our childhoods behind as something sad because our childhoods were cut much too short by horrific circumstances. So River entering adulthood is just something so new for me. But as bitter-sweet as this whole moment is, I can't help but think about his life so far and the immense pride in him that is so big inside of me that I can barely contain it.

He's truly become one of the best men I know. He's solid and loyal. He gives of himself to everyone. His heart lives on his sleeve. Is it wrong that I'm so scared Mahafsoun won't hold it as gently as she should? I have come to love her as well, but he's my baby you know?

Anyway, I have to get out of this spiral, today was full of happiness, the smile on my son's face fills me with joy. I am so happy that River and Mahafsoun had so many loved ones with them to celebrate the beginning of their journey.

I may as well pick up where you left off. With you in the bridal tent with a gaggle of hungover women. I had a very responsible member of MY group bring you and all of your ladies his very own hangover remedy. He certainly did bring his potion party favors to the stag-do and isn't it lucky for you all that he had some set to the side for your hen-party? Didn't our Sebastian look dashing today? For once he was out of his potion robes, looking quite handsome in a dark brown tux, hair tied back with a velvet ribbon, he looks just as I imagine Severus would have looked if he'd been allowed to grow into himself without his two manipulative masters.

He even let loose last night! We had a good time and probably would have been in the same hungover boat as your party if it hadn't been for Sebastian, but we certainly didn't have a bar-brawling good-time!
We did Muggle bar crawling instead. Just went from bar to bar with a scavenger hunt. It was a blast. Some of the things we had to "find" (DO) were quite easy and some others were a bit tricky. The easiest was "Get a Free Drink for the Groom." Well that was accomplished at every bar we went to. While you guys were getting chucked out, we were being offered free drinks for being adorable. River would walk into a bar, announce "I'm getting married to the love of my life tomorrow!" and then immediately blush to the tips of his ears. This would cause the bartender to chuckle and offer him the first one on the house.

Some of the things on our hunt were a bit trickier. We had to find a girl willing to serenade the Groom. He had to challenge someone to an arm wrestling contest. He even beat the bloke he challenged! It was quite funny, he's so slim he looks like he's not all that strong but between growing up training in krav maga and being a masseur, boy's packing some GUNS!

Being in the groom's tent before the ceremony today was an eye opening experience. For as panicked as River has been for the last two weeks, he was positively tranquil leading up to his vows. Like everything was just coming together and he was as settled as anyone could possibly be.

When the ceremony was finally about to begin, I walked River up to the front where he would wait for his bride, and then sat down in the front row. Next to the empty chair waiting for you to fill it after you walked Mahafsoun to River. But first the entire wedding party would need to proceed down the aisle. I think it's very sweet that they decided to have all of River's siblings in the wedding party. It would have been so easy to just pick a few and have Mahafsoun have a few girlfriends. But they both wanted to make it clear that she was officially joining our family. The entire family.

The first to come down the aisle were our sweet Lily and Persephone. Looking absolutely adorable in their lacy-topped flower girl dresses, scattering blush colored rose petals everywhere, and wearing the cutest little arse-kicking cowgirl boots!

And then our Caelum bringing the rings. Looking so handsome in his pale blue seersucker suit with the little bow tie! I could have just chewed on his sweet little face!
After that, the older kids seemed to come one after the other. The boys, Orion, Siri, Zwei, and Zaire looking dashing in light brown or cream colored tuxes, and the girls in varying muted tones of the same dress. Lacy on top, peekaboo back, and then a stream of chiffon falling to the floor. There was a mint green, a pale pale blue, a pink so pale it was better described as blush. Each girl wearing the tone that worked best on them. The mint green (and you knew those two would want to match) looked insanely beautiful on our Haz and Eris, really bringing out the green in their eyes. The blush looking gorgeous with Jaz and Shtara's skin tones. The baby blue bringing out the rosy tones in Lainie and Viona's beautiful faces.

Damn we have a beautiful family.

I was looking so hard at River, standing at the front of the crowd, waiting for his soon to be wife, that I didn't notice Mahafsoun coming in until other people were gasping. I was looking at our handsome son, looking breathtaking in his light brown tux, and then before I could even hear the gasping I saw his eyes light up. For all that yours are silver and his are brown, you have the same eyes. And apparently the same look when your love enters a room. Because I might as well have been transported in time to seeing your face light up when you saw me on our wedding day.
And when I was able to tear my eyes away from River I could see why he lit up and why everyone gasped. She was an absolute vision. Her dress was deeply off the shoulder, very low cut, and seemingly made up of layers of sheer blush colored material. Strategic heavy embroidery or flowers in places kept everything covered while giving hints of the gorgeous golden skin underneath. She had her miles of dark hair twisted and curled into a waterfall of beauty. Coming across her right shoulder to hang like some sort of corsage above her chest. With what looked like jeweled babies breath woven into the curls.

I hope they wait until they are settled and ready and if they never choose to have children that's okay too. But DAMN are they going to make us some beautiful grandchildren!

The ceremony was lovely. Their vows to each other made me cry (shocker!) And their sweet tributes to their mothers who died so early and couldn't be here on their special day was so sweet. When they lit candles and asked their mothers to watch over them? Well I am certain there wasn't a dry eye there.

Besides seeing our son so happy, do you know what my favorite moment of the day was? When you asked the band to play "At Last" for me. Dancing in your arms, listening to you sing those words, OUR song, MY song. What did I do to deserve this life? I don't think I deserve it, but I am thankful every day that I got it anyway.
I will love you for a thousand years, I'll love you for a thousand more,
Harry

Sunday May 15th
My most beloved husband,

You won't object if I murder one of our children, right? I'm not entirely certain which one yet, but I noticed a picture in with all the wedding photos that I had to quickly hide and will probably toss into the fire when I get a chance. I thought I was relatively safe, being in the front row next to you, and so, not easy for anyone behind us to see, so when I felt strange and highly localized rain on my cheeks, I decided to just let it go.

But NO! One of our kids must have looked over, spotted the unusual phenomenon, and snuck a picture of it. Thus, the need to murder them.

As we were sitting and holding hands, watching our son get married to the love of his life, my heart was so full of pride and love and just... I don't even know what all else. You were naturally sobbing like the Aira Force, but so was Portia.

The manor was looking possibly more gorgeous than ever, and the guests all had fun romping around the grounds playing games that resembled hide and hex while drinking. There was a glorious photoshoot - that I'd taken a moment to freshen up my face before participating in - and Julia really outdid herself! It was nice to see Arietty again.

The banquet was fabulous. Café Exquis had gourmet food from all around the world. Not only most of River's favorites, but also a lot of Egyptian food and the weird American things that Mahafsoun has fallen in love with while living and working there.

I know that - technically - the gifts were supposed to be simply put on the gift table and left for the couple to open when they had time and someplace to put them all, but since our gift wasn't a little thing that could be put on the table, I pulled you and them off to the side after you'd danced with her and I'd danced with him. Then, with a smile at you, I said:

"River, Mahafsoun, your dad and I debated a lot on what to get you. We could have simply given you another vault full of gold, but that seemed a bit impersonal. Besides, the both of you make enough money that you shouldn't have to worry about that. So, instead, your dad had suggested way back at your birthday - just after you'd disappeared and we'd realized we wouldn't be seeing you for quite some time - that we give you a home of your own. The idea rather stuck, and so we decided that that 'little' cottage in the woods you plan to buy would be the perfect present. I went ahead and had Pippa handle all the details so that it is already purchased and in your names. You can move in whenever you're ready."

This had them both a bit teary eyed as they each hugged us. I did my best to remain stoic.

"There's more, if - once you get there - you discover that you need ANY remodeling or repairs done, we've already arranged it so that Greg and Millie will be able to fly over and get started on it right away. They have fond memories of California and are actually looking forward to visiting it again, so don't feel like you'd be inconveniencing them."

There were more hugs and thanks and kisses on the cheek. Then Saoirse and Rhys came over to congratulate the happy couple. I haven't seen them since Zwei went to Hogwarts and both Jaz and Zaire decided to go to school - Traditions for Zaire and a special school for Jaz. With Shtara at Elena's school, there just weren't enough kids needing full time schooling to keep their interest, so they moved back to their own place to help school their many grandchildren. They're looking as well as ever, and so, more time with their own extended brood must agree with them.

We hugged and kissed them before letting them monopolize the bride and groom for a bit. We headed off to the dance floor again, where it was time for the band to play our song. I held you close, singing in your ear oh so softly, and the entire time, I couldn't help but think how lucky I am to have you, and that we're somehow managing to survive this parenting thing together.

Oh sure, we've had plenty of help - such as Saoirse and Rhys, not to mention Leah (who still works heavily with Jaz each day when she comes home from her special school) - but the sheer number of kids we have still makes our job rather hard. I'm simply amazed that we've not only survived, but have also done a rather good job. If we weren't us and were watching us from a distance, I'd be super impressed!

The bride and groom had done a remarkable job of resisting their magical bond long enough to have the ceremony and about two hours of dancing, but inevitably, Mahafsoun's Veela took over, sprouting wings and carrying her mate off to, erm… consummate their marriage, almost certainly. This left the guests to party on their own, and since most of them were tipsy at the very least, no one objected to dancing even more.

The only tiny hiccup was that I needed to minorly modify a few muggle memories since Mahafsoun's telly friends and a couple of River's clients were terrified by the sudden transformation of a beautiful woman into a rather ugly bird-creature. But once that was accomplished, the rest of the night was happy and lively.

I also must commend you on your restraint. I know there was a moment when we both looked over at Viona dancing with her fiancé and they were just so adorable - him shy and blushing while she not so patiently told him how to hold her waist properly and: "Dance like you actually know what you're doing! Merlin damnit! I've seen you dance before so I know you can! Why the bloody hell are you so nervous??"

To which Alric stammered something along the lines of being out of practice, but I'm dead certain he was lying as he CLEARLY was looking at her like she was the most precious thing on the planet and he was afraid to accidentally break her. You murmured something about them as kids and felt like you were going to march over and chat with them (embarrass them atrociously), but you ultimately decided to leave them alone for the time being as they tried to figure out how to act around each other.

I revise my opinion, as much as I REALLY don't want to know for certain, I had assumed that they must have done something. But after watching how awkward they are together, I'm thinking that he's probably a virgin, and she's... indeterminate, but not likely to have been with him yet after all. Interesting. I remember very clearly that I had to cast denial spells so that I didn't ravish you on our first bloody date. Perhaps she has an even cooler head than I do. Good on her!

Everyone had a blast and danced the night away, which is why I'm currently tired but happy enough to be awake at my usual time (so right about noon). And now that I've eaten my breakfast and sipped on some tea, I think I'll start on my morning routine and make myself gorgeous for when I thank all the guests for coming - after the grand luncheon we're having and they decide it's time to leave. Lucky for us the Manor is so big that all the guests had a place to stay the night. No need to have a bunch of drunken witches, wizards, and muggles stumbling around trying to get home safely while ready to pass out.

Anyway, I'm going to start with my yoga stretches, and if I'm lucky, maybe you'll come in to see if I've woken up yet, be overcome by lust at the sight of my naked body, and want to shove me right back into bed.

That kinda lovin' turns a man to a slave, That kinda lovin' sends a man right to his grave, I go crazy, crazy baby, I go crazy,

Draco
Chapter 28

Chapter Summary

Harry thinks Draco is ridiculous and had better not have destroyed those photos, and Draco overhears something alarming.

Chapter Notes

Just a quick note, I was still half asleep when I posted the last chapter, and so, forgot to add the pictures. I just finished doing that, and so, if you want, please take a moment to go back to the last chapter and just take a look at the pics :-)

Thursday May 19, 2016

Wake up you sleepy-head! Our babiest babies are six years old today! I've already brought them their breakfast in bed and now they're waiting on you to get up so we can get to their birthday plans.

It only seems fair since we let Seph choose her birthday activity with us that we let Lissa and Cael choose theirs as well. So, if they choose the same activity or do half a day a piece then the four of us are in for a day of fun. If they each want a full day of just them and their activity then we will split them up. And decide which of us goes with whom depending on the activity. If, for example, one of them wants to go to a musical and the other dancing I'll be seeing a play and you'll be whirling your child around some dance floor.

I'm so glad it's finally their birthday. I was the same way with Eri, Ori, and Haz; I consider them basically triplets and it always feels weird during that month between their birthdays when they're not all the same age. At least that set all looked similarly aged, Orion was a bit taller than Eris or Hazel but they were still obviously all close in age. Did you see Persephone's temper flare every time a wedding guest that didn't know us said something to her about how cute she and her big sister were? To heck with obliviating the guests because of the Veela, I was a bit worried we'd have to deal with assault charges when Seph attacked them!

Speaking of charges, yes I would have an issue with you murdering one of our children. What in Merlin's name is wrong with you Draco? I know you're kidding, but I really thought you'd be over this whole "I don't cry" nonsense by now. Really? Raining on just your face? Admitting you teared up at your son's wedding is not going to kill you, you ridiculous man. You had damn well better not have actually destroyed any of those photos or I might just murder YOU!

Aside from when you were sitting by me, do you know when else your emotions poured out of your face? When you were walking Mahafsoun down the aisle. You appeared to be looking straight ahead as you walked her down, but your eyes kept darting between the two of them. Like you couldn't quite decide if you were more in awe of your son or your soon to be daughter. Those eyes were awfully sparkly my love, hate to break it to you. And there were a LOT of pictures taken during those moments.
Shite, gotta go! Just heard Lily and Caelum whisper something about tickling and "that might wake Daddy."

Here I come to save the day!!
Harry

Friday May 20th
The light of my life,

Yesterday was certainly interesting in that our littles most certainly wanted to do their own thing, and they wanted us each to themselves. So we had to do a half and half thing where you took Lily to a musical while I took Caelum to the Adventure Park for some surfing, and then we switched so that I could take Lily to the spa for a bit of pampering before going out dancing.

Side note, apparently I came across as a single father. We were at a nice ballroom sort of place, doing all sorts of dances from the waltz to the latest dance craze. It WASN'T an adults only place, but being a Thursday night after dinner (oh, I forgot to mention I took her out to dinner too), it was more adults than children. School night and all, probably have homework. Anyway, as we were cutting a rug and having a blast, there were a few women who mistook a daddy daughter birthday date as a single dad trying to pick up women.

I guess this is apparently a good tactic as it worked. I had a LOT of women trying to chat me up before I finally figured out what they were doing. THAT'S when I turned the tables on them.

"Come on Lily, my love, let's practice that new move and have these nice ladies take pictures of us to show your daddy when we get home tonight."

I can't say for certain yet whether we have another Slytherin or Ravenclaw, but she's definitely smart enough to pick up on what I was doing and back me up.

"Oh please daddy! I LOVE practicing new moves! I wonder if daddy and Cael are having as much fun as we are?"

I handed the camera over to the group of suddenly very disappointed women and gave them a quick tutorial on how to use it (I had switched it to muggle mode first), before lifting Lily over my head in a sort of ballet pose. "Probabaly not. Your twin mentioned a batting cage or some other boring rot. We're DEFINITELY having more fun!"

This had most of the interested women take off and mind their own business, but there was one who wanted to know things like how long I've been married, and did I find it harder to raise kids as a gay couple? I think her interest was more academic than romantic at that point, but it was still a bit of a nuisance on what was CLEARLY a special day with my daughter.

I finally lost all patience and said: "Listen, I appreciate that you're not a judgmental cow offended by my alternative lifestyle, but I'm trying to make my daughter's birthday everything she wants it to be, and I'm dead certain she DOESN'T want to watch some bird try and pick up her father. So kindly fuck off, yeah?"

Rather than be offended or affronted, she was surprisingly amused. She handed the camera back with a nod. "Alright, have fun with your little darling. And Happy Birthday, luv!"

Lily deigned to nod at her politely, and then thanked me for seeing her off.
After that, our night was fit for a tiny princess.

As for today, as I sat in bed eating my breakfast and drinking my tea, I received an Owl in response to my inquiry. It seems that my offer of a generous contribution has swayed the OWL examiners to show up at Hogwarts a few weeks early JUST for our three Fifth Years. History has proven that ALL of our kids tend to be quick learners and end up taking their end of year exams early at your request so that they can be done and out of the castle a good two weeks before all the other students on average. I'm not certain why McGonagall puts up with it, but since she does, we can prove that our kids are likely to take and pass the test long before everyone else is ready.

That leaves your plans to head off to America when River and Mahafsoun do in the clear. When was it again? The day after my birthday?

You know, I actually find this a bit supremely unfair. I was always stuck taking final exams each year on my birthday. Never would have granted me special permission to take them early - no matter HOW much money my father threw at them! HRMPH!

But whatever, at least this way, we get to spend more time with our brilliant kids. Also, any other student who feels ready and wants to take their OWLs will be allowed to, so who knows? Maybe a few other parents will be able to have their kids back early too.

That said, I do have one tiny thing I have to confess. So erm… Well, Hazel had flooed home for a few hours on Wednesday night after I came home from my class, but I think you were still at movie night. Anyway, she must have been sent specifically as a secret weapon because she sat on my lap, was extremely affectionate, and was wearing her poutiest puppy dog eyes.

"Daddy…? Remember how we just turned 16 and didn't really ask for anything special?"

Uh-oh, I could sense danger, but decided to hear her out. "Yeah…?"

"Well, Eris, Orion, and I were wondering if we could have a small party here at the Manor the weekend after the rest of Hogwarts go home."

I took a deep breath. "Define small?"

"Our entire year?"

This didn't sound so bad.

"And Sixth and Seventh Years, plus maybe a few Fourth Years…"

"Wait! You want me to let you throw a party for HALF the bloody school?!!?"

"Please daddy????"

Ugh, again with the eyes…

"I really want ONE memorable belated birthday party with my friends and classmates before… well, before my surgery. What if something goes wrong? What if -"

I cut her short with a sigh of defeat. "Go ask your grandparents if they object. If not, then I SUPPOSE I won't mind."

"GREAT!" Hazel cheered exuberantly, giving me a kiss on the cheek. "Grammy and Grampy let Eliza and Sebastian have big parties for their graduations and actually have a big party planned for Gavin and Della this year, so it'll be nothing at all to combine the two. The Seventh Years were already planning to attend, now it'll just be a few more! I'm going to go plan things out with Grammy! I'll see you later! Love you dad!" She practically squealed at me before kissing me again and rushing off.

So... As you were saying, we'll be in America but at least a few of us will be returning for the weekend. Actually, I can see most of our kids wanting to be at that party, so we might just have to have Mr. Lott fly us all back on the jet for the weekend, and then return to California that Monday the 27th.

One last thing, Viona wants to know if we can bring Avery, I mean Alric with us to California. I suppose most of that will depend on if his parents object, but since he is also graduating this year and is already 18, I suppose there's not much they can do if he insists on going. I am not certain how I feel about the prospect, so... I'll leave the decision to you.

 Looks like I forgot to sign off and hit send again. It's now Saturday, and do you know what I just witnessed?!?!?!

So, I was walking around the Manor, wanting to get a bit of exercise but not full on running or dancing just yet, and I went into the entertainment room where Eliza, Della, and Delphini were playing some sort of muggle video game. They didn't notice me, or if they did, they didn't care. I was curious about the game so I stood behind them watching them play. It was a sort of blocky game in which I think they were making things.

Suddenly Sebastian stormed into the room in a bit of a snit. "I'm here; what the bloody hell do you want?!"

Delphini paused her game - which was interesting as the game was split on the 70' screen so that the other two had their own games playing still and her character seemed to be just standing there like a moron. She turned to give Sebastian a piercing look.

"You KNOW what I want. I've given you a whole week to think about it!"

I raised a brow as I felt a strange suspicion that the Viper's daughter was trying to proposition my brother - who is very openly Ace - into something he almost certainly doesn't want.

"And I've given it a lot of thought -"

"Look, it's like I said, I don't want anything from you! I JUST want a child, and you are the ONLY person I feel has a brain cell in their body worth passing on!"

"SHUT THE BLOODY HELL UP AND LET ME FINISH!" Sebastian roared, sounding so like his father, but also, strangely like me.

"BLOODY WANKER!!!" Delphini roared indignantly.

Sebastian took a potion bottle out of his pocket and set it on the table next to her. It was empty. Then he took a vial of potion and poured it into the bottle, following that, he cast a cutting hex on the side of his wrist and let a good two or three teaspoons of blood fall into the bottle before healing the wound.

"THERE!!! The potion will turn the blood into what you need. Take it and NEVER tell me what you did with it."
Delphini picked it up and examined it carefully. "Oh thank Merlin! I was going to have to Obliviate myself if you'd handed me a, erm… sample..."

Della shook her head. "I KNOW you two don't share any of the same genes, but this still feels like incest to me!"

"Nope, just a girl who knows better than to wait for a fantasy and a turkey baster," Delphini said.

"GAH!!! I TOLD YOU I DIDN'T WANT TO KNOW ANYTHING!!!" Sebastian roared before Disapparating.

"How else did he think it was going to get in there?" Eliza asked in amusement. "Oi Del, you're being attacked by a creeper."

"Shite!"

I couldn't help but be curious. "Erm..... Are you REALLY planning on getting yourself up the duff? With MY BROTHER as a donor???

Delphini gave me an even look that was a rather good impersonation of the Dark Lord. "What's it to you? I don't want a man and he doesn't want anyone ever. I own a business and it's doing well. Now's a good time to have a baby, whereas if I wait, I'm going to be in the middle of an expansion. It's just better all around to do it now so that the hardest part is over before my siblings and I implement our plans in about three years."

"Alright... but why not wait until after that?"

She gave me shivers with her next look. "You were married and having an insane amount of children at my age. Why the fuck should I have to wait for the things I want? Because I don't have a MAN to take care of me?!

I didn't have to be a Slytherin to sense the danger dripping off her in waves. I held up my hands to prove I wasn't a threat. "I'm not your dad, but AS a dad, I want you to be happy. I'm just not sure this is a good idea."

"Well fuck off! I'm doing it!"

"Alright." And still with my hands in the air, I Apparated out of the room so that I could write to you. Please come tell me what to feel, because I feel a bit sick...

All of me loves all of you,
Draco
Saturday May 21st
You,

Well, it's finally happened. You've shocked me speechless. I am completely dumbfounded. I read your email and just stared at the computer screen for a solid fifteen minutes afterwards. Opening my mouth to mumble at myself, and then shutting it with a snap. I just. What did you. Um, er. But. I …

Alright, I think I'm better now. Apparently I just needed an additional ten minutes or so to mumble nonsensically at the screen.

Oh I know, TURKEY BASTERS! Holy hell! I am all for a woman taking control of her life. Choosing her family in whatever way she wants or doesn't want. But I could do without the visual of someone I've essentially watched grow up … impregnating themselves with kitchen tools.

The whole situation, things that give me the heebie jeebies aside, is shocking to me. But when I think about it piece by piece it's almost shocking in how unsurprising it really is. Delphini has always been very aware of how she's looked at due to her parentage. She knows that anyone she may or may not end up with will have to deal with her biological father being old moldy voldy. This puts the when and how of creating her family completely in her control.

And even further into this, it doesn't surprise me that she'd choose to ask Sebastian. She has always had a huge amount of respect and affection for him. She loves him. And he's not particularly interested in fathering any children to parent himself, so she will never have to worry about the drama that can come with half siblings or shared custody. She just gets the ingredients she needs to start her family from someone she thinks is clever.

Despite his prickly personality, Sebastian is a very giving person. He thinks everything through, which is why it took him a week and a summons to give his answer, but he really will do just about anything for someone he cares for. We both know how much he loves his potions, but he always pours his entire soul into anything that will benefit someone else. How many sleepless nights did he lose while developing that lycanthrope potion series with you? Because while he attempts to cover it in snark and bite, he's got a big ol' squishy heart inside of him.

You know who else covers up some of their deeper personality traits? Hazel. Merlin did that baby girl play you like a fiddle. Easier than a fiddle, she played you like a kazoo. Maybe a whistle. Oooh, or a triangle. She batted those baby greens at you and then talked about "something happening" during her surgery? But as soon as you said yes you got a giggle and a thank you while she ran to make party plans with her Grandmother? Oh hunny. You fell for her manipulations hook, line, and sinker. And you think she should have been a Hufflepuff.
I can't believe Narcissa and Lucius are throwing a party with half the student body of Hogwarts. I think I might be busy that day. Probably with the flu. Or with my horses. Or, erm, the horse flu. It's like chicken pox but only contagious around fourth through seventh year magical children.

The timing should actually work out pretty well. Your bribery made it so we could take out all the children, but we would have gotten a medical waiver to pull Haz out early anyway. They need her for pre-op preparations by the tenth of June, even though the actual surgery won't take place until the first of July. So she'll get in everything she needs to do and then during the weekend before instead of panicking she'll be busy having a blast with her friends.

I have no issues with Viona bringing Alric along for any part of our trip to California. He's her fiancé, they're going to be married in just over a year, I'd like to get to know him. But I will put my foot down and say I do not want them rooming together. I know she's technically of age, and I'm not trying to be a prude or naïve, but while she's still what I would consider an underaged student I don't want them cohabitating. Fair?

Or am I being completely unreasonable? They are getting married. They are both of age. Damnit Viona, why do you have to be such a pain in my arse??

AAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHH!!!!!!!!!!!

Okay, I've screamed out my frustrations. I think I'll make the decision this way, when we get there I will say "Alric, this is your room while we're here." And if Viona argues and makes a valid argument I will allow it. But I am hoping he will be so scared of being respectful that he will just stay there and I won't have to deal with the situation at all.

Caelum and I had a blast at the batting cages, I bet we had WAY more fun than you! Although I definitely got hit on by less women than you did. I can't believe you were surprised that a hot man doting on his adorable child is a babe magnet. Is this your first time here on Planet Earth?

I did get hit on by another dad though. That was kind of nice for the old ego. The fact that I didn't realize it until my six-year-old pointed it out was less nice on the ego. I thought the bloke was just being nice and giving me pointers! I obviously didn't grow up playing muggle sports, and once I had a chance to think about it I really was holding my bat wrong. And if Cael hadn't shouted "Oi! Hands off or my other dad might murder you!" I would have realized he was hitting on me when he wrapped his arms around me to help my grip.

But if I had noticed then I would have missed the experience of flailing when Cael started yelling and accidentally hitting the guy in the bollocks with the bat.

How about I don't come tell you how to feel, but I do come hold you?

All of my Love,
Harry

Monday May 23rd
My sanity,

I love how we spent all day yesterday and all last night just holding each other. Well, holding each other between rounds of loving each other, but the holding part was so very cathartic. Now I'm at peace with the world again.

Do you suppose she's already... No actually, I REALLY don't want to know!
So, ever since Harrison started Hogwarts, Viper's been spending most of his time in the other world with Tiger and their kids. He only needs to come back here for special occasions and most of the summer months. Even so, he always makes it a point to bring his family here for one weekend a month so that we get a chance to catch up with them, and they can spend some time with their Hogwarts set. D'you think we should attempt to warn him of his daughter's plans?

Nah, I think we should probably deny all knowledge. Had I not been in the room at that exact moment, I wouldn't have known anything anyway. These are plans that were obviously made without any sort of advice or input from us. Clearly, we are not responsible for any part of this situation.

Yeah... I know nothing! Je ne sais pas!

Maybe we should Obliviate each other for good measure?

Better yet, get back here with those pastries and let us refuel a bit before starting on another round of focusing on each other. SHITE!! I just remembered that I have class in about 4 hours and I have NOTHING to wear!!!

I'm off to shop at a high end place for sport wear. I have no idea how I managed to only buy ONE decent outfit before starting these classes. I suppose I thought I'd wear it like a uniform, but oh hell no, I need to look my best while thoroughly kicking their arses!

The good news is that Kingsley has come through once again. He already ordered me a permanent Portkey between California and the Manor so that I can come back in time for my classes on Mondays and Wednesdays. He's also siding with me when I told Robards to not schedule any bloody raids until September! (Apparently Robards has been raiding places that really don't need full raids as much as undercover surveillance simply because we have this thing working like a well-oiled machine at this point.)

Hmm...? You left here to get us something to eat since we haven't taken a break in over 24 hours. What the bloody hell is taking you so long to get back??? Did our kids spot you and draft you into playing with them? I bet that was it. Please Merlin, don't let it be another minor family crisis!

I'd probably better go check...

I keep on falling in and out of love with you, I never loved someone the way that I love you, Draco

P.S. I love the song, but it's only half right <3

P.P.S. I agree about Alric having his own room. If they choose to ignore that fact, we can at least pretend that they are each right where we told them to be. But wait... Now I'M starting to second guess myself! SHOULD we be forcing them to go behind our backs??? GODS DAMNIT!!! sigh... right, so, we stick with your plan. Give him his own room unless she argues, because if she argues, we're going to know he's not in there anyway, ugh...

P.P.P.S. So, erm... what's the name of that bloke that hit on you? I swear I'm not in any way involved in his disappearance in two months from now... I wonder if I can get Caelum to give me a copy of his memory...
Wednesday May 25, 2016

My Favorite Person With the Best Sense of Humor,

You just left for your meeting. And then you're going straight from the meeting to your class. It sucks, Wednesdays are hard enough missing you in the evening and at Movie Night but then you had to schedule business for today too? Boo!

I get it, don't think I'm actually throwing a strop. We'll be leaving for California in less than two weeks so I know there are loose ends that need to be tied up before we take off for what will basically be two and a half months. You'll be popping back and forth for your classes and we'll both be coming back and forth when the kids need to visit home, but it's not the same as just being at home and there are a lot of responsibilities we need to make sure are taken care of.

I myself have been spending most of the day getting the two rescues we got a few weeks ago ready to go home. They've been working hard on rebuilding that barn and it should have been done this upcoming Monday, but in the meantime these horses actually found a forever home so they won't be going back to their fosters anyway. The timing works out great since I was panicking a bit about what I was going to do about them while we're gone.

While Haz is recovering from her surgery I've actually found a few places nearby that have animal rescues and I will be spending some time learning the ropes from some people who've made their lives out of saving animals. The first few days after the surgery will be spent just caring for our girl, but eventually I'll only need to stay near enough to come back quickly if needed and she'll just need to take it easy. I can't imagine after the first few days of pain pass that she'll want me hovering over her fluffing her pillows and being an obnoxious dad.

Our time in the U.S. will give the elves and Greg and Millie some time to get our stables really up and running over the summer and I can start taking on more animals than just our two. I wouldn't have taken on these other two yet if it hadn't been such an urgent situation. The structural things are all there and in good shape, but making sure everything is stocked can be done by the elves and I just know Greg is itching to put in some of his special touches that turn all of his creations into something spectacular.

And since Viper and Tiger spend most of their summers at our Manor anyway, Scor and Hyper have already promised the trouble trio that they will give Cheesecake and Fondue all the love and attention they can handle.

Do NOT tell Tiger I call them Scor and Hyper. He might just murder me. He'd definitely murder Viper if he found out that's where I got the nicknames from!
Alright, I hate to spoil fun surprises, but I also don't want you to make plans that will ruin them either. So I am going to give you just enough information that you don't miss the surprise. I am taking you somewhere for our anniversary. We leave Saturday evening after dinner and we will come back Monday 'morning.' And by morning I mean we'll head home whenever you wake up.

Seventeen years! It seems like yesterday and like forever simultaneously. As exciting as seventeen is, I am really looking forward to our nineteenth anniversary the most. I know, it seems like a weird time to be excited for, but bear with me. Remember how excited I was when I turned twenty-two? Because at that point I'd known you for half of my life, and from there on out every additional day meant that I had known you for OVER half of my life. Well since we got married a week before your nineteenth and two months before mine, once we're married nineteen years we will have been married for half of our lives and I think that's really cool.

But seventeen is pretty damn cool too!

Oh! I never mentioned where I had gone Monday when it took me so long to come back. Yes, I had gotten distracted by the children although not to play with them. Shtara, Zaire, and Jaz were talking me into taking them shopping and we were trying to figure out a good time to go. We ended up going out Monday evening while you were in class. I know you must be shocked since they almost always want you to be the one to take them shopping, but they had their reasons. They wanted all new BMX gear since they had almost outgrown theirs and wanted to have fresh stuff for when they went biking this summer. And since our weather is so different from our destination they wanted me to help them do a wardrobe filler and you're more the one they'd go to for specific pieces to look good. I was the grunt to take them for a million new shorts and t-shirts.

The other thing I never mentioned was the name of the bloke hitting on me at the batting cages. Honestly I didn't catch it and I don't think he should mysteriously and inexplicably disappear. He took the no for an answer and quickly took off when called out by Cael. The only shady thing he did was hit on a guy wearing a wedding ring. Which, while certainly not cool, wasn't quite disappear worthy.

I'd better get the crew fed and jammied up to head over for Movie Night. I'll miss you my Love!

Yours,
Harry

Wednesday May 26th
GODDAMNIT HARRY!!!

As I had a full on business meeting today (one of my many businesses wants to expand), I decided that I needed to wear an extremely well-tailored and good looking suit to remind them that I'm the one they're asking money from. That meant that I had a bag packed to bring to class with me, full of one of my new stylish sparring outfits.

I'd really outdone myself with this one. I looked like I could have been the perfect cross between a professional MMA Fighter and a professional Model. I was fully planning to intimidate the fuck out of my students with my ability to look perfect while I kicked their arses into shape.

And by the way, we've been using the running track in the Ministry because I told them they'd better be there (and having completed a half an hour run) when I show up or I'd bring them back to my place and let Amala chase them some more. Seems to have helped so far.
But TONIGHT, I get to my classroom to change before picking up my students from the running track, and what do I find??? BLOODY YOU (I refuse to believe anyone else would have done such a thing) had replaced my DESIGNER workout shirt with a low class T-SHIRT that says:

Shut the fuck up and train.

I was not amused. That said, the sentiment certainly fit my mood after that, so I pulled it on in a bit of a snit, and then went and terrorized my students. They are rather unfortunate that I have them to take my fury out on.

That said, now I'm fucking sweaty and so bloody horny that I could toss one off in the shower if I weren't so eager to get home and punish you. I'm thinking suspended from the ceiling tonight.

Brace yourself!
Draco

Chapter End Notes

Harry is currently suspended from the ceiling in a way that doesn't let him touch Draco at all, but allows Draco to use his mouth, heh heh heh...
Chapter 31

Chapter Summary

It's Harry and Draco's Anniversary ^_^

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Sunday May 29, 2016

My Very Best Friend, My Partner in all things, My Husband,

Happy Anniversary to the love of my life. It's been an unbelievably wonderful seventeen years so far. I am so looking forward to the next hundred and seventeen. Such a short time in the grand scheme of most wizards' lives, but long enough to build our lives.

Since the day I allowed myself to admit I had fallen in love with you we have; adopted or given birth to fourteen official Malfoy children, we fell in love with a few others who are our children in our hearts, created safe places for children throughout the entire planet, and speaking for myself I have fallen deeper and deeper into love with you every single day. I wake up every day amazed that this is the life I am privileged to lead. I give thanks that in the eons the Universe has existed, I was lucky enough to exist with you.

If I could travel back in time and tell little Harry in the Cupboard one thing it would be "It will all be worth it, your fulfilled life is coming." And maybe "Be nice to pretty blonde prats" maybe cut back on a little bit of our adolescent drama!

We took off yesterday right after lunch, with the time change that put us here at our destination right around nine in the evening. About two hours after sunset but the sights were still fantastic. Somehow we were both in the middle of everything while being hidden away amongst the trees.

I had plans for midnight, as I always do on the eves before important days, but the few hours until then were spent wrapped in each other on the huge porch. Sipping wine, stealing kisses, and connecting after a long week. You told me all about how your business meeting went, and how well you're doing teaching your classes. You got to hear my completely insincere apology about your gym shirt. What? I left the designer bottoms and warm-up jacket, the only thing I swapped out was the shirt! And you have to admit, it was probably quite the warning sign for your students.

I was just saving your vocal chords by letting you get your point across by simply pointing at your shirt instead of speaking!

Overall it was just a perfect night, full of conversations about important things like our upcoming trip to America, and inconsequential chatter like who we think looks good for this quidditch season. But we also had moments of silence where we just held each other and looked at the stars and into the trees. I love talking with you, but it's easy enough to enjoy speaking with someone else (as long as they aren't a complete wanker obviously) but it's remarkable to have found someone you can be silent with. I rested my head against your chest, listening to the nighttime forest sounds, your even breaths, and the beating of your heart.
At eleven thirty, we made our way into the bedroom. Before I had seen the specifics of our loft I wasn't sure if I wanted you outside or in a cozy bed. The architecture of the loft made that decision easy; both! We slid open the wall of door, letting the night into the bedroom. I kissed and maneuvered you onto the bed where I proceeded to work you open with my mouth, my hands, and eventually the slick slide of your favorite lube.

At that point you seemed to expect me to fill you up. Normally I like to bottom at our special midnights, something about having you inside of me during these important moments in time is just perfection. But I couldn't be so selfish and always claim the right to bottom. But once I had you firmly worked open, I moved onto all fours, pointed my arse towards you, and worked myself open for your viewing pleasure.

You seemed torn for a moment, probably quite looking forward to feeling my cock breach your arse having me take you hard and slow just like you like it while also seeing me ready my arse for you to sink your gorgeous self into. You seemed to make up your mind, slapping my hand out of your way and pushing yourself in me to the hilt.

This would have been enough, to have you in me when the clock switched over. However your surprise shriek when our guest arrived and crammed himself in your gorgeous arse with no warning was worth every bit of planning I'd gone through.

You shrieked, and then moaned when you realized our guest knew just what you liked. Once you had a moment to realize I'd invited a guest to our anniversary shag, a guest who was completely silent and you couldn't quite turn well enough to see who it was, you whined into my ear. "Ungh, Harry, this is amazing and you know I … oh fuck yes … love playtime, but … Merlin that's the spot yes!! … on our anniversary?"

Your mystery lover chuckled at that, pulling you into his chest, the long chain he was wearing allowing the small hourglass to dig into the soft skin of your back, "Happy Anniversary my Dragon."

I'm quite glad I sneakily cast the denial spell on you or I'm fairly sure you would have blown at that point. Yes, I managed to track down a time turner. I really didn't know if I wanted to be the top or the bottom last night, so I figured I would have the best of both worlds and do them both.

Did you like starting our anniversary buried deep inside your husband while he was all the way inside of you? After I finally took off the denial spell you certainly seemed to.

I love you Draco Lucius Malfoy.

And you love me enough to have dealt with me waking you up right before nine o'clock this morning. What? I made sure you had a solid eight hours of sleep. Although I think your early wake up is why you're currently napping with your head in my lap while I dictate this letter to you and card my hands through your gorgeous silky hair.

Perhaps our busy morning had a bit to do with your need to nap as well? We strolled through the Singapore Botanical Gardens. You indulged me, I know you enjoy it yourself but these garden destinations are always my favorites. I was able to snatch some amazing pictures of the two of us, not to mention plenty of kisses. Walking openly with the love of my life while I explore the world never ceases to amaze me. I didn't think I could have even a fraction of this, and here I was strolling through a beautiful garden in Singapore holding hands with my ridiculously fit husband of seventeen years.

What even is my life?
Eventually we made our way to the next stop on our schedule, the gorgeous SKAI restaurant. We are sleeping with beautiful views of the treetops, and had lunch with a to die for view of the city. Or technically we were there for the brunch!

SKAI champagne and cocktail brunch to be more specific! We have been back from lunch for at least and hour and a half now and I am still so stuffed. My favorite was the steak and hand cut chips, but you seemed to make sex noises over the BBQ oysters.

I am going to sign off and just enjoy watching you sleep. I have a few ideas in mind for things to do this evening so no pressure, but nothing is set in stone so we can do anything your pretty little self desires.

Your Husband,
Harry James Malfoy

Sunday May 29th
My partner in everything,

After waking from my nap and kissing you leisurely for about an hour, you more or less dared me to take control and finish our anniversary in any way I liked. So, I gave you one of my slightly more evil smirks and dragged you out of our gorgeous hotel room.

I knew exactly what I wanted, and I also had a distinct feeling that you expected a certain thing from me. A few discrete Apparations had us lounging on Tanjong Beach with delicious drinks and a full view of the muscle-y gay men that are quite famous around here. The sun and lightly alcoholic drinks were near perfection, and the eye candy was a drool-worthy appetizer. We were really only there long enough to order and consume some starters. I had fried calamari and you had stuffed mushrooms I believe.

Then we moved on to a place called D SPAradise where we had a nice couples package in which we got a solid three hours of being pampered with a massage, a body scrub, and a soothing hydro bath - aka, the double sized hot tub in the middle of our couples room.

My favorite part was when we first walked in and you looked around at all the cute little Asian male therapists. Your eyes got wide and you leaned over to whisper in my ear: "Are we in a legitimate brothel? Of MEN???") I laughed so hard, kissed you, and didn't explain a thing as I proceeded to use a very sexy voice to order our package, heh heh heh...

After we were nice and relaxed, it was probably at least 9 PM. We were fairly close to everything, being in downtown Singapore, so I decided to stop in at a place called Tantric. It's an in demand gay club, so there were plenty of gorgeous men to look at and dance with, but honestly, after about two drinks, I wasn't all that interested. The man I was dancing with at that point informed me that the place was too loud and crowded for a Sunday night and that he personally planned to go to a Sauna for about a half an hour or so, and then go home and go to bed because he had to work in the morning.

I was curious as to why he was so eager to go sit in a hot and sweaty room, and after asking, he whispered exactly why in my ear. Suddenly, I was ever so keen to go as well. I got all the necessary details from him, and then abandoned him to join in on your dance. You were having a good time, grinding against a man that reminded me of Ron for some reason. I pressed myself against your back and licked your neck.
You purred happily, reaching behind you to hold the back of my neck while you twisted your head just enough to kiss me.

"I thought you said no one was allowed to kiss you on the mouth," your dance partner pointed out suspiciously.

"Except for his husband, naturally," I answered for you before kissing you again.

"Ah," he murmured.

"Harry my love, I've worked up a disgusting sweat and think we should go find a place to refresh ourselves quickly."

"Draco ... We JUST came from a spa! Aren't we relaxed and pampered enough?" You whinged lightly.

"Yeah, but I think a quick trip to a sauna is in order, and since it's still my turn to pick what we do, you can't argue."

"OOO! Which Sauna???” Your dance partner asked eagerly.

"Excellent choice mate. In fact, I think I'm going to go there myself. Perhaps I'll see you there."

I shrugged, not interested in him in the slightest. Slipping your hand in the crook of my sleeve, you smiled and bade me to: "Lead on, my love. I'd follow you through hell and back if you fancied it."

"You sound like newlyweds," your partner mused with a wry smile.

"Married 17 years today," you corrected him.

"Come," I insisted, leading you out of the club in a bit of a rush. I then focused on the description given me and Apparated us to the Cruise Club. We were actually about 80 percent of the way through the membership application (required but cheap enough that I didn't particularly care) when your dance partner caught up with us. He seemed rather confused about how we had beaten him, but shook it off and wandered away to do his own thing. After we finished the application, we were handed some towels and given directions to our lockers.

In the locker room, we stripped off, wrapped the towels around our waists, and slipped the rubber key bracelets on - left for me as a top and right for you as a bottom. Then we were free to wander the large club as we liked. It's three levels of things to do specifically for gay men. In addition to the actual saunas, there are tanning machines, a workout room, jacuzzis, a meditation room, a dark maze, and a small movie theater of all things. Plus bars, dance floors, and anything else we might like to do.

But I was serious about wanting to be in a sauna - the dry heat one as opposed to the steam room. I brought you in there and we sat on either side of a corner, basically snuggling into each other. I kissed you until I saw a man come over and give us an intense look. The only real rule of the club is that most of the areas are meant to be silent, and so, that look was really a question.

I smiled at him and his look shifted to your towel. Now grinning, I pulled your towel open and gestured an invitation for him to have at. He very eagerly got to work using his hands and mouth on your perfect shaft. You had given me literally two of you (and I'm still dying to know at which point the future you came from), and now I was giving you the experience of having me look into your eyes and watch every flicker of pleasure as some random stranger did his best to suck you dry.

I love watching all the little nuances play across your face. Every moment is sheer perfection to me, and I frequently rewarded you with kisses. Especially if you moaned or grunted. The two of us were making full and complete love with our eyes while someone else gladly took care of your pleasure. The moment you cried out your orgasm, I swallowed it with a kiss.

Then it was apparently my turn as that hot mouth surprised me before I even stopped kissing you. Which means that you got to see all the embarrassing nuances flashing across my face as he used his incredible skill to make my toes curl and my legs shake. You quickly grinned at me knowingly and let me cling to you so that you could kiss me. By the time I was recovered from my glorious orgasm, the stranger was gone. Apparently, the fun of this place for him was giving head, not that I'm complaining.

By this point, it was nearing midnight and I wanted to end the day how it started, with me inside you, probably not with you inside me at the same time, but still, an all around good way to finish our day. To that end, I barely waited for the room to clear long enough to Apparate us back to our Angsana Suite.

But much like you, I was curious to shag on the lounge bed on the balcony, and so that's where I led you, casting a spell so that we were both ready to go and remained that way until we heard the clock chime midnight. At that point, I cast instant orgasm spells so that we could finish together and snuggle up for some of the best sleep of our lives.

You're everything I need and more,
Draco

P.S. I woke up around 2 am and slipped into the bath - in case you woke up and wondered why I wasn't in your arms - and dictated this email. I don't want to go into it right now, but I had a rather disturbing dream. Ask me about it later when we are home and I can look forward to terrorizing my students.

Chapter End Notes

For those of you that might think it odd that Draco was like: "Wait, you invited someone to play for our anniversary?!!" And then turned around and did exactly that, what Draco was actually referring to is that Harry has a thing about the two of them having private celebrations of shagging right at midnight on important occasions, and at those times, Harry has never invited a playmate before. Whereas once that tradition was over, Draco was free to invite others if he so wished, and honestly, Harry was a little surprised he didn't find someone/s to shag them both 'til they dropped of exhaustion, lol ^_^
Monday May 30, 2016

My Love,

I am feeling awfully silly right now. All that planning that went into our Anniversary trip and I forgot to take into account the time change. I told you we were leaving Monday morning whenever you woke up, but that would have had us portkeying home in the middle of the night between Saturday and Sunday.

I figured why not take advantage of the time difference and allow for a little bit of extra time before we went home. We could stay well into the evening and then pop home in time for an early dinner or a late lunch before you had to head off to your class. When I explained that to you, you were thrilled with the chance to actually get some sightseeing done in the city since the day before had been gardens, spas, dancing, and saunas.

By sightseeing, I of course mean I took you shopping. We started out at the Chinatown Street Market. We wandered around looking at the seemingly odd mixture of things for sale. Antiques next to electronics next to souvenirs next to clothes. And all of it interspersed with drool worthy foods. We decided to forgo a full sit-down meal, having had the experience at SKAI the day before for that type of date. Instead we grabbed foods as we noticed them. The roast duck was sooooo good. It was 'murder your best friend for a second helping' good.

After buying souvenirs for all of the children, and for ourselves to add to our almost two decades of travel trinkets, we headed off to the next stop. Well, after we dropped off our purchases at the loft, shrunk and lightened we still had a LOT of stuff in our pockets.

The Little India Arcade is probably a place we should bookmark for taking our designer girls to for a special occasion in the future. Indian and Arabian clothing and the fabric! Merlin, the fabric. I haven't had much time to talk to Vivi about the specifics for her wedding, but I am envisioning using some of this fabric as table runners or even seeing if she wanted to use them in any of the bridal party's clothing. There was traditional clothing, and fuck me the accessories! Artwork and incense and sweets, oh my!

I could have gotten lost in there for hours. Which we actually kind of did. Singapore shops, probably because of the heat, open later in the morning and then stay open well into the night time.
It wasn't until we realized the sun had set and it was fully dark that we needed to get you home!

We rushed back off to the loft (thank goodness for apparition!) packed up our stuff, checked out of the hotel, and took the portkey home.

If we hadn't had children who wanted to see their daddies and souvenirs we wanted to show them, you probably would have had plenty of time, but as it was you snuggled and caught up with your children until the absolute last minute you had to leave for class. Hehe ….

Anyway, I've been spending the evening trying to get the six at home to start packing for the big trip across the pond! Normally we'd just have the elves pack up their bags full of clothes they'll need and they just pack up a little knapsack for the specifics they want. But with the exception of a pop home here or there, they're going to be gone from their home for almost three months. I figured they would want a little more say about which clothes they're bringing, which toys were absolutely necessary so they wouldn't be bored, which books they thought they'd be reading or want read while we're there. Things like that.

Unfortunately I had to explain to Cael that we weren't bringing his beloved horse and he threw the most epic strop I have ever experienced … from him. I am married to you, I have a temper, and we have fourteen-ish children, I can't say his was the worst with all those others to claim the top spot.

I finally got him to stop sobbing when I promised he could sleep in the stable with Fondue for this week leading up to the trip and then, depending on weather, the week we come home as well. I'm such a sucker.

Your Sucker,
Harry
P.S. In our rush to get back I didn't get to hear about your dream, hopefully you'll have time to tell me tonight. If you get home after I'm asleep just go ahead and wake me up alright?

Monday May 30th
Oh my fucking Merlin am I tired!

So I had a glorious day of shopping with you, followed by a rush to catch up with our kids, and then a class to teach. Due to the time difference, it was a very long day, and so by rights, I should be dead to the world, but nope. I'm sitting in bed next to you, after having shagged you senseless, and I can't sleep.

I think part of that might just be me too worn out to fall right to sleep, but part of it might be me not wanting to have that dream again.

But before I get into that, I had grabbed my bag and ran off to my classroom. Once there, I had just enough time to get changed before having to pick my students up from the running track and start kicking their arses. To my displeasure and dismay, you had once again caused me to shout out: "GODDAMNIT HARRY!!!"

Instead of the expensive sparring outfit I had chosen, the shirt had been replaced with another low brow tee shirt that said: Ripped for his pleasure - with an icon of a barbell across the breasts.

I nearly decided to go topless, but decided that I already had two of my students staring at me like they'd quite like to shag me into oblivion. No need to have them ALL look at me that way! So, grumbling grumpily, I pulled on the shirt and ran off to get my class.
Today, they were all paired up so that one partner would block while the other partner kicked. After a while, they switched positions. As promised, they all received bruises, but only one broke his arm and another probably got a few cracked ribs as they missed the signal to block and were kicked across the room. I performed basic first aid on that man and - once he was in stasis - had his partner levitate him to the Ministry Mediwitches.

After class ended, I came home to find you sleeping, and since I was still rather put out with you, I decided to take advantage of your sleeping body to my satisfaction.

After shagging you so hard I SHOULD have passed out, I held you as you drifted right back to sleep, and then slowly realized that I was NOT following suit. So I decided to sit up and write this email.

Maybe if I get my dream out, I'll be able to sleep after all.

So... After we'd returned to our hotel room from the Sauna, we'd shagged, snuggled up, and went right to sleep. As I slept, I had a very disturbing dream. It started out well enough. We were in bed caressing each other and kissing in that soft and loving way where we give each other a thousand tiny kisses, and then a thousand more.

To our delight, a young man joined us. He was honestly not our type, looking barely 17 and maybe not even that. The part we did like was that he was of Asian heritage, having creamy yellow skin, black eyes, and black hair. He was also rather fit in an almost too thin sort of way. He crawled into bed with us and proceeded to give us both kisses before using his mouth to pleasure us.

Things were going rather well... until they weren't. After we'd taken turns using his lithe body just a little roughly - thoroughly debauching the large hotel bed in our suite - we started on impact play and other torture. I kept choking him as you spanked him. You grabbed a crop and spanked him up and down his back until he was a bloody mess, and I brutally smacked, choked, and even punched him as the urge struck.

He whimpered a bit, but otherwise just took all our abuse without protest. Until there was no longer any spark left in his eyes or breath in his body TO protest with. At which point, we called in a large and menacing looking man, who gently took the battered body into his arms and carried him away as a team of women changed our bedding and made the room look as pristine as ever before we slipped back into bed, snuggled up, and fell asleep.

Needless to say, dwelling on that dream on and off throughout this long day has kept me on the edge of feeling like I should be turning us into Robards for literal murder, only I KNOW that we would NEVER have done such a thing. So... I think I might just need to go take another bath and see if I can wash away the creepy crawly feeling of having blood on my hands and body.

If you should happen to wake up before I come back to bed, I sincerely hope you DON'T read this (as I don't want to prevent you from going back to sleep), but perhaps intuitively come find me in the tub and do whatever it takes to make me ACTUALLY pass out.

Give a little bit of heart and soul, give a little bit of love to grow,
Draco
Tuesday May 31, 2016

My Own,

I think you were probably hoping for something a little different to put you to sleep last night, but I'm hopeful it was a happy change and not an unpleasant surprise.

While you were in the tub I did unfortunately read your email. But don't worry, the visions your email sparked did not keep me from sleeping myself. They were probably less upsetting for me since I didn't actually have to see them in my mind. I climbed into the tub and scrubbed you top to bottom. Then carried you back to bed. I believe you were assuming I was going to shag the worries out of you, much the way I tend to shag the snit right out of your when you're in a mood. You're obviously well aware of this, but I did not.

Instead I climbed into bed, sat up against our headboard, and manhandled you into my lap. I held you, stroked your bath-warmed skin, carded my hands through your hair, and sang you to sleep:

Stars shining bright above you, Night breezes seem to whisper I love you Birds singing in the sycamore tree, Dream a little dream of me.

Say night-ie night and kiss me, Just hold me tight and tell me you'll miss me
While I'm alone and blue as can be, Dream a little dream of me.

Stars fading but I linger on dear, Still craving your kiss
I'm longing to linger til dawn dear, Just saying this

Sweet dreams til sunbeams find you, Sweet dreams that leave all worries behind you
But in your dreams whatever they be, Dream a little dream of me

I don't know if it was the sheer exhaustion from being up so long, the physical exertion from your class, the emotional exhaustion of worrying over the dream, perhaps your rage at my choices for your workout attire, but you were asleep before I finished the first song.

I don't know what it is about my singing that you like, I'm not any good at it, but it does seem to comfort you. So I didn't stop even though you'd fallen asleep during my first song. I sang to you for probably about an hour before I decided to join you in sleep. I had to end on one last love song:

I love you too much, Heaven's my witness and this is a fact
You live in my soul, Your heart is my goal
There's love above love but it's mine 'cause I love you
There's love above love but it's yours 'cause I love you
There's love above love and it's ours if you love me … as much

I'm so sorry you had to deal with that dream. I think it was probably worse for you because you've had so many visions that came true and it probably has to horrify you at the idea that we could have done something so terrible. You, my heart, know better than to think we would have done anything like that to anyone.

Not only are we super into consent and extensive kink negotiations before anyone does anything un-vanilla, but it's super out of character for us just in our own kinks. Think about it. You are a switch with mostly Dom tendencies. You tailor your domination to the individual sub. Before you realized how into impact play I was, you were more likely to have me kneel and pamper you than actually initiate anything remotely sadistic. You are not a sadist. I, on the other hand, am most definitely a submissive masochist. I like pain, I like pain with my pleasure, and I like pain by itself if it's serving a purpose for my Dom. I sometimes can dom you, or spank you if that's what you're craving, but it's not something I'd do unless I absolutely had to.

I know it's hard to separate your feelings from your logical side, but if you look at it piece by piece you know it wasn't us.

Maybe you were just having a terrible dream? And if not, I think it's probably likely that you were having a vision that your subconscious put us in the place of the actual people behaving that way. As much as I wish it was just an awful dream, this really does seem the most likely reason.

Now that you've gotten a full night's sleep with no nightmares that I could hear, do you want me to shag the worry right out of you?!!

Love you,
Harry

Tuesday May 31st
The dearest part of my heart,

So... I think I just made Bletchley's entire week. When you said that tidbit about my dream likely being an actual vision in which I'd replaced us with the real murderers, I wasn't certain how to go about getting justice for the poor boy, but I wanted to at least see if it would be possible.

To which end, I printed up a copy of my ENTIRE dream, then brought it to Robards. He called in his Deputy Head AND Bletchley (who is pretty much the most senior Auror on the force at this point). I warned them that the dream was hopefully JUST a dream - a highly disturbing one - but on the off chance that it was a real vision, I wanted their objective opinions of what in essence is a sort of crime scene.

Or footage of a crime scene, I suppose.

This is not the first time I've had a vision in which I saw myself as either the victim or some other person, so they were ready to watch with an open mind. And yes, I warned them that there was quite a bit of sex first, which shouldn't be disturbing unless they are bothered by gay sex. They all assured me that they were sufficiently warned, so I started the dream playing.

To my surprise, rather than shrug it off as a bad dream, Robards insisted that I actually extract the vision so we could analyze it from inside a Pensieve. As we were going through it, Bletchley actually pointed out something I hadn't really paid any attention to; the closed sliding glass doors acted like a bit of a mirror since it was dark out. So we all studied the scene as it played out in mirror image, and sure enough, the men committing the crime looked completely different in the mirror.
Both were Asian, one looked like he might have had a white parent and was quite a bit taller than the other. The other was actually even shorter than you, but both were definitely men. When the vision got to the part where the henchman came in, he was clear enough - even from the printed copy - that they had something to work from. When all was said and done, Robards was fairly convinced that an actual crime had happened, and that - since it seemed to be covered up - chances were that no one knew what had happened to the young man.

This was where Bletchley got really happy. Robards decided that it was worth sending someone to Singapore to look through missing person photos and see if there was a match to the victim. Also, see if there might be mugshots on file of any of the criminals. If so, look into getting the crime solved.

With all of that set, Robards wondered who he could send, and Bletchley remarked that he had a LOT of unused holiday time built up, and that he wouldn’t mind a working vacation so long as he got reimbursed for the actual time he worked, plus a decent hotel and a bit of per diem. Robards agreed since he trusts Bletchley to be able to get things done despite the distraction of a holiday.

With Bletchley already looking like Christmas had just come early, I probably could have just left it, but I couldn’t. So I reached into my pocket and pulled out my coin purse.

"Here, I’d like you to give this to the boy’s family - if you manage to track them down - with my sympathy," I handed him about a hundred Galleons. "And don’t let those greedy goblins rob you with a bad exchange rate! Visit Theo Nott and tell him I sent you; he’ll give you a favorable exchange rate." I then handed him about a hundred more Galleons. "And here, take your wife to someplace decent at least once. I recommend the SKAI, which has a rather nice champagne brunch on Sundays."

"Shit Guv! You damn near paid for my entire trip! Would have done if I was just going for a day or two, but I expect that something this delicate is going to take an entire week," Bletchley stated with a broad grin.

"Better not take any longer than two weeks, because at that point, I expect you to give up and come home," Robards commanded sternly.

"Of course," Bletchley agreed with a nod. Then he slung an arm over my shoulder. "So... are the rumors of a thriving red light district true?"

I shrugged. "Apparently the Orchard Towers are considered four floors of whores. Wouldn’t know as I didn’t visit any of them. Took Harry to a gay sauna instead."

"Your loss mate," Bletchley said as he lightly pounded me on the back. "My wife had so much fun at your party that she’s been on me to find out if there are any others coming up. I figure she’ll LOVE an opportunity like this."

Robards looked a cross between suspicious and disapproving. "Come on man! Don’t get arrested on holiday for something you KNOW is illegal - being an Auror and all. Also, WHAT party???

I chuckled and gave him a bit of a flirty grin, feeling so much better now that plans were being made to deal with my vision, should it happen to be true. "Harry and I recently threw a nice old fashioned orgy. Only reason we didn't invite you is that the last time I hinted I might like to invite you to such a party, you looked at me like I deserved to be kissed by a dementor, and so, I took that to mean you weren't interested. Ever."

"That much is true," Robards agreed. Then he shrugged. "I could care less about your sex life, mate, but maybe try not to corrupt my Aurors?"

I laughed so hard that I couldn't manage to calm down before he ordered me to leave already and I Apparated home.

So now I'm home and ready to take you up on your offer. Unfortunately, I'm dead certain that you are occupied with children - and likely horses - and will need me to come co parent for a few hours before we can slip away and shag like bunnies.

More than words is all you have to do to make it real, Then you wouldn't have to say that you love me, 'Cuz I'd already know,

Draco
Chapter 34

Chapter Summary

Once again, Harry messes with Draco's shirt.

Chapter Notes

I just finished writing my part of a chapter that also has to do with Draco teaching a class, and cracked myself up so hard that I sent three emojis of hysterical laughing to Chrissie, making her extremely apprehensive until she finally got to read the email, and then she called me trouble, lol ^_^

Wednesday June 1, 2016

My Best Friend,

I know I've complained to you a bit that I haven't seen our grandchildren much recently. Sammy is at Hogwarts so I see her even less than our Hogwarts kids. Miles and Colm's hours are so odd with having a 'nightlife' career that it seems as though finding times to meet up where our schedules work well enough for me to get time with Charlotte. But I had a mostly free day today and have been itching to introduce Blake to the horses.

I called up Bea, asked her if she and Finn could handle giving up Blake for the day with the possibility of a sleepover and she calmly checked her schedule and said she could work that into their plans. Yeah, by that I mean she basically had him through the floo with a bag packed before we finished our conversation.

She laughed when I started a bit of hysterical giggling, I guess she and Finn were hoping for a bit of a night out sometime soon but didn't want to bother us with our upcoming trip. And Blake had been begging to visit us. You know, we are so spoiled having our children's grandparents so close and very hands on. I forget how often we're able to get away to ourselves simply because we live in a giant home that we share with our children's beloved Grammy Cissa and Grampy Lulu. Finn and Bea really just have us.

I planned to introduce our little Beegee to the horses, and then maybe take him to play at our park, possibly pull out the smaller dirt bikes. Since he showed up just after breakfast, I figured we had a lot of hours to kill and tried to have plans ready. Nope, didn't need any of the extra plans. I had to have the elves make us a picnic lunch so he could eat at the stables and ended up bringing him in at dinner with tears in his eyes and promises that we could come back and visit the horses in the morning.

He looked at me with great fat alligator tears and asked, "but won't Cheesecake be lonely without me?" Oh hunny! He's attached!

I wiped his eyes, gave him a big hug, and assured him that Cheesecake would be fine hanging out with the lovely Fondue and I made sure he saw me set the monitoring spells that would alert us if the horses were upset.

I have a feeling the horses will have plenty of attention while we're in California if Blake has anything to say about it.

After dinner, we headed over here to Unity for Movie Night. For the fact that both of his parents are Unity Royalty, Blake doesn't make it to these nights all that often. So once he got over his sadness at leaving the stables, he was very excited to come play at the Park and hang out with a bunch of kids. And we're watching Big Hero 6, which is one of his favorites so he's extra excited. I didn't even plan it that way, it was just a happy coincidence.

Missing you again, hope class is going well and you don't hurt anyone too much.

Yours,
Harry

P.S. Always remember how much you love me

Wednesday June 1st
GODDAMNIT HARRY!!!

I have no bloody idea how you keep managing to do this to me!!! I checked THREE TIMES to make sure I had the right clothes before I left, and yet SOMEHOW when I arrived and went to change into my bespoke sparring outfit, I find YET AGAIN that you've switched out my shirt with a T-SHIRT!!!

This one almost certainly made my students want to run away screaming. Very admirably, they refrained from running away or screaming. Much. This one said:

PERSONAL TRAINER [per-sun-al tray-ner]
1. The one responsible for ensuring others incur the maximum pain and suffering possible
See also: badass, sadist

Come to think of it, maybe they DID try running away, they just didn't get far as they were on a track. When I went to pick them up from the Ministry track, they saw me coming and did their best to speed up and stay ahead of me. I probably looked ready to murder someone.

Eventually, we were back in the classroom. I decided that it was finally time to teach them how to block punches. Which means that half of them were throwing punches while the others were supposed to block or intercept them. My only rule was no hitting the face or the groin. Everything else was fair game.

I walked around giving pointers and sportingly gave them each a shot at trying to punch me. Not one of them succeeded, and in their zeal, they found out that I know a LOT of holds - such as choke hold, arm behind the back, and nose to the floor.

"Do I need to go easy on you precious little petals?! I sincerely doubt any of you could give me a nosebleed if you were circled around me fully armed while I was unarmed and had no clear escape route! YOU!!! Are you even TRYING?!?! Her hands are RIGHT THERE, ready to block anything you can throw at her, and YOU would have better luck hitting her if I tripped you and tossed you into her!!! BLOODY HELL!!! I feel like I should invite a few prisoners from Azkaban here so that you could see what a REAL fight is like!!! Merlin's buggering sphincter! Next class is the day after my birthday and I think I'll amuse myself by bringing in my three SIX YEAR OLDS and laugh my arse off as they WIPE THE FLOOR with you lot!"

"SHUT THE BLOODY HELL UP!!! CAN YOU STOP BEING AN ARSEHOLE LONG ENOUGH TO ACTUALLY TEACH US ANYTHING?!!?"

I was impressed with the bollocks on this one, considering that he's the least in shape and doing so poorly in class that I really feel I should put him in a body bag and hand him to Robards to make a point. I stared him down for a long moment before beckoning him closer.

"Come over here and say that to my face. Better yet, punch me. Slap me. Bloody trip me. Did I piss you off? Prove it!"

The rest of my students looked torn between highly concerned for his health and very eager to see him succeed. With him highly motivated to NOT land in St. Mungo's, he seemed to actually pull his head from his arse and THINK about what he was doing. He's got some power behind his fist. Too bad his fist didn't get anywhere near me.

I was able to block every single punch he threw at me. He got ever more determined to take me down a peg, and actually DID manage to make me keep my guard up, but aside from entertaining his classmates for a good ten minutes, he didn't make any progress.

Well actually, I shouldn't say that as he did make LOADS of progress. I could see him strategizing and trying out the various techniques I've taught. Too bad for him I can figuratively and LITERALLY read the moves as they cross his mind. Still, if he'd been fighting a criminal, I think he might have held his own, and THAT is exactly what I'm trying to teach them to do. Better yet, hold their own until they have an opening to take down and arrest the criminal.

Frustrated that he hadn't harmed so much as a hair on my head, he eventually grumbled the question I've been waiting for. "This is useless! Why the bloody hell do we have to learn this?!!"

That's when I stopped playing nice and swept his feet out from under him so that I could roll him over and sit on his back. Then I put my elbow just to the right of his spine - next to his shoulder blade - and rested my chin on my hand as if I was utterly bored.

"Tell me something, do you plan to arrest a criminal as an Auror?"

"Well yeah," he muttered, trying his best to wriggle out from under me.

"So, what if your criminal casts a simple Expelliarmus? How will you arrest him or her if you're unarmed?"

"Erm..."

"AND what if your criminal sneaks up behind you with the intention to bash you over the head. If you don't notice until the last possible second, how are you going to avoid the blow, and better yet, turn it to your advantage?"

"Erm..."

"What about raids? Do you think you'll ever want to go on a raid?"

"Yeah, that's where the big money is," he stated, pointing out that Aurors who go on raids earn a bonus in addition to their regular pay because of the potential danger. More if they actually get injured in the line of duty.
"Ah, so your main interest is in making money. You don't particularly care about your life or getting criminals off the streets," I theorized.

"Oi! I wouldn't be training as an Auror if I only wanted money!"

I sighed as if bored, now resting my other elbow on his back and propping my chin up on my hands. "Alright, so not only do you have to pass this class to qualify for raid duty, but I know for a fact that most of the time, one of the wards erected around a raid site is an ANTI-MAGIC ward. So tell me, how do you plan to do your job as an Auror without magic?"

Big mouth seemed scandalized. "THEY DO NOT!!!" He spluttered for a second. "That's INSANE!!! WHY would they do that??!!"

"A little over a month ago, the Ministry raided an illegal potions lab. Inside was a room full of kids. Can you imagine what COULD have happened had one of the more desperate and dangerous higher ups decided to use the kids as hostages?"

He paled. "I can imagine that it wouldn't have been good."

"Can you think of a better way to ensure that a CHILD - or other INNOCENT person - isn't accidentally or otherwise hit with an unforgivable killing curse?"

He seemed to think this over for a moment, and then growled. "It's still INSANE to take away magic from the trained Aurors going in. With just a few well-aimed stunning spells, the criminals would be taken into custody and the raid would be over."

I shook my head. "I don't think you have what it takes yet. To participate in raids, that is. If you manage to pass this class, I'm going to require that you work as an Auror for at least three years before I let you go on any raids."

He scoffed. "Lucky for me that YOU'RE not the Head Auror then!"

I sighed, rubbed my forehead and decided that I was done with him. I stood up and walked away - especially since class only had five minutes left by that point. As I walked away, I heard one of the Aurors I've worked with a few times chuckling under his breath. A surreptitious glance over my shoulder revealed that he was giving the big mouth a hand up.

"Idiot! You DO know that Draco Malfoy happens to be the Chief in charge of raids, right?"

"WHAT?! BLOODY HELL!!! WHY THE FUCK WOULD THEY PUT HIM IN CHARGE?!?!?!"

I paused outside the not quite closed door to hear the answer.

"Because he puts the same terrifying attention he's giving us into the raid, and since he does, we have a GOOD track record of conducting raids with minimum to NO injuries. Wouldn't you prefer to work under a man who knows how to keep everyone alive and in one piece?"

"Well..... yeah....."

At that, I snorted in amusement and finished walking to the nearest Apparation point. I've been telling them since the beginning that I'd give them the skills they need AND a good idea of why they need them. I HAVE been telling them - giving plenty of examples of real instances in which criminals have done things or when each move has come in handy. Maybe NOW they'll start paying more attention.
I know you wanted to leave on Monday, and you most certainly can - taking the jet with all the kids - but I'm going to stay behind and use my Portkey between the Manor and our house in California. That way, I can invite my students back to the manor a few hours earlier than class usually starts. I'm serious about keeping our youngest with me. I plan to have my students be chased by Amala for a good 45 minutes, and THEN I want to watch as our kids kick all their arses to the ground every five seconds.

Maybe if you feel like delaying your flight after all, you and the rest of the kids can watch from the comfort of lounge chairs while munching on popcorn.

In the meantime, now that I'm home and showered (I had to wash the stink of that student off, bleh!), I was planning to crawl into bed with and molest you, but it looks like you're already sound asleep..... snuggled up with our adorable honorary grandson Blake. So, sleep it is, I guess.

But before I sign off, I just wanted to remind you that Sammy - having found out that she shares a birthday with Mahafsoun - wants to spend the day as a shadow, provided that Mahafsoun is allowed to have visitors on her set that day. I think she said that they were going to do pre-start-of-filming things that day, so I'm not sure how it'll work, but I'm going to at least ask.

The breath that I breathe,
Draco
Sunday June 5, 2016

My Dragon,

Happy Birthday my love. I'm hopeful that all the fun plans we have for today are as wonderful as you deserve. I'm not sure how much longer the children are going to let you sleep, I've been fending some of them off for hours! The older kids like to sleep in anyway and are well aware of how much you hate being woken up. But our smallest are getting antsy and wanting to get started on spoiling their daddy on his birthday.

I'm sitting in our bed, wand at the ready to re-cast silencing and locking charms at our door should I need to AGAIN. I figured I would get my thoughts out while I wait for those beautiful silver eyes to blink themselves open.

I already sent my traditional bouquet of flowers to your mum to thank her for her efforts in bringing my favorite person into the world. You'd think after all these years she'd be used to it, but she still gets all soft and emotional when I bring them to her the morning of your birthday.

It was no problem to change up our plans for leaving Monday. Haz doesn't actually need to be there for prep until the tenth, so a delay in one day wasn't an issue. I spoke with Mr. Lott to tell him of the change of plans and he said he'd just spend Monday sleeping and we could take off Monday night after your class. I didn't even think of that, just assuming we'd leave Tuesday instead. But this should really help the kids with any jet lag symptoms. They'll sleep off and on during the eleven hour flight, their bodies will be a bit confused and we'll land at around three in the morning on Tuesday. We get settled into the house, everyone crashes for a few more hours, and we wake up at a fairly normal time on Tuesday ready to start the day.

Oh! I have a bit of a thought about your plans for your victims, sorry I mean students, for Monday. Instead of having them run first and be chased by Amala, I think you should have them spar with the trouble trio first. If you have them exhaust themselves running then I can see the little whiners using their exhaustion as an excuse for getting their arses handed to them. I think you should have them stretch a bit, maybe run a lap or two, and have them spar the triplets fresh and energized.

I think you were kidding when you talked about having us lounge and have popcorn while you terrorize your students, but when I got home from picking up our Hogwarts kids and told them about your 'joke' they all thought it was the best idea they'd ever heard. So unless you are actively against the idea, you are going to have quite the crowd tomorrow night.

I think I'm most looking forward to seeing them get whooped by Seph. She is so tiny, she looks so beautifully dainty, but she is the toughest out of all three. I think somehow she knew she was going to be so small and decided to make up the difference by packing in as much personality, sass, and determination she could fit in her body.
Much like our trip to Singapore, it's your birthday and I want you to have the exact day you want. So, I have things planned but if you have something you'd rather do, you just let me know. I have us scheduled for the dragon event at Adventure Park. I got us seats to one of Miles' shows tonight. And lunch reservations at Café Exquis. Just let me know if anything needs to be altered.

Oh! Speaking of altered, the weekend of the big Hogwarts party at the Manor? That's the weekend of Glastonbury! So while the big kids are partying the night away, should we take the smaller kids to Glasto to keep them out of their hair? I just assumed we would miss it this year with all of our plans, but the timing of us coming back for the party makes it so we shouldn't have to miss it at all. What do you think? Earth Wind and Fire are going to be performing on Sunday!

Alright, I'm off to distract the kids, this is the third time they've broken through my silencing charms. Little monsters!

Thank you for being born!
Harry

Monday June 6th
My everything,

We are currently on our flight, which gives me plenty of time to recap my last two days. As I was waking up on my birthday, I could feel you trying to leave our bed, and I didn't care what time it was, this was NOT ON! So I grabbed you and yanked you back over to me so that I could kiss and have my very wicked way with you.

Unbeknownst to me, our youngest three were having a conversation that went something along the lines of: "Sigh... looks like we have to wait EVEN LONGER!" "Well yeah, but the good news is that he's awake now." "Let's go get Amala and let her in here, she'll make him hurry up." "That's BRILLIANT!!!"

So, we were having ourselves a great time, kissing and wanking each other, until I was ALMOST there, and then - sure enough - Amala jumped on the bed and tried her best to get in on the action. Which, of course, killed the mood almost completely. After fighting off a disconcertingly amorous Cheetah - who STILL thinks I'm at least partially her mate, ugh! - we decided to take a shower and finish up in there.

Then, to prevent further shenanigans from our adorable hooligans, I decided that it was best to cut my morning routine short and just get dressed. We then proceeded to have a fabulous family brunch in which our many imps - I mean choir of angels - showered me with love and gifts. And by gifts, I of course mean songs or skits to entertain me. Only Elena actually bought me something.

I opened her gift with a slight suspicion that she'd forgotten until the last second and just bought me any old piece of jewelry. Don't get me wrong, I would have loved it, but happily, I was wrong. Inside the bracelet sized box lurked two tickets to a show in California. An all male burlesque show, mmm...

Our girl knows us so well!

Speaking of our girl, she has definitely hit the nauseous phase of pregnancy. It doesn't seem to be too horrible, just a little vomiting when she forgets to eat every two to four hours. Remind me to have Muffy make her a nice snack basket to have on hand at all times.
The attention was taken off of me for a few minutes as we all asked Elena how she was doing. She admitted to finally accepting that Rodrigo is a capable assistant. She still hates being more or less forced to slow down, but she's grateful enough to have such loving dads who know how to take care of her.

After River and Mahafsoun finished their amazing performance and brunch was finished, we bribed our youngest 8 atrociously to have a fun day with our older set of Triplets and Viona. Speaking of Viona, she's ever so grateful that I've managed to secure Hogsmeade for her and has spent most of the day huddled together with Pippa, planning out how to best decorate the entire town. So glad I'm not a part of that discussion!

Once our youngest had been sufficiently paid off and the oldest were sufficiently paid off to take them out, they headed off to Unity Park to have a fun day of riding rides and causing mayhem. It's a good thing I still partially own the place and can afford to pay for any damages.

I wonder if I should have warned them...

Anyway, that left us free to head out for your plans - which were perfect for me. We went to my Adventure Park and played with the dragons. I didn't take my Anijuice potion since I'm actually low on dragon scale (Charlie promised to get me more for my birthday, but I haven't seen him yet), but we still had a blast simply riding our brooms as we let the dragons chase us.

The interesting thing is that after so many years of the dragons interacting with paying customers, they are almost tame. Not quite - one still has to avoid provoking their temper - but so long as one is respectful and just wants to fly with them, they are actually friendly, even letting us pet them. On a rare occasion, a customer even has the luck of riding one. And it was definitely my lucky day as they recognized my smell from the several times I'd transformed into a dragon and gone flying with them. They let me and you ride them around the replica of the First Task of the Triwizard Tournament.

I don't know about you, but I had so much fun that I gave serious consideration from retiring from life and just living out the rest of my days as a dragon with them. The thing that convinced me that was a bad idea was that even if you came with me, we'd miss our kids like a bone deep ache, so no. No permanent dragon status for me. Yet.

I'm still considering it for my old age.

But speaking of dragons, erm… Remember my friend from the forbidden Forest? The Antipodean Opaleye that's been living there for at least the last five years. Well, remember how the last time we went there and she seemed highly upset and kept whipping her tail at her empty nest? I've given it a lot of thought, and I THINK that she was trying to tell me something along the lines of: "Dragon up and mate with me, man, so that my nest stops being empty and our kind gets just a tiny bit less closer to extinction!"

Now I'm NOT saying that I particularly like the idea, but if I'm right, she has a sort of point. And since Opaleyes really are rare (the only other one I know of is the decrepit old male that Charlie gets my scales from), maybe I have a sort of obligation to help out. What do you think?

But moving on.

After our day with the dragons, we went to eat at Café Exquis, and I swear they OUTDID themselves for sheer excellence! But then it was time for the best part...

A fun and hilarious show starring our gorgeous Miles! Once again, you apparently warned him that we were coming because he ended the show by dragging me up on stage and having the two of us perform a trio of songs for the additional delight of the large paying audience.

I had a blast!

My day was perfect from beginning to end! Especially since you were determined to make up for the fact that Amala interrupted our wake up. After shagging each other into exhaustion, I slept like the dead and had a lovely afternoon chatting and catching up with our kids.

But then it was time for my class. I'd had Pippa send them all reminders that I expected them to show up to the Manor an hour earlier than usual. I also made it known that I'd accept no excuses short of death for not making it. Prior to the start of class, I spent a good hour and a half making myself look good. I got dressed up in my favorite of my sparring outfits, and preened for my mirror for at least ten minutes before Apparating to the running track to meet my class.

I was in an excellent mood.

"Listen up! My husband Harry had a brilliant idea." I gestured to you where you and all of our kids were sitting on lounge chairs and munching on snacks. You smirked suspiciously and waved at me before blowing me a kiss. I raised a brow but shrugged it off. "He suggested that I take it a bit easy on you today and let you be all fresh and ready to spar - thus no running other than a few stretches and a quick warm up lap. What do you all think? Doesn't that sound lovely?"

They were all eyeing my shirt and groaning - giving me the impression that they did NOT believe I was planning to go easy on them. They were right, but I have no idea how they parsed it. That's when I looked down and saw that my shirt was NOT what I'd put on. It was somehow a T-shirt that said: NOBODY CARES: WORK HARDER

"GODDAMNIT HARRY!!!" I roared, glaring over at you.

"What??" You asked with an air of innocence that was ruined by the smug grin on your face.

"STOP FUCKING WITH MY SHIRTS!!!"

"I'm just giving your students fair warning."

Sighing in aggravation, I decided to go topless after all, or at the very least, take my shirt off until I could summon my ACTUAL shirt. To my dismay, under the T-shirt was a black singlet that said: REAL MEN EAT ASS

"GODDAMNIT HARRY!!!"

"WHAT??! I'm just letting them know that you are MINE and they'd better keep their hands to themselves! I DID defeat Voldemort after all, mere moments after he threatened your life."

I stopped short because that part hadn't ever occurred to me before. "Huh..... you actually did. Fine! Everyone, line up so that we can stretch!"

After our quick warm up, it was time for the main event, I had my students line up again.

"Persephone, Lily, Caelum, could you three come over here a minute?"

"Sure thing daddy!!!" They cried out excitedly as they bounded over to me, then they stood there staring up at me looking so adorable that my heart just about melted. The girls were wearing silk Chinese shirts and matching bottoms - dark purple for Persephone and gold embroidered with bright red flowers for Lily. Meanwhile, Caelum was wearing a sport uniform that said Malfoy across the back and had the number 1 on the front.

"I promised my students that they'd get a chance to spar with you three cherubs today, and so, I want you to refrain from murdering them, but otherwise, go ahead and take them out."

"YES DADDY!!" They accepted eagerly and instantly transformed into a trio of ninjas with their fierce hiyas and their murderous expressions. I jogged over to your double sized lounge chair and got comfortable while we watched our babies utterly terrorize my students.

AHHHH.... This was my favorite class yet. I look forward to making this a standard part of my class each time I have a new set of students who think they're making good progress. Which - by the way - is an EXCELLENT reason to give our tinys that age freezing potion. That way, they'll ALWAYS be these tiny little pixies that don't look like they should be able to break a sweat, much less an arm.

The only problem with my plan was that I didn't get to watch as closely as I wanted because you thoroughly distracted me by snogging the bloody hell out of me. But once my class had been beaten into submission, our terrors came over and told me to stop being disgusting and go deal with the people on the ground.

With a triumphantly evil laugh, I untangled myself from you and jogged over to my students. "Alright! Now that you are nice and limber, it's time for my pretty kitty Amala to come out and chase your arses around the track a few times. What do you think? Sound brilliant? Yeah? AMALA...." I sang out gleefully.

A nice roar let me know that she was on her way.

"I suggest you use this time to get a head start. Chop chop!"

And that was the start of my best class yet. After their 45 minute jog - terrified run - I was able to feed them a quick snack of your homemade biscuits (they were allowed more than one this time), tea, and plenty of water. Then I paired them up and had them just spar. I'd taught them all the basics by this point, and really, all they needed to do was practice them until they were actually good.

No one died and no one had to go to the Ministry Healers, so I call that a win.

But as I said, I'm now on the jet and it's time for me to sign off and take advantage of the fact that you are sleeping right next to me.

Every time I close my eyes, it's you I see,
Draco
Chapter 36

Chapter Summary

They’ve officially arrived in California and Draco is very tired.

Wednesday June 8, 2016

Greetings from sunny, beautiful California!

We got in yesterday and did a whole lot of nothing. Mostly just unpacking, settling the kids into their rooms, short naps to keep the snits at bay without completely getting us jetlagged. Rediscovering all of our favorite parts of our Cali house and surrounding yard. Except for Sammy and Maha obviously who must have just chugged a pepper-up or they are just better at dealing with exhaustion than this over-the-hill thirty-five-year-old-man.

As upside down as I think we all felt yesterday, it was really nice to go to bed at a normal time last night and wake up today refreshed and ready to start the day. I think this should put us on good footing for the rest of the summer instead of trudging through jetlag for the next week while we sync up our brains with the sun.

I've already been for a run this morning. It's so funny, I prefer to run outdoors. Even in the dead of winter I would rather just cast warming charm after warming charm than run indoors on a small circular track or, Merlin forbid, a treadmill. I'm glad those monstrosities exist for those who want to utilize them, but give me the great wide open any day! But the funny part is that back in the UK, even when we're at hotels or areas with more people, I rarely run into other people out on their runs. I know they do, I'm not going to pretend I'm the only runner in the entire place, I just think the places I run at home tend to be free of other runners.

Running here in southern California? It's a completely different world. I did the early morning runner head nod in solidarity with so many people!

There was an incident this morning though. I debated waking you up, but seeing as you have to pop off for your class today … or is it tomorrow? I get so mixed up with the time differences … I decided to let you sleep and I will just catch you up a bit. So, we are going to meet up in person with the surgeon on Friday. We've had plenty of skype conversations, and the surgeon has spoken with Haz's healers at home at length, as well as met up with the physical and mental doctors she was cared for when we lived here. But Hazel hasn't met this surgeon in person yet.

I know Hazel, Eris, and Viona in particular were planning on spending most of today and tomorrow at the beach. I figured we would barely see them the next few days. So I went in and talked to Haz before they could leave just to make sure we had all the scheduling and specifics set for our appointment Friday. I mentioned wanting to leave earlier than planned, the surgeon is a muggle doctor after all so I didn't want to just apparate into her office or anything. And the traffic around here is insane. Well something about it being two days away made Hazel panic.

She started crying and breathing really fast, poor lamb was having a bit of a panic attack. I just held her, rocked her a bit, and made shushing noises. I eventually asked her if this panic meant she was having second thoughts. I thought that child was going to start throwing punches at me! Nope. No second thoughts. If anything I think she was terrified that she'd gotten so close to what she wanted that she is afraid something is going to go wrong. Somehow when the surgery was "someday" and far in the future she could just be hopeful. But it being so soon means that she's going to spend the next twenty-three days worrying that something is going to fall through and this thing she'd waited for for so long wasn't going to happen for her.

I was able to calm her down, and sent the kids on their way to the beach. If she hadn't been able to stop freaking out I certainly would have woken you to help, but thankfully that wasn't necessary.

Hopefully we have enough things planned in the next three plus weeks that the time will fly and surgery day will be here before you know it. Then the only panicking black-haired Malfoy you'll have to worry about is me! And probably Eris. She's been oddly quiet during any conversations having to do with the main reason we're here in Cali this summer. And I know it's not any sort of jealousy over the attention or annoyance at being somewhere she doesn't want to be. You should probably wear something waterproof on the big day because Eri and I will be crying our eyes out on your shoulders.

Okay I can NOT dwell on how worried I am or I am going to be a soggy mess and I have too many things I want to get done today.

Are you as surprised and or pleased as I am about the Viona/Alric rooming situation? I was really gearing up for an epic Viona rage for us even daring to suggest they sleep apart. Either a rage or an outright refusal. I thought we might even get a stern lecture on the patriarchal implications of assigning the concept of purity or virginity to a person. And when I simply gestured to the room and said "Here's where Alric can stay" they both looked almost … relieved? He air kissed her cheek and told her he'd meet up with her after he'd unpacked.

It's absolutely bonkers, but I'm almost disappointed it wasn't an issue. You and I spent so much time worrying about how to handle him being on this trip with us and everything was just smooth as can be? All that worry for nothing!

Well, I am off to the market, the team we hired to stock the pantry did a good job of filling up on the staples and basics, but I want to go a bit crazy in the fresh produce department. We are going to have the freshest damn orange juice every morning I swear it!

Yours,
Harry

Wednesday June 8th
UGH!

I'm going to hate this, I just know it!

While you were off writing an email to me and trying to let me sleep in as much as I wanted, Pippa was busy waking my arse up and barely giving me enough time to swallow down a smoothie as she dressed me like a child and shoved my Portkey in my hand. See, with London being 7 hours ahead of us, 5PM there - when my class starts - is 10 AM here. I'm never up until much closer to noon!!!

Sigh...

It wasn't until I arrived at the Manor and used the convenient floo connection from our track to my classroom that I even thought to look at what Pippa had put on me. To my dismay, it was another of those shirts. This one said:

SQUAT because NO ONE RAPS ABOUT little butts.

"GOODAMNIT HARRY!!!" With a resigned sigh - because I was definitely not awake enough to give a shit about anything short of the Dark Lord being resurrected and attacking me - I trudged off to pick up my students from the track. They followed me quietly because I was pretty quiet myself.

As promised by your shirt, I made them squat repeatedly for about a half an hour before pairing them up and having them take turns attacking and defending. Strangely, the longer I went without saying much of anything at all, the more wary and downright afraid they seemed to get. I'm dead certain that they started taking bets on which one of them I was planning to AK.

But the most interesting part of class was that every single student had been properly humbled by their experience with our kids, and was taking this class much more seriously. I think they might even have teamed up to practice in their spare time. Honestly, THAT is probably the only way they're ever going to truly retain their lessons.

Once done, I was going to wave my hand dismissively and leave, but my uncharacteristic silence had unnerved them all to the boiling point.

"What crawled up your arse and died?" One of my braver and actually more competent students asked.

I raised a brow and stared him down.

"Seriously? Did you and your husband fight? Did someone kill your cat? Was your teenaged son caught shagging some girl?"

"NO! Thank Merlin! We had enough of that from River!" I blurted out. Then sighed and rubbed my temples. "Fine, if you must know, I am not awake enough to form coherent words. It may be evening here in Britain, but it was not quite 10 AM back in LA, and I NEVER get out of bed until nearly noon."

"Oh? … So you're too tired to..."

I immediately blocked a punch. "I said I was tired, not DEAD! You're going to have to train for a hundred more years before you're good enough to get one over on me!"

"I think you're full of it! I think NOW is the best time to take you down!"

To my surprise, I was fully awake now. "Put your money where your mouth is!"

With this invitation, it became a free for all of my students trying to attack me and put me through even a tiny bit of what I've put them through. Unfortunately for them, they are still in the stage where they have to think about what they are doing - rather than react instinctively - and so, not quite able to thwart my Legilimency.

Still, they impressed me enough that I feel they deserve a treat for our next class. I'm going to let them take a break from sparring and having their arses kicked, and I'm going to make them dance instead. But that's not until Monday, and so - in the meantime - I have plenty of time to Portkey back home and have a nice long chat with Hazel.

See you in a couple of minutes.
I have faith in what I see, now I know I have met an Angel in person, and he looks perfect, I don't deserve it, but you look perfect tonight,
Draco
Chapter 37

Chapter Summary

It's time for Hazel's doctor's appointment.

Friday June 10, 2016

My Strength,

Ah! Today's the day. I am sure this will come as a complete surprise but I am panicking a bit. Luckily, Haz is still sleeping, so my worry isn't adding to hers. I promise, when she wakes up I will be completely calm and she will have no idea that I am slowly losing my mind here.

So far this morning I have already gone for a run, went into the yard to pick some fresh oranges, squeezed enough orange juice to feed even our massive family. I also made breakfast, and I've gone through every cupboard just in case we left something here last time and it needs to be cleared out. Like baby swimsuits that wouldn't fit anyone in this house or cracked beach toys or expired food.

Twenty Merlin-be-damned cupboards in this house and not a single thing I needed to take care of. It's almost like we have a small army of house elves that would be horrified at the idea of leaving a cupboard in disarray. Damn it! How am I supposed to panic clean when there's nothing to clean?

How did your chat with Hazel go? It's a bit silly, when she was using her upcoming surgery as manipulative ammunition to get you to say yes to her party idea she wasn't actually worried about it. It was all part of her creative form of getting her way. I wish she actually had something she was trying to talk us into now, it would be so much easier to deal with than actual worry. I'd give her just about anything she'd want if I could just take the worry out of those beautiful eyes.

Who am I trying to kid with this 'just about anything' nonsense? I would give her anything she wants if it was within my power to give. My sweet girl who asks for so little.

The kids all seem to have had fun so far in the few days we've been here. Exploring for the smaller kids and beach time for the older ones. A little on the boring side for us, but probably for the best. But this weekend we are going all out! Rock climbing for those interested, dirt biking for those interested in that, and a shopping trip to fill out our wardrobes to compensate for the change in weather. I know we did some shopping beforehand, but there's only so much summery beach stuff that can be stocked up on in Wiltshire ya know?

If I'm having a hard time finding something to do this morning, I have a feeling we should probably stock up on quiet indoor activities too for while Haz is recovering. Perhaps a few book series she hasn't read. A couple seasons of some new show we can binge together. Maybe some new board games? If I don't find something to do, this will be the summer that never ends. Well, we could probably get pretty deep into the wedding planning with Vivi.

Yes! I am going to see if The Princess is awake and talk wedding plans with her!

Spastically Yours,
Friday June 10th
My eternity,

Well today was certainly interesting.

I was feeling a bit nervous after my chat with Hazel because she spent the entire time asking me questions like:

"What if they think I'm too young to do this? What if they think I'm not a good candidate physically? What if they think I'm too insane to go through with it?!?!"

"Calm down love, you have been seeing a therapist since you were born. If you were insane, she would have told you by now and tried to fix it," I reminded her.

"Yeah but -"

I cut her short by pulling her in my arms and stroking her hair. "The worst thing they can do is make you wait until you're 18. The surgery WILL happen, even if you have to wait, but if they really thought you weren't ready, I'm certain they'd have called it off before now and told you to resign yourself to waiting."

"But I've waited long enough!"

"Yes, yes you have, and that's why I don't doubt that they will see that you're ready."

She sighed and rested her head against my shoulder and just let me hold her for a long time.

But as for today, this initial appointment took so much longer than I expected. The first two hours of it were Hazel chatting with a Psychologist about her reasons for wanting to transition fully. I have no idea what exactly was said as it was private between the two of them, but then there was a half an hour in which we were brought in to talk too and tell the woman about Hazel first telling us that she's a girl - which was actually Pearl who told us. How we've allowed her to be her true gender since she was four, how we have YEARS worth of family photos of us on vacation around the world with her wearing a skirt or sarong because she didn't always feel comfortable being naked with the rest of us because her incorrect gender. Things like that.

Then we headed off to a physical exam performed by the surgeons who will be performing the surgery. They needed to be certain that she was in full physical health so that there would be no problems during the surgery. They also needed to go through all the surgeries that would be performed, and those that were optional.

Hazel WILL be having a penectomy and an orchiectomy - which is the removal of the scrotum - and am I complete arse for shuddering in horror as these things are mentioned? Those are some of my favorite parts!!!

Anyway, she will also be having a vaginoplasty so that she has a fully functioning vagina when they are done. Once again, I had to sort of go elsewhere in my mind as these things were being discussed because I REALLY didn't want any of that in my head. But those are the three definite surgeries.

There are also a few other surgeries she could have at the same time. Even though you and I both said that we couldn't really notice it, Hazel has been wearing a lot of scarves lately to cover her Adam's Apple because she feels that it is the biggest one in all of creation and is so self conscious about it. So, she's adamant about having it shaved and smoothed. There are an array of plastic surgeries that can be done to her face to reshape it and make it more feminine, but we all agreed that with her early and continued access to estrogen, she's been developing in a feminine enough way that none of that is necessary.

Which just left..... Breasts.....

You know Harry, I KNOW that you are completely uninterested in breasts, but I personally find them nice. I like looking at them and they can be soft and fun to touch on occasion. Having to think about breasts not ONLY in relation to our daughter, but ALSO in relation to the SIZE of our daughter's breasts has quite put me off them for the foreseeable future.

That was the last of the optional surgeries that the Surgeon wanted to discuss. It seems that most people that elect to transition fully tend to have breast augmentation because they are usually men who did not have access to estrogen early enough to grow their own. They also usually aren't able to transition until they are fully grown and often fairly late in life.

But in Hazel's case, she has breasts, they're just... small. I never gave them any sort of look - aside from literally seeing them when she's dancing topless or taking a bath with the rest of the family. But because I've never given them a look, I hadn't known the specifics, such as: "But Dads! I REALLY want to go up at least half a size! I'm just big enough to be considered a B in that I'm too much for an A cup, but I don't really fill in the B cup. I JUST want to be a solid B!

Salazar preserve me!

"But Hunny!" You protested. "You're not done growing. What if we augmented them now, and then you hit a growth spurt and turn into a D cup?!"

"Actually, an Augmentation can always be reversed in that situation," the Surgeon supplied helpfully.

Hazel gestured to him as if he had just won her argument. "See?"

I sighed, rubbed my temples because I seriously wanted to run screaming from the room, and then held out a hand for her to take. "Look, we've chosen a team that is in the know and on board with Magic. That means that you are going to be having these surgeries done the muggle way because that's the only way to ensure that nothing goes wrong - or reverses itself over time. But you are ALSO going to be using healing spells and pain relief potions to minimize the time and discomfort from the healing process."

"Yeah?" Hazel stated and asked at the same time because she wasn't sure where I was going with this.

I sighed again. "I happen to know that there are potions and spells that can temporarily or permanently alter breast size. Pansy used to use the temporary spell before important dates, until she decided which size she liked the best and just took the potion to make them stay that way. Why don't I teach you those spells so that you can do exactly what she did and see which size you like best? Also, that gives you time to finish growing. Who knows, maybe your dad is right and you'll suddenly have a growth spurt and develop rather a lot in the next 2 years."

She hummed and tilted her head side to side as she thought this over. "Yeah, alright. I guess I will like having the ability to change them back if I make them TOO big."
"DAMN! I need to learn that spell!" The tall and painfully thin nurse lamented, looking at her almost unnoticeable chest.

The surgeon laughed. "Wouldn't help, you'd need the ability to DO magic in order to use it!"

She sighed morosely. "True..."

"Why didn't you just augment them?" Hazel asked curiously.

The nurse shrugged. "I'm born a woman - even though there are a lot of trans nurses here and I look like I could be one of them. My mother always told me that God gave me exactly what he wanted me to have and that I should learn to accept the gifts I have. I guess that maybe I believe her just enough that I haven't done it yet. Have them augmented, that is."

"Oh," Hazel murmured in understanding.

"Plus, then I'd have fake ones," the nurse added. "And even though they would LOOK really nice, they don't always feel so nice, you know?"

The Surgeon nodded in agreement. "Especially when someone has very little to begin with and wants to go as big as possible. There's just not that layer of fat needed to give them a nice feel."

Which somehow led to Hazel, the Surgeon, and the nurse - plus occasionally you - having a long and rather far too detailed discussion of real breasts versus fake breasts, and which really would be the better option in the long run. I am pretty sure my brain melted at some point and leaked out of my ears so that it could go running from the room.

But - in the end - we came out of the appointment assured that there was nothing wrong with Hazel that would prevent the surgery, and so now, all we need to do is a combination of having her see their therapist regularly to discuss what is going to happen until they are certain she is as prepared as she can be, PLUS WAITING, oi! I'm now of the opinion that these next few weeks will take FOREVER to pass!

That and I think there are actually supplements and things they want her to take and do to prepare her body for this major trauma. I sort of stopped listening at some point, erm, well, right about when we kept talking about breasts. Which I already said.

I'm just going to sign off now! And then probably go hide in the back of my closet and stroke my Komboloi. Or maybe hex myself to sleep until it's all over. We'll see how it goes.

Oh baby, I'm gonna love you forever, forever and ever amen, as long as old men sit and talk about the weather, as long as old women sit and talk about old men, if you wonder how long I'll be faithful, I'll be happy to tell you again, I'm gonna love you forever and ever, forever and ever, amen,

Draco
Chapter 38

Chapter Summary

Draco decides to give his students a bit of a break.

Chapter Notes

This chapter contains an adult looking at a seventeen year old inappropriately. Nothing happens, but I thought it was worth mentioning just in case

Wednesday June 22, 2016

My Darling,

Ugh, how much longer until the little triplets are old enough for long distance port-keying? When they're eight is it? You know I have always enjoyed a nice long plane ride. We have our own private jet and pilot. We never have to wait in lines. I don't have to take off my shoes. It's just an easy boarding and flying process. But these long flights get awfully draining with wound up young kids on them. I swear, if Lissa asks me one more time how much longer it is I am going to pretend I'm in a coma.

I know, I could probably just send her over to bug you. Oh wait, you went ahead on your portkey because you have class tonight … today … now? I am pretty sure that whenever you have class we should not have sent Pippa with you because I can't keep the times straight. Ha! I can't keep anything straight! Hehe, gay joke for the win!

And you were able to port yourself with the older triplets and Vivi so they could help your mum with last minute party prep. Thankfully Shtara, Siri, Zwei, Zaire, and Jaz decided to fly with me in solidarity. I am being such a whiner, it's really not bad at all. We have awesome kids, we've been playing games during the flight, we watched a movie already, and I'm thinking (wishing and praying actually) the triplets may end up napping here pretty soon. They talked Shtara into singing for them and when she said yes she winked at me and has been singing them super soft slow songs ever since.

Knock wood, but Cael and Seph's eyes are looking awfully heavy right now.

I don't know, maybe I'm focusing on this stressful flight because if I don't fill my head the worries start filtering their way in. I don't know if you've noticed, but I have tried keeping us heavily scheduled for pretty much the last twelve days in a row. We did LEGOLAND, we've been rock climbing, dirt biking, surfing, we saw the Angels kick the Twins' arses ten to two at Angel's stadium, hell we even went to turtle races in Marina Del Ray. Turtle racing Draco!

I'm just so nervous about my baby girl having surgery. I know it's going to be wonderful for her to finally have it done. I know it's so important for her mental wellness. And I know our surgeon is fantastic, not to mention we have the ability to speed up and keep safe her healing due to magic.
But … but … but … what if something goes wrong?

Okay, I really do need to keep my mind on something else. I think I'll start looking at more things I can cram in our schedule for when we get back. There are wind caves and crazy museums. Oooh! We could do one of those hunts where we try to find the best food trucks' locations. Did you know there's an alley you can visit that people traditionally leave their chewed gum on it? It literally has been collecting nasty chewed up gum for decades. What is wrong with people? But in places we might actually visit, there's a cat rescue we can visit, aptly called The Cat House.

Plus, DISNEYLAND! Can we can we can we? Huh, huh, please? Our princesses could meet other princesses, we can go on awesome rides, and there are parades and fireworks! Plus, I hear Peter Pan is a hoot, if we found him the two of you could be sarcastic arseholes together!

Oh, thank fuck, the triplets are asleep. Okay, I am going to try to catch a nap myself. I'll see you in a few hours my love!

Yours,
Harry

Wednesday June 22nd
My sanity,

So apparently I've been too tired while teaching my class the last couple of weeks to remember that I was going to give them a special treat. I was going to do it a couple of Mondays ago, but as I said, I've been too tired and basically half asleep while teaching classes. My students seem to like it when I show up to class quiet because it means that I'm going to simply pair them up and let them spar until my tea kicks in and I wake up. THEN I turn into a fierce Dragon who terrorizes the bloody hell out of them.

Today was different in that I was forced to wake up closer to 9AM so that I could eat something and be awake enough to bring a few of our kids with us. We arrived at the Manor and were immediately brought to the ballroom by the elves. That triggered me remembering that I planned to give my students an easy day of dancing. So, I ordered Muffy to head off to the classroom and leave a sign for my students to floo here.

Before they arrived, I had time to go change. It doesn't matter how you do it nor what shirt you wanted me to wear because I decided - swayed heavily by our kids wanting to come up with something extremely brilliant for their party - that we weren't just going to dance but FIRE DANCE. Thus, I was most definitely topless. My bottoms were basic black yoga pants that were charmed to the teeth to be impervious to fire. I normally forego even bottoms while firedancing, but I figured that I probably could run into trouble with the Ministry if any of my students complained that they had to see my gorgeous naked arse.

That DIDN'T extend to our kids. They were eager to get to choreographing a hot fire dance for their party, and so, were all naked - except for Hazel, who was only topless. They were chattering on about painted costumes to wear during the dance, Hazel wondering if she could charm her skirt to literally be on fire without burning her. My students actually entered the ballroom just ahead of me because Muffy had rounded them up and basically Apparated them there for me.

They stood there awkwardly, sounding like they wanted to apologize for interrupting something private, but also seriously were confused as to what was going on. I strode into the room behind them and clapped my hands to get their attention.
"You're all here, lovely! My kids had a brilliant idea, they're having a party this weekend and they want to come up with a brilliant dance to impress all their mates with, and since I've been working your arses to death lately, I decided that you all deserved a bit of a break today. SOOOO, you're going to dance with us," I explained.

"Mmm..." a couple of my students moaned in appreciation as they watched me walk to the center of the room. All of my dragons tend to fly around on my back - especially now that I have a complete set with the newest ones on my back to begin with, and so, my arms have looked bare during all my classes. This was probably the first time that they were seeing my tattoos. I ignored the moaning students.

"Muffy, hand out staves," I ordered.

"Yes Master," she replied obediently before handing a staff to each of my students.

I took the one Viona held out to me. Once everyone had a staff, I held up mine, copied by Viona, Eris, Orion, and Hazel. In unison, we all cried out: "Incendio!" Which caused our staves to burst into flame.

I then looked at my students. "If you've never tried to use wandless magic, feel free to use your wand, but honestly, a staff is very much like a big wand, and lighting it on fire tends to be an easy first wandless spell."

"Erm... Chief? Exactly WHY are we lighting our staves on fire?" One of the Auror students who has been on a raid with me before asked apprehensively.

"To dance with, of course," I stated as if this explained everything even though it didn't really explain anything. "Muffy, play last year's Midsummer Eve Ritual music."

Without a word of acknowledgment, the music started playing.

"Viona, take lead," I commanded.

"Right!" She accepted and promptly attacked Orion with her staff. Orion naturally defended himself, nearly landing a hit on his big sister. This provoked a squeak of alarm from Alric - who was sitting in a corner of the ballroom and trying his best not to watch by covering his eyes with his hands, but at the same time, dying of curiosity, and so, peeking through his fingers.

Hazel and Eris decided that this was their cue to perform the backup - which meant they spun their staves and repeatedly banged them on the floor with loud: "Huh!"s.

Twirling my fiery staff, I circled around my students. "I don't see any fire on your staves yet. Does this mean you want me to beat you all up with my fire stick while you jog around the room in terror? Or should I invite my cat in here to growl threateningly and lick her chops while imagining snacking on you?"

This prompted them to cast the spell I'd told them to - all of them needing their wands sadly. Then I led them through a staff dance that was equal parts dancing and defensive blocking maneuvers. Things were going rather well until the dance that Viona was leading her siblings in morphed into something that looked a bit too mature for them. I am rather lenient when it comes to dancing that pushes boundaries, but then I noticed one of my students staring at Viona like he wanted to drag her off and do unspeakable things to her, and so...

I swept his feet out from under him and stuck my magically on fire staff into his chest.
"Excuse me, but exactly WHAT were you looking at?" I asked with a deadly soft voice.

"Er, ah, erm, n-n-n-nothing!"

I replaced the staff with my bare foot to his throat. "Let me give you some generally helpful advice for life - and your continued survival. First of all, there is NOTHING happening in this room that should give you ANY sort of indication that you can look at a person like that. Other people are NOT your personal property and it doesn't matter if they are less than fully dressed. YOU remain respectful. When we raid places, we very often burst in on people in the loo, or hell! We've burst in on people shagging! If I CANNOT trust you to remain respectful in THIS situation, I sure as shit am NOT going to trust you to do so on a raid."

"R-r-right!" He wheezed out through his lightly compressed throat.

"Secondly, thank every deity you've ever HEARD of that I caught you and not MY DAUGHTER, because had SHE done so, I could not and would not have stopped her from putting you in the hospital for the next month."

"I-I-I-I-I..."

"Uh-huh, don't even try to deny it," I stated.

"Wait!" Viona bade imperiously. "Which one of us was he looking at and does this mean I get to add another broken arm to my punchcard? I'm nearly at 10!"

"Unfortunately love, I cannot let you break his arm now that I've addressed his transgression. I have to give him a chance to act with dignity and respect, but by all means, if he so much as glances in your direction, take him down," I permitted.

She got to one knee so that she could look him in the eye as she pointed at him sternly. "I've danced naked all around the world and never had to worry about my safety because I can break you in half before you realized you'd pissed me off. DON'T test me!!!"

Eris was now crossing her arms over her chest and glaring at him. "Of all the nerve! Our dad has the grace and hospitality to invite you into OUR HOME, and this is how you act?!!"

"We should Obliviate the memory of his entire existence from the rest of the class and send him off to Grandmama!" Hazel added.

"GIRLS!" I exclaimed, lowering my hands in a gesture meant to calm them down. "He's sufficiently chastised. There's NO need to get darling Grandmama involved! MERLIN! You're like your dad! He always wants to jump to most permanent solution to a minor problem too! Need I remind you that I'm WORKING for the MINISTRY and cannot be involved in any shady disappearances?!"

The four of them were now pointing their fire staves at the poor trembling student at my feet. A look circled around them before Orion nodded and pulled back his staff. "Dad has a point. We give him another chance to prove he knows how to behave."

Viona pulled back her staff with a frustrated sigh. "Fine."

Hazel slowly pulled back, but Eris held out another five seconds before pushing it against his neck. "Just remember, I know exactly where to cut you so that you bleed out before help can arrive."

"Eris!" I snapped.
"Just sayin'! We didn't spend two weeks with Kisa last summer for nothing," Eris reminded me.

I rubbed my temples. "I bloody KNEW I shouldn't have let you four go! Oh, we're just going to play with their kids, dad. We're not going to get into any trouble, dad. I don't even WANT to see the torture chamber!"

"Well I didn't!" Hazel cried out. "Until I got there and actually saw it, and then I realized that it was inexplicably fascinating!"

"Did you know that it can take Kisa three days to -"

"THAT'S ENOUGH!" I hastily cut Orion short, well aware of the many things that could follow that opening. I then helped my student up off the floor and roughly dusted him off. His eyes were pinned to the floor. "Apologize to my daughter."

"I'm so sorry, Miss Malfoy. I forgot my manners and it won't happen again."

"See that it doesn't! ALRIC! Keep your eyes on this man, and if he so much as glances in my direction, hex the buggering hell out of him!"

"Yes Ma'am!" Alric cried out obediently, now focusing intently on my student.

I couldn't help but laugh. "Alric, you're bloody MARRYING my daughter! You should probably learn to call her by name!"

"Yes sir - NO sir!!! I CAN'T do that!!!" Alric blurted out in horror.

"Why not?" I wondered curiously.

"I like living and very much want to continue to do so until after we are well and truly married. Sir!"

I shrugged, baffled.

"Right, break over, let's get back to dancing!" I commanded. "Muffy, play something with a fuckload of drums!"

The music instantly changed to a thundering beat.

"That reminds me, daddy!" Viona called out from where she was now spinning her staff around her interspersed with emphatic strikes in all directions - clearly trying to come up with an interesting move for a dance. "I've decided that while I'm here in the Manor, I'm going to call a meeting of all the businesses I'm in charge of."

"Alright, I suppose that we could hold the quarterly meeting a bit early. Any particular reason?" I asked even as I encouraged my students to try to hit me with their staves.

"Actually yes, I want to see which one will be the best fit for Alric. I've decided that I'm going to have him run ragged managing one of my businesses when I go back to school, so that he doesn't have time to think, much less think of anyone else."

"I WOULDN'T!!!" Alric wailed from his corner.

"And while I do believe that, there's no sense in tempting fate - idle hands and all that," Viona informed him.
"That's not a bad idea," I murmured, looking around to see if my shadow was in the room. She was. "Pippa! Schedule a business meeting for, hmm... Tuesday."

"See to it that even if all the others can't make it, that the Import Export business is there. I think that's the one that will suit Alric the best. But I still want as many of the others there as possible, as I want to give him an opportunity to meet with them all," Viona added.

I was a bit puzzled, and apparently my students were amazed that I could hold a full conversation while I kicked their arses in fire dancing. "Wouldn't him taking over the Import Export business have him traveling the world on business trips?" Which would sort of defeat the point of keeping him away from temptation, in my humble opinion.

"Oh no! He'd keep his arse in London, in the shop, where he'd better do an excellent job of managing and selling all those imported goods," Viona stated.

"Ah. I see," I murmured, dodging a dual attack as a couple of my students tried ganging up on me to improve their chances.

"I'm great at sales!" Alric volunteered excitedly. "I once sold my neighbor lady her own cat, which had gone missing for so long that she thought he had died, so when I found him - after I cast a healing spell and fed him up a bit - I took him over to her and... well I WAS just going to give him back, but she was so overcome that she offered me anything I wanted for him and I ended up a hundred pounds richer that day..."

I stopped and looked at him. "Are you a Slytherin? I thought you were a Hufflepuff."

"Ravenclaw, actually," he informed me with obvious pride.

"Ah, well, we can't all be perfect," I lamented.

"I'M A RAVENCLAW!!!!" Orion roared defensively.

"And an excellent Ravenclaw you are," I assured him. "But Slytherins are better."

"SEE?!" All three of his sisters burst out gleefully.

"DAD!!!!" Orion snarled.

I laughed, dodged yet another pitiful attempt at an attack, and pulled him close for a quick hug and a kiss.

"Oi Viona, figured out that dance yet?" I wondered.

"Yep!" She replied with pride.

"Excellent! Walk us through it," I ordered, which led to us all practicing a rather complicated fire dance until my students dropped from sheer exhaustion. I think I may have overestimated how 'easy' this would be for them...

But in any case, no one died, no one broke any bones, and I'm pretty sure no one got any bruises, despite probably FEELING like they've been bruised down to their bones. So this was definitely a win! Aside from the easily healed and copious burns...

But I'm in bed now waiting for your flight to finally arrive, so I'm going to sign off and take a nap in the hopes that you'll just wake me up in the best way when you get home.
River deep, mountain high,
Draco
Saturday June 25th
Master Mine,

Glasto-fest is fun. I love music. The younger kids are having a blast. We go home in a little bit to help referee the height of the Manor party. Blah Blah Blah. Here's the real point of the email, I have been ordered to describe in perfect detail exactly what transpired last night after hours in Glastonbury.

Last night, after we got the kids mostly settled for the night and left them in the safe care of Muffy and their own personal elves, you and I headed out for a night of debauchery and fun.

You were wearing those pants and boots that I love. The black leather making me want to fall to my knees and worship every inch of your body. I want to bare my neck and submit to you. I want to kneel in between those strong thighs, safely wrapped up, and hopefully be allowed to release your shaft and devote my mouth to its warmth and completion. Okay, I think I got off topic, long story short those pants and boots make me even hotter for you than I normally am. Which is already quite a bit.

You had on some complicated looking black top, buckles and straps covering your firm chest. It made me want to figure out all of those clasps, buckles, and buttons. Find some way to get to your skin. But knowing you put it on had me keeping my hands to myself. Using up my self control to keep from touching what I hadn't been given permission to touch. I think my hands were shaking before we left our tent area and we hadn't even done anything yet.

While you and your pale skin were decked neck to toe in solid black, highlighting your pale hair and skin and your aristocratic features, you had my darker complexion wrapped in pure white. White satin faux corset and matching garter belt holding up pale sheer stockings, pure white knickers with a slit in the back for easy access, and dainty white ballet flats. I was initially curious as to why you would have had me in something so easily dirtied when you knew we were going to be marching through fair grounds. I eventually realized it was part of your plan.

Your fully dressed self wasn't particularly odd, so you left the tent ready to go, but I was wearing a dark trench coat over the top of my outfit until we got a bit further away from the tent. Once we did, you had me drop the coat, which you banished back to the tent, clipped your favorite (tangible at least) leash to my collar and led me to our night of play.

We got to a nice sized crowd of people in varying stages of dress. And varying stages of obvious kink. Collars, cuffs, naked body parts displayed, cocks caged and ringed, doms and subs of every variety. Music playing loud enough to dance to but not so loud as to be overwhelming. You led me to a chair towards the side, not hidden away but not the center of attention either. You sat down in your makeshift throne for the night and instructed me to kneel next to you. I hesitated a moment, the hard packed dirt I was about to kneel on would get my lovely stockings dirty.
"Sir? Are you sure you want me to kneel here?"

You settled your features into your strict 'Master' face, "I don't think that's for you to question or worry about is it my little mutt? I make the decisions, your job is to do as you're told. I won't have any more backtalk tonight will I?"

I went from half hard to granite in the amount of time it took you to finish your commands, "No Master, I'll be good."

You smirked, "See that you do mutt."

I dropped to my knees next to you. You unclipped my leash from my collar, that's when I noticed you'd had it modified. Instead of one clasp that clips to the ring, it was actually two smaller claw clasps. Before I had it figured out, you were clamping them onto my nipples which were peeking out just over the top of the corset. Then you let the rest of the leash dangle off the clamps, like a heavy weight pulling on my sensitive buds. Oh Merlin, this was going to be a long night.

Once we were settled, you pulled what looked like a scroll out of your pocket. After you unraveled it, I saw it was what looked like a pricing notice one might see on a menu.

"Sex Toy for Charity
Use my pretty toy, and make the world a better place at the same time. Each use is assigned a cost, drop your money in the bucket then take the appropriate prize. Please be careful with the merchandise, he's priceless."

And after that description you had assigned a cost to different acts ranging from a hand job to a buggering.

Oh my god, you were selling my hands and mouth and arse. This is probably the most humiliating thing we've ever done. When I was done reading the sign I looked at you, and saw that you had been watching my reaction from the moment you unraveled the sign. Asking in your "I love my husband" voice instead of your "Master" voice, "Harry my love, is this too much? You can safeword at any time. Do I put away the menu, or are we doing this? Color please."

"Green sir, so very very green, please let me do this for you" I panted.

And that pleased smirk rolled over your face, "Such a good boy for me."

You affixed the sign to a post of sorts and sat back, indicating you were open for business. A tall well-built man walked up first, "You've got a pretty little thing there, but I always want to know where my donations are going, what's the charity?"

I was wondering that myself, only knowing of our one charity near and dear to our hearts but you wouldn't actually have me prostitute myself for Unity would you? You quickly alleviated my concern, "It's for a start-up animal rescue, primarily horses for now. It's currently being self funded by the owner, but donations would really allow him to transport and care for more animals."

Oh! Aren't you just the sweetest most perfect master ever?

He chuckled, "Well, anything for a good cause I suppose. I'll take a suck." He undid his trousers, pulling himself out. For as broad as he was built, he had kind of a long and slender shaft. Well we all know I know how to work those! I set myself to the task of unraveling his composure. As I could feel him getting harder and jerking a bit, I wasn't sure what I was supposed to do with his release. I looked at you a bit panicked but you seemed to know exactly what I was confused about."
You started negotiations. Holy hell, you were negotiating with a man who was paying you to have me suck you off. Oh Gods Draco. "Looks like you're close to finishing, the regular price is for him to spit, but if you want to have him swallow or if you want to unload on him that's extra."

He stuttered out, "Oh hell yeah, I'm going to come all over those pretty clamped up tits." Which he then proceeded to do. Now I understood the clothing, you wanted me to start out pristine so at the end of the night we could really see how filthy I'd become. You are devious. How are you so perfect for me? How do you know my kinks before I'm even aware of them?

What followed was what seemed like hours of sucking and being fucked. Wanking strange cocks. Spitting, swallowing, and being covered in cum.

At one point I was desperate for some friction. Some touch that could send me over the edge so I could come myself. When there was a moment, I asked, "Master, can I come please?"

You pointed to your leg, "The next time you're sucking on someone you can rut up against my leg. If you can get yourself off that way, you'll have earned it mutt."

Which I did. I had a strange cock down my throat while I rubbed my satin clad cock up against those sinful trousers of yours. Others had been staining my clothes, but I dirtied up my panties myself.

When the few people who were willing to pay the high price for my arse took me, you placed my head in your lap so I could suck you off at the same time. You stroked my hair, calling me your good boy.

When it seemed our customers had slowed down to a trickle and you could tell I was rock hard again but also exhausted, you had me climb onto your lap my back to your chest, legs splayed outside your thighs. You slid that amazing cock of yours I love so much into my sore, wet, used channel. Then, you invited anyone left to place a donation of their choice into the bucket and all were welcome to finish themselves off onto my filthy body.

Your beautiful voice started commanding directly in my ear, "Ride me mutt, you've had your release and so have all your clients, but your master has had none. Show me your gratitude for helping you fill your desperate greedy holes all night." Oh god, oh god, oh god. I rode you as hard as I could. Squeezing my hole as much as I could, trying to find a rhythm that would get you there.

All around me were men desperately wanking their cocks, already one or two must have come because I felt warm liquid rolling inside my corset. But all I could focus on was how desperately I wanted you to fill me. I could feel you getting close, but I didn't even realize how close I had gotten myself. I was just stuttering out desperate "ungh, ungh, ungh" noises as I rode you. What finally did it for me, and for you, was you saying "that's such a good boy, I'm going to fill you up, come for me mutt!"

So I did. And while I was climaxing hard, my arse rippling around your length, I heard you practically howling in my ear as you let go deep inside of me.

When everyone who had paid had finished, you threw my coat back on, wrapped the sign up, and carried me home. Mmm, my big strong man, carrying his worn out slut back to our bed. Gods I love you Draco.

Anyway, today you instructed me to take a quick break from the festival to write out our night. I think I know your intentions, you want to make sure that outside of the heat of the scene, in the light of day, I am still okay with everything we did last night. Checking in with me that no boundaries were broken and that I still feel safe and content.

Well, this writing exercise did the trick, in the light of day, I still feel like last night was amazing. We made money for my rescue, my master pushed me to new limits I didn't even know I wanted, and I am desperately in love with a man who knows exactly what I need.

Your Mutt,
Harry

Saturday June 25th,
My better half,

I'm SO glad you liked last night. I must admit that I was nervous that I'd gone too far, but at the same time, I was certain you'd love it. Also, I know I said you never had to worry about earning money from/for your rescue horses, but I figured that we couldn't literally sell you - legally - but that if we raised money for charity, we could fulfill the kink and more or less obey the law.

Thankfully our fellow Glasto-goers understood.

Tonight was a different sort of party altogether. You came down with the horse flu and headed out to the stables for the cure - which was to care for your horses. Meanwhile, my parents were doing an admirable job hosting a rather large party.

Because it was half graduation party and half belated 16th birthday party, the graduating class - the former Seventh Years - were all of age (either 18 or 17, which is of age in the wizarding world), and so, alcohol was being served, but my parents were being extremely clever about it. They had charmed all the cups and other possible liquid containers to A: detect the age of the drinker and automatically vanish alcohol from the cups of anyone underage, and B: monitor blood alcohol levels so that no one could actually drink enough to get drunk. If someone was nearing a certain level, the alcohol would vanish from their glass.

But lest you wonder about the waste of alcohol, don't worry, there wasn't all that much to begin with, and so, it's not a great loss.

There was music as my parents had followed some rather good advice and hired three different highly popular bands. So we had the Weird Sisters along with two muggle acts - Lily Allen and Ed Sheeran. All in all, it was great for dancing because most of the songs were fast and some were slow and rather romantic.

Our kids waited until everyone was definitely having fun and not so wound up before disappearing for a bit so they could perform their fire dance. Apparently, after choreographing something, Viona had called in Elena to fine tune a few things, and then talked Eliza, Della, Delphini, Gavin, Tommy, Bel, and Harrison into learning and performing the dance too. So they ALL disappeared to change into their costumes, which much like I love and tend to gravitate to, they had chosen naked body paint costumes. This isn't actually all that surprising to anyone, hahaha.

Only Hazel was wearing a full skirt, but exactly as she had wondered, she figured out how to charm it to literally be on fire without actually burning anything - such as her. Once they were in costume and ready, I saw them gather outside the entrance to the ballroom and wait for the song that was playing to stop. At that point, I signaled the bands so that they would know it was time for the 'drum battle.'
The students were confused and looked around to see if something was about to happen, so I cast a mild Sonorus on my voice and announced: "To honor their recent 16th birthdays, Eris, Orion, and Hazel teamed up with their older sisters to create a special dance that they'd like to perform for you all, so without further ado, I give you the Malfoy and Potter kids!"

They burst into the ballroom dramatically, twirling their fire accessories around to mildly intimidate the other students so they'd clear the center of the ballroom, and then got right into the intricate and rather complicated dance. I stood watching them in pride - SO MUCH pride! They really are amazing, you know?

After they were done, they disappeared once again to change back into their party clothes, and then the party itself lasted until after midnight with the younger students leaving whenever their parents had told them to be home by, and the older ones leaving when the party officially ended around 2 AM.

I find it funny because before now, only CERTAIN friends have been invited to the Manor - except for the last two years when the graduating class was invited to a party here to celebrate. Thus, while most of the other students knew that our kids are from a wealthy family and live in a 'big house,' none of them had quite been able to picture it. I heard several discussions throughout the night along the lines of:

"Do you think they rented out a hotel for this party?"

"Don't they OWN the hotel?"

"Actually, I think this is their HOUSE."

"NO WAY!!! This can't be A HOUSE!!!"

And so, apparently the school will understand a bit better next year just HOW wealthy our family is. Which I'm not actually certain is a good thing. After all, I bragged constantly about my family wealth in school and used it to give me a sort of power and prestige over the others, but so far, our kids have mostly avoided that. What if THIS triggers that in them?

Oh well, I suppose that's a worry for another time. NOW, I'm rather tired and am quite looking forward to going to bed. Hopefully you've returned from the stables. If so, prepare to be molested!

Hopelessly devoted to you,
Draco
Chapter 40

Chapter Summary

It's surgery day.

Friday July 1, 2016

My Dragon,

Our baby girl is having surgery. As we speak, some doctor is altering her body. No spell, no wand, no potions, no magic at all. Just a shiny knife and some latex gloves. And what? A needle and a tube sending some herbs into her bloodstream? Oh my God Draco, we sent her in to have some muggle just hack and slash their way through her body.

Oh shite! You just looked over at me, that raised eyebrow like you're trying to figure out what the insane look on my face is for. Breathe, Harry, breathe. I'm calm, calm cool and collected. You know it baby-cakes.

I actually should be much more careful about getting myself worked up right now. First, our sweet Elena took a little over a week off of her school so she could come back to California with us and help out. She wants to be there to support Hazel, she wants to support us while we're "not freaking out at all Dads, I'm sure …" and she's staying at the house helping watch all of the other kids while we're here at the clinic with Haz. And by all of the other kids, I mean all of them except for Eris.

That's why I need to be careful about not freaking out. Hazel's already back in surgery so she can't be hurt by my panic. And you've been married to me long enough that my panicking seems to be nothing but a source of amusement for you at this point. But our sweet Eris refused to stay home while her Haz was having "the most important day of her life so far!" So if I sit here and write to you instead of researching ridiculous Californian tourist traps like I told her I was, I'd better at least pretend that's what I'm doing.

I've spent the last week telling all the kids, Hazel and Eris in particular, that this is no big deal, that it's nothing to concern yourself over, and now I've lost my damn mind. If I let my own level of crazy be known, Eri is going to take that as permission to panic. I refuse to do that to my sweet girl. So, Malfoy mask it is.

Today and tomorrow, even after Haz wakes up from surgery, are going to be mostly her sleeping a lot. Medicated pretty well, and tomorrow night if everything is progressing as it should, we can cast the first series of healing spells at her to speed up the recovery process. Muggles would be home Monday, but we'll likely be able to take her home Sunday morning. This week should be low key, she'll probably spend most of it napping on and off, watching telly, and drawing new fashions I'm sure she'll have found the muse for while heavily medicated.

Oh Merlin my love, she's going to be so happy. She's been waiting for this since she knew what it was. Maybe before that. For twelve years since she gave voice to her true self. Hell, before that. Since the moment she realized her body wasn't what she wished it to be. She's just going to be the pretty bird, not the pretty bird with a prick like she so eloquently stated.
The pretty bird with the brilliant mind, and the loving family, and the thriving business, and the sister who's her best friend, and the loving dads, and the body she wants.

Okay, I might not be panicking now, but I am crying. It started a chain reaction, you're leaking from your face (must be a rogue indoor storm) and Eri is crying as well. I should sign off and tell you both they're happy tears.

Love You,
Harry

Nevermind! The nurse just came in, the surgery must be over! Let's all go cry together!

Sunday July 3rd

My darling,

You have spent the entire day (yesterday) and all night with Hazel. I sort of flittered back and forth between her and the rest of the kids, and so, I feel like I kept entering rooms at the WRONG time.

For example, when I came back after lunch yesterday, I entered Hazel's recovery room (that you had apparently just left to go get some coffee) JUST in time to hear the nurses explaining to Hazel how to use her Dilators, and how VERY important it is for her to use them three times a day for at least 15 minutes.

Somehow, I had managed to completely ignore or miss the first time this must have been brought up, but apparently, because she doesn't have the same lining in there that a woman does, it can and will scar itself shut if she doesn't, erm… dilate. Frequently.

MERLIN HARRY! I really didn't need to know that our baby girl has been ordered by her doctor to stick something in her vagina on a regular basis! But that said, I suppose I do actually need to know some details as - in rare cases - things could go wrong and she would need to feel comfortable discussing those things with me or you.

But please forgive me for leaving the room in dire need of tea when they started discussing orgasms and how they are going to be different for her now, not to mention what to expect and helpful advice on how to achieve them. Yeah, I don't care if I am a wizard and could have simply conjured a cup, cast an aguamenti, and transfigured that into tea (which never tastes right anyway), I HAD to have freshly brewed real muggle tea. THAT INSTANT!!!

Too bad it was disgusting and I could barely drink it.

Another conversation I would have quite liked to never hear was when I popped back home before bed - probably about 10 or 10:30 PM. Viona and Alric were alone in the kitchen since Elena had put all the younger ones to bed already, and then went to lay down herself. Viona, Alric, Eris, and Orion had desperately needed to go do something while Hazel was basically sleeping - now that they knew she'd made it out of surgery alive and that - honestly - she wasn't up to company most of yesterday.

This must have been shortly after Viona and Alric got home.

"Why don't you try to pressure me for anything?!” Viona demanded.

"Wait, what???” Alric blurted out in astonishment. "Why would I do that?!”
"Because it's what most boys DO!" Viona yelled, sounding upset, although I couldn't quite figure out why.

"But YOU SAID that you are definitely saving yourself for marriage, so I would be the lowest bastard ever if I tried to talk you into NOT waiting! Besides, I'm quite happy waiting too, I'll have you know!"

Viona huffed in frustration. "And I mean that, I AM saving myself for marriage, but I had literally 20 or 30 boys hitting on me today, and it kind of felt nice, so now I'm wondering what is wrong with me that you never even hold my hand!"

"I don't want you to hex me for being presumptuous!" Alric cried out, also sounding a bit frustrated.

"MERLIN AND SALAZAR!!! I know I like having you so wonderfully obedient, but I also want to feel wanted! How will I know you actually LIKE me if you've never even kissed me?!"

"OH GOD, YOU WANT ME TO KISS YOU?!?!" Alric shouted in alarm.

"Well don't you WANT to kiss me?" Viona demanded, sounding uncertain and vulnerable.

"YES! Bloody hell yes! I just... don't want to make you feel like I want you to do things you're not ready for yet," Alric admitted.

Viona held up a hand as if to stop him. "NOT now, but at some point when I'm not expecting it - MAYBE when some other boy hits on me - kiss me and prove that I'm YOURS."

"I, I, I... I can d-d-do that..." Alric stammered, looking extremely red. Alarmingly so.

"And HOLD MY HAND, dammit! Put an arm around me! Let OTHERS know that I'm not available for their dirty perverted minds!"

"Y-y-yes ma'am..."

Viona sighed, sounding relieved and much happier. "Good." Then she cast a tempus spell. "Did Eri and Ori get home before us? It's a bit late, yeah?"

"Well, when they said they were going to that party, they DID tell you not to wait up for them," Alric pointed out, and I couldn't help it, I sort of HAD to reveal that I was lurking right outside the kitchen listening in to them.

"Wait, Eris and Orion went to a party??!!" I stared them both down sternly.

Viona hastily waved her hands, probably trying to be reassuring. "It was just a party dad. One of the houses on the beach had a bunch of kids playing volleyball and dancing to bad music on the radio."

I raised a brow as I thought this over. First of all, I suppose I couldn't blame them for wanting to have a bit of fun to distract themselves. Secondly, they were TOGETHER, and so, would have each other's back. Most importantly, they both know how to defend themselves with or without magic, and so, are almost certainly fine. Running a hand through my hair, I took a deep breath and held it until I released it with a groan.

"Fine. I'll let them stay at that party provided that..." I pulled out my wand and cast a spell to detect if they were in any danger. The spell formed a white orb with swirls of pink through it, which means that they weren't in danger, the pink signifying fun. "Yeah, alright. You two can go to bed if you want and I'll wait up for them to return. How long have they been at this party?"

Viona shrugged. "I dunno. We all surfed for like 4 or 5 hours. Then they noticed the party, and I was a bit tired - I couldn't sleep very well last night - so I decided to take a nap on the beach."

"And I watched over her so that she didn't burn or..." he blushed and looked at the floor. "Get molested..."

"Good on you," I praised, actually patting him on the shoulder. You know, the more I learn about him, the more I learn about Alric.

Anyway, they went to their respective rooms, and as much as I really don't need to know any of what they discussed, I'm sort of... VERY relieved to know that Viona is apparently rather old fashioned. I honestly have no idea where she gets it from. Do you think it could be because we were always honest with her about what happened to her mother?

But moving on, I eventually overheard the - thankfully - last conversation that I didn't really need to know. It actually happened about 4 or 5 this morning. I was napping on a chair just off the entryway when Eris and Orion finally came home.

"Oh, my head!" Orion shouted in a whisper.

"Shh!" Eris advised urgently. "Dads'll MURDER us if they realize we weren't in bed HOURS ago!"

"I was in bed hours ago," Orion snickered.

Eris laughed before wincing and clutching her head. "Shut up, I don't need to know things like that."

"Well... weren't you?" Orion asked in a whisper.

"Erm... I don't remember anything. I got so drunk that I passed out at some point, and then you woke me up in a pile of like four or five other girls - that I remember dancing and laughing with - and so, probably not. But damn! My head is KILLING me!" Eris bemoaned.

Orion shrugged. "That's true, you and those girls seemed like a pack of new best friends, but before I went upstairs for a bit, you were hot and heavy with some bloke."

"Was I? I think I'm too hung over to think. Hopefully I'll be able to remember after we get some decent sleep," Eris suggested.

"If we're lucky, no one will wake us before noon," Orion said, pressing his hands together and shaking them at the ceiling as if he was praying.

"Probably not, Haz is supposed to come home later today, so we'll probably get shaken awake in just a couple of hours."

Orion pulled his sister into a hug and kissed her temple. "She's going to be fine and - once she's healed up - she'll be so much happier."

"I know," Eris murmured, then kissed him on the cheek. "G'night."

"Night," Orion mumbled in return, each of them going to their rooms.
Meanwhile, I was holding my breath and wondering how to handle the information I learned. Logically, I know they are both 16 (technically the legal age to consent), AND that they probably have already done things with their mates in Hogwarts, but... I still sort of want to ground them for going to a party and possibly shagging strangers. But THEN the part of me that used to be a teen slag actually understands the point of and desire to shag a stranger as a way to relax, feel better, and just... not have to worry about strings. You know?

So I decided to just go to bed and wait until I'VE had more sleep before I attempt to make any sort of decision on how to handle this. And if I'm lucky, you'll tell me what to do. But now I feel guilty because you DEFINITELY have more important things to worry about, and so, I'm actually tempted to erase the entire last third of this email. Sigh...

Goodnight love, I hope you slept better than I did,
Draco
Chapter 41

Chapter Summary

Harry lays down some rules for the kids and Draco is interrupted during class.

Chapter Notes

Warning: There's a reference to an underage prostitute in this chapter.

Monday July 4, 2016

My Heart,

Stop. I love you. But I have to stop you from the downward spiral your silly brain is going. I was not dealing with something more important than what you were dealing with. You and I are dealing with the SAME worries. We share a life. We share the same children. Your worries are my worries. But then again, that's probably because I am quite selfish when it comes to worries, I want all of them!

Yes, right now, Hazel's needs are a higher priority. But that doesn't mean she's the only child we can worry about. If anything, the fact that she really ONLY has to deal with her own issues, while everyone else is worrying about their sister AND their own issues means things are even harder for them. If we needed to rank the deservability of each child's concerns. Which we don't.

And the idea that I don't need the stress because I'm the one caring for Haz right now? Or while she was still at the clinic before we came home yesterday. Yeah, that was so hard. It was emotional for sure. But it was mostly her sleeping while I stared at her like an absolute creep. Honestly when you came in and they were talking about the dilators and said I had just stepped out for a coffee? She had kicked me out. I made the same argument, "I should know these things so I can make sure nothing goes wrong!"

She snapped a bit, "Then you can hear them from the doctor at a different time, but right now I might murder you if you don't leave this room while I discuss my vagina with my doctor!"

Yeesh.

Although I did have a talk at length with the doctors away from Haz while she was sleeping so I do know everything I need to know. I'm "lalala"-ing my way through it and just considering the dilators a surgical healing tool. Just like gauze or a plaster. Gauze and plasters damnit!

She's still feeling not so hot, but she had surgery three days ago so I think that's pretty much par for the course. Eris and Orion seemed to be feeling not so hot themselves yesterday when we got home. That is less par for the course. Knowing that they likely drank to cover up their worry over their sister gave me a bit of sympathy for their plight. But not enough to be quiet through their hangover (or offer them a hangover potion either)
Although, last night while Haz was dozing a bit I did go and have a talk with them. Truly, I'm too tired to go in as much depth as I normally would when I have a long talk with one (or two in this case) of the teenagers. But I'll give you a summary.

And not physically tired, because I really did get enough sleep last night. Haz was safe at home.
She came out of her surgery with flying colors. My whole family is here (mostly, River and Maha have been at their own place), together safe and sound. But emotionally tired from a really draining couple of days.

So, long story as short as you can possibly get from a rambling Harry; Eris and Orion are teenagers, teenagers are inherently idiots, our teenagers are quite above average in the idiot department right now. Aww, our children are gifted Draco!

I started out by asking them to tell me what happened last night. And honestly, the conversation was so much easier than it could have been because they really did open up and tell me the truth. If they had started out lying, when I already knew what happened but they didn't know that I knew, I probably would have gotten to temper tantrum Harry pretty darn quick. Or at least they told me the truth as far as I know since it matches up with what you sneakily witnessed when they came home.
Orion shagged a random bird, Eris isn't quite sure what happened but she's pretty sure Orion was right and she was getting hot and heavy with some bloke. They were both much too drunk to make responsible decisions.

Sigh.

I had a long Dad-Lecture where I pretty much told them that their behavior was "normal" and I understood it. It was something they did in an attempt to get out of their own heads which had been so full of worry for their sister. But, you absolute dunderheads, you got pretty much blackout drunk with people you didn't know in an environment you weren't familiar with. I know they can normally take care of themselves, we've trained them for it for a long time. But there are so many terrible things that can go wrong when you get idiot teenagers and alcohol put together.

But while their behavior was understandable, that doesn't mean it was okay. I have never and will never victim blame. If something terrible had happened to them while they were at that party, it would be the fault of whoever … did the happening? Merlin, I'm tired. But in the future, if they're going to go to parties, I need to know they're going to make more defensive decisions. One of you stay sober, have each other's backs, make sure we actually know where you are and not a random comment from Viona about them being at some beach party with volleyball and bad music! I'm not naïve enough to believe my almost adult children are going to refrain from sex or alcohol or shitty decisions. But you've got to throw me a bone here people!

So here are my new rules, the kids seemed to think they were pretty reasonable, let me know what you think.
- We need to know where you are, I won't come barging in and embarrassing you, but I need to be able to get to you in an emergency.
- Have a sober babysitter, one of you stays sober, invite a sober sibling. Hell, call Grammy Cissa, she's always game for watching a Potter-Malfoy embarrass themselves by being a drunken fool.
- Don't drink to the point of forgetting or blacking out. That's a recipe for terrible decisions and possibly alcohol poisoning.

I think that's all I've got.

No wait, Vivi. I don't know if it's her knowledge of her birth mother that has her wanting to wait, and it doesn't really matter. If she's making the decision for herself and she's happy with it, then good for her. It honestly doesn't surprise me though. She has always been quite guarded with her affections. It takes her a long time to warm up to people fully. She keeps most people she meets at arms length for years before she shows her true sweetness. This is probably no different, she wants to make sure he's in it for the long term before giving that piece of herself. Once she warms up, she is a snugglebug. She's a hugger and a giant sweetheart. But it can take a while before new people can get past that Ice Princess of Slytherin Façade she's crafted.

But I can understand her frustration with Alric as well. And her frustration at herself for wanting what she wants. She wants to feel wanted, wants to be respected, and isn't sure how she can have both. She's not used to having conflicting feelings, she usually knows what she wants and exactly how she wants it. And she LOATHES feeling vulnerable. Just like her Daddy in that way.

Without getting to a really weird place talking with my daughter's fiancé, I think I may have a talk with Alric. Basically explain that he can get her explicit consent, make her feel wanted, and avoid hexes all at the same time. I mean honestly, acquiring consent doesn't have to be awkward, a soft palm to her cheek, softly asking "can I kiss you?" can be very sexy. Getting close to her and saying "I'd love to hold you right now" gives her the option to step sweetly into his arms.

Alright, this time I mean it! I'm done.

Sorry if this was rambly, like I said I am a bit tired and the damn fireworks have been going on ALL DAMN DAY and I think my mind has exploded!

Love You,
Harry

Wednesday July 6th
My everything,

I'm a little bit shaky right now.

Let me start with your last email. I absolutely agree with everything you said. I know I've said it in person, but I wanted to state it for 'the record' too. Our kids are old enough to be doing things I don't want them to, but also need to be responsible about it. I am glad they agreed to your rules as I probably would have just locked them in a dragon guarded tower had they protested them.

I love that you always know how to talk sense into me when it comes to our kids. But you know what else I've come to realize? I started out being... lenient and - I dunno - accepting of the fact that kids grow up and that we'd have to deal with these things eventually. When Elena was just nine, I remember thinking that her having a crush was alarming because she was ONLY NINE, but had she been, say, 13 or 14, I would have been fine with it.

Then when River was 13 and I caught him kissing Ananda, I do clearly remember thinking that he was lucky to be kissing a girl at his age. I honestly probably would have just left him to it if I hadn't noticed her state of pregnancy and started freaking out about him being a father at such a young age, and (I've talked to death about this with both you and Yesenia) that triggered a whole host of PTSD related mental blocks about our kids, them growing up, them doing things I don't want them to.

It DID take me a long time, but I actually worked through them. I got better, which is one of the reasons that we are now in a place where we can actually play around without either of us 'forcing' ourself to do it because the other wants to. So this is what my current realization is:
I can deal with this. I can actually handle knowing these things that I previously freaked out about. For example, despite not LIKING the idea that both of them got drunk and more than likely shagged some stranger, I understood why they would want to do so. I even wrote it in my email that the part I had a problem with was the stranger part - although I can understand if it came across as the shagging part, considering how hard it's been for me to accept in the past.

And even regarding Hazel, it wasn't the idea of her putting something inside her that bothered me, it was that she was ordered to do so several times a day. I couldn't help but have an image in my head of her coming to dinner and me wondering if she'd just done it, because on the one hand, I would sort of need to know to make sure she's following doctors orders and taking care of her health, but on the other hand, I recognize that it's private information and she's not likely to want to announce in front of everyone: "Yes dad, I JUST finished my dilating!"

I mean seriously! We're married and have arranged our lives so that we have a lot of time together at least a day or two a week, but could you just imagine if WE made time to shag for at least 15 minutes THREE times a day! We'd be... Yeah, it would be hard to do, I'm almost certain, and then every single time we walked in a room, we'd have at least one of our kids ask: "Where were you?" And the answer would always be: "Shagging. Why? Need something?"

It's hard to explain, but that's the part that actually boggles my mind, I guess.

Anyway, where I was going with this is that I've decided that I'm just going to be the 'cool' dad. At this point, I have worked through all my PTSD issues and learned very very well that our kids own their bodies and are allowed to decide what they want to do with them. I think I'm actually ready to have the conversations in which they tell me details, because I really would rather KNOW that they are using protection and not being coerced, than to hope and pray that I just don't have to deal with it until they are married.

Yes I know it took me a long bloody while to reach this point, but here I am.

So, then to move on. On Monday, when you were busy dealing with Hazel, Eri, and Ori, I had Portkeyed back to the Manor to conduct my class. I know I probably could have taken the day off, but I actually needed a bit of a distraction. And besides, it's only two hours, so, I would have it done and be back home right about the time I normally get out of bed.

That said, I was actually up and ready to go by 9AM (California time), and so, fully awake and eager to get to the torture - I mean training.

Once again, I very carefully chose my outfit, making sure several times that it was the exact one I wanted to wear and that I looked damn good in it. To my dismay, the moment I walked onto the Ministry running track, I saw my students stop and squint as they tried to read what they were in for today. That made me look down and find:

Sweat dries. Blood clots. Bones heal. Suck it up PRINCESS

Ah... Well, at least it's fitting as I had quite a grueling lesson in mind. Previously, I'd been teaching them maneuvers and having them spar quite a lot so that they could put the maneuvers together and learn to use them in a cohesive manner. THAT day, I was going to invite each of them to take me on individually. As in they were going to spar against ME - rather than each other - so that I could more accurately gauge their level and what they've learned.

Naturally, I wasn't going to go easy on them just because this was a sort of midterm exam.

So, after reflexively blurting out: "GODDAMNIT HARRY!" I emphatically gestured a command to follow me to the training room. In the room, I explained the plan for the day, and then proceeded to kick all their arses. Repeatedly. The good news is that they are all making far more progress than they realize. Basically, if I couldn't read their minds, I'd probably have been given a run for my money.

I'm almost impressed!

At the end of class, I even praised them. "Nice job, buttercups! One of you nearly punched me, and I'm dead certain I was groped at least twice - which counts as landing a hit in my opinion. MUCH better than I expected! I expected to put you all in the hospital today! You, does your arm still hurt? Want to go see a Mediwitch to make sure my bone mending spells are still up to par? And oh! You - looks like your nose has finally stopped bleeding. Over there, did you break a toe after all?"

There was indistinct grumbling, and since it was indistinct and sounded a bit mutinous, I ignored it and moved on. "In any case, you've all passed your midterms, and so -"

"WAIT!!! WE PASSED???" My least in shape student asked incredulously. My timid and scrawny mouse blurted out: "ALL of us???"

"This was a test?" Another student asked as he scratched his head. I might need to fail him after all...

Glaring at him, I replied: "Yes, this was a test, and yes, you all passed. I've been telling you from the beginning that I don't expect a professional athlete who could win fighting championships, simply men and women who can reasonably expect to NOT DIE if they find themselves cornered by a dangerous criminal. But as I was saying, since you all passed this test, I feel confident in stepping it up a notch or two, so I expect you to all increase your pre-class run to an entire hour on Wednesday."

This was unsurprisingly unhappy news as it provoked groans from all of my students.

"Remember to pace yourselves. Take advantage of the Ministry provided expert trainer - that's the tiny little witch that stands off to the side on a tall chair so that she can watch you all run and be sure that none of you kills yourself while doing so. She'll be a LOT nicer on you, helping you to pick the right pace so that you can maintain an actual run for an hour."

I look around. "IF you are NOT running properly when I get there to pick you up for class, I WILL bring you all back to my place to let Amala chase you until I feel that you've used up every drop of energy in your body, and then we'll experiment with temporary energy boosting potions so that you can ALL experience the effects of working so long and hard out in the field that you are dead on your feet. I know of at least one Auror who literally DIED while on a raid, NOT because a criminal killed him, but because he'd irresponsibly stayed up drinking the entire weekend before, and then tried to cover that fact up by using hangover potions and energy boosting potions to make him appear in top shape, when in actuality, he pushed himself too far and had a heart attack. None of us knew what happened in time to get him to a Healer to be revived, so..."

I spread my hands wide to indicate that they should be able to figure out the rest for themselves.

"That's true," an Auror murmured to an Auror in Training.

"Wait," A woman bade with a puzzled frown. "What good would working us to exhaustion and then making us take potions do? How does that help us to learn anything?"

I nodded to concede that she had a valid point. "See, my literal job description might be to simply teach you hand to hand combat - usually meaning self defense in unarmed situations. BUT I actually give a fuck about your survival. I want you to be prepared for anything - especially as it pertains to the potentially dangerous situations during raids. Thus, if you have experience working with exhaustion and attempting to solve it with potions, you'll actually learn why it is VITAL to let your superiors know when you are not in shape to work or go on a raid. Oh sure, the potion will make you feel awake for a time, but you're still going to be mentally incapacitated, and depending on the situation, making VERY BAD decisions. Decisions that could get you OR YOUR TEAM killed. The point of the situation I threatened is to teach you NOT to think you can rely on potions to get you through a raid when you are less than fully ready."

"Plus I bet you get off on torturing us like that," least in shape grumbled under his breath, I let it slide this time because we were already five minutes over and I wanted to get home to you.

Instead, I finished up. "Best advice is to NOT make me put you in that situation in the first place. Show up and run for an hour before I get there. No excuses and no slacking off. My friend the witch will tell me if you do. And then also consider wearing something with padding, because I'm taking away the mats on the floor."

They all sighed, but grumbled: "Yes Chief," before trudging away. Meanwhile I took the floo back to the Manor, and then the Portkey back to you and we more or less held each other for about 36 hours straight. Which brings me to today.

It's currently Wednesday and I have a few minutes to explain more about that phone call we had.

To begin with, since we've been sleeping at odd hours lately, I've been going to bed earlier and you've been going to bed later, probably so we can just hold each other and talk or kiss or just pet each other, I was actually awake REALLY early for me. Like 5 or 6 AM. Like YOU were still asleep!

So I got up to go for a run and make YOU breakfast, for once. It was probably terrible, but no one complained to be having simple bacon and cheesy scrambled eggs. You seemed too distracted to actually taste it when you came to the kitchen and sat with me.

By the time 10 AM was approaching, I really felt like I'd already worked a solid 12 hour day, and was exhausted, DESPITE not having actually done anything more strenuous than read and sing to Hazel for a few hours while she stretched and did light exercises.

Thus, when I was ready to leave for the Manor to go to class, I kissed you, savoring a lingering kiss, feeling like I should really track down a time turner so that I could go back to when I woke up and crawl back into bed to finish sleeping before having to go to class.

I walked onto the track to find that my students looked worn out, but were definitely still running. The Ministry witch gave me a double thumbs up to let me know they'd all followed instructions. Satisfied, I called them over.

They gathered around and stared at my shirt apprehensively. I looked down to find that ONCE A-BLOODY-GAIN, you'd managed to change my shirt to a different one. This one said: Use of the word CAN'T will result in a 10 Burpee penalty.

"What the fuck is a Burpee??" I asked in bafflement. Yeah I don't care if I'm topless and they ALL try to shag me, I'm not wearing that. So I pulled it off to find:

You would have quit already but your trainer scares you
"Goddamnit Harry!" I sighed in resignation, and also, I sort of liked this one. "Alright, let's get to the training room and work on breaking various holds. Also, I want to see if any of you have made progress on throwing someone over your shoulder."

We'd JUST filed into the actual training room (which is actually just down the hall from the track), when an Auror NOT in my class strode into the room.

"Evening Chief! The Head Auror wants to see you in his office right now."

"Tell him to fuck off, I'll see him after class," I stated, making a motion to shoo the messenger away.

"Robards said you might say that, in which case, I am to make it clear that class is canceled and YOU are expected in his office RIGHT NOW."

"OOO...." A few of my students murmured in a scandalized tone. "What did you DO???

I stared them down. "Class is NOT canceled! You will all spar until I get back, and if I don't come back before the end of class, bugger off and spar some more at home. I WILL see you on the track having completed an hour run come 5 o'clock Monday!"

"Not if you're fired!" Fatty sang out gleefully, trying to be quiet enough that I hopefully wouldn't hear him.

I rolled my eyes. "I'm NOT fired, you mouthy prick."

"How do you know?" The woman that's always undressing me with her eyes asked curiously.

"Simple, I haven't actually killed any of you yet," I stated confidently, and then followed the messenger out of the room. "Any idea what Robards wants?"

"NOPE!" He replied gleefully, probably excited and highly relieved that HE passed the combat class before the old trainer retired.

About 5 minutes later, I was in Robards' office, and to my surprise, ALL the senior Aurors were there, including Bletchley - who I haven't actually had a chance to talk to since he returned from Singapore. He mouthed the words: "I'll chat with you later," at me, meaning that he definitely had something to tell me.

Nearly dying of curiosity now, I sat in the only available chair, although I would not have been opposed to sitting on Kingsley's lap had there been no chairs left. That's when the meeting began as I was the last one they were waiting for.

"Right, so you're all wondering why we're here. Earlier today, one of our Rookie Aurors - an apparently good looking bloke - was walking around in plain clothes, and being off duty, they were whatever he liked. Thus, they were some well-tailored bespoke crap that he probably can't afford on his salary, but he's from a wealthy family, so -"

"Wait, WHICH family?" I couldn't help but ask.

"Greengrass," Robards stated, looking like he was wondering why this was important.

"Oh, must be Astoria's adopted son," I murmured to myself.

"In any case, he was approached by a girl of approximately 16 - that we can't confirm as she's not being very chatty. She flirted with him, which he brushed off until she started hinting that he could buy certain things from her, and that it wouldn't take her long to make his day a whole lot happier."

I unconsciously let out a very soft groan and rubbed my temples. Didn't I already go through this once? Rescuing a girl, that is.

After casting me a curious look, Robards continued. "Naturally, Greengrass picked her up for solicitation and brought her in. Normally, this would probably be the end of the story as prostitutes are basically charged, fined, and then let go, but this GIRL is underage, which makes it doubly illegal. We tried to question her, but she's not talking much. The only thing we've really gotten from her is that she's afraid of what's going to happen to her if we don't let her go, RIGHT NOW."

I tilted my head to the side in confusion. "So... are we going to go raid her... corner?"

Robards smirked at me, probably finding that funny because I am hilarious.

"Not as such. After talking it over, Roche (the deputy head), Bones (Susan, head of the DMLE - who was giving me a look that suggested that she was remembering our recent orgy), Shacklebolt, and I decided that we needed to use this opportunity to see if this goes any father than a pushy and abusive pimp. Even if it's just one bastard, we don't know how many other girls he has. More importantly, if it's MORE than just him, how big is the organization, and where are they located?"

"Ah," I murmured in understanding.

"So, to that end, we need to set up - not a raid - but an undercover mission."

I was tempted to go to sleep at this point as I have no idea why I'm even here. Undercover operations are under Roche's jurisdiction. Roche took over.

"Which means that first and foremost, I need to decide WHO to send in. But while he or she is being briefed on the specifics of the mission, I need Malfoy to do something important."

"Wait, me?" I asked in surprise.

"Yes, you. I need you to sit in as we try to talk to the girl again."

"Ah," I stated in instant understanding. "Yes."

"Wait, why him?" Auror Ramsey asked in confusion. If I recall correctly, HE'S the one usually involved in interrogations.

"Because he has little known talents that would be useful in getting information from the girl," Roche explained.

The way they kept referring to her as girl was irritating me, and I'm not quite sure why.

"What's her name?" I asked.

"Do you actually want to know, or are you just asking because it seems like the thing to do?" Robards questioned in mild amusement.

"I genuinely want to know. Why wouldn't I?" I wondered in bafflement.

"Malfoy, can you tell me the name of even ONE of your students?"

"Why the fuck would I need to know their names???
Kingsley laughed and held out his hand, apparently winning a bet. Roche grumbled and handed over a good 10 Galleons to him, and another to Robards.

Robards shook his head and tapped on a file on the table in front of him. "Her name is Gretchen Minch. Unless she's lying."

I cringed. "Who would lie about a name like that??! That's too many chs in just three syllables!"

"Point," Robards admitted with a shrug.

Roche took the explanation back. "As for the undercover Auror, we need someone who is comfortable with, well... becoming a prostitute and EVERYTHING that entails for as long as it takes to get the information we need."

"How is the Auror going to be DOING the job? Can't very well just have a random girl show up asking to work for this nasty pimp," Auror Ramsey pointed out.

"We're going to have them Polyjuice into Gretchen," Roche answered.

I sighed, feeling like this was inevitable. "I'll do it."

"What?!" Roche blurted out in astonishment and disbelief.

"I said I'll do it," I repeated. "I'm probably the only one who CAN do it."

Robards was nodding in agreement. "I'll admit that THAT had occurred to me - that your talents would be the easiest and most effective way to get the information we need."

"Wait! I think I need to know more information!" Ramsey blurted out.

"WHY?" I challenged. "Are YOU in charge of organizing this?"

"No... but I AM the one you'll be in the interrogation room with. I think I deserve to know what'll be going on!" Ramsey argued.

"Look, one of the reasons that we've kept this talent quiet is that it's best if no one KNOWS that it's happening. If we started blabbing about it all over town, then it could be defended against," Robards said. "So - as far as I'm concerned - this is on a NEED to know basis, and you don't really need to know."

"Yes sir," Ramsey grumbled in acceptance.

Robards and Kingsley looked at each other for a long moment with Roche looking at the both of them. After they reached a silent agreement, Kingsley turned to look at me. "I won't authorize your participation - that I ALSO believe would be the most helpful - until you call and discuss the matter with Harry and he... indicates that he understands and isn't going to come bursting in to 'rescue' you."

I chuckled, shaking my head. "The only downside to being married to Harry bloody Potter. I have to get permission to put myself in harm's way or risk Rage Halo Harry showing up and putting EVERYONE'S life in peril! No problem. I'll call him as soon as we're done here."

"Well, considering that all we have left to do is actually organize the operation - such as choose your handler and figure out communication issues - we pretty much ARE done here," Roche informed me.
Kingsley patted me on the shoulder. "Go on and call your husband. Once you are done, let us know what he says, and then - either way - meet up with Ramsey to discuss going in and chatting with Gretchen."

"Will do," I promised, standing up to leave the room so that they could get on with the initial planning.

That was when you received this oh so lovely call: "Harry, I'm being asked (and volunteering, if I'm honest) to go undercover Polyjuiced as an underage female sex worker to determine if she's working for a smalltime pimp, or an entire organization that needs to be raided, and I need your permission to do it."

You were silent long enough that I actually checked my magi-mobile to see if the call had been dropped. It hadn't, but that didn't rule out a bad connection and one of us unable to hear the other.

"Harry?"

You sighed heavily. "Why you?"

"Because I'm the only one that knows Legilimency and they feel strongly that THAT is going to be not just the key to finding out everything they need to know, but doing so relatively quickly," I explained. "Anyone else would have to rely on much more dangerous methods of uncovering information, possibly taking a very long time, but I'll be able to ask leading questions and read the information in their minds."

You were silent again, and then sighed every bit as heavily. "And... by undercover, what EXACTLY will you be doing... as this sex worker?"

I sighed myself and ran a hand through my hair. "Probably exactly that, which I am not looking forward to, but I know I can take it. Even if it's rough or abusive, I can withstand it. I've been through that ON PURPOSE - you might recall. And just knowing that I'm doing it to bring down a monster or an entire organization of monsters, well... I'll do what I have to without complaint and get the job done as soon as I possibly can."

Another pause. "I don't like it at all, Draco. But I know that you could have easily just done it and told me about it later, and because of the time difference and Hazel's recovery, it would have been a plausible excuse for waiting to tell me until it was too late to stop you. Also, I know that I CAN'T stop you. You already said you volunteered, which means that this is important to you, and so..." you sighed again.

I very quickly grew to hate those sighs. I don't WANT you to feel like you need to make those sighs, but I was already committed to this course of action, despite not having 'officially' agreed and been given the job.

"Yes. You can do it, just... if there is ANY way that anyone can get updates to me..."

"I'll see what they can do," I promised.

After that, we both argued a bit over who loved the other more, until Bletchley came out to have a chat with me, but I've actually run out of time - as Ramsey is now ready to go talk to Gretchen again - and so, I'll have to tell you about our chat, and what happened with Gretchen - in my next email. Whenever I'll have a moment to actually send one.

Love you so much that it still takes my breath away, stings my eyes, and makes my chest hurt, in the best possible way. Thank you so much for letting me do something that probably sounds insane, but, well, I sort of need to do this. Just know that no matter what happens, you have my heart in your hands, and so, it's completely safe.

Forever,

Draco
Friday July 8, 2016

Draco,

I just received my second update from the Auror department for today. Which means I won't get another update again until tomorrow. So I thought maybe I would write out my thoughts and fears to you instead of letting them rattle around in my head, growing exponentially with each passing hour.

I really thought about writing some nonsense about how proud I am of you for doing such a horrible job so someone else doesn't have to. For taking on something horrific for a short time so these young girls won't have to live it for years. How I'm in awe of your Legimimens talents that makes you such an imperative part of our world's safety. And it's not that those things aren't true, I am proud of you and in awe of you. But mostly I'm mad and scared and frustrated and hurt.

I hate that there are people who are going to be purchasing your body, or technically Gretchen's body but it will be you feeling it, using you how they see fit. Getting a part of you that should be exclusively mine, or at least exclusively at my disposal. I hate it. Do you understand how hard this is for me? I.Hate.This. My husband could be being shagged within an inch of his life, literally if the customer is violent enough, while I sit here enraged.

And I am a truly awful person, because I actually think I might prefer you having a terrible experience than dealing with the idea that you could actually be enjoying yourself. What kind of disgusting human being thinks of his selfless husband, going into sex work in an effort to keep young powerless women from being abused, and hopes the sex he's going to be forced into having is bad? But no matter how I think of it, and I am thinking of it constantly, I can't talk myself into wanting the sex to be anything more than "not causing you pain."

The only time I'm not worrying about you is when I am dealing with the children. That is both a blessing and a curse. Because they seem to be the best at distracting me with terrible crap. Mostly we've been sitting around watching telly, playing outside, and just being lazy. Haz is still healing and I won't be able to concentrate on keeping everyone safe if we went anywhere anyway. But Siri was able to distract me by showing off his "new quidditch move" he had learned. Which ended up being a move he couldn't actually perform which resulted in a broken wrist. Obviously that was an easy enough fix for me. It was a really small break so it was fixed with a quick episkey but still, the damn kid broke his wrist showing off his ill practiced quidditch moves.

Our sweet littlest triplets? Since you regale them often with (mostly age appropriate) stories of raids you've been on, they have been constantly asking about what mission you're on right now. And "that's classified, I can't talk about it" isn't really cutting it for them. Since I refuse to tell them anything about it, they keep swinging back and forth between begging me to give them details, coming up with insane scenarios and asking if that's what you're doing, or … and this is my favorite … asking me if you're going to die.

So that's been a real hoot.

In good news, Hazel is doing unbelievably well recovering from her surgery. Her surgeon doesn't do a ton of surgeries on witches, but Hazel also isn't her first. But she's really pleased with the progress so far. We are officially a week post op at this point and she had her follow-up appointment this morning. She's healing amazingly well. Doctor says she was an ideal patient. And as of right now, she has to do her dilating stuff but she's pretty much free to do anything she feels well enough to do.

Because of that, as soon as I'm done writing to you, we are all going out to eat. Hazel says she's sick of the same four walls and the view from her room. She wants to see people besides just her family (although she's been so sweet and thankful for how great her brothers and sisters have been to her) and eat food that hasn't been cooked by a slightly out of it Daddy Harry. Apparently when I am deep in the worry pit, my cooking becomes sub-par.

Oh, speaking of me being sub-par and a terrible person and just an all around nightmare, I am SO sorry that Rage Halo Harry has put so many lives in danger. To Hell with you Draco Malfoy! My barging through wards has only ever put myself at risk. Oh and when I risked the life of our unborn daughter at the same time. Ta ever so for bringing THAT up! Are you kidding me with this shite? "We don't want Rage Halo Harry showing up and putting EVERYONE'S life in peril" ??! The Fuck? Haha, how silly, isn't that such a funny thing that you Aurors joke about, your ridiculous husband who risks the life of everyone during his temper tantrums. Cool, good to know what everyone thinks of me.

I know I'm very likely overreacting because I am scared and feeling helpless. But could you try to think about how I might feel before you randomly blurt out how funny it is that I am such a disgusting human being. Cool? Thanks.

I love you. I value your opinion above anyone else's, and it hurts me to hear you speak so lowly of me. Is it really such a bad thing that I am so terrified of losing you that I act out? That my love for you is so big that I can't contain it when I'm afraid for you?

I just … what if you don't come home to me?

And if this is the last thing I ever say to you, I can't be mad. I love you. I love you with every breath I take. Your heart is the most important thing I've ever held. I just want it safe.

Yours, forever and always,
Harry James Malfoy

Saturday July 9th
My life,
It's currently about 2 in the morning and I am certain that no one will wake up and catch me writing an email on my magi-tablet. I'm certain because I spelled them all to sleep.

Thus, I have the time to write up everything that has happened so far. I'm going to start where I left off. In a meeting with the entire Senior staff of the Auror department. I told Kingsley and Robards that you weren't happy about it, but had begrudgingly given your permission. The first few hours were sort of an argument on how to go about communicating during the mission.

See, normally, undercover operatives are NOT allowed to have any sort of recording or communication device on them as those things are easy to find and tend to give the operative away when found. When I heard this, I wondered why the undercover department didn't just use some of my magi-tech. To which Roche looked at me like I had just spoken Japanese.

Robards nearly blushed and rubbed the back of his neck. "Erm, see, whenever you come babble at me about something you want to use during your raids, all I care about is if it'll work and make our jobs easier. I don't actually listen to what you're saying, so, I've never talked about any of it to Roche."

"Uh-huh." Normally I would actually be delighted to know that MY department has better tech than everyone else, but this was a case of ME clearly benefiting from using my tech, so I decided to share. "If I bring my mapping drones - they look like marbles and shouldn't alarm anyone - then if it is an organization, I can have the drones map the place in preparation of a raid. Plus, the camera contacts - at the very least - will ensure that you have a good look at anyone I see. They are nearly invisible and won't be detected."

I paused to take a sip of tea. "I won't be able to use the ear buds as those really are obvious, so we won't be able to talk to each other, but I SHOULD be able to take anything with me that Gretchen owns, and also, since she almost certainly has a purse, I can add a secret undetectable expanded pocket to carry everything else I will want to have on hand. I can then use my mag-tablet to send insta-owls as necessary."

Roche looked at Robards so intently that it was nearly a glare. "He has mapping drones AND camera contacts... And you didn't TELL me about them?!?!"

Robards looked a bit abashed now. "Well, it's like you always say, tech can be detected and put the operative in danger. More danger. EXCESSIVE danger."

Roche sighed in resignation. "In any case, Malfoy, I'll need you to walk me through the tech."

I pointed to Bletchley. "He can walk you through it since he's been on most of my raids."

It was then agreed that Bletchley and Roche would go over my tech with a couple of others while Robards and Ramsey went over the first interview with Gretchen to make notes. I was basically given a break to get something to eat and try to mentally prepare myself for what was to come. As I ate, I composed most of my last email to you. At one point, Bletchley came over to update me and also let me know what happened with the boy in Singapore. So, it was a real murder. The henchman was very recognizable as a member of their mob. The two in bed were the son of the boss and a higher up in the organization. The boy had been reported as missing. So, Bletchley coordinated with the police to get justice, and despite having "photographic" evidence, the police insisted their hands were tied.

So he went to the boy's family and explained things to them. They are afraid to go after the mob, but relieved to finally know what happened. Bletchley gave them the money I'd given him for them, and left them to do with the information what they will.

Thus, cased closed, I suppose.

After he left, I finished my email and went with Ramsey to go interview Gretchen. Normally Ramsey works with a partner, but it was agreed that they didn't want to scare her into not talking at all, so it was just him and me. Outside the door, I stopped Ramsey and said: "Let me give it a go. I promise I won't rile her up, and if it doesn't work, you can always take over."

Ramsey sighed in frustration, but then nodded. "Yeah alright, but ONLY because I know you have daughters her age."

I nodded in agreement. We entered the room and I sat directly across from Gretchen. With a friendly smile, I rested my arms on the table and held out my hands to her.

"Lovely to meet you, Gretchen. My name is Draco Malfoy. I'm married to Harry used-to-be-Potter and we have a lot of kids, a few of which are your age. Can I tell you a little about them?"

She eyed me warily. "Why?"

"Can I hold your hands?" I asked respectfully.

She tilted her head side to side and thought it over a minute before placing her hands in mine.

Still smiling, I said: "I have 14 kids, the ones I think are your age are Eris, Orion, and Hazel. They're just turned 16 and are causing me no small amount of trouble." I paused to watch things cross her mind. I think she has an older sister who turned 16 with a BIG celebration that she watched sadly from a corner.

"My oldest son just got married. He's 20 and he and Mahafsoun were MADE for each other." I could hear and feel her inhale a silent gasp at that. "Oh? You must be a fan of Mahafsoun. Her telly show is quite popular across the pond. I had to stop watching it with River because every time she'd kiss someone on the show, he'd practically MURDER something."

She smiled faintly at that. I saw a few memories of her watching the show in her mind, followed by a big fight - presumably with her father or step father. After that, she packed a bag and ran away.

"The magazines and televised interviews ask where she's from and how she got discovered, but do you want to know what she doesn't tell them?"

"What?" She asked curiously.

"She was born in Egypt to a witch. When her mum died, her dad sold her into sex slavery."

Gretchen gasped in horror and sympathy. I could see the face of Gretchen's pimp clearly in her mind. She shook her head. "NO... Something like that CAN'T happen to someone as beautiful as Mahafsoun!"

I gave her a sympathetic smile. "Did someone tell you that you're not pretty?"

Several people flashed through her mind, but the clearest and most frequent were her father/step father and her pimp.

"I have to wonder, if you really weren't pretty, then why would ANYONE pay to be with you?"

She gasped and shook her head. "You've got it all wrong! I'm constantly in trouble because I don't "attract enough clients!"

I tilted my head and gave her a gentle look. "Gretchen, that is a lie designed to control you. You are very pretty and more than likely in demand. Telling you that you are not pretty enough or attracting enough clients encourages you to go back out and work harder so you'll make more money for HIM."

"He'll MURDER me for being gone so long!" Gretchen moaned.

"No he won't. If he kills you, you won't be able to make him any more money. He'll just smack you up a bit, but you can take it, right? You have before."

Her eyes started to water and I could see a few times that she was smacked around.

"He always hits you in places that hurt a lot, but don't mar the goods, right? He knows that he earns NO money if you don't look nice and pretty."

This seemed to make her stop and think. "I don't want to talk about Mark - fuck! Tell me more about Mahafsoun."

Nodding, I continued my story. "One day I was on holiday with my family and Mahafsoun tried her best to pick me up. She could see that I have money and needed to take a bit from me to give her owner. I'd actually seen him smack her around, so I let him think that she was succeeding. Once we were alone in her tent, I aimed at where he was hiding and listening in and cast a body binding curse on him."

Gretchen seemed to love that, looking excited. She even squeezed my hands. "Yeah? Did you kill him?"

"Tempting, but no. I felt it was more important to get her to safety. Although I DID kick him several times before leaving him for the muggles to wonder about."

"He deserved it, bloody arsehole!" Gretchen exclaimed fiercely.

I nodded with a smirk. "After that, Harry contacted Kingsley and got permission to bring Mahafsoun home with us. She eventually enrolled in my oldest daughter Elena's performance arts school and was discovered by casting agents for her telly show."

"Wow! Like a fairy tale!" Gretchen exhaled in awe.

"A bit," I acknowledged. "And I am going to help you too."

She immediately looked wary.

"First of all, since you are underage, you WILL be going to Unity House, which is a place where you will be safe and no one will ever find you. So, you will never see Mark again, this I promise. You ARE free of him. But I ALSO want to arrest him and see to it that he pays for everything he's done."

I could see a bit of a war going on in her mind. Several scenes of abuse flashed through her mind, featuring a few other girls.

"You're afraid that he'll hurt the other girls. You're afraid that if you don't come back, he'll make the other girls work harder to make up for losing the money you make."
Silent tears streamed down her cheeks for a few silent seconds before she nodded.

"This is why I need you to help me," I informed her. "I'm going to pretend I'm you. Not just pretend, I'm going to Polyjuice INTO you and take your place so I can help those girls and stop him from hurting them."

I watched her think this over, a lot of rather disturbing things running through her mind. Patiently, I waited for her to make up her mind and nod.

"Alright... How can I help?"

"You can start by telling us about you. When did you run away from home and why?"

She gasped. "How'd you know I done a runner?"

"It's the most common reason girls are taken in by pimps," I explained.

Sighing, she told me everything I needed to know, including the fact that she's only 15, that her pimp has her work a certain corner on Knockturn near Diagon - where she occasionally picks up better clients - and where they all sleep when they're done for the night. I asked for tiny details that would help me pretend to be her, and just generally traipsed through her mind since she was now relaxed and unintentionally giving me clear access.

"Tell me about the tiara," I murmured.

She seemed momentarily surprised that I knew about that, but then shrugged it off. "Once a month, Mark rewards the top earning girl, IF she makes him at least a certain amount - but he won't tell us what the amount is. He rewards her by treating her like a princess for the day."

I nodded in understanding and asked a few more questions until I felt like I knew everything she did about the situation. The good news at that point was that she didn't think Mark worked for anyone but himself.

At that point, things become a bit of a blur until I accepted Gretchen's sleazy clothing and went into a room to drink the Polyjuice. ALL of the preparations had been done, as quickly as possible, so it was time to play my part.

It was about 24 hours after Gretchen had been picked up, and the other Aurors assured me that it wouldn't be suspicious because most of the prostitutes are held overnight while being processed before being let go.

So, I returned to Gretchen's corner and threw myself into solicitation as if she hadn't just been arrested and released from jail. I got a few interested looks, but before anyone could buy anything from me, Mark showed up in a fury and dragged me off to his dingy flat. You know, for someone who must earn quite a bit of money from his girls, he sure isn't spending it here. So I have to wonder if he's required to give a good chunk of it to someone else. That was my first indication that this might be an organization after all.

I won't tell you the details of the beating, but just as I told Gretchen, he was careful not to damage anything that would lower my value. All in all, I've made YOU beat me worse, and so this was almost nothing.

He shouted at me that I'd been stupid and gotten nabbed by the Aurors, but I managed to cry just right and assure him that they didn't get anything out of me, and after questioning me for HOURS, finally gave up and let me go. Satisfied, he commanded me to get back to my corner and work twice as hard to make up for missing out on last night.

So I did. Apparently I'm actually better at it than Gretchen because all I had to do was smile at passing blokes and make a particular gesture with my hand to my mouth and they'd grin and follow me to my alley.

So, to answer your biggest concern, so far, the majority of it has been blow jobs, which meh. Not terrible, but definitely not the same as when I'm trying to make you fall apart and scream my name. As for the few who wanted more, it was boring as fuck and over in about a minute flat.

The REAL progress on the case has happened when we return to the rundown flat each night. Mark is ON me/Gretchen for fucking up, and taunts, pinches, smacks me - and things like that. But as he does so, I have the perfect opportunity to look into his eyes and read his mind. The funny thing is that he is nearly a squib, and so while he DID search me for unauthorized tech (probably thinking that the Aurors might try to slip something on her), he never even thought for a second that they might have tried magical methods. He doesn't even suspect that there's a reason for my newfound fascination with his eyes. He probably hasn't even noticed.

In any case, I can't ask too many questions. I have to spread them out, and that is what is taking so long. Well that and I have to do other things to keep him happy enough to let me get close. But maybe you will be relieved to know that he doesn't shag the girls, thus, he hasn't shagged me. I actually think he might be gay, but in any case, despite being a little achy from his attention, I'm fine. I'm making progress, it's just taking a little longer than I hoped.

I'm going to sign off now and get some sleep before tomorrow. Know that my every thought is of you. I MISS you!

Forever,
Draco
P.S. Honestly, I didn't mean to make a joke out of Rage Halo Harry. I was going for a joke about I have to get permission like a child, but upon reflection, you're right, it was tasteless all around.
Chapter 43

Chapter Summary

Harry is dealing with Draco being out working, and Draco uncovers all the information he needs.

Chapter Notes

So because I know y'all hate the idea of Draco being undercover forever, I decided to post two right away so you can read the resolution and sigh in relief. Warning: OTHER underage prostitutes are mentioned. But nothing explicit and so shouldn't be trigger.

See the end of the chapter for more notes

Sunday July 10, 2016

My Other Half,

I'd like to be a strong, confident person. Existing within myself and knowing while my spouse is an important part of my life, I am a complete person without you. Just a best friend who complements me but doesn't complete me.

Yeah, that's not my life. You are the best parts of me. You make me better. You make me strive to be the best person I can be. Could I survive without you? Debatable. Do I want to? Never. I think it's why I was always drawn to you, even when I thought I hated you, you force my competitive nature to its limits. You challenge me. You fill in all of my cracks. And while I certainly don't want you to think you aren't a complete person yourself, I like to think I fill those spaces in you.

So what I am saying is, I miss you like I'm missing a piece of myself.

I want to tell you all about our weekend, since you're still on assignment, but first I just wanted to reply to a few of the things you said in your email to me before I get so wrapped up in my own story that I forget to answer a question or ignore an issue.

The whole teasing me about being Rage Halo Harry? I promise that I don't mind you teasing me about it. I really don't. I know you not so secretly like it when I come charging in. I think you count on me to be the brave idiot charging into things because you're so much more likely to plan ahead for every circumstance. You've teased me about this for over a decade, I promise it doesn't bother me. What did bother me was when you said I endangered lives by doing so. And it sounds like you were completely kidding, so I really am okay with it. Just maybe try to keep in mind when you joke around that your husband is ridiculous and takes things very literally?

Also, how do you not know what burpees are? They are an insanely hellish workout that is so good for you and super torturous. Honestly, if you don't know what they are AND you enjoy torturing your students? Then I should teach you all about burpees. You start out standing, drop into a crouching squat position with your hands on the ground, kick your legs back into a plank or a pushup position, quickly jump back into the squat position, and then back to standing.

In case you're not really getting updates, Gretchen seems to be settling in at Unity pretty well. I contacted Tabitha to kind of explain that she doesn't necessarily need to be quarantined to her room, but she can't exactly take her roaming around Diagon while you're walking around wearing her face. While we were talking, Tabitha mentioned how sweet Gretchen seems to be and how well she's getting along with all of the other kids. Hopefully that gives you some peace of mind, knowing that even if nothing else comes of this assignment, you got one child into a safer place where she seems to be quite happy.

However, speaking of things coming from this assignment; I am thrilled that you aren't keeping things from me, I'm so pleased that we are at a place where I accept what you're doing and you don't sneak around behind my back. But, I don't really need the details. I theoretically know what you're doing, I've accepted it, I'm dealing with it, but the less details the better okay? If you just really need to unload and need me to know because it helps YOU to tell me? Then I will suck it up and deal with not liking the details. But if you're just giving me details in an effort to be as open and honest as you know I normally want when you're on Auror business? I'm good.

Oh, I do have one request though. Not sure who I need to talk to about this but uh, Kingsley or Robards or Roche or Bletchley …. I get to have a go at this Mark piece of shite as soon as he's been charged right? If they "can't allow that" then maybe they leave the interrogation room unlocked and oh gee I just happen to have an invisibility cloak. I just wanna talk to him a little. Pick his brain. Rip his bollocks off. You know, normal stuff.

Oh, and I know you've been gone for a few days but did you notice a little kid coming and playing in the yard before you left? Every once in a while when we're all inside I get a quick glimpse of little head full of dark hair darting through the yard. So I start to do a head count and realize we're all inside. Not to mention none of ours that are that small have such dark hair. Jaz is the smallest (and has much longer hair than this child) at seven and this kid seems more Lissa's size, not quite as small as Seph but then again who is? Maybe it's just a shy neighbor kid who wants to play?

Whew, I guess I had a lot more to catch up on than I thought! See what happens when I don't see you for days and days and days? Anyway, do you know what your amazing children planned for this weekend? They all got together (everyone but Haz actually, they had a kid meeting while she was napping) and decided I needed a distraction from missing you and she needed something fun to think about besides boring recovery stuff. So they … took us to Disneyland!!

I know, I had asked you if you wanted to go. So, if you really did want to go, you will not have to twist my arm! But you also didn't respond at all to me asking if we could go. So I thought maybe that meant you didn't want to.

But it was so much fun! We went on so many rides! You know how much I love rides. We split up a bit, River and Maha taking the little triplets and Jaz to Cars Land in California Adventure while I took the other kids on all the big rides. I did not want to deal with a Persephone tantrum when she found out she was too small to go on anything remotely dangerous looking. So while they did the cars, we did the Matterhorn and the Indiana Jones adventure. Thankfully, at 104cm Seph IS tall enough to do Space Mountain (by a whole 2 cm) so we were able to do that one as a family.

With our big group, I think people just assumed we were a summer camp, a day care, or possibly a Make A Wish trip. Especially when we were with Maha and she would be noticed. They're looking at our children like, "hmm, which one is the sick one?"

We did actually see a Make A Wish group so it's certainly not out of the realm of possibility. I actually had a talk with Maha about that, asking if anyone had ever requested time with her as their wish. Oddly enough, she got her first request while she was with us in the UK planning the wedding. I guess she's doing a meet-up in two or three weeks. It's such a great charity.

So Disney was amazing, the parades, the fireworks. Merlin Draco, the fireworks! Insane. I just wish you'd been with me so we could have been snuggling up, probably each with a kid on our shoulders.

We also met a lot of fun characters. I thought Seph was going to cry when she met Tinkerbelle, hmm tiny and feisty, why oh why would Seph love Tinkerbelle!?! But oh my Hell, the princes were amazing! We met Naveen and Eric and Ho-Lee-Hell Flynn Rider. Mmmmmmmmm.

But two days at Disney have me a bit exhausted. I'm off to dream about you. I miss you my love.

You told me not to cry when you were gone, But the feeling's overwhelming, it's much too strong, Harry

Monday July 11th
HARRY!!!

I did it! Salazar, I feel like I'm high right now! I have SO MUCH to tell you!

First of all, I was a little depressed Sunday when I woke up because I was so busy Saturday that I barely had the energy to look at Mark when the day was over, let alone read his mind. I flopped on my mat in the corner and basically passed out. So, I had very little hope that Sunday would be any better. Thankfully, I was wrong.

I'm not certain if there was an important Quidditch game going on or what, but all of Diagon and most of Knockturn was empty from about half five on. The few people on Knockturn rushed to finish up their errands - including paying a couple of the girls for favors - before going wherever everyone else had gone. It was almost eerily quiet at that point, but it ALSO meant that none of us had to work since there were no customers. So, we all headed back to the tiny flat we sleep in.

Mark was in a bit of a rage - in general, at the lack of customers - and was taking it out on all of us equally. I was a bit done, to be honest. So I started in on the questions, not being as careful about them as I have been. Also, I mouthed off a bit so that he'd focus on me instead of the others.

At one point, he was pissed off enough that he had me bent over a table - my back on it with my feet on the floor - and he was threatening to choke me by having his hands on my neck and exerting just enough pressure to scare a girl like Gretchen. Looking straight into his eyes, I said: "Wow, you must be pathetic after all if losing a little bit of money on a Sunday night has you this upset. What's the matter? Spend too much money on drugs and not have enough to give your boss?"

"Ya bitch," he growled, increasing his pressure just enough to make this uncomfortable, but not so much that my life was in danger. "You dunno NOTHING!" Which was true until I read it all in his mind. He had gone gambling, lost a shit ton of money, and was now obligated to give quite a high payment every week to a woman I can only guess is the wizarding equivalent of the mob boss for this area. I sort of know this woman - in a vague sort of way. She owns most of Knockturn Alley, and I think her family has done for centuries. She's very powerful in that she has enough money to hire even better Lawyers than WE have, and so, somehow manages to get the Ministry to overlook all the seriously shady business going on in Knockturn.
I'm NOT saying that Kingsley is taking payoffs - or anything like that - simply that there must be loopholes that she's exploiting. In any case, once I knew that he was NOT working for an organization, but rather, working for himself in a desperate attempt to pay off his gambling debts, I knew that I didn't have to stick around any longer. I'd done exactly what I was sent to do. Mostly.

Overjoyed, I apparently smiled insanely enough to give him the shudders.

"W'as w'chu?" He asked in apprehension.

Rather than answer, I grabbed his hand and exerted pressure in the exact spot that weakens a grip. At the same time, I brought my knee up into his groin, making him scream with pain as I pushed him onto the floor. The thing is that even though I was Polyjuiced into Gretchen - which incidentally, I had a ring flask since Gretchen was known for wearing a cheap but pretty mood ring, so I'd been able to take a sip every half hour or so. Anyway, even though I was limited by Gretchen's actual physical capabilities, I still knew everything I'd ever learned, and a good half of Krav Maga is using an opponent's size and weight against them.

Thus, all the other girls watched in awe and amazement as all 5'3" and 97lbs of a scrawny looking girl beat the shit out of their pimp. He's actually a bit of a street brawler, and put up a good fight, once he recovered from his initial pain and surprise, but honestly, I'm dead certain that even my students could have eventually taken him down. Especially if two of them were working together. I secretly let him think he was doing better than he was just so that I could get a good 10 or 12 extra hits in before I got serious enough to take him down.

Funnily enough, Bletchley got a titch panicky when he saw Mark trying to choke me and called in the team standing by ready to extract me if necessary, but by the time they'd assembled and gotten their orders, they could clearly see that I was kicking arse. Which meant that they were a bit torn on whether to actually come in or not. Roche finally made the decision that I must have progressed to the arrest-and-bring-him-in portion of the operation, and even though I had things well in hand, chose to come in and get a grip on the girls before they could run off - as they were clearly all underage and needed to be brought to Unity House.

Thus, it seems like the moment I had Mark lying face down on the floor with my foot on his neck - as I spewed days' worth of anger, frustration, and snark (not to mention wandless stinging hexes) on him - the Senior Aurors burst into the tiny flat and immediately immobilized all the girls - and Mark, who they very reluctantly decided to take pity on and rescue from me.

Unfortunately, it means that they immobilized me as well, but this was to preserve the fact that I was not Gretchen. They didn't want word to be spread that they were now using Polyjuice on undercover missions, because there are ways to end their effects, which would be an all around bad situation.

But I suppose being immobilized as they brought everyone to the Ministry gave me time to calm down. It had been about 20 minutes since my last dose when I started antagonizing Mark, and so, by the time I was in an office with Robards, Roche, and Bletchley, I was already starting to turn back. They all took up defensive stances as they ended the spell on me - presumably afraid that I was going to be irate that they'd dared to immobilize me. Lucky for them, I had reached the elation-that-the-mission-was-over stage, and was not as likely to hex a bloke for looking at me wrong.

That was the start of a LONG and exhausting 20 hours in which I - as me - helped to question Mark and the girls. The good news is that the Aurors had a good visual record of everything I'd seen, and so, most of what I had to do in regards to debriefing was fill in the blanks by answering questions about what was said at certain points. They wanted to review a couple of my memories.
But basically, everything I had gone through - all on its own - was enough to convict Mark of so many things. The fact that he had 14 other girls ranging from 12 to 18 and - to my surprise - two 15 year old twin boys working for him, and ALL of their testimony because they understood that he was going to prison and they could either help make that as long as possible, or say nothing and risk letting him off sooner, well... It's no surprise that they wanted him in prison as long as possible.

There's still a mess to be sorted out in learning their real names and if they have parents, but that's probably going to be Tabitha's job. I DO know that Gretchen will be required to stay in Unity House to attend regular therapy sessions until she goes back to Hogwarts. See, in her case, her home life wasn't terrible enough to remove her from it - even if she'd reported it to the authorities. Her father wasn't abusive so much as controlling, and that's why she ran away, she felt unloved and powerless, and sadly but not surprisingly fell into a situation in which she literally was powerless. Her mother actually had reported her as missing and has seen her a couple of times at Unity - but you probably already knew that as you mentioned that you were getting updates on her.

I have so many other things going through my mind and I can't wait to see you, but I have to sign off now and go terrorize my class. The sooner I do, the sooner I can come home to you. See you in 2 hours and 30 seconds!

Forever and always,
Draco
P.S. Actually, yes, I HAVE seen a short and shaggy little boy lurking around our yard. I thought nothing of it as I assumed that he was a neighbor boy coming around to play with our kids, but was too shy to actually say hi and introduce himself. Did he finally gather up the courage to play with our kids?

Chapter End Notes

And honestly, Chrissie and I are so far ahead in the story that I kinda want to catch you up, lol.
Chapter 44

Chapter Summary

Harry is happy Draco's home, Draco's taking some time off to decompress, and also, they visit an animal rescue.

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Tuesday July 12, 2016

My Completion,

Oh Draco, my Draco. You came home to us. It's well past the time I would normally fall asleep but I can't let myself close my eyes. What if I close them and when I wake up I find your homecoming was a dream and you're still out there? I don't know how I'd react to not seeing you when I wake up now that I know you're home. So I will just stay awake. Don't worry, I have plenty of pepper-ups to get me through tomorrow.

I uh, I actually am a bit panicky right now at the idea that tomorrow morning you will wake up and portkey yourself right back over the pond to teach another of your classes. I know how important it is. I know how fantastic you are at teaching. But Damnit, you just got back to me! Am I a completely selfish arse if what I really want is for you to skip just this one teeny tiny class? You've basically worked for a week straight and I think you deserve a day off. And by you, I of course mean that I deserve a day off of my worries!

Fine, I understand, you have commitments and you're probably already feeling irritated that you got pulled out of your class last week and don't want to leave them hanging two Wednesday classes in a row. You know, sometimes it's really obnoxious how much of a responsible adult you are. What happened to the prat who snuck out of his dorm room to try and catch me sneaking out of my dorm room?

Hopefully you get home from class quickly tomorrow, I will try to keep Jaz from freaking out as long as I can. I feel like the biggest shite father in the world. I was so focused on my worries, on Hazel's recuperation, at Eris' stress from dealing with her best friend's recuperation, that I completely missed just how upset our sweet Jaz was by your absence. She seems to be that sweet go-with-the-flow child, never truly freaking out about anything. And sometimes I forget that she hides behind that sweetness when she's worried. When you got home earlier, she looked at you like someone dying of thirst seeing a glass of water.

And what did you think about her sentence? She worked on it the entire time you were gone, which honestly should have been a red flag for me if I hadn't been such an idiot. She's come so far in the last months, from no sound at all to "I missed you Daddy" being a completely legible sentence? She's just utterly brilliant isn't she? It's probably good that she decided to focus on that instead of focusing on your absence. You're just her person, ya know?

Oh! While you were catching up with the kids, I had another run-in with our tiny yard trespasser. Cael had something he wanted to show you, and ran outside to grab it. I was curious as to what he was grabbing so I was watching out the window and when he slammed the back door open, I saw the little one dart out the back window of the play house. I honestly don't know if it's shyness, or maybe he doesn't have any toys of his own and so tries to play with our kids' toys when they're inside? He hasn't damaged anything, he's not been rude, he just seems to enjoy hanging out in our yard.

I just can't believe someone isn't watching him all that closely. I know we let our children explore on their own quite often, but it's always within the Manor grounds or they have an older sibling with them or we've set a charm on them. This little guy looks like he's probably only four years old, definitely not old enough to be prowling around on his own!

Maybe I'm wrong and he's actually older but small. We both know that size is not always indicative of age don't we!

Anyway, I am going to stop typing. I won't be going to sleep, but I've worked myself up about missing you that just staring at you sleep isn't enough, I need to be touching you.

I love you always,
Harry

Wednesday July 13th
My everything,

I positively adore the fact that you were so in need of me last night that you tried to simply snuggle up to me without waking me, but ended up waking me anyway, which meant that we had some slow and sleepy reunion sex, followed by both of us passing out. At that moment, I NEEDED that reconnection with you. I know I had initially asked you to not pressure me, but I really thought I'd need to decompress for a few days before I let anyone touch me. Happily, that was not the case.

As I was drifting back to sleep, the best part was holding you in my arms as if you were MINE and I was NEVER going to let you go again. I'm dead certain that is the only reason you got any sleep. Even then, I don't think you slept very long, probably getting up at your normal time, which concerns me because I'm fairly sure you didn't sleep much when I was gone. I'm going to give you dreamless sleep tonight or cast a sleeping spell on you if you don't let yourself get a good night's.

As for today, surprise surprise, my class was canceled. See, the Ministry itself is convinced that I need a few consecutive days off so that I can process what happened (and they know exactly what happened as they have a good visual of most of it, except for those times I closed my eyes), so, I'm not expected back until next Monday. I promise you I will spend the entire week in bed just holding you if you feel that's what it'll take to get past the unconscious feeling like I'm going to just be gone when you turn to look at me.

And... damnit! I WAS going to just meditate and work through the small issues I have. See I didn't feel helpless, and no one hurt me beyond smacking me up a little, but despite that, I do actually feel a little traumatized by basically having to let so many people touch me in so short a time. So, I'm having Yesenia come over when she can. It'll probably be Friday, and we're probably going to spend the entire day in seclusion, but I'm confident that having my trusted Mind Healer validate my feelings and give me permission to let them go will help me get over them much more quickly than if I just shook them off or locked them up.

After all, I've had YEARS of therapy and know better than to just assume that these things'll go away on their own.
But in any case, the two of us are going to an animal rescue today so that you can ask a bunch of questions.

I love you so much! You believe in me and make me a better man. If not for you, I would probably be the sort of person who never leaves my house longer than it takes to do a bit of shopping. I would probably NEVER help anyone, much less be in a position to teach others to help people - or at least not die in the attempt. I would probably be worthless and alone, but I'm not, because you loved me and inspired me to be the best possible version of myself. Without you, I am nothing.

I have nothing if I don't have you,
Draco

P.S. Sorry? I truly didn't mean for it to happen, but while we were at that rescue, they had a baby brown bear in dire need of a parent to care for it round the clock, so now, we have a new baby. Bear. That I've named Wojtek. But don't worry, I don't expect you to take care of him on top of everything else you already take care of - including me. In my favor, Amala seems interested in mothering the bear a bit too, unless she's simply biding her time for a tasty meal, but I really think she's quite fond of the little guy. I know that even though he's only about 2 and a half kilos (5lbs) right now, he WILL grow to be enormous, so I'm only planning to keep him until he's big enough to survive on his own, but in the meantime, it's been SO LONG since these carriers got used, hasn't it?

Chapter End Notes

The case of the tiny yard trespasser continues...
Harry thinks Draco is lovably ridiculous, and Draco has a chat with the older kids.

Warning, there's something in this chapter that shouldn't trigger anyone, BUT is rather sensitive as far as topics go. I don't want to give a specific warning and spoil it, just... keep an open mind?

Also, Draco talks a little bit more about his mission, but nothing explicit.

Friday July 15, 2016

Draco,

You never mean to collect these strays. But somehow I end up with the most ridiculous menagerie of animals. We have a cheetah for crying out loud! Now a bear? A bear? And yeah, sure, "I'm only planning to keep him until he's big enough to survive on his own" where have I heard that one before? Oh yeah, that time we got a cheetah! You are just the most ridiculous man alive.

But how can I possibly be anything other than madly in love with the kind of man who wants to give everything he can to those in the most dire of situations? Maybe that guess you made all those years ago that we would end up with a hundred children was really just you knowing how much love you have to give and realizing you'd need to spread it out amongst so many lest it become completely overwhelming.

I appreciate your offer to spend the entire week in our bed holding me to relieve some of my irrational fears that you will disappear if I sleep, but I couldn't to that to our children who also missed you. No, if anything, watching you snuggled up with Jaz for hours yesterday went further than anything else in grounding me with the knowledge that you're home and safe.

I love the way the two of you communicate. Because she began learning sign while we held her and signed in front of her face, she "reads" sign both forwards and backwards. I can't get over how uniquely the two of you can speak to each other. I love seeing your heads leaning on the other, your blonde hair tangling with her black curls, her back snuggled up to your chest. And both of your hands in front of the both of you, essentially signing backwards at each other. And, as you have done since she was tiny, you hum music to her, the vibrations she can feel while you're cuddled so tightly.

And then the whole baby bear snuggled up on the couch with the both of you. Our children are absolute nutters, not one of them blinked an eye when you brought home a BEAR!
Nutters the lot of you!

Oh, and I need you to know that while I am quite content with the shagging we’ve done since you've been home, I truly was going to give you your space and not pressure you even the slightest bit. When I finished my last email and said I had to touch you, I was just going to card my fingers through your hair. I had no intention on taking it any further. I mean, as you saw, I certainly wasn't opposed to it! But I promise you I wasn't going to pressure you at all no matter how long it took!

Hopefully this really didn't have much of an effect on you, your behavior has been pretty normal since you've gotten back, but just to be on the safe side you are definitely sequestered in with Yesenia right now. That works out pretty well for me, I am going to go play in the sunshine with our crew and her Diego. Hopefully our shy little trespasser will show himself and maybe come out and play!

Love You,
Harry

Friday July 15th
My wonderful husband,

Well, that was certainly an intense session with Yesenia. We got to the core of my feelings and worked through my issues. Actually, I really only had one issue. Surprising, I know. It was that I was a little appalled by how many people I had to let touch me in such a short amount of time. Well, you know that had I had so many people touch me during a kinky play session, I probably wouldn't have cared, it was actually that it was ALL basically cold and impersonal. To the point. No fun involved.

Which brings me to the other half of the issue: I was doing something new and different - having sex as a woman - and I wanted to at least try to enjoy some of it, but there wasn't anything that lasted long enough to enjoy. So NOW I'm dying to know what it would be like to have real and genuine sex as a woman with a connection to my partner. That said, I completely understand the inherent problem in asking you to do that to me.

In the past, you have shagged Luna's arse - which you didn't count as sex with a woman because it was her arse. Another time, you played with Hermione's women parts, but never shagged her. I know that you are well and truly gay and find women's parts squicky. If anything, if either of us was going to become a woman for the night, it would probably be you. For all of those reasons, I don't want to ask this of you, but at the same time, I feel like you would be upset if you found out I wanted to do this thing - that Yesenia actually thinks it should be part of my therapy - and yet DIDN'T ask you.

So... Do you think you could handle shagging me one time as a woman? In a way that's as close to our normal lovemaking as possible considering the squickness involved. If not, I won't press the issue or ever mention it again.

Moving on, Wojtek was positively adorable today. He's still a cub and needs to nurse often, but naturally, I can't do that, and I refuse to induce lactation while I'm teaching a combat class. Maybe if I wasn't planning to leave the Manor nor be seen by anyone until he weaned, I might consider it, but yeah, no, not happening. Lucky for me, the Orange County Animal Rescue had enough bear formula on hand to last a month or so, and I have already put an order in for more. Which means that I had Wojtek in a wrap carrier on my chest during my session so that every time he got hungry, he would squirm a bit and I would feed him. For now, I have spells on the carrier to vanish any messes he makes. I will probably attempt to potty train him as he grows, but at this moment, he's still basically an infant, not to mention a wild animal. I think any sort of potty training effort right now would only frustrate me more than actually teach him anything.

I love that our kids love him and take turns volunteering to feed and play with him when I let him out of my arms for a few minutes. Obviously today was different as I was secluded with Yesenia.

Other than that, I've had a lovely day. You had all the younger kids outside, and I'm not certain, but I THINK I saw you lure our mystery guest out into the open with biscuits, but admittedly, my attention was on our older kids, and so, I might have been mistaken.

But as I just said, I had the older kids, that means our teenagers. Shtara, Eri, Ori, Haz, Viona, and Alric. They were all circled around our massive rectangular table, enjoying a nice cuppa tea with me. Now that I'd had a chance to talk to my Mind Healer, they felt it was right to ask questions. I'm not sure what you told them exactly about what I was doing, but even if you didn't say it all outright, they had a pretty good idea somehow.

So, they asked me things like: "Did it hurt?" "Did it feel good?" "How much did you get paid?" "What was the ugliest client?" "What was the best looking client?" and: "Did you remember all the protection spells?"

That last one rather impressed me as I hadn't expected a bunch of teenagers to think about that. That said, I had to be honest and tell them that there were times when I was so busy that I couldn't cast the spells each time and had to do a sort of morning after spell when I was done for the day. Thankfully, there are Anti-STI potions I could take, and so, I'm certain I didn't catch anything.

Then, because the time was perfect, I decided to use my newfound 'cool dad' skills and ask them the all important question in return. I took a hand from both Orion and Eris and held them lovingly. "How about you two? Did YOU remember to cast the protection spells?"

Both glanced guiltily at Hazel, who looked stunned, by which I gathered meant that they hadn't found the right time to tell her yet. But before she could make an issue out of it, they both nodded. Or well, Orion nodded and said: "Yeah, I remember that very clearly. I stumbled over the words the first time, so I cast it a second time using wordless and wandless magic. Plus, she had those muggle condom thingies and knew how to put it on me, because I had no idea."

After that, Eris looked at her hands in her lap and said: "Er.... well, I don't actually remember what I did. I don't remember anything other than drinking - a LOT - and dancing and giggling almost constantly because EVERYTHING seemed hilarious. Ori says I was hot and heavy with a bloke, and to be honest, I probably was, because there was a couple of gorgeous blokes I wanted to snog, I just don't remember any of it. Thus, I have no idea if I remembered to cast the spells."

"Oh love," I sighed, pulling her into my side because she looked like she was utterly beating herself up over the potential mistake. I kissed her temple and felt her sigh and relax. She was the first one I actually had inside me, and while I do not have favorites - and if I did it might be Viona or Jaz - I will admit that she holds a part of my heart that the others don't. "It's not the end of the world. I mean it's a bit late now to cast morning after spells, but we can still cast detection spells and treat anything you might have caught."

"Will you?" She asked, sounding just a tiny bit afraid. "Because I've been feeling off and I just kept telling myself that I'm literally worried sick about Haz healing as quickly as possible, but what if I actually DID catch something?"

"Oh Eri!" Hazel cried out, pulling her from my arms and holding her tight. "I can understand why you didn't tell me at first, but you should have told me before now! I could have helped you worry about you instead of me!"

Viona snorted and shook her head. "And if you had told ME, I could have cast all the morning after spells on you, which I learnt from a book all the Sixth Years are given as a very not helpful at all attempt at Sex Education."

"Let go of your sister a moment, Hazel my love," I suggested, holding my wand at the ready. Once clear, I cast the STI detection spells - which lit up to show that she'd caught Chlamydia. "Well I guess that answers that," I murmured.

"That's not so bad," Alric reassured her. "According to that book we were given, there's a quick and easy potion to get rid of that."

I nodded in agreement. "I could probably even brew a batch by Sunday, but since you don't need an entire batch, I can just go to the nearest Apothecary and buy one, but erm... since you clearly had sexual intercourse, I should probably cast..." I held my wand up again and cast a pregnancy test on her and felt my heart drop for a moment when it lit up golden - which you almost certainly recall is positive.

"Blimey!" Viona swore, knowing (presumably from the book) that the test was positive. "Wow... we're going to have TWO nieces or nephews!"

This let Eris know the situation before I could explain it. "FUCK!" She blurted out before throwing her arms around Hazel and simply resting in her sister's arms.

"Well... It's still very early and there are a lot of options for you to think over. I caution you not to make any decisions before you think about every aspect, but just know that your dad and I will fully support you in anything."

Eris sort of glared at me at that. "Is that your way of saying that you think I'm too young and would prefer that I just get rid of it!"

I shook my head and took her hand. "At this point, I am already a grandfather. I have a new grandchild on the way, and I'm not afraid of babies. I am NOT telling you what to do. I'm saying that I want you to make the RIGHT decision for YOU. I don't want it to be a hasty decision. I want you to think things through. Talk with your sisters and brothers - I'm certain they'll all encourage you to keep it, but Viona and Hazel will also help you talk about the other side, and if that's what you decide, we will support you. Also, talk to your dad. He's going to do the fluffy dad thing and make you feel so much better than my cold analytical dad thing."

Eris managed to smile at me. "Well, you didn't threaten to ground or hex me, and you haven't yelled or called me bloody stupid, so you're not doing such a bad job, to be honest."

"Thanks," I murmured, relieved to hear that because it reinforces what I was saying when I said that I think I am finally ready to be mature and accepting of the fact that they're teenagers and have bigger problems than they did when they were tiny enough to fit in my hands.

Speaking of tiny, Eris deflected the attention off of her by asking to hold Wojtek. "Vo-tek? Voy-tek?"

"It's softer than voy, but not quite as soft as vo" I replied with a fond smile at the bear.

"Why that name?" Orion asked curiously.
"Ah, well there's a legendary bear that I learned about on one of my visits to Grandmama as a child. There once was a young - but not quite this young - bear cub that was taken in by a polish military unit back in World War 2 - the muggle one, not the one featuring the Dark Lord. Anyway, they named him Wojtek because it meant Happy Warrior, and he became quite famous for being enrolled as a member of their army so that they could keep him and bring him with them wherever they went. He even helped them in at least one battle in which he helped them carry boxes of ammunition to the front lines. After the war was over, they gave him to the Edinburgh Zoo where he lived a happy and relatively long life for a bear. I just always liked that story, and so decided to name him that as a sort of nod to history," I explained.

"Oh! That's way cooler than just being a weird name!" Shtara exclaimed in excitement, demanding her turn to hold the bear.

And that's when I decided to excuse myself to come write this email. I know that you learned about Eris being pregnant before reading this because I could hear the kids announce it very loudly the MOMENT you opened the door (with Shtara sounding like she wanted to be the one to tell you first/loudest), but I also wanted to get all my thoughts out before we had a chance to talk in person, so that you can see that I really did tell her to think her options over and that we'll support her either way. But that if I'm honest, I don't like the thought of... well, I guess I'd rather have another grandchild than know that I could have but didn't. I know that probably doesn't make sense, but that's how I feel.

So what I am really saying is that I need you to come hold my hand so that we can calm each other and prepare ourselves to remain united and supportive no matter what. Love you!

I never loved someone the way that I love you,
Draco

Chapter End Notes

In case you didn't figure out what my vague warning was referring to, it's the fact that Eris is not only having an unplanned pregnancy - and might be contemplating not - but also caught an STD due to drunken stupidity.
Harry wonders how he and Draco switched personalities, and Draco has class.

Saturday July 16, 2016

My Draco,

If I never leave this bed then I will never have to admit we're living this nightmare, right?

I have no idea how we switched roles. But somehow you have become the fluffy "Oh, I'm already a grandpa, what's one more?" guy and I am the one trying to see if I can find a time turner and make all of this go away. Fuck Draco, Eris is just a baby. She's my baby. She has two years of school left. TWO. The timing couldn't be worse! I mean, it's more than likely by my math that she'll be due in April. She won't even have a chance to finish out her sixth year.

I guess it's time to contact Saoirse and see if she wants to come back or if we need to find another tutor. I am sure Eri will want to go to Hogwarts as long as she can next year, but climbing all those stairs in her final trimester? Or trying to go back for the last two-ish months while caring for a newborn? Unrealistic.

Not that I am going to force her to leave Hogwarts, I won't be one of those parents from years ago sending their daughter to some unwed mother's home to hide a pregnancy and then bring her home without her baby. Or, even worse, do that creepy thing where the parent raises the child as their baby brother or sister. Gross.

I am just trying to be a realist, and I think it's likely that Eri will need a tutor for at least some of next year.

Gods Dammit! You think that by being up front and honest with these kids, teaching them safe shagging practices, encouraging open and honest communication that we'll be able to avoid certain traumatic events. Nope. My sixteen year old is pregnant by "some bloke" and doesn't even remember doing the deed.

And don't get me started on the STI. Fuck my actual life. At least it's treatable.

You know who makes stupid decisions? Drunk people. You know who makes stupid decisions? Teenagers. You know who makes the absolute stupidest decisions of all? Drunk teenagers.

I quit, I'm moving to our secret "Escape Azkaban" island. I'll send you a postcard.

I can't do that? Fine! I guess I will have to be loving and supportive and care for my family who I love more than anything else in existence. Damn you conscience! I knew I should have smashed that cricket.

Alright, I am going to spiral if I keep thinking about this. She's a little girl, she's scared, she needs her Daddy to not be an arsehole. I can't go back in time and change things, I can only support her going forward. Please remind me of this if you see me in a panic spiral alright?
On to less scary, and much more ridiculous things. You might not have done it, but the idea of actually nursing a BEAR crossed your mind? Like actually breastfeed a wild bear. Draco Lucius. Let's take out the biological aspect of human milk NOT being designed for growing bears … he's a freaking bear! I can't even with you. I sometimes think that you sit awake at night, dancing alone for hours, just coming up with new ways to freak me out. Hmm, Harry doesn't seem to freak out at my Auror-ing anymore, he hasn't said a word about me sending my cheetah after my students, I know! Bear lactation!

And potty training?

Or, you know, trying to talk me into shagging you as a woman. I want to give you this if it's something you need, but I don't know how it would actually work. I mean, I am just not turned on by women. And I would assume the only way you could do this was Polyjuice which opens a whole other can of worms, do you use someone we know that you asked permission of? A stranger and then I feel like I'm violating some unsuspecting woman. If there was some way to have it be you but just wearing different plumbing I could probably do that easily. I get hard just looking at your beautiful face, I just honestly don't even know if I could get it up if it was some random woman.

Ugh, can I think about this? I'm not saying no. But I can't just jump right in and say yes. Is that okay?

I had better join the rest of you, it's not like me to stay cooped up in my room so late into the morning. Even YOU are awake and out there already.

Oh! Yes, I did manage to get the little guy to come close enough to grab a biscuit, but as soon as I started talking to him he darted off (with biscuit in hand though, so I count it as a win!) I'm going to keep bribing him, maybe he will warm up to me eventually!

Always,
Harry

Monday July 18th
My passion,

Hey, what's wrong with me wanting to attempt nursing my baby bear? I have already decided against it, but of COURSE I thought about it. Wrong species or not, it would have been the best for Wojtek. Besides, if women in India can nurse their sacred deer with success, then I could have at least tried it. But the point is moot. https://www.deccanchronicle.com/lifestyle/viral-and-trending/020516/women-of-this-indian-community-breastfeed-deer-alongside-her-own-baby.html

But on to less ridiculous things.

So I apparently forgot to mention this, but when me and Yesenia were discussing how you shagging me as a woman would work, she ran through a list of options, and naturally, Polyjuice was the most well known and probably easiest, but there was also a much more complicated version of that in which I do Polyjuice into someone else, and then transfigure my face back to MY face. That said, there might actually be an even easier alternative...

The Damsel Curse. It's a completely reversible curse that would turn me into a woman until it's reversed. Which means that I WOULD literally be me, but as a woman. As I understand it, I'd probably be shorter than you and have extremely long hair - maybe even as long as a certain new daughter. But I think that's probably the best option if you want to be certain that no part of me belongs to someone else.

Plus, I'm actually sort of curious to see what I ACTUALLY would look like as a woman. Also note that it's designed to be temporary, so, wouldn't have been a good longterm solution to Hazel's desires, even if we HAD known about it before now.

But moving on, I just had my class, and I was in an excellent mood for it. I had Wojtek in his carrier on my chest, so he wasn't able to be seen while he slept. I walked into class, and now I have a slightly better idea of how you're doing the thing with the shirts. It's still a bit baffling, but not only did my shirt change to a tee, but the words on it were clearly visible OVER my wrap carrier, and so, I feel that you must be using some sort of glamour spell to make it LOOK like I'm wearing something else when I'm actually wearing what I put on. The only flaw in that theory is when I take off the shirt to find another shirt.

In any case, this one said: Surely not everybody was Kung Fu Fighting - which while ridiculous, is at least a song reference that I understood, so I didn't even curse you. Non-magically, that is.

But as I was saying, I walked into class to find that my students had just come from their hour long run, but weren't sure if I'd be there, and so had moved to the classroom to do some sparring on their own. They were all curious as to the wrap on my chest, but didn't say anything because I started right in on the lesson.

"Right, so you'll be pairing up today to revisit the lesson where you attempted to throw each other over your shoulders. I expect there to be at least some progress since the first time. You might have noticed that I brought back a very thin mat today for exactly this reason. You may thank me now."

They grumbled their thanks, having already paired up before I arrived, and got straight to work. I walked around giving them advice and tips, occasionally demonstrating the positions that lead up to the throw, and correcting their grips because most of them kept grabbing their opponents in places where their center of gravity was concentrated elsewhere, and so, makes the whole thing require a lot more strength and effort.

About halfway through the lesson, JUST when I was going to have them switch which partner was doing the throwing, Wojtek made a sound very similar to a baby crying, and started squirming in his carrier. I promptly responded by grabbing a bottle of formula out of my magically expanded pocket and feeding him.

"Switch!"

But my students were staring at me curiously. "Did ya somehow manage to have a baby since we last saw ya, guv?"

"Matter of fact, I did," I stated with a grin. "If you're lucky, I might let you see him."

"Must have been a ROUGH mission," one of the Aurors muttered under his breath, making a chill go up my spine in inexplicable foreboding.

"Erm... The relative roughness of my mission is irrelevant. This baby is adopted. Sort of."

This unsurprisingly confused them, but I moved on before they could dwell on it.

About 20 minutes later, Wojtek was finished eating and VERY squirmy. He probably just needed to go, but since he was trying to climb out of his carrier, I decided that I could easily vanish a mess off a mat if needed, so I picked him up out of his carrier and held him so that I was eye to eye with him.

"Try not to get under anyone's feet and trip them up. You could get hurt and I don't want that," I advised him before setting him on the floor and letting him explore a bit - the door to the classroom was firmly closed so that he couldn't escape.

"A BEAR?!?!" My students roared in astonishment.

"Ignore Wojtek, well, ignore the fact that he's wandering around and focus on your task, but at the same time DON'T step or land on him!" I ordered fiercely.

"Where'd you get a bear, Chief?"

I flapped my hand dismissively. "At an animal rescue, naturally. We were looking for horses, but they just so happened to have a newly orphaned bear and I reckoned that if I could nurse a Cheetah back to health, I could almost certainly care for a bear. Besides, he's just a baby right now, which makes him practically second nature for me."

By this point, Wojtek had apparently gotten bored with exploring as he was already pawing at my leg. I picked him up and vanished the mess he'd made a few feet away, but rather than put him back in the carrier, I simply held him as I tenderly encouraged my students to get back to it.

"Bloody prick!" Fatty accused in a tone I'm dead certain he thought I wouldn't hear.

"That reminds me, my husband oh so helpfully explained what a Burpee is -" My students groaned rather loudly and glared at fatty, who looked ready to murder himself. "The next person who opens their mouth rather than flip their partner over their shoulder, has to give me ten Burpees!"

Remarkably, my students became SO MUCH better at their task after that. One mostly succeeded and about five others managed about half the throw. All in all, by the time class was over, I was considering rewarding them. Except I didn't want to take my bear to a pub, so it would have to wait until next time at the very least. Although, I'll probably have Wojtek with me then too, so...

Shrugging off the impulse, I warned them all to practice and be ready to try again next time.

And with that, I decided to go to my office and make sure there wasn't any lingering paperwork I needed to complete or sign off on. There was, but it was minor and mostly reports from my handlers and those that had to watch the feed from the camera contacts. I just had to read over them and verify that all the information was correct. After that, I was hungry, so I went to Café Exquis to grab a bite and write this email. But don't worry, I'm about to return home and I'm bringing all your favorites with me so that EVERYONE can enjoy food from our favorite restaurant.

You're the one I need,
Draco
P.S. So... when I Portkeyed into the Manor before class, I heard Delphini shrieking at Sebastian that he had better brew her a quality Anti-nausea potion or she was going to kick his arse, and so, I have the dreadful feeling that her venture was a success...
Chapter 47

Chapter Summary

The case of the tiny yard trespasser continues.

Wednesday July 20, 2016

My Heart,

I just had the weirdest thing happen. You know our little trespasser? Well, he was … uh … er … in our backyard when I went out for my run this morning.

If it was just morning and he had been playing in the backyard I probably wouldn't have thought anything of it. But I went out extra early this morning. The sun was up, but barely. I know, that's early even for me. Here's the deal, there's just so much going on lately that I haven't been sleeping. I should just talk to you about it. I know how much it upsets you when I don't get enough sleep.

I know how much it upsets ME when I don't get enough sleep. That never bodes well for my mental health. Keeping myself awake is that ugly cycle where I use it as a coping mechanism for stress which then comes around and makes me more exhausted which causes more stress and I am perpetually freaking out and tired in an endless loop. I hate the idea of taking a bunch of dreamless sleep to get that rest, I know how I was those first few months after the war; practically an addict by the end. But I also know that if I am open and honest about when I take it, if someone responsible is monitoring it, I should probably take advantage of that and rest up enough that I am in my right mind.

Or I could ignore it, continue to get no sleep, but go on extra long runs instead? Yeah? No, I didn't think that would fly.

Maybe this little boy's parents are just those that practice a little free range parenting. Ya know? I might not be comfortable with my four year old roaming around all day, but they must know him best and maybe know that he's mature enough to be allowed to wander. But even with that, four is a bit much without tracking charms! And I'm sensitive enough to magic that I would have noticed the haze of magic that comes with long term monitoring charms. I'm sensitive enough that I can tell the kid is magical.

That's another thing, free range or not, when we bought this place and since then we've tried to keep an ear out for any other magic users close by, there weren't any magical families within a mile. It's important to know the magical make-up of your neighbors when you're living in a muggle neighborhood, and without a magical user within a mile that means some four year old child is being trusted to run amok through the city more than a mile away from where he lives? That's just irresponsible!

Weirder even, he was sleeping in our yard. If I had noticed that in the middle of the day? I probably would have thought, hey it's hot and sunny the kid must have tired himself out playing. No, early morning sound asleep in our yard. Monday when you got back from class and had brought us Café Exquis, we grabbed some blankets and decided to do a backyard picnic. It's been crazy hot, but a few cooling charms and we had a lovely little picnic. Well, when the kids cleaned up, they apparently missed a blanket. So this morning, ridiculously early, very young child in our yard, sound asleep, wrapped in one of our blankets….

Naked.

Yeah, teeny baby buttcheeks flashing at me as he ran as fast as he could out of the yard. I must have spooked him, I tried to be really quiet, but even my whisper must have seemed like shouting when you're super tired and not expecting it. All I said was, "Hey, good morning Buddy" and his (big, gorgeous, practically black) eyes popped open and he took off like a shot. I was so surprised that I didn't think to chase after him to find out what in the heck is going on, but even if I had, that little guy was FAST! He probably would have outrun me regardless.

So now I don't know what to do. He keeps coming back, he seems too young to be unattended, and now he's sleeping overnight in our backyard completely starkers? What should we do?

Frustratedly Yours,
Harry

Wednesday July 20th
The breath I breathe,

Class was pretty good today. I think my students are finally getting into good enough shape in general that they aren't struggling so much to do the moves. They still have trouble with the shoulder throw, but since they were able to perform a move in which they block an incoming attack and use the momentum to throw their opponent to the floor, I called that a win.

Also, while they're still bruising quite a bit each class, there hasn't been a broken bone or other injury since their midterm exam. Also a win. All in all, I'm quite pleased. I didn't even flinch when I looked down and saw that my wrap and shirt now read:

Almost pulled a muscle trying to give a shit.

After class, I was called into Robards office to meet with him, Roche, and Kingsley. They haven't been checking on me during my classes, so they haven't seen your lovely choices for my attire. (Aside from the day I was called into the meeting, but I daresay that what I was wearing was the last thing on anyone's mind.) Thus, they looked at my shirt (and wrap) with curiosity and confusion.

I chuckled. "Harry feels it's only right to give my students fair warning."

"Ah," Kingsley stated with a smirk.

"Basically, today's meeting is to let you know that you need to have your Mind Healer send us a report clearing you for raid duty - should any happen to come up," Robards explained.

"And also, to give you a chance to discuss any part of the mission you feel you need to discuss," Kingsley added, giving me a pat on the shoulder.

"Yeah, no, I'm good. I told my Mind Healer everything and we came to the conclusion that I'm in a surprisingly good place, all considering."

Wojtek started squirming just then, but I'd fed him during class and let him do his business, so I didn't think he needed either of those just yet. Thus, I pulled him out of his carrier and asked him what he wanted. He basically snuggled into me, letting me know that he wanted to see my face, I suppose.

"A bear??" Roche asked in surprise.

"I actually have two, and the other one is even smaller than this," I informed him with a smirk. He didn't need to know that my other 'Bear' is actually a tiny little three legged dog, hahaha.

After answering a few questions - both related to the mission AND about Wojtek - I was dismissed, which means that I was able to come home to you. It was then that I came up with a BRILLIANT idea.

You said that you think this small boy might be feral - so to speak. And considering that he showed up naked in our yard the morning after a full moon, I'm sort of wondering... no. I have to be wrong. That shouldn't be possible.

Anyway, I wanted to help you help him, so I suggested that we take a nice big plate full of biscuits and other food out into the backyard, with all of our kids occupied with other things. After dinner so it didn't seem utterly strange to have food at that moment.

Then, to give this boy a good idea that we weren't bad men, I pulled you into my arms and sang what amounts to about 2 hours of lullabies. Sure enough, food started mysteriously disappearing off the plate, and after a while, the rustling in the bushes stopped altogether, but it didn't seem like the rustling moved away, but rather simply stopped - as if he maybe took a nap. Possibly unable to help himself due to the effects of a sleep aid slipped into the biscuits.

I left you to deal with him and silently slipped back into the house to find our older 4 sitting in the kitchen eating Ben and Jerry's and talking about Eri's predicament.

"I just... I don't want to do it all on my own! Maybe dad's right and I should just get rid of it!"

"Dad didn't say that," Orion pointed out.

"He as good as!" Eris insisted.

Hazel reached over and pulled her close, stroking her hair. "You are NOT alone! But if it'll make you feel better, I could always take a fertility potion and go find a bloke on the beach."

"NO!!!" I blurted out in alarm. "Sorry, not trying to judge, just that Hazel, my love, you must realize how terrible that idea really is. You are STILL recovering from your surgery. Even with healing spells to help things along much more quickly, you're still going to be low on magic for the next year or so. Please try to keep in mind what your dad went through with Persephone when he accidentally got himself too low on magic. You DO NOT want to go through that. And even I had a bit of a rough patch when I was pregnant with Eris, having to basically give up using my magic altogether and stay in bed as much as possible."

She sighed morosely. "I know..."

I sat down next to her and noticed that she was eating some Chubby Hubby. "Ooo!" I exclaimed in delight before helping myself to a few bites. I also kissed her on the cheek. "Besides, this is CLEARLY the wrong reason. Drunken mistakes aside, you all know how to think for yourselves and make RIGHT decisions."

She shrugged and looked away.
I nudged her with my shoulder. "I'm trying my best to be accepting and not freak out here, throw me a bone and at least think through all the down sides before you jump into anything so huge, yeah?"

"Yeah," she agreed with a sigh.

"Well don't look at me," Viona stated haughtily. "I have a very well thought out five year plan. I'm going to be married and give myself at least an entire year to settle into my post graduation life - not to mention adjust to taking on a more active role in my businesses - BEFORE I consider having a baby!"

Orion rolled his eyes. "Getting back to more helpful matters, Eri, I'm a Ravenclaw. I'm more than willing to help you study and make sure your grades don't slip when you're too nauseous to read a lesson in a book."

"Thanks Ori," Eris said with a smile, squeezing his hand.

"Did you take the cure yet?" I wondered, having given it to her ages ago.

"Yeah," she acknowledged with a nod.

"Good," I stated, leaning over and kissing her on the cheek. I then cast the detection spell to make sure it had worked, which it had. "That's that then."

After that, we basically changed the subject and just had a good time eating ice cream and chatting. Meanwhile you took your time doing whatever you were doing, so now I'm sitting in our bed eagerly awaiting an update from you - you know, in person, by joining me in bed and letting me know what happened.

Love you!

There's a place I know if you're looking for a show, where they go hardcore and there's glitter on the floor, and they turn me on when they take it off, when they take it off, everybody take it off, Draco
Chapter 48

Chapter Summary

Harry is with the tiny yard trespasser and Draco is with their various pets.

Chapter Notes

Ugh, I'm sick and want nothing more than to sleep until I am NOT sick, but apparently, every couple of hours, my body refuses to breathe. So, since I am very reluctantly awake, post again it is. My curse is your blessing! :-)

Wednesday July 20, 2016

My Co-Captain on the S.S. Lunatic,

I am sure you will get this alert soon, since you're not really doing much but spending time with the kids. I was able to summon my laptop, so if you saw it hurtling through the hallways towards Alric's room that's why.

Yep, I am in Alric's room. So we may actually need to have him bunk with one of the boys for tonight. I brought this little guy into our house, thinking I could get him cleaned up, make sure he didn't have any injuries, and possibly get some information on where he should be and what's going on in his little world.

He did wake up a bit and actually answered some questions for me, but he fell back asleep pretty quickly. Either he is as sleep deprived as I am, or your full moon suspicions are dead on. There were a few other flags that make me think you were right, but I am not certain how we can tell for sure short of waiting until next month and seeing if he changes. Is there a spell? That seems invasive for people who don't want to announce their lycanthropy to the world, but our society has made worse spells for less important reasons so I would assume there's some way to tell.

So while you were chatting it up with the kids (and don't think I'm just ignoring the "why don't I get pregnant in solidarity" nonsense from Haz. We WILL be discussing that further) I pulled the sleepy little guy into my arms and brought him to one of the guest loos to clean him up. First of all, he is so light, Persephone light. Secondly, he was utterly filthy, I ended up just throwing some cleaning charms at him because I didn't want to freak him out by having some strange man putting him in the bath.

He woke up after I cast the cleaning charm at him, I must have cast it a bit too strongly but he was really filthy. You'd think waking up in a loo with a strange man after falling asleep in a bush would have made him freak out right? Nope. He gave me a bashful smile and then seemed to try and tuck his face in my arm. Very cute, very sweet, kinda weird. He also was mumbling into my arm but I couldn't really understand him. I leaned in close and tried to gently pry his face out of my elbow and apparently that gave him the opening to climb me like a tree and stick his face in my neck.
Eventually I could start to make out what he was saying, not being a Spanish speaker I can only guess, but it sounded like he was saying "Hola manada" I didn't have my translation device within reach and by the time I summoned it he wasn't saying that anymore.

I tried the teeny amount of Spanish I knew, "Lo siento Mijo, hablo un pocito de espanol. Hablo ingles."

Again those big insanely beautifully dark eyes lit up with recognition, followed by a soft "hi" snuffled into my neck.

Alright, at least a little bilingual then. "Can you tell me what your name is mijo?"

Again, only so intelligible when speaking with four year olds and then muffle the sound into my neck and I don't know if I caught everything but, "I Atreyu."

That couldn't be right can it? Is this little guy's name really from The Neverending Story? That is so cool! "Where do you live Atreyu? It's Atreyu yeah, am I saying that right?"

He looked at me very confused, "Atreyu live here."

Uh, oooooookaaaaay. "So you live near here, where are your parents, your mama or daddy?"

Now he was looking even more confused. Not so much mad as he was looking at me like I was a little bit dumb. (I've seen the look on your face often enough, I know what it looks like!) "Atreyu live here. Daddy go away, Mama go to sleep." Then the big fat tears started rolling down his face.

So instead of continuing to interrogate him, I shushed and rocked him. Then I sang him some lullabies until he calmed down. And either he was that tired, or he hadn't quite gotten the sleep aid out of his system because as soon as he calmed, he also passed out in my arms. I moved us to Alric's room because as much as I feel for the little guy, I was not about to be stuck under a sleeping baby in the loo.

I already called the Unity House here and we can bring him in. It sounds like he either needs to be there or at the very least they might be able to find his parents. But for tonight we all thought it would be best to let him sleep here in Alric's room. He seems to feel safe here since he kept coming back. We can all head out to Unity in the morning, I know the kids have been wanting to stop in at some point while we were out here anyway.

Sorry I'm not giving you the update in person like you asked, but I have a sleepy snuggly baby on me so you know I'm really not all that sorry. If you want you can head in here and we can talk about it more. He seems to be pretty well out for the count.

Cause I'm in too deep and I'm trying to keep up above in my head instead of going under, Harry

Thursday July 21st
My heart,

Since you were occupied with our guest, I had no problems inviting Amala to lay on the bed and lick Wojtek while I fed and played with him. This naturally made Bear (the dog) come over and try to lick Wojtek's face too. To my surprise, Venus came close enough to sit on the foot of the bed and watch us curiously. I stayed up a bit late, but when midnight was approaching, I figured that you weren't coming to bed - especially since I had read your email and knew you were under a
So, I cuddled up with my bear, my cat, my dog, and YOUR cat (shockingly enough) and went to sleep.

By the time I woke up today, you were already gone, and since I had nothing better to do, I decided to go for a run, silently flirt with those who eyed me up on the nearby running paths, and then come back and have lunch with Shtara, who had snuck in our room shortly after you must have left, taken Wojtek, and was taking excellent care of him while I slept. Zaire had grabbed Bear - as they are still the best of friends and Bear sleeps in his room more often than not, so that left only Amala in bed with me (Venus having left on her own at some point, I'm sure) when I woke up. In fact, I woke up to her licking my face and rubbing her scent all over me.

One of these days, I'm really going to have to get the point across that I am NOT her mate! Or wait... Do you think I should find her an actual mate? Like... so she can have babies? Then I would have grandbaby cheetahs!

But as I was saying, I had lunch with Shtara, and since the older teens had all gone to the beach, and the younger kids must have gone to visit Unity California with you, I convinced Shtara that we needed a daddy daughter spa day. Surprisingly, it took a bit of talking her into it because she didn't want to let go of Wojtek, so I told her that we'd naturally be bringing him with. I didn't mind at all paying a massage therapist to rub and play with him as we were getting our own massages, mani/pedi's, facials, and our hair done.

I opted for a rather fiery look with orange and red highlights at the tips, to match the flame decals on all of my nails. Shtara went for a similar look, but in dark blue and purple. Honestly, had we not had Wojtek with us - who got a bit fussy after being fed, let out to do his business, and thoroughly massaged (the therapist was utterly in love with him by the time we left) - I probably would have opted for a soak in the mud followed by a quick shower, a few minutes in the sauna, and then a body wrap. But as I said, Wojtek got a bit fussy, and I think what he really wanted was for me to put him back in his carrier so that he could take a nap.

So we popped back home and found that you were still gone, which made up our minds to go out for dinner. Thankfully, our older teens came back from a day of surfing and laying out in the sun - because they were getting hungry - in time to go out with us. So, we went out to Providence, my favorite local seafood place.

When we got home, I noticed I'd gotten an Insta-owl at some point. Basically, Harrison is feeling a bit left out because with Delphini, Tommy, and Bellerophon all of age (according to the wizarding world), they've been going out to clubs and the like. Del claims that it's research for their expansion in a couple of years, but the fact is that Harrison legally cannot go, so he feels like he's all alone. Thus he wanted to know if he could come stay with us while his dad is back in the other world for a few days.

I knew you wouldn't object, so I Portkeyed back to the Manor to grab him and bring him back here. Hazel may pretend like she loathes him, but she practically burst out crying when she saw him, threw her arms around him, and hugged him so tightly that I really thought he was going to break a rib. He suffered it for as long as she wanted, but the moment she finally pulled back, he pretended to push her away and grumbled about her being clingy and insufferable.

He, Hazel, Eri, Ori, Viona, Alric, and Shtara are currently playing cards in the entertainment room. But as for me, I'm a bit bored, and so, I'm taking Amala and Wojtek for a nice long walk. Amala is willing to suffer a collar and leash when it means that she can explore territory she hasn't been in in a while. And Wojtek is mostly being carried by me, but when I let him down for a bit, he seems interested in smelling things.

Insta-Owl me if you get back before I do.

These five words I swear to you,
Draco
Chapter 49

Chapter Summary

Harry's in a quandary and Draco thinks he's silly.

Chapter Notes

Last one for today... I think...

Thursday July 21, 2016

My Love,

We er, kind of have a problem. You will not be getting an insta-owl informing you that I have gotten back home before you got back from your walk, because I still haven't left Unity. In fact, I think I need you to come here. As soon as you possibly can preferably. But finish reading this first.

I already had a Unity staff member, Nohelani, bring the kids that were with me back home, so I suppose if you're already home when she pops in, she will just tell you to meet me here, otherwise that's what this email will be for. I would really like for you to read this thoroughly before you come, so don't just skim the first sentence and come running over. I need you to actually take at least five or ten minutes to yourself before you come so you can process everything I'm about to say. Alright?

So I woke up bright and early this morning, still being used as a giant body pillow, with a little puddle of drool on my shirt. As soon as I shifted, little Atreyu opened his eyes. It seemed like he had probably already woken up and was just waiting for me to wake as well. Honestly, I don't know what happened to our shy little trespasser who had to be bribed with biscuits to come within a few feet of us, but he is GONE. I asked him if he wanted breakfast, his little thumb firmly in his mouth gave me a big nod. I went to shift him off of me and stand up and the little monkey climbed up, wrapped his legs around my waist, put his arm around my neck, and had me carry him to the kitchen.

I cooked breakfast one handed because he was NOT letting me put him down. Once it was all cooked he did at least let me sit him in his own chair. The middles and the littles were up to join us for breakfast and he babbled away the entire meal. Answering questions, telling them about himself, all in an adorable mixture of English and Spanish. He tried to keep himself firmly in English, but he would slip in and out depending on how quickly he was speaking or if he had the English word for something.

After that we all got ready to head to Unity. He had no qualms about climbing into the bath with Caelum and wearing some of Cael's clothes as well. They were a bit big on him, but certainly doable. Once we were all ready, we decided to drive over to Unity, I have no idea if the kid had ever apparated, I didn't want to freak him out.

Well, once we got to Unity, the shyness came back … kind of. His shyness with everyone who wasn't our family was there. He would be on the swings with Lissa, regaling her of some story about living in the woods, but if a Unity Kid came by he would clam up and that thumb was right back in his mouth. He did well at lunch time, sandwiched in between Cael and Seph. He even followed Siri and Zwei when they went to play some baseball with the Kids. He didn't join in, but sat with Zaire who seemed much more interested in this little boy than in joining his brothers to play.

At one point he was trying to get Jaz's attention, and getting a little sad at being ignored, until she turned and noticed him. With her very limited speech and his lack of knowledge in sign you'd think they wouldn't have been able to communicate. But she sat patiently with him for probably an hour, saying her limited words and then signing it to him. Trying to teach him the few words she could to talk with him.

While our kids were keeping him happy and occupied, I filled out all the necessary paperwork to place him at Unity. They did a quick search and came up with his name in the muggle system. Four years old, father moved to Mexico two years ago, mother deceased six months ago, no known family members. Somehow he slipped through their foster system two days into their care and wasn't found. Not that it sounds like he was searched for very hard. Fucking broken system.

Mum's name was also in the MAC database as a witch and a registered werewolf. So, looks like Unity will be his new home!

Yeah, about that.

I tried coming home about two hours ago. It had been a long evening yesterday, a long night being slept on (I'm out of practice it's been a while since we slept with the kids!) and a long day at Unity. I did some rounds, our kids packed up anything they needed to bring home, and I went to say bye to our little trespasser. I knew he'd crept his way into my heart so I was well aware I would be coming back to visit him a few times before we go back home next month.

I knelt down next to him, he gave me that shy grin he'd been giving me since he woke up in our loo last night. "Well, we're going to head home buddy," he nodded his agreement; cool this was going to be easy. "I'm sure we'll be back in a couple of days to visit. You have a good time and make some friends. This is going to be a really nice home for you!"

He got that confused look on his face again. "This not Atreyu's home, I live there."

Oh this was maybe not going to be so easy. "Er, we can't let you live alone in the woods, Bud. You need a nice safe house where there are Kids to play with and clean clothes and good food."

Again the confused, or maybe we had moved onto the "Harry you're an idiot" look on his face, "No woods, no outside, I live there, play with my kids, comiendo your food."

Oh fuck. It's like I was hit by a train of "Duh Harry" everything dawning on me at once. He had kept telling me he lived "here" and I thought he meant nearby, he meant our home. He somehow found us and felt like he belonged so he stayed outside to be close to us. Wrapped himself in our blankets. Snuggled into the kids' playhouse. Wrapping himself in our scent, close enough to hear our voices. Until I invited him into the house. All of a sudden opening up and talking our ear off. Constantly touching us, rubbing his face into my neck, the little wolf was scenting us. Yeah, I ended up looking up the translation for what he called me last night when he woke up … manada? Means pack.
"Oh sweetheart, we don't really live here, we're just visiting. We live far away where it gets much colder. You will be so happy here I promise." I tried to soothe him.

It did not work.

He climbed up my chest, wrapped himself around me, shoved his face into my neck, and sobbed his little heart out. All I could understand were a few words here and there; mio, manada, and please being the ones I heard most. I eventually was able to pull back enough to look him in the eyes. And just as I was about to tell him again that he had to stay here and that everything would be alright, he hit me with "but you smell like mine."

Long story short, I did not set him down and leave. I had Nohelani take our kids home. I pulled him into my lap and hummed him lullabies until he fell asleep in my arms (really quickly I might add). Sooooooo … can you come here and help me uh … figure out what to do?

When love takes you home and says you belong here, the loneliness ends and a new life begins,

Your Harry

Thursday July 21
"Silly puppy,"

"No soy perro!"

"I wasn't talking to you," I informed him as I walked up and rubbed your head. Atreyu growled at me, sniffing me and making it clear that he didn't like how I smelled. I ignored him. "You are my most beloved and silly puppy. How is this a problem? He clearly refuses to let you go, so, get cleared to bring him home with us. It's not like this hasn't happened before."

You sighed heavily. I'm not certain what you were thinking, but you were probably thinking that you hadn't anticipated ever having 'just one more' again. Without a word, you nodded and headed off to talk to Nohelani. I waited for you, and then we took our new little man home.

At which point you disappeared with him, presumably to Alric's room. Meanwhile, I went to reassure Amala. She'd been restless for a while and now I'm certain I know why. She probably smelled Atreyu, but we almost never let her out on her own because we can't risk her running off and scaring the neighbors. Thus, she almost certainly didn't have a chance to get close to him because he would have been hiding in the playhouse or perhaps up a tree whenever she was outside.

Still, as long as I can reassure her that she is still my pretty kitty, and also introduce her calmly to Atreyu at some point and make it clear there will be no attacking, I am confident that they will eventually get along.

You know, Harry, if Atreyu refuses to let you leave the room, he could always sleep in bed with us. Probably less traumatic all around than US attempting to sleep apart until he is comfortable sleeping on his own.

Love you to the moon and back,

Draco
Friday July 22, 2016

My Best of Everything,

Good morning my love, you are of course sleeping in so I thought this would be a great time to catch up on my feelings from yesterday. Our children are all playing and bonding in the yard right now, so I suppose this is as good of a time as any.

I really wasn't sure how to take your reaction yesterday. See, you obviously weren't mad. You didn't seem like you wanted to say no. If anything, it seemed more like you were confused by my reluctance since we both knew Atreyu was coming home with us. I could not make this decision without you! Of course I needed you to come and help me figure out what we were going to do. But you also seemed like you weren't really engaging with him either.

I wanted this precious boy. I'd wanted him before I even got a good look at his face, once I realized he wasn't just a neighborhood kid but a little boy all alone. You know how it is, sometimes it just feels right. I didn't question him at all when he said we smelled like his, because he felt like mine. But you seemed more like this was my pet project. Like how I act when you take on a new pet, I will care for them and I'm glad you're spreading out your care and love, but I certainly wouldn't have adopted Amala or Wojtek for myself. And I don't want US to take on parenting for a child where I'm the only one who feels like his parent. We have always been a team. Even when one of our children comes to us because they are biologically connected to only one of us, or when we meet a child where one of us falls hard and fast but the other didn't feel it immediately, we've always done this TOGETHER.

So when you came yesterday, assumed he was coming home with us, but didn't really do much interacting with him I was really nervous. I mostly took Atreyu into Alric's room because he was already familiar with the space and I wanted to bring him in slowly, but a part of me had to think about what was happening. How were we going to do this? I can't be a dad without you.

I spiraled for a bit. I know, you're absolutely shocked! Shut it you. I kept running over worst case scenarios in my mind. How would I explain to this little boy that he only has the one daddy while the rest of his siblings have two? How were our other kids going to react to this new child I brought in that seemed to only cling to me? I was hysterical and letting the exhaustion from the past weeks, the worry I felt for this little boy, and my own inability to stay calm bring me to a very dark place.
I pulled myself out of it, and Atreyu helped because he was running his hands through my hair and giving me sweet little headbutts every time my heart rate would pick up. I could really get used to this whole werebaby being able to smell or feel emotions somehow. It reminds me so much of having Mac around all the time when he was little. This little empath who seemed to know exactly what everyone needed. I think Atreyu is going to find out very quickly that his Daddy Harry likes cuddles.

I did actually spiral a little bit again once I was calm. I realized that I have never met a child that you didn't eventually fall in love with. If anything, sometimes you holding them at arm's length is really an effort to not get too attached too quickly. And when I thought about that, I realized he had growled at you and seemed to be drawn to me specifically so you were probably doing everything in your power to keep away from him until he could feel safe and assured of you. So I, of course, began to feel badly that I had even a moment of doubt that you were here with me and ready to parent this sweet child.

And once I really thought about him growling at you, and seemed to catch on at the same time you did that he and Amala do not like the way the other smells, duh we just need to get the kitty smell off of you until we're able to properly introduce them.

I read your email and saw your badly concealed plea for me to come to bed with our newest son. How could I be so stupid? Why wasn't I dragging him into our bed for a cuddle puddle where I could officially introduce you to our son and the two of you can begin the bonding I was able to start days ago?

I shot you a quick insta-owl basically asking you to make sure Amala wasn't in our room and requesting you take a shower to get at least the top layer of cheetah scent off your skin.

When he and I made our way into our room a little while later, the room was cheetah-free, Muffy seemed to have put fresh sheets on the bed, and you were freshly scrubbed all pink in bed waiting for us. I was prepared to have to do an awkward introduction where you hid behind your mask while waiting desperately for your newest little boy to warm up to you. As I walked us towards the bed, I told him, "Atreyu, just like I'm your Daddy now, this is your other Daddy."

Again with the confused/exasperated look, he took a deep breath of the room, launched himself out of my arms, climbed himself into your arms, telling us in no uncertain terms, "No. You Daddy, this is my Papa."

I could see the tension you'd been holding in your neck and shoulders just drain out of you. You didn't miss a beat, smoothly asking, "And does this little one want his Papa to read him a story, hmm?"

He just settled himself deeper into your lap, shoved that thumb in his mouth, and nodded. You looked expectantly at me with that damn raised eyebrow I can't resist. I see how this is going to be. I have to hop-to and follow the bidding of my princes.

So I grabbed our well worn copy of "We Belong Together" and snuggled up to listen to the beautiful voice of my husband reading words of love to our newest child.

And when I awoke this morning, the three of us were tangled up together. I left your two beautiful faces flushed and sleepy in bed while I went to make a big family breakfast. The breakfast-bake is about to come out of the oven so I should sign off.

I love you my Dragon,
Harry
Friday July 22nd
Oh Harry!

I LOVE the way Atreyu calls me puh-PA. Like you or I might pronounce it paw-paw in our British accent, but Atreyu says it in his Hispanic accent. It's ADORABLE!

I would love to say that I have a ton to talk about, but I've basically been doing almost nothing today. I've been sitting and chatting with Atreyu when he comes in for a minute to grab a drink, another biscuit, some fruit, and then rushes back outside to play with our kids. He seems to be fully bonded with our trouble trio already.

Aside from that, I've been taking care of Wojtek - in between allowing Shtara to monopolize him - and chatting with any of our kids that are in the same room as me. Meanwhile, you've been out in the garden, fixing the bit of wildness that has managed to invade while we've been not living here. So, not much to write.

Maybe I'll head on over to River's for a bit to fill him in on all the drama of the past few days.

Love you like a love song,
Draco
Chapter 51

Chapter Summary

Draco surprises Harry.

Chapter Notes

Well it seems my body has decided that breathing is no longer necessary and sleep is overrated, so, y'all get another chapter :-)

Saturday July 23, 2016

My Husband who spoils me so,

Yeah, you're just going to head on over to River's for a bit to fill him in on all the drama of the past days. That's all you did yesterday right? No, you being wonderful decided you'd go over to River and Maha's house - and you didn't lie, you did fill them in on our recent drama - but you mostly used the time to call and message our family back home. Figuring out the logistics of getting the Grandmas and Grandpas as well as Elena over here as soon as possible to meet our newest family member.

He's so new that I think you knew attempting an entire circle dinner on day two might be a bit much. But Atreyu needed to meet his Grandparents and all of his siblings as soon as we could get them all together.

You sneaky man. You were able to plan everything you needed to yesterday, and get everyone here to have a big backyard barbecue today. You had Pippa go out and stock up on everything we would need to feed our ever expanding family this morning. River and Maha "just happened" to stop by around noon. And then, what do you know? Elena randomly decided to pop on over to visit even though she was just here a few weeks ago to help out while Haz had her surgery. And then, hey howdy hey, what are Molly and Arthur doing here? Oh, shocking, there are Narcissa and Lucius.

I knew we had to tell our family immediately that a new Malfoy had joined the fray, but I just assumed they would all get to meet him when we got back. And he will meet the extended group when we get back. All the aunts and uncles and cousins and friends that are family. We don't even need to plan anything extra since Viona and Alric are having their engagement party the weekend after we get home.

Trey just continues to astound me. For all the work we put into getting him to trust us enough to even show his face, once we got him in, he has no shyness when it comes to our family. He was shy around all the Unity staff, and the Unity Kids, but you would think the little triplets were a set of little quadruplets with how well he's insinuated himself into that group. He met his brother River for the first time and he just climbed himself in River's lap and started stealing chips off River's plate and running off with his mouth full.
He was such a bouncy ball of energy distraction that I hadn't really noticed Shtara with that bear of yours. But uh, she's going to end up stealing him from you and raising him to be her sidekick in all of her performances. 'Wojtek the performing bear' they'll call him! I wouldn't be surprised if she started dying the tips of his fur to match her.

I know today's party was to introduce Atreyu to these special people, but some of the other interactions seemed to really steal the spotlight for me. I saw Hazel drag her Grampy Lulu off for some privacy, he asked her all about how she's been feeling since her surgery. And I heard her say "Your letters kept me going when I was scared, but you being here is so much better!" I've been so distracted I didn't even realize that he'd been sending her actual letters roughly three times per week since we got here.

Shtara found Lainie and pumped her for information on all of her friends at school she's been missing since summer hols started. She usually does less classes during the summer, but rarely takes the entire season off, so I think she's feeling really out of touch with her friends. It's kind of a nice perk having your big sister also be your headmistress. And also someone young and in touch enough that the young girls are likely to be open and honest with her the way they probably wouldn't be with an older headmistress.

Lissa dragged your mum through every bit of gardens 'she' cleared out yesterday. I wouldn't argue with her and make her feel like she didn't accomplish anything, but yeah, she kept running off with the rest of the 'quadruplets' and pretty much did nothing but cover herself in mud. I still consider a kid who spent her entire day running around in the sunshine and getting as filthy as possible as a win, but not particularly productive when it comes to gardening.

Atreyu did seem to really connect with his Grandpa Arthur. Probably because Arthur is just so quiet himself and our little man doesn't seem to stop talking unless he's sleepy and plugs his mouth with that little thumb. Side note: Is it terrible that I have no intention of trying to cure him of that habit? It's too cute and we can always straighten his teeth if it causes any problems? Arthur pretty much sat still, gave little "Mmmhmm"s and "oh is that so?" where it seemed welcomed and just let him talk.

And Molly, of course, spent most of her time commandeering the barbecue. I love her so much, but you were invited to a party, not to be our personal chef! Oh well, it's not like she sequesters herself and doesn't interact, she just gets stuff done while also giving everyone a little love.

It sounds like everyone is heading home tomorrow, so I am sure I will make another big breakfast before they all head home. But for now everyone is either asleep, or at the very least having some quiet time in their rooms. You were giving the littles their baths so I stole some time to myself to write to you. But I'd better finish up so I can join you for story time. Because our newest little guy was right earlier when he said, "Papa is the best at stories."

All of my love,
Harry

---

Monday July 25th
My zing,

I've been thinking a lot about Atreyu, and how he managed to SURVIVE living alone in the woods for 6 months, and I've come to the conclusion that his mother must have been one of those that lived in an actual werewolf community. As in, they formed a pack and dedicated themselves to surviving in the wilderness as much as possible - likely as a way to manage the blatant discrimination from the wizarding community and the inherent fear from the muggle community. Obviously, the muggles don't know about them, but they can sense something isn't quite right and their hairs stand up - and things like that.

Thus, if his mother was part of a pack, it completely explains how Atreyu was able to take care of himself for so long until he found us. Also, and this is pure speculation, but what if it ISN'T that his father left so much as his mother left the pack when or right before they moved on? That might explain why his pack didn't keep him when his mother died.

In which case, erm… well, not that I want to do it at this point, he's OURS dammit! But maybe we should attempt to track down his father and see if he knew that Atreyu's mother is dead and Atreyu had been wandering alone after running from the muggle foster home? Because let's face it, with as fast as our little wolf is, and with his apparent knowledge of wilderness survival, he totally ran away before anyone could try to catch him.

I'm really torn about this because I don't want to poke the beehive - or pack den, as the case may be. But what if we DON'T and this mystery man shows up on our doorstep 5 or 10 years from now? Not just shows up, but shows up in a righteous fury because none of the authorities ever did their damn job of notifying him before letting us adopt his son.

I could perhaps call in a favor from Kisa, but if I do, that risks his pack coming after us for his mysterious disappearance. Sigh...

Fuck! We're going to have to do the right thing here, aren't we?

But moving onto happier things.

Today is my 13th week of class, and I only have this week and three more weeks to go - as it was a 16 week class. Then I have two-ish weeks off from teaching before my next session starts up. As I understand it, some of my students will be the same - as simply passing my class is required to become an Auror - or maintain Auror status if it's been a while since they passed the class. BUT passing my class (previously a slightly more intense 'second level' that I've just rolled into this one class, hahaha, in essence, bullying my students from barely knowing how to exercise to intermediate combatants in relatively little time) with honors - so to speak - is required to participate in raids.

And actually, here's the fun thing. I get to decide when they've reached a high enough level to go on raids, so that 'with honors' bit is flexible, to say the least. When I threatened to make fatty work as an Auror for three years before giving him clearance to go on raids, I might have actually been telling the truth, and he MIGHT be required to be part of my class the entire time.

That said, I was serious when I said that I'm not expecting professional athletes, so personal feelings aside, I'll probably give fatty his with honors status if he can ever manage to throw a fellow student over his shoulder.

So, when I arrived at class - without Wojtek, sadly, because Shtara insisted that the world was going to end if she didn't cuddle with him while I was gone - I walked onto the track and signaled for my students to come over and follow me to the classroom. As they gathered close, they stared at my shirt and paled a bit. Almost afraid to look, I took a deep breath and looked down.

But did you DIE?

This one actually made me laugh rather evilly, which did NOT reassure my students in the slightest.
Once in the classroom, I was still grinning a bit like a maniac, and addressed my students. "I had a bit of a chat with Robards in which I mentioned that I'd once threatened you all with running to exhaustion, and then forcing you to take energy potions so that you could see how TERRIBLE that is when out in the field, and well, he REALLY liked that idea. So... rather than have you run, I'm going to have a bit of fun with this. You're going to duel. As in actual wizard duel with wands."

I started pacing back and forth in front of them. "Yes, I know, you have an entire class dedicated to that, so you should ALL know what the rules are. Yeah? Well, throw them right out the window! You're going to be paired up and trying your best to murder your partner - without actually murdering them. To be clear, deadly spells will NOT be allowed and even joking about using them will earn you a nasty punishment FROM ME. But otherwise, I want you all to fight like you're dueling the Dark Lord - no wait, bad example, that duel was boring as fuck. Fight like you're dueling my insane Aunt Bellatrix AND Fenrir Greyback - in his fully transformed wolf form."

Still pacing back and forth, I continued to grin evilly at them. "Try to keep in mind that Fenrir liked to bite KIDS to torture their parents, that he liked to sexually abuse some of his victims, and that he was so ruthless while fighting that my husband Harry had to hit him with a stunning spell with THREE WANDS just to knock him out. Well, blast him across the room, really, but still. This is a fight for your lives, and there's NO stopping just because you get tired and feel like you're running low on magic. Fight and keep on fighting until you think you are going to vomit and/or pass out. Even better if you actually do!"

I paused to take a nice long drink of the milk I'd brought with me, but since it was in a never-ending cup that said: Shh! Don't speak until the coffee kicks in (I'd borrowed the cup from you), I just let them all believe that I was drinking the vile brew so that I'd have plenty of energy to last until class was over. Speaking of:

"Class isn't going to end until I'm satisfied you've all learned your lesson. So once you are all magically and physically exhausted, I'm going to give you all energy potions, and you're going to see how well you can do sparring, unarmed, in that state. I'm going to keep track of all the mistakes and bad decisions you make, and once it becomes obvious that you're all thinking about as well as a drunken toddler, I'll hand out a dreamless sleep potion and let you all go home and go to bed. IF you stubbornly believe that you're making good decisions, we'll just keep at it all night, and then you can brag to everyone you see tomorrow that you had your gorgeous combat instructor riding your arse all night."

This provoked groans from most of them, but I'd say about five grinned at the innuendo, clearly not minding the visual image of exactly that. Interesting.

So that was the start of a rather entertaining class. There were several students that had to have spell damage reversed - which I had a Mediwitch join us for exactly that reason. I'm now dead certain that this class will be infamous as she looked horrified that I had PERMISSION to do this. After they all finally reached the exhausted enough to nearly pass out or vomit stage, I gave them their energy potions and had them spar. I didn't even have to tell them to be brutal about it as one of the side effects literally is misjudging how strong/angry/violent one is being.

My stubborn students had to beat each other to painful injuries - being rather surprisingly kick-arse about it - and were all lying on the ground groaning before finally admitting that the potion really HAD influenced them badly. At that point, the Mediwitch and I went around healing them all up, passed out the dreamless sleep potion, and told them to go get some quality rest.

It only took an hour longer than a regular class, but then I was too hungry to wait until I Portkeyed home, and besides, it would have been about 2PM - and so too late for lunch and too early for dinner - so I just popped over to Café Exquis for a platter of puffer fish. I wrote this email while eating, but now that I'm finished, I'm ready to come home. See you in a few minutes!

Now I'm touching the stars and up here on Mars, I can barely breathe, friends ask why I smile, it's 'cuz all the while, I've got you up my sleeve,

Draco
Chapter 52

Chapter Summary

Harry reassures Draco and Draco’s trying to remember that he's the cool dad.

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Monday July 25th

Hey hey hey, calm down. Did you really think the muggle child services, myself, and Unity House California just completely disregarded a living father?

He didn’t “move” Draco, he left them. He left right before Atreyu’s second birthday and hadn’t seen either of them ever again. The muggle system looking for him is actually probably why he was able to run away, they were searching for dad and he was in very temporary care.

They were able to find dad, and according to their reports his reply was “I’ll tell you the same thing I told her when she called to tell me she was sick, I don’t want it.”

So we’ve already done the right thing, I promise.

I’m glad you took a little time to have a quiet meal by yourself after class. You’ve been stretched so thin, I hope you enjoyed yummy food you didn’t have to share and sweet silence while you ate!

See you soon!

Love you,

Harry

Wednesday July 27

Oh thank fuck!

Well, now that I don't have to worry about a man coming to claim our son when he's older, I can just go ahead and keep snuggling with Atreyu while I type this to you. I really wish I could ask his mum why she picked his name, but the reason is probably obvious. She probably loved the Neverending Story, and honestly, who can blame her? Still, I'd love to know if maybe she thought he needed an awesome name to remind him no matter what happens in his life that he is an awesome person. Too bad he didn't come with one of those baby books some mothers keep for their kids.

So today in class was enlightening. I walked onto the track to find them all looking a bit hungover from Monday still, but they were running as expected. They gathered around and squinted at my shirt, which had a blocky picture of a wagon being pulled by an ox and under it, a long rectangle that said: You have died of Burpees.
I'm sure it was referencing something you understand but I don't, so I muttered: "Goddamnit Harry," before leading them to the classroom, where I proceeded to follow your suggestion and teach them all how to do a Burpee so that I would know they could do it if needed for a punishment. Then I made them practice until I was satisfied that they could do it in their sleep if needed.

Meanwhile, I paced back and forth, petting Wojtek and drinking my milk as I watched them in amusement. Finally, I told them that they'd done enough and had them pair up to practice breaking holds. They don't know this, but over the next few classes, I'm going to teach them the major pain centers so that on the last day, they will have to spar and try to hit all eight of them on their partner. Anyone who manages at least four will pass the class, while anyone who gets less than that will automatically be signed up for the next session.

I've also put some thought into the structure for my next session. This time around, I chose 5PM since that's about an hour after most Aurors get off of work, and so, able to fit in their schedule. But then I added an hour of running before class, meaning that they have to go straight from their shift to the running track, and then have two hours of class. Which means that most of them are probably hungry. Or what's that word the kids have been using? Hangry?

So, come next session, I'm going to require them to get something to eat before starting their running at 5, and then class will officially start at 6 - except they won't be starting with an hour run, and so, I feel that the Ministry expert who monitors the track might be useful in making them all learn basic punching, kicking and blocking if they don't already know it, so that when they arrive in class each day, they'll have a better foundation for learning, and will be a little bit better at coping with all the torture I plan to subject them too, buwahahahahahaha!

I mean training.

Anyway, about a half an hour before class, I had them all stop so that I could demonstrate the first two pain centers on them. I did this by first pointing out the general location on a practice dummy, but since the spot varies a bit based on body size and shape, I then punched them in those spots so that they would KNOW where they were and remember them forever.

Believe it or not, I started with the two least traumatizing spots. The Solar Plexus and under the armpits. Needless to say, my students all needed to lay on the floor and recover for a bit before they were able to promise to practice on their at home dummies.
So that was the end of my class and Wojtek was getting a bit fussy, so I invoked our American neighbors and wished them a good day as I left the room. Wojtek wanted to explore the Manor grounds a bit before coming home, so I brought him out to the North Fields and used the opportunity to take Mellissande out hunting while I was at it. Making sure that she KNEW that Wojtek was NOT on the menu!

After a few hours of that, I came home to find you and Hazel shouting at each other. It seems that Hazel is quite certain that her idea to 'get pregnant in solidarity' is the right one, and is rather devastated that you keep trying to talk her out of it. Hmm... we might need to call in her Mind Healer and her Surgeon so that they can both explain the extreme hell she will go through if she attempts such a thing. And honestly, I have a feeling that her body would just miscarry as I think it would intuitively know that she's not ready until her body is more fully healed and her magic is back up to normal levels.

I also think that she's assuming that she's far more healed than she is because with the healing spells and potions, she has far less swelling and pain than the typical M2F patient. She probably FEELS fully healed, or damn close to it, so she doesn't realize that these things take time - even with magic. And... did you notice that she apparently cast one of the temporary breast enhancement spells? Or did she ACTUALLY manage to grow a good two cup sizes overnight?

Sigh...

She's a teenager and I'm the cool dad. She's a teenager and I'm the cool dad. I cannot ground her to a dragon guarded tower. I cannot freak out over bad thought patterns, and can only insist that she talks to her therapist.

Wait... can I lock her in a room with her therapist until Eris gives birth and the issue is moot?

Well, now that you are out of the shower, I can assume that you resisted the urge to drown yourself and are ready to snuggle up to me. My arms are right here waiting for you.

It just takes a little bit of this, a little bit of that, it started with a kiss now we're up to bat,

Draco

Chapter End Notes

I actually could have been posting pics of all the shirts, but for the most part, they're only words and not much to see. THIS one, clearly needed a visual, lol ^_^
Chapter 53

Thursday July 28, 2016

My Love,

I think I have the Hazel situation under control. I hope. I'm pretty sure. But with teenagers I suppose nothing can be one hundred percent because their not quite done brains are stewing in a cocktail of hormones. But I really think after our recent conversation, that her solidarity plan is not going to happen.

I think the problem with my first approach was to basically tell her that her idea, that she came up with because she loves her sister so very much, was the dumbest. Oddly enough, it made her defensive. To be fair, I didn't actually come right out and call the idea dumb. Or call her dumb. But looking back on the original conversation, it was subtly implied. And then during our shouting match yesterday I absolutely DID refrain from saying she was being stupid, but I also called the plan "ill thought out and moronic." So that was probably less than helpful.

In my defense, I am an idiot.

After a full good night's sleep for me, and hopefully a good rest for our Haz as well, I was able to talk with her this morning. I was able to keep my frustration at bay, she had her teenaged rage contained, it was a productive conversation.

The way I was able to keep the frustration out of my voice, is because I was working very hard at regulating my tone so she wouldn't catch on that I was playing her and pretty much guilt tripping her into getting out of the mindset that her plan would be in any way helpful for her sister.

I went into their room, and asked Eris if she could give me a few minutes alone with Hazel. I made sure to give her a huge hug and kiss as she walked out of the room. After I was sure she'd not only left but that there were no eavesdropping devices I began, "Hazel, sweetheart, I am very sorry that we fought yesterday. I never should have shouted. I let my fear for you and for your sister turn me into someone I don't like very much. Will you please forgive me for shouting at you?"

She blew out the air she'd been holding with a huff and gave me the patented "you're ridiculous Dad" face that the kids all give me, "Of course I forgive you, I was shouting too. We both were not at our best last night. That doesn't change the fact that I'm right though!"

Deep breath Harry, you can do this. "I know you think you're right. But did you think of all the additional stress your getting pregnant for her would put onto Eris?"

She opened her mouth to argue and then shut it again without saying anything. Sitting there in silence for a full minute until, "I'd be right there with her sharing the stress, how would that add to her stress?"

She didn't start out shouting, yes!! She took the bait. So I pushed a bit. "Well think about it, you..."
are thinking you're so healed up that a pregnancy would be easy for you. But I have told you it would be bad for your health, your dad told you it'd be bad for your health, and you know even if you don't want to admit it that the surgeon as well as Healer Rowe would tell you it wouldn't be good for your health. So even if you are right and we're wrong, Eris will worry like crazy during her entire pregnancy and yours that she could possibly lose her best friend. And because she knows you're doing this for her, she'd also blame herself."

Hazel argued back, but it was definitely half-hearted, "Well she knows me and how stubborn I am, and that I'd never do anything I didn't want so how would she blame herself? That's nutters."

Oh Hazel, Hazel, Hazel, you're walking right into my trap. "No. She knows you'd never do anything you don't want to do … unless it's for Eris because she's always been your exception."

I kept going, I had to reel her in while she was still trying to process everything I was saying. "And, by putting yourself in the same situation, you take away one of the people who could truly help her. Like Orion has already told her he'd help her study, I am sure she's counting on you to help out with spell-work when she needs to watch how much magic she's using. Counting on you to do more with Hazeris while she can't do much because of exhaustion or morning sickness. And when the baby gets here? She's probably counting on you to keep an eye on baby when she needs to rest, probably help her with night feeds. But if you have your own baby you're dealing with she won't have you one hundred percent there for HER."

She stuttered a bit, "I .. I, I didn't think of that. I just want her to know she's not alone and I don't want her to feel badly for being the only pregnant teenager."

I laughed, "Well keep in mind she does have Elena for that. Lainie might not be a teenager, but she is a single woman with a completely unplanned pregnancy. Eri already has someone to mope with and whine about swollen ankles, she needs someone with her that will feel good and rub those ankles when she's sore. She doesn't need someone to have coordinating babies up screaming all night, but maybe someone who will tell her to get some rest because they'll take this shift. Don't you think she'd want that to be you?"

And with a very small voice, Haz answered, "yeah."

After that I changed the subject and I just talked to her about how she's been feeling, if she's been doing …. the things she's supposed to be doing. Also awkwardly avoiding the "so I see you gave yourself big boobs, how's that going for ya" conversation that none of us want to have!

Did you make plans with Siri and Zwei for Saturday? Or should I start looking up the biggest, baddest, coolest dirt track for them to spend the day showing off in?

My Heart beats for you,
Harry

Friday July 29th

Oh Harry,

Our middles are officially getting a year older! Sometimes I feel so old. I mean at least these two aren't 16 years old and expecting kids, so that's a plus. I'm so happy that they seem to still be firmly in the "girls have cooties" stage.

Also, they are SOOOO excited about your plans for their birthday. I'm rather looking forward to BMXing myself. I'll be a great way to work off all that cake and ice cream we're bound to eat, haha. But more importantly, I'm looking forward to the plans I've made for YOUR birthday.

That said, since we have absolutely NOTHING of any importance to do tonight, I'm going to bring you out into our backyard and dance with you until we get horny enough to scandalize the neighbors - or more likely our kids, hahaha. Hopefully they've learned that their dads dancing is an excellent time to do anything else.

But first, I'm going to go to the kitchen - where you are almost certainly baking something, and have Muffy make me a strawberry and peach kefir smoothie with some sauerkraut on the side. You got an absolutely GORGEOUS basket of peaches at the Farmer's market today, and they're so tender and juicy that I could practically inhale them whole, but in a smoothie is so much better. At the same time, the market also had freshly fermented garlic and dill sauerkraut, and it smells SOOO good that I think I might be tempted to eat the entire jar for a before bed snack, heh heh.

Yes... I have to sign off now and find you in the kitchen to invite you to dance with me...

From this moment, I have been blessed, I live only for your happiness, and for your love, I'd give my last breath,

Draco
My Dragon,

It's my birthday! Happy birthday to Harry! And what a wonderfully lovely day I have had with my family so far.

Although as much as I love my birthday, and I really love it I don't care how old I get I want cupcakes and attention, I always prefer the kids' birthdays to mine. Not because we do things that are necessarily more fun (I've gone to Unity Park multiple times for my own birthday and that's the coolest) but just because I love these special days creating memories with our children. I hope someday they are little old men and women telling their own grandchildren all about their birthday breakfast tradition. I hope these memories are cherished and remembered for their entire lives.

I just love being able to give our kids a childhood that includes ridiculous amounts of love and silly traditions ya know?

We officially have another teenager, our Siri turning the big One-Three. And Zwei right behind him hitting his twelfth birthday. I'm glad we did such a huge day with them yesterday, sometimes I worry our middles get a bit lost in the shuffle. You know as well as I do, that with the size of our family we have to actively make sure everyone is getting the attention they need. So I know they are happy with the family, I check in with them all the time to make sure they're not feeling neglected, and they usually just roll their eyes and promise me they aren't.

Between quidditch and biking these two would just love to speed through life with the wind in their hair. They had an absolute blast at Glen Helen Raceway. We had rented out an entire track for our group for the day. Nothing but sunshine, dirt, and the constant buzz of the bikes. The three that treat Dirt Biking like a religion, Siri, Zwei, and Zaire, were off like madmen, and even though she generally prefers performing Shtara was kicking arse as well.

But it was really fun to watch Cael, Seph, and Lissa enjoy themselves. They've finally gone from baby beginners to actual bikers. Although Seph is still furious that her size means she has to have one of the "baby bikes." But because of that, it meant she got to be the one to teach Atreyu all about biking. She milked THAT for all it was worth! Although he did not seem particularly interested in the biking. I think the noise was bothering him.
Not that I blame him. I love dirt biking, you know this, but after a long day of it I almost forget there's noise happening and then the bikes shut off to blissful silence and for a moment I always think I suddenly went deaf. Oh, yeah no, that's just the lack of buzzing you've been steadily hearing for ten hours now!

Luckily we had plenty of other things to keep everyone content with. There was space around the track for the kids that weren't biking to run around and play. There were picnic tables for snacking or coloring or playing games. And they don't allow regular bikes on the tracks, but there was definitely enough non-track space to ride them.

I loved how much fun everyone had, but you know that the breakfast in bed was my favorite part of the day. Zaire is still my birthday breakfast helper. Although I think I may have to make him stop watching those cooking shows. He is always very concerned about the plating and presentation (your brothers are twelve and thirteen, they do not care about plating) and I'm pretty sure I know where he picked up the word 'fuck' as well. Fucking Gordon Ramsey!

Jaz usually joins us for birthday breakfast prep, but not always. Sometimes she just wants to sleep in. Yesterday though, she wanted to help. And the four littles were running in and out of the kitchen; pretending to help a bit, while mostly being loud and stealing fruit.

Siri and Zwei did their usual grumbling and pretending to hate being woken up for breakfast, then looking at me expectantly until I begin singing, and then proceeding to inhale their food. Yeah, I'm on to you guys.

Somehow though, Zaire managed to get all four littles to help with my birthday breakfast. I don't need breakfast in bed, but I stopped trying to convince Z of that two years ago, so now I just stay in bed waiting for my breakfast like a good boy. Good thing I was already awake and expecting it otherwise I may have panicked being woken up by four little bodies launching themselves into our bed.

I'm really proud of you sweetheart, you didn't so much as make a face even though you were woken early and then covered in syrupy kisses. Some even got in your hair and you didn't so much as scowl.

So far today has just been lazy cuddles and playing outside with the kids. We just did my cake. And River and Maha came over to help watch over the small kids while you take me out for birthday fun! You're finishing getting ready, although I think I just heard the bathroom door open. Yay! Party time!

The Birthday Boy,
Harry

Sunday July 31
My beloved birthday boy,

Tonight was so very fun. It started with dinner. They don't have anything quite as good as Café Exquis here, but they DO have some excellent high class restaurants. We went to one run by a world famous chef - NOT Gordon Ramsey - and had a delicious meal.

You had a dish that was the chicken equivalent of pulled pork. As in chicken breasts had been simmered in a mouth watering broth until they were fall apart tender, and then they were placed over a bed of veggies. Additionally, you had a bowl of fresh fruit on the side.
Meanwhile, I had the tenderest and most flavorful sheep tongue. I asked for it to be served with sauerkraut - this variety had some kombu or other seaweed in it, and was superb. On the side, I had paté, caviar, and crayfish. Those cute little buggers look like mini lobsters and make me want to have our kids raise a bunch of them as a learning experience that we can eat, heh heh heh.

For our drinks, I had my never ending cup of milk with me, and ordered a nice bottle of Cuveé Diamant for us to share, and we each had tea. Although, I think you might have ordered an espresso while I was in the loo for a moment because you got a tiny cup of something that smelled good. I know you love that vile stuff, so I'm not sure why you - actually, you probably just forgot until I was away from the table and a server came to check on us.

Anyway, as I was saying, our meal was excellent, and then we went to a show. Elena is brilliant and had given ME tickets to go see an all male burlesque show for my birthday - that just so happened to be on YOUR birthday. Or in other words, she gave it to both of us, haha.

Bobby Burlesque was sexy and funny. I thoroughly enjoyed the act where he started out as a rather innocent looking hula dancer, and then, of course, got rather risqué while performing on a suspended hoop. But I inexplicably loved the one where he dressed up as a mummy and danced to Dead Man's Party in blue neon lights.

After the show, we were nice and relaxed and in a really good mood. So that's when I decided to ask you if you were still okay with the rest of my plans. See, ever since I mentioned that my session with Yesenia uncovered a need in me to have sex as a woman and actually enjoy it, you've been thinking it over. I basically dropped the matter since I figured that you just couldn't do it, but you surprised me by saying - practically out of the blue one day - that so long as we used that Damsel Curse and I was fully ME, you could do it - or at least give it a damn good go.

So that's what I asked; if you were still certain you could do it. You said yes, which gave me the green light to bring you to a luxurious hotel room. So alright, maybe this particular present is a bit selfish of me, but honestly, I've run out of ideas for new things to do with you to make your day special. Also, I know that you love nothing more than spending a day with me, so I figured that selfish or not - so long as nothing traumatizing happened, it would be a good present.

To that end, once in the hotel room - which was a sort of bridal suite, decorated with layers of rose petals, candles, and a romantic bath with champagne - we took a few moments to review the specifics of the curse. Then you cast the Damsel Curse on me and gave me a few minutes to strip off and look at myself in the mirror. I'm not certain, but judging by the smirk on your face, you found the sight of me drowning in my normally well fitting clothes adorable.

Once naked, I inspected every centimeter of my body in the mirror, and all in all, I'm impressed with what I saw. If I saw a woman that looked like I did at that moment, I would most certainly beg you to let me shag her dirty rotten. But it wasn't ME that had to be attracted to me. It was you.

A bit uncertainly, I looked over at you. You were staring at my face, which you came over to caress.

"It's a bit weird to see you so small and delicate looking," you murmured before kissing me. This brought to my attention that I was seriously shorter than you. Like I'm not sure I could have been much more than 4 and a half feet tall! I really liked the fact that I had hair long enough to reach my feet, but also could see how it would get in the way very easily, so when you gathered it all up in your hands and cut it off, I didn't protest. (I think I normally would have been very upset, but I wanted you to feel comfortable.) After focusing for a bit, you had my hair fairly close to how I normally have it.
"There, now you look like the man I love, except tiny and fragile."

I smirked. "Oh trust me, I'll be able to take everything you can give me, and I won't break."

Despite the fact that this was hands down THE STRANGEST sex we've ever had (and that's really saying something considering everything we've done), you managed to keep your promise. You really did stay fixed on my face, but aside from that, we had a night to remember. It started with kisses in the middle of the room, followed by kisses in the hot tub for two, followed by kisses as you laid me out on the sensual satin sheets.

You didn't really touch my squicky woman parts, but you DID kiss and mark me all over, which went a LONG way to driving me crazy with the need to have you inside me. NOW! Eventually, I pulled you back into place on top of me and insisted that you take me.

To my surprise, my Damsel body was a virgin, which did sort of put a damper on things for the both of us for a moment. But then the kissing we continued had us both back in the mood in practically no time. I had originally been tempted to give you a stamina potion so that you would remain hard and unable to orgasm for at least two hours, but then I realized that what I wanted most of all was to make normal love like a normal couple that just so happened to be a man and a woman. So I cast no spells and gave you no potions, and to be honest, it really was everything I was hoping for.

Soft and romantic to begin with, and then hot and hardcore toward the end. If - once you process this experience and decide how you feel - you decide that you could try it again, I'd love to give you a stamina potion and explore a few kinks, but considering that this is your birthday, I didn't want to make the whole experience about me.

So, after we had recovered for a bit, I asked you if there was anything else you wanted to top off your day, and you replied: "Just snuggling with my husband and falling asleep in your arms." Nodding in acceptance, I gave you another kiss. You ended the curse on me and we held each other. Except that you haven't been sleeping well lately - not even since I came back from my mission. At first, I thought that you were just worried about Atreyu, but now that that's settled, either you are worrying about something else altogether, or you're just too sleep deprived to sleep right.

Kissing you, I cast a wordless and wandless sleeping spell on you. It's not an endless sleep that I'd have to actively end, but rather a 10 hour sleep spell, meaning that you'll probably still wake up before me, but hopefully you'll feel rested and no longer be TOO tired to get some decent sleep. We'll see...

Our love's not at the beginning, it's had a little time to grow, but it keeps me amazed how your loving never changed,

Draco

P.S. Oh crap! You probably WON'T be up before me as I've got to get up and go to class tomorrow! If you don't manage to break through the spell and wake up early, and thus are alone in bed (ours, because I will have Apparated you home), just know that I had to go to class but will make up for the fact that you had to wake alone the moment I get home. Love you!
Updated Kids List

Chapter Summary

The current kids list as of August 2016

Oi Forever Facts

Ages as of August 1, 2016

Harry and Draco Malfoy:

Elena Rojas Malfoy:

- Age 25
- Birthday October 22, 1990
- Ravenclaw (Graduated)
- Pregnant

River Lewis Malfoy

- Age 20
- Birthday March 21, 1996
- Hogwarts House unknown; assumed Hufflepuff

Viona Skye Malfoy

- Age 17
- Birthday January 24, 1999
- Slytherin (entering 7th year)
- Godparents Hermione and Greg
- Engaged to Alric Avery - previous Unity Kid

Eris Lyra Malfoy

- Age 16
- Birthday April 9, 2000
- Slytherin (entering 6th Year)
- Godparents Pansy and Luna
- Pregnant

Orion Draco Malfoy
- Age 16
- Birthday April 9, 2000
- Ravenclaw (entering 6th Year)
- Godparents Ron and Blaise

Hazel Storm Malfoy
- Age 16
- Birthday May 13, 2000
- Slytherin (entering 6th Year)
- Godparents Neville and Luna

Shtara Malfoy
- Age 13
- Birthday January 6, 2003
- Muggle

Sirius James Malfoy
- Age 13
- Birthday July 30, 2003
- Gryffindor (entering 3rd Year)
- Godparents Charlie and Millie

Draco Lucius Malfoy Jr – “Zwei”
- Age 12
- Birthday July 30, 2004
- Gryffindor (entering 2nd Year)
- Godparents Dudley and Donna

Zaire Langa Malfoy
- Age 10
- Birthday May 2, 2006
- Godparents Kisa and Sebastian

Jasmine Kamaria Malfoy
- Age 7
- Birthday February 9, 2009
- Godparents George and Angelina

Persephone Hikari Malfoy
- Age 6
- Birthday April 21, 2010
- Godparents Miles and Eliza

Lily Narcissa Malfoy
- Age 6
- Birthday May 19, 2010
- Godparents Sirius and Ginny

Caelum Arthur Malfoy
- Age 6
- Birthday May 19, 2010
- Godparents Viper and Yesenia

Atreyu Miguel Malfoy
- Age 4
- Birthday September 30, 2011

Pansy and Ivan St. Peter

Pearl St. Peter
- Age 15
- January 10, 2001
- Draco’s Goddaughter

Paige St. Peter
• Age 12
• November 30, 2003

Narcissa and Lucius Malfoy

Eliza Lestrange Malfoy
• Age 20
• October 10, 1995
• Birth Parents Rodolphus Lestrange and Gina Mitchell
• Slytherin Graduate

Sebastian Snape Malfoy
• Age 19
• September 10, 1996
• Birth Parents Severus Snape and Gina Mitchell
• Slytherin Graduate

Gavin Mitchell Malfoy
• Age 18
• January 30, 1998
• Birth Parents Lucius Malfoy and Gina Mitchell
• Ravenclaw Graduate

Della Andromeda Malfoy
• Age 18
• March 8, 1998
• Birth Parents Bellatrix Lestrange and Rodolphus Lestrange
• Slytherin Graduate

George and Angelina

Phillip Moss Weasley
- Age 25
- August 4, 1990

Mackenzie Campbell Weasley
- Age 22
- February 1, 1994
- Hufflepuff Graduate

Fred Weasley II
- Age 10
- November 12, 2005

Roxanne Weasley
- Age 9
- July 7, 2007

Harry Potter’s – The Viper; and Draco Malfoy – The Tiger

Delphini Lestrange Riddle Potter
- Age 18
- March 8, 1998
- Biological Parents Bellatrix Lestrange and Voldemort
- Hogwarts Graduate
- Pregnant

Tommy Riddle Potter
- Age 17
- February 20, 1999
- Biological Parents Harry Potter and Voldemort
- Hogwarts 7th Year

Bellerophon Riddle Lestrange Potter
- Age 16
- August 22, 1999
- Biological Parents Bellatrix Lestrange and Voldemort
- Hogwarts 7th Year

Harrison Riddle Potter
- Age 16
- May 13, 2000
- Biological Parents Harry Potter and Voldemort
- Hogwarts 6th Year

River Lewis Malfoy
- Age 20
- Birthday March 21, 1996
- Hufflepuff

Viona Crabbe
- Age 17
- Birthday January 24, 1999
- Slytherin

Scorpius Potter-Malfoy
- Age 4
- October 18, 2011

Hyperion Potter-Malfoy
- Age 4
- October 18, 2011

Dudley and Donna Dursley

Daisy Dursley
- Age 16
- February 28, 2000
- Hogwarts 6th Year

Donald Dursley
• Age 12
• September 23, 2003
• Hogwarts 2nd Year

Dustin Dursley
• Age 8
• June 29, 2008

Percy and Audrey Weasley

Molly Weasley II
• Age 13
• August 15, 2002
• Gryffindor 4th Year

Lucy Weasley
• Age 8
• March 4, 2008

Blaise Zabini – Hermione Granger – Ron Weasley – Kisa – The Quartet

Roderick Oliver Weasley
• Age 16
• March 22, 2000
• Assumed Ron’s biologically
• Godparents Harry and Draco

Bianca Evangeline Weasley
• Age 16
• March 22, 2000
• Assumed Blaise’s biologically
• Godparents Harry and Draco
Veronica Zabini
- Age 13
- March 12, 2003
- Assumed Blaise’s biologically

Anastacia Zabini
- Age 11
- November 19, 2004
- Assumed Ron’s biologically

Tristan Matteo Weasley
- Age 6
- March 31, 2010

Misha Rurik Zabini
- Age 6
- April 2, 2010
- Biologically Blaise and Kisa’s

Tatyana Zabini
- Age 3
- February 15, 2013
- Biologically Blaise and Kisa’s
- Kisa is Pregnant

Bill and Fleur Weasley

Victoire Weasley
- Age 18
- May 2, 1998
- Hogwarts Graduate

Dominique Weasley
- Age 13
- August 26, 2002
• Hogwarts 4th Year

Louis Weasley
• Age 9
• December 24, 2006

Miles Meaney and Colm O’Brian

Samantha Meaney
• Age 15
• June 7, 2001
• Ravenclaw 5th Year

Charlotte Meaney
• Age 6
• July 1, 2010

Greg Goyle and Millicent Bulstrode

Mason Goyle
• Age 11
• December 17, 2004
• Hogwarts 1st Year

Greta Goyle
• Age 9
• September 3, 2006

Remus and Tonks

Edward Remus Lupin
• Age 18
April 15, 1998

Gryffindor Graduate

Godfather Harry

Neville and Charlie

Frank Weasley-Longbottom

- Age 7
- December 6, 2008

Alice Weasley-Longbottom

- Age 2
- September 7, 2013

Ginny and Viktor

Keisha Krum

- Age 7
- October 1, 2008

Finnigan and Beatrix

Blake Gerald Fawley

- Age 6
- March 17, 2010

Yesenia

Diego Garcia

- Age 6
Other older adopted kids that are never in the story anyway, lol.
Chapter 56

Chapter Summary

Harry's excited to be going home, and Draco's got class.

Friday August 5, 2016

My Draco,

We're headed home! Oh my love, we are going home. Don't get me wrong, I've had a fantastic time in California. We got Hazel something she's been dreaming of for pretty much her entire life. We got to see River all settled in, ready to start married life in his new home. And, oh yeah, there was that whole getting a new child coming into our family!

That's most likely the biggest reason I'm ready to go home. I need to introduce Atreyu to his home. I need the rest of our family to meet him. I need him to get to a space where he is going to spend the rest of his childhood and beyond. He needs to settle in and finally have a space that he officially belongs to. Oh and introducing him to the horses! I miss my horses! Is that weird? And after all my visits this summer, I think I am finally ready to take on some more.

But as for our Atreyu it's actually been pretty fun introducing him to flying though! I thought his eyes were going to pop out of their sockets while he was staring out the windows watching the world get smaller as we flew higher. He's either never been on an airplane or it was long enough ago that he has no memories of it. I was a bit worried he would freak out, remember the first time we took Lainie on an airplane and she spent the entire flight vomiting? It was easy enough on later flights to just make sure we had the anti nausea potions on hand, but that first one was a bit of a doozy wasn't it?

I've had a couple of days now to think about our shag the night of my birthday. It really wasn't bad at all. Sorry, that came out so rude, it was actually nice. It's uh, not something I'd like to do all the time, but I could absolutely do it again if you wanted to explore a bit more. It being your gorgeous face made it so much easier than I thought it would be. Knowing it was your heart and soul, no matter the packaging, simply meant I was making love to my husband. No squicks I promise.

And, er, I didn't actually hate the kissing all over 'your' body thing. I could hear you moaning and enjoying yourself, it was you. And your breasts were small and pretty, not all that much different from how they were when you were nursing the Lily, Caelum, and Persephone when they were babies. Less milky though.

I did actually think about a secondary option. So, now that you've had the experience with me where you made love to your husband, what if we just had some playtime with some close friends? We could invite over three of the quartet. Or we could have Charlie and Neville over since Nev likes shagging ladies. I would be there, I could touch everything I want to touch, you could have me however you like, but then also maybe Ron or Blaise or Neville or even Hermione could kiss everywhere I can't quite make myself?

Just a thought.
I'd do anything for you, you know that right Draco? You're my heart.

Yours,
Harry

Monday August 8th
The most perfect husband in the world.

I'm having the best day! It didn't start out so well as I was feeling a little off this morning when I woke up. That said, Muffy had a wonderfully delicious blueberry and banana kefir smoothie ready for me the moment I woke up and called for her, so, my mild weirdness cleared up almost right away.

After that, I had plenty of time to stretch and do some light exercises before joining the rest of you for lunch. After lunch, you brought the trouble trio and Atreyu out to the stables, while I went jogging on the track with Amala and Wojtek. I wanted Wojtek all tired out and ready to sleep in time for my class. To my surprise, Siri, Zwei, and Zaire joined me for the run. Apparently they'd missed the morning run with you, and also, I gather you were trying your best to keep up with Atreyu this morning.

After my run, Aya popped in to ensure that I was still getting regular massages now that River lives so far away. No offense to River - because he's very excellent at this point - but there's just no one in the world as good at giving a massage as Aya. And that's even despite the fact that she's in her 70's and getting a bit frail with age.

Then I just barely had time to take a quick shower and pick out a nice workout outfit before heading off to class. I still took my time and picked out the perfect one - despite KNOWING that you were more than likely just going to magic it different anyway. And I was right! When I got to the Ministry track to pick up my students, we all looked down at my shirt and read:

It's my workout and you'll cry if I want you to.

About half of them legitimately started crying right then and there, which ironically made my entire day!

See, exactly as I had told you, last Monday and Wednesday, I had taught them a total of 3 pain centers: The chin/jaw and behind the ear on Monday and the jugular vein on the side of the neck on Wednesday. As before, I demonstrated on the practice dummy before punching them. Also, I invited a Ministry Mediwitch to class to be certain that if I used just a bit too much force (or they happened to be a weakling), she could fix them right up. But ONLY if they were legitimately injured, mind, and not just in a lot of pain.

Side note, I think the Ministry Mediwitch was attracted to me until she realized what an arsehole I am. Now she looks at me with something just short of loathing. Thus, there's no chance of her trying to chat me up, hahaha.

But back to today. After reading my shirt, and KNOWING that I had more pain centers to teach them (and some of them had apparently done some research to see what they might be in for), they were crying because they already knew it was going to hurt, and my shirt only confirmed it for them. I nearly pulled a muscle trying to give a shit.

But first, we met the Mediwitch on the way to the classroom, and she gave me a look like she wanted to murder me and put my students out of their misery. I wondered why she'd come so early since the pain portion isn't until the end of class, but shrugged it off as her wanting to be on hand should I happen to start the lesson early.

Then I realized that with her in the room, I could encourage them to practice trying to hit each other in the five spots they already knew. It's shocking how much better at self defense they get when they KNOW what'll happen to them should they let their guard down. Only a couple let an opponent slip through their defenses and had to be tended to by the Mediwitch.

Eventually, it was time to move onto the lesson. Unfortunately, Wojtek - who I actually had on my back in a sort of rucksack carrier - had woken back up and started fussing, so I had to pull him out and feed him a bottle for a few minutes before I could actually give the hands on portion, but that still gave me plenty of time to explain why THIS spot was so sensitive and fragile. Why it should be used as a last resort because it was rather unsporting. A good punch to this spot can end most fights, and actually, come to think of it, kicking is even better.

So, when I abruptly turned and kicked the practice dummy in the groin so hard that it went flying a few feet before landing on its back, I nearly felt sympathy for my students that started crying again.

"Sweet Merciful Merlin!" The Mediwitch gasped, covering her mouth with both hands.

"Fatty, come here!" I beckoned, snapping my fingers and pointing to the floor in front of me.

With tears streaming down his cheeks, he trudged very reluctantly over to me, not even protesting my unflattering nickname for him.

"Hold my bear, and don't drop him," I ordered, and once he had Wojtek in hand, I put my hands on his shoulders and added: "Brace yourself."

He flinched very comically, making me burst out laughing. "Just joking! You ALL know where a groin is, and ladies, if you haven't found one yet, tell a fellow student to show his so you can visualize it when you kick it. Because in the next class, that WILL be one of the areas you will all be aiming at.

"That's all for tonight, class dismissed!" And with that, I took Wojtek back, smirked, and gave them a short wave before walking out of the room. Now I'm in the mood to abduct you from wherever you are (the stables more than like), and worship your groin for the rest of the night.

Maybe our relationship isn't as crazy as it seems, maybe that's what happens when a tornado meets a volcano, all I know is I love you too much,

Draco
Wednesday August 10, 2016

My Own,

You must have already left for class. I had hoped to be home in time to see you beforehand but I got a bit lost in the woods with our four smallest along with Scor and Hyper.

We spent some time at the stables this morning. Checking on Cheesecake and Fondue. We've been back for a few days now and I'm finally starting to feel a bit settled and lose some of the guilt I've felt for leaving them for the summer. But as I was sure of before we left, there were plenty of eager hands willing to come and play with them, giving them love and attention. I guess Bea has brought Blake over at least once a week. Scor and Hyper have been here off and on all summer. And Sammy and Charlotte pretty much consider this their second home. Come to think of it, maybe the horses need a vacation from so many eager little hands.

Ha! I'm pretty sure the horses might disagree with that. You should have seen them when we came walking up to the enclosure this morning. If they weren't so well behaved I think they would have vaulted over the fences to get to the kids. As it was, they were leaning so far over the fence to reach them that I was a bit worried about neck strain!

We didn't saddle them up or anything, but the horses let us put the kids up on their backs for a little ride around the enclosure. I got some amazing pictures, well I got awesome pictures all day, and I think you are going to fall in love with them a little. I got a sweet one of Scor and Hyper both riding Cheesecake at the same time, I think I'm going to have it turned into a painting for Viper and Tiger for their anniversary.

After we played for a bit we did some chores as well. Cleaned out their stalls, brushed them down, made sure they had fresh food and water available, normal horse care things. It's all well and good to have them give the horses attention, but it's important to me that they understand they need to help out with their care as well. Although I was a bit worried Cael was going to brush a hole right through Fondue! The sweet horse just took it, nuzzling Cael the entire time he was brushing her.

After we had plenty of quality horse time, I grabbed the picnic basket Muffy had made up for us and we headed into the woods for our scavenger hunt. For River's stag do we did that bar crawling scavenger hunt and had so much fun that I thought it would be a fun activity for the kids but with a more child friendly set of goals. They had to search for a bunch of different types of bugs and animals.

Oh! And one of the animals on the list was a fox. As they were tromping through the underbrush I decided to transform into my fox. All the kids laughed at the idea that they had brought one of the hunt goals with them, but I forgot that Atreyu didn't know I was an Animagus and when he saw me he dropped to the ground and got nose to nose with me studying me intently. So now I am 'Daddy Zorro' which I think is awesome!

Some of the items were super easy to find and didn't take a lot of sleuthing, but some of them were kind of hard and the kids really had to pay attention to their surroundings. We had to find an intact spider's web, leaves with insect bites, and different animal tracks.

We stopped and had our picnic for lunch and then kept on discovering the woods. And, even though the scavenger list I found was really long and in depth, the kids decided they wanted to keep an eye out for things that weren't on the list. That way they could make an updated and even better list for another time.

Just a little while ago the kids started grumbling about being hungry, I thought to myself "geez, we just ate lunch!" until I did a tempus and realized it was already dinner time! We were having so much fun the day completely got away from us.

So now I'm all grumpy because I haven't seen you all day! Come give me smooches when you get home from class!

Love you,
Harry

P.S. So one of the things the kids had to find was an animal's home in the ground or in a tree. Well, long story short, this is probably where I should be mentioning the garden gnomes huh?

Wednesday August 10th
Harry,

Our adorable Lily asked me how to spell love - which I am sure was only because she was distracted and writing in a hurry, because she's known how to spell it for at least two years. Anyway, I smiled at her, ruffled her blonde hair, and said: "H-a-r-r-y."

She paused, looked up at me, and then rolled her eyes. "It is NOT!"

"Oh? If you know so much, then tell ME how to spell it," I challenged.

"L-o-v-e," she murmured as she returned her attention to her picture - or postcard maybe? I'm honestly not sure what she was doing.

"That's what I said," I informed her. She rolled her eyes at me again and shook her head.

She returned to you, and considering how you were all tromping through the woods, I'll not be at all surprised if you didn't realize she was missing for a minute there.

Anyway, while you were off entertaining all the littles, I was having a lovely chat with Viper and Tiger. We were drinking tea and eating - lunch for them, breakfast for me. Viper was lamenting the fact that he's going to be a grandfather soon and his daughter hadn't even had the decency to be in a serious relationship first.

"She's pregnant? I had no idea," I muttered, focusing on my tea.

Viper seemed to believe me, but Tiger gave me a look and said: "Bullshit!"

"What??!!" I cried out defensively.

"I would have believed you if you hadn't looked shady as fuck as you said that!" Tiger accused.

I sighed and ran a hand through my hair. "Alright fine. So I had the misfortune of walking into the room as she was discussing - insisting really - that she obtain a sample and get herself up the duff. I'll have you know that I was against the idea."

Viper suddenly looked rather intense. "So wait, WHO gave her this sample?!!"
"She didn't tell you?" I asked in surprise.

He shook his head. "Nope. She seems concerned that something will happen to the audacious bloke."

I frowned at him. "Why should HE be punished? He didn't do anything at all - other than give her a potion that turned his blood into semen for her to use - at her fierce insistence, I might add."

Tiger stroked his chin in thought. "Actually, I sort of - well I guess I'm relieved that she chose him."

Viper glared at him. "You mean you know??? WHO??"

Tiger rolled his eyes. "My darling idiot, exactly WHO would have the knowledge to brew and use a potion to -"

"SEBASTIAN?!?! I'LL - erm... actually... I agree. She chose well," he changed his mind very abruptly.

I sighed in relief. "See? He didn't touch her in the slightest, and so, none of this situation is his fault beyond agreeing to her demand."

Viper nodded slowly. "Yes, I believe that. He's a right weirdo, not wanting to touch ANYONE, which I still cannot understand. I honestly thought it would be a phase and that he'd change his mind when he was old enough to lose his virginity and discover how wonderful sex is."

I chuckled. "Well, I have no idea if that has happened, but he's 20 - or nearly so - and very much uninterested in relationships. So, I can only assume he's had time to really think all aspects of the situation through and come to his own decisions."

Our conversation continued and morphed until it was nearing the time I'd need to go do my morning routine (which I'd skipped initially because I was so hungry and hoping to have 'lunch' with you), so I started to excuse myself so I could go get ready for my class. This actually led to the both of them following me to our en suite loo and watching me as I got ready so that they could ask me questions about my class.

After talking about how my favorite class included our tinys handing them their arses, Tiger mentioned that he's extremely interested to see me actually TEACH something. So I invited him to come with me. Meanwhile, Viper wanted a chance to enjoy the fact that his kids were all busy and he would have some alone time. He mentioned something about relaxing in the Onsen.

So, once ready, and after lending the Tiger a nice sparring outfit, I called for Shtara to bring back my bloody bear. She ran into the room and excitedly informed me: "Excellent timing daddy! I was just thinking about bringing him to you so that I could go to Elena's school for a bit and dance with some of my friends!"

She was still talking at me in high speeds as she ran back out of the room - presumably to a floo. But since she had handed me my bear and also kissed me on the cheek, I considered the whole encounter a win. Now ready, I held out my hand to Tiger, and after he took it, Apparated us to the Apparation point nearest my class.

I was actually running about five minutes late at this point, and so, was not surprised that my students had already stopped running and moved to the classroom. I didn't even say anything as I led Tiger into the room, as I was going to wait until I was at the front of the class. However, my students all heard the door open and turned to look at me. When they saw the Tiger, several of them burst out wailing.

"THERE'S TWO OF HIM NOW?!?!?!"

Smirking and chuckling, I gestured to indicate Tiger, who was still looking as gorgeous as ever. "Don't mind my friend here. I had someone Polyjuice into me to give you twice the incentive to do your best."

Surprisingly, this did NOT calm anyone down. In fact, I think a couple more started crying. Most were definitely staring at my shirt, which now said:

Breath and try not to piss yourself.

"How the fuck does Harry DO that?!?!?!" I asked, as baffled as ever that I quite carefully put on a shirt I actually wanted to wear, and yet, it was now something YOU wanted me to wear. More tellingly, it WASN'T affecting Tiger. He stood there wearing the outfit I'd given him, looking at me in confusion.

I looked over to find that the Mediwitch was also staring at us apprehensively from the corner. "Lovely to see you again," I flirted with a cheeky wink. "Since you (the witch) are here already, I'm going to change things up by teaching the pain spot first, letting you (the students) all recover for a bit, and then having you spar in which you attempt to hit any and all of the pain spots on each other."

The Mediwitch took a deep breath, clearly gathering up her patience. Meanwhile, my students were taking deep breaths and trying to calm down. Since Shtara had worn Wojtek out, he had already fallen asleep, so I tucked him in the rucksack carrier and put him on my back. Then I rolled out my arms and shoulders a moment and hopped a bit to prepare myself for fighting mode.

Once in front of the practice dummy, I cast a spell to very clearly show where its kidneys would be if it had some. "The kidneys are next to the last place that I'm going to teach you because they are one of those places that will not only hurt excruciatingly, but also, could actually kill your opponent if hit with enough force. Thus, obviously, while I will encourage you to practice on each other until you can reliably hit them when necessary, I DO NOT want you to put enough force into the hit to do any real damage.

"Along the same lines, when I demonstrate it on you, it will hurt, but it won't be enough to injure you."

To my surprise, it was the Tiger who gasped at that. "You're going to actually HIT your students?"

I cast him a look that basically said: Duh! "I AM teaching a combat class. I wouldn't be doing a full job if I didn't actually demonstrate the things I'm teaching."

"Ah," he murmured, looking like he was wondering how I was getting away with this.

I gestured to the Mediwitch. "She's here to make sure that if I do accidentally put too much oomph into a hit, that the students can be healed right back up and not die. She's not supposed to, but I suspect she ALSO slips them pain potions when I'm not looking."

"Hm!" She harrumphed as she crossed her arms and looked away. I took this to mean I was right.

"But as I was saying, Robards - and Kingsley too, if I'm honest - feels that my methods will more accurately prepare my students for conditions they might encounter in the real world. For example, knowing EXACTLY how it feels to get punched in a kidney makes it far more likely that these Aurors and future Aurors will do everything in their power to avoid that happening at all costs."

"No shit!" Tiger stated in agreement.

I then returned my attention to the dummy. "As I was saying, the kidneys are hard to get to," I paused to demonstrate a nice solid punch to the kidney, making the dummy lift up off the ground an inch or so and then land with a loud clatter. "SO, if you do not have a clear shot, but yet DO have an opening to get in a hit in the general area, an alternative spot is the bladder. It will also hurt - nearly as much as hitting the groin - and may help you win by forcing your opponent to piss himself." I spelled a bladder onto/into the dummy, and then knelt so that I'd have a good angle to punch it with.

Standing up, I faced my students once more. "Now, who wants to go first?"

To NO surprise, the students banded together to push fatty to the front. He was fighting tooth and nail to resist them, but they clearly outnumbered him. After a rather amusing tussle, he was standing in front of me and looking like he was seriously considering drowning himself in the nearest well.

I smiled at him reassuringly. "Listen, I'm going to give you a sporting chance to defend yourself. And actually, go ahead and do your best to hit me."

He fell for the bait, immediately launching into an impressive right cross that would have dislocated my jaw if I hadn't blocked it and used the fact that his arms were up and his body stretched wide - to lightly punch him right in his left kidney. He cried out loudly in pain and fell to the floor.

The Mediwitch ran over to examine him in concern.

"He's fine," I assured her, deciding to move to my next student rather than force them to decide who was going next. Looking her in the eyes, I advised. "Try to put a little strategy into your moves and give me a little challenge."

She nodded in acceptance, took a few deep and steadying breaths, and then launched an attack. I blocked her hits as I waited for a good opening, and then, punched her in the kidney too. She gasped and tried to hop off the pain, which was a good sign that I hadn't hit her any harder than I had fatty.

This repeated itself until all my students were huddled together in a supportive recovery embrace. I gave them two whole minutes to gather up their energy. Then I pressed on with class.

"Alright, cupcakes, get off your arses and spar. I want to see you get into the mindset that you are fighting for your lives. You only have two classes left after this - well MOST of you do - and you can all be the best of mates who would never harm each other once you pass, but for now, PROVE to me that you can withstand a criminal doing his or her best to murder you! If I think for ONE SECOND that you are not trying your absolute best, I'm going to take over and REALLY give you a fight for you life! What are you just standing there for?! You, remember that I DO still have my wand on me and can cast perfectly lovely stinging hexes! You, STOP looking at her like she's spread out on the counter for you to eat and bloody HIT her!!! And while he's trying, you might as well kick his arse for looking at you like that!"

I took a break to rest my voice, drink from my never ending glass of milk (still the one I'd borrowed from you that makes my students think I'm drinking coffee), and then pull Wojtek out of his carrier so that I could stroke his fur and give myself something to do so that I didn't jump in and start punching those who were so focused on what they were doing that they failed to keep an eye on their surroundings.

That's actually what I had Tiger for - to cast spells across the fray to help simulate a real battle in which some opponents might actually still be armed and trying to hex them to death. All in all, I was having quite a lot of fun.

When I spotted obviously gay get frustrated enough that he instinctively grabbed his wand, I leapt into the warzone and grabbed his wrist before he could take a single shot. Then I held him in a one armed choke hold - making sure that he didn't squash Wojtek - while I growled in his ear.

"Excuse me, but WHAT is the name of this class???

He looked like he desperately wanted the ground to swallow him whole. "Hand to hand combat..."

"Are there WANDS in hand to hand combat?!"

He shook his head, looking away to hide his expression of shame. Then he had the sheer nerve to pinch my left buttcheek! I was actually impressed, to be honest.

"Touché," I murmured, letting him go. "You managed to land a hit on me. That earns you a reward; see me after class to claim it."

He grinned at me hopefully, prompting me to push his face away. "NOT THAT kind of reward!"

After that, I walked around being secretly impressed with my students, the majority of which honestly DO look like they've learned the skills I've been teaching them. When class was over, I dismissed them, let the Mediwitch fuss over the ones who were still in agony from not quite protecting their kidneys well enough, and waited for my student to claim his reward.

He looked at me expectantly. With a faint smile, I pulled ten Galleons out of my pocket and tossed them at him. "You've earned yourself a nice drink, and so, first round's on me. Head off to your favorite pub and enjoy."

"Yes Chief!" He accepted eagerly, wagging his brows flirtily. "Care to join me?"

I laughed. "My husband is already going to be just about ready to murder a little old lady for getting in his way should anything keep him from me the moment I get home. I shudder to think of what he might do - to YOU - if you were successful in inviting me to the pub and delaying my return even just ten minutes."

He looked extremely disappointed. "So your husband is the overly possessive and jealous type..."

"Most definitely!" I assured him with a grin. "But it works in my favor because then I have him all to myself whenever I want. Such as now. See you all on Monday!" And with that, I waved and led Tiger out of the room.

"He was cute," Tiger murmured, likely because he has eyes and could see the truth standing right in front of him.

"A bit," I agreed. "But do you really think he's cute enough to risk YOUR husband's wrath?"

"Oh hell no!" Tiger blurted out. "There's NO ONE on the PLANET who's that cute!"

Laughing, I slung an arm over his shoulder and nodded in agreement. He ruffled Wojtek's fur before grabbing the sleeping bear from me. Apparently he also has a soft spot for cute little animals.

But then we were back in the Manor and you were still nowhere to be found, so, I can only assume that you're playing hide and seek with me, and my reward for finding you will be oh-so-delightful.

I love you in the morning and in the afternoon, I love you in the evening and underneath the moon, Draco
Harry thinks Draco is sweet and Draco gets a bit tipsy at Viona's engagement party.

Friday August 12, 2016

Darling,

How are you just the sweetest man to ever exist? You told our daughter that you spell 'Love' 'H-a-r-r-y'? Are you even real? Are you just an unattainable dream that my imagination dreamt up to deal with something terrible in my life? Am I even real? Is this some extended coma situation and I'm going to wake up in some muggle hospital and they're going to be all "I'm sorry Mr Potter, but you've been in this hospital for the last twenty years, what's a draco?"

No thank you. I will just stay in the coma if that's the case. And honestly, if I really were in a coma? Congratulations Harry's subconscious because you are hella creative. The whole men can get up the duff thing? That was some stellar imagining.

I could have done without the morning sickness though. Ta ever so.

I just finished up some last minute Engagement Party Planning with our mums, Viona, and Alric. Surprisingly, it was a million times less stressful than I thought it would be. It was certainly a hell of a lot easier than ANY of the wedding planning I was involved with (when I was healthy enough between all those bouts of horse flu) for River and Mahafsoun's big day.

You could raise the argument that an engagement party would obviously be less work than a wedding, but besides clothing an entire set of bridesmaids and groomsmen, Viona's engagement party is going to be even bigger than the wedding was. Although I am dead certain it will be paling in comparison to HER actual wedding.

The part that makes it so much easier? They know exactly what they want. And the few suggestions other people gave, Viona was surprisingly receptive even when she may not have ultimately agreed to take the suggestion. And Viona is … how do I say this about my Princess without sounding terrible? Viona is a crazy manipulative bridezilla, and by that I mean she is trying to act like she's bridezilla while secretly giving in to almost any request Alric makes. In all fairness, he isn't making many, but I actually started keeping track and even when she originally seemed dead set on something she gave in to his requests.

I am starting to think that for all her posturing about him being her favorite minion she's in love with the boy. I don't think she's aware of it yet. I can't wait to watch this craziness unfold.

So here's how it would go down; we would be talking about some subject, let's say flowers, and he would say "I really like eucalyptus as the base greenery."

Vivi would counter with "What are you? A Koala? That does not go with the roses I have planned."
Then she would switch the subject to, say, the catering, eventually moving on to the drinks we might have available, and then she'd start in on how River's grandparents had recommended this Australian wine or beer or some other Australian nonsense. We'd all agree that sounds good, and then all of a sudden she'd sigh and say "well, if we're going with an Australian theme, I suppose the eucalyptus would be a nice accent, we'll just have to switch from roses to hydrangeas because they would look much better with that greenery."

It sounds like she's running things, but one suggestion from him and she's changed the main flower and coordinated all the drinks for the party to go with his idea. And for how demanding she's pretending to be, when I mentioned introducing Atreyu to the family at the same time as her engagement party? She was thrilled and thought it would be perfect. She even said something about giving a speech about all the wonderful young men coming into her life.

She is so totally your kid.

Oh, speaking of speeches, I have mine all ready to go! I assume you're giving one as well? Will we have to lie to all of our guests and tell them all about the freak thunderstorm over your face? Mine is going to be a doozy so you'll definitely want to wear waterproof mascara.

Speaking of you wearing or being lady-things … see what I did there? Smooth segue right? Also a little heteronormative calling mascara a lady thing. Hmm, I've done much better in the past. I will work on it.

So, speaking of you and your desire to get so much shagging whilst being a woman … we're going to have the entire extended circle at our house tomorrow night! Have you had a chance to think about my thoughts? I do not want to do a big playdate orgy, but we could invite the trio of the quartet, or Nev and Charlie, or anyone else you think might go for it. Just say the word and I will pull them to the side at the party and proposition them.

Mischievously Yours,
Harry

P.S. You are so lucky you opened your last email with that amazingly sweet moment with our Lily, it totally softened me up for hearing all about your student hitting on you. I did NOT talk to Viper about it and mention our men were talking about OUR WRATH being what would keep them from the cute little twink …

P.P.S. Viper did not feel nearly as sweet about it as I did, I have a feeling Tiger may end up in trouble, which probably means he's going to be quite annoyed with you telling me all about it. Good luck with that.

P.P.P.S. I'm pretty sure your forbidden forest dragon friend just showed up. So that's weird. Did you tell her in dragontalk that you would get freaky with her? I can get behind you wanting to see what sex as a woman is like but the dragon thing is really freaking me out. Uh, any way we can help the dragon population without you banging an animal? Maybe like the blood-potion thing? Unghch, do whatever you want but I don't like it.

P.P.P.P.S. Really do whatever you want, I won't be mad, but I will be exceedingly turned off by the whole thing.

Sunday August 14th
My most beloved Harry,
Let's NEVER speak of the dragon incident again! Let's just be reassured that she's not likely to come looking for me any time soon. And note, NO, I did NOT tell her to come get me when she was, erm, in heat - or however it works with Dragons. She apparently did that all on her own!

Honestly, if she hadn't been so upset and insistent, I probably would have just told her to shove off.

Moving on, Viona's engagement party was fabulous! I mean the food alone really made the day. I literally could not stop eating. I had stuffed mushrooms and hibachi grilled calamari, ceviche with sauerkraut, steak tartare smothered in a broccoli and cheese sauce, and Sanguinaccio Dolce. SO much Sanguinaccio Dolce! I'm not certain I left any for others to try, heh heh. And the things I ate aren't even the bulk of what was available! Did she hire the staff of Café Exquis, or did she have a famous chef come in and commandeer the elves?

At some point early on, I caught you and gave you about ten minutes worth of kisses before whispering in your ear that - if you were SERIOUS about me playing as a woman - I actually sort of wanted to shag Dean and Seamus. I mean that it's been ages since we've played with them, and I know you like having a pair of Gryffindors to play with because you all have this sort of base knowledge that includes inside jokes and that makes the experience so much more interesting for you.

And then it was time for the speeches. I cast an Absolutely-Cannot-Cry spell on myself, and so, I made it through without any odd phenomenon on my face. Squaring my shoulders, I prepared to entertain all the guests.

"Viona, my love, congratulations on finding the one person you want to annoy for the rest of your life." She chuckled, and so, encouraged, I kept going. "Alric, marriage is the relationship in which one person is always right, and the other is the husband. Also, you would do well to remember that marriage is full of compromise and that compromise is an amiable arrangement in which a husband and wife agree to let her have her way." Alric had sparkling eyes and looked like he was silently laughing in order to not intrude on my witticisms. "Also, while the secret to a happy marriage will forever remain a secret - and wedding rings just might be the world's smallest handcuffs - keep in mind that a good marriage is like a pair of sheers that might seem to be working in opposite directions, but never fail to shred anyone or anything that comes between them."

"Alright dad, thanks," Viona murmured, looking like she was finding me a tad embarrassing. I have no idea why!

Smiling at her, I kept going. "A woman takes a husband
A man takes a wife
Together they agree
To be sentenced for life.
They'll put on matching balls and chains
And settle down in a comfortable cell.
And as the years go drifting by,
Little gangsters will join them as well.
So Merlin bless the future bride and groom,
May the punishment fit the crime.
We wish them a long and happy life,
As they settle down to doing time.

Viona was now rubbing her forehead. "Dad... please stop..."

I was probably a bit tipsy at this point, because I did NOT see the red flag waving back and forth before my eyes. "Alric, you are about to undergo a procedure in which you'll have your -"

"DAD!!" Viona snapped. You apparently took her side and cut me short with a long and brain melting kiss. After which I was so pleasantly fuzzy that I honestly didn't hear a word of your speech. I couldn't help but picture all the things I could be doing to you that moment.

Then it was time for the dancing. I gather that's when you propositioned Dean and Seamus. Also, apparently the Viper and Tiger overheard you and wanted to get in on the action. You even explained what exactly we planned to do and all parties agreed.

Meanwhile, probably more than a little tipsy at this point, I was dancing so sexily that I had at least half of Viona's Yarmates - the females one, only two or three of the males ones - catcalling me and offering me money to take things off. I sort of shrugged and thought: Why not? Just as I was unbuttoning my waistcoat, you once again came to Viona's aid by dragging me away.

In that stage of just barely drunk that makes one giggle at EVERYTHING, you had Viper help strongarm me to the playroom. Upon (sober) reflection (as I write this), that was probably for the best. Thank you for stopping me from turning Viona's engagement party into a, erm… inappropriate stripping contest.

In any case, once in the playroom, you kissed me until I calmed down enough to stop giggling - pretty much all of you sniggering at me. I even caught Viper muttering something about me being so adorable at the moment. Bloody arsehole!

Then you took a moment to reexplain and clarify things. "So, Draco had to go undercover about a month ago, and whilst undercover, he was Polyjuiced into a girl and working as a prostitute. The important part is that - after he closed the case - his Mind Healer suggested that he have a bit of sex as a woman, so that he can -"

"Not bored as fuck!" I roared.

"That too," you acknowledged with a look like you were asking Merlin for extra patience. "But more importantly, have an experience to help him separate the potentially traumatic hooking from more fulfilling and satisfying sex."

Seamus laughed. "Is he even sober enough to consent?"

You looked at me. "Well, we have talked about this a lot, and so I know he is willing and full of consent, but you have a point." You cast a sobriety charm on me, making me gasp as a hangover flashed across my head before fading. "Draco, love, are you fully consenting to this playnight?"

"Of course," I stated, still rubbing my head even though the hangover had already faded.

"Any questions?" You asked our guests.

"Yeah," Tiger stated with a raised brow. "Why exactly did you go undercover as a prostitute?"

"Long story short, there was a 15 year old girl that we needed to determine if she was working for a single pimp, or an organization, and that's what I went in to find out. She was working for a single pimp and he's now, erm, missing actually. He was arrested and being held securely in a cell while awaiting trial, and he suddenly vanished and hasn't been seen nor heard from since."

I glanced at you before looking away, and you looked so very calm and innocent that I couldn't very well make any sort of accusations. NOT that I think accusations need to be made! You returned to the topic of the night.

"Draco, are you ready love?"

"Erm, let me strip off first," I said, because I think that letting them see me transform would be less embarrassing if they didn't see the tiny female me drowning in my bespoke clothing. Once naked, I nodded at you and you responded by casting the Damsel Curse on me.

"Blimey!" Seamus exclaimed. "He's TINY!"

I glared at him.

Dean laughed. "I can see why you'd want others to do the deed, Harry. Not only are you so gay that this more than likely turns you right the fuck off, but I imagine you feel like you'd break him in half!"

"Actually, I did do the deed," you murmured, blushing lightly. "But I think he deserves at least one lover that can not only do it, but worship his female body like a goddess - squicky parts and all."

Dean took my hand and kissed it. "I would love to do exactly that."

I grinned at him, already looking forward to it.

"While my husband is doing your husband," Seamus said. "I challenge you to a bit of a duel! I bet that I can not only give a better blow job, but also bottom better!"

"OH HELL NO!" You roared indignantly. "I'm the best there is at giving head, at bottoming, at taking a spanking - you name it, I can do better than you!"

Viper laughed and grinned at Tiger. "Sounds like we're in for a rough night of judging this contest!"

"Sounds like," Tiger agreed, absently rubbing his cushy bum, which I'll bet is still sore from the paddling he likely got the other day when you didn't let it slip to Viper that Tiger was eyeing up my obviously gay student.

As much as I was very interested to see you win that contest, my attention was grabbed and held hostage on the bed by Dean. He apparently doesn't get to have a woman very often at all - even less than I do - but he does like them and puts his entire attention into pleasing them when he has one. OH. MY. FUCKING. GODS!!!

He didn't just dive right in and play with my clitoris. No, he started with some sensual touching and flitting his tongue over every part of my body. You had said worship me like a goddess, and he was taking that seriously. It took him a good hour to make his way to my divine femininity. And even then he was in no rush. I started squealing about 20 minutes later, making noises that I didn't even know I could make! But he didn't stop. No, he simply softened his tongue a little and let me ride the wave before turning the intensity back up.

"Sounds like Draco finally got there," someone remarked, and I think it was the Viper.

Someone answered, but I couldn't hear who or what was said as I was already squealing again. It was then that he inserted a couple of fingers inside me and - gentling his tongue once more - stimulated me into squirting. Wow... I have no words for what that felt like. As I was spinning and floating in an ocean of bliss, he cast a spell I didn't quite catch on me and shifted into position between my legs. I clung to him and held on as if my life depended on it.
I'm half convinced that he cast a mild vibration spell on my clit as I was so close again already. He was ramming me into the bed nice and hard, and all I could do was gasp and brace myself for the (hopefully) final climax. When it hit, it was powerful! I definitely squealed again - or perhaps screamed.

But lest you get jealous, he was good; YOU are always so much better. In fact, even though I felt a bit wrung out and hung up to dry - panting and convinced that the bed was spinning - I immediately wanted you to come over and cuddle with me while giving me kisses. But now that my attention was no longer Dean's prisoner, I was able to look over and see that the Viper was spanking you as you were giving Seamus quite the shagging, and thus, I couldn't determine if you were still competing against each other, and if so, who was winning.

I enjoyed the view for a long while, and interestingly enough, despite almost certainly passing out for a few minutes, Dean was eventually awake again and laying next to me as he watched you too. He was muttering under his breath: "That's right love, take it! Take one Harry pounding into you while another beats his arse. Such a good bottom!"

Then it seems Seamus lost this round - which must have been a stamina round - as he cried out obscenely and pumped out a few long and pearly stripes. You: "HA!"ed triumphantly. Then you looked over at me to see if I was still getting my toes curled by Dean. Upon seeing me watching you with an adoring smile, you got giddy.

"I get my Draco's arse! Who wants his, erm…"

Tiger chuckled. "Vagina? Actually, I've been waiting all night for this, or well, my turn. I may have shagged my doppelgänger before, but I've never even wondered what it would be like to shag a female version of myself. That said, since the opportunity has presented itself, I'll be damned if I pass it up!"

Viper kissed him. "Alright, but only if I get to have a go too."

"I'm good, thanks anyway," Seamus informed us, waving us away. He then crawled into bed next to his husband so that they could snuggle and frot as they half watched what the rest of us were doing.

Thank Merlin and Salazar that I'd recovered! Also, it really is not fair how quickly women can be ready to go again. Had you or I (as a man) had four orgasms in so short a time, I'm dead certain we'd be passed out until morning!

I let you decide on the logistics - which you thought about for a few minutes, positioning me however you liked - before deciding that the best way all around was going to be Tiger on his back, me on top of him, and you on top of me. That way, you had access to work me open as I rode and kissed Tiger.

Second unfair thing, how freaking short I am as a woman! I'm four and a half feet - if I'm even that - which is nice when I'm with you because you're only a foot taller than me. BUT THEM! They're both six feet or taller! Thankfully, I (and thus the Tiger) am spaced out evenly enough that it wasn't miles from my mouth to his, and actually, I suppose we must have long legs because he was able to wrap them around the both of us after you'd worked me open oh so nicely and got inside me.

Wow! This is so different when I have two holes rather than a hole and a shaft! I... kinda like it, if I'm honest.
You two did your best to shag me dirty rotten, thoroughly exhausting me all over again. And then I had the Viper utterly finish me off with a combination of dirty talk and a little choking - while you had a turn with Dean (to prove that you were so much better at everything and win the contest once and for all), while Tiger had a turn with Seamus (who absolutely was not about to lose the challenge, no matter what).

All in all, we wore each other out so much that we all passed out in a pile in the enormous bed in our playroom, and I have no idea who woke first - or if they played more in the morning - because I slept the longest and woke up completely alone. So I win, HA!

Which leads me to the final supremely unfair thing: Despite you casting a sobriety charm on me and ending the active effects of the alcohol on my body, I STILL woke up with a bloody hangover! Thank the Gods that Muffy was able to get me a hangover potion and give me a strawberry and orange smoothie for breakfast. Between the two, I was feeling better in no time. Now, off to grab my never ending cup of milk and do a bit of light jogging on our track. Perhaps when I'm done, I'll stop feeling like an overcooked noodle and be able to do some yoga.

I belong with you, you belong with me, you're my sweetheart!
Draco
P.S. Thank you for ending the curse on me while I was still sleeping so that I didn't wake up and freak out for a moment before remembering why I was a woman.

Chapter End Notes

So, before you assume that Draco must have done something with the dragon, consider that he sounds a bit traumatized and I don't think he would be if he'd done it. He'd be like: "Huh, well that was different." SO, alternative things that might have happened is that Draco might have NEEDED to drive off and fight the dragon until he severely injured or killed her to get the point across that she wasn't allowed to come to his home and threaten his family. Plus, if he done that, he would never want to speak of it again because he'd hate himself a tiny bit for lessening his favorite dragon population rather than increase it.
That said, this will not come up again in this part, so there's no need to worry about it :-)

Chapter 59

Chapter Summary

Harry gives his speech and Draco has class.

Chapter Notes

I just didn't feel right leaving y'all with only one of the speeches, and so, and posting two in a row ^_^

Sunday August 14, 2016

My Heart,

Your description of yesterday's engagement party was a bit more lighthearted than others may have described the party. See, you seem to think Viona was slightly exasperated with your embarrassing dad behavior. Not so much. Based on the faces she was making, you most likely crossed over from embarrassing dad into drunken embarrassment.

You know I am not one to judge, I have made some really poor decisions whilst drunk, remember the time I sat pants-less holding on to my bits under a table with your father and Sirius? And no one will ever forget the noodle incident. But I have been able to avoid getting so pissed in front of my kids that I thought doing a strip tease at their engagement party was a good choice. Luckily, I did stop you before it got out of hand, so I don't think Viona will be straight up murdering you. Although I would step very carefully around her.

Perhaps try some groveling. Presents probably wouldn't go amiss.

Drinking doesn't usually effect you that strongly, I wonder if you're getting sick or something.

Oh, and I won't name names, but a husband of yours is also not particularly pleased with your speech last night. Five minutes of "isn't marriage a terrible prison where your spouse constantly tells you what to do and is always right" ..... ha.ha.ha. Again, this husband of yours has made a complete arse of himself in the past under the influence of grapes. But groveling to him may help the situation. He doesn't require presents but a sound spanking would be lovely.

Our after-party last night was really good. I thoroughly enjoyed letting my competitive nature out to play. Somehow Seamus seems to think he won? Yeah, who took a break after just a little bit of shagging? Nope, I won ya prat. I took more dicks, more dicks at once, and was directly responsible for more orgasms. I'm not sure how the guy thinks he won. Sad really that he's so delusional.

It was actually really surreal taking you at the same time as Tiger took you. I could hear your voice and your moans, groans, and gasps, and I knew it was you. But you were daintier, obviously, and had some extra parts, minus one very missed part. But since you were facing Tiger and I was behind you, there was a weird sense of ... I was shagging you, but you didn't look much like you, and I was pretty much face to face with someone who has almost your exact same face. I actually REALLY liked it.

I wouldn't be averse to trying that again, especially if we did a bit of a chain where I shagged you while you shagged him or something that would put us in the same position but with all of my favorite parts of you where they belong. I swear, it was really cool. You should try it some time! I mean, not that I am going to ask to be damsel cursed, but maybe you and I and Viper could be in a similar position so you could see how hot it is to stare at your love's back and 'his' face at the same time.

I suppose it's a lot like what we did on our anniversary with the time-turner, but we were all facing in one direction that night.

Since you didn't get a chance to hear my speech last night, you know due to the intoxication, I can tell you exactly what I said:

“-Good evening everyone, thank you so much for coming and celebrating these two young people's first step towards creating a life together. If you didn't know already, I am Harry, one of Viona's Dads. She came into our lives when she was six months old, and despite adoption not having been in our plans at that moment, we knew she was meant for our family. She settled herself into our hearts and her stubborn little self refused to budge. Not that we particularly wanted her to. She was our first child, and such a great example of how wonderful children are, that we have pretty much never stopped!

“-But I'm not going to tell you about her arrival into our lives. Mostly because I could go on and on for hours about the perfection that is my daughter, but I think we eventually want to get to dancing tonight!

“-Instead I am going to tell you about a little boy who came into our lives a little over a month later.
This sweet boy had lived alone with his mother; he was her world, her only letting go when she knew he would be safe. He was shy since he had had very little interaction with other people, but he was smart as a whip. Sometimes strange things would happen around him, and most of the time, it was his house elf that hid from the rest of us, but made sure he was cared for. But not only was Alric clever, he was also powerful. And since Alric's birth mother isn't here to tell all of you embarrassing stories about her child, I will have to stand in for her.

“-Now Alric was clever and powerful, but also stubborn. In fact, he was so stubborn that he decided he was absolutely NOT going to use the loo. He was quite content with his nappies, ta ever so. When the staff at Unity House attempted to potty train him, he flooded the entire loo. I want you to picture this handsome young man as a teeny tiny toddler, red-faced and furious, standing in a loo he just flooded because someone dared tell him he should try and use the potty.

“-I suppose it would be quite unfair to embarrass poor Alric and not embarrass my Princess. But why only torture one when I can torture them both. This potty training issue was quite contentious with little Alric. However, as shy as he was, he was also very competitive. I wonder what that's like. During one of our very busy intake days, I ended up with an armful of Viona and my other arm full of Alric. Any of you that are parents know that the second your arms are full is when an emergency will hit. That's when I realized I had to use the loo desperately, but neither child was willing to be put down or handed off. So, I brought them into the loo with me. Once there, Viona let me know she wanted to be like Daddy and use the facilities, and Alric was not about to be shown up by some baby! So I conjured a toddler potty and a bar for Vivi to hold onto and let them take care of business.

“-For these two competitive children, taking care of business included fighting over the potty, pushing each other over, and woeing all over the bathroom.”

Once the laughter died down, I hurried to wrap up my speech. I had rambled quite a bit (shocking!) and needed to stop taking up so much time.

“-My Viona, you were the first to make me a Dad. I had such hopes and dreams for you and you’ve managed to surpass every one of them. You are brilliant and loving, loyal and cunning, beautiful in a way that your entire personality shines from your face.

“-Alric, I am so proud of the man you’ve become. It’s been a joy to see you come so far from that little boy I knew. I won’t ask you to provide for my Viona, she is capable of that, but I ask you to provide arms that are a safe harbor for her. I won't ask you to love her, you seem to be doing just fine on your own, but I ask you both to remember that love should be the foundation you build your lives on and keep seeing in each other someone that is worthy of that love. I won't tell you not to argue, because what's life without a little confrontation, but I ask that you remember to wield your words carefully because they can cause the deepest wounds. I won't tell you to be the other's better half, because you are each whole people in and of yourselves, but to be people who bring out the best in each other.

“-May you both be clever enough to keep your spouse fulfilled intellectually.

“-May you both be stubborn enough to hold on to both who you are and each other.

“-May you love enough to fill your home with joy.”

I will love you to the end of time,
Harry

Wednesday August 17th
Hooray!

Today was my last class! I'm already looking forward to the next session, but I'm even more looking forward to having a break for two and a half weeks. I'm planning to take a weekend trip to Africa with Zaire to visit his uncle, unless you want to do it. I just figured that I could ask the tribal elders if there's anything they recommend us putting into our class - which starts Monday the fifth of September.

Yes, Elena has a full class ready for us, and they all have permission to do anything they're comfortable with. Also, half of them are adults, and so, didn't need permission in the first place. I have a good feeling about this. It's going to be an hour of moving my body to a good drumbeat, which always makes me happy. I'm going to be in such an excellent mood after that class, that my new session (that also starts on Monday the 5th) might just have it easier than this first class.

Might. We'll see.

As for this class, I'm so giddy that I'm almost feeling high!

But let me backtrack a minute and talk about my Monday class. So, after reading your email about needing to make it up to not only Viona, but also you, I immediately went shopping and bought her a gorgeous tiara to wear on her special day next year. Then I also bought a new paddle to use on you for your requested spanking.

And for what it's worth, if you reread my speech, you'll see that nowhere did I mention anything about OUR marriage being like a prison; instead, I made it very clear that Alric - as a husband - would need to always let his WIFE (which neither of us are) have her way. I figured this would be a brilliant joke because he already knows full well that he is her favorite minion. Apparently, the brilliance of this joke lost something due to the fact that I was more than a little drunk at the time.

Moving on.

My class on Monday had an excellent start. When I walked in, we all automatically looked at my shirt to find that it said: I'm a badass with a nice ass - which made me smirk.

"Well he's not wrong," I said with a shrug.

One of my quieter students, a woman, frowned curiously. "How do you always manage to be surprised by the shirts you are wearing?"

I snorted in amusement. "I have NO IDEA how, but my husband has charmed all my workout shirts - as far as I can tell - so that no matter which perfect bespoke shirt I pick out and put on, it transforms into something like this by the time I get here."

"That must be so annoying!" She blurted out.

"I'd KILL my husband if he did that to me!" Another woman added fiercely.

"And after today, you'll know exactly how," I murmured with a smile. "But as for this, I'm actually getting used to it. Some days, it works out in my favor, and some days, they actually manage to make me laugh." Then I gestured to the room in general. "But as for now, go ahead and pair up. We're going to be working on the last pain spot, which probably not only seems obvious, but can very easily be lethal, and that's why I saved it for last."

I then cheekily saluted to the Mediwitch. "I'm so glad to see you here today, and while I personally know I will not be accidentally murdering any of my students today, I can't vouch for them murdering each other. I am relieved to know that you will be on hand to help out should the worst happen."

She harrumphed grumpily, crossed her arms over her chest, and snootily looked away. I shrugged. After a quick summoning spell, I had the practice dummy in front of me while surrounded by the entire class. "So, before I murder this dummy, I'm going to give you ANOTHER bonus spot - an alternative to use when the situation doesn't call for deadly force. That said, it really doesn't take much to break this spot, and can actually be lethal too if you're a tad overzealous."

With that, I punched the dummy in the nose hard enough that it flew back a little and landed flat on the floor. "But that spot is probably so obvious that you've instinctively tried to use it already." I said as I resummoned the dummy. Then I used the palm of my hand to firmly smack/grip its throat. "The throat - however - is really rather fragile. The cartilage is so thin and easily damaged that it is often likened to paper in professional fighting, and for obvious reasons, is usually off limits. That said, I'm not teaching you to win a professional fight, I'm teaching you to survive against hardened criminals - should you happen to come across one. Thus, if you deem it necessary, a punch to the throat can be an acceptable way to incapacitate or even kill an opponent."

At that point, I withdrew my hand and actually punched the dummy in the throat. It unsurprisingly landed on its back again. I then turned to pace before my class.

"Obviously, I do not want you to kill each other before the criminals even have a chance. This is why I am teaching you these things and advising you to use less force than necessary. Honestly, for my 'grading' system, simply landing the hit is enough to prove you know what you are doing and can do it when needed. So, I want you all to start with light taps and work your way ever so slightly harder until you have a good idea of how much pressure you would need to use. If you use enough to make your partner go ouch and rub his or her throat, you are nearly there and should stop. If you end up using enough force to make them cough and double over, congratulations, you've nearly killed them. Try to avoid that. If at any time you feel like you can't quite breathe or swallow, see my lovely assistant here."

"Arsehole!" She grumbled at me.

After they practiced a bit - honestly being amazed that it really didn't take much pressure to harm their partners - I had them spar so that they could practice using ALL the moves I've taught them during the course of the class in order to have everything fresh in their minds for the final on Wednesday.

Which was today.

So, today, when I walked into class, I looked down to see that you had picked possibly the best shirt yet.
I know I swear a lot
1. I'm very sorry
2. I'll try to be good
3. 1+2 are lies
4. You can fuck off

I couldn't even be mad or argue or anything!

Before class had started - and I'd gone in a bit early to set this up - I'd created a secret 'top box' so that Robards, Roche, Bletchley, and even Kingsley if he wanted (plus others they invited) could come and watch. Apparently the previous instructor didn't have a final exam so much as just evaluating them as they went so that - as long as they met his minimum expectations for passing - he could just pass them along to the next level. WELL, I've inadvertently made this class both levels in one - plus some.

Strangely, this made for a lot of talk around the Ministry and a LOT of people really want to see the results of this class. Plus, I really think that I as a teacher was being evaluated to see if my rather harsh methods are worth the multitude of complaints they almost certainly received. Probably at least half of them from the Mediwitch alone, hahaha!

Also, I'd arranged it so that I had a roomy and throne-like chair that I could sit on. The majority of my students were going to be sitting on a circle of cushions around the ring. The class was going to be paired up at my discretion and given ten minutes to spar. As they sparred, I evaluated their overall level, deciding if they had passed.

To be clear, those who are already Aurors - that were taking this as a refresher - only needed to pass the class. Those that were Aurors in training needed to pass the class as a first level, and then come back to attain a sort of second level - unless they managed to pass 'with honors' - meaning that I would feel confident clearing them for raid duty. If they don't pass with honors, they can wait a bit before taking the class again, but most of them will want to just get it over with and not have to worry about combat until they're due for a refresher.

Anyway, I thought about writing down a detailed blow by blow account of each mini battle to the death, except that to do that justice, I'd actually have to know their names so you'd know who I was talking about. So, rather than describe them all, I'll just overview the ones I've talked about the most.

I made fatty go first. I paired him up with decently competent (even to begin with) and sat back and stroked Wojtek's soft baby fur as I watched. "And remember, in order to pass, you not only need to demonstrate proficiency, but ALSO hit at least 4 of the 8 spots I taught you!"

You know, if we ever run short of money and need to earn a bunch quickly, I'm dead certain I could organize professional championship matches and make a killing - possibly both figuratively and literally.

At just short of ten minutes, decently competent had hit five spots, but fatty had only hit three. I was getting ready to cruelly fail his arse when he squeaked the fourth spot in at the last second AND managed to KO is opponent.

"Impressive..." I murmured. "You both pass. You can fuck off now. Unless you feel like watching the rest of the class."

Fatty had apparently had more than enough of me, because he left without so much as a word telling me off, although I do think he was grumbling it under his breath. Decently competent - once he was revived by the Mediwitch - opted to stay and watch.

I paired obviously gay with the witch that is always ogling me and they both passed. This didn't surprise me, to be honest, as both were making excellent progress. My timid little mouse and three others failed, which also did not surprise me. The rest of the women passed, one of which - along with two men - managed to actually obtain 'with honors' status.

All in all, I'm rather proud of all of them.

At the end of class, about half of the students had fucked off, but the other half were loitering to ask me various questions - such as one student who wanted to know if he would be required to run for an hour on his first day of the next session - to which I answered: "Of course!"

Suddenly, an old friend walked through the door. "Still an arse, I see!"

"Ginger!" I exclaimed happily, and then waved my hand in front of my nose. "Still drowning in perfume, I see."

She laughed. "I had the pleasure of watching the final exam, and now I'm wondering if YOU still have what it takes to pass this class - which you really should since you're teaching it."

"Oh-ho! Bring it on!" I invited, gesturing for her to come at me.

"Ladies," she purred with a grin at the three out of four that hadn't left yet. "I see you're all wearing comfortable shoes, which is fine if that's what you ALWAYS wear. But IF you EVER wear heels, you should really spar in them. They actually give you quite the advantage when kicking a bastard in his eye!" She lifted a foot so that everyone could see her lethal looking stilettos.

"ONLY if you can manage to lay a hit on me!" I stated confidently. And with that, she initiated a tornado of an attack that would have caught me off guard if I hadn't seen it in her eyes. Between the two of us, we gave the remaining students quite the show. The match lasted at least 20 minutes and ended when I chopped her in the neck at the same time as she punched me in the solar plexus. We both staggered back and - panting heavily - agreed to end it before things REALLY got serious.

I heard one student bemoan in a mutter: "I'm NEVER going to pass if THAT'S the standard he expects us to live up to!"
Ginger put her hands on her hips and gave me a light glare. "You know, I actually WAS a champion fighter in my youth, and it always aggravates me that you can go toe to toe with me. WHERE in the ever loving hell did you learn to fight like that?!

I was a little surprised. "You mean you don't just assume I learned it from the Dark Lord and his henchmen?"

She shook her head. "By all accounts, he was a sadistic bastard that used magic for everything he possibly could. I don't think he cared if his Death Eaters knew how to fight beyond the little it took to intimidate some muggles."

I laughed. "Ha! Well, you're actually right about that! He'd Crucio a person to death or feed them to his pet snake, but he'd NEVER be so crass as to actually punch a person with his own hand. So, to answer your question, I learned to fight from the Russian Mob."

She looked rather surprised. "REALLY???

I simply smirked and shrugged.

Happy to have ended our fight on good terms, Ginger and I hugged (so if I smell like a brothel tonight, that's why), and then agreed to go out to drinks. She is actually known for being a hardarse too, and so, when she spotted Wojtek sleeping on my throne, she utterly astonished everyone by walking over, picking him up, and talking to him in baby talk as she rubbed noses with him.

"Aw, such a cute widdle bay-bee!"

I came home after you were already asleep, and took a potion to counteract the mildly drunken stupor I'd cultivated so that I could write this email before joining you in bed. But once I sign off, I'm going to take a mild pain potion and go soak in the bath for a bit. I'm still sore from Ginger's punch, and also, strangely, my abdomen aches. Hopefully a bath will clear everything right up - especially if I put a potion to soothe sore muscles in the water.

Love you!

You say I am loved when I can't feel a thing, You say I am strong when I think I am weak, You say I am held when I am falling short, when I don't belong, oh, You say I am yours, and I believe, Draco
Monday August 22, 2016

My Warrior,

I miss you and Zaire. Alright, that's not completely true. I have had times of missing you, particularly when I've been waking up with empty arms in the morning. Alright, that's not true either, Atreyu is refusing to sleep anywhere but with me. But I do miss you in the morning when I wake up with only one of you in bed. And it has definitely meant Trey has been waking up earlier than usual, normally I am able to wiggle out and he sleeps a little longer wrapped up with you. With no Papa in bed? He is up bright and early!

But besides that one golden moment, I have basically climbed out of bed and hit the ground running every morning. Haven't even stopped to eat, just munched on whatever food Muffy has been forcing on me a few times per day. I've pretty much only stopped in time to crash into bed at night and I'm asleep before my head hits the pillow.

Why have I been so busy? Well, I know I told you about what was going on before you left for Africa with Zaire, but we've been preparing for new rescue horses. And we've been receiving them almost nonstop for three days running now. I really assumed once we were up and running, we would get the occasional horse here or there, occasionally a few at once if they didn't want to split up a little herd. But what the community of rescues have decided is because we have such a central but strangely harder to reach location, each of the overfull stables would send us a few of their horses. That way when they get notification of a new horse, they would have room to take on their care immediately.

As you know from still being home last week, the stables were already prepared but we had to prepare a muggle appropriate entrance and road from that to the stables. We can't exactly accept deliveries from the other rescues and ask them to just apparate the horse on over at their leisure!

So now we have an official Muggle appropriate rule at the stables, if you are within sight of the stables or the road leading to them, no wizarding gear allowed. It's not really an issue, no one was really using that portion of the grounds which is why I was so excited to be able to open the stables. And it's no longer 1996, and muggle wear is seen at the Manor pretty often.

However, I think I need to warn you so that you brace yourself for what you may see when you get home. You know how your father is secretly a marshmallow who will do anything for his grandchildren? The former blood purist is led around his ancestral home by a small army of children.

Side note: we need a new nickname for the trouble trio plus Atreyu. We already have a quartet so I don't want to do that. But I'm having trouble (haha, trouble) coming up with a good name for these four naughty little ones. Something about them being a foursome? Quads? The feisty foursome? The Calamity Quads? Some amalgamation of their names or initials? Clap? Atrephilum?

Hmm, we'll have to think about it.

Anyway, the sight I have to prepare you for. Your father is absolutely whipped by his grandchildren. So when Lissa put on her best "look how much I look like Grammy Cissa" face. Batting those big eyes of hers. And begged Grampy Lulu to "come look at the horsies with me Grampy." The devious thing hasn't called them horsies once, but all of a sudden she pulls out the baby voice to get what she wants. He "begrudgingly" agreed to come out, and then she told him about the muggle clothes rule.

You have quite a bit of muggle clothing, your father not so much. But the two of you are fairly similar in size, so Lissa brought him to our closets and found him a pair of denims and then eventually he just adjusted the size of one of my shirts when we realized none of yours were particularly suited to the stables. Second side note: we need to get you some stable-y clothes.

Eventually Lissa managed to drag him, dressed in denims and a bright blue plaid flannel shirt, to the stables. Where he ended up falling in love with the horses. He insisted they were regal creatures, practically designed to carry royalty. Whatever you need to say to convince yourself Lulu. So for the last three days, your father has been sweating in the stables and riding all over the Manor grounds with at least one grandchild on his lap, wearing those denims and plaid shirts.

He wears a cowboy hat.

So, in case you come home and that's the first sight you see, no you are not hallucinating, your father has decided he's an American cowboy.

You're welcome,
Harry

P.S. Hurry home we miss you!

P.P.S. A cowboy.

---

Tuesday August 23rd
Harry,

My... father... is a cowboy???

Thank you for warning me. I DEFINITELY needed to wrap my head around that before seeing it. Although, he's a rather good looking cowboy, and so, I know I would look good if I dressed up like one too. Speaking of dressing up, I have plenty of clothes that would be suitable for a stable! Just because they are a bit fancier than you deem appropriate, doesn't mean I can't wear them in a stable if I want to.

But moving on.

No wait, I need another minute to wrap my head around the fact that I literally JUST SAW my father riding around on horseback with Persephone. He's... Well, as you said, completely wrapped around their tiny fingers. It's surreal to see!

Alright, as I was saying.

So I had a great weekend in Africa with Zaire. We not only visited with his uncle, but also had the Zulu wizarding elders help us refine our curriculum. They actually - unsurprisingly - knew which cultures had similar yet unique dances that could be taught together harmoniously. So, Zaire and I are ready to go!

So, once I came back from Africa, while I was still reeling a bit from the sight of my father, Elena popped in. She originally wanted to talk to the both of us, but since you were busy with your horses and I'm the one more likely to say no, she decided to talk with me first so I'd have some time to think things through before we talked about it together and made a decision.

So, erm, apparently - well you know how Elena's school has attracted important people almost from the very beginning because Ekaterina uses her fame to pull them in? It seems that the casting director for a major play in London came to scout for new talent at Elena's school and fell in love with Shtara. They want to offer her a role in an adaptation of a famous movie - one we all love, actually. They think she would be PERFECT for the role, and... well, if we agree, they'll have her singing and dancing on stage three nights a week for several months.

Since Shtara is a full time student at Elena's school, Elena can easily work around her performance schedule of Friday, Saturday, and Sunday nights, giving her a break on some homework if necessary and seeing to it that Shtara doesn't try to do too much.

Personally, I feel this is the same as River wanting to learn massage. By that I mean that Shtara is going to Elena's school in the hopes that some day, she'll be able to use her talent and skills in plays, shows, and the like, and so, I want to say yes. On the other hand, she's ONLY 13. I'm not certain she's truly ready for this. And so, I definitely need to talk to you and hear your thoughts on the subject.

Side note, did you get a chance to see Elena while she was here? Isn't her baby bump just GORGEOUS? She found out and told us in mid April, and was probably at least a month along when she found out, that puts her at 6 months - give or take a week or so - and so, her bump is rounded enough to be obvious, but still small enough that her overall appearance is slender and delicate.

I know Kisa just had her baby - but since apparently being only a nephew doesn't garner the relevant details, I have no idea if she had a boy or a girl or if it was a day or a month ago. In any case, my point is that since Kisa had a baby recently, should WE throw Elena her baby shower? Or is Kisa still determined to do it? I suppose we still have a few months for Kisa to decide and let us know.

But I'm going to have to sign off now and ask Muffy to bring me a smoothie or something. I'm hungrier than I should be, considering that I've been feeling off all day. But you want to know something surprising? While in Africa, the Tribe Wizards still had rather a lot of Mopane Worms left from the rainy season. They catch them by the loads around the beginning of May and then dry the majority of them so they last the rest of the year. We didn't have any the first time we were there because we were honored guests and they were trying to impress us. This time, we were welcomed like distant relatives, and so, given a slightly more immersed experience.

Thus, the worms, but where I was going with this is that they offered us some because they are considered a delicious delicacy. Zaire looked disgusted but gave them a go, then politely declined to have any more. As for me, I also thought they looked a bit, erm… less than appetizing, but to my surprise, they had this certain something that I just can't describe. I ate a LOT of them, and even now, I'm strangely craving them.

I wonder if Muffy can get me some...

Off to find a bite to eat!

One way or another, I'm gonna getcha,
Draco
P.S. I brought Amala with us to Africa this time – as you must have noticed since she wasn't home – and she spent half the time wandering away and staying out for so long I was honestly afraid that she'd been eaten by a lion or something – since she CLEARLY doesn't have the same survival skills she'd have if she never got injured and brought home with me. But she came back to me each night to sleep in our hut with me and Zaire. And so... maybe I might be getting those grandbaby cheetahs after all?
Chapter 61

Chapter Summary

Harry is concerned and Draco wonders if he's coming down with that summer cold he's overdue with.

Wednesday August 24th
My Cowboy,

Yes, you have clothes that could be considered the bespoke version of stable clothes. But if you're actually going to tromp around, get covered in horse hair, hay, and whatever ends up on the ground, maybe you shouldn't wear ridiculously expensive gear. Perhaps you should wear some comfortable clothes that you can stain up and not worry overly much about what they're covered in.

Yes, your father was quite the handsome cowboy. My adorable Malfoy Cowboys! But Lucius certainly didn't hold a candle to you; when you came out and took one of the mares out for a ride? Yeah, you make a really fit cowboy as well. I wanted to peel all your clothes off and have a clandestine roll in the hay with you. Just thinking about it right now makes me want to wake you up and drag you outside to have some desperately filthy outdoor shagging.

I won't because you really have been acting all weird with your stomach aches. Maybe you feel off because you ate a ton of worms!! You ate worms Draco. Worms. I mean, I understand different cultures have different eating habits. And if I'd been raised in a place where that was common I probably wouldn't think anything of it. I can logically tell myself it's a protein and the idea that it's gross is all in my head.

But it's really fucking gross. Can we just both pretend you never said anything about eating them to me? I can live in a state of denial where I have never had my tongue in the mouth of someone who eats worms.

So glad we agree.

So, about our Shtara. I have concerns, I would need to have some in depth talks with casting or the directors or whoever will mostly be in charge of my girl. But, if I feel my concerns will be addressed and she will be cared for? How could I possibly say no to this amazing opportunity for her?

Here are my concerns … she needs to still be able to make her education and her family a priority. She can't just be in rehearsals all day, performances at night, essentially burning the candle at both ends. I would have to feel comfortable with her rehearsal and performance schedule that it would still leave room for her to learn and for her to be able to be a thirteen year old little girl. And you know I have to be able to see my baby, I'm not going to go weeks without her sweet face!

Another concern: I want some sort of bodyguard for her. Okay, that makes me sound crazy. I don't really need her to have a "bodyguard,” but there have been too many cases of child actors being taken advantage of, whether it's emotionally, financially, or physically. It doesn't have to be someone who is a bodyguard, but I would want to have a nanny or a tutor or one of us with her at all times. I don't want there to be even a twenty minute window where someone can ask her to "talk privately for a few minutes” and destroy her childhood. Basically I want her kept safe from crazy stage parents and any other trappings child stars are vulnerable to.

Oh, obviously we would need to ask her if this is even something she wants. Maybe she has no interest in being on stage …. ahahahahahahah! Bwahahahah! Hee Hee Hee. Ho ho hehehehe. Phew! Wow! That might have been the most ridiculous thing I've ever said.

But we should talk with her about this before we truly make our decision.

And I'd like her to have a tutor. I know she wants to keep up her classes at Lainie's school, but I think it would be ideal for her to have a tutor who is specifically watching to make sure nothing falls through the cracks.

But that's just my take. If you don't want her to do it I will support you in that. I just think if we can make sure she is safe and isn't overdoing it, I am willing to let her chase her dreams. We've never stopped any of the other kids from pursuing their dreams, I don't know why we would start now.

I can't believe you don't remember Kisa having had her baby! I … actually I think she went into labor Wednesday while you were in your last class. I did tell you all about it the next morning, but now I'm wondering if you were doing your half asleep thing where you pretend you're listening to me but you're really just sleeping a little extra with your eyes half open.

Kisa had Aleksei Thursday morning, the eighteenth, roughly an hour after midnight. From what I've heard, he was quite big, he's absolutely beautiful, and Kisa is "never doing this again Blaise Christopher. Do you fucking hear me?!?"

Ah, pregnancy hormones and labor pain. I can't tell you how glad I am that we never have to do that again. I never again have to deal with contractions to get a kid out of a hole I don't even have. I feel your pain Kisa, never again!

Don't worry, she definitely loves you, you're her first nephew. She made sure to have us messaged immediately, I told you about the birth, and then I sent our congratulations and a gift. Actually I think tomorrow we should try to have a magi-skype date so we can meet little Aleksei. I'm getting so antsy for babies. I want to snuggle and smooch little Aleksei and I can't wait to snuggle and smooch our grandchildren!

Yes, I saw our Lainie and her baby bump. She is absolutely glowing. She's just one of those beauties that pregnancy only illuminates their features. Obviously I can wait because we want that baby born healthy, but I am so ready to snuggle this little one!

Oh! I have no problems hosting her baby shower, but maybe we can ask Kisa tomorrow during that skype date what she'd like to do. It can really go either way, she could be angry with us for taking it away from her, or she could be relieved if we take something off her plate.

Okay, I can't hold it any longer. Hope you're not TOO tired because I am totally going to wake you up and make you shag me under the moonlight!

Saddle up cowboy!

Harry

Friday August 26th
The fire of my heart,
I love when you want me so much that you literally wake me up to have me! Especially when what you want is a kinky outdoor shag. I also loved that it was still very much warm outside and we didn't need to cast a warming charm to not freeze.

Our Magi-Skype with Kisa and Alexsei was so lovely. He's adorable! That said, I am SOOOOO glad that I am done having babies for good! Never again, I tell you. The pregnancy part wasn't so bad, if I'm honest, nor the baby part - although having three of them in one go was a bit rough. It's more to do with the fact that our youngest are finally old enough to play by themselves, need less attention in general, and going back to the diaper changing baby stage really just feels like a step back.

And besides, both Elena and Eris are going to give us grandchildren. I don't care that Eris "hasn't quite decided yet," we both know that she's going to keep the little peanut or she would have gotten it over with by now. She's not an indecisive one by any means, but I think she's giving herself extra time to think through everything that might happen - and will happen - before she makes the decision final. Otherwise, she's hoping that the time will run out and the decision will be taken out of her hands.

But that said, I do completely understand what you mean about wanting to snuggle a precious little baby. Watching Kisa nurse her baby was like sheer perfection, and by that, I mean that the magic and joy of a new baby is so wonderful, that watching that new bond is like having a tiny peek at heaven. And as someone who has nursed - ANOTHER thing I'm so glad I'm never doing again! - I intuitively understand the quiet joy she was feeling; how our little ruthless mobster could look at her son with such a fond expression her face. Fond nothing! Pure love!

Moments like that remind me why I agreed to parent 15+ children with you.

In other news, we have a meeting to meet with the casting director and a few others working on the play. We're going to be discussing all of your concerns, and since the meeting is in Elena's office, she will be on hand to help us ask any questions we didn't think of, and also has enough experience ‘in the field' - so to speak - that she'll understand the terminology. Basically, she'll have our backs if we get a bit confused. I daresay that by the time we're done, we'll be ready to make a decision.

And just to address some of your concerns before we even go into the meeting, I would naturally hire a nanny-like person who'd be ready to hex anyone iffy at the slightest provocation. As much as I would like to believe that the entire theater would be a safe space for our daughter, I'm definitely realistic enough to recognize that it's probably not. So long as we can minimize any risk, I truly believe that our children deserve to follow their hearts.

I mean hell! I supported Miles becoming a drag queen, didn't I? After that, I think it's safe to say that our kids could come to me and say that they were going to go explore the galaxy, and aside from being sad that I may never see them again, I'd be happy and proud to be the father of such ambitious children.

Let's hope that doesn't happen!!!

Ugh! My whole body aches! I feel like I fell asleep in class and my students took that as their cue to beat me half to death! Not to mention, I woke up about an hour earlier than usual because I felt like I needed to have an urgent and unpleasant conversation with the toilet, but once I got there, nothing happened. I ended up drinking from my never ending cup of milk while I waited to see if there was an actual reason my body woke me up so alarmingly, but nope. I soon felt right as rain. So, I tried to go back to bed, only I couldn't sleep because I was hungry, and upon reflection, I wonder if it was a gnawing hunger that woke me and I simply mistook it.
Otherwise, well, I AM overdue for this year's summer cold. Maybe I'm coming down with the dragon flu.

But even though I've already had a smoothie with a nice side of sauerkraut for breakfast, I honestly feel like I haven't eaten in hours. I'm thinking a full fry up - pancakes, bacon, sausage, eggs, tomatoes, beans, fried potatoes, and orange juice. I feel like I'm forgetting something... OH! Fruit! I should have some berries to go with my pancakes!

You wouldn't HAPPEN to be making that for lunch, would you? I guess I'm just going to have to try to find the kitchen and find out. Love you!

I touch you once, I touch you twice, I won't let go at any price,
Draco
Chapter 62
Chapter by ladyroxanne21

Chapter Summary

Hannah pays a visit.

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Saturday August 27, 2016

My Love,

If you aren't feeling better by Monday, you ARE going to see Healer Rowe. I've already scheduled your appointment for noon. Fine, Pippa scheduled the appointment but I asked her to. If it's the dragon flu, we want to get you quarantined before you go spewing it all over the wizarding world!

You know how worried I get. What if you picked up something dangerous while you were in Africa with Zaire? What if all those disgusting things you ate that we will never speak about again did something terrible to your insides. You could have like tapeworms or something. A parasite Draco, you could have a parasite! You could have multiple parasites! Leeching off of you and your magic, taking over your body. Oh Merlin my love, what are we going to do?

Maybe we shouldn't wait until Monday. I was just thinking it was a little sickness or something, but after I think about everything you've been doing and all the different places you've been, this could be really really serious.

Haha, no I'M Sirius! Not funny Sirius, this is scary!

And have you noticed Atreyu with you the last week or so? He uh, okay don't take this the wrong way alright? He says you smell funny. Yesterday when you came searching for us, you seemed surprised that I had already started making pancakes for lunch. I hadn't had time to read your email at that point, so how did I know you wanted breakfast for lunch and pancakes with berries specifically (and a bunch of other stuff but still)?

The answer is, I didn't. Atreyu had slept in a bit with you as usual, although he was definitely awake much earlier than you were. When he came out, I asked him what we should make for brunch. He asked for Papa Pancakes. "Uhhh, what are Papa Pancakes little man?"

"Daddy, you know, pancakes smell like Papa. Every day Papa smell yummier. He's … dulce." And have you noticed the cute way his nose scrunches up when he's searching for a word? I want him to keep his Spanish speaking skills, and I definitely want him to feel comfortable speaking English, but I am a truly terrible Daddy because I don't want him to lose his little nose scrunch when he can't find the right word in the other language.

And in case you weren't aware, dulce means sweet.

As much as it's probably nice for Atreyu that you smell like pancakes, what if that's a sign of something bad? I mean, what if it's like smelling burnt toast means you're having a stroke! Which incidentally, is just a myth, sometimes you smell weird things when you're having a stroke if the stroke messes with your scent receptors while your brain is misfiring, but burnt toast is not specific to any actual issue. I just mean that whole idea that the scent of you would be an indicator of something we should worry about.

Okay, I know you enjoyed me waking you up for a midnight shag, but otherwise you hate being woken up. So .. er … maybe I'll come suck you awake and then you'll be happy and then I'll force you to go to the Healer as soon as you've come down from your shag high.

Yeah, that's a good plan.

Incoming?
Harry

---

Sunday August 28th
My worrywart,

I'm fine. I woke up Saturday feeling delightful, thanks to you. Also, this morning was fine. I was just a little hungover feeling - despite not having had anything to drink. I don't even think I need to see Rowe tomorrow, especially since you scheduled it for JUST when I plan to wake up, but I suppose that if it'll make YOU feel better, I'll suffer through an exam.

As for Atreyu thinking I smell like pancakes, that's weird, but better that than dragon dung or something.

As for today, I had no plans other than a lazy Sunday, but to my surprise, I got an unexpected visitor. Well actually, two. My first visitor was Ramsey. You have never met him, and since I've only mentioned him maybe two or three times, I would not at all be surprised if you don't remember him. HE'S the man in charge of interrogations - for the most part - and was with me when I talked with Gretchen before going undercover as her.

He must have heard that I usually get up before noon and assumed that this meant that I would be up, dressed, and ready to receive visitors at noon on the dot. To his dismay, I was still naked and in the middle of my morning yoga. Muffy not only informed me that I had a visitor, but popped him into the room at my command. So he stood there, flustered, and stammered out:

"S-s-sweet Merlin man! P-p-put some clothes on!"

I gave him a look that wondered how stupid he was. "You have come to my home JUST after I've woken up. I haven't even performed my morning routine - which includes a shower - and so putting clothes on now is an all around bad idea. Either suck it up and get on with the reason you are here, or leave and come back in a couple of hours when I'm ready to get dressed."

"Erm..." He took a few deep breaths as he thought this over, and then nodded in agreement. "Right. I erm, well, I'm h-h-here because I have something to ask you. Something important." His nerve was clearly hardening as he talked because he stopped stammering.

"Alright, I'm listening," I murmured as I struck Warrior Pose and held it for a good 30 seconds.

"You see, it's like this, I've had some time to think over your interview with Gretchen Minch, and I've come to the conclusion that you were definitely using talents other than just sympathy, understanding, and charm. You seemed to know things that she didn't actually tell you. I think... I "Is that so?" I murmured as I shifted so that I could brace my arms and head on the floor and do a head stand.

"Yes... And I want you to teach the skill to one of my Aurors," Ramsey stated confidently.

"Oh?" I questioned with a look that probably lost something considering that I was upside down.

"Yes, on Wednesdays - before or after your class - I have an Auror named Fierston that I think would do well learning Legilimency and Occlumency - as I know that Occlumency is usually taught first, and is somewhat necessary to learn before Legilimency."

I ended my headstand a bit earlier than I planned so that I could stand up and look him in the eye with an even but potentially deadly look. "And - just assuming for a moment that you're right - WHY would I want to teach ANYONE this potentially... harmful skill?"

Ramsey sighed. "Listen, I know - I understand - that this is a... grey skill. It could be used for bad, but - just as YOU did - it can also be used for good. I've known Fierston for a long time and he's one of the genuinely-wants-to-help sort. When I partner with him on an interrogation, I let him be the 'good cop' while I play the 'bad cop' because I don't think he has it in him to be the 'bad cop' - even if it's just pretend. He also has that soothing quality that makes a person trust and open up to him. I think you'd actually like him."

"My liking him has nothing to do with the matter at hand. I'm NOT concerned with passing on this skill. You think Robards hasn't begged me to do so before?" I scoffed.

He sighed rather morosely. "Fine... just... Well, I thought you actually DID care. I guess I was mistaken, but I thought the reason you conduct raids and teach unarmed combat is that you give a shit about justice, and that you not only want it served, but you also want it done with a certain standard of respect and competence."

I glared at him because he might just have hit my ONE nerve on this subject. I took a deep breath and stared him in the eyes as I thought this over. To my relief, he wasn't hiding anything sinister - and I would have known because his mind was such a disorganized mess that I don't think he could have hidden guilt over sneaking a biscuit - much less an actual secret.

"Fine, I'll think it over and talk with my husband."

"Do you think you'll have made a decision by the time we conduct our raid on Wednesday?"

"Wait WHAT??" I demanded because this was the first I was hearing of it.

Ramsey blushed and looked away. "Oh, sorry, I guess you wouldn't have been told yet because we're still gathering up the last of the intel. But I'm dead certain you'll be getting a notice of it on Monday morning."

I sighed and ran a hand through my hair, a little grumpy that Robards had been ordered to wait until September and was pushing it by conducting a raid the day before. But at least this way, we'll have the actual raid over and I'll be able to stand with you the next day in King's Cross as we see our kids off.

"All I can promise is that I'll think about it," I stated, basically telling him that it was time to leave before I lost my temper and kicked his arse out.
But before he could take my hint, Hannah popped out of the floo. "Draco darling! Oh, looks like I have excellent timing! Have you gone for your run with Harry yet?"

"I was planning to skip that today and take an extra long soak in the Onsen instead."

"Ooo! I might have to stay and invite myself into the Onsen with you!" She cried out gleefully as she came over and kissed me on the cheek.

"Is there a playful reason for your unexpected visit, or are you just planning to use me and run?" I asked with a flirty smirk.

She grinned at me. "Well, I DO plan to use you a bit, but then maybe I can stay and play."

"WAIT!" Ramsey blurted out. "This is starting to sound like something that could get me murdered in my sleep if your husband finds out I knew and didn't tell him!"

Hannah and I both laughed.

"Better make sure your ward spells are top notch from now on," I warned him. He paled.

Grinning madly, Hannah pulled a file out of her small purse and flopped it on the table next to us. "This one is an OLD case. Thus, it's not urgent. The victims are already long dead even if they survived their disappearance."

"Oh, sounds interesting," I murmured, sitting down and ordering Muffy to bring us some tea and biscuits. "And don't forget the Sanguinaccio Dolce!"

Hannah explained even as I flipped through the file. "Ever heard of the Princes in the Tower?"

"Erm... Can't say that I have," I murmured with a shrug.

"Well, that's probably because it's not taught in Hogwarts - as far as I've heard. It's firmly part of muggle history. You see, in 1483, there was a King named Edward the Fourth. His oldest son and heir - named Edward the Fifth - and his younger brother Richard were 12 and 9, respectively. On April 9th of that year, Edward the Fourth died from an illness, making his son Edward the Fifth the new king - his coronation set for May 4th.

"However, before that date arrived, Edward the Fourth's adult younger brother - also named Richard - postponed the coronation to June 22nd, and in the meantime, had Edward the Fifth placed in the Royal and traditional residence of the Tower of London. This was the place where Royalty had long stayed whilst awaiting their coronation, so this was not an unusual thing - despite the fact that the Tower of London is ALSO quite famous as a prison.

"At some point before June 22nd, the younger Richard joined his brother in the tower, and the older Richard postponed the coronation indefinitely so that HE could then seize the throne and crown himself Richard the Third. Which he did by having a group of his powerful supporters declare the Princes both illegitimate, making him the true legitimate Heir to the throne.

"The Princes were seen playing a few rare times that summer, but never again. An attempt to rescue them in late July failed, and it seems that it was rather widely accepted that they were already dead by that point, likely murdered at the command of King Richard the Third."

She took a break to eat a biscuit and sip on some tea.

I shook my head. "The nerve of some muggles! I cannot IMAGINE murdering any of my family, even if they literally stood in my way as I - oh I dunno, needed to save the world or something."

Hannah nodded in understanding and agreement, even as Ramsey blurted out: "But wait! If they disappeared and were assumed murdered by their uncle, then WHAT are you doing here - nearly 500 years later - claiming this is some sort of case to work on?"

Hannah decided that she'd been a bit rude and held out her hand for Ramsey to shake. "Detective Inspector Hannah Giles - yes I kept my name despite being married," she added for my benefit.

Ramsey shook her hand. "Auror George Ramsey, pleasure to meet you."

Returning her attention to me, she said: "I know that we have literally NOTHING to work with, but I'm hoping that won't matter."

I sighed and closed my eyes. "We'll see. NOT that we'll be able to validate anything either way."

"I know," she murmured.

Relaxing and letting my mind drift, I got an image of two boys with light brunet or possibly strawberry blond hair. They were playing in a sort of garden, but then were asked to come in. I described everything I could to Hannah, including what I could see of the castle.

"Once inside the rather dismal castle, the boys were led down toward the dungeons where the older one grew alarmed and protested. 'I am your KING! By what right have you brought us here?!!' A man wearing clothes that I imagine must be the highest of muggle fashion at the time, shrugged carelessly. 'Your Uncle has already claimed the throne and you well know it. He doesn't want EITHER of you to grow up thinking that you have a chance in hell of taking it from him, and so, he's ordered me to put a stop to that possibility.'

"The man gestured toward a dark and terrifying cell that makes me shiver from the cold just looking at it. 'He suggested that - since you are his beloved nephews - you simply be put in a safe and secure cell until you go quite mad and cannot remember who you are or what your birthright once was.' Then the man turned and pointed to a dark passageway. 'But since he put the matter into MY hands, I have decided to go in a different direction. I do not believe that murdering CHILDREN will ever solve a problem. But obviously, I also cannot have you come back once you are grown and cause trouble for my King. So...'

"He walked over to a box right next to the inky black passageway. 'In here lie two bodies. They were unfortunate children of poor families that died of illness and starvation. That said, they are close to the same size and look of you, and so, they shall be you. As of right now, you are both dead. IF you should ever return and try to claim otherwise, their bodies will be uncovered to prove that you are lying. Also, your mother and sisters will be in danger of dying mysteriously as well should you ever try to contact them.' He looked at them very menacingly to get his point across.

"The two Princes swallowed nervously and exchanged a scared look. Before they could so much as accept their fate, the man snatched them both by the arm and dragged them down the dark passageway. It's long and so dark that absolutely nothing could be seen. The boys were inadvertently banged into the walls a couple of times, but eventually, they're in a cave - an old well? I'm not certain, but there's a ladder that leads up to an iron grate.

"At the top, there are a group of men. The heartless man stands there imperiously as the men murmured respect for his station: 'My Lord.' He then gestures to the boys. 'Take them to the shores of Africa or the colonies of the America - I do not care which - and sell them as slaves. I cannot condone the slaying of Royal Blood, but I do not have any qualms about them living out the rest of their lives in misery - to make it clear the fates of their loved ones if they should ever DARE return.'

"At this point, the men cover the boys' heads with, hmm... burlap sacks? The vision goes dark for a moment...... and now it has returned. The boys are in a brightly lit room, naked, and being inspected by men of every imaginable nationality. 'The bidding starts at 500 silver!' The boys are poked and prodded, trying their best not to cry, as the bidding gets ever higher and higher..."

I fell silent as the vision showed me things I had Yesenia obliviate from my head. Hannah was weeping softly, not needing me to speak to understand what I wasn't saying. After a good minute or two of silence, I spoke again.

"The younger one died nearly right away of injuries sustained while... but the older one seems to have survived quite some time before... murdering himself. With a knife to the neck and wrists, because he just couldn't take any more abuse. And so, you are right, they are both most definitely dead. I'm sorry."

Hannah was still weeping but nodded in acceptance. "No wonder no one ever claimed responsibility for their deaths. As far as the responsible parties knew, they were still alive somewhere. That also explains why no one seriously accused anyone else - as would have been in King Henry the Seventh's best interest after he seized the throne. He could have publicly charged Richard the Third with their deaths and had him executed for treason - but he didn't. He must have believed them to still be alive somewhere..." She sighed heavily.

I put a hand on her shoulder to comfort her, which she patted gratefully.

"In any case, you're right in that we cannot validate any of this. I'm going to look into any surviving records of slave auctions from that time to see if there is any sort of claim of Princes - or even brothers - brought in at the same time. That won't be proof, but it will validate it in my book."

I nodded in agreement. "Now if you'll excuse me, I need to find my husband and make a call to my Mind Healer. If you plan to stay for a soak in the Onsen, I'll probably join you in a bit."

She shrugged and murmured something indistinct as I stood and left the room. I called Yesenia first, and then wrote this down before she Obliviated the traumatic part of the vision out. I can handle knowing what happened, but I cannot handle having the vision of it in my head.

Now, I'm ready to find you, get something to eat, and go for that soak in the Onsen.

And I'll be loving you until I'm seventy,
Draco

Chapter End Notes

Certain speculation will be answered definitively in the next chapter, which I will post tonight or tomorrow :-)

Draco was resisting because Harry was insisting and triggering his stubborn reflex, lol ^_^
Monday August 29, 2016

Damnit Draco,

I swear, I will drag your arse to the damn healers. I don't care if you are completely starkers, kicking and screaming, you.are.going!

You've been feeling off for days. You say you're feeling hungover while not actually having had something to drink the night prior. And now that I look back on it, the few times recently you've had a bit to drink, you definitely acted much more drunk than I think you normally would have given the amount of alcohol you consumed. I mean, sure, you had more than just a glass of wine with a good meal, but you certainly weren't actively trying to get drunken and disorderly at your daughter's engagement party.

In other words, I don't care what you try to tell me, I don't care how you're justifying your feelings, I'm glad you felt wonderful Saturday morning when I sucked you awake, your arse has an appointment with Healer Rowe and you will be making it. I might seem nice and could even be considered a pushover when it comes to my family, but I have no shame in siccing Molly, Narcissa, AND Grandmama on you if you refuse to get checked out.

Honestly, even if you're right and you are completely one hundred percent healthy, what will going hurt? You'll have wasted an hour? An hour spent with me that just so happens to include being able to chat and catch up with Rowe.

And if you want to really dig your heals in, we have to report to Rowe how Atreyu handled the full moon anyway. And I know how seriously you take your son's safety and health.

I was so relieved to see that the potions you and Sebastian had created helped him essentially sleep through the full moon. It was good to know we can keep him from hurting himself or others. But until I saw him transform, I was holding out hope that he wasn't truly Lycanthropic. I thought maybe I had misread the signs and it was a coincidence he was scenting us. Well, it's not something I would wish for him, but if we have the means to keep him from pain during his transformation then what harm is his Lycanthropy really doing?

Oh! Back to your health. I am putting my foot down, I don't care if this is a raid to save everyone on the planet, if Rowe does not give you the all clear health wise, you are NOT conducting a raid on Wednesday. You know how proud I am of you, I know you've worked crazy hard, and it's been years since I've tried to talk you out of Auror work. And if you just have a cold or a stomach bug that's just kind of hard to shake? Go, raid your bum off. But if there's something that could hurt you or distract from your ability to keep safe? Nope. No. Hell no. Not a chance. Got it?

You have so much going on in your pretty little head Darling. We've a new son, two pregnant daughters, another daughter who just had life changing surgery, you're teaching Auror training classes, you're still consulting with Hannah, you're apparently going to discuss with me whether or not you will teach someone the insanely dangerous skill of Legilimens, I think it's very likely that whatever is going on with you not feeling well might be your body's way of begging you to take a break.

Maybe sit still for three or four days in a row, eat biscuits and drink tea while you talk wedding plans with Vivi. Snuggle up and watch terrible anime nonsense with Siri, Zwei, and Zaire. Sit in on a lesson or two with Jaz and see how far she's come with her speech patterns. Will you please do that for me?

Seriously, I am asking you to just take a break, take a breather, sit still for a moment, for me?

However I am NOT asking you to see Rowe. You are going. But if it helps, I will come butter you up by at least waking you up your favorite way. By the time you realize I'm dragging you to the healer, you'll be a boneless puddle of sated goo and won't have the energy to argue.

Forever,
Harry

Monday August 29th
Oi mutt! -_-

That was such a dirty, Slytherin trick that I'm almost impressed! Buttering me up, ha! More like turning my brain off! By the time I was coming down from the orgasmic high, you had already cast dressing spells on me and handed me a nice strawberry banana smoothie.

I really was too out of it to realize that you were bringing me to my appointment until after you grabbed me and Apparated me to the check in desk. That's when I had a chance to look at what I was wearing - half convinced that I must still be naked - only to find that you'd picked my favorite set of light blue lounge bottoms, and a black tee shirt that said: Help! I think I'm going slightly mad!

I glared at you because REALLY?? You couldn't have at least chosen the Suck it up Princess shirt?! Bah!

Healer Rowe unflinchingly ignored my irate glare and grumpy growls and asked you what the problem was. You explained all my symptom: the aches and pains, the extra sensitivity to alcohol, the occasional hangover when I didn't even drink, and the just generally feeling off for quite some time.

She was giving us a look that made it clear she was wondering if we'd accidentally omitted any information. "Did you perhaps take a fertility potion a while back and forget about it?"

"NO!" We both blurted out.

"Don't even joke about that! When I thought Harry was hinting that he wanted another baby, I literally panicked and we both agreed that we were DONE having babies!!"

"Hmm..." she murmured in thought. "Well let me cast a general diagnostic spell..." She hummed to herself for a few moments. "Well... that's UNUSUAL..."

"WHAT?!" We both blurted out in demand.
"Erm... let me be certain first..." She spelled a pair of glasses and then put them on, presumably so that she could literally look inside me. "In all my years... I've NEVER..."

"WHAT?!?!?!" I roared, standing up to glare at her fiercely.

"Calm down, love," she bade with a look like she was a grandmother used to childish tantrums. "It's nothing BAD, just... highly unusual and unexpected."

"Please tell us already, before I explode from worry!" You exclaimed.

I gestured emphatically to indicate you. "Yeah. That!"

"So while I DO believe you about not taking a fertility potion, I'm rather interested to know how you managed to grow a womb without it," she murmured, still peering at my abdomen with those glasses as if she was studying a rare new breed.

"Erm... What?" I blurted out.

"Are you saying...?" You added, looking incredulous.

"I'm saying that I do not know how, but your body GREW a uterus at some point about... oh... 7 ish weeks ago."

I dropped my head into the palm of my hand, already having a strong feeling of dread as to where this was going.

"And then conceived. Which, if you were a woman, would place you at about 9 weeks into a 40 week pregnancy," she continued as if I wasn't now repeatedly banging my palm knuckles against my forehead. "BUT THEN..."

You stopped looking at me in concern as we both looked back at her.

"It seems that, hmm... about 4 weeks ago, you somehow GREW ANOTHER..."

We both gaped at her in utter shock. "WHA......???

She nodded slowly and with a rather serious expression on her face. "Which means that the second womb would be considered 6 weeks out of 40."

I was pacing the tiny office in fury now. "I don't fucking believe it! HOW IN THE MERLIN BUGGERING HELL IS THIS BLOODY POSSIBLE?!?!?! No! Nonononononono! This is NOT happening! I'm dreaming, I'm fucking in bed having a nightmare. Next thing you know, she'll be telling me there's a THIRD one in there!"

"Er, well..."

I stopped my pacing and pulled out my wand so that I could hex her.

"OH NO, YOU DO NOT FUCKING TELL ME THAT!!!!!"

"You see, it looks like about... 2 weeks ago, you grew yet ANOTHER womb, and so, this one would be considered 4 weeks out of 40."

That's when you leapt up and grabbed the wand out of my hand, shoving me up against the door to the office and holding my hands so that I couldn't even cast a wandless spell.
"Let me fucking go! Harry, I swear I'll hex you too! This is a dream, do you hear me?! I can hex anyone I like in a dream and there's nothing you can do about it! LET ME GO!!"

"Draco! Draco, my love, you are NOT dreaming!" You shouted, still not letting me get a clear shot at our mostly beloved Healer.

"DON'T YOU FUCKING TELL ME THAT! YOU HEARD WHAT SHE SAID!!! THERE'S NO BLODDY WAY IN MERLIN'S MALODOROUS SPHINCTER THAT I'M PREGNANT THREE TIMES AT THE SAME BLODDY TIME!!! IT JUST ISN'T POSSIBLE AND I REFUSE TO -"

You cut my shouting short by shifting one of your hands to my mouth. "Hush love, try to calm down and think about this rationally -"

I shook my head to free my mouth. "RATIONALLY??!! YOU WANT ME TO THINK RATIONALLY?!?! YOU?!?!?! WHO ARE YOU AND WHAT DID YOU DO WITH MY HUSBAND?!?!!"

"Draco..." you said in a way that was clearly trying to summon up as much patience as possible. "Think... Seven weeks ago was when... you Polyjuiced into Gretchen and..."

My eyes bulged and I slapped a hand over my mouth as the urge to vomit nearly overwhelmed me. I heaved a couple of times before Rowe prudently handed me a specially designed bag for exactly that purpose. To my dismay, I filled the bag, and then immediately felt like my forehead was on fire from a cold sweat.

Rubbing my back and purring in sympathy, you pressed on. "Nearly 4 weeks ago to the day was my birthday, and also so happens to be the day that we used the Damsel Curse to turn you into a woman for the night..."

I was now bent over a little and breathing rather rapidly.

"And then I suggested that night with Dean... two weeks ago..."

I could feel my eyes stinging rather harshly and was shaking my head so much that I was starting to get a little dizzy. "I - I - I - I - I can't. I'm not - NO! This isn't happening! I - I - I - I... I have to go think!"

Without another word, I pushed you off me, threw the door open, and ran to the nearest Apparation point. From there, you probably assumed that I went to the Crystal Room to destroy things until I felt better, but even if this is just a nightmare and NOT REAL, I couldn't risk running myself out of magic so quickly like that. So, I went to my classroom in the Ministry so that I could punch, kick, stab, beat on, and repeatedly murder the poor practice dummy.

Before I was fully calm, and I DEFINITELY hadn't wrapped my head around anything, an Auror ran into the room and blurted out: "Huh! When someone said they'd spotted you throwing an epic strop in here, Robards really thought it was an unfounded rumor, but he sent me to check it out anyway because he was just about to send you an Owl asking you to come in right away."

"Oh?" I asked eagerly because ANYTHING to take my mind off what IS NOT POSSIBLE was beyond welcome in my book.

He nodded. "Yep, it seems that we were going to do a usual raid in which you receive word of it on a Monday and conduct it on Wednesday, but one of our reconnaissance teams spotted the place we're planning to raid start freaking out and packing everything up - which means we have to get "Right!" I exclaimed in agreement, my mind completely shifting gears so that I was 100 percent focused on what needed to be done and NOT thinking about anything else.

Except for one thing: I absolutely DID NOT want you to think that I had run away for good, or worse, think that I was doing something irrevocable that needed to be stopped. As for that, I probably will consider that in great depth, but for now, I don't want to think about anything, so I ordered that Auror to go call in the usual raid team and get them geared up as soon as possible. I promised to be there as soon as I could, but wanted to take a few minutes to write an email to you so that you can read it and know that I'm not running away from you and I'm not hexing the problem permanently away.

I'm simply working and not thinking about anything else. I daresay I'll have plenty of time to agonize over it later. Also, I DID actually receive an Owl from Robards, so I know that this is a magical creature rescue operation. Intel indicates that the danger level is rather low, and that the biggest risk is that the criminals will simply murder all the creatures before we rescue them if they think that we're closing in on them.

I will probably be back tonight - unless I am tired enough to fall asleep on the couch in my office when I'm done with the raid. In which case, I'll more than likely get all my paperwork done tomorrow before coming home. Please give me until tomorrow - if I actually stay the night - and then come in and shout at me for... whatever you need to shout at me for - I can think of so many things at this point, sigh...

I love you more than everything else in this world.

You're still the one that makes me laugh, still the one that's my better half, we're still having fun and you're still the one,

Draco
Chapter 64

Chapter Summary

Harry is furious at Draco.

Monday August 29th
Draco Lucius Malfoy,

You had damn well get your fit arse back home before I come hunt you down. I think you forget that I am not the one who is currently at diminished magical abilities and I have no qualms about messing up all your carefully laid raiding plans.

You ran and apparated out of Healer Rowe's office. I assumed you went to the crystal room to panic, so I said our goodbyes to Rowe and promised to get you back in as soon as possible once you've calmed down so we can figure out a plan. I popped myself into the crystal room to hopefully stop a magical drain before it begins. Fortunately for your health and magic you weren't there, unfortunately for me that meant more searching.

Then I thought, maybe he wanted some food to drown the worries in. I figured you could either be in the dining room eating at the table, in our rooms having had Muffy bring you some food, or perhaps you had Muffy pop you into the kitchens so you could see what kinds of homemade treats I had hidden away in there. Nope, you were in none of those places.

Now I was panicking. I sent a few quick messages to Pansy, Blaise, and Greg to see if they'd heard from you. They had not.

What in the bloody hell? You weren't at home, you weren't dancing in the ballroom or smashing crystal. You weren't with your owls or your peafowl. Café Exquis hadn't heard from you. Your best friends hadn't heard from you. I was running out of places to check and starting to get hysterical.

I don't want to make you feel badly. Well, I kind of want you to feel at least a little guilty for freaking me out. But I'm going to say something and I am telling you only because I think it's important that you are aware how your actions affected me. When you left so quickly without saying a word. Without trying to bury your face in my chest and let me hold you until the fear subsided. Without letting me know where you had gone. A very very small party of me, for just a fleeting moment, wondered if you had left us.

I know better. I really do. You have never made me think you would leave us. But I was just so scared and every worst case scenario was running through my mind.

I really should have thought of checking with Robards or Bletchley or Kings or any number of your Auroring buddies. Once I realized I didn't have many more places to look for you, I thought to check my email. Well, lucky me, you had sent me an email.

Yeah.

You are raiding while pregnant.

You are pregnant Draco. Whether or not we planned this, whether or not you want to be pregnant, you ARE pregnant. With three babies. And no matter what choice is made, no matter the outcome, it is not safe for you to be conducting raids right now. Your magic levels will deplete quickly since you are currently magically sustaining three wombs. Three. What happens if you are on this "low danger level" raid and one of the perpetrators gets to the command tent? What if they are strong enough to get through the wards? What if they get to you and your magic isn't enough to keep them from killing you?

This is not me saying "you're pregnant and keeping those babies is more important than anything" this is me saying "you are more important to me than anything else on this planet and you're putting yourself in danger." Your magic is most likely low, you haven't been feeling well. You just got shocking news, chucked up everything you'd eaten today, and then decided to conduct a raid.

"Who are you and what have you done with my husband?" Really? I'm the one who can't be rational right now? I'm not the one running off into danger despite potentially dangerously low magic levels. You think the danger level is low? Well my patience level is low. And the danger from your furious husband is at exceedingly high levels.

However, I was rational enough to read through your entire email and refrain from slamming through whatever wards you have up and just sending you a patronus instead. That seems rational right? That way I will know you heard me, I won't be disrupting a raid, and I can communicate to you just how much I feel this is not something you should be doing this moment.

But then, what do you know, my patronus came back without having been able to relay the message. Did you honestly send Prongs away? Really? You want me to give you time, give you until tomorrow, but you're turning my messages away at the door?

You are pregnant right now. You are triple pregnant. That is triple magic drain. I will not live without you do you hear me, Draco Lucius Malfoy?

I am going to finish up this email. Then I am going to get our (panicking) children to bed. Panicking? Why would our children be panicking? Oh, just because they knew I was taking you to the healer's today, I came home asking everyone if they'd seen you, and they have snuck in to our room and have seen me typing away while my magic makes the air crackle. Anyway, as I was saying, I am going to send this email, get the kids to bed, and then I am going to send you another patronus. This is your only warning, if you don't respond to that one I WILL be coming to get you and drag you home caveman style.

I'm scared my love. I'm terrified. This whole situation is shaking me to my foundations. I can't lose you. Even if you don't want to speak to me, even if you don't want to be anywhere near me, even if you want to be alone, please be alone at home where I know you're safe. Or go be with your friends. Go to our island. Hell, I can take all the kids to the island and leave you to rattle around the Manor by yourself. Just please leave that raid and be somewhere safe.

I hope I will be seeing you soon,
Harry

P.S. We can get through this. I love you more than anything else in the world. Whatever your choice, my love for you is endless.

P.P.S. I think we should NEVER use the damsel curse again and possibly to be safe we should both go get some of those muggle vasectomies.
Monday August 29th
My most beloved and understanding husband.

Remember how much I love you? SO much love! Please don't be mad at me for how I ran off and did exactly what you would have told me not to do - had I given you a chance. I know I reacted badly, and I'm not anywhere close to acceptence yet, but it's like you always say, how we first react to something doesn't have to define us. We can take a step back, think things through, and CHOSE to act differently.

So I'm currently in my office and considering that I JUST got your email - but not your Patronus yet - you must still be putting the kids to bed. That gives me a few minutes to organize my thoughts and write down what happened during the raid.

First of all, I am fine. I worked harder trying to murder my practice dummy. I wasn't exactly in a command tent because we didn't have time to erect one, but I DID stay out of the actual raid inside a powerful cluster of wards. I tossed my mapping drones into the area so that they could do their job of mapping the place and letting me know where everyone is at all times. Because of this, I knew that there was only 6 criminals - and considering that I had 9 teams of 2, I definitely had them outnumbered.

The ward specialists barely had time to throw up an Anti-Apparation ward to prevent their escape before the rather observant criminals spotted our teams closing in and started AKing as many animals as they could. Thankfully, our Aurors considered this just cause to duel, which was rather heated for about a half an hour.

AGAIN, I was NOT in the line of fire and safe behind several wards. The criminals couldn't even see me. As the Aurors fought fiercely, I was coordinating with the non-combatant teams whose jobs were supportive - such as going in and carefully extracting as many animals as they could while the combatants were keeping the criminals occupied.

To all our relief, the criminals were worn down and captured - with only a couple of minor injuries on both sides - in just a short half an hour. After they were in custody, the rest of the job was simply taking an inventory of all the animals and figuring out what to do with them. But before I move on, I want to back up slightly and mention that those Aurors that had just taken my class as a refresher were not only the ones partially making up the teams of combatants, but they were kicking arse and making me proud! Every single one of them eventually captured a criminal, and to their surprise, they ended up doing so unarmed, and thus, using skills I'd taught them, hahaha!

But back to the important stuff. You see, this was an illegal magical creature breeding place. The place was small, the conditions were dismal, and the animals were being treated only as well as they absolutely needed to be in order to survive and breed. Thus, not very well. Any and every creature that could be used in potions or as other magical ingredients was being bred, and so there are two types of animals here; the adult breeding pairs, and the babies that haven't yet been reduced to their parts so they could be sold.

There's a little bit of everything, and most of these animals will be going to the various rescues around the United Kingdom. That said, there are rather a lot. And...

Well...

Only Hagrid is equipped to deal with a few of these, and they asked him if he was interested, and he surprisingly said that we should send these particular animals to you so that he can focus on the more 'dangerous' ones - such as the Hippogriffs. Charlie is naturally going to take the Dragons (yes, I am affronted and appalled, they were breeding Norwegian Ridgebacks in tiny little cages as if they were CHICKENS!!!), so there's no need to worry about them, but that really does leave us in a bit of a spot.

Unless you feel capable and ready - not to mention willing - to take on a small family of Thestrals, meaning a mother, father, and three babies - gender undetermined. AND a mother Unicorn and her two foals. Unfortunately, the father was one of the animals murdered when we arrived. The two foals are still so young that they are both pure gold and haven't even begun to change to silver - whereas the mother seems to be a young adult because she's white with a fair bit of silver mixed in, meaning that she hasn't quite lost all her silver yet, which makes her less than 7, but we're not certain if that puts her at 5 or 6.

Oh... your Patronus just arrived, so I'm going to sign off and go home to let you yell at me in person. Then I'm probably going to attack a mountain of food, and then pass out and go to sleep for the foreseeable future. Possibly the next 8-9 months, ugh!

When I look into your eyes, I can see how much I love you,
Draco
P.S. Will you PLEASE tell me I dreamt our visit to Healer Rowe??! I - seriously! I NEED you to tell me that I had a bad dream, woke up, and went to the Ministry to rage on a practice dummy in order to feel better about the dream. And also, please reassure me that I'm NOT having a vision of the future!!!

Pleeeeeease?!?!
Chapter 65

Chapter Summary

Harry is still upset but forgiving, and Draco is still wrapping his head around his situation.

Chapter Notes

Since y'all asked...

Tuesday August 30, 2016

Draco,

I may be your beloved but it is taking all of my efforts to continue to be understanding. "Please don't be mad" at you? Much too late for that. I am mad. I am furious. You know how I feel about the raiding thing. You were not only dealing with draining magic and not feeling well, but also you were distracted with the shock of information. Distractions make for dangerous things happening. You knew I would say no … if you’d given me the chance. So you didn't give me the chance. You turned away or blocked my first patronus. I don't know how to not be mad at you.

I also don't know how to not forgive you. Of course you're forgiven. You're in shock and panicking. Now is not the time for me to worry about being right but time for me to support the love of my life. Which is why I sent a third patronus so quickly after I sent you the second that said "If you live through this raid go ahead and find somewhere else to sleep tonight." That was just my own panic and stress and fear making me say something to lash out. Hopefully you barely had time to hear it before you heard the updated, "I love you, be safe, come home to me. I'll be in our bed waiting for you."

However, that is not what actually happened since I received your email shortly after that and went to prep the stables for our new magical rescues. You must have come home and fallen straight into bed while I was still out settling in the thestrals and the unicorns.

I needed to be there to help with the thestrals as there are only so many people who can see them. It's hard to care for an animal that is invisible to you. It's odd to be thrilled that I don't have much help caring for them. "What's that Eri, Ori, and Haz? You've never seen death and can't see these animals? How 'unfortunate!'"

In actual unfortunate things, the same could not be said for the unicorns. They obviously wanted nothing to do with Ori since he's a boy. And Eris was a no go. But oh my goodness is Viona in love with these animals. She pretty much climbed into the stall with them and cuddled them all night. No, seriously, all night. I found her there this morning when I went back to check on them.

And again with the unfortunate situations, I left you in bed to check on the animals and by the time I got back you had already headed back into the Ministry. I am assuming to do your paperwork from the raid. I swear to you Draco, if you are actually doing something dangerous I might redo my original patronus telling you to find somewhere else to sleep tonight.

You can't keep avoiding me and this situation. It was not a dream. This is real, this is happening. Look, if you just need to climb in my lap and sob for a while that is alright. If you need to take a few hours to sit in the back of our closet and stroke your komboloi that is okay too. But you can't avoid this forever. We need to talk. Whatever the result, whatever we do, I love you for always. We are in this together. Please don't keep pushing me away. Or running away from me I suppose is more accurate.

Come on my love, you've been "at your office" for going on ten hours at this point. For a raid that took less time than that there can't really be THAT much paperwork. Come home so I can hold you.

I know this is about you and I know this is you freaking out … but I'm so scared right now. And I have nowhere to run away. I'm just here, a million thoughts running through my head, and I'm alone.

Please?

Love,
Harry

Saturday September 3rd
My wonderfully supportive and only slightly annoying husband,

Well, I've basically done what you asked when you said take three or four days to just sit still. I've been in bed and haven't done much of anything at all since Wednesday - aside from go to King's Cross with you to see most of our kids off. Wait, not most... Elena's graduated, River's gone off to live with his wife, Viona, Ori, Haz, Siri, and Zwei, leaving Shtara, Zaire, Jaz, Persephone, Caelum, and Lily - Which I suppose means that we saw off HALF (or technically less than half) of our kids.

Whatever, the important part is that we're going to have Zaire in school next year, and possibly THREE new babies at home, which means that we are never going to actually have most of our kids IN school at the same time. Weird...

Speaking of three potential new babies, erm… after having spent the last several days in bed dwelling on this, erm... somehow NOT bad dream - I'm wondering if you'd object to having the first and third womb removed and just toughing through the second one?

No? You can't condone that? sigh... That's what I thought you'd say.

Fine!

So, that's actually what took me so long in the office on Tuesday. After filling out and signing off on a shit ton of paperwork - considering how small the raid actually was, relatively speaking - I went to Robards to have a completely private conversation with him about needing to come up with other arrangements for raiding while pregnant. He wouldn't believe me at first, probably because I have been adamant about NOT having any more. So he thought I was either having him on, or trying to give a plausible excuse for you suddenly objecting for some other and possibly irrational reason.
So, he called in my friend the Mediwitch to confirm a pregnancy, and when she arrived, Roche and Ramsey entered the office too so that they could chat with Robards about the progress - or lackthereof - they've made in the interrogations. So yes, that means that I had THREE people I didn't particularly want to know this news in the room when Robards finally believed me. The Mediwitch took the news with glee, dead certain that this would put an end to my cruel teaching.

Not so much as I can stand out of harm's way and use my mouth to teach just fine, thank you very much, and besides, it's only a 16 week class, and so, I'll be done with it and they'll have time to find a replacement BEFORE these parasites are born.

Huh... You were right! You said that I had gotten parasites feeding of my energy and magic, I just didn't realize it at the time...

But alright, so I can already hear you growling at me, some shite about staying home and taking it easy. Fuck no, I'd rather not be stuck dwelling on my thoughts for the next 7-9 months, ta ever so. Thus, here's what we decided:

I will not be GOING on any raids. I will not actually be required to set them up nor sign off on anything. I will be in the MINISTRY - in a command center - during and ONLY during an actual raid, doing the job of running the whole thing. Meanwhile everyone else will be doing their jobs as normal, and Robards will be handling all the added details I normally do before, during, and after a raid.

My class will be conducted on Monday and Wednesdays as normal, but I'm considered on light duty in that I will not be physically interacting with any of my students - except for those rare times when I need to punch them in the kidney's to teach them the lesson.

And then there's that one other thing - but I'll come back to that later.

Considering that our appointment to meet with the casting director and others had to be rescheduled to THIS Monday (it was actually supposed to be on Tuesday, but since I was freaking out and raiding an animal farm, obviously we couldn't make it), and Elena not only came in to ask me why the fuck I had made you panic, but then after learning why, helped me out by making it clear that I will be on light duty for the class Zaire and I are teaching. In essence, Zaire will be doing most of it under my supervision while I watch, help as needed, and do my best not to exert myself by dancing to the excellent beat. Ugh...

I feel bad about the First. Normally I'm every bit as emotional as you, holding you and trying not to cry as we wave our kids off for the bulk of the year. But this year, I was in a bit of a fog. I was so caught up in the thoughts swirling in my head that I'm not certain I was actually THERE. I think our kids understood. I hope.

We've sort of told the older ones that there was something up that we'd talk about when we (I) felt ready, but I have no bloody clue what to say to the younger ones. "Erm... daddy (papa) isn't feeling good because he has three parasites feeding off him for the next several months."

What if... What if we put two of them up for adoption? Or maybe Dean and Seamus will want to take his?

No wait, I don't want to talk to them about any of this yet, so, for this moment, that's not an option. I still need to wrap my head around things. To that end, I'm planning to stay in bed and not move a muscle until Monday when Zaire comes in here to glare at me until I get up and ready for our class.

Which yes, is your cue to come back in here and let me rest my head on your lap while I grumble and growl. There might even be an odd indoor storm. Maybe, JUST MAYBE, I might be ready to go back to Rowe and discuss options by Tuesday. Until then, I might just pretend nothing is happening and I'm still just having a bad dream.

Where the fuck are you already?? If I have to send Muffy after your arse, I'm telling her to tie you up and suspend you from the ceiling so you have no choice but to watch me brood without being able to touch or comfort me, and I'm certain neither of us wants that, so get here. NOW!

I'm not going slightly mad and I'm not afraid they're coming to take me away, I think I'm certifiable and that they should DEFINITELY be coming to take me away! haha,
Draco
Monday September 5, 2016

My Heart,

You know, on Saturday when you said you wanted me to come and let you rest your head in my lap while you grumbled and growled, I assumed we would eventually start discussing what we have going on. I thought you might cry or need some quiet time, maybe even rant angrily for a bit. I did not expect you to literally lie in my lap while making growling and grumbling noises that only very rarely resembled actual words.

But it was totally fine. We had all weekend together, we didn't need to have decisions made or even narrowed down on Saturday. Then yesterday, we also didn't talk about it. By then I realized we were truly just not going to have any of these conversations. Again, you need to take whatever time you need to come to terms with everything crashing down on you all at once. I am hopeful we can have at least one conversation before you talk to Rowe on Tuesday. Perhaps tonight when we get back from our meeting with Shtara's casting director.

I'm looking forward to the meeting, I think it will be a nice distraction from the other nonsense we have going on. Just a totally normal meeting with our amazingly talented daughter and the director who may be giving her a role to propel her way to realizing her dreams. No big deal.

And you are definitely coming with to this meeting. Just like you came with to see the kids off on the Hogwarts Express. Yes, you were there when we sent off the kids. I know you've been distracted but how did you forget searching every single one of Siri and Zwei's pockets for Wheeze's products? Honestly! What did they do, order two of everything and tell Uncle George to put it on our tab?

Hmm, maybe we should ask George if we have a tab.

Then seeing Hazel off. Seeing her off for her first year feeling how she should. I'm just so excited to hear everything amazing that's going to happen to her this year. Talk about a summer makeover!

Yep, now that they're all off and/or living as adults in their own homes, it IS just Shtara, Zaire, Jaz, Persephone, Lily, Caelum, and ATREYU. Sheesh! It seems that the pregnancy brain fog is affecting you already!
He's a bit big for it, but I ended up wearing Trey in the toddler backpack style carrier while we were at King's Cross. He seemed really overwhelmed by the crowds and the noise. I do NOT think we have another train lover on our hands.

Ugh, ok, I have to talk about the elephant in the room. I know you want to ignore everything, but I feel like there are a few things I have to get off my chest. And since you don't want to have this discussion in person, this will have to do.

First of all, I will not condone or refuse to condone anything. I have opinions. I have opinions on the health of my husband. I have opinions on the direction I want this family to move in. I have opinions on the potential arrival of three new children for me to help raise. But - and I truly mean this with all of my heart - I will support any choice you make. Yes, even if that choice involves selective reduction or placing the child or children up for adoption.

What I do potentially have an issue with is the specific reduction or adoption choice you would want to make. Why those specific wombs? Do you truly think it would matter to me if there were babies that weren't biologically mine? Has that ever made a difference to me before? Has it ever made a difference to YOU before? We have adopted children who have no biological relation to either of us. We have a daughter who is fully muggle. We have a daughter who is biologically only mine. We have a son who is biologically only yours. Have either of us ever had an issue loving and raising a child no matter their parentage?

Hell, we both absolutely love and adore four children who have Voldemort as half their biological makeup.

And as far as adoption goes, again if that's something you feel is necessary I will support that. You have, with good reason, told me very little of your time undercover. And if looking at the face of a baby who is half someone who violated you is too much for you? I completely understand. I would NEVER make you raise a child you thought you couldn't handle seeing. I would never LET you raise a child you weren't sure you could love. Full stop.

But do you honestly think you could hand the third baby to Dean and Seamus? People we know, people we will see in the future. You really think you could hand over a baby with a pointy Malfoy chin, or Narcissa's beautiful hands, or Sirius' gorgeous eyes. And then be able to see them regularly while knowing they are part you? If you think so, or you think it's something you need to do … again I'm here for you. But I am also trying to be realistic and I don't know if that's really something you could do.

Unfortunately, in that case, we would have to allow Dean some sort of visitation or custody if he wanted it, for those exact same reasons. How could we ask him to see himself in our child and not have any hand in raising them? Shared custody would certainly be something new for us. The closest we've ever been to shared custody is sharing Viper, Tiger, Scor, and Hyper with their other universe.

As for your future raiding schedule. I don't love the idea that you would still have the stress of running raids. Especially combined with the stress of continuing to teach hand to hand, while adding the stress of teaching a dance class. But as long as you don't overdo the magic, I will shut my mouth and keep my worries to myself. I definitely think doing all of those things is a MUCH better option than staying at home and taking it easy.

I guess the taking it easy would be nice, but sitting at home doing nothing? Stewing in your own thoughts for months? Yeah, that is probably the WORST thing you could possibly do. I think I'd rather you go off raiding than sit around doing nothing but thinking for the next seven months.
And don't think I have forgotten about "that one thing" you were reluctant to talk to me about in your last email. If you didn't want me to know you wouldn't have said anything. Which means you either want to tell me or think you should tell me but something is holding you back. Well stop it! Spill it!

Hopelessly devoted to you,
Harry

Monday September 5th
My foundation,

My day started with Zaire jumping on our bed about 15 minutes to noon. Just as I predicted, he was afraid that I wouldn't be ready in time for our 2 PM class if I didn't get up and ready right that second. Pippa entered the room right behind him to wake me up for the same reason, and watched him in amusement.

Is it just me, or did Pippa get pregnant without saying a word? She's... not exactly fat, but noticeably plumper than she usually is. I was REALLY hesitant to ask on the off chance that she simply decided to let herself gain a few pounds. There's NOTHING more insulting than gaining a little weight and having someone ask if you've gotten pregnant.

So I gave Zaire the biggest smile I could manage - it was probably tiny, to be honest - and got out of bed so that I could shower, perform my daily routine, and get dressed. He hasn't been interested in doing the routine with me since he was still in our bed, but today, he seemed to feel that it was in his best interest to keep me on task, haha.

After getting ready - which meant dressing up in our Zulu Warrior costumes - we flooed to Elena's school. Our class was ready to go at 2 on the dot, and Zaire had an absolute blast teaching. He's quite a natural, to my pride and joy. Before you get upset, I kept it light, demonstrating steps and otherwise letting Zaire do everything. Which you probably actually know because you were waiting at the door (at the end) with Elena and Shtara for us to finish up. (Side note, all of the girls/women chose traditional topless, and most of them looked surprised that neither Zaire nor I stared at them or even seemed to notice them.)

The class ended at 4 and our appointment was at 4:30 - which gave me a chance to clean up a little and get changed into something more appropriate for a semi business meeting. So... I have a confession...

The moment after I shook their hands, I looked over at Shtara and watched her do a tiny little giddy dance - that sort of looked a bit like the potty dance, funnily enough - and she was SOOOOOOO anxious for us to agree that I have no idea what you and the others talked about. Elena did as expected, helping to ask questions we wouldn't think of and explaining anything you didn't understand. All I know for certain is when the room fell silent and I looked up to see you staring at me.

"What do you think, love?"

"I think Shtara wants this more than anything in the universe," I murmured, not directly answering the question, but basically answering it nonetheless. I was saying that so long as you were comfortable, I would let our little girl do anything she wanted.

"I think so too," you agreed with a smile, apparently understanding what I hadn't said. "I think that it's worth a try. If Shtara's studies slide or she seems to be struggling or not getting enough sleep, I'm going to put a foot down, but so long as she's doing well and has her nanny with her at all times, I see no reason to stop her.

Shtara started jumping and squealing so loudly that I can't quite understand what she was shouting, but it was probably:
"OHMIGODOHMIGODOHMIGODREALLYICAN'TBELIEVETHISILOVEYOUGUYSSOMUCH!!!"

After the meeting concluded, I still had a bit of time before my class started at 6. So, I took your hand in mine and led you on a nice stroll through the halls of the performance school.

"Harry love, I know you will support me in anything, but do you have a preference?" I asked, because I think I might just be able to wrap my head around the situation at this point.

"If you want me to be utterly honest, my preference is to have them all. BUT if you feel that you just CAN'T raise the first baby because of how it was conceived, then and only then would I prefer you to selectively abort that one," you informed me, resting your head on my shoulder as we walked.

I took a deep breath and sighed. "It's not that. I'm not traumatized by the conception. I am a little appalled that I wouldn't even begin to know which customer is the father, but I don't feel like I can't raise that baby. I... I just REALLY don't want to be having any more babies at all. I figured if I aborted them all you would be upset and potentially forever mad at me for getting rid of a child of YOURS."

"Abortion is not what I would choose. I can't pretend that it would be an easy choice to swallow. I'm sure I'll need to go to some extra sessions with Katja. But nothing would upset me as much as the idea of you having a child you don't want. No child deserves to be unwanted," you explained, stopping to look me in the eye so that I would know how serious you were.

I sighed again, and then kissed you. "Well... I spent a good half of yesterday in bed thinking that I literally JUST felt a profound sense of dismay and horror at the thought that our daughter Eris might actually abort her baby, simply because she is too young and not ready for the responsibility. Both of which are very valid reasons, but I just... So when I put THESE ones into that context, I felt my heart twist. It's the fact that there are THREE of them. AGAIN!"

I didn't let go of your hand as I paced the hall. "The last time was so messy. Even despite having regular therapy, I got PPD, and I don't want to go through that again. Nor do I want to be up all night, nursing or not (probably not), dancing babies to sleep, and changing nappies. Fine, we all know that I have Muffy do that part, but still."

I stopped to look you in the eyes. "If I insist that the babies have their own room from the beginning and that their elves tend to them..."

"Nope, they're our babies just like all the rest of our babies have been or they can't stay. You can't hold them at arms length. They deserve 100% parents!" You denied emphatically.

"I don't plan to love or parent them less than 100%, I just want to sleep at night, Merlin damn it!" I cried out in frustration.

"If that's truly what that's about then... In our room, in sidecar beds; I will take shifts with the elves - I'll even induce lactation again, but I won't put newborns used to the warmth of the womb in a scary dark room all by themselves," you told me firmly.
"And you won't mind if I use silencing charms around myself when I need to?" I wondered, not quite believing you'd agree so easily.

"I may grumble due to being tired, but I won't actually mind," you murmured, then added: "If I could somehow transfer these babies into me and go through this for you, I would."

I decided that - even though I reserve the right to change my mind in the next five minutes or days - we had reached an agreement, and so, kissing NEEDED to happen. I pulled you close, caressed your face tenderly, murmured: "What did I do to deserve you?" And then kissed you so perfectly that I might have actually been at it for hours and not realized it.

You sounded like you might be about to launch into a litany of the things I'd done to deserve you, but Pippa interrupted at just that moment to let me know my class was due to begin in 15 minutes and I needed to pop back home and change out of this suit first.

So, with one last kiss, I went home and CAREFULLY chose a perfect outfit to wear to class.

When I got there, my NEW students - again a mix of Aurors needing to refresh their skills and Aurors in training - didn't seem to think anything of the way I was dressed, but the few that had already gone through the first class immediately squinted at my shirt.

Sure enough, it said:
THOU SHALL NOT TRY ME
Mood 24:7

"GODDAMNIT HARRY!!!" I roared in frustration, now DYING to know how in the bloody hell you do that!!!

One of them chuckled and wisely changed the subject. "No bear today?"

I waved my hand dismissively. "No, we had far too many things to do to bring a fussy baby bear with us. So he stayed home with my younger kids. I'll probably have him on Wednesday."

"Too bad, he's cute," the student murmured.

"Alright petals, I've already checked with the Ministry trainer to verify that my returning students ran for their required hour, and my beginning students did their best not to die while attempting a half an hour. That just means that we're going to be trying to survive our first lesson: over the shoulder. The rules are simple, pair up and try your best to throw each other over your shoulders. I'll be watching over all of you and giving helpful tips. I suggest that my returning students partner with the new ones to go first and - as part of the lesson - YOU teach them what you know, no matter how little."

I pointed to timid mouse. "And YOU! If you don't stop looking like you're afraid to touch your partner, let alone hurl him over your shoulder, I'll punch you in the gut every lesson until you decide you'd rather get on with it than be punched again."

"Oi! Sexist!" My sole female student called out. "A: What if he partners with me, and B: How in the bloody hell is that a VALID teaching method?!"

I walked over to stand in front of her so that I could stare her down. "A: I'm not sexist. I have..." I had to push my pointer finger into the crease between my brows and actually think this over a second. "FIFTEEN kids, EIGHT of which are girls - and more importantly, despite my official Heir MAGICALLY being required to be my first born legitimate son, my ACTUAL Heir for everything else is Viona, our first child and second oldest daughter. She's called our Princess because she is regally and capably taking over the Malfoy empire as soon as she graduates Hogwarts. I simply assumed that with only one woman in this class, his chances of partnering with you were low, but since YOU think my not assuming it would be you is SEXIST, congratulations, you get to be his partner. This is NOT necessarily a good thing.

"AND B: How I teach and the methods I choose to use are MY business and that of the Ministry. You would do best to keep your nose out of it, BECAUSE I am not sexist and WILL punch you in the gut everyday until YOU prove that you are putting in. real. effort. too."

She was giving me a look like I wouldn't dare. If she was one of ours, I would actually consider her one of our divas. She was wearing a sort of cheap version of couture, had her hair done just right, and her nails were not just polished and pretty, but done in that way where they add acrylic to make them longer than normal. All in all, she looked like she'd just come from a spa day, rather than a day of Auror classes.

"Listen," I continued. "I know of at least one Auror who wears couture, stilettos, and FAR too much perfume. So I am NOT saying that you CAN'T be a female Auror and look good, BUT... at this moment, I am seriously wondering if you actually WANT to be an Auror. You look like you'd rather go with your friends to a club and dance the night away."

She harrumphed. "I'm smart and athletic - running and doing yoga every day. I fully believe I can be an Auror AND look pretty, and I DON'T appreciate you implying that I can't!"

"Alright... it's your lucky day. I promised my husband that I would refrain from certain things today, and so, rather than toss you over my shoulder and punch you in the gut MYSELF, I'm going to have one of my daughters do it for me. Muffy!"

"Yes Master?"

"Bring Persephone to me please."

About 15 seconds later, Muffy popped into the room with Persephone, who was holding/feeding Wojtek.

"Hiya daddy! You need me?" She asked eagerly.

"Yes. Let me take Wojtek from you," I said, holding out my hands. She placed him in my hands before turning to wave at the students she recognized. "Now, this student right here needs to learn a lesson, so I need you to throw her over your shoulder AND punch her in the gut. Can you do that for me love?"

She immediately transformed into a ninja with an emphatic: "Hiya!" and a fierce stance.

I then addressed the woman. "Go ahead, try to defend yourself, and hell! Try to ATTACK her."

She gave me a look like she could not believe that I seriously expected this half pint pixie to do so much as punch her with the force of a marshmallow. Interestingly, my timid mouse backed WAY up.

Since my student wasn't even attempting to defend herself, Persephone launched into an attack that was almost too fast to see, she feinted right then slipped left to run around behind the student and punch her rapidly up and down the sides of her spine, and then while she was gasping and stumbling, Persephone ran back around front, kicked her in the abdomen - making her bend in half - allowing Persephone to punch her in the face before tossing her over her shoulder and ending with an emphatic punch to the gut.
"Good job, love!" I praised proudly, ruffling her hair.

"No problem daddy!" She exclaimed with a happy grin.

"Would you like to stay and help me teach my class, and then go to Fortescue's with me as a reward for doing such an excellent job? OR do you want to go right home and brag to your daddy that you were such a good helper for me - and entice him into giving you biscuits?"

"Aw man! Any other day and I'd love to stay and kick butt for you! But daddy has new horses to pet and kiss. Did you know that some of them are INVISIBLE?! I got to ride one of the baby invisible ones!"

"He HAS had them for nearly a week now," I reminded her.

"But yeah but VIONA went back to Hogwarts and can't sleep in the stalls with the baby UNICORNS!!! I promised I'd do that for her!"

"Alright love, I'll have Muffy bring you home. Pet the Thestrals for me, yeah?"

"Sure thing daddy!" She said. "Want me to take Wojtek back?"

"Nah, I'm good," I said, ordering Muffy to bring me a carrier after she brought Persephone home. Persephone gave me a quick hug and a kiss on the cheek before waving goodbye at all my students. After she was gone, I stood over my one on the floor.

"Someone help her up and cast a healing spell on her if needed. Also, show's over! Pair up and get to work before I invite my OTHER two tinys here to hand the rest of you your arses."

To make up for the fact that I couldn't throw them all over my shoulder directly, I walked back and forth, giving them all encouragement as I stroked Wojtek's fur. "What the fuck are you DOING? Trying to dislocate your own shoulder?! You, I know you're timid as fuck, but fucking PUNCH her! Did you just trip over you're OWN feet??? Did your skills regress in the last two and a half weeks to not just pathetic, but PROTOZOAN?"

Honestly, I expected the previous students to be able to use the new students' lack of skill against them. Obviously, I was wrong. That said, a few of them got close. So... I guess that's a win? By the end of the class, I was ready to hex them all.

"Track. 5PM. Wednesday!" I growled before walking out of the classroom to check my office real quick before flooing home. It seems that Fierston was hoping I'd do exactly that, since he was waiting for me.

I looked over my desk and found no new paperwork, so, I sat down and watched Fierston watch me pet Wojtek. He looked highly interested, but I took advantage of that by reading his mind. He really was like an open book and rather goody goody.

"So... Wednesday while I'm in class, I expect you to be in this office meditating. If you don't know how, find yourself a good Mind Healer and have her teach you tonight so that you have a few days to practice. Practice every single second if you have to. Because in order to teach you Legilimency, I need to first teach you Occlumency, and in order to do that, YOU need to be able to organize your mind. I happen to know that if you make no attempt to organize your mind, Occlumency will not work. And while I COULD potentially still teach you Legilimency with a messy and unoccluded mind, unless you had a deep and natural talent for it, you'd just blunder your way through your victims' minds and - at best - give them a nasty headache. At worst, damage them irrevocably."
He gulped nervously. "What if I do well at meditation AND Occlumency, but just can quite do Legilimency?"

"In that case, I'll stop trying to teach you and let you know that you had better not try it on anyone - and more importantly, let your superiors know too. Did you know that the reason the skill is actually VERY rare is that it normally takes a person YEARS to learn and perfect it? As in, there's actually a special training program in France that has you study both skills for about 2 years each before certifying you as fully trained and not likely to damage anyone's mind?"

"I did know that," he murmured. "Ramsey mentioned that as the reason that none of the dedicated interrogators have learned the skill yet - despite it coming in handy. Not only does he not think that any of them would be good at it, he just doesn't want to waste everyone's time by sending potential candidates off to study for 4 years with no guarantee of success."

"Ah, so he's hoping that I'll pass on the skill in far less time," I murmured in understanding. "As if I can somehow magically just GIVE you the skill and have you be good at it with no practice."

"When did you learn it, how did you learn it, and how often do YOU practice?"

I shrugged and sort of leaned back in my chair a little. "I actually practice it all the time without really realizing it. I mean yes, I respect privacy, and so, don't constantly read my husband and kids' minds, but pretty much every time I step out of the house, if I meet a person's eyes, I take a look around to make sure they're not some sort of potential threat to me or my family."

He nodded slowly with a slight frown, as if he understood but still felt that was unethical.

"As for when and how, well, that's a bit of a story that can really be summed up by saying that the Dark Lord insisted on it and I couldn't really refuse," I explained.

By this point, you might find it odd that I not only know and use his name, but am honestly and unsarcastically answering his questions. Well, that's because if he learns this skill successfully, he's going to be reading my mind at some point anyway, and so, the little information I choose to give him now is really just a test to see if he is compatible enough with me to learn.

"Alright... but just being ordered to learn doesn't mean you CAN..."

I chuckled. "True. Lucky for me, I'm actually naturally talented enough that I learned the skill easily. It's generally NOT an easy skill to learn."

"Any other recommendations?"

"Do you have a pet?" I wondered.

"Erm, no."

I smiled faintly. "Buy a pet you think you can really love."

"Erm..." he droned in confusion.

"It may not be obvious at this moment, but you'll figure it out quickly. Just trust me; get a pet."

"Alright..." he drawled again, still a bit confused, but willing to take my word. After that, we shook hands and went our separate ways. Meaning I finally flooed home to you. Honestly, I'm a tiny bit surprised that you didn't get worried and send a Patronus once five minutes after the end of my class had passed, but then again, you were probably busy in the stables and didn't notice the time anyway.

You took the words right out of my mouth, it must have been while you were kissing me, Draco
Tuesday September 6, 2016

Good Morning my Partner in all things,

It's still a bit early, I promise I won't wake you up for at least another hour. But I woke up early even by my standards, made a huge breakfast, went for a refreshing run, took a deep soak in the tub, and then spent about an hour meditating. I thought I timed everything well to just have a few moments between keeping myself immensely busy and waking you up to head out to your appointment. I ran the distance I'd planned on running but got done much quicker than I intended. Probably a personal best! So now I have time to kill.

I loved hearing Persephone's take on "the invisible horses." It must have been so surreal for her to ride on something that she could feel, knew existed, and obviously was moving her along with it without being able to see anything was there. I look back at my childhood and your childhood and think to myself how pleased I am that so few of our children can see the thestrals. That thought ultimately brings me to thinking about the fact that some of them can and how much I hate that. Eventually my train of thought moves to … how fucked up is it that I am in awe of a child not having witnessed a death?

Well, I can mourn our reality or I can be happy for the good things we have. I'm going to choose to be happy. And today of all days with the appointment looming over our heads I am going to choose to be happy. Unless you've changed your mind since yesterday, we are going to have three brand new lives to love and cherish. We get to pick out names and Godparents. Prepare our feisty foursome to be big sisters and brothers. I know you're still feeling very conflicted, so I am going to follow your lead. But similarly to what I told Elena when she found out about her pregnancy, you need to let me know when I'm allowed to be excited and joyful about the incoming invaders.

I know you're terrified of having more, of having three at once, but it's not anything we haven't done at least twice! We can do this. We are in love. We have a supportive family. We know we already make some amazing children we're proud of every day. Honestly I'm not sure if I'd even know what to do with only one child. Probably take up a new hobby. Maybe start rescuing orphaned bears and cheetahs. Oh wait, that was you!

I didn't exactly get the chance to talk with you last night. You must have climbed into bed and fallen asleep wrapped around Atreyu right after you got back from class. And I stayed in the stables later than I normally do. Making sure every single animal was secure and there wouldn't be a chance of any of them spooking or hurting Seph. She's such a sweetheart wanting to sleep with the unicorns. Viona really only did that the first night out of necessity and then the following few nights because she liked it. The unicorns would be absolutely fine without a tiny human bodyguard, but there was no arguing with Seph.

Anyway, as to why I was saying I didn't get a chance to talk with you last night before you fell asleep, I just wanted to let you know that I wasn't particularly panicked when you didn't come home immediately last night after class. And it wasn't because I was distracted in the stables. I could be insanely busy and I still somehow always have you as part of my thought process. I'm very attuned to where you are at any time so don't think you can try to keep me distracted so I won't notice you're missing! I just assumed since it was your first class you had run longer or stayed after to talk with the students, possibly sitting in your office trying to meditate away your annoyance at the dunderheads you are teaching.

I didn't think you would be having a discussion with someone to potentially teach them Legilimency. So that's a thing you're doing. I don't know how to feel about this. Can we discuss it with Rowe at your appointment? I know you just doing Legilimency yourself has become something as natural to you as blinking, but teaching Occlumency, Legilimency, and having your brain doing a lot of the work at first seems like something that might just be too much for you. I'm trying very hard to not be controlling and overbearing, but this is feeling a bit like the straw breaking the camel's back right now.

Oh, I almost forgot and this feels like the most important thing I wanted to talk to you about. Maybe I didn't forget but my subconscious was trying to avoid the issue as long as possible.

Okay, here goes. I am going with you to your appointment. I am your husband, I care for you, I want to be there for you. But. If at any point you want to have privacy with Rowe, for any reason at all, please just tell me. I promise I won't be offended. I'd rather you talk to her privately than not talk to her at all if its something you're feeling badly about saying or thinking or feeling. Please promise me that you will be completely honest, asking all the questions you need to ask. I will stay right by your side every second, holding your hand, heck you can sit on my lap if "you" want that to happen (I do I do!) but I will be out in the waiting room or even go home if you want and all you have to do is say the word.

I love you more than anything in this life.

Together,
Your Harry

P.S. I do not know if Pippa is pregnant. She hasn't said anything to me about it. Unless and until she does I am not saying a single word. I may be a little impetuous, a little naïve, and a little brash, but I am NOT stupid!

---

Tuesday September 6th
Dear Harry,

I've caught a cold and don't want to go to the damn Healer's today.

Sincerely,
Draco

---

Dear Draco,

You are GOING to the damn Healer's today, especially if you've caught a cold!

Lovingly,
Harry
Damn you! Really? You're going to make me move when every part of my body hurts and I can't breathe? Such a sadist! Fine... If I must...

Draco

Cheer up, Rowe will have plenty of potions safe for pregnancy that you can take to clear up that cold in no time. Unless you are simply using the cold as a way to get out of something you don't want to do, which would explain why you haven't taken some potions for it already.

Harry

Bastard! I DID take potions and they haven't helped! I'm currently blowing my nose and sounding like a foghorn as I get ready for my appointment with Rowe. Fuck it! I don't give a fuck, I'm wearing pajama bottoms and a comfy shirt, and since you're just going to somehow change it anyway, I'm going to wear the mood 24/7 one, since it fits my current actual mood.

Draco

P.S. Don't you dare leave my side for a moment, you arse! I'd rather talk to/tell you my feelings than her! grr...
Chapter 68

Chapter Summary

They go visit Healer Rowe.

Chapter Notes

WARNING: Draco talks a tiny bit about the rapes he suffered as a teen. It's a bit of an explanation, and I hope it shouldn't trigger anything.

See the end of the chapter for more notes.

Tuesday September 6, 2016

My Sweetest Love,

Well, today was rough. All of the rest of our pregnancies were either planned or earlier than scheduled but anticipated babies. Going into an appointment with three children growing inside of you and knowing Rowe would be calm and professional, asking us what we had decided since our last meeting. Knowing she wasn't assured of our answer. Ugh, it was just a solid weight in my gut.

I know I kept telling you it was your decision. And I stand by that. I truly do. If you had decided against my preferences, it would not change my love for you, but although I would have never admitted this to you, it would have broken my heart. Much like you held Atreyu at arm's length until he had accepted you because you wanted to keep from becoming attached to a child who may not have accepted you fully, I held myself as detached from these children as much as I possibly could.

Which is why when we walked into our exam room and before Rowe could say so much as "Good Afternoon Malfoys," you stated in your emotion masking posh voice, "We are keeping all three of these babies. I won't hear another word concerning our options." I thought I was going to faint with relief.

You would have thought I was the pregnant one! It's lucky I was standing next to the chair when you said that, because my knees gave out and I practically fainted with relief. "Oi Mutt, that's my spot, kip over."

It was nice to see Rowe's face go from detached professionalism to our friendly healer we've known forever. She's still no nonsense, but I think she's become pretty invested in our little (HaHa) family, and didn't want to see what such a huge decision would do to us all emotionally. Her friendly healer face is still pretty darn professional and she quickly got down to business doing all her scans and spells and charms and whatnot.

You did such a good job of keeping your Malfoy mask on that if I hadn't felt all the fingers of my right hand breaking into pieces in your grip, I would have thought you were completely calm.
After what felt like an hours worth of scans - although that could have been the pain - Rowe began with a no-nonsense, "I have a lot of information to cover and while I love that the two of you always come prepared with questions, let me at least give you what I know for sure before you start your interrogations."

We both nodded a little guiltily. I suppose a question and answer session with rambling me and inquisitive you can feel a bit like an interrogation.

"Well the good news is there are only three babies in there!"

I almost fainted again. Oh shite. I had completely forgotten that while we were at the first appointment, Rowe was referencing three uteruses … uteri … wombs, and three pregnancies by week. She never actually said how many babies were in there. Oh Hell, what if any of the three wombs had multiples within your multiples' pregnancy. Fuck fuck fuck. Wait, I had to stop hyperventilating, she was saying it was only three. We dodged that bullet. Carry on.

She powered through my panic attack. "As I said last week, three wombs that each carry one embryo. The oldest, for now they'll be Baby A, is roughly ten weeks, Baby B is seven, and little Baby C is now five. By all my scans they are doing very well and growing as they should. I can see that baby B and baby C have their little hearts beating and my scan would be able to project A’s heartbeat if you'd like to hear."

I must have made a whimpering noise because you gave me your "oi my silly puppy is so cute" smirk and told Rowe we'd most definitely like to hear it. She gave me a very similar "oi Harry is so cute" face and proceeded to project the heartbeat. Oh Merlin, it sounded perfect. Absolute perfection, tiny and wonderful, healthy and strong, and so so fast. I had forgotten how fast their little hearts beat.

I would like to thank both of you for ignoring my tears. Once she turned off the projection, Rowe kept going, "I have some more good news, according to your magic levels during your prior pregnancies around the tenth week, your magic is actually right around where it's been in the past. And you're sustaining three! You're obviously doing something right, so keep that up!"

I interrupted, but … er … at least it wasn't a question? "He's been as active as he normally is, possibly more so, but most of what he's been doing hasn't been magical in nature. He's teaching a hand to hand combat class, caring for a baby bear, helping at my horse rescue, teaching a dance class at Lainie's school, but pretty much everything besides the apparating to get from place to place has been magic free."

She looked quite upset at that information. I felt so bad for interrupting! "You've been teaching hand to hand combat? Even after finding out about the pregnancy? Draco I am honestly surprised at you."

It was my blurt ing that got you into trouble, so I blurted again to try and stop that line of thought, "oh, he's not doing any of the demonstrations himself, he's the ideas man, not the muscle!"

"Alright, but I'd like you to have someone cast a protective bubble around your abdomen before each class just in case of a poorly aimed jab or kick," we nodded as she continued. "My third piece of good news - yes three babies three pieces of good news, it's certainly your lucky day gentlemen - is that your cold is an actual easy to treat common cold. You should feel all better in just a few days. If you're not responding to a potions regimen for a cold send Harry out for some Muggle cold medicines to treat the symptoms until you shake the cold."

Honestly Draco, you tried to get out of this appointment by saying you had a cold. What kind of lunatic tries to convince their worried husband to not take them to a Healer by saying they're SICK? Thank Merlin you're pretty.

"Also, while you're doing well magically and health wise right now, I'd like to start you on a preemptive potions regimen already. Your usual pregnancy cocktail of nutrition, magic booster, and magical restoration."

"Joy … My FAVORITE …" you snarked. "But actually, I already have."

"Wonderful, moving on." That's when Rowe lost a bit of her smile she'd been wearing. "Now onto the, I don't want to say bad news because nothing is going wrong at this point, but it's certainly heavier information than the first three items were." Yuck, I did not want to hear this. "Draco, your blood pressure is elevated, it's certainly well within the normal range but it's higher than you usually run. I know this is a stressful time but you need to regulate your stress levels. If any of your activities cause you more frustration or annoyance than usual, I would like you to limit them or see if you can remove them from your schedule."

Oooh, maybe I DID want to hear this! Does this mean you're going to stop teaching the Aurors?!? I mean, aw man, that would be so sad.

Ah, I have to stop inner monologuing, I'm going to miss something she says!

"You should also keep up on any of your regular exercising. I don't think you should take up weightlifting any time soon, but keeping active will help keep your blood pressure in the healthy range as well as keep your spirits up and reduce stress. I will even sign off on extra dancing if Harry needs a Healer's note to release you to your ballroom."

You lit up like it was Christmas morning. "Ha! I will be able to tell Elena that I can dance as much as I'd like during my class with Zaire!"

"I will write her a note if you'd like me to. It might be a first for me; giving a release to active duty for a parent to give to his child." You nodded at Rowe emphatically. "Now gentlemen, begin your interrogations."

I had a whole notebook of questions, but I wanted to start with something I said offhandedly to you, but the more I thought about it, the more I wondered if it was something we could really do. "Is there any way to magically transfer one or even all of the wombs to me? If I could take over Draco's physical burden either partially or completely, I'd like to do that. Is it even possible?"

She sighed. "Technically, yes, there is a procedure for embryonic, fetal, or uterine transfers. And it is something I would potentially be willing to do IF it becomes necessary. However, it is generally used for times when the carrier's life is in danger. It isn't without risks and I'd be very reluctant to attempt it for nothing more than a preference."

You immediately interjected with, "I don't want to put Harry at any sort of risk."

Rowe took a deep breath. "Harry wouldn't be the one at risk, Draco. Almost all of the risk would be for you, with the rest being risks to the babies."

You gave a quick nod. "That I don't mind so much."

"Well I sure as hell would! We can risk you but can't risk me?" I think there's a chance I was crackling a bit.

Rowe sat back to watch our fireworks.
You put your negotiation face on. "I don't think the risk would be all that much, to be honest. I'm healthy and able to heal at the moment, but what if I get so bad that we have to do it anyway, but I don't have the ability to heal at that point?"

Rowe interjected, "the risk IS all that much to be technical. This would put you at a twenty percent increased risk of a heart attack. A ten percent increased chance of a stroke. As for the babies, this would increase the risk of miscarriage by fifteen percent and even if the transfer is successful, a twenty-five percent increased risk of premature birth."

I glared daggers at you, you returning them right back at me full force. "Ugh, so what you are saying is that they are IN there, and there's no justifiably good reason to move them. But what about later, when they're all 20+ weeks along, and my stomach is desperately trying to make room for them all?"

"There is no medical reason to move any of them right now, no." More glaring, but this time at Rowe. "But I've already said that if it's something you both feel is the right choice later on, now that you know the risks, I would be willing to do the procedure."

I finally interjected because I could tell you were getting frustrated and needed someone to make the call. "I am putting my foot down, and since this decision DOES include my body, I feel comfortable doing so. Increased risk of heart attack or stroke? I won't do that. Foot.Down."

More glaring but I've been married to you long enough that I know relief when I see it.

"Draco and Harry, if there are complications later on, we can revisit this. Some pregnancy procedures are better to do early in pregnancy, and for some, it is much better to wait. This is definitely a situation of the risks going down the further into pregnancy you get. Once the fetus gets to a stage where it could survive outside the womb, the risks go down drastically. So, if your magic begins to drain too much, or if your body can't physically withstand three, we can discuss this at that point." See? We don't have to decide right now. Your magic is doing well, the babies are cozy, this is a decision that can wait for a later date.

"However, I promise you that you will not have three full term babies in there. While the situation is unusual, it is not unprecedented. Your conception with Lily and Caelum was actually very similar, the placentas just happened to grow at almost the exact same time, so their progress was equal. We will not let any of them go past the thirty-six week mark, with the exception of Baby C, if they want stay in there longer after the births of A and B. Best case scenario, we will take A at thirty-six weeks when B and C are thirty-three and thirty-one weeks. After that we can either take B at their thirty-six week mark, leaving C in for two more weeks, or we can wait and take them both when C is at thirty-six. All of this is best case scenario depending on your health."

Now that I was hearing all their weeks at once, I started panicking again. "Can we er, do something for Draco to give him more room in there? Like the extension charm on my paternity pants?"

Rowe laughed. She laughed at me Draco! "As much as this may come as a shock to you, Harry, your husband is not a pair of pants we can charm to fit more inside." I blushed so hard, Gods this was embarrassing. "However, when the babies hit between twenty-eight and thirty-two weeks, we can definitely visit the idea of womb transfer. The risks would be minimal by then. Also, I can cast extensive healing charms on Draco's abdomen so it doesn't stretch to extremes and heals up postpartum much quicker. Again, let's wait to make these decisions when we can see how the health and magic of both Draco and the babies are as time passes.

"Well, you boys look as though I've beaten you up. I think this is probably enough of an information dump for now. As always, if you have questions let me know, otherwise I'll see you in another three or four weeks?" I had more questions but honestly she was right, we were on information overload.

We came home and you immediately went to the onsen and submerged to where not much but your nose and mouth were still above water. I cast a bubble charm on your abdomen to make sure you didn't cook the little baby nuggets in there, then cast a spell to make sure if you fell asleep, you wouldn't sink the rest of the way underwater. I snuggled with you a bit until you passed out, then went down to spend the day with the kids.

It's been hours and you're still in there.

So … uh … are you ever coming out?

Miss you,
Harry

P.S. How and when are we telling the kids?

Wednesday September 7th
My sanity,

I mean that; without you, I almost certainly would have gone around the twist the last few days.

Anyway, I think we should tell the Hogwarts kids to come home from school this weekend to "see how their first week has been," and then tell the entire family over dinner. Elena almost certainly told River, but we'll Magi-Skype him too and see if he and Mahafsoun want to and can come. She might be filming, but I am confident that if she CAN come, she'll want to.

Then we can tell the entire family the horrible - er I mean wonderful - news all at once. Speaking of, you can go ahead and get excited now. I mean that I may still be a bit shell shocked, but having you make happy plans for their arrivals will certainly keep my spirits up as time passes. I'm going to tell Pippa to schedule me more sessions with Yesenia again because we both know that I'm going to need them.

Speaking of Pippa, she already knows because she's my shadow and was in the room one of the times we've talked about it. She gave me a smirk when I told her why I needed all the extra sessions, rolled her eyes, and said: "And don't think I haven't noticed you eyeing my abdomen and wondering what's going on. To answer your unasked question, YES, I have decided that I'm far too busy and invested in YOUR family to take enough time off to meet someone and have a family of my own, so I decided to just do it all on my own. A one off with a stranger; baby due in about 5 months."

So... that's that, I suppose...

As for looking fat enough to be potentially pregnant, I was staring at myself in the mirror this morning and - to my extreme dismay - I'm already showing!!! The first one is 10 weeks, and so, in the first trimester. When Lily and Caelum were 10 weeks, I only just BARELY had a hint of a bulge. But these ones... Thankfully it's still small and not clearly a bulge as opposed to a soft layer of fat, but it's definitely there.

I may have cried.

Thankfully, Rowe said to keep up my dancing and exercise routine, and come to think of it, that shouldn't have really been a surprise. She's ALWAYS said to keep doing the things I'm used to doing as long as I feel comfortable doing them. And once she suggested casting a shield charm on my stomach, I really feel that she would be okay with me having just a bit more hands on teaching with my students - not full on sparring with them, but actual teaching them the way I did.

SO - to ease your mind - I sent her an owl when I woke up today asking her a couple of the more important questions we didn't get a chance to ask, and she replied that yes, so long as I am not overdoing it nor sparring, and as long as I have a shield to protect the babies from stray hits, I CAN teach a bit more hands on. She still advised keeping it light - such as only throwing one or two students over my shoulder, rather than all of them.

I completely understand. I'm just happy I have the all clear to punch them as needed!

The other really important question I needed answered TODAY was concerning my Occlumency and Legilimency teaching. To my surprise, she said that it shouldn't be a problem, and in fact, might even help with my blood pressure as the Occlumency part - by necessity - involves a lot of meditation. Also, I'm not sure if you are aware of this (considering who taught you and how), but the lessons don't actually have to be traumatizing.

Also, despite what I told Fierston, if he has ANY natural affinity for it at all, it really doesn't take all that long. That 4 year program in France is part of a Mind Healer's specialization, and so, they NEED to be able to do it very very well. As in, slip into the most traumatized minds and not cause any damage while trying to fix the trauma (all while maintaining their own separate identity). For the purposes of interrogating suspects, so long as he has the ability to meditate and control his magic, it shouldn't be all that hard for him to learn the skill, and should he have NO affinity for it, I end the lessons.

With that in mind, I had a nice private dinner with you - managing to snag you from the stables for a bit - and discussed this with you, before heading off to my first class. We naturally kissed quite a bit before separating.

Knowing better, I only put any real effort into my bottoms. Thus, when I walked onto the track to pick up my students (the Ministry expert assured me that the new students were already making progress on their run, and that the prior students might be ready to go up in time if I needed them too. Unfortunately, I'd already pushed them back an hour so that they could grab a bite to eat before running for an hour before class, and so, as tempting as that was, no.), we all looked at my shirt to find:

Yes, I know there's a special place in HELL for me. It's called a throne.

"Huh!" I exclaimed, feeling rather chuffed by this one.

After leading them to the classroom, I had them all circle around and listen to me. "Excellent news, petals, I've got clearance from my Healer and my Husband to go LESS easy on you today!"

"Wait, you were going easy on us?" A new student asked in dismay.

"You have no idea," an old student muttered.

The one that had asked about Wojtek on Monday (which, yes, I had him with me today as Shtara is busy with her rehearsals after school every day until opening night), must actually like me a little, because he frowned in concern. "You had to get clearance from your Healer?"

I looked at him evenly. "I can't tell you why until I've had a chance to tell the rest of my family, but I'm sure you'll figure it out eventually."

"Fair nuff guv," he murmured with a shrug.

I had my students all pair up and - keep in mind that the returning students have returned because they need more practice mastering what they've already learned - told them to sweep each other's feet out from under each other. I figured that the previous students would have an easier chance at doing this to the new students - which they did - and actually TEACH the lesson in the process. All in all, a very Slytherin way for me to teach my class AND conserve my strength.

Thus, when my timid mouse and my sole female student looked like they were waltzing with each other, I had no qualms about sweeping BOTH of their feet out from under them.

"What ARE you two doing?" I asked irately as I stared down at them.

"It's not easy to sweep someone's feet out from under them when they're EXPECTING it!" Girly protested angrily.

I rubbed my temples to attempt to summon patience. "Listen, I understand that HE'S too timid to put in any real effort," as I said this, I helped him to his feet, and then punched him in the gut (as I'd promised), making him bend over and heave a few times. "But YOU seem to have confidence. So either you are too 'polite' to hurt someone who looks weaker than you, OR you don't have what it takes to defend yourself from VIOLENT CRIMINAL ATTACKERS!" I then helped her up, and to her credit, she looked a bit wary before deciding that I could not possibly DARE to punch her too.

Which of course I did. She hopped about and cried, threatening to tell Robards on me.

I got right in front of her, grabbed her by the chin so that she had to look me in the eyes, and then very calmly said: "Go. Right. Ahead. I'm not afraid of what he'll say or do. In fact, I'll give you a pass to go right now, and when you RETURN from him handing your arse to you, you will either VOW to take this class seriously, or you will QUIT the Auror program altogether."

Grumbling but wisely not pushing me any farther, she lowered her eyes and didn't say anything more. I'm dead certain she went to Robards after class, but since I never heard a peep of it, he probably did exactly as I'd warned her.

After that, class progressed rather nicely. Having that little bit of a challenge in not only doing but DEMONSTARTING the skills for the new students had my old students stepping up their game. I was pleased enough that I tossed them all enough Galleons to go to the Leaky and have a few rounds on me.

Which actually gave me a BRILLIANT idea! Next Tuesday - unless I forget - I'm going to glamour myself or perhaps borrow your cloak so that I can subtly pay for a LOT of drinks for my students, so that when they come to class on Wednesday, they'll be so hung over that it will be EXCEEDINGLY easy to torture them, buwahahahahahaha!

Moving on.

So, once in my office after class, I sat down and relaxed as I watched Fierston meditate. He had a fluffy bunny in his lap, which is apparently that pet I told him to get. I sat Wojtek on my lap and stroked his fur until Fierston came out of his near trance.

"You do that very well," I murmured in praise.

"My gran taught me when I was very little. She always told me that knowing how to meditate was important because - no matter what - I'd always be able to keep calm and in control of any situation," he explained with a fond smile.

"Ah, wise woman," I acknowledged. This might actually be easier than I thought it would be. "Alright, there are two distinct ways in which Occlumency can be taught. The first way is for people who don't know how to meditate or organize their minds. It's basically a series of battles designed to give them an intense desire and a NEED to organize their minds. After all, if you KNOW that someone is repeatedly invading your mind and seeing all the worst things you want to keep hidden, wouldn't YOU want to stop them?"

"Yes," he murmured with a solemn nod.

"The other way is actually the way my Aunt Bella taught me," I informed him. "She knew that I already had a natural talent for meditation and Occlumency - because both of my parents had taught me bits here and there over the years. Things like: 'Malfoys NEVER let on what they're REALLY thinking,' and 'keep your mind organized and protected so that no one can ever steal YOUR secrets and the FAMILY secrets.' Also, I have a grandmother who felt that me learning Krav Maga would help me control my emotions, because if I was angry, I could take it out on a practice dummy. Things like that.

"SO, when it came time for me to learn, I didn't need to be taught how to organize my mind, I already knew. Thus, my Aunt didn't have to barge in and force me to put up shields, she was able to do what I'm going to do to you, slip in and go for a stroll, pointing out things I might like to put in a box so that she can't see them. That - in essence - is what Occlumency is. You gather up everything you don't want someone else to see, and put it behind a strong shield. THEN you hide that shield by putting those things you don't mind others seeing all around it in a disorganized mess. Make it SEEM like you have nothing to hide," I explained.

"So... you're going to be wandering around my mind as you like...?" He asked nervously.

"I already have, if I'm honest. I had to be certain you were a good candidate, and not the sort to learn for nefarious reasons," I informed him.

He gulped and looked away. "So... you saw the time I lost my virginity?"

I shook my head. "You weren't thinking about that, so no. I really only went deep enough to see what your primary motivations for learning this skill is. Trust me, I DON'T want to see your intimate memories. If they happen to come up, I'll look the other way."

He sighed in relief and rubbed the back of his head. "It's just... well that time was REALLY awkward and embarrassing. I wouldn't want to see it myself, much less have ANYONE else see it."

I laughed. "EVERYONE'S first time is awkward and embarrassing - except for my husband. His first time was with me and I was dedicated to blowing his mind to bits, so his was rather fantastic, if I do say so myself."

He laughed in return. "What about yours?"

As I've said before, I am going to eventually have this young man roaming around my mind, and so, letting him get to actually know me before then is in my best interest. Plus, he doesn't know it, but I'm reading his mind as we talk, and so, if he has any sort of reaction that makes him inherently incompatible with me - say he'd been repulsed by our sex life, for instance - I'd learn it now before we really get started.
So far, he seems to be a rather understanding bloke with an open mind. Ironically, as he mentioned his first time, I’d gotten a flash of it, and it seemed to me that he felt awkward because she’d wanted him to dominate her a bit, but he gives off this feeling of BEING a sub, and so, he probably had NO IDEA what to do as the dominant one. No wonder he thought it was too shameful to let anyone else see.

In any case, I answered the question honestly. "I lost my virginity to one of my best friends, Pansy. I used to always maintain that it was at some point in Fifth Year, but it must have actually happened in Fourth Year and I just blocked that part out due to shame over how young I was. It was awkward because I never really considered her a potential future wife, despite actually dating her for a bit, and I think it was actually HER idea, and I was just sort of going with it because, well, why not? The reason I say that it must have been Fourth Year is that I would swear up and down that I had a kinky bit of play not too long after losing my virginity with a Ravenclaw on my 16th Birthday - at the end of Fifth Year - but based off the date of birth for the son she had, it HAD to have been my 15th birthday in Fourth Year."

He was stroking his chin in thought. "So... is there any other reason that you might have confused how young you were?"

This was a good sign, a potential indication that he might have an affinity for this after all.

"Actually, yes, in my Seventh Year, I had to use my Occlumency to lock away most of my feelings, and also, around the same time - from about Summer hols just prior to my Sixth Year on, I was raped a few times, and I coped with that by removing most of the individual memories and locking them in a box so that I would know they happened, but NOT be continually traumatized by them. I think that between the two things, I got confused about the timing of my sexual history and pushed it up a year so that I wouldn't feel like such an utter slag."

"Merlin!" He blurted out in sympathy. "Mine doesn't seem so bad now..."

I chuckled. "Obviously I've had a LOT of therapy to reach a point where I am comfortable with what happened to me enough to tell you about it. But honestly, the reason I'm telling you is that you'll probably come across some of those memories at some point, and you'll need to be prepared for the possibility."

He gulped and nodded rather solemnly.

I gave him a small smile. "But don't worry, as I said, the actual traumatizing part of those particular memories are gone, and so, the most you would see is the men who did it coming after me and catching me. Then it would cut to the end of me watching them walk away."

"I'm curious about something," he murmured, looking puzzled. "You currently teach unarmed combat and word has it that you learned the skill quite young – which you just sort of said a couple minutes ago. If that's true, how come you weren't able to defend yourself?"

I nodded in understanding. "Yeah, if they had been muggles, I probably would have been able to kick their arses, but they usually came into my room at night while I was sleeping and cast spells on me before I could wake up enough to defend myself. So, I took to hiding in the back of my closet - which is enormous and a bit of a maze. It was usually enough of a deterrent that they'd run off, but occasionally, they'd get me anyway, and again, they'd manage to do so by casting spells to immobilize me when I wasn't quite aware they'd spotted me. Basically, I couldn't defend myself because they took away my ability. Otherwise, you bet your sweet arse I would have beat them all half to death!"
"Oh," he said with a nod, as if this made sense. "I see."

"Anything else?" I asked invitingly.

"Just... what do you plan to do for our first lesson?" He wondered curiously.

"Actually, our first lesson is nearly over," I informed him with a smirk.

"Wait... what? But you haven't even taught me anything!" He protested.

"Haven't I?" I asked in that tone that makes it clear I know something you don't.

"Er... no?" He replied hesitantly, probably wondering if me telling him about me counted as a lesson.

"Ah, but what you don't realize is that I have been in your mind this entire time. Thus, your first lesson is that - done right - Legilimency is exceedingly smooth and the person being read doesn't even realize it until later when they're sitting there wondering how the other person knew so much about them. To make this a bit clearer, my husband - who has arguably the most reason to have a well defended mind - used to have his mind read by Headmaster Dumbledore all the time, and despite suspecting it eventually, he never twigged when it was actually happening."

"Er... but... I... I didn't feel anything!" Fierston exclaimed in protest.

I shrugged. "HERE'S the lesson. Go home and meditate, and while you're doing so, try to see if you can find any traces of me. And I don't mean that literally. I mean that was there ANY time - a single moment perhaps - when you felt like you were being watched, or like there might have been a moment when I seemed to know something you hadn't told me. Also, as you are meditating, try to begin the process of constructing a shield. Hide anything you don't want me seeing behind it. For example, I wasn't lying when I originally answered that I hadn't seen your first time, but because you thought about it as we were talking about it, I saw it then. I looked away, but before I did, I saw enough to understand why you felt the experience was embarrassing."

"Well that's mortifying," he muttered, looking away from me again.

I gave him a slightly bigger smile. "Honestly, you'd do better finding a partner who wants to gently dominate YOU."

He chuckled and rubbed the back of his neck. "Yeah... I've already figured that out."

"Good, it means you learn your lessons easily," I praised.

"Well, I dunno about EASY..." he chuckled. "But yeah, I do learn from my mistakes."

"All in all, I think you will do well learning this skill, provided that you practice as much as I tell you to. And just so you know, yes, I am a hard arse, BUT I don't expect perfection from the first moment you try. So long as you steadily improve, I'll keep on teaching you. But if you DON'T, then I'll stop wasting both our time," I informed him.

"Yeah, I've sort of gotten that feeling about you," he murmured with a slight nod.

That earned a real smile. "THAT is why I think you might be a natural at this. You've already figured out how to read people, and that skill will help a LOT when it comes time to learn Legilimency."
"Thanks," he said with a slight blush. Then he raised a brow and looked a bit confused for a moment. I looked down to find that my shirt had changed so that it now said: Hands off what's MINE!

I rolled my eyes and sighed. "My husband must have me bugged or something. He's rather possessive and takes even innocent interest as potential competition."

"I'm not even gay!" He stated, sounding baffled.

I laughed flirtily. "Oh trust me, I'm so good that you wouldn't have to be gay to enjoy it!"

He laughed. "Now you sound like my older brother! He's a confident SOB too!"

"I like him already," I stated as I stood up. "Now if you'll excuse me, I need to go home and reassure my husband that I need him like I need air." I shook his hand. "My office next Wednesday, but before then, work on that shield."

"And, erm… How do I do that?"

"Think of it as going through your mind and tidying everything up. Once everything is in it's proper place, you'll have a much easier time hiding those areas you don't want me seeing by distracting me with things you don't care about."

"Oh..." he exhaled in understanding. "I get it now. I think I can do that."

"Good. See that you do." And with that, I left so that I could hunt you down and kiss you rather possessively. Since this was probably unexpected and in your stables in front of all our younger kids, you got all flushed and happy.

"What was that for?" You wondered. "Not that you NEED a reason."

I smirked and pointed at my shirt. "Apparently I needed to reassure you that 'what's yours' has a mind of his own and is not tempted by others." I leaned over and nibbled on your ear before adding in a nearly silent whisper: "Especially now." Which is a reference to how I'm already bloody showing and I don't want anyone else to see me naked unless it would save their life somehow.

With that, I gave you a smoky eye invitation as I left to go get ready for bed. You promised that you'd be right behind me, but the kids must have insisted that you do lots of things because I've had time to write this entire email and am actually tired enough to go to sleep. Hopefully, you'll come to bed in the next five minutes and put me to sleep the right way.

I once was lost and now am found, was blind, but now I see,

Draco

Chapter End Notes

Oh hey, by the way: https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/2019/03/27/bangladesh-mother-has-twins-one-month-giving-birth-premature/?fbclid=IwAR0VIB9ZBVxHubH0iWkBmbSMrULkXnhaj8V1w4Xgbjc1Dw1grTjTEjVCNcI
Friday September 9, 2016

My Perfection,

I'm sorry I didn't wake you up this morning the way I did yesterday morning. I would love to wake you up every day for the next six to seven months the same way. Notice I said DAY and not MORNING. Because I have met you my love and while you seemed to like yesterday morning, you also fell asleep quite early Wednesday night and had already had plenty of sleep at that point.

The reason it took me so long to come join you in bed that evening is because I was setting Lissa and Atreyu up to sleep in the stables again. The unicorns are definitely a bit spooked by Trey, he's a boy - and a were - so he unsettles them. But the thestrals just adore him. Yeah, the thestrals. I didn't think a child that young could truly process death in a way that would allow them to see the thestrals, similar to how I didn't see them until Cedric died even though I had witnessed my mother's death.

But there's a big difference in awareness between a fifteen month old and an almost five year old. Side note: his birthday is coming up three weeks from today so we need to have a MASSIVE "first" birthday party for him! Long story as short as I can make it, Atreyu witnessed his mum's death earlier this year, is well aware of what it meant, and can see the thestrals. Ergo, sleeping with the little ones while Lissa sleeps with the unicorns.

So, yesterday morning … You had mentioned you already could tell you were forming a little bump. Now that I've been given full permission to be as excited as I'd like AND knowing you were feeling weird about already showing, I decided to show you how beautiful I find you to be. Normally I am the little spoon, mostly because I'm much littler than you are. But I woke up yesterday with my front pressed to your back, my arms around you, and my right hand resting gently on your little bump.

Not only was I awake, but there was a very wide awake part of me pressed into your perfect arse. You were very asleep so I decided to just hold you a bit, but I couldn't keep myself from grinding up against you. I honestly could have and would have come from just that friction, what would that have done for you though?

I wandlessly slicked up my fingers and began gently probing at your perfect little pink hole. You made the sweetest moaning noises in the back of your throat but kept sleeping. I just rubbed around the entrance for a while, softening you up, but eventually I had to press into you. I moved quickly from one finger to two, and stayed at two fingers just gently fucking into you for a few minutes. Again, you stayed asleep continuing to moan and sigh. You must have thought you were having a lovely dream.

I worked my way from those two, to three, to fitting my pinky in there and making it four. I wanted you to be so ready to take me that the entire experience would be soft, gentle, and loving. When you began pressing your arse back into me, trying to swallow my hand whole, I knew you were ready. I slicked myself up and began sinking my cock into you. The warm, wet, pulsing tightness of your arse just swallowing me up inch by inch. Absolutely perfect.

I began long, slow drags in and out of you. Whispering words of love and a little bit of filth into your ear. Telling you how perfectly you were taking me. How much I loved seeing myself where I'm entering your perfect body. How hot and tight you were just for me. All mine. Made for me. I couldn't stop my hands from wandering all over you even if I had wanted to. Playing with your lovely pink nipples, getting them all pebbled up for me. Giving that gorgeous shaft that gives me so much pleasure some gentle strokes. Gently squeezing handfuls of those perky arse cheeks of yours.

It was delicious torture, trying to be as gentle as possible, making sure you felt pleasure in every inch of your body, when all I wanted to do was slam my cock into its perfect home as hard and fast as I possibly could until I spilled into you. Marking you mine from the inside. I didn't realize I was babbling that wish into your ear, I'm not sure when you woke up. All I know is after I told you I wanted to spill myself inside of you, you blinked those quicksilver eyes at me sleepily and told me in your raspy sleep-deepened voice to, "go ahead and claim me Harry, mark me up, I want you to."

Oh thank all the Gods you were awake. Before I could take my own pleasure however, I had to make sure you were well sated. I tightened my grip on your beautiful long dick and stroked you through your grunting and moaning, whimpering and sighing, until you finished all over my hand. The clenching you did as you came, combined with me speeding up and getting in three or four more quick thrusts, was enough to have me filling you up.

Once we both came down from our high, I gave you sweet kisses and told you I wasn't quite done with you yet. I had you lie on your back, propped up on a mountain of pillows, while I kissed every inch of your perfect abdomen. Not the way I do so often where I bite and suck and mark you all up so everyone knows who you belong to, but soft kisses. Kisses that show you how precious I find you.

I began to tell our newest children a story. "Once upon a time my little loves, a lonely warrior fell in love with a beautiful prince. The warrior and the prince had been rivals, but when the war was over, they found the fighting had been covering up love. So much love they couldn't wait a single moment more to come together and married immediately. But the young men found they had so much love that they couldn't contain it within only themselves - it was too much love to even contain together. So they began to build a family. They found their children all over the world. They created some of their children and carried them within their own bodies. And then, when they thought they had finally found homes for all the love they were full of, they were surprised to find they needed three new little miracles to use up just a bit more of that love."

You were smiling softly at me, running your hands through my hair. Just watching me talk to our children. "I love that you love them. It's helping me wrap my head around having them."

I smiled up at you, giving your little bump one last kiss. "Your Daddy loves you. I can't wait to meet you all. Enjoy your nice, warm, cozy home and make sure you are very nice to your other Daddy, he's kind of amazing." I pulled myself up to your angelic face and we kissed for a while more until we were finally ready to leave our little morning bubble and venture into the rest of the world.

Today however, I got up early to get all my stable chores done before I head off to Hogwarts to grab the kids for the weekend. I sent off a message to Minnie asking when the last kid got out for their last class of the week, and Siri will be finishing up transfiguration at 11:00. Which is in fifteen minutes! I should really head out. I'll see you in a bit.

I just want my life to forever be entwined with you, tethered to your heart,

Harry

Saturday September 10th
My amazing husband,

Without you, I probably would have just stayed in bed until Monday. I've actually decided that to balance out my busy Mondays and Wednesdays, I'm going to spend Thursday through Sunday more or less in bed. Not completely. I'm going to focus on yoga, meditation, and a bit of running when I first wake up, take a nap if I'm so inclined, and then dance for an hour or so, before sitting my arse in bed and reading or watching anime with the kids.

Basically, you keep begging me to slow down and that's what I'm doing. That way, I'll be staying in shape and hopefully keeping my blood pressure down. And also, any day you want me to do something with you, I shouldn't be overdoing it.

But as for today, you came into the room and gently reminded me that I'd suggested a family dinner to announce the news. Then you playfully wrestled around on the bed with me until I nearly fell off it. Laughing and in a great mood, I got up and got dressed. I opted for a cross between formal and informal - since this wasn't exactly a black tie event and I have been known to show up to dinner naked.

Feeling as prepared as I was going to get, I put my hand in yours and let you lead me to the dining room. Everyone got seated and served their dinner, which - as usual - the elves made each person exactly what they wanted. After tucking in for a bit, Hazel cast her shrewd eyes at us.

"Alright, out with it!" She demanded.

"Out with what?" I feigned ignorance.

She rolled her eyes, probably knowing I was joking. "We're not stupid. We know that you are having some health issues, and then suddenly, dad wants all to come home for the weekend to talk about how our first week of school went. Yeah... something's going on."

"Something big," Eris added with a nod of agreement.

I sighed, set my fork down, and wiped my mouth with my napkin. "I have some very horrifying news that also happens to be wonderful news."

You laughed nervously. "Wonderfully horrifying! Wonderfying?"

I shook my head at your silliness, smiling at you even as I took your hand and gave it a kiss. "Spill it already!" Viona snapped, looking rather concerned.

With another sigh, I decided to just blurt it out and get it over with. "I'm pregnant."

"Salacious Salazar!" My father exclaimed in dismay. "Don't you have enough kids already?!"

My mother was frowning in concern. "I'm quite sure you both vowed not to have any more. Did you change your minds?"

I shook my head. "No. I was very adamant that I didn't want to have any more children, although I would have done it if Harry wanted - except he agreed with me that we were definitely done."

"Then what happened?" Della and Delphini asked in unison.

I took a sip of my tea, sincerely wishing that it was something a LOT stronger. "Well, it seems that magic and fate have teamed up to screw with me. Apparently I first got pregnant while on that "undercover mission I've told you all about."

"Oh Draco," my mother murmured sympathetically, reaching over to squeeze my hand. I smiled at her and squeezed her hand in return. "And then I got pregnant again on Harry's birthday when we used a Damsel Curse to turn me into a woman for the night."

"Wait, hang on," Sebastian blurted out, clearly confused. "Why in Merlin's rotting brain would you turn YOURSELF into a woman for your husband's birthday when he's so gay he can't even walk a straight line?!"

"Good question," Viona murmured, frowning in puzzlement.

I chuckled. "Without getting into details best left unsaid in front of little ears, suffice it to say that I was ordered to try it by my Mind Healer as part of my therapy from my undercover mission. Plus I wanted to try it, if I'm honest."

My father suddenly had a deeply thoughtful look on his face as he stroked his chin. I'm willing to bet he's going to have my mother curse him - unless the high chance of getting pregnant changes his mind. Although, I suppose there are protection spells we could have used if any of us thought for a MOMENT that the temporary female body was primed and ready to conceive.

Anyway, I decided to put on a bit of my Malfoy mask and get through the last bit with a straight face, because it's arguably the most embarrassing part. "And I liked it enough that when Harry suggested that I do it again for some playtime with our friends, I jumped at the chance... and got pregnant AGAIN..."

"What?" Most everyone asked in surprise.

"Surely... that's not possible..." My mother murmured in confusion.

"You'd think," I stated in agreement. "But apparently it is. I currently have three wombs, each containing a baby, for a total of three separate pregnancies all happening at the same time."

"Heteropaternal Superfecundation..." Sebastian murmured in intrigue. "I've thought about making a potion that can do that, but then had absolutely NO reason to ever try it on anyone, and so, decided against it."

I raised a brow at my brother because he's rather a weirdo when it comes to potions.

"How is this going to affect your health?" Hazel asked in concern.

"So far, it looks like it's affecting me the same as my pregnancy with Lily and Caelum, so - provided I keep taking all the potions I need to and conserve my magic as much as possible - we're all hoping that it won't be any worse than before."

"And if it gets to the point where it endangers his health, we have options to consider," you murmured, kissing my hand.

"But if you see me in bed rather a lot, that's why," I informed them.

Our older kids all looked around at each other in concern, but the younger ones were definitely excited, piling over to pet my tummy and ask questions. Despite my cold mostly clearing up since that potion on Tuesday, I must still be having a few lingering effects, because I started to feel very tired shortly after finishing my Steak Tartare. With a yawn, I excused myself and left you to deal with the rest of the questions.
I'll see you in my dreams,
Draco

Sent around 2 AM.
P.S. I meant that as a bit of a sweet joke, but my dream was INSANE! I dreamt you turned into a giant goat and were eating everything in sight, including the manor, our entire family, and ME! I was watching in horror as you finished off my legs and started on my abdomen when I woke up with a soft shout of alarm, but having you and Atreyu right next to me helped to calm me down and reassure me that you were most definitely NOT a goat!
Chapter 70

Chapter Summary

Harry is read the riot act and Draco accidentally lets some important news slip.

Sunday September 11, 2016

Fuck my actual life,

No, I am not a goat. Although at this point, I think I would like to hide away as a simple goat for a while. Maybe until everyone cools off. I'll have you know that the soul crushing reprimanding lecture I received last night after you went to sleep is something I never want to go through again. Thank goodness the littles were tucked away in their beds, or - in Atreyu's case - our bed, before the tongue lashing commenced.

I'm really pleased that they all stayed pretty calm while you were in the room. I know they were much more reserved than they've been in the past during pregnancy announcements but they weren't outright defiant. Mostly just worried about your health and confused since we've been pretty adamant for six years now that there were going to be no more pregnancies from either of us.

I'll take it, especially since the other option is that they come after you with their stressful conversations, but damn you'd think I was one hundred percent responsible for this situation we're finding ourselves in. Somehow I've gone back in time and I feel a bit like a young man getting read the riot act because he got some innocent girl in the family way.

I thought about just hiding this all from you for a moment. Just for a moment I promise! I just didn't want to stress you out even more. But then I realized I'm shite at hiding my feelings and you knew they were going to pepper me with more questions. If I had woken up this morning and tried to pretend that everything went completely well last night you'd immediately catch me in a lie. So, bad news in email per usual my love.

Alright, it's not really as bad as I'm making it out to be. None of them are actually upset at the idea that we have more children coming into our lives. You saw how pleased they were at Shtara's arrival a few years ago, and then Atreyu's arrival recently. They're not against us adding to our beautiful family. They are all scared for you. I certainly don't blame them, I'm scared for you as well. I wish I could lock you up in that dragon guarded tower you're always threatening the teenagers with. But I love you too much to clip your wings like that.

After you left, your brothers, sisters, and the Viper kids decided to remove themselves from the discussion. They'll get all the dirt eventually anyway and seemed alright with letting our children and your parents do all the damage. They very sweetly decided to be the ones to get the littles off to bed. They did try and get Zaire to come with them as well, but he just sneered at them until they got the hint that he was no longer a 'little.' I thought Jaz would argue, but I am sure Zaire will fill her in and she probably would have had a hard time understanding everyone talking at once.

As soon as everyone was sure you and the littles were out of earshot, they started shouting questions at me rapid-fire. "One at a time you monsters! I can't answer all of the questions at once!" I insisted.
They did that scary thing where they all basically tried communicating with their eyes as to who would start. Before they could decide, I had to say my bit. "First of all, I will answer all of your questions as honestly as I can. We've already been to see Rowe twice and I have a lot of good information. But you all need to understand that your dad needs all the support he can get right now. He is being pumped full of potions and hormones. He has decided we are keeping these children. And he's working on being happy about it. You have a problem about the pregnancy or the babies, you come to me. Understood?"

They all nodded, some a bit more forced than others, but we were all in agreement.

Elena began, "I've had more time to process this - since they had to tell me before he began teaching the Zulu dance class. I talked with River about it since we weren't sure if he'd be able to come tonight. Before any of you start attacking Daddy for causing or allowing this, try to remember that he would die before letting any harm come to his husband. You know this." Phew, if I had Lainie in my corner I knew this couldn't be too bad. "I - for one - am thrilled. My little brothers or sisters will grow up with my child, my sister's child, and Del's child."

"Thank you Lainie-Girl. I'm really excited these babies will have your baby to grow up with too." I smiled over at her.

"Yeah, unless Dad or the babies die." Wow, way to go straight for the jugular Viona. Quite the 'off with their heads' Princess there, aren't you?

Seeing as you dying is pretty much my greatest fear, I snapped at her a bit. "I will NOT be letting your Dad die, Viona Skye. I am not going to say anything for how nasty you just acted, but if I hear you say that to your other dad we WILL be having words."

"Yeah, like you'll have time to talk to me over the upcoming months. Good thing there's nothing else important happening, like you guys having grandchildren, or your daughter getting married or anything. I can't believe you're being so fucking selfish." I have never been so angry with Viona. I know she's just a scared girl worried about her favorite person in the world, but what the fuck Vivi?

I would have shut her down again, but Orion beat me to it. "Shut your damn mouth, Viona! Look at Dad's hands, he's shaking. He's scared too, but at least he's not hiding it behind planning for a stupid party."

"It's not just a party! It's my wedding; it's not selfish to want my big day to be amazing and actually about me!" Viona was getting very close to shrieking.

"YOUR wedding, YOUR big day, do you even need a husband for this or should we just print out one of those cardboard cutouts and prop it up next to you since you're the only one that matters?" Yikes Orion, going straight for the jugular there as well.

Your mum cleared her throat … instant silence. How does that woman do that? "None of this is productive. If you are going to act like toddlers you will be sent off to bed like the actual small children were."

I sighed in relief. "Thank you Mum."

"Oh, I wouldn't thank me quite yet, Harry James. How did you let this happen? Why haven't you talked him out of this? What are you doing to assure me of my son's continued safety?"

Oh fuck. Maybe I'd rather have Viona yelling at me instead of these calm scary questions from your mum. "Mum, I love you, but you greatly exaggerate my ability to tell your son what to do. HE wanted to go undercover, HE wanted to try the damsel curse to help him come to terms with the undercover situation, and while I may have suggested the playtime, it was only because I didn't think my ridiculously gay self gave him what he needed the first time. When we found out about the pregnancies, I gave him my opinion and my preferences, but I started every conversation reminding him it was HIS body, HIS decision, and no choice he could make would change my love for him."

She sighed in reluctant acceptance. "I suppose he is a tad stubborn. However, those are all excuses for what has already transpired, what are you going to do to promise me his safety?"

I suppose it was good she was getting all of the hard questions out of the way. It meant I didn't have to hear them coming from my children. "I can tell you all of the specifics if you truly need them. But what it all comes down to is Draco's health and safety are my main priorities. He is taking preemptive potions despite the fact that his health is well within the healthy range. He's cutting back on anything adding stress. He's going to take more time for his dancing, which is a fantastic pregnancy exercise and his own personal stress relief. If his health deteriorates, we have a plan in place to transfer the babies elsewhere for the remainder of the pregnancy. And each one will be born as soon as they hit thirty-six weeks or earlier if there are complications."

I decided to lighten the mood a bit. "And I will be his personal house wizard, foot rubs, bringing him treats in the middle of the night, I will even carry him around bridal style everywhere he wants to go for the rest of his pregnancies if that's what he wants. I will stop peeing midstream to care for him if he so much as coughs."

That earned me a round of "gross!" and "yuck!" and a couple "that's disgusting!"'s.

Hazel interjected with a: "Well, I suppose I'm awfully glad I didn't down a fertility potion and shag a stranger to be pregnant in solidarity with Eri. We need all hands on deck for this, don't we?"

Your mum about exploded, "You almost did WHAT young lady?"

Haz's eyes grew about double their size and she meeped, she actually made a meep noise! "I didn't do anything Grammy!"

River could not contain his laughter at this point. "I can't begin to tell you how thrilled I am Maha wants to wait on the babies while her acting career is so hot right now. I can't imagine dealing with any more crazy pregnant people!"

Eris may not look like your side of the family, but she can glare almost as well as her Grammy Cissa. "Who exactly are you calling crazy, River?"

Ha! More meeping. "I meant Dad, just Dad, he's the crazy pregnant one, not you Eri!"

Here's where I got to be scary: "Oh? I should just tell him you think he's crazy, eh Riv?"

"Er … I think my portkey is about to leave. Can't be late. I promised I'd be there when Maha got off set. Bye!" That little weasel son of ours actually portkeyed himself back to California to avoid this fight!

Shtara was the next with a concern. "What's this going to mean for my play? And what about your book tour? I thought you were leaving soon to promote the last book?"

I forgot about the damn book tour! I have to be the worst author ever. "This will not change anything about your play. You will have your nanny while you have rehearsals and performances;"
you will be home or at classes otherwise. The only thing this changes for you is that Daddy might want an extra cushiony seat when we come see you be the star!

"And Er... I haven't really talked with my agent, but I'm sure we'll figure it out. If I have to portkey back and forth for every stop I will. But if Draco's doing well and wants to come with, he's early enough in the pregnancies that he may enjoy some cushy hotel rooms and joining me in the spotlight."

Zaire interrupted what seemed like there might be more arguing. "Dad, you don't need to cry, we'll all be happy about the babies, ok? Don't worry, everyone is just shocked, we'll come around and love our new brothers or sisters. I promise."

Oh. I didn't even realize I'd started crying. I wiped at my eyes and tried to calm down a bit. I looked at Siri and Zwei, who hadn't said anything at this point. "What about you two, Siri you're usually quiet but your mouthpiece hasn't said a word either. What are your two knuts?"

Zwei, with a very serious face, said, "The boys are currently losing eight to seven. I insist they aren't all girls. I can handle one girl and two boys - which will end in a tie. Even better if they're ALL boys! But I refuse to remain outnumbered."

Well, at least this discussion ended with the entire room laughing?

And it's pretty cool how excited the littles were.

I love you Draco.

Yours,
Harry

Monday September 12th
Harry...

So... When I woke up this morning, I swear I saw a woman standing next to the bed staring at Atreyu, who was wrapped around me rather possessively since you were out of the room. I stared at her in shocked silence for a moment. Perhaps my heartrate started going up, or perhaps my breathing increased, but something woke Atreyu up.

He opened his eyes to peer at me intently, and that caused the woman to run off so fast I almost thought I'd imagined her, except for that she ran straight through the nearest wall, and that made me realize that I could see through her. So... a ghost?

Or still possibly a figment of my overactive, pregnant imagination.

In any case, I had fun simply tickling and playing with Atryu for a bit, and then he jumped out of bed and excitedly shouted something about running around the track. It seems that no matter what he thinks about our cooler weather, he simply ADORES your running track. Not to mention, I'm certain the Manor grounds hold quite a bit of interest for him, especially now that he and Amala are getting on and can go hunting together.

I'm extremely glad that I've maintained a flock of chickens and a large colony of rabbits to not only feed Amala - when she's not in the mood to hunt - but to also give her something (relatively easy) TO hunt so that she doesn't try hunting the Peafowl, the owls, or our pets.
Zaire came in the room and found me doing some light yoga. "Oh good, you're awake." He then quietly joined me in my yoga - presumably to not only warm up, but also keep me on time. One full 'morning' routine later, and we were all ready to go to class - once again wearing nothing but our Zulu warrior costumes.

Our Traditional African Dance class was even better than the first. Zaire was more confident and I had the ability to get lost in the music - while still demonstrating the steps. Once all the students had the basic steps down fairly well, we showed them the various embellishments that could be added to give the dance more flair and allow for individual expression. That often comes across as posturing - in my opinion - but is very fun nonetheless.

At the end of class, Leah showed up. This year, Zaire elected to do something I thought wouldn't be allowed, but is. He decided to list homeschooling as his primary education and only go to the school he'd been going to part time for things like woodworking and gym. Thus, Leah has taken on the role of his tutor while Jaz is in her special school for the day. Also, since we needed a nanny for Shtara, Leah agreed to take on that role as well - since we already trust her like one of the family.

Thus, after class, Leah was really there to take Shtara to her rehearsals, but she'd wanted to make sure that Zaire hadn't forgotten his 'homework.' Grumbling, he took off for the Manor. Chuckling, Leah kissed me on the cheek and assured me that Shtara wouldn't be out of her sight for a single second. Nodding - and returning the kiss to the cheek - I sent her off to collect our ambitious girl.

Which left me with a bit of time to kill before my other class. This seemed like the perfect opportunity to sit and have tea with Elena. Not to mention quietly observe how she's getting on with Rodrigo. She hasn't grumbled about him since shortly after he was hired, but that was no guarantee that they were working well together.

To my surprise, they were having a pleasant chat when I walked into the office. It sounded like preplanning for their midwinter talent showcase. They both smiled at me and Elena stood up to come hug me.

"Daddy, how are you feeling today?"

"I daresay not nearly as uncomfortable as you probably feel," I murmured, rubbing her belly. "Have you learned the gender yet?"

"Well, yes, but I decided to wait to reveal it until Kisa comes to host my baby shower. Which is going to be Friday October 7th - by the way," she informed me.

"Isn't it already a bit late?" I wondered. "What if you're early?"

"Hopefully not THAT early! I'm not due until December 20th!" Elena exclaimed in alarm.

"And did you ever tell Ethan?" I inquired curious.

"Wait - WHAT???

We all stopped to look at Ethan, who was just about to knock on the open door, and now looked utterly gobsmacked.

"Apparently not," I murmured, feeling bad for inadvertently telling him the news she obvious didn't want him to know.

"Ethan!" Elena exclaimed in shock. "What are you doing here?!"
"I was coming to ask if you had a dance class for two year olds - as my daughter seems to love dancing and I want to encourage that," he explained, now STARING at her stomach.

She turned away and pointed at a large chalk board that has a list of every class, the times they were offered, and who was teaching it. "Yes, we have two, actually, both twice a week, but one in the morning and one in the evening."

"Elena..." Ethan stated in a tone that suggested he realized that she was avoiding the much bigger subject.

She turned back to PEER at him. "Does your wife care that you want to enroll your daughter in classes at a school run by ME?"

He looked utterly confused. "Why would she care about that? She doesn't have a problem with you. In fact, she rather likes you, and now that our therapy has helped solved our biggest issues, we're getting along again, so there's... what's wrong?"

Elena was now glaring at him fiercely. She took a deep breath and exhaled a sigh that also appeared to dispel her negative mood. "Nothing. I'm just actually very busy at the moment. Why don't you go with Rodrigo so that he can enroll your daughter in that dance class."

"ELENA..." Ethan growled darkly, clearly not appreciating her trying to get rid of him without discussing the rather large issue he was still staring at.

She sighed and rubbed her temples to ward off a headache. "Look, there's nothing to talk about. I've already adjusted my life's plan and goals to accommodate this little one, so you have nothing to worry about. Just go on back to your wife and forget all about what you heard."

He was unsurprisingly glaring at her now. I pulled Elena into my arms and kissed her temple. "Listen love, you CAN'T shut him out now. I know that you didn't want to complicate things - and I'm sorry I did exactly that - but now that he knows, you have to let him in enough to talk and make decisions."

She turned her frosty glare on me. "What's there to decide? This baby is MINE!"

I gave her a look that clearly let her know that she was being stubborn. She sighed and rested her head on my shoulder.

"Fine, but I'm NOT going to be happy about it!" She grumbled.

"Well... looks like tea is out of the question for the moment, so, I should probably go get ready for my other class. Rodrigo! Don't you have things to do?" I questioned, looking over to find him giving Ethan a look that was just a hair shy of a hostile glare. He seemed startled to be addressed so unexpectedly, but then looked at me with a flush.

"Er, right! Definitely, I have a meeting with a prospective student in 10 minutes and I should probably go prepare," he stated, standing up and rushing off.

I kissed Elena on the cheek again and squeezed her hand comfortingly before saying goodbye. "Ethan," I said with a nod of respect as I passed him by.

He smiled at me appreciatively. "Lovely to see you again, Mr. Malfoy. Stop by the shop to pick up the hoard of instruments we have for you, when you get a chance."

"I will," I promised, a little dismayed that he had reverted to calling me Mr. Malfoy, but decided that he was simply still trying to process what was happening.

At 6 sharp, I arrived at the Ministry Track to pick up my students. They seemed puzzled by my shirt, which now said: Excuses are for people who don't want it bad enough.

I have to admit that I was a bit puzzled myself, reflexively muttering: "Goddamnit Harry," before leading my students to the classroom.

After pairing them all up - old students with new - I demonstrated the move they were expected to practice today. Naturally, it was something the older students already knew, but rather dismayed the new ones. Straight up punching each other wherever they had an opening. This was actually meant to teach BLOCKING. Meaning that it was in the new students best interest to learn how to block and protect themselves as soon as possible.

My sole female student was once again dancing around with her partner, neither seriously trying to hit the other. I glared at him before crossing my arms over my chest and letting him know with a look that he had about 30 seconds to land a hit on her before I punched him in the gut. To his credit, he gulped in dismay and gave it a good try. He landed the hit, but it looked like a bunny could have hit her harder.

Still, I gave him a slight nod of acceptance before turning to watch HER attempt to land a hit on him. He's actually pretty good at defense at this point. Good enough that she would have to try a LOT harder to hit him than he'd tried to hit her, once he was actually serious about it. She waffled about for about a minute, clearly trying to SEEM like she was looking for a good opening while really hoping that I'd be fooled and go away before she had to hit him.

This was definitely NOT good enough for me! Before she could sense danger coming at her, I whipped her around and punched her in the gut.

"Sexist bastard!" She gasped out as she bent over and cradled her stomach.

I raised a brow at her in a near snarl. Apparently her definition of NOT sexist is a person who agrees that she CAN do an equal job as the men all while expecting to be treated like a Princess. Rather than correct her erroneous assumption - AGAIN - I simply whipped out my wand and cast: "Petrificus Totalis!" After that, I conjured a bodybag, zipped her up in it, and pointed at a huge brawler of a new student - who was already decently competent since he was already an Auror.

"You! Pair with timid mouse here! Make sure that he's not permanently injured or killed, but otherwise, challenge him to improve his skills! You, since you're brawler's partner, stand back and wait for an opening from EITHER of them, and then hit them wherever you can - even in the back - EVEN those pain spots I taught you in the previous session. The rest of you keep going; if I catch you slacking when I get back, I WILL PUNISH YOU THOROUGHLY!"

With that warning, I picked the bodybag up (the girl was barely a hundred pounds, which will probably be too much for me when I am farther along, but for now, seemed JUST within my limits), tossed it over my shoulder, and carried it to Robards office where I not so gently placed it on his desk.

He looked up at me in surprise and no small amount of suspicion. "What's this?"

"The first student to die," I stated before turning and walking away.

He sputtered in astonishment. "What?! MALFOY! Please tell me you're not serious!!"

I was already quite far away by this point, and only glanced over my shoulder as I called out: "Find out for yourself!"

After that, class was actually rather pleasant. My students were strangely motivated to not fuck up.

Feeling only slightly tired but not wanting to push myself into exhausted, I had Muffy Apparate me home, directly to our suite where I could strip off, climb in bed, and respond to your email. I'm a little disappointed by our children's behavior, but thankfully my mother was on hand to rein them in. I'll make it a point to talk to them all individually tomorrow, address their concerns and answer their questions until they feel better about this pregnancy.

In the meantime, I look forward to you coming in here and snuggling with me.

Hanging by a moment here with you,

Draco
Chapter 71

Chapter Summary

Harry thinks Draco's going to end up putting him in the Janus Thickney Ward, and Draco has a long and productive couple of days.

Wednesday September 14, 2016

My Dragon,

Your behavior and the things you find important to tell me about should really have stopped surprising me years ago. But every time I think I've got you figured out you throw a brand new surprise at me. Oh gee hun, by the way, I think a ghost might be haunting your son! But by the way, I'm glad I bought chickens.

Or I suppose you're not completely sure about that. There's a chance there's no ghost and my husband is having pregnancy induced hallucinations. Thanks, that's ever so much better. When our grandchildren come visit Grandpa Harry in the Janus Thickney ward, can you please reference this situation so they can have the full understanding of what drove me to insanity? Maybe print out your email and frame it above my bed.

So I'm going to need a bit more info. Or I need to ramble all the thoughts that are running through my head. Alright, my first thought? It could be his mum. I mean it would make sense since we've not really had ghosts at the Manor previously so the logical conclusion is that their spirit is anchored to Atreyu as opposed to an object or the Manor itself. If that's the case, that's very sweet that she's checking up on him but I hope it doesn't scare him. Maybe he'll actually never see her if she flees every time he seems to be awake and aware.

It could very likely be an Olivia/Viona situation. She can't care for him and she's checking up to see him growing and to see that he's being loved and cared for. I obviously plan on living a very very long time and not leaving any of our children to grow up without us. And if I was to pass I wouldn't stay on as a ghost because I know that with our enormous circle there's no way our children would grow up less than one hundred percent cherished and loved. But if I had been alone and left my child without knowing he'd be safe? I imagine I’d feel the need to hang on and see that he was cared for. Hopefully if this is the case, she's happy with the outcome. Merlin knows I love that boy to the depths of my soul.

The other option is this is an angry ghost who's going to try and hurt or take our child. You know, a Zaire's biological monster situation. But, hey, good news is we already know how to deal with that situation!

Oh Zaire. I hope homeschooling is the right choice for him. He just has such different interests than traditional schooling offers. But I know he was so looking forward to heading to Hogwarts to be with Siri and Zwei next year. I know, I know, he hasn't decided yet whether or not he will attend Hogwarts, so far the homeschooling is going to be specifically for this school year. I just see the way he's quieter when his brothers aren't nearby and I hate the idea of him withdrawing into himself. Ugh, I'll take the teenagers if you promise to handle all the emotional needs of the pre-teens, cool?

How did your talk with the older kids go? I didn't tell you what was said in an attempt to make you upset with them. I think with the exception of how nasty Viona got, they were pretty respectful and mostly just worried about you. And even Viona's nastiness was obviously covering up her fear. I hope you didn't give them TOO hard of a time.

I don't however, have any issues with Narcissa taking them to task!

I liked her taking ME to task much less.

You know, we've spent their entire lives teaching them to be who they are and make no apologies for it. We've taught them to be strong in their convictions, to try and be kind but that it's most important to be truthful. To stand up for what they believe in no matter the cost. Strength, independence, confidence. Just … could they have waited until they moved out to act on all of that teaching? I want you to have backbone with OTHER people, not ME!!

Damn children surpassing all my wishes for them.

Speaking of children moving out … have you heard from Elena concerning her conversation with Ethan? I have not wanted to wake the entity that is Tropical Storm Elena, so I didn't want to ask. But since you, er, caused the interaction I thought she may have messaged you to let you know what transpired.

It's her life and her business. And to be completely honest with you, I would be on her side even if she'd murdered the man. I should probably talk with Katja about my complete disregard of morality when it comes to the happiness of my family. It can't be healthy to condone some of the things I condone simply because I love my family more than I love doing the right thing. And I love doing the right thing! But I'm really glad Ethan is finally aware of what's going on. I really do think that while it might have been easier to keep him in the dark, it certainly wasn't right.

You know this means that WE will have to do the right thing by Dean don't you? I haven't said a word to him. You and I both know that baby is going to be half Thomas. When can we test for that and when do we tell him? This was so much easier when the other biological father was a criminal who had all of his paternal rights stripped. What do we do when it's a good guy we've known most of our lives?

I'm here at movie night at Unity. They haven't started the movie yet so I'm in the office writing to you. Any chance you'll get done with your classes early and I can snuggle up with you? There's a certain snuggly little boy who's ready to climb in our laps, pop his thumb in his mouth, and fall asleep in our arms. How can you possibly want to pass that up? We're watching Big Hero 6! You know how much you love Baymax!

Oh, they're about to start. I will make it worth your while when we get home!

Love,
Your Harry

P.S. By 'worth your while' I mean all the sexy times you can handle!!

Wednesday September 4th
Oh Harry!
I was SO bloody happy to have my two classes today!

To tell you why, I have to go back to yesterday morning. It started well enough. I was drifting awake shortly before noon, and being Tuesday, I didn't have anything planned. To my pleasant surprise, as I started making unconscious noises in response to the thoughts in my head, a pair of lips gave me a soft kiss.

However, I knew instantly that they weren't yours, and so, opened my eyes to make sure they weren't a nasty surprise - such as that time a certain someone tried to show her gratitude to me by getting naked and slipping in bed with me. Once I opened my eyes, I momentarily thought I was looking into a mirror, but then I arrived at a conclusion that made far more sense. I was simply in bed with myself.

"Good morning," Tiger murmured softly.

"Good morning," I returned with a smile.

"I heard the news - that you got pregnant during our playdate," he informed me. "I wonder if a child between us would look EXACTLY like us - like one of those muggle clones."

My eyes widened probably as big as they could get. "Oh... SHIT! We thought - we assumed! Oh Gods!"

He frowned in puzzlement. "Assumed what?"

"We assumed that it was Dean!" I blurted out. "But both you and Viper had me too!" I was now tempted to have Healer Rowe double and triple check that last womb to be CERTAIN there was only one in there!

"True, me and my Harry did actually talk about him being the father versus me, and maybe I just assumed that MY essence would beat out the others, because I was certain it was mine. Meanwhile, my Harry is dead certain that it's his, which would more or less be the same as YOUR Harry being the father. Neither of us gave any thought at all to it being Dean..."

I started rubbing my temples in alarm. "Would that even be healthy for the baby?!!?! Sort of like how a child conceived in incest CAN have a lot of health issues, what sort of issues might a baby conceived with MYSELF have?"

Tiger pulled me in his arms and rubbed my back. "Listen, I didn't mean to scare you. Just wanted to let you know that if it's mine or Harry's, we won't fight you or insist on custody or anything like that. We KNOW that you'll raise the baby with as much love as you have all your others."

I sighed and relaxed into him. "Yeah... and that's good. Honestly, we've been talking about telling Dean and I've been reluctant because I don't know how to handle the idea of sharing one of my kids with anyone other than my husband. What if - oh I dunno - the kid wants to be a circus performer, or something considered ridiculous for a child to devote themselves to, and Harry and I are as supportive as ever, but Dean and Seamus firmly insist that the child HAS to go to Hogwarts and become a proper witch or wizard?"

"They're Gryffindors," Tiger stated in confusion. "WHY would they suddenly change their House affiliation to argue AGAINST something brave and adventurous?"

"Fine, bad example," I admitted in a grumble. "What if our child is extremely driven and dedicated to becoming the next Percy Weasley, and Dean and Seamus WANT him or her to become a circus performer? Look what I'm saying is that what if we have a fundamental difference in parenting and it causes strife in an otherwise perfectly lovely friendship?"

He stroked my back again. "If that happens, just remember that I'm a lawyer and can help permanently solve the problem for you - BEFORE your husband invites our aunt Kisa over to do it."

We both chuckled at that.

"Nah, I think Harry draws the line at disappearing friends over disagreements," I said, feeling better for some reason.

Still chuckling, Tiger proceeded to give me as good a wake up as one can get that ISN'T actual shagging. Just lovely kissing and a bit of wandering hands. No orgasms sadly because my stomach growled and Muffy popped into the room with my breakfast, which smelled so good that I couldn't stop myself from sitting up and moaning as I dug in.

"Must be losing my touch," Tiger remarked wryly, also sitting up and stealing a sausage off my plate. Lucky for him I had plenty more and DIDN'T hex his fingers off.

After breakfast, I did some yoga before taking a quick shower and putting on some lounge pants and one of those bloody tee shirts that are now overrunning our closet. The one that warns everyone that I'm a badass with a nice ass.

Tiger chuckled and said: "I'll say!"

We chatted a bit about his various cases as we flooed Hogwarts and got permission to come visit for the day. Minerva thought the request odd so early in the year, and right after we'd had the kids for the weekend, but saw no reason to deny me. When we arrived, she looked at us curiously, but since she's one of the few that know about Tiger and Viper - out of necessity since Viper's kids all went to Hogwarts - she didn't have to ask me to explain why there were two of me.

"I just need to have a quick chat with all of my kids individually," I explained.

"Anything important?" She wondered.

"In my opinion, yes," I stated.

"Alright then, here's a copy of all their schedules. Try your best not to disrupt their classes."

"Thank you, Headmistress," I murmured with a smile.

She put a hand on my shoulder and smiled in return. "It always makes me proud when former students grow up to be such wonderful parents, and your kids are such dedicated students."

"Thank you," I murmured, tactfully NOT saying that I think they all secretly HATE school, and so, are trying their best to get it over with as soon as possible.

We followed the schedule to Transfiguration, where Viona was capably demonstrating the lesson that the teacher wanted everyone to learn that day. It was actually impressive to watch because it was rather complicated - not JUST turning a large board into a blanket (which seems simple enough even for a Third or Fourth Year), but turning it into an elaborate quilt with an intricate design. It turned out beautifully, and while most of the students clapped politely (most seeming a bit jealous, I presume), I clapped at a normal volume that sounded rather loud comparatively.

"Dad?" Viona questioned when she looked up and saw us.
I smiled at her and then addressed the Professor. "I have permission to have a quick chat with my daughter."

"By all means, Mr. Malfoy, I daresay she can afford to miss a few minutes."

Beckoning to her, I invited her to follow us out into the hall. Which actually had a good amount of privacy with the majority of the students in one class or another.

"Dad...?" Viona asked warily.

I pulled her into a hug. "Listen, I heard that you were being rather upsetting to your dad at dinner.
I'm not mad, but I am disappointed. I KNOW that you're probably just scared and covering it with a bit of Malfoy attitude, but please don't upset your dad like that."

She didn't say anything for a long moment, simply holding onto me. Then she nodded. "I'll Magi-Skype him tonight and apologize. It's just... what if you actually die? Maybe a triple pregnancy wouldn't be so hard if it was happening NORMALLY, but this is so not normal, what with you being a man, and then the fact that there are THREE wombs to sustain."

I brushed her hair out of her face. "I know it's scary love. You think I'm not worried too? But we're coming up with every possible contingency, and rest assured that if it comes down to a matter of their lives or mine, I'll -"

She covered my mouth and shook her head. "Don't say it. It's enough to know it; I don't need to hear the words."

I nodded in understanding. With one last squeeze, we kissed each other on the cheek and she returned to class. I turned to give Tiger a relieved sigh.

"That went so much better than anticipated. I really thought Viona would argue more."

"Sometimes kids surprise you," Tiger murmured supportively.

Talking to the rest of the kids went almost exactly the same. Those that needed to apologize to someone promised to do so, and those that had initially been quiet asked a few more questions, but eventually, I was sitting and laughing with Zwei - who is still adamant that I need to have three boys. I ruffled his hair and gave him a kiss on the cheek before heading back to the floo room to come home.

"I don't know how you do this parenting thing so well," Tiger muttered with a shake of his head. "I personally only have four kids and I almost always feel like I'm drowning and need someone to come tell me what to do. Thankfully it is a bit easier when I'm talking with Harry about his kids. I mean they are mine since I'm married to their dad, but they never fully bonded with me like they did him, and so, when there's drama with them, Harry agonizes over it, we discuss it, I give him helpful advice, and he deals with the problem. When I had drama with MY River, I had Rosalie to help calm me down, and my Viona is... too reserved to cause drama. I really get the feeling that she's just biding her time until she's old enough to live on her own."

I patted him on the back. "As my Harry says, Viona has a hard shell keeping everyone at a distance until she feels that she can trust them. Once she does, she's the biggest snuggle bug. I suggest taking her to a spa for a day, and then watch her favorite movie with her. Let her see that you're still trying."

He sighed heavily, letting me know that he was silently weighing the pros and cons of taking off time to follow my advice. After a few moments, he sighed again. "Alright. Anything is better than constantly wondering if she's planning to disappear the moment she legally can."

I nodded in agreement, and then invited him to go running with me.

It may not sound like it, but yesterday freaked me out so much that I couldn't stop dwelling on the possibility that Tiger is the other father of baby C. Thus when Robards Owled me and ordered me to come in at 5 to have a meeting about yesterday, I jumped at the chance to get ready and leave early.

So, if you were alarmed by me sitting in bed last night and looking a tiny bit horrified, that's why. I was compulsively imagining all the weird things that could go wrong in a baby that was genetically closer than an incest baby. I was actually tempted to look up everything there is to know about those muggle clones things, because maybe they are usually healthy?

Fuck, I have to stop thinking about this again.

Anyway, so after my morning exercise and routine, I got dressed early and actually arrived at the Ministry at half four. I knew I'd probably have to wait, but for once, I felt like having some time to just sit and organize my thoughts would be beneficial.

At 5 sharp, Robards' office door opened and he called me in. As I calmly sat down and crossed my left leg over my right, he sighed.

"Listen, we've had a formal complaint filed against you."

"Oh?"

"A sexual harassment complaint..."

"REALLY???
"

He laughed. "Yeah, I found that a bit absurd too. So here's what happened, I had the head of Internal Affairs and the Head of Human Resources in a meeting last night with the claimant. She laid out her complaint and spent about an hour answering questions. Interestingly enough, the three of us felt that being punched, petrified, and expected to take the class seriously was NOT sexual harassment. She couldn't point out ONE TIME when you'd so much as looked at her funny."

"Well, not unless you're counting glares and expressions of mild disgust," I murmured with a shrug.

"This morning, the three of us called in the previous women from your class, and asked them if you'd ever sexually harassed any of them, and they were gobsmacked at the very idea. Each of them - separately - stated that you were a hard arse, sure, but that you always treated them EXACTLY as you'd treated the men, and that you never sexually harassed anyone - unless one counted the times that a very openly gay student groped YOU and you didn't take him to task for it."

I frowned in thought and pinched my chin. "You know, I actually think one of those women groped me at least once too."

He smirked. "Not that any of them admitted. But yeah, after reviewing the testimony, it was determined that the claim was patently false, and that she had two choices - either return to class and stop faffing about, or quit the Auror Training Program."

"That's almost exactly what I told her," I stated in agreement.
Robards nodded. "That said, the Head of Human Resources politely requests that you try to take your students feelings into consideration while you're teaching."

I snorted in amusement. "What did you say to that?"

"I said that I hadn't hired you to care about FEELINGS," Robards sneered. "I'd hired you to equip our Aurors and Future Aurors to remain alive in the hardest of battles - should anything ever happen. Honestly, while I do respect and admire your predecessor, his methods took a bit longer and didn't seem to fully prepare his students for the realities of the field."

I smirked a bit smugly.

"THAT SAID, please try to refrain from traumatizing your students so badly that they need Mind Healing before they're cleared for active duty."

I chuckled. "I'll see what I can do."

Knowing I had basically just told him what he wanted to hear, Robards shook his head and offered me some tea before I had to go teach my class. As we drank and chatted about quidditch, I received and read your email.

Harry... were you... hoping? ASSUMING? That I'd get fired??? You basically hinted that I'd be somehow done teaching my class - that starts at 6 - in time to watch a movie with you... that ALSO starts at 6. o.O

In any case, I had time to head to the Ministry track about 10 minutes before the start of class. To my surprise, my female student was running, and to her credit, she actually is athletic enough that this seemed easy for her. I decided to clear my head a bit by joining in on the run. When my friend the expert trainer blew a whistle signaling the end of the run, I led my students to the classroom.

Once there, they circled around and stared at my shirt, which now said: Sorry for the mean, awful, accurate things I said. Oh wait, no I'm not.

"Oh Harry, you know me so well," I murmured before deciding to charm the shirt black with white words, rather that the other way around as you had it.

I looked over my students for a moment, wondering how to handle girly so that she'd put in a better effort and not feel so picked on. CLEARLY, partnering her with timid mouse was the WRONG idea. I sized them all up and realized that she needed a partner who could motivate her to do her best and WOULDN'T be too shy to actually hit her. After a moment, I pointed at burly.

"You! I'm going to partner you with the Princess from now on. I know that you're both new students and I want the new students to pair with the returning ones, but I feel that you'll be the best partner for her," I explained.

"Sure thing Chief!" Burly agreed.

"Er..." girly droned, clearly finding the man intimidating. She glanced at timid mouse. "Why can't I just keep partnering with Tim?"

I frowned at her for a moment, wondering if she was referring to him by my nickname, until I realized that that might actually be his NAME. Huh...

Shaking that off, I shook my head. "Sorry but no. The two of you clearly need opponents who actually have the bollocks to hit you - if nothing else, forcing you to learn to defend yourselves.
Pairing you together was clearly a mistake." Then I smirked at her. "What's wrong? Don't you think a GIRL like you can handle an opponent like him?"

She glared at me, clearly not appreciating that I was using her own argument against her. Before she could decide on an answer - and probably still feeling a bit chastised from her meeting - I held up a hand to prevent her.

"Hang on a moment," I bade as I grabbed a piece of stationary and wrote a quick note. "Muffy! Deliver this to McGonagall, and then bring Viona to me."

"Yes Master," Muffy replied before popping off to do as ordered. About a minute later, she reappeared with Viona.

"Dad?" Viona asked in confusion.

I gestured to my darling daughter. "You, would you say that my daughter is about the same build as you?"

"Perhaps a tad... thicker..." girly murmured with a shrug.

This unsurprisingly activated Viona's temper. "Oi! Say that to my face, you bloody -"

"Viona..." I said in a low tone of warning.

I could see her twist her lips unhappily and change her words. "Daft cow..."

Giving her a look but letting the matter slide, I then pointed at burly. "Viona, my love, I need to prove another point. I need someone of your approximate build and your gender to spar with this student here."

She sized him up for a moment before nodding. "Alright." Then she gave me a shrewd look as she pulled off her Slytherin robes and tossed them off to the side. "Are there any rules? Any particular tactics I should use or avoid?"

"Just fight like a Slytherin and make me proud," I informed her.

She grinned rather evilly. "Sure thing daddy." She hopped a couple of times and rolled her shoulders before inviting him to attack her.

To his credit, he had the intelligence to wonder what I'd do to him if he hit my daughter, but after a glance at me gave Viona an opening to punch him in the nose, his attention was properly on her.

"Oi! What are you looking at? I'M your opponent, now shape up and bloody fight me before I kick your arse so hard you end up in St. Mungo's!"

Well... I DID say fight like a Slytherin...

Looking a bit impressed, he shifted into a defensive stance and actually put his best into the fight. Unfortunately for him, she's been practicing Krav Maga on and off since she was about two. Maybe three. Whenever Kisa came for a visit and had ALL the girls thinking that kicking arse was the best thing ever.

Also like a Slytherin, Viona sportingly let him believe he had a chance by being conservative, blocking all hits, and taking every opening he gave her. After just five short minutes, he looked like he was nearly ready to pass out, and that's when Viona went in for the kill, figuratively. She used a left cross on his armpit, headbutted him, kicked his bladder (making him wet himself a little), and then threw him over her shoulder.

"Thank you, my love, well done!" I praised. Then I positioned myself in front of girly. "See? I am NOT being sexist in ANY way, shape, or form. I am simply expecting you to put in the same amount of effort as my daughter. No more and no less. Look at her. She's wearing high heels and couture. She has her hair and nails done, and didn't let ANY of that get in the way of the fight. Wear what you want. Look however you want. But remember that you are here to learn to FIGHT, so bloody well FIGHT!"

She looked down in shame. "Yes Mr. Malfoy..."

I bit back my expression of relief and considered that a major win. So, I decided to give her a little reward. "Fortunately for you, my daughter has incapacitated your partner. So, I want you to heal him a bit while the rest of the class finally gets to their lesson. As you do, get to know him better. Find something about him that makes you want to kick his bloody arse, and then do it!"

"I have a better idea," Viona stated. "Since I've already finished my homework for the week AND am missing out on dinner anyway, why don't I give her a few pointers and help her get in the right frame of mind?"

I held up a hand warily. "Right frame of mind to spar, or right frame of mind to go work for Kisa?"

Viona thought this over for a moment before shaking her head. "Nah, she doesn't have what it takes to work for Kisa. My dearest Great-Auntie would have to hang her from the ceiling and whip her into submission. Maybe even cut off her middle toes..."

"I thought she favored middle fingers to prevent her victims from flipping her off," I murmured in thought, trying to remember.

"Oh, she does that too," Viona assured me with a flap of her hand.

"Huh," I stated. "Well, by all means, see if you can properly motivate her."

Viona stepped in front of girly and burly, who was now looking rather terrified of our daughter. With a dismissive wave of her hand, she cast a healing spell on the worst of the damage, and then pointed at girly. "YOU, you don't look like much of an Auror to me, but you must want it badly enough to still be here. I don't like you. You think you are better than me, so I'm going to give you FIVE minutes to try to hit me. I'm going to tell you what a pathetic cow you are the entire time, and if that doesn't piss you off enough to punch me in the nose, nothing will. If you succeed, congratulations, you've figured out what you need to do in order to fight this bloke. If NOT... I'm going to do to you what I just did to him, only probably worse, because I expect you to represent the female gender to the best of your abilities and BE BETTER than him!!!"

Girly looked on the verge of crying, but for once, had absolutely NO grounds to claim any sort of sexism or unfair treatment. As much as I wanted to watch only them, I kept my eye on the rest of the students and encouraged them to kick each other and attempt to block the kicks. They were doing an okay job, but were obviously ALSO trying to watch Viona.

To my dismay, half the new ones looked in love with her.

About halfway through the rather amusing match where Viona blocked every hit with one hand and girly was practically on fire with the determination to hit her, a soft tune rang out through the air. Clare de Lune? Viona didn't even ask girly to pause a moment and simply pulled out her magi-
"Hi Alric, sorry I didn't call you on time. Is there something you need - oi! Are you going to give your CRIMINALS a lighter fight if THEY answer the phone while you're trying to arrest them?! What? No, I'm not talking to you, it's this weak woman trying her best to hit me and having a better chance of farting so hard I pass out."

"OI!!!" Girly protested indignantly.

"Shut it, I'm not talking to you. Go ahead Alric, uh-huh... If the expert suggests pricing it at a million galleons, then start with that. You can always - did you just stick your tongue out at me?! You're earning yourself an extra punch or three when your five minutes are up! You can always bring the price down if it doesn't sell. Are you planning to hold auctions like we talked about? I really - you are NEVER going to out trick a Slytherin! Stop feinting and waiting for an opening and bloody HIT ME! I really think you'd be marvelous at auctions. Yeah, go for it and - OH! I have to call you back, her five minutes are up and I have to break her arm."

"Viona..."

She sighed. "I mean NOT break her arm as I teach her a lesson she won't forget."

"Better," I stated, watching her stash her magi-mobile and tilt her head side to side as if cracking her neck. "So... Alric's doing well with the Import Export business?"

She was starting with some lighter punches in less hurtful places, clearly working up to the painful stuff. "Yep! It's like I said, he was BORN for it! He's already increased our profits by nearly ten percent. - Oi! At least TRY to defend yourself!"

I actually had to look away because I wasn't sure I could stomach the sight, but despite trying to keep up their sparring, the other students gasped a good two minutes later. I whipped my head around to find Viona licking blood from her lip and grinning like a mad woman.

"See? I TOLD you that all you had to do was get pissed off enough to fight back."

Girly looked positively fierce. She was heaving from exertion and had a few bruises, but nothing was broken and she didn't seem to be on the verge of crying or sicking up. I pulled Viona close and kissed her on the cheek.

"That's my girl."

She grinned at me cattily. "For dinner, you're taking me to Café Exquis and treating me to sushi and hibachi grilled calamari."

"Mmm, that sounds good," I moaned in anticipation.

"And THEN we're going to River's spa and having our hair and nails done while we chat about my wedding plans."

I chuckled. "Good news, class is dismissed early! Go spar at home, or stay here and spar to take advantage of the fact that the mats are still fairly cushy. Just remember, come Monday, we're learning choke holds! So best to practice on your dummies at home a bit first."

The rest of the night was delightful. I had the tips of my hair died purple to match all my nails. Viona is extremely organized with her plans, having an alarmingly massive binder full of ideas. My favorite is the dance she wants her brothers and sisters to perform as they walk down the aisle.
I mean main street of Hogsmeade.

After we were done, I sent her back to school and had Muffy bring me home, where I found you sitting in bed with Atreyu sleeping so his head was on your legs.

"I... I think I saw a glimpse of that ghost," you informed me, pointing at the wall off to the side of the bed. "A face poked through the wall, took a good look at our son, smiled fondly, noticed me watching her, and squeaked in alarm before disappearing."

"Sounds like you might be right about her being his mother," I said, pulling off my clothes so that I could climb into bed with you.

"Let's leave him sleeping on his own for a bit and go to the playroom for some privacy," you suggested.

"Mmm..." I moaned happily, nearly grabbing your hand and Apparating us, before remembering that I need to conserve my magic. To my delight, you gently shifted Atreyu off you and took my hand so that you could do the Apparating.

"I love you," I whispered into your mouth before kissing you.

"I love you more," you stated, provoking an argument that lasted until we were both drowsy from orgasms.

Once back in our bed, I was sleepy but not enough to sleep, while you were already passed out. So I wrote this email and am utterly SHOCKED that it's still before midnight. I would have thought it was coming up on 2 or 3 in the morning by now.

In any case, I ready to sleep now and I'm too tired to think of an appropriate lyric, Draco
Friday September 16, 2016

My Joy,

I neither assumed nor hoped that you would be fired. I know that sounds like something I would say and then follow it up with a "Fine! I did" however I truly didn't do either one. I did, however, think it was a possibility. And while I would have been upset for you and how it would make you feel, I wouldn't have been overly upset about you no longer teaching the class.

What? I think it's just too much stress for you. You are constantly frustrated with students who don't try hard enough and students who apparently make unfounded claims of sexual harassment against you. You had so many females in your last class, that cohort was fairly close to half and half if I remember correctly, there's no way - you would have been either sexually harassing them or treating a specific gender badly - and you just happened to start this session with the one female in the group?

I'm surprised she had the guts to show up even after her claims were shut down. I have a small amount of begrudging respect for that. It kind of makes me want to go from absolutely destroying her to just thinking she deserves YOU as a teacher. It's still pretty mean, but not quite as bad as the destruction I had planned.

So, speaking of deserving what a teacher can hand out … our children do not all hate school and want to get it over with. So far with all of our children, only River and Zaire have chosen to homeschool. And since we've allowed two of them the choice, the rest of them know it's an option. Are they bored with a lot of the classes because their pre-Hogwarts tutoring means they're advanced? Sure. But the best professors generally give them challenging content, often they end up with different projects than the rest of their classmates because it's a similar lesson while being within their ability levels.

Bored kids do not become, in Minnie's words, "such dedicated students" they generally become obnoxious arseholes. Take for instance, George and Fred when they were at Hogwarts. They weren't challenged, they were bloody brilliant, and they spent most of their time causing massive amounts of mischief and finding their own ways to challenge themselves.

Viona, for example, might be well ahead in Transfiguration, but she essentially gets to act as a Teaching Assistant and LOVES the chance to show off how smart she is with the added bonus of bossing around her classmates.

The Princess did call me and apologize, so thank you for talking to her. I can tell myself a million times that I know why she was so hurtful, but I am still a person and my feelings were hurt. I didn't feel like I needed the apology until I had it.

I am actually pretty certain the kids do hate potions because that class is stupid.
Or maybe I just think potions class is stupid because I had such a terrible teacher. No, I will not argue the point with you, I had a terrible potions' professor, YOUR potions' professor was great for you. It's unfortunate that they were the same person. I know, to a certain extent he was playing a role and couldn't treat me well with the part he had to play. But there is just no excuse for the outright bullying which cost me an appropriate education in an important skillset for wizards. He could have been mean and a hard-ass while still allowing me to learn something. He also could have stopped a certain blonde prat from sabotaging all of my work.

Ridiculously FIT blonde prat, but still an obnoxious potions saboteur.

Oh, Snape and his teaching methods. Concerning you teaching this Ferdinand or whatever his name is Legilimency, I wasn't concerned because YOU were going to be invasive and harm HIM! I know your teaching methods are nothing like Snape's. Every moment of lessons with Snape was painful and horrifying for me. After the war I read up on the subject and came to realize it shouldn't have been particularly painful. If done right, the worst that usually comes of it could be a headache. No worse than a muscle ache after an extensive exercise routine.

However, when I was pushed to my limits, frustrated at my inability to accomplish anything, I managed to smash my way into Snape's head. He was not prepared for it, and despite being bloody brilliant at mind magics, he was not prepared for my brash self slamming around in his head like a bull in a china shop. What if Francis gets frustrated he's not getting it and worms his way into your head? What if he manages to find out some Malfoy secrets? Then Fartson will have all your weaknesses at his fingertips.

So, I think we should head in to talk with Rowe today. I know we just saw her last week and shouldn't need to go back for another two to three weeks, but I am seriously panicking about the potential Tiger situation. I'd be less worried about incest, although much more grossed out, because incest generally only causes issues when it's happened generationally. A one-time incestuous coupling is not any more likely to have a baby with birth defects than any other birth. But we have no idea what essentially two genetic copies would create. I need to know if there's some way to find out the paternity prior to birth. I know muggles have ways of finding out potential health concerns before birth, so I assume there would at least be some way to figure that out.

I will say, I'm selfishly hoping it was Viper who fathered baby C. My genetic match seems like it would be the second best option, only slightly less preferred than if it had actually been me. You and I know from that night it's not exactly possible it was me however.

We don't have to go see Rowe right when you wake up like I would normally force you to do. I have plans all day anyway. The mums and I are planning Atreyu's upcoming birthday party! Two weeks from today is his birthday and we're doing the big family celebration the next day.

Why don't you join us for tea and biscuits whenever you wake up? I made you your own batch of the ginger garlic ones that you (and only you) like!

My heart is yours,
Harry

P.S. Your purple hair tips made me want to devour you whole. You're so damn hot you should be illegal!

Friday September 16th
My fire,

While you and our mums were taking advantage of the fact that Atreyu was still sleeping to plan his party, I actually woke up shockingly early - for me. See, Atreyu was snuggling me very possessively, which I normally don't mind, but he ALSO tends to create a lot of heat and I was starting to feel a bit overcooked. This made me open my eyes and see that ghost woman again. I didn't want to scare her off, so I didn't move or make a sound as I watched her.

This time, I wasn't even mildly alarmed to find a strange person in our room, and so, my breathing and heart rate remained calm. Wondering how I could get her to trust me and not run off, I decided to very softly offer a compliment. Focusing on him so that it seemed like I hadn't even noticed her, I kissed his forehead and said: "Such a beautiful boy, he must have made his mother proud."

To my surprise, I heard a whispered: "He does."

"It must have been hard," I murmured in sympathy.

"What?" She asked, a bit louder.

I risked looking at her. "Being pregnant and not knowing if he would be a wolf. You must have hidden that part of yourself from his father because why else would he be disgusted enough to run off - presumably when he found out. Were you hoping that Atreyu would be normal?"

She sighed. "At first... I hoped that having a completely non-magical father would make him a non-mag too. But then I held him in my arms and knew I would love him no matter what."

"And that's why you chose to remain behind and become a ghost? So that you could always watch over him?" I theorized.

"Yes, but I didn't want to confuse him. He knew I was dead, I didn't want him to see me and think that I was still alive and everything could go back to the way it was."

"I understand, it's hard enough to understand death without ghosts that can talk to you like they're still alive," I stated.

"I watched over him, my heart breaking every day because I wanted him to be loved and safe, but I also couldn't bring myself to get the attention of someone that could report him to child services. What if they found out that he's a..." she faltered, sounding rather emotional.

"A wolf who has no control over who he is or what he does when he's changed," I supplied for her.

"But you!" She burst out tearfully. "You and your husband KNEW what he was, and you took him in anyway. You LOVE him anyway!"

"We don't love him anyway, we love him, full stop," I assured her. "He's a very lovable boy."

"He is!" She sobbed. "My beautiful, lovable boy! Thank you so much! I can't - I can't ever repay you!"

"Lucky we have everything we need then, and so does our son," I murmured.

"Por qué lloras mama?" Atreyu asked softly, his head resting on my chest as one eye half opened to stare at her.

"Estoy tan feliz... Y triste..." she cried before spinning around and zooming out of the room.
Atreyu sat up and looked around the room. "I thought I saw mama..."

I stroked his hair and kissed his cheek, deciding to say nothing because I wasn't sure what to say. Instead, I said: "Why don't you go find daddy and see if he has something ready to eat?"

"Like pancakes!" Atreyu suggested happily, spending about 20 seconds smelling me all over. Then he ran off, presumably to the kitchen. Meanwhile, I had Muffy pop in and serve me blood sausages with sauerkraut. Mmm...

As I ate, I read your email and it occurred to me that you think my combat class stresses me out. It really doesn't. I have fun with it. I lament my students lack of self preservation skills, but that's what I'm there to teach them. But I take comfort from the fact that YOU also thought that any sort of accusation of sexual harassment was ridiculous. I only had 4 women in my last class, but they never once had a reason to complain about how I treated them - aside from the same complaints ALL the students had.

I really think that now that my current lone female student had made a bit of a breakthrough, this class will go more smoothly than it has been. But as for right now, I'm about to sign off, get out of bed, and do some yoga.

You'll be in my heart, always,
Draco
Chapter 73

Chapter Summary

Harry is worrying and Draco wants him to relax a bit.

Saturday September 17, 2016

Love,

Since we were too worried before our appointment with Rowe yesterday to really do much talking, I figured I would let you know how the party planning went.

I wasn't sure how we were going to plan this party. Usually we tend to do a theme for their big parties. Either we let the older kids just pick an awesome activity or we plan the younger kids' parties around their interests at the time. Zaire's first birthday with us centered around trains, as did most of his subsequent birthdays if we're being honest here. Viona had a number of princess themed birthdays. We've taken the Divas to fashion shows and fabric meccas. But there's not really anything Trey is definitely into.

For the most part, Atreyu is content to be surrounded by people he loves and if he's not being social he wants to spend most of his time outside discovering the world. As the mums and I were hemming and hawing about what to make the theme, we all kept circling around to how much he loves the outdoors. Well duh, why were we so thick? We can have an outdoors party.

His birthday being at the end of September means it's certainly colder than he was used to in California, but it's not so terribly cold yet. Perfect outdoor party weather. And if it happens to rain that day making outside not really ideal for a party, Narcissa promises she will deck the ballroom out to look like a rainforest so we can have an outdoor party indoors.

Now I kind of hope it rains!

We'll have the tables and the food all placed near our Park so we have a place to gather that the smaller kids will have plenty of space to play while being watched. But we also have a scavenger hunt planned and a couple of outdoor activities for during the party. And there's always the quidditch pitch if any of the oldest kids get really bored.

Now we just need to figure out what we can get him as a present from us. I have an idea, what do you think about asking Greg to build him a treehouse/clubhouse? As sad as it was finding him in the playhouse when he was still just our little trespasser, a little outdoor playhouse is obviously something he liked.

Unless you have a better idea.

I'm really thrilled his mum can see how much we love him. I always worry whether our adopted children's birth parents would be happy about the lives they're leading. Not so much the ones who had shite birth parents, but Olivia giving up Viona to ensure her the best life, or Elena's parents who were great parents to her before they died in that crash. It soothes something inside of me to know those we've had contact with seem to think we're doing an alright job.
Minus Zaire's birth monster, may he rot in Hell.

You know, I never put two and two together to realize that Atreyu had to have been a born wolf. It's just a part of who he is, so I never really questioned how he became that way. I assumed he had been bitten, because all of the children of wolves or wolf-like parents we know aren't wolves themselves. They don't even have lupine traits at all. And I've seen every inch of this little nudist with his baby butcheeks running all over outdoors, he doesn't have a bite mark.

I really should have noticed that huh?

But all the children of wolves like Teddy, or partial wolves like Victoire, Dominique, and Louis, their wolf parent was the Dad. Atreyu's wolf parent was his mum (or his Mama, that's so stinking cute, I love the way he says Mama and Papa). So maybe the were trait can be passed but only in utero? Hmm. Now I'm curious. I should ask my library if she's done any research on this.

Okay, so how are you feeling about last night's appointment? I'm not quite sure how to feel.

When we showed up, Rowe was a bit surprised because we weren't supposed to see her for a few more weeks, but it's us and we're a bit eccentric, so she generally just takes everything we do with a grain of salt. We told her our concerns about the possibility of Tiger being the other father. She seemed pretty confident that the baby would still be healthy even if he did turn out to be half Tiger, basically saying that even though you're the "same" person, your original existence being from different worlds means that much like your magic, his genetics could be different enough to not cause issues.

It sounded like a lot of "probablys" to me, so I asked if there was any way to find out for sure, then I would know whether or not I should worry about it for the upcoming months. She rolled her eyes a bit at my worry and said if we brought Tiger with to an appointment she would be able to cast the relations spell to see if he was the father of any of the babies.

I'm pretty sure she meant an upcoming appointment but I wasn't willing to wait that long so I sent him a message asking him to meet us at Rowe's office as soon as he could.

More eye rolling from Rowe. She sighed and asked, "Since we're apparently going to wait for him to show up, I may as well check out how you and the babes are doing."

She did her usual rotation of spells checking on your magic levels, your health, and the babies' progress. "Well, everything looks good, your magic levels are staying steady, the nutritive potions seem to be doing their job because your nutrient levels are all where they should be, your blood pressure is still a bit higher than usual but it's a bit lower than it was last week. They're obviously all different ages and so different sizes, but I'm not seeing any evidence of growth discordance so that's really good."

Wait what? "Can you back that up please? What's growth discordance and why are we checking for it?" I said in a very calm voice …

"Growth discordance is when one baby in a multiple pregnancy is significantly smaller than the other baby or babies. It's not something I'm seeing, but it's something I try to keep an eye out for in multiples pregnancies," Rowe said much more calmly than me.

I think I started squeaking at that point, oh good, another thing for me to worry about. And that's when Tiger was shown into the room. "Oh no, Harry's got his panicked face on, should I assume I'm here for bad news?"
You chuckled and put your arms around me. "No, he just found out multiples pregnancies come with additional risks and he's freaking out. It's probably because this is OBVIOUSLY our first multiples pregnancy. Oh wait."

Oh. Apparently this discordance thing is something you already knew about from your pregnancy with Lily and Caelum. I'm an idiot.

"Hello Draco, it's lovely to finally meet you. I'm Healer Rowe. You've been invited today because we want to test you against baby C to rule out paternity."

Tiger visibly relaxed. "Ah, that's not too bad; with Harry's face I assumed the worst, but I really shouldn't have been so surprised that the little guy is panicking. Cast away."

Rowe did the scans and apparently we got good news. Because the spell looks for relations based on magical signature - and yours differs from Tiger's - it was able to definitively disprove him being the other father. Your signatures are similar enough though that it did place him equal to a sibling of the father of all three babies. But he is equally related to all three. I suppose it would have been kind of nice to know we wouldn't have to share the baby with anyone else, but I'm mostly just relieved that I won't have to worry about baby's health.

So I'm torn on how I'm feeling about the appointment. On the one hand, thank goodness we're not going to have an exact clone baby with health issues. But now I'm freaking out about this growth thing.

Worriedly Yours,
Harry

Sunday September 18th
My adorable worrywart,

I hate to admit it, but I love that you worry so much because it means that I don't have to worry as much. I mean I do worry, but not AS MUCH as you do! And then there are times in which you worry just a bit TOO much. I'm still not entirely sure if you've been sleeping enough since before Hazel's surgery, and now with what's going on in my abdomen, I'm dead certain that you are probably not sleeping again.

So, to that end, I decided that YOU needed to have a bit of a stress free spa day. I planned the whole thing, so - not very surprisingly - it consisted of all my favorite things. I even had Pippa wake me up about 9AM - since I've been going to bed earlier due to a thing or three making me tire easily.

Our day started with me forcibly removing you from your stables by (having Muffy) casting a lightening spell and throw you over my shoulder so that I could carry you away. Then I had Muffy Apparate us to Café Exquis where you grumbled about not being hungry yet until I mentioned that I was ravenous, and then you gave in and decided that if I wanted to have breakfast with you, you'd at least have coffee and a bowl of fruit.

When I was finished eating my Alaskan King Crab and caviar, I took your hand in mine and kissed it so that you couldn't escape before Muffy Apparated us to River's Spa. You know, I've never really mentioned this before, but I still think it's rather clever of him to have named it River's Song - which brings to mind that soft and tranquil sound of water flowing through a peaceful forest.
Anyway, once there, you took a look around and got a bit curious, like you were wondering if we were there on business or pleasure. I'm sure it made sense to you that I'd pop in to check on the place on River's behalf - which yes, was a tiny part of the reason we were there.

I let them know that we were checking in for our day, and we were asked to head off to the steam room so that we could strip off and start with a bit of cleanse. Then we had body wraps followed by a mud bath, massages, a few minutes in the dry sauna, lunch consisting of chicken salad on croissants with orange juice (and my never ending cup of milk), facials, mani/pedis, and lastly, our hair was done.

You didn't really want much done with your hair, but suffered through a shampoo and trim. Meanwhile, I asked you what color you wanted me to dye the tips of my hair, and you asked for shocking pink. Amused, I agreed, and so now, I have neon pink tips to my hair - and I had them cast spells to change all my nails from the vibrant blue I'd originally chosen to the same shade of pink so that I matched.

Once done with the spa, it was coming up on dinner time, however, since I had been snacking on cherries most of the day, I wasn't starving yet. So, I took your hand in mine again and simply strolled through London with you. We stopped in at Ethan's parents' shop and picked up those instruments they always set aside for me (which I put in the pouch I made specifically for them). After chatting for a bit - they're a bit scandalized that their son got our daughter pregnant, but it sounds to them like the situation is being resolved rather peacefully, all considering - we continued our stroll.

You had gone from being anxious to get back to your stable to slowly relaxing over the day, until now you were actually in the moment, simply enjoying walking around hand in hand with me. Even so, I could feel all the little worries starting up again, and you sighed a little impatiently as if biting back the question of when I would be done monopolizing you so that you could get back to your rather full stable.

See? THIS is why I insisted that the elves be trained to care for them when you were gone. I knew you'd feel like you had to be there at all times otherwise - despite logically knowing that you don't literally need to be there at ALL times so long as they were receiving plenty of love, attention, and care. Which they are.

For dinner, we chose the Aqua Shard. I had braised lamb with a variety of root vegetables, while you had chicken over a bed of broccoli, cauliflower, and carrots. We kept kissing each other as we remembered how silly we both were for our first date.

After dinner, I took you to see that new play you've been wanting to go to. Honestly, at this point, I simply assume that there are plays playing and you want to see them. It doesn't matter if they are new or old, good or bad, musical or not. But I also know that you DO prefer new musicals. You even mentioned being a bit sad that I hadn't invited Shtara along for this part, and then excitement that her rehearsals were coming along nicely and opening night was coming up in October.

Our day ended with me bringing you back to the Shard - only this time, to the Shangri-La Hotel. I personally wanted to do nothing but kiss every centimeter of your body, but I KNOW you've been needing a good hard spanking for days now, and so, I started with that. After your arse was nice and glowing red, I started on my kissing. I kissed and licked the red, blowing gently over the wetness to help cool and soothe the heat of the spanking.

You were squirming by this point and I had so much more territory to visit. Exactly as I wanted, I kissed and licked you everywhere, even going so far as to restrain you when you started trying to tug me into place to shag you already. By the time I was ready to see to my pleasure, you'd already had one orgasm and were looking rather desperate to have your second. That seemed like the PERFECT time to have you, and so, I slipped inside and had about two minutes of the most glorious pleasure ever, but sadly, I had perhaps overdone it just a tiny bit, and so, gave into the urge to finish right away so that I could snuggle up with you and pass out.

We both slept for probably an hour or two, but then I felt you moving around, and upset that you were having trouble sleeping after a day like that, I cast a sleeping spell on you. Then I was awake enough to write this email, but now I'm going to sign off, wrap myself back around you, and get as much sleep as I want before waking up and taking the sleeping spell off you.

You know the night will weave its magic spell when the one you love is near, oh, this is the night and the heavens are right, on this lovely bella note,

Draco

P.S. I'm extremely relieved that the Tiger isn't the other father and that baby will not have potential problems from too closely related genetic material. On the other hand, I'm also a little disappointed because I was starting to get rather curious about what that baby would look like. I mean I have sons (and a brother) that look nearly identical to me, but this baby WOULD be identical to me... unless he was a she... or the same genes expressed themselves differently. Who knows, maybe everything would be the same but he would be born with blue hair. But now I'll never know, and I'm sad about that even as I am entirely glad that I won't have to deal with missing cleft palates and extra fingers and toes, plus deformed spines and fragile bones and - SALAZAR! I have to stop before I actually DO start worrying!!!
Monday September 19, 2016

My Heart,

Thank you so much for this weekend. I didn't realize how badly I needed to relax and let you take care of me until it was happening. I know I get stuck in this headspace where I feel like I need to take care of everything. As soon as we found out you were pregnant, and especially after the decision was made to keep them, I put myself on caretaking autopilot.

As much as you do need extra help while you're pregnant, magical help while you're limiting your own magic, insistence on sleeping and eating enough, emotional support to keep your stress down, I forget that the way you own me, the way you care for me, is for you almost as much as it's for me. You need to own and possess me the same way I need to be owned and possessed by you. I always forget, because I need my submission for my own emotional needs, that the reason we work so well as Dom and sub, is because you crave it the same way.

I'm sorry for forgetting those needs of ours in an effort to do it all. I should know that nothing would keep my Master from giving me what I need. I love you.

When you woke me up yesterday, I felt so relaxed and sated. My muscles were all soft and relaxed and my bum burned. Gods you're so good to me.

I may have been a bit squirmy and hard enough to calm that you needed to cast a sleep spell on me, but I promise I have been getting enough sleep lately. Alright, probably not quite enough, but more than I was right before and after Haz's surgery. You'd think having a squirmy four-year-old in our bed would mean less sleep, but having him with us has actually forced me to sleep more than I otherwise would. I like to snuggle him to sleep, running my hands through his hair, and it has been causing me to get sleepy fairly early in the evening. And because he's a little octopus, I often find myself 'stuck' in bed after that. Somehow, telling myself I'm lying there for him means I will actually fall asleep and get a full night's sleep.

I'm sorry I kept getting so distracted by worrying over my horses. You were so sweet to plan a day out for us and I kept getting all antsy and squirmy. I'm sure I made you feel like spending time with you was less important than taking care of the rescues. I've been doing such a weird mix of taking care of you to an obnoxious level that I am sure you're annoyed with, and not actually caring for your heart by not spending enough time with you.

I think my thing with the horses in particular is that they are used to muggles, they're used to human care, and because they aren't magical, I don't want all their care done by magic. Either it will freak them out, or when they eventually find better homes they could miss it and be confused. But that's why I've planned on hiring some stable workers. With the money you made by ... er ... selling my services at Glasto-fest, we made enough to cover plenty of part time help for the next year.

Since I'm leaving the day after Lainie's baby shower to start my book tour, I need to have them all hired and trained up before I take off for days at a time. I already let my manager know my schedule will be wonky because I need to be able to get back for appointments, in case of emergency, and I will always want to be home for Atreyu's full moons. We just had one Friday night so we've got almost a month until it's an issue again, but since Atreyu came to us, I am much more aware of the moon cycles!
I decided to hire mostly squibs. They will essentially be forced to care for them the muggle way since they are without magic, but they know enough about magic that they won't freak out over the house elves, or if one of us accidentally uses magic in front of them, or your dad forgets to wear his cowboy clothes near the stables. Or if one of the littles starts using accidental magic.

They will still probably freak out when I start singing to the horses. And thanks to this amazing weekend with you, I have a whole new repertoire of songs to sing to them! Breakfast at Tiffany's was beyond amazing. Pixie Lott's voice? I could have cried just from her voice alone. Ok I did cry just from her voice alone. Cheesecake's favorite so far this morning has been Moon River. But my favorite song was most definitely Dying Day.

Thank you for taking me to a musical, I know you don't mind, but they're not exactly your thing the way they're mine. But you know me well enough to know it would make my entire night.

Speaking of songs … River's Song. Yes, I also love the name of it. Seeing as you're fully willing to watch geeky sci-fi things with me, but they're not your jam, you apparently completely missed the geekiness of the name. Sure, the river's song is beautiful, water moving through nature, such a lovely calming sound. And it being River's name was obviously a part of it. The idea of calming sounds of the river is such a good name for a massage parlor. But you have to know that it's named after his favorite character from Doctor Who! River Song? The kickass badass who rules the Doctor with a sassy smile and an iron fist?

You're adorable.

So, now that I am no longer freaking out about Tiger being the other father of C, I can backtrack to the day you spent with him. Before I read the part that freaked us all out where Tiger and Viper had put two and two together concerning their involvement, I could not help but get hard reading about him waking you up with kisses and touches. It made me ridiculously jealous. You are mine! Every inch of that body belongs to me! But every inch of that body is a body Tiger is more familiar with than even I am. He's worn the same face, those same arms, that gorgeous … hair, his entire life. Picturing the two of you rolling around our bed, skin to skin, gets me jealous which gets me hot, which makes me want you both.

Expect to come home from class tonight and get immediately jumped. I need you like I need air.

Anxiously,
Harry

Monday September 19th
Fuego de amor,

Today I had a little time - after waking and doing my morning routine, and then conducting my dance class with Zaire and returning to the Manor to change - to give Wojtek an examination to ensure that he's growing the way he's supposed to. He was about 2 weeks old when I got him - as far as the rescuers could tell - and that was 2 months and 6 days ago. He's gained about 10 kilograms (~22lbs) since then, making him quite a hefty baby. (At a total weight of about 25lbs.)

SO glad OUR babies don't grow that fast! That's nearly a full year of human growth - depending on the baby. I can still carry him, but it's better for me if he's either in the carrier on my back or toddling around at my feet. Also, now that he's definitely more 'toddler' than baby (in human terms, he's still very much a baby in bear development), it's easier for me to let him wander around.
Potty training him has been surprisingly easy... because I'm probably cheating. I ordered Muffy (and Shtara's elf Mada) to know when he needs to go and pop in to take him out at that point. Thus, he will definitely associate doing his business with a particular part of our yard because he doesn't have a choice in the matter. I actually think he's smart enough (or will be) that he'll remember and know later on in life that that spot is designated for him to go - NOT the house.

Also, because he's gotten bigger fairly quickly (and I'm told he'll reach 25 kilograms {55lbs} by six months!), I've been leaving him at home my last couple of classes, but I wanted to bring him with today. Mostly to give my students a bit of added challenge, but also to have basically one last day of bringing him to class before I stop for good.

Just like you predicted, each night when she comes home, Shtara takes Wojtek to her room and he sleeps in bed with her. At this point, as much as I wanted to be his human, I'm just going to have to let it be her. Our Manor and the grounds are safe enough that she has her elf take him out and let him explore the grounds during the day when she's gone (especially on days when I'm gone and can't steal him back, hahaha).

But as I was saying, I brought Wojtek with me to class. I was holding him when Muffy popped me into the classroom, and as I was running a bit late, my students had already come in from the track. My students looked at me curiously, probably wondering why I had my elf Apparate me rather than do it myself. Interestingly enough, since I had already mentioned health issues from the start of class, I think that some of them - my returning students - have been trying to figure it out in their heads. Also a big clue, I haven't punched them nearly as much, leaving most interaction for the old students to teach to the new students.

Thus, I daresay that one or two might actually be worried about me. After looking my class over, I held up Wojtek, who I was holding in front of me. He's freaking adorable, and I wonder if Elena has had time to come over and turn into a bear to play with him. Honestly, had I been thinking a bit more clearly (brain fog???) I might have asked her to take him once we got back from California, since she literally COULD be a mama bear to him.

But not the point! Focus Draco!

While holding Wojtek up, I said: "Alright, listen up, today while you spar, not only are you going to practice your submission holds, but my bear is going to be wandering around as he likes. The POINT of letting him do so is that he is an innocent. If you were on a raid, any person who is NOT a criminal or a suspect - such as a room full of children we discovered on a recent past raid - is innocent and needs to be protected at all costs. So say there's a bit of a hard duel going on and there's an innocent in the room, you'll need to know how to do your job and focus on defending YOUR life while still keeping an eye on the innocent so that you A: Do NOT accidentally hex him or her, and B: Can try to prevent the criminals from doing so. Understand?"

"Yes Chief!" Friendly exclaimed on behalf of everyone.

I set Wojtek down and when I stood up, everyone had their eyes on my shirt, which said: I was taught to think before I act, so if I smack the shit out of you, rest assured that I've thought about it and am confident in my decision.

Well... Accurate...

Wojtek was already exploring the room a bit like a dog, sort of sniffing around, but also just sitting and watching all the people for long minutes. Literally underfoot. Exactly as I wanted him. Meanwhile, my students wisely paired up, and considering all the drama of my last two or three classes, this one was rather smooth and low key.
Until Robards himself walked into the room and made all the students pause curiously. I narrowed my eyes at him warily. He looked utterly inscrutable, which in and of itself is quite the feat as I've had practice reading masks that cover genuine feelings my entire life.

"Hold this," he commanded, grabbing my hand and setting something in it. I looked down in confusion for several LONG seconds until I registered the fact that I WAS indeed holding a severed finger.

Suddenly, I was overcome by a vision. "Two men are fighting. It's a combination of a wizarding duel and a no holds barred brawl. One of the men seems desperate, and that's probably because the other man seems quite determined to murder him. Avid, eager, mad even.

"The lunatic is slightly taller than average, medium build, with blond hair and blue eyes. Desperate is a bit taller but also huskier. He has brunet hair and light brown eyes and is panting rather heavily from trying to run away as he casts shields. They're... in a random field with nothing that seems like identifying marks. Desperate grabs anything he can to chuck at lunatic, and lunatic occasionally catches desperate, causing a brutal scuffle that is clearly NOT trained in any sort of combat skill. Lunatic grabs desperate's hair and punches him in the temple, and desperate has managed to grab hold of a large rock and bash it over lunatic's head - and now he's running again.

"Lunatic isn't casting the relatively 'nice' Unforgivable Killing Curse, he's using blasting hexes and severing charms, and one that sounds like a blood boiling curse. These are mostly being blocked by the shield charms, but every now and again, something gets through, which is running desperate down. Oh! He just tripped. Oh..."

I had closed my eyes at some point, probably unconsciously trying to make the vision clearer once it started, even so, I am pretty sure I both flinched AND grimaced at this point.

"Desperate is trying to sever lunatic's wand hand, but only managed to get his finger - ah, so that's what I'm holding, ta ever so. Meanwhile, lunatic has abandoned his wand anyway and is now choking desperate and... huh! Kissing him and biting his tongue right out of his mouth, blech!

"Suddenly, he pulls a knife out of his pocket - I'm not clear actually if it came from his pocket or if he somehow managed to transfigure his wand into a knife. One of those utility knives that can be folded up and stored in a pocket or a holder on a belt. The knife is... I dunno, about 10 centimeters (4 inches) long and doesn't look particularly sturdy, but has a serrated edge. Lunatic has just plunged it in desperate's chest. Pulling it out and doing so again..."

I paused because it took several moments (and I think I'm probably seeing it faster than it happened in real life) for the stabbing to stop. "I counted seven or eight stabs, and I'm fair certain that desperate is now dead," I stated, assuming that the vision would end, but since I was holding the MURDERER'S finger, it didn't. "Ah. Lunatic is running off, but I think he must have been injured at some point too, because he's staggering and clutching his abdomen. He's running without really looking at anything and the scenery seems to be flying by in a blur. I can't tell how long he ran or where he ended up, but he must have passed out, because the vision goes black rather abruptly."

I promptly handed the finger back to Robards and held my hand out for Muffy to clean. Robards held out his other hand and flapped his fingers as he demanded: "Memory."

I nodded and took hold of my wand so that I could extract the memory of the vision for them to print up and analyze. Once it was free of my head, Robards held out a vial for it, spun around and left, calling out a gruff: "Thanks!" Over his shoulder.

After he was gone, I picked up Wojtek and sat on the cushy chair Muffy conjured for me. "Did I say class was over?! Get back to work!"

Stunned, my students silently did as told, but it was clear that they weren't really thinking about what they were doing.

"Muffy, cast a stinging hex on anyone who doesn't seem to be focusing on their fight," I commanded.

"Yes Master," she murmured, looking a little eager to follow orders.

That did the trick, getting my students' minds properly back on their lesson. Meanwhile, I was not physically tired - nor mentally tired - just a bit numb and needing to sit for a few minutes. At the end of class, I felt fine except for a headache. I stayed late after dismissing them so that I could write this email and clear my head. Now I'm headed home to find you for some snuggles.

Though I try to hide it, it's clear, my world crumbles when you are not there,

Draco
Chapter 75

Chapter Summary

Harry threatens Robards, and Draco has a movie marathon with a couple of his boys.

Friday September 23, 2016

My Foggy Love,

This evening was lovely. We really don't spend enough time with Dudley and Donna. Between businesses and Hogwarts and having a million children, things seem to get so hectic that all of a sudden I realize we haven't seen them outside of big celebrations for a few months.

I suppose today was a celebration since it's Donnie's thirteenth birthday, but since it was really just us invited to celebrate with him, it wasn't a particularly big celebration. Although our family is definitely large enough that we make everything big just by showing up!

Donna asked me earlier this week if I could pick Donnie and Daisy up after their last class of today so they could come home for the weekend to celebrate the big One Three. It's just easier for me to pop over to Hogwarts than it is for them. Magic is so handy, did you know? Sorry, I know that's not funny, you've been sensitive to the fact that you're not supposed to use much magic and I'm purposefully teasing you about it. I'll stop now, I promise.

It was just a family dinner with cake and a few presents so we didn't bring all of the kids. Lainie and River are off doing their adulting thing. Shtara had a late rehearsal. Viona, Eri, Ori, and Haz told me they were "willing" to come "if you really want us to Dad" - which means they didn't feel like coming to a little kid family dinner when they could be hanging out in the common rooms with their friends. Orion at least has a pretty valid excuse, Ravenclaw and Hufflepuff's quidditch match is tomorrow and he wants to make sure he gets enough rest beforehand – to Captain them properly.

Siri and Zwei, being as close as they are to Donnie, wanted to be picked up at the same time as their cousins, so I grabbed the four of them from Hogwarts while you (Muffy) got yourself and the six smallest to Dudley and Donna's place.

We all had a really pleasant evening. Which I'm only telling you because you pretty much fell asleep on their sofa and didn't move for the rest of the evening.

Seriously sweetheart, you are still overdoing it. You are magically and physically growing three humans, you're teaching three classes per week, you have fifteen children (so far), and then you get stopped in the middle of class to latch on to A FINGER and have to have emotionally and magically draining visions. You. Need. To. Slow. Down.

Do I need to have ANOTHER talk with Robards? I mean. Should I talk to Robards for the first time concerning him expecting too much of you? I er, should probably introduce myself to him. Do you have his email address? Floo address? Home address? Asking for a Grandmama.

Alright, I like Robards enough that I am not currently planning on siccing Grandmama on him. I might send his address to Narcissa though. But Love, do you realize how brain foggy you've been?
I know you said something about the brain fog in your last email, but it's gotten really bad. You asked me four times this week alone what I had planned for the day. I've spent every day this week in the stables. You know what I have planned. I also smell like hay and have been wearing flannels and denims all day long. You are not normally this scatterbrained.

You need something else to convince you? How about the fact that you forgot our daughter's Animagus form? Lainie is a panther sweetheart. River's the bear. The two animals aren't even mildly related.

And you know if you tried giving Wojtek to River that Shtara might straight up assault you. She's sassy and dramatic, spirited and ridiculously talented. But she doesn't suffer fools and only a fool would try to remove that bear from Shtara. I can't be your bodyguard and follow you around all day to make sure our thirteen year old doesn't jump you from the shadows. I can't be everywhere at once!

Seph, Lissa, Cael, and Trey could not stop going on and on about all our horses and almost-horses to Dustin. So it sounds like Dustin might come spend a few days with us this upcoming week. Hang out with the horses and his cousins, he gets so lonely with his older brother and sister being at Hogwarts all year, and just stay through Saturday and go home with his parents after the party.

I figure I may as well call up Bea and Finn to see if they want to send Blake over for the same time. They all get along so well, it will be a fun week of shenanigans!

But I should probably sign off and join you and Atreyu in dreamland.

Loving You,
Harry

Saturday September 24th
My ardor,

Since we had Siri and Zwei home for the weekend, and since you had our feisty foursome plus Dustin, Blake, and Jaz out in the stables with you, I decided that I would watch a few movies with the boys - including Zaire.

So, we all got comfortable in - our bed, actually. I had Muffy bring one of the tellys in here, and then supply me with Chubby Hubby, lemon ginger biscuits, a bowl of honey fermented garlic, some Sanguinaccio Dolce, tea, my never ending cup of milk, and crisps and popcorn for the boys to share.

Once we were ready and comfortable - me propped up with a hundred pillows and them each snuggling pillows and blankets as they liked - we started the movie playing. The first one was the first movie in the Resident Evil series. Unsurprisingly, the second movie was the second one, and so on. We had a bit of a marathon.

Honestly, I'm liking this Alice character. My favorite line of the first movie is when the little girl voice of the computer says: "You're all going to die here." So ominous and delicious. Lovely!

Siri likes the battle between Alice and Matt. Zaire loves the lickers. Zwei wants to try and recreate the scene where Alice bursts through the window on a motorcycle. I actually really like the part where Alice is using a shotgun and a ton of quarters to shoot the juggernaut-like thing.

All in all, it was a wonderful day of just bonding with my boys and not doing anything strenuous - since you are convinced I'm overdoing it.

What about you? How are the Thestrals doing? Last I was in the stables, one of the babies seemed fond of me, and I was thinking I might sneak him or her some apples tonight when I decide to stretch my muscles and go for a bit of a walk.

Let 'em say we're crazy, I don't care about that, Put your hand in my hand baby don't ever look back, Let the world around us just fall apart, Baby we can make it if we're heart to heart,

Draco
Monday September 26, 2016

My Dragon,

I am so glad you enjoyed your slumber party with your boys. Yeah, slumber party. I thought you were going to come out in the evening and see the thestrals, sneak them apples, stretch your legs, hmm? No, what do I find when I finally drag my exhausted arse into our bed? You, surrounded by a pile of children. It was so stinking cute, I took multiple pictures.

I'd say I was sorry to have missed it, but I was not. You can keep your gross movies! People dying, shotguns and quarters, and what the hell is a juggernaut? And what's a licker? You can't see me right now since you're at class, but I am making quite the disgusted face.

Oh Merlin, oh no, I googled it. I didn't want to sound like a moron who doesn't understand pop culture references. I started with "Resident Evil Alice;" well, wasn't she lovely? I should google the next thing. "Resident Evil Juggernaut;" ugh, that thing is freaky no thank you. But I couldn't leave well enough alone, could I? I'm a big brave Gryffindor. Let's google "Resident Evil Licker."

Bloody Hell! Why? Why would you watch something like that? And my baby boys watched it with you? They're just babies!

I'm going to have nightmares now! They obviously didn't have nightmares, they were sleeping in my bed just fine, but just the images are enough that I will probably stay up to watch you sleep tonight. Hope you enjoy the creepiness of that.

I will stick with amazing movies thank you very much. Yesterday, while you guys were finishing up your marathon you didn't quite finish the night before, my group of super cool kids watched a much better movie. Wild Hearts Can't Be Broken. Oh Draco, it was so good. It had everything; a cute guy, horses, courageous jumps, a cute guy, strong willed woman, overcoming physical disabilities! Oh! And there was a super cute guy in it.

Side note: all these sleepovers means I haven't had you in ages. Ages and ages and ages. I need you. Seriously. And I'm a little afraid of what is going to happen when you fall asleep tonight. I know you need your sleep, but between the oncoming nightmares and the fact that I need you like air, I am pretty sure I am just going to impale myself on you and ride to my heart's content even if you're sleeping. Cool?

And then when I'm done, I can lie next to you and touch your bump. You still seem so self conscious of it, but oh my Hell is it so cute. So, what better time for me to rub your sweet little belly than when you're sound asleep and won't bat my hands away?
I don't know, maybe I am way off and I won't actually be able to stay awake tonight no matter how many nightmares I am afraid of having. These kids have kept me running nonstop from dawn 'til dusk. I'm only able to hide in our rooms writing to you right now because I lied to them and said I twisted my ankle. I lied to the children! LIED.

It's probably a good thing that we have the unicorns, the thestrals, and more horses than just our Cheesecake and Fondue. Because I think even the animals are exhausted. The only way I can talk the kids into taking a break from riding the horses is to remind them they need caring for. They luckily care so much about the animals that the moment I tell them they are tired, they jump off and hurry to rub them down, get them treats, braid their hair. Yes, we have the prettiest ponies in all the land. Yes, I know they are not actually ponies but it totally worked with the alliteration.

I see how I rank in this house, Daddy says he's tired and it's a bunch of Malfoy eyebrows scowling at me, I say the horses are tired and they get a massage and pretty bows in their hair.

Blake is still madly in love with Cheesecake and insists she is HIS horse. No one has the heart to tell him otherwise. He came up to me all big puppy eyes and the popped bottom lip, "Grampa, can you take a picture of me with my Cheesecake so I can show my friends?" Why yes, anything else you'd like young man? Perhaps … anything you'd like because I am a sucker for a sweetheart who loves animals and calls me Grampa.

While the last few days have been physically exhausting, riding and caring for horses gives you plenty of time to let your mind wander. I got to thinking about how neat it is to see the kids' dynamics change in different environments. You can tell Blake is an only child because he wants to play with the kids, but he spends most of his time trying to talk with me or with the stable crew. You can tell he's around a lot of adults as he doesn't quite seem natural interacting with the kids.

And Dustin, oh my goodness is that little guy enjoying being the oldest of this group. He's so used to being the baby of his family. Too little to go to Hogwarts, too little to join the big kids watching scary movies, too little for anything fun if you believe a word out of his mouth. But put him as the big kid for a few days and he's walking taller. Trey has been following him around for days.

Oh! Did I tell you about the horse that has fallen in love with our Jaz? So this horse, Trinket, lived most of her life in a really disreputable circus of sorts. She spooks at any loud noises. This poor thing is so skittish. But Jaz just walked herself right up to this horse and I swear she didn't do anything but breathe and you could see the horse just melt. Jaz was the first person Trinket allowed to pet her at all. She's now taken to following Jaz everywhere. Seriously, while we have often found the kids asleep in the stables, I wouldn't be surprised to find this horse in Jasmine's bedroom tomorrow morning.

Oh no! Jiggling of the door knob! I've got to go pretend to be injured but slightly better.

See you soon!

Love you,
Harry

---

Monday September 26th

Harry…

If I didn't love you more than I love myself, I might be tempted to murder you!
So there I was, walking into class, feeling a bit grouchy because I walked into my closet (after returning from my rather lovely class with Zaire) and forgot why I was there until Muffy popped in and cast a shield on my stomach so that I'd be protected during class. Oh right, I needed to get dressed for that. So, I pulled on one of my nice bespoke exercise shirts KNOWING that you have it so that it will somehow change when I get to class anyway.

Then I walked into class, having already forgotten that my shirt was going to change, so when my students looked a bit confused by my shirt, I couldn't figure out why for a moment. Until I read: Don't you dare lay a finger on my husband.

"Harry..." I growled, rubbing my forehead with three of my fingers for a moment.

Friendly chuckled at me. "What happen, Chief? You flirt with someone and make your husband jealous?"

I shrugged and shook my head. "No so far as I can remember."

Class proceeded smoothly. Everyone is making good progress and since I am only on week four out of 16, I'm not being too terribly hard on them yet. Also, with me encouraging the old students to teach the new ones, they are all doing quite well since it gives the old ones confidence in their skills, and the new ones don't have me punching them on a daily basis.

The only down side is that I'm having morning sickness that's determined to show up any time it likes. It's aggravating since I haven't really had a lot for morning sickness with my pregnancies, but this one has decided to be different in just about every way. So, not only am I experiencing morning sickness throughout the day, but it's later in the pregnancy than normal MS shows up - typically being between weeks 6 and 12, and for my first womb, it's already 13 weeks. Hopefully it's not going based off the last womb, because that's at only 7 weeks, and if I have nausea for the next 5 weeks, my students might well need to fear for their lives.

But the reason I'm moaning about my morning sickness is that I can normally manage it by using potions and drinking from my never ending cup of milk. However, it doesn't ALWAYS work. So, for example, about 20 minutes into class, I had to down a potion, and about 20 minutes after that, I ended up accepting a bin from Muffy so that I could vomit into it.

Even so, some splashed onto my shirt, and because I didn't want the smell on me - even if Muffy cleaned the shirt up good as new - I pulled it off to use it to wipe the sweat off my forehead, the vomit from my lips, and then catch the milk I used to rinse my mouth out. As I handed the shirt to Muffy to straight up vanish, I noticed that my students were watching me in concern.

"Nothing to see here! Keep sparring before I have to kick your sorry arses!" I warned seriously.

"CAN you even kick our arses?" A student that is usually so unremarkable that I don't even have a mental reference for him yet asked, making me glare at him.

"OF COURSE I CAN," I snarled. He shrugged, so I went over and proved it to him. As he was laying on the ground, panting and looking up at me, he frowned in puzzlement and read the shirt that I was now wearing.

IF YOU MANAGE TO LAND A HIT ON MY HUSBAND, I WILL MAKE YOU WISH YOU'D NEVER BEEN BORN.

I sighed and rolled my eyes. "Harry, I can threaten my own students, thank you very much."

Friendly was now staring at me with a concerned frown. "If you didn't make your husband jealous, is your health so bad that he's THAT worried about you?"

"I'm fine!" I snapped. "Or do I have to kick ALL your arses before you believe me?"

Undaunted, Friendly smirked. "If there's nothing wrong, take off that shirt and let us read the next threat your husband has for us."

I sort of stood up a bit straighter at that. "I've never taken off two shirts before. I'm not sure if there IS another underneath." But since I'd also had Muffy glamour my stomach to hide the bump, I decided that topless might actually be better than unnecessary threats.

Upon taking off the shirt, I found that I DID have another one on. This one said: Hands off my pregnant husband.

I growled angrily, NOT wanting my students to know that yet, so I tore that one off to find ANOTHER, which said: Babies on board.

The next said: Precious cargo in here.

Handle with care.

My life is carrying new life.

Back the fuck off before I have to take steps to remove you.

I sense my husband is agitated enough to need me to come help him.

RUN LIKE DEMENTORS ARE CHASING YOU!

Sighing, I stopped trying to take shirts off as, CLEARLY, you have an endless supply. Besides, I didn't really have time to take another one off as you actually DID Apparate into the room, surrounded by a slight haze of your Rage Halo.

I made a noise that resembled something like: uuuuaaaauuuuahhh…

Then I stepped in front of you. "Oi! Darling husband, why the fuck are you here?"

"Why the fuck did the monitor charm on your blood pressure just go off so high?!" You growled.
I placed my fists on my hips. "Because YOUR fucking shirts have pissed me right the fuck off!"
"What's wrong with my shirts?!" You demanded, a bit of a wind now blowing about the room.
"They just announced that I'm bloody pregnant when I didn't want to tell anyone yet!!!"
"It's NOT like you can hide it forever, DRACO! ESPECIALLY in a COMBAT CLASS!!! If even ONE student managed to punch you in the stomach -"
"MY STOMACH IS BLOODY SHIELDED, AND YOU FUCKING KNOW THAT!!!"
"YEAH BUT WHAT IF YOU FORGOT THE SHIELD???
"THEN MUFFY WOULD REMEMBER IT FOR ME!!!
"I DON'T CARE, YOUR BLOOD PRESSURE -"
"IS ONLY THIS HIGH BECAUSE YOU'VE BLOODY ANGERED ME, HARRY!"
"THEN CALM THE FUCK DOWN SO THAT YOUR BLOOD PRESSURE GOES DOWN!"
"NO YOU CALM THE FUCK DOWN! YOU'RE SURROUNDED BY YOUR RAGE HALO AND THERE'S NO BLOODY REASON FOR YOU TO THINK YOU NEED TO POP IN AND RESCUE ME FROM MY GODDAMN CLASS!!"

That made you stop and think, but strangely, your fire sort of solidified as if you were now encased in a bubble of fire. Sighing in aggravation, I stepped forward, grabbed you by the neck as a small show of dominance to remind you who owns you, and then looked you in the eyes until your Rage Halo shrank a bit. Then I pulled you in my arms and held you tight - rubbing your back - for a moment before I pulled back to check on your Halo. It was still there, but only just.

"I'm fine," I assured you before giving you a kiss, which you moaned softly and melted into before pulling back with a glare.

"Did someone manage to punch you hard enough that you threw up?" You demanded.

"NO! I bloody had morning sickness!" I roared in frustration, throwing my hands out emphatically.

You immediately looked worried. "Oh no, are you alright? Do you need me to get you anything? Shouldn't you be sitting down? Let me conjure you a chair!"

"Oi! Stop panicking! Morning sickness is hellacious but fucking normal! And if you REALLY want to help me, bloody go home and let me get on with my class!"

You looked like a puppy that had just been kicked for no reason. I sighed in frustration and rubbed my head.

"Fine, I could actually use some biscuits, since I now have an empty stomach and am a bit peckish."

"Right!" You exclaimed happily. "Let me go make you some! Any kind in particular you want? Garlic? Blood?"

"Actually, yes, I could go for garlic and blood flavored biscuits. Ooo! With sushi on top! And caviar!" I blurted out hungrily, a hand covering my growling stomach.
You threw your arms around me and gave me a quick kiss before babbling: "I'll see what I can do! See you after class! Love you!"

"Love you too," I stated in return, smiling faintly and shaking my head at your antics as you Disapparated. But DON'T think that gets you out of a strong punishment tonight!

When I returned my attention to my class, it was to find them all staring at me in astonishment. I couldn't even begin to guess at which thing in particular they were gobsmacked over, and so, decided that it must be all of it. Sighing, I had Muffy conjure me a whip and promised to use it on anyone who wasn't doing their absolute best in the next five seconds and for the rest of class.

Thankfully, class ended SO much better than it was for a few minutes there - and by that, I mean that my stomach settled. It was still a bit hungry, but wasn't threatening to erupt. Better yet, my students now all had a healthy respect for my whipping skills.

So... what sort of punishment do you want?

Incoming!
Draco
Chapter 77

Chapter Summary

Harry is happily punished and Draco decides to reward his class.

Tuesday September 27, 2016

My Own,

Good morning my love! Isn't it a glorious day? The sun is shining, the birds are chirping, my arse burns like fire, could there be anything better than this?

I know I apologized last night, and was completely forgiven. I really love the closure our dynamic gives us, I get a punishment with a well-established beginning and end, with the promise of complete and utter forgiveness at the end. You never hold things against me long term because we clear the air immediately. It's really wonderful. But as I was saying, I apologized last night, took my punishment like a good puppy, and it's over, but I really do want to say again that I wasn't trying to hurt or embarrass you. I wasn't trying to out you with information you weren't comfortable sharing yet. I really should have made sure there weren't any pregnancy specific shirts in the cycle before you were ready to share.

I will say, your students seemed to think the whole 'don't lay a finger on my husband' thing was a jealousy issue instead of a safety issue. Since you've been foggy lately, I will assure you, I did not mean that in a jealous or sexy times way, I simply meant they shouldn't hurt you because you're fragile. And if you hadn't already been upset about the previous shirts you KNOW you would have loved the "Run like dementors are chasing you" one! That's one of my best if I do say so myself.

Alright, you thoroughly proved to me last night that you are not fragile. But I just worry about you so much.

Oh, and if it helps at all with the whole morning sickness and worry about it lasting, your C pregnancy is actually eight weeks, not seven! So if it lasts for the first trimester, then you only have four weeks left of nausea instead of five. Good news right?

Again I have to thank you for last night. I think with all the drama lately, I haven't been quite put in my place - into my headspace - like you and I both know I need. I've been a particularly bratty sub lately. I felt wrong in my skin. I've been so worked up about everything. But everything settled so perfectly last night.

Once all the kids were asleep for the night, you dragged me up to the playroom. You started by stripping me down and tying me up, taking your time, making sure I was tied as tightly as possible, the ropes scraping against my skin without being tight enough to lose circulation. You had me kneeling, my ankles tied to the backs of my thighs, my hands behind my back, ropes pulling my knees apart so I was completely on display for you. Once I was all rigged up, you suspended me from the ceiling and sat yourself in your throne. I was at a perfect height to stare right into your eyes.

"Tsk, tsk, tsk, I think I have a naughty little mutt who seems to have forgotten his place." Oh my Gods you were going to kill me with that filthy drawl of yours.

"Now, normally when you've been this naughty, I'd gag that pretty mouth of yours so I can't hear your excuses. This evening, I believe I'd quite like to hear you begging. Make sure you watch that smart mouth of yours, you don't want to be in any more trouble, do you mutt?"

I was already so desperate for you and we hadn't even done anything, "No Master, please I just want to be your good boy again. I will be so good."

"I know you will, you are just a silly mutt who needs a firm owner aren't you?"

"Yes Master, you're so good to me, show me how to be good!"

You chuckled a bit, that does not bode well for me, "I will show you so much my naughty boy, don't you worry." That's when you began to undress yourself. You had already peeled off the dementors shirt I'd charmed, so you began by peeling your trousers off those gorgeous long legs of yours. "It seems you have some very nice charms set on me so you can know what I'm feeling, well I think that's just a lovely idea and I will let you feel everything I'm feeling. That sounds nice doesn't it mutt?"

"Anything you want Master, of course I want to feel what you feel. Please!"

"Make sure you remember you begged for this." That's when you cast a spell at yourself and then a second spell at me. Suddenly, I was feeling your fingers digging into my hipbones. But your hands were nowhere near me, they were on … your hipbones. "Ah, caught on have you? You will get to feel everything my body feels. All you'll be able to do is sit there watching and feeling but no touching at all."

You then spent the next … hell I lost count how long you edged me … torturing me by running your own hands all over your body. Notice I say you edged ME even though you were touching yourself. Because every time I got close to feeling the beginning of your own orgasm translate itself to my body, you cast something that paused the sensation for me while letting yourself topple over the edge, covering your own hand in your seed. At least every time you came you were kind enough to walk over to me and let me lick your hands clean. Thank you.

You must have come at least three times, I lost count a bit while in a haze of "wantneedminepleasehelpwantMASTER!"

Eventually you took pity on me, taking the spell off after you came one last time. It was so weird, I was insanely turned on, but as I hadn't actually been touched at all, once the spell released I was just regularly turned on and not frantic anymore. You stood up, grabbed the new paddle you'd gotten me, and told me "you've done so well my Love. Took your punishment like the good boy I know you are. You want your reward sweetheart? Hmm?"

"Yes please Master, anything, please I need it!"

With another dark laugh you said, "Oh I always know just what you need." You then loosely held my aching shaft in your left hand and had the paddle in your right. You were teasing, just lightly tapping my arse and barely touching my cock. "I am going to paddle you until you come luv. And because you've been so good, I'll even help you out by giving you my hand to rub up against. You don't need to count, I don't have a number in mind. I will just be paddling this pretty little arse until you're coming or you beg me to stop."

And you did. I don't know how many spanks I got, but judging by my inability to sit without a cushioning charm this morning I am going to say it was a lot!

I love you with everything I am,
Harry

Wednesday September 28th
Mon Coeur,

I just had a lovely day. When I woke up this morning, I decided that since my combat class was doing rather well, they deserved a bit of a reward. So I immediately owled Robards and told him to send all of my students - unless they were busy with something important - to show up at Elena’s school at 2PM on the dot.

I then had Dibly waiting at the school to direct them to the right classroom. Thus, at 2PM when Zaire and I strolled into the room wearing our Zulu warrior costumes, it was to find our dance class students also already in costume watching my combat students curiously as my combat students looked at the dance students apprehensively. The returning students well remembered that time that I had them dance as a way to go easy on them, only to find that they didn't find it easy at all.

I let Zaire take the lead. He hopped in place in the middle of the classroom excitedly as he addressed everyone.

"My dad had a brilliant idea! Today's dance is a stick dance - or at least that's what the Zulu call it, but it's more like a fight in my opinion," he explained.

I gestured for Dibly and Muffy to pass out the pairs of sticks to everyone.

Then I continued the explanation. "And I decided that since my combat students are doing well enough, it might be interesting to combine the two classes today."

"So dad and I are going to demonstrate the steps, and then everyone is going to pair off and dance fight!"

One of the dance students raised her hand.

"Yes?" I pointed at her.

"I think your combat students should have to wear the traditional Zulu costumes too!"

"If I had extras for them, I'd agree," I stated, but since this was a partially muggle class and school, I couldn't just have new ones conjured. Muffy and Dibly appeared as dwarfish humans to the muggles, and thus didn't raise too many questions - suddenly creating something out of nothing would. "But since I don't, I'll give them all the choice to take off their shirts." Because it's NOT actually required to be topless in the class, even though all of my students have chosen to do so.

With shrugs, all my male combat students stripped off their shirts. The sole female gave it a bit of thought, looking over at the female dance students, who ranged from 8 on up to 25. There were actually 40 students in the dance class - as opposed to the 16 in my combat class – with about three fourths being girls. Thus, I suppose that girly decided that she'd feel weird being the only student with a shirt on. Once decided, she stripped her shirt and bra off and stood there a bit self-consciously.

But I was already moving on. Or rather, Zaire was. "My Zulu tribe elders would probably faint if they knew we were teaching this to GIRLS, but I don't see why not. My sisters can all do far more complicated fighting stuff than this."

I chuckled. "The next time we pop down to Africa for a visit with your tribe, we should insist on bring all your brothers and sisters so that they can spar and make the Zulu warriors nervous."

Zaire snorted in amusement. "If we brought Kisa and Elena with us, the two of them could take down the entire tribe and get us banned for life!"

I laughed, but before I could respond, I heard Elena roar from the hallway. "GODDAMNIT ETHAN! I'M ONLY PREGNANT, NOT AN INVALID!!!"

"But Elena, you're teaching a very advanced dance class and I'm worried that the baby will be born far too early because of it!" Ethan cried out in protest.

The door flung open. "DAD!"

"Yes, my love," I replied in both curiosity and amusement.

"EVICT ETHAN FROM MY SCHOOL WITH EXTREME PREJUDICE BEFORE I LOSE MY SHIT AND AK HIM!"

"Ethan, I'm afraid you might want to leave for now and let Elena calm down," I suggested sensibly.

"But aren't YOU worried about her and the baby with her dancing like that?" Ethan argued.

"Not so much. I know that pregnant women can continue to do the things they are used to doing until it makes them uncomfortable, and if my daughter is still comfortable dancing, then she'll be fine. Her baby too."

"BUT she's SEVEN months pregnant! She should be taking it easy!"

I flinched just before Elena punched him hard enough to knock him on his arse. "BLOODY SAY THAT AGAIN, I DARE YOU!!!"

"Ethan, Elena is asking me to get you to back off because if she does it herself, you may not survive," I warned him.

"I'm just worried!" Ethan stated vehemently as he stood back up. "My wife teaches PIANO lessons, and SHE overdid it and had to be put on bed rest!"

"I am not your damn wife! So either back off and let me get on with my day, or I swear to MERLIN I will take back my agreement for you to be part of this baby's life!"

"Elena..." I murmured, letting her know that she was going a bit too far.

Ethan looked gutted. I walked over and put an arm around Ethan's shoulder. "Listen, go get some tea - or coffee if you can stand the vile stuff. Calm down. Let Elena teach her class. When you are BOTH in a better mood, try TALKING again." Then I looked over at Elena. "And perhaps you might want to let Ethan go with you to your next Healer's appointment so that he can hear for himself from a professional that you are fine and not endangering the baby's life."

"I'll consider it if he promises to stop trying to tell me what to do!" Elena compromised.

Ethan sighed. "Fine... I'll go get some tea, but I'll be back when my daughter's class is over, so I hope we'll both be ready to talk by then."
"We'll see," Elena murmured, not promising anything but already sounding so much calmer.

After Ethan took off, Elena stepped in front of me so that she could rest her head on my chest. "Can't you just Obliviate him for me?"

"No good love, he'll just find out again," I assured her, rubbing her back and kissing her temple.

Sighing morosely, she walked away, calling out over her shoulder: "Have a good class!"

"Yes Headmistress!" Most of the students exclaimed in response.

"Have fun in YOUR class, Lanie!" Zaire called after her.

She paused to smile at him. "You too, love."

After that, Zaire and I demonstrated the steps of the dance, which is a bit complicated in that the feet are doing one thing and the arms/hands another altogether. Basically, the feet are dancing while the arms are bashing the sticks - which are about the length and width of batons, but have wider, bigger, bumpier, and occasionally forked ends. The wood is solid, so they aren't fragile things that'll break with a good tap.

In Zulu culture, disputes between men are often resolved by fighting with the sticks until first blood, and if the dispute is grave enough, to the death.

But as I was saying, Zaire and I were demonstrating the basic steps, which once memorized, aren't that complicated if you can keep all your limbs coordinated. Thus, we got faster and faster as part of the reason for the dance is to show off skills and prowess.

Once we felt sufficiently warmed up, we turned to our students and had them go through it, correcting them as necessary. All in all, it was a great lesson.

Near the end, unremarkable asked what the point of spending the day dancing rather than sparring was.

I smirked at him. "The POINT is to move your body. You can't very well defend yourself by standing still like a moron. Running is intended to get and keep your body in shape enough to fight with a decent amount of stamina, dancing is to help you fight with grace - otherwise known as quick reflexes. Understand?"

He nodded. "Oh."

And with that, I dismissed class (which had run a bit longer than normal) and took Zaire out for a bit of a treat since he'd been so brilliant today.

But now I have my night free. That means I get to come to movie night with you.

Touch me, take me to that other place, teach me, oh, I know I'm not a hopeless case, Draco
Thursday September 29, 2016

My Heart,

Thank you for rearranging your day so you could join us for movie night last night. I know I know, it's because your class has been good, and because you think dancing is an important part of building reflexes, and blah blah blah. But two weeks ago, I was so sad that you couldn't join us for movie night at Unity, and then all of a sudden this week everything falls into place? I'm onto you, you spoil me.

It was one of my favorite movies; Book of Life. So so good. We've seen it before as a family so I didn't even think of it when Tabitha told me the movie choice. It's wholesome, it's lovely, good message. But I didn't think that with a certain little almost birthday boy who currently has his own Mama following him around in spirit form, it might be a little triggery. Atreyu didn't seem to think anything of it, but I assume all the looks you and I were sneaking each other over his cute little head meant we were both thinking it?

He at least seemed to really enjoy the movie. He definitely enjoyed being squashed in between you and I to snuggle up and watch. He's so sweet all cuddled up with that thumb tucked into his mouth. I am sure that someday I will not find it nearly as adorable. But for now, it's so stinking cute he can do it forever as far as I care.

I am a bit worried though, when we're at home and he's with his brothers and sisters, he is a nonstop force of nature. He runs and plays, eats everything in sight, talks nonstop. But every time we've been at Unity, here and in California, he's stuck to one of us like glue. The most he will venture away from us is if he has a sibling with him.

I guess I'm just nervous that if he's feeling this shy around people he doesn't know well, is he even going to enjoy his birthday party? He's been having a blast with Blake and Dustin at home this week, but our circle is an entirely different matter. I am saying it now for the record, I don't care if it makes us seem like the rudest hosts ever, if Atreyu is uncomfortable, I am sending everyone home!

I just hope it doesn't come to that!

Since we have a big day on Saturday and you've had a busy week with all of your classes, I'd really really really like it if you'd do me a favor and get some rest the next few days.

Please?

Yours,
Harry
Friday September 30th
My better half,

As requested and as I intended to do anyway, I have more or less stayed in bed. Yesterday, I got out of bed shortly after waking up to do my yoga; got back into bed to read a book; got out of bed to join the family for dinner and go for a light run with you, and then got back into bed to watch a movie about Hellen Keller with Jaz.

After the movie, the two of us simply chatted for a few hours until you came to bed and asked Jaz to go to hers. She promised she would after a quick check on her horse. Apparently, she hadn't quite realized how long she was with me and felt terrible for leaving her horse alone that long.

You and I had a long and slow session of just kissing and touching and eventually having each other before falling asleep. (I love that Atreyu also likes to sleep in the stables at times.)

Today, well, it's basically been a repeat of yesterday, but instead of having Jaz in here for a few hours, I had Persephone, Lily, and Caelum. They've been so focused on the horses, thestrals, and unicorns lately that they feel like they haven't seen me at all in days, and so, they came in to play a card game with me as they told me EVERY.single.detail. of their time in the stables the last few days.

I have to admit that I fell into a sort of trance, simply murmuring: "Mmmhmm," whenever it seemed like I was supposed to respond to something. Harry, our kids are only six, but I would SWEAR before the Wizengamot if necessary that they are literal EXPERTS on all things horse. This is not a bad thing and I'm not complaining, I'm simply saying that when it comes time to attend Hogwarts, they're going to be teaching Hagrid's class on certain days, hahaha.

But since I have given you almost every detail of my two days (not much, I know), I hope you'll be satisfied that I have indeed taken it slow and gotten quite a bit of rest. I feel like the only way I could get any MORE rest would be to have a sleeping spell cast on me for the duration of my pregnancy.

NO! You may NOT cast a sleeping spell on me if you think I'm doing too much!

In any case, I'm going to sign off and see if you or Atreyu plan to come to bed tonight. And also sneak some apples to the thestrals - which are rather gentle and loving creatures despite the fact that they do look a bit 'scary' - like skeletal horses with black skin pulled over them. I'm not certain, but I think the baby that likes me is a girl, and somehow, I'm not surprised.

You are the light of my life,
Draco
Chapter 79

Chapter Summary

It's Atreyu's birthday and then Draco has class.

Sunday October 2, 2016

Good morning my Prince,

The last two days have been amazing. A sweet day on Friday just with me and the birthday boy. Well, obviously there were siblings and cousins coming in and out of our space, but for the most part I got to spend the whole day in the sunshine with Trey. And then you came to find us in the stables and the three of us spent the rest of the evening feeding the animals treats, getting all of us squeaky clean in a bubble bath, and then bedtime snuggles while we read out little boy bedtime stories.

Per usual on Friday morning, I got up early and made up a big breakfast for the birthday boy (and everyone else of course). Zaire joined me in the kitchens to help. I love that he still loves cooking for me. He's so unbelievably sweet. Adores his family and would do anything for one of his brothers or sisters. He may be getting tall and strong, growing more mature by the day, but the kid is still a berry thief! His mouth stained in reds, purples, and blues trying to tell me he didn't eat half the bowl of mixed berries.

He really is a terrible liar!

I'm glad we didn't end up waking you up when we brought Atreyu his breakfast in bed. You absolutely would have woken up had he actually been in bed and therefor eaten in bed, but I had completely forgotten he was in the stables still. So Zaire and I trudged outside to the stables, steaming platters full of breakfast in our arms, to find the birthday boy.

He was so excited to have his birthday breakfast. We had Siri and Zwei's birthday breakfasts about a week after Atreyu came home to us, so he kind of had an idea of what to expect of a birthday morning. But we haven't had another family birthday since so I think he was pretty surprised. The only downside was he was wondering where his Papa was. Zaire explained very quickly that Daddy was in charge of birthday breakfasts and Papa was in charge of ridiculously over the top birthday presents and nighttime snuggles.

Trey looked at his big brother very seriously and finally nodded with a, "We NEVER wake my Papa!"

Ha! He's been in our lives for two months and he already has your number!

All in all, his first "actual" birthday with us was a laid back success. He got to play outside all day. Mostly got his Daddy to himself. And spent the evening wrapping his Papa further around his little fingers.

The day of the birthday party was a completely different story. It was still definitely a success, but it was not laid back. I swear, I love this boy with my entire heart, but by the time the party actually started, he had asked if it was party time yet so many times that I thought about casting a sleeping spell on him until it was. He's a five year old boy excited about his first birthday party with his new family, I understand why he was so hyper about it. But yeah, really considered making him take a magical nap!

The best part of the party was the fact that he was his regular non-stop movement, motor-mouth self. All my worries about him not enjoying the crowds or hiding in our arms with his thumb in his mouth were blown out of the water. I guess he's just going to be that kid that everyone thinks is super shy because he only comes out of his shell in front of his family. Thankfully he was fully aware that everyone at his party is his family even if they don't live with us. I swear, he's going to head off to Hogwarts and the Professors are going to say something along the lines of "he's so quiet and shy" and our family members are going to laugh their arses off.

I think all the kids had a blast during the scavenger hunt. Minus Tristan who was furious about how filthy he got. You can tell someone lives in a nice clean boarding school and doesn't spell all his time in the woods and stables. Our feisty foursome on the other hand, looked like they had bathed in a mud puddle by the time they got back to the party. And knowing them, they might have done.

Molly started shooting cleaning spells at them before I even had a chance to figure out which mud-covered little monster was which. She was not about to have grubby little hands anywhere near her cake masterpiece!

Oh my goodness, that cake was insane. Decorated to look like a tree stump cover with grass and mushrooms and adorable little woodland creatures. And Atreyu was insanely adorable with how much he loved it. He helped his Grandma Molly serve everyone their portion, every couple of slices he'd remind people, "My Grandma made this for me!"

And it was as delicious as it was cute. It's too bad there were no leftovers because I could go for a piece of cake for breakfast.

The only real negative to the entire day was how Atreyu almost didn't get the one thing for his party that he wanted. After games and cake and food and gifts we were all sitting around groaning and loosening our belt buckles, but I could tell he was antsy for something. I called him over and asked him "So what did you think of your birthday party little buddy?"

He gave me one of his huge grins, dimple and all, "Atreyu loves it!" Oh good, I was so happy.
Until … "When we do the piñata Daddy?"

Shite Draco. I didn't even think of it. Neither did Narcissa or Molly or you. This little boy grew up in California. His birth family was all of Mexican descent. The kid had never been to a birthday party without a piñata. Fuck!

I felt so badly, "Sorry little man, we've never had a birthday party with a piñata, we didn't get one."

His little lower lip quivered and for the first time since he woke up he popped his thumb into his mouth. He mumbled around it, "Is okay. Don't need it."

I looked at you frantically. What were we going to do? I was quickly spiraling internally; we've ruined our little boy's first party, I've disappointed my son, forever he's going to remember that we didn't get him the one thing he wanted. You gave me a loud and quick, "Oi!" to get my attention. "Transfigure a piñata and we'll send one of the Grandpas to Hogsmeade to get some sweets to put in it. This is not a catastrophe Harry James!"

Atreyu giggled at the two of us, "Not a tasterfee Daddy!"

Eventually we got the piñata, filled it with sweets, and eventually figured out how to string it up letting the kids take turns whacking the thing. I may have transfigured it a bit too solidly because after all the kids had a turn there still wasn't a dent on the thing. Oops?

Viona shook her head at me, "Daddy, are you even a wizard?"

Oh, yeah. I shot a quick miniature blasting spell on it as Atreyu was taking his second turn. The thing exploded nicely, scattering sweets all over the yard.

Once everyone else's children were sufficiently sugared up, it seemed a good time to send them all home!

I think it was an immensely satisfying birthday celebration. Now we can relax until the next big celebration ….

In five and a half more days when we do Lainie's baby shower.

Why are our lives so insane?

In the madhouse with you,

Harry

Wednesday October 5th
The air I breathe,

The last couple of Wednesdays have been so full of drama that you might actually be under the impression that I stopped teaching Fierston Legilimency and just forgot to mention it. See actually, I've been requiring him to show up at my office at 5PM - when my other class is required to show up at the running track - which gives me time to stop in before my other class starts at 6PM and look deeply into Fierston's eyes.

I take a few minutes to wander around poking at his Occlumency shield, decide that he's not quite ready to have an official test on it yet, and then give him some advice and assign him to keep working at it before leaving. Thus, I've only been spending between five and ten minutes a week teaching him - far less traumatic than you were anticipating, I'm certain.

However, today when I walked in at about half five, I determined that his Occlumency shields were strong enough for us to do a mini battle test. So, I told him to basically meditate and put some finishing touches on them while I taught my other class.

As for my combat class, they've been making good progress as well, enough that I decided to try revisiting the over the shoulder lesson, and since I DO have clearance from Rowe to do one or two myself, I decided to pick the two that were having the most trouble, figuring that experiencing it themselves could provide useful clues on how to do it.

That means that unremarkable and this one bloke that gives me twink vibes even though he adamantly insists to everyone who looks at him funny that he is as straight as a plumb line had the pleasure of me grabbing them and tossing them over my shoulder to the floor. Neither thought it was fun. Strange.

To my delight, by the end of class, several students (mostly the returning ones) had nearly got it. The only student who fully managed the move was - surprise surprise - girly. She not only tossed a bloke over her shoulder, but she tossed BRUTE, hahahahaha!

I'm damn near ready to give her her with honors status, but let's see if she can pass the class first.

So then it was time for me to return to Fierston. For the very first time, I stood back in a Duelers’ stance and invited him to resist the actual spell. As YOU probably know, the spell is not necessary once a person becomes skilled in the art, but for those first learning, it's rather important. Plus, when in a sort of duel like this, it can help the one learning Occlumency have a catalyst to close one's mind or quickly throw up a shield.

Also, doing it this way is less skill and more brute force, so it is easier to detect - even if performed nonverbally.

"Legilimens!" I cast and to my delight, Fierston had his shield ready to go. It was blatantly obvious and actually was weird because it was like a tiny version of me was standing in his mind while a tiny version of him popped in and stood next to me. I was able to point out where his shield needed work - such as not being so obvious - and he was able to see a bit more clearly what it felt like to have someone else in his mind.

Thus, the lesson was a rousing success! I would have invited him to a pub for drinks were I not pregnant, but since I am, I simply gave him enough money to cover a round on me.

All in all, I had an excellent day!

Incoming!

Draco
Friday October 7, 2016

My Alibi,

Elena is going to murder Ethan. Legitimately murder him. He will NOT stop hovering and trying to push himself on her life choices and into the pregnancy. I am not condoning murder by any stretch, especially on someone who I've known since he was a kid. But if he mysteriously disappears in the upcoming months? Uh … Elena had nothing to do with his disappearance.

So you know how I am not pregnant? How I'm not Elena? AND I am an overbearing, overprotective, hovering den mother of a husband? Yeah, even I think Ethan is acting like an absolute lunatic. He's taken to showing up at her school all week long with increasingly ridiculous excuses. First they were fairly understandable, I mean the only reason he even found out about the pregnancy to begin with was because he was at the school signing his daughter up for twice weekly dance classes. He would bump into her during those classes.

Then it was showing up to drop off some book or some tea or some other thing that he thought would be helpful, "My wife loved this book when she was pregnant with Jayden" or "This peppermint tea was super helpful during my wife's morning sickness."

But it's been escalating like you saw last week at class. He's taken to telling her she shouldn't be doing her job! Her job that her healer has said is just fine. "My wife teaches piano lessons, and she overdid it and had to be put on bed rest!" Well Ethan, as our Lainie so helpfully told you, she is NOT your wife. They are two different people. These are two different pregnancies.

At this point ELENA'S health and safety are NOT what I'm concerned about.

I know now that Fabio's Legilimency lessons are coming along you've been spending a bit of extra time with him this week so I should probably tell you about all the new drama our soon to be maimed Ethan has brought to the table.

Yesterday, the dumbass dropped off a copy of his wife's birth plan they used with their daughter. He thought it would be a super helpful guideline for Elena to make her own birth plan. He also went through and highlighted parts he thought would be most important like "no drugs" and "the father will cut the umbilical cord."

Dude. She hasn't even decided if she wants you in the room with her.

And someone seems to forget he knocked up a witch. She's going to give birth at St. Mungo's or at home, she hasn't decided for sure yet. She won't need muggle drugs, she'll have access to potions if she wants. And nobody is using janky old scissors on my grandbaby's umbilical cord.

Grandbaby. Not grandson or granddaughter … grandbaby. I say that because my Lainie-Girl hasn't announced the gender yet. She's planning on doing so tonight at the baby shower. But I'm currently listening to Viona ream Ethan a new arsehole. Not Elena because she has barricaded herself in her old room and refuses to speak to him. He had the bollocks to show up here before the shower so he could explain to her that it's probably not the best idea to do the gender reveal. You see, ETHAN thinks waiting to find out will make the reveal at birth that much sweeter. ETHAN thinks Elena won't want to deal with people having opinions one way or the other. ETHAN thinks that waiting to hear boy or girl at birth is "one of the best surprises in life" and Elena will really regret telling everyone tonight.

If you get this while the smack down is still happening you should head over here. Viona is really at the top of her game right now. It's breathtaking.

Yours,
Harry

---

Friday October 7th
My reason,

So... It seems that I managed to save Ethan's life today.

I arrived home just in time to bring him to the white room and serve him tea before Elena or Viona murdered him. Then we had a nice long chat.

"Ethan, you know I have literally been pregnant before, right?"

"Yeah, which is still crazy in my opinion!"

"But you probably don't know that I'm currently pregnant again," I added.

"Er... You are??" He asked in surprise.

"Yes," I confirmed, even standing up and showing him my bump - which is already out of control!

"Whoa, WHY??" Ethan asked incredulously.

I chuckled. "Not on purpose, I assure you."

I gave him a quick recap of the situation, and then let him digest it a moment.

"So, trust me when I say that I can discuss pregnancy as an expert by this point," I said. "But I have ALSO been the non pregnant husband, so I understand where you are coming from too. All you want is for both mother and child to be healthy and happy. It's frustrating to think about everything that could go wrong, especially when the mother is as driven and active as Elena -"

"Right!" Ethan burst out. "Why can't she just slow down?!!"

I sighed and put a hand on his shoulder. "The point is that the pregnant person is still the owner of their body. How would YOU feel if your wife started telling you what you could and could not do? 'Ethan, don't lift that drum, you might strain your back.' 'Ethan be careful how you step, you might trip and fall.' - It's coming from love and good intentions, but it's annoying as fuck."

"I suppose it is..." Ethan admitted with a sigh.

"So instead of worrying out loud, try keeping it in your head, and if you want to be helpful, DON'T hover, but simply be on hand to help out when asked," I advised.
"Ugh, that is one of the things my wife and I fought about when she was pregnant with our daughter. She had to be put on bed rest and I wanted to do everything for her, and to an extent, she needed me to, but then it also drove her mad."

"Just keep in mind that Elena is a completely different person and she HATES not doing everything herself. I nearly got murdered myself when I hired her an assistant because she needed someone to help her when the baby comes. She did not like it at all," I explained.

Ethan looked a bit growly for a few seconds, and then sighed. "I can't promise anything, but I will TRY to be less... worried..."

"That's all we ask," I murmured.

At this point, Kisa had finished up the pre-party set up and announced that it was time to start. To be honest with you, I basically noticed the food and focused on it to the exclusion of everything else.

Fucking hell! Kisa brought some sort Russian dish that tastes like cold sauerkraut soup and I literally could not stop eating it! I actually fought Elena over it because she claimed Kisa brought it for HER, but we all know that the weird food is intended for me.

"But it's MY baby shower!"

"But I'M carrying three!"

"But I asked my BEST FRIEND to bring it for me!"

Kisa started laughing. "Silly babies! I brought more!"

I still don't think it was enough, but at least it was enough to share.

And then it was that time we were all waiting for...

Out of the blue, an enormous firework - almost certainly from George - blasted into the twilight sky, bursting into light and dark blue glittery bits that announced: IT'S A BOY!!!

I have no idea why, but I started having a bit of rain on my face and had to run to the nearest loo to compose myself.

Happily, you found me in the loo and sobbed your happiness on my shoulder. All in all, this was a perfect day :-)

I'm gonna love you forever,
Draco
Chapter 81

Chapter Summary

They find out for certain who the father of Baby C is.

Monday October 10, 2016

My Best Friend,

I miss you already. I just left this morning and I wouldn't be seeing you right now anyway because you're in class, but just knowing I won't be climbing into bed with you tonight has an ache in my heart.

I'm excited for this tour, but I am going to miss you like crazy. I'm sure a part of you will miss me but I wouldn't be surprised if you're going to enjoy my absence at least a little since you'll get a reprieve from my hovering. Don't think I couldn't read between the lines of your conversation with overbearing Ethan and hear that a bit of that frustration was directed towards me. I promise you, I am well aware that your body is your own and that at the end of the day, you have to make daily decisions about your health and well being that have nothing to do with me.

I'm working very hard on being okay with that!

I probably know exactly which parts of you will be missing me the most … that gorgeous cock, that perfect tight arse, and whatever part of your body the cravings come from since I won't be home to bake increasingly ridiculous biscuit mixtures.

I brought Jaz and the four littlest with me. Zaire didn't want to miss his classes with you and Shtara obviously has rehearsals she can't miss. Opening night is coming up so soon!

These five little monkeys have spent pretty much all day long in the pool. I was honestly a bit surprised that they wanted to come with me on this trip, I thought they'd refuse to leave their horses. And there were some tearful goodbyes at the crack of dawn as we were leaving, but the joy of traveling and the promise of swimming pools and new restaurants seemed to make up for it.

With Leah as Shtara's permanent nanny right now, I wasn't sure what to do about bringing small kids that would need supervision while I was at interviews or signings. Obviously they have elves that would be just fine to watch them, but then the muggles I'd come across on tour would be very confused how I would be able to leave a seven year old, three six year olds, and a five year old alone for hours. But when I was talking about it at Lainie's shower on Friday, Molly announced that she and Arthur would love to come with and watch the kids. Uh, yes please!

I went on my first interview after we settled into the hotel, leaving them in the capable hands of their grandparents, and I think it was a smashing success. I'm really excited to finally have the true story out there without any of Skeeter's embellishments or straight up falsehoods.

Per usual, they had me read the dedication …

-I dedicate this book to those who left us too soon. Dad, Mum, Regulus, Cedric, Florean, Albus, Alastor, Ted, Dobby, Vince, Fred, Remus, Tonks, Lavender, Colin, and Severus. We owe you everything and miss you daily.
-To the friends that became family, the family a little boy in the cupboard never thought he'd get.
A family that includes brothers and sisters, Mums and Dads, and even the cousin he wasn't allowed.
-To my children; Elena, River, Viona, Eris, Orion, Hazel, Shtara, Siri, Zwei, Zaire, Jaz, Persephone, Lily, Caelum, Atreyu, and any of my children who I've yet to meet. I hope you find your place in the world and it fits you as well as mine has, and I hope you always remember your first home was in my arms and there will forever be space for you there.
-As always, everything I do is because of and for the boy in the robe shop with the quicksilver eyes. You are my past, my present, and my future.

I'll be home for a few days starting Thursday, I'll be there in enough time to make your appointment with Rowe in the afternoon. I think it was at 2:00? Pippa already knows so don't think you can get out of it!

I'll see you in a few days!

With empty arms,
Harry

P.S. A grandson! We're having a grandson!

P.P.S. Don't forget to give Eliza her birthday present and tell her I'm sorry I couldn't be there for her family birthday dinner tonight. I'll bring her an awesome souvenir to make up for it!

Thursday October 13th
My zing,

I missed you so much while you were gone that you'd think you'd been gone more than just a couple of days. You were not only back in time for my appointment, but in time to wake me up. At first, I really thought the Viper was taking pity on me for needing you, but then I looked into your eyes and saw YOU looking at me...

My body went from interested to absolutely having to have you now in about a second flat!

It's probably a good thing we had time to kill, otherwise we certainly would have been late.

I needed to kiss every part of you and flirt with your tattoos. I needed to run my hands all over your body and reassure myself that I wasn't just having a very good dream. And then I had to take you as leisurely as possible so that it wasn't over anytime soon.

NO! I was not having difficulties because of the awkward bump, I just wanted to go slow. I am SO not looking forward to the time when I'm too big to shag you properly. Maybe I need to design something to help us out - such as a special swing or something?

Anyway, after we were curled up in the aftermath of delicious orgasms, I was perfectly content to go right back to sleep, but Pippa came in and reminded us that my appointment was in about 20 minutes. Thus I reluctantly got out of bed and let you help me get dressed.

You chose the shirt that said: My life is carrying new life. Since we were going to a Healer's appointment for exactly that, I didn't mind.

Just before leaving, Viper popped into the room. You and he had talked and agreed that he would come with to have a paternity test spell done.

Once in the office with Rowe, Muffy served me my breakfast of oysters, eggs, and criadillas sliced thin and fried with onions and garlic. The three were tossed together in a wrap and smothered in Gruyere. I was so busy chowing down that I don't remember any of the questions you asked Rowe, but from how long it seemed to take, you must have had a lot of questions.

But then it was time for Viper's test. I held my breath in anticipation, hoping against hope that he is the other father.

Nope, no such luck.

Sigh...

I guess we're going to have to eventually talk to Dean, huh?

Love,
Draco
Chapter 82

Chapter Summary

Harry and Draco talk to Dean and Seamus.

Sunday October 16, 2016

My Dragon,

I feel as though I just got home and I'm already headed out again. More interviews, more signings, more traveling. Popping home for this and that, but I pretty much have a solid three weeks where every minute of my day is carefully scheduled. I really hope my taking the five smallest has meant you've been able to relax and not just given you enough time to plot new things to stress yourself out over.

Do you want to hear my insane couple of weeks? You can't stop me since this is email and you can't throw a silencing spell or cover my mouth? Good!

From today through Friday I have between two and four stops each day. Tuesday evening I have just enough time off so I can come have a family-plus dinner to celebrate Scor and Hyper's birthdays. I will be home late Friday night so I can spend all day Saturday with Lainie for her birthday. And I actually have all of Sunday free before I have to head right back out Monday morning.

That Monday the twenty-fourth I go out for the rest of the week, coming home Friday the twenty-eighth. They wanted to have me keep going through that entire weekend since Harry Potter and Halloween weekend was a huge draw. But there was absolutely no way I was willing to miss out on my little girl's debut theatre performance! Not for all the gold in Gringott's!

I will be going back out the Sunday though, big party Sunday night and interviews nonstop starting bright and early Monday since it's the actual day of Halloween. Oh, I will be leaving the littles home with you that week even though my schedule slows down a bit. I figure they will want to be home and spending time with their friends and playmates at Unity for any Halloween shenanigans that are happening. I pretty much just have two stops per day that week until that Saturday evening, fifth November. That is the big party. The last of my commitments for the last of my books. A big gala where I will be forced to rub elbows with upper crust snobs and dance the night away.

You'll be my date won't you my love? You can show off your amazing dance moves. I can spend the night in your arms. Please say you will?

So, if you'll notice, I will be popping back for three different birthdays and have one singular day off during the entire three week span. Sunday the twenty-third of October. Which will put your C pregnancy exactly at twelve weeks. You know, the time period in most pregnancies where even those strictest about not blurting the news too early feel enough time has passed to tell people. I have an entire day free on the day baby C is officially twelve weeks and we can tell people. Tell people. Tell person. So yeah, unless you refuse, I think I should see if Dean and Seamus are free that day. We can invite them over for tea and some catch up and while they're there we can drop the massive uterus-shaped bomb on them.
So I should send them the invite yeah?

I just saw you a few hours ago and I miss you already. A weekend was just not enough time with you. I am surprised you seem to feel the same way though. I would have thought you'd be thrilled that I wasn't home hovering over you and being an arse about you overdoing things. You must really love me then!

Ugh, off to another signing!

Keep my heart safe as it lives in your hands,
Harry

Monday October 24th
My love,

You naturally left this morning before I woke up, but I felt you kissing me goodbye. We had a long and... interesting weekend.

Our day with Elena was wonderful as she did her traditional birthday morning things with you - such as breakfast in bed and snuggling/chatting with her younger siblings as they gave her gifts in the morning - and then she went with me (and we dragged you with us) to River's spa so that she could be pampered. Then we went shopping for baby boy things - not that she truly NEEDED anything after her shower.

And honestly, we have enough baby/toddler clothing in storage for both genders that she could be having octuplets and they'd have plenty of clothes. But you know our family, never pass up an excuse to shop! Yes, all in all, we had a lovely day - finishing off her birthday with dinner and a show.

But then yesterday...

As you suggested, we invited Dean and Seamus over for dinner, a much smaller and more 'intimate' dinner in our suite - as opposed to a big old family dinner in the dining room with everyone else. After chit chatting for a while, Seamus grinned at you.

"So Harry, didja invite us over for more play time? Perhaps another chance to win that competition between us?"

I could see you bristle for a moment as if you wanted to do EXACTLY that, but then you let it go with a sigh. "No... we have something we need to talk to you about."

"Oh?" Both Dean and Seamus asked curiously.

You looked at me and I felt a brief moment in which I would have rather pulled all my skin off, but I took a deep breath and persevered.

"Once upon a time ago, I went undercover as an underage female prostitute," I began because it would be sort of weird to say: Oh hey, I'm pregnant and it's yours - WITHOUT first explaining that they're not ALL his. "And while undercover, I got pregnant. I hated this fact at first because I didn't want to be pregnant ever again, but now I'm tentatively looking forward to it."

"Alright..." they both murmured slowly, almost certainly wondering why we felt the need to tell them THIS bit of information.
With another deep breath, I continued. "And then for Harry's birthday, we used the Damsel Curse on me to turn me into a woman so that I could try having sex AS a woman with my husband... and got pregnant AGAIN."

You took my hand and kissed it. "Healer Rowe has done a bit of thinking about this, and has determined that the second time is BECAUSE of how the curse is designed. It's intended to be used by a wizard on an enemy, who would then claim the new Damsel as one of his victories/prizes, and thus, would probably want him/her primed and ready to bear a child. It's an OLD curse back when such barbaric actions were considered normal."

I rubbed my temples. "Which would completely explain why the curse didn't care that there was already a womb full of child in there." I sighed, took a long gulp of milk, and then finished up. "It's also why - when we used the Curse again - during our play night - that I got pregnant yet once more... with YOUR child."

Both men looked extremely puzzled for a long moment.

"Er... how do you know it's Dean's?" Seamus asked, looking at his husband with an expression of worry.

"Because we've already brought the OTHER Draco and Harry to our appointment with us and had them tested for Paternity," I explained.

"Oh..." Dean murmured and I could see him sort of pull a mask on to hide his thoughts as he mulled this over. Out of respect, I gave him privacy and did not read his mind. "Erm... I think... I think we're going to need some time to think this over. What exactly is it you want from us?"

We both shook our heads and gave him small smiles. "Not a thing. We have everything we need," we both said.

Then you added: "We simply thought the right thing to do was tell you and let you decide what YOU want."

Nodding in acceptance of this, Dean looked at his husband, who shrugged. "As I said, we need some time to think this over."

I smiled at him warmly this time. "Take your time. Believe me, I understand. I took about month to fully wrap my head around this situation."

Seamus laughed softly. "Probably didn't believe it was possible!"

"Nope!" I confirmed with a tiny laugh.

So that was more or less the end of dinner. Dean and Seamus took off to think things over, and you and I snuggled up and tried our best not to panic over the possibility that they'd want to simply TAKE Baby C from us. And yes, now that I've accepted things, that possibility does scare me a bit.

Which just leaves me with today.

It's the beginning of the eighth week of my combat class, and even though I didn't do any sort of midterm exam last time until the 12th or 13th week, I decided to do it now because my returning students actually seem to be doing VERY well this time around, and my new students - having basically one on one attention from the old students - ALSO seem to be doing very well.

But obviously, I couldn't spar with them all myself, so I invited my friend Ginger in for the day to doing the sparring for me. She kicked all their arses, but as she did so, I was able to read their minds a bit and see them putting their lessons together and strategizing and basically USING the skills they're learning. Thus, they mostly passed their exam.

Everyone except burly. Strangely enough, he got extremely cocky as classes have progressed, assuming that he was already so good at almost everything that he was my star student. In point of fact, he is not. He WAS decently competent to begin with, and so, he HAS managed most of the lessons well enough, BUT he's not really improving.

So, when I got in front of all my students - after Ginger had wiped the floor with them - to tell them that everyone had passed their midterms except for burly, he got so enraged that he roared obscenities at me and came at me like he was determined to bowl me over.

Well, I had absolutely NO fear of him because I could read his plans in his mind like they were the Dark Mark emblazoned across the night sky. I shifted to a defensive stance and prepared to refrain from murdering him as I handed him his arse.

Only I didn't have a chance. Timid mouse astonished the bloody hell out of me by jumping in front of me and grabbing burly during his charge and THROWING HIM OVER HIS SHOULDER!!! He then stood over burly and kicked him in the bladder before punching him in the nose.

"What kind of bastard tries to attack a pregnant person?!?" Timid mouse demanded in a furious roar.

I stood there blinking at him - utterly impressed. "Well... It seems that you have just earned your with honors status. Congratulations, you've just passed the class with everything you need to go on raids."

It was now Tim's turn to stand there looking nearly overcome with shock. "I... I have...?"

I got in his face and patted him on the back. "Here's the thing, this class is to teach you to survive and defend yourself from violent criminal attackers. I expect you to do so in a way that also incapacitates them because I know that doing so during a raid helps move things along more quickly, but so far, you have focused on defending yourself and put very little effort into the part where you incapacitate the enemy. Now that you've proven you can do that, I am confident enough in your ability to defend yourself that I would very much bring you on a raid with me - once you become an actual Auror."

"Whoa! High praise there!" Ginger purred cattily as she also patted Tim on the back. He looked ready to faint.

I looked over to find that Muffy had cast a tempus charm and it was the end of class. With a smile, I tossed Tim enough money to pay for the first round of drinks, and then dismissed the class so they could go have fun. As they all filed out, I stood over burly, my fists sternly on my hips.

"You haven't failed the CLASS, you've only failed a single test. It just means that you have to show up and work harder, and make no mistake, I'm going to be riding your arse worse than ever.

Maybe because we were alone, or maybe he's just a person who freely shows his emotions, but he sat up, sniffed and wiped a few tears from his eyes, and then bemoaned: "This class is frustrating! It's the only time in my life that I've ever felt like nothing I do is good enough! I'm clearly better than others, but yet I'M the only one that has failed!"

I squatted so that I could look him in the eyes. "Did I EVER say that I was comparing you to the "OTHERS in this class?"

"Erm... no?"

"No, I did not, because I don't care who's better than who, so long as you can defend yourself and take down criminals. Be the cockiest bastard in the world if you want, so long as you can back your words up with action. So far, I DO see potential in you, but you seem to think that you already know what you're doing and don't need to put any real effort in. Senior Auror Ginger JUST wiped the floor with you, and if that had been real life field conditions, you would have died. Prove to me that you won't die out in the field and I'll pass you, but until then, I'm just not seeing it."

He sighed and nodded, seeming like he might actually be thinking my words over. I then snapped my fingers twice and had Muffy Apparate me home before he burst out with any MORE emotional nonsense.

Unfortunately, that means that now I have nothing better to do than sit in bed and watch movies. I miss you and can't wait for that big party date we have to go dancing! I think I'll keep myself occupied while I wait by taking Zaire and Jaz out to the stables and making sure the horses, thestrals, and unicorns aren't lonely.

I must admit, it's rather interesting having the bigs in Hogwarts, the littles with you, and only the two middles with me. I suppose that this is probably actually good for all our kids because some of them get more time with you and some of them more time with me. I'll have to have you send the littles back to me a couple of times so that I can have quality time with them too, but even if I do, they'll probably want to spend most of it in the stables anyway, hahaha!

Every breath I take,
Draco
Chapter 83

Chapter Summary

Harry is panicking, worrying, and thinking about baby names, and Draco's having fun despite being grumpy about his size.

Friday October 28, 2016

My Rock,

Holy shite! In a few hours our daughter will officially be a professional actress. I mean, I know once she was hired she was considered a professional actress. And I know that she didn't have to be a professional for me to realize her talent. She's an actress, always has been and always will be. But Merlin Draco, she's having her stage debut on a London's West End stage.

It's really weird, before something big I have to do I am generally in a massive panic attack. Don't get me wrong, I am definitely having a massive panic attack right now, but generally I am freaking out that people will realize I'm a fraud. A little boy pretending to be a man. Someone who peaked at seventeen and has been hiding behind others more talented than him for the last eighteen years.

That is most certainly not what I am doing right now. I am panicking but I have no idea why. Because there is no doubt in my mind that Shtara is going to knock this performance out of the park. She lives and breathes for this. She has an insane amount of natural talent and then she works her arse off on top of that. She's a star, it's just taken the world this long to recognize her star power. I think I'm just having a hard time wrapping my mind around the fact that in a few short hours, my little girl's dreams are going to be coming true.

We have a few hours before we need to leave, I actually have two hours before I even NEED to get ready, so I decided to message you instead of sitting around working myself up to Hysterical Harry levels.

I may be able to wait an hour or two before I begin getting ready, but you started about ten minutes ago. This many years later and I still think it's hilarious that the most handsome man on the entire planet thinks he needs hours to get ready. You could show up in a potato sack, with your hair undone, and not having bathed in two days and you'd still be the most attractive person there.

I thought about taking a nap, it's been an exhausting few weeks for me. Even the nights when I technically had plenty of time to sleep before having to start all over again the next morning, I had a hard time sleeping without you. I miss you. I miss how you smell. I miss the feel of your arms around me. I know you have all your classes and can't join me all week next week, and I know you want to help the littles celebrate Halloween anyway. But do you think after your classes on Wednesday, or Thursday morning after you've gotten a good night's sleep, would you like to join me for the last few days of my tour?

You already said you'd join me for the big closing party, but we could do those last few interviews and signings together. You know the interviewers love your spontaneous serenades for me and can't get enough of plying us with questions about our marriage and our small army of children.
The insomnia thing I've had going this week has only been partially about missing you. I have to admit I am so worried about what Dean is planning to say in response to our conversation Sunday. I haven't heard a word from him or Seamus. And I tried to very subtly message our mutual friends to see if he'd contacted them. No one has really talked with either of them. Or our friends are really really good liars.

Hopefully he gets back to us soon. I don't know how much longer he's going to have to think about this. I know, I'm being unfair. We had what, seven weeks to come to terms with it before dropping the bomb on them? And he's had less than a week and I'm getting all antsy over not having an answer yet. I am being ridiculous. I at least know you love me unconditionally and won't judge me for being so ridiculous. Right?

Since I was trying to hard to not worry and overthink about the Dean situation, or on you and the babies in general, I tried focusing all my efforts into really paying attention to my fans at the signings. So of course, what I did was really listen when they said their name and then eventually think about if I would like it as a baby name. Because I'm a lunatic.

And then when I was sitting in my hotel room, snoozing kids in a cuddle puddle around me, I went online multiple times looking for baby names.

What? I'm excited alright?!? And I'm sure it's not flying by for you since you're the one pregnant and uncomfortable with what are essentially triplets, but I feel as though I just blinked and you're already seventeen, almost eighteen, weeks along with baby A. Which means we should be able to find out gender soon. Which means we can start seriously talking names!

So I was searching names and came up with a few I'd like to throw onto a list. For girls I was really in a Mythology or Shakespeare frame of mind. I love Morgan or Morgana, Ophelia, Guinevere or Gwendolyn, Selene or Selena, and Calliope. And the boys names I've been falling a bit in love with? They're a bit out there, so I promise I won't be upset if you hate them. I like Pan … but only as a middle name. I also really like Leander, Lennox, and Mercutio. And I've always liked, I think I've suggested them for every pregnancy either of us have had so far, Castor and Pollux.

What do you think? Any there you like? Any names you've been thinking of? Any combinations coming to mind?

You know, I don't NEED to get ready quite yet, but maybe I will come find you in the bathroom and distract you a bit.

Yours,
Harry

Saturday October 29th
My adorable little panicker,

Yesterday was so much fun. I took nearly three full hours to get ready, everything from my hair, nails, and moisturizer to my perfectly tailored clothes. Since the play was showing in muggle London, I wore trousers with a charm to hide my ever growing bump.

Ever growing! I swear, it's already bigger than the Manor! I nearly can't fit in our bed! We may need to have Greg build us a custom 'pregnant with triplets' sized bed!

I know Rowe said that there wasn't a way to charm extra room in there for the babies to grow in, but I think we should try doing so anyway. It CAN'T be healthy for them to have three wombs taking up more space than they do!

Wait wait, I have to stop thinking about this before I start panicking myself. Stroke my komboloi… sigh...

Better.

So, as I was saying, I got ready and was looking rather good, if I do say so myself. I looked a bit like a modern version of Prince Eric. But with blond hair.

Once ready, I found you and realized that you were planning to wear a shirt that clashed horribly with your lovely trousers, and so, that had to go. After vanishing it, I picked out a much better shirt for you to wear - a verdant green to match your eyes. I also had you wear matching emerald earrings and a couple of tiny emerald clips in your hair. It WAS an occasion to dress up for, after all.

For exactly that reason, I was wearing sapphire earrings and clips - as well as necklaces and rings. Of course, I also had an elaborate brocade waistcoat done in shades of both blue and green, and so, we also matched EACH OTHER. All in all, I was pleased.

We got our entire family, plus as many of our circle as could make it, to the theater in plenty of time. We'd bought up the entire top box, but even so, we had to expand it a bit to fit all of us. And by we, I mean you and my mother so that I didn't use any magic that I didn't need to.

The play began about five minutes late, but it was such a powerful opening that I don't think anyone minded the extra wait - aside from you, who had been biting your nails the entire time.

Our little girl wasn't the main character, so she didn't appear for a few minutes, but when she did, she EASILY stole the entire show! Her voice...

Not only did our girl look utterly PERFECT as Ursula the Sea Witch, but her voice as she sang Poor Unfortunate Souls was... like a choir of naughty angels - all smoky and powerful and yet full of youth and innocence. Our girl with her slightly chubby black body and wild black hair really was perfect for this role. There is not a THING that another actress could have done better.

I will not be at ALL surprised if she's approached to star in movies after this. But if she is, I think I'll have to hire a different nanny for her as that may be a bit much for Leah - trying to teach Zaire and continue working with Jaz while traveling the world filming movies with Shtara? Yeah... I might need to put the advert out Monday, come to think of it.

But I don't need to go on and on about how gorgeous and perfect our amazing daughter is because you could probably actually go on more than I can, haha.

So... Dean and Seamus were at the play, and for the most part, they were like any other guest, simply interested in the play. But when I came back from the loo during intermission, I noticed you talking to them. The play started back up just then, so I didn't get a chance to ask you what you were talking about.

Good news? I hope...

After the play was over and the cast had a standing ovation - especially our girl. It seems that we aren't the ONLY ones who feel that she was easily the best talent there (and that's really saying something as they had some apparently big muggle names in the play). Anyway, afterwards, there was a huge party for the cast and their family and friends. A huge party that my mother helped to organize, so you KNOW that it had this wonderful quality to it that NO ONE else can replicate.

The party itself was fun and gave me a chance to dance with you like there was no one else in the world, but the dancing itself led to us both being horny as fuck. To my delight, you Apparated us to our bed fairly early on and we spent the rest of the night simply having each other over and over until we passed out from sheer exhaustion.

But now it's Saturday and I'm unfortunately awake. I feel like I could legitimately sleep another 25 or so hours, but since I am awake, I'll get out of bed, do some yoga, get something to eat, and then find you for some long slow kisses to last me after you leave until I see you again. And then I'll probably spend the rest of the day perfecting costumes with our littles and middles.

True blue baby I love you,

Draco
Sunday October 30, or is it Monday October 31?

My Missing Piece,

I don't even know what day it is. I just left the big party for my book. Not the BIG big party, that one is next week, but A big party. I know it's technically Monday early morning here, but with the time change I'm not sure if it's still Sunday there. And I'm much too exhausted to try and figure that out!

I can't believe that I found out Dean and Seamus' answer about the baby on Friday night and your behavior was so unpredictable before I left earlier today/yesterday that I didn't actually get a chance to tell you what they said.

You did come find me Saturday, kissed me thoroughly and then in front of the little ones went all vampire on me! I had some serious Deja vu to when you were pregnant with Lily and Caelum. We probably should have thought of this as soon as we found out you were carrying three, but I think it's important that we have Sebastian brew up that blood magic potion for you again. Don't worry, you don't have to remember to ask him. I asked him and gave him enough of my blood to hopefully keep you for a few months.

I'm hoping he's been able to shorten the brewing process since last time. Especially since I'm not home for you to take directly from the tap.

I'm pretty sure Seph, Lissa, Cael, and Trey thought you were trying to murder me - once they realized you weren't just kissing my neck. That (the kissing) wouldn't have surprised them. Seph, Lissa, and Cael have spent their entire lives seeing our affection for each other and never would have been surprised, but even Trey has become immune to our normal smoochy behavior.

They were not immune to the blood drinking. Once you heard them all start howling and freaking out, you tried to assure them you weren't hurting me, but your very red mouth didn't seem to be something they were willing to focus on. Luckily ME assuring them I wasn't being hurt did the trick. They all looked at me like I was a lunatic and then eventually shrugged and went about their business. I am CERTAIN I heard Cael say "Dads are weird!" as they walked away.

He's not wrong, we are pretty weird.

You may be weird, but you are breathtaking. I know, you feel as though you're as large as the Manor. But you are so wrong. You are glowing my love. Your hair has that pregnancy thickness. Your skin has that additional pink tone to it that makes you practically exude health and vitality. And your gorgeous bump just reminds me what you're willing to go through for your family.

I do feel so badly for you though, I'm sure you're already so uncomfortable and it's only the halfway point for baby A. Your bump is already about the size it was when you were full term with Eris! Or as full term as you managed to get with Eris I should say. Remember, if this becomes too much for you, Rowe said she could do the womb transfer without a medical need as early as twenty-eight weeks if we want to. That puts you at just another two months and we can move the largest baby if we need to.

So my conversation with Dean and Seamus as Shtara's play …

Oh goodness her play! I knew she'd be a success, but I was initially a bit worried when they cast a child for the role of the supposedly adult sea witch. I found out it was an all-child cast and THEN I was worried it wouldn't be as good as it could be if they were casting young unseasoned children.

I could not have been more wrong. About two minutes into the performance and I forgot they were children. They were mermaids and fish and all kinds of sea creatures. They all did so well! Obviously Shtara was the best by far, but her castmates were pretty darn entertaining.

Shite! Dean! I'm not intentionally trying to avoid the conversation. And honestly? It was pretty much the best case scenario we could have hoped for!

Dean and Seamus are our friends. They are our age. They've seen us in all stages of pregnancies throughout the years. They've been to many a Unity House Gala. They've been to a number of Unity Movie nights. They have access to the same fertility potions we do, almost the same ease of adoptions, and they've been together nearly as long as we have. And yet they remain childless. Why? Because they don't want to be parents. They've never been interested in being parents.

But not planning for it isn't the same as it never happening. Dean needed that time to think because while he never would have chosen this, it's something that's happening regardless of his feelings.

After rolling it around in his mind, nonstop talking over his feelings with Seamus - and Seamus rolling it around in his mind - they agree that they still have no desire to be parents. He said he'd feel differently if this had happened in some way that the other parent wasn't prepared to be a single parent, or if the child were put up for adoption without knowing they would go to a good, safe home. He didn't want to abandon a child to an unknown entity. That's just not the case with us. They both know that this child will have a huge loving family and two fathers who will love and adore them.

However, they do have some preferences and want to know what we think.

He essentially wants what they call in the muggle world, an open adoption. He will sign over all rights. He will not be the baby's father. But he would like to be able to see the kid, get updates, and be a person who's in their life. Preferably as fun Uncle Dean … and Uncle Seamus.

His only other request was that the child not be lied to. His exact words were, "I know you and Draco have always been honest with your children about their arrivals into the world. I'd like this child to be afforded the same honesty. If and when they ask about it, I'd like you to send them to me if they need to know my side."

So what do you think? I know it's a lot to take in.

Anxiously awaiting your thoughts,
Harry

Monday October 31
My much missed husband,

The littles all went to Unity House before I even woke up, so don't worry about them, they are having a kid appropriate Halloween blast.

The only kid that stayed behind in the Manor is Zaire because we had a class together today, and as usual, it went very well. Honestly, that kid is such a natural that I don't even know what I'm doing there - aside from dancing with my son and having a lot of fun. But even he went straight from class to Unity House, so I can only assume that they had some exciting things planned for today.
But the thing I wanted to talk about the most is how relieved I am about Dean and Seamus' reply. I really was worried about how they would respond. If they wanted to keep the kid, I might have been okay with that - for the same reasons, at least I know the child would be loved and spoiled as an only child. But if they'd wanted shared custody?

Yeah, I'm not really good at sharing. I'm sure you think I am because I positively LOVE to share you, but that's completely different. The only way I see shared custody working is if it's 80 percent us legally and physically having custody and control over all decisions, and 20 percent them having visitation whenever they want.

But honestly, this is even better. The kid is undisputedly OURS and they only want a chance to hang out with him or her on occasion. I like it! And of course we'd be open about it, it's really no different than when Olivia shows up once a year and wants to see and chat with Viona. I think the most that has happened is that they had lunch once about a year and a half ago.

I can't be certain, but I think Viona told her that she was happy and didn't need Olivia to come check up on her because she didn't show up this previous summer. HOWEVER, we WERE in California, so there's a chance she did and we just weren't here to notice.

I wonder if Viona wants us to invite Olivia to her wedding? She probably does but it's best to ask.

Anyway, I wanted to talk a little about my combat class today. It was hilarious, but before I explain why, I have to go back to the blood potion that Sebastian is brewing for me. NO, he can't speed it up any. Thus, he came up with a BRILLIANT idea.

It seems you gave him about 2 cups of blood, and since the potion only needs one cup, he only really needed the second cup in case something happened to the first. But THEN he wondered if it would work the way I need it to if he simply used a duplication charm on the blood. As it turns out, it DOES work!

Which means that I have that cup of blood in a mug that has been charmed to duplicate (and preserve of course) your blood so that the mug is always full. In essence, acting like a never ending cup of milk - only that works by having a charm on the container the bulk of the milk is being stored in so that it continually refills my cup as I'm drinking it.

In any case, as I was saying, I now have a mug of your blood that I can drink whenever I need a hit of your magic. WELL, even though I am not craving it like I was when I had PICA, I still like the taste of blood and decided to try sipping on the mug to see if taking small hits of your magic throughout the day will ward off the need to take BIG hits of your magic as I get a bit low.

So far, it seems to be working!

And now back to the hilarious thing. So, apparently when I drink from the never ending cup of milk, I am fastidious enough that there's no milk mustache. Plus, my students think I'm drinking coffee as the cup says, and so, if they DID see a hint of a milk mustache, they would probably assume that it's cream in the coffee.

With blood, however, it doesn't just leave a potential mustache. It sort of stains the entire mouth, highlighting one's teeth and clinging to the lips. Even mostly innocent like this is, drinking blood does make the mouth look rather gruesome. So, without me even giving any thought to how it might look, I sipped on the mug at random during class, and as time progressed, my students started staring at me with big eyes - looking wary and apprehensive.

I finally decided to demand: "WHAT???
Friendly smiled at me and chuckled a bit. "Nothing much, you just look like a vampire at the moment. It's kind of making us nervous, to be honest."

"Ah," I stated in understanding. "Actually, while I am NOT a vampire who needs to drink blood to survive and quench my thirst, I AM a pregnant wizard who happens to crave blood for a few different reasons, and so, I have a mug of my husband's blood to drink," I explained before taking a nice big sip and letting the blood stain my lips a bit more overtly before licking it clean - which made a slightly bigger mess until my mouth was clear enough to ACTUALLY lick it clean.

One of my 'manlier' students heaved twice and then sicked up all over the thin mat under his feet. A couple others slapped hands over their mouths and heaved as well, but nothing came up. Only girly looked like blood was no big deal. She basically ignored me and focused on the practice dummy.

I took another small sip and sighed happily as the two sips provided a noticeable hit of magic for me to enjoy. Still the best drug ever!

Then I decided to motivate my students to try even harder. "Back to sparring! And be warned, if I run out of my husband's blood, I think I'll take a donation from whichever of you is doing the worst job of defending himself! And NO, that wasn't sexist, that was me subtly saying that girly is doing a good enough job at the moment that it definitely won't be her!

She harrumphed with a proud smirk and continued her assault on the dummy. Her partner took the opportunity to try to attack her, but Viona really must have worked some magic on her, because she's been kicking arse ever since. I smirked at her and moved on to the pair of students I felt were doing the poorest job at the moment. The way I watched them sent shivers up their spines, making me grin eerily.

I have so much fun in these classes.

I've got chills, they're multiplying, and I'm losing control, of the power you're supplying, it's electrifying!
Draco
Chapter 85

Chapter Summary

Harry pisses Draco off and has to apologize.

Chapter Notes

Bonus points if you can figure out what exactly pissed Draco off ^_^

Friday November 4, 2016

My Vampiric Lunatic,

You know, I was angry for you when your student accused you of sexual harassment. You are flirty and ridiculous, but only ever with people who are one hundred percent willing and able to consent. With the exception of doing things with me while I sleep, but that has been explicitly consented to prior to it ever taking place, so that doesn't count. In all our years together there have been many people who think we are over the top with our PDA. And, to be fair, they're not wrong. But sexual harassment is a completely baseless accusation.

I do think your class has grounds for regular old harassment though! You made multiple students sick up! You almost made me sick up thinking about it! When you didn't realize what you were doing I can give you a pass. But once you realized what you were doing, you went all lip-licking serial killing weirdo in front of them. Not cool my Love, not cool.

Ugh, my stomach is literally churning right now.

You're a monster.

But I suppose you're MY monster.

I'm also quite relieved at how Dean wants to deal with the baby situation. I didn't want to give you my take on his response until you had time to process it yourself. I didn't want you to feel like you had to be relieved or like the limitations he set down. I wanted your completely honest reaction. Most of my crying that evening was due to our ridiculously talented daughter, but a small portion of those tears were Dean and Seamus shaped relief.

I didn't realize Olivia hadn't had her annual meet up with Viona this summer. It could very easily have been because we were across the pond, it could have been Viona suggesting she didn't need the visits, or it could have been Olivia withdrawing again - going MIA for a couple of years.

I think we should definitely see if Vivi wants Olivia at the wedding. I could see it going either way, I suppose we won't know until we ask her.

I just finished up my last interview for the day. Over the years, most of my interviewers ask at some point about our ever-growing massive family. Today was no exception. However, this was the first one that had gotten the information that we are expecting three more. I have no idea how they got that information, but it's not like we've hidden it, so I couldn't be offended. They were careful to be polite and not judgmental, which doesn't always happen.

There have been times over the years where we've been compared to those "six million kids and then some" horrible reality shows. Like our huge family is some scam for ratings. As though the amount of children we have is inherently indicative of children who are neglected emotionally. As though we leave the parenting of our younger children to the older (usually girl) children. You and I, and everyone who really matters to us, knows that isn't the case, but it hurts to hear someone compare us to some of these families desperate for the limelight or to push their own agenda.

Sorry, I digress. They were very respectful but thought it would be fun to give me a "test" of how well I know my children. I don't know who prepared the questions, maybe you had a hand in it! Or more likely Pippa was able to put it together. But I had a minute to answer rapid-fire questions like "What is Caelum's favorite animal?" (his horse), "What instrument does Elena play?" (all of them!), and "What is Zwei's actual name?" (uhhhhh … just kidding! I know my son's name! It's Drake).

It was actually a really fun way to end the day. And I kicked arse if I do say so myself!

I have one more morning talk show tomorrow and then it's time to get ready for the Gala. Are you excited? I was already excited, I can't wait to see you full stop. But I really can't wait to spend the night in your arms.

But.

I found out something about the Gala that I didn't know and now I am anxiously awaiting tomorrow like a kid on Christmas Eve. They have rented out a huge chunk of King’s Cross! According to the Muggles, there will even be a "replica of the actual Hogwarts Express." Which means my agent asked Minnie if we could rent it for the evening and she agreed immediately. The only thing she asked for in return was an invitation.

I plan on dancing with you most of the night, but I need you to know that I will be getting in a dance with my Head of House at some point!

I should get some rest, tomorrow is another big day. I can't wait to see your beautiful face my Love!

You're already the voice inside my head,
Harry

Friday November 4th

-_-

Friday November 4th
My love,

I'm very very sorry.
Love,
Harry

Friday November 4th
Dearest Harry,

I have forgotten everything; why I was mad; what I was planning to write in my email; my name - everything!

You are forgiven,
That bloke you're married to

Saturday November 5, 2016

Thank you my heart,

I’m off to my last interview. I’ll see you tonight!

Oh! My stylist has an outfit picked out for me, but do you want to have Pippa show it to you and okay it? I’m not sure what you’re wearing and I love it when you dress me up.

In anticipation,
Your Harry

Saturday November 5th

My everything,

A while back, you had asked (practically begged) me to come to you the last few days of your tour, and I had honestly intended to do exactly that, but Wednesday after my class, I was a bit tired and decided to stay in bed most of Thursday and Friday. TODAY...

You had a morning interview for a telly program. It was early morning - even for those of us NOT accustomed to sleeping in until nearly noon. Thus, I'm dead certain you NEVER expected...
"We have a special treat today, ladies and gentlemen. See, Harry's husband - Draco Malfoy - has had to remain home this book tour due to health issues. But considering that this is the LAST interview Harry will be performing for this tour, we wondered if we could contact his husband and get him to record a little something for us to play for Harry during this interview. To our delight, Draco agreed!"

And after that little introduction, music started playing. You looked around (I imagine) hoping to find me, but all you saw was a large telly screen showing a band playing. As you were watching the screen, almost certainly thinking that I had prerecorded this for you last night or something, you DIDN’T notice a part of the stage rotating in a half circle so that something that was hidden became revealed.

Suddenly my voice rang out, and I could see tears streaming down your cheeks as you stared at the screen.

Ooohhhhh, my love, my darling
I’ve hungered for your touch
A long, lonely time......
And Time goes by so slowly
And time can do so much
Are you still mine?

I need your love......
I need your love
God speed your love to me

Lonely rivers flow
To the sea, to the sea
To the open arms of the sea, yeah Lonely rivers sigh
"Wait for me, wait for me
I'll be coming home, wait for me~~~"

Oooohhhhh, my love, my darling
I've hungered, HUNGERED for your touch
A long, lonely time.....
And Time goes by so slowly
And time can do so much
Are you still mine?

I need your love
I need your love
God speed your love to me

By the time I finished the song, I'd walked all the way over to you, smiled at you bawling your eyes out, and pulled you in my arms. When I was done singing, you threw your arms around me and held me tight while we kissed as if our lives depended on it.

I'm fairly confident that the telly program is THRILLED with their ratings for that segment.
I need your love,
Draco
Sunday November 6, 2016

My Sneaky Love,

That was the best surprise ever yesterday morning. I was thrilled when I thought you had recorded yourself singing, what a sweet thing to do for me. But then you walked out and I melted! I know I asked you to come for the last few stops, but I was truly pleased that you listened to your body and stayed home to rest.

Seriously.

Coming out that morning, getting up earlier than you would on any other day, just to see me a few hours early and finish up my tour with me? I’m not sure how I keep falling in love with you. Every time I think I love you to the limits of my soul, you go and do something that reminds me my love for you has infinite space to fill. And that song? You know exactly what that song does to me, you deviant! We may have upped the program's ratings with the surprise and the kiss, but we also got dangerously close to getting them fined for indecency!

I wanted to lay you out on that stage and let millions of viewers see exactly how perfect I find every inch of you. To see me worship your skin. See me spread myself out and beg for you to claim me.

Wait, what was I talking about?

Once the program was over we made our excuses, we just had so much to do to get ready for the party that night. Yeah, in reality I had to have you that very moment, public indecency laws be damned! So I found a cupboard and popped us back to my hotel room where I could do all those things I wished to earlier.

Between the gorgeous singing, the enthusiastic snogging, and the flirtatious smirk you gave me when I gave excuses for why we had to leave immediately, I assumed you were going to jump me the moment we got into my room. That was not the case. You slowly walked around the room critiquing it with your posh voice while you very slowly unbuttoned your brocade vest. My one attempt at helping you undress was met with a mild slap to my hands and a "tsk tsk tsk so impatient." So I stood there, wringing my hands, waiting for instruction.

Eventually you were down to a halfway unbuttoned dress shirt with your black trousers unbuttoned, then sat down on the cozy chair set towards the end of my bed, crossed your legs up on the ottoman and instructed me to "strip!"

I ferociously started ripping my clothes off when I got a strict, "Oi, Mutt, slower than that, I've missed you and I'd quite like a show."

Oh.
I could do that. I took a deep breath and went back to undressing myself but much slower. Revealing all of your sub inch by inch. Standing there finally, completely starkers, awaiting instruction.

"There's a good boy, up on the bed now. Kneel facing me, spread those legs let me see my property, hands behind your head Luv." I did as you said, staring into those silver eyes I love so much. "So hard for me already, are you desperate Mutt?"

I nodded quickly. "Yes Master, I need you so badly, please!"

You let out a deep wistful sigh. "I'm just so tired; too tired to get you ready I think. It's too bad, I'd really love to bury my dick deep inside of you. But alas, I have no energy, what to do what to do?"

Oh Gods you were going to torture me. Or make me torture myself I suppose. "I can get myself ready for you Master."

"Oh isn't that so sweet. Alright then, turn over and spread yourself open for me. If I'm too tired to touch, I at least want a lovely view." I turned around and got on all fours at your command, spreading my legs wide for you. But it apparently wasn't enough. "What part of spread yourself open did you not understand? It seems like you must not really want this."

Nonononononono …

I should really stop being surprised that you can still make me blush. With all of the things we've done over the years, you would think I would be immune to the humiliating sexiness in following your orders, but no, once I realized what you meant I flushed to my ears. Dropping my shoulders to the bed, I reached back and spread my arse wide for you, letting you see my hole clenching in anticipation of you.

You chuckled. Fuck my life, that chuckle is going to kill me one day! "Such a pretty boy. Is that all for me? It's practically winking at me."

"Yes Master, it's for you! It's all for you, always."

"Well then, get it ready for me. We don't have all night you know."

I quickly cast a lubrication spell on my fingers and went to stretch myself out. Sliding two fingers in me, hissing a bit at the stretch.

"Tsk Tsk Tsk." Again? What was I doing wrong this time? "Slowly, we don't have all night but we do have plenty of daylight left. One at a time, I'll let you know when you can add more. Desperate little thing you are."

Yes, so desperate. But I listened, removing one of the two fingers I'd already buried in my arse. I fingered myself for a few minutes, whimpering at the tease, until you told me I could add a second. A third finger eventually allowed. A fourth commanded. I was afraid I was going to shoot without even having been touched by you. I was practically crying at this point.

Finally! "That should have you nice and ready for me, huh sweet boy? Why don't you come climb up on my lap like a good boy?"

Oh thank every deity! Not that I could think of any as my brain had turned to mush. While I had been fingering myself, you had gotten your shirt completely off and undone your trousers, but left them on. Your beautiful bump on display. I love that while you might be self conscious of your bump, you share it with me because you know how beautiful I find you that way.
Which of course made me even harder looking at you reclining back, waiting for me to straddle you. I climbed into your lap, pressing our hard shafts together, but again you stopped me. "You did much too good of a job getting ready for me, I won't waste all that hard work, hop on."

Fuck yeah.

I lined you up, sank down onto you, and rode you until we were both panting and sweaty and sated.

While you were still buried inside of me, coming down from our high, you seemingly changed mindsets. "Time to get ready for the party, I should say."

Oh, I thought we'd snuggle and enjoy the afterglow, but I should know my husband well enough that he'll want to get ready early for such a big and public event.

You smirked evilly at me, reaching behind yourself for something you'd hidden. "Lift off Mutt, I'll help you get ready." As soon as you were out of my arse, I felt the blunt head of my favorite plug up against me. "You're too needy, I have to keep you all filled up so you don't maul me in public. This should keep you calm, yeah?"

No, of course it wasn't going to keep me calm! You were going to spend all night torturing me! And you did, after we showered together - where you had me get you off again with my mouth - you continued dressing me up. Oh boy was I going to regret asking you to get me ready. You put a ring around my cock, linking it to my plug so the middle attachment sat right up against the outside of my prostate. Then dressed me up in the most sinfully soft lingerie under the suit you'd picked out for me to wear.

I honestly have no memories of last night's party. I'm sure we danced. I don't think I left your side all night. But all I could focus on was the pressure in my bum from the plug, the pressure against my prostate, the ring on my cock, and the satin sliding all over my body. Oh, I DO remember that you groped me constantly.

I have no idea how I got so lucky, what I did to deserve you, but I'd do it all over again for a single evening like you gave me last night.

Lovingly Yours,
Harry

Sunday November 6th

Mon Amour,

Spending all of yesterday with you in my arms was sheer perfection. I found it amusing how fans reacted to the sight of the 'replica' of the Hogwarts express. I was blown away by how many muggles asked if Unity House is real - having heard about it in several interviews over the years - and wanted to donate. Since you were captive to my torture, you probably don't realize how much money Unity House made yesterday.

So far, today has been a rather lazy Sunday. You're off playing with the kids and the horses. I'm laying in bed petting Amala. She's being rather lazy and affectionate herself. She's sprawled all over our bed insisting that I rub her tummy. I wasn't quite certain before, but now I'm absolutely sure. She's pregnant.

I did some research about Cheetah pregnancy, and it lasts 90 days, and since she had to have gotten pregnant during that trip to Africa, she's due at some point around the 23rd of November. I'm so excited Harry! I'm going to have grandbaby Cheetahs!

I wonder if I should pick out names for them...

Speaking of names, you made quite a few lovely suggestions. I like them all but don't really want to think about or settle on any until we know all the genders. But that said, what do you think about Fuego for a boy?

You were going Shakespearean, but what about Mythological? Mabon? Taliesan? Cernnunos?

OH! I know!!! If baby C happens to be a boy, we can combine Dean and Seamus' names to make a new one just for him! Deamus Sheen! I love it!

As for my grandbaby cheetahs, they can all have silly names like Kitty, Witty, and Pretty, hahahahahaha!

Oh, but speaking of things happening at the end of November, Orion is super excited about his first match as Quidditch Captain. It's the Ravenclaw/Hufflepuff match. A win for him would set an excellent precedence for his term as Captain. As much as I always want Slytherin to win, I really am rooting for him (Slytherin's not even playing!) and hope that his team wins the match. It's traditionally the last weekend in November, so that puts it on November 26th - I really hope Amala has her babies before that and NOT DURING the match!!!

We are planning to attend the match, right?

Unless Amala's in labor. I can't imagine the horror of her having to go through that alone.

Oh, speaking of labor, Elena has decided - now that Ethan is showing some sense when it comes to her choices - that he CAN be in the room with her. Strangely enough, she got fed up enough with Ethan at her shower that even though my talk helped calm him down and back off, she went to his wife to complain about him the next day, and the two women have bonded over how neurotic he can be when he worries. So they're now practically best mates and SHE'S going to be in the room with Elena during labor as well.

MERLIN DAMNIT!! Elena better not pop early and go into labor on November 26th OR whenever Amala does!!! I can only worry about one labor at a time damnit! I don't think my heart could take worrying about two!

But as I was saying about Amala, she's insisting that I pet her tummy, and as I am, I not only feel a LOT of movement squirming around inside her, but I put my ear on her hard belly, and I can hear things swimming around in there. It's weird actually.

I love petting her. And then singing to her. She just seems to melt into my touch. Don't be jealous if you walk in and hear me singing: 'You are my Sunshine' to her. I'm not doing it because she literally is - that's you and always you - but because it's like a lullaby. Besides, I'm changing the words so that I'm actually singing: 'You are my cheetah, my only cheetah (for now).'

Oh, here comes Atreyu. He must be hungry for pancakes again because he's sniffing me all over while licking his lips. Ierm… I wonder if I have to worry about what might happen if he bites me when NOT transformed. I mean, it's not supposed to be contagious then, but... how many pregnant people have been bitten by non-transformed werewolves?

Ierm… I'm doing my best not to alarm Atreyu, but I'm going to have to have Muffy Apparate him to the kitchen to get a bite to eat before he remembers that Papa bit Daddy's neck and drank some blood out of love and affection, and thinks that it would be okay for him to do so too.

Gotta go!
Draco
Chapter 87

Chapter Summary

Harry responds to Draco's name suggestions, which makes Draco think of more.

Monday November 7, 2016

My Home,

I cannot begin to explain to you how happy I am to be done with this book tour. With all book tours actually, unless I write another book in the future. I am glad to have done it, I'm glad I got my story out there, I enjoyed most of my experiences meeting fans and doing interviews and signings.
I'm just ready for it to be over so I can live my life without the constant weight of "Have you finished the next one? Have you finished the edits? Have you selected the cover art? What's the next title? Who's this one dedicated to?" Just knowing that the next time we travel it WILL be for pleasure!

I enjoyed most of our time in California, but it was a trip for medical necessity. And obviously we didn't know it at the time, but it was a trip to find our son! This recent traveling was for the book. I just want to throw a dart at a random place on the globe and just jet off to discover somewhere new. Shop at some little market, hike through environments I've never seen, and not worry for one single moment that I'm keeping up with some pre-set agenda.

Don't worry, I am completely aware that it will probably be a year or more before we can make that happen. I don't want to travel without you and you're a bit busy growing three people at the moment!

One of those humans is now nineteen weeks along, which means next week we have your checkup with Rowe and we should be able to find out what version we're getting! I am so excited! We can start seriously discussing names. Not that I didn't just LOVE all of your suggestions. I just … uh … they were all so lovely but I don't want to accidentally pick a name that one of our daughters has picked out for their baby.

I think Fuego would be a lovely name for one of the baby cheetahs.

No. I have to be honest. I do not particularly like any of the names you've chosen. I am hoping you were being silly with Fuego, but in case you were serious I have to say a solid "no thank you."

I do kind of like the idea of giving baby C a middle name for Dean and Seamus. Not a first name, but after I said it a couple of times, Sheen is really growing on me as a middle name. And if baby is a girl, Sheena.

Of course we will be attending the quidditch match! As long as the kids want us there I am always up for a match. I usually wait until they ask me to go, I never want to be the parent that tries to relive my youth vicariously through my children, so I only go if I know they want me to go.
Luckily, Orion has mentioned that he "can't wait to show you my new moves Dad" last time we talked so I know I'm welcomed and wanted.
Things will change if Lainie goes into labor, and I know Ori will understand if that happens. For me, nothing will change if Amala goes into labor besides not having you standing next to me shouting yourself hoarse.

Oh my ridiculous man … Atreyu is not going to pass his lycanthropy to you or the babes. I promise. I've consulted with Rowe and I even spoke with my liaison to the werewolf community, Laila Marley, to ask about his ability to pass on his condition through bite. Having other children in our home, I needed to know the risks of infection to them.
1-He can only pass on lycanthropy while he's transformed. He only transforms on the full moon. So far he's always been sleeping through the moon with your potion.
2-The few cases that a were has been able to transform outside of the full moon and then bitten someone - or just straight up bit someone without being transformed (Greyback for example) - the victims never became full weres. They usually ended up like Bill with a scar and a penchant for rare meat. Also, Fleur has mentioned that Bill gets a bit … amorous … during the full.
3-Yes, he snuffles at you and it seems as though he's smelling you. But what he's actually doing is making sure you smell like him and like pack. The sweeter scent you're giving off during your pregnancy might remind him he wants pancakes, but he pretty much always wants pancakes! He's scenting you like a wolf would, he's not smelling you all over, he's making sure you're covered in his scent. It's to let others know you belong to him. He's claiming you, not checking to see if you're edible yet.

I promise, you and the little nuggets are fine!

Well, I am off to go play with my horses!

I mean, take care of my charges in a completely mature and responsible manner.

Love,
Harry

Monday November 21st
My darling husband,

You know, last week when we went to my Healer appointment, I really gave serious thought to NOT finding out what baby A is until we could find out the others too. It seemed like a bad idea to only know one. But then you gave me this hopeful pout and I knew that you NEEDED to know, so I agreed and let Rowe tell us...

Baby A is a girl. Well, that narrows down the name options, dunnit? I'm thinking things like Artemesia, Apple, Aaliyah, Aa, Asia, Athena, Antigone, Ardor...

What am I missing???

Oh! Xena!

What do you think?

Anyway, today marks the day when I start teaching my combat class the 8 pain spots. The returning students already know them, and so the new ones have probably heard of them at the very least, but it'll now be time to USE them, heh heh heh…

I'm quite looking forward to it. Off to terrorize my class! ^_^
Love you forever,
Draco
Wednesday November 23, 2016

My Dragon,

Zwei is going to be so mad! The first one we find out about and the girls are still in the lead!

I can understand why you wanted to wait until we find out all three so I really appreciate you being understanding and finding out A as soon as we could. At least we haven't told anyone outside of us and Rowe, so we can at least tell OTHER people all at once!

You know, everyone seems very curious to find out. The kids all have preferences. Your mother has this twinkle in her eye like she KNOWS something. I think we should cash in on this. What say you we make a betting pool of sorts? Certain points for guessing the right mix of genders, the big winner will be whoever can guess which baby is which. If you're going to be anxious and uncomfortable, we may as well make some galleons off it, yeah?

Just think, we already found out about A last week, and we'll find out about B in roughly two more weeks, then C two weeks after that. Within a month we will know all three! I can't wait!

And you know I have been equally excited with each pregnancy's reveal. Hell, I wanted to throw a party to celebrate finding out Hazel's true gender when she was four! But I am just so excited about another little princess! Maybe she'll have Lily's beautiful blonde hair, or Orion's gorgeous silver eyes, maybe River's pointy Malfoy chin and nose! Eeeek! I can't believe I have to wait fifteen more weeks to meet her! I am already so in love with her. With all of them really.

This is getting very real very quickly!

This time I do actually like your name suggestions. Particularly Athena and Xena. But uh, since I was playing around with names a few weeks ago, I really got one stuck in my head. And obviously this is something we have to decide together. So, no pressure I promise. But I er … I really feel like I already know her name. Like I've known she was going to be a girl since the day I started looking at names, intending on picking out boy names and just getting lost down the girls' names' rabbit hole. And yeah, I gave you a list of names I liked, but I mostly was hoping you would grab the two names from the list and realize it's HER name!

Really, no pressure, even if you hate that name you can tell me and I will only be a tiny bit crushed.

Morgana Guinevere Malfoy

What better name to befit the newest little Malfoy Royalty than the Queen of Magic herself?

Anyway, I have to sign off before I chicken out in telling you what I think her name is because I'm afraid you will hate it and think I'm stupid or be afraid of hurting my feelings and then we end up with a baby whose name you hate.

I'm off to drown myself in popcorn and Brave's Merida! Don't torture your class too much my love.

Yours,
Harry
Wednesday November 23rd
My fire,

You are brilliant! OF COURSE we should start a pool!

You are also brilliant when it comes to names. I'll admit that because we didn't know genders before, I wasn't really interested in names, but now that we KNOW we're having at least one daughter, seeing Morgana Guinevere Malfoy written out like that is sheer perfection. I love it and will accept nothing less for Baby A.

Today has been all around lovely for me. I was having a good time in class and was in an excellent mood. It's day two of the 8 pain centers, and as before, I'm demonstrating them on the students before having them practice hitting each other. On Monday, I started with the chin/jaw, but since I actually planned ahead this time around, I left 8 classes before the Final Exam, and so today, I taught the spot behind the ear.

To THEIR relief, I limited the demonstrations to only the new students, since the old ones well remember the spot. Thus, I had a blast (yes, I know I'm a terrible person, I don't care) punching all my new students behind their left ear. The good thing about ME doing this is that I have enough control to NOT overdo it. I use just enough force to give them a good bloom of pain, but not enough to knock them out.

Once the demonstrations were over, I had them all pair up and practice trying to hit each other in that spot. I'm not entirely certain what makes this class different than the first time around, but it seems that ALL of my students have been making loads of progress this time around, and so, these sparring sessions always get a bit brutal.

My frienemy the Mediwitch just loves to hate coming to these classes, but she hasn't missed an important one yet. She stood back, letting them get on with it and only healing up the hits that come across TOO enthusiastically. She likes to glare at me nearly the entire time, and it never fails to amuse me.

So, as I said, I was in an excellent mood to begin with - especially since I had stopped in my office earlier and tested Fierston's Occlumency shield to find it nearly perfect. He doesn't know it yet, but this means that he'll be starting his first actual Legilimency lesson next Wednesday. If he was ANYONE else, he probably wouldn't be ready to have his shields tested for another two or three months. I really lucked out in obtaining him as my first Legilimency student - NOT that I'm planning to have more, just that if I did, it will be frustrating as fuck compared to these lessons.

But back to my mood. I was having a great time calling out encouragement and giving tips on how to slip around a person's defenses and really wail on their pain spots. Suddenly, you stepped through the floo that connects this classroom to the Manor track.

"Don't be afraid to break his arm if you have to! Better that than - HARRY!!" I cried out gleefully when I spotted you, and MAYBE I'm having a particularly good hormone combination these last couple of days, but I've been really happy in general, and even happier than usual to see you. If not for the fact that I seem to forget everything the moment I walk into our closet, I'd call this the best pregnancy yet.

Thus, when I saw you, I not only exclaimed happily, but I ran over to you, pulled you into my arms, and gave you a swift hard kiss.
"Wise men say, only fools rush in, but I can't help falling in love with you," I burst out with as I rocked you side to side in a very simplistic dance.

You looked more than happy to hear me sing - and dearly wanted me to finish - but pressed a finger to my lips before I could continue.

"Draco, my love, as much as I LOVE when you sing to me, now is not a good time," you informed me with a wistful smile.

I immediately felt my heart drop into my stomach. "Oh no! What's wrong? Did Elena go into Labor? Is ERIS having unexpected problems?"

Whoa! I must have been channeling panicky Harry!

Chuckling, you shook your head. "No, they're both fine, it's just that AMALA has gone into labor."

I felt extremely panicked AND unbelievably excited at the same time. "Are you serious?!

You nodded even as one of my new students muttered: "Who's Amala?"

"His cat," an old student stated.

Another snorted in amusement. "His CHEETAH!"

I hugged you tight and practically bounced in excitement. "I'm going to have grandbaby cheetahs! WAIT!!! Is she alright? Is she in pain??? I have to get there!"

You laughed softly. "I thought you might feel that way; that's why I came to tell you in person."

I held up a hand and waved it around to indicate the entire class. "Excellent news! Class is NOT dismissed, but it's moving to my house where you'll all finish your sparring in my ballroom, and then can give yourselves a bit of a treat by relaxing in our Onsen."

"Erm... yea...?" A couple of them asked uncertainly.

I had Muffy Apparate me on ahead while you stayed behind to floo back and lead the class to our ballroom. I suppose that you ALSO felt like you should at least supervise them a bit. As I understand it, Shtara, Zaire, and Jaz were in the ballroom with Wojtek. It seems that Zaire had persuaded them to don traditional Zulu skirts and practice his next dance lesson with him, while Wojtek sort of adorably tried to mimic them.

I guess Shtara is training him already, hahaha.

In any case, you directed my students to not trip over our kids, but otherwise get to it.

Meanwhile, I was in our bedroom with Amala, who was laying on a BIG cushion I'd brought in here just for her about a week ago. She was panting and definitely in labor. I even arrived just in time to see the first one coming out. I stroked her head and told her what a good job she was doing.

Well, while I was busy helping new life come into the world, it seems that the Thestrals and Trinket got tired of waiting for Jaz and you to return to them, and somehow managed to open the glass doors leading from the ballroom out onto the Manor lawn - or from the lawn into the ballroom, I suppose, since that's where they were coming from.

"Want help getting the Thestrals back in the stables, dad?" Zaire asked, and actually, since he WAS around when his sperm donating monster died, I guess it's not surprising that he can see them. I bet he might have been a tad young the first time, but then he watched him 'die' again as a ghost, and that time, it probably hit home what he'd seen the first time around.

Jaz signed: "They just want to dance to the music too." And even though she can't SEE them, she must be able to smell them or something, because she seems to know exactly where they are in order to pet them.

Atreyu burst through the door and hopped on one of the baby boy Thstral's backs. "Persephone and Lily love the Unicorns, but Atreyu LOVES the Thstrals! Te amo pequeño!"

"Can I go flying on the Thstrals with Atreyu, daddy?" Caelum begged as he and the rest of the feisty foursome ran into the room.

"No you can't fly the Thstrals!" You burst out. "And what do you mean WITH Atreyu?!?!"

When telling me this bit, you said that Caelum's eyes got big as saucers. "N-n-nothing! I didn't mean anything, daddy, I swear."

You put your hands on your hips and stared him down. "Uh-huh."

Looks like Atreyu didn't understand the concept of NOT incriminating himself. "The Thstrals are REALLY easy to fly, daddy. You just tell them where to go and they take you there!" Atreyu explained. "Like this: fly me around the North Fields, por favor."

The little Thstral he was on responded by running out the door and taking flight.

"Atreyu!!!" You called after him in alarm. And then squeaked when you realized that Jaz Apparated herself right behind him - onto the back of a moving animal that she couldn't even see.
"JASMINE!!" Not that she could hear you.

Tearing at your hair in worry, you watched them fly perfectly fine around the North Field before realizing that you had a good solution after all. "Blue!

"Yes, master Harry?" Jasmine's elf asked as he popped into the room.

"Go tell Atreyu and Jaz to come back here right away, and if they refuse, bring them back anyway!"

"Yes Master," Blue agreed.

Shtara's elf Mada popped into the room to take Wojtek out to do his business, and then Zaire's elf popped in at his command to bring him a smoothie to quench his thirst with.

Apparently you had a surreal feeling overtake you - as if living this life for years wasn't enough to acclimate you to it. You shook your head a bit and muttered: "I live in a mad house... and I'm missing Brave for this???

By the time order was restored - more or less - my students had finished sparring (as best you could figure), and you were more than ready to take them to the Onsen and relax a bit.

"Hooray!" Our kids burst out happily at this news, racing ahead to strip off and jump in the Onsen.

And that's where I found you about two hours later. You, our kids, and my students were all sipping on wine and chatting merrily in the nice warm water of the Onsen. I used the completely non-magical stairs to emerge onto the roof, a sling style wrap circling me from left shoulder to right hip. With a soft smile at you, I sat on the edge of the Onsen and dipped my feet in.

"I think it's over," I announced. "She seems to have stopped pushing out babies and gone to sleep."

"How many are there?" You wondered, looking at the sling because you knew I wouldn't have it if there wasn't something in it.

I slipped my right hand inside and stroked all the babies gently before scooping one up and pulling it out of the sling. "There are five total. Three girls and two boys, and yes, I'm naming one of the boys Fuego."

You used just one finger to gently rub the baby's nose. "Aww, so cute..."

Lily looked in love with the baby already. "Do I get to keep one?"

"We'll see," I murmured, not having given any real thought yet to what will happen to them when they're older.

You gave me a soft kiss. "Go on, go back and fret over Amala - like I know you want to. Bring these little ones back to their mum."

I kissed you in return. "Alright, no need to twist my arm."

You snorted in amusement and gave me another light kiss.

"I'm coming with you," Lily insisted, climbing out of the Onsen.

Shtara was now doing her best to pet all the babies still in the sling. "Oi, can I have one too? I think having a bear AND a cheetah would be perfect!"

I laughed and gave her a kiss on the cheek. "We'll see, love." I then winked at you. "Maybe I should rescue a tiger and a pair of lions next."

"NO!" You blurted out. "We have enough animals!"

"Or maybe an elephant," I added, smirking at you. "Just imagine a cute little helpless baby elephant that NEEDS us to take care of him or her."

You looked like you were utterly melting for a moment before steeling your resolve. "NO! Just focus on growing those three babies inside of you, and once they're out of diapers, MAYBE I'll consider getting an elephant, you absolute lunatic!"

I kissed you again. "I may be a lunatic, but YOU married me, so what does that make you?"

You roared with laughter. "It makes me a lunatic too! Now go on, I'll get these hooligans to bed, and then join you."

"I'm sleeping in the stables with my Unicorn!" Persephone insisted.

"Me too - with my Thestral!" Atreyu added.

"I may as well sleep with Lily and Amala," Caelum murmured, slowly getting out of the perfect water to wait with his sister.

"G'night dad," Shtara and Zaire said as they gave me kisses and got out of the Onsen.
Jaz signed: "Good night, daddy, I'm happy the cheetahs were born safely, and can't wait to tell the others about them this weekend at the game."

I smiled and signed to her: "I can't wait to tell them either, not to mention cheer on Orion. Good night, I love you."

She hugged me, kissed me on the cheek, and then signed: "I love you too."

"Buenas noches, papa."

"Buenas noches, Atreyu, dulces sueños."

After Persephone kissed me goodnight, I laughed and shook my head. "Perhaps it's a good thing that they're not ALL home right now. Saying good night to all 15 of them could take HOURS!"

You rolled your eyes at me, gave me one last kiss, and then took off with the ones that were planning to sleep in the stables - to make absolutely sure that they'd be safe in there overnight.

I looked at my students, still in an excellent mood. "You can stay here a bit longer if you want. Just let Muffy know if you need anything. Otherwise, if you're ready to leave, you can just Apparate away, or have Muffy bring you anywhere you need to go. I'll see you on Monday."

Girly smirked at me. "You are always such a hardarse with us, and we've seen a couple of your daughters come in and wipe the floor with us, so I think we all assumed that you must be a complete bastard to your kids, but you're really a big ol' softie at heart, aren't you?"

I laughed. "Maybe, but that doesn't mean I'll go any easier on you in class on Monday."

"I wouldn't expect you to," she stated.

With a last nod at all of them, I got to my feet, grunted a little as the shift in pressure made one of my wombs protest for a moment, and then carried my grandbabies back to their mother.

After tucking Lily and Caelum in - on the huge cushion with Amala and her babies - I crawled in bed and wrote most of this email before you joined me and told me about the parts I couldn't have known. You're currently looking at me like I'm a nutter, reading this as I write it.

And now you look interested in kissing me until we fall asleep - one way or another - and so, no fancy sign off, just me eager to snuggle with you,

Draco
Chapter 89

Chapter Summary

It's Harry's turn to inadvertently witness something, and Draco has tea with his best bitch.

Chapter Notes

Warning: there's a bit of het near the end.

Sunday November 27, 2016

My Soul,

You know, when you literally sat next to me and had me tell you all about my evening on Wednesday so you could email it to ME … I thought you had lost the plot a bit. I was literally sitting right next to you. And for the fact that I do like to recap our days even when the other was there simply for having something we can look on years later, I still could have just told you about it in my own email the next day.

Good thing you insisted since the next couple of days were a bit intense, now it's four days later and this is the first moment I've really had to sit down and write to you. It's almost like you get some good ideas every once in a while!

I kid, I kid. Obviously you have near constant good ideas and I feel like I am just scrambling around behind you trying to keep up as best I can.

Now I'm wishing you had sat next to me days ago and dictated our adventures because I'm afraid I am going to not do half of the things we did justice.

Thursday and Friday weren't specifically full of appointments or anything particularly time consuming or hard. However, since we were going to be gone for most of this weekend, we had to prepare things at the Manor for our absence. Since we were leaving Friday before dinner and we won't be home until tomorrow morning, we had plenty to do in the stables for sure and you had to prepare the cheetahs for their journey.

As you know, Friday late afternoon we sent Shtara off for her Friday night performance, we brought all of the kids (and Sirius) to Hogwarts where we exchanged them for Viona so we could have dinner together in Hogsmeade and talk Wedding Prep. Our kids are pretty well behaved and used to business talk, party prep, and other conversations happening at a dinner table, but I had the feeling Viona was going to have a LOT to talk about and didn't need all the little ones bored or chiming in where The Princess may not appreciate their assistance.

Which means Sirius, Zaire, Jaz, and the four young troublemakers spent the evening terrorizing the halls of Hogwarts while we had a quiet double date with our daughter and her fiancé. You know how much the little ones adore "Miss Minnie" and she loves them all so much, but I was a little worried that our six (four) youngest would manage to turn the castle into a pile of rubble by the time we got back to grab them for the night.

Apparently those walls have seen much worse than our well-meaning mischief makers (specifically their fathers, their father's godfather, and their grandfather to name a few) because they were snuggled up in the Slytherin common room having hot cocoa and playing games with their siblings and their friends when we got back. Cael had actually fallen asleep with his head in Eris' (ever-expanding but don't you dare tell her I said that!) lap.

I was curious how they ended up in the Slytherin common room. We had Viona with us, so their siblings that were there were split two snakes, two lions, and an eagle. I guess they had a very serious discussion and decided since they were going to cheer on Ravenclaw the next day at the quidditch match, they would split their evening between Gryffindor and Slytherin. They sat with the lions for dinner then made their way to the snake pit afterwards for games and treats.

I think that was a very well thought out plan.

Sirius, on the other hand, sat at the head table with Minnie and then hung out with Siri and Zwei in the Lion's Den after dinner. He loves OUR snakes, but there is no love lost with Slytherin House for him. He has such a close relationship with Siri and Zwei that it was probably a nice evening for them to have him all to themselves anyway. I'm sure they talked bikes, brooms, and birds with their Uncle Sirius.

I was a little worried what the Slytherins were going to let our little ones get up to. I can imagine the ways they may try to fill the boredom of a Friday night. But then I thought: oh, well, my five year old rides flying invisible horses, so how much worse could things possibly get?

Honestly, Atreyu flies on the damn thestrals! And Jaz just pops herself right onto them as well despite NOT BEING ABLE TO SEE THEM! How is this even my life? I have no idea where these children get their complete disregard for their own safety in the name of bravery.

Shut it you.

Anyway, small children left to their own devices in an ancient castle aside, I had a lovely dinner with you, Vivi, and Alric. I thought there was going to be more wedding planning discussion but it was mostly Vivi gushing about how happy she is with all of the decisions that have already been made. It was nice to finally see a little more of her sweet side come out where Alric is concerned.

Initially I was panicked that somehow our sweet, yet completely stubborn and domineering, daughter had coerced this helpless man into marrying her. When I found out he had been a Ravenclaw, I was a bit less concerned. Not that being intelligent can keep you from being in an unhealthy relationship, but I'm pretty sure it gives you the brains to say no when someone you don't want to marry tells you you're marrying her.

After an evening with just the two of them, seeing how intelligent he really is, I'm starting to think he may have tricked HER into thinking this was all her idea. He looks at her like she hung the moon. And the bit of business talk we did proved that he's no slouch when it comes to his area of business. I think they'll be well suited once she realizes how completely head over heels she is for him.

Poor lamb, thinks she's running the show while he spends the next months wrapping up her affection for him with a neat little bow. She's not going to know what hit her when she realizes how much she loves him already.
After picking up the (little) kids, we spent the night in a very sweet little hotel in Hogsmeade. Viona and Alric were thinking of booking out a number of their rooms for the weekend of the wedding for people traveling from further away to stay. It made sense to have our insane crew stay overnight prior to the wedding as a test. Generally if a hotel staff can handle your insane demands and the chaos from our sheer numbers, we can pretty well assume they can handle a few out of towners for a wedding weekend.

All in all it was a very nice hotel. Was it spectacular and one of the best places I've ever stayed? No. But my spoiled self may not be the best judge of such things. I've stayed in a hotel treehouse in Singapore, there aren't a whole lot of places that are going to hit the top of my hotel charts.

We woke up fairly early Saturday morning, well pretty much on time for me - maybe even a bit later than usual - but VERY early for you. We got everyone ready, had breakfast, I popped home to pick up Shtara for the match, while you had a nice leisurely stroll to Hogwarts with the kids.

Luckily (for Ravenclaw) it was a fairly short match, since we had to get on a plane to St. Petersburg as soon as the match ended. I know that Ron, Hermione, Blaise, and Ivan would have understood if we were late to the November birthday party due to the match running long. Kisa and Pansy probably would have turned us into shoes. So I'm quite glad that our brilliant son caught the snitch so quickly. What a way to finish off his first game as captain! A win, he caught the snitch, and most of his family was there to witness it.

Oh! So you saw all the important bits of the match, yeah? A few scores from each side, Ravenclaw in the lead but not by much, Orion's awesome grab of the snitch. All that blah blah blah yay quidditch right?

Side note: isn't it funny that of all our children who have or haven't played quidditch, the one who's a fantastic seeker like his dad is also the one who wears glasses? Hmmm?

Okay, so you saw the game, we went and congratulated Orion, but then you got caught up talking with Hagrid and the Defense Professor, it was a very weird conversation where you talked about cheetah breeding, thestral care, and hand to hand combat training. I love you my darling, but you still teaching these classes is really messing with my panicking side. Also, YAY only seven more classes!!!!!

While you were chatting, I walked away because I just wanted to have a fun lovely afternoon and not think about your class. I walked towards the changing rooms, thinking I might catch Ori before he heads in with his team. Well, technically I saw him before he went in, but I did not approach him.

Because …

He was not with his team. Most of both teams had gone ahead to the locker rooms but he was straggling a bit. One of the Hufflepuff players caught up with him, the little redhead girl, I think she was the other captain? I figured there was going to be a bit of a congratulations type thing, shake hands, better luck next time and all that.

No.

I wasn't close enough to hear the exact words exchanged, but by the looks on both his face and the pretty bird who was yelling at him, I'm going to say it wasn't particularly pleasant. They were snapping back and forth to each other. I wasn't particularly worried, I've gotten mildly heated over quidditch myself, so I just observed from a distance. Until that tiny girl slammed our Orion into the outside wall of the locker room.
I had a moment of panic where I was trying to figure out if I needed to interfere. That moment of hesitation was exactly what she needed apparently. Don't worry, she didn't harm him. Unless you think snogging his face off was harming him. Yeah, angry quidditch snogging.

It was just for a moment and then she pulled back like she was surprised at herself. Ori lifted his hands, put them on her shoulders, and I assumed he was going to push her away. Yeah, not so much 'away' as he decided to push HER up against that same wall and snog HER face off.

Again just for a moment, then they both pulled back like they'd been burnt and hurriedly made their way to their own team's rooms.

I did not tell Ori I saw that. Do I say something? What do I do?

Okay I have to take my mind off of teenaged hormonal nonsense.

Blah blah blah, you know the deal, I got Shtara back home while you and Pippa got the rest of the crew loaded up on the plane with Mr. Lott. I met you back at the plane, we flew to Pansy's.

I am really curious though, what in Merlin's name did you bribe Pansy with so she'd let you bring your cheetah and grandbaby cheetahs to her home? I know we HAD a lot of money, but are we poor now after her payoff? Do I need to sell our emergency island?

The party was absolutely delightful. The entire Russian portion of our circle was there obviously. George's family was also definitely there since their Fred was the other November birthday we were celebrating besides the Russian side's Anastacia and Paige. Your parents had stayed home to help keep an eye on Shtara while she wasn't at performances, the Viper crew had stayed home as well, and I guess Charlie and Neville stayed behind since their Alice isn't feeling well. Otherwise it was like any other circle dinner. Kids running amok, adults catching up, Molly running the kitchens with an iron fist.

I think it's hilarious that she's not even related to her and Pansy is still terrified of Molly!

It's nice that the November kids are all pretty close in age, Fred turning eleven, Staci turning twelve, and Paige turning thirteen meant the entire party could be aimed at that middle kid age. It's harder during those months when we're celebrating a kid turning sixteen at the same time we've got a toddler smearing themselves head to toe with icing.

I loved catching up with our Russian nieces and nephews. I love that our friends are doing things that fulfill them and they live in a place they've really come to call home. It's amazing they're all so happy with their lives. But I miss my friends. I miss my nieces and nephews. I want to be able to just pop over and see them all a few times a week. I mean, our Rod and Bee are already sixteen. Sixteen Draco! When did they stop being infants hmm? They were supposed to stay our teeny adorable Godchildren forever.

I'm sure the Quartet as well as Pansy and Ivan feel the same way about our children. It's just so hard not getting to see them all the time.

Well, would you look at that, you'd think I was the pregnant one blubbering away over here thinking about all of these children growing up too damn quickly. I don't like it.

I am probably just being a bit greedy. We see them roughly once a month for a birthday or an event. Our kids and their kids are all thick as thieves, which you know they wouldn't be if they barely knew each other. I think I've just been extra emotional lately thinking about our babies who are having babies. Suddenly we're going from this stage of being young parents to becoming grandparents (again!) I'm not quite sure how we got here so quickly ya know? It seems like just a short time ago that Pearl was screeching at us for being bullies and forcing Haz to be a boy, now these young women are sitting together giggling over crushes and pretty clothes.

It was so nice to see the littlest kids running around, being obnoxious and silly. Our four regaling their cousins with stories of the horses, the unicorns, and the (mostly) invisible thestrals. I have a feeling we're going to have another set of visitors for a week here or there. Tatyana was definitely giving Kisa the big doe eyes about visiting "Uncle Harry and Cousin Draco with the pretty ponies." Kisa seemed fairly stoic but then Tatya turned those eyes on Blaise and Ron … yeah, I assume she's coming to visit soon.

Those two are absolutely ridiculous with how their children have them wrapped around their fingers. No backbone at all I tell you.

Oh my goodness little Aleksei though? His pudgy little marshmallow arms. And his gummy smile? And he smelled so good! Maybe it's good we're having three more babies, because this is the first time in six years I've seemed to come down with a case of baby fever. If you weren't already carrying three, I might be inclined to beg you for "just one more" even though we were "definitely done!"

You poor baby. Were the big kids mean to you at the party? I tried not to laugh, but our friends and family are funny damnit! The amount of shite they gave you for having fifteen children and not only forgetting to cast the appropriate protection charms, but forgetting them on three different occasions. Haha!

You did get back at all of them by teasing them that we know what baby A is, we've already picked its name, we're going to find out about B and C, and maybe you won't tell any of them until they're born.

Which led us delightfully into setting up a pool. Basically since we already know A, we aren't allowed IN on the pool, but we are taking a nine percent commission on all bets placed.

Speaking of baby A and her name. Are you absolutely sure you're alright with that name? I just … er … it's her name. I love you for so many things, but I really love you for either playing along or for agreeing with me. I can't wait to meet her and her little brother(s) and sister(s).

Oh, and did you notice how weird Sirius got when people started teasing him about when he planned to settle down and start a family? It didn't seem like he was upset that he hadn't started a family yet, he just seemed super weird and cagey about it. I think I should do some sleuthing. Do you think he has someone special that he hasn't introduced to us yet? Do you think he's already gotten them pregnant? Or is HE pregnant?

Breathe Harry, Breathe. You're just being ridiculous and speculating. Phew.

It was a really fun party, we stayed up way too late, some of them drank way too much champagne, and we all crashed in one of Pansy's million guest rooms.

But now you are having a quiet lunch with just your best bitch. I hope you're having fun and whatever she forced you to bribe her with isn't too painful.

I almost forgot, thinking of Pansy allowing your cheetahs reminded me; you told both Lily and Shtara "we'll see" if you're going to give them baby cheetahs? First of all, we need to stop having wild animals!! Second of all, you know you're going to give them each a cheetah, why are you even pretending you have to think about it? You are the silliest.
Have fun with Pans, I'll see you on the plane!

Love you,
Harry

Sunday November 27th
My perfect husband,

First of all, Orion was kissing the Hufflepuff Captain? You wouldn't by chance be referring to that Farrah girl that he's always complaining about? I bloody knew it! I TOLD you, didn't I?

Well, I suppose it's probably still a bit too early to tell if it's just a quick and fiery passion, or if it's the first indications of something real that will last, but I... hmm... I have to wonder what - if anything - happened with Natalie? Wasn't he actually dating her. Like last week? And Friday night...?

Hmm...

But as for Viona, I actually think it's adorable that YOU still think they are PLANNING to rent the hotel for guests to stay in. I already told you a while ago, she asked me to book the ENTIRE town of Hogsmeade (including the hotel), and I did. Thus, it's not a potential plan so much as a reality. Still, the test stay was well worth it as now I am confident that they should be able to handle the wedding guests.

Also, I completely agree with your observations on our daughter's emotional state. I can see it clearly that she's trying to maintain her icy shell and NOT let herself get too attached to him in case it all goes to shit, but she's already arse over tits. I'm not quite as certain about your thoughts on Alric. I can see that he's smart and practically perfect for her, but I'm not sure that he's secretly manipulating her into thinking that this is all her idea. I think it's more likely that it was all her idea and he just took it and ran with it as much as possible because it's what he wants too.

As for Shtara having a baby cheetah, I really AM going to be thinking about it in depth, because she already has a bear - that's going to be getting rather big. I'm just not sure giving her a cheetah to care for as well is the best idea, and as for Lily, she's a bit young, don't you think? Although, you're probably right in that she'll bond with one and I just won't be able to refuse her.

Speaking of animals, I noticed that one of the new adult owls AND one of the young peacocks (the one that twisted it's foot somehow and had to be nursed back to health a bit) BOTH love Jaz. You were worried about Trinket sneaking in to sleep in her room, well, I'm pretty sure that those birds already are and that the reason you haven't noticed is that it's not unusual at all for the owls and peafowl to wander the Manor at random.

No, I am NOT just humoring you about Morgana Guinevere, I really do love it, and for the very reason you stated - the Queen of Magic herself. It's a beautiful omen for her future.

So... Sirius... You know, I don't actually know any dirt, BUT I will say that I caught the same vibe you did, that he's hiding something. MAYBE there IS something going on in that department. Maybe he got a bird up the duff and is ashamed of it for some reason? Maybe YOU should ask him...

But on to what I know you are waiting for. Earlier today, I was having tea and a lovely chat with Pansy. Before coming for this visit, you are right, she told me I had to promise her an unspecified favor to be allowed to bring my cheetahs. During tea, she told me what she wanted - exactly - and I was rather intrigued.

Thus, you received an Insta-owl saying: Harry, my love, Pans wants me to have a full on play session with her as that very expensive 'bribe' for bringing my cheetahs with. Is this okay with you? Can I do it?

You replied almost right away: Do you WANT to do it?

I actually had to think about it, but I came to the conclusion that what she wanted sounded interesting and worthwhile, so: Yes, I do, but ONLY if you are comfortable with it. I'll tell her you want to watch or be involved if that's what you'd prefer.

I assume that it took you a minute or so to actually type up your reply, but it felt like you hesitated for ages before finally responding with: If you want to do it, then I am fine with it, so long as you are NOT doing anything to potentially harm the babies, and yes, I know that you can still do quite a lot of kinky things while pregnant. I DON'T want to watch because I'm having a good time chatting with my best mates, so have fun, my love, and tell me all about it later.

Well... with such generous permission, I felt justified in being eager to get right to it.

See, apparently Kisa told Pansy something that she's never had a reason to tell me, and once Pansy heard about it, it's taken over her mind and refused to let go. So, she asked her husband to do it to her, and he just can't. He's not a Dom - and usually that's Pansy's role in their relationship, but that said, like me, she DOES occasionally want to submit. Usually in rather painful way - also like me.

Now that I'd agreed to try it with her, she immediately called Kisa in. Lest you immediately jump to squicky conclusions, NO, it's not like that. We just needed Kisa to teach me the spell.

There's a spell that I'd never heard of before - and keep in mind that I have actually learned and used smaller versions of the Cruciatus Curse, but I had never even wondered if this was possible.

Once in Pansy's suite with us, Kisa cast a spell on my right hand - thus teaching it to me - that makes my HAND feel like a lesser version of the Cruciatus Curse. I didn't believe her at first, because I didn't feel any different. No pain or tingling or anything. But tapping my other arm with a finger proved that the spell was working.

I have to admit that I stroked myself rather sensually on my arms and legs for a few minutes because I HAVE used the actual full version of the curse on myself in the past, and while this wasn't the full thing, it was definitely more intense than something like my Violet Wand.

Kisa left, and then I took a few minutes to tie Ivan up in a tight shibari so I could safely suspend him from the ceiling. He wasn't part of the playing, but Pansy wanted him to watch and see that she's not nearly as fragile as the flower she's named for. Once Ivan was secure - and tying him up with one hand inflicting pain with every touch was interesting, to say the least. He seemed to like it...

Anyway, once Ivan was secure, I had Pansy stand still as I stripped her off. She shivered deliciously every time my right hand touched her bare skin, and for that first part, the touches were all brief and more accidental - or I suppose unintentional - than anything. Once she was naked, I circled her a few times - still fully dressed myself - as I took in every millimeter of her naked body. I may have seen her naked relatively recently at our play party, but I HAVEN'T had any sort of sex with her directly in AGES.

So this really was a bit of a treat, and didn't feel like any sort of punitive bribe.

When ready, I reached out and pinched her left nipple, making her gasp sharply and bite her lips together to stop from whimpering or protesting. Then I soothed her nipple with my tongue, repeating the action on the other side. My right hand made long sweeping strokes down her sternum and abdomen, also followed by long swipes of my tongue. I caressed her neck, her back, her arse, basically her entire body EXCEPT for her womanhood.

At some point, her legs grew wobbly and we migrated to her bed - Ivan still having a good view of the situation. THAT was when I used my right hand - the pad of my thumb, to be specific - to rub her clitoris. She made the most interestingly delicious noises as she squirmed and cried. It was that good crying, the sort where part of it is from pain, but the majority of it is from being turned on and a bit desperate to finally have sweet relief.

When her cries turned a bit less good, I shifted so that my fingers were inside her as I replaced my thumb with my tongue. This was the magic key to make her squeal and thrash about frantically. I continued the torture until she was literally and desperately BEGGING me to stop. At that point, I was so turned on that I didn't even register any sort of pain when I accidentally used my right hand to guide my quickly uncovered shaft into her. It was pain, a sort of sharp stinging pain, but it added to the need to have her, rather than kill the mood.

I'd like to think that I had endless stamina and wore her completely out - well, actually, I suppose I had by that point - but what I'm getting at is that my pregnancy bump was in the way and made it hard for me to truly fuck her good and hard, and so, it ended within ten minutes or so. But don't think I'm complaining, because I'm not. The lead up was so hot that I nearly finished before I even got fully inside her.

However, lest you worry, don't, we both cast the protection spells a good three times each! And so, NO accidents shall occur.

By the time I returned to the room we were staying in, you were already asleep, so I wrote this email and am now about to sign off so that I can pull you into my arms and hold you tight while I sleep, and if I'm not snarling in my sleep from discomfort in the morning, please do that thing you did recently where you hopped on and simply rode me at your leisure as long as you wanted. But charm a pillow under my back first?

My life has a better meaning, love has kissed me in a beautiful way, oh you've got the best of my love,
Draco
Monday November 28, 2016

Draco!!

You don't know what went down with Orion and Natalie on Friday night? How brain foggy were you? Were you just distracted by the wedding prep, finding out what the littles did at Hogwarts, thinking about the upcoming match or the upcoming party? Maybe you were distracted thinking about the baby cheetahs.

Now that I've listed it all out, yeah you had a lot of things to be distracted by. I guess it's not so odd that you didn't notice.

Yeah, apparently they broke up Friday evening. Honestly, the story is so hilarious I almost worry that it's all a lie and our children made it up just to mess with us.

You see, Orion is very studious, very driven, very intellectually focused. Except where quidditch comes in. He takes being on the team very seriously, and being named Captain only increased that drive. I guess Natalie has been increasingly annoyed with him for spending his scant free time that wasn't dedicated to practice or revising on talking about quidditch incessantly.

This shouldn't be too much of an annoyance. However, leading up to this match he spent a LOT of time talking about how obnoxious Farrah was. I guess he was mentioning Farrah a ridiculous amount. From my anonymous sources it sounds an awful lot like two prats I know who couldn't keep the names "Potter" or "Malfoy" out of their mouths.

Seriously, how were we so oblivious? I could name maybe five other quidditch players I played against over my four and a half years playing quidditch. And yet, ninety percent of my quidditch woes revolved around playing against (and whooping) you. Pigtail pulling at its finest.

I guess Friday evening when Natalie thought she would get at least a little one on one time with her boyfriend, she went out and got all fancied up and listened to him rant about Farrah for an hour before she blew up on him. Said she was done watching him dance around his crush. According to my sources this happened in the Great Hall and he just sat there with the most confused look on his face.

And I'm pretty sure one of our daughters has not forgotten your advice from months ago because as she was telling me all about this public breakup fiasco (fine, this daughter you gave advice to may or may not be one of my sources) she smirked at me and told me not to worry about poor ignored Natalie because "I'll remind her girlfriends are really all you need." Then she winked at me! Winked.

Until I got this report though, I didn't realize the girl who snogged Orion was the Hufflepuff Captain and definitely didn't realize she was the infamous Farrah that he also complains to us about often.

I should really ask your father what to do when my son spends most of our interactions complaining about a school rival. I wonder if he has any experience in that area? "Everyone thinks he's so smart, wonderful Potter with his scar and his broomstick!"

"You have told me this at least a dozen times already."

Somebody had a cru-ush!! Haha, you fancied me! You thought I was cuuuuuute!

I'm going out this week to start a bit of Christmas shopping. The usual ones I get done without you, presents for you, jammies for our kids, and the jammies and trunks for the Unity kids. But we should probably get our shopping done soon. Maybe make a day date of it some day soon? Shop the day away, grab some lunch at Café Exquis, stroll hand in hand giving each other newlywed smooches and being altogether nauseatingly in love.

Oh, newlyweds! Yes, I knew Viona had rented out the town (minus the fact that people actually live there and it's not like they are going to leave their homes for a spoiled rich girl's wedding) so obviously she had rented out the hotel already. But she hadn't decided prior to our testing whether or not she was going to actually utilize the rooms or just have them sit empty to avoid gawkers renting them up. Our run through was the deciding factor for whether or not she would tell her guests if that was a place they could or should stay.

I do occasionally listen ya know.

Unlike you listening to me. Well you seem to listen, but I think you just hear half of what I actually say and then fill in the blanks. I never said that I think you SHOULD give Shtara or Lily or any of the children a baby cheetah. If anything, I spent years trying to get rid of the Cheetah we already have. Remember when we "got" her and you said you were only keeping her until she was rehabilitated. And now you're breeding her and calling her babies your grandchildren.

Also, you promised when we got Wojtek that we were only keeping him until he grew enough to survive on his own and you know that damn bear is never leaving our house.

So I am not saying that I think it's a good idea to keep any of these wild predator animals. I'm not saying it's a good plan to give a wild animal to our small children. I'm saying I've met you and I don't doubt for a moment that our children are going to be able to EASILY talk you into giving them a baby cheetah to care for.

Your student certainly wasn't wrong, you're really a big old softie at heart. You ridiculous pushover.

Students! Wow, my brain is really all over the place today isn't it? You are so close to being done with this class. I am so ready to have you to myself on Mondays. I'm ready to have you to snuggle with again at movie night. I'm close to running out of shirts. I'm ready to have my husband back!

I am very proud of you and how much hard work you've put into these classes. You're amazing. But I'm excited to be able to see your awesomeness for myself instead of second hand.

I already had my morning run, so I guess I should get on that morning ride you talked about before you wake up!

Yeehaw!

Harry
Monday November 28th
My love,

I've had a rather long and exhausting day. Not physically, as you probably assume, but rather, mentally.

It started while I was still in bed, despite my morning sickness clearing up WEEKS ago, I still occasionally get a twinge. So, I was nauseous from the moment I was fully awake, but I ate some ginger snaps and drank some milk and a few sips of your blood that I still have in that mug (the duplication and stasis charms keeping the mug full and fresh as intended), and my nausea cleared up a bit.

But then I got up and did some stretches and light yoga on my way to the potions cabinet where I took all my nutritive potions, magic boosting/replenishing potions, that potion made from your blood, etc - and suddenly I was back to feeling nauseous again.

You had woken me up BRILLIANTLY, and took a light nap as I did my stretches, but were awake again and watching me as I heaved a few times and nearly vomited into a bin. Thankfully, I did not, and while the feeling didn't exactly clear up, it was manageable enough that I could finish my stretches and head into our bathroom to take a shower and perform my morning routine.

You must have been concerned about me, because you came into the bathroom to help wash my back, and then even suffered with an amused expression as I performed my routine on you too. It's mostly moisturizers and skin care potions, so even if you don't normally like to use the products, it's NOT like they'd hurt you to use them on occasion.

Actually, I wouldn't mind at all if you simply came into the bathroom to hang out with me each morning during my routine so that I can get these products on your face more regularly. But it's not just my face, and I'm dead certain you like watching as I rub them all over my naked body. Also, you certainly weren't protesting when I rubbed them all over YOUR naked body.

After rubbing moisturizers and the like into your body led to another round of just kissing and caressing each other, which led to a lovely frotting orgasm, I had no distractions to keep my mind off my nausea, and I heaved a couple more times - despite ALSO drinking a nice banana and orange smoothie made with freshly made kefir. But still, I didn't sick up, and so, moved to my closet to get dressed and ready for my class with Zaire.

You followed me to that as well, which was a very good thing as I started wandering around with NO IDEA what I was looking for. I was halfway into a weird skeleton costume that I always find morbidly funny before you cleared your throat and asked if I was planning to wear that to class.

OH! Right, class...

So then I stood there looking at you for a moment, trying to divine WHICH class I was getting ready for - all while NOT giving away the fact that I had no idea which outfit to put on.

You chuckled. "Well, Zaire DID say that you two were planning to wear different authentic costumes today, as you're no longer focusing on Zulu style dances and moving on to other tribal dances - is the skeleton costume a different tribal thing?"

"Well, more like a funny parody, but you're right, probably NOT what Zaire is hoping for today. I'll change to the one he's expecting," I murmured before doing exactly that.
I had a bit of a respite in dance class as I was able to lose myself in the dance, which kept my mind off everything else. But then I popped back to the Manor (had Muffy Apparate me) to change for my combat class. Once back in the closet, I honestly COULD NOT remember what I was planning to do. I mean I could infer based on the fact that I was in my closet, that I was planning to change clothes.

I wandered around for a few minutes trying to remember what I needed to get dressed for, having stripped off before even getting in the closet, so I was completely naked. Aside from my tattoos. I felt like dancing, and started to wonder if I could still bellydance with this enormous bump protruding a mile out from my abdomen.

I had just located a gorgeous Sari that I was going to wear while dancing when Muffy popped back into the closet to offer me a whelk and raspberry jam sandwich, smothered in sausage gravy. Ooo! I was ravenous! I had her conjure up a small table and chair set for me to sit and eat, and then - when I was nice and full and ready to go dancing - Muffy asked me if I was ready for her to Apparate me to my combat class.

OH! Right...

So, I had her cast a quick dressing spell on me to change me from my red and gold Sari to an appropriate exercise outfit.

Once in class, my nausea seems to have cleared up for good, but it was replaced with horrendous aching all over my body! I felt like I was being slowly crushed by a boulder, and actually sent an Insta-owl to Aya to come over and work on me when I got home from class.

Also, I'd forgotten the shirt thing, so when my students started staring at me weirdly, I had no idea why, until I looked down and noticed that I was now wearing a shirt that said: I don't know what I'm training for, but I hope it never happens.

Hmm... True, I suppose... "Goddamnit Harry..."

"Alright class, today we're, erm... going to learn... erm... oh! A pain spot! The one, erm... the one... right here," I pointed at the crease of my neck because I couldn't remember what it was called at that moment. Luckily, I had no problem remembering HOW to hit that spot to teach it to the new students. Then I stood back and let them get on with practicing it on each other.

Things were going well, until one of the babies - I'm assuming Morgana since she's the biggest and easiest to feel moving around in there - decided to kick my arse from the inside out. I held my breath at first to stop from gasping, but then pressed a fist to my mouth and took deep and even breaths until the kicking subsided. Only it didn't. I'm not sure if she simply wanted to prove she could participate in class ALREADY or what, but she was NOT settling down.

It got to the point that I seriously wondered if I'd just gone into premature labor, but I remember quite clearly that that comes in waves, but this wasn't waves, this was repeated sharp kicks and punches, as if she was fighting to break open an egg shell. So THEN I wondered if I had somehow gotten a BIRD in there that felt it was time to hatch.

The pain of it probably wouldn't have phased me at all had I been expecting or even asking for it, but since it was unexpected and not in my control in the slightest, it wore me down surprisingly quickly, making me press my lips together as I continued my deep breathing. My hands were pressed to this bloody gigantic bump, and I think I may have curled just a bit to try to pressure her into settling down.
Muffy - being ordered (probably by you) to not leave my side for a single second when I'm in class - was smart enough to see that I more than likely needed to sit down. She conjured a chair and gently insisted that I sit in it. Then knowing that I'd be concerned about my students NOT doing their sparring, she took over, telling them in her stern Malfoy imitation that they'd better get on with it before her Master ordered her to hex them painfully.

She looked eager to do it too, which made my students hop to rather obediently.

After class, I was thankfully free from overly energetic babies, and so, had relaxed a bit. That said, I still ached and had this feeling like any little movement I made could potentially trigger her to start back up again. So, I promptly got into a nice warm bath and stayed there until Aya came and massaged me with her magic table that can accommodate the bump and take all pressure off my spine.

I felt SO MUCH better after she was done with me that I fell right to sleep. She probably sat with me so I wouldn't fall off her table, but honestly, I don't think I so much as twitched. When you came to bed, you levitated me into our bed, and then snuggled me until we frotted our way to another wonderful orgasm. After which, you fell asleep and I decided to write this.

Tropical the island breeze, all of nature wild and free, this is where I long to be, La Isla Bonita, Draco
Chapter 91

Chapter Summary

Harry is having a bad day and Draco is finally teaching Legilimency.

Wednesday November 30, 2016

Draco,

I love you. I love our family. I love you and our family more than anything else on this entire planet. I just needed to start this out by saying that.

I don't know if I caught a terrible case of sympathy mood swings, or perhaps someone shot an arsehole spell at me, but I pretty much want to go on a screaming yelling rampage at anything that moves or makes noise today.

I tried going for a run this morning, but ended up slipping in a mud puddle. Zaire was with me and thought it was hilarious. In his defense, I am sure it was, but I saw red. I ended up staying as calm as possible just saying "I'm done running for today, I'm going to head in and get cleaned up." What I really wanted to do was start yelling at him for laughing at my less than graceful mud puddle landing.

I popped into our loo, thinking I would take a nice relaxing soak with some bubbles. Get myself clean while I had a bit of relaxing bubble bath comfort. No. Your daughter Shtara had brought that damn bear into OUR loo so she could give HIM a bubble bath. Ok, I am going to take that back. I've heard people do that, refer to a child as their spouse's when the child is being naughty. I thought it might be funny, but it just made me feel badly.

Because of course, why not, I like being reminded that at my heart I am actually a mean man and a terrible father. What kind of man verbally pulls away from their child when they've done absolutely nothing wrong? She could have used her own loo but she thought you might like to see Wojtek all squeaky clean and fluffy after his bath so she decided to cut out a step and just bathe him in ours. And now I'm the arsehole who decided to just call her your daughter.

Why am I such a shite dad?

Anyway, I decided to just take a quick shower in her loo, I didn't do the relaxing thing, but at least I was clean. I went to grab a snack and apparently grapes aren't in season right now and so the one thing I was really in the mood to snack on wasn't available. Again the guilt while I was unbearably annoyed at not being able to eat what I wanted when I thought about people who can't afford to eat whatever they'd like all the time. Or children that grew up like I did and barely eat at all. And I'm bitching and moaning because I had to have apples instead of grapes. You know, perfectly healthy and delicious apples.

I feel a bit like the boy in Atreyu's current favorite book. Alexander? You know, Alexander and the Terrible, Horrible, No Good, Very Bad Day. "I went to bed with gum in my mouth and now I have gum in my hair."
I have a head full of emotional gum right now.

Might be the weirdest metaphor I've ever used.

But the whole morning and early afternoon went on like that. I stepped in horse shite twice. Venus was NOT in the mood to cuddle me when I decided to try to relax with a cup of coffee in the sun room (not that I blame her, I am not particularly good company right now). But don't worry, even without my cat weaving in and out through my legs I still managed to splatter coffee down my front. Don't worry, it was definitely scalding hot and burnt like hell.

I got changed … again and when I walked out of our closet you laughed at me! You literally looked at me and burst out laughing. I mean, I get it, I looked ridiculous, but when the sight of you makes your husband break into hysterics? Not exactly great on the old ego. The fact that I was wearing YOUR shirt which meant it was much too big on me didn't help. But the fact that I also had it inside out really pushed it over the edge from silly to "what is wrong with you Harry?" covered in very manly giggles.

How did I even manage the buttons when it was inside out? Even if I am being a right prat and apparently walking around in an obnoxious, moody brain fog, how did the muscle memory in my fingers not tell me something was off?

So in case you were wondering why I burst into tears and immediately apparated away, that is why. I had a shite morning, I can't stand myself, and I can't stand anyone else. So I came to Molly’s where she fussed over me while I cried.

I'm sure I'll be home whenever this bout of obnoxiousness is over, but until then just know that I love you all but can't stand seeing any of you right now.

Sorry I'm the worst,
Harry

Wednesday November 30th
My darling,

My day started off on a confusing foot. To begin with, I was barely awake and headed into our closet to see if I still had that belly brace from near the end of my pregnancy with Lily and Caelum. I don't think I ever actually wore it, but Rowe'd given it to me to help support my stomach if I felt I needed it. I didn't actually make it IN our closet when you came out wearing one of my shirts. You looked so adorably ridiculous! My mild nausea cleared up instantly as I laughed, but instead of pulling you into my arms to give you a tender kiss, you apparated away. I was confused and didn't understand the problem, but then I went into our closet and couldn't remember anything other than my name.

You looked so adorably ridiculous! My mild nausea cleared up instantly as I laughed, but instead of pulling you into my arms to give you a tender kiss, you apparated away. I was confused and didn't understand the problem, but then I went into our closet and couldn't remember anything other than my name.

So I wandered around waiting to see if I'd remember what I was after. As I waited, I tried to reason my way through several options and decided that I was most likely supposed to get ready for my class, and since I have more combat classes than the others, I took a chance and assumed that I needed to get dressed for that class.

So then - once I was nice and ready - I emerged from our closet and couldn't remember why I was standing in our room. My stomach growled and that reminded me that I hadn't eaten or even done my morning routine yet. After calling for Muffy to bring me caviar with hollandaise sauce, I ate and then walked into our bathroom to do my morning routine, except I stood there unable to remember why I was in there.

So I walked over to the toilet and did my business, figuring that was probably at least 90 percent of the reasons I usually went to the loo. Once done, I wandered out of the bathroom and had no idea what I was doing standing in our room, but this time, Shtara had apparently finished fussing over Wojtek - having taken him back to her room briefly because she'd forgot a brush, and so the two of us played with him for a good hour or so.

Also, we did some yoga with Wojtek trying his best to copy us.

At some point, Shtara heard the clock chiming and ran off because even though she'd had the day off classes, she still had plans to meet up with some of her classmates to practice something or other. That left me lightly wrestling around with Wojtek until one of the babies started kicking me - in protest, I'm almost certain. So, I had Muffy cast a weighing charm on him and found that he's now 23 Kilograms (~50lbs) and as far as I can figure - based off their guess when I first got him - today is his sixth month 'half' birthday.

When Muffy popped away with Wojtek to do his business, a good kick reminded me that I wanted to look for that stomach brace. So I went into our closet and wandered around for probably more than an hour. I honestly could not figure out why I was in there. I appeared to be dressed and ready to go to class. I didn't think I needed to change for any particular reason. And I wasn't in the mood to dance. So I started organizing a couple of piles that looked a bit messy.

ANOTHER hard kick FINALLY made me remember what I was in the bloody closet for! And since I had no idea WHERE I would have put the brace, I called for Muffy to get it for me. She helped me into it, and I sighed in relief because the brace actually did help my stomach feel less like it was about to burst and more stable. Except I think that the babies disliked having something put even a small amount of pressure on them, because suddenly, they ALL felt like they were squirming and trying to push something off them.

Before I could make up my mind over whether to take the brace back off, Muffy asked me if I was ready to have her Apparate me to my combat class. THAT'S when I remembered that I hadn't done my morning routine or even SHOWERED yet, but I didn't have time.

In class, I had to take a good long look around the room before I could remember what I was doing there. Especially since there are no longer any mats on the floor as a visual cue. But the practice dummy was an excellent indicator of what the room was for, and once it triggered the fact that it was my combat class, I also remembered what my lesson for the day was.

Except, my stomach growled and I realized that I was STARVING!!! You might recall that the only food I wrote about eating (because it's all I could remember while writing this, but I'm fairly sure it's all I ate) was caviar. And that was HOURS prior to my class.

So, I studied the practice dummy for a moment to let me know which spots I'd already taught. I blame it on pregnancy brain fog, but this time around, I started with the head/face spots, when I had INTENDED to start with the Solar Plexus again. But since I hadn't done that one yet, I decided that it was going to be the spot for the day, so I went around punching the new students there before instructing them all to practice trying to hit each other.

As they worked, I ordered Muffy to bring me a large plate of Escargot, not to mention that mug of your blood. And also, I suddenly NEEDED a small wedge of Sardinia's infamous Casu Marzu.

I think it might be safe to say that my students feel just about the same as you do when it comes to my dining choices, hahaha.

When class was over, and my poor students looked positively rough at the end, I walked out of the class and stood in the hallway wondering where I was for a few minutes before an Auror in full robes strode past on his way to the Ministry track and said hi to me. That reminded me that I was in the Ministry, but not WHY. Shrugging, I figured that I might remember once I got to my office, or maybe I’d written myself a note.

Luckily, Fierston was in my office, and that in and of itself was enough of a visual cue that I was able to remember WHY. He was supposed to have his first actual Legilimency lesson last Wednesday, but Amala went into labor and made me cancel it. So, today, I sat next to him on a cushion on the floor, and made sure that we were NOT looking in each other’s eyes as we meditated for a bit.

When I felt certain that we were both calm, centered, and focused, I had us turn to face each other and gave him permission to GENTLY cast the Legilimens spell on me. I wouldn't have let him do it at all if I didn't trust that he had enough self control to NOT blast his way into my head, and I was right. He had never done it before, and so, was a bit more forceful than necessary, but nothing worse than a headache.

As is necessary for a beginner, he broke through a VERY thin and basic shield, and then I let him wander around freely for about two minutes, which was long enough for him to get a good feel for what it was like, but not so long that he could dig deep into the layers and so much as FIND my real Occlumency shields.

"NOW you will finally understand why I insisted that you get a pet," I informed him as he stroked his rabbit behind the ears. "I want you to get comfortable so that your rabbit is also comfortable and you are both looking in each other's eyes..."

I watched as he lay on his stomach on the floor and watched his rabbit watch him. I had Muffy conjure up a protective bubble around them - like an invisible fence. This was to prevent the rabbit from running off and getting stuck under my sofa or anything like that.

"In a minute, I'm going to have you cast the spell on your rabbit -"

"Herbert," Fierston murmured.

"Alright, Herbert - and what you need to know is that Herbert NEEDS to trust you a lot for you to even get into his mind. Because animals have minds organized completely differently than humans, it's a bit like a natural shield. When you cast the spell, even if you get in, you are GOING to scare Herbert. There's just no way around that. He will panic and try to get away - hence the reason I have you surrounded by a bit of a fence - and you will probably have to try rather hard to regain his trust. I recommend treats."

"How do you know that I'll scare him?" Fierston wondered with a frown.

"Because you've only tried the spell once, and that once was jarring enough to give me a headache," I explained. "Even if you try your best to be GENTLER, you're still going to be too much for Herbert."

Fierston sighed in defeat, clearly not liking the idea of scaring his pet. BUT he also steeled his resolve.

"Alright, when you feel ready, go ahead and cast the spell on him," I permitted.
It took him a minute or so to calm his mind and attempt to be as gentle as possible. He cast the spell in a soft whisper, and exactly as I said, Herbert screeched in fear and tried to run away. Extremely smartly, Fierston produced a handful of carrot slices and set them on the floor. After a few seconds of trying to get away and not being able to, Herbert discovered the carrot slices and apparently forgot his panic.

This left Herbert shifting position frequently so that Fierston couldn't look him in the eye, even as Fierston very gently used just a finger to pet his nose. When the rabbit was calm, I reached out and stroked his fur along his spine.

"It will get better," I promised. "I don't recommend trying again until you feel that Herbert trusts you again. That means doing whatever it takes to make him feel safe and loved. If that means spoiling him rotten with attention and treats, so be it. When he's ready to let you look him in the eyes again, try again. In the meantime, work on figuring out how to be subtle about it. So gentle that if you were caressing your girlfriend's leg, she'd complain you were nowhere near her."

He chuckled at that.

"Keep on practicing when you can until next Wednesday, but please keep in mind that if you do it too much, you can actually harm Herbert," I advised.

"Right," he stated with a nod.

But I wasn't ready to dismiss class just yet. "IF you manage to get into his mind and stay there for even just a minute, consider switching to nonverbal spellcasting. The longterm goal - especially for interrogations - is both nonverbal and wandless. You want to be able to slip into a mind without them noticing, and THAT'S why practicing on animals is actually ideal."

"Is this what they do in that 4 year program?"

I shrugged. "No idea, but I'd guess that the first year alone is probably simple meditation practice. In any case, whenever you need to let your rabbit rest or eat a treat, continue to work on your Occlumency shields. Next Wednesday, I'll be testing them again."

Fierston smirked at me. "For as much as you talk about how to make them stronger, I expected yours to be a challenge."

I laughed at him. "Do you actually think that was a real shield???"

His face fell. "Well... I did..."

Grinning, I shook my head. "Nope, I just threw up the weakest shield I could so that you'd have something to break through - as is necessary for a beginner."

"Oh..." he murmured in disappointment.

I put a hand on his shoulder. "Don't worry; you'll get there. Also, you are making FAR better progress than anyone else would be. You have a natural talent for this, and not many people do. I could teach every Auror in the department, and I doubt ANY of them would ever make it beyond the very basics."

He tilted his head side to side to acknowledge that I was probably right.

Chuckling, I dismissed class. "Go on, go home and get out of your head for a bit. Shag your girlfriend if you have one, and if not, go to a bar and pull a bird. Once your head is clear and you've gotten some sleep, reassure your rabbit that you're not trying to murder him. Got it?"

He laughed. "I'm not sure I've ever had a teacher assign me shagging as homework before."

I let out a hearty laugh. "When I first taught my combat students how to kick a groin, I told my females to tell the males to show them theirs if they'd never seen one before, and this time around, I seriously considered telling two of my students to just go shag so they'd stop being awkward around each other."

After laughing a bit more, we said goodbye to each other before I had Muffy Apparate me home. Then I stood there wondering what it was I needed to do. Not certain, I read your email, and that let me know that I needed to try to help you feel better. It took me a few minutes because I decided that I needed to get naked first, and that meant removing the belly brace - which triggered them kicking and squirming all over again.

Once ready, I cast a Patronus and told it: "Tell Harry: Are you ready to come home yet, love? I'm waiting to snuggle you and give you a thousand kisses - if you want. Otherwise, perhaps we could come up with another way to make you feel better." My dragon nodded in understanding and flew off to go deliver the message to you.

Happily, you were ready to come home, and even though you didn't seem to want to talk, you DEFINITELY wanted kisses. And then a spanking. And then a bit of shagging. And now you're curled up in bed next to me as I write this - which I wanted to do before I completely forget my entire day.

But now that I'm done, I'm going to sign off, kiss your sleeping body, and possibly get a bit of 'milk' directly from the tap. We'll see.

You're a song, written by the hands of God,
Draco
Chapter 92

Thursday December 1, 2016

My Love,

Oh the difference a day makes. I woke up feeling well rested, snuggled up with you. I had a lovely breakfast with the early riser kids and a delightful run with absolutely no slipping in mud puddles. The animals in the stables were happy to see me, and I watched where I was stepping. I had a lovely shower all by myself in my own shower, then got dressed correctly.

Although I did end up wearing one of your shirts again. I did it on purpose this time and wore it correctly, it was just cozy and comfy and smelled like you. Besides your lovely arse, I had a list of bum kissing I had to do today to make up for my behavior yesterday. I know that everyone is allowed to have a bad day, and you'll notice that I'm not going to apologize to you for my strop. You have enough of an attitude that you are well aware of what it's like to throw such a tantrum for no reason.

The kids on the other hand needed a bit of an apology from me. Especially since they were all quite nice enough not to bitch back at my own bitchiness. I apologized to Zaire, who promised me that seeing me covered in mud was payment enough for whatever crabiness I threw his way. I told Shtara I wasn't really mad she had used our loo. I let Muffy know I was very sorry for blaming the lack of grapes on her, I offered to iron my hands (kidding obviously!) and she was not amused. I may have to apologize again to her.

And I apologized to the four littles for not coming home to read them their bedtime stories last night like I promised I would. Seph insisted it was fine since she's going to make me read at least five stories tonight to make up for it. Five seemed a bit excessive to me since I usually read them one joint story, but she replied with "Well, it's only fair, one story for each of us plus a new one for tonight." Hard to argue with that logic.

Atreyu snuggled into me and told me "Daddy smells better today." I assumed that was probably due to stepping in shite and being covered in mud and told him so. "No, yesterday you smell sad." Aww my little man. If pregnancy smells like pancakes to him, I wonder what my sadness smelled like? Probably brussel sprouts.

Once making up for yesterday's shortcomings was accomplished I had a chance to really think about everything you wrote to me last night as I laid snuggled up to you. I am quite concerned about the extent of your brain fog. Not concerned enough to drag you to the healers this moment. I mean, while I spent most of my pregnancies sickness constantly, brain fog has always been your body's favorite response to creating life. As though our brilliant children decided to temporarily suck up all your brain power while they had a direct link to you.

But when we go see Rowe next week for your regular check up and to see what kind of baby our B is going to be, we definitely need to discuss how bad it's gotten. You've always had what I like to refer to as Closet Amnesia. Even not pregnant, you tend to get distracted in there, the pregnancies only making it worse, but it's so extreme I'm a bit worried for your mental capacities right now.

I think it's time to put an elf on constant Draco Monitoring Duty. Similar to when Dibly was your elf-sitter during your pregnancy with Eris, except this time he's not trying to make sure you don't cast a single spell but to remind you to get dressed and tell you where you're going. Kind of like Pippa except instead of reminding you things like "your appointment with Headmistress McGonagall is in an hour" he'll say things like "you came to the loo to brush your teeth."

The awesome thing about this pregnancy though is your magic is still holding nice and stable. Getting you on the magic booster and the blood potions preemptively seems to have really done the trick. I suppose the fact that you've (knock wood) not had a single episode where you felt the need to go to the crystal room and all of your current projects taking up your time are magic free have been helpful in that regard as well.

So, we'll have a lovely weekend of shopping and snogging and probably going to see another of Shtara's performances, and then Monday before your class we'll go find out about baby B and make sure your brain isn't leaking.

But for now I am off to the stables to take care of my animal babies.

Happily Yours,
Harry

Tuesday December 6th
My sanity,

Well... That was certainly an exhausting weekend.

It started when Viona popped home after her last class on Friday. She insisted that I accompany her on her Christmas shopping, but since she was using her own vault and knows how to Apparate, I'm assuming that she actually wanted to help ME do my shopping - since I'm having a hard time remembering things and Pippa's currently staying with her family for the weekend.

Speaking of, her family is throwing her a baby shower, and the only reason we weren't invited is that we see her literally every day and her family wanted her to themselves for a bit. Her baby's not due until February, but they wanted to have the shower before the Christmas hols take over everything. But lest you panic, don't. Pippa assures me that she already got herself a 1000 Galleon Gift Certificate to her favorite shop as our present to her.

Or in other words, we've already gotten her a gift.

But back to Viona.

Our darling daughter dragged me out to Hogsmeade Friday night where we bought a little bit of everything. Then we had a lovely dinner together before popping home to get a good night's sleep. She woke me around 10 AM and insisted on 'helping' me with my morning routine so that I was done in record time.

We did a bit of shopping in Diagon before lunch, then we went to River's spa for a nice long massage to bring my blood pressure down - as it had gone up just a little. After massages, we did some shopping in Knockturn Alley. Afterwards, we had dinner before coming home for the night.

Sunday morning, we went back to River's spa to get facials and mani/pedis. I had the color scheme set as bright pastel pink as a secret hint. Viona set her color scheme as gold, which looks rather good on her. After we were finished, we went shopping all around muggle London.

All in all, it was rather enjoyable.

Monday was a bit stressful because we (you and me, not Viona) went to see Healer Rowe. You were concerned about the severity of my brain fog, but personally, I was concerned that they seemed to be fighting in there almost constantly, and while wearing a belly brace can help ease the ever increasing aching - that is slowly driving me mad - it seems like THEY hate it and kick all the harder.

Rowe assured you that the brain fog is a bit concerning, but ultimately normal. As for the kicking and body aches, it's also normal but also more alarming because I have a 23 and a half week womb in there, measuring slightly on the big side but well within normal parameters. Then I have a 20 week womb and an 18 week womb, and ALL of them are measuring normal or slightly on the bigger side of normal. Which means that I have three Quaffles - give or take - trying their best to fit in my abdomen.

Not ONLY does my bump look bigger than the Manor, but it's ALSO lumpy and bumpy! It's frankly ugly and I dislike it. I shudder when I think about how much BIGGER it's going to get!!! But that said, even though my magic is holding steady - on the low side of normal, but better than my previous pregnancies. Aside from Zwei - he's basically been my star pregnancy, a singleton with no real problems.

And he's grown up pretty much the same as he began. He's my little clone that looks like your father and doesn't cause me a lot of problems and he's always so wonderful and smart and brilliant and funny and - wait! Where was I going?

...

...

Oh!!! Right, I was talking about my pregnancy and how much it sucks that they're all crowded in there already and need to grow EVEN MORE!!! It's pulling on pretty much every muscle in my body, and that makes them all ache ferociously. They're ALSO pressing up into my ribcage, against my lungs, causing me frequent shortness of breath. PLUS!!! I can barely eat! I'm bloody STARVING and I can only eat like two bites of any given thing before I feel full!!!

The nutritive and magic boosting potions take up enough space each, that I have to take basically one each hour until I've taken them all, and that more or less replaces my meals, so it's a good thing that I'm craving that cup of your blood like it was that muggle drug - erm… Spot? Wedge? Tear? Shard? Oh!!! Crack! Yeah...

Basically, I spent probably an hour moaning about how much I REALLY wish they were all three in one bloody womb and I had a bit of room to spare in there! If not for the fact that Rowe cast a nice long and soothing healing spell on my stomach to ward off enormous stretch marks and, erm… complications???

Anyway, I felt warm and happy from the spell and nearly fell asleep. I may have actually fell asleep while you and her chatted a bit. I'm not certain.

After my Healer's appointment, I didn't even bother changing from the baggy exercise bottoms and oversized jumper I'd been wearing and went to my class with Zaire as is. Rowe still encourages me to dance as much as I want without pushing myself, but to be honest, I didn't want to MOVE - much less dance. I actually really wanted to go right back to bed and sleep another week.

Thankfully, Zaire had already anticipated these few classes before Christmas to be review and practice lessons, and so, didn't need me to help him demonstrate anything. Even better, he gave me a brilliant idea!
See, in my last class, I had one lesson in which I had all my students thoroughly exhaust themselves before taking potions so that they would learn why NOT to do that on the job. I hadn't built that into this lesson plan, so I decided to do that today.

My returning students were allowed to skip this lesson, as they well remembered the first time, which means they were actually on hand to help supervise the new students as they paired off and tried to Duel to the death without actually killing each other. They all seemed amused by the shirt I was now wearing, that said: My husband is doing WAY too much by growing three humans, and you need to go easy on him. In any case, between the veteran students and the Mediwitch keeping vigilant, I think I may have fallen asleep in my chair because I didn't need to pay as close of attention.

The reason I suspect that I might have fallen asleep is because there was a moment in which I felt a prickling up my spine and opened my eyes to find the Mediwitch casting scanning spells on me.

"Blimey!" She swore in awe as her scans presumably told her exactly what Rowe told us early - that I've got too many babies in there and not enough room. She already knew I was pregnant with three wombs - having confirmed it for Robards - but I think she assumed that we planned to selectively reduce the number for health reasons.

Remind me again why we didn't? And I don't mean that there's one in particular in there that I wish wasn't, just that I KNEW how bloody hard this would be on me, and I agreed to do it anyway. Why the fuck did I do that???

But thank all the Gods that today is Tuesday and I don't have to leave our bed to so much as go to the loo if I don't want to. I am blessed with two house elves hovering over me, offering me books, pain relieving spells, and vanishing spells on the contents of my bladder should the prospect of shifting out of bed prove too much for me.

If you need me, this is where you'll find me until I have to get ready for my class tomorrow. Chances are good that I'll be glaring at a large plate of food, because I am RAVENOUS and would quite like to eat the entire ocean, but cannot manage more than a bite or two before I feel full bordering on nauseous and have to wait a bit for my stomach to empty out again.

Maybe I'll get lucky and you'll think of a way to distract me until I fall asleep.

Love you!

You're the one I need,
Draco
P.S. So Baby B is a boy, making it a tie so far. I wonder if anyone is winning the pool?
Chapter Summary

Harry finds Draco already asleep, and Draco talks about his class.

Chapter Notes

May the Fourth be with you ^_^

Wednesday December 7, 2016

My Heart,

Good morning my love. I had a few ideas when I got your email as to how I could come and distract you until you fell asleep.

First, I thought about some form of shagging. Fine! First, second, third, and probably fourth I thought about some form of shagging. I can't help it, you're beautiful, you make me feel alive, your body is just begging to be worshiped. So when it comes to trying to take your mind off of worries or stresses, my first thought is always some sort of sexy times.

But realistically, you are exhausted and uncomfortable and not feeling particularly beautiful. While I'd love to try and show you exactly how beautiful I find you - always - you don't seem to be welcoming to that kind of thought process. I don't need to tell you I find your bump growing our children gorgeous, because right now you're uncomfortable and cranky. I shouldn't be treating you as though you aren't allowed those feelings. You can feel any way you'd like about your body. I personally still find it beautiful and attractive, but YOU are the one who has to exist within the body, so I will shush unless you say differently.

I'm not saying I won't be wanting you and initiating shagging, let's be real here, but please know that I will try and factor your comfort levels into anything we do.

I don't even need to get off. I could just kneel at your feet, rub your aching feet, your sore calves, rub lotion into your perfect skin, and keep going past comfort into pampering by painting your toe nails.

Ooh! Or we could leave you dressed if you wanted to, and I could be at your feet polishing your boots. Remember that time I polished your boots while you were wearing them and you ended up looking like posh perfection with boots that were practically mirrors but I was kneeling covered in smudges of polish?

What was I talking about?

Oh! Ways I thought about distracting you.

I also thought about sitting down with you and talking names for baby B. You know I have a million ideas. I told you some of them a while ago, but I went back into my suggestions and none of them feel right. What was I thinking? Leander? Mercutio? I mean seriously, Mercutio? We may as well name him Punny GetsStabbedALot. Talk about a bad omen.

We just need the perfect name for this little angel. It's not coming to me the way Morgana's came to me. It's like I'm just sitting around waiting for some strong name to just fall out of the heavens or something!

Then I thought to myself, maybe I could fight with you. Yeah, fight. We were supposed to spend time together this weekend shopping and roaming around getting mani pedis and massages! I'd be furious if it weren't for the fact that you ditched me for one of the most amazing people on the planet who I happen to love and adore. Also, someone we don't get near enough time with during the school year. I was still willing to fight, but it wouldn't have been very heated on my end.

I briefly thought of distracting you with yummy food, but realized that was a TERRIBLE plan since you've been hungry with no room to put the food.

I finally settled on talking with you about everything you missed when you got sleepy and zoned out at your appointment with Rowe. Yeah, that sounded like a good plan.

Then I came to our room to do the distracting and you were already sound asleep. My sleepy sweetheart.

It was adorable, Atreyu must have gotten to our room before I could and asked you to read him a story. I walked in on him sitting up in our bed, petting your hair, and "reading" the story to you. Since he doesn't actually read any English yet (and only a handful of words in Spanish), he was just making up a story based on the pictures. Those big dark eyes gave me a very stern look when I came in, making sure to tell me, "Shh, my Papa is sleepin.'"

Sir, yes Sir.

I quietly climbed into bed with you both, took the book from Trey, and ended up reading until HE fell asleep wrapped up next to you.

Despite you falling asleep before me, I was still up before you this morning and you are still sleeping. I'm so glad you're getting rest. It can't be easy with those three little Krav Maga-ers in training beating the heck out of each other in there.

Since I lost the chance to tell you all about what you missed at the appointment, I suppose this is the best place to do it. Rowe and I started seriously debating the safety and timing of when to transplant one of the little monsters. She still sticks to, unless there is some sort of emergent issue, she wants to wait until Morgana is twenty-eight weeks to move her. Well, she would only move a twenty-eight week womb regardless of who we move, it's just that Morgana will obviously get there first.

Your weeks swap over on Sundays since as far as we can tell, you got pregnant on that Saturday or Sunday during the raid. What this means is that in just under five weeks, Rowe is planning on moving Morgana to me. Unless you've changed your mind and have some issue with it happening, you will be one baby short just after the new year.

Which means I will be going from nothing to third trimester overnight!

Eek!

Anyway, I am going to go play with the kids a bit. It's kind of gloomy and rainy so I was thinking we'd skip movie night at Unity tonight and instead have a movie marathon at home all day. Stay in our jammies and snuggle up. I haven't decided on the movies but I'm thinking instead of a series, maybe we just do the movies with the very best music and have a massive sing or dance along.

Come join us if you're in the mood?

Loving you always,
Harry

Wednesday December 14th
My heart and soul,

Today has been relatively relaxing - compared to just about every day in the past few weeks. Simply waking up has been beyond me most days. Thank Merlin that Rowe approved a mild sleeping potion for me to use on days when being awake is more miserable than I can handle.

I feel like a volcano that is more than ready to erupt, and in fact HAS started to erupt, but someone put a gigantic magical lid on it so that it couldn't yet. I have definitely put on a lot of weight, and a good half of it is water weight that's making me look like a bloody puffer fish! According to Rowe at my appointment yesterday, I'm more than likely developing preeclampsia - also known as toxemia.

Basically, my body is being so stressed by my pregnancy that my blood pressure is definitely high, I'm retaining water to unhealthy levels, and I could have a stroke if this goes on too long.

On the other hand, I'm 24 weeks with Morgana, 21 weeks with Baby B, and 19 weeks with Baby C, who Rowe was able to get a clear look at and found that he's also a boy. Zwei will be so pleased! I forgot my point, sigh...

But speaking of points, I had a thought for baby B's name. Back when I was thinking of girl names, I suggested Xena, and that brought to mind Gabrielle, which I was going to suggest if we hadn't fell in love with Morgana. The more I've thought about it, the more it just feels right. So... Gabriel? And didn't you mention Pan as a middle name? Gabriel Pan? Or maybe Gabriel Draconis? Gabriel Harry? Ooo, I kinda like that...

Today was my last class before the Final, so, come Monday, my combat class will officially be over. Robards was having trouble finding a good replacement for me, and you might recall, he only offered the opportunity TO me because he couldn't really find anyone else who could do it (and apparently Ginger refuses because she believes that she'd be an even harder and more traumatic teacher than me because she has absolutely NO sympathy for others and would likely murder them all in cold blood). SO, I was actually the one to solve his problem.

Remember that Russian mobster I once 'bought' and still 'own'? Yeah, well, since I bought him for exactly this purpose, I decided that he's been retired long enough. He gets to come back to London and teach my class when it starts back up after the New Year, and continue to do so until I feel ready to come back to it. We're all assuming that he'll do the upcoming 16 week class, have a week or two off, and then do another 16 week class - at the end of which, I'll either be ready to come back (it'll be September when I start up again if so) or I'll take off an entire year and start back up next January.

In the meantime, Zaire will also be having a break from his class until after the first, then he'll finish out the last 4 weeks on his own. I was mostly an extra body in the class anyway, and he's really doing beautifully on his own. If he and Elena agree, and IF there are enough students to Teach, he'll have another class starting up in February and running until June.

But back to my combat class.

Today being the last class before the Final (on Monday), I taught the last pain spot - the throat. It was a quick demonstration since I only had to lightly jab the new students throats with the palm of my hand once each. After that, I gave them all plenty of time to spar with each other while my friend the Mediwitch kept an eye on them all.

That said, I was in a beautiful mood; my shirt was amusing (I'm sorry, I don't take orders, I barely take suggestions.) and I felt fully rested - I completely forgot to do any of my morning routine, which was probably for the best as I woke up a mere 20 minutes before I had to get to class - and was fully alert. Best of all, it seems the babies have all settled down a bit, because rather than them fighting in there, they're only squirming.

All in all, it was a good day. The best part might actually be when it was girly's turn to practice the throat punch on burly, and she decided that since he's so big and tough, she'd have to REALLY wail on him for it to make a difference. She squared her shoulders, hauled back and PUNCHED him in the throat with enough force that she legitimately killed him.

Or would have done had the Mediwitch not been RIGHT THERE to heal him right back up. It was BEAUTIFUL to watch! And then girly was so mortified and horrified by what she'd done that she squealed, fled from the classroom, and went running around the jogging track until she felt calm again.

After combat class was over, I went to my office to work with Fierston for a bit. He has made an impressive amount of progress in the past few weeks. He's now managed to figure out how to be gentle enough that his rabbit not only lets him in, but doesn't freak out when he's in there. Thus, when he cast the Legilimens spell on me and broke through a weak shield, all I felt was a mild annoyance at someone else in my mind.

I let him wander around looking for my real shields for about 5 or 10 minutes. He actually found one. One of my bigger and more overt ones. One I think I'd actually created when the Dark Lord was still alive, and it was intended for Him to break through so that He could find minor secrets and think He'd done an excellent job of reading my mind.

Fierston was able to find it and poke and prod it, but not break it. That said, the lesson of it was to help him figure out how to create better and stronger shields, all while letting him practice his Legilimency on me. When he was done, I felt a little tired, but also rather proud of him.

For his homework, I assigned him the task of finding someone - such as a girlfriend - who would let him practice his skills on them. I warned him very strongly that most minds were disorganized chaos, and that it could almost be more jarring to go into one of them than it is to go into an animal mind. The disorder, while being in a more familiar human mind, was still hard to sort through, and often filled with random thoughts that don't really mean anything.

For example, now that I am pregnant, a good half of my unorganized thoughts probably have to do with being hungry, and I might even imagine hundreds of things I might like to eat, some of them would probably even be things I WOULDN'T want to eat, and it would be a bit tricky to determine which was which unless one had a LOT of practice.

Another, related, example is that I crave blood, and while I'm getting a near endless supply of your blood - both from the potions that Sebastian has brewed for me, and from that ingenious mug he made for me - I still have flashes of wanting to bite you and drink your blood directly from your neck. If someone were to read my mind that DIDN'T know this about me, they could easily mistake me for being a vampire, or perhaps a cannibal - since I ALSO have flashes of 'eating' just about every part of your body.

And now I'm horny!!! It's frustrating in that I'm so huge at this point that I not only cannot fit through ANY doors - and the Manor is going to have to be remodeled just so I can roll my way from room to room - and thus have little to no ability to actually shag you. I WANT to shag you so badly, but my stomach makes that basically impossible, grr!

Oi! I'm coming to find you, mutt, and YOU'RE going to figure out a solution to my horniness. Even if it takes all night! But after you're done, I'm going to basically go to sleep and stay that way until Monday!

I'd like to strike you down with bliss,
Draco
Harry is creative and Draco is sleepy.

Thursday December 15, 2016

My Sanity,

So, I may have just found out some devastating information that changes everything I ever thought about my heritage and what it means for our children.

I'm going to try and do the short version, but we've both met me and the short version is still going to be way longer than most people's long version. But hopefully it will be shorter than my usual rambling which often gets away from me. I don't understand why I am so rambly. You'd think with my childhood spent in silence and attempting to make myself invisible, I would either speak constantly but make it worth everyone's time with each word carefully measured, or I would be so used to being silent that I would not have much to say.

Not the case for your rambling ridiculous man. I could just babble away and still say nothing. Looking at the last paragraph, very easily without even noticing I've done it.

Last night was a very long night. I am not complaining, I got to spend all evening figuring out how to pleasure you and worship you, but it was a long night. First, I figured I could handle your horniness simply by topping. I could find a good angle and make you scream as I pounded you. You mildly enjoyed me prepping you, but when it came to actually get inside of you, you were insistent that you already had enough extra things taking up space inside your body. That was the end of that real quick.

Then I figured I would use my mouth on you, but I either couldn't get enough of you in my mouth to really make you feel good or when I did, I kept headbutting you in the bump. Not comfortable. Same thing when I tried using my hand, I just ended up punching you in the underside of your bump.

With how hard sucking you off or handling your cock was, I knew there was no way I could just ride you. All my bits would end up getting in the way and either putting pressure on or bumping into your uncomfortable midsection.

But there was one angle that I figured would work. It took a little finagling, but reverse cowgirling it worked! It was quite the workout since I couldn't lean back and balance on my arms, but hearing you squirm and sigh and moan in pleasure? Worth every single muscle ache this morning.

But all those attempts at quenching your cravings meant I didn't get to sleep until much later than usual. And since I didn't really have anything I had to do or anywhere I had to be this morning, I decided to take advantage of it and sleep in.

Which meant my usual breakfast - which normally just ends up me and the other early risers - ended up being me with Sirius and your parents and a few of the not so early risers, but definitely not the super sleeper inners like you. I feel as though half of that last sentence was just made up nonsense words, but you know what I meant right?

So we're all sitting around and they were asking me if we had made any decisions about names. I didn't tell them anything we'd decided on except that A's name had been chosen and we were certain about it, as well as knowing the genders of all three. We talked about how seriously we've taken the naming of all of our children, it matters what it sounds like, but we also like a name with meaning. Wanting a name with meaning, finding a name that we both love and agree on, and a name that goes with Malfoy are some restrictions we need to work around, and the fact that we already have fifteen children means coming up with names we love is getting harder and harder.

To be fair, we haven't named all of them, some of these babies came pre-named! We've actually only named about half of them now that I think about it. Eight out of fifteen so far. Although we did give middle names to Viona, Hazel, and Zaire so I suppose it's more than eight.

Anyway, when I was talking about having to make sure their name sounds good with Malfoy, that's when Sirius dropped the bomb on me.

Remember when I was so annoyed at the fact that the Malfoy heir magic, the family grounds and the Manor itself, having specific requirements like being your biological child, born in wedlock, and being a son? Which means that even though Viona was first, Elena is oldest, and Eris was the firstborn of your blood, Orion is your magical official Malfoy heir. The fact that we all KNOW Viona is really your heir and our children will never want for money or love or home no matter their parentage is the only thing that kept me from throwing a bit of a strop about the sexism and blood purity requirements.

So …. turns out the House of Potter isn't exactly all that much better. When I mentioned having their names go with Malfoy, Sirius asked which kid was my heir. I laughed and said something along the lines of the Potter family not requiring everything the Malfoy snobs did (sorry Love, but you know you're all snobs) and Sirius got a very (hehe) serious look on his face. Yeah, I was acting all above the blood purity nonsense when in reality, the Potter family magics have similar requirements.

Sirius about had a panic attack when he heard that none of the kids actually carry the Potter name. Apparently he went through all of this with my mum and dad when they were expecting me. The Potter requirements are that the child be biologically related or blood adopted - although gender is irrelevant - born in wedlock, and that the child carry the Potter name. No big deal, my first child born that was biologically mine and not already an heir to another family is Eris. We can ask her if she wants the Potter heiress status (hehe, Eris the heiress) and just change her name, right?

Wrong.

Apparently since we have had dedication ceremonies to introduce our children magically to our world, Eris already has an official name according to magic. Since we have had those naming ceremonies with each and every one of our children, our only choices are to have me blood adopt one of our children and re-dedicate them or to have another child that is mine biologically and give them the Potter name.

Which would be a nightmare to choose between blood adopting a child that is already mine and then changing the name they've had their entire lives, or choosing to have another child for no other reason than to fulfill the family magics. But that lovely curse you took on, and the fact that B is mine, means that all we really have to do to satisfy magic is to give baby B the last name Potter.

So what do you think? I love your idea of Gabriel (although I am very curious how your brain took you from Xena to Gabrielle) and when I was rolling Gabriel Pan around in my head I liked it but didn't know how well it flowed with Malfoy. Gabriel Pan Malfoy? It was good, but not perfect.

But.

Gabriel Pan Potter. Oh my hell, isn't that perfect? Please tell me you love it as much as I do?

Hopeful,
Harry
P.S. When I actually SAID out loud that Eris could be it because she wasn't already the Heir to anything, Sirius laughed and reminded me that she was actually the official Heir to the Black line. And that he remembers it very clearly because it means that HE never has to worry about being thrust back into the position of Head of the Noble and Most Ancient House of Black.

Sunday December 18th
My adoration,

I'm so happy that you managed to find a way to ride me and take care of my horniness. The sad thing about pregnancy is that it typically makes us both horny as fuck, but also, extremely awkward to actually have sex. I'm so thankful for your brilliance that made finally figuring out a way that worked possible.

Next time, perhaps we should get a few toys involved, such as a small plug that vibrates and stimulates my prostate while NOT actually penetrating me too far. OR maybe we could just use the Naughty Control and cast the instant orgasm on me a couple of times. Maybe with your mouth on me.

But as for now, exactly like I said I planned to, I've taken that sleeping potion - well actually, I'm taking it in small doses that last about an hour. That way, I can wake up, take a nutritive, magic, or blood potion, try to eat a bite of food, and then take a vial of sleeping potion so that I go back to sleep for another hour. That way, I'm sleeping through most of my discomfort, but still doing my best to eat enough. I even get out of bed and stretch so that I don't atrophy.

But before you worry, the reason Rowe approved THIS sleeping potion is that it does not cross into the womb - and she double and triple checked to be certain, this potion doesn't affect the babies. Thus, I can take it as much as I like to help manage the fact that I am far too big and there's no room left in there for them to grow.

That said, as I mentioned on Wednesday, it seems that the babies have settled down quite a bit. I feel them squirming every three or four times I wake up and get up to stretch or go to the loo, but aside from that, they must do all their moving when I'm asleep.

Tomorrow is my combat class Final, and I've talked with Zaire and he's agreed that I can basically show up to our class and say goodbye to the students - since I will no longer be teaching with him after this (they're not certain why, but know I'm having some serious health problems) - and then leave that class early to have Muffy and Dibly help me set up the Final.

After the Final is over, I plan to come right home and basically go right back to bed. Tuesday, we have our next appointment with Rowe. I'm going to beg her again - and offer her ANYTHING she wants - to cast an Undetectable Extension Charm on my abdomen to give them all a bit more space in there, and even if she is adamant that she won't, I'm seriously going to try casting it on myself.
But as for now, the sleeping potion is kicking in, and so, I'm... falling... slee...

Lub...
Dr...
Chapter 95

Chapter Summary

Something happens during Draco's last class.

Monday December 19, 2016

My Sleepy Dragon,

I am so unbelievably glad today is your last class! I think I did a very good job of restraining myself from popping into your class over the last few weeks and just throwing you over my shoulder to get you out of there. It's taken a LOT of effort!

With how sleepy you've been, I really thought you'd be too tired to go to class today, but I should have known you'd figure out a way to out-stubborn your exhaustion. I bet your students are thrilled at your sleepiness, it means you don't have the energy to properly assault … I mean train them.

I shouldn't have been all that surprised that you went today, it is your last class. I can't imagine you being alright with missing this class when it's the last time you'd be training them. Either they will graduate, or they will be continuing under Oleg's instruction. By the time you go back to teaching, they should either have passed the class OR - after two or three attempts - should just be aware that being an Auror is not for them.

No judgment, being an Auror was certainly not for me!

I am definitely looking forward to your appointment with Rowe tomorrow. We need to get you some relief from these babies. Hopefully she will have some answers or some suggestions. You can't keep going like this. You're so tired, so hungry, so horny. It's just too much, I hate seeing you unhappy.

Good luck at your class! Maybe we'll celebrate with some of your suggestions when you get home!

Love,
Harry

Tuesday December 20th
HARRY!!!

I, er, I don't even know where to start!

At the beginning, I suppose.

So, after saying goodbye to my dance students, I went to the Ministry to set up the Final Exam. Once again, I had an invisible top box for any official who wanted to watch. Also, same as the midterm, I invited Ginger to kick their arses while I evaluated them.

The excellent news is that all of my returning students obtained their with honors status. Less excellent but still good is that my 'new' students all passed, but only girly obtained her with honors status, and so, the other seven will be required to take the class again. That said, they do have the option to wait a bit - which actually may have worked in fatty's favor, since he did NOT return this time and will be able to take the class from Oleg (who has years of experience teaching kids, and so, will probably be less of a hard arse).

The less good news is that it seems the MOMENT I finished telling everyone their results, you popped into the room. Keep in mind, this was while Kingsley and Robards and - for all I know - half the Ministry was still in the invisible top box watching the proceedings. You popped in all in a panic.

"Draco! Draco! It's now! It's happening!"

I wasn't quite on the same page. "Yes love, I'm nearly finished here," I assured you soothingly. But you were babbling so fast that I couldn't quite catch full sentences. Only phrases such as: "Baby girl," and "Baby boy!"

I smirked in amusement. "Yes love, we're having babies," I muttered grumpily while unconsciously stroking my ENORMOUS belly.

"NO!!!! OUR BABY GIRL ELENA IS HAVING HER BABY BOY!!!"

"What?" I asked in surprise. "Right now???

"YES!!"

"Sweet Salazar's slaggy mother!" I exclaimed in excitement, grabbing Ginger by the hand and yanking her over to me so that I could kiss her on the cheek. "You're in charge of what's left here!"

"I understand luv," she chuckled, returning my kiss on the cheek. "Go, pace and fret over your impending grandson."

You were already yanking on my arm, trying to pull me clear of extra bodies. "Too slow! We have to go! NOW!!!"

"Calm down, love," I tried to reason. "Chances are we have hou - OW!!" At that moment, I couldn't help but curl into a ball around my abdomen. "OW-OW-OW-OW-OW-OW-OW-OW!"

"OH GOD! WHAT'S WRONG?! ARE YOU IN LABOR TOO?!?!" You demanded, trying to get me to stand up straight again and shaking me a bit in the process.

"Something is TEARING through my gut!" I cried out.

This did something interesting to you. It seemed to invoke calm deal-with-all-emergencies Harry, which perhaps pissed off panicky Harry, because a bit of Rage Halo Harry showed up too.

"Right. St. Mungo's. NOW!" You snapped, as if I was trying to argue with you, but trust me, I WASN'T.

Grabbing my hand, you Apparated us to St. Mungo's before anyone else could react in the slightest.

"WE NEED HEALER ROWE RIGHT THIS SECOND!!" You shouted across the reception area for the Maternity ward.

"I'm here, love, what's the problem?" Rowe asked in return as she rushed out of her office and over "Something's wrong with Draco," you explained, again eerily calm, still holding my hand and supporting me as I was once again curled over and trying to pant rhythmically to control the pain.

"Yes, let's pop into my exam room," Rowe stated, guiding us both in there as quickly as I could be moved. Once inside, she started scanning me before the door was even fully closed. "Oh... Well, this isn't good..."

"OH GOD, WHAT?!?!?!?!!" You wailed.

"What seems like the current emergency isn't really such an emergency," Rowe began the explanation, clearly trying to calm you down. "The - what I imagine must be a painful ripping or pulling sensation - it's being caused by the three uteruses each trying to grow and stretch, thus pulling on the ligaments holding everything in place. But because they're all pushing against each other, it's straining all the ligaments to the point of near detachment. That's easily fixed and not as alarming as it almost certainly feels."

She took a breath and consulted her readings again before nodding grimly. "The REAL problem is that because none of the babies have any room left in there to move, they've had no choice but to stop moving, and as the uteruses and babies are still trying to do their job of growing, it's putting an enormous strain on all of them, causing them to - well, in essence - slowly die. Their heartbeats are MUCH slower than they should be, and if we don't do something drastic soon, we may lose them all. And possibly Draco..."

"DO IT!!! I DON'T FUCKING CARE WHAT, JUST DO IT!!" You roared, apparently back in panic mode.

"Alright Harry, I will. I just need to call in another Healer and some assistants to help me. Can you do me a massive favor and try to remain calm for a few minutes?"

Your Rage Halo was as wild as I've ever seen it, but you yourself DID appear remarkably calm as you nodded in agreement.

Rowe rushed off to get back up, and then when she reentered the room, they quickly expanded it and rolled in a second exam/operating table. At that point, Rowe and her assistants were gently but FIRMLY 'helping' me to strip off and prepare for emergency surgery. At the same time, the second Healer and his assistants were doing the same to you - albeit much more warily and snappishly since your Halo isn't exactly easy to work around.

But it was probably less than five minutes later when I was laid out on the table - naked except for a scrap of a hospital gown over my chest (good thing I'm not shy!) - with my stomach split wide open and my guts hanging out willy nilly.

Rowe was sort of shaking her head. "I don't really have a choice. I WAS going to take the oldest baby out and transfer her into Harry, but as you can clearly see, SHE'S wedged up in there good and proper. I'd have to take the other two out just to GET to her!"

"Yes," the second Healer affirmed, making me look over (and rest assured, I was at least half out of it, but still conscious as the pain blocking spells do not render one unconscious) to see that you were now ALSO on a table with your stomach cut open. However, it seems that they knew they had a bit of time and a NEED to be more careful with your guts, and so, they were magically keeping them together but floating out of your body as the Healer's assistants were using spells to literally stretch your skin and sort of hollow you out a bit.
Apparently, even though Rowe swears up and down that one cannot cast an extension spell on a living person, what she REALLY means is that they can't do it unless they can open that person up and SEE what they're doing, because they were casting a modified extension spell on your insides to make room for not just ONE womb full of baby, but two.

And that's the kicker...

"With how poorly the babies are doing, and how stressed Draco's body is doing, I fully believe that the best chance for all of them is to move both of the smaller ones over to Harry. At this point, his magic is still at full strength, and he's in perfect health. I really feel that it will be best all around if we move the two smallest to him and give them a chance to recover and thrive before they are too big to fit inside him and we have to either find ANOTHER home for one of them, or deliver early," Rowe said, as close to rambling as I've ever heard her.

"Yes, that seems clear to me as well," the other Healer concurred.

And so, with not much delay (I gather they had to cast a few more stabilization spells on all five of us), they transferred Gabriel and Dylan - Don't ask my why I'm calling him Dylan, I have no idea why, it just came to me and refuses to let go. Anyway, they were now inside you, and the Healers were doing their best to not only make them fit, but also give them as much room as they possibly could WITHOUT giving them so much that they essentially bang about and kill themselves.

Yes, I know, it's amazing that I can recall so much detail, but I think that's because at one point, I felt really strange, and turned around to see myself lying on the table, vacantly staring at you. I could sort of float, and so, had a really good view of everything in the room. Including Rowe panicking, or something VERY close to panicking as she cast spell after spell on me.

Her assistants and yet ANOTHER Healer were now focusing on getting everything back inside me the way it was supposed to be and healing the gaping hole shut. For a few LONG and tense moments, in which I'm dead certain you were put to sleep (because you no longer had your Halo, your eyes were closed, and you seemed to be sleeping peacefully), nothing seemed to happen.

Suddenly, I felt a very jarring yank and a sensation like being flung to the ground. This made me gasp and jerk as if I was going to sit completely upright, but I had about a half dozen people holding me down.

"It's alright, you're fine," someone assured me soothingly, over and over until I relaxed a bit and stopped breathing as if I was trying to flee from dementors.

"Oh thank Merlin," I heard Rowe exhale in relief. She then panted a bit, probably from a combination of said relief and magical exhaustion.

"Harry," I murmured, trying to reach for you.

"He's fine," an angelic looking woman with ginger hair assured me as she wiped sweat off my brow and carded a hand through my hair - making me feel a cooling sensation, and so, was probably gently drying sweat from my hair.

"Harry," I insisted, trying a bit harder to reach for you.

Rowe sounded ragged even as she laughed. "Best shift the tables until they can touch each other," she advised, and then jabbed a thumb in your direction. "Or that one will sense this one's distress, wake up, and cause more trouble than any of us are prepared to deal with at the moment."

Chuckling but NOT arguing, they carefully moved the tables close enough together that I could "What's going on?" I asked, once I was certain you were more or less fine.

Rowe gave me a watery grin. "We did it. We transferred babies B and C to your husband while baby A is quite stubbornly all nice and cozy inside you. Now that she has room again, she's stretching out and her heartbeat is slowly coming back to normal."

"Good. And Harry?" I pressed, still not 100 percent certain that you were doing well now that you had TWO babies inside you. After all, you'd only ever had one at a time before, and we both remember how terribly that went the last time.

Rowe squeezed my other hand. "He's doing better than you, actually. His magic is strong and steady, and so long as he doesn't accidentally exhaust it, he'll be just fine."

"Until he isn't," I grumbled, afraid that the babies would once again grow too big and YOU'D have terrible problems.

"We've done everything we can to make sure that won't happen," Rowe stated, squeezing my hand again.

"He's not nearly close enough," I growled unhappily.

Rowe laughed and shook her head. "Just give us a few minutes to prepare an actual room for you - a recovery one with a large bed. Once ready, we'll float you both over there and THEN you can snuggle up and sleep until you both feel better."

"Best cast a ten hour sleeping spell on Harry," I informed her even as I brought your hand to my lips and kissed it. And then I remembered something else that was important. "Elena?"

"Last I heard, she was only at 3CM and doing perfectly," one of the Healers I don't know replied. "I'll go check on her and let you know if there's any progress. Do I have your permission to tell HER what happened here?"

"Of course," I permitted with a nod, and then yawned. Despite using potions to sleep nearly around the clock lately, I was exhausted and could barely keep my eyes open. "And if she's okay with it, put her in our recovery room once she's had her baby."

"I'll see what I can do."

After that, I'm not entirely sure what happened as it felt like I blinked and suddenly we were in a cozy bed just big enough for both of us. Happily, I pulled you into my arms and wrapped myself around you - the best I could while we both had bumps in the way. And then I was out again for several hours before a growling stomach woke me back up. I was able to order Muffy to bring me a veritable feast of blood sausage, eggs, and passionfruit. Plus paté on sourdough rye crackers.

As I ate, I wrote this, learning that it was now actually about 2AM. You are still asleep, and I'm very glad as I can see some of the magic still doing it's work on you, shaping your stomach and sealing up the wound so that it positively will NOT tear open. And actually, it looks like it's not even going to scar, so by the time you wake up, you'll just look pregnant. Ironically, considering that I WAS collectively about 67 weeks pregnant (and LOOKED IT!!!) and am now only 25 weeks, I'm actually smaller than your collective 42 weeks pregnant. Thankfully, YOU only look about 7 months pregnant, so not TOO much bigger than me.

But now that I am full and not very sleepy, I'm going to sign off and just hold you as much as I can.
want.

I'd stare a lifetime into your eyes, so that I knew that you were there for me.

Draco
Chapter 96

Chapter Summary

Harry is both upset and relieved by recent events.

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Wednesday December 21, 2016

My Life,

I have so many negative emotions going through me right now. Mostly I am absolutely, hysterically, frantically, terrified about the fact that I almost lost you. Not only did I almost lose you just from the danger you were in with the pregnancy, but from your description, I think you had a near-death, out-of-body experience.

You were hovering over the operating room watching everything happen and then felt a yank? Like your soul was being yanked back into your body? How dare you almost die on me!

But the fear that is still coursing through my veins is completely dwarfed by my relief that you are safe and sound and whole. I woke up in your arms, with you singing softly to me. I "fell asleep" not quite sure of your safety or the babies' safety, and I woke up to an enormous stomach full of two healthy babies, being held by my husband who was safe and also carrying our third safe and healthy baby. I can't tell you how relieved I am that we came through the transfer with nothing more than a scare and one more baby in me than we had planned.

I'm actually relieved that two were transferred to me. I thought, even though you were so uncomfortable, that if the decision had been yours, you wouldn't have had me take two. Proof of that is your concerned statement of "Until he isn't" when you were told I was doing well.

My love, a triplet pregnancy is significantly different than a twin pregnancy - which is essentially what is happening. I am carrying twins. And I haven't already had months of magic drain. I am full on magic, in great health, and once we separated the three, I am essentially starting from scratch but will only have to do half a pregnancy.

Is it weird that I'm kind of excited to carry these boys? I hated that you were uncomfortable, but I was a bit jealous that you were getting the last pregnancy. I tried talking to the babies every day, rubbing your bump, going to all of the appointments, but I really wanted to help in a meaningful way. And now I am!

It is a really surreal feeling though, going from a completely flat empty abdomen to carrying a 20-22 week twin pregnancy. Usually you have weeks or months that your body slowly transitions. Nope, gained two squirming, wild humans overnight! I stood up earlier and almost toppled over. I was not ready for the change in my center of gravity! Also had a few times when they seemed to be holding a football game inside "Harry Arena" when I had forgotten I was pregnant and freaked out that my stomach was moving on its own accord.
Speaking of these two little monsters, are we agreed then on Gabriel Pan Potter? You always said you wouldn't mind giving one of our kids the Potter name, and this one there's a legitimate reason. A pureblood nonsense reason and you were raised on those!

And Dylan? I love it. Dylan Sheen? We decided on Sheen right? And do we want him to have Malfyoy like his other sixteen siblings? Or should he be a Potter like his twin? I don't have a preference really, I'd be alright with either decision.

I'm not going to throw a fit or have a tantrum over you choosing his first name without consulting me. I have definitely been there where the name just comes you to. I've had my way with so many of their names, I'm not going to complain for a name as lovely as Dylan.

But Ethan sure found reason to complain about our teeny grandson.

Oh Draco, isn't he breathtaking? We never got to meet our Lainie when she was that tiny, and seeing her features in miniature on her son? I didn't know how much I needed to see that until those big brown eyes locked onto mine. Oh this little boy is going to have his Grandpa Harry wrapped so tightly around those little fingers.

You were quite the proud Grandpa holding our little guy. Trying to act all proper while your face leaked. And our Lainie girl, exhausted, but just glowing with that new mum joy. Fiercely in love with her son already. Ready to breathe fire to give him the best of everything.

The best, according to her, including the perfect name. And it's so wonderful. Rafael Rojas Malfyoy. Our grandson.

Ethan did not like the name. He tried giving other suggestions and Lainie got all stiff. You could tell she was trying to keep sweet, calming voices around her newborn, but was close to going full Tropical Storm Elena on his arse. Ethan kept insisting that Rafael was "too old" of a name for a little boy. Elena insisting he would grow into it; it's a good strong name.

My favorite part was when Ethan's wife came back (having gone home to be with her other kids when Elena's labor had gone over four hours) to meet her new step-son, walked in on the arguing, and immediately sided with Elena. "Oh Elena! That name is just perfect. Ethan don't be ridiculous, there are plenty of nicknames you can give him while he's little, and then he won't end up an adult with a little baby's name." She then cooed at Rafael, running her hands over his peach fuzzy curls, letting him curl his little hands around her finger.

Ethan seemed to realize he was not going to win against these two strong women when they team up against him, "I... suppose I will learn to love it. Welcome to the world little Rafael."

That's when Lainie started sniffling. "Hearing someone else say it like that. It's just... I wish my first dad could be here to meet his little namesake."

And that's when Ethan started arguing again! "Elena! That was your dad's name?! Why didn't you just say that to begin with?! I wouldn't have argued if I had known you were naming him after your father!"

They're all just so ridiculous. I can't wait to see how their whole story plays out.

Anyway, I have to sign off, I need to pee again.

Yeah, again.

Sigh,
Friday December 23rd
My perfection,

Today is our last day of relative peace in the hospital before we go home. Well actually, we're being discharged in about an hour, but even though I am SO ready to go home to OUR bed, I will sort of miss the fact that HERE, I'm basically assured of 24 hour medical attention if necessary.

For example, even though Morgana is doing so much better now that she has room to stretch, she nearly strangled herself with her umbilical cord, and had we not been in here with monitoring spells on every square centimeter of us, she might have succeeded. But I understand that it's not likely to happen again and we're all fine; thus, there's no reason to stay here any longer.

Yes, we did have my parents and Molly and Arthur bring the kids to visit in small shifts - minimizing stress until we were beyond even the possibility of health concern - but it was still far more managed than if we'd been at home where they could come in whenever they wanted us. I'm not complaining about normal times, as I quite love our kids and enjoy when they come spend time with us, but the last few days, it felt like their constant presence would have been just a hair too much to cope with.

I was so happy to have Yesenia come in and talk with me. Even better, you had Katja come in to talk to you, and so we had a double session in which we got to hash out ALL of our feelings about what just happened. Then we each had a smaller after session to be sure there wasn't anything we felt the need to talk about but didn't want to say in front of the other. For the record, I had nothing that didn't come up in our joint session, and I won't pry about your solo session.

But anyway, you are currently in the decent sized tub in the bathroom connected to our hospital room. As I suggested, Elena is sharing our room, tucked in her own smaller bed as she nurses her gorgeous little Rafael. Just watching her is making me want to go home already and cuddle my grandbaby cheetahs. Oh! Here she comes to snuggle up to me so I can stroke his head as he eats and falls asleep.

Oh Harry, how did we get so lucky that this is our life?!

Shut up Elena, I am NOT leaking!

Apparently Elena is insisting that I sign off and send this email so we can gossip and talk smack about people when they can't hear us - and NO that doesn't mean you (unless you think talking about how much we love you is talking smack, hahaha).

I am a man who would fight for your honor, I'll be the hero you're dreaming of, we'll live forever, knowing together, that we did it all for the Glory of Love,

Draco
P.S. I know you WANTED to take some of the burden from me, and I know you are doing way better than me so far, but I still think it's important to tell you... THANK YOU for being amazing and doing what you needed - what we BOTH needed you to do in order to save these wonderful little parasites inside me, now us. I love you so much that if I could swim in my love for you like water, I'd be swimming in an endless ocean.

Chapter End Notes
Once again, Harry asked for Draco to confirm name choices, and Draco doesn't seem to reply ever, this is because he agrees and doesn't feel the need to actually write it down. Rest assured, they've actually talked about it in person, lol ^_^
Chapter 97

Chapter Summary

Just another family drama, I mean Christmas.

Saturday December 24, 2016

My Ridiculousness,

Per usual, I am awake on the night before Christmas, thinking about my life, thinking about how absolutely blessed I am. Thinking over my past and our family's future. Currently, I am stroking my belly, talking to our sons, and thinking about how amazing this entire situation is.

But before I get mushy ... Draco Lucius Malfoy!!! Watching your daughter nurse your newborn grandson made you want to … cuddle your cheetahs? You are a lunatic. My lunatic, but a lunatic nevertheless.

Beside actually having to wrap my mind around how drastically my body and lifestyle changed over the last handful of days, I can't help but be amazed at how wonderful I feel carrying new life. I was resigned to never feeling this again. And when you fell pregnant, I was resigned to trying to enjoy it vicariously through you and do my best to hide my jealousy. Instead I am now carrying MORE babies than you are! Plot twist!

I'm not going to tell you not to thank me for taking this on. First, because I know you like to do the opposite of what I tell you just for spite and I don't need to give you any ammunition. But secondly, because I am sure I would be doing the same thing and feeling the same way if you had been the one to take this on from me. We all know I have zero interest in sex AS or WITH a woman, so it's a moot point, but theoretically, I would feel the same way.

But you really don't have to thank me. You are my first priority at all times. I would do ANYTHING to keep you safe and healthy.

On to my Christmas Eve rambling...

It seems our lives have come full circle. Years ago when we first started our family, I decided to start the tradition of matching Christmas pajamas. For the first few years, even Elena as the oldest, played along or even liked my ridiculous pajama decisions. Snowflakes and penguins, jolly Father Christmas faces, cats with silly hats, polar bears, full footy pajamas that made the wearer look like an elf. The obnoxious pajamas were a hit. Then as the children got a bit older, they started putting their feet down about how silly they looked.

They all still love me enough to endure matching Christmas pajamas, but they were begging for plain cozy flannels instead of the over the top nonsense.

Now though, we have quite a few little ones who never got the magic of silly pajamas. They've only known the plain boring ones. And when I brought the feisty foursome out for a few hours to help me shop for the Unity Kids (since you ditched me for a day with the Princess!), they saw the absolute tackiest Christmas pajamas I've ever seen. And I have seen a LOT!
You obviously just saw them a few hours ago, I even made you wear them long enough to take a picture (and you’re wearing them for present opening as usual tomorrow morning. It’s tradition! So, I don’t really NEED to tell you about them, but I need to describe them simply because they’re so amazing I have to remember every single part of them.

Your youngest children (for now) insisted their entire family wear these for Christmas. Picture it: bright blue fleece head to toe onesie pajamas. Footie pajamas without actually having the feet covered. Then it’s covered in rainbow-haired unicorns flying across the fabric. But those unicorns weren’t alone were they? No no. They had a rider, a beloved Father Christmas riding unicorns carrying his sack of toys. That should be enough. But it wasn’t the end. Oh no. Then, on the arse, they had a bum flap that was not only bright red but commanded in bright letters that the wearer or the reader must, "Don't Stop Believing".

Have you ever seen anything so spectacular in all your life?

And I know you pretended to be a scrooge about it, but not only were your children lit up with joy at how fun they found these ridiculous clothes to be, it also turned into a giant family sing-along. And we all know how much you love a big family sing-along.

Especially since you’re feeling so much better after passing off Gabriel and Dylan to me that you had enough energy to dance around a bit while we all sang.

I usually go on and on about how these holidays or the eves before the holiday make me feel. I could do that. We have a brand new grandson snuggled up in his own tiny set of pajamas. A new son enjoying his first Christmas with us, finally having passed out in a bit of a sugar coma after his Grampy Lulu let him sneak way too many sweets. Another grandchild on the way, healthy and cozy in our Eris - who seems to be thriving during her pregnancy. We have three brand new lives on the way to joining our family. And through it all, you and I have each other.

But I think picturing our entire enormous crazy wonderful family dancing around in ridiculous clothes to make the youngest of the group happy, singing and hugging, laughter ringing out, I have to end with that because I can't think of anything more perfect.

Merry Christmas My Love,
Harry
Sunday December 25th
My dearest love,

Since a few of us are too pregnant to want to go anywhere - and yes, I realize that I'm now 'normal' pregnant and have been to rituals while pregnant before, I don't care, I'm still recovering! Anyway, since I didn't want to go anywhere, rather than go to the Hogwarts Yule ritual (which was technically while we were in the hospital anyway), we all just planned to have the kids come home this year.

As I understand it, my parents and their kids that have already graduated actually took all our kids to the ritual to keep them preoccupied while we were in the hospital. But where I was going with this is that all our kids are home at the moment, and we're having a lovely day so far.

It started up with me waking up in a decent mood just in time for the traditional Christmas morning walk. Yes, we ALL bundled up with a fuck load of warming charms and went for a walk down the road past our muggle neighbors, and actually had a chance to stop and chat with our local farmer - who is positively DELIGHTED that we've been ordering more than ever lately.

Then we came back to eat a veritable feast for breakfast - a full English fry up with everything including tomatoes and beans. I have to admit, now that the elves have gotten the recipe for baked beans from Molly, I really like them, whereas before, I kind of had to be in the right mood for beans.

After our family breakfast, we FINALLY (according to our littlest) gave in and opened presents. I lost all track of who gave what to who. In fact, due to my extreme brain fog while shopping, I'm not even certain what I gave anyone. Except you, I remember quite clearly that I gave you that, erm, thing, you really wanted. That thing thing.

Anyway, it really is more fun for me to watch the kids open presents than to open them myself, and even though we have EVERYTHING we could ever want or need, you still got me something. Actually, at this point, the present you got me is going to come in handy for both of us.

You bought a REALLY nice massage table, and then had Aya magic it with her lovely custom spells so that it can comfortably accommodate pregnant bellies. Plus spells to prevent falling off if one should happen to roll over in one's sleep. That just means that if I reach the too tired to get through the day stage again, I'll have this cozy little nest like table to lay on - which takes the weight of the pregnancy off the back - and just nap until I feel refreshed again.

I also promise to NOT sleep on the table instead of in bed with you each night.

Oh! Speaking of us in bed, I positively LOVED how we spent an hour or so in our playroom last night. Sure, it's still awkward to shag while very pregnant, but at least neither of us are so big that it's impossible. We just need to be creative about positioning, such as 69, which worked well enough. As did the whipping X - which we were able to adjust so that it didn't put any pressure on your bump while I spanked you.

Sweet buggering Merlin! It's been nearly two DECADES and I still feel like I could shag you a hundred times a day - were we not both pregnant and parenting a million kids, hahaha.

But back to the family gathering. It was pure, wonderful chaos! My parents were naturally there, but so were my siblings, ALL our kids - including Miles and his family; and Beatrix, Finn, and Blake. Tiger and Viper were here with their kids, meaning Viper's four, their two, and Tiger's River and Viona.
Side note, his Viona STILL seems to have a bit of an attitude against OUR Viona. I think that being raised so many years in a rather strict private school, has made her hard in a way that's just never going to soften. I feel a little bad for her, and actually gave our Viona a long hug and kiss on the cheek because I inadvertently imagined her having the childhood she COULD have had - had Olivia not given her up and we adopted her.

Viona rolled her eyes and shook her head in amusement before going back to sit on a chair so close to Alric that she may as well've just sat in his lap. They chattered on about the Import Export business (named Port Malfoy) he's running. Apparently, he's having a blast and doing really well with it.

Delphini was rather grumpy, now that she's 33 weeks pregnant and growing impatient for it to be over already. Part of it is the fact that she's been holding Rafael as much as possible, cooing over him and tickling his little toes, and part of it is that she's carrying her boy OUT - much like you did with Orion.

I find it inappropriately amusing that as much as Delphini SAID that she didn't want anything from my brother as the father, she's been nagging at him like they've been married for 30 years. "Sebastian, get me a pillow for behind my back! Sebastian, rub my bloody feet! Sebastian, brew me a mild pain relief potion!"

"OI!!! I'M NOT YOUR BLOODY BOYFRIEND, GET YOUR OWN DAMN STUFF!!!"

Sebastian roared even as he conjured up a plump pillow and shoved it roughly behind her back.

So... Were you as surprised as I was by the DRAMA?

Perhaps I SHOULD have seen this coming, at least partially. Sirius and Leah DID actually have a brief relationship. So, it makes a bit of sense that he might still occasionally have a booty call with her, despite trying to have real boyfriends here and there over the years. I think he's either just so set in his ways that he can't quite change enough to keep a partner happy. OR MAYBE he had a one true love already and just can't quite get over him (or her).

I imagine that if you were no longer in my life, I might TRY to find love again, but I'm also dead certain that I would NEVER find someone else I want to actually live with and marry, and NONONO! NO MORE KIDS!!! I don't care if I was suddenly soulmate bonded to a woman who'd never had kids and wanted some, NO!!!!!

But back to Sirius. So it seems that Leah was a bit oblivious, so focused on OUR kids (helping Jaz with speech therapy and homework in general, tutoring Zaire as necessary, and then keeping a sharp eye on Shtara at all times during the play), that she just never noticed that she was pregnant. To be fair, she doesn't really look it. Apparently she found out this morning and came out to cry about it to the whole family.

"YOU GODDAMN BASTARD!!!" She wailed, sobbing as if he'd just murdered the love of her life. He looked utterly baffled. "YOU SELFISH PRICK! FORGETTING TO USE THE PROTECTION SPELLS AND GETTING ME UP THE DUFF, I SHOULD BLOODY WELL MURDER YOU!!!"

"WAIT JUST A MINUTE NOW!" He roared in protest. "WE HAVEN'T BEEN TOGETHER IN MONTHS SIX AT THE VERY LEAST!!! AND I BLOODY WELL CAST THE MERLIN DAMNED PROTECTION SPELLS!!!"

"FIVE AND A HALF, YOU ARSEHOLE! WHICH IS THE LAST AND ONLY BUGGERING TIME I SHAGGED ANYONE IN NEARLY TWO BLOODY YEARS!!!
"OI! THIS IS NOT MY BLOODY FAULT! I BLOODY CAST THE BUGGERING PROTECTION SPELLS!!"

"WELL IT CERTAINLY ISN'T MY BLOODY FAULT!!!" Leah roared indignantly. "SINCE IT WAS YOU THAT GOT BORED AND ASKED ME OUT DANCING UNTIL WE BOTH GOT TIPSY AND CAME BACK TO YOUR ROOM AND KNOCKED ME THE FUCK UP!!"

I'm pretty sure we'd all asked our elves to serve us popcorn by that point and were silently watching in awe. I think you may have attempted to cast silencing spells on our youngest ones' ears, but since Leah was habitually signing everything she said, they all understood it anyway. Tiger was doing his best to cover BOTH of his youngest kids' ears, and curl them into him so that they couldn't read the signs, but I saw them both watching from under his arms anyway.

As shocking as the argument was - and it was plenty shocking - it had NOTHING on what came next.

Pippa marched over and punched Sirius so hard that he went tumbling a full circle before landing flat on his back. "YOU FUCKING WANKER!!! WHEN YOU TALKED ME INTO THAT ONE OFF, YOU Sware UP AND DOWN THAT YOU CAST THE PROTECTION SPELLS, BUT I GOT BLOODY UP THE DUFF ANYWAY!!!"

"I DID CAST THE SPELLS!!!"

"Do you suppose you simply don't remember how to cast them correctly?" Sebastian wondered from where he was watching this whole scene play out with almost maniacal interest.

"OF COURSE I BLOODY REMEMBER!!!" Sirius roared as he slowly rolled over and gingerly picked himself back up. He then stood there rubbing his jaw and neck until my mother took pity on him and cast a healing spell from where she was sitting with a smirk of amusement.

"THEN WHY THE FUCK ARE WE BOTH PREGNANT WITH YOUR CHILD?!?!?!?" Pippa demanded fiercely. Apparently she WAS content with being a single mother of a one-off baby until now, because she'd never once hinted that this was even a possibility.

"I DON'T BLOODY FUCKING KNOW WHAT HAPPENED, BUT I KNOW I CAST THE MERLIN CURSED SPELLS!!!" Sirius insisted.

You interrupted what would have been shouted next by laughing. Everyone nearly sprained their necks whipping to look at you. Sirius looked mildly offended that you were laughing at him at a time like this, but also, seemed to appreciate that your father would almost certainly be laughing his arse off if he were here.

"Is it possible that YOUR MAGIC purposely failed - despite casting the spells correctly - for almost the exact reason you told me recently? That YOUR magical inheritance - and I'm not talking head of the family or the Black vault or anything like that - but your actual MAGIC is trying to pass on its legacy?"

We all seemed to stop and think that over for a few moments of glorious silence.

"Er..." Sirius murmured uncertainly, because none of us knew for sure IF that was even possible. That said, it DOES rather explain things.
Both Pippa and Leah sighed and apparently decided that he might possibly deserve the benefit of the doubt. They walked over to a free loveseat and sat down to discuss how this was going to work now that they knew they were carrying siblings. With the drama now over for the moment, Sirius left the room - probably to think things through as well - and Viper followed him to give him an ear to listen and a shoulder to cry on if necessary.

And so, that's how our lovely day took an interesting turn before smoothing back out again and ending with the two of us snuggled in bed with MOST of our kids piled around us while we watched cheesy Christmas movies.

Where there is desire there is gonna be a flame, where there is a flame someone's bound to get burned, but just because it burns doesn't mean you're gonna die, you gotta get up and try try try, Draco
Monday December 26, 2016

My Gift,

Well, another Christmas season in the books. And another one well spent I'd say.

You know that while we have certain times in their childhood where we may spend more time with one child over another, or have more in common with certain children, I love each of them the same amount. Which I would say is roughly "all of the love." Not really sure how I can love soon to be nineteen (plus) people, each with my entire heart. I could run that idea through my mind forever and not come up with an answer. I could also drive myself mad, so I should probably avoid thinking too deeply on it.

But for me this holiday season, my absolute favorite part was having my River home to celebrate with us. He'd been moved out of our home for a while by the time he married and moved. Just like Elena, he wanted his own space and the ability to fly with his own wings. But he was still close by. I could pop over to his spa for lunch, he could come to dinner every night if he wanted, and when I randomly wanted to talk to him during the day I didn't have to figure out the time change and worry I might end up calling him in the middle of the night.

Somehow I thought him living so far away wouldn't really be all that different with our ability to talk whenever and the ease of travel magic affords us. Nope. I miss my sweet boy like I'd miss a limb if it were gone. But I'm so proud of him being brave enough to start over somewhere so far away. And I am so happy that he has found the love of his life and knew he had to move so she could follow her own dreams.

We raised a pretty amazing young man.

It was really great that he and Maha came home for the holidays. I wouldn't have blamed them if they had wanted to spend their first one together in their own home. I would have been devastated! But I would have understood. I would have been very careful to only cry about it when he wasn't able to witness it happening. They seemed to be happy to come here but they are definitely heading home before New Year's Eve so they can have a big shindig with their friends out there and ring in the New Year a bit more like a newlywed couple than part of an asylum.

Our "smaller" crowd yesterday at home was wonderful, but you know how much I look forward to Boxing Day at the Burrow every year. And as usual, it didn't disappoint.

I have to say though, I am so thrilled we all chipped in and forced Molly and Arthur to expand the House a few years ago. Six kids, one extra kid, nine spouses, and I believe it is thirty-nine collective grandkids—might as well be grandkids—and great grandkids. And we almost always have a couple extra stragglers in there; some years Miles and family come or Finn, Bea, and Blake - Teddy and Andromeda usually come - and often the older grandkids will bring friends or significant others (such as Alric). That is a LOT of people to try and pack into one home.

We have a massive Manor and when everyone gets together, it can feel crowded. The Burrow was meant to be a cozy home, not an event venue. I thought Molly would put her very stubborn foot down and refuse the help, but I think we were all pleasantly surprised when she just went with it. She even laughed and said "You children are the ones creating this mob, you might as well help make some room for them all!"

I'm quite pleased with how it turned out. The original structure stands as is, but there is a nice sitting room and entrance off the back where the living room was that opens into a massive additional structure. It's like the event venue I mentioned them not having, but cozier. Comfortable couches and chairs scattered artfully around the room. Easily mobile for when we want to move all the seats around something like the tree for gift opening, but can be put elsewhere if we want smaller more intimate areas for mingling. It has a nice big play area off to one side so the littles can have something to do where the adults can still keep an eye on them.

But my favorite part is the wall of pictures. At one point during some party, I had dragged Molly into our room and showed her OUR wall of portraits. She fell in love and it was the one thing she insisted on when we were having the party room built.

At the end of the evening when the little ones started getting sleepy, I loved carrying Atreyu to look through all the pictures. Not sure why, but I've never made a point of doing so with the one we have at home. Thus he thought it was funny to see his siblings at various ages. But his favorite picture was the one from our wedding. I thought he wouldn't recognize us, as you said it's been almost two decades! We were just babies! But he knew us right away and called us pretty!

He was certainly half right! You are still the prettiest person I've ever seen in my life.

I'm excited to see which group picture from this year Molly decides to add to the wall.

Will she choose the first attempt, where a giggling River and Siri sat in between Atreyu - next to River - and Eris on the other side of Siri, the four of them right in front? You notice the ARSE immediately because River and Sirius couldn't stop laughing. But the smirking Blaise, Elena, Dominique, Lily, Anastacia, and Molly II was a bit more subtle. Which is why, when Molly first made the arse crew shuffle themselves, she let Bedlam continue on for a few more shots.

Neville, Angelina, Kisa, and YOU snapped up Eris awfully quickly when Molly made them swap around. All of you having fantastic poker faces meant there were also a lot of attempts that ended up NAKED.

We had a SCAMP, a FRANK (oddly enough using Fred and not Frank), our Weasley family picture also included a PRANK. When Persephone tried attempting a PRAT was when I think we could all tell Molly was hitting the end of her rope. She might not murder anyone, but I was pretty sure she was going to start taking away pudding privileges. I'm just glad no one has a W name because I really do think Molly would have cast some really uncomfortable hexes if we'd been able to pull off WANKER.

So that's when we went with the original (nice) plans and called out for everyone to "hit your marks!"

Some of us were just randomly placed, mature people sitting next to the naughtiest to keep an eye on them. But the very front row was …

Atreyu, Lily, Lucy … Tatyana, Hazel, Elena … Louis, Orion, Viona, Eris
Now, I am going to get some sleep. It was exhausting trying to hide my vomiting from a big group of people all day. I really thought starting the pregnancy from the end of the second trimester would mean I'd avoid the nausea. Haha! Nope!

Yours,
Harry

P.S. Don't think we are not going to Siriusly discuss the pregnant Pippa and Leah situations! I just wanted to avoid drama after how wonderful today was. I can't wait to freak out about it tomorrow though!

Tuesday December 27th
My wonderful husband who is still willing to be silly with me,

Yesterday's photoshoot was lovely, but my favorite part of the day has to be when we came home. We tucked all the littles into various places to sleep (meaning that they ALL wanted to sleep in the stables with their horses, unicorns, and thestrals), and let the middles and bigs do whatever they wanted so long as it didn't burn down the Manor.

Then the two of us went to our play room to play. I had certainly intended to spank you - as I KNOW you always want - and you had intended to get on your knees and worship me (as I almost always want), but that's not exactly what happened.

It was rather embarrassing! After all these years of being married to you, I still don't particularly like the fact that my body occasionally makes strange noises or... aromas... I always try to walk away a bit or go to the loo when I think it might happen. And if I can't get away in time, I try to cast silencing spells and air freshening spells.

But to my mortification, being pregnant is always a time when I not only CAN'T cast such spells, but my body does these things without warning. So I erm… made a rather loud... noise. So loud that it sounded a bit like a fog horn.

Naturally, YOU found this hilarious and were just HOWLING with laughter, which I did NOT appreciate. I WAS going to grab the Naughty Control and use it to cast a spell to quickly tie you up so I could punish you, but your face turned green so abruptly that I thought you were going to faint. Instead, you rapidly conjured a bucket and filled it with some of that excellent feast we ate. Now far more sympathetic than upset, I rubbed your back and hummed soothingly. At that point, sexy playing just didn't seem likely. Instead - once the bout of nausea had passed and Dibly had popped in to give you a stomach settling potion - I decided to try to cheer you up by tickling you.

Of course, you were NOT about to just let me get away with tickling you, so you tickled me in return, prompting me to try to get away, but all that really accomplished was us both tripping over and into the bed. Once in bed, we continued our feather light assault on each other, rolling and wrestling around until our laughter faded to kisses and wanking each other to a lovely conclusion.

What could have been traumatizing enough to send me to my closet to stroke my Komboloi for the night ended up being really wonderful and amazing. Especially when we simply held each other and drifted off to sleep.

But now it's 'morning' and I'm rather eager to find you and see if you are hungry enough to have breakfast with me. Now that I can eat again (not a lot, but still more than just a week ago), I want to enjoy every bite while smiling at your gorgeous face.

All my love and more,
Draco
Chapter 99

Chapter Summary

An unexpected visitor pisses Harry off.

Chapter Notes

 Trigger warning  Draco has a vision that includes an open case of a missing child and all the traumas that can entail

Wednesday December 28th
My Love,

If I can't laugh at disgusting bodily functions with my husband, then what's the point of it all? Honestly, I have been inside of you … a lot. I have been there when children were removed from inside your abdomen. You and I have been in the loo at the same time, getting ready while the other one uses the toilet. How is hearing you pass gas possibly any worse than being in the same room while you pass the stuff that didn't make it into gas?

I sicked up and that is obviously much more disgusting than a little stinky air.

We so often have nights of lovemaking that are intense. Painful but orgasmic. Hot and sweaty, screaming and moaning, just insanely hot. And then there are nights where it's slow and sweet, we stare into each others eyes and I feel like I can see into your soul. Our bodies feel like they were two parts of a whole that finally came back home.

But those nights where we fall into bed laughing, tickling each other, or teasing each other. Where I call you "Malfoy!" in the same way I did when we were teenaged arseholes, and you call me "Potter!" with the sharp P and a sneer on your face. When we try a new position and our sweaty skin makes us slip and fall, or I get a glance of us in the mirror and the reflection makes it much less sexy than it feels. And I fall more and more in love with you.

You're my passionate love. You're my soulmate. But you're also my best friend. And if you can't be a lunatic with your best friend then who can you be a lunatic with?

Speaking of lunatics … what's going on with Sirius?!?

Good segue yeah?

I know, not one of my best, but these little guys are stealing all of my intelligence right now. You might get foggy and forget things but I feel like I need a calculator to figure out how many socks I need at a given moment.

Or maybe trying to wrap my mind around the magic/one-off/pregnancy situation is what's using all of my brain function.
So, first I thought maybe he just completely forgot HOW to cast a protection spell. I mean, for the most part he's been shagging a lot more men than women, and it's so unlikely for a man to get pregnant on accident.

How many accidental pregnancies have we had so far? Three? Four? I've lost track.

Anyway, not only does he tend to swing to the male side of his bisexuality, but he's also more likely to sleep with muggles than witches or wizards. He hates the notoriety his name gets him, used to be a playboy, then was a murderer, then an escaped convict, then he was dead, and now he's the guy who came back from the dead.

I wonder what it's like having a notorious name?

He pretty much finds it easier to have one-offs with muggles because they don't know him, he's just a fit guy. The few people in the wizarding world he's shagged, as far as I know, has been limited to Pippa, Leah, and Viper. And whether it's a preference or because of his trauma, but Viper is very rarely a "catcher" anyway. As far as I know, he's only willing to catch for his husband.

Hell of a pitcher though.

I figured the Black line hurting for an heir would be the only reason his magic would go all wonky. After we found out about Pippa AND Leah, Sirius went to Gringott's to see if there was any weirdness going on. Like maybe Eris being pregnant made her fall from being the official heir. Nope, Miss Eris Lyra Malfoy is still the next in line according to all the goblin's tests.

When I was giving you and your family a hard time about their ridiculous inheritance rules; the biological aspect, needing to be magical, etcetera, I didn't realize it was more than a matter of following the traditions of ancient arseholes. That Magic herself had a say in it all. I have always thought of magic as this natural resource, a beautiful gift from the Earth that I'm thankful for, but essentially a mindless tool to use by my will.

But from what Sirius told me about the Potter line, and the Potter Magic, it is practically sentient. If anything, WE are Magic's tools and we dance along to Her music. But if Sirius was really casting the protection spells, and why would he lie? He's a well off, handsome man, who's famous. If he really wanted a child, he wouldn't have to trick two people he knows and cares about into carrying one. So if the spells were cast, the only other answer that makes any sense is that the Black family Magic wanted a continue.

Now I have a million and one questions. What does this mean for magical theory? Has there been extensive testing on Magic's sentience and I've just never heard of it because my education was subpar? It brings up questions of fate versus destiny versus free will. Are we actually magical or did Magic just choose her puppets to play along?

I can't stop thinking about it. I can't stop coming up with new questions and paths I want the questioning to go down. Is this what it's like being in Hermione's brain all the time?

Scary.

I think I'm going to go drown my brain in ice cream.

Yours,
Harry
My beloved Harry,

I'm a tiny bit exhausted.

But before I get into our day, let me just back up a bit and state for the record that all these years later and you can still be a bit oblivious, hahaha. Yes, we HAVE shared the loo many a time, but you apparently didn't notice that the majority of those times are YOU using the loo while I look in the mirror so I can moisturize my face - or whichever part of my routine I'm doing. It is very very rare that I do business other than weeing with you in the bathroom, and if I absolutely have to because it's a bit of an emergency and I just can't wait for you to finish whatever you're doing, I always cast silencing and air freshening spells so that at the very least, I can pretend that you're assuming that I'm just weeing and too tired to stand up for it.

In any case, I know it's neurotic, but I just can't stand the thought that you associate my arse with anything other than shagging. Logically, I know that you know other business happens back there, but I do try my very best to ignore that fact and just pretend it doesn't.

That said, I will admit that us laughing and playing like kids the other night because of my rude bodily function was a memory that I'll probably cherish until I die. Ironic and incongruent, I know, but there it is. Shrugs.

Moving on.

So today, we were having a lovely and rather lazy day. All our kids were busy doing their own things - our younger ones happily entertaining Tatyana, Misha, and Tristan. Meaning that they were all out in the stables giving the equines so much love and attention that one or two of the horses might find themselves moving to Russia soon, haha.

Meanwhile, we adults were having tea. This means that you, me, my parents, Sirius, Pippa, Leah, Elena, Eliza, Della, Delphini, and Sebastian were, ahem, quietly and civilly debating things like the current Quidditch standings, possible candidates for Minister for Magic should Kingsley decide to retire, how deplorable the official - vague - sex ed in Hogwarts is, and:

"I still say that we should just TELL the muggles! We could help them with so many things! Potions for the common cold being the very least we can do," you argued.

"Don't be stupid!" My father countered. "If we TOLD the muggles about our kind, they'd have massive witch hunts - just like in the old days!"

"They might not, dad," Della stated speculatively. "So-called 'witchcraft' is a valid and legal religion in Britain these days. If our kind came out as real, I think we'd have more support from muggles than hate."

"Well now you're just being bloody naïve!" Dad roared. "Oh sure, we'd have those with enough brains to suck up to us like leaches for any bit of magical help we are willing to give, but even if 90 percent of muggles were on our side, that remaining 10 percent would secretly hunt us all down and murder us in cold blood, and don't think for a second they wouldn't!"

My mother demurely sipped her tea before sighing morosely. "I fear your father is right. This exact thing HAS been tried several times over the millennia, and there's a REASON for the Statute of Secrecy. Muggles cannot be trusted to know our secret."

"They are largely too stupid and boorish to know about magic!" Dad practically shouted, clearly having strong feelings on this subject. "At best, they'd want us to do all sorts of magic for them, and all the while, they'd be plotting to destroy this thing they cannot control!"

"YOU'RE NOT GIVING MUGGLES ENOUGH CREDIT!!" Della rebutted passionately.

"AND YOU'RE THE DAUGHTER OF A WOMAN WHO TORTURED MUGGLES FOR FUN WHENEVER SHE GOT THE CHANCE! YOU'RE THE ADOPTED DAUGHTER OF A MAN WHO ONCE OR TWICE DID THE SAME THING!!! YOU REALLY THINK MUGGLES ARE GOING TO WANT YOU TO BE THEIR FRIEND?!?!?!" Dad shouted, standing up, his hand slammed on the table, as he stared Della down.

"IT'S NOT LIKE THEY KNOW THAT!" You yelled, defending our little sister.

As I said, a fairly normal conversation in our house. It probably would have gone on like this for quite some time - we DO love expressing our opinions after all - but one of our veritable army of house elves popped in just then to announce that we had a visitor come through the main floo for unannounced guests - right off the entryway, behind secure wards in case they were unwelcome.

"Masters and Mistresses, a Mr. Gawain Robards to see Master Draco."

"Mother fucking son of a bitch!" You exclaimed in dismay. "What does HE want?!"

I laughed and kissed your hand. "Only one way to find out," I murmured before gesturing for the elf to bring him to us.

A moment later, Robards strode toward us from where the elf had popped him into the room. "Malfoy, I HATE to do this, but I am more concerned with her safety than anything else. Thus, I need your help." He thrust a small stuffed dog into my hands.

You stood up very abruptly, and then winced as your bump protested the quick movement. Pressing a hand to your abdomen, you glared at Robards. "WHO gave you permission to use my husband however you like?!!"

But it was too late, a vision had overtaken me swift and clear.

"I'm standing in a child's room, a little girl's room? There's a LOT of stuffed animals, a small table with a tea set, and a few dolls. I assume this is a girl's room, but it could easily be a boy's. Perhaps a shared room for littles of both genders. In any case, it's dark and... there's a child sleeping in the small bed. Upon a second look around, there's only one bed, and so, not as likely to be a shared bedroom.

"The child is sleeping peacefully, and then the door opens slowly. Silently. A man enters the room; he's wearing all black and sticking to the shadows. He mutters a spell, and based on the color of the spell and the fact that it didn't seem to do anything overt to the child, I'm thinking a sleeping spell. He looks through the door to be certain no one is out there, and then strides over to the bed. Very gently, he pulls aside the covers and scoops the girl - based off her long pink 'my little pony' nightgown - into his arms and cradles her carefully as he turns to leave the room.

"I'm this little stuffed dog as I follow them. It seems to be late at night as all the open doors they pass show sleeping occupants. An older girl. A teen boy. A couple that must be their parents.

"Still as silently as possible, the darkly clothed man sneaks out of the house. Outside on the street just beyond a little gate, he pauses to look back at the house and cast wards. A standard array of home protection wards. I can only guess that he had disabled them to begin with and is now putting them back up so that the family thinks nothing is wrong."
"That much is true," Robards interjected. "The parents are frantic, thinking that their little girl must have accidentally got out of the house and got lost in the nearby woods. We've searched every millimeter of those small woods, but her presence must have been magically erased, because they can't find anything newer than a few days prior to the disappearance. Not even the trail leading out of the house. And there's no trace of anyone else entering the house either."

I could tell that he was talking more to himself than anything, which was fine because I had a bit of a wait while I followed the man carrying the girl. As he walked, I was able to describe scenery and any turns he took. I can't be certain where this is, but it reminds me a bit of Ottery St. Catchpole. It's a rural - nearly suburban - area that is primarily muggle with a good bit of wizarding families making up the population.

Beautifully, and very unlike most of my visions, this one walked me right past the man's address as he turned into his yard, and then into his house. That said, the vision ended abruptly as the wards around the house presumably prevented whatever magic allows me to see these things from following any farther.

"Right!" Robards called out grimly. "We've been looking for this girl since the morning of the 26th. For all we know, she could very well be dead and buried by now, but I'M going to assume that she's still alive and in need of a rescue. Which means that I'll be raiding that address. Are you coming, Malfoy?"

"Of course!" I stated as I stood up and handed the stuffed dog back to him.

"Draco..." You growled softly. "You. are. PREGNANT..."

I sighed. "Look, I'm not going to be anywhere near that house. I'm going to be safely tucked inside the Ministry, standing over my interactive map as my drones map the place out and let me know who is inside. I'll be coordinating the Aurors Robards brings with him. Rather then waste time arguing this, just come with me and see for yourself that I'm fine and safe."

You stood up and grabbed my hand as if I was planning to Apparate away without you. "Try and stop me!"

Smiling, I gave you a kiss before turning to look at Robards. "We'll floo over to my office in a tic, but you can feel free to Apparate away now and not waste another second waiting for us."

He nodded and turned to Apparate away on the spot.

My father looked ready to throttle me and my mother sighed in defeat. "Why must you always be so concerned for others, Draco?" She wondered.

I gave her a light glare. "Would you prefer I just let this little girl stay kidnapped?"

She shook her head. "All I'm saying is that you've done the most important part."

My father nodded in agreement. "There's no need to concern yourself further."

I turned my frosty glare on him. "Tough, I'm doing it and there's nothing you can do to stop me."

Della and Eliza stood up and kissed me on the cheeks. "Good luck! For what it's worth, WE'RE proud of you."

"We never said we weren't proud!" My parents protested in unison.
"Just... worried..." mum finished.

With a kiss to her cheek, I dragged you off to the nearest floo.

Once in the Ministry, we made a very necessary detour to the loo on the way to my office, where I grabbed my drones and other tech before heading off to the designated command center. Surprisingly quickly, the Aurors that Robards called in started arriving. I handed out my drones and helped them gear up as quickly as possible, giving reminders as necessary.

Tim (my timid mouse) was clearly jittery and nervous as this is his first raid after JUST making it as an Auror. I took him aside and let him know that he didn't need to be so concerned. There were going to be thick layers of wards to prevent all magic - and that because there was only one criminal (so far as we knew), and over a dozen Aurors going in, he was going to be instrumental in securing one of the exits so that if the wizard managed to fight his way past everyone else, I would know someone capable of taking him down without magic will be able to stop him.

This seemed to give Tim confidence because he nodded at me solemnly and vowed to be a credit to the department.

I think you were a bit amazed at how quickly they mustered and headed out. The entire team was going to Apparate to a designated point in town (the parents' house, I'm almost certain), and then carefully spread out and surround the crime scene without triggering any wards. This means that the ward specialists are going to be doing their jobs long before anyone else even gets close to the house.

I instructed the team to send out about half of the drones to map the area surrounding the crime scene, so that I could keep track off all the innocents that could potentially stumble into our path and inadvertently delay us. Part of the wards that were going to be set up were wards to keep everyone else in their house and not interested in us or what we were doing.

To your profound relief, this raid was conducted simply and easily. Once everything was ready and everyone was in place, more drones were let loose, mapping out the actual crime scene. I quickly determined that the only people in that house were the girl and the criminal. So, I gave the go ahead to Robards and Roche to head through the front and back entrances. Their teams were to secure the various rooms - ensuring that my drones didn't miss someone using evasive magic - while the rookies guarded the entrances to prevent escape (or innocents from wandering into the crime scene, despite wards to prevent it).

With everything so well trained and following protocol I'd helped refine over the years, it was a bit like a well-oiled machine. Aurors slowly secured every room in the house (including the basement and attic) before finally bursting in on the room where the man was in the process of battering the poor girl.

You burst out crying as the camera contacts gave us a clear picture of the crime. We could hear (via the ear buds) the criminal demand to know what was going on as he was roughly pulled away from the girl and placed under arrest. We could hear the girl whimpering faintly, and honestly, she was looking about half dead.

Your Rage Halo sprouted at nearly full force, but I grabbed you and shook you hard.

"Stop it!" I commanded in possibly my hardest, sternest, most steely voice. "This is why I hoped you'd elect to stay behind! We CANNOT afford you to waste your magic right now!"

"Some things are worth the drain," you growled stubbornly.
I gave you a soft and tender kiss - the complete opposite of my entire demeanor. "Oi, stop it. Calm the fuck down, pull on your capable of dealing with any trauma or crisis face, and then go call Rowe and ask her to meet the Aurors at that address. They have medics on hand, but I have a feeling they're going to need a powerful Healer there."

You closed your eyes and took a deep breath. Your Halo wavered before disappearing. Opening your eyes, you nodded. "Right."

You turned to leave, but I grabbed your arm to stop you. "Don't allow this to enrage you enough to put our babies at even the slightest risk. There is NO bloody sense in wasting your magic and potentially harming two children when we've already rescued a beautiful little girl that WILL have a good future - once she's had therapy and recovered from her trauma."

You nodded but didn't say anything.

I stroked your hair and rested our foreheads together. "I love you more than the rest of the world put together."

You kissed me and even your breathing seemed calmer. "I love you too. I promise, I'll call Rowe and return to your side without doing anything stupid."

You walked out of the room, pulling your Magi-mobile out and locating Rowe's contact details as you went. I returned my attention to the raid, which was now more or less over. Roche had already returned to the Ministry with the criminal and two teams of Senior Aurors to watch his every move. Robards was with the medics in the field hospital tent they'd erected during the raid.

"Robards, I sent Harry off to call Healer Rowe. I reckon she'll be needed," I informed him.

His video feed bobbed up and down as he must have nodded in agreement. "Understood."

Around a full minute later, Rowe popped in - the anti-Apparation wards having been taken down once the criminal was apprehended. A medic recognized her instantly.

"Perfect timing, Rowe! We wanted to avoid bringing her to St. Mungo's if possible in an effort to get her back to her parents as soon as we can, but she's a bit beyond our abilities."

Rowe performed an array of scans. She paled. "She's bleeding internally and needs emergency magi-surgery, but I'm not certain she'll survive the trip back to Mungo's. I don't need anything other than a sterile environment and a few assistants, do I have that here?"

"You do, ma'am," they assured her.

Nodding in acceptance, Rowe cast sanitation spells on her hands and arms, insisting that everyone do the same - even though they already had. No harm in being extra sanitized.

As she used a precise cutting hex to begin the surgery, it occurred to me to wonder why you hadn't returned to my side, as promised. I felt the blood drain from my face and my heart drop into my stomach. I hastily let Robards know that since the raid was over, I was 'going offline,' and then I ran out of the command center, PRAYING that I found you before you did anything too taxing on your magic.

To my relief, you were simply down the hall, in a little alcove, sipping on a cup of coffee. I'm dead certain that had you been a smoker, you would have been inhaling a cigarette. I nearly fainted in relief, forcing myself to remain calm as I walked over to you and put my arms around you.
"I love you," I reiterated, holding you tight.

"I called Katja over tonight. She'll be at ours in about an hour," you said.

I nodded. "Please call Yesenia for me? I just have a bit of paperwork - well actually, I'm certain that Pippa is in my office reviewing footage and compiling my report for me. I just need to go review it and sign off on it. It shouldn't take more than 20 minutes, and then I can come home. Do you need to wait for me, or would you rather go on ahead and snuggle our littles in an attempt to reassure yourself that most of the world is still a good place?"

"I'll go on home. Snuggling sounds brilliant. I'll see if I can't get ALL our kids to pile on top of me. Maybe even invite our dogs, my cat, and your bloody cheetahs. It's nearly impossible to be depressed when you have adorable animals trying to cheer you up."

I chuckled. "That it is." Then we kissed for at least five minutes, before Robards actually popped into the Ministry and passed us on his way to his office.

"For Merlin's sake! Go do that at home!" He commanded.

Smiling, you gave me one last kiss goodbye before heading off to the nearest floo. I chuckled all the way to my office as I walked next to Robards. He shook his head at me, and then sighed morosely.

"Hell of a day, huh?"

I nodded in agreement. "But it could have been so much worse. He could have murdered her ages ago. Instead, we saved her life. Or... will have done by the time Rowe finishes with her."

"True," he stated, sounding just a hair better.

"Go see your Mind Healer," I advised as we arrived at my office and I ducked in while he continued on.

"We'll see," he murmured, giving me a terse wave goodbye.

After that, I helped Pippa finish up my paperwork, signed off on it, and then sat down and wrote this email. Now I'm ready to sign off and come home to you so that we can have our individual Mind Healing sessions (unless you'd prefer a joint one), and then we can snuggle up in bed and let all the loves of our life cheer us up. Maybe while watching a movie?

My love for you overwhelms me so much that I almost can't breathe, and yet, I could never live without it,

Draco
Friday December 30, 2016

My Heart and Soul,

I think you are less than pleased with me right now. I feel badly that we're arguing. I hate that you feel like I'm trying to control you. I wish there was something I could do or say to make you realize that I'm not in any way trying to get you to be someone different. I'm quite proud of you. I don't want you to quit your raiding and auroring and all that.

Okay, that is a lie, a part of me has wanted you to quit from the first moment you began. But I don't FULLY want you to quit because I know how much joy and satisfaction it gives you. I know that you are stuck on feeling like you have to spend the rest of your life atoning for the sins of your youth. I HATE that you feel that way. You have gone so far and above anything you could have done in restitution that it's laughable.

Again, I don't think you need to atone, but I understand your need to attempt it. So, because doing these good deeds is so good for your emotional well-being I would never ask you to truly give it up unless I thought you weren't feeling fulfilled with it anymore.

Me wanting you to quit, or wanting you to slow down, or trying to control you is not what this fight is about. Me no longer being willing to allow Robards in my home is not about you.

Seriously.

No, I'm Sirius. Shut up Sirius! Now is not the time! Read the room before you make a joke.

I'm very sorry that you think I went behind your back. Well, I'm sorry you're mad about it and I am sorry I went behind your back. But I'm not sorry about the outcome. You seem to think that the end justified the means in Robards' behavior. It did not.

Perhaps I think the end result of my behavior justified the means. I didn't put anyone's safety in danger, I just pissed you off.

I tried bringing it up in the joint part of our mind healing sessions but you kept repeating that all of the actions were worth it because you saved that girl. You know how I feel about children, you know I've spent my adult life trying to make sure as many children as possible are safe, AND if Robards had given you the choice of whether or not to help I would have still been worried about YOUR safety but I wouldn't have been mad.

But he didn't give you the choice to choose your own safety. He didn't give me the choice to perhaps make sure you were sitting or make sure we had Yesenia on hand to talk to, or give you a nutrient potion or a magic booster before you fell into a vision. He decided for everyone what was most important, and your safety was at the bottom of the list.

I felt you were so focused on the child's rescue that you had blinders on and couldn't see the issues with Robards' behavior. I wasn't about to waste precious time in the session having a big blow-up. So I went around you.

After our joint session we split into individuals. When I finished my solo session with Katja I went to your parents while you were still with Yesenia. I "calmly" explained how strongly I felt about Robards making your well-being a non-priority. I explained that allowing Robards and his complete lack of bodily autonomy in our home meant sending him the message that your body was his to do with as he pleased. Your parents wholly agreed and set the wards to not allow him entry from now on.

Perhaps if he rethinks his behavior and makes it clear that he will no longer physically force you to do his bidding, your parents will set the wards to allow his entry eventually. But for now, if he wants to contact you, he can do so at your office in the ministry, through some form of messaging like owls, floos, or magi-mobile, or he can perhaps send someone in his stead that can grasp the concept that you are not public property.

Maybe Tim because that timid little mouse kicked arse on that raid!

When I finished speaking with Narcissa and Lucius, I was all set to join you and the kids and the animals in our room for an enormous cuddle puddle. But alas, that was not happening. Instead of kisses and cuddles and smooches, I received a very terse "I won't be allowing anyone who tattles to my parents and makes choices for me into this bed."

Now it's the middle of the night. I'm tired, I can't sleep, I'm lonely. I wanted to send this to you so you could possibly see my side of things. I'm not trying to control you, but I don't feel safe having that man in my home. I wanted to send his home address to Grandmama and was very proud of my restraint.

He has spent years preying on your guilt and using you for his own agenda. I don't like him. I hate him in fact. He sees you as expendable and I won't have it. I will sleep in this damn room for the rest of my life if I have to. I don't want someone who doesn't see your value anywhere near the most valuable human being on the planet.

I love you. I miss you.

Yours Always,
Harry

Friday December 30th
Dearest Harry,

You know how early on in our marriage, I said: "Oh hey, I want to have my way with you while you sleep," and you happily agreed, and then I said: "And by the way, I'd like it if you had your way with me while I sleep too," right? Would you expect me to ask you for permission every single night? Would you expect me to come to bed and say: "I might be horny while you're sleeping, and I might not, I'm not sure yet, but if I am, can I have my way with you?"

You wouldn't expect that because you already gave me prior consent.

I'm NOT mad about it seeming like you trying to control me - although basically banning a friend of mine from the house does feel a bit like trying to tell me who I can and cannot spend my time with. I'm mad because you ASSUME that his actions were unwanted or unconsented to. If I had not wanted to have a vision, I would have told the house elf to ask him what his business was before allowing him access to me. Instead, I assumed that he was here for something exactly like or at least similar to what he came for, and I granted him permission by telling the elf to bring him to me.

You reacted to my decision by jumping to the conclusion that I had no idea what he wanted and thus was caught off guard by his actions. Actions I fully expected. I am FURIOUS that you feel that I did not think all of this through before allowing him fully in the house, and I'm FURIOUS that you are using your unreasonable hate as an excuse to ban someone who did nothing wrong. I'm also FURIOUS that you feel that I don't care about him 'using me' because I am still atoning for the sins of my past.

Fuck you! Did it NEVER occur to you that I do these things STILL because they fulfill me? It may have started as a feeling of guilt and a need to atone, and in fact, that's exactly why I did the original undercover mission that nearly broke our marriage so many years ago, but now... NOW I do it because I enjoy it. It is something few people can do and I am really good at it. It makes me feel good about myself, and makes me feel like long after I'm gone, my name will live on - NOT just because I have a hundred kids to pass it on, but because people will still be talking about that bloke who was a right arsehole but did amazing things such as invent specialized hybrid magi-muggle technology so that the Aurors didn't have to be in such danger when they worked.

But no. Apparently I'm just always going to make you unhappy so long as I'm doing anything at all with the Auror department. So...

I give up. You clearly don't want me to work in any capacity with the Aurors, so I won't. I'll send an owl to Robards in the morning, apologizing for the inconvenience but I really need to quit my position as the Chief of Raids. I'll offer to train someone else in - and actually, I think Fierston has it in him. I'll still need to finish his training, as I made a commitment to train him fully, but other than that, I will have no contact with anyone in the department, and I'll make it known that this includes the combat classes. Rather than come back in nine months to a year, Oleg will continue on until they find the right person to replace him.

In the meantime, I will sit here in bed and do nothing until I have this baby girl, and then I will sit here in bed and do nothing but hold and feed her until she's old enough to wean.

With that decision made, come the fuck back to bed. I'd rather cast the Cruciatius Curse on myself than spend even one more minute attempting to sleep in this bed without you.

Just keep in mind that I won't give up working with Hannah on cold cases, and if you ban her from the house too, I might just - well, I don't like to say it out loud because it's awfully bleak and permanent, but there it is.

Still pissed, but too needy to care,
Draco

P.S. I mean that, I want you in bed and in my arms, but don't be surprised if I can't find any words to speak to you until I'm well rested - and possibly no longer pregnant. Bloody hormones, you know?
Chapter 101

Chapter Summary

The boys are still mad at each other, but slowly, they’re working it out.

Chapter Notes

I got off work early today and decided that THAT and it being Mothers' Day were excellent reasons to post again ^_^

Friday December 30th
Oi fuck you very much Draco Lucius!

I specifically said I know doing the Auror thing brings you joy and satisfaction. I also said the only way I’d actually want you to quit would be if you weren’t being fulfilled by it. Which obviously implies that I know it does fulfill you.

I also never said you can’t be friends with that obnoxious prick. I did say that he had so many other ways he can talk to you, I named three of them in fact.

I didn’t even say you shouldn’t have had a vision. I’m not saying we weren’t all expecting it. Highlighted by the fact that I was pissed off when he showed up. If I thought there was a muggle’s chance in the wizengamot that it was a social call, I wouldn’t have been pissed.

But it’s never a social call is it with him? You know how Hannah comes to have tea with you or she invited you to her wedding? She’s your friend. You know how Kingsley comes to my marathons and asks you to have a drink with him on occasion when you’re in the ministry? That’s because he’s our friend. Robards does nothing but use you and he’s the only one you allow to do so. Why? What’s so fucking great about fucking Gawain?

And I would never need to ban Hannah. Because she has NEVER thrust something in your arms without asking first. Even when she was trying to talk you into doing more cold cases when you went through that ridiculous phase of trying to never make me the slightest bit upset, she tried talking you into it, she tried pleading with you, she thought you were being stupid, but she went along with your wishes.

HE walked into our home and thrust a vision inducer into your arms. I might fuck your arse raw while you’re sleeping or climb aboard and ride myself to climax, but I at least have the decency to make sure you’re prepped and lubed! Prior consent or not, you’d be FURIOUS if I fucked you dry and you woke up with a shredded up arsehole.

Yeah, you great bloody drama queen, me wanting a simple “Cheerio old chap, can you help me save a kid with one of your visions” is EXACTLY like me telling you I want you to sit in our bed nursing our daughter while you do nothing else for the rest of your life.
I am ridiculously proud of you. You’re fucking brill. You’re an inventor, a potions prodigy, you care more about other people than anyone else I know. You’re good at everything you put your mind to. The Auror department, hell the entire Wizarding world would be losing something amazing if you quit.

I know I talk about not liking it but I DO NOT want you to quit. I just want you to care about yourself half as much as you care about other people. Is that so much to ask? For you to give yourself half the consideration you give anyone else.

And quitting the combat classes? Besides wanting your belly shielded I haven’t said a single word against them except missing you when you’re there. I went out and bought a million ridiculous shirts to make you laugh and think of me when you’re teaching. I sat with a bowl of popcorn and watched you sic our children and your cheetah on your class. What part of that was confusing for you?

I’ll come to bed in a bit. I’m feeling pretty damn needy myself, but I’m so pissed off that I need to go cool off before I come to bed and say something I can’t take back. You know, something soul-crushing like hinting at and threatening to leave you.

But what kind of arsehole would do something like that?

I think I’ll go for a thestral ride. I’ll see you when I get back.

You still have all of my love,
Your Harry

Friday December 30th
SALAZAR DAMNIT!

You know just how to piss me off so that I feel like a bastard for being pissed off!!!

After flying around for at least an hour last night, you FINALLY crawled in bed with me, and since I was still up stewing, I was actually a bit relieved that I'd be able to get some sleep. I glared at you and you glared at me as I pulled you into my arms and gave you a kiss on the temple. Neither of us said a word, and it may have taken a few minutes, but eventually we were both asleep.

Now mind you, this was 2 or 3 am. Come just SIX or SEVEN am, you were already awake again and trying to pull free of me. I hadn't slept NEARLY enough and didn't want to let you go until I had. I was sorely tempted to cast a sleeping spell on you, but I decided that you were already mad enough at me and didn't need another reason.

I let you go and then tossed and turned for about an hour before giving up and going for a very light jog through the halls of the Manor as there's no bloody way in hell that I was going outside in this temperature. As I was running, you were apparently making breakfast with emphatic and somewhat violent movements - such as slamming mixing bowls on the counter and throwing the dirty dishes in the sink.

As I was jogging, if I passed anyone, they'd give me 'helpful' advice.

"Did you try apologizing?" Sebastian asked.

"Fuck you!" I snapped.
A few minutes later.
"Did you try apologizing?" Gavin and Eliza asked.

"Fuck YOU!"

A few minutes later.
"Did you try apologizing?" Our Divas asked.

"FUCK YOU!!!"

A few minutes later.
"Did you try apologizing?" Sirius asked.

"MERLIN'S BLOODY SPHINCTER!!! FUCK RIGHT THE FUCK OFF!!!!"

A few minutes later.

"Did you try apologizing?" My parents asked.

"HOW IN THE BLOODY FK CAN YOU BLOODY ASK ME THAT?!!?!? I DON'T NEED TO BUGGERING APOLOGIZE AS I'M NOT THE ONE IN THE WRONG!!! YOU COMPLETE ARSEHOLES!!! IN FACT YOU BASTARDS ARE THE ONES WHO TOOK HARRY'S SIDE OVER YOUR OWN BLOODY SON, AND NOW I HAVE TO DEAL WITH THIS SHITSTORM AND EVERY BUGGERING PERSON IN THIS FKING HOUSE THINKS THIS IS SOMEHOW MY FAULT, SO FKING FK YOU!!!!"

"He has your mouth," my mother accused my father, who opened his mouth to argue, but couldn't. He gave up with a helpless shrug.

A few minutes later.

"Did you -" Orion began.

"FK OFF!!!"

"What? All I wanted to know was if you wanted to watch XXXHOLIC with me," he said, giving me a wary look.

"What? Oh... that sounds lovely, actually," I admitted, feeling a bit bad for biting his head off.

"Come on," he bade, grabbing my hand and gently dragging me to the entertainment room. Fairly quickly, the elves had us provisioned with all the snacks, macadamias, and caviar we wanted. I watched the first episode about half way through, it cheering me up because even though I've seen it before, it still makes me laugh.

After eating several crackers spread with caviar, I suddenly felt powerfully drowsy and lay across the sofa with my head in Orion's lap. He seemed to ignore this fact, except that he rested a hand on my head. I have no idea how long I slept, but when I woke up, I felt refreshed and had most of our older kids sitting on the floor in front of the sofa. It seemed to be about a season and a half later, and so, probably at least 6 hours later.

You were nowhere to be seen in the room, but a plate full of garlic lemon biscuits let me know that you'd popped in at some point. I summoned my laptop and wrote this as I ate the biscuits - which were as excellent as ever.

Now that I'm feeling... better... I'm still angry, but I'm not as likely to snarl at everyone that crosses my path. Probably.

Anyway, I know it seemed a bit hasty and reactive, but I was actually serious. You have always expressed the opinion that you'd rather that I wasn't working with the Aurors. Yes, you calmed down and let me get on with it once I had official training, but you've never been overjoyed by my choice.

I thought about how we will once again have three babies in the house, and maybe I'm just getting old, but I suddenly felt like it would be too much. So I really am going to send in my resignation, pending training in someone to take over.

That's not to say that I'm never going to do any sort of work again, but just that I think I'll focus on the babies until they are old enough to sleep through the night, and then I'll think about what I might like to do with the next chapter of my life.

In the meantime, I'll not only help Hannah more on her cold cases, but I'll spread the word that I'm willing and eager to use my visions to help out anyone who needs something only my visions can give them. Say someone lost a very precious ring. I'm not certain I could get a vision of that without the actual ring to focus on, but I can at least try.

And who knows, maybe there'll be a lot of dark artifacts to fascinate me with their visions. I actually really hope there is as I would LOVE to look into their creation and the magic involved. But we'll see. For all I know, it'll be nothing more than missing children. There are a lot of them after all. Maybe I should start some sort of charity organization in which I take all those missing children pictures and try to find them all.

Salazar damnit! I'm out of bloody biscuits!

Off to see if I can find more and some of Kisa's sauerkraut soup to dunk them in.

In love and ire,
Draco
Chapter 102

Chapter Summary

As always, our boys can't stay mad at each other for too long.

Saturday December 31, 2016

My Own,

Ugh, I hate when we're fighting. I am sorry I went behind your back. I am sorry I'm not just giving in. I'm sorry I made you feel so terribly. I'm sorry, I'm sorry, I'm sorry.

I'm also sorry I've been such a hormonal, cranky, arsehole the last few days. Pregnancy hormones generally make me weepy. Most of my other pregnancies have been nine months of tears and vomit. But this pregnancy, and maybe it's the twin thing? Or perhaps it's the fact that I went from not being pregnant to being more than halfway through a pregnancy overnight? I don't know, but whatever it is, my moods have been insane. I find myself furious over nothing. Or I go out to the stables and with all the mindless work, my brain decides to think about every single thing I could possibly worry about. You know what's awesome? Spending three hours last week going over the pros and cons to magical prosthetics if I end up ever losing a limb.

Three hours Draco.

Do you know what I did yesterday when I was slamming mixing bowls and throwing dirty dishes? I sobbed while making you your favorite treats because I felt so badly about hurting you. In case you were wondering why your biscuits might have been extra salty, it's because they're full of my tears.

And then mid-sob, my mind would swing to how angry I am with you for trying to manipulate me with your whole "I will never do anything I enjoy ever again because Harry throws temper tantrums and I am a giant martyr." That's when the throwing and slamming would happen.

Honestly, you've spent our entire lives telling me that I have a hero complex and play the martyr. But it's YOU! You have to save the Merlin-be-damned world and then do nothing you enjoy for fear of upsetting me.

Am I actually abusive Draco? I know I have a temper but are you frightened of me? I keep thinking that your willingness to keep yourself from things you love to avoid my temper has to mean that I am abusive and unaware of it. Tell me honestly, am I emotionally abusing you? Have I made you afraid of me? Because that's the only thing that makes sense when you tell me you will sit in our bed nursing our daughter and do nothing else for the rest of time.

I don't want you to fucking quit! If you actually want to take a break because we will have three babies? That's fine and I will support you. But it sounds to me like you're quitting because of me and using that as a convenient excuse.

Again, I miss you, but I actually really enjoy you teaching that combat class. Are you going to give up on that one too? You loved it! You got to hang out with your best friend the medi-witch twice a week, you got to terrorize students, you got to be annoyed with me, what's not to love about it?

You opened your email with "you know just how to piss me off …"

Um, duh? I've been pissing you off since we were eleven. No one gets under your skin like I do. I was born to annoy you for the rest of our lives. Is this brand new information to you. "Harry Potter knows how to piss off Draco Malfoy," and in other news; water is wet.

Actual new information; I kind of like when we are arguing because it means you hide from me and watch terrible telly that I would rather light myself on fire than be forced to watch. I hope you enjoyed ridiculous anime with your big kids yesterday.

I personally had an amazing time riding around the grounds with the littles. They have all gotten so good at … what's the word for horseback riding? Horse riding? Equestrianism? Dressage? Whatever you call it, they are naturals.

Oh! Side note completely unrelated to our current fight: I heard from 'Mione that horses can be a form of therapy for people with certain special needs. I think I am going to look into that a bit. Maybe we can add a program like that to the stables. I guess equine therapy is good for physical special needs such as Rett Syndrome or Cerebral Palsy, helping with muscle tone. And it's been proven beneficial for emotional or developmental disorders.

Maybe I could combine it with whatever charity you're thinking to help missing children. Offering recovered children this therapy? Just a thought.

Uh, at the risk of going all overprotective, controlling, monster on you. Can I make a request if you decide to open up a vision service? Can we make sure there are safety measures in place for whatever item or artifact is being thrust into your arms? I just worry that terrible people will use your enormous squishy heart as a way to get to you. Some sort of warding or an in depth scan before you touch it maybe?

I have to ask an enormous favor of you. I realize I'm not exactly your favorite person at the moment. I know you're still mad at me. I don't need you to change your mind or get over your feelings. But can we sideline our anger for tonight? It's been almost two decades now of being able to start and end each year in each other's arms. Midnight kisses to close out the old year and bring in the new. No amount of anger makes me change my mind about your arms being the place I need to be at midnight.

Please?

Well, if you want to talk or hug it out, I'll be in the sunroom giving our little Rafael an uncomfortable amount of kisses and cuddles.

Love,
Harry

Saturday December 31st
ARE YOU INSANE?!

Of COURSE you're not abusive! Fuck! If either of us was going to be accused of mentally abusing the other, it would be me! And more importantly, if you presented with abusive behavior, Katja would have told you a long time ago.
No, I am NOT afraid of you. I'm afraid of upsetting you. I'm afraid that you'll eventually realize what a giant prick I am and leave me. I'm afraid that you'll realize that I'm nowhere NEAR as lovable as you seem to think I am, but afraid OF you?

Ridiculous!

If I was afraid of you, would I calmly and without fear walk up and kiss you when you are surrounded by your Rage Halo? I know that anyone else is risking death by approaching you at that moment, but I am so confident that you would never hurt me, that I can place my hand on your neck and trust that even if you are literally on fire, you won't burn me.

So, I have decided to take a few days to write my letter of resignation. I wanted to be certain that every single word means exactly what I intend it to, and also, I wanted to think my decision through more thoroughly. To dissect it and nitpick every iota of it. Here's the thing: I love it.

I love every single moment of planning out a raid, of conducting a raid, of terrorizing students, of being a part of the process that stops crimes and brings criminals to justice. But...

I also love the fact that I can have visions. I still don't believe it's possible and always assume that I'm wrong until they go out and find that I was right about every single detail.

And I love having time to just sit quietly with our kids when they're sleeping. Or dancing with them when they can't sleep. Singing to them for hours so that they'll always know that I loved them from the moment I found out about them.

I want to do it ALL! I want to spend hours dancing and singing with our kids while bringing criminals to justice, but I physically can't. And that's not even mentioning the fact that there's so much more I want to do with my life! What if Kingsley really does decide to retire in two years from now? I COULD be the next Minister for Magic!

But obviously, I need to prioritize things so that I'm not trying to do too much and have time to do the things that matter the most. And so, I've decided to do this: I'm going to resign as Chief of Raids. I will continue to work with Hannah and ALSO consult as needed on cases where only a vision will help them move forward. Then AFTER staying home with you and the babies for up to a year, I will return as the combat instructor.

And if Kingsley ever retires, I'll seriously think about throwing my hat into the ring for consideration, but other than that, I'm not going to push myself to do too much. I relish having and want to keep the ability to just travel at the drop of a pin. I think that has become a little less frequent while I was conducting raids approximately once a month, as I'd didn't want to risk being away when needed.

All of that said, I'm still furious that you feel you have the right to ban someone from our house, not because they pose any sort of actual threat to us or our kids, but simply because you don't like him. You say you don't like him because you feel he uses me, but as I already tried to explain, I have given him permission to do so in the past, and also gave him permission to do so during his most recent visit. I do not feel as if he is USING me so much as relying on me to help him in ways no one else can.

But I suppose your ban has done one good thing; it's ensured that when he contacts me, I'll be able to send you an Insta-owl to let you know that I'm rushing off to consult with Robards, and you won't be on hand to get upset by the atrocities that are bound to come up in visions requested by a frantic and frustrated Head Auror.
And so, I suppose that I'm ready to calm down and accept - not your apology, because I know you are not sorry for taking what you felt were necessary steps - but your willingness to put this fight behind us. It's coming up on midnight and I'm about to sign off and hunt you down so that we can do nothing but kiss for the five or so minutes leading up to the New Year.

And if we're both feeling it, maybe we'll also start this year off with a brilliant shag.

All my love,
Draco
P.S. I'm sorry to have implied that I'd leave you if you banned Hannah, but at that moment, I felt so irate that it seemed like a perfectly reasonable response. But I think we both know that I'd rather you banned all my friends than ever actually consider leaving you, because without you, I have nothing, certainly nothing friends could make up for. I'll sing it to you again if you don't believe me.
The boys make up, and Draco's brain fog gets worse.

Sunday January 1, 2017

My Sanity,

Am I insane? Uh, pretty sure we have established my insanity ages ago. But we've also established that I know exactly who and what you are and love you because of all of the things that make you you. I am perfectly aware you're a giant prick sometimes.

I am also a big fan of your ... giant prick ... so there's that.

You are lovable and occasionally mean for no reason. You keep me on a calm even keel while you are an over the top drama queen. You are brilliant and arrogant. You are beautiful and vain. You are a philanthropist with intense spending habits. I know who you are and I love every bit of you even when you infuriate me. I am not going to leave you. I am not going to wake up some day and suddenly "remember" all these bad things about you.

You're a constant paradox of someone who fills every cell of my heart while also annoying me like no one else on the planet is capable of.

I think your plan to step down until further notice from raiding is a good plan. I know you love it, and I know you're amazing at it. But I've lived with you pretty consistently since you began and while I can tell it is good for you, it's not the happiest I've ever seen you.

The happiest I've ever seen you was during those early years of parenting when you were the full-time stay-at-home dad. I've never seen you prouder of yourself than when you could take our babies all over the world, showing off how brilliant they are. There's a sparkle in your eyes that is only present when you're dancing a baby around the ballroom or teaching a young child the importance of a skin-care regime!

I will support whatever your choice is, but I want you to really think about your life and would you feel more fulfilled conducting these raids or introducing these babies to Japanese food the way you did for Viona when she was tiny on our first trip to Japan? Are you going to feel more accomplished bringing in potions smugglers or bringing Atreyu in a few years to Mexico to learn about his heritage they way you took Zaire to Africa?

I'm obviously not saying that catching dangerous potion dealers or finding missing children is unimportant. It's definitely important. But so is teaching Trey about his heritage, it's just a matter of which one will bring YOU more joy?

I suppose the "full-time" is a bit off. You still had your inventions and business meetings on the side. You either brought the kids to Unity to play for the day or took them with you for the meetings. It's been a long time since you've really come up with another techie invention. I doubt it's because you've run out of ideas, it seems more likely that you haven't had free time in your brain to come up with new things.

And when the time comes for Kingsley to retire and you throw your hat into campaigning for office? I will support you one hundred percent. You could enact real change, there's no doubt in my mind that you would make a fantastic Minister for Magic. Oooh! And then when you're elected and you get the big office with the giant desk, I can sneak in and work you up with my mouth while you have meetings. Just your own little cock warmer, sitting under your big important desk, exactly what you deserve.

Mmm, can you imagine spanking me over your desk. I want you to picture going back in time and telling young Draco that some day he will be Minister and will have a naked Harry Potter bent over in his office getting his arse reddened, ending in a good hard shagging.

Shagging!

Last night was delicious. It's kind of funny to me, I think the way we decided to play was a way to come together physically and emotionally, but also one of my less preferred activities and one of your less preferred activities. It was almost like we both decided we needed to be with the other, but didn't want it to be TOO good because we didn't deserve it.

We certainly failed on that regard. It was so good and we definitely deserved it.

You seemed to want to submit to me, whether you were truly in the mood for it or because you wanted to unofficially apologize for whatever wrongs you felt you committed, it doesn't really matter I guess. I don't normally take charge, it's not really in my nature. But I felt you deserved whatever you desired as an unofficial apology for my stubborn attitude and unwillingness to bend.

Either way, it was bloody fantastic.

I had you kneeling on the cozy floor cushions, knees spread, arms behind your back. All your pretty parts on display for me. Gods you're just so beautiful Draco.

I tied your arms where they were behind you with some beautiful bright red ropes I'd purchased recently. And I fastened a red and gold striped satin ribbon around your cock and bollocks. Your pretty shaft was laced up like a corset. Once you were suitably restrained I gave your cock a couple light pats saying, "There's my pretty boy all tied up for his Gryffindor's pleasure. Look at this gorgeous boy all tied up for me like a present. Ready for me to use as I see fit isn't that right?"

Your eyes had already gone a bit hazy just from the tightness of the restraints and you just nodded at me in response. "Mmm, that's lovely, I thought about gagging you but my little Slytherin Prince with the silver tongue doesn't have much to say right now. Since you don't have anything you want to say, I suppose I'll use that mouth of yours."

Which I did. I pushed my shaft into your waiting mouth, slowly and steadily. I didn't slam in, but I didn't stop once I started the long slide to the back of your throat. I slid my fingers into your silky blonde hair, and once I was fully taken to the hilt, I began to fuck that mouth. "You like this baby? Being a pretty little thing I can play with to get myself off? Want me to just take you how I want to?"

You stared up at me with those shining silver eyes just nodding and doing as much pleading as you could with your mouth full. That was all the permission I needed. "Keep staring into my eyes love, if you need me to stop just poke me with your Legitimacy, alright?"

Again with the nodding, but then I got a "yes please" nudged into my thoughts so I knew you could do it.

That's all the safety and consent taken care of, so I really let loose. Gripping those platinum locks so tightly I'm sure your poor scalp is sore today. Not as sore as I'm sure your throat is though. I slammed myself down your throat for so long. I was so torn, I needed to come but I wanted it to last forever. Eventually the drool and tears running down your face while you smiled around a mouthful of my shaft was enough to tip me over the edge. Letting loose and coming deep in your mouth.

"You were so good darling, want me to take care of you now?" You gave me a soft smile and another nod, still either unable or unwilling to talk. I tied you up on our pregnancy modified spanking bench. Instead of being on all fours, it's more like resting your forearms like you're leaning on a counter, giving plenty of room for your bump while still giving me complete access to everything I want to take from you.

Your arms were still tied, except now they were in front of you on the armrest instead of behind your back. And your beautiful, hard, red, dripping dick was still all tied up. Like a candy cane. A delicious sweet just for me.

You seemed to tense up, I think you were expecting a spanking. But instead, I dove in and ate your arse like a starving man. Licking, sucking, and biting at your sweet little hole. Then leaning back for a moment and giving you five quick, sharp, smacks to your perfect little bum. By the time you'd even shouted your surprise, I was back to devouring that tight rosebud.

I did this for about an hour. I'm sure it felt like years to you though. You were crying and moaning, screaming and shaking. The only words you spoke the entire time were when I forced you to give me a safe-word color to make sure your shrieks were as good as they sounded. They were.

Eventually I added in fingering as well. You probably would have come if your bollocks hadn't been tied up so tight. Even with the ribbon, you managed to make quite the puddle under the bench. Eventually I couldn't torture myself any longer, I lubed myself up, lined up to your puffy, swollen, soaking hole and slammed home where I belong. I fucked into you for a while, the whole time you were begging and pleading to be allowed to come. When I reached around and started stroking you over the ribbons, you got even more frantic and creative in your begging.

Finally, just as I felt myself within reach of my own climax, I yanked the release on the ribbon. I could feel you clenching around me as you screamed out your orgasm - which tipped me over into finding my own.

Happy New Year to us!

Yours Last Year, This Year, and all the Years to Come,
Harry

Saturday January 21st
My love,

I have been so brain fogged and zoned out and sleeping at every opportunity that I haven't even written you in weeks. Weeks! It's now the 21st of January! It the day of the shared birthday party and -

Oh wait... I hear something. Shouting? Some sort of commotion.
Best go check it out, which is a good idea, really, as I had nothing to write but complaints that I had nothing to write. That, and reminders that I'm still pregnant and uncomfortable.

You've got the best of my love,
Draco
Chapter 104

Chapter Summary

Drama and more drama.

Saturday January 21, 2017

My Fellow Hostage,

Teenagers are insanity inducing. Good thing we've already gotten three of our children into adulthood! Even in the muggle world Viona will have hit adulthood this coming Tuesday. And then three more will hit wizarding adulthood in the next four months. That means we're close right? Just … TWELVE more kids to get through their teen years after that.

Twelve more Draco! Oh Gods the drama!

Yeah so it's definitely been weeks since we've emailed. I get it, you've been foggy, we're both exhausted, and we really haven't done anything outside of our normal day to day existence. I've taken care of the animals in the stable. Alright, I am uncomfortable enough that I've pretty much just gone out there to feed them treats and brush their tails, letting everyone else do the actual work for them.

You've gotten lost in our closets no less than once a day.

And then today we had the January birthday parties.

When I just checked my email and saw you had sent me one I was excited since, as we've established, it's been weeks. But then I saw how short it was and I have to be honest I was a little disappointed. Until I saw the reason you cut off your email was because you heard the commotion prior to the start of the party. Yeah, that would do it.

That explosion was essentially eight weeks in the making so it packed quite the punch didn't it? I have been having the mood swing and the nausea and the cravings, but I have not had the brain fog so I will break it down part by part for you in case you missed anything.

Let's set the stage shall we? Eight weeks ago was the big quidditch game. The night before the game we went out with Viona and Alric, the kids stayed with their siblings at Hogwarts, and Orion was broken up with spectacularly by an irate Natalie. The following morning was the game where our bigshot Orion stole the show then got snogged by his rival Farrah. Are you with me? While we were at Hogwarts, after the breakup, Hazel winked at me and assured me she would help prove to Natalie that all you need is a good girlfriend. Then after the game was finished and the kids were packed up we headed off to Russia for the November birthday parties.

Since then we've had a grandson, two womb transfers, holidays, a massive fight, found out Sirius fathered Pippa AND Leah's babies; suffice to say it's been a busy eight weeks. Which is why I didn't think anything of not really hearing what came from Operation: Snog Natalie's Face Off.

Come to find out, Eris had her own ideas and Operation: Get Hazel and Natalie Together was in full force.
Unbeknownst to Eris, Hazel was not actually interested in that Operative. Sure she was glad Friday evening during the breakup. And even more so when Orion got a thorough snogging after the game so she didn't have to feel guilty about crushing on her brother's ex-girlfriend (can't be worse than crushing on his current girlfriend which she had been doing for months!). Hazel made winking faces and wagging eyebrows at me when she talked about comforting Natalie (which made me want to bleach my brain a bit). However, by the time she was back in classes in the days after, she was less than interested in Natalie.

You see, Hazel mostly fancies girls. She told me when she was probably about ten years old that she did. I think she would have realized years earlier but those first few years after transitioning she was so focused on herself that I don't think she even thought about crushes or boyfriends and girlfriends. But once she started thinking about it, she's been pretty solidly on "Team All-the-way-Gay." Playing for that team myself I get it.

The thing is, she's had a crush on a particular girl for almost her entire life. She's had other random crushes since then, Natalie being one of them, but there's always been that one unattainable perfect girl for our Hazel. She never told me who it was, and I just assumed it was someone at school but it was too important to Hazel and she didn't want to mess it up by telling me.

The only thing she would ever tell me was that she loved this girl, and was pretty sure she always would. That she was the most beautiful girl to ever exist, even her flaws were adorable (apparently Hazel thinks this girls cute little upturned nose is the cutest!). But Haz always insisted that this girl was beyond unattainable. Perfection and grace, beauty and kindness, and most likely straight and NOT into Hazel.

And now after the unveiling of THE ONE, Hazel looked at me with shiny eyes and asked "How could I not fall in love with the first person to ever actually see ME?"

Our baby girl is in love. And unlike so many young crushes, I have the distinct feeling that as young as they are, this is it for Hazel. My perfect child, my little girl who's had to struggle so much, was seen for exactly who she is, and seemingly loved in return.

And oddly enough I think we have Natalie to thank for it! At the November parties, apparently Hazel was giggling and gossiping with her very best friend (after Eri) telling Pearl all about the breakup and how she planned to woo Natalie. And despite always having been supportive before, Pearl was furious. When Hazel and Pearl went missing for a few hours at that party? It began with gossip, included a very loud fight, and ended with Pearl telling Hazel in no uncertain terms: "She can't have you, I won't let her, you're mine and I'm sick of waiting for you to know it!"

Then my dad brain is going to pretend they gave each other a very soft hug and then possibly held hands.

Shut it you.

Well they decided to spend these past eight weeks constantly messaging … which they did most of the time anyway but they really talked about what they want from a relationship, and took things to the next emotional level. Fast-forward to today and I guess Eris, Hazel, and Pearl were sitting around talking when the subject of Natalie came up. Pearl and Haz were going to keep their newfound relationship quiet for a while (which was positively KILLING Haz not being able to tell Eri) so they sat through about forty-five minutes of Eris discussing her plans to get Hazel and Natalie together in detail before the screaming began.

I guess Pearl had had enough of hearing the plans and threw a fit, telling Eris exactly why Hazel would not be dating Natalie. Then Hazel started in on Pearl for blowing their secret and doing it so tactlessly, then Eris was yelling at Hazel for not telling her something so huge, then Pearl was yelling at Eris for yelling at Hazel, and so on and so on. By the time you and I got in on it, most of the anger was gone and they were just angrily celebrating the news?

Teenagers are weird.

I can't wait to raise twelve more of them …

Yours,
Harry

Tuesday March 14th
The only person I can't live without,

It's been nearly two months since I've sent you an email, and that's because every time I sit down to try writing, my mind goes blank and I can't remember much more than my name. Even now that I'm only carrying one, I am still having the most ATROCIOUS brain fog ever.

If you hadn't ordered Dibly to follow me around everywhere and ask me what I plan to do each time I move so that he can tell me when I inevitably forget in five seconds, I'm not sure I'd remember anything at all. And so yes, I probably COULD just ask him to tell me everything I've done during a day so I can write it to you, but he can't tell me what I was thinking and feeling, so what would be the point?

And besides, we've been practically glued at the hip, and so, you either remember everything better than I do, or we're both forgotten everything together.

Today is completely different because there is not a magic in the universe that could EVER un-etch every single detail from my mind. Today... I almost lost you.

It started as normally as ever, you woke up long before me and went to the kitchen to cook or bake something. Probably both. You ordered all the elves to take off and go clean something if they weren't following an order, and so, you were all by yourself in the kitchen. I suppose you felt fine.

You were definitely NOT fine!

Your abdomen had reached a point with two fully grown wombs in it (or very nearly so), that it just didn't have any more room to stretch and grow. They'd filled up every millimeter of space the Healers had put in there for them. Rather than get squirmy and then slowly stop moving all together - like they'd done in me - your wombs somehow triggered labor without you noticing. As in every drop of your magic was funneling into the wombs in an effort to deliver them safely as soon as possible, only they obviously had nowhere to go.

Perhaps it was that same magic that made it seem completely normal, because you just continued on as if nothing was wrong until you collapsed, and none of us have any idea how long you were unconscious on the floor. All we know for certain is that I eventually woke up and got hungry and called for Dibly to go get you so that we could snuggle up while I ate breakfast.

He popped into the kitchen, found you on the floor, and performed a basic scan to see how bad off you were - because you could have just been sleeping - taking an unusual nap on the floor of the kitchen because the pregnancy was making you crazy. He learned that you were so low on magic that you were in a sort of protective coma.
He called for Muffy, who understood the situation instantly, confirming his instinct to bring you to St. Mungo’s while she came to grab me and bring me too. That’s how Rowe had the pleasure of seeing me in nothing but my dressing gown - that Muffy had basically summoned and spelled onto me so quickly that I had no idea what was going on until Rowe finished scanning you in the hall outside her office, looked up at me, and said:

"He’s not going to make it if I don’t deliver these babies as fast as I can."

"Do it!!" I exclaimed, feeling all the blood drain from my body into the floor under my feet.

She nodded and gestured for a pair of Mediwitches to levitate you into the closest open magi-operation room and begin preparations. Ever the best Healer on the planet, she took less than 10 seconds to scan me and assure us both that I was fine. A bit low on magic, but nothing so bad that I would suffer if I cast spells to conjure a cup, aim an aquamenti into it, and then heat it up for tea.

Not needing any sort of immediate attention, she sent me to the family waiting room and assured me that she’d have you delivered and everyone perfectly healthy in no time. A different Mediwitch took me in hand and gently guided me to the waiting room, reminding me that at 32 and 34 weeks, both babies were almost certainly going to be born healthy with maybe a touch of jaundice, but certainly nothing that they couldn’t fix in mere seconds.

I nodded in understanding because I knew she was right. I worried anyway. To distract myself, I made a long-distance magi-mobile call to Blaise. I told him that I know it was probably a pain in the arse to drop everything and obtain a Portkey, but that I could really use my best friend to tell me inappropriate jokes while I waited for my husband to make it through this current crisis.

Surprise surprise, Hermione had anticipated almost this exact scenario - given our track record - and had a Portkey all ready to go. She, Ron, and Blaise left all their kids with Kisa, kissed her on the cheek, and Portkeyed to St. Mungo’s in less than five minutes. They held my hands and kept my spirits up through those long hours.

It seems that you remained in the healing coma once the babies were removed, even after the Mediwitches healed you almost as good as new. What took so long was that they basically left you on the table sleeping as they fussed over the babies. It seems that Dylan needed a bit of work on his lungs to get them ready to function fully, and Gabriel had a small hole in his brain - that apparently just happens on occasion and usually fixes itself not long after a baby is born - but this was in a part of the brain that could potentially make life very difficult for him if it didn’t fix itself, and so, they spent some time helping it along.

Both spells were understandably delicate and need to be done gently over a longer period of time, rather than just blasted into the body like most normal spells. Perhaps you were tied to them somehow - magically supporting them even once no longer in your body - but it seems that the moment both were stable and ready to be held, you spontaneously came out of your healing coma, somewhat low on magic, but not so low that you needed to be put back to sleep.

You’ll still need to take potions, but you’ll be right as rain in no time. As will the boys.

The three of us were let into your recovery room just as soon as you were settled in. Our babies are naturally gorgeous! Dylan is creamy brown, probably lighter than he’ll be eventually, but still so so beautiful. His hair came out barely more than fuzz, but so tightly curly and black that he is almost certainly going to have hard-to-manage hair. Probably why Dean’s always kept it short, as far back as I can remember.

As for Gabriel, he’s another ginger. GINGER! I have no idea how this combination of recessive genes - that's supposed to be rare - keeps surfacing when you and I combine our DNA. I'm not complaining, as we have plenty of OTHER looks that have been passed on as well, but... I dunno, I suppose I was hoping for another mini you - wild black hair and all. Or perhaps, if we were going to have another ginger, a girl one?

In any case, I'm exhausted and mildly traumatized by the fact that mere minutes separate this story of a happy ending from a very not happy ending at all. Had I not woken up just when I did and called for you, you would have continued to lay there on the kitchen floor until... Someone else found you. After it was already too late.

Salzar's shriveled prick! I panic just thinking about it! I seriously need to take a sleeping potion and go to sleep until morning, when I will hopefully feel better again. AFTER I go to the loo. Again. I'll probably have to have Muffy just pop in and empty my bladder every hour or so while I sleep!

Plant a seed, plant a flower, plant a rose,
Draco
P.S. You did absolutely nothing wrong, so don't you DARE blame yourself for having preemies again!
Chapter 105

Chapter Summary

Harry is very happy, and then Draco ends up in a bit of drama.

Chapter Notes

Sorry it's been a couple of days, I didn't mean to NOT post, I just had a few things come up. But on the plus side, today is my 18th anniversary with my hubby, and so we're spending it snuggled up ^_^

Friday March 17, 2017

My Pot of Gold at the end of the Rainbow,

Happiest of Saint Patrick's Days to ye laddie!

I took it too far didn't I? Oh well, I think it's fun and I just had two of our babies so I should be allowed to be as ridiculous as I'd like. You can't stop me! But you're also still so uncomfortably pregnant with one of them so you should probably be allowed to tell me to stop being ridiculous. It's a real catch-22 isn't it?

I know, none of us are believers of St. Patrick from a faith perspective, and as far as I know we aren't particularly Irish. But it's a fun day to dress up. So today, I had to get a picture of my little leprechauns wearing green! I got the sweetest picture out in the gardens with Cael holding little Gabe, both wearing bright kelly green, their red hair standing out over the colors of their clothes and the gardens all around them.

I love that we got a second redhead! And isn't Cael just so proud that his little brother looks like him? It's funny though, Cael is excited that he finally has a sibling whose hair matches his own but realistically they don't really look anything alike outside of the hair. Caelum looks so much like your side of the family; sharp features, light eyes, and his hair is a strawberry-blonde version of redheadedness. Our Gabriel, on the other hand, has a darker red, more of a coppery auburn, and I think he looks more like me. The darker blue eyes that look like they'll be on the green side, a rounder face with rounder features, he's even got my shorter square fingers.

But I'm certainly not going to say any of that to Caelum! He's always been a little sad about being the only redhead, although it helps that he has so many Weasley family members! He knows he's Grandma Molly's little sunshine and I've heard him whispering to Gabe that he'd share Grandma with him.

I'm so happy to have come home with Gabriel and Dylan today. I was worried with how early they were that we'd have to stay in Mungo's so much longer. They're obviously teeny tiny, but so perfect!
You were right about Dylan's skin being paler than it might end up. Just in the few days since his birth, his skin has already gotten a bit darker. Even if we wanted to lie to him, or if Dean never wanted to be honest about his paternity, it would be hard to hide Dylan's other biological father. I think he looks so much like Dean. It's a good thing Dean's such a handsome bloke huh? But Dylan's eyes are pretty darn light, they're actually lighter than Gabriel's, so I wouldn't be surprised if he ends up with your beautiful smoky eye color.

You'd think having been at St. Mungo's, having medical staff caring for me and the boys, I would feel rested. But I'm so tired. I didn't sleep well without you. And you know how important it is to me that the boys are nursed on demand at these important early stages. Being up feeding twins has been quite the drain. I love every moment of it, but if I could have every moment AND feel rested? That would be ideal.

It's been lovely that the original trio portion of the quartet came to help out. I think their beloved uncles and aunt visiting has kept the kids here at home distracted from worrying about me and the babies. When I was reading your description of what happened to me and how I was discovered, I was hopeful that only you and the elves were aware of how dire the situation was. But the kids must have heard you panicking or heard Muffy or Dibly tell you they found me unconscious and drained of magic because they all clung to me when you brought them to visit us in the hospital. I'm really glad they came out for you as well. I can't imagine how frightened you were and how powerless you must have felt waiting to find out what was going on with us. Hours you said, hours you may have spent alone doing nothing but panicking. Instead, some of our best friends came and held your hand, distracting you from as much of the worry as they could. We really do have the most amazing circle of people in our lives don't we?

I'm feeling a bit anxious at the moment. We decided with us being in St. Mungo's anyway, that the Hogwarts kids shouldn't miss class just to come sit in a cramped room for a few minutes. So any minute now, our older kids are going to come swirling in the floo insistent on meeting their two youngest brothers. I can't wait! But oh it's taking so long for them to get here! They were supposed to come after classes let out for the day, the last class ends at 4:00, and it's already 4:01! Where are they?

Ok, I suppose they needed to get from their class to their dorms to grab their things. Then walk themselves to the student approved floo. Possibly wait for Minnie to open the connection. Fine! It's almost completely unlikely that they even could be here by now. I just miss my babies and want them to meet their little brothers. Is that so wrong?

I know she's going to dig her heels in, hoping to wait until the last minute, but I think we need to convince Eris to just stay here and not go back after this weekend. She's what, a week away from her due date? I know it could be a few more weeks, and I know she wants to take in as much as she can, but can you imagine her going into labor while she's at school? Contractions making her knock over a cauldron, the pain making her yell loud enough to wake up those in History of Magic, her waters breaking in the Great Hall. Help me convince her to stay?

I suppose I'm just glad that little bugger stayed in there long enough for me to not be pregnant any more. This way, I can one hundred percent be able to help her and be with her while she's in labor and not have to worry about panicking myself into labor!

I'm relieved Pippa's and Delphini's labors didn't panic me into labor. Although neither of them are my baby girls, so I wouldn't have gotten nearly as freaked out as I'm sure I will when it's Eri's time.

Oh oh oh! I think that was a floo noise I heard!
Sunday March 19th
My beloved Harry,

I'm pretty sure I do not have to help you convince Eris that she needs to stay home after this weekend.

So, there we were, Eris, me (wearing those pregnancy hiding trousers), Viona, Hazel, and Orion, out shopping in muggle London because Eris has finally hit the nesting stage and realized that she had 'nothing' for her baby once he arrives. Thus, we were in a handmade (and rather expensive) furniture store.

It didn't just have baby furniture, but what it did carry was sturdy AND gorgeous. Heirloom quality that can be passed down through the ages. Eris was buying a crib (despite being certain that she wants to co-sleep) AND a bassinet for naps the first few months. Plus a dresser and armoire for the baby, a changing table, and a vanity - even though he's probably not likely to be as interested in a vanity as a girl might be.

As she was shopping, Viona was buying an entire house full of things as she and Alric are planning to buy a 'small' house in London while they think about and look for a much bigger house in or near Hogsmeade.

Hazel was busy sketching out designs for baby clothes and curtains, rugs, and the like for both Eris and Viona, and Orion was actually pinching his chin in thought and squinting while studying some wooden chairs - the kind that could be set around a dining table, but also the same sort that are taller, as if the table was 2 or 3 feet higher. He really looked like he was trying to figure out if people would prefer sitting on taller chairs, or shorter ones. Plus he was poking all of them as if testing how plush the cushions were.

Ravenclaws! Sheesh...

Anyway, as I was saying, there we were, when completely out of the blue, we hear a very loudly shouted: "OH MY GOD, IT'S YOU!!!" A young man around Alric's age ran over to us, pulled Eris away from the rocking chair she was wavering on (it was a tight battle between a new style 'glider' and an old fashioned, intricately carved, wooden high-backed rocker), and hugged her exuberantly.

"Er..." she droned in utter confusion.

"I thought I'd never see you again! How have you been? ARE YOU PREGNANT?!?!?!!"

"Do I KNOW you?" Eris demanded with a wary expression, carefully pulling his arms off her.

He looked devastated for a split second before hardening into merely upset. "Wow... do you go to parties and fuck random strangers so often that you can't even remember them all?"

"Oh hey!" Orion blurted out, looking like a light bulb just went off over his head. "Now that you mention it, I DO recognize you as that bloke that my sister was snogging. What are you doing in London?"

The young man shrugged. "My parents took the whole divorce thing to a new level. My mom stayed back in California with her new husband, and my dad returned to Britain. I'm old enough to choose who I live with, so I chose my dad, even though it meant moving across the world to a place I don't know anyone."

"Your new step-dad that bad?"

"Totally! He's an asshole lawyer and I have NO IDEA how my mom stands him, much less loves him."

Meanwhile, Eris was looking rather vulnerable as she stared at her feet. I had put an arm around her protectively while both Hazel and Viona stood slightly in front of her, to either side, and looked ready to make him disappear permanently at the slightest provocation.

It seems that the young man wouldn't let Orion distract him long enough for the rest of us to make our escape. He turned his attention back to Eris. Now he looked... cautious.

"I remembered you having a British accent, so I'd hoped and prayed I'd run into you, even though I knew the chances were zilch. I guess today was my lucky day, or unlucky considering that you look like you'd rather swallow live bees than be confronted by a one night stand. Probably don't want to have to test them all to see if they're responsible for that," he stated a bit harshly as he pointed at her abdomen.

She lost whatever vulnerability she was feeling to haul back and slap him full across the face. "You complete arsehole! Did it NEVER occur to you that I was so drunk that night that I don't even remember SHAGGING - much less what you look like! You gave me chlamydia, by the way, so thanks for that! And if you must know, that's the ONLY time in my life I've ever had sex, so there're no tests needed! Now go the bloody hell away so that I can get on with my nesting!"

He looked so pale all of a sudden that I thought he was almost certainly going to faint. "Wait... you mean... you mean... that I-I-I-I I'M the father..."

She looked away, appearing ready to hex herself for saying too much. Sure enough, he fainted.

I found this entire situation far more amusing than I would have had all of this happen the night she conceived. Back then, I was doing my best to be supportive, all while also wishing that I could use my illegal time turner to go back and fix things. NOW - I suppose that I've had time to not only get used to the idea, but find humor in the situation.

Chuckling, I carefully balanced so that I could squat next to the young man. I poked him repeatedly as not-so-gently as I liked in an attempt to wake him up. I eventually moved on to patting his cheek, before lightly slapping it. But he was definitely out cold. I seriously wished that I could conjure smelling salts - which are crystals of salt that are coated with odors so foul that they wrench people back to consciousness. I haven't ever been able to use them - that I can recall with this brain fog - and I always wanted to use them to wake our kids should any of them ever manage to out sleep me.

When even shaking him failed to rouse him, I told Viona to cast an Innervate on him. She did it nonverbally, but even so, I'm dead certain that she cast a stinging hex on him instead. He came to with a gasp that sounded like he'd been hit by the Cruciatrus Curse. Huh... as I write this now, I have to wonder if that's actually what she cast...

Anyway, Eris was not pleased by my actions. "What'd'ja wake 'im for, dad?!" She spat out.

"Let's just say that I don't think most blokes deserve to receive such enormous buggering shocks only to be abandoned - especially since you know he'd never be able to find you in a million years,"
'I explained.

"So..... What? You think I should let him be part of our lives?!!" Eris growled, clearly upset by this, but I'm not entirely sure why since she can't possibly know him well enough to know if he would be a good co-parent - or hell! Friend she occasionally spends a day with at the zoo.

Orion apparently took pity on the bloke, helping him up and leading him a bit away. "Oi, listen, let me help you with whatever you're in this store for, and maybe by the time you're done, you'll have had a moment to think."

"Uh... okay. I'm here to buy a bed set, since I couldn't exactly bring my old one with me."

With a nod, Orion led him toward the display beds.

That gave me and the girls the chance to talk to Eris. I pulled her into a hug.

"Are you alright love?" I asked in concern because she looked pale and nearly ready to faint herself.

She burst into sobs, and curious passerby were smart enough to notice Viona's fierce expression and move along.

"I don't know what to do! I was all set and ready to raise this baby by myself, but now the father stumbled his way into our lives and you and dad are going to want me to do the right thing, but what if he wants my baby, or what if he's a terrible bloke - WHAT IF HE'S A PEDOPHILE?!?!?"

Hazel nearly choked on her own saliva and hissed: "You can't just blurt things like that out in public!"

But Eris was now definitely channeling panicky Harry, as she was basically blubbering all over my chest as I rubbed her back and tried to make soothing noises. As focused as I was, it actually took me a moment to realize that she'd inhaled sharply and sort of curled a bit.

"AND IT DOESN'T HELP THAT THIS BLOODY BABY HAS BEEN KICKING ME EVERY TWO. MINUTES. ALL BLOODY DAY!!!"

I gasped at that. "TWO minutes?????" I couldn't help but blurt out, because while I do recall hearing her grunt quite a bit as we shopped, I hadn't realized that it was so often nor regular. I took a breath and held it as I pressed a hand to her belly, sure enough, around a minute and a half later, I felt the distinctive hardening that signifies labor. "Oh, erm..." I had to figure out the best way to handle things from here. Probably have Viona Apparate her directly to St. Mungo's, right?

Nope! Slightly too late for that, since:

"AAAAAAAH!!!!" Eris screamed, curled over her abdomen now as a rather strong contraction hit her and she almost certainly wished she was laying down.

"OH MY GOD!!! IS IT TIME??? IS THE BABY COMING?!!??!!" The newly discovered father cried out as he ran back over and bounced, shook, and waved his hands around wildly. "WHAT DO WE DO, WHAT DO WE DO?!?!?!!"

I pressed a hand to my forehead and sighed in mild aggravation.

"MY WATER BROKE!!!!" Eris wailed as she looked down, and sure enough, her lower half and the floor were now soaked.
I decided that I didn't give a damn about the statute and all the muggles covertly watching our every move. I had to take over and give commands like I was conducting a raid.

"Orion, cast a Notice-Me-Not. Hazel, hex this one unconscious. Viona, the moment the N-M-N ward is up, Apparate Eris to Healer Rowe. Hazel, now that he's unconscious, you can Apparate him to the waiting room in the maternity ward and stash him there while you rush to Eris. Orion, Apparate us to St. Mungo's - and nice job on the ward."

Orion grinned at me, waiting until his sisters were clear so that they weren't all trying to Apparate at the same time and accidentally splinching each other. He then winked at me. "You know, Hazel and I, we're not technically supposed to Apparate until we officially pass the test."

"Are you suggesting that you don't think you can Apparate the two of us safely?" I questioned with a raised brow.

"No, just that if I get in trouble, I'm blaming you," he stated with a cheeky grin.

"Ha! Well I certainly won't tell if you don't," I promised. Laughing, he Apparated us.

I had a quick conference with Rowe before settling in the waiting room and writing this to you. (Also, I sent you an Insta-owl, and so, you're sitting here watching me write so that you can just read it and not have to ask me a million questions. Although, you'll probably have a million questions anyway.) Basically, Rowe told me that she'd done a quick check on Eris and found her only dilated to 7, and thus, probably at least an hour from actual delivery.

Viona, Hazel, and even Orion have insisted on being in the room with her, leaving no room for us, so as much as you really wanted to be at her side, you just have to wait out here with me. That said, if it takes long enough, Eris herself might get tired of her siblings - who've never done this before - and kick them out so that she can ask for you or us to reassure her that everything will be alright. We'll see.

In the meantime, I'm going to sign off now and snuggle and kiss you until we both forget why some random muggle is watching us with wide eyes and just a hair shy of completely freaking out.

Give a little bit of heart and soul, give a little bit of love to grow,
Draco
Chapter 106

Chapter Summary

Eris had her baby and the family gets to meet the father.

Chapter Notes

I read a comment in which Chrissie suggested that I post twice, and/or post a link to a really good video - to make up for missing two day in a row - SO I'm going to do both ^_^

See the end of the chapter for more notes

Monday March 20, 2017

Grandpa Draco,

Thank all the deities, we have another perfectly healthy, beautiful grandson and an amazing daughter who brought him into the world and is also healthy and whole. And desperately in love with her perfect little son. I didn't think there was much that could top seeing our children hold their little brothers or sisters with love and awe in their eyes. But seeing our children holding their own children for the first time? Nothing but sheer adoration on their faces. It's on an entirely different level.

I was a bit out of it when I saw Lainie with Raf the first time, but since then, I can't get over how perfect she looks cradling her child. And Eris holding little Luka was just as beautiful of a sight. I worried a bit with her being so young that she wouldn't bond with him right away, possibly resenting his unexpected and disruptive existence in her world. But I really should learn to never underestimate my children. She is a natural and already deeply in love with that little boy.

Hmm, a Malfoy child who's good with babies ... why was I surprised?

I did receive a massive surprise of the father, Eric, coincidentally finding her randomly in muggle London and it happening to be the day she went into labor. As the child of a prophecy, I should really find fate a bit more believable shouldn't I?

And oh wasn't Eric a ridiculous surprise? By the time you finished your email and then handed me your computer to read it, he was just beginning to stir. The both of us decided - instead of being kind and compassionate - that we should immediately begin interrogating him upon regaining consciousness.

What? He gave our daughter an STD, then when he managed to find her nine months later, he had the fucking bollocks to slut shame her. I can be as mean as I'd like. He hurt my baby girl!

The two of us began rapid-fire questioning him.
"What's your name?"
"How old are you?"
"How often do YOU go around shagging strangers at parties?"
"Why didn't you use protection?"
"How many STD's DO you have?"

He moaned a bit, rubbing his face with his hands, looking around he asked, "Where am I?"

I didn't even care that the confused little muggle was struggling to figure out what kind of place he was in. "Answer the questions, pretty-boy, and maybe we'll tell you." What? For all that he hurt Eri, it's not like I'm not aware that he's a ridiculously pretty man. Not as pretty as you, but he's one of the closest I've met.

"I just want to know that the heiress is alright, she looked so scared. And maybe someone will tell me her name!" He was getting awfully flustered. Idiot apparently misheard and thought her actual name of Eris was just her being nicknamed the Heiress. "My name is Eric Madsen, I'm eighteen - I'll actually be turning nineteen next month. Uh, I've had a few one night stands, I suppose - I'm a horny teenager - but I swear I had no intention of the Heiress being one. But she was gone when I woke up and no one seemed to know who she was or where she lived. I just had the one STD, again stupid horny teenager. And I uh, didn't use protection because I don't actually know how to use a condom and my usual protection was uh ... not something I was able to use on her. Umm, kinda."

I took a deep breath, you and I have had to explain magic to muggles quite a few times over the years, but it never gets easier. "Listen Eric, I'm Eris' dad Harry. Yeah, her name IS Eris, E-R-I-S. That wasn't a nickname, it's her actual name." He looked relieved to finally know her name. "You are currently at a very special medical hospital called St. Mungo's. It's er ... well it's a special hospital for people like Eris. It's a good thing you're sitting down because this may come as a shock to you ..."

His face quickly morphed from relief at knowing her name to fear that I was about to drop some terrible information on him. "Eric, magic is real." He reacted so differently from when muggles usually hear that. There was no disbelief or shock, no begging me to do a spell and prove it. He just stared at me like he was waiting for the rest of the information. "Er, I can, uh, prove it. Magic really is real and Eris is an honest to goodness witch. I'm a wizard, and so is her other dad, Draco."

I pointed to you.

Finally, he got the shocked look on his face I was expecting. "Oh that makes so much sense now! I was so worried about casting a protection spell in front of a no-maj! I guess I didn't need to worry and should have just cast the damn thing. But then we wouldn't be here, I suppose."

Oh. Of all the blokes Eris could find on the other side of the world to have a one-off with, she ends up finding a wizard to do it with.

I ran my hands through my hair, trying to calm my flustered nerves. "Alright then, I guess we don't have to explain magic to you. That should make the rest of this easier. Eris is doing fine. Last we checked, she was progressing nicely, with mom and baby both doing well."

Again Eric had a shocked look on his face. What? He already knew about magic and the only thing I told him was that Eris was doing well, what was his problem?

"Fuck me! You're Eris' dad, Harry, and you've a scar on your head! Oh my God! Did I knock up Harry Potter's daughter?!? Are you Harry Potter?"
You laughed and interjected before I had the chance to respond. "He prefers Harry Malfoy these days."

"Oh hell! I'm such a huge fan of yours, Mister Potter, or um sorry, Mister Malfoy. I've wanted to meet you for so long. You're a hero and I owe you such a debt of gratitude!"

I dropped my face into my hands and groaned. Seriously? It's been almost twenty years, can people get over the fucking hero worship thing. I expelliarmused a broken man which turned his own spell on him. I'm so over being praised for helping a man destroy himself. But Eric continued: "I wouldn't be anything I am today without you!" Er ... what? "I was raised in the muggle foster system. My biological parents weren't thrilled about having a magical child, one too many accidental magics when I was a toddler had them abandoning me. I don't remember much about them at all. I was in and out of foster homes, some not so bad but some of them terrible, from the time I was about three until just before my eleventh birthday."

Oh Merlin, he wasn't talking about my defeat of Voldemort, our daughter managed to find Unity Royalty at that party!

He kept going. "I was brought to Unity House and my entire world changed. I wasn't punished for accidental magic, but given the tools to wield it. I wasn't an unwanted extra mouth to feed, I was a well-loved and cared for part of a community. I only spent about six months there before my parents adopted me, but it was enough to realize how it completely changed my life."

I interjected a bit. "But er, your parents, I thought things were hard?"

"Oh, yeah, they went through a divorce a while back. I can't stand my step-dad so I came here to live with my dad, but there's no doubt that both of my parents love me. And uh, I really hoped to find my heiress. Or, Eris I guess." Damnit! He's even cuter when he blushes. I couldn't help thinking about how cute this baby was going to be. And now, after he's here? Yeah, I was totally right, absolutely beautiful our little Luka is.

And that's about the time Eris wanted you and I in the room instead of her loving-but-completely-unhelpful-in-a-birthing-room siblings.

Seeing our grandson born was one of the highlights of my life.

Now I have some squeaky babies of my own who need feeding.

Love,
Harry

P.S. Really Draco? A son may not like a vanity as much as a daughter? Uh, have you forgotten that of every person in our family, YOU are the most obsessed with your skin care and beauty regimen? You're utterly ridiculous!

Tuesday March 21st
My cuddly snugglebug,

Thank you so much for indulging me in my need to do nothing but sit in bed (both last night and right now as I type this) and snuggle with you and the boys as you nurse/d them. I'm so uncomfortable that as much as I want to shag, I'm really glad you're a bit not in the mood at the moment either. Can you believe that I'm due in just 4 days?
Considering that this is the 4th pregnancy, I really expect to pop at any second now. Do you think I should have asked Rowe to just get it done while I was in the hospital with Eris yesterday? I mean, why wait? Right?

And if Rowe is serious about waiting until Morgana is 'ready' to come out on her own, I might just AK her! Seriously, I'm only carrying one and I still look like I'm carrying triplets!!!

Do you think Morgana is bigger than a baby should be??? Like maybe she's absorbed all that extra nutrition I've been having between the potions, the blood, and the seafood (I'm currently craving seal fat like it ruled the world!), and now weighs about 30 pounds all on her own! What if she comes out the size of a toddler?! What if she comes out full grown?!

Okay, wait, stroke the Komboloi… Phew! I'm less panicky now. Morgana is fine.

Morgana is fine.

Morgana is FINE, Merlin damnit!

Breathe, breathe, Komboloi.

Better.

Okay, so, did you find Zaire as adorable as I did today? It's River's birthday, and so any other year, we would have had a big family lunch or dinner, but this year, River didn't want to come all the way back home when him and Mahafsoun had plans that more than likely were very private. Thus I didn't expect anything special or fancy.

This just did NOT agree with Zaire, hahaha!

So, shortly after I woke up and snuggled with you - you were conveniently in bed nursing the boys - we received word that guests had flooed into the Manor, and that Eris requested both our presence in the Sun Room so that she didn't have to face them alone.

NOT that she would be less than perfectly safe in our home, but moral support, I suppose.

So we both hastily asked our elves to cast dressing spells on us and wrangle our hair into some semblance of order. Or well, my hair anyway. We even managed to make it to the Sun Room before Eris, Viona, Alric, Hazel, and Orion. Once everyone was settled and comfortable, we gave permission for the elves to bring our guests to us.

Eric looked rather amazed as he and his father looked around the Sun Room a moment later. "This place is HUGE!"

I chuckled because all he would have seen of it so far was the entrance hall and the Sun Room. Just wait until he's had a tour. "Welcome to Malfoy Manor, Eric. Mr. Madsen."

"Blimey! You're actually Harry Potter!" Mr. Madsen exclaimed in awe. "I was 5 Years above you, so I was out of school before you REALLY got popular. I always lamented having to miss the Triwizard Tournament."

As usual, you were less than thrilled by the adoration, but you kept silent.

"I was also a little disappointed that by the time my wife - EX-wife - and I went to Unity House in California to adopt, you'd already moved on," he continued, apparently perfectly content to keep babbling on all day.
Thankfully, Eric cut his father short. "How are you doing today, Eris? Can I hold Luka?"

"I'm well, thank you for asking. Luka's just eaten and can't quite decide if he wants to take a nap. Warning, he'll probably need a nappy change any moment now," she said as she handed her son over.

Both Eric and his father looked positively enamored by their little man. They cooed at and tickled him, making baby faces and doing their best to make him smile. Eris looked a little relieved.

"Look," she stated firmly. "Despite knowing that there was only one option, I had Healer Rowe cast a paternity test spell on you to be certain that you were telling the truth about being the one to, erm, well… because it's probably not hard to see how a bloke might hear the story of what happened and try to use that to worm their way into this family. Even once confirmed, I honestly wasn't sure I wanted to let you see us ever again, but you've managed to put my mind at ease. A little. So, I'm going to offer you shared custody on the condition that you always come HERE for the first year or so. As long as you don't do anything to harm any of us, and never try to take him away without permission, we'll renegotiate after Luka's first birthday."

Eric took a moment to think this over, and then nodded slowly. "Alright... I suppose that sounds fair. Better than you expecting child support while never allowing me visitation."

I took a sip of the tea that the elves had just served. "You're lucky in that Eris doesn't need monetary support from you. That said, don't push your luck. She's not going to be a bank for you either."

Eric looked extremely affronted for a moment before visibly swallowing his ire. After taking a purposeful breath and exhaling it, he nodded in acceptance. "I just want a chance to get to know Eris better while we raise our son. And just so you know, even though we're not THIS well off, we do have enough money that I can go to any college in the world I want and not have to worry about how to pay for it."

I gave a sparse nod of acceptance.

The solemnity of the situation was ruined a moment later when the glass doors to the outside burst open and the Feisty Foursome ran into the room. "DADS!!! Can we please ride the Thestrals?! The babies are positively mopey because they haven't been ridden in FOREVER!!!"

We both groaned and sighed. You threw your hands up in the air in defeat. "Why even bother asking? You're just going to do it even if we say no!"

"Well yeah, but YOU said we should always ask first!" Lily replied, all four of them were running around our chairs excitedly.

"Did someone give you sugar?" I wondered with a raised brow.

"NOPE!" Three of them assured us with innocent expressions and head shakes while Atreyu grinned and stated: "Grandpa gave us bags of rock candy from Honeydukes!"

I laughed and put an arm around Atreyu's shoulders, stopping him from running around. I lightly poked his adorable little nose. "You need to learn how to NOT incriminate yourself."

"Yeah well, we don't want him to LIE either," you said sternly, looking at the other three with an expression that let them know you were talking about them.

"No, that we don't," I agreed. "Just maybe not volunteer information that will get them in trouble."
You shifted your stern expression to me. "They can't ALL be Slytherins. We should try teaching them balanced views, such as understanding that volunteering information that can get them in trouble will get them in much LESS trouble than if they lie about it."

"That don't work!" Orion blurted out, and then blushed when he realized that we were both peering at him suspiciously. He rubbed the back of his neck nervously. "I'm just saying that if - for example, HYPOTHETICALLY - if one of us said that we'd supplied a bunch of alcohol for all our housemates to party with, I'm dead certain that you'd both ground that one for months."

I laughed. "You think we never partied and drank in Slytherin?"

"Hey!" You blurted out in protest. "When we partied in Gryffindor, we ONLY ever had butterbeer!"

I snorted. "That's because you were all goody goody Gryffindors. I'm SHOCKED that Fred and George never snuck in anything harder."

You stroked your chin in thought. "Hmm... You know, I bet they did and I just was too preoccupied with other things to notice."

Eris, Hazel, and Viona all had utterly smooth expressions. "We cannot confirm nor deny whether Slytherins still party with alcohol, but if they did, it would only be the finest alcohol."

"Naturally," I agreed with a nod.

You set one fist on top of the palm of your other hand. "We REALLY need to have a Hufflepuff so that we can learn all their secrets too!"

It was my turn to stroke my chin in thought. "Hmm... you have an excellent point."

That was when we were interrupted before any of us could say anything else.

"Mesdames et Messieurs," Zaire called out dramatically as he entered the room. He was dressed up in a VERY iconic waiter's uniform, like a black tuxedo but... slightly less formal and more utilitarian. We all looked over at him curiously.

"Whoa," Eric blurted out in shock. "I would NOT have expected the founder of Unity House to have a child of color as a servant..."

This made us all whip our heads to Eric in alarm.

"AHEM!!" Zaire cleared his throat very loudly. "I'm TRYING to do something important here!"

I smiled at him. "By all means, love, carry on."

Harrumphing in triumph, he did exactly that. "If everyone would follow me to the formal dining room, a leisurely luncheon will be served."

I checked my pocket watch. It was past normal lunchtime, but since I personally hadn't even eaten breakfast and had only had a few biscuits with my tea, I was fairly eager to dig in. A look around let me know that most of the people in the room had apparently forgotten to eat as well. Maybe Zaire had actually forbidden the elves to serve lunch as normal.

As we made our way to the formal dining room, Zaire had some of the elves round up everyone else. Well, everyone in our 'little' family. It seems that my parents and siblings and the Viper's kids weren't invited.

I decided to make a quick and informal introduction. "Kids! Quiet down! QUIET!!! Lovely. This is Eric and his father. Eric is Luka's father, and they're here to meet with the family and work things out, so please try to go easy on them. Eric, as you are more than likely going to be visiting the Manor on a regular basis from now on, it would probably be best to have names to go with faces.

"This is our eldest daughter, Elena, and her baby Rafael. Elena, lovely to see you home for lunch and not overdoing it at school."

She laughed. "Ethan and Rose have made it their mission to stay by my side most of the time to prevent me from going into work before I'm 'ready' - which they don't think I am."

I smirked at her. "Good." I returned my attention to Eric. "Our oldest son, River, isn't here - which is ironic, since it's his birthday. Next is Viona, who apparently doesn't like a thing about you, so best to avoid provoking her as she she's not afraid to shout out what's on her mind. Next to her is her fiancé Alric; Eris you know, of course; Hazel, Orion, Shtara, Siri, Zwei, Jaz, Persephone, Lily, Caelum, Atreyu, Gabriel is in Harry's arms, and I'm holding Dylan. I feel like I'm forgetting someone... OH! And our son that's hosting this banquet is Zaire."

"Thank you for that introduction, dad," Zaire stated as if he was the most important person in the room. "I've gathered you all here today to sample this excellent feast and tell me what you think. I made everything myself with only a little bit of help from the elves. As you can see, it's traditional cuisine from around the world."

Shtara, perhaps mildly offended that Zaire was acting like he was more important than she is - being an actual star and all - interrupted him. She looked rather suspicious. "This sounds like a bloody business presentation."

Zaire grinned at her. "It is! Well spotted!"

"What's the business?" You wondered curiously.

Zaire gestured around at all the food. "A traditional and ethnic food restaurant. I KNOW we all love Café Exquis - and that CAN do any food you want - but I thought to myself that with people being so obsessed with food these days, and actually wanting to know where their food comes from, that it was ethically raised, and prepared using traditional methods, that there's a real market for something like I envision. BEST OF ALL, I can create it from the ground up, right here in Wiltshire! There are plenty of farmers around to supply the local ingredients, and then I can blatantly use my connection to Café Exquis to source all of the other ingredients - since they have a supplier to literally everything available on the planet."

I laughed, so proud of him. "Well, you certainly have confidence in this plan of yours, but what about the economics of it? Running a restaurant is EXPENSIVE, and I highly doubt that you have the slightest idea how to create a balanced budget - which I would require before approving any sort of business plan."

Zaire bounced giddily and grinned as he gestured at Viona. "I asked Vivi to help me with that - as she KNOWS full well that you'd expect me to hire a manager to actually handle those parts that I am weak in."

Viona smiled at him and pulled a THICK report out of her pocket - unshrinking it before handing it over. "Zaire and I talked business every moment I could spare for the last two months - most of it over Magi-Skype. He has a pretty well-thought-out plan, and yes, I DID help him with the financial portion of the plan."

I took the plan and skimmed through it before holding it over my shoulder for Pippa to take - except that I forgot that she's still on maternity leave. "Bugger!" I exclaimed, sighing. "Looks like I can't have my assistant get to work on it, so I'll just have to trust that my brilliant daughter would NEVER hand me a bad plan. If Viona thinks this is worth investing in, then I have to agree. Congratulations Zaire! And by the way, this goat tongue taco is fantastic!"

Zaire positively beamed in pride. "It's one of my favorites!"

"Wait!" Elena interrupted. "Does this mean that you won't be teaching African dances at my school?"

Zaire flapped his hand at her and scoffed. "Of course I will. First of all, I'll need to wait until Pippa is back to work, or possibly until dad can hire ME an assistant. Then I'll need to scout for the perfect property, hire experts to plan out and construct the restaurant, and then have it equipped, supplied, and staffed before I can even think about opening it. That'll take months, and even then, my class is one day a week. I think even once my restaurant is open, I'll be able to fit a two hour class a week into my schedule, and if not, I clearly haven't hired the right manager!"

You roared with laughter. "Another brilliant child raised to do business the MALFOY way! Draco, perhaps you should try teaching a few of them to actually run their own business."

"I RUN MY OWN BUSINESS!!!" Elena, Viona, Alric, Hazel, Eris, and Orion all protested indignantly.

"Hell! I run SEVERAL of them!" Viona added huffily.

You immediately looked contrite. "Er... right. Sorry."

"And I act, which is even better," Shtara added with a playful wink at you. She then burst into an absolutely breathtaking rendition of Poor Unfortunate Souls, which the rest of us decided to sing along to.

Looking far more relaxed than I've seen her since she opened her school, Elena immediately started a new song the moment the first one finished: Bohemian Rhapsody. At the end, Eris was laughing so hard that she had to hold her sides.

"Well, there's no better initiation into the Malfoy family than a crazy and chaotic singalong!" She smiled at Eric for a moment before turning to grin at me. "Dad, sing a lullaby! An upbeat one!"

Never one to pass up a request, I shifted so that I could hold up the squishy and utterly perfect baby in my arms as if presenting him to our tribe.

May the good Lord be with you down every road you roam.
And may sunshine and happiness surround you when you're far from home.
And may you grow to be proud, dignified and true.
And do unto others as you'd have done to you.
Be courageous and be brave.
And in my heart you'll always stay
Forever young. (Forever young)
Forever young. (Forever young)
Draco
P.S. I really don't think Mr. Madsen was prepared to see the two of us as loving married men, because he looked downright shocked (or maybe disappointed) that we didn't argue or fight even once, hahaha!

Chapter End Notes

Here's a link to a video on youtube in which two really good looking gay guys dance in a church to Hallelujah, enjoy ^_^
https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=KDgA2sxQIn8
Saturday March 25, 2017

My Pregnant Husband,

I'm so sorry you're still pregnant and uncomfortable. I'm sorry you feel so enormous. I honestly think the reason you're carrying larger than you have previously is simply because you had all that space from before Gabe and Dylan were removed and so Morgana had a whole lot of space to stretch out and get comfortable. Rowe has taken readings and measurements remember, and Morgana definitely measures on the larger end of normal but well within normal standards. I promise you she is not toddler sized or fully grown.

If she's anywhere near toddler sized, it would at least be Persephone toddler sized where she was barely the size of the average one year old by the time she was three.

My guess for what it's worth? I am guessing she'll be roughly nine pounds by the time she makes her grand entrance ... in a week from now. I know, you're so excited to be closing in on your due date, but I think that stubborn little girl has set in and has no intention of leaving even then. We may have to smoke her out.

I thought for a moment when I was reading your email that I was having some weird out of body experience and reading my own writing. When did you become the panicky one who goes to extremes like "What if she comes out full grown?" What kind of rambling, incoherent, Harry-nonsense is happening? Are we having some Freaky Friday brain swapping insanity going on? Oh Hell, what if we really have magically swapped personalities or something and I didn't even notice? Am I really that unobservant that I don't even notice a personality swap?

Wait, still panicking. Nope, no swapping, just you catching a bad case of the Ridicul-itis.

Oh my goodness could Zaire have been any cuter with his whole presentation? With his little waiter uniform? He is constantly an enigma to me; he's grown so tall, he's so mature, but he's also got this infectious grin that lights up at the smallest thing the way it did when he was practically a toddler. He's like an old man, trapped inside a little boy, trapped in the body of a young man.

I'm so glad Zaire made a big lunch and presentation on Tuesday. I was missing my River something awful. Between the visit from the Madsens and Zaire's business proposal, it kept my mind off of being away from him on his birthday for the first time in years. Ugh, I thought teenagers were stressful, this having adult children thing is utter bull-shite!

I miss him so much Draco! I want to call him every day and beg him to come home. I want to fly to California, throw the both of them in a potato sack, and kidnap them back home where they belong. I want him back here where I can see him and make him birthday pancakes and visit him at work. I'm just having such a hard time with him so far away.
And the worst part is, I am so proud of him. I love that he knows exactly what his priorities are and that he's across the world making it on his own. Starting his life with his wife. He's wonderful and brilliant and I just want him to be happy. This is just so damn hard.

Okay, I have to stop blubbering. Yikes, if I thought the pregnancy mood swings were bad, this postpartum stuff is no joke this time around. I promise you I do not have post-partum depression. After the first mood swing, I actually really started analyzing my feelings and trying to catch it before it got bad. Nope, just good old hormonal spikes which cause me to swing from insanely happy to hysterically sad in no time.

I did have a really lovely magi-skype session with Maha this weekend before Eris went into labor. I asked her if she would be willing to humor me, and if they weren't coming for a visit, would she be willing to bring him breakfast in bed and sing happy birthday to him on his birthday? She was actually really excited that I was including her in our family's special tradition. Apparently she still worries that I don't care for her, which is ridiculous! I only ever cared about her well-being, and now that she's my extra daughter, I truly do love her. After assuring me that she would make him his birthday breakfast, we had a really nice long talk. We ended up hashing out some old feelings of jealousy or frustration, really getting to the heart of our relationship.

I have really high hopes that she and I are going to be much closer from here on out.

I know we've already decided to ask Dean and Seamus to be Dylan's Godparents, and we've never chosen one of our kids to be any of their siblings' Godparents. But sister-in-law is different right? Do you think we should ask her to be Godmother to either Gabriel or Morgana? I didn't say anything to her about it, so if it's not alright with you just let me know and there won't be any disappointment or anything.

And are we going to officially ask Dean and Seamus when they come for dinner to meet Dylan today?

How did you feel about the Madsens? Eric seems like a nice kid who made some stupid mistakes. Having my own nice kids who have made stupid mistakes, I would normally forgive just about any transgression. But he also hurt my baby girl. So I kind of want to make him hurt.

Luckily, Eris is being really mature about the whole thing. Her restrictions on basically giving Eric unlimited access to Luka but within the safety of our home is a really good compromise. We can be assured of his safety while letting Eric know his son. And of course Eric and his dad were enamored of Luka, he's absolute perfection. How could you not be in love with that little guy?

I'm less in love with Eric's father. I really hope he either almost never visits or gets over his nonsense hero-worship quickly. I've never been so pleased to have NOT been at Unity to meet with potential parents. Yeah ... it's so rough that you missed the tri-wizard tournament. That was an event to die for. Fuck, it wasn't a game! When will people realize it was a scary, horrible, unnecessarily dangerous contest designed to give Voldemort access to me?

And there's the rage mood swing. Lovely to see you old friend.

Well, I'm off to go check on dinner, feed the babies, and then hopefully grab all the babies in the house for pictures and a ridiculous amount of smooches.

Love you!
Harry

P.S. I know the trio headed back a few days ago so they could be home with their own babies for the influx of March Quartet birthdays, but did you see Lainie huddled up with Hermione almost constantly when they were here? Do you know what that was about?

Saturday March 25th
My patience,

Thank you so much for keeping me calm. You may not even realize how helpful you are being. I woke up to you in bed feeding our boys, and that in and of itself kept my mind off my discomfort and on you and them. Then when I started thinking about how this is Morgana's due date and there's no sign she's planning to come out any time soon, I started getting anxious and trying to plan out ways to trigger labor.

Maybe you sensed my anxiety because you pulled me close for a kiss and then handed Gabriel to me, since he was full and Dylan was still nursing. I was able to focus on our adorable little boy, inspecting his fingers, toes, skin tone, soft hair, and eye color to see if he was perhaps turning blond, but nope, still a fiery ginger. Not that I'm complaining, just that it's weird to see our kids with red hair.

After both the babies were sleeping, you stroked a hand down my spine and gave me a thousand little kisses, which definitely kept my mind off the little dancer in my belly.

As I'm thinking about it now, I remember hearing that orgasms can trigger labor, so I'm hoping that from the time I wake up tomorrow - whenever our babies are napping or in the care of the elves or a family member - you'll accept my challenge to make me orgasm and keep on making me orgasm until my womb takes the hint and starts contracting on its own.

But before I forget, with my brainfog only slightly better than it was a week or so ago, I wanted to tell you about Elena's conversation with Hermione. I can't remember exactly if I had simply overheard it at first and eventually barged my way in, or if we were already sitting down and having tea when it started, but in any case, I found out that Elena has been asking Hermione all sorts of questions about polyamorous relationships.

See, Elena has always been friends with Kisa, and so, knows a lot about what it's like to be the last member added to a relationship, but what Elena wanted to know was how it felt to be part of the original couple when they first decided to be open, and then when they found someone that they were pretty sure they wanted to be with forever.

Hermione was surprisingly honest about her feelings. Perhaps honest is a bad description. Erm... in touch with and forthcoming might be a better description. Hermione said that she and Ron originally started playing around because they'd both been serious about each other from a fairly early age and didn't really have much experience with others. So, they wanted to sow a few wild oats before getting married. But then they had a threesome with Blaise and everything changed.

Hermione looked a little haunted when she talked about how Blaise was a notorious player, never settling down with anyone and shagging every single person that interested him in the slightest. They were both afraid that he would get bored of them - and to be honest, he usually never shagged a person more than two or three times before forgetting about them and moving on.

Hermione then went on to talk about how they resigned themselves to basically letting him be himself, even though it meant that he was just playing with them. They were confused that he kept coming back, and that he eventually started staying, but they couldn't let their hearts get TOO involved because they knew it was only a matter of time before he left.
Hermione was rather soft and vulnerable looking as she smiled. "We all know NOW that he was meant for Kisa, but that doesn't mean that he never had any thoughts or feelings of his own. He was nearing his 30s when she finally was of age and able to bond with him, and for all of those years, he was searching for her without knowing it. So, when he finally realized that he'd fallen in love with us, and we were able to admit that we'd fallen pretty hard for him too, it was a REALLY momentous occasion. I don't think a single one of us thought it would actually last beyond the honeymoon phase, but we were all committed to making it work as much as possible..."

Hermione trailed off and stared at her tea for a few long minutes while Elena thought this over and I also drank my tea. I'm not certain that Hermione managed to set Elena's mind at ease, but she eventually let us know why she was so curious.

Rafael ran out of milk on the one side and had to be switched to the other, but once he was settled again, Elena kissed him on his gorgeous head and returned her attention to us.

"See, this thing with Ethan and Rose was only ever meant to be a one off. I jumped at the chance because I've had a crush on Ethan forever, but then I got pregnant. I was fully prepared to do this all on my own, but then he found out and pushed his way into our lives. NOW he and Rose are SO supportive of me, and they're acting a bit like I belong to them, but not in a controlling way, more of a... hmm... I suppose you could say a: you're one of us now, and we always take care of our own - sort of way. Like they consider me part of their family, and considering how I was raised in a family that regularly adds new members, I couldn't exactly claim not to be used to this sort of sentiment."

She paused to take a long drink of water. "I think they might be trying to form a relationship with me that's more than just co-parenting, but I'm... I guess I'm a little wary because they were having marital troubles when they first invited me to play. What if they didn't fully fix those problems and I become the thing that breaks them apart completely? But when I tried to talk to Rose about being the 'other woman,' she just smiled at me, shook her head, and put her arm around my shoulders, murmuring something about us being permanently part of each others' lives because of our kids having the same father."

Elena sighed, shook her head, and then smiled. "I actually think that ROSE likes me. Like maybe that was a part of the problem - Rose liking women - and if that's the case, maybe that's why they thought a threesome would help. Because it would be giving her what she needs." She shrugged. "But I also don't quite know if I want that sort of relationship, or if I just want a Mononormative one. Like Rodrigo not so subtly keeps hinting he'd be very happy to have with me..."

I chuckled at that. "I knew there was some chemistry there!"

She rolled her eyes at me. "He's bloody fit! I'd have to be blind not to notice!"

"That he is," I agreed with a nod.

Hermione smirked. "My advice is to have a BRILLIANT one night stand with Rodrigo, making certain he knows that you are not looking to start a relationship, just want to see what you'll be missing out on, and then talk to Rose about her expectations. If you are right about her liking you and wanting to add you to their relationship, so long as you are not adverse to it, it'll more than likely be worth trying. Because if it works, your son grows up with his father and siblings and you all are happy. If it doesn't work out, at least you'll have tired and know it doesn't work for you."

I stroked my chin in thought. "You could always have both. A triad with Ethan and Rose, AND a mostly Mononormative relationship with Rodrigo. I can't promise it'll ALL work out, but so long as everyone remains honest and TALKS about their feelings constantly, it has a chance, I should Elena looked speculative, but had more questions for Hermione. I personally had to go to the loo, but then I got distracted or lost in our closet and never got back to them.

As for today, I'd say things went rather well.

Dean and Seamus were over for dinner, and we were having a smaller, more intimate one with just them and us (and our babies) in our suite. Dean was holding Dylan and positively FASCINATED by how much they look alike. As you said, Dylan is almost certainly a mini Dean clone with a couple of my features. It would be IMPOSSIBLE not to notice a resemblance between them.

Also, yes, it's a good thing Dean is a good looking bloke, as it means his mini clone will be just as gorgeous as the rest of our kids. How did we manage to get so lucky that ALL of our kids are so gorgeous?

As dinner progressed and Dean and Seamus took turns holding Dylan (and Gabriel), they both got watery looks for a moment, until Seamus finally reassured us.

"We're still absolutely certain that we don't want kids, but we won't lie and say that we haven't been thinking about it a lot ever since we found out about this little man. Actually seeing him, and seeing how a child between Dean and me could look - with his features, but lighter. Maybe... maybe having a baby wouldn't be so bad after all. But then reality returns and we remember that babies are a lot of work and having one as we approach our 40s is going to be even harder. So as beautiful as he is - as much fun as it is to think about how a child of ours would grow - we are more certain than ever that we don't want to go through the reality of it."

That's when you and I smiled at each other and I nodded encouragingly.

"Well, how would you like to be Godfathers instead?" You asked with a warm smile.

They both looked so honored, giving each other watery looks before turning back to you and nodding vigorously. "We'd like that!"

And so, mission accomplished, I suppose. Little Dylan Sheen Potter officially has a set of Godparents, and Gabriel Pan Potter has Mahafsoun as a Godmother (or will soon enough). And you're right, even though we haven't made any of our kids Godparents yet, maybe we should consider it. Viona and Alric as Godparents for Morgana? If not... hmm... we've sort of run out of people, haven't we? Maybe our farmer?

AHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA! Wouldn't that just shock him! 'Oi, I can't even remember your name, but how would you like to be responsible for one of our MANY kids should we happen to die?' Hahahahahaha!

No seriously, we need to stop having kids because we've run out of people to name Godparents. Or wait, did we use all my siblings yet? If not, they are probably just waiting for their turn. Viper's kids too.

OOO!!! I think I felt a contraction!!! ...... ...... DAMNIT! No... just a bit of gas... sigh...

I have loved you for a thousand years and I will love you for a thousand more,

Draco
Harry wants to know what Draco has against red hair, and Draco wants to trigger his labor.

Saturday March 25th
My Love who makes beautiful ginger babies,

Yeah, beautiful ginger babies. What in Merlin's name is your real problem with the red hair? I mean honestly. You think it's weird to see our children with red hair? Your son is six years old! You've had six years to get used to a child of yours having red hair. Are you saying my sons are weird looking? I love you, but I may have to hurt you just a little bit. And not the fun kind.

I didn't actually mean we should use our children as their siblings' Godparents. I was more explaining why it wasn't weird to ask Mahafsoun when we've not ever asked our children. And I realize we really have used up a LOT of our options. And even doubling them in some places. We do still have a few unutilized options.

We already know that Dylan will have Dean and Seamus. We already know that Morgana will have Mahafsoun. I think we should definitely have Gavin and Della for Gabriel, you can't use two of your siblings and not use the other two. There may be a mutiny! And you mentioned Viper's kids, but what about Viper's husband? Tiger is such a huge part of our lives, and Viper is already Caelum's Godfather. I really think we should have Tiger be Morgana's other Godparent.

Then we just have to figure what to do about Atreyu's ceremony. Obviously it's a bit late for a naming ceremony, but he needs an official welcome into the Malfoy family. What do you think about asking Teddy and Bill to stand in as Godfathers for him? Neither of them are weres but Bill has the traits and Teddy has had to grow up knowing he was the child of a were. I think those two men would be fantastic role models for our little boy.

I feel a bit selfish though, we're using up all the godparents before Eris and Lainie have a chance to ask anyone for Rafael or Luka. Not that I even have to wonder who they're going to choose. Well, I suppose I do wonder who Lainie's OTHER choice will be after Kisa. Maybe she'll let Ethan or Rose choose the other Godparent. There is zero doubt in my mind that Eris will be choosing Hazel and Orion.

Oh my sweet Lainie-Girl. What do you think she's going to do? I hate that she's struggling over this decision. And at this point it's not even a decision. She doesn't even know if they're interested in pursuing a triad type relationship. Although, they'd have to be absolute idiots to not see perfection when it's all but dropped in their laps. So she has to decide if she even wants to find out if it IS a possibility, then if it's a possibility she has to decide if she wants to pursue it. Why can't things just be easy for her?

I think of our own whirlwind romance - seven or eight years of constant fighting, a handful of snarky emails with barely veiled innuendo and flirting, a drunken marriage proposal, and BAM here we are almost two decades later madly in love with a small army of children at our disposal.
Our Elena is too wonderful to be so stressed about finding the right person or people to fall in love with.

What if she's the one who breaks them?!? Oh my darling girl, what if you're exactly what they've been waiting for? What if you fill in all of their brittle edges with your brilliance? How could anything not be better just by having her in it?

Just like my entire world is better for having you in it.

Maybe I should come find you and try to shag you into labor!

Yours,
Harry

Sunday March 26th
Dearest Harry,

Thank you so much for putting me to sleep last night, the blowjob was... stubborn, or rather, my shaft was. I imagine that must have been hard on your jaw, but at least it made me pass out and sleep relatively through the night - with only a trip or two to the loo.

As for right now, I'm a bit desperate for this labor to begin already. It's a day late! Our daughters may be brilliant Divas, but a full day late is more than just fashionably late.

So, I'm going to attempt a light jog all around the Manor and the grounds until the jarring motion starts my labor. Possibly interspersed with jumping jacks. Don't worry, I'll have Muffy with me at all times in case I pop whilst in the North Fields. Also, I'm not going to do it on purpose, but I do happen to know that tripping can work pretty well. Maybe I'll get lucky and not see a rock that makes me trip and triggers my labor.

If you need me, I'll be around here somewhere.

Tale as old as time,
Draco
Chapter 109

Chapter Summary

Draco is still pregnant.

Chapter Notes

Sorry for the spotty updates this week, work was kicking my butt!

Monday March 27, 2017

My Sweetheart,

Another day gone and another day that Morgana has firmly dug in with no attempts at vacating her spot. It's just so backwards, we thought we'd be voluntarily having a scheduled birth for her at thirty-six weeks to hopefully keep Gabriel and Dylan in as long as possible. Hopefully able to go to 38 weeks for Dylan and the full 40 for Gabriel. Instead, they're already almost two weeks old (tomorrow) and she's overdue.

I feel guilty, I only had to be pregnant for three months, you've been pregnant for so long. And even though you're down to only one, the majority of your pregnancy was with triplets! I am so ready for Morgana to get here, I want to meet the youngest of our children, I want to see her (undoubtedly) gorgeous little face, I want these three babies back together like they belong. But mostly, I just want you to be done being miserable and uncomfortable.

I know it doesn't help the discomfort, but if it helps you emotionally, I need you to know that I find you insanely attractive right now. Your already normally perfect skin and hair have that healthy glow to them. Your belly, while you think it looks terrible, is smooth and gorgeous, you know I've always had a bit of a pregnancy kink where you're involved. Knowing you're carrying our children, sacrificing your comfort, holding them within your body, seeing you absentmindedly stroking your stomach with a fond expression of love, well it does some noticeable things to my cock.

My cock which is achingly hard right now. I kind of want to wank, but I feel so selfish trying to chase my own pleasure when you're so uncomfortable.

I probably shouldn't feel selfish since in the last twelve hours I'm pretty sure I've gotten you off, what, a solid ten times? I have to congratulate you on your stamina my love. Normally that many orgasms in that short amount of time would take assistance from spells or potions. But that was all you and your pent up frustration.

Gods you're just so damn pretty. We both wanted to hopefully jump start labor for you with a "few" intense orgasms. We didn't accomplish the labor, but judging by how you are currently sleeping like the dead, our night festivities seem to have at least made you feel good. Watching you writhe around the bed, letting me stroke your gorgeous shaft, hearing your voice begging and pleading, ungh the things you do to me Malfoy!
The first orgasm was fast, I just wanted to take the edge off. So I took you into my mouth in one fell swoop. Straight down my throat, I could hear you gasping and moaning above me. I just kept at it, twirling my tongue around any part I could reach while I swallowed around your cock in my throat. You blew so quickly. My poor neglected man. Had you been needing that for a while?

I gave you a minute to come down, but didn't let you fall all the way before I was back to playing with that pretty cock of yours. Stroking you slowly but steadily, gripping you as tight as I could, giving you that twist of my wrist at the head that you love so much. You took slightly longer to come the second time, but it was beautiful. You erupted all over my hand, your own stomach, and a little on my face since I had gotten close to watch you twitch and come.

I let go of your shaft, and proceeded to lick your essence off of my hand. You watched me in a haze, like you wanted to be turned on but were too strung out. Then I leaned down and cleaned you all up. Little licks until your skin was shiny from only my mouth. I sucked your bollocks into my mouth and proceeded to massage them with my tongue. You just laid back and allowed it until I moved up to take your dick into my mouth again.

"Harry, no, it's too much." you whined. I mean ... you said in a very mature and confident way.

"Of course it's not too much," I popped off to answer you. "This is just what you need. Get out of your head and have as many orgasms as you can handle. You'll take it all and you'll love it. Understood?"

You just nodded at me with those glazed over gorgeous grey eyes. Usually they're quicksilver, flashing heat, but they were more like smoke then. I went back to trying to harden you up, despite your insistence it was too much you got hard in very little time.

What followed was hours of me torturing you, orgasm after orgasm. Eventually you were coming completely dry, shivering and shaking, crying and moaning. But I didn't stop until you literally blacked out from the intense feelings around three o'clock this morning. It's now ten o'clock and you are still sound asleep. Not in labor, but apparently quite sated.

I'm going to stay here in bed with you, nursing Gabriel and Dylan (almost constantly, the little piglets) while I stare at the perfection that is my husband's face.

Yours,
Harry

Friday March 31st
Oi Mutt!

I feel like Rowe and Fate have teamed up to screw me over, and not in a fun way! It's been FOREVER since I was due!!! I count at least four or five separate eons!

I've done EVERYTHING I CAN! I've walked, I've run, I've jumped, danced, punched myself in the abdomen, and had you give me so many orgasms that I swear I will punch YOU if you touch me again in the next two months!

Alternatively, to relieve my frustration, I've taken to sucking you off because that's actually fulfilling my blood craving at the moment, and also, giving me lovely hits of your magic that I just can't get enough of.

Today was my appointment with Rowe, and I thought: "I don't care what it takes, I'll buy her her own island in the Maldives if that's what she wants - ANYTHING to get her to agree to deliver me. RIGHT. NOW!!!!

But NO, she just has to be a professional Healer who wants to stick to the guidelines that a healthy pregnancy should not be disrupted unless something goes wrong or it's gone AT LEAST two weeks over the due date! BLOODY COW!!! I should fire her!!! Roast her over live coals!!!

And when I pointed out that this is not my first pregnancy, and that subsequent C-Sections are scheduled and performed BEFORE the due date, she laughed - LAUGHED!!! - and reminded me that this womb is new, created when I took the Polyjuice Potion, and thus, doesn't have any old scars that could potentially burst open - which is the only reason they schedule those subsequent births.

@#$%^&!@#$%^&!@#$%^&!@#$%^&!@#$%^&*!

I am literally spitting fire right now.

But to add INSULT to injury - sigh...

There I was, sitting with Delphini and her boy Balian Potter, discussing her business as she nursed - while Sebastian kept peeking into the room, obviously waiting for her to finish up so that he could hold 'her' son. To be fair, he was brewing a potion in the room just off the Sun Room, and thus, had a reason for not just hovering over her directly. When Balian finished up, Sebastian took him and gave him his first - or probably actually 10th or 100th - Potions Lesson.

I still find it amusing that a grandchild of both the Dark Lord and SNAPE managed to be born on Valentine's day. It amuses me enough to nearly cheer me up when I think about it.

Pippa waltzed into the room with her baby boy Pierre, wasting not even half a second before telling me that she is NOT back from maternity leave yet, but that she simply misses her home - as she's lived with us for half her life at this point - and can only stand her family fussing over her so much at a given time. She let me hold Pierre, who I treated like an honorary grandson, giving him lots of tiny kisses and singing to him softly.

That was when fate decided to play a REALLY NOT amusing at all trick on me. Leah burst into the room, panting heavily and clutching her abdomen. "I think... It's time..."

Pippa practically leapt into action, ordering me to keep an eye on her son while she rushed Leah to St. Mungo's. Leah seemed to be panicking a little at this point.

"It's not... time! I'm not... due... until April... 2nd!"

Pippa chuckled. "Close enough love, and if you're already this far gone, it's probably going to happen before we get settled into the delivery room!"

They popped off and I had to bury my face in Pierre's belly and blow raspberries to cover the fact that I think I was legitimately crying, possibly sobbing, at this turn of events. Within a half an hour, Sirius popped back home (an elf must have alerted him) to announce that he had another beautiful son. He handed out Cigars, which smell like they were made with marijuana rather than tobacco, and then raced back to the hospital to give Leah a present. A bracelet or some such.

I eventually had an opportunity to hand Pierre off to Orion, before slinking off to contemplate something drastic. Rest assured that I was able to logic my way through that terrible thought process by remembering that slitting my wrists would only be satisfying for about two minutes before reality returned and I started panicking. So I summoned my laptop and decided to write this email instead. Now that I'm done, I think I might try casting a smaller version of the Cruciat Curse on my womb to make it contract. At the very least, it might make Morgana a bit LESS comfortable in there and decide to come out after all.

Next Friday is the day before my two weeks overdue date, and if Rowe STILL won't deliver me at that point, I'm taking matters into my own hands and doing it myself, you hear! I'll expect you on hand to hold Morgana once I get her out, but I've been reading up these last few weeks, and I'm confident that I could cast all the pain blocking spells correctly, which would allow me to do the rest of it without any trouble.

I've got my heart set on you,
Draco
P.S. If I ever get my hands on Fate, I'm MURDERING her!!!
Chapter 110

Chapter Summary

Harry is angry and worried, and Draco goes to see Healer Rowe again.

Saturday April 1, 2017

My Foggy Love,

I suppose I shouldn't really stress how foggy you've been because I got all caught up in your confusion myself. But, my love, my joy, my best friend in the world ... your due date wasn't last week ... it's today. I thought it seemed awfully "soon" for you to have been due after the boys were born, but I just assumed I was all mixed up from sleep deprivation, being up all night and all day with the boys.

Nope. I was reading through some of our older emails hoping to find a clue as to something I could do for you to help you feel a little less miserable. Maybe there had been a movie you'd mentioned wanting to see that we hadn't. Or a restaurant you'd been wanting to try. I was willing to do just about anything at this point to make you feel even the slightest bit better. That's when I stumbled across an email where we had been discussing the pregnancies by week and official due dates. That's where I saw Morgana's official due date is the first of April.

I have to say though, I totally understand wanting to try anything and everything to finish up a pregnancy when you KNOW the child is well developed enough to be safe and sound if born that moment. Do you remember my pregnancy with Orion? By the end, I was pretty sure he was some invader who had settled in for a long and bloody battle. I get wanting to be done. But Draco, you cannot, CAN NOT punch yourself in the abdomen! You CAN NOT cast cruciatus on your stomach.

When I read you had done the first and were contemplating the second, I actually had to run to the loo and vomit. I'm actually emailing you right now instead of confronting you because I'm so angry, I'm afraid if I see you right now I will say something I can't take back.

I understand that magic and a layer of muscle are keeping Morgana relatively safe, but you were literally so frustrated about something that you punched something holding your baby. You are debating casting cruciatus on the body part that is housing our daughter. If you want a gazillion orgasms, to go for a jog, eat spicy foods, or whatever else old wives tales remedies you can think of for inducing labor? You do whatever you think is healthy. But if you physically assault my husband and daughter again? I'm going to inform your mind healer and Healer Rowe and ask that they confine you to the hospital for the duration of your pregnancy.

You're obviously not in your right mind if you actually think this behavior is acceptable. I know we don't see eye to eye on everything, and I wouldn't want to. We are different people, we're not always going to agree. But I have to assume some hormone or chemical or something is going through your brain and making you insane, because the Draco Malfoy I have been in love with for decades would not be acting like this. I'm trying to be understanding, and I love you more than life itself, but I can't handle how angry with you I am right now.
I was hopeful that emailing you now would make me calm down. Getting my frustrations out often can get me out of a mood swing. But no, I'm actually angrier now than when I started writing.

The boys and I will be staying in the white room until further notice. I just can't trust you unattended around our children in your current state.

I miss you,
Harry

Sunday April 2nd
Dear Harry,

I'm writing this from St. Mungo's because I was so certain that you HAD to be trying to pull an April Fool's Day joke on me, that I went to Rowe and DEMANDED that she confirm that I was due last week. She did not. She confirmed that you were right, and that she specifically TOLD me that at my appointment on Friday, only I am so obsessed with having this baby already that I ignored her. I keep insisting that Eris' due date is mine, and...

Well, I nearly hexed her. She, erm, was expecting this and was able to disarm me before I could finish pulling my wand out, and then I shouted at her for long enough that she had to cast a sleeping spell on me. It seems that my threat to bloody do it myself if she didn't just deliver me already triggered her concern, and she did exactly as you threatened, confined me to hospital until I go into labor.

Harry, my love, my life, my very breath... will you please come here and untie me from this bloody bed? I REALLY need to get up and run around or something. Find a good hiding place away from Rowe. Deliver this baby. Things like that.

Love you forever,
Draco

Tuesday April 4th
HARRY!!!

Why the bloody hell won't you untie me from this Merlin damned hospital bed?!?! And what did you do to Muffy?!? She won't bloody follow my orders! She's MY elf, dammit!!! But the only things she'll do are empty my bladder and feed me - plus force a million bloody potions down my throat. When this is over, I'm going to have to order her to punish herself SEVERELY!!!

WHY ARE YOU ALL DOING THIS TO ME?!?!?!!!?!

--

Thursday April 6th
My perfect husband,

I'm so SORRY! I got a bit... mental. I think you were probably right, some combination of hormones and pregnancy chemicals - plus my history of mental instability during extreme stress - I really was going a bit insane. I know now how VERY bad all of my suggestions were, but at the time, they really did seem perfectly reasonable.
Thank all the Gods, the Founders, and even bloody Dumbledore that Rowe finally relented. You and Yesenia came in and had a conference with her, and it was agreed that with as frantic as I was getting, it was putting more stress on me, and thus Morgana, to make me remain pregnant now that she was definitely past her due date.

Thus on April 5th at 3:55 PM, Morgana Guinevere Malfoy was born. She was NOT happy about it. Rowe had to get a bit forceful to pull her out because it was a bit like she grabbed on and wouldn't budge. Then when she was pulled free, she was screaming bloody murder and wiggling so much that Rowe almost dropped her.

Coincidentally, one of the magical lights in the delivery room blew out at that exact moment.

Rowe handed Morgana to you to hold while she finished removing the womb and healing me up, and Morgana continued to scream and wail and throw an absolute strop until I insisted (unable to stand hearing her cry even a second more) that you hand her over for me to hold while I was healed up. The moment she was in my arms, she quieted down as abruptly as if you had cast a sleeping hex on her.

So... Our beautiful baby girl is finally here in my arms. She's hard to describe, considering that she's a newborn and has universal newborn features, but that said, she definitely has thick black hair and black eyes. Her skin looked a bit jaundiced to me, but Rowe assures me that she's in perfect health.

For all that I was a raging hot mess, I actually slept quite a bit while in the hospital - between potions and sleeping spells to keep me calm. Thus YOU are the exhausted one currently napping on my hospital bed as I write this. I'm letting you nap until Rowe comes in to do final checks before letting me go. One of those checks is talking to Yesenia. So, if you wake up while I'm dumping all my feelings on her, try not to wonder why I'm being so emotional and vulnerable, it's just a typical Mind Healing session, ugh.

Love you with every beat of my heart,
Draco
Chapter 111

Chapter by ladyroxanne21

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Friday April 7, 2017

My Love,

Welcome home my Dragon and our Queen!

I'm very sorry you were stuck in the hospital for so long. I wish there had been another way, but you had utterly lost the plot my love. From the part of your part of your session with Yesenia I witnessed, it sounds like you're at least aware of just how mental you were acting. And the good news is, whatever body chemical mixture was doing that to you seems to have dissipated. Now you just seem to be back to your normal lunatic behavior!

Thank you for bringing another perfect little life into our family. Isn't Morgana breathtaking? You know how I feel about big dark eyes, and they have the most beautiful almond shape to them. I'm pretty sure she has more hair than any of our newborns has ever had. Except for maybe Eris.

When I was digging through old emails the other day looking to cheer you up, I came across an email where I guess and wondered what Morgana would look like. My guesses included having blonde hair ... grey eyes ... and your pointy features. Yeah, she has none of those things! She has dark eyes, black hair, and the cutest little rounded features. Have you ever seen a cuter little button nose on a baby?

I do have one teeny tiny issue with our lovely daughter though. She's two days old, I am insanely in love with her already, are you ever going to let me help take care of her? I remember when we were originally discussing these pregnancies and you mentioned wanting to not co-sleep with them. I told you I would "happily" be the only one to get up with them if the other option was putting them in their own big dark lonely rooms. And yet since you both came home yesterday, you've done everything for her.

I'm trying to be very supportive of whatever you need. And I suppose it's not like I'm just sitting around twiddling my thumbs, Gabe and Dylan definitely keep me busy, but I'd really like to bond with my daughter as well.

Alright I'm done whining. Well, I have a little more whining to do, but don't take this as me pressuring you or anything. I promise I will take everything at your pace. When you were in the hospital and all restrained on Rowe's orders, I was so concerned with your safety that I didn't let myself think of it as anything other than keeping you safe. But now that you're safe and healthy, fuck Draco I want you so badly. You were bound and helpless, tied to a bed. I am granite over here thinking of you spread out in our bed, tied up and at my mercy.

Let me know the moment you're feeling well enough for your libido to have come back, yeah?

Our little Queen is awfully powerful already isn't she? I have the feeling, with how much work Rowe had to put in to get Morgana delivered, that you not going into labor naturally was Morgana's doing. She shattered a light during her birth. We've had some magically gifted children, but she might be displaying the earliest accidental magic of any of our children. She's going to be an absolute powerhouse when she grows up. I’d stake my life on it!

Now that all of our children are here, can we schedule the naming/welcoming ceremonies? I was thinking roughly a month from now. Sixth of May. The weather should hopefully be just perfect, the gardens should be blooming. A month should give Maha enough of a notice to request time off in case they’re still shooting. And it should be enough notice that I can see if Julia is available for a portrait session. And the subsequent month should give all of us post-partum people enough time to not feel bloated and gross for family pictures.

Oh! Gotta run, my little Squeaker is doing his hungry cry again. I swear Gabriel eats twice as much and twice as often as Dylan. But even with Gabriel eating more and being two weeks "older" he's still much smaller than his brother. Maybe he's eating so much in the hopes of catching up!

Love,
Harry

Sunday April 9th
Harry! What'd'ja do to my baby?!?!

She was all nice and sleeping, and so I decided to take the opportunity to take a shower before the Birthday Celebration starts today, and I swear I was only in the bathroom for what? 20 minutes? And then I come back and you're holding Morgana and she was screaming as if you were shoving a pin in her foot!

...

Sorry.

I didn't mean to snatch her from you like that. I know you probably JUST picked her up and probably would have calmed her down again in no time, only I had a sort of irresistible urge to grab her and dance and sing her fussiness away, only - as before - she stopped crying the moment she was in my arms.

I went to hand her back to you, but you were gone, and now, I have to order Muffy to bring me a fresh bottle and change Morgana's nappy before heading off to the rest of the family. I promise to apologize profusely for being an arse, and also, I miss you.

The breath I breathe,
Draco
P.S. Bear just LOVES our little Queen! ^_^

Chapter End Notes

Please try to forgive Draco, he's not intentionally being an arse, he's just still a little emotionally unstable at the moment, but he's working through it.
Chapter 112

Chapter Summary

The boys are experiencing a rough patch.

Wednesday April 12, 2017

Draco,

Yes, it's quite clear how much you "miss me." I want you to think long and hard about how many days it's been since you've seen me. Go ahead, think about it. Have an idea in your head? It's been three days. Three.

After you yanked YOUR baby out of my arms, I tried talking to you for a full two or three minutes while you ignored me. You didn't reply at all. You were just murmuring and making shushing noises to the entirely calm baby in your arms. Ok, you're probably still running off of pregnancy hormones and a shrieking baby was setting your protective responses off. I totally get that.

Except you also didn't go anywhere near me for the entirety of the birthday celebration. I thought it was just a coincidence because I was all over the place, wearing Gabriel and Dylan, nursing them off and on, taking Luka for a while so Eris could enjoy her own birthday party without Luka in her arms the entire night. Talking with the family. Playing with the little kids. Dancing ...

No, wait, not dancing. Because despite the fact that there was music and dancing, you didn't attempt to dance with me even once. I kept waiting for you to start singing or to grab me up and haul me onto the dance floor. But you didn't. That was the first time in our entire marriage that we were at an event that had dancing and we didn't dance together. Even when either one of us was enormously, uncomfortably pregnant, we managed to dance together. Even when we had newborns or freshly adopted babies that couldn't stand to be out of our arms, we wrapped them up between us and danced anyway.

After the party wrapped up and the guests either headed home or off to one of the guest rooms, I went to our rooms to change and hopefully fill up these boys' bellies in the hopes of getting a few hours of sleep. Only to find you and Morgana smack dab in the middle of our bed. All starfished out. It was so cute and sweet that I couldn't help feeling my anger and hurt start to dissipate. How could I stay angry with these two pieces of my heart?

I laid the boys in the bassinet while I did my nightly routine, and then picked them up when I was done, intending on us climbing into bed and snuggling the both of you. Except when I tried sitting down, you snatched up the baby again, started mumbling "no, you can't" and rolled her over so you were in between the two of us. What? I can't what? Be next to my own daughter?

I couldn't help but start bawling. The entire day had been one big emotional slap in the face. You thought I was injuring Morgana. You barely looked at me and definitely didn't speak to me. And when I try to climb into my own bed, I'm treated like an unwelcome intruder. My crying upset the boys who began crying as well. Well, I certainly didn't want to wake either of you up and be accused of trying to harm you again, so the boys and I went to sleep in the white room again. Good thing it was still made up from when I slept there the night before you went into the hospital to be captured by Rowe.

I got the boys relatively calm, nursed them to sleep, and then laid down trying to sleep myself except really just staring at the ceiling for hours. I did end up falling asleep eventually, but I woke up shortly after that feeling groggy and awful. I went about my day, checking in at the stables, playing around with the feisty foursome, stress baking. I kept waiting for you to wake up and come find me, thinking you'd be upset that I didn't sleep with you. Nope. Didn't seem to bother you at all.

Between my emotional state and my exhaustion, I thought maybe I was being ridiculous. I knew eventually you'd "miss me" enough to come drag me back to bed where I belong. I thought you'd at least come searching for the boys. Or maybe you would snuggle up with the kids and I to watch movies. Maybe you'd be interested in visiting the thestrals and you'd find me in the stables.

Nope.

And now it's been three days since we've spoken. The last words you directly spoke to me, "what are you doing to her?" were shouted at me three days ago. And the last email you wrote me included you assuming I'd hurt my little Queen in some way.

What is going on? What did I do that you're so angry with me? I didn't hurt her, you know that right? She had just woken up and begun crying so I picked her up. Am I not allowed to pick her up? You asked what I did to YOUR baby.

You know, we've had all sorts of children come into our lives throughout the years. Some we've adopted because they felt like ours to you, some we've adopted because they felt like ours to me. We both gave birth to multiple children, some planned, some a surprise. We've each had a child come into our lives that was only biologically one of ours and they've always been OUR children.

Do you not want me to be Morgana's father? I've spent months falling in love with her, telling her stories while she was inside of you, picking out teeny tiny dresses to put on her. And now I feel very pushed aside. I love her so much Draco, please don't take her away from me. I'm sorry for whatever I did to make you act this way.

Harry

Wednesday April 12th
My patient love,

It's been three days? I'm so sorry that I hadn't noticed that. For one, I've been busy trying to solve a problem. It seems that our little Queen is VERY attention needy.

Yes, in the past, we've had our Princess and our Divas who've demanded my attention enough to be called needy, but usually they would let me put them down and do things while they sleep, or play with their toes, or let you hold them.

Not so much with Morgana. It seems with her that I literally cannot put her down or she starts to cry. If she manages to fall asleep and I put her down to go to the loo, she ends up waking up and screaming after a few minutes. I've timed it and 15-20 seems to be the most that she can sleep if I'm not in the room.

Also, if she's awake and I want a break from holding her, she only tolerates this if I'm otherwise playing with her. So, for example, I can set her on the bed if I'm playing peekaboo with her.
I have to apologize all over again, I really think that my last email was a product of post pregnancy hormones. I got frantic and panicky that Morgana was crying and accused you of something that I logically KNOW would never happen. You love OUR babies SOOOOO much. You'd never harm a hair on any of their heads!

Now that you've brought my attention to how much time has passed, I'm going to come hunt you down and have you play with Morgana WITH me. Plus, I would love a few minutes to play with our boys.

But first, I'm going to apologize to you by giving you that dance that we didn't have the other day. Morgana is currently napping in a carrier on my chest, and that should hopefully give us plenty of time to dance and hold each other before she wakes up and demands all my attention again.

But before I do, and before I forget, have you seen Bear? She was being super adorable this morning, on the bed with us and giving Morgana a thousand tiny kisses, until Morgana had enough and started fussing. I shooed Bear away and haven't seen her since, so I assume that she went to cuddle with Zaire, but still, I wanted to give her a treat to reward her for being so good with our babies, and putting up with the fussing.

Unlike my grandbaby cheetahs, who are in the rough play stage and have to be kept away from our babies unless they are being held and controlled. But anyway, as I was saying, off to find you.

With every beat of my heart,
Draco
Chapter 113

Chapter Summary

Harry forgives Draco for being self-absorbed and focused on Morgana, and Draco learns something alarming.

Thursday April 13, 2017

My Dragon,

Waking up in my own bed this morning was wonderful. I wasn't wrapped in your arms, but with three tiny humans in our bed, it's not exactly conducive for nightlong adult snuggle times.

Our time together yesterday was even better than this. You came and found me in the stables and despite my objections that I smelled of barn and had hay on my pants, you weren't taking no for an answer. You WERE going to dance with me!

Instead of whisking us off to the ballroom, you decided to sing for us. And again, I must have been in just an awful mood, because I complained of my clothes and the hay and the lack of music. Instead of throwing a strop, or getting annoyed with me for not giving in to your request, you just began singing. Patiently waiting until the moment I gave in and found my way into your arms where I belong.

All it took was a deeply crooned, "At Laaaaast," and I was in your arms before you were able to finish "my love has come along." I snuffled into your neck, but was very careful not to crush the precious girl strapped to your chest. You didn't seem to mind the tears or the sniffling, continuing to sing our song to me and running your hands through my hair. Three days of sadness, anger, and confusion just poured out of me while YOU poured out that beautiful song.

When you finished singing, I stayed in your arms and you seemed content to just hold me until I was ready to talk. When I pulled my face off of your shoulder, I looked down at a set of gorgeous dark eyes staring at me. "Well hello little Queen, I've missed you." She just kept staring at me so I kept talking. "Daddy's been keeping you all to himself and this Daddy sure missed looking at your sweet face. Should we all go snuggle up and read some stories, hmm?"

She's obviously brilliant but hasn't started talking quite yet, so I had to just assume she was in agreement. I grabbed Gabriel and Dylan from their stable bassinet (yes we have a bassinet just for when they need to nap while I'm in the stables) and called to Atreyu that we were going to read some stories with Papa. I don't think he apparated, but he got to us so quickly it's not completely out of the realm of possibilities. If you thought I was missing you, it's nothing compared to how upset Atreyu was about missing his Papa. Seph, Lissa, and Cael followed at a normal speed behind him, anxious to spend time with you but not quite as frantic.

I guess Trey spent a little time with you the last few days, mostly when you were setting Morgana down to sing songs or chew on her tiny toes, but not nearly as much as he normally does. You demanded absolute silence any time she was napping and everything our little boy does is quite loud.
We walked together to the playroom, figuring the feisty foursome wanted to be with all of us but would also get a bit bored of nothing but silly nursery rhymes and intense games of peekaboo. Seph, Lissa, and Cael definitely went back and forth between us, their little brothers and sister, and the toys, but Trey parked himself right in your lap, popped that thumb in his mouth, and didn't move for hours.

Yes our little Queen is quite needy, she definitely wants to be held and demands attention on her at all times, but she was happy enough with me singing her silly songs or her big sisters and brothers being the ones to play peekaboo. You know what helps when you have a ridiculously needy baby? Letting other people help.

I might not be the baby guy, but I'm not useless. How about instead of trying to do everything yourself, you let me help? Or how about this; instead of over the top apologies for forgetting you have a husband for three days you .... oh let me think about it ... LET ME HELP!

I could be annoyed that your pampering of our daughter is as over the top as your apologies. Or I suppose I can try to remember who I married and realize "over-the-top" is his middle name. I can hear you arguing now, "My middle name is not over-the-top, it's Lucius!" But let's all be honest here, isn't it really the same thing?

I, however, have never been over the top in my life. So, that being said, I am kidnapping all of us. The kids come home tomorrow for two weeks off for Easter hols. I've already contacted Mr. Lott. No ifs ands or buts, we leave Saturday morning for Switzerland. I've rented us a chalet for the entire week. There are plenty of things to do near where we're staying if we want to sight-see. Or, the chalet is roomy and gorgeous and we can do nothing but sit around and be comfy cozy spending time together as a family.

It's been much much too long since we've traveled, and even longer since we've traveled for no other reason than to have fun exploring the world with our favorite people. So *pack your bags (*ask Muffy to pack your bags) because we leave in two days!

Yours,
Harry

Friday April 14th

My everything,

I have to start by saying that the sight of you wearing only a tee shirt and pants while you work in the stables does interesting things to me. Hay on your pants or not, you were a sight to behold. Were we not planning to spend time with the babies and our littles, I may well have dragged you off and ravaged you.

But on news that breaks my heart. I found Bear. As I said, I'd assumed that she went back to Zaire, but when I asked him if he had her, he said he hadn't seen her in a while, so I cast a tracking spell and followed it back to our room. It seems that Bear went to nap under our bed while she waited for another chance to play with our baby, and succumbed to old age. She was 2 years old when I got her in July of 2010, so that would make her 9 years old, which is actually pretty old for a dog.

It was just so sudden though. She's always been fairly energetic, and even when she was giving Morgana kisses, she was wagging her tail so hard that her entire body was shaking. She didn't SEEM like an old dog, but she was. I'm going to miss her so much! Also, I may need you to let me bury my face in your shoulder for a bit tonight.

So... something happened. I really hope you have time to read this email before you come in from the stables tonight for reading bedtime stories and snuggling with our kids.

Shortly after I woke up and ate my breakfast, Morgana watching me contentedly from her carrier as I fed her - Side note, yes, I am completely and 100 percent certain that I am NOT going to nurse again. I know I said I probably would, but I also remember how much I didn't like doing so before, and since we actually do have plenty of milk in storage from that wet nurse I hired that we never actually used much. Anyway, I just don't feel the need to do it again, but I do LOVE the fact that you are. It will give you a chance to bond more completely with Morgana once we get her to the point that she'll let me hand her over to others.

But back to my point, shortly after eating, I got an Insta-owl from Robards asking if I would mind coming into the Ministry for a few minutes for something important.

Well, since I was full and Morgana was already in a carrier, I didn't see any reason why I shouldn't go. So, I cast a dressing spell and had Muffy Apparate me - as I didn't want to risk overusing my magic while still recovering from my pregnancy.

Once in the Ministry, I went to Robards' office, where he looked me over with a suspicious expression for a long moment before smiling and congratulating me on my newest baby. Then he invited me to sit.

"What's the matter?" I wondered with a frown. I'd actually expected him to have something on the desk for me to handle and get a vision from.

He sighed. "I'd like to start by saying that we THINK someone tried to frame you for murder."

I was so shocked that I couldn't speak for two or three heartbeats. "Wh... what?"

He nodded solemnly. "Only we were able to definitively clear you as any sort of murder suspect."

"Er... Thanks?"

He chuckled at that, seeming to relax. "So on Monday April 10th at around 11PM, a woman's body was found just laying on the floor of the Three Broomsticks - in the basement where they keep their inventory. The place was arranged to make it look like she'd been killed there, but not instantly. There was a bit of a mess to suggest a scuffle, and after receiving the killing blow, the woman fell to the floor and had just enough time to write most of the name of the killer with her blood."

I frowned in actual concern. "You say that the scene was arranged, thus I'm to assume that the partial name written is mine?"

He nodded, picking a photo out of a file and setting it in front of me so that I could see a woman's hand, covered in blood and having stopped after writing D-R-A-C - the C was very shaky and trailed off.

Chilled, I looked up at Robards.

He shrugged. "A team of forensic witches and wizards were able to determine her exact time of death, and it was Thursday April 4th at about 8 PM. The moment we had a time of death, we immediately sent YOU an owl asking if you would mind telling us where you were that day, except that it seems your house elf intercepted it and replied for you that A - at that moment, you were resting from the recent birth of your daughter, and B - on the day in question, you were in St.
Mungo's hospital.

"Well, that was easy enough to confirm. Healer Rowe would not tell us any information other than that which was literally required - that you were in fact confined to hospital at that time. Thus, you were cleared of all suspicion due to the fact that there's no way you could have been committing murder whilst you were in the hospital apparently in labor."

I chuckled as I could see by the expression on his face, that Robards would rather have all his nails torn off slowly one at a time than have to go through labor. "Yes, and if the time of death should happen to change somehow, let me just reassure you now that I was in the hospital for a few days prior to the murder, and then once I actually had my baby and was released, I went straight home and stayed there and my entire family can attest to it since they wanted to see the baby - NOT that she wants me to let anyone else hold her, or even put her down."

He looked at the wrap carrier curiously. "Can I see her?"

I adjusted the wrap so that he could see her face, and she was giving him a look that I'd swear was suspicious - if babies could have such looks at a week of age.

Smiling, he finally got around to the ACTUAL reason he'd called me in.

"See, the thing is that we have this case more or less solved. We were able to use a spell to track her blood back to the actual crime scene, and there was enough evidence left by the killer that we are very close to finding him and catching him. Can you believe that he apparently cut HIMSELF and bled on her at some point? He - well we can't be certain WHY, but we think that he might have been trying to imply that there was a second victim. Perhaps he was even planning to create a second crime scene for us to find that ALSO framed you - for his death - only with no body to be found, in essence, faking his own death in a way that could be rather convincing, back before we had spells to detect things like time of death and to track blood," Robards paused to take a sip of tea.

I smiled at him. "I - for one - am extremely grateful that we have these spells."

"Stop patting yourself on the back, Malfoy!" He snorted, reminding me that I'd help create them after watching a muggle crime show.

"But as I was saying, the reason I called you here is that despite EVERYTHING that we know, we cannot figure out who the murdered woman is. We've even put her picture all over both Hogsmeade and Diagon Alley - and the Ministry. If anyone knows her, they aren't coming forward. So, I thought - it's probably a long shot - but MAYBE you actually know her and that's why the killer chose her and why he believed that we'd think you actually did it."

I took a look at the picture he handed over, and frowned as I analyzed it. The woman was in her early 20s and not anyone I could recall ever meeting. At first. There was something about her that tugged at my mind, and I wrinkled my nose and squinted as I turned the picture side to side. It was hard to be certain of anything when looking at a picture of an unnaturally pale dead body, but it managed to spark a memory. A memory of ME channeling a broody teenaged girl.

"NO... IMOGEN??"

Robards tilted his head in both curiosity and confusion. "Who's Imogen?"

"Imogen Hughes. My... distant cousin. She's my grandmother's great niece. She actually SHOULD be on file with the Ministry as I had to help her when she was 16 and ran away from home," I explained.

Robards stroked his chin in thought. "I actually remember that - now that you mention it. I'm going to look into this further, since nothing came up as a match when we did a magi-search of our database. Either she managed to change her magical signature over the years, or her killer managed to obscure it - but that wouldn't make sense as he was trying to frame you - so far as we can tell - and would WANT us to be able to identify her."

I shook my head and shrugged since I had no explanation for it either. But then a thought occurred to me. "What if she wasn't fully dead yet when placed there, and it actually WAS her that wrote my name, doing so because she knew I worked with the Ministry and could help solve her murder?"

Robards shook his head. "If it was her, it's actually something of a miracle then, as she was definitely dead a few days before her body was placed in the Three Broomsticks. The staff are down in the basement several times a day, and her body wasn't there until shortly before it was found on Monday the 10th at 11PM, but as I've already said, her death was on Thursday the 4th. So, for her to write your name, she'd've come back to life for a minute or two several days after her death."

"Right," I stated, puzzled.

Feeling tired, I excused myself and came home to write this email. Now that I'm signing off, I'm going to take a nap and hope that you get a chance to read this before coming to wake me up and give me reassuring kisses.

Love you!
Draco
Chapter 114

Chapter Summary

Harry comforts Draco, and then the family has a relaxing day.

Saturday April 15, 2017

My Sad Love,

We are on our way to Switzerland for our getaway, and you took this opportunity to curl up in my lap and cry for everything that happened yesterday. Combined with how terribly you slept last night, that's all it took for you to fall asleep in my lap. That's probably for the best, get some rest my darling.

Before I get into the sad and worrying stuff, I have to say one thing; it was unseasonably warm yesterday, and I got mud all over my denims, so when I stripped them off, I didn't feel the need to put a new pair of trousers on. I don't normally work around the stables in just my pants.

Although if you really liked it that much, I could probably be persuaded to do it on occasion. I could do with a toe-curling roll in the hay. What do you say? Wanna do filthy unspeakable things with the stable-hand?

I'm sorry about the whole situation with Imogen. It's terrible to find out anyone has been murdered, but then to find out you know the person is even worse. Finding out someone tried framing you for the murder? That has to be traumatizing. I had a thought though, what if she did actually write your name? No, I am not accusing you of murder! I think you know me better than that. But what if as she lay dying she DID try writing your name, but not to accuse you. What if she knew no one would come for her in time but she was going to ask whoever found her to get your help? What if your name wasn't a "Draco did it" but more of a "get Draco on the case"?

But Harry, that doesn't explain why it showed up at the location of her body even though she hadn't been there that long? Ah, you bring up a good point imaginary Draco inside my brain. I have two theories as to how this could have happened. I only have the information you've given me so I could be completely wrong and it's exactly what Robards claimed, someone trying to frame you, but hear me out.

First possibility: as she lay dying, she writes out your name. Murderer decides to move her to the Three Broomsticks postmortem. But if a levitation spell locked onto her and she was touching the blood, the spell could have thought it was a part of her. Similar to levitating or apparating brings your clothing with you even though it's not a part of you. So murderer moves her body to the broomsticks, sees that her dying word came along, and decides to leave it since it looks like evidence against someone else.

OR ... what if she was never moved? What if there was some sort of concealment charm? Let's say she's at the Three Broomsticks, murderer gets her into the storage room or wherever she was, and she dies there. Murderer decides to flee the scene and buy himself a head start. So he sets some sort of intense concealment charm with a timer on it. Or sets a concealment charm that he knew would eventually fade. Or he canceled it when he got to wherever he escaped to. In this scenario, no one found Imogen because of the charm, so she was there but they basically walked around her for six or so days.

I feel like I've said this nonstop for the ten days Morgana has been in our lives, but she's utterly brilliant. I'm sure whatever look she was giving Robards was intentional. He IS suspicious. Clever girl.

Yes yes my little queen, I'm talking about you. You just know don't you. Your other Daddy thinks these looks of yours are coincidental, but this Daddy knows better, doesn't he?

Shite! The dictation spell picked that up! Oh well, it's not like it's not true. I have the dictation spell on because shortly after you fell asleep with your head in my lap curled around Morgana, she woke up. Her Majesty deigned to allow me to pick her up, so I've been snuggling her all up while the dictation spell writes this for me.

You know, I think we're quite lucky that Gabe and Dylan are the most easy-going babies we've ever had because this would be our hardest set of almost triplets to date if either of them was even ten percent as needy as she is. You'd think with the two of them being preemies that she'd be the easiest of them. Hahahahahahahahahaha.

Deep breaths

B wahahahahahahaha

Okay, I think I'm done now.

Hahahahaha! Hee hee hee. Phew.

No, NOW I'm done.

Gabriel and Dylan are happily being played with by Zaire and Jaz. I think they're using their little brothers as a distraction from how heartbroken they are over losing Bear. I know you're traumatized, and I'm so very sad myself. But Zaire and Jaz took it the hardest. I should have suspected they would, my little animal lovers. But seeing Jaz's silent tears? Just cut my heart right out of my chest why don't you baby girl?

I think Siri and Zwei are almost as sad, I haven't seen Romulus or Remus more than five feet away from either of them since they found out about Bear last night. It's not unheard of for the pups to sleep with any of our kids, but they've been spending a lot of nights in the stables for the past few months. Not last night, the mischief twins made sure their dogs were curled up next to them.

It seemed like really bad timing when I first thought about whether or not we should still take off for Switzerland, but now that I'm thinking about it, I think this trip will be a fun distraction for all of us. Sightseeing and cuddles and time together as a family.

I'm glad Teddy was able to come with us for this trip. I would have hated to not see him today on his birthday. But this works out well, fun big cousin Teddy being along for the trip will hopefully be just another way for these kids to have a good time and keep their minds off their grief. And while we're here we can ask him about being one of Atreyu's Godfathers!

Oh! Mr. Lott just announced we're going to start the landing process. Better sign off.

Love you with all of my heart,

Harry
Sunday April 16th
My ardor,

Today has been beautiful and wonderful in every way.

It started shortly after I woke up with me eating breakfast with Eris and Eric - who were eating lunch. Our grandson Luka was being positively adorable, and Eris was laughing as Eric pretended to munch on Luka, which made him laugh. Not quite a month old, and this little baby has already learned to laugh in the sweetest way.

As I ate, Morgana was happy enough to sit in her carrier and be fed. She was giving Luka a look like she was thinking only an utter idiot would be so easily amused. When Eric handed Luka back for a feeding, he came over to me and - with permission from me - tried to tickle Morgana's cheek with his pointer finger. Morgana was NOT having it! She not only started screaming, but the three closest lights blew out rather dramatically.

Eric got the point and backed off, sheepishly apologizing for making our baby mad. She continued to glare at him, but stopped crying as soon as he stopped touching her.

Do you suppose that we have the reincarnated soul of the ACTUAL Morgana? I mean... she's a bit... erm... strong willed. She's not even two full weeks old, and I feel as if she could fully defend herself if necessary. NOT that she lets me put her down long enough for it to be even remotely necessary.

Anyway, moving on.

After eating, I sat down with Jaz and Atreyu to help him practice signing. He's such an active child - always on the go and usually out in the stables - that I didn't think he'd stayed still long enough to learn more than a handful of signed words. To my surprise, he's learned enough that he can ALMOST fully express himself to Jaz. It's a bit like him speaking English and Spanish, he can do both rather well, but ends up switching between the two depending on what it is he's trying to say and if the words come more naturally to him in one language or the other. So, he'd say something in sign language, realize that he forgot or didn't know a word, and so say it out loud as he thought about how to spell it, if it's a word he can spell.

It was adorable, and Jaz would practice her verbal skills by reminding him that she can read lips if she has to. This reminded me that I never have given her those contacts that I made for her so long ago. When I originally made them, I only programmed them to recognize English, but over the years, whenever we'd travel, I'd think to myself how unfair it is that she'd be limited to Sign Language and English, so I programmed them to translate most of the languages we might encounter regularly into English for her to read. It'll also tell her which language is actually being spoken - such as Zulu, Japanese, or Spanish.

After handing them over and watching her try them out for about an hour - she loves them but has decided to only use them when around others - who don't know BSL.

When Zaire came over to feed them things he'd just made that are traditional to Switzerland, I was suddenly struck by a BRILLIANT idea. Whilst eating some decadent triple chocolate pudding, I ran off to the suite we're staying in to have a bit of quiet to work out my idea. I took out a pair of my camera contacts from my field kit - you know, the one that I have on me at all times in case I run into a situation while traveling in a foreign country.
After scanning them with all my diagnostic spells - to ensure that they were still working properly, and to remind myself which spells I'd put on them - I carefully tried to layer the spells for Jaz's contacts onto them. This could REALLY come in handy in situations like I was in, in which I was undercover and could only use the absolute minimal gear.

Honestly, I'm not sure why I didn't think of this before.

Unfortunately, it took me several hours to layer ALL the spells JUST right so that they worked together, and that did get a bit frustrating, but since I was able to dance and sing to Morgana as I worked, it kept me calm and helped me to work through it easier.

Once done, I had to test my newest device. To my delight, it not only works, but the actual recording from the contacts has the words on the bottom of the screen, just as they appear on the bottom of one's vision while wearing them.

Feeling enormously accomplished, I ran off to give you a thousand little kisses as a reward to myself. Hilariously, when I reviewed the recording of that encounter, it lists your words as: Hi Draco - what're - mrmph! Mmm..."

Then I danced with you until the light next to us blew up. At that point, we played a rousing game of peekaboo with Morgana, who seems to have smiled for the first time. It looked more like she was pitying us for being morons, but it was a smile nonetheless.

It was about then that Pearl popped out of the floo and promptly disappeared with Hazel. I'm thinking that things must be going well with them. I'll not be at all surprised if they announce a wedding date of a month or so after Viona gets married in July, which is coming up so fast! The only good thing is that she's already made all her plans and ordered everything. It's all ready to go. Now let's pray that she doesn't change her mind a million times during the next few months.

That said, she and Alric seem to be getting on better than ever, and that's saying something as they've always got on rather well. They appear to have reached the stage where they hold hands and Alric is comfortable kissing her. Especially if they're walking along and there's another boy around showing even the slightest amount of interest in either of them.

After Viona and Alric took off on a walk, Eris and Eric went to lay Luka down for a nap, and I'm going to pretend they were having a very long and detailed discussion of things instead of getting to know each other in other ways. This left me with Orion, who looked a bit morose.

I smiled at him understandingly. "Wishing you could have invited Farrah along?"

He gave me a light glare. "NO! She's utterly HORRIBLE!!! Can't stand a thing about her! Why would I want her along?!"

I smirked. "Oh? So those rumors I heard about the two of you snogging every chance you get are NOT true?"

He growled and ran a hand through his hair in frustration. "I don't know WHY we do that! I promise myself that if I see her, I'll walk the other way, and then I ACTUALLY see her and suddenly, one of us has pushed the other up against the wall and we're snarling insults and warnings to leave the other alone, right before we mash our mouths together and forget that the world exists until someone brings us crashing back to reality!"

"Sounds like passion," I murmured knowingly. "It doesn't always make sense."

As we talked, Orion was keeping his hands busy by using shakers and the like to mix drinks. The majority of what he was mixing was suitable for our feisty foursome, but occasionally, he added a splash of something harder to the drink. Zaire - for example - took a cup of lemon lime soda mixed with orange juice, cherry puree, and a splash of tequila so light that I'll be surprised if he could actually taste it.

I raised a brow at Orion. "So, erm… that hypothetical providing of alcohol to your housemates that you were talking about, any particular reason WHY?"

He sighed as if defeated in a major battle. "I'm sorry, I know you probably think I'm being stupid - considering that I'm a Ravenclaw and could be expelled if caught - but ever since I became Quidditch Captain, it seems like EVERYONE wants to talk to me, and hang out, and ask me for advice with ALL their problems. And I hate just standing there with nothing to do, so I've been pretending that I'm a bit like a bartender. I'll mix drinks, using alcohol like I know they want, but doing so in a way that shouldn't get anyone drunk unless they're chugging the drinks one after another."

"Alright..." I murmured, not sure how to feel because - on the one hand - I basically did the same at his age, but on the other, I am concerned about the consequences should he be caught. That said, it sounds like he's doing it as responsibly as he can, and honestly, if he wasn't, those kids would probably do it anyway, except much LESS responsibly. It's a conundrum to be sure.

He seemed a bit relieved that I wasn't shouting at him, but also, a bit closed off, like he was hiding something. Sighing, I decided to be supportive. I put an arm around his shoulders and kissed his cheek. "I suppose that if you are being careful and not getting drunk yourself, keeping an eye on your Housemates, things like that, I can't be too upset. As I said, Slytherin used to do the same thing when I was your age. Just... talk to your dad about this? I bet he has a better idea of how to handle this. Merlin, I really am shite with teenagers, even when I'm trying not to be!"

Orion chuckled and gave me a hug. "I dunno, you seem to be doing much better than you did when River was my age. Back then, you freaked out about EVERYTHING."

I snorted. "Yeah, well River seemed determined to shag the entire population at your age, and that's a bit hard on a parent to accept."

"Why?" Orion wondered with Ravenclaw curiosity.

I thought this over for a long moment before shrugging. "Probably because - as a parent - I want my kids to find the right person, fall in love, and be happy. And it doesn't seem logical that a person could be happy if they just casually shagged around - although I DO know that playing around can be fun and make a person happy, so I suppose that it's just one of those deeply ingrained beliefs that I just can't shake. That kids should grow up and find love before turning into utter slags. Also... I know that I was an utter slag when I was in school, and I know that the reason why was high amounts of stress and some trauma. I suppose that I associate teenaged playing around with that, and it hurts me to wonder if River - or you, or ANY of my kids - chooses to play around for those reasons."

Orion looked impressed that I was being so open and honest. He hugged me again. "River didn't exactly tell me everything, but I asked questions, and he told me that at 17, he just got so fed up with waiting that he wanted to stop thinking about it as much as he could, so he was basically shagging around as a way to keep his mind off Maha. I wouldn't call that particularly traumatic, so you don't have to worry about that."

I took a few seconds to think it over and decide if I REALLY wanted to know the answer, and then decided that I may not WANT to know, but I should at least ask. "And what about you? Are you shagging around or waiting for the right one? - Drunken parties aside."

He winced a bit and looked rather guilty. "A little of both? I had lost it prior to that party - to a Seventh Year Ravenclaw who just wanted a bit of fun. Then after the party, I was with Natalie, and we did it from time to time. Not a lot, but we ALWAYS used protection. After all, we had Eris around always moaning about being pregnant to remind us why protection was a brilliant idea. But then..." He trailed off with a shrug, sort of rubbing the back of his neck and looking away. "Well, I'm REALLY popular right now, and LOTS of girls pay a lot of attention to me. I suppose that I'm a bit Slytherin in that I don't mind taking advantage of all the attention."

I sighed, a little disappointed, but also accepting of this answer. Like you said, I value his honesty far more than I dislike his answer. "Fine. Just please be responsible about it. We REALLY don't need you getting half - or all - your Year pregnant!"

He laughed. "You might be surprised to learn this, but after growing up in such a big family, I think I might want to have NO kids. At all. Ever. I am going to have a billion nieces and nephews someday, so I'm really VERY motivated to avoid mistakes."

This actually did put my mind at ease just a little, so I nodded and gave him another kiss on the cheek before taking my perfectly blended cocktail and wandering off to find a bit of sun to lay in - on a chair INSIDE next to a large window. Mmm... I think we might need to go to our Island soon so that I can soak up the sun until I'm as dark as Zaire. I kid! I know that's bad for my skin, but still...

Huh... you know, our son seems to have a real talent for mixing drinks, because this cocktail is better than many I've actually spent money on over the years. Has to be a Ravenclaw thing, perhaps an obsession with getting things perfect? Whatever it is, you should ask him to mix you a drink sometime and see what he comes up with.

You mean the world to me,
Draco
Chapter 115

Chapter Summary

Harry talks to Orion, and Draco is in the mood to shag for the first time since Morgana was born.

Sunday April 16, 2017

Draconius Maximus,

I feel as though mayhaps our young son may have a future in bartending. Or perchance he has a future in distracting his father from hard conversations.

See, I read your email and decided to come have a nice long chat with Orion Draco about his penchant to mix up drinks for his classmates. You even said you yours own self that he should talk to me about it. So I talked and then I talked and I talked a little more. But he was making me such yummy drinks the whole time. And he really does have a knack for it because I could barely taste the alcohol and yet just a few moments ago, I fell down. And uh, didn't get back up.

I suppose it's a good thing that we brought all of the elves because I think someone else is going to have to feed the babies this evening.

Because I fell down.

I think it's a possibility that I drank way too many drinks and that has something to do with my balance. But I don't understand why Ori decided I needed to drink so much because my talking wasn't lecturey or anything. If anything I was praising him for using his talents to keep his classmates from going elsewhere and possibly getting trashed in unsafe situations.

I wonder if the reason he's trying to take responsibility for keeping his housemates safe is because of what happened last year at the party where Eris blacked out. Like maybe he feels if he had been the one mixing her drinks and staying sober enough to watch her she wouldn't have ended up shagging a stranger.

And now that stranger is in my daughter's bedroom "communicating" about their child. Ugh, they're doing yucky grown up times aren't they? There's a gorgeous grandson of ours that proves that horse has been out of the barn for a while now, but I still don't want anything to happen. ANOTHER pregnancy is the last thing that girl needs.

Oh Hell! Maybe I should go slamming in there and ruin the mood if there's a mood to ruin!

Or wait! I could go find YOU and unruin a mood that isn't being mooded yet. Yes! I will find you, and pin you down. I will worship every inch of your skin with my mouth. Flirt with your tattoos and ...

Shut up your own mouth Ori! I'm trying to have a private email conversation with your fit as hell father. Mind your business!

What do you mean I shouldn't use a dickation spell if I want it to be private? I'm privately dictating. And later I'm going to privately dick ... take.

Ha! Get it? I will take a dick but like instead of dictate I'm saying dick take? Ooooooh or I could change it to dick taste. Yeah, mmmmm.

Orion! Where are you going? I'm not done with the drinkering!

Your son is kind of being a tantrum throwing nightmare right now Draco. He just ran out of the room. Ugh, children, I swear.

I hope you're ready cause I need a dictate date.

Loving you and your naked skin and your very pretty penis.
Your Own Harry

----------------------------------

Monday April 17, 2017

Draco, could you call someone and ask them to turn off the sun? We have so much sightseeing to do today. We're supposed to go to Kapellbrucke all day and then spend the evening shopping in Zurich on Bahnhofstrasse. But I don't know if I will be able to do that if someone doesn't turn off the BLOODY SUN!!

HJM

Monday April 17th
My hilarious mutt,

Have I ever mentioned that I LOVE when you're drunk?

There you were, slurring and stumbling, but quite determined to have your way with me. It was actually the first time that I've definitely been in the mood since having Morgana, and seeing as how it's WEEKS before most Healers recommend having sex for post-natal women - who still have to heal up down there - it's probably best if we don't mention to Healer Rowe just how little time we could manage to wait.

It started with you emphatically mumbling an order to Muffy and Dibly to take care of the babies tonight, no matter WHAT it takes (and as I understand it, it took a rather strong sleeping spell on Morgana to get her to sleep peacefully while we were busy). Good thing elves can understand orders, even when given whilst completely inebriated.

Thus, with the babies gone and the littles being warned off by Orion to not disturb us, we had plenty of time to get reacquainted after my stay in the hospital. Taking full advantage of this, you tied me to the bed and licked every part of my body your tongue could reach. As promised, you flirted with my tattoos and worshiped me for HOURS - so long that I started to beg because it seemed like you couldn't remember what the goal was.

To shag me good and hard.

Or as it turned out, to shag yourself good and hard by riding me at your leisure. Just when I was about to cry from need, you shifted until you were straddling me. You were definitely still a bit drunk at that point, because you barely shot a quick prep spell at your arse before impaling yourself on my shaft.

Slowly, inch by inch, babbling something about being able to take me mostly dry and rough, you made me disappear inside you. The sight still quite takes my breath away. I wasn't able to wait another second and exploded inside you with enough force to make me gasp and wonder if you'd be launched off me.

To my delight and dismay, you not only did not go flying off, you stayed right where you were and kept on riding me until you'd had YOUR pleasure, and it wasn't particularly quick either. You rode me slowly, stroking your own shaft almost absently, definitely keeping my attention on you.

I love the sight of you. Even if you're just standing there, fully clothed in something rumpled and dirty from the stables, I could just look at you for hours. But to see you riding me until your cheeks were flushed and rosy from passion. To see you use me for your pleasure, but at the same time, in no hurry. To watch you throw your head back and moan as you ground into me.

FUCK! I could watch you do that until we DIED and it still wouldn't be enough!

Since you were going at such a leisurely pace, you were able to really stroke yourself, your hand making little twists as it reached the end of your shaft. Eventually, I was begging again. I wanted SO BADLY to help your reach that glorious climax. Looking a bit dazed and drunk - but with passion now - you gave into my pleaded demands, letting me go so that I could roll you onto your back and pound you into the bed as hard as I could.

Amazingly, I reached my second orgasm before you even had your first. Not satisfied by this outcome in the slightest, I rested for only a moment after pumping you full, and then pulled free so that I could shift and take your shaft in hand and mouth. Perhaps that was what you were waiting for, because it didn't take long for you to fill my mouth.

And then you promptly passed out, giving me the opportunity to lay properly on the bed and pull you into my arms so that I could just hold you until - well, mostly likely until you woke up in the morning, since the elves were taking care of our babies. Sleep I'm damn certain YOU needed, and I could rather use myself.

I personally woke up feeling refreshed around my usual time, and immediately found that I had two emails from you. This led to me bringing you a very special potion with the ability to turn off the sun - or at least turn down the brightness to normal levels. You seem to be sitting in the dark of the bathroom in case your hangover makes you NEED the toilet, so I'm going to bring that potion to you now and help you drink it down, and then just breathe until it takes effect.

With all my heart and soul,
Draco
Chapter 116

Chapter Summary

Harry notices something he somehow missed, and Kisa comes for a visit.

Tuesday April 18, 2017

My Draco,

Thank you so much for the hangover potion yesterday and the additional potion tailored to sun sensitivity. The traditional hangover potion was enough to turn my hangover from making me want to claw my own eyes out to much more manageable levels. But I definitely wouldn't have enjoyed yesterday's sightseeing very much without the sunlight reducer. Or whatever you're calling it.

I have a very love/hate relationship with drinking. I am obviously not much of a drinker. It doesn't take me much to start acting ridiculous, so it's a good thing I only drink a handful of times per year. Obviously that's not counting the occasional glass of wine I enjoy paired with something delicious. I don't want to become some sort of alcoholic who ignores his family in an attempt to drink. I don't think that's an issue since our children, the few times they've seen me a bit sloshed, just giggle at me while rolling their eyes and occasionally taking pictures.

I will never live down the time my drinking made me wonder if I could actually make myself wee in a nappy. I wasn't drunk enough to actually be able to force myself to go, but it didn't stop the children from laughing at the image of me trying to wrangle myself into one.

But it does seem every time I drink you make some comment about liking it when I drink. I suppose the hangover is a good thing as it reminds me of why I don't drink that often. Then the hangover potions remind me why I'm once again thankful for being a wizard. And also very thankful for my brilliant husband who can brew all these important potions for me.

I did leave my arse alone though. I could have healed up the soreness since we did so much walking yesterday, but you know how much I love the sore reminder of a night well spent.

Oh I've missed being intimate with you. Snuggling our children, holding each other in bed, still having deep thoughts where we bare our souls to each other, these are all intimate things. And if something happened to one of us and we could never have sex again? I would still be madly in love with you. But physical intimacy is such an important part of our lives that I definitely felt something was missing these last few weeks. I like the soreness reminder anyway, but it was especially wonderful having the reminder when I had been feeling the absence.

I don't care what Rowe says! Morgana was twelve whole days old!

Okay, I do care what Rowe says, that's why I rode you instead of topping. Well, it's at least PART of the reason! What? Can you blame a guy for having a preference?

As hungover as I felt yesterday morning, I felt amazing just from having gotten uninterrupted sleep. I love nursing our babies. I love our middle of the night bonding time. They are our last babies (damn they had better be our last babies!!) and I have loved soaking up every single moment with them. But I didn't realize how exhausted I was until I woke up yesterday morning having slept the entire night through. I think I should probably have the elves handle the boys every so often so I can avoid losing my mind from exhaustion. Maybe once every other week or so.

I'm not ready to give up any more time than that for now!

You know, it took me a solid two days to realize all the extra people that came along on our trip. Good thing I booked a chalet with enough space! I am always quite aware of the needs of the underaged children. I know how many we're bringing (sometimes we aren't able to bring Shtara because she has a performance), who might have some special needs to worry about (always paying attention to when the full moon hits so we have the right space and potions for Atreyu). I make sure the translation devices include all local languages of our destination. And now that you've altered the contacts so Jaz can "hear" the local languages, I make sure those are programmed with the local languages.

But sometimes I feel a bit like Arthur that first time he saw me sitting at his breakfast table; "Huh, what? Did we get a new child I don't know about? This one doesn't even have red hair!"

As we're all packing up to head to Kapellbrucke, I start doing the small child count. And I realize we've two too many young children. I've stopped counting the teenagers, so we should have had six walkable children aged eleven or under, plus our three wearable babies. One-two-three-four-five-six-seven-eight. Wait, that can't be right, did one of them move while I was counting? Let me try again, one-two-three-four-five-six-seven-eight. Hmm, still the wrong number. I know they're highly advanced babies but none of the newest set of triplets has started walking yet, right? Nope, two strapped to me and the Queen is strapped to you.

Oh! It's Ethan's Joel and Jayden! I didn't realize Elena had brought them along. Oh! There are Ethan and Rose. I didn't realize Elena had brought THEM along either. I've lost the plot haven't I Draco? I've sat down to breakfast and had full conversations with them since we've been here haven't I?

When you put me in the Janus Thickey ward, will you promise to occasionally visit me?

Who else was here that I hadn't noticed? Oh, Pearl never left after she came to visit the other day. I swear, one of these days I think you and I should get shirts made that say: "Not a tour group we just have an extensive child collection."

Well once I decided to be observant of my surroundings, it seemed I noticed EVERYTHING! We seem to be rubbing off on our children, because there were multiple sets of couples walking around holding hands and giving public kisses the entire time we walked that beautiful bridge. I had such mixed emotions. Hrmph that Eric kissing my daughter ... holding their baby. And then seeing Hazel and Pearl so happy? My daughter and a girl I love like a niece looking madly in love? Someone loving my daughter exactly as she is? How can I not love that? I've gotten used to seeing Vivi and Alric being affectionate, but it still hits me in the gut when I see my stoic and strong daughter blushing from a sweet kiss on the cheek from her fiancé.

But seeing the secret smiles, the slight brushing of hands, the lingering hands while they passed the baby between them? I am so hopeful that Lainie will find her happiness with Rose and Ethan. And the fact that we weren't able to frighten off Ethan, Rose, OR Joel and Jayden? Very promising!

The day was perfect, loving family, beautiful artwork, a ridiculous amount of shopping ... what more could you ask for?

But for this morning, I think I am going to go cook up a big enough breakfast to feed an army. Maybe an army and a half!

Yours,
Harry

Wednesday April 19th
The flame of my desire,

I swear, whenever we end up taking a bit of a break from shagging - for whatever reason, but it's usually related to having children - it seems like when we get back into it, we both act like it's urgent and almost 'now or never' when it comes to wanting to do it all the time. We not only had Monday night, but LAST night, we were all over each other for a few hours.

Thank MERLIN we have elves to take on feeding duty.

Unfortunately, Morgana was NOT having a second full night in a row of being tended to by the elves. Sometime round 2 am, she broke through the sleeping charm Muffy put on her, exploded the lamp on the bedside table - that you automatically shielded us from the debris - and started screaming bloody murder until we broke apart and fawned all over her until she was full and ready to go back to sleep.

Thankfully, we'd reached our climax and were simply kissing and caressing each other in a quest to see if we were going to go again. Thus all she really interrupted was the possibility of a third round.

Before talking about today, I just have to roll my eyes, shake my head, and pet your silly little head. I KNOW you are shite with potions, but seriously? A potion that can reduce the brightness of the sun? snorts in amusement That was simply an extra strength hangover potion since the first CLEARLY hadn't done a full job! My lovable little moron, you were THAT drunk that you needed TWO hangover potions, the second one as strong as possible, hahaha. I love you, my silly mutt!

Anyway, today was all around lovely. Shortly after I woke up and joined those of you who were eating lunch, so I could feed Morgana while I ate breakfast, Kisa arrived with all the Quartet's kids, minus Aleksei - who apparently has a bit of a cold and stayed home with Blaise.

Roderick and Bianca immediately sat with our older kids, while Veronica and Anastacia sat with Shtara, Zaire, Jasmine, Siri, and Zwei, leaving Tristan, Misha, and Tatyana to huddle up with our Feisty Foursome.

After introductions were made (Eric looking like he couldn't decide if the crowd was too big and overwhelming, or if the fact that they went out of their way to be friendly to him was enough to set him at ease) and everyone had a half an hour or so to catch up and finish eating, Kisa stood up and announced the reason for her visit.

"Alright, Lanie, the platonic love of my life! Stand the fuck up and get over here! It's been enough time since you had your adorable Rafael that you should be back in shape!"

"It's only been 4 months!" Elena protested hotly. "And I've been stretching and dancing, so I'm NOT completely OUT of shape!"

"Yeah, but you're letting yourself slide, and don't you try to argue with me!" Kisa insisted, making Elena tilt her head side to side as if admitting that Kisa might have a point.

Kisa clapped her hands sharply. "Malfoy sprogs! Listen to your Great Auntie and get your arses over here. Now!"

I heard Caelum telling Atreyu: "Better do what she says, before she strings us up in her dungeon and tickles us to death!"

It took surprisingly little time for all of our (and Kisa's) kids to form four perfectly spaced lines in front of my favorite Aunt. This left me chuckling in amusement as you sat next to me laughing. Ethan shrugged and told his wife everything he remembered about Kisa, while Eric looked confused and not sure if he should join in, that said, he was holding Luka, and so, stayed put.

"Oi! NEPHEW!" Kisa roared. "You too! No excuses!"

Sighing but not entirely adverse, I gave you a quick kiss and cast a shield charm over Morgana before joining the empty space across from Eris. It was almost too much to keep track of, but the 24 of us paired off with Kisa versus Elena, me versus Eris, Hazel/Pearl, Viona/Bianca, Roderick/Orion, Shtara/Atreyu (as neither of them have more than the most basic of skill), Zaire/Veronica, Jaz/Anastacia, Siri/Zwei, Caelum/Tristan, Misha/Lily, and Persephone/Tatyana.

Eris and I were naturally going VERY easy on each other, as we're BOTH less than a month from having a baby. Kisa seemed to be serious about murdering Elena if she couldn't keep up, but almost certainly went a bit easy on her too. The rest of the combatants were giving the sparring their all, aside from Shtara, who was doing a rather good job of helping Atreyu learn and practice the few moves she knew that he didn't.

Joel and Jayden didn't quite know what to do, since neither had ever learned any sort of fighting skills. Plus, Jaden is still only two - or did she just turn three? I have a hard enough time keeping track of my OWN kids, hahaha! Speaking of, you stopped counting the teens and adults?? NOT ME! When we're out in public as a family, I'm CONSTANTLY doing a head count of ALL our kids, despite the fact that Elena, Viona, Eri, Ori, and Hazel are all technically adults and can do whatever they want now. It drives me MAD! There's always at least one missing whenever I do a count, and then I have to recount and realize that they weren't missing, I just didn't see them standing in the back - or whatever threw the count off.

But back to our day. After some rather lovely sparring, Kisa called for staves, which allowed even us recently pregnant ones to get a bit more vigorous, and THAT naturally evolved into dancing, which evolved into getting naked and lighting things on fire while we danced, which evolved into you in my arms kissing me while everyone else groaned and told us to get a room.

As I was saying, a perfect day.

And now, I am dead certain that Eric realizes that Eris can defend herself if necessary, which is useful information to know if he was even slightly planning anything. But that said, they are getting on surprisingly well. I wouldn't think two literal strangers could work together so well to co-raise their baby, but it's like you said, I should REALLY stop being so surprised by fate.

Speaking of getting along so well, they were the first to make an excuse that allowed them to slip away. Which prompted Hazel and Pearl to make their excuses. Viona and Alric went shopping or sightseeing, leaving Orion alone to entertain Roderick and Bianca, but since he showed them his bartending skills, I'm positive they enjoyed themselves.

The rest of the kids - aside from our babies - were happy enough to keep each other playing energetic games in the yard. Which means that we were left 'alone' to go to our room as suggested and play with our babies while trying to sneak in quick shags while they were napping.

You remind me of the babe,
Draco
Friday April 21, 2017

My Best Friend,

Happiest of birthdays to our wonderful Persephone Hikari.

I know each of our children is a perfect little miracle. I can't imagine living without any of their existences. But there's something about our Seph that I am constantly remembering just how much of a miracle she is. All that time spent in St. Mungo's. Trying to keep her inside of me as long as I could. Battling through magical exhaustion and increasingly dangerous side effects. Tears and sweat and all other manner of drains. And then she was so unbelievably tiny when she was born. I remember looking at her and just thinking of how tiny and fragile she was.

And now, while she's still very small, she's definitely not fragile! She's packed in a massive amount of personality in her tiny body. She's full of sass and fire. She loves with all of her heart. I just can't imagine our lives without our little Light. And every birthday she has is a reminder to me to be thankful she's safe and sound here with us.

I imagine I will feel this same tug of thankfulness and fear of what could have been when our Gabriel and Dylan start having birthdays as well. Seeing as they're only a little more than a month old, I have some time before I have to start worrying about that.

But time flies ever so much faster than we want it to. It won't be all that long before they hit their first birthdays. And then their second. Eventually heading off to Hogwarts. And then graduating Hogwarts and getting married and moving halfway across the world!! And then they'll be gone and I'll just sit alone in our big empty Manor crying about how I never see our children and you will get sick of seeing me whine and cry and you'll kick me out of the Manor. Then I'll have to rent some dingy room at the Hogshead and eventually I'll be that creepy old man the Hogwarts kids warn all their friends about!

Breathe Harry, breathe. There's a chance those events may not take place.

I suppose I am a bit ridiculous sometimes. Like when I am confused about potions. Alright Mister Malfoy! I didn't actually think the potion dimmed the sun. I just thought maybe it did something to my pupils to temporarily allow less light through or something like that. I might be a bit thick but I'm not THAT much of a moron!

I enjoyed introducing some of our newbies to our birthday traditions today. Eric, Ethan, and Rose were up early enough to wonder what I was doing in the kitchens that early. They each enjoyed helping out, and Eric even mentioned loving the idea so much that he was going to talk it over with Eris and see if it's a tradition she wants to see repeated for Luka when he starts having birthdays. Ethan and Rose quickly jumped on that idea and mentioned bringing it up with Lainie about continuing it for Rafael.
As usual, Zaire insisted on helping prepare and present the birthday breakfasts. And we had enough people excited about the tradition that we practically had an entire choir singing Happy Birthday to Seph. Good thing she's one of our happy wakers. Can you imagine the look on Shtara's face at a dozen people in her bedroom singing before she'd had a chance to rub the sleep out of her eyes? There'd be a birthday murder!

Instead, your daughter is busy trying to decide between two options for her birthday activities at the last minute. What a rough life our little Seph leads, spending her seventh birthday in a chalet in Switzerland. Her biggest concern is whether she wants to go kayaking or hang gliding for her activity. I honestly have no idea why she's actually trying to decide between the two. You and I both know she will be choosing hang gliding. If it's an adrenaline rush and high above mountains, it's right up Seph's alley.

Are you going to want to go with? Or do you want to stay back with the babies and the kids who don't feel up to death defying stunts? We can both go, so don't feel like you have to stay back if you want to come with. I know Éris is not interested in either option, and I think Lainie was only interested if Seph chooses Kayaking. So there will be plenty of responsible people staying back to watch the babies.

Better run, Seph is calling me, maybe she's finally made a choice!

Yours,

Harry

Friday April 21st
My greatest love,

I've said it before and I'll say it again, our Morgana is STRONG-WILLED. I don't know where she gets it! Shut it you.

This morning (afternoon, whatever), you were helping me to wake up and get ready to go more quickly than otherwise. It was then that we discovered that Morgana WILL actually let me put her down, while awake, for longer than a second, so long as she is on her tummy looking at her 'twin' brothers.

Well, I suppose that they actually are twins, being born at the same time, but I meant that SHE'S supposed to be their triplet - their older sister who somehow managed to be the youngest. They were all on the bed, with you cooing at them and petting them almost like dogs - which was adorable all on its own - simply looking at each other and making tiny little infant noises that I'm sure is the beginning of their very own secret language.

This allowed me to get dressed without a baby in my arms or strapped to my chest.

I also had time to eat, at the table in our suite, all by myself. This was nearly heaven after 16 days of having her in my arms nearly every moment of the day. Plus, I loved watching you make silly faces at all of them and tickle their tiny feet. When you gave them kisses, even Morgana made a sound reminiscent of purring.

So then we were ready to go and I called Orion and Hazel, which brought along Pearl, Roderick, Bianca, and Kisa, to watch the three babies while we spent the day with Persephone. Orion picked up Gabriel, while Roderick and Bianca were playing with Dylan. This left our sweet and gorgeous Hazel itching to hold her tiniest sister, only Morgana was NOT having it. She immediately started screaming. Now, if she was a bit older - say six months - I MIGHT have considered just leaving the room and letting them calm her down and reassure her that she's NOT in any danger of being harmed.

That said, it's almost impossible to leave and/or purposely 'ignore' a two week old when she has the ability to blow things up when she's not getting her way. For example, Kisa decided that SHE could calm Morgana down by taking her and giving her a firm look while saying: "There now, love, your Great Auntie has you, and I will NOT tolerate fussiness."

Morgana responded by blowing up three lights, half a dozen knickknacks, AND Kisa's left hand.

I was already reaching to take Morgana, which was a good thing as Kisa almost certainly would have dropped her. As I made shushing noises, which were unnecessary as Morgana stopped crying the moment I had her, you performed a nice Healing Spell on Kisa's hand. You may not have learned all the different Healing Spells to give you a bit of finesse over the result, but you are DAMN good at the one you do know, and your power is strong enough that you had her good as new in no time.

Kisa looked a little bit spooked as she thanked you, giving you a hug and a kiss on the cheek.

"Sorry about that," I apologized. "This one doesn't seem to want anyone else to touch her yet."

"Consent IS everything," Kisa murmured, shaking her newly healed hand to ensure that it worked properly.

I summoned my favorite wrap carrier and tied Morgana to me so that she was nice and cozy, and more importantly, could NOT fall out. You looked at me like you were seriously wondering if I planned to bring her with us.

"What?" I asked defensively. "It's not like I can leave her behind. We'd come back to the Chalet on fire and everyone in it injured."

You heaved a great sigh of defeat and sort of shrugged and nodded as if acknowledging that I was right.

After that, we gathered up Persephone and headed off for a wonderful day of Hang Gliding. The first hour or so was us taking a refresher course since it HAS been a while since we've done this. Then we chose our gliders and got into the harness. I chose the traditional cocoon-like harness, which made it necessary for me to shift Morgana from my front to my back, and - of course - cast every safety charm known to man on her before getting into the harness and preparing to glide.

Meanwhile, you chose a sort of half cocoon harness that would allow you to glide in tandem with Persephone harnessed to your chest. To her EXTREME disappointment, she just doesn't weigh enough or have enough upper body strength to control a glider all own her own yet. That said, she would much rather ride with you than not go at all, so gliding we went.

These top of the line gliders can actually glide for HOURS if the wind has enough updraft to it, and thankfully enough, these mountains do have lots of perfect winds for gliding as much as we wanted. Also, we're wizards and have the ability to cast spells to sort of smooth it all out so that it's more like one long perfect flight, than a bunch of ups and downs based on the winds. That said, the ups and downs are more fun, and to no surprise, Persephone kept encouraging you to do 'tricks' such as rocking side to side.

All in all, it was an amazing way to spend the day. One day soon, we're going to have to go gliding again, and bring ALL our kids (that want to try it) with us.

Fly me to the moon,
Draco
Chapter 118

Chapter Summary

Harry thinks Draco is a lunatic, the restaurant is spinning, and Draco wants to shag on a gondola.

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Saturday April 22, 2017

My Lunatic,

You took our daughter hang gliding.

You ... took our daughter ... HANG GLIDING.

Okay, to be fair, I also took our daughter hang gliding. But I took the seven year old daredevil. YOU took a two week old baby! To be fair, I saw it happening and did nothing to stop it. Also, she was warded from the tips of her beautiful jet black hair to her teeny tiny toes.

She's unbelievably beautiful, isn't she Draco? You know, if we never know a single thing about her other biological make-up that's fine. But you know how much I want our children to know as much of their heritage as possible. And not that it matters TO ME in any way, but I have been staring intently at our Morgana's features, hoping for some sign of where half of her comes from. And the more I stare at her - the more she grows into her looks - the more I'm realizing I'm pretty darn certain she is of possibly Pacific Islander or Asian descent.

As dark as her hair and eyes are, I didn't notice it right away. It probably comes from me being very used to seeing black-haired babies, thanks to my own hair and skin tones. And the fact that she's half Malfoy seems to have made some of her features less obviously Asian. But I'd be very interested to know what her background is. Again, not that it matters for me, but it would be nice to know so that we can introduce her to that part of her heritage the way we've been able to with the rest of our children.

Well, so far. We've not really had the chance to do much with Atreyu and his Mexican background. But he has been with us for less than a year, so it's not like we've been dropping the ball or anything! I know we're literally on vacation as we speak, and we have a huge wedding coming up much too soon, but I'd really like to have our next just for fun trip to be to Mexico to start introducing Trey to his cultural background. And there's the whole "we'd be on a super awesome trip to Mexico" part of the plan that would be great too.

This trip has been just wonderful so far. I'm already dreading going home tomorrow! Not that there's anything wrong with being home, we have a wonderful home and I miss my horses, I've just really really enjoyed being out here. I think maybe it's just been way too long for my wanderlust to have gone without traveling.

I think one of my favorite parts has been introducing the newbies to the craziness that is holidaying with the Malfoys. Ethan wasn't particularly overwhelmed, we may have never taken him on holiday, but he spent enough time with our family growing up - and so much time at Unity House - that his threshold for large groups being overwhelming is pretty high. He's probably spent years telling Rose about his time with Unity House; I'm sure experiencing it was different than being told about it secondhand, but she was expecting some craziness. Poor Eric on the other hand, it seems like every few minutes something made his eyes bug out of his head.

I'm pretty sure Eric is now thoroughly wary of what Eris could do to him if he fucks this whole thing up. So, in other words, I am really glad Kisa made an appearance. I would be anyway, you know I adore our Kisa, but even more due to the side effects.

Oh! We need to leave for dinner now. I am so damn excited for this place. I don't even care if the food is edible, we're going to a rotating restaurant on the summit of the Shilthorn! Eeeeek! Piz Gloria here we come!

Anticipatorily yours,
Harry

Saturday April 22nd
Imzadi,

Harry, what do you suppose the staff of a popular restaurant at the TOP of a panoramic mountain says when they see a group of nearly thirty children and adults plus a few babes in arms walk in all hungry?

My bet: "Wonder what sort of tour group they are? Skiers? Bond fanatics? Extreme Foodies?"

NOPE! Just one big and crazy family! Hahaha...

Good thing you made reservations. I wonder if they believed you when you said 28 plus several babies? We basically ordered everything on the menu, hahahaha! Not to mention several bottles of their Bollinger Champagne.

I may have gotten a bit tipsy...

My foodie children were a tiny bit disappointed that they didn't have anything 'exotic' on the menu (such as tongue, mmm), but that said, everything was really tasty. Or at least I assume everything was, as my Veal in Mushroom Sauce was utterly delicious. You had the Chicken Breast with Creamy Curry Sauce, and Persephone - our newly turned 7 year old adventurer - had Escalope of Salmon.

The view as we slowly turned a full 360 degrees - or rather, I mean the restaurant did - was BREATHTAKING!

But - and I know you didn't intend this - BUT the best part might just have been after dinner was over and we migrated to the ENORMOUS movie screen that continually plays clips of the exciting stunts from a muggle fictional character called Bond. That and the Bond World interactive exhibit. It was a pretty brilliant way to relax and finish up drinking all that champagne we'd opened.

Our Divas certainly agreed with me, they and Orion helping me finish up the (2 or 3) bottles that needed to be drank up, all the while discussing how good looking this Bond fellow is. It seems we all (including you) agree that he's pretty fit.
I suggested that we go skiing while we were conveniently up at the top of a Mountain. Well, it seems that you were playing sober responsible adult, because you told me that was a TERRIBLE idea with me so tipsy that I couldn't walk a straight line. That said, those of our kids who were under the legal limit (I can't quite remember if they had a measuring device or if someone cast a test spell) who wanted to go skiing got the chance to go.

Meanwhile, you insisted that I and everyone who couldn't or didn't want to ski get on the gondola going back down the mountain. Probably best that you were on the gondola with me, because I was so convinced that it was a BRILLIANT idea to jump off mid trip and go flying on my broom - that I didn't actually have on me - that you needed to distract me by thoroughly snogging me the entire way down.

Too bad we had far too many people in that gondola with us groaning about how disgusting it is to watch their dads kissing, hahaha. Had we been alone, I daresay we would have shagged the whole ride down.

So... want to Apparate back after the place is closed for the night and shag in the gondola anyway?

Yours forever in love and lust,
Draco

Chapter End Notes

They probably did, lol ^_^
Chapter 119

Chapter Summary

Harry receives a request for help, and Draco overhears something... squicky...

Sunday April 23, 2017

My Dragon,

I uh, got a strange email today from...

Well, I suppose it wasn't so much strange as unexpected. I haven't heard from Oliver Wood for years. Probably at least five years, maybe more? We didn't have a falling out or anything, and we were never the very best of friends, so when I stopped hearing from him all those years, I just kind of assumed it was a childhood friendship we'd all outgrown.

So when I got a random email from him - I noticed it while you were trying to get the littles down for some naps so they'd sleep away our flight home - I just assumed it was going to be a: "Wow, it's been so long, we should get together," kind of catching up email. It certainly mentioned how long it had been, and it included wanting to get together, but it was definitely not a casual message.

You'll remember that Oliver was married to that Edmond fellow, remember him? Kind of plain and easily forgotten? Alright, that was mean. Not untrue, but unnecessarily mean. We met him when he and Oliver came to Unity to adopt Cassie and then later to adopt Parker (who are now eighteen and nineteen! Yikes!) but he never really came to any of the followup events we invited the Unity Royalty to. No Movie Nights or Halloween Parties.

Anyway, don't strain yourself trying to remember this guy, it doesn't matter anymore, because he's dead.

So, Oliver was....

You know, maybe I will just copy and paste Oliver's email and you can read all the dirty details for yourself. And then tell me what we should do.

---------------------------

Dear Harry,

Hello, it's been a long time since we've spoken. It's my own fault, and please know I have missed your friendship immensely. I have been a terrible friend these past years, if you even still call me friend. I will completely understand if you don't respond to this message, I would even understand if you respond with anger at me attempting to contact you after all this time.

I had to use up all that's left of my Gryffindor bravery to write this, I am hopeful you have some Hufflepuff levels of loyalty and are willing to hear me out despite my neglect of our friendship.

My husband Edmond died yesterday. It was expected, but the fallout has been more of a shock.

I loved Ed desperately when we first married. Our first few years together were blissful, our adoption of Cassie and Parker only added to our happiness. I was very wrapped up in my sweet little family. It was wonderful. Until it wasn't.

About six or seven years ago, Edmond started changing. It was gradual, so perhaps it started even longer ago than that. I went from wanting to spend all of my time with our family to being required to. I was never explicitly told that I wasn't allowed to spend time outside of our home or family, but the interrogations I received when I got home made me quickly decide it wasn't worth it. Was he controlling me? Or was I isolating myself? Eventually I came to realize he truly had become this controlling man.

But I was in too deep, still too in love, still wanting to be a family and raise our children together. So I allowed the controlling behavior to continue. Except it wasn't him. I mean, it WAS him, but it wasn't his fault. You see, a year ago, we went to St. Mungo's for his annual checkup ... yes I went along, I never went anywhere without him by that point ... and his inability to remember his own medical history was a red flag to his healer. Edmond was diagnosed with an aggressive strain of magic-resistant dementia.

We would have possibly been able to magically treat it if we'd seen the signs all those years ago when his behavior changed, but it had advanced to such a level that all we could do at that point was wait for the inevitable.

The inevitable happened yesterday. After myself and our Cassie and Parker said our final goodbyes, my Ed took his last breaths and let go. The children and I cried and held each other. We contacted Edmond's parents shortly after he passed to let them know it had happened, and invited them over to begin planning for the funeral and etcetera.

They came over immediately. Unfortunately, they did not come to help me plan my husband's funeral. They came to evict me from their home. They came to tell me I was to blame for his death since I should have seen the signs sooner. If I had only been a better husband, a better man, I would have seen the early signs that could have made his dementia treatable. I screamed and cried and told them to leave my home if they were going to be hateful while our family grieved.

No, I had to leave. You see, I was a well-controlled house husband. I had no idea that our home was actually one of my in-laws properties. I had no idea our entire Gringott's vault was actually in my in-laws' name. I haven't a sickle to my name. I'd already lost my husband ... when I lost him years ago to his illness and a second time when his body gave up ... and now I was going to lose my home.

The monstrous people I once held so much love and affection for, told me in no uncertain terms that me and "those children you forced our Edmond to adopt instead of having children of his own" had twenty-four hours to vacate the property.

I spent the last twelve hours debating messaging you. How could I possibly dare beg a favor of someone I've ignored for so long? But I am desperate. I am without pride. My children and I have nowhere to go. Do you have anywhere we could possibly stay? A guest house? A cabin? A stall in those stables I've heard about? I can work off my debt to you.

Please let me know if you have space, or if you know of anyone else who may have space for a homeless grieving widower and his two mostly adult children. I wouldn't ask for myself, but my children shouldn't need to lose one more thing right now.

Sincerely and Apologetically,
Oliver Wood

-----------------------------------
I understand if this is too much to say yes to my Love. We have three newborns and a veritable army of children. But can we find space for Oliver, Cassie, and Parker?

Loving you always,
Harry

Sunday April 23rd
My compassion,

Today turned out to be rather draining, didn't it?

The flight from Switzerland to Wiltshire wasn't overly long, just long enough to take a nap, and so, once I'd gotten all the littles down, I wanted to lay down for a bit myself. Once I got all snuggled up and comfy with Morgana and a blanket, I saw I had an email from you and read it. At that point, all thoughts of napping completely fled my mind.

I sent an Insta-owl to you to reply to Oliver, telling him to meet us at Malfoy Manor in about two hours, and bring his kids. The flight is only an hour and a half long and we'd already been in flight for a good 20 minutes, so I felt that 2 hours would give us plenty of time to get home and make sure everything is ready for them. That said, I also ordered Dibly to Apparate on ahead and prepare the guest cottage for use since it hasn't been used since shortly after Sirius arrived.

Aside from us shagging in it randomly throughout the years.

Once home, we explained to our kids that we were going to have guests, and while most of our kids expressed good wishes, they just weren't old enough to care about a couple of essentially strangers, so they ran off to do their own things. That said, Viona and Orion stayed with us because they are friends with Cassie and Parker from school. Parker may be graduated now, but he was a Gryffindor Quidditch player, and so, had a friendly (an actual friendly, not the same sort of heated or hateful we initially had) rivalry with Orion. Meanwhile, Cassie is still finishing up her last year and - despite being in Hufflepuff - apparently studies with Viona fairly frequently and is one of her minions.

We were happy to have a pair of our kids on hand to help make this less awkward. When Oliver and his kids arrived, he seemed to fall completely apart, throwing his arms around you and sobbing - far more emotional than I'm certain he planned to be. Viona and Orion were not flustered by this and simply rubbed Cassie and Parker on the back before guiding them on a tour of the guest cottage.

I stood there as a silent rock of support as you - also sobbing because that is just a beautiful part of who you are - held onto Oliver and let him get out all the grief, hurt, and anger he could. After quite a bit of time, Oliver seemed to pull himself together a bit, and pulled back so that he could wipe his eyes.

"Sorry," he apologized in embarrassment.

"Nothing to be sorry for," you assured him, now holding his hand as a show of continued support.

I pretended that nothing was out of the ordinary as I swept my hand out and began the tour of the cottage. "This might seem a bit small when looking at it from the outside, especially after you've seen the Manor, but looks can be deceiving. This was originally a hunting cottage, but it hasn't been used for that in over a century. Thus, it's been remodeled to project a sense of cozy rustic comfort. There are four bedrooms, a full kitchen - which I've had stocked with the essentials -'

You interrupted with a snort of amusement. "MALFOY essentials, meaning that you probably have caviar and a full wine cellar in there, not to mention a house elf. Hmm... which house elf?"

"Dibly," I stated matter of factly before continuing. "And I'm certain you'll discover all the quirks for yourself, but the one I want to specifically point out is this glorious fireplace. It's perfect for staring into when you can't sleep at night."

"Thanks," Oliver murmured, staring through the fireplace as if it was an alien creature and he wasn't quite sure if it would bite.

I sensed that he could use a moment alone to gather his thoughts, so I was relieved when Viona and Orion returned with Cassie and Parker. I patted Oliver on the shoulder and murmured: "We'll leave you to get settled in. If you need ANYTHING, just tell Dibly and he'll get it for you."

You gave Oliver a last hug for the moment. "If you need to talk - even if it's the middle of the night
- just Insta-owl me. I'll probably be up feeding my babies anyway."

He forced a bit of a polite smile. "I'll keep that in mind." It was obvious that he didn't want to impose any more than he already was. Mark my words, he'll take you up on that around 2 AM.

With nothing more to do for the moment, we excused ourselves and walked back to the Manor, thanking our kids for being brilliant as we went. They shrugged and murmured something about it just being part of what it means to be our family. This reminded me about all those years we traveled around setting up Unity Houses, and how our kids really did get used to helping others no matter what. I KNOW that often, people think our family is stuck up because of how much money and privilege we have, and yes, we can all be demanding arseholes when we want, but that's really near the surface and built on a strong foundation of giving and compassion. And love.

Harry, how did we manage to luck our way into raising our kids to be so wonderful?

Once in the Manor, you immediately disappeared into the kitchen so that you could cook up a comforting feast for our guests. This left me wondering if I could talk some of our kids into joining me in the ballroom. Thus, I walked around intending to ask them, but the first room I approached happened to be Hazel's, and since the door was open, I overheard this conversation that completely derailed my plans.

"How can I help if you won't tell me what's WRONG?!" Pearl demanded.

"NOTHING IS WRONG!" Hazel insisted.

"Something bloody well is!" Pearl shouted.

Hazel roared in frustration. "FINE!!! But it's not something you can fix! I simply have to work through it myself!"

"WHAT??!!" Hazel insisted.

Hazel sighed heavily, and I was so concerned that I stood frozen outside the doorway, not INTENDING to spy like a creep, but unable to move so much as a millimeter.

"Look... I didn't..." she sighed again. "Back before I had my surgery, one of the last days before school let out, I had a girl show interest in me. She seemed to imply that she could handle ALL aspects of me, and I thought: 'fuck it, why not?' which led to my first and ONLY time before my "Alright..." Pearl stated warily, sounding not exactly happy to hear that, but not exactly upset either. "And...?"

"And it was - I dunno - normal, I suppose. After my surgery, I had a very in depth conversation with my Doctor and the nurses, and they all told me that orgasm and sex would be very different. I UNDERSTAND this, that it's going to feel different, but..." she faltered and looked away.

"What?" Pearl asked softly, now holding Hazel's hand and looking very supportive.

"But it's not just different, I feel like I barely feel anything most of the time. I feel like something is wrong, and I don't think it can be fixed," Hazel admitted morosely.

"Maybe it can and maybe it can't, but I think you should at least contact your doctor and discuss this, in case something is SERIOUSLY wrong." Pearl suggested, holding Hazel now. She kissed our girl on the cheek. "And besides, I love you. If sex just isn't part of our relationship, I'm still going to love you and want to be with you."

Hazel started crying at that point, hugging Pearl and blubbering about loving her SO much too. I decided that I REALLY didn't need to be a part of this conversation at all, and so, silently shut their door before wandering off to ask our OTHER children. To my relief, Zaire, Jaz, Siri, and Zwei were all eager to dance with me, and so, if you need me, I'll be in the ballroom.

I would. die for. you, yeah, darling if you want me to, you!

Draco

P.S. So... should we bring Hazel back to talk to her doctor?
Chapter 120

Chapter Summary

Harry is laughing and Draco goes undercover to solve a minor mystery.

Tuesday April 25, 2017

My Confused Boy,

Oh my goodness you should have seen the look on your face this morning! Or was it last night? In the middle of the night/early this morning. Either way, it was hilarious.

That first night Oliver, Cassie, and Parker got here, you thought Oliver would end up taking me up on my offer to talk any time day or night. You told me to mark your words. Well, I marked them and he didn't show up in the middle of the night Sunday night, two a.m. or not. I think it's likely that the last few days of stress had caught up with him and he was sound asleep before his head even hit the pillow.

I'm so glad he skipped over his pride and reached out to us for help. I didn't actually sleep much that night because I was assuming he would want to come talk. That's why I ended up taking that nap yesterday. Oh, did you not realize I took a nap? It's probably because I ended up curling up in a ball in the stables. I woke up covered in hay.

But back to this morning. I was feeding Dylan and - surprisingly enough - Morgana as well. Can you believe she finally gave in and is nursing? It's taken a few weeks to get here, but I think she's going to be a Daddy's girl eventually! I mean, we all know she's already a Daddy's girl, but I want her to be THIS Daddy's girl. A Daddies' girl preferably! I love these babies of ours so much!

Anyway, there I was, nursing Dylan and Morgana while Gabe kept snoozing away, when there was a knock on our door. Per our pre-birth agreement, I was taking care of the babes with a silencing spell on you. Okay, that's a bit misleading, in the time since the kids have been born, Gabe and Dyl in March and Morgana earlier this month, you've gotten up almost every night. But last night with all the drama that's been going on, and the fact that Morgana was finally letting me care for her, you had me cast a silencing spell so you could get a full night's sleep.

You obviously know by now but it was Oliver at the door. He asked if he was bothering me, and when I assured him I was feeding two hungry little monsters - and the third would likely wake up for a turn soon - he came in to talk. Sunday when he basically climbed into my arms and cried, he cried out his fears and sadness and pretty much every other terrible emotion he was feeling. I joined him because, well, it's me. But last night, he wanted to pour out all of those feelings in actual conversation.

He talked through Dylan and Morgana's feedings and subsequent settling back to sleep. He talked through Gabe waking up and eating, and then also him settling back to sleep. He ran out of steam right around the time Morgana started fussing for another middle of the night feeding. Oliver did that head nod, jerking yourself awake thing, mumbling something about going back to the cabin to go to sleep. I shushed him and told him our bed was obviously large enough for him to feel free to pass out. He gave a pathetic attempt at saying he should really head back to his own bed, I shot him down and pushed him over.

I eventually got Morgana fed and back to sleep, giving me hopefully a few hours before my brain told me it was time to get up for the day. I woke up just a bit after sunrise to Ollie still sound asleep in our bed. I got up and started doing my morning routines, figuring I would let you two keep sleeping as long as I could. You both obviously needed it. But at some point, I think while I was brushing my teeth, you started spooning him in your sleep. It was really cute and innocent, so I just left you to it while I got dressed.

However, at some point your body must have gotten the memo that you were holding a fit guy in your arms. I heard a softly whispered "Harry," and thinking you were just trying to quietly call me, I responded with "Yes Love?"

Merlin's beard! Your eyes shot open about as wide as I'd ever seen them. You looked at me, and then it seemed to finally register that I was responding from across the room while you were grinding up against whoever you were holding.

That set me off to start laughing hysterically, which ended up waking the babies and Oliver. Sorry about that, I really am, but the panic on your face was too much for me!

Anyway, I called Hazel's surgeon a little while ago to ask about coming in, and I'm just waiting for a call back. Her nurse that I talked to earlier asked a few questions and seems adamant that we don't need to trek all the way back to California unless Hazel is only comfortable talking to her original surgeon. So the call I am waiting for is a recommendation of who in the UK would be good for Haz to talk to about this issue.

The good news is they assured me it was common during MTF surgery recovery for a woman to not quite know how to reach physical satisfaction. Unfortunately, there are a ton of misconceptions, rumors, and assumptions out there. The chance that she will not be able to achieve orgasm or feel sexual satisfaction is almost completely nonexistent. The reality being it's just going to take some experimentation and willingness to try different tactics until something fits.

I guess it's a really common problem in the trans community. Not the inability to still have a satisfying sex life, but to not really know where to turn to when "good luck with your new parts!" isn't enough. Long story short, we'll have her talk with a doctor, they should be able to give her tips and tricks to try, and I will never have to think about my daughter's sex life ever again.

Which is what I really and truly want to happen.

Although how much more do I love Pearl now? What kind of teenager loves someone enough to be willing to forgo sex if it means being with the person they love? Pansy and Ivan sure raised a wonderful young woman.

And yeah, we've raised some pretty wonderful young men and women ourselves. We really are the two luckiest blokes on the planet aren't we?

The luckiest of all,
Harry

Monday May 1st
Merlin buggering Salazar!

Harry, how is it that our children are so bloody wonderful and caring and compassionate, but then go back to school for ONE bloody day, and we're already being called in to have a 'discussion' with the Headmistress?!

Sigh... I'll handle it since I'm awake and just finished with my morning routine. I'm sure it's probably nothing serious anyway, just one of our kids being particularly strong-willed. You currently have your hands full of hungry babies anyway.

I have Morgana with me (naturally), but you have Gabriel and Dylan out in the stables with you and Oliver, who apparently finds it therapeutic to work with the horses too. I can't actually hear the boys demanding their post-lunch/pre-dinner feeding, but since it's about that time, I'd be surprised if they weren't throwing a strop. Morgana is drinking from a bottle, but she's giving me a look like she'd rather have you nursing her.

But speaking of Oliver, I'm a bit curious as to what you would have done had I not called out for you, nor fully woken up before trying to have my way with my bed partner - that I would have assumed was you. Although, I do recall thinking something was off, which was probably part of my confusion when I woke up to find you across the room and someone else in my arms. I was temporarily flashing back to times in the past when others had crawled into my bed to seduce me before I woke up.

In any case, I'm fairly certain that it had been a while for Oliver, because even in his sleep, his body was reacting to the warmth of a pair of arms around him, and a needy prick rubbing up against his arse. That could have gone into definitely NOT innocent territory very quickly. Probably best all around that you found the scene so hilarious that you laughed and killed any sort of amorous mood.

But back to today, I'm off to visit with McGonagall and see what has a Blast-ended Screw in her robes. If it requires both of us, I'll send you an Insta-owl.

Love,
Draco

-

About 2 hours later

As you once said, my Co-Captain on the S.S. Crazy,

Well... it seems our son is full of surprises...

So, having rushed to Hogwarts to see why we'd just received an owl asking for one or both of us to visit the Headmistress in her office at our earliest convenience, I was sat across her massive desk as she looked me over as if scrutinizing MY behavior for wrongdoing. I bristled for a moment before squaring my shoulders and preparing to use every ounce of my Malfoy superiority if necessary, when she finally spoke.

"I've called you here today to discuss Orion."

"Wait, what??" I blurted out in confusion.

Her mouth softened just a hair as she cast a tiny smile at Morgana, who was keeping a wary eye on the stranger.
"What about Orion?" I questioned, now rather concerned.

"I'm not certain, to be honest. His grades are as excellent as ever, and he's performing his duties as Quidditch Captain admirably. He's giving NO indication of being in trouble or having emotional distress. Thus, I can't figure out why he's claiming the need to go home each night. At first, I gave him the benefit of the doubt, but then I realized that he wasn't flooing to Malfoy Manor as he claimed, but rather, well, I'm not sure where he's going."

"Huh..." I murmured speculatively. "Does... he have a girlfriend?" I asked myself more than her because I didn't think she'd know this if it was a girl OUTSIDE of Hogwarts.

She snorted in amusement. "Not quite yet, but he and Farrah are bickering so much that I feel it'll only be a matter of time."

I chuckled. "Yes, I suspect the same."

She shrugged. "In any case, since you have given him permanent permission to floo home as he likes, there's nothing I can technically do. After he leaves the castle, I don't truly know where he's going, the only reason I know he's not going home is that I've checked the floo logs and he's flooing to the Hog's Head, presumably so that he can Apparate somewhere else once he's beyond the castle wards. He leaves each day after dinner, and stays out until about 2 in the morning."

I frowned because with a schedule like that, I have NO idea how he can manage to keep up with his homework and Quidditch duties.

"Alright, I'll go to the Hog's Head in a fully covering cloak. As I recall, that's the sort of patron that frequents the place, so I shouldn't raise suspicion. Then, when Orion comes through the floo, I can see if he Apparates away and be ready to stop him with an Anti Apparation ward in place. I'll solve the mystery and discipline him if necessary."

McGonagall smiled faintly at me. "Seeing as he's of age and has permission to leave the castle, I don't think there should be any punishment necessary on my end, I didn't call you here because I think he should be punished, I called you here because I'm concerned that IF something is wrong - or if he's in some sort of trouble - you and Harry would want an opportunity to help him out."

I nodded in agreement. "Thank you, Minerva. I really appreciate this. Orion has always been quiet and a bit secretive. I feel like I am never quite sure how to get him to open up to me, and if he's told any of this to Harry, he must have sworn my husband to secrecy, because Harry hasn't mentioned a word to me."

McGonagall shrugged. "Some children just feel the need to carry the weight of the world on their shoulders, no matter HOW many supportive people they have willing to share the burden. Hopefully, you'll find that it's nothing more serious than a girlfriend you knew nothing about."

I took a moment to think this through, and then sort of bobbed my head side to side as I nodded. "Well, yes, I suppose he's old enough that a girlfriend WOULD be the least of my worries."

She nodded, stood, and shook my hand so that I could leave to implement my plan. It was about 2 or so when I'd gotten her letter, and so now - even despite having some tea at Madam Puddifoots to kill a bit of time, I still have a couple of hours to wait before Orion finishes his dinner and leaves Hogwarts.

About 6 hours after the first email
Dearest Harry,

I am now wearing a fully covering cloak and feeding Morgana as I sip on a Butterbeer and wait for our son to make his mysterious entrance. I've warded this place to the teeth, and so, no matter WHAT might be going on, he and I - and Morgana - will be safe. The Hog's Head looks different than I remember it, NOT that I ever really came in here. It was a shady place and I tended to avoid shady places when I was in Hogwarts, or at least the ones so close to the school.

Anyway, as I was saying, it WAS a shady place, but now, it looks... trendy?? A hell of a lot cleaner and full of patrons actually ordering food and drink like this was an ordinary pub. The waiter tending to me even looked me over and shook his head before mumbling something like: "Those sort STILL think this is that sort of place..."

Curious, I sat back and watched a couple in their twenties dancing to a slow and sensual song on the dance floor - which is also different, as I'm dead certain this place never played a note of music back when we were in school. Nor had a dance floor.

Oh! There's Orion! Hmm... he's not immediately trying to Apparate away, so... Weird... He put on an apron and rushed behind the bar to take an order. Alright... this part is not such a big surprise. He DOES have a talent for mixing drinks. I'm just not sure why he decided to take on a low paying job. If he NEEDED money, A - he has his own business (Orion's Belt Macadamias) and it's doing well, and B - The kind of money he can make part time here is so low that he could probably just ask me for that amount and claim it was so he could buy one of his sisters a present, and I'd give it to him without a second thought.

Thus, I'm really confused right now. I'm going to go ask him, wait... The doors just opened and a LOT of people flooded in. He's so busy right now that I don't want to interrupt him and get him fired if he genuinely needs this job for some reason.

- About 7 hours after the first email

Goddamnit Harry!

So, after waiting for him to help serve the enormous influx of people, I heard THIS interesting tidbit announced over the loud speaker:

"Good evening Witches and Wizards! As you all know, here at the newly remodeled and repurposed Hog's Head, we have a different theme every night of the week to keep you all interested and entertained. Tonight's theme is male dancers - which we affectionately call our Monday Men! Keep in mind that this is NOT the Full Monty, and if you forgot which day it is and were hoping for some female breasts, Titty Tuesday is tomorrow."

I was now intrigued, to say the least. You know how much I love a good burlesque show. I was frankly impressed that someone had the ingenuity and sheer business savvy to turn a more or less run down and unsavory establishment into a real money maker.

As the music for the first act started, I peeked under my cloak to check on Morgana, who was now sleeping soundly in her carrier despite the blaringly loud crowd and music surrounding us. She had one ear pressed to my heart and didn't seem to care about anything else in her slumber. I kissed her precious head before looking up to watch the show.

The first act was well done, but after having seen Bobbie Burlesque, I wasn't entirely impressed. Still, not EVERYONE can be great right from the start.
The next act was promising from the moment the dancer walked onto the stage. He was wearing a fully covering Belly Dancer's outfit. And by fully covering, I mean that it had to be a Dance of the Seven Veils because his head, arms, and stomach were covered by veils. As he performed his dance, and it was VERY well done, he pulled the veils off to reveal a lithe body in a vibrant blue pant/skirt - a sort of shoulder harness providing decoration to his chest. Plus a little swirling body paint.

If he didn't look so young - even with his face covered, he looked barely legal - I MIGHT have been attracted to him. But despite not being attracted to him, I will admit that the boy could DANCE. I was dying to know if he'd been a student at Elena's school.

At the very end of the dance, in which he stripped down to a tiny but fully covering pair of black silk knickers, he FINALLY pulled the veil off his face. IT WAS ORION!!!

I whipped my head to look over at the bar, certain that I was seeing things and he was actually still there mixing drinks, but no! OUR SON was ACTUALLY standing up on a stage, bold as brass and nearly naked, collecting an enormous amount of money for his admittedly excellent dance.

I'm not sure whether to congratulate him on a job well done, or MURDER him for... I don't even know what, to be honest. He's technically of age in the Wizarding World, and so, is not doing anything WRONG, and now that I know it's him, I only have myself to blame for teaching him to dance so well. Who knows? Maybe if I stayed incognito the entire night, his next act will be firedancing.

I'm going to go talk to him and I DON'T CARE if I get him sacked, or worse, embarrass the fuck out of him in front of everyone here.

-

About 10 hours after the first email

Well... I was not expecting that in the slightest. So, after saving the draft of my email I was composing to you, and double-checking that Morgana was still asleep - and only barely glancing at the fit as hell bloke that was now dancing rather crudely on the stage - I marched over to where our son was now standing behind the bar and wiping sweat off with a soft and fluffy white hand towel.

He looked at me curiously as I approached the bar. "Give me a mo and I'll make you a drink," he promised with a happy smile, which made me pause for a full three seconds before pulling the hood down on my cloak so that he could see who I was.

"Care to explain yourself?" I asked with a look that would not allow for any excuses.

"DAD!" He blurted out in astonishment bordering on horror. He flung his hands up in the air as if surrendering, and then waved them back and forth as he stuttered: "I-i-i-it's not what you think!"

My expression darkened. "Oh? So I DIDN'T just see my son strip off on a stage in a crowded pub?"

He flushed a bit but also squared his shoulders and stared me down with determination. "How is that really any different than supporting and encouraging Miles to go up on stage and sing and dance while dressed as a sexy woman?"

"Miles doesn't strip down to his knickers!"

"Maybe not, but he HAS stripped some. I watched a couple of his routines that start out in full shimmering ballgowns only to end up in lingerie," Orion reasoned.
My next point, that Miles is a fully grown adult, remained in my mouth because I knew that he started practicing for his chosen career at 16, and that also, Orion would simply claim that HE was a fully grown adult too. Taking advantage of my slight pause, Orion stated his case.

"Look, it's like I said, it's NOT what you think. Come, I'll show you," he insisted, and before I knew it, I was in the back office. He pointed to a chair on the visitor side of the large desk before sitting in the plush and cozy chair behind it. He then turned the large book on the desk so that I could read it. "This place was losing money so badly that the owner was spending far more to keep the place running than he earned. Back when this place was owned by Aberforth Dumbledore - or so I'm told - he never cared about how much money he made because he only ever bought the place to be near his brother. But Aberforth died a few years back and left the place to the only barkeep that ever worked here longer than a month or two."

I was confused but not unwilling to hear him out. "Alright..."

Orion continued passionately - in fact, probably more passionate than I've ever seen him. "That bloke, Garret Hornsby, also never really cared about earning money. He'd had a bit of a fortune and was an utter drunk. The only thing he actually cared about was having a place where he could drink as much as he liked where others could come and drink and give him a bit of company. Well, eventually, he was so massively in debt because of how much money this place was losing, that Gringott's was threatening to take the place and shut it down for good.

"I just so happened to come in here one day - out of curiosity - when the representative from Gringott's was trying to explain the situation to Mr. Hornsby, and I didn't think it was fair to close down and demolish a perfectly good place with so much potential, just because the bank wasn't getting the money they demanded. So, I offered to buy the place. Suffice it to say that since I was only 16 at the time, I needed to have one of our lawyers come in here and actually deal with the bank and write up all the contracts to add this to the many Malfoy holdings, but I bought it with my own money, I remodeled it with my own money, and from the moment it opened up, it's been MAKING so much money that I've already paid myself back and am considering upgrading by converting the mostly unused Inn portion of the place into mini event venues for private parties and the like."

Since he was busy rapidly trying to fill me in on everything I didn't know, I took the time to look through the book he'd shifted for me to see. It was the business ledger, starting from when he'd bought the place and keeping track of all the income and expenses right up until the previous night as - presumably - Orion doesn't update the book until after the place closes and he's had a chance to count everything up. As he'd just said, his earnings were astonishing and (don't tell Viona I said this) even more lucrative than River's Song AND a few of her lesser earning businesses.

Actually, he was out earning a good half of MY businesses!

I wondered if there was a mistake in the accounting, but after pouring over it for nearly an hour, I could clearly see that he really was doing well, and as much as I hated to admit it, the majority of the income was derived from avid interest in his theme nights. Sighing, I set the ledger aside and looked him in the eyes again.

"Fine, so you own a business. That part I don't have a problem with, aside from you keeping this a secret," I stated with a stern frown. "But WHY do YOU have to do the dancing yourself? You have a talent for the bartending, and you have a few other dancers who clearly entertain the audience. There's no need for you to -"

"To what?" He demanded fiercely. "To DIRTY myself? To let unworthy barbarians see my nearly naked body? To WORK a job I can delegate to others? To what, dad?"
I sighed, feeling caught between a rock and a hard place all of a sudden. "To - yes - show off your young and nearly perfect body to a room full of strangers who are going to think that you are SELLING YOURSELF, and might even get dangerous if you tell them no."

He sighed and shook his head. "Dad, I've got this placed warded to the teeth! The first thing I did was hire ward experts to make sure that no violence could be done in this place. I want people to feel safe and HAPPY here. I can't very well offer that without some serious security, can I? And besides, I do have a few actual Security Wizards working here that deal with patrons who get out of hand. Usually, all they have to do is cast a sobriety charm on the troublemaker to restore their reason and get them to calm down, but if that doesn't work, they firmly show them out."

The next hour or so was going over all his security measures. Until I realized that he hadn't actually answered the question.

"Stop," I commanded, holding up a hand. "I don't want to hear another word unless you're explaining WHY you're doing this."

He sighed heavily and ran his hands through his hair - a gesture I've seen you do so many times that I've quite lost count.

"Dad... I don't know how to explain it. All I know is that when I get up on stage and dance, I feel more like myself than at any other time. My mind goes blank and I just FEEL... It's a better feeling than even winning a Quidditch match. And then when I'm not on stage, I get to make people happy by making them the perfect drink. And best of all, I've turned my happiness into a business that I can see me running until I die."

It was my turn to sigh heavily because I had no idea how to argue with that. "Fine... I'm going to go home and - well, finish writing my email to your father, who's almost certainly asleep by this point. He'll likely wake up for a night feeding before I even fall asleep myself, and at that point, I'll be able to talk to him in person. I'm going leave this matter up to him, because I am a businessman, and I'm impressed by this business. I do not think I can separate out the businessman in me long enough to be a good father, and my first reaction as a father is to shut this place down, but then I really can't figure out why because it is a good business, just not..." I shrugged helplessly. Orion nodded in understanding and gave me a hug and a kiss on the cheek before I Apparated home.

-

About 11 hours after the first email

If this was ANYONE else simply running one of the MANY Malfoy businesses, making this sort of income, and doing something they clearly have a passion for, I wouldn't hesitate to support it. So... Why am I having such mixed feeling about this? I once said that I'd support our kids in leaving to explore the universe, so logically, isn't owning a lucrative business right within easy visiting distance a MUCH better alternative?

BAH! Now I'm thinking in circles as I write this. I'm going to sign off and down a mild sleeping potion - since Morgana just had a nice long feed - and hopefully sleep until morning. If you happen to read this during a night feed, and especially if you need help with the babies, feel free to wake me and tell me what to think and feel about this situation.

Love you with every beat of my heart,
Draco
Chapter 121

Chapter Summary

Harry talks with Orion and Draco talks with Robards.

Tuesday May 2, 2017

Love of my Life,

The happiest of eleventh birthdays to our sweet Zaire! His birthday is always a bit different than the routine I keep for the other kids' birthdays. He has been adamant since that first birthday with us that he wanted to be in the kitchen helping me put together his birthday breakfast. So, instead of my usual pancakes (or crepes or waffles or whatever the birthday kid's favorite is) delivered to their bed, I just make sure our cupboards are well-stocked so Zaire and I can whip up just about anything his little heart desires.

He came to the kitchens prepared! I may not be allowed to bring him breakfast in bed, but I still refuse to do anything until I've sung to him. He blushed and let me finish squawking before he told me his new recipe ideas. I'm honestly not sure if I should be thrilled that he's discovered Pinterest, or terrified.

Who am I trying to kid? You ate his breakfast creations this morning; thrilled it is! He decided to do an altered version of french toast. Stuffed French Toast. But what were we going to stuff it with? That was going to be tailored to each individual person. We had a lot of cheesecake stuffed french toast options; strawberry cheesecake, blueberry cheesecake, cherry cheesecake. Some with a cinnamon oatmeal mixture, coconut cream, Nutella, apple pie filling, we even did a peanut butter and jelly stuffed french toast for our little Caelum who has decided PBJ variations are the only thing he's willing to eat right now.

Zaire even made a few ... irregular ... choices and put them in stasis for you. Obviously he made you a caviar one, a lemon-garlic, but I have to say I surprisingly really liked the one he made for you with Gruyere and mustard greens. I wasn't expecting to like the savory options, but there was something about that one that was delicious!

Zaire and I didn't make any requests, we just took a square of each type. He and I having a taste-testing platter as our breakfast. I have to say the blueberry cheesecake with the blueberry compote? Mmmmm, might be my new favorite breakfast. I could have honestly just eaten a bowl of the blueberry compote with a spoon and been a happy camper!

I expected that after breakfast, he would pick something to go do. Maybe something with trains, perhaps a show, maybe there was a new movie out that he was interested in going to see. No, he wanted to spend the day the way we spent the morning, trying out new recipes. I'm always up to spend a day in the kitchens, so I certainly wasn't averse to the idea. I just knew at some point you'd need to have an elf pop you in with us since you can't find the place on your own. That spell is still the weirdest use of magic I think I have ever or will ever hear about. Imagine being so fragile in your feelings of superiority that you had to set a spell to disallow your heir from finding the kitchen.
You have some weird arse ancestors my love.

He and I had an amazing day in the kitchen cooking up a storm. It was a bit of an experience for me, I enjoy cooking, but my talent and preferences lie in baking. The morning's french toast was the closest we got to baking today. I used a lot less fruit than usual, and I think my hands are permanently tinged green from all of the vegetables I chopped, diced, minced, julienned, and whatever other way Zaire ordered me to do.

We had quite a few visitors coming in and out; you and Morgana came in a few times, the feisty foursome must have put up a charm of some sort, because they perfectly timed their visits for when some new creation was fresh out of the oven. Gabriel and Dylan spent most of their day in a warded play pen in the kitchen. Jaz spent quite a bit of the day with us as well; Zaire and I were blasting music while we cooked, it must have been really loud or really bass heavy because Jaz said the vibrations drew her into the room.

I'm so glad the house elves let us destroy the place! I'm even happier that they allowed us to clean up as well. Remember the first time I used the Manor kitchens to cook? I tried cleaning up after myself and I thought Muffy was going to have a heart attack. After a day of experimentation in there, I would have felt horrid leaving that mess to someone else to clean.

I was surprised by two of our visitors.

Shortly after dinnertime, Orion floo'ed home and had his elf pop him into the kitchens. He was certain you had told me all about his business venture and he wanted the lecture from me sooner rather than later. "I know you have a lot to say Dad, just get it over with so I don't have to worry about it for weeks. I barely slept last night when I got to bed, I was so worried about how you were going to take the news."

Well I am quite disappointed in his behavior and I told him so! "I just can't believe you Orion. I'm shocked and a little hurt." His handsome face crumpled. "I thought your father and I raised you better than this."

He straightened his spine and began yelling. "Now wait just a damn minute! You've spent a lifetime telling me to do what I love and be who I am! This is something I'm good at, something I love, and who I am!"

After a few false starts, I managed to interrupt him. "Of course you're good at it, and you're stubborn and self-assured enough to only do something you love. I raised you to know all these things about yourself, but I also raised you to know that there is nothing you could do that would ever change my love and support of you. You are an adult. You are brilliant. You have a mind for business. You've turned into quite the handsome young man who seems to feel comfortable in your own skin. Why in Merlin's name did you think you had to hide this from us?"

"Wait, what? That's what you're upset about? Not the stripping or the dancing?"

I could not help laughing. "Ori, Ori, Ori, Ori ... I helped Miles become one of the most successful Drag Queens in the country. I've performed in charity burlesque shows. I am a gay man with an unhealthy obsession with musical theatre. You think you can shock or offend me by stripping down to your shiny knickers in a bar? How long have you known me?"

I don't think I've ever seen him at a loss for words before. "But, but, erm, uh, Dad seemed upset about it!"

"Oh my sweet boy, your other father is one of the proudest nudists I've met in my life. He thinks everyone should strip off and shag indiscriminately however they want, but when it comes to his babies, he is remarkably a pure-blooded prude. His instincts war with each other; he wants you to have no shame in any of your desires, but also wants to keep you an infant for all time." I just shook my head in amusement. "He's an enigma that I still don't fully understand after almost two decades together, and I hope I never fully understand him, keeps the magic alive." I winked at him.

He just rolled his eyes at my antics. "So... you're really not upset? I'm not going to get a lecture."

"The only lecture you deserve is the one where I tell you how disappointed I am you didn't feel comfortable telling us. I'm proud of you, it sounds like you're running a fantastic business that fulfills you." That's when I remembered something else. "But I DO need to ask, your father said you did a dance with veils and I haven't been able to find my old belly dancing veil costume in probably a year. Did you take my costume?!!?"

"Oh, look at the time! I have to get to the bar in time to set the safety wards for the Tuesday night entertainers! Love you!" And off he popped.

The other surprising visitor you already know about, since his discussion was something I knew you'd want to be involved with, so we had you meet us in the sun-room. The timing worked out perfectly anyway, it was about time for the almost triplets' bedtime feedings. I can feed any of them in wraps or on a chair in the kitchen when needed, but their bedtime feedings I like really topping off their tanks as well as cozy snuggling to get them deeply sleepy.

So you, me, the three babies, and Kingsley all settled in for a long discussion. I don't need to do a sentence by sentence reiteration, you were there and your pregnancy brain fog has cleared itself up! But the gist of it was, today was the nineteenth anniversary of the Battle of Hogwarts. Nineteen years Draco. Holy shite! How are we that old? I wasn't even nineteen when it happened, that means I've officially lived longer without the war than I lived during the war.

Wow.

Anyway. With this year being nineteen, that means next year will be twenty. The ministry is planning an enormous celebration. A week long festival almost. There will be days devoted to celebration, one full day devoted to mourning and remembering those we lost, and different events honoring the changes that have happened within the wizarding world since the end of the war. They want to do some event at Hogwarts honoring the new studies, things like extended muggle and wizarding studies as well as the rituals. They want to do something at Unity and/or Traditions to honor the changes to the lives of wizarding children.

And they want to close out the week long festival with a massive gala. Which they want me to do one of the speeches. Ugh, there's just no way I can say no to any of this can I? I like the idea of helping plan for every aspect of this celebration. I think it's a great thing that twenty years later our community is ready to celebrate without a dark cloud hanging overhead. But do I really have to give a speech?

I do, don't I?

It's a year away, but there's so much to plan and organize that Kings wants to start the process already. It seems so far away, but you and I both know how quickly time just flies by. It will be here before we know it.

Now I'm suitably sleepy from this long day. I'm ready to climb into bed with my soft, warm, cozy husband and our three smallest babes, and drift off to see you all in my dreams.
Forever Yours,
Harry

Wednesday May 3rd
My favorite person in the world,

I've had a rather busy day. I mean I'm sure you have too, as you spent it in your stables with our younger children and Oliver, caring for a bunch of new arrivals. I'm not saying either of us was busier than the other, just that we were both busy in different ways.

For me, it was taking Zaire out to finalize his purchase. See, I'm not certain when - it was probably during those months of brain fog that I can only just barely remember, but I managed to hire our Zaire an excellent assistant/manager for his restaurant. She's nearly as brilliant and capable as our Pippa, but she does have one major flaw...

She can't actually LEGALLY sign paperwork for Zaire. Thus, now that he and Callista have found the perfect place for his restaurant, they need me to come in and inspect it and actually buy the place. I looked it over with a critical eye, and more importantly, looked over the professional inspection reports to see what needs to be fixed, and what planning permissions the place has. After verifying that everything was in order, and also seeing why Zaire loved the place so much, I signed the papers and sealed the deal.

Now Callista just has to get a few bids on the work that needs to be done and come to me to look them over and ensure that they're making the right decisions at every step. Until then, let me just say that Zaire picked the place because it has a large area for a top-of-the-line kitchen AND a nice area in the back that he can use for an OUTDOOR kitchen. After all, some of the best traditional methods of cooking ARE outdoors.

The seating area is spacious, and again, there's a perfect place to the side of the restaurant that will allow for outdoor seating when the weather cooperates. I'll bet that we can work a few subtle charms into the area to extend the outdoor seating experience to not-quite-as-perfect weather days as well.

But because I have insisted that Zaire do this the right way from the very beginning, it's exactly as he said when he pitched the idea, it's going to take months to get everything ready for the Grand Opening, and so, he's taking as much time as he needs to be confident that his vision will turn out as planned.

I'm rather proud of him!

After dropping him back off at home, I received an Owl from Robards asking if I had a bit of time to meet with him, and so, I double-checked that I had everything I needed for Morgana, before heading through the floo. As it happens, Jaz was a tiny bit mopey that I haven't truly spent any time with her since coming back from Switzerland, that she wanted to know if she could come with me. Unable to say no to those gorgeous pleading eyes, I brought her with me.

Robards took Morgana's presence on my chest in stride - probably assuming that an infant wouldn't understand a word we said anyway - but was rather flustered by Jasmine's presence. He tried to be subtle as he indicated her, mouthing something like: But we're going to be discussing MURDER.

Jaz smiled at him softly and shook her head in amusement. "I'm deaf, but I can read lips, so I probably understood that better than my dad."
I stroked her hair lovingly and gave her a kiss on the cheek. "Do you want to stay by my side whilst I talk murder with Mr. Robards?" I signed and asked aloud at the same time. "Or would you prefer to wait out in the hall?"

"I don't mind staying," Jaz signed at me. "You've talked about your cases enough that I've 'heard' about murder before. I like knowing that you do what you can to help bring justice."

I smiled at her and nodded before signing: "Alright, you can stay, but if you start feeling even a tiny bit upset, please go out in the hall and wait for me there, yeah?"

She nodded. "I will daddy, I promise."

I turned my attention back to Robards. "Harry and I have never believed in shielding our children from the harsh realities of life. Oh sure, we do regret a few things, such as bringing our older kids into an active war zone when they were too young to fully understand it, but that's how we got our Jaz here, so she knows full well that life isn't always sunshine and daisies."

"It's your kids," Robards said with a reluctant sigh. Then he seemed to go into Head Auror mode and ignore her presence altogether. "So, I just wanted to give you an update on that case in which someone tried to frame you. I did that digging I talked about, and I did it MYSELF - since I didn't want to risk missing something a rookie might deem unimportant. Well..." He sighed and ran a hand through his hair in frustration. "I found something alarming. The entire record belonging to Imogen Hughes is missing."

I gave him my infamous raised brow. "Oh?"

He nodded, sighed again, and then pressed on. "See, our records are a... bit of a mess, to be honest. We've always had a rather successful system in which paper records are kept in a massive and secure vault. Records can be accessed by summoning them using the right magical code word, unless they're restricted - which these weren't. The codes are kept in a log that everyone can access. There's an Archive Witch to maintain the security of the restricted files. She stays in the secure vault at all times during the hours its open, and only has two trusted assistants helping her."

"I know all of this," I stated in puzzlement.

He nodded in understanding. "I was just reminding you because when I went looking for HER file, I decided to take a look at YOUR file, to see if there might be any other clues in it, as the killer CLEARLY knew of your relation to Miss Hughes. Well, your file - which IS restricted and requires a rather high clearance to access - is ALSO missing."

"What?" I couldn't help but stupidly ask.

"That's exactly what I thought," Robards stated in amusement. "See, I had my suspicions that whoever wanted to frame you must be, erm... an insider with some sort of vendetta. That said, that could be ANYONE in the Ministry, or even someone NOT in the Ministry with a higher up contact in the Ministry. The thing that concerns me is that when someone wants to access a restricted file, not ONLY do they have to request it from the Archive Witch, but they are only ever given a copy - to protect the original - AND that access is recorded in a massive log. SO it should have been a simple matter for me to find out who was the last person to access - or even request access, whether granted or not - your file. And if that same person ALSO requested Miss Hughes' file, then I'd have a fairly good idea who the killer is."

"But things obviously weren't so simple," I stated with a sigh.
"Correct," he confirmed. "As I'd already said, the files SHOULD have still been there if requested, but were MISSING. Thus, there's no record of who accessed them as they must have been stolen. I'm still working out how to catch the thief."

Even though I knew it was a long shot, I had to ask. "And you're certain that it's not the Archive Witch?"

"She's too loyal to the department to do that, but yes, we subjected her to questioning under Veritaserum, and she passed. She's innocent and is ALSO very irate that her security has been breached," Robards assured me. Then frowned. "But my point in all of this was that I assumed that the killer must have somehow altered Miss Hughes' magical signature, since her dead body didn't match records in our archive, but NOW that I know that her record is missing, there wasn't anything TO match, and thus, her murder may well have gone unsolved - her IDENTITY unknown - if YOU hadn't recognized her. Thus while I DO still believe that this was a bad attempt to frame you, it's being done so subtly - and frankly confusingly - that I can't even begin to GUESS who is doing it or why."

"So that blood trail you were tracking turned up nothing?" I asked in concern.

"Not a thing. It... well, we assume the killer must have hidden behind powerful anti tracking wards, because the vibrant trail vanished suddenly, and we haven't been able to get the spell to lock onto anything again."

I held out my hand. "Alright, hand it over. You obviously want me to get a vision off something so you can solve the case."

He shook his head. "Well, I do, but I don't HAVE anything for you to get a vision from."

I sighed in disappointment. Jaz patted my face. "Cheer up daddy, you'll catch him eventually."

I smiled at her and gave her a kiss on the cheek. "Thanks love." Then I looked at Robards again. "What about the other murder? The one where the two men were running and fighting and the murderer bit the victim's tongue right out of his mouth?"

He smiled, looking relieved that he had at least one case solved. "Yeah, that one turned out to be rather easy. We followed your vision to where it went dark and found the body of the murderer. He'd basically gotten mortally wounded during the fight and died while trying to flee the scene of the crime. Thus, as tragic as that was, both men are beyond our jurisdiction."

I sighed, also feeling a bit relieved. "At least that's one less insane murderer on the loose."

Robards nodded in agreement. "There's that."

After that, I stood up and shook his hand. "Good afternoon."

Jaz was adorably precocious as she also shook his hand and quite solemnly - in her distinctive deaf 'accent' - said: "Good afternoon, sir."

Proud of her, I brought her home so that we could play with Morgana and just talk until it was time for dinner.

You are my sunshine,

Draco
Chapter 122

Chapter Summary

Harry is worried about the missing files, and Eris receives an unexpected invitation.

Friday May 5, 2017

The Beat of My Heart,

Our little Queen is a full month old today. It's been an entire month since she was born! If it were up to you she'd probably be two months at this point and if we'd left it up to her she'd probably still be in there. I think her being a month old is a lovely compromise. She's already grown and changed so much. There's something about knowing she's our last baby-baby that is making me painfully aware of how quickly she's growing up.

I know, I am absolutely ridiculous, she is literally a month old, she's not heading off to Hogwarts any time soon. But I blinked and she's already been here a month. Her brothers have been here over a month and a half. That just happened yesterday in my mind! I'm terrified to blink and then all of a sudden the three of them will be fully grown and left the house.

I'm working myself up again aren't I?

Well, it took me less than a month to get that little girl wrapped around my finger! And by that I mean she's had me wrapped around HER teeny tiny fingers since the moment I knew about her and she's finally realized that I am a worthy enough minion to be allowed to worship her. It's really a win-win for everyone involved; I get my little girl to love her Daddy Harry, Morgana gets a dedicated minion to have at her disposal, and you occasionally get to put her down and sleep while someone else feeds her.

I have absolutely zero shame, I feel nothing but pride at being considered worthy of such royalty! It's probably her doing that we named her after the Queen of Magic herself, with all of her accidental magic and the fact that as soon as I said her name out loud I KNEW it was the one - I bet she imperiused me from in the womb. I'm not even susceptible to imperius!

We've had a Princess and now a Queen, I think this little one is going to have quite the personality just like her big sister Viona. I know exactly what I want and when I want it and why don't I have it already? Gods I love a strong woman, I'm so proud of how strong our young women are becoming. With all of the amazing female role models in their lives, how could they be anything but?

Uh, speaking of women in their lives ... why can't Zaire's Callista legally sign for anything? Is it just because he's a minor and only his parent or guardian can sign for things? Or is there some reason she can't sign for things? Is SHE a minor? Or is she like in witness protection and so her name isn't her real name and for legal purposes she shouldn't be signing official paperwork with an alias? Dude, did you hire an undercover spy to manage our son's restaurant?

Ok, I think I have been running all these Auror cases around in my brain too much because I am taking tiny information and trying to find hidden subtext and clues when it's most likely that she just can't sign things because he's a minor.

But speaking of the current Auror stuff. I have about a million and one questions. I tried to keep my nose out of it, but dammit you're my business and this is about you so I'm making it my business. If you want me to butt out just say the word, but then maybe you should stop giving me so much information about the cases you're working.

I know that you and I rarely shield our children from much. We try not to shove their innocent noses into things much too adult for them, but like you said, when we brought half of them to a war zone, it's hard to summon the energy to check out movie ratings. But my concern with Jaz being aware of the current situation is how connected this is to the people who matter most to her. While the cases you work are very real, and the victims are family and friends and loved ones of real people, they're not always real to us. But if you're being framed for something, and your (distant) cousin is being murdered, then maybe this one hits a bit close to home and maybe we should try to keep Jaz out of the line of info.

Also, I think people underestimate her ability to understand a situation, between her ability to read lips and the fact that not hearing means she relies even more on body language and subtext, maybe she's picking up TOO MUCH of what's happening.

Anyway, I trust you, I'm not mad, I just thought I would give you a bit to think about that you may not have thought of before. At this point, it might be a bit too late to put that horse back in the barn.

So, aside from our daughter, I did have some questions, comments, concerns, etcetera over what's happening.

I know our Auror force isn't completely incompetent, so I have to assume the obvious suspects in Imogen's murder have already been cleared right? Like her douchey step-father maybe? We've surpassed obvious and we've moved onto the perp is not obviously connected to her.

We're looking at someone who didn't want information on her being found and took her file out of the ministry. Despite heavy warding and a witch who's apparently married to her job, this guy managed to get around that. But Imogen's file is low priority, this person managed to get your file. So we're talking someone who's either extremely magically powerful to cover their tracks OR someone high enough up in the ministry to get away with it. Any obvious hatred towards you? Mediwitch? Someone you sicced Amala on? Someone whose robes you insulted? Robards?

My other question ... who else's files are missing? Because it seems unlikely that they would have gone to all that trouble to take exactly two files, one heavily classified and one that is seemingly unimportant in the grand scheme of things. Is anyone else involved with the Aurors missing their file? Any other cases you've assisted on missing their file? Do I have a file? Is it missing?

I had better head back out to the stables. I left both Dylan and Gabriel out there with Ollie so I could make lunch .... and write to you. Shhh, no one else needs to know I'm multitasking!

I have to thank you for letting Ollie come stay here. I just haven't realized how much I've missed having close friends nearby. We see Ron pretty darn often for how far away he lives, and Neville and Charlie hang out all the time (especially since Alice has discovered we have ponies!) but they all have families and jobs and some of them live in Russia. It's just been so great really catching up and getting to know Oliver all over again.

You're just the most amazing husband who's ever existed. Now come wake up and have lunch with us!
Friday May 5th
My beloved husband,

The first thing I did upon waking today was check my computer and read your email while feeding Morgana her bottle. She was too eager to eat to wait for me to get out of bed for any reason - even go to the loo! So, while I was still in bed, I realized you had an excellent point and sent this Insta-owl to Robards:

Robards, my husband wants to know; who else has their file missing? For example, is HIS file missing? He didn't say it, but it brings to my mind the fact that other missing files COULD be suspects... or they could be potential victims if word gets out that I'm not even a person of interest. Curiously,

Draco Malfoy

The moment Morgana indicated that she was full by turning her tiny little button nose up at her bottle, after burping her, I managed to get to the loo, and then skipped the majority of my morning routine so that I could join you for lunch. I thought that you meant you, the littles, and Oliver, but I probably should have realized that Zaire, Eris, Eric, and their baby Luka, plus a few of my siblings and my parents, AND Parker were all at the table eating a nice lunch.

I gave you a kiss and sat my alarmingly plump rear end (I must have gained weight in my arse while pregnant, and it's refusing to go away like it should now that I'm NOT pregnant) in the chair next to yours. Seeing Zaire reminded me about your question, so I told you that once the restaurant exists, Callista will be able to sign any and all paperwork as the manager, but that right now, she can't sign the paperwork because Zaire is a minor and technically can't OWN anything, and so, it's all in my name for now. Hence me being required to buy the property and insisting on reviewing the bids for remodeling and the like.

Speaking of, Zaire was actually surprised that we didn't just hire Greg and Millie outright, and I told him that's because they've been busy with other work to the point that I'm not sure they'd have time, but he sent them an Owl asking if they were interested in taking a look. They responded that they were, and so, will probably take the job.

Anyway, I think I was rambling on about the various things that Callista (hmm... I wonder what it would be like to ACTUALLY hire a spy...) can and can't sign, when an Owl arrived. Eris took the letter with an expression like she had no idea who would be writing her via your hybrid muggle-magic post office. She petted the delivery owl and gave him a treat, his maroon ribbon and the gold medallion bearing your post office's insignia assuring us that he didn't need payment for the delivery. Happy enough with his treat, he flew off and we all turned to look at Eris.

She was scrutinizing every millimeter of the rather plain envelope, but it held no clues other than an indeterminate return address. Curious, but also looking rather suspicious, she opened the envelope and pulled out a rather fancy and ornate looking invitation. She barely had time to speed read it when she was already gasping and squealing, leaping out of her seat (good thing Eric was holding Luka) and running around the room while pumping her fists in the air.

She thrust the invitation into my hands, still squealing. "Daddy, read this to me so that I know I'm not seeing what I want to see!"
Clearing my throat, I read: "Dear Misses Eris and Hazel Malfoy, we here at London Fashion Week have consistently been impressed with your work and would like to cordially invite you to be part of our show this year, held Friday September 15th through Tuesday September 19th. Please respond at your earliest convenience if this opportunity interests you."

"OF COURSE WE'RE INTERESTED!!!!" Eris shouted, now doing a bit of a victory dance next to us.

"Congratulations love!" You and my mother cheered in unison.

"I've got to floo to Hogwarts and tell Haz!" Eris cried out in a tone that implied this was a life or death situation.

"You might want to consider changing before you go," my father remarked dryly, pointing out the fact that she was basically in an oversized rumpled track suit.

"Salazar's nappy beard! I CAN'T be seen in this!!!" She blurted out in horror before rushing off to change - presumably.

Eric held up Luka and kissed him. "Looks like we're waiting for mommy right here, huh little man?" Then he looked over at you. "What's all this about a fashion week?"

You chuckled. "I guess Eris must not have mentioned it, but she and Hazel own their own Fashion Label and have been making clothes aimed at teens and preteens since..." You paused to think this over.

"Shortly after going to Hogwarts?" I murmured, not exactly certain either, since it FEELS like they've been doing it since they were born.

You must have decided that kissing me was more important than figuring it out exactly, because you leaned over and got lost in kissing me until someone groaned and insisted that we NOT ruin their lunch. It was probably Zaire, as he's definitely in that age now where parental affection is 'gross,' hahaha!

A tiny, barely heard gasp from my other side caught my attention, making me feel a tiny bit bad for a moment when I realized that Oliver looked like he was desperately trying to hide falling apart inside at the sight of our easy affection. My guess is that he's still mourning his husband, despite everything that happened, and seeing us be so in love and lovey-dovey with each other must trigger his grief.

I was only half finished eating, but since Morgana was happily laying with her brothers in the bassinet next to you, I pretended that I was finished eating. "Oi, Oliver, I've been meaning to show you something, come on."

He looked extremely relieved to have an excuse to escape the crowd. "Er, yeah, sounds good."

I led him out into the yard and walked in silence until he managed to regain his composure. Then I patted him on the back and pointed out over the North Fields. "Harry probably told you this, but the North Fields are extensive and good at maintaining privacy. The kids have taken to riding the Thestrals there. It's the perfect place to play Quidditch, don't you think?"

He looked confused bordering on utterly baffled for a long moment. "Er... yeah, I suppose it is."

"Harry and I only play the very occasional Seeker's Game, and so, don't need a full Quidditch Pitch, but we do have everything we need as the kids like to play during the summer. I was going to set it up in the middle of June, when they're close to coming home, but I can set it all up now, and you can just challenge the Feisty Foursome to an interesting game involving sheer chaos and invisible horses, any time you just feel like having a bit of fun."

It took him a moment to think this over, but then he smiled a tiny but genuine smile. "Yeah... I think I'd like that. It's been AGES since I played."

"Maybe Harry and I can even be persuaded to join in," I suggested, not entirely certain I WANTED to play quidditch so soon after having a baby, but that said, I DID just complain about my arse getting fat, so maybe I SHOULD be playing Quidditch whenever I get the chance.

That said, I spotted you headed off to the Stables and Apparated myself over to you so that I could Apparate you to the bed in our playroom. You like pretending to protest, or at least I THINK you're pretending, but your protests always stop the moment I get your pants off and wrap my hot mouth around your shaft. I may be sympathetic to Oliver's plight, but that is NOT going to stop me from having my way with you whenever I want.

Would you like to swing on a star, carry moonbeams home in a jar, and be better off than you are? Draco

P.S. I suppose this never got mentioned before, or perhaps you forgot, but Imogen once sent me a package that she had received from my dearest Grandmama – after she was no longer staying in Unity House. Let's just say that the package immediately went into the secret dark vault, and I am quite certain that her douchy-step-father CANNOT be a suspect in Imogen's murder.

P.P.S. What in the bloody hell did you do with Morgana???

PHEW! She's sleeping in the bassinet with her brothers under the watchful eye of my mother.
Chapter 123

Chapter Summary

Harry has some interesting news and Draco thinks it's the perfect time to celebrate.

Monday May 8, 2017

My Heart,

I just got home from a most interesting meeting. Possibly a hugely interesting meeting. One could even say a life-changing meeting. But I am not sure how I feel about it. I'm not sure how you'll feel about it. I'm not sure how our children, both young and old, will feel about it. To sum up: interesting meeting, help tell me how to feel. I'm honestly torn, it's something I think I'd be really good at, something I'd find fulfilling, but it would completely upend our entire lives!

Not that a big decision of mine hasn't ever upended our lives. I mean, our decision to build Unity Houses across the world certainly altered our lives from our initial plan. And our multiple decisions over the years to add to our family through adoption or biologically has certainly put us on a path I don't think either of us expected. And I suppose when I think about it, even the negative things that have happened in our lives still ended up having a huge positive impact as well. I mean, going to build a Unity in a war zone helped countless lives and got us our perfect Jasmine.

Our most recent trip to California ended up having our teen daughter fall pregnant and catch an STD, but it also gave us our sweet Luka, our wonderful Atreyu, and the consequence we planned for - Hazel feeling right in her own body.

I woke up this morning thoroughly exhausted and refreshed from our weekend. Exhausted because I pushed my body harder than I think I have since having the boys, but it was all completely fun family time, so it emotionally recharged and refreshed my attitude. I got a solid run in both Saturday and Sunday mornings, of which Zaire joined me for both and the feisty foursome joined me for about forty-five minutes of my Sunday morning run. And then we spent both days thoroughly getting use out of the Quidditch space.

I think the kids had a blast and Oliver was thrilled at the fun we had getting his mind off of things, but also overwhelmed by just how boisterous our family can get. Good thing the really competitive children are off at Hogwarts right now. Can't you just imagine the competitions we'll have when he goes toe-to-toe against Vivi or Ori? Terrifying thought that.

As I was doing some stretches, trying to alleviate a little of the muscle soreness from overdoing it on a broom all weekend, I got a message from Minnie. She wanted to know if I had time today to come in and talk with her. I had nothing planned, just the usual taking care of our small army of children. The littlest set of almost triplets were fed and wide awake at that point, so I decided to just wrap them all up and take them on their first out of utero trip to Hogwarts. I figured with how tired you probably were from the weekend, that we would be back well before you woke up.

I was not expecting to spend roughly ten hours with Minerva! It's a good thing I left you a note on your nightstand letting you know I had taken the babies, or you may have flown into a hysterical panic. As it was, Muffy popped in to the Headmistress' office around two in the afternoon to take Morgana off my hands. She honestly hadn't even started fussing, but it's probably the longest YOU'VE been without her since ... well since she's existed, I suppose. She was doing just fine as she had her favorite food source at her constant disposal and her little/big brothers to smile and coo at.

Muffy proceeded to have two of our other elves pop in to bring Dylan and Gabe to you as well.
They'd been stuck in this meeting with me since early morning, so they probably enjoyed having new faces to look at and new sights to vaguely see.

My meeting may not have actually needed to take a full ten hours, although even if we had immediately gotten down to the business at hand, we would have needed a solid six hours I'm guessing. The beginning was quite a bit of time spent letting Minnie coo and cuddle and love on our babies. Well, two of them, Morgana had very little interest in being touched, giving a shriek when Minnie extended her hand towards her. Luckily, she is one of the rare adults who takes children's preferences into account and immediately pulled back at the shrieking. "I'll just admire her from here I suppose!" Laughing at the reality of having another stubborn Malfoy child eventually become her responsibility nine months out of the year.

Dyl and Gabe were much more free with their affections, giving her all sorts of smiles; Gabe even giving her some adorable baby babble. Eventually, our talk turned to how our other children are faring at Hogwarts. Highly skilled in everything they love, less so in things that disinterest them, the usual for our stubbornly brilliant children.

Sirius in particular, for all that he looks like you, is quite the stereotypical Gryffindor. Apparently he sees no need to give any effort in potions as "I have so many potions masters in my family, when will I ever need to know how to brew my own pepper-up?" No amount of detentions or stern talking-to's will change his mind or get him to give any more than bare minimum effort.

Zwei on the other hand, is also not doing particularly well in potions, but his is due to his complete inability to sit still long enough to stick with a single brew from start to finish. He tries so hard, he really wants to learn, but he says there are too many interesting distractions and his arms and legs literally won't stay still long enough.

I know I should really be a more stern parent but honestly, these kids are required to sit still for much too long. I can't blame him for needing to feel his muscles pull and stretch and do what they're supposed to be doing. He was raised with an entire forest at his disposal to run through, climb around, and explore. He's not going to do well sitting still for two hours just stirring and chopping. Even at home when he helps me cook or bake, he generally does it standing, and often jumps around in between steps and stages. It's not completely unheard of for him to actually do cartwheels from one end of the kitchen to the other while waiting for me to finish stirring so he can add the next ingredient.

Not that I blame the potions' professor. Cartwheels in a classroom full of bubbling cauldrons doesn't exactly shout safety!

Orion is doing well in all of his classes and in Quidditch despite how much he's overextending himself running his own business in the evenings. You didn't give him the illegal time-turner, did you?

Viona ... oh my Princess ... my sweet Vivi. She is doing great in the studies where she's basically a TA with the authority to teach and instruct her classmates. Luckily, being a seventh year, there aren't many classes she's forced to take if they don't interest her, but the few classes that are required that she couldn't care less about? Not so good. The funny thing is, she's feisty and a bit argumentative, constantly asking the professors that obnoxious arsehole kid question of: "When are we ever going to need this?" But when it comes time for exams, she's acing every one.

I think we may have made a mistake letting these kids get so damn smart!

Haz is doing well enough, certainly not a Ravenclaw trying to learn as much as possible, completely content to do what's required and focus the rest of her time on her loved ones and her preferred activities. Each of the kids popped into Minerva's office at some point while I was there just to say hi except for Hazel. I guess since Eri came on Friday to tell her about Fashion Week, she's spent every spare moment sketching. No time for her old man! Kids these days, I tell ya!

So, after cooing at babies, catching up on our children's antics, and visiting a few moments here and there with aforementioned children, Minerva finally got down to business.

When I get home and snuggle up with you, I can tell you all the specifics that we spent hours hashing out. And just know that even with that much negotiation and discussion, I haven't given her a definitive answer. I can't make a decision this big without you.

Minerva McGonagall, Headmistress of Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry has extended an official job offer to me. At the end of this school year, the current head of the Muggle Studies Department, Head of Gryffindor House, and Advanced Flight Instructor, Professor Merle Collins is retiring. With my own mostly Muggle upbringing, my time spent creating Traditions, and the sheer amount of time you and I have spent traveling the world in both Muggle and Wizarding areas, Minnie thinks I would make a great Muggle Studies Professor. She says I'm the perfect blend of being Pureblooded enough to not alienate those kids raised exclusively in the Wizarding World while being Muggle enough to not scare off the Muggleborn.

It would require we either move completely into Hogwarts, or at the minimum, I would need to spend three overnights per week at the school. If I were to accept the Gryffindor Head of House position, I would need to be there full time. But accepting the professorship is not reliant on also accepting the Head position.

Alright, now that I finally wrote all of that out, I think I will go for a run. Hopefully, by the time I've run off the anxiety, you'll have read this and I can come find you to talk. Maybe in the Onsen? With a glass of wine?

Yours,
Harry

Monday May 8th,
Onsen and wine,

You've got two of my favorite words right there!

So, before I get into your meeting and our chat in the Onsen, which was near constantly interrupted by questions from the middle seven, let me just tell you something I forgot to mention in the Onsen. At one point earlier today, I'd say around 4 or so, I had just finished up feeding Morgana while the elves fed the boys, and I had my grandbaby cheetahs in here.

It was SO freakin' cute, Harry!

With me and the elves here to magically contain the young cheetahs if necessary, I let them smell and rub up against our babies. The boys seemed to absolutely love it, making happy noises and trying to grab the cheetahs' fur in their tiny fists. Morgana was ambivalent at first, seeming to warm up to them after a few minutes. She even smiled a bit! But then she must have had enough because she grunted unhappily, looking like she was going to start wailing, but I picked her up and calmed her down before she could even start. I ordered the elves to take my grandbabies back outside to their mother, who has been taking her duties as a mum seriously, hunting our local wildlife population aggressively to feed her babies, even though we feed them more than plenty.

Now that my brain fog has cleared up, I'm going to have to spend enough time with the cheetahs to get a good feel for their differences in both looks and personality so that I can name them. When they were born, I couldn't concentrate long enough to actually name them, but I think that might actually work in my favor, as now I'll have more to go off of than just baby fuzz.

Anyway, so, back to your meeting. There we were in the Onsen, I'd read your email and summoned an excellent bottle of wine, because in my opinion, this was an excellent reason to celebrate. I actually brought two bottles of wine because I knew our kids would each want about half a glass, and what's a celebration if only two of us are celebrating?

You were already in the Onsen with all the kids, except the three babies that I had with me. (Also minus those still in Hogwarts.) I stepped into the Onsen and kissed you before doing anything else.

"Congratulations," I murmured, kissing you again before pouring out glasses of wine and handing them out. Once everyone had a glass, I clinked mine with yours and toasted: "To new opportunities!"

Our kids are basically used to us doing things like this, and so, didn't really question things too hard, but Oliver looked confused. He tilted his head to the side and frowned. "What new opportunities?"

You blushed. "I didn't want to say anything until I'd had a chance to talk it over with Draco."

I kissed you again. "My wonderful husband has been offered the position of Professor of Muggle Studies and Head of Gryffindor House."

"And Flying Instructor," you added almost shyly.

"So... you'll be AT Hogwarts next year?" Eris questioned, looking rather intensely interested in knowing the answer.

"Well, yeah, IF I accept," you replied with a tilted nod.

Eris started chuckling almost menacingly. "Siri and Zwei are going to HATE having our dad as their Head of House!!!"

"Why?" You asked, looking a bit hurt to hear that.

"Because they won't be able to cause half as much trouble!" She stated gleefully. "Probably a good thing Ori recognized their skill at Quidditch and persuaded the Gryffindor Captain to make them both Beaters, otherwise Zwei in particular might just go crazy with pent up energy."

"What sort of trouble?" I asked in concern.

"Oh... the sort that I won't tell because I'm not a bloody snitch!" Eris informed me matter of factly.

I raised a brow and stared her down, but she wouldn't give in. "I guess you'll just have to find that out for yourself, my love."
You gave me a bit of an intense look, sort of quiet and pensive. "You're talking as if I've already accepted and have packed everything up to move in tomorrow."

"Well," I paused to take your hand and place it over my heart. "I've already proven that I will follow you to the ends of the Earth and back, so if any part of you at all actually wants to do this, I will follow you there too. I actually think it's a bit poetic for our journey through life to lead us full circle back to Hogwarts for at least a little bit. I can do exactly as you suggested and be more involved with our kids until they're old enough to actually attend classes. But we're still going to need all our elves on hand to keep them in line - especially when I'm off taking care of other business."

"Yeah, but what about -"

That was one of those times when the kids asked a bunch of questions and derailed the subject for a bit. Things like: would they be allowed to bring their thestrals, unicorns, and horses with? Would they be able to play tag in the halls between classes? Would Shtara be able to stay in the dorms in Elena's school since she's A: a muggle, and B: already planning to audition for another major play the moment her current one finishes.

Among other things.

After answering that barrage of questions, you managed to finish asking yours. "What about your plans, Draco? You mentioned so many things you might do. How would this work if you actually DID become Minister for Magic - should Kingsley ever actually retire."

"He's been threatening to do it for nearly a decade now and hasn't yet. I really don't think he plans to retire before he dies, and if he does, I may or may not try for his position. That really depends on all the OTHER things I'm doing at the time. If our youngest are less than 5 years old - should he happen to retire - I don't think I would do it anyway, as I would miss out on too many of their firsts. So don't you dare base your decision on the mere possibilities of what I MIGHT do in the future."

"Well, I'm not certain I want to do all three," you demurred, looking solemn. "It feels like I'd be taking on a bit too much."

"So don't do all three," I stated with a shrug. "Pick the one or two that you want to do most and do them."

You smiled and kissed me. "You make it sound so simple."

"It IS simple. Either you want to do it or you don't," I informed you, prompting you to kiss me again. The kids started asking more questions, and you answered them from my arms. Or rather, arm, as I had one curled around you while the other held my glass of wine. You drank your wine as you answered the questions.

I don't know about you, but I notice a light slowly grow in Oliver's eyes. He seemed to be lost in though at first, but after a while, he was staring at you in excitement. "Wait, the Flying instructor is ALSO the one that referees the Quidditch matches and helps the teams learn if they need help, right?"

"Well yeah," you answered with a shrug as you probably assumed he knew that better than you.

"I miss Quidditch so much! And now I'm a bit too old to get back into playing professionally. Maybe I could do something like open up a school to teach flying AND coach junior Quidditch," Oliver suggested, looking nearly on fire with passion now.
You smiled at him. "Or you could just take the position at Hogwarts. I already said I don't want all three, and I think you would be a better fit for Flying Instructor anyway."

He was rather speechless, sort of shaking his head as if he didn't believe that McGonagall would offer him the position anyway. Neither of us could say for sure if she would, so we basically remained quiet but supportive.

Until I unconsciously started pressing kisses to your neck and you tilted your head to give me better access so I could lightly suck on your neck in between kisses. Our kids groaned in disgust, and you turned so that you could kiss me and ask: "Play room?"

"Definitely!" I agreed with a huge grin. "I can congratulate you in any way you like. In EVERY way you like."

"Go set up the play room and I'll get this lot to bed," you said, to which I nodded in agreement and kissed you before Apparating away to set things up. It seems that Morgana didn't notice me leave, still snuggling in the bassinet with her brothers, and so, I not only had the time to set up the play room, but I ALSO had the time to write this email. But now you've just popped into the room, and so, it's time to begin.

Yours in every way, especially love and lust,
Draco
P.S. Hmm... so THAT'S why I haven't seen my time-turner in a while. I didn't even realize it was missing until you mentioned it and I went to look, and sure enough.
Tuesday May 9, 2017

My Own,

Oof! Today was a long day! And a long day on very little sleep at that.

I woke up this morning just KNOWING that I had to get my arse to Hogwarts and accept at least one of the positions. And knowing myself, I had to do it that moment or I was going to completely chicken out. I know how weird and negative my thoughts can get when I spiral. You were on board with whatever I chose, the kids seemed to be on board with ALMOST anything I chose, there are so many positives to this that I needed to go say yes before I worked myself into an awful state.

I took a quick shower instead of a relaxing soak like my sore muscles wanted me to. I didn't even go for my usual run. Just a shower, brushing the teeth, feeding the babies, and heading off to Minnie's office. Don't worry, Muffy forced a banana and a muffin on me so I didn't go hungry. And of course, when I got there, Minnie plied me with tea and biscuits. I also drank plenty of water. Don't worry my love, I am staying well-fed and hydrated, keeping up milk production for three babies is a hungry and thirsty business.

So, I know I kind of went back and forth, not sure if I was going to take any of the offers. I definitely wasn't going to accept anything until I had your emphatic okay, which I got last night for sure. But did I want all three positions? Not so much. And then knowing someone like Ollie, who would definitely be better at flight instructing than I would, was interested? Saying no to the flying was a no-brainer.

Well, again the Headmistress and I had a long discussion about my concerns, my hopes, my preferences. After a LOT of discussion and a bit of negotiation, I officially accepted the position of Professor of Muggle Studies for the upcoming 2017-2018 school year. For the next month or so before this term ends, Minerva wants me to come in a few times per week, sitting in on at least one early (1st-2nd year) class, one mid-range (3rd-5th year) class, and one advanced (6th or 7th year) class. I also need to sit down with him once a week to talk over how he sets up lesson plans and how he's been grading his classes.

Once I officially accepted the position, she invited the retiring professor to the meeting where we discussed specifics for the next six or so weeks. I looked at the current schedule and I can either do four days, with one type of class per day plus prepping, or I can do two days. Since Thursdays happen to have one of each class, I could just do one long day and then a second day for classroom prep, or I can spread it throughout the week. I don't have to do the same schedule every week either, in fact we thought it best if I don't that way I can get to know all the classes and not just the ones that happen to meet that Thursday.

Once the school year is over, they'd like me to be part of the final grading and classroom placements for the upcoming year. Once that is settled, I am free for the rest of the summer hols - besides any preparations I want to make. Obviously I will need to set up my classroom and our living space, but other than that, I can do whatever I'd like until a week before fall term starts up.

So that's that. I'm signed, sealed, delivered. I am an official member of Hogwarts's staff. I'm a teacher Draco! A real professor. I have to get tweed jackets with suede elbows. Maybe a few cardigans for casual Fridays. I suppose I can get teaching robes as well; I probably should for some of the more formal requirements, but that's the brill thing about being the Muggle studies professor, it's almost preferred that I wear cozy Muggle clothes. I should probably avoid ripped denims that show off my lack of pants though!

Once we got all of that settled, Minerva questioned me about the other two positions. I asked her how long I had to make a decision about the Head of Gryffindor House. I told her my concerns, primarily that two of my children are current Gryffindor students - which I think could make things awkward not only for them, but for potential favoritism or inability to look at things in an unbiased way. There are two other staff members who were former Gryffindors, as well as a professor that didn't go to Hogwarts - and so, is not house affiliated - that could fit the position. Minnie's just always had such a soft spot for me that she wanted to offer it to me first. Basically, she thinks my concerns are valid, but is willing to give me until the end of term to make my decision.

Then came the discussion on flying. Gods Draco, you know how much I love flying. I just don't think I'd be the best instructor. I don't think I'd be rubbish or anything, but flying has always come so naturally to me that I worry how I would do with students that are having a harder time. I know how to be supportive, I know how to let kids know that trying is the goal even if they never get off the ground, but how can I possibly understand a child who can't do it? What do I say? "Have you tried just doing it? Maybe my husband can come and bully someone you want to stick up for? That's how I did it."

She spent most of the discussion assuring me I'd be wonderful, while I spent most of it assuring her I wouldn't. Finally she commented, "I just don't know how I am supposed to ignore the fact that you're one of the more brilliant Quidditch players that came through my house? I don't want to play favorites, but between us, you know I want one of my Gryffindors at the helm of Hogwarts' Flying!"

Ooooh, perfect opening for my devious ulterior motives.

"Minnie - Headmistress McGonagall..." Her eyebrow quirked up at my formality. "What if I told you I could give you your Gryffindor Flight Instructor? Not me, it's someone who's much better than I ever was at the instruction portion of flying. I know you'd agree since you were the one to hand out his Captaincy."

"What do you know that I don't know, Potter?" Oooh, she's Potter-ing me, this is getting serious.

"Draco and I recently added to our household by three."

She interrupted with an: "Of course you did, I cooed at their sweet little faces just yesterday."

"No, even more recently than that. I'm sure as Headmistress, you are well aware that one of Parker and Cassie's fathers just passed away?" She nodded for me to continue. "Well, Oliver has been staying with us since the day after the passing, Parker too, and Cassie when she's not been here. I went home and talked to the whole family about my job offers last night, and you should have seen the longing in his eyes as I talked about the Flying position."

That's when Minnie got the most gleeful look I think I've seen on her since I caught that damn snitch in my mouth! "Oh Harry, I do love you so much! That would be perfect. Do you know if he'd be free later today or tomorrow to come in and discuss the position?"

So now, after I get done with this email, I am going to find him to tell him the good news. I have to figure out how to start the conversation though. After last night, I worry me showing up wherever he is and saying 'Hey Ollie, can we talk?' Is probably just going to make him panic.

So... last night was crazy, yeah?

As you were finishing your email last night, you're right, I did pop into the play room at that moment. Your kissing had gotten me ecstatically in the mood. Just being in your arms in the onsen got me in the mood. Who am I kidding? Being anywhere near you puts me in the mood. But especially the fact that you love and support me, the fact that you're the best husband to ever exist would have been enough to get me ready to go.

I wanted you immediately, but I wasn't necessarily in a rush to get to the main event. I didn't even really care what you'd set up, I just walked to where you were sitting and climbed in your lap, kissing you softly and slowly. I'm not sure how long we just stayed that way, no groping hands or grinding hips, just sweet kisses while breathing in each other.

Obviously we were both already naked, but other than that, it was completely innocent kissing.

"Innocent."

Alright, eventually the kissing moved from soft and sweet to sloppy and wet. Eventually, soft arms holding each other turned to roaming hands clutching each other. At some point, the naked hips sitting still next to each other became a grinding dance. Our soft breaths of love became panting moans.

And the silence surrounding us became a shouted, "Shite! Fuck! Hell's bells. I'm so sorry mates. I can't believe I just walked in on the two of you. I know better than to just walk into your room, but this is the play room. I thought play room meant like gobstones, or exploding snap and a chess board, maybe some muggle darts, not this kind of play. I'll just get out of your way; again, so sorry.
I'll not come in here again without knocking. Or ever, sorry I mean I won't ever come into your sex room."

For someone who was stuttering and rambling and apologizing profusely for walking in on "private" sexy times, he certainly wasn't taking his eyes off of us or moving very quickly towards the door. Or moving at all towards the door, come to think of it. I know I'm not always the most observant, but even I noticed that.

"Ollie, I can promise you we're not mad. Look at my cock, for Merlin's sake! Hasn't flagged a bit since you've walked in. You didn't know what we're doing." He nodded as I talked, looked down where I'd gestured, and that's when he started inching towards the door. I gave you a look. One of those looks that married couples give each other that's an entire conversation in a moment, consisting of nothing but eyebrows and subtle smirks.

Once you gave me a short nod, I started talking before he could leave the room completely. "Hey Oliver, I can't help but notice your trousers are a bit tight. And I also couldn't help but notice you can't take your eyes off of what you're seeing. And that you're moving awfully slowly to make your way out of the room. If I didn't know better, I'd say you want to join us."

"I'm not getting in between a married couple! Are you mad???

You decided to make your feelings clear. "Oliver, I assure you that if you'd like to get in between us, we'd very much enjoy that. Or behind one of us, either of us. Or in front. Under. Behind. Really, the positioning is up to you. We've played with others for years." He took two hesitant steps towards us while you kept talking. "You do not have to stay and play with us, but if you think you're up for it, you're more than welcome."

When you said the words 'up for it' is when he hesitated. I could see sadness coming into his eyes where before it was just arousal tinged with embarrassment.

Oh! Of course! He just lost his husband, I can't believe I didn't think of how seeing us together could be hard for him ... and not in the fun way. "Ollie, mate, if you're not ready, don't push yourself. I promise you, if you're interested but not ready, this won't be the only chance to do this. And if you never want to play around with us, it will change nothing about how much we care about you and how welcome you are to stay here as long as you want or need."

He took a deep breath and steeled his shoulders. "I think you're right, I'm not ready to have sex with anyone else right now."

Oh. When he stood straighter and didn't walk away, I assumed this was going somewhere different. "That's completely fine mate, but if you're not going to join or watch, I really do have to ask that you let us get back to things. The idea of playing with someone I've crushed on since I was old enough to know what my dick was for has gotten me a bit desperate!"

He nodded and started to leave when you called out: "You know, leaving or joining in aren't your only options."

Wait what?

Oh...

"You can stay here and watch me turn my Harry here into a desperate mess. He's awfully pretty when he begs. You can just sit there and enjoy the show if you'd like to." You summoned a cozy chair to pull up next to him, he hesitated for half a second before dropping into it.

"Alright, that's that all figured out. Harry Love, turn around and sit your arse back down in my lap facing our Oliver." I complied as quickly as possible, probably completely gracelessly, but I wasn't lying when I said I'd had thoughts of a fit as hell Oliver Wood for decades. "There's a good boy. Do you want the ring, the spell, or do you think you can keep from coming until you're permitted?"

I was definitely going to need help to keep from coming and I told you so.

You put a ring on me, the spell has the effect of keeping me from getting all the way to the edge and maximum desperation, so it seemed like you wanted to really give me a work out. "Now, I'm going to open you up, get you ready to ride me, and you're going to stroke that beautiful shaft for me aren't you?" I nodded, which resulted in a sharp smack to my arse. "Words, Harry James."

"Yes Sir, I can do that for you."

"Much better, but not just for me, right sweetheart? Look at how much our guest is enjoying the show so far." And he was, straining even more against the zipper of his trousers. "You may not be ready to join in, but feel free to get as comfortable as you'd like. Our playroom is your playroom tonight."

Oliver stopped palming himself through the fabric, unbuttoning and unzipping but not removing himself from his pants quite yet.
You began working me open one finger at a time, all the while ordering me to keep stroking myself. Every time you could tell I was getting close - I'm sure I was clenching my arsehole around your fingers - you'd order me to slow down but never to stop. All the while you kept up a litany of filthy orders and sweet praises. You did that thing I love so much, that makes me feel so humiliated, and sexy, and wanted, and perfect, where you talked about me. Around me, like I was a pretty piece of artwork at your disposal.

"Isn't he gorgeous all flushed and stroking himself, hmm? He's perfect, he'll take anything I give him and beg for more. I could shove my entire fist in this arse and he'd take it with a smile. I could leave him desperate for release - and if it's what I wanted - he'd be satisfied. Isn't he just the prettiest little pet you've ever seen?"

Oliver had snuck his hand into his pants to stroke at his own cock while you fingered me open. And when you ordered me to lift up and then had me drop down onto your perfect cock in one smooth slide, he seemingly couldn't handle it anymore and pulled himself fully out.

"Oh my Harry, look how hard he is seeing you riding me. I bet just the sight of it is making your mouth water, hmm?"

"Yes Sir, yes, it looks so good."

"How about you Oliver? I know you're not ready, but you're thinking about it now, aren't you?" He was nodding as you kept talking. "Thinking about his pretty pink mouth wrapping itself around your shaft. He doesn't even have a gag reflex, he sucks better than anyone I've ever known. My little Gryffindor, just goes for it, he's all in when he gets a dick near his mouth."

I was stroking myself lightning fast, hoping maybe just this once I could force myself to come despite the ring. Oliver was picking up the pace as well. But you, you just kept fucking up into me slow and steady.

"You can keep stroking yourself, you can come sitting in the chair watching me fuck him, or you can come over here and finish on him. The choice is yours." Not a single millisecond of hesitation and Oliver was standing up and walking over to the two of us. Once he got about a foot away, it took only three more quick tugs before he was shooting out hot ribbons of cum all over my chest, splattering onto my stomach, a little dripping onto the tight grip I had on my own cock.

You tutted in my ear. "What do we say to Oliver, Harry?"

"Thank you Ollie, thank you thank you, ungh ungh ungh." As I was thanking him, you really started fucking up into me.

"That's it Love, keep squeezing that hole around me. You don't want to be too messy, best clean yourself up." Oh yeah. I started using the hand I wasn't stroking myself with and pulling fingers full of his cum up to my mouth. Moaning around the bitter wetness.

I was starting to hit the point of hysteria. "Please Master, please please Sir, let me cum please. I need it, I want to come for you. For both of you. Please!"

You slammed into me harder and faster. "I'm almost there my Harry, then I'll let you. You've been so good for me, for us. You deserve it." Right before I felt you stiffen up and start unloading inside of me, I felt the ring open up. I came. And came. And just kept cumming for what felt like forever. I fell backwards, letting you hold me up.

I smiled up at Oliver. "Thank you for sharing this with us!" I crooked my finger at him so he'd lean... in, then kissed him on the cheek. "Night Ollie."

He blushed as he tucked himself away, giving us both kisses on the temple and telling us goodnight.

I snuggled into your lap for a bit, just relishing in the afterglow.

Unfortunately, it wasn't long before parenting duty called. So we went to bed, fed our babies, and drifted off to sleep together.

All in all, definitely tired today, but definitely worth it!

You're still the one,
Harry

Wednesday May 10th
My wonderful Harry,

Congratulations again on your new career!

I'm dictating this as I help Amala find her baby that's playing hide and seek. I've got a bit to tell you about the missing files. Sadly, no update on the murderer trying to frame me, but as for the files -

Oh wait, I think we found her. See, Amala had five cubs, and that's actually quite a bit for one mum to look after, but since our property has been warded for ages so that only certain things can get in or out, I know for certain that the missing girl has to be on our property somewhere.

I specifically added a ward so that the cheetahs couldn't EVER get out and accidentally terrorize the neighbors!

The two girls and two boys that aren't playing hide and seek are actually wrestling around with each other as Amala and I look, but as I said, I see what has to be the missing cheetah laying next to the pond. Must be taking a nap.

Hey girl, wake up. Your mum is worried... Girl?

What the? Bloody hell!!! HARRY!!! One of my grandbaby cheetahs is dead!!! I'm a horrible grandfather! How did I let this happen??! HOW did this happen?! Did I let her starve??! Did I not see that she was sick? Or injured? What did I do wrong???

At this point, the dictation spell can't get anything coherent from Draco, who is a blubbing mess, and Muffy discretely sends the message so Harry can read it and come comfort Draco.
Chapter 125

Chapter Summary

Harry comforts Draco and Draco has to think about anything else.

Thursday May 11, 2017

My Heart,

It's just before sunrise and I think I've finally gotten you calm and sound asleep. The sound of your tears just about broke my heart last night. Don't get me wrong, I don't want you to hide your feelings to keep me from sadness. At the risk of sounding completely selfish, I don't love when you are hurting like this - I would give anything to make it stop - but the silver lining of you being so upset is seeing your complete willingness to let me comfort and soothe you.

I'm just so sorry you and Amala lost one of the cubs. I wish I could make this better, I wish I could wave my wand and make the cub come back. But if I had power over death itself, I'd have made use of that power long ago. Unfortunately I've nothing I can do for you besides hold you while you cry and wipe away your tears.

I've also set up a bit of a ceremony for later. I know you and while you're distraught and not really thinking fully clearly right now with your grief, I know you'll want to do something to honor this little life you lost too soon. I found a lovely spot near the woods, next to the gardens, under a willow that will be perfect for your little grand-cheetah to rest. Whenever you wake up, I've got tea ready for you, we can feed you up with a little breakfast, and we can head out to the lawns to put her to rest.

I assume it will be many hours from now since you just fell asleep. You're obviously sleeping soundly enough that my typing doesn't seem to be bothering you, but you're still doing that hiccuping snuffling that would tell anyone listening that you had just stopped sobbing. Don't worry, I won't tell anyone you cried. Not that it would be embarrassing or inappropriate for you to be crying. You just have this weird obsession with pretending you don't have functioning tear ducts. You're so upset right now that I will play along.

For now, I will see if I can catch a few hours of sleep myself. I'm sure we're in for a long day.

I love you my Draco,
Your Harry

Thursday May 11th
My stability,

I have to keep myself occupied. I have to think of other things. Such as those missing files I was planning to tell you about. Robards checked and found that there ARE other files missing. Yes, yours is one of them, and your file is ALSO highly classified, and so, if it hadn't been stolen, it wouldn't be accessed by nearly anyone.
You have access as it's YOUR file - although, you would have to request it through official channels if you wanted to see it. I have access as the Chief of Raids. Kingsley, Robards, and the Deputy Head Auror are just about the only other people who have access to it, aside from the other departmental heads if they have a valid reason for requesting it.

But as I said, it's a short list, and so, I have to wonder if the murderer took all of these files BECAUSE some of them - such as yours and mine - are restricted, and thus he wanted to make a nice profile of our lives, OR if he was just taking every file he thought was connected to me so that he had plenty of people to choose from when trying to frame me.

Because so far, all the other missing files are those of my students. Every single student I've had has had their file stolen. I'm quite worried, actually. Because IF this murderer IS looking to frame me and the first attempt has already been unsuccessful, that means that you and all my students are potential victims.

For one insane paranoid moment, I actually considered the possibility that the murderer somehow snuck onto our property and killed my grandbaby cheetah in an attempt to unnerve me - or just plain hurt me - but I've triple checked all the wards, and they're all in working order with no signs of tampering, and so, no one would be ABLE to have done it. Plus a scan showed, well nothing really. There is a really faint magical signature that could simply be me petting the cheetah, or any of our kids petting her - or using accidental magic on or around her. But as far as the scans show, she simply lay down for a nap and died. No foul play involved.

I'm not the only one concerned about my students though. Robards has taken steps to ensure that they're all being monitored by security spells when not on duty, and paired up with senior Aurors when on duty. So, for now, we have to believe that everyone is safe.

Especially you, as you'll be here at home behind centuries of wards, or at Hogwarts, which is arguably even BETTER warded.

But on to better things.

I'm currently typing this as I watch you play with our three newest triplets. It's utterly adorable to see all four of you on your tummies on the floor, looking and cooing at each other. Morgana looks perfectly happy to gnaw on one of your fingers while kicking her feet. Meanwhile, Gabriel and Dylan are holding onto your other hand and blowing bubbles.

I honestly never want to have babies again, but moments like these remind me why I love them so much.

Oh! Looks like Dean and Seamus just popped through the floo. … Sounds like Dean wants to take Dylan over to his parents house for a couple of hours to introduce them to their little grand-godson. It seems he explained the situation to his parents, and while they understand and support his decision to NOT be a father to this little accidental miracle, they DO want to be allowed near-grandparental rights to see him on occasion.

Hmm... we hadn't considered this, but honestly, it's not much different than Dean being allowed to spend time with Gabriel as his Godfather. I don't really see a problem with it, and actually, him having access to Dean's parents means that they will be able to teach him things about this heritage that I wouldn't know. Perhaps they're immigrants from Africa, or perhaps they've been British citizens for generations. Either way, it's a good opportunity for Dylan.

But... Perhaps we should go with this first time, just to meet them and see with our own eyes that they're good people.
Loving you with every breath I take,
Draco
P.S. Thank you for that beautiful ceremony, it helped more than I expected.

P.P.S Speaking of ceremonies, I know the one for our babies had to be pushed back from the 6th, but it's still on track for this weekend, right?
Love of my Life,

I have so many things I want to talk about I don't even know where to start.

First, yes of course we are still on for the naming ceremony this weekend. We pushed it back, not because we couldn't do it last weekend, but with Tiger being one of the Godparents and them planning on coming tomorrow for Hazel and Harrison's birthdays it just made sense to celebrate their birthdays tomorrow and then do the naming ceremony on Sunday. Anyone coming in from out of town, like the Russian parts of our circle, or from out of the Universe like Viper, Tiger, and crew will be able to do two celebrations for one travel.

Two birds with one stone and all that.

There are just too many birds from this criminal who's trying to frame you. Or too many stones? Alright, that was a failure of a segue AND a failure of a metaphor. I just don't understand what this person is trying to find out, or hide, or I just ... even though I didn't go into the Aurors I feel like I often can get to the bottom of a criminal's motivation. I think it comes from having Voldemort in my head for so much of my life. But I can't understand how all these pieces are related. Are they coming after you? After me? After your students?

At the risk of causing a serious fight, especially knowing we have such a busy, and what should be fun-filled, weekend ahead of us. A weekend that we are going to spend welcoming our newest family members to our circle, to our community. A time that should be spent filling the space with as much love as humanly possible. But ... looking at recent events, and past events, and who has access ... is there any part of you that thinks this might be the work of Robards?

My only other thought is the medi-witch. She really doesn't like how you treated the students and now their files are missing? I mean the only other student-based person who held any sort of a grudge was the one that turned you in for harassment, but then she totally came around and ended up kicking arse and seemingly glad for the opportunity to learn from you.

Ugh, I can't keep dwelling on this. We just have to stay safe, keep our children safe, keep you safe, and I need to stop wallowing in everything I am afraid of.

Yesterday with Dean's parents was lovely. I know you mentioned wanting to go with to make sure they were good people. I just didn't think that was necessary. Well, not so much unnecessary to go with, but unnecessary to figure out of they're good people. They raised a wonderful young man. They've loved and supported him through being magical despite both of them being Muggle. And the fact that they are "his parents" while his father is technically his step-father? Any time I hear of unconventional parenting that is treated like unconditional loving parenting with no limits, I know the person has the capacity to love no matter the circumstances.

Maybe you didn't consider his parents wanting a relationship, and I suppose knowing how rambly I am and the fact that I never brought it up would imply that I never considered it either, but I almost assumed his parents would want to get to know his Godson. Hell, even if Dylan was ONLY his Godson I would think they'd like to know him. But the fact that he's also biologically Dean's?
Yeah, knowing what I know about how supportive and loving his parents are, I would be more surprised if they didn't want a relationship with Dylan.

Gabriel being Dylan's twin, and Morgana being essentially their triplet, they should probably know Dyl's extra set of grandparents. As much as having to "share" our babies isn't ideal, I love that Dylan will have this extra set of people ready to love him. Dylan will know you and I are his fathers, he will know his siblings are his 100% siblings, he will know love from our entire circle, how can it be anything less than wonderful that he has a third set of grandparents ready to love and adore him?

At least I waited until the end of the visit to ask Mr and Mrs Thomas to join us for the naming ceremony on Sunday. I knew you had to feel comfortable with them, see they were trustworthy with your own eyes, before you were willing to let them inside Manor wards. But I think it will mean so much to them, and subsequently so much to Dean, to have them with us when doing Dylan's welcome ceremony. I think I saw Dean tear up when we asked them to join us to see Dean (and Seamus) make promises to be Dylan's Godfather.

His mum was so sweet, much like Dean himself, she oohed and ahhed over Dylan, but made sure to give Gabriel (not so much Morgana since our Queen wasn't really having it) plenty of cuddles and attention. But her first view of Dylan? When she saw just how much he looks like Dean? I think she was both in love and a little heartbroken at the idea of this perfect little tiny person looking so much like her oldest son being here but not fully being hers or his. I hope seeing our willingness to allow her in Dylan's life will ease her sadness.

Anyway, better get stuff ready for our arrivals; the influx of Hogwarts kids for the weekend and the influx of Universal travelers.

Love you with all of my heart,
Harry

Friday May 12th
My fire,

Today, presumably after getting everything ready for our many home-comers, you were in our bed feeding our three perfect little angels as I was waking up. Thus I drifted awake to the sounds of coos and soft grunts as they took turns drinking from you. One of the things I've decided to do - instead of nursing, but that will allow me to sleep more - is to wear the breast harness thing we got a LONG time ago while sleeping, so that Morgana can nurse on demand all night long, now that she can definitely squirm just enough to find it again should she happen to lose track of it.

Plus, I can simply wake up enough to shift positions and let her latch on if necessary, a whole lot easier than it is to wake up enough to obtain a bottle and sit up and hold her while feeding.

But as I was saying, as I was drifting awake, I realized that you were feeding Morgana, because the soft grunts she makes as she eats sound somehow different than either of the boys, and that means the baby I could feel nursing from the harness had to be one of the boys. Sure enough, I woke up to find Gabriel drinking rather greedily from the replica breast. Smiling, I poked his cherubic little cheeks and tickled his tiny toes.

Dylan and Morgana finished up their feed first, and you simply held them and let them kick each other's feet as Gabriel continued drinking. But eventually, even he was done, and we decided to levitate them over to the playpen off to the side of the room so that they could get some tummy time and bond with each other while the two of us had a chance to kiss and cuddle.

Or in other words, there's no way in bloody hell I was going to let you back out of bed so soon, even though I had to cast cleaning charms and breath freshening charms (and a certain vanishing spell) on myself to make up for the fact that I hadn't even had a chance to go to the loo yet.

To our delight, we were only really about 20 minutes into a lovely heavy petting session when our other selves arrived from their world for the weekend. They grinned and chuckled when they found us already in bed and in the mood. All it took was a quick order to Muffy to bring the playpen full of babies to my mother for a bit, and we were ready to go.

Things started off slowly with the Viper and Tiger joining us in bed, sort of crowding us as they both tried to kiss us both at the same time. We were definitely having fun and no one seemed to be in any sort of rush. I magicked the breast harness off so that it wasn't in the way and let my hands roam over everyone's bodies, even as hands were caressing me.

Tiger seemed to be interested in flirting with my tattoos, probably since he doesn't have any - doesn't really want any - but finds it weird and fascinating to see them on me, and thus, his body. Meanwhile, I'm certain that Viper was having fun dominating you. There's just something for him about being with you. The two of you are the same but different, and because of that, have similar pain tolerance levels. You are naturally submissive where he is naturally dominant, thus he can REALLY put you through your paces and basically go as far as he wants, and you almost never tap out.

As for you, knowing that I was in the room and COULD put a stop to things if you needed me to, you basically surrendered to him and completely let go as he got rough with you. He definitely spanked you, but he also pinched you, smacked your arms a bit, and - when you were VERY close to orgasm - choked you the 3 or 4 seconds it took to push you over the edge.

I know there was more happening, but honestly, aside from glancing over to make sure you weren't being pushed too far, I was mostly focused on what was happening with the Tiger. He was ALSO in the mood to be rough and dominating. Lucky for him, I hadn't been truly submissive in long enough that it was exactly what I needed.

But - long before anything got started - it was Tiger who insisted that we ALL cast all of the protection spells on each other - in essence quadruple checking that they were done properly. "No need to take any risks. With YOUR luck and apparent high fertility, anything less than four separate protection spells is likely to leave you pregnant!"

I harrumphed but didn't argue because getting to the playing was far more important than pointing out that we'd never gotten pregnant without some sort of potion or special circumstance.

Once protected, Tiger conjured ropes and tied me up in my favorite dragonfly harness. Once I was secure, he delighted in tickling me and making me perform silly tricks - such as begging him to let me deep throat his perfect shaft. The tickling was accomplished with a leucistic peacock feather, which he alternated with sharp stinging shocks from my Violet Wand.

He soon had me begging for release, but even though I didn't notice him do it, I think he had cast a denial spell on me, because I could not go off for nothing!

Hilariously enough, Viper's kids must have known exactly what we were doing - or rather, been able to make a fairly accurate guess, because Tiger's Viona and River plus Scorpius and Hyperion were off with them - BUT they were getting impatient for us to finish up. After all, we had other things to do - such as an enormous family dinner. SO, Tommy and Bellerophon 'innocently' asked Oliver, not quite believing that there were two of each of us (sadly, Tiger and Viper haven't been coming to our universe nearly as often as we want them to, simply because Tiger is back to working like a maniac at his law firm), despite the very real evidence of Viper's kids (who he's gotten to know a bit since living here). Anyway, Oliver didn't think that there was a reason why there would be two sets of us in bed playing around. So, when he got to our door, he knocked, probably assuming that we'd shout at anyone to go away if we were busy.

But I think we both know that we'd only shout at our kids to go away. Well, them and my parents and siblings, but what I mean is that we're not shy about letting others into our room when we're having sex. So when Oliver knocked and cast a spell so that we could clearly hear him asking if he could come in, I cast the same mild sonorous in return letting him know that he could come in our room if he wanted. He fell for the bait, standing in the main room of our suite, gaping in shock through the open door to our bedroom as he could clearly see FOUR of us having a bloody good time.

"BLIMEY!" He blurted out in shock. "There really ARE two of you!!!"

This made us all chuckle. You beckoned to him with the hand that wasn't currently bracing against the headboard. "You can come join us if you want, Ollie."

"Or if you're still not ready, you can simply watch again," I added.

He was tilting his head side to side as he seemed to unconsciously drift closer. "How can you tell which one is which?"

"Usually by clothes, but once naked, the differences are really obvious," I remarked with a grin, doing my best to point at one of my tattoos while bound. "I have an enormous family of dragons all over me, while my doppelganger is as pristine as ever."

"True," Tiger confirmed, looking Oliver over with an approving eye.

Viper even went so far as to moan in longing. "Fuck! Oliver Wood has featured in my wank bank since I was old enough to have one!"

"Right?!" You asked and agreed at the same time.

Oliver looked torn between VERY interested and reluctant to join in on a full on kinky play session so soon. Honestly, I'm not sure if he's EVER had a kinky play session; I keep forgetting to ask. Slowly, he seemed to come to a decision and nodded in agreement with himself.

"Alright... How's this? I'm not ready to fully shag anyone, but it HAS been so long since I've had anything other than my hand on me. I... I think I'd like... a blowjob?" He informed us hesitantly.

Viper grinned a bit maniacally. "Oh, that sounds like the perfect job for my subby Harry here. He's FANTASTIC at giving head, especially when he's got a bloke spanking him at the same time."

Which led to you doing your best to figuratively blow Oliver's brains out as Viper lovingly smacked and caressed your arse. Once again, I think the Tiger cast a covert denial spell, because Oliver had stamina to spare and seemed astonished by it. Right about the time Viper decided to pound your arse with his gorgeous shaft, was when Tiger reminded me that I had my own playing to pay attention to. He lay on his back and 'forced' me to ride his shaft until he was well-satisfied.

This situation had the promise of lasting hours, but Viper's kids - or more likely ALL our kids - got fed up with how long we were taking, and started casting Patronuses to come in and harass us into hurrying up. Either I was right about Tiger casting denial spells, or otherwise, the impetus of the Patronuses was enough to set us all off with erotic cries and squeals.

We lay panting in the aftermath, Viper somehow gathering the energy to cast a Patronus threatening to project this entire memory across the entertainment room wall (where all the kids presumably were) if they didn't stop casting Patronuses and leave us the bloody hell alone for five minutes.

Thankfully, this did the trick and we were able to get dressed in peace. Well, you three got dressed and rushed off while the two of me went through my morning routine, caching each other up on everything that had happened since we last saw each other. Eventually, I was ready - not to mention bloody STARVING! And so, I'm going to finish dictating this email - to Tiger's amusement (Hi there other Harry!) and come join what's bound to be a chaotic family dinner.

Let's hope it's drama free!

'Cuz I love you more than I could ever promise, and you take me the way I am,
Draco
Saturday May 13, 2017

My Heart,

You know, for a Malfoy/Potter-Malfoy dinner, last night wasn't particularly chaotic. It seems as though everyone was pretty much on their best behavior. I'm not sure if it's because some of the most likely to poke at each other are finally getting a bit older, or perhaps it's because people have learned not to touch Miss Morgana if she gives you the look, it might even be that the reason we're all together this weekend is a bit of a sacred one with all of the naming ceremonies. Whatever the reason, last night's dinner included minimal teasing and bickering, only two sing-a-longs, and a fairly low volume for the sheer amount of humans we had in the dining room.

Is it weird that after all these years I'm almost ... disappointed? Knock wood, but seriously? We got the two Viona's together and nothing? Hazel and Harrison are having to "share" their special weekend with each other AND with the four children having their naming/welcoming ceremonies.

The closest thing we had to any sort of an event was the moment Parker seemed to realize that Oliver didn't just check on us and come immediately back. He took in his dad's flushed face and then subsequently mine and Viper's flushed and happy faces, his eyebrows pretty much got lost in his hairline. But he didn't say a single word! Obviously that kid did not grow up in a Malfoy house!

Obviously our playtime was a bit rushed since it was the middle of the day and the kids were sending all those patronuses, but wow wet dream material right there. And I'm feeling like quite the spoiled boy, all of you got to watch the fun, but I was the only one to get my hands, or mouth I suppose, all over Oliver. Which was cool enough in the moment, but now it's actually feeling almost TOO big. I'm the first man besides his late husband to touch his cock in ... twenty years?

Holy shite! What if I didn't do it well? It took forever to make him come and you seem to think it was a denial spell, but what if I'm just not any good at giving head? I know YOU think I'm good at it, and Viper, and Tiger, and I guess Ron and Blaise have both said I do a good job, and those few times we've played with Greg, Charlie and Neville have never complained either, but what if everyone is just being nice and they secretly think I'm bad at it. They could just be humoring the sad little cock slag.

Okay I have to get my mind off of my possible terrible oral skills.

Oh! Wasn't it such a fun surprise that River and Maha showed up last night? I thought the earliest they were possibly going to be able to get away would be this morning, and it was more than likely they wouldn't get in until later tonight, there was even a small possibility of them not coming in until tomorrow just a few hours before the ceremonies. That really would have messed with my anxiety! One of the Godparents not getting there from halfway around the world until an hour or two before we're set to start? I probably would have gone into full panicked Harry mode!

Instead, we were halfway through the soup when I heard the floo go off, and then the two of them storming into the dining room. Our River, ever the little boy, shouting "Oi! Who's a guy gotta bribe around here to get himself a bowl of Muffy's famous leek and potato?" Which of course was followed by shrieking, squealing, and excited tears. I'm not sure how anyone else reacted though. I would have knocked over an old lady to get to my little River!

Once whoever was emitting that ungodly shrieking calmed himself down, Viona started up our first song, belting out: "It's just an old piece of wood - on top of four legs - It's got a few coffee stains - and a thousand marks from God.Knows.When!"

Never one to be upstaged, Lainie took over: " Ain't too many things, that could stand the test of Tiiiime - But this family table's held togetheeerrrrr - By a LOVE that never dies!"

By the chorus, pretty much everyone joined in: "So won't you COME.On.In? - Supper's almost done go ahead and caaaaallll your friends - 'Cause we got room for EveryOne! Let's make some memories 'round this Nine.Foot.Piiine! - Pull up a chair and stay a while .... At the family table!"

I think we would have gone on to more songs if we hadn't had a small horde of hungry little monsters. When Muffy popped in to let us know her mincemeat pies were ready, everyone got quiet and settled down REAL QUICK!

I guess I lied a bit earlier when I said we had two sing-a-longs. We had one song we all sang to, and then Shtara amazed us with a song I think she expected us to follow along with, but we all seemed so in awe of her that we just let her finish the whole song. Her run as Ursula coming to an end means our little star is on the hunt for her next great role. With Hamilton coming over here at the end of this year, I think she's hopeful they will cast her despite being only fourteen. Her argument has been "I'll be fifteen less than a month after opening night!" Yeah, my love, I still think fifteen is a bit young for any of the roles they're looking to fill.

But Merlin the pipes on our baby. Hazel and Harrison were teasing each other a bit. I don't even know what Hazel said to him, but Eris burst out with a quick "Ooh burrrrrnnnn!"

Barely a second passed when Shtara pipes up with "That reminds me ..." and bursts into song. "I saved every letter you wrote me ... From the moment I read them I knew you were MINE, you said you were MINE, I thought you were MIIIIINNNNNEE!"

She busted out the entire song, but I thought my heart would just break when she practically sobbed out, "I'm burning the memories, burning the letters, that might have redeeeeed you. You FORFEIT all rights to my heart! You forfeit the place in our bed, You'll SLEEP in your office instead. With only the memories of when you were Miiiiinnnnee! I hope that you .... burrrrrrrnnnn!"

To hell with the casting director, I don't care if she's only fourteen, my girl can do anything she sets her mind to!

I swear I heard her singing in my dreams last night. I know she's muggle, but our girl's voice is magic.

Anyway, I timed this perfectly. I have the breakfast bake just about ready to come out of the oven and then I'm off to do birthday breakfast in bed for Hazel and then Harrison! Our little adults.
I'm gonna love you even if my heart would break,
Harry

Saturday May 13th
My everything.

Did you love Hazel and Harrison's dance as much as I did? I know it was a surprise collaboration between them to entertain us and celebrate their birthday, but I was honestly surprised. I didn't think they'd spent much time together lately, but apparently they've been hanging out whenever Eris has been busy with Eric and Luka. So, quite a bit, haha.

Anyway, they are - in essence - twins, and so, this dance wasn't one of those passionate erotic dances that we so love. Instead, it was a little bit Vienna Waltz mixed with a little ballet. Obviously not any of the truly difficult ballet maneuvers, as neither of them have taken or been interested in taking ballet lessons. But they were able to perform an absolutely GORGEOUS dance that still managed to demonstrate the fact that they not only CAN work together very well, but ALSO how much they do tend to bicker and annoy each other.

I found it hilarious how they blended their bickering into the dance so smoothly.

Anyway, as I was chatting with various people throughout the day, Leah came over to tell me that the director of the Little Mermaid has already started finalizing the next play he's putting on, which is the Princess and the Frog. He's decided that there's NO ONE better suited to the lead role of Tiana than our Shtara, and so, he wants her to convince us to let her accept the role.

I laughed and told Leah that there's really no need to convince us. We know that Shtara won't let us tell her no if it's something she truly wants. And bonus, having the lead role in this play could help if Shtara decides to audition for Hamilton. I have a feeling that our girl is going to star in EVERY play she wants right on up until she decides to switch to movies, haha.

Speaking of plays/playing - alright not MY best segue - but you honestly think you're terrible at oral? Did the gobsmacked and punched-with-pleasure look on Oliver's face NOT reassure you? He looked like that was the best blowjob of his life! Probably was, if he's been monogamous with a controlling man who slowly lost the battle with a serious disease. In all honesty, if I were him, at that point, I'd probably be eternally grateful for the world's worst blowjob, but I assure you that you could win awards for your oral skills and therefore do NOT need to worry.

My adorably silly little mutt ^_^

But back to our perfect 'little' family.

It was apparent from almost the moment they arrived that River and Mahafsoun had big news to share, but perhaps didn't want to upstage anything. That lasted until the end of our enormous family dinner, after Hazel and Harrison's dance. At that point, it seemed like they just couldn't hold it back anymore.

River stood up rather abruptly and shouted out: "Mahafsoun and I are going to have a baby!"

This effectively shut everyone up for a few seconds.

Mahafsoun smiled and nodded. "Yes, we timed it so that my pregnancy can be incorporated into the show after summer break - and actually was incorporated into the last show of the season we just finished filming - and then when I'm due, I'll have time off for the midwinter/season break."
The writers have come up with ideas for some of the other characters to have an arc in case I need MORE time off, but then I'll be back and ready to go in plenty of time to finish up the season."

As Mahafsoun was trying to explain all of this information that I'm sure is important to them, the rest of us had broken out into cheers and basically swarmed the two of them to hug everything in their vicinity, including them, hahaha.

After getting a good hug or two in, I felt so overwhelmingly in love with you and everything in my life that I pulled you into my arms, kissed you rather possessively, and then sang a happy and cheery song:

I got you to hold my hand, I got you to understand, I got you to walk with me, I got you to talk with me, I got you to kiss goodnight, I got you to hold me tight, I got you, I won't let go, I got you to love me so, I got you babe,

Draco

Chapter End Notes

Family Table: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Ic9CqnOCcI4&fbclid=IwAR3fuy6XRPutQ8aYY02L08CFtmgpOt_juQnFR4E6h1b4z0-sl7RltZp4

Burn: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=cYU-34Cmzj0&fbclid=IwAR1Z-W6hBAbxzFrhJHzkyrKG55q4aaxQuH6la5D7bPLjU1jkG40sIw5nEB0
Harry talks about the naming/welcoming ceremony, and Draco is inappropriately amused.

Sunday May 14, 2017

Love of My Life,

Wasn't today beautiful? This is likely (knock on wood) our last naming ceremony for any of OUR children, so it had that bittersweet feeling we've had since these babies have been born. As though I'm glad I will never have to be pregnant again, but then I get a bit teary-eyed thinking I will never be pregnant again. Brains are weird, I tell ya!

But we will have many more chances to welcome beloved people into our ever-expanding circle. Grandchildren ... Hell, we have Rafael and Luka's ceremonies that their Mums scheduled for next month. And with Maha being pregnant, we'll have another one sooner rather than later. It just won't ever (again knocking wood) be OUR children being blessed and welcomed. So I had to cry extra hard every time I thought about it.

Although it could have been residual crying from being so excited about River and Maha's news. I am so excited for them. Again, I feel like I should send flowers to our parents to apologize for dragging their grandchildren all over the world. I already feel so sad that I won't be there for every moment of their baby's life because they live so far away. I've loved having Rafael and Luka so close, able to babysit and snuggle and smooch away at their sweet little faces.

Look at me being an emotional sap about a baby that isn't even born yet when I have my own three infants to smooch, two grandbabies to love on, and three extra circle babies in Leah's Leon, Delphini's Balian, and Pippa's Pierre. I am a bit of a spoiled prat when it comes to being surrounded by babies to love on. I should probably not be so ridiculous. I just hope that River and Maha REALLY like long weekend visits from their Dad/Father-In-Law!

I'm sure, even with a baby, they'll end up coming here a few times themselves. If we let Shtara take the role of Tiana (Bahahahaha, if WE let HER!!) I just know Maha will need to see it at least twice. Even being all the way across the world, she's made sure to see Shtara perform in the Little Mermaid ... twice? It may have even been three times if I think about it. Both of those young women feel pretty strongly about the performing arts. I love that a few of our kids all have that in common. It's nice to have such a huge link to each other that will hopefully follow them through life, helping to keep their sibling bonds strong.

Honestly, as much as she would ROCK any part in Hamilton she set her mind to, I hope she takes the role of Tiana and holds onto it for a while. She's only fourteen, she's mature and saw a lot of things as a young child because of her circumstances, but she's still a little girl. I'd like to keep her as childish as possible for as long as I possibly can. I mean, I'm almost thirty-seven and I have yet to grow up! Hamilton sounds amazing, we haven't been able to see it in theatres yet - since we didn't make time to do so when we were in the States and it won't be coming across the pond until the end of this year - but I've listened to every single song about a million times. It's a very male-heavy musical, and it's very adult. I'd much rather my sweet girl stick to childish fairy tales for just a bit longer.

Not to mention, as a female in that cast she'd be a supporting role, but as Tiana, she'd be taking her place as a rightful star!

But I think we all know that if it comes down to it, I will let her take any role she wants because she's the star and deserves every dream her heart wants to follow.

This morning, I went to find our Atreyu to have my traditional "talk" I've had with all of our children on their big day. "Shockingly" I found him in the stables! I dragged him to the sunroom to cuddle and talk. I told him that with or without this ceremony, he's been my little boy his whole life, it just took us a while to find each other. I explained to him that he was already a solid part of my heart but that today was extra special because we were screaming from the rooftops that he is ours and we are his. That is when he quite seriously reminded me "You should stay off roofs Daddy, unless you ride the festrals up there. They like the roofs."

Excuse me? He likes to ride the thestrals up to the rooftops? My little boy is flying sometimes invisible skeleton horses to the rooftops of the Manor? Good Gods! We're raising a daredevil!

Breathe Harry, Breathe!

Then I sent Trey off to get himself ready, I had laid his little robes out for him, and made my way to the littlest set of almost triplets. Now I like to talk about how our babies are all brilliant little geniuses that are well ahead of any other baby, but I honestly get that the babies don't have any idea of what I'm talking about. They react to the tone of my voice, they like when I smile at them, but when I tell them all about how special today is, they have no idea what I mean. They currently don't care about anything beyond a clean nappy, a tummy full of milk, and snuggles.

But... am I insane or does Morgana kinda get it? Like, she stared at me while I explained how important today was. And I even spoke directly to her at one point, trying to stress the importance of letting her Godparents touch and hold her. She stared at me without blinking and then she ... have I lost the plot or do you think there's a chance she nodded at me? I was very hopeful after having our conversation.

I shoved you into the loo, got the babies ready, checked on Atreyu ....

When I finally got him out of the stables, hosed him down (kidding, it was just a quick shower) and into his robes, everyone else had gotten ready and were waiting at the ceremony site.

The beautiful site our Mums had per usual outdone themselves on. A circle prepared by our Dads.

The six of us then began our walk to the circle, I held Gabriel and Dylan, you had Morgana, Atreyu walked along next to us, and we met the eight soon to be godparents halfway. Bill picked up Atreyu and Teddy walked along next to them, while Dean, Seamus, Gavin, Della, Mahafsoun and Tiger walked alongside you and I. We walked to the altar and our circle closed around us. As our tradition with all of our ceremonies, the area was covered in lilies and narcissus. We also used the candles from yours and my naming ceremonies, as well as new candles specifically for each child.

You opened our ceremony. "We call to the Gods and Goddesses, we call to Apollo - the God of the Sun and of Music. We call to Hestia - Goddess of home, hearth, and family. We call to Pan - the God of the wild. We call to the first magicians, Merlin and Morgana. We ask you to join us today, to welcome our children to our community and to the larger community of our world."
"We gather today to bless these children, new lives that became part of our world. We gather to give names to these children. To call something by name is to give it power, and today we give these children that gift. We welcome them into our hearts and lives and bless them with names of their own."

Then you. "To be a parent is to love and nurture, to lead our children to be good, to follow the right path, to both teach them and learn from them. Reining them in, and giving them wings. Smiling through their joys, and weeping with their pain. Walking beside them so that one day, they can walk alone. Being parents is the greatest gift we give ourselves, and the greatest responsibility we will have."

Since Atreyu is a bit older, we modified the ancestral welcome ceremony the way we did for Zaire's to fit the naming ceremony. "I Draco Malfoy call to my Ancestors - to Abraxas Malfoy, to Cygnus Black, to -" quite a ways down the line.

"I Harry Potter Malfoy call to my Ancestors - to James and Lily Potter, to Fleamont and Euphemia Potter, to Remus and Nymphadora Lupin, to Grandmother and Grandfather Evans and all the rest of my Ancestors in all lines who care to join us here."

"We've called you here today to introduce you to our son, Atreyu. He's not our blood and so you may not have noticed him yet, but he is our heart, so we ask you to accept him into our family and watch over him in the same way that you would us," you entreated beautifully.

"Please guide him, advise him when necessary, and help him to become his best self - reaching his full potential as he grows into an amazing man," I added.

You turned to Bill and asked: "You stand beside us, for the love of this child. Tell the Gods who you are."

Bill replied: "I am William Arthur Weasley, chosen to be Guardian for this child." And when you asked what it meant to be a Guardian: "To show guidance and counsel, to help assist him when making choices, and be there for him when called upon."

Asking the same questions to Teddy, he responded: "I am Edward Remus Lupin, chosen to be Guardian for this child." Answering with the same description of Guardianship.

Sitting Atreyu up on the altar, you anointed his head with the oils from the chalice, and said: "May the Gods keep this child pure and perfect, leaving all negatives far beyond his world. May you always have good fortune, may you always have good health, may you always be joyful with love in your heart. You are known to the Gods and to us as Atreyu Miguel Malfoy. This is your name and it is powerful. Bear your name with honor and may the Gods bless you on this and every day. I honor you Atreyu Miguel."

We passed the cup with wine and the cup with milk around the circle and followed with Atreyu so each person could welcome him into our lives and our family by name. It was beautiful as usual, hugs and kisses we went around the circle. The cups made their way back to Bill and Teddy, they drank and recited together: "Welcome Atreyu Miguel Malfoy, to our family and to our hearts. Your parents love you and we thank them for bringing you into our lives. We ask the Gods to watch over you, Atreyu, over your fathers, and over your brothers and sisters - we wish your family love and light."

We then moved on to Gabriel. Asking the Godparents the same questions. “I am Gavin Mitchell Malfoy, chosen to be Guardian for this child.” “I am Della Andromeda Malfoy, chosen to be Guardian for this child.” That same definition of Guardian all of our children’s Godparents have recited since the beginnings of our family.

Laying our smiling Gabriel on the altar, you anointed him with the oils from his chalice, saying: “May the Gods keep this child pure and perfect, leaving all negatives far beyond his world. May you always have good fortune, may you always have good health, may you always be joyful with love in your heart. You are known to the Gods and to us as Gabriel Pan Potter. This is your name and it is powerful. Bear your name with honor and may the Gods bless you on this and every day. I honor you Gabriel Pan.”

For the second time, the refilled chalices of wine and milk went around the circle, we followed with Gabriel in our arms. At the end, Gavin and Della saying: “Welcome Gabriel Pan Potter, to our family and to our hearts. Your parents love you and we thank them for bringing you into our lives. We ask the Gods to watch over you, Gabriel Pan, over your fathers, and over your brothers and sisters - we wish your family love and light.”

Then our Dylan had his turn. “I am Dean Robert Thomas, chosen to be Guardian for this child.” “I am Seamus Patrick Finnegan, chosen to be Guardian for this child.” You speaking: “May the Gods keep this child pure and perfect, leaving all negatives far beyond his world. May you always have good fortune, may you always have good health, may you always be joyful with love in your heart. You are known to the Gods and to us as Dylan Sheen Potter. This is your name and it is powerful. Bear your name with honor and may the Gods bless you on this and every day. I honor you Dylan Sheen.”

More wine. More milk. More beautiful welcomes from our circle for our Dylan. Dean and Seamus saying what the Godparents before them had said. “Welcome Dylan Sheen Potter, to our family and to our hearts. Your parents love you and we thank them for bringing you into our lives. We ask the Gods to watch over you, Dylan Sheen, over your fathers, and over your brothers and sisters - we wish your family love and light.”

It was just so wonderful to see Dean speaking over this little boy. Promising him to be what he needs. Not a dry eye in the group. Especially Dean's Mum.

Finally, closing out with Morgana, who I would have thought would be upset at being last in line. But she seemed to be giving a regal "ah, you've saved the best for last" attitude. Her Godparents answered the same questions: “I am Draco Lucius Malfoy, born in another world yet honored to be chosen as a Guardian for this child.” “I am Mahafsoun, chosen to be Guardian for this child.” You spoke: “May the Gods keep this child pure and perfect, leaving all negatives far beyond her world. May you always have good fortune, may you always have good health, may you always be joyful with love in your heart. You are known to the Gods and to us as Morgana Guinevere Malfoy. This is your name and it is powerful. Bear your name with honor and may the Gods bless you on this and every day. I honor you Morgana Guinevere.”

The final rounds of milk and wine went around. The wonderful people in our circle gave the same loving welcomes as Atreyu got at the beginning of all this. Ending with her Godparents. “Welcome Morgana Guinevere Malfoy, to our family and to our hearts. Your parents love you and we thank them for bringing you into our lives. We ask the Gods to watch over you, Morgana Guinevere, over your fathers, and over your brothers and sisters - we wish your family love and light.”

I held Gabriel, you held Morgana, Dean held Dylan, and Teddy had Atreyu, Gavin, Della, Seamus, Maha, Tiger and Bill around us, the children were held up to the skies, our circle walking away, us closely following, and the grandfathers as always closing the circle.

Perfection.
I love you my Draco,
Your Harry

Sunday May 14th
My darling,

Do you know, I'm quite certain we've become known among our friends as that crazy family who jumps on any excuse to hold a full blown party, haha. Personally, I feel that we don't necessarily jump on ANY excuse, we just so happen to have a lot of excellent excuses to throw a party. Such as naming/welcoming our gorgeous children.

For the same reasons you had, I was also feeling a bit emotional over the fact that this is GOING to be the last time we do this. (Harry, if either of us has baby fever EVER again, let's make a pact here and now to straight up murder that one, okay?) I was nearly overwhelmed that we have so many wonderful people in our lives willing to step up and be godparents to our horde. I was even a bit misty-eyed as I stood there looking around at our amazing circle of family and friends.

Thus, when one of the house elves popped up to inform me that we had an unexpected visitor to the Manor waiting in the default floo room, I leapt on the excuse to leave and compose myself for a few minutes. I walked to the floo room so that I had time to check my reflection in a mirror and repair any imperfections. Upon arriving in the floo room, I was surprised to find:

"Farrah, isn't it?"

"Yes, Mr. Malfoy," she replied respectfully. Then she squared her shoulders. "I argued with myself all day yesterday on whether or not to come over here -"

"You want me to bring you to Orion?" I stated more than asked, but to my surprise, I was wrong.

"No, I specifically told the house elf that I wanted to see Orion's dad," she informed me. "See, I discovered something horribly wrong, and I thought I should tell you about it so that you can DO SOMETHING about it."

"Oh?" I asked in concern.

She nodded. "See, on Friday, after dinner, those of us who are of age and have permission to leave the Castle set off for Hogsmeade to get tea at Madam Puddifoot's. After eating our ice cream, someone suggested checking out the newly remodeled Hog's Head -"

I wiped a hand over my face, already dead certain that I knew where this was going.

"And found - well at first, it was rather fun. They were having a theme night called Full Monty Friday."

I raised a brow at that.

"And the first act was an astonishingly fit bloke, so I suppose that we didn't really think too hard about what was actually going on," Farrah explained, looking like she expected to be punished for her actions. "Then there was a woman who got up on stage that made us all wonder if it was right to be cheering on and supporting people GETTING NAKED for money. I mean that while it is a bit fun to watch, the woman was not much older than me, and in fact was a Seventh Year Ravenclaw LAST year, if I remember correctly, and so, only a year out of school. None of us thought that was fair - for a young woman to be degrading herself like that just to make a living."
I held up a hand to stop Farrah from going on and on, but she was talking in such a rush now that I don't think she could have stopped herself if she tried.

"But THEN - after we were all already filled with hesitation on the morality of the place - a different woman came up on stage. She was older, setting our minds at ease for a moment, but almost immediately, we noticed that Orion was standing off to the side of the stage. And he was looking rather brilliant in a full bespoke suit. Holding a microphone, he started singing a song that the woman danced to."

"Farrah..." I tried to interrupt.

"As he sang, she stripped off to reveal a full body costume of paint - orange and black like tiger stripes - AND THEN she used what were probably fake claws to SHRED his suit to pieces, leaving him starkers on stage in front of EVERYONE!!" She was quite distressed by this point, gesturing emphatically to make her point. "I couldn't BELIEVE that the club would allow a BOY still in HOGWARTS to dance like that! Isn't it against the law?!?!"

Smirking at her passionate outrage, I took advantage of the fact that she finally seemed to be finished talking. "Farrah, I understand your concern. BELIEVE ME, I understand! I also happen to feel much like you do, alarmed and concerned and more than a little upset over Orion's career choice. THAT SAID, no, he's not breaking any laws. He's of age and has permission to be leaving Hogwarts each night, thus, he's not even breaking any school rules."

"BUT!" Farrah tried to protest, only she fell silent again when I held up my hand.

"And despite not LIKING the fact that my son is stripping off in front of a large audience, I've gone over every aspect of the business and have come to the conclusion - along with Harry - that he's found a business that he loves and is good at. More than anything else, we have ALWAYS supported our children in doing whatever makes them happy, and owning the Hog's Head is making Orion happier than we've ever seen him."

"BUT HE'S A RAVENCLAW!!!" She roared in protest. "HE'S SO UNBELIEVABLY SMART!!! WHY IN MERLIN'S BUGGERING ARSE IS HE DOING SOMETHING SO PRIMATIVE AS STRIPPING - WAIT! DID YOU SAY HE OWNS THE PLACE?!?!"

I chuckled. "Yes, he OWNS the place, meaning that he's doing exactly as he likes, and he's NOT doing a thing he doesn't want to."

"SO YOU'RE TELLING ME THAT HE SANG A SONG CALLED MAN EATER AND HAD A BINT SHRED HIS CLOTHES TO BITS BECAUSE HE THOUGHT IT WOULD BE A BRILLIANT IDEA?!?! LET ME AT HIM, MR. MALFOY, SO THAT I CAN GIVE HIM A PIECE OF MY MIND!!!"

I was more than a little amused by this point. "Muffy, bring me a Calming Draught."

"Yes master," Muffy replied as she popped up next to me and held out the requested item.

"Farrah, allow me to give you just a drop of this potion. It'll be just enough to help you stop shouting, but not so much as you stop being upset completely, yeah?"

Sighing in aggravation, she nodded, probably because she could see Morgana giving her a rather dark glare from my chest, and probably felt that shouting (more) around babies was not the best idea. After she'd taken the drop, I invited her to follow me back to where our entire circle was partying on the South Lawn. Honestly, by the time we'd gotten there, she was looking a bit overwhelmed by the size and 'richness' of our home, and perhaps even intimidated.

By this point, Orion was acting a bit like a naked heathen, in the pond with pretty much ALL the kids, splashing and sparring each other quite vigorously. In fact, he'd just picked Bianca up and was about to throw her back in the water even as she screamed bloody murder and her twin brother roared with laughter. Bianca landed in the water and recovered remarkably quickly, popping back up, slinging her hair out of her eyes, and promising to murder him by drowning him. This prompted Lily, Persephone, and Caelum to let out a warcry and rally to his aid.

Which led to Misha, Tristan, and Tatyana rallying to aid THEIR sister. Or in other words, the entire group devolved into a bunch of heathens trying to drown each other. It was sheer chaos at it's finest. I couldn't help but laugh as I watched.

And also subtly check to make sure that the charms to prevent drowning were still working to their full effect. I glanced over to find Farrah looking positively murderous as she watched Orion, Bianca, and Roderick wrestle around under a pile of littles. Deciding that it might be time to attempt to break up the battle, I clapped my hands and called out (probably a bit more gleefully than the situation called for):

"ORION! YOU HAVE A VISITOR!"

He was so surprised by this that Bianca succeeded in drowning him for nearly three seconds before he recovered and Apparated to my side.

"FARRAH!!!" He shouted in astonishment upon discovering her next to me. "WHAT ARE YOU DOING HERE?!"

She was still very much riled up, and I'm not certain the Calming Drop was helping in the slightest. She hauled back and slapped him across the face. "You disgusting pig!"

And with that, she Apparated away, presumably to her own home, leaving Orion standing there, holding a hand to his cheek and having NO IDEA what he'd done wrong. I was most definitely inappropriately amused, laughing as I hugged him and gave him a kiss on the cheek. But rather than tell him what the problem was, I wandered back over to you so that I could give you kisses and just generally bask in your presence.

I adore, mi amor,
Draco
Monday May 15, 2017

My Own,

Today was the best day! It's only day one for me, but I totally get why you loved teaching your combat class and your dance class. I just, giving knowledge to eager minds, I can't even describe how awesome it was.

I'm going to try anyway!

Despite our beautifully long day yesterday, I was up and raring to go just after sunrise. What? I can't help it! I was just too excited for my first day teaching. Well, technically not my first day of teaching, because I'm just the assistant right now. Also, probably not my first day since I did the DA while we were still in school. But I think that was maybe less teaching and more tutor? Leader of a club? Leader of a vigilante gang? But I suppose I did teach them, so I could probably be considered a teacher because I wasn't just helping them expand on something they'd already been taught, but literally teaching them new skills. Then again, if teaching new skills is the only requirement for being called a teacher, then everyone is a teacher because at some point everyone will teach a new skill.

But I digress.

I got to Hogwarts in plenty of time to have breakfast in the Great Hall. Obviously, I went to school here myself for six years, and over the years of having kids in the school - plus the rituals we would come for - I've sat at all the different house tables. But today I sat with the teachers. Let me tell you, that was really weird. I actually went to sit at the Slytherin table with Vivi and Haz when Minnie cleared her throat and reminded me the Professors sat up at the head table.

Why the Slytherin table you ask? Well, Ori generally doesn't make it to breakfast in the Great Hall since he's up so late most evenings. And one of the classes I was teaching today was actually Zwei's class, so I figured I'd already be spending time with my Gryffindors and should shake it up by sitting in the snake pit.

I had first and second years today for the two classes I sat in on. The little firsties are so cute I could just die. Were we ever that small Draco? Carrying around books that are practically half their size. Their teeny tiny little robes making them look like toddlers playing dressup in their parents clothes. Asking the most adorable questions. Luckily I've had a lifetime of fielding what seem like insane questions about Muggle life from Arthur. What's the function of a rubber duck indeed!

I'm glad they have muggle studies (obviously since it's now going to be my job!) but I'm glad they have it separated and kids who grew up Muggle aren't in these classes. Only kids who grew up in the wizarding world take these classes. And the kids who grew up Muggle or in a half and half house take Wizarding studies. I normally like things to be fully integrated, it's what makes Traditions so special. But it's also good to have a safe space for learning where children don't have to feel embarrassed asking questions. I fielded quite a few questions today about things that seem so basic - like refrigerators and cars - and I'm sure if these children had been in a class full of kids who already knew the answers, they might have avoided asking the question as to not appear stupid.

Zwei's class was definitely interesting because he and his friends were in it. Zwei, and a lot of his friends, were raised in the wizarding world. But we've spent so much time around the world, often in Muggle areas, that Zwei knows more than your average pure-blood. Which means he's also exposed his friends to a lot of things Muggle. His class was just as inquisitive, but they had much more specific questions. Where the first years were asking about what a telly is for, the second years were asking things like why telly programs were so different in different areas of the world.

This could very possibly just be because they are finishing up their second year of studies and happen to have more knowledge to expand on, but I really do think Zwei had something to do with it. Especially since one of the "different" telly programs that was brought up was some weird anime you guys watch!

Oh! I went to lunch in between the two classes and managed to see Orion. You know, he has always been such an observer, sitting on the sidelines and taking everything in. I quite forget he's half drama queen! He had a bright red handprint on his face yesterday from Farrah's slap. I assumed he would have healed it since it was just a tiny bruise (obviously a big one for only having come from a slap, but still.) Nope. Your son left it in all its glory, and then spent the entire lunch period glaring daggers at Farrah from across the Hall. Farrah glaring right back at him.

Those two ridiculous children are going to be the death of me!

Anyway, I had better get back to work ... unless your read this and think it's really really important to come distract me ...

I'm putting together some ideas for tomorrow's classes. I have Siri's class and I have a feeling they're going to ask me all about dirt-biking, surfing and some of the other extreme sports we like to do. I'm putting together a power-point presentation! I figure even if they don't ask about the sports, hey I can talk about power-point!

If you wanted the moon I would try to make a star, but I would rather you let me give my heart, Harry

Tuesday May 16th
My dearest sanity,

You know, this past weekend, when Viona mentioned that she was getting a bit frazzled because her wedding is in less than two months, I thought: "Oh how cute, she has a tiny bit of Harry in her after all."

OH NO.... It has only been TWO DAYS since then, and I've been getting Insta-owls nearly on the hour saying things like: "HAVE YOU DOUBLE CHECKED THE FLOWERS???") and: "HAVE THE ELVES BAKED THEIR TEST CAKES YET???") and my favorite one I'm receiving no less than every three owls: "PLEASE KEEP IN MIND THAT MY WEDDING IS JULY NINTH!!! THAT'S LESS THAN TWO MONTHS!!"
My dear Harry, how in the fuck did you pass your panickiness on to our stoic and level-headed daughter?!??!

At this rate, I'm going to murder one of the three of us before the big day.

FOR MERLIN'S SAKE!!! She's had EVERYTHING fully planned out, ordered, and fine tuned for at LEAST six months!!! Argh!

Deep breath in... and sigh...

Alright, I can't let myself be dragged into her madness.

In better things to think about, I love how much you loved your first day. I hope I made that clear by pouncing on you the moment you returned and Apparating you straight to our playroom for all your favorite punishments/rewards. Despite ordering Muffy to keep Morgana asleep until we finished, you'd barely passed out in a thoroughly sated puddle of goo when I was called back to deal with a baby that was steadily destroying the things in our room. This I can handle, especially when all it takes is picking her up and giving her a bottle.

You know, eventually, we're going to have to come up with a way to keep her calm when she wants me and I legitimately cannot drop everything to go to her. At least she hasn't figured out how to Apparate to me like Jaz did. Let's PRAY she doesn't figure that out!

As for Orion, I would never tell him this out loud - it's why I didn't explain anything after Farrah slapped him - but I think the only solution to his 'problems' with that girl is to just shag her and see if that resolves the UST. Otherwise, he just needs to give in and date her - and probably marry her, if we're anything to go by, hahaha. That said, if she's is genuinely THAT upset by his ownership of the Hog's Head, I can see how that would make for a difficult relationship, bordering on impossible, and more than anything, I'd like to spare all of our children from heartbreak. Perhaps things will get better after they graduate.

But erm... I'm not certain Orion will stay in school next year. After all, he doesn't NEED any of his NEWTS in order to own/run his businesses, and so, at this point, school seems to be a bit of a drain on his time. I did finally manage to get him to admit that he's been using my time turner to get enough sleep each night, but even that can't be healthy for too long. Right?

Also speaking of Orion, and Farrah I suppose, I noticed that she seemed to become unreasonably jealous when she watched Orion wrestling around in the pond with Bianca, then I thought that maybe she mistook the fact that they were all basically naked as some sort of sexual thing despite the fact that there were CHILDREN involved in the naked water wrestling. But after giving it a bit more thought, I think she might actually be right. Bianca and Roderick have been awful flirty with Orion since he played bartender to them in Switzerland, so... maybe Farrah had a reason to be jealous?

I bet our quartet would LOVE if their kids and our son (or other kid) formed a longterm relationship. I know I would like that, as I feel their kids are rather lovely and worthy of ours. But also, the more I interact with Farrah, the more I kind of like her too. SO glad I don't have to worry about dating!!! I am married to the other half of my soul and it's going to stay that way for the rest of eternity if I have my druthers!

But as for now, Caelum just came over, sat in my lap, and gave me the biggest puppy dog eyes. Apparently, it's been 'forever' since I brought him riding on your motorcycle, so I guess I'm about to take Caelum and Morgana out for a nice long ride.
We didn’t start the fire (but we might as well have),
Draco
P.S. You still are that small.
Thursday May 18, 2017
My Love,

As I told you Tuesday when I got home, day two of teaching was a success! Teaching third and fourth years was quite a bit different than first and second years, they ask very different questions and are old enough to understand things on a different level than the little ones. A year or two makes such a huge difference.

But on that same note, a year or two makes a hell of a lot of difference when they keep aging up as well. My classes with the seventh years today were actually really hard. Not because they're basically a month away from graduating and already checked out. No, far from it. These are passionate, brilliant, young men and women. And because of that, they asked hard questions. Not hard as in I didn't know the answer - like when a fourth year on Tuesday tried to get me to explain how a carburetor works.

No, these kids were asking real questions about political discord within the muggle world. They talked about their fears for the planet due to pollution and climate changes. The rampant inequality in the world; be it based on class, gender, race, sexuality, you name it. They wanted my take on how we as wizards and witches could help promote change without completely outing our society. They were angry and ready to take on the world while still maintaining a childlike innocence and wanting to think the adults have it all figured out.

Gods, I wish I could have it all figured out. I really thought I'd have everything figured out and feel very much an adult by now.

Or I thought I'd be dead. No in between.

I was worried the older kids were going to ask about things like how to find porn or if I thought pot could get you as high as gillyweed. I think I would have preferred the drug and porn questions.

Despite the shock, it really was a great class. I know our kids are amazing, and our nieces and nephews, but I think I had this idea that our worldly children who care about things outside of quidditch and friends and drinking games were the exception not the rule. I was pleasantly surprised at how insightful these young men and women are. I'm really even more excited about full-time teaching next year than I was earlier in the week.

Until I did prep work today. Ugh ... grading essays, marking papers, planning a set curriculum? That is definitely not going to be my favorite part of teaching. It's obviously important, I need to have a schedule otherwise the kids would have me going off on insane tangents every day and no one would ever learn anything. But it's just not fun. It reminds me of when I was fully running Unity House; I loved playing with the kids, reading bedtime stories, cooking meals, drying tears, but the weekly regular paperwork as well as intake and outbound paperwork? The worst.
I can already tell that I am going to teach so differently than Professor Collins. I don't think he does things wrong, but it's definitely not my style. He made it very clear that the mostly student-led classes we had this week were for my benefit and to get all of the students nonsense out of the way in one fell swoop. He prefers a fairly rigid schedule to avoid the children running away with the lesson.

Alright, I can understand that line of thinking. I know I am easily distracted and it's not exactly hard for kids to get me going off on a rant, lecture, or tangent. But why is that bad? As long as it all pertains to muggle studies, why should the kids be forced to learn about pop culture from 1975-1982 if something in the lecture sparks a completely different conversation that they're actually interested in? Obviously if it reminds them of something wizarding and they don't learn anything Muggle it's a problem, but do they really need to learn about that specific lesson if what they really want to know is how World War II changed Muggle culture?

Kids are always going to be more eager to learn if the subject matter is something they care about and can connect to.

Oh! Speaking of my personality quirks like tangents. Yes, Viona is stoic and level-headed. But I think you forget that I am very often level-headed. I spent years taking care of terrified children coming into a scary place. I worked my arse off at being a calm refuge in a life of upheaval. I might be rambly, but I am also pretty mellow and go-with-the-flow. But when my temper comes out or my panicking comes out, it comes out big. I know you like to think Viona, because she has your business savvy and has been a foodie since she was six months old, that she's all you. But I want you to think about why she's your favorite. It's because she's actually the MOST like me of all the children.

Think about it. She's highly competitive. Prefers the most dangerous of sports. She loves her family and children and is fiercely protective of those chosen people. And when her temper or panic hits, she loses her damn mind. Remind you of anyone?

I actually HOPE Morgana starts taking after her sister Jasmine. Jaz just apparated whenever she wanted you, Morgana blows things up. Do you actually prefer the shattered bits of our possessions?

Weirdo.

I'm going to go feed the babies and hopefully get to sleep early. It's been a long week for me getting back into the work force and I have an early morning tomorrow making breakfast for Lissa and Cael's birthdays.

Yours,
Harry
P.S. Not small where it counts! ^_- year!

But as I was saying, the match was INTENSE!

It started out normally enough. The Captains shook hands and the teams were off in the air. The Chasers got to work earning points while the Seekers peeled their eyes for the snitch. As I understand it, Ravenclaw needed to win by at least a 200 point lead if they wanted the Cup, and Gryffindor was in the lead and wanted to catch the snitch as soon as possible so that Ravenclaw couldn't get their needed points. Normal.

But then Siri and Zwei were doing such a good job keeping the Ravenclaw Chasers away from the Quaffle that Ravenclaw was becoming a bit desperate, and that led to Orion ordering his beaters to take the boys down, if possible. Presumably without seriously hurting them. It quickly turned into a fierce battle, that let Ravenclaw gain some much needed points.

I suppose that Siri and Zwei got a bit frustrated that their own brother was 'working against them' and decided to retaliate by targeting him. I swear I could hear Farrah in the stands cheering them on with a rousing: "Go go Gryffindor!" Apparently, she's taking sides in this minor war, haha.

At one point, I was dead certain that McGonagall was going to have to intervene and order our three boys to stop trying to murder each other, but she was clearly also rooting for Gryffindor. You tried to hide it, but I could tell you were too.

I was completely impartial. Alright fine, so I was hoping that Orion would win his potentially last match as Captain, as I strongly suspect that he won't be back next year. And I am more sure of that than ever after what happened. It was probably, oh... about two hours in. Perhaps three.

Orion was flying astonishingly well, managing to evade both his brothers AND the Bludgers they kept hounding him with, when suddenly, it seems like Gryffindor House decided to employ some Psychological Warfare. They started heckling Orion every single time he passed their stand.

"Oi! Malfoy! I thought you were supposed to be RICH, but then why do you have to work such a menial job?!"

"Do your DADS know what you're doing?!"

"Not such a wealthy snob now, are you?"

"What happen, your dad lose the family fortune?"

And the worst one of all was when they started chanting something along the lines of: "Orion takes it off for money!" And: "Go on Orion, take it off, I've got a Galleon!"

I bristled, and this is EXACTLY why I was concerned. Well, partially, my bigger concern is that people will try to buy him for an hour or a night, and that... well, I mean it's not exactly conducive to healthy consensual sex. But also, there are certain connotations to his chosen career that might make it harder for him to live a normal life - should he ever change his mind.

I'm really not sure if he thought this all through, and what to do if his classmates found out what he was doing. But to my surprise, he either DID think it through, or he has the ability to accept sudden criticism and embrace it without shame. Because he did one of the LAST things I expected from our quiet observer - the boy who may have been raised in a nudist household with no shame, but has STILL usually been more of a follower (with our girls being the leaders) than an attention seeker. Oh sure, he sings and dances with the rest of us, but he's NOT the one to start the giant singalong.
Anyway, he didn't even flinch when he finally caught on to what they were saying, he simply stopped to hover in the exact center of the field, cast a Sonorus Charm on his throat, and then proved that he gives no fucks about what anyone thinks of him.

"Don't you want me, baby? Don't you want me, O~~~~H!" And - while singing rather impressively - he flew around the field flirting with the worst of the hecklers.

Things might have gotten back on track rather quickly had everyone simply realized that he wasn't going to let them get to him - and lucky for him, the Gryffindor chasers were too busy gogging at him to take advantage of the fact that he's the Ravenclaw Keeper and was NOT guarding the goal posts in the slightest. However, someone (and I'm half certain it was Farrah, even though I can't prove it) shouted: "MALFOY IS A NASTY PIG!!"

Well... that certainly didn't go over well with a good half the school. No wait, it just FEELS like we have that many kids at this point. Orion may not have even heard it, because he was still singing his line over and over, but Siri and Zwei must have assumed that their Housemates made the rude remark, because they commandeered the Bludgers to attack the Gryffindor stand, provoking Hufflepuff to come to their aid.

And then - and I'm honestly not certain how it all happened, it happened SO quickly! Suddenly, Orion was ordering Ravenclaw to defend his brothers, Gryffindor the House was in a bit of a brawl with our sons, and the TEAM came to defend THEM from their own beaters. Eris handed Luka over to his father, rolled up her sleeves, and co-led Slytherin (with Hazel and Viona) over to defend their brothers (all three of them), and before anyone could say so much as Oi! Even Ravenclaw (the House) entered the fray and students were literally brawling on the Quidditch Pitch.

That takes me back to Fifth Year...

Anyway, I was torn between being SO PROUD of our kids for kicking arse (and even Shtara, Zaire, and Jaz were joined in by this point) and also being embarrassed and a bit obligated to try and help put a stop to things. I slouched down in my seat a bit and made a show of holding onto Morgana and Gabriel (Dean was actually holding Dylan), leaving you free to look like you were about to jump in and take sides.

Suddenly, the entire field froze, literally incapacitated by an Imobulus Charm cast by one seriously upset McGonagall. I thought for sure at that point that the entire game would have to be forfeit, but nope! It seems our son really is brilliant and good at strategy, because while he and everyone else was involved in a fight that even the Commentator was watching like a hawk, the Ravenclaw Seeker had (been ordered to and was) quietly done her job and caught the snitch and simply held onto it until the brawling was over. Thus, as everyone was frozen on the field, the sun seemed to catch on the gleaming snitch, bringing it to our attention, and thereby declaring Ravenclaw the winners.

I must admit that I laughed my arse off at that turn of events!

But that was Saturday and today is still Monday for another few minutes, I'm sure. It wasn’t particularly long or trying for me, but I feel exhausted by it anyway.

So, there I was, sitting in bed feeding Morgana from the breast harness full of breast milk stored back when we still had a wet nurse on staff here, when I... Well, I was naturally looking at her, scrutinizing her every tiny feature and trying to see if I could remember ANYONE from that time undercover that could be the other half of her heritage, and honestly, nope. Not a single one of them made an impression on me. I can't recall anything more detailed than a feeling of boredom and impatience to get the job done. The ACTUAL job, not just the prostitution part, but that too.
And the more I stared at our gorgeous little girl, the more I WANTED to know who in the fuck helped make her. NOT because I want that arsehole anywhere NEAR our life, but because I want to know her heritage. I want to be certain when she asks questions like: "Why do I look different than all of my brothers and sisters?" Rather than say, "I dunno, you were a bit of a surprise with an utter stranger," I can say: "Well, this and that happened for reasons, and so, you have a specific heritage from a specific man - who's a lowlife arsehole and you don't need to know anything about him. BUT your culture is this."

Know what I mean?

So, when I received an owl from Robards saying that he wanted me to come in for a bit when I felt it was convenient, I decided that it would not be a bad idea at all to go in and make a trip to my office while I was at it. I brought Morgana with me because I wanted the Manor to still exist when I got back, but I hadn't anticipated bringing Jaz again, until she popped in as if she'd known for years what I was planning to do today.

I didn't actually want to bring her, as you had pointed out that perhaps I SHOULDN'T let her listen in on the 'daddy-is-being-framed-for-murder' conversation, but she gave me her prettiest pleading puppy dog eyes, and I STILL haven't figured out how to say no to those. So... she came with me.

Don't judge! I'd like to see YOU say no!

Once in the Ministry, I stopped in to see Robards first. And lest you fret, yes, I DID my morning routine and got all pretty before leaving the house. Jaz actually joined me, proving that she does remember a good skincare routine to help keep her looking young for as long as possible. Morgana strangely doesn't like me putting anything on her face yet though.

But back to Robards, he raised a brow when he saw both Morgana and Jaz again, but then shrugged because he correctly assumed that I knew what we were going to be talking about and brought them anyway. Gesturing an invitation to be seated, he got right to the point.

"So, as we previously discussed, I've had all your students paired up with Senior Aurors while at work, and also required them to stay with their Auror Partner for a few weeks, at least long enough to be reasonably certain that none of them are in danger. All was going well, and I was nearly ready to let them free again. But then... well..." he sighed heavily and shook his head.

"Diiiid one of them get murdered?" I asked not only hesitantly but very reluctant to hear the answer to that.

"Thankfully, no," Robards denied with a shake of his head. "That said, Gillian Walters was attacked and -"

"Who?" I interrupted him with an extremely confused expression, I'm sure.

"One of your students..." He replied slowly, looking at me as if he couldn't believe I had to ask.

"Hmm... name doesn't ring a bell..." I murmured, honestly trying to recall who he was talking about. There've only been five female students, so it shouldn't have been THAT hard, but nope, could not put a face to the name.

Robards looked practically gobsmacked. "She was your ONLY female student during this last class!"

"Oh! Girly!" I exclaimed in enlightenment. "I actually rather like her."
Sighing, Robards rubbed his forehead for a moment before pressing on. "As I was saying, Miss Walters had a bit of a date on Saturday night and she'd convinced her Partner to drop her off with the promise that she'd Insta-owl when the date was over. The plan was to be picked up and return home safely. However, Miss Walters decided that 2 AM was a bit late to be expecting a pick-up when she could just Apparate. The only problem was that she had to leave the muggle building and find the nearest Apparation Point - out of CCTV range, you know? To preserve the Statute of Secrecy, since most muggle places have security surveillance."

I gave him a look to let him know he was rambling a bit.

"Right, anyway, as I was saying, Miss Walters only had to walk about two blocks, and at some point during her brisk walk, she was grabbed from behind, had a Blinding Spell cast on her, thrown up against the wall of the alley, and choked. She says she would have died had her training not kicked in and - despite being effectively blind - she kicked her attacker's arse and may well have incapacitated him had he not Apparated away. And she knows for certain that it was a he because she punched him in the genitals at one point and got a good feel for them."

I chuckled softly, glad to hear my classes have made a difference for at least one of my students. Two, counting my Timid Little Mouse.

This made Robards take a breath, exhale his frustration, and chuckle too. "Yes, I did find that a bit poetic."

Getting serious, I frowned in concern. "So... it seems there IS someone out there targeting the people whose files were stolen."

He nodded solemnly. "Yes... and I must point out that this is the student who filed harassment charges against you, and so, it COULD be argued that you had motive."

"Ugh, the ONLY motive I'd ever care to act on would be defending any of my kids - or family in general, I suppose. ESPECIALLY Harry, but I think we all know that he's MORE than capable of defending himself," I pointed out.

"There is that," Robards agreed with a chuckle. "My point is - first, where were you Saturday night at 2AM?"

I grinned, appreciating the opportunistic approach whenever I see it. "At home, in bed with my husband, and at that point, I KNOW he can confirm my alibi as we'd either just finished up feeding our three babies and decided to put each other back to sleep in a fun and satisfying way, OR we were in the middle of a glorious simultaneous orgasm."

"DAD! I DIDN'T NEED TO KNOW THAT!!" Jaz protested via emphatic sign language.

"Oi! YOU'RE the one that insisted on coming with me!" I reminded her aloud and in BSL. "If you don't want to know squicky details, then DON'T come with me to meetings with the Head Auror!"

She sighed in frustration but didn't argue.

"My point is that there IS someone out there, and I STILL think they're trying to frame you. I have no idea if they know that you're NOT a suspect, and if so, what they think about that. I would guess that they probably don't know, because obviously, if they did, they'd try something else. I mean short of fixing it so it looks damn well exactly like you killed someone and then killed yourself, I'm not sure how they can incriminate you in a way that you CANNOT defend against."

Jaz gave me a questioning look, probably wondering why Robards was so certain that I couldn't be "First of all, keep in mind that we have a whole team of excellent lawyers to ensure that anything less than clear and definite proof will be dismissed out of hand. BUT there's ALSO the fact that I PERSONALLY have helped to create a lot of the methods used to catch criminals. After watching muggle telly - crime shows - I created spells or invented devices to bring Magi-forensics into the current millennium. I also spent a great deal of time planning out how best to CATCH criminals - in groups no less. So honestly, WHY would I want to BE a criminal? I tried that once when I was no better than a boy and came to the realization that I was shite at it!"

Jaz laughed and signed that I was babbling.

"Right. Thanks love!" I praised her, returning my attention to Robards. "It seems that this criminal is smart enough to know SOME of the things we Aurors do, but not everything. For example, he apparently chose an unmonitored alley, and attacked from behind so he couldn't be seen, but then used his magic, which leaves a signature we can try to track."

Robards nodded in agreement. "Plus, he's targeting people that point back to YOU, which means that he knows enough about you to do so, has something against you that motivates him, AND can somehow manage to steal files from highly secure Ministry Archives."

I stroked my chin in thought. "Hmm... well... the only thing we can be CERTAIN of is that girly is NOT the criminal. And if she's to be believed, the criminal is definitely male, which rules out ALL the female students and Aurors. Maybe we can use that to our advantage and swear them all to secrecy before arming them with Camera Contacts. Wait, first, I have to test them to see if they're affected by the blinding spell. I don't think they should be, but if they ARE, I might be able to ward them so they're protected from it. And then also equip them with the ear buds - which I can either charm to look like regular earrings OR make invisible. Tiny? Maybe a clear flat disc that sticks to this part of the ear," I suggested as I pointed to the part of the ear that is NOT in the canal, but is inside the... ear...

Robards rolled his eyes and said: "I always glaze over when you start talking weird tech. Do what you have to do, I'll leave that part of it up to you, and I agree, keeping the male Aurors in the dark - FOR NOW - is a good idea until we can be certain which ones are definitely not our criminal."

"So you think the criminal is a male Auror?" Jaz asked via signing.

I shrugged. "Well, if he's not an Auror, he DOES seem to have access to Aurors or someone in the Ministry to help him get in and steal files without being detected. I personally think that only someone with general clearance to access the Archives could get in and steal files, maybe while legitimately accessing non-classified files that aren't related to this."

"I must admit, I thought about that, but I don't think it's possible. Especially NOT for restricted files. That takes something else. I currently think that someone somehow obtained the security credentials from one of the Archive Witch's assistants, and used the credentials to visit the Archive after hours. The good news is that THAT would be recorded in some magical log somewhere, so we can potentially figure out WHEN it happened. The bad news is that we don't know how long ago this may have happened, and so, it could take some time to sort through all after hours visits - or find the only one if it happens to be more than a few months ago - to find out WHEN it happened, and from there, see if we can find any sort of security logs showing who was actually in the Ministry at the time."

I stroked my chin in thought again. "Hmm... you know, it being someone inside the Ministry DOES rather explain how the criminal managed to evade the blood tracking spell. Simply being INSIDE the Ministry puts him behind wards strong enough to protect him from that spell.

Robards abruptly smacked himself on the forehead. "Merlin Buggering Bloody Hell!!!" Then he flinched and glanced at Jaz a bit guiltily. She purposely looked confused and I - smirking - said: "We didn't let her learn any of those words."

She pressed her lips together and looked really very convincingly innocent. She's been taking acting lessons from Shtara, hasn't she? It makes sense as I'm almost certain that Jaz takes care of Wojtek when Shtara's not home. Speaking of, I'm going to have to go find my bloody bear in the morning and make sure that he's being well taken care of and is growing as he should be. NOT that I think our daughter would neglect him, just that I haven't seen him with my own eyes since before Morgana was born, and I'm now feeling a bit guilty about that.

Anyway, Robards recovered from the mild embarrassment of swearing in front of a young girl and finished his thought. "I honestly don't know how those fancy new spells work, and so, I wasn't thinking about WHERE a criminal could hide from them, but I'VE been saying since the beginning that I think this is an insider! I never even THOUGHT about how to use the blood sample - hmm... Physical comparison? Rather than track the blood, could we come up with a spell to compare the actual blood with the PEOPLE inside the Ministry?"

I sighed heavily. "I'm not sure. That might just be beyond me - Wait! I wonder..." I trailed off with a bit of a maniacal laugh. "Paternity test!!"

Robards looked confused. "The Paternity Test Spell compares magical signatures..."

I nodded with a grin. "Right! So, we use a simple doll and glamour it to look like a real baby. Maybe I can make it sound and ACT like a real baby for an hour or so. And then we tuck the vial of preserved blood into the doll and go around - or actually, best to have a professional Healer do this part. Have a Healer go around testing the 'baby' against all the men in the Ministry for 'Paternity.' You know... because the mother INSISTS that some not-quite-sure-who man who works here fathered the babe, and we want to prove her wrong."

Robards shook his head even as he chuckled in amusement. "You know, I've actually always believed in you. I see in you a man who genuinely wants to make the world a safer place - for all your MANY children. I don't even need to be a Legilimens to see it, just a good judge of character. That said, I'm EXTREMELY glad that you AREN'T a criminal! I have conversations like these with you, and I'm always left wondering how you can be so... dare I say CRIMINALLY smart, and yet, you put that brilliance towards CATCHING criminals."

I harrumphed a laugh. "Well, as much as I hate to remember it, my family did TRY the criminal route, and not only were we TERRIBLE at it, but it nearly destroyed us all." I shook my head. "I'm NEVER doing anything like that again!"

To my surprise, a little snow globe of Rome, that had been randomly flickering white this whole time (and actually, is ALWAYS in Robards office and so, is ALWAYS flickering white), that I always dismiss as an odd decorative charm, anyway, it suddenly flashed a brilliant white that practically blinded me.

Robards jabbed a thumb in its direction. "My trusty lie detector. The more sincere the truth told, the brighter the light. It flashes shades of red when people lie, but most people assume that the red flashes represent the Christmas lights in the globe."

I had no idea it could flash red...
Well, with the meeting more or less concluded, Robards told me to give him a few days to think things over a bit more, and maybe come up with a plan. Meanwhile, he wants me to do as I suggested, and give the female Aurors - especially my former students - any tech I deem useful; tweaking it if necessary first.

So, I stood to leave, but I had already made a hasty half baked plan before arriving, and now that I had time, I wanted to...

"Jasmine, my love," I murmured as I pulled her close and kissed her temple. "Can I tempt you into inviting girly and her Auror Partner to tea in the cafeteria for a bit - or preferably just going home - while I do something important to me that I simply CANNOT let you see."

She looked devastated, making me feel apologetic for being a concerned father. I hugged her. "Look, it's going to be a rather long session of me reviewing ugly footage - things you aren't old enough to see. And so, I will NOT give in on this. I would pay for you to have tea with a couple of Aurors while you wait, but I think this will take me long enough that you're better off going home."

She sighed in disappointment, but then agreed to go home. I'm not sure what she'll want to be when she grows up, she loves helping animals and people, and I always thought she'd be a Healer of some sort, but considering how interested she seems to be in my participation in the Ministry lately, I'm currently wondering if she wants to be an Auror or... Head of the DMLE?

Happy that she was cooperating, I called in her elf Blue to bring her home, and then headed into my office where I had a copy of all the footage captured by the Contact Cameras during my undercover mission. I didn't need to watch it ALL, and so I basically skipped to each new customer, paused long enough to determine ethnicity, and wrote down anyone who seemed like a possible fit.

There were a few that looked vaguely Asian - like one of their grandparents might have been Asian. I noted them because it was a lead, however unlikely. There were two that had black hair and eyes but fuck if I know what their actual ethnicity is. They could have been ANYTHING - even Caucasian! But looked... like everything???

After going through all the footage, I eventually came to the conclusion that there is actually only one man that CAN be the other father. Not only was he the only one that was fully Asian, but she actually LOOKS like him. It was really weird, if I'm honest. To look at the image of a grown man and see the features of a baby I love like she was a literal piece of my heart.

So... after staring at him for a good 20 or 30 minutes, and arguing with myself back and forth, I finally decided to cave into the curiosity and... see if we had a record for him. As it turns out, we do.

Akahito Naganata. Unless it's Naganata Akahito. In Japanese, the family name is listed first and the given name second, which would make the Japanese version - as far as I can tell - Naganata Akahito, and the way it's listed in the archive our British 'translation' of Akahito Naganata.

Not important.

So, you might be wondering why he's listed in the British Wizarding Archive. Is he a foreign exchange student? A Japanese expat? A businessman doing so much business here that a record was created at some point?

No. He is not. He is a part of the Ministry Record System because he's a Yakuza - the Japanese equivalent of the mob. But not just ANY Yakuza, a BOSS. Like Kisa, I suppose, so I am forcing myself not to automatically assume the worst of this man. That said, he comes to Britain whenever he needs to lay low. And while in Britain, he apparently likes to pay underage girls for sex - hence Morgana.

SO, I don't care if he's a mob boss with a heart of gold - like my dearest auntie. I NEVER want him less than a 100 miles from my daughter! If I should happen to ever see him in real life, I will consider him a definite threat to the safety of our family and take steps to have him made NOT a threat. I'm actually giving serious consideration to asking Kisa or Grandmama to 'somehow' get his skull for me so that I can put it in the dark vault with the rest of the collection.

But I will resist. So far, this man has no reason to ever suspect that I'd quite like him to be dropped into an active volcano. And if I have my way, he never will.

That is the LAST time I will EVER mention him. So don't worry about that.

That said, I'm a little excited that I now have an excuse to bring Morgana to Japan and go a bit overboard buying Japanese things for her to grow up with. I'm thinking a nice marathon session of Cardcaptor Sakura is in order - in the original Japanese, of course. Ooo! I should get a bunch of Japanese lullabies!

And wouldn't she look utterly ADORABLE in a teeny tiny yukata?!

Ugh, but I should probably sign off and try to get a bit of sleep before one of these snuggly little babies wakes up and wants a feed. But before I do, and speaking of feed... What do you think about arranging to have a dinner with just us and Oliver to talk about things such as your new job, his new job, all of us moving to Hogwarts in September, how he's feeling now that it's been a few weeks, and...

I sort of want to persuade him to let me set my team of expert lawyers on his in-laws. Logically, I understand the law as it relates to property and inheritance and the like, but the fiery core inside me HATES that they were able to leave him with NOTHING!!! He was a PROFESSIONAL Quidditch Player, for Merlin's sake! He had to have made MILLIONS! Potentially, but still, definitely more than NOTHING!

I don't care who this Edmire or Edger or Edwhateverthebloodyfuckhisnameis - I don't care WHO his family is, because I can almost GUARANTEE that they don't have as much money as WE do, and if it came down to a matter of who can afford the better lawyers, we're going to win that battle 100 out of a 100 times!

Damnit! Now I'm riled up! I'm going to sign off and ravish you!

Once you get it, you're in an awful fix, because after you've had it, you never wanna quit,
Draco
Chapter 131

Chapter Summary

Harry thinks he is the world's best Quidditch player, and Draco obviously disagrees.

Wednesday May 24, 2017

My Dragon,

My current schedule for spending time at Hogwarts prior to the end of term is pretty consistently going to be Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays. That's what I did last week. And it's why we decided to have our grown-up men dinner last night, knowing I wouldn't have to get up early this morning to head to classes. But I woke up early anyway.

Ha! Woke up early! I think the real thing that happened was that I just didn't sleep much at all last night. I finally gave up around six this morning. Went for a run. That didn't turn my brain off. So I decided to head into Hogwarts anyway to hopefully get my mind off my overthinking.

Except when I got here I realized I hadn't left you a note so I decided to send you a quick email to let you know. But now that I'm writing I'm thinking maybe I need to write to you instead of trying to ignore what I'm thinking.

But I suppose before I get into what I'm thinking, I should probably reply to some of the things you mentioned in YOUR last email before I forget. I can just see this happening, "Draco, I TOLD you what I thought about that!" "Harry, I would remember that!" "No! It was right after that night we went to dinner ....." Oh.

I suppose, first of all, I am not going to talk about the quidditch match. I have no opinion. I am thoroughly toddler-ing this situation, sticking my fingers in my ears and "La-la-la-ing" my way through.

Except I think I might sic Vivi and Eris on that Farrah bint. Taking things WAY too far. I mean honestly, it was a quidditch match! You and I never even got that extreme while playing quidditch, and we were an absolute nightmare to each other.

Well, mostly just you being a nightmare. I didn't have to intimidate you, I just won all the time. It's easy enough to not feel the need to intimidate when you're the best seeker ever!

Oh, and speaking of Orion ... what do you mean you THINK he's not going to Hogwarts next year? He's not. He already told us. He told McGonagall. He is taking his NEWTS this year with the seventh years. With how far ahead he started out and where his studious nature got him, he's already far ahead of even the advanced seventh year curriculum.

He still wants to take his NEWTS because despite not specifically needing them for his current career, he doesn't want to hinder himself by not having them if he decides on a different career path in the future.

How do you not remember this? He sat us down at dinner, told us how he felt. I can even remember what we were eating, I was having a big bowl of fettuccine alfredo since I'd been craving pasta like crazy and you ... Oh!!! Now I know why you don't remember! He told us while we were both pregnant! Your brain fog was at its thickest. Whew, I am glad I figured that out, I was starting to think I had gone crazy or something.

I KNOW I've gone crazy, I just didn't think I'd gone there in THIS situation!

So our little Queen is part Japanese? As much as I don't like thinking of her having a different biological donor, not because I hate the idea of her having a different biological parent - I obviously have no issues with any of our children's genetics - I just hate that this creep is out there buying access to vulnerable underaged girls. But I suppose the silver lining of him being a creep in the system is having somewhere to work from when introducing Morgana to some of her heritage.

Uh, yes, our Morgana would look adorable in a yukata. But let's just be completely honest here, what would she NOT look adorable in? Did you see how cute she was in the pale pink romper Molly knit for her last week? With the matching bow? I can't believe she let me put the bow in her hair. She gave me quite a look while I was dressing her, but I also spent the entire time I dressed her telling her how unbelievably beautiful she looked. So I think she was willing to allow it as long as she received praise as is her due.

Oh! You went to the Ministry the other day, that's how you learned about the Bio. I just want to check over something with you real quick ... lest I fret I should know you primped and got all pretty for Robards? This helps me not fret how? Have you met me? Are you new? Have you recently consumed lead paint or fallen and hit your extremely hard head?

I swear, you used to be smarter.

But hey, on a completely different subject, and I suppose it doesn't actually matter it just piqued my curiosity. Why didn't Robards' snow-globe lie-detector go off when you lied about Jaz not knowing the naughty words? Or was it just a small enough lie that he wasn't paying attention? Or do you think even though you specifically were lying, you worded it just so that it wasn't technically a lie. You said "we didn't let her" learn those words. Technically we didn't let her, or specifically teach her them, but she certainly learned them and we're very much aware of it.

It's my fault really, I have a potty mouth when my temper flares unfortunately. I'd apologize but honestly, they're just words. And I'd rather have my kids say "Merlin buggering bloody hell!" in surprise than call someone "dumb" even though one of those phrases is considered worse.
I think I’ve avoided the elephant in the room long enough.

Last night.

The problem with last night is that there was no problem. And I feel like that's a problem.

So, we left the babies with your mum, and ... You know, as hard as it is for you to find time away from Morgana, and the fact that usually that means she's firmly attached to me as second runner up, she really does adore her Grandma Cissy. Especially if she has her almost triplet twin brothers with her. Her former multiple-womb-stomach-mates.

It was just guys' night out. But instead of pubs and greasy chips, we headed off to eat a late dinner at Cafe Exquis, and then went for a walk around London. We have two regular tables at Exquis; our huge back room family table that fits all of us, or our tucked away corner date booth. Well, with three of us, the giant table didn't make sense, and even though it was only a Tuesday evening, it was otherwise packed, so we went with just adding a third chair to our usual spot.

It was a lovely dinner, the food was wonderful, the conversation flowed, and we were only a teensy bit scrunched with three at a table for two. Hands brushing, feet tangling under the table, shy smiles any time one of us would bump another. It was actually really reminiscent to me of our first dates.

Except we had another person with us.

I'm absolutely fucking terrified right now. I've uh ... well we've played with so many friends over the years. It's never changed anything. I may have enjoyed taking Blaise up my arse, sucking Ron's cock, or playing puppies with Charlie, but it's always been sexy times. How does brushed fingers reaching for the champagne bottle somehow seem more intimate than humping Neville's leg?

I suppose after almost 18 years of marriage I should know this, but I have literally never had this feeling. Is it normal to have a bit of a crush while still being madly in love with your husband? I've just never had a crush like this since we got married. I thought maybe I had consumed some sort of potion or had my mind messed with, but I am still thoroughly, madly, deeply, in love with you. How can I feel that and also feel butterflies thinking about the completely chaste cheek kisses you and I gave to Ollie when we dropped him off at his cottage last night?

I'm so sorry my love. I thought about not even saying anything. I figured it was silly and I was being ridiculous. Especially considering I've RECENTLY had his dick in my mouth. But then I remembered how badly things go when you and I are less than one hundred percent honest with each other. So, as much as I feel like the worst human being on the planet, I have to be truthful. I love you more today than I did yesterday, more than ten years ago, more than the day we married. But I am having really conflicting and weird feelings about Oliver.

Please don't hate me. Please know I love you with every ounce of my soul. If you need me to never speak to him again, it will be hard, but I will do that for you. Just, please don't give up on me?

I'm sorry,
Your Harry
If you still want me to be your Harry

Wednesday May 24th
My lovably silly little mutt,
You know, you frequently say things like: "I swear, you used to be smarter," Or: "Thank Merlin you're pretty," while simultaneously questioning or having me explain things that are obvious. For example, you KNOW that I tend to take about two hours to get dressed and ready to go each day. You find it amusing that I need so long when I'm 'naturally gorgeous,' and also love that I only ever let you and our family see me all undone.

But when I assure you that I performed my routine and got all pretty before leaving the house - thus donning my 'armor' against the rest of the world - you still manage to worry because you think I got pretty for Robards?

Sometimes I SWEAR you are dense and didn't used to be so dense, sigh.

You most definitely are NOT the best Seeker ever! The only reason you won most of the matches against me is that I was too busy looking at YOU to notice the bloody snitch. Had I ever put my head in the game where it was suppose to be, I would have definitely kicked your arse across the pitch AND castle grounds!

But thank you for reminding me about Orion. Yes, I must have DEFINITELY been lost in a fog that day, because I don't even remember feeling alarmed that our son wanted to take his NEWTS an entire year early, despite not having a clear reason why at the time. NOW I understand that he's just got so many demands on his time, but back then, he was keeping his nightlife a secret from us.

But honestly, I should have noticed the signs much sooner. I mean the day that Eris went into labor, I mentioned being baffled that Orion was looking at chairs - tall ones that just so happen to be a good - comfortable - alternative to the usual bar stools. That should have made me wonder, at the very least.

I'm actually relieved that our son is taking his NEWTS, even though he is my Heir and will NEVER have to work a day in his life - if he doesn't want to. We somehow managed to raise all our kids to know that simply having money is NOT an excuse to slack off their entire lives. It might have something to do with me dragging all of them to business meetings at some point or other, hahaha.

My beloved, my fire, the love of my life, fear not, I am secure in the knowledge that you are madly in love with me. All it takes for me to know this is to get my hands on you, and after a few feigned protests of being too busy at the moment, you never fail to melt with me and forget everything else for five or ten minutes. Or the rest of the day, as the case may be.

So, don't work yourself into a frenzy thinking that you just even remotely hinted that you are done with me. I KNOW you are not. I am not afraid of you falling in love with someone else. I've always said that my only fear is that you'll someday realize what a terrible person I am and leave me for things I did. So long as I don't fuck up enough to completely break us, I am confident that NOTHING could tear us apart.

So you don't have to worry about that. That said, I DO appreciate you being honest with me, and you are right, bad things happen when we are less than 100 percent honest with each other. Even so, you didn't actually have to tell me. I could see it plain as day, written on your face.

My all-time favorite past time is watching you. Why do you think one of my biggest kinks is pairing you up with someone else and simply watching as that person makes your face flush with pleasure? At those times, I am not even slightly distracted about doing anything to make you feel good; I am simply taking in every single minute detail, drinking you in like the nectar of the Gods, and basking in your perfection.
It's still my FAVORITE drug - which I occasionally prove by drinking your blood and getting a tiny bit high off your magic. I am utterly addicted to you, and I could see myself EASILY falling into Oliver's situation in which I remained married to a controlling man for the rest of my life - and not even realize it because I am so addicted to you that I don't even notice.

STOP!!! I did not just say that you are controlling, I said that you COULD be and I wouldn't even notice - or care, if I'm honest.

But back to you looking gorgeous while flushed with puppy love for Oliver. I understand the appeal. He is DAMN good looking considering that he's a couple of years older than us and hasn't exactly been in a position to stay in top shape the last few years. That morning that you laughed your arse off at me snuggling up against him and rutting like an animal in my sleep, I have to admit that he smelled really good and I've allowed myself to fantasize about what could have happened had I just kept my mouth shut and taken advantage of the situation.

But then I feel extremely guilty for fantasizing about taking advantage of a man who is CLEARLY still in mourning for his husband. I know we were both overjoyed when he admitted during dinner that he's been working pretty intensely with a Mind-Healer to help overcome his issues. I don't think he's ready to attend a full on orgy with our entire circle this weekend - should we have planned one (which we don't) - but he seemed ready to at least do a bit of playing around as part of his therapy.

But before you get TOO excited, try to keep in mind that if we do that - take on and fulfill the role of the person/people that help him recover from and get past his abruptly and tragically ended marriage - it will be one of those, erm... Rebounds? That's the term, right? A therapeutic relationship that helps a person move on that almost never lasts more than a couple of months.

So please try not to get TOO attached to him.

That said, I do not mind the idea at all. I rather like the idea of being one of the people who help him remember that the world is still a good place full of loving people. I think he needs that right now. We can work at his pace, healing him and opening him back up to the possibility of love, and then if he happens to find it again, we can watch him bloom with a sense of pride.

And in the meantime, we might be so lucky as to shag him dirty rotten!

Oh! I think I hear you coming home to feed the babies. I'm going to lurk just out of sight, stalk you and watch you like a creep, and then the moment you are done and are able to lay them down for a nap, I'm going to kidnap you and bring you to our playroom so that I can tie you up and torture you in the best possible way. Mmm... I might even drink a bit of your blood.

I'll stop the world and melt with you,
Draco

P.S. Since Oliver basically shrugged and didn't agree OR disagree with my suggestion of talking to our lawyers about his in-laws, I'm going to take that as permission for ME to talk with them, describe the situation, and see IF there's anything that CAN be done. If there is, and once they've come up with a solid plan of attack, THEN I'll arrange a meeting with Oliver, let him hear them out, and then decide if it's something he wants to pursue.
Chapter 132

Chapter Summary

Harry is overreacting, and Draco manages to smooth things over.

Thursday May 25, 2017

Oi Malfyoy!

That's it! This weekend, you and I, seeker's game. Best two out of three, that way you can't argue luck or distraction. We'll answer once and for all who the best seeker is since apparently six years at Hogwarts didn't answer it well enough.

Thank you for the clarification on getting yourself all dolled up to head out. I was being quite dense, wasn't I? All I saw was you telling me you got all pretty to go somewhere else. I've lived with you for long enough that I think I've quite forgotten how you wear your Malfyoy armor for the rest of the world. I think that's why I don't understand your beauty regimen, because I really do find you the most beautiful exactly as you are. Soft hair, cheeks flushed with happiness, that big smile you save for your family. It's less a beauty regimen and more you steeling yourself to be around those who don't love you unconditionally. I promise I will try to keep that in mind the next time I think you're taking too long getting ready.

Speaking of you being all soft and flushed and beautiful when you're home. Thanks so much for the awkward problem in my pants reading your last email left me with! You fantasize about what could have happened with you and Ollie when you woke up that morning? If you had just kept grinding yourself into his pert little arse. If you had just thought he was me, stayed half asleep, andrutted up against his cleft with your beautiful shaft. Eventually wandlessly prepping him, slipping his pants down, and slamming home in one fell swoop.

Then the two of you would have softly fucked away, him thinking he was dreaming, you assuming you were having your way with me. All the while making sexy moaning noises. I'd be watching the whole thing, desperately wanking myself while watching these two fit blokes shagging, but trying to stay quiet so I don't disturb either of you.

Eventually you'd reach around him, grabbing his cock to stroke him off, but when you get your hands on it you realize it's different than mine. Your eyes pop open, you look down and realize you're buggering Oliver instead of me so you shout his name. This startles him enough to wake him from that dreamy middle ground where you're mostly awake but everything is still shiny with a dreamlike quality. His eyes pop open as well, and that's when you both realize I've my own cock in a death grip watching my husband bugger someone else in our bed.

When you both realize I'm aware of what's happening, and instead of being upset, I'm intensely turned on, you turn up the heat. No longer content to slowly shag the morning away, you begin fucking him hard and fast, pumping his cock at the same time. Your increase only fuels him on to start begging and screaming for you to go harder and faster.

Oliver comes first, the double pleasure from being buggered and being stroked getting him there quickly. Him clenching down on your dick sends you over the edge to come deep in his arse. And seeing you two gorgeous men blissed out and covering each other in cum means I'm quick to come all over my own hand.

Or, you know, something like that. If I'd thought about it .... a lot ... at length.

I may have thought so much about it that I'm pretty sure it's what kept me from seeing my crush for what it was. I was so focused on how unbelievably sexy I found the whole finding him waking in your arms that I didn't realize I was developing this emotional attachment.

But now you're telling me that YOU noticed my crush. Which means I was probably being obvious. And if you saw it, then it's probably pretty likely that Oliver noticed it as well. So now he thinks I'm this shitty husband who parades his lovers in front of his husband. Maybe it looks like I'm just the kind of controlling nightmare you said you'd be willing to put up with. Oh Gods, oh Hell, what am I going to do if he realizes I kinda like him? He's going to move out, go live in some crappy room above the Leaky to avoid the awkwardness of being stuck in a home with me.

And whoa whoa whoa, hold your horses there buckaroo. What do you mean if we take on the role of reintroducing him to love? That I should avoid getting too attached since our relationship would just be a rebound relationship. Relationship? Love? I ... I just have a crush! It's probably nothing at all. I, er, how would that even work? Is that something you want? I just wanted to be up front about having the butterflies!! I don't want you to get into some sort of poly-amorous relationship just because I can't keep my feelings under control. I mean, do you even have feelings for him?

I didn't realize how close I'd gotten to him, ya know? We spent so much time in the stables together. And he's an early riser like me, so we have breakfast together quite a bit. And we spend a lot of time talking in the middle of the night when I'm feeding the babies.

Did you know he's been helping with the babies most nights? Yeah, I felt bad and made sure to tell him he wasn't obligated to help just because he's staying with us. But I guess he loves it. Parker and Cassie were both toddlers when he adopted them, so he missed out on the baby stage with both of them. He's just been eating up the gummy smiles, milky smell, and sweet coos and giggles.

And now I've scared him off, I'm sure. He found some joy in caring for these babies and now he's going to feel so uncomfortable and I've ruined this for him.

Can you talk to him? I'll stay home with the babes tonight, you can take him to dinner under the guise of telling him what the lawyers had to say. And then whenever you can fit it into the conversation, explain to him that I'm emotionally stunted and that I promise I won't bother him or make him uncomfortable.

Yeah?

Panic-Stricken but always yours,
Harry

Thursday May 25th
My panicky little worrywart,

I have not yet had a chance to take Oliver out to dinner. In fact, It's barely past lunch time for most people and I haven't even gotten out of bed yet. That said, I HAVE talked to him.

See, apparently in your neurosis, you avoided running into him altogether by taking the boys for a long field trip/nature hike. Not simply through our North Fields, but through a bit of the Wiltshire countryside. And so, you with Dylan and Gabriel in carriers led the Feisty Foursome on a bit of a scavenger hunt (and yes, I had to ask Muffy where you were in order to find this out), a hunt that was designed to have so many things to find, that it might well take you a couple of days.

But as I said, I had a chance to talk to Oliver because he came into our room to find you, confused that you hadn't yet popped into the stables for even a moment, that the kids weren't in there, AND that you weren't in the kitchen - your other surefire haunt. He entered our suite to find me feeding Morgana and singing to her, and softly snickered at how different I am at home from when I'm NOT at home.

Apparently, I threw an epic strop whilst still pregnant - that I don't quite remember due to my terrible brain fog - but it was legendary enough to make the front page of the Prophet, with wild speculation about me being nearly ready to take up the position of the next Dark Lord.

Side note, perhaps I SHOULD take up the position of the next Dark Lord. CLEARLY, our kind doesn't quite know how to live without one, and as the new Dark Lord, I could intimidate people into learning how to play instruments while singing and dancing. While lounging naked in Onsens. And drinking wine. It would be rather sophisticated, don't you think?

But back to my point.

I invited Oliver to sit on the bed with me as we chatted, and also, Amala was in bed with us. I think she's about to go into heat again, because she was practically being a slag, cuddling up to me and giving me so many kisses that Morgana apparently got jealous and blew up a few lights. That said, it's far too soon for a 'new' mother cheetah to be going back into heat, and so, perhaps she was simply escaping her duties for a bit and attempting to socialize and commiserate with fellow parents.

I was TRYING to stick to neutral topics such as tea and the weather, when Oliver jumped straight to the matter on his mind. "Where is Harry, and is he avoiding me for some reason? Did I do something wrong?"

I chuckled and even though I had no idea where you were at that point, knew enough to answer: "My husband is such a worrywart that he creates gigantic problems in his mind, and then convinces himself that they are real and that he's just blown up his entire life, when in actuality, the rest of us don't even understand what he's worrying about."

Oliver was definitely confused. "Er...?"

With a flirty smirk, I hinted: "Let's just say that Harry is afraid that he's pushing you to work through your grief too quickly - for somewhat ulterior reasons."

Oliver blushed and looked away. "Actually, although I don't think either of you are serious about it in the slightest, the subtle flirting and innuendo have been... It's felt REALLY good. I can't remember the last time I actually FLIRTED. Early on in my marriage, I suppose. Things started out wonderfully, and they stayed wonderful for so many years, but then... everything changed, and it did so in such a gradual way that I honestly can't put my finger on when it all began. But by the end, I can think of at least ten years in which I didn't flirt, we had VERY little romance, and I'm not entirely certain what kept me so attached and in love. I think we stopped having sex about five years ago..."

"FIVE YEARS!!!" I blurted out in a combination of shock and horror.

Rather than be offended, he laughed. "I genuinely didn't think that was odd until I realized that you and Harry have been married nearly two years longer than I was, and still seem to be so passionately in LUST with each other, that I bet you don't even slow down when one or both of you is heavily pregnant."

"Ha!" I snorted a laugh. "You'd be surprised. When I had all three of these ones still inside me, I was so uncomfortable that I didn't want to move, much less be touched. But granted, that didn't last overly long; perhaps a few weeks - before two were moved to Harry and I had the ability to feel passion again."

"Yeah, still, what's a couple of weeks compared to a couple of years?" Oliver pointed out.

"True," I admitted with a tilted nod.

Now Oliver is NOT the densest person on the planet, despite being a Gryffindor, so he was able to work out my practically blatant hint. "So... Harry likes flirting with me, has shown a clear willingness to give me a blowjob, and is afraid that he's pushing me too hard. He... likes me? And you're not upset?"

I shook my head. "Not upset at all. It may sound insane to someone who prefers a fully committed and monogamous relationship, but Harry and I have always been willing to explore every aspect of our kinks, and one of mine happens to be seeing him with others. I can't explain it, but seeing him in the throes of passion, and having the space to simply WATCH every tiny flicker of emotion on his face, it drives me wild with passion! It's..."

He quirked a faint smile. "Well, I suppose that it does make some sense - if one takes into account that you ALWAYS had your eyes on him. I graduated before it really got intense, but I've heard from underclassmen stories of how you used to glare daggers across the Great Hall so often that no one has any idea how you managed to feed yourself."

I roared a laugh at that. "Well, I can't exactly deny that, although I really thought I was more subtle about it!"

"So then... what did the two of you have in mind?" He wondered with an interested and somewhat sly expression.

I smirked. "So far, I think the best plan all around is to let YOU do all the 'having in mind,' while WE take our cues from you. For example, if I had my druthers, the three of us would be shagging so often that you'd feel quite corrupted and debauched in no time, but I understand that you are still working through your grief and cannot just jump into bed with us for the next two months before taking a breather. You'll probably need to get back into things slowly, taking enough time to listen to your feelings and consult with your Mind-Healer every step of the way."

"Well, I dunno if I need to take it THAT slowly," Oliver grumbled with a blush, his eyes looking just a bit glazed over from my suggestion. "But... I just... I'm not quite sure I can wrap my head around this whole married but playing around thing. You... And Harry... Well, neither of you seem the type to be anything less than extremely possessive."

I grinned. "Wait until you catch Harry on a jealous day! Simply LOOKING with interest at a person can provoke him into bursting into flames and destroying the whole world, and I LOVE watching him do it!"

"You're nutters! The both of you!"

"Guilty as charged!"
"So... how do I get Harry to stop avoiding me?" Oliver wondered curiously. "Because I really enjoy simply working in the stables and chatting with him. I'd HATE it if he works himself into such a panic that so small a joy becomes awkward and impossible."

With a flirty wink, I suggested: "The next time you see him, give him something from me."

"Oh?" Oliver asked, intrigued. "What's that?"

To answer him, I leaned over and gave him a quick but full smooch on the lips. "That. Give him that and he'll relax and melt, understanding that you can't possibly be ready to move out and never speak to us again if you're interested in kissing him."

He was quiet for a long moment. "All...right... so... where can I find him?"

That's when I called for Muffy and asked her to tell me where you were. At that point, I gave him my blessings to conduct a scavenger hunt of his own, with you and our kids being the sole item on the list.

Then I typed this up, figuring that if he hasn't managed to find you by the time you receive this, then perhaps you should make things a bit easier for him and let yourself be found.

Hopelessly devoted to you,
Draco
Chapter 133

Chapter Summary

Harry is surprised when Oliver finds him, and Draco has a day with Viona.

Friday May 26, 2017

My Dragon,

We haven't had a spare moment to ourselves since I got home from evening lesson planning with Professor Collins. I got home and you had just put the smaller kids to bed and were watching awesome (terrible) telly with Zaire and Jaz. I joined you, nursed the babies to sleep. And once they were out, I figured we would snuggle up in bed and I could tell you about my afternoon. But then Atreyu woke up with a bit of a nightmare and wanted to be distracted from whatever in his dream freaked him out. So I read him stories until you fell asleep, him falling asleep shortly after that.

Then I got up this morning, went for my run, tried to fill up my morning to make the time move faster so I could come talk with you. But I got so in the groove that I decided to run a full marathon length run. Well I definitely filled up my morning, because by the time I got back into the Manor, you were not only awake, but you had already headed off to wedding prep with Viona for the afternoon.

Well, I'm almost exploding all over the place now! There's no way I can wait with this information until you get home. I must get this off my chest...

I'm not quite as explodey as I was yesterday afternoon though. So, after reading your email, I now know you had some sort of inkling as to what could have happened, but at the time, all I knew was I had something I needed to share with you, not only in the interest of full disclosure, but because you're my best friend and you're always who I want to talk to about everything.

Except when I want to complain about my husband thinking he's better than me at seeking.

Anyway, so there I was, working my way back home from our ridiculously long scavenger hunt. Fine! I may have taken them on an extremely long hunt in an effort to avoid being overbearing with Oliver. I just wanted to make sure he had space and I wasn't making him crazy uncomfortable. Per usual, I drastically misread the situation and it was my avoidance that was the problem. Instead of pulling back to not be pushy, I ignored my friend and hurt his feelings. I'm just really glad he is more courageous than I am and went to you to ask what my problem was.

I suppose in hindsight it was pretty obvious I was avoiding him. It's not as though it seems very realistic that I had suddenly discovered a dislike for my horses - or something else equally ridiculous - which would have explained my absence. "Avoiding you? No! I've just developed a new obsession with six hour hikes with preschoolers and don't like horses anymore. Why do you ask?"

Argh! I got sidetracked again! I was working my way back home when Muffy popped Oliver to where we were wading through a creek looking for flint gravel or watercress. By the way, we actually found a really nice growth of watercress, so we packed up a fairly reasonable amount to bring home. I know how you like it for your salads. It can't get much fresher than having your children yank it right out of the water!

I was standing in water up to my knees, carrying two increasingly fussy babies, and trying to make sure the feisty foursome didn't accidentally drown each other with their antics. I think I just stood there gaping at Muffy and Ollie for a solid minute before Muffy took charge. "Muffy will take the young masters and mistresses home to get cleaned up." She popped away with the four and then was back a few moments later to take Dylan and Gabe. "Muffy knows Master Harry should have put these babes to nap an hour ago." She gave me a look, and then popped away with the boys. Leaving me to stand there awkwardly staring at Ollie, still in the middle of the creek.

Again, Harry the Coward just stood there while Courageous Oliver had the guts to do something. "Harry, I just spoke with Draco, he asked me to give you something."

"Er, um, alright. What is it?" I was very confused at that moment.

Until he strode right up to me, splashing through the water, put his right hand up to cup my face while his left hand steadied my hip. And then he kissed me. Like KISSED kissed me. I was so surprised, my eyes got real wide. Oliver had left his eyes open so he could gauge my reaction, I'm sure, and when I squeaked, he smiled up against my lips. But he didn't pull his mouth off of mine. Instead, his hand moved from my face to the back of my head, gripping my hair and my hip hard enough I might have bruises. But then softly began moving his lips against mine. The harshness of the grip and the sweetness of the kiss were a gorgeous contradiction of feelings.

Yeah, you weren't wrong when you told him I'd melt. Right into a gooey puddle I went. Eventually I pulled back to breathe and read his face. He laughed at me a little - not meanly, just amused. "Harry, you haven't scared me off, I'm not going anywhere - unless you and Draco ask me to leave. Just don't ignore me again, alright? I missed you."

Not helping the tummy full of butterflies situation.

"Now, will you come home finally?" He asked with that grin of his I haven't seen since his quidditch captain days.

I pulled all the way out of his hold and sighed. "No, I really can't." He opened his mouth to argue, but I held up my hand. "I have to get to Hogwarts to do my weekly prep with Professor Collins, I swear! I'm not avoiding you ... erm ... anymore." I grabbed his arm, looped mine through his elbow, and tugged him along. "But I think I have just enough time to walk the rest of the way back to the Manor with you. You can catch me up on my horses. Do they miss me?"

It was a really nice walk back. I feel so much better for talking with him. I don't think I'm very good at avoiding situations. I should probably Gryffindor up and just talk to people instead of getting stuck inside my own head.

Oh! Before I forget to tell you and you make plans, I made reservations for us to have a late lunch at the Shard on Monday for our anniversary. I was going to make it for dinner time, but uh ... there's a thing that night. A um, thing that is happening. So uh, we'll just have an evening of snacky foods at home that evening. I know it's a bit disappointing that we're not going on a big trip, but I think you know as well as I do that Morgana barely allows us away from her for more than an hour or two at MOST. She's not giving us a weekend or even an entire night away.

Eighteen years my love. The eighteen best years of my life.

I love you more today than yesterday, but not as much as tomorrow,
Dearest Harry,

I think I got so utterly tired yesterday that I died and my body just hasn't bothered to stop functioning yet. I know, I'm not quite THAT old yet, but days like that make me think I am. So, as you said, I was off helping Viona with wedding prep.

What's that? You're wondering what could possibly be left to prep? Well yes, she has it all planned and paid for, so perhaps it's not prep so much as finalization. Reconfirmation?

It seems that the Council of Hogsmeade wants to start organizing the town now so that they have a week to fine tune the plans and then six weeks to make sure the town is decorated and prepared according to plan. To that end, there was a good four hours of reviewing the plans, arguing semantics, and having Viona make decisions if necessary.

Mind you, they're using this as an excuse to have certain shops implement repairs if necessary to bring them up to the still rather lax magical building codes - on the Malfoy Sickle, naturally.

Then, after the meeting, the council asked Viona to do a walkthrough so they could all see about how long it would take for her wedding procession through the town, not to mention decide on pacing for the honest-to-Merlin parade that's going to precede her. The committee in charge of the parade wanted to show her samples of the floats so that she could see in miniature what the designs look like, and if she thinks they are as good in tangible format as they were on paper.

After putting in a full eight hours in at Hogsmeade - funnily enough, Orion was actually part of the secondary meeting at one point, as the various shop owners each came over to verify that they had the correct plans for their businesses. He'd bought the Hog's Head after I engaged the town for the wedding last year, and so the plans for him were rather simplistic and the absolute LEAST the previous owner could get away with agreeing to. So, he actually submitted an updated proposal to her to make MUCH better use of his facilities, which she positively LOVED, giving him a big ol' hug and kiss on the cheek for being brilliant.

Hilariously, I heard a couple of the other owners eagerly wonder if she would reward them ALL like that if they pleased her. A cheeky grin rounded a circle, along with some wagged brows. Amused - and keeping a FIRM grip on the urge to rampage - I called out:

"Oi, Orion! It's rather Slytherin of you to host the Hen Party for your sister AND MAKE ME PAY FOR IT!"

"DAD!" They both growled. "You can't expect things for free JUST because we're related!"

I laughed and hugged them both. "I wasn't saying I expect it for free, just that I find it supremely unfair that HE gets to throw you a massive party, and I have to pay for it. He should chip in part of the expenses as your wedding present."

Orion stroked his chin in thought. "I COULD do that..."

Viona harrumphed. "Well, if you DO, at least throw in a lovely pair of earrings so I have a lasting memento of your gift."

But as I was saying, after a full 8 hours in Hogsmeade attending to wedding business, it was about 9 o'clock and the only reason we weren't starving is that businesses provided us with samples of the foods they wanted to serve on the day. Even so, I was more than ready to go to Café Exquis and treat myself and Viona to cheesecake and wine. Alas, we still had something important to do.

As WE had been handling things in Hogsmeade, Alric was doing his part by reviewing the Prenuptial Agreement with our team of lawyers. They were all still waiting for Viona and I to show up and finish things up, more than happy to charge me extra for keeping them waiting.

Upon our arrival, after being served some lovely tea and biscuits, Viona was reminded of the main points of the agreement - that SHE had originally hashed out with the legal team to begin with. These were things like:

- Alric has agreed to take the Malfoy name rather than have Viona take the Avery name.
- For the first year or so, they will maintain separate vaults.
- Should they happen to amicably (or less than amicably) divorce before 5 years, Avery is NOT entitled to any part of her fortune.
- Should they happen to remain married for at least 10 years and THEN divorce amicably, Viona will pay Alric spousal support. The amount of which goes up incrementally the longer they're married.
- Should they successfully have children, Alric has agreed that he understands that their children will be her heirs in the event of her death before him. (Same for him if the situation happens in reverse.)
- Should they NOT have children and she predeceases him, he has agreed that her fortune will go to one or all of her siblings.

But lest you think that she is anticipating things going badly and him turning into the most rotten of husbands, she DID also include this lovely bit (among a ton of things I don't think need to be listed out in full during this email):

- Upon their marriage, Viona will transfer Malfoy Imports to Alric's sole ownership, and thus, his income derived from it will be solely his in the event of a divorce. And considering how well he's been doing with that business, it's a rather nice income.

Basically, our careful daughter is trying to ensure that she will not be destroyed if everything goes wrong, but at the same time, ALSO trying to make it clear that she's trusting him and ensuring that they are both equals in the marriage, able to support themselves alone if necessary, but clearly MUCH better off together.

I basically kept my mouth shut since Alric had just spent HOURS going over every tiny detail and was fully aware of and in agreement with all of the stipulations. But if I HAD said something, I would have advised cutting down a lot of the extraneous stipulations.

Once Viona was satisfied that Alric understood the Prenuptial Agreement, she gave him permission to sign it, which he did. She signed it as well, thereby making it well and truly legal.

After that, the three of us went out for a celebratory drink.

Which is why I arrived home bleary-eyed and rather rough looking. Not that you saw that, because I immediately stripped off and got comfortable enough to watch an episode of CardCaptor Sakura with Zaire and Jaz. It's also why I couldn't make it through story time with Atreyu. Sorry!

And then - of course - you wake up long before me and let me sleep in as much as I like. It's a bit funny, in my opinion, that our kids know approximately when I wake up each day, and since it usually coincides with when you're in the kitchen making lunch, they'll come into our room while I'm having breakfast and feeding Morgana and performing my morning routine. Especially Atreyu.
The funny part is actually that they pop in and out of the room with me, telling me things that YOU’VE done during the morning, and then almost certainly run to you to tell you the things that I'm doing as I get ready to face my day. The things they tell me about you are always exciting and adventurous: "Daddy nearly got run over by a frightened new horse, but he stood his ground and patiently talked him into calming down!"

Whereas the things they tell you about me are probably boring as fuck: "Daddy sang Sweet Child of Mine to Morgana while feeding her, and then did a bit of yoga before going to the loo. Oh! And he ate all the crumpets you made him!"

But now I'm officially out of bed and ready to go join the rest of the family for Saturday Shenanigans. I think I'll start by finding you and giving you a kiss to make you melt, and then - if I'm feeling it and the both of you are feeling it too, I'll claim a kiss from Oliver that's MUCH better than the quick smooch I gave him to give you.

But before I go, I do need to apologize and explain something. See, I knew based off of your crush on Oliver, that you would not mind if I told him to break your one hard limit - no kissing on the lips. It was a big and risky gamble, as you COULD have rejected even a tiny smooch, but I had a feeling that it was exactly what you needed in order to feel assured and at ease with Oliver's continued presence in our life. Thus, I am EXTREMELY glad that you are not mad I told him to kiss you. I'm also glad you are not mad at him for doing so, but by the way, if you should happen to be a little mad but just not saying anything because it worked out, keep in mind that I told him to give you a quick smooch. I would NOT have told him to not just break your rule, but throw as far away as he could like that.

So, long - and potentially rambly - apology short, I am sorry. I know that you are probably conflicted because you liked and melted into the kiss, and may even need to meet with Katja to clear up any issues you may have about what happened, but I truly and honestly did NOT intend for this to be anything other than a clear way for Oliver to show that he wants to stay part of our lives.

That said, based on your reaction, I think I was right. This one is different because how you feel about him is different, and because I suspected/knew that was the case, I took a risk with the intent to give you what you want. I hope you can forgive me.

When I see you smile, I can face the world, oh oh, you know I can do anything,

Draco
Updated Kids List

Chapter Summary

Updated Kid List as of June 1, 2017

Oi Forever Facts
Ages as of June 1, 2017

Harry and Draco Malfoy:
Elena Rojas Malfoy:
- Age 26
- Birthday October 22, 1990
- Ravenclaw (Graduated)
  • Rafael Rojas Malfoy
  • Birthday December 20, 2016
River Lewis Malfoy: Mahafsoun Malfoy
- Age 21
- Birthday March 21, 1996
- Hogwart's House unknown; assumed Hufflepuff
Viona Skye Malfoy: Alric Avery
- Age 18
- Birthday January 24, 1999
- Slytherin about to graduate 7th year
- Godparents Hermione and Greg
Eris Lyra Malfoy
- Age 17
- Birthday April 9, 2000
- Slytherin about to graduate 6th Year
- Godparents Pansy and Luna
  • Luka Malfoy
  • March 19, 2017
Orion Draco Malfoy
- Age 17
- Birthday April 9, 2000
- Ravenclaw about to graduate 6th Year
- Godparents Ron and Blaise
Hazel Storm Malfoy
- Age 17
- Birthday May 13, 2000
- Slytherin about to graduate 6th Year
- Godparents Neville and Luna
Shtara Malfoy
- Age 14
- Birthday January 6, 2003
- Muggle
Sirius James Malfoy
- Age 13
- Birthday July 30, 2003
- Gryffindor leaving 3rd Year
- Godparents Charlie and Millie
Draco Lucius Malfoy Jr – “Zwei”
- Age 12
- Birthday July 30, 2004
- Gryffindor leaving 2nd Year
- Godparents Dudley and Donna
Zaire Langa Malfoy
- Age 11
- Birthday May 2, 2006
- Godparents Kisa and Sebastian
Jasmine Kamaria Malfoy
- Age 8
- Birthday February 9, 2009
- Godparents George and Angelina
Persephone Hikari Malfoy
- Age 7
- Birthday April 21, 2010
- Godparents Miles and Eliza
Lily Narcissa Malfoy
- Age 7
- Birthday May 19, 2010
- Godparents Sirius and Ginny
Caelum Arthur Malfoy
- Age 7
- Birthday May 19, 2010
- Godparents Viper and Yesenia
Atreyu Miguel Malfoy
- Age 5
- Birthday September 30, 2011
- Godparents Bill and Teddy
Gabriel Pan Potter
- Birthday March 14, 2017
- Godparents Gavin and Della
Dylan Sheen Potter
- Birthday March 14, 2017
- Godparents Dean and Seamus
Morgana Guinevere Malfoy
- April 5, 2017
- Godparents Mahafsoun and Tiger

Pansy and Ivan St. Peter
Pearl St. Peter
- Age 16
- January 10, 2001
- Draco’s Goddaughter
Paige St. Peter
- Age 13
- November 30, 2003
Narcissa and Lucius Malfoy
Eliza Lestrange Malfoy
- Age 21
- October 10, 1995
- Birth Parents Rodolphus Lestrange and Gina Mitchell
- Slytherin Graduate
Sebastian Snape Malfoy
- Age 20
- September 10, 1996
- Birth Parents Severus Snape and Gina Mitchell
- Slytherin Graduate
Gavin Mitchell Malfoy
- Age 19
- January 30, 1998
- Birth Parents Lucius Malfoy and Gina Mitchell
- Ravenclaw Graduate
Della Andromeda Malfoy
- Age 19
- March 8, 1998
- Birth Parents Bellatrix Lestrange and Rodolphus Lestrange
- Slytherin Graduate

George and Angelina
Phillip Moss Weasley
- Age 26
- August 4, 1990
Mackenzie Campbell Weasley
- Age 23
- February 1, 1994
- Hufflepuff Graduate
Fred Weasley II
- Age 11
- November 12, 2005
Roxanne Weasley
- Age 9
- July 7, 2007

Harry Potter’s – The Viper
Delphini Lestrange Riddle Potter
- Age 19
- March 8, 1998
- Biological Parents Bellatrix Lestrange and Voldemort
- Hogwarts Graduate
• Balian (Snape) Potter
• Birthday February 14, 2017
Tommy Riddle Potter
- Age 18
- February 20, 1999
- Biological Parents Harry Potter and Voldemort
- Hogwarts Graduate
Bellerophon Riddle Lestrange Potter
- Age 17
- August 22, 1999
- Biological Parents Bellatrix Lestrange and Voldemort
- Hogwarts Graduate
Harrison Riddle Potter
- Age 17
- May 13, 2000
- Biological Parents Harry Potter and Voldemort
- Hogwarts about to graduate 6th Year
Scorpius Potter-Malfoy
- Age 5
- October 18, 2011
Hyperion Potter-Malfoy
- Age 5
- October 18, 2011

Dudley and Donna Dursley
Daisy Dursley
- Age 17
- February 28, 2000
- Hogwarts 6th Year
Donald Dursley
- Age 13
- September 23, 2003
- Hogwarts 2nd Year
Dustin Dursley
- Age 8
- June 29, 2008

Percy and Audrey Weasley
Molly Weasley II
- Age 14
- August 15, 2002
- Gryffindor 4th Year
Lucy Weasley
- Age 9
- March 4, 2008

Blaise Zabini – Hermione Granger – Ron Weasley – Kisa – The Quartet
Roderick Oliver Weasley
- Age 17
- March 22, 2000
- Assumed Ron’s biologically
- Godparents Harry and Draco
Bianca Evangeline Weasley
- Age 17
- March 22, 2000
- Assumed Blaise’s biologically
- Godparents Harry and Draco
Veronica Zabini
- Age 14
- March 12, 2003
- Assumed Blaise’s biologically
Anastacia Zabini
- Age 12
- November 19, 2004
- Assumed Ron’s biologically
Tristan Matteo Weasley
- Age 6
- March 31, 2010
Misha Rurik Zabini
- Age 7
- April 2, 2010
- Biologically Blaise and Kisa’s
Tatyana Zabini
- Age 4
- February 15, 2013
- Biologically Blaise and Kisa’s
Aleksei Zabini
- August 18, 2016
- Biologically Blaise and Kisa’s

Bill and Fleur Weasley
Victoire Weasley
- Age 19
- May 2, 1998
- Hogwarts Graduate
Dominique Weasley
- Age 14
- August 26, 2002
- Hogwarts 4th Year
Louis Weasley
- Age 10
- December 24, 2006

Miles Meaney and Colm O’Brian
Samantha Meaney
- Age 15
- June 7, 2001
- Ravenclaw 5th Year
Charlotte Meaney
- Age 6
- July 1, 2010

Greg Goyle and Millicent Bulstrode
Mason Goyle
- Age 12
- December 17, 2004
- Hogwarts 1st Year
Greta Goyle
- Age 10
- September 3, 2006

Remus and Tonks
Edward Remus Lupin
- Age 19
- April 15, 1998
- Gryffindor Graduate
- Godfather Harry

Neville and Charlie
Frank Weasley-Longbottom
- Age 8
- December 6, 2008
Alice Weasley-Longbottom
- Age 3
- September 7, 2013

Ginny and Viktor
Keisha Krum
- Age 8
- October 1, 2008

Finnigan and Beatrix
Blake Gerald Fawley
- Age 7
- March 17, 2010

Yesenia
Diego Garcia
- Age 7
- May 9, 2010

Pippa
Pierre Middleton-Black
- February 28, 2017

Leah
Leon Caughey-Black
- March 31, 2017
Chapter 135

Chapter Summary

Harry thinks he won the private Seeker's challenge and Draco feels that Harry only proved his point.

Sunday May 28, 2017

Dear Second-Best Seeker,

I won! I won! I won fair and square! Best two out of three, Harry James Malfoy winning the first and third Seeker's matches makes him officially the best seeker!! Fair and square Draco!

Alright, since I can already hear you arguing with me. The rules were we play three Seeker's games with the man who won two games being declared the winner. In the official rules, there was no talk of official uniforms. It is not my fault that eighteen years of living with me has diluted the Slytherin in your blood and increased the Slytherin in mine. You had every opportunity to attempt to distract me based on what you were wearing. You chose to wear fairly standard seeker gear, form-fitting and light for ease of movement and lessening wind resistance. I chose to do the exact same thing, I just so happened to decided that green satin lingerie was the best to accomplish those goals.

Speaking of ridiculous behavior, I am terrified about Viona's wedding. Look, she's my princess, she's always been my princess, I want her to have everything her heart desires. But this is epic levels of extreme weddings. Renting out an entire town? How did the Hogsmeade Council approve this? Are they that hard up for someone to step up and pay for upkeep? A parade Draco? With floats. A literal parade of floats proceeding her through town? I love her, I obviously do, but this is possibly the most horrifying idea I've ever heard.

Floats.

I won't tell her this, and I would really appreciate if you didn't either. But I find this level of: "look at me, look at me! I'm the queen of the world!" to be possibly the most ridiculous thing I've ever encountered. Gods but I love this child. And my love for her is really the only thing keeping me from sitting her down and telling her that she needs to not have a narcissistic Princess parade through town. Well, my love and my very real fear of her rage. And that whole, I want everything for her that her heart desires.

Heart's desire. Huh. You are my heart's desire. I love you more than life itself. I uh, was really shocked by your apology. Mostly because I didn't think I needed an apology for you sending Oliver to kiss me.

I have my own explanation and apology to make for that. I uh, didn't actually realize anything wrong had happened. How did I not realize it? What's my one rule, my ONE rule? Always that no one but you can kiss me on the mouth. Not only did you minorly but intentionally break it, but I forgot about it as well. I just melted into the kiss. I got my first kiss from only the second man to ever be allowed to kiss me, and I didn't even realize it was happening. I mean, I definitely realized it was happening, but I didn't realize what a big deal it was.
How are you apologizing to me? I should be apologizing to you! I broke our rule! I guess I broke my own rule. So I should be apologizing to myself maybe. Okay, this is weird, no one has to apologize for anything.

I do think you're right and I need to talk to Katja. I already called her; I'm heading in to her office as soon as I sign off. So if you're looking for me, that's where I went.

I love you,
Harry

---

Sunday May 28th
My co-conspirator for this thing called life,

I hope your chat with Katja was productive. While you were taking care of necessary mental health business, I was busy doing that thing I told you about - in which all of the female Aurors received Fidelius charmed notes throughout the week summoning them to a secret meeting.

That took a bit of work, because I had to make each note so that the RECIPIENT could read it, but no one else could, and so, I had to make the secret password for each recipient their own name on the front of the envelope. Thus, only THEY could see their name on the note, and that allowed them to open it and read it, but since the information itself is under Fidelius, they CAN'T talk about it with anyone. Well, I suppose that the flaw in the whole thing would be that they theoretically COULD tell someone who shared the same name, but since that's unlikely...

Anyway, the secret meeting was set for Sunday at 2PM. And Robards himself had to come up with a bogus reason why all their partners wouldn't find it strange that they wanted to be alone for a bit without a good reason why. So the partners were invited out drinking with Robards so he could chat with them about minor but real issues in the department - having also assured them that the women would be able to take care of each other for a few hours.

Now, as you probably assume, we COULD have met in an official meeting or conference room - or even an incident room - and warded the place to ensure COMPLETE privacy - but I decided that it would actually be better to meet in a place that is unlikely to be 'bugged' or watched by the killer. The second floor ladies' loo.

We went in and swept it for 'bugs,' then warded it against spying and added a Notice-Me-Not to prompt other female Ministry workers unfortunate enough to work on a Sunday to go elsewhere for the time being.

When it was time to get down to it, the ladies all stared at me with smirks of amusement.

"What's this, Chief? Are we organizing a raid on a convent or something where men aren't allowed?"

I laughed and shook my head. "Nope, although, that COULD be fun..." I trailed off, letting the hint - that me and a couple lesbians/bi women running loose through a convent could be very interesting and entertaining indeed - remain incomplete.

Then I sighed heavily, the matter at hand rather sobering. "Girly here was recently attacked, and even though Robards didn't say it directly - to HER - it's for the same reason that all of my students have been paired up and staying with Senior Auror Partners. All he said when he gave those orders was that he has strong reason to believe they were all in danger, and so, you've all been accepting of the matter."

I could see curious, confused, and intrigued looks circling around the room.

"See, the real reason is that we have reason to believe that SOMEONE is trying to frame ME for murder," I explained, my expression almost certainly rather grim. "The first 'clue' was when my distant cousin was murdered and her body arranged so that it provided very little in the way of obvious evidence, except for her writing my name in her blood with a finger."

A few of them gasped while others moaned in sympathy. Ginger even patted me on the shoulder and rubbed my back.

"Sorry, luv."

I gave her a wan smile. "Thanks. After some digging, Robards discovered that a few files have gone missing from the Ministry Archive, and all of them lead back to me in some way or other."

"Oh!" Girly gasped in understanding. "Potential victims! THAT'S why we were suspected of being in danger!"

I nodded. "And considering that you were attacked, suspicion confirmed."

She bit her lip and looked shaken for a moment.

"BUT," I continued. "You ALSO managed to get a good enough feel for your attacker that you're certain it was a he."

"I DID!!!" She excitedly burst out in confirmation. "Punched him in the bollocks good and proper!"

I sighed and ran a hand through my hair. "So unless he was a she Polyjuiced into a man, we're going to work with the assumption that the killer is a man. And honestly, we have so little to go off of that we HAVE to start somewhere, and this is what we've decided on."

Ginger was biting her lip with a frown of thought. "So... we're not just assuming he's a man, but an AUROR...?"

I gave her a tight smile and a curt nod. "Yes, unless you can think of anyone else who could obtain enough access to the Archives to steal files, hide behind STRONG wards, AND knows just enough about Auror procedure to obscure his tracks, but not so much as to leave us no clues at all..."

They all thought this over with various personality quirks, such as hums, scrunched faces, bit or pressed lips, or even pinching their chins. But no one could come up with a good alternative, for which I'm actually grateful for. The last thing I need is MORE potential suspects.

As they thought, I opened a case I'd brought with me and set it up within easy reach for me to work from. "So here's what we're going to do for the foreseeable future. I've got my Camera Contacts and my Earbuds - Audio Recorders. I took some time over the last week to ward them against Spells to Blind/Deafen - and actually, I HOPE I managed to ward them against WARDS - so that even if the killer erected an anti-spying/surveillance ward, I think they should still work. For example, here in the Ministry, which is LAYERED with all sorts of wards."

As I explained, I handed the contacts out, and then fell silent for a few minutes as I gave each Auror a pair of Earbuds quickly charmed to look like the earrings they were already wearing - as a replacement. Those who weren't already wearing any got to choose a design and the two that didn't want ANYTHING like that on them, I did as I'd suggested and turned them into flat invisible disks that could be placed on the inside of the outer part of their ears.

"So, this is like a raid in that you all now have the mission to help us flush out the murderer. However, this is UNLIKE any of my raids in that it's going to have to basically be completely unplanned and spontaneous. Continue on being Aurors and Aurors in training. Do the things you'd normally do, but at the same time, try to keep your eyes and ears open for anything that might be a clue. Anything out of the ordinary."

That's when I pulled out my newest bit of tech. Alright, not exactly MY tech...

"THIS is a simple Galleon. It's fake, so please try to avoid spending it. They're all charmed so that they can send messages to each other covertly. If you should ever feel that you are not safe sending an insta-owl to one of us - or discover something that ALL of us need to know right away - 'type' it onto this coin, and it'll be sent to all the other coins - which will then get warm enough to mildly burn to alert their bearer that there's a message to be read."

One of the Senior Aurors grinned and laughed. "Harry gave us some of these back in the D.A.!!"

I smiled at her. "Good, then you'll be able to teach the others how to use them if necessary."

At that point, there was about a half hour or so of inserting contacts and making sure they all worked - which they did. Then I verified that the earbuds were working, and fiddled with the half dozen or so that didn't automatically sync up so that they recorded the video and audio at the same time.

A few asked questions to clarify what I already knew, and then came up with an impressive amount of suggestions on how they could work together and still be subtle enough to NOT be one of those odd things they're supposed to be looking for.

Before I dismissed the meeting, I ended with this last bit of information: "Robards is going to rearrange a few of you so that you can play to each other's strengths - or conversely, so that anyone he's not certain of can be observed. But the reason I'm telling you this is that you MUSTN'T react as if you expected this. Maybe make a light protest, or a mild question of the wisdom or reasoning. DON'T just be like: 'Oh? We're being reassigned again? Yeah, I was told this was going to happen by the Chief.' Yeah?"

"Got it!" They all agreed.

"Alright, meeting dismissed," I stated, waving everyone off except Girly. Ginger also stayed behind, probably out of curiosity.

Girly gave me a wary look.

"So, since you were already attacked, it makes sense that the killer is going to try again. Not only did he think you were worth attacking the first time, but now he's got the added incentive of paying you back for kicking his arse. Once you're reassigned - and I'm half certain you're actually going to be paired with Ginger here, but if not, it's going to be one of the female Senior Aurors that was here today - anyway, once you're reassigned, work with your new partner and plan out how you can do things that seem careless - NOT bloody stupid as fuck - but JUST enough to let the killer try again. For example, if you happen to stop for tea after work, maybe one of you goes to the loo and leaves the other alone. Or 'accidentally' get separated."

"Right," Girly agreed with a nod of understanding.
"And personally, I think you should give it a bit of time, but then go on another date, but this time, instead of walking alone at ANY point, make a loud public show of trusting your date to protect you instead of your partner and walk with him - or her, as the case may be. Maybe the killer will take a risk, despite the second person with you."

Ginger grinned. "Except her partner WILL be watching her. I might even be able to arrange it so that a couple of us strong and smart female Aurors just so happen to be doing things along the path she walks - and don't worry, it'll be subtle. Even if the killer notices a bunch of random Aurors in the area, all he'll see is them eating dinner, grabbing tea - or coffee - and shopping. None of that sketchy just sitting there reading a newspaper!"

I kissed her on the cheek. "Thanks luv! I feel much better knowing that you're involved."

She nodded matter of factly and kissed me on the cheek in return. Then the three of us left to do our own things.

Which for me, means stopping by my office and having a chat with Fierston. I know that I had to put a hold on his lessons while I was in the Land of Atrocious Brain Fog, but that DOESN'T mean that he stopped practicing. In fact, I'd assigned him to KEEP practicing on his rabbit, other animals, and a girlfriend or trusted friend. So, I wanted to check on his progress while I was in my office. Also, I suspect that my office might be bugged.

I honestly hadn't thought about this possibility before, but as I was working on my tech, it occurred to me that my office was the OBVIOUS place to bug if one truly was trying to frame ME. Rather than do any sort of scans or disabling charms, I decided to work off the assumption that I'm right, and use that to my advantage.

But before those potential future plans, I decided that having my 'lesson' with Fierston anywhere else would tip off he killer, and so, held it in my office with NO security precautions. You know, like I had no reason to suspect anything was wrong.

That said, I didn't exactly make it easy on the killer, if he is watching.

"Fierston, good evening my lad. Tonight, rather than do anything strenuous for a lesson, I just want to check your progress. But before I get into it, I want to challenge you to a silly, old-fashioned, staring contest."

Giving me a smile of confusion, Fierston shrugged and sat across the desk from me. We did exactly as I said, staring at each other in complete silence. After a few seconds, Fierston slipped into my mind and we were able to have a private conversation in which I took a major risk and trusted him - since I've traipsed all over his mind in the past and am reasonably certain that he doesn't have this sort of devious plotting in him. I explained what was happening and asked him to help out if he could, which he agreed to.

He was utterly blown away by what was happening, confirming my trust in him.

After that, he managed to find a few of my ACTUAL Occlumency shields, which he couldn't quite penetrate, but the real payoff of all his practicing is that he's good enough at slipping in that most people probably wouldn't even realize it's happening. We have plenty of time to work on getting through strong shields later. For now, he had the subtlety needed to employ the skill in questioning, which I'm dead certain Ramsey will LOVE.

When Fierston returned to his own mind, he sort of jerked, making me crow with triumph. "HA! You broke eye contact first, and so, I win! But I'm feeling generous, so here's a Galleon to buy a drink. But DON'T spend it all in one place, haha!"

Fierston caught the coin I tossed and smiled sheepishly, a bit embarrassed to have lost despite the fact that it hadn't been a real challenge. But also, he knew that the Galleon was fake, and that I was actually reminding him not to accidentally spend it. He pocketed the coin with a nod and stood up.

"Clearly, I need to practice a bit more. I'll just be on my way then, shall I?"

I nodded. "By all means, I REALLY want to go home and do naughty things to my husband. Tomorrow's our 18th Anniversary, and I expect he's got something special planned."

After about five minutes of saying goodbye peppered with heckling each other, we finally went our separate ways, and I felt the need to go to a quiet tea shop and type this up before coming home, but now that I'm done, I'm on my way.

Incoming!

Let's get it on,
Draco
P.S. All you did by using lingerie to in our private Seeker's Challenge, was prove MY point. You're not better than me, you're just the ONLY thing I want to pay attention to. Ogling you was far more interesting than the bloody snitch! Or didn't the fact that I snatched you the moment you won that third game and dragged you off to our playroom for a thorough spanking NOT tip you off to what my REAL goal was?
Chapter 136

Chapter Summary

It's the boys' Anniversary ^_^

Monday May 29, 2017

Love of my Life,

Happiest of anniversaries to you my Draco. Eighteen years of being madly in love with you. Eighteen years of having the privilege of sharing a life with the best person I know.

Alright, before I blubber all over myself, I want to get down everything we did today before I forget. I'm currently feeling as though it was such a wonderful and memorable day that I could never forget a moment. But time puts a soft filter over all of my memories and I want a crystal clear remembrance of this special day so I can fully remember the feeling.

The best part of today I think was that until the evening's festivities, it was a fairly boring day. I think that came out wrong, I hope you understand what I mean by that. It wasn't boring, but it really wasn't anything much different than every other day of our life. And it happened to be one of those regular days completely void of some of our drama we can get.

We stayed up so late last night doing those naughty things you spoke about that I slept in a bit longer than usual. So our perfect anniversary began with us waking up in each other's arms. In each other's arms surrounded by our three beautiful babies. We snuggled and played with the babes. You got yourself ready while I fed the littles. I feel a bit like some muggle assembly line machinery sometimes. Once you were fully ready we took a nice walk through the gardens, our kids joining us for moments of the walk and then sprinting off to Merlin knows where.

Just a completely ordinary morning of sleepy kisses and cuddles, beautiful children, walking hand in hand through gorgeous flowers with my best friend. This is really my life, a day of perfection is completely normal and expected. I want fifty-thousand more days just like it.

We just wandered in and out of the garden. Talking about everything and nothing. I caught you up on everything that had happened at Hogwarts the past week. You went into even more detail than your email concerning your giant Auror undercover murder case. We talked a bit about the upcoming fashion week for Hazeris which ended in us bickering over whether or not skinny jeans are ever an acceptable clothing choice, which then led us to discussing man-buns and the unfortunate come-back of some 80's clothing styles. You know what really needs to make a comeback? Comfy flannels and baggy denims. I could just talk with you forever even if we didn't have anything but nonsense to talk about.

Eventually as lovely as the sunshine and smells of flowers and grass were we needed to make our way to London for our lunch reservations. There are a million different restaurants and places to try. Places with exotic foods or new takes on traditional favorites. But you know that I am a sentimental mushy crybaby, so I liked the idea of having our anniversary lunch at the same restaurant as our first (public) date. I suppose I could have planned a picnic, but when I told the kids my idea for a picnic, they all quickly shut me down. They insisted you'd prefer something fancy as opposed to sitting on the ground.

I don't know, you are of course still a snob, but you've never been snobby enough to turn your nose up at a cozy picnic. But they were so insistent and it's not like I don't love The Shard anyway.

Again, just a lovely lunch. You looked ridiculously fit in your three piece suit. That deep blue tie somehow bringing out the silver in your eyes. I couldn't take my eyes off of you. You've always worried so much about your appearance, keeping the Malfoy mask of perfection. You have mentioned to me that you're worried about how your skin or hair or whatnot will hold up as you age. I think you've only gotten more handsome as we've gotten older. Your face smiles all the time, your beauty regimen means your skin is probably softer than Gabe, Dyl, and Morgana's! Your hair has gotten softer, and your near constant dancing has your body in amazing shape.

Your (beautiful) eighteen year old self I married couldn't hold a candle to you now. He was the beginnings of a heady wine that continues to become more magnificent with age.

I was by far the luckiest person in that restaurant, having you on my arm, calling you mine. We ate delicious food I don't remember, you made me laugh about a gazillion times, we smooched often enough to nauseate everyone there. Or turn them all on I guess, depending on what gets them hot under the collar. I spoonfed you some delicious pudding, which you insisted was going to go straight to your arse. I happen to pretty much worship your arse, so I'll take it!

Just as we were finishing up, we got a message from your mum that Morgana was probably about ten minutes away from shattering things, so we paid up the bill and headed to the closest apparition point.

I'm sure Morgana would have eventually gotten into a strop, but your mum was a liar! She was part of the kids' devious plot ... to give us something sweet and wonderful for our anniversary!

We got home and you quickly made your way, me on your heels, to .... a soundly asleep Morgana? What in the world Narcissa? Why am I surprised?

She had us grab a sleeping Morgana, a half asleep Dylan, and a wide awake Gabriel, and bring them out onto the south lawns. Where the rest of our children had set up a beautiful picnic near the gazebo. Oh! You sneaky little shites, that's why they didn't want me to take you on a picnic, they had a picnic set out for us.

We certainly weren't hungry yet since we had just finished lunch, but they had my favorite white wine chilling and the most beautiful performance I've ever seen in my entire life ready for our viewing pleasure. I laid in your arms, like I did on our first date, but instead of watching the sunset, I watched the family we've built tell a beautiful tale of love.

What followed was a year by year, event by event, adoption by birth by accidental baby acquisition story of our love. All of our children were there, the ones we legally adopted, the ones we adopted with just our hearts, the ones we made, even River and Mahafsoun - who weren't able to be there in person - were on a magi-skype call with us the entire time. We were covered in babies, our three smallest and our two little grandsons taking up a lot of room on our picnic blanket.

The older kids ran the show, but they were so good about making sure the little ones were heavily involved. I definitely think Lainie's experience putting together shows for her students of all ages and talent levels really came in handy.

Viona began by talking about our whirlwind romance and our quickly executed wedding (teasing us about not taking enough time to plan a proper wedding!) and then talked about the most important event in our marriage ... her arrival. After her siblings threw popcorn at her, she giggled off the gazebo/stage (she obviously wasn't mad I am sure that was scripted) and Lainie took over. She talked about that next year, her joining the family (officially) and those early days when there were only a "few" of us. Dealing with pregnant and hormonal you and I at the same time.

Then River took over from the screen, talking about the time spent at Unity House, how important spending time there was for him when he was growing up. Then the kids read us letters from Unity Royalty throughout the world. They even had some letters that were simple enough that the feisty foursome could read their way through them with a little help. I was a blubering mess from the start, but when Eric actually joined in and read us his own letter? I think I've officially decided to not hurt him.

You remember the whole thing I'm sure, and Ori even recorded it for us in case one of us (me) needs to go back and rewatch it when there aren't tears blurring his vision. They went through all of our travels, did several dances from the different areas of the world we've visited. And Siri had a beautifully heartbreaking poem written to talk about our time in Iran. Did you know he'd been writing poetry? He's amazing. A lifetime of mischief and otherwise sitting on the sidelines quietly observing the world has given him such beautiful insight.

How did we luck into this life? We have the most amazing family. I have the most wonderful husband. Little Harry in the cupboard has come such a long way.

Hopefully me writing this was enough time for you to set up our playroom. Are you ready for me?

My dream that I can call my own,
Harry

Monday May 29th
My everything,

So... based off your very vague clues, I knew that we were going to be having lunch at our Original Date Spot, and then having a … thing... But that the thing would be during the afternoon/early evening and require snacks rather than a full dinner.

To be honest, I was sincerely hoping for a bit of a playnight with a few friends. I know, I know, we don't like to have others involved in our Anniversary lovemaking until AFTER we've had at least one good session of just the two of us, and even then, we tend to stick to very light playing, rather than full on orgies. But still, I was half convinced that you'd arranged a play party involving all our favorite playmates - such as Neville and Charlie and/or Tiger and Viper - although, to be fair, we DID play with those two recently.

That said, since you didn't give any sort of hints specifically referring to nighttime activities, I decided to arrange something. Something that I had a feeling would make you weep with joy. Something you can't get enough of and often beg for more.

So, as you apparently wrote me an email, I 'went to the playroom' and 'got it ready for our night.' In actuality, I prepared a nice and obviously bespoke outfit for both of us. Mine I put directly on, but yours was laying out on the bed. When you finally came in to see what I had in store for you, you saw how I was dressed and grinned.

"Mmm, I get to serve my well-dressed master as a naked slave boy tonight?" You hypothesized.
"Well, let me dress you in your costume and see, shall I?" I drawled with a smirk.

Nodding, you dropped to your knees, probably assuming that I was going to cast stripping spells on you. Which I did. Right before I cast dressing spells on you. Once done, you were looking glamorous in a crisp emerald green button up and black silk-lined linen trousers. I was wearing matching trousers, a sapphire blue button up, and a gold waistcoat.

You quirked a brow curiously as I held my hand out and helped you to your feet. Then I gave you a quick but demanding kiss before pulling back and smirking again. Making a big show of it, I pulled out my gold pocket watch and checked the time.

"It seems we have JUST enough time to Apparate to our destination, my love," I informed you. "Had you lingered any longer, we'd've missed 7:30."

With no other explanation, I Apparated us to the Duke of York Theater and cast a slew of charms to help get us to the front of the line, hand over our tickets, and then get to our seats before the show started. You were giving me a confused look as all the signs and adverts for the show warned over and over that there was rude language ahead.

"A comedy show?" You asked.

"Mostly, yes," I stated, still not spoiling it.

"Called Our Ladies of Perpetual Succor? Isn't that a Catholic thing?"

Alright, either you were REALLY playing along and pretending to know nothing, or else you ACTUALLY hadn't heard of it before, which I felt unlikely considering our daughters Elena and Shhtara probably told you about the show at some point. Still, perhaps you didn't want to ruin me thinking that I was actually bringing you to a show you'd not seen or heard of before.

In any case, the play began and six young women came out on stage to talk about how they were in a choir competition for their Catholic school - in Scotland. Oh how their brogue takes me back to my school days, in which quite a few of our classmates were from Scotland, not to mention McGonagall - who can really boggle the mind when she slips into her nearly indecipherable colloquialisms.

The first twist came up nearly right away as - right after they sang an angelic hymn-like song - they revealed that their actual goal was to FAIL the competition and spend the day just having a lark back home, but also in Edinburgh - which is a huge city and has so much more to offer than their small town.

Hilarity and shenanigans ensued. I loved it for the comedy, the drama, and the strong all-female cast. Not to mention the frequent foul language! You loved it for the songs, naturally, the powerful singing, and everything else, basically.

The best part of all was we got to literally sit up on stage - as the tickets I bought weren't JUST front row - with my arm around you and your head often resting on my chest. While sipping cocktails. Mine was made with champagne and dry brut and it was surprisingly lovely. I'm not sure you actually drank any of yours because you were so engrossed in the play.

As a bonus, apparently some of the songs were originally by ELO, but the only one I recognized off hand was Don't Bring Me Down. Which I now have stuck in my head...

When we got back home, we took advantage of the fact that our parents (and Muffy) were keeping our kids well occupied. I brought you back to our play room, but rather than do any of the kinky things it was designed for, we simply kissed and caressed each other until...

Until I took a page out of your book - took my time turner back from Orion for a bit - and joined us for a threesome in which I got to take you while you took me.

Sheer bliss!

Perhaps we should make this a tradition on our Anniversary EVERY year, haha.

Love you for now and for always,
Draco
Tuesday May 30, 2017

Husband Mine,

Since I took yesterday off from my current teaching routine to enjoy our anniversary together I ended up coming in today. I probably just should have done extra classes on Wednesday or Thursday instead. I am so horribly embarrassed right now and I don't know as if I will ever recover.

So, last night was wonderful in so many ways. I was really excited when I thought we were going to play naked slave boy and posh Master but you took me to the theatre? It was amazing! I loved every single moment; the music, the humor, the sitting in your arms with my head on your chest. The awesome show more than made up for the slight disappointment at not serving you. But coming home to our new tradition of time-turner threesomes with our actual selves? Yes please!

We tried a few variations of shag positions, but I think you know my very favorite one. Yeah, when the both of you took me at the same time. What's better than having an arse full of my husband's gorgeous cock? Two of my husband's gorgeous cock! Riding you, staring into your beautiful face, then other you sliding in me from behind, kissing my neck, reaching around and joining you in stroking me. Oh wow, I should probably stop thinking about how delicious it was since I'm sitting at my desk frighteningly hard.

Being hard at my desk would be the second most traumatizing thing to happen today. I got to Hogwarts nice and early, sitting down to a delicious breakfast in the great hall. You know how much I adore making breakfast at home, feeding my family, I get such a rush of pride knowing I've fed my family delicious and hopefully healthy filling foods. But there's something so nostalgically wonderful about eating breakfast in the great hall. This is the first place I ever actually got to eat until I was no longer hungry. These are the first breakfasts I ever got to eat without having accidentally burnt it first.

Anyway, so I'm sitting at breakfast, squirming a bit because my arse was sore. I know I know I know, I'm a wizard I can easily heal that. But why would I want to when it's only sore and not painful? It's a constant reminder of the double love I received from my husband. Except it wasn't only a reminder for me. Apparently my shifting and squirming was quite telling. How do I know it was obvious to others? Because Headmistress McGonagall, a woman who's known me since I was eleven, practically an extra grandmother or at least auntie to our children, my Minnie .... took a look at me, smirked hard enough to put even a Malfoy smirk to shame, and said, "Looks as though someone had a very, ehrm, thorough anniversary celebration last night."

So I'll just send this email and then I'll be off to our hidden emergency island. It's been a lovely eighteen years, I'll miss you ever so much, I will probably come back when the embarrassment fades. I'm guessing at least a decade. Don't hold your breath.

What? You think it's a ridiculous reason to run away and hide from the world? Fine! I'll stay!

If you're still wondering about my very vague clues I suppose I should clue you in to why they were vague or weird. I had no idea what the children had planned for us. About two weeks ago they cornered me, told me they wanted to do a song and dance for us but were worried I'd overly schedule our day. Which, to be fair, I probably would have. I guess they needed to give me just enough information that I would block off a window of time for their amazingly beautiful tribute, but without ruining the surprise. It worked like a charm, we had that lovely picnic, and still had plenty of time for the show in the evening.

It's the day after our anniversary and I'm still riding the high from our wonderful day.

Or maybe that's the orgasm high!

High on you,
Harry

Wednesday May 31st
Mi Corazon,

Let me get a bit of business that you probably already knew out of the way. I'm going to blame the atrocious brain fog I had for not knowing/remembering these things. But here's apparently the way things stand for our original set of almost triplets.

Orion owns a successful business and does not plan to attend Hogwarts next year, and so, is taking his NEWTS a year early. Eris has just had a baby and has also decided that she doesn't want to be going back to Hogwarts and leaving behind a toddler, and so, SHE is going to be taking her NEWTS a year early. Which leaves Hazel NOT wanting to be the only one of the three going to school next year, therefore naturally, SHE is going to be taking her NEWTS this year as well. Last but not least, Harrison absolutely DOES NOT want to be not only the last of his siblings but the last of his 'almost siblings' going to school, so HE'S going to be taking his NEWTS too.

Oi! Which means that in just three weeks (less if I decide to bribe the examiners again), we're going to have no less than FIVE students graduating and wanting a party. Thank all the Gods that Eris and my mother have been on top of planning that for a couple of months now, because I'm not certain I could survive planning a huge party on top of planning (or rather, listening to Viona freak out about) her wedding, which: "IS IN JULY, DAD, JUST FIVE AND A HALF WEEKS AWAY!!"

Sigh...

In any case, because they've done all the planning and DON'T want to conflict IN THE SLIGHTEST with Viona's wedding, this is how it stands: The last day of term this year is Friday June 23rd, with the Seventh Years and our four not-going-back Sixth Years participating in the graduation ceremony that morning. The entirety of the Castle will then be scrambling to finish packing up to be on the Hogwarts' Express headed home by about midday of Saturday June 24th. Which means that they have been spreading the word for weeks now that they're going to have their graduation party here at the Manor on Saturday night, lasting until at least lunch on Sunday, possibly until dinner if enough people stay rather than pop off to do whatever they might need to do now that they're free young adults let loose on the world.

Speaking of which, I know that Viona plans to move in with Alric the moment they're married - they've even bought their house. But I suppose that Eris, Orion, and Hazel will probably want to continue living in the Manor. Or MAYBE Orion will do as he 'jokingly' suggested and live in a flat in the Hog's Head. Eris and Hazel have talked a little bit about maybe getting a flat in London and opening a design studio/clothing boutique. Harrison is not technically ours to worry about, but since Delphini has very recently expanded the Potter Bed and Breakfast into a full on hideaway/resort complete with a house for all of them, he's probably going to be moving in there with the rest of his siblings and take a more active role in helping that business be as successful as possible. OR he might actually move in with Orion and learn bartending.

I guess we'll see, won't we?

The point is that with you teaching next year and all of us moving to Hogwarts, they'll all have their living situation sorted, and we won't 'have' to worry about them. The middles will be IN Hogwarts - except Shtara, who'll be staying in the Dorms in Elena's school - and the Littles will probably be bored as fuck in the Professor's quarter's that we'll be living in, but it'll be easy enough to bring them back to the Manor any day the boredom gets to be too much for them.

UGH!!! I have GOT to stop thinking about all of this before I lose the last of my thinning hair to stress!

So, moving on to my day yesterday. While you were dying of mortification, I managed to FINALLY have that meeting with Oliver and our Lawyers. What took so long was that the legal team wanted to be absolutely certain they had a rock solid case, and so, took the time to patch up any potential holes. I personally did not want Oliver to feel intimidated, so I booked a private room at Café Exquis, a room with a much smaller table than our usual family sized one.

For nearly two hours, we all ate light things like caviar and escargot while sipping on excellent Albarino. The team did an excellent job of explaining what they could do, and Oliver slowly changed from practically stubborn and dead set against any of this to... tentatively in agreement. He still maintains that he does NOT want to cause strife to a family he quite loved for many years. That said, the lawyers stressed that they were able to compile clear records of everything Oliver earned when he played quidditch professionally, and also clear records of how those earnings were deposited into a joint vault and remained there for many years, until about five years ago, that exact amount was transferred from the joint vault to a vault owned by the family - leaving only Edmond's monthly stipend from his family.

It seems that considering the fact that they lived in one of Edmond's family properties (which he apparently already lived in when Oliver married him, and so, Oliver always thought Edmond owned it outright), and they had very little for expenses, the money Edmond received for being the Heir to their family meant that he received more than they spent, and actually, could have survived quite well WITHOUT any of Oliver's money at all. Hence the reason it was able to remain in the vault in its entirety for so many years.

But I digress as that's not actually relevant.

Basically, our lawyers won Oliver over by promising to go after those earnings and only those earnings. In essence, NOT attacking the in-laws, but rather legally asking for the return of his property. Income, whatever. The fact that he and his children have been staying with us will only play into the Wizengamot's sympathy, as I'm certain Oliver is probably a favorite of at least some of them, being a famous Quidditch player and all.

So, after the legal team left, I could clearly see that Oliver A: didn't want to go home yet as he probably wanted time to think without being interrupted by Parker - or any of OUR kids. But conversely, DIDN'T want to think about/dwell on it. And B: hadn't eaten (or even pretended to eat) anything while listening to the 'pitch,' and so, must be at least a little hungry.

Smiling encouragingly, I ordered a real lunch for both of us. I naturally asked for hibachi grilled calamari, while Oliver seems more of a fish and chips bloke, and since he wasn't paying attention, I figured he'd either eat it and not even notice, or not eat it and it could be packed up and brought home for later.
Happily, he managed to finish his thinking while I was still chatting about the weather and recent Quidditch scores. Thus, when I was ready to move onto my exasperation over my oldest children - well NEARLY oldest, he was paying attention again, and seemed grateful for something else to think about. We had a nice long chat that turned from lighter topics to increasingly more serious topics. Such as yours and his upcoming jobs and move to Hogwarts.

At some point, my inherent flirting just kicked in and I didn't even realize it until Oliver blushed and muttered: "Merlin!"

"Sorry, too much?" I asked in concern.

"Not so much too much as... well, I'm still getting used to flirting and being found attractive," he admitted with a shrug.

"You CLEARLY didn't leave the house much as I'm dead certain you still have millions of fans ready to reassure you that you are utterly fit and wank bank material," I replied with a grin, making him blush again.

Then he shook his head. "I logically understand that you and Harry are open, and that you both seem to be attracted to me for some reason, but I... I just can't help... I STILL have a hard time accepting that you're suddenly on a cozy lunch date with me, and Harry has no idea what you're doing. It's like you're going behind his back or something..."

Rather than feel any sort of guilty, I decided to read bits and pieces from an email of yours - to him.

"Thursday May 25th - Harry ends his email with: 'Can you talk to him? (Referring to you, Oliver.) I'll stay home with the babes tonight, you can take him to dinner.' I stopped there rather than reveal that you wanted to use a legal meeting as an excuse for chatting him up. Which is basically what happened, huh...

Oliver chuckled. "Yeah, but, what would he think if his suggestion of a simple dinner turned into a whole lot MORE than he likes?"

"Oh? You mean you don't think he knows what could potentially happen?" I challenged with a smirk, and then proceeded to read him the earlier part of the same email in which you described what might have happened had me and Oliver continued to cuddle in bed rather than be woken up by my confusion causing you to howl with laughter.

By the time I was done, Oliver looked like he'd just been punched by a fist full of Amortentia - or actually NOT Amortentia, which is a love potion, but rather a LUST potion. Er... maybe a bit of both. The important part was that he was quite woozy looking and not opposed to the idea at all, which made me slide so much closer to him and stroke his cheek.

"That reminds me, Harry got to kiss you so much more thoroughly than I did..." I trailed off before giving him a kiss to remember. When I was done, he exhaled in a soft tone of awe.

"Fuck... NEVER in my life did I imagine that I'd be kissing that bratty Seeker from the Slytherin Team!"

I smirked mildly evilly. "Can't say the same..."

He chuckled as I tossed enough money onto the table to pay for everything, and then stood and held my hand out to him. "Come, let's return to the Manor and terrorize all those stablehands Harry hired for his rescue. I want to be certain that they can handle the operation once he's working full time at Hogwarts - especially since I talked him into taking the Head of Gryffindor House position and he'll need to be there five days a week minimum."

"I'm only going to be the Flying Instructor and Quidditch Referee (plus occasional coach as necessary), and so, I won't need to stay in the school quite as much. I'll be able to pop back here and check on them each day," Oliver promised as I tucked his hand in the crook of my arm and prepared to Apparate us home. We both paused our conversation until after the Apparation was complete, but then continued on, walking toward the stables as we talked.

"I know Harry will be relieved. I'm honestly surprised that he hasn't devolved into panicky Harry yet, and he may well do so as September draws nearer, but I think the fact that he hasn't already means that he trusts his staff implicitly, and probably even feels like they know more about what they're doing than he does. He's always preferred to be more of a fun uncle than the main caregiver."

"But that's incredibly amazing too!" Oliver exclaimed passionately. "Harry has the inspiration and motivation - not to mention sheer tenacity! - to help improve lives, be it children or animal. He gets the Quaffle going, and then sees to it that others have the skill and ability to keep it in motion while he moves on to the next thing that needs him."

"That he does," I agreed. "And the very first thing he saved and nurtured and loved was me, and I will never stop loving him with every beat of my heart and every breath in my body. Not even death will stop me from loving him."

Oliver looked a little gutted by those words and I immediately felt like a bastard. "I'm so sorry, I didn't mean -"

He cut me off by shaking my head. "No, I know. You didn't mean to imply that I was a rotten husband because I'm already moving on from my husband's death. But... part of me can't help but feel that way."

I nodded in understanding, stopping outside the stables and holding his hand. "Listen, since I clearly stuck my foot in it, why don't you go chat with your Mind Healer while I have fun running amok in the stables thoroughly alarming all the employees."

Oliver laughed. "Why do you say it like that?"

"Like what?" I asked innocently, then grinned. "It's because I know how to use any tiny mistake listed in an employee's file to fluster them, and by doing so, can gauge whether or not they're efficient at their jobs, and more important, confident enough to tell me that they know what they're doing and I can kindly bugger off."

Laughing again, Oliver kissed me on the cheek before waving and promising to come see how it went when he got back. After he Disapparated, I rolled up my sleeves and got down to business.

On that note, I'm so sorry if one or two of your employees came crying to you hysterically. I might have - perhaps - gotten a tad overzealous. I didn't actually fire anyone, merely implied that I might if they couldn't explain their actions more coherently.

I'd stare a lifetime into your eyes,
Draco
P.S. Perhaps we shouldn't mention to Oliver just yet how important that kiss between the two of you was. No need to make him go running back to his Mind Healer a mere day later. We'll tell him if all this flirting bears actual fruit, yeah?
P.P.S. Can I just say without provoking extinction level wrath that I sort of, kinda, maybe just a little, LIKE Oliver. You know me, I love flirting with almost anyone - NOT on the same level as Blaise, who can flirt with EVERYTHING, but still. So that's all I thought it was at first, having fun flirting and being just serious enough to be there for Oliver exactly as much as he needs. But now...? I... Well... for example, simply walking arm in arm with him while chatting was... thrilling. There wasn't a solid prospect of shagging and I still quite enjoyed that simple walk. I just pray you don't think this means I love you any less as I was deadly serious with what I said to Oliver about loving you. I am by no means a stranger to open and polyamorous relationships, but I have to admit that this thing with Oliver... makes me feel like I should probably have a chat with my own Mind Healer.

P.P.P.S. If I'm not back before you get home, you can find me at Yesenia's.
Chapter 138

Chapter Summary

Harry is curious about Draco's need for a session, and Draco ends up with a magical problem.

Wednesday May 31, 2017

My Heart,

I just got home a little while ago, you must still be at Yesenia's. I decided not to come find you there, but let you have as long as you need. I suppose I am just a bit curious as to why you feel the need to be there. You know I always think talking things over with our mind healers is the right thing to do, I just wonder what set you off that you found it necessary tonight.

I read your email, so I suppose I know what set you off. I guess I'm just confused as to why this is something traumatic or life-changing enough that you needed an immediate discussion with Yesenia. You knew I was developing a bit of a crush on Ollie, and that didn't seem to upset you in the slightest. But you realizing you like him is upsetting you in the slightest. But you realizing you like him is upsetting you?

I know I haven't had a real crush since we've gotten together, but I didn't realize you hadn't. Or have you had smaller ones and this one is just bigger? Or is it the fact that you and I are both crushing on the same person that makes it feel more real? I just don't know what could be different about now that is hard for you to wrap your mind around emotionally.

Well, I suppose it really doesn't matter what part of this is hard for you, you did the right thing in going to talk with Yesenia. I'm thinking I'll just stay here at home and cuddle you all up when you get back instead of searching you out. I think you could have some time to yourself with her, and maybe later this week or next week we can have a joint session if you'd like.

If you get this and read it while in your session, please know that I know how much you love me. And just like you accepted and loved me through admitting to my feelings, I love and accept you through admitting your own. Can I be completely honest with you? It sounds like you're afraid of my wrath? You're afraid of my jealousy, my possessiveness, my whatever negative feeling you were expecting. Don't you think that would be awfully hypocritical of me to have extinction levels of rage for you doing the exact same thing I am? Truly though, I'm actually so unbelievably relieved that you're having feelings as well. I was feeling so badly, despite your assurance of continuing love and support, for my own feelings. I was having a hard time wrapping my mind around how I can love you unconditionally while having these feelings. I thought you were doing that thing where you give up everything you want in order to appease me. I thought my feelings were breaking your heart and you were hiding it under your Malfoy mask and feigned understanding. To find out that's not the case? Knowing that what I felt was an indiscretion is actually something we're both feeling? I'm so so so relieved.

But I suppose this is probably what you felt the need to discuss with Yesenia. We've always known exactly where we've stood when it comes to our relationship with each other. We are romantically monogamous while having a policy of sexual openness under a set of rules and understandings.
This is not sex. Or not JUST sex. Hopefully it includes sex.

Actually, I have no idea what to hope. We're discussing this with each other. And we're being open with Ollie that we are having feelings. But the more I think about his reactions to all of it, the more I think he assumes we're flirting in an attempt to play with him. That we care about him as a person and look forward to shagging if and when he's ever ready. But does he realize that's not what this is? I didn't realize that's not what this was until you admitted to that romantic thrill while just walking with him. All of this is completely irrelevant if he's not ready for a relationship, if he's not interested in any sort of non-monogamy, or if he's not actually interested in us the way we are him.

Oh Merlin, all this introspection and this could all be a moot point. What if he's mildly flattered because he's feeling unattractive and unwanted, but has absolutely none of these feelings we've been churning around and around? Well, I suppose he at least has some of the sexy-type shaggy feelings. He watched us shag, joined our other-universe doppelgangers and took a blow-job from me. And he was apparently all turned on at my fantasy involving the two of you from my email.

You read him my email?!? He knows I've been fantasizing about him! I've been using my images of my friend to get my rocks off and ... and ... well, and he seems to like it. I guess it's not so bad. But if he had not taken it well, you would be in some massive trouble Draco Lucius! Well he now knows I fantasize about him, he knows I wouldn't mind seeing the two of you together, he knows I tried getting you to take him out, so basically he now knows I'm an utter slag. Ta ever so for that.

Oh, before you panic, I am not actually upset with you. I understand that he was worried about my feelings and you showed him exactly why those worries were unfounded. You made the right decision. I just don't know how I feel about him knowing exactly what a pervert I am.

I really do feel so badly for Oliver. He feels as though he's rotten for moving on too fast from his husband? His extremely controlling husband? The man that (medical excuse or not) abused him for years? A man who, if the lawyers are to be believed, allowed his parents to steal from his husband? I hope his mind healer is adamant that he's in no way required to mourn for a specific period and there's no need to feel guilty for wanting companionship or even a down and dirty shag. He hadn't had sex for almost five years!!! I can NOT imagine that. I can't imagine going five days unless there was a medical need like pregnancy, I can't even imagine going five weeks WITH a medical need!

And even in a regular marriage, where one of the partners wasn't abusive, a year between diagnosis and death is completely different than an unexpected death. In those situations, the family begins the grief process when they learn of the upcoming death. That means for all that he's "only" been gone for a little over five weeks, Ollie's been mourning for over a year. That's not a short amount of time.

He nursed his abuser for a year after diagnosis, he's a right to some happiness if he can find it! He has a right to a lot more in my opinion! If I were Oliver, I would take those in-law douchebags for all they were worth! Okay, I know myself, I wouldn't. I'm not good at that kind of confrontation. But I definitely think HE should! At least he's willing to allow our lawyers to try and get back what's rightfully his. I can't believe they think they have the right to his earnings. If the lawyers don't get on top of this situation ... should we call a certain beloved Russian grandmother?

And his poor children, they lost their father, they lost their home, they lost what they thought were loving grandparents, I want to go full Rage Halo Harry on those monsters! Oh! Cassie. So, we've Viona's graduation, and Ori, Eri, Haz, and Harrison's early graduation, but what about Cassie? We should make sure Ollie AND Cassie are not only told about the party and asked to attend, but Cassie should be one of the graduates the party honors don't you think? We can let her know she still has people who love and support her even if her shite grandparents won't. She can invite all of her friends. I just think it's important we show those kids that they are not only free to stay as long as they need, but that they are wanted and welcomed.

Even if we aren't living there officially. I already talked with your mum, and your dad will just do whatever Narcissa tells him to do anyway, to know if Oliver and his kids or the Viper crew would still be welcomed and have a home here even if we weren't here all the time. She, of course, looked at me like I was an absolute moron and told me they were of course welcome as long as they'd like. I think Narcissa had a lifetime of silent halls and echoing empty ballrooms. She loves the noise and chaos and love that comes with a massive family. If anything, I think she'd be displeased if they all tried to leave just because we weren't there.

Obviously you will be bringing our small children home to the Manor often since you think they'll be bored being in our quarters. And that's great because I have a feeling Grandma Cissy won't want to be very far away from her grandchildren. But do you think they're going to be forced to stay within our quarters? Do you think they'd follow that rule even if it were enforced? I spoke about this at length with Minnie. They will need to stay out of the Forbidden Forest unless accompanied by one of us, and they need to make sure they're not disrupting classes, but other than that, they will have an entire castle grounds to discover. I think they may even end up with more outdoor spaces to explore than the Manor grounds!

And since Oliver won't be staying at the castle as often as we need to and has already promised to pop into the stables often, I am certain he will take the feisty foursome with him. We can't keep our littles away from their horses, thestrals, and unicorns. I don't know if he should bring YOU though since you make my stable employees cry!

What did you do to Alex? I spent probably twenty minutes trying to dry those tears! Be nice! Don't make me sic your mum on you!

I think I heard the floo, hopefully that's you coming home because I could use a smooch!

Always Yours,
Harry

P.S. Do you think I could talk the two of you into doing a re-enactment of that kiss?

Friday June 2nd
My most patient and understanding husband,

So, I erm... I'm in St. Mungo's again as it seems that our children were playing a round of hide and hex - or perhaps magical tag - and during an accidental tumble or collision, a combination of spells hit me that forcibly turned me into a... sigh... an Anteater. Thank MERLIN I can still type! Please do me a favor and make sure Morgana didn't blow up the Manor the moment she realized I was gone, yeah? Thanks!

Eternally your unlucky bastard,
Draco
Chapter 139

Chapter Summary

It's Draco's birthday.

Monday June 5, 2017

Happy Birthday My Love,

I'm so happy you're here to celebrate your birthday with your family. And not stuck in St. Mungo's still from your ... incident. The incident we're never talking about again. Ever. No matter how hilarious it was. Sorry, not hilarious, uhm, erm, horrifying. Terrible and embarrassing and bad. Bad bad bad.

But oh my Hell it was hilarious. The funniest thing to me is when I walked into your room, I immediately knew the anteater was you. Besides the fact that you had told me you were an anteater, and the medi-witch (not YOUR medi-witch, a different one) told me it was your room, it was so obviously you. How did you manage to look like a posh, annoyed, snob whilst transfigured into an anteater?

You were really only stuck that way for a few hours short of a full day. It should have been easy enough to swap you back, probably easy enough to not go to St. Mungo's at all, except it wasn't one spell or hex or whatever that did it. It was a combination of three casts at varying power levels that caused your ... unfortunate condition. They had to carefully unravel and remove the spells instead of just casting a finite. They were layered awkwardly, it was a bit like a tangled rope left in storage to long, just yanking on it might have tangled it all the more so it had to be carefully unraveled in the right order.

Luckily for all of us you were only there for the 22 hours then. Not only could you have missed your birthday if it had been a couple of days, but Morgana may have ended up leveling the Manor!
Actually, I was pleasantly surprised that she was pretty much fine. I don't think she would have been if we hadn't gone above and beyond to keep her happy, but she didn't even blow anything up! She did make a couple of angry faces at each of us, but that seemed to be the extent. If she gained a lot of weight in the last few days I wouldn't be surprised, because I pretty much fed her nonstop. When she wasn't nursing, she was playing with her brothers. If they weren't available, all of us (but mostly me) took turns singing her silly songs, playing peek-a-boo, and basically acting ridiculous for the Queen's amusement!

As you'll recall, I also brought her and her boys to come visit you. I think her amusement at your circumstances canceled out all rage at your disappearance.

So, I just finished a mile-high stack of crepes, served up a ridiculous portion of berries, ginger, garlic, and caviar, and I'm about to come wake up my birthday boy. Don't worry, I'm coming alone .... and in a few minutes you'll be coming alone too!

Thank you for being born,
Harry

Monday June 5th
My adoration,

Today started out perfectly. Aside from the fact that I still have a strong urge and/or compulsive need to search for pictures of ants on the internet, I'm feeling like myself. You woke me up in my favorite way - an orgasm followed by snuggling followed by food.

After that, we took advantage of the fact that the babies were apparently content to be playing with each other somewhere else. I can only assume you woke Morgana up and gave her a good feed while you were cooking my breakfast, because she was not causing any destruction yet.

But happy morning times didn't end with our snuggling. You pampered me as I ate, giving me a foot massage and devoting yourself to me as my naked manservant. I had you kneeling next to my side of the bed, holding my glass of pomegranate juice, and was just starting to pet your head and give you praise - thereby turning this into a bit of a puppy play session - when we had a guest arrive.

"Harry! Draco!" Oliver called out softly as he entered our suite but was still outside of our bedroom. "Are you in here?"

"Come here," I bade, still petting your head, which was making you melt even as you were trying to maintain a rigid enough posture that you didn't spill my drink.

He walked into our room with a smile that very quickly turned to mild curiosity. "Whaaat are you doing???

I chuckled. "It's my birthday and Harry is treating me like his King for the day. Anything I so desire, even the slightest whim, is mine to have at his procurement."

"Uh...huh..." Oliver cleared his throat. "That's actually sort of why I came in here. I wanted to give you a card from Cassie, Parker, and me. I know it's not much - or anything really - but -" He stopped when I held up a hand to cut him off.

"I don't need more THINGS, Oliver. A card is perfect for me. Hand it over."
He handed it over and I read what turned out to be three pages of babbling gratitude from them. Smiling, I ordered Muffy to set the card on the small shelf of knickknacks on the same wall as our photos. Then I invited Oliver to sit on the edge of our bed, and he was a bit hesitant because you were naked on your knees and I was naked in bed with only a crisp white sheet preserving my 'modesty.'

Once he was sitting on the edge of the bed, I smirked at him. "Harry has wondered if he could talk the two of us into demonstrating that kiss we had for his viewing pleasure."

You gasped eagerly. "Yes Please!"

Oliver quirked a brow at you for a moment before chuckling. "Alright..."

To be honest, this wasn't exactly a reenactment because that first kiss was mostly me showing him a bit of my skill, this kiss was him leaning over to reach my mouth and then giving as good as he got, and since I was ALSO giving as good as I got, we were quite hot and heavy in no time at all. You were making a soft sound of enjoyment that I'm almost certain you didn't realize or notice you were doing.

When we pulled apart, the sheet was tented to show that I was DEFINITELY back in the mood. You were still kneeling next to the bed, so I couldn't exactly see it, but I'm willing to bet my last galleon that you were as hard as Chinese arithmancy too. Oliver was fully clothed, but his trousers looked painfully tight.

All in all, I thought it was an excellent time to push my luck.

"Harry, my love, put that drink on the bedside table, move this tray as well, and then climb into bed please," I commanded. You were already finished and in bed before I could take three breaths. You kissed me, wagging your firm and shapely rear as if you had a tail. I think you were still at least a little bit in puppy mode, or at the very least, not in the mood to speak.

"This King for a day commands you to kiss our Oliver so well that he can't breathe - can only pant with desire."

Oliver looked rather amused by our antics, but most definitely stayed put to play along. You kissed him enthusiastically, inadvertently bending him backwards over my lap, which was exactly perfect in my opinion. I stroked a hand down along your spine repeatedly, thoroughly enjoying my birthday present.

Still, I couldn't involve Oliver in our playing much more without his express consent. "Oliver, Harry and I are obviously worked up a bit much to just quit now. So we need to know what you are comfortable with. Perhaps something small? My Harry can give you another blowjob, or he can wank you - just you or both of you together - OR he can simply keep on kissing you until you frot to a lovely climax."

I had so many other options I could have given him, but I didn't want to overwhelm him with choice.

"Erm..." he droned in thought for a long moment. "Yeah, actually, I would probably love some kissing and frotting. But what about you? It's YOUR birthday, shouldn't YOU be the one having all the fun?"

"Oh believe me, watching IS my fun, and besides, there will come a point when I just have to have my husband - as watching him will have driven me mad with lust, and at that point, you'll receive quite a show in return."

"Mmm..." you purred in anticipation.

Stroking your back again, I ordered: "Strip Oliver off, Harry, and be sure to lick or kiss everything as it's uncovered."

Oliver inhaled sharply as you did exactly that. Since he was still bent backwards over my lap, I took advantage of the proximity by pinching his nipples. We KNOW it's been a while since he's had anything other than a wank and that blowjob you gave him, so I felt it prudent to cast a denial spell on him for at least a few minutes.

You eagerly and somewhat roughly yanked his clothes off, kissing, licking, and gently biting everything that was uncovered. When you reached his shaft, you made a long delay on the trip to his feet, demandingly getting your mouth and hands full. Poor Oliver! If I hadn't cast that denial spell, I'm almost certain he'd be done already! He had a look on his face that let me know he was downright gobsmacked that he hadn't gone off and passed out yet.

After giving you a few minutes to do your best to suck him dry - the denial spell holding - I tapped your head expectantly. "Oi! Finish stripping him off and get back to what he asked for!"

You made a soft grunt of understanding and agreement and resumed your journey to his feet before making the return trip to his shaft - which you once again gave a good suck to - before finally arriving at your destination of his mouth. Once you were settled nicely atop him and snogging the breath right out of his body, I cast a couple of lubrication charms to make your mutual frotting even better. You were perhaps eager to show him a good time, because you had your hand between you, helping out by wanking you both just a little.

I let this continue on for quite some time, enjoying every moment of it, but Oliver eventually started looking a bit overwhelmed, and since he almost certainly had nothing for stamina, the enforced version from my spell must be harming more than helping at that point, so I impressed myself by casting TWO spells at the same time, both wordless and wandless. The one on him took off the denial spell, while the one on you brought on instant orgasm.

Or in other words, I wanted you both to have a clear and glorious conclusion to your playing.

But of course, that wasn't the end. I still had an erection just begging for attention. So, I smacked your arse and bit your shoulder. "Oi, mutt! Hop on and ride your Master!"

Well now, weren't you eager?

After you rode me for quite a while, my own unaided stamina was reaching it's limit. So I looked at Oliver, who was watching us with an almost innocent curiosity by this point, and asked: "Which would you prefer? Watching me pump his arse full, or having me pull out and pump it all over you so that he can clean it up with his tongue?"

"Merlin!" Oliver exclaimed with a blush. "That's such a dirty idea! I haven't the foggiest why it sounds so appealing, but won't that just turn into me all hot and bothered again? Sounds a bit unfair to Harry too."

Grinning, I smacked your arse. "Harry, hop off and get ready to clean him up!"

A moment later, I'd shifted so that I was kneeling, aiming directly at Oliver's chest. When I started my orgasm, I sincerely wished that I could write my name with my spunk, but since that sort of precision is impossible, I simply splashed a bit as evenly over his chest, abdomen, and groin as "There you go, love, clean it up," I reordered.

You were every bit as eager as you had been to begin with, and so, I was definitely enjoying the view. At this rate, playtime may have lasted until the last moment of my birthday, except that it was abruptly interrupted by a very large and VERY determined Owl, who landed close enough to positively GLARE at me, and was likely a heartbeat away from biting or pecking me if I hadn't taken the message from him.

I took it and read it as quickly as possible so that I could send a reply and get rid of the Owl.

"Bloody hell!" I exclaimed in dismay a moment later. Grabbing you, I gave you a swift and hard kiss before edging toward the side of the bed. "It seems that they've caught that murderer that's trying to frame me, and my presence is requested right away. I'd have dropped everything to go anyway, sorry love, but you know I would've. But by all means, keep this going! In fact, I'll make that an order if I have to, keep right on exhausting each other until you pass out! Bonus round if you're still going when I get back!"

You sighed and slumped a bit. "Merlin be damned Robards," you growled almost inaudibly. "One of these days, I'm going to have to have dear sweet grandmama go pay him a visit..."

"Don't you dare!" I commanded in alarm from where I now stood next to the bed. "Robards is NOT the problem. The PROBLEM is the murderer! Let me just go do my job a bit and I'll be back as soon as I can."

"That's not even your job, Draco! You conduct raids and TEACH self defense. This is going to be interrogation and case building," you argued.

I yanked you close enough to kiss, another swift and hard one. "Fine, so not technically MY job, but I need to be there anyway."

You grumbled something I couldn't quite hear, but I guessed what it was anyway. "And NO! You are NOT going to be allowed to be alone with this bloke for five minutes so that he can mysteriously disappear."

"But he's threatening the love of my life!" You roared.

"Was. Trying. Badly," I corrected, kissed you again, and then rushed off to get dressed. "I mean it Harry! NO trying to sneak into the Ministry! Also, keep playing with Oliver - which is a FAR better distraction than worrying about me when I'll be FINE!"

You grumbled petulantly and lay down in bed to fume until I was dressed and gone. I raced into the closet, cast a slew of cleaning charms on myself, and then threw on the first suitable things I came across - which happened to be my favorite pair of silk-lined trousers and one of those bloody T-shirts you got for me. This one said:

I'm silently judging you.

On the back, it said:

Fuck you, and have a nice day - but the fuck you formed the shape of a fist holding up its middle finger.
All in all, rather fitting, I presume.

As I rushed out of the closet, amazingly NOT having gotten lost in there for even a couple of minutes, I found you pacing the room, Oliver watching you from our bed, where he looked half asleep - probably from post-amazing-sex-lethargy.

I took a moment to jog over to you and pull you into my arms. "Look, they caught him. He can't POSSIBLY murder me or anyone else from a magic suppressing holding cell. I'm going to be fine, and I'll be back home as soon as possible." I gave you a kiss. "So if you can't at least relax enough to enjoy a willing playmate, please go bake me some biscuits in combinations you think are atrocious. I look forward to eating them as soon as I return. NOT that my arse really needs more biscuits! Have you seen it recently?! It's nearly the size of a Quidditch Pitch!"

"Yes I've seen that arse, I'd play on that Quidditch Pitch ALL DAY," you assured me with a leering grin.

I kissed you again. "There's the man I love.

"Go on then," you bade. "The sooner you leave, the sooner you'll get back." And with that, you gave me a last kiss and pushed me toward the floo.

However, since I was able to Apparate - my magic fully recovered from my pregnancy - I decided to simply do that. But first, I gave Oliver a quick kiss on the cheek. "Keep an eye on my worrywart for me, yeah?"

"Alright," he agreed with a chuckle, eyeing my shirt in amusement.

Once in the Ministry, I went directly to Robards. He looked rather grim and invited me to sit. "Sorry to call you here on your birthday. Tea?"

"Yes please," I accepted. After it was served and we both had a single sip, Robards sighed.

"I waited until I thought that not even YOU could possibly still be asleep, but I couldn't wait any longer because I knew you'd want to be called in as soon as possible. Last night, Gillian Walters was attacked again, but due to your secret planning session with her, she and Senior Auror Ginger Astaire were ready and able to catch him. Thus, at five minutes to ten o'clock, Marcus Braun was taken into custody for the attack on and attempted murder of Ms. Walters - twice - and the possibility of the murder of Ms. Hughes."

"Who the bloody hell is Marcus Braun??" I asked in bafflement.

Robards sighed and shook his head. "I had a feeling that you might ask that, and so, I have a picture ready to show you." He tossed said picture onto the desk in front of me.

I picked it up and looked it over, feeling the blood drain from my body almost completely. "... BURLY?!?! But... WHY??"

"I have no bloody idea yet as we haven't gotten two words out of him," Robards admitted.

I felt like I couldn't quite breathe and needed some air, so I excused myself and went to my office where I could think in peace and write this email to you. Now that I'm done, I'm going to go back to Robards and be involved in every step of the way until we have answers. I'll email you again - or just return home - when I'm done.

You~~~~~~~~~~
Draco
Chapter 140

Chapter Summary

Harry misses Draco and Draco drowns his sorrows a bit.

Monday June 5 ... or is it Tuesday June 6 ... Nope, definitely the 6th

My Constance,

I have a million and one questions for you concerning your interrogations. I have too many things I want to know about every single incident that happened. How did he gain access to such confidential files? Did he have accomplices? Are you sure Robards isn't in on it? But what I really want is permission to come have a little chit chat with this person who dared threaten my love. Unfortunately, you specifically asked me not to do that, you even tied up the loophole of letting me call Grandmama or even potentially make him go missing. So I can only sit and wait, hoping that justice is served.

Instead of asking all of those more specific questions concerning the case, I will just wait until you email me or get home to tell me all about it. I'm up in the middle of the night, feeding our demanding babies, and as you're still not home, I'm having trouble falling back to sleep from worrying about how everything is going. What better time to write a rambling email?

Well you know what happened earlier today when I woke you up. You're also well aware of your lovely afternoon with me kneeling at your feet serving you. And I'm assuming you remember all the lovely details from when Oliver came in to give you your card and stayed for a lot more. What you aren't aware of, because you've been Auror-ing for hours and hours and hours, is everything that happened after you left.

Or, erm, is still happening technically. So, Ollie stayed a bit longer so I could fulfill your parting commands and he could keep an eye on your worrywart. We ended up joining the family for meals. I fed the babies ... a lot. We checked out the stables. And then I went to put the babies to bed but they were all three being almost Morgana levels of needy. So, unsurprisingly since the man is in love with babies, Oliver ended up helping me put them to bed. And then chatting for a while. And then falling asleep.

Which means that there are extra bodies in your bed when you get home. Don't worry, we left a big cozy spot full of the best pillows and blankets right in the middle for you to snuggle into as soon as you get home!

I hope it's not going to be upsetting for you coming home and finding a bed full of Gryffindors. Please please please let me know if I'm overstepping. I think I'm just so overjoyed that you're feeling cute and flirty and romantic that I'm forgetting how to not plow in full steam ahead.

First of all, I am very sorry I tried arguing with you about you going in to work on the Auror business. I was still kind of in subspace, not full subspace but I was definitely in a submissive headspace and my head was a little foggy. Now, don't get me wrong, under normal conditions I would have been furious that you were being "forced" to spend your birthday doing something that isn't even your damn job!! But this is a completely different situation. This is someone who was your student and has now possibly murdered one person and attempted to murder someone else twice all in an effort to either frame you or hurt you or something. This is not some random case they called you in for, but one that you are directly affected by.

As much as I wish this case hadn't touched you at all, wish it hadn't come to a head on your birthday, wish I could remove this stress from you completely, I understand your need to see it to the finish. Take as much time as you need, but please make sure you at least eat a bit and get some rest. Come home safe to me.

And don't worry, I messaged Minnie and even if you have to be at the Ministry all week she is fine with me not coming in for the classes this week. If you're just a bit late coming home today I will probably just go in for the entire day on Thursday, get all my required time in in one fell swoop.

Shockingly enough, Morgana has been accepting your absence. Again, everyone has been very keen to keep her content and amused. If we weren't all trying so hard, half the Manor would be in shambles, but for now everything is still standing and in one piece. But I have the feeling as soon as you get back, be it soon or later today or tomorrow, she is going to accidental magic herself a permanent sticking charm to your arms.

Gabe and Dyl on the other hand, are fine. Actually, little Mister Gabriel has been solidly on Team Oliver. If I weren't his only source of food I think I'd never see him! Good thing my Dylan is his Daddy Harry's boy. Yes he is, isn't he my little man? You're Daddy's boy aren't you? Yes, you are going to have the best pony ever, who wants a broom huh? Daddy's boy wants a Firebolt!

Oh, FYI, Dylan just woke up for a feed. In case you're wondering why I was nonsensically baby-talking to myself.

Ugh, I am trying to be patient but can you get home already? Please? Or at least shoot me another message letting me know you're alright?

Anyway, after you left, I did as you asked and took care of Oliver's revived ... interest in the situation. I gave him an epic-level blow job. When he finished (quite quickly I might say, because I suck cock like a BOSS!) he offered to return the favor. I was excited that he's gotten far enough to want to do something that requires him to be a bit assertive. Most of the things we've done with him have been fairly passive; watching us shag, receiving oral, letting me frot us together while kissing, and with the exception of launching himself at you for a kiss, he's allowed us to happen to him. A small (or not so small, heh heh heh) part of me wanted to accept, but I can't imagine you being anything but disappointed to find you'd missed that.

So, I assured him I didn't want to come again until you got home, but that I truly loved taking care of him at your demand. Which got us into a long discussion about your and my dynamic. It's funny, so many people assume this was something you pressured me into, but realistically I think I talked you into it! You love dominating me, but literally collaring me yours wouldn't have been on your needs list if I hadn't needed it so badly. Unsurprisingly, people who don't live this way often assume the Master is controlling, but you and I both know that my submission is on my terms and at the slightest change in my happiness it could all go away.

Case in point: me arguing with you multiple times when you told me to stay and finish up while you headed off to the Ministry.

I miss you. Come home to me soon?

Loving you with everything I am,
Harry
Tuesday June 6th
My harling Drarry. Dairy. Hairy. One of those!

I'm durrently crinking. LOTS of Crinking! My STUPID stew-de-dent-person made STUPID cedisions! Ne hearly MURDERED girly girl, the sparkly princess powder-puffity one! I'm mo sad I could fit spire!

Sug!

Me, girly, roach, myself, Gingin, Ramses the second, Robardy gawainigins, and I are all dinking. Lots and lots of dinking. Dinking??? Rinky dinking? A skinnamarrinkidinkidink, a skinnamarrinkidooooo!

I post my loint.

Stupid head foncessed to murder attempterizing girly girl. WHYYYYYYY?!!?!?! Se haid s'cuz he HATES me!!! I parently didn't pay nuff tension to'im! Se haid I SEDERVE it!!!

LEMME AT 'IM!!! I'LL SHOW HIM WHO SEDERVES IT'!!!

Hy Marry, WAS it my fault? DO I SEDERVE IT?!!!?!!!

HICCUP.

And AND! Ce Nonfessed to do-in my cuzin! Buh THASTARD! Se haid 'e wriiteded NY mame - Draco the brilliant - in ber hlood! Hlood Barry!

I don't unnerstan why! """"-O-"""

Nee... hu-blech! hu-blech!

At this point, the dictation device cannot make heads nor tails of the sounds coming out of Draco and sends the email

Ginger takes pity on the poor boy and brings him home to Harry

Harry cleans him up and puts the passed out drunk to bed
Chapter 141

Chapter Summary

Harry reassures Draco that it's not his fault, and Draco describes what happened.

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Tuesday June 6, 2017

Hey now Draco you will listen to me right this minute dammit!

You are not responsible for the reprehensible, criminal actions of a murderous crybaby! Wahhhhh! I'm used to being big and strong, boo hoo, I'm used to being the best! Deep sobs, I didn't even try my hardest and got my arse handed to me so now I need to MURDER PEOPLE!

Get the fuck out of here with that bullshite!

You are neither responsible, nor did you deserve any of this. Poor Imogen did not deserve any of this. Gillian didn't deserve this. The only one who "deserves" anything is the monster that did this. He deserve a nice visit in Azkaban. And when I say "visit" I of course mean he should be somewhere that I and/or some of my friends or grandmothers can visit him.

I'm here at Hogwarts on a small break between classes. If you hadn't been home before I had to leave I probably wouldn't have come in today. But since you were in bed safe and sound when I woke up I felt like I could take off for the day. If you're having a rough day or have to go back to the Ministry for whatever reason don't hesitate to message me and let me know. I already let Professor Collins and Minnie know it was a possibility so it would be no trouble at all.

As it was, I already got here late enough this morning to not be able to join the school for breakfast. Good thing Muffy keeps me well fed and I had already slammed a banana, an apple, and she packed me an entire bowl of yogurt and homemade granola. Yum!

Why was I late you ask? I was dealing with a bit of a stubborn animal situation this morning. Did you know there was an octopus in our bed? It seemed to latch onto Ollie, wrapped its appendages around him, and refused to let go. It was kind of funny to be honest. It literally took the two of us to unwrap the gorgeous creature and allow Oliver enough wiggle room to escape! I grabbed one of the limbs with my left arm, hooked my left foot around another while Ollie managed to push one of them upwards while he shimmied his way to freedom.

As soon as he broke free, I ended up entwined by those same appendages immediately after. I didn't mind being caught so much, I could have stayed wrapped up all day. But alas, I had JUST sent a message to Minnie telling her since you were home I'd be able to come in for at least a short time. I had an easier time extricating myself on my own, I think it's because I'm a bit smaller so it's easier for me to escape confining spaces.

What? You find it hard to believe there was an octopus in our bed? But doesn't my description of the events sound exactly like some cuddly creature with a mass of strong tentacles, or maybe arms and legs, was there? Well, it may not have been an octopus, but the rest of the description stands! It was you!

I was just starting to stir, I could hear the babies making those sweet wake-up noises. You know, the ones where they're not quite awake but they probably will be any moment? The first sight when I opened my eyes was your gorgeous broad back, normally playful dragons having a bit of their own rest, that gorgeous head full of platinum hair on the pillow. I was so happy to see you had gotten home and were sleeping so sweetly.

I gave a small kiss to that spot I love right on your spine between your shoulder blades. I got up, grabbed Gabriel who had fully woken by that point, noticed Dylan was awake enough to grab and feed while I was at it, then sat down on the rocker to feed them and stare at your gorgeous face. Which is when I noticed Oliver was tucked very tightly in your arms. Gabe, Dyl, and my wake-up noises must have been enough to wake him up as well. We chatted softly for a bit, both of us quite glad to see you were home. Until he had to stop snuggling and make his way to the loo.

Which he could not do. It took us a solid five minutes to figure out a plan to get him out of your clutches. And it was so hilarious because every time we'd move your arm, you'd wrap your leg, or the other arm. At one point, you even hooked your chin over his shoulder. It set me off into a fit of giggles, unfortunately. For Oliver, who still needed to use the facilities. I was a bit worried we were going to have a bed-wetting situation if he hadn't gotten free when he did. (I forgot about the emptying charms until he was well into his morning routine.

So, you're a little monkey, you've been a dragon, an anteater, and now I think we can officially add octopus to the list!

Your Catch,
Harry

Tuesday June 6th
Sweet buggering Merlin!

Harry, PLEASE come home and cast an Avada Kedavra on me! My head hurts SOOOOOOO bad! Only death will bring relief at this point...

Oh thank the Gods! Muffy handed me an extra strength Hangover Potion and it's already kicking in. One moment please...

So much better!

Alright, so, here's what I know you're dying to know - I haven't even had a chance to read your email (or reread the one that I vaguely recall replying to last night) - but I know you want to know what happened at the Ministry yesterday.

After coming to terms with the situation in my office for a bit, I went back to Robards' office to ask him what he wanted to do. It seems that he and Ramsey had already tried interrogating Marcus Braun twice, and both times, he simply remained silent. He didn't even ask for a lawyer; all he did was cross his arms over his chest and refuse to talk.

Ramsey had Fierston in with them the second time. They arranged it so that Fierston - who is well-known in the Auror Department as the 'good cop' - was across from him and acting his usual friendly self. He offered tea and just generally chatted for a bit, advising Braun that it really was better to cooperate. But nope, Braun would not respond to anything.

In private - in a loo two floors away, after warding it to ensure that it STAYED private - Fierston told me that he honestly tried getting in Braun's mind, but Braun had something very like a shield up. A STRONG one! But that - in Fierston's half-trained opinion - it WASN'T the sort of shield one creates during Occlumency. It was messy and jagged, more like what might come up if someone was repeating something like: "lalalalalalala," in their mind to keep calm and prevent from cracking under pressure.

Or in other words, Braun was very likely chanting nonsense in his mind to keep his focus on remaining impassive, rather than let himself focus for even a moment on the Aurors.

So, after a spot of tea, Robards, Ramsey, Fierston, and I all went into the interrogation room where Braun was being held in magic suppressing restraints. The moment I walked into the room, the rest of the occupants could have evaporated - for all the attention Braun paid to them. Also, we could have been in front of the entire Wizengamot for all he cared.

I took the seat across from him, Robards on my right, Ramsey on my left, and Fierston standing right behind me in an attempt to see if he could follow me into Braun's mind - should I happen to get in there.

"So, did they figure it out, or did they simply decide to bring you in because you might have rapport with me as a former teacher?" Braun asked.

I looked him in the eye, remaining calm and at ease. "Do you mean did they figure out that you're trying to frame me for murder?"

He smirked and I could see in his mind that the last vestiges of that natural but not deliberate nor intentional shield was melting away.

"Well, at first, I wasn't trying to frame you for just ANY murder," he replied.

"You wanted to frame me for YOURS," I stated in all certainty.

"Yes," he agreed. "I wanted you to be charged with my murder and sent to Azkaban for the rest of your life."

"But you changed your mind?" I asked curiously. Then I watched him think over some memories.

Memories of me repeatedly handing his arse to him in class - seemingly without even trying. Me being a prick and dismissive or even mean to him when he was frustrated. Basically, me not coddling him. He mentally admitted that I was at least fair in this aspect by not coddling ANY of my students, but even so, he felt that I should have been able to read his mind and understand that he needed more praise and attention so that he could learn the skills quicker and better.

I heard Fierston snort softly in amusement and could only assume that he was right there with me.

Then his thoughts changed from how he wanted to be the best at everything to him standing over himself - naked and battered. This took me back at first. I was confused because I wasn't sure how he could have a memory of literally standing over himself, but he clearly did. Then 'his body' started writing my name in a pool of blood.

Sighing, he ran his hand through his hair in frustration. "At the very beginning, I planned to off myself, but as I was planning out how to convince everyone that YOU did it, I realized that it would be stupid to off MYSELF - even if I succeeded in landing you in Azkaban. With me actually gone, not ONLY would I NOT be around to enjoy your justice, but you probably wouldn't even know WHY you deserve to be punished."

"I don't," I stated flatly.

"You do!" He exclaimed emphatically, and if he could have, I'm certain that he would have leapt to his feet and towered over me.

"Oh?" I asked curiously. "So, because YOU couldn't master self-defense, I'M an arsehole who deserves to rot in prison?"

"YES!!!"

"Fascinating," I murmured dryly, understanding at this point that he was clearly mentally unstable. "Tell me, why does someone like you enter Auror Training?"

He immediately got a sly and secretive look on his face. "I wanted to be an Auror, of course."

In his mind several scenes flashed. It was a progression, the earliest of which was him as a small child acting silly for his parents' praise. And it didn't matter what he did, they always praised him and called him a good boy. As he got older, they slowly replaced their smiles with rewards. Treats. Insincere and somewhat bored praise. Finally money. Marcus Braun had once told me that he was always naturally good at everything, and that seems to be true.

The problem is that being consistently good at everything eventually stops being amazing. Or so it was for his parents. They continued to give him money and the things he wanted (within reason, they weren't wealthy) until recently. It seems that when he first told them how he was struggling in my class, they actually SMILED and looked relieved. Then, rather than tell him that he simply needed to try harder and that he would get it eventually, they said:

"Don't worry son, you CAN'T be brilliant at everything. We don't know why you want to be an Auror anyway."

"What's that supposed to mean?" He had demanded angrily, and his parents gave each other a LOOK that he couldn't understand.

"That's it? You wanted it, thought why not, and entered training on a lark?" I pressed.

Still with that disconcerting expression, he shrugged. "I had my reasons, I suppose."

It was then that his reasons flashed across his mind. A slightly older girl when he was 13 or so. A boy who had teased 15-16 year old him in Hogwarts. Me squatting next to him as he lay on the floor. These scenes looked bright and 'normal' at first, but then got shadowed over as he (and this took me a bit to work out) IMAGINED himself strangling or beating them to death.

Fierston made an unconscious sound like a VERY soft ugh.

I decided to move on before Braun wondered why I was suddenly looking repulsed. Besides, since they were graciously letting me take point in the interrogation, I should really get to the matter at hand. But first, I took a small break by looking down and taking a sip of my tea.

"I'm told that you attacked and tried to murder Gillian Walters - twice," I said as I looked him in the eye again.

"Oh yes," he admitted readily.
"I would like to remind you that you are under caution," Ramsey interjected. "Anything you say can and will be used against you."

Braun simply shrugged, not taking his eyes off me for a moment.

"I don't know the details, but since you seem so willing to tell me how everything is my fault, go on and tell me how you did it. How did you get close to her while she was being protected by a Senior Auror Partner? Twice."

He grinned. "I dated her. It was really easy after having class together. We ended up sparring a lot, and whenever she'd complain, I'd sympathize. So, after it was discovered that there was a potential threat against everyone you taught, I thought it might be hard to do anything to her. But it was easy!"

I frowned at that. "Oh? How?"

He snorted and shook his head. "Both our Auror Partners gave us 'free' time to go on dates - since we'd be able to protect each other. The first time I attacked her, she had just left my flat. It was about 2AM and I realized that she wasn't planning to immediately contact her Partner - just like I had planned to take a shower and get the smell of shagging off me before returning to my Partner. So I quickly followed her, cast a blinding spell on her, and tried to -"

"Murder her," I cut him off with a glare.

"Yes, but not right away. You see, it's only because she had filed harassment charges against you, and I thought that MAYBE I could actually arrange it to look like you did it. I'd done more digging and realized that I'd need to actually kill her at a TIME when you had no alibi. I figured that with you being up all night feeding babies, it's possible that 2 or 4 am would a good time when you COULD have gone to the loo, Apparated away for five or ten minutes, done the deed, and gotten back home before your husband noticed you missing. I had a hair of yours that fell on me during class at some point, but I REALLY wanted something a bit more concrete, and I didn't think that using the techniques you teach would be enough proof."

He fell silent and we stared at each other for a moment.

"But I didn't have a chance because - even blinded - she was able to use those lessons you taught to defend herself," Braun added with a careless shrug.

I shook my head and raised a brow, unsurprisingly confused by that half-baked logic of a madman. "Fine, so you tried to kill someone who had a potential motive against me - or me her - and you considered killing YOURSELF and framing me for it, but WHY in that Merlin-cursed cabinet would I kill my own cousin??? How did you think killing her would lead to framing me??"

He gave a half smirk and a soft chuckle. "She was serendipitous. We'd gone to Café Exquis to get some takeaway, and as we were waiting for our respective orders to be made, we got to chatting. She'd asked what I did for a living, and when I told her that I was in training to be an Auror, she smiled and said she had a cousin who was sort of an Auror - who had saved her life once."

I took a cautious look around his mind at that moment, because I DIDN'T want to see the actual murder, but I wanted to see if I could see what were probably Imogen's last moments. Thankfully, all I got was a picture of her standing there looking pretty and innocent. And happy.

Braun continued. "I sort of laughed and complained that I hadn't had a CHANCE to save anyone yet. And then, I'm not quite certain how, but I got onto the subject of your class, and I complained that YOU - and I called you by name - were such an arsehole, and before I finished getting my sentence out, she practically jumped in excitement: 'That's my cousin!' So I invited her back to mine so that we could chat about you."

I closed my eyes and took a deep breath in an effort to maintain my composure. "That doesn't answer the question. WHY would I kill my cousin? How did you think that was going to work well to frame me?"

He snorted. "I DIDN'T. The plan at that point was still to frame you for murdering ME. I just had to make her LOOK like me, and have my blood."

That's when I saw the scene of him giving her some tea, her taking barely a sip, gasping, and turning into HIM, and practically the moment she was fully turned, he attacked her and strangled her until she passed out. Then he dragged her/his body to an empty alley near a construction site - basically, a place with privacy and no connection to him. After getting her there, he beat her up a bit before slashing himself and covering her in his blood. I think he was trying to transfigure her blood into his blood, but we were both distracted when Fierston made a soft groaning noise before vomiting on the floor - away from me but apparently on the hem of Ramsey's robes.

"What's the matter with you?" Braun asked in concern.

But Fierston could only shake his head, slap a hand over his mouth, and rush out of the room. Ramsey vanished the mess, and then gestured for me to continue.

"So... if you are training to be an Auror, HOW did you think anything you were doing would work? PERHAPS you might have been able to obscure YOUR tracks - so long as your file was missing and there was nothing to match your blood to. But you HAD to know that it would be pretty close to impossible to successfully frame me," I pointed out.

He nodded in agreement. "Yes, that took some doing. And that's why I ended up Petrifying her body after she was fully dead. I needed to figure out the details that I'd overlooked in my haste. But after several days had passed and all I'd managed to do was steal some files, I decided that the risk of someone finding her/my body before I was ready was too high. So, I countered the Polyjuice and dumped her body and arranged it to look as close to you being the murderer as I could with limited resources - and I didn't want to waste your hair on her just yet."

"Wait!" Ramsey interrupted, busy taking notes on the entire session. "Did you mention that you'd Polyjuiced her body into you?"

Braun rolled his eyes and gave Ramsey a look that said: DUH! "Not in so many words, but I assumed that it was obvious."

Ramsey reviewed his notes, tilted his head side to side, and then shrugged. "Carry on."

Sighing and rubbing my forehead, I tried very hard to sound like I had the patience of a Saint. "Alright, so, we've established that you've killed my cousin Imogen and TRIED to kill Gillian Walters. What was your plan if you succeeded? And I don't mean in framing me. I mean in killing Walters. What were you planning to do next? Run to your parents and tell them to praise you for mastering another task you'd set your mind to?" I meant that last bit as a sarcastic arsehole joke.

He grinned very creepily at me and didn't really say anything, but I don't think one had to be a Mind Reader to interpret that smug look. Also, I got a 'front row seat' to the rest of the scene from earlier, in which his parents questioned why he wanted to be an Auror, and he responded by punching them, incapacitating them so that they couldn't escape, and then strangling them. I placed a hand over my stomach, but otherwise took deep breaths to stop from being alarmed, and it's probably a good thing I did that because he wasn't paying attention to my hands, continuing to stare deeply into my eyes.

Thus, I got to see as he eventually dragged their bodies down into their basement where he apparently had a secret room UNDER the basement. Once he had them in there, he dug them shallow graves... right in the middle of several other graves - unless he had a habit of creating body-sized mounds of dirt and marking them with simple white crosses for no reason.

I closed my eyes and rested my head on my arms on the table, SO done. I didn't even want to be awake anymore! If ONLY I could have ACTUALLY woken up just then and been relieved to find it all some horrible dream.

What I had known but hadn't given much thought to until that moment, was that Ginger, Gillian, and a couple of other female Aurors were in the observation room. Fierston had inadvertently joined them when he rushed away. Ginger had intercepted him, cast a stomach settling spell on him, and then insisted that he tell her what had made him queasy all of a sudden. So, he - in his unsettled state - confessed that he'd slipped into Braun's mind and had seen the actual murder. It seems that KNOWING these things have happened is vastly different than SEEING them.

Ginger had never been told explicitly that I can do Legilimency, but I'd bet a small fortune that she knows anyway. Thus, when I looked like I'd suddenly given up, she decided that I must have seen a lot more in his mind than the murder of my cousin, and more importantly, that I needed to get out of there and process everything before trying again later. She burst into the interrogation room, pulled one of my arms over her shoulder, and insisted that Ramsey help carry me out of the room, except I was perfectly capable of walking and simply leaned on her for support.

The moment I was out of the room, Braun clammed up again, and since they CLEARLY weren't going to get anything out of him without me, Robards and Ramsey followed us out of the room. Robards sent off a summons to Roche, but stayed in the observation room with the rest of us as I said just one thing:

"Find out where his parents live, and then go check UNDER their basement."

At that point, I felt utterly exhausted and didn't have the energy to even TALK, so Ginger helped me over to a hastily transfigured sofa and set me in it so that I could rest. From there, I could hear Robards order Roche to go ahead and process Braun for the murder of Imogen Hughes. Half a breath later, he was asking the women in the room if they wanted to join him on a little field trip.

Thus, I was left alone in a nice and dim room until - can you guess? Uh-huh, the MEDIWITCH came in to give me a lovely bar of dark chocolate with sea salt and almonds, and a heavenly cup of tea.

"I got both from your office," she confessed in a soft and sympathetic voice as she carded a hand through my hair. I was already starting to feel better. Then I suppose she felt that I was her captive and had no choice but to listen to her. "Don't you go blaming yourself! I KNOW that he's trying to frame you (she WAS part of the all female team after all), but no matter his reasons, YOU aren't to blame."

"I know," I murmured in a near whisper.

"Do you?" She challenged. "Because sure, you were hard as fuck on him and the rest of those students of yours, I loathe your methods and still wish I could hex you for them, BUT they are inarguably effective AND they're a prime example of the medieval barbaric thinking that still pervades this Ministry. We're British so we must keep a stiff upper lip and solder on and all that cock and bull. It's bullshite, but it's the cornerstone of the muggle military and the wizarding self-defense division. Just WAIT until you get students from the Department of Mysteries! THEY'VE REALLY been put through some shit!"

She growled in frustration until she exhaled a long suffering sigh. "My POINT is that if YOU were to blame for his actions because of your teaching style, then EVERY self-defense teacher the Ministry has ever had - except for your direct predecessor - would be guilty of the same.

I sighed - nearly as long suffering as she had. "I know. I learned a LONG time ago that NO ONE is to blame for a psycho's actions but HIM. Or her, as the case may be. I was forced to take a life to save that of me and my daughters, and I've been in therapy ever since." Then I gave her a faint smile. "Since you are CLEARLY here to keep an eye on me until the others return, you may as well come to my office with me. I have to write up my report and print up my memories of it."

She looked intrigued. "You are the only, erm… Official? Who regularly uses the memory printer - since it's not legally REQUIRED to give copies of one's actual memories unless absolutely necessary. Why is that?"

I smirked at her. "Probably because I invented the device and find it to be the EASIEST way to ensure that my reports are truthful and omit nothing."

She looked impressed for a moment, but then quickly erased it to roll her eyes. "Bloody know-it-all!"

This improved my mood enough to chuckle a little. I printed up my memories and completely finished my report just in time for Robards and the others to return. But first, Pippa popped into my office to ask me if I wanted her help with my report. She had Pierre sleeping in a carrier on her chest.

"Oh? So are you back from maternity leave then?" I asked curiously.

"Even if I wasn't, I'm getting a bit bored. This little man's an absolute ANGEL, and even tagging along with Leah as she tutors Jaz and looks after Shtara hasn't quite kept me as busy as I like," Pippa informed me.

I laughed. "As my shadow, I'm not certain you ever had a NOT busy moment!"

She kissed my cheek and let me hold little Pierre. I firmly believe that one should NEVER wake a sleeping child, but I couldn't help but pinch his adorably squishy cheeks and tickle his tummy, then pretend to munch on it.

"He's so big compared to my three," I said, even though she's seen ours and knows this.

The Mediwitch was looking at me incredulously. I rolled my eyes at her.

"What? He's like an honorary grandson. Sometimes I feel as if every child on Earth is my honorary grandchild - or son or daughter if they're older."

Her expression changed to suspicion and disbelief.

"That reminds me," Pippa began and then cut herself off as she read over my report. "MERLIN BUGGERING BLOODY HELL!!! WHY DIDN'T YOU TELL ME SOMEONE WAS TRYING TO FRAME YOU FOR MURDER?!!?!!"
I was genuinely baffled. "You mean you didn't know? You're my SHADOW! I NEVER tell you things, you just KNOW them!"

"I'VE BEEN ON MATERNITY LEAVE!!" She argued. "GOD BLOODY DAMNIT! I LEAVE YOU ALONE FOR THREE BLOODY MONTHS AND YOU GO AND GET FRAMED FOR BUGGERING MURDER!!!"

But before I could do much more than laugh, Robards et al returned and called me into a meeting. I gave Pierre a last kiss and handed him over to his mum - who left with him since he was now awake and starting to fuss. It seems that - after finding and carefully dismantling a few wards - they found a nice big graveyard FULL of bodies under Mr. and Mrs. Braun's basement. So, that'll be a job for tomorrow, er, today I suppose. But thankfully not MY job.

I debriefed them, showing them my memories, and they debriefed me. Fierston was still feeling rather queasy from his trying day - probably best that he wasn't still in Braun's head at the end there - and so he excused himself and went home. As for the rest of us, since it was now rather late, Ginger suggested that we all needed a good stiff drink, and so, we headed off to the Leaky, and considering the utter nonsense of my last email, got completely and truly blinkered.

Hence my ferocious hangover at the beginning of this email.

But I'm now awake enough and motivated enough to roll out of bed, crawl over to the loo, and take care of the rest of my morning business. And if the look on Muffy's face is anything to go by, eat something eggy and delicious. If I happen to see Oliver, I'll apologize for nearly smothering him (I read your emails in between writing this one and drinking my tea).

_Don't wait for the world to be ready._

_Draco_

P.S. I'm going to be spending most of today snuggling our babies and probably chatting with Yesenia in some form or another. While eating those biscuits you made me. The ones with the gruyere melted over them might just be my favorites at the moment. Love you!

Chapter End Notes

I've inserted a link to today's lyrics to a gorgeous music video for the song Don't Wait by Joey Graceffa. If you like boys in love, totally check it out ^_^
Chapter 142

Chapter Summary

Harry is concerned and Draco is not happy about it.

Wednesday June 7, 2017

Draco,

I don't know what to do. Good bloody Merlin, I think there might be something seriously wrong with two of our babies. I know you're in a session with Yesenia, and I really don't want to interrupt that. After the week you've had, finding out a student you taught was not only unhinged but murdered multiple people and attempted to frame you for murder.

But this is big. Like, BIG big. For both of them. Or, I suppose one is possibly big and one is big if I'm right.

Alright, could I possibly be more vague? I'll stop that I promise. I am writing this out while the babies nap and as soon as they wake up I am taking Gabe in to go see Rowe. I don't know if you've noticed, it's hard to notice I think, because he's a small baby and he was a preemie. Being so little, it's pretty normal for him to not really focus, or fall asleep randomly, or be milk drunk after a good feed. But I've noticed a few times that he will be in the middle of cooing and playing and very quickly become sleepy or unfocused.

This morning was something much bigger. He makes cute little humming noises when he nurses. I find it adorable. But after he fed I was talking to him and looking into his eyes when I almost felt him vibrating? Not quite vibrating but it was this light buzzing or humming feeling. I guess vibration is still the closest word but it's not quite right. So, as that was happening, his eyes seemed to lose focus for just a moment and then it was like something cut the strings and his eyes weren't looking any specific direction. I started calling to him and trying to figure out what was wrong.

It felt like an eternity, but was probably thirty seconds or so, and he was back. He was grumpy for a few minutes, although that could have been because he could feel my fear and I kept dripping my tears on him. He's been fine since then. He played a bit, nursed again, and now he's napping. But Draco it was so scary. I felt so powerless and had no idea what to do!

And then there's Morgana! Draco she -

Oh! They're waking up! I'll keep you updated if something happens. Hopefully Rowe will just call me overprotective and send us home.

Love you,
Harry

Wednesday June 7th
HARRY!
How dare you tell me that our babies might have something seriously wrong with them, and then just NOT explain anything?!?! I'm reaching nearly Panicky Harry levels of concern here!

Fuck it! I need to keep my mind off this until you get home and explain yourself. So - that said, I'm taking our granddaughter Sammy out for a bit of a birthday date, and while we're at it, we're probably going to Magi-Skype with Mahafsoun and wish her a happy birthday too.

Lucky for Sammy but unfortunate for our vault, she's probably going to be the recipient of my excessive stress shopping.

Love and anxiety,
Draco
Chapter 143

Chapter Summary

Harry explains his last email.

Wednesday June 7th
My Draco,

I know I know I know, I'm sorry! I was going to tell you what was going on but then the babies woke up and I thought getting Gabriel to Rowe sooner rather than later was most important. I would be so furious if I got half a panicky email about something being wrong with my kids and then no information. I am so so sorry I did that to you!

So, here's the deal, if you don't get this right away I will just send you an insta-owl asking you to come to St. Mungo's, but I'd rather you read this and have the entire description so you don't fully panic. I figured if you had my last email and then a one-sentenced "come to St. Mungo's" you would have a mini heart attack. So I am going to send this with the information I have and hopefully you have your alerts enabled. If not, I will be sending you the insta-owl in about ten minutes.

Gabriel is fine, we think. Well, kind of fine. His vitals are good, he's alert, all the spell-work came back without any super obvious issues. But based on my description of the event, Rowe thinks he had a seizure. He's visually tracking, he's responding to stimuli, he even gave us a few gummy smiles, so she's not afraid there was any residual damage. A one-time random febrile seizure is not completely uncommon and likely not cause for much concern.

But since Rowe didn't witness the event, she'd rather not take any chances and wants to keep him at least overnight for observation. Especially since I mentioned he occasionally seems to lose focus. That could be normal infant behavior or they could be frequent absence seizures. If that is the case, he may continue to have them and it could be a serious medical issue.

So, as of right now, we're just all cuddled up in the hospital room, nothing going on but the healing staff checking on us and they're going to hook Gabe up to some specialized monitoring charms.

I'm just so scared. I hate to ruin Sammy's birthday more than I already have, but I need my rock here. Can you bring her home and get here soon?

Terrified,
Harry

Thursday June 8th
My Harry,

Sleeping in a hospital is surprisingly hard when one is not being medicated with sleeping potions or influenced by sleeping spells. We're not supposed to disrupt Gabriel's sleep, but since his natural sleeping habits depend on us (and his two almost triplets) being in bed with him, that's what we're doing. I think it's probably not surprising to you either that they are sleeping just fine, and we're not.

That said, you also know how much I hate it that you don't sleep enough, so I cast a mild sleeping hex on you to ensure that you get at least some sleep. Whereas I will probably be wide awake with my eyes closed until Gabriel wakes up and Rowe hopefully has answers for us.

Until then... I'm at least going to try.

Here's to a night full of interesting dreams. Hopefully.

Yours forever,

Draco
Chapter 144

Chapter Summary

Draco blames himself.

Friday June 9, 2017

Draco,

Our son has Epilepsy. My tiny little man with the gummy smile, a voracious appetite, and an extreme attachment to his Morgana and Dylan, has Epilepsy. Our little Gabriel has this BIG thing inside his tiny body.

And there's no fucking cure! We're wizards! We can create potions that create an artificial womb. We can transfigure just about anything into anything else. We can just pop off from place to place in a moment with apparition. But I can't fix the electrical storms inside of our son's head. I feel so defeated. So powerless. So useless. I can't rage or power our way out of this. I can't call Grandmama and have her take away the seizures.

I can't do a damn thing except sit around and wait for his brain to do this to him over and over and over again!

FFFFFFUUUUUUUUUUUUUUUCCCCCCCCCCCCCCCCCCCCC!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Okay breathe Harry, breathe.

There are things we can do. There are treatments. I can't wave my wand and make this disappear but I can listen to Rowe's recommendations. We can take him to that specialist in France she mentioned. If the wizarding world can't do enough we can take him to a Muggle Neurologist or Epileptologist. We can do this. We WILL do this. For him.

This is just something we're going to learn everything about. Learn how to help him to the best of our ability. And we will continue to live and love exactly as we always have. We've never let any of our conditions slow us down or sit around wallowing in misery. When we knew Jaz was deaf, we just all learned sign language and went about our lives. When we brought Atreyu into our family we had to pay attention to the cycles of the moon and make sure he had a safe place to transform, but then we kept on living our lives as we always have. We've got this!

I am a professional worrier, so you know I am not going to be able to turn off my fears for Gabe. But the fact that he's lying next to me as I write this, giggling away at his toes, reminds me he's my son, he's a baby, and he's going to be fine. If he can giggle his way past this bump in the road then I sure as hell can give him things to giggle at.

Oh! In case we didn't already have enough to worry about... Morgana. I'm sorry, I completely forgot that days ago I told you I thought something was going on with Morgana as well. I got so flustered and terrified for Gabe that I completely forgot about my guesses on what's happening with Morgana.

I need to preface the upcoming conversation with: I love her with all of my heart and soul. She is perfect and wonderful and beautiful and brilliant and powerful and MINE. Nothing she could ever do would change my love for her; NOTHING.

I think she almost killed one of my horses.

I know what you're thinking; but she's an innocent little sweet baby, how could she possibly be hurting anything? I know you're thinking that because I refused to believe it myself. Except it makes sense. She's been using "accidental" magic to get her way since the moment she was born, possibly before if her refusal to leave your womb is any indication of her wants and her power. She has blown out knickknacks and light bulbs. She broke Kisa's hand.

But this one was not so easily healed. I think if the horse had been less healthy, or if we hadn't happened to have a vet on site for a regular checkup anyway, she might have killed the poor thing. We have this sweet little colt who seems to be very touch or attention starved. When we were playing around with the horses on Sammy's birthday I had the three babies out with me. They were lying in their little cot but wide awake. They were happy enough to play with each other so I let them lay there for a bit so I could give Sammy some extra attention. Well Cory, the colt that was OBVIOUSLY not named by one of our crew since he has a completely normal name, was nosing around the babies. He's so gentle I had no worries at all that he would hurt them so I just kept an ear out and let them be.

I heard a squawking screech coming from Morgana, and I went to shoo Cory away since he had obviously gone from entertaining them to annoying/upsetting them. But he had already started walking away. But he was walking a little weird. Slower than he usually does. He normally has so much energy, it's funny he kind of looks like a toddler skipping when he moves.

A few minutes later I noticed him lying down which is very out of character for him to do in the middle of the day. Luckily the vet noticed at the same time and went to check him out. His poor little heart was skipping beats and slowing down. I have no idea what the vet did, but he was able to get his heart working correctly again. I think he shot a spell of some sort at Cory, maybe some sort of defibrillator like the muggles use with those electric paddles. Within a few minutes Cory was up and bounding around again, although he definitely was giving the babies a wide berth.

It's just too much of a coincidence to not be connected don't you think? He annoyed Morgana and all of a sudden his heart is freaking out?

That's when I brought them inside. I figured I would feed them, get them down for a nap, send you an email telling you all about it, and get back out to Sammy. But that's when Gabe had his seizure and everything went to Hell. Sorry it took me days to tell you what happened, I was going to tell you that first night in St. Mungo's but then you shot a sleeping hex at me so THAT ONE is not my fault!

What are we going to do?

Exhaustedly Yours,
Harry

Friday June 9th
The best other father for our kids,

I'M THE WORST!!! I DID SOMETHING WRONG AND SCREWED OUR ADORABLE AND PRECIOUS AND OTHERWISE PERFECT BABY BOY UP!!! I DIDN'T EAT ENOUGH, OR I DIDN'T TAKE ENOUGH NUTRITIVE POTIONS! I HAD TOO MANY IN THERE AND NOT ENOUGH OF WHAT THEY NEEDED TO BE HEALTHY! I DESERVE TO BE DROPPED INTO AN ACTIVE VOLCANO!

I'm either going to be in the Crystal Room, or at Yesenia's if you need me. Possibly both. I love you so much, but I think I'm going to need you to beat me the fuck up tonight or tomorrow.

I'm an asshole (he's an asshole, what an asshole), I'm an asshole (he's the world's biggest asshole), A-S-S-H-O-L-E,
Draco
Harry calms Draco

Friday June 9th
My everything,

You are not responsible for Gabriel's diagnosis. Sometimes these things just happen. Sometimes life throws a pile of shit at you and you can either figure out how to deal with the shit or die trying. This is an absolute load of it, a huge depressing unfair load of something our tiny perfect little boy doesn't deserve. But we WILL get through this.

You blaming yourself is not the way we're going to get through this. Believe me. I know from personal experience. How? Because I've spent the last few days blaming myself. You think you somehow did this? It's obviously my fault. I refused to do the transfer earlier because it could put you at risk. We let your pregnancy with all three progress until it got to the point where it couldn't be ignored anymore. That was MY decision. Then I had the boys for the last three months of their incubation. Maybe I exercised too much. Perhaps I ate the wrong things. Or not enough, because that far into a pregnancy, most bearers are done with morning sickness, but I had it for quite a while.

I'm also the one who passed out and almost killed us all, luckily we didn't die but I caused them to be preemies. Did you know that premature birth can be a factor in Epilepsy? Yeah, I've been scouring the internet for as much information as I can get my hands on. So obviously if it's anyone's fault, it's mine. I laid on our kitchen floor wasting precious time that the healers could have been stopping the labor or getting me magic replenishers or something.

I've met you and I know you better than anyone else. I know you are reading this and calling me an utter moron for thinking for a single moment that this is my fault. But why Draco? I have more reason to believe this is my fault than you could possibly have. If you can believe I didn't do anything to cause this, then you need to believe you didn't either. And when it comes down to it, it doesn't matter if there was a cause. It doesn't matter if it was your fault or my fault or some higher power's fault. It is something we're going to live with. We are going to love each other and our little boy through learning about this condition, learning to live with this condition, and healing each other.

You're currently in the Crystal Room. But you've gotten to a point where you don't seem to be smashing anything at the moment. How do I know? I came to find you, but my own guilt and fear means that I haven't let Gabriel out of my sight since Wednesday. I didn't feel right bringing him into the room, flying bits of crystal are not particularly good for babies. So I've just been sitting here on the ground, my back against the wall, listening to your roars of frustration and the shattering noises. Crying my heart out because I'm so scared, I know I can't do anything to take away your own fears, just the powerlessness of it all.

Roughly an hour ago, Oliver came and sat next to me. He didn't say anything, just sat with me listening to me cry and you rage. Then, after probably twenty minutes of silence, he just began talking.
"I love Parker and Cassie with all of my heart. But adoption wasn't our first choice. Edmond and I tried to have biological children first; as you know now, his parents were really pushing for biological heirs." I felt the usual rush of anger whenever his former in-laws come up but kept quiet so he would keep talking. "He never blamed me, even when the dementia took his personality, but I blamed myself. Perhaps I wasn't powerful enough magically, maybe I spent too many years with a broom between my legs and I had damaged my bollocks. Was it because of all those fad diets I put myself through to stay in top quidditch condition?

"Maybe it was Edmond's fault. He was an only child, so obviously his parents - who are dead set on heirs - were only able to have the one child. Maybe infertility ran in his family. Maybe, maybe, maybe.

"And when he got sick? When he was controlling? I thought I deserved his abuse. I must have done something to have earned that treatment. I should have caught on that he was ill. His parents are right and I'm to blame for not catching it.

"Blame is an ugly spiral Harry, it will drown you if you let it. Whether it's blaming yourself or putting the blame on someone else, it will drag you down. When I talk with my mind healer, we bring up my grieving much less often than I thought we would. We talk about my remarkable ability to place the blame for everything squarely on my shoulders. But I'm learning to stop trying to take all the blame, or to really feel the need for blame at all."

That brogue of his tapered off and we sat there for a few more minutes. "Want me to take Gabe for you so you can go in and talk to Draco?"

I clutched Gabe to me a little tighter. "That's a sweet offer Ollie, but I don't think I can let him out of my sight just yet."

"Then how about I go in and talk to Draco hmm?"

All I could do was start crying again and nod. He ruffled my hair like I was a toddler, threw a shield around himself just in case, and went in to talk to you.

Here's hoping you listen to him. I'll see you soon. I love you with all of my heart.

Yours on this crazy journey,
Harry

Saturday June 10th
My heart and soul,

Thank you so much for last night. I know it took a LOT for you to let my mother watch our kids for a bit, but you understood how much I needed you to help me. Oliver thought we were both certifiable, but he stood back and watched us get on with it.

To begin with, he had come into the Crystal Room to talk to me a bit. By that point, I was already mostly calm and ready to let go of my anger and blame, and move on. I just needed that last little thing. So, to that end, I cast cleaning charms all over myself to eradicate all the shards and fine crystal dust, and then I emerged from the room and hugged you and Gabriel for about five minutes straight, all the while murmuring into your ear how much I loved you both and how much I plan to figure this out and be there every step of the way as we help our little boy be the best he can be.

Then I talked you into letting my mother take the kids for a bit - and I am extremely glad that Morgana loves her grandmother, at least enough to tolerate being watched by her for several hours.

Then you, me, and Oliver went into our playroom. I spanked you in every way possible until you had your cathartic release, then I kissed, cuddled, and held you until you recovered, eating plenty of chocolate in the process. Once you were ready, you strung me up and beat me as I needed. So much that Oliver got rather queasy and had to stop watching for a bit. Thank you so much!

Just as I know that you needed some form of actual punishment in order to let go of your feelings of being to blame, so did I. Now that we've both been punished, we can put that firmly behind us and move on with the next step of figuring this out.

And even better, we had Oliver there with us, holding us both, rubbing our backs, and comforting us as much as we needed.

All my love, yesterday, today, tomorrow, and forever,
Draco
P.S. Yes, I'm keeping my bruises!
Monday June 12, 2017

My Dearest Love,

I am so exhausted! So tired and I still have a class to go. And as many classes this week as I can fit into our schedule. With Gabriel's seizure activity and subsequent diagnosis last week, the murder investigation and capture this past weekend, your birthday celebrating, your hospitalization with anteater-itis before that, and our small anniversary celebration, I've barely been doing my classwork to prepare for the upcoming end of term at Hogwarts.

I feel so terribly. I promised I'd do three classes and prep-time each week and I've technically gotten that done every week, but last week I've been doing the bare minimum and I am not like that! I hate that I'm showing the school, the children, and the Headmistress that I'm unreliable or that I don't care. It looks like my work ethic is absolute rubbish. This is not the impression I wanted to make!

Obviously there were extenuating circumstances, but I still feel like a prat. Although Headmistress McGonagall (It took me years to stop calling her that and then I finally get the hang of calling her Minnie and now I have to get back into the habit of propriety!) has insisted that I stop apologizing and trust that she will tell me when she thinks me taking time off is actually detrimental to the students or bordering on unprofessional. She gave me quite the stern talking-to in her lovely accent, telling me that of course our Gabriel should be my priority.

Also, me sitting through these classes this year was something we talked about that would help me and the students transition. I am supposed to keep in mind that "Professor Collins hasn't retired yet, Professor Malfoy, the children are not going without their learning while you're caring for the wee one!"

Oh my heart it was so hard to leave that wee one this morning. You saw what a hard time I had Friday when we left him with Mum, and that was just to go to a different area of the Manor. I went to a completely different country today Draco! It helped that I left him with his other Daddy. I could NOT have done it if I'd had to leave him with Narcissa again. You know it's absolutely nothing against her, she's an amazing woman and a fantastic grandmother. I trust her with our children's lives constantly. But this whole thing with Gabe is so new and scary. I don't know if I'd even trust leaving him with Rowe right now and she's MORE qualified than either of us to care for him!

Oh my little Dylan, my steady, calm, breath of fresh air. I hope he's been getting the attention he needs! Between Morgana's high-handed neediness and Gabriel's medical concerns, I hope he's not getting pushed to the side. My little sunshine.

You know who else has been a breath of fresh air and sunshine? Ollie. Wasn't he so sweet Saturday trying to stay strong through our play, trying to comfort us, even through his own discomfort? I think he was surprised but not upset during my spanking. My spankings generally turn out therapeutic and hard enough to feel but definitely on the "sexual" end of our D/S dynamic. Yours - on the other hand - is just a slightly safer form of your own insistence on punishing yourself. It breaks my heart every time I have to do it (please don't think this is me complaining or refusing), but I have seen your relief and release afterwards. I don't think I could do it often, but knowing how much better you feel afterwards allows me to get through it.
That was not the case with Oliver. I'd say he'd never seen anything like it. If he didn't see the absolute trust and love between us, I think he would have fled in a panic immediately. The fact that I was calm even though my actions didn't seem it was helpful though. I spoke in a calm, loving manner. I had multiple monitoring charms on you to make sure all the hurt stayed surface level.

Oh, the time just ran away from me, I had better head to my last class of the day. This is the first time I'll be teaching a class with Viona in it. Wish me luck! I'm not sure if she's going to embarrass me, if I'm going to embarrass her, or if we're going to horrify the entire classroom. Maybe all three!!

Love,
Harry

P.S. Please give every one of my babies you're near (yes, even the ones who refuse to admit they're still my babies!) hugs and smooches from me? I miss them so much, this will be so much easier when we're all at Hogwarts next year!

Monday June 12th
My fire,

It sounds like you've had a long and trying day. Please please PRETTY please tell me about class with Viona! I NEED some amusement to entertain me!

I've also had a busy day. After you set Gabriel in my arms and gave me a kiss, I did as you instructed and kept him safe, warm, and loved no matter what. You'd left before I usually wake up, so after feeding all three, I was able to get them to go back to sleep a bit longer so I could finish. Once I was awake for the day, I fed them again while I ate breakfast, and then went to the larger of the Patio Dining Areas.

To Eris' amusement and Eric's bemusement, I followed your instructions and kissed her and let her know in great detail how she will ALWAYS be our baby girl, no matter how many children she has or how many things WE need to deal with. She gave Gabriel a kiss and rubbed his soft head.

At this point, you might be wondering how I was carrying all three babies, so let me remind you that I love layering the wraps so that one is on my back and two are on my front. In this case, Morgana was on my back where she would have a good view of everything in the room - being situated so that her head can rest on my shoulders if she likes. Gabriel was on my left, and Dylan was on my right.

I know it's completely my own fault since I tend to focus on keeping Morgana happy and leave the boys to your care, but they are not as content to be in my arms. Gabriel couldn't really help it, I suppose, as he went unfocused for a while, but did not seize - as far as I could tell. Dylan - on the other hand - kept squirming and giving me looks to let it be known that I was NOT the right daddy.

But back to my day.

After kissing Eris, I moved on until I was able to kiss and hug ALL of our kids that were home, and basically apologize that we've been freaking out and somewhat unavailable the last few days. They all understood completely, even Atreyu - who said that he is just happy to finally know why Gabriel sometimes smells like slightly burnt cake.
You know, I quite forgot he could smell things in ways we don't realize.

I spent a half hour or so carefully sitting him on my lap and just generally chatting with him. He told me a whole bunch of self-incriminating anecdotes, such as apparently finding an EXCELLENT spot to dig up worms, which he apparently put in Shtara's bed, but Shtara thought that Zaire had done it, which explains why those two - who normally get along excellently - were glaring daggers at each other across the table.

But eventually, I wanted to get to actual business, so I set Atreyu on his feet and gave him permission to go to the stables with Oliver and the others. I gave Jasmine, Zaire, and Shtara enough money to do a bit of shopping in Diagon Alley - with Leah, who's watching her and Pippa's babies, in carriers just like I'm wearing. And then Pippa and I went into the Ministry.

In the week since my birthday, Robards and Ramsey had no luck getting any more information out of Marcus Braun. In frustration, they let Gillian sit in on an attempted interrogation, and since they've dated and apparently shagged, this should NORMALLY be against every rule in the book. That said, following the rules was getting them nowhere. So, they brought her into the room with them. (This was yesterday.)

Marcus lit up at the sight of her. Apparently, part of his psychosis (or whatever you want to call it) involves getting a kick out of taunting or 'mentally sparring' with his victims. It's almost certainly the reason he talked to me, and it's the same reason he talked to her. She was supported by Ramsey and Robards on either side of her, but even better was Fierston right behind her. SHE'S not trained nor naturally talented in Legilimency, and so, Ramsey wanted Fierston in the room to do exactly as he had last time.

Thus, they were able to clarify a bunch of details that were still fuzzy. Such as something I had actually jumped to the conclusion of in my mind, but turned out to be slightly wrong. At one point, I'd said that I saw an image of Braun standing over himself and the body writing my name in blood. In my drunken email, I'd even stated that he confessed to writing my name in my cousin's blood, but in actuality, the blood was HIS, and he talked Gillian through the entire event, including how after trying to transfigure her blood into his and failing, he was looking at 'his' dead body, and realized that it would at least point a finger in my direction if HE wrote my name.

Thus Marcus Braun - the still living murderer - used a spell to make the dead body of my cousin (Polyjuiced into him at the time) write my name with his/her own hand. It's confusing, but also sort of clears up the minor mystery of why the name written in blood was brought to the Three Broomsticks with the body. He WAS staging it to make it look like she had written it, either to imply I'd murdered her, or at the very least, a way to get my attention.

Considering that I've talked to Yesenia a lot recently (she was on Magi-Skype with me for a bit when I was in the Crystal Room), I've had a chance to talk about Braun, and she thinks that part of what he was looking for - both in killing people AND in joining the Aurors - was a parental figure who wasn't afraid of telling him that he was doing something wrong. She obviously can't talk to his parents, but she speculates based on my description of the interaction before their murder, that they had some awareness of his instability, and that what started out as genuine and well-earned praise may have shifted to less sincere praise because they understood that their son might become extremely difficult if they didn't give him things when he did something right.

Of course, they probably DIDN'T realize he'd actually murdered people. More like suspected that he COULD if provoked. In any case, the poor Mind Healer who will have to work with him - as assigned by the Ministry - will definitely have his work cut out for him. Or her.

Another thing that came up in Gillian's interrogation was the files. This had only been VERY briefly touched on in my session, but basically, after Braun murdered my cousin, while he was still trying to figure out how to make her convincingly him and frame me for HIS murder, he decided that he needed to learn more about me to frame me successfully. So he charmed (naturally, not magically) and then shagged one of the assistants to the Archive Witch during a lunch break.

After shagging, he hexed her to sleep for a bit, took her credentials and Polyjuiced into her. That gave him full access to the Archive. He went in there specifically to take my file, but figured that while he was at it, should probably take Imogen's file, YOUR file (since we're married and there might be relevant information in your file about me), and then, basically on a lark, he took the rest of the files that he could think of that could be linked back to me. When specifically asked, he admitted that he was already planning out a second murder in an attempt to frame me should the first not work out the way he wanted it to.

Which it didn't.

So, after obtaining all the files he felt necessary, he returned to the assistant and waited for the Polyjuice to wear off (redressing her in the clothes he'd borrowed and giving her back her credentials), and once it had, woke her up, implying that she had dozed off slightly after the shag, which she accepted as plausible. So, she returned to her position and went on with her day as normal.

When asked, all she said regarding the time difference was that she didn't notice it because when she returned and apologized for taking so long, her boss had assured her that she hadn't taken long at all, and so, it never occurred to her that more time had passed than just her lunch break. Although the end of the day had arrived amazingly fast that day. Meanwhile, the Archive Witch had not noticed an impostor, and so assumed that she was simply returning from a loo break, rather than a forced nap after a lunch break shag.

In the FOREVER that the Ministry and the Archive have existed, this has never happened before - so far as anyone has noticed. I suppose that in theory, it could have happened in the past and no one ever realized that files were missing. But my point is that despite being a bit of a flaw in the security system, the fact that it is so extremely rare means that it might not be worth changing security protocol. I mean, how would YOU like having to prove that you are not a Polyjuiced imposter every single time you returned from a break or going to the loo?

Sigh...

Thankfully, it's not MY job to review and rethink security measures.

So, after chatting with Gillian and being brought up to speed on her interrogation, I had Pippa help me go over the known security measures to the Ministry and certain departments, and write up a plan for how to improve them or potentially patch up weak spots. You know, suggestions for Robards to ponder should he be so inclined.

After dropping my suggestions off with Robards and chatting a bit about the case and what they know so far - they found 13 bodies in the Braun house, including his parents - I took the babies for a walk through some of the more pleasant parts of the Ministry so that - despite being too young to remember any of it anyway - they'd know that the place wasn't ALL murder and mayhem.

At some point, I ran into a group of my former students, who've also had a chance to chat with Gillian (not to mention been informed via a general announcement to stop rumors and misinformation), and they wanted to commiserate as a group, and so I was invited to join them in the cafeteria. I wanted to decline, but I was reluctantly obligated to conform to social expectations. Thus I had tea and biscuits with them. The biscuits were utter shite, too damn sugary and the chocolate didn't taste like chocolate, and the tea was swill, but it was a surprisingly good bonding experience anyway.

Other Aurors joined us, most of whom have been a part of at least one of my raids. At one point, I realized that they’d all gone silent. Curious and a bit apprehensive, I looked up and around to find them all staring at me as I fed Dylan and Gabriel from bottles in my hands, all while using wandless nonverbal magic to levitate a bottle for Morgana. This is nearly second nature to me by now since we HAVE had three sets of almost triplets, but apparently it’s quite an amazing feat.

"What?" I asked defensively.

"I've been practically holding my breath WAITING for you to ask for someone to help you with those sweet little babies," Mediwitch stated. "But somehow, you’re managing three of them better than I’ve ever managed just one!"

"Practice," I informed her dryly. "Lots and LOTS of practice."

"Well... would you LIKE us to help?" Gillian asked, clearly eager to volunteer.

I pressed my lips together and thought this over. "Well... Morgana almost certainly won't let anyone else hold her. And Gabriel... well he seems to be fine, so... Alright, hang on a mo."

They watched as I carefully used wandless and wordless magic to levitate Gabriel and Dylan out of their carriers and over to volunteers. I gave Gabriel to the Mediwitch, figuring that if he started having an episode, with her training, she'd not only notice, but know what to do. That left Dylan for Gillian, who I barely introduced before she was snuggling like they were Auntie and Nephew.

Meanwhile, I was able to switch Morgana to my front and burp her before giving her a few tiny kisses. Everyone was naturally curious - as they rubbed the boys' heads - about their story. It was known that I was pregnant, but not everyone knew I had triplets. And with their different looks, it was understandable for some to assume that we'd adopted two of them. So I explained what had happened, which actually lightened the general mood considerably.

They even dared try to take the mickey out of me!

Eventually, my timid little mouse gathered up the courage to try to stroke Morgana's gorgeous hair, and since I hadn't thought he'd try - despite being right next to me on my left - I hadn't had time to gather up my wits before his hand was on her head. For a split second, I thought everything would be fine, but then she opened her mouth and let out a high pitch shrill that exploded quite a few lights and apparently stung Tim's hand enough that he had the Mediwitch take a look at it, just to be sure.

The moment Tim pulled his hand away, she stopped shrieking, leaving everyone in astonished silence.

"Pippa," I ordered.

"Right," she confirmed with a nod, calmly casting spells to restore the lights to brand new.

Then I gave Tim a tiny and only slightly apologetic smile. "As I said, Morgana won't let anyone else hold her. Or even touch her."

At this point, apparently Gabriel was getting fed up with milk from a bottle and not a breast, so he started fussing.
"Muffy? Is Harry still occupied with his classes?"

Muffy popped in two seconds later. "Master Harry is currently having a shouting match with Mistress Viona about muggle stuff."

I grinned and decided to solve the situation with a definitely unprofessional solution. "Muffy, pop Gabriel over to Harry. He's probably more stressed about our babe than whatever Viona's on about anyway. But don't disturb him if possible, simply magic Gabriel and his carrier onto my incorrigible worrywart, and then leave them to it."

"Yes Master," Muffy replied, taking Gabriel from Mediwitch and grabbing the carrier from me before popping off.

Meanwhile, Gillian was cooing with a silly expression on her face. "Aww! He's sleeping! I love how handsome and sweet his little face is!"

Our sleeping son was passed around the circle at least twice before Robards and Roche got fed up with not being able to find any of their Aurors and came looking. They got caught up in holding the baby for a few minutes before ordering everyone to get back to work, which left me free to go home.

And think obsessively about Marcus Braun. Sigh.

Tell Sanchito that if he knows what is good for him, he'd best go run and hide, Daddy's got a new 45, and I won't think twice to stick that barrel straight down Sancho's throat, believe me when I say that I got something for his punk ass!

Draco
Chapter 147

Chapter Summary

It's graduation time!

Friday June 23, 2017

My Own,

Wow, it's been almost two weeks since we've emailed. Probably because the last two weeks have been a haze of me being at Hogwarts pretty much every moment that wasn't spent sleeping, playing with the kids, feeding the babies, or at Healer's visits.

Today though, today was wonderful. We watched four of our babies, and two kids who may as well be my own with how much I adore them, graduate from Hogwarts. I cried so hard. You ... erm ... leaked? No, you cried. You held two of our smallest babes while you watched four of our oldest walk across that stage and take their diplomas. Don't worry, I doubt anyone else noticed. You were solidly in the middle of the Malfoy family personal cheering section. And cozied up between Ollie and I who were definitely not being discreet with our happy tears.

If you hadn't had your lap full of gorgeous babies, you may have been able to slip completely under the radar. Unfortunately for you, our children are too stunning to not be noticed by anyone and everyone everywhere they go. Not that you aren't too beautiful, you obviously are the most attractive human to ever live, but enough of the public already knows how beautiful you are that they've trained themselves out of staring.

The public has had no such luck training themselves out of looking at the perfection that is our family. Luckily Hogwarts keeps anyone without an invitation out of the commencement ceremonies. I assume we're releasing a graduation announcement shot of us with our four graduates to the Prophet as we did with Lainie? Keep the vultures at bay with a few crumbs so they don't sneak in and take the entire moment.

Oh! Sometime tomorrow before the party begins, I invited Julia to come over and take some portraits. Not quite a full session that sometimes takes hours, but there are a few pictures I really want sooner rather than later. I figure we'll do a huge session right about the time the triplets are six months old so they're sitting up, not wobbly, and fully interactive. You know, like a zoo exhibit! But I definitely want an individual portrait of each of our graduates, an updated family portrait that includes all of our newest arrivals, an updated kids portrait that includes all of the aforementioned new arrivals, and when I was talking about this happening Ollie overheard me and asked if he'd be able to get a picture of him with Parker and Cassie and one of Cassie all on her own.

He offered to help pay for the session to cover the extra cost. He offered to pay us Draco. Do you want to punch him or should I?

When is he going to realize he belongs here, our home is his home, our photographer is his photographer?

How much we care about him.
He and Parker were just wedged into the crowd with our family and no one batted an eye. Rafael got fussy partway through the ceremony so Lainie passed him around to help alleviate his boredom. Little Man got snuggled up by Oliver just as lovingly as he got squeezed by Grandma Molly. Can you believe he's already six months old? He's looking more and more like Elena every day. His hair is finally growing in and it's going to be a riot of deep dark curls isn't it?

Honestly though, Oliver keeps acting like we consider him this outsider. Everyone in the family has accepted him and his kids. When I went to talk with Narcissa, Viona, and Eris a few weeks ago while they were planning the big grad party to ask about including Cassie as one of the honorees, they looked at me like I was mental. I had a whole argument in my head on why she should be included when Eri stopped me short, "Why do you think we haven't already included her? Of course she's a part of this, she's one of ours."

Probably unsurprising to you, that made me cry as well.

He offered to pay us to let our photographer take a family picture of him with his children. I just can't quite wrap my mind around that nonsense.

The planning of the party, the hiring of Julia, the immense amount of time I've spent at Hogwarts these past two weeks has all been a part of my plan to keep so busy I can't think about the fact that four more of my children are growing up and heading out on their own. Maybe it's time to revisit that age pausing potion again. You wanted to avoid the teen years, I just want to hold on to my children a bit longer!

I suppose the avoidance is probably why I had that fight with Viona. I mean, I would have argued with her regardless, but it probably wouldn't have been quite as passion-filled if I hadn't already been on the edge of falling into a full panic over their growing up. Yeah, I definitely would have argued with her either way. Do you know what that girl did? Does? Has done and will continue to do?

She takes off the safety charms I put on her when she does extreme muggle sports. Yeah, she's been a surfing queen, an adrenaline junky, bungee jumping, dirt-biking, terror on all activities extreme. She's been doing this since she was very very young. I allowed it the same way I've allowed Seph to follow in her big sister's footsteps; by casting safety charms at the beginning of every event. Mountain climbing, hang gliding, surfing, etcetera. I guess I used all that magic for nothing!

So here's what happened. Unsurprisingly I'm sure, Viona's class during Muggle Studies brought up some of the extreme events Muggles have come up with that mirror wizarding activities. Like hang gliding can give the same feeling of flying as riding a broom, stuff like that. During the discussion, safety of those things were brought up because Muggles obviously don't have cushioning charms or slowing spells in case of a fall. I mentioned that they have come up with ways to stay as safe as possible without the aid of magic. Like harnesses for safe rock climbing or life jackets while water-skiing.

That's when I brought up the fact that as wizards, we get to be twice as safe because we can utilize the Muggle safety measures while adding our own spells and safety charms. Our Princess, our darling Vivi, teeny tiny first child love of my life, says loud enough for me to hear but under her breath "Yeah, unless you learn how to take your Dad's charms off."

What's that now? You do what the what?

I managed to stay completely calm until the end of class when I pulled her to the side. "Vivi, don't tell your classmates to take off safety charms! You don't actually take them off do you?"
She smirked at me, damn Malfoys and their damn smirks. "Of course I take them off but it's fine! Have I gotten injured or died yet?"

I took a deep breath, "Well no, but you have gotten lucky, when you were little or trying new activities, that could have been really dangerous!"

She laughed at me. LAUGHED AT ME! "Mum-Dah, you are just the cutest, I learned to take the safety spells off when I was seven. I haven't kept one of your charms on in over a decade. The adrenaline rush just isn't as good if the danger isn't real."

That might be when the shouting started. Or at least when it got louder. It's probably a good thing you sent Gabriel with Muffy when you did. I don't think it would have been good for a Professor to be kicked out of Hogwarts before his first official day teaching!

Anyway, I am going to come to bed, tomorrow is going to be a LONG day I need to feed the babies and hopefully get a full night's sleep myself.

Forever and Always,
Harry

Actual levels of calmness may not be as advertised

Saturday June 24th
My heart and soul,

As you know, we've spent the last couple of weeks with Oliver in our bed. He never intends to just straight up sleep with us (sadly, not in the fun way), but he's been coming to our room each night to help with the babies and chat with one or both of us until he gets so tired that he just falls asleep in our bed.

I think he's actually unconsciously seeking out the comfort of a bed partner - as he is used to sleeping with his husband. It probably feels strange to sleep alone. I can certainly understand that as - the few times I've had to stay in the Hospital or whatever the case may be - sleeping alone has utterly sucked bollocks. I have reason to believe you feel the same way.

In any case, whether he's unconsciously seeking comfort or honestly just plain falling asleep before remembering to go back to his own bed, the result is the same; he's been sleeping in our bed. Aside from Parker being mildly scandalized when he stops to think about it, no one seems to question or have a problem with this arrangement.

However, because the majority of the time, we're all occupied with feeding babies or rocking them to sleep, we haven't been shagging Oliver dirty rotten at every opportunity. I suppose we are adult enough to keep our libidos in check when necessary. Either that or we're all just too damn tired from having three babies keeping us up nearly all night. I CAN'T WAIT until they're old enough to sleep through the night!!!

I personally find it adorable that we seem to unconsciously take turns snuggling with Oliver in our sleep. Or perhaps he unconsciously takes turns snuggling with us, because it seems like every time I wake up for feeding duty, the two of you are snuggling, but then you continually tell me that I'm snuggling with him when you wake up. Maybe he is just the sort to toss and turn and we're opportunistic enough to take advantage of it when he gets near us.

MERLIN! It's a good thing our bed is MASSIVE!
But getting back to my point.

So after the three of us watched our kids graduate earlier, the two of you sobbing shamelessly while I tried my best to remain dignified (but apparently failed at least a little, ugh) - I had my hands full of babies but I could feel the two of you holding hands behind my back. For Oliver, it's his last child reaching this huge milestone, and he'll probably only have a few months to possibly a few years at most before his both leave the nest for good. I can understand him weeping with both pride and a bittersweet wistful longing for the 'good old days.'

Meanwhile, you (and me too, if I'm honest) were having the nearly opposite situation. It's our - well not exactly first child to graduate, but our first adopted child plus our first naturally (magically, whatever) born children graduating. We had that same bittersweet feeling of pride, but I suppose ours was tempered by the knowledge that we get to do this a hundred more times.

Incidentally, the Viper was also rather stoically misty-eyed as he and Tiger watched Harrison graduate as well, but perhaps because he hasn't been able to spend as much time with Viper's kids, my Doppelgänger was truly dry-eyed. They naturally had to rush off for the graduation ceremony in the other world for their Viona, but promised to be back tomorrow (later today, whatever) for the party. At least part of it. It seems that Tiger is FINALLY making progress in his relationship with his Viona, and he's also throwing her a rather large party.

Anyway, after the ceremony, and then returning home and having a bit of a feast with our family - our kids not wanting to stay and come home on the Hogwart's Express with everyone else - Viona and our Divas volunteered to watch the newest set of almost triplets tonight, and I have no idea why, but Morgana seems to like her: "Big sister Vivi, don't you my gorgeous little girl?" So, we DEFINITELY took advantage of a full night's sleep.

Or well, almost.

With no babies to dominate our attention, we had a chance to chat more with Oliver about how he's feeling and what he's ready for. It seems that he has fantasized almost obsessively about my birthday playing (and he's not the only one!), and is dying to explore a bit more. Apparently what he had with his husband was mostly vanilla lovemaking that was exactly what he needed at the time, but now that he's had his eyes opened to how depraved we can be (such as beating each other up), he's curious to expand his horizons and give a few things a try.

But first, he rather wanted to start with the basics. Rather than jump head first and blindfolded into bondage and domination, he wanted to simply try regular sex with someone other than his husband for the first time in nearly 20 years. I guess they must have dated for several years before getting married, because they were married around two years after us, but have been together about two years longer than us.

You looked to me, clearly eager to get to the shagging, but also wanting me to fulfill my part of our dynamic by taking charge. Which was probably a good thing as you seemed about half in puppy mode, meaning that you didn't really feel like using words, but also, weren't on your hands and knees barking. I smiled and stroked my hand along your spine, coming to the decision that you deserved every reward I could think of for being the best husband ever.

"Oliver, I'm not certain I've ever asked: were you the top or bottom?"

He shrugged, pretending to be a little indifferent. "I've done both. Back when we were trying to conceive, I bottomed almost exclusively for a year, but when I had no luck conceiving, I topped him for about a year. Obviously, he had no luck either, and at that point, he asserted his preference as the top - about 90 percent of the time. On occasion, if he was in the mood or I was REALLY in the mood, he'd bottom for me."

"So... then you are probably expecting one of us to top you, yeah?"

He chuckled and nodded. "Yeah, after getting used to it, it's what I actually prefer. Or did. Everything's different now."

I stroked your spine again before nibbling your shoulder and giving you a kiss. "Harry, my love, I want you to undress him in that way I just love, where everything comes off slowly and you worship each part as it's revealed."

"Mmm," you moaned in anticipation.

Oliver grinned. "You know, I still have a hard time wrapping my head around the whole Dom/sub dynamic. I dunno why, but I always thought of it as an utter arsehole taking advantage of a gullible schmuck. Yet, every time I'm involved in your playing, I can clearly see that you may be giving orders and dominating him, but it's obviously in ways he really wants."

"He also loves when I talk about him as if he's an object - like we're doing right now. It's a sort of sexy humiliation that turns him on," I explained. "So yes, I DO spend a lot of time ensuring that the playing is exactly what he needs, and in return, it's exactly what I need. And if it's not, he'll intuitively understand and turn it around on me until it IS."

"Mmph!" Oliver responded in surprise when you got tired of him not offering himself up for your hands and mouth, and 'attacked' him with a kiss. Your hands were inside his shirt, feeling his skin and pinching his nipples.

I lay on my side, my head propped up with an arm - my hand cradling my head - just watching events unfold. As I did, I'd run my other hand along your back, flirt with your tattoos, pinch your nipples, smack your buttocks, and just generally try to distract you WITHOUT actually distracting you. At the same time, I'd caress parts of Oliver's body that you either were currently licking or had already uncovered and were neglecting in your quest to strip him off... eventually.

When you reached his shaft, I noticed that it was already leaking so much that it almost certainly wouldn't last long. But that wouldn't do! We had HOURS to play still. Thus, I cast a denial spell on him.

"I both love and hate when you do that," Oliver grumbled between gasps of pleasure from you sucking on him. "It's a bit frustrating to be RIGHT on the edge of climax and apparently incapable of it, but at the same time, bloody fucking Godric! I end up lasting HOURS!!!"

I smirked at him almost evilly but didn't say anything. Instead, I watched as you fished stripping him off, and then set your mind and fingers to taking him apart and making him squeal. In the process, you prepared him so well that he might have been able to take Blaise. Well, probably not Blaise, seeing as how massive that man is, but you know what I mean.

When you were at the point that Oliver looked like he might well have a heart attack and die a happy man if he didn't finish soon, you looked over at me with a clear question in your eyes, which was: Shall we take pity on him and deliver him from this denial spell by shagging him into the bed?

I grinned at you as you were apparently reading my mind. "Harry, climb up on Oliver and slide that gorgeous shaft of yours into his well prepared hole. Unless you object, Oliver."

"FUCK NO!!" He blurted out in a rough and haggard voice. "If someone doesn't shag me soon, I might literally die!"

"You heard him," I stated with a knowing grin. You seemed hesitant all of a sudden, probably having assumed that I would be the one to do the deed of 're-deflowering' Oliver, but as I watched you, the fiery challenge in my eyes seemed to give you the je ne sais quoi you needed to proceed. Your eyes were suddenly glowing with determination. You climbed back onto Oliver and gave him a demanding kiss that left him breathless, even as you used a hand to oil your shaft and line it up for entry.

"Wow!" Oliver gasped. "You must have kissed a LOT of people to be so good at it!" He exclaimed in awe as he ran a hand through your hair. You faltered, looking to me because I'd suggested that maybe we should keep that tidbit to ourselves for a while, BUT as you'd said in your email, it seems as if Oliver doesn't quite understand his place with us yet.

I gestured for you to get on with it, then caressed your pert and firm arse. Bloody hell! MY ARSE is getting enormous but yours is still as perfect as ever!

As you returned your attention to entering Oliver, I replied to his statement. "Actually, Harry refuses to kiss or let ANYONE kiss him but me. It's a hard limit."

Oliver gasped, probably for more than one reason. First of all, you were FINALLY working your way inside him, and considering that it had been five years for him, even a shaft much smaller than yours would have likely felt huge. As it is, yours is the perfect length with a pleasing girth and a gorgeous bulb at the head. That bulbous glans alone can get me off even when you're just trying to tease me by not quite fully entering me. Oh sure, when you remain shallow and teasing like that, you're not hitting my prostate, but fuck if I care! I love it anyway!

But as I suspected, Oliver was ALSO surprised bordering on shocked by that revelation. "Wait! But..."

You kissed him and whispered: "Shh..."

He responded by biting his lip for a moment, and then exhaling and melting under you. His hands clutched your arms before winding up to your neck. He then smiled and seized your lips, fully understanding at that moment how truly special the privilege is.

I purred in happiness as I watched you two get lost in each other for a long while. Then I decided it was time to interrupt.

"I can tell that Harry's not even close to finishing yet. I've rather forced him to cultivate a LOT of stamina. As he once tried to explain, I'll occasionally put a denial spell on him, work him up to nearly frantic levels, and then just leave him frustrated and unable to wank himself for HOURS - until he attacks me," I added with a delicious smirk. I honestly LOVE when you just HAVE to have me. Which reminds me, I might just have to do that for your birthday, heh heh heh...

You purred from fond memories, and maybe the thought of doing so again soon.

Oliver chuckled. "I'm beginning to think you're a bit of a sadistic bastard..."

"You have no idea," I confirmed, my smirk turning a bit evil again. "But as I was saying, because Harry's got stamina to spare, I'm going to take the denial spell off you and let you have a glorious orgasm, and then suffer a bit until Harry's ready to pump you full to bursting."

Oliver seemed to like that idea, because he grunted rather primal or animalistically at that. A low grunt that turned into a soft, rumbling growl. Taking that as permission, I did exactly as suggested and took the spell off. Almost instantly, Oliver was clutching you as if your weight could prevent him from spinning off into space, at the same time, he was crying out so erotically that my shaft not only twitched in response, but nearly came with absolutely no stimulation!

This seemed to trigger the urge to speed up in you, to POUND him into the bed. I bet he felt tight and oh so good. The look on your face was very close to pure bliss at that moment, and as I love more than anything, I got to watch every second of passion racing across your eyes. Your face flushed and covered in sweat. Your entire body practically glowing from a delicious sheen of sweat. I shifted until I was able to run my tongue up your back from your sacrum to your neck, and this sent a delicate and erotic shiver through your body. You made that noise I adore, the one that signals that you are in the very beginning of your orgasm.

I took advantage of your bliss by sucking on your neck and casting a very precise cutting hex to let me drink your blood with the absolutely smallest amount of damage possible. You probably didn't even feel it in that moment. As always, your blood and the magic it contains gave me a high that's better than any other drug or method I've tried.

I lay back down to purr and enjoy the rush of bliss running through my veins. As I did so, I had a hand on your back - or perhaps arse, I wasn't exactly looking - so I could feel a tiny bit of the last second or two of your orgasm. You were breathing heavily, already laying on Oliver to rest and recover. I think he might have actually passed out, his breathing also fast and rough.

It didn't take long, perhaps 5 or 10 minutes, but eventually you lifted your head off his chest and looked at me.

"You drank my blood, didn't you?"

I laughed and shrugged, not confirming or denying. You lightly brushed your hand over the tiny but deep scratch on your neck, gathering the last drop running from the already scabbing over wound. Shaking your head and rolling your eyes, you wiped the small stream of blood away with your pointer finger, and then shoved it in my mouth.

"You're an absolute lunatic, but you're MY lunatic," you 'grumbled' with a wry and loving smile.

I licked your finger clean, and then kissed your palm.

Then you frowned and tilted your head in thought. "So far, you keep having ME play with Oliver, but I KNOW you want him too, so why aren't you playing with him directly?"

I pressed my lips together and rolled away. I could feel you and Oliver shifting, sitting up to look at me curiously. You rubbed my back with a hand, and then laughed.

"It's the Hufflepuff thing, isn't it?" You correctly guessed.

"Hufflepuff thing?" Oliver asked in confusion.

"Yeah," you confirmed. "Draco hates being seen as anything remotely fluffy or soft like a Hufflepuff. When we first got together, he couldn't even say the phrase I love you, he had to say other things, like I Hufflepuff you."

"Hush you!" I commanded, trying to swat your hand away from my back.

"And now he's annoyed because he's feeling vulnerable," you explained.

"I said hush!" I ordered, turning over like a bolt of lightning striking so that I could tackle you to the bed and cover your mouth. "No spilling all my secrets, dammit!"

You pouted and gave me a pleading look until I melted.

I relented with a sigh and let your mouth free.

"My dragon... don't you WANT Oliver to know what he means to us. Isn't that what you were trying to prove here tonight?"

Feeling like a bastard, I sat with my knees pulled against my chest and absently doodled patterns on the bed with a finger. "Yes. Alright, I'll be a Hufflepuff for five minutes, but after that, none of us are ever talking about this again, got it!" I snarled.

You laughed. "He means we'll end up talking about it all the time until we're all sick to death of the subject."

I glared at you and didn't deign to correct you. "Alright, so, when I first realized that I was not just attracted to Oliver, but had... feelings for him, I freaked out and ran to Yesenia."

"His Mind Healer," you reminded in case Oliver had forgotten (or didn't know) that tidbit.

Oliver quirked a brow in amusement. "You've talked to your Mind Healer about me?"

"Yes," I growled unappreciatively. "It's like you said, Harry. I'd never actually had a crush before. Or well, to be more accurate, I have ALWAYS and ONLY ever had a crush on YOU. That crush started probably the day we first met, even before Hogwarts, and lasted until we got together and it could turn into proper love."

"Yeah," you said supportively, now holding my hand as I looked at my toenails - which clearly need to be groomed as the dark metallic blue paint on them is starting to flake a bit.

I sighed and continued. "Well... We've PLAYED, right? Almost since the very beginning, as soon as we'd talked about it and felt ready, we started playing, and while nearly half of it HAS been with friends that I love - the rest random strangers that looked like an interesting shag - NEVER have I EVER been with anyone else that I felt ROMANTIC love for. In fact, never have I FELT romantic love for anyone else. I didn't think it was possible. I assumed that every drop of romantic love I had in me was being poured all over you, and that was perfect and exactly what I wanted. But then..."

You purred in sympathy and kissed my hand. "You had a bit of a dinner date with Oliver and realized that you had feelings for him and that scared you into running straight to Yesenia."

I glared at you because sometimes I wonder why you insist on us talking so much when you can clearly read me like a neon billboard blazing across a night sky. I hate it and love it and hate it and - bah!

Oliver looked stunned. "Wait! You're saying that you BOTH like me, but not just LIKE me, but..."

I gathered up the courage to dare to look him in the eye. "I'd say that for me, what I feel is the legitimate beginning of what can become real love, if I choose to pursue and nurture those feelings."

"Me too," you informed him. "Although I'm a rash Gryffindor running headlong into danger, so I'm probably a hell of a lot closer to full love than 'just a crush.' Which I bet you could probably guess with all the blatant clues I've been dropping."
"Like the kissing thing..." Oliver murmured. He bit his lip in thought for a moment, and then looked at me. "So... is that the answer to Harry's question? You've been having HIM play with me because you're not quite certain you want to be all 'Hufflepuff' with me?"

I tilted my head side to side. "Yes and no. It's not that I don't want it, it's that I don't want to take that last step until I'm certain you're on the same page."

Oliver ran his hand through his hair. "You have no idea how confused I've been since moving here! I've spent HOURS talking to MY Mind Healer because I'm falling for a damn married couple! How does a very monogamous widower just move on AND fall for a couple as fast as I have been?! Hyacinth - my Mind Healer - she thinks it's because I had such a long and drawn out ending with Ed. The relationship was dying long before he actually did. Without realizing it, I did a lot of my mourning and healing and moving on before the actual end came." It was his turn to sigh. "But then I was afraid that even if I HAVE feelings for you two, that they'd end up burning hot and bright... and quick. A rebound."

I nodded in complete understanding. "That's what I said to Harry. That we needed to be here for you to help you heal and learn to love again, but that we shouldn't get too attached, because this probably won't last."

You nodded in agreement. "He did. He even used the word rebound."

"So now what?" Oliver asked, looking back and forth between us.

"Now..." I drawled hesitantly before taking a breath and committing to a course of action. "Well, I suppose we can only see how far this goes. We can go into it with the best of intentions, and if it works, it's a win for all three of us, but if it doesn't work, at least we can feel confident that we tried and it just wasn't meant to be."

You nodded, raising my hand to your lips and kissing it. "Yes, exactly. Because I really want to try. I don't think I could STOP myself at this point."

We both looked to Oliver, waiting for him to decide. Slowly, a big grin formed across his handsome face. "Does this mean I get to shag Draco?"

You got a look on your face that made me wary. "What?"

"Oh sure! I'm the one who loves to bottom, yet you had me top him, and now he wants to top YOU," you pointed out.

"Does this upset you?" I asked in concern.

"No! I look forward to seeing it - IF you agree, that is. I just, I think I assumed that it would be the other way around; you topping him and then him topping me," you clarified.

I smiled and kissed you. "That's exactly why I had you top him. He's just getting back into it and he needs to experience everything until he finds what he likes. But he's USED to bottoming, so that's where he needed to start. And YOU needed to be the one to do it, for all the reasons I just mentioned that we are never mentioning again."

"OR mentioning all the time!" You contradicted with a far too innocent smirk.

I rolled my eyes. Turning to Oliver, I took his hand. "Let me make a deal with you. If you promise to understand and be patient should it happen to take me a long time to feel comfortable using the L word with you, I'll let you do anything and everything you want to me right now."
"Oh God!" You groaned in clear lust, those words apparently putting an immediate end to your refractory period.

Oliver laughed at the glazed over and lusty look on your face. Then he turned back to me, put a hand on the back of my neck, and pulled me close enough to kiss. "Deal!"

You know, for a man who was so amazed and impressed by your - admittedly VERY good - kissing skills, he's not half bad either. He kissed me and stroked my body until my clothes somehow disappeared. I'd lay good odds that you used magic to either intentionally or unconsciously make them evaporate. Good thing they weren't my favorites!

Once I was naked under him, he turned to grin at you. "It's been a million years since I last had to prepare a man for entry, Harry. Care to remind me how it's done?"

And with that, the two of you seemed to make a bit of a contest over who could lick and finger my arse open better. Dear Gods! The PLEASURE!!! I'm quite certain my mind melted and oozed out of my ears within about five minutes and didn't return until - just before I started writing this email, actually. I'd been passed out, but apparently my body didn't get the message that we are baby free tonight, because I woke up and could NOT go right back to sleep, thus a 3 AM email to recap our night.

But lest you feel disappointed that I'm skipping over the 'best' part...

So, with my mind a melted puddle of goo and two lovers determined to ensure it stayed that way for good, I had no presence of mind to cast a denial spell on myself. Also, it seems that YOU specifically wanted me to orgasm as many times as possible, and so also did not cast the spell on me. I'm still not certain how many times I climaxed, but I do remember that the first time was when Oliver was inside me and hitting everything just right, and the last time was powerful enough to make me black out completely.

So... congratulations on a bloody FANTASTIC shag! Next time, we're going to have to introduce Oliver to the lovely world of sandwiches.

Swee~~~~~~t Emo~~~~~~tion,
Draco
P.S. We might just have to make a commitment to insisting that someone else watch the babies EVERY Friday night so that the three of us can... 'bond.' ^_^
Chapter 148

Chapter Summary

It's the grad party, and then Viona's wedding.

Sunday June 25, 2017

My Sleepy Love,

Wow, it's the second day of the party and if my ears aren't lying, it's still going hard. I can't believe you're sleeping through this nonsense! Oh, I suppose when I cast a silencing charm around the babies I must have included you as well. Or you are just THAT sound of a sleeper.

I wanted all the kids at the party to be well aware there were adults on the premises (or adultier adults than the ones that had already hit "adulthood") and that we COULD stop in at any moment. But for the most part, I really wanted them to have the space and freedom to let loose and be themselves. I mean, I don't care if there's a ton of drunken idiots singing too loudly and dancing too lewdly. I do worry that these young people are getting trashed enough to potentially be making babies or getting STD's (yeah, I'm looking at YOU Eris and Eric!). I don't really care if two seventeen-year-olds find a cupboard and get their shag on, I DO care if someone is being coerced into doing something they don't want to do. It's not my business if people are drinking and throwing up (as long as I don't have to clean it up) it IS my business if kids are getting alcohol poisoning or decide to go swimming while inebriated and drown.

So, after the amazing photo shoot, the two of us, your parents, Ollie, and even Elena, Ethan, and Rose made sure we were seen, we mingled, we danced a little, but then we headed out of the party piece by piece. We did have a bit of a rotation set up though, Lainie's crew stayed a bit longer, your parents checked in a few times late into the night, I was in charge of early morning checks, and you will probably start shooing them all out when you wake up at lunchtime!

No drunken graduates heading to St. Mungo's to get their stomach pumped on my watch!

I can't wait to get the photos back from our photo shoot! I thought Julia was talented when she first started taking our portraits all those years ago. How long has she been doing our family's pictures? Seventeen ... eighteen years? Well the first sessions were absolutely gorgeous but she has only gotten better as she's practiced and perfected. And I think it helps that she's known us and our children for long enough that it's not a stranger coming to do our pictures but a family friend.

The priority for the photos was the graduates and an updated family portrait. I definitely wanted a group shot of just our children, and Oliver wanted a nice shot of him with Parker and Cassie. There were quite a few other pictures that would have been nice to have, but not necessary if we ran out of time or patience. Luckily we ended up getting all the needs, all the wants, and some of the extras! I'm not sure what we'll ever do if Julia decides to retire.

Our four grads and our two extra grads got individual portraits and two different group shots (our four kids together and then all six together). I am always worried others will feel badly when we break into smaller groups; will Viona feel badly if the triplets want a group shot; will Orion feel left out if Eris and Hazel want a picture together, will Cassie or Harrison feel as though they are loved less because we want a picture of "our" graduates. However, no one blinked an eye at any of the smaller breakouts. If anything I was a bit surprised, again like their performance on their birthdays, that Harrison and Hazel wanted one of just the two of them.

I still can't get over them being from different worlds, having only one parent in common even if they were from the same universe, but they're otherwise identical down to the mole patterns on their shoulder blades. I should offer to send these pictures to Haz's surgeon to use as a before and after transition example. Okay, I wouldn't actually do that, but I bet most people would believe it.

So they each did two outfits, something a bit more classic wizarding with dress robes and then a casual (yet very fashionable!) outfit. While they were changing their outfits from formal to casual, Julia did her usual sneak around and get some candid shots. She of course got a few sweet shots of the littlest babies, and what I'm sure will be a really sweet shot of Jaz and Zaire dancing around holding hands to some rhythm no one else could figure out. Those two: different ages, different genders, such different looks, and yet from the moment they locked eyes the best of friends.

We got our family portrait, I never doubt Julia's skills but it's a lot of people to get all looking the same direction let alone looking their best. She manages it every single time.

So, obviously the family picture was my favorite. There's never any doubt that seeing the beautiful family we've built all huddled together in one image is the most beautiful sight for me. But the picture I wasn't expecting to take, that I wouldn't have thought to ask for was probably a close second. When the oldest kids went to change from their photo outfits into their party outfits, the middle kids went to grab their bags for their sleepover with Grandma Molly, and the teeniest were sleeping off the exhaustion from an exciting afternoon of pictures, your (very secretly) sweet self asked for just one more.

You refuse to admit your Hufflepuff feelings, you say you'll talk about it for five minutes and then never again, but the very next day you ask Julia to take a picture of the three of us. It was just a simple shot, but subtly perfect. The three of us were still in our dark denims and pale sweaters, mine in an olive green, you with your trademark blue, and Oliver wearing a slate grey. We stood in front of and slightly to the side of your favorite sycamore, I was in the middle front ... not because I'm so important but apparently the shorty always gets the front of the group shots! You were behind me to my left side, a possessive hand on my left hip, Ollie had his hands in his pockets which left his elbow for me to loop my right arm through, and your right hand was playing with the soft hairs where his hairline met his neck.

When the two of you ran to check on the fussing Morgana and Dylan, Julia showed me how that one turned out. The one where we are all looking at the camera and smiling was just lovely. I can't wait to put it up on our wall. But until we completely figure this relationship out, the best one of the bunch may need to stay somewhere private. Julia obviously understood why we were all three getting this together, or as well as anyone really understands I suppose, and to break a bit of the tension, instead of asking us to shout cheese or something else obnoxious she told us to shout out what part of the sandwich we identify most with.

That's when her photographer's eye managed to catch something wonderful. I started blushing and bit my lip, Ollie was chuckling and looking at me like I was adorable for being embarrassed (probably thinking it was ridiculous that I could still blush with how depraved I can be) and you are looking at Ollie look at me with the softest adoring smile on your face. You go ahead and tell yourself whatever you'd like about how far into "crushing" or "liking" you are, I have quite the damning photo that says a different story.

Between that lovely conversation we had Friday night and how sweet you were yesterday, plus the admission of my kissing rule and subsequent breakage of that rule, I'm hopeful that Oliver is quite aware of how real our feelings are. That we're not messing with him, we're not just out for a quick shag, and that he isn't harming OUR relationship in anyway. And I think last night when we took our leave from the party to have a party of our own was eye opening for him to see even more that our D/S dynamic is definitely NOT an arsehole and a gullible schmuck.

With the reminder that your toenails were flaking, and wanting to really prove how much I love my sub role, I decided it was time for naked, kneeling, slaveboy Harry caring for his men. The two of you relaxed in the playroom, not fully naked but in dressing gowns and sitting at the table. While I was completely naked, on my knees, giving the both of you foot rubs and painting your nails, or at times just waiting patiently for the two of you to ask something else of me.

You both seemed to enjoy all of it, including teasing me with that humiliating objectification that I love so much. But my favorite time was when you couldn't pretend to be unaffected for even a moment more, threw me over your shoulder, told Ollie to come help you show me my place, brought the three of us to the big bed, and did exactly as promised.

Which is why I may end up napping after my shift as party chaperone is over, I'm quite exhausted from our private party.

Yours Always,

Harry

Sunday July 9th
My Sanity,

Today feels like it has been the LONGEST day in history, and yet somehow, the clock still says it's a half hour until midnight. Harry, please remind me upon waking tomorrow to give my mother the biggest bouquet of flowers AND a hug and a kiss and an apology. OUR wedding was a whirlwind affair that was over quickly, and I was perilously close to being a 'Bridezilla.' Now that I've been through a wedding even more fussy, regal, and precise than Pansy's once was, I COMPLETELY understand how stressful our wedding must have been on my parents.

You should probably give a bouquet and all the rest to Molly.

So... the day started extremely EARLY compared to my usual. I think it was about normal for you. There we were, sound asleep and snuggled up - you in the middle with Gabriel in your arms, Oliver on your left with an arm around you and Dylan in his other arm. Me on your right with my head touching yours even as I held Morgana in my arms between us.

When suddenly, the door to our bedroom slammed open - I'd swear she used a spell to not only blast it open, but to ALSO make the bang three times louder than it should have been.

"DADS! IF YOU DO NOT GET YOUR ARSES OUT OF BED AND HELP WITH THE LAST MINUTE PREP, I SWEAR TO MERLIN THAT I WILL HEX YOU BOTH - ALL THREE OF YOU - AS PAINFULLY AS I POSSIBLY CAN!!!!!"

Well, even if she hadn't just threatened us most egregiously, I daresay the mini-heartattack I suffered from the abrupt wake up would have made it impossible to go back to sleep.

"We're up, we're up!" You hastily assured her.

"Dad! I need you to ride the elves arses until they have the seating and decoration and ALL the details perfect! And DAD! I need you to go to the kitchen and stay there until you are satisfied that ALL the food we're responsible for providing is ready and up to the exacting Malfoy standards! AND THEN when the elves bring it to Hogsmeade, inspect all the catered food and be certain that all of it is up to our standards as well! If so much as a crumpet fails, I'll have all their bloody heads on a rack! Oliver love, if you'd be a dear and help keep my dad on track and stop him from panicking to death, I'd be ever so grateful, ta!"

And with that, she spun around and Apparated to whatever tasks she'd set for herself to do. Her voice lingering for a few seconds after she was gone: "And don't you DARE be late to the Bridal Party Spa Prep at 11, DAD!"

I sighed in relief, happy that I would at least get to have my hair, makeup, and nails done before I had to get dressed and ready for the ceremony. Groaning from extreme reluctance to get out of bed, I kept a firm grip on Morgana as I shifted toward the side of the bed. Then I nearly fell out of bed before regaining my balance and managing to land on my feet. You may have actually cast a stabilizing spell on me, and if so, thank you so much for preventing my untimely death - along with Morgana's, who was still asleep and almost certainly would have been squished by me.

Knowing that I would be doing my official dressing later, all I did was go to the loo to do the most basic of business, cast a couple of cleaning charms on my body, spelled my hair up into a hasty and rather messy man bun (I know, any other day and I wouldn't be caught dead in a man bun, especially a messy one!), and then summoned a comfortable pair of track bottoms and the tee shirt that said: Sweat Dries, Blood Clots, Bones Heal, Suck it up PRINCESS!

Not only do I LOVE that shirt, despite the coarse and common materials it's made out of, but I felt that it was a perfect and not so subtle warning to our daughter that she's already on thin ice with me today.

Muffy was once again the smartest elf in all of creation as she made me a cup of extra strong tea, waited patiently for me to drink it (by this point, you and Oliver had already used the loo and pulled on the first things you'd found - which I actually think was your dirty laundry from yesterday, but at least it wasn't ratty and ragged denims from 20 years ago), and then when I seemed marginally more awake, handed me an utterly delicious smoothie for me to drink as I worked.

I then spent about 4 hours terrorizing not just the elves working on the last minute decorations and finalizations, but also the HUMANS doing the same. I was NOT in the best mood - lacking in my normal amount of sleep and SO ready to murder our high stung and exacting daughter. She actually popped in about once an hour to ensure that I was overseeing everything correctly. I'm dead certain she popped into the kitchen and whatnot to do the same to you.

FINALLY it was time for me to pop over to River's Song to join the Bridal Party in the long process of 'getting ready' for the wedding. Thank all the Gods that Viona had set the parade start time for 4 o'clock, as I'm certain we would NOT have been ready any sooner, and thankfully, all the time I spent that morning terrorizing people and elves had paid off, as every detail was perfect by the time I was done, right down to the flowers on the floats.

I don't know about you and Oliver (who were part of Alric's Stag Do with all the boys - minus Orion - and Alric's mates of both genders) but half the reason I was so sleep deprived was that Viona's Hen Party last night was WILD! Oh sure, it was at Orion's bar, and so lacked the brawl that happened during Mahafsoun's Hen Party, but that's only because Orion had a LOT of semi naked entertainment to keep us all occupied. Not to mention a LOT of alcohol. Our shenanigans were more along the lines of singing at the top of our lungs and dancing like heathens. Fire may have been involved...

I have now not only accepted Orion's choice of business, but come to accept it as a rather nice place to be when one HAS to party in mostly responsible ways.

So back to the spa. Happily, River had left strict instructions several times over the last few months (and again before heading off to the Stag Do last night), that every single employee was to have all hands on deck. The entire Bridal Party was to be treated to massages, facials, mani/pedis, makeup, and hair styling. I think THIS is the only reason any of us made it through the day without an actual murder taking place.

By roughly 2PM, the Bridal Party had moved to that sweet little Hotel in Hogsmeade that Viona reserved for all the out of town guests - such as River and Mahafsoun. The biggest suite was not quite large enough for all of the ladies who needed to get ready as a group, and so, the Event Room (which was moderately sized but nowhere near as big as our ballroom, but then again, most weddings the place hosts are NOWHERE NEAR this big!) was designated as the Bridal Party Prep Room. Dresses from all the best haute couture designers were ready and waiting - along with my dress robes. Hazeris had naturally designed not only their dresses and that of their younger sisters (and a couple of their brothers) but they'd also been the only designers that Viona trusted to get her dress just right.

Apparently, Viona's wedding dress is going to be one of the dresses modeled at Fashion Week, with Viona doing the modeling as none of the three of them ever want that dress to be worn by ANYONE short of one of Viona's daughters (or nieces) in the future.

Her dress is GORGEOUS!!! Eris and Hazel have clearly outdone themselves! See, normally they have a fairly unique style in which most of the designs are youthful. Eris likes to favor shorter dresses that are not only stylish, but fun to wear, while Hazel positively ADORES all things full length and frilly, being perfect for formal events like dances, Premiers (such as Shtara's plays), and even High Tea with the Queen.

Thus, to see them not only design a dress for Viona but ALSO manage to capture all the aspects of her personality, was amazing - even to me. The dress has a long and regal train. The dress itself is rather 'severe' with features such as a high neck and a tight collar, but at the same time, it has feminine grace in the shape and decoration. The bodice and the front of the skirt have a gorgeous 'floral' swirling pattern of lace motifs running down the length. The hem is entirely covered in the same lace, but the rest of the skirt is plain. HOWEVER, that high and tight collar I mentioned is actually a full length (same length as the long train) veil of sorts that doesn't cover the face or head. The veil is bejeweled - with real diamonds as far as I know. Giving it a light but noticeable sparkle that turns what could have been a 'school marm' look into a 'Princess' look.
To compliment it all, Viona's hair was a combination of severe and feminine. It was a long braid arranged and decorated into a bun that almost looked like a bouquet of flowers. Sort of reminiscent of Elsa's hair during her coronation in Disney's Frozen.

If I described every single dress worn, I would be at it for HOURS! So I'll recap the most notable in my mind. Eris had a beautiful knee length light blue dress decorated with white butterflies edged in dark blue, in clusters that also looked a bit like bouquets, along with solitary butterflies around the skirt. Hazel wore the exact same dress, except hers was full length and the skirt had lines of butterflies that seemed to be flying up to her waist. I always love how these two can take the exact same outfit and imprint their own personalities on it.

Mahafsoun had apparently instructed her favorite designer to make her a gown in vampire black with lighter edged in darker red butterflies all over it in the same pattern as Hazel's dress. I assume that Hazel must have sent her design drawings early on for the copy to be made from.

The last dress that I specifically want to describe out of ALL the gorgeous ones, was the one that Morgana wore. As a baby of only three months, it's not so easy to dress her up in formal wear. Obviously, form fitting gowns are not only inappropriate, but practically impossible on a body that is still squishy and adorably all baby fat. Well, mostly. So she was wearing an excellent compromise. The top was sturdy yet lacy and as form fitting as is practical. The entire dress was white, with the skirt being made up of layers of fluffy, floaty tulle, and best of all, the waist was encircled by a gorgeous glittering gold bow that seemed perfect for our little Queen.

The dress was probably really simple - considering that it's tiny and made for a baby - but I feel like I could go on and on about it. Instead, I'll skip to the beginning of the ceremony.

The live band - that had been playing various lively music all morning to set a good mood for the whole town and all the MANY guests that were flocking to the town from all over the world (as naturally, Viona had invited Unity Royalty that she's bonded with over the years). In fact, the pre-wedding celebration/party had been in full swing since around 11AM when the various shops opened to sell things like tea, lunch, and souvenirs. Yes. Viona had made (or at least approved the making of) official souvenirs for her wedding.

But as I was saying, the live band took a small break at about a quarter to 4 with the announcement that the parade would be starting soon. This gave them a chance to obtain refreshments and go to the loo before playing music for the parade.

I know you were there, but it seems like the entire time, you were in sheer disbelief of how massive the whole event was, so I'll recap it for you so that you can have a written record that YES, it was a full blown parade through the relatively small town of Hogsmeade.

You and I met up about ten minutes to 4 so that we - along with Oliver - could get settled on the very first float. The parade was organized so that it began in an otherwise empty field on the North side of the town. This field is separated from the actual town by a barrier of trees, a forest that had been growing there for centuries - if not millenia.

When we were settled on the float, the three of us holding our three youngest, we had a few minutes to wait until the band started back up, signaling the start of the parade. Our float, which was an interesting design containing the Malfoy, Black, and Potter Crests, all depicted in intricate detail using real flowers of varying colors, had a rather simple task. We were simply the first float, and thus, not SUPPOSED to be wild or entertaining, just eye catching.

I think Viona also assumed that most of the guests were holding their breaths for a glimpse of you, and wanted to give them what they wanted right away so that the rest of the parade could distract them from the fact that you were now sitting at the end of the line in ANOTHER field at the South end of town.
But I'm getting ahead of myself. Our float - exactly like ALL the floats - was being drawn by thestrals from Hagrid's well-maintained and well-cared-for flock. The same ones that bring the carriages back and forth at the beginning and end of each year. Or in other words, the perfect animals for the job.

Once the music signaled the start of the parade, our float was pulled along at the same pace a normal human taking a leisurely stroll uses. Slow. This gave us time to wave to all the people crowding along the main street. The invited guests were near the end of the parade, close to where they would be seated. The REST of the people were simply people who have been reading about the upcoming wedding in the Prophet and other publications for MONTHS - who were curious to see the wedding for themselves and happened to have the time and money to take a bit of a holiday to Hogsmeade for the weekend or day.

THIS is why the town was so willing and eager to agree to host the wedding, no matter how exacting Viona wanted it. I think they were able to foresee just how big the event was going to be, and how many tourists they would be able to attract for the weekend (as pre-wedding events were hosted by all the shops yesterday. My favorite being the chocolate tasting event at Honeydukes).

At this slow pace, it took about a half an hour for our float to get from the North end of town to the South one. But then, our float (and only our float) was given the honor of being parked at the official end of the line for the parade - off to the side - so that we could watch the rest of the floats pass by until Viona herself arrived on the last float.

The floats were spaced so that there was about two blocks between each one. This was to avoid problems should one thestral happen to go faster than the one before it, but they are well trained enough that THAT did not happen. The other reason for the spacing was to allow everyone time to fully enjoy one float before the next grabbed their attention.

The band itself played music - sort of general orchestral music - during the parade. However, after our float made it to the finish and was pulled aside to watch all the others, the last two blocks were designated the zone the band focused on, and so, as each float passed through that zone, the music was changed to reflect whatever the theme of that float was.

So, for example, the float after us was dedicated to the Feisty Foursome, and they were rocking out (both singing and dancing in their adorable formal wear) to Born To Be Wild.

Once again, I'm not going to talk about ALL the floats - since that would probably take longer to do than it took to WATCH. But I will describe the last two.

The second to last float was River and Mahafsoun's. Like everything Mahafsoun does, it was vampire themed, and actually thrilled the crowd of spectators as they mostly recognized her from her show and called out a large and LOUD amount of love and support for her. As the crowd was going wild for her, she was bellydancing to River singing - which like all the floats that had their own theme playing, repeated every couple of minutes until they reached the last two blocks - which started the final performance until the end of the parade.

But as I was saying, River was singing on his float, and I positively LOVED it because he's literally the ONLY person (other than Elena, who had her float go before his for this reason) that COULD sing this particular song to Viona.

White Wedding.

You know: "Hey little sister, it's a nice day for a white wedding."
Now one might think that with each of the floats basically having their own mini show to entertain the guests, that that would be enough, right? That the moment Viona arrived on her float, she'd step off it and walk down the Aisle to Alric, who had actually been sitting in a plush and comfortable chair of honor so he could watch the entire parade at the end of the line, right next to where our float was eventually parked. Basically a bit like a King on a throne waiting for his Queen to arrive.

NO...

So, the moment Viona's float reached the last two blocks and the official band changed what they were playing to match the music emanating from her float to the song that she was singing, Alric's chair was moved to the actual Altar. At the same time, all the participants in the wedding, meaning ALL our kids - including Miles, Bea, Finn, and Mahafsoun, plus Sammy, Charlotte, and Blake - except for the literal infants in our arms, were gathering at the beginning of the Aisle, effectively blocking Viona from Alric's sight until the moment she stepped onto the Aisle. So, he could probably hear her singing, but couldn't see her.

Surprisingly, our daughter had chosen to be vulnerable as the song she had opted to sing was Fear.

"But I FEAR, I have nothing to give, I have so much to lose here in this lonely place, tangled up in our embrace, there's nothing I'd like better than to fall... but I fear... I have nothing to give..."

The moment she stepped down off her float, I gave her the strongest and most comforting hug that I could - until you pulled her out of my arms and gave her an even tighter one, haha. As her float had passed through town, all of those lining the streets packed in behind her and walked en masse - with surprising decorum - so that once her float reached the end of the line, the official guests could walk to their assigned seats, and the unofficial extra guests could crowd around the rest of the field until everyone was ready to watch her walk down the Aisle.

Oliver obligingly took both Gabriel and Dylan in their carriers to his spot up front near my parents, his kids, Viper, Tiger, THEIR River (Rosalie) and Viona, and their Scorpius and Hyperion. I might have given Morgana over to my mother, but she was in full NO ONE ELSE HAD BETTER DARE TOUCH ME mode, so she got to stay in my left arm as I linked my right arm with Viona's. You had your left arm linked with her right one, and unsurprisingly, were sobbing rivers of happy tears as we waited.

As Viona had once stated, she had a special dance that the ENTIRE wedding party - minus us - danced and sang down the Aisle, rather than do anything so boring as simply walk. This song was a lovely, amusing, and rather appropriate: Marry You

"It's a beautiful night, we're looking for something dumb to do, hey baby, I think I wanna marry you. Is it the look in your eyes? Or is it this dancing juice? Who cares baby, I think I wanna marry you!"

And my favorite lyric: Don't say no no no no no, just say yeah yeah yeah yeah yeah yeah, and we'll go go go go go! If you're ready, like I'm ready!" Which is Viona's way of saying that she's NOT just marrying her favorite minion, ^_^

Then - THEN - it was FINALLY time to walk Viona down the Aisle! In all of this planning and major production, Viona had left just ONE thing up to Alric's sole discretion, and that was the song that she was actually going to walk down the Aisle to. So, we were all a bit surprised when the usual suspects did NOT begin. Not the Wedding March nor Bridal Chorus, nor even Canon in D. No...

Alric's nervous but steady voice rang out over the pop music: "She blood, flesh, and bone, no tucks or silicone, she's touch, smell, sight, taste, and sound, but somehow I can't believe that anything should happen, I know where I belong, and nothing's gonna happen, yea-ah... 'Cuz she's so HIIIIIIGH high above me, she's so lovely, she's so hiieeeiiigh, like Cleopatra, Joan of Arc, or Aphrodiiiiiteeeee... do do do do do... She's so HIIIIIIGH high above me..."

You know, I really think Viona had a tear or two escape her immaculate made up eyes. She was certainly holding her breath and determinedly maintaining a warm smile in an attempt to prevent any unauthorized leaking BEFORE the ceremony was over and she had an excuse to look less than perfect.

You and I escorted our gorgeous daughter up the Aisle to her husband-to-be, arriving in perfect time for the end of the song. At the Officiant's prompting, we each gave her a hug and a kiss and handed - literally placed her hand in his - over to Alric. Then you swamped him in a messy, blubbery hug and he whispered his thanks in our ears, promising to never take her for granted.

We had a few seconds to make our way to our seats where Oliver greeted us both with a sweet little kiss, and you took Gabriel back into your arms. At that point, the wedding became surprisingly like any other. The blessings were normal, and the vows were utterly traditional. At the end, the newly married couple was given permission to seal their vows with a kiss, which they did - both blushing rather hotly at doing such a thing in front of SO MANY people, hahahahahahaha!

I love how Viona managed to star in a PARADE - for Merlin's sake - and sing a very vulnerable song, but it was the KISS that made her blush. She's adorable!

After that, it was HOURS of feasting and celebration. Dancing, singing, more dancing, and massive amounts of drinking and eating. I think I gained 2 stone! That said, I bet you could easily guess what my favorite part of the day was. Yep, that's right!

The father daughter dance. Both of them. You and she had practiced a lovely and slow waltz at some point, which kicked off the dancing portion of the evening. And you managed to be every bit as graceful as she was. But then it was my turn, and at first, we started with that same Waltz, but within about 20 seconds, the music changed and we went through a progression of dances from different eras and styles of music. It was so much fun! I hope ALL our kids want to do something like this in the future, and maybe we'll even manage to teach you to dance just a suavely ^_^

But eventually, I was just too exhausted to take another step, and that's when I joined you and Oliver - who had dropped from exhaustion an hour or so previously - in our massive bed so that I could, sigh... HAVE to write all of this down before my brain would shut off enough to go to sleep, which I have now done and am about to zonk!

Here is to the best other father for our children and many more weddings in the future. May we survive them all!

Draco
Chapter 149

Chapter Summary

Harry is happy how the wedding turned out, and Draco is terrified of Pansy.

Chapter Notes

I remembered to add the pictures of the dresses and links to the songs if anyone wants to go back to the previous chapter and check them out real quick. Sorry I forgot to post them originally, I posted the chapter right before work and wasn't thinking about anything other than getting it posted, lol :-)

Monday July 10, 2017

My Heart,

A year's worth of preparations and stress, drama and anticipation, planning and for our sweet Viona learning to really fall in love with her fiance. All of that, and it was over in a flash. I feel as though I barely blinked and I woke up this morning with it all over. I think yesterday was perfect for our Vivi, but I think our whirlwind wedding was exactly perfect for us. Just enough time to have everything at the ceremony our hearts desired but not so long as to make my anxiety stick around for longer than a handful of weeks.

As over the top as this wedding was I am so unbelievably happy that our Princess had the wedding of her dreams. I would have hated a wedding that invited people I barely knew to stare at me for what felt like hours. Sitting on a float and having to wave at an adoring public. The only thing that allowed me to overcome my hatred of public pageantry and ride on that damn float was knowing it was for my daughter's happiness.

I will admit that once our part was finished and I was able to sit to the side and just watch the rest of the parade from our float I was able to enjoy myself. It's funny, normally when you describe an event I usually have to add in something you forgot as my favorite part. But you definitely described my favorite part of the parade (besides my Princess of course) River singing White Wedding to his sister. I love that for as regal as Viona was, she also added so many fun and lighthearted parts to this wedding. It had the potential to be a very stuffy and boring affair but instead it was just a day of fun and romance.

Oh! There was one aspect you hadn't described, I'm not sure if you were aware of it or not actually or if there was just so much to talk about that this didn't make the cut. Many many years ago, when we had Viona's naming ceremony, Hermione and Greg got together and made the decision to save some items from her ceremony. You were almost correct, there was very little to this wedding that wasn't directly decided by Viona, but she also had no say in her bridal bouquet. All those years ago, her Godparents knew they wanted to have a hand in all the special moments in Viona's life. So, on the day of her ceremony, they took a few of each of the flowers from the circle and put them in stasis. They also cut strips off of their own robes to make beautiful ribbons.
As Viona was getting ready, Greg and Hermione presented her with a beautiful bouquet made up of the lilies, narcissus, verbena, pansies, and sunflowers. All of those tied up with pale blue and yellow trailing linen ribbons.

Walking our little girl down the aisle? That was something dreams are made of. That and our Daddy-Daughter dance were one of those events that I've pictured since she was a baby. How will I feel "giving away" my daughter? Having "one last dance" with her before she leaves the nest? It was exactly as I envisioned it and nothing like it at all. The actual actions of walking her down while she wore a stunning gown fit for a princess, kissing her cheek, hugging her soon to be husband, swaying to beautiful music with her in my arms, it was all the same. But the difference in how I felt was completely different. For me, it wasn't an ending, I wasn't giving away my daughter I was gaining Alric as a son. I wasn't having one final dance before she leaves us, I was having one special dance before most of our future dance parties will include an extra beloved dancer.

Perhaps eventually a few extra beloved, tiny dancers. Alright, I won't be that guy who starts asking about babies before the hangovers from the wedding have passed. But EVENTUALLY I would love it if she added some extra little people to the beginning of her little family.

Don't you worry your pretty little head, I was already WAY ahead of you! While you were getting ready for Vivi's hen party I pre-ordered the Mums some beautiful bouquets of flowers. Their usual, classy, elegant, and regal for Narcissa, friendly, sweet, and bright for Molly. I also placed an order for the elves quarters and the kitchens to have multiple vases of different flowers. I thought they deserved something extra pretty to look at after dealing with your (admittedly pretty) face yesterday!

But now you're sleeping and I'm going to take Gabe for a quick checkin with Rowe. He had a few seizures on Saturday, luckily none yesterday, but there were enough the day before that I want to get him looked over.

Hopefully you'll be up when I get back! Love you!

Yours,
Harry

Monday July 10th
The flame of my soul,

As you know, Viona is usually one of the early risers. NOT the earliest, but definitely not a late sleeper like me - which is a bit hilarious as she DEFINITELY used to sleep in as long as me when she was a baby. Somewhere along the way, she started getting up in the morning - rather than approaching noon - which probably served her well when she went to Hogwarts.

On the rare occasion, when we're on holiday usually and up VERY late, she'll sleep in to avoid crankiness. But she's like you in that generally, even when she doesn't get a full night's sleep, she tends to wake up early - at least by my standards. That said, this morning was NOT one of those days.

Despite being up very late last night, I woke up with a start about 10 AM. It seems that you had just sent me an email and were at that moment, off to see Rowe with Gabriel. It took me about five minutes to realize that I wasn't going to be able to go back to sleep, so I got up and went to the breakfast room - where the majority of our family was in the process of congregating. Apparently, the late night prompted MOST of us to sleep in - aside from you, sigh.
So, I got comfortable at the table, taking advantage of the lovely breakfast buffet the elves had cooked up. Morgana was half asleep in my arms, glaring at me as if seriously unappreciative of the fact that we were awake so soon. Can blame her as that's almost exactly how I felt. But it was worth it!

Right about 10:15, the room fell silent and I looked up to see why. JUST in time to see Viona and Alric enter and look around the room and BLUSH SO HARD!!! Buwahahahahahahahahahaha!

"Long night?" River heckled with a smirk.

"Must have been exhausting, to make you sleep in so late!" Eris and Hazel purred, clearly also heckling their big sister.

Viona must have anticipated this, as she had a pocket full of bouncy balls to toss at them. "Oi, shut it!"

"Poor Alric looks positively knackered," I added in an amused murmur. Viona tossed a ball at me too, which I naturally caught.

"If you must know, Alric did rather amazingly!" Viona defended, blushing hotly again. "And if luck is on our side, we'll have our first baby in exactly nine months, so stop dad from wondering obsessively, yeah?"

"I'll do my best," I promised as I kissed her hand. Then I grabbed Alric and pulled him closer so that I could kiss him on the cheek. "Congratulations on surviving the first night, and hopefully, you'll continue to survive until you're old and grey."

"Thanks sir, erm… daaad?"

I laughed, nodded my head, and patted his back. "Dad or Draco will do just fine."

Alric’s parents were watching the scene with every bit as much amusement as I was. They beckoned Viona over so that they could give her hugs and kisses. Alric too. Then my mother called Viona over to her and took her hand.

"My precious granddaughter, the only one so far who has followed tradition, and thereby earned a special place in my heart - not that I'm playing favorites! I just wanted to say that with you resisting the temptation to turn into a slag like the rest of them, I have a deep and unshakable believe that your marriage will last your lifetime. THAT said, perhaps you now feel like you could use a few pointers. Things you may have purposely ignored in the past in order to remain pure. So, aside from the gifts I already gave you, here's perhaps the most important gift you can receive," my mother said as she handed Viona a rather large book. It was a plain book with NOTHING on the outside to hint at its contents, but I just so happened to know what the book is - having found it in our Manor library in the past and read it quite thoroughly.

It's a book on various sexual techniques and kinks, containing a multitude of useful advice for a beginner. NOT that I assume that Viona will want to dive right into the world of kink, but if she does, it's an excellent resource. She had no idea what the book was, and so, opened it to read a bit - only to snap it shut with bulging eyes and a fiery blush.

"Thanks, grandmum! I'm sure this will come in handy," she said with a look like she wished she could Apparate into the floor and never come out again. My parents laughed at her adorableness even as I chuckled softly under my breath.

Viona and Alric finally managed to take a seat and obtain some food, which they devoured rather ravenously. As they did, both Eris and Hazel leaned over to have a whispered conversation, probably asking for details, which Viona responded to by hushing them and promising to tell them later.

A few minutes later, you entered the room with Gabriel and Oliver - who had Dylan. You each gave me a kiss before sitting on either side of me. But before you could say a word about Gabriel or Rowe, Pearl stood up and slammed her hand down on the table.

"FINALLY!!! We've been waiting AGES now!" Pearl roared.

Glowing from happiness, Hazel stood up and took Pearl's hand in hers. "We wanted to wait for Viona's day to pass so that we didn't steal any of her thunder, but..."

"We're getting married!" Pearl announced, clearly not able to wait a single second longer.

Hazel rushed on in excitement. "Obviously we CAN'T get married before Pearl turns 17 - although we COULD if he have the ceremony in Scotland, say Hogsmeade like Viona did. Or I suppose that we could here or in Russia with her parents permission. But maybe we can't wait until January and do it a week or so after her birthday - OR!"

"I'd love to elope to Gretna Green!" Pearl cut her off. "But I'm certain my mum would give us permission, my DAD - on the other hand - might need some persuading. He still wants me to marry a MAN, ugh!"

"Sweet buggering Merlin!" Eris exclaimed, catching their excitement like it was contagious. "That means that in order to keep Pearl's dress a surprise from you, I'LL have to make it! And I can sneak peeks at what you're designing for yourself and make sure they match in subtle ways without being obnoxious!"

"Hold on, slow down!" I ended up roaring, making them fall silent for a moment. "BEFORE you go planning out the entire ceremony, talk to Pansy! I do NOT want to be strangled with my own intestines for giving my blessings before SHE'S even heard about it! Clearly she's still sleeping off the partying last night, I suggest putting your enthusiasm back in its box until she's awake and had some tea!" Then I stood up. "And better yet, I'm going to my office for the rest of the day! Call me when Pansy's had a chance to react."

And with that, I Apparated to my office in the Ministry, and then hastily shut and locked the door since I was still in my dressing gown and nothing else. Aside from Morgana's wrap carrier - containing her. Then I sat down to compose this email. Now I'm thinking about having Muffy bring me clothes so that I can offer to help Robards do whatever he needs doing. Preferably something that will take the next few hours.

Giving him something he can feel, ooo, to let him know this love is real,

Draco

P.S. I hope you all understand that I'm not AGAINST Hazel getting married, simply that I'm terrified that Pansy will NOT take the news that her 16 year old daughter wants to elope quite as well as Pearl assumes.
Chapter 150

Chapter Summary

Harry would like Draco to come home right away, and Draco would like to be alone.

Monday July 10, 2017

My Love,

You should come home. Like soon. Preferably before I go all Rage Halo Harry on someone I've considered family for a very long time.

First of all, you running off to hide at the Ministry was hilarious because honestly Pansy was thrilled that before you considered giving your blessing you told them they had to tell her as well. Which she thought was hilarious seeing as there's no way you wouldn't give your blessing because you're "such a softie when it comes to his children. Hazel could tell Draco she was going to marry a toothless, penniless, senior citizen and he'd start planning the wedding tomorrow!" Hehe, it's like she knows you!

As you could tell by her outburst at the table while you were still there, Pearl was anxious to get their wonderful news out. So she went and woke up her parents. I'm not quite sure why she thought this was a good idea, if you want to give people news and you're not sure how they're going to take it, maybe don't wake them up after a night of drunken revelry.

I hope their kids get Hazel's brains.

Okay, that was mean and I'm sorry. Pearl is plenty brill. She's the only one who recognized Hazel for who she was and she was only four at the time. We were grown men and didn't know. But still, even Viona looked a little wide-eyed at Pearl and she barged in on YOU yesterday!

When Pearl left to wake her parents, Hazel turned to me a bit teary-eyed "Does Dad not actually want to give his blessing? Are you withholding yours?" Apparently she doesn't know you quite as well as Pansy does. Or she's just a bit more worried about what you think.

"Of course not sweetheart, Dad is just scared of your Aunt Pansy. He's probably already mentally planning your wedding. And you know that you had my blessing before you even asked for it. You're my heart, I want everything for you that you desire. And I've loved Pearl her whole life as well." Haz seemed to relax a bit more with every word I said.

At that, the rest of the table seemed to relax as well. However, no one left because I think everyone wanted to see how the drama would play out when Pansy and Ivan made their way to the table.

I used that down time to get Ollie caught up on what Rowe had to say about Gabe. I will talk to you in person as well obviously, but I may as well catch you up this way while I'm at it. Rowe's not surprised that he was seizing on Saturday. Until we figure out the right dosage and mixture of potions he may continue to seize just as much as he did before. And there's still so much unknown about Epilepsy that we may not ever get to the point of zero seizures. Or we could find the right mixture and he could be one of the lucky ones who outgrow their seizures by puberty.
Long story short, as usual his vitals are fine, his cognitive function seems to be holding steady, but she's never going to tell me I'm wrong for bringing him in to double check. If nothing significant happens in the next two weeks she wants us to come back in for a "med-check" and potentially discuss increasing the dosage or adding another potion. She wants us to keep track of any seizures we notice; time and duration.

Right as I was finishing up, Pansy and Ivan made their way to the breakfast room with the rest of us.

"Alright Pearl, I'm up, I've a cuppa, now what was so important we had to wake up at the ungodly hour of ... oh, it is already eleven." Pansy giving Pearl the judgmental eyebrows.

Hazel took Pearl's hand, looking at her fiancé with adoring eyes. That seemed to be exactly what Pearl needed to get the courage to announce, "We're getting married!"

The rest of us who had already heard the announcement looked at Pansy and Ivan, waiting for their reaction. Pansy's eyes got big, she locked eyes with Ivan, and then started looking around the room frantically, "Where's Draco? You're announcing this without Hazel's father here?"

I laughed so hard I think I shocked Dylan out of his little mid-morning snooze he was taking. When I got myself under control, wiping the tears from my eyes, I told her that you had already heard the news and when you realized Pansy would find out that you knew first you immediately remembered something important you had to do somewhere else ... in your dressing gown.

If it makes you feel any less afraid, she wasn't upset with you. She DID laugh her arse off, so you're probably not afraid but now you're annoyed.

Stick with the annoyance, use your immense talents to turn that annoyance into rage.

So, I won't bore you with the sentence by sentence narration. Honestly, it was a bit odd. It was more like a university debate than a discussion between an engaged couple and one of their sets of parents. Pearl wasn't wrong in her assumptions; Pansy was pretty supportive but wanted them to at least wait until Pearl officially turned seventeen, if not longer. Ivan, without having any real reasoning or logic to back things up, seemed to say he loves Hazel of course but he's sure Pearl will eventually want to marry a man.

Pearl and Hazel must have come up with every argument possible against their marriage prior to today because they had a response to every single thing Ivan could say against the union. No kids? That's what potions are for. People not accepting the marriage? Look at whose house you're in and say that again. We're too young? You married Pansy when she was nineteen, not all that much older, and you'd known her a lot less time.

Eventually he agreed that he would give them his blessing but he was adamant that they wait until AT LEAST her seventeenth birthday, preferably longer. What followed was a literal negotiation where he set a list of things he's willing to offer based on when they plan the wedding for. If they elope and marry before seventeen he will give them nothing but also won't disown or stop loving them. If they get married after the birthday but within the following month, he will pay for their honeymoon. If they wait six months past that, he will pay for their honeymoon and a small home, if they wait until after Pearl's eighteenth birthday he will pay for the honeymoon and a full estate.

The conversation (almost) ended with an actual handshake between Pearl and her father.

Almost.
I say almost because when that was done he gathered them both into his arms, telling them he loved them both, and that he just wanted what was best for them.

And then ...

"You are both so young. I don't want you to regret choosing your spouse when you still have so much time left to grow up. Look at your dads, they married so young and are already bored before they are even forty. They have to bring in a new boyfriend."

Viona acted the quickest at that comment. "Dad! You're crackling, go to your rooms and email Dad."

I listened immediately. I'm not sure what everyone else did. But I've locked myself in our room. Please come home and remind me why I shouldn't hex our daughter's fiancé's father.

Love Always,
Harry

Monday July 10th
My darling Harry,

After sending my email to you, I was debating getting dressed and doing something, but then Morgana started trying to eat her fist. So, I decided that I should feed her. Again, since I had actually fed her while I was eating my breakfast. She simply was still half asleep at that point, and didn't really drink much from her bottle.

Anyway, after she was finished eating, I naturally needed to burp her, and so, I decided to dance with her around my office. This had both of us in an excellent mood in no time, and then I heard the sound that indicates a new email. Figuring that it was most likely you, I sat back down at my desk and picked up my Magi-mobile to check it, and then - after reading the first paragraph and speed reading to the end to find out the problem - I slipped it back in my pocket and Apparated right back to the breakfast room.

As it turns out, by the time that I'd gotten there, Viona had things well in hand. She treated Ivan like a prospective and slightly stupid new business client, and in her no nonsense tone of voice, proceeded to outline all of the reasons why discriminating against someone - even if only by using unintentional but hurtful phrasing - made terrible sense from a business point of view.

Seriously, she Schooled him on how to run a better business by NOT discriminating. And just so you know, our other brilliant children were more than ready to back her up with facts, projections, and anecdotes to prove their point. IN RUSSIAN NO LESS!

Eventually Ivan St. Peter shrugged and basically grumbled that he meant no offense, he's simply concerned about his daughter. How he's certain she'll eventually want a traditional marriage, and that no matter HOW accepting the Wizarding World is (even in Russia), the sad fact is that in his homeland, his daughter will not be able to call her wife exactly that, and their marriage won't be recognized as legal. Not to mention that they might even be the target of hate by ignorant muggles (and yes, he used that exact term despite being a muggle himself).

It was at that point that my dear sweet Grandmama's Ivan - Kisa's father, ex-mob-boss of all Russia - cleared his throat and softly talked about how he felt when he found out that his only child, his beautiful daughter, NOT ONLY soulmate bonded to a strange magical creature that looks like a regular human, BUT ALSO entered into a highly unusual quartet relationship with his other lovers.

You might recall that he tried to torture Blaise to death, until Kisa burst in on them and put a stop to it. Well that forced Ivan Temno to choose between accepting his daughter for who she is, or rejecting her lifestyle and risk alienating her and having no one to take over the Family Business when he needed to retire. Well, both Ivans are from the same sort of old fashioned Russian muggle upbringing - although the one my Grandmama is unofficially married to is a good 30 years older (in his late 70s) - so they could understand each other.

So, perhaps the one Ivan managed to talk some sense into the other. I don't know for certain because they took their conversation to someplace private. I'm........ reasonably sure that no torture or threats of torture took place. But what I'm basically saying is that I think Ivan St. Peter - the one married to Pansy - will probably be sending us a nice big bottle of expensive Vodka - or wine, or perhaps both - to apologize for his insult to us in our home.

Also, don't be surprised if those two Russian men and my father turn up pissed out of their minds in a couple of hours, as it seems that Ivan (his more or less father-in-law) insisted that my father 'bond' with them shortly after they took their conversation to a private place.

As for me, the moment I was able to sigh in relief that the crisis was managed, I, erm..... had.... embarrassing stomach problems crop up. So, after giving Oliver a quick hug and kiss to reassure him that we don't care about other people's uneducated opinions, I rushed off to... a loo. NOT our loo, so if you go looking for me and can't find me, it's because I chose a loo that's so out of the way in this enormous Manor that I'm not entirely certain that the ELVES know about it.

Please don't come looking for me! I'll return to our room when my stomach stops trying to murder me from the inside out! Although Morgana might actually want Muffy to bring her to you in a few minutes so that her nose can stop screaming and trying to hide.

Love you so much, but seriously, stay away!

Draco
P.S. I will hex you if I see so much as a hair on your head!
Tuesday July 11, 2017

My Always,

I suppose I will keep from hexing Ivan (SP) but I'm not going to immediately accept that he didn't mean anything by it. I would and will do anything for my daughter, I understand that he was raised in a different world and that world is still harsh and unaccepting of differences, but I can't imagine a world where I would think telling my daughter to do what was expected instead of what she loves would be best for her. So, I will be nice, I will be polite, I won't hold a grudge or treat him poorly, but it's probably going to be a while before I won't automatically think of how hurtful he was to myself and people I care so deeply about.

It helps that with the looks Pansy was throwing him at dinner last night, I think he's gotten or will be getting a private punishment from his wife. And not the fun kind!

I'm glad you got whatever it was out of your system well before last night. With the neediness of the babies, last minute wedding prep, and the wedding itself, I was feeling very un-shagged and sexually frustrated. At three and (almost) four months old, the triplets are sleeping for longer stretches of time and even Morgana seems to have learned to tolerate sleeping out of your arms. Probably because she knows you will come running the moment she makes a peep!

So last night, after our run of long days, and our extra emotional day Sunday, and my rage inducing day Monday, I needed to be held and loved, and I needed to work out some of this frustration. Emotionally, the three of us snuggled up in bed, feeding the babies and rocking them to sleep while we talked softly was just what I needed. I got to tell you a bit more in person about Gabe's appointment, and we got to talk about our excitement over Dylan being the first of the babies to roll over! Little man did a full barrel roll, back to tummy to back. I think Morgana heard us praising Dylan though, I wouldn't be surprised if she does it soon just to keep up with her "big brother!"

It was lovely, but once we got them to bed, we were able to indulge in some adult time! Off to the onsen, glasses of wine in hand. Our Onsen is massive. So much room for multiple people. We had your entire Auror training class in there at once WITH a good portion of our children as well. Despite the amount of space, the three of us were cuddled up, legs entwined, soft touches constantly while we caught up a little deeper than we felt comfortable with while putting the littles to sleep.

Before I get around to describing the sexy shenanigans, I'd like to talk with you about something and I wanted to ask you where you had space to roll it around in your head and didn't feel like you had to answer right away in front of both Oliver and myself. You have yet to use the L word towards Ollie, but I think we both know that over these last few weeks, how seamlessly he's melded into our life as a couple, how much love and devotion he's been giving to our children, that even YOU using it isn't all that far off. And I've not used it either, but I will be completely honest with you, that's only because I want to wait until you're ready.

I love him Draco. It's not the same as my love for you, it's not taking away my love for you, but it's there and it's real. I can wait until you're ready to say it as well, I don't want our new relationship to be off balance or to be a contest, but I've come to terms with my own feelings.

Oliver hasn't used the word either. And I'm fine with that. I follow my gut, I go with my instincts, and my gut is telling me I love him. But I've always known that you are slow to admit your feelings. And I think Ollie is just not going to be able to admit his feelings until we do. He's still healing from his marriage and he's feeling off balance about the fact that we were an established relationship. He still doesn't seem to quite know where he stands with us, although he's aware that it's romantic and caring and not just about a delicious shag.

I've seen the way he looks at you. The L word is there for him, he's just scared. Not that I blame him, you are so worthy of love and adoration.

So, in saying all of that, I have a bit of a proposition for you. I realized that we have almost two decades under our belt that Oliver wasn't a part of. That's just the reality. He's coming into an established relationship. We have inside jokes, we've learned each other's triggers, we know each other heart, mind, body, and soul. There's nothing we can do to make the gap in history something else.

It wasn't until I was re-reading an earlier email that I came up with this idea. The email you sent me where you admitted that you read portions of my email to Ollie to assure him that I wouldn't be jealous of your dinner date. Our emails! Our massive compilation of emails, through which we fell in love, made tough decisions, and documented our lives together. We can't go back in time and change our lives to include Ollie from the beginning. And I wouldn't want to. Our time was our time and I wouldn't change a moment of it. But if we let him read through this story of our lives together, getting insight into how we fell in love, what we find important, those small secret moments that were just for us, maybe he would feel as though we were more solidly a triad as opposed to a couple with a boyfriend.

I may read a paragraph here or there, like you did, but I would never allow him to read the entire story unless you were on board. So what do you think? Do you feel strongly enough about where this relationship is going that we can invite Oliver into the heart of us? Not yet but someday? Never? Please know I won't even bring this up without your emphatic agreement, but I think it would go a long way into making our Ollie feel safe and Hufflepuffed with us.

Shite! I was about to sign off and realize I never got around to describing our sexy times!

As I was saying, we were in the onsen, enjoying a deliciously crisp Chardonnay, sweet gentle touches all over our three bodies. Eventually light touching turned to soft kisses. Despite the fact that we officially shagged for the first time almost three weeks ago, we haven't all three had a full shagging session since then. We've been busy, the babies are needy, but mostly it was about wanting to take things slowly. Not too slowly, let's not be ridiculous! We've used our hands and mouths and frotted all over the place. But we've only really shagged the once.

Well, not only once anymore!

You ended up pulling Ollie into your lap, peppering his neck and jawline with kisses while I attacked his mouth. While this was happening, you were reaching around and fingering me open. Eventually you pushed me off of him which I got annoyed about for all of half a second. Your gorgeous, posh, sex voice came out, "Oliver, I've been patient, and will continue to be so, but if you're ready, I'd just adore watching Harry ride you."

He and I both moaned at that, I found myself nodding without realizing it. And I was pleasantly surprised to see Ollie nodding as well. You gave one of your sex-god smirks, "I've gotten him all prepped for you, are you ready for him hmm?"

Again with the moaning and nodding, I got closer into his lap, placing him right at my entrance, and starting the sweet slide to fullness. Once I was fully seated, I gave myself a moment to appreciate that first feeling of fullness before beginning a slow ride to ecstasy. I didn't want to speed up because I was loving riding him while looking at both of your handsome faces. Kissing you, kissing him, at one point the three of us in a messy attempt at kissing all at once. I wanted to just stay in that moment forever, but eventually I had to start chasing my own release.

Speeding up, bouncing on his cock while you kept up a stream of "that's it baby, ride him harder" and "look at how gorgeous our Harry is when he's all flushed, yeah?" not to mention "Yes! Fuck yourself on his shaft, make him scream Love!" I couldn't stop myself from releasing all over my chest, his chest, and your hand that had been stroking me. The clenching of my arse triggered Oliver into coming.

But you, my love, hadn't gotten to come at all. I climbed off of Oliver, he got off of your lap, and we bossed you into sitting on the edge of the onsen so we could kneel on the bench to fight over your cock. You seemed to be close just from watching us earlier, and the sights and feelings of the two of us sucking, licking, kissing, and moaning over your straining shaft pushed you over the edge. I luckily happened to be the one whose mouth was on you when you came, so I got to swallow most of it down. But once you were done pumping my mouth full, I took the last little tastes and shared them in a filthy kiss with Oliver while you came down from your high.

After that, we headed off to sleep. Which means I am up this morning feeling loved, rested, and refreshed. Ready to take on the day!

Your Forever,
Harry

Tuesday July 11th
My healthy as a horse husband,

It's SO NOT FAIR!!!

I suspected yesterday but wasn't sure. I thought, you know, what with the stress of the wedding and then the overindulgence at the reception, that I had just overdone it and had a bit of stomach trouble. I naturally took stomach settling potions, but they didn't quite work.

Then - as you said - I seemed to feel better for a bit last night. Long enough to have a wonderful shag with you and Oliver, and then fall asleep. But...

I was up on and off all night last night with MORE stomach troubles. I'm dead certain you managed to wake up and leave the room during what must be the ONE time I managed to catch more than 20 or 30 minutes of sleep. In fact, I might have believed that I was FINALLY better when I woke up from that nearly two hour stretch of sleep, except that my symptoms got worse.

Since Oliver had also gotten up and left - meaning that the boys were with one or both of you - I knew that Rowe was probably in her office. So, when my symptoms seemed to get worse - waking me up again around 8:30 IN THE MORNING, not only was I fairly certain, but I rushed to have her confirm my suspicions. I naturally brought Morgana with, despite the fact that she was still rather soundly asleep.

