They had discussed what to do. Ygritte wanted to go to the Wildlings and conspire with them to annihilate the Crows. Jon and Melisandre knew that Ygritte was letting her Wildling heritage cloud her judgment. She had pouted cutely when she was outvoted. They had found ways to remove her pout. Melisandre smiled at the thought. Ygritte kept presenting the same argument, and then she would pout and act pissed off - until she and Jon would take her over their knees and blister her ass, then flip her over and slap her tits and face all nice and red, as she moaned and whimpered in raw need. Then, they fucked her blind. Afterwards, she would dreamily tell them she fully supported their viewpoint, until the next night and they had to correct her yet again.

Melisandre smiled as she looked through their magical glamour. They were only two hundred yards in front of Castle Black. The glamour totally hid them. Ygritte and Jon had spent the night two nights ago scouting the land before the castle looking for a place to lay low and cast their magical spell of concealment. They had found a small depression that was roughly circular. It was roughly three deep and eight feet across. They would be able to view the castle easily from this location.

They wanted to see the crows’ level of alertness, and then sneak into the castle after dark.

The previous night, just after midnight, they had snuck in from the woods a mile away to this location. Jon had walked slowly as Melisandre walked before him, and Ygritte behind. Both were chanting and moving their hands in complicated patterns, invoking their magical glamour. Having it hide them and Jon was difficult. They moved slowly. Anyone who looked at them would not see them at all. All light was bent around their spell, rendering them invisible. All sounds from within their bubble of magic were held in. They did not exist to the outside world.

Jon commented on how pretty the world appeared through their spell. Yellow spangles flashed on the edges of their enchantment, and the world outside seemed more sharp to Jon’s eyes. The light-bending properties of the spell enhanced their vision. Jon also commented on how he felt like ants were crawling on his skin as the magic morphed and flowed about them.

Once they had gone to ground in the scouted depression, Melisandre and her beloved wife settled the spell down into a sphere over their nest for the next twenty-four hours. They had brought furs to soften the ground. They also brought food and water for their husband.

They settled down looking at the castle, observing the coming and goings. They got a feel for the pulse of life there. All seemed normal to Melisandre, but not to Ygritte and Jon.

There was little movement on the grounds of Castle Black. They both noticed an edginess to the movements of the crows, and that the wildlings were only moving in large groups. Ygritte and Jon scanned the Wall, and were disturbed that no one seemed to be patrolling the top of the Wall. They both felt that an uneasy standoff was in effect between crows and wildlings.

Betrayal had poisoned the waters of Castle Black, and no traffic approached. Jon was sure that the crows were hunkered down, attempting to keep everyone away. If word got out of their betrayal, they must have known that Eddard Stark would annihilate them.

Jon spent the night watching the castle and its environs. He looked off to the right, and observed Mole Town. It seemed calm. He had both of his wives flanking him as they watched silently with their husband. This was his prevue.

Jon was tired, and went to lie down as dawn approached. Ygritte looked at Melisandre, and she nodded towards Jon. She was too wound up to lie down. She watched her wife snuggle into the side of their husband. Soon they were both asleep. Neither she nor Ygritte needed to sleep, but it was a nice luxury now that she had warm bodies to snuggle into. She smiled at her husband, enfolding their little piece of ‘touched by the sun’ in his arms as she gently snored.

Melisandre took the time alone to continue observing the ‘castle’. She knew enough of Westeros to know that Castle Black was not a true castle, as it had no walls to defend it to the west, east, or south. Only the Wall stood to the north.

It had only several stone towers and timber keeps. Jon had drawn out maps of their target in less than twenty-four hours. Beneath the keeps and towers, there was a series of subterranean passages which Jon called wormwalks, that connected all of the buildings. They were rarely used during the summer, but in the winter it was the only way to travel to different parts of the castle.

Castle Black had only a small sept, and no godswood. The men who followed the old gods had to travel beyond the Wall, into the haunted forest, to a small grove of carven weirwoods left by the children of the forest in order to swear their vows.

Melisandre felt her old apostasy rise up. The thought of these heathens worshipping gods other than R’hillor still made her see red. Her ruby flared, but she took several deep breaths. She had come to understand that R’hillor wore many faces.

She continued her study of Castle Black, now looking at the towers that Jon had drawn for them previously.

She looked at the The Lord Commander's Tower, also called ‘Commander's Keep’, the location where the Lord Commander's quarters were located - though Jon had chosen to sleep in quarters in the warrens below the ground.

Next she looked over at the King's Tower. It was rounded, and one hundred feet tall with merlons atop it, overlooking the gate and the foot of the wooden stair leading up the Wall. The entry door was made of oak studded with iron. It was reserved for honored guests, and named for kings, but no king had visited the tower in over a century.

This alone told Melisandre all she needed to know of the neglect that Westeros had shown the men defending them from the evil of the Ice King. This neglect had led directly to Jon’s near assassination. Melisandre knew she should be angry at that, but she could not be. It had brought her to Ygritte, and then in turn to Jon, Azor reborn. She had more than most women could ever dream of.

She looked at the Hardin's Tower, with its broken battlement, from which stones had spilled into the yard below. It was not in service due to the severe lean making it dangerous. Again she saw the decay of the support for the Night’s Watch. She started to feel anger, until she remembered her own former people in Asshai. They too were turning their heads away from a danger they did not see.

Next her gaze turned to the Lance, which was the tallest tower at the castle, though it was only a third of the height of the Wall itself. It was slim and crumbling. Then there was the Tower of Guards, which was the strongest of the towers. It lay next to the Kingsroad and the Wall, and protected the wooden stair. It was from this tower that Ygritte was almost killed. Her heart clenched in her chest at the mere memory.

Melisandre turned her attention to the crows’ quarters. She spied the common hall, which was a great timbered keep where the brothers took their meals. Jon told them about how birds nested in the rafters.

Jon had informed them of the rookery, which was the nesting place of Castle Black's ravens. Consequently, the Maester's quarters were located in a stout wooden keep beneath it. The armory was off to the left, where the equipment for weapons practice was kept. Jon said Donal Noye forged their weapons and armor there. A gifted man, he produced miracles of metal with only one arm.

She looked at the old Flint Barracks where most of the brothers bunked. The Shieldhall near the barracks was a feast hall of dark stone. In years past, when the Night's Watch was much larger in number, its walls had been hung with rows of brightly colored wooden shields. When a knight took the black, his shield would adorn its wall after he took up the plain black shield of the brotherhood.

She could not see, so instead imagined the vaults, located underground. They contained food stores, and the library. The library held records and old books that even the Citadel did not have. Jon told them that Maesters told him that amongst other topics, the library had drawings of the faces in the weirwoods, the language of the children of the forest, and even scrolls from Valyria.

Before looking at the Wall, Melisandre looked closer at the lichyard beside the eastern road from Castle Black. In it were the graves of some members of the Night's Watch. Beside the lichyard were ancient tombs.

Melisandre looked at the old wall of ice. She could feel ancient magic buried deep inside of it. A magic potent and powerful, but fraying. It was still strong and vital, with the decay only starting. She saw the gate that guarded the tunnel through the Wall, which was long, twisting and narrow. Three iron gates blocked the inner passage. Each of these gates were locked, and had a murder hole above it. The outer door to the tunnel was solid oak, about nine inches thick.

The great switchback stair climbed its way up from Castle Black to the top of the Wall. It was made of wooden stairs, anchored by huge beams frozen right into the Wall itself. A winch elevator was used to take supplies and men up to the top of the Wall. It could hold ten men, or an equal amount of supplies.
Melisandre knew from Jon’s descriptions that the facilities on top of the Wall would include a small warming shed for the men on watch, located right next to the crane.

By the late afternoon, Jon and Ygritte had woken up. Melisandre had been keenly watching for anything amiss. There had been nothing unusual. She went to lie down on the furs, and looked up into the sky. She glanced over at Jon and her wife. He was fondling her ass as they watched castle black, and turning to look at Mole Town in the distance.

There was no danger.

Ygritte giggled cutely. Melisandre smiled, curling under the furs and looking up through the glamour. She smiled, seeing the bright blue azure sky with no clouds in sight. Soon two golden eagles circled into her view, riding the thermals.

Melisandre concentrated and focused on the larger female eagle with her long sight, its primary feathers shifting subtly, adjusting the wing’s camber to give the eagle perfect wing foil shape. The eagle slowly wheeled around the sky, looking for prey. The eagles slowly circled away with no concern about the tableau playing out below them. Melisandre looked at the sun, seeing the halos of sunlight as she looked at the orb that gave all life and filled R’Hllor with power to fight the night, and soon, the Ice King.

For several hours, Melisandre drifted in her thoughts while she watched several more eagles, and a Red Tailed hawk, their mournful cries piercing the sky.

She glanced at Jon and Ygritte while she relaxed. They had been sharing quick kisses, and lots of groping. Melisandre had to admire Ygritte for drawing Jon out of his reserved shell. He was now insatiable in his hunger for their bodies. They would fuck him again and again as he sucked off the wife who was not riding his cock. He still gave them plenty of alone time to bond wife to wife.

She got back up and told them to take to the furs, and that they had time to ‘take the edge off’. All was quiet at the Castle Black. She felt no other magic near them, other than themselves. She could feel the far off canker of the Ice King but nothing else in the far north. They were unseen and unheard. They were safe. Jon and Ygritte smiled goofily at her. She shook her head.

Soon she smelled delicious pussy and the grunts of rutting. She looked back and smiled. Jon had Ygritte’s top above her breasts and their trousers around their ankles. They were in sixty-nine lost only to each other. Jon had his fingers clawed into Ygritte’s tight ass cheeks grinding her pussy down on his face. Ygritte was bobbing on Jon’s long thick cock sucking hard. She glanced up and saw her wife watching her. Ever the show-off she rose up slightly and took his cock down her throat as Jon roared into Ygritte’s cunt in pleasure.

Melisandre had to turn around. For the next hour Ygritte cummed four times and Jon twice. Melisandre had focused on the castle, looking for anything amiss and grinding her teeth. She had said her mantras and was in control. Jon slid in beside her as the sun set.

“Go to your wife. She needs you, honey.” He kissed her, and she tasted Ygritte’s pussy in his mouth. Her need exploded and her clothes came off in a flash, and she fell on Ygritte as they rolled into sixty-nine and devoured each other.

Three hours later all three were on the edge of the pit looking at their target. Ygritte and Melisandre glowed with the fire of passion and love. Jon was between them squeezing their shoulders and kissing them sweetly. They would wait till near midnight.
When the time arrived, they slowly stood up, with Jon still in the middle. The Shadow Binder witches reshaped their spell, and they walked unseen right into the compound of Castle Black. Melisandre was calm, but Ygritte was vibrating with excitement. Her animosity for the crows was banked by Jon’s strict orders to not harm anyone unless they were attacked. His tone brokered no argument. Melisandre and Ygritte just nodded, loving this new tone from him. Jon had reached his full maturity now.

As they moved carefully they looked around, ready to launch into attack. Ygritte had her bow notched and ready to fire. Jon had his scabbard on his hip, his right hand gripped tight around the pummel of Longclaw, ready to draw at a breath’s notice.

They soundlessly entered the common hall. They counted elven crows eating a late meal of turnip stew and hard tack bread. The conspirators were not there. The crows eating their meal in silence did not sense their presence in the room. They moved out. Jon led them around the compound and into the tunnels beneath the buildings.

Jon led them down passage after passage. Ygritte and Melisandre would bend their senses through the doors, and found most of the rooms empty or contained men conversing calmly. These men were not the ones they sought.

They came to a thick oak door banded with thick iron. The witches bent their senses through the wood, and listened. The aura that exuded from the room was that of scurrying rats hiding from the bright light of justice.

They heard muttered speech and anger. What to do? When will Eddard Stark come to punish us? Is our secret still safe? They felt anger, resentment, and from one person, great sorrow. They informed Jon that eleven men were in the room.

Jon nodded and looked to his wives. The women separated, and placed their hands on the door and started to murmur a dark chant. Their hands began to glow a bright yellow, and the wood around their hands took that same hue. Slowly the whole door took on the same glow, and began to ripple. Jon stepped back from the door, then his foot kicked out hard into the wood. The lock shattered within the door, and the bar in the doorframe exploded as the hinges groaned, the screws breaking in the wood. The door groaned, and fell back to slam on the floor.

Jon stepped in with his wives following behind. Ygritte had her bow up, and bowstring pulled back to her ear. Melisandre had her hands up, ready to cast spells. Jon still had his sword sheathed in its magical scabbard.

“I have returned. Surrender and live!” Jon shouted.

Melisandre enjoyed seeing the rats’ eyes enlarge with pure fright. One man fell to his knees sobbing. “Oh Jon, Jon, thank the gods Jon,” he said as he bent over and pressed his face in the floor.

Melisandre saw a man in the back pulling out a throwing dagger. Ygritte’s bow sung, and an arrow went into his mouth, piercing his brain with the point jamming partially through the back of his skull. The man was flipped back off of his feet and slammed to the floor. His body flipped and jerked in its death throes.

Two crows stood up and started to draw their swords. Jon pulled Longclaw from its scabbard, the blade alighting with flames licking off of it in a blaze of red, orange and white. Hot heat flowed into the room. Jon stepped forward, pulling his sword back and slashing down, hitting the nearest crow just below his armpit as the blade sliced nearly through his body. Muscle and bone easily parted and cleaved in two. He ripped the blade out of the dead body, blood splattered in all directions along with bits of bone and organs.

Jon pivoted to the left to meet the next attack. He easily blocked the sword chop coming down at him. He pushed back, unbalancing the man and steeped forward, his blade piercing the man’s chest above his heart and sliding clean into him. The flames of the blade licked up the body it was buried in, front and back. The magical flames were already searing flesh, filling the room with its stench. The sound of bodily fluids burbling emanated from the pierced corpse. Jon ripped the blade out again.

A crow had tried to slip to the side, and flee out the door. Melisandre turned and thrust her right hand out. An anvil of black magical ichor flowed out of her hand in a flash, and slammed the body into the wall of the room. The crow had nearly every bone in his chest and ribs shattered. When the anvil flowed back into the tall shadow binder, his body immediately collapsed.

The rest of the men put their hands down, shaking with raw fear.

Jon looked around from within the cowl of his hood. These men were his now. He walked over to Bowen Marsh, and jerked him up with his free hand. His flaming sword filled him with superhuman strength.

“Bowen Marsh … look at me, man!”

Bowen would not look at him.

“Bowen Marsh! Give me your allegiance!”

The man continued to sob.

Jon sheathed his sword in a fluid motion, the room seeming dark without its bright light.

He slapped Bowen hard. The shock made him stop sobbing, his eyes large.

“I forgive you, Bowen Marsh. You alone have a full pardon … if you give me your allegiance!”

Bowen looked at him with watery eyes, nodding his head.

“Say it, man!”

“I give my unswerving allegiance … forgive me!”

The man fell into Jon, sobbing brokenly again. Jon patted him on the back.

He looked at the other six conspirators. “I will not kill you for your treason. Do I have your allegiance, too?” Jon asked in a hard voice.

Melisandre watched the men closely, along with her wife. Their magical senses were tuned for the telltale scent of deceptions and lies.

They all shouted their allegiance to Jon. They tripped over themselves, pledging their swords and very life to the man they had tried to kill.

Jon looked at his wives. They silently confirmed that there was no open rebellion in these men. At this time, at least.

“I grant you conditional pardons. But I do not trust you. You will earn your pardons. Kavvin Estren and Jorran Hunt, you will be sent under guard to Stonedoor.” Jon named the next conspirators, and sent them to Queensgate. The last two men were named and sent to Oakenshield. “You will be watched by the wildlings that man these forts. They will be instructed to execute you at the first hint of rebellion or treason. Do you understand?”

The men looked abashed with heads hung low. They mumbled that they understood.

Then Satin appeared in the doorway.

“Jon!” He yelled, and threw himself into Jon’s arms, sobbing.

Jon patted the young man on the back. He assured Satin that he was back and indeed alive. The young man clung to him and looked up into the cowl. He gasped and looked at Jon with wonder.

“Satin … please go and call your brothers and the wildlings to the main hall. I will meet them there in twenty minutes.”

The man looked at him and nodded with a smile on his face. “I knew you would return Jon Snow! I never doubted it!” He turned and was gone.

Jon went back to Bowen, who had sat down.

“What is my punishment? You should run me through with your sword for what I did. I am a traitor.”

Jon sighed and gripped both of his shoulders, pulling him up.

“Yes. But you did what you did out of misguided duty. You lost your way in prejudice, and senseless hate. Have your learned from your mistakes, my old friend?”

The man wailed again, and fell into Jon who patted him on the back.

Melisandre and Ygritte felt their souls stir at seeing the total commander that Jon had become. They moved to the doorway and each looked down the hall in opposite directions. They threw their senses down the halls. No enemies were coming. They looked back at Bowen as he pulled himself together.

Melisandre knew that Jon now had a second in command who would follow him into the depths of all the hells.

Jon comforted Bowen as they waited for the crows and wildling to congregate in the main hall. The witches stayed on alert. Jon almost had his command back. Melisandre smiled softy when her wife turned to her, and smiled with a big, bright smile that lit up the room and hall. Gods she loved her woman!

Finally, the time had come, and Jon took a composed Bowen Marsh up out of the room. They walked calmly down the tunnels till they came out of the warren near the Wall. They went outside where a large crowd of wildlings with many crows mixed in waited. Several giants were there, too. Melisandre could see that Jon was happy to see Wun Wun.

Jon patted the giant on the hip, and he rumbled and slapped Jon on the back, nearly knocking him to the ground.

Suddenly, from the dark, midnight sky, a large crow descended and circled with wildly flapping wings.
“Snow has come, Snow has come . . . come, come . . . justice, justice Snow has come!” The crow screamed, circling tightly over Jon. The sound of its wings flapping was loud and echoed off the walls.

“Fate has come, fate has come! . . . Fate, Fate . . . Snow has come!” the bird screamed before alighting on Jon’s right shoulder. The large crow looked right and left and cawed loudly. “Fate—Snow . . . has come, has come!”

Jon walked into the common hall, flanked by his red haired wives. The room was silent. All looked at Jon and the two women.

Jon marched to the front of the room.

“What was taken from me has been taken back. I have returned to take my command. But I am not the same man that left here. I am something more!”

Jon Snow slowly removed his hood and looked at the gathered throng of crows and wildlings. Loud gasps filled the room and murmurs of wonder. Jon had returned something more than just a man.

“I am no longer Jon Snow . . . I am Jon Targaryen Stark! And more than that . . .” Jon ripped his sword out of its scabbard, the blade filled with flames that leapt up two feet in the air. He slashed the blade several times, the flames leaving trails in the air. Heat flared into the room. Now loud speech filled the hall. Men gaped at wonder at Lightbringer reborn. The men stared at Jon with wonder. His splendor filled them with awe.

“I am Azor Ahai reborn, to fight the Ice King! Eight thousand years I came to this land to fight its mortal enemy. Azor Ahai has been reborn in my spirit. I have walked the fires and been reborn. I have come back from the dead to fight our mortal enemy. I have two shadow binders from the homeland of the avatar I am reborn as. They are mighty witches, come to stand by our side. They have journeyed half the world to cast their lot with us.”

The crow on his shoulder flapped his wings. “Fate is snow! Fate is snow! . . . destiny fate . . . Snow, Snow!” the bird quorked loudly.

The room was as silent as the grave as all the people hung on his words.

“I am a Crow. I am a Direwolf. I am a Dragon. I am Azor Ahai reborn. I was born to be in this place. In this time. To be your commander! I will lead us to victory!”

The crow screamed “Victory Snow! Snow Victory! Victory Snow, Snow! Corn, Corn, Snow Snow! Reclamation, fate reclamation!”

“Who is with me?”

The hall echoed with the screams of men shouting their allegiance. Swords were pulled and slammed on shields as the shouts rose into a crescendo of support and shared purpose. Two peoples were becoming one in their common cause.

Present

Daenerys

Daenerys Targaryen was a busy person. She was flying from one corner of Westeros to her loyal Houses to the other, determined to make sure they were all on the same page. She was meeting with the heads of the Houses to make sure that preparations were proceeding apace with training and the organizing of supplies to start on their journey overseas to ports, or down the road to King’s Landing.

The supplies were to be put on ships and sailed to the beachheads, or organized for the wagon trains that would start running up the King’s Road to set up the camps.

She had flown two days ago to speak with Stannis Baratheon at Dragonstone. She landed astride Drogon, and was greeted by the stiff and formal brother of Robert. She had come to think the man had a permanent rod up his ass, he walked so stiff and constantly grimaced, and ground his teeth so loud you could hear them. He was a large man like his brother, his height literally towered over the slight Targaryen. He was broad shouldered and sinewy. He looked bland compared to his two brothers, who even she had to concede were very handsome. He had dark blue eyes, with only a fringe of black hair on his head and a close-cropped beard across his large jaw. If he would but smile, his face might seem more appealing, but most women would not find a man who seemed to be perpetually constipated attractive.

Stannis offset his own good qualities of duty and justice with his serious, stubborn, rarely-forgiving attitude. He was a man who neither dissembled nor flattered. Varys had warned her that Stannis was obsessed with slights both real and imagined, which was what caused him to grind his teeth regularly. She did not believe it till she was in his presence.

He would never be loved if he became king, she concluded. He did not have the ‘common touch’ that she had.

She and the Baratheon exchanged unfelt salutations, and got down to business. Dragonstone would only offer a small company of knights and two hundred troops to the campaign, but that was not why she was here.

“How does the excavating and shaping of the dragon glass proceed, Stannis?” Daenerys asked the ward of her ancestral home. On cue, the man had scowled and ground this teeth.

“I don’t understand why my talents are wasted on this effort. I do not like having these strange people in this land. They speak with thick accents.”

Dany pinched her nose counting to ten. “Stannis the weapons may be need—”

“Hah!” the man had barked.

Dany felt her ire flare. “I will remind you that I am Queen!” Daenerys ground out herself. “You will do my will, or does the famed Stannis honor only go so far? Is it because I am a woman that you balk?” Daenerys asked with exasperation.

Stannis looked at her strangely “What the hell does your sex have to do with anything?” he asked, genuinely perplexed.

Daenerys felt her ire ratchet back a degree. The man was not a sexist, just a stubborn asshole.

“My fault, Stannis . . . I am just used to persons questioning my rule because of my sex.”

“Bah! You know my feelings about you usurping my brother from the throne, and that I believe I should be the ruler of Westeros in his place.” The man held up his hand, seeing Daenerys’ face going red. “But I accept the will of my fellow Houses. You are the Queen, and I will loyally support you. To my death if it is necessary. I just don’t understand why we make weapons for an enemy that does not exist.”

“I can see it from you point of view Stannis, but it is my will that prevails. Let me ask you this—If my womanly intuition is right, and these weapons are needed, we will be prepared. If I were to listen to you, and not prepare these weapons, and they are needed, what say you then? Shouldn’t we prepare for all possibilities?”

Stannis looked at her for a long time, his cheeks bulging with his grinding teeth.

“What you are supervising here is not taking away from our preparations. They are only enhancing our efforts to achieve victory. Are you a bigot that is afraid of people that do not speak your tongue, Stannis?”

The man’s face turned even more red. “I am no bigot. I just don’t like people I do not know on the land I rule under your flag. And this effort seems a big waste, but, you are right. Your will prevails, and we should cover all possible outcomes.”

They then discussed the ramp up in production and the quality of the work. Daenerys had brought in the best weapons artisans in the craft of arrowheads and stone daggers. She had brought in spear and javelin makers from across Essos to quickly increase production. Already two ships had left, their holds filled with the obsidian-tipped weapons. She would be prepared in case Eddard Stark was right.

After dealing with Stannis, she prepared to fly south to Dorne. She had decided to bring Arya with her. She had been pained by the look on Arya’s face when she departed on her previous trips. The sixteen year old had looked so forlorn being left behind. She craved the excitement of adventure just like Daenerys. She had become used to having Arya around her as much as possible.

She and her sword masters had immediately started to work with the Stark girl when her shoulder had been cleared for full contact exercise. The Grand Maester had admonished everyone to start slow with the teenager. Her shoulder may have healed seemingly supernaturally fast but it was still just setting and would need time to gain its full strength back and to get the full range of motion back as well.

Arya had wanted to go full bore from the start. She had actually been slightly offended when she had not been allowed to fully participate and held back. That had amused Syrio and Barristan. They had loved it but found it humorous seeing the girl growl and yammer at them for coddling her.

Daenerys had also been humored by the teenager. But she had felt so much more. Arya’s fiery nature and desire to prove herself called to the Targaryen’s soul. She may have found physical pleasure with other women but there was something more with Arya Stark. Her very nature and essence called to the Queen. Daenerys had longed for a warrior who was not hard boiled and jaded from life.

She had thought such a woman did not exist. She had despaired of a life lived in the shadows always longing for a love she would never find or be allowed. Then the perfect woman for her had been sent to her by her supposed nemesis. Arya Stark was the Warrior Queen she had dreamed of since she was thirteen.

Everything about the young woman was perfect to Daenerys Targaryen. Her raw fighting ability that was beginning to be honed to a razor’s edge. Her raw strength that the Queen had learned the hard way matched hers. Again and again the girl’s fiery demeanor and good down to Earth honesty and humble nature called to the Queen.
More called to the Queen. The first two nights as the girl recovered from their brawl in the throne room Daenerys had seen Maester Harsch Lape changing the binding on the girl’s torso keeping her damaged shoulder joint in place. She had seen the bosom of the girl. The Queen had felt her bruised pussy spasm at the sight.

She had since come to determine that Arya was ashamed of her lack of boobs the Queen thought with a smirk. Not her! She loved Arya’s breast. The girl had no real breast but instead pulpy areolas that had a thick nipple half jutting out the pulpy areola. Dany knew from experience with a freed Myrish pleasure slave. Dany had loved fucking the dark skinned woman. The woman had thanked Dany many nights for her freedom willing coming to her bed.

She had nipples exactly like Arya’s. When Daenerys would suckle on the pulpy nipples they would engorge with blood and swell to near bursting plums. They were so sensitive that Daenerys had given Meleah Iranah orgasms just from sucking on her nipples and only lightly rubbing her clit. Gods the screams had been deafening as she fucked the girl before her Khalasar for all to see and hear.

She stared at the Stark girl desiring the same thing. She would make the girl wail from it. She knew the girl was embarrassed from her unusual breast but she longed to teach Arya just how beautiful her breast were. When the girl practiced in a thin top as she sweated heavily the fabric clung to her torso and her excitement would have her nipples so erect and tenting out her thin fabric.

Dany let her fantasies take flight. One day Dany longed to take Arya before her Khalasar and fuck her love in the open before the Dothraki. She would fuck her wife all the night before her people. She was The Mare Who Mounts the World. She would suck on Arya’s nipples as she finger fucked Arya to orgasms night after night. They would then move to oral and trib sex. All would see their Khaleesi mounting her filly making her scream in orgasm after orgasms.

Those nipples would be nearly bursting as she fucked Arya with her strap-on cock. She would pound Arya’s cunt and then her asshole to screaming orgasms. She could see those puffy nipples jerking on Arya’s chest as she fucked Dany cowgirl. The teenager slamming her body down on the cock Dany would be savagely fucking her hot tight cunt and clenching asshole with.

Barristan and Syrio did not seem to notice or had the good manners to not show any interest. They both knew the Queen’s hidden desires from others. Both men had long ago made it clear to Daenerys that that fully supported her in her desires of bed partners. She knew both men would gladly support her desires to marry Arya.

Deanery masturbated every night to thoughts of her loving Arya and making the girl realize just how fucking hot her body was to the Queen. She would have her wolf hot and panting for it. She could feel those oversized nipples bursting and hot in her mouth. Hooking her lips underneath the rim of the flared nipples resting on her barely there breast. The perfect anchor for her lips as her head lifted with her hot deep throat loves sucks on the nipples as her tongue stabbed and lathed the hot bulbs.

Gods she would make Arya scream from it and then she would slam her fingers deep into her now sloppy wet cunt and quickly finger fuck her splattering cunt to orgasm all the while dining on plum nipples.

She sighed. If only Westeros and more important Eddard Stark would feel the same. Gods when she thought about it would make Westeros so much stronger uniting two Great Houses. She and Arya Stark would make the union that Lyanna Stark and Rhaegar Targaryen should have been allowed to form.

The Queen shook her head. Enough of flights of fancy.
She would focus on the possible. She would train up the girl to be all she was meant to be. She hoped to have the girl as her First Sword. Syrio would just have to be number two she chuckled to herself.

She had started to spar with the girl still holding back but that was lessening lesson by lesson. Syrio and Barristan told her that she was every inch the daughter of Eddard Stark. She was meant to be a great swordsman. They both told her that with her natural ability and the same supernatural capabilities that the Queen possessed that soon Arya Stark would be their equal if not maybe something more.

She knew both men thought they were supreme but she liked and needed that in the men. All great swordsman like herself had to have a cock sure attitude to be great. She had always been attracted to physical prowess.

The Queen had been immediately attracted to the girl. She had told herself to control her infatuation with her, but it was a losing battle. Arya was so fierce but still so innocent in many ways that it just pulled at Daenerys’ heartstrings. She knew she was starting to fall well and truly in love with Arya, and she did not know what to do.

She knew the Houses would never accept her marrying a woman. Except for Olenna, all the lords were flooding her with marriage proposals to one man or boy or another. Even Mace had come in before and after Olenna’s parade of roses runway show with proposals for her to marry his sons, not his daughter. That told her all. That sly fox Olenna moved and did as she saw fit for the House of Highgarden.

She wished that Eddard Stark could be as liberal as Oberyn Martell, but that was like wishing for the moon.

She would take what she could. She had asked Arya to come out early to her scheduled departure. She wanted to surprise the girl. Arya had arrived, wide-eyed like she always did when she was near Daenerys’ dragons. Her dragons were equally smitten with the young wolf. Daenerys smiled, thinking it appropriate that her dragons should be enthralled with the girl just like she was becoming.

Nymeria her great Direwolf was with her of course. The wolf came up to Dany and licked her face affectionately, and then rolled onto her back and looked at the queen and her master with an expression that clearly said: “Well get to it—I’m waiting here!”

Daenerys laughed as she and Arya bent down and rubbed and scratched the wolf’s belly and flanks. The great wolf wiggled and pawed the air. The two women worked the shameless pleasure hound till Barristan walked up to them with chaps and gloves for Arya.

They got up, and Arya greeted the great knight. Drogon and Viserion had been up on the wide curtain wall, laying out in the morning sun, half dozing. Drogon had been lazily watching them, and then languidly rose up and pushed up into the air, then glided down to the large courtyard and stepped up to his small mother.

Nymeria walked over and licked the dragon’s snout. Drogon shivered with pleasure.

“Arya, I want you to ride with me on Drogon down to Dorne. I want you wear these—whaaa—NOOOOO!” the Queen screamed.

The instant that Arya had heard that she was flying to Dorne with Dany, she had sprinted in a blur over towards her biggest son.
Daenerys took after her lov—her royal hostage, but it was too late. Arya did not know that her dragon’s bodies radiated the heat that boiled in their core. Only she could endure the heat. Arya would blister her fingers and legs or worse!

“Arya, no!” The queen yelled, but the girl did not heed Daenerys in her excitement.

Then Daenerys stumbled to a halt and gaped.

The Stark lightly gripped Drogon’s scales and clambered up onto his back, and sat down on the magically-woven heat resistant saddle. She looked around, beaming. She reached down and patted Drogon.

Daenerys and Barristan looked at each other, stunned. Arya was immune to Drogon’s blistering heat, just like Daenerys. Dany was stunned at the revelation. She and Barristan were stunned again when Nymeria rose up on her hind legs, and put her front paws on the dragon, barking and whining at being left behind. The Direwolf too also immune to Drogon’s heat.

My gods! Daenerys thought to herself. The gods have crafted for me the perfect mate, and I can’t have her! The Queen paused. Arya had not shown her any interest in that way. She calmed down after that. The Stark girl was obviously blessed with many of the same gifts as she was. Arya smiled down at her from on high, and the Queen felt her heart go pitter-patter.

Drogon craned his neck around to look at Arya. He regarded her for a long moment, and then moved his head down and rubbed his cheek along hers. Arya pressed into the dragon. Nymeria whined below, looking up at her master. The Direwolf started to run around, barking furiously.

Barristan came over and called to the Direwolf. Nymeria looked back at him, and then Arya who was ignoring her for the moment. The Direwolf then sprinted back twenty yards and came bounding forward, and at the last moment leapt up and made it high enough up onto Drogon’s back to scrabble furiously with her legs pumping hard, scratching until she gained his back. She thrust her head forward to put it beside Arya’s in a jealous pique.

The great black dragon rumbled looking at the young woman and Direwolf. It rumbled again and turned its head back around, and then turned it back and thrust it down and bunted into the Direwolf, knocking her down his back. Nymeria rolled a few times before righting herself, and came up his back barking furiously, very affronted. Drogon huffed and pressed his snout to the direwolf’s snout.
They stared eye to eye as Dany and Arya looked on quietly.

Finally, an understanding was made, and the dragon turned around and relaxed.

Dany relaxed with the crisis past. She looked over to her right and saw that Viserion had flown down and was purring as Barristan rubbed his cheeks and horns like he loved, the dragons tail jerking in pleasure.

Dany shook her head and quickly climbed up on Drogon’s back. It looked like she would be having two riders with her on her way to Sunspear. She petted Drogon and showed him where they needed to go with her mind. The mighty black dread launched himself into the air and flapped his wings, coming up over the castle wall and gaining altitude. Soon off to the left Barristan with Viserion was at her side. They flew over the Kingswood for three hours before they finally left the mighty forest behind.

The Queen was happy that Arya was comfortable riding up in the air on Drogon. She looked out over the sides of Drogon, watching the country flying beneath them as they flew south at a fast pace.
Soon Arya scooted closer, and pressed into Daenerys’ back and hooked her arms around her waist.
She fell asleep lulled by the motion of flight and Drogon’s heat. Daenerys relished the close contact of the young wolf sleeping against her back.

The dragons flew up higher and began to glide on the thermals. They flew over Felwood, and the low mountain range that came between Felwood and the coast of Westeros. Arya had woken up, and scooted back refreshed. Daenerys missed Arya’s body pressed into her intensely, but did not embarrass the girl with that knowledge. As the sun began to set, they touched down at Griffin’s Roost. They took lodging at a large inn. They had a filling meal, and then rested while the dragons flew to the wilderness to the west to find their dinner.

The next morning they were on wing an hour after dawn. In the late afternoon they came in low over the beach in front of Sunspear, and landed in the large green sward of the Battleborne Academy of Dorne. The cadets came running to see the magical beasts stretching out and rumbling as they looked around. The queen and her charges jumped down, while Barristan slid on the chaps he wore so he could slide down Viserion’s side. The dragons then cantered over to the practice yard, where siege weapons were constructed.

The students backing up in wonder at the sight of dragons in their midst. Legends had come back to life and they were enthralled. The Dragons watched the humans as they gathered their courage to approach. Soon they were being petted. Barristan had walked over to tell them to not touch their main bodies due to the heat. The dragons were pleasure hounds in their own right and luxuriated in the attention.

After ten minutes the students were called back to their study and projects with the construction of siege weapons.

The dragons moved over to the pile of construction material. The dragons found a large log each, and began to chew on the hard oak, cleaning their teeth as it splintered. Soon others from around the academy began to congregate around the dragons. The dragons surrounded by the curious. Dany and company walked over and warned the onlookers not to touch their flanks due to the extreme heat. She left only after she was sure they all understood.

She turned around and was greeted by a smiling Oberyn. He had Obara with him, and they smiled and clasped hands in warrior fashion. They asked who was with her, even though they knew exactly who Arya was. Arya shyly greeted them both respectfully. They were guided back across the sward, and along the walkway to Martell Hall.

Oberyn led them inside to the main corridor. Daenerys and Arya, followed by the general and Obara, were led into a large meeting hall. Daenerys saw many of the leaders she first met when she stepped off of Drogon onto Westeros for the first time, those long months ago.

Daenerys pulled out a chair for Arya, who blushed while accepting her seat. Daenerys took her own seat along with all the generals. She looked around at the walls with paintings of past great leaders of Dorne. She smiled, noticing that four of the paintings were of women. She really liked the land of Dorne.

The generals then gave her reports on the troop movements. Dorne was by far the most martial of all the Houses in Westeros. The mandatory military training of all youth, and then the high numbers serving in the reserves had them quickly ready to march and sail north.

She had ships already arriving in the ports of Wyl, in the North point of Dorne, and around the broken finger of the east coast, all the way to Salt Shore. Soon the ports would look like forests with all of the tall masts of the ships that were on their way.
Missandei was also forming a large convoy of troop ships from Essos that would sail around the South coast of Westeros to form up with the limited ships of Highgarden. The troop ships from Essos would take on the rest of the soldiers that sailed around the foot of Westeros, and up to the North. These vessels would be protected by ships from the Summer Islands and the land of Yi Ti. The military ships of Highgarden would provide a limited guard. Their main strength needed to be left behind to protect the citizens of Highgarden.

The cavalry of Dorne had already formed up and were moving north to the Castle of Wyl. They were to head up the rift valley that ran along the middle of the Dornish Marches. They would transition to the Red Mountains, and come out through Summerhall, then go through the pass of the Mountain of the Moon and onto the savannah below Grassy Vale. The cavalry would then ride up North to King’s Landing.

They discussed logistics and the supplies and grain stores that would be shipped north on a second wave of ships due to arrive in six weeks. Missandei and Tyrion had a rolling shift schedule of ships coming and going between the ports of Westeros, Essos, and the bridgeheads that would soon become makeshift cities with all the troops that would be pouring in.

It was early evening when the meeting finally broke. Oberyn asked that Dany and her guest come back to his office for a minute before they retired to the special rooms reserved for them in the commandant’s quarters.

“I want to discuss a prophecy with you, my Queen.”

Daenerys felt herself stiffen. She saw that Arya picked up on it.

“It concerns a lion that comes to Dorne.”

Daenerys held up her hand with her palm to Oberyn. “I’m a dragon, Oberyn. I don’t care about any prophecy about a lion. I have heard so many prophecies on my conquest it makes my head spin. I am my own prophecy.”

“Oberyn, I would like to speak to… you…” Cersei slowly came to a halt as she entered the room. She took in the man and his oldest daughter, which caused the ghost of a smile to cross her face. The smile disappeared when she registered her nemesis Daenerys Targaryen was present.

Tension was suddenly thick. Cersei slowly pressed forward into the room, looking at Arya, and clearly registering her as ‘the royal hostage’ everyone had been hearing about.

“My my, Daenerys—I hear that you are having difficulties on the throne. I hear you spend a lot of time squirming on Eddard Starks strings, and yelping while getting your ass pricked on the royal throne.” She paused. “Understandable, since you don’t have much of an ass.”

Daenerys slowly rose up from her seat as she saw Arya gnawing on her lip, not knowing what to make of the two women glaring at each other.

“I would challenge you,” Cersei continued, “but it seems someone denies me the training I deserve. The training I thought I was being sent to complete.”

“I have nothing to do with that, you bitter harpy.” Dany snarled.

“Sure you don’t.”

“Believe what you want!”
Oberyn spoke up. “I have told you, Cersei. Myrion Dwellen will determine when you can progress to weapons training.”

Cersei scowled. She glared at the queen. She fumed, looking at Obara and then Oberyn.

“It is not fair that I am denied my training,” the beautiful woman stomped her foot on the ground in a fit of immaturity. “I have done everything I have been asked to do!”

Daenerys was impressed by what she saw of the woman, but would never tell her that. Cersei had put on fifteen pounds of muscle that made her arms and legs full, and they rippled with her movements. Cersei wore a midriff top because of the heat. Her stomach was flat, and flexed with hard abdominals as she paced back and forth.

“Gods damnit, I was fucking Queen before your sawed-off legs stepped on this continent. It is not fair!” the fallen Lannister screeched.

“Maybe I will send you back to your father tomorrow on my dragon Cer—” Daenerys stopped her insult. Cersei had collapsed into a dead faint. She appeared white as a ghost.

Obara was at her side immediately, cradling her head in her lap and glaring up at Daenerys. Daenerys looked confused. “You bitch!” the sand snake screamed at the Queen, not caring who Daenerys might be.

“What the hell did I do?!”

“Don’t you dare send her away from me!” Obara cried out to Dany. Oberyn was bending over the passed out woman, gently shaking the Lannister.

“Why did you do that Daenerys?” Oberyn asked her in an accusing tone.

“What did I do? I was just jibbing her for crying out loud—geezzzzz!” Daenerys groused. She had no idea that the mere threat of sending the woman back to her father would have such a devastating impact on the woman.

She and Arya went to kneel beside Cersei, who was moaning and looked pale as a sheet. Daenerys hated herself for feeling guilty for putting the former queen in such a state. My gods, she thought to herself. What kind of father must Tywin have been to make the mere threat of returning to him totally deflate and defeat her supposed nemesis?

It sort of removed the fun of sparring with the woman, if she was that vulnerable.

Daenerys shook the reviving former Queen. “Cersei look at me!”

Cersei did, with big, terrified eyes.

“I’m not sending you back. I was just jibbing you, woman.”

Cersei slowly got to her feet, but was unsteady.

“I’m sorry my Queen, I will never insult you again. Please forgive me for my impertinence. I was totally out of line. I’m just a stupid, worthless cunt.”

Daenerys saw Oberyn tense up, and Obara glare at her.

“Cersei, godsdamnit, get a grip woman. I pledge I will never send you back to your father, okay? I may kick the shit out of your condescending ass, but I am not sending you back to that motherfucker.
Alright?"

Cersei still looked wan, but nodded her head. Obara glared daggers at her.

Geez, would that woman please fuck Cersei so she would stop glaring at me like that?

Oberyn had mentioned in reports just how badly Cersei had been abused by her father, and how much she was changing now that she could finally pursue her long cherished dream. She actually admired how dedicated Cersei was in her training. She was constantly kicking male ass, and any woman who did that had to be at least partially okay. Right?

She and Arya went to the commandant’s quarters and to their separate chambers. She watched Arya enter her room and smiled. She wished she was in that room with Arya.

She was so fucking beautiful.

Daenerys shed all her clothes and got under the covers. Normally she masturbated to thoughts of her royal hostage, but today had been a long day.

She yawned. Today had been exhilarating. Gods she loved being challenged, and coming out victorious. It was what she lived for.

Sansa

Sansa stared across the meeting table at the late morning gathering that her father held every morning now. It was in the largest meeting room in Winterfell. Her father wanted to make sure his lords were fully informed of the latest troop training schedules, and their planned march north that were soon to commence. He was constantly asking his lords about the training of their conscripts.

Sansa knew her father was worried. Jon had related how so many rangers out on patrol did not come back. The few that did return came back with tales of fighting the undead, risen up through vile necromancy. How could they kill them, when they were already dead? Only fire and dragon glass killed the enemy. All were worried.

Obsidian was pouring into the ports from Summer Islander ships. They had a huge stockpile in their warehouses, and were in the process of buying stores wherever they could be found in Essos and shipped with all speed to the North.

Sansa had thought to plumb the merchants that the Queen was obviously allowing through her blockade. Sansa, Robb and her Father were thankful that the Queen was allowing through staples and basic material that the common person would need to survive the long winter that all felt was soon to fall.

Essos and the Summer Islanders were firmly in the Queen’s camp. They might have news that would be of use. Sansa had men and women plying the sailors and merchants for information. The whores were an especially good mine of information. What man or woman cooped up on a ship for weeks or months did not want to boast and gossip?

Most of the information was of little value, but some gossip with the Summer Islander merchants was intriguing. It was rumored the Queen was mining and crafting weapons of dragon glass herself at a furious pace. Sansa smiled at the thought of the Queen’s insights and resourcefulness.

She had heard a month ago of battles between the forces of the Queen beyond the Wall, when the Queen sought to probe their defenses. The first set up a camp, and it was annihilated except for a few survivors who made it back to sea and were picked up by the blockade the next day. The survivors reported fighting strange beings, all white and cold, and the walking dead. Fortunately, the survivors relayed this and evidently the Queen had devised a plan to exact revenge. She had the Summer Islanders set a trap with three ships. She had evidently done her research. She baited the forces of the Ice King forward with one ship seemingly beached. When the forces of the Ice King had attacked, the Summer Islanders unleashed fire on the enemy, setting the dead alight and the Ice Wights seemed to melt when pierced with many arrows.

One had managed to get on board and had wreaked havoc until the captain with a Valyrian blade broke the Ice Wight’s blade, and then took his life. That had been most welcome news. Valyrian steel was added to the list of weapons that worked against the enemy.

She had to admire the Queen. She was indeed a crafty bastard. She had exacted revenge with a bait and switch. She looked at her father. What could those two do if they ever teamed up? No one could stand against them.

As the meeting wound down Sansa looked across the table. There she again looked at Roose Bolton. There was something about the man that put her on edge. Robb felt it too. There was something evil about him. Sansa could not pin down exactly what disturbed her so. He did not look evil. He was of average size, with a soft and hairless body. His was a plain face, beardless and ordinary. He had short, strong fingers, and his skin was pasty white, most likely due to the leeching’s which he regularly partook of. The only remarkable thing about him was his eyes. They were eerie. They were paler than moonstone, darker than milk. But many in the North had pale eyes of various hues. Her own father and sister had startling grey, intense eyes. Still, she knew he was off. He was evil. She and Robb both wondered why their father tolerated the man.

Roose was mild-mannered and soft spoken, so much so that you had to lean in to hear his words. She had learned that Roose was cold, patient, calculating, and capable of great cruelty. He possessed a cool cunning, a skill for strategy, and a calculating nature.

His cold demeanor was only enhanced by his black ringmail, and a spotted pink cloak. The battle armor he sometimes wore was also ghastly. It was a suit of dark grey plate armor over a quilted tunic of blood-red leather. Its rondels were shaped like human heads whose mouths were open in agony. Its helmet had streamers of red silk which fluttered in the wind. He also usually wore a pink woolen cloak, embroidered with droplets of blood. The surcoat of the flayed man finished making the man a caricature of something from the evil fairy kingdom that old Nan sometimes told Sansa stories about as a child.

Sansa knew he was a hateful man, and longed to have him removed from his hold and stripped of titles and power. All knew he still secretly practiced the right of ‘first night’ with the lowborn that infuriated both her and her brother.

It was the pronouncement he was now blandishing that made Sansa reach a boiling point. Bolton was making a case that after the war, the wildlings needed to be cast back across the Wall. The men, at least. The women were to be divided up among the houses as chattel to the victors. They were not of Westeros. They were foreigners that needed to be dealt with harshly.

All knew that the crows had let the wildlings through the wall. Most accepted for now at least, that on humanitarian grounds the move was justified. Her father said he would not turn his back on ANY in the north - wildling or not. Her father also made sure all understood that the Crows had limited numbers, and Jon was being very shrewd in using the wildlings to augment his limited forces.

It freed the South to use their troops in a more mobile and effective manner.
Her father just stared at Roose Bolton with cold eyes, his fingers slowly rapping the tabletop. He let the man finish the whispered words on his vile, loathsome plan.

“I will take that under consideration Roose, but—I can tell you it will be a cold day in hell before that is ever implemented while I live.”

“You are the Overlord, Eddard. While you live.”

The room went deathly still.

The meeting was soon adjourned. Sansa remained behind as her father stared off into space. Soon it was only the two of them.

“Why, father? You heard him. That was a threat, and everyone knew it. Dispose of him, father. He is a vile and evil man.”

Ned sighed. “It is not that simple Sansa, as much as I might wish it. He and Lord Manderly are the most powerful in the North after our House, and I give the edge military to House Bolton. Yes it was threat. But we are about to go to war, and I may not survive it.”

“Father!”

Sansa watched her father give her his half smile. “I plan on winning and surviving this war Sansa, but battle plays no favorites. Always remember that.”

Eddard sighed. “You must always factor in with your thinking - war is carnage. I will not wage war on Roose Bolton because I think he is reprehensible. Yes he is vile, and I detest his practice of ‘First Night’. He denies it of course, and I would have a hard time proving it, and it is not worth going to war for.”

“He inspires loyalty in his men and they would fight for him to the death. I cannot afford to oppose him in any way now, Sansa. We are going to war with the Ice King, and we need a totally united front. Maybe after the war we can revisit this, but, even then, I have little grounds to wage war with him. I am Warden of the North to promote peace, not rip it asunder. Can you understand, Sansa?”

“Yes I can, father. Sometimes it sucks to be leader.”

Eddard grimace-smiled “Yes indeed, Sansa. Yes indeed.”

Sansa hurried to her parents’ quarters. Margaery had missed today’s meeting to care for her mother. Cat was weak, and easily tired from her pregnancy. She was starting to show a lot with her stomach rounding out. Her ankles had swollen, and she found it hard to walk and she was having fainting spells. Maester Luwen had prescribed bed rest for Catelyn Stark to stay in bed and conserve her strength. She was not old, but she was getting old for giving birth.

Margaery had formed a close bond to her mother. Catelyn worshiped the ground the Tyrell walked on, and Sansa was still shocked, but happily so, because her mother was so happy planning her and Robb’s wedding in the Sacred Grove.

Margaery was gently dabbing her mother’s face while talking to her, and rubbing her mother’s stomach telling her that she could tell she would bear Eddard another mighty son. Sansa rolled her eyes affectionately at her future wife. Her mother ate up that kind of talk, and Margaery knew it.

“Yes. I feel it too Margaery. Another fine son to one day have his own hold. One day you and Sansa will have your own hold as well.”
Sansa could not get over her mother’s one-eighty turn on women and their place in the world.

“Sansa, there you are. Come feel you future brother kick. He is so strong.”

Sansa felt her mother’s stomach, and felt the baby kick repeatedly. She smiled, feeling like it was two babies in there kicking away. This one was going to be a handful, Sansa thought to herself.

She was worried about her mother’s weakness, though. She knew that she had not had any problems with her previous pregnancies.

She sat on the opposite side of the bed, and discussed house affairs with her mother, all the while Margaery continued to cluck over Cat constantly, primping her pillows and adjusting the blankets making sure that her mother was completely comfortable.

A half-hour later her father came and told her and Margaery that he would care for Catelyn for a while. He adjusted his wife’s pillows and went to the foot of the bed and massaged his wife’s feet gently, while talking to her about the day’s events.

Sansa smiled and looked at her love. She knew she had found the same kind of love with her Margaery. The total and complete bonding of two souls into one.

She and Margaery left hand-in-hand. Sansa smiled listening to her lover talk about her mother in such glowing terms. Margaery had totally let go of any rancor towards her mother once she had been accepted into the family. Margaery had such a forgiving heart, thank the gods. She had forgiven Sansa for her grievous wrongs that day two years ago when she given Margaery her virginity after Margaery had freely given Sansa her maidenhead.

Sansa filled Margaery in on all that had happened at the war council. Margaery had hissed and said, “gods I hate that fucker!” when she told him of Roose Bolton’s words.

The conversation then turned to Arya as they moved down to kitchen to have a light meal to tide them to dinner.

They sat at the small table the cooks kept for her and Margaery. The cooks loved how the two high princesses continued to eat with the common folk. Margaery had memorized all their names the first day in the kitchen, and soon knew all their backstories. She had the whole staff eating out of the palm of her hand. Sansa was thankful that the budding lesbians had Margaery to go to for love advice, and best techniques in cunninglus and analingus. Sansa still went beet red trying to give advice to the young maids, cooks, stable hands, visiting noble girls, and wives wanting to have adulteress affairs with other women.

Margaery never missed a beat, and happily gave seduction advice and how-to pointers on lesbian lovemaking. When Sansa asked her why she did so with such gusto, Margaery answered that she felt was it was their duty to present positive role models and help women to define their own destinies, and encouraged Sansa to become a more active role model as well. She had tried two days ago to help a teenage couple of maids on how to improve their techniques, but was soon so tongue-tied and blushing so hard that Margaery had to again step in.

She was trying. Really, she was.

They watched cooks knead fresh dough to put in the large ovens that were constantly stoked with cut oak logs. The heat from the ovens kept the kitchen area warm and comfortable. They had put down beeswax covered paper, and used scrapers to scrape the dough when it would start to build up on the paper. The two cooks continued preparing the dough, beating it with their fists and rolling it into itself and then flattening again and again. Then they took the dough once it was leavened, worked it into a loaf shape, and placed it on large bread paddles that were stuffed onto the heated bricks that were glowing a dull orange.

The bread quickly rose. Sansa knew they would get the first pieces, all hot and slavered in butter. The cooks had poured them glasses of milk. They sipped from the glasses, waiting.

The conversation returned to Arya, and how she might be faring. The queen had been silent since the recent escalation in tensions from their camp. Fortunately, they had Olenna’s moths informing Eddard and Margaery herself that Arya was well. That had greatly relieved all the Starks, Ser Roderik, and Margery herself. All loved the wild wolf girl dearly.

Sansa was happy and Margaery smug when it quickly became clear that the Queen had taken their protégé under her wing, performing the duties of Royal Hostage Keeper quite literally. The two were becoming inseparable.

What they both found perplexing was that neither young woman was making any moves to seduce the other. Olenna’s moths were clear that they were mooning over each other, and constantly touching each other, but not taking their relationship to the next level.

Sansa was confused, and Margaery was miffed. “Why hasn’t she gone down on her? Once she uses her tongue on the Queen’s pussy with what I told her, the Queen will be wrapped around her little finger. Hmmm - I am sure the Queen has her own arsenal of skills in the bedchamber. Maybe they will be both wrapped around each other’s little fingers.”

Margaery reached over and gripped Sansa’s hand, and stroked her fingers looking intently into Sansa’s eyes. Sansa felt her belly clench, and her cunt was getting wet as her nipples turned to pebbles.

Margaery murmured stroking Sansa’s hand. “Of course I am wrapped around your little finger, my future wife.” Margaery smiled wickedly. “I love to feel my pussy and asshole wrapped around your probing fingers or fist. To feel that tongue of yours tongue fucking my cunt or asshole and sucking my clit down your throat. Or how you make me howl when you make my twat and asshole explode on your strap-on my sweet savage wolf.”

Sansa flushed wildly bright red, and spluttered all embarrassed. What Margaery did not know was that Sansa was not really that nonplussed, but reacted strongly so her lover could sit there preening and looking smug. It filled Margaery with confidence and fire. Sansa knew that Margaery would fuck her all night tonight. Sansa licked her lips unconsciously, which Margaery saw, and made her smile beam even more.

Their reverie was broken by the younger cook. She gave them their bread, bending over constantly. Her large, firm tits were nearly spilling out her bodice. They both looked at the cook intently. She was quite comely, in her mid-twenties. She was married to a carpenter, but had several affairs with the female kitchen staff. The man was gay, and he pursued his own dalliances using their marriage as cover to keep their parents happy.

They both smirked at each other. The girl was giving them constant come-ons and innuendos. They ate their delicious meal of bread, butter, and slices of ham. The cook was very frustrated that her overtures were ignored.

Sansa knew Margaery had a much more adventurous past with her cousins. She felt her stomach knot when she thought of meeting them. Margaery had hinted that Sansa would love them. She couldn’t wait. It would be like a second family.
They left the kitchen, and a highly frustrated Riyana. The cook was simply not used to not getting her women.

Sansa loved how Margaery snuggled into her side, with her arm around Margaery’s waist pulling her in tight. They fit perfectly together. They heard Robb call out from behind them. They turned to see Robb with Alys. They looked so happy walking towards them, holding hands.

Robb asked them to join them in his quarters. They wanted to share an intimate dinner, and he wanted Margaery and Alys to get to know each better. He also wanted to get to know Margaery, since she would be marrying Sansa and “as her big brother, I need to make sure your are right for my sister and will treat her like she deserves.” He had said with a big smile on his handsome face.

Sansa felt her love for her big brother grow even more. His full acceptance, and openly embracing Margaery as his future sister-in-law had quelled any quite rumblings. When both the father and the heir to the throne fully supported her marriage to the princess of Highgarden, what could anyone say?

Even if anyone had any reservations, they were wise enough to keep their tongues quiet. With her mother in her corner now, there was no stopping her marriage to Margaery. She still felt her heart clutch thinking about when Margaery had told her that after their wedding she would take her last name. It had made Sansa cry like a baby.

Margaery was a proud woman, and for her to take Sansa’s last name made her love the woman even more madly. She had told Margaery she should keep her name, but Margaery hotly told Sansa she was a Stark now, and if she bore them any children they would be Stark and not Tyrell as well. That she, and especially Eddard, deserved to have their grandchildren have his name, since he had done all he could to let their love flourish and grow.

Sansa had nearly fucked Margaery into a coma with her strap-on that night.

They still had two hours till their meal with Robb and Alys.

They held each other tightly as they hurried back to Sansa’s room.

Olenna

Olenna had gotten out of bed excited. Today was going to be a special day. She could feel it in her bones. Olenna smiled at that - even her bones were cooperating for a change. Her arthritis had decided to take a holiday, and was only causing her mid discomfort. She looked down at her fingers that were once so long and graceful. Now they had swollen, red knuckles and three fingers were askew. Olenna sighed. Oh, to be young again.

The Queen was again visiting Highgarden, but today was special. Olenna preened when with each raven received from King’s Landing, there had been two messages. One addressed to Mace, and one to her. The one for Mace was for her the sake of her son’s ego, where Daenerys talked of troop movements and strategy. Her own message contained the same facts, but also asked for her opinion on matters of state. Two days ago, another raven from the Queen had arrived.

In her message she was exorted in subtle language to make sure her son stayed on the proper course. Then the Queen would tell her the true course of events.

Olenna remembered being nearly poleaxed when she first realized the extent of Eddard Stark’s Game of Thrones, and then discovering at the same time that Daenerys had decided to play her Queen alongside Eddard’s King, and was preparing to deceive the whole South into marching North against Eddard and Winterfell, when in reality she planned on marching all the way to the Wall following closely behind Eddard himself.

The Queen was clearly aligning herself with Eddard, but leaving enough options in her planning and troop movements to move against Eddard if he proved in the end to be a traitor.

He wouldn’t be.

The Queen was absolutely brilliant. Olenna was not sure now if given the choice which she would chose as a mate. Olenna was attracted to power and cunning above all else, and both of the two players at this game of thrones had both in spades. She wanted both of them, damn it!

She stopped her fantasies at that.

The Queen told her that she would be arriving at noon today, with all three dragons, and to get word out to the populace to be outside. The Queen said to be outside even if the weather was bad. It was not. The sun was out and the temperature brisk, but it would be pleasant by noon. The sky was a brilliant azure, without a cloud.

The old rose of Highgarden had her usual morning meal of two croissants made by her sweet Vorianna Baerranar, a five star chief from Braavos. She was the House’s bakery specialist, and her creations were the envy of Westeros. Vorianna’s creations were exquisite. They were buttery, flaky, Braavos-style pastries named for their well-known crescent shape. The layered yeast-leavened dough melted in Olenna’s mouth. She sweetened the fare with strawberry jam.

She drank down fresh squeezed orange juice. As was her want, Olenna read over reports that her scribes consolidated from overnight news. Olenna felt her blood running hotter in her veins with all the excitement in the air. During Robert’s rebellion, the armies had gone off in a rush with no organization to meet their foes. Maybe if Rhaeghar had taken his time, he could have prepared a more organized campaign and won the day. His sister was not about to make that same mistake.

Olenna ate her morning repast, and digested the latest news. Her moths were flittering in with so many facts and juicy gossip. She had taken personal interest in Cersei down in Dorne. She had not been privy to Daenerys’ plan for disposing of the royals when she came to Westeros. She had been kept out the loop, her moths flitting around finding no news they could glean from the Dornish elite, or the jackals they passed information with.

Olenna had been stunned when the Queen kept her pledge of no violence if all would submit. Robert had not submitted, but she still granted him amenity. She would have enjoyed seeing Cersei’s head on the wall of the Red Keep soaked in tar to keep her crow pecked face there just that few extra days. Alas, it was not to be.

Now she was in Dorne, and had become the ‘Lioness of Dorne’. Men flocked to her to get their asses beat to hell. What was it with men? They now considered it an honor to be knocked out by her, and were vying to see who could last longer against her fist and feet, and from what she heard, a lethal head butt.

Obara had fallen hard for the woman, and though Cersei was trying to hide it she had fallen for the sand snake as well. Again Olenna wondered about the rampant lesbianism that seemed to be cropping up across Westeros. Was it the new world order? Something in the water? A new era of tolerance that allowed women to define their own destinies?

Olenna met with her son, and was satisfied with his preparations to leave with the cavalry to head east to the meet up with the gathering troops before King’s Landing. Grand Maester Jarrad Lomys came in with a message from a raven from Margaery and Sansa. Olenna knew that they did everything in lockstep now. Olenna would have wished that she could fully rely on Margaery, but knew that her allegiance was now with House Stark. She had informed Olenna in her last raven that she would be taking Sansa’s surname even though she was the elder when they married.

To truly love someone must be a heady feeling, Olenna mused. She felt a tinge of sadness flow through her veins. She never found someone who was worth her total body, mind and soul. Margaery assured her that Eddard was fighting for the realm, but never divulged his plans which rankled Olenna. Margaery had boasted that she was on the war council. She kept her honor with Eddard, and never told Olenna any truly useful information. Damn Eddard’s eyes for inspiring such loyalty in all he met!

She read her notes, and then read a bodice ripper that was her guilty pleasure.

Soon enough it was time to begin the slow climb to the top tier of Highgarden. Olenna loved the home she’d spent most of her life at dearly. She cherished the castle’s role as regional capital of the Reach, and the heart of chivalry in the Seven Kingdoms. Its importance from the fact that the river Mander flowed by, and its location where the Ocean Road meets the Roseroad, making it an important crossroads.

Of all the castles, Highgarden was by far the most beautiful with its tiered-walled construction. As Olenna slowly journeyed to the top tier, she admired with deep affection the many groves and fountains, shady courtyards, and marble colonnades. Olenna made sure to keep the castle filled with singers, pipers, fiddlers and harpers.

Between the outer and middle walls was a famous briar labyrinth. The oldest towers were square and dated from the Age of Heroes, while the newer towers were taller and round. The stables were filled with war horses (which most would be soon gone), and the Appaloosa, Reach Walking Horse and Dorne Sand Steeds raised to give the nobility gentle rides in the countryside.

When Olenna finally reached the top of the castle cursing her old bones and lack of stamina, she stopped to look out over the resplendent fields surrounding the castle. As she reflected, she thought ruefully that she had once ran up the steps to the highest battlements and not even been winded. It galled her that age had brought her so low.

She had seen on her slow climb that the walls, towers, and even the trees were filled with men and women trying to get the best seat to witness the Queen’s arrival. The air was abuzz with their excitement.

Olenna chortled at the Queen. She held the populace in her hand.

Olenna focused her gaze back on the land she loved. The fields of golden roses that stretched as far as the eye could see. The orchards of pear, peach, apricot, cherry, and apple trees. The blooms were so beautiful in the spring, the morning air bejeweled with the perfume of countless blossoms of white, pink, red and orange. She spied fields of melons, fireplums, peppers, cucumbers, tomatoes and other staples used to feed the castle proper.

Olenna turned to look at the sept nestled in the second tier of Highgarden. She knew the Septs grandeur was only matched by the Great Sept of Baelor, and the Starry Sept. She admired the soaring spires made of crystal and razor sharp. The polished stone glinting wildly in the bright sunlight. The castle’s godswood contained three weirwoods, known as the Three Singers. She personally did not have any use for them, as she did not believe in those gods – but they did have a certain beauty and grace.
Oleena waited on the roof of the man audience hall, and looked to the east. A few minutes later, at precisely noon going by the sundial in the main courtyard, she and all the populace that had come to see dragons were rewarded. They all drew in their collective breath.

On the horizon, low to the ground, came three dots that quickly grew to dragons.

The speed of the immense dragons consumed the miles quickly, bringing them forth to the castle. A black diamond with subtle red lines, a creamy gem with gold markings and a green emerald with bronze frosting flew with dizzying speed. From on high Olenna could see their shadows chasing over the ground, seeming to ripple with the folds of the land.

At the last moment the dragons somehow angled their bodies, avoiding the castle walls and zooming up over the highest battlements. Only then did the immense beasts camber their wings and pivot over, creating a wild wind in their backlash. The dragons gracefully alighted on the hall roof, their wings blurring as their talons barely touched the calked wooden beams.

Barristan slid off Viserion and pulled off his chaps and gloves. From the green dragon a fat man that still moved with a surprising grace slid down, and stated to remove chaps and gloves as well.

Olenna was not surprised to see the Stark hostage atop Drogon with the Queen. They were indeed inseparable. Olenna saw that the teenager, like the Queen, wore no protective gear and that the dragon had no saddle. She doesn’t feel the heat? Olenna shook her head. Could a consort be any more perfect for the queen? Then Olenna finally registered one more occupant was also on the dragon.

Olenna, Mace, his sons and the rest of the royals backed up as the direwolf Nymeria jumped lightly to the ground. The great wolf looked at them with golden, very intelligent eyes. Olenna could feel the wolf inspecting all to see if her master was in any danger. Evidently they all passed the test, as the wolf seemed to relax.

Daenerys acknowledged the royals, but guided herself and Arya away to a section of the safety wall at the top of the building. The crowds immediately parted for the Queen and her guest. They all wanted to see what happened next.

With the last of their passengers safely on the ground, the dragons launched themselves back into the air, bugling loudly again and again. The dragons picked up speed, rising to several hundred feet above the highest flapping pinions before turning over and diving back down.

For the next half hour, the citizens were treated to an acrobatic aerial show that none had seen before. Three dragons buzzed around the castle, at times circling the walls around and around. Then, one dragon or the other would rise up to only dive right back down.

Next the dragons were buzzing between the towers, their wings sometimes folded tightly to their bodies to make it through the narrow slots between. The beasts roared, and would pull away from the walls to breathe long gouts of fire.

The adults oohed and awed, and the children squealed. The lowborn were thick around the grounds by the lowest wall. The dragons flew several thousand feet up into the air, and then did wild, acrobatic tricks rolling and diving straight down like a boulder, only to pull up at the last moment to buzz the ground and fly back up high.

The white and green dragons took turns flying graceful tandem patterns with Drogon sometimes brushing their cheeks as they flew side by side. It made Olenna think of mating rituals, and Olenna remembered that dragons could change their sex.
The aerial show went on for at least a half hour before the dragons returned to the ground before the wall by the main gate. They beat their wings mightily, the citizens understanding the message to back away. Then the dragons landed and folded their wings down to the ground, shielding their heated bodies.

The Queen had put on a special show just for her, Olenna knew. For some reason the Queen was elevating the stature of Highgarden. Olenna knew it was for her own benefit as well. This show would elevate Olenna’s prestige, since the Queen always spent as much time with her as she did with Mace her son. She was anxious to find out what the Queen had in mind. While the dragons had flown around, Daenerys and Arya had stood so close as Arya watched in awe, and Dany looked at her lovingly when the girl was not looking.

How strange that Daenerys was so differential with this girl, and did not simply take what was already hers.

Olenna needed to get in on some of the pools betting on when the two would consummate their love. Olenna was thinking it would take a little while, but that it would happen.

With the show over, Arya was led by the Queen to meet the royals of Highgarden. Olenna had read of Arya’s wild ways in Winterfell, but today she played the perfect consort of high royal breeding and training. She said all the right courtesies, and bowed and curtsied when decorum stated she should. So the girl has some polish after all.

Dany talked to her son and wife at length, and her grandson. The Queen was polite and differential when she did not have to be. She pulled all deeper into her spell with her differential politeness. The Queen assured in a stern voice that she would make sure Eddard Stark returned their daughter unharmed, when in fact Olenna knew Margaery was never coming home. Her home was now with Sansa Stark.

Daenerys was very polite, and a made easy conversation as Arya stayed at her side. She stared at Daenerys with such love when Dany was focused on her son and wife, that Olenna was struck by it. The Stark girl quickly looked around to make sure no one was watching her moon over the Queen. Olenna knew how to put a Game of Thrones mask over her features when the girl glanced at her. Arya felt safe to let her love for the queen show on her face. All were focused on the object of her desires. The Queen was like a lodestone attracting everyone’s attention.

Olenna again wondered what it must feel like to marry when you are totally in love and giving your body to a woman or man out of nothing but that love. No calculation, or doing it only because of duty. It must be a heady concoction Olenna determined, watching the two clueless love birds.

Daenerys then asked to give her respects to Olenna, and asked for Mace and his wife’s pardon, ever the gracious Queen.

Dany and Arya came to her then, and kissed her hand in respect. Olenna saw that Arya kept her eyes respectfully down. Olenna was impressed again with the girl’s upbringing. With all the reports of Eddard crying that Arya was filled with the wolf, she was surprisingly charming and courtly. Perhaps she had reigned herself in to impress the queen.

She started the slow descent to her quarters on the first tier. She tried to stay as close to the ground as possible, to reduce her walks when she needed to leave the castle.

She was nervous when the massive direwolf loped over to stand beside her and Arya, who was on her left. Daenerys was on her right, and called to her softly. “Don’t worry Olenna. Nymeria is a pussycat, as long as neither of us are endangered.”
Olenna noticed the plural that slipped off the Queen’s lips. Geez, those two needed to get down and do the nasty and get it over with, as her granddaughter would say.

“Nymeria likes you. She finds you honest and direct” Arya told her.

“How do you know this?”

“I have my ways,” the Stark said from the other side of the wolf. All Olenna could see were her legs underneath the wolf’s belly as Arya walked. Her beast was simply huge. Olenna’s eyes were just barely level with Nymeria’s lower jaw.

A sudden pain in her left hip made Olenna cry out, and she stumbled. She started to scream in raw terror – a fall at her age could be catastrophic. She felt the scream die when the direwolf was suddenly pressed into her side, unmoving. Olenna’s fall stopped, she gripped her fur with her right hand. The queen was there now, and Arya ducked underneath the wolf and they helped Olenna right herself.

Olenna gasped and slowly calmed herself. They had saved her! With a shaky breath, Olenna thanked them profusely which caused them both to blush. The wolf turned its massive head and woofed.

She took a moment to collect her thoughts. She let her gaze wonder for a few moments. Her head stopped seeing something most strange. Up on the tallest spire of the Septa was a little girl. The girl had long green hair and only wore a simple tunic. How had she gotten up on that spire when it was razor sharp and so slick none could grip it. The wind up high must have been fast since her tunic and hair were whipping in the air almost violently and yet the strange girl seemed to easily hold onto the spire. Her body not moving with the buffeting wind.

She felt a hot surge of jealousy. She again wished mightily that she was young again. That she had a chance to be a true player of the Game of Thrones in this exciting time. It was not fair!

Olenna gasped feeling a burning surge run through her body. She sagged into Nymeria’s side.

“Olenna!” Daenerys called out.

“I am alright” Olenna called out. The strange sensation was gone. How strange. She looked back up at the spire. The strange girl was gone.

She slowly walked back down her quarters, with three females hovering near her. Normally, she would have been angry at needing their support, but she felt safe with them. She knew instinctively that they would never divulge her moment of weakness. She also knew they did not see her stumble as a weakness. She could feel only concern for her radiating from them, and relief that they had been able to save her.

Olenna felt a strange sensation. She knew what it felt like to be loved for simply being herself in that moment. She schooled her features. She had been deeply touched, and had much to think on.

They arrived at her chamber. The room was large, and had many windows that opened to the south and west to let in the afternoon sun. The day was warm. Winter was still roiling far to the north, awaiting its command to come snarling south.

Olenna watched Arya move to a vase filled with yellow roses, sniffing them as if she had discovered nirvana. The girl had a look of pure pleasure cross her face. She traced the rose petals and leaves with reverence. The Queen was staring at the girl’s ability to be pleased so deeply by such a simple thing. Love radiated off Daenerys’ face. Olenna was envious, but not in a rancorous way. She was happy so late in life to finally see true love. Olenna sighed.

The queen sat down at the table across from her. Arya was idly scratching Nymeria’s ear as the wolf shook her head slightly and woofed in pleasure. The Stark was looking at the intrinsically painted vases along the wall underneath the largest opened window. On the vases were scenes of the orchid and flower fields that dotted the landscape beneath the horizon around the great castle. Crouching down but not touching, Arya took a closer look at the exquisite details captured on the porcelain by the great artisans of the Reach.

No wonder the girl had the Queen wrapped her little finger. It was a shame she did not realize it. She thought of telling Arya, but decided it would be best to let nature guide them to each other.

“Olenna.” Daenerys called for her attention. She turned to look at the Queen.

The Queen began without preamble. “I am sure you know of my inner council that I call my ‘Klutch of Confidantes’”. Olenna saw no need to deny it, and titled her head forward.

“I have no problem with you having your moths in the Red Keep. I need something to counterbalance all the sparrows, jackals, spiders, weasels and other spies. We all do it, and I am comfortable with that.”

“I trust you explicitly.”

Olenna felt her chest and pride swell.

“I will be leaving for war soon. I am taking my entire inner council with me, except for Tyrion. I will need the swords and strength of Barristan, Syrio and Strong Belwas at my side in the coming fight. I will need Missandei for her language skills, abilities in logistics and her mental support.”

Olenna shook her head in acknowledgement. She had not known but assumed that the Queen would take her most trusted advisors with her to war. Tyrion being a dwarf was just not suitable for the hard march north, or the fighting.

She wondered why the Queen was telling her this.

“I will be sending my Master of Ships and Summer Islander representative to sea to help lead the navy. He is from your land as you know, and quite capable. I trust my Small Council, but I feel that Tyrion will be lacking support. My Clatch of Confidantes has the cunning, instincts and raw intelligence to be able to stay one step ahead of the elements and forces that will buffet the kingdom while I go to fight war.”

Olenna still did not know where this conversation was leading, but schooled her features.

“Tyrion will need support.” The Queen emphasized again.

“Who will you call in then? I am wracking my brain to think of someone to help you in this time of need.”

“I want you, Olenna.”

Again Olenna felt poleaxed as she gaped at the Queen.

“You have shown me over and over again that outside of the Pride of Dorne, who still need seasoning, that you alone have the intelligence, experience in the Game of Thrones, verve, honesty, and loyalty to the throne that I need.”
Olenna continued to gape at the Queen.

“I know you think that your loyalties lie first with Highgarden. No more. I want you on my Small Council as a permanent member. Tyrion is the Hand, but he has agreed that when he is not available you will step in.”

Olenna’s lower lip began trembling.

“Not only that; I would dearly love for you to join my Klatch of Confidantes as well. I need your services to help me run my realm. I have two continents to govern, and I need all the help I can get.”

The Queen was looking at her with those intense eyes. She saw Arya smiling at her, and the great Direwolf came up to her and licked her face and woofed.

She started to cry.

Daenerys went to her and got on her knee, and took Olenna’s small, trembling hand.

“I am hoping these are tears of happiness.”

All Olenna could do was nod her head ‘yes’.

She was finally being recognized for her skills and greatness. The Queen was so confident she was readily bringing her into her inner circle, and was making it clear that she would be given the respect and power she had always deserved.

She would never betray her queen.

Oberyn

Oberyn came out of his office in Martell Hall. He was writing a report detailing the status of the troops now marching to the boats that the Queen had waiting to ferry them to the beachheads that had been established by her mercenary companies. He looked at the maps again, and saw that the beachheads had been expertly selected. The initial mercenary companies had expanded the beachheads ten leagues inland, without opposition. The locals were sticking to their small cities and hamlets. The mercenary troops were showing the populace the utmost respect.

Dorne’s troops reinforced and expanded those incursions into the far north. No resistance had been given. It was almost as if Eddard wanted the invasion. It made no sense!

He was finishing up his report when he looked out the window. It was almost two o’clock, he could tell by the angle of the sun. The show was about to begin. He looked out the door of his office, and saw other commanders and teachers streaming out of their offices and into the practice yard in the rear southwest quadrant of Battleborne Academy.

It was there that a certain Lannister was toiling away at her unique training. He pulled out his five dragons, and ran out the door and down the steps. He looked to both sides down the brick thoroughfare. There.

He ran up to Jaron Lightfoot, the head accountant of the Academy. He had to wait through a line of men and women already gathered to place their bets. Oberyn tapped his foot. Dammit, he was late. The three senior cadets had agreed to approach Cersei at twenty minutes past two. Oberyn bit his tongue, and huffed, refusing to pull rank to get ahead. Finally, he placed his bet.
Cersei had kicked each of the men individually. Each man was over six feet six inches tall, and made up of solid, brutish muscle. Each man had quickly fallen to the slender woman. With the last vanquishing of her opponent, Cersei had cried out she would kick anyone’s ass no matter how many of them there were.

Three men had decided to take Cersei up on the offer.

Oberyn ran across the large, immaculately cut practice yard. He ran up and saw his paramour fretting near the front line of spectators. Cersei had seen the crowd growing, and paused in the drudgery of her tasks to flip them off with a double birds, and then pulled her right hand into a fist and threw it up, her left hand hitting the top of her right arm at the elbow. The universal sign for ‘Fuck you’. Oberyn loved that fire from his former nemesis.

Ellaria looked at Oberyn “I don’t like Cersei, Oberyn but you have to stop this now. She will get herself beaten to a pulp! She is still a highborn princess.”

“Fear not, my sweet dear. Cersei will prevail. I have total faith in her.”

Ellaria continued to fret, and bit her lower lip.

He saw Obara and the rest of her sisters along with Cersei’s daughter fidgeting. Arianne was cool at the proceedings. She alone looked like she truly wanted to see Cersei get the shit beat out of her.

Cersei sat down at the top of the platform. She looked out over the yard at the three great brutes stalking towards her. The largest still had yellowish bruises around his right eye, a souvenir from his last fight with the fallen Lannister.

Oberyn almost felt sorry for them.

Morsh Rane, Tavion, and Juran Yronwood spread out around the base of the edifice that Cersei was sitting on, looking only mildly interested. She looked from face to face with a sneer.

Juran stepped forward and in a formal stance called up to Cersei. “We wish to fight you, you old hag!”

“I grow tired of whipping your asses. Be gone.”

“You said you could defeat us in any number. We are here to accept that challenge.”

“How can you be so tall and still have such a small cock? Between the three of you, you barely measure a foot of dick.”

Oberyn saw Tavion getting red in the face.

“Are you going to let her get away with that?!?” he cried out to his brother. His protest made Oberyn wonder if Cersei had hit close to home with the man.

“Will you calm down for the Jinn’s sake? We’re talking smack, you idiot.” Juran turned back to Cersei. “You are awful brave up there, bitch. Your tits are so saggy I bet they are like pancakes - all limp and wrinkly.”

Cersei stood up so fast everyone was shocked at her speed. All three of the oafish brutes backed up a step, startled. Oberyn had barely registered the movement. “That is something coming from a man with peanuts for balls, and a cock that is never hard. That is what I am going to call you –‘Neverhard’. Your brother is ‘Quartermast’, because he can’t get it up, and you Morsh, I think I will call you ‘Limpwood’. Your cock couldn’t break a hymen made of tissue paper if your life depended on it."

All the men were steaming now along with Cersei.

“That’s pretty good, coming from a woman who is so frigid that she won’t go down on any of the women in her barracks even when they all have their legs spread wide open in your face, practically begging for it. Oh, that’s right, the last two nights you have been masturbating, screaming out ‘Obara, Obara!’.”

Cersei’s eyes suddenly bulged out as she looked at Obara. The sand snake’s look was intensely hopeful.

“You lie!” Cersei screamed.

Oberyn knew better, and he knew Obara knew too. They both had their spies. Oberyn always made sure to sample the new cadets. They were always anxious to fuck him. His prowess in the bedroom was legendary.

Keynna Ryger had been in his and Elleria’s bed just this morning. She was a star student, and was allowed to skip this morning’s drills in formation marching and a long ten mile run. She already excelled in both. She had cum so hard on his cock with her face buried in Elleria’s sweet pussy as his dick exploded deep in her cunt. Then he got to watch intense lesbo sex for an hour before he and Elleria, now strapped in with her cock dp’ed the slut over and over giving her devastating orgasms as they did hard DP, ATM and A2P on the girl who craved it.

She had told them as they got dressed about Cersei. Two nights ago she had masturbated in a frenzy, and the third time she cummed she was up on her spread feet on the bed her groin high up in the air. Cersei’s head rolled back so far back her hairline was jammed into the mattress and her back arched up high like an overwrought bow. The pulled taunt string about to break. The Lannister humping her groin up into the air as her right hand’s fingers punched deep and hard into her splattering cunt. Her first three fingers soaked in cum as she harpooned her steamy twat hard and deep.

Keynna had a dreamy look on her face. “Her fingers were soaked to the third knuckle in her sweet creamy cum. Cum running down her wrist and dripping off. Gods I wanted to like up that sweet snail sauce.” The girl continued on to describe Cersei’s throes of passion. “Gods her screams were deafening her cunt splattering cum everywhere. She added her left hand to her clit rubbing that juicy nubbin furiously. Gods she cummed so hard again.” Keynna seemed to be a dream now. “Gods she cums so fucking hard!” She told them about how Cersei’s cunt was so high in the air and jacking up with violent up jerks as almost spine snapping spasms ripped through her body. Her eyes rolled back in her head and screamed: ‘Obaraaa Obaraaaa babbbbyyyyy!’

“Gods I wish Obara would fuck her already! Then she will share Cersei with us! I want her!” the star cadet whined in frustration.

Then there had been last night. Keynna told them of how Cersei was rubbing her muff with both of her hands cupped over each other for maximum pressure rubbing her quim as it squished obscenely like the bitch in heat she was. She cummed so hard screaming Oberyn’s daughter’s name out. Cersei rolled from shoulder to shoulder screaming like she was being boiled in oil. She bucked so hard she rolled right off the bed. She had done it before. She had been mortified the first few times but last night she kept rubbing her gushing cunt soaking the floor as she cried out “fuck meeeeee with you dick Obaraaaaaa fuck me!”
Yes, Oberyn thought, Cersei was pussy whipped. She just had to accept it.

“Are you all words, has been?” Juran called up to the fallen Lannister. “You’re a fucking washed up, beaten, whipped, cast aside Queen. The lion has been spaded by the dragon.”

Cersei stood shaking, and glaring down at the young men.

“Well cunt?”

“You die!” Cersei cried out and flew down the steps.

Oberyn was not worried. Cersei talked trash but never really hurt her opponents. That bad.

She was on them in a flash. She was at least a foot shorter than all the men, and each outweighed her by at least a hundred pounds.

Oberyn still felt sorry for them.

Cersei easily ducked underneath Juran’s punch and came up on Tavion. He lashed out with a chop, but she blocked it with her forearm and used her left hand to grab his forearm and jerked down with shocking strength, folding the large man down.

Cersei immediately surged forward and cupped the back of his neck with her interlocked fingers and jerked forward hard with her arms, and locked her forearms underneath his jaw and jammed her elbows together. She started to jerk down hard, bending Tavion down further and slammed her knee up into his stomach and chest as he cried out in pain. Her locked forearms jerked in on the man’s thick neck with vicious force.

His brother and Morsh tried to get at Cersei, but the lioness jerked the trapped man about using him as a shield. His brother and friend had to try and punch Cersei over Tavion’s body, their punches weak with distance while trying not to hit Tavion. Cersei jerked the boy around with her forearms, squeezing his windpipe and carotid arteries choking off air and blood. She launched vicious knees when the Yronwood tried to free himself. Cersei’s forearms blocked all his weakening attempts to kick and grab at her body with his hands. Cersei kept viciously jacking his body down.

She ducked and slipped the few punches that came near her head. She suddenly stepped back and pivoted, flexing her hips down as she moved and then came up as she jerked the man after her. When his body whipped past her, she pivoted into the move and used his momentum to snap her body forward and her knee came up with all the force the motion had generated. She used the kinetic energy to slam her knee up into the Yronwood’s chest.

He was staggered, and started to go limp. Cersei threw the collapsing body into his brother’s body as he again tried to move in. Juran stumbled after the collision with his unconscious brother.

Cersei had followed in and got down on one foot and both hands. The unbalanced instant that Juran freed his body of his brother, Cersei swept her leg out and through Juran’s left leg knocking it back. Juran roared and fought to stay upright, but Cersei kicked out, hitting the side of Juran’s right knee with great force.

Oberyn knew Cersei could have shattered the joint, but only used enough force to make him scream out and topple over. Juran’s head hit the ground hard, stunning him. Cersei spun over, still crouched down. She straddled him and gripped the sides of his head with her hands and ripped his head up as she snapped her head down. The head butt was brutal. Juran fell limp.

Cersei grunted hard when a kick landed in her ribs from Morsh. She rolled away and rose up, but Morsh was on her in an instant. His hands locked around her throat and squeezed to choke her out. He was enraged. Cersei’s hands came up to grip the hands that dwarfed her own. Morsh shook Cersei hard.

Oberyn was concerned for Cersei, now prepared to jump in and break up the fight along with Myrion and Obara.

Then Cersei gripped Morsh’s hands, and was able to pull them loose. She couldn’t break the hold, but she was able to breathe. Suddenly, her arms snapped down and started to slam up into his arms from underneath. The blows were fast and furious. The young noble struggled to keep his grip, pulling down to counteract the strength of the blows.

Cersei kept slamming blows up into the massive arms gripping her throat loosely, but refused to let go. Then in a blink of the eye, Cersei’s arms went up past Morsh’s arms and high up. Her arms now slammed down on the arms of Morsh that were still pressing down to counterbalance the blows from beneath.

The impact of Cersei’s downward slashing arms broke Morsh’s grip on her throat and brought his body down. Her head surged forward and up. The head butt stunned the man. She had been working on her flexibility with Obara, and it showed. Her leg kicked almost straight up, and her foot smashed into the chin of the large brute. His head snapped back.

Morsh was wobbling now. He was leaned over and stumbling. Cersei rained straight right and lefts jabs into Morsh’s face, the impacts loud and violent.

Cersei stopped and looked at the bloodied and swollen face of the fallen man. Cersei put her index finger out. She placed the tip on Morch’s forehead, and pushed back easily. The man toppled, defeated, his eyes open and unseeing as he gasped for breath.

Cersei stood proud and defiant. “I am the Lioness of Battleborne Academy. ALL fall before me!” she roared, putting a foot on Morsh’s chest like the triumphant conqueror she was.

Oberyn had won his bet. She had done it under three minutes. He looked at Obara and her shallow breathing and blown pupils told him she was indeed very wet. His own cock was hard, seeing such power in the woman. He doubted Cersei would ever touch another man, but gods she was so beautiful and hot with power now.

Oberyn walked off as Cersei continued to crow and shout her defiance. The whole damn academy was starting to worship the woman. Even Ellaria was starting to look at Cersei with raw hunger when she forgot to hate her.

Myrion and he both knew that Cersei Lannister was something more than human now. No person should have her speed and reflexes with less than a year of training. She was so fast and powerful she would defeat him if he was without a weapon. Her strength was truly frightening.

Myrion had told him last week that Cersei was already a master of the sword, and any other weapon she would choose to use. Obeyrn had stared at him like he had lost his mind.

“That’s not possible.”

“Nevertheless I have felt it. She has knowledge buried deep in her. When she is ready, it will come to her. She and the sword will become one as it was for Arthur. She is greater than he. You know she is the one, don’t you?”

“Yes I do. I can’t believe that my formal mortal enemy is the one prophesied. With that sword she could bring Dorne down if she chose to. She could cut us all down.”

“Then kill her now, before she becomes that threat.”

Oberyn smiled. “Where is the fun in that? I love taking chances. You know that.”

“You are reckless, Oberyn.”

“Yeah I am.” he smirked. “But I am not worried. I have seen the way she looks at Obara when she thinks no one is looking. She’s pussy whipped. Plus, she is not the woman who arrived here. She would lay her life down for Dorne. She would lay it down for Obara. I know it. Soon enough my daughter will have Cersei in her bed, screaming from it. She has a very talented mouth. I should know. I have felt it often enough sucking my cock and my sweet Ellaria off.”

Mayrion sighed. “Oberyn … not everything revolves around sex.”

Oberyn looked at Myrion shocked. “No—butttt … gods I love sex, and so does Cersei. Mark my words. She is changing in more ways than one.”

Oberyn squirmed inside, knowing in another reality he would have raped the woman and gladly run her through after with his sword. Hadn’t that been the way Westeros deposed of fallen sovereigns? He shivered at the thought now. More than just Cersei had changed under the Queen’s tutelage and subtle guidance.

Oberyn looked at Myrion with a smirk. “When I get home tonight I am taking home some young buck or two. Together me and my sweet Ellaria are going to fuck them blind, Myrion.”

The man shook his head, smiling and sighing.

Cersei had really gotten him worked up.

Oberyn had to admit it. He was actually coming to like the woman. She was actually softening and becoming respectful, but she still had that fire that ignited his passion. Ellaria was coming around too, though she tried to deny it most of the time.

He would never have given Cersei the chance if it had not been for Daenerys. He had no idea at the time that Cersei was the one. He thanked the gods he did not believe in for their guidance and their serendipity. He mused, forming a picture in his mind of him stabbing Ellaria in the ass with his cock as she sucked off Cersei. Hhhmmmm - that was quite hot, actually.

Arya

The sound of wood slamming wood filled the courtyard that the royals practiced in. It was a small world, only fifty by fifty feet in size. It was enclosed by high walls that made sounds echo. The walls were thick and red, like the name of the name of the castle they were in.

Two of the walls had two doors that allowed ingress and egress. This was a private place where the Queen, and now Arya, practiced hard out of sight of the rest of the Red Keep. At times Gendry and Mya also practiced there. At most only two sets of combatants could fight there. Or sometimes one would be assailed by multiple fighters.
Barristan and Syrio made sure their charges were constantly working on their skills and endurance. Each man brought their different talents and skills to the training. Barristan’s style emphasized strength and shock, while Syrio was poetry in motion. They were both as unique as they were deadly.

Arya had been shocked when she first fought Barristan Selmy. Her father had told her before she left on her journey south that the man was his better. Arya did not believe her father then, but he was every inch her father’s equal.

Like her father when he started his assaults, it was like being in a tornado that struck you with relentless power. The strength of his blows would have numbed her arms if they had not been strengthened by her sparring with Dany. Her training with her father was months in the past now, but it had prepared her for his onslaught of savage fury.

Her first matches with Barristan had ended badly. He would train her for an hour in intense drills and memorizing complicated cut, block, parry and attack steps. She learned them the first time, and for some reason this surprised him. Why should it take more than one time after you have seen it?

She had thought that had prepared her for the man. He had started out their first sparring session following the patterns he had shown Arya. She had done well and was feeling confident. It must have shown in her eyes.

Barristan had called out ‘on guard!’, and then Arya was back in the practice yard with her father. The force of Barristan’s blows were like strikes against an anvil. The man was first in front of her, and then behind her. She had her sword taken from her hands again and again by sudden flicks of Barristan’s sword. Blows hammered all over Arya’s body with stunning force.

She merely gritted her teeth and plowed on. She was determined to improve, and show Daenerys Targaryen she was worthy of being considered her equal. She wanted desperately to impress Dany with her skills and prowess. She still harbored her childish dreams of seducing the all powerful woman into loving her, even though she knew it was hopeless with all the beautiful men and women that were constantly paraded before the Queen.

The men were offered as potential husbands that would strengthen her grip on the realm. These angered her to her core. Why the fuck would a man make her realm more stable and prosperous than it already was? She wanted to break their noses and ram their teeth down their throats.

The women incensed her. None were offered to her as wives, thank the old gods. The court of the Red Keep was filled with the courtesans from all the houses of the South. Many of the sluts were practically throwing themselves at the Queen’s feet, showing off their perfumed tits and shapely hips. It made Arya feel downright inferior looking with her flat chest and her slender hips. It wasn’t fair! Thank the gods the Queen was so busy with her father’s Game of Thrones that she did not seem to notice the hussies. She wanted to rip their hair out and kick them in the ass with her boot!

Her sparring sessions with Syrio had not started so well either.

She had enjoyed the strange tasks that he had her perform. Balancing on the ball of one foot at first had been taxing, but she got used to it by the end of the first several days. She could stand like that for hours if she wanted. Syrio had her jumping from foot to foot, nearly rising up on her toes.

He had her chasing feral cats. That was fun. She had been frustrated the first time. The old Tom was just too fast and cunning. She warged into the cat, and stopped its limbs from working. She had presented it to Syrio shortly after he had her set after it. The cat had been watching the proceedings since Arya had arrived.
The next day she asked Syrio to let her after the cat again. This time she did not return till four hours later covered in dirt, grime and scratches, but this time she had captured he cat on her own! She had gotten so much better. She could now almost feel the cat making his decisions on which way to twist and turn just by the way his tail would lean, or the scruff on his neck would bristle.

She was at the point now where she did not consider the hunt a success if she had a scratch from the little beasts. Man, those cats could run fast. The only time they got away was when they went down a crack or hole she could not reach into far enough to reach. She had gotten very good with plaster and trowel. She found it funny when the cats would run to find a hole that was no longer there, and just stare at space and run around in circles in confusion. She would always let the cats run away then, since their confusion was not fair to take advantage of.

Her first battles with Syrio had lessons in humility for the proud Stark girl. He too stepped her through the steps and parries of his style of sword fighting. He called it ‘fencing’. She had snorted when it came time to spar. Barristan had tried to warn of her overconfidence. “Outside of your father and maybe Breienne of Tarth, Syrio is the only man I fear.”

“But his sword is just a stick. My sword will knock it aside and I will take him down.”

That was not how it had transpired. He had jammed the point of his wooden rapier so many times into her body she felt like a pin cushion that first day. She had been humiliated.

Barristan had pulled her aside. “Arya, do not feel bad.” She had started to scoff. Barristan had gripped her shoulders and shook her hard. “Listen to me. You are already a very, very skilled swordsman, and soon you will be our equal. But you must learn to fight, and more importantly respect all styles of fighting. Syrio is captured lighting. He is speed and skill given human form. Raw power is to his advantage. Temper your attack, and use what he is teaching you to fight him.”

She had learned her lesson. She tried to blend her styles. Barristan called it a type of asymmetrical fighting. Knights of Westeros were not used to fighting a water dancer. “We all looked alike to Syrio, but he is unique to us.” He had the advantage in the fights. Arya saw that he used sheer speed and skill with his precise movements to counterbalance the sheer power a broadsword generated.

She learned to temper her attacks and parry and watch. She learned to be passive and use her sword’s weight to easily block and push aside his rapier thrusts. She quickly got used to his speed, and was able to hold him off, though the instant she attacked she was again at his mercy.

She kept practicing. She gritted her teeth and learned.

All the while, Dany had been watching her. She never once made her feel inferior, or used her superior skill to make Arya feel like she was in over her head. She gave insights on how to use various counter-attack styles, and gave her new blends of attack and defense. She practiced relentlessly with Arya when they were alone in the court, when she had no meetings.

Dany laughed at her sometimes when she pouted and stomped her foot when she was disarmed, but it was a pure laugh with no rancor. She was not laughing at Arya being disarmed or hit, but at Arya’s reactions. Arya loved the tinkling quality of Dany’s laugh. She could not help hamming it up sometimes, just to hear Dany laugh. Her eyes twinkled when she was amused.

Dany’s laughter and shining eyes made her stomach flip, and her nipples throb. She did not let the Queen see her reactions. She did not want Dany to feel awkward. She did not want her to know that her royal hostage lusted after every perfect hair on her head, or longed to feel that heavenly body pressing her down into the bed.
She found herself laughing at Dany sometimes too. Dany was able to hold her own with her sword masters, but sometimes they would send her sword flying. Her curses, foot stomping and arm flapping were hilarious. She would glare at Arya at first, and then break out laughing, joining in Arya’s clean, innocent mirth. How Arya longed to take the Queen in her arms and love her.

Arya had learned her lessons well and fast.

The two sword masters had her blindfolded for twenty minutes in the morning now. At first she could not hear anything in the echoes of the courtyard. Then she had been able to pickup Barristan’s movements, and then Dany’s. Their clinking chainmail and heavy boots were easy to pick up. Syrio, without armor, and his soft sole shoes, had been at first impossible for her to discern. But as the days passed, she started to hear the slightest rubbing of leather on the soil, and the catching of cloth in a slight gust. Arya heard the softest hint of a breath.

Soon she could defend herself and even attack a little, but that was so much harder when blindfolded.

Then they had given her a wooden representation of Needle. Barristan told her that Syrio and he saw that she was ambidextrous. They wanted her to start to use the second blade to help her block and parry and to lash out when the opportunity presented itself. The main caveat was to know when to drop the second blade if two hands were needed to hold the blade against a truly powerful, skilled foe.

She had loved using both hands. She was sometimes able now to put Syrio on the defense. Barristan had increased the savagery of his attacks. Arya quickly found she needed to drop Needle to use two hands to hold the strong warrior at bay.

She was starting to attack the men like Dany was able to. On the defense, Arya was untouchable. It was when she went on the attack that bad things sometime happened to her. That was when she received her sword whacks, or jabs of the wooden rapier tip. She would growl and get pissed off, but she kept practicing. She was improving.

Arya had another incentive to practice so hard on the training ground with Dany.

They would sit after their intense practice of training and sparring. Arya cherished those times. Their sword masters would quickly impart any instructions for the morrow, or go over any pertinent points from the day’s training. They would then depart to prepare for their other duties in the Keep and at the Small Council, which was held in the mid-morning.

Dany and Ayra would talk of their training to begin with, but often the discussions would be far ranging after that. Dany would regale her with tales of her time as the Khaleesi of Khal Drogo’s Khalasar. She would tell her bit and pieces of her conquests of the slave cities, and how she cowed the “Free Cities” into giving up slavery. She had told Arya she was sure some still had to be rooted out, and she would do that when the “Wright War” was over.

She told Ayra how it felt to fly over the Dothraki Sea, or fly over the broad oceans between the parts of her realm. She told Ayra she would love to share these things with her. For some reason, to Arya, she had seemed to almost be shyly asking. She had gushed out “hell yeah!” in response. She wanted to experience those things with her. The queen’s eyes had burned with emotion. Arya almost fooled herself to thinking she saw the same love in Dany’s eyes she felt in her own soul, then the look was gone. The thought saddened Arya, but she accepted that the Queen was meant for another.

The Queen asked her questions again and again about her time in Wintefell. Arya thought them boring, but Dany seemed to eat up her tales of a loving family. To have a mother and father that loved her, even if that mother was a hard ass sometimes.

Dany had really paid attention to Arya describing her love for Jon, Robb, Bran and Rickon. She also told her how she and her older sister had feuded, but now had made peace. She did not tell the Queen the fact that both sisters were lesbians, and that Eddard’s royal hostages was gay also. How her father had helped his daughter and Margaery to come together. Arya did not want to freak the Queen out with her ‘unnatural’ and ‘male’ desires. She would not do anything to jeopardize their budding friendship. She felt such a closeness to Dany already.

How she longed to take it further.

They would usually finish their discussions on how to improve against Barristan’s power and Syrio’s quickness. Dany told her recently that she could see that Arya would soon be her equal, and then better. Arya had protested vociferously, but the Queen had persisted. She told Arya she needed all the swords she could get in defense of her realm.

Last week Arya had been rotating her left shoulder after training. Barristan had whacked it good with this practice sword. Dany had fretted about it. Arya tried to get the woman to understand it was not because of the arm bar she had used in subduing Arya during their initial meeting, that Arya humorous called to herself ‘Love at First Fist’.

Dany had told her to wait, and went running off like the furies of hell were after her. She came back five minutes later. She had reappeared, coming out the doorway she had disappeared into in such a hurry. She was carrying a dark colored bottle.

Dany told her it was liniment. Arya had not heard of it. Dany told Arya that a liniment was typically formulated from alcohol, acetone, or similar quickly evaporating solvents and contained counterirritant aromatic chemical compounds such as methyl salicilate, benzoin resin, or capsaicin.

Arya had turned to look at Dany with a blank, confused expression. The Queen looked sheepish and told her that she was not sure what they were either. The horse tenders for the Khalasars swore by them for the treatment of horse aches, and it had been discovered they worked well for human aches and pains as well.

She offered to rub some into Arya’s shoulders. Arya nearly swooned at the thought of Dany’s hands on her body. The queen had her undo her laces enough to pull her shirt down to fully expose her shoulders, but keep her chest covered. Arya waited while the queen poured some liniment onto her hands, and rubbed back and forth to warm it up.

Arya had to fight hard to suppress her moans when the Queen’s calloused hands started to rub the oil into her shoulder. She had felt Daenerys’ strong fingers digging into her muscles and rubbing over her skin. Her shoulder indeed felt better. She relished the feel of those strong fingers on her body.

She felt her nipples getting puffy and so hard. She bit her teeth so as not to allow her moans of hedonistic pleasure escape her lips. The Queen rotated her fingers first over one shoulder, and then told Arya she should do the other shoulder to make sure both muscles were given the same treatment to ‘keep them in balance’. Arya had thought that was a splendid idea.

Her pussy was so fucking wet. It was heaven.

It had become a routine for the Queen to rub in liniment into Arya’s shoulders and sometimes her lower legs, stating that her calves were tight. She had nearly cummed on the spot the first time feeling those strong fingers rubbing and loosening her calves. Gods it felt heavenly.
Then just this morning the Queen had asked her if she could trouble Arya to rub liniment into her shoulders, complaining of a tightness. The Queen had dropped her blouse top to her waist. Arya nearly died of happiness right then. She used every ounce of willpower to not throw the Queen on the reed mat and ravish her on the spot.

Dany was so comfortable with her body she did not even know the affect it had on Arya. She supposed her time with the Dothraki had totally removed Dany’s inhibitions. She did not even consider how it would affect Arya - the Queen likely just assumed that they were both girls, and they had seen other naked women. Arya hadn’t. She would never admit that fact. Only through Nymeria’s eyes had she seen naked women, not her own. She and Sansa had not been close enough to share such intimacies about their desires.

It would have freaked them both out.

Dany’s breasts were perfect mounds on her chest, like plump oranges riding high on the Queen’s chest so firmly. With just a little jiggle, Dany shifted her weight and then stretched to ‘work the kinks out her spine’, she’d told Arya. Arya could hear the pop of her spine joints snapping. Dany arched her back, making her breasts thrust upward and Arya assumed that Dany must have been chilled slightly, with her nipples so hard and her areolas crinkled. Arya’s breath caught seeing the light brown color of the Queen’s areolas and nipples. Gods she wanted to suckle them sooooo bad!

Arya had to rub her hands together while counting to ten to control her trembling. Not only did Dany have Arya rub and massage her shoulders, but her back as well. Arya’s next ten minutes were divine as her fingers worked the queen’s shoulders and back. Her pussy was soaked, especially when the Queen pressed back into her hands. The sudden push into her fingers while she worked the down queen’s ribs had nearly caused Arya’s hands to touch Dany’s breast. The Queen would never forgive her!

For some reason the queen huffed then when Arya made sure to keep her fingers only on her back. She must have done something wrong.

All too soon, she could not excuse her continued massaging of the Queen’s back. “All done, my Queen.” Arya had announced with a flourish.

For some reason the queen huffed again and then told Arya she had to hurry to a meeting. She seemed slightly agitated as she jerked her blouse back on. Daenerys stood up and remained still a moment, and sighed heavily before turning around to thank her for her excellent ‘medicinal fingers’ she’d said, wiggling her fingers wagging her eyebrows. They had both laughed. Dany seemed alright after that, thankfully. She assumed the queen had a lot on her mind.

Arya could not think of anything she had done wrong.

She continued to practice her steps and with her two real weapons, improving her sword work. Her two masters observed her as they passed by the courtyard on their way to the small council.

Arya continued to practice for another hour before taking a quick meal in the common kitchen. She loved being with the ‘common’ folk. They seemed so real to her.

She went back to the practice yard, and retrieved her bow. She headed to the greensward in the middle of King’s Landing to practice archery with Mya. Mya was improving greatly with her archery skills, and she was also improving with her swordsmanship.

Arya liked Mya’s down to earth nature. Neither her or Gendry had changed, from what Dany told her. They were honest and direct.
Mya hugged her like a long lost sister whenever she greeted Arya. Arya found she liked it. She missed a lot with Sansa with their senseless feuding. Thank the gods that was behind them now.

They shot arrows at the dummy butts. They laughed and joked. Arya contemplated asking Mya for advice about her feelings about Dany, but didn’t dare risk the girl being straight and freaking out with her unnatural desires for the Queen.

Arya grimaced at her predicament. She would just have to make do with the Queen’s platonic affections though she desperately wanted more.

Cowled Woman

The rain fell softly down from an angry sky. The water fell onto the boughs above the woman paralleling the party traveling down the Wayfarer Road, that connected White Harbor to the King’s Highway. The cold rain did not affect her. She did not feel it.

The road had even more traffic than normal. The unsettled nature of current events had armed soldiers and knights riding up and down the roads of Westeros. The Wayfarer Road was no different. In the last six hours, banners depicting various houses went up and down lane as marshalling forces went to their staging areas.

The woman walking off to the side of the road silently noted all this as she trailed a large party of knights. They had an emissary in their midst. The rain fell down on the diminutive woman, completely soaking her cloak that was cinched tight around her waist. The sleeves of her cloak were large, and barely showed the tips of her small fingertips. Her face was covered by a deep cowl, hid in a well of inky darkness in the grey light. The woman to all appearances no more than a child in late adolescence.

The woman lifted her head up, and let the cold rain fall on her face enjoying the feel of the cold droplets. The water beading on her face and then running down her delicate throat. She lowered her head again, and turned to look at the party she was pacing a mile away. Her sharp eyesight spotted the emissary easily.

He leaned from side to side, and would reach up and grip his forehead in agony. The pressure of the wet weather caused the man intense pain, she observed. She watched the breath steam from his mouth. All of them were chilled. The horses’ flanks shivering from the cold she did not feel. No breath steamed from her mouth.

The woman was walking in and out of little copses of willows and maples. The grass was waist high and above on the small woman. She moved through the tall grass; plucking brambles without a sound. The clutching thorns seemed to slide off her tunic. The blades pushed aside like silk and closed behind the woman with no fanfare. She passed a fox, unnoticed by the small canine, as it ambled down a small side trail right in front of her.

Small streams flowed aimlessly beneath her bare feet. The woman did not feel the cold on her bare feet. The mud sucked on her feet the muck embracing each toe in a lover’s embrace. The woman effortlessly pulled each foot from the muck that grasped the appendage like a spurned lover. Her body was untouched by the hypothermia that would have long ago sapped a normal person of warmth and even consciousness.

Wet leaves clung to her small feet as she worked herself between and sometimes through the tall underbrush. She easily slipped the branches that tried to catch her tunic. Her body when possible dodged and almost sensually danced through the rough, tall, dead weeds. Thorns and seeds tried to catch her lower legs, but she easily moved around their clasping grip.

When not possible she easily passed through the brambles pushing aside with her hands and steady step. Her body bulling through effortlessly. No scratch on skin or rent of fabric was left by the violent lover embraces of the twisted briars.

The woman cared little for the men she followed. It was what the emissary was carrying that interested her. She came to a twelve foot deep creek that was eight feet across. Winter dead willows wilted over onto the surface of the rank water. The woman flexed her knees into a half crouch. She effortlessly jumped the creek, keeping her balance perfectly on the soft bank on the other side. Her feet sank deep into the mud. A strong knight would struggle to remove their feet from the sucking mud. The cowled woman effortlessly pulled her bare feet free. She continued to walk on, paralleling the force of men and horses on the road.

Just then, six soldiers on horseback rode past with the heraldry of a crown above crossed long handled battle axes, with a background of yellow. She liked the color yellow. Earlier in the day she had seen other heraldry. She had seen an eagle's head between crossed tridents, red on white on two traveling knights. After that, she had seen a group of troop of soldiers trudging down the road soaked with their heraldry of a black sword upright between four black horseshoes on gold, a grey-green border. Just an hour ago she had liked the heraldry of a pine tree covered with snow in a pale green pile, on white. This accompanied a troop of four knights, and twenty foot soldiers.

She did not like the heraldry of the party of twenty-eight men surrounding the man with the throbbing headache. Their heraldry was of a red flayed man on pink de sang. The image and what it implied made her grind her teeth. The image bespoke of cruelty, and a lust for brutality. The woman looked inside the men, and saw that the area of the brain that controlled aggression was more developed in these men. She saw also that their frontal lobe that contained the premotor cortex which helped exercise self-restraint was less pronounced than most humans.

These men had been raised on violence, and their neuron wiring had developed along those lines. The woman took a calming breath that she did not need. No steam bellowed from her nostrils. She needed no oxygen. She hated men with a deep-seeded passion. She knew not all men were evil, but her imprisonment by A-Jeroth in the abyss beneath Mount Thunder had driven her insane. She had been trapped for countless millennium gnawing on her anguish and hatred for the man who had imprisoned her.

She had in time come to slaughter any man that came into her grasp, and took into herself any woman and filled them with the self-hate, loathing, insanity and fierce anger that consumed her. She had been filled with self-hate because it had been A-Jeroth’s sweet lies and her own lust for power and control that led to her downfall. For so long she had screamed in rage.

It had been Linden Avery surrendering herself willing into her evil grasp, and then reasoning with her as she tried to drive the woman insane that saved her. The Ringthane had reached her. She still was not sure how. Her hate and self-loathing had been total and complete. The woman had allowed her to totally swallow Linden Avery. With white gold, Linden Avery resisted her attempts to destroy her body. She had flung enough power to crush mountains to powder and rip the oceans from their basins and send them boiling into space, and still the White Gold Wielder resisted her.

She felt Linden Avery healing the women within her, and throwing them out of her being and into the surviving ur-viles. Linden Avery had ripped her prized women from her, hurling them into the demondim spawn.

Linda Avery had told her how to slip the bounds of the Land, and the unknown land of Westeros.
As the Worm at the World’s end drank from the Blood of the Earth at its southern font under Melenkurion Skyweir, the world began to founder and crumble. As the laws of magic and physics frayed, She Who Must Not Be Named slipped her prison to escape into the wide universe.

She had slapped Lord Foul as he called himself now, down with one backhand as she slipped her shackles.

Gods that had felt good, to so easily strike down her tormentor. She no longer cared about him as she fled the dying world and went out into the universe.

Only the world had not died. Linden Avery, her son Jeremey, with the new Staff of Law and her husband Thomas Covenant had forged a new world on the template of the old, dying world. The humans in Westeros, Essos and Southern Islands of the northern hemisphere never even knew they had blinked out of existence for a few brief heartbeats before the three had created a new world on the template of the dead old world.

She had roamed the galaxy for the last forty thousand plus years since her freedom. She had slipped into the alternative reality that had birthed Thomas Covenant, his wife and adopted son, and walked among the humans of that reality.

In her travels among the stars and various realities, she had learned to control her anger and self-loathing. It was still difficult at times, though. Her thoughts would return to the prison of the abyss, and she could feel her old madness yammering for revenge and need to hurt others as she was hurt.

Six months ago she had decided to return to the world of her birth. She had slipped from between realities on a wave of anti-graviton particles, slipping through the wormhole anomaly she had created by phase shifting her molecular vibratory spin of her very sub-atomic particles.

She had been surprised not to translate upon the renewed Melenkurion Skyweir. She had instead wound up on a high jutting rock along a beach. She looked up at the sky, and saw the stars that no human eyes could see.

She was in the Northern hemisphere. How was this possible? Her will was absolute. She Who Must Not Be Named looked down at the beach. In the distance she saw a group of men and four women. Much nearer to her was a silver haired woman who was three inches taller than her, and a dwarf walking side-by-side. She was proud of herself. She did not desire to kill and torment either of them.

She watched the silver haired woman pause. She felt consternation and rising rage flowing off the woman, and hope from the handsome dwarf. Then the woman stood before the little man. He did not feel the absolute rage boiling hidden beneath the woman’s false façade. Then the little man felt terror as the woman nearly garroted him.

Some things never changed, it seemed.

She Who Must Not Be Named looked again at the silver haired woman with beautiful violet eyes. She was Earthpowerful. She was not magical, but suffused with the essence of mystery that was Earthpower. She was like the Haruchai or Ranyhyn. The woman was in fact filled to overflowing with Earthpower. She looked around, and opened her senses to the world.

As the woman and dwarf walked down the beach, the returned woman who was like unto a god tuned herself to the world of her birth. After a few minutes, she closed her senses back to more human levels.
The font of the Blood of the Earth in this hemisphere had been shattered over four hundred years ago. A fool human with white hair and violet eyes had allowed a Raver to lie to him. He had drunk the Blood of the Earth, and invoked the Power of Command. An instant later, the land called Valeryia had been destroyed.

Not even she would dare drink the Blood of the Earth and attempt to give a command. Only Linden Avery had drunk from the Ichor of the Earth and given a command and not brought calamity. Her tortured purity of heart and love guided her to the proper command.

From that moment, magic had been decaying in the North. In time it weakened the bond the cold Earth had gripped the Ice King with. He was now free and planning to come South and destroy all human life. He had formed an unholy union with a Croyel. She felt her anger suddenly boil and flood her with the desire to translate her essence to the far north and confront this Ice King.

It would only take her several hours to unbind his entire army of dead. She would shatter his ice children, and then shatter his crystalline body with her crushing hands, and then rip the Croyel apart.

The next instant she discarded the idea.

Her rage would be too much, she feared. She would lose control of her restraint, and once more become incorporeal. Instead of ice cold death coming out of the North, it would be a green roiling cloud of death and insanity that would come flowing out of the frozen north. She would kill all men and consume all women at a pace that the Ice King could never achieve. She would then devour the land of Essos.

She would be compelled to cross over the guardians of the Soul Bitter and Soul Crusher to attack the Southern hemisphere. Maybe the Lords and the Ring Wielders could defeat her, but she doubted it. She would consume all life and attack the now hated Elohim who never came to her defense and freed her from her prison.

She had calmed herself then. She sensed this white haired woman was the locus of the Earthpower’s dying defense. She and two other women were being filled with its essence to attempt to restore the Blood of the Earth, but first the white haired woman would have to defeat the Ice King.

She Who Must Not Be Named could not dare expose herself to the Ice King. Her desire for revenge against his vile maleness might overcome her control. The Ice King with his power was the avatar of A-Jeroth, the man who imprisoned her and instilled her native hatred of men.

She had learned in her roaming not all were evil.

This was not the case with the men she was now tracking. These men were filled with the desire for violence. They were set to betray the white haired Queen. She had determined that like the ur-viles, she would aid the Queen one time. She hated these men and their willingness to betray their own kind for the promise of power and avarice.

She marked her quarry as they trudged down the road. She Who Must Not Be Named moved silently through the tangled underbrush. Her body slipping around and between all the twigs and brambles grasping for her when possible or used the smallest fraction of her strength to force passage through.

Her green tunic was untorn. When a rent was made she instantly mended the tear in the fabric. The fabric was soaked in mud with her travels, but her flesh was untouched by cut or mire. In the far distance she saw the inn the group of vile men were slowly moving towards. The building slowly grew closer with the tired gait of the horses slowly eating up the remaining distance to the inn.
Finally, the men arrived at their destination.

She followed from a distance as the men went to the stables and put their horses in for the night before heading to the large tavern that was well situated for all the traffic. The four story building was long and rectangular shaped. The outside of the structure was done in a stucco and wooden beam pattern.

She Who Must Not Be Named waited patiently outside in the rain that had started to pour down with the clouds lowering and the cooling temperatures precipitating the moisture out of the clouds. The rain now struck the woman hard, but she ignored the downpour. It did not affect her. Her feet sunk in a dank, boggy mush. She stood off to side of the road. She again turned her lidless eyes up to the sky and let the rain cool the heat of her thoughts.

The man, named Merrett Frey she’d learned by touching his mind, had again drank himself into unconsciousness. What she wanted was on the table beside his head, lying there as he snored loudly. It was time to act.

The woman walked resolutely to the road, and then crossed the mud and offal with sure steps. She walked up to the porch. She took the two steps to get to the main doors of the establishment. With no effort, the small woman pushed open the heavy oaken door. It swung back on well-oiled hinges.

The silent woman walked into the establishment. She looked around in the smoky air that filled the common room. She looked to the right and left on the end walls at the large hearths filled with logs that burned hotly. Her deep cowl completely hid her features. The hearth filled with red hot cankers and pine wood popped loudly as sap boiled in the flames.

She looked around the room mapping the location of the men from the House of Bolton. They were eating and drinking noisily. The men were busy ordering refills to their plates, and more ale for their mugs. The small woman moved to the backside of the room, and found a seat along the bench that lined the wall. She was small, and found a spot to the side of a large man and a woman who was laughing and jesting with him.

She felt the love between them, and turned her gaze scowling. How could a woman love a man? They were all traitors! She took a deep breath, calming her ire. She clenched her fist. Her anger was never far from the surface.

There were twenty large, rough-hewn circular tables that could seat at least ten people each. Three of the tables were filled with her quarry, and the rest of the seats were taken by other travelers on the road. The tables were messy, with spilt beer and water. Pieces of broken loaves of bread and mashed potatoes and detritus of various vegetables covered the areas around the plates and mugs. These human were messy eaters, she thought with distaste.

The patrons were noisy as they ate. She would wait for alcohol to further dull the senses of her quarry. She did not want trouble. She strived for ease of spirit and lack of conflict now. All she had to do was touch the satchel that carried what she sought. She needed to touch it to do what she must.

The woman looked around and waited. She observed some women come in and start to ply the room. She listened as the whores made their bargains for the pleasures of the flesh. She idly thought such actions were a waste of time. She had never consummated her betrothal with A-Jeroth. She had hoped for sweet pleasures with A-Jeroth. She wished such pleasures no more. She had learned to control her desires.

She hoped that some of these Boltons would partake of the prostitutes, but they did not. They laughed and jested and some were clearly intoxicated. The Frey had not moved. She looked around at the men guarding him. None were paying any attention to the man.

It was time.

The small woman rose from her seat, her cloak mostly dry now. Her bare feet were crusted in mud that flaked off as she walked between the tables to her quarry. One touch was all she needed. She went to the bar beside the drunken, passed out man, and looked at her prize up close.

Her left hand moved across the counter and touched the satchel.

“What the hell are you doing, you fucking twat?” A man’s voice snarled.

The small woman continued to look forward.

“I saw you watching us, and the man at the counter. You some fucking spy, twat? Sending a fucking midget to do a man’s job,” the man snorted derisively. “You are going to be sorry you were ever born, slut.”

The woman ground her teeth, her left hand balling into a fist on the countertop. She counted to ten as she had learned on the world of Thomas Covenant.

The man laughed as several others joined him, standing behind their leader. All had their swords out. The woman could feel their avarice. They would use this incident as a reason to rape her.

“Our lord told us to be on the lookout for any spies of the Queen. Should have known the cunt would send a female dwarf to do her bidding.” His men laughed again.

“Turn around and take that hood down. I want to see who we will be raping tonight. I like some meat on my women, but hell, I’ll fuck a twig to get my cock wet. There won’t be much left of you woman, when our lord is finished flaying the skin off your face and tits.”

The room had gone silent as the dance macabre played out.

“I said turn your fucking self around! I will not tell you again, girl!”

“I would advise you all to leave now.” The small framed woman responded, still looking forward. The room quieted. The woman’s voice echoed in the room as if speaking from a tomb. The sound cold and unnatural.

The men gaped for a second but brushed off the strange voice. “Hahaha! Neat trick there with the voice girl. You got to be fucking joking me! You’re telling me what to do? Turn your fucking chicken leg ass around.” The man looked down “What the hell? No shoes! What kind of nimwit are you, cunt?”

The woman took a depth breath. “This is your last warning. I will not show or give any quarter if I turn around. Go back to your master. Leave me be.” She woman continued to stare straight ahead, her body absolutely still. The men again heard the echoing voice as did the whole room now. The room had become as silent as temple mouse. Everyone felt unease. The men of Bolton looked at each other. Together they screwed up their courage to confront this strange woman who displayed no fear. This angered them.
“This is fucking insane. Turn your godsdammed skinny ass around and face the men who will break you, little girl. Why the Queen sent a child to do her work I do not know. It won’t save you.”

The woman sighed a breath she did not need, and turned and looked at the man who towered over her and had a broadsword six inches from her throat. He looked down at her evilly. He was unnerved that the woman showed no fear that he could see.

“I’m not sure if you’re even worth the effort. That twat must be tiny and skanky, being out there in that weather. Probably has mold in it.” Some of his men behind him laughed at the jib. “Maybe your asshole will be a better fit for my giant cock.”

The woman calmly looked up at him, her cowl hiding all her features.

The loud man moved his sword forward and hooked it underneath the forward apex of the silent woman’s cowl and pushed it back off her head.

The hood slid down to her shoulders, and all in the room who saw her gasped in shock.

The man holding the sword gaped at her. His eyes were large as he took in her face. The woman had the eyes of a demon. They were completely circular, and completely green, with no whites or irises visible. The otherworldly calm woman had no eyelids. Her eyes were the size of gold dragons. The eyes of the woman unnaturally bright in their bright green color. The woman’s eyebrows started near the bridge of her nose, but rose up at a forty-five degree angle to near her hairline. Both her eyebrows and hair were a bright green.

The man saw her ears through the hair that went down to her shoulders. They swept back to two points near the top. Her ears were normal size except for the long tips. The points were long and sharp.

Her face would have been beautiful, if it was not so unearthly. The face regarded the man without any fear apparent. This frightened the man. This small child was not a third his size. She was outnumbered over twenty to one and she exuded no fear. The small child like woman stood still and regarded him coolly with her unnatural unblinking eyes. The woman had the breast and hips of a girl not yet flowered. He sensed his woman was no maid fair waiting to flower. This woman was ancient he somehow knew.

The man made a snap decision. He knew he was dealing with something not natural. His shoulders bunched to drive his sword through the throat of this strange woman. He would figure out what he was dealing with when he examined her corpse.

“No.” the woman spoke softly. Though softly spoken the command echoed in the room.

The man’s wrists jumped up with the sudden reduction of weight of his sword. His sword had turned to mist, and the smell of burnt metal filled the area around the pair.

Quicker than anyone could register, the small woman stepped up to the man and her left hand whipped up in a blur, and slammed into his chainmail. Her fingertips easily sliced through the mail, and her hand ripped up into the man’s thoracic cavity, her hand closing around his heart and ripping it out with a savage back jerk of her hand.

The man stared down, his eyes seeing with horror his heart still beating. The enzymes between nerve synapses still allowing electrical impulses to fire down the neural pathways.

The woman looked up at him and squeezed his heart, making it explode in her fist. The woman’s hand went forward to thump the dead man who toppled back. The woman dropped the pulped
The Bolton men were stunned for a few heartbeats. Then a man to the left recovered and charged the woman, swinging down with his broadsword aiming to cleave her head in two.

The woman’s hands rose up in a blur and struck his sword eighteen inches apart from opposite sides. The blade snapped into thirds. The metal flung past the woman. The man stumbled and started to pass to the right of the silent woman. She pivoted and turned slightly. Her right hand went up and chopped down.

The blow decapitated the man, sending his headless body slamming into the bar, his neck gushing blood everywhere, soaking the woman’s feet and the hem of her robe.

People were getting up, cursing and shouting in fear. Women were beginning to scream as they attempted to back away from the carnage erupting unlooked for in their midst.

She Who Must Not Be Name turned calmly to face her foes. The rest of the Bolton men looked uncertainty at each other, but rage at the loss of two of their own quickly shook their stupor off. They started to move forward.

The woman made a clawing motion, and a man two tables back had his face ripped apart. The front of his skull fell off, his brains unraveling and spilling down. Now the eating area was filled with screams and panic.

She turned and clenched her fists, and two men screamed as their hearts burst in their chests. The men fell to the ground kicking wildly. Blood gushed from their mouths. Now men and women were running around in the large room nearly trampling each other. They screamed in panic seeking exit.

A man with a giant war axe had closed in to chop her head off. She ducked underneath the mighty, furious swipe of the axe, and gripped the handle with her left hand as the stroke whistled by. She Who Must Not Be Named ripped the weapon easily from his grip, and buried it in his back as he stumbled past the small woman, the ax buried to the hilt.

A man rushed her and she ducked his sword strike. She jumped up and her left fist whipped out. Her fist impacted on the man’s nose and drove clean through his head. The fist busted out the back of the man’s skull her wrist out his head. The man’s skull and brains exploded out the back of the man’s head.

The woman was covered in gore as she calmly shook the corpse off her arm. She looked at a man getting ready to throw a javelin at her. She made a raking motion of her right hand, her fingers clawed. The man’s head was sliced into quarters and fell the ground the cuts angled as blood and brain gushed out over men and women beside him.

Men and women were screaming and running into each other in their panic, the rising carnage soaking many in the gore of her kills.

Two men attempted to rush with their swords whistling down on her where she stood calmly looking at them. She ducked slightly to the right to miss the first strike and moved forward faster than the eye could follow between the two men. The diminutive woman spun around and jumped up and gripped the back of the men’s heads by their hair. The men of House Bolton had still not registered she was no longer in front of them.

The woman slammed their heads down into the hard white oak countertop. The heads exploded into skull shards and brain pulp, the wood of the countertop splintering. Two big depressions were left where the ruined heads had impacted.

She spun around and ducked down with a sword missing over her and she surged forward driving her arms clear through the thick chainmail clad man before her. Her short arms not able to fully puncture his thick body. The woman ripped her arms out to the sides. The man’s ribs explode out as lungs, liver and intestines flung around and onto the milling people.

The screams in the establishment were rising to a crescendo of ragged panic.

A man was aiming his bow at her now. She made a hissing sound, and the man screamed as blood gushed out his nose, eyes, mouth and ears as the blood boiled in his veins.

The woman staggered back. A man had gotten in and slammed his double bladed battleax into her skull. The blade exploded into thousands of shards.

The woman caught her balance. The man was double over his fingers broken from the wild vibrations of the exploding blade of forged steel.

The woman’s left hand with clawed fingers snapped forward. Her fingers and thumb punctured the man’s skull and sunk into the man’s skull to the third knuckle. His body flipped wildly in a death dance that did not make the woman move an inch. She pushed her arm forward and then snapped it back. The man’s dead body whipped up off the floor and arched through the air his body a ragdoll to the woman. The woman’s arm snapped in an arc behind her. The man’s body flew off her fingers and slammed into the wall of cubes and liquor bottles. The impact shattering all that was underneath or near the corpse where it shattered into the wall.

The small woman was soaked in blood and gore from her green hair to her feet, her hair mostly red now with white highlights of brain and bone fragments. She was unperturbed with being soaked in gore.

The fight had gone out of the rest of the Bolton men and they fled into the night nearly knocking the outer door off its hinges in there panic.

The small woman looked around calmly. The panicked humans screaming and trampling each other did not even register with She Who Mush Not Be Named still being in their midst. They had only one thought. Flee into the night outside or up the stairs to hope for sanctuary. Satisfied that any threat was gone she calmly turned to the still passed out Merrett Frey.

She reached out and picked up the exact copy of the satchel and its contents she had created before she was interrupted. She put the satchel over her shoulder and calmly walked through the main room where those still in the room looked at her with shock. Their breathing shallow and their eyes dilated.

The petite woman walked out onto the front walkway in front of the establishment. She smirked at Heisenberg and his precious principle. Of course you could make duplicates. The equations always balance on the subatomic level. The valance shells always balanced in their equilibrium.

She had the satchel with the treasonous correspondence between House Frey and Bolton. She would help the pale Queen in this one way. Her scribe could decipher the code. The fool had left the cipher key in a side pocket. If they could not decipher then she was meant to fail. If all life ceased in this reality she would once again flee into the stars.

She How Must Not Be Named did not concern herself with the blood and gore matting her hair and running down her limbs.
She walked out into the rain still falling in a downpour. She moved to the middle of the road. The cold rain slowly cleansing her body of the gore that soaked her small frame. She was proud of herself. She had killed those who attacked her but she had not felt the need to attack and slay any others. In times past she would have killed all in the establishment. Her control was indeed improving. She tilted her head back and let the cold rain fall on her face.

The woman concentrated and created a quantum singularity. She flooded it with anti-gravitons and then shifted her vibratory phase of her very molecules down to her quantum particles. A white light flashed and pulsed several times like a bright twinkling star in the middle of the road. Then in the center of the white flashing white light a black hole appeared and space seemed to fold in on itself. From the side, the apparition had no depth.

In front of She Who Must Not Be Named a long tunnel formed. From the black singularity green bands of dark and light green flowed out in a right hand twist. Always moving out to the edge fading away just in front of the green eyed woman. She stepped into the singularity and slipped into sub-space and was gone. The singularity flared and disappeared.
Patrons, apprentices and vendors catering to the businesses located on the Street of Steel walked up and down the thoroughfare. They heard the sounds of heavy sledgehammers and straight-peen hammers hitting heated steel ingots, shaping the metal into the desired form.

Heat from the forges bellowed out of the shops, warming onlookers and those just passing by. Apprentices, and sometimes even master smiths themselves, worked the bellows, sending concentrated air out the tuyere into the coals to keep the coke white hot. Entry level apprentices would poke the coals periodically, to keep the fire at the proper level. Sometimes the apprentice would take up a steel rake to remove slag, or use a slice for collecting coal over the fire until the metal, held by tongs buried in the choke, began to glow first red, and then white hot.

There were many smithies lining the lane. The Street of Steel began its life near the flood plane of the River Gate, often called the Mud Gate. The lane started up the rise in elevation to the west, across from Fishmonger Square, where the catch of the day came into King’s Landing to be processed for consummation.

The smiths on the end of Street of Steel that came up from Fishmonger Square were not of the high level of skill that brought about the nobility and knights; those businesses were for the general masses and for the businesses that existed to serve the populace of the city. They made the items that the everyday man, and especially the fishermen needed. Eating utensils, nails, hinges, knobs, pots and skillets were produced on a utilitarian, easy-to-make design. They forged small parts for other craftsmen who produced lamps, parts for wagon smiths, pipes and fittings for the rudimentary plumbing needs of King’s Landing. Those closest to Fishmonger Square produced hooks, sinkers, net claps, pulleys, gutting and boning knives, bone scrapers, fillet knives, cleavers, hooks, bone saws, and even the cable needed to run their pots and nets in and out of the boats.

From the start of the Street of Steel at the Fishmonger Square, the laneway made a lazy half turn to the west, and north around Visenya’s Hill. The elevation gradually rose as the lane worked up to the Great Sept of Baelor. The smithies themselves gradually became more upscale along with the elevation. The higher the incline; the higher the level of craftsmanship. Near the top, the smiths produced knives, forks and spoons - but they were not made cheaply or coarsely. The utensils were made of high grade steel, and just as often silver, copper, and bronze. And for the very wealthy, the eating implements were actually made of pure gold. Pots and pans were finely crafted as well, with a polished shine that blinded one if the sun struck them. The stems were often customized with ornate designs representing one House or another.
The smiths also made exquisite works of art for mundane items like chamber pots, sputum, bookends, storage boxes, and bins. Fanciful scroll work were created to tack to the facades of buildings, and on the sides of walls inside homes.

Further up the lane, by the base of Visenya’s hill, worked the artisans of Street of Steel. There the smiths made statues from the minuscule in size, up to the huge mammoths that adorned public squares and the forays of lavish homes, or even the innate gardens behind high privacy walls. Many of these shops housed workers that specialized in the crafting of precious stone, along with painters and masons.

Some smiths worked on the scale of the grandiose, where other smiths only worked on the fine scale of personal jewelry. They specialized in necklaces, bracelets, earrings, and rings for fingers, toes and noses, piercing studs and caps, anklets and belts for all sort of attire. The works they created were exquisite works of art. The craftsmanship sought after throughout the known world.

Where the Street of Steel made a lazy half turn around the base of Visenya’s Hill to the Great Sept of Baelor, the smiths of craft gave way to the implements of war. The hook in the road nicknamed the Arakh. The exotic name caught the ear of the knights, nobles, hedge knights and sellswords walking up the road. It got them in the frame of mind to spend money for finely crafted weapons.

The first shops in that section of Street of Steel worked to make the weapons for Hedge Knights, and the conscripts called into service when the Houses went to war. These smiths made the common weapons of basic swords, pikes and arrowheads for the common soldiers that came to meet the call of their Lords. The weapons while not exquisitely created; they were functional and served the user well. The Stormlands and the Crownlands received many of the weapons for their foot soldiers from the forges of the lower ranking smiths of the armory section on the Street of Steel.

As one moved up the lane as it curved back towards the Temple of Baelor, the quality of the workmanship as well as the quality of the steel used in the weapon making improved markedly. The steel became better tempered, with more of the impurities hammered out of the iron, and more secret ingredients added to strengthen the steel. This is where the nobles and the knights of renowned went for their weapons. These were the patrons with the money to pay for such fine workmanship.

Here weapons were created that would stand there owners well. The blade were hone to a razors edge and the blade would keep their edge with minimal maintenance. The blades tempered so not to break in battle. The blades and scabbards were crafted to be pleasing to the eye. The blades crafted to uplift the spirit and confidence of the owner and sow doubt in the hearts of the owner’s foes.

As the end of the Street of Steel was reached, the best and most skilled of the smiths for armor and weapons could be found. The most highly regarded of those masters was a smithy by the name of Tobho Mott. He was the most highly regarded master armorer in King’s Landing, and, in reality, all of Westeros. His shop resided at the very top of the Street of Steel.

His establishment, Qohor Sorcerers Anvil, was a structure of three stories. His shop, made of timber and plaster, was larger than all the other buildings on the Street of Steel. Its upper stories towered over the street. The double doors had an ebony and weirwood carving of a hunting scene depicted on it. Two stone knights, clad in red suits of armor in the shapes of a griffin and a unicorn, stood guard at the entrance to the smithy. The west end on the first floor was open, and housed the actual smithy itself, with five forges and their supporting bellows. The second floor housed prized artisans that added adornments to the weapons they made, such as jewels on highly crafted pommels, or scarabs of the highest quality and ornamentation. The third floor was the residential floor, where the owner and his journeymen and apprentices dwelt. Tobho Mott treated his acolytes as family.

Not only was Tobho Mott regarded for the sheer excellence of his work, and the subtle and sublime design of his craft, he was a smith who had learned his trade in Qohor. He was one of the few armormers who could work Valyrian steel. Of all the armormers in King’s Landing, he claimed to be the only one who could add tint to the metals in a suit of armor, or a blade itself, without using dye.

This day Tobho Mott was out making calls to patrons, checking on their recent purchases and making sure the clients were satisfied with the work. He was also taking more orders. Each commission generated more business, and the word of mouth from satisfied customers traveled fast.

Word of Tobho Mott’s work had crossed the narrow seas to the Ports of the Free Cities. Patrons coming to his shop speaking broken Westerosi to ask for the creation of swords, battle axes, pikes and war hammers.

Gendry Mott was at work at his father’s station. He heated up the end of the sword he had been working on, and pulled out the new ingot of heated steel that he had begun to work at the end of the previous day. His heavy lump hammer began the process of drawing the metal ingot out to reduce its thickness. He worked the new ingot to match it to what he already forged. He drew out the length and width of the metal he intended to forge into the base of the shaft of the sword he was creating.

His heavy hammer slammed again and again into the metal until he had it near the thickness he required. He then picked up both pieces, and took them to the forge. Two apprentices worked the bellows, blowing air out over the coke that a journeyman raked, and then added more coke to keep the fire at just the right heat and height.

Gendry smiled, recalling the days when he was a lowly apprentice. He looked back affectionately to those years. Even back then his master had treated him with respect, and, even fatherly love. When the Queen had removed the stigma of his birth, he had thought long and hard about what name he would take.

Robert Baratheon had never been his father. He knew who had been. He had gone to Tobho, and asked his master if he could take his last name. The man had been a confirmed bachelor all of Gendry’s life. He had some great burden of the heart in his youth, and eschewed the love of a woman. Instead, the man had devoted all his efforts and affections into his trade and craft. His apprentices and journeymen were the sons he never had.

Gendry had been embarrassed when the old man had started to cry and hug him profusely. Tobho told Gendry that he would take over his business when he retired. He told Gendry that he had hoped to do this for years, and though he dreamed of this, he had always believed that the boy whom he had come to think of as his son would leave, like all journeymen eventually did. Tobho started referring to Gendry as his son from that very day. He had Gendry move into his personal quarters on the third floor, into a spacious bedroom.

Gendry had never known that it had always been bittersweet for Tobho when his journeymen achieved their goals and became their own masters. Once they passed their exams, they were given diplomas that read: “Smithy Master Guild Hammer and Tong”. Most couldn’t even read the commemorative words themselves. They were also given the Copper Hammer and Silver Tong engraved with their own names on them. With these symbols of his craft, the graduated master could leave his training to join any other master seeking a partner, or set up shop for himself.

Gendry had not thought any of it that big of a deal. Tobho had only ever treated him with honor and respect. He never mistreated Gendry in his youth, and had only helped him achieve his goals of becoming a Master. He had even gone so far as to start to show him the mysteries of working with Valyrian steel.
Gendry encouraged the bellow apprentices to pump harder as he looked at the steel glowing cherry red, and then hot white. He took out two open bit tongs to grip the two pieces of metal, and brought them to the anvil, placing the blade shaped metal shafts end to end with the molten tips over each other. Then he picked up his heaviest double-faced sledgehammer. Gendry pounded the two metal lengths into each other, making two into one.

His mighty sledgehammer stuck the two pieces one over the other, again and again, as the metal shafts began to meld into the other with each savage pounding strikes of his hammer. Under his might, they were starting to fuse. He gripped the new length at each end, and brought the now merged shaft up to eye level. He carefully eyed the newly formed sword shaft, and was pleased by what he saw.

He put the length of the metal into the forge, and quickly reheated it. Then he pulled the metal back out, and took it back to the anvil and finished fusing the metal until he had the length that he needed. He gripped the new, unfinished blade and slapped it into a large tub of water. The water hissed and bubbled, cooling the metal. After a moment he pulled it out, and inspected it for cracks or any undue warping. Satisfied, he found none.

He put it aside on a metal table that he had crafted himself.

His head brushed against a set of amour plates he had been smithing for a knight’s horse. He pulled down the sections that would cover the rear haunches. He inspected the metal, satisfied with the work he’d done so far. He took out his punch and set hammer, and began to to notch holes in the bottom edge of the amour piece, to run leather thongs through that would hold the armor in place on the mount.

As he took a file to smooth out the metal that had flared out around the new holes, Gendry reflected on his current situation. He smiled, looking up and seeing the helm he had made so many years ago, in the shape of a bull’s head. Even back then he proudly told himself his skill had been great. He had thought of making a new one a few years back, with a stag motif, but in the end he decided to keep the original. He had no real desire to take the stag as his standard.

He would one day take over his father’s business, and continue on the tradition of quality work that was the envy of all.

He had other reasons to smile as well. Lately, Mya had been coming to sup with him and Tabho. She had gotten on well with Tabho, and the man already thought of her as his daughter in turn. The old smith only smiled and waved them good cheer when they’d retire to Gendry’s bedroom.

The sex with Mya was mind blowing. She was strong and hungry in their bed. She wanted all of Gendry’s strength and stamina in bed when they fucked. She was as insatiable as he was. Gendry was happy that Mya had not only inherited their father’s height and strength, but his sex drive as well. They were most compatible.

Mya was starting to make decisions about their future, and fully supported Gendry taking Tabho’s last name. For her part, she had kept her bastard last name. She was proud of it now, and practically dared anyone to say anything derogatory to her. She knew she had the Queen’s full backing and blessing. Mya was also taking to the weapons training that they shared during the noon time, the hours most smiths closed down to avoid the extreme, damaging heat.

This gave Gendry and Mya time to train, and then go back to his room or her stables in the hayloft and fuck. When they fucked in the royal haylofts, they had to share space with several girls that were going at it hot and heavy in the hay loft with them. They would hear them fucking like weasels, with loud wails of ecstasy. It got them hot hearing it as they sneaked over to the part of the loft in the back they preferred. The girls had to know they were there, but they did not care as they buried their faces in each other’s pussies, eating steamy wet gash.

One girl was obviously a highborn noble, and the other a poor urchin from Fishmonger’s Square. One girl had the glow of a life of ease. Her clothes laid out were of the highest quality, and the best made. The other girl had plain, homespun clothes and hands that had calluses on them as she fingerblasted her writhing lover. She had a plain, girl next door kind of beauty. Their heated rutting always inspired them to fuck harder in the hay.

They sometimes could hear the highborn girl weep after making love to her partner, saying she would leave everything for her lover - but the lowborn would not hear of it.

Their plight tugged at Gendry’s heart.

There was a noise, and Gendry looked up, startled. The Queen was entering his establishment. He straightened his back, and ran his fingers through his sweaty black locks, pushing a few strands behind his ears.

The Queen of course had her royal hostage Arya Stark with her. He greeted the Queen, wiping his hands clean (or at least trying to). The Queen laughed and took his dirty hand without any hesitation. He was always surprised how calloused her hand was. He shook the shy Stark girl’s hand after, and was not surprised to feel it covered with callouses as well.

All in King’s Landing had heard the story of their initial meeting. It had become the matter of lore by now – ‘Love at First Fist’. The two women were perfectly respectable to each other though, with no hint of impropriety between them. They even maintained a perfect distance.

That facade quickly fell when they thought no one was watching them. That’s when their eyes revealed all that needed to be said. There were pools all around in King’s Landing among the working class betting on when the two women would become lovers. Gendry could see Arya mooning over the Queen while Daenerys’ violet eyes burned with raw lust. Gendry knew this look because he saw the same look in Mya’s eyes when she looked at him.

As he watched, the Queen and Arya moved deeper into his smithy. He looked at the front of his father’s shop. He gasped aloud. They turned to look at him, and then noticed what had caused his reaction. They turned back around, unconcerned.

Behind them loped a large Direwolf, the size of some of the fucking horses in the stalls of Mya’s royal stables. He was stunned at the sheer size of the beast, and how it gambled into his establishment as if it belonged there. It came up between the two women, who both reached up absently to scratch the massive snout of the beast affectionately. The top of the beast’s head was six inches over Arya’s head. The women were totally unconcerned having the massive beast beside them.

The Direwolf, with its dark grey pelt with white highlights, moved forward into the smithy and slowly came up to Gendry. The beast may have been larger than her mistresses, but the wolf still only came up to his upper chest. The beast lifted its snout, and looked up at him with golden eyes. Gendry could see the intelligence in the wolf’s eyes. The wolf looked around, and then back at him. Then the wolf looked back at its masters, and then back at Gendry one last time, bumping him with its body.

Gendry understood. The two women were under her protection, and Gendry was to not try and come between them, or her with them. Gendry nodded, indicating that he understood. The wolf woofed at him softly. Then, without warning, the wolf rose up on its hind legs and put its forearms on his shoulders. She stood over him now, and the Direwolf looked down at him with its burning eyes.

Worried, he looked over at Daenerys, but she did not seemed concerned. He looked back up at the Direwolf who turned her head, looking at him. She licked his face once, and jumped back down, returning to Arya who scratched her side while the Queen moved over and rubbed her cheek. The wolf’s tail thumped loudly on a cabinet.

After looking around at his work, the Queen and Arya moved over to him smiling softly. They asked about his work and inquired as to the health of Tabho Mott. Gendry was always mightily impressed with the Queen’s genuine interest in the subjects of her kingdom. Arya was obviously impressed with the weapons on display.

Gendry idly thought that he had no desire to fight either woman. His male ego felt no threat or need to try and prove himself against his Queen; he would lose. He was wise enough to accept that plain fact. The Queen had smashed her way across Essos, and Gendry had heard the rumors that the Stark girl was also a terror with her blades. She liked to fight with broadsword, and a small, crudely crafted rapier-type blade. Word was that her strength and agility was matched only by the Queen. She even had Barristan and Syrio respecting her physical prowess.

Her ability to master new techniques and fighting styles was the talk of the Red Keep. The Queen had found her match, it seemed. The Stark girl had the same preternatural abilities that the Queen had. If she kept improving at the rate she was, it would be truly frightening how skilled this small teenager could become.

Gendry had to shake his head. Mya was beautiful to look upon. Arya did not have the beautiful caste that the queen did, but she had an allure all her own. Arya had the girl next door beauty. Arya had a more handsome caste to her features, with her angular face and the way her curled locks ran in front of her ears while the rest of her shoulder length hair was pulled behind them.

It was those steel grey eyes, though, that gripped you. They were focused and bright, and always on the Queen. He smiled, watching Daenerys showing Arya things, always touching her to get her attention. Yes, it would only be a matter of time. The Queen spent all the time she could legitimately allocate with the girl.

Gendry had a sudden idea, thinking of love.

He stammered, asking the Queen for a moment of her time. The Queen had laughed, that pure, beautiful laugh that she had. He hesitated, but the Queen said she wanted anything he had to say be shared with the Stark girl also.

He told her of the plight of the two girls in the royal stables. How the difference in births was so unfair and cruel. He noticed how aptly Arya Stark hung on the Queen’s response.

Daenerys considered carefully. She said that she would definitely contemplate the situation. She had to consider the fact of the difference of their births, and that the priests of the Baelor did not accept same-sex relations. She would have to respect the mores of the major religion of her Southern Kingdom. She would not cause them more trouble by further stirring up the conservative elements of her realm.

Still, she had a soft heart, and would consider it.

Gendry saw Arya deflate a little at her pronouncement. Gendry himself was surprised that the Breaker of Chains would show such regard to the bigotry and misogyny evident in the sept of Baelor. He would love to see that institution brought low.

Maybe another day, he mused, as he watched the two women leave his establishment laughing and talking animatedly.

Mya

Mya walked up to the roan named Willow. The horse nickered, seeing his favorite human approach him. She calmed the stallion. She was always so gentle with him. She had her hand in her right pocket, and the horse nickered again, then hoofed the hay-strewn dirt floor in anticipation. He was not disappointed when she brought out a small handful of sugar cubes.

She held out her hand and giggled, feeling the horse’s lips rubbing over her palm as Willow nibbled the delicious treat up off her hand. The horse’s ears twitched, and his eyes shined after eating the treat. Next, she pulled out an apple that the horse took greedily.

Willow chomped on the apple as Mya reached into her back pocket and pulled out her hook pick. Mya ran her hand down Willow’s leg, and gently squeezed his tendon. The stallion lifted his foot up off the ground. Mya gripped the proffered foot, bending down and pulling the foot up to place it on her knee.

Mya took her pick, and starting at the heel of the hoof, picking forward to the toe. She carefully removed all rocks, dirt and other foreign objects she found in the grooves of his hoof, and lodged underneath the edges of the horseshoe. She made sure to clean the grooves on either side of the frog, but as it was more sensitive, she avoided using the hoof pick there and instead pulled out a fine tooth brush, and patiently worked the frog clean.

Mya continued working her way around the horse, cleaning all four hooves.

As she worked, Mya moved a little gingerly. The sex with Gendry the night before had been explosive, as always. She loved how he had the stamina to fuck her hard and deep, again and again. They made love hard when they went to bed, and would wake up several times during the night to make love again. The last time he had pounded her hard in the ass. Mya loved the intensity of anal orgasms, and Gendry did not shy from fucking Mya the way she liked it.

Mya pulled her curry comb off the hook on her belt. She used it to remove loose hair from the Willow. The whale baleen curry comb was designed to loosen up dirt, mud, and bits of things caught in a horse's coat. She worked it against the grain on the horse’s coat, moving it in vigorous, small, circular motions over the horse's muscles, avoiding bony areas like the face, spine and legs. Mya worked one side to the other, starting from the neck, then easing to the barrel, and then all the way to the rump and back around again.

Then Mya retrieved her dandy brush. The hard-bristled brush was used to take off the dirt and hair brought out by the curry comb. She worked the brush in short, straight-flicking motions to allow the bristles to get all the way through the coat to whisk the dirt out. She started at Willow’s neck, and worked back towards the tail of the stallion. She did not use the hard brush on the horse's legs, as they were much more sensitive than the rest of body. It became uncomfortable for the horse if brushed too hard with the dandy brush.

Once completed, she pulled out a soft cloth and used it on the more sensitive parts of the horse that she could not groom with the dandy.
She pulled out the body brush to finish Willow’s grooming. The brush was quite soft and could be used on all areas of the horse as a result of its texture. She was very careful around the face as the soft brush removed all remaining surface dust and hair. Then she moved to clean the horse's face with a wet sponge. She wiped Willow’s eyes, and cleaned out his nose. She got a new sponge to wipe the dock area under Willow’s tail. Because these areas were constantly moist, it was easy for dirt and mucus to build up and they needed to be cleaned up regularly.

Then she started to brush out Willow’s mane and tail. Before she started with the comb, she used her fingers to separate the hairs caught in large tangles. Then she used a wide- bristled mane comb to get tangles out of the thick hair. She gripped the whole tail, but worked the mane one large section at a time in one hand to avoid tugging, while brushing it out with the other.

She made sure to talk to the horse, and kept her hand on Willow so that he did not get spooked.

She rubbed a talcum powder into the main and tail, and then worked it in with her fingers. This would help keep the tail from tangling. Once that was done, she put in a moisturizer to make the hair look shiny.

Finally, she pulled out the medicinal powder and put it on the horse in a light coating. The powder would discourage flies from alighting and biting the stallion. Fly bites annoyed the steed, and horse flies could actually cause sores. The flies annoyed Mya too, but she did have a powder for herself.

Done, Mya gave the stallion some carrots and another apple for his patient behavior. She pet his rippling coat, enjoying the power she felt just beneath. It reminded her of the power of her man. Gendry was so strong and virile.

She chuckled thinking about him. He sometimes got confused and a little belligerent, but she easily calmed him down and helped him to figure out was best for them and their future. Just like with the horses.

She had had a little difficulty in getting him to accept her love for him, though. He had been so hung up with the ‘sin’ of incest. She told him to shove it. They were no more brother and sister than the sun and the moon. They had led totally different lives, and did not know each other until the Queen brought her to King’s Landing less than a year ago.

They were not all that related anyways as Mya saw it, with each of them having different mothers. The Targaryen’s had been marrying brother to sister for generations. She had heard it was normal in Valyrian society for such marriages. She liked that. She had been informed of Cersei and her children as well. Hell, everyone with a pair of eyes could have seen that Jamie and Cersei Lannister were fucking each other, with the Queen crapping out his babies on a regular basis.

She recalled her seduction of her big bull of a lover. She had told him she needed help moving some hay bales in the upper loft over the royal stables. She had not needed any help, of course. She had kissed him a few times, but the silly oaf had pushed her away.

She had been terribly hurt until he started bloviating about it being wrong and a sin against the great sept. He did not really believe in the silly beliefs and yet he let them cow him. That had angered her greatly. Everyone knew the damn Septons and their female counterparts Septas were busy fucking each other. Hell the Septas as a rule preferred fucking their own sex. They loved seducing the young maidens sent to them. Instead of working to save their souls they worked to bust their cherries. She had heard their monasteries were dens of hot lesbian debauchery.

You simply could not suppress human sexuality. It always came out when you attempted to suppress it. It was humanly impossible. Mya snorted thinking of the Silent sisters or by the name she liked to call them: the Stranger's wives. They did offer solace to the living and care for the dead. She had seen them in the Vale. She had come across the six silent sisters that had come for a young noble taken by the fever. She had gone to check on them in the hunting cabin they had been provided.

She had looked in the window after the sun had set. The sisters were not very silent. They were drinking wine and laughing and joking. Then as she watched the women nearly ripped their cloaks getting them off and fell on the furs in front of the fireplace and its hot burning fire. Mya preferred cock but seeing those six women for the next two hours simply fuck each other out had sent Mya to her current lover with an ache between her legs. He had been most exhausted by the next morning.

Her thoughts came back to her current lover. Gendry who she had decided would be her mate. She could still see his eyes nearly bulging out his sockets when she stripped before him. Then he stood shock still as she fell to her knees, and quickly fished out his raging hard boner out his trousers and went down on him. He had moaned so good for her as she sucked his massive cock.

Soon she was on her back as he rammed his manhood deep into her, pounding her balls deep. He had roared so sweetly when his cock exploded deep in her belly, shooting off hot bolts of hot cum into her womb so hard and hot. She felt each hard hot spurt deep in her belly and it felt so delicious.

He had been lacking in some skills, but she had quickly corrected that lack of experience. He fucked her far better than any of the lovers she’d had in the vale. He was so attentive, and tried to give her all the pleasure he could. She was quite besotted with the man. He was especially good at sucking her off. Gods that boy loved pussy!

She knew they could not officially wed, but she already considered herself the life mate of Gendry Mott. She had a suspicion that their Queen would eventually be making many things possible. Daenerys would likely open many doors for the oppressed and marginalized in her kingdom that stretched clear half way around the world.

She was hearing gossip that supported this. It seemed the Queen had found herself a paramour. Mya liked to have her ass slapped and haired pulled, but the Queen and this ‘Arya Stark’ took courtship to a whole other level. She had heard many versions of the fight in the throne room. That they had fired arrows at each other, running around the Iron Throne. Another story had the Queen leaping off the throne to land on the Stark girl. Another had them picking each other up and slamming into the steps of the Iron Throne, and then up to the actual throne before throwing each other off.

Whatever the truth, it had undoubtedly been most violent. All accounts had them looking like a side of beef in the butcher shop covered in bruises and contusions by the end. They had been limping, and Arya was in a wheelchair the next time she was seen.

By the end of a week, they had both miraculously recovered from their injuries. Their fight and miraculous recovery was on the way to making them legends among the common folk. That also started rumors of witchcraft, and consorting with demons, or talk that they were goddesses come to Earth. The more reasonable just assumed they had freakish healing abilities.

Mya tended to think the latter.

It was funny how things happened. Just as she was thinking about the Queen and her ‘royal hostage’, the objects of her reflecting just so happened to enter the royal stables. They were both dirty and sweaty, and it was obvious that they had been in the practice yard working with the two sword masters of the Red Keep. It amazed her still that the Queen, and now Arya Stark, were able to actually fight these men without them holding back.
It was cute how the two were already so attached at the hip. They had nearly knocked each other's teeth out, and beat the shit out of each other, and now they were inseparable. It really was cute, in a kinky way. Evidently the way to the Queen’s heart was through a left cross to her jaw.

They walked into the stables, and strode over to the Queen’s warhorse she had selected when she arrived in King’s Landing. It was a mean-tempered black and white stallion destrier. The beast was named Ironshod Mephistophiles. The horse was a defiant, ill-tempered beast. He was known for biting and kicking one at the most unsuspecting of times. He would lull you into a stupor of trust, and then strike most painfully.

The Queen walked up to the vile beast, and, as he always did, he stomped his hoof and shivered with happiness to see her. Then the horse lowered his head and whickered, as the Queen scratched its ears and lips. Arya approached with apples, and the horse eyed her, and then took the apples gently. The Queen was obviously trying to have the horse to take to the Stark as well as herself. Mya laughed quietly, as the horse acted like a wimp with them. What magic touch did the Queen have?

Gendry had told her of their visit to his smithy the week before. She did not see the Direwolf, so this visit must have been pre-planned. That beast would have sent the horses into a panic. The women moved around together after they had made the destrier happy with more apples, carrots and sugar cubes. The Queen really had the horse wrapped around her little finger.

It seemed Daenerys had someone else wrapped around her little finger as well. The Stark girl hung on every word the Queen said, and would sometimes just nod at the Queen when she asked Arya something with her big steel grey eyes all agog. The Targaryen somehow did not seem to recognize the love struck gaze, and would patiently repeat her question, with the younger girl shaking off the Queen’s spell and hiding her feelings beneath a mask of noble decorum.

So the Queen was indeed gay. Mya smiled. She may not be attracted to women that way herself, but she was happy for any woman who found love with her own sex. She had to admit they were both fine to look at. The Queen was radiant, with her tight fitting blouse showing off her beautiful little titties. Arya was flat chested, as much as Mya could tell. Not that it mattered though, Mya had a small bosom too. Gendry said the cutest thing about it, once - “anything more than a mouthful is a waste anyways.” as he sucked her entire boob deep into his mouth, and suckled like a starving babe. It had made her sensitive nipples scream in pleasure.

Two weeks ago, Barristan had come to them. He told them that he had been told that they were practicing with their weapons of choice. He would be honored to train with them, when time and schedules permitted. They had discussed their schedules and agreed to go to him on Sunday mornings, and three times during the week during the noonday break. The old knight had smiled and agreed.
Mya had been most pleased when the man had treated her as an equal. He gently corrected her again and again, as she began the rudimentary footwork and sword movements the master was teaching her. Barristan would move to Gendry and help her boyfriend work on his footwork and maintaining his balance while using his war hammer. It was a weapon that was easy to overextend with. He trained Gendry on using the long handle as a blocking force to keep swords at bay, until an opening for his hammer appeared.

They would work at their lessons deep into the night after dinner in the little courtyard behind Mott’s. The many oil lamps cast an almost ethereal glow around them as they fought. Her future father in law applauded them as the journeymen and apprentices whooped. They too wanted to learn. Tobho Mott would allow it, so long as their work did not suffer.

Mya knew her skills were improving. Not like what she heard about Arya Stark, though. She was already accomplished when she arrived at King’s Landing, and now she was being polished to a fine, keen-edged weapon of death.

Just like her Queen.

The Queen and her royal hostage easily conversed with Mya. They both seemed to really care about her work, and how she felt about her current station. The Queen especially wanted to make sure that Mya was still happy working directly for her. Did Mya need something more? Did she want to pursue another field? Did she require a larger residence? Mya knew the woman was trying to make up for her bad treatment as a bastard in the Vale.

Mya showed the pair around, introducing them to some of the other horses currently in the stable and not out running in the paddocks. The Queen was as gentle with all the other horses as she was with her own warhorse. They all seemed to be at peace in the Queen’s presence.

When they finally left, Mya saw them walking just that little bit closer than decorum dictated. Yes. Those two would undoubtedly soon be Queen and Queen. Mya could not wait.

Daenerys was obviously trying to hide her gay nature. She had probably been contemplating a royal marriage of political convenience. That would soon fall by the wayside. Soon those two women would consummate the love that was radiating off of them like the sun at midday.

She needed to get in one of those betting pools. She gave it two months, or maybe two and half months, tops. They were already spending all of their time together, and the Queen was lusty from the rumors she’d heard. The Stark girl, on the other hand, radiated a suppressed sexual dynamic.

It would be explosive, she was sure, when they did finally consummate their love. They would have a lot of making up to do for lost time.

Barristan

Barristan took a moment to catch his breath. It was Sunday morning, and he had finished his training with Daenerys and Arya. He pushed them to their limits, and they in turn pushed the master of Westeros. He had been training Daenerys Targaryen for almost six years now, and he was so proud of the young woman.

She had been a slip of a girl when he began her training at fourteen years old. She had long ago mastered all he and Syrio had to teach her. She had learned both the broadsword and the rapier, but it always made Barristan feel smug to think that Daenerys had gravitated to the broadsword.
Daenerys was not the kind of woman to lunge forward with the tip of a thin blade when she could slash and hack her way to victory.

Arya had certainly been a surprise to him. She had seemed so unsure of herself and hesitant when she had first come into the throne room that fateful day. He had seen the bastard sword on her hip, and another strange sword on her other hip. She had clutched her bow like she had never used one before. He had been shocked that Eddard Stark would allow his daughter to humiliate herself like that in front of the Queen. He thought that Ned had indulged the child, and let her think she was something that she clearly was not.

That thinking had quickly changed. He still blanched at how she had completely fooled him. Once she had been ignited with the fire of humiliation, the girl turned from a meek lamb to the Direwolf of her House’s banner. It was all done within a moment so fast, that Barristan still replayed it time and again in his mind. Since the ‘incident’, as he called it, in the throne had occurred, he could not truly wrap around in his mind how fast the girl moved.

The young woman was indeed one with her bow as well. Before he was able to react and pull his sword halfway out of its scabbard, Arya had pulled her bow up and notched two arrows at once on the bowstring and let loose. It had literally only taken her the blink of an eye to notch and fire. He had watched, horrified, as the arrows launched from the same pull seemed to magically separate in flight, and land into the Iron Throne one inch from each of The Queen’s ears.

He had seen many archers in his day, and never had he seen that kind of skill. The only ones he had ever heard with that kind of ability were those who followed the way of Bushido and Kyudo, in the land of Yi Ti.

After that, the enraged Queen had fought the girl with practice swords. Daenerys had been holding herself back, but was pushed all the same. The girl had been as fast as Daenerys, and had a strength on par with the Queen. They had landed blows on each on each other that would have crumpled the normal conscripts that made up most armies of Westeros.

He himself had received such blows from the Queen over the years of their intense training. He felt free to throw his own savage blows back at the diminutive woman, who was able to block and roll with most of his blows. Rarely did either land a solid strike on the other.

Now he and Syrio were doing the same with the Queen’s new protégée Arya Stark. She had lived up to the great promise on the floor of the throne room. She was cat-like quick. Her being left handed also gave her a natural advantage. Almost all other warriors fought right-handed, and this gave Arya the advantage of fighting against the same predictable form. For Arya, every opponent fought in the same style. Eddard Stark had been wise to let his daughter fight with her natural strong hand. He had seen masters force left-handed squires switch to the right hand. Again, Barristan had to admire Eddard Stark letting his children become what they were meant to be.

Arya had mastered the concepts and steps and counters that he and Syrio had taught her already. She had to be shown only once, and then she had it memorized. What he and Syrio were doing now was teaching the girl with the same exercises again and again, and then training her hard with full contact sparring. She was learning at a frighteningly fast pace. Eddard had given her the foundation that Syrio and he were building into something memorable. She had a natural gift that came from her father. Eddard Stark was the only sword fighter still alive Barristan would fear on the battlefield. Like Barristan, he was as natural with sword. They had been born from the womb destined to become the most feared swordsmen of their time.

Daenerys reminded Barristan of Rhaegar Targaryen. He was very, very good at everything he did. Even when it came to the martial arts - thus, his defeat on the battlefield to Robert Baratheon, who was indeed a master of his war hammer. Daenerys had much more speed than her brother ever did. Surprisingly, the small woman had the same strength as Rhaegar. She had come back from the dead with magical traits, or maybe her death had unleashed something within her small frame that had always been there. Her death like a caterpillar’s metamorphosis into a beautiful butterfly.

Barristan and Syrio both agreed that Arya had inherited her father’s natural ability. While Syrio had never seen Eddard use his sword, Barristan had. Barristan had only met two men who were his equal with a blade. They had been Sir Arthur Dayne, and Eddard Stark. He now added Syrio Forel to that list. If all water dancers were like him, then he hoped he would never have to fight one. His armor would give him a big advantage, true, but all armors had joints to allow for mobility. He now knew a water dancer could find those points with unerring accuracy.

He looked out at the practice yard. Syrio was fighting with Mya as she used her broadsword. She was swiping and blocking the water dancer’s lunges. She stayed light on her feet, and knocked his sword up or brushed it to the side while attempting to stab. Syrio was simply too fast for her to do that, that but she was still improving quickly. He was only moving at half speed, but had started at quarter speed when he had begun training the young woman.

Gendry was sparring with some knights in full armor. He was using a hammer with blunted spikes, one on the one end of his Warhammer, and one on the top of its head. His shaft on the end also had a spike.

Barristan had attempted to get the young man to change his weapon of choice, but Gendry insisted stubbornly that he would use the weapon that his father had used. He may not want his father’s last name but for some reason he was enamored with using the weapon of Robert Baratheon. He kept telling Barristan that it had worked well enough against Rhaegar Targaryen. Barristan had given up trying to impress upon Gendry that his father was a freak of nature with the Warhammer. The chances that Gendry would have the same skills were highly doubtful.

Barristan sighed. He would teach the young man regardless of his choice of weapon. He instructed the stubborn Baratheon in the basics on the use of the war hammer. The weapon was, in a way, an all or nothing weapon. You needed to make your first blow very effective, else you were immediately on the defensive.

Gendry initially made the mistake that all made with the war hammer and mace. If the first strike was not successful, almost all wanted to pull their war hammer back, and cock it over their shoulder, and then lunge forward again. This left the user of the war hammer totally open to a counterattack.

Barristan instructed Gendry to never pull back unless his opponent had been totally knocked off balance, and could not strike back. Then Gendry could afford the effort to pull back for another massive strike. Also, Barristan constantly kept telling the bull headed man that though he was strong as an ox, making full arm strikes again and again with his war hammer would still tire him.

The young man did not believe him of course. That was until Barristan wore the young man out continually blocking and shunting aside his blows. Gendry swinging wildly till his arms felt like lead. Syrio merely water danced his way out of harm’s way till the boy had exhausted himself with his wild swings. Only then did Gendry start to realize that maybe his masters knew what they were talking about. Then he was ready to truly learn.

Barristan showed Gendry how to drop the hammerhead and make a full, short loop with it pulled near the body. Then, how to bring the head of the hammer back up near his ear, and strike forward again and again to keep his foe off-balance and let the blows stun the enemy if struck on the head, or damage joints with repeated fast blows. The knight showed the young man how to use the hook to grip the back of a head or a limb, and pull forward and down to unbalance his opponent. Then he could deliver vicious, short strikes until his opponent was on the ground, helpless.

He constantly reminded the youth that when he missed a stroke, to slide his dominant hand up the shaft of his weapon to grip the war hammer just below the head, and with his weak hand on the other end of the shaft use it to block any blows coming his way. Barristan then showed Gendry how he must move forward in a surge to unsettle his opponent’s balance, allowing him to flip his weapon over and start hammering at the opponent again.

The lessons were hard to ingrain, but Gendry was quickly learning them. When he needed to, Barristan would swat the man with the flat of his practice sword hard on his ass, thigh or back to make his point.

Once he was done, he had the lovebirds go at each other for an hour or so. He considered it a form of marital counseling. They seemed to love being very physical with each other.

As Barristan watched the bastards of Robert spar and contest hotly against each other, he mused over the wisdom of the Queen. He had spent his most of his life in Westeros and never once considered trying to end the hateful practice of harming the children born out of wedlock. Robert had been allowed to produce offspring across the realm without consequence, and it was those innocent children that suffered with the stigma.

The Queen had seen the injustice of the slave trade and had destroyed it completely. Her methods had been brutal, but in three and half years she had totally wiped the slave trade off the map. Now in her homeland she was beginning to take on the sin of punishing the children rather than the men siring them. Barristan knew that as soon as the Eddard Stark issue was resolved, she would end the practice completely.

He knew she planned on allowing the first born, regardless of gender, assume the throne or become heirs of their Houses by law. He also knew in his heart that soon same sex marriage would be allowed. He couldn’t wait to see how the conservative church and nobles would handle Renly and Loras, and then have the ante upped with their Queen and Arya married.

He loved seeing injustice brought low. He couldn’t wait.

He saw Gendry and Mya laughing and hugging each other briefly when their weapons locked up, and gave each other quick kisses. After, they broke apart with silly grins on their faces.

Barristan smiled. All the bastards of Robert Baratheon were thriving. Barristan had done nothing shamefully, and, yet, neither did he move to end the shameful practice. It had taken an exile to come home and right the wrong of bastardy.

The two youths took a break to snog hotly in front of Barristan and Syrio. The sword masters just looked at each other and shrugged.

Targaryen married brother to sister frequently. Barristan was sure that would be another law to fall. It took generations of inbreeding for any traits to be teased to the surface anyways. A half brother and sister marrying was really no big deal.

As the two lovers continued kissing and groping, the old knight thought of the knights and lords pouring into the Red Keep. They were but the first of many to arrive for the journey north. The Queen had already laid out camps, and had positioned the raw materials that were being used to make more camps to house the troops that would start to flow North within a month’s time.

Already merchant ships were dropping off tons of dry goods and lentils to feed the troops, soon to be on their way to the prepared beachheads. The smiths that had been producing dragon glass weapons at a breakneck pace had done well, and were still doing their job in an exemplary fashion. The first boats had already arrived at the beachheads with the arrows and spears tipped with dragon glass. Javelins and daggers were also being produced in great numbers.

Huge quantities of pitch and tar were being sent to create fire, to fight the dead of the Ice Wights. He fervently hoped that the Queen and Eddard were wrong. If they were right, then they were making all the preparations that they could.

One way or another, the truth of the matter would be discovered. In a way, Barristan hoped that the Ice King did exist. He longed to strike blows against such an enemy. How sweet it would be, to fight a foe that was purely evil.

He was thankful that the Queen and Eddard Stark had proved to be so adept at the game of thrones. He had no stomach for it.

Together, the two were bringing the united South up north under the guise of opposing and putting down the North’s aspiration for their confederacy. He just hoped that the dragon and wolf could avoid a senseless war.

Edric

Edric sat his desk in the royal quarters in the Red Keep. He had loved it at Storm’s End, but he had made the right decision to remain with the Queen. He was being groomed to be an integral part of her world government. She had conquered both Westeros and Essos, west of the Jade Sea.

She needed valued and trusted diplomats and ambassadors to make sure her rule was appropriately applied across her vast empire. He knew the queen hated that old world order, and was starting to bring into existence a new order. It was apropos. It was her will and drive that would hold it together.

His desk was piled with books on the history of the Free Cities. He had asked for them, along with the history of Valyria in particular. Its technology and the road works they had built were still viable nearly five hundred years after its doom, and that completely fascinated him.

The Queen had him studying philosophy and theorems on governance. He was being tutored each day for two hours in both the High Valyrian and Dothraki languages. The Queen wanted to be able to communicate with Edric in her native tongues.

After being given the choice by the Queen, he had decided to use the name of his father. He was sorely afraid the Queen would balk at his decision. The Queen had offered all the bastards this choice, but he was the only one so far to take up the offer to take his father’s name. Most kept their bastard names, some took the name of their lovers and one had taken the name of his Master. Two had adopted the last name of Targaryen. Again, to Edric’s surprise, the Queen allowed this.

He alone chose to use the name of his disgraced father. He wanted his father’s name because he thought it would have some cache in Essos. They would know of his exile and dissipation, but it would be second-hand and distant. His father had been King for close to twenty years. He knew it would at least make some people stop and take notice of him. He would use any advantage he could find. He would use his competence to keep their attention once he had it.

In another few months, he would be fully fluent in High Valyrian, Dothraki and Braavosi - a corrupted version of Valyrian. Mastering the former made using the latter much easier.

He was learning his lessons on governance. He read the philosophical works of Bracheqor Hartel, Garraro Essah and Irraquo Eranerris. These men espoused the rights of the common man, believing they had certain inalienable rights. He was inspired by the words he read. He could not wait to help the Queen institute and implement her plans, which they both hoped would lead to a better life for many in Essos and Westeros.

The Queen would visit him, and they would talk about the future and their hopes to bring a better world into existence. She would laugh gently at his jests, and her smile made his heart beat harder in his chest. He had heard the rumors about the Queen and her personal tastes. He never tried to test the waters with her. He had to admit he had his father’s weakness for the ladies, but did not in any way want to leave a trail of illegitimate children across the continents the way he had. He was fine finding his pleasures in the high end brothels. These women knew their trade, and were quick to take the moon tea when with issue.

The last few times the Queen had visited Edric, she had Arya Stark with her. And that is when he truly gave up any desire for her. It was obvious these two were meant for each other. He mused that maybe he should have punched her lights out when he first met her - of course if he’d tried, she would have gutted him.

Edric Baratheon was a diplomat, and not a warrior. He was lover of the good life, and having more of it. He did not want to lose teeth and have his nose rearranged all over his face. He would leave the good dragon to the good direwolf and remain whole. It was actually quite cute the way they were hiding their true affections from one another, but no one else. The Queen practically swooned whenever she made Arya giggle.

He had talked to his half brother and sister, Gendry and Mya, about the Queen’s strange reluctance to impose her will on Westeros. It was almost as if she had become afraid of her capacity to wreak havoc on a scale unimaginable. Daenerys had accomplished more than any of her forbears of her lineage. From what Edric read in the histories, Daenerys Targaryen with only three dragons had done more than old Valyria had with the sky filled with them.

The Queen seemed to have the ability to think outside of the book, and her focus on achieving her goals was unmatched. The old dragon lords had easily let themselves get sidetracked with gluttony and cruelty. Daenerys Targaryen never lost sight of her goals. She set her goals, and developed well thought and meticulously planned campaigns to achieve them.

She was something new. She was something superior. He was just happy to serve her.

When he was ready, he was to sail to Pentos and meet up with Illyrio. Once established he would be taken to Braavos and the First Sealord Lysicho Marrus. He was to establish contacts with both. The Queen wanted to have an emissary who could work with both the sovereign power of Braavos, and the unofficial power behind the curtain that operated many of the levers in Pentos and Braavos. Both had sworn allegiance to her, but she was wise enough to know that the Free Cities would have their own objectives. She had not conquered them as she had Slaver’s Bay. The ‘free’ cities had seen her might, and had capitulated without any fight.

Of all the “free” cities, only Braavos had truly been free. The Sealords ruled for all; the great and the small. But, despite this, the Queen had as much distrust for the bastion of Braavos as she had for her defeated colonies. She had an uneasy disquiet with the Iron Bank, and they held too great a sway. Daenerys found it distasteful that the Iron Bank could at any time call in the debts of Westeros to force financial calamity and insolvency on the continent. She would never allow that.
She planned to co-opt them from the inside.

Edric was to establish her direct presence in Braavos, and get the pulse of the city and its leaders. He planned on making his Queen proud of his efforts.

Daenerys

She sound of the whetstone sliding up her blade filled Daenerys Targaryen with a sense of well being. She watched the stone slide up the impossible sharp edge of Foe Hammer, one of the ancestral blades of her progenitors. She had come to feel an extreme distaste for Aegon, for removing his younger sister’s exploits from the annals of history, just because she had the audacity to love her sister more than him.

To Daenerys, it made perfect sense. What woman would not have chosen their sister in such a situation? A woman should always choose a woman for her mate, as she saw it. She ran the whetstone up the blade again and again. She loved the feel of her hand moving up the blade of her rune sword, without any imperfections to make her hand flex or clench. Her sword’s keen edge was perfect, as always. She heard the sounds of wood striking wood.

Syrio and Barristan were standing together to watch Arya Stark take on her blood riders. Off to the left, Gendry and Mya were trying to split each other’s heads open with their weapons. Mya was getting the best of Gendry, when he forgot his lessons on how to use the war hammer. The young man would roar his agitation at Mya, who was blocking and slipping his wild attacks. He would snatch his war hammer back, and then Mya would move in for a ‘killing’ stroke. They both wore chain mail, and pulled their blows at the last moment as they fought on and on.

Mya would kiss Gendry, and he would huff and puff and then smile. All the time as they fought he had a big smile on his face. The boy was a lout, but a loveable one.

Arya was pivoting and slashing out with deadly purpose. She was using a wood practice broadsword, and a wooden facsimile that Syrio had carved personally for her, so she could use her beloved Needle in her right hand. She attacked with her left hand, her sword a blur, and her right hand blocking and deflecting arakhs. Syrio told the Queen that Arya was definitely left handed, but her ability to use her right hand now that she was putting her mind to it was proving she was a latent ambidextrous.

As Daenerys watched, she saw Arya hook the inside crescent of Jhogo’s arakh and whip her hand down and behind her, throwing him off balance and causing him to sprawl forward. Before Arya could slash with her practice sword, Aggo and Rakharo roared, charging the Stark girl. Dany sat up on her seat, but relaxed when Arya sidestepped Rakharo, sticking out her foot and tripping the roaring Blood Rider. Arya swatted him on his ass after he passed her body, making him squeal.

Aggo charged her, but she used her broadsword to block the vicious downward swipe of his arakh, and while blocking she brought Needle up and hooked it on the inside crescent of the arakh, and twisting the blades in opposite directions she torqued the weapon out of his hands. She wheeled around low and swiped her broadsword in a vicious arc, making Jhogo stumble back to keep his shins from being whacked hard. Arya dove forward into a roll, and came up with both blades in a windmill fashion driving the blood rider back. She dove to the side, sensing the other two blood riders charging at her. They bowled over the Queen’s first blood rider.

Daenerys laughed hard, watching the Bloodriders throw their arakhs down and chase the Stark girl as she threw down her own weapons and took off laughing, hurling insults back over her shoulder at the laughing Blood Riders. They had taken an instant liking to the girl.

Daenerys thought she saw something out of the corner of her eye then, but – no, it must have been her imagination. She could have sworn that the ghost runes on Foe Hammer had been flickering and moving, and that the ouroboros were dancing, twisting around themselves.

Dany shook her head and looked again, but the runes and ouroboros were locked deep in the metal, unmoving. That is what happens when you let your thoughts drift. You start to see things.

Dany was so pleased to see how well the ‘bastard’ children of Robert Baratheon were doing. She had hated the fact that Robert Baratheon had fathered so many children, and not taken responsibility for any of them. Worse, society was punishing them by forcing them to live with names associated with bastardy. She was expunging this particular crime and sin. She had vowed to institute equal primogeniture in all of Westeros, so a female child could inherit the throne as it was done in Dorne. This was instituting simple decency. She did not see much blowback from the conservative forces against Westeros on these issues. Her regency would prove that a woman could rule every bit as well as a man.

She only wished she would not have to fight all of society to institute the right for a man or woman to marry whom they would. She deserved the right to marry Arya – anyone she wanted. Renly and Loras deserved the right as well, without having to hide their love in the shadows and take false wives to hide their true natures.

Daenerys sighed, watching Arya dodging Aggo and Rakharo, making them run into and rebound off each other. Didn’t she deserve the right to follow her heart after all the good she had already done, and what she still planned to accomplish? Daenerys sighed again, looking at Gendry and Mya affectionately practicing their war arts.

She had been following all the former bastards, and visiting them in turn when she had time. She had been most pleased with what she found. All the children were thriving, as well as the mothers that were burdened with the label of having a child out of wedlock. The woman suffered with the stigma, but the man did not. The child’s bastard surname was a millstone around both of their necks. With that yoke removed, the women and children were advancing in their lives. She felt a warm spot in her heart, thinking about giving these children the future they could have had with their royal heritage.

This was why she wanted to become Queen. To accomplish good. Not to be served herself, but to serve others.

All the children were tall and hale for their ages. It was obvious that the seed was strong with Robert Baratheon. They all seemed to be spitting images of him as well. She wondered how the man could never have questioned that all his ‘bastards’ were dark of hair and blue eyes, while his ‘own’ children were pale, blonde, and green eyed.

Daenerys wondered what would have happened had anyone ever discovered the incestuous secret of Cersei and Jamie Lannister. They seemed to have redeemed themselves, regardless. Judging by the reports from Dorne, it was only a matter of time before Obara and Cersei consummated the love they obviously shared for each other. Jamie had been redeemed by the love he had for Brienne.

She wondered how Cersei could be so blind to her attraction to the sand snake. Everyone else could see the attraction she felt for the daughter of Oberyn. Daenerys knew she would never miss any signs of Arya’s attraction to her. Sadly, there was none beyond friendship, and a hero worship complex she did not deserve.
Daenerys was most pleased with the three eldest of Robert’s children - Mya, Gendry and Edric were doing very well. She would be able to make good use of all of their skills. Of the three, Edric was going to be her most valuable in the end. His intelligence, dedication, and ability to process information and work the Game of Thrones would make him very valuable indeed. Gendry and Mya would give her excellence in immediate services, in making the weapons that her own household and guard would use, and the care of their horses.

Daenerys again focused on the pair fighting. Gendry was finally starting to remember the lessons that Barristan had been patiently teaching him, over and over. She smiled smugly, knowing that her Arya only needed to be shown something once before she internalized the lesson, and never forgot it. Indeed, her Arya was the perfect pupil. Daenerys squeezed her thighs together, thinking of another lesson she would like to instruct Arya in.

Arya and her three blood riders were walking back together. They had taken to calling her the grey-eyed wolf in Dothraki, which she was still having a hard time understanding. At night she was giving Arya lessons in both Valerian and Dothraki. Arya was picking up the Valyrian very well now. Her learning of Dothraki was proving to be more difficult for the girl but recently it started to improve. She had noticed that her Blood Riders appreciated Arya’s cool, collected demeanor. She never got overly excited or emotional. They also enjoyed her sense of honor, and wry sense of humor.

Another thing she had noticed immediately was Arya’s egalitarian attitude. She moved as easily among the common man as she did with the highborn. Daenerys had read that Eddard Stark had taken his meals while freely mingling with the vassals under his rule. She had not really believed it at first, but seeing how Arya did not have one pretentious hair on her body had made a believer out of Daenerys.

Arya had what Daenerys had heard called the ‘common touch’. Arya’s non-pretentious ways made people like her, and want to bond with and follow her. Daenerys knew that if the teenager chose to, she could turn on her innate charm to have those of regal birth equally enthralled. From what Daenerys had seen so far, Arya did not have the same desire to rule as she did. Arya had shown no interest in leading vast armies or navies, or playing the Game of Thrones.

The girl was a warrior.

She had been debriefed by Colton about how well and bravely Arya had fought to defend the river frigate of House Tully when it had been attacked by river bandits. Arya had been in the thick of the fight, and had not shied away from her first conflict. Now that she had been bloodied, she would be like the animal on her House’s banner in combat.

Daenerys was mooning over Arya again, and shook her head to snap out of it. The girl was her royal hostage, who Eddard Stark had placed in her care. Stop being a horn dog, woman.

Daenerys ached to see Arya look at her, like she looked at the Stark girl when she wasn’t looking. She would be willing to fight heaven and earth to have her as consort! She smirked sadly, and shook her head. Down there, tiger, Daenerys thought to herself. She had to be careful when her emotions were aroused.

She remembered how good Arya had been with the younger children of Robert Baratheon. She had played with and teased with the children, making them blush and laugh as they fell in love with the Wolf girl. The children had crawled all over Arya, who laughed and mockingly complained, all the while wrestling with the children and chasing them, making sure to let them win.

Daenerys’ heart clutched in her chest as she thought of Arya and her lost Kiserri playing together.
Her little blood rider would have Arya Stark wrapped around her little finger, and Arya would have the little girl calling her mommy within a day. She knew it.

_Gods we could have been the perfect family_, Daenerys thought sadly.

Aurola Glovelyn

Aurola held her magnifying glass over the pearl necklace she was making for her client Cathelyne Tarlor. Not long ago, Aurola had worked in a mid-tier brothel that brought in clients from all the economic strata of King’s Landing. She had been one of the most requested whores. She had been proud of her reputation in the brothel, as a whore who _always_ left the client satisfied.

The brothel made sure the women were allowed to practice the types of sex that they enjoyed, but had the policy that both sexes were to be catered to. She was thankful she did not have to do the more kinky sex. There were plenty of women who liked it rough, doing gangbangs or getting it on with dogs and other animals. The thing _she_ had not liked was sleeping with men.

Most of the time she had to fake her orgasms with them, but a few had known how to bone and she had relished fucking those men. She never said no to an orgasm, but it was a woman’s touch that she craved.

The Queen had allowed her to put her past behind her - or so she had thought. Aurola shivered, remembering the late morning and early afternoon. Aurola slowly put her small drill bit to the pearl in its stone holder, which she had put underneath clasps to hold the pearl rigid and still. She had used a punch to make a pilot hole for the drill bit. Aurola slowly turned the handle of the drill, until the drill bit dug into the pearl. Once stable, she turned more forcefully, and slowly drilled the hole through it for the guide wire of the necklace.

Cathelyne Tarlor had come with her four year old daughter, who worshiped her Jadith. The woman had a babysitter that was going to take the children to a children’s play palace that the rich took their children to for entertainment, giving their parents time to peruse their own tastes. The girls were so excited, babbling as they left. Aurola shivered, seeing the want in Cathelyne’s eyes.

The instant the girls were out the door, they were on each other kissing hungrily and stumbling to Aurola’s large bed. Soon they were naked, and Aurola used all her talents to make Cathelyne scream in orgasmic bliss. The woman had then fallen on Aurola, sucking her off again and again. She moaned and wept how much she loved and needed Aurola. The woman had clung to her desperately as she fell asleep in post coital bliss. Aurola extremely moved by the woman’s love for her.

Yesterday it had been sweet, young Airis Parsin in her bed, as Aurola’s five year old daughter was off with her grandmother in the brothel. Airis was on her back as Aurola fucked her hard to orgasm with her strap-on and then did the woman doggy in the pussy and ass. Then the woman had taken the strap-on and fucked Aurola blind. The nineteen year old was gay to the bone like Aurola and instinctively knew how to please her woman, Aurola, in bed.

Aurola drilled out four more pearls, and then pulled out her rose-gold filled wire, stringing pearls on it. The pearls hung sweetly on the wire, their sides barely touching and perfectly aligned.

Aurola had the best of both words. She had been making jewelry for the whores at her brothel, and now the Tangerine Palace too. She was making a comfortable profit. Whores needed to look nice for their higher-end clients, and especially when they went out as escorts to social events before taken to bed.

She looked at the design she had made for a flower that would rest on the right shoulder. Cathelyn would supply the diamonds that would be set in the design. Aurola was using a smith to create the clasp, and she would set the stones in the settings she would fashion out of silver wire. She would cut, shape and weld them to the basic pattern.

After her initial shock over finding Cathelyn at her doorstep and realizing the true reasons for her being there Aurola had been delightfully surprised when first one and then her second favorite client had appeared at her door. She had not thought to see the women again since she left the brothel. She assumed they would find another whore to take her place. She had been touched that they sought her out, and they had given her commissions, but it was quickly obvious they wanted to fuck and offered her huge sums of gold dragons.

She had initially been offended when her favorite two clients had showed up at her door. That had been her initial shock realizing they still wanted her sexually. She was not a whore anymore. She did not feel ashamed of her former profession – in fact, she had been proud of it. It had supported her and her daughter, and she had many, many dear friends from the brothel that still visited her, and spent the night with Aurola fucking sweetly. Aurola always enjoyed fucking the whores she had worked with. They shared an intimate bond.

With her two former clients, she had wondered why they would they want to fuck her in her new profession, when there many whores who would love to take them as their new clients? Many, many women in the brothels preferred their own sex for intimate lovers, and men merely paid the bills as the saying went.

When she had initially refused, they had simply broken down weeping and looked so broken and sad to the core of the souls. Cathelyn had said that only her love had made life tolerable. Airis had brokenly sobbed, saying that she would slit her wrists thinking of having to fuck her hateful man if she could not have her love. That was when it hit Aurola. Her two most cherished clients were in love with her. The love she had secretly felt for them had been reciprocated. A whole new world of possibilities opened up for Aurola.

Aurola had her daughter going to a tutor four days a week, six hours a day in the morning. The Queen had made it clear she wanted the children of Robert Baratheon taught by the best tutors. They would be very well educated. Her daughter would know how to read, write and do sums. Her daughter Jadith would be taught about the world, and have all the options. If she wanted to be a whore, so be it. If her daughter wanted to be a jeweler, that would be nice. If she wanted to be a diplomat for Daenerys, she would make her mother happy. Her daughter would have the options she did not, when she was kicked out of her home for being an unnatural deviant.

Aurola’s mornings were free. She shivered as she made her appointments with each woman. Then she took both to her bed. The sex had been so good. The women were so starved for her touch that it was intoxicating. They nearly swooned at her touch. Gods they had cummed so hard in her mouth. She moaned remembering their sweet taste in her mouth. Aurola secretly loved both of the women too. Gods their lovemaking was so intense. They exhausted themselves in gut wrenching orgasms her bedroom thick with the musk of happy worn out pussies.

Aurola started on a ring she was resizing for a new client. The man wanted to give his future wife his mother’s wedding band. She had given him a set of ring gauges, and he came back with the size needed. She pulled out her ring stretcher that the Queen had gifted her with when she set up Aurola with her business. One gift of many she had been given, to make her a success in her chosen field.

Aurola matched the appropriate roller to the ring band size, and put it in the device. She twisted the control handle. She smiled, watching the ring increase in size while still retaining its original round shape, all without damaging the stone.

Cathelyn had left her only half an hour ago, and her body was still shivering from all the sweet orgasms they had shared. Her lover’s husband was in Oldtown on some business trip, and fucking his two mistresses. Her bedroom was so hot and thick with sweet pussy musk. She moaned, thinking of the sweet smell of Cathelyn’s cunt grinding down on her face as her lover rode her face. Cathelyn’s heavy tits swirling on her sweat soaked chest. Aurola so loved to look up and see that sweat drip and fling off Cathelyn’s swirling and flopping tits and the way the sweat ran down her belly in rivulets as she fucked Aurola. Cathelyn’s exploding twat had filled Aurola’s mouth to overflowing again and again with sweet hot cum.

They had ended their lovemaking with a wild tribbing that wrecked her bed and put another huge wet spot on the mattress as their cunts had exploded simultaneously gushing hot cum that soaked pussies, thighs, bellies, asses and her bed with hot glistening cum that quickly soaked into the mattress. Aurola had rubbed her face in the mattress savoring the essence of her lover before she put on loose breeches and a blouse to work further on her creations.

Aurola used her magnify glass to examine the ring stone setting. One leg was loose, and she used a blunt edge punch and a pick to tease the leg back snugly against the large diamond.

Aris’ husband had just recently embarked on a trip to Pentos, to secure a contract for his father. Aurola smiled wickedly. Both of the women were free for at least three weeks.

Her sweet daughter would be spending the entire weekend with their grandmother.

Tomorrow night both women would be in her bed and fucking exuberantly. The women knew nothing of each other, but Aurola would finesse the situation. They loved her so deeply, and were so sweet and caring. She had plans that involved all three of them, and Cathelyn’s daughter. Soon they would be a family raising their children they would raise as one.

She knew the times were changing.

Two days ago the Queen and her ‘hostage’ had visited her again. The wolf girl had been with the Queen the last two times Daenerys had visited her establishment to check on her and Jadith. It warmed her heart, how the Queen was so interested in her daughter’s tutoring sessions.

The Queen was so deferential to the Stark girl, and the Stark obviously worshiped the ground the Queen walked on. Their first visit, the whore turned jewel smith had wondered if their feelings were strictly platonic for the first half of the visit. They were so formal and genteel with each other. Then the Queen had bent over to look through her magnifying glass, marveling at how it made the ruby she was looking at sparkle.

Arya Stark was practically drooling, looking at the Queen’s tight ass jutting out as she looked at the stone.

With the Queen’s second visit with Arya, she was constantly touching Arya to make points and the wolf girl was ‘accidently’ brushing and pressing into the Queen whenever Dany showed her something.

They both had it bad.

Yesterday when they were visiting and standing just that little bit too close, her daughter had just arrived home from the tutor. When she had seen Daenerys, Jadith had squealed and jumped up into the Queen’s waiting arms. “Aunt Dany!”

Then she noticed Arya Stark. Jadith had been hesitant and unsure, until Arya started making funny faces and gesticulating, making strange sounds. Soon her daughter was begging to be held by the girl.

Aurola smiled. They would both make great mommies to their children. Then her daughter had upped the ante further. She looked at Dany from Arya’s arms and announced: “Horsey! I want to ride Horsey!”

The Queen had looked mortified. She did not mind getting on her hands and knees with just her to see, but now she had Arya there and was unsure.

Arya had immediately saved the day. The Stark girl had put her daughter down on the floor, and then followed her down. Arya got on her hands and knees, and neighed and stomped the floor with her palm. Jadith had squealed and climbed on Arya’s back, as the hostage horsed around on the floor with Aurola’s daughter. Her daughter had whooped and laughed so loud.

When Aurola looked at the Queen watching, she saw tears running down her cheeks. That was when the whore-turned-jeweler knew the Queen had once had a daughter herself. She felt a lump in her throat. She reverently hoped that the Queen and her future wife would have a daughter of their own someday.

The Queen wiped her eyes, and got on her hands and knees and bumped into Arya, and Jadith crawled from back to back as the two women laughed with her and smiled goofily. Both women, happily and without any pretense, let her daughter ride on their backs for ten minutes as they neighed and pretended to try and buck her off.

Aurola knew the kingdom was in good hands with those two.

Aurola looked at the clasp she would use for her pearl necklace. Soon she would start making her own. Her last experiment had almost been perfect.

Once the Queen took Arya as her woman and married her, things would change for the better. The Queen would proclaim that right that all should have - the right to marry whomever they chose. Daenerys would never hide her love in the shadows. Aurola would talk to the Queen on her next visit, after her inevitable marriage.

She would remind the Queen of her heritage. She was the breaker of chains. She had shattered and removed the chains of Essos. She had put an end to the chains that one could see. But there was yet a more insidious form of slavery - the slavery of tradition, and the betrothal of young girls against their will, to men they did not know, and often were twice their age and cruel. These high, noble women were treated no better than cattle.

Aurola only had to look at her two loves. Daenerys Targaryen needed to break the invisible chains that bound those women, and robbed them of their free will. Women needed the right to control their own bodies. They needed to be free to seek their destinies as they saw fit, not sold off to the highest bidder or given away to a man they may hate to further their House’s dreams of bettering itself. Daenerys needed to free all women from that heinous tradition.

The Breaker of Chains had more chains to burst asunder.

When she did, she would ask the Queen to grant women the same right men had. The right to divorce. She would have her two wives then. She licked her lips in anticipation.
Mya

The party had left the Red Keep early in the morning. The Queen had decided that there would be no meetings or audience with supplicants this day. She declared that all needed to take a break from the preparations to move north.

Troops were arriving daily from the local lords. The inns were full of troops. These were troops with money that could afford not to bivouac in the tents sprouting up around the King’s Landing. Troop ships were beginning to pull into port from Essos. The city states constantly warring on each other had required them to build fleets of troop transport. With the peace the Queen had imposed, these ships were for her use now. Sailors with coin to spend were flooding the establishments in King’s Landing, and the City was flush with money.

The Queen had made sure to spare the navies of the cities she conquered. Most of the foot soldiers would sail North to reduce time, and keep long trains from having to follow the troops to provide food, water and shelter.

The first wagon trains had started to move north to congregate on the border of the Riverlands. The Queen could have sent them further North on the word of Eddard Stark. She held back out of caution, but also to keep the façade that the Riverlands would be hostile to the Queen’s advance north intact.

The group moved up the King’s Road that led from the Red Keep, to the Gate of the Gods and the beginning of the King’s Road proper.

As they had ridden the road within the curtain wall, Gendry had told her about some of the landmarks they passed moving toward the gate. He pointed out the Central Square, a green space reserved to give the citizens a greensward to play and relax in. To the left he had pointed out the Guildhall of the Alchemists. He wondered why it still stood, since they had nothing to offer in these times.

He had shown her Visenya’s Hill, and told her about Visenya being one of Aegon’s wives. How he had married his older sister out of duty, when he had actually only loved Rhaenys, his younger sister. He told Mya that the sisters had not even liked each other, and that Visenya was happy when her younger sister had perished in Dorne. It allowed Visenya to have her brother’s full love.

Mya had noticed the Queen’s knuckles turning white as they balled up into fists. It seemed that the Queen did not agree Gendry’s narration. She wondered what the Queen felt the true story was.

They saw in the distance to the left, on a small hillock, the Great Sept of Balor. They both snorted at the structure. They had no use for their old trite strictures. They did not believe in their seven faced god.

They passed through Cobbler’s square, where many artisans practiced their craft. They passed shops of various garment makers, experts in leather, small tool and dye vendors, jewelry makers and other craftsmen and women.

They then passed through the open gates that had a heavy guard. Mya looked out over the grassland surrounding the keep. They moved at a faster gait to an open area that had been reserved for the Queen’s party, about a hundred yards from the gate.

Arya’s Direwolf ran off in a wild run, her tongue hanging out. The great beast stretched out her legs as she ran down the King’s Highway, dodging around the traffic out on the road. Word had filtered out about the Direwolf, and most paid it no heed. It was still funny to watch horses buck and men jerk, holding their weapons close when the wolf went running past.

Mya moved her horse to the hobble line, and tied her horse to it. She waited for Gendry to join her. Along with them, the queen and Arya dismounted in unison. Mya smirked. The Queen and Arya were in sync, most of the time. They were not even aware at how they moved in harmony so often now.

Barristan and Syrio were with them to train and spar. The Queen’s bloodriders had ridden out with them as well. Currently they were giving their mounts their heads and letting them gallop, enjoying the air running through their long hair, making their bells tinkle.

The Queen had put her bells in for this day. Mya understood she was aiming to impress all the mustering troops and commanders who would see her. This was the woman who was a Dothraki Khal.

Mya was sure that the Queen had over fifty bells in her hair. Mya had heard Daenerys had many more such bells she could wear if she so chose. The bells chimed so beautifully, and the sun made her white hair glow. The silver bells glinted, adding beautiful highlights to the Queen’s hair in the bright sun. The woman truly was lovely. If she and the Queen were not already spoken for, she might be tempted to make a play for her. Living in King’s Landing had opened her eyes to so many new ideas.

Soon she and Gendry were sparring with Barristan, as he continued to hammer into her stubborn partner the basics on how to use the war hammer. Barristan was constantly swatting her love in his ass with the side of his sword. They were both wearing chainmail, and working with real weapons as they moved at three quarters speed.

Arya and Dany were fighting each other with practice swords, and moving with a speed that was truly frightening to watch. Their swords cut through the air in a constant blur. Syrio would move in to attack one or the other suddenly. They seemed to have cat-like reflexes, and a sixth sense. They would whirl to meet the sudden attack, and then fight off the two attackers for a minute before Syrio would step back away from their sparring. He would wait and then attack again suddenly.

The three Bloodriders returned, and Mya sparred with them. They were gentle with her. Their arakhs were a totally foreign weapon to her. They would correct her stance, and the way she should attack them. They showed her how to deflect their curved blades and to hook them which took precise timing.

After an hour, Mya moved to archery. Practice dummies had been set up and she strung her yew wood longbow. She started to fire arrows at the dummies. There was a strong breeze coming from the west.

Mya gnashed her teeth with many shots barely hitting inside the rings. She refused to let the wind stop her from practicing. She had to learn to compensate for the wind to become truly proficient with the bow, and only practice would help her improve.

After ten minutes Arya joined her. Arya praised her for her archery in the wind.

She asked if she could shoot Mya’s longbow. Mya had seen that Arya used a traditional bow from the north. It was only four feet long, with about sixty pounds of pull. Her own bow was over six feet long, and had one hundred and twenty pounds of pull.
Mya started to say something when Arya took the bow and one of her longer arrows. She was going to tell the small woman that the heavy pull was extremely hard to draw back. The remark died in her mouth when the small woman easily pulled the string back to her ear, and let the arrow loose. It hit dead center on her target.

Arya smirked at her discomfiture. Arya then started to give her lessons on how to calm her breath, and let her heart rate slow before she fired. Mya found she liked the strong, small girl. She was muscular, where the Queen was like a whip.

She felt comfortable with the Stark girl. She wanted to ask the girl if she was in love with the Queen, but decided to not embarrass her. It would happen soon enough, she supposed. She hoped one or the other of them would take matters into their hands. If she had waited for Gendry, she would have died an old maid.

The Queen looked happy. Especially when she stared at Arya when she thought no one was looking. She had the softest, sweetest smile.

Mya looked back at the keep and started. Standing on a merion on the left most outer guard tower was a woman. She was small, and wore only a green tunic. She had green hair that whipped in the air. The woman was clearly looking down at them.

She looked harder, and felt her body start again. The woman’s eyes were not natural. They were large, and entirely green - she had no whites to her eyes! Her eyebrows canted up at an unnatural angle towards her hairline. The eyebrows also green. The blowing wind exposed her ears, and they had points. Each ear flared back to two points!

The woman did not move at all, even with the strong gusts of wind that buffeted her body and made her hair and tunic whip around.

Mya turned to Arya, and gripped her arm.

“Arya! Look at the gate and the left most tower! There is a strange woman on it!”

They both turned to look but no woman was there.

But she had been there! Mya was sure of it. Arya laughed, turning back to shoot her bow at the targets, landing them all in the center ring. Arya told her that she needed to do better than that to distract her.

She knew there had been a woman there. She looked again, seeing nothing. Oh well.

Epilogue

Laina Baerley finished cleaning up the guts, scales and heads of the days catch that she had gutted and cleaned. She and her mother would go to the fish market with Grahar Whitehill. He was a simple man in his early thirties that worked in their restaurant. He had a simple mind, and always had a smile on his face. He would carry some of the items back to their establishment to be prepared for the first meals.

She and her mother haggled and bickered with the fishermen to make sure they received a fair price. Satisfied with the various items they ordered, they would all be delivered to their establishment on the first run into town the local runners made.
She and her mother gutted the mackerel and shelled oysters, clams and snails.

Her wife already had the fires going, and had her skillets and woks prepared for the first meals. Kelia Gower had proven to be an excellent cook. Her mother had nothing but praise for how fast her wife learned the recipes, and her use of spices and herbs was already masterful.

Kelia had glowed under her mother’s praise. Kelia and her mother cooked all day, preparing food for the locals and the constant stream of traffic from Evenfall Hall that came to the port for business, or just to have a fresh seafood meal.

They had only been in business for six weeks, but their establishment had already gained a reputation for the excellence of their food and their fair prices. Word of the excellent new restaurant spread among the locals and had started to spread across Tarth.

They had ten tables inside the restaurant, and six more under the canopy in front of the building. Kelia hummed and smiled at her wife as she cooked. Laina moved into the back to clean the vegetables they prepared for the daily fare.

She would kiss her wife sweetly. Those kisses often turned passionate until her mother reminded them that they had a business to run. Kelia would then grope her ass when she turned to get back to her workstation out front. She attracted customers easily as she conversed with them, and took their orders. Grahar and a new employee hired the week before took the fare from the kitchen to the tables. Grahar always happy when he was working. The smile on his face infectious. The increase in traffic had her wife and mother cooking all day. Laina was so pleased with their business.

They closed the business with the late afternoon meal. As they became more established they would hire employees to have meals for the night. They were making quite a profit with the money they were making currently.

After they cleaned up and ate a light dinner, the mother went to her quarters at the back of the first floor. Kelia and Laina went upstairs to their suite of rooms.

Laina wanted to make love now immediately but Kelia insisted that she let her give Laina her nightly one hour lessons in reading and writing. Initially she had balked. Why did a penniless girl from Fishmonger Square need to learn to read and write? It was important to Kelia that she learned and she had started to cry at her balking. Laina had folded fast. She could not stand to see her sweet wife cry. Her wife had given up everything for her. It touched Laina that Kelia cared for her so much. That Kelia wanted her to learn her letters.

They had been making love six weeks ago in the royal haylofts as they always did as often as they could. Laina liked fucking in the stables of the royals when she had found a blind path up to the haylofts that were not guarded. It made her feel powerful to fuck in the realm of royalty. For the poor girl it was a way to thumb the royalty in the eye. It was intoxicating to fuck in a royal establishment.

She had been on her back with Kelia riding her face hard and screaming with orgasm when Laina nearly bit her sweetie’s clit when she saw the Queen standing over them. Kelia took a minute to register her presence. Her mind lost on her orgasmic high as her body flipped and jackknifed so hard. Even with her shook Laina continued sucking on her lover’s clit hard. She might as well as enjoy her last taste of the wife of her heart. They were doomed. Her desires to live dangerously had risen to bite her in the ass.

Kelia finally noticed the Queen standing right in front of her. Her sweet Kelia mashed her pussy hard into her mouth to keep her quiet. Kelia’s first words to their Queen were “It is my fault my Queen! I seduced Laina and told her if she did not submit to my unnatural advances I would ruin her business!” Laina could not speak with her mouth full of wet pussy.

The Queen’s eyebrow cocked and then her lips began to quiver. The Queen then started to laugh and held up her hand for Kelia to stop her lies to protect her love. The Queen told them she had come to help them. She had an offer for them. She would give them a new life in Tarth. She had prepared a business for them that Laina and her mother could fall into and start to run immediately. The Queen had set it all up.

All they had to do was leave tonight. The Queen told them to come to the Red keep two hours after sundown. The Queen told them to bring Laina’s mother as well. Laina felt like she was in a dream. A sweet magical dream.

She left them as silently as she had appeared. Laina and Kelia had been left stunned in the Queen’s wake. It was Kelia that started to jump up and down saying “yes, yes, yes, yes!” and shaking Laina with happiness. Laina’s stupor dissipated seeing the radiant joy beaming off her love’s face. She was ecstatic for their suddenly new future together. She had a hard time believing it but the Queen had indeed been before them just now promising them a better new life. She stared at her sweet Kelia. This high noble woman wanted to give it all up for a lowly fishmonger urchin.

Laina had started to protest that Kelia could not sacrifice her life for her. Kelia got hot at that and made it clear in no uncertain terms that Laina belonged to her. The fishmonger had been so touched. Laina had taken her precious sweet love into her arms kissing her deeply with all the love in her heart. They had fucked for another hour with soul crushing orgasms of pure fucking bliss.

Her mother had jumped at the unexpected offer. She had nothing to lose. Her mother was as anxious for a better life too. She murmured that she loved Kelia already and wanted to teach her all her culinary skills. She was positive the lass would make an excellent cook. Her wife had instantly taken to her new mother. She murmured that Laina’s mother was much nicer than her own mother. She wanted a new life desperately.

The queen had greeted them at the main gate and guided them into the courtyard at the appointed hour. Laina nearly shit her breeches. There in the courtyard was Drogon the queen’s great black dragon along with her white dragon. The queen had put gloves and chaps on them with an older stately man’s assistance. The older man had helped them mount up the black dragon. He climbed up after them and helped them settle down onto the large saddle. He pointed out the grip rings for them to hold onto if necessary.

He dismounted and the Queen easily mounted her dragon without heat protection as she gathered their heat resistant garb and handed it down to a steward. They watched the virile older man get up on the white dragon.

The dragons had launched into the air with a mighty push off with their legs and beating of their wings. Soon the queen had them leaning down as they soared over the water and the dragons flew at a dizzying pace out to sea.

As they traveled for the next eight hours they flew back over land and then water again. About twenty minutes later they flew over land again.

The queen announced they had arrived at Tarth. Ten minutes later they sat down on the beach and the walked to the small town of Hardengate and she took them to a beautiful freshly painted store front. She took them inside and announced this was their new business and home. The queen showed them the kitchen, dining area and monger station and the living quarters. The kitchen and monger station fully implemented with new ovens, friars and all the cooking utensils they would need and then some.

The Queen told them she knew of their employee with the simple mind. He was on a ship on the way to Tarth to join them. Laina gaped at her Queen. The woman was a goddess!

The Queen hugged them and ordered them to be happy with a big smile. Then the majestic woman surprised Laina by hugging them all and wishing them well. Then then Queen and her knight were gone.

Now six weeks later Laina had finished her tutoring lesson for the night. Kelia was effusive in her praise as she always was with Laina’s progress in learning her letters and she was now able to read simple words. Her handwriting was shaky but she had learned how to write all her letters and numbers now.

Kelia purred “Now it is time for my reward!” with hot heat in her eyes.

Laina found hands pawing her and quickly divesting her of her clothing. Kelia stood up and reached behind her neck and undid the clasps and let her dress drop exposing herself to Laina’s hot hungry gaze. Kelia ran her hands up and down her voluptuous and tight body. The slut squeezed her large breast and rubbed her dripping snatch through her light blue undergarment like a wanton whore. A dark wet stain darkened the fabric over her camel toe slit. Kelia’s large beast swayed as Kelia looked down at her with fuck hungry eyes. Kelia then bent down slightly to remove her undergarment dropping them to the floor. Her pussy was sopping wet. Kelia ran her fingers up and down her wet groove and smiled coyly.

Kelia’s musk hit Laina like a sledgehammer and growled smelling her wife’s arousal for her. Laina could never get over how this drop dead beautiful porcelain doll who was so genteel and proper in public became a wanton whore in their bed. Kelia was on Laina in a flash jamming Laina down on the mattress as she crawled up on top of her lover. She pressed their full D cup tits together squishing them flat as arms and legs hooked and clasped pulling bodies tight.

Kelia’s tongue did not ask but demanded entrance to Laina’s mouth. Laina whimpered in need and parted her teeth. Kelia’s tongue surged into Laina’s mouth the instant the former urchin from fishmonger square parted her teeth. Like an adder Kelia’s tongue wrapped around Laina’s tongue in fuck hunger. Kelia gripped Laina’s hair with both hands and slammed her tongue down her wife’s throat making Laina cry out into Kelia’s hot wet devouring mouth.

They rolled around on their queen sized bed. Now Kelia moved down and devoured Laina’s fat stubby nipples and hard sucked on them with cheek hollowing sucks and her left hand snaked down Laina’s flat bell and two fingers slowly sunk deep into Laina’s twat and pumped sensually in and out her dripping snatch. Laina groaned gutturally deep in her chest in helpless pleasure.

Kelia nursed fiercely back and forth on flushed tits her tongue rasping turgid nipples. Her fingers worked harder and faster in and out the soupy mess of her woman’s swollen muff.

Laina was lost in pleasure. She wondered yet again as her face slashed and eyes squeezed shut tight. Why had the queen come to them and saved them from a life of misery and loss? Why them?

Liana’s belly was tightening and her cunt spasming hard on the three fingers now plunging in and out her sloppy wet cunt as it splattered out cum droplets. Kelia was a total slut in bed as Laina gagged in helpless pleasure. Kelia, the Lord’s proper and pristine daughter slammed her fingers hard in deep into her lover’s couchie. The noble teenager moaned as she banged her wife’s cunt hard and steadily with her hand. Her hand slamming into Laina’s swollen vulva the shocks going straight to the shiny nubbin jacked into by Kelia’s slamming bent thumb. Kelia’s fingers piston hard in and out the soaked core of Laina’s fount.

Liana was on the edge now. Her belly tightened as she dug her heels into the mattress and lifted her cunt up into the fingers hammering her swollen muff. Laina’s trim sucked and spasmed on the fingers that slammed home deep and hard into Laina’s spasming sopping wet cunt. Her wife’s hand hammered her vulva and clit continuous with her hand a blur with her hard fucking of her sweet beautiful to her eyes wife. The friction and jerking vibrations of impact made Laina’s clit scream in ecstasy.

Why had the Queen intervened in their lives?

Liana’s hips were jerking out of control now. Her ass clenched jerking her snatch up into the air as Kelia hammered her cunt hard and deep just like she needed.

Of thank you gods for giving us this. Thank you Daenerys Targaryen!

“Cum for me Laina! Cum on my hand slut! Cum for your Kelia! Show me your love for me my beautiful fishmonger . . . MY fishmonger!”

Oh gods Daenerys! Thank you for giving us a future; giving us life full of love and promise!

With eyes squeezed tight shut Laina’s cunt exploded and scalded her with killing pulses of ecstasy again and again. “FFFFUCCCCKKKKKKK! AAARRRUUNNGGGHHHHHHH! UUUNNGGGHNNNGGGGGG!” Laina screamed with pure love as her voice scaled up like she was being skinned alive. Her hips jerked up violently jamming her splattering muff up into Kelia’s hammering thrusts fully burying her fingers deep into her lover’s spasming twat gripping tight on the fingers plundering her gushing cunt soaking Kelia’s hand and Laina’s groin, pussy, ass crack, belly and inner thighs. “Aaaagghhhhiieeeeeeeeee! Uunnnngghhhiiieeeeeeeeee!” Laina wailed in helpless pleasure and pure love.

Thank you Daenerys Targaryen for all this! Thank youuuuuuuu!
Mirror Mirror

Chapter Notes

AN # 1: Graphic F-solo masturbation

AN # 2: This chapter and one other coming up soon will not fit the pattern of my other chapters. I started this story in July of 2015. in early August of 2015 i had written the second chapter. i then stopped and wrote 4 things i wanted to have in story. sort of way points. i doubt i will do that again.

one was Clash of Beasts a pivotal moment of Dany / Arya. i wrote another that will be a big pivot point for Arya / Dany. So these two i was easily able to incorporate into the story when it came time.

The two masturbation chapters i could not fit in that seemed right to the main flow of the chapters that all have multiple view points. the chapters before and after them are big and the View Points just did not allow for them to be grafted in.

Thus the two stand alone masturbation chapters. As i have shown i love to masturbate. Soooooo, though i know they disrupt the flow of how i write now i still want to use them. i created them and want to use them. Both masturbation chapters further the development of Dany / Arya relationship and both had a little humor with the second chapter more so.

The way i write changed a lot between when i wrote the stuff in August of 2015 and when i wrote where they got fitted in. Also my plans had changed. i worked them to try and make them graft in. Hopefully, succeeded.

There is tons of story coming. The March north is about to commence and much will happen on that March and at Winterfell. For anyone who knows the "Land" hopefully you will like what is about to happen. Purest will pull their hair out maybe but 44,000 years have passed and Stave led the Haruchai to reevaluate themselves.

Donaldson was always saying the Haruchai and Ramen were a passionate people. We will get to see that side when they "let their hair down". Oberyn will be both happy and pissed.

Since only Dany and Arya are in the masturbation chapters they are smaller. Won't have to invest as much time reading them. Rest of chapters will generally be much bigger with some split into two parts. Trying to not put out chapters larger than 30,000 words.

Chapter 35

Mirror Mirror

Daenerys

Daenerys was excited to be putting her plan into effect today. She had been frustrated by Arya’s modesty and Stark reserve. She had tried flirting that sometimes seemed to register but often the girl gave her slightly offended looks or seemed very uncomfortable. Other times she was sure that Arya was responding to her overtures but then the next moment that hope was dashed.

This had been highlighted when she had pulled off her top to have Arya rub lineament into her supposedly sore shoulders. Her nipples had been so erect they were painful. Daenerys had adjusted the angle of her body to try and get her ‘royal hostage’ fingers on her breast. The girl had absolutely refused to let her fingers roam. Damnit!

Daenerys had been hurt and pissed at the seeming rebuff of her blatant and then almost desperate attempt to get the teenager to take ‘advantage’ of her. It was not till later that the Queen started to realize that maybe, just maybe, the girl’s sheer inexperience and bashful reserve had prevented her from registering the Queen’s advances. She had come to learn of the Stark reserve.

Just when Daenerys felt like she had a grip on the Stark, grip (she wished!), the girl slipped through her fingers. Dany was very aware of Arya’s right to her body and to not have herself coerced. Daenerys had learned that lesson all too well in Essos. She had had no control over her own body and would never subject another woman to that. She wanted her women to want and desire her.

She wanted the girl to come to her. She was still scarred after all these years from being handed to Drogo like a piece of meat to be fucked and thrown away. Fortunately, she had been able to bend the man to her will slowly and surely. She had become the master without him even realizing it. She had then had to use her body with men to try and capture her throne. She had hated it. Daenerys had come to the place where she would never give herself to another unless she wanted and truly desired that person. Like she desired one Arya Stark.

She did owe something to Khal Drogo though. There was the one gift he had given the young thirteen year old. He had given her the insight to dream of greatness. In time she came to understand her true greatness and destiny. She was the Mare that had mounted half the known world.

Daenerys would never force herself on any woman no matter how much she wanted the woman. Daenerys knew she was in love with the Stark girl and hoped to get the girl to love her in return. Her lonely nights galling to her. To have her dream lover so close and yet so far away was frustrating to say the least.

The Queen was in a horny state. It was a state that seemed perpetual now. She was a woman who needed physical satisfaction to keep her equilibrium. While she had been waring with the slave states and bringing the Dothraki to heal her time and energy were focused on conquering her enemies and starting to institute the reforms necessary to transform Essos. She also had hopes to reform the codes and ethics of Westeros. A big advantage she had in her homeland was that she did not have to fight slavery as she had in Essos. It allowed for her to take a more genteel approach.

She had had to put all that on hold because of the vexation of Eddard Stark. He had made the young Queen feel like pulling her hair out at times. Since the arrival of his daughter and her hand delivered message her initial concerns had been much allayed. Now she had to worry with forming up the South of Westeros to meet the call of confronting a foe she had been sure she had disposed.

She smiled to herself. She was well on her way to achieving that goal. She felt proud of her ability to finesse the situation and work the various Houses to do her will and not realize that their goal was in all reality her goal.

So, on the political and governance front all was well. That was the side of Daenerys Targaryen that all saw. She had another side. The personal side of the Queen. The side that desired and craved affection and love. The side of her that needed a woman’s touch. A touch she had suppressed and denied as she ran up against the bigotry and culture of Essos and she knew existed in Westeros. Her need to conquer her foes and end slavery had been ascendant. That need had suppressed her personal desires.

She had suppressed her desires for a woman to love. She had denied herself the pleasure of having a woman making passionate love to her. All rulers wanted that special someone to share the burden with. Many rulers like herself craved the release that only great sex could give a person. For Daenerys that touch could only come from a woman.

She had tried to fake it in Meereen. She had tried to suppress it since. No more. Tyrion had ignited her primal needs with his first overtures on that beach in Dorne. He planted a seed that had taken root and fully bloomed. Her desires for a woman’s touch could no longer be suppressed.

She had finally taken Tyrion up on his offer to provide nightly entertainment to reduce her stress levels and give her mind, body and soul the release that it had to long suppress. She was so thankful she had finally taken him up on his offer.

He had provided willing prostitutes from the best brothels that catered to the rich and powerful wives of Lords, Sers and powerful business elites. These whores constantly fucking women who were either desperate for the female touch or who needed to scratch their bi itch from time to time. Daenerys and these women wanted to fuck women who themselves loved to partake of the fairer sex. Daenerys wanted lesbian or bisexual sluts in her bed.

Daenerys Targaryen was definitely of the former group. She had fallen on each whore who graced her bed with a rabid fuck hunger. She was making up for lost time. Gods she was in the heavens once more dining on succulent sloppy wet cunt meat and shoving her tongue deep up spasming assholes.

She had sucked off each whore who in turn was sucking her off so hard and long. She tribbed and finger fucked the willing whores to wailing and wild flipping orgasms. She again was in heaven tribbing pussy to pussy or on a woman’s thigh, belly or ass were her favorites.

She loved to use toys and a strap-on. She had fucked her begging whores bowlegged. She generally liked to fuck her women one on one but she had often fucked the incestuous mother-daughter couple of Chataya and Alayaya. She cherished fucking the couple who were married to each other. They had taken their strap-ons and fucked the Queen nearly to a comatose blissful state.

Daenerys shivered thinking of both of their cocks slamming up her fuck holes and feeling their bulbous dickheads jerking over each other deep in her belly as hey seesawed their cocks so hard and deep in and out her ass and cunny. She had cum so hard screaming like the proverbial banshees. She loved it nasty with strap-ons and the whores gladly slapped and pulled her hair raking clipped nails down her body marking her that way and with vicious hickies that had her screaming in pain and bliss.

They ‘made’ her do ATM and did A2P when she made it clear she wanted to be fucked that way without beforehand asking of permission. She knew she could trust them as the choked her; half gasping her. She was a switch and needed dominate women to be switches too so she could return the gift of rough sex with willing partners that craved it like she did. And the mother-daughter whores, Chataya and Alayaya, craved a hard savage love fuck. She would team up with the mother or other to fuck them DP and do all the nasty shit she loved.

Dany was so happy that the whores had found Solaja Xo and vice versa. They were so much in love and fucked the way that Dany loved to fuck. With total abandon and going for the brass ring again and again.
The Queen had heard all the reports from Varys and Tyrion’s snickers of how the Admiral was being boarded and thrown over the edge of her desk and fucked hard up her ass or being DPed like the willing wanton whore she was. Having two madams as her wives had also given the Summer Islander admiral access to willing and wanton whores who craved to join the festivities. Daenerys was happy for her loyal admiral.

The Queen always loved to fuck and fucked the night away with her extreme endurance and insatiable appetite for pussy and asshole. To be fucked with strap-ons and to be fisted in her pussy and ass. She was a total fuck fiend in bed and not ashamed one iota for it. Daenerys reveled in her total sexual liberation and freedom.

The Queen had worn all her women out. She would suck them off again and again. She cherished feeling a pussy exploding in her mouth and flooding it with sweet hot creamy cum. She never tired of it. Even Chataya and Alayaya were exhausted as they did the Queen and teamed up with the sovereign to fuck the mother or daughter DP with all the nasty sex that the Queen longed and needed to do now that her appetites were again giving free reign again. Dany never tired of eating women out. She loved pussy! She tribbed like her life depended on it.

What Daenerys had not fully realized till after the fact was that she had seen less and less prostitutes for the last two and half months. She had started to fantasize and use her fingers and toys more and more to bring herself off. She had fantasized about a particular girl she had seen through the eyes of Viserion. A girl who had then come into her life. A certain girl whose exuberance and wild antics had unknowingly captured her heart that day in her throne room. Only now had the Queen come to fully understand that.

She had seen less and less of the prostitutes in a slow progression she had not realized at first. She smiled reflecting on Chataya bemoaning the fact that her and her daughter no longer graced her bed. She told the Queen that the whores who had graced her bed were almost begging to again to fuck the Queen. Chataya and Alayaya had paid the whores extra for pleasing the Queen but they chuckled telling the Queen that the women would do it for free and then made it clear they would pay the madams to fuck the wild dragon in her quarters.

To once more feel her mouth sucking them off and tongue fucking them so sweetly in the pussy and up the ass. To feel the Queen finger blasting them to screaming orgasms in the pussy. To feel her fist in their pussies and up their assholes. To trib wildly and wrecking her bed. To use toys and strap-ons to pound pussy and asshole to oblivion. They wanted the Queen to pound their cunts and pulverize their exploding assholes to nirvana.

The Queen never tired of hearing how great in the sack she was. Daenerys preened when she was told what a great fuck she was. It made her feel so sexy and desirable to hear that. She had, since Arya arrived, stopped completely fucking any of the willing whores. She wanted to fuck only one girl. She wanted Arya Stark in her bed. Every night.

Daenerys Targaryen sensed that the shy reserved girl was hiding a ravenous lesbian slut within her core and soul. She just knew! Well she was sure she knew it. She had to be. She simply had to be! Her gaydar sometimes pinged so loudly with the girl she was worried she would get a migraine and the next time she was with Arya she became sure the girl was as straight as an arrow. She was merely young and innocent waiting for the right man to come and grab her affections. Those thoughts caused either a feeling of being ill or outright hostility towards any man Arya may find attractive. She wanted her!

Such thoughts of Arya finding another attractive enraged the petite Queen. Her rage notched up another level with the thought of Arya finding some man desirable over her. Arya had to be gay!
She just had to be! She wanted Arya all for herself. It was obvious the Wolf girl was a virgin. With her active life and warrior training she might not have a hymen for the Queen to take but she still wanted to be the first and only one to touch the girl. Only she would fuck the sweet wolf of House Stark. It would be Daenerys that would take her cherry and awaken the insatiable slut she knew resided in that sweet girl. She would make Arya into a woman true.

Arya would belong only to her and vice versa. They would only love each other.

The object of her love and suppressed rampant lust was right beside her at the moment. Daenerys was controlling her hormones making sure to not overwhelm and or scare the girl away. She was being extremely careful and diffident with the girl. She had been sold off like a heifer cow and made to feel it by her brother. That was how Khal Drogo treated Daenerys until she had learned how to bend the man to her will with first the help of Doreah and then her other sweet Dothraki handmaidens.

She had learned well how to please a man but even more so how to please women. It was only women she longed to love and fuck. Now that focus was only on Arya Stark. They would only love each other.

Arya was telling her about how she was so excited by today’s sword lesson. The new feints were so complicated and challenging. Daenerys always loved the inflections in Arya’s voice when excited. Passion for her sword lessons ringing true like a pealing bell. The Queen longed to teach Arya another kind of sword lesson!

The young pale Targaryen Queen turned to look at her young ‘hostage’. Gods she was so beautiful. She was so animated talking with her arms waving and her nipples semi erect jutting out her top. Daenerys nipples were rigid too with her sweat cooling her heated skin and more so with the lust she felt for the young princess.

The two practiced hard in the morning and worked up to the late morning and then went to Dany’s royal suite to bathe and prepare for the rest of the day. Dany had to go to a quick small council meeting on finances for the war effort this afternoon. There had been little requests for an audience with the Queen so she had put off till tomorrow having a hearing of grievances in the great throne room. The Small Council meeting she had pushed back till the late afternoon. It would be quick.

She had other plans. She smirked to herself at her ingenuity. She would finally get to see what the shy Stark girl had denied her. For too long!

Arya would spend the afternoon studying with various tutors. Missandei was teaching her High Valyrian. If Dany’s dreams came true she wanted her wife to be able to communicate to her in her own tongue. She had no problem speaking the common tongue but her mother language was so beautiful.

Arya was picking the language up quick like she did in all things. Dany masturbated to thoughts of the Stark howling her orgasm in high Valyrian. “Jevys qrinuntys jemo paktot issa qrinuntys jemo paktot issāe̱eksia yno bé jemi Daenyers se!” or “Doriar udra pónto syt eman! Lo Mēri jemi!” Dany shivered thinking her nasty thoughts. Yes, to hear Arya growling “I’m going to devour your wet sweet cunt and make you scream Daenerys!” or “ram your fingers in deep! Make me scream!”

The Stark girl seemed to be picking up the Queen’s language well. She also had the girl learning Dothraki but that was slower. The sentence structure and subjective verbs were proving difficult for the young princess but Daenerys had several Dothraki handmaidens teaching Arya. Recently, the campfire had seemed to flare stronger and now Arya was beginning to pick up the second language that Daenerys had come to think of as her second mother tongue.

Daenerys had seen how easily Arya put her Dothraki handmaidens under her spell without even realizing it. The girl was so innocent. The young Queen had made sure that Helli, Meziqqi and Tahigi understood that Arya was not to be touched or seduced. They had smiled slyly understanding exactly who the girl was for. They had happily acquiesced. There was plenty of pussy with all the young lord wives about and horny wives of merchants and commerce agents for them to ply and easily seduce to their traditional bed pallets.

Yes, Daenerys wanted Arya to know more than her native tongue and only the history of Westeros. Arya took other lessons on Valyrian history she always seemed happy to take. She was well educated on Westeros history but Dany also had her taking lessons in math, algebra, geometry because this developed the mind. She was getting lessons in finance and commerce from their Master of Coin Vedad Sofic. She wanted Arya to be capable and knowledgeable to be her Queen if her dreams were ever to be realized.

Arya took courses in the history of Esso since it was now ruled from Kings Landing too. She learned the Oral history of the Dothraki from her language instructors in that tongue. Arya was learning fast in all things.

Daenerys sighed. She knew the girl would voraciously learn the lessons of lesbian lovemaking. She couldn’t wait to start teaching her!

Many days Arya went back down to Seryio Foral for additional one on one training learning the subtly of becoming a water dancer. The master told Dany that the girl was advancing fast. She needed to only do a new routine once before she had it memorized to muscle memory. It had taken Daenerys months to master what Arya mastered in a day. She had learned from Syrio and Barristan that they too took months to commit those lessons to muscle memory. Dany could sense something was troubling Syrio recently but she had as yet to ask him. He was not greatly troubled she could tell but something was rankling him about his lessons with Arya.

The Queen had been bringing Arya to her quarters for a week and half now after their morning workouts and sword training. Arya had mentioned having to have her bath drawn in her quarters and it struck Daenerys that was not right for a High Princess. Arya Stark, as her royal hostage, deserved the right to have access to the bathing facilities that the Queen enjoyed. It was really the least the Queen could do for Arya. Arya deserved to be pampered as the High Princess she was. It was really just royal protocol the Queen was trying to follow. The fact that the Princess would be near her in a more erotic environment was beside point.

Daenerys had also secretly hoped to see the princess naked body and then maybe nature could take its natural course and they could be wildly boning! That was Daenerys fantasies. That had not been the reality dammit! The girl was so bashful about her body she was almost prudish. Arya made sure she had her body covered when Daenerys eyes would ‘accidentally’ drift her way.

It was highly frustrating to the Queen. At first she had wondered if she should be offended with the Stark girl not allowing her ‘charms’ to be seen. That thinking had slowly changed. Daenerys was just starting to realize that for some strange reason Arya did not think her body was supper hot and desirable. The girl did not look at herself as being highly desirable. The Valyrian had noticed and drooled over Arya’s unusual breast that were all nipples that engorged to ripe overripe plums when she was excited like she was often when she was exercising and sword practicing with their sword masters or against each other. She would be all flushed from exercise in the sheer tops they wore to not overheat. Then when their sweat cooled off their bodies Arya’s nipples would be so sweetly engorged with blood.
The sight had Daenerys mouth nearly salivating with the lust to utterly consume those sweet plum like nipples and make the girl writhe and whimper in pleasure. To see Arya’s mouth falling open in a helpless O of pleasure and to hear her throat cawing in sweet love cooings and choked groans of ecstasy.

Dany wanted to think that a lot of the reason for Arya’s nipples were so erect was the sight of her body. She looked for signs of this but she only would catch maddeningly brief glimpses. When she would see that look and then look again Arya had on a look of seeming innocence and not being interested in her as anything other than as a mentor and a subject of the Queen. Daenerys was finding it quite maddening actually.

She needed to see Arya’s body. Today she would! Even if it was with subterfuge.

They entered her suite. Arya breathed deep and smiled. “What is that I smell Daenerys? Flowers?” She looked around and spotted five vases filled to overflowing with sweet smelling Roses, Lilacs and Orchids. The smell so pleasing.

Dany watched her sweetheart move over to the closest vase and bend over breathing in deep. The girl looked so virginal breathing in deep the intoxicating perform with a soft smile on her face. Her ass was jutting out. Daenerys noticed yet again that Arya had a small rump but it was so tight and firm. The Queen had visions of first kissing those ass cheeks and then licking them as she made Arya gasp with wanton pleasure. Then the Queen would spread her ass crack open and sensually lick up and down that crack. She would tongue it and drool all along that sweet crease and up those firm ass cheeks. Then her tongue would lap and circle the sixteen year old’s spasming starfish and then focus on that sweet anus. Soft slow tongue licks with increased pressure letting her sweet wolf know where her tongue would soon reside. Then stiffening her tongue, Daenerys would slowly sink her tongue deep up Arya’s tight asshole. She shivered at the thought. Oh how Daenerys wished that the girl was her sweetheart in deed and not just thought.

Dany shook her lewd thoughts from her mind pushing them back for now. Still her desires were burbling and begging to be let loose. Dany smiled seeing Arya’s soft smile smelling the flower sweet scent deep into her lungs.

“What is that I smell Daenerys? Flowers?”

“Do you like them?”

“Yes!”

“Then I will have them in here from now on. They are in season but there are vendors who import them from Highgarden. You deserve the best Arya.” She smiled seeing the girl blush mightily. The girl instinctively bent her head down and batted her long eyelashes at Dany. Gods what this girl did to Dany without even trying!

“Thank you Daenerys. You are always so good to this little princess from the North”

“Anything for my sweet wolf” Daenerys had locked eyes with the girl but Arya turned away blushing. Arghhh! The girl was frustrating. She was sure that it was innocence but was so worried about abusing her power and seeing what she wanted to see Dany hesitated. If the girl would just give her one sure sign!

Arya went to sit on the long wide bench in front of the dresser and the large mirror that was four five feet high and ran the length of the dresser. The bench was padded with thick comfortable cushion with a velvet top that was so comfortable to sit on. The top could be lifted and items stored in it.

Dany had it locked since she had certain toys in it that she picked up during her conquests of Essos and she had acquired from Chataya and Alayaya. Dany longed to use her dildos, butt plugs, double headed dildos and strap-ons on Arya. She would fuck her so good with them.

Arya was definitely not ready to any of those yet!

Daenerys was disappointed that Arya never once yet looked up to look at her as she stripped and went into the bath suite. Damn that Stark resolve and iron will to implement it. Arya should have been ogling her body and then coming to Dany and fucking her! Dany took a calming breath. She had come to understand the girl was shy and bashful. She was also intelligent and crafty. Dany shivered with thoughts that the shy girl was somehow stealing looks at her Queen’s hot body when Daenerys had not been able to catch her. A girl could hope!

The girl had left a book on geometry on the dresser top. The Queen had used geometry and trigonometry in some of her sieges on designing siege weapons and distances for tunnel digging and such siege craft. She thought it strengthened the mind and wanted Arya to know the same knowledge and learn to think analytically.

Dany gulped. But the girl did not see her new adornment or thought nothing of it.

Daenerys stripped constantly looking up but the legendary Stark reserve was in full effect. Damn Eddard Stark for drilling too much honor into his children! Did they all exhibit this restraint when it came to sex? Honor was nice but it was definitely crimping her libido and her desires for a certain wolf girl. She longed to strip the young teenager of her control and make her into a raging slut who couldn’t get enough pussy! Dany smirked to herself with her wayward thoughts.

She was putting the cart before the horse. She had yet to really see Arya’s body. A body she longed to see and lust after today. She was sure today that would change with her addition to her dresser.

It was agreed with Arya’s insistence that the Queen go first. Dany had not fought it too much. Getting clean and relaxed from the hot water always put the Queen in a horny state that had her hyper tuned to ogle and fantasize about taking and ravishing her sweet young wolf girl.

She took her bath. When alone she would often masturbate but she was never a quiet person when it came to sex. She wanted to scream and thrash spilling water out of the deep tub all over the floor as her limbs thrashed and she often jammed her feet on the tub bottom and lifted her cunt up out of the water still hammering her fingers or dildo into her exploding pussy as she humped desperately as shockwaves pulsed through her body and she screamed and screamed.

She really went crazy when she fucked her asshole with a ribbed dildo or took her special ‘rubber’ double headed dildo from the southern island of Sothoryos. The material flexible. Alayaya had shown her how to bend it back on itself and snake both bulbous cockheads into her tight pussy and pinched shut anus. Gods the orgasms from that double penetration had made her lose her mind in shocking ecstasy as she had an anal and vaginal orgasm at the same time. Gods Dany loved anal sex.

Daenerys finished her bath luxuriating in the heated water. A large heated storage tank dropping in heated water and letting out cold dirty water with a turn of a few knobs. She had brought the design in from Volantis. Tyrion and her Maester had fined tuned the original design to make the valves easier to operate and have the water drain out in a fast or slow manner and fresh water added when needed to heat up the bath. Daenerys liked mechanical contraptions and knowing how they were constructed and their inner workings.

Dany came out with a towel wrapped around her slender small frame. Another towel wrapped around her long platinum blond hair. She went over to see where Arya was in the book and they talked about the latest news from Casterly Rock. The girl easily mastered the mathematics and asked probing questions that showed she knew how to analyze her environment and apply mathematics to solve real world problems.

Again Dany marveled at how perfect Arya was for her. She would be the Queen that she needed at her elbow. The Stark teenager would help her rule during the day and grace her bed at night. They would fuck each other blind every night relaxing bodies and minds so the next day they could govern fully and efficiently.

Dany was making sure that Arya was fully versed on current politics and policies she was proposing or busy implanting. Daenerys was so happy that Arya was so excited to see how the mechanisms of government worked. Arya was even more excited with Daenerys ideas for reform.

Arya was excited for change in the world and felt that Dany should charge forward but Dany was patiently teaching Arya patience. She had a lifetime full of Slaver’s Bay. She had crushed the vile slave trade but she was still so haunted by dreams of all she had killed.

Only as a last resort she promised herself. She had developed the power necessary to take other paths now. She acquired the power she had for more than purely conquest.

Arya got up from the bench and slowly walked to the end of the large canopied royal bed. The bed the Queen desperately wanted to fuck the Stark girl in.

The routine had been set where the maids laid out the towels for Arya and her change of clothes she would dress into for the afternoon.

Dany noticed her new acquisition was exactly where she had placed it on the dresser. She smirked. Yes she loved it when a plan came together. Her new mirror was perfectly positioned to allow her to watch Arya strip nude. The girl’s modesty had thwarted her for long enough!

She smiled as the girl kept looking up to make sure that Dany was following her strict orders to not “peek”. Dany had laughed when Arya used that word. She had come to understand that the word choice itself spoke volumes. The girl was so innocent that she was not aware of the raging lust simmering only a few feet away from her. She could understand the girl’s reticence about letting Dany see her body in that context. It was frustrating to the young Queen but she could understand it. She was used to women throwing themselves at her. That she liked a lot.

She was sure the girl was attracted to her but she simply refused to follow the Targaryen cues. Dany hesitated greatly to advance on the young girl without any overtures from the teenager. She would not do to Arya what had been done to her. The whores and women she had gladly fucked in Essos had been all about pleasure. The same with the prostitutes that Tyrion arranged to have in her bed in Westeros. With Arya there was so much more than just concerns about raw exploding pleasure. This was about something so much more. Something precious. Something she would not let pure lust ruin, thus, her slow approach.

Dany was very comfortable with her body and had assumed at first that Arya, a Princess of a high noble house would have a proud self-confident opinion of her body. She had come to understand that she did not. What Daenerys had to come to slowly understand was that Arya had very low self-esteem. In gently probing the young princess she had come to sense that Arya felt like the ugly duckling when she was compared to the radiant beauty of her sister Sansa.

The tall girl with long auburn hair and the deep blue eyes had the beauty that the bards sang about. Sansa had sensual curves to Arya’s almost nonexistence ass or breast. Dany had started to wonder if the young girl felt that compared to Daenerys Targaryen herself she was not hot compared to the Queen. The Queen suspected that Arya felt her puffy nipples an embarrassment. That Arya thought her cute little rump was not turn a on to the extreme. Arya’s ass was plenty big and sensual to the Valyrian.

Dany looked over at Arya and smiled at her. The girl blushed so cutely. Dany could see her nipples poking out her top now. Gods they were so fucking big. She wanted to suck them down her throat!
They were unusual for sure but their uniqueness had the Queen hypnotized with lust to suck those bulbs into her mouth and devour. Anyone would long to suck on those juicy nipples for hours. To work those engorged bulbs with one’s hot sucking mouth while her fingers fucked the girl to screaming orgasms.

Dany turned back around to give the girl her supposed privacy. Dany watched Arya check one more time and thought her need for modesty had been satisfied. The Queen smirked. Dany had the small mirror positioned such that as Dany started to dry her hair and run her fingers through her lightly wet tresses she looked off to the side slightly like she had for the last week to get the girl used to the position of her body. This position allowed the Queen to see her bed in its totality. And since Arya was by it—her too!

Dany felt her breath catch as the girl began to undo the laces of her top. Dany had to force herself to keep drying her hair. She felt her breath hitching. She watched the teenager grip the hem of her top and start to lift her shirt up off her body. The Queen pursed her lips stifling a moan of desire seeing Arya’s soft creamy pale skin exposed. Her back and ribs came into view and the Queen felt her cunt spasm and flush with desire. The Stark girl’s skin was so smooth and pale. She longed to stroke and kiss Arya’s pale white body being exposed to her ravenous eyes.

The Queen watched the interplay of muscles that flexed and relaxed as the girl worked the top up her body. The girl’s luxurious brown hair was caught up in the folds of the rising shirt. The girl’s arms now rising to pull the shirt off her body and up her head. More of the teenager’s skin was exposed and Dany’s couchie was now wet and her breathing was a little ragged. Her skin was flushed but her recent bath and drying could explain that.

Arya’s body was so muscled with lean long ropey muscles. Seeing Arya’s back muscles play and work had Dany seeing in her mind her behind the girl her hips. Dany’s mind drifted to a sweet day in the not too distant future. She had a grip of the teenager’s hips her fingers clenched into the young girl’s hips and the swale down to her ribs. Dany would be slamming into the girl’s firm round ass with her strong thighs. The smacks of sweaty bodies loud in the room. The sounds of women moaning and cawing in the throes of the rut. The Queen slammed her cock in and out the girl’s swollen drooling pussy and then pulling out her camel toe as Arya whimpered. Dany would pull her cum slicked cock up over Arya’s cum slicked perineum. Guiding her cockhead to Arya’s spasming anus. Then Dany would slam home her thick long cock into Arya’s hungry wanton asshole that she had long ago deflowered with savage hard anal poundings. Gods the screams Dany would make Arya howl. Daenerys would teach Arya the awesome beauty of exploding asshole ripping anal
’gasms.

Arya pulled her shirt up and over her head. Dany gasped at the girl’s beauty. She had slightly twisted her body in getting her top off. It had exposed her front in side relief. Dany had to really clamp her lips now to stifle her moans. The girl had only the slightest swelling of breast. Just the smallest of hillocks that had the Queen’s mouth salivating. She thought of swallowing the girl’s breast entire.

And the girl’s nipples. Gods they looked so plump and how they formed a cone on the top of the girl’s breast like a half bursting plume. Even with her nipples not fully erect they were so spongy with her nipple jutting up from pulpy areolas. Dany knew those nipples would engorge with blood when she aroused the girl. Those nipples would swell to bursting oversized small plums. All stiff but still pulpy for her to suck on. She could already feel her lips hooking on the small overhang of the girl’s nipple over the smallest of their breast. Gods Dany wanted to have Arya!

Oh gods, to sink her teeth lightly into those bursting nipples and saw her teeth back and forth gently as she finger fucked the girl and looking up to see her wolf’s face shattering with ecstasy as she slammed her finger in out her sloppy wet cunt. She would suck so hard her cheeks hollowing out as she speared the hard swollen engorged nipples. The girl’s heated greasy inner folds spasming and clenching hard on her fingers as Arya’s orgasm rocked her body.

Currently, the girl’s body stretched as she arched her back jutting out her plump nipples. Arya was performing so like an ingénue not even realizing the affect she was having on her Queen. Arya twisted her back to work her spin which had the effect of showing off her beautiful nipples. Nipples now full erect! They were swelled up jutting over the small hillock of her breast. All light brown and begging to be devoured! Dany nearly dropped the comb she had started to brush through her hair. Her lightning fast reflexes grabbed the spinning tumbling comb before she embarrassed herself.

Arya checked again to make sure Dany was not looking in the big mirror. She was not but she was staring hard at the small one. Dany was very pleased with herself. She had to suppress another moan. The girl feeling safe brazenly moved her hands up to her nipples and rasped them with her palms circling them and grinding in. Dany was still pretending to dry and comb her hair. She was drooling seeing Arya’s body jolt with hedonistic pleasure and now the girl’s nipples were so swollen they looked like they may truly burst they were so engorged and pulpy.

Arya whimpered. She jerked and stopped. She looked back quickly but Dany had tilted her head down to dry her hair further seemingly. In reality she was making sure Arya did not know she was being spied on. Bent over Dany glanced at Arya. Arya had proceeded on with her disrobing.

Dany felt her breath catch as Arya undid the laces of her birches and then let them fall. Dany felt her cunt that had been moistening with her labia lips engorging and nipples erect. Now her cunt flooded and throbbed as did her now fully erect nipples. She felt that tingling flush of arousal flood her now aching body. Seeing Arya’s pussy with the closely cropped hair let Dany see her slit and the bugle of her clitoral hood. This had the Dragon princess instantly sloppy wet. Her shaved twat soaked and inner thighs quickly getting in that state.

The Stark girl looked down at her pussy looking at her thatch and then ran her finger up and down her slit shivering. She did this several times her pussy lips engorging. She looked up suddenly looking sheepish.

Dany was again seeming to dry her hair and work out the tangles her focus not on her royal hostage. Dany was fighting to keep from passing out. The girl was fucking perfect. Her slender hips on top of thick thighs that had nearly snapped her in two during their fight in the throne room. The girl had well developed shoulders and lats giving her the briefest of V shape to her upper body that made Dany wet for the girl.

Arya picked up her towels and went into the bath suite. Soon Dany heard Arya get in the bath and begin washing. Dany knew she usually took nearly a half an hour to wash and shampoo her hair. Arya loved to soak and enjoy the hot water.

More than enough time Dany thought with a happy spasm. She had told herself beforehand that she shouldn’t do it but she now told herself “Fuck that!” She was noisy when she fucked or masturbated but she would just have to show some of that will power that had allowed her to conquer Essos where no one had ever even conquered a third of the continent.
Dany knew she should feel guilty for spying on the Stark girl but the only thought that occurred to the Targaryen was how she wanted to make Arya howl. Dany was conflicted but she wouldn’t let guilt ruin this moment. She knew she should feel guilt for wanting the girl for herself. She did not. She would debate with herself later about not feeling any guilt over her voyeurism. She wanted the girl. She was rapidly deciding she would indeed do what was necessary to take this girl as her Queen.

She just wish the girl would show her some adore and that she desired her Queen as much as her Queen desired her royal hostage. She did not realize she was hiding her new love and raw lust as well as the young royal hostage was doing in return to the Queen.

Daenerys knew she should release her lust and love and let the Stark girl follow her destiny and letting the Stark girl have the freedom to follow her heart, but, Dany’s heart screamed at her to take the Stark Princess and make her hers.

Dany let the towel wrapped around her body fall to the floor exposing her nude body. She turned to look at herself in the full mirror. Her light brown nipples were rock hard and her areolas steeple. Her pale face and neck flushed. Her violet eyes were almost ablaze with her inner burning lust. Her damp hair so luxurious and hanging off her shoulders and down her back.

Daenerys was hot. She knew it and was not embarrassed to admit that truth. She suspected her royal hostage felt the same but she refused to show it to the Queen. Which was maddening!

Dany looked at the windows. It was a warm day with a strong breeze. Yes, the strong breeze blowing the drapes would help mask her scent. The sweet flowers perfume would hide her pungent musk. Of course she wanted the object of her desires to be surrounded by pretty flowers and their sweet scent to make her happy. But they served another purpose. To hide the smell of her aroused swollen cunny.

Dany put her comb down. She stared at her reflection. This was going to be so delicious. Her hands came up to massage and roll her breasts. Dany loved the feel of her firm grapefruit sized breast rolling underneath her palms. Her palms rasping her nipples making them throb with aching pleasure. Her hands worked her breast rolling them then she cupped her breast squeezing them. She started to moan softly in wheezing gasps. Her fingers now sinking deep into her pale breast.

“Unnggg hhhnggg mmmgggg hhhnnn hhhnnn hhhngggg!” the Queen softly mewled as squeezed and mauled her tits with moderate hard squeezes. Her fingers found her nipples and rolled the sensitive nubs squeezing them. The rock hard nubbins felt like rubber slightly crinkled as pulled on them. She gasped hit hard with pleasure.

She felt hot pulses filling her breasts. Her clit was so hard and aching to be touched. Her pussy already sloppy wet. Dany looked down at her dark pink labia lips engorged and bloomed out her slit all knotted up and wet with fuck juice. She gasped at the sight. She squeezed her thighs to add friction and pressure to her puss. Her body jolted with arching pleasure.

Her left hand continued to work her aching breast. Her right hand snaked down her hard muscled body. She sensually circular stroked her flat stomach loving the feathery spasms she felt deep in her womb that nearly staggered her with cunt spasming pleasure. Dany slowly circled down her clenching belly down to her swollen wet camel toe. She now rubbed up and down her slit as she gasped in pleasure. She first rubbed over her clamshell loving the slimly wet feel. Her body was spasming now with hedonistic pleasure. She leaned forward and drooled out ribbons of spit that roped down and landed onto her cunt. Her fingers rubbing the spittle into her cunt.
lubrication allowing her fingers to easily slide up and down her greasy slit.

Dany splayed out her labia lips and ran her fingertips up and down her slit as they were quickly greased with her wet juices and more bubbly spit she drooled out her mouth. The long ropey strands of spit swaying on her lips before breaking off to fling down onto her wet cunt. Dany’s head rocked back in pleasure when her fingers ghosted over her clit and the shock of pleasure ran through her body. Dany loved to watch herself masturbate and fuck. She began to rub around her clit in a delicious circular dance her fingers now jacking into her clit at angles as she circled it.

"Unh! Unh! Mngee! Unh! Mngee! Oh! Mngee! Unggh!" she half-panted, half whimpered. Dany felt the tension beginning its first tightening in her belly and deep in her creamy now cum filled cunt.

She watched her eyes droop with lust. Pictures of Arya’s naked body flooded her mind’s eye. She pulled on her nipple before moving over to her other swelled breast and rolled it before she played with her sensitive nubbin pulling and squeezing it.

She swallowed as best she could her moans of pleasure. The bath suite was far enough away to mask her soft whimpers with Arya busy washing herself.

Daenerys felt her body on fire for her sweet wolf. Gods how she wanted to bury her face in Arya’s muffin and suck her off until the girl was screaming in orgasm.

Daenerys started to circle her clit pressing into its hood. She gidgeted her clit and now brushed over it with her fingertips jacking her clit. Dany gagged in raw pleasure. She started to brush over the tip of her clit she exposed by taking her left hand and pressing in on her belly just behind her clitoral hood. This pulled it back and down exposing her clit sheath. She buzzed her clit with her fast rubbing fingers filling her belly with soul gagging pleasure. Her cum slicking her fingers letting her rub furiously over her clit.

The Queen felt her face slashed with hard pulses of bliss. Her breathing now ragged. Hard jerks filled the Queen’s body as searing bolts of pleasure flashed through her body. Each jolt of pleasure making the Queen’s face twist with primordial pleasure. She strangled cries of raw aching pleasure.

Her hips instinctively humped up into her circling fingers. Her palm started to roll over her left breast rubbing her callused palm over the rock hard nipple rubbing over it sensually. She was close. She went for the love kill. She took her left hand and pushed in on her clitoral hard from the side putting intense pressure on her nubbin and the pressure jutting it fully out its sheath. With her right hand she rubbed hard and furiously back and forth over her shiny clit.

Her eyes were squeezed tight shut when they suddenly shocked wide open. Her womb shattered and exploded in her belly. Using every ounce of her willpower she half strangled her cries of ecstasy. "Ohhnggg! Arrrunngggg! Hhnnn hhnnn hhnnnggg … Unngghmmnngggeeeeee! Mmmghhhhiieegggg! Nnnhhhiieeeeeee! Mmmnnhhggggiiieeee!" she cried out, feeling a horrific climax rend her quivering flesh, raking her nerves with fierce pleasure, pummeling her body with excruciating spasms of fucking bliss. Her head snapped forward and down and then jacked back as her face slashed with almost agonizing pleasure.

Dany felt her body convulse with shattering womb rending spasms of fucking bliss. Her body lurched forward and snapped back repeatedly as her now filmed with sweat body convulsed in the throes of sweet orgasm. The orgasm finally waned and she was left partially stunned. She was groggy but already her body was thrumming for more. Masturbating to her sweet wolf with her so near was making her so fucking horny! She needed more.

Daenerys pivoted around to lean back on the long wide plush bench putting a bent arm behind her head to prop herself up and stretched out her right leg out the left folded out on the bench opening her vagina up for her hungry fingers. Her cunny was so swollen and drooling out cum that soaked her mound, ass crack, pelvis and down her thighs.

She needed more!

She first massaged her breast some more tracing and pinching her nipples as she gasped in hedonistic pleasure. Her eyes slit and her throat parched with need.

Her right hand flowed back down her stomach and rubbed her cunt with her first two fingers. She worked them up and down her snatch whimpering in pleasure. Her whimpers turned to deep chested gurgles of ecstasy when she slowly slipped two fingers deep into her hot tight quim. She pumped them in and out her fuck hole gagging at the pleasure. She slow stroked them in and out her pussy. Her eyelids fluttered in wanton pleasure. On the out stroke Dany could see her fingers soaked with her fuck slime. Her fingers glistening in the light but also covered in creamy smears of hot cum.

Dany, after a minute pulled her fingers out her drooling muffin and rotated them in her swollen pussy slit bulging out her vulva first one side and then the other as her fingers rotated in her dripping snatch. Her head rocking back her long hair flagged behind her head as her fingers pressed harder into her pussy. Then she plunged her fingers back into her pussy and finger banged her twat hard and deep. Her bent fingers of her fourth and little finger slamming her mons.

Her pussy was burbling and slurping on the long digits fucking her honey hole hard and deep. Dany loved the sound of a wet cunt getting fucked hard. Gods she loved fucking herself as her belly spasm with the first distant pulse of her next orgasm.

Her left hand snaked up from her bent arm and massaged her left breast rolling and squeezing. Her fingers finding and rolling her engorged teat and pinching before again cupping and rolling her breast. She was getting close too fast! She pulled her fingers back out her snatch. She now had her right hand rotating on her pussy and then rubbing up and down slit before again rotating on her so wet pussy. The pleasure so delicious and throbbing. Her pussy was on fire with need! Need inspired by Arya Stark!

Her head rotated from side to side in helpless pleasure with small jerks shaking her head as the pleasure ratcheted up. Squeaks and moans of pleasure now escaping half-loud again from her lips. The pleasure was so fucking intense. She felt so alive masturbating with her love not twenty-five feet away. She pressed harder into her slit gagging in helpless pleasure her eyes lightly lidded and fluttering.

“Oh Arya! How I want your hands on my body … stroking my body … make my head throw back, my back arched … my body on fire with your touch …” the Valeryian whimpered.

More whimpers of want and need escaped her lips. “Ummmgggg mmmmngggg … ooohhh Arya!”

She brought her fingers up to her mouth enjoying her taste. She loved the taste of her own pussy and mewled sucking her fingers clean running them up and down her tongue as she sucked on them sensually.

Then her fingers were back at her pussy. She adjusted so she could lay out on the bench her legs bent out at the knees opening her cunny up. Her camel toe swirled and bulged out underneath her now hard rubbing fingers pushing in hard into her vulva and rubbing over her throbbing clit. “Ummggg hhnnggg hnnnggg … oohhhhh yes yessssssss!” she whimpered softly.

Dany rubbed her fingers up and down her cunt form her perineum to up and over her clit. Up and down she rubbed sitting her body on fire. Her head lulled from side to side on the bench soft whimpers flowing from her mouth.

She now went hard and fast with her fingers rubbing up and down her snatch. She did this maybe ten times back and forth when her back arched and her eyes squeezed shut tight. Her cunt erupted sending geysers of shocking bliss roaring through every cell of her body. "Auungghhhh!" she groaned, her body flipping and squirming out of control as a sharp orgasm ripped her. Suppressing her screams of bliss made her orgasm even more intense. Fighting her need to wail intensified her pleasure.

The Queen nearly slipped off the bench but somehow flipped her body back onto the bench centered with her next jackknife of fucking searing bliss. "Ohhh! Oh! Nngggmmnnnggiieee!" Daenerys squealed, climaxing in a sharp spasms of ecstasy, her face torn with agony and bliss. Dany clamped down on her cries she wanted to scream in full throttled ecstasy. "Nngghhhhhh! Oh!
Anngghhhoooonnggg!" she half-moaned, half- sighed as her body began to come down from the wrenching climax.

Dany’s belly was so warm and fuzzy with post coital bliss. Her head was lulled to the left her eyes slit. Her fingers traced her nipples and she felt her cunt spasm with aftershocks of gut wrenching pleasure. Her groans soft and guttural.

She brought her fingers to her mouth again feasting on her juices wishing they were Arya’s. Slowly in and out Dany slide her fingers up and down her tongue and pursed lips. For next several minutes the Queen luxuriated sucking her fingers like a pacifier. Her body at first filled with sweet lassitude.
She heard Arya chirping as she washed. Her belly tightened again in raw aching need.

Her fingers went south again and rubbed a few circles in her sloppy wet vulva and then her first two fingers were pushed into her cunt deep. Dany’s body stiffened in raw pleasure and then relaxed as the Queen pumped her fingers slowly in out her greasy cunt sinking them in deep and slowly pulling out before thrusting in hard and fast to only pull out slowly. She kept this rhythm up to start her pussy singing again. She was so fucking wet.

Daenerys was insatiable wearing out her lovers and making sure they fucked her bowlegged but dreaming of fucking Arya had her body on fire. She brought the same insatiable appetite she had in fucking to her masturbation. Dany loved to fuck herself as much as she loved fucking other woman.
She knew exactly how to stroke and work her body to orgasm after orgasm.

Dany always loved the heat and wetness of her own pussy. How tight she was. The feel of her lubricated inner folds gripping her pumping fingers like a velvet fist. She loved how her inner folds wetly sucked on her deep sliding fingers. Her pussy was wet and slurpy sounding as she worked her cunt with expert skills. Her thumb bent over the two fingers now slamming fucking her fuck hole.
This let Dany pound her clit making the Queen’s face twist with almost agonizing pleasure.

Daenerys mound and inner thighs were slicked with her love juice. She felt her cum leaking down her perineum soaking her anus and ass crack. She moaned thinking of Arya’s tongue deep up her ass and then her strap-on fucking her asshole so hard and deep. She had visions of Arya’s fist sinking deep up her ass and love fucking her to an epic anal ‘gasm. Her eyelids closed feeling her sphincter rings gripping Arya’s wrist tight as she slammed her fist deep up her asshole.

Her mind’s eyes could see it so clearly. She moaned louder not able to control her desires for the Wolf girl to totally ravish and dominate her when she was in heat. Gods knew she would mount and take her Wolf when the Dragon was raging and in heat.
The Queen’s throat cawed in raw aching pleasure. Her mind filed with thoughts of Arya’s naked body and what it would be like to feast on those plump nipples. She could feel those bursting plums on her tongue. Her lips hooked underneath the rim of the engorged areolas. Her head lifting with the force of her impassioned deep throat love sucks.

Then her mind was filled with visions of her face buried in the girl’s cunt lapping furiously on her slit and clit. She would suck the sweet cunt meat deep into her mouth and pump her head. Her head pumps tenting the wet trim all wet and dark pink. Then pressing her face in hard. Sucking in the girl’s clt and tongue lashing and tongue lapping furiously with lots of hot short sucks. Her loving ministrations taking the girl to orgasm.

She would make the girl scream like the furies of hell were on her tail.

She had her rhythm pumping her fingers in and out her now singing pussy it was so wet. She used her upper fingers and palm to mash into her rigid clt as her right hand pumped fingers deep up into her buttery cunt. Her left hand pulled and twisted her nipples making her back arch in raw hedonistic pleasure. Her rhythm hard now slam fucking her swollen dripping wet snatch.

She lifted her head to watch her right hand masturbate her pussy. Her mound now so swollen and dark pink with rushing blood and so fucking wet her cunt squishing with each thrust. Her pervious orgasms had her pussy so engorged and sloppy wet. Her greasy cum filled cunt was letting her fingers slam effortless in and out her buttery cunt. Her knuckles slamming into her wet engorged vulva. She felt sweet spasms ripping her belly now.

She looked down her body. She had toweled herself dry but her body was now soaked with dripping sweat. She did not care. Her body was on fire! Her fingers were a blur slam fucking her swollen quim. Her fingers pounding deep up into her hot tight cunt. She saw cum splattering out her pussy. Her pussy making wet obscene noises of self-pleasure. Dany looked at her fingers all soaking wet glistening with creamy cum that soaked her digits to the webbing of her fingers. Her cum now milky as felt she the rising tension deep in her belly and the beginning tightening in her inner thighs she often felt before orgasm.

In only another minute she was getting close again. She always cummed fast and hard when she started fucking but thinking of fucking Arya always made her cum hot and even faster. Her left hand came down and started rotate her fingertips over her diamond hard shiny clt rubbing faster and faster mashing in rolling and jacking her clt. Her right hand slamming her fingers in and out her slicked so wet cunt.

Her pussy pulsed and gripped the fingers plunging in deep the fingertips working in so deep sluicing through her wet folds and whorls. Her head was up again and she watched herself Jill herself off. Her breathing was ragged with need now. Her belly heaving as she gasped and chuffed getting oxygen as her body tensed and she harpooned fucked her slurping cunt.

She slammed her cunt with her right hand and she rose back up with her left hand and massaged roughly her left breast. Her breast had swelled and her nipples so engorged the tips had whitened. Her skin had flushed her throat and down her upper chest. She felt her body dripping with perspiration. She was chuffing hard her body desperate for oxygen as she fucked herself hard and fast. Her throat cawed with strangled moans of searing pleasure that rocked her to the depths of her now spasming cunt.

She was so close she grunted and whinnied softly looking at the door to the bath suite. Arya had not heard. She slammed her fingers into her twat pounding her palm into her clt. So close so close … “oh yes—just a little more … Ffffucckkkkk!” her mind screamed.
Her left arm had splayed out behind her as she lifted her hips up off the bench and her fingers slammed into her cunt. She looked up her belly angled up in the air with her ankles pressed into the bench lifting her groin up in the air. Her hips instinctively flexing lifting her snatch up into her pounding fingers. Her left hand gripped the side of the bench as the Queen moved to get her feet on the bench to press them down on the bench. She raised her body up onto her shoulders.

The new position filled her belly with rigid tension her muscled stomach now accordion tight showing off her abs. Her shoulders were jammed into the bench her cunt jammed up high off the bench now. Dany groaned seeing her hips flexing and her cunt rising and falling into the fingers fucking herself. She looked up her sweat soaked belly as her right hand harpoon fucked her swollen muff. Her fingers a blur as they slammed fucked her splattering sloshing fuck hole.

Her pussy exploded gushing out pulses of sweet hot cum that slurped as she continued pounding her pussy prolonging her orgasm. Her knees flexed lowering her torso and surging up again and again as shattering spasms of fucking bliss tried to tear her belly open and her cunt inside out.

Dany fought hard to suppress her cries of ecstasy "Unngghuuunnngghhh!" she groaned through her gritted teeth. "Unngghhhh! Oh shit shit unngghhhhaauunngghhh!" Her clenched ass cheeks and thrusting hips kept throwing her exploding snatch high in the air as her fingers kept slam fucking her cunt to prolong her searing womb rending pleasure. Her very veins alive with fucking bliss her toes curling painfully in shocking pleasure.

Her body suddenly collapsed back on the bench as convulsions of ecstasy tore through her young tight body. Her eyes squeezed tight shut. Her eyes seeing stars as she swallowed as best she could her screams of pleasure. Her head lifting again and again slamming the thickly cushioned bench with the back of her head as pulses of ecstasy hammered her body.

“Dany are you alright?” Arya asked from the bath suite.

Dany’s eyes shot wide open as her body quaked in strong aftershocks. ‘Y-Y-Yes! Fine! Just fine! No problems in here” she almost shouted.

“You sure … you sound strange”

Dany’s body still shaking with aftershocks now had control of her faculties. She had sat up. “I just dropped my comb … no problem—finish your bath”

“Okay”

Dany sucked her fingers clean sucking hard. She so loved the taste of pussy. She sat up. Sweat was pouring off her body in rivulets. She shook hard with strong aftershocks. She groggily reached down for one of her towels and began the process of drying her body and hair for a second time. After a minute she had her hair kind of dried. Dany pushed her hair back from her face. Her face still dripping sweat. She loved the feel of her satiated body feeling well and truly fucked.

She got up and sniffed. The flower had masked her musk. Almost. She had not known ahead that she would jill off three times. Her body shivered with remembered pleasure and thoughts of taking Arya as her lover. She would have her. She simply had to.

She got a towel and folded it in half. She needed more flowers. She started to wave her towel up and down toward the window.

“Gods … what that girl does to me”
Myrion Dwellen / Cersei / Oberyn / Obara / Cersei / Obara / Oberyn / Tyron

Myrion

The master of arms and head trainer at the Battleborne Academy of Dorne sat behind his desk doing his paper work. He worked at the prime military institute in all of Dorne; it was there that bodies were hardened and trained for warfare and the best minds were honed in military tactics.

Myrion was proud of his institute. It was the envy of all of Westeros.

It had been the training of body and mind at Battleborne academy that had produced the soldiers and military leaders that had repulsed all invaders for centuries. Even the Targaryens with their dragons had been unable to conquer Dorne with the men and women that had graduated from this academy to oppose them.

Battleborne Academy was located midway between Sunspear and Planky town. It rested on five thousand acres of land of land that Nymeria herself had set aside when she first landed. She had understood the importance of a strong military; Dorne had never forgotten that need. The best and brightest were sent through its academy, and this kept Dorne strong and independent. Many joined the civilian workforce after six years of military service, but remained in the reserves for an additional fifteen years as well.

Myrion had been born in the maw of the Prince’s Pass in the high desert between the Mountains of Sky that separated Highgarden and Dorne on one side, and the Cedar Mountains to the east. The mountainsides covered in towering cedar trees were prized by shipbuilders. The trees were cut down and floated down the Charmed River, all the way to the Chafferly River that ran down to the Holt, where they were stopped and before floating all the way into the Summer Sea.

He could still remember his father logging up in the high glens, with the rich smell that was unique to cedars.

His uncles stilled lived the Bedouin lifestyle, and he had fallen in love with their traditional sword. It had blades on each end of a long, carved central pole. The right hand blade was heavier, and had a curved back with a scallop to reduce weight. The left blade was thinner and straight. Both blades had circular guards. Had he not felt the pull of the military so strongly, he would still be with them now.

Only the best came into the academy. This was why he had been most displeased during the Queen’s visit several months after her arrival in Westeros.

She had been polite and formal enough when she met him. Myrion had even marveled at how she dressed plainly, refusing to wear a crown or tiara. She had requested that he spar with her in full contact mode. She wore her dragon mail armor, and he wore the chainmail his master had given him as a gift when he made colonel. When she had pulled her sword from its scabbard and it sprang to life, glowing bright blue, he had nearly dropped his own Thief sword, the traditional weapon of the Bedouins in the heart of the Dorne Desert - land of his birth.
Despite his later years, he was still robust and full of vigor. He gripped his blade, twirling it over his head and then worked the thief sword in a windmill pattern back and forth. The queen easily parried, and slid her blade down to his guard then jerked his blade down. She then attempted to leap her blade up and forward, but his upward-thrusting weapon knocked her blade to the left instead.

They had fought back and forth on the main parade ground as Oberyn and this two oldest sand snakes, along with about four hundred others, watched the Queen keep their master on the defensive. He would attack, and have his attacks blunted or turned, and then he was having to parry and turn aside her very intricate sword strokes.

He had finished the duel to a draw after ten minutes. He was breathing heavily while she displayed no sign of being winded at all. He had fallen for the woman in a martial way at that moment. She was truly Nymeria reborn!

After their match, the Queen went to his office and told him that she had a plan for Cersei Lannister. Myrion had perked up, thinking the Queen was going to part the beautiful woman with her head. He had been shocked when she told him to expect her arrival to his academy when she took King’s Landing. He had argued over it with her, inevitably being overruled.

Oberyn had come into his office during their discussion, and when he heard the idea the Queen had for the Lannister he had nearly gone apoplectic. Myrion’s most prized graduate had argued with the Queen further where he dared not. In the end, it had been all for naught. Over time he learned that the Queen was going to give Cersei three choices. He fervently hoped she would not choose to come to Dorne, and if she did, he would break her quickly and be done with woman.

The only problem was she never broke. In fact, he had come to greatly admire the lioness. A high royal with no physical training except maybe fucking (she was beautiful) should have broken immediately. She had not.

When Cersei first arrived at his academy, she had come into Myrion’s sphere of influence like a hellcat. She was vile, unfocused, and fiery, with a supreme air of entitlement. She stormed into his office with Oberyn pulling her by her elbow. She was cursing the Prince the whole way in from the parade ground and into his office on the right edge of the grounds.

She jerked her elbow free from Oberyn and literally hissed at him. “I swear by the gods Oberyn, I will have my revenge on you for this.”

“You said you wanted to be a warrior. How you were born to be one, but because you have a cunt you were denied. Well in Dorne, having a cunt means nothing to this academy. Here you will fail because you are weak and pathetic.” He shot back spitefully.

“Fuck you!”

“In your dreams Cersei. You’re all dried up anyways.”

“Aaaaaiiiiiiiiiiiiiieeeee!” Cersei cried out, her arms flailing, her fingers clawed, trying to rip Oberyn’s face off. The man easily blocked her strikes and pushed her back, and she fell onto her ass with a loud ’oomph’. She glared up at Oberyn, tears running down her cheeks.

Myrion seeing those tears sneered at the windbag. She was weak.

He had sent her off to the barracks. He chuckled when reports came in of her demands for a royal suite while only getting a cot.

She was crying the next morning in the mess hall, and then on the track around the campus. Myrion ran her until she broke down. She would try to lever herself up, and fall flat on her face. For an hour he watched her crawl around the track under the brutal sun. He made her get up and start running, again and again. Eventually, she finally threw up, pale. He ran her some more, and had her doing calisthenics. She threw up again as he chuckled. He had barked at her gleefully, shouting at the fallen queen to ‘show some grit for gods’ sake.’

She looked at her vomit on the grass, clear and sparse. Cersei staggered around the track once more, and then threw up again. Myrion had been so enjoying the show he had failed to monitor the new recruit properly as his post as master trainer required of him.

Myrion went to sneer at her when she fell down again, crawling forward on the grass still trying to move forward. Her fingers clawing into the turf to try and drag her body forward in her desire to fulfill her wish to become a warrior. Myrion sneered at her until he realized she was going into heat stroke. She had pushed herself beyond all endurance. Cold fear pricked his heart. He picked Cersei up, and ran over to the infirmary. He knew Cersei Lannister’s was near death. Her life hung in the balance.

It was touch and go for a day. Myrion felt miserable. He had been so happy punishing the fallen Lannister, he had completely lost track of her physical condition. He assumed she would just quit. Instead, she was willing to push herself so hard she nearly died. Her body was fevered her body red with sunburn and blood rush trying to cool her overheated core. The medical staff stripped Cersei down and put her in an ice bath to cool her core temperature.

Myrion could not help but notice she was still a lovely woman even after she had given birth three times. Her stretch marks and slightly slumping breasts only highlighted her beauty in his eyes.

Obra and Oberyn came in to visit the fallen Lannister once they’d heard what happened. Oberyn was most unhappy. ‘You were to train her, not kill her!’ he stormed.

Myrion offered his resignation on the spot. He had abused his post. Oberyn calmed down after that, and asked what had happened.

The man was miserable at his abuse of power. A top tenant of the Academy was never abuse one’s rank and privilege. To never knowingly harm a cadet. The master trainer told his most prized student how he had misjudged the woman’s will and willingness to push herself forward, even as her body was shutting down. As they discussed the situation, they watched Obra running water over Cersei’s body and toweling her off. She folded the towel after and made a fan, cooling the woman.

Myrion changed his opinion about Cersei that night. She was weak as a kitten the next morning, but able to drink water and a medical porridge. The next day she seemed back to be back to normal, and was crying in righteous anger that she would flay him alive for her mistreatment. He was secretly stunned as well as all the medical staff at the sudden completely revived Cersei Lannister. She should have needed weeks to recover. Not a day.

After that the master trainer made sure to not let his ire get the better of his judgment. He had been shocked at how quickly the woman’s body seemed to grow stronger, and her reflexes and instincts only increased by the day.

He insisted only on physical training. Cersei stormed and ranted she had waited her whole life to train, and “godsmanit I want to train!” She only equated sword work as training. She totally did not understand that the body and mind needed to be prepared for the sword first. So Myrion ground his teeth, letting Cersei Lannister rant and rail at him. He owed her that much after nearly killing her the first day he had her under his tutelage.
With time, she had learned to control her most extreme behavior and managed to be civil and show respect to her teachers and trainers. She still muttered and gave any people who aggrieved her the stinkeye, but she was not losing control like she had been when she first arrived.

He finally moved her on to the second level of her physical training. Oberyn had told him that when Obara told Cersei that she had finished her basic training, the woman had been actually dancing in happiness.

It was obvious that Obara had fallen in love with the spitfire, but that was not Myrion’s concern. He was letting Obara train her in the martial arts. Oberyn was even helping out with the training every so often, teaching Cersei the use of the battle staff. Myrion had given the command that no metal weapons training would commence until she was ready, and he would decide just when that was.

Her second phase of training consisted of something he had read years ago in the tomes of the early history of Dorne. He had thought it was perfect for the Lannister.

Again the new level of training had crushed the woman at first, but she gritted her teeth and soon was doing her new tasks during most of the day. It was repetitive, but it was also teaching her mental command and toughness. Obara would watch Cersei when she had free time, and encourage the woman and talk to Cersei as she trudged through her tasks.

At first the Lannister ignored Obara, but eventually they started to chat. With time they even laughed together as Cersei toiled. Myrion found it strange that the two taciturn women could find humor in the mundane but they did.

Myrion had come to form a grudging regard for the woman. He was starting to feel like he had when around the Queen – like something more than human was involved with her unnatural pace of improvement.

As with all of his students, Cersei found herself in brawls as her skills improved. Fights were common on the campus, as the pecking orders were established like a pack of wolves. All fighters wanted to know their place in the pack; and all wanted to be the alpha, or at least the alpha’s beta. Cersei never backed down.

Many a cadet had come into the infirmary with busted noses, bruised ribs, or in need of smelling salts after a fight with Cersei. Strangely, the woman was not trying to assert any rank with her bouts; she merely defended herself by beating the shit out of her attackers. Some of her antagonists seemed to need several ass whippings to learn to not mess with the lioness as she was starting to be called. With each victory her stock increased, with first the cadets, and now the trainers and teachers.

Myrion rose up from his desk and went outside. Cersei and Obara were sitting at a picnic table, enjoying the cool breeze blowing in from the ocean. They were eating lunch and talking in easy comradery. He found himself happy to see it. He had come to want Cersei to succeed - she had made a believer of him. The woman was so focused on becoming a warrior that it was actually inspiring. She was showing that it was never too late to start one’s training.

As he watched, Myrion saw a group of Dothraki gather around the two women. The new Queen was wanting to teach the Dothraki tactics, and how to fight in a more controlled manner against static encampments. She was also hoping to teach them discipline, to start the breaking of their more base tendencies towards sacking and defilements.

Myrion had determined that was going to be a long term project.

The plainsmen gathered around the table, moving in.
“This is the fallen lion of Lannister. What happened to your mane? Is that grey in your mane failed Queen. You are pathetic. The Dragon chopped your balls off, and left only a woman. You were no match for our great Khaleesi!” The leader sneered down at the two women. Obara was already clearly fuming while Cersei was completely ignoring the Dothraki which only fueled their insults. Cersei calmly ate her salad.

“She conquered both the King and Queen without a fight. You are pathetic, fallen Queen. Our Khaleesi is a warrior, while you are only a deposed queen who ruled with her dried up, shriveled cunt!” The Dothraki chortled amongst themselves at their perceived great humor and wit. “You are most pathetic indeed, Cersei Cunt!”

Obara started to get up, but Cersei gripped her arm and squeezed it. “Let it slide, Obara”

“Did you hear what he said about you? What he called you?!”

“Yes I did, Obara. Considering the source, I am not overly concerned. They are obviously in the later stages of venereal disease. That is what happens when riders fuck their horses in the ass. The horses probably thought a mosquito was biting them in the ass, their cocks are so small.” Cersei spoke in a bland, droll manner.

Obara chortled.

The smiles left the Dothraki’s faces. They looked at each other. Their Westerosi was not perfect but they knew that Cersei had just insulted their manhood. That could not be allowed to stand! Their leader had a look of concentration cross his face. Then his face lit up. He began his next assault.

“Why is this old hag in here with true warriors? She is nothing but an old broken down nag. Look at her old haggard body” the leader shouted for all to hear, as cadets started to gather around. Cersei was restraining an increasingly upset Obara telling her to calm down. “Let them bray Obara. Even jackasses have their day.” The Dothraki fumed at the insult. A stallion was not a donkey! The Dothraki were getting agitated themselves at Cersei’s biting tongue. Myrion smiled as the caustic Lioness verbally counterpunched her adversaries with seeming ease.

Sensing what was coming cadets and instructors were quickly gathering around the table at a distance to let the fight play out. Bets started being taken. Cersei always gave a good show! The Dothraki did not know all the money was on Cersei, and the wagers were on how long they, the Dothraki, would last. The Lioness’ prowess had grown large indeed. “Look at those skinny arms and legs! Look at those sagging harpy’s tits. The only muscle you have is your cunt, and that must be all stretched out with your incestuous spawn you crapped out.”

Cersei looked down at her plate, her body tense, but refusing to be baited.

Obara tried to surge up again, but Cersei easily restrained the woman with her hand on her elbow. “I’ve heard worse, Obara. With my past I deserve it. I’ll live. Let it pass.” Obara sat but fumed. “No you don’t Cersei. You have changed totally!”

The sand snake was left shaking with ire.

“I hear you like your cock close to home. Where is your brother? He is the father of your children isn’t he? Oh that is right … he left you for that ugly heifer that is really a man … your pussy must be so slack an elephant could fuck it.”

Cersei shook her head and started to fork her salad into her mouth. Myrion was impressed. The woman was seeing the humor in their horrible jibs rather than getting angry.
The Dothraki spokesman continued to insult Cersei, but she continued to ignore them. Apparently that could not be allowed to stand. He looked at his number two, and he shrugged back. What more could they say to the woman to get her fucking crazy mad and fight them?

Sensing he was making no headway with Cersei, the Dothraki turned to Obara. “And this cow? She is enamored with you, for some reason. She is old herself. Look at the lines on her face. I bet her tits are all deflated and flabby. She is an ugly beast of bur—” A feminine inhuman scream split the air as Cersei’s face went from calm to murderous in a split second.

Myrion barely registered Cersei’s movement as she stood up while pivoting around, her fist coming up to hit the Dothraki underneath his chin and sending him a foot into the air, knocked unconscious. The large man flung back like a raging bull had just impacted his body.

The Dothraki were momentarily stunned at the sudden violence. Cersei jumped onto the table, and the spell was broken. The horse riders roared and charged. Obara rose up and blocked several blows, and threw punches back staggering her two immediate attackers. Cersei kicked out with a half circle heel kick, hitting a man climbing up the table in the face, knocking him down.

Another charged, jumping up at Cersei. She pivoted to the left and gripped his jerkin, then pulled him forward with her left hand, a mighty chop landing on his neck before pushing him violently forward, sending him sprawling onto the ground beyond the table. Another man charged up and onto the table top. Cersei used a hip block to stagger him and throw him off balance. She then gripped his body, flipping him over her hip to send him flying beyond the table, smashing his face on the ground as his broken teeth dribbled out his mouth.

Obara was punching in a basic boxing style, dodging and parrying most blows, while her blows staggered the Dothraki. Obara kept the Dothraki from storming the table in mass. Another rider made it to the table top and went for Cersei, who simply sidestepped, grabbing his wrist and twisting up while her left hand chopped down on his elbow. She jammed downward, driving the man to his knees while she pushed back on the arm twisting it. The man growled in pain as her knee came up, smashing his face and knocking him out. She shoved the unconscious man off the table.

Another horse rider gained the tabletop and charged her. Cersei crouched down and came up when he was on her, and gripped his body, driving her head up into his chin. The large Dothraki was staggered. She then gripped his hand and twisted it, pulling him forward as she pivoted, tossing him over her hip and off the table into the next two men who were trying to get to her. The flung body knocked all three men to the ground.

With Cersei’s advantage of the high ground, she was able to drive and punch off her assailants. Obara was being overwhelmed though, with a man on her back as others moved in and started to land blows into her face and body.

Cersei let out a blood curdling scream, and launched herself off the table onto the man who was holding Obara. She used her left hand to press down on his shoulder to lift her body up. Once high over him, Cersei cocked her right elbow and slammed down, driving her elbow down into the man’s head, knocking him senseless. As he slumped down, Cersei jumped free to land lightly on her feet. Obara, now free, attacked the men in front of her, knocking two out with powerful punches and a spinning half circle kick. Cersei moved in close to use the men’s strength and blows against them as she blocked and gripped arms, knocking them off-balance and counteracting with kicks and near-crippling blows.

After that, it became a free-for-all. More Dothraki came running to the fight to aid their brothers. Cersei and Obara were back-to-back, swinging vicious punches and kicks. Cersei blocked blows, but several vicious hits still rocked her, sending her staggering back. She and Obara’s bodies were separated as Dothraki surged in to keep them apart, having figured out it was much easier to attack them that way.

Cersei righted herself, and when the next assailant came at her she sidestepped and gripped his wrist with her left hand as it whistled by her face, and twisted the hand over so the Dothraki’s palm faced the sky. Cersei jerked up on the man’s arm. The pressure made the man rise up on his toes in pain. Then she delivered vicious short punches to the man’s ribs and armpit, hitting a nerve ganglia and collapsing him. She spun to the left, ducking low and used a leg swipe to knock down her next opponent, stomping his face and chest with her foot.

Obara and Cersei were fighting like wildcats, defending themselves with kicks and punches. The numbers against them were becoming too great, with more and more blows from the Dothraki being landed, until Oberyn came running in from across the campus with his battle staff to join the fray.

Oberyn, with his staff was a whirlwind of slashing blows, Oberyn hit men on the side of their head or ribs, sending them back reeling. He would wield the staff around his body to hit with stunning force, and then jab with the end of the staff on joints and pressure points to knock the Dothraki to the ground.

Finally, a détente was soundlessly reached and the Dothraki had had enough. The man who had started it all with his taunts rose shakily to his feet. He looked at Cersei steadily. He then broke into a big smile, and stepped in, hugging Cersei, lifting the confused woman high off the ground. He put her down and thumped her hard on the back, staggering the Lannister. It had been obvious the slap was now affectionate.

“She is a mighty Lioness indeed! We have felt her claws! The Queen has chosen wisely!” the man announced as the Dothraki cheered and whooped, shambling off. Those that were conscious. The medical staff were running in to tend the injured and beaten senseless.

Myrion looked over at the confused Lannister. Her grit and rapidly increasing fighting prowess was quickly winning converts all around.

He had to secretly smile as Cersei clucked over Obara, until she was satisfied she was basically bruised but unhurt. Only then did she return to her taciturn ‘I could care less about you’ attitude towards Oberyn’s eldest.

Cersei

With the fight now ended, Myrion directed Cersei to go to the infirmary at the hospital. Cersei never really understood why - she felt great! Kicking Dothraki ass was exhilarating. She milled around a few moments, hoping Obara would join her, but she was busy talking to her father and head trainer.

What is wrong with me? Cersei wondered. What do I care if Obara walks with me? She looked out over the training grounds and surrounding concourse in front of the buildings of the main campus. She started to walk up the bricked lane that was the main walkway between the buildings, and to the other parts of the academy. She looked at the women training, eyeing their bodies as they exercised. The way their breasts moved, and their asses clenched. What is wrong with me!? Cersei exclaimed to herself, shifting her focus to the men training and fooling herself into thinking she cared.

She looked at the bricks that made up the ceremonial walkway, interleaved into rows of multihued red and orange bricks with two diamond patterns running down the center. The bricks were loosely fitted with fine sand between them. A maintenance cart with two large wheels hauled by two oxen went by, clinking with each groove the wagon hit, its contents of boxed supplies subtly rattling in the bed.

Cersei was approaching the main compound. To her right and left she saw new cadets cutting the grass with push mowers, the circle spindle of blades chopping and cropping the grass to an immaculate shortness. Other cadets on the concourse were working in flowerbeds, and mulching around the trees maintaining perfect circles around their bases.

Cersei looked beyond them to the three closest halls. The first two bore names she vaguely knew now, Jordaynes and Santagars, with classes on Dorne military history she was being forced to take. The last hall before the old annex was the Martell Hall. It housed the war college, and the department of engineering, and the sciences of chemistry and physics. Both were precious to any military. Cersei had secretly enjoyed reading the histories given to her, though she would never admit it. Oberyn just two weeks ago had given her a book on military strategy that she had just finished reading. My gods, she had thought to herself while she had been reading the book. I knew a whole lot about nothing back in King’s Landing.

She had realized she would have led any army to devastation if she had led them as Queen. That had a very humbling realization. She continued walking down the concourse.

Cersei came up to the next building on her right. It was the Administration building. This building was full of meeting rooms and a grand ball room for social gatherings. The building was four stories tall, in the shape of large rectangle. Rough, grey hewn stones were fitted together with mortar, and the shape of the roofline was made to resemble a castle curtain wall with its embrasures, merinos and arrow loops. The building was imposing, in a quaint way.

Five other buildings done in the same style that were used for record maintenance and clerical work were lined up beyond the main admin building, with two on the right side of the lane and three to the left.

Cersei passed to the commandant’s quarters. It was a square building made of wood that was painted an immaculate white. This building had been the original Administration building, and was among the oldest structures on the academy grounds. The front roofline projected five feet beyond the front wall, and was supported by eight large columns done in the old Roynar style with flutes cut down the columns, and large capstones meeting the roof that were carved ornately to resemble blood orange trees in full bloom. This allowed for a large, covered terrace that had carved chairs and an old style swinging bench beneath the shade.

A large terrace was on the second floor, with a three foot high rail in place. Two red brick chimneys stood at the end of the main hall, projecting up four feet. Two large doors that opened from the middle in two leaves dominated the center of the building itself on each floor. Over the doors’ crosspiece, a transom window in the shape of a half-rising sun with light, tinted blue glass adorned the area over the entryways.

The front of the building was dominated by twin looping half-spiral staircases. They went up to the terrace on the second floor, the ends terminating to the left and right of the main doors. The staircases had elegantly-cast rails going up each side.

It was these staircases that caught her attention.

They were being stripped down to bare metal, with rasps and sandpaper. The right hand staircase was nearly stripped to the top, and a coat of under primer was being put on the smooth, clean metal. Cersei saw a heavy set girl sniffing up from the base of the stair roughly ten or twelve steps. One step above the young female cadet a much larger boy berated her for being fat and not any good, flicking her ponytail and then jerking it.

Cersei felt her anger flare up.

She stormed across the grounds and up to the two cadets taking the steps three and then two at a time to stand before them. They turned to her, and their eyes bulged. The girl looked ashamed while the boy worked to mask shock and fear.

“What is going on here?!” Cersei barked out.

The girl lowered her eyes and sniffled. Cersei slowly turned to the boy, who was much larger and taller than her. “Leave her alone, cadet. You are supposed to be a fucking team.”

“I don’t have to listen to you, exile. I am a high prince of the house Blackmount! This girl is commoner trash!” the boy then kicked the girl in her ass, as she cried out in pain.

Faster than the eye could follow, Cersei’s hand whipped across the boy’s face, delivering a stunning backhand that sent him toppling out onto the immaculate grass. She was furious! The boy was on his back stunned.

Cersei rushed to the ground where the stunned boy looked up at her with fear-filled eyes. She bent down and gripped his work smock, and almost effortlessly jerked him up into a sitting position, and then up off the ground entirely, his feet a whole foot in the air as they kicked in fear. Cersei easily kept the large boy’s body up off the ground as his feet kicked desperately. Cersei jerked her arms, making the boy’s head snap back and forward as he cried out in pain.

“If I catch you hurting that girl again, I will gut you. Do I make myself clear?” the Lannister snarled.

The boy whimpered out a weak “yes”. She shoved him stumbling away. “Go up to that girl and apologize. You had better make me believe it.” She said in a deadly quiet tone.

The boy tripped up to the girl and apologized profusely. Then the girl looked at her with eyes full of worship.

Cersei walked back up to the girl. “What is your name, cadet?”

“Kiyara Taler.”

“Kiyara, if anyone bothers you in the future, get word to me. Understood?” Cersei spoke in a high-ringing, regal tone.

“Thank you, thank you, Cersei Lannister!” the girl exclaimed. “I would gladly serve you, my mistress!”

“Serve yourself, Kiyara. Give your service to someone worthy of it. Strive for excellence. I can see greatness within you. Seize it!”

Kiyara beamed up at her savior. “I will!” her shoulders squaring and big smile on her face.

With that, Cersei turned around and saw Oberyn and Obara looking at her intently from the walkway.

She moved to join them. “I guess you are going to berate me Oberyn, and tell me what a cunt I am for interfering with a high royal of Dorne.”

Oberyn sighed. “Actually, I was going to commend and thank you for putting that whelp in his place. He has way too high a regard for his limited abilities. You did well, Cersei. He thinks you will rip his heart out if he crosses you. He’ll stay in line now.”

“Who says I won’t!” she snarled.

Oberyn laughed out loud his head tipping back. “I like that attitude Cersei. You did good.”

Cersei looked at Oberyn, nonplussed. Was that an actual compliment? Surely the world was coming to an end.

She followed behind the father and daughter duo as they talked, and she looked out over grounds and at the architecture. The three moved slowly down the walkway. It took Cersei a minute to realize she had started watching architecture of another kind when she caught herself staring at Obara’s beautiful, voluptuous ass. What is wrong with me? She asked herself for the umpteenth time.

She contemplated her actions with the cadets. Why had it angered her so, seeing that girl crying? She thought back to her children, and especially Tommen, and how she berated them for crying. Just like her father had done to her and Jamie. She frowned. Maybe if she had been a little, or even, a lot less harsh, perhaps Joffrey would not have been such a failure.

They reached the hospital. It was a long, three story wooden building painted a brilliant white. It had three wings jutting off the back of the building, one on each end, and one in the middle. The grassy area between the wards was used as a protected area for convalescing patients to get some sun and air in the afternoon.

They entered, and turned right down the main corridor, and then to the left into a medium-sized room that served as a triage center for patients. There were already three Dothraki on stretchers being processed.

Cersei felt a feral smile cross her face, knowing that she and Obara had put the men there.

The doctor who usually examined Cersei after her fights commented on how she never seemed to bruise heavily, or get contusions. ‘Most unusual,’ was how he phrased it, shaking his head.

Oberyn spoke to her. “You really kicked their asses today, Cersei. The judo training is really paying off. Master Vernan Harlaw says you are improving by the day.”

Cersei waited. Oberyn looked at her, confused after a moment. “Where is it?” Cersei asked her nemesis.

“Where’s what?”

“Where’s the insult? The part where you deride me, and call me a cunt?”

Oberyn’s confused expression remained. “Cersei, when was the last time I called you a cunt?”

Cersei had to stop and think. She had been there almost eight months, and she couldn’t really remember the last time he had used the term.

“Cersei, stop looking for insults where none are given.” He then turned to talk to the doctor and a general that had stepped in.

Cersei noticed Obara staring at her then, with those big, beautiful, dark almond eyes. The woman unconsciously licked her lips, with obvious desire and want.
Cersei felt her pussy getting really wet. What is wrong with me?! The Lannister hurried out of the infirmary, looking back once to see Obara still watching her with longing. Why was her heart clutching so hard in her chest? I like Obara now. She is funny and nice when you get her to smile and loosen up but … but only as a friend. I’m STRAIGHT! Cersei stormed. Cersei quickly retreated confused by all these strange compliments and desires coursing through her body.

Once alone, Cersei went back to her unique style of training. Before long she was grunting and cursing Myrion as she did her afternoon session. Sweating, she looked out across the grounds. Clear on the far side, towards a grove of trees off limits to most during the training hours, she watched the sappers build siege engines. She had been watching one team led by some young girl she heard had ‘so much potential.’ Twice her trebuchet had self-destructed when firing its missile. Now she was trying again. She pulled the pull-rope. The trebuchet started to fling its arm up, but something up where the two sets of support legs met broke, and the launch pole slid back down, parts flying everywhere. Cersei had to chuckle, seeing the girl hang her head in disappointment.

Soon enough, the girl had her team back at it.

The next morning Oberyn joined her at her table. Usually she ate alone in the morning, when Obara had to lead the new officer recruits.

Cersei looked at him suspiciously, noting the empty tables as she looked around her. The people of Dorne had stopped insulting her, but now many of them seemed genuinely afraid of her, as if she was going to rip them limb from limb.

“I want to teach you mediation, Cersei.” Oberyn began without preamble.

“Why?” Cersei asked, looking for a threat.

Oberyn sighed. “I want you to succeed, Cersei.”

Cersei snorted and started to retort, but she stopped when Oberyn raised his hand.

“I think you are ready to take the next step.”

“Then let me train with weapons.”

“That’s Master Myrion’s call. Completely.”

“But I have done all he has asked, dammit! I can’t become a warrior if all I do is haul—”

“Cersei, stop. Follow Myrion’s instructions to the letter, and I guarantee you, you will be happy you did. He tells me he thinks you are one in thousand; maybe in a generation.”

Cersei started to laugh. She laughed so hard she fell off the bench onto the floor.

“I don’t believe you,” Cersei breathed out as she finally got control of her laughing.

“With our past, I don’t blame you. But I want to teach you Cersei. Will you let me?”

Oberyn

Oberyn looked out his wide-open window in his office that was letting in the soft breeze that usually blew in from the ocean. He nearly dropped his quill, thinking about how life could be so strange.
He could remember meeting Cersei when she was in her early teens, and she was already conceited and vainglorious. He took an immediate disliking to the girl. That dislike had grown to an outright hate as she matured into the beautiful, vain and petty butterfly he had predicted she would. She was a seeming dullard, with illusions of grandeur, who constantly overreached.

He had listened to her half muttered deprecations about life being so unfair to her. She was being denied her destiny simply because she was a woman. Of course he had laughed at her then. She could never succeed at being a warrior; that was obvious.

Then the Queen had come in on her dragons, throwing the whole world order over on its head. He had gone nearly apoplectic when the Queen told her war council her plans for the Baratheons. Oberyn had wanted their heads! On a pike! She spared them all!

He had been overruled, and he had made snide comments that Daenerys Targaryen would be eating her words before long and rue the day she showed mercy.

It hadn’t turned out like that. He was the one eating his words. Robert was in exile deep in Essos, and had formed a mercenary company called ‘The Rutting Stags’ (gods how typical), and was fighting for the good of the peasants, or so the reports said.

Joffrey was gods knew where at sea, probably dying about now. The Queen had given strict orders to treat him fairly but somethings just had to work themselves out. The boy was a little shit. He cause his own demise to occur.

And that left only Cersei.

Their little talk going down to the ship that would take her to exile had been a total game changer for Oberyn, and his thinking about the Lannister princess. He suddenly started to see maybe she had reasons for being like she was.

She had faults, gods the woman had faults, but life had indeed pushed her forward in her vanities and stunted her real desires.

In Dorne, she was finally being allowed to achieve her stated dreams. Evidently, they had been real. She was reaching for the proverbial stars, and blast if she wasn’t grasping them.

He got up from behind the large oak desk and walked back to window, and looked out towards the ocean. He was on the second floor, and it seemed to shimmer on the far horizon - a distant chimera that guided lost souls in the desert to their doom.

His mate Ellaria had detested Cersei with a vengeance. She would have gladly held Cersei’s head still while the executioner’s ax parted it from her shoulders.

Now Ellaria was after him to get the fallen princess in their bed, and claim her as theirs before Obara could make the claim. Oberyn shook his head. Gods, women could be so competitive. He looked at Cersei in the public showers and officer saunas she was allowed to use, and he had to admit his cock got hard thinking about plowing the woman. But, she was still Cersei Lannister. It was a natural reaction.

It had been strange to feel both loathing and desire when thinking of the fallen Queen. Ellaria had felt the same conflict. Over time one emotion waned and the other grew stronger. This new Cersei emerging was quite intoxicating. She was morphing from one butterfly to another. This new butterfly was equaling as ravishing as the old. The markings on her wings were different. She had shed her hateful patterns. The new patterns she displayed was seducing his whole family. Himself included. Oberyn smirked at that. He was indeed ensnared himself.

Life could indeed be strange.

He walked out of his office and down the main corridor of Hall Martell to the end stair case. As he walked, he looked at the portraits of past great Martell leaders that led back to the time of the Andals. He mused that one day, after he was dead and gone, he would have a portrait hung in this or another hall. He supposed he had accomplished enough to warrant one. Dorne had been a loyalist in Robert’s rebellion, but Oberyn seemed to always be in the wrong place at the wrong time to achieve the glory he truly craved.

Maybe the upcoming conflict, whatever it may be, would allow him to find glory on the battlefield.

He strode down the staircase to the first floor door leading outside, beside the stairwell. He stepped out into the bright sun, blinking as his eyes adjusted.

He went to the main walkway and down the road. There were fruit trees lining the sides of the path, with well-groomed canopies. The trees had been bred to bear fruit for at least nine months of the year. Cadets maintained the trees themselves, and picked the fruit that was used in the main cafeteria, and as snacks between meals and at night in the barracks. There were mini-orchards of orange, lemon, pears, peach and cherry, ensuring the academy had a constant state of variety of fruit to consume. One type of tree would bear fruit when several others might be briefly out of their season. When the trees were in bloom during the spring, it was a beautiful sight indeed. The trees would be full of white, blue and red blossoms in a riot of color, and the air thick with fragrances so pleasing to the nose.

He watched young cadets putting ladders on the trees, and climbing up to pick the fruit and look for any infestations of insects or blight. If present, it would be reported to the horticultural department for eradication.

The afternoon sun began to send shadows across the walkway, west to east. Oberyn enjoyed the momentary oasis they provided. He continued on until he was across from the hospital, then turned to the right towards the large, circular building that housed the War Museum of Dorne. The narrow walkway had small mosaic tiles inlaid in it, depicting key battles against Aegon’s conquest of Westeros, and Dorne’s mighty wars of independence. Dorne was still particularly proud that they alone were able to resist the dragons of House Targaryen.

Oberyn had walked to the concrete steps leading up to the museum. He paused to look up at the structure - it was dominated by a large solarium, built into the center of the roof that rose up in a dome. Glass, supported by iron beams, met in the center of the edifice. The Iron circular capstone was supported by a thick, fluted iron pillar in the center of the building. The clear glass let in plenty of natural light for the viewing of the historical artifacts stored within.

He saw the cantered slats at the top museum that allowed air to breathe in through the door left open during the day and several large paned windows of curved metal and glass blown in Pentos which was famous for the ability to make perfectly glass formed and cut to the asked for dimensions.

He looked to the right and left of the main circular building. Two long wings were attached through narrow hallways that then branched out to large rectangular buildings. The narrow hallways barely wide enough to let a person go in each direction simultaneously. The halls were built just tall enough to allow a tall man walk without stooping. The small halls to distract the least possible from the museum itself with its beautiful design. Each hall extended roughly thirty feet to the two annexes.

The annexes were a different matter altogether. Each building was about three hundred feet long by seventy-five in width. The left wing housed the storage rooms for artifacts not on display. There were rooms for curators to rehabilitate new found artifacts and donations. They had many fine artisans and military personal with a gift for such work constantly at work preparing artifacts for display or doing preservation work to put them away until on display again.

Doran had ten years ago decreed that a selection of national treasures would circle the major centers of Dorne to let them see and touch their history. Oberyn had scoffed at the idea at first but had come to see how this had helped make the distant population centers feel more connected to Sunspear.

Crates for moving and display cabinets were now constructed for the traveling shows of relics of Dorne’s past to the provinces. This was a duty that cadets loved doing. To touch the past was a thrill for new recruits and he knew that the young warriors would play with the ancient weapons pretending they were masters of the powerful relics of the past.

The right wing was the administration wing. This held offices for the main Curators a husband and wife team. There were offices for the leads in the various antiquities. One for coins, weapons, pottery, architecture, household items and several others. There were offices for clerical staff as well. Each wing was two stories tall.

The Battleborn academy was not a colorful site except for the two museum wings. These were a riot of colors. Each wing done up in the ornamental tiles of the Bedouin and hill tribes of the inner mountains of Dorne.

Each wing had large windows but many false alcoves and doorways to let the artisans in tile work to create their wonders. Each alcove or doorway given to a different style and color pattern to highlight the various styles and tile work of the different tribes of the hinterlands of Dorne.

Oberyn paused again as he oft did to look at the riot of colors and styles of mosaic tiles put onto the buildings.

He looked at traditional bishop shape of the doorways and the scroll work to the right and left of the apex of the helmet. Then the tiles on either sides of the windows and the work up to the top of the second floor. The tiles worked around windows and visible supporting beams.

The first section had interlocking triangles at the top of bottom in black and white. Between was a pattern of three winged wave shapes that were in a free flowing interlocking pattern. Bands of diagonal orange ribbons from top to bottom. In between the orange ribbons were a riot of blue, brown and green waves all on a background of white base tiles.

Another section had a false door tiled with subtle green tiles in interlocking squares with subtle shade differences and the squares of all different sizes but there were patterns within patterns clearly seen yet they seemed to disappear if you moved your head.

Above the door was a stylized bishop helmet that had five pointed stars made of rectangular squares.
Ribbons were in the design and then interspersed in were flowers with light blue petals and purple centers. Other smaller flowers of red and yellow filled out the quasicrystal geometric pattern.

He looked down the building and looked at another favorite pattern. It had starbursts of dark blue surrounded by sixteen blades to from star beams of mostly yellow with green shades in them. Then around those stars were sixteen blade paddles with white outlines. On the outside top of the paddles were five sided stars with one long leg to go between the black paddles. This pattern was repeated for the whole section. Between their “flowers” were many small stars and flower of orange, blue, purple and beige. The smaller patterns made larger flowers when looking at the bigger pattern of the interlocked patterns.
Oberyn never tired looking at the panels. He smiled. And entered the museum.

He stepped inside, and looked down at the mosaic that dominated the entry way. It depicted the bolt piercing the eye of the dragon Meraxes, and sending Rhaenys Targaryen to her death. He liked that she was not in the mural. They never had found her body.

He went up the three steps to the landing. The levered doors were folded back to the sides of the entryway, and from the inside of the lintel hung strands of fine, multicolored beads that brushed against each other in the soft breeze. The colors were hung in specific patterns to keep out Jinns and witches that his kinsmen still believed roamed the great desert and the mountains. He looked at the two hundred strands weave as it tinkled in the breeze. The number of strands was always two hundred, the number required to protect an entryway from spirits seeking entrance.

He lifted his hands and put them together palm-to-palm, and pushed them through the bead strands parting them to just past his head and then letting the strands rest on his shoulders as he stepped through to enter the sacred museum. The beads supposedly sloughed off any Jinns that may have been riding on his shoulders, whispering evil intent in his ears. Oberyn always thought while passing such entryways that men did not need spirits to whisper to them, to commit atrocities.

Once in the museum, his feet rested on the concrete that had been screed to a smooth, flat surface. Light orange pigment had been put in with volcanic ash to give the floor a soft, orange glow. His eyes took in the many displays, and the large panes of glass that radiated out from the center post column that supported the iron latticework of the solarium. He was drawn to the main showcase, the most prized possession held in the museum. Mounted on a display pole was the skull of the once mighty dragon Meraxes, and below it on a display stand was the bolt that had pierced her eye and brought the fell beast down. Oberyn was again impressed with the size of the beast. The dragon was nearly as large as Drogon. He involuntarily shuddered, wondering how large the Black Dread, Balerion, must have been. Dragons, it was said, never stopped growing.

Oberyn turned his head to look at the skull from all angles. The bones did not do justice to the beauty of dragons. He had been so impressed with the skull till he saw dragons in the flesh.

Oberyn left the centerpiece, moving around the museum respectfully while looking at various banners and swords of past great warriors. He especially liked looking at how the heraldry of his house had changed over the long centuries.

He finally came to stand before the second most prized object in the museum. He looked in the case housing the Sword of the Morning - Dawn. The title House Dayne bestowed on the knight who bore the ancestral great sword. Only a knight of House Dayne who was deemed worthy could carry it. Oberyn wondered at that. These times were so rife with the possibilities of new ways, new fulfillments of old obligations.

After the great Arthur Dayne’s death, and with no one deemed worthy to be his successor, the sword had been placed in the Academy’s care to prevent squabbling between the knights of that house.

A year later, a great sand witch had appeared before the museum beads. She could not enter because of the charms that Oberyn previously did not believe in. She had asked for him personally. When Oberyn arrived he could see the woman’s nervousness looking at the hanging beads. He parted the beads for her to enter, with guest right invoked. The beautiful thirty-something woman had made sure to not let the beads brush against her skin when she passed. She twisted her lithesome body to keep her body as far as possible from the beads.

She had come before the sword, and prophesied as many scoffed - Oberyn included. Only the oldest among those gathered gave any credence to the strange woman. She had forecast that the House of Dayne was no longer worthy of the sword (that had set off General Mykal Dayne),

The sand witch prophesized that a mighty lion from the North would come, and take the sword, and reshape it to be their weapon. None would be able to stand before the lion in Dorne. The lion would save clans from the mists that were gathering. Mists given shape into horrible monsters. Vile creatures with no mother or father would fall before its blade. Mighty things would be done with this sword, along with its sister not yet forged. The lion would come unseen in their midst, and take what was theirs.

They had laughed at the woman. Once she had left the museum, and was clearly no longer near their presence. Sometimes discretion was the better part of valor.

For five years, young men in their first flush of testosterone had flooded in to claim the sword. It was then discovered that the sword had evidently been cursed by the witch. All who gripped the pommel had their hands seared in a fire that did not burn or blaze. It left hands crippled and maimed. After enough cripples had been created, the claims of the young wannabe warriors ceased.

The sword had rested in peace since.

Oberyn looked again at the sword. The lion had indeed come to Dorne unforeseen.

Obara

It had been six weeks since the fight with the Dothraki. Obara was not very happy, and terribly frustrated. Everything had been going so well with her seduction of Cersei Lannister, and then everything went to shit. It was like she hit a wall. Where Cersei had been falling under her spell she now seemed distant and unperturbed by her advances were before she was flustered and blushing.

She walked down the small brick walkway between the barracks. At Battleborne Academy, all the barracks were one story affairs. Each building was two hundred feet long, with high walls and large windows. With the hot, arid environment of Dorne, the high ceilings allowed heat to rise and the large windows could be opened to let the night breezes in.

Those windows were opening now in the darkening gloom of dusk. The sun had slipped beneath the horizon fifteen minutes prior, and sky was rapidly darkening. The dorms were segregated by sex, since all youth had to serve in the military of Dorne for one year. The youth around Sunspear came to the academy as part of learning their heritage; from the rest of Dorne came the best of the best seeking to make a career in the military, willing to commit for six years to get the financial benefit programs that allowed so many to become successful in the private sector. The discipline and connections made in the military directly translating into the private sector later on if they left.

All the barracks had their windows open. Mosquito nets had been dropped and secured by pegs put through the eyelets along the hem of the netting. In the falling light, she watched the mosquito nets bellow in and out like sails on a warship, flowing with the vagaries of the night breezes.

It was the middle of the week, and there were still two hours before curfew. In the Dorne military, fraternization was allowed except for direct chain-of-command officers. The dorms were segregated after curfew only. Why have the cadets, troops and officers sneaking here and there to have sexual relations?

The sexes freely moved between the barracks seeking out liaisons. From the windows she was passing, she heard a male screaming in ecstasy followed by a woman’s wails of hard orgasm. Obara had to smile. Gods, she loved sex. The only problem was she only wanted one woman now. She wanted to make Cersei her wife and then together they would prowl Dorne seeking sweet women to...
She wanted a woman who seemed to not understand that Obara was a woman worth lusting after. Cersei Lannister seemed to suddenly have lost her sex drive, and it was maddening! Obara had clearly been breaking down the woman’s preconceptions about her sexuality. She knew the woman was beginning to desire her. Obara shivered at those thoughts. Thoughts that drove her nightly masturbation marathons. Now Obara felt bereft. Cersei was now aloof and distant towards her. It made Obara’s heart clutch in heart with pain and want.

Obara walked down the path to the next set of barracks. The barracks on the left were for males, and the ones on the right for female recruits. The sky was near dark now with only a ribbon of light left in the far west. She heard more groans and cries of men and women fucking and celebrating life.

Obara again tried to figure out what had happened to Cersei. She had made friends with the Lieutenant in charge of Cersei’s barrack. Jasline Cassel had been keeping her abreast of Cersei’s time there.

It had been funny to hear of Cersei’s flummoxed, frustrated, and shocked reactions to the open sexuality that ran rampant in the barracks. Jasline related how the first night she had run out of the dorms scandalized and demanded a private room, away from the ‘deviants’. Cersei had been most unhappy when she was ordered to go back to her bunk. The beds were all double bunks, just big enough for two people to fuck with only a little imagination.

Jasline had chuckled at what a prude Cersei was her first nights, dressing and undressing underneath her sheets and clutching them around herself when she first got up. She had quickly stopped when she discovered just what a pain in the ass that behavior was. Expediency had won out.

The open sex without regard to anyone watching had been a shock to the Lannister too. She had stared, open mouthed the first nights with all the sex around her. She was especially startled by all the lesbian sex she was witnessing. At first none of her bunkmates made overtures towards her, since she was such a fucking bitch, but as she loosened up and started kicking serious ass around the Academy, the women had thawed towards Cersei. Obara had had to control her jealousy, hearing of women hitting on Cersei on a nightly basis. Obara thanked the gods that Cersei seemed to not be interested in their overtures.

Obara wanted to be Cersei’s first woman in Dorne. It was important to her, for some reason. She’d been captivated since seeing Cersei so sick and near death’s door with heat stroke on her first day of training.

Others might not like her fire and passion, but Obara found it intoxicating. Cersei was fire to Obara’s ice. They would balance each other.

When she asked Jasline about Cersei masturbating, she had been surprised to hear that the Lannister at first had not masturbated. Her dorm mates, after they thawed to her, were telling her that if she wouldn’t fuck them then the least she could do was masturbate for them. Again, the woman had been mortified. She seemed to be frigid. That was the popular consensus. It had to be the reason she was resisting so much prized pussy.

Then about three months ago, the girls spied Cersei’s hands working underneath her sheet as she desperately tried to control her limbs from jerking, and her swallowed moans were worth chuckling over. Her bunkmates had tired of her silly predilection for modesty - they had ripped the sheets from off her body when she was good and worked up.

Cersei had cried out in embarrassment and anger. She had fumed and threatened, but not once got physical despite all her threats and foot stomping. The girls started to chant “Jill off” over and over, along with accompanying chants of: “Cum, cum, cum.” The Lannister had finally given up and flopped down on the bed, spread her legs and quickly jerked herself off to a loud, screaming, flipping orgasm.

She had been crazy after that, masturbating freely and often. She was jilling off sometimes as much as five and six times in a night. The young teenagers were so hot and horny for the mature beauty. They were displaying their wares, making hot love to each other beside her bunk, trying to seduce her to join in with their Sapphic lovemaking. Obara liked to think it was because of her that Cersei had rejected their charms.

Obara herself had been making sure to touch and press into Cersei every chance she had when talking to the woman about something, or when showing her something. Obara treasured the shivers and gulps she elicited from her.

Cersei had complained one day of her shoulders being tense. Obara, of course, immediately offered to massage out the kinks in Cersei’s shoulders. She had been in heaven, massaging and caressing Cersei’s shoulders and arms. She had invited Cersei back to her quarters to give her a full body massage.

At first Cersei had refused, but then two days later asked if the offer was still open. Obara had given Cersei her best smile. She had been in the highest heavens working her hands up and down the Lannister’s body, with only a towel covering Cersei’s ass while on her stomach. When Cersei rolled over onto her back, only a thin strip of towel covered her mound and breast. Cersei had small breasts, and Obara so wanted to devour and suck on her nipples like a newborn babe.

She respected the limits that Cersei was clearly marking as to the limits to take with her body. Obara so desperately wanted to seduce the woman. Despite her wanton fuck hunger for the woman she held herself back from a full frontal sensual attack. She was going slow and using subtle overtures to further her seduction of the lioness. When Cersei and she made love she wanted the desire and love to be mutual. She would not violate Cersei trust. She feared if she forced the issue she could harm what was clearly a possible magical union.

Obara had slowly over the next weeks made the massages more sensual. She did not want Cersei to feel like she had been violated. Her father told her of that vile Baratheon’s treatment of Cersei. If she ever met the man, she would run her spear through him like a wild boar. The last few massages she had just brushed the sides of Cersei’s pussy and breasts with her fingers, and felt her own pussy gush hearing Cersei gasp and whimper.

Her control was nearly about to break. Then... it happened. She was not sure what may have occurred, but Cersei suddenly seemed to be on another planet. Jasline reported it too. One night, Cersei was masturbating like a fiend making up for lost time, and then the next night she went to bed with a serene smile on her face and went straight to sleep. The girls, frustrated by this change in the woman, had made sure to be very vocal. Cersei never seemed to hear them.

The cadets in her barracks had been sure they would soon be burying their faces in her sweet camel toe, but now they were left high and dry. They discussed trying to do a rush on her, and show her what she was missing, but all were afraid she would kick all their asses around the barrack. The woman was a fucking Jinn when she got pissed. None would last long against her fists. That had been five weeks ago.

Obara kept walking. The moon was half full. She saw bats flying their erratic paths up in the sky, and she felt like them. She was adrift. Getting Cersei into her bed had nothing to do with winning, or conquest. She had fallen totally in love with the woman. Cersei had been fire and verve. Now, she walked around like some silent sister with a serene smile on her face. Obara knew that a passionate woman was still in Cersei’s beautiful body somewhere. It had to be!

She saw a figure approaching her and immediately recognized who it was. As the figure came up to her, she quietly called out: “Hello father.”

“Beautiful night, isn’t it? Can I walk with you?”

“Of course, father.”

They walked in companionable silence for a while.

“Cersei is really advancing in her training,” Oberyn said. “Myrion will not say it, but I think in the not too distant future he will be allowing her to start training with the sword.” They walked on to the next set of barracks. “Our army will be heading to the ships soon. The cavalry left last week to begin their march North. I want you and your sisters to keep an eye on things while we are away. I am leaving two regiments stationed here. They are under you command. Your priority is Sunspear and its protection.”

“I don’t think you will face any organized danger. All the Great Houses are moving North to confront Winterfell. We are all bringing all of our lords with us, except for a small force for defense. You won’t have to worry about mischief from Highgarden or the Stormlands.”

“Why is Eddard Stark doing this, father?” Obara asked. “He knows he can’t win. With the South allied against him, and the forces of Essos and Daenerys Targaryen’s dragons he won’t long last.”

“I know. The man is playing us. I can feel it. He wants us to come to attack him. It makes no sense otherwise. He has not thrown up so much as one impediment to our advance.” They had reached the end of the barracks, and turned around to walk back down the path, their boots tapping on the stones with a rhythmic ticking of military strides. “I think he wants to take us to the Wall. When I ask the Queen, she acts confused by the situation and is not sure what the proper course of action should be. Bullshit! That woman never doubts herself, and never does anything by halves. I start to wonder if the Ice King does indeed exist.” Oberyn softly mused.

“Father,” Obara chastised.

“I know, I know. Stop seeing snarks in the dark.”

They walked on for several minutes.

“Cersei still being the silent sister?”

“Yes!” Obara barked in frustration.

“I fear that is my fault, Obara.”

“What do you mean?”

Oberyn then told his daughter how he had taught Cersei to clear her mind to help with her training and exercises and to focus on her studies. Like everything she was doing in Dorne, she had mastered the technique without any effort.

“I fear she has taken this, and centered herself - walling off all of her passions. I had not foreseen that. The woman is nothing but passion. I never would have thought she would use mediation to conquer her emotions and tamp them down.”
They had stopped walking as Oberyn related his teaching the Lannister the art of meditation. Obara was thankful to finally have a reason for Cersei’s sudden change. She could see the chagrin on her father’s face.

“Don’t blame yourself, father. You only gave her a tool, and she chose to use it to deaden herself. Maybe I chose poorly. I was sure she was the perfect mate. But … not this woman currently in her place. The one who walks around with a beatific smile on her face and just nods at everyone. It hasn’t affected her training though, so I know she is still focused on her goals.”

Obara looked up at the stars twinkling in the night sky. She saw a shooting star flash across the sky. She made her wish even though she knew it would not come true. She was not a little girl. Cersei Lannister had gone someplace far away inside herself. Obara was not sure the Cersei longed for and loved would be coming back.

Cersei

Cersei was lying on her lower bunk, in a dilemma. The bunk above her was squeaking loudly, the mattress jamming hard into the frame it was sitting in. The moans of ecstasy were rising in volume and desperation. The rhythmic squeaking of the springs was almost hypnotic as Lyara rotated her hips to jam her cunt up into Mariyanna hard sucking mouth that Cersei heard working the sodden pussy jamming into Mariyanna’s mouth. The girl sounded like she was devouring poor Lyara.

At first Cersei had been disgusted hearing the women rutting and eating each other out. The wet sounds of slurps and snuffles and the sodden sounds of a watery cunt being devoured. Now the sounds of lesbian sex above her was a symphony of sweet notes. It sounded beautiful the way female mouths made sweet love to wet swollen pussies. Now it sounded divine. Now she had visions she no longer suppressed of her face buried in Obara’s wet cunt. Her mouth wildly eating out Obara.

She had used Oberyn’s meditation techniques to suppress those raging desires. It had worked. Now she had stopped.

Cersei heard Lyara gasp hard, and then the bed squeaked hard as he woman threw her cunt up into the mouth now wolf sucking her exploding twat. ”Aaangghhhuummmggmn! Unghhh! Oh! Ohhnnngg! Auuungghhiieee!” Lyara cried out, her body shuddering jerking up and slamming down into the mattress making it rattle in its frame. She heard Mariyanna continue to tongue-caress her lover’s spasming pussy. ”Oh! Oh Mariyanna gods Myriyanna! Ungghmmngghhiieee!”

The tension was so twisted in Cersei’s belly and her pussy ached, sopping wet. She gritted her teeth, determined to not begin her mantras and fall into herself. She let the ache in her belly build.

She had been thankful when Oberyn had showed her how to meditate and center herself. He told her he did it before any major physical undertaking he partook of, and to calm himself before battle. It allowed the man to reach deep inside himself and pull out his best.

He had taught her to first find a mantra that worked for her. He told her the classical line “Oohhmmmm”, repeating it. Cersei immediately loved the sound and feel of the sound rumbling in her chest. Oberyn showed her how to use a low chant, and then to focus on it find thoughts that brought contentment and a deep sense of happiness.

That had nearly killed it. She thought and thought, and finally had to tell her erstwhile teacher that she couldn’t think of any.
Oberyn had a first scoffed at the idea, but when he saw Cersei struggling he understood that her adult life had indeed not been happy.

Cersei had had to look back deep into her past for snippets of happiness she had found. The time she found a mother cat with her newborn kittens in the garden underneath a hedge. They had been so beautiful, the mother cat licking her kittens. Her father had had them killed as vermin when Cersei had told him of them, wanting to share her find. She had cried all night until her father slapped her face hard and repeatedly, until she regained control.

She remembered seeing the swallows out at dusk eating mosquitos out of the sky. The sound of her mother’s laughter. The time she and Jamie laughed, as they stole cookies out of the kitchen.

When she focused on these memories, and got into the basic lotus position and began her chants, she almost immediately felt dreamy, and a sense of deep awareness and then she fell into herself. She felt as light as feather, and by the fourth day she could almost feel her spirit breaking the bonds of her body and soaring free.

It had been a godsend with her ragged emotions. The freedom these Dornish people felt when it came to sex was disturbing. Cersei had quickly discovered she was a prude. Like most in North Westeros, she was made to hide sex away from all but her immediate lover. Not here. The barracks, baths and saunas were filled with couples fucking.

Cersei had been disgusted at first, but had come to see the people were actually celebrating life. She cursed herself for not being able to let herself go and enjoy the pleasures of the flesh. She had always used her body to control and get her way - even with Jamie it had been that way after they reached their late teen years.

When Jamie had grown beyond that childish need (Cersei could see that was the case now), he had tried to tell Cersei he needed more than sex without connection and commitment. She had not heard, and lost him. She had been so angry and filled with hate for Jaime and Brienne both. How dare he betray her? Now though, she saw clearly that she had been lacking. In many ways, she drove her brother to the Maid of Tarth’s waiting arms. He indeed seemed very happy with the woman.

She had lost interest in sex by the time Daenerys had come to King’s Landing. No more. Before Oberyn had taught her to center and control herself she had been masturbating wildly every night, three and four times on average sometimes much more as the women cheered her on and kept moving in, trying to get her to join them in their bunks. She was like a wild animal in heat, her voice hoarse from her loud screams of self-love.

She only wanted one person - Obara. The problem was her stubborn pride, and her fear of not satisfying the woman. More, Cersei knew she was falling deeply in love with the woman and that if they consummated their rising attractions she would be hopelessly in love with the sand snake. That scared the holy shit out of Cersei. To want someone that bad. With her new insights this rising burning need to love Obara the woman felt to clean and pure for Cersei’s soiled love. Cersei was frightened of the new passions burning in her heart and in her loins.

She still held the secret close that in King’s Landing she’d had several dalliances with women. She had let them go down on her, and they moaned how good she tasted and simply worshiped her pussy until it exploded in their mouths.

The pleasure had been exquisite, but it never touched her soul. To her it was almost an experiment. She never went down on them, but fucked them hard with her fingers. Their convulsing bodies and screams of ecstasy told her she satisfied them. Again, it never touched her heart or soul. It was all about control, and showing herself she could make women totally lose themselves in her. It was all about the power dynamic. How shallow she had been; such a self-centered harpy.

The feeling of passionate love that Obara was stirring in Cersei’s bosom was totally foreign. Cersei had enough wisdom now to know that she had never allowed her love for Jaime to grow and become the special love it could have been. It had always just been an act for her with her brother. When Jamie grew beyond that need for baseless sex while Cersei had not, he had left her.

Cersei could no longer blame him. She still wondered what it was that Brienne brought to their relationship, but it was obvious that they truly loved each other. The way she wanted to love Obara. That fact scared the shit out of Cersei. She was not ready for that commitment. She was not ready to let her body totally control her, and give herself completely to Obara. She knew the woman would want all of Cersei. The problem was that Cersei wanted more and more to give Obara every part of her body and soul. She wanted their bodies to become one which would unite their souls. Cersei was in a quandary between want and fear.

She had found that if she used her mantras whenever she felt the ache rising, she could tamp it down. She used her mantras more and more, and felt peace with the world. She found quickly she could expunge all unwanted desires and powerful emotions from her being. Her fears and insecurities faded away. She felt almost dreamy, with nothing touching her or even tempting her. She could feel the soft smile on her face that naturally wanted to grace her features when she was in her dreamy state of inner introspection. The outside world could not harm her here deep inside herself. Her frustrations faded away.

She did use the meditations as Oberyn had originally intended, to help her excel even more at her various trainings. She felt no elation at her successes. She made sure to not let her inner peace rob her of her deepest desire to prove the whole fucking world wrong. She was a warrior, though now she wondered about the passion that drove her towards that goal.

At first she had felt a smug satisfaction seeing the confidence fade from Obara’s face. The woman had known she was breaking down Cersei’s defenses, and reveled in it. Cersei had enjoyed seeing that, now she had the control back. She had the woman on the defensive. She had loved at first seeing how Obara acted confused, and then hurt.

The problem quickly morphed though. Now causing Obara pain caused Cersei heart wrenching pain, which led her back to her mantras to soothe her distress. She was becoming addicted to her mediation. She was talking to Oberyn three days ago. They were now able to talk and act civil around each other. He had started to try and tease her, but she was beyond his words with her mediation.

He smiled and shook his head. “Don’t let those mantras go to your head, Cersei.” He had said good naturedly. “When are going to start fucking my girl, woman? She is so entirely in love with you.” He left chuckling.

Yes, Obara was in love with her, and Cersei was causing her pain, and it was killing Cersei. Despite her pain, Obara still worked out with Cersei helping her with her exercises, and training in hand-to-hand combat and with the staff.

The sand snake still gave her massages as well, but they were totally professional now. She could feel that verve that Obara once had was fading. Cersei was robbing her of it.

She had stopped her mantras. She wanted to feel again. She had suddenly realized she was well on the way to becoming a fucking silent sister. Oberyn’s jest had hit home. She wanted to feel. She wanted to fuck. She wanted to love.
Three days later, she was a jangling mess of nerves. She so wanted to masturbate, but she held off. She knew what she would do.

The next day was routine. She had eaten early, took to her “training” tasks, and muttered and fumed, instead of using her mantras to do it with a beatific smile on her face.

She had sparred with Oberyn, followed by lunch with father and daughter. Obara was polite and formal towards Cersei now. Cersei smiled at Obara with a genuine smile. The sand snake gave her only a wane smile back. Again, Cersei’s heart clutched hard in her chest, aching to comfort and love Obara.

She did exercises with the new cadets before heading back to her unique task. Then, she had her late workout and jujitsu with her master.

Once she was done, Obara came to her asking if she wanted a massage. Cersei had long noted how the woman was always there the moment she finished her jujitsu training. Obara was always so attentive, in her support of Cersei - almost loyal to Cersei to a fault. The woman gave herself completely, while getting nothing in return. Cersei was going to change that. Now.

Cersei had to make up for wasted time.

“Yes, but I would like it in the officer’s sauna.” She said.

She saw the confusion in Obara’s eyes. Cersei had shown great reluctance to let her body be touched in front of others before.

“Come on, Obara … my muscles need those talented fingers, woman!” Cersei gripped her hand and dragged Obara behind her. She felt the confusion in the sand snake.

The officer’s sauna was three times the size of the enlisted soldiers’ sauna, and had bigger rail seats and several large pools that were heated by fire pits beneath them.

Obara went to grab towels, but Cersei stopped her. “No need.”

Cersei quickly stripped out of her cadet shorts and top, gripping them as she kicked off her sandals. Cersei had lost her fear of immodesty and now loved the feel of being naked and on display. She wanted to be seen. Especially by one particular sand snake. Cersei balled her work out clothes up, and threw them across the pit. Obara watched the soiled clothes go flying, and slowly turned her head and gasped. Cersei stood proud and naked before her, looking into the sand snakes eyes with fiery heat in their jade green depths.

Cersei stretched, arching her back and tilting her head back to stretch hard. She knew this would thrust out her breasts and wet, shaved-smooth camel toe to Obara. Cersei loved the feel of her strong taunt muscles stretching. She could feel Obara’s eyes on her. Cersei felt her nipples stiffen into aching diamonds. Her pussy lips were already wet and swelling with hot pumping blood and desire. Slowly the lioness lowered her head. Cersei’s nipples pulsed even harder firing off hot arrows of pleasure to her throbbing clit when she saw Obara’s eyes avidly devouring her body in wonder and want. She felt her pussy flood, and cum starting to dribble down her thighs. Obara looked at her with obvious arousal, like she had been pole axed. Obara traced the cum trickling down already on Cersei’s thighs with her dark eyes. Obara licked her lips with glazed eyes of lust and love. Cersei chuckled inside. Yes. In a few moments Obara, I will rock your world!

Cersei smiled, watching Obara take her own clothes off with a stunned look. Cersei looked down the sauna, and saw a man on his knees sucking off his man, his throat down on the man’s cock.
Across the fire pits, a man and woman were fucking doggy style, the woman’s tits whiplashing with the hard fucking she was receiving as she rubbed her clit. The sights and loud moans of pleasure only made her hunger for Obara rise hotter inside her loins. Her knees were starting to tremble with her excitement.

Cersei gestured with her hands to get Obara to sit in the corner of the wall and bench. Obara did so staring up at Cersei with eyes filled with wonder and hope. Then Cersei tuned around and sat down on the bench and scooted back into her woman. Cersei snuggled back into Obara’s full rounded tits. She smirked feeling rock hard nipples poking her back and a wet pussy on her ass. Her woman wanted her!

“Well woman! My shoulders are so fucking tired. Massage them!” She felt Obara’s hands attentively come up and start to massage the clenched muscles. Cersei loved how they trembled so as the pressed into her hard toned muscles. Cersei always pushed herself hard. Obara’s fingers dug into her knotted muscles loosening them. It had been Cersei no longer responding to her caresses that had started to shatter Obara’s confidence.

“Ummnggggg gnggggg! oh Obara … you know how to work my body—your hands feel so fucking good on my body baby mmmggg nnnggg uummmmm!” Cersei softly husked. She smiled hearing the woman behind her gasp softly and shiver against her. She continued to work Cersei’s shoulders and upper arms. Cersei heard the clotted whimpers of rising need and want from her woman behind her. Obara’s sweet cunt pulsing out hot musk intoxicating and exciting Cersei. Her wet twat soaking Cersei’s lower back and ass cheeks with steamy slimy hot cum. Still Obara kept her gods damned hands chaste and proper massaging Cersei’s shoulders. Not good enough! Cersei had done too good a job cowing her sweet sand snake. She needed Obara to take her!

Cersei reached up with her hands and gripped Obara’s hands and slowly pulled them down from her shoulders. She snaked the hands underneath her arm pits and down her sweaty chest to her aching breast and cupped her sand snake’s palms over her little doves. She gagged in raw pleasure feeling Obara start to massage her breast. Obara rolled Cersei titties underneath her palms and then cupped Cersei’s breasts and moved her thumb and index finger of each hand up to Cersei’s rock hard medium brown nipples and squeezed them and pulled on them milking the teats. Cersei cawed in raw pleasure. Her pussy pulsing out hot flowing fuck nectars. Obara’s loud moan of need excited Cersei so much.

Cersei gasped feeling Obara nibble on her throat and lick her quivering pulse point as her fingers began to milk her breasts with hard squeezes and Obara’s fingers pulled on Cersei’s engorged teats as she pressed in with her pinching fingers filling Cersei’s breast with heat and bolts of pleasuring arching south to her rigid pulsing clit. “AAAAWWOOOGGGGGG!” Cersei screamed in raw pained ecstasy feeling Obara suck her throat deep into her mouth and see-saw her tender throat in and out her lips over the gnashing teeth.

The pain and hot ecstasy flooding her brain and out her gushing twat hole filled Cersei with primal joy and pleasure. Her body convulsed her eyes rolling into her skull and rolling violently as her hand came up instinctively to cup the back of Obara’s head and jam her mouth harder into her throat encouraging her lover to mark Cersei as her total slut. Obara moved her mouth over and down “Unngggggggggggggggg! Mnnngggggggggggggggggggggggggggg!” Cersei wailed as a second hickey marked her as Obara’s whore. Cersei surged back into the firm voluptuous body convulsing and short jerking as her body was pummeled with hot pleasure. Her throat and her pinched nipples sending arrows of ecstasy to her throbbing and shrieking clit with hammer blows of ecstasy.

Never had Cersei felt such pleasure, even with Jaime. “Ooohhhh unggg shitttt! … hhnngg hunnnn Cersei cawed in ecstasy. Obara shoved Cersei’s bruised throat flesh out her mouth all slobberly wet with her spit. Cersei’s head lulled back on Obara’s shoulder and she looked up at Obara letting her see into her soul. Obara gasped. Cersei cupped the back of Obara’s head and pulled her head down. Their lips mated and slide against each other melding and nipping before Cersei felt Obara’s tongue parting her lips and swiping her teeth demanding entrance into her mouth.

Cersei gave it freely and gagged feeling Obara’s long tongue slide deep into her mouth their tongues wetly entwined and flipping around in Cersei’s mouth. “Mmmffphhh mmpffffl uummffff!” Cersei chuffed into the mouth devouring her mouth. Her cunt was so swollen and dripping wet.

Obara broke the kiss and kissed Cersei’s face murmuring “yess yes oh yesss finally yes!” Cersei pulled back enough to turn around and settle her body on Obara’s lap her legs folded along the outside of Obara’s big strong thighs. Cersei wiggled in mashing her wet quim into Obara’s hard stomach. Cersei gagged in pleasure nutting her cunt and jacking her clit on Obara’s hard stomach. Cersei circled her pussy into the woman’s lower belly and wrapped her arms around the strong woman.

“I have come to you Obara—just like you said I would” Cersei softly husked to her woman and lowered her mouth where they mated tight and tongues wetly dueled form mouth to mouth in wet tangled slippery love.

Obara

Obara was ecstatic. Her dreams had come true. She pulled Cersei tight to her body compressing her breast against her lover’s small doves. She whimpered feeling Cersei’s hard nipples jamming into her full tits. Their tongues were like serpents rolling around back and forth in their locked mouths. She needed Cersei now. She slide her hand down Cersei’s flat hard belly and slide two fingers up into the fiery cauldron that was Cersei. She felt Cersei’s body jerk hard and then rotate her groin down on the fingers pumping slow and deep up the hot tight fuck hole of the fallen Lannnister. Obara pumped her long fingers in and out the slimy buttery sweet fuck hole of her woman. Cersei’s cunt was so hot and tight! The sopping wet folds slithered hotly over her pumping fingers. Cersei squealed into her mouth and subtly started to work her hips to drive the fingers deeper up into her dribbling quim. Cersei broke their kiss.

“Uungg ohhh Obara! You’re fucking me so goooood baby! Ohhhhh gods your fingers feel so good in me baby!” Cersei gibbered. She kissed Obara’s face with soft kisses and then leaned back and hefted up Obara’s firm globes and lowered her mouth. Cersei had been watching women fuck for months now. Cersei had learned much from intense observations. She was ready to give her woman the pleasure she deserved. Looking up hotly into Obara’s eyes Cersei sucked on the dark brown nipples hard with long and then short sucks her fingers roughly massaging the hot globes. Her fingers sinking in deep as her cheeks hollowed out with her intense sucking. Cersei moved her head right and left to siphon in thick long dark brown nipples to fiercely nurse on with hollowing deep throat love sucks. Cersei’s soul sang to her seeing Obara’s face filled with hot slashes of ecstasy as she glanced up to see her lover's pleasure from her oral ministration to her heavy udders.

Obara cried out in raw pleasure. Obara worked her fingers harder in and out her lover’s swollen puss and jammed her bent thumb into Cersei hard nubbin in its knotted clitoral hood. Obara was already in love with Cersei’s hot tight pussy and the feel of it on her fingers and soon in her mouth.

Cersei was squirming and jamming down hard now. She had sucked fiercely on the sand snakes nipples but dropped Obara’s breasts and now kissed Obara hard and deep her tongue sliding down Obara’s throat and spearing in deep licking Obara’s tonsils. Cersei looped her arms around Obara pulling their bodies hard into each other. Now Obara chuffed into the mouth devouring it “Ummmppff mmpphhfff mmppff! ummffff!” The Lannister wallowed into Obara mashing and rolling their compressed tits against each other their nipples wired to throbbing clits. Cersei’s clt was hammering her with ecstasy.

Obara rammed her fingers hard and deep up into Cersei’s squishing snatch loving the spasms gripping and milking her hard plunging fingers. Her fingers soaked in creamy slimy cum. She could feel the spasms coming harder and faster. Cersei’s forehead thudded into her neck as the lioness whimpered and cawed in ecstasy. Her hand hammered Cersei’s snatch. She felt hot tendrils of cum trickling down her hand soaking it in hot slimy snail snot. Then Cersei’s head whipped back thirty seconds later a look of shock and almost crippling pleasure slashing her face.

Cersei’s cunt spasmed down hard on her fingers and Obara rammed them all the way in and jammed her palm into Cersei’s cum soaked camel toe. Obara wiggled her hand back and forth grinding her palm into Cersei’s mound and clt her fingers churning wildly in the now exploding twat. Cersei’s snatch made wet, sloppy, loud squishing sounds so hot and obscene.

"AARRUUUNNGGGGGG! Hhnng hhnnn Ongghhiieee! … AAAAWWWOOGG GGGG!!" Cersei screamed, her head snapped forward and back her body convulsing as searing waves of crushing pleasure ripped through her body. Obara groaned herself feeling Cersei’s folds grip her churning fingers in a velvet wet fist squeezing so hard rhythmically on Obara’s fingers as hot cum gushed out her woman’s ruptured womb. "Auungghhiieee! Mnnngghghhhieee! … Oh! Yes! Oh ... auuggghnniiieee!"Cersei wailed in almost agonizing ecstasy. Obara felt Cersei lift her body several inches in sudden spasms and slam down again again as she harpooned fucking her exploding couchie. The beautiful blond slap fucking her exploding quim on the fingers fucking her to the heavens. Cersei’s face was slashed with almost crippling pleasure. Obara loved feeling Cersei’s cum soaking her hand and running down her wrist.

Cerise slowly sagged forward into Obara whimpering and gagging with strong aftershocks. Obara still had her fingers buried in Cersei’s twat enjoying the wet heat and fading spasms of cumming. Obara cupped the back of Cersei’s head and guided their mouths together. She kissed Cersei sweetly as the woman mewled for a minute before demanding entrance to Cersei’s sweet mouth. Their tongues wetly wrestled deep in Cersei’s mouth. Obara loved how her tongue quickly conquered Cersei’s tongue squeezing it hard before lunging down Cersei throat making her lover’s eyes roll back into her skull and spasm hard her closed eyelids showing the rolling orbs. Cersei’s body jolted hard into hers with the strong aftershocks still gripping the lioness’s toned body.

After a minute Obara pulled her fingers out of Cersei’s loosening pussy and gripped the woman’s ass and lifted her as she got up and spun around to put the Lannister gently down on the bench in the corner. Cersei was looking at her with the lidded eyes of the well fucked. Obara looked into the jade pools and nearly wept seeing so much love there. Obara slowly sunk to her knees and leaned forward cupping the back of Cersei’s head bringing it forward to again kiss her lover with scorching kisses.

Obara had heard reports of Cersei’s marathon masturbation sessions when she allowed her body to sing to her. She had smiled hearing of Cersei working her pussy frantically over and over each night to screaming orgasms as her body actually flipped off her bed several times she flipped so hard.
Cersei may have been embarrassed but she only looked sheepish getting back onto her cot. Once recovered she wasted no time in jilling herself off again. She was insatiable.

The woman was a slut when she let herself. Obara would work tirelessly to make sure that Cersei’s learned to listen to her body’s need for pussy. Obara’s pussy! Later Obara would teach Cersei to grasp other pleasures of the flesh but to begin with Obara would teach her Cersei all the wonders of lesbian fucking.

Their hands were in each other’s sweaty hair pulling their mouths tight while their tongues slithered and wrestled wetly in Cersei’s mouth. Obara opened her eyes enough to see that Cersei’s eyes had rolled back into her skull making her eyelids jerk and bulge with their rolling in her skull. Her breathing becoming ragged again as her body jerked and convulsed with raw wanton pleasure with her body rising again in sweet tension.

Obra broke their kiss and smiled seeing Cersei chasing her lips with spittle roped between their bruised lips. She pulled Obara’s head back in and they kissed ravenously as Cersei surged her tongue deep into Obara’s mouth and now aggressively dueled with her tongue.

Obra broke their kiss with Cersei whining until Obara sucked her left breast deep into her mouth and sucked voraciously on the Lannister’s breast and nipple. Her head pumped in and out stretching the soft dove and her tongue slashed over the rigid medium brown nipple all crinkly from giving suck to her babes. She loved the look on Cersei’s face. The way her face slashed and her mouth stretched in a rictus smile of crushing pleasure.

“Unnggg oohhhh suck suck hhnnnggg hhnnn hhnnnn oh gods suck!” Cersei cawed her hands now gripping Obara’s head jamming her head down harder onto her breast. Obara moved her head over and wolfed in Cersei’s other small dove getting over half of her tit into her mouth and vacuumed sucked filling the former Queen’s tit with fire. “Hhhuuungggg oh shit yeessssss! Godsdamnmnn suck suck me baby!” Obara pulled her head back sucking hard until her slut’s tit popped out her mouth wetly. Cersei screamed in pleasure making Obara’s soul soar.

Obra worked her woman’s tits for the next five minutes her cheeks hollowing out with her deep throat love sucks. Her mouth and hands tried to stuff Cersei’s breast ever deeper into her hot sucking mouth. Obara was in heaven finally devouring these precious succulent peaches. She would then back off with her voracious love assault and suckling sweetly and licking her tongue over Cersei’s nipples with her rasping tongue. Obara kissed all over the soft globes licking and leaving little red love bites that had Cersei’s head whipping around her throat cawing in helpless pleasure. Cersei was near delirious now. Cersei’s hands roaming all over Obara’s body massaging and clutching as hard slashes marked Cersei’s face with ecstasy.

Cersei’s hands had been either in Obara’s hair pulling into her bosom or her hands fluttering around. Now they were in her hair again. Where before those strong hands had been jamming her face harder into Cersei’s bosom now they pushed down with force. The hands now urging Obara to move South down Cersei’s gasping body. Obara’s right hand reached down and massaged her woman’s slit. Cersei’s cunt was so fucking wet and her musk filled their corner of the sauna thickly. Obara breathed in deep savoring Cersei pungent scent.

Obra smiled. She kissed down Cersei’s belly looking up she saw Cersei’s face looking down at her. Cersei’s face slashing and a look of hard need in her throbbing beautiful jade eyes. She slithered her tongue into Cersei’s belly button and drilled in. She smiled at Cersei’s whoops and seeing Cersei’s six pack ripple up to hard steel.

She was starving. She sat quickly on her ass and mashed her face in her woman’s slit and licked up and down the sodden mound plying open Cersei’s labia lips and moaned tasting Cersei for the first time. She tasted so fucking good! Obara moaned to herself. Her tongue licked the slippery trench and over the woman’s clit over and over and gave it quick teasing sucks. "Unngghhh! Oh gods ... yessss!" Cersei whimpered starting to rotate her pussy up into the sand snake’s hot licking slurping mouth. "Yes Ahhnngg ... ohhhhh Obara!" Cersei whimpered both hands again in Obara’s hair encouraging the woman to eat her out.

Obara sucked Cersei’s clit deep into her mouth hard sucking it with long sucks of pure love with her tongue slapping and spearing the hard nubbin. Cersei’s hips bucked up driving her cunt even deeper into Obara’s mouth her vulva swallowing Obara’s lips with slimy wet heat. Obara softly worked her head in and out pulling on the clitoral hood in her mouth. She would then lap her head gently snuffling as she slurped and tongue raked the rock hard nubbin in her mouth before delivering short hard sucks on the rigid clitoris. She hummed and moaned eating out Cersei the vibrations directly on Cersei’s clitoral. “Pppleasesss baby suck me—I need to cum so bad Obara—aaawwwgggg uunnggg uunnggg oohhhhhhhhhhh fuck!” Cersei pleaded for release.

Obara was in heaven feasting on Cersei’s plump love chute her tongue lashing Cersei’s rigid clitor and her mouth sucking in Cersei’s labia lips. Obara pulled and sucked the rubbery lips pulling them taunt and then rolling them in her mouth. Cersei’s sweet cunt tasted heavenly in her mouth. Each swipe of Obara’s tongue in Cersei’s slippery trench or probing her wet love hole filled Obara’s mouth with the taste of Cersei. Obara was intoxicated already with the ambrosia flowing out Cersei’s honey hole.

Obara could feel the tension in Cersei’s body as she gripped the woman’s slender hips. The jerks in the lioness’s body was now rippling all over her body. Cersei’s head had lulled over drool coming out her mouth down her chin as she chuffed her face slashed with rising desperate pleasure.

Obara sucked Cersei’s clitor in and out her lips with fast in and out sucks. She snuck her middle finger down to Cersei’s anus and teased it with a circular motion. Cersei’s bucked and went tense with her head coming up to look down at Obara with shocked pleasure. Obara paused and again sucked Cersei’s clitor deep into her mouth and sucked hard and long. Her middle finger teasing in a hard circular motion on Cersei’s clenching asshole.

Cersei exploded. The dam shattered. Cersei’s head jerked up on her neck now straining up; her face rigid with scalding bliss. Her muscular body began to flip and jackknife violently as dire spasms ripped out her exploding womb. "AARRRUUUNNGGGG! OOOOWWGGGGG GGGGG! ... hhnn hhnnngg Aunnngghhh!" she cried out. "Ohnnngg! Unnghhngghhiieeee! Oh gods unngghgmnniiieeee! Aunnngg! Unhg! Oh! Unh! Ungh!" Cersei’s raw screams of unadulterated bliss made Obara’s heart pound with love for Cersei. Cersei’s body surged and bucked hard for twenty seconds and then collapsed back to the wall. Cersei’s jackknifes had stopped but her body still convulsed against the wall with ecstasy. Obara had released her love suck on Cersei’s clitor and jammed her mouth to Cersei’s fuck hole. Obara sucked on cum soaked cunt meat her nose jamming Cersei’s hard pulsing clitor. Obara drank down the hot pulses of cum that pulsed out Cersei’s clenching cunt.

Obara slow stroked her tongue up and down her lover’s mound to slurp up thick creamy cum. She would move up and harsh suck on Cersei’s clitor sending scalding pleasure rushing through Cersei’s jerking body. Her sucks prolonging Cersei’s orgasm. Then she moved down down her love’s cum soaked slit. Obara loved licking up the cum that slavered her lover’s mound. Cersei’s orgasm continued to consume her though changing tenor as Obara’s tongue and lips prolonged Cersei’s hard hitting waves of orgasm that had throttling spasms of bliss rocking her lean body. "Oooohhhngggg! Oooohhhngggg!" Cersei’s grunt moaned softly, her lovely face seized with rapture, her body undulating as shock wave after shock wave of her paralyzing orgasm continued to consume her. Obara knew how to draw her lover’s orgasms out.
Obara released Cersei’s clit from her mouth and moved up kissing slowly up the sweat dripping belly. Each drop of sweet cum and sweat was the pure essence of Cersei to Obara. Her hands came up to cup and squeeze Cersei’s nipples sending arrows of ecstasy to her still jangling clit. Obara kissed Cersei whose hands flew to Obara’s jet black hair threading into the locks and mated their mouths tight. Cersei was cawing into Obara’s mouth twining her tongue around Obara’s tongue. They kissed deeply for a minute as Obara pulled and plucked Cersei’s hard nipples prolonging the blonde’s aftershocks.

Obara pulled back and sat back down between Cersei’s spread legs. Obara was on a mission to show Cersei that no one could love Cersei like she could. “Oh godssss” Cersei whimpered and then cried out feeling two fingers slide so deep up into her hot buttery cunt and begin to pump in and out her twat slowly. The cum filled cunt slurped obscenely on the pumping digits. Obara bent in and siphoned her loves clit back deep into her mouth and suckled it with her tongue rolling over the shiny hard nubbin. Obara pumped in her fingers hard and deep and began to lick over Cersei’s clit with the flat of her tongue. Obara reveled feeling Cersei’s cum running down her fingers and soaking her hand and dripping down her wrist.

For the next five minutes Obara ratcheted up Cersei’s body slowly. She had slipped in a third finger moaning feeling Cersei’s pussy so tight on her fingers and the way her core gripped and squeezed her fingers. Obara slurped and sucked fiercely on Cersei’s clit and then back to hard licks and loose lip sucks. Cersei was twisting and writhing now. Her ass cheeks clenching and driving her cunt hard up into Obara’s mouth and fingers humping hard. She cried out continuously in ecstasy.

Obara could feel the time had arrived. She had been rotating her fingers as she pumped Cersei’s sodden vaginal walls and had found the lionesses g-spot. She had felt Cersei jolt as she mapped the sweet hillock’s location on Cersei’s frontal vaginal wall. Obara had then finger fucked her lioness hard with her plunging fingers hammering in hot and hard straight in and out. Her knuckles slamming into Cersei’s cum drenched vulva. The spongy hill had felt so divine underneath her fast pumping fingertips when she traced out its location. Now Obara zeroed in on Cersei’s g-spot for the love kill. She flipped her hand over and angled her hand and harpooned her fingers into the spongy hillock. Obara focused on it with hard back and forth jerks her fingers angled to jam into the spongy hillock. Obara smiled. Cersei body locked up and then exploded.

Cersei’s head spasmed forward and slammed back hard into the wall behind her again and again. "Awwwonngggwunnggghhh! OOWWGGGGHHHHGGGAAAAAA! AAAWWOOGGGGGGGG!" Cersei roared in shattering ecstasy. Cersei’s face twisted and slashed with wild slashes her eyes squeezed tight shut as more of Cersei’s screams filled the officer’s sauna. “Unnnggunnggg Aaaaarrggghhhhhuuunnmmnnnnn awwwwoggggg! ... Fffuuuuuucccckkkkkk!” Obara sucked on the clit that was jammed deeper into her mouth by Cersei’s bucking hips. Her fingers were slimed with hot cum gushing out the contracting couchie spasming hard. Cum running down Obara’s arm as it pumped hard into the immolating pussy that contracted hard on the fingers harpooning the spongy g-spot. Cersei flipped and jackknifed violently through her long harrowing orgasm. Obara was in heaven giving Cersei such pleasure.

Obara drank deeply from the spring of Cersei’s being loving her sweet biting tang. Obara looked up and saw tears running down Cersei’s cheeks. She kissed up the flexing belly and sucked on her nipples thirstily for a long moment before reaching Cersei’s face and giving it feathery kisses. Cersei recovered and their lips came together and kissed sweetly before Cersei’s tongue demanded entrance to Obara’s mouth and surged with the parting of her teeth. Cersei kissed her deeply her tongue a serpent in Obara’s mouth.

Obara gasped when Cersei leaned forward and gripped Obara’s ass cheeks and effortlessly picked up Obara and slowly spinning her around still kissing her deeply her tongue now down Obara’s throat that had the squealing sand snake’s eyes rolling into her skull. Cersei effortlessly held the voluptuous woman up spearing her tongue again and again down Obara’s throat. Obara wrapped her legs around Cersei and ground her swollen muffin into the woman’s hard stomach nutting herself on the washboard muscles of Cersei’s stomach. The lioness fingers were roughly massaging Obara’s voluptuous ass cheeks her fingers roughly kneading the firm globes. Cersei then gently sat Obara down into their corner and settled down onto her knees between Obara’s legs as the sand snake spread her legs. All the while Cersei maintained their lip lock her tongue wetly wrestling her lover’s dueling tongue.

Cersei finally broke their kiss. She looked into Obara’s eyes. “I’ve dreamed of these” Cersei softly said hefting Obara’s full heavy tits and started to squeeze them filling Obara’s breast with fire. Obara watched with lidded eyes as Cersei lowered her head and siphoned in a long thick turgid dark brown nipple. She sucked and lathed the teat with fuck hunger her fingers roughly kneading the heavy firm breast. “Ooggggg hhnmm hhhnnggg hhnnngg oh baby ... shit! unngg unnggg!” Obara whimpered feeling Cersei suck and tongue bat her engorged nipples back and forth.

Cersei bunched Obara’s ample mounds and buried her face between them pressing the heavy tits into her face. Cersei snuffled as she feverishly kissed and covered Obara’s breast with love bites. Obara whopped and cried out when Cersei kissed up her left tit and sucked her nipple back deep into her mouth and sucking so hard on her nipple pumping her heard. Cersei’s growls of devouring setting Obara’s pussy on fire and making it so sloppy wet.

Back and forth Cersei moved her head siphoning in the long thick nipples and sucking with cheek hollowing sucks as she looked up with lidded eyes watching Obara’s face slash with pleasure. Cersei’s pale fingers clenched in deep the dusky tits she was grasping as her mouth suckled and her tongue lathed rigid teats.

Cersei rocked her head tongue lashing the rigid nipples before sucking again. She bunched Obara’s tits together and ran her tongue around them in figure eights before wildly working her head right and left whipping her tongue over the rigid nipples like a flail. “Auaggg unngg uunggg … ooohhh baby Aawwoggg!” Obara cried out in pleasure. Cersei sucked Obara’s tits in turn deep into her mouth and then sucked hard pulling her head back till Obara’s spit soaked tits popped out of Cersei’s mouth obscenely. Cersei repeated his again and again making Obara cry out in near crippling pleasure.

Cersei smiled evilly up at Obara. Obara was delirious now. Cersei was back to suckling on her nipples softly working her tongue around the thick stems. She slowly dragged her tongue over the creamy tit flesh of both globes to suck in the other nipple and sucked so godsdamned good!

Obara needed so much more. She pressed her hands onto the top of Cersei’s head and gently pressed down. Cersei was so much stronger than her now. “Oh Baby! Please please!”

“Please what?” Cersei asked her lips back half an inch from Obara’s right thick long nipple.

“Ooooooooo babyyyyyyyy plleaseeeeee!”

“Please what Obara?” Cersei teased.

“Ohhhh Cersei suck my cunt baby. Make me cum in that hot godsdamned mouth! Suck meeeeee!”

Cersei smirked and then she slowly kissed down Obara’s belly. She luxuriated feeling the hard muscles clench underneath her lips. Cersei settled down now on her ass and stared at Obara’s pussy with lust added eyes. With a long moan Cersei mashed her face deep into Obara’s camel toe wiggling her face in deep and started to lap aggressively up and down Obara’s slit. Obara gagged in helpless pleasure feeling Cersei’s tongue lash over her clit. Cersei must have been watching all the lesbian loving around her in the barracks. She knew what she was doing! Obara cried out in pleasure when Cersei’s long tongue snaked deep in her pussy licking around scooping out hot cum and swallowing with loud gulps.

Then that long tongue was hard tongue fucking Obara’s slimy drooling clam. Cersei mashed her face into the sand snake’s swollen clamshell. First Cersei lapped her head tongue lashing Obara’s clit and slit. Then Cersei worked down the sodden trench licking and tongue stabbing. She worked down to Obara’s sweet fuck hole. Cersei licked around the drooling clutching cunt hole. Then Cersei stiffened her long tongue.

Cersei’s tongue punched in deep, hard and fast into the festering couchie filled with sweet buttery cum. The Lannister hammered her head back and forward to sink her tongue deep into the slimy buttery cum filled twat hole. Cersei’s nose jammed Obara’s clit with each stroke of her pumping head. Cersei snuffled and moaned when she pressed her mouth to Obara’s cunt hole and sucked in sweet cunt meat and dined on them with lips and spearing tongue while snuffling obscenely.

Obara stared down in rapture. All her dreams of her and Cersei were coming true and they made her fantasizes pale. Cersei was devouring her! Cersei backed her head an inch and then mashed down hard totally engulfing her mouth with Obara’s vulva’s wet kiss. Cersei sucked Obara’s whole upper pussy deep into her mouth and tongue lashed with feverish focus and love.

Out of nowhere Obara’s pussy cummed hard with womb rending spasms of fucking bliss. Obara’s Cersei felt hot gushes of cum pulsing out her exploding snatch. “Auungghhh! Ohmmnnnggg!
Ummngghiiieieeeeee!” Obara wailed as she looked down at Cersei with slit eyes. Cersei gulped obscenely moaning as she drank hot female cum for the first and instantly, totally becoming addicted to the effluent pouring out Obara’s hot cunt. Each hot gush of creamy cum so sweet and permanently addicting Cersei to sucking sweet cunt.

Cersei mashed her face to Obara’s quim and Dorne kissed sucking in a mouthful of hot cunt meat and rolled it in her mouth her tongue slithering all through the slimy folds. Cersei’s right hand had snaked around Obara’s hip. The fingertips of the hand brushed fast back and forth over the cum soaked clit. Obara’s orgasm that had been waning exploded afresh harshly throttling Obara with fucking bliss.

"Auungghhh! Ohmmnnnggg! Ummngghiiieeee! Oh ... oh gods oh shit ... ohhnmgghhiieeee!
Ummngghiiieeee!” Obara screamed, her face slashed hard and body flipping and jackknifing violently her heavy tits whiplashing around on her flipping body. Sweat poured down her body and hot cum gushed into Cersei’s gulping mouth the excess running down her cheeks as she gulped greedily. Finally, Obara’s orgasm waned and Cersei backed off and moved up to kiss Obara hotly again. Cersei’s tongue was an Adder in her mouth wildly tangling with Obara’s tongue in her mouth before sliding down her throat and then spearing in deep aggressive.

Cersei pulled back. Her green eyes on fire. “You’re mine now! All mine!”

“Yes, oh yes!” Obara whimpered. Normally Obara was the dom but not with Cersei on fire like this. She willingly submitted to be Cersei’s total slut at this moment. She sensed that Cersei was a switch and would relish both sides of the domination matrix. So did Obara. Gods Cersei was so perfect for her!

Cersei was not finished with her pussy yet. She jammed her face back deep into Obara’s snatch and wolfed sucked and tongue slashed the slimy cunt meat underneath her tongue. Her lips sucking slimy labia lips and rolling before moving up and sucking in Obara’s clit and love sucking with harsh long and then short fast love sucks. Her tongue either gigging or butterfly stroking all over the shiny nubbin.

Obara felt her belly spasm hard and her thighs begin to clench and strain. Her body went stiff as Cersei looking up at her with her beautiful eyes now long hard sucked on Obara’s clit her cheeks dimpling in with the long ragged deep throat love sucks. The Lannister’s tongue harpooning the shiny nubbin. Cersei was noisily slurping down mouthfuls of creamy cum. The excess trickled down Cersei’s cheeks and down her throat.

The sight made Obara’s womb shatter and then explode. “FFFFFUUUCCKKKKK! AARRUUUNNGGGGGGG! OOOWWWG GGGGGGG!” the sand snake flipped and jackknifed in harrowing spasms so searing fucking bliss. “Aarrrrgggggggg… Oh… oh gods oh shit… ohhnnngggghhiieeeeee! Ummmmmmngghhiieeee!” Obara screamed, her face slashed hard and body jerking forward and back violently her heavy tits whiplashing around on her flipping body. Sweat poured down her body and hot cum continued to gush into Cersei’s gulping mouth the excess running down her cheeks soaking them as she gulped greedily.

Finally, Obara’s new orgasm waned and Cersei backed off and moved up to kiss her hotly again. Cersei first licked and nibbled on Obara’s full lips. She sweetly pulled Obara’s lower lip out several times. Then her tongue demanded entrance to Obara’s mouth and their tongues wetly flipped and wrestled around in Obara’s mouth. The sand snake loving the taste of her cunt on Cersei’s tongue. After several minutes of deep snogging Cersei kissed down Obara’s cawing throat. She kissed down to Obara’s hooters and kissed them all over reverently. Then Cersei worked Obara’s breast again now using two hands to pulp Obara’s tits in turn her fingers sinking deep into full bosom and then pulling Obara’s tits up one at a time and wolf sucking on engorged teats. Cersei looked up at her mate and hefted the heavy tits up and bent her head over and kissed the undersides of Obara’s heavy breast. Her lips kissed the sweet flesh and with her tongue licking the sweet sweaty flesh. Cersei licked down to the crease where Obara’s full tits met her ribcage. Cersei kissed along those creases. Obara groaned and cawed her breath short and raspy.

Cersei kissed around the left full tit and kissed all around on the top of Obara’s full rounded tits. Her lips making wet smooshing sounds. Cersei then kissed around the heavy tits she hefted up again slowly kissing up to the large circular areolas all steeple with rigid flesh. Cersei circled her tongue on the areolas as Obara whimpered. Then Cersei moved up and siphoned in a thick turgid nipple and wolfed suck with long ragged love sucks.

“Aawwoogg uuunngg hhnggg … ohhhhh shit Cerseeeeiitiitiiii—aawwgggg shit yeessssss!” Cersei smiled around the nipple in her mouth and moved over and sucked in the other rigid nipple and sucked voraciously with long deep throat love sucks her tongue spearing the rigid nipples as she worked back and forth.

Cersei worked Obara’s breast again now using two hands to pulp Obara’s tits in turn her fingers sinking deep into full bosom and then pulling Obara’s tits up one at a time and wolf sucking on engorged teats. Cersei loved making love to Obara’s tits but she needed more hot sweet gash. Cersei went boneless to sit back down before Obara’s spread out legs. The lioness again mashed her face deep in Obara’s pussy moaning working her lover’s pussy. She had her eyes lightly lidded eating out Obara with focus on her clit with hard licks and soft sucks. Cersei had a dreamy look on her face as it lapped up and down eating out hot sweet cunt.

Cersei did not see Oberyn and Ellaria come in. They spotted the rutting women. Big smiles spread on their faces at the sight of sand snake and the lioness rutting in wild passion. The two looked at each other happy that Obara finally had her woman. They were both naked and Elleria came to sit beside Obara. Ellaria spread her legs wide leaning back. Her head canted over to watch the two women beside her making sweet love. Oberyn immediately fell to his folded legs and buried his face deep in Ellaria’s pussy and went wild devouring his consort. Ellaria’s head jammed back into the wooden panels as her sweet Oberyn ate her out like a man who absolutely loves pussy. He snuffled and sucked her pussy deep into his mouth aggressively attacking it as Ellaria started to cry out in ecstasy.

Obara knew her father and his consort had started to come around on Cersei and she smiled seeing them come to fuck beside them. Cersei finally opened her eyes and looked over at the couple fucking beside them. She gasped and pulled back as Obara whined in displeasure. Cersei had a look of slight confusion on her face.

Obara watched her father reach over while still eating Ellaria out and put his hand on the back of Cersei’s head. He paused letting Cersei accept his hand. She did looking at him out the side of her eye. He then pressed the back of Cersei’s head back down slowly into Obara’s pussy. Cersei moaned and the Lannister wigged her face deep into Obara’s vulva as it clamped tight around her mouth enfolding it in a slimy kiss. Cersei sucked her woman’s clit deep into her mouth and started to pump her head in time with Oberyn eating out his lover and they both devoured wet quim. The man and woman glancing at each other smiling as they sucked in time making their women cry out in wanton pleasure.

Ellaria leaned over but still looked down at Cersei for permission. Cersei was being given the right of refusal. Obara looked between Ellaria and Cersei hoping. Cersei was being given the right of refusal. They all watched the Lannister eye them for a long moment and then Cersei jerked her head up and down never ceasing her fervid sucks on Obara's cunt. She smiled up at Obara making her heart clutch and squeeze in pure love in her chest. Obara somehow fell even deeper in love with Cersei.

Cersei paused for a second in her intense pussy gobbling keeping eye contact with Obara and Ellaria back and forth. The three paused for a few rapid heartbeats gauging and accepting. With a happy smile on her face, Cersei sucked even harder on Obara’s clit making her cry out in helpless pleasure. Cersei loosened her lips lock on Obara’s cunt as she wetly sucked and now made copious obscene slurps as she ate her woman out.

Permission granted Ellaria leaned in the rest of the way. She nipped Oberyn’s daughter’s lips and then sucked in her lower lip suckling on it. Cersei had given permission and granted Ellaria the right. Ellaria’s face beamed as she leaned in the rest of the way and kissed Obara. She cupped the back of Obara’s head and at first sweetly kissed Oberyn’s daughter. Lips melded and sweetly nibbled and glided over each other. The sand snake cried out in helpless pleasure now having two mouths work her body expertly.

For a short while Ellaria and Oberyn’s daughter kissed sweetly nipping lips and pulling on them with their teeth. Both women mewling in renewed love. Ellaria demanded entrance to Obara’s mouth her tongue swiping pearly white teeth. Obara opened her mouth to Ellaria’s long tongue that surged in and wetly wrestled with her tongue. Their rolling and flipping around in Obara’s chuffing mouth. “Unnggfff mmnnppffff mmfff oooffffffff mmfff!” Obara cawed into the mouth devouring hers.

Ellaria’s tongue shoved deeply into Obara’s mouth and actively twined wetly with Obara’s hot writhing tongue. Their tongues coiled and flipping hotly in Obara’s groaning mouth. Both woman chuffed and their cheeks clearly showed the twined tongues first flipping around in Obara’s mouth and then the love tryst was in Ellaria’s mouth. Ellaria’s body jolted her nostrils flaring when she felt Obara spear her tongue down her love gagging throat.
Obara’s mind was on fire with her pussy being gobbled by her sweet lover and her father’s paramour again kissing her with such exquisite skill. Ellaria kissed Obara deeply as Cersei watched. Cersei’s eyes taking it all in with an intense stare. She signaled her approval by moaning hard and trying to suck Obara’s clit down her throat.

Obara had been nervous at Ellaria’s overture but Cersei’s acceptance and then encouragement had her pussy on fire. She and Ellaria had made love many times before. She enjoyed fucking her father’s lover. He had joined them many times banging both of their pussies and assholes to sweet gut wrenching orgasms. She loved eating out Ellaria with her father banging her own twat.

Their tongues coiled in her mouth. She cried out into Ellaria’s mouth when Cersei tried to suck her clit down her throat again and tongued lashed her shiny nubbin wildly with her slapping tongue. Cersei was growling and pulling her head snapping Obara’s clit out through her pressed lips and diving down to hard suck in deep again. Cersei would waggle her head before pulling it back to snap out Obara’s clit through her lips.

Again and again Cersei did this. She sucked the rigid clit deep into her mouth and oh so slowly pulled her head back all the while sucking voraciously on the hard nubbin till it plopped wetly out form between her lips and snap back to Obara’s slimy wet vulva. Cersei enjoyed immensely how it made her slut scream into Ellaria’s mouth the sounds muffled and how Obara’s hips jumped up spasically in ecstasy from her oral ministrations.

Cersei watched for a minute as she ate out Obara before her head lifted an inch above Obara’s swollen sloppy wet cunt. Obara and Ellaria broke for air and looked down at Cersei’s face soaked in Obara’s snail snot. “Oh gods that looks sooooooo fuckig hot! … suck on Obara’s nipples and then kiss her again” Cersei moaned and then mashed her face deep into Obara’s cunt as it wetly clung to her mouth and lips. Cersei sucked in mouthfuls of sweet slimy cunt meat and munched happily her tongue spearing deep up Obara’s hot tight fuck hole. Her lover’s vulva totally engulfed her mouth in wet heat and slimed in love snail snot. Cersei lifted herself slightly and rocked her head slashing her tongue over Obara’s clit. Obara shrieked in gut wrenching stabs of hot pleasure.

Obara had been nervous. She feared that Cersei would be jealous or hurt. Her acceptance of this opened so many doors for them in the future. Obara and Ellaria had made love many times before. She enjoyed fucking her father’s lover. He had joined them many a time banging both of their pussies and assholes to orgasms. She loved eating out Ellaria with her father banging her twat. She had screamed so many times into Ellaria’s cunt as her father’s cock exploded deep in her cunt or wildly clenching asshole. To feel her father’s semen flooding her womb or colon always made her cum.

Many times Obara had feasted on the cum leaking out Ellaria’s slack well fucked pussy. Obara smiled remembering the times she would get behind Ellaria after she had collapsed from doggy or rolled over after a good savage ass fucking. Spreading out her voluptuous ass cheeks and licking Ellaria’s quivering starfish. Obara hooking her fingers in the runnels of father’s paramour asshole. She pulled her loosened asshole open and lapped out her father’s cum that would dribble out Ellaria’s tired happy shithole.

Obara now knew that someday in the future that Cersei and her would be fucking her father and his paramour. She longed to feel her father’s cock in her ass as Cersei ate her out or to have Ellaria on the bed with her legs spread out as Cersei ate her out and she slammed her cock up Cersei’s cunt and ass back and forth. Making Cersei cum so hard with vaginal and anal ‘gasms. Then having Ellaria and Cersei clean her cunt and ass off her cock.

So many scenarios ran through Obara’s head. Her and Ellaria dp’ing Cersei so hard and deep and Cersei doing ATM and A2P hungrily over and over and cumming again and again and then it would be her and Cersei doing it to Ellaria as she wailed and cummed on their dicks. Gods Ellaria loved to do ATM and A2P over and over. She couldn’t wait till it would be her turn to be DP fucked to oblivion. She would feel so full and her body hammering her with such powerful sensations from all three fuck holes as she cleaned their cocks of her sweet ass juice and milky cunt cream. They would fuck the night away.

Obara knew Cersei and her father had actually formed a healthy relationship now. She hoped they could take it to the next level. She longed to see her father fuck the living shit out of Cersei making her scream in raw agonizing pleasure. She longed to suck her father’s hot tart cum out Cersei’s slack pussy and asshole. She would have to hope.

Cersei looked up the tight flexing belly as she ate out Obara with hot gusto. Ellaria had moved down to do Cersei’s bidding. She cupped Obara’s hot full tits and lifted them up and siphoned sucked on the thick long nipples with long sweet hot sucks. Cersei could see Ellaria’s tongue working through her dimpled cheeks. The woman pumped her head pulled up tenting Obara’s nipples up with the voracious love sucks. Ellaria moved right and left mouth pleasuring rubbery teats.

“Aauuggg hhnnngg hhnnnn uummmgggg … oooohhh fuckkkkkkkk … mmmnnnggg shit! Yes! Yes! Shhiiitttt!” Obara gurgled feeling her tits expertly loved.

Ellaria kissed up Obara’s sweaty chest now. She nipped and licked up to Obara’s throat. Ellaria licked and nipped the palpating column. She smiled into Obara’s throat and sucked in a mouthful of sweet flesh.

“AAAAAWWWWOOOGGGGG! FFFFFUUUCCKKKKKKKKKK!” Obara screamed in agonizing pleasure feeling Ellaria suck her throat viciously through her seesawing teeth. In and out Ellaria sucked the sweet flesh through her gnawing teeth. She loved feeling Obara’s throat convulse against her lips. Then Ellaria quickly kissed up Obara’s throat, chin and then lips. Obara was gagging in helpless pleasure. Her mouth open for conquering. Ellaria speared her tongue deep into Obara’s mouth.

Their tongues coiled in Obara’s mouth. Obara cried out into Ellaria’s mouth when Cersei tried to suck her clit down her throat and tongued lashed wildly. Cersei was growling and pulling her head back snapping Obara’s clit out her pressed lips and diving down to hard suck in deep again. Cersei waggled her head before pulling back to snap Obara’s clit out her lips again and again.

Cersei pulled off Obara’s pussy and watched her lover and Ellaria kissing hotly. She felt no jealousy but only hot wanton pleasure. It was so hot. Dorne was liberating her. Obara was hers and she had the confidence to not be jealous. She knew soon they would all be fucking sweetly. “Suck Obara’s nipples Ellaria. Gods you two are so hot and slutty!” Cersei lowered her head siphoning in hot sweet cunt meat back into her mouth and happily munched.

Ellaria smiled at the tone. Not commanding but more like a heated rasp between lovers. Soon she would have Cersei’s cunt in her mouth Ellaria decided then; along with Obara’s. Ellaria released Obara’s moaning lips. She reached down and hefted up Obara’s heavy tits. She jammed the heavy tits together folding the heavy orbs into each other. The sweet nipples mashed side by side.

Ellaria drooled seeing those long engorged teats. She stuffed the long thick nipples deep into her mouth and long hard sucked with her locked lips. Her tongue swiping over and figure eights over the rubbery nipples. Obara was crying out and a hard orgasm exploded out of nowhere throttling her as two mouths sucked her off.

"OOOOWWWGGHHAAAA! … Fuuuccckkkkkk! Auunnggghhhhh! MMNNNGGHIIEEEEEE! Oh!"
Oh! Nnngggeeee!" Obara sobbed, cumming fiercely as hammering blow after orgasmic blow scalded her with shrieking bliss. Her pussy gushed sweet sex fluid all over Cersei’s face. Her hips bucked wildly up and down driving her pubic bone into Cersei’s hot mouth as she gripped Obara’s hips manically to keep her love suck on my rupturing cunt.

Elleria had gripped Obara’s left tit with both hands to hold the breast still enough to continue deep throat sucks on the engorged screaming teat deep in her mouth. Only when Obara started to come down from her cum did Elleria drop the sweaty tit and move her head up to kiss the sand snake deeply as Cersei lathed and kissed the temporally spent pussy.

After a minute Ellaria broke her lip lock with Obara who leaned back with a dreamy look on her face. Ellaria leaned down further pressing her cheek into Obara’s hard belly and looked at Cersei with hot pulsing eyes. Cersei stopped lathing her tongue over Obara’s still trembling clit as the sand snake mewled in post orgasmic pleasure.

Obara watched intently as Cersei slowly lifted her head up to where Ellaria had her face resting on her belly. Cersei paused and looked up at Obara. Obara smiled radiantly and weakly lifted a hand and pressed Cersei’s head down to Ellaria’s mouth. Then Obara’s eyes rolled back in her head when Ellaria and Cersei mouths came close together their tongues twining and wetly wiggling against each other between their lips before they mated their lips tight and their entwined tongues now wrestled hot and wet in their mouths.

While kissing Ellaria, Cersei snaked her first two fingers into Obara’s hot tight pussy. Cersei slowly pumped her fingers into the tight greasy sleeve relishing the heat and wetness. As she kissed Ellaria, Cersei slowly started to work her fingers harder and deeper into Obara’s slimy cum filled cunt. Cersei pumped her fingers sensually deep into Obara’s twat. Obara’s pussy sang a sodden wet sound of sloshing love. Cersei started to slowly rotate her hand as she banged her lover’s box.

Cersei slipped in a third finger and began to fuck Obara with deep plunging strokes. Her hand slamming into the sand snake’s vulva hard sending rippling shockwaves through the puffy mound. All the while the two women over Obara’s stomach kissed deeply cheeks dimpling as they took turns sucking on hot tongue. Obara watched how Cersei was letting her inner slut run free. Obara was in heaven watching Cersei and Ellaria snogg deeply as Cersei kept her concentration enough to continue fucking Obara hard and deep just like she needed it.

They finally broke their kiss and Ellaria rose back having signaled that all had been forgiven. Obara watched Cersei lean back down and she gently licked her lover’s fat happy pussy. Obara played with her sweat matted hair with one hand and her other lifted her right tit up to her lips and she sucked on her own nipple with hard sucks and swiping tongue.

Cersei looked up at her with glittering eyes and looked over at Ellaria being pleasured by Oberyn. She slowly lowered her head and sucked her woman’s clit back into her mouth and rolled the clit around in her mouth with her pushing and flicking tongue. Cersei’s cheeks hollowed out with her sucks and she could see her tongue working as it stabbed her clit. Her right hand a piston hammering her fingers in and out Obara’s tight snatch.

Cersei was now frenzied in her lovemaking. She could see that Ellaria was rising to orgasm. She saw Obara’s head lulled over to watch Ellaria rising to cum in her father’s mouth.

After a minute Ellaria body was beginning to jolt with hard pulses of searing bliss. Obara leaned back with a dreamy look on her face watching Ellaria rising to the pinnacle of ecstasy. Ellaria’s body was writhing now. Oberyn had backed off on his passionate assault on his paramours beautiful pussy letting her focus on her efforts with his daughter. But he had resumed his passionate oral assault on Ellaria’s wet cunt. He gurgled and growled waggling his head eating his paramour out.
He needed to prove to all three women what excellent oral skills he himself possessed.

Ellaria’s body started to quake and jolt her heavy tits jiggling all over. Her face locked up in what would seem was agony her face all twisted. Hard jolts now hit her body again and again. Oberyn sucked Ellaria’s clit down his throat his tongue gigging the hard nubbin jutting out its sheath.

Her head rocked back and her heels jammed the wooden floor. She cried out in an ear splitting shriek of such pure love fueled by mind shocking ecstasy. “ARRUUNNGGGG! OOWWWGGGGGGGGG! Hhnngg hhnngg hhnngg UUNNGGHIIIEEEEE!” Ellaria wailed as her torso convulsed. Shattering waves of bliss gripped and violently shook her whole body in full body spasms of killing bliss. Ellaria now had both hands behind Oberyn’s head with interlocked fingers and pulled his head deep into her exploding twat as it slicked his face in cunt slime.

Ellaria’s body flipped and jackknifed so violently her torso rocking up off the sauna wall and then slamming the cypress wood several times making a wet slapping sound her tits whiplashing with her wild flips. Her body convulsing almost violently. “Unggg uuungggg Aawwwooggggggggg! Uuunnggggrrrrrrrrrrrrr!” Ellaria wailed as the final throes of her orgasm finished throttling her with fucking bliss.

All the times Oberyn had worked to increase Ellaria’s pleasure during her orgasm his mouth busy pleasing her.

Cersei and Obara had enjoyed watching Ellaria in her orgasm. Both women thought that nothing was as beautiful as a woman in hard orgasm

Seeing Ellaria cum had Obara on the edge herself. Cersei was furiously lapping her head raking her tongue over Obara’s rigid clit fast and hard. Cersei snuffled working feverishly to get Obara’s rocks off. She now deep throat love sucked as she slapped the clit sucked deep into her mouth. Obara had felt her womb spasm and coil deep in her belly as her thighs quivered and then locked up in a hard clench.

Obara’s body began to convulse violently as raw pleasure hammered her. She fell off the precipice of shocking pleasure. “OOOWWWGGGGGGGGG! FFFFUUCCKKKKKKK! HHHUUNNGGGGGGGGGG!” Obara screamed. Her head snapped back violently in a hard convulsion. It was so violent how the orgasm throttled Obara. Obara's head snapped back and now forward and back again with violent snap convulsions. Cersei feared Obara might shatter her spin. Cersei knew what she had to do. She sucked even harder on Obara’s rock hard clit. Cersei smiled into the cunt she was devouring as her ministrations had the desired effect. Obara's body surged her hips rotating hard up into Cersei's mouth as more full body convulsions tore the Sand Snake apart with womb rending ecstasy. "Mmmnnggggiiiiieeee! Mmmnnggggiiiiieeee! Mmmnnggggiiiiieeee!"” Obara wailed in soul searing agonizing pleasure. Her body convulsed hard her body jerking upright and shaking violently and then sagging back as the convulsion passed only to convulse with another bone rattling spasm of fucking bliss. "Ohhhnnmmmgggg!" Obara cried out, her body jackknifing. Her cunt leaping into Cersei’s hard sucking mouth. Spittle spraying out her braying mouth as pure fucking ecstasy flailed her soul alive with searing fucking bliss. "Ungghhhh! Unngghhh! Oh shit! Fuck! Ungggauugggunnnnn Unnmnnmgghhhnnnnnn!” Obara cried out as one last searing orgasmic spasm rocked her soul with crushing bliss.

Cersei was in heaven knowing she had given her woman such pleasure. She was so in love with Obara. Obara came down from her orgasmic high and stroked Cersei’s face with a loopy smile on her face. They turned to look Ellaria who had recovered from her orgasm.

They watched Ellaria eyes open. She played with Oberyn’s black hair. She looked over at them.
Ellaria slide her body down the wood. She moved her body so she could lean down further pressing her cheek into Obara’s hard sweat soaked belly and looked at Cersei with hot pulsing eyes. Cersei stopped lathing her tongue over Obara’s still trembling clit as the sand snake continued to mewl in post orgasmic pleasure.

Ellaria’s body juddered hard with Oberyn suddenly sucking in her entire upper cunt deep into his mouth and voraciously sucking the slimy wet cunt meat. His head pumping up and down tenting pink pussy folds and pulling Ellaria’s clit rigid in his mouth were his tongue polished the shiny nubbin. A second orgasm exploded out of nowhere with the sudden expert sucking off of her wet twat.

Not to be outdone Cersei mashed her face deep into Obara’s cunt and wildly sucked her lover off. She was more than happy to bury her face in Obara’s fat pussy and eat her out again. She lapped furiously up and down the slimy trench licking clit and sucking slit.

Cersei went for the love kill sucking Obara’s clit deep into her mouth and long deep throat sucked on the engorged nubbin while her tongue polished the tip. Her fingers slam fucking Obara’s sloshing cunt with hard harpoon strokes her knuckles pounding the swollen dark brown mons of her lover. Cersei’s fingers soaked to the third knuckles creamy cum soaking the webbing between her pumping fingers.

Ellaria screamed like she was being garroted as Oberyn sucked her off. Cersei sucked in Obara’s whole upper pussy deep into her mouth and deep throat love sucked as her right hand slammed her three fingers in and out the stretched out cunt. Cersei’s forearm soaked in drooling cunt slime dripping off.

Obara felt her body suddenly fall off the precipice “Oh! Yes yes yes AUUNNGGHHH! AAWWWWOOGGGG! MMNNNGGHHIEEE! Oh! Oh!” Oberyn let forth an earsplitting roar and shook violently her body convulsing with full body spasms that tried to rip her flesh off the bone. Her breast flipped up off her chest and slapped down hard with her shattering flips and jackknifes. She pitched forward and then snapped back her body flipping and surging as a fierce orgasm rocked her. "Anngghhhhh! Oowwggghhhhaaaaaa! Aaarrggguunnggggg!" she groaned. "Oh ... sweet motherfucking seven gods! Oh ... shit! Unngghhh! Oh Godsdamnit!" Her body bucked up and down as Cersei finger fucked her exploding fuck hole. Obara’s strong body convulsed repeatedly with killing spasms of ecstasy for at least forty-five seconds before she suddenly went weak and slumped down.

Obara blearily watched Cersei keep her mouth glued to her cunt hole drinking down her love juice still weakly dribbling out her pussy. Cersei vocals loud and obscene with her snuffles and caws wallowing her face in to get every drop of sweet cum. Then Cersei softly tongued her reviving pussy, belly and inner thighs clean of cum.

In that time Ellaria had gotten up on the wide wooden slat sitting bench and was up on all fours as her father plowed Ellaria from behind his thick long cock slamming balls deep in her tight trim. Her heavy tits whiplashed forward and back. Obara smiled seeing Cersei eye Ellaria’s tits whiplashing. Then Cersei got up and effortless moved Obara to lie on the bench her head near Ellaria.

Cersei got up over Obara between her legs and settled down mating their pussies together and began to hump forward and back riding their cunts into each other in beautiful trib. Soon their love juice slicked couchies were sliding and grinding hard against each other as Cersei ground her cunt down into Obara’s swollen muff. Their labia lips stretched and dragged around and clits jacking over the other’s mate. They kissed ravenously.

Obara loved feeling Cersei’s small soft titties flattened and wallowing over her spread out firm mounds. Obara’s eyes rolled back in her skull as she clenched Cersei to her with her arms around Cersei’s back and her feet hooked over Cersei’s heels anchoring her down for Cersei’s tribbing cunt. Cersei was working her hips in a tight up and down swirl pounding her drooling muff down and over Obara’s cunt driving Obara insane with pleasure. Their mouths found each other and kissed deeply with battling tongues surging from mouth to mouth. Obara reached down with her hands and gripped Cersei’s toned ass cheeks with clawed fingers and helped her hump and grind their sodden cunts into each other.

Obara was in heaven feeling Cersei’s body on hers and seeing and hearing her father fucking Ellaria so good. For five minutes they tribbed face to face kissing and hands clutching. Then Cersei first rose up on her elbows gripping Obara’s tits and wolfed sucked on turgid nipples with deep hard sucks and swiping tongue. "Oh gods, baby ... oh gods, baby ... yes!" Obara gasped, feeling Cersei slurp and tongue her aching nipples in turn while her hands pulped her tits with hard up pulling squeezes.

Then Cersei rose up on her palms and used the new angle to roughly jam and ride her cunt up over Obara’s again and again with forceful swirling thrusts of her hips. "Mmmnnnnee ... oh! Ungghh! Oh shit ... oh! Ungghh! Anngghhh! Oh shit ... oh Cersei oh god!" Obara gasped, feeling Cersei’s cunt drive in and over her cunt. Ellaria had scooted forward with her father following on his knees all the while slam fucking his consort.

Obara gagged in helpless pleasure from the trib and seeing Cersei and Ellaria cup the back of each other’s heads and locked lips snooging fiercely tongues snaking down cawing throats. Obara was in heaven seeing cheeks and throats work as long tongues dueled wetly in locked mouths. Then Cersei broke the kiss to tilt her head back growling, fucking Obara harder. Sweat dripped all over from Cersei’s body. Her soft titties whiplashing as she humped their sodden cunt into each other.

Obara watched Ellaria lower her face to hers. Now they were kissing deeply their tongues locked around each other. Ellaria’s face jammed into hers by her father’s thrusts up Ellaria’s hot tight pussy. Then as they broke for air Cersei’s face was there and now Obara cried out and gagged having two tongues hotly slithering and dueling in her mouth as three tongues wetly wrestled in her mouth.

They all broke the kiss as Ellaria’s head started to thrash and her body bucked wildly as she cummed hard on her father’s cock ripping hard into her belly. Ellaria’s screams echoing off the walls of the sauna. Then his father yelled and his body shook hard as he spurted deep in his lover’s womb.

Cersei was slam fucking her hard her small tits whiplashing on her chest as she clenched her fingers on the bench and her ass cheeks dimpled slamming her cunt into Obara’s snatch. Obara had her thighs loosely gripping Cersei’s hips squeezing to pull her lover even harder down into her body. Obara’s body rocked forward that small fraction form Cersei’s body slamming down into hers. Obara swirled her pussy up to meet Cersei’s thrusts. Obara had gripped Cersei’s biceps now and held on hard. Her body on fire. She cried out feeling her clit jacked again and again by Cersei’s rigid clit. They looked deep into each other’s lust glazed eyes. Obara’s head rocked up of the bench as she felt her womb explode.

"Onngghhhmmngggiiiee! Onngghhnngggiiiee! Ohhhhnngg! Unghh! Cersei ... yes unngghhh! Aunngghhiieee! Onnggmmmmhnniiee!" Obara screamed, twisting and clenching under Laura's hammering cunt and groin slam fucking her exploding box. Cersei hunched down and sucked Obara’s left nipple deep into her mouth Obara whimpered, whinnied, then unleashing another cascade of shrieks" Onngghhnngggiiiee! Aunngghhiieee! Onnggmmmmhnniiee!" Obara was driven nearly insane with ecstasy. “I love you Cerseeeiiiiiiii!” Obara choked out before she could stop herself.
She turned her head frightened too afraid to look at Cersei who slowed and then stopped her tribbing. Obara had not meant to declare her love so soon! “Look at me Obara” she softly called down to Obara. Obara whimpered and shook her head ‘no’. “I said look at me Obara” Cersei repeated softly in a gentle cooing tone. Now crying Obara shook her head ‘no’. She moaned feeling Cersei press her body down on hers and moaned at the divine feeling of delicious sweat soaked skin to skin contact.

Cersei’s hands slide into her hair and easily righted her head even though Obara tried to keep her head tilted over. Then Obara whimpered feeling Cersei kiss all over her face softly and blowing on her face with a whispery breath. “Look at me Obara” Cersei again commanded softly.

She did and Obara’s breath caught seeing hot burning throbbing passion in Cersei Lannister’s eyes. “I love you too you silly sand snake.” Cersei bent her head down slowly and kissed Obara deeply her tongue wrapping around Obara’s tongue and squeezing. They snooged for a long minute. "I love you with all my heart and all my soul Obara. Never doubt that my love. Cersei looked over at Ellaria and Oberyn rutting. Cersei called out “Oberyn”.

Obara looked back behind her. Her father was going down on Ellaria again eating her out in sloppy seconds. He lifted his head wet with Ellaria pussy. From above her Cersei told her father “From this day forward I am Cersei Sand ... like my brother I renounce my heritage. I am now a sand snake bonded to Obara.”

Oberyn looked at Cersei “Are you sure?”

“Yes” was the answer without hesitation. Obara started crying again.

“So be it” Oberyn answered and mashed his face back into Ellaria’s pussy slurping away totally enjoying himself.

Cersei continued to press into Obara kissing her. Obara wrapped her legs and arms around Cersei and pulled her down into her voluptuous body and they snooged and kissed deeply in new love.

Cersei then pulled back and quickly sat up and got one foot on the floor lifting Obara’s right leg and titling it up and back to rest the calf on her shoulder. She moved in and locked their pussies tight and mashed her leg down into the bench behind Obara’s ass. Cersei began to sweep her aching trim back and forth over Obara’s pussy in hard back and forth sweeps of her swollen muff.

Obara gagged in spent pleasure feeling their labia lips and clits rubbing and jackng hard into each other. Cersei’s face was snarling and slashing with primal pleasure. Obara felt Cersei’s juices flowing out her pussy and bastning her own quim with hot love juice. Their slicked folds had their pussies humping wildly. Obara felt the tension suddenly form again deep in her belly. She gripped Cersei’s ass and humped back wildly now her strength returned.

For the next four or five minutes Cersei humped down into Obara’s pussy jamming and grinding. She would do hard sweeps and then jam down and wallow in tight circles and have their pussies kiss and clits rub as shocking pleasure filled their bodies. Cersei pushed out Obara’s leg forward that had been resting against her body stretching out Obara’s cunt and rubbed down harder.

Obara saw Cersei’s face slashing horribly and her grunts primal. Obara’s own body was racing up to the stars again when both of their cunts exploded against each other. Hot cum gushed out rupturingouchies and soaked pussies, asses and groins in hot slimy milky cum. Their screams of passion and love echoed off the walls of the sauna. Wild convulsions ripped their bodies that bucked and flipped into each other pulping their camel toe’s into each other. Their cum slicked folds let their pussies slip and grind easily into each other.
“OOWWWGGGGGG! HHNGGGGGGG! AAWWWOOGGGGG!” the golden haired beauty roared as her body convulsed and flipped wildly. Cersei’s little soft titties whipped up and down on her chest. Cersei’s body jackknifed forward and back violently in soul crushing ecstasy. Cersei screamed out “I Loovveee youuuuu Obbaarrraaaaa! Unngghhiieeee! Mnnngghhiieeee! Mnnnggghhiieeee!” the declaration and wails echoed off the walls.

Obara exploded with her sweet Cersei in hard orgasm. “GGOODDDSSDAAAMMNNNN! HHHHUUUNNGGGGGGG! HHHNNNGGGGGG! … fuck godsdammnnnn aaaaawwooooogggggg! Mmmgghhieeee! Nnnnhhheeeiiiiii! … huunngg huunnnn ohhhh … I love you so much Cerseiiiiiiiiiiii!” Obara screamed feeling her cunt gush hot cum all over Cersei’s erupting cunt. Cersei’s cunt gushing cum that soaked both of their groins in slimy hot cum. Their convulsions locked their pussies even tighter in sync. Their wombs continued to convulse and pour out hot gushes of cum. Their locked twats, clenching ass cheeks and ass cracks were now dripping in slimy twat slime.

They collapsed whimpering with Cersei again lying out on Obara and kissing her deeply. Cersei pulled back to look at Obara with addled eyes but also pure love in her eyes that made the Sand Snake whimper in reflected pure love. Obara was in heaven feeling her Cersei’s body convulsing still with womb rending aftershocks that had Cersei mewling and her glazed eyes rolling back into her skull with each hard seize of her aftershocks. Obara looped her arms and legs around the lithe body of Cersei Sand and kissed her with every ounce of her love ramming her tongue down Cersei’s throat with spearing thrusts over and over. She relished how Cersei’s body was convulsing on top of her body still. Cersei’s body wiggled down into her woman’s sweat soaked skin to skin contact as Obara continued to spear her tongue down Cersei’s groaning cawing throat.

They broke for air. Cersei looked down at her.

“Let’s go home Obara.”

Obara’s heart soared. They got up quickly putting their clothes on half-way and walked out hand in hand. They were soon at Obara’s apartment. Cersei picked up Obara effortlessly opening the door with her hand. “I am going to fuck you so good baby! I love you sooooo much Obara.” Cersei told her locking their lips for another kiss as she took her mate into their new home kicking the door closed behind them.

Oberyn

The couple sat at the small circular table with the red granite-flecked top. Their two chairs were ornately carved in blooming flowers and vines up the backs. The breeze blew in through the open windows, over the kitchen countertop covered with a wax sheet of paper, displaying the cut rinds of cantaloupe and seeds scooped out of watermelon.

The collected melons were in a fire-baked clay bowl, painted and glazed with bands of complex, interlocking rows of geometric shapes in bands. The fresh fruit within had been mixed all together. Fingers reached into the bowl to pull out cubes that were succulent on the tongue. The fragrance of the fruit was thick in the room.

Ellaria was sitting on Oberyn’s lap, feeding him chunks of the fruit and shivering when he licked the fruity juice off her fingers. She was luxuriating in afterglow of a great night of sex. She and Oberyn were nude as their name days as they ate, and he kissed her neck.
“I was surprised by Cersei declaring herself a sand snake. She seems to have totally taken to the warrior way.” Oberyn told his life mate.

Ellaria chuckled “I know. I hated the ground the woman walked on, and hated breathing the air that she had polluted. Now, I want to fuck her and protect her.” She snorted. “Not like she needs any protecting anymore ... do you really think she is the one? ... have you told anyone?”

“No. One would believe me anyways. Besides, she is still training. Myrion is still waiting for her to pass some test.”

“What is it?”

“He doesn’t know it either. He only says he will know when the time is come. He tells me she already has all the knowledge she needs within her.”

“That sounds scary, Oberyn.”

“Hhhmmm ... no, her loving Obara shows me she now has the temperament; and I could be wrong.”

Ellaria wiggled into Oberyn. “I want her, you know. The kisses I shared with Cersei and Obara in the sauna has only whet my appetite to have her, and it has been too long since I have had Obara in our bed.”

Oberyn kissed his mate. “Yes, I know you do. Leave them be, Ellaria. If down the road it happens, it happens.”

“You’re just pissed that Cersei only has eyes for Obara and me!” the woman chuckled.

Oberyn chuckled himself. It was probably true.

After the things Cersei had slowly told him over time about her treatment by her father and husband, he doubted she would ever crave another man’s touch. He was okay with that. If his daughter and his paramour found happiness with the harpy, he would be happy as well.

He laughed out loud.

“What is so funny, my love?”

“I just called Cersei a harpy in my mind, but it was more affectionate than anything else. I can’t believe how much I have come to like that woman. She is still fiery and has that biting tongue, but I like battling wits with that woman. You had better be careful with her sweetling ... her mouth is most dangerous.”

Oberyn smiled, seeing a dreamy look on Ellerai’s face “I know.” What a spell these women of Lannister and Baratheon had over the women of his House.

Ellaria began nibbling on his neck. He sighed. He would be late going to his office this morning.

Later, he sat at his desk. He was rolling two gold dragons between his fingers. He rolled the coins over each second knuckle, catching the coin as it rolled over his little finger and gripping the edge of the coin and sliding it underneath his fingers with his thumb, and up the outside of his index, then pushing the coin onto the top of the finger and start it rolling over between his knuckles again. His fingers and thumb constantly worked the coins.

Oberyn thought again of the new woman in his life. Cersei, like Myrcella, had joined into his family and the House Martell was only stronger for it. He could still remember how he had wanted to hurt Cersei when she was disposed in King’s Landing. Given the excuse, he knew he would have gladly raped her to break her spirit.

He shivered at the thought. Putting a name to the face to a rape and now actually caring for the woman totally changed his perspective on using rape as a weapon in war. He would never again allow troops under his command to partake in such a vile heinous crime. He had seen the light on that matter.

He wondered if Cersei was the fulfillment of the prophecy. She was not from Dorne, and not a man but Daenerys seemed to have opened up new doors. What most people did not know was that there was more to the prophecy. What everyone remembered was the sand witch prophecy about the great sword of house Dayne.

Most had long forgotten the prophecy of the grey wolf that walked the high plain deserts of Dorne. How the wolf would come prowling down from the heights. The wolf would rend the throats of its enemies with its teeth.

Oberyn wondered. He remembered a beautiful wolf from long ago. A body never found.

Tyrion

Tyrion was walking back and forth in his apartment of the Hand. He stormed from one wall to the other wall muttering and looking about vilely. His foot kicked at unseen dust bunnies. He knew he was being watched and mocked and didn’t give a flip!

“Give it up, Imp.” Bronn barked at the dwarf. “You can start paying, starting with me.”

Tyrion made a small detour in his march of anger and kicked out at the bodyguard. Bronn easily hoped back out of range of the dwarf’s diminutive leg that shot out at him. “Ha! Missed you sawed off runt! I have seen weasels with greater reach!”

“And me, Tyrion … never bet against a woman!” Shae crowed at the agitated Lannister. Tyrion turned his head slightly to glance at the beautiful whore. He did not like the shit eating grin on her face one bit! “You stupid idiot … letting me triple the bet yesterday! I’m fucking rich, Bronn!” Shae smiled sweetly down at the dwarf who glared up at her.

Tyrion stopped and put his fists on his hips. “You know I could fire you both and kick you, destitute, to the curb … I could put out word and you would never be hired again, Bronn. You ever think about that, hhmmmmm?”

Brons laughed so hard he nearly fell over. “And what about you, dwarf?! Who else will put up with your vile temper and having to take such small steps … plus, you won’t be able to ogle Shae’s delectable breasts.”

Tyrion’s head could not stop itself from turning to look at the whore. She was smiling evilly. She bent forward slightly so her delectable, small, high, firm breasts swished against the sheer fabric of her tight blouse. The friction of the fabric and being watched had her nipples rock hard, and poking out at Tyrion.

Tyrion cursed his cock for betraying him yet again as it stiffened.

He snarled at his weakness. He puffed out his chest and stood regally. He glared with royal ire.
“My gods Shae look at him puff out that birdcage!” Bronn pointed at Tyrion’s chest. “I have seen canary’s with bigger chests!”

Shae looked at Tyrion critically with an appraising look. “Believe me Bronn … that chest has no muscle on it” she pointed at Tyrion’s puffed out chest. A chest that promptly deflated.

“Fine, fine!” He stormed walking over to his chair in front of the fireplace and the raging fire and stepping up the step and plopped down on the chair. He sulked and fumed like the big baby he was.

He crossed his arms over his chest and pouted.

It was no fair! All his sister had to do was last two more days and he would have won the pool! The fucking bitch had been frigid practically since Jaime left. Sure, she had some one night stands, but they seemed to leave her even more cold and jaded. Her few trysts with women were loveless, and she had refused go down on them.

He had to admit from Varys’ reports, she sure knew how to use her fingers. That was beside the point!

His sister had cost him a fucking fortune! He had taken side bets, saying Obara would be the aggressor, that Cersei would never go down on Obara (Varys sparrows reported his sweet sister had pressed her face so hard and deep into Obara’s cunt they thought his sister was mining for diamonds in some deep mountain cave), he had doubled down that Cersei would never say I love you the first time they had sex. She could have least let him win that one bet!

Tyrion’s legs lifted up and slammed down on the chair cushion again and again fast and furious as he threw yet another temper tantrum. His body bounced on the cushions from his folded jerking arms.

Bronn spoke up “Look at him go Shae! He looks like some grotesque jack-in-the-box. Don’t you dwarf?!"

Tyrion lifted his right hand over the back of the chair giving them the bird.

Now Shae spoke up “Be happy for your sister Tyrion. It is the brotherly thing to do. Think of all the pussy she is getting … and not you!”

Tyrion lifted his other hand up now and flipped them off with both hands. His hands jerking up and down over the chair back with the motion of his kicking legs. He finally ran out of strength and stopped kicking his legs.

A thought crossed Tyrion’s mind. If his sister had turned lesbo and she was getting plenty of pussy … then maybe she would not be so quick to gut and kill him. Her strength and speed had reached almost supernatural dimensions. So had her appetites. She was fucking Obara all over the Dorne military academy. The woman was a fucking prude for god’s sake not some exhibitionist!

His scrotum started to shrink again remembering all of threats from his sister towards his person. He could see so clearly in his mind the savage hate on her face. Tyrion looked over his shoulder around the chair at his body guard. They were beside the table of the Hand. Bronn was nibbling Shae’s neck and trying to squeeze the whore’s breast. As Tyrion watched a sharp elbow from Shae hit Bronn in his false rib making him howl and fall to the ground clutching his ribs writhing in pain.

He was paying good wages for this?! Tyrion groused to himself. Bronn sucked as a bodyguard, and, not in a good way!

Tyrion turned to look back into the roaring flames. I’m doomed he thought. He stared into the flames for a few minutes counting all gold dragons he had lost because of his sister. Damn her!

He heard cards being shuffled.

“Tyrion—get your sulking ass over here and let’s play some poker, dwarf. You can lose still more money this day!”

Bronn and Shae were horrible poker players Tyrion snorted to himself. Then he smiled. Of course they were. They all knew it. Bronn was an ass, but a sweet one.

When he wanted to be.
Chapter Notes

AN #1: I wrote this back in 08/15. It is like Mirror Mirror in that I could not really graft it onto a main story chapter and have it fit in well, thus, the stand alone.

AN #2: Lots of masturbation.

AN #3: The rest of the story is almost exclusively the march North and eventual confrontation with the Ice King. There will be one more Pride of Dorne chapter near the end. Also, two books of Preludes. A lot of the second book will be Arya's adventures in Braavos and maybe other Free Cities. Westeros will have its half as well. The Preludes set up characters that will be in the second book.

Chapter 37

Night of the Naughty Warg

Dany / Arya / Dany / Arya

Dany

Dany was in her suite sitting on her bench seat in front of her large dresser mirror. She was looking in the mirror as she rubbed in body lotion from Lyse. The liquid made her skin glow and as the reddish tinted liquid soaked into her pours her skin heated up and she felt a slight throbbing in her pussy as the aphrodisiac started to flow in her blood.

It was not strong. This was not a concoction that was meant to seduce but to enhance. Her libido was working just fine as her long slender pale fingers rubbed up and down her arms. She had on her new sheer silk night gown that barely went down over her ass cheeks. As she sat on her bench the short gown left her pussy exposed to the cool air on her heated couche. Her shaved pussy quivered in anticipation. A wicked smile crossed her beautiful face.

Her semi-erect nipples poking out the sheer material tenting the silk felt so good on her mildly throbbing nipples. They knew what this night would entail.

Dany hummed as she finished with her arms and now ran her hands up and down her upper legs and then lower as she looked into the mirror. Her eyes lidded with simmering lust.

Tonight she was going to take her relationship to a new level with Arya. Well, on a more personal level the Queen smirked to herself. She had yet to figure out the puzzle that was Arya. She was frustrated as hell with the girl. The Queen was fighting her rising lust and passion for the girl. Her body sometimes shook with love for the girl.

She knew she had to take it slow with the girl. She was so innocent and pure. Daenerys wanted her something fierce but knew that with Arya Stark she had something precious in her cupped hands. She needed to go slow. The Queen knew that with Arya she had a chance at real love. A love that could stand a life time of commitment. To have that possibility the Queen was willing to move slow and make sure that she had the girl fall well and truly in love with her.

Daenerys knew she was falling in love with the girl. She knew what society expected of her. To find a man to make her king and produce male heirs to continue her kingdom. Those thoughts made her angry. Very angry. She had not conquered half the known world to have to live a lie. She did not and would not ruin her kingdom like Robert Baratheon had for the supposed love of Lyanna Stark.

The woman had not loved Robert and ran away with the man she did love, Rheagar Targaryen. The result had been a war that brought ruin to many houses and left fields of dead. That was something that she would never do her homeland. She would just have to figure out how to proceed. If she could get Eddard Stark to give his daughter’s hand to her in marriage then that would put a quell on the agitators.

If the two greatest leaders were united then she could have her Queen. They could not be stood against with two such mighty warriors and leaders. Daenerys smiled to herself. With her sword masters and Eddard Stark in her camp she would have literally all the greatest swords on two continents. When you added Brienne, Arya and herself to the mix no one with half a brain would dare challenge her marriage. Still that was putting the cart before the horse. She had a war to win and then she could ask Eddard for his daughter’s hand in marriage. He seemed to love his children to a fault. Hopefully, the man was not a phob. Hopefully, the man could handle the idea of the same sex finding love with their own sex.

She knew it would be a shock to the man but hopefully he could handle it without losing his mind.

Daenerys was still trying to control her emotions. She knew that if she fell hopelessly in love with the girl and was rejected that a part of her would die. The Queen looked at herself in the mirror. She smirked again. She was contemplating the true love that bards penned long ballads about. Tonight was about something else. Something more primal. This was about taking pleasure. The Queen loved to masturbate. A lot. Tonight she was going to take that in a new direction and it would be so delicious.

It was naughty. She liked it.

Her hands trembling slightly when she rubbed the liniment into the tight muscles of her belly. Daenerys gagged feeling those delicious spasms deep in her core. Her pussy was getting wet and her womb quivered deep in her belly. She was falling in love. She was still trying to half way fight it. She knew what her duties were to the realm. She was afraid that Arya would one day realize that she wanted to settle down with some odious knight or Lord. That galled her!

She was still halfway fighting her feelings of deep abiding love but she was not fighting her lust. She thought of a saying she heard in Lys. “Lust to Love.” If she got Arya into her bed she would rock the girl’s world. Sex could lead to true love if both women were primed. Gods knew that Daenerys felt she was. She freely admitted that to herself now.

Finally, seeing Arya’s wonderful hot body had the Queen’s body pumped and quivering with raw aching need. Those moments of seeing the girl’s nude body was rocking Daenerys. She would masturbate while her Princess was near bathing and luxuriating in the royal bath. Daenerys imagined the hot lovemaking that she and Arya would partake of. Those thoughts led to the fantasy of Arya being the woman she wanted her to be. She wanted Arya to be her consort and queen.

If only she could she could have the girl! Her needs and the needs of her Kingdom collided and were opposed to each other. Daenerys was still coming to terms with that. She wanted more each day to have Arya on her elbow openly as her Queen. She was brilliant and crafty. Surely she could make it come to pass.

Her arms and legs now massaged with the sensual lotion Dany spread her legs. The short gown had worked up over her groin to expose her freshly shaved vulva. The skin all baby smooth and sensitive. She loved the smoothness of her shaved pussy. It made each touch and rub that much more powerful without anything in the way. She loved being able to see her pussy all swollen and wet.

She had loved the fact that Chataya and Alayaya had a policy that all their whores stay shaved. Their pussies and assholes baby smooth. It drove the Queen wild. Arya she saw with her briefest of glimpses kept her hair closely cropped but she would try and persuade her princess to go bald as well. She drooled thinking of helping her love to shave her puss and her sweet asshole.

The Queen had started to shave her pussy in her time with the Khalasar. She had loved the feel of it. Doreah was a big proponent of it. She had told the young girl it made everything more intense. At first Dany had not kept her mons shaved all the time. She would let her hair grow but keep it closely cropped. Then when the mood struck her she would go baby smooth again. But as time went by and she had more time and the camp accruements she shaved more often till she now shaved her pussy smooth as soon as she felt any stubble. She shaved every other night if she could. If she shaved every night her pussy would sometimes get red and little bumps rise up. But tonight she shaved again and her pussy was baby smooth. Her break in routine had not irritated her mons. She just liked how it felt. Her shaved pussy rubbing her silk short clothes always sensual. Tonight she had shaved her pussy with extra attention to detail to make sure she was absolutely baby smooth. She wanted to be totally bald for what she had in mind for tonight. She wanted herself fully exposed.

She poured a small portion of the lotion into the palm of her hand and rubbed the potion into her pussy soothing it with a slow sensual swirl of her hands. Her hands slowly stroked up and down her slit and rubbed over her clit.

“Ummnggggg … ohhhh ohhh uummngggg!” the Queen softly moaned as she felt her labia lips swelling and her wetness increasing. She backed off her hedonistic pursuits. She shivered thinking of what tonight should bring.

She had more than one reason for shaving her pussy this night.

Unwarranted her hands drifted back down her quivering body. She moaned. Her body had other thoughts on what her hands should be doing. Dany knew she was such a wicked girl.

Dany rubbed her cunt up and down her body shivering at the delicious slick friction. Her wetness allowed her fingers to easily slide up and down her slit. Her fingers rubbing up and down her pink slit and playing with her swelling inner lips. Lips her fingers rolled and pressed into stretching them out. Her slicked lips slowly teased open showing her wet drooling slit and red clutching love hole. The sensations sweet and intoxicating. Up and down she rubbed herself. Her eyes now heavily lidded with lust. Dany then took the sides of her slick hands and ran them up and down her groin between her thighs and mound pressing into her vulva making it mash in blooming out her inner labia lips and putting pressure on her swelling clit.

The change in method had her gagging in soul searing pleasure. Her belly tightening and spasming sweetly. Hard pulses hitting her clit making her mewl in excitement. She longed to plunge her fingers deep into her drooling fuck hole and work her clit.

STOP! … stop she ordered herself. With an effort of will she jerked her hands up and away from her swollen puss. Not yet … I have a plan … She willed her body to relax and resumed contemplating the source of her current dilemma. She felt her excitement lessen and her nipples and pussy went from pounding to a dull peal of repressed need. She had something else to contemplate. How to grapple with the enigma that was Arya Stark.

She would not force herself on the Stark girl. It was just she was just so fucking frustrating! She would think she was receiving signals of interest and to proceed with seducing and taking what she had come to think of as hers. Then the next moment that stiff necked Stark reserve had Daenerys confounded and doubting all her assumptions.

She had come up with the mirror idea to see her wanted lover naked and had been shocked by the power of her lust that hammered through her body. Just the idea of seeing the teenager naked had Dany shaking with lust. To finally see the sixteen year olds body had the Queen near drooling. She needed to see Arya’s sweet pussy and those plum nipples that had tempted her for months now. Those sweet succulent bulbs that would swell up in Arya’s excitement of sword fighting or when her skin dried in the breezes of the courtyard. Dany sometimes felt her eyeballs would pop out of her head she stared so hard at those beautiful plum nipples. She had to fight herself and not leer at the girl. Dany did not want to scare Arya off.

Dany had been shocked at first the affect the girl had on her. Then when she thought more on it why shouldn’t she feel that affect. The girl was definitely putting Dany under her spell. It was amazing how without incantation or runes the girl was putting Dany under her spell. Dany was finding that innocence itself was a spell; a sweet aphrodisiac. Dany loved everything about the girl and Dany’s body only lusted after the girl more as time moved by.

The girl had as usual gone to great pains to make sure (she thought) Dany was not observing her body. The girl should be shamelessly displaying her body to Dany the Targaryen peevishly thought to herself. She flexed her body drawing her hips up and slamming her ass back down on the bench in frustration. Daenerys had a wild impetuous side that she worked to control. She hated to lose!

Dany took a deep breath. The Queen and Arya were doing a dance of dragon and wolf. Unfortunately, the steps were awkward and mistimed. She longed to dance with Arya. A dance of wolves. Tonight she was going to take her Dance with Wolves higher with a new dance step. This one not awkward. A new minuet with a more sensual rhythm.

Dany picked up her brush and started to brush out her long platinum tresses so that they were silky and radiant. She wanted her body to be perfect tonight. She smiled wickedly licking her sensual lips with the tip of her tongue. She thought of putting in some of her Dothraki bells but decided against it. She wanted her body completely shorn of any adornments.

Plus, she did not want Arya to sense that what Dany had planned had been mapped out for a week now. Dany shivered again thinking of what was to occur soon.

Her masturbation to relieve her lust with the bathing Arya each day had in time given her a new idea. Lately, Arya’s Direwolf had started to visit her quarters. She had seen the mighty wolf gambling down the hall before her quarters. Her Bloodriders and Unsullied had become almost blasé around the great beast. They would scratch her ears and nose when she stopped to woof at them before moving down the halls.

Ten days ago she had been out at a late meeting and found Arya’s wolf cantering by her doorway. She loved the wolf and invited the wolf into her domicile. The Direwolf had woofed excitedly and pressed her nose into the Queen’s door. Dany had laughed. Invitation accepted. She had a plate of rolled ham and roast beef in her room. Nymeria instantly spied the treats and whined wagging her tail. Daenerys smiling happily feed the beast the plate. The wolf ate the treats in greedy gulps. Then the wolf flopped on her back and wiggled looking at the Queen. The meaning clear.

Scratch me. The Queen had laughed getting on the floor to do the wolf’s bidding. She did not mind in the least. She had kept the wolf in her quarters for several hours. She had more cut broiled meats brought in that the wolf wolfed down. Dany snickered at her own pun. Only with a fat belly and lots of scratches did the Queen release the wolf to go back to her master.

She knew that Arya was warged in Nymeria when the direwolf visited her room almost nightly now. At first she had not sensed the girl in the wolf. Then the fourth night while she scratched the wolf’s ears Arya was there.

She had known of the traditional North mythology of the Warg. At first she thought it was myth but she had seen enough since arriving in Westeros that when Arya displayed this ability she was not been nonplussed. Arya only warged into her Direwolf when she wanted to see what Nymeria was doing or to take on her wolf’s senses to fully scope out an area to make sure it was safe with the Queen. Arya would go stiff and her eyes glazed while in her wolf.

Arya explained to her Queen that one had to be careful warging into your familiar. The histories were filled with sad stories of people losing themselves inside the animals they warged into. Arya did not want to make that mistake. Arya made it sound like it was a rare thing to loose oneself inside your familiar. Arya was making sure to not be a sad tale. Arya made it seem she rarely warged into Nymeria.

She now knew that was not so. Dany with her connection to her dragons had developed a fine sense of the animals around her. She got to “know” the animals. She had with her dragons. Then she had with Missandei’s Shadowclaw and now she had with Nymeria. She was not sure how but some subtle difference in the wolf alerted the Queen that Arya was inside of her wolf. The girl hidden beneath the fur and sinew. The Stark teenager hidden as she watched, listened, smelled and felt what her wolf sensed.

So the Queen knew of Arya’s little secret. A secret that the girl did know she knew. That made for such delicious possibilities. So now Dany smiled harder as she scratched the wolf harder. Nymeria worming her head into the fingers of the Queen woofing softly. The Queen formed a plan to use the Stark girl’s surreptitious spying to her advantage.

Dany came back to the present. She smirked at the reflection looking back at her with mischievous eyes. They both had their secrets. It was so good though when one knew the other’s secrets and not vice versa. She was going to have a grand time tonight. Dany shivered feeling her baby smooth puss clench which made her belly knot up. The pleasure intense had her gagging in need. Dany relaxed with a force of will. Soon!

Dany was going to make a positive out of what was nearly a negative. Her orgasms thinking of having Arya when she bathed in the next room had been explosive. It felt like her womb was ripping itself inside out deep in her belly as she orgasmed thinking of her sweet wolf in the bath. Most times she imagined her walking into the royal bathing suite and stepping into the tub and sinking into the water to join her longed for lover. In her mind’s eye they would be making mad passionate love.

Dany had perfected the half strangled screams as she plunged her fingers into her slurpy cunt finger banging her twat to gut wrenching orgasms each day as Arya bathed. She had more flowers in her room and a big peacock fan she used to air out her room after her masturbation sessions. It was so wicked with Arya in the tub washing away innocently as her Queen jilled off in the next room thinking of taking her wolf and making her howl.
With what she had in mind tonight she did not have to worry about violating Arya’s sanctity. The girl would be free to do as she choose. She would not have to fear of violating the girl’s integrity or body. The idea had cummed to her three nights ago she chuckled with the pun in her mind. If Arya stayed warged into Nymeria then that was her choice. She dearly hoped the girl would not leave her wolf with what she had in mind.

Arya was about to get a night she would never forget and Dany would be able to get closer to the object of her dreams and passion.

Dany’s body ached for the young Stark princess.

Dany had rubbed the lotion into her body and she felt elated. Her body was so ready to proceed. She heard the door being scratched and smiled. It was time to put her plan in motion.

Dany walked to the door and opened it. Her Bloodrider smirked at her attire. She had told him her plan and he had laughed. “You are most devious Khaleesi” Aggo said approvingly. The Unsullied of course were unmoved. The direwolf loped into the room sniffing as she usually did and walked the circuit it always did making sure the Queen was safe. Dany smiled at the wolf being so possessive of her safety. The wolf poked its nose into all the corners and searched the alcoves and closets. Dany felt so safe knowing that Arya’s wolf was so protective of her.

Finished with her protective duty the Direwolf eyed the large table in the corner that had a large plate heaped up with cuts of freshly cooked meats. Dany put the plate on the floor not wanting to get her fingers soaked in the grease and blood of the meal for Nymeria. Those fingers had another task tonight. The wolf woofed happily and quickly consumed the mound of cut meat. Finished the Direwolf licked her chops and then rolled over onto her back and turned her head to look expectantly at the Queen.

Dany laughed getting on her knees beside the wolf and gave her the expected belly and throat rub. Dany didn’t mind in the least and proceeded to give Nymeria the thorough scratching and belly rubs she demanded. The wolf squirmed in pleasure and chuffed its pleasure. Her long tongue lulling out and her tail thrashing on the floor.

This had been the routine that they quickly established. Dany would feed the wolf. Then she then pet and scratch the pleasure hound. Then Dany would do some work or read while Nymeria laid down beside her and let the Queen rub and scratch her. For an hour the wolf would laze about before she would get up to put her nose in the door. The Queen would let the wolf out and Nymeria would give the Queen one good body rub marking the Queen as hers and then leave.

Dany could feel Arya moving in and out her wolf. The girl spying on the Queen. She probably enjoyed the sensations of being fed a meal she truly enjoyed through the wolf’s senses. Arya had told the Queen that she experienced all the senses her wolf did. Thus, Arya was probably luxuriating in the affection that Dany gave the wolf.

Innocent pleasure. Tonight that would change. So Dany went through her now normal nightly routine with the wolf. She fed and petted the wolf making her squirm and legs run in the air.

She could feel Arya in the wolf. She loved the fact that Arya was looking at her in her sheer negligee. She knew her charms were on full display to the woman she was falling in love with. No. Be honest. Had fallen in love with. The woman she desperately wanted to share her life, love and bed. The woman she feared she might never have. If only the girl would give her a clear sign!

Dany smirked again. She was about to post a big sign herself.
Dany went to sit on the edge of her high royal bed. The wolf came to sit in front of her. Its large head turning to look at her with intelligent eyes. Yes, Dany thought, perfect. The massive beast so large its head was right in front of her. The wolf’s eyes right in front of her nude body. The wolf looked up and down her body. Dany shivered hard. That had to be Arya’s doing! Arya thought she was hot! Arya may not desire her as a lover but she would definitely see Dany in a new light after tonight.

Dany wiggled on the bed. She sensed Arya most definitely in her Direwolf. The great beast was on her haunches staring at her with those golden intelligent eyes. Eyes that were backlight with steel grey eyes of her master Arya Stark. Dany smirked yet again. This was going to be so naughty and so delicious. Her tummy clenched in anticipation.

The Queen adjusted herself on bed. She moved her rump forward to sit on the edge of her large king size bed with canopy. Dany put her ass comfortably on the edge of the bed. This had her wet camel toe out jutting in front of the wolf’s eyes. She made sure to sit with her legs parted to fully expose her wet pussy to the wolf’s eyes and by proxy Arya’s eyes. Her ultra-short slip riding up fully exposing her exposed wet cunt. Dany always loved being nasty when it came to sex. She loved exposing her pussy to Arya. The essence of her womanhood. She leaned in and started to scratch the wolf’s ears and run her hands up the ears as the wolf’s eyes closed and woofed softly in pleasure. She knew the beast’s pleasure at her tactile scratching of the wolf’s ears and head was being transmitted to Arya. While not sexual it had to be pleasurable. A mere prelude to what she had in mind.

She scratched the beast’s head and then the beast rolled onto the floor on its back. Dany understood that the wolf wanted its belly scratched yet again, but, she also understood the wolf trusted her completely. Nymeria had total trust in Dany letting her rub her exposed belly and sides. This made a warm feeling spread inside Daenerys. Arya’s wolf accepted her. Hopefully, one day Arya would accept her as more than just Queen to High princess. Hopefully, Arya would accept her as her lover.

The Queen would let Arya see just how wild and wanton she could be.

Dany got back down on the floor to rub and scratch hard the belly of Nymeria. The wolf wiggled and grunted in hedonistic pleasure. She knew Arya was getting pleasure from this as well. The warg experienced all that its familiar felt. She knew that Arya had seen her pink pussy all open and inviting before her. Up close and waiting for her. Up close and waiting for her.

Dany wanted to get to masturbating but Nymeria had needs that she was happy to fulfill.

Dany laughed as the wolf got up and barked chasing its tail and then flopping down for another round of belly scratching. She spent fifteen minutes giving the pleasure that scratching gave the wolf. The wolf craved her fervid scratching. The wolf was a definite pleasure hound. Dany loved her dragons dearly but there was just something sweet about playing with the silly wolf of Arya.

Again, the Queen marveled at how well her dragons and the Direwolves of Winterfell got along.

Finished the wolf sat up and looked at her expectantly. Dany had an extra treat for the wolf tonight. Dany smiled walking over to the covered dish on the night stand beside the head of the bed on the right. Nymeria looked at her drooling as she made a show of looking at the dish and making a show of slowly reaching for the cover. Nymeria woofed in a nervous bark of expectation. Dany uncovered the dish. Nymeria’s tail started to swish excitedly.
Dany wanted Arya’s wolf in a very happy state for the festivities that were about to commence. Good feelings all around to set the environment. Dany took the time to put on a riding glove on her right hand. She wanted her hands clean. She started to throw tender chunks of roasted lamb to the wolf. Nymeria snatching the chunks out of the air and snapping her jaws as she wolfed down the tasty chunks. Dany cleaned off the large plate of treats laughing as she always did at the wolf’s zeal in snatching the night’s treats out off the air.

Dany removed her glove and then put her hands in a bowl of scented water to wash them. She then toweled her hands dry. She was ready.

The routine that had been established, that she would now open the door and let the wolf bound out the room and back to her waiting master. She was sure that was what Arya expected as she lay hidden in her wolf. Dany smirked. As long as Arya stayed warged into Nymeria her body would be inert. It was perfect. She would rock Arya’s world.

Tonight it was time to start a new routine. To build a new pattern.

Dany stood up in front of her bed stretching her back and arching it hard groaning at the pleasure of stretching and popping her vertebra. She also knew this threw her medium sized but high setting firm breast out. Her firm titties on full display as they were outlined clearly in the thin sheer material. Her now fully erect nipples poking out the silk clearly on display. Nymeria was staring at her intently.

Just like the Queen had planned. Now the Queen not looking at the wolf innocently reached down to the short hem of her slip and pulled it slowly up her body. She moved slowly and slightly pivoted her body to fully show off her womanly charms. Only then did Dany pull it off her head. Her long hair trapped in the neck and slowly cascading down in ribbons to fall down onto her back with a few locks over her front and her firm swollen breast with now hard aching nipples. She again gripped her hands together above her head and stretched making hedonistic sounds of pleasure feeling her back stretch most pleasingly.

The Valyrian could sense her Arya in the wolf and she could feel her excitement. Her plan was working to perfection. Dany’s cunt swollen and wet. Dany was ready to blow the young Stark’s mind.

Still not making hot direct eye contact so as to scare away the young Stark. She hid her simmering lust for a few moments more. Dany sat on the edge of the bed and scooted back slowly until her back was against the broad and high backboard. Dany now kept eye contact with the wolf. She wanted Arya’s full attention now. Dany rested her head back against the headboard. The dark hard mahogany pressed along her spine. Dany closed her eyes and slowly spread her toned and limber legs out wide.

Her wet cunt now wide open to the teenager’s gaze. Dany looked down at her swollen pussy all dark pink with blood rush. Her cunt ached so bad and her womb throbbed deep in her belly. She could feel her pussy leaking juice out and running down her perineum. She felt her slimy pussy juice weep down over her clutching anus and then down her ass crack. She loved feeling her wet love juices basting her groin and ass. It made her feel so slutty and beautiful. She was hot and knew it. She had seen so many look at her with lust glazed eyes seeing her body on full display. She wanted so bad to see that same look in Arya’s eyes.

Dany had closed her eyes shivering in her simmering lust. Dany slowly opened her violet orbs to stare directly into the wolf’s orbs. A surrogate for her hoped for lover’s steel grey eyes. The wolf stared at her intently with its head tilted over. The wolf was naturally curious but the intense focus told the Queen that Arya was indeed inside her wolf. She could feel Arya.
Dany brought her hands up and slowly, lightly, began to sensually to rub them over face. She ran her hand slowly up and down her facial features hedonistically stroking her own body. Like her sweet lost Doreah had taught her so long ago when she was given to Dany to teach her the arts of lovemaking. One had to love and worship ones own body before you could worship another lover’s body. Dany luxuriated feeling the ghost caresses of her fingertips over her face and throat.

Dany extended her wet tongue to lick her fingers gliding over her bee stung lips. Gods Dany loved the feel of wet female tongues on her body.

Her touch ignited the longing that always near the surface in the Valyrian’s body now. Desires for the Sapphic touch. She longed for the female touch and now the touch of one particular woman. She craved lovemaking that made repressed desires for the female form ignite and burn deep in belly and not the touch of men. She had accepted Drogo’s touch because she must but never truly craved. Others she had fucked only for political expediency.

Dany ran the fingers through her long silky tresses moaning at the touch. The touch of fingertips on her scalp made her breath hitch and the feel of her long tresses slowly slipping though her fingers had her pulse quivering and accelerating. Her fingertips giving her body sweet promises of pleasure to come. Dany loved touching herself and hoped the Stark loved touching herself.

Dany wanted her woman in touch with her own body. If her dreams ever bore fruition she planned on watching the Stark girl fucking herself to self-pleasured orgasms. She would want to watch this over and over. Dany never tired of watching a woman jill herself off and cum screaming in orgasm. A woman who masturbated freely without guilt always cummed hard. What woman did not know her own sweet spots and how to stroke them?

Dany wanted and ached to share this with the Arya. A woman should never feel ashamed of touching and loving her own body. She longed to masturbate over and over for Arya. She would fuck herself freely and as many times as Arya would want to witness her lover explode as her wife worked her own cunt and asshole to shrieking orgasms. Dany wanted to watch her wolf savour each hard masturbatory orgasm Dany stroked out her exploding twat as she screamed Arya’s name.

She had been fucking the whores that Tyrion supplied to her. These women were fully in touch with their own bodies. Dany had watched vividly as these women stroked their own bodies with expert skills. Dany always felt her belly on fire watching other women masturbate. She would start with the idea to only watch many times but often she had opened herself up to her whore’s eyes. Her need to masturbate with the whores too great to ignore. She would let her fingers and toys join in as she pleased herself as the whores jilled off to screaming cunt ripping orgasms. Her wails soon joining her bedmates. Gods she loved to masturbate. A lot! The Queen would never tire of plucking her own body to orgasm and watching other women do so.

She realized Arya might need some coaxing on that front. She was a shy girl and would probably deny she even jilled off. But when they became lovers (she dearly hoped) she would coax her sweet wolf to masturbate openly, freely and often for her dragon as she would for her wolf.

Dany’s head tilted back as she moaned lightly rubbing her throat and then upper chest with one hand while her other continued stroking her face and running over her full bottom lip stretching it and her tongue came out to lightly trace her fingers. She loved stroking herself sensually her fingers till running through her hair and over her face with the merest ghost tracings. The slight touch hitting her like a mallet hitting an anvil. Her pussy throbbing and her nipples jangling with pulses now of aching pleasure.

“Uunnggggg” whimpered when first one hand and then other found her aching breast. She first cupped and then massaged her grapefruit sized breast rolling her breast in her fingers milking them filling them with sweet sensual fire. Her mouth fell open as she started to pant and perspiration started to film her forehead and upper lip. Again and again she rotated her hands over her grapefruit sized breast. Her calloused palm rasping her nipples gagging the Queen with raw pleasure. Her breast filled with sensual pleasure that started to arch to her clit making her mewl in pleasure.

“Ummnnggg … oh oohhh oh yeesss hhnnnggg hhnnnn hhnnnn huunnggg!” the Queen cawed her body now beginning to burn with rising pleasure.

Her clit was pulsing in time to the hands pleasuring her breasts.

Dany’s hands cupped her beast and ground her calloused palms into her stiff nipples. Where before she had lightly glided over her nipples the Valyrian now ground her palms into her tits. Her fingers coming down now to squeeze and pulp her tits hard like she loved it. She hard rasped her sensitive nubbins. She clenched her fingers rhythmically into her breast the digits sinking deep into her tits and mauled them like she liked. She gripped her tits with her fingers and the webbing near her thumbs and pulped squeezed. The pressure and force had her gagging in raw wanton pleasure.

The friction sent lightning bolts to her now hard nubbin jutting out its hood. The nubbin was shiny and wet with her lubrication. Her hands mashed in roughly rolling her tits and then they were cupped again before she massaged and pulled on her small engorged teats. She pulled on them squeezing as intense bolts shot straight to her clit. Her head lulled over and her face slashed with pleasure. Her breathing getting a little ragged as her body filmed with perspiration. Perspiration that was now starting to bead in her warm room. She was on fire. Her love of masturbation and knowing she was sharing this most intimate of acts with the woman she was falling deeply in love with had her body primed for a configuration.

Dany’s head lulled over to the other side. “Ohhhh . . . nnnggg! Oh! Oh gods, yessssss unngg uunnggg!” the Queen moaned as her groin started to instinctively hump up in raw wanton need. She gripped her nipples pinching hard her face twisting up in ecstasy as she tented her beast pulling up before releasing her nipples only to again to massage and milk. Back and forth the Queen pinched her nipples hard and pulled up tenting her areolas and nipples her face twisted with shocking pleasure.

Dany’s breath was beginning to deepen and become more ragged. The film of perspiration now making her body glow as her heated skin flushed with hot pumping blood marking her desire. Sweat had begun to run down her body. “Hunngg hhnnngg hhnggg!” Dany gasped as she ran one hand up to her face and rubbed it all over with a feathery touch while her other hand began to run slow lazy circles up and down her muscled stomach and traced the valley between her ribs.

The Targaryen had always believed in pleasuring all of her body that she could reach. She loved to work her ribs and the line of her ribcage with her hands circling up to work her breast and down to rube her belly before again working her ribs. She alternated in the pressure she used to stroke her torso. First with moderate force and then the slightest ghost tracing. The difference in tactile sensations made her cunt so wet.

All this foreplay had her cunt clenching and pulsing so hard with the need to be fucked.

While she worked her whole body Dany’s hands painted a masterpiece with her breast rolling, pinching her nipples and then massaging her breast and at times her hands mashed in on her bosom grinding her tits into her ribcage gagging her with hard pulses of ecstasy. She moved her hands down to work her torso to let her body simmer and baste in the sweet sensations her tits had filled her belly with before going back for more.

Then one hand or both ran up and down her body from her lower stomach up to her face stroking her face and fanning her hair out between her long slender delicate fingers.

Dany’s core was on fire. She had waited long enough. She had delayed to give Arya a hot show. She looked directly into the direwolf’s eyes and slowly ran her fingers down to her wet cunt. She ran her fingers into her slit and worked her fingers into her trench with her right hand and rubbed up and down slowly working her labia lips out spaying them on her wet vulva her womanhood of full display. She lazily traced her engorged inner lips and ghosted around her clitoral hood making her whinny in raw pleasure. Her left hand gripped her right nipple and squeezed at she pulled on it making her whimper in need.

Then she slowly spread those fingers out along her fuck hole. This was why she had shaved extra close tonight. True she loved the feel but she wanted nothing left to the imagination with her sweet innocent Arya. One day made no difference but she wanted to make an extra effort for her sweet wolf. She wanted Arya to see every delicate fold and ridge of vulva and her engorged clitoral hood and her throbbing clit jutting out its sheath all wet and whitish pink. She wanted Arya to see and feel raw lust for Dany. Dany wanted to plant the seeds of lust so they could take root and lead to her and Arya consummating their love in the near hoped for future.

Eyes locked with the wolf and Arya through Nymeria, Dany ran her left hand down her stomach that was palpating harder. She slowly worked her left hand fingers into her slit and she very slowly worked her fingertips along the edge of her wet hole. With both hands the white haired nymph pulled back on her vulva opening her cunt hole up. Her wet fuck hole fully exposed for Arya. Her inner folds and whorls clutched with the Targaryen’s breathing. Her hole dark, deep red and so fucking wet as her inner folds pulsed up and down so enticingly to the Stark girl.

Dany’s mound was slavered with glistening fuck nectars. “Oohhhhh yessss … ungggg … yes! Unnggg hnggg!” Dany moaned humping her pussy up to the wolf showing her and Arya her womanhood all wet and swollen all for Arya and only for her.

The back of Dany’s head mashed hard into the headboard her eyelids fluttering as she ran her fingertips along perimeter her hot hungry wet fuck hole. “Ooohhh yessss take it … take it … take it —it’s only yours baby!” the dragon mewed her head lulled over her pelvis humping up in a lewd dance of pure love. The Queen’s fingers working her mound with expert skills. Dany’s body now catching and jolting hard with hard pulses of ecstatic pleasure.

Arya

Arya was thrumming as Nymeria scratched at Dany’s door. She was so happy she had discovered her direwolf had been visiting the Targaryen Queen behind her back. When she had warged into Nymeria and felt Dany’s hands scratching the wolf’s belly as the Queen laughed and made cooing sounds running her fingertips over the wolf’s belly and along her ribs, Arya had been so happy. She did not feel direct erotic pleasure since her wolf felt none but the pleasure her wolf felt was an elixir to the Stark teenager. Arya soul squirmed at the pleasure her wolf felt since her body could not.

The wolf wiggled its back on the floor like a fish out of water. The wolf was in heaven being scratched and loved by the Queen.

After that the wolf was snapping cuts of tender steak out of the air gulping down as Arya enjoyed the sweet taste along with her wolf.

This had been going on for almost two weeks. Arya going into the room through Nymeria. Each night the Queen laughed while petting and scratching the wolf. Then after playtime each night a plate of delectable succulent chunked meat awaited the wolf and Arya. Arya felt the pleasure her Direwolf felt wolfing down the choice cuts of cooked meat. Her wolf was definitely in wolf heaven between the food and scratches.

Arya relished this time with the Queen. Arya kept her secret close. She was terrified that the Queen would know she was in love with her. Then the Queen would give her a speech to grow up and that Dany was not that way. Or worse, the Queen could send her back North because of the unnatural desires that colored Arya’s affections. This way she could get Dany’s direct affection and felt her hands on her body. Even if it was not truly her body that had the Queen’s hands on.

This night Arya felt Nymeria woof when she entered into the Queens’ suite. The routine was the same as the previous nights. Arya prepared to enjoy her stolen caresses and being able to gaze at the Queen freely like she was not allowed to in reality. It pained her that Dany was destined for someone else and only looked on her as a friend and growing confidant.

Arya wanted to much more! She wanted all of the Queen. She wanted all of Daenerys Targaryen for herself.

The wolf did not sense anything strange but Arya’s motionless body was in shock. To the wolf a human’s attire or lack of it was not of that much concern. Nymeria had long ago gotten used to her master stripping naked and masturbating half the night away while screaming and flopping all over bed like a fish out of water. Even when she flipped to the floor and jolted the wolf took it in stride.

Dany’s attire tonight was totally different! The queen had on a sheer short slip that was so sheer she could clearly see the full outlines of the Queen’s high firm breast, the subtle swell of Dany’s hip and … oh by the old gods! The slip only half covered the Queen’s pussy! She could see hints of her mound and, and … and oh my gods the Queen had a used a razor and her pussy was shaved bald. Arya was gods smacked. If her body would have allowed it Arya would have been drooling a river.

The Queen sat on the edge of the bed to scratch the wolf’s ears. Arya’s eyes nearly bulged out their sockets. The Queens’s legs were parted wide and her short slip had ridden up her legs and her pussy was fully exposed to Arya’s starving gaze. She could smell the Queens cunt through Nymeria’s nostrils and it was intoxicating. She longed to bury her face in the woman’s pussy and feast and never stop! Arya was stunned now. Her body wanted to react but dammit it her body couldn’t!

Nymeria wanted more affection. The queen then played and scratched the wolf like she always did when Nymeria needed more scratching. Normally, Arya would revel in the attention. She loved to feel Dany’s fingers pleasuring her wolf and, thus, her. The innocent pleasure had been thrilling. The pleasure she felt now was not innocent! All she could see in her mind’s eye was Dany’s shaved cunt and how pink it was and how hot it was to see Dany’s womanhood on full display. She wanted to bury her face in Dany’s womanhood and suck her off! And by the gods the smell of her musk inflamed the Stark teenager.

Then the registered that Nymeria was wolfing down more treats. The Queen was putting her wolf under her spell. She was spoiling Nymeria rotten and the wolf was literally lapping it up! Arya wanted to lap up Dany’s wet twat! Arya’s time with the Queen was almost over. The Queen would open the door and Nymeria would gamble out into the Red Keep and walk the halls for a while before she returned to her master to bed down.

Arya would leave the wolf’s body the instant she left Dany’s room and the Arya could take care of her needs! Her body had been stunned at first but was now on fire, but, she couldn’t move to satisfy her carnal needs! She was not about to Warg out of Nymeria till the wolf had left Dany’s quarters though. She would not miss a second of seeing Dany’s near nude body!
Normally, she would be sad leaving Dany. She loved the pleasure of feeling Dany spoiling Nymeria. Not tonight. She was anxious for Nymeria to leave … except she didn’t.

Dany instead of opening the door stood up and slowly removed her slip as if it was the most natural thing to do in front of the wolf. A distant part of the girl’s mind was surprised at how comfortable the Queen was in Nymeria’s presence.

Dany’s hair looked like spun white gold cascading out her slip top falling out the neck and down on the Queens’ shoulders and back.

Then the queen sat on the edge of the bed her camel toe so wet and glistening and then the small woman slide back to the headboard.

Arya would never forget what she was seeing. The way her sweet Queen ran her hand on her face and then down her body. The way the tiny blond played with her breasts stroking and making love to them. Then her hands went South! Oh gods! Dany was going to masturbate in front of her. The Queen had no idea that Arya was in her wolf. She should feel guilt Arya knew. That feeling was sadly lacking and far distant. All the teenager felt was happy elation!

Arya was in heaven and hell at the same time. Heaven because she was able to watch the Queen pleasure her belly and then oh gods she was playing with her pussy and rubbing it, loving it. She watched the Queens fingers instantly glaze with flowing cunt juice. She watched the queen open her clam shell and splayed out her light brown labia lips. Her pussy was so red with wet passion.

Then, Oh. My. Gods.! The Queen pulled her womanhood open playing with her vaginal hole her fingers rubbing and pulling lightly. Arya could see deep into Dany’s wet core. Her pussy clutching rolling her wet inner folds and whorls for the famished girl.

This was hell. She was in hell! Her body was on fire and she couldn’t do a god’s dammed thing. She could leave her Direwolf’s body but there was no chance in hell that she was going to do that with what she was witnessing.

Daenerys

Dany slipped her middle finger into her pussy and began to slowly work the digit in and out her wet hole her inner lips sucking on the finger. Dany worked her finger with her mind shocked by how wet she was and how pleasurable her finger felt while her pussy sucked on the pumping finger. She pumped her finger slowly harder and deeper into her drooling wet twat luxuriating in the pulses of pleasure spasming deep in her belly and making her pussy quiver and clutch on the finger pumping it.

Dany sagged back into the headboard. She slowly brought her left hand down her body rubbing her belly sending arcs of pleasure indirectly to her pussy and nipples. Hard spasms and grimaces gripped the Queen’s face as pleasure filled her body. Her left hand circled down to her slicked mound and began to rub her clit with a circular motions rubbing into the hood rolling and squirting her clit in its hood. Dany looked down her belly and watched her hands pleasure herself. Both sets of fingers slimed with fuck juice as she masturbated happily.

She looked at the wolf still eyeing her intently. Nymeria turned her head slowly right and left her tongue lulling out. The wolf was not excited by her actions but its intense stare told the Queen that a certain Stark teenager inside the great Direwolf was avidly watching her Queen Jill off.
Dany moaned in heated pleasure her pussy rotating up into her hands instinctively. Dany flexed her hips and worked her ass to lift her drooling cunt up into the fingers expertly pleasuring herself. Her pussy was flooding the room with her fuck musk and she breathed in deep. She loved the smell of her own cunt. Gods she so needed to smell Arya’s pussy and memorize her own unique sweet musk. She knew that wolf’s had extraordinary sense of smell and she smirked through a grimace of pleasure imaging Arya being pummeled by her sweet fuck musk.

Dany worked her pussy quickly rising to orgasm. She needed to slow down. She wanted to prolong her show for her sweet wolf. The Targaryen pulled her middle finger out her tight twat and brought her right hand up towards her face. Dany brought the cum soaked finger to her mouth to first suck clean. Dany brought the cum soaked finger to her mouth to first suck clean. Dany brought the cum soaked finger to her mouth to first suck clean. Dany moaned pumping her finger sensually up and down her tongue savoring her sweet twat juice.

Only then did she remove the finger from her sucking lips. She slowly moved the hand to her swollen breast that she began roll and squeeze again. Her other hand rose up to work her other sweat soaked breast. Her face froze and the slashed with raw pleasure as she cawed like a wanton Lysian whore in heat. Dany worked her breasts with her thumb and index fingers sliding up the slope of her breasts in turn to squeeze and pull on her hard little nips the pressure making her breast fill with heated pleasure and shocks running down to her clit and to her brain.

Dany’s hand moved south again. She slipped the middle finger back into her hot pussy and pumped the digit in and out her cunt feeling her inner folds grip tight on the invading digit. She could feel the heat of her inner core on her finger. She loved they heated cauldron of her sweet cunt. Her inner fuck folds and whorls all greasy with cum felt so delicious sliding over her pumping digit.

"Oh! Ungghh!" Dany cried out as she slipped a second finger into her pussy stretching it out. She had a moderate rhythm now that had her belly clenching. Her other hand continued to pleasure her swollen tits. She upped the pace and force of her masturbating digits that she now pumped hard into her so wet pussy. She pleasured herself with exquisite skills built up over years of hot intense masturbation. Dany’s hips worked harder driving her pussy into her pumping fingers her wet cunt now starting to slosh as she felt the first delicious pulses in her core that told her that her orgasm was beginning to build deep in her belly.

“Unngnghhh! Oh! Ungghh! … oh Fuck!” Dany gasped working her fingers more desperately into her cunt pumping hard now her palm slamming into her vulva. "Anngghh! … Hunggg hhnnnn hhngg hhngg!" Dany groaned gutturally. The shocks of impact of her palm made her clit shriek with pleasure and her belly tensed and her inner thighs tremble with ripples and spasms.

Dany rammed her fingers in deep and mashed her knuckles into her pussy flexing her fingers jerking them up and down inside her so wet cunt. Her two small fingers jerking showing the motion of the two fingers buried in her twat. Dany gagged as she whirled her inner fuck folds so greasy with fuck slimy snail snot. Then the Queen was slamming her first two fingers in and out her pussy again pounding her box. Dany altering the tempo and technique to give her body sweet pleasure that had her whole body filmed with dripping sweat now. Her breathing getting ragged and shallow with fuck need.

Her free hand was fiercely mauling her tits rolling them and then sinking her fingers in hard into her soft firm bosom. Her hand moved right and left working her swollen breast. Her nipples were now as hard as diamonds. She felt her face all flushed with heat. She knew her pale skin was flushed deep pink down to her tits that she could see. Her nipples so hard they had whitish tips and were rock hard.

She slammed fucked her cunt with powerful thrusts of her muscular arm. Each thrust into her mound made wet smacking sounds. "Unh! Unh!" Danny gasped softly, her fingers ramrodding into her sloshing cunt that made splattering sounds. "Aunngghhh! Oh shit! Aunngghhh!" Each shock of impact had her clit shrieking in shock pleasure. Her head twisted on a neck gone stiff. Her mouth worked making cawing noises face contorted and slashed with gut wrenching pleasure.

Sweat poured down Daenerys face and rolled down her body in rivulets. Her right hand slammed into her cunt. She paused her stroke to strongly flex her fingers deep in her pussy. Dany’s palm ground into her mound mashing and rolling her clit in its hood. The pleasure near unbearable now as she flexed her fingers manically in her pussy and heel of her hand ground her clit in a tight mashing circle. Her cum allowing her palm to easily squirt around on her clit grinding it hard.

Her eyes slowly widen out to a shocked wide state. Her back was ramrod straight pressed against the backboard of the bed that was shaking with her writhing body. Her legs had gone ramrod stiff and juddered on the bed. Her breathing coming in ragged gasps. Her face slashed with almost crippling need and agonizing pleasure. Dany went back to a slam harpoon thrusting of her fingers in and out her now wildly spasming cunt.

The pressure built and built deep in her pussy and then exploded. Dany’s body jerked forward partially forward and then slammed back into the headboard. “OOOWWGGHHHHHHH! HHHUNNGGGGGG! HHHHUUNNGGGGGG!” the beautiful pale woman screamed as it felt like her cunt was tearing itself inside out. Hot gushes of cum sloshed out her spasming cunt hole and seared her flexing fingers working deep inside her pussy as her inner folds gripped the fingers tight with each searing wave of her orgasm. Her hand and wrist was coated in her gushing fuck nectars.

Her body bucked and flipped against the headboard as sweet pummeling waves of ecstasy tore at her lithesome frame. Her face seemed filled with agony that was only sweet shocking ecstasy. “Auunggh hhnnn hhnggg … oh oh FFFUUUUUUUCCKKKKKKK! AAAARRUUUNNNNGGGGGG! AAAGGHHIIIEEEEEEEE!" Dany screamed as a second orgasm exploded over the top of the first sweet hard hitting orgasm. Her cunt spasmed wildly milking her fingers she churned in her inner pussy folds and petals. Her body flipped and jackknifed so hard knowing that Arya was watching her fuck herself. The headboard hammered the wall and the bed squeaked continuously as her body gyrated and flipped in the throes of a harrowing orgasm.

Her rich pungent fuck musk thick in the room. Dany luxuriated in the smell of excited pussy. Gods she needed it to be Arya’s pussy she smelled so ripe in her suite.

Dany’s body convulsed and jackknifed slamming repeatedly into the headboard making the bed bark in its frame. Gradually the Queens spent body folded to the side and slide down the headboard her body temporarily spent.

The Queens body heaved for breath as hot cum dribbled out her love hole around the fingers still buried in her pussy. Dany slowly pulled the fingers out her pussy and hissed at the intense sensations. Her body jerking as strong aftershocks gripped and shook her slight frame.

The Queen’s violet eyes barely able to see the direwolf staring at her in her addled state. She shoved her cum soaked fingers into her mouth and moaned sucking them clean with sensual strokes up and down her tongue.

Arya

The North girl was in hell. That was it. She was in hell. She was on fire and in heat and she couldn’t do a damn thing about it! She had watched transfixed as her Queen pleasured herself with an exquisite skill that had seemed unimaginable.

Though she was in hell there was no fucking way she was fleeing. If this was hell then she could accept this as her purgatory throughout eternity. To be turned on to the highest heavens and not able to wanker off was driving the Stark teenager insane with aching desire and need.

Arya had watched the Queens hands work her own breast and pussy with expert skills. The way Dany massaged, rolled and sunk her fingers at times deep into her own bosom was intoxicating. Then Dany had slide her finger and then fingers deep into her pussy and pumped them in and out the fingers almost instantly wet with the woman’s hot love juice.

The sounds of Dany’s wet pussy being worked had the Stark girl in a frenzy. How she wished that was her hand pleasing the Queen’s pussy. How it was her mouth and hands pumping and rolling the Queens’s nipples and then taking as much of the Queen’s bosom as possible into her mouth where she would suck fiercely feasting on the Queens succulent grapefruit sized tits.

She watched transfixed as the body she had been denied clearly approached orgasm. Arya through Nymeria took in every sight, sound and smell of Daenerys Targaryen jilling herself off to orgasm.

After Arya’s famine of depravation seeing Dany’s body like this was like feasting on succulent pheasant sautéed in sweet butter. Arya was a glutton taking in every detail of the Queen’s masturbation.

Then Dany’s screams of orgasm was like the ambrosia of the gods. The way the Queen convulsed and shook violently as each wave of her orgasms throttled the slender body intoxicated Arya.

She was beyond caring about her body’s needs. Her hell had become sweet heaven. Seeing Dany’s harrowing orgasms was heaven. Plain and simple.

Daenerys

Dany slowly felt her body coming down from its orgasmic high. She rolled over onto her stomach and then over onto her back gasping for breath. Her body was languid but also still on fire. She needed more and wanted to take it even higher.

The pale woman scooted around so that her groin was on the edge of the bed and she pulled her legs up and put her feet on the edge of the bed. She splayed out her knees opening up her distended pussy. The queen put several plush pillows underneath her upper shoulders and head and then folded up a big pillow putting it underneath her head.

Dany took her hands to slowly, sensually rub and press down into her sweat slicked belly pushing in. She could feel the pressure in her still trembling womb. This was a major erogenous zone for the young queen. The sense of pressure intoxicating. She looked at the wolf knowing that Arya was staring back at her. Arya would just assume the Queen loved fucking herself in front of an audience. She would not know that Dany knew she was in her wolf.

Dany was ready to lay out her last card on the card table. She licked her lips feeling her pussy throbbing again as her clit lost its jangly sensitivity. Dany felt like her body was leaden with besotted pleasure but she wanted more. She was always quick to recover when she first started to masturbate or fuck.

She spoke softly to the wolf “Oh Nymeria how I wish my lover was here with me … touching and loving me” she softly moaned. Her hands again stroked her body. Dany’s body was dripping wet with sweat. It rolled down her ribs. Dany so sensitive to her own body could feel each drop of sweat rolling off her body to drip off onto her bed. She had to run her fingers over her eyelids to get the sweat off them. She mewled feeling her pussy coming alive again with want and need.

Dany first clenched her fingers into her bosom and roughly massaged her breast her palms riding over her nipples and grinding down into them the friction so sweet and intense.

The blond woman began to pull and roll her nipples that had her head jerking up off the pillow her face slashed with the pleasure pulsing in her breasts and arched straight down to her clit. The woman’s knees in the air jerked in and out in pulses of hot pleasure. Dany watched her upraised legs jerk hard in wanton pleasure. It was so slutty looking and the Queen loved the hot visual.

Slowly, the Queen snaked her right hand down her sweat slicked body and the fingers started to again rub her slit and circle around her again hard clit. “Unnggg uugggg … yess I can feel my lover’s fingers working my pussy so sweetly teasing and pleasuring me Nymeria—huunggg hhnggg hhnnnnggg!” the Queen gasped as her clit jangled. Up and down her slit Daenerys worked her fingers in her drooling slut. Her fingers brushing over her clit making her gag in helpless pleasure. Her body jolting as if hit by a hot poker.

“Oh Gods yes yeessss I can feel her fingers circling my clit pressing and rubbing over it Aauggg uuuugg unnggg oohhh shittt!” The Queen gagged in hot pleasure. Her pussy was instinctively rotating up into the fingers working her twat so expertly. “Oh yeessssss—fuck yeahhhhh!” she gurgled feeling her fingers working harder into her slimy slit. Her fingers rubbed and mashed into her rubbery slippery labia lips the pleasure so hot. Her fingers working up her slit to brush and jack her clit making her whimper in ecstasy.

“Put your fingers in me baby” she gagged groaned. "Give me your long graceful fingers my lover … oh God I need your fingers deep inside me!” Dany gurgled and slide two fingers deep into her wet distended cunt and pumped the cum slicked digits hard in and out her slurping cunt. Dany started with a slow sensual rhythm that plowed her hot tight snatch. The fingers sliding in so deep and churning her aching love hole. The Queen slowly increased the force and rhythm of her pumping fingers working her pussy. Her greasy fingers sliding in and out her tight hot cunt.

Soon the Queen had her fingers working hard into her twat. Her fingers ramming home hard, deep again and again into her tight pussy. Her left hand cupped and slammed down with short jerks into her firm breast slamming them into her ribcage grazing her nipples sending shockwaves to her brain and arching to the Queen’s clit. The Queen loved to be roughed up in sex and her working her tits hard mashing them into her ribs with her striking palm had her gagging in raw helpless pleasure. Her head thrashed back and forth with her face twisted with the slashes of ecstasy.

Dany’s head lulled right and left on the pillow as she masturbated looking at the wolf and through her to the other half of her soul. She slowed for a minute pulling out slow and harpoon stroking her fingers back hard and deep into her spasming greasy cunt. Again and again Dany slow harpoon fucked her clenching snatch. Her knuckles slamming into her swollen drooling muffin. Her wetness drooling our her core had her pussy making obscene wet slurping noises of a well fucked pussy.

“Oh gods … hunnnng hhnggg—keep slamming your fingers so hard—so deep into my cunt … drive them in deep baby.” The Queen’s body jerked her pussy now humping up into the fingers slamming into her twat milkly cum dribbled out her hole and ran down her ass crack. “Ungg ohh yesss Nymeria … she is fucking me sssooooo good!”

Dany pulled the fingers out her pussy and shoved them into her mouth greedily sucked them clean her head pumping up off the pillow as she sucked greedily on the digits that she slide up and down her tongue. Her left hand was on her pussy rubbing her clit.
“Mmmppffff uummppff mmpphfff!” the queen moaned around the digits she was greedily sucking on.

She pulled them out and inserted first two fingers into her pussy pounding them deep into her cunt with sharp quick motions and then stilled her hand motion and inserted a third finger stretching her twat out filling her pussy with her first three fingers.

Dany felt so full. Her pussy stretched out so deliciously. She loved feeling stuffed. She rammed her fingers in first fast and furious and then slow and sensually. Her body was inflamed with liquid fire pouring out her groin flooding her body with raw wanton pleasure.

“Oh god honey suck on my nipples … oh I need to feel you fucking me hard! Aauugg uunhhhh nnngg ffffucckkk I need your fingers in me, fucking me, taking meeeeee!” the queen cried out.

The Queen’s free hand worked her breast or hedonistically rubbed up and down her body especially along the edges of her vulva putting extra delicious pressure on her clit. Dany loved looking down at her groin and seeing her pressing hand bulging her vulva up with the side pressure. Dany’s bent thumb of her right hand hammered her clit again and again she shocks going straight to her womb. Dany’s nipples on fire her breast filled with fire and pleasure.

Dany’s pussy was beginning to slurp loudly again and was actually splattering cum droplets as her pussy lubricated liberally. Her left had been roaming her body focusing on her swelled flushed breast but also stroking other sweet spots on her body.

Now her left hand had formed a wedge and she jammed its fingertips into her clitoral hood just behind her jutting clit. Her left hand jerked right and left like a fulcrum the fingertips jammed hard into her knotted clitoral hood. Her fingertips rocking and pressing hard into her clitoral hood and mashing into her clit squeezing it mercilessly. Her hands worked her pussy like a master carpenter. Her body was soaring to the clouds of pure ecstasy.

“Oh God! I’m going to cum so hard for you my sweet lover! Oh gods I need to feel her fingers slam fucking my aching cunt so hard and deep! Oh so close so fucking closeeee!” Dany sobbed in need. Her body began to quake with short hard jerks her breathing ragged and deep in short gasps.

Her head came up off the pillow jerking up as spasms rocking her soul thinking that it was Arya that was fucking her pussy and not her own fingers. She was using the feminine pronouns to let Arya see her true leanings. Her plan was working perfectly. It was just so hard to think now! Dany’s eyes suddenly flared wide open and her head jerked forward on a stiff shuddering neck.

Her cunt ruptured. Her body felt like it was exploding thinking of Arya fucking her “FFFUUTCXKKKKKK! AARRUUNNGGGGGG! AAAUUGGGGGGGGG!” the small framed woman wailed as her body heaved and bucked wildly. Her feet jammed down on the edge of the bed and her hips jerked up off the bed as her pussy felt like it was tearing itself inside out. Dany pounded her exploding cunt with her three slam fucking fingers and her left hand trying to pulp her clit. Her cunt spasming and jerking up several inches off the bed in short, sharp up jerks. "Aunngghhh! Annggggiiimmmnneeeeee! Oh! Unghh! Oh! Annggghimnnnee!” Dany cried out, surging and twisting, pumping, groaning, until finally the fierce jolts began to recede.

Dany body floated on a cloud of pure ecstasy and building lassitude. Her body slowly settled back down on the bed. Her body was soaked in sweat. Her body exhausted. She slowly pulled her fingers out her pussy and her hands flopped down on the bed in nerveless heaps.

The Queen mewled and her body lurched with the strong aftershocks that gripped and shook her body hard. The queen’s mouth open and drooling slightly as she stared at nothing with her violet orbs looking at the wolf. Her body had simply been pounded nearly senseless with exhausting ecstasy.

Dany was used to having hard orgasms but with Arya involved her orgasms moved the mountains and boiled the oceans dry. Her body was filled with sweet lassitude. She felt punch drunk with Arya watching her.

My gods Dany thought. If sex is this good just thinking about Arya she feared what would happen if the sweet girl ever did grace her bed.

Dany had heard lovers talk of this power of sex married with love. She had always wondered it was true. Now she knew. She needed more and feared she would never have it.

Dany knew she could stroke her body for much more but decided tonight she had had been enough. She did not want to overwhelm Arya. She sensed the girl was still a virgin and unskilled in the arts of lesbian love. She knew the girl masturbated. All teenage girls did. She was just not sure if Arya masturbated in marathon sessions like Dany did. Dany did not want to scare Arya with her carnal needs and wants. Dany wanted to gods smack her sweet wolf but not totally overwhelm her. The Queen knew she had planted seeds in hopefully fertile soil. She now just had to wait and see if they took root and blossomed.

She tiredly got up off the bed and walked with wobbly legs over to the door. Nymeria had her nose in the door. Dany smirked. She hoped her Arya was in desperate straits. That her body war burning up for her Queen. She would not know but she could but hope.

She opened the door and the wolf whipped out the door and down the hall.

Arya

“AARRGGGGG!” The girl ripped up to sit upright in her bed. Her body was on fucking fire. Nymeria was beating feet to the nearest window low enough to leap out. She was on fire herself and running out to the Kings Wood where she sensed other wolves. As Arya fled the wolf’s body she felt her master’s wild sexual frenzy. The conduit between the two suddenly arching both ways. Nymeria felt the jolt of Arya’s wild sexual need. Now Nymeria had needs too! So much pheromones and Arya’s aroused state had affected even the Direwolf.

Arya had needs that needed to satisfied! The girl stood up on her bed and savagely tore at the laces of her top and britches. She jerked and fumbled all the while cursing. Her pussy was beyond soaked and her nipples engorged to overripe plums ready to burst. “Goddammit” Arya cried out as she jumped up on down on one leg with the britches stuck on her foot as she desperately jerked and finally it came off knocking her off balance.

“Wumphppfff!” Arya grunted landing on her now naked ass. The girl ripped the laces as she ripped the top off over her head. Her hair too tented up in her top and falling out in waves that Arya was sure was not poetic.

Her body was now naked thank the gods! Her body was soaked in sweat and she had not been able to do a gods damn thing about it.

That had now changed!

Arya was beyond technique.
The girl cupped her hands one over the other and slapped down hard on her cunt and rubbed furiously up and down. Her pussy was so wet that her palm grinding her soaked twat was instantly slicked with her cum. She rubbed and down in short furious jerks.

Her hands a blur as her pussy burbled and bubbled and soon it was singing a sodden song. All Arya could see in her eyes was Dany’s body writing in orgasm and jacknifing so hard again and again.

Arya was both elated and sadden. The queen was like her! She was gay! She had not used the feminine pronouns much but she had! But it had not been her name she called out! Some fucking bitch had her Queen’s heart and she hated the gods damned cunt.

But! Maybe she had a chance! _Dany was gay_!

Arya rubbed her cunt furiously for fifteen more seconds. Then her body fell off the precipice into shattering ecstasy. "Unnggghmmnnngghhiieeee! Hhngg nngggg Mmmngghhhhiieeeeeeeeee! Nnnnhhiieeeeeeeeee!" Arya cried out as convulsions of shattering pleasure ripped through her young tight body again and again with hard hammering pulses. "Ohhnggg god! Ummngghh! Auunngghhh! FFFFUUUCCKKKKKKK! Aarrruunnngggggg! Mmmngghhhhiieeeeeeeeee!" Arya screamed and screamed in orgasmic bliss. Finally, Arya whimpered as her body started to calm and her immediate desperation departed.

Over the next hour and half Arya masturbated six more times to mind shocking and womb rending orgasms as her body flipped and flopped across the bed like a fish out of water. Her voice was hoarse and scratchy now after all her repeated screams.

Arya’s body was spread out all akimbo on the bed. She knew she looked obscene soaked in sweat and cum but didn’t give a fuck. She knew she looked like some Lyscene whore but only smiled wantonly at the thought. She was on a cloud of pure happiness. Her belly so warm and fussy and her pussy tingling and itchy it had cummed so hard again and again.

She told herself she could never ever do that again. She must stop warging into Nymeria’s body on her nightly visits to her sweet hot luscious vivacious Targaryen Queen. She was violating the Queen’s personal life. She had no right to watch Dany fuck herself crying out for her faceless female lover. Yes. She would honor the Queen’s sanctity.

She knew she was lying to herself.
Arya

Arya was relaxing at the main table in Dany’s room. They had discussed the day’s events and went over the messages from the houses of Tyrell and Dorne. They were giving Dany updates on the troops moving towards their designated ports. The harbor were full of masts now.

Four days ago Arya had been like a little girl when they flew over King’s Landing, Duskendale and Blackstone at the mouth of the Wendwater river.

Dany had wanted to make sure that all her timetables for her ship arrivals were on schedule. She also spied the roads leading to the ports. Men were in companies of hundreds and sometimes thousands. Dany had asked her to look left while she looked right. Arya had felt her heart swell knowing she was helping Dany even if it was a small thing. Dany told her it was easier to concentrate if she did not have to constantly turn her head from side to side.

Drogon had taken off right after an abbreviated small council meeting. The citizens had reduced their claims on the Queen’s time. All sensed that great times were afoot. The ships in ports and the roads now clogged with troops and now cavalry told all what they needed to know. War was on the horizon. Also, the paid mercenaries and conscripts had gold dragons and silver stags in their pockets that needed spending. The shops, taverns and brothels of King’s Landing and surrounding cities and villages were flush with the money being spent by the troops mustering to move north.

Arya also saw that wherever they landed that the Queen was cheered and she could feel that it was genuine. The Queen inspired loyalty in all that she did. She was fair beyond measure and her realm was coming to realize it. Her beauty and pose bedazzled all that they met. It had definitely enthralled Arya. She had been enraptured with the queen from the first reports of her coming out of the Red Wastes to lay waste to the Slave Trade.

Her personal experience with the Queen had turned childish love into full blown adult love for the woman. Daenerys Targaryen was what any woman and unfortunately man would want. Arya saw the men that were paraded as potential matches to the Queen. These were matches that would strengthen her realm and make it more prosperous and peaceful. Varys was always giving the Queen new potential candidates to sit beside her on the Iron Throne.

What did a second princess from the furthest away House in the Realm have to offer? How could a marriage between House Targaryen and House Stark make the realm better? The sins of the past would seem to preclude a marriage between them.

Arya raged at the fates and the old gods at the unfairness of it all. She was so in love with the Queen and it seemed as if all of society were working against Arya in capturing her Queen’s love. Duty calling to Daenerys to marry some odious man. Alone in her room she cried into her pillow in impotent anger over her fate. Worse she knew the Queen’s secret now. The Queen was being forced to live a lie. Life was unfair!

The Queen had first set off for Duskendale one hundred and sixty miles distant. She had Drogon fly fast since he had fed two days ago and was well rested. She flew high for while over the farm lands but when they came upon many holdfasts and businesses on the roads cross connecting this region to get goods from port into the midlands Dany had brought Drogon down from on high.

Then Drogon was flying just over the treetops and then down over the fields and over roads just over the heads of persons on wagons. Arya and Nymeria kept looking back and seeing the people stunned and then cheering at seeing a dragon up close. The winds of the backwash sending hats flying and hair whipping. They were like an arrow shot from a long bow. The common folk loved seeing the Queen’s dragons up close and being buzzed by the Queen knowing that she was their protector.

It brought the people ever closer to their Queen. She dearly hoped that Dany and her father could meet as friends. That the loyal Warden of the North and Queen would meet and find trust and friendship in the other. A person they saw as equals and that they could work together. They could take Westeros to greatness. Westeros could enter into a golden age.

Duskendale was filled to overflowing with ships. The first squadrons of the next convoy moving out to sea loaded with troops for the beachheads in the North of Arya’s homeland. Massive Summer Islander ships shepherding she ships on the flanks and out to sea. Arya was amazed at the colors of the sails of the ships.

Each Summer Islander ship had a massive figurehead on the bowsprit of each ship. Some of the figureheads were carvings of the gods of their native lands. Others were of the animals that were common in their homeland and of the other southern Islands like Sothoryos, Naath, Elephant Isle and the Islands of the Jade Sea.

Each figurehead was a work of art that made what they represented come alive. The beast, god or goddess painted in a bright colors that made them seem about to tear forth from the bowsprit and walk across the waves of the oceans the ships sailed.

As Drogon flew into port they flew low and slow. Arya saw many real and fantastical beasts on the prows of the tall Swan Ships. She saw a Manticore, Shrike, Peacock, Monitor, Basilisk and Griffin on the bowsprits. The colors so loud and shocking that they made the beasts seem alive. Arya was sure that the eyes followed Drogon as they flew past. When the teenager turned to look back she saw that, no, there were not following them.

She was shocked when she saw a Swan Ship that had docked at the piers of Duskendale. The sails on the mighty cross spars were furled tight to the wood. The ship had been damaged in a Gail she could see. Many wooden slats had been torn off and loose rigging hung swaying in the harbor breezes. She saw also that the bowsprit had been heavily damaged. The figurehead ripped off by a mighty passing sea wave.

That was not what shocked the young princess tough. Beside the mighty ship was a huge block of white oak that been carved to replace the figurehead that had been ripped off the ship. Arya felt her heart catch. It was a mighty Direwolf that was being carved. It was stylized in the traditional pose of snarling direwolf with its head thrown back but his one had one paw reaching forward as if to strike.

The Queen saw it too. She took and squeezed Arya’s hand. The Queen had Drogon circle the ship. On the fantail the old name had been painted over. On the fantail now was the name “Direwolf’s Howl”.
“It would appear that your father’s prowess had touched the Summer Islander’s. I am impressed” Dany told her softly and squeezed her hand again.

Arya felt a warm rush sprint through her body. She loved Dany for saying that. It fed her childish dreams of them somehow becoming lovers. Of having Arya at Dany’s side as her Queen. The young princess sighed with her pleasant thoughts.

They landed on the docks and was given a brief and concise report by the harbormaster and by the Pentos admiral leading this flotilla. Dany thanked them for their professionalism and made note that they would be remembered in the peace. Arya thought the men’s chests would explode they were puffed up so. Yes, the Queen had the whole realm around her little finger. Arya had chuckled at the consternation of the men seeing Nymeria gambling around on the dock marking her new territory and nearly looking men in the eye with her golden intelligent orbs.

They had taken to the air again. The Queen circled the harbor pointing out the various ship types. She showed Arya the backbone of the fleet: the Trireme. She told Arya the name denoted the number of banks of oars on each side of the ship. The fleet had a healthy proportion of Quinquereme which carried a total crew of 420, 300 of whom were rowers, and the rest marines. The heaviest vessel was a hexareme. This ship was fast going forward but not all that maneuverable. These ships were to be used as the fleet flagship. This class of ship could ram and sink any vessel.

There were lighter vessels such as the liburnians and the hemiolia, both swift types invented by pirates, were also adopted as scouts and light transport vessels. One of these would transport the admiral to the hexareme named the Devil’s Bride.

The Dany showed Arya the Cogs and other merchant ships that were carrying the troops and material for war to her North. The Queen pointed out carracks and caravels. The ships able to move from five hundred to fifteen hundred tons of supplies. The queen wanted plenty of stables to feed her armies. There would be no foraging off the land turning the populace against her.

The Queen had made a study of past campaigns in Westeros and Essos and found that the populace could turn quickly on even a friendly army if that army was stripping the land bare of staples, wood and raiding homesteads. If an army most consume the land they were fighting for, what did that accomplish the Queen asked Arya rhetorically? You could not destroy what you were fighting to preserve.

The Queen was also transporting all the combat gear and items for the construction of siege warfare. Dany had assured Arya she had no plan to use it on the cities. She may need it at the Wall for some reason that she could not currently foresee. Arya was so impressed with how Dany planned for all conceivable possibilities. In her studies that Dany was insisting she do, Arya had seen so many campaigns had been lost for not fully thinking through all the possible tactical scenarios. It reminded Arya of the saying of losing the kingdom for want of a nail for a horseshoe.

The other large truth the Stark Princess had learned in her studies was to arrive at a battlefield in prime condition. So many battles had been lost because forces arrived on the battlefield exhausted and were immediately thrown into combat. Combat they were too exhausted to fight and win. She could see that Dany would not make those mistakes.

The Queen constantly assured Arya she trusted Eddard but also made clear she had to plan for any contingency. Arya assured her she understood. The Queen had conquered Essos so fast with his exact thinking. Her father was great. She knew it from firsthand experience. Dany only knew from second hand accounts. When Dany met her father she would understand.

They had then flown over Blackwater Bay to Blackstone and then back to King’s Landing. Each harbor was well organized and functioning to the highest level. The Queen’s foresight and planning was paying off.

Unfortunately, Arya had had her wings figuratively and in some ways literally clipped. Both Syrio and Barristan were waiting for the Queen when she returned. They immediately set into berating Dany in front of Arya. Arya did not like that. Not one bit.

Arya felt her blood run hot and her gaze go red. No one attacked her Queen. Arya may not be Dany’s lover but she felt like it in her heart. She longed for and would defend the woman she loved. Dany saw her getting agitated. The Queen smiled softly at Arya and motioned subtly for her to calm down. Arya immediately calmed. Her Dany as always was in total control of the situation.

Her two sword masters told Dany that Arya needed as much time with them still as possible. Arya needed to practice relentlessly and work on her conditioning even more to be ready to serve Daenerys as a sword in the upcoming campaign. A sword worthy of being part of her inner guard. Dany listened to them cocking an eyebrow at times. The Queen was nonplussed with their arguments. Arya was so pleased inside that Dany was willing to endure their wrath to have Arya with her. It was obvious Dany enjoyed and sought out her company as friends. Arya longed for so much more.

Arya knew her sword masters were right. Six days ago it was like something had come together inside of Arya. All the training she had been doing, all the relentless practicing and intense sword work with her sword masters and Dany had paid off. Her sweat and toil was rewarded. Her teachers saw it too and redoubled their efforts further teaching their charge.

It was like everyone else started to slow down. Arya felt like she was moving with a speed and grace that others could only dream of achieving. She was starting to feel like she was born for the sword. She had done her early morning exercises and stretches feeling invigorated and full of power and strength. She worked to control her growing awareness of her rapidly increasing prowess.

Arya’s father would have admonished her to not get too “cocky and overconfident”. Still Arya smirked remembering her new prowess.

When she had gone up against Barristan that morning she had suddenly been able to move to the attack. She registered the surprise in Barristan. His face went to a grim resolve and Arya felt his full strength and prowess for the first time. Before Barristan had seemed like jerky lightening moving so fast she had trouble even tracking. Not now. Now she could easily follow his steps and complicated sword strokes.

She held her own. She blocked and parried and then went on the attack and had Barristan actually backing up and pivoting to the sides disengaging to come at her again as she followed. He would suddenly put her on the defensive but now she was able to again gain the advantage and put Barristan back on defense. Her sword strokes and mastery of her body balance and engrained muscle memory allowed her to attack and defend easily now.

Barristan used sheer savagery of his broadsword to keep Arya to one sword. With Barristan, Arya saw she would always need two hands on her broadsword. Her father would be the same. Their sheer skill and power would demand it. She had come to wonder how many others had such prowess. Dany was her equal for sure. She had heard there was a tall woman named Brienne of Tarth that may be in her class. She was the wife of Jamie Lannister. She wanted to see for herself!

With Syrio she was able to use both swords since his technique did not involve sheer power. Arya was able to attack with her left hand her wooden bastard sword slashing and jabbing forward in less than the blink of an eye. With her needle wooden sword she blocked and parried Syrio’s sword keeping it at bay and attacking with her main sword. He was on the defensive constantly but he would suddenly do a new move or step that was unexpected and put Arya on the defensive for a minute until she again used her two swords to keep Syrio parrying and side stepping and back in defensive position.

With Dany she felt she was her equal almost. Several times Arya had Dany off balance. She immediately pulled back to let Dany recover. The Targaryen woman immediately sensed this. The Queen had stormed at her to press the attack. The Queen needed Arya to always press the attack. Even if in practice, if Arya let up she might make that mistake in real life combat. Dany urged Arya to press forward. She needed to fight as hard as she could with the Queen. Dany explained to Arya that only by pressing Dany could Dany improve her own sword work and defense.

Arya just found it hard to fight the Queen!

She had reluctantly agreed. The Queen fought her like a whirlwind her sword coming from all angles. Arya pressed her attack and pushed Dany back and landed a few strikes. The Queen landed a few of her own. The smile on her face fighting Arya made Arya feel so good. Dany did not have an ego that prevented her from being truly tested. It only made Arya love her more.

So now she was practicing harder than ever it seemed. Barristan especially wanted to fight her constantly. He then calmly told her that if she could fight against him to a standstill or defeat him then all others would be so much easier to fight. He wanted her to get used to his savagery so when she fought others they would seem like children to her. That made Arya feel guilty for feeling any anger to her sword master. He only had her best interest in mind.

Then she could use both her swords no matter the weapon she fought against. She would be able to fight any foe. That thought had made Arya want to practice more and more. She was becoming worthy to be at Daenerys side. Worthy of her Queen. She wanted Dany to see her as a great sword fighter and worthy to be by her side. In her dreams that respect would lead to so much more.

Her masturbatory dreams were filled of Dany coming to her as equal warriors and making long hot passionate love. Her seeing Dany masturbating before Nymeria had definitely ratcheted up her the details of her desires. She now knew the intimate details of the Queen’s luscious body. Gods Dany fucked herself so hard and deep. Her screams deafening. How she longed to be the one making Dany scream in harrowing orgasms.

She did miss Dany when she was away on her dragons meeting with the Lords doing her bidding. Her ability to meet them instead of only using Ravens gave her command much greater impact and interacting with the woman directly instilled even greater loyalty and desire to do her bidding. This war effort was truly uniting the continent behind the young Queen.

She missed Dany rubbing liniment into her shoulders too. When Dany was practicing with her she always made sure to rotate her left shoulder and grimace. Dany was quick to rub the liquid into her shoulder to help ease a pain that was not there but Arya would never tell her that. She soaked in each touch of the Queen. Arya knew she was being less than honest but she craved Dany’s touch too much to stop.

The Queen had not again asked for Arya to put liniment on her shoulders. Arya had wondered a few times about that whole incident. She had masturbated too many orgasms since then letting her hands wander to the queen’s beautiful firm breast and slipping into her breeches and finger fucking Dany to screaming orgasms. She would have Dany’s body all oiled up and her hands roaming over her body. Her hands kneading her high firm breast. Her left hand sneaking down a gasping belly to sink two and then three fingers into Dany’s snatch and fucking her to screaming orgasms.
Arya now knew exactly who Dany’s body looked in orgasm. Gods it was so beautiful. Dany gave herself to totally to her orgasms just like Arya. There was no holding back as both woman pushed their bodies to get the maximum pleasure from their masturbation. Again, the Queen was so perfect for Arya. The Queen was a slut just like Arya. Arya got dreamy thinking of the two of them wrecking their bed every night.

Playing it back in her mind, the Queen requesting Arya work her shoulder, she sometimes thought the Queen had wanted her hands to stray but Arya discounted that idea. She was the Queen. A strong vibrant ruler. If she desired Arya she would let her know. Dany was so forward with her commands and giving directives. She had not given Arya any queues so Arya knew that the Queen’s interest and desires lay elsewhere. The Queen would not be subtle with her would she? She was Queen. She would let Arya know she wanted her in her bed. Wouldn’t she?

No. There had been no overtures. The Queen only saw her as a royal hostage. One she had become good friends with but only that. Arya could only feel sadness at this but was willing to take what she could get from the Queen. She would take her comradery and any niceties she could from the woman.

Arya worshiped the ground the Queen walked on. Gods she wanted to make love to her so bad!

This was only reinforced with Arya now bathing in Dany’s royal chambers. She was so smitten to be bathing in the Queen’s chambers. Recently, Dany had started putting large floral arrangements in her chambers. The perfume of the exotic flowers intoxicating. The flowers were so lovely. Of course their beauty paled compared to that of Daenerys Targaryen.

Arya had been able to steal quick glimpses of the Queen’s body when she disrobed to take her bath. She did not want to seem unseemly forward so made absolutely sure to hide her leering. The woman was not shy about her body. Arya could understand fully why Dany felt this way. She was perfection come down from the heavens to walk about the Earth. Perfection was personified in the Queen’s body. Her bosom so high and firm but still jiggled so prettily when she walked. Her ass cheeks flexed with each step as she walked into her bathing chamber.

Arya’s pussy was so wet just looking at the Queen. Arya had controlled her lust though. She felt ashamed for stealing looks at the Queen’s body and lusting after so. She could not help it! She wanted the Queen so bad! Anyways what were a few stolen glimpses compared to her naughty Dirty Warging at night in the Queen’s quarters.

Arya knew she did not have a chance with the woman. Dany’s whole body exuded sexual allure. Arya’s body was definitely not in Dany’s class. Arya would fume when looking at her body in Dany’s mirror. She did not have a rump to speak of. She had heard it called a “money maker”. Arya would have died destitute. Her breast gotten confused when they had bloomed on her chest with puberty. Her breast and nipples seemed to have become lost and one became the other. They were, well, weird. Her breast barely there but capped with plum sized nipples when Arya was aroused.

They were so sensitive though. She loved plucking and squeezing them with her spit soaked fingers. Her whole body would seize up with fierce pleasure when she played with her nipples. She knew the Queen saw her nipples with her sheer tops she wore for sword practice. That saddened Arya. She was sure the Queen would not find her bosom desirable. They were just too weird.

She really wanted to masturbate in the Queen’s bath but she was not a quiet girl when she masturbated. She was a screamer. Arya sighed again. She was sure the Queen would think she had sat on a porcupine if she heard the way she shrieked in orgasm. Of course now that Arya thought about it Dany was a screamer in her own right. Would the queen want a genteel and proper woman... in her lovemaking? No loud screams or cursing from a woman of virtue. Was that what Dany would want? Arya guess she could control herself but it would take so much away from her enjoyment of her orgasms. Arya simply needed to scream in her orgasms!

Arya contended herself in getting what she could from the Queen. She hoped to become her loyal Queensguard. She would have to live with dreams of what might be.

Today the Queen had not taken to the air on Drogon. She had no small council meeting and only a short audience with supplicants.

The day had been one of relaxing and taking a break from training and from the Queen spending all her time and efforts preparing for war.

They had gone to the open tree lined green sward by the Guildhall of the Alchemists to enjoy time shooting arrows and do sword practice in the open spaces and not in the walled in spaces of the Red Keep. The two young women enjoying the warm sunshine on their skin. The feel of the breeze blowing over them and ruffling their hair. Dany had woven in twenty of her silver bells to tinkle in the breeze.

Arya smirked. Her Queen was always playing to the public. The silver bells highlighting her snow white hair. The soft tinkle of chimes almost giving Dany a fiery air about her. The Queen allowed her subjects to throng the square to watch her. Her Unsullied kept them far enough way to give the Queen protection but allowed the populace to get as close as possible to be near their sovereign.

Arya had felt pride in the people watching her and Dany practice and holding their own against their two male sword maters. They were able to do more than hold their own. They were able to advance on the sword masters. They were able to advance and “defeat” Dany’s Bloodriders and against Strong Belwas. Defeats and wins did not truly matter in Dany’s inner circle. All were out to enjoy the air and bright warm sun.

The practice had been light actually. This was about enjoying their training and giving the people of King’s Landing something to talk about. Seeing the marital prowess of the Queen’s inner circle.

Missandei had come also to enjoy the sunlight with them. She had brought Shadowclaw with her of course. Missandei’s cat was with her all the time like Arya’s direwolf was with Arya. Nymeria and Shadowclaw were running around the expanse of the green sward. Nymeria barking and snapping at the caracal. Nymeria would try to trip up the cat who was running at break neck speed first one way and then another. The cat’s tall ears twitching as she ran.

The feline would suddenly change directions almost ninety degrees at times. Nymeria would be tearing up grass trying to change directions on the fly like the caracal. Several times the large Direewolf would be tumbling over and over on the ground like a broken wagon. Nymeria’s body would flip up into the air and hit the ground tumbling. The hard impacts of her rolling body had the direwolf yelping until her momentum was spent.

She would right herself shaking her head. The great Direwolf shaking her head her jaws snapping in frustration. She would howl and again was tearing off after the cat. Sometimes she was able to trip up the cat. The Direwolf would then track down the cat and put her forelimbs over the twisting cat and lick it as the cat mewled and squirmed with its fur soon wet and matted down from the wet licking tongue.

Soon the cat was purring and stretching out its front legs. The cat luxuriating in the tongue bath. Nymeria made sure to lick the inside of the caracal’s ears and the fur tuffs. The cat purred and rolled onto her back to get her tummy licked too. The direwolf obliging with long wet tongue licks.
Then, Nymeria would get up. Shadowclaw would twist around and wonder where her tongue bath had gotten too. Seeing that Nymeria was sitting on her haunches staring down at her the caracal would get up and bat Nymeria’s nose with her footpads. Then Shadowclaw would take off again with the mighty wolf in hot pursuit. This went on throughout their time in the large open green square.

Several times Shadowclaw would tire and Nymeria would sit down on her haunches until the caracal got its wind back. The cat lying on its side would swipe the large foot of the direwolf. The cat would grab the forepaw with its paw and drag its body forward. The caracal then gnawed on the wolf’s foot. Nymeria looked down benevolently. The great Direwolf licked the head of the purring cat. When Shadowclaw had her breath and strength back she would run off with the wolf growling after the cat again.

In the early afternoon a long wagon train came from the keep and setup up tables that were loaded full of picnic type fare. Various types of sandwiches, finger foods, large bowels of salad and displays full of hard boiled and deviled eggs. Large bins full of various leafy greens and all the condiments you could think of. Tubs full of various vegetables set out. Big pots of broiling soups were put out with ladles to dip out the savory soups.

Barrels of tea, water and light beer were set out for liquid refreshment.

The Queen announced the fair was for all. A large cheer went up as people ran off to get their friends and family members to come in enjoy the repast. The long lines of setup tables loaded heavily with food. The common man and woman lining up to have all the food and drink they could eat. The Queen announced there would be enough food for all. A big roar for the Queen went out by the gathered common folk.

Again Arya marveled at Dany’s touch.

As Arya nibbled on a deviled egg and ate collard greens she watched the caracal climb up a pear tree with Nymeria below up on her hind legs and forepaws on the trunk barking furiously up at the cat. The wolf hunkered down and jumped up and tried to scramble up the limbs. The wolf’s mighty paws found purchase and she climbed up into the tree. The wolf had a confident look on her face as she prepared to catch her supposed nemesis.

Nymeria did not see that the cat leap to another tree. Nymeria looked confused when she no longer saw the cat. The great Direwolf’s head twisted and turned searching the branches and leaves for the cat. Shadowclaw meowed from the other tree. Nymeria did a double take at the cat in the tree next to her current tree. She looked up confused and then tumbled down whining and ran to the other tree barking furiously up at the cat who meowed back down.

After a minute again Nymeria tried to climb up the new tree. Her legs working fiercely to get her up into the limbs and foliage. The wolf worked furiously to get up at the cat not noticing the cat working its way down on the other side of the trunk until she jumped down onto the ground.

The cat looked up at the long bushy tail wagging as Nymeria barked furiously up into the tree.

Shadowclaw hunched down and leapt up high and gripped Nymeria’s tail with paws and bit gently into the tail.

Nymeria yipped and then turned her head and barked in dismay seeing the caracal on her tail. The cat let go and tore off as Nymeria came crashing out the tree and landed on the ground and took off after the cat.
That was this afternoon. Now it was evening and Arya was in Dany’s room for the almost nightly Clatch of Confidents meeting. Today had been a slow day and little needed to be went over. The meetings lasting two to three hours. The Confidents eating their dinner meal in Dany’s quarters. It was a time to go over the day’s issues and issues facing the realm as they ate and then afterwards talked of current events. It was also a time for the inner circle to further the bonds of friendship.

They had eaten and Strong Belwas was tucked in and snoring on his chair before the fire his head cocked over and drooling slightly with a beatific smile on his face his belly full of locust and his favorite cheese dip. He had made his usual mess ‘accidently’ dropping locusts for Shadowclaw and Nymeria to snatch up and happily munch on. All the time the eunuch moaning and groaning how famished and overworked he was.

When he had fallen asleep Dany, Andi and Arya had put blankets over his round belly and tucked up underneath his chin and made sure to cover his feet. He would sometimes open his eyes blearily and smile at them. His smile so innocent it made Arya’s heart pitter patter. It was the look that a loving child gave his mother. She realized that they were Strong Belwas’s mothers. He had finally found people to love and spoil him. Something she doubted he had ever experienced before in his hard life. Arya was happy to help bring happiness into his life.

Nymeria was laying out perpendicular to the fire her long tail over the eunuch feet that were on the sloped down portion of the divan. She was lying on her side her back warmed by the roaring fire. Nymeria’s snout twitched and jerked while her feet moved in restless motions. She was no doubt still chasing Shadowclaw in her sleep.

Said cat was splayed on the great direwolf’s ribs her claws hooked into the wolf’s fur to keep her in position. Her own limbs spread out in a spread eagle as the cat slept peacefully. Arya had laughed watching the cat kneed her wolf’s fur making her bed. The great wolf had merely watched her with sleepy eyes and woofed lightly before lowering her head again to go to sleep.

Arya smiled at how well the two animals got along.

There was a knock at the door and Arya watched a man and woman enter the room. She could see they were lovers who were very familiar with each other. They had their arms around each other in a clear sign of affection.

They talked and greeted the other people in the room before Dany brought them to Arya. She introduced them as Bronn and Shae.

Bronn was definitely rough hewed with a stubble of beard and unkempt shaggy dark hair. He was lean with an angular face that made him look wolfish. The woman, Shae, was short and very pretty, with large dark eyes and black hair. She was quite young and Arya felt inferior to her beauty. She looked nervously at Dany and was relieved to see her looking at her only. Arya felt much better. Dany only had eyes for her! Arya just wished those looked at her with longing and desire.

Bronn had walked over to Tyrion.

“You ready to lose some money Tyrion. I feel lucky tonight dwarf. Tonight the gods are smiling on me!”

“You suck at poker Bronn and by the way so do you Shae” was Tyrion’s smug reply.

Shae flipped Tyrion the bird and blew a raspberry at the dwarf.

“I feel my luck changing Dwarf!” the beautiful woman boasted back. Shae shimmed her shoulders making her breast swish against the sheer fabric of her tight top. Tyrion eye’s glazed over with lust. “I have two pair right here!” Shae announced pointing at her swaying breast. Tyrion glared at the woman muttering.

Arya laughed softly at the spectacle. Even though they were arguing and bickering with each other she could see the affection between the three persons.

Tyrion offered to teach Arya how to play the game but Arya felt her body warm when Dany stepped in immediately and said that she would show Arya how to play the game and give her pointers. She told Tyrion she was his better anyways. Tyrion had crowed that the night would show just who was the master. He assured Arya he was the unquestioned master of poker in the Red Keep. Dany had snorted at that.

The Queen moved to get beside Arya. “I feel it is my royal responsibility to teach our Arya Stark the subtleties of the game.” Dany pronounced haughtily

Four hours later Daenerys was in a surly mood. Tyrion was in a not much better mood with his arms crossed and glaring across the table at a certain “novice”.

It seemed Arya had an extreme run of “beginner’s luck” with a large pile of chips in front of her.

She had told Dany two hours ago she understood how to play the game now and struck out on her own.

Soon Deanery’s stack of chips had been decimated by her royal hostage.

She and Tyrion both sulked while the “royal hostage” beamed at her ever growing stack of chips.

“I’m a natural!”

Tyrion crossed his arms and kicked his legs up and down on his chair.

Daenerys mumbled and then whined.

“It’s no fucking fair!”

Arya sat back in her seat and beamed at all around her. She was a bad ass!

Dany whined even louder.

Jaime

The old carriage went down the lane that led from Shadybough that was five miles below Evenfall Hall. Shadybough was a small hamlet that had nearly fifty homesteads that were mainly subsistence farmers for their families. They shared in working in communal plots. The communal plots of land were tilled by the homesteaders to produce various melons for the various restaurants on the shores of Tarth.

The farmers took turns working the communal plots working every fifth day for several hours on a rotational basis. With all the families participating the fields were well maintained. Weeds plucked, bugs controlled, plants watered when necessary and mulch applied to keep the plants thriving. The crops were bountiful. The proceeds shared amongst the homesteads. The fair weather allowed crops to be grown ten out of the twelve months when the long winters had not set in.
The fields were now full of the ripe second crop of various melons planted for the season. The fields filled with fruit of their labors. When one looked out over the plots one saw watermelons, mellons, cantaloupe, white honeydews and galia melons. Their orange, yellow, beige and white circles in the fields meant sweet meals and money in their pockets. This was the hamlet’s specialty. The growing of various melons. Other staples were grown for fresh vegetables for the hamlet but the money crop was the various melons.

The melons brought cash from businesses and were battered with other hamlets that specialized in raising other vegetables, fruit trees or livestock for meat or diary.

Jaime looked at the fields as he handed up Breanna and Brandon to his wife Brienne. She had gotten in the carriage to take their children. His children squealed and laughed as he gave them to their mother. They always enjoyed going down to the beach. They sat down on Brienne’s knees facing away from their mother. Brienne started softly jerking her knees up and down. This produced an easy bumping motion that had the children holding onto her muscled knees.

Jaime’s children giggled and whooped saying ‘giddy up’ and lifted one hand up and circled it in the air “yeah, we are knights of the realm!” The little now three old boy and girl called out. Their beaming smiles so radiant and full of happiness. Jaime reflected back to his childhood. To begin with he and Cersei had been as happy. It did not start to go bad Jaime could see now until Cersei was denied her heart’s desires to be treated like Jaime. That she wanted to be a warrior just like her twin brother. That had been the start of troubles in House Lannister. Tyrion’s birth had only fueled that.

Jaime assumed that his children would want to take up the sword with two knights in the house. He would encourage both of his children in whatever their endeavors may be. If Breanna wanted to be a warrior so be it. If she wanted to marry the miller’s son … or daughter he would support it. If Brandon wanted to be a miller good. A diplomat in Dany’s service all the better. Only their happiness mattered to him. He would not make the errors of Tywin Lannister. He would not make the errors he had made with his first set of children.

His father’s damn insistence that only one’s House name mattered had ruined his father and nearly ruined his children. Thank the gods it seemed that the seven gods had given both him and his sister a second chance to do things over. To get it right the second time. He only prayed he got it right with his second chance. He had heard the rumors of Cersei marrying Obara Sand. He now said a prayer for his sister’s future happiness.

He climbed up into the carriage. He and his wife refused to use the royal carriage that Brienne’s father had tried to supply to them. Selwyn Tarth could not understand why his daughter and son-in-law wanted no part of the trappings of Lordship. They chose instead to use the carriage service of old Aden Phyre. He had two old nags that were sweet tempered. Selwyn Tarth’s daughter and son-in-law had no use for the tapestry of royalty. They craved a simpler life. They wanted to live with the common man and live their common touch. With Jamie’s past he needed that. He wanted no more parts of his past life and the horrors it had brought him.

Jaime and Brienne knew that hard decisions would need to be made when her father passed on. Hopefully, that would be many, many years into the future. The man was still hale and strong. He was a wise and just ruler. Long may he reign Brienne would say and Jaime whole heartedly agreed.

Jaime always gave the old horses some sugar cubes when they pulled up to the walkway to their cottage. The horses’ ears flicked in anticipation their lips rippling. Jaime laughed at the horses’ memories of the treats awaiting them at the Tarths. Jaime and Brienne took turns giving the horses their treats so the horses would take a liking to both of them. They patted and combed their fingers.
through their manes. The horses shook their heads in pleasure. Jaime smiled. He liked being gentle with all around him now. His wife and children were bringing out the best in himself. Jaime liked it.

He still sometimes woke up at night unsettled. Half remembered dreams that upset him. His memories of past horror still at times waked him with sweat soaking his body. Only Brienne’s comforting arms could bring him peace. He felt safe with her love and her adore for him. Jamie Lannister had finally discovered simple pure love. Cersei’s love had always come with a price.
Jamie could now see both his and his sister’s faults. He longed to atone for his past failures.

Aden would whisk his leads getting the horses in motion for the thirty minute journey down from the foothills to the west coast of Tarth. They enjoyed the soft jostling of the carriage. Jaime always remembered to inquire of Aden on how he was doing “How is life treating you cuz?” Jaime asked Aden his customary question.

“I am doing well Jaime of Tarth. How are those two bundles of trouble doing?”

“They are being their mischievous selves. You know taking after their mother” Jaime said with a smirk as his sweet beautiful wife glared at him and he smiled back with a smug look. He loved tweaking his wife in public. She always glared or blushed at him and then fucked him to complete exhaustion in retaliation. He could live with that. He waggled his eyebrows at his wife and held up his first two slightly separated fingers and licked up and down between them. Brienne blushed furiously. Gods he loved going down on Brienne’s sweet wet pussy. Its heat and wetness heavenly on his face and her cum so sweet as it gushed out her spasming cunt as she wailed in hard orgasm.

Brienne continued to blush mightily. Jaime laughed. His children turned to look at their mother who only blushed more. “Are you hot mommy?” Breanna asked seeing her mother’s flushed face.
Brienne tried to explain her flush away as Jamie chuckled at her. Brienne glared at him and then smiled softly. Yes, tonight would be very entertaining Jamie thought to himself. His cock jumped in happy anticipation. Gods Brienne sucked dick so good and did deep throat like a Lysian whore. He loved cumming in her throat underneath her Adam’s apple as she choked on his spurting cock. Yes tonight would be hot and nasty.

They moved down to the coast. Jaime enjoyed the sights as he always did. The tree boughs overlapped the roadway their limbs intertwined forming a canopy of green. The wind gentle and warm making the leaves rustle. He heard birds chipping and warbling. He would see brown arrows with colored markings flitting in and out the boughs taking meals to their crying chicks. The sounds of cicadas loud in the air. A few colorful butterflies flitted down the green magical tunnel.

Jamie always felt like this was some magical tunnel that lead to fantastical lands. He closed his eyes and felt the breeze on his face. He enjoyed the soft subtle motions of the carriage and the soft nickering of the horses. He heard rustling and opened his eyes. He saw his daughter crawling off her mother and moving unsteadily on the floorboard of the jerking carriage towards him. He held out his arms to his smiling child.

Jaime helped Breanna climb up his leg and she stood up beside him on the seat bench. She stuck her tongue out at Brandon who was scooting off the other bench he and his mother were sitting on. The jostling carriage making his gate unsteady as he stumbled over to Jaime. Brandon started to climb up but fell on his butt with an umpf.

Breanna looked down at her brother gnawing her lip until he got back up and started climbing up his father’s leg after his sister. She squealed and stuck her tongue out again. Back and forth the happy twins worked around the carriage as their parents looked on happily.
Jaime for the countless time thanked the gods for Brienne and their children and his second chance to be a husband and father.

They had started to visit the coast twice a week, sometimes thrice, three months ago. They had received a raven from the Queen. She spoke some of the preparation for war with the North though Jaime and Brienne could read between the lines. She was up to something. They both had knowledge of Eddard Stark and could not see that man committing treason.

Jaime had been afraid she was going to ask him or him and Brienne both to join her on her quest to the North. Instead she had asked them to keep an eye on a new restaurant that had just opened there on Tarth. It was the Sapphire Isle Seaside Grille. The queen said that the owners were very important to her. That alone had Jaime and his wife’s curiosity peaked. They had so see who these “very important” persons were.

They had taken their children down to the shore the next week. They had been very pleased by what they found there and had been regular customers since. Jaime was afraid he might need to hire a smith to make a new suite of armor if he continued to eat there the food was so good. He was sure his daily sparring sessions with Brienne would see that did not happen. That and at night fucking his sweet wife repeatedly. Their trysts of hot nasty sex so satisfying. Gods Brienne was so athletic and demanding in bed. Her sweet shy demeanor disappearing when the fuck hunger was burning in her veins.

Aden dropped them off in front of the restaurant. Jaime took his children from Brienne and watched his wife easily jump down. She would never accept a hand to get down. She stood looking around and Jaime felt smug knowing that she was looking for any troublemakers to protect her husband. Jaime found it was nice to be taken care of like this. Few dared call him Kings Slayer anymore. Many a man had lost teeth from his wife’s knuckles for the mistake of saying that in front of her. He had no problem with his wife kicking anyone’s ass in defense of his supposed honor.

It warmed his heart with how the Queen had laid to rest the taint of Kingslayer. She had fully forgiven Jamie. She had told Jamie by raven she would work to curb the slur in King’s Landing. All in her service would correct any who spoke the slur. They would be given the true reasons why he killed Daenerys Targaryen’s father. Over time the call of Kingslayer would lessen. Brienne would take care of matters till then.

Jaime paid the man handsomely for his service of his excellent cab. They would eat at the eatery and then do some shopping and go down to the beach. The man would see if could find any local business while he waited for the Tarth’s to be ready to head home in five or six hours. As long as he was ready to take his family home Jamie was happy for the man to earn some extra coin. Jaime genuinely like the man.

Jaime and Brienne had paid Aden well from the start. Aden now had plenty of money to keep his little cottage up and feed his three little pugs that enjoyed their now high end repasts their father could afford to give them each night now. The man enjoyed the company of his fares with his sweet wife having died ten years past.

Jaime and Brienne sat at table in the front of the establishment. They were sheltered from the sun by the blue awning that had medium white strips running down the tarp like material. The restaurant had special chairs designed for toddlers and small children. The seats and height of the chairs sized for their bodies and sitting them up high and had special cutouts for their legs and straps to keep them secure in the devices. Kensye the mother of Laina Baerley called them “high-chairs”.

Said mother came to them and made small talk as she took their orders. The children had cut corn on the cob, green beans and popcorn shrimp broiled. Brienne ordered broiled salmon and a baked Jaime had a surf and turf with a large fresh salad and hard boiled eggs diced in. The service as usual was exemplary.

They heard Kelia calling out to Laina that she needed her help for a moment in the kitchen. The fish monger rose from her station she now shared with Grandin Phyre who had arrived from King’s Landing three weeks ago. They had made enough to pay his fare to their new home. He had worked with them at their low end barely there business near the River Gate or the Mud Gate as it was more commonly called. They had had no resources to get ahead in that small run down establishment.

The two owners were about to bring Darran Stout from King’s Landing. As their business and profits grew they could now afford to take on this man who had worked part time at their old establishment. The owners knew and loved the man’s work ethic and honesty. They hoped to bring in the last two who had worked part time in a month. They would be working full time now and be well paid as they deserved to be. They were about to start operating for dinner cliental. Business was doing very well.

Laina and Kelia wanted to help as many of their former co-workers as possible. Soon they would have brought all in from King’s Landing. They wanted to help them as the Queen had helped them. The rest of the staff they were hiring from people seeking employment and wanting to break into the restaurant business.

Husband and wife watched Laina hurry back to her wife. Jaime and Brienne both leaned over to look at the call out window between the inside restaurant and kitchen. Sure enough the two were snooging with Laina swooning as her wife tried to remove her tonsils with her tongue.

Finally, Laina’s mother had to break it up so Laina could get back to work at her station and Kelia could cook. The mother smiled at the two and their obvious love for each other. So did Jaime and Brienne. They had no idea why the Queen favored them but it was obvious they were thriving.

They saw Grahar working with his smile big on his face. He was about forty with the mind of a six year old. He loved his work and they had him busing the tables and taking food out of the kitchen. The Tarth’s had been impressed to learn that they had “adopted” the simple man and he lived on the first floor with Laina’s mother.

The second week Jaime and his family had visited the man had tripped and spilled his dishes and eating utensils out of his carrying box. He had looked so afraid and started to cry. It pulled at Jaime’s heartstrings. He and his wife started to get up as their children looked on from their high seats. The three women and their other employee Graige Mertyns had quickly moved over to the sobbing man and worked to reassure him and helped him gather the utensils and picked up the broken dishes. They again and again patted him and told him not to worry. Grahar had sensed their love and forgiveness and the radiant smile returned to his face. He resumed his duties with his smile firmly back in place.

Jaime and Brienne looked at each other. These were genuine people. The queen had chosen to help good people.

Laina and Grandin cut and gutted fresh fish that was delivered every other hour. Laina was a blur sucking oysters and clams while the man was a master at preparing Geoduck Clams. He would cut off the siphons that could be up to three feet long and then cut open the shells to get at the meat on the inside.
The siphons then fried were quite tasty Brienne said.

They were enjoying their meal. Jaime asked Laina how business was doing. She spoke to them her shaggy hair over her eyes did not hid the gleam in them. She was in heaven she told them. She had told Jaime and Brienne several time with a dreamy look in her eyes how she had never thought that she would ever have Keila in her life as her wife. She was always certain that one day her noble born parents would discover their daughter’s dalliance with her and marry her off to some man far away for spit. That fear had been permanently removed.

Jaime and family continued to eat in contentment as he and his sweet wife talked about this and that and how they needed to clean clothes when they got back and make sure the corn rows were weeded.

“Well, well if it is not the King’s Slayer himself.” Jaime looked at Brienne who had gone from soft and smiling to hard and stone faced in an instant. Jaime motioned with his eyes for her to stay put.

He turned to look at the large man with a double headed battleax strapped to his back. He had a large beard and arms like tree trunks. He was missing several teeth but it only enhanced his ugly features.

“That be me cuz. Now that we have introduced ourselves you can move on.”

“How much bravery does it take to run a sword through an old man from behind?” The man looked smug with his feeble humor.

Jaime made a motion of putting his finger tip to this chin a look of concentration on his face.

“Not much really.”

“You got a smart mouth asshole.”

“Why thank you.”

Brienne started to get up. Jaime motioned for her to sit down. “Please sit my dear. We don’t need your knuckles all swollen up again.”

“You are a coward to have your woman do your fighting for you. I ought to sm—arrggghhhhh!”

The man collapsed down to one knee. His right leg was pinned to the ground with a foot jammed in behind the knee and pressing in with brutal force. Two small hands had fistfuls of the man’s long hair. The man tried to jerk his head but the hands jerked the man’s head violently forward and back snapping the man’s neck stunning him.

Jaime looked into the light grey eyes of a small teenage girl with hair pulled back in a high ponytail and with several curled strands of hair hanging down on each side of her head in front of her ears. The girl had on a blouse with a vest strung up over it and combat breeches and combat boots. Her face in a snarl.

Jaime’s eyes went wide and he felt his balls shrivel. Behind the girl stood a monstrous Direwolf. My gods Jaime thought! They indeed are monstrous. Brienne had stood up and went to grab for her long dagger at her hip.

“That won’t be needed” came a calm voice they had heard before.

The Queen stepped out from behind the short woman being three inches shorter than the fierce girl.
The Queen stepped up to the man that had his head jerked savagely to face the Queen by the snarling girl.

Daenerys lowered her head to make hard eye contact with the man. Her face several inches in front of the man.

WHACK!

The queen whipped her head forward head butting the man with savage force. The man cried out in pain and his eyes went unfocused. He was definitely lightly concussed Jamie judged.

“I am finally allowed to take Arya out with me on Drogon and you ruin it for us. Apologize to Jaime nicely or I will to have actually hurt you now.” Jamie looked at his Queen. She had snark. He liked Daenerys the more for it.

The stunned man slurred out an apology to Jaime with his eyes crossing from his concussed state.

“ Arya let the man up.”

The fierce brown haired teenager released her hold on the man. The Queen then jerked the groggy man up off the ground and dragged him unceremoniously to the entry door to the restaurant. Then the Queen and her companion were through the door still dragging the stumbling behind them. The Queen jerked the large man to the street and pushed him down it. The man stumbled to his knees. He wobbly staggered up and started to move down the road in a nonlinear manner.

“Remember your manners next time or I will let Nymeria piss all over you!” Daenerys sent the man off. The man hurried down the road with Nymeria looping behind the man her tongue hanging out drooling as the man kept looking over his shoulder worriedly. The Queen walked back to Jaime and Brienne’s table with a soft smile for them and a loving smile for Arya.

Jaime and Brienne looked at each other. The royal hostage, Arya Stark. They had heard of her and that the Queen was in love with her. Now seeing them together, it was obvious Daenerys was in love with the quiet Stark. They looked back at the Queen.

“Could you join us your highness.”

“Why thank you.”

They spent several minutes making small talk while the three women owners fretted and looked anxious.

Finally, Kensye approached.

“Is-is all well my Queen?” with a fearful tone.

Daenerys smiled her most winning smile at the woman putting her at ease.

Daenerys called out the two young women. The Queen introduced them to Arya Stark and asked them how business was. The women quickly relaxed realizing that the Queen had not come to end their fairy tale.

Daenerys and Arya ordered their fare and joined the Tarth’s at their table. The Queen was her usual charming self. Arya was polite and gradually warmed up to the strangers.

Jaime eyed the pair seeing how they often touched each other to make a point and instinctively leaned into each other without realizing it.

Brienne touched his leg with her hand squeezing it. Yes he saw it too. Their initial impression had been correct. The Queen had fallen in love.

Their meal arrived and the owners doted and waited around the table until Daenerys laughed and told them she did not need any more assistance than any other of their customers. “Please treat me like anyone else.” The owners left but Jamie watched them constantly checking to make sure the Queen had no wants unfilled with their service and cuisine.

They all ate in easy comradery and gentle conversation.

The children finished and were let down. They gravitated to Daenerys and looked at her white hair and purple eyes never seeing the like before.

“Stop being rude Bre and Bran” Brienne admonished the two staring children.

“Oh please Brienne—let them stare” Daenerys told Brienne. She picked up Brandon and handed him to a startled Arya while she picked up Breanna and put her on her leg. Arya followed suite unsurely. The two young women laughed bouncing the children on their knees. The two children started to play with the royal’s clothes and tug on their hair as they giggled.

Jaime and Brienne looked at each other again. The Queen and her ‘royal hostage’ would make excellent parents.

The great Direwolf came back looping lazily up to the table and stuck her mighty head between Arya and Daenerys to have her ears scratched. The two women absently reached out do as requested by the huge wolf. The wolf got a look of pure contentment on her face. The direwolf turned her head left and licked Brandon’s face and then turned her head and licked Breanna’s face. They had looked slightly worried until they felt the Direwolf’s raspy tongue lick their face. Now her children were giggling and petting the massive wolf’s head happily. The wolf eating up the attention.

Jamie saw that his children were hooked. He sighed knowing that they would be demanding their own Direwolf at their home. Like you could go out to the woods and just find one.

Daenerys made eye contact with both Jaime and Brienne.

“I know you have heard I am about to move North to either quell rebellion or fight the Ice King at the wall.”

Jaime was shocked that the woman spoke so frankly to them. There was no mention of the Ice King in the Queen’s missives to Brienne’s father which in turn were related to his daughter and her husband.

The Queen gave them a brief summary of her knowledge and her plans.

“Are you hear to ask me and my wife to go with you to the North my Queen. I am your loyal subject and will go wherever you ask but I would ask—“

“Enough of that shit Jaime Lannister!” Jamie sighed. His sweet foul mouthed wife had sensed what he was about to say. Normally, Brienne was sweet and placid until she felt Jaime was about to try and shelter her from harm he would put himself in.

“I told you never to call me by that name Brienne.”
“Where you go I go!”

Jaime sighed.

Daenerys broke in “Yes I want you to come into my service but not as you think.”

Brienne and Jamie looked at her with confusion.

“I have all the forces I need for the upcoming war.” She saw both mighty warriors bristle. She held up her hand to forestall any rancor. “What I mean is that two more swords no matter how mighty will not sway events to the North.”

“I am taking my most trusted swordsman with me to the North. I need two swords in King’s Landing I know I can trust to stand guard over my Small Council and especially Tyrion your brother and Olenna. I know I can trust you two with their lives. Will you go to King’s Landing and defend my realm from possible sedition from within.”

“I will be leaving my rear weak to meet a menace that threatens the whole realm. That man called you King’s Slayer. That was a lie. You were Life Saver. Your actions prevented the murder of tens of thousands of innocents at the hands of my mad father.”

“I know I can trust you to defend the realm no matter the cost.”

“Can I ask you and wife to forego for a time your idyllic life here? I will find someone to maintain your homestead in your absence. I would love to have your laughing children underfoot. Come to King’s Landing. The realm once more needs your service Jaime Tarth and the equally mighty sword of Brienne of Tarth.”

“Join me in defense of the realm.”

When she phrased it like that how could anyone refuse? He looked at his wife. The barest tilt of the head and look of resolve was Brienne’s answer.

“We accept my Queen.”

“I would be honored to serve the great Breaker of Chains!” Brienne’s clear soprano voice range out. The other patrons were looking at them in awe. They started to clap. The queen looked back at them with affection while her tablemates colored red in embarrassment.

The owners tried to get the Queen to not pay but she refused to hear of it. She left the fare and a handsome tip.

The Queen and royal hostage left walking with their shoulders brushing. Why they weren’t holding hands Jaime had no idea. He saw Brienne smiling at him.

“Don’t worry husband. They will consummate their love soon enough. Looks like we will be going to King’s Landing.”

Jaime sighed “So it would seem my dear wife.”

“I can’t wait.”

“Why in the world do you say that wife?”

“So we can go and make happy memories their sweet husband. You deserve to go there and be honored.”

“Yeah right” Jamie spoke in a sardonic tone. No matter what the Queen said he doubted he would ever be able to live down his past. The lie had lived to long.

“Trust me my husband. The Queen would not be having you to return to King’s Landing if she did not mean to have your reputation restored. We saw what just happened to gap tooth. Let us go and find our destiny Jamie of Tarth.”

Jamie had to admit when she put it like that it seemed like a pretty good idea. It had been a long time. It would be nice to serve a King or Queen who was actually worthy of the title. Finally, Jamie understood what it meant to serve someone who deserved such service.

Queen Daenerys Targaryen had two mighty new swords in her service.

Daenerys

Arya had become poetry in motion with her swords. That was the only way that the Queen could describe Arya with her swords now. She used her broadsword with her left hand meeting the slashes and thrusts of Barristan. He had been hammering her dominate hand for weeks building up her strength. Even with his age, his strength had not diminished one iota. Daenerys knew. Her arms often ached after fighting him.

Barristan was about strength and savage attacks and muscle memory to make parries and blocks. Daenerys was right handed pure and simple. She could use her left hand in a desperate move to get back to her dominate hand. She had tried to use her left hand but it was useless really. She willed her hand to strike but it was weak and uncoordinated.

This was not the case with Arya. Syrio had first noticed that the girl while weaker on her right hand side seemed to have the coordination and sense of her left hand side. Where the sword felt awkward in Daenerys left hand Arya was comfortable with her right hand. Barristan brought out a parchment and quill and asked Arya to write her name with her right hand. She did easily.

When they asked her about how she could do that she told them she sometimes liked to do things right handed just for the fun of it. She had the ability but had never really developed it. That had now changed. Barristan and Syrio had her shooting her bow right handed and spending one hour using her right hand as her dominate hand.

All had been greatly impressed how quickly Arya developed her skills with her right hand. Barristan had Arya block his sword strikes with only her left hand. Her strength increasing quickly and dramatically. When Barristan attacked her when she used both hands on the hilt he had her meet his strikes with equal force. She surged into his strikes when head on only deflecting and shunting to the side when it brought tactical advantage.

All had been greatly impressed how quickly Arya developed her skills with her right hand. Barristan had Arya block his sword strikes with only her left hand. Her strength increasing quickly and dramatically. When Barristan attacked her when she used both hands on the hilt he had her meet his strikes with equal force. She surged into his strikes when head on only deflecting and shunting to the side when it brought tactical advantage.

With one hand on her hilt Barristan trained her relentlessly to divert and use his body’s force and momentum to shunt him off balance and deflect his attacks as much as possible to the side. He did not press the attack but trained Arya to instinctively know how to meet his savage attacks. Barristan’s speed and strength had not diminished with age. If anything his savvy and cunning had only made him more dangerous.

His training had started to payoff. She was now able to meet his attacks with her left hand blocking and parrying his attacks. She used her broadsword to blunt his attack and now needle in her right hand was counterattacking with lightning speed with deadly thrust aimed at his head or heart or slashing that would open his side.

Barristan met her attacks but the strange attack style had him cautious and on the defense. You almost never met a sword fighter who used both hands. It was said that Arthur Dayne was such a man. When Arya fought Syrio now she had an advantage. With her two swords she had the Water Dancer on the defense. His defense blunted her attacks and shunted her off balance but with her second hand now with a weapon on offense and her unnatural reflexes she met all his counterattacks with attacks that countered his attacks.

Syrio was like a whirling dervish with his rapier lashing out and making sudden thrusts but Arya would block all of them and lash back at him with her broadsword followed with a timed thrust of her needle and have the water dancer again leaping back in defense.

Daenerys enjoyed watching her Arya fight her sword masters to a draw.

She herself now found herself hard pressed fighting the girl. She had railed at Arya on her holding back. Arya would demure and looked abashed but Daenerys impressed on Arya that she needed her best in her service.

Daenerys explained to the Stark girl in an awkward stilted manner that she was a poor sport and bad loser but to try and not take it personally. Daenerys was not egotistical but admitting any fault was so hard for her. She wanted to always win but she had long ago accepted that her talents were many but like her brother Rhaegar she was gifted and talented in many things but not supremely physically gifted in any one thing. Thus, her brother’s defeat on the Trident.

Daenerys saw that Arya needed encouragement in their fights against each other and gave it. She shouted out good strike or counter when Arya unbalanced herself and yesterday she had gotten through Daenerys defense to land a solid strike on her right ribs. It had stung like hell and made her stagger.

Arya had cried out she was sorry but Daenerys held up her hand. “Well done Arya! With you by my side I will feel safe. I may have to make you my Queensguard”.

Daenerys had thrown it out as a light hearted rejoinder but she also did it as a test.

She saw Arya’s chest swell and she told Daenerys she would be honored to be her Queens Guard. She had a big smile on her face for the rest of the practice and she did not get through the Queen’s defenses.

Arya’s skill, speed and strength was improving the Queen’s own skills.

Today Daenerys had blocked all of Arya’s attacks and actually put her on the defensive several times. Arya’s two sword defense was quite deadly. One was not used to being attacked by two blades at once! She redoubled her attack going after the smaller sword. The lack of size and weight of that sword gave Daenerys an advantage as Arya had to constantly side step to the right to bring her broadsword into play to shore up the defense from that side that Daenerys kept launching.

Syrio praised Daenerys profusely for figuring out a weakness to Arya’s attack style. That made Daenerys preen herself.

After the practice session Arya was rotating her left arm again. It did not bother her all the time but Daenerys always kept her stoppered bottle of liniment oil ready. She offered to rub it into Arya’s shoulders. The girl smiled gratefully and turned her back and lowered her blouse top enough for her Queen to rub the oil she heated by rubbing her hands together.

The girl relaxed and seemed to become boneless under the Queen’s hands. Daenerys hands ached to touch so much more of the girl. She had learned her limits. She had practically thrown herself at the girl and she had not reacted to the Queen’s overtures. It had hurt being rejected like that. Daenerys had started to fool herself that the girl was feeling the attraction that the Queen was feeling but that afternoon had convinced the Queen to stop wishing for the impossible.

Daenerys reluctance to ever put a woman through what she had endured at thirteen limited her actions. She knew what it was like to have the sanctity of one’s body violated. The Queen found herself vacillating with Arya. She would be convinced the girl felt nothing for her one moment and then the next she thought maybe she does want me but is too shy to fully show it. The Queen’s swinging emotions and lack of surety were keeping her in a conundrum.

The Queen sighed. If only the girl would give her clear signs and actions that she indeed want the Queen’s advances. Daenerys needed to be sure. She did not want to ruin any forming nascent feelings the girl may be forming for her.

Arya would probably meet some dashing knight and tire playing the part of Queen’s Guard knight in training. She dug her strong fingers into the girl’s shoulders and loosened the girl’s muscles as she leaned back into her hands. The girl obviously enjoyed the massage. Daenerys could only wish that the girl wished it was a prelude to seduction and lovemaking.

All too soon she had to stop touching the girl for she had worked all the muscles loose. Syrio felt like a run among the streets of King’s Landing and took Arya along. He was always working on Arya’s cardio making sure the girl’s stamina was at elite levels.

Arya had seemed to want to stay with the Queen but Daenerys did not want to be selfish of the girl’s time. She felt it was very important for her to help the girl become all she was meant to become. She and the two sword masters agreed that Arya was going to be their equal soon. She had indeed inherited all of her father’s skills and instincts with the sword. With that innate ability had come strength and reserves that matched Daenerys. The Queen knew that Barristan and Syrio had discussed her unnatural abilities but long ago accepted them as destiny. They had years ago accepted the same in their Queen.

It was nice to know that Arya had the same unnatural abilities. Arya was so perfect for her that it hurt the Queen sometimes. She had always wanted since she started her conquest a strong woman by her side. A woman not hardened by life and combat yet. The Queen wanted a woman who was still capable of feeling wonder and seeing the beauty of the world.

Arya was all those things. The Queen knew she had to fight falling more deeply in love with girl. The girl did not feel the same emotions in return. The Queen had come to understand that for Arya she would challenge all for her hand. She sighed to herself. The Queen had to stop fooling herself. She was already deeply in love with the girl.

She had thought of the words of Tyrion. Maybe Westeros would accept her right to have a Queen as her consort. For Arya she would indeed challenge and fight the Houses to love her. Daenerys paused in her thought. It was a quandary. She would not destroy the realm like Robert had for Lyanna who she was sure did not love him in return. Would she go into exile for Arya? No! She would make the realm accept the right of people to marry whom they would like. At that time she would also establish the right of equal primogeniture.

If only Arya would give her a sign! Daenerys knew she had to be very careful with her emotions. She could not let herself fall hopelessly in love with the girl. Why did she keep saying that when she already was.

The Queen reached over and got her oil to polish her sword to its deep blue luster. She started to pull her sword out its sheath. The bright blue of the Rune Sword springing to life. She remembered this morning how she and Arya had been rubbing Nymeria’s belly with their hard digging fingers. The wolf’s head lulling back and forth her tongue hanging out. Arya looking up at her with those grey eyes that were full of light and laughter.

Daenerys pulled her sword out thinking how beautiful Arya was and so full of life. Her sword glowed its ethereal blue ghostly glow. The penumbra both bright and yet almost fragile. She looked down at her sword and gasped. She pulled the sword up looking at the runes and the two entwined ouroboros. She felt tears running down her cheeks. It was too late. She was already deeply and completely in love with Arya. Her sword confirmed it.

She put the sword across her legs and started to work the oil into the metal to give it the ultimate sheen. Deanery’s tears fell down her cheek and onto the blade to mix with the oil as she worked her cloth in small circles.

The runes that were visible when she pulled her sword from its scabbard now danced sensually beneath her gaze. The words of love that Rhaenys had spoken to Visenya wavered and danced. The motions both sensual and evocative to the eye. The ouroboros now danced and writhed around each other as the snakes did a tight slithering mating dance. Daenerys cried softly with how beautiful the dance of ghostly ruins and snakes were.

Daenerys felt her shoulders shake with her silent sobs. She was thankful that no one was there to see her distress. The craftsman had been too great. The sword was perfectly tuned to her emotions. Her love for Arya had brought the runes fully to life.

Daenerys had noticed of late out of the corner of her eye movement from her sword when she polished it. She often thought of myriad things when she sharpened and polished her sword. She thought of her coming campaign. She thought of the other matters facing her kingdom, all the problems she wanted to tackle. She thought of Essos and how to reshape that land and fully replace the horror of slavery. She would also think of Arya.

When she would catch movement out of the corner of her eye and focus her thoughts the runes would appear as normal. Glowing strongly blue but with no movement. Her wondering and intertwined thoughts masked her heart.

The Queen closed her eyes and slowly suppressed her love for Arya. Then Daenerys focused on the problems facing her at the Wall and beyond. She focused on troop movements and shipping schedules. She thought of battle tactics and her swordsmanship.

Daenerys looked back down and saw that the runes were again still. She washed away the subterfuge and let her love for Arya wash over her. The runes instantly started to shimmer and then dance with an alluring sensual sway. The ouroboroses again danced in their circle and now Daenerys saw how the bodies slide one over the other the heads caressing the body of its mate.

Yes. Daenerys Targaryen was madly in love with Arya Stark.

Later that day Daenerys was tense on the iron throne. She had come to grips that she was hopelessly in love with Arya. The girl did not feel the same way towards her but she could not stop her love for the girl from the North with the fire and the spirit of the wolf in her veins.

Daenerys could in time she felt find peace with that. She would have too. She looked over and down at the ‘royal hostage’ as she stood with Barristan. She looked up at Daenerys and smiled and waved at the Queen. Daenerys felt her pulse hammer in her veins. God she loved that girl she freely admitted now.

She gnawed her lip. Maybe I should actively woo her. That would have to wait till after the campaign in the North. She must achieve victory so there would be a time to woo the girl. Gods could only hope that she might be at least a little bit receptive and that Eddard Stark would not forbid it.

She could not see him allowing it but she had to hope that the man was as noble in the future of his children as he was with his realm and his governance.

Those were an issue for another day. What had the Queen agitated was the arrival of Donadhor Orlolis the representative of the Iron Bank. He had signed the registry seeking audience with the Queen. His stated reason. “To call in the Queen’s personal loan.”

The Queen had given her pronouncements on the issues of her citizens making the Iron Bank representative wait till last.

Daenerys had squirmed on the throne restlessly. She fretted and wondered what in the world would be the demands of the Iron Bank. Of course they would make their demands known as she was preparing for war. Daenerys squirmed on the seat that seemed to be pricking her ass something fierce today!

Daenerys pinched her nose. She rotated her head on a neck that had gone stiff with tension and sighed.

“Send the Iron Bank representative in.”

As she waited she looked down at Arya. She was talking to Barristan and to Syrio who had join them. He normally avoided the trappings of government but he too wanted to hear the demands of the Iron Bank.

In the main throne doors stepped the Iron Bank personage along with two young squires.

The man was in his mid-thirties. He had dark hair and a light complexion. His face angular and to Daenerys his features seemed like a hawks. A hawk ready to pounce on its prey. He was dressed in a robe of dark burgundy with gold trim at the sleeves and bottom hemline. He glided on supple leather booties.

He came up before the throne and looked up haughtily. The Iron Bank was used to working from a position of strength.

“I have come to call in your debt Daenerys Targaryen first of your name. We helped you secure a contract with the Faceless men and now it is time for you make good on your debt.”

“What is it you want? You told me that it is not money you desire. You can have no part of my realm. It belongs to me and Westeros. What else could you want?”

“Arya Stark” was Donadhor Orlolis calm reply.

The throne room went instantly still.

Tyrion and Missandei on either side of the queen on the Iron Throne platform turned to look at her.
Slowly the Queen rose up from her throne silent. Her lilac eyes boring down on the Iron Bank man.

“Excuse me. She is not a slave or pawn to be given away. You know my stance on slavery.”

“This is true my Queen. We require her services. We would have used your skills but you have grown beyond what we need. You have truly become Queen of Westeros and maybe even of Essos. You have become too great for our needs. You are no longer a tool that can be used. You mere presence would cause alarm and ire where we need you to be. Your fame proceeds you. Arya can fulfill what you no longer can. She has developed into your equal and maybe superior in some things. We have a job for her to perform. She has the talents and skills we need.”

“No. I forbid it.”

“You signed the contract Daenerys Targaryen. You must abide the terms.”

“If I refuse?”

“Then we call in all your debts.”

“Then I will burn Iron Bank down to slag and as much of Braavos as necessary.”

“You may find that expensive.”

“You will find yourself dead.”

“Maybe. But if we call in your debt it will cause your kingdom havoc. It will throw Essos into chaos.”

“I have the wealth to survive. I will destroy your institution and kill you all.”

“We will form alliances with the crime families and throw all you have started to build into disarray. We will rouse the Sealords into open rebellion.”

“Your dragons are not as invulnerable as you may think Daenerys Targaryen.”

Slowly Daenerys started to reach for her sword by the side of the throne.

“I will go” a voice called out.

Daenerys head ripped around “I refuse to allow you go Arya!” the Queen nearly shouted.

Arya stepped forward.

“I will not allow bloodshed and possible war to ruin all that you have accomplished Daenerys.” Arya turned to the Iron Bank man with her cool grey eyes.

“If I accept this mission you will reduce the debt of Westeros to the Iron Bank by fifty percent.”

“Twenty percent.”

“Forty percent.”

Daenerys could not believe her ears. The Iron Bank must be desperate for Arya’s services. They had mentioned that they had thought of using her. Daenerys knew that what she and Arya had in common was their skill with the sword. But the Iron Bank did not fight wars. What did they have in mind?
“Thirty percent.”

Arya looked up at the Queen. They locked eyes. Daenerys felt her heart swell. Arya was willing to accept a mission that might be deadly without qualm to serve the Queen and the realm.

“Agreed” Daenerys spoke to the man.

“We do not have need of her services now. If you lose this war it will be of little import. We know where you must go and who you must fight. We wish you luck and our full support.”

Daenerys wanted to question further but was reluctant. This ‘request’ would reduce the crowns debt by nearly three million gold dragons.

“I have to ask. What can one woman do?”

“You and now Arya have skills that are unique and powerful. You both are cunning and wily. A situation has arisen in Braavos that requires the skills that the two of you possess. Alas, you have become way too famous to undertake a mission of stealth and subterfuge. This a problem that Arya does not share”

“She will journey to Braavos and take care of an issue for us. With her skills and talents she will succeed and come back to you Daenerys Targaryen. Then the two of you can then seek your destinies together. Long may your reigns last. Let your destinies bring forth a golden age.” The man bowed low to the Queen.

The man rose up. “By your leave?” the man asked.

The Queen granted it and he left with his silent entourage.

Daenerys slowly walked down the throne steps. She came before the Stark girl who had long ago captured her heart.

“You don’t have to do this.”

“Yes I do. We avoided a possible war that would have killed tens of thousands and also reduced the debt to the Iron Throne by thirty percent.” A big smile came over Arya’s face. “I would say that is a pretty good days work if I say so myself!”

Daenerys hugged Arya tight celebrating. This girl was everything that a Queen would hope to have in a mate. Daenerys picked up Arya and swung her around laughing.

If Arya ever showed in any interest in her she would reciprocate and take this wolf as her lover and Queen!

She would change Westeros. Change it for the better.

Olenna

Olenna walked along the gardens and fountains of Highgarden. She had spent most of her life within these walls. They were like a lover’s embrace. She walked slowly smelling the roses. That was not something she would be able to do in King’s Landing. It had its gardens but nothing like her current home. The very air was perfumed with the blooms of roses. Each breath a bouquet of intoxicating scents in her lungs. She smiled bending down to smell in deep the fragrance of a rose
She had seen Arya smelling the roses. She had forgotten to take pleasure in the small things of life. She moved forward slightly and took another deep breath from another rose. She was surprised that this mere simple act indeed brought her pleasure.

When had she forgotten this? Had she ever even known it?

She walked on. She looked at the two fountains in front of her. They were indeed exquisite works of art. One was three fishes with water spitting out of their mouths. The second was a griffin with its wings spread out and water pouring out his mouth. The statues made of bronze had the green patina around their mouths were the water flowed out of the works of brass. She had always found those patinas appealing for some reason. That splash of green on bronze.

She walked on. She looked up at the spires of the sept of Balor. The tall spires incased in gems and clear and colored crystal glass. The spangles of light reflecting off the spires were memorizing. The seven spires for the seven aspects of god were so beautiful. She had always been proud that a provincial capital could build and maintain such an exquisite architecture.

She took the steps up to a small balcony thirty feet up over the ground on the first wall of Highgarden. It was morning and the sun beat upon on her face. The roses were blooming heavily as they always did at this time of year. The next generation of tulips had come in.

The color yellow predominated but with a fields of red, blue and purple interspersed among the sea of yellow that surrounded the castle. Olenna looked at the rows of trees of the orchids off in the distance. The fruit from these trees went across Westeros to feed the people the fruits of Highgarden. The breeze was clean and pure here in Highgarden. She did hate the environs of King’s Landing and the smell sewers and piled up trash.

She knew that the Queen wanted to tackle this problem. Oleanna had heard that the daughter of Cersei Lannister along with Arianna Myrtell had come up with ideas to work on urban blight. Olenna wanted to see those plans. If you uplifted the lower economic strata that would then raise income and thus taxes to begin even more ambitious plans of urban renewal.

Olenna looked forward to taking on these challenges, but, she also had other challenges she wanted to meet. She wanted to take on the political intrigue that was sure arise as the new government took form. With Tywin Lannister around to stir up trouble and the priests of Balor already grumbling against the liberal mores of the Queen, Olenna knew she would have foes to oppose.

She looked at the carriage at the gate that led out of Highgarden. The gate that opened onto the Rosewood that led to King’s Landing. This new refurbished carriage would take her to King’s Landing. The Queen had sent Mace a raven two days after asking Olenna to join her in King’s Landing telling him that it was imperative that Olenna arrive in King’s Landing as soon as possible. She had sent plans to install “leaf springs” on a carriage to soften the ride.

Carpenters and wagon wrights worked feverishly day and night to refurbish a carriage that was used to transport the royals to the local holds in the Reach. Olenna had sat in the carriage when the workers rocked the carriage and the ride was indeed much softer with the new leaf springs installed. They were installing thick soft sponges below the benches overlaid with down feathers. Olenna was most pleased with the changes.

Olenna had had them to make her own changes to the carriage. She wanted to make changes to show her new allegiances. She would always do all she could for her ancestral homeland but she now needed to expand her vision. She talked to the lead carpenter foreman about her ideas. His eyes lit up at the idea of a new project and the blending in of new ideas on an old theme. He told Olenna he had always wanted to carve more than just “damn roses” and then looked chagrined and begged for his “lady’s pardon”. Olenna chuckled and freely gave it.

She told the man she was in a hurry to leave. Camren Hollard had laughed hard at that. “This is Highgarden the arts capital of Westeros. We will have your choices done in three days my lady.”

Olenna busied herself having all her clothes and shoes boxed and shipped out ahead of her. She had her favorite little furniture pieces sent as well along with her very specially packed items such as her dragon glass scrying bowl and liquid and other precious items to her she had accumulated over the long years of her life.

She marveled that her arthritis seemed to be feeling a lot better. The cramped pain she felt upon waking had gone. Her joints still ached after a long day but it was so much less. She was thankful. All the excitement and happiness flowing in her seemed to be keeping her infirmities a bay just a little bit more. Even her rheumatoid arthritic joints seemed to be straightening out a little and the knuckles she swore were less swollen. Yes she indeed felt better. Olenna talked to Mace and his wife and bid them good-bye in private away from the public. She made sure he understood she was only a raven away from her. If any problems vexed him he only need contact her.

He was very thankful. He was a little preoccupied at the time. Olenna couldn’t blame him. He was marching out in six days with the cavalry of Highgarden. He was only a middling warrior. She had instructed him to stay in the general’s tent and help plan the events. This was advice he was most eager to take. Not everyone was capable to being a great warrior like Eddard Stark.

Three days had passed since she gave Camren her instructions. She was leaving tomorrow and she wanted to see if her vision had been rendered into creation like she hoped. She had kept away not wanting to be a worrisome pest seeking after the work. She went to the artisan shops on the north quadrant of the lowest wall. She entered into the carpenter hall to the sounds of sawing and hammering.

Camren saw her coming and smiled ebulliently at her. Olenna felt her pulse beat a little faster. His smile told her that he felt that he had succeeded in bringing her vision to life. He took her to the back of the shop and she saw it and smiled radiantly herself.

The carriage followed the basic design with two large windows on each side with awning over them to provide shade. They opened from the middle and now folded back to be able to be locked to the carriage by hooks. The awnings now had red and black checkered panes interspersed with the green and yellows of Highgarden. The tassels hanging down now had pendants on the end of embroidery crewel. There was an inch of space between the pendants. Roses were predominate with yellow dominate but with added red, pink, orange and white to add beauty. Olenna had every fourth pendants made into various poses of the three dragons of house Targaryen. She had thought to have three direwolves hanging on each side also. She knew Daenerys would love the subtle acknowledge of her love for Arya. They weren’t married yet else there would have been as many pendants of House Stark as Targaryen.

The cabin of the main carriage was made of wood panels with dovetail borders. The outer panels were painted green with the insets of the panels painted yellow. Olenna had changed the crest painted on the door. It was now instead of large yellow rose it was a chain garland of yellow roses. On each side of the garland climbed a green and white dragon with their gold and bronze highlights. On top of the garland rode Drogon roaring his defiance. The garland showed her House but clearly showed it was subordinate to the Queen. She kept the borders the same with twisted garlands of carved, entwined roses painted mainly yellow but with red, pink and purple that made the garland seem like a riot of color.

It was the top of the carriage that Olenna had totally redone. Instead of the turrets of geometric patterns she had instead had the Titan of Braavos on one side and on the other a facsimile of King’s Landing. On the Titan was Rhaegal in a pose of fierce roaring and the same with Viserion on the Queen’s Keep his wings spread wide and head showing him trumpeting. The two dragons looked as if they were alive and ready to jump off the carriage and take flight. Their scales even in the dim light of the shop looked like they glowed. Their eyes were fired with passion and intelligence.

She had kept the central crest of the traditional crown of Old Highgarden, painted in gay colors of red, green and yellow. The jewels encrusted in their royal crown were real. She was of Highgarden after all but now the crest had Drogon crawling up one side his talons gripping the rose and his head now over the center of the rose. On the other side a massive grey Direwolf was scrabbling up the rose with ease so that its nose pressed into the snout of Drogon.

The three mightiest houses of Westeros all working together as one. With Margaery marrying Sansa of Stark and Arya marrying Daenerys the three Great Houses were indeed becoming one. She would be the first one to acknowledge the coming reality. She felt smug with all the brownie points she would be scoring with the Queen.

She hugged the master carpenter and gave him a bag full of golden dragons. He had tried to refuse saying he was only doing his job but he accepted her gift when she persisted. She liked leaving him with a big smile on his face. He had fully fulfilled her visions for her carriage.

The next day at two hours before noon she left Highgarden. She had two royal carriages following her with all of Margaery’s hens. Without her to protect them she feared that their fathers would attempt to override her orders and marry off the girls against their will. That would make her granddaughter distraught and she could not countenance that. She heard the girls behind her laughing and squealing. They were one happy brood of hens. They were literally flying the coop of bigotry and being married off against their will.

They had been so doleful when they heard that their benefactor was leaving them. They had actually broken down and wept when Olenna called them to her quarters. They hugged each other and wailed crying they were doomed. That had broken her heart and now she had a clutch of hens with her on her journey. The queen would approve with her proclivities.

The journey for the most part was uneventful for the day part. There were many inns and taverns on the Rosewood between Highgarden and King’s Landing to cater to the heavy traffic on the road. The improvements in the suspension of the carriage made the travel much more tolerable. The weather was good and they made good time on the road.

Olenna made sure her brood was up at dawn and went to the main tavern room and were fed and ready to travel by one hour past the rising of the sun. The royal carriages traveled at an average speed of about five miles per hour, with the total daily mileage covered being around sixty or seventy miles. Each day brought Olenna closer to her new destiny. She felt her pulse running hot in her veins at the new challenges awaiting her.

Margaery still had one of her Dragon Glass Eyes. Olenna still used it to spy on Margaery and Sansa and heard when it was worn some of Eddard’s war councils now that Margaery was sitting in many of the meeting. She was also treated to Margaery clucking over Catelyn Tully which made her blood boil seeing her granddaughter taking care of her rival in her pregnancy. It should have been her carrying Eddard’s children damnit. Olenna huffed at the unfairness of life. To be born too early!

With the two remaining Dragon Glass Eyes Olenna had asked Elinor and Lady Alyce if they wanted to wear the “pretty baubles”. They had been so happy to wear them preening with the pink stones at their throats. Olenna had given them hanging racks to put them on “to keep the shape” at night and suggested they put them in the dressers that the high paying customers and royals had for their use in the high end rooms at the hostels they were staying at during the nights.

Olenna had been well paid for her efforts. She would eat her dinner and take a nice sponge bath and put on a loose fitting night gown. She would then pour out her elixir into his scyring bowl and wait. Olenna made sure to always give the young hens adjoining rooms. The girls had their two rooms just down the hall from Olenna. They would laugh and gossip and play silly girly games when they first entered their rooms after their evenings repast.

Then the real fun would start. The girl were always horny and insatiable. It was nine hundred miles to King’s Landing and Olenna needed a distraction and boy did she get it.

The eight girls tore into each other every night. The three Tyrell’s and Septa Nysterica started off in one room with the Ladies Alyssanne, Alyce, Traena and Meredyth in the second room. Soon the clothes were hurriedly ripped off and the lesbian debauchery would commence. Bodies were entangled as mouths latched onto each other and the teenage girls snooged deeply. Arms and legs pulled naked bodies tight as they rolled on the beds or floor with tongues surging down groaning throats.

The sounds of deep snoogging filed the rooms. The first night Olenna had been happy to see the three Tyrell cousins devour the somewhat homely and pox marked Septa. They made the woman feel totally beautiful with their fervor for her body and coos of heartfelt love. They sucked the holy septa off and cooed how beautiful she was too them. They sucked her off again and again as the septa wailed and screamed in orgasmic bliss. The woman flopped around on the bed like a fish out of water shrieking her throes of passion. They devoured Nysterica’s quim and worked her heavy tits in a frenzy of lust and took turns tribbing face to face pressing down into the Septa’s voluptuous body as they would kiss her so deeply.

Olenna had come to find it beautiful the way two female bodies seemed to become one as one Tyrell or the other swirled her hips grinding their swollen muff into the septa’s twat and their groans swallowed by hungry devouring mouths. She loved seeing Nysterica’s thighs clenching slender hips and her arms looped over the back of her lover pulling the Tyrell down onto her stout voluptuous body.

The “Ladies” would be doing the same thing wolfing on sodden pussies over and over making each other wail and jackknife violently. Every night Olenna would hear the sound of the bed headboard hammering the wall to her bedroom and the muffled screams of women cumming so hard.

Olenna was definitely starting to come or was that cum around to the ways of lesbian love. The more she watched and masturbated to the hot intense lesbian murmur plays the more she craved the womanly body. Women just knew how to love a woman and when she would watch Elinor grind her pussy down into Septa Nysterica’s mouth and hump desperately until she was flipping wildly and the great vision of the dragon eye showed the hot cum flowing down the gulping Septa’s face and throat it made Olenna more and more a believer. The screams of shocking bliss only add to the fire of her new desires.

She still wanted Eddard Stark but he was denied to her both by age and marriage. Olenna had decided if she was ever to become young she would definitely be open to both sexes and maybe now prefer the fairer sex.

The girls always started out in the rooms with the same pairing but as Olenna watched and jilled off she would see cute naked sweaty rumps jutted out as the girls stuck their head out the doors and looked around to make sure the coast was clear and then run to the other room.

Olenna had learned how to move from dragon eye to dragon eye and move its focus. She could even have all three images in the bowl at once if she wanted. She used her skills to keep herself entertained.

They were now two thirds of the way to King’s Landing. Tonight she was treated to room one as she thought of it now with Elinor and the Septa on the rugs in front of the roaring fire dripping in sweat on their sides in hot sixty-nine devouring each other as they clawed hips and ass to drive sodden cunts into each other’s mouths. The Septa cummed first her screams roared into Elinor’s quim sending Elinor careening off the precipice after the Septa and her muffled screams sweet music to Olenna’s ears. Their thighs squeezed in hard on ears as their ankles kicked wildly and toes curled painfully.

Alla and Megga were on the bed with their groins locked together in classic scissors. Olenna knew all the positions now. They gripped legs and humped fiercely gagging and surging their sopping dripping snatchs into each other. Their faces desperate with fuck hunger. Olenna again observed how the female body was made to bond perfectly with another female body. Now Megga was shrieking her orgasm as her body jackknifed and flipped wildly until she was spent. Alla decoupled and kneed up the bed and jammed her drooling swollen couchie down into Megga’s mouth who immediately revived and quickly sucked her cousin off to screaming bliss. Olenna loved how Alla’s hands went down and gripped the back of her cousin’s head and jammed her face deep into her erupting gushing pussy.

That sent Olenna over the cliff as she lost it screaming not caring if her niece and cousins heard her or not.

She blearily changed focus in the scyring bowel.

She saw Meredyth sitting in a thick upholstered chair with her legs thrown up on the arms of the chair her shaved drooling clam shell fully exposed. Taena was on her knees in front of her like a septa in prayer leaned in and down. She was devouring her Meredyth’s sweet gash like a holy offering. Her head was rocking in and out with a mouthful of sweet pussy in her mouth as she gobbled it wildly. Meredyth had her hands clawed into her lover’s scalp her head thrashing. Meredyth’s head surged forward off the chair back and she screamed as if being flayed alive. Her upper body would shudder horrifically Meredyth’s medium sized breast jerking and jiggling as her body convulsed. Her body would snap back hard into the chair back and then surge forward again. Olenna watched these heavenly convulsions rip through Meredyth’s young firm body again and again as she wailed her shocking bliss.

Olenna was pumping her aching twat to visions of Meredyth’s eyes rolling back into her skull her eyelids up showing the whites jerking in helpless pleasure. Another orgasm had ripped through the teen’s body as her screams were nearly deafening as her cousin had swallowed her whole upper trim deep into her mouth and feasted on the slime drenched delicacy.

Of fucking gods that was so fucking hot Olenna thought her left hand now rubbing her clit and pressing in hard on the shiny nubbin. Meredyth’s cunt jumped up into Taena’s hot gobbling mouth. She was slurping and moaning drinking down the gushes of hot cum from Meredyth. Olenna had long ago discovered Meredyth was a squirter that all her fellow hens could not get enough of the sweet hot love juice. They loved drinking down all the sweet cum they could.

Olenna was getting worked up again working her muff. She saw Megga lying on the bed with Alysanne saddled up to her body with her head by the medium cup breast of Megga. She suckled on turgid nipples her hand in a wedge slam fucking the squishing cunt mound of Megga. She watched this for a minute with Megga mewling swirling her pussy up into the loving hard hammering thrusts.

Then Alysanne stopped and worked her thumb into Megga’s pussy and formed a fist in her trim and started to twist her wrist in deep into Megga’s hot tight pussy. Alysann went back to suckling on thick nipples as her fist rammed in home hard and deep. Alysann would release a turgid nipple long enough to coo to Megga “Cum on my fist baby—cum for your Alysann … I need to feel your cunt rupture on my fist baby.” Megga was clearly losing it as Alysann rotated her fist deep into her lover’s belly with powerful thrusts of pure love.

Olenna’s head rocked back over the chair back and screamed as she watched Megga cum so fucking hard her pelvis jolting and jacking up into Alysann’s fist pounding in deep riding up into Megga’s sloppy wet muff. Megga’s wet labia lips were riding up Alysann’s wrist nearly two inches with each lunging twisting thrust of Alysann’s fist up deep into her lover’s cunt and belly. Megga’s screams covered her own wails Olenna hoped.

Olenna wobbled to her bed after that and slept very soundly. Gods she loved fisting now!

It was the fourteenth day of her journey to King’s Landing down the Rosewood Road. Last night the hens had been insane fucking almost the whole night away. They had been prostrate most of the day when they made rest stops. Olenna had the royal steps put down and she slowly climbed up and smiled. The girls were sprawled out over each other clutching body parts and snoring softly.

She looked at Septa Nysterica with two Tyrell teenage girl’s heads resting on her bosom with their arms thrown over her and their mate. She would definitely have to work Nysterica out of the order. She had a new order now and did not need the Church to give her happiness. Her sweet brood loved the woman proverbial warts and all. Nysterica was one lucky young woman. The twenty-eight year old had seven wives in essence. Fuck the Church and their vows of chastity. The human body was designed to give and take pleasure!

///////////

They were an hour out of King’s Landing when she saw them on the horizon. Soon three dragons were flying over the carriages wildly bugling and lading beside the carriages bounding down the grass beside the carriages before again launching themselves into the air bugling. The horses were nervous but soon got used to the overt display of dragon exuberance.

Olenna slipped her head out the glass and looked back at the two other carriages and saw eight heads looking out as the girls oohed, awed and squealed. They would be wound up tonight and Olenna would be there with them with her dragon eyes. Olenna licked her lips in anticipation.

They were now at the main gates. A large section of trumpeters were aligned along the road and the played with verve and energy the traditional song of Highgarden “Yellow Rose of Highgarden” and “Love Among the Thornes.” The dragons alighted on the curtain wall and roared again and again fanning their wings.

Olenna was choked up again. All this pomp and circumstance was just for her and it touched her deeply.

She had here door opened form the outside and it was Daenerys and beside her Arya along with (her eyebrows rose up) Jaime Lannister along with Barristan and Syrio Feral. She saw a tall women who was not that pretty but the sword at her hip was deadly looking. It must be Brienne of Tarth. Jamie of Lannister—Olenna stopped herself. He had taken his wife’s last name. Her moths told her he was totally pussy whipped and loving it. The Queen never stopped surprising her. The King’s Slayer was obviously among her inner guard. It looked like Jamie was again part of the Queen’s guard.

Daenerys and all with her went on knee and bowed their head as Jaime then got up and came up the step to take her hand and guided Olenna down to the ground. The message loud and clear. The past was the past. Olenna had heard from her moths the true story now of why Jaime felt compelled to kill Daenerys father. The Queen understood and forgave and so would Olenna. Damn he was good looking she thought. She then saw Breinne of Tarth glaring at her. Oh-oh! She turned her eyes elsewhere.

People milled around greeting and talking. Olenna talked to Barristan and looked around for the Queen and found her. She was staring at a tall knight talking to Arya trying to put the blast on her. The Queen’s violet eyes were almost on fire. She stalked over and insinuated herself between the knight and Arya pulling the royal hostage to her body. The signal clear to all but Arya it seemed as the man bowed his head and moved off. Arya was mooning over the Queen but failed to see the clear jealousy radiating off the Queen for what it was. Arya belonged only to Daenerys Targaryen and the Stark girl in her innocence did not realize she had the mighty Queen wrapped around her small finger. There seemed to be a lot of that happening lately.

Not much longer now Olenna mused. The Queen would take her “hostage” as her lover and then wife soon enough.

Dany with Arya pulled to her body came closer to Olenna. The Stark looked like she had died and gone to heaven. Could the two be any more clueless Olenna mused? The merest suggestion from one to the other would have them in bed wildly fucking. Olenna smirked. She would let nature takes it course. She wished she could give the Queen a Dragon Egg to watch her and Arya have sex but she could not risk Daenerys Valyrian heritage somehow clueing her in on its true powers.

“I really like the carriage Olenna. I can see you are truly part of my dynasty now. I know I made the right decision even more. I eagerly await your valuable insights.”

Daenerys then walked off making sure to “protect” Arya from anymore unwanted advances from odious male suitors. Olenna shook her head. She was indeed changing her world view.

Tyrion came walking up to her and gazed up at her. “Pleasure to have you on the Small Council and Clatch of Confidents” Tyrion made a swatting motion around him “maybe you can do something about all the moths about?” he said with a smirk.

Olenna cocked an eyebrow. “I will work on it Tyrion. Maybe I will share about your misadventure on the beaches of Dorne. I heard you got sunburn or should I say dragon burn.”

Olenna smiled evilly seeing the small Lion of Lannister quickly deflate and looked around furtively.

“Aaaa ummm—I assure you that anything you may have heard is a gross exaggeration.” The dwarf looked up at her with vexation. He tried to puff out his chest but it was a pathetic effort.

Olenna clacked her teeth at the dwarf mimicking the Queen on that day on the beach of Dorne.

His eyes bulged out in alarm and he walked off quickly.

She saw his body guard laughing his ass off while he pulled on his formal shirt pulling the neck out like it was strangling him. “Run Dwarf! What the hell did she tell you man!” Bronn barked taking off after Tyrion. Olenna spied Shae laughing her young firm breast jiggling as she walked after her man and Tyrion. Laughing Shae called out “Why Tyrion, you’re running like you just got your balls clipped!” Tyrion flipped her off with the bird over his shoulder as he picked up his pace.

For all the good it would do him. The two walked easily beside Tyrion hurling abuse down which she could no longer hear but by Tyrion’s body language and tilt of his head said he was giving back as good as he was receiving. She wondered when Tyrion would find out the truth about Shae. She didn’t want him getting castrated by the whore but with Shae that was probably the opposite of what she would do to the dwarf.

Yes, Olenna was going to like it here.

Eddard

The King’s highway was full of traffic anymore. Eddard had troops and supplies constantly riding up the road. Lords were moving in mass now to the North. They were not questioning him with his decisions for which he was thankful. The Houses of Stark, Tully and Arryn working as one. With his “co-conspirators” he hoped he would entice the Houses of the South to come north and still avoid war.

The sun was setting as he slow walked his horse forward letting it rest. He was moving up from Winterfell for one last meeting with Jon. He needed to ask something of his son that he was sure that he would not like. It would put his wives in extreme danger. Speaking of wives he had something else to ask his son.

He walked his horse slowly forward. He looked at the long lines of trees to either side of the road back fifty yards from the road. The trees were old growth forest. The pines, firs and spruces rising to between one hundred and twenty feet for the pines to over two hundred feet for the other conifers. It seemed the boughs rested on each other like brothers in arms. He heard an owl hooting to his left. He looked up and saw two hawks circling slowly descending to their roost for the night.

The sun was starting to touch the tress now. The shadows reaching across the road like dark sentinels guarding the secrets of the world. Each dark ghost a mighty being from ages of yore. He moved from shadow to sun and back again with the shadow sentinels slowly gaining the upper hand. He knew he was getting close to where he had agreed to meet his son. They had agreed to meet several hours after night. They both wanted their coming and going in secret.

The wolves had started to howl. Then he heard a more powerful howl ring across the forest the trees swallowing the sound. Another Direwolf marched in the woods. Before his children he would have ordered a hunting party to hunt it down and kill it. Now he knew better. He was contemplating if he survived the war in enacting new laws to protect the Direwolf. He wondered if in hunting them to near extinction below the wall if man had removed something vital from the land.

Eddard got back on his horse and pressed in with his knees and moved forward at a medium cantor to move down the road. The stars were starting to show. The temperature was dropping and he was thankful for his wolf pelt cape. The trees always comforted Eddard. He knew they hid ancient secrets but they did not frighten him. He was of the North and bred to be at one with the mysteries of the North.

Eddard had also decided to begin a campaign of planting more Wierwood trees and creating the groves that had long disappeared. Jon Aryn had fully supported him. In the hidden vales of his land they were still plentiful and he too agreed that they needed to be repopulated in areas with man. It would encourage the faith too with the Seven Gods and now this R’hllor in the land.
Eddard had been doing much thinking of late. The Ice King coming back from the misty depths of ages past had led the Warden of the North to read the old tomes on the ancient history of the North. To try and glean any information he could from the past. He had found no clues that would help in his current fight with the enemy coming south to fight and try and annihilate him.

But he had found something else. He found written accounts and maps drawn from thousands of years ago. Much was the same and yet was not too. He saw that the forests though still mighty now were much greater in the ancient past. Man had preyed on the forests for wood for homes and fires. Forests chopped down for farms. Most of those farms abandoned as the land was depleted.

Once the Wolfwood had bordered the Barrowlands all the way to the Stoney Shores to the west. In the east of the north the Wolfwood had surrounded Winterfell to the north, west and east. The mighty forest had gone west through the southern range of the Sheepsheard Hills down to the forests that surrounded Hornwood.

The land was thinly populated. He had begun wondering if maybe that was the natural order lay of the land. He would not have to displace many homesteads and farms. And anyways this was a project that would take centuries to complete. Each season slowly restoring tress on the edge of the forest and have it slowly march to reclaim what had been taken from it.

He would contemplate his thoughts on this. He had talked to Robb and his son fully supported his father. He would love to further this plan and instill that love in his sons and daughters. First though, Eddard had a war to win. A war against an implacable foe.

Eddard heard a ripping sound and a low growl to his right. The sound of a bear tearing into a dead tree looking for grubs made him smile. He loved listening to nature. He rode on down the road listening to the pulse of nature and life all about him. He heard a badger digging into the ground tracking a mole. He moved on and felt the chill of the air. It would snow soon but not now. He looked up at the stars that glittered so far away and uncaring for the travails of man.

He looked down the King’s Highway and then behind him. Strange how there was so little traffic considering how much troop movements were occurring now and the moving of supplies to the North and the Wall. He felt the darkness seemingly growing thicker. The sounds of the forest of growing dim and distant. He looked to his left and right and the trees seemed far away as if across a sea.

Eddard had been studying many things. He found references to power of ancient magic and powerful beings. Vague though they may be he believed in them whole heartedly. The research that he had been doing with Master Luwin had opened the doors to Eddard’s mind. Eddard smiled at Maester Luwin doubting all references to magic. Eddard smiled at the dear friend’s denials. The man was trapped by his Citadel training. Eddard always believed in learning all he could no matter if it conflicted with his preconceived notions.

The darkness thickened till it seemed as if the air was thick with mysteries and ancient magic. He felt no fear. He trusted his instincts. He saw two hooded figures on the road ahead. He also believed in learning all he could in his allies no matter how foreign to his sensibilities.

He nickered to his horse and sped up to the two waiting figures. One was much larger than the other being three inches taller than himself. The other was much smaller at five foot maybe. He moved on with no fear.

“Hello Melisandre and Ygritte” Eddard spoke softly coming up to the silent waiting figures. They remained silent.
“You are not afraid?” the taller figure asked.

“No.”

The smaller figure spoke up “I told you Melisandre—Jon’s father fears no man or woman!”

“We are more than two women Ygritte.”

“You know nothing Melisandre. We have come to speak to you about your son Eddard Stark.”

“I am listening. I know you only have my son’s best interests in heart.”

The taller figure asked directly “Does it bother you that Jon has two wives?”

“Should it?”

“No.”

“Agreed.”

Ygritte huffed “Geez, you two sure know how to have a conversation. Short and boring conversations.”

“We don’t believe in your gods of the North” Melisandre intoned seriously.

“I don’t believe in R’hhlor.”

“Okay! Enough you two. Eddard Stark we know you come to ask Jon to ask for our aid. He will refuse but we accept the challenge and will convince your son of the need.”

“How do you know this? Your study of the flames?”

“So you have done some reading on us. I am impressed” Ygritte said smiling at the man.

“I have read on your faith and powers. I have read of your home far away. I assume these shadows that hide us from other travelers is your and Melisandre’s doing.”

“Yes. We wanted privacy. Jon is our husband and we support him fully and his calling. He is both of the North and of R’hhlor we will give our lives if necessary.”

“I only ask because it is necessary. We must fight as one against the Ice King. From what our Queen says he has formed an unholy union with some foul denizen from the deep.”

“Yes. The flames tell us it is a Croyel. A most fell demon. We have been spying on them for months. They have begun their march South. It is a slow thing but to us they come” Ygritte told Eddard solemnly.

Eddard sighed. He knew the Ice King was coming but it saddened him to actually hear it. War was coming. The ancient evil must be met and it must be defeated. “Can you show the forces coming north of the danger we face? Can you convince the Great Houses of what they face? Can this be done without danger to yourselves?”

Melisandre spoke up “No, the danger will be grave but we gladly assume it. We will fight the Ice King in our own way. Jon is Azor Ahai reborn and we are his wives. It is our destiny to oppose the Ice King. We will give you the evidence you seek. No matter the cost.”
Ygritte turned to look up the road. Melisandre looked up the road too. “Yes I feel him too Ygritte.”

They both turned to look at Eddard Stark and pulled down their hoods. In the dim light Eddard saw how beautiful Melisandre was. Her beauty radiant with her face backlight by the glow of her ruby glowing hotly at her throat. Ygritte was much more plain but her aura caste about her a glow that made up for her lack of innate beauty. Eddard knew all about that lack and yet his wife loved him all the same.

Ygritte asked “This we want to know. Why didn’t you tell Jon of his heritage? It was most cruel what he had to endure. This does not square with man we see in you. He has lived the life of a bastard and you suffered the shame as the father of a bastard when your whole life and service is exemplary beyond reproach. We do not understand.”

Eddard sighed. He deserved the questions. To his everlasting shame he deserved the questions.

“I wish I had some noble answer for you but I don’t. My dear sister begged me to take Jon and raise him as my own. She knew that Robert Baratheon would have had Jon killed in his jealous insane rage. I would have defended him to my death but in the end we both would have died. For his safety and for Lyanna’s request I accepted the shame of my supposed actions and I allowed Jon to endure what he did.

“I had had enough of war. I had seen the death of too many good men on the field of battle. I had seen the slaughter of innocents in King’s Landing. I was with my sister when she died. I helped kill a man many times greater than me. I am but a shadow of Arthur Dayne. I wanted to confront Robert Baratheon for his sins but I had had enough of war. I still do but I will fight again as I must.”

“When I left King’s Landing without confronting Robert the dye had been caste. I have laid in bed many nights staring up at the ceiling wondering if I should have taken Robert down. It would have been no certain thing with his skill with the war hammer, but, still, I know I would have won our confrontation. Then Jon could have lived his life as he should have.” Eddard paused and looked out over the ancient forest. “I was tired. That is all I can say. I had my fill of death at that time.”

“Maybe as the years passed I should have said something as Robert dissipated and became so much less but he never could see clearly on this.”

“I did not know Catelyn of course, twenty years ago. I had no way to see that she would react so badly to Jon’s bastardy heritage. We both suffered for my lack of courage but again if I had done otherwise we both would be dead long ago. I missed my opportunity to set a different path when I left King’s Landing with Robert on the Iron Throne.

“In the end I saw no recourse though it shames me to say it. I am only glad he knows his true heritage now. I can only hope he forgives me.”

Melisandre spoke for the witches “He only feels love for you Eddard Stark. There is nothing to forgive. You will forever more be the father of his heart. The flames hinted at this but we wanted to hear it from you. We have no animosity towards you Eddard Stark slayer of mist vampires.”

“What?”

“Our husband comes” intoned Ygritte. “We leave you to your son. He is a great man and Azor Ahai reborn.

A shadow cat roared off to Eddard’s flank. He whipped his head around. The beast sounded like it was on him! He scanned the tree line but he saw no eyes reflecting back at him.
He turned back to ask the witches about these “mist vampires” but they were gone. He snorted. Why wasn’t he surprised? The shadows were gone. He looked behind him and Eddard saw a farmer with an oxen cart moving down the road toward Winterfell. The cart must have passed him and Jon’s wives but he had not seen it. Nor had the cart driver seen them. He saw troops moving off the road to make camp.

Magic. He looked up the road towards Castle Black and saw a lone figure coming towards him. Eddard waited patiently for his son to reach him. His thoughts a jumble from his conversation with Jon’s wives. He waited patiently for the lone rider to come to him. As he waited he heard a barn owl hoot and then saw it fly overhead its silhouette blocking out the three quarter moon for a moment.

Eddard waited patiently for his son. The black horse slowly walked up to his Destrier the war horse pawing the ground in mild challenge. The horse came up beside Eddard. The figure slowly pulled his hood back. Eddard could not but help and stare just a little. To see Jon’s true Valyrian heritage so clear and plain now. Jon’s snow white hair and lilac eyes showing he was as much of old Valyria as he was of the North.

“I’m always happy to see you father” Jon Snow spoke softly and leaned forward and hugged his father. Eddard hugged him back awkwardly. He loved Jon dearly but he still had trouble at times showing even Cat affection and he had been married to the woman for twenty years.

Jon sat back and looked at his father with the Stark half grin and grimace that Eddard returned.

“Can you ever forgive me Jon for not acknowledging your true lineage? I know my wife made your life a living hell at times.”

Jon snorted. “It was not that bad in all actuality father … in some ways she made me stronger.”

“I think she is sorry now for her actions. She is pregnant” Eddard spoke to Jon smiling. “She will be giving birth in three months.”

Jon smiled big at his father. “I am happy for you father. More late nights at your advance age. Can you take it?”

“What choice do I have? I want to be much more involved with this child’s childhood. If I live to see him or her.”

“Father” spoken in mild reproof.

“I plan on living son. I have to ask you something though” Eddard took a long breath. You are the son of Rhaegar Targaryen. His sister now sits on the throne. I have not told you but I have—”

“Sent Arya to the Queen as a royal hostage.”

Eddard stared at his son for a long moment “how did you know—at the wall.”

Jon chuckled softly “I’m married to two witches that stare into flames to see the past, present and future. They saw you sending Arya to the Queen and the Queen falling in love with her. They will consummate their love soon. They are meant for each other.”

Eddard squirmed in his saddle. “House Targaryen has some unique marriage traditions. Uh—ummmm. Well brother marries sister … and … well …”

Jon threw his head back and laughed hard a sound of joviality and not rancor. “Father I have two red-headed wives. That is quite enough for me.” Jon laughed again that gradually died away to a chuckle. Jon shook his head. “No father. Arya was meant for Daenerys and the Queen for her.

Jon looked at his father with a conspiratorial look. “I wish I could be there. I am sure that the Queen will tame my little sister. Someone has too.” Jon started to chuckle again.

Eddard relaxed. The thought of Jon and Daenerys marrying would destroy Arya Eddard knew. She had been fantasying about the Targaryen since she appeared almost five years ago. Eddard had heard all the rumors of the Queen being gay. He had sent Arya to her banking on the Queen already being predisposed to fall in love with his daughter.

When he had seen Jon come into his full strength and knowledge Eddard had become afraid that his son might feel a need to marry Daenerys out of honor and obligation to continue the bloodline. That was the one thing that could cause a marriage between Daenerys and Arya to eventually flounder. They needed an heir.

Eddard sighed. The future would take care of itself.

Jon looked at his father solemnly now. Eddard had called for this meeting. He had told Jon all his plans that seemed to be coming to fruition. The forces of the South were marching north. He needed something from his son to make it a certainty that those forces marched all the way to the Wall.

Eddard knew he was not supposed to let his son know his wives had just talked to him. That they had already agreed to do what he was about to ask his son to ask of them. Eddard sighed inside. He had been playing the Game of Thrones for going on a year now. What was one more act to the murmurs show? He found it distasteful but these trying times demanded it.

“Jon, I have the forces of Southern Westeros marching toward Winterfell. I need to give them evidence that will fully unite them in our cause. It has been evident that somehow your wives have been spying on the Ice King. I know he is on the move or near to commencing his march south. I need for you wives to one more time do reconnaissance and come up with a way for all to see.”

“Can your wives do that?”

Jon looked at his father hard. “You seem far too willing to play your pawns against the Queen and King on the board. Those pawns being my wives. My wives had a means of camouflage when the Ice King was in the far North. That is gone now that he has started his march.

“I am not sure they even can. It is too dangerous. This I will not ask this of them. They have repeatedly put their lives in grave danger for the realm.”

“Did they not come to this land from their home to do just that son? Shouldn’t they be given the choice?” Eddard asked his son. He knew the truth of the situation would weigh on his son and the duty that he must fulfill as the Lord Commander of the Night’s Watch, to his father and to his new Queen.

“They need to be given the right to make this choice son, you know this” Eddard told his son softly.

Jon looked up at the clear stars shining down on his silver hair. The light from those distant points of light made his snow white hair glow.

“In truth father we have been arguing my wives and I. They saw in the flames you coming to ask me this. They wanted to come and talk to you but I refused. They have done too much already for the realm.
“The rest of Westeros must accept the truth. We do. So must they.” Jon looked his father squarely in the eyes with his challenge.

“You know it is not that simple Jon. We are bred to know the truth. We are of the North. We believe. The houses of the South are not. The Queen is indeed mighty and persuasive but we need to meet the enemy united. She can force them into compliance but you know son that without full belief the effort will not be pure. Our efforts will be fractured. Division will be our undoing. Without proof there will be division. That will prove fatal. You wives must provide the truth that will fully unite us.”

Jon sighed hard and looked up at the stars again. “They are so beautiful. They care nothing for our little plays of morality and honor.” Jon turned his gaze back down to his father.

“My wives have come up with a way to give you what you ask but it will leave them totally vulnerable. I am arguing against it. They argue for the need of them to go and do as you request.”

“They came all the way from Ashai just for this son. You know it” Eddard softly told his son.

“I have followed your path of honor and duty father. All it led to was my attempted assassination. If not for my wives I would be dead and in the ground. I grow tired of duty and honor father.”

“Jon …”

Jon looked at his father. “Worry not father. I have been bred and raised from the cradle to perform my duty and perform it I shall. I will argue against this thing that my wives propose but we both know I will lose the argument.”

Eddard watched his son look up at the stars again. He too looked up at the Hunter and the hunted wild boar. He looked down at Jon who looked at him with his Targaryen purple eyes.

“The North remembers Jon.”

“Yes it does father. And so do I. So do my wives. If we survive this war I will resign my commission and seek a new life.”

Eddard sighed. Jon had earned the right from the beginning. Forced to live a lie that he Eddard Stark had had to perpetuate.

“Can you ever forgive me son?”

“I love you father. There is nothing to forgive. Melisandre says that in Asshai they say “if you are handed a lemon you can either bit it or make lemonade.”

“What?”

“Yeah, I don’t know what it means either.”

They both laughed. Then father and son hugged long and hard patting each other on the back. Two horses parted slowly walking back to their homes.

Arya

The dragons lifted up from the courtyard of King’s Landing. The sun was just beginning to touch the horizon. It had been a busy few days for the whole Keep now. Troops were pouring in from Dorne, the Reach and the Stormlands. They were bivouacked in areas outside of the keep mainly. They were setup up in large communal tents with large wagon trains stationed strategically to provide hot cooked meals.

The Queen had ordered that the food be of the highest quality and fixed to provide two lunch and two dinner times. She wanted her troops well feed before they hit the road or sailed out to sea in transport ships. The Queen wanted happy pleasant thoughts filling their heads as they left for the North.

She ships sailing in from Western Westeros with Troops and those of Dorne was pulling into ports around King’s Landing. Daenerys wanted these new troops to feel a part of her army.

All the troops were being paid top wage for their campaign with the Queen. This led to men and some women with pockets full of gold dragons. Daenerys had had four Swan Ships pull into port two months ago with their beams low to the water. They had been filled with gold dragons she had had minted in the Summer Islands. She was paying the Summer Islanders ten percent of the gold as holding and stamping fees.

The Summer Islanders were most pleased and had built even more of their ships at a furious pace. They were using the Queen’s money to build up their navy. They would use it to enforce the peace along Slaver’s Bay but first they would be used by the Queen in her current campaign.

The gold the Swan Ships brought was used to pay for a large percentage of the personal cost of the campaign. She had four more ships with gold coming in next week. Their beams to would be low to the waterline filled with gold dragons. She had put Olenna in charge of inventory and putting the stores in warehouses. Olenna and Tyrion were most adept a paying a good price for the material of the war effort. Tyrion was working the pay schedules for the troops and merchants that he and Missandei had developed.

Arya had seen that the Queen was most pleased with how quickly Olenna took it all in. She showed them something she had received from an old lover from Yi Ti. It was called an abacas. Tyrion and Missandei nearly wet themselves when Olenna showed them how to use the device to do calculations.

Arya and the Queen had noticed the old woman was moving without a limp anymore and she seemed to not be bothered by steps like she had when they had visited her in Highgarden. When they asked Olenna about it she was just thankful her old body was not betraying her as bad as it had in the past.

As they flew over the camps on Drogon Arya saw the large number of soldiers moving in and out of the keep. Arya smirked seeing a large bevy of whores too moving amongst the camps.

Tyrion reported that Chataya and Alayaya reported that business was booming. The heavy patrols of the Unsullied kept the peace. Since the eunuchs could not be tempted to sex or other debaucheries they fairly and strictly kept the peace with the ruffians. The Queen had used express orders to use as only as much force as necessary to keep the peace.

Tyrion reported the two madams were upset that Solaja was sailing to sea and possible combat. Daenerys shook her head. Those left behind could not understand the way of the warrior. One always wanted peace but the warrior would always meet the enemy to provide the peace to the populace.

They would soon be leaving King’s Landing behind them to heed the call of war. Arya could not wait to be on the road to destiny. Part of that destiny would be to visit Winterfell. She could not wait to see her parents and siblings. Then they would march to the Wall and war.

Arya was getting sleepy behind Dany as Drogon flew on. She looked off to each side and saw Viserion and Rhaegal easily keeping pace with their larger brethren. Their bodies rose and fell slightly with the beats of their wings. Arya spied their normal riders plus the additional rider on each dragon.

Arya could not wait to see the fireworks that would occur when they reached their destination. She had learned of the backstory. She could not help but to be anxious to see the confrontation. She hoped the two would get some retribution for past slights. The sky had darkened now with only a thin pin strip of light now to the west. They were flying due west into the fading ribbon of the setting red glow of the setting sun. They had nine hundred and ninety miles to cover to reach their destination.

Arya was tired. The last few days had been very good for Arya. Yesterday morning and then this morning in her sword drills with the two masters she had actually scored kill strikes on both men while only receiving one from Barristan.

Barristan had smiled at his student. Syrio had given her a sour look but after he calmed down he came to Arya and congratulated her.

Her two handed style she now employed as second nature kept the water dance on the defense and off balance. Her two blades swirling and lunging at him constantly from different angels and positions. When she left him she saw him practicing furiously. She knew that the strikes that had worked the last two days would not work in the future with Syrio.

Arya liked that. They were now both pushing each other to improve their skills and develop new fighting styles. Arya had heard from Gendry that he was forging from Valyrian steel his master had let him refold to a new “needle”. It was an exact replica of her needle. She would never exchange her precious blade that Jon had given her when he left for the wall.

Barristan was now a madman when he attacked her. He snarled and growled. She had been afraid she had upset him and he had actually laughed softly when she begged for forgiveness. In so many ways Barristan Selmy reminded her of her father. She thought of him as a second father or maybe more accurately the uncle she had been denied. She hugged Dany tighter as she became drowsier.

The heat from Drogon’s body lulling her body. She looked back behind her and Nymeria was on her side knocked out her tongue lulled out. Her lips and ears twitching in some dream.

Barristan had told Arya that he needed to make his vocalizations now to put forth maximum effort. Barristan told Arya she was now a true master of the sword. Only her father and Brienne were their equal. Daenerys Jaime Tarth, Oberyn with his spear, maybe Loras with training and he put Rob in that category with lots of training would be in a level just below her. She had become all she was meant to be.

Arya was so thankful that her father had let her train with him and Rodderick. Her father had defied custom and tradition to let Arya train and become all she could be in Winterfell. Her father was too busy being the Warden of the North to complete her training. She could not wait to see her father again and show him all she had learned.
She wanted to challenge him and show her father she was worthy of being a warrior in her own right.

Her day time endeavors were going well. She smiled into Dany’s back. Her night activities were also going well. Very well.

After she had recovered from her first experience of watching Dany masturbate in front of Nymeria with Arya warged in her wolf she had tried to be good but it lasted for only four nights. She had kept Nymeria with her but the wolf grew increasing restive not being allowed her evening run around in and out the Red Keep. She knew that if Nymeria visited Dany in her quarters she would be lost. Her wolf’s whining broke Arya’s resistance and she let her wolf out. She had told Nymeria sadly not to go into Dany’s chambers anymore. She made it clear to her wolf it was forbidden. The wolf had whined but Arya insisted until she knew Nymeria understood her intentions.

The first night her Direwolf had been a good wolf. Arya warged into Nymeria occasionally and found her wolf patrolling the Keep and running down back alleys with the coyotes that lived in the city. They were a poor substitute for wolves but they followed Nymeria as their pack queen even though coyotes were much less pack animals. What could Arya say? Nymeria had wolf charisma.

The next night when she had warged into Nymeria the first time all was well. Nymeria was in the “godswoods” of King’s Landing. Arya snorted at the phrase. It was an acre of elm, alder, and black cottonwood. Instead of a Weirwood it had was a great oak covered in smokeberry vines. The thick vines having climbed up the trunk and twining down limbs. Vermillion berries clearly evident on the vines. Red dragon’s breath growing below the oak in a rich profusion. The dark red flowers giving a red hue but it was no substitute for the red of Weirwood sap bleeding down the bark from the carvings in its bark.

This was not a true Weirwood groove to Arya. Only a cheap imitation, a red-headed step-child. The red of the grove a fakery of bastardy to the Stark. Nymeria was on her hind legs her front paws on the great oak barking furiously at the squirrels chittering down at Nymeria. They ate nuts the husks falling down into the direwolf’s face. Nymeria infuriated at the audacity of the squirrels.

Arya went back to studying her High Valeryain to impress Dany and reading an exciting tale called Dunk and Egg. The history of House Targaryen was so fascinating.

When Arya checked in again on Nymeria two hours later she threw her book off the bed accidently. She was so shocked her body had actually jerked hard. She had been betrayed! Nymeria was in Dany’s chambers with a full belly. She was on her back wiggling as the Queen in a barely existing nightgown was scratching Nymeria’s belly and cooing to her “I missed you. I am glad you have come back to me. Don’t ever stay away from me again Nymeria. You Queen orders it!” Arya’s wolf woofed in agreement. “I have a third bowl of sweet cooked meat for you my baby!”

Nymeria rolled onto her side and sat up drooling. Dany brought out a third big bowl of cooked choice cuts of meat. She was bribing her wolf Arya thought incredulously! Nymeria the greedy wolf gulped down the chunks of meat Dany threw to her. Soon the bowl was empty and the wolf’s belly was full and bulging. Nymeria plopped back on her back and looked expectantly at the Queen who laughed and got back down on her knees and hard scratched Nymeria’s belly the wolf’s legs running in the air above her belly.

Arya saw Dany’s rock hard nipples and smelled Dany’s wet pussy with Nymeria’s sensitive nose. Oh gods. Arya pulled back from Nymeria enough to quickly stripe down. She knew she would be helpless watching Dany inside Nymeria but she was prepared this time. She would enjoy the show of Dany masturbating to repeated orgasms and let it fill her body. When her wolf left Dany’s quarters then and only then Arya would leave her wolf.
Soon Dany got up. She washed her hands clean and dried them. Then she slowly and sensually pulled her nightgown off and Nymeria sat up to look at the Queen. The wolf understanding her master wanted to see the Queen fully. The Queen played her body like a master harp player plucking the strings of her erogenous zones. Arya felt her body so tight with need. She was so wound up seeing her beloved working her swollen tits and cunt with her fingers wet and glistening. Dany screamed and screamed with her multiple orgasms.

Gods she was so fucking beautiful. Finally, after several hours, the Queen started to get very drowsy and on shaky legs let Nymeria out of her room. Arya was out of her wolf in a flash. She would talk to her wolf about her betrayal on another night! Arya went berserk masturbating. Half way through her session of self-loving she heard scratching at the door. She cursed but got up and let in Nymeria who woofed and plopped down in front of the roaring fire and watched Arya resume masturbating.

Any chastisement could wait to the morning. Or Afternoon. Or whenever.

The wolf was not sure exactly why Arya and Dany were working their vaginas so much. They did extremely enjoy themselves though. Nymeria wished they would start mating. Why were they delaying their mating when they so clearly desired each other? Nymeria’s eyes and nose told the Direwolf that they were compatible in all ways for each other.

On nights with no Clatch of Confidents meetings Nymeria visited the Queen’s chambers even earlier for food and belly scratching and staying to watch the Queen pleasure herself for her master. On those nights the Queen masturbated in long, long sessions of heated fucking. Arya watched her Queen pull out long phallic shafts and fucked herself in the pussy and ass with them! Arya longed to use them on the Queen and more importantly use them on her!

Arya was besotted with the sight of Dany’s body soaked in sweat and cum. Her hair lank and plastered all over her face, shoulders, neck and back. The loud screams of gut wrenching orgasms that had Dany’s body flipping and jackknifing all over her bed. Arya was in love with the smell of Dany’s pussy. All of this fueled Arya’s own masturbatory sessions.

She was tired in the mornings but her body felt so alive and singing to her. She was so in love with Dany. The more she saw of the woman pleasuring herself the more she wanted the Queen. Plus, she was learning so much about how to touch a woman and make her scream. She would rock Dany’s world!

When Arya went to the Queen’s chambers after their workouts to wash in the royal bath chamber she so wanted to strip naked in front of the Queen and throw caution to the wind. To tell the Queen she loved her with all her heart. She wanted to fall to her knees and declare her love and then bury her face in Dany’s plump pussy and show her woman how much she loved her. She felt like she already knew Dany’s body intimately. She would use her knowledge to devour Dany and rock her world. They would fuck each other so good. Their physical love binding their souls together into one.

Then reality would sit in. She knew Dany was saving herself till after the North campaign to select a King to help her rule her empire. History and tradition demanded it. Dany would do what she must and hid away her true desires. She may take backdoor lovers to satisfy her true needs but it would not be love. Arya now knew she could not stay in King’s Landing when that hideous day occurred. She could not stand to see another touch her Queen’s body. Dany was meant for her and her alone!

Arya was sleepy. She cast these negative thoughts behind her. She wanted to think positive thoughts of Dany. She had stayed up late last night masturbating after another session of what she now called “Dirty Warging”. She took the opportunity of flying on Drogon with Dany to snuggle into her back and let the heat lull her to sleep while hugging Dany. She craved the closeness of her body pressed into the Queen’s body. She loved how Dany gripped her hands with own her hands to make sure Arya did not fall off the dragon’s back. It was not needed but she loved how the Queen protected her. The way Dany intertwined their fingers made Arya feel like the Queen loved her but Arya shook her head sadly at her childish fantasies.

Arya was awakened by the Queen when the dragons landed in the steppes of central Westeros. It was midnight. Barristan informed them they were fifty miles from the Golden Road. Dany walked out into the waist high grass and stood facing into the breeze flowing out of the west.

Arya walked out to join the white haired Targaryen. “Does this remind you of the Dothraki Sea?”

“Yes it does.”

“Do you miss it?”

Dany looked out over the grass swaying to the heartbeat of the wind. “Yes and no … I discovered my calling in that grass sea. … but my home is here now. This is the land of my birth. The land that has always called to me. This is my home.”

Arya sensed the Queen wanted to say more but simply looked out over the swaying grass. They leaned into each other in companionable silence. How Arya longed to confess her true love for and to the Queen. Fear of rejection and worse being sent away kept the words locked in her throat. She couldn’t live without Daenerys but was afraid that the day would come when Dany married some fucking high prince to further the realm. To marry for political expediency. She had done it in Essos. Arya saw no reason why it would not also happen in Westeros.

I wasn’t fair.

A half hour later they were awing again. The Queen flew her dragons ever to the west. Arya went back to sleep pressed against the Queen’s back as Dany leaned back into Arya both asleep. Arya was awakened again when the sun was rising in the East lighting them from behind. There was high mountain peaks on both side of their wedge of flying dragons.

They found a high mountain vale. They landed deep in the Misty Mountains. Thick banks of fog rolled by underneath them in valleys far below. The air was cool and crisp and heavy with moisture. The riders stretched and ate a quick meal of beef jerky, cheese and hard tack bread. The dragons basked in the sunshine of the rising sun that shone down the long mountain pass. They were on land no man had stood on before. Here in a place that no one riding a horse could ever reach. These high mountain peaks were a bastion of unspoiled beauty.

Arya looked up at the high mountain peaks forever clothed in sheets of ice and now had shrouds of clouds wreathed around their peaks. It was breathtaking. Daenerys joined her.

“It is beautiful her. Unspoiled nature not touched by man. I wonder if any of the first people live in such mountain fortresses hidden away from the sight and hand of man.”

Arya was intrigued by the thought.

Soon they were awing again and heading towards Lannisport. The crossed the continental divide of the Misty Mountains and the dragons flew down the Western slopes first flying in deep shadows as they rode the thermals flying fast their sense of direction taking them unerringly to the promontory that Casterly Rock resided on.

As the sun rose higher over the land the orb bathed the land in vivid bright sunshine that showed the occasional farm now that they were in the foothills. Arya saw the dragon’s find the Golden Road and flew down the lane towards their destination. Arya saw buildings and small villages appear.
Traffic was on the road.

Near two hours before noon the small promontory of Casterly Rock appeared. To Arya it was a beautiful construct. Winterfell was dark and functional whereas Casterly Rock and Lannisport were things of beauty to behold. The buildings were made of polished marble that caught and reflected the sun in blinding flashes of white. Tall spires glittered like pure ivory in the bright sun.

The land jutted out into a large promontory with a channel that had cut into it to produce a large island that housed Casterly rock. A bridge had been constructed between the land and the island.
The abutments built into the gut rock of both land masses. Guard towers guarded each end of the bridge with draw gates built into the arches. Arya spied where the roadway entered into the island.
Dany had told her the entryway was called The Lion’s Mouth. The builders of the castle had fashioned an enormous natural cavern reaching two hundred feet high and built an archway to the height of the cavern. Its steps were wide enough for twenty riders. Arya was sure the roof of the cavern was filled with murder holes. Only then could you enter Casterly Rock proper. The top of the island had been leveled and here was the ancestral castle of House Lannister.

The two leagues of the island was filled with tunnels from exploration for gold and precious gems.
This had made for many hidden rooms and chambers for the inhabitants to live and thrive in. The Rock itself has been measured at three times the height of the Wall. The roofs of many of the buildings were gilded it the gold that was mined from the island. The glint of white marble and gold roofs was near blinding from certain angles.

The dragons flew just above the high ramparts and between the towers. Arya looking down saw shocked adults and gleeful children. The dragons had returned. Dany had visited all the major cities of the South many times as she consolidated her control on Westeros.

Dany had her dragons bank back over the sea and came in from the ocean to fly just above the rooftops and spires of Lannisport proper. The dragons trumpeted loudly as their beating wings almost touched the rooftops and chimneys. The dragons would fly at the towers and only at the last moment bank to brush the stone seemingly with their trailing legs and tails.

For ten minutes the dragons flew over the city of immaculate marble, limestone and granite of the richly carved buildings of the city. The wealth was obvious with the gilded edges of buildings in gold, silver, bronze and copper throwing up glimmering shimmers of wealth and prosperity. The Lannisters definitely shared their wealth which ameliorated the Queen’s feelings towards Tywin Lannister. Only a little though because the man was an “asshole” all agreed, especially the two additional riders who rode on the dragons.

Arya snorted seeing golden lions guarding the gates into the city of Lannisport on the ingress and egress of the golden road. Such a waste of resources. By now the streets and the rooftops were filled with wildly screaming people. Arya smiled at the children waving wildly. Arya frowned at the comely young lasses squealing waving at the Queen and pointing at themselves. Gosh, Arya hated the ‘Queenie’ groupies dying to get in the Queen’s short clothes! Those belonged to her!
Well-in her dreams- but they belonged to her!

The dragons landed before the towers on the bridge leading to the tunnel into Casterly Rock. The riders dismounted. Nymeria jumped down and walked to a statue and marked it as her territory. The wolf owned all she came across in her mind. Arya looked around as the other riders removed their chaps and gloves. They waited patiently. They had arrived unannounced.

Ten minutes later a man in his late fifties walked out with a much younger man who was obviously his son. The older man was still fit and trim.
He walked up and his face registered shock seeing the companions with the Queen and Arya. He bowed to the Queen as did his son. The young man in his early twenties stared at their male companion in open awe.

“I great you to Casterly Rock” the elder spoke. “We had not known you were coming or we would have provided the pomp and circumstance the Queen deserves.”

“I detest ‘pomp and circumstance’ Kevan.”

“Still, a queen deserves it and should have it. It helps the common man bond with the Queen.”

“Like it did with Cersei?”

“I said pomp and circumstance and not ostentatious extravagance. You are balanced in ways I fear my niece never was.” Kevan turned towards the two new riders that were with the Queen. “It is a pleasure to meet you after so much time Jamie Lannister or should I say Jamie of Tarth.” He walked over to Brienne and took her hand kissing the back of her hand. “And you must be the fair maid who captured Jaime’s heart.”

Brienne’s face went beet red.

Kevan turned back to the Queen. “You will be wanting audience with Tywin I assume.”

“Yes.”

“Can I ask what the necessity of this unannounced visit is?”

“I will announce that when we have audience with your brother.”

“As you wish. I will go and inform my brother of your desire for an audience with him.” Kevan turned.

The Queen called out to him. “I wish you were the Lord of Casterly Rock Kevan. You are so much more worthy than your brother.”

The man looked at her and then smiled slightly. “I never have such thoughts my Queen. He is the elder. All is at should be. I will let my brother know you are here. The man walked back up the bridge into Casterly Rock.

“Why in the seven hells couldn’t Kevan have been born first?” Dany fumed.

“Why do you not barge in and demand an audience? You are the Queen” Arya asked her Queen.

“Then I look like the ass. No. This is his keep and it is seemly that I wait on his pleasure.”

The both watched Lancel move to Jamie and Brienne. Jaime per his casual charm “What’s up cuz?” had the young man quickly loosening up and talking animatedly. The youth looking nervously at Brienne and her imposing height. “Don’t worry Lancel. She won’t bite. Unless I tell her too.”

“Jaimeee!”

“It is beautiful here” Arya told Dany.

“Yes it is. I hear that at sunset the whole shape of Casterly rock looks like a Lion in repose. Must be nice to have all that gold underneath you ass when you take a shit?”
"Dannyyyyy!" Arya felt her own face turn beet red at the bawdy humor.

She saw Dany smiling impishly at her.

They waited twenty minutes. Jamie was fuming but Dany sat on Drogon’s fore claw and waited patiently.

Nymeria came up to Jaime with a big stick and dropped it in front of him. Jaime looked down confused.

“Throw it Jamie. She likes to play fetch” Arya told Jaime.

“Really.” He gave the stick to Brienne. “She is a lot strong than me.” Brienne smiled softly and took the stick. Nymeria got up and woofed excitedly. She would get a good run in! Brienne leaned back threw the stick far off. The stick thudding on the paved road and bouncing with Nymeria running after it snapping at the twisting stick before getting it in her jaws. She ran back and Brienne threw it again.

Arya now sitting on another claw watched Jamie, Brienne and even Lancel playing fetch with Direwolf who in her excitement leapt up and down waiting for the stick to be thrown again.

“She looks like an ur-vile” Dany commented.

Kevan finally appeared again walking down the bridge clearly agitated. “I must apologize for the delay. Tywin can see you now.”

Jamie came up to his uncle. “Is my father being an ass again Kevan.”

The man looked at his nephew. “He is a hard man but he leads our people well Jaime. Never forget that.”

The man led them into the tunnel. Arya kept looking up looking for the murder holes she knew that must be there unseen.

They came out into a plaza that was pure ostentatious. Before her was a large square. It was paved in flagstones inlaid with precious gems and gold inlay in geometric patterns that both flowed together and were subtly jarring. The color blue, white, black and beige. The patterns repeated but were subtly differing in a way Arya could not put her finger on. The Fountain was pure gold of two male lions roaring their defiance with water pouring from their mouths to splash into the retaining basin.

They were led into the castle going down halls lined with tapestries, sculptures, suits of armor and glass cases lined with precious gems. The wealth of House Lannister on full display.

They entered into a large room with a big oak table in the middle. At the far end sat Tywin Lannister with his back ramrod straight and his close cut hair and goatee giving him a sever, august air about him.

He rose. “My Queen. Your visit was not heralded.” He sat back down not showing the Queen a seat. Arya heard Kevan sigh. He pulled out a chair first for Daenerys and then for Arya to sit in before he seated himself. Jamie pulled out the chair for a blushing Brienne as she protested she could get it herself.

All was quiet for a minute. Tywin rapped his fingers on the table top and Daenerys stared at him with unblinking violet eyes. Arya could feel the contest of wills. The air almost crackling with the tension in the air inside the room. Two strong wills probing and seeking advantage.
Tywin finally spoke first. “I received your ravens. You did not need to travel all the way across Westeros.”

“I think I did. I want to make sure we both understand each other. You will provide full support to Highgarden if the Iron Islands rise in rebellion while I am in the North.”

“I know my duty.”

“Do you?”

“I have always served the realm.”

“Like you did when your dog Gregor Clegane raped and killed Elia Martell and killed her children Rhaenys and Aegon. My niece and nephew.”

Tywin jumped out of his seat his eyes on fire. “I had nothing to do with that crime!”

“No. … But you definitely created the environment and kept you dogs unleashed so that others did your crimes. Any crimes your lieutenants do will be laid at your feet from now on. I will broke no excuses or ‘I did not know’. I will execute exacting judgment. I think you have heard of it.”

“Are you threatening me?” Tywin growled sitting back down.

“No threats. Simple statement of facts.”

Arya could read the Queen fairly well now she thought and she felt the tension. She looked in the back of the room. Barristan was ramrod straight but Strong Belwas was eating all the fruit out of a large bowel unconcerned by the tension in the room.

To Tywin’s credit Arya thought he had no guards in the room. He was nothing if not confident in his seat of power.

“I will do all that is required of me Queen. I hear Eddard Stark has you jumping to his tune. Is the heat getting to you small queen. I hear you squirm on the throne.”

“Yes. My ass cheeks do get sore. Having iron in your ass does make one immune I suppose.”

Tywin scowled. “You will fail you know. No woman can rule. It takes a man strength of arm and will.”

Daenerys looked eyes with Tywin. “Are you challenging me in your seat of power?”

“No! I merely state facts.”

“I think this meeting is adjourned.” Dany got up and Arya followed suite. “Do you have anything to say to your son before we leave?”

“I have no son” Tywin sneered.

Jamie stood up. “Father. There need be no rancor between us. The child will cleave themselves from their parents and seek their own destiny.”

“Bah! A son follows the path the father has set out for him. Prodigy support the family line. I did and so you should have.”

Jaime shrugged and turned to Brienne. “Of well, I tried.”
“I will never forgive you for not taking the seat of Casterly Rock.”

“Shove it pops. I have my own life now and my own wife.”

“That ugly cow.”

Jaime’s pleasant demeanor changed in a heartbeat. He turned to his father. In a deadly quiet voice “Excuse me?”

Kevan tried to step in “Tywin, Brienne of Tarth is his wife!”

“Shut up brother!”

“Your wife is an ugly gargoyl Jaime. She is hideous to look upon. She must be a hermaphrodite. At least your brother fucks females.”

An inarticulate sound came from Jamie as he started to pull his sword from its scabbard. Brienne in a flash was up and by Jamie’s side and gripped his wrist preventing her husband from pulling the sword out of its scabbard.

“Let it go my sweet husband. He is not worth it.”

“Listen to your fucking cow son.”

“For me Jaime. Please.”

“Are you going to add kin slayer to king slayer to your titles O son?”

“Fuck you!”

“I thought that was Tyrion’s job. He is the whore monger.”

“Have you ever wondered why all three of your children hate you.”

“Because you all are abject failures to our family and to me.”

Brienne gripped Jamie and pulled him to her body and enfolded him in her arms and bent down to kiss his temple.

Awww they are so cute Arya thought. She wanted to do that for Dany! To be there for her Queen in her moments of need.

“All three of us are thriving father. It is time for us to leave if you are done my Queen.”

“I believe we are Jaime” Dany spoke calmly and turned to Tywin. “I will have Olenna – a woman – and Tyrion – your son – watching you Tywin. Don’t give me a reason to be happy and come and gut you.”

Tywin scowled.

The party started to leave but Jaime paused at the door. “I just want you to know that we are all thriving. I have a family now. Tyrion is the best Hand in the history of Westeros. And my dear sweet sister I hear is becoming quite the hellcat warrior.”

Tywin scowled harder.
“One more thing. Moths and sparrows report that my sweet sister, your daughter has turned lesbo pops. She is wolfing down pussy like her life depends on it. Cersei has turned lesbo and guess who with? The kicker is—it is Obara she is in love with. The eldest daughter of your hated enemy Oberyn!"

“Get out of my presence you cur!”

“Such endearments father” Jamie chuckled holding hands with Brienne as he and the rest of Daenerys entourage left the embittered leader of House Lannister. A man with no heirs.

---

The Cowled Woman

The sun had long set and the guard at the gates of King’s Landing were on alert. The city was on a martial setting. Troops were on the move constantly in and out of the Red Keep. All were subtly examined and challenged when necessary.

The Unsullied were on the lookout for any strange traffic that did not fit the profile of troops. Normally, the gates would close at sunset but the mobilization of the South to head north was in full effect.

She Who Must Not Be Named had stopped off at a distance from the gate. She was over a mile away but her sharp eyesight could see the guards better than most men could standing right beside the men. Her large green eyes let in all light. Her night vision exceeded that of the owls that she heard flying overhead.

She could feel the men’s unusual attention. Most humans easily let their attention wander quickly with a boring task. These men’s will were uniquely singular. She probed deeper and discovered that their manhood had been removed. Her green tunic synched at the waist blew in the night breeze. The fabric fluttering and blown out behind her. Her hair fluttered showing the two tips of her Elven like ears. She heard the guards talk in the native language of the Queen.

Her eyebrows arched. She sifted through barely remembered memories of these men and felt her anger surge at their mistreatment as youths. She felt the cut of the knife and the pain of young boys so harmed and then forced to do vile things. She felt their burgeoning individualities and their respect and nescient love for their Queen who had put her life at great danger to give them their freedom. Daenerys Targaryen had freed them of slavery and offered them their freedom. To a man they had all pledged allegiance to the woman. It would seem this Daenerys Targaryen also named the Chain Breaker was a must powerful and descent woman. Still, it was not her She Who Must Be Named had come to see.

She felt her feelings roiling within but said the mantras she had developed to calm herself. She shook her head again agitated that again her anger so easily flared. After forty-four thousand years one would think she would have learned control after her freedom from the abyss.

She knew this was why the White Gold wielders and the Elohim feared her. As powerful as the Ice King was, that the Queen was preparing to fight, his power was minuscule compared to hers. She had crushed Lord Foul with one backhand.

The cowled woman moved forward. Without effort she quickly covered the distance to the gates of King’s Landing. She came up to the Unsullied who had their spears crossed in the traditional crossed shafts position. She passed through the wooden shafts unseen. The Unsullied had never felt her presence.

She looked around the city. Then the green eyes looked at the Red Keep. It was there her destination resided. Her senses told her that the one she wanted to visit was still wide awake. She wanted to visit them and leave the satchel that was draped over her shoulder with them as they slept.
She Who Must Not Be Named had time to walk around the city of King’s Landing and observe the mass of humanity seething in the city.

She had seen cities that had towers that reached for the stars and were made of exotic metals and filled with large glass windows. This city by comparison was quant and maybe even squalid.

The small woman walked down the streets looking from side to side. Her bare feet lightly touching the dry ground filled with ruts and dung from the passing animals. Such things did not concern her.
She passed persons traveling singly, in groups and many couples talking softly.

The varying emotions buffeted her but she was able to control their effect on her. She was in control and enjoyed feeling the sensations of so many emotions flowing over her body like the flowing current of a fast running river. As long as the emotions were not focused and passionate she could handle them.

She felt happiness and sadness. She felt the emotions of gratitude and the feelings of rejected anger.
The cowled woman felt the benighted emotions of love and peace and the avarice of greed and naked lust. She felt all the spectrum of human emotions and thoughts. The emotions unfocused and washed over her like the waves of the incoming tide. She was only used to certain emotions all of them dark even after so many years of freedom.

The small women saw a tavern and decided to move inside. The cowled woman concentrated for a fraction of a second and her satchel disappeared into sub-space. She walked between a group of people in the doorway talking and laughing. She stepped inside to find a dark room with a low ceiling and large oaken beams supporting the floors above.

There were tables in the center of the room and booths along the three walls that did not house the bar. She saw men and women laughing and flirting. Alcohol was being consumed in large quantities lowering inhibitions. Bartenders talked to the customers and poured them drinks.

Soon a large man clearly drunk was raging about his woman cheating on him back in Braavos.
Maybe he should be in Braavos she thought to herself. He told the table beside him that he did not like their accent. They told him to go beat his meat. What did that mean? The cowled woman thought to herself musing. Humans had the most strange syntax and word usage.

The loud man was soon fighting the next table with more quickly joining the fight. The cowled woman could sense that many joining the fight had no idea why they were fighting. Strange. The Cowled woman left as men went flying through the windows. It did indeed seem that meat was now being beat as she observed a man with a bloody scalp from his head going through the window. She now understood the phrase “beat your meat”.

The silent cowed woman moved from street to street aimlessly. She came to a thoroughfare that was wider than the ones she had been traversing. She moved on down the street. She saw signs proclaiming this was the Street of Silk. She looked for seamstresses but saw none. Then she noticed the purple hued lanterns over the doorways and along the balconies on the upper floors. Then She Who Must Not Be Named understood. She was in the purple light district of the City. She was surrounded by brothels.

She looked up at a sign and read it: Chataya’s House of Pleasure. The lettering pleased her senses with the fancy scroll. The two peacocks with their tails fully extended and twined necks was also pleasing to the eye. She Who Must Not Be Name loved the bright colors she could easily see in the night gloom. She decided to go into that domicile.

This brothel was a house two stories tall with a stone ground floor and a timber upper floor. A round turret rose from one corner of the structure. Many of the windows were leaded. The two large windows on the front of the building on its first floor and the entryway had paintings on them. No. The windows were made of colored glass. She paused to look at the one to the right. The paintings depicted many manners of sexual intercourse between the sexes. Most were heterosexual but a fair percentage were homosexual with female / female pairings. Why do you have sex with your own sex? No offspring can be produced from such unions. She never really understood human sexuality. She went underneath the entryway looking at the ornate lamp that swung on a metal arm. The globe made of gilded metal and purple hued glass that the oil lamp inside made glow. She found the color very pleasing to the eye.

Inside the entrance She Who Must Not Be Named saw a mosaic on the floor of two women entwined in their lovemaking. This brothel must cater to women who lusted after their own sex. Her time in Thomas Covenant’s world had also shown her that many men were turned on by the sight. She assumed men paid for such displays. The cowled woman inhaled deeply. The exotic spices in the air intoxicated her. She did not need oxygen but she relished using her senses to their fullest to partake of her environment.

She moved forward past an ornate Myrish screen that was carved with flowers and fairies and dreaming maidens. She now entered the common room. She saw a woman playing a harp with skillful fingers the melody haunting in the key of A minor. She looked up and saw a cushioned alcove and a leaded colored glass window where sunlight would pour through during the day.

The muted light made the mahogany and teak wood gleam darkly and the thickly upholstered sofas, divans and chairs were placed throughout the large sitting common room.

The cowled woman looked around her deep hood and bending of light waves kept her face in deep shadows. She had learned long ago that most humanoids found her features unsettling and had learned to hide them. Her head turned from side to side taking in her environs. She looked at the obvious prostitutes. They were made up very well with beautifully applied makeup. They were dressed in flowing silks cinched at the waist with beaded belts. She Who Must Not Be Name took a seat on a divan with no other patrons or whores sitting on it.

She Who Must Not Be Named looked at the couples lounging together on the various furniture. The prostitutes were obvious as they stroked and flirted with their clients. The Cowled woman had seen this many times on many planets. She was unmoved by the displays of courtship. She found it fascinating she did admit. For humans she had discovered they did not necessarily fuck to procreate. They went to much effort for pleasure she knew was so fleeting. It seemed like a monumental waste of energy and time.

The whole idea of sex was strange to the Qaylar. The making of children for her kind was more spiritual than physical.

She tuned her senses and the smell of spices, perfume and sex flooded her mind. She let her mind drift. Her mental vision wafted to the second floor and back bedrooms of the establishment. The Cowled woman saw the human bodies rutting on the beds and rugs in the various bedrooms. She assumed that the rich and powerful frequented this place. The expense was obvious. The Cowled woman’s head moved slowly taking it all in. She had never fully understood human mating rituals. Animals rutted where humans put strange rituals around the act of procreating. Most of their rutting produced no offspring. Then why fuck?

The divan she was on suddenly compressed to her left. She Who Must Not Be Named slowly turned her head. Beside her sat a beautiful prostitute she supposed. She was 5’8” tall with full C cup breast and slender hips and a voluptuous Gluttonous Maximus. A phrase from the world of Thomas Covenant came unbidden to her mind. “Lots of cushion for the pushing.” This woman would represent that. She had wavy blond hair down over her shoulders several inches. The woman had very white teeth and her slip was sheer and she easily saw the woman’s nipples and vagina. Both were engorged with arousal. She Who Must Not Be Named smelled the woman’s excitement.

“What is your name?”

The cowled woman looked away from the prostitute having already lost interest. She again looked up through the floor at the rutting. She had watched much porn in Thomas Covenant’s world. It was fascinating. Why did humans put so much energy and thought into such a brief act. The pleasure of orgasm so fleeting. Most strange.

It had not been sex or love that had allowed A-Jeroth to imprison her for countless thousand or was it millions of years. It had been her own avarice that had caste her into the pit.

“You are the short, dark and dangerous type” the prostitute spoke sultrily to the strange quiet woman sitting beside her so stoically. “I like my women dangerous.”

The woman seemed to be staring though the wall of the bar on the far wall. Her head moving slowly right and left her cowl hiding all her features.

“Hey, are you a silent sister? It that the reason you are not telling me your name. I always wanted to bang one. You seem awful small. You must be very young. That makes me want to fuck you even more! I hear you girls are wild in bed.”

She Who Must Not Be Named was looking into the Red Keep. Her destination was still awake reading a book from Naath. She would be patient.

“My name is Erinylea Harterion. I originally hail from Pentos. I spent three years there in a brothel that only catered to women. In fact I only do women. I am very skilled and would love to fuck you. I am nasty and wicked. In a good way, I mind you. Hell you got me so excited I will do you for free. I always wanted to fuck a Silent Sister. I love the taboo of it. I have already made my numbers for today. Chataya and Alayaya are always easy but especially now having just married Solaja.”

The woman still ignored her which was starting to piss off Erinylea. Her good friend Raraso Xhala had gotten lucky last week. Two silent sisters had come all chaste and quiet and silently handed to Alayaya a beautifully written note that said they wanted a whore from the Summer Islands. Alayaya had smiled and called down Raraso. The two silent sisters had nodded their approval. Raraso had barely been able to walk the next morning the two women had fucked her so hard and long. Raraso had told Erinylea that when the robes came off she had squealed in delight. The two women had been drop dead gorgeous. They had been the youngest daughters of rich families sent to monasteries. The dowries just too onerous for yet another daughter. They had definitely not been silent in Raraso’s bed. Their screams deafening and cursing and dirty talk continuous.

Now it was Erinylea’s turn! She wanted the same!

“Hey! Did you hear me? I. Want. To. Fuck. You. Fuck your order’s vows. Most of your sister’s do. I am even banging a few of your high order. I want to do a lowly neophyte. Raraso Xhala told me how hot you all are. Get your freak on with me and abuse me like the whore I am. Pull my hair and slap my face, tits and ass. Choke me out. I love it all. Make me scream from it!” the prostitute husked to the small woman.

“You like your woman dangerous?” the cold voice was soft and yet it filled the whole room. The voice was hollow and echoed as if the speaker was deep in a sepulcher and not a big open room. The voice though softly spoken was strong and vibrant but as cold as the grave. It echoed through the large room. The Cowled woman finally turned to look at the woman beside her. The small woman's face hidden in deep shadows of her cowl.

The other women in the whore house now turned to look unsettled in the direction of a suddenly very scared Erinylea. The room was filled with a sudden unease. The men moved uneasily.

“I am indeed dangerous. I have killed by the thousands. In times past, I slayed all men on sight (the cowled looked at the men in the room with a slow turn of her head as the men gulped and tried to not piss themselves). I crushed their bodies with a thought.”

The whole room had stilled to stare at the small bare foot woman with horror. They could feel the power radiating off the small framed robbed woman. The Cowled woman looked more like a tall child of ten or eleven. Every man and woman instinctively understood this woman was speaking the truth of her past. The woman appeared to not yet be flowered. Despite her appearance, now a feeling of ancientness exuded from the woman. This woman was as old as the bones of the Earth.

She now looked at the whore directly her body leaning forward. Erinylea leaned back as she looked into the cowl and only saw a well of dark emptiness. She had the feeling of being sucked into an abyss looking into that pool on nothingness. Deep in that well of darkness she now saw two dull green glowing points. They could not be more than inches from her face and yet they seemed miles away.

“Do you want to know what I did to the women?” Erinylea shook her head violently ‘no’. The cowled woman’s words were dreadful but it was her body language and her hollow voice that was truly creeping her out.

“I ripped their body to shreds and then pulverized their protoplasm as I tore their souls from their bodies and ate them to live within my incorporeal body. Then I made them scream in endless torment and agony. I never let their souls rest as I roasted them in horror, agony and insanity. I never slept and I spent every moment tormenting and torturing their souls. My self-hate fueling my rage. They felt the same insanity and agony that tore at my wasted soul.”

“Are—are they still in you?” Erinylea asked fearing she was about to die. Her face now sheened with sweat and her body shaking in naked fear.

“No. Linda Avery ripped them from me. She stole back my lost souls.”

“Are you going to kill me?” Erinylea strangled out. Her body now beaded with sweat in her horror. Sweat trickled down her face in slow rivulets.

The cowled woman stood up and looked down at the wildly trembling woman. She looked around the room. All were filled with terror.

“I will leave now.”

She left the establishment and walked around the streets of King’s Landing. She slowly moved her feet lost in thought. She still dreamed of the abyss even after all these thousands of years. After a time she noticed she was before the great Sept of Balor. She walked up to the nearest tower and looked up.

She filled her hands and feet with millions of micro hairs like she had read of Geckos having. She easily scaled up the side of the tower. Soon she was on top of the tallest crystal spire. She pulled her cowl back and let the wind blow over her face and stream her green hair behind her.

She sighed. It had not been promises of lust and power that Lord Foul had used to imprison her. Any love had been secondary in her desires if any at all. It had been promises of power unrivaled and avarice that had done her in. She had been so young and filled with vice. She loved the feel of the breeze on her person. She spent half an hour enjoying the purity of nature and her forces. She again sent her senses flowing to the Red Keep. Now her target was getting drowsy and had gone to bed.

She Who Must Not Be Named let go of the spire and let the breeze blow her to the Red Keep. She soon arrived at the first wall and let her atoms phase shift and she was inside the walls.

She walked down the halls always working up. She moved to the area reserved for royals and the high attendants. She saw a Direwolf padding down the hall. She moved to the side wall. The wolf passed her and then paused. It looked around and sniffed hard but shook its head and moved on down the hall.

The Cowled woman moved on. She went up three levels and paused. This woman had interested her. She walked through the thick wooden oak door effortlessly. She walked over to the bed. The dark of night did not prevent She Who Must Not Be Named from easily seeing Olenna Redwyne. The woman was sleeping soundly.

This woman had strong longings in her. Desires for what might have been. She herself was filled with such thoughts. The wonderings of paths not taken and the desire to have had their life take another path. She understood those thoughts.

She had been watching from the sept at Highgarden when the woman had nearly fallen. The fall would have broken both her hips and her right wrist if not saved by the Direwolf that had just passed her. The panic in the old woman had touched her. She had touched the woman’s gnome and removed the genes causing her rheumatoid arthritis. All evidence of it now gone.

She contemplated doing more but decided against it. If her true destination failed in what she needed to do then the chances were much greater that all human life would eradicated in Westeros. No need to perform “a miracle” if it was for naught.

She paused reconsidering. She again looked down at the woman. Why not? The touched the woman. Why not set it in motion. Let destiny decide if it came to fruition.

She Who Must Not be Named lessened the density of her body altering her phase shift and floated up into the air and went through the ceiling of the current room and came into another room that made her pause.

She saw a dwarf – this would be Tyrion Lannister; the same one she had seen on the beach in Dorne with the Queen – riding a woman whose shed garb told the robed woman she must be a Dothraki female. Tyrion was riding her back and whooping calling out “I’m the Stallion who mounts the world.” The woman whinnied and rose up on her knees and pretended to try and dislodge the dwarf. The Cowled woman noticed the woman had a butt plug in her ass that had real horse hair stitched into it.
She Who Must Not Be Named eyebrows knitted. What could that signify? A fertility right?

She Who Must Not Be Named looked before the fireplace and saw two more Dothraki women on their sides dong sixty-nine. She had learned that phase in the world of Thomas Covenant. Humans were most inventive when it came to sex. She noticed they too had butt plugs with real horse hair inserted into their anuses. They grunted and snuffled obviously enjoying themselves.

Tyrion called out. “Don’t wear yourselves out Tasi, Qissi. When I get done riding and fucking Withi I will be mounting you two again.” One of the Dothraki women released the ass cheek she was clawing and lifted her arm up and then gave a thumb’s up. At this moment, the dwarf lost his balance falling off the woman. He fell off the woman backward flipping down to the ground. He knocked himself unconscious. The Dothraki woman spun around and tried to revive the man. The Cowled woman looked into the man. He was merely knocked out and not concussed.

She Who Must Not Be Named shook her head walking out the room and through the door. Human mating rituals were indeed most strange.

She walked down two more hallways and then paused before the thick oaken door. Yes. She was indeed in deep sleep. She walked through the door and into the midnight dark of the teenager’s room.

The Cowled woman walked over to the table. She focused and from sub-space she called forth the satchel she had copied from the traitors. She sat the satchel with the betrayer’s correspondence. It was in code. Missandei had the ability to break the code. She would leave it to the fates as to whether or not the girl could do it.

Again she stopped to look at the girl from Naath. She was truly fascinated by the teenager. She was still so innocent and pure. She did not seem to be tainted with any of the traits that blighted the human race and the spirits that inhabited the world. She Who Must Not Be Named had her flaws and they had caste her down into the pit for agonizing millenniums of pure hell. She moved slowly to the bed of the sleeping teenager.

She Who Must Not Be Named got slowly on her knees and looked at the sleeping woman. She was truly the most beautiful woman she had ever seen. She started to reach out and touch her face. No. I will not corrupt her with my touch. I long ago forfeited that right with my greed and sin. Still she stayed and looked at the young woman sleep for another half hour. The Cowled woman moved her head to closely examine the teen’s face from every angle.

The woman’s innocence truly touched her. She sighed. The girl longed for a true love to find and love her.

Ellisìynæ Märiynéll rose up slowly. She wondered if she had every truly loved. There was a flash of white light and a black hole appeared with green bands of light streaming out of it. Bands constantly swirling out from the black circle that looked as if it was miles away and yet was only a heartbeat away. The small woman stepped into the worm hole and she was gone.
Arrivals and Departures

Chapter 39

Arrivals and Departures

Oberyn / Arya / Eddard / Missandei / Jon / Ygritte / Ice King / Daenerys

Oberyn

The horses nickered as they were brushed down for the evening. Oberyn had always found comfort in taking care of his mounts. They were loyal to him and he always enjoyed caring for the horses he rode. He looked out at the Kingswood off in the hazy distance to the East. The vast woods still full of primal uncut forests. He loved looking at the tall oaks, ash and maples soaring to the heights. The trees rising to between seventy and a hundred feet in height. Their trunks close to five feet in diameter.

Their broad canopies giving tight coverage over the wildly spread trees. He loved the variation of color of the leaves and thickness of the canopy with the interspersed ash and maple trees. The widely spaced trees allowed for large swaths of underbrush and brambles. He knew the undergrowth was filled with vague animal paths traveled by deer, boar and wild goats and sheep. He had often wanted to hunt in those woods. He knew that bear, cougars, wolves and it was rumored that saber tooth cats and woodland lions still lived in its core. The challenge and danger called to his martial nature.

He moved to the other side of his horse. He took his pick out and looked at the hooves on that side. He removed several small stones that had lodged in the groove of the horseshoes. He checked the frog on each foot and found them to be not black and hard to the touch. They were healthy. He picked up his curry comb from his saddle bag and began to come out his horse’s coat. The horse tossed his head slightly cropping the grass underneath his muzzle.

Oberyn loved his homeland of Dorne and its arid vistas of dry plains and stunted wattles of trees. In his land, the predominate color was a pale brown with pale greens in colored swaths. It was wild and untamed in a wide open way. Here the land was many hues of green. The growth of the plants were not stunted by sun, wind and lack of moisture. In Dorne the grasses and trees fought the land for life where the vegetation here was allowed to grow luxuriant and profuse. His horse pawed the ground to bring up succulent green morsels to graze upon as its muzzle moved slightly to find new shunts of verdant grass to crop as his master continued cleaning his main and tail.

Oberyn remembered his parting with his daughters. They had been unhappy to being left behind but he had determined it was best for them and the realm to be left in their homeland. He was still pissed with his youngest daughters for taking their wives into the red wastes. Myrcella and Arianna had handled themselves exemplarily in combat actually Oberyn had to admit. Still, Oberyn knew that probably had more to do with luck than anything else. Combat was full of random chance. But, taking their wives into the midst of combat had been foolish. He would never bring Ellaria into harm’s way.

He paused in his thoughts. Arianne and Myrcella were of totally different temperament than his sweet consort. His daughter’s mates were fiery and he was not surprised they had sought out combat. Ellaria was fierce in the bedroom but not in the open fields of combat. The thought of going out into the field with Oberyn would not even cross his sweetie’s mind.

He would have been much quicker to forgive his daughters if his brother Doran had not chewed his ass four times already now for putting his daughter Arianna into harm’s way. He was sure more chewing outs were waiting in his future. It did not matter Arianna had insisted in traveling with his daughters. The woman was as headstrong as his own daughters. They did not want to part from each other especially when danger was in the air.

He was sure that now that Myrcella and Arianna had tasted combat they would desire to travel with their wives in the future when combat was required. He had not told his brother, Doran, that the genie was most likely out of the bottle now. His daughters’ wife would not be denied in her desires to go with her sand snake wives into combat. Myrcella would also demand it. They had proven themselves. Doran might not admit it but Oberyn would. Once one survived your first combat your chances of death in combat dropped markedly. Once one had experience in combat that experience would allow one to avoid the pitfalls of combat that led to death.

Tested now, Arianne and Myrcella would be wildcats demanding to accompany their wives. Dorea and Loreza had weathered his rebukes but he saw the fire in them. They would be bringing their wives with them when they went into the field again. Oberyn accepted the inevitability of it.

With his eldest, Obara, she was still in her honeymoon time with Cersei. They had been wedded just before he traveled north. Cersei was still in training even though she had long surpassed her master and Oberyn in strength, speed and raw skill. Her trainer had still not determined she could take up metal weapons. She still bitched and snarled about it but Oberyn knew it was all for show.

Cersei continued to do all she was tasked with a snarl and sneer bidding her time. She was something fearsome now and she knew it. All knew it. She was the fulfillment of prophecy Oberyn knew. He remembered the sand witch’s prophecies. He had talked to Myrion Dwellen and he too agreed. Oberyn had not yet mentioned his theory to anyone else. When the time came, there would be push back if from nowhere else but from House Dayne. Cersei would prove herself. Both Oberyn and Myrion knew it.

To Oberyn’s surprise Cersei had acquiesced to the demands of Myrion. The woman had definitely changed since her arrival in Dorne. She was still fiery and her tongue could flail the skin off your bones with her wicked tongue. A tongue that Obara was using every night to quite good affect he could hear at night when he and Ellaria sometimes walked the grounds late at night before turning in.

Of course his eldest daughter was coming over to his home and regaling both him and his sweet Ellaria on how good Cersei was in the sack. She had taken to the kinky sex that Obara craved like a duck to water. The woman loved being fucked bowlegged with a big thick strap-on and loved ATM and A2P. Cersei gladly pulled her pussy or asshole open for Obara’s fist. She loved to be roughed up. Obara was in heaven.

She was in heaven even more when Cersei proved to be an easy switch and loved fucking the hell out of Oberyn’s eldest. They both loved to be slapped all over, hair pulled, spit on and choked out. Ellaria was drooling over what she was hearing. She dearly wanted to fuck Cersei something fierce. Oberyn guessed he should be shocked but he was not. He doubted he would ever be lucky but he too desired to fuck the fiery beautiful blond along with everyone else.

There was a sticking point that Obara had run into. Cersei would get all flustered and cry out she was not enough for Obara when Oberyn’s daughter tried to broach the subject of fucking family members and the young cadets that longed to fuck Cersei. Oberyn’s daughter had hoped the sweet bonding with Ellaria in the Officer’s Sauna had showed that Cersei was ready for open an open relationship of Obara and Cersei sharing women in their bed.
Ellaria had consoled Obara. She told her daughter of her heart to only be patient. Cersei would come around. Obara needed to remember that Cersei came from a repressed upbringing. The culture north of Dorne was very prudish. Cersei needed time. She was a pure slut inside and her love for Obara would shine through. Cersei just needed more time to be totally secure in the burning love she and Obara shared. Soon they would be sharing many sluts in their bed. Ellaria the first one! She had crowed making Obara smile.

Obara would be patient. Cersei was from the prudish North. Obara would slowly show that their love was unbreakable and total. With that kind of love they could and should partake of pleasure with other women freely. In Dorne everyone was free with the sharing of physical pleasure. All wanted to share the pleasures of the flesh with their cherished ones.

After listening to Ellaria, Obara knew if she was patient it would be well repaid. She had reached over and petted her father’s hand. “She will love you to father. You wait and see.”

“I think a heyna and lion lying together has a greater chance, Obara” Oberyn had joked back. He would love to share love and life with Cersei but he would understand if she could never get over their past. He had been very cruel to her. He still cringed at some of the things he had wanted to do the woman before he got to see the real woman that existed so deep down inside Cersei even she was not aware of the fine woman that she had become.

Cersei had endured almost two decades of abuse from Robert Baratheon. To be raped constantly and physically abused must have reduced her adore for males. Men had not been nice to Cersei. Add to that the way her own father abused her it was sad. Oberyn still remembered Cersei falling apart when Daenerys in fit of pique had fired a barb at Cersei about sending her back to Tywin Lannister her father. It was a flippant barb by the Queen. Cersei had been spewing bile back at the Queen. That one remark gelded Cersei. As soon as those words reached her ears Cersei fell into a dead faint and when she awoke she was a beaten cur. Gods what did that man do to her!

Oberyn banished those bad thoughts and smiled. Cersei had become a cherished member of the Martell family. Oberyn had come to truly love the woman like a sister and his sweet paramour lounged to fuck the former Lannister and his daughter. She was always talking about them which made his blood run hot. He loved banging his sweet love while she cried out Cersei’s name. That just made him fuck Ellaria harder and made her scream louder in her orgasms.

Oberyn knew that Cersei was woman who had sworn off cock. Robert Baratheon had smacked and raped that desire out of her. Jaime leaving her for Brienne of Tarth must have hurt deeply and been another nail in the coffin of her desires for men.

Oberyn thought back on his daughter issues. If he could not bring some of his daughters north with him he dare not bring any of them. He had reasons to not bring his eldest or his two youngest daughters. They now had the responsibilities of wives to protect and care for. If had needed his daughters he would have brought them but with the forces marching north a few less warriors was not critical.

He knew if he did not bring one he could not bring any of his daughters. The rancor that would cause among them would not serve any purpose. They all craved to prove themselves on the field of combat. He also had another reason to leave his daughters behind. Of all the houses currently marching north only his house was able to leave behind the next generation of military and political leaders to make sure all remained calm in their home territories.

House Baratheon had their scions either in exile or marching north. House Tyrell had their future heirs in Winterfell of all places. He had a sneaking suspicion that those two went there of their own free will. He knew that Olenna was crafty as an old fox and had her fingers in that somehow. What the advantage was he could not fathom at first. Loras was in love with Renly. Robb was to marry Karstark’s daughter.

Then he heard through a jackal that had heard it from a moth that Margaery and Sansa had formed a union. This would be a pairing of two mighty houses. If the union was in Dorne it would be no matter but in the conservative North? More shocking yet it seemed to have the full blessing of Eddard Stark. This almost dumbfounded Oberyn. Oberyn had checked the genealogy records and indeed Eddard was not of Dorne ancestry.

Where had Eddard developed such enlightened thinking? He knew the man was without equal on the battlefield (present company excepted of course) but to think he was a brother in thought as well made Oberyn look at the man with new eyes. He would look into Eddard’s eyes when the time came to see for himself. He had wondered for a month now if the Queen was not playing some Game of Thrones with Eddard Stark. That she had formed some hidden league with the man to draw their forces to the North. He was too loyal to speak any of his suspicions aloud. He trusted Daenerys Targaryen explicitly.

Oberyn had become convinced that Winterfell would be only a way stop on the march to the Wall. The Queen seemed to believe in the old legends. If Daenerys believed in them then she had Oberyn almost believing in things that could not exist. Could they?

He knew that House Baratheon was too staid and unimaginative to see such convoluted plots. Mace Tyrell bless his soul was just willing to be led to where he needed to go. He would discover the truth soon enough he supposed when he had it revealed to him. He would fight his Queen’s enemies wherever they may be and whomever they may be. Mace may be unimaginative but he was loyal.

Oberyn looked around at his surroundings as the sun started to head toward to the horizon. The slanting rays of the sun made for long shadows over the rolling hills. His own horse casting a long shadow. He was in the Sperling Highlands. The hills only three to five hundred feet in height with gentle sloops. The people had settled here when the first men came across the land bridge before it was smashed.

As he had moved North the land slowly turned more green and lush. Here the land was filled with rolling redolent green grass for their horses to pasture on. He had left Sunspear and traveled along the coast in the wide pass between the Windshorne Mountains and the Greenblood River. Oberyn had looked at the mountains that rebels and guerrilla fighters had used as a redoubt by the men of his Dorne when first fighting the First Men, then the Andals and finally the Targaryen’s when another force had once again attempted to tame the untamable.

Many a foe had died in the mountain valleys and craggy tors of the Windshorne Mountains. They were not tall with only a height of three to five thousand feet but they were wild and inaccessible unless you knew the hidden tracks. The breezes off the shore precipitating out and providing ample rainfall to allow for scrub oak and live oaks all twisted in shape from the hollowing winds working through the craggy slopes.

The wild land and its luxuriant growth providing many places to hide and plan attacks. Any enemy that attempted to climb up into the mountains and valleys were ambushed repeatedly until exhausted and retreated back to the flatlands.

They had passed Shandystone with its well that had dried up over two hundred years ago. They were traveling light having sent their wagon trains up the Princess’s pass with the Queen’s peace holding sway over lower Westeros. The trains had left six weeks ago to travel to the Rosewood and then up to King’s Landing. He knew that there they would be staged into other long wagon trains already moving north up the King’s Highway towards the Riverlands and beyond.
They had passed the conjuncture of rivers and then traveled up The Scourge and headed deeper up the peninsula of Dorne. They had reached Godsgrace and rested two days to let their horses rest and build up strength for the continued long march. They traveled up to the headwaters of the Scourge River and then sat off overland in the wild scrub of the Dornesh Hawk dunes. They traveled the western track to the coast. There they headed up the peninsula to Yronwood and rested again to let the horses and riders gather themselves.

He spent nearly two weeks traversing up the Boneway to the sad summer castle of the Targaryen’s at Summerhall. The birth place of Rhaegar Targaryen. So much lost potential and possibilities had occurred when the castle burned down. He journeyed just past Summerhall to the valley now called the Vale of Tears and followed the major stream of the Switchback Willows glen. He and his cavalry went down the valley cutting through the spur called the Dugway Range.

He left the mountains the next day and led his horses at a full gallop onto the rolling hills of the Grassy Vale. The hills rolling to the west in gentle swales covered with thick grass. The horses nickered loudly enjoying the wide open spaces after being hemmed in by mountains as they traversed the valleys.

They moved over the low piedmont hills that ran generally from southeast to northwest. The hills gentle and gradually lowering in elevation. Three days later at noon they broke onto the plains that bordered the town Grassy Vale which was controlled by Lord Elwood Meadows. He greeted Oberyn and his cavalry warmly. Oberyn was pleased to see that Daenerys had left stores of grain and fresh food and fatted aurochs with specific instructions to rest and feast and recoup his troops strength.

Oberyn saw that the Queen understood that a well fed and rested military force was a much stronger force. He spent a day with his command eating and feasting. He discovered that the leader of the city was a fairly decent man. He was too old to be leading his tithe on the march north but he was genial and pleasant. Maybe these Stormlanders were not so bad Oberyn thought to himself.

The next day after the feast he proceeded apace towards King’s Landing. He was surprised to see at evening that a camp was setup with food and tents already waiting for his arrival. Women and men too old to fight and teenage boys and girls manned the camp. Daenerys was involving all in the defense of her realm. This would make them feel a much stronger bond to her efforts. She was not conscripting their service but paying good wages. Her largesse from the conquering of Essos was impressive indeed. The persons were happy to serve being paid for their services instead of being compelled. The Queen was a most brilliant tactician Oberyn was seeing.

Gods, Robert Baratheon had sucked as King! Hell, had Westeros ever had a King or Queen the equivalent of Daenerys Targaryen the First of Her Name. He wracked his brain and came up with no one.

On the fifth day they reached Fawnton where a large camp was setup along with a stable with spare horses that could be changed out for any mounts that were worn down or threatening to become lame. Each night as the light cavalry moved forward Oberyn would find a camp waiting for him. He was impressed. He had wondered why the Queen wanted to know the route he would take to come to King’s Landing out of the several possible routes. Now he knew. The people were friendly and seemed anxious to help him reach King’s Landing and support their Queen.

Oberyn had been most pleased to find comely young lasses and fair young men coming of age to take to his bed each night. Many of his warriors found willing companionship with the locals. This was helping to build a stronger bond between disparate people. Oberyn made sure that the commands were in place that any non-consensual use of force in sexual relations would be most harshly punished. After several cases and severe lashings the troop understood that Oberyn was deadly serious. Repeat offenders would be scourged with scallop shells. There was no repeat offenders.

Oberyn reflected on this as he patted down his horse for the evening. Last night had been another camp with a small stable of horses to be switched out as necessary. The stables manned by Dothraki. They were excellent horse tenders and were rough and guttural. Oberyn liked them immensely. He had taken a brother and sister to his bed and enjoyed himself immensely. He especially enjoyed seeing the girl fuck her brother with wild abandon as he nailed her ass to the furs and flooded her womb with his cum as she wailed. Then they DP the willing filly. Maybe he and Ellaria would make a trip to the Dothraki Sea.

When they reached the Rosewood they took to it and made good time. Again he found regular camps to aid the many travelers moving generally North but with some traffic of soldiers, sappers and support personnel moving South to support the camps. The camps by the Kingswood close to the road. The Queen had made it clear the forest was not to be touched. Large supplies of coal and coke had been brought in for the nightly fires and cooking pits. In nine days he reached the King’s Gate at midday. He had been long gone from his sprawling city. He had not missed it. Its large size and squalor did not please him.

He was even less pleased to see Mace and his two oldest sons waiting for him by the gate to greet him. He was happy to see Willas though. He and the man had been long distance friends despite the fact that Oberyn had accidently led to his being crippled at a tourney. Willas was even keeled and did not have an overarching ego. The same could not be said of his father or brother.

Mace was not a threat on the tourney field but his middle son, Garland, was indeed quite skilled and accomplished. He did not have the flare of Loras but he was with his sister in Winterfell. Probably deflowering young men. Lucky lad. Oberyn rode up to the gate.

Oberyn knew himself. That he too had an overweening ego that was the equal of those he groused about. All great warriors needed it. Else, you would not survive long on the fields of combat fighting other supremely gifted and confident warriors. There was one huge difference between the Tyrells and Oberyn. He had every right to have an outsized ego! He was a master of the spear that had no equal. He had pushed and pushed himself nearly his whole adult life. He had a singular goal that only his brother and Ellaria knew. He would avenge his sweet sister Elia. He would one day track down Gregor Clegane. On that day Oberyn would have his revenge on the “Mountain”.

“How nice of you arrive Oberyn … finally” Mace called up to Oberyn as his horse approached the Tyrell greeting party. He saw Alerie Hightower appraising him. She was neutral in her facial expressions. He saw Olenna standing off to the side. His eyebrow cocked at the change he saw in the true ruler of Highgarden. Last time he had seen her she had been stopped in the back and used a cane. Now she stood straight and proud. She seemed full of vigor and her whole demeanor made her look younger than her years. Her gaze shifted among the parties. Oberyn knew she was gauging and judging all present.

“Yes. Some us of rode warhorses to King’s Landing and not royal carriages. One has to stay battle harden you know.”

Mace looked askance up at Oberyn. “Do tell.” He looked Oberyn up and down. “Hummm, don’t see any extra muscle there lad … might want to rethink that.”

Oberyn shook his head. “Are your youngest children still safe in Winterfell?” Oberyn was truly curious. He had been on the road for slightly more than eleven weeks.
Mace scowled. Olenna stepped up. “Yes. Eddard and Daenerys both have hostages of great value. Both would never deem to harm their hostages.”

Oberyn caught the inflection even if Olenna’s son did not. Anyone with eyes knew that the young Queen had given her heart to the young comely lass of the North. It was only a matter of time before they consummated their love. Oberyn had bet heavily that it would be in Winterfell when they did the nasty for the first time. Arya being on her home turf should turn the tide in her favor and Oberyn’s wallet.

Olenna’s choice of phrasing had Oberyn smirking in his knowledge. Did Margaery’s parents know that their daughter had a loved one at Winterfell? That the person that Margaery loved was a woman. That Margaery had given her heart to Sansa Stark. If her parents did hear of her daughter falling in love they would assume it was with Robb. Oberyn smirked. He would love to see the look on Mace and Alerie’s faces when they discovered that their daughter was in love with a woman. Gods that would be stupendous! Hell, they still had not grasped that Loras was bisexual and in love with Renly Baratheon.

Those thoughts made Oberyn stop. Eddard had two gay daughters. He was anxious now to go to Winterfell. He needed to see how old staid and stick up his ass Eddard Stark was handling that bit of news. That would be interesting to see. Two gay daughters. That would drive Eddard mad! He had to see that!

“You have missed important war council meetings Oberyn. Shame you couldn’t be here to partake of them.”

“Yes indeed. Of course you missed the meetings I shared with the Queen that prepared for her landing in Dorne like Nymeria so many years ago. I was there at the beginning.”

Mace stiffened.

“It was Dorne she came to. Not Highgarden. She probably sent ravens but you were too busy smelling the roses I suppose.”

Garlan ground his teeth. Olenna stepped in sighing. “Boys boys … this unseemly cockfighting should be put down. Get your hands off your cocks. I am sure you all have big mighty cocks. Men have been telling lasses that six inches equals a foot since the dawn of time. Let’s save our strength and spunk for the enemy of the realm and not each other.”

Even Oberyn was taken aback a little at the mouthy granddame. All quieted down.

He saw the Queen and Arya riding war horses up from the gates of the King’s Gate. Again Oberyn was taken by how martial the young woman seemed. She was just twenty now and she carried herself like a true warrior. She had nearly seventy five bells in her hair now with her recent victories. He had been told by his jackals that she had so many in actuality that she could not wear them all. She had her now famous rune sword in its scabbard on her back. She was beautiful with the sun glinting and shining off her white hair and silver bells.

By her side he saw Arya and was surprised by the change in the girl. She now seemed the equal of the Queen somehow. She had a Braavosi style sword at her hip and she too carried a broadsword on her back. She wore dark leathers and tunic that made her look every inch the warrior of the North. Oberyn knew that those two would be almost unstoppable on the battle field fighting back to back.

Oberyn openly appraised them both. Arya caught the look and glared back at him and moved her horse closer to Dany. Good she was jealous. He knew that the Queen needed a filly with fire in her loins to keep her in check. He had not fought the Queen in a long time and wanted to again spar with her and her future Queen. He was confident … well, pretty confident he could take them. He had gotten in some good strikes. The Queen had merely gotten lucky all those times her sword had whacked his body hard.

Soon the Queen was before him after dismounting as he met her on the ground. They embraced and he took her hand and kissed her knuckles. He dare not kiss her cheek with the Stark girl glaring daggers at him. He smirked. His legend had proceeded him!

He greeted both women warmly. Arya was stiff at first but when he was pleasant and gallant with her and Dany she started to relax. He had not looked at the Queen again with leering eyes to put Arya at ease. He bent down and whispered in Arya’s ear when the Queen was talking with Olenna. “I fully support you and Dany becoming lovers and becoming her Queen.” He rose up and saw the girl blushing and looking over at Dany with longing. She then turned back to him and smiled great big.

He had another member in his camp. Too bad he wouldn’t be shagging her or the Queen. He knew gold standard lesbians when he saw them even if Dany had some dross in her standard. The dross was a fading relic of the past.

He saw Daenerys looking at his entourage.

“Where are you sand snake daughters? By the way, I am outlaying bastardy. No more will children be punished for the sins of their fathers.”

Oberyn laughed. “In Dorne that last name is held with pride. I cherish and love my daughters no matter their heraldry or lack thereof. Do not put the sins of the North on our doorstep. We remember the ways of the Andels. We love all our children. Equally.

Daenerys looked at him and cocked an eyebrow. “Then maybe I will have you visit the Great Houses to teach them the new way.”

“Hummmmm … yes Ellaria and I would could do that … that is an awful lot of pussy and cock to sample my Queen.”

“You are a horndog Oberyn!” the Queen cried out good naturedly. Arya eyed the man with embarrassment and saddled closer to the Queen and pressed into the Targaryen. The Queen started and smiled and wrapped her arm around the Stark girl.

“I think I must defend my royal hostage from your lascivious advances you cad!” The Queen called out to Oberyn good naturedly. Arya beamed at the Queen.

Geez Oberyn thought to himself. Could those two be any more obvious and still oblivious at the same time?

The Queen pressed him on why his daughters were not in the vanguard. He explained to the Queen his rational. She was placated but made it clear she wanted to meet them after the battles were fought. She had met two with Myrcella and Obara at the Battleborne Academy but wanted to meet the others and see them all together to get to know them.

They were separated by a short distance from the Tyrells who were now talking to Tyrion and Missandei who had walked up to them. With them were Barristan and Syrio who had been engaged by Garlan over fighting techniques. Barristan told him he would be free to join in their morning practice sessions. They would be ceasing soon as they prepared to march North.
Oberyn leaned closer to the Queen. “I look to be taking my fight to your enemies my Queen. Whether they be in Winterfell or at the Wall.”

To her credit Daenerys did not bat an eye while Arya looked shocked at the truth being clearly stated.

“I see. Have you shared your insights with anyone Oberyn?”

“Only with Ellaria but I assume you too have someone special you share your deepest insights and thoughts with.”

He smirked on the inside seeing both women’s cheeks redden. When were they going to start fucking!

“I have told no one else my Queen. I don’t care where you lead us. I just want to put my metal against your enemies. In fact I am relieved, I just could not conceive of Eddard Stark ever being an enemy of the realm. I am not sure the man could even conceive of treason against the throne.”

“Am I not right Arya?”

The girl’s shoulders straightened and fire came into her eyes at the perceived slight. She started to move forward.

“Arya … stay” the Queen said touching the teenager’s arm and the girl immediately stilled and looked at Daenerys calming down. “Oberyn tonight I am having probably my last Clatch of Confidents meeting in my quarters. Please join us. My confidents who include Olenna and now you since you are here.”

Oberyn felt his chest swell. Take that Mace Tyrell! “I would be honored my Queen. You are truly Nymeria reborn.”

“No I am Daenerys Targaryen first of my name—but—I appreciate the thought. It is a great compliment. Let us ride north and defeat the true enemy of the realm and then solve the problems of the realm.”

Oberyn smiled. He could think of several problems that could be solved.

“And I want to wipe from your mind any thoughts of belittling or taking down of Highgarden or Casterly Rock.”

Oberyn’s smile faltered just a little.

Soon the greetings were over and everyone started on their way. He had his eye on a new potential conquest. He followed his next potential bedmate as she strolled to some stalls selling fabric for dresses and blouses. He was surprised he had not noticed her before. It was like he had totally overlooked the girl in the past.

He would no more. The sweet teenager girl went to some stalls selling pretty fabric that she ran over her finger and she pressed against her cheek. She must be contemplating a new dress to have made for herself. She looked alluring her current red dress that was cross strapped that exposed delicious shoulders and the tops of her full C-cup breast. The girl’s breast seemed even larger on the small woman. Being petite had its advantages sometimes Oberyn thought with a leer of conquest.

Her dark skin reminded her of Sarella’s mother who had been a Summer Islander captain. She was not quite as dark and a full foot and then some shorter but that only added to her allure. Oberyn admired women in all their forms. He bet she loved her sex rough. He licked his lips preparing to move in and seduce the girl.

He saw the girl start to move down the street to the next stall that sold lace and bunting. He started to move forward already lining up the platitudes he would use to seduce the comely lass into his bed. He wondered if she was a virgin. The thought excited him. He started to move forward to accost his bedmate for the night.

Oberyn staggered his body reeling backwards. He felt like his body had slammed into a granite wall. He had hit something that seemed to slam him back with a savage directed force. What had hit him Oberyn had no idea. Oberyn had the wind knocked out of his lungs and was stunned as he landed hard on his ass. Stunned he shook his head to see what he had run into.

He saw before him a woman no taller than Missandei. The woman was if anything smaller than the petite girl. In fact she made the scribe seem actually tall. This figure stood still as death. She regarded him without any movement. He swore that she did not even seem to be breathing. This lack of motion creeped out Oberyn. His hackles were raised up high on his neck. The woman had on a simple green robe with a deep cowl. The arms of the robe covered her hands so only the tip of the small fingers were visible on her small hands. The woman’s feet were bare and covered in mud. He was shaking his head to try and clear the cobwebs from his head his hands behind him supporting his weight as he leaned back staring up at the small woman.

This woman was thin were the Naathi had womanly curves. How had hitting this slip of a girl stunned him so bad? He felt like he had fallen off a horse and then had it stomp him hard in the ribs and chest with its steel shod feet.

Oberyn started to get is body prepared to rise back up. He would put this upstart skinny Silent Sister wannabe in her place!

One instant this girl—no—thing was ten feet in front of him. She seemed to distort and twist and now she was straddling him with her legs on each side of his hips. She had moved so fast he had not seen her move. NO! One moment she had been ten feet in front of him the next instant she was upon him! The woman now had gripped this tunic and twisted her clenched fist making his shirt into a garrote. Oberyn felt his breath nearly completely choked off!

Oberyn started to bring his arms up to break the girl’s grip but he felt his body lifted off the ground like he was a ragdoll and shook so hard his teeth clacked hard and he felt his neck snap giving him painful whiplash. Twice, thrice he was jerked violently and effortlessly by this demon!

Suddenly, the cowled face was pressed into his face nose to nose. All he saw was deep impenetrable shadows with two eerie green glowing pools of hate and death.

Oberyn’s arms were slack now his body completely defeated. She was some kind of demon! Oberyn had fought men that were giants that walked the Earth and their strength was like a babe’s compared to the strength he had just felt.

“You will not touch Missandei’s purity with your vile, evil twisted thoughts or body.” The voice was light as if disembodied. It echoed like the woman was in a deep abyss or a deep well. It was hollow and cold as the grave.

Oberyn was shaken like a baby again his head snapping so hard he nearly blacked out.

“You are in the Queen’s service. I will spare you.” Oberyn thought the woman’s voice sounded like it was echoing up out of an empty tomb. The voice echoed around Oberyn. He noticed that no one seemed to notice his plight. Somehow his tormentor was shielding his attack from all other persons walking the street. “Once, I killed your kind, skinning the very skin and visceral off your vile bodies one layer at a time while I kept your minds alive to suffer each second of your deaths.”

The woman paused. For a moment this cowled demoness seemed as if she was lost in her thoughts reliving what she was telling Oberyn. “It was exquisite.”

The cowled woman turned to look at Missandei who was making a purchase and laughing gaily. The woman’s grip on Oberyn’s tunic relaxed suddenly. This demoness stared hard at Missandei. Her grip on Oberyn relaxed even more.

Oh my gods. She is in love with Missandei. This demon is in love with the small scribe!

The head turned back to gaze at him with murderous intent. “Do I have your word you will not touch or harm Missandei?”

Oberyn shook his head “yes”. He grimaced at the severe pain in his neck. His whole body felt like he had been stoned.

He was snatched to his feet so fast he did not realize he had been put on his feet losing his balance. The woman’s grip on his upper arm was frightening in its strength and the pain it flooded his body with. He got his balance. He wavered. All his joints screamed in pain from the severe whiplash his body had been subjected too. He had a killer headache and his vision was blurred.

The tiny woman released him. She looked up at him. From deep in her cowl the green pools flared. Oberyn gasped. All his pain disappeared. His abused body had been healed.

“I will know if you break your promise. I will kill you.”

Oberyn had to admire that. Direct and to the point.

“I will keep my promise. What choice do I have?”

The woman looked at him steadily. “Yes. You are not Thomas Covenant … but you will keep your word.”

The woman seemed to simply vanish.

Oberyn rubbed his badly bruised arm. She hadn’t healed that. A reminder of her might he knew. Well. Tonight would be interesting when he attended the Clatch of Confidents in Daenerys room. A meeting attended by Missandei. Each time he would look at the young scribe from Naath he would be desperately making sure to not think lascivious thoughts toward the woman.

What a thrill kill.

Arya

Arya was at the council table watching the Great Houses at work or maybe that was not working. They were sniping at each other and the jealousy between them was extremely obvious. With her having been raised in the North she had not seen such rancor. When her father met with his subjects and vassal lords there was none of this backbiting and arguing.

True she did not set at her father’s council table but she would have heard of any true rancor. The gossip webs among the courtesans and ‘those in the know’ were alive in King’s Landing repeating the bubbling backbiting and hostility that was being exhibited in this confluence of the Great Houses. In Winterfell there was no such rancor. It made for boring times. Times were not boring in King’s Landing.

Arya could maybe see some of it. In the North all were beneath her father and the House of Stark. Here in the South these men were used to being supreme in their home constituency. They were not used to being doubted or argued with. If her father was here he would be only one equal among many. She still believed that her father would show decorum and restraint.

Oberyn was rolling his eyes and making snide comments to both Mace and the two Baratheons. He made it clear that he considered Dorne to be far superior to the Houses that bordered his home territory.

It was strange what a change a day could make. Last night when he had entered Dany’s chambers to be part of the Clatch of Confidents Oberyn had been subdued. He was nervous and he seemed afraid of Missandei of all people. He shook her hand like it was burning him and he actually stuttered a few times when talking to the small sweet scribe. He had sat as far away from Missandei as possible. For some reason he kept rubbing his upper arm.

It was most strange. He was known for being a lover of all male and female flesh.

Today was a different matter. He was back to being confident and arrogant.

House Tyrell and Baratheon were coaching a slow steady advance north where Oberyn wanted to make a mad dash up North and to come before Riverrun and Winterfell and pull them down.

Daenerys had let him rant and rave about being aggressive. She let the great houses backbite and belittle each other. Arya knew she was letting them vent and tear at each other. They were spending their passion and verve on each other. When she was ready to tell them her goals they would be already worn out from their own infighting.

Arya had heard Daenerys last night telling Oberyn she admired his aggressive nature and wanted to make sure he counterbalanced the risk averse leaders of Highgarden and the Stormlands.

Oberyn knew he was playing a murmurs role for the Queen and did not care. He was more than happy to be the attack dog for his Queen. His aggressive stance and suggestions would make the Queen’s more reasonable approach seem like the right tact to take. Again, Arya admired how Dany worked everyone like a master of Cyvasse. She moved her pieces in such a way to guarantee checkmate for herself. Each move of her pieces bringing her closer to the goals she had set. She was a master tactician.

Dany had only three equals as far as Arya could see. Olenna who was now part of her inner circle and was fiercely backing the small Queen. Tyrion with his great intelligence and devious cunning. And lastly her father was the equal of the great Queen. Arya was still shocked that her father had proved so adept at the Game of Thrones. He had always grimaced and counseled against the very actions he had been doing for over ten months now. He had been averse to dark room politics. She knew he had felt he must unite the forces of Westeros to meet the threat of the Ice King at the Wall united and end the threat immediately. Her father wanted a decisive battle at the Wall. He would win and not have the war move south to ravage Westeros in a protracted war. The battle would be fought at the Wall. Defeat was not an option.

Arya was brought out of her reverie about her father and the Game of Thrones by Oberyn putting his hands underneath in his armpits and jerking his elbows up and down. “Cluck-cluck-cluck-cluck-“Cluck” Oberyn vocalized. Arya had to give Oberyn credit for playing his role to the hilt. She saw Mace, Renly and Stannis roll their eyes with Renly flipping the Red Viper the middle finger as an extra bonus.

“I have seen newborn chicks with more balls than the three of you combined” Oberyn barked at his fellow House Lords.

“Chickens don’t have balls” Stannis told Oberyn seriously. Renly bowed his head into his hand shaking it moaning “Brother—Brother” he intoned.

“Exactly Stannis. Without balls you don’t have a cock. You three couldn’t get a boner if you had to. Grow some stones and let us rush forth to meet the enemy. Let us fight the war that the minstrels will sing of for ages of to come.”

Mace looked at his sons sitting at the table with him. He looked unsure as to his course of action. Again Arya thought that Highgarden had been very fortunate to have Olenna guiding the House in the background and now Margaery had been groomed to take over the reins of power when the time came. Though Arya wondered what Margaery and her sister’s future would be. Whatever it would be, it would be together.

Garlan looked at Oberyn with disdain. “You have the couth and the manners of a fucking wild boar Oberyn. I pray you are not representative of Dorne. Why oh why couldn’t your brother Doran be here. He is reasonable.”

Oberyn smirked at the Tyrells. “A boar. I can live with that. A wild boar represents strength, audacity and a willingness to fight its foes. That is why I am here. Doran maintains the peace of Dorne and I fight for the interests of Dorne. We both know this is a time to fight. I will fight alone if I must by the Queen’s side.”

Willas shook his head at Oberyn histrionics. Arya could see that Willas was merely amused at the back and forth between his family and Oberyn.

Arya watched Dany look at the tableau playing out in front of her. She had her purple eyes lidded watching Oberyn attack and prepare the way for her.

Arya saw Dany straighten and she called out in her calm way that immediately brought the room to heel.

“Gentleman. I have listened to your counsel and I have determined that we must take a course that is the middle of your very intelligently presented viewpoints. We must act to meet the threat of our times but we will do so judicially.”

Oberyn started to protest and Dany fixed him with her steely gaze and he bowed his head. She was the Queen and he was her vassal. The others around the table saw this and themselves calmed and subconsciously had already prepared themselves to follow the Queen’s will. Also, the other House Lords enjoyed seeing Oberyn put in his place.

Arya listened with rapt attention as her Queen laid out her immediate plans and what she expected. She first put Oberyn in his place and told him that Riverrun would not be overrun. She was sending three of her most experienced Mercenary companies to surround Riverrun and put it under a loose siege. They would allow supplies and the regular populace in and out but no further troops. She would put a block force of another Mercenary company with several troops of Dothraki cavalry at both Inn of the Kneeling Man and the Singing Rocks rapids. The area was hilly being on the eastern edge of the Highheart piedmont. The soft hills would provide the heights to block the River Road... and harry any advancing troop while riders were sent out to warn of troop movements.

Oberyn stared at the Queen and tipped his head. Arya loved how her Queen had everything planned ahead of anyone else.

Stannis asked “How do we know your Dothraki can be trusted. We all know their history of rape and plunder.”

Arya cringed wondering how Dany would answer.

“That is a good question Stannis. I feel they can be trusted. I have only put my most trusted and willing to change Dothraki in charge of units. ‘I am The Mare Who Mounts The World’”.

Stannis answered back “That is well and good but how does that guarantee that they won’t revert back to form when you attention and gaze is elsewhere.”

“Agrred. I have killed seven Khals and taken their bells and killed most of their Bloodriders. I will kill more if I need. The Dothraki know who their true Khal is.”

Stannis looked at Dany and nodded in acceptance. Any man had to bow before that kind of prowess. To become a Khal you had to be a mighty warrior. Dany had killed seven of those mighty warriors. She had proven herself over and over to the Dothraki. The man was stiff necked but that kind of mayhem on one’s enemy was always admired by all.

Dany then told her Lords how she had prepared the way up to the Riverlands on the King’s Highway for their advance with camps located every march day’s distance up the road. She had been sending out Dothraki and fast surveillance teams throughout the Riverlands and into the lower Neck of Westeros. She told the Lords that she had had her dragons constantly crisscrossing these two lands and was convinced that all the armed forces had already moved up North to concentrate their strength to Winterfell and beyond to the North.

Eddard knew he had not the strength to fight the forces of Southern Westeros with her added might of Essos at her beck and call. Her alliances with the Summer Islands and Yi Ti had given her numbers of forces that outnumbered the forces of the North, Riverlands and the Vale by six or seven to one. He had to fight on a battleground he knew intimately and reduce his lines of supply and communication while extending those same lines for Queen of King’s Landing.

She was advancing her camps up the King’s highway all the way up to deepest penetration of the Bite. She explained how with a large force of Yi Ti ships and their troops they had taken over the Three Sisters. They had only taken beachheads and put blocking forces on the main roads. Dany had gifted the islands with boatloads of herd animals and five Cogs filled with building supplies and carpenters to help the populace build up wood and brick houses. More trading galleons were filled with finished clothing, simple utensils, stocks to make pens for animals, large staples of cheese, dried beef and barrels of grain for the coming winter.

The populace it was reported were enthusiastically pledging full allegiance to Queen Daenerys. The Night Lamp lighthouse tower were taken over by her forces and kept fully light. With the freely given largesse and no threats to his house or future and only a temporary landing, Lord Godric Borrell volunteered the use of his castle, Breakwater to be used as a command post for the Queen’s forces.

From there the fleet moved on and established a beachhead on the shore across the river from Oldcastle. The beachhead fifty miles to the west of where the marshes of the Neck met the sea. This beachhead was manned by forces from Yi Ti. They were moving both north and by east establishing posts and small stockades to establish the future camps for the march north. They brought with them more grain and jerked meat for the approaching winter. They gave the food freely winning over the undefended populace. The people had heard of the Queen’s benevolence but now were becoming believers of it. More fleets were sailing into the Bite bringing in more supplies to make camps and feed the local populace. Dany explained how she had already worked with the Reeds and they had sworn duel allegiance to her and Eddard. They would not oppose her if she did not attack them.

With the local populace now in total support of the Queen, her forces had now concentrated on bringing in troops and war material to surge due west to establish another column of support to the King’s Road. More troops and supplies would be moving north from this new beachhead.

Daenerys told those at the table that the Reeds felt that Eddard Stark would explain himself when the time came. All snorted but Oberyn and Mace’s children.

The Queen detailed how she was sending long wagon trains of supplies and war material north from many directions now. She showed all her maps of the North and her advancing forces that would move north and put down the Confederacy. She showed the blocking forces she had positioned outside of all the major populace centers at strategic positions.

The Queen had the forces of the North outflanked and blocked if they decided to pivot and come back south to fight. The blocking forces holding the enemy at bay till her dragons could come into play and her main forces move to intercept. One way or the other the North would be subdued.

When questioned by Stannis about the many wagons filled with dragon glass Dany simply explained she planned for every contingency. She had conquered all of Central and Western Essos by doing that. The rest she had formed alliances with; all the way to the lands of Asshai. There were rumors of the risen again Ice King. She would not be caught without weapons to fight that foe.

She told them she had fought him once and thought she had put him down. She might have failed she had come to think. He would be much more wary now. No matter. She would defeat him again if they met after she had taken care of her “Eddard problem”.

Mace asked what they would do with Eddard Stark for his treason. Arya wondered what answer she would provide.

“I will defeat my enemy and then show him mercy … like I did Robert Baratheon.”

Arya saw Oberyn clench his jaw. He still fumed that the Queen had let him live. Arya thought it funny how he once hated Cersei and now she was his daughter in law.

“Will you exile him?” Mace pressed.

“He will take the Black. He is of the North is he not?”

That satisfied the other lords. Arya knew once they were given proof of the Ice King they would understand her father’s actions and reasoning.

The Queen said that in one weeks’ time they would be journeying north with the heavy cavalry. She would meet the challenge of her times.

The meeting was adjourned with all the Lords of the Houses on board if reluctantly. Stannis may be stiff and Mace unimaginative but they were loyal and once they had given their allegiance they would give it all.
Arya was again enthralled with how adroitly the Queen handled the situation and her overarching strategic thinking. She was in league with her father but was still showing enough caution to protect herself if she had read her father wrong. Of course her father was totally loyal.

Arya had spent the last part of the meeting simply watching Daenerys Targaryen being the most capable leader that Westeros had probably ever seen. She was beyond skilled and competent on the battlefield and was had proved over and over again she was equally adroit in battle strategy and the working of allies and enemies alike. The woman seemed to be skilled at all factors of governance.

Arya looked at Dany as she talked. She favored loose blouses that let her beautiful breast sway and jiggle. She had seen those same breast naked and flipping wildly as Dany wailed and jackknifed almost violently on her bed masturbating to thoughts of a female lover. Arya was both jealous and enthralled. Seeing Dany’s body through Nymeria’s eyes cumming again and again soaked in sweat and cum for several hours every night was intoxicating. Arya longed to bury her face in the swollen sloppy wet cunt that she saw night after night being fucked expertly by Dany with her fingers and or toys.

Arya wanted those to be her fingers pumping the Queen’s pussy to so wet orgasms! Arya had adjusted to seeing and not being able to touch herself while warged into Nymeria. She would go into a masturbatory frenzy when Nymeria left Dany’s quarters. Arya felt a little guilty for spying on Dany but it was Dany that induced her Direwolf into her quarters. She was merely taking advantage of what the Queen had presented Arya.

Arya felt sorrow for the Queen. To the public she was still casting for the perfect man to marry and make a future king. They would rule so she could get pregnant with a male heir and all would be well. Dany would be forced to live a lie to satisfy the realm. Arya now knew the truth of the Queen’s true desires. It angered Arya with the thought that even the Queen was being forced to live a lie of her true desires in a mate. The world sucked sometimes.

Of course, over the last week the sweet masturbation sessions had ceased with the Queen being in constant meetings and training. She would have meetings late into the night or if no meetings went to bed immediately getting much needed sleep. The Queen would let Nymeria in and gave her plates of meat and lots of belly rubs which the pleasure hound lapped up. But no more sex shows. Arya sighed. She had come to really love seeing Dany jill off to wailing orgasms every night!

Darn the needs of the realm! Still, it was allowing Arya to catch up on her sleep. After masturbating to thoughts of going down on Dany and using those toys on her.

Arya let Nymeria run the grounds or her wolf would forgo that and lounge in front of the fire while her master took care of her needs and jilled off three or five times till her body was soaked in sweat and cum that made the wolf crinkle her nose at the pungent scent. Humans simply had a high sex drive the Direwolf determined.

After her master exhausted herself and pulled the covers over her exhausted but satiated body, only then did Nymeria jump up on the bed and lay at her master’s side as she patted her wolf’s head. The mighty direwolf rumbled in pleasure having her ears scratched.

Arya wondered as she scratched Nymeria ears and felt her wolf rumble in contentment if she should have made an advance on Dany when she asked Arya to massage her shoulders and took off her top. That day still haunted her and what might have been. Looking back on it Arya was both sure and totally unsure that Dany wanted her to reach around and massage Dany’s beautiful perfect firm breast. Even now Arya’s mind vacillated back and forth between Dany wanted me too and you are a love sick girl seeing what doesn’t exist. If the Queen had wanted her advances then Arya had totally blown it! All that time wasted!
Arya simply did not have the confidence to make the first move. Dany was so much more experienced and worldly than her. Surely, she would make her desires known to Arya if she desired Arya. Dany would use her worldly experiences to seduce and bed her oh so willing royal hostage. She had not, so, thus, there must be no attraction beyond simple friendship. It madden and frustrated Arya not being able to tell the right of her situation. She loved Dany with all her heart and desperately wanted to make love to her. A lot. A really, really lot.

She also knew that Dany herself may be trapped by expectations and the need of the throne. To have to marry a man to have as king and hopefully produce male heirs. The wrongness of that made Arya want to gag. It could be in Dany’s bed she was free to masturbate to her dream lover and know in reality she would have to sacrifice happiness for the realm.

That meant Dany would have concubines to satisfy her true itch. Arya did not think she could live that kind of love. She harrumphed and sighed. Life could be so unfair at times.

Two days later her training masters came to her and announced that that nothing left to show or teach her. She had become a true master of the sword. She was told that she must train and train to reach her full potential but she had mastered all they could teach her. Syrio and Barristan both told her that they had never seen anyone learn as fast or as well as her. They both told her she was extremely gifted. Such gifts could not be let to waste but must be fully exploited, else, why be given the gift. She vowed to them she would honor all their hard work with her to achieve all she could be. Their smiles and slaps on her back of approval had made her feel so good.

They both pressed and attacked her alone and in tandem. She was able to easily defend herself one on one and with both of them attacking her she was able to hold them at bay though it took total concentration and constant retreating and sudden movements to the sides to keep them off guard.

One on one she could put them on the defensive as often as they put her on the defensive. She was not able to penetrate their defensive stances and parries but rarely but the same applied to her. She practiced intensely knowing that the opportunities would be much more limited when they got on the road.

Dany had come to her and congratulated her on achieving her dreams so quickly. Dany was immensely impressed and asked Arya if she would be part of her inner guard now. Arya would be part of her honor guard.

Of course Arya had accepted and felt like she was walking on the clouds the rest of the day.

Others trained with them but they moved in and out of the training ground where Arya stayed on the training ground from sunup to sundown now. She trained with her two masters on and on. When not practicing with them she worked on her steps and parries working to fully ingrain all her styles and blocks into muscle memory.

Others would come down to the yard to practice for an hour. She fought Garlan and found him capable but not in her league. Gendry showed up with Maya. They attacked her together. Gendry had improved much with his Warhammer but he still made basic mistakes. When he exposed himself to attack Maya charged in like a wildcat to make Arya focus on her to protect her lover.

Arya would press her attacks and unarm her foes or deliver fatal strikes. Maya would merely pick her sword up or grimace with her accepted hit. Gendry on the other hand sometimes ripped off his silly bull helm and threw it down and kicked it. Maya would pat and coo to him calming him down.

“Gendry … you seen her with the Masters … she is a Blade now. We don’t have the time to train and even come close to her equal. Come on Gendry … show some class.”
He would glare at her but she would look up at him till he looked sheepish and he would gather his helm and put it back on and they would attack Arya again.

Arya enjoyed sidestepping their strikes and using her Needle to block and shunt their attacks to the side and then attack with her broadsword. She would use Needle to poke and swipe keeping her foe focused on that blade while she came in from another attack vector with her left hand and deliver the killing stroke with her broadsword.

Barristan and Syrio had been right. Her unorthodox fighting style was unique and befuddled and put her foes ill at ease from the beginning. To Arya everyone else’s fighting style looked pretty much like everyone else’s. The only attack that would cause her problems was when she met sheer power or poetry. The former were evidence by Barristan, Berienne and her father. The later was Syrio. She would sometimes tire herself out trying to corner the water dancer to try and deliver the killing stroke. His speed and skill would turn the tables so fast on her she would be shocked to be on the defense when a moment before she was on offense.

On the last day before they were to leave she fought Jaime Lann—Tarth and Brienne of Tarth. Jamie was good, very good but she was able to defend his attacks with some difficulty and then press her attacks. It would take her ten minutes to finally find a fault in his defense and be able to slip in to deliver the necessary stroke to deliver victory.

Brienne was another matter all together. Her strength and speed was truly frightening. How could a person so large move so fast! Jaime whooping it up encouraging his wife to take the runt wolf out both enraged and inspired Arya. The man’s full throated support for his wife made her like the man immensely. Brienne was nearly her equal in speed which Arya used to keep the woman just enough off balance to keep her from pressing an attack to success. The woman’s blows felt like Barristan and her father’s. The swords clanging loudly. The practice swords sending off sparks. The woman never got excited and methodically pressed her attacks but would throw in a sudden unexpected and inspired attack that had no precedent or antecedent.

They would lock swords traveling blades down the other’s blade with bodies twisting back as they reversed the angels and would work their sword back down the other’s blade.

It had been a draw. Barristan had watched silently. After Brienne had left after kissing Jaime nearly senseless for his enthusiastic support Barristan called Arya over.

“She is our equal Arya. Never fight one such as her, your father, myself or Syrio if you can help it. It would come down to sheer fate as to the winner.”

Arya had agreed. She was humbled to know that Jamie’s wife was her equal. Her husband and Dany were just that level below her skill. The difference of only the smallest degree. She loved being the best and knowing that she had an equal that was not one of her masters or her father disquieted her.

Barristan gripped her shoulders and made her look at him. “Never feel rancor or shame when you meet an equal in the sword or some other weapon. We are the elite. There can never be just one.”

Arya felt shame at her unworthy thoughts. It had been clear that Brienne had forgotten about the sparring as soon as it was over. She went back to her life and her husband.

Finally, it was the day to leave. Dany took her up on Drogon as the other dragons rose up with their riders. They circled King’s landing roaring loudly with bugle calls that echoed off the stone walls and peeled out over the harbor.
Arya was still dazed when she had first seen Dany this morning. That had been when Dany had come out to the square to mount Drogon. Daenerys Targaryen had been simply stunning. Her hair was alive with the multitude of silver bells that adorned her hair. Her hair pulled back with a clip in the back and small braids running down from her temples. They had several bells each and the rest of the bells twined throughout her silver white hair. Her pale skin seemed to absorb the sun and throw it back out like the Moon come down to Earth.

Dany was so beautifully pale and today it was set off by the dragon bone mail that she had seen on a hanger in her quarters. The fine nearly diamond hard links were so supple they hugged the firm curves of her Queen hugging her body like a second skin. The dark black of the armor that ran from her throat down her body and limbs were the perfect counterbalance to her pale features.

Dany was a goddess come down to Earth. Arya watched star struck as she watched her Queen climb up on Drogon. That was the only thought that came to her mind as Dany held out her hand to help Arya mount her dragon. Arya if anything somehow fell deeper in love with Dany at that moment.

Like the dragons had ten months before they buzzed the city as the main armor columns started to move up the King’s Road. Dany took Drogon out over the harbor. Missandei had set this date for the departure of yet another convoy of ships heading north. The Summer Islanders had sailed in with the evening tide. Now they sailed out with full sail regalia. They had their most colorful sails on the yardarms and their colorful family and battle flags on display on the highest spars. Across the city, fleet and the column heading up the King’s Road a multitude of war horns sounded that blended with the dragons’ mighty clarion calls to arms. Drogon roared with mighty bellows and now sent out long fusillades of roaring flame that was mirrored by Viserion and Rhaegal.

Arya looked down at the pageantry of it all. To the world it appeared the Queen was going to war to put her upstart father down when in reality they were going to the Wall to fight an enemy thought dead for eight thousand years.

Arya watched cargo ships riding low their hulls filled to overflowing with dragon glass weapons that Dragonstone was still producing in three shifts working continuously. The forces of man would have the weapons they needed to fight the enemy. Tar and pitch had left on earlier convoys and on others that were forming up that Tyrion would be in charge of now. These ships would be filled with the food stocks, clothing, supplies for camps and the building of camps and siege weapons. Countless tons of supplies had already shipped out. Tons more would follow.

Missandei was working on the code that had been delivered to them. Arya knew that the intelligent scribe would break the code. She would find the key.

Dany flew Drogon over the King’s Road. The war horses of the Great Houses and their vassals were in their full battle armor that glinted in the morning sun. Once out of sight of King’s Landing they would stop and put the armor and undercoats on wagons for the journey north. This current display was for show to impress and encourage those left behind. Also, the pageantry inspired the knights who would be putting their lives on the line in defense of the realm.

Arya thought Sansa would enjoy the pageantry she saw below her.

She thought of Sansa and her lover Margaery Tyrell. She needed to talk to them. She was so confused on what to do. She wanted Dany so bad but was afraid the woman only saw as her royal hostage that had become a close friend but nothing more. If she made a play for the Queen and was rejected she would die. It was that plain and simple. She would die.

She longed to use Margaery expert advice on cunnilingus but had yet to figure out how to get to Dany in the right situation to let her mouth do the talking. Damnit she was frustrated.
Arya looked at the mighty forces moving north and thought of what had already moved north and knew more forces would be sailing up from Dorne and the Stormlands not counting the forces sailing in form Essos.

They would met the Ice King and they would KILL the ice king. She prayed that her sword would deliver the decisive stroke in the coming battle.

Eddard

Eddard walked his horse between the mighty tress of the Wolfswood. He heard wolves in the distance howling their greetings to each other. The sounds mournful to his human ears but he doubted it. The long notes were more probably full of greetings or success of the hunt. He was happy with his decision to forbid the hunting of wolves. He had to punish several with hefty fines but his rewarding the taking of lambs was paying off. He made sure that he let his citizens to know to not abuse his trust in them. He had Direwolves that could sniff out the truth of any claims. That alone he was sure kept most in line.

He walked on listening to the night song of the forest. The hooting of owls and whippoorwills in the trees. He heard some deer to his left moving through the underbrush. There was a brook to his right and he heard the water bubbling over the rocks. The spring water beginning its long journey to the sea. He paused to look at the brook in the broken moonlight that penetrated the forest canopy.

He saw a raccoon with its paws in the water moving as it cleaned a crawfish it had unearthed from underneath a rock. The animal brought the meal up to its mouth and nibbled on the tasty treat. Eddard smiled softly. He had always found enjoyment in being around nature and seeing the ebb and flow of life. The crawfish gave up its life to further the life of the intertwined web that bound all together.

Eddard looked at the mighty pines and firs that he walked past slowly. His horse nickered softly. Eddard looked at the trunks at the moss that clung to the bark on the north and west sides of the trees. The soft winds bringing in moisture from the Bay of Ice. The fir trees soaring to over two hundred above his head. He came upon a stand of Northern White pines and their height while less at eighty to hundred feet were still imposing. Their trunks closer together. He moved over and ran his fingers into the cracks of the pine bark tracing the grooves he found with his fingertips. He wondered how many years this mighty tree had seen. Had it been alive when his great grandfather still walked the Earth? His fingers worked the unfathomable creases of the pine bark seeking to know the secrets the trees hid in their sap and boughs.

He saw a shadow pass overhead as a large Great Horned owl flew by its wings silent as the great bird of prey propelled its way forward. He heard an elk bugle and bark in the distance before him as he journeyed to the secret vale he had discovered as a youth near the ancient watchtower erected by the first men. Its name long forgotten the fallen stones covered with moss and vines.

His hideaway was a league before that, located in a hidden small vale with a small waterfall that was only twenty feet in height. He had swim in the pool at the bottom of the falls in his youth during the summer. There was a small glen with a large dead fir tree trunk lying on the north end of the glen that he would sit on and absorb the beauty of nature and contemplate the events and problems weighing on his mind.

He would be there in fifteen minutes. He had journeyed two days down the King’s Highway with Edmure of Riverrun on his way up to the Wall. Cat’s father passing two seasons ago had been hard on the son. The Maester said that cancer had slowly consumed the old lord. Edmure longed to prove he was the equal of Hoster Tully.

Eddard thought Edmure was fully capable just a little rash. He had Arryn in charges of the forces until he arrived. Edmure to his credit had not balked at that arrangement. He knew that Arryn’s experience was far greater than his in the arts of combat.

Eddard had been happy at the martial capability of Edmure’s conscripts. They were well organized and well fed. An army marched on its stomach Eddard’s father had always told him as a child. Eddard had insisted that all his vassals treat their men and few women with respect and care for their conscripts as if their own children. For the most part the Lords heeded his words. Eddard could not understand how so many armies in Essos operated the way they did. The men in their armies were treated so badly. Was it any wonder their armies so easily broke if the combat went against them. They had no love or loyalty to their cruel task masters and generals.

He had supped with Edmure and his generals alongside the King’s Highway four days up from Winterfell. Eddard had hosted Edmure at Winterfell with his generals and lieutenants for two nights. They had meetings every morning and afternoon. He had wanted the Riverlanders to experience the largesse of his home.

Eddard had glared and called three of Edmure’s generals out to the hall and made it very clear that Sansa and Margaery Tyrell were part of his war council halfway through the first meeting. The men had harrumphed and tried to over talk the two women when they were giving reports he assigned them and offered insights.

“Why don’t you pull your heads out of your asses and actually listen to what they are saying instead of letting your prejudices rule you.”

The men had glared at him but held their tongue. They knew that Edmure would side with the Lord of Winterfell.

By the end of the second day the two generals were Sansa and Margaery’s main supporters. They had been convinced when they asked some strategy questions expecting the girls to be flustered and instead found themselves flustered when their questions were answered but had no answers for the follow on questions and then the women supplied the answer to the questions the generals could not answer.

Eddard had been immensely proud of Sansa and her future wife. He respected and nurtured leaders no matter their sex. Five years ago he seriously doubted he would have made such decisions but he had grown mightily in those years. Eddard like to think that he had become much more enlightened in the intervening years. Slowly, over the years, the death of Lyanna had changed him. The frustrations he knew she had chaffed mightily under.

He had traveled with Edmure to see how he marshalled his forces on the march north. Eddard was very satisfied with the speed of the march and the discipline of the march itself. The camps were orderly and took advantage of the previous camps work to layout camps that had space between the tents and provided for proper sanitation and the setting up of cook fires to prepare nutritious meals. The quartermasters passed out new boots and breeches and tops as needed.

An army that was cared for would meet the enemy on the field of battle with much greater force and vigor.

Eddard had made his way back down the King’s Road. His scouts told him that the Queen was extending her bases up the neck now and the beachheads to the east were expanding apace. His scouts reported that the Queen was respecting the locals by building their camps away from built habitations. The Queen’s forces were coming North with a surfeit of grain. Her forces were freely distributing a healthy quota to the small holds near the camps. The answer to the questions of her benevolence were that “Winter is Coming”.

Eddard had to smile at that. The woman was using the North’s saying as way to ingrate their way into the hearts of the populace. That and honorable behavior had his people accepting the appearance of people from the South and Essos. Eddard had spent months hammering again and again into his people that Daenerys Targaryen forces were not the enemy. They were coming the North to fight the common foe.

Eddard had been clear that his subjects were to accept the forces of the Queen with open arms. The actions of the Queen made it easy for his subjects to accept his edicts. They were coming as benefactors and not conquerors. The forces of the Queen were proving his words to be prophetic.

The ravens crisscrossing the North informed Eddard and his lords of the advancements of Daenerys forces. The bridgeheads had expanded both west and north. The two northern most beachheads at the Bay of Seals just below the new gift and the one to the south of the Weeping Water River had their forces moving north. The scouts in that area reported the Queen was leaving well organized and disciplined mercenary companies in blocking positions ten leagues distance from the Dreadfort, Karhold and Last Hearth. The forces putting up positions near the main roads in the area but allowed all none military traffic to pass with only cursory inspections.

His military forces had long moved north and east to the King’s Road to march north. The queen was moving the bulk of her forces north and west but left enough forces to delay and seriously bloody any force that Eddard may have sent against her if treachery was on his mind.

He knew that if attacked dragons would soon appear to spew flaming death down upon his attacking forces. His forces would be severely blooded and harried delaying any advances. Her dragons would be able to do enough damage to allow her forces to come to the aid of the blocking forces. Fortunately, this was not Eddard’s design.

The Southernmost bridgehead South of Ramsgate had sent out forces to form a corridor that went due west. The ten mile wide corridor forded the White Knife River below where it forked with the Blue Ridge River. The corridor had been extended west all the way to the King’s Highway below Marbleshade croft.

There the Queen’s forces had made a large supply depot and stable pin. She had a large force of Dothraki ranging scouting for the queen. He knew of the Dothraki’s reputation but they had translators with them and showed the greatest respect. So it was true. Eddard had wondered but she seemed to have indeed broken the Dothraki to her rule. The Dothraki respected strength and Daenerys Targaryen was that personified.

He had spoken to a merchant two weeks ago who had sailed from King’s Landing with a load of wool for White Harbor. The Queen was allowing all non military trade to continue. Manderly was very impressed with the Queen. She could have crippled his economy with an embargo she could easily install with her mighty navies. He told Eddard through ravens how twice massive fleets had spent an entire day sailing to within a mile of Seal Rock. The massive stone dominating the approaches to the Outer Harbor. The stone crowned with a ringfort of weathered stones of the First Men that had stood desolate and abandoned for centuries. However, the Manderlys had fortified it with crossbowmen, scorpions, and spitfires. Eddard remembered what the books had to say of the place. It was a stone that loomed fifty feet above the waters, grey-green in color. Seals often rested on it.

The seals had lifted their lazy heads to see the mighty swan ships and sleek galleys of Yi-Ti to be followed by the gaily colored sails of ships from the free cities along the east coast of Essos sail past. The ships sailed into the harbor but turned and headed back out to sea with no hostile action given. The message of the turning ships was clear. These massive forces could be brought to bear against White Harbor but they choose to sail back out to sea in peace.

We are not your enemy.

Then three weeks ago a massive fleet had sailed into The Bite and quickly conquered the Three Sisters. If you could call taking over the Three Sisters with no blood shed being conquered. Instead Daenerys Targaryen had seduced the islands to her steed. She had done it without firing an arrow or a war horn being sounded. She had seduced House Borrell with food and material to build better homes and then a surfeit of goods to make their lives more amenable where offered. All her emissaries asked for in return was the anchorages around the islands and the lighthouse. When they were done they would leave. Never to return unless asked for.

Eddard shook his head. The smugglers were practically begging Daenerys to put a permanent garrison on their island and now asking how they could help her in her endeavors. Eddard had never considered them worth the effort. The Queen shamed him with her actions and ability to think outside the norms. She treated his own subjects better than he had. He had never tried to devise a means to make the smugglers change their demeanor and efforts. He sighed. He needed to think on that. Eddard prided himself on his ability to grow and change. To strive each day to be a better man than he had been the previous day.

The Queen had established another beachhead at deepest bite of The Bite. The land there was less swampy there and she most have scoped a way through it. Probably with the Reed’s subtle help. That was fifteen short miles to the King’s Road. She had quickly made a corridor and now was forming camps and stockades both north and south. He recognized the pattern to form a camp at the end of one days march. Eddard shook his head. How had she amassed such forces and material? She must have been hording supplies for years.

Eddard again marveled at this barely twenty ear old woman showing such strategic foresight and her acumen for tactical insight and decisions was the equal of any he had seen or read of. Himself included. Eddard felt ashamed of himself for defying his Queen but he had not been able to conceive of any other way to bring the South to the North as a cohesive whole and not a rabble fighting as much with each other and the Queen as against him.

No matter where the Queen’s forces were they aggressively carried out their assignments but at the same time showed the greatest restraint with the local population. Both sides showed restraint and respect. If the forces of life and freedom won the day the Houses would be made stronger by this positive interaction.

He was forming a higher opinion of the forces from Essos too. Especially the Dothraki. He never thought any force or anyone could tame their wild natures. His scouts reported that the Dothraki camps were raucous but their wild antics were kept to themselves. The camps of the plainsmen were well away from his citizens to not cause rancor. The Dothraki seemed to need only themselves for their revelry and debauchery.

Eddard had to chuckle. It seemed many of the local youth were going to the Dothraki at night to partake in their wild rituals. The youths traveling the two or three necessary to reach the camps. Camps they were freely allowed to enter. The vagaries of youth Eddard supposed. He had never had those type of desires. He wondered sometimes if he had missed out on something precious. Had Catelyn Tully missed out on something being married to such a “stick in the mud” type of man? Eddard shook his head. He had no answers to those kind of questions.
He was getting nearer to his hidden vale. It was only a mile and half now. He liked to come to that hidden oasis to look up at the stars. It gave him a chance to connect with nature and with himself. He always felt so small looking up at those distant points of light wondering what they truly were. He would calm his thoughts while he sat there alone looking up at the stars. His cherished the Godwood of Winterfell but it was too sacrosanct sometimes when he just needed to be alone and enjoy the feel of nature without hearing the whispering of the old gods.

His thoughts turned to Sansa and her future wife Margaery. He still shook his head at times at how this turn of events had occurred. Discovering the truth of Arya’s nature had prepared him to accept that his other daughter had the same innate desires.

He had come to thank the old gods for Margaery. The girl was as sage and devious as Sansa when it came to cunning ideas for the coming war. Not only that, but, their ability to plan the troop movements and the travel of logistics to where they needed to be had been a godsend to Eddard. Robb simply did not have that ability in his mind. He was a warrior and not a logistics tactician. He had those capabilities with the two women on his war council. He snorted on how they had won over all the men around the table. These men were now always going to them for answers and advice. He tolerated their attempts to look down the bodices since the girls did not seem to mind.

Eddard shook his head again. He found the actions unseemly but Sansa and Margaery enjoyed the attention. As far as Eddard was concerned he felt the men were being dishonorable. He only looked at his wife from the day they married even though he at first felt no love for Catelyn Tully. He had quickly come to love the fierce proud woman with all his heart.

He was becoming extremely worried about Cat. With her previous five pregnancies she had had no problem carrying the babes in her womb to term. She had been active around the castle up to her water breaking. Not this pregnancy. Maester Luwen had put Cat on strict bedrest a week ago. She was seven months and showing. Eddard loved how matronly Cat looked. To him she looked so motherly. She had always doted on her newborns.

Catelyn had to stay off her feet with her swollen ankles. She was throwing up too frequently for Eddard or the Maester’s liking. That should have subsided months ago. Twice Cat had bleed. The bleeding while not heavy was very troubling. The Maester and Margaery spent their evenings caring for Cat.

Eddard knew that the Maester’s potions and Margaery’s homespun remedies comforted and made Cat’s life so much more bearable. Margaery would hold and stroke his wife’s hand and tell Cat how her new born daughter would be such a strong lass. Catelyn insisted the child would be another strong son to become a mighty Lord or honorable knight. Often Margaery would stay with Cat till she had gone to sleep. The young woman dotting and caring with loving touches to his wife. Eddard would be forever thankful for Margaery coming into his life.

Margaery was always taking Cat ice cream covered with butterscotch, blueberries and black berries. She would happily spoon mouthfuls to his wife while they gossiped about the staff and the noble families of the North. Margaery had learned all the dalliances and inane plots. Eddard knew the girl enjoyed the gossip but had also learned it so she could gossip with Cat in her bedridden state. It lifted his wife’s spirits. Margaery loved making his wife feel pampered and loved.

Sansa would join them after she had finished her duties and the three happily whiled away the hours till Cat went to sleep with a smile on her face. Their loving treatment to his wife made Eddard hiccup thinking on it. Cat now considered Margaery as her third daughter and could not wait to see them wed. Eddard was most pleased that his family was growing with his eldest children finding their mates.
Sansa and Margaery had become so indispensable to Eddard and his war effort that he was going to bring them North to the wall if Cat’s health allowed for it. He was starting to fear her frail health would prevent their coming with him. Eddard needed their wise council and their ability to make sure supplies were where they needed to be when they needed to be. But he had decided that his wife’s health precluded all other considerations. If she needed Sansa and Margaery Eddard would be forced to leave them behind.

He passed through the arch of the crossed pines that led him towards his hidden sanctuary. He paused to touch the bark of the two leaning trees. He wondered again if Melisandre and Ygritte could devise a mean that would truly and completely convince the Lords of the South of the true threat beyond the Wall. He knew they were powerful but how could they show all the Lords the truth?

When in their presence he had felt their ancient power and surety of purpose. He was convinced they would succeed. He trusted their abilities even though he had no reason too. He smiled softly. He was surrounded by women whose efforts were key to his victory over the ancient enemy of the North. The North never forgot. That was true. He marveled that so many women who had no connection to the North were giving their all to make sure the North achieved victory.

Eddard was still a thousand yards from his hidden sanctuary. The hackles on his neck rose up and his arm hairs rose erect. He felt great power and a suppressed violence. Something was in the vale waiting for him. Listening to the Weirwood had attuned his senses to such subtle nuances of his environment. He paused and tested the air. He felt an intelligence that seemed foreign to him. He was not sure if it was even human.

He decided to turn around. The entity could have his vale.

“I am not your enemy Eddard Stark. Come to me. You cannot outrun me. Do not anger me.” The voice sounded like it was whispering in his ear and yet it still sounded like it was echoing across a wide ravine. The voice was definitely feminine. The words sighing across the boughs of the conifers. He knew he must answer that summons.

One more powerful woman had entered his life he decided with a grimace smile. These were indeed new times. He gently kicked his horse forward toward the vale.

“Those points of light in the nighttime sky are like onto our sun but far, far away. It took the light many years to reach your eyes. Some of that light has traveled thousands of years Eddard Stark.”

Eddard paused his horse’s movement down the path. This woman could read his thoughts it seemed.

He felt his sword Eveingstar on his back. He flexed his shoulders. He had no designs to draw it. He sensed it would not matter if he did. The force awaiting him in the vale could tear him limb from limb he sensed with no effort. Sword or no sword. He moved his horse forward down the small trail.

He took a deep breath to control his pulse hammering in his veins. A wise man was always afraid. He broke into the vale three minutes later. There in the glade near the waterfall was the fallen tree he liked to sit on. Someone was already sitting on it. Around the figure strange glowing lights flitted around the sitting figure. They sensed his appearance and darted into the forest around him.

“Come Eddard Stark. Come meet new friends.”

Eddard Stark slowly walked his horse forward. The figure sat looking at him with no emotion. As he approached the calmly sitting woman he started. The figure sitting on the log was not human.

The woman stood up as he approached. She wore a simple green tunic with a hood but the hood was down. She looked up at him. She was definitely short. She could not be more than 4'9". That was not what caught his attention though. It was her eyes that had no lids and were round like golden dragons and glowed green. She had long green hair that he knew was not dyed. She had green eyebrows that rose up at a sharp angle from between her eyes. Her ears swept back to two points on each ear. She was beautiful in a strange exotic way.

He noticed her hair was undulating on unseen currents. She regarded him coolly. The colored lights started to flit in from the edges of the glade. The predominate colors of the flitting lights were red, orange, yellow and some light blues. As they slowly moved closer to him in erratic starts and stops Eddard gasped. There was a tiny figure that seemed to glow at the center of the glowing spheres.

The greened eye woman locked eyes with Eddard “They are fairies … You are Eddard Stark. Warden of the North. You remind me of Missandei.”

Eddard paused and looked down concentrating. He was nonplussed at the non sequitur. “You mean the scribe to the Queen?” How could he could he be compared to that small gentle woman.

“Yes.”

Eddard barked a soft laugh. He was perplexed. The woman stared up at him with those green glowing eyes. He dismounted. He felt disrespectful sitting a horse.

“I am at a disadvantage I fear. What is your name?”

“I am She Who Must Not Be Named. I lost the right to my true name many millennium ago.” The woman looked up at the starry night sky. “That was long ago …” she looked up at the moon that was blood red “when the Sun, Earth and moon line up the moon passes through the Earth's shadow. This causes the moon to appear a dull red color due to sunlight scattered through the Earth's atmosphere.” She continued to look up at the blood red orb in the sky. She had explained the moon but he was not sure he understood the why and wherefore.

Eddard processed that information. He knew instinctively to not pursue this line of questioning and move on from the non sequitur.

“You said Missandei and I are innocents. I cannot see how. How are we in any way alike?”

“You are both innocent.” The woman turned her glowing green gaze back on Eddard.

Now Eddard laughed for real. The woman let him finish.

“Both of you cannot conceive of not doing what is right. Neither of you do any harm to anyone without repeated offense. You are noble beyond compare. If the world was full of persons like the two of you most of the problems of the world would disappear. You have no avarice.”

“When I was the equivalent age of Missandei I was offered great power and control over all. My greed and avarice led to my imprisonment for countless millennium. There I was tortured to insanity. Yes, indeed, you are innocent.”

Eddard stared hard at this strange woman. Was she a goddess?

“I have seen other realities where you did not fare well because of your innocence and desire to always do what is right and show the ultimate compassion. Others would not do so.”
“Therefore you intrigue me Eddard Stark. I wish to be in your presence. Maybe some of your goodness will rub off on me as the saying goes.”

Eddard could only stare at this strange woman.

“The Queen comes with her scribe. To the North she travels. The two of you will fight the Ice King. He comes to claim your life and your land.”

“Yes. I will defeat him along with my allies.”

“We shall see.”

Eddard was disquieted with the woman’s doubt.

“I sense great power in you. Why do you not defeat him yourself?”

“I would but I may lose control of myself. I would annihilate all life if I did.”

Eddard started to speak but the strange lights started to flit closer. They moved in a disjointed manner. They flew around the strange small dangerous woman and shockingly around him. He was mesmerized by the beauty of the glowing spheres and the now perceived beings that were at the core of each sphere of jerking flitting light. He became aware of subliminal music that touched his soul.

“Yes. As I suspected. The fairies accept you. You will save them.”

“Fairies do not exist” Eddard spoke as he saw two figures hoover in front of him. They looked vaguely female with wings fluttering fast and furious. Was that miniature flowers in their hair? That was impossible that such small flowers existed Eddard gaped to himself. He could not be sure but Eddard was sure these entities were female if only vaguely.

“The look is called androgynous.”

Eddard glanced at the hoovering figures who seemed to fling glittering jewels off as they flew that slowly faded out with sparkles. He started and reached up and softly patted his head and felt two other “fairies” laying in his hair as he heard soft melodic music from them. They pulled on his long hair and felt them making a nest in his hair and humming.

More had come up to him and flew in crazy patterns around his body. They left streaks of glittering spangles behind them as they flitted by. They started to land on tree limbs, bushes and some flower plants in the glade. The fairies danced in a gay dance with their bodies throwing off dazzles of stars that twinkled in the air in beautiful patterns. He felt more of these strange denizens of the forest alight in his hair. His hair pulled and rolled into nests by the new visitors.

Other of these ‘fairies’ were flying in spinning, swirling patterns around his standing body. Eddard felt his heart clutch the display was so beautiful. More fairies had come too lit on his horse and were dancing all over its mane and played with the horse’s ears as the horse nickered and shook it head lightly but did not try to stop the fairies.

“You must save them.”

“How?”

“You must begin with the restoration of the Werewoods. They are the heartbeat of the land of Westeros. Each time one dies something precious is lost. The fairies cannot fight but the Children of the Forest did. They lost. You and the Queen will begin the repopulation of the lost forests. There is plenty room for both the old and the new. A gift is prepared.”

“You must do this to save the life of the non-human life above the wall and below the wall. You are the warden of the North. It is time that the Warden protect all his charges. The fairies are scattered and weak now below the wall. You must reverse this. They are precious to Westeros. It is time they stop being persecuted.”

“Persecuted?”

“Each time forests are senselessly cut down and Weirwoods are cut and burned down Fairies are slaughtered. Do you wish this to be your legacy? You know this now.”

Eddard was shaken by this information. “I do not fully understand. How can I protect this life? I do not even know of it.”

“Then learn it. Be the Warden that will go down in history as the first to assume his full responsibility and duty. Other dangers are growing.”

“What dangers?” Eddard asked alarmed.

“The Mist Vampires are awakening as are the Rakshasa. The Drokakree have slipped their bonds. (Eddard started. He had heard of Mist Vampires before) One feeds on the blood and spirit while the other feeds on the body. The last is a horror to all they meet. Magic is faltering. In time the Queen and the Scribe will restore the balance but other ancient magic are being loosed.”

“It will be your responsibility to garrote those monstrosities. You will be added by the Lioness with her own falling star sword. She will come to you with her serpent wife.”

Eddard was shaking his head with this inrush of revelations. “I must go to fight the Ice King.”

“You will. If you survive you will have more tasks to perform. If you fail against the Ice King it will not matter. Can I see your sword please?”

Eddard did not hesitate. She could have taken it at any time had she chosen he knew. He unsheathed his sword and handed it to the small woman. She easily handled the weight. She inspected the blade as she turned it over. She eyed its milky blue color. It looked like the blade should be too large for the small framed woman but she easily handled the sword. She then brought the blade up to just in front of her face. What she was looking at Eddard had no idea.

She suddenly moved so fast she became a blur. She pivoted, swiped and thrust his sword in a blur of motion moving like lightening around the glade. He looked over at his shoulders and saw the impossible sitting on his shoulders watching the green haired woman flit and dance with his sword. Some of the fairies turned to look at him and waved at him.

He stared back at them. He waved back. One got up and he felt it hug his neck. He gulped again hiccuping at the show of affection towards his person by something that Maester Luwin would tell him did not exist.

There was a pine that stood out from its brethren on the north side of the glen. He drew his head back. The tree was dying. It had been invaded by beetles eating their way through its bark killing the tree slowly. How did he know that? It must be he was seeing what this strange woman could see. Her senses far outstripped his mortal body.

The woman was swirling near the tree and his sword seemed to lash out into and through the tree. He heard a loud boom and the tree started to topple into the glade. It landed with a mighty crash.
Eddard was shocked. She had felled the tree with one chop of his sword! His mouth hung open. What kind of strength did this woman have?

The woman slowed to normal speed and walked back to Eddard rotating his sword looking at it with an appraising gaze. With all her work he saw that she did not breathe heavily. There was no sweat on her brow. This woman walked up to Eddard and looked up at him again. Her hair moving on unseen and unfelt air currents. Eddard started then. Now that this woman was beside Eddard he could see she was not breathing. At all. Eddard looked at her. Was she a goddess?

“No” was the one word answer from this strange woman.

“This sword and its sister have some of the qualities of the Krill. It will suffice.” She handed his sword back to Eddard pummel first. He took it. He looked at the small woman who now had fairies playing in her hair laughing and he felt the same happening in his hair. The fairies on his shoulders were humming and playing seemingly silly tag on his shoulders and using his head and hair to hide behind.

“Much depends on both the Queen and you Eddard Stark. I will leave you to look at the stars. They will give you the peace you long for.”

How did she know that? He watched the woman slowly walk to the forest. The fairies sang loudly and hugged Eddard and jumped off his body. They flew fast to join their sisters with the goddess. The fairies flitting about her as she disappeared into the woods with her entourage of blue, red, yellow, orange and green fairies. What kind of woman did not need to breath? Thus, she was not alive. Was she? He was humbled. This woman believed in him. Eddard was honored.

Eddard sat down to look up at the glittering points of light twinkling in the night sky.

Who in the world was this Lioness? A serpent wife? Some type of mythological creatures?

Missandei

Missandei grabbed the sheaf of thirteen pages of parchment and threw them across the floor of her wagon. The jostling of the wagon as it road up the King’s Highway had sent the small scribe into a fit of pique. Missandei looked at the sheets of parchment laying on the floor and took a deep breath. Throwing a temper tantrum would not solve anything. Missandei got out of the chair in front of the desk built into the back wall of the covered wagon and got on her hands and knees gathering up the sheets one at a time and putting them back in the proper order. She got up flexing her knees. She flexed her torso to keep her balance as she sat back down in her chair and put the confounded sheets back on the desk.

Fifteen days ago she had woken up and found the documents in her room inside a satchel. When she read the documents it was prattling and rambling about the daily life of House Frey. It was innocuous and very boring. Why would someone put his in my room? She had looked in the satchel and found a small slip of paper. She read the words on it “The Crow flies in square circles” it had read. How strange?

She had gone out and asked her Queen if she had given the satchel to her. She had not. She had asked of the clerical staff and other scribes and they had not. She had gone to Varys and Olenna since they were well known and regarded for the gathering of information. They had not. Olenna asked to see the documents. She had looked at the pages slowly. “If this not a prank then I would guess this is in code and the sheet you showed me is the cypher key” the old crafty woman spoke to Missandei.

“How did this come into your possession Missandei?”

“I can’t tell you. It was in my room when I woke up. Someone sneaked into my room past all our guards to give this to me.”

Missandei had one more person to check. She could see Tyrion playing a trick like this on her. Having her wasting time solving a puzzle that was indeed just gibberish. Tyrion was a murmur actor if he was not genuinely surprised by her visit. He looked at the document and was equally puzzled. He told her that he would help with decoding but he was busy. Did she feel it was important?

Somehow she did. Someone had gone to great trouble to get that satchel in her room. She was positive it had not been in her room when she went to sleep but had been on her work desk upon her awakening near dawn to prepare the debrief she prepared for Dany each morning where she gathered all the information that had flowed in overnight to get the Queen prepare for her small council meeting if attending and other meetings if any. Missandei also put the audience list together for Dany when she sat to hear supplications from her subjects or to hear from organizations such as the Iron Bank or various merchant guilds or representatives from the church.

The scribe had asked everyone about the documents but did not mention the dreams she had that night. She had been masturbating to a faceless woman or a face that constantly changed as one beautiful woman or another caught her eye. She had no true desire to have them bed her though more and more women were making overtures to her. She was still smitten with the old fashion notion of giving herself to her “true” love. She just wondered if such a woman existed for her.

Missandei knew she was too passive and tended to disappear into the background but she could not help who and what she was. But the night of her receiving the satchel had been different. The dreams had been more innocent and yet all the more intense. Her lover had not even touched her but just gazed at her with rapt attention. She could feel the same suppressed longing she often felt in her dreams of her sought after lover that night. The only detail of the woman she could remember were intense green eyes unlike any color she had ever seen.

She had made sure since then to look at every woman’s eyes she met but none matched the color of the dream of that night. She was sure the woman had reached to touch her face but for some reason stopped just short. Why? Was she not pretty enough? Bold enough?

The interpreter sighed to herself. It was only a dream Missandei. The dream had not returned.

Last night after they had made camp and had had a meal of beans, turnips and hardtack. She had washed it down with a simple tea. She watched Dany and Arya spar. It was now Dany on the defense with Arya pressing the attack. It was Arya who was able to penetrate the Queen’s guard. With any other person the Queen would have fumed and been upset but with the Stark girl she merely smiled and complimented the girl on her “master level” skills.

The girl hungrily ate up any compliment from the Queen. Missandei wished the Queen would follow her heart and bed the girl. She knew the Stark girl longed to give her virtue to the Queen and that Dany hungered to take it. They sat and ate their meal together laughing and pushing into each other at the bad jokes and puns they unleashed on each other.

Daenerys came over to Missandei as the Stark girl went to the Royal tent and got in her own furs. The girl was so excited to be heading home. That and her taking in the martial camp and the heavy practice session she had with her Masters when the camp had been entered and the troops bivouacked. This was the routine as the Queen had set the camps up to be reached at the end of each day’s march. Their sword masters then worked their charges by the last rays of the sun or by the lanterns that were put up on poles. This had the girl yawning when she went to bed.

“Show me your progress so far Missandei” the Queen softly intoned.

They slowly walked to Missandei’s special made wagon. She still felt embarrassed on having a wagon to herself.

She started to speak up again about that but the Queen knowing her thoughts held her hand up forestalling any argument. “Missandei you are my intelligence officer. It is you that takes all the reports coming in and works them into reports that allows me to digest the information quickly and succinctly. Also, I need for you to continue to work the puzzle of this document. I feel it is very important.”

“Are you sure Dany? Why give it to us if we don’t have all the keys?”

Dany started to reply but was cut off by Missandei.

“I feel so useless to you Dany! It is my duty to solve this riddle and I am letting you down. The whole realm is depen—“

“Stop it! Stop it this minute Missandei. I have seen the pressure you are putting yourself under and I command you to stop this instant! You have done all that anyone could do in your situation.”

“But—“

“No buts Missandei! You are doing all that can be done.”

“But I feel—“

“Missandei … listen. Someone very skilled and probably very powerful got that satchel into your room. The royal quarters are heavily patrolled by Gold Cloaks, Unsullied and by my Dothraki. You are in my wing of the Red Keep and my Bloodriders take very seriously your protection along with mine. They know how valuable and dear to me you are.”

Missandei felt her chest burn with the heartfelt compliments.

“Plus, this castle is rife with sparrows, spiders, moths, jackals, voles, weasels and the gods know what else and they report nothing amiss. No one was seen or heard that night unannounced in our royal quarters.”

“Why do you tolerate so many spies Dany?”

Missandei saw a glint of mirth in her Queen’s eyes. “They may be a pain in the ass and I have to be very careful with the things I truly want secret but it is worth it Missandei. With Varys and Olenna free to gather information without fear of my reprisals helps them to gather all the information possible.”

“The tradeoff is worth it.” The Queen gave her scribe a soft smile.

“Again I repeat, someone went to a lot of effort that definitely put their lives in jeopardy if caught. On the books spying is still a crime that has the death penalty. The only persons I know with that kind of skill are the Faceless Men and I have heard that Yi-Ti and Qohor have their own silent assassins. I feel one of them penetrated our security to get you this information.”
Missandei shivered at the mere mention of the assassins of the House of Black and White. “But it is not enough. Why bring me only part of the puzzle?”

Dany paused a moment clearly getting her thoughts organized. “I feel they thought they had brought you enough information to solve the riddle. They must have assumed that the manuscript and the sheet with the cryptic sentence was enough.”

Dany made eye contact with her scribe and friend. “What is missing Andi?”

Missandei felt comfort flow over her talking about the puzzle. She loved cyphers. When she could solve them!

“‘The crow flies in square circles.’ I am sure that the sentence means to make a circle and then put straight lines tangentially at ninety degrees from each other. When you do this you make the ‘square’ that is in the note. I am sure the circle would fall over key letters and then I could hopefully use the sequence and count of letters in this note to decipher the code.”

“The problem is I have no idea how large to make the circle and where is the focal point to point the anchor leg of the compass on” Missandie held up her finely crafted compass from GeoTools of Oldtown. I need to know how large the circle and the focal point.”

She saw Dany process this.

“Obviously, there was more information then. I am going to make a guess that the satchel was stolen from the rightful honor. Someone in the House of Frey. I will have to assume his person carried this information in their mind. The thief did not know this. Therefore, we are short the information necessary to solve the riddle.”

“We may never solve it Missandei and it won’t be one ounce your fault. Please don’t beat yourself up for a lack of information. You can only work with the information you are given. Okay?”

Missandei smiled at her longtime friend. Dany truly was the best. She had freed her from a life of slavery and servitude. She would follow her to the ends of the Earth if she must to serve this great woman.

They talked for a few more minutes discussing logistics and the movement of troops on ships and down the King’s Highway making sure the forces would be where they were needed when they were needed.

Missandei remembered her dream the night the satchel appeared and how it made her feel. She needed to ask Dany a question.

“Dany can I ask you a question of the heart?”

She saw the guard come down over Dany’s features. “Of course my friend.” Dany was friendly of course but Missandei knew Dany was wary of where this question might lead. The Queen had assumed she had hid her true feelings when the only person not seeing them was the person she felt them for. That was not Missandei’s question.

“Do you believe in destiny bringing your love to you? Do you believe in love at first sight?”

She saw Dany’s face cloud over and Dany looked away for a long moment schooling her figures.

“Yes I do Missandei but sometimes the other person does not share the same destiny.” Dany looked more sad by the moment.
“When the satchel appeared in my room I had a dream of a green eyed woman in my room. In my dreams she longed to touch me but did not for some reason. I felt her longing. Her longing for me. I think she is my destiny.”

Dany weighed Missandei’s word. She took a deep breath considering. “Maybe. But be careful Missandei, this woman may only be performing a service for me, for the realm or for some other force or entity.”

“No Dany. She feels for me … like you feel for Arya” Missandei spoke softly. She had finally said it.

Dany eyes went large and then water started to pool in her eyes and then tears started to run down her cheeks and she began to cry softly.

“Oh Missandei I love her so much and she doesn’t love me back. I practically throw myself at her and she does not reciprocate. It kills me. But I can’t turn away from her.” Dany paused “If she falls for some tall brave knight it will kill me!” Dany began to cry in earnest.

Missandei moved over to sit beside Dany and took her in her arms humming a soft melody and hugging her friend. She felt so sorry for Dany. She would not tell her the truth. Her people believed that one must discover and earn the truth for themselves. If not the purpose will mislead.

“How did you know she was the one Dany?” Missandei wanted to know for when she met her mysterious benefactor. Somehow Missandei was sure they would meet and fall in love with each other. In fact Missandei knew they were already in love but she feared they would dance the same dance as Arya and Dany.

Dany hiccupped and told Missandei that she knew it when Arya punched her in the face and the heart in the throne room on the day they first met. She told Missandei she knew to be careful of infatuation and “love at first sight” for that usually told you nothing of the soul of the person. But Arya had proven to be sweet, considerate, passionate, intelligent and so fierce with the sword. All were qualities that Dany found alluring. Arya was everything she wanted in a wife and queen.

She was sure that Arya only saw her as “The Queen” and not as a woman to take as her mate. She obviously had a heavy dose of hero worship and was enamored with all things Targaryen but she did not seem to be interested in her.

Dany had her face in Missandei’s neck still sniffling and missed her best friend’s knowing smirk. Missandei was sure that soon her Queen and Arya would discover their mutual love. They were heading to Winterfell. Arya’s home. There in her home where she grew up she was sure that Arya would find the way to her own heart and therefore to the Queen’s heart.

The Queen started to recover her composure. “Dany—I am sure that Arya cares deeply … maybe even love you. Be patient with her my dear friend. In many ways she is still innocent … I should know—look at me.”

Dany laughed and her lilac eyes had recovered their jaunty confidence. “Yes. I will patient. The prize is worth the effort. If she accepts my love I will marry her. If I had too I would run away with her to Braavos and hide away in some quant house with a red door and a lemon tree in the yard to be with her. The house is still there.”

Dany got up to leave and smiled down at her friend. “Let’s hope it doesn’t come to that. I fought hard to get my kingdom and marry my Queen and have her sit beside me on the Iron Throne.” Dany rubbed her ass. “Maybe I will have her sit on that damn throne” suddenly Dany jerked her right hand up with her index fingered extended and a mischievous look on her face “when she pisses me off that is exactly what I will do. Make her sit on the throne and listen to complaints of latrines and fat beer belly men walking around nude as they get the bottle of milk left in front of their doorway in the early morn. That will put her in her place!”

Dany looked at her longtime friend. “Andi, I can only counsel that you be patient with this green eyed lover. If she loves you as you say she will eventually come to you. You are totally worthy of her affections.

The Queen got up to leave. She bent down and hugged her dearest friend. Dany left.

Missandei considered her Queen’s words. She was definitely infatuated with their spy. Missandei was sure that their spy was a female and that the woman had looked at her while she slept. She would need to make sure that the woman was worthy of her. The last thing Missandei needed to do was fall in love with a woman who was a mass murderer or something or worse yet. Like an insane asylum inmate or a lunatic. She needed a nice, decent, calm, even mannered woman.

Missandei again tried to figure out the riddle of the freaking crow that couldn’t fly straight.

Three hours later she gave up and got in bed. She snuffed out the candles. Looking up the ceiling of her wagon the young scribe from Naath contemplated matter of state and of the heart. She felt comforted when Shadowclaw jumped up on her bed and settled down beside her master snuggling in. Missandei enjoyed the warmth and affection.

Missandei could only hope that her green eyed woman would come again with the key she needed to solve the puzzle. She longed to feel her presence again.

Jon

The wind was blowing hard from the North again. The snowflakes swirling at a sharp angle as the wind howled with long mournful wails of loneliness and seeming pain. It was as if the wind itself felt the pain that radiated from the Ice King. His very presence blighting nature and making it cry out in anguish.

Jon could feel him now. His wives had been able to feel him for over a year. He was much closer now. The flames his wives gazed into showed them that his vanguard had reached the Fist of the First Men. His forces were gathering and staging behind this promontory. His forces filling the valley Milkwater between the border of the Haunted Forest and the mighty peaks of the Frostfangs. Many peaks rising to fifteen thousand feet in height. It was a cold and dangerous world. Yet it had hidden treasures for those hardy enough to seek them.

It was true the Frostfangs were a cruel and inhospitable wilderness of stone and ice, jagged peaks that were eternally covered in snow. Jon knew from the Free Folk that the Frostfangs concealed a diverse series of wonders. Icy waterfalls that plunged over sheer stone cliffs the water crashing down the face of the mountain to land with the sound of crushing boulders. There were mountain meadows that filled with grass and wildflowers in the short spring and summers. There were ravines so deep and black they seemed to go all the way to hell, and bridges of natural stone span distances with only the sky to either side.

Legends said that hidden valleys exist in the Frostfangs, valleys that sustained small numbers of people. But not even the hardest of free folk dare live in the Frostfangs during the winter.
Direwolves, saber tooth cats, cave lions and hyenas, large grey wolves and brown bears the size of wagons still walked those hidden valleys and walked the tors that capped the lower mountain peaks. It was a wild and untamed world.

Jon looked out over the haunted forest from atop the Wall. The forest was starting to feel more and more like its given name. He knew that all too soon it would indeed be haunted by nightmares. Nightmares given flesh that he would have to see to it that were killed to the last ghoulish wright and frozen raised dead.

Jon walked past the warming shed. This night it was manned by his Crow brothers. They were laughing and warming their hands and feet as other brothers took their turn to walk the wall. Jon was finding he needed to warm his body less and less as the days passed. He had not noticed it at first but last week when he passed the warming shed in the middle of a howling blizzard he paused to wonder why he did not truly feel the cold anymore. He was sure it had to do with his witch wives from Asshai. He guessed that living and loving two Shadowbender wives changed a man.

There was also the fact that he was Azor Ahai with is reborn sword Lightbringer. A sword filled with fire and heat. He had to wonder if he was taking on the properties of his sword. Looking out over the Haunted Forest Jon wondered on the man he was becoming.

He ground his boot on the top of the wall. He barely heard the sound of sand and gravel grinding underneath the soles of his boots. It was time that a new barrel of sand and gravel was brought up by the elevator and have it spread out on top of the wall for several miles in each direction. He needed to make sure that his men’s footing was sound at all times.

He had had his scouts watching the King’s highway and the other traditional routes the Lords of the North used to bring forces north. The road was full of troops moving towards the Wall. They had stopped their progress at the Queenscrown and made camp there. They were building large encampments gathering troops and supplies. The encampments neat and orderly. Then four months ago Jon heard reports of foreigners on the coast of the Bay of Seals.

He sent out combined patrols of Crows and Free Folk. He hoped blending the two forces could start to bridge the gap between the groups. He cycled patrols out every week to keep fresh eyes on his beachhead and to help foster cooperation between Crows and Wildlings.

At first the reports were of small troop sizes. They were scouting out and looking for fords of the rivers and streams and meeting with local holdfasts. The reports said grain, other food staples, bolts of wool and cotton were freely given winning over the local populace. This pleased Jon immensely. He liked seeing his realm enriched.

The beachheads grew with more Free City troops arriving. Jon was surprised at how well the mercenary companies worked at their assigned tasks and how they did not rape and pillage. Maybe the reports of their lack of discipline and leanings to loot and pillage were exaggerated. When Jon thought about it more who would hire forces that could not control themselves.

The reports came back reporting huge camps being erected with tent barracks and buildings erected to house command and logistical staff. They were orderly and huge stockpiles of supplies were clearly being amassed. Orderly sanitary facilities were built away from the communal areas. Large kitchens set up to keep the troops well fed. They saw troops from Essos free Cities leavened with many mercenary companies. They were very well disciplined.

Jon was pleased that his own patrols were well disciplined themselves. The returning scout teams were returning to the wall and the various forts they were drawn from reporting that those “Crows” or “Free Folk” weren’t so bad after all. “Once you got to know them I actually like them.” Jon smiled at those reports.

The reports kept him appraised of the beachheads enlargement and the new forces arriving.

Then six weeks ago the first of the troops, conscripts and cavalry from the Southern houses of Westeros began to appear on the expanding beachheads. Most of these first Westeros forces were of the Stormlands that began to appear. Many banners were reported back. The shield of white with yellow strips in the upper left of House Chyttering. The shield with a rack of golden antlers on a background of blue tower with the words "Pride and Purpose" below the antlers. House Brune of Brownhollow was represented with a bear paw, brown on white, within a double trezure brown that they blazon their arms with. Many other banners were also present.

The next week a huge influx of forces from Dorne appeared in the beachhead. His scouts reported they saw banners blazoned with three black leopards standing on a yellow pile on orange that represented House Vaith of the Red Dunes. He read of the banners for the House Wyl of the Boneway who blazon their banners with a black adder biting a heel on yellow. His attention caught by the banners of House Dayne of Starfall. Jon could still hear the sadness of his father talking of his fight and the killing of Arthur Dayne. His father still grieved over the man’s death a generation past. Their sigil being a sword and a falling star on a lavender background. Several other houses of Dorn were represented in the reports he read. He knew there would be many other houses unreported.

In the following weeks more and more banners appeared from the lands of the Great Houses of the Stormlands and Dorne. Reports came to Jon of beachheads further south. He knew the Queen was covering her “bases” and putting forces in place to block troop movements from Bolton, Manderly and Karstarks if necessary. The reports said blocking forces had put in place and the troops had surged inland to reach the King’s Road.

Jon was impressed. The Queen using her massive navies to transport her armies North was saving time and putting much less stress on the troops and reduced stressing the land with mighty armies passing through. He assumed that the forces of Highgarden and Casterly Rock were amassed in those beachheads.

Between the forces of his father and the Queen’s great numbers of troops and war material that were being brought to bear against the Ice King victory had to assured Jon feverishly thought. Jon looked again at the Haunted Forest. He squint smiled unknowingly coping his father’s habit. His father’s Game of Throne had done the impossible and brought the Queen’s force north united without the Great Houses fighting and destroying her army from within.

Jon looked at the trees that had been cut back three thousand meters from the wall. He hated chopping the trees down but safety overrode his distress of felling the necessary trees. He looked at the old dark pines, firs, spruces and few oaks in their silent wall of foreboding. They seemed like sentries that could turn in either direction. Surely the forest knew who the true enemy was. Jon watched the heavy snow fall onto the trees to disappear. The thick falling snow making the world silent.

Jon began to walk down the wall from the warming shack. He walked a half of mile and looked over the Northern face of the Wall. As the Night’s Watch had dwindled the ability to maintain the wall had diminished. The wall while still structurally sound had been began to decay in areas.

With the surge in effort of defense of the Wall Jon had asked his father if artisans could be found to help in the repair of wall. The number of Builders in the Night’s Watch had had fallen so low that most of their efforts were spent on maintain the human habitations and the work on the wall was more superficial to keep the top prepared for human traffic on the top of the wall.
Some of the smaller cracks were still prepared. To some degree with the melting and freezing of the ice the Wall had the ability to repair itself. Still, large cracks had appeared and areas of the wall had sloughed off like a rotten tooth enamel. The wall folding in on itself at the areas of major sloughing.

With the maximum effort being put forth by the North in the defense of the wall Jon asked for his father to bring in all the carpenters, stone carver / layers, quarrymen and civil engineers that the North had. Eddard Stark had put out the call for his vassals to strip their cities and castles of such artisans and put them temporarily in service of the Lord Commander to make the wall as strong as possible.

Eddard reminded his Lords that the Wall’s strength was their strength. The Wall was to keep the evil that was amassing to the North away from the citizens of the North. With the Wall strong the ability to resist the ancient evil was only that much stronger.

The Lord Commander had been most pleased. Manderly of White Harbor had stripped his own artisans and he plumbed the holds around White Harbor. The local pool of desired craftsmen were organized and had been sent to the wall. Over five hundred thirty men and a few woman had come from the house of Manderly. Lord Wyman had come through brilliantly. From Winterfell Mikken led a contingent of 20 such men.

From the rest of the cities and keeps like Hornwood, Old Castle, Barrowton, Karhold, Torrhen’s Square and Widows Watch and other small keeps supplied two hundred and thirty artisans.

Finally, long needed repairs on the wall itself could commence. He had had the Crows and Free Folk manning the reconstituted forts search thoroughly the wall for decay. Those areas had been marked on a map of the Wall to show the exact location of needed repairs.

Now the small army of engineers were swarming up and down the wall. They were repairing large cracks that had been allowed to slowly enlarge with large wooden scabs pegged into the ice and melted ice poured into the cracks filling them.

Where the Walls face had blistered and cracked men had gone down on ropes from the top of the wall to repel down and use war hammers to beat off the dead honeycomb ice that fell in mighty sheets to the ground far below. Most of the damage was near the top but some were four hundred feet down. This did not stop the engineers from forming scaffolds and having them lowered. The ice was removed. Then A frames were bolted into the ice with pulleys and winches to which scaffolds were attached and slowly lowered to the damaged ice spots.

Jon watched amazed as the scaffold was lowered to the area needed. Then slowly wooden beams were bolted to the wall and from that base cofferdams and caissons were built around the damaged areas. Men then constructed forms to hold water brought down in relays on the suspended scaffolding until it the cofferdams were filled with water that froze to the force of granite overnight.

Jon now looked down the wall on the north face. A repair had been done in this area on a blister scab of ice fifty feet from the top. Jon could not see where the damage had been in the dark. The Wall was being restored. It was amazing what one could do when you had the proper forces to do the job.

He pulled his sword out and it immediately blazed to life. Flames licked up and down the blade with tongues of flame wreathing up several feet above the tip of the sword. Tendrils of flame wicked down to wrap around his forearm. As he became more attuned to his sword it blazed hotter and became more his weapon.

He had decided to bestow a new name to his sword. “Shadowbender” in honor of his wives. He looked at the face of the wall with the bright light his sword emitted. He could not tell where new and old began and ended. He stood back upright. He looked down the wall and saw Marsh Bowen looking at him and he saluted Jon. He was now Jon’s main captain and he supported Jon fully and completely.

Jon had finished his inspection for tonight. He had other duties to perform. He looked again out over the silent Haunted forest. His enemy was coming for him. He was ready. Jon slammed his sword back into its scabbard. He would meet the Ice King on the field of battle and kill him. He felt the enemy’s implacable hate and malice. He was ready. He knew he would have allies to defeat the strange succubus that had allied itself with the Ice Wright. He would drive his flaming sword into his icy heart and melt the vile murderous Wright to slag.

Jon felt hate for his traditional and hated enemy. He had killed him before and he would again.

Jon went to the elevator and got in the booth and took the trip back to the ground seven hundred feet below. As the booth made the slow journey Jon again thought of what he needed to do. The Night’s Watch had been created over eight thousand years ago. That was a different time and a different age. In adhering to the old ways in a new world the Crows of the Night’s Watch were a fading order. Jon wondered if things were not changed would it soon die out.

Not for the immediate future he deemed. When Westeros and the allied forces of Essos saw the enemy they would for a while feel a surge in duty. But in a handful of generations the fervor would die and the memories of those who experienced these time would be taken to the grave. Jon felt a new way must be found.

Jon knew that men taking an oath of chastity and life time servitude was antiquated. He would abolish such vows and try and institute a conscription service of two years from a pool of sixteen year to twenty year olds from which a random draft would select the men to man the Wall. Men and women who choose the military for a lifestyle would be the officers. He was toying with the exact mechanics and how to institute. Jon wanted to leave the watch in a better place when he resigned to take his wives back to their cabin that they would hide with shadows from the world of man that tired Jon to the core of his soul now.

He wanted to be free of this burden from men who had tried to kill him.

He knew that he had fundamentally changed the dynamics of the relationship between the Free Folk and Westeros below the wall. He had granted his allies the land down to the New gift. He knew that most would return to their ancestral lands after the Ice King was killed but some would remain. Jon wanted an end to this endless and senseless conflict between the Free Folk and Crows and those below the wall.

Jon had hope. His father was a fair and just man and the Queen had brought disparate groups together in Essos and it seemed a new world order was taking hold on that continent. Jon hoped fervently that his father and the Queen could work the same changes in the North of his homeland. Let there be peace between the lands of the North and Free Folk. Jon had come to admire how the Free Folk chose their leaders. When your leader was his father or this Daenerys Targaryen then all was well. When the leader of Westeros was Robert Baratheon or Aerys II Targaryen not so much.

He admired Mance Rayder the fallen crow. He had granted him a full pardon. He intrigued Jon with his concepts of this thing called democracy. He chuckled. Westeros was not ready for that concept for many a century he was sure. Jon was satisfied for now with reducing the rancor between the people of his birth home and the lands of his wife Ygritte. She was more Asshai now but she was still part Free Folk.

Jon reached the ground and stepped out of the booth. He looked around at the immense stockpiles of dragon glass and pitch / tar that was flowing into Castle Black. He was keeping the vast proportion for this Castle but wagon trains were taking substantial supplies of the weapons needed to kill the undead and ice wrights were heading west and east to the other forts of the wall.

Jon was sure the attack would come here but he had to make sure to supply sufficient force to block a penetration elsewhere long enough for his reinforcements to reach them.

With repairs of the wall fit to be complete within the next month Jon saw the vast stores of wood beams with metal bindings, metal bolts and nuts with screws. The engineers would then move the material up to the top of the wall and start constructing catapults, trebuchets and scorpions to fire down on the enemy.

He moved to the tunnel that led to the warren of passages underneath the wall and the grounds of Castle Black. He moved toward his quarters. He had delayed this confrontation as long as possible. He was the husband and he would let his wives know his decision. What they proposed was too dangerous. Their presence would not be hidden by dead flesh in future forays on spying missions. They would be taking too great of a chance. Jon followed the branching of the tunnels to his home.

Jon paused and took a deep breath. He girded his loins for combat. He opened the door and entered into his living quarters he shared with his wives Ygritte and Melisandre.

Jon paused. They were sitting at the table with both of them staring at him in the doorway. Their faces stony in passivity. Jon glanced at the roaring fire. He cursed the flames. They had shown his wives of his arrival and his intentions. He could feel their ire and anger filling the room. Jon thought of reasons to dally or dissemble but he knew what had to be said.

He also cursed the fact that they had chosen to confront Jon nude. They went naked around their home but he knew they were using their nakedness to throw him off his balance in the coming confrontation. They were not wet but their nipples were rock hard excited by the passion of the coming conflict. Jon mentally girded his loins. He would not let them use their beauty to dissuade him from what he had to say.

“I refuse to let you go south and meet with the Queen. What you propose it to dangerous. As your husband I forbid it.”

There was the silence of the grave in their small normally cozy room. Melisandre’s red eyes bored into with an intensity that made Jon squirm though her face was stony it still registered rage. Ygritte’s blue-grey eyes were like a raging sea and she did not control her burning rage.

“You know nothing husband of ours. No one controls us by right of being male!”

“That is not what I am saying. I am the head of our family and my decision holds sway. I will not let my wives sacrifice themselves for those not worthy of them.”

“I did not travel from far off Asshai to perform my destiny to have a man cavalierly tell me how to perfume it” Melisandre spoke through gritted teeth. “I was once a slave and will not be treated as such again!” she suddenly shouted. “I am a free woman!” she shouted again.

Jon was taken aback by the accusation.

“Who gave you the right to lead this family? Why not us?!”

Jon spluttered. “Because I am a man!” he knew even as he said it, it sounded hollow and a lie. Jon desperately wanted to protect his wives and grabbed at any argument.
He watched his two wives slowly rise from the table with clenched fury written all over the faces and shaking bodies. He cursed his manhood for his eyes eyeing their swaying breast and beautiful cunts now on full display as they stood proud and naked before him.

Jon started to wonder who was going to protect him as he gulped loudly his Adam’s apple working reflexively.

Ygritte

Ygritte had never been so furious with Jon. How dare he bring up the fact that he was a man to try and control them? To demean their worth with such a worthless and demeaning argument.

Beside her Melisandre snarled “You wound me Jon Snow. I offered you my life and this is how you treat that offer and sacrifice?”

Jon staggered back as if struck. He looked at Melisandre with hurt eyes. “I am not trying to demean you dammit! I am trying to save you. Save the two of you from yourselves. You will not have the camouflage of death to hide you from the evil thing on the Ice King’s back. We have all sensed its power.”

In her anger Ygritte still registered that Jon’s own senses were indeed growing to be as acute as theirs. He was indeed becoming Azor Ahai in spirit. Seemed he was also inheriting his arrogance.

“You know nothing Jon Snow or maybe it is Targaryen with your new found male ego shit. Maybe you have gone daft in the head Snow!”

“I will not be treated like a slave!” Melisandre screamed her voice booming as she tapped the power of the flames.

Jon stood his ground. He stared hard at the two of them.

“When you decided to walk the flames did we stop you Jon Snow? We wanted to terribly but we came to understand it was your destiny. This is our destiny.”

Jon closed his eyes. He took a deep breath. “That was absolutely necessary and you two know it. I had to become Azor reborn. I am now him reborn. You have performed the duty you came to this land to perform. Ygritte I now you are Tygreti reborn but you were first a wildling. You have performed you duty. You have performed more than you duty.

“Yes Melisandre you were ready to kill yourself but I found a better way. I can feel it in myself. I repeat. I am Azor Ahai.

“If I am indeed Azor Ahai reborn all the more reason you should follow my command in this. I sacrificed you once I will not do so again!”

Ygritte could see Jon’s logic but she did not care. She was beyond pissed. The reason she loved Jon Snow was because he was free of this fucking shit! She knew fear was motivating him but that did not matter. She was half Free Folk and dammit they were free!

“I refuse you Jon Snow. I won you by right of the Hunt. It is you who should be bending to my will. Melisandre and I are the two most powerful Shadowbender witches that walk this Earth. Our power equals yours Azor.”
Jon grimaced hard. He sighed again. He looked indecisive suddenly.

Jon resolve seemed to firm again. “I am trying to protect you. Let me do my duty to my wives. I am not being selfish godsdamnit!”

“Maybe it should be us defending you husband. We are the most powerful witches our order has ever known” Ygritte told Jon with fire in her words.

“Let us protect you Jon Snow!” Melisandre shouted at Jon.

Jon scowled at that.

Melisandre snarled “I am so disappointed in you Jon. I had assumed you were a true man after my heart. I thought you were so much more than those other blustery pompous asshole men. Men who think just because they were born a man makes them by birth superior to half the human race. Is that how you think Jon Snow Targaryen? If so I have married a stranger.”

“Me too” Ygritte said softly.

“Have you been lying to me all this time Jon? Were all your words and actions merely a lie? Have you put a lamb’s fleece over my eyes?” Melisandre asked Jon.

Jon started and shook his head and then chuckled.

“That is wool Melisandre” Jon took a deep breath. “Okay. Okay. Maybe I overreacted but it was with the best intentions of my heart. A male heart to be sure but a pure heart. I do not want to lose you or Ygritte. I know you have hidden it from me but I know you will create a shadow phoenix and fly deliberately over the forces of the Ice King.”

Both Ygritte and Melisandre were shocked that Jon had divined this. They had made sure to discuss this only when he was up on the wall. They stole glances at each other. He was becoming mighty indeed.

It did not matter when it came to them. They were all three equals.

“Yes Jon” Melisandre spoke to her husband softly. “We will be open to be assaulted but we should be safe. We can see deep into the night if need be and far into the distance if light and into the trees and Earth. We will reveal the truth to the men who march with the queen.”

Ygritte spoke now “we should be safe for we will stay high above the forces of the Ice Wrights and their shambling dead. They cannot touch us.”

“Now you are lying to me. Aren’t you?”

The two witches looked at each other directly now. Jon could not now be this strong could he? Their looked said.

“We three know that something evil flies the air above the forces of the walking dead. I cannot see it but it is there. How do you know it will not sense you and attack you?”

“We will be careful” Ygritte told her husband. “We are powerful. We will sense its presence and if necessary we will flee. We should be able to withstand any initial assault and flee.”

“We all know you can’t be sure of that. Let the South come united or disjointed. They will be here either way. That is what is important.”
Melisandre spoke now “No. We must be united. The battle will be fierce and our loses will be horrific. Also we have sensed treachery in the forces that are uniting before the Wall. Someone has treachery in their heart. We have tried to discern who it is but we cannot as yet see in the flames who it is. With this threat from within we must be as united as possible.”

Jon asked “I’m curious. Are the treacherous dogs from the North or the South?

“We cannot be sure but we feel the pull of the North when the flames show forces turning against themselves. The flames do not show coats of arms or banners. It is very frustrating” Ygritte told Jon.

Melisandre added “We can only see that two lambs turn to vipers and strike the legs of those surrounding them.”

Jon laughed. “You don’t need dreams or flames to know the two houses that will turn out to be fucking dogs. All in the North and the Riverlands know of two houses that are craven and filled with dogs and that is an insult to all canines.”

Jon laughed again when he saw the confusion on his wives faces. “The houses of Frey and Boltons are dicks. If two houses are planning treachery and revolt it would be those two. I could just see them giving Guest Right at a wedding and then slaughtering the guests. It is in them.”

“But are you sure?” Melisandre asked unsure.

“I am surer than your flames are showing you. That I am sure of. Roose Bolton and Walder Frey are complete and total assholes. It is them. I will have to send word to my father when the time comes. With everyone on the march nothing can be done for it till they reach their camps before the Wall. To do anything now would cause confusion and sow the seeds of rancor and derision among our side. This treason needs to be disposed silently if possible.”

Jon sighed. “Okay” he breathed deep and rubbed his face. “Now that we have cleared the air I guess I will have to say that you were right. It is your lives and you must choose the path you take. I will leave it at that. I have spoken of my disapproval. I think we can survive without this effort on your part but I cannot be a hundred percent sure.”

“The realm does indeed ride on the choices we three make” Jon sighed again. He rubbed his face yet again. He put his hands down and looked at his wives. “Please forgive my concern. It made me speak out of turn. I disapprove of your decision on this but you are mighty priestesses of your order and adults. You did indeed respect my wishes and I now must respect your wishes. I am still pissed off about it but I will process it. It is what adults do. I must go out and meet the demands of my command.”

With that Jon was gone. His wives could feel his anger but they could also feel him coming to the terms with the situation and would soon be back to his normal gentle self. His loving gentle nature that had captured two women’s hearts.

Melisandre looked drained. She was a lover not a fighter. Ygritte did not like fighting with those she loved but she would not shy away from it either. The wildling part of her would never duck a fight and in some ways relished pitting herself against an obstacle or foe and conquering it. Even that was her husband Jon Snow. She went to the fire that had died down and threw some more logs on the fire and got it blazing hot the light filling the room along with several oil lamps hanging on hooks.

Ygritte guide Melisandre to the bed and sat her on it and she crawled onto her lap. Ygritte loved this position. It even out their height difference. Her rump wiggled on Melisandre’s strong thick thighs. Thighs that would crush her face when she sucked her off or lock around her hips when she lunged her strap-on cock deep up into her tight pussy or asshole. She loved feeling Melisandre’s legs strength trying to break her ribs it sometimes felt like. She slammed fucked Melisandre even harder feeling that strength help Ygritte bury her prick balls deep up into her lover’s belly or colon.

She took Melisandre’s hands and kissed and licked her fingers one at a time like she liked. She sucked on each digit lathing her tongue over each finger wetting them one by one. Ygritte maintained hot od contact working each finger wetly in her mouth. Suddenly, those fingers were threaded in her hair and her head was tilted over and her wife’s lips were mated tight to her lips and she felt Melisandre’s tongue demanding entrance into her mouth. Her wife’s fingers clawing into her scalp with her need for her small wife.

Groaning loudly Ygritte whimpered parting her teeth and then gagging in helpless pleasure feeling Melisandre’s long tongue surging into her mouth and striking like an adder wrapping around her tongue and squeezing hard “Mmmppfff unggppfff mmmppfff!” Ygritte chuffed in raw need. Their coiled tongues flipped around hotly in the smaller Shadowbender’s mouth. Melisandre using her grip in her wife’s hair to mash their mouths tight her tongue spearing down her groaning wife’s throat. Ygritte cried out into the mouth devouring hers as her eyes rolled into her skull and violently jerked and rolled. Her cunt was sopping wet and her little nipples rock hard.

Ygritte was in a love dazed fog and the next thing she could register she and Melisandre were rolling around on the bed their naked bodies pressed into each other. Ygritte loved how her small tits were smothered by her wife’s large heavy rounded breasts. Their warmth and weight delicious. Ygritte loved her petite body subsumed by her wife’s larger body. She felt Melisandre’s hot urgency. They somehow wound up sitting up on the bed arms around each other’s body pulling bodies tight as tongues surged from mouth to mouth. Both women groaning as their tongues slithered around each other and flipped hotly in their mouths.

Melisandre threw her wife down on the bed and loomed over Ygritte half lying on wife supporting her weight with her elbows and one knee as she pressed Ygritte down into the bed. In this position, Melisandre with her body half on Ygritte’s body she gripped her wife’s small breast with her large hands pulping them like she knew Ygritte liked it. Ygritte gutturally groaned feeling her wife clench her tits and crush them hard like she craved. Melisandre wolf sucked on her wife’s nipples with long drawing sucks. Melisandre pulled her head back slowly letting the spit soaked breast meat and nipple plop out her mouth. Back and forth Melisandre worked her wife’s little dove titties.

Her hands throttled Ygritte’s small doves and pulped them with her hard squeezing hands that jerked and squeezed the little titties out her fist and leaned in to slurp the bulging areolas and puffed out nipples. She looked up at Ygritte who was shaking her head yes encouraging Melisandre to pulp her little tits. Melisandre enjoyed the titties she slurped on and wolfed sucked. Melisandre cupped her hands over Ygritte’s small breast and then lifted her hands and the sound loud in the room as her striking palms crushed and pulped Ygritte’s tits into her ribcage.

“Uunnnggh hhhnnnggg … oooohhhh yessss yeeessssss baby … I love it when you pulp my tits.” Melisandre continued working her woman’s tits with cruel force bending her head down to roughly lick and deep suck the precious rock hard nipple with short and then long sucks. Her woman writhing on the bed. Ygritte placed her hands on Melisandre’s head and urgently pressed her head down her now sweaty belly. She needed her woman to suck her off! She saw the mirth in Melisandre’s eyes as she kissed and nipped down the hard stomach of her wife.

Then she was between Ygritte’s legs simply devouring Ygritte’s shaved cunt and wallowing her face deep into her little love chute. Melisandre sniffed and groaned lapping furiously along Ygritte’s slit and lashing her glazed rigid clit. Then she was tongue stabbing her drooling cunt hole as her nose hammered her wife’s clit hard. Melisandre surged her face deep into Ygritte vulva making it flare to swallow her deep red lips and shoved her tongue deep into Ygritte’s sloppy wet love whole her nose jacking into and rubbing Ygritte’s clit.

Melisandre worked slowly back up the creamy slit slurping her wife’s labia lips one at a time and munched happily on them. Then she was back at her wife’s clit jutting out its sheath all shiny and wet. She first butterfly stroked with her tongue batting it from all angles. Then she sucked the delicious morsel back into her mouth and she wolfed sucked with alternating long and short sucks. Melisandre’s head lifting to suck up dripping wet cunt meat into tents her pumping head filled with shocking tension as her tongue polished the clit all rigid and spasming.

Ygritte screamed and screamed as the womb ruptured and tore itself apart in her belly and tore her cunt inside out scalding her cunt with shockwaves of crushing bliss. The small woman’s body twisted on her shoulders and her body jolted hard with crushing spasms of fucking bliss. Ygritte’s eyes rolled back into her skull and spasm so hard she feared they would lock up in her skull. Her pelvis jacked hard grinding her pubic bone into her wife’s face. She screamed as hot gushes of searing cum filled Melisandre’s mouth to overflowing again and again as it ran down her cheeks, chin and throat. She heard the obscene gulps of Melisandre gulping down her gushing cum with choking swallows of all the creamy cum spasming out her hot fuck hole.

This was the start of long hours of hot intense fucking that soothed their souls. Jon finally returned at dawn unsure. They had slept and were filled with fuck hunger for their husband. They fucked him hard with mouths, hands, cunts and assholes.

Their mouths glued to his long thick cock and sucking with hard loving sucks. They had pulled off his cock and let it spurt all over their faces soaking it in cum that Jon groaned seeing his wife’s slowly and thoroughly cleaned with slow tongue licks.

Later Jon gripped their hips and shoulders hard as he slammed them back into his plunging cock burying itself deep in their tight pussies and clenching assholes. He fucked them from behind doggy style that they loved. He pumped both of their twats with punishing balls deep love thrusts. Their bodies jolting with the force of his hips slamming into their ass cheeks. One wife was on her knees seeing Jon’s massive cock fucking their wife so hard and balls deep. His dick soaked in creamy whitish cum. Each wife groaned too see their wife’s inner lips pulled out their cunny hole all wet and pinch tightly clenched around the thick shaft of their husband. The shiny inner cunt folds so hot looking glued to Jon’s dick before it plunged back deep into their wife’s fuck hole.

Each wife by their wife’s hips pulled Jon’s long thick cock out sloshing wet pussies and shoved into their hot sucking mouths. Each woman sucking hard with their head jerking and lank sweaty hair swaying in time to their hot sucking head. The wife then guiding Jon’s prick back to their wife’s spasming fuck hole and shoving his dick deep into the hot frothing hungry cunt. Jon groaned out how hot it looked to see them sucking each other’s twat juice off his prick. They made sure to make husband and wife happy with their sloppy bobbing head with lots of head twirling on his bulbous dickhead their lips sucked tight to his cock crown and the sensitive glans just under his dickhead.

Jon fucked his wives in turn as their titties whiplashed and flopped from his hard fuck. Jon’s hands rising high and slapping ass cheeks hard making his wives squeal in pain. Their ass cheeks turning cherry red. The pain in their ass cheeks arcing to their clits making them spasm with each hard cupped palm strike on cherry red ass cheeks.

Jon pulled their hair hard and twisted their arms behind their backs giving that hard squirt of domination and pain that they craved while in bed. Only in bed when defenses were down and souls open. Ygritte craved it when Jon with his cock or Melisandre with her strap-on slammed into her so hard that sweaty flesh slapped loudly and her body lurched forward with the power of the power of their strokes into her couchie and asshole.

Ygritte loved being plowed doggy. Her small titties whiplashing beneath her body. Her body jerking forward with the powerful bodies slamming hips and thighs hard into her ass cheeks and thighs. They both cummed hard on Jon’s dick ploughing their pussies several times. They then groaned when Jon moved his cock from their tight cunts to their pinching assholes. His strength easily penetrating their tight shitholes and then lunging his prick up their asses. He knew his wives loved the pain and degradation of a hard anal fuck. It made them both cum like exploding volcanos.

The powerful witches relished their husband pounding their assholes as they feasted on his cock ATM and A2P as they shared as deeply with a man as they could. By surrendering to Jon completely in their bed they opened their souls to him. They were totally willing to anything nasty with each other and experience rough sex because it showed total surrender and accepting all the pleasures the body could give one. Both women reaching behind themselves to pull their ass cheeks wide to open their starfishes for rough invasion. Both cummed hard from anal ‘gasms.

Jon’s control was absolute now. They rested a quick short break to drink fluids and eye each other with fuck hunger.

Ygritte had straddled Jon and he was slamming down his cock so savagely up her tight twat his thick long cock filling and stretching her cunny out tight on his thick shaft. She was constantly moaning and cawing. Melisandre moaned that she loved seeing her inner lips pulled out into a tight pink ring around Jon’s thick cock on the outstroke. She felt the bed settle at her hips and Jon stilled. Ygritte felt Melisandre push her body forward so her torso was no on Jon’s sweat soaked body. Ygritte looked aback at Melisandre with hot throbbing eyes.

Ygritte felt her wife worming up behind her and Jon. Melisandre shoved her thick long strap-on up her loosened asshole and buried it with one savage stroke of pure love as Ygritte howled in pained ecstasy. Jon pulled Ygritte’s head down and they kissed deeply in mouth. Jon started to slow stroke his dick in and out her stretched out quim. Melisandre pumped her cock deep in and out Ygritte’s tight hot wet asshole. Melisandre arched her back and punched her hips to pound her nearly eleven inch strap-on leather cock up her wife’s tight spasming asshole. Ygritte gibbered feeling Jon punch his cock up her cunt with short hard strokes.

They started to slow see-sawing their shafts deep into her willing orifices filling her belly with hard cock. Their bulbous dickheads jacking over each other as they jacked so hard in and out her fuck holes. Ygritte cried out as she felt one cock sliding in as the other worked out. Her body buffeted by strong bodies lunging cocks fully up into her cunt and shithole. Her spouses quickly ramped up their hammering fuck of Ygritte’s willing yearning body. Their dicks lunging so hard up into her body making it lurch forward as she jabbered in ecstasy.

Ygritte chuffed and cawed as her body jolted and her body slide over Jon’s body with the force of two thick long dick slammed fucked her tight fuck holes. She gagged feeling her little diamond hard nipples rubbing up and down Jon’s hard chest. Ygritte yammered feeling the dickheads of her lover’s cocks jacking over each other in her belly. She loved Melisandre’s strength one hand gripping her hip and the other clenched around the top of her shoulder. Her wife jacking her back so she could slam all the inches of her dick up Ygritte’s hot tight ass hole. Her body slamming into Ygritte’s body rippling the Wildling’s hips and ass with the force of impact. Both women knowing that Melisandre’s thick rounded dickhead was buried balls deep up Ygritte’s butthole.

Jon had an iron grip on Ygritte’s ribs slamming her back into his dick savaging her pussy and Melisandre’s savage forward thrusts squirting her asshole. Both of her spouse lunging their dick so hard and deep up into her cunt and shithole. Melisandre had one hand gripping her ass hard her other hand now fisted in her long sun kissed hair and jerked her head back savagely partially choking Ygritte. She was slammed fucked and she loved it!

They pounded her so hard and good. She cummed wildly her asshole pinching down on strap-on slamming in balls deep. Her cunt clenched Jon’s cock in a velvet spasming fist. "AAARRWWOONNGG! HHHUUNNGGG! OWWWGG! HHHUUNNGGG! Unhhhhhh! Oh!" Ygritte screamed with unbridled ecstasy. “Auungghhiiieee!” she cried out, shocking her mates by the unbridled loudness of her cries. "Ungghh! Oh . . . oh . . . oh Melisandre! Nnnnuunngghhiieeee! Oh gods yes! Ungghh! Ohhhh Jonnnnnnn!"

Melisandre went for the brass ring getting up on her feet squatting down and forward straddling Ygritte’s hips and now doubled fisted Ygritte’s hair and slammed her cock straight down Ygritte’s tilted asshole slamming her cock down and along Jon’s hard plunging cock up her wife’s exploding snatch. Melisandre jerked Ygritte’s head back so hard her eyes stared at the ceiling.

Ygritte’s asshole exploded in a second epic anal ‘gasm that after ten seconds triggered a harrowing vaginal orgasm. Melisandre threw her wife’s head forward releasing her clench in her wife’s hair so she could scream out her orgasm "AUUNNGGHOOWNWGGHIIEE! Awwonnggg! Oh shit! Ungghh! Angghh!" Ygritte cried out, in such loud wails of excruciating pleasure.

“Scream it bitch!” Melisandre howled at her “Cum on our cocks you fucking slut! You fucking bitch!” Melisandre snarled down at her wife knowing how hot dirty demeaning talk turned her wife on so much. Jon still had a hard time talking dirty so she carried the torch until they could work on that Stark reserve some more. Jon was lifting his hips his back arched deep. His feet planted on the bed to torpedo fuck his wife’s exploding cunny. Her couchie clenching his dick hard in tight wrenching spasms up and down the length of his plunging prick up her exploding snatch.

Melisandre growled as she hips pulled back pulling three quarters of her thick strap-on out Ygritte’s asshole and slam fucking it back in deep. Again and again Melisandre flexed her hips to pound her wife’s asshole as deep as her dick could plunge. Ygritte’s fuck holes exploded into yet another harrowing orgasm of shocking ecstasy. “AAARRUUUNNGGG! HHAAWWWGGGG! Ohngggghhhiieeee! Oh gods! Ungghhiieeee! Oh Melisandre—Jon—pound meeeeeee! Aungghhiieee! Mmmnngggghhiieeee! Nnnhhiieeee!" she wailed coming in shockwaves, each orgasm apparently more crushing than the last. Her orgasms had started to wane until she felt Jon lunge in deep and held his dick there. Her orgasms exploded anew when Jon screamed and screamed his nut sack flood her Shadowbender womb with hot spurts of ribbons of pearly jizm flooding her womb with his seed.

Ygritte was crushed with spent pleasure. Suddenly her head was jerked up by a fistful of hair and Melisandre’s cock was brushing her lips. With a happy tired groan she opened her lips and swallowed her wife’s cock ATM and happily slurped it clean of her ass juice.

Jon cummed six times more times that night. Twice in each of their cunts and last in their assholes marking them as his wives only. Only this man would ever touch them. Jon was the only man worthy of touching his Shadowbender wives. Jon being Azor Ahai reborn had certain advantages Ygritte groggily thought. His stamina was so goooooodddddd!

They then rested and drank juice and tea while Jon ate a light meal. Then he laid back on the bed with pillow underneath his head. He looked up at them evilly and stuck his tongue up wiggling it. They took turns riding his face like fillies dominating a stallion. Again and again he sucked them off. Jon sucked and snuffled wildly as he gripped their hips and jammed then down to jam their pussies hard onto his mouth their wet swollen vulva totally engulfing his mouth as their wets camel toes bulged to swallow his lips as he surged his head up to speared his tongue deep into their hot tight cunt.

The witches clawed their hands onto the back of Jon’s head and jacked his face up into their exploding cunts as they wailed and screamed and screamed their fucking bliss. Jon was superhuman now in his endurance as again and again his wives rode his face marking him as their bitch wildly jerking their hot cunts up and down his mouth as he held his tongue up like a plow share tilling their sloppy wet snatchs that exploded and flooded his greedy mouth with hot overflowing gushes of cunt juice.

The Shadowbenders would kiss their wife as they swirled their cunny down on their husband’s face and sucked on boobs until the gyrations became too much to follow and they backed off to watch their wives ride Jon’s willing face as he submitted to them and their needs. They would sweep forward and he would lap their anuses and then sink his tongue deep up their assholes and tongue fuck their assholes as his fingers jerked their slits and clits.

Melisandre actually blacked out she cummed so hard from that but recovered quick as Ygritte took her turn. Finally, as the sun was setting the wives had totally exhausted their pussies for the moment.

Jon’s face was red and slightly swollen around his mouth, nose and cheeks. He looked supremely happy. His hair was simply soaked in female cum that had matted his long locks and plastered strands to his forehead and around on his cheeks and throat. He purred as his wives saddled in beside him and snuggled in close their own bodies soaked in sweat and cum. Though the wives did not need to sleep they were soon snoring in love and contentment.

Jon did not need as much sleep as he once had. He stroked patterns along his wives backs that were still sheened with drying sweat. He followed his wives into slumber.

The hot sex had healed their rancor and restored their love.

Ice King

The Ice King rode a recently killed brown bear. It was the size of the wagons some of the Free Folk used when they moved their homesteads. The beast shambled onwards past the Fist of the First Men. He and his vanguard were just arriving. He would make camp here and marshal his forces and prepare. Unlike the hot bloods his forces did not easily tire. Another sign of why his forces would win over his inferior rivals.

He turned to look behind at his first children walking behind him. Their white and light blue tunics snapping in the wind. Though he was putting some of his sons in ice armor he choose to not wear any as did most of his sons. The armor was heavy and severely restricted their speed and agility which were their greatest strengths of their bodies. They were roughly the same strength as most men but inferior strength wise to the mightiest of male warriors. Thus, they used their thin bodies quickness to alleviate the strength of the men.

They would move and feint against the warm bloods while their superior blades quickly defeated the inferior weapons of the hot bloods. Also, their inborn coldness sapped the strength of the weak humans. He longed to kill and kill the humans and take what was rightfully his and had been denied him when last he went to war.

He reached back and petted the head of his son. His son had rebelled a few times on the journey here still fearing the use of the Horn of Winter. The Ice King shook his head. It was the Croyel that had found it for him. The Wright reached with his hand to finger the small horn with its strange runes that none could decipher. He cared not that it was carved by an Inseuqent and that his son said they could not be trusted. The horn had been created over eight thousand years ago. Whatever purpose it had been made for beyond the felling the Wall must have long ago passed away like he had almost done.

As he had purpose so did the Horn of Winter. Together they would achieve his long cherished dreams. He would not let silly fears hold him back. He was superior to all challenges. It was he that would prevail over Azor Ahai reborn and the Warden of the North. In time he would prevail over the whole world.

He looked back again and saw more of his sons entering into the clearing past the edge of the far distant forest. The Ice King used his knees to guide the massive bear to turn around. He watched his sons move towards the Fist of the First Men. The sun was low in the sky. With his far seeing eyes he saw the massive cloud bank that was this cycle’s Winter. It rolled and writhed. The massive built up storm held for years past its time to move south had built up into a monstrous creation that would sweep down on his new world and make it into the paradise he longed to turn it into.

The Ice Wright knew his shambling dead were several days behind in the depths of the Haunted Forest moving forward one uncertain step at a time. They would then gather here while he prepared. He saw one of his precious Ice Giants emerge. He was the eldest and most intelligent of his large sons. He looked resplendent in his ice armor.

His Giants had the strength to carry the weight of the thick blocks of ice. The blocks would block dragon glass if his enemy had it but would be susceptible to weapons of iron breaking the blocks with repeated blows and strikes. By the time the ice would be broken they would have decimated the enemy. The blocks were in various rectangular shapes held in a lattice work of copper that kept them in place. Ice Helms had been fashioned to protect their heads and necks. Only their faces and hands were exposed with smaller blocks running down their legs and arms. The weight had them moving slowly and would tire them out in prolonged combat but their mission was to strike quick and with devastating effect.

They would rob the Queen of her greatest asset. Then they would need to survive long enough for the rest of their sons to arrive. The Ice King smiled a smile that did not touch his intense blow glowing eyes. He had put much lighter ice armor on a legion of his sons born of mortal men. Again the weight slowed and hemmed his sons from their natural grace but they would be his shock troops to surge into the enemy and open the way for the rest of his sons and army of the dead.

The Ice King had it all planned out. His grand deception insured his total and complete victory. He shivered not from the biting cold but from the thrill of the victory he was assured of.

The Ice King again circled his dead bear steed around to look at the distant forests.

His forces had sent the Free Folk to flee south. He had hoped that they would wage war against the crow and weaken each other but the hated Jon Snow had welcomed them with open arms. Fool! It had led to his assassination. The Wright had actually danced a short jig knowing that the foul crow had been killed by his own brothers.

His forces were killing and converting the fool patrols by the Crows. They had wisely ceased probing the Haunted Forest as his forces thickened beneath the boughs.

Again another portent of his coming victory. His people never turned against themselves. He had proven the craven nature of man by his deals first with Peytr Ballish and then the House of Frey and Bolton. It was sweet and even humorous that the crows had killed the one man he learned to almost respect.

Several months ago it had been a rage that filled him. News from his scouts had reported that the Night’s watch commander once more walked the top of the wall and went to the Godswood before the wall. His spies were there watching silently and hidden when the foolish man knelt before the hated tree. They were moving in to kill the fool when their shock made them stop. The spying Ice Wrights knew what the Lord Commander looked like. When he pulled his hood back they were surprised.

His hair had been black but was now white and his eyes were lilac. This was most strange. Humans did not change in this way. The Ice Wrights discussed what to do when the decision was made for them. The man had unsheathed his sword and it turned night into day as flames licked and flowed off the blade. The Ice Wrights always sensitive to heat felt the raging heat flowing off the blade.

None of these Wrights of course had ever seen for felt the sword of Azor Ahai. Jon Snow went through his sword practice steps. His sword left glowing arcs in the air behind its flight through the air. The sword screamed with heat and dire magic to their kind. The blade would cut through them like a hot knife through powdered snow beneath the trees. They had fled to tell their father.

The Ice King could not believe it. He was immortal. He could be bound and his flesh garroted but he did not die as men died. Men died. Azor Ahai had died and his soul had long ago parted from the world. This was not that hideous man but he was definitely filled with his essence. Somehow the Lord Commander, Jon Snow, had come back as Azor Ahai.

The Ice King had prepared and worked to make sure that he would not experience what he still felt as it had happened a moment ago. Azor had slipped past his defense and plunged his sword clean through his body. The heat had been agonizing. The fiery heat of the sun melted his organs and boiled his blood. He had screamed in agony as fire flowed out from the sword to his frozen white hair to the soles of his frigid feet.

He had fallen to his knees staring with hate filled eyes. His body was ruined. He watched Azor pull his sword out his body as weak as the babes he changed into his sons. He had watched listlessly. The man wasted no time or effort pulling his sword up and back over his right shoulder flames screaming and roaring six feet off the blade exalted at tasting his blood and the impending death of his body. The next thing the Ice Wright King remembered was the world spinning and rotating until his severed head hit the ground and rolled for ten feet to rest with his eyes staring up at the ice clear blue sky.

It had taken him several minutes to fully die in his body. His memory a blank until his awakening less than a decade ago.

The Ice King shook as his body remembered past agonies. NEVER! Never again would he let his soul experience again the death of his body. He had learned much. His son had given him new power and new magic. He would succeed now with his plan. He would be the one to part Azor Ahai head from his body! The King took a deep breath he did not need and calmed himself. He knew caution but the time for it was coming to an end.

He came back to the present seeing the sun glint with bright spangles off the armor of his children. This would ensure his victory. He merely had to get his forces to where they needed to be unseen. He gathered the forces of his strike force before him on his mighty dead steed.

He gave them a rousing speech on how important their mission was. They must not falter and must not be discovered. His scouts had found a path that would lead them past the crows. They would march day and night a steady non tiring pace to arrive at their target. They had with them an ice crow that had been especially raised with mighty magic. This bird would be released to fly to the Ice King. It had been raised on his blood and would fly quickly back to his father. It looked around memorizing the location of his father. The bird cawed but made no sound.

After an hour exhorting his sons they began their march. His eldest and most powerful son was with them. He had been taught mighty magic by the Croyel. The Ice King smiled knowing what they would accomplish. His son would rule Westeros as he marched east and took over the continent of Essos. His son wanted nothing more than to serve his father but he was elated all the same to be named the first heir to his father.

The Ice King had watched them slowly disappear into the hazy distance. He would deceive his enemy and attack with the first blow unawares assuring his victory.

He received ravens from his human allies. They were marching into place. This Eddard Stark was a fool and they would strike his forces unaware from behind. The Ice King smiled at the thought. The Bolton leader was known for taking the skin off the bodies of his enemies and those he chose to torture for the pure enjoyment of it. That was how Roose Bolton would die. He had admirable qualities but at the end of the day he was still a hot blood.

He wanted a quick decisive battle. He had let the crows know of his approach. With the death of Petyr Baelish he had reversed his strategy. He had hoped that the little human would have the Great Houses of Westeros wage war on themselves committing fratricide. They would have destroyed themselves without him having do any work. Without that war their forces were still mighty.

When his son had come to him he had determined to try and bring as much of his enemy as he could to the wall and annihilate them there. It seemed that the he was going to succeed beyond his coldest deadliest dreams. Once he had dispatched his enemies he would sweep South and butcher the unprotected taking their male babes, toddlers and very young to become the Army of his Wrights that he dreamed of. He would finally have the numbers he once had.

Essos would be warned by his conquest of Westeros. He would suffer heavy losses but he would prevail adding ever more children to his army. His first sons would have the strength to help him raise the next generation speeding up his conquest.

A rush of anger came over him. Again his true son was whimpering that he must not use the Horn of Winter. Magic was already weakened. It would be unbound. He must not do this thing he did not understand the true ramifications. They were both creatures of magic.

The Ice King gritted his teeth. He wanted to punch his son to silence him but he needed him too much. He had become his truest of sons and loved him dearly. This one son alone among his sons was not a scion of his body. He had free will and as such he must be disciplined. The Ice King concentrated again and cut off the blood flow from his throat.

“Aaaiieeeeee! Eeeeeeiiiiii! Eeeeeeiiiiii!” his son screamed denied the sustenance he had become totally addicted too as was his kind’s way. The Croyels had never had a host actively cut off their blood before and were totally unprepared to fight it. The Ice King was weakened his knees shaking but he held his resolve fierce. Within the minute his son cried out he would be silent and follow his father’s will.

The Ice King relented letting his blood rush to his throat. The symbiosis restored the two evil entities were instantly revived to full vigor.

In his victory over his son the Ice King could afford to be magnanimous. He reached back and petted his son on the head as the Croyel whimpered in pleasure.

“Soon son soon. This will be first victory of many.”

Daenerys

Drogon’s mighty wings were pumping every ten to fifteen seconds with hard flaps and then he rode the thermals as he winged up North with his mother on his mighty broad black. He flew at his slow run speed as Daenerys called this speed as they flew up the King’s highway. He was so far up that he left no true shadow on the ground. The land so small from two miles up. He was still gaining attitude. In another ten minutes whey were three miles above the earth. The clouds that rolled by in sky were far below them.

The dragon would fly up to twenty thousand feet and then gradually let his flight path lower to the thicker air lower down and rest as he glided down the invisible rivers of air that flowed up in these layers of the atmosphere. The cold and thin air did not bother him. Nor did it bother his mother. Drogon and Daenerys reveled in the frigid air and the sharp tang it brought to their nostrils. The wind whipped over her body making her tunic whip like a battle flag on a windswept plain. She and her dragon did not feel the cold in the slightest. She looked down at the white puffy clouds beneath her. She wished she could build a castle atop such clouds. She had passed over Darry four hours ago and was roughly two hundred and fifty miles up the King’s Highway above it.

She wished she had her Arya with her. She could not stop thinking such thoughts anymore. She was falling more in love with the young Stark girl every day. Each beat of her heart forged a new link in the chain of her love for the young Stark girl. She had fallen for her sweet personality and gentle ways that covered up the fierce heart of a warrior. That warrior spirit called to her. Then she had discovered the girl while on the quiet side had a definite charm with her politeness and rough court etiquette. With her briefs on Eddard Stark and her infuriating interactions with the man he had been nothing but genteel. She was sure his children were reflections of his personality and demeanor. He had fashioned the perfect woman to be her Queen.

She had been sure until Arya came into her life that she would never put the realm at risk with her desire to have a Queen on the dais of the Iron Throne. She would not go to war but she would use all her charm and intimidation (strange how well those worked together) to win the right to marry Arya.

Then she had caught onto Arya warging into Nymeria to watch her from afar. She found it sweet. She had thought about it. The girl obviously had a hero worship complex with her. She was like a young girl from a farm that was enamored with the big city. She was Arya’s shining city. She wanted the girl to want more than that. She had flirted with the girl and Arya would look away or simply ignore her overtures. She had shown off her breast and almost took the girl’s hands to get them on her breast and the girl had refused the obvious overtures.

That had hurt. But as she got to know the girl more she had come to understand that Arya had terribly underestimated the girl’s shyness and her native taciturn and controlled manner. She was sure now that was a trait of all Starks. The problem was that she did not have time to further explore her new insights. She needed to win the peace first and foremost. She may have personal needs but she had made herself Queen and thus taken on the responsibility of protecting that realm. This consumed her current thought.

Also, she was terrified that if she made a romantic move and if Arya did not feel that way towards her she would ruin their great friendship. She would be an emotional wreck and that she could not be before the great battle of her dynasty. She needed to be focused on the task at hand.

What was that saying “The greatest loves were friendships caught fire.” She was on fire for the Stark girl. Masturbating so many nights looking into Nymeria’s eyes knowing that Arya was watching her had finished hooking her on the girl. She knew the girl was innocent on love in general. The girl must obviously be enjoying watching Daenerys masturbate. She was definitely in her wolf every night the wolf had watched her masturbate. Was Arya fantasizing about making love to women? Making love to her? She knew she must be and yet Arya never made any overtures to her when she had made it clear she was a lesbian. Arya may be just getting her rocks off. People of different sexual orientation could definitely enjoying watching other pairings. In Essos she had often seen men fucking and found it hot. Maybe Arya was the same? She wanted a male to love but would not turn aside getting off watching Dany masturbate. If that was all that girl wanted from Dany that would suck! Royally!

Daenerys gritted her teeth and growled. She was not used to being so indecisive. She could not think of any other course at present. She sensed that Arya was the perfect mate for her. How to reel her in? How to make the teen fall in love with her or if in love with her then declare it? If she was Arya she would have been all over a woman so clearly advertising her interest in her.
Arrrrrgghhhhh! Damn that Stark reserve!

She knew she had to make the girl’s hers. She needed Arya in her life. All of her life!

She encouraged Drogon to keep climbing. In ten more minutes they were four miles above the Earth.

Off to the right a short distance away was the short marge of the piedmont that quickly over twenty miles rose up to mighty knees of the first Mountains of the Moon. Each new line rising even higher behind their more stunted brothers. The overall name of the mountains that ran throughout the peninsula of Arryn and ended with the fingers jutting out the Shivering Sea.

For a distance of over a hundred miles to either side of her rose the mighty mountains that protected the Vale of Arryn and many other valleys that the people of this house lived in. With twenty major Lord holds located in the high mountain valleys and in the major valley of Arryn itself. These were a hardy people who had found a way to live comfortably in the wild land of their home.

Daenerys was impressed with the mountains as she looked to the east. Even though she was flying at twenty thousand feet many peaks soared above her height. Some of those peaks soared past her height to a dizzying mile above her current flight path.

Daenerys always wanted Arya with her but Arya simply could not come with Dany on such reconnaissance flights. The girl had proved immune to the heat that radiated out of Drogon but she was not of the Dragon. Both the dragon and his rider generated great heat at their core. Daenerys though she had icy winds blowing into and through her that was far below freezing with the force of her flight through the air and wind currents did not feel the cold. She knew that water would freeze within a minute with the temperatures she was flying through.

Arya would freeze to death unless she was so bundled tight in furs and layered clothes that she would look more like a rock than a person. Arya had tried to be brave and strong but even above King’s Landing when they flew above ten thousand feet in her leathers and two thick coats her teeth had chattered like they might break and that had been in the much warmer air along the coast.

Now overland the temperature was definitely trending towards winter. She wished though that Arya could see the majestic peaks from this viewpoint. A high pressure cell had passed through and cleared out the humidity from the air. The air was like pure refined crystal. The mountains seemed to leap up from the Earth with their shoulders striving to reach the sun. The bottom of the mountains garland with thick forest. These forests gradually thinning as they rose up the mountains.

Then the trees slowly shortened and became more interspersed to where only stunted trees, scrub brush, grasses and lichen clung to the sides of the mountains. Here through Drogon’s far seeing eyes she saw big horn sheep and mountain goats impossibly climbing up seeming sheer faces and leaping adroitly from rock to rock. She spotted foxes slinking among the boulders looking for hairs and groundhogs. She saw several badgers looking out their burrows.

Around her great golden eagles and condors soaring the thermals below her looking for prey and carcasses to feast on.

Yes, her realm had so many beautiful sights. She had flown deep into that range several times now flying through high mountain passes. She hoped to take Arya to her favorite mountain glad and make love to her there. Someday she sincerely hoped.

She would figure out how to get Arya the protection she needed from the cold. It was an engineering problem and the Queen loved solving such problems.

She looked to the north up the King’s Highway. At his height she could see so far with Drogon’s eyes. She had asked her Grand Maester Harsch Lape how far she could see from such a height. He had given her the formula of for the maximum theoretical straight line sight distance to the horizon as the square root of 1.5 times your altitude. So the square root of 1.5 x 20,000 was 173 miles.

The Maester had cautioned that clouds and haze often limited one’s sight but the cold front and high pressure cell had cleared out the air of particulates and humidity. With Drogon’s eyesight she could see the whole way to the curvature of the Earth.

Daenerys turned her gaze to the north and west. She studied the ground closely. She was again sure she had read the “tea leaves” correctly. Eddard and his two allies Edmure Tully and Jon Arryn had totally marched their full strength up North toward Winterfell and beyond.

When armies’ march they either had very long wagon trains following or the large camps they created when stopped or they must forage and raid the land to sustain itself. There was simply no evidence of his. She had scouts now ranging far and wide throughout the Riverlands with strict orders to not be seen. Her Dothraki born and breed for such forays. Their reports confirmed her aerial observations. The land had been laid bare to her. She was free to rape and pillage if she choose and destroy the forts left behind. It was almost as Eddard was testing more than her strategic and tactical acumen. He was testing her soul.

She would pass.

She looked down the King’s Highway. She saw her camps already established as far as she could see. She knew that they were now penetrating the lands of Eddard Stark and still no opposition was even hinted at. Only from the land of the Reeds did her forces report the sense of being closely watched. She already had their measure. They were allied with her. She had just received reports that her beachheads that they had reach the King’s Road and were rapidly flowing south and cautiously building out her camps to the North.

She would not get over confident and cocky. She had heavy forces of mercenary companies protecting her forces now moving north.

She had left strict orders that the local traffic on the roads was to be given free passage down and up the roads. She had wagon trains with basic food, tools, other food stocks for the winter and bolts of fabric for clothing and leather for clothing and tools. These were to be freely distributed to the local populace. Why fight if you could bribe.

Daenerys thought of the North and Riverlands like a fair maid. She was seeking their hand and she needed to woo their parents. Between the strict patience and respect her forces gave to the local populace and the gifts she bestowed she was pleased with her reception.

She knew she had much to thank Arya’s father for this too. The people whom her forces met constantly repeated the refrain that the Queen’s forces were to be respected and given free passage. They had seen her restraint from the beginning. She was proving it now.

She had seen enough and wielded Drogon around in a wide circle and headed back home to her forces and a certain wolf girl she had given her heart too.

She landed back at the camp her forces had reached for the night a little after nine in the evening. They had reached a major waystation and would rest a day to let the horses rest and let the men stretch and rest. Men could make repairs to their weapons and tack and switch any horses that were starting to strain with the steady march north.

She had been greeted by Missandei and Oberyn in her tent along with her two generals. Missandei and Oberyn joined her at the table while her two martial generals remained standing so they could easily point out points on the large map unscrolled on the table top and weighted down by candle scions. They went over her plans. Daenerys found it hard to concentrate. Where was Arya? She gnawed on her lip. She did not want to seem like a love sick little girl. She stared for a long moment at the trails of molten wax wicking down the candle shafts in rivers of red and yellow tears.

“Where is Arya?” she asked in what she knew was a plaintive voice.

Missandei answered “She is in Stannis’s tent. She is visiting him. He requested she eat dinner with him and Renly. She is quite liked I must add my Queen. Even Stannis seems at ease with Arya with her courtly politeness and the way she listens to the man without rolling her eyes at the grinding of his teeth. The Highgarden contingent rode with her the half day as they jested and conversed. I think Arya is winning over the Houses of the South for her Father.”

“It is cute how she hotly declares her father is the greatest ‘man’ the world has ever seen.” Missandei paused “She will make you a wonderful Queen Dany.”

Daenerys looked at Missandei with large eyes. How could she betray her trust? She started feeling Syrio grip her shoulder from the side.

She looked up at her old friend “We all know Dany. We have known basically since she tried to punch your teeth out in the throne room.”

Daenerys sat back stunned. She looked at Barristan smiling softly at her nodding his head yes.

She looked at Oberyn for his confirmation. “For gods sake will you fuck the girl and get it over with. You two love each other so much it is sickening. Sweet. But sickening.”

Daenerys looked around the table. She was nonplussed. If these people did not care who would? Arya was outside in her camp slowly seducing the other houses with her simple homespun charms and basic goodness.

“Do you think she truly loves me Oberyn?”
“Does the sun rise in the East? Stop being obtuse woman.”

Daenerys was still not convinced. That man was walking sex personified. He was predisposed to see passion where there might be none. She paused. She had more reason to hope though. She was sure that she would be going to Winterfell before she went the Wall. She was truly hoping that Eddard Stark was there. She had so many things to discuss with him.

An enemy to defeat and a daughter to woe. Would Eddard Stark be as accepting as Oberyn? She had her doubts. Dorne was progressive while the North was moribund in the honor and the ways of the past. Still she had more reason to hope.

Arya had stayed late in Stannis’s tent that night. Dany had slept in her own bed of furs in her tent and she missed her fiercely. She could not sleep. She suddenly relaxed when Arya came into the tent. The girl went to her furs. Just hearing her breathing calmed Dany. The Queen rolled on her back to look up at her tent. She was definitely in love. She had a war to win but after that she had a world of happiness to snatch. She smiled in the night. She listened to Arya softly snore. Dany followed her into sleep.

The next day was meetings with her major allies. They sat at her table with Arya back at her side being her usual demure and polite self. Daenerys stared at her from underneath her eyelashes. She simply did not have the time or privacy to explore her rising hopes.

The leaders pondered out why Eddard was being so careless with the defense of his realm. Daenerys still needed to play her part of this Game of Thrones that Eddard had cornered her into.

She explained that her forces were too mighty for the Houses of the Riverlands, the Vale and the North to fight her individually. She would crush them in turn. She was being led North for decisive battle with their combined might. She was sure they would make a stand in a place and time of their choosing that would let them to some degree at least reduce the effectiveness of her dragons.

They had debated this but they had to agree it was the wisest decision that the Warden of the North could make. Oberyn seemed to give her strange looks as he argued in the soundness of her observations. She was sure he had a strong suspicion that he had figured out she was in league with Eddard Stark and yet he argued passionately and persuasively for her arguments. The other Great Houses and their generals agreed with her reasoning.

It was sound and logical. With the might of Dorne, Highgarden, and the Stormlands at her call and added to that the might of Essos and the alliances of the Summer Islands and Yi-Ti gave her even more might she would rather quickly conquer the three houses of the Confederacy as they called themselves individually. She would shatter their initial long range defenses and then her dragons would be free to add their fiery might to the fight. She was unstoppable.

She sighed and let the boys be boys as they took to insulting and making snide remarks on each other. She sat back and let the houses work out their picking order.

“Has it ever occurred too you Oberyn that we grow as tired of you telling us of your marital prowess as women grow tired of your wild boasting of your prowess in the bed?”

“Why Mace, you will see my prowess in the coming battles. Afterwards, if you and Aleria will journey to Dorne, Ellaria and I will show our prowess in the bed. Come to us so we can make you cum, and cum and cum.”

/////
“My Gods will you take that rod out your ass!”

“I got a rod I would love to shove up your arrogant ass Oberyn.”

“What would Loras say to that my dear Renly.”

“You know you wouldn’t be talking with his cock down your throat you pompous ass.”

“Now we’re talking!”

///

“Renly, for gods sake stop filing your nails man! That is unseemly.”

“You know brother—you do have a rod up your ass.”

Daenerys watched Arya out the corner as she was by turns amused, shocked and bemused by the men grousing and mocking each other. For herself Daenerys found it highly entertaining. She was happy that Arya was not bothered by such harping. Missandei had made an excuse of needing to continue working on the coded papers. She easily got flummoxed at such talk and biting remarks. Daenerys pinched her nose and snorted at the childish behavior but the men seemed to thrive on it.

“You know that is pretty rich coming from a House whose crest is a fucking rose – a yellow rose I might add. What does the color yellow denote Mace?”

“How bout I shove those roses, thorns and all up your ass Stannis!”

“Go tend your tulips.”

///

“Is that a viper in your diaper Oberyn or you just happy to see me – wait that is right it’s a legless skink.”

“I got some fangs you can milk with your ass Renly”

///

“I know your wife must be so disappointed in you Stannis.”

Stannis hesitated but he had to hear what Oberyn had to say now “Whyyyyy?” he asked in a resigned tone.

“With that sigil of the stag with that big rack of antlers I am sure she thought you would always be horny.”

Stannis merely lowered his head and shook it at the horrible quip.

///

After a day of rest and more meetings with continued snipping they were once more on the road. They had a contingent coming out from the local small homesteads coming to the road to see their procession heading north.

She and the Houses got out their armor and the armor for their horses and that the squires made sure were bright and polished. They all felt like putting on a show for the locals. The standards were on their lances and the knights with their titular Lords leading. Even Mace looked regal and imposing sitting atop his armored horse and in his enameled armor.

Daenerys had her bells in and her black dragon bone armor on. Arya had no armor but her black leathers trimmed in silver inlay was so beautiful with a sword on her back and one on her hip. She cut a dashing figure.

Daenerys looked up and down the road. So regal. Minstrels would write songs of this time that would be sung for a thousand years. It was still a time of Reclamation.
AN #1: For the readers who know of the Thomas Covenant Chronicles I start to now blend in the Giants, Haruchai, Ramen, Ranyhyn a Lord of Revelstone. Later i will blend in Amok, Waynhyn and the Wraiths of Andelain. Even later i will resurrect the Raver, Turiya Herem, i will in time show how his brother survived, the Merewives, Elaine-Forestal, demon-dem and the Viles. I will also create the Yazloo.

In the ten books of the TC Chronicles i kept reading how hot blooded the Haruchai and to a lesser degree the Ramen were. We will in time finally see this side of these stoic people.

Ice King / Missandei / Daenerys / Eddard / Melisandre / Arya

Ice King

The Ice King gazed at the Wall rising up to the heights before him. He was on his mighty bear stead on the edge of the Haunted Forest. He gazed with hate at the barrier that barred him from the land that was his by right. He knew that he now possessed the Horn of Winter but it was not time for its use yet.

The snow was again falling heavily. The white flecks falling down thickly from heavy laden clouds that looked angry and sullen. The snow heavy and wet. There was no wind to whip the snow along. The flakes fell in lazy profusion. The unique shaped disks spun and whirled around like snow fairies that he knew existed but had so far eluded his search. He would subjugate all denizens of this world in time. None could hide from him when he reached his full power. It was indeed his destiny to conquer the whole world. His campaign for world domination had begun.

He still kept the true winter held in abatement in the far North. Only tendrils of the vicious monstrosity would escape and come howling down South. The slavering beast growing ever stronger seeking to slip the leash he had placed on it. The mighty beast desired to spring forth but the Ice King denied it. He had toyed with the idea of unleashing the storm and let it do the work to the land that Peytr Ballaish had promised but that would take years more and he could not and would not wait anymore.

It was time to strike.

Even the Elohim in their far away home of Elemesnedene would fall before when the time came. He would conquer the world and bend Earthpower to his will. He would reign supreme. His son cried out involuntarily in fear at his father’s thoughts. He did not correct his son his cowardice as he whimpered and drooled down his throat in fear. He would never admit to any but himself that he felt fear deep down when he had such thoughts. His son’s fear had infected him. He cursed himself for this weakness and fueled his rage and desire to conquer these strange beings that so frightened his
His son’s fear had transferred itself to him, but, where his son was weak he was strong. He shook his thoughts to tamp down his fear. Nothing would prevent the Ice King from achieving the greatness he had been born to achieve.

He looked up at the Wall. With his son’s sight he could see deep in the wall and see the Forbidding waiting hidden and unseen. Its blue energy waiting for magic it had been designed to snare and incinerate. Fortunately, it was not tuned for his magic and he had survived his first contact with it. It had been tuned to his son’s magic but he was aware of it now and would avoid it until he brought it crashing down.

His son whimpered of High Lords and a Staff of Law but it did not matter to him. They were only names with no meaning to him. All would fall before his might in due time. One by one he would confront and defeat his enemies.

The Ice King heard the boughs above his head creaking and sighing underneath their heavy weight of resting snow. From off to his right and left he could hear snow sloughing off laden limbs and crashing to the ground in clouds of broiling snow. The sounds of icy nature soothed and strengthened the Ice King.

He would bring the Wall down and crush his enemies. He felt Azor Ahai behind that wall. Earlier he had hidden several hundred yards back from the edge of the forest where he now sat on his steed. He had felt the reborn crow up on the wall gazing out.

They could feel each other now. Their hate and acrimony implacable. The Ice King was not ready to confront this risen Jon Snow with his reborn sword of Azor Ahai. He again suppressed his fear. Jon Snow impossibly wore the same sword on his hip from eight thousand years ago. It might physically be different but at its magical core it was the same sword from long ago. The same sword that had melted his frozen blood and cleaved his head from his shoulders. He would refuse to let it happen again. This time he would be the one to run his sword through his enemy. He would instead of burning his foe he would freeze his blood to icy crystals and then his body. He would lift his arm high and bring his blade crashing down to shatter his foe’s head to a million shattered shards of crystallized bone, muscle, blood and brain.

His Shock Troop were still on their journey. They had made good progress he knew but the journey was long. They were slowed considerably by the heavy Ice Armor they wore. It was necessary. Normally his Wright sons relied on speed and agility. His giant sons were while slower still quick but against possible weapons of fire and dragon glass would be easily killed. They needed their armor for the mission that they had been given. It would take them still some time to make the journey to their destination. They had to cross the point of greatest vulnerability that would slow them even more as they used stealth to pass the hot bloods unseen. His plan was solid and it would reap great benefits. Once they were in place he could move forward.

He had planned and prepared and was at last fully confident. He was innately cautious after his death at the hands of Azor Ahai. He would not suffer that fate again. He had prepared his army and outfitted his sons with swords of ice and given some armor. His army of the dead was vast. He had a human host that would fall on his enemies from the rear. His victory was assured. His world was content. Or so he had thought.

That had changed the day after he had arrived at the Fist of the First Men. He had been on his steed watching more and more of his shambling army of the dead filling the valley that surrounded the Fist of the First Men. He had his sons strung out along the river of the dead flowing south to guide and shepherd them forward. With his will focused south he needed his sons to keep the dead army from wandering away and becoming listless as they separated from their masters. He had seen his dead simply staring at tree trunks unable to divine another path forward till his sons urged them around the obstacles.

He had watched a contingent of dead mastodons shamble into the open spaces when his true son had suddenly gone rigid. His limbs shooting out straight nails cutting into his skin painfully.

“EEEEEEE! AAAIxEEEE! NO! NO! Not here! It is impossible!” the Croyel screamed a soundless scream in his father’s mind. The echoes reverberating deep into the depths of his icy soul. His son wailed on and on. In fact he seemed almost mad with fear.

At first he had been angered and prepared to “blood starve” his son again for wilting with his prattle about the Wall and Elohim. But he paused. This fear was not about the possible but was immediate and visceral to his son. His son was scratching him painfully drawing blood as his stunted limbs kicked and thrashed in an instinctual motion of escape.

What had gotten into his son?! He shouted at his son with his mind to calm him. It was to no avail. His son was mortally afraid. What could it be?! His son spoke in his mind. His son was craven it was true when he confronted anything of might but this level of fear was something new.

“No no nnooooo … it’s a Lord of Revelstone! She cannot be here! The Soulbiter and Soulcrusher prevent it. Prevent it I say! Her power is vast—nooooooo she has the full power of all the wards of High Lord Kevin, Son of Loric Vilesilencer—no no … they have all been found and understood … there is no Oath of Peace stunting their passion … Noooooo! No no no … Amok has been reborn No No! … Her might equals that of High Lord Mhoram when he rode out in valor and folly to confront and kill the Giant Raver before the gates of Revelstone … she is mightyyyy! Father save meeeeee!”

The Ice King was rattled. This was blind terror from his son. These were only words that came to him. He caught vague images all rushing over one another. He saw a tall man holding a strange rune covered staff. This man’s power and strength were staggering. Then he saw another vision off a man riding a horse and charging a human appearing Giant striking it in the head with a staff that shattered. Then the man was stabbing that Giant with a large dagger that staggered the Ice King with the power blazing out its white gem. The Giant was mighty and had a green stone of monstrous power himself. It did not matter. This Mhoram killed the Giant.

“Can you show me your visions?! Don’t show me the past! I need to see the present!”

“Yes, but she will see me! It is too dangerous!”

“I must see! If you let me see I will protect you!”

He felt his son hesitate. Then the Croyel projected into his mind what disturbed him so. The Ice King had maps of the lands he would make his own. He was able to sense that they were now in the land between the rivers of Weeping Water and the Last River. The icy water lapped to the shore in soft rolling waves the tide low and the wind calm. The sun was bright and made the water dance with blinding white glints.

He saw that he was seeing through the eyes of some human. He could see the slender arms of a human female before his eyes that he now shared with this woman. While slender her forearms were corded with whipcord muscle. She had on a light blue tunic that only came down to her elbows. In her left hand was a polished smooth staff that was capped with iron. The Ice King’s eyes enlarged looking at the staff. It was an instrument of great power. He would make it his.
The woman was walking through the cold water that rolled to shore in gentle waves. The cold water did not seem to affect the woman. The water coming up to the middle of her stomach. Her medium blue robe turned dark where the waves rolled past her to lap at the shore.

The woman was focused on something he could sense, else, she would know of the Croyel tapping into her visions. She had some purpose consuming her focus. This ‘Lord’ was not expecting his son to be here the Ice King realized. He was of the Southern world like she was. This gave the Ice King and Croyel an advantage. Unfortunately the link was too tenuous to be used for attack. The woman was moving ashore. The woman looked to her right and the Ice King started. Besides her walking in the water that was now waist high to the woman were Giants. Literally Giants. The same Giants he had seen in the past of the Croyel’s memories. They were startling in their size and prowess. They moved like the shadowcats of the North. The water only came up to the middle of their calves.

The Ice King saw that these Giants were at least twelve feet tall with some closer to fourteen feet tall. Where the giants of his experience were somewhat bestial in appearance these Giants were perfectly shaped humans only twice or more as tall. They were well muscled with legs like tree trunks and arms like thick saplings. Their faces were angled and sharp of features. They had eyes of many colors like the humans. Their hair too had the color variations of humans of mainly various shades of brown but he saw a few blondes and one with red hair. The Giants in the water were mainly women but he saw a few men among the throng of Giant women. The Ice King saw immediately a division between the sexes of the Giants. The men were dressed as sailors that he had seen with the smugglers that had trafficked human babies to him from Essos. Loose fitting attire with pants legs stuffed into calf high boots and open shirts half buttoned up. Their chests massive. Their bodies were impossibly strong the Ice King sensed. A blow from their fists would cripple even his sons. The women giants were totally different. They were only slightly shorter than their male counterparts with a few as tall as their male companions. Their bodies were not quite as thick but he could see they were if anything stronger than their male counterparts from their obvious martial training.

These women were warriors. They had on granite stone half helms that covered their heads and necks but left their faces uncovered. The helms the Ice King saw had been melded somehow and not hewn from rock. The rock seemed to have flowed to its shape. The rest of their bodies were covered with circular discs of granite that were somehow interleaved without any bindings that he could see. These too had the feel of being formed and not cut. This allowed for armor that was precise and not bulky like the ice armor for his sons and giants. The armor ran from the neck down to the waist where a massive belt was. They had legging that covered their legs and feet over which were strapped war sandals that were crossed strapped up thick bulging calves.

The armor was supple. Where the ice armor he had fashioned for his sons was bulky and restricted movement the Ice King could see that these Giants armor moved and allowed full motion as if the granite disks were merely a second skin.

The Ice King knew the armor must have been massively heavily but the Giant women did not even notice the weight he could sense by their easy movements. The way the Giant women moved the Ice King knew they had the agility of gazelle or the artic hares he saw foxes chasing. How such strength and agility could exist together he wondered? They easily had the strength of thirty if not more of his warriors. The woman’s who vision he was stealing looked right and left. He saw at most only twenty of these strange warrior women.

He saw that on their hips or strapped to their backs they carried great glaive swords that were at least six to seven feet in length. He instinctively shied away from those swords and his true son gibbered and drooled down his neck in abject terror. These blades thickness and breadth were horrifying to
They could cut through his sons like a scythe threw wheat. The Ice King could feel different but equally fell magic as was in the Dragon Queen’s Valyrian blade. It was not Azor’s fearful blade but these blades were dire to all they struck and found the mark. One strike true with these blades and any foe would fall. The Ice King felt rage at the increase of fell blades that his enemies were acquiring.

He knew that these Giants were here for one reason. To kill him. How they knew of him he did not know but they were here nevertheless to fight him. He hated them immediately and immensely. He now had new enemies to hunt down and kill in this wide world. These Giants homeland would suffer his wrath for this affront.

The Ice King saw that these Giant women seemed to laugh easily. They jested amongst themselves and spoke to the woman whose vision he and his son had purloined with jibs and jests. The woman did not laugh in return. He hated the mirth of these Giants. The few Giant men joined in the laughter. He would strangle that mirth from all their throats.

Beside and among these Giants walked another type of persons. These were humans who were shorter of stature compared to the men and women of Westeros. They were not greatly shorter but seemed to average four or five inches shorter for the men and an inch or two for the women. They were brown of skin and had dark black hair. He saw these were slightly fewer in numbers than the Giants. They wore simple brown tunics belted at the waist. The water was ice cold yet they did not feel it like the Giants.

A few of these brown skinned humans walked up out of the water. He was surprised to see they wore no protection for their feet. They did not seem particular muscular but were obviously extremely fit with rounded muscles and a movement that spoke of great martial training.

The men had close cropped hair while the women had hair cut in bangs and half covering ears and touching necks. Where the Giants had faces that were mobile with emotion the brown skinned people wore faces that were like masks that showed no emotion.

“What are these brown people?” he queried his son.

His son hesitated. Again he felt fear. Why? These were only humans. Humans without weapons. “Haruchai … they cannot be corrupted … they are almost as strong as Giants!” Ice King doubted that. They were out massed by at least five to six stone. “They formed the hated Bloodguard. They are terrible! They were once arrogant and could be led astray. Stave instituted reforms. They cannot be led astray anymore! They are a terrible and fey people. None can stand against their might.”

“But they have no weapons” the Ice King observed to his son. Surely normal humans without any weapon were of no import.

“They don’t need weapons. They are the weapons!”

The Ice King was perplexed but did not pursue this with his son.

Again the Ice King had to wonder of his son. These Haruchai did not seem impressive at all to the Ice King. They were just humans by what he could see. He did sense some hidden strength in them but nothing that warranted his son’s fanciful descriptions.

The company had reached the shore and the entourage stopped while the “Lord” whose vision they looked through moved forward. She walked a hundred yards inland and without preamble slammed her staff down shoving two feet of the staff into the hard ground. She should not have had the strength for that feat but she had. The woman in her blue robe walked half way back to the beach with her companions. She turned back around to look at her staff now jammed into the Earth. They all stared at the staff obviously waiting for something to occur. The Ice King waited with them with his borrowed vision.

For a minute nothing happened and Ice King asked his son what was happening. He was equally perplexed.

The woman looked back out to the sea and the Ice King gasped. He saw two ships made of stone that made the Swan Ships of the Summer Islanders look small in comparison. The ships had four masts and mighty sails that rippled in the air with loud booms of canvass. The Ice King felt great magic in these ships. Again he noticed that the granite of the ships had been formed and not hewn. The magic needed for that staggered his mind. He would have those ships too when he had slaughtered these Giants.

The woman looked back inland. Suddenly the Ice King felt time and space start to rip apart and somehow stabilized as a column of whirling writhing bright white light thirty yards wide appeared and soared to the heights of the heavens. It wavered and yammered trying to break free. He could feel power that dwarfed any he had ever felt. It was trying to break free but some unseen force was somehow controlling it. The Ice King being a magical being had an instinctive understanding of this column of writhing white force that reached for the stars.

It was a disruption to all the known laws that governed life. All who entered that column would cease to exist. With his magically essence he understood that for that area of the column of sparkling pure white light all time from the beginning to its end existed at once. Anything that entered would be ripped asunder. In fact the Earth underneath it should have been instantly ripped apart as it tried to exist across time which was impossible and thus anything that touched it would be obliterated. Given time this thing could destroy the Earth if allowed to roam unfettered and crisscross its paths of destruction. It would take many millennium but it was that powerful.

Once again his son screamed in wild blind terror “It is a Caesures—a Falls No no! It is wild magic gone wild. Linden Avery the Chosen has created it. It is hideous. Save meeee!” The Ice King felt his son’s fear but he was not threatened by this “Caesures”. It was horrendously powerful but yet some other power was even greater and easily controlled it.

His son was not in his right mind driven nearly mad with fear. This Caesure was not moving and its affects localized. The woman stepped forward and started to chant in a strange tongue. She held her arms up and faced the force before her. He felt like a million wasps were stinging him suddenly with fiery venom. He screamed and fell off his stead as he and his Croyel screamed in agony. The woman somehow endured the pain and her song quickly calmed the affect.

The Ice king slowly levered himself up to his feet swaying. The Caresure was vile and reprehensible! The Ice King sensed that what had been distracting the woman was now at hand. Suddenly, horses started to bolt from the Caesure impossibly unharmed! This was impossible! They should have been torn apart! The horses kept appearing four, twelve, seventeen and then there was twenty-two of the horses. They pranced and nickered loudly as they tossed their heads with pride and joy.

Four of the horses had riders on them. They were short like the Haurchai and equally brown and black of hair though these people wore their hair long. The Ice King sensed that their darkness of skin was from always being beneath the hot sun. There was two women and two men. Three were more teenagers while one was a full grown woman with a strange cord in her hair that tied it up and back. In her hair were yellow flowers. These riders immediately dismounted their mounts and began to walk around the horse tending to the horses though they seemed to be in no need of care.

The Croyel again went mad with terror “No No Ranyhyn … they are filled with terrible Earthpower. They live on the Plains of Ra how can they be here! No No this is terrible! They will find me and smash me with their hooves. They can sense me and my kind! No, no no! What is this! The ramen do not ride! They are horrible warriors—they will break my neck with their cords!”

“No Control yourself!” the Ice King barked at his son. Why was his son so frightened by so few people who did not appear to have any great strength to them beyond physical prowess. The Giants he could see with their immense size and obvious strength. They had fell blades and strong armor but they only numbered twenty. The other humans had no weapons he could see.

The Ice King focused on the horses. He wondered what could be so terrible about horses. Then they were prancing and running around cavorting in gaiety and joy. He instinctively hated these horses. The Caesure suddenly flared and then winked out of existence. Who could so easily create and control such raw violent power?! The Ice king saw that the staff in the ground around which the Caesure had spun was impossibly unhurt.

The woman’s vision they had hijacked walked forward. The horses were cavorting running here and there. They nickered loudly enjoying the new land they had arrived in. The woman walked back to her staff and easily pulled it out from the hard earth she had jammed it two down into. A “Ranyhyn” ran up to the woman.

Now the Ice King saw what his son saw. These horse were bursting with some kind of strange power. This Earthpower that his son spoke of with such fear and loathing. These horses were taller, more muscled chests and legs that were impossible strong. The horses were black, brown, grey, chestnut and appaloosas but one thing all the horses had in common. On their foreheads were stars of snow white color that seemed to glow even though they did not. He had seen this power before he felt but he could not quite place at the moment with all the events occurring before his eyes.

The horse’s eyes shown with an intelligence that no animal should have. It looked at the woman’s eyes he was looking through. The Ice King could see the affection this animal had for the human.

“Oh Frinny, well meet” the woman’s harsh voice spoke with obvious affection. The horsed pranced and nicked in obvious happiness but then paused and stared at her as she walked up to the Ranyhyn. She was using her staff almost as a walking staff.

The horse suddenly trumpeted and reared pawing the sky. The horse continued to kick the air. The other horses began to trumpet loudly as they started to run a circle around the Lord. They circle constricting.

The Ice King felt the sudden change. The woman had seen them. He was not afrai—“

“Ha-man rual tayba-sah carab ho-eeal neeta par-raoul Croyel-alh! Kro-halle zalhza trasohol par-sharhrl!”

The woman snarled at them. “I see you Croeyl and your vile host.”

She snatched her staff with her left hand and whipped it up to grip with her right hand and pressed the wood against her forehead. Blue light filled their shared vision.

The ice king heard his son scream as he formed his strongest shields
“AAAAAAAIIEEEEEEIEEEEEE!”

“Melenkurion abatha, Duroc minas mil. Harad khabaal.” The woman shouted out.

The Ice King was slammed off his feet and flung thirty yards through the air like a ragdoll his body flipping and twisting. Then his body slammed into the ground. The strike was hard and he rolled five times before coming to his feet with sword in hand. His son’s shields had held. They were unharmed. His son’s shields had blunted the magical aspects of the assault with only the physical force impacting their bodies and even that his son had mostly blocked.

His son whimpered. He was drinking hotly from his throat. The attack had been thwarted but his son had been weakened. He could defend them but for how long?

Their link with the woman had been severed.

He asked his son what had happened. It took him several minutes to calm his son down. His son had nearly been catatonic with fear by then. Slowly his son came back to himself and explained to his father what had hit them. They had been hit with a spell that had been strengthened by the seven words of power. Words that if they spoke them would instantly kill them from within.

His son kept going back to the fact that the Lore of Kevin Landwaster had been fully mastered. For some reason this thought terribly frightened his son. Did not his son know he was the greatest force in the world? His son had been taken unawares. They would be prepared for these new threats when they met in the future. Like he was now prepared for the Dragon Queen.

He had contemplated this turn of events. It unsettled him but he was not overly concerned. These beings while mighty were few. He had to trust his plans. Hopefully, these strange travelers from the land of his son would fall into the same trap. The same trap would ensnare these interlopers much to their detriment.

The Ice King was fated to rule all. It was written.

Now he was looking at the Wall. Having seen this “Lord” he could now see that that the magic in the Wall that had attacked his son was very similar and yet different. He and his son would not have to touch that magic again with their current plans. With his heightened senses he perceived other magic but he nor his son understood it or its function. Most probably from the First People. When he had taken over Westeros he would hunt down and kill the last of them to remove that threat once and for all.

The First People were near spent. Westeros had forgotten the magic that had given rise to the Mages that had warred against him and killed so many of his brothers and sons. He now had three forces to worry of. Azor Ahai, the Dragon Queen and this strange force from the land of his Croyel son. They were mighty in an individual way but his army would crush and kill them. They were not enough to be of any concern.

His ambush would hopefully kill or and maim them along with their hated dragons. Once the dragons were removed from the battlefield his assured victory would be so much easier. He leaned back and looked up at the tall Wall that he would be crashing down. He fingered the leather strap that was strung around his neck from which the Horn of Winter hung.

He would have to wait. His plan must first come to fruition. Soon though, soon. He had waited eight thousand years for his long delayed revenge for the ignominy heaped up upon his corpse. He would first kill and then trap Ahai into the cold unyielding Earth. He would return the ignobility that he suffered from eight thousand years ago. He would tear the Dragon Queen apart after she had seen her precious sons slayed before her eyes. Then he would turn his attention to these interlopers and in turn dispatch them.

His victory was assured.

He had solved the feeling of disquiet he had felt when he looked into the eyes of the Ranyhyn. He was sure he had felt the “Earthpower” that filled these beasts before. It had felt different but he had felt it nevertheless. He had felt it in Daenerys Targaryen. She was filled with a variation of the same power. It was different and yet the same. When he had mentioned this to his son he had not seen it and thought not.

No. The Ice King was right. Daenerys Targaryen was filled with magic. It helped explain her great power. Her dragons, her sword filled with fey magic and her own body filled with another terrible magic made for a terrible foe. It did not matter. He would slay and obliterate all his foes.

He pressed his knee into his dead bear mount and it slowly turned its vast bulk about and the Ice King retreated back into the forest. He listened to the silent trees whisper and groan with the weight of the heavy snow falling down upon their broad shoulders. The forest was silent with all animal life having fled away from his presence. He smiled. He was indeed king of all his domain.

Once the battle was finished his enemies power would be broken. He could then leisurely finish off the First People and immediate survivors. Then he would begin his march south raping and pillaging the land acquiring new sons to replace those that must fall to achieve his victory.

His mighty bear steed plodded along as he slowly made his way back to the Fist of the First Men. He had to prepare the mirage that would be the final act that would insure his victory.

His victory was assured.

Missandei

“Arrrrgggnnnnnnn!” Missandei roared again in the privacy of her wagon. It was early evening and they had reached the days camp. She had just swept the papers she was trying to decipher onto the floor of her wagon. The fourteen pages and flown into the air and then fallen down to the floor and onto her night stand table with gentle wafting arcs as they settled down. The blizzard of sheets now at rest.

The Queen’s speech while it had been heart lifting and she knew that the Queen had seen the truth of the matter and spoke the truth she was still angered by her failure to solve what had become the riddle of her life. She laughed in derision at her inability to solve the riddle of the pages now strewn on the floor. She knew that the message that lay hidden in the words of boring everyday life in the House of Frey must be valuable or why else had her green eyed benefactor penetrated the Red Keep to deliver it to her.

Missandei had mostly kept her ire in check for the ten days since the Queen’s visit even though each day her rancor and discord rose ever hotter in her breast. She started to feel that her blood was running as hot as Drogon’s with her anger and frustration.

Each day it was the same. She sought to decipher the pages but each day she was left frustrated. She would finish the day of frustration and then leave her wagon to enjoy the evening air. As they moved north the air became colder and carried a bite to it. She was heavily bundled in several furs and two sets of breeches. Her hands encased in mittens. She would quickly run to the cook fires to get warm.

Missandei was from island nation of Naath in the Summer Sea. Her land was also called the Isle of Butterflies for a reason. The warm clime conducive to flowers and the butterflies that thrived drinking nectars from the flowers. Her body was breed for warmth and not cold. She was freezing when outside!

In her walks she acknowledged and talked to her fellow travelers.

Oberyn had seemingly gotten over his strange behavior with her. Well mostly. He joked that she looked like she was in a chastity belt and then suddenly looked around and behind him his body tensed as if expecting to be viciously attacked. He looked around for a long minute before he settled down.

She heard him saying underneath his breath “Yes no lascivious thoughts, no lascivious thoughts.” That was like asking the full moon to not shine forth on a dark night. She in fact liked the man. She was both happy and miffed with the man. She was happy that he had not come onto her like he was reported to do with women he was attracted to. She was conversely miffed because he had not found her attractive enough to pursue. She knew she was being unfair but her emotions were aflutter with her thoughts of her longed for green eyed lover.

She may be a lesbian but what woman did not want to feel attractive. Messandei sadly reflected that her true love had never seemed to appear again to her. She was courted by her maid staff who were now leaving so much cleavage exposed their breast nearly fell out of their bodices. They were at the door to her wagon each morning showing off their charms. Their breeches nearly falling off their hips exposing delicious skin. She noticed their bodies. She even desired them but she clung to her childish dreams of giving her virtue to “The Woman” who had nearly taken mythological status with the young scribe.

She knew she should move on and enjoy the pleasures of the flesh. Life was indeed fleeting and she would only be young and nubile once. She should partake of the women offering themselves to her now. She would feel her resolve to be chaste and hold herself for her love start to weaken. Then she would again see those beautiful green eyes and her resolve stiffened.

She took her dish of ham and gravy biscuits with cut green beans and radishes. She drank the special blend of tea from Yi Ti called Jin Jun Mei. Missandei loved the sweet, fruity and flowery flavor with its long lasting sweet after-taste. The brew’s bright reddish color exotic to her senses.

Missandei ate her food daintily with her back ramrod straight and her eating utensils properly held just so. She ate the food with the highest of etiquette protocol. She ate with measured dignified bites. The scribe listened to the high lords gathered around the Lord’s table talking and laughing. Oberyn was in his usual form snipping at everyone and taking their pithy remarks with aplomb. The man seemed to thrive on ranking with his peers.

She looked over at her Queen and Arya as they talked quietly together. Dany had scooted her chair over to sit beside Arya’s and they talked leaning towards each other. They talked and first one head or the other would rock back in soft laughter. They smiled at each other softly that screamed love and neither could see it! She watched Arya reach out and pull a few stray strands of Dany’s silver tresses and put it behind Dany’s ear. The act so gentle and endearing.

They would see their love for each other soon. They just had too.

Missandei longed to have her lover run her fingers through her hair. Her Afro would not give her love that option but she would happily twine her love’s hair behind her ear. Missandei would gaze lovingly into her bright green eyes. That was the one thing she could remember about her love from her dreams. Those beautiful ethereal green eyes.

The first dream had been the night the satchel had come into her room. The dream had not returned until the night the Queen had spoken to her. Then it had not occurred again for five nights but now it had occurred for the last three nights. She would awaken all hot and flustered. She would look around and call out but no answered. No one was in her room.

Each night she would wake up from her dreams feeling loved and almost worshiped. She knew she was being watched. She would look down at the foot of her bed and see her Caracal Shadowclaw. Her cat would be deep in sleep. Whoever was coming into her room was so stealthy that her cat did not sense her.

She had tried to force herself awake the instant the dreams of being watched and now touched filled her with a sense of being protected and longed for. It had frustrated the living hell out of her to awake alone each night she felt the presence. How was her love escaping her?! She had locked her door from the inside and it was always still locked. She would examine the lock but it was seemingly unharmed and locked. She wanted her love so bad.

Missandei would awaken flustered and very, very horny. She was waiting to be seduced and ravaged and it was not happening! She had then frustrated her sweet Caracal with her hurried stripping out of her sheer nightgown and spreading her legs to masturbate in a frenzy of wild cumming again and again as she flipped and screamed her pleasure. She knew her wagon was a rocking and she just didn’t care if anyone came a knocking. Her poor cat and guardian would leap over to the desk to find safety as her master rubbed her muff to more wailing womb rending orgasms. She would fuck herself to exhaustion and go to sleep sweaty and cum soaked after pulling up the covers.

She had read many tomes on lesbian lovemaking over the last few years. She was an adept student. She smiled lazily to herself. She had learned not only how to please other women but how to expertly pluck her own body to wailing cunt immolating orgasms. The little scribe felt like her pussy was tearing itself inside out she cummed so hard. Missandei would rock her woman’s world when she gave her the “butterfly kiss” on her clit. It was from the lands above Yi Ti and in a book called the Karma Sutra of Lesbos.

Missandei had again exhausted herself with intense, focused masturbation. Her pussy was exhausted but oh so happy. She would feel Shadowclaw jump back on her bed and pad around in a circle making her nest for the rest of the night before settling back down.

Missandei was calming down from her continued failure. Dany had indeed made her feel better with her talk. She knew that without the necessary cypher key she would never be able to solve the riddle. Missandei was confused by her dream lover. Why would she only look at and caress her but not help her solve the problem was maddening. She longed for her but she was beginning to feel distress and rising anger. Her dream lover had to know how important to the Queen these correspondence was. How important it was to solve. Why was she not helping Missandei?

No no maybe she does not have the cypher Missandei told herself. Maybe she had done all she could for her. Then why not reveal herself to Missandei so she could love Missandei’s body and she in return make love to her. Missandei felt a little foolish as she ate her meal. She was sure this dream lover was real but she could not help but have doubts. It could be her overactive teenage mind seeing what did not exist.

The scribe finished her meal and had a second cup of Jin Jun Mei tea. Missandei relaxed letting the tension flow from her body. Her queen was of course right but it relieved for only a little while the building tension she felt in not being able to solve the riddle of “The Crow Flies in Square Circles.” How big was the darn circle and therefore the size the square and what was as important what was the focal point. Where did she need to put the point of the compass needle? It was so frustrating.

She watched the stars come out and she looked up at the Milky Way as the people in Westeros called the band of stars that filled the dark night clear sky. She thought of the name in her native tongue Cláí Mór na Réaltaí "Great Fence of the Stars". The stars were so beautiful the way their dots of light stretched from horizon to horizon. The band of light riding from the high quadrant in the sky to her left and dipping down to the Earth to her right. The dark streaks in the middle of light. What did the dark signify? Life, death or did it have no meaning. Missandei wondered what those points of light may be. Gods or celestial beings cavorting in some far off heaven?

Missandei relaxed for another hour as the sky turned midnight black. She looked out across the grassy plains at the many tents and fires for heat. Some meals were prepared at those fires but the established camps did most of the cooking of the main meals to make sure the troops received wholesome nutritious meals to maintain their body’s strength and mass as the march to the North was continued. Dany was a strong believer that an Army traveled on its stomach and feet. She made sure that her troops were well fed and well shod.

They still had a long way to go to reach their end goal of the Wall.

Missandei looked out into the darkness and pushed her tongue into the side of her teeth and clicked several times. Shadowclaw came bounding in from darkness and rubbed against her calves and knees purring loudly looking up at her with hopeful eyes.

Missandei reached down and scratched her Caracal behind the ears as she rubbed her cheeks into her Mistress showing her pleasure and marking her master as hers and only hers. The cat looked around making sure no others were moving in on her territory. The cat sat down and looked up at Missandei with expectant eyes. Missandei laughed as she always did. She grabbed the small bowel filled with choice cuts of pork chop and loin back.

The cat wolfed down the succulent cubes of pork greedily until the bowl was empty and the cat licked its mouth and teeth and then brought up a paw to wet with its raspy tongue. Shadowclaw then rubbed and stroked her face cleaning it of traces of meat and blood all the time purring in contented gluttony. Seeing her cat so happy always made the scribe’s heart beat in contentment. Shadowclaw was so loving and loyal.

Missandei scratched her companion’s ears and the scruff on her neck. The interpreter idly let her thoughts drift to how she could be rubbing another pussy. One she would make purr even louder.

She felt her face blush and was again thankful for her dark complexion that hid her naughty thoughts. She was getting flustered about her dream lover. It was time to go to her wagon and clean up the mess she had made of the sheets of parchment that tormented her.

The thought of again toiling away in frustration did not appeal to the little scribe. Suddenly her previous thought came back to Missandei. She did have a kitty she could pet and make purr. Plus, she hoped it would achieve something else. Maybe she could increase the ante as she had learned in poker. Missandei got up and said her goodnights to the assembled Lords and to her Queen and in name only royal hostage.

Missandei made her way to her wagon and climbed up the steps and opened the door to what she smirked was her own little fiefdom. It paid to be the Queen’s most trusted advisor and confident the little teenager from Naath thought. Her wagon was twenty feet long and five and half feet wide. She opened the door to her wagon and entered. The stewards had lit the oil lamps on the hooks of the arching ribs that provided the frame for the wooden slates that made the body of the wagon. The wood caulked and treated with resins to keep the rain out.

Inside on the wall at the front of the wagon was a five foot wide bed that spanned the width of the wagon. It paid to be short sometimes Missandei chuckled to herself. She could sleep lengthwise on the bed. Her four foot eleven inch frame was small enough to comfortably sleep without having to twist to compress her body. Even her loose curls had enough room with not too much compression of her hair.

On the left wall was a desk that was three feet wide. It was here that she worked. She had dresser drawers built into the bed underneath her mattress. The wagon wide enough to let her pass the constructions with a small walk way between them and the other outside wall.

There was two four legged braziers that rose up to four feet of height that had a large iron bowl in the circular support rings. These iron bowls had been filled with long burning coal to give the room warmth. The four oil lamps on hooks on the arc supports had the wicks half out and a soft warm glow filled the room.

The Dothraki had made a small bed for her Caracal that she petted it for Shadowclaw to get in. Her cat turned her nose up at it and jumped up onto her bed and watched her defiantly. Each night Missandei tried to get her caracal to sleep on the pallet but she refused. Missandei had spoiled her rotten. Her cat would normally settle into the inside corner of her master’s bed in a tight ball to go to sleep. Now she sat on the end of the bed and cleaned herself with her rasping tongue.

The stewards had picked up the fourteen sheets of parchment and placed them on the desk. She had enough of those darned sheets for the day and now night. She quickly undid the hooks and clamps to her dress and let it drop to the floor. Her personal female stewards would bring her dress freshly pressed in the morning when they would knock on her door politely a half hour after dawn. Missandei would eye them as their charms spilled out low cut bodices and tight asses jutted out showing off those charms. She would smile and thank them as they hemmed and hawed asking if she needed any help. She could ask them to do anything. Anything at all and they would be happy to help her. She would send them off politely if frustrated. She had to be strong for her mysterious green eyed lover.

She wondered why sometimes but she knew somehow that this love was something precious. Missandei would then dress and join the Queen and Arya for a light breakfast.

She picked up her dress off the floor and folded it neatly over the back of her chair before the desk. She shivered in want and need. Shadowclaw knew that look and quickly jumped off the bed and onto the small pallet bed prepared by the Dothraki until the rising storm had passed. She eyed her master dubiously. The caracal was ready to go to sleep!

Missandei stretched out on the bed and her fingers began to work their special magic on her body. Soon she was panting and moaning as her body filmed with sweat and her fingers worked her swollen muff and rubbed and rolled her labia lips and jacked into and over her clit. Her fingers soaked in the flowing effluent out her excited throbbing quim. A hand moved up with wet cum slicked fingers to roll and roughly massage her breast and fingers moving up to pinch and jerk on engorged rubbery teats.

Soon the little interpreter was screaming as her body flipped and jackknifed hard. Missandei’s hips jacked up high and hard off the mattress again and again. Her hips throwing her gushing cunt up into the air as the fingers of her left hand blurred over her shrieking clit. Her jerking fingers over her clit and labia lips had cum droplets arching up and the droplets splattering all over her belly, cunt and inner thighs as they clenched and spasmed. She worked her pussy wringing every ounce of pleasure she could from her twat.

Again and again Missandei worked her swollen cunt jerking herself off to womb rending orgasms that had her screaming and flipping wildly. Her pussy sounded so sodden and slurpy wet as she jilled off four more times. Her voice was hoarse rough from all her screams of shocking almost excoriating ecstasy.

The last orgasm totally destroyed her little brown body. It went multiple as one hand with forked fingers squeezed in on her clitoral hood and squirted her shiny nubbin up out its sheath so her left hand cum soaked fingers could buzz her exploding clit. Her body had convulsed so hard her eyes rolled back into her skull and short jerked violently. She imaged her lover sucking her off with wild abandon and pure love. Her heels and elbows hammered the bed out of control as her screams echoed in her small oasis. The storm of her orgasms slowly left leaving her entire body soaked in cum and sweat. Missandei lay sprawled out on her bed her pussy purring and sore with that sweet worn out feeling of being well fucked.

She took a deep breath and moaned hard. Her musk was so thick and overpowering in her room. She had left a special present for her dream lover. She pulled up the sheet and the furs over her drenched in sweat and cum body. Missandei wiggled into her cocoon of furs getting comfortable. She hoped her intuition was correct. She was quickly falling asleep. She had a smile on her face.

The attendants knew that Missandei liked a warm room and the braziers had been filled with coke so as to burn hot and long making her room warm and toasty to the Naathi. She left the furs she had pulled up her body to just below her breasts. Her full bosom still rolling drops of sweat down their slopes of her fully exposed tits. She wanted her breast all sweaty and on full display.

She felt Shadowclaw jump up on the foot bed and knead it as she circled around preparing her nest. Soon the cat was curled up on the bed sleeping. Missandei quickly following her cat into the arms of the sleep goddess, Lusraw, with a soft smile on her face.

She was so spent and her body was thrumming with that feeling that only came to a woman when her cunt was simply worn out and oh so happy. Comfortable and spent Missandei quickly fell asleep. She was dreaming of burying her face in her faceless woman’s pussy happily munching away. Her books told her all she needed to know on how to give pleasure. Her body was a virgin but her mind was prepared to give and take pleasure.

Missandei knew she had only been asleep for a few short minutes. Then her dream lover was there. Somehow the small scribe could feel her presence even though she was asleep. She felt her woman kneel beside the bed and spend a long moment looking at her. She could feel her lover breathing deep and moaning. She smelt her musk and was being turned on! She smirked in her sleep. Yessss!

Then small delicate fingers reached out and caressed her face with a feathery touch and run through her hair as she heard her woman’s breathing getting ragged. Then the fingers were caressing her face sensually and tracing down her chest and nearing her breast as her lover began to moan louder. Yessssssss! Her plan was working. Her scent had shocked and overwhelmed her lover and her sweaty body was enrapturing her woman. She was going to finally see and make love to her woman! She was so excited to finally see her. Missandei shook her mind and started to wake.

She suddenly felt her woman back away. Wha … NO! The scribe’s mind shrieked feeling her sweet love pull back. Missandei then felt her woman’s finger touch her forehead and she fell into deep slumber.

She awoke several hours later her internal clock told her. She nearly cried out in frustration. Her lover had fled! Missandei cried out and sat up to wail her frustration. She stopped. Shadowclaw woke up too and meowed her displeasure at being woken up suddenly. Something brushed against Missandei’s face as she woke up from her deep slumber. Missandei opened her eyes. The room was lit with a medium light from the braziers still burning brightly along with the oil lamps. The room was very warm.

She realized that her lover had left the room warm for her. The furs dropped down her body covered in dried sweat and cum. She loved feeling slutty but she forget all about that when she finally understood what she was seeing. In the room the pages of the manuscripts were floating in the air. The pages floating and wafting around slowly. They looked like snowflakes drifting on unseen air currents. Her draft compass was whirling around in a circle with the compass needle in one place but the device itself was pivoting at all angles.

The compass first circling low and then high. She had folded the compass closed but it had been separated. Her eyes widen. Her dream lover had separated it. A hot rush ran through her. Missandei’s body filled with bright sudden hope. Then she saw it. It was page seven. The other pages were softly floating and bobbing in the air. This page was not doing that. The other pages fluttered slightly as they floated. Page seven was rotating on two corner in a quick spinning motion. The two edges that were the axis pivots were softly glowing green. This page was rigid as it spun around and around at a quick pace.

Oh sweet gods. The message was clear. The compass had been set to the proper distance apart. That was the size of the necessary circle. She could now make the square at the proper size. She now knew the sheet that had the cipher key in it. She got up from her bed and naked walked over to the spinning sheet. She looked at it reverently. Her lover had come to her rescue. She gave a silent thank you to her nameless lover. She loved her—Missandei. She just knew it.

The page gradually slowed its spinning. She reached up with a shaky hand and touched the page as it spun. It suddenly stopped and it fluttered to the desk right side up. She saw a green glow on the page slightly off to the left of center. She looked down and saw the words Twin Towers glowing green. They suddenly flared and the green glow was gone.

Missandei immediately missed that bright green glow. The scribe from Naath bent down to look at the manuscript page. She wondered what was so special about this “Twin Towers”. These words were liberally spread throughout the document. She looked again at the document. She saw the smallest of ink blots between the two words exactly in the center of Twin Towers. Her breathing accelerated. She put the point of the compass needle on the center of the blot. She spun her compass.

Missandei squealed in wild happiness. She had a regular lead pencil in the device. The line that was drawn was bright green not black.

“Yes yes yes yes!” Missandei shouted.

She got her square and pieces of string. Soon she had her square drawn out and she looked carefully at the letters and looked at the cryptic sentence working the possible number combinations.

Missandei worked feverishly. The sun was beginning to lighten the Eastern sky when she had finished breaking the code and deciphered the message hidden within the document.

“Oh. My. Gods!” Missandei almost ran out of her wagon nude. She quickly picked up her wrinkled dress off the back of the chair and put it on enough to cover her charms and ran out the wagon with the manuscript in her hand.
“Dany!”

Daenerys

The Queen was standing beside Drogon and rubbing his special spot on his lower left jaw. The mighty black dragon rumbled and pushed into the fingers that rubbed back and forth giving him tingly pleasure. The dragon pressing into the fingers to get them rubbing harder as the Queen absent mindedly rubbed his “itch” spot.

Daenerys was looking out into the practice field that had been setup. They were at the next “waypoint” that gave the men and horses time to recuperate from the long march north. They had passed over the Green Fork on the Jaehaery Bridge erected in the time of King Viserys I. They were on the King’s Road one week up now past the border of the Riverlands as they moved deeper into the lands of House Tully.

She was waiting for Barristan’s return atop Viserion from his trip back to King’s Landing to converse with Tyrion, Varys and Olenna. She could feel that her son was still fifteen minutes out.

Daenerys remembered her first sparring sessions with Renly and Stannis. She had fought them earlier and had held her own. Both men were accomplished fighters and had their brother’s size though neither were quite as tall or broad of shoulder. She knew that singly she could defeat either of them but together they should prove a true challenge that had Daenerys unsure of the outcome. They all wore chainmail to allow for full contact sword play. Daenerys had used her speed and quickness to her advantage. She would feint and pivot to their sides and attack and she constantly used one or the other of the brothers as a shield from the other.

They had her constantly on the defense but she held her own and still landed hard blows on their legs and arms while they landed none. Daenerys still chuckled now that she had a chance to calm down how Stannis kept saying it was unknightly for him and his brother to fight a woman. Especially, with two men against a ‘damsel’. That last had steamed her royally. The man tried to not be a bigot but sometimes he simply could not stop himself. It did not matter that the Queen was the one doing the kicking of ass!

It had been Renly that good naturedly cajoled his older brother to partake in the training.

“Come on brother—consider it a royal edict. Who knows you might actually show me something. I doubt it but you might. Or is Oberyn right about your martial prowess?”

Stannis had been a wild man at first as he attacked savagely. Daenerys knew his manly honor had been pricked by his brother. The Queen’s quick defense and quick counterattack had tempered his mad rushes. Feeling her sword slash over his legs and arms repeatedly started to temper Stannis’s thoughts of it being unseemly to attack a woman. Especially when Daenerys would verbally jab him “Did liddle ole me just hit you big ole buff man … hummmmmm?”

“Oh man brother. Our Queen is dissing your ass man!”

Stannis’s teeth grounding had been sweet music to Daenerys ears.

Now Daenerys was watching her Arya fight the same brothers. She noticed that Stannis had no problem fighting her woman. Having one woman get the better of him on the practice had started to enlighten the ‘grinder of teeth’ as Dany many times thought of the elder brother. She watched Arya deflect another blow from Stannis and land a sever wounding slice on his ribs if for real. Daenerys had decided to stop pretending that was not her endgame stratagem. Watching the wolf girl’s prowess made Dany hot. Seeing Arya show the martial prowess she had always dreamed of in her Queen had Dany in a near swoon. She wanted Arya and would do all in her power to woo her into loving her.

After the war was fought and won.

Around Daenerys, Stannis walked as if he had a rod up his ass like his brother was always saying and he ground his teeth constantly. She was sure a lot of the problem was the succession question. She knew Renly thought he would make a great king but he easily acquiesced that she had taken the throne and moved on. She sensed that Stannis in his honor would accept it and never rise in sedition but it did not mean he would not be constipated over the whole situation.

The man was also practical. She had arrived with a whole army and navy already at her back and disposal. She had then united Westeros behind her rule. He was simply outclassed. The Crownlands and Riverlands were predisposed to give their loyalty anyways to House Targaryen by tradition and history.

Stannis could never rouse the force to make a legitimate claim and the man’s sense of honor would never allow him to even contemplate a nefarious manner of taking the Iron Throne. It was simply beyond the man. That was a very high mark for the man. He was honorable like Eddard Stark he just did not have the ‘common’ touch. Nor was he imaginative enough to ever play the Game of Thrones.

But with Arya, Stannis was subtly different. They were fighting in the same two vs. one dance. Where she had been at best neutral fighting them often on the defense Arya was mostly on the attack. She had completely mastered the use of two swords when she could. With the truly supreme gifted broadsword master like Barristan and Brienne she reverted back to one hand. She would catch the sword with her needle and then blunt the thrust and slow and then bring her other sword down and jam the blade unsettling the attacker. She would then ride both blades up the other blade.

One was trained to handle one blade but not two! That split second of which blade to deflect had led to their defeat several times now. Arya would lure attackers in as they focused on attacking her broadsword and Arya who had become adept at thrusting her bastard Rapier into joint points of the armor or the nasty habit of jamming her needle into the top of your foot and if real piercing it and nailing it to the ground. Daenerys and Syrio had both more than once hopped around on one foot cursing Arya with colorful language that made the innocent in such language blush.

Now Arya used another little tactic or “dirty trick” she had developed. She sidestepped a thrust by Stannis (she had just tripped up Renly and he had stumbled and was recovering his balance) and used Needle to keep Stannis’s blade out from his body. As she passed by him she landed her shoulder into his back and ribs and shoved hard. He stumbled forward which allowed Arya to get separation between their bodies. Arya now threw Needle forward with a twist of her wrist. The point slammed between Stannis’s shoulders. The throw had been very restrained but with full force the point of the blade would have penetrated his chainmail and sunk deep into his body.

Stannis stood their sputtering.

“She got you Bro’” his brother gleefully shouted out.

“That’s cheating! Who said she could even use two swords at the same time! That … that … that is unfair!”

“Pphhhlllaaattttt!” was Arya’s response. “I’m the winner!” Daenerys watched Arya start to do a jerky jig in celebration. Dany arched her eyebrow again at the sight. Arya was getting a little cocky with her increasing skills. It made her cute. She was not obnoxious with it but she definitely celebrated her victories. The Queen knew she could say nothing with her pouting when she lost and preening when she won.

What the Valyrian found disconcerting was how Arya could be sheer poetry on the practice field and she knew it would translate on the battlefield, but how that did not seem to translate to the dance floor. What the Queen found horrifying was how terribly Arya danced. It was stiff and uncoordinated. She was cute jutting out her ass but that did not excuse her horrible rhythm.

Stannis glared at the horrible dance his mouth hanging open in shock. Daenerys knew the man was thinking how in the hell could this no dancing fool just defeat him on the practice field. Stannis then came stomping over to Daenerys. “Did you see that?! Did you see what you royal hostage just did? That was totally un honorable!”

From the practice field “Stop you whining Uncle Stannis! I won you lost … Yes yes yes!— whoooaaaa!” Arya was crowing and jerking her swords up into the air when Renly came roaring in attacking her and Arya had to get back in her combat stance.

“Stannis stop your bleating and get back out here brother! We’ve got a damsel to cut down to size!” Renly shouted.

Stannis grimaced and ground his teeth “I hold you responsible for this ignominy Daenerys Targaryen!” he shouted and ran back to the battle “Have at you!” he roared as Arya sidestepped his mad bull rush laughing gaily. Daenerys saw that Stannis was moving lighter. The old coot was enjoying it but would never admit it. To their credit they were adjusting to Arya’s skills and speed and were receiving less hits on their limbs and now only occasional strikes to torsos or helms.

Viserion and Barristan were only five minutes out now. They would be visible soon as they were flying fairly close to the ground so they were not visible yet.

The Queen contemplated the movement of her troops north. Her camps now were reaching up further into the North. In the near future she would have to decide if she would press on with the creations of her camps forward of the main march of her forces. Her vanguard were now approaching Moat Cailin. Her forces were still totally left alone. They were definitely being observed from afar but the forces always retreated further north as her forces pressed on.

Her beachheads were now filling up with the Houses of the South that were moving forward to the King’s Road or massing the in the gifts. She needed to make a decision soon on how to fully deploy her forces. All but Oberyn were convinced that they were heading to Winterfell to fight Eddard or lay siege if necessary to put the usurper in his place. She could afford to continue her march north as it was for a while longer. She did not want to go too far and antagonize the populace but she had to plan for the contingency that she had misread the man. She knew she hadn’t but as a prudent commander she must not over reach before she had met the man or been given a portent that would unite all in common cause.

Also, Dany knew that the neck would be a natural place to attack if they wanted to fight in a place that was constricted. Her dragons would be able to attack the forces in the open so she doubted that would be a place of battle but it was still a possibility if Eddard Stark did indeed have treachery in his heart.

The other thing that weighed heavily on the Queen’s mind was the information that Eddard and Edmure had two vipers close to their bosom. She had been shocked at the news of treachery. It seemed that even the most honorable of men could still have a snake amongst them. The House of Bolton in the North and the House of Frey in the Riverlands planned on turning on Eddard and falling on his ranks from the rear when the battle at the Wall began. It was left unsaid as to whom these two traitorous houses were aligning with. She knew who they would have aligned with. It would have made her life so much easier to have to not worry on this.

She still had no proof the traitorous houses were aligning with the Ice King beyond what Missandei had deciphered. She had been sure that she had already killed that vile loathsome being. It had taken her some time to accept that she not finished off the Ice King. She still found it hard to believe he and its vile spawn on his back could have survived the savagery of her and her dragons attack. The Queen also found it hard to believe that anyone would align their fortunes to that loathsome thing. She had seen and she believed in what she and Eddard must fight.

Daenerys knew that the Lords of the South would explain away the threat. She knew what they would say to her. She was imagining things. She had only fought some supreme fighter of the Free Folk. They had not been there to see this man whose body was like a pale glacier and the vile loathsome thing on his neck. She could understand their thoughts. She would not really have believed in the Ice King if she had not fought him before the Tree of Life. If she had not fought his vile Ice children that she, Barristan and her dragons had killed by the score.

Daenerys had never considered until Missandei had run to her with her normally immaculate self all disheveled that she would have to deal with treachery in her own forces. What her scribe had to tell her Queen had her body immediately shaking with ire. She had been enraged and burned with anger at what her intrepid scribe had deciphered. She wanted to take these men and garrotes them. She had never researched to heavily the Houses of the North since her focus had been on subduing the Houses of the South which were much more a direct threat when she had first come to Westeros. She had seen the House standard of House Bolton and Barristan had not had anything good to say of the man which he normally did. Barristan told his Queen of the rumors. She had disliked Roose Bolton even then and could not put a finger on it. Now she knew why. He was a traitor! He and House Frey would wait for the battle to start and then fall on Eddard’s forces from the rear.

Daenerys had gone deathly quiet hearing what Missandei had deciphered. She would flay his skin off his body herself! It would be a fitting punishment. To make the man suffer the same torture he seemed so willing to give. If he survived the battlefield that would be his fate. She would again tap the woman who had devastated the slave trade. She controlled that darker aspect of herself now but she would let it slip enough to dispense this justice that was so richly deserved.

Daenerys called her small military Clatch as she thought of it to her in her command tent. In her tent she had sat with Barristan, Syrio, Oberyn, Missandei and Arya her love. Daenerys liked the sound of that. She liked the sound of wife even better. She got into her meeting. Unfortunately, it could not provide much insight to the two traitorous Houses. She needed more insight.

Syrio and Missandei were naturally out of the equation for intelligence on the two Houses. Barristan had been a knight in the South and on the King’s Guard. The matters of politics and House dynamics in the North had not interested him. He had already told the Queen what little he knew of Roose Bolton. Barristan could only add that Walder Frey who called himself the Lord of the Crossing was a man obsessed with moving his Houses’ station up. Barristan related that Walder Frey was always trying to marry his children, mainly women, off to higher ranked houses to put his lineage in line closer to the Major Houses in Westeros. It was almost an obsession for the old man.

Barristan paused and then with great charity said the man was a “shriveled up old prune”. Daenerys had chuckled inside at that. For Barristan this was the equivalent of Barristan throwing a cursing fit. Barristan related that Walder Frey was vile and queer in his perceived slights to a House that was not worth much in Barristan’s estimation. Only their castle being located in such a strategic location gave the family any importance. Barristan was still shocked that the man could even conceive of such an act. Barristan did not think Walder had the “intestinal fortitude for it.”

“I think you mean balls. He’s a jackoff. The man can barely even spurt anymore. What would you call that anyways Barristan?” Oberyn chirped.

“Yes. Well. Though this seems to be ahhhh ... uummmm ... some what crude ... I mean ... uuhhh”

“Spunk, jizm, seed, splogy, sperm, cock cream, jerk sauce” Oberyn supplied more possible words trying to be helpful to the knight.

Daenerys looked at her old precious friend. Barristan had gone beet red. Her longtime friend was a prude. She then looked around the table and saw that Arya was also turning red in the face also. Daenerys sighed. She had wanted to see just how long Oberyn could keep going.

“Ejaculate, snail snot, onions, shaft of iron, pecker spit, …”

“Okay Oberyn. I think we get the message.

“But I got so many more!” Oberyn whined. “I am only trying to help” he smirked.

Daenerys cocked an elegant white eyebrow at the man. Oberyn gave a dramatic sigh as he acted aggrieved and smirked.

Oberyn now being serious said had nothing he could add. In Dorne he knew nothing of House Frey and only that Roose Bolton and his bastard son were literally, well, bastards.

The Queen looked to her ‘royal hostage’. She was of the North. Arya could only add that the Roose Bolton creeped her out with his pale body and raspy body. She had never really met him avoiding matters of state that her father attended to. Arya did know the man used leeches to do bloodletting to fight disease and illness though he was so drained looking she wondered if the cure was worse than the malady. She told Daenerys that she sensed her father disliked the man intensely. Arya had heard her father say that Roose was a good leader for the interests of his House. His father would avoid war if he could and Roose never gave her father the justifiable reason to attack.

Daenerys thought those interests had diverged away from the Warden of the North’s interest indeed. Daenerys was willing to crush evil for its own sake. She had learned how evil could hide in plain sight seeming to be just and fair. When in reality they merely waited for the moment to strike. Most preferably from behind. Daenerys would rather strike first and annihilate that evil. She had not waited for the Slave cities to attack her from behind. She had met them head on and shattered them. She would do the same to Roose Bolton if she needed.

Dany introspective thoughts were interrupted by Arya. “You will tell my father won’t you Dany?”

Daenerys was slightly offended that Arya could even conceive of the question but calmed herself. Arya was not a player in the Game of Thrones and in many ways an innocent. “I will most definitely tell your father immediately upon our meeting. I hate sedition and together we will crush these loathsome houses.”

“Now we’re talking!” Oberyn slammed his fist on the table. “Please let it be my spear that guts and spits these craven dogs!”

“We shall see Oberyn. It may be my sword (the man pouted) or Eddard’s that dispenses justice. We shall see.”
“Aahhhhh Dany!” Oberyn whined.

The Queen considered what to do. The persons with her did not know much of these houses. This did not surprise the Queen. Syrio and Barristan were military men. Not spies. Syrio had some of those of duties back in Braavos but that was a different life. Here in Westeros he had different duties. The Queen had others to do those duties. Unfortunately, under normal circumstances they did not have much infrastructure in those houses. By infrastructure the Queen meant spies.

The reports that the Queen had read on the houses had not been illuminating. She had not been looking for sedition so had not worried over the paucity of information. They were not main players and thus little was known on those houses or other lesser houses. They did not tend to play the Game of Thrones and thus were not given much thought by the Iron Throne.

Looking back the reports were less than satisfying. Varys and Olenna’s spies had not been particularly active in those houses focusing more on House Stark, Tully and the Vale with the current situation. Also, House Frey was considered to be an inconsequential House. Walder Frey was held in high contempt and little import by all the spy services in Westeros. He was vain and a little man was the description all the intelligence came too. Not only figuratively but literally. “He really is a prune” Barristan reported earnestly looking over the information they did have on the man. The new insights minimal.

The spy services had not heard anything of sedition but without the focus of the spies on those houses then it was conceivable that such a conspiracy could be planned and not reach them. The problem now was that it would take weeks to contact their potential moths, spiders and sparrows. The spies would first have to insinuate themselves into the halls and meetings room. That took time to do so unnoticed or to build up accomplishes through payments of money, influence or the old standby: sex. Only then could they begin to start to gather data and make correlations. Then the data would have to be sent back to King’s Landing and then up to the Queen.

All of this would take time that was not available.

Also, most of the main conspirators were in the field with Eddard now. Their nefarious plans had already taken root and bloomed. The Queen and her leaders would be meeting with Eddard before the main battle and they would relay word at that time. Daenerys planned on meeting Eddard at Winterfell or sooner if possible. There would be time to relay word and plan for the curs. They would be led to reveal their true natures. Then she would attack. She would deal with the old man Walder Frey after the battle. They knew that Walder was involved but he of course would be keeping himself quiet, safe and sound in the Twin Towers. The man was far too old to take to the field of battle.

That did not matter to the Queen. Daenerys would not let Walder Frey escape justice.

What Oleanna and Tyrion had been able to provide was background information on the two heads of those Houses. They could not tell of plans but of their vile natures that showed them capable of such nefarious deeds. They were vile and scum. The only thing that Walder could do well it seemed was marry poor helpless women. Daenerys shivered for the women. She was gay but someone like Eddard, Oberyn or even the Baratheon brothers were not hideous to behold. Gods what did those women think having to sleep with that vile loathsome slug? Then having to crap out that leech (oops wrong house) that worms offspring. She shook her head.

How the hell was that fossil able to get that many women heavy with child? Over and over? She had gotten a headache trying to follow the family tree of that House. The mere thought of Walder Frey forcing himself on those women made Daenerys’ blood to boil. She knew those women had no choice! Walder Frey made Robert Baratheon look like a saint. At least those women had chosen freely to sleep with the Baratheon. House Frey was totally unremarkable. They had no renown on the battlefield or in court. Roose may use leeches but Walder Frey looked like a leech!

The Queen turned her thoughts to the other traitorous House. House Bolton was led by Roose Bolton who did indeed use leeches heavily. Daenerys wondered how well the leeches would do their medicinal work if she stuffed them up Bolton’s ass and down his throat. She learned of his keeping alive the tradition of First Right and bedding virgin wives. Yes indeed those leeches would be put in deep into his orifices. Could you stuff a leech down a penis?

Daenerys had assumed that the house sigil of the flayed man had been figurative until Barristan had enlightened his Queen that the whispers said it was still so. She had originally thought that at most the standard was a representation of a practice long since dispensed with. She had shockingly been told that he actively performed such deeds even now even though he denied it. All knew he was guilty no matter his prostrations. Varys had sparrows that chirped that it was so but it was always the proverbial “I heard it from a friend of a friend”. Never a direct I was there. No one had proof but all knew.

Dany thought this wise of the man. He would do the act in front of his closest and most trusted of confidents. This kept the man safe from the Warden of the North. A man whose honor required that absolute proof be found before he waged war on a house underneath his own banner.

Daenerys Targaryen did not require such proof. The circumstantial proof was damning. In the courts of the Free Cities such proof led to convictions. It was so here in the court in the Queen’s mind. He was guilty and he would be brought down and his house with him if the cancer was too far spread.

The cancer seemed to have spread to his ‘bastard’ son. The fruit had indeed not fallen far from the tree it would seem. Roose’s bastard son had his own rumors of villainy. It was strongly rumored he hunted down women that he tortured and then killed.

Eddard had investigated several times but he could find no evidence and no one would testify against the son of Roose Bolton. Daenerys admired Eddard Stark immensely but sometimes he was too fair and just. She knew he had intuition on equal with hers having experienced it but he sought to give the ultimate fair judgement.

Daenerys would have long ago disposed the former and killed the later. Justice would be meted out soon. Roose Bolton had had provided all the evidence she needed. For the Queen circumstantial evidence was enough. She would swoop in with her dragons and a mighty force and shock the man’s supporters into silence. Then the oppressed would come to her. When she showed her justice to their oppressors they would tell her the truth. She had seen it time and again as she crossed Essos. When the foot of oppression was lifted from the neck of the oppressed they soon felt the confidence to face their oppressors.

With what she had planned on the battlefield it would not matter anyways. The Houses would be decimated.

In an hour the meeting was over. She had delayed her mission to check once more on her convoys moving North.

“You ready to go Arya?”

The young Stark looked at her with a bright sparkle in her eyes. “Yessss!” The girl instinctively knew what her Queen was asking.
One could only practice so much.

Thirty minutes later Arya and Nymeria were ready to leave. The direwolf had already jumped up on Drogon’s mighty back and was sprawled out asleep with her tongue lulled out. The wolf loved the heated bed of the dragon’s scales. Her dragon was looking back at the asleep wolf with his offended eyes. The dragon snorted and brought its neck back down. Dany noted her dragons always acted aggrieved by the antics of the Direwolves but they never complained or prevented the wolves from annoying them.

The High Lords were clustered around near her dragon.

“For gods sake man—do you ever shut up?!” Stannis was snarling at Oberyn.

“Why should I? I’m always right!” The Red Viper looked around most pleased with himself.

“You are insufferable.”

“But oh so loveable. Come visit me tonight and I will show you. I guarantee you I am a better fuck than your wife Selyse.”

“You are a fucking pig Oberyn. A fucking pig!”

“I noticed you did not argue about my assessment of your wife’s prowess in bed Stannis.”

The man went beet red. He looked around and stammered a moment. Then he recovered. “I repeat! You are a fucking pig!”

“That’s right. That I am. But I keep my tusk in my britches. Want to see?”

Stannis threw up his hands and stalked off muttering.

Daenerys saw Arya blushing again. She pinched her nose sighing. Did they ever stop? Deep down she found it amusing but she needed to toughen up Arya enough to enjoy the wit and banter. It was time to leave.

They bid their farewells to the High Lords and left the bickering men to their pastime.

Drogon rose up on his feet and started to run and flap his mighty black wings. In four, five strides his massive body lifted off the ground and rose up into the air his wings beating hard gaining speed. Nymeria had partially awoken with the jostling and woofed sleepily before putting her head back down on her heated mattress and going back to sleep and drooling.

The dragon spiraled up and then headed back down over the King’s Highway at three hundred feet. They flew at a fast clip but slow enough to keep Drogon fresh as his flight ate up the miles. Dany looked down and showed Arya the advancing columns moving up the King’s highway separated by three to four days of travel. This allowed the camps to prepare for the next wagon trains of troops and or supplies. The four trains they passed over heading deep into the Stormlands had been three supply and one troop of heavy cavalry. The supply wains were filled with food, clothing and various wares to replenish the camps and full of dragon glass tipped weapons. The cavalry train had their armor on the supply train ahead of it. There was no need to tire man and house wearing armor so far from the battlefield.

The wagons were being constructed at a furious in King’s Landing keeping the wagon wrights and their suppliers very happy. She would gift the wagons to the poorer farming families and merchants when the war was over. There would be a surfeit of wagons and other material needed for this war.
It would be unneeded after the war. Gifting it to the poor would help them live their lives and bind their loyalty all the tighter to their Queen.

The Queen asked her “royal hostage” if she could name the Houses by the standards they saw below them as they flew south by west. Arya leaned over slightly to look at the formations below her moving up on the King’s Road. Dany was impressed when Arya easily identified the Houses Coat of Arms as they passed over them. Arya’s lessons were showing great fruit. The girl learned all she set her mind too. Only the learning of Dothraki was still proving difficult with her language skills in that tongue still broken.

Arya studied the ground to her left. She spotted the standards of House Follard from the Crownlands. The standard was a Gyronny of twelve red and white; on a gold canton, a two-peaked fool’s cap of red and white. Arya told her Queen the House’s words “None so Wise”. Arya then spotted the banner of House Rambton a noble house from the Crownlands sworn to House Sunglass. They blazoned their arms with a white ram's head with golden horns on red.

The next standard they flew over was from the Stormlands. It was of House Herston. Their blazoned their arms with a yellow rooster's head with red comb, within a white escutcheon, on red. “Always defiant” the words of their House.

More standards they flew over and Arya knew them all. The Queen was so impressed and happy with Arya’s diligence on her studies. Again Arya showed she would make a worthy Queen. An equal to help her Queen rule and guide the continents of Westeros and western Essos.

Arya told Dany she loved anything military and had memorized them never knowing if she might meet them in combat as she led an army of the North in great battles. Arya then paused cutely and turned red in the face. “I mean that was me fantasying about crushing the South—I mean laying waste to King’s Landing no no I mean uh taking the throne—I I …”

Daenerys laughed hard “You are only digging your grave deeper” Dany laughing again “I understand … all warriors dream of great conquest … relax Arya. You had to fight somebody to win your battles. I totally understand.”

Daenerys did. She had actually fought in wars while her sweet wolf had only did murmur plays in her head about conquest and combat. The Queen had a leer come across her face about the conquests she planned launching on Arya’s beautiful body. She would take, devour and hold onto that precious body with all her wiles and skills. Gods Arya’s pussy was going to taste so good in her mouth. Daenerys could already hear her sweet wolf’s howls as her exploding cunt was jammed hard into her Queen’s hot sucking mouth. She would make Arya lose it and hump wildly up into her devouring mouth in her orgasms. Lots and lots of orgasms. Dany flew on with many such sweet thoughts.

Daenerys was very happy with how well her camps had performed for the wagon trains traveling up the King’s Highway. Every night her troops were well fed with hot food and could stretch out in the tent cities setup. This saved the time from not having to breakout the gear each night or strike the camp in the morning. Her stewards at each camp did that. She was paying the local populace and hired the poor and unskilled from the major cities of the South to man the camps and supplement the material quartermasters. The people were getting paid and learning skills they could take back to holdfasts or use to maybe procure employment or better employment. It was a win-win situation for all.

At Hayford Castle the Queen had Drogon turned due east and soon they were out over the sea and heading out to the shipping lanes that had been established off the east coast of Westeros to move troops North. Soon they were flying over a small convoy of ships laden with Dragon Glass bound for Seal Bay in the North. Two mighty swan ships were escorting the convoy. The tall ships resplendent with red and blue sails on the yardarms and bellowing in the wind.

The Queen had constant patrols running up and down the eastern coast of Westeros. The patrols designed to keep pirates away. She knew that many pirates were hidden in the Stepstones. More were hidden in coves along the desolate coves of Essos. Her patrols of mighty Swan ships and small flotillas of Yi Ti ships kept them in port or sailing off to the East.

She had a large blockade of Dorne ships at the foot of Dorne. This would block any incursions by the Iron born or if Tywin should lose his mind which he would not. The Tyrells were sailing in force up and down the west coast of Westeros teaching the Greatjoys caution.

Dany and Arya on Drogon flew out of Blackwater Bay and then past Dragonstone where she had three shifts furiously producing dragon glass tips for weapons and sailing them north when enough to fill three or four ships with padded crates to protect the precious weapons. With her conquered Free City navies and her alliances with the Summer Island People and the forces Yi Ti she had the naval might to fully protect and still blockade the North and especially the land above the Wall to choke off any supplies moving into the realm of the Ice King.

She had long ago choked off any smuggling into the North. She had learned that male children younger than five seemed to be the large part of the cargo. She knew deep in her heart what those children’s fates were. She had thrown huge resources in ships and marines in blocking off that trade. No ships had made it in over a year.

Daenerys flew Drogon further out into the Narrow Sea and angled north. Fifteen minutes later she saw the ninety ship convoy that had sailed around the foot of Dorne from Oldtown. It was filled with conscripts and military battalions from the reach. Troop ships and their own supply cogs ploughing forward in the four sea state. The eight foot waves had the heavily laden ships bows lifting and falling as they sliced thought the rolling swales.

Around the ships were war ships from the shipyards of the King’s Landing and the Reach with their sails blue and white and adorned with her pennant atop the tallest masts. Deanery smiled seeing that. The three headed dragon of House Targaryen. The dragons looked so fearsome fluttering in the strong breeze the fast sailing ships made.

This was her own fleet. Her Master of Ships Hugh Elicero from High Garden had done well. He had built her sixty-five Triremes that were so resplendent with all their sails bellowing and their oars pulled in and locked in their wells. The oarsmen would be used in dead sea states or in combat for maximum speed. She had wanted Arya to see this.

Dany pointed out to sea. Arya gasped. A mighty convoy of over four hundred troop and merchant ships were sailing in from Pentos, Myr and Tyrosh. Their multicolored sails with many different geometric shapes making the ships dazzling to see in the bright sunlight. The ships carried over twenty thousand troops and their gear that would hold the North most beachheads while the mercenary companies moved further inland to provide flanking protection for the forces of Westeros that would be moving to Castle Black.

Further to the east thirty sleek ships were sailing fast on the wind. Between the two columns were massive ships that raveled the swan ships in size if not elegance. These ten ships were massive merchant galleons filled with thousands of tons of rice, soybeans and various teas to feed the troops of her army. The ships rode low with their heavy load of supplies.

So many merchant ships with full wells and moving slow would normally be a tempting target. The Queen now had many such fleets sailing in all directions. A temptation she worked to suppress with her vast armadas of combat ships she had at her disposal.

Arya and Dany marveled at the ships from the Far East. These ships were of different designs that most Westeros and those from Essos saw in the lands of the Free Cities. These ships were more slender and had only two masts but were impossibly fast. Their prows and battering rams that partially rose out of the water in the rolling waves carved to look like dragons. The sails were single color but each forward sail was adorned with a dragon. Some winged, others with only legs and some with no legs or wings. The dragons had various poses of posed violence. This was the newest war fleet that had arrived from Yi-Ti to augment the convoy escort protection.

Dany told Arya over the sound of the air on Drogon’s back that she was most pleased with the loyalty of the Yi Ti. As far as she knew no one from Westeros had ever tried to make alliance with the warlike people. They had respected Dany’s military prowess and her research into their customs, art and general culture. She had even learned to speak their tonal language fairly well. Now she had nearly mastered it. This had the Emperors fawning to make alliances with her.

The trade would make both sides much richer with the new economy being established with the destruction of the old slave trade and the beginnings of a free trade associations being created. When the creation of new wealth was offered the young Queen found most were ready to listen. Greed greased the grids she had read and it was true.

As Daenerys circled over the converging fleets the Queen and her ‘royal hostage’ looked out over the sea at the coming together of so many ships from so many cultures. The various fleets each brought ascetics that made for a riot of basic ship types, sleek lines, color of sails and color of figureheads that made for riot of conflicting styles that made for a canvas that was beautiful to behold on the sparkling waters of the narrow sea on froth topped waves spraying foam and spangled colors into the air.

Drogon wheeled around the sky in a lazy eights pattern flying five hundred feet over the tossing waves of the sea. The strong sunlight glinting off his black scales like a malformed obsidian obelisk formed in the heart of an erupting volcano. His red highlight steaks adding to the effect. His occasional mighty roars reminding the gods that legends once more soared the air current.

The two women watched from on high as the various navies formed up into long rows of cargo ships that were side by side in rows of ten and up to four lines abreast. Then there was separation of maybe a thousand yards and another set of rows of ten were formed up. This was the convoy that the various military ships were to protect from attack.

The military ships wielded around to form up on all four sides of the convoy. The convoy flanked on all sides by various warships to provide protection. The mighty Swan ships of the Summer Islanders ranged ahead and far out to the flanks barely visible on the horizon. Their almost impossibly tall masts barely visible on the horizons.

Daenerys knew there were more ships over the horizon sweeping the seas clear of any blocking force. It not swept clear they would engage till the rest of the armada arrived to dispatch the enemy.

Ships from Essos and her freshly built ships from the Arbor and the shipyards of King’s Landing patrolled in a loose ring around the convoy. The ships from Yi Ti moved actively among the ranks of the convoy and moving about out from the flanks.

Daenerys knew that no force on the seas could fight against the forces she had aligned on the seas. Her forces would be going north and nothing would land in upper Westeros without her express consent.
Daenerys loved all the gay colors and designs on the sails. Missandei using trigonometry and had all the ships arriving on this spot had amazed the young Queen. She knew the power of advanced mathematics but to see it in action was awe inspiring. The sailors using only the stars and sextants and Missandei’s instructions using wind and current charts had timed this perfectly and the ship captains’ skill in following the scribe’s directions filled her with awe and wonder.

The ships were here because of her. This filled the heart of the Targaryen with pride. It was her will and ability that was making all this possible. Suddenly war horns were being blown throughout this mighty convoy of over eight hundred ships. Up and down the merchant and war ships the sounds of all notes, tenors and octaves of war horns were heard. Drogon roared in return and bellowed long tongues of flames as he circled the fleet.

Nymeria was howling in counterpoint to the war horns her head tilting back with her mighty howls. It was all so romantic. Daenerys wondered if she would make a good ship captain. She let her thoughts wonder. She imagined herself back in Braavos and learning of a slave underground and rushing to help. How would she work Arya in …. Hmmmm …. Yes! She would be a faceless man she worked into her service and they would sell two of her dragon eggs (sorry Viserion and Rhaegal) and buy a ship. She let her thoughts wonder as she dreamed of saving lives as a princess in exile where she had never become a mighty warrior queen. Of course she would seduce and wed Arya and have her leave the order of Black and White.

She hit upon a great idea. They would make her ancient homeland of Valyria her base!

She would call it Dany by the Docks!

She flew over the fleet for ten more minutes enjoying immensely the honor she was being shown. She played the make believe scenario in her mind’s eye. It had a nice quality to it. She would have to play it out some other day.

She banked Drogon to the west and headed back to King’s Landing. She sailed down to the East of the Mountains of Arryn to keep her altitude low enough for Arya to be comfortable in her leather pants and vest and fur coat she wore. Drogon’s warmth was enough to keep Arya warm enough at this attitude.

They came ashore over Wickenden and flew up over the banks of the Green River till it ran into the King’s highway and the Queen flew back up the King’s Highway. Arya snoozed leaning into her back her arms loosely linked around Daenerys waist. Nymeria was sitting up on her haunches looking around her tongue lulling. The wolf would tilt her head into the wind her tongue fluttering back in the strong wind. The wolf thoroughly enjoying her ride.

They arrived back at their camp three hours after sunset.

Missandei, Barristan, Oberyn and Syrio had waited for her to return before they ate. To her shock Stannis and Renly were waiting for her. She saw Stannis eyes light up when he saw Arya. Maybe the man had some hope after all. She and Arya were truly touched by the gesture.

They sat down at the table in her tent and ate their repast. Daenerys had been very satisfied by what she had witnessed. Her forces were so in tune with her wishes both on land and at sea. She and Eddard would conquer and kill this Ice King. They would be triumphant. This also portended well for the future. She had much work to do that she had put on hold to handle the problem of the Ice King. Soon he would be dead and Daenerys Targaryen could focus again on making a better world.

Thinking of meeting Eddard Stark sent a thrill though the young Queen. She had finally met her match in intelligence and cunning. Much to her consternation he had also proved adept at the Game of Thrones. She could live with that. She looked at Arya and how she was so well mannered, polite, and good natured. She had the common touch that made all who met her want to be her friend. Both royals and the low born wanted to be in her presence. Arya had told her how Eddard ate with the common folk in his hall and gladly shared stories and small family concerns with of even the lowest cook.

She so liked this man she had never met. She liked even better his daughter. She knew that Arya had been formed by this man. She was everything she could have dreamed of in a mate. She was sooo beautiful. She was that combination of fire and passion but leavened with reserve and innocence she thought she would never find.

She was in love with Arya and had decided that if Arya wanted her she would take Arya as her lover and her wife. She just had to get this damn war behind her so she could woe the girl and make her fall in love with her.

She wondered again what she would have to do get Eddard Stark to let her take his daughter’s hand in matrimony. This man had no use for gold or power. He was honor personified.

Her dander up, Daenerys decided that if he resisted her wishes she would challenge him to a duel on the tourney field. I will best him and take his daughter and make her my wife!

Daenerys then paused. Even Barristan feared Eddard Stark’s sword. I might lose! That was heinous!

Her brows crinkled in thought and consternation. She would figure something out. She always did.

Eddard

Eddard and his horse slowly walked down the small county lane that took one to Holdfast. The small village was located in patchy woodlands surrounded by farm fields. He had journeyed there to meet with Edmure Tully and Jon Arryn one last time before they moved up to the Wall to stay. Most of their forces had now traveled beyond Winterfell.

Edmure was still nervous with his leaving his lands so open to the Queen’s forces. Both Jon and Eddard understood his trepidation. Jon’s lands were protected by the massive mountain ranges that ranged from the borders of his land from the King’s Highway all the way to the sea. Only one main route gave access to the Vale of Arryn the heartland of his realm. That route could be easily defended from the high peaks that closed in close at many points on that route. Ambushes to kill the enemy and possible landslides to block the very route itself.

Tully and Arryn had left small token forces at their ancestral homelands to at least given token resistance to any attack or siege on their seats of power. The Queen’s forces with the aid of her three dragons would easily sweep them aside. The Riverlands, therefore, had no defense where the very land itself could help the Arryn to at least slow down the Queen.

Part of Eddard’s reasoning with his allies was no matter what they did with their forces the Queen with her overwhelming force that she could bring to bear with not only the forces of the Southern Houses but also the might of Essos and her alliances with the Summer Islanders and the lands of Yi-Ti that they would be defeated no matter what.

Jon had been the most willing to follow Eddard’s lead from the start. Of the two of Eddard’s allies he needed little convincing that the Ice King had returned. The North did not forget and neither did the leaders of the Arryn. Their memory was only hazy and was able to be sharpened back into focus. With Edmure it took Eddard a little longer to convince him of the need for mobilization of their forces and going to the Wall.

Edmure had argued that they should forget about the Queen and simply declare their intent and take care of the task themselves. They were sufficient. Eddard again saw the characteristic of rashness in the new leader of House Tully. Eddard supposed he had been once so rash. He had rushed South with Robert in his blind quest to pursue his sister. Even then though Eddard knew deep in his soul that Lyanna had gone with Rheagar willingly.

So many good men and innocents were killed for such a stupid thing.

Eddard and Jon had slowly convinced Edmure that this enemy they were to face was not human and implacable. He was mighty and had a mighty ally. They would need the entire might of Westeros to defeat him decisively and kill him before the long winter came. All the Maesters predicted this Winter would be long, frigid and deadly. Many would die and more would die if a protracted war was fought. The battle with the Ice King must be quick and decisive. They must entice him and the Queen to come to Castle Black and fight there.

Eddard could feel in his bones and the whispering of the Godswood that this was the Ice King’s desire too. He had been defeated by Azor Ahai there and the siren call would be too great to resist. The Ice King would feel the need deep in his icy bones to defeat his enemy at the place of his first crushing defeat. Jon had become Azor Ahai reborn and he was sure the Ice King knew it too. The temptation to defeat his hated enemy in the same spot he had been cast down would be too much to turn aside from for the Ice Wright.

Castle Black would be where the battle occurred. Eddard knew this with certainty.

Then Edmure had to be comforted with the length of time and the numbers of the Queen’s forces he would have in his lands. Eddard told the young man that this was part of being a leader. The willingness to take bold risks to achieve great victory. Edmure had told him that was all well and good but he was at most risk.

Eddard then told the man he was convinced that the Queen had no desire to attack and subdue her own kingdom. He reminded Edmure of the Queen’s restraint. She had taken over Westeros without one battle. She had not even fired an arrow. Edmure told his elders that was only because she had dragons that made everyone remember Aegon and his use of the dread beasts on the battle field.

Eddard still chuckled at Jon’s answer. “So.”

Edmure had looked at the elder strangely.

“She has them. Yes, indeed she has dragons. Anything else we say or think is conjecture. But think on this Edmure. Has she used her dragons against us? Has she used the vast armies and navies she amassed in Essos against us? Many, myself included I fear, would never have even given one thought to sending out her letters and then simply not attacking for months. In those months I would have been convinced possible enemies were gathering against me. If I had been her I would thought all the forces of Westeros were gathering to attack me.”

“I hate to say this. She is better than we. I am sure all three of us would have taken a much more violent tack in achieving our goals.”

Edmure had looked as shamed as Eddard had felt upon that realization. He knew he would have taken a much more violent path. It simply never would have crossed his mind to try such a peaceful tactic. To say such heart felt words to your foes. Wasn’t that showing weakness? He squirmed at his willingness still to shed blood. He saw at night in his dreams the death and carnage from the battles he had fought in a generation ago.

Edmure had reluctantly agreed then. Now months later he had seen that Eddard and Jon were correct. The Queens forces completely bypassed the major cities, holds and crofts and focused her forces on the King’s Road. The people who did at first meet her forces with extreme caution and trepidation quickly reported that the troops were well disciplined and many times friendly. Further contact only confirmed this and now with familiarity the forces of the Queen and the Riverlands mingled in peace and growing friendship.

The forces of the Queen always quick to hand out food stuffs, clothing and basic goods for day to day life in the local villages.

Edmure and his elders knew how hard it was to enforce such temperament in their forces. Men together in stressful situation which was the basis of warfare tended to let their more base instincts rise to the fore. Not only were the men of the Queen disciplined they gave away food and basic goods with a smile on their faces. True smiles that had won over the local populace. The Queen had wagons filled with goods that had been designated for the local populace. The Queen was literally bribing her way into the hearts of the people of the Riverlands.

Edmure had to admit what his scouts were telling him had slowly changed his thoughts on the woman. The Queen had bypassed the River Road only putting six mercenary companies at the Rolling Hills Gorge near Stone Hedge. It was a natural choke point. The men had gone into the hills and built fortifications that would allow them to close the road to traffic if the Queen so chose.
So far she had not chosen too. Regular commerce and local populace traffic was allowed to freely move about on the River Road and other local roads.

In fact the local populace had started to interact with the mercenary companies after their initial exposure to each other. Now the local populace sold the mercenaries fresh vegetable and meat stocks that the men and some women gladly ate instead of beans and tack. The companies were all well behaved. Many fare maids and young men were now freely plying the camps at night. Nature would take its course it would seem.

Edmure had asked his elder High House Lords why she processing this tact. Jon and Eddard had explained that the forces were a blocking force in case they proved to be the treacherous party.
Eddard had given the Queen the perfect excuse to come North with the message he had sent via his daughter when he offered her as a Royal Hostage. Eddard had told both men he believed in Daenerys words she had written in her initial overtures to Westeros. She was the force for good that the land had been waiting for her since Aegon had landed in Westeros.

“She is what Aegon should have been. She is what Rhaegar might have been. She is the emissary promised in A Song Of Ice And Fire” Eddard told his wife’s brother. “She will unite and lead Westeros and I now think Essos into a golden era of peace. How long it will last I do not know but I plan to take advantage of it and hope to see my children and grandchildren live in a time where the Houses and the City States in Essos do not fight silly, frivolous wars that accomplish only death and destruction. I grow tired of them.”

Edmure had looked at Eddard for a long time after that. “I agree” was his calm heart felt response.

So now Eddard meet with his equals one last time. “I want you to bring your forces up to the New Gift and make camp ten miles from the wall. Jon you will command the forces.”
“What?! This is your plan and you are the Warden of North.”

“Jon. I may be the Warden of the North but you are best military commander we have in the North. ALL the houses respect you. In case we need to change our plans I need your wily wiles in command. I cannot come North at this time.”

Edmure looked concerned “It’s Cat isn’t it?”

Eddard sighed “Yes. Her previous pregnancies were easy on her. She carried the babies to term never slacking her work or shirking any of her ‘duties’ as she put it. She was on her feet up the day of her delivery. Not so this time. She is weak and runs fevers and has bleed three times now. Maester Lewen has put her on strict bedrest. I thank the old gods hats Sansa’s fiancé is there to care for her. Margaery is a gods sent. I fear what would have happened had not Margaery Tyrell been in Winterfell to help care for my ailing wife. Margaery’s calming presence has kept Sansa and myself from fretting overly with Cat’s poor health.”

Edmure looked at Eddard “And you approve of this union between two women. Don’t you find it unnatural? What animals mate female to female in nature?”

Eddard chuckled “I am not some bull in the field raging after the next heifer in heat. I am not madden by the rut. I am not controlled by hormones like the wild animals. We are so much more than that Edmure. Love is such a rare and precious gift that I will not deny it to any of my children. I can say it now. The dye is cast. I sent Arya specifically to the Queen fully expecting her to have the Queen fall in love with her.”

Edmure cocked an eyebrow at that and looked at his Brother-in-Law for further edification.

“Arya has always been different. Filled with the wolf is what I used to cry in my frustration. She has always rejected the path that society deems for daughters of royal birth. She has always sought the way of the warrior. I tried to forbid it but I loved her too much to deny Arya her heart’s desire. That alone did not mean she was gay but as she grew older it was the Targaryen sisters she mooned over and not Aegon. Then Daenerys exploded out of the desert and Arya was enamored.”

“We all have heard the rumors of Queen’s true desires in a mate. Her weddings were political marriages. I should know. This was how I married your sister Edmure. You know this. I stepped in for my brother when he was killed by Daenerys father. My marriage to her and her to me was only the fulfilling of obligations.”

“Bran has disappeared but I am sure he went to the Tree of Life in the great North. Before he left he prophesized. He prophesized that Arya would win the Queen’s heart. ‘The wolf will lie with the dragon’. I trust the old gods.”

Jon spoke up. “My Myrcella whom I loved as the daughter I never had has not one but three wives in Dorne. I do not judge nor do I care who she weds and beds. She was allowed to marry for love.”

Edmure stiffened “My sister not good enough for you Jon.”

“I did not say that Edmure. Only that I do not love her. I would have preferred to have never married but I performed my duty when I was called upon. I preferred to live on my own. I have never felt the desires that other feel. In some ways I find this passion others feel to be a burden and even unseemly. Still, I performed my duty when called upon. I will not deny others the right to pursue their hearts.”

“Do you deny your nieces the right to be happy?”
“You know I don’t Jon. It is just … well different.”

Eddard slapped his brother-in-law on the back. “It took me a while to adjust too Edmure. But I have come to know Margaery and I think I know Daenerys even though I have never truly met her. My daughters could not have chosen better mates. I will give them my full support. I only prey you do the same when your time comes.”

“Does my sister agree with this? That does not sound like the Cat I remember. She was always about doing the duty for one’s house. Marrying off ones daughters to women is not following that tradition of performing your duty for your House.”

“Margaery has my wife wrapped around her little finger Edmure” Eddard chuckled. “You should see it. The sun sets and rises on Margaery Tyrell now with Cat. She tells all that will listen that Sansa has made the best choice in mate in all of Westeros. It makes Sansa blush and Margaery preen. Anyways, it is Willis and then Garlan who are in line for the House Highgarden circlet. Then Loras follows. There may be palace intrigue in Highgarden but it does not include Margaery.”

“Think of it Edmure. With the marriage of my daughters the House of Stark has powerful alliances with both Highgarden and the Stormlands and Crownlands that are aligned with the Queen. Did I say the Queen is who Arya will wed” Eddard added with a slight smirk. “I would say that would give my House great power to wield.”

“What will you do with that power Eddard?” Jon asked.

“Why nothing my old friend. I only want to be the Warden in the North as does Robb. I leave the intrigue and politics to others. I fear I would not last long in King’s Landing. I can play their games if I am here in the North. If I tried it in King’s Landing and those vipers I would probably find myself charged with treason with my strange ways of honor and rectitude.”

“How Daenerys Targaryen can rule and command and not lose herself I do not understand. She is a better ruler than me. Probably a better person.”

Eddard brought the meeting back to the main matter at hand. He told them that it seemed that the Ice King was taking his time marching south. They still had time. He hoped to link up with the Queen and be with her as the marched North to destiny.

The meeting soon broke up after that.

As Eddard moved back down the King’s Road to Winterfell he passed another small wagon train going up the road from White Harbor. It was filled with supplies and food that the Queen had allowed through her blockade. Eddard again marveled at how the Queen seemed to have planned for all facets of this campaign. The last three wagons were laden with full loads of arrows tipped with dragon glass. One wagon was filled with barrels of pitch and tar to make flaming arrows. They would make the enemy burn and melt. He smiled a grim smile. He would kill that bastard with his sword Evening Star.

At dusk on the next day he arrived back at his beloved castle and home. He went through the gate and let his squire take his horse to be groomed and feed. He looked around at the life settling in for the night. He looked up at the walls. He had guards but they were thinned out. He could not keep his full house guard here if had asked Edmure and Jon to strip their own homelands to meet his request.

He looked up. The sky was laden and a few flakes were beginning to fall. He was surprised that winter had not come. The white ravens had come months and months ago and yet it was not here.
Again he sensed this was the Ice King’s design.

Eddard was sure that both forces were aiming for a clear decisive battle to decide the matter instead of protracted battles up and down Westeros. The Ice King would know that after the first battle the forces of Westeros would learn of him and attack his weaknesses. Margaery was still getting letters from Olenna. The woman did not reveal any of the Queens plans (which made Eddard happy since it showed loyalty) but she did gossip that allowed useful nuggets to come to him as Olenna would know. The Queen was furiously making Dragon Glass weapons from the quarries of Dragonstone.

Olenna joked that they were using Stannis’s grinding teeth to sharpen the points. That made Eddard smile. Olenna did not say what was happening with the dragon glass weapons but he was sure they were on ships that were constantly landing on the beaches of the North. More must be traveling up King’s Road as she moved her forces cautiously north.

He was sure that wagons full of pitch and tar were moving north as well.

They would have the weapons necessary to defeat the enemy. He wondered what weapons the Ice King had prepared for them. He had experienced her dragons. Had he come up with a counterstroke?

Eddard shook his head. Only the future would tell.

Eddard headed to the living quarters to see his wife. He was still full of vigor and strength but he was tired now at the end of a full day. In his youth he never seemed to tire. He smirked. Age catches up with all of us in time. He had started to find a few grey hairs in his hair and beard. Cat called them highlights. He called them grey hairs. His wife was always trying to make him happy. The thought made him smile.

Only her treatment of Jon had marred their relationship and he was to blame for that. If Robert had ever discovered Jon’s true lineage he had wanted to take the full brunt of his fury. All others would have been innocent and only his head would have rolled.

He hoped to tell Cat the truth soon. She would be furious but now that Jon had showed his true lineage the reason for lies was over. Robert was in exile. The man never truly cared for any of his progeny. Only the one son of his longed for wife, Lyanna, would have proven a threat to his throne. One more failure of the man that Robert Baratheon had allowed himself to become. Eddard could now clearly see the many faults of his childhood friend.

Eddard went to the kitchen to get a quick ham and egg biscuit that the main cook always had hot for him. He grabbed it and thanked the woman profusely for her thoughtfulness. She blushed like she always did and assured him she loved taking care of her “Warden”. She had tried to say “King” but he nipped that in the bud.

He was leaving the kitchen when he saw Robb and Alys coming in hand and hand. They smiled at him keeping hand in hand. They smiled at him keeping hand in hand. Eddard had come to Robb and told him that he knew that he and Alys and had become lovers. Robb had gone ashen. Eddard put him at ease. He joked that not all could follow his example. Eddard knew that Robb had not been a virgin when he took Alys maidenhead. He was of mixed emotions on that. He was happy to only have known Catelyn but he had been so green and awkward on their wedding night. Robb had not had that problem.

Eddard thought back to when Alys father had brought her to Winterfell at age six. Her father had hoped that despite her young age that she would charm Robb Stark in hopes of arranging a betrothal. She danced with Robb, whom she considered courteous. He had not been ensnared by her charms then. Eddard paused. Maybe he had. He was hopelessly in love with her now.
She would make him a most beautiful and intelligent queen. He left them as they sat down to eat. Robb was respectful and courteous to the maids and cooks. He had taught him that at least. Eddard squinted smile. Robb would make an excellent Warden of the North when his time came.

He went to his and Cat’s chambers. He opened the door and genuinely smiled. Cat was propped up in the bed with a cloud of pillows behind her. To his eyes she looked pale and weak but she was happy. One side of the bed was Margaery spooning ice cream to her future mother-in-law. On the other side of the bed was Sansa with a bowl of Strawberries. When Cat would want one she would turn to Sansa who would feed her the fruit after pulling the stem from it. Then she would turn her head and receive a scoop of vanilla ice cream.

Cat was indeed a Queen in her own personal pleasure bed come barge. Eddard was happy. His wife had totally accepted Margaery as her daughter’s future wife. Cat had softened once she had accepted this. She had totally adjusted her thinking. Once he had shown her that Margaery and Daenerys were both powerful scions of their respectful houses and that Daenerys was going to be a great Queen Cat had seen the light. She had always wanted her daughters to marry well and now they were. They would make House Stark truly great among the Great Houses.

Eddard cared not for such things but his wife had been raised on these precepts so it made him happy. He watched Margaery get up and adjust Cat’s pillow when she saw his wife squirming trying to get comfortable. She was in her element with her two attendants.

Catelyn saw her husband in the doorway. “Eddard. Come in and feel your future son’s feet kicking!” Her face beamed with happiness. She looked weak but Maester Lewun was sure that with plenty of bed rest and taking the potions he gave her to give her vitamins and minerals that all would be well.

Eddard moved into the room and kissed his wife on the forehead chastely since they had company. He always believed in decorum. He first hugged Margaery to him when she stood up and then his daughter when she got up.

He put his hand on his wife’s stomach that now showed her pregnancy plainly. She was truly “showing” now. He looked at her feet out the corner of his eyes and saw how swollen they were. He looked at the dark circles underneath her eyes. He suppressed his worries. Eddard started. His ‘son’ was indeed kicking lively. “My Cat—our son is kicking enough for two” he joked. Catelyn gave him a beaming smile.

“Yes. Another strong son to become a strong knight or lord of a holdfast.”

Eddard pulled up a chair and sat with the most important women, no person, in his life. They all talked of the everyday life of Winterfell and his wife gossiped about the wardens, cooks and attendants and their love life and dalliances. Margaery seemed to be like her grandmother in forming her own network of moths to gather gossip to happily share with Cat. Sansa merely smiled and chirped in now and then. Sansa had lost interest in such things to a large degree now. She was interested in the matters of governance and state at which she proved most adept.

Eddard wondered where her new found talents would take her and Margaery. He would not be surprised if the new Queen would use their talent in some way.

Thinking of Daenerys he thought of his youngest daughter. He was sure by now the Queen and Arya were lovers. His daughter’s legends of her youth had indeed taken flesh. He had read the reports of the Queen’s “unnatural desires” and “rampant lesbianism” and did not give a flip. She was by far the best person and titular head that he had seen in his life.
He looked forward to meeting his Queen in person face to face. She had long ago garnered his respect. He smiled hearing Cat hum as Sansa feed her another strawberry. He was happy to have another child coming into his household. He knew Catelyn had prayed fervently for years to give him another son. Eddard smiled as he watched Margaery dab his wife’s forehead with a damp cloth and again adjusted her pillows just so.

Catelyn was happily planning a triple marriage. Eddard had started to look forward to it as well. Giving away his three eldest children at one time would be quite a night. The “bedding” ceremony of course would have to be performed. He was sure that Sansa and Arya would die from embarrassment when they were stripped naked as Ribaldry songs were sung. He smirked. Daenerys and Margaery would have no problem taking on the roles of “husband” in the ceremony. Both of his daughters had inherited his shyness and distaste for public displays of affection. He had nearly died when he and Catelyn and had their night of bedding. Even rushed as it had been it had been most disconcerting.

He planned on making his children suffer much like he had. He had a distinct advantage. His children would be married at the end of the war and not the beginning of it. He mused. He needed to get Emured married off. Four had always been a lucky number for Eddard.

Eddard saw Lady enter into the chamber and she jumped up on the bed and laid beside Catelyn legs and gently placed her massive head on his wife’s thigh and went to sleep as Cat scratched her ears. Even the direwolves were doing all they could to make Catelyn’s pregnancy go better.

Eddard looked over into the fire. All seemed to be coming together except two important items.

The first he had great hope for. He was sure that Jon’s wives would find a way to convince the Queen’s allies of the validity of the threat. They were mighty powerful Shadowbender witches from that far distant land of shadows and monsters. Before he had met them he would have shied away from such women but having met them and seen their honesty, integrity and love for his son he saw that he had been again guilty of prejudice. He had made judgements on hearsay and conjecture.

The other problem of Roose Bolton was a rancor to him still. He still played it over and over in his mind’s eye the man’s words at the war table. It had been a threat. He knew the man was vile and reprehensible. He had never had found the evidence he needed to dispense justice. He never wanted to execute punishment without it. He knew the man was practicing “the right of first night” and “flaying” his enemies. He knew it but he could not prove it maddeningly. Then there was his bastard son and the rumors against him and his hunts.

Eddard shuddered at the thought. He had studied again two nights ago the Queens march across Slaver’s Bay. True, to begin with her judgements had been excessive and in some cases almost as bad as the crime she was punishing. Still, she had had the right of it. The crimes had been committed. She did not need direct evidence to pronounce sentence. He had read in some tome that Master Lewun gave him on the Law.

It was called circumstantial evidence. That he had aplenty against Roose Bolton. There would be a time of reckoning.

Melisandre

The two Shadowbender witches were back on horse now. They were moving off from the confluence of the Rockingham and Poni Rivers where they met to form the White Knife River. They had gone to wharfs at the Hold of Breakwater. The Hold a waypoint for those traveling through the rapids that were further down the river. The rapids were only a stage one level and easily navigable with the proper guides. Some of the town folk used the type of skiff that Ygritte and Melisandre had used to get to this point.

They had been with Jon and deciding on how to get to point that they had determined to meet the Queen’s forces. They had sent Crows disguised as crofters and Wildings to mingle with the forces that were gathering to the east in the beachheads of the Queen. They had found out that the Queen had planned to set off from King’s Landing several weeks ago.

They needed to travel fast if they were to meet her and more importantly the heads of the Great Houses at the natural choke point of Moat Cailin or just above it while all the forces were concentrated. Any point would do but Moat Cailin seemed the natural point to have the meeting. The constricted space begged for confrontations and the necessary meeting that needed to occur.

Once they had talked sense into Jon he had come fully on board. One of the reasons that the witches loved their husband so much was how easily he fully supported them or another’s directives when he had been convinced of their viewpoint. He never discounted them out of hand simply because he was a ‘man’. They loved him dearly for it. Melisandre was still rankled a little at his moment of weakness and his unseemly use of his gender against them. After they had reconciled and fucked exuberantly they had asked again why he acted like such a “fucking asshole” as her wife, Ygritte, so perfectly put it.

He smiled softly that made him look so hot and sexy. He told them that he was so desperate to keep them from danger that he fell back on the old true and tried argument of male superiority a man had simply from his birth into the world. Most women were not warriors or great witches so a man could use male ego bluster to get his way. He told them cheekily that it had been worth a shot. He had a look on his face that said “what are you going to do about it”.

They had fucked again hard and throughout the night. Melisandre loved how Jon would plow his two wives with his hard cock after sucking them each off and he would pound them down into the bed their asses reverberating off the mattress from his savage down strokes impaling their gushing cunts on his thick long shaft. The way he screamed again and again as hot cum boiled up his shaft and spurt so hard into her or Ygritte’s pussy or tight asshole. He convulsed and wailed like a woman losing it. They loved him all the more for it.

Then while he rested Ygritte and she would fall on each other. Whoever had received Jon’s semen the other would suck and tongue fuck the dribbling semen up that drooled out spent couchie or slack asshole. They would suck each other off, finger blast their spasming fuck holes or trib to shrieking orgasms. They would fuck and fuck till Jon was hard again and he would join the festivities. He could bone so fucking good and his mouth was nearly the equal of theirs when he sucked them off and lapped and tongue fucked their asshole to devastating orgasms.

Melisandre shook off the pleasant memories. They had made very good time. They were afraid that the Queen had slipped out and would be at Winterfell before they could show the Great Houses the truth of the true threat. They needed to conserve their strength for what they had in mind. They were afraid that they would not be able to reach Moat Cailin in time. Horses they might be able to supplant their energy level. The witches could give the animals more endurance but their mounts bodies could only be propped up so much. They would not harm an animal merely because they had need of speed more than the animals may be able to provide.

Jon had looked at the maps on the table against the wall on the opposite side their bed. The candles glowing in their scions made the parchments glow. Jon looked down at the maps with a look of concentration on his face. Ygritte and she watched their husband from their bed. Melisandre had her little wife pulled to her little spoon with her hand over her wife’s heart as Ygritte clutched it tight to her small bosom.

Jon moved the maps around and he would look off staring at the wall. He turned to them. “I know you need to conserve our energy and magic but can you project a small amount of power through a staff to propel a skiff or canoe? If you did this would it weaken you too much? Just putting out force that would move you forward and guide the boat. Letting a river current do the work?”

Ygritte looked back at Melisandre. “Yes we could. With an inanimate object we are not having to meld our power to living flesh. We could “push” through staffs I suppose. What do you have in mind?” Melisandre squeezed Ygritte’s hand and they got up out of their bed and joined their naked husband as he looked down at the maps on the table.

The wives separated and flanked their husband. They looked down at the maps of the North. Jon was tapping his chin. “I think I know a way. Part of what would slow you down is remaining hidden as you traveled down the King’s Highway. I am sure that takes strength and power even if the spells are simple. It will slow the horses moving slowly to not bring notice or moving off the Road to let large parties pass. I propose we use a water route to move south.”

Ygritte was starting to get excited. Her pink nipples were erect on her small delectable breast. Melisandre shook her head. Gods she was such a horndog. She wanted to fuck! They had duties to perform. They had to aid Eddard Stark and Daenerys Targaryen. Jon’s hot body beside her had her pussy burbling with need. She shivered controlling her desires. Only long enough to plan though. Melisandre’s body was jangling with need!

Ygritte was bouncing in her excitement her small breast jiggling further distracting the tall Shadowbender witch. She was not into tactics and planning travel routes. She was a witch that performed spells. That was her job. It was Ygritte and Jon’s job to get her to where she needed to be to kick some ass! Speaking of ass … Ygritte squealed when her wife reached around Jon and squeezed and then felt her wife’s ass up.

Jon did not even register it as he focused on his plan to get his wives to Moat Cailin in time to meet the Queen’s party. They needed to show the Lords while still some travel time from Winterfell to make sure that something untoward did not happen. The closer the forces of the Queen got to Winterfell the more likely something wrong occurred if the truth of the Ice King had not been shown by his wives.

The beachhead from the Ramsgate landing had sent a twenty mile wide corridor out that had crossed the White River and was heading for the King’s Highway. They would be linking up with the vanguard of the Queen’s forces moving up the King’s Highway.

The Queen had her forces spreading out on the plains to the east of Moat Cailin as the sappers continued building camps and stockades up the King’s Highway to support the flow of troops further North. More troops and Mercenary companies were taking up blocking positions the further North they traveled to protect from sudden attacks. The Queen was showing prudent caution.

They would not pause long. The Queen was moving up the King’s Highway at a quick pace.

Melisandre could see that Jon would have to plan a route between all these forces of the Queen now moving in the North. They did not want to meet any of the forces of the Queen till they were ready. They would avoid all the Queen’s forces till met them near Moat Cailin.

Jon was bending down looking at the largest map closely. He touched the map thirty miles up from Long Lake at the King’s Highway. “This is the beginning of Knott’s Creek. It is deep enough to take a fully laden skiff. I am going to send several riders with spare horses from the Free Folk to travel down to the fishing town of Lahowye. There they will procure and stock a skiff for you. This high up the King’s highway there is only traffic from my father’s gathering forces. They are focused on arriving at the Wall to perform my father’s will. We do not want any delay. You can use your shadow skills to pass them by. That you would have to do anyways.”

“Most of the heavy troop formations and heavy cavalry have already passed to setup camps in the New Gift waiting to make their final push to the North. You should not be delayed to long on the road. You can travel at night and pull off to corpses of the birch and willow woods that line the road this far north to let the horses rest.”

“I like that Jon. We can make camp and still watch the road with our far-sight” Ygritte spoke pressed back into Melisandre’s naked body. She had moved over to Melisandre so her wife could freely grope her. She loved the feel of her wife’s full breast pushed into her upper back. Melisandre was massaging her ass sweetly now and resting her chin in Ygritte’s kissed by the sun hair.

Ygritte was into it now. She had grasped Jon’s thinking and was excited with his nascent plans. “We can take six horses with us. We will switch between four of them regularly to keep our pace up. The other two horses will carry out light gear. We will bring the grain and oats to feed our horses as we travel to save the need of letting our mounts crop grass.”

Jon turned and kissed Ygritte on the forehead making her beam and preen. “That is how I see it too my love.” Jon reached out and squeezed Melisandre’s shoulder to show her that his affections were equal between them.

“You can reach Lahowy in ten days if you make five miles an hour with ten hour days. You do not need to sleep and eat but your horses will. By using feed bags the horses can eat as they walk. You can throw in some medium length trots and a few slow gallops followed by rest and more walking.”

“Once you reach Lahowy you can take the Knott’s Creek to Long Lake. You will take the horse’s feed bags and your traveling furs with you. While on the flowing water of the creek and then small river you can use your staff’s projecting power to further increase your pace down these bodies of water. With your powers you will be able to travel around any other travelers unseen or either easily hide your yourselves or distract them with a touch to their mind if you feel the need.”

“Then on the Long Lake you can propel yourselves forward with no fear of being discovered. The lake is wide and deep. This will give you plenty of room to bypass other travelers on the lake. It has a subtle current with its emptying out into the Cold Spring River. That flows into the White Knife River and from there you can take it all to the confluence of the Poni River and then take the White Knife River down to a day’s travel above White Harbor.”

“That is the large town of Rockingham. There you will disembark the skiff. There you can leave it and make someone happy. I will give you a large pouch of Gold Dragons.”

“What is that for?” Melisandre wandered for both her and Ygritte.

“You will steal some horses and replenish your food stores for your horses.”

“I do not like being a thief Jon.”

“You won’t be. You will leave gold dragons behind to compensate for the use of the horses. You technically are in service to the Queen anyways. I know that is sophistry but sometimes it is a nice concept. We need to get you to the Neck in time. The high royals have the right to procure horses and supplies when in extreme need. But we aren’t doing that. We will leave ample payment.”
“But why don’t just buy them?” Melisandre asked. “Why the skullduggery?”

Ygritte looked up at Melisandre with her beautiful crooked tooth smile. “Look at us dear. You are over 6’2” and I barely 5’0”. We both had stand out from a crowd with our red hair. You have unique eyes for this land. How many other sets of red eyes have you seen in Westeros and you wear your ruby at your throat. We will be noticed. There is probably no danger but why take the risk. We are a known element now at the Wall. Let’s not tempt the fates dear wife.”

Melisandre smiled down at her dear wife. She hugged her tight and kissed the top of Ygritte’s head. Her wife preening and literally purring in happiness. She was right of course.

“And you know what kind of pricks we will attract when they see two such fine redhead babes such as us.”

Melisandre considered her wife’s words. Most men were pigs. Her extreme height would deter many but they would just form a pack to come after them. She would kill them of course if they even came close to her wife but she started to see her wife and husband’s point. It would be so much more trouble than it was worth.

“We will just leave them money for our borrowing of their horses and supplies.”

Jon and Ygritte continued to discuss the finer details of their journey down to Moat Cailin. Ygritte always got enthralled with the details of a march and loved the use of stealth in their travels.

Melisandre had gotten more and more horny listening to her spouses discuss their tactics and plans. After five more minutes she had heard enough.

She slowly settled on her knees and sat back on her folded legs sitting on her heels. She used her shoulders to spread out Ygritte’s legs and her beautiful clam shell was now fully visible. She blew on it and Ygritte moaned hard her puss rapidly swelling and getting slicked with fuck juice. Melisandre loved how her wife’s labia lips were swelling and all gnarled up blooming out her juicy slit. Begging to be sucked and munched on. Her wife’s clit swelling with the need to be sucked down her throat.

Melisandre leaned in and started to run her tongue up and down paradise licking and tonguing greasy labia lips and bright pink gash.

Ygritte staggered into Jon groaning hard. Jon turned from the map and looked at the tableau playing out.

“Well. No more strategy for tonight I see.” Melisandre looking up as she sucked in Ygritte’s labia lips and rolled them with her tongue in her mouth. She smiled at Jon eyeing their wife’s little delectable breast.

Jon turned around and bent down to siphon in Ygritte’s nipples sucking them hard in turn making her cry out in pleasure.

Jon then sat down on the table and cupped the back of Ygritte’s head. He gently pulled Ygritte down as her body twisted and folded. Jon guided her head down to his thick long cock jerking up off his stomach. Ygritte swallowed it and bobbed sensually.

Melisandre was in heaven with giving her wife head as she gave Jon head. They had fucked long and deep into the night.

They had waited five days to let the Free Folk who were sent out to prepare their way for them.
Then they had set out on their horses.

The trip to the creek boat launch had been uneventful. The trip down the water ways had been fast. Their magic they used to propel the skiff forward had kept the boat moving fast with minimal use of their magical might. Their magic binding with the forces of nature to easily propel the boat forward. They easily avoided any traffic on the waterways. They did not tire and did not have to sleep. The two witches taking turns expending their power so as to not tire themselves out with constant expenditure of magic. They were able to travel all the way none stop down to Rockingham. They had averaged nearly ten miles an hour using the river currents and adding their power to make such quick time.

They had to expend little energy. They would talk and tell stores of their youth to each other. They spent a lot of time talking about Jon. They had long past forgiven him for his “male moment” as they called it. He had been under a lot of pressure and worried for their safety. It was actually sweet now that the rancor was past. They talked ribald to each other. They could not make love so they talked of great past sex they had shared with each other and shared with Jon.

They both waxed poetic about how good his thick long cock felt when they did deep throat on him and he screamed so hard with his cockhead jerking underneath their Adam’s apple spurting hot semen to their tummies. Or how good it felt when he buried his blade up their ass and spurted deep up their ass sending them reeling into epic sphincter shredding epic anal ‘gasms.

They arrived at Breakwater soon after the hour of midnight. They tied their skiff up to the first empty slip the found at the long pier. Melisandre looked down the line of tied off fishing boats. The line of masts like trees stripped bare of leaves in the throes of winter.

At this hour they did not have to worry about anyone on the docks with the river men safely ensconced in their huts that lined the streets that terminated at the shore. Melisandre knew that during the day these docks would be teeming with fishermen and the merchants who would be buying the fishermen’s catch when they came ashore with fish and shellfish pulled from the shoals and reefs in the river.

Ygritte got out of the boat jumping up onto the dock. The cold wind blowing down the river did not bother the witch. She took the feed bags and several satchels from her wife. Melisandre put her arms in the straps of the bundle that was there sleeping furs and centered it on her back. They would once more need to hide during the day and would need the furs to make their camp comfortable. She followed her wife up onto the pier. Melisandre looked around and opened her senses like her wife was doing.

Ygritte pointed up the third street and they walked down the middle of the road. It was completely abandoned. The people of this working town were early to bed and early to rise. The fisherman up several hours before dawn to first break their fast. Then they would move down to the docks to prepare their reed boats, coracles, planked fishing boats and the skipjacks that the oystermen used to dredge oysters from their reefs.

They would be setting sail at dawn to begin their days catch. When they came back to dock throughout the day the mongers would take their catch and prepare it for the eating establishments in town or to send off after packed in ice or cured for shipping to more distant locations.

They walked up the street holding hands and pointing out a sign that caught their attention or how one building had a wide open front floor and a nice balcony on the second floor. A pack of coyotes came lulling down the street and passed the witches. Their ears twitched and noses sniffed but they did not notice the witches further.
They moved a third of a mile up the road and came to a stable at the edge of the town. Most of the horses were in the large stables but some were out in the paddock with blankets thrown over their backs for warmth. Ygritte got up on the lowest rail and called to the horses. The three horses in the paddock shook off their somnolence and came over to the witches.

Animals sensed the gentleness of the Shadowbender witches. They pushed their muzzles into the hands of the women who stroked their heads. These horses would do nicely Melisandre felt. She reached out and petted the horses on their noses. The horses nickered at the gentle touch of the witches.

Ygritte went up to the door to the stables and lifted the crossbar. She entered and a large sleeping guard dog started to wake up but Ygritte hummed a melody and the dog went back to sleep. The two witches walked into the stables and quickly selected the other three horses they needed. The horses waking up at the intrusion but immediately accepting of the gentle presence now with them in the stables.

The witches did not need saddles to stay a horse or bits and reins to control the horses.

They soon had all six horses by the large stall doors that they had slipped to half open. Melisandre and Ygritte lead them outside. They closed the door and put in crossbar back in. The sky was still dark in the middle of the night without anyone out yet.

Then they proceeded to bicker about how much money to leave. Melisandre wanted to be generous but Ygritte only wanted to leave a fair price.

“You know nothing Melisandre! I’m the negotiator and trail boss. You’re the domestic witch.”

Melisandre’s red eyes flared in ire her shoulders squaring up in challenge.

“And the muscle when we need it baby!” Ygritte added trying to mollify her wife. Sometimes the truth hurt.

“Okay wife. I will remember this” Melisandre said in a smoldering voice.

Ygritte shivered her couchie spasming. She loved to goad her wife at times. The paybacks were always so delicious. Her baby had the most lovely ways of remembering things.

Ygritte pulled out the appropriate amount of gold coins to leave. She put the coins into a smaller bag and hooked on the bracket of the door beam. She felt Melisandre’s eyes boring into her ass. Ygritte shivered knowing that Melisandre was planning her revenge. They had brought a few toys and she knew her ass was going to get blasted. She couldn’t wait!

Melisandre boosted Ygritte up onto her horse’s back and then easily lifted herself up on her horse using its mane as a hand hold. Neither woman needed a saddle. Their shadow powers protected them from being sawed in two by the horses’ spines. They sometimes chuckled how Jon would be all stiff from a long days ride while they were fresh as newborn babes they would say to their suffering husband. Also, their power allowed them to form a bond with the horse they were on to use subtle knee pressure on their flanks and a slight pull on their mane to guide the horses.

The witches of Asshai pressed their horses in the ribs and the animals started walking off into the rolling grasslands near White Harbor. The witches looked up at the stars twinkling in the sky. They located the Hunter Star always located in the same spot in the sky to the far north. They immediately knew the direction to take to get to Moat Cailin.

The witches angled the horses slightly south by west. The horses had been fed and were fresh.
Soon the witches took their horses to a canter and quickly left any hint of human establishments behind them. They ranged their senses always forward for any homesteads or roving traps that trappers had sent for small game animals. The trappers setting their traps to hunt hares, minxes or fox for their fur. There were also people fishing the streams and creeks that feed into the White Knife River. They moved on and rode on past dawn as they sensed no humans near them.

Melisandre and her wife with her Wildling background both enjoyed their silent ride through the backcountry near White Harbor. Silence rode with them in comforting silence. There was no sound of man. Only the sound of the nocturnal life and as the dawn approached the first sleepy chirps of awakening birds. First only a few lonely notes of the first waking birds. Soon other birds joined in to fill the missing notes of the concerto. As the first hint of light appeared in the East the songs of awakening birds filled the air.

The witches found their melody of nature that had no regard for man soothing.

They stopped at rills and let the horses crop grasses. They moved on for another four hours till they sensed some farms in the distance. They found a small patch of maple and scrub pine that had been twisted and kept low by the constant wind. Some of the twisted trunks were almost growing parallel to the ground with some actually looped over each other. The thicket was encircled and entwined with many brambles and twisted vines. They entered a large deer path that took them twenty yards into the swath and were totally hidden. They hobbled the horses and put the horses’ feed bags on filled with oats. The horses happily ate as the witches put blankets on their horses’ backs. The horses ate their fill and soon were soon contentedly sleeping.

The witches had groomed their horses' coats and checked their hooves for rocks and dirt up in their frogs. They happily performed their duties for their steeds. The witches would willingly perform what to many would seem heinous acts on humans but those persons always deserved their fates. Their horses were animals that loyally performed their tasks and, thus, warranted the gentle care they received.

They then put up their glamour that further hid them away from the world. The glamour would also swallow any sounds made by the horses. Inside the glamour it was dusky light. The air already warmer in the corpse of trees quickly heated up as Ygritte hummed a discordant tune and flames burned between her cupped palms as Melisandre waved her hands above the flames in an arcane dance fanning the flames. They kept the fire going for fifteen minutes as they talked and relaxed warming their hideaway. They then dispensed with the magical flame. Their glamour would keep the heat in their sanctuary.

They may not feel the cold but it did not mean they wanted to not be in a nice warm cocoon. They spread out their sleeping furs they had brought making a nice thick nest. The air was a twilight in their haven away from the world of man. The soft light soothing.

They discussed what they had sensed along with Jon up at the wall. Nature itself felt at unease. Even the trees, animals and the very air itself felt the evil that was coming down from the North. They no longer felt it here. The distance and the magic of the Wall kept it at bay. They also discussed the raging monster they felt at the top of the world. It was obvious to them that the Ice King had trapped the winter that should have long ago come roaring South. It was almost as if the storm was becoming alive. A birth bathed in hate and galled with the desires to kill and rend. It would be a terrible thing when it came roaring south.

They would have to deal with it when they had killed the Ice Wright.

It seemed as if nature wanted to join the gathering forces aligning themselves against the Ice King. They knew he was a mighty force but with their husband reincarnated as Azor Ahai and the Dragon Queen with her dragons and the mighty forces that Eddard and Daenerys were amassing they could not see how they could lose. They would convince the Houses of the South of the rightness of their quest.

They were worried for more than just the Ice King. They had sensed some other evil with the Ice King beyond his vile son but they could not decipher what it was. They knew they were at some risk not knowing its origin but it was worth the risk. They simply had to convince the forces of Westeros to fight the Ice King to fight as one.

They would be the ones to show them the truth. They accepted the risk. They had discussed enough the matters of men and the realm. It was time to make love and bask in their deep passionate love for each other.

They dropped their dresses to the furs. They loved to be in the nude.

Ygritte suddenly squealed in pain when Melisandre twisted her arm behind her back with a little pressure to give her wife the mild but sharp pain she liked when she had been cheeky.

“I have not forgot what you said dear wifey. Pay backs are a bitch!” Melisandre snarled down at her diminutive wife. She jerked up on the arm. Ygritte squealed in pain and tried to get away. Melisandre smirked at her wife’s halfhearted attempts to free herself from Melisandre giving her pain. Ygritte loved playing their games. She relished being “roughed up” and “fucked over”.

The tall Shadowbender witch fisted her wife’s hair and viciously jerked her around flinging Ygritte around like a ragdoll. Ygritte whimpered in pain but also clotted need. Her pussy filled their nest with her musk as her cunt flooded. Her brown lips now bloomed out her slit and cum trickling down her thighs. Ygritte whimpered in pain and primal want.

Melisandre jerked up with her fisted hair knot making Ygritte scream in pain. SLAP SLAP SLAP SMACK SLAP SLAP Melisandre viciously slapped Ygritte across both of her cheeks. The small wildling’s head rocking hard to the side with the cupped slaps to her face. Spittle flew out her mouth. Melisandre looked at her hot horny wife. Her cheeks were cherry red on her pale cheeks. Her breathing was ragged. Her nipples were rock hard and her cunt so swollen and now cum was drooling out her slit in hanging snail snot strands swinging back and forth in slimy tendrils.

“You are a worthless fucking whore Ygritte! A worthless peace of shit!”

“Uummmngggggg! Yeessss! Yeessssss I am a whore! Fuck me hard Milli—make me your fucking slut … put me in my place … teach me you are the top bitch in our pack!”

Melisandre rolled her eyes. Ygritte was the alpha in their pack. The only time she relinquished it was when she needed plenty of masochistic pain and pleasure. She and Jon had had to get used to that but to make Ygritte happy they fucked her like the cheap slut she wanted to be at times. Melisandre was surprised actually how much Ygritte craved being the bitch and bottom. For Melisandre it came naturally to be the submissive. She had had to learn to be dominate and top when needed to make her wife happy.

It was a lesson she had learned well. Now she craved fucking Ygritte up and fucking her hard and deep. Of course soon it would be Ygritte topping her and abusing Melisandre with the masochistic pain she too craved and needed. It had been so in Asshai so many centuries ago and it was the same now. Now it was just that Ygritte needed the same rough sex.

Melisandre slapped her wife cruelly some more and spit in her face. Ygritte moaning hard now and breathing hard her chest, neck and tops of her breast flushed with hot pumping blood. Melisandre then threw Ygritte down onto her hands and knees and Melisandre got down on her knees beside Ygritte’s hips.

SMACK! SMACK! SLAP! SLAP! SLAP! SLAP! SMACK! SMACK! SLAP!

Melisandre blistered her wife’s taunt ass cheeks and back of her legs as she wailed and writhed in pain. Gods Melisandre thought. Ygritte’s cunt had soaked the very air with her fuck musk! Melisandre breathed in deep the heavenly scent.

She blistered her wife’s ass cheeks till they glowed cherry red. Ygritte was ready now.

Melisandre shoved two fingers hard and deep in Ygritte’s already dripping snatch. She pounded her wife’s hot box with her long fingers. Her hand hammered her wife’s vulva and made her body jerk forward. Ygritte jabbered and groaned deep in her chest in guttural need. Melisandre worked in a third finger stretching her wife’s cunt out nice and tight on her fingers. She hammered her wife hot drooling cunt as she ground her other hand’s palm into her wife’s little doves grinding her nipples. She bent down and gave Ygritte love bites up and down her back.

Ygritte screamed as if she was garroted her body bucking and spasming as she cummed so hard. She was crying tears of pleasure. Her body convulsed with harrowing womb rending spasms of fucking bliss. Her head snapped back and jerked forward and down wildly snapping her neck as she screamed and screamed out her orgasm. She was groggy with her fading orgasm.

Melisandre pulled her fingers out of her wife’s couchie. They were soaked in snail slime. She shoved them in Ygritte’s mouth. Her wife moaning as she feasted on her own creamy cum. As her wife feasted on the fingers she slide up and down Ygritte’s tongue, Melisandre gripped her long thick jade dildo with the extra-large bulbous head. She gripped the tear shaped grip. She chanted softly magical red and yellow flamed danced on her palms. The gentle heat warmed the stone. The tall Shadowbender let her flames fade away. Melisandre started to slip her thick green shaft into her wife’s ass.

She worked the green shaft in and out enjoying seeing her wife’s sphincter rings grip tight the shaft invading her butthole. Melisandre worked her shaft. The both moaned when Ygritte’s shithole relaxed and started to let the shaft work in and out Ygritte’s ass. Gibbering Ygritte pushed back into her wife. Her groans guttural feeling raw pleasure pulsing out her squired asshole. With clenched teeth Melisandre rammed her dildo deeper into her wife’s ass.

She pulled it back and jammed her wife’s inner sphincter ring with the large bulbous dickhead. Then she slammed it home. Ygritte cried out in raw pleasure feeling Melisandre now slamming her shaft all the way up her wife’s tight ass. Ygritte gibbered and moaned pushing her ass back to take every possible length of the shaft up her ass. Melisandre’s clenched fist around the handle pounded her wife’s ass cheeks still beet red from their blistering.

She ripped the bulbous head out her wife’s ass and slammed back into her wife’s asshole. Melisandre would pound her wife’s booty and then rip the dildo out again and slam through the spasming sphincter rings that now started to gape raggedly. Melisandre loved seeing Ygritte’s body jolt forward with the power of her thrusts up her wife’s ass. Her witch wife groaning gutturally.

“You love it up the ass don’t you Ygritte. Don’t you, you filthy anal whore! Don’t you slut!” She smacked her wife’s ass hard making her squeal in pained pleasure. “Take it slut! Unngg unnggg unnggg Yeah that’s right you fucking slut—you anal fucking whore!”

Ygritte cried out in pleasure and clenched the furs slamming her ass back into the punishing thrusts of the thick shaft up her ass. Her head thrashed all flushed and dripping sweat. Her small tits whiplashing underneath her surging body.

“Ooohhh yeessss! Pound my shithole Melisandre! Oh R’hllor pack my shit baby! Unnggg aauug … hnnnn hhnnngg oh shit! Unnnnggg uunnnnn hhnnngg … shit … pound my shithole—pound it!”

Ygritte cried out surging her ass back into the punishing strokes slamming nine inches up her pinching starfish.

Melisandre had been shocked when she first heard Ygritte’s filthy mouth. Tgritte had not had the potty mouth. She had told Ygritte that such talk was unladylike. Ygritte had gotten real hot at that.

“That is man’s world talking Melisandre! You know nothing! They want us pure in the kitchen and slut in the bed. They want to control us! They get to talk however they want and we must be demure and chaste. Fuck them! Talking dirty is hot! Get into Melisandre. It frees up the body and the soul to curse, scream and talk shit! I know. We wildlings let it loose woman! Let go Melisandre!”

Now Melisandre understood fully. Now it turned her on to hear Ygritte and now even Jon talking filthy. She loved hearing and loved speaking nasty and filthy. She loved fucking Ygritte nasty when she wanted it. Like now. She reached forward and fisted a handful of her wife’s fiery red hair. She snapped her wife’s head back and forward. Her wife grunting gutturally and breathing in ragged gulps now. Her body covered in sweat that ran down her writhing body in rivulets.

“Take it up your ass you fucking cunt! Take it you godsdamned whore! You love it up your shithole don’t you—you anal whore!” She slammed her shaft up her wife’s greedy asshole that clenched and spasmed on the thick green shade plundering her asshole. “You love it don’t you— you fucking slut!”

“YES! Yes! I love it! Aarruuunnggg unngg hhnnngg hhnnngg! Oh shit! Aaauuggggg oohhhhh fuck yeah! Pound my ass baby!—hhhuunnnggggg!” Ygritte slapped her right hand up and started to rub her greasy cum soaked shaved smooth mound. Her fingers a blur.

Melisandre slammed her shaft hard, deep and fast up Ygritte’s ass. Her fist pounding her wife’s ass cheeks her shaft now slicked with creamy ass cream making a ring of ass cum at the deepest penetration. She watched Ygritte’s body began to jerk and spasm all over. Melisandre gripped her wife’s hair harder and jammed her wife’s head down straining her neck. Her wife made animalistic groans and caws. Then she felt her body first still shocked still and then she was exploding.

“AAARRRGGGHUUUUUUUUUUUUUUU! Oh shit! Oh sweet R’hllor! AUUNNGGHHHHHHH!” Ygritte roared, her body suddenly flipping and surging out of control. Her body instinctively surged back to take all the of the dildo up her exploding asshole. “Anngghnnnieee! Uuunngghhiieejeeeee! Aarrruunngggggaaaaa! … Goddsssdammllm It … Owwnnggghhnnnnnn!” her body flipped and jackknifed violently as her anal ‘gasm ripped through her body with throttling convulsions.

Finally, the orgasm began to wane. Melisandre watched strong aftershocks gripped her wife’s body and shook it hard at random intervals. She pulled the dildo roughly out her wife’s asshole that gaped when the bulbous head was jerked out her wife’s anus. She eyed the jade shaft soaked in her wife’s sweet ass juice. Melisandre ran the shaft up her tongue and closed her lips and moaned sucking her wife’s sweet ass off the jade. She watched her wife’s body jerk and her mouth hiss as more strong aftershocks ripped her body. Melisandre sucked and licked the dildo clean of her wife’s sweet asshole.

She now flipped her wife over. Melisandre fell on her like a famished shadowcat. She sucked Ygritte off three times fast and furious back to back while she continued to work her pussy with her fingers as she zeroed in on her g-spot.
Ygritte flew apart with orgasms. After the last two that had been multiple she gurgled “Damn you—you fucking cunt. You blew my fucking clit out!” She cried out as her wife flicked her clit with her fingertip sending scalding aftershocks ripping through her body.

“You talk too much Ygritte” Melisandre announced as she sat down on her wife’s face and rode Ygritte hard to repeated orgasms. Ygritte looped her arms over Melisandre’s big muscular thighs and pulled Melisandre’s swollen camel toe down to her starving mouth. Now it was Melisandre’s raw screams of crushing pleasure swallowed by their glamour.

They were two happy witches that came back down the animal path as the sun was resting on the trees in the distance to the west.

They suddenly heard loud cawing from a raven up in the trees just above their heads. They both looked up and froze. On a branch not ten feet above them sat a raven with three eyes. It twisted its head looking at them with intelligent eyes and cawed loudly. The bird flexed its wings and slowly rotated its head looking down at them.

For another minute the bird hopped around on the branch and cawed to them. It then flew off. The two witches looked at each other. They had read the books of the Crows. They had just been visited by the Tree of Life.

They mounted their horses and rode off into the gathering gloom pulling on the leads of their other horses.

They hoped that his was a positive omen. It had to be. The Tree of Life was the essence of spiritual life in the North.

Arya

Arya leaped to the right as the spear tip stabbed at air. She was shadows that had no home. The spear only finding nothingness. She started to charge in but sudden right and left slashes of the cloth covered spearhead of Oberyn’s spear kept her at bay. The movements a blur. Arya had to lean back and to the left when a sudden thrust came at her face. She had on a light full helm. She had large eyes slits to see but small enough to protect her eyes. Oberyn told her that he had total confidence in his skills but with them both moving at full speed he wanted to be safe.

Arya had been a little miffed. “Where is your protection?”

“I don’t need it little wolf.” He had then spun his spear around in a blur over his head and spun it around his body and would suddenly stab out with catlike reflexes. Arya was impressed. He was as fast as her or Dany. His spear like a fast striking cobra. He then put his spear butt on the ground and leaned against it. He extended his left hand and motion with his hand that said ‘bring it’.

“I’ll show you!” and she had gone charging in and nearly got squired by Oberyn’s spear thrust. She had had to dive to the right and roll. Oberyn had chased her thrusting at her as she wildly swiped this spear tip aside with her swords. She had underestimated the man. She had thought that a spear was a silly weapon but she would never tell Oberyn that. Now she saw that the man was a true master with his weapon of choice. She started trying to catch his spear and pull it aside with Needle and down and then come in with her broadsword.

The man was infuriatingly adept at sweeping his shaft away from her blade or swirling it to get his spear on top of her sword and then coming in with yet another quick thrust. The man often riding up her swords with this long shaft trying to slice her fingers which made the teenager have to jerk her hands back and to the sides. The motion effectively putting her on the defense. Arya had to either block aside with her free sword or at times pivoting here body hard to the left and right to get away and rebalance herself.

She remembered back fifteen minutes ago. She had been talking to Stannis and Renly talking about fighting techniques when Oberyn came up in all his swagger and started talking trash about his spear being the best weapon in all of Westeros.

Stannis and Renly ignored the man but Arya rose up to the bait. “You got to be shitting me Oberyn. No way in hell a spear can last a minute against a sword.”

Oberyn was ready “I would offer my other shaft but, well … I think someone is already spoken for.”

Arya felt her face flush red. How did he know! She stuttered trying to think of a denial but his waggling eyebrows had her totally flustered.

Oberyn smirked. “I would fight you, but, I don’t want to embarrass the royal hostage in front of the Queen.”

Arya saw Daenerys walking up. She had heard the end of the conversation.

“Oberyn …”

“No Dany. I will put that smirk off his face! I will make him eat those words!” Arya had told he Queen. The man was funny and smart but also smug and sanctimonious. She was just the woman to put him in his place!

“I would prefer to eat something else!”

“Oberyn!” both women shouted at the man.

He merely waggled his eyebrows again. “Do you accept my challenge? It looks like the stags of House Baratheon have shed their antlers. I will be happy to hang a direwolf pelt on my bedpost.”

“You’re on!”

“Is that turned on Arya?”

Another mighty blush from Arya. She heard Dany tinkling laughter and her embarrassment lessened. Hearing Dany happy just made Arya feel all was right in the world.

“Get ready for a thrashing Oberyn.”

“In your dreams. When you find time to not fantasize about a certain dragon.”

Both women blushed hotly at that. Oberyn smiled. How could they miss such blatant signals to each other?!

Arya was bouncing on the balls of her feet ready to spar with Oberyn when the Queen called her over. She had several scarves in her hair and she unwound one. They were light blue to compliment her hair. Daenerys silently tied it on her left upper arm. “This is my favor. You fight for the throne” Dany spoke softly looking deeply into Arya’s eyes.

Arya felt her chest swell up and her love for the Queen if anything bloomed even more deeply in her heart.
Oberyn and the Queen insisted she put a helm on. She acquiesced even though she knew that the battle would not last long. She had charged into the fray and nearly lost right off! Damn Oberyn was fucking fast and his spear somehow seemed to be in two places at once!

Now she and Oberyn circled each other warily. He would thrust in with insanely fast repeated thrusts of his spear jerking up and down to parry Arya’s swipes and attempts to get past his guard. They locked up swords and spear with Arya grunting trying to use her swords to jam Oberyn’s spear tip into the ground but Oberyn kept slipping his spear subtly to disengage their locked weapons.

Arya surged in snarling and gripped his spear cross ways with her swords and tried to twist the shaft out of his hands. Oberyn let the shaft shift to the left like Arya wanted but then went with her momentum which threw her off balance. Oberyn jerked his spear back and attacked weaving his spear in at Arya batting her two swords about and then hooked her main sword and jerked hard which twisted Arya spinning her around. She was momentarily vulnerable but she kicked out and hit Oberyn in the ribs as his right hand chopped her across the back of her neck. They separated snarling.

Oberyn backed up and with both hands gripping his spear in the middle started spinning it like a spinning top above his head and weaving it up and down in a blur.

Show off Arya thought. She surged in still confident of victory. Suddenly Oberyn spun the blade down and around his body and thrust at her as she charged. Arya yelped and barely blocked the thrust as she spun to the left feeling the covered spear tip brushing across the leather of her vest.

She heard Dany gasp. That was close!

They fought for the next few minutes. Arya had definitely developed a healthy respect of what a spear could do in the hand of a true master. Arya and Oberyn grunted and snarled as they circled each other and thrust and parried each other’s thrusts and in Arya’s case hard slashes that now had Oberyn blocking and side stepping as he had to give ground to stay in his balanced defensive stance.

Arya locked her swords up against his spear again as she grunted keeping their weapons locked together as they shoved and pressed in against each other. Arya grimaced as Oberyn swirled his spear. This made Ayra’s wrists flex and strain to keep her swords gripped properly.

Suddenly Oberyn jerked down and then up and her Needle went flying off into the air. The sudden loss of her sword made Oberyn’s spear follow up with the lack of down pressure. Arya spun low and pivoted and came up her blunt practice sword slashing across Oberyn’s midsection.

“Uumphhhhhhh!”

Dany screamed out “Yesssss! Direwolf and Dragon one Sand Snake zero. Zip! Nada! Numero Zilch!”

Hearing Dany put them together in her declaration made Arya feel so good. She ran over to Daenerys and they gripped each other’s forearm and jumped up and down crowing at Oberyn’s expense.

“That is not fair! That was chicanery! I demand a rematch.” Oberyn rubbed his sore ribs. He looked about evilly.

Both Arya and Daenerys gave Oberyn big fat raspberries.

Renly was laughing his ass off. Stannis had a big smirk on his face.
“It looks like you’ve been defanged Oberyn” Stannis told him in what for him was a jovial voice.

“You got shafted you old goat!” Renly shouted. “You don’t have a shaft you have a twig and it got broken! Hahahaha!

Oberyn pouted and whined for the next five minutes.

Soon after that they climbed up on Drogon. Now Arya was on Drogon with the Queen. Their column had reached the beginning of the Neck. This was the area that armies had been caught and butchered by the forces of the North with the Reeds launching lightning fast asymmetrical strikes on the rear of the marching columns before again disappearing into the marshes that were their home. Now the way was seeming totally open to the Queen.

Arya used the excuse of making sure she was safe by hugging herself tight to Dany’s body. Dany’s body was so soft and womanly and yet it was corded with muscle underneath. She loved pressing her body into Dany and feeling her small breast compressing against the Queen’s back and her leather vest and blouse underneath. Dany flew Drogon up the neck as the dragon flew on at an easy clip. The Queen would occasionally reach back to make sure that Arya was seated safely and would thread her fingers into Arya’s grip. She looked back to reassure her passenger that she was safe with her. Dany pulled Arya’s hand close where fingers were interlocked on Daenerys’ stomach. Arya felt so close to Dany at these times. She closed her eyes and dreamed of so much more.

They flew to the left of the King’s Road and deep into the Neck. Daenerys again told Ayra of her meeting with the Reeds and how they had prophesized of her battles with the Ice King. Daenerys did not tell Arya that they had also prophesied that she would meet allies and that one of them would love her. That they would marry. Daenerys had been sure it was a male that they spoke of now she hoped that it had indeed been Arya that the Reeds’ prophesized.

At first the prophecy had pissed her off. She was not going to marry any man if she could help it. She had cursed the fates for deeming she need marry a man. But lately she had started to wonder. She had now decided to woo Arya and make her Queen. Meera had been careful to leave her prophecy gender neutral. If it had been Arya … then her wedding to House Stark had been prophesized. Daenerys could not wait to start her courtship. She wanted to start it now but the looming war had to put her desires on hold for now.

Why couldn’t Arya return her overtures? Any time she had shown Arya her intentions and desires the girl had not responded in way that filed the Queen with the confidence to proceed. Daenerys so wanted Arya to desire her that she felt awkward around Arya when she did not seem to return her affections. Only recently had it really occurred to her that maybe Arya’s innocence in matters of the heart had her hesitating. She had been innocent in the ways of love when she had arrived from Winterfell. Maybe the girl lacked the experience to move their relationship forward.

Maybe Dany had to girl the hell up and just caste aside her doubts and fears and make her play for Arya and risk a broken heart. As soon as she thought those kind of thoughts her courage would falter. She could not lose Arya. If Arya ran away from Daenerys thinking her unnatural in her desires Daenerys heart would wither and die.

Daenerys had been an innocent when she left Braavos. When she had been sold to the Dothraki Khal Drogo that had all ended. She had been raped and violated but she soon turned the tables on her husband and soon had him following her desires and plans. Her time with the Dothraki had put her in tune with her body and her desires for greatness. Her time with the Khalasar had opened her body to her love of sex. She had quickly learned to listen to her body’s desires and to fuck exuberantly. Dany loved feeling her cunt and asshole exploding in shocking orgasms of fucking bliss. Doreah had taught her that. To let one’s body totally enjoying fucking and the pleasures it brings. To give your body totally and let your partner pleasure you if skilled. Khal Drogo was nothing it not skilled in bed.

Doreah taught her what she needed to please Khal Drogo and unbeknownst to the man he was quickly bent to the Khaleesi’s will. She used the power of her womanhood to bend the powerful Drogo to her desires and will. Then Doreah had taught the young Valyrian a much more important lesson. She had also learned that she really only wanted to lie with her own sex. That only women gave her the brass ring. Only a woman could ever truly touch her soul. Dany let her body sing to her when Khal Drogo fucked her body but Doreah and then her hand maidens had transported her to the heavens of orgasmic bliss.

When she finished fucking the Khal he did not want to cuddle or hold Daenerys after the act of sex was finished. Dany was happy with that. She had no desire to be held by the man. This was not so with Doreah or her Dothraki handmaidens. She longed and relished holding their sweat and cum soaked bodies close to hers. To have an exhausted woman purring as she melded her cum soaked body to hers. Their mouths melding tight as languid tongues kissed deep in post coital bliss.

Dany had come to need that. She had learned she was a lesbian. She had had to hide it. No more. She had learned who and what she was. She was in a position that allowed her to seek out that destiny now. She had forged a future where her desire for a female mate was possible.

Arya had led a sheltered shielded life. Arya did not have the confidence or experience yet to go for what she desired. That was what Daenerys now thought. Arya had not the opportunity to explore her nature as Daenerys had. When this war was over the Queen would embark Arya on her journey of self-discovery. Dany shivered in anticipation.

Daenerys felt a feral smile cross her face. She would make Arya her paramour and her Queen. Gods the sex was going to be so fucking good. She shivered hard again. She hoped the future was indeed bright.

“Are you cold Dany” Arya asked from behind her squeezing her Queen harder.

“Yes but I am alright” Daenerys answered back the pressure of Arya’s grip had her core on fire and wet.

She and Arya looked for Greywater Watch but of course did not find it. They wondered how a whole city simply could not be found. It had buildings for crying out loud. What they did see was a land of swamps and bogs. The watery word had huge flowers that in the warmer climes bloomed profusely. Lizard-lions, and many snakes swam the water ways. Pumas and red wolfs hunted the hillocks and small wood lands that dotted the bogs. Many trees were half-drowned and covered in fungus, and beneath the water, quicksand waited to drown anyone who attempted to walk the waters.

The Neck had always been considered the key to any assault on the north from the south. The King’s Road passed through the Neck. Due to the difficult terrain it became a narrow causeway, which was the only safe route to travel through the swamps of the Neck during times of peace. It was the same in times of war but now the narrows of the Neck became a garroto to strangle and kill the enemies of the North. At the northern end of the causeway stood the formidable ruins of Moat Cailin. Fortunately, the way had been deliberately left open by Eddard and his allies the Reeds.

Arya lay against Daenerys back and looked at the swamps. Her father spoke so highly Howland Reed. His father would always remember their fight at the Tower of Joy in Dorne. Howland had always been loyal and a true liege to her father.
Arya’s mind wondered. She smiled into Daenerys back. She brought up in her mind the visions of Dany’s naked body as it jackknifed so hard flipping around on her large royal bed. The Queen masturbating expertly to drive her body to the heights of ecstasy. She missed her Dirty Warging as she called it now. She had come to look forward to the Queen letting Nymeria into her room at night. Her wolf the greedy mutt always wolfed down the treats the Queen had waiting for Nymeria.

Then the Queen would drop her diaphanous gown to the floor and then slink up onto her bed. There was no other way to describe it. Gods Arya had been in heaven seeing Dany’s body in the throes of passion. She so longed to masturbate with the Queen side by side and then burying her face in that plump pussy and sucking the Queen off again and again. She noticed the Queen loved to play with and fuck her ass. Arya had developed a lot of dirty thoughts of what she would love to do to that beautiful derriere.

Now Nymeria was running around the edges of the column during the day and often out at night ranging out into the local woodlands and plains surrounding the Queen’s party. Nymeria running with local wolves and bringing down prey. Arya would be warged into her wolf enjoying the thrill of the hunt and the thrill of power as her direwolf bent the local wolf packs to her will. It made Arya feel so powerful.

Someone had power over her Arya thought. Arya freely admitted that the Queen had her wrapped around her finger. The Queen was so beautiful. Arya could not help but want Dany’s body. That desire was only enhanced by the woman’s intelligence, kindness and sheer fire. Arya could not help but be deeply in love with Queen.

Arya had often wondered how some brave knight or powerful lord had not captured the Queen’s heart. She was just thankful that no one had as of yet. It allowed Arya to fantasy constantly about the Queen falling in love with her without having reality get in the way of her sweet dreams and masturbatory fantasies.

Arya loved it when they found time to get in some sword practice in the early morning or late after they had settled in the camp for the night and they fought and practiced by firelight. Arya fought her masters and Dany every day for a short while to keep herself sharp and to look for little new techniques to improve her skills.

Arya could not help but preen underneath the praise of the Sword Masters and the Queen. Arya always made sure to wince and rotate her left shoulder after the training in the evening. The Queen was always ready to rub in the liniment. Her fingers made her shoulder and her pussy feel so fucking good. She longed to have those hands roam further. Arya repressed her moans now that they had a close audience and no privacy. She dare not let the Queen and her High Lords know of her lesbian desires.

She had replayed again and again when Dany had stripped off her top asking her to work her shoulders and work out the kinks of a hard workout. Arya had been a total chicken shit. She was sure now the Queen had offered her body to her. Hadn’t she? Well she was pretty sure she had. Well maybe she had. No, it must be her imagination. But it hadn’t been her imagination then maybe she had hurt and pissed Dany off. She had seemed stiff when she left. Was that why she had not asked Arya again to massage her body. She was afraid to be rebuffed again. When Arya thought that she groaned at the missed opportunity. She had blown it!

Arrgggg! Arya hated her indecisiveness. She wanted to be more aggressive like her Direwolf but if she was wrong it would be catastrophic. If Dany sent her away she would die. She would just die.

Arya daydreamed of running her hands all slippery with liniment all over Dany’s body and then going back to the Queen’s chambers to wash in her bath except no longer separately but together and making love in the bath before moving to the bed and fucking the night through.

A girl could dream.

Arya resolved to be more aggressive with any opportunities. She cried out in her mind when her next thought had her back tracking and giving herself caveats and backdoors to chicken out.

How could she be so confident on the practice and battlefield and such a wimp in the bedroom. Hell she couldn’t even get to the bedroom!

Arya cried out in her mind. I want Daenerys Targaryen! She would have her. Just as soon as she grew a backbone she moaned to herself.

When they got to Winterfell she would seek out Margaery and Sansa. They would know what to do. She knew that Margaery would be pissed off that she had crapped out and not even gotten close to using her oral techniques she had explained to Arya.

Arya knew she had some crow to eat. All that boastful talking and strutting around about how she would make Daenerys hers. Geez, she had totally blown it. What a wimp!

Her thoughts turned to her taciturn and so super straight as an arrow of a father. Oh man. He was going to have such a cow when I tell him how much I am in love with the Queen. Then I will have to tell him what a gutless wonder I am. Her father had taught her to always be aggressive on the battlefield no matter where it lay.

Arya worried over his reaction. Her mother would be even worse; her mother was always so … wait a minute … they accepted Margaery with open arms. Arya suddenly felt hope. She smiled. Sansa was going to marry a princess. Arya felt smug. I would be marrying a Queen.

Dany turned Drogon around to fly back to their column. Sigh, back to reality.
Portents and Meetings - Part I

Chapter Notes

AN #1: As you will discover there are six viewpoints but only two in this chapter. The chapter simply became too big for me to work with. I have tried to keep the chapters to less than 30,000 words per chapter but have been sneaking past that limit by thousands of words of late. This chapter was 53,000 words.

Writing the chapters is easy enough but the editing these bigger chapters drives me crazy. It overwhelms me. Thus, the splitting of chapters.

I had to break it into two parts to work it. I will have to do this with future chapters. I try and break the chapters at logical break points. Even split in two the chapters are still large so you are still getting lots of story.

Chapter 41

Portents and Meetings  - Part I

Daenerys / Ygritte / Oberyn / Jon / Tyrion / Arya / Eddard

Daenerys

An anaconda. That was the thought of Daenerys Targaryen the Queen of Westeros as she looked out from her seat at the way point that had been setup at the edge of the Neck just past Moat Cailin. She had felt like a mighty snake undulating its body up that narrow causeway. For weeks she had felt so exposed with the marshes on each side of her. A land that was filled with quicksand and hidden paths that only the Reeds knew.

She had read that the neck had been the slaughter ground of countless armies heading north to conquer the North. It was a natural chokepoint and the Kings of the North had used it protect their realm again and again. It had been Aegon that had solved that riddle. With dragons. He simply flew over the bottleneck to attack his foes in the North. When resistance did rise up on the causeway his dragons were able to attack and kill or disperse the enemies. He sent the forces scurrying back to their marsh homes, else, they burned. He was never able to find Greywater Watch either but what he had needed was to keep the causeway open and Moat Cailin suppressed.

Fortunately, her unofficial treaty with Reeds had alleviated the need to actively worry about the Reeds and their intentions. They simply remained hidden. The Queen knew the House of Reed would not attack her and yet it was still immensely unsettling to know you are being watched constantly. Daenerys had become very skilled at the arts of subterfuge and how to pierce similar veils. However the Reeds remained hidden she was not able to pierce their camouflage.

Her neck ached from her constant craning of her neck from looking side to side looking for some sign of the Reeds. Any sign. With her dragons she would have been able to wreck havoc if attacked for they would have to expose themselves to at least a degree. Still, the harm they could have inflicted would have been grievous to her forces.

She was happy for their neutrality at the least and unseen support at best.

Daenerys tapped her fingers on the table top of her war council table. The weather had been raining for the last four days but last night the weather blew out to sea. The sky was a bright cerulean blue. The wind was down and the air crisp. She had moved the council table and chairs outside so she could enjoy the clean air. While traveling the Neck the smell of the swamp was never far. It came to permeate her nostrils and very clothing with every breath. It was not a noxious smell but she was happy to be beyond it.

Daenerys looked up and saw Rhaegal flying overhead doing lazy circles. Drogon was in the North over the beachheads giving her the intel she needed to make sure all was proceeding apace there and it was. He had landed just this morning and the commander of the beachhead and the quartermaster at the beach in turn had held up the large board written in chalk. On the board the numbers of troops and supplies by type they had tallied. On another board was written any observations or requests.

Daenerys looking through her dragon’s eyes had seen the information. The Queen had written down the numbers for Missandei. Her little scribe then compared these figures with her schedules and all was exactly on schedule. Again Daenerys was thankful that she had Tyrion and Missandei to handle the logistics of her campaign. Tyrion with now Olenna were making sure the supplies were heading out of King’s Landing and the Stormlands in a judicious manner while Missandei was making sure that all was well at the end destinations. Their management allowed Daenerys to focus on strategy and make sure that morale was maintained at a high level.

She saw her Bloodriders off in the distance practicing with the Baratheon brothers. The two brothers were holding off her three Bloodriders. Daenerys could clearly hear the difference between the elder and the younger. Renly was whooping it up and cursing away with her Bloodriders. He was laughing as he almost got tagged with the blunted Arakhs of her Dothraki. Stannis was not laughing. He fought with a grim determination as if his life was at stake. As Daenerys observed, she deemed she would rather have the “tooth gnasher” than the “jester” at her side in combat. Combat was serious business.

Missandei went walking by with Shadowclaw jumping around her feet and rubbing into her mistress. The trip up the causeway of the Neck had been hard on the animals. The causeway having hemmed them in with the advancing column. Her sappers had worked wonders driving wooden pylons into the mud deep enough to hit firm ground. The engineers had put wooden slates down to create platforms to build tents on and to allow kitchens to be set up by the cooks at each night’s station to still provide hot meals.

The platforms allowed for tents to be erected that the officers cold reside in. the rest of the column had to rest on the berms or the ground where the land was widen in places to allow parts of the columns to camp there in small pup tents or on bed rolls with clear skies. Her initial scouts had marked the lack of space and forage for the horses of the knights and wagons traveling with the columns. Tyrion and Missandei had made sure large stores of grain and oats had been stored with large quantity of feed bags to feed the horses.

The structures would not last for long with the pylons in time working loose in the muck and collapsing but that would take several years. Whatever battles to be fought would be fought long before that time. Daenerys intended to defeat the Ice King with Eddard Stark quickly and decisively. She instinctually believed the Ice King had the same thoughts.
The Queen watched the plains cat get in front of her scribe and face the small scribe. The caracal jumped up on Missandei and wiggled up over her shoulder and rested her forepaws on Missandei’s back with her head resting on the top of the interpreter’s shoulder. The cat’s long body and legs hung on the front of the scribe’s body. The little woman grunted when her not so little cat jumped up on her but she accepted the weight. As she walked past the Queen, Daenerys heard Missandei cooing to her cat “What’s my little baby want … uuummmm … your such a sweatie … mommy just loves you so much!” The cat’s loud purrs easily audible.

_Geez the cat is spoiled rotten!

As the Queen sat observing her surroundings she idly rubbed Nymeria behind her ears as the wolf woofed and rumbled in pleasure. Whenever the Queen stopped scratching the large direwolf, Nymeria would bump the Queen’s hand hard and whimper till Daenerys again started scratching. The wolf’s tongue lulling out in pleasure.

Arya had gone off with Oberyn to inspect the cavalry. Arya had formed a bond with the Red Viper and both Baratheons. Anything that got Stannis to loosen up was a plus Daenerys thought to herself. Arya’s easy manner and genuine interest in people drew them to her. It had drawn her in the Queen mused. She stopped scratching the wolf lost in her thoughts and Nymeria whined again until Daenerys absently started rubbing her ears again.

She looked over at Missandei feeding Shadowclaw some tasty bits of meat that she bent her arm up and back to feed the cat where she had her head resting on her shoulder. She was again reminded how fortunate to have the small scribe and interpreter in her confidence. The little woman had persevered in cracking the code of the missive that had been provided to them.

Daenerys blood boiled again at what Missandei had decoded. The Houses of Frey and Bolton were going to turn on Eddard and by that fact alone if there had been nothing else she was going to side by Eddard herself if need be. The thought of sedition always made her blood boil. She had held this knowledge between herself, Missandei, Arya, Barristan and Syrio. They knew of the subterfuge and Game of Thrones she was playing along with Eddard. Now was not the time to let the other houses know of the sedition in Eddard’s camp.

They would probably welcome it. _Enemy of my enemy is my friend_.

Arya had informed her that her father detested the man but could never find the proof he felt he needed to bring charges against the man. Arya also related to Daenerys her father wanted to avoid bloodshed among his Lords if at all possible. Bolton may be an ass but he ran his House well and his men supported their titular head. Dany did not care. He was a cancer that would be exorcized. Hopefully, the war would bring his death. If not, and necessary, it would be her hand that would slay the evil vile man.

Daenerys knew she would have to speak to Edmure as well. He had a cancer in his own Lands. The thought that the leaders of these houses could even contemplate turning against their allies and Lords galled the Queen no end. She had read as much as there was about the Ice Wright King and she had read nothing in it that made her think the man or thing would ever honor any pact it signed with Men. The Ice King seemed to be a totally implacable foe bent on total destruction of all Men.

She was already devising strategies to deal with their sedition. She was sure that Eddard and Edmure would have their own ideas. Roose Bolton had taken to the field to lead his House. Walder Frey was still at The Twins. She would be paying him a visit after the battle. His death would be most pleasing.

Missandei walked back by her again with her cat now seemingly asleep on her shoulder still purring.
She wondered why she put up with the cat making such heavy demands of her affection. One had to keep their pets under control.

She felt her hand knocked up hard again. She had forgotten to scratch Nymeria like she was supposed to. She glared down at the mighty Direwolf. The wolf had its head turned back to look at Daenerys regally with her tongue hanging out panting softly. Suddenly the wolf rolled onto her back and looked back at Dany with her head cocked upside down. “Whoff whoff” sounds followed by whimpers as the wolf wiggled her feet in the air.

“Geezzzz” the Queen sighed as she got out of her chair and got on her knees beside the large powerful wolf and started to scratch her belly and the area between her now jerking forelegs which started to work like she was chasing a rabbit on spastic legs. “Wooff woof wofffff wooff” Nymeria signaled her pleasure. Her head now stilled and eyes slit in pleasure.

Daenerys looked at Missandei and smiled. When she had asked her scribe how she had made her breakthrough she told the Queen of her hidden benefactor. Daenerys had listened intently. She had a first been a little miffed that Andi had not told her of this hidden benefactor to begin with. Daenerys had listened how Missandei was sure the “woman” had been visiting her at night but had not done anything. Somehow her secret helper had sensed her problems and had provided her the solution to the scribe’s dilemma.

Missandei described how the papers and compass were floating in the air and how the color green showed Missandei where to look. It was her long time friend’s descriptions of how this woman helped her that opened the eyes of the Queen. Her friend and most trusted of advisors insisted she knew that this late night visitor was a woman. When Daenerys had asked how she knew Missandei had told Daenerys “a woman knows these things” and then blushed.

It was in that moment that Daenerys knew her friend was in love with her faceless lover. The next instant Daenerys realized her friend was gay like herself. She had looked at her longtime friend with sudden new appreciation. She had never guessed. But seeing her friend nearly swooning describing her benefactor opened the Queen’s eyes. Daenerys had shaken her head softly wondering how she had never not seen it before.

Daenerys was a little embarrassed to admit it to herself but she had almost seen Missandei as sexless. She had never shown any interest in men or the fairer sex. She was always focused on her tasks and performed them admirably. Actually, her work was beyond compare. She had seemed dedicated to her work only. Of course she had not been. She was a young woman who had the drives of all young girls at that age. The fact that her desires ran towards women only made the Queen like her scribe all the more.

Daenerys turned it over in her mind that. She had still missed it. The Queen prided herself on being totally in tune with her close advisors. It made her a good ruler. Still, she had had a potential mate right under her nose for years. Daenerys was a woman who prided herself on being totally aware of her environment and not letting anything slip by. Then why had she missed it? She could only come to the conclusion that Missandei had come into her service so young, sweet and innocent that she had never thought to consider Andi in that light. She wondered if she had missed something precious but in the next instant decided she had not. Missandei was a wonderful person but she was too … what? (the Queen reflected on the quality lacking in her scribe that made her overlook the sweet young teenager) … calm and staid was Daenerys conclusion turning the thoughts over in her head. Missandei always wanted to leave the combat and action to her Queen and others and would get faint just thinking about throwing oneself into combat.

Dany was embarrassed to admit it but Missandei was too meek for her. She needed a woman with fire and passion in her veins to meet all the challenges of life no matter the origin. Especially the fire to meet physical challenges.

Daenerys needed as her Queen a woman who was a warrior like herself. A woman how did not hesitate to throw herself in the middle of the storm. She needed a woman who was adventurous and willing to take risks. A woman who would not shy away from combat. A woman like Arya.

Daenerys rubbed Nymeria’s belly harder thinking of the wolf’s master. The great wolf whimpered in pleasure at the rough rubbing on its belly and chest. Arya was a warrior born like herself. She knew that Arya would seek battle out just like herself.

That was the kind of woman that Daenerys desired in her lover and wife. Suddenly, her scribe squealed loudly and jumped back. She cried out and whinnied like a little girl. This had the Queen chocking at the antics of her longtime friend. She looked at Missandei as she now squealed loudly and began to jump all around. She lurched around hopping from foot to foot all the time squeaking. Missandei pointed her finger crying out in distress. Daenerys leaned forward to see what had her scribe so agitated. It was then Daenerys saw that Missandei had disturbed a small mouse that ran across her path in sudden starts and stops constantly changing directions.

Missandei squealed and jumped even louder and higher. This dislodged Shadowclaw who tumbled down but alighted afoot like the cat she was. The caracal looked up at her master aggrieved as Andi continued squealing and pointing at the little mouse. “Save me Shadow! Help!” The caracal spotted the offending mouse and leapt high in the air (almost as high as Missandei and landed on the mouse with its forepaws and dispatched the offending mouse with a bite. Now Missandei covered her eyes as her pet ate its meal “Eewwwwwww!”

Daenerys shook her head. No. Missandei was most definitely not the type of woman that attracted her ardor.

That led the Queen to a thought that disturbed her and one she had no answer for. It had bothered her since the night of the revelation of the necessary information to solve the riddle of papers from the satchel stolen from House Frey. Missandei had been glum at first but was assured that her “secret admirer” would return. Missandei had not wanted to talk in depth about this woman. Daenerys could understand her interpreter’s desires.

The Queen knew they were in debt to this “woman”. If the Houses of Bolton and Frey nefarious plans had not been exposed the results could have been disastrous. If this woman choose to not reveal herself, it was a potential danger. This unknown and unseen woman had proven that she was capable of passing through their pickets unseen.

Daenerys remembered clearly the night that Missandei had come to her. She had told the Queen that she had gone to sleep fairly early and then her visitor had made her unknown appearance and magically left the clues to let the scribe solve the cypher code of the document.

What disturbed the Queen was how easily this “woman” seemed to slip through her defense pickets. They had circled their wagons around the royal encampment as a barrier double wide. She had brought Worm Tail and one hundred Unsullied on the march to guard the royal compound that was erected every night. The Unsullied’s discipline was absolute. They did not get sleepy or distracted on duty. The Queen had two of her Bloodriders on station throughout the night. This heavy guard was maintained every night. That night she had walked around the compound area with Arya looking at the stars. She remembered that Barristan, Syrio and Oberyn were sitting and talking by happenstance near Missandei’s wagon. In fact Oberyn had joked her screams were indeed quite something to hear as she masturbated.

All this vigilance had been on guard and still this woman had slipped through of all these eyes and their honed senses. How? Daenerys had developed almost a sixth sense to danger. She had felt nothing. What woman had those kind of skills? Not even she could hope to slip unseen through so much defense. She had heard that Shadowbenders could bend shadows to hide themselves. Was a witch of Asshai involved? She knew Jon Snow had two such wives but she sure this was not them. Then who?

She wondered if the person had been a Faceless One. They seemed to have such skills. She doubted it though. It did not feel like their style. To first steal the documents and then sneak into her camp months later just did not seem like the way the performed their duties or contracts. They wanted to do something quick and without getting involved with the circumstances around them. They were called the assassins guild for a reason. She suspected they had other talents but they wanted to perform their missions and depart. This woman was following their train up the King’s Road. First in King’s Landing and now in the open this ‘woman’ seemed to easily penetrate the best of defenses. It was an unsettling thought.

Daenerys decided that she could not solve this riddle currently. She wondered if Missandei’s “secret admirer” would appear again having helped Andi solve the documents. She wondered about that. She would have to check with Eddard with how the traitorous houses behaved. Missandei had made it clear that magic was involved with the floating and spinning pages and compass. The green line from the compass and green glow on the page itself. If the Houses had thought their plans had been stolen they would have backed out. She again trusted her instincts. She was sure the “woman” had somehow copied the documents unbeknownst to the traitors.

The “woman” helping them had wanted Daenerys to know the plans of House Frey and Bolton. This woman wanted swift and brutal justice brought to bear. Justice she would be more than happy to provide. Varys had reported that a sparrow had sang a tune of an ambush of Houses Bolton and Frey that left many dead on the King’s Road many months ago. Their bodies had been butchered in up close combat with bodies ripped apart by a small woman with her bare hands. With no effort it was reported. This woman had some kind of magical voice that echoed. After the fight was over she had then just disappeared.

Could this be the same woman? Daenerys wondered. She and Arya were strong. They were lightning fast and skilled. One part of the report she discounted but she could not help but worry on it. This ‘woman’ had dodged all blows except one. A massive doubled headed battleax had landed square on her head. The woman had not died. In fact the witnesses said the blade exploded into shards and the woman did not even seem to feel it.

Could anyone fight such a woman? Thankfully, this woman seemed to be one their side. Would she continue?

The Queen looked out over the open grasslands that they had entered upon leaving the neck. It felt like freedom to her. She had felt the eyes of the Reeds on her the whole way of their journey up the neck. Reports from previous columns and supply trains had reported the same feelings. The queen had taken all three of her dragons up one day and crisscrossed the neck at their location for that day flying low. It had been most frustrating to her. Her dragons had far seeing eyes with extremely sharp focus and could see beyond the light that humans could see and still the Reeds remained hidden.

She had been frustrated at being bested but she did not let it rankle her. They were allies playing it close. She could understand it. They were not about to give away this advantage they had. They might need it someday in the future.

Dany’s thought again went back to the sedition of House Frey of the Riverlands and House Bolton of the North. That such vipers could exist in such lands of honor, especially in the lands of the Starks and their long history of fairness and equanimity, angered her greatly. It even confused her slightly how such evil could come to be when there was no reason for it to take root and then bloom into such foul fruit.

Missandei had had her revelation at the start of their journey up the long Neck of Westeros. She had talked to Barristan and Arya about the news she had received from Missandei. Syrio was from Essos so would have no knowledge. Arya merely spoke of Roose being “creepy” and that her father did not trust him but never felt he had proof that he could just justify forcing his House to dispose the man. It would definitely mean going to war and her father desperately wanted to avoid open conflict if at all possible.

Barristan had been able add little to the situation up in “the North” as he phrased it. He could speak little of the Frey’s except that the Lord of the House of Frey was Walder Frey and that he had sired what seemed like countless children by multiple wives. The man was a wretch and seemed obsessed with elevating his house by marriage. Barristan knew it was done by all the houses but Walder Frey took it to the highest levels. None liked the man. Barristan rarely spoke ill of anyone.

“The man is an asshole Dany.” He paused for a moment. “I would not put it past him to invoke the “guest right” with someone visiting his castle and then slitting their throats in the middle of the night.
He truly has no honor.”

Daenerys had mulled over his words for several days. The next day the Queen had Missandei gather up a ream of parchments. They put her royal seal on it.

The next morning Daenerys made a show of sending Barristan back to King’s Landing with updates to give the small council on their mission into the North to keep them appraised.

The real mission was for Barristan to plumb the moths, spiders and sparrows of Varys and Olenna.
Tyrion always had his ear to the ground and had spent a lifetime observing the royalty of Westeros.
The Queen requested that they spend a day pulling together what was known on the traitors and then Barristan would bring the reports to her. She wanted as much information she could get. Hopefully, if Tyrion, Varys and Olenna beat the blankets something of import would be seen that had been hidden.

The three were to be sworn to silence on the matter. Daenerys in her message she sent with Barristan made it clear to Olenna that she did not want any information handed out to Margaery and then to Eddard. She wanted to make sure it was handled in a way that multiple objectives could be achieved at once.

The next morning Barristan was ready with his saddle and his satchel of parchments. Nymeria had come out to him as Arya joined her to see off her dear friend, knight and general. Barristan kissed Arya’s knuckles gallantly. Dany smiled seeing Arya blush mightily. Yes, indeed. Arya was indeed an innocent. Dany loved that innocence but she would soon be seducing her sweet wolf and teaching her the ways of love, the world and amore.

Barristan scratched Nymeria’s ears and ruffled her coat along the wolf’s neck and shoulder girdle.
The wolf’s tongue lulled out as she pushed into Barristan’s fingers. Nymeria then flopped onto her back and demanded her belly be rubbed and throat played with. Barristan obliged. The wolf was now whimpering her back twisting on the ground while her tail thrashed and her legs kicked. Arya laughed at her wolf who only barked at her in return enjoying being spoiled rotten.

Dany had called for Viserion a minute ago. He now appeared on the horizon several seconds later.
The dragon flying leisurely till he was several miles out. Suddenly the dragon put on a huge burst of speed. Roughly ten seconds later his mighty bulge caught up to the persons on the ground. The loud trumpet made everyone look up at his rapid approach.

Less than two minutes later Viserion landed a hundred yards from Barristan and ran over roaring in his rage. His neck straining with the force of his bugles. Viserion slowed when he got near Barristan. The dragon shot his head out and down. The dragon quickly insinuated his head between Barristan and Nymeria. The dragon was rumbling and pushing against Nymeria pushing her away from Barristan in a pique of jealous rage.

The wolf growled and tried to push back but the dragon was simply too large to be moved at all. Nymeria barked furiously at the intrusion. Viserion quickly got its neck between man and wolf and half circled Barristan. Viserion twisted his supple upper neck and glared down at the Direwolf. Nymeria looked up the large white dragon and woofed ducking underneath the dragon’s neck and came up on the other side of Barristan and jumped up putting her feet on his shoulders and licking his face avidly.

Dany, Arya and Barristan stood while smiling and chuckling at the two jealous rivals. Viserion had bonded with Barristan when he was a hatchling. With Nymeria all knew it was a bit more complicated. The wolf loved all that her masters loved but she was definitely working to make Viserion jealous. The evil Direwolf loved tweaking her rival for Barristan’s affections.

Viserion’s roars of distress were hard on the ears as Daenerys started to laugh out loud at the spectacle. Viserion quickly whipped his body around and again used his head to butt into the wolf and got its head between Barristan and Nymeria all the while grumbling darkly. Barristan then reached up and hugged his dragon tightly and scratched his cheeks like he liked. The dragon began to purr in a loud rumble that all could feel within a hundred feet from him. The white dragon’s tail lifted off the ground and shook making a whipping sound.

Nymeria having had her fun returned to her two masters. Arya scolded her wolf for being “mean” to Viserion but she did not look guilty one bit. Soon Barristan had saddled up and they were prepared to leave. Viserion looked down at Nymeria and glared at the Direwolf while half growling a threat. Nymeria turned so her tail faced the dragon she lifted her tail and wiggled it in a sign of wolf f-you.

The dragon snorted and launched himself and Barristan into the air and they were soon gone off to the horizon as they flew south by west.

They continued their journey up the neck.

On the beginning of the fourth day after Barristan’s departure Viserion was on the horizon. Daenerys could feel her son returning. She had lagged behind the column with Arya, Missandei. They had brought an extra horse for Barristan to ride. By now the excitement of seeing dragons had worn off with the men and Lords of the Great Houses.

Soon the white dragon with his bronze markings flared back to land on the causeway. Daenerys smiled seeing the dragon looking all around suspiciously for the direwolf. The dragon’s head moving up and down looking around and underneath the horses seeing if Nymeria was laying low to ambush. The direwolf was always trying to get near Barristan when Viserion was around. Not seeing Nymeria the dragon relaxed as Barristan dismounted. Barristan turned to rub and scratch the dragon and pressed his forehead to Viserion’s snout and rubbed their faces. The dragon snorted happily. Satisfied with his affection quotient the dragon launched himself into the air and flew off to the east.

Daenerys could see in his mind that he was off for the Vale. Her dragons had an affinity for the high mountains of the Vale. She wondered if they have an instinctive pull towards mountains like their ancestral home of Valyria.

Barristan got on his horse and they slowly walked down the causeway staying a short distance from the advancing column. Barristan began to report to the queen what he had learned. He had a satchel but handed it to Missandei. It was the written reports and thoughts of Daenerys’ agents in King’s Landing. Daenerys knew that Missandei would look through the reports to mine any little nuggets that Barristan may overlook in his overview gloss.

Barristan reported to the Queen what he had learned. Unfortunately little could be added. Most of the information was merely confirmation of what was already supposed. One was a revelation to Barristan and Daenerys. It was reported but never proved that Roose Bolton still practiced the right of “first night”. Daenerys not being of the North was unfamiliar with the practice.

Arya spoke up “It is an old right that used to be practiced in the North. My family has outlawed it for many generations and my father has reiterated his hate for the practice. ‘First Right’ gives the Lord of a House the right to sleep with the bride before the husband. He takes the woman’s maidenhead. The Starks outlawed it centuries ago.”

All saw the Queen’s ire flare and her face flush with her anger. All knew of her past and her visceral hate of rape. The thought of a Lord abusing his power in such a way filled the young Queen with great anger. All knew she was remembering herself being sold off as a token by her brother to Khal Drogo to procure the army he sought to invade Westeros with. All knew of her rape night after night. Fortunately, it did not break the young child but instead hardened her into Valyrian steel. All knew she would always carry that scar in her and would react violently against the act.

Barristan then brought the conversation back to the heraldry on the flag of House Bolton. The Queen knew it well since it was a major house in the north. Barristan continued “as we have surmised ‘The Flayed Man’ … that is not just figurative with Roose. He still practices the vile act though none can prove it and Eddard Stark has expressively forbidden it. It is a case of the “common” knowledge but having no proof. He is most surreptitious in his illegal acts. The man is most vile. I will gladly gut and eviscerate him if you will let me my Queen.”

“That I may allow my old friend. Unless I do it myself” Daenerys murmured darkly. Arya had looked at her with glittering eyes. The Queen knew the little wolf would gladly help her liege to flay a certain Lord.

Barristan then told the Queen of the again “rumors” of Roose’s bastard son Ramsey. The boy was pudgy and not a warrior at all. The knight told the Queen that some men from contacts that Varys had made were willing to come forward to give witness to the hunts. They would only testify if given new lives away from House Bolton and amnesty. The Queen looked at her old friend for a long time.

“Why was I not told of this or word sent to Eddard? Were these men part of the hunt?”

“First, you were not told my Queen because the focus is on the war effort. All know of the Bolton’s depravity. This is merely confirmation. With not relaying to Eddard, I asked. Varys told me simply that such things had not been done in the past. It was information for the Iron Throne. Not for the Wardens.

“To answer your second question the men say they are innocent of the hunt. The men are hands in the stables that heard Ramsey and his men bragging of their hunts. They saw several of the women after the hunt. It was most heinous what the men saw. They are lowly stable hands and could do nothing. I agree with that assessment.
“I will kill him personally!” was the Queen’s response. Daenerys was filled with raging anger.

Barristan report of House Frey was less filled with acts of despicable sadism. The report repeated what all knew. The report of the spies on House Frey showed a House that was not near as grand as they thought they were. Their only glimpse of greatness had been the building of their castle as such a strategic chokepoint. The castle of the Frey’s controlled all the commerce and travel routes in that area of Westeros. Their tax collections helped fill the coffers of King’s Landing the Queen knew but it made the House fabulously wealthy.

They seemed to have little to show for it. The castle was said to be a dour place. The seemed to be no wealth on display or using their wealth to further their House to greater heights. It seemed to be a stagnant place. In many ways Daenerys was shocked that such a small seeming man could even contemplate thinking so large. He had definitely overreached his station. He would be dealt with most harshly.

The Queen hated sedition almost as much as rape. She was frustrated at the dearth of information. She had hoped for something grand but it did not surprise her really. These Houses were not Great Houses and tended to be overlooked. In a way this war was a benefit. It had revealed this infection and it would be burned out. The infection had been detected before it became a death threat.

The party now moved in easy comradery up the King’s Road. The Queen was happy to put the marshlands of the Reed’s behind them. The feel of silent eyes watching her had made her feel jangled and uptight. Now she was able to relax.

She looked out over the land of the North that was just above the marshlands of the Reeds. The vast grasslands were beautiful to behold. She knew of the small hamlets and small to medium sized farms dotting the landscape which made the land look like some idyllic painting in a museum. They had advanced three day’s journey past the Neck and she called a rest. It had taken a day and half for the entire long train to pass through the neck. The narrow passage slowing travel. The tension of the travel up the neck had to be worked out their system.

The Queen looked around at his wild seemingly untamed land. People lived on this land and lived well but the very land still had a feel of wildness to it. That man had never conquered like they had the land further south. This was the land of Arya’s birth. People came out to see the column passing by when they would pass a farm or small hamlet. These people had seen multiple columns now pass by them. First columns from the North and the Riverlands. Then the forces of the Queen had started to pass them as they led their quiet lives.

The Queen had given strict orders to treat all the locals with respect and adhere to all the customs that Missandei had created briefs for. These written reports given to the officers and if none could read a sept or Maester had been tapped to travel with the column. The locals would be respected and shown the utmost honor.

Daenerys shook her head. She had heard reports of the locals becoming in some cases quite enamored with her forces in some instances. Eddard had left his own commands mirroring hers in regard to her forces. The barriers of distrust had been lowered. It seemed some of the locals had taken a fancy to the men and some women with the foreign accents and strange customs. Dany was sure babies were being sired. She sighed. She would have to send magistrates back down the King’s Highway to setup a support network for the yet unborn children.

The women who were partaking in nights of wild passionate sex would be given assistance for their children. Daenerys knew all about raging hormones. Her love of the female body protected her from the issue of having to worry about issue of her body she smirked to herself. For her it did not matter that it was prophesized that she would bear no children. She did rue the fact that she would be barren but life was full of disappointments.

Yesterday she and Arya had seen a group of seven girls by the road. They started jumping up and down as they approached. They were in their late to mid-teens. They squealed that it was the “Queen and the young Wolf!” They thronged the small rabble of horses and called out to Daenerys and to Arya. Two of the girls had visited Winterfell and they told Arya that they remembered how polite and nice she had been to their visiting party. It seemed all the Starks had made quite the impression on the girls. The teenage girls made this clear. In fact quite the impression indeed Daenerys learned!

“My name is Winnie. Please stay the night with me Arya! I want to fuck you so baaddddd!” The cute redhead of maybe nineteen gasped up to Arya. Her bodice filled with large breast of milky white skin. Her face quite beautiful and her green eyes filled with fire for Arya. The Queen fumed knowing this girl saw this meeting as her chance to sleep with royalty. She would be the Queen of this small hamlet with that trophy. She batted her eyelashes at Arya and touched her calf with a delicate touch. “I am quite skilled in bed!”

Arya’s face went beet red. Daenerys felt her jealousy flare but it ameliorated when she felt Arya saddle her horse close to hers. The separation between Arya and the tart most satisfying.

“You are very beautiful Winnie but I am spoken for.”

The girl looked at the glaring Queen and gulped and backed off then her eyes flared. Her shoulders had started to sag in defeat but then squared again throwing her shoulders out and her ample bosom forward. “I will fuck you both!”

Egads the Queen thought. This girl was forward! Daenerys was happy to put that group of young girls behind them.

As this day had passed more and more people were by the road. Word was spreading of the Queen and the young princess of Eddard Stark. They whispered loudly that they were bonded and the Queen did nothing to dissuade them of that. It kept the hussies away from her Arya and fanned her own secret desires. She noticed Arya did not dissuade the rumors either. Hope kindled in Daenerys chest. Damn she couldn’t wait for this war to be over so she could pursue and bed her wolf!

The Queen noticed how the people seemed to worship Arya and how embarrassed and humble she was at her subjects adore for the young Stark. The qualities only made her people bond the more with her. It seemed the Starks had the common touch in spades. It reminded Daenerys that she needed to never lose that touch herself. She could see how the people were one with their warden. She could see in the people’s reactions to Arya and how they respected and honored Eddard’s edicts to show peace and respect to her forces that the people of the North truly loved the House Stark.

Her forces were only four weeks away from Winterfell now as the camps were extended up the King’s Highway. The Queen had made that the demarcation line of further advance until she sent word. She was quickly catching up to her armor and supplies sent up the King’s Highway and her three established beachheads had already funneled vast forces and supplies into the North up along the wall in the East and to the King’s Highway.

All her plans were coming to fruition.

Her cooks were sharing food around their camps every night and the locals were happily eating the large meals set aside for them. The children were ravenous for newly prepared spicy food of the South and the women were relieved to not cook. She had female cooks from Essos, Dorne and Dothraki making up her camp cooks. Many had all the cock and pussy they could handle from the local populace. The Dothraki women had started to form harems and were talking about putting down roots here with their fillies. The local women easily fell under the spell of these beautiful, exotic women with their strange rough accents. Dothraki women were aggressive in their desires and most women swooned with such affections. Most women loved the bad girl.

The women were dominate and loved all these submissive women. They knew the Queen would demand that they and their lasses be free to live their lives together if they so desired. She was saving these people after all. If not they would bring their fillies back South or over to the Free Cities in Essos were homosexuality was much more tolerated and even celebrated in the major cities on the East Coast of Essos.

Daenerys sighed. The coming problem of pregnancy and her Dothraki women claiming women was something she would have to deal with in time. That was a headache for another day after the war.
A sad thought came across the queen’s mind. There would most probably many grieving mothers, sisters and wives. Wars were really only good at one thing. Killing. There would many widows in the days to come and young lasses with no men to court them. Daenerys smirked. It would give her Dothraki women more of an opportunity. Dany would work to make it hard on them though. She hoped with all her might she could keep the causalities low.

Evening fell and they reached the next camp. Here they would rest for a short while. The royal tents were setup and the wagons circled around them as another defensive perimeter. She saw Arya rubbing her face into Nymeria’s neck. That made her wonder. She had a feral smile as she looked at Arya’s back knowing she had been warging into Nymeria to watch her masturbate night after night getting her rocks off back in King’s Landing. She hoped that the girl was doing more than just getting a show. She hoped the girl was dreaming of being the Queen’s lover.

“Arya? Can I ask you a question?”

“Sure Dany.”

“When you warg into Nymeria what happens? Do you become like one with her or is it more like with my dragons; a sharing?”

Daenerys smiled seeing Arya look guilty for a moment. “Normally when you warg you ‘take the skin’ and it is almost like you are one with your animal. All your senses become fused with your animal. When I warg into Nymeria and she is on the hunt I feel her exhilaration and I feel her leaping on her prey and tearing their throat out. I taste the meat and blood. I smell the kill. I of course see and hear it all.

“In fact, one has to be careful to not become the animal and fade away. None of us do in our family. We and our Direwolves have a perfect symbiosis.”

Daenerys was intrigued. “So you experience all the wolf’s senses when you become one with Nymeria?” Daenerys asked. “You smell scents in the air, the tang of one’s sweat. The sounds she would hear with her sensitive ears?”

Arya squirmed a little and got a dreamy look on her face. “Yeah I experience it all … (in a very soft voice but one heard by the Queen Arya said – gods you smell good) … that is the blessing and curse of warging. The intensity of it.”

“So you can’t control your body during it?”

“When I warg totally, when I merge completely with Nymeria I cannot. Sometimes on the hunt …
other times … I have had difficulty at first pulling away. I am still learning all the ramifications of being able to warg.”

“But what if you don’t fully merge?”

“Yeah, I can do that … I guess like you do with dragons … but the emotional bond you share with your animal when you warg is so strong and beautiful that one is drawn to it. It feels wrong and leaves one disconcerted if you don’t fully warg into your familiar. In passing, you might partially merge for a short time but it is called warging for a reason. One merges with your beast. You just can’t let it control you though. People have lost themselves inside their animals. Does that help?”

The Queen had wanted to know since Arya had been doing her “Naughty Warging”. Daenerys liked the idea of Arya being totally spiritually inside Nymeria as the wolf watched her so intently as she jilled off over and over. Also, knowing that Arya was focused only on her while she masturbated was very intoxicating. She imagined Arya must masturbate a storm the instant she came out of Nymeria. Gods that must be so hot Daenerys thought.

As the sun was setting Oberyn was in a grass field doing his spear routines with some local youths watching slacked jawed at his speed and grace. The horndog was laughing and flirting with boys and girls alike and it looked like he had a receptive audience.

Daenerys shook her head admiring the man’s constant pursuit of carnal delights. It looked like he would have a tent full of “fuck-buddies” as he called them. For Oberyn sex was an expression of one’s love of life. A joy to share with others. The man had ambition Arya commented to her Queen beside her. Arya was nonplussed at the man’s appetites and his ability to find willing fuck partners at night. Suddenly, Nymeria came up and gripped the end of his spear as he was putting the blast on three lasses and two boys. With his lightning fast reflexes Oberyn prevented the Direwolf from snatching the spear from his grasp. Both man and wolf spread their legs for balance Nymeria adjusted its grip on the end of spear and tried to rip it out of his hands. Oberyn was prepared and twisted the spear to keep it from being taken from him. Then the wolf jumped and snapped her body around. The momentum allowed the wolf to get the better of the Red Viper and ripped the spear out of his grasp. Oberyn started to curse and tried to get his spear back but the wolf snatched her head and kept the spear out of Oberyn’s grasp. She turned tail and ran off. Oberyn chased the wolf who just stayed out of range his outreached grasping hands. After five minutes Oberyn gave up and went stalking off muttering. Nymeria laid down and happily started to chew on the fire harden wood.

Ten minutes later Oberyn came back with a chopped down sapling. He had a grip on the two inch trunk and shook the limbs at the wolf. Nymeria was suddenly on all fours staring hard at the branches. She howled jumping forward. She had asked herself only two questions. Do I want it: Yes. Can I get it: I’m going to try.

The Direwolf grabbed a mouth full of limbs and arched her body down staring up at the man with her golden eyes pulling back with her back legs her tail wagging in happiness.

“Somebody help me against this infernal damn Direwolf!”

From the dusky air the Baratheon brother appeared gripping the sapling stalk and adding their prodigious strength to Oberyn. The wolf circled around jerking on the tree limbs in her mouth her feet working to pull backwards dragging the men forward. The wolf arching her lower forelegs to the ground growling as she jerked her head back trying to rip the sapling free.

Arya suddenly jumped up “Come on Dany!” and Daenerys rose up laughing chasing after Arya as they too gripped the sapling and pulled against Nymeria as the wolf growled and playfully jerked the sapling trying to free it.

For twenty minutes the battle continued. In the end the wolf won.

Ygritte

Ygritte and Melisandre were nearing their rendezvous with the Queen. They had made up the lost time riding the waterways down South. They had been traveling overland on horseback since leaving Breakwater one day’s journey above White Harbor. They could now travel straight west to intercept the Queen on the King’s Highway.

The first day’s travel from the river had been over flatlands but by the afternoon of the second day of their travel west they had started to enter into the Sandhills of Overton. The Dunes of sand on the fringes anchored down by raw prairie grasses and scrub trees.

Ygritte now thought of herself exclusively as a Shadowbender witch. She had been born of the Free Folk and grown to late teenage years but she was Tygreti now deep down in the core of her being. Still she had the impulses and instincts of her second life. These instincts teased by the land they were passing through.

When Jon had proposed their quicker route to the Queen, Ygritte had wanted all the information she could get on her route. The Wildling in her wanted all the information to better plan the trip and make sure she kept her wife safe. Melisandre was the greatest witch her order had ever produced but her expertise was not in the fields of the wild. Her skills were in the library and the rooms of their domicile or at the location they must perform their acts at. Melisandre was the master of the arcane and the spell.

Ygritte was a mighty witch herself but her skills were not quite as refined as her wife’s spells. Her spells were more the raw power type where her wife tailored her spells to the task at hand. No excess magical might was wasted. Sort of took away from the spectacle of it all Ygritte would grouse to herself.

Ygritte smirked as she looked at her wife looking up at the blue sky in front of Ygritte on her horse. She could just see her heavy full breast shimming on her chest as her horse rocked her body. Ygritte cursed it only being midnight. She wanted some pussy! She felt her mouth salivating thinking of again eating out her sweet witch wife. Gods she always cummed so hard in Ygritte’s mouth!

They needed to make as much time as possible as they traveled under the cover of darkness. Her body still ached in the most delightful of ways. Melisandre and simply fucked her like a battering ram yesterday in revenge for her “domestic witch” remark. She had just made that remark up on the fly. She would use it often now if it continued to fire up her normally calm and placid wife. Gods Ygritte loved it when Melisandre and Jon pounded the “shit” out of her. She liked that saying Jon had taught them. Yip indeedy.

Ygritte loved her body to be fucked hard by her two much bigger lovers. Ygritte shivered remembering Jon and Melisandre with her strap-on slam fucking her to wailing orgasms with their savage thrusts hard and deep up into her fuck holes and their hair pulling and ass smacking DP fucks. Having her head whiplashed forward and back by the fist twisted in it. The remembered feel of cupped palms blistering her ass, tits and face had her salivating for the next sweet grudge fuck. Where did Jon come up with all these phrases. She liked them. Most be all those Crows and their overflowing testicles. Not having sex a lot had to make one very antsy Ygritte chuckled to herself.
Ygritte’s eyes crossed watching her wife’s large firm breast sashay on her chest. She toyed with arguing with Melisandre again about being the domesticated witch but decided against it. She didn’t want to overuse it. Save it for when she really needed to be fucked and abused. She smiled at her lascivious thoughts. She loved goading her spouses and having them ‘put her in her place’. They made her feel beautiful, slutty and so desired when they roughed her up knowing she craved and needed a steady diet of it.

She loved slow and gentle of course but needed that hot spice of hard fucks.

Her body aching in all the right places reminded her of Samwell Tarly and his all but in name wife, Gilly.

Tarly was the new Maester of the Night’s Watch. Aemon Targaryen had passed away just before their arrival at the wall to first save Jon Snow and then coming back to the Wall after his transformation into Azor Ahai reborn. The old Maester had finally passed away at age of 104 years of age. He had been most beloved. From the way Jon described the man Ygritte and Melisandre dearly wished they could have met that gentle and wise old man.

Jon had appointed Tarly to take Aemon’s place. It was still hard for Jon to realize that he was indeed related to the now deceased Maester. Tarly had not wanted the position but Jon had insisted. He was really the only Crow with the temperament and basic educational necessary that could allow him to go the Citadel and earn his links of his chain.

The young man had a horrible lack of confidence and was most inept at all things requiring physical prowess. Jon had determined to send Samwell to the Citadel to achieve his chain. He sent Samwell to the Citadel when the man was till one hundred years old. He had earned his links and was able to return eight months after the old Maester’s death. Gilly had gone with them. Samwell had tried to leave the girl with his father but she had badgered the man into keeping her with her. The boy needed the man he thought of as father with him. Tarly had not been able to fight that argument.

The witches had found Samwell endearing with his easy ability to be made to blush. He was always stammering when talking to them and he could not stop glancing at Melisandre’s ample rack. He did not leer but his eyes simply could not refuse to glance at the bosom of her tall wife. The way he gulped and looked fearfully at Ygritte was amusing. More amusing was his whimpers when Ygritte growled at him good naturedly.

They had told him repeatedly that it was alright to stare. Melisandre did indeed have a ‘nice rack’. He was so innocent in his ogling that it was actually endearing.

Jon tasked the new Maester to bring his wives the information up from the tunnels that they would need to plan their journey. He had brought the parchments and scrolls that the library of the Watch had on the topography and the plant / fauna to be found on their trip. His common law wife Gilly was with him carrying a handful of scrolls. She always gave them a big smile when she was around them. She was shy too but had come to them soon after their arrival with Jon when he took his command of the Night’s Watch back.

She was deeply in love with Samwell. He was a father to her son in all but name. He doted on the boy and on her. The problem was that he was like some of the other crows who actually took their vows of chastity way to seriously. The witches could understand giving one’s focus and effort on a cause but withholding oneself from love and even sex was unnatural and actually just plain dumb.

Gilly had come to them blushing and then started to weep. She loved Samwell so much and wanted to give him her love but he refused. He kept going on about honor and duty. Many times she had almost seduced Samwell but at the last moment his resolve had stiffened. His rejections of her love... hurt Gilly deeply and had started to erode her confidence in her self-image. Ygritte gave an evil leer. It was something else stiff that Gilly needed.

They both readily agreed to help the young woman. It was obvious to anyone with eyes how much the two loved each other and they would be more than glad to help the young lass to lasso her buck. To Ygritte it was akin to helping Gilly on the traditional ‘hunt’ that the Wildling often used to claim their spouse. Ygritte had started to boast to anyone who would listen as to how she had “trapped” both Melisandre and the Lord Commander of the Crows. Ygritte was more than happy to give pantomime shows to one and all in how she had gone about trapping her spouses. She always had a rapt audience. They were almost dare she say it ‘spell bound’.

Ygritte was not satisfied with just bragging to an audience. She crowed incessantly to Jon and Melisandre of her prowess in ‘trapping’ both of them into her bed. She would preen and strut around their living quarters till her spouses had finally had enough. Her spouses smirking at each other as they now took her down in a revenge “hunt”. When she would prattle on about her skills with her clothes on that was Ygritte’s clear signal to her spouses to take her down. They would rip her clothes off as she squealed and acted shocked at the turn of events. They sucked her pussy inside out while pulping her tits and trying to suck her nipples down their throats. They then fucked both of her holes till she was one fucked out happy Shadowbender.

The little cummed witch screaming in wild shrieks as her body convulsed with full body spasms ripping through her small form. She always cummed hard when she felt two hard dicks slamming hard and deep up her fuck holes. Melisandre’s strap-on cock every bit as hard as Jon’s dick and even longer and thicker. She cried out feeling their bulbous cock crowns jacking over each other as they see-sawed hard in out her cunt and ass. The diminutive redhead loved feeling her spouses’ strong hands manhandling her small body. Ygritte loved it when her wife and husband gripped her ribs and hips hard to lunge their dicks so savage deep up into her belly.

The witches had asked Gilly to get some of Samwell’s hair and a piece of his cloak. The witches fashioned a rough mannequin of the human body out of sticks tied together to resemble the human form. They even tied a small pouch to its stomach to make it look more like Samwell. This was easy Earth magic. The next day Gilly had returned with the requested items.

The witches took the hair and bound it to the head of the little mannequin with paraffin. With the cloth taken from the inside of one of his crow’s cloak they had fashioned into a robe with a hood. They then took some of their rare powders and put these in a bowel and used a distil to grind them together along with some salt and had Gilly cry to produce tears (thinking of Samwell refusing her love had produced more than enough and plenty of sobs too). They had ground it all together and then spread the paste underneath the robe along the crotch of the mannequin. They spoke their ancient incantations and wove mystical runes over it with their dexterous fingers.

They had given the girl the totem. The witches told her to reach underneath the robe and stroke the crotch and think of her desire for Samwell. She would need to do this in his presence to allow the spell to take full effect. They had told her it would only work if he was truly in love with Gilly. Mere lust would not be enough to activate the charm.

The next day Gilly had nearly burst down their door interrupting some intense wife on wife time. A sweaty and naked Melisandre had opened the door. Their senses had already told them that it was Gilly at the door. The woman did not even notice their sweaty naked bodies and lank hair plastered all over the faces and upper bodies soaked in sweat and cum. Gilly did not seem to notice the smell of excited pussy thick in the air. She was bouncing up and down and giggling. She and Samwell had made love five times during the night. She was ecstatic. She was chirping gaily like a bird greeting the morning sun sing notes about how much her man loved her.
They noticed she was walking a little gingerly but she had a beatific smile on her face as she left still not noticing two naked and very horny witches. Normally, they would have been pissed at the interruption of some intense pussy gobbling but the little sprite’s joy instead made them smile and embrace the girl. She still did not fully register that both women were naked and sweaty. She left humming and telling them she was going to find Samwell. “I need to be fucked again!” the young woman exclaimed definitely on the prowl with a determined gait. The two witches wished her well and closed the door. They fell on each other like wolverines.

Later that day they saw Samwell humming and walking a little gingerly himself. They saw Samwell six days later and he looked haggard and worn. They quickly sought out Gilly. Their fears had been well founded. She was still rubbing the doll every night filling Samwell with extreme lust for her body. Gilly was literally wearing him out. She had been starved for his love and affection and was definitely making up for lost time. When they mentioned she might not need the totem anymore she got panicky. She could not go back to the way it was before.

They told her to only use it if his silly inhibitions reappeared. In the next eight months she had to use it five times to shatter his resistance to her adore and his devotions to his vows. Tarly being too smart finally deduced she had created a totem the last time she had used it. Instead of being angered he had instead been touched that she had to gone to such lengths to win his love. She told the witches breathlessly the next morning how he had thrown her down on the bed and ravaged her very willing body all night long. He had become quite the cocksman she smugly told them rubbing her muff and running off looking for Tarly.

He told his sweet common law wife that he no longer needed the totem to love her. But that had not been the end of the totem. Gilly told them how they now used it to “get into Tarly’s inner warrior”. Gilly told them that he told her one night after ravishing her six times that he loved “fucking her bowlegged.” She would sometimes dress up as a fair princess and he would despoil her to make her “unworthy” of any other highborn Lord. She was defiled and now his Wildling whore that he spanked and roughed up (gently though and with a very horny and willing Wildling). Gilly breathing got ragged just thinking of being defiled and went running off needing “to discuss something with Tarly”.

Gilly wanted to market the totem. She thought there had to be many other women in her situation. The witches had to dissuade her telling her it was much too powerful a magic. Gilly had finally understood that. She got a faraway dreamy look on her face. She told the witches she loved being impaled on his mighty broadsword. The two witches had glanced at each other at that. Tarly was no warrior. They loved how much Gilly was enjoying her new intimacy with Samwell.

Gilly loved how the totem had brought out the “animal” in Tarly. It was during a “totem incident” that Gilly made an awesome discovery that she was worried about. The witches asked her what could be bad about her and Tarly’s great sex life. She was currently singing rhapsodies of his new cocksman skills. Gilly looked embarrassed when she confided to the witches she loved having her ass fucked with Tarly long, thick, hard cock. She had seen a Crow and male Wildling rutting and the Wildling taking it up the ass had cum so hard.

She had wanted to cum hard like that. She had spent several days getting Samwell to fuck her up the ass. She had been very happy she had. Samwell had started tentative but ended with him slam fucking her up her ass. Gilly had love the feeling of his power impaling her ass. The way her body jerked forward with each slam of his thighs into her rippling ass and hips. It had hurt at first but then raw radiant pleasure flooded out her ass and into her belly, cunt and breast. Her ass had exploded with scalding almost agonizing pleasure. Her body felt like it was being ripped apart with full body convulsions of searing bliss that soared out her squired asshole in waves of fucking bliss. Gilly had become addicted to the ecstasy of having here asshole pounded to orgasm. She felt she should be ashamed but she loved it so much. The orgasms were “so fucking intense!”

Ygritte and Melisandre put their arms around Gilly and confessed they loved it up the ass too. They too cummed so hard being pounded up their buttholes. Ygritte gently held Gilly’s hand “When Jon or Melisandre pound my shithole Gilly … gods I do cum like the old gods are slamming me with clubs. My asshole explodes with raw pleasure honey.” Melisandre had nodded her head solemnly. “I concur Gilly. I love it when I get fucked up my shithole and then they pull their cocks out my ass and I suck my ass off their pricks. I love it. I feel so slutty and hot. I recommend it.” Gilly had stared at her with her large pretty eyes.

Melisandre told the wilding woman “When you suck your ass juice off his dick I guarantee you it will rock his world and make him fuck you even harder and deeper. Everyone loves seeing their slut do ATM. Gilly nodded her head ‘yes’. She seemed like she was lost in a dream state.

Gilly had left with a big smile on her face.

Learning of Tarly’s newfound lust and ardor did explain why he had lost some weight and was looking more fit. He would never be a warrior anywhere other than Gilly’s bed but that was the only place he needed to be one. They snickered how it seemed that Gilly was demanding that her man constantly take the field of battle to once again mount and conquer his woman’s so willing fuck holes.

Ygritte came back to the present. She had been anxious to get to this part of their journey. It had been stories that Jon told them of his father visiting this region of mixed-grass prairie on grass-stabilized sand dunes that had her anxious to visit this area of Westeros. Eddard’s first visit had been five years ago and it had totally transformed his father’s views on nature and man’s place in it.

Eddard after that visit realized that he was Warden on North in so much more than keeping the peace in his realm among his houses and supporting the realm and the person sitting on the Iron Throne. After that visit Eddard Stark had become Warden of the whole North. Not only in words but in deeds.

According to the geography texts from the libraries of the Night’s Watch the region’s area was about 15,500 square miles. Its marges ranged from a day’s journey on horse east from White Harbor and extended west and north primarily. The lands slowly merged into the taller and rocky lands of the Barrowlands. The King’s Highway ran along the divide between the sea of inland dunes and the Barrowlands.

Where the Barrowlands were much more arid and less hospitable to life in general the Sandhills supported a wide variety of life. Ygritte looked around and loved the diversity she saw with her enhanced Shadowbender sight. In the distance she saw actual free ranging sand dunes rising to over two hundred feet in height. She loved how each dune had a unique shape where the wind scalloped out divots and the undulations on the leeward side like the paths of many snakes traveling over the loose sand.

Ygritte had read that the dunes in the Sandhills may exceed three hundred and thirty feet in height. With her second life as a Wildling the thought of mountains of sand made her feel giddy and like a little girl. She wanted to make camp near those dunes in the far distance and fuck Melisandre for days being one with nature.

Ygritte had further read that the Sandhills sat atop the massive Ogallala Aquifer. The water trapped in the rock deep beneath the surface was forced by the force of gravity pressing down up to the surface. This caused both temporary and permanent shallow lakes that were common in low-lying valleys between the grass-stabilized dunes prevalent in the Sandhills. The eastern and central sections of the region are drained by tributaries of the Loup River and the Niobrara River, while the western section was largely composed of small interior drainage basins.

The land was so diverse. She saw naked sand to her left and to her right she saw both sage brush and then several hills resplendent with bright green grass thick and luxuriant. She angled the horses toward that and they stopped for fifteen minutes to let the horses crop the grass lazily. Ygritte loved this land.

The Master who had written the most recent report on the Sandhills thought that as much as 85% of the ecoregion was intact natural habitat, the highest level in grasslands of Westeros. This was chiefly due to the lack of crop production: most of the Sandhills land has never been plowed. What had saved the region was the fragility of the sandy soil made the area unsuitable for cultivation of crops. This had saved this large swatch of land from being plowed under. That which had been plowed recovered by the native grasses on the border. This in turn saved all the long grasses of the prairie. Ygritte had read also in her perusal of texts about the lands of Westeros and Essos. She thought that the Sandhills in many ways mirrored the lands of the Dothraki Sea. There the land was flat and not hilly but the grass habitat was much the same.

Instead of farming some ranching had taken hold with maybe two hundred thousand heads of cattle ranged the Western most part of the Sandhills. The cattle allowed to range up and down the gentle hills cropping grass and drinking from beaver dammed ponds and many fresh water marshes and the creeks feeding the few rivers that slowly began their journeys to the sea.

This unique ecosystem was the largest and most intricate wetland ecosystem in Westeros. Ygritte read that the Sandhills contained a large array of plant and animal life. Minimal crop production has led to limited land fragmentation; the resulting extensive and continuous habitat for plant and animal species has largely preserved the biodiversity of the area.

The Sandhills' thousands of ponds and lakes replenished the Ogallala Aquifer in a feedback loop. This in turn fed the creeks and rivers such as the Niobrara and Loup Rivers. These bodies of water were homes for many species of fish. The lakes were mainly sandy-bottomed and provide water for the region's cattle and animal wildlife, as well as a habitat for aquatic species. However, some lakes in the area were alkaline and supported several species of phyllopod shrimp.

Many of the plants of the Sandhills were sand-tolerant species from short-grass, mixed-grass and tallgrass prairies; plants from all three of these could be found within the ecosystem. These plants had helped to stabilize the sand dunes, creating an ecosystem beneficial for other plants and animals.

This ecosystem was home to many species of insect found in the Sandhills. These included dragonflies, grasshoppers and mosquitos. There are also many types of spiders. Due to the ephemeral nature of both alkaline and freshwater lakes throughout the region, coupled with the wetland marsh areas, mosquito populations increased during the summer months.

Ygritte was thankful that it was winter now. They would not be able to use their magic as a shield. It might be spotted by the Queen’s dragons and cause an attack. They knew the dragons were honed to seek out magic that would naturally associate with the Ice King and attack with great vigor.

The Sandhills were part of the Central Flyway for many species of migratory birds, and the region's many bodies of water give the birds places to rest. The ponds and lakes of the region were lay-over points for migratory cranes, geese, and many species of ducks. Species found year-round include the western meadowlark, loons, grouse and bobwhites.

It was this great biodiversity that had attracted Eddard Stark’s interest. It was the fauna that cemented his decisions.
The Sandhills were home to over three hundred vertebrate species including mule deer, white-tail deer, wolves, coyotes, red fox, whooping cranes, wild turkeys, badgers, skunks, native bat species and many fish species.

More exciting to Ygritte was the report that in the depths of this land and Barrowlands Shadowcats still roamed. She read reports from the Maesters that large black and grizzly bears were reported to still stalk the lands. In the barrow lands Cave Bears, Sloths and Hyenas were rumored to still exist.

Eddard five years ago had taken his three oldest sons south to visit the Reeds in their home of Greywater Watch. They had taken the King’s Highway south in the past but Eddard had always wanted to travel the back tracks of the Sandhills. That decision had opened his eyes.

They had traveled slowly deeper into the Sandhills far away from any penetration of man. The land was quiet with only the sounds of nature around them. The father and his sons camped underneath the stars with only a small fire. Eddard soaked up the pure air and did not want to defile this land with the mark of man. He wanted their mark on this land to be nonexistence.

It was the fourth day into the depths of the Sandhills as they crested a three hundred foot high dune covered with rich grass and thick flowers of spring. The hills resplendent with Wild Geranium, Anemone, Columbine and Ginger. Also on the hills with their bright flowers were Bishop's Cap, Prairie Buttercup and Violets along with Golden Alexanders. The colors of red, yellow, blue, purple and orange filling the hills.

When they crested the hill they all stopped and gasped. Below them in the shallow valley that was three miles wide was a pride of Lions! They had been thought to be extinct in eastern Westeros. Below them were two males lions and nine female lions and some cubs. The two males were lying around looking regal with their resplendent dark manes. The female lions were lying around with cubs nursing and several cubs were running around being playful.

The four men looked at each other smiling. A kitten no matter its size was always cute to behold. The two male lions suddenly tensed spotting Eddard and his sons on the far distance height. Eddard told his sons to be calm. Gradually, the lions relaxed seeing that they were not in danger. The pride still closely observed Eddard’s party. They had learned to be wary of man. The lions looked at the three young Direwolves. This relaxed the pride of lions. Top of the food chain predators did not attack each other but rarely if their territories were not invaded. The predators were relaxed with the distance between them.

Eddard had been excited. If this pride existed there had to be more. The male lion only lasted on average two to three years as head of a pride. Brothers sometimes teamed up to conquer a pride in tandem and once in a while three brothers working in concert. The lions continued to eye them warily but seemed to relax when they sensed they were safe. When males neared sexual maturity they were kicked out of the pride. They had to find other females not of their bloodline to mate with. Therefore, Eddard knew there had to be other lions. Eddard knew that he could preserve and hopefully grow those numbers.

They had moved on going back down the hill and looped wide around the valley of the lion pride. They traveled on for three hours more. It was in the late afternoon that they received yet another shock. They were at a small creek when the shock came upon them. The boys’ Direwolves started barking and running around in circles. In the mud by the creek were footprints. They were of a large Direwolf.

Jon told his wives that Eddard had broken down and cried knowing they still existed below the Wall this far South. If this one existed there must be others in the far off hinterlands of the North. He vowed at that moment he would protect and revive what man had nearly destroyed. Too see visual evidence that two long thought extinct species still lived and thrived in his lands changed Eddard Stark.

He now knew that in the Sandhills and most probably in the craggy depths of the Barrowlands lived precious life that man had nearly exterminated. He vowed on that creek bed that he would change that. His sons avidly agreed and pledged themselves to the cause.

When he had returned to Winterfell he outlawed the killing of all top tier predators. Eddard imposed stiff fines and made it known he would imprison those who were repeat offenders. Eddard had quickly passed new ordinances when there was a surge of lynx, bobcats and wolverine killings. They were too protected. Eddard had instituted a payment system for lost animals. There was huge numbers to begin with. He had then sent out an edict to send the remains of the animal carcass to Winterfell. It was explained the Direwolves could smell the scent of any animal on the carcass.

When the animal was verified, restitution would be sent. If found to be false heavy fines would be instituted after the person was made to again show the direwolves the carcass face to face. Eddard had made up the fact of the Direwolves noses being that refined but the false claims plummeted. The wolves could usually tell but not always. Eddard did not mind stretching the truth a little when it promoted the common good.

A farmer had killed a cougar. Eddard fined him twenty crowns. He had then killed a wolverine. Eddard removed half his sheep. The man wailed but Eddard advised him he would setup the man to work as a tanner in the local hold if he had trouble being a farmer under the new edicts. The man had seen the wisdom of following the edicts and the word quickly spread. The killings stopped.

Several sheep herders decided to sell their sheep and started to raise wolf hounds to sell to shepherds and farmers. The animals trained to scare away and not attack the raiding animals. Their large size and having several together intimated away all the predators from the grazing animals or animal pens. No predator wanted to fight other predators if there was other game about. This had formed a new cottage industry of raising the hounds and then visionary doctors started caring for the dogs which opened new revenue streams.

Then some enterprising trappers started giving controlled journeys into the wild that were closely supervised to let city folk and nobles see nature as they never imagined it. Now the citizens in the hinterlands wanted the animals to support their new eco-tourism. Eddard had heard the term in a tome from Tyrosh. Eddard was working to establish this new industry in the hinterlands inland from the ports and major cities of the North. It was amazing what the rich would pay to see. For them it was almost like them seeing dragons.

The two Shadowbender witches had traveled six days through the Sandhills and were approaching the King’s Road. The witches could feel that they were getting closer to the Queen. They could feel her magic. It was both like and unlike Jon’s magic. Jon’s magical aura felt closer to the surface of their husband. The Queen’s magic seemed buried deeper in her spirit. It was as powerful just different.

They had been shocked when they then felt another powerful magical presence near the Queen. The only other magical mages were from the east and this magic did not have that feel. Westeros had by and large forgotten how to wield magic. Only in the far North with the Children of the Forest did it still live. The person they could feel was definitely not a Shadowbender. They did not have a magical brother or sister riding with the Queen. This person’s aura mirrored the Queen’s. It was as strong but seemed new and raw still needing to be burnished.

The witches focused on the Queen’s magic and the doppelganger with her but could not put their finger on the magical signature. It was buried deep in their bodies. Almost as if they were one with the magic. When they had opened their senses to the world and to the magic they had felt the same pulse of magic far away to the South. It felt even newer than the doppelganger with the Queen but it was as powerful if not more so than the Queen’s. It was too far away to worry about for the nonce.

The witches were not overly concerned. Daenerys Targaryen was a force for good like their husband. Any magic that mimicked her magic would also be for good.

As they had journeyed through the Sandhills to reach the Queen on the King’s Road Ygritte had many pleasant memories. The evening as they came out of the thicket of new willows by a stream. A prairie fire had swept through Ygritte read in the landscape about fifteen years ago and the willows had grown rapidly with the freedom of lack of competition of burnt out plant life. As they dropped their glamour they saw a fox walk right by them as they and their horses remained still and quiet. The fox stopped just beyond them without ever noticing them invading his domain.

They had passed thickets of trees filled with brambles underneath full of all types of berries that birds were feasting on. They would startle beveis of quail and grouse that rose up in explosions of sound and buffeting air with the birds scattering. They saw deer at dawn and dusk looking at them from the edge of stands of trees watching them warily. Their dark eyes following their movements their bodies’ tense ready to bolt at a moment’s notice.

Ygritte had started to form the idea of making this land their new home. In time the animals would come to trust her and her spouses. They would become one with this land. They would become its wardens as Eddard Stark was the Warden of the North.

The dunes did not have particular pattern edges. The Sandhills’ vistas were shaped by the vagaries of the blowing wind. Some hills sandy, some only sparsely clothed in grass and some resplendent with prairie grass. They had looked out from a hilltop to a shallow valley of brown grasses and sages with green oasis dotted throughout from water bubbling up from the aquifers underneath. Each hilltop opened to vistas totally unlike the previous shallow valleys.

Jon had made it clear to his wives that as soon as the war with the Ice King was over and he attempted to set a new direction for the order of the Night’s Watch he would then resign his commission. After all he had done and accomplished with the defeat of the Ice Wright King he would have earned it. He was tired of men. He knew his father would in the end support him. His betrayal by his brothers would ensure that.

They had discussed where they wanted to live. Their cabin in the woods near the Wall was idyllic but it was too close to the Wall for Jon’s comfort. They had told Jon it would be hidden from all senses with their magic but he wanted to be away from the place of his betrayal. He would always be able to feel the Wall’s looming presence. When they came out of the woods to the north and east and with only a short travel the Wall would be there on the horizon.

They had all agreed they had no desire to go back to Asshai. It was a dark land and the people inhabiting it were dark and dire. Ygritte and Melisandre had too many bad memories of their homeland. Jon had bad dreams of the original Azor Ahai killing his wife with his sword when they all knew now that it had not been necessary.

They had talked of living in the deep hidden valleys of the Ice Fangs or the Vale. Ygritte had liked that idea. Her Wilding past gave those thoughts merit. Jon was neutral. He wanted only to be away from the Wall. Melisandre would go wherever her spouses went. Her only desire was to be with them. The land of the Ice Fangs was primal and untamed. The soaring heights of the mountains and deep mountain valleys a perfect land to get lost in. A home away from man.
Now Ygritte wondered if they might not find a home in the depths of this land of rolling hills and meadows. They had spotted several thick tree grooves in the shallow valleys between tall hills of sands with a creek flowing in the middle hidden by the trees. Sunlight filtered through and with their witch powers they could easily fashion a home among the branches. They would stabilize the immediate sand hills to keep their home safe and stable.

It had merit. She would decide but she liked it here. Plus, even though she did not truly feel the cold anymore she would be happy not freezing her ass off for no reason. This place was damn right balmy!

Only twice had they felt any danger. The second day of their journey as they snuggled in their glamour after hours of sweet fucking Ygritte was combing her fingers through her wife’s sweaty lank hair. They heard a mighty scream of a large cat. Ygritte felt an elation run through her. It was a shadowcat! She calmed a frightened Melisandre who clutched her naked body to the once Wildling. Ygritte told her wife of the beast’s beauty. The beauty of its dark fur with even darker strips. The way its ears had tufts on them and their generally bobbed tails. They were truly beautiful.

Melisandre had only wanted it to be gone. She did not need to have it so close for her to feel its beauty she told her wife. Ygritte had kissed her wife’s sweaty forehead to comfort her trembling wife. She told Melisandre that the shadowcat was merely marking its territory. Her wife was still nervous. She had taken her sweet wife’s attention away from the shadowcat with her mouth sucking her sweet wife’s camel toe. Soon Melisandre thoughts were only on her wife.

Ygritte did no mind having to resort to fucking her wife hard again to take her mind off her silly fears. The sacrifices she made for her wife!

Two days back they felt one of the Queen’s dragons flying their way. They raised their glamour of invisibility. He was like a fiery comet riding across the sky. They slowed their pace and hummed a spell of invisibility. They had seen dragons many times since their arrival in the land of Westeros flying high in the sky.

This dragon was flying much lower. Only four hundred feet up. His body a midnight shape in the dark sky. It was the green one with gold highlights their witch vision told them. It flew with easy sweeps of its mighty wings. The witches could feel it looking for a meal and the confidence the beast felt. Before the dragons had flown over the witches without noticing them their glamour easily hiding them and their magic from the mighty beast.

The dragon flew overhead its neck moving right and left as I looked over the landscape. Suddenly the beast rose up and did a slow turn. The witches slowed their horses to a standstill and added more runes to their chants strengthening their glamour. The dragon circled several times flying right over them once. The dragon’s senses satisfied the mighty beast flew off.

They were near the Queen now. They had changed their pattern and rested a full day in the corpse of trees they camped in. They needed light for what was needed. They had left at dawn and began the last march to the King’s Highway.

They could feel the Queen and the other beacon of magic pulsing before them. They had timed their arrival to intercept the Queen and her party to meet in the late morning. Their magic worked best in shadows but they would need the light of a full clear day to do what was needed in defense of the realm.

They crested a low ridge of anchored sand dunes and saw the column. Neither of the witches were used to the formation of military forces and were impressed with the horses and knights. The standards of the various houses of the South colorful in the bright light. They saw the Queen and the other source of magic on horses at the head of the column. The source was a woman. That made them smile.

They slowly moved their party of six horses towards the King’s Road. With their witch enhanced sight and hearing they heard the picket line on the outskirts of the column spot them and riders going back to the column. More riders rode out to them. They silently inspected them and seeing no immediate risk they fanned out around the slow canter of the witches’ horses. The men and a woman did not try to hem in the Shadowbenders. They kept a distance between themselves and Ygritte and Melisandre. They were quiet and respectful. This spoke highly of the discipline instilled in the Queen’s forces.

The column had come to a halt and the Queen and her magical partner along with other riders slowly moved off the road and moved to meet them. Ygritte saw men with strong bodies and light armor watching them warily as the two parties came together three hundred yards off the road.

The witches had discussed many times about this meeting as they moved south and then west. Jon and they had discussed this before they left. Jon said that the more time there was between meeting the forces of the Queen and their divination the more likelihood that something amiss could occur. These were proud leaders and had been brought up to have a distrust of magic in general. The fact of them being women would also be an impediment but the Queen should be ameliorating that issue.

Ygritte and Melisandre had decided to force the issue immediately. They wanted to get their part accomplished and hope the leaders would believe their eyes. Seeing was believing.

The two groups looked at each other for a long moment. Both groups sizing the other up. Each trying to gauge the intentions and the abilities to make those intentions occur.

The witches saw now that the other beacon of magical power was a young girl about sixteen. She was not that much bigger than the Queen though a heavier build. She had brown hair that came down to her back and framed her face in ringlets. Her eyes were grey and very intelligent.

The witches saw tendrils of magic constantly reaching out between the Queen and this other woman. The magic hesitated and then backed off from twining between the two women. Melisandre looked at her wife. It was obvious the two were desperately in love and their magic wanted to bind together much like their and Jon’s magic had begun to interweave with their merged love. It took lovemaking to fully bind and intertwine their magic. The two would work out their fear and the innocence of the younger girl they easily perceived.

They would make a good pairing.

The white blond woman came forward one more step. “I am Daenerys Targaryen, First of my Name and Breaker of Slave’s Chains. I pleased to meet you. Can we know your names?”

The two witches pulled their hoods back. They both smirked when the men saw their red heads. Ygritte chuckled to herself. Men were so easy. Everyone wanted redheads. The two women only had eyes for each other. Horses neighed softly and stomped their hooves as the humans gazed at each other.

The two parties eyed each other. Both sides sizing each other. Were the force they facing friend or foe? The women were unarmed and were totally relaxed. The women not projecting any aggressive body language.

Ygritte went to speak up. She knew Melisandre always wanted to support and not lead if she or Jon would. She was strong and would take the point if necessary but she would rather support her spouses. Ygritte smiled thinking how supporting and loving her sweet wife was. She was the most powerful witch to every live and she was still the sweet gentle slave she had saved so many years ago when she had come to Ygritte. She had not known Melon would be so mighty of course. She had chosen wisely.

“We are Ygritte and Melisandre. We are Shadowbender witches of the land of Asshai. We have journeyed here to marry and support Azor Ahai reborn. You would have known him as Jon Snow.”

The young girl beside the Queen gasped. “You are married to Jon?!” The white haired Queen cocked an eyebrow. Her face remained neutral.

“Yes we are.”

The other woman filled with magic face broke into a large smile. “How is he? Is he happy? What is happening at the Wall? You are both his wife? Has he mentioned me? I miss him so much. Are you here because of the Ice King?”

The Queen reached over with a smile and touched the young girl. “Let them speak Arya? This is Jon’s youngest sister. She loves him dearly.”

The sixteen year old blushed furiously.

Melisandre moved closer to Ygritte. They smiled to finally meet the younger sister of Jon. He had spoken so often with great fondness of the younger girl. She had been the one sibling that accepted him totally despite his bastardy and the actions of their mother. Thus, Jon had loved his youngest sister greatly.

“Arya. He has spoken of you at length and yes he misses you and loves you very much. You were always his favorite sibling.”

The girl’s chest swelled hearing that. Jon had told them that Arya had always been filled with the wolf. This had given their father great consternation with his youngest daughter always defying his and his wife’s attempts to reign her in and get her to live her young life as a ‘proper lady’. Eddard had given up and let the girl live her dreams. Her mother not so much.

“Jon is happy Arya though he is weighed down with the burden of command. We are his wives and have come here to show the Leaders of the Southern Houses that the enemy is not Eddard Stark but the risen Ice King.”

“Ha! That is just a fable” Stannis barked out.

“We do not believe in snarks and goblins. What are two women doing out by themselves in this wild land anyways? Where is your husband?” Mace spoke up.

Daenerys pinched her nose. She half turned her head and glared at the man. He was oblivious to the glares flinging out of the lilac eyes that bored into his form.

“We have walked in the camp of the Ice King in his far off always frozen and dark kingdom.”

“How?” Garlan asked. There was not derision in his voice. Only curiosity.

Ygritte’s voice was calm and controlled but easily reached all ears. Melisandre was doing a soft arcane chant. Ygritte’s voice projected to the entire encampment. “We have walked unseen in the flesh of dead animals long frozen in a silent fetid bog that bordered his camp at the top of the world.
His camp an icy wasteland. We have seen him transforming babies and young boys of men into his vile sons. We have seen their bodies changing from living flesh to icy death. We have seen the horizon filled with risen dead. He has created an army of Ice Wright and dead.”

All were staring at them in silence now. The calm voice almost invoking visions of what she was telling them of.

“He has converted thousands of young babies and toddler into frozen Ice Wrights. Those are just the ones we have seen. He has converted many more. He is even now marching to the wall. We have seen that he is cautious. He still feels his previous death at the hand of our husband. The Ice King knows that Azor Ahai has been reborn in Jon Snow. The Ice King has now camped at the Fist of the First Men. We will take you there in our shadow form.”

“How?” asked the Queen.

“We are shadowbenders my Queen” Ygritte replied. We will form a phoenix from the blood of our veins and from yours and your leaders blood and fly to the Fist of the First Men. You will see, hear and feel all that we do. Come.”

The two witches urged their horses forward as the party parted. As planned their words and actions had caught and ensnared the Queen and her forces. The Queen and the leaders of the South looked at each other and then moved off the road to follow the witches. They wanted to now know if these strange red headed women spoke the truth.

They walked their horses away from the side of road and moved off to a small patch of grasslands with short grass. The witches dismounted and went to their pack horses. They pulled out a shallow basin and a long obsidian knife that was narrow and razor sharp.

“Please dismount and gather around us” Melisandre softly called out. Ygritte smiled seeing most of the men filled with consternation with her height and obvious strength. Her presence unconsciously made the men want to follow her softly spoken commands.

Ygritte held up the black knife while Melisandre placed the shallow basin on the ground. “You will line up and cut your hands and let your blood flow into the basin. We will go first and then the royalties will go next. Those of highest royalty will go first.”

“Why should we?” Oberyn asked. His natural inability to follow commands showing its unruly head.

“Do you want to see the truth?”

“Why should we do what some priestess from a far off land tells us to do?” This was Renly. “We do not worship your god.” The group stared at each other.

It was the Queen that broke the logjam. She broke the impasse with her force of will. “I will go first” Daenerys spoke “I will not compel any to follow me but I am not afraid and I trust these women.”

Arya spoke up “I too trust these women. If Jon married them then they have to be good.”

There was still hesitation. These women were unknown and came from across the world. They were witches that most were raised to askew and to think of negatively.

Oberyn looked around. He would always follow the lead of his Queen. He barked out a derisive laugh. “As in all things the House of Dorne leads where others fear to tread”. He dismounted. He got behind his Queen. The rest of the High Lords looked at each other. They all started to dismount.

The others quickly lined up behind the Red Viper vying to be next not be outdone. Ygritte saw the man smirk at the Queen. He had shamed all the others to follow his lead. The Queen had a powerful ally in this man.

Ygritte slowly half turned looking at all the Lords and Generals of the Queens forces. She finished looking at the Queen.

“Much of our magic is based on blood. Generally, we use our own but this is a special circumstance. We need as much power as we can get. Your royal blood will greatly enhance our efforts. Also, with our mingled blood in our bowl you will see, hear and feel all that we do. After our trip to the Fist of the First Men you will no longer doubt our words. Eddard Stark and our husband has worked to make this moment occur.”

Ygritte saw the Queen look around with a slightly anxious look. Ygritte felt Melisandre in her mind “She is part of the deception.” Ygritte answered her sweet wife “I like her already.”

“We will cut ourselves first and the Queen and her friend will go next. Then the rest of the gathered will cut their palm and let their blood flow into the basin. Our blood will comingle and fuse into one. By this bonding we shall share our vision with you.”

“The more of your blood you can share the greater of the magic will be.”

“What do you propose to do?” the white haired Queen asked them with rapt attention.

“We will create a blood Phoenix from our spirits and the power of our and your blood. We will call forth a demon from a Stagyan Hell. With our mingled blood and our magic we will bind the demon to our blood Phoenix construct. We will fly to the Fist of the First Men. You will see what see. You will feel what we feel. You will no longer question what has been reborn. The Ice King desires all of our deaths. We have felt it and now you will feel it. His hate and avarice radiates off of him like a hot sun. He also has an abomination on his back that suckles from this throat. It too is a vile loathsome thing. It is the pure embodiment of evil.”

Melisandre and Ygritte came to stand before each other. Looking deeply into each other’s eyes they quickly divested themselves of their robes that they let fall to the ground. The women stood naked before each other.

There were loud gasps around them. Daenerys glared at the men who either were shocked, snickering or gazing lustfully at the two naked red haired women. The women were indeed beautiful but this was not the time to ogle these women. The women looked at each other and began to murmur a discordant chant. The women ignored all around them.

The men lost their lustful or confused looks. The chant was disconcerting. They all could feel the great power being summoned. They started to feel an itchy feeling on their exposed skin. They felt like ants were crawling all over their skin. The men and women’s faces twitched and hands jerked with the unsettled feeling.

Then Melisandre bent down and ran the blade across her palm. The cut to her palm deep. Her red rich blood flowed down her hand into the basin. She did this for a minute and then handed the knife to her wife. The wound magically beginning to slowly heal. Ygritte bent down and cut her palm and let the blood run liberally down her hand and into the basin. She kept her hand over the basin as blood dripped heavily into the basin.
She stood up and handed the blade to Queen. Ygritte got in front of Melisandre. The two women stared hard and deep into each other’s eyes. Ygritte interlocked her fingers with Melisandre’s with their hands held low and their blood wept on their interlocked hands.

The queen knelt now over the bowl and cut her hand and let her blood run into the basin for a minute. She had cut deeply and the blood ran liberally into the basin.

She tried to hand the blade to Oberyn but Arya glared at the Queen. The Queen started to protest but her young ‘royal hostage’ grabbed the blade and knelt quickly as Daenerys clucked at her to not hurt herself. The sixteen year old glared up at the Queen and cut her hand just as deeply. Her blood flowed into the bowl.

Ygritte noticed distantly that the Queen and Arya had set a high bar. The other Lords and Generals would have to follow suite or lose face. Ygritte admired the verve of this Queen and her longed for love interest. They were both strong and brave.

Next in line was the tall slender man with a thin beard. He was good looking. He waggled his eyebrows at the witches as he cut his hand deeply like his Queen and her consort. He let his blood flow into the basin. Ygritte could sense the goodness in this man. He winked at them. He was definitely cheeky. She felt goodness in all the men gathered around her.

One by one the knife was handed off and palms cut to let bleed into the basin. Finally, all the persons around the basin had cut their palms. Their wounds slowly healing up as the blood flow lessened and then began to drip from the healing cuts.

The basin began to bubble and a high pitch warble began to emanate from the bowl. Several of the gathering looked at the bowl that now had a red haze about it with more than a hint of concern. All felt the ants now crawling avidly all over their bodies. The tension was rising in the air. The sounds from the bowl escalating into a high pitched song of power and shocking dissonance. All were now focused on the bowl and the discordant singing witches.

For a minute Ygritte and Melisandre hummed their magic. They were ready now.

“Pour the blood over us.”

Stannis started. He had felt the witches touch his mind. He shook his head. He moved to comply. He was the tallest in the assemblage. He went to the bowl and knelt down. He carefully lifted it up. The bowl was heavy with its construction of rose quartz and blood that had seemed to multiple somehow and filled the bowl. He slowly lifted the bowl. Stannis gritted his teeth being careful and lifted the basin up over the chanting witches.

Once over their heads he tilted the bowl over. All gasped as a heavy flood of red ichor flowed out of the bowl in a flood that took over half a minute to empty. The red liquid splashed onto Ygritte and her wife and flowed down their bodies slicking their bodies with bloody ichor and hot life giving blood magic.

All were shocked at this strange display of the witches. The ritual strange and arcane. They were all transfixed by what they saw. The Queen and Arya clasped hands watching the ritual.

Their hair matted and the blood soaked into their skin. She and Melisandre felt exalted. Blood magic was both wild and powerful. The witches controlled the wild arcane magic trying to surge free. Realities were wrapped and bent as forces tried to grab ahold of the power they had projected. Powerful forces and entities surged into the rent of reality. The witches beat down the demons reaching for what was not theirs. They were prepared for this assault and easily first resisted and then ensnared the demons trying to overwhelm them. Unheard by human ears were the screams of rage and fear of demons being mastered.

The witches were exalted. It was the demons who were bound and controlled. It was demons’ nature to always assault those who called them. Their native power and arrogance was legendary. It compelled them to answer the summons. They always felt assured they would overcome and either control or kill those who dared to summon them. Shadowbenders trained and practiced their spells to make that not so. They always reigned supreme and the demons always subjected. It had always been thus and would always be so. It was so now. The yammering demons had been enthralled by the two witches.

The witches selected the most powerful demon to become ensnared in their net. The rest they banished back to their dimension and sealed the portal removing the rent in reality.

Finally, the bowl emptied and the woman were soaked in blood. Their bodies began to pulse and waver before the now shocked assemblage. A low thrum could both be heard and felt. The women’s bodies seemed to shimmer and waver. Their bodies slowly became translucent. The ground beyond them could dimly be seen through their bodies.

All watched with large eyes. Even Daenerys Targaryen who had seen much magic in her journeys across Essos stood transfixed by what she saw. She could sense the demonic might the women had captured with their spell. It fought mightily but was easily controlled. She doubted the others could sense what she felt in the morrow of her bones. If these women lost control of the forces they enthralled their party would be torn asunder. The forces were that mighty. Only the Valyrian swords among them would be able to fight what these witches had so easily controlled.

The witches sang louder. The blood began to steam off their bodies turning black on their skin. The women’s eyes rolled into the back of their skulls the whites showing. A rictus smile appeared on their bodies as they concentrated. A penumbra appeared around their bodies and seemed to ignite at their joined hands.

Suddenly a horrible scream of rage and controlled violence screeched across the landscape. The scream echoing off unseen mountains. The scream had been a force of rage and might. A blood red Phoenix ripped from their bodies and hovered above them. It twice the size of a golden eagle with wings twenty feet across. It flapped its wings hovering looking at the men and women gathered with baleful eyes. While its body was blood red its eyes blazed a hot gold and roiled like hot magma in the heart of a volcano.

The thing’s baleful ire radiated off it like a red hot comet of hate. The beast eyed the humans with hate and the desire to rend bodies’ limb from limb. It screamed several more times as it body surged and juked trying to break the witches control over it. The witches’ song changed pitch and timber and the blood Phoenix screamed one more time and ceased to struggle against their control. It was defeated.

The song changed again and the mighty bird screamed in rage and turned its head. Its mighty wings flapped fast and furious. A hurricane of wind buffeted the humans. With a scream of might and need to fulfill its mission the mythological beast was gone already a fading dot on the horizon.

“Open your senses” all the men and women gathered around the witches heard in their minds.

Men gasped and staggered. The Queen, Arya, Barristan and Strong Belwas were not phased being used to the feel of the slipstream of fast flight the others were experiencing for the first time. Men’s eyes teared with the force of the air slamming into her faces and the sound of the air rushing over their ears near deafening.
“Focus within yourselves! Concentrate on yourselves and the sensations will lessen!” Daenerys called out helping the men to absorb these new sensations. She too felt the immense speed of this magical construct of the witches.

Slowly the men got used to the sensations. Plus, they instinctively felt that the witches were now shielding all as the Phoenix picked up speed. This put the gathered assemblage more at ease feeling the witches using some of their power to protect them. All the gathered could hear and feel the wind flashing over the bird’s blood feathers and body. They could feel the cold of the air and how the ground now almost blurred beneath them. The bird looked up at the sun and changed its bearing twelve points truing its flight to its destination.

The wind and pressure seemed to build on their faces and a wall of mist formed before their eyes.

KABOOMMMMM! A thunderous clap of sound echoed across the land shaking the very trees to their roots.

They were through some barrier and the Phoenix screamed its exhalation. It flowed ever north now at a thousand fleet. The trees raced past below. Winterfell came into view and impossibly fast it grew in size and then the beast flew past the old castle faster than anyone could realize. The bird screamed its joy of flying underneath the clean sky and warm sun.

Impossibly soon a long line appeared on the horizon. It glowed a bright blue in the sky as the sun approached its azimuth in the sky. The line quickly grew into a towering barrier. The assembled saw the Wall. They saw with the eyes of the Phoenix. A dark blue force hummed and throbbed inside the towering wall of ice. Those assembled also saw golden pulses buried deep in several areas of the Wall. They felt the powerful magic in the blue band within the wall and the gold throbbing pulses buried deep in the wall.

The line of the Wall was soon almost upon them and the magical Phoenix was past almost before it could be registered that they had reached the Wall. The Phoenix screamed at the Wall in acknowledgement to the magic in the Wall that even it must bow before. All bowed before the might of the Staff of Law. All felt the soundless words and thoughts of the Blood Phoenix even though they had no understanding of what they were hearing and felt in the marrow of their bones.

The bird screamed and screamed as it flew on and then suddenly quieted as it backwashed its winds suddenly. The bird slowed its speed at a dizzying clip.

The bird now made a banking turn. All around the witches who still stood with clasped hands gasped and a few of the men staggered. They felt unmitigated hatred towards them. A raging and crushing evil that wanted to exterminate each and every one of them. The felt a hate of all that breathed and had hot blood pumping in their veins.

They felt the essence of hate and evil distilled in a monstrosity that was a dreadful life. They saw below them the rambling dead that filled the plains around The Fist of the First Men as far as the eye could see. The blood Phoenix banked and looked into the forests surrounding the Fist of the First Men to the North, South and East and they were filled with shambling dead. Beings long dead or only recently dead shambled. Many of the old dead rotting with dead black flesh that hung in tatters. All the dead with eyes that glowed with blue fire.

The blood phoenix eyes were able to penetrate the canopy of the Haunted forest to show the endless tide of shambling dead that staggered among the tree trunks awaiting clear directive from their king.

They saw Ice Rights walking and practicing with blue screaming swords of death. They saw Ice Giants. Few in number but terrible to behold. Then they saw the throne and the being that sat upon
It looked up at them with hatred in his eyes. The throne made of cold dead ice. On his back was a vile noxious thing made of yellow callow dead skin. They felt its staggering power that equaled the Ice King. The thing’s yellow eyes stared up at them as all clearly saw it drinking from the Ice King’s throat. Its hate for all life radiated off its callow form.

The Ice King’s army was limitless as the seas. They felt like they were looking at an endless sea of dead flotsam shambling about the Ice King’s throne.

I will kill you all was the clear thought they all heard in their minds.

Suddenly, blinding freezing pain filled their bodies and numbed their minds with shocking agonizing pain.

AAAAIIIIIIIIIIII! ARRRUUNGGGGGGG! The witches screamed in unison their bodies crumpling to the ground. Their screams continued as theirs bodies flipped and jackknifed in agony but their hands were still clasped as they writhed.

Anguish and searing freezing pain filled the men as many of them collapsed. The witches continued screaming as now many of the men were now thrashing and screaming. Bodies jerked and kicked wildly in agony. Something was attacking the blood phoenix unseen. The magical connection that bound all too all shared the agony the magical beast was suffering through.

Daenerys fell to her knees holding her head screaming. Arya was gritting her teeth as agony filled her body. Her body then flipped back and fell to the ground as she screamed wildly.

Nymeria was howling and snapping wildly at the air. The wolf ran over to Arya and Daenerys trying to protect them from an attack she could not see or understand. The mighty wolf ran in a zigzag back and forth around her masters her mouth slavering and her eyes on fire with anger and frenzy hearing and seeing her masters in agony.

The witches and those assembled were being killed with freezing agony that hit their backs and the back of their necks as the Phoenix staggered in the air. The mighty beast screaming as more razors of frozen death sliced into its blood body. It was dying as those connected to it by magic were too dying.

Soon all would be dead.
Oberyn

Oberyn’s body felt like icy daggers were piecing his body as he fell to one knee wrapping his arms around his ribs trying to control his pain. He saw Mace on the ground gagging and his general Davos Uller was vomiting hard his last meal splashing on the ground. Renly looked ashen as he rolled on his back. Stannis was bent over staggering as another slash of piercing pain rolled over their bodies. More men collapsed on the ground. Some of those men joining others to scream in agony.

The Queen and Arya was writhing and rolling around on the ground the whites of their eyes showing. They bucked and writhed. All were gasping as the pain seared their bodies. Oberyn had picked up a pattern of the pain slamming into the bodies like ice daggers were being hurled into their bodies. The pain was overwhelming. There had definitely been four pauses of some medium amount of time between assaults. Everyone was too stunned and in great pain to do anything. The pain and their throwing up and sickness this installed incapacitated all.

They were now in another pause of the attack. Oberyn gathered his wits trying to decide what needed to be done with the short reprieve. He gritted his teeth to concentrate his eyes flicking around to all around him. He felt too weak to affect any rescue.

The attacks had come from overhead. Whatever it was making its attack it would attack and then fly past and swirl around to come in for another pass. He analyzed the attack and knew he was correct. He trusted his ability to analyze a battlefield. Oberyn and everyone else were feeling the attacks piercing the body of the Blood Phoenix’s body. The magical creature’s body was able to absorb the dagger blows and was just beginning to heal when the next assault was flung down on the staggering mythical creature.

The Queen and her royal hostage were moaning and sobbing as were the witches. The women’s bodies were convulsing all over. Their eyes rolled back of their heads with foam drooling out slack mouths. The men were starting to recover again from the last assault. The problem was that just as he and the other men started to recover they were laid low by the next assault on the blood phoenix. Oberyn was surprised that the Daenerys and Arya were being affected so much more than the men. They had seemed to be stronger and more resilient than their male counterparts. Oberyn had long seen this magic in Cersei. The same magic filled the Queen and Arya Stark. They should have shrugged off these assaults. Why were they so affected he wondered wildly to himself.

Suddenly they were all screaming again as they felt the ice daggers slamming into the back of the Blood Phoenix yet again. The beast was too wounded to flee or fight back. The Blood Phoenix was using all its might to try and heal its body but each assault had its recovery slower and less effective.
The beast’s shrill shrieks echoed in the souls of all who had partaken of the blood ritual of bonding. The Phoenix nearly fell out of the sky this time staggering. Again and again they all felt the daggers slamming into the body of the mythological bird. Each dagger that pierced the Phoenix pierced their bodies as well by proxy. Oberyn fell onto his face screaming. He heard Stannis bellow as he fell down too but somehow rose up to his knees as Oberyn stared at him drooling mindlessly.

The two witches and the Queen and Arya were screaming constantly now. The four women were convulsing now their heels slamming the ground. All four women were choking as they fought swallowing their tongues. Oberyn finally understand as all four women’s bodies seemed to mirror each other as they convulsed and flipped. Their screams shrill and growing weaker.

The attack had passed for the moment again. He had to act now. Whatever was attacking was flying off and would be circling back all too soon.

Nymeria eyes were aglow with fear and rage. The Direwolf leapt around her fur bristled as she slavered drool that flung around wildly as the mighty wolf shook its head. Nymeria’s dire wails filled the air as her masters’ distress drove the wolf nearly wild. The Direwolf sensed the danger to its masters and her inability to save them was driving Nymeria wild.

Oberyn staggered. He was starting to get his wits back again but he realized he was recovering slower and he was getting weaker with every attack. He knew instinctively what was happening. He and his people still believed in magic and the mystical. The blood magic of the witches had bound them altogether. Through that link they were all suffering with the blood phoenix.

The witches were magic incarnate. The Queen and Arya Stark were also infused with magic. Oberyn had seen that. Cersei was infused with the same magic. Their very magical core was leaving them totally open to the attacks. Oberyn and the others were being savaged but the four women were being eviscerated by what was assaulting them.

Oberyn knew that he had to act. These four women were dying before his very eyes. He and his fellow lords and the high generals were likely to follow. Even if they survived they would be a rabble without their Queen to unite them. Time was running out. The Queen and Arya were filled with magic that made them more susceptible to the attack. Their magical essence opened them to the attack as much as it did the witches. The witches fingers were still interlocked their fingers glowing bright red. The connection still maintained that had formed the Blood Phoenix and kept it from fleeing as the comatose witches were not able to let the beast free.

Oberyn had that sudden insight. The beast could not flee its tormentor. It was bound by the will of the witches. Their last command had the blood phoenix circling the Ice King’s encampment so that all could see him and his army. The magical creature was still trapped obeying its last received command. It could not flee. Oberyn knew that the link between beast and witches had to be broken! Oberyn needed to act but he was in agony. He willed his limbs to stop twitching and his thoughts to clear.

Through the mystical link the blood magic allowed, Oberyn could feel the beast’s frantic desire to escape the attacks on its body but the now unconscious witches kept it still enthralled with its mission to spy on the Ice King. It could do naught but fly in a helpless wide circle. The blood phoenix was screaming its pain and fear above the Fist of the First Men. They had to break the beast free. They were slowly being cut up alive through their physic link with the Blood Phoenix. Oberyn was not sure if he and the men would die but the women with their magical link would most definitely perish.

“Aarrruuunnggggg!” Oberyn growled out heaving himself up to his knees. Stannis was back on his feet. The massive man staggered his 6’6” frame heaving for breath getting his wits back about him. Normally, Oberyn would be pissed that the Baratheon was first to his feet but now was not the time for petty House politics.

Since Robert’s rebellion most of the major houses had been at relative peace. This had not been the case with Dorne. Oberyn had been in constant combat keeping the rebellious Lords of his land in line and the constant struggles with the desert raiders in the hinterlands of Dorne.

Stannis had fought actively in Robert’s rebellion. The other Lords were much more like Mace and had not fought in actual combat letting their generals and vassal Lords fight. Not Stannis he had fought actively in Robert’s Rebellion and helped quash the Kraken rebellion that broke out several years into Robert’s rule.

Oberyn and Stannis had been hardened by combat. So had some of their generals as the groaned and tried to shake off the effects of the repeated assaults. Most were still prostate on the ground many of them having vomited multiple times. Oberyn thanked the gods that he had not eaten breakfast this morning.

They had to break the mystical link and free the beast. Oberyn knew that he had to act! Their Queen needed them!

Nymeria was in front of Oberyn barking wildly. Then the wolf ran up to Stannis barking furiously her tail straight out and thrashing wildly. The giant wolf was back in front of Oberyn again staring at him with her glowing eyes. Her head jerking with her harsh barks. The massive beast was beside herself in her panic for her masters.

The message was obvious; save my masters. The wolf’s will to help her masters helped to steady Oberyn.

Oberyn staggered up to one knee. He was near Ygritte. He felt his world go round and round suddenly and gritted his teeth gripping his temples with one hand. His world stopped tilting precariously.

“Stannis!” Oberyn bellowed.

The man looked at him. He was twenty feet from Melisandre. He glared at Oberyn thinking the Red Viper was about to insult him. At any other time he would probably have been correct. Oberyn motioned furiously for the Baratheon to come towards him.

“The witches!” Oberyn gasped at his erstwhile enemy. He started to move towards the smaller witch but his stomach rebelled. Oberyn staggered forward falling to both knees and then fell flat on his face as he fell three feet short of Ygritte the smaller witch.

Stannis understood what was needed. He staggered weaving indelicately forward his arms waving to keep his balance. It galled Oberyn that the Baratheon was able to still walk if woozily. Stannis moved forward and paused breathing hard and then staggered forward the rest of the distance to the naked body of the convulsing tall witch. Her eyes rolled back and she was making animal like noises now. Froth foamed out her mouth and ran down her chin and throat. She choked with foam and spittle spraying in the air.

Oberyn had heard the sound a fox had made when it gnawed its paw off to escape a snare. The tall witch sounded like that. The smaller witch nearer to him was shaking violently her mouth frothing as white foam filled and overfilled her mouth. Her eyes had rolled back into her skull again. The witches jerking obscenely again and again.

Their bodies covered with dirt that stuck to the red clotted blood soaked all over their bodies. Their rolling convulsions had covered their bodies with grime and bits of grass and leaves. They looked like some monstrous newborn demon spawn from the depths of a Stygian hell.

Oberyn clawed his fingers into the dirt and dragged himself forward until he reached the diminutive witch. Stannis had more raw strength than Oberyn as he slowly staggered upright to the taller redhead witch. It maddened Oberyn to see that. He would never admit it but he admired the man’s strength. He just hoped the man knew what to do. Oberyn was too weak to speak. He was operating off pure instinct and adrenaline. Oberyn rolled into the small woman’s limp body and tilted it over and gripped her body to his body spoon from behind hooking his legs over the woman’s legs and anchored her body to his. The smaller witch’s body weakly convulsing against Oberyn’s body.

The witches still linked by the iron clad grip of their interlocked fingers. Oberyn felt the blood and sweat that coated Ygritte’s body soaking into his clothes and skin.

Stannis reached the large witch not all that much shorter than himself. He feel to his knees behind the woman. Oberyn looked up at Stannis with his chin on Ygritte’s shoulder.

Stannis hefted up the larger woman into a sitting position her body twisting as she maintained the linked fingers grip with her wife. Melisandre’s arms outstretched as was Ygritte’s. The movements of Stannis getting the tall redhead witch up into a sitting position had jerked the smaller woman’s body. Stannis sat down behind the tall witch. Oberyn rolled his body forward to allow the smaller woman’s body to adjust as Melisandre was hefted up against Stannis’s body. Their hands were still Gripped together tight in a vice like grip of iron.

Stannis looped his arms underneath the tall woman’s arms and locked them around body and cross gripped his arms. He pulled Melisandre hard to his body. He paused clearly exhausted his breathing harsh.

Screams reverberated up and down the road. Shouts of confusion and panic filled the air. The column had run up the road to the gathered lords and knights milled around confused not sure what to do to save their scions.

The two men had moved as fast as their jerking and pain wracked bodies allowed to get the witches in their grip. Still, Oberyn new time was running out before the next attack. It seemed to be taking longer. He was sure whatever was attacking was basking in the pain and gall it was dispensing. It was savoring its victory. How typical of evil! That would be its downfall.

Oberyn nearly passed out but he kept his grip on the small witch’s body holding her tight to his body. His shocked wide open eyes with pain watched Stannis take a deep breath and scoot his feet underneath his ass and suddenly surged up and back. Oberyn followed suit twisting his body back and jerking hard on the smaller witches body. The bodies of the two witches lurched as they were jerked apart. Oberyn had jerked back with all his string but the witches grip held. Pain sliced into their bodies the pain agonizing.

Contact with the witches bodies was amplifying the pain Oberyn and Stannis felt. It did not matter. They had to succeed! Their Queen’s life depended on it. Then all screamed as a new storm of icy death started to penetrate the blood phoenix as it soared above the Fist of the First Men.

Oberyn nearly passed out. Stannis roared “Nooooooo! I will succeedddd!” and jerked back again with a prodigious heave of his coiled thighs and back muscles. Oberyn felt the grip between the witches suddenly snatch tight and then Stannis roared again keeping the pressure on his grip on Melisandre’s body and hunched down and launched back with all his fading strength. “Aaarrrrregghhhhhhhhhhhhhhh!” the Baratheon roared as he slammed his body back.
The arms of the witches were pulled taunt by Stannis pulling hard on Melisandre’s body and Oberyn anchoring Ygritte’s body so it could not move. The grip between the witches was broken with their intertwined fingers forcefully pulled apart. The link between their clenched fingers that had been glowing bright red winked out instantly.

At that exact moment over the Fist of the Fist Men the Blood phoenix juked right and the dagger storm hurling down from above moved in that direction as the Blood Phoenix then dove hard left and dove away. A mighty ragged high pitched piercing cry from the demon construct opened a trans-dimensional rift that the bird dove into and winked out of our plane of existence. A mighty clap of thunder sounded out rolling over the trees of the far north shaking their branches. It had escaped.

The men staggered getting their breath back. The four exhausted women were unconscious but no longer being flayed alive by the ice cold daggers that had been penetrating the Blood Phoenix’s body. Oberyn could only hope that they had not been hurt mortally.

He saw Stannis gently lay the tall witch down on the ground. He wavered on his knees.

“You did good Stannis” Oberyn croaked.

“Oberyn don’t take this the wrong way … fuck you …” the tall man toppled back onto the ground with his back landing with a hard thud onto the hard Earth unconscious.

Oberyn smirked. He could live with that. Stannis had saved the day. He would never here the end of it. He slipped into unconsciousness.

///

The world had finally stopped spinning. Oberyn slowly sat up on the edge of his cot. He had been in and out of consciousness for the last twelve hours. He was in a medical tent that had been erected. From the tent poles hung oil lamps that cast a soft glow about the tent. Large bowls of coal had been setup and burning providing warmth to the tent. The tent had been roughly divided in half. One side were still … Oberyn counted seven men lying on their backs recuperating. Several nurses were attending them. On the other side of the tent were the four women.

Oberyn got up slowly and made his way over to the Queen, her royal hostage and the two witches. Stannis was sitting on a low hunting stool made of canvas. He looked down at the Queen and then over at the witches as his nemesis approached. Oberyn saw a nurse from the army and several Dothraki women tending to the women. That did not surprise Oberyn. A large part of the Queen would always be Dothraki.

“How are they doing?” he asked Stannis.

The man looked up at Oberyn. His face was still ashen as he knew his was but more so. Oberyn was peeved again that Stannis seemed to basically have recovered already while Oberyn felt like a feather bumping into him would knock him over. Stannis looked at him intently. He looked back down at their Queen.

“She and Arya are exhausted but all the medical staff think they will recover. They just need to rest. You look shit Oberyn. The look becomes you” Stannis had a smirk on his face.

Oberyn smiled at the man. Stannis was loosening up. Just a little but it was a start.

Stannis then looked over at the cot that had the two witches. “The physicians and Maesters think they will be alright. They cannot be sure. They are witches. Their heartbeats are only like fifteen beats per minute and their pulse is also extremely slow but they assume that is natural for them. They Oberyn looked at the witches and then at the Queen and Arya observing their arrangement. "How come the witches are in one bed and the Queen and Arya are together in the same cot? That is not military triage protocol." Oberyn looked at the women covered with a sheet and furs that came up to their lower chests.

Stannis looked up at him. "They were all whimpering and thrashing. It was painful to watch. Daenerys kept thrashing her hands gasping. Arya kept moaning ‘Dany … Dany …’ The witches were not vocal but it was obvious."

"Obvious?" Oberyn was not sure he would need to play obtuse and start to spin a web of subterfuge.

"Oh come off it Oberyn. I may be of the old blood from an old House and have a rod up my ass but I am not blind."

Oberyn had to chuckle. At least the man knew who and what he was.

"The two witches are obviously lovers and Dany and Arya want to be. The four women all kept crying out and thrashing but once I put them in the same cot they reached out for each other and clapsed their bodies together as you see. They immediately ceased crying and whimpering and fell into this restful repose."

Oberyn indeed had seen it. The tall witch had the small witch lying on top of her body. The small woman’s head underneath her chin and her right hand grasping the tall witch’s left breast possessively.

When he turned to look at the Queen and Arya the Queen had scooted in and had an arm and leg thrown over Arya Stark her head tucked underneath the Stark girl’s chin. The sight was quite endearing.

Nymeria had laid beside the low cot on Daenerys side and laid her head over on Dany and Arya’s hooked legs. The wolf sleeping peacefully along with here masters. The shared body heat comforting to all.

"Does it bother you? This open blatant homosexuality … it is unnatural … right Stannis?" Oberyn probed. "That is our Queen holding onto Arya as a lover would."

Stannis’s jaws worked as he ground his teeth staring up at Oberyn. Then he sighed.

"Before I got to know the Queen and Arya I would have said ‘Yes’. But now, I don’t know … seeing the obvious love between them … I see the person and I just can’t condemn them even if my religion tells me I should. It is all very confusing actually."

"Stannis. I will admit I am not religious. I just judge the heart and character of the person. Are these people sinners who deserve hell?"

"No. No they are not. … … I will work it out Oberyn. I am not as hot blooded as you. I, for the life of me don’t see what you see in another man."

"I—"

"I don’t need to know!" Stannis held up his hand but had a smile on his face. "I will not oppose the Queen’s wishes on this. We have fought enough wars over betrothals for my lifetime I think Oberyn.”

“Why I do believe their might be hope for you yet.”

Stannis got up and snorted. He then flipped Oberyn the bird and walked out.

Oberyn was impressed. The man had at least a flicker of humor Oberyn now knew. This might be fun!

The man from Dorne went and stood over the cot with the Queen and Arya. They looked so content as he looked down at them. Daenerys wiggled and fit her body even closer into Arya’s side with a happy sigh. The Stark girl’s hand came up to cup the back of Dany’s head and pull it tighter into her neck. Both women had soft smiles on their faces.

Oberyn was satisfied. They would make a good Queen and Queen. He moved over to the two witches. The tall one was drop dead gorgeous while the small one was rather plain looking except for the bright red hair. The tall woman had her lower legs hooked over the smaller woman’s ankles and one arm thrown around the small woman’s back. The small woman was drooling on the tall woman.

They were obviously deeply in love. Oberyn left the tent. He spoke to the lead physician. They agreed that it would be safe to renew their journey down the road. A large supply train was now only two days behind them. It would be best if they resumed their journey and get to the next camp. They had lost a day and half and he knew the Queen would want to keep to schedule.

He arranged to have a wagon filled with furs. The women would be transported in the wagon till they had recovered enough to once more get on horseback.

/////////

The next morning they started off. Missandei, Oberyn had found out spent the night with Dany and Arya tending to them feeding them broth. She would tilt their heads back cradling them and gently dribbled the broth with medicinal herbs in it into their mouths and gently coaxing them to swallow. The scribe cared for their hygiene. The witches were still in an almost comatose state. Missandei told Oberyn and Stannis in her research she doubted the witches even needed to eat but she had food prepared for them in case they woke up and were hungered.

At noon Oberyn went to the medical wagon to check on his liege and the other patients. Each set of women in a cocoon of furs resting comfortably. Oberyn was impressed with the small black scribe’s diligence and loyalty to the Queen. Oberyn could now think of the small scribe without terror of the small green eyed woman showing up to beat the shit out of him. Oberyn looked at Missandei’s caracal lying on Nymeria sleeping with a happy purr as the wolf kept her watchful eye on her masters as she half snoozed. Oberyn satisfied that the women were indeed recovering left and got back a horse. The column continued its march down the King’s Road.

As Oberyn rode his horse, Stannis and Renly came up to him falling in on either side of him. The House of Tyrell fell in behind him riding close. He cocked an eyebrow at them. He cocked his other eyebrow when Barristan and Syrio Forel came up also.

Stannis started off in his usual blunt style. “We have been discussing the event of two days prior. We have been wondering why the Queen and Arya were so affected by the attack. My brother and I have seen how powerful the Queen and Arya are. Their strength near rivals mine and we Baratheons are renowned for legendary strength.”
“Gods this man is so pompous at times Oberyn thought. Maybe he had been to rash to think there was hope for Stan.nnis.

“They both have extraordinary speed and reflexes. It is obvious they have magical qualities. They are blessed with it. We are therefore perplexed as to why they were poleaxed along with the witches?”

“You gave the answer in your questions Stannis—Renly” Barristan spoke up. “I have seen this before. He then told them of the Queen’s battle with Dothraki and her near total collapse when she experienced the pain of her dragons. “She has worked to create mental barriers with her dragons so in the future she will be able to continue to fight through their shared pain. She will always feel it but has learned to mute it.”

“I think it is the same thing here.”

“I am not sure I see that Barristan” Renly responded.

“It is the very magical qualities they have that made them susceptible to the feelings and pain from the Blood Phoenix. We have seen this same power in Arya. They have been infused with some magical power that has greatly enhanced their strength and reflexes. It has sharpened their senses. They feel more than we do. Dany with her bond from birth with her dragons and the North is known for the abilities to Warg. I feel this opened them to be devastated along with the witches when they were attacked without warning. With time to prepare themselves I doubt the attack would have affected them so.”

“It was the shock and surprise of the attack that crippled them. They had not thought of this. To be truthful there was no time to prepare. Events are moving to a culmination. One cannot foresee the unknowable. We are lucky that we survived. That is the nature of combat. Surviving battles. To learn and adjust.”

“I am not sure I buy this being infused with magic talk” Mace spoke up. “They are just unnaturally fast and strong.”

Oberyn spoke up. “I believe Barristan has the right of it.”

They all looked at him. “I have seen the same with Cersei Sand.”

He saw confusion in all their eyes except Barristan that registered mild surprise as he put two and two together. Cersei Lannister had disappeared with Oberyn with Daenerys capturing King’s Landing. He had no use for the woman and ceased to think of her with her removal from his sphere. He had not really thought of her since. He simply thought she had failed miserably in Dorne and most likely was no more or in exile.

“Who in the hell is Cersei Sand. Why do we care about a fucking bastard?” Stannis barked. Oberyn was going to enjoy this.

Oberyn laughed “I wouldn’t be talking like that around the Queen.” The man looked over his shoulder with sudden fear at the wagon transporting the Queen in her convalescence. All had heard of the Queen’s plan to make all noble men shoulder the responsibility of raising any bastards.

The children would have their last name and if not raised under his roof the child’s mother would have full financial support. The unspoken threat had many quaking in their boots.

“I’m sorry” replied Oberyn “you knew her as Cersei Lannister.” As Oberyn had thought loud shouts of derision and scorn ensued.
“That worthless cunt.”

“Hahahaha – oh man that was a good one!”

“She couldn’t even do a fucking pushup! She is a fucking waste of womanhood. The only thing she could do well was part her legs for any cock she thought would help her get over on someone.”

“That all might have been true. Once, but no more” Oberyn responded. He enjoyed all the remarks. It would make his revenge all the sweeter.

More scornful laughter followed.

“I will have you know that Cersei is now called the Lioness or the Lion of Battleborne Academy. She has kicked everyone’s ass that challenges her. And I do mean kick ass … many more than once. It has become a badge of honor to say you have been “clawed” by the Lion of Dorne.”

“I don’t believe you!”

“Believe what you will. I saw her and my eldest daughter decimate a whole troop of Dothraki. There were unconscious men all around them. Men with broken arms, legs and concussions laid all about them. Cersei easily fights off three and four men now. If she did not hold herself back she would kill with one strike now.”

“I have seen her body become strong like the sphinx of legend. She has become something more than human. So has Daenerys Targaryen and Arya Stark. We in Dorne are much more attuned to nature and the old ways and magic. When I look at Cersei out of the corner of my eye and let my mind truly see I can see the power ripple in her body. I see the same thing with our Queen and her royal hostage. Nature and magic has chosen them to be their instruments I feel.”

“This has given them great strength and reflexes but also opened them to magical assault. Whatever attacked that Blood Phoenix attacked both physically, magically and spiritually. We all felt the hate of the attack and the ire of the Ice King. We all felt the ice daggers. The women felt it more. Much more. Barristan told of Daenerys fight on the plains of the Sea of the Dothraki. We all heard of her link to her dragons. A link through magic.”

“I believe that magic is fashioning these three women to be instruments to fight the evil that now plagues our world. A sand witch has prophesized that more evils than the Ice King are awakening. After our war with him we will all have other evils to fight.”

Oberyn saw the looks on the others faces. They wanted to doubt him but the events of the last two days had opened their minds to new possibilities.

Oberyn stirred the pot even more. “The time is coming when Cersei will take the Sword Morning Star and make it her own.”

“She is not of the House of Dayne. All know that only that House can use that sword!”

“A curse has been placed on the sword by the sand witch that prophesized ten years ago that a Lion from the north would come and claim it. This is the same witch that prophesized the coming demons.” Oberyn made a show of looking around at perplexed faces as tapped his lips with his index finger. “I wonder who that Lion might be?”

“It said Lion not Lioness you idiot!” Stannis barked. “Get your pronouns correct.”

“Geez Oberyn. Hyperbole. Prophecies are all mist and obfuscation anyways.”
Stannis glared at the Red Viper.

“You will discover that soon enough. I do believe that she has a destiny that goes beyond Dorne. Soon you will feel her and the Queen’s power along with Arya’s. The world is changing. For the better I might add.”

“You’re blowing smoke out your ass man!”

“I will never bow before that harpy! My brother should never have married that harridan!” Stannis was fuming big time now.

“I would watch her your tongue. Even the legendary power of the House of Baratheon would be felled by her fists and kicks I fear. Sorry Stannis.”

The man ground his teeth in disbelief. “Bring her on!”

“Maybe someday we will. I do need to bring my new daughter-in-law North to greet the High Lords.

“Whhaatttt?!” Stannis bellowed. The other lords not of Dorne gaped. This was rocking their world almost as much as the icy assault from two days ago. That had been shocking. This news was heinous. Cersei was a cunt! All knew it.

The men of Dorne enjoyed the shock and consternation. Oberyn had told them to not mention Cersei’s ascension. All the men and women of the military of Dorne now admired Cersei greatly. They all were in awe at what she had become. All longed to fuck Cersei Sand and were envious of House Martell having the inside track to her hot body. In Dorne fucking a person of great military renown brought some of that honor onto that person.

“Oh that’s right. I forgot to tell you. Four days before I left to Dorne to march to King’s Landing I married my daughter Obara to Cersei Lannister who formally took her wife’s last name. Just so you won’t go snitching to the Queen both want to keep their last name. In Dorne to be a Sand is an honor.”

“I gave Obara to Cersei and Ellaria gave Cersei to Obara. It was a beautiful ceremony. My consort hopes to one day bed them and truly bring them into the family.” Oberyn waggled his eyebrows “I hope to have the same success. Obara is a great fuck and maybe, just maybe if I play my cards right Cersei and my daughter will grace my and Ellaria’s bed. I will be the only man to ever touch their beautiful bodies.”

“You are fucking horrible—a crime before the laws of gods and men!” “What a disgusting piece of filth!” “How dare you sin against the Seven Gods!” “Do you have no shame!” The shouts came from all quarters. Oberyn basked in them all. He loved living his life openly and freely. Let all these prigs bleat. He enjoyed life to the fullest while all these men did was whine.

Oberyn laughed so hard he nearly fell out of his seat on his horse. “Bleat all you want. I will enjoy life and the pleasures it has. We will all meet in the grave. At least I will go into the Earth with a smile on my face.

Stannis just shook his head. He thought Oberyn was only baiting those assembled. The man was just so full of himself! Oberyn looked at Barristan looking at him intently. He shook his head and rode away. That man needed to get him a woman Oberyn decided. Who was in the market for a frigid man who thought I don’t fuck because of my honor? There had to be somebody. Oberyn would keep his eyes open. Barristan was still a fine looking man for his age. Maybe he had a little
The column was stopping for the last surge in the late afternoon. He was petting his horse and giving him a carrot when he saw his Queen stick her head out the wagon she was riding in. He walked over as the main physician hurried over clucking over the Queen.

“How are you feeling my Queen?”

“Weak but my strength is returning. Arya is resting comfortably” the Queen spoke looking back at her sleeping royal hostage a big smile coming on her face. She was definitely enjoying sleeping with the girl. Oberyn could feel in his morrow that soon they would be loves. Finally! He smiled at that sweet thought. Daenerys Targaryen deserved to be happy.

“How long have I been incapacitated?”

“A little over two days.”

The Queen scowled and looked around. “Worry not Daenerys. We all realize that your connection to magic made you susceptible to the magical attack on the Blood Phoenix.”

“I’m not even sure I believe in magic Oberyn. I tend to kill those who say they are attacking me with magic. Essos is littered with them. Still I can’t deny the ur-viles and what they did for me. I saw the Shadowbender witches create the impossible.”

“Then you need to start. Don’t deny what your senses are telling you my Queen. You, Arya and Cersei are filled with it.”

The Queen sighed and then smiled. “I guess I do.”

The Queen looked at Oberyn. “I have been keeping abreast of Cersei’s transformation and her marriage to your daughter. That last truly surprised me. You used to really, really hate her” Daenerys told the Red Viper.

“True. But she has changed mightily. You saw some of it and it has progressed and accelerated. I am happy to have her as part of my family now. I think you would like the person she had become. My whole family is enamored with her now. Ellaria is besotted with desires to bed Cersei.”

The Queen chuckled. “Let’s hold off on that meeting for a little while yet. That would have to be some turn around. Cersei is named after a fabled witch. Maybe she has incanted a spell on your family” the Queen said with a smirk.

Oberyn snorted “The only spell she has woven is sucking my daughter off. Again and again.” Oberyn laughed seeing the Queen blush. “She still has the acid tongue and quick wit but that is what gives Cersei her spice.”

“If you say so. How many days are we behind?”

“Less than two. We are moving at our normal clip.”

“I hate losing the time.”

“I wouldn’t worry my Queen. Any delay was worth the revealing of the Ice King. The seeing was believing but the assault on our bodies and spirits leave no doubt. All are prepared now to march to the Wall and defeat the Ice King. None now doubt. I think even my brother would have lost all his vacillation after such a revealing revelation.”

The Queen considered. “I do agree. I have only felt agony like that once before. I was unprepared. I hope I didn’t appear too weak” she asked with trepidation.

Oberyn chuckled. “My Queen the whole event was quiet the epiphany. Most of us have been scrubbing our trousers and armor clean from crapping and pissing ourselves. We are all just thankful to have survived.”

“How did we? The witches were totally incapacitated. We were helpless.”

Oberyn related how he and Stannis succeeded in pulling the witches apart and saving their lives and how knows who else’s life.

The Queen told him that all were indebted to their quick thinking, bravery and strength.

They talked a little more before Daenerys insisted she need to get back to Arya to tend to her.

The Queen indeed had it bad for the Stark girl. Oberyn smiled. He was happy that the Queen had found her consort.

The next morning the Queen and Arya had fully recovered. Oberyn saw that all were impressed to see their full recovery so fast. Many of the men were still fatigued and a little pale from the ordeal. The queen said that that evening they would have a meeting to discuss the events that the Blood Phoenix had revealed to them.

As the day progressed the Queen checked on the witches several times with Oberyn and Stannis. They felt connected to the witches having been instrumental in saving them with their separation from the assault that had struck their avatar.

Late that afternoon the two witches came awake. They too had made full recoveries which amazed the physicians, Oberyn and the Queen. At first Oberyn and Stannis had not been sure they would survive. Their breathing was so shallow and sparse. The bodies had been white as the bone at first and their eyes totally dilated and unresponsive. Their bodies were almost rock hard with what Oberyn first thought was rigor mortise. Their bodies felt like they had been frozen.

Oberyn suspected the witches had kept much of the pain and affect into their bodies sparing their ritual partners the full agony and physical effects of the assault. To see them fully recovered now was almost as shocking as their appearance after the assault.

The only thing they requested was that a large fire be started once they made camp. All were only too happy to do this for the women who had shown them so much. All were in their debt.

The end of the march for the day was reached as they reached the cook camp. The men and few women warriors happily dismounted their horses. The horses had their saddles removed and put on saddle posts erected just for this purpose. Tanners and saddlers worked on the saddles and tack. Stable hands that had been selected and those trained up along with a liberal sprinkling of Dothraki cared for the horses.

Horses were combed down and their hooves checked for stones and any bruises. The Queen had made sure to have a horse veterinarian at each camp. The Queen had declared that horses would only be put down as a last resort. The Dothraki moved among the horses and Oberyn saw some of the men and most of the women looking over the column looking for potential bedmates. Oberyn especially liked the Dothraki and their liberal views on sex and life in general.

He saw many of the Westerosi horse tenders wearing a mix of Westeros and Dothraki gear. It seemed that the Dothraki were influencing their workmates. Oberyn hoped that other attitudes were being passed to the Westerosi by the Dothraki. With time the Dothraki were getting their coworkers to loosen up. Oberyn liked the Dothraki more for it. The North of Westeros were much too much like Stannis. That was not a good thing. It was not good to have a stick up your ass. Now a cock was another thing Oberyn snickered to himself.

A shallow pit was dug and filled with dead wood and dried grass and tumbleweeds that they had found in the leeward side of a hill. Soon a mighty fire was blazing. The two witches went to sit just before the flames. The witches were surprised when the Queen joined them. Oberyn saw that she was indeed the Queen of dragons. The flames did not harm her. She did not stay long as she noticed that Arya was getting agitated seeing her Queen with the two beautiful women. For the life of him Oberyn did not know why many of the men did not find the small witch attractive. He liked her crooked teeth and slightly off kilter facial features. He found them cute and she had a smoking hot body.

He really wanted to bang them but sensed the larger witch would tear him apart if he got too close to her witch. His mind went back to King’s Landing and to that strange small woman that had made it clear that Missandei was hers and not his. Yes, discretion was the better part of valor. His gaze moved on.

After the evening meal the Queen started the meeting with the royals and the generals. She asked if any questioned what they had endured together. No one could deny what they had experienced together.

The Queen asked if any doubted that they must march to the Wall. That the true enemy was there.

None did.

Mace asked “What of Eddard Stark?”

Oberyn was now shocked at the honesty of the Queen. She told all how for the last six months she had worked with Eddard Stark to ensure that they the South came up to the North in mass. She related to them the letter he had sent with Arya and how she had believed him totally.

There was shocked silence.

Oberyn stepped in. “I commend you Daenerys. Even I would have not believed you if you had told me of the rebirth of the Ice King. It has been eight thousand years since he walked Earth. We would have been a house divided.”

“But she lied to us!” Stannis grated out.

“Pleassereee! How often do we lie to each other for the most petty of things. This was done for the benefit of the realm only. We would have fought, argued and come up King’s Highway constantly fighting and quarreling with each other. This would have been picked up on the people of the Riverlands and the North. No, I believe this was by far the best action. A house divided cannot stand. We all, my house is maybe the worse, are too quick to take rash action.”

There was general unease. The witches had come over from the fire and watched all with their dark eyes. All the men started to squirm under their intense stare.
The large one, Melisandre, spoke softly “Was our sacrifice for nothing?” but her words seemed to ring in the air.

Stannis stood up. “I believe that what happened needed to happen. I must confess that I found many actions to be burdensome and inane. If we thought we were going to the Wall to fight gremlins and snarks I would have rebelled. I definitely would not have believed.”

Oberyn used this opportunity “I agree with Stannis. We are here now. All else does not matter. It is the past. In each of our bodies we have felt he malice and hate of this Ice King. We must march to the Wall and defeat and kill him and his forces there. We must defend our homes from this threat as far north as possible. We felt the hate. If we fail he will ravage our lands and kill all. He will convert our young males to be his army. We cannot let that stand!”

“We have felt his power. Each and everyone one of us felt his vile evil and his ultimate goal. All of our deaths. There can be no quarter sought or given. We will fight and defeat him on the edge of our lands. No other recourse is open to us.”

Oberyn had brought his spear with him and snatched it up and twirled it over his head in a blur and then slammed the butt of the spear into the ground.

“I stand with our Queen. Who joins me!”

Stannis and Renly immediately jumped up shouting “We do!”

Now all those gathered around jumped up shouting allegiance. Oberyn saw the Queen looking at him gratefully for helping to solidify the South under her cause.

Oberyn was only happy to serve his Queen. It truly inspired the man to serve greatness and a noble purpose. Daenerys was what the minstrel’s sung of in their songs. He would always gladly serve his Queen.

Let this be an age of Reclamation!

---

Jon

The snow was falling again. There was no wind this night. The horses slowly pushed through the snow that came up to their knees. They had come into a small clearing that was a mile deep into the Haunted Forest from the margin that was itself one mile and half miles back from the wall. Jon would go no deeper. If they had to make a breakneck escape he needed to be able to have their horses give their full effort the entire run back to the gate at the Wall.

He had fifty sentries there armed with special weapons provided by his father. He and the members of his party were now armed with weapons that should be an anathema to their frozen and dead foes. His father’s supply wagons full of dragon glass weapons had been arriving for the last six months with wagons filled with arrow tips of dragon glass. There had been crates of just arrow heads fashioned into Lanceolate and Stemmed heads. Many of the arrowhead had been grafted on to arrows. The rest his Crows and the Wildling were furiously crafting these arrow heads onto shafts.

Jon had his armors forging Iron tipped arrow heads too. His wives had seen the Ice Armor being cut, forged and crafted into suits of armor for the Ice Giants. His wives had also seen that some suites of ice armor were being fashioned for Ice Wrights of human birth. His wives had recognized the magic used to bond the ice. Jon had had his crafters fashion ice blocks his wives then fashioned into armor blocks. They began to test their arrows against the ice armor. Jon wanted to kill at distance. He had had enough experience of the ferocity of the dead when they were allowed to come upon you. They had discovered that iron tips weapons would crack and if close enough shatter an armored ice block when the arrows were fired with enough force.

His wives had created spells that they spoke and wove arcane glyphs with their hands over large mounds of iron tipped arrows. Their spells tuning the iron to shatter the ice armor more effectively than the iron alone. His wives spending hours at a time enhancing their iron tipped weapons.

Thus he and his riders carried arrows tipped with both iron and dragon glass. Each rider had a quiver on their back and two each side of their horse. Each quiver had thirty arrows in them. They had fletched the arrows slightly differently to differentiate between iron and dragon glass tipped weapons. Each rider carried thirty iron tipped arrows out of the one hundred and fifty arrows they carried. Everyone knew the Ice King would send his dead in swarms to overwhelm his enemies. It had been the tactic of the past and it had always worked. Hopefully, that would cease.

They would not be traveling any further into the woods. The extra quivers would not be a problem resting on the horses’ flanks for this short range mission. Jon knew he was in no position to delve deeper into the Haunted Forest. Even with his enhanced weaponry. He had lost enough men of his enemy. He was not like his predecessor Lord Commanders wasting effort and more importantly men sending out patrols that did not return ever depleting his numbers.

They would use the iron tipped weapons to destroy the ice armor if and the dragon glass to kill the walking dead and the Ice Wrights if unarmored or after their ice armor had been destroyed.

For a month now he had lead patrols along the marges of the Haunted Forest every other night. He had done this to get his enemy used to this pattern of patrol. To set them at ease with it. They would set out after midnight and patrol a mile into the forest and travel a line up and down the forest. Jon was dangling bait for the Ice Wrights and their dead. The Crows and Wildling had lost way too many to the Ice King before they had fully understood the enemy or had the weapons to fight his forces.

Jon would travel up to five miles east and west of the gate. He came out with a party of roughly fifty riders. The size not so large as to intimidate the enemy and hopefully entice them to attack. Too many patrols had been annihilated by their implacable foe. Jon longed to give the Ice King a taste of his own medicine. He had been thwarted so far. He would continue to entice his foe. How long could the bastard resist the temptation to kill a few more Crows and Wildlings?

Jon had ceased all patrols one year ago. He sent out patrols and none returned. Others had wanted to make patrols but Jon overrode them. That had changed now. They finally had weapons and tactics to fight the dead and the Ice Wrights. Five of his best archers also had arrowheads wrapped in linen soaked in tar. They had flint and tender to create quick fire. The uneven heads of the arrows required their best archers to accurately fire these arrows. Between dragon glass and fire arrows they should be able to cause great harm to the enemy.

He had Ghost patrolling a few hundred yards out in front of them. Jon had a loose mental connection with his Direwolf. He kept a strong leash on Ghost’s natural instinct to confront and attack his and Jon’s enemies. His wives had taught Jon to trust his and Ghost’s senses and instincts. Those instincts had told Jon that for months now they were being watched from the woods. The enemy was close but not yet ready to attack. He needed to lure them into his trap.

It made sense. The Ice King was marching south. The initiative had been wrested from the humans. The Ice King had total freedom of movement. The Ice King had won that freedom. The craven would use that freedom now to advance unseen on the Wall. Jon could not prevent that. What Jon could do hopefully was bloody the proverbial nose of the Ice King and his forces. He wanted to sow seeds of doubt in his foe’s mind. He wanted to instill fear into the creature’s vile mind. He wanted the Ice King to know that he could be hurt now.

He had the best archers of his Crows and Wildling with him. He had patrolled up and down the animals tracks before the wall. He made sure to bring some of the leaders of the Wildings with him on each patrol. Jon did not know if the Ice King even cared about such things but Jon had them with him in case it would help entice an attack. The forest here was not heavily populated with trees or dense undergrowth. He was banking on the relative open landscape would prevent an outright ambush.

A horse moved up beside his. “It is so beautiful out here in the forest. The falling snow is magical” Mance Rayder told Jon as they walked their horses through the middle of the clearing. All in the gathering watched the edges of the forest towards the North. “Yes I can feel them to Jon.” They both looked at the edge of the glade. They were out their hidden. Watching. They could feel the hate and loathing.

Jon nodded in acknowledgement. He had felt the eyes on them for at least eight months. It had galled him to know his enemy was so close and he couldn’t do a damn thing. The Ice King had total freedom of movement. Jon could feel the ancient implacable hate of his enemy that had been so distant but now was so much closer. Jon could feel his enemy at the Fist of the First Men. His palms itched to confront his ancient foe and kill him now as he had eight thousand years ago. In his dreams he felt his previous incarnation screaming with righteous fury as his sword sunk clean through the Ice King killing him in heat and fire.

What Jon felt now was another kind of anger and hate. This was much more contained and physical. Jon could feel the minions of his enemy. They had gathered and were close.

Val looked out over the edge of the forest on the North face of the clearing. “They are there. I cannot see them but I know they are there.” Jon knew this was a perfect spot to be ambushed in. Surely his foes would want to use it to strike at them. Then Jon felt the change. He trusted his instincts.

Jon held up his hand to halt his column. “Prepare.” The air was getting colder. There was no sound. It was as if the very air was holding its breath. All animal life had fled. They knew the danger. A danger Jon and party dearly wanted to confront.

Tormund barked “At last. I have grown tired of this waiting.”

Jon softly called out. “Keep you distance from the enemy. Remember they are dead or frozen death. We have seen the remains of regular swords that went up against their swords. Only my sword can withstand their swords.” Jon turned to look to the South. His senses told him it was still not blocked. He sensed Others gathering but they were not many. They would be dealt with. His wives had taught him how to project his senses a small distance from his body. He could not reach out miles and miles like they could but he was confident that their path to the wall had not been blocked from the wall. His eyes flared. He felt more presences moving in from the west and east towards their flank.

Suddenly Ghost came bounding out of the forest. An Ice Wright was giving chase but his wolf easily outdistanced it. As one all the riders pulled their bows off their backs and shook their arms. Jon saw this Ice Wright had no armor. His thin body only clothed in a thin tunic and trousers and boots that strapped up to his knees. His blazing blue eyes regarded them coldly.

Jon could feel the Ice Wrights overwhelming confidence. They had no idea. Good! Jon had read that revenge was a dish best served cold. It was deathly cold this night. Suddenly, the far edge of the forest was filled with shambling dead that slowly came out into the clearing. It looked like flotsam of deadwood on a rising tide coming towards them. Ghost had reached Jon’s horse and turned to face his enemies. His fur bristled up.

“Mance, Val, Tormund, can you and your people feel the enemy trying to out flank us. Their numbers are few but they will try to ambush us. Beware.”

No one answered. There was no need. They had been planning for this for four months. Jon pulled his small horn from off his saddle pummel. AAARRWOOOOO! AAAAAARRRWOOOO!” he blew the horn. The stumbling dead had covered half the distance to the riders. Their dead eyes glowing bright blue and their blackened extremities reaching for their enemies. More and more dead were flowing out of the trees and shambling towards their foes.

Two more Ice wrights had appeared on the edge of the forest observing them. As one the fifty gathered souls reached back and using the fletching of the arrows to differentiate the arrows pulled the dragon glass tipped arrows out and notched their bows.

Val stood up in her stirrups and pulled her yew wood long bow back her fingers by her ear “Make each arrow count!” she screamed.

Mance and Jon as one shouted “Fire!”

The thrum of fifty taunt bowstrings being released sounded around the small of island of life in a rising sea of dead. Jon looked at the tide shambling towards them. Jon saw many men in various states of decompensation. Some had been dead for years and years while others appeared to have only recently been killed and turned. Animals from small predators and large rodents like woodchucks and beavers crawled forward. Animals like foxes, coyotes, cougars and lynxes were moving towards them. There were many large elk, bear, wolves and four, no, five mastodons that stumbled forth. All with bright blue eyes that glowed with death.

The arrows found their mark. Jon waited with baited breath for a few rapid heartbeats. By the old gods the dragon glass had to work. Why else had the First People used it so extensively?

“Yes!” Jon shouted. Two men and a cougar had taken shots to the head and fell dead immediately. Many others took arrows to their midsections and upper chest. The dead staggered and Jon saw gold tendrils swirling out from the spot of the arrow piercing the dead bodies. The gold tendrils radiating out to cover more and more of the dead bodies. The dead began to stumble and move in random directions. The flesh turning black from the wound site and moving out. The gold tendrils wrapping around the dead bodies turning flesh black.

Jon saw two dead had taken hits to their thighs and one man was hit in his arm. The arm went limp and the man and wolf hit in the leg now dragged that limb as gold tendrils radiated out moving in both directions on the limb.

It was working! Too slowly but working. “Fire at will!” Mance shouted.

A storm of carefully aimed arrows flew out from the humans striking the leading edge of the dead. The arrows that hit heads made the icy dead drop and lie still for the humans and smaller animals. He saw a large bear take an arrow to the eye. It stumbled and went down to its forelimbs but came back up. Two more arrows flew out to pierce its skull and thick neck. This time when the bear went down and it did not rise back up.

The first line of walking dead had been dispatched but many more were coming out of the woods to confront them. Arrows were whistling through the air and finding their marks. Jon saw many beasts and men with arrows in their chests and sides. The golden tendrils spreading out and making flesh turn black and then start to slough off the bodies. He saw a moose lose all its flesh on one side and the bones began to separate and the beast fell to the ground and thrashed.

“Fall back!” Jon shouted as they fired their arrows fast and furious. He had hoped for instant kills.
They were going through their supply of arrows fast. Suddenly, the first Ice Wright stormed forward drawing his sword screaming in some high pitched discordant language. The other two Ice Wrights screamed at the first but he did not heed them. He ran forward and then screamed and staggered to a stop. Three arrows jutted from his chest.

His body began to shake violently and then steam started to rise from his body and he screamed and screamed. The dragon glass in his body quickly poisoned his very blood. His benison was two more arrows to throat and heart that sent him crashing to the ground steaming like a geyser in the middle of a frozen lake.

Now flaming arrows were flying in straight lines sinking into dead who immediately alight on fire.
They stumbled around. Some fell into their brothers and lighting them on fire. There were no screams of pain but once alight the dead went up like dried tender. Jon wondered at the strange magic that made the dead flare up like bonfires but did not concern himself with it. He was just thankful.

Two more Ice Wrights appeared on the edge of the forest and these had ice armor on. They seemed older to Jon somehow.

Jon looked behind him and saw ten men and a handful of deer, horses and cattle come out of the forests on that side. He shouted at Tormund. Jon pointed behind them at the new party of enemy.
Tormund and several Wildling turned and focused on the new adversaries feathering the advancing dead and killing some with one shot and others slowing and then killing with additional body shots.

They were being hemmed in. He could feel the confidence of the Ice Wrights. They were being hemmed in and their arrows were being exhausted. They had to keep firing fast and furious to kill the now sea of advancing dead. How had so many been able to hide so close to the wall! Jon thought.

One of the armored Ice Wrights had climbed on a wooly mammoth that came between the trees and advanced. He was confident in his armor. They did not know that that his witch wives had put a hex on their Iron tipped weapons strengthening them. The iron tuned to their ice armor.

Val screamed “Lokamy, Gilny, Valla, Hararegg iron arrows!” These were the best marksmen in Wildlings ranks at Castle Black. Now hexed iron tipped arrows flew out at the Ice Wright. He was fast and dodge some of the arrows but others found their mark. They struck his ice armor and slammed in. Many of the discs held but fractured and others exploded. More struck his armor and now his armor was filled with gapes and tears. He looked down shocked at his now ragged armor.
An arrow found a hole and slammed into his body. The iron jutted out his body and he smiled. Iron had no effect on him.

His pachyderm mount itself was now falling apart as arrows of dragon glass struck up and down its body. Golden tendrils had now encased its body which had turned black and suddenly huge slabs of meat and guts started to fall off the staggering beast.

The smile disappeared on the Ice Wright’s face when Val loosed a dragon glass arrow and it found a hole just formed over his heart. The Ice Wright frowned looking down as steam and whips started to flow out his body through the hole in his ice armor. He screamed an unearthly howl until Valla sent a dragon glass tipped arrow down his throat.
Ice Wright and mammoth fell to the ground and moved no more.

Their quivers were emptying. Val and the other marksmen looked out over the glen to see the three remaining Ice Rights looking at them with their bright blue eyes glowing with unending hate. They were letting their dead advance to do their work for them. They had seen two of their number killed.

Still more dead flowed out of the forest on both sides of the glen. Time was running out.

HAARROOOOOO! HAARROOOOOO! HAARROOOOOO!

War horns sounded and a force of over fifty Crows and wildlings burst from the trees. The men had long lances tipped with broad tipped heads of dragon glass. The men ran their horses at the walking dead who were facing Jon’s forces on the Wall side of the glade. The walking dead never saw their new foes. The riders rode forward and buried their lances in the bodies of the walking dead. The broad heads of dragon glass immediately sending out golden tendrils of magic severing the Wright magic. The lumbering dead men and animals fell to the ground to die their second death.

The men and women quickly rode out to Jon’s forces. Bowen Marsh came up to Jon. “We have blocking forces on each side of us with twenty men armed with dragon glass lances and arrows. They will sound their horns if attacked in mass. We have brought the five horses loaded with fresh quivers.” Each rider had six additional quivers on their own horses that had flipped wildly as they rode up to their Crow and Wildling brothers. Dalla came up with her bow out. “I’m not too late am I!” she shouted feathering an arrow and shooting a deer buck approaching with lowered head and large antler rack. Two more arrows pierced its body and fall to the Earth the magic animating it severed. Bowen and a few a crows rode out from the group to the sides.

The small cavalry throwing javelins tipped with dragon glass. They rose up on their horses and threw their javelins with great force and true aim. The weapons slamming into the flanks of animals and bodies of stumbling dead men. The weapons first staggering the animated dead and then setting to severing the magic animating the bodies. Golden tendrils turning flesh to rot and breaking the bonds of bones sending bodies crashing to the ground.

The bowmen were shooting the small animals as they approached. Each arrow shot instantly or quickly killing the smaller bodies.

One of the remaining Ice Rights got behind several large cave sloths and tried to use their bodies to advance. A near blizzard of arrows quickly brought the beasts down. The Ice Wright was then trapped as the forces of the Crows and Free Folk surged forward enough to half circle the Ice Wright. The Wright was able to knock several arrows down. The other two Ice Rights tried to advance but dragon glass and iron tipped arrows kept them at bay. More of the walking dead tried to advance on the humans to drive them back and then kill them.

The dead were brought down with a storm of arrows that pierced their bodies with multiple arrows quickly killing what should have already been dead. The second death of rotting bodies and falling away bones.

The Ice Wright made a run for it. It had gone thirty yards when an arrow hit it in the hamstring. Its scream as it fell to the ground was hideous. Bowen and Dalla rode forward and threw two javelins into the Wrights back pinning it to the ground as steam and slough ran off its body as it screamed and died.

The dead turned about and walked towards the forest a blizzard of arrows following them and killing many that had made it deep into the glen.
The battle was over. Jon snow was exhausted. His black leathers soaked in sweat. His white hair plastered to his face and neck. His purple eyes took in the victory. The battle had not been long but he saw that all his forces were as soaked in sweat as he. There would be no pursuit of the enemy. He had in at least a small measure gotten revenge for his lost and slain brothers. Mance and Dalla embraced and kissed in joy at the victory.

Jon did not celebrate. They had surprised the enemy with their large supply of dragon glass weapons. He doubted they would make the same mistake twice. Still he had achieved his goals. He had given his command revenge and a much needed victory against their implacable enemy. This victory would make spirits soar among the Crows and Wildings hearts. This victory would help draw the two desperate groups together. They had shown the Ice King that they now had tactics and more importantly the weapons to give as good as they got.

Jon had noticed that the Ice King was not decisive in his decisions. He sought overwhelming odds and force. Jon had now given the Ice King reasons to doubt.

/////////

Jon was relaxing in his chambers. He sat at the round table and looked at this sword that he held up before him. The blade was ablaze with the flames of Azor licking up and down its length. The blade glowed red with the heat of flames radiating out from its core. Jon was not sure but the binding of the magic from the land Asshai and the Valyrian steel seemed to be melding and strengthening as time went by. The sword was definitely radiating hotter than before. Jon knew of another reason why the sword glowed hotter.

The Ice King was much closer now. He could feel him like a rancid sore pulsing in the North. He knew the Ice King could feel him too. Since his wives had left to fulfill their part of the tableau and convince the forces of Westeros who the true enemy is Jon had spent many hours staring into his sword. He felt that his foe was doing the same with his sword. Fire and Ice gazing at each other with inimical loathing and hate. The swords and their owners knew their destinies were linked. They would meet on the field of battle and one of them would die. Jon knew it would be the Ice King. It was his destiny to kill the Ice King and survive.

Jon truly felt in the marrow of his bones that his victory was assured. He knew he would meet his foe on the field of battle and it would be his sword that would deliver the fatal blow.

That morning he had met with Rickard Karstark who had arrived at the vanguard of his father’s advancing forces that were massing in the Gift fifteen miles from Castle Black. The forces were rested and organized and ready to advance on the Wall.

Rickard had come to prepare the way. Jon meet the man in his quarters whom he had met several times when he was younger. When Jon greeted him he kissed his old friend on the cheek and then stepped back and pulled his cloak hood back.

Rickard gasped and backed up a step. He had seen Rhaegar in his youth. “What sorcery is this?!”

Jon looked at him calmly and then pulled his sword from the scabbard on his. The sword light up and blazed fiercely the flames shooting up almost three feet above the sword. The sword in harmony with its master and blazing hot for its Master.

Rickard had backed up against the wall his hand on the pommel of his sword.

“You have nothing to fear Rickard. I merely want complete honesty between us and the forces coming to aid the Night’s Watch. The time for half-truths are over.
“Are … are you Rhaegar reborn? How is this possible?”

“I am the son of Prince Rhaegar and Lyanna Stark.”

Rickard was quiet looking at Jon for the longest time. Finally he spoke. “It all fits … how could I have not seen it. I knew Eddard would never betray his oath to Caitlyn Stark. Why?”

“Robert Baratheon would have demanded my death. Eddard Stark the father of my heart did not want any more wars caused by his family”

Rickard looked at him again for a long moment. “Yes. I think Robert would have. Your hair … your eyes?”

“I walked in the flames and I was transformed. All the lies were burned away. I will not live them for another minute” Jon told the scion of House Karstark. What Jon was not telling the man was he was using this sudden revelation of his true parentage to throw the man slightly off his balance. It would make him more tractable.

He went for the brass ring playing his now enhanced royal heritage. “I am nephew of Daenerys Targaryen. I am next in line to the Iron Throne. She has deemed it seemly for the North to fully support the Night’s Watch. She is upset and suspicious how you could not have supported us more.

Rickard started to get a little pale. “I did all I was told! I fulfilled my duty.”

“But did you ever think to rise above your station and seek to truly fulfill your obligation. Or did you do the least you could.”

The man knew Jon spoke the truth. “Support me now and I will talk to the Queen.”

Jon was not really lying. He was planning on talking to the Queen. Just not about any of this since he was lying through his teeth. He was sorry for having to do it but the realm required it. He had come to understand his father was doing much the same thing.

These were truly extraordinary times. Karstark told Jon he would support Jon fully. When Jon asked him to talk to his fellow Lords and get a start to planting the seeds of trust and friendship between the North and the Wildlings Rickard agreed. The Queen thought that all the people of Westeros should stand truly united against their common foe. Rickard went to one knee to pledge the full support of his House. He would speak to the other Houses of the North. Karstark asked if Jon would mention all this to the Queen Jon assured him he would.

They talked a few more minutes about Jon’s lineage as the Leader of Karstark came to grips with the many changes he had just been handed.

“I will have you know that I have brought the Wildling to the South of the wall and promised them gift to live and settle in.”

The man stared at him his mouth open. “Do you know no limits?! Who gave you the right?” Karstark demanded. He had just pledged his troth but he felt now like he was being taking advantage of.

“Why you did friend of my father” Jon spoke still playing all his cards. “By rights given to the Lord Commander by our ancestors I have total sovereignty of the gifts given to the Knight’s watch.”

“But why?” Karstark said hotly.
“Why, to save them of course.”

“But they are our sworn enemy.”

“Funny I have talked to them and not one them have sworn such an oath.”

The man sputtered. “You know what I mean! Again I ask why?”

“Because I needed troops to man the wall … troops you did not provide I might add. I made this decision. I made a decision necessary to save the realm. Also, it was the right thing to do. We and the Wildlings have a common foe. A foe that means to kill us all. The Wildlings will fight hard and well by our sides. They desire what we desire.”

“What is that?”

“Why life of course. A life for themselves and their children. Anyways, after the war is over most will return to their lands beyond the Wall. I hope to keep the gates open in the future. We need to learn to live in peace and not war. I grow tired of it.”

“Have you told your father?!”

“No. But he will accept my decision.”

“How do you know?!”

“When I tell my father that every man, woman and Child would have been killed he will see my reasoning and accept it. Plus, they are excellent fighters. We have been too greedy of our lands for too long. I will propose to my father and to the merchants of all the trade this will open up. It will create jobs and tax revenue. Yes I think my father and the crown will like hearing that.”

“For eight thousand years we have fought and died warring against each other. That is long enough.”

Karstark stared at Jon. Jon could see the man calculating what his father’s reactions would be. All knew of his father’s sense of justice and mercy. How his father sought to defend all in his realm. He even now protected the Direwolf, lion and wolf in his realm. How could he turn his back on what were his people above the Wall.

“They will have to bend the knee to your father.”

“I think not. Maybe in time if they chose but they do not follow our feudal system.”

“That is insane. You know they must bend the knee!”

“Would you bend the knee to Tywin Lannister? Lord Balon Greyjoy?”

“I would never bend the knee to such as them!”

“There you go.”

Rickard glared at Jon. “That was most unkind of you. Using my own words against me.”

“Come with me and meet the Wildling leaders.” Karstark grumbled but in truth he was now interested in meeting these people he had been raised to think of as enemies. Jon’s strange words had had a strange effect upon him. He knew Eddard Stark would never eschew such a meeting.
The meeting had been tense at first but Karstark soon warmed up to the leaders of the Wildlings. He found them to be honorable and amazingly a lot like himself. They had similar views, desires, and goals.

He was stiff with Mance Rayder for abandoning the watch but couldn’t say anything if the current Lord Commander had granted him amnesty. Karstark liked the other leaders of the Free Folk. He eyed Val and Karsi who were both comely and mighty warriors. He talked with Tormund, Rattleshirt and Styr and saw that maybe they were not so bad after all.

Jon had left them. Rickard had sent a rider out to bring in his Lords and Knights to meet and start planning with his new allies. The man was already warming to being the ambassador between the North and lands above the Land. It would bring much power to his house. Plus, it wouldn’t hurt to get on the Queen’s good side. Jon had assured him that he would put in a good word.

Jon looked at his sword turning it slowly as he sat beside the table in the magically hexed area that did not burn with the sword’s heat. It had been a good night and morning. He had given the Ice King a resounding defeat and he had laid the foundation for the working together of the Free Folk and the Houses that pledge allegiance to his father. He put the sword back into its scabbard.

He got up from his table and went to the cupboard to fix himself a lite meal for lunch. A smile crossed his face thinking how Melisandre was always so anxious to cook for him. He was more than happy to take care of his own meals and clean up around their living quarters. He could not understand how some of the other crow officers who had their own bedchambers could live like pigs in a sty and that was insulting pigs.

They would not even take the energy to put their dishes and eating utensils back outside their door for the stewards to retrieve the next morning to clean. He had seen soiled clothing draped everywhere, dirty dishes and glasses with papers strewn everywhere. To Jon this just seemed to disrupt the feel of a room. He was not a pig and he refused to live like one.

He and Melisandre still bickered over his wanting to clean and cook. Ygritte had no such problem. She would lean back on her chair’s two back legs and prop her feet up on the table top. If she had a mug of mead she would reach forward and pound it on the table. “Feed me woman! You wife is hungry!”

Melisandre would smile great big running around making their meals (even if they did not need to eat) and pour them fresh water and mead when Jon asked and Ygritte demanded with a cheeky smile.

Melisandre just ate it up. She would get so docile and meek. Then they would take her to bed and pound the shit out of her as Ygritte now crowed. Jon had become sorry he had every told his shorter wife that phrase though Melisandre would be screaming “pound my ass … nail it to the bed Jon!” or “slam fuck my hot pussy and pound the shit out of me Ygritte!”

It still amazed Jon how such a powerful person could get so submissive in their bed. Ygritte told Jon Melisandre was a bottom. Ygritte said he was too when she fucked Jon. It was different with Jon. Him being a man and they being women just sort of shunted him to the top position. Jon asked Ygritte which she was “I’m always the top! I only let you be top!” she had crowed her chin jutted out and her chest puffed out showing off her small tits and tight rump. Yes Jon thought. Ygritte was definitely top dog in their family unit.

Jon reached for the handle to the cupboard.

Jon screamed in agony as searing pain filled his body. It felt like blades of icy fire were pounded into his body with a sledgehammer. Jon collapsed to his knees. His wives were being attacked. He screamed in pain and fear for his wives. Jon staggered into the cupboard and bounced off. The knives of agony felt like they were tearing him apart. Jon knew that his wives would invoke a phoenix and merge into the comingled blood of their bodies and blood from the veins of the royals. This would allow all to see and feel what they and the Phoenix sensed with its senses.

The pain passed. Jon was gasping. He was just recovering when again the freezing slicing pain pierced his body all over his back, neck and head. His screams bounced off the walls reverberating into each other as more screams were ripped from his throat. He did not remember falling to the ground. He kicked over a chair and violently upset the table spilling the dish, glass and eating utensils on it onto the floor.

Again the pain passed but Jon was much weaker now. He understood instinctively that something was attacking the Blood Phoenix from above and was passing it and looping back around to attack again. He tried to get up but it was useless.

Again he was slammed into the floor with pain as he cried out and turned his head over as he violently vomited. He was almost unconscious now. He raged at himself for letting his wives go south to do “their duty”. They were being killed! The pain passed. He knew it would return and his was helpless to save his wives. He felt hot tears of shame roll down his cheeks. He was a Stark and a Man and was supposed to protect his wives!

Jon felt the pain pass but he knew it would strike again. He could feel the agony of his wives somehow. They were taking the brunt of the attack and shielding everyone from the full devastation of the attack. They could not take much more. Again he screamed as another attack commenced and he felt though his wives that the Blood Phoenix was faltering. He felt it that if it persisted so would his wives. He gritted his teeth trying to will himself to not lose consciousness. He tried to send what little strength he had left to his wife.

Suddenly, the pain was gone and he felt the Blood Phoenix slip away to safety. His wives were still alive. Something had saved them. He had no idea what but he was thankful. He rolled over onto his stomach. He knew he was going to pass out and needed to get his mouth down in case he vomited again. He did not want to aspirate.

///////////

It had been over three days since the attack. He had been agitated needing to hear something from his wives. He could only hope the lack of them reaching out to him was them recovering. He knew that if they had died he would have felt it in his soul. He was linked to them now and would feel their passing. He had quickly recovered the next day. His strength returned though it took another day before he could eat anything without feeling very ill.

He was riding the lift up to the top of the wall when he felt his wives reaching out to touch his mind. They could not communicate with him with words or thoughts but he could feel their emotional state when they touched his mind thus. He felt warmth and love spread throughout his body. Their love for him burning through him like it always did when they touched his mind and spirit.

Jon smiled knowing his wives had recovered. He could feel their renewed health and vitality. They could not communicate more to him than the sense of their wellbeing and their love for him at this great distance. That was enough for Jon Snow.

He also felt their elation. He knew that could only mean that the South had been convinced. Jon would have a massive army at his back. He would have the weapons to fight the enemy. He knew the war would be violent and severe but he would win. He was Azor Ahai reborn. He would repeat his victory.

His wives were so happy and he felt their longing for him.

He smiled evilly. He would make sure to blister their asses and slap their faces, cunts and tits nice and hard like they liked when they had been bad and naughty. And they had been most naughty making Jon give into their wishes. He had been right. He paused. That was not quite right. He had been a lot right he decided. They had succeeded but their deaths had been close. He would have to find out how they were saved and thank that person profusely.

He then would take his wives and take them somewhere nice and private. Like their bedroom! They would need to be punished for almost getting their asses killed! Then he would “pound the shit” out of them as Ygritte loved to say now. He shook his head. Gods that girl was a bonfire in bed. She kept him and Melisandre on their toes which kept their sex life hot and spicy.

He arrived at the top of the wall. The sun was setting into the west now. The Wall casting oblong shadows over onto the haunted forest. He still felt the Ice King’s minions in the forest but they had pulled back some distance. He knew he was being watched but that was good. He stood on the edge of the Wall gazing over the dark brooding trees. He knew that nature felt it too. The malevolent evil that festered and grew.

He had been happy with the skirmish. It had not really been a battle. The forces had been much too small for that. Still Jon knew he had achieved an important victory. He had shown the Ice King that the forces of man had weapons that could kill them now. If only they had these weapons years ago when he first took his vows. It did not matter now. The past could not be changed.

He had been half afraid the dead would reanimate. He had not burned the corpses that day and waited a night before again going into the glade in the bright noon sun. The dead were still there. The magic of the dragon glass had indeed severed permanently the magic that had animated them. They could now kill the enemy.

The killing of three Ice Wrights had been most pleasing indeed. From what his wives had told him the Ice King put his essence into those vile wraiths. He must have felt their deaths. Good. Hopefully, this defeat would make him hesitate. He wanted every minute.

Loads of dragon glass were being sent up and down the Wall. They had fired off almost four thousand arrows in the skirmish. They had been able to retrieve roughly half. Many were lost and others had broken heads. The dragon glass was fragile. He would always need more dragon glass arrows. He had had his best archers with him for the battle. Other archers would have a much higher miss rate. He needed a sea of arrows tipped with dragon glass. His father was sending them in by the wagon full. He had enough but he wanted more and more. He would never have enough. He wanted the sky painted with his dragon glass arrows.

He had hemp and tar tipped arrows to use too. It would have to be enough. He wished that they had more Valyrian steel. It alone could withstand the freezing cold of the Ice Wright blades. They would have to fight their enemy from a distance.

The only problem was he was not sure if he would be granted that opportunity. If that was the Horn of Winter that hung from the Ice King’s neck then the Wall would be coming down. He looked out at the darkening forest. Could it be? For the Ice King to attack he must surely think he had the Horn of Winter. But was it the real thing? Mance was sure he had found it years ago but it had turned out to be a mirage. It was powerful magic just not what Mance had hoped it would be. Thankfully, he had made that discovery and called off his assault.
Mance did not want to risk his forces being annihilated trying to break the gates of the Wall. The Ice King would have to do the same thing if he did not have the Horn. The Ice King would be willing to make the sacrifice necessary to make that breach of the gates. He had some surprises for him that would hopefully prevent that.

He turned to the other side of the Wall and looked south. He saw another ten wagons coming up the King’s Road. Seven of the wagons were filled with dragon glass and three with tar and pitch for fire arrows. His father was doing all he could.

The men of Westeros would make their stand at the Wall. All was coming together. Jon could not wait to greet his father and Queen. Together they would defeat the Ice King. Jon was not a vain man but he couldn’t help but wonder what songs they would sing of him in a century’s time.

He knew the title of one song already “You know nothing Jon Snow”. Jon smiled at that. It did have a ring to it.

Tyrion

Tyrion was not a happy camper as he walked—no stalked down the hall to the Small Council chamber. He wanted to get into the Hand’s Chair. There he could sulk and work his bruised ego and celebrate his just bad luck. Tyrion had been so close so many times last night and his sword thrusts had missed the mark every time. He was a master cocksman damnit! He did not miss the mark! Was he not the “Lion of Lannister?!”

Damnit! He had had help!

He had been spying on the brood of hens that Olenna had brought with her from Highgarden. They were supposedly to be handmaids for Olenna but the old fox did not need them. They were all quite comely except for the Septa Nysterica. She had pox marks on her face and was a little chubby but she definitely had a charm about her. Whatever charms the septa had they seemed to work mighty well on her fellow hens.

Varys had told Tyrion chuckling that he should just forget the girls. When he had asked why, Varys had brought up his first two fingers in a V to his lips and wiggled his tongue between them. Varys informed Tyrion that Margaery had been fucking them for years only keeping her virtue intact for the House Tyrell. Her virtue would then be doled out to some Lord or the other. That had evidently gone out the door. One of Varys new spies he had formed with all the coming and goings in Winterfell had been making reports. The sparrow was only able to provide gossip but one never knew when a golden nugget would be found. Varys informed Tyrion that the spy had seen Sansa Stark and Margaery Tyrell snooging in the corner of the kitchen. Their hands shoved down the bodices gripping and massaging tits. The two high princesses were grunting and groaning like sows as they mauled each other's breasts while trying to remove each other's tonsils with deep spearing tongues. They would be standing in the corner oblivious to the world as they pawed each other. They would move to one hand clutching the back of each other’s heads drawing hot sucking mouths tight. Their tongues active in each other’s mouths like dueling snakes.

Tyrion had started squirming at all the sweet details. He had of course asked for every detail to make sure he fully understood the dynamics of this relationship between the Princesses of two High Houses of Westeros. It was his duty to know all after all. Tyrion prided himself in being a meticulous man who would learn all he could. it was his duty to serve his Queen well by learning all he could of this new dynamic between the Houses of the Rose and the Direwolf.
Then the man had went to the Godswood to pray one evening. He had been most shocked by what he had seen Varys reported. The eunuch had then started to move on to other matters.

“Wait! Wait. What did he see?!” Tyrion demanded.

“It really was of no import Tyrion. Surely we should move on and discuss matters pertinent to matters of the realm.”

Tyrion had demanded in no uncertain terms that he needed to know to make his own judgements as to its importance to the realm.

Varys had smirked down at the Dwarf with a cocked eyebrow. “My sparrow reported they were doing it on a pile of furs. The women were on their sides doing sixty-nine wildly gobbling each other’s snatch. Rather noisily it would seem. Lady was sitting guard so the man could not get but so close. He did report that they did then bring out a strap-on and spent several hours defiling each other in both their pussies and assholes. They were quite kinky my sparrow reports. Much lewdness and nasty sex was witnessed. The women fucked like rabid weasels.

Tyrion’s eyes were glazed. There was a small of trickle of drool coming out the left side of Tyrion’s mouth. Varys had to snap his fingers to bring Tyrion back from his happy place.

Varys told Tyrion it was considered good luck to fuck before the eyes of the old gods. Tyrion bet it was. He remembered several spots of the Godswood that were heated by the hot thermals underneath. He could just see the sweet debauchery. If the hens were as nasty as Margaery, Tyrion had just died and gone to heaven.

The little vixens Olenna had brought with her were running around the Red Keep giggling and sneaking here and there. They were so enticing to the horny dwarf. Word had gotten out of their predilections and the chambermaids were almost fighting to be the ones to clean and straighten their large room every morning. Normally, you had to badger the chambermaids to take on new responsibilities. Not with the hens. In fact the chambermaids were so anxious to assume their new responsibilities they were at the door to the bedchambers at night listening to all the wild screams of orgasm. Tyrion had walked by them and they did not even pay him any attention.

All were hoping to get in some hot action. It burned Tyrion up how the girls were nearly panting hoping to join the hens in their debauchery and they had a dwarf right beside them ready and willing to defile and debauch with them. The damn chambermaids simply ignored him pressing their ears to the door with expressions of awe and raw wanton hunger.

Tyrion had not at first believed the Tyrells’ audacity. They had converted a small private chamber that Aegon III had used for mediation and praying. It was a large room with an ached ceiling. It had been converted to a bedroom with two large royal sized king sized beds that had been built side by side. Word quickly spread how the beds were a total wreck in the morning. The sheets kicked off and pillows strewn about on the floor. Varys enjoyed giving Tyrion detailed reports of their nights of lesbian debauchery. Tyrion both relished and hated Varys detailed reports of their festivities. Varys did not have balls so he did not have to worry about getting blue balled.

Varys would smirk at the dwarf with their meetings they had in the Tower of the Hand early in the morning. They used the time to compare notes and thoughts. It was during this time that Varys would ask the dwarf if he wanted a debrief on the ‘hens’ and their nocturnal pursuits. Tyrion knew he should tell the eunuch that he was a stronger man than that. There was only one problem with that. He was not that stronger man. Sometimes he had to beg the man for the damn report.

Curse him!
Tyrion knew there must be spy holes that Varys was using to get all the juicy details of the hens nocturnal debauchery. Now the hens had sunk their claws and beaks into the maid staff it was being reported. The damn maids needed no persuasion. Varys enjoyed reporting to Tyrion how the maids nearly ripped their outfits to get naked to be consumed. “And I do mean consumed Tyrion” Varys had told the dwarf. “It is like they are some breed of man … or should I saw woman eating hens. They totallyfuck the maid staff to exhaustion. You should see them all spread akimbo on those beds soaked wet the cum and sweat. The poor lasses exhausted with red worn out pussies and assholes. The poor girls and young women are so groggy as they clean the 'hens' quarters. it is hard to clean when you are constantly being thrown down on said bed again to be fucked to screaming wildly jackknifing orgasms. Those hens sure have stamina. i admire them in fact” Varys told Tyrion with a straight face.

Tyrion had a hard time walking after hearing those reports. Curse Varys!

Tyrion had to have them. He was a damn good looking dwarf after all. Tyrion had tried flattery and giving the Hens pretty baubles to see if any of them might part their legs for him. All the damn hens did was laugh in a girlish way, giggle and twitter all breathless fanning themselves. They batted their eyelashes so cutely. They turned to expose their necks. He thought a few times he might have a nibble on his lure but they would in the end leave him holding hands and leaning into each other. He would feel his manhood jump seeing one or the other nibbling on an ear shell or licking a pulse point as they disappeared down the hall. Curse them!

He decided to change tact. Maybe if he couldn’t pork them literally maybe he could join them as a lecherous dwarf voyeur. It was worth a shot!

He had spent several days talking to the girls in general and Elinor and Megga specifically. They were obviously the leaders of the hens without Margaery around to lay claim of the lead hen. Elinor was the youngest at having just turned seventeen but she definitely was the leader. Tyrion had a hard time talking to the girl with her breast nearly spilling out her low cut bodices. His eyes nearly bulging out his head as his thoughts went into a lust addled loop. Elinor would twist and turn innocently (not!) to show off her ample wares.

Yesterday he was talking to the girls in his room. He was officially getting information on Tyrell’s production of roses. It was important to the realm that Tyrion collect such information. Megga was sitting on Elinor’s lap leaning back into the teen. They had started in separate chairs but that did not last long. Tyrion was squirming as the eighteen year nibbled on Elinor’s throat and Elinor was running her hands all over the small woman palming her small breast while looking at Tyrion with impish eyes. She knew his cock was raging. Curse them!

“I have a most immodest—I mean modest proposal for you Elinor.”

“What is that Tyrion?” followed by a cute giggle. Elinor saw the dwarf’s eyes on her bosom spilling out her low cut bodice.

“I want to watch you and your cousins and friends make love tonight.”

“Ohhh! I’m scandalized” Elinor made a show of fanning herself. “You have given me the vapors.” She acted scandalized. Tyrion rolled his eyes at the show. “How dare you imply that I’m burying my face in Megga, Alla, Alysanne, Alyce, Taena, Meredyth and Nysterica’s pussies each and every night. That I am swallowing mouthful after mouthful of hot sweet girl cum. I would never shove my tongue up their spasming assholes. I would never slam fuck their sweet quims and buttholes with my, ahhhh, uummmm supposed large assortment of toys. How dare you accuse me of those unnatural actions? I would never fuck them bowlegged each night … or is that them fucking me bowlegged? Hummmmm? Maybe both.” the teenager hummed again tapping her chin in thoughtful Megga merely giggled and wiggled back into Elinor. She sucked on Elinor’s earlobe as the brown haired beauty moaned loudly.

Tyrion watched this all with eyes large and lust addled. Curse them!

“I’ll pay you two hundred gold dragons.”

“Make it three hundred and we will use our strap-ons and do DP, TP, ATM and A2P for you. Throw in another fifty gold dragons and we will add fisting. That is fisting in both our pussies and tight hot assholes. (Tyrion had nearly fainted in pure happiness at that) Add fifty more gold dragons to the kitty and we will do double anal and vag with our strap-ons. Not that we don’t do that all the time anyways but a flock of hens needs some secrets just for us. Don’t you agree Tyrion?” She tilted her head and batted her long eyelashes at Tyrion.

She had to wave her hand in front of Tyrion’s eyes up and down as he had went to a very beautiful place.

“Tyrion, Tyrion, Tyrion.”

“Deal!”

“Sweet.”

They left him then as he jumped up and down all around his room. “Yes! Yes! Yes! Oh thank you gods that I don’t believe in.”

That evening after the dinner meal hour he had a happy skip in his step as he walked the hallways to the Hen’s Nest as it had come to call it.

He knocked on their door rocking from foot to foot. The door was opened and his mouth fell open. Elinor’s hot ripe body was totally nude. Her large breast swaying on her chest her nipples engorged and pointing at Tyrion. He looked between her legs (being short had its advantages) and saw that all seven of the other teenage girls and young women all naked and giggling looking at him. They were all obviously aroused with swollen shaved twats and engorged labia lips and rock hard nipples. Septa Nysterica and Lady Taena Merryweather had on large strap-on cocks that they were stroking with a lewd light in their eyes.

Thank you Thank you oh sweet gods! Tyrion thought to himself starting to move over the threshold. Maybe I will start believing in you!”

“Ahem.”

Tyrion’s eyes nearly bulged out of his head.

NO! NO! No!No!No! How could this be!

Tyrion turned his head and saw Oleanna smirking at him.

“Come with me Tyrion. I think we need to talk about getting your rocks off with someone other than my cousins, niece and daughters of close friends of the family.”

“Olenna!” Tyrion whined. He stomped his feet in frustration.

“Auntie!” the girls whined too. Elinor spoke for the hens. “We want to fuck in front of him … we were going to charge him—but but … we will even do it for free! It would be fun to fuck for the lecherous dwarf. He really, really wants to watch us do the nasty Auntie. He really wants to watch the septa pound our pussies and assholes like only she can. She gets so fucking hot and aroused fucking for any audience. Pllleeasseeeee! Please Auntie!!”

Normally, Tyrion might have been touched by the endearments of the hot teenagers for his rival but not now. He was so close! Tyrion started to edge towards the doorway. “You heard them Olenna. I am promoting peace and harmony between our houses Olenna. It is my duty. You know the acrimony between House Tyrell and Lannister. This is my attempts to start to set things right between our houses.” He edged closer to the door. Once inside he could slam the door in Olenna’s face. “Let me start the healing process tonight. It is the least I can do.”

The elder of House Tyrell moved forward with surprising speed and gripped Tyrion’s ear and twisted it.

“Owwchhhh!” Tyrion whined as he was dragged back down the hall towards Olenna’s bedchamber.

Curse her

Tyrion was dragged down to Olenna’s room as he pouted and kicked at her. She was able to dodge him easily. When had she gotten so fast! Curse her! Olenna reached her doorway and threw it open and with her grip on Tyrion’s ear dragged him into her room. The dwarf whining and kicking out at his tormentor the whole time. The elder dodging his kicks while maintaining her grip on the dwarf’s ear. She released her grip on his ear shoving Tyrion forward with again surprising strength.

“Tyrion. You have all the brothels of King’s Landing to satisfy your deviant desires. Why do have to choose my family and close family friend’s daughters to supply your kicks and get those little onions off.”

“But Olenna they want to! And they are so hot and randy. We all know that the moths and sparrows are fighting to get front seats in the peep holes that now line that room. It’s not fair! The fuckers won’t let me take any of their peep holes and the damn spy holes are too high for me!” the dwarf whined.

“Go to your favorite whores Chataya and Alayaya or the Greendoor. There is the Deviant’s Playground that would be happy to setup the same scenario that you desire with Margaery’s hens.”

“That is not fair Olenna. Everyone knows you are banging the stewards, cooks, stable hands and others. And lately rumor has it that you are lowering your face into squealing girl’s muffs and sucking them off.”

Olenna blushed a little to hear it so truthfully laid out.

“If you want some hot Tyrell pussy Tyrion I am right in front of you. You can fuck me. I give awesome head. I will suck your dickhead so hard you will think I am sucking it down my throat. Then I will take your cock down my throat.” Olenna stared into Tyrion’s eyes. Tyrion saw that the old crone was totally serious. She was offering to let Tyrion bang her.

Tyrion blanched. He couldn’t stop himself. Olenna was a septuagenarian. She was old! He knew his eyes were large saucers. He found the idea … well—revolting! He wanted young hens not an old gizzard broken down worn out … better to stop that train of thought … He gulped seeing the Tyrell furiously glaring at him. If looks could kill Tyrion would not be six feet under but twelve!

“I thought as much” Tyrion heard anger in her voice. He also heard hurt. Tyrion squirmed. He did not want to hurt his nemesis. Her eyes were flinging Valyrian daggers at his sweet personage. Her fingers twitched with the desire to strangle said dwarf. Tyrion took a step back eyeing the door. He was a lover not a fighter!

Tyrion looked at the woman. Tyrion gulped at the murderous fire in Olenna’s eyes. He looked at her more closely and more critically. She had snow white hair that she no longer wore in a bun. It now flowed down over her shoulders and it did seem fuller of body and had a luster to it. He remembered her stooped over and using a cane. Now she walked with a straight back and almost lively step. Her face he swore was not quite as lined. She did have flaring hips still and her bosom was not that bad. I mean breast are breast … his thoughts drifted on how to repair the situation …

“Too late Tyrion. Your face and body betrayed you! Get out of my room. I have heard you are quite endowed. I could have taken your cock down my throat and deep throat fuck you till your cock spurted hard into my tummy. Then you could have fucked my sweet still tight wet pussy and up my ass as I did lewd ATM and A2P for you, you fucking bigot. I may be old but I am still hot in bed. Just ask all the young men and boys I fuck to exhaustion. Ask all the girls I make scream all night.”

“I. Am. A. Great. Fuck. Tyrion.”

“But Olenna. I was thinking about the grain shipments—“

“Leave. And stay the fuck away from my hens!”

Tyrion left in a huff. Curse her!

Mumbling and grumbling Tyrion had stomped down to the kitchen and devoured some breast. The damn fucking chicken tasted damn good. He had wanted another kind of breast damnit! The kind that groaned gutturally and squealed. Tyrion stuffed one kind of breast down his gullet thinking of another. Then he stomped back to his quarters. He opened the door and slammed it shut.

“Ho ho ho Tyrion. Been striking out I hear! You’re a real smooth operator you sawed off runt.”

Tyrion stared aghast. Bronn and Shae were in his room with big smirks on their faces. Shae of course was in a thin dress that left nothing to the imagination. In his worked up state that was the last thing he needed! He tried to act obtuse.

“I don’t know what you are talking about.”

“Oh you mean you trying to get a peep show with Margaery’s hens” Bronn hooted.

Shae saddled closer to Tyrion and performed her ingénue show. How could a whore move so innocently and blatantly sexual at the same time Tyrion wondered yet again? “Yes my sweet Lion of Lannister. The teenagers were denied you and then you blew it with Olenna Redwyne. Or should I say you blew getting blown. I hear she does deep throat almost as good as me.”

“That is a lie! A heinous lie meant to cast aspersions on the Lion of Lannister! I had to fight off her ravenous advances. She’s an animal!”

“Tweet tweet tweet tweet! … The sparrows say otherwise” Shae sing-songed to Tyrion. She had a shit eating grin on her face.

“Why the hell are they tweeting to you two so damn fucking fast?!”

“We pay Varys good gold coin to keep track of you dwarf!” Bronn crowed.
“That is my money godsdamnit! That is so unfucking fair!” Tyrion bellowed.

“Yeah. We know. Sweet isn’t it’ Bronn chuckled.

_Curse them!

“Lies! Lies I tell you. I had to use my martial arts skills to fight off Olenna! She was ravenous for my sweet dwarf meat!”

“Ohhhh _puuhhlleezzEEEeee Tyrion” Shae groused.

“You can’t fight worth a shit Tyrion. A slug has more acumen for fighting. You have the skills and senses of a sluggard” Bronn told the Dwarf earnestly.

“Bullshit! I have the ears of a fox. The eyes of an eagle. I sense my surroundings like an eight eyed spider. I am—_wwhwatTTTT?!?” Tyrion cried toppling to the ground and landing hard on his face. He had not seen Shae step up beside him and trip him.

Tyrion rose back up rubbing his forehead. “I’ll get you for that! I will use the style of the Tiger (he began grunting and swiping at Shae with clawed hands; Shae merely raised an eyebrow). I know the snake (Tyrion got on the floor and did something vaguely obscene with his kicking legs and thrashing arms while his body undulated like something unholy - he got back up) whoa I’m a little dizzy.”

The dwarf shook his head clearing the cobwebs. “But my favorite is the praying mantis.” He pulled his forearms up to rest against his upper arms and cupped his hands striking out like said insect. He advanced on Shae making snapping motions at her with his cocked arms. He made hissing sounds.

Shae reached out and put her hand on Tyrion’s forehead holding him back effortlessly. Tyrion hissed striking out with his arms but falling miserably short. Tyrion rolled his eyes up and looked at Shae’s hand holding him back. He grinned and went to strike the arm restraining him. In a flash the arm was pulled back and Tyrion went careening back down to the floor.

He thrashed and gnashed his teeth before rising up again. “Damnit! That is no fair! I’m a savage damnit!”

Bronn barked “Give it up runt. You are not a fighter but a lover. Right?”

Bronn came over and slapped him hard on his back staggering the dwarf. “Man, only you Tyrion could blow it with women sixty plus years difference in age. You are the lion that could _almost_ roar!” Bronn laughed so hard he nearly folded over.

Shae had sat down in his special chair in front of the fire. Tyrion came over to her and glared up at her. He really wanted to sit in his chair.

Shae patted her lap. “Come and sit on my lap and let Shae comfort you Tyrion. I’m much better than any teenager or old woman.”

“I have had a bad day Shae.”

“Tonight is your lucky night Tyrion. Bronn is going to watch as you fuck me with your large cock my Lion of Lannister” Shae purred to the dwarf.

“Shae shut the fuck up and get the hell out of my gods damned chair!”
SLAP!

Tyrion’s head rocked to the side.

Shae stomped out of the room. Bronn was looking at the dwarf with a look of commensuration.

“Man. Your luck is simply terrible tonight my dear dwarf. She really was going to fuck you and then I was going to join in and we could DP the little hussy” Bronn told the dwarf coming over to pat him on the shoulder. He turned around and left quietly.

_Curse me!

_In a pique of anger Tyrion kicked the air in front of the Small Council chambers. He fumed and threw a temper tantrum since there was no one around to ridicule him for it. A minute later he was tuckered out. Tyrion turned and entered the Small Council chamber.

/////\\\

It had been a week since the “Great Debacle of Hens” or “Night of the Curses” as Tyrion called it now. It had been a chilly few days after that night with Olenna and Shae. He had been sure to be nice, quiet and meek around the two women.

He gave Shae a nice necklace with little interlocked “Hands” shaped like the pendant of the “Hand”. Shae liked little pretty trinkets. She had asked him to put it around her neck. Of course the bonus of two hundred gold crowns to Shae had not hurt. Bronn had whined and bitched till he got a hundred gold crowns so all was good on that front.

With Olenna he demurred like a beaten cur and whimpered under her withering tongue for the first few days as the Tyrell worked the bile out of her system. Each insult lancing the wound to her ego that little bit more. Olenna firing off barbs off like arrows. “What do you call a poor dwarf? Short changed” “Why shouldn't you hire a dwarf chef? The steaks are too high.” “What do you call a party with a hundred dwarves? A little get together.” “Make little things count … teach a dwarf math.” “Did you hear about the dwarf that got pick pocketed … how could anyone stoop so low.” The jokes were truly horrible but Tyrion held his tongue. He deserved it.

_She had just come out of left field damnit!_ Anyone would have been nonplussed by that sudden offer! He was only human damnit!

He had begun negotiations again with Elinor. That was too good to pass up and Olenna was taking a trip to Dragonstone to make sure that the production of dragon glass was still running at full speed. Time was running out and the Queen was insistent on making as much as possible and getting it up the King’s Highway or by ship.

If it turned out to be a protracted war then those weapons would be needed. The Queen was sending daily ravens back to King’s Landing letting Tyrion, Olenna and the rest of the remaining Small Council of the progress of the war effort.

Tyrion knew that Olenna’s visit to Dragonstone would be the perfect time to watch the “Isle of Lesbos” as he now called his night of future debauchery. The fact that Elinor had put in the stipulation “No touching!” and “Keep your jizz on yourself!” had been little thrill kills but he adjusted.

Then came the sticker shock. “Six hundred crowns! That’s highway robbery!”

“The stakes have been upped Tyrion. It is much more dangerous for us now.”
Tyrion rolled his eyes. Olenna was like a toothless tiger with her hens.

“You seem pretty okay to me Elinor. I don’t see any marks on you.”

“We were most distraught. We nearly died from the vapors” the girl said fanning herself with a painted folding fan from Yi Ti a bit dramatically.

“Too make it up to us for her heinous actions she has installed eyelets on the walls and crossbeams and gave us quick release chains and locks. We have been given new floggers and cattails. She also had built these really neat iron tubes that can be assembled in all these neat positions. It is so fucking hot.”

Tyrion’s eyes bulged with the kinkiness of it all.

“Nysterica’s training as a Septa comes in handy. She makes a great Inquisitor. Last night she had Megga and Alla chained to the wall. She had Alysanne, Taena and Alyce hanging from chains from the crossbeams. Their ankles locked in iron ankle bars. Meredyth and I were in seats made from the iron bar set with our arms and legs anchored out in place. She constructed it in such a way as we were leaned back our charms open to her flogger, cattail and … (she shivered in supposed fear) candle of dripping hot wax …”

Tyrion saw Elinor’s eyes go glassy. “Gods she can use that cattail.” Elinor shivered. “The way she windmills her arm when using the flogger. She used hot wax on Meredyth and me to ‘make’ us confess our sins. We screamed in pleasure—uuhhh … I mean in agony watching those drops of hot wax fall on bellies, tits and wet cunts. Gods we screamed in raw pleasure—damnit—I mean searing pain.”

“And you mentioned marks Tyrion. I assure you when you see my naked body it is covered with marks and bruises from our hot kinky sex.”

Tyrion’s cock was about to explode damnit!

“We held strong until she used her flogger to pound the cooled melted wax off our bodies. Gods that wax felt so good hitting my nipples and clit” Elinor spoke in a faraway voice.

Elinor looked at Tyrion. “That is worth six hundred crowns isn’t it?”

“YESSS!”

Tyrion had had to take matters into his own hands after that. Damn that hussy was good. She had a real gift for the spoken word. She was a born orator.

Now all seemed to be back to normal. Tyrion was thankful.

Varys and Olenna’s network of spies were focused now on Casterly Rock and the Iron Islands. No one trusted Tywin Lannister most of all his son. He may not be plotting for the throne but the man never missed a chance to create mischief and seek to further the aims of his House. Tyrion knew all too well the lengths his father would go to seek and curry favor.

Tyrion still considered it a great dishonor on his house what happened the day that Daenerys Targaryen’s father was killed. That had been deserved and even necessary but he knew what happened to Rhaegar’s wife and children had been a crime against both gods and man. Tyrion shuddered still thinking of the savagery of their death.

His father still proclaimed his innocence. Maybe he had not directly ordered it but Tyrion would always be convinced his father had spoken in such a way that Gregor Clegane knew exactly what he was supposed to do that night. Gods the brutality of it still shocked Tyrion and he was a jaded and dissipated soul.

Tyrion had many grudges with his father on a personal level. This was one on the societal level. His father was a detriment to the wellbeing of Westeros. But Tyrion knew his father was a wily old fox. He would always have an air of plausible deniability surrounding him.

Fortunately, the realm did not have that issue with the Iron Islands. They were open about their desires and willingness to defy the Iron Throne. They were brave and bold and very, very stupid.

Why they insisted on their Iron Price and Salt Wives was beyond Tyrion. He had received by raven the news of the treachery of House Frey and Bolton. Tyrion chuckled. They had no idea the deep shit they were in. They would be annihilated.

Olenna chose that moment to come into the Small Council chambers. She was followed closely by a beautiful blond haired lass with a tight big ass and high orange sized firm breast. The girl followed behind Olenna closely. The look on the teen’s face told Tyrion she was completely enamored with the Tyrell.

Olenna tended to arrive early to organize her papers. Papers that the pretty young clerk was holding to her bosom. Olenna sat down slowly and wiggled to get her ass comfortable. The girl put the papers on the table and beamed down at Olenna. Olenna smiled up at the girl and fingered the binders. Olenna made a show of “accidentally” pushing a folder off the table in slow motion. The folder opened and papers spread out on the floor.

Olenna acted like she was shocked that the folder had somehow fell off the table top. “Be a dear Jasline and pick that up for me would you please?” Olenna locked eyes with Tyrion. She then turned to look at Jasline who smiled a beaming loving smile at her employer.

The pretty buxom blond still a teen of about seventeen slowly turned around so her ass was facing the Tyrell. The girl looked back at Olenna to make sure that Olenna was looking at her shapely ass. Jasline slowly bent down in such a way as to throw her rump out at Olenna. Olenna now moved her sight back to Tyrion. She kept eye contact with Tyrion. Olenna slowly ran her fingers into the girl’s ass cleft and stroked it sensually. Up and down Olenna worked her fingers into the beauty’s ass cleft and stroked sensually. The fingers sliding down the curve of the girl's rump working in deep to run up and down Jasline's ass cleft again and again.

The girl gasped and fumbled trying to pick up the papers scattered on the floor. The girl’s legs were starting to tremble. Whimpers of clotted need cawed out the girl’s throat. Her ass pressing back into the fingers that slow and sensually stroked the depths of the girl’s ass cleft and now focused on her rosebud Tyrion could see.

He could not help but stare at the hot display of lesbian affectations. Tyrion knew it was meant to addle his mind and damn it was working! Really well! Going by the girls mewls and whinnies maybe this was not all for show meant to rile Tyrion.

“Ooohhhhhhhhh … unngggg yeesssss baby … you’re making me so wet for you again unnggggg” the girl whimpered as Olenna ran her hand down and stroked the girl’s camel toe. The girl shuddered and moaned louder. “Oh Olenna I need to suck you off sooooooo bad! Your cunt is so fucking sweet!” Olenna then smacked the girl’s ass hard making the girl squeal. Jasline instead of jumping back shoved her ass closer to Olenna who now rubbed the offended ass cheek. The girl was moaning loudly and Tyrion had a raging boner!
“You can give me the folder now Jasline” Olenna softly intoned. She removed her hand from the teenager’s ass. The teenager could focus now and picked up the papers. She rose up looking sultry at her benefactor. The girl whimpered and looked back and shook her voluptuous ass again hoping for more. “Jasline be a good girl and I will let you ride my face again as I suck you off again and again.”

The girl squealed again and clumsily shoved the papers to Olenna in her excitement. Tyrion thought the girl was damn near swooning for Olenna. Tyrion remembered looking at Tysha like that. The girl was in love with Olenna. What Tyrion saw was no act. “Give me a kiss baby and be off to my chambers” Olenna told the girl.

The girl eagerly bent her head down and they snogged fiercely for a long minute their cheeks showing active tongues surging from mouth to mouth. The kiss finally broke and sweet Jasline staggered away to the door and paused “I can’t wait to suck you off and drink you sweet cum Auntie … gods I love sucking off you sweet cunt!”

The girl was gone and Tyrion could barely sit still.

“Yes indeed Tyrion. I am a great fuck to those with an open mind and heart. I fucked her and Nathaleya half the night last night. I must say I am becoming quite addicted to pussy” and the elder Hen chuckled at her own humor. “But I will never say ‘no’ to an orgasm from a good cocksman.”

Tyrion bowed his head to Olenna. Game. Set. Match. He wondered if she knew that Jasline and probably Nathaleya were in love with her. He was surprised Olenna had it in her. To make these girls fall so hard for her Olenna was doing more than fucking their brains out. She must be treating them nice and lovingly. Tyrion shook his head. Who would have thought the old coot capable of true affection?

“So what were you reviewing in that devious mind of yours.”

Tyrion went over his thoughts on his father and his stratagems for the future.

Olenna considered. “Yes. Your father is opportunistic but cautious. I think he will wait and see how the winds of war blow.”

“Yes I believe you are right. My father likes picking the winner’s side and will wait until it is clearly evident on whose side to cast his lot. Daenerys father learned that lesson with his life.”

“Are you saying he will side with the Frey’s and the Bolton’s?”

Tyrion considered it. It was shameful that he had too. “No. My father is grasping and calculating but he would not side with the Ice King. He prefers his advisories to be human. He will create mischief though if Daenerys comes out of the war weakened.”

“That won’t happen.”

“How can you be sure? We are facing a foe who will stop at nothing for our defeat.”

“Because I have total and complete faith in our Queen. She and Eddard will prevail.”

There it was again. That note of longing of when she speaks of Eddard Stark. Who would of thought such a player of the Game of Thrones would find Eddard so attractive. But then again, Eddard had shown a hidden talent.

They discussed the Iron Islands. They both agreed that they were a more obvious outright danger.
They had always chaffed at the changing times. They still fiercely believed that they should again have a king and be allowed to freely follow their old ways.

“It wouldn’t be so bad if they would do their “Iron Price” only among themselves” Olenna mused.

“That wouldn’t be much fun Olenna. Anyways, their islands are too poor in resources for that to work. They refuse to integrate into the other economies of Westeros and therefore are unable to partake of the trade and revenue being generated.”

“Do you think they will make mischief?”

“No, my father has his fleets primed and ready to move out a day’s notice. The Queen set the fire underneath his ass. He is aggressively patrolling the west coast of Westeros and sending small flotillas out to patrol close into the Iron Islands.”

“Yes. They would see that. The Iron Islanders are brave and stupid but not that stupid. They would have to fight through the blockades before they could even attempt to launch raiding parties. Also, the Queen bloodied their noses pretty badly at Lundenberry South of Three Towers. It was a decisive defeat.”

Olenna chuckled “Yes I concur. I can only image what her dragons must be like in battle when you have no defense against them. Without siege weapons like scorpions or Knights with long iron tipped lances who would probably scorched to slag before they could reach the dragons then nothing can long stand against them.

They concurred that the Iron Islands for now would lick their wounds and bid their time. They would sally forth again they were sure of not having fleets breathing down their backs. That would not be today or tomorrow.

They again discussed the raven from two days ago from the Queen. They were extremely pleased to read a message in her hand. Barristan had written them for three previous days. He had explained the meeting of the witches of Asshai and how they had given all a shocking and vivid reveal of the Ice King. The Blood Phoenix had nearly been slain and taking the witches, their Queen and Arya with it. Maybe many of the men blood linked to the witches and Phoenix would have perished.

The Queen had now recovered and told of the harrowing events that had incapacitated her and Arya. They easily caught Daenerys focus on the health and wellbeing of her “royal hostage”. The love she felt for Arya was so obvious to them in her writings.

The Queen then revealed to them her reveal to the Great Houses of her Game of Thrones along with Eddard to get them to march North on the supposed sedition of the North. There had been some barking and yipping but the events with the Blood Phoenix had greatly squashed any rancor and Oberyn had come to Queen’s aid and worked to unite the South with the North.

The united forces of Westeros would now confront the Ice King.

The reduced Small Council was quiet. The land had mobilized for war and not much was pressing or needed quick tending. Tyrion and Olenna were working with the Master of Laws Micud Caudill and Master of Coin Vedad Softic to take full advantage of the offer from the Iron Bank for Arya’s services. They planned to ask for even more concessions and raise the percentages that would be asked for. This was a godsend and they would take full advantage of it.

They were still “hearing supplications”. Gods they wondered how Daenerys handled some of the more inane ones. They asked for any to delay if possible for the Queen’s return. They made it clear they would be harsh. This put most off. With outright matters of dispensing the Queen’s justice on what they still called 'Day of the Queen's Justice' they rendered their rulings on criminal matters and sentencing. They tried to use the standards that Daenerys used. To judge from all sides and to give the sentence necessary but always err on the side of mercy and leniency. This was first time offenders. The Queen was much harsher on repeat offenders.

They went over the reports from the great houses. They had been focused greatly over the last eight months on the mobilization of the Houses to march north. Now they were back to more mundane matters of concerns and needs of the provinces. The outflows of resources to meet those needs and the income from taxes. Finally, they were in sync. The realm was no longer going into greater and greater debt.

The reports from Dorne continued to shine. Tyrion remarked that it seemed that half the royal women of the new upcoming generation were gay.

"Is that a problem?"

"No. I just wanted to celebrate in this rise of lesbian love and show my support by observing it so I can properly defend their behavior, but, noooooo, someone thwarts my efforts.”

"You truly have not shame do you.”

“I will never let shame and decorum keep me from getting my rocks off!!"

Olenna laughed and Tyrion felt that hopefully, maybe, the rancor from the night of the “Great Debacle” was past them now.

The next morning Tyrion went to the courtyard to see Olenna off. He smiled at her sweetly as she got in the royal carriage she had ridden to King’s Landing in from Highgarden. A moment later from the door to the King’s Keep Jasline and a beautiful auburn haired lass with large breast he assumed was Nathaleya emerged. They had big smiles on their faces. They hurried to the carriage and entered it. The door was resoundingly shut.

Tyrion fumed at that. Does that old hussy never stop! She was a fucking nymphomaniac. He actually admired her but would never admit it.

To take his mind off his ire he focused on the royal carriage of Olenna Redwyne. It was a lovely piece of construction. Just as the hens of Tyrell were equally beautiful. Gods, if he had to die soon let it be after the night of kinky lesbian debauchery he was about to witness. Thank you sweet gods.

He looked in the royal carriage as he watched the girls get settled in with their —ahem— employer.

Olenna was leaning in both directions gently kissing fluttering eyelids and throats Tyrion knew they young beautiful lasses were cawing in primal want and need. Olenna gently stroked the radiant teen’s faces with her fingertips. The girls pressing their cheeks into the gently caressing fingers. Olenna traced their lips and eyes as the girls clearly whimpered. Olenna ran her long fingers through their hair that she let run through her fingers and slowly cascade down like waterfalls of blond and auburn.

The girls looked at Olenna with pure love in their eyes. The old fox had them totally in her spell.

Olenna said something and both girls stood up in a flash and excitedly started to strip. Their hands flying and Tyrion knew buttons were flying too in their haste to divest themselves of their dresses and small clothes. The speed of their clothes coming off was amazing to behold. Tyrion was memorized at these ravishing beautiful vixens so hungrily stripping for Olenna. The teenagers looked at each other with love but that love glowed like the sun when they stared down at Olenna with open love and lust. The dwarf saw pieces of dresses flying and then small clothes hit the window to fall down. Tyrion saw the sincerity in the girl’s motions. They obviously desired Olenna’s body greatly. Gods the sex in that carriage was going to be incendiary!

What the hell did that prune have in her couchie! Tyrion groused to himself. Both of the beautiful teenagers were as nude as their name day now. Gods they were so hot! Tyrion thought to himself.
Nathaleya leaned forward cupping her large full breast holding them out with a lust filled gaze on her face. She stared at Olenna with obvious full blown love. Her eyes literally throbbed with the need to be ravished by the elderly Tyrell.

Olenna tilted her head forward her hands coming up to grip the girl’s womanly hips. Her mouth opened wide and sucked the nearest nipple deep into her mouth and sucked hard. The dwarf’s sharp eyesight saw Olenna’s cheeks dimple with her voracious sucks. Tyrion could not hear but the girl was obviously squealing her head thrashing. Her face filled with ecstasy. The teen jammed her breast harder into the Tyrell’s mouth as Olenna sucked fiercely on the thick nipple jammed deep into her mouth.

Olenna started to move her head right and left and used her grip on the girl’s hips to draw Nathaleya closer. She tried to suck the girl’s nipples down her throat. The girl had to be screaming now in pleasure judging by her twisted face and convulsing body. Olenna with a vacuum suck pulled her head back till the Nathaleya’s nipple plopped out her mouth. Olenna’s head dove in sucking the other nipple deep into her mouth. Tyrion saw Olenna looking up as she deep throat sucked on the turgid nipple making the girl obviously scream in pleasure.

Damn her fucking eyes Tyrion growled trying to hide his tented trousers. He had noticed Olenna rising up slightly several times and suddenly her head slammed back into the panel of the carriage.
He had lost track of Jasline but he knew where she was now. Between Olenna’s legs with her face buried in her dripping snatch!

Olenna’s hands were now reaching down and jerking forward. Olenna’s body jolted with hard pleasure. Nathaleya had stepped up on the sitting bench. Tyrion watched mesmerized as the teen flexed her knees now and pushed her groin forward. It seemed Olenna had gotten the lass to shave her mound bare. Gods it looked so succulent all swollen and dripping wet. The girl mashed her muffin into Olenna’s mouth her head rocking back in ecstasy. The teen swirled and ground her cunt into Olenna’s hot gobbling mouth.

Olenna had now gripped the girl’s ass and helped Nathaleya setup a swirling motion that ground her drooling trim into the Tyrell’s hot gobbling mouth. Olenna’s head lapped and Tyrion saw her tongue at times lashing the girl’s clit and sucking in mouthfuls of sweet wet teenage cunt meat. Olenna was sucking hard her head rocking back with the force of her sucks and then back to tongue lashing the teenager’s throbbing shiny clit.

Tyrion cried out in his mind at the sheer debauchery of it all. He looked around desperately. He had to see more! He moved to the left and crawled up on a stack of small crates that happened to be there to get a better view. It took some effort to scale the stack to the topmost crate.

He was determined. His small legs kicking to get purchase but he finally scaled the crates. He stood up on his throne at the top of the world. He could now see a blond head lapping furiously between Olenna’s spread legs. The teen had rolled up Olenna’s dress to above her hips to rest half way up Olenna’s belly. This had fully exposed Olenna’s swollen shaved cunt to Jasline’s hot gobbling mouth. Tyrion saw how dark pink and wet the Tyrell’s cunt was. Gods her whole groin, belly and thighs were soaked in her cum. Olenna’s plumbing was definitely working!

Nahaleya had both hands in Olenna’s hair and jamming her face deep into her cunt. Her vulva totally swallowing Olenna’s mouth as it flared out showing Olenna’s tongue working her slit and clit. The auburn haired beauty’s body was convulsing in ecstasy. Her face seemed to be in agony the way it twisted and slashed. It was not agony but ecstasy! Damn that Olenna could eat pussy like a fucking pro! She was almost as good as Tyrion himself he thought seriously.

Olenna’s right hand came up to claw Nathaleya’s firm ass cheek and jammmed the teen even harder into her hard sucking mouth. Tyrion could see Olenna’s cheeks hollowed out with the force of her deep throat sucks on the cunt meat sucked deep in her mouth. Her cheeks showed her tongue gigging and slapping the girl’s rigid clit. Olenna’s head rocked so she could tongue lash the clit underneath her mouth. Then Olenna surged her head forward her mouth opened wide as she sucked most of the girl’s upper cunt deep into her mouth where Olenna munched on it with a happy dreamy look on her face.

Then Nathaleya was obviously screaming her hips lurching and mashing her exploding cunt into Olenna’s ravenous mouth. Then Olenna was screaming into Nathaleya’s snatch as her own twat exploded in Jasline’s mouth. Tyrion’s mouth fell open seeing almost horrible convulsions rip through the old fox’s body. Olenna’s body torn with full body flips and jackknives. Nathaleya’s cunt jammed in Olenna’s mouth that kept the septernarian anchored down as her body was almost torn apart with ecstasy. Oh my gods Tyrion thought seeing such raw and beautiful lesbian passion. He couldn’t wait till tonight!

Olenna somehow kept her wits though her long harrowing orgasm. She continued to voraciously attack Nathaleya’s pussy with her hot sucking mouth. The teenager’s body froze and then seemed as if it had been struck by lightning as it convulsed and bucked wildly with yet another orgasm. Tyrion saw Jasline’s head lifting as she tried to suck Olenna’s clit down her throat. Then Olenna’s body was flipping and jackknifing wildly as a second orgasm tore her body apart with fucking bliss.

The damn fucking carriage was actually rocking on its damn frame! Tyrion’s cock was so erect it was fucking painful!

His mind raced to his clandestine meetings with Elinor to set up tonight’s debauchery.

After his initial meeting with Elinor he had communicated with the girl either through dead letter drops or a few minutes in the main halls while getting food or the small intimate meeting of courtesans that Olenna sponsored. She thought to have more of these types of meeting to build contacts and relationships between the Houses.

Elinor and Tyrion would pass each other and softly converse in a quick minute to further plans and for Elinor to take kinky requests from Tyrion. To Tyrion’s delight the girl was more than happy to commit all forms of debauchery with her hen mates.

Tyrion commented on the pretty pink bauble necklace that the girl always seemed to wear. “Family heirloom?”

Elinor told him “no” and explained it was an heirloom that Olenna had given her and she had given the Septa an identical one to wear too. She had given one to Margaery before several years ago. It made Elinor feel special to know Olenna had given her a cherished family heirloom like she had given her own granddaughter. Elinor was proud and happy to wear it. Tyrion saw the Valyrian makings on the jewelry work. He asked to see the babble and Elinor granted him permission. Fortunately, the girl did not mind Tyrion’s clumsy fingers as they fumbled the necklace and accidently groped her heavy breast.

All she did was giggle. Tyrion was impressed with Olenna’s largesse.

Tyrion saw another two carriages coming into the courtyard. Tyrion frowned. These were obviously designed to transport high royals. In fact the two new carriages looked a lot like the carriages that had arrived with Olenna when she had arrived to King’s Landing. Worse, he realized which two they were! Nooooo!

The two new carriages came up behind Olenna’s carriage. The windows were shut. Tyrion turned to look at Olenna beaming at him in her carriage. The Queen of Thorns had a triumphant look on her face. How could she do this!

More importantly how had she found out! This was fucking unfair!

Inside the two carriages were eight morose hens who were staring out the windows at Tyrion. They had their faces in the windows looking at him with looks of being royally pissed off. Meredyth and Taena were making motions that Tyrion interoparated roughly to “we’ll get that bitch for this!” Alyssanne looked resigned blowing hair out of her face. Nysterica had a sheet of paper pushed up to the window. “Save Me” written on it. The girl was melodramatic if nothing else.

They would just be fucking in whatever inn they stopped in. An inn where he could not watch damnit!

Elinor pushed a sheet of paper up to the window “The cost is now seven hundred and fifty gold dragons.”

Tyrion cursed and grimaced. He looked back to Olenna’s carriage. Her hair was totally in disarray and her face soaked in snail snot. Damn she actually looked hot as he saw the two teenagers hungrily jerking her dress to loosen the ties and ripping the buttons loose. Jasline hungrily shoved her hands in Olenna’s dress and groping her tits roughly. Tyrion watched Olenna’s face slash with pleasure and her eyelids flutter into slits. Then the wench opened her eyes and smirked over at Tyrion. Olenna blew him a kiss as the little convoy started on its way.

Tyrion was already mentally counting out the extra dragons.

It had gotten personal!

Arya

Arya looked around herself her body rocking to the steady gait of her horse. The silence here was almost magical. They had been traveling up the King’s Highway for a week since they resumed their journey after meeting the witches of Asshai. It still stunned her to think that they were also the wives to her brother Jon. Damn that man had lucked out. Two hot red head women who, oh by the way were powerful witches with smoking hot bodies.

She was not in any way tempted. She only had eyes for Dany but she had seen them naked and their bodies were hot and tight. Arya had eyes and she could not but help and use them. Her brother was one lucky guy. The witches would make camp at night some distance from the camp in the Sandhills. They wanted their privacy and they could also act as a picket in that direction.

Arya sent her Direwolf off the second night to see what the witches were doing. They had found a hollowed out area a mile and half from the camp and spread out their furs. A blue film seemed to make them disappear but then it cleared and Nymeria could see the witches again. They sat down and talked. For an hour she watched through Nymeria’s eyes.

Dany was in meetings with the generals so Arya had time to idyll away. Long meetings on military logistics and going over the same minutia nearly drove her insane with boredom. Dany had given her freedom for a night. Dany wanted Arya to learn but these boring nightly meetings currently had nothing to teach the young wolf. Thus, she was spying through Nymeria on the witches. She was hoping to get lucky. She was just getting ready to warg out of Nymeria’s body.

Then things got interesting. Very interesting. The women made passionate love over and over their bodies writhing and their screams deafening. She felt her mind on fire. She saw the women and in her mind it was her doing all those wicked things to Dany. She fled Nymeria’s body when she started to worry about Dany coming in on her after the meeting. She did not want Dany to know of her Dirty Warging as she called it now.

She never would know that the witches had known Arya was warged in Nymeria and had allowed the direwolf to see them. They had learned of such talents as warging though Jon and Snow.

She had gone back to her shared tent with Dany. She had gotten in her furs. She had jilled off hurriedly shoving her hands into her trousers and rubbing her sloppy wet muff hard and cumming like an exploding volcano. She knew her clothes and furs would trap her fuck musk. Gods her groin and ass were so soaked in cum! She loved it! Gods she wanted Dany so bad. She fell asleep with a big smile on her face.

For some reason it made Arya very happy that the women were also lovers and not just loves of Jon. For Arya it just felt right when women made love. She loved Jon even if he was a man. Arya chuckled. She just had zero attraction to the male form. Arya could see why the witches loved Jon though. Though it had been years since she had seen her brother when he left for the Wall she still remembered his gentle ways and how he was so very considerate. Arya now understood that Jon had many qualities of a woman’s personality. Her father had that same gentleness but Jon had it more. She could understand these beautiful women falling in love with him.

As they rode up the King’s highway the shorter witch had been a little encyclopedia of knowledge of the surrounding landscape. To her right the Sandhills and to her left the Barrowlands. The Sandhills were full of life where the Barrowlands were much more arid and not flushed with obvious life.

Over the last week Arya spent most of her time at the Queen’s side but at times she would let her horse fall back to mingle with the other High Nobles. She genuinely wanted to get to know them better. She found she liked Stannis with his stiff formality and just a hint of humor he would use while still keeping that stern look that had you wondering if was jibbing or not. Renly was boisterous and always talking shade about this and that. He did it in such a way that it was actually funny and kind of endearing.

Oberyn was cool even if he was a leech. He was polite and funny but he was always leering at her. He would look at Dany in the distance and she could see him calculating if he wanted to die tonight. Dany took very seriously her duties of protecting Arya. Arya longed and desired more. Dany was always at her side the moment any cad made a move on her. It made her feel warm and gooey inside. Arya wanted it to be Daenerys making lewd advances on Arya. Advances she would encourage! How she wanted to part her legs for her sweet Dany!

She had been debating back and forth for months if Dany desired more like she did. Arya was so innocent and lacked confidence with anything that did not involve a sword or bow and arrow. Arya had worried her lips to the point of the Maester Hape had to put balm on her lips and he ordered her to “stop gnawing that lip like a beaver!”
The Tyrells were polite and genial. Mace was reserved but she did not sense any ill in the man. His two sons were nice and polite. They talked of matters of House. Winterfell had no equivalent of the food stuff and flowers that Highgarden grew and she found it fascinating. The craft of trade involved in growing and the distributing the produce.

Two nights ago Oberyn had wandered into the Tyrell tent. Arya noticed the immediate tension in the air. Oberyn grabbed a Highgarden Golden Delicious apple and bit into it. He looked around with that impish look when he was about to cause mischief.

“So Mace. When were you planning on telling Arya about calling for Eddard’s head to be presented to you on a sliver plate?”

Mace went deathly white. Dany had let Arya know of all the dynamics of the Houses as she and her father had played their game of thrones. Arya had understood the rancor her father’s actions were causing in the major houses. Oberyn cocked an eyebrow. “Wweelllll Mace? … Cat got your tongue?”

Mace whimpered out weakly “You’re not going to tell your father are you Arya? How could I know it was all a Game of Thrones. I had to seem like I was defending my House. I did not truly mean it. Public consumption and all you know.” Mace looked at Arya with a suddenly sweaty lip and forehead.

Arya was enjoying watching the High Lord sweat. She understood his rancor. Still, it was her father’s head he had been asking to have brought to him.

Arya looked at Mace evenly.

Willis stepped in “Arya. We must ask for your forgiveness. It did seem that your father was fostering open rebellion of the North. We had to act.” He looked back at his father. “If your father had been leading a rebellion then we would have crushed it and the ramifications that would have led to certain acts. True, some of us” he looked at his father again “spoke a little rashly and spoke in hyperbole. Please forgive us.”

Arya gave a formal bow of the head. “All is forgiven. My father was merely doing what was necessary to protect the realm.”

Arya had enjoyed the back and forth. It was funny to see Mace blanching so.

She was riding again beside Ygritte and Melisandre. She liked them. They were an interesting dynamic. Ygritte was bluff and always crowing about here prowess with her weapons and how she had captured both her brother and Melisandre as her mates by the “right of the hunt.” She was downright smug about it. She liked to talk. Especially about herself. The woman literally preened with her self-confidence.

Her wife, Melisandre, was another matter altogether. She was formal and polite but she did not talk unless there was a need to express her views. She was quite happy to let Ygritte do all the talking which Ygritte was happy to do too. Ygritte would answer any question asked her. Melisandre seemed to hang on Ygritte’s words with rapt attention if Ygritte was speaking to her or about something they had done together.

It was also cute all the facial mannerisms Melisandre had when Ygritte got on one of her jigs about how great she was at one thing or another. Sometimes the little former Wildling did not know when to stop her braggadocios goings on. The eye rolls, grimaces and great dramatic sighs from Melisandre were a pleasure to hear and see. If Ygritte noticed, it did not bother her as her bluster and banter continued on unabated.

Despite their differences in demeanor both women projected an air of calm and being in tune with themselves and each other. They seemed to know their destiny and their place in the world. It was endearing how they touched each other to make a point and when directly communicating to each other they gave each other their full attention.

Arya saw Ygritte throughout the day move her horse close to Melisandre’s and stroke her side or heavy breast or run her fingers through the tall woman’s long auburn hair. The woman leaned into the short fiery redhead’s loving caresses. Melisandre seemed to purr when Ygritte ran her fingers through her wife’s long tresses slowly letting her hair waft through her fingers. The woman obviously enjoyed her wife’s touches. The way she would enjoy Daenerys showing her such public affection. She knew she would blush like Melisandre sometimes did but she would it eat up and crave each public affirmation of Dany’s love for her.

Arya was still convincing herself that Dany had feelings for her but then she would doubt herself again. Daenerys Targaryen had the beauty that the minstrels sung off. Arya knew those minstrels would not be writing songs of her beauty. Arya knew she was attractive just not in that manner that the poets wrote of. Dany was.

Still, Arya sometimes thought she had almost caught Dany looking at her with more than friendship. Arya would almost fool herself she saw desire for herself in Dany’s eyes. That Dany wanted to ravish her sixteen year old body. But, when she would look again, it would not be there. She would then be sure she was just imaging such looks. She had wanted Dany for so long she was not sure if she was still fantasizing when she thought she saw desire in Dany’s eyes. She had wanted Daenerys for so many years now. She kept waiting for Dany to make a clear advance.

Only once had Dany made a direct sexual overture towards or had it been? Dany had acted so casually when she had taken off her blouse top so Arya could work her sore shoulders. Surely if she had wanted my hands on her in an intimate way she would have guided my hands. Arya knew she was an innocent and that Dany was not. Surely Dany knew she needed to guide Arya in any seduction. Arya was just too unsure of herself to make any first moves.

She could care less that Dany was not a virgin and had slept with many women. Arya was a virgin and had no desire to have her bedmate stumbling and unsure in their bed when she was deflowered. She would be doing enough of that for both of them. In all her fantasies she had growing up thinking of Dany, Dany had come to their bed with the full knowledge of lesbian lovemaking. She would come to their bed with complete confidence that her lovemaking past had taught the Queen. That only added to Dany’s allure for Arya. To have such a worldly woman chose to be with Arya just rocked her world when she thought about it. To know that Dany chose her above all other women no matter she was a virgin. She wanted Dany to be the one to teach her the mysteries of hot lesbian lovemaking. Gods she wanted to fuck Dany so bad. It made her pussy so fucking wet.

Why couldn’t Dany help her! Why couldn’t Dany show Arya how she truly felt! Then Arya calmed. Why haven’t I? Gods I am a chicken shit Arya moaned to herself.

Ygritte said something that snapped Arya out of her reverie. The talk of Jon being their husband had fired up questions that needed to be answered.

“You plan to move here to live Ygritte? With Jon? With Melisandre”

Ygritte laughed loud. “Who else girl! Who else is going give me the pussy and cock I need girl! You know nothing Arya Stark. We need Jon’s youthful cock!”
Arya felt her face go red. Gods she hated being so innocent. She was easily flustered! Arya saw Ygritte smiling saucily knowing she had nonplussed the teenager. Arya saw Melisandre look at her with those eyes that were both so vibrant and full of life and yet ancient. She had heard how they were both over two thousand years old. How in the world were they both so beautiful and youthful looking? One would think they would be both be old hags with sagging tits an no hair on their heads. She looked at them with squint eyes trying to pierce any glamour”

“What’s with the stink eye girl?”

“Oh, nothing.”

“Out with it girl.”

“How aren’t you and Melisandre not weathered old hags?” she blurted out.

Dany had come riding up. “ARYA?!” barked at her friend.

Both of the witches laughed hard. After a minute they recovered.

“We bathe in the blood of innocent babies on the harvest full moon of each fall” Melisandre told Arya in a serious tone.

Arya stared at them aghast.

The witches burst out laughing again. Harder now.

Daenerys tisked beside her “Arya they are pulling your leg.”

The witches finally controlled their laughing. “Yes girl. I assure you we are as we seem. R’hlolor has many powers” Ygritte told her before chuckling again. Arya saw Melisandre reach up and touch her red ruby at her throat. She saw a look cross her face that Arya could not quite read. The witch looked at her wife worriedly. Melisandre saw Arya looking at her. Melisandre looked at her and then smiled softly. Whatever had worried the witch seemed to pass.

“Now back to your original line of questioning. Yes. I think we will be living in the depths of the Sandhills after the war is over. Neither Melisandre nor I have any desire to return to the land of our birth. Jon wants to get be far away from the Crows.”

“But Jon spoke the words of the Vow! The oath is for life!” Arya could not help herself. She loved Jon and was happy that he had taken too such beautiful women to wife but he had spoken the scared words. True he was supposed to be chaste but Arya could easily overlook that silly stricture.

Melisandre could read her face. “Words are only words Arya. They are no more sacred than any other words one may speak. It is the heart that makes something sacred. Jon spoke the words and his own brothers were going to kill him. Ygritte and I saved him from certain death.”

“What?” Arya gasped. Dany stood up in her stirrups. “That is sedition! I will have their heads! Who led this rebellion?!”

“That will not be needed my Queen” Ygritte told them. She then told them how she and Melisandre had saved Jon. They killed some of the conspirators and fled. They then conserved their strength and went back to the Wall and took back what was Jon’s. They killed those necessary. The few remaining conspirators left alive were now in other forts carefully watched by Wildlings.

They saw Daenerys still fuming. “Are you not known for your mercy?” Melisandre asked the white haired Queen.

“Not for sedition!”

“This is a manner of the Night’s Watch and Jon is still their commander. Will you honor his wishes?

Daenerys looked at Arya. She shook her head ‘yes’. “Yes I will follow his wishes.” The witches noticed this. Yes, the Queen had made a good choice in mate. Arya would temper the Queens at times rashness.

Arya again asked about the witches living in the Sandhills with Jon. Ygritte told them that they had considered living in the Frost Fangs or some deep valley in the Mountains of the Sky in the Vale. They had thought of these areas because of their isolation. They wanted little dealings with man. Present company accepted of course the witch hastily added.

That made Arya and Dany laugh.

Daenerys tilted her head. Arya could understand her brother’s feelings. To be betrayed by the very people you had sworn an oath with would be untenable. She would resign her commission too. She looked at Dany. She didn’t care if she had become a Faceless Man of the House of Black and White she would have renounced her order to be with Dany.

Ygritte went on to tell her and Dany that the Sandhills and the Barrowlands to the west were quite barren of humans. Only a smattering of herdsmen lived in the Sandhills and they were on the borders of the land. The Barrowlands were desolate and unpopulated. Few people were around to bother them. They could make a home there Ygritte said.

She crowed that where she went her wife and husband would dutifully follow.

“Ain’t that right Melisandre?”

“Of course my dear.” The tone was just slightly snarky and Ygritte cocked an eyebrow and looked at her wife carefully.

“Anyways I am tired of freezing my tits off at the Wall. I will enjoy the warmer clime.”

“Puhhleassee” Melisandre suddenly snorted.

“What is that supposed to mean?” Ygritte barked out in a rising agitated tone.

Arya was shocked at this sudden change in Melisandre. This sudden derision was unsettling. Melisandre had seemed to worship Ygritte and now she was being snarky with her wife. What gave? Arya was about to be more shocked.

“You do not have any tits to freeze off. I on the other hand have quite the rack that I need to worry about. Not you my dear flat chested wife” the auburn said with a bored tone her face bland. As she had said this she had motioned with her hand down her torso. Her large breast making her robe bulge clearly evident.

Arya eyed the small witch with a frightened eye. Ygritte’s eyes were nearly bulging out her head and she looked around seeing if anyone else had heard her wife. She looked involuntarily down at her chest. Her head shot up.

“That is a lie! You take that back this minute! That is a lie. You know nothing Melisandre! I will punish you tonight for that remark!”
“Yeah, right you will. I’m not afraid of you—you sawed off runt” Melisandre replied in a drool bored tone.

“I’ll blister you fucking ass for that you—you oak tree! I’ll chop you down to size for that!”

Dany stopped her horse and Arya did as well. The witches rode on with Ygritte yelling threats at her wife.

“Why did Melisandre talk so horribly to her wife like that Dany?” Arya asked her Queen in a shaky voice. She was upset that supposed wives could talk thus to each other. She had thought they were so loving with each and by extension Jon. How could Jon allow such rancor to exist? How could he live with such a mean harpy as Melisandre? Arya had been shocked she had so misread the taller witch.

“Don’t worry a hair on your pretty head Arya (a flush of warmth went through Arya) they both enjoy what they are doing.”

“What? How?” Arya was perplexed. She stared at Dany waiting clarification.

“For some couples that is one way they show affection, plus, if I am reading the tea leaves right Melisandre is hoping Ygritte will punish her tonight for her words.”

Arya felt a flush run through her. The thought of Dany whipping her ass made her feel all warm and tingly. Arya felt her ass clench with thoughts of Dany blistering her ass with her palms as she squalled in pain and pleasure. Then she had visions of Dany slapping her in her face and nipples. She loved to slap her pussy as she was rising to orgasm. Having Dany do that while acting angry had her pussy spasming in delight. Arya shivered suppressing her body’s reactions to her wayward thoughts.

Now she understood Melisandre’s actions. Arya looked down the road. Melisandre was holding her hand out her palm facing Ygritte. Ygritte was still storming at the taller witch. She was trying to snatch Melisandre’s hand and jerk it down. Melisandre kept jerking her hand just outside of her wife’s grasping hand. Melisandre kept jerking her hand just outside of her wife’s grasping hand. Ygritte now pointed her finger at her wife’s face. Now it was Melisandre knocking the finger aside. Ygritte was really storming now.

Arya shivered. Gods Melisandre was going to get fucked so hard tonight. Arya wanted Dany to fuck her like that!

They rode on down the road. They talked about their arrival at Winterfell. Arya was so excited to see her family again. She saw that Dany was nervous at the prospect. “Don’t worry Dany. My father will love you. He has moaned for years that Westeros needed a true King to lead it.”

Dany grimaced.

“And when you appeared in the East it was not too soon after that I heard him saying that he would gladly follow you if you were all you seemed to be … you are everything that any of us could have wished for Daenerys.” Arya was speaking of much more than just a regent to follow. For Arya it meant the two of them marrying and living as wife and wife.

Daenerys took those words and smiled gratefully. Arya was not worried. She just knew that Dany and her father would truly like each other. They were both so great!

Fifteen minutes later Dany pointed out Nymeria. Arya chuckled. Earlier that day, on the morning march, the wolf had come running in on Oberyn’s left flank. Oberyn had been practicing with his spear twirling and thrusting it down from his horse at imaginary enemies. He had finished his practice and had the end of his spear leaning down off the horse. Nymeria had been spying it for five minutes stalking closer. The direwolf slinking forward on its belly at times as it approached stealthily. Finally the last thirty yards, Nymeria had sprinted in.

Nymeria rushed in jumping up off the ground with her jaw agape her eyes alight with her goal almost in her jaws. At the last moment Oberyn jerked up his spear butt out of the reach of Nymeria’s snapping jaws. “Ha you fucking cur! You ain’t getting my spear today!” The wolf flashed her head twisting trying to get her teeth on the disappearing spear shaft. She hit the ground and immediately turned around. Nymeria barked wildly snapping up at Oberyn and his spear as he kept switching sides with it as Nymeria kept ducking underneath his horse to get at the spear. This had been happening for a week now and the horse had grown accustomed to the antics and plodded along down the road unconcerned. Oberyn won that round.

Now Nymeria was slinking up the line of horses walking up the King’s Highway. She was slinking down on her belly and making short bursts forward moving in on Oberyn from the rear. Nymeria used the horses to hide her cunning approach. Oberyn had the spear across his lap. The direwolf wagged her tail over the dirt excitedly. She moved up stealthily keeping low her belly just off the ground her snout blowing out dust devils as she inched closer to her goal.

She had snuck to within fifteen yards of Oberyn’s horse now as Arya and Dany watched with baited breath. Suddenly, Oberyn kicked his horse with his heels and the horse bolted forward at a fast gallop. Nymeria stood up on her paws. “Whoof?” Nymeria looked around confusedly at her spear growing smaller as Oberyn rode off.

Oberyn looked back over his shoulder and held up his spear shaking it. “Ha! You’ll never get it!” Oberyn shouted as his horse stretched out into a full gallop.

Nymeria howled her rage and took off in hot pursuit. Her honor had been impugned. In two minutes they were out of sight. All they could hear was Nymeria’s howls of pursuit.

The two women chuckled.

“Tell me again of this idea your father has of creating this … what does he call it?”

“Nature preserve. The Sandhills and the Barrowlands have never been settled or cultivated. They are largely pristine. Their ecosystems are still as they were from before man came to this land. Many of the forests have been felled or drastically reduced. Many animal species have been decimated or driven to extinction. The grasses you see in many of the grasslands are not native to the land.”

“I know. Only on those hills of the Sandhills do I see grasses that mirror what I remember in my home back in the Dothraki Sea.”

“So you miss it still?”

Daenerys paused considering. “No not really. I miss the people and their culture but I am a Targaryen and my destiny is tied to Westeros.” Daenerys looked out across the Barrowlands. “There other things that tie me to this land. Things that have touched and captured my heart.”

Arya desperately wanted to ask Dany what those things were. She started to ask but again fear choked off her words constricting her throat. Oh gods, I talked such a good game in Winterfell but on the field of battle of love I’m a total chicken shit. Geeeezzzz Arya berated her lack of courage.

Dany shook herself and resumed her questions of the nature preserve her father wanted to fully implement. She told Dany of the lions, bears, hyenas, jaguars, cougars and cave sloths that still lived in the depths of these lands. All the smaller predators and large to small prey animals. Here at least the damage could be repaired.

“Oh my gods” Dany gasped and gripped Arya’s arm and pointed to a high ridge on their left in the Barrowlands. On it was a Direwolf with its longer snot and tall shoulder girdle. It regarded them for a long moment and was gone.

“I will support your father fully in this.” She paused. “I wonder if can do this in southern Westeros and Essos. I have no idea in how to do this though.”

“I can help you Dany. I would be so happy to help you in this. In anything you desire.”

“Anything Arya?”

“Anything.”

Arya felt a connection forming between them and a fire was sweeping through her body as they stared at each other. Dany licked her lips and was urging her horse closer. Oh gods is it finally going to happen?

Suddenly, Barristan and Syrio were with them.

“Dany” Barristan said excitedly. “We will reach our forces on the plains tomorrow when he leave the Sandhills and a force has left Winterfell and is moving down the King’s Road towards our position.”

That broke the spell as Daenerys turned to talk to her generals. This was important Arya knew. Westeros was more important than one girl’s hopes and dreams. She wanted to scream! Something was about to happen. Arya controlled her frustration.

They continued up the road as Dany planned with her generals. Arya listened in. Dany wanted to make absolutely sure that nothing untoward happened. She needed to talk to Eddard Stark! She needed to make sure that the forces of North and South meet and merged without incident. She talked of taking Drogon North but she had no idea where in the North Eddard might be.

She asked Arya but she had no idea. Her father could be anywhere in his vast realm preparing for the coming war. Arya sighed. She would have to wait for another moment with Dany. She was depressed but she tried to see the positive. They had been close to something magical. She could feel it. Hadn’t she. Now her self-doubts were flooding in. Not again Arya groused to herself.

Maybe there had been nothing but her childish hopes and dreams. Arya felt dejection setting in. She needed a confidence infusion!

She saw Oberyn coming up the lane. Without his spear. He fell in beside Arya. “I will skin that wolf of yours Arya. It is a major pain in my ass! How will I defeat your father in combat if I can’t keep my freaking spear with that damn wolf always after it?”

“My father would kick your ass Oberyn. Just like I did.”

Oberyn eyes flared. “You cheated!” They bantered back and forth. She truly missed her father. He was such a great man. Talking of his ideas and listening to Oberyn boast had brought his face up into her mind. They were at the front of the column. Daenerys was discussing strategies with Barristan and Syrio.

Beside her Oberyn suddenly asked “Who is that in the road up ahead. He was not there when I being chased by that damn wolf of yours. Do you know how much those fucking spears cost me Arya?! They are works of art!”

Arya did not truly hear him. Dany had now noticed the man on his horse as he turned it across the road blocking it. Arya was nearly thrumming out of her saddle. The man was not aggressive but he was clearly blocking their advance.

The leading van of the column looked at each other. Dany looked around at her men her gaze clear. I will meet his man and urged her horse forward. She was the Queen and would meet any challenge. Dany marched her horse up to the man blocking there way and stopped twenty yards in front of the dark man in his long cloak. They sized each other up.

Silence reigned.

Syrio started to move forward but Arya put a hand on his arm stopping him. He looked over at Arya. Barristan always followed his Queen’s edicts and waited patiently. The Queen could defend herself. They were a silent standoff between Arya and Syrio. He bowed his head. “I know who it is.” With that statement Arya now kicked her horse forward.

She came up beside Dany. The silence continued. Now the man slowly turned and walked his horse toward the small party. His cloak hiding all his features.

He stopped five yards in front of Daenerys Targaryen and her entourage arrayed behind her. Arya was vibrating in excitement. She wanted to see what the man had in store.

Now the man slowly reached up to his hood.

“As my forbearer Torrhen Stark bent the knee to Aegon Targaryen, I, Eddard Stark bend the knee to the legitimate heir to the Iron Throne Daenerys Targaryen.”

Eddard pulled his cloak back reveling his soft squint smiling face. He slowly got off his horse and bent to one knee and very slowly pulled his sword Evening Star out of its scabbard and placed in on the road before his Queen.

“I pledge my eternal service to the one true ruler of Westeros, Essos and the Dothraki Sea. You are the breaker of chains and the first of your name. You have freed slaves where none had before. You do not destroy but raise up. All my life I have waited for you to come my Queen.”

“Now you are here.” He bent his head down and placed his forehead on his sword in total obeisance to his Queen.

Tears flowed down Arya’s cheeks. No one was as great as her father!

Eddard

Eddard heard his daughter calling out “Father” excitedly. He kept his head bowed down in obeisance to his Queen. Eddard must let Daenerys Targaryen know of his total allegiance. He felt his daughter ram into his body hugging him tightly. She was squealing and murmuring how much she had missed and loved him.

It warmed his heart and made his face smile into his sword. He had raised loving children all around he determined.

He felt a powerful presence in front of him now and knew the Queen had dismounted and now stood before him. He heard other horses coming up. Still he kept his head down.

He could feel the Targaryen’s eyes regarding him.

“Rise Eddard Stark. I do not require this. Rise and face me.”

Slowly Eddard bent his body up onto his knees. Arya used that opportunity to move in front of him getting close and moving in to hug him fiercely. Eddard gently reached his arms around her body and hugged her to his body. He had missed his baby girl. He had taken a great risk but he felt it had been worth it. He was before his Queen with the entire might of Southern Westeros figuratively behind her.

He looked more fully behind the Queen. He amended his statement. He did not expect to see the leader or scions of House Greyjoy but was surprised that he did not see Tywin or Jaime Lannister. It seemed that House Lannister had not come North with the Queen. Eddard smiled slightly greater when he considered that. The Queen was indeed wise to not bring that old crafty backbiting fox or his King Slayer son. Neither could be trusted. Add to that the waste of a princess Cersei and you did not have a House worth their weight in shit.

He had heard of Cersei’s exile to Dorne. He wondered where she was now after she had her body and spirit crushed at trying to be a warrior. Some people had no sense of reality Eddard snorted to himself. He composed his features. Even if it was the truth such thoughts were unseemly.

He slowly rose to his feet still hugging his daughter into his side.

He towered over his small Queen with his 5’10” frame. She was not intimidated in the least. He liked that. They both wore their swords on the back. He wore chain mail where the woman was wearing a loose blouse and Dothraki riding leathers for her pants and their traditional riding sandals. She was a blend of Westeros and Essos. Maybe the world needed that blend of cultures.

“I’ll have you know that you royally pissed me off Eddard Stark.” Her words were harsh but her tone was begrudging respect and suppressed humor. “I could have stormed North with my dragons and laid waste to your forces! What were you thinking!” He felt his daughter stiffen beside him her anger rising. Eddard hugged Arya harder signally in her to stand down. He was touched that his daughter so easily rose to his defense. Even against her Queen and lover.

“I fear that was my plan my Queen.”

He saw her violet eyes flare. “You are nothing if not painfully honest. It runs in the family I have learned” she spoke looking between father and daughter. “You took a great risk sending your daughter to me Eddard. How did you know I would not do something untoward your daughter?”

“I trusted in the ‘breaker of chain’” Eddard answered. A woman who freed the entire slave class of Essos. Would such a woman harm any royal hostage put into her care? That showed your temperament my Queen. You spared those who opposed you if they would bend the knee. You spared the family of House Baratheon and House Lannister for the sins against your House. I felt it was reasonable risk. I needed to give you reasons to not act when I was declaring myself leader of the Confederacy of the North. My acquiring the Tyrell sires and you having Arya achieved this.”

“That was still a very dangerous gambit Warden of the North.”

“True my Queen.” Eddard looked at the other Lords of High Houses and their sons. “If you need I will take the black and go the Wall or lay my neck on the block if you deem it. You have brought the might of Southern Westeros to fight the Ice King. I have succeeded.” He felt Arya surging against his side but hugged her tighter signaling for her to follow his lead. She calmed. They were still playing the Game of Thrones.

His scouts had seen from afar the witch wives of Jon performing their magic. Their tales of a phoenix rising from their bodies and flying North at incredible speed had filled him with wonder when he read their raven to him. Then the reports of the wild riot in their camp had shown Eddard that their beast had been savagely attacked. He was happy all had survived. Jon’s wives had succeeded in uniting the whole of Westeros in fight against the Ice King.

Eddard had been lucky. He had happened to be on the ramparts of Winterfell. He had seen the beast fly over Winterfell in a blur of speed as its mighty screams filled the air with echoed cries of rage and desire. The thing had been a blur and trailed a red trail of magic behind as it blazed across the sky. Eddard had known then it was time to move south. He did not want to leave Cat in here weak state but he must meet the Queen as soon as possible now that Jon’s wives had revealed the true enemy to the Great House of the South.

He was willing to take all the blame and not reveal the fact that Daenerys had been working with him tacitly in this endeavor to bring the major houses north.

“I think we can dispense with the melodrama Eddard” Daenerys told him.

“I have told all how you and I worked together in a Game of Thrones to bring them North. The wives of Jon Snow with their Blood Phoenix has shown us the truth. We are united now. I will forgive all. This time” the Queen finished. She gave Eddard a wink that only he and Arya could see. He smiled feeling Arya literally thrum beside him looking at the Queen. Eddard saw the woman hesitate looking at Arya with a searching look.

Arya looked at her father. Eddard smiled down at his little wild wolf. He said softly “Go to her Arya.” Arya smiled gratefully and went to join the Queen and they mounted their horses.

Mace and his sons, Stannis and Renly and Oberyn came up to him.

Eddard looked at them calmly. They then in turn reached out to either shake his hand or embrace and hug him. Oberyn whispered in his ear “Well played wolf. I like your balls. If you play your cards right you might get lucky.”

Eddard returned the hug. Was the man coming onto him? With Oberyn you could never be sure.

Stannis told him he was lucky that Stannis had not been King. He would have ridden forth to war. He had paused then. “I guess that shows Daenerys Targaryen is a better ruler than I.”

Mace was fidgety around him. He wondered why. Willis and Garlan shook his hands and told him “well played”.

The party then moved down the road. Eddard was riding slightly behind the lead party. They were giving him time to slowly integrate into their party he reasoned. It would take time for the tension to leave the air. They had accepted him but the Game of Thrones he had played on them would take time to be put behind them fully.

As Eddard rode he saw Ygritte move her horse close to Melisandre’s horse. The small woman reached out and started to rub her wife’s back with her hand in a circle. The large woman leaned into the smaller woman’s caress. The distance between the horses disappeared when the larger woman leaned over and hugged the small witch fiercely and kissed the top of her flame red hair.

Eddard almost felt like a voyeur watching the witches so easily show affection in front of everyone.
He then looked up at the Queen and his daughter. He watched them for a minute and then he frowned slightly. Their horses were close but they were keeping their perfect distance. Something was not right. He had seen the look the Queen had given Arya. She was definitely in love with his daughter as he had foreseen. He knew that Arya was in love with Daenerys Targaryen. Then why were they not lovers. He could feel it in his bones. He leaned forward in his saddle looking harder. He was sure of it.

He knew Arya had inherited his reticence and reserved nature but her absolute love for all things Targaryen and Daenerys Targaryen especially had convinced him that her adore for the Queen would overcome her shy nature. Evidently not.

Eddard was more surprised with Daenerys. The woman had been lusty to say the least on her march across Essos. Especially at the beginning of her campaign. Eddard had total faith in his son’s Brandon’s prophecies. The wolf and the dragon would lie together. He was certain of it. Then why had it not occurred yet. He saw the glances they gave each other. Daenerys was always touching his daughter to make a point but not letting the touch linger.

He was not sure what to do. He was definitely no advisor on the finer aspects of wooing a woman. He remembered the circumstances of his taking Caitlyn as his wife and then bedding her. It had been so rushed and he felt like a usurper bedding the woman who was supposed to be his brother’s wife. He still wondered how they had ever become more than an obligate to wed their houses together and form a genuinely true love. He still spent hours wondering how he and Cat had ever forged their strong love for each other.

Eddard looked at the perfect distance that the Queen and his daughter maintained except for small fissures where they would move in close to touch and converse and back to the perfect distance. Eddard shook his head. Hopefully Sansa or more likely Margaery would know what to do. He had faith that whatever was holding his daughter and Queen apart would resolve itself soon enough.

The shadows were getting long when they arrived at the camp for the night. This was another thing that Eddard admired in the Queen. Her attention to details and her calm resolve. She was not rushing to combat but moving at a slow controlled pace. She had formed camps every day’s march. This and the gifts she had freely been dispensing had made converts of his people.

Her troops and horses were rested and by not raiding the land her forces had won over his people.

He remembered his wild rides in Robert’s rebellions. Chaotic had been those rides. Eddard kept thinking he would die at any moment. He actually felt safe with the Queen. She had her camps laid out and blocking forces in place all around the population centers. Removed but ready to strike if necessary.

This woman was both a natural strategist and a masterful tactician on the battlefield from all the reports he had read on the woman. Such a rare combination. On top of that she had a natural charism that made people want to live and fight for her. She was the total package of a supremely gifted leader.

They entered the camp and attendants rushed in to start caring for the horses. He was taken to a tent that had been erected for the royals to sup in. He took a seat beside Oberyn on one side and Arya and then Daenerys on the other side. They talked about the day’s events. Eddard assured them his force from Winterfell came in peace and would integrate under the Queen’s command.

He again observed his daughter and Queen. He could actually feel their longing for each other almost radiating off them. This was strange because Eddard never saw these things. Again he wondered what was restraining them from consummating their love. He had been a virgin when he married but he saw no need for any others to wait to the marriage night. They would have to go through the bedding ceremony virgin or no. Looking back he kind of wish he had been more skilled for Cat but both being virgins had had its own charms he supposed though he had been scared shitless that first night!

After dinner the Lords and general discussed their preparations. Eddard filled them in on his troop movements and his status of supplies. Daenerys complemented him on his strategy and his tactics. Those words from her truly honored Eddard.

Daenerys looked at him for a long moment. “I will ask you to meet with my two supreme generals Syrio and Barristan. We will defer to you on the strategy to use. This is your land and you have been preparing to fight the Ice King for years.

Eddard bowed his head to the Queen. Yes indeed. She was truly great with no ego to stroke or need to show herself as the leader.

He knew now that they would be able to face the Ice King with the maximum effort.

He had to ask the Queen about not bringing House Lannister. The Queen snorted.

“I do not trust that man, Tywin Lannister, as far as I could throw him. He is devious and self-serving. He set up the situation that led to many crimes the night that my family’s dynasty came to end.”

Eddard remembered the day he rode into King’s Landing. He sighed. So much bloodshed. He was furious for Jaime Lannister for killing Daenerys father even if the man had killed his father and brother in a most heinous manner. The mad king had truly deserved his fate. That still could not absolve Jaime Lannister of his own sins.

“I agree my Queen. His rotten fruit I fear did not fall far from the tree.”

He saw a strange gleam come to the Queen’s eyes. “What do you mean?”

“Jamie is the King Slayer my Queen and Cersei was a most horrid Queen. Is she still alive if I may ask? What happened after her failure in Dorne?”

“Failure?”

“Of course. There is no way she could have succeeded in her fantasy.”

For some strange reason Arya snorted. Eddard looked at his daughter with a slight confused look.

“Oberyn could you please speak to Eddard Stark about Cersei Lannister” the Queen asked Oberyn. For some reason Daenerys had a subtle smirk on her face.

Eddard turned to the look at the Red Viper. He was perplexed why Oberyn of all people would have a smile on his face when talking about Cersei Lannister. He hated the woman.

Oberyn started “I hate to break it to you Eddard but Cersei has succeeded beyond any of our wildest thoughts or desires. I admit I wanted her to fail and I did indeed hate her …” Oberyn left the thought dangling.

Eddard knew he was being baited into asking and he did not disappoint. “Aaannnddd …”

“She is now the top Lion of Battleborne Academy our premier military academy. She has kicked everyone’s ass some multiple times. She is a freaking hellcat. I have seen her pound and pulp men twice her size and more into unconsciousness. Often two or more at one time. She doesn’t care.”

Eddard started to chuckle. Why they were trying to pull the wool over his eyes he would never know. Cersei couldn’t fight her way out of a wet tissue bag.

“I think she will eventually be the one to wield Morning Star.”

That sobered up Eddard immediately remembering Arthur Dayne. He was still filled with shame for killing that man.

“Oberyn, I know that only a man of the house of Dwayne can yield that sword. I took it back to Dorne after Robert’s Rebellion” he paused “I’m still filled with shame killing that brave honorable man for no better reason than Robert’s silly sense of pride being offended.”

“I would forget all about that Eddard. I seriously doubt Arthur would be shedding tears over your demise twenty years after the fact … though that is probably to your credit.”

Eddard snorted. He would never fully forgive himself for Arthur’s death.

Oberyn continued “But on a happier note I would have you know that Cersei has renounced her last name. Soon she will be taking up the sword and best of all she married my eldest daughter Obara just before we marched from Dorne. She has taken the last name of ‘Sand’ to honor her new wife.

Eddard gaped at Oberyn. He couldn’t help it. This was impossible. Oberyn then told him more of Cersei many exploits and how she had changed mightily since her arrival in Dorne.

Eddard knew he believed his words when Oberyn told him “Ellaria hungers to fuck both Cersei and Obara … she has come to really treasure Cersei as a daughter-in-law and hoped for lover. Hell I’m hoping to have a go at the slut. Gods Eddard you should see her fuck my daughter” Oberyn spoke proudly.

One thing Oberyn never joked about was sex. My gods, could Cersei have changed that much? Maybe Cersei and the Ice King were linked somehow he joked in his mind. Then he mentally slapped himself. He would now have to reconsider everything he ever knew about the woman. To change that much? It was astounding.

He heard the Queen getting his attention. He turned to give her his full attention.

“I will have you know that Jaime Lannister is now part of my inner guard. He and his wife Brienne are protecting the small council in my absence. I fully intend in offering them a permanent commission when I return.”

“But Daenerys he killed your father on the same thrown you sit in. I was there and I saw it.”

“Why do you think Jaime did it?”

“I don’t know. He gave me a snide insolent answer. What did it matter? He was honor bound to protect his king. He is betrayer of his oath. He is a cur!”

“So honor trumps all?”

Eddard sensed a trap but he sprung the lever anyways “Yes. One must live by one’s code of honor else all else falls into ruin.”
“Eddard my father was mad. He killed your father and son in the most heinous manner possible while Jaime was forced to watch. He witnessed firsthand Aerys II kill Rickard and Brandon Stark. He performed his duty and stood and watched. Maybe he should have killed my father then. I would have.”

Eddard was shocked at the Queen’s words. To speak so easily of killing her own father. It was true her father was mad and cruel …

“Then on the day you arrived in King’s Landing did you know that Aerys II had filled the sewers, tunnels and cellars with wildfire. The city was filled with it. My father had just given orders to Rossart who was both the Hand and leader of the Guild of Alchemists to set the Wildfire off. My father was ready to burn the entire city of King’s Landing down along with all of its inhabitants. So I ask you Eddard Stark was Jaime Stark supposed to stand aside and allow that to happen.

Eddard paused. He had just said Jaime was honor bound to follow his oath no matter the cost … but a whole City? What had it cost Jamie to stand back and watch his father and brother be killed so cruelly? Jaime had told him once of him being forced to witness the event. Now when he thought back on that event he could hear the pain in Jaime’s voice recalling those events. Why hadn’t he noticed that then? He knew why. He did not want to hear it. Jamie was the King Slayer. Now his past thoughts shamed him.

“What would you have done Eddard?”

Eddard took a long breath. “Why didn’t he tell me?”

“Would you have believed him … would the you of twenty years ago listened to him … would you have said it made no matter—that honor trumps all?

Eddard squirmed. “No my Queen I would have intervened and probably not said a word in my defense.”

Eddard had a lot to think about. The meeting continued on with discussion on the upcoming war and how best to meet the threat of the Ice King. Eddard was quiet. He found the news shocking about the twins. He had held them in such high scorn. To believe that they had redeemed themselves was beyond shocking. Eddard had known of Jaime leaving Cersei for Brienne of Tarth. He had felt sorry for the woman. Now he was starting to feel shame at such thoughts.

For Oberyn to be happy with Cersei being part of his family was shocking too. The idea he wanted to fuck her was so Oberyn. Eddard shook his head. He had heard the saying somewhere that the family that sleeps together stay together. The Martells took it to new heights. Eddard shook his head at all these new thoughts. The world was spinning at a new angle on its axis.

The meeting broke up. He went outside the tent and went to find his horse. He was most happy with the care that he found had been given his horse. He was asleep underneath a blanket and he was told that he had been feed oats and hay. His coat was well groomed down and he was informed that his horse’s feet had been cleaned and a loose nail reset.

Eddard was again impressed with the organization of Daenerys camp. He had never seen the like anywhere or read of such organization. How had this small young woman become so accomplished? He shook his head. It did not matter.

He turned around and started. Daenerys stood three feet in front of him. He had cat like senses and she had come up on him unannounced. The woman moved like a panther and not a dragon.
“My Queen.”

“You can call me Daenerys or better yet Dany.”

“I will try Daene—Dany. I was taught to be respectful at all times.”

“You have passed those manners to your daughter. She is the model of royal decorum when we are at royal functions.”

“I am pleased to hear that Dae—Dany. I ask permission to ride back to Winterfell.”

“We are heading there now. Why do you need to leave?”

Arya had come up to stand beside her Queen. Eddard looked on seeing them immediately move to be close together but they still kept that perfect distance. He wanted to probe but it was not his place.

“I know my Queen but I need to leave your presence and hurry back to Winterfell.”

“Why so fast … we are little more than a week at most nine days out?”

Eddard felt his face slash with concern. “Before Arya left for Winterfell the joyous news came that my wife had again conceived. It filled Winterfell with happiness.”

“Yes, Arya has told me of this. I am happy for you and your wife. The conceiving of new life is always joyous.”

“Yes it is my Queen. All went well the first trimester but since then my wife’s health has become fragile.”

“Ohhhh … Father, mother is going to be okay isn’t she?”

“Is she her life in danger?” the Queen asked.

“My wife’s pregnancy is hard on her but Maester Lewen feels her life is not in danger. I would be with my wife if at all possible. If you need me to stay then I will. Your will be done.”

He watched Daenerys Targaryen take a minute to think over her response.

“We will ride out in the morrow … the royal entourage will ride with you with post haste back to Winterfell. We will bring spare horses to increase our pace. She called out in Dothraki and a Bloodrider appeared out the night gloom. She and he talked back and forth for a minute in their native tongue. He then left.

“Aggo has gone to send out riders to the camps ahead. They will set horses aside for our ride at speed up to Winterfell. I wish to see your ancestral home. I want to greet Catelyn Tully and meet your sons and other daughter. I wish to see the Tyrell scions that you ‘kidnapped’”. Eddard looked sheepish at that.

“You honor me my Queen.”

“I will always do all I can for my people Eddard. Let’s just not play any more Game of Thrones shall we.

Eddard grimaced. “I agree my Queen. These are extraordinary times but I do grow tired of playing such games.” He stepped forward and bowed. “I am now and forever more you loyal subject my Queen.”
“Westeros has waited too long for your coming Daenerys Targaryen first of your name breaker of chains. Long live your reign.”
Missandei

Misery. That was the word that kept pulsing in her mind. She was on her side on her sleeping furs underneath the stars. Her body was in agony. More tears of misery ran down her cheeks as Missandei sniffled with the pain running rampant through her body. The blisters on her thighs had burst this afternoon and the pain had been searing. Missandei had whimpered and gritted her teeth. She was incessant on staying the course. She had insisted in coming on the quick forced ride back to Winterfell. Eddard Stark was in a hurry to get back to her wife. Catelyn was having a difficult pregnancy and Eddard was worried. Missandei fully understood his desires.

She remembered back to two nights previous to this night. Eddard had made his request for leave to go back to Winterfell post haste. Dany had considered and decided to travel with Eddard back to Winterfell. She knew that Daenerys wanted to be with Eddard. She wanted to evaluate and judge the man who had been twisting and jerking on marionette strings making Dany move to his tune. Daenerys needed to be with the man to reassure herself she had indeed made the right decisions over the last nine months.

Also, Dany knew that that her Queen wanted to start the integration of the whole of Westeros. She wanted to start to work on reducing and then removing any barrier between North and South of Westeros.

Dany had called her Dothraki on guard duty and told him to send out riders to the camps located up the King’s Road heading up to North lands. The camps to provide succor and rest for the columns of the Queen’s forces marching ever North. The riders had taken extra horses to reach the next camp post haste. Also, spare horses were led out within the hour to be taken up the road and be available the next day for the group riding in haste back up the Winterfell. The horses kept in small groups at intervals to trade out for any horses that were exhausted. The riders sent out by Aggo would go to the next camp post haste and they would in turn send out riders to the next camp. This would be done to all the camps that had been created.

With Eddard now fully in camp with the Queen, she was sending orders to surge the forces forward to create camps all the way up to Winterfell. Daenerys wanted to accelerate their creation. The march north was going to accelerate. The time for cautious probing to make sure an ambush was not possible was over. The whole of Westeros had become united in their goal. Now the continent had one thought; the defeat of the Ice King. All else was of no import against that threat.

Horses were to be set at six miles intervals to let the riders ride their mounts hard to the next waypoint of gathered horse. The horses would not be hard stressed and go back into the pool of spare horses at the closest camp. Eddard was most thankful for the Queen’s largesse in helping him to reach Winterfell as fast as possible. The Queens focus was now to support her Warden of the North in his rush to get back to his ailing wife. She was silently impressed that the man had left her to perform his duty to the realm in meeting Daenerys Targaryen on the King’s Road.

Daenerys had offered to fly him to Winterfell but he had refused. He told her that he had a fear of heights. Dany had stared at the man shocked. He told her he could control it with slow movements and concentration but he was sure he would falter with flying.

Syrio Forel had patted him on the back hearing that. Syrio felt a little better finding someone else who could not fly.

Dany had asked if all the other Major House Lords would journey with her to Winterfell with her and Eddard. All had accepted except Willas. He had bowed out saying his lame leg would not take such a long hard ride. Missandei wished now she had listened to his rational caution.

At the time she knew that Daenerys had assumed she would stay with the wagon train and move up the King’s Highway and eventually catch back up to the Queen. While she had ridden horses some it had never been at a military pace. She had ridden horses in genteel trots and canters around the Queen’s camp but never at pace and for extended time.

Missandei’s body had not been inured to horseback riding. She knew it but she was not be turned aside. She would not be left behind. She felt useless now that she had broken the code to the traitor’s letter and setup the schedules. She had performed her duties and now felt like the fifth wheel on a wagon.

Daenerys had come to her when she was told that her interpreter wanted to come on the force march. “Missandei honey … I don’t think you quite know what you would be in for. It took me a months to get used to riding a horse when I first married Khal Drogo and rode in his Khalasar. I was miserable the first two weeks. I had blisters and saddle sores that made feel like I was being sawed in two. Being the Khaleesi I was given much care to help me become accustomed to the rigors of horseback riding.”

“We would do everything for you Andi but we propose to move at a great pace. I became accustomed to horseback riding moving at the sedate pace of a Khalasar moving lazily across the Dothraki Sea. We will by contrast be moving like a storm up the King’s Highway. I strongly recommend that you follow us in your wagon. We will not need your services till you arrive at Winterfell. I am in Westeros. I will not be needing your interpretive skills. Any messages can wait.”

“Are you saying I am weak Daenerys Targaryen?” she had asked. Missandei was peeved that her Queen thought so little of her. She did not want Missandei to come with her because she was soft. She knew it!

“I am not saying that my dear friend. All who first ride must endure the pain of becoming ‘saddle broken’. I don’t want you to suffer needlessly. We will be traveling at great speed. You have done so much for us already by cracking the code on the intercepted messages between the traitorous houses.”

“So you don’t need me anymore is what you are saying?” Missandei saw the look of slight confusion cross her Queen’s face. Missandei knew she was being a little shit but she could not help it. She was hurting in her heart.

“You know that is not how I feel Missandei. What is wrong with you? Have I said or done something to offend you?”

Missandei felt like crap. “No Dany. I am just feeling useless having deciphered the code. I wonder what else I am needed for now.”

Dany came up to her and hugged her. “Missandei without your efforts and those of Tyrion we would not be in this position now. You have my forces both on land and sea moving with great precision. You efforts have saved months off the movement of our forces. Our troops are fresh and ready for combat. History is full of examples of troops arriving on the battlefield and being exhausted, hungry and sick. Almost without fail these forces have been quickly defeated and often routed. This will not happen to my army. Much of this is through your efforts.”

Dany pulled away from Missandei. “We will be staying in Winterfell for a short while. In fact, I want you to start coordinating with Eddard’s forces the movement of our forces up North. The troops lifted by ship are now pouring west. I need that coordinated.”

“I can do that as we move up to Winterfell Dany. I do much of the work in my head anyways. I am gifted with numbers. Plus, if I travel with you I can talk to the high generals under Eddard’s command. This will help me to better understand how to integrate our efforts. I do not want to be separated from you Dany. We have always been together on this long journey to you sitting on your throne. I don’t want to stop now.” Missandei would feel lost if she was separated from her Queen. The woman she had supported for so many years now.

She saw Daenerys looking at her judging her. She finally smiled. “I will have a horse prepared for you my old friend. I have some ointments we can us.”

“Ointments?”

“For the blisters. I could tell you but you will understand soon enough. It is something you must experience to really understand.”

Missandei was happy to have won. She had not told the Queen all the reasons she had been adamant on traveling with her in the troop on their fast ride to Winterfell. She needed too! Everything Missandei had said had been of the complete truth, but, there were other reasons motivating her to follow the Queen on her quick journey north.

She had been so ecstatic when her mystery soon to be lover had helped her decipher the coded message. Her body had felt so alive with the possibilities of soon meeting and making love to her mystery sponsor. She felt the attraction and now lust in her helper. The caresses were so gentle and loving from her hidden woman when she touched and caressed Missandei’s face, hair and now her upper body. She had heard her erstwhile lover moan and whimper with need the night she gave Missandei the clues she needed to break the code.

She could remember the green of her sweetie’s eyes. They seemed to glow like strange fireflies in the night. So intense and so large. She longed to see them with her real eyes and not the eyes of her mind. They seemed so ghostly and afar. She wanted to hold her woman’s head close and gaze enraptured into her love’s unnatural green eyes. Those eyes were as deep as the oceans filled with mystery and power that was Earth shaking. Missandei wanted that power used in making love to her. She knew her lover was a goddess or something close but knew the woman would be as gentle as Missandei wanted her to be. What Missandei knew was that she wanted to be ravish and fucked hard by her lover. She would give Missandei what she needed and craved.

Missandei had read the great sexual texts from around the world. The heterosexual texts had not interested her but the lesbian texts had spoken to her soul. She had learned so much and would use that knowledge to blow her lover’s mind. She knew she would. Missandei had also discovered reading those texts that she wanted to be fucked hard and deep. She wanted her lover to use a fraction of her might to fuck Missandei hard. Missandei wanted to be fingerbanged hard in her pussy. She wanted to be fucked in the ass hard and deep with a strap-on and with her lover’s fist. Missandei shivered when she thought those thoughts.
She had told the Queen of the hue and glow of her longed for lover’s eyes. Soon she would see them and fall into them for real. Missandei would shiver at just the thought. She could already feel her green eyed woman slamming her fingers hard and deep up her cunny and ripping her hymen asunder and making her a woman. Her lover would suck her off so good! Missandei now masturbated to visions of all the hot sex she would have with her still nameless lover. Gods she could taste the woman’s cunt in her mouth. Missandei would clean off her fingers after masturbating yet again dreaming it was her lover’s cream she was sucking off her fingers.

She had been positive that within a few nights her erstwhile lover would revel herself and they would fuck gloriously the night through and she would give her sweet lover her maidenhead. That most precious of gifts a woman can give to her woman. Then she would take her mate out to greet all her friends. The code had been broken. The day had been saved as the saying went. Her green eyed mysterious woman had given Missandei what she wanted. She had stroked the small black woman’s body with deep hot fuck hunger. Missandei had felt in the fingertips. The repressed hunger for her body. She wanted to lie with her woman and let their bodies twine in hot interracial love. Missandei was intoxicated with how her black body would twine with the pale body of her pale lover.

She had cracked the code at the beginning of the Neck of Westeros. They were now at the other end of the Neck and she had not felt her longed for lover since that magical night. It had been over three weeks since that sweet night. She had masturbated to multiple screaming orgasms ripping her body apart with ecstasy. Missandei would fuck herself to exhaustion and rest her body. The instant she had her strength back she was again fucking herself to mind blowing orgasms. Her cunt felt like it was tearing itself inside out while her womb felt like it was tearing out her belly as she shrieked and wailed in mind searing ecstasy. She had filled her wagon with her thick pungent musk and soaked her body with sweat and her girl cum. She had left the furs pulled up to only her lower thighs. Her pussy and breast exposed in offering to her dream lover. Her nipples and clit tingly with the sweet exhaustion of being fucked out. She loved the naughty thoughts of her breast on full display and her exhausted cunt exposed slavered with drying cum.

Her charms on full display for her green eyed lover. Missandei wanted her woman to see Missandei’s body soaked in cum and sweat. To see Missandei’s groin and mound thickly slavered with dried cum. To smell the thick musk her cunt had saturated her small wagon in. Her lover was weakening in resisting Missandei’s sweet charms. Gods Missandei wanted her cherry busted. She wanted to get a strap-on and have her lover fuck her so hard and deep. She wanted and needed to give her woman her sweet hot tight asshole. She wanted to suck her ass off that strap-on dick while looking up at her lover showing her what a hot depraved slut she would be in bed.

Missandei knew that once her lover came to her exhausted body she would instantly revive and she would give herself to her lover. She would feel her hymen ripped and taken and she would be a woman now. Missandei wanted to feel the pain a woman felt when she became a woman.

That had been the dream. That had been the fantasy. The reality had been harsh and devastating. By the third night she was getting nervous and by the sixth night she was agitated and the eighth night she was completely depressed.

Her dream lover had not appeared again. Missandei had been confused and then angry. How had she not come to her? She had succeeded in deciphering the code. Her secret lover had given her the necessary clues. Missandei even now shivered feeling the small fingers stroking her face. She was sure her lover was a short woman like her. In fact, Missandei could sense she was even taller than the green eyed woman. That seemed so perfect to Missandei.

Missandei had become totally confused. She had felt her lover shudder smelling her wet cunt and the way her fingers pressed harder into her chest nearing her breast. Oh gods her pussy was still getting wet at the mere thought. She could feel her lover’s desire for Missandei’s body. It made her fucking angry. Why was she not coming to Missandei? Unfortunately, the answer was becoming clear. Missandei could no longer deny it.

She now knew she had been only a tool. Her supposed dream lover had only used her to get the message deciphered. She must have been a pervert stroking her body like that. A tool like a dildo to get her rocks off. Missandei was pissed being used like that. That fucking succubus had teased her! She had used Missandei to do her bidding and fucking abandoned her! She would scratch that bitches eyes out if she got the chance. The love she felt for her woman was boiling into an unassuaged anger.

So she had demanded to ride with the Queen. She needed to feel needed and wanted. Her fucking supposed lover had shown her true nature. She absolutely needed to ride up to Winterfell with her Queen. How bad could it be? She had ridden for short periods of time at a leisurely pace with the Queen.

Missandei had learned quickly. Within an hour she felt like she was bruised all over as her body was constantly jostled and jarred with the fast trots and short gallops the horses were doing. When she dismounted to get on the spare horse she had been stiff and sore. When they reached the first relay of fresh horses Missandei had had to grit her teeth to clamber up on it. Even with a boost from Dany it had hurt like hell.

By midday she was so sore in her pelvis and thighs she wanted to cry out in pain and frustration. Her pride prevented it. Instead she gritted her teeth and soldiered on. She felt the blisters Dany had told her about forming on her inner thighs and groin. The touch on cloth angry and hot. She had made it through the first day somehow. She had felt herself swaying on her feet once they started to make camp.

They had ate a meal of jerked beef, oats (spare from the feed bags) and tact. She ate her food sullenly. Her mental misery was great. Her physical misery was rising to meet it. She saw that a large circular tarp had been placed on the ground. Daenerys called all to sit around on the edge sitting on crossed legs Dothraki style.

Missandei had demurred but her friend had helped her hobble over and sat her down beside her on the opposite side of Arya. She was happy to be in a position of honor. It helped with her pain a little. She had put the ointment on the angry blisters that the Queen had given her. The blisters swelled with fluid and hot to the touch. She had whimpered applying the ointment. Her lover should have been soothing the ointment onto her body damnit! Those thoughts made Missandei sullen and angry.

“Eddard, I wanted to wait till we were separated from our forces to tell you this” the Queen told the Warden of the North. “Only the High Lords of the South and their most trusted generals know what I am about to tell you. I wanted to wait till we could talk and plan together. I have ideas but we will decide our response.

Missandei saw that this had Eddard’s full attention.

“I hate to tell you this Eddard” Daenerys paused “you have two traitors in your midst. They have made a pact with the Ice King”

Eddard stared at her for a long moment. He softly breathed out “Bolton.”

Missandei saw that Daenerys was as shocked as her.
You knew?!

Eddard squinted and smiled. “No my Queen I did not. I have had my suspicions of Roose but I would never have dreamed he would be working for our enemy. He has always been a rogue but I never had the proof I felt I needed to bring him to heel. He is vile and a malignant tumor, but, to side with such an evil. Cannot Roose see that such a force will never honor whatever agreement they have?” Eddard said softly to himself.

“You are Warden of the North Eddard Stark” Dany told him. “That is enough.”

“My Queen I have had my fill of bloodshed as I sense you have. He may be vile and contemptuous but he does inspire loyalty in his men. I have avoided open war and bloodshed. Without ironclad proof I have been loath to call my banners against their house. You spoke of a second house?”

“Yes. The second house is in the Riverlands.” Dany did not give the name. Missandei knew Dany was curious if Eddard had a suspicion of the second house.

Eddard had a look of deep thought on his face. He was obviously going through the houses of his wife’s homeland.

He finally said in voice of self-questioning “The Freys?”

“Yes.”

Eddard blew out a breath “Walder is conniving and mendacious but … well he is a small man. He is not brave in the slightest. I find it hard to believe this possible. He is vile but a coward. Are you sure of this my Queen?”

“I am sure of this Eddard.”

“What is your proof if I may ask?”

“Missandei. Can you please tell them how we came to know this information?”

Missandei had felt her pride swell with the Queen putting her front and center. Since she had insisted on coming on this trek the Queen was letting Missandei give the brief. This made the small scribe’s mental and physical distress recede.

Missandei told Eddard how a spy had given them the satchel with the scroll from House Bolton to House Frey. The scroll had the royal seal of the Lord of House Bolton. The Queen called out to Aggo and he came to her with the satchel. She had him hand it to Eddard.

Eddard opened it and looked at the scroll and the broken seal. He carefully put the scroll that had been curled up down before himself. He looked at the broken seal that Missandei had been careful to preserve as much as possible. He looked at the seal closely.

“Yes. It is his seal. So this spy somehow got this scroll. I wonder. How long have you had it?”

“Over a six weeks now.”

Eddard considered. “I have seen Roose three times in that time. He has not changed his demeanor. If he suspects they have been discovered he is playing it close to the vest. When is he to attack?”

“When the Ice King attacks and you are focused on him. He and House Frey will use that distraction to attack you from the rear.”
Eddard started to read the missive and stopped. “It is in code.” He looked at Missandei. “You deciphered this?”

“Yes I did.”

“I’m impressed.” He smiled at Missandei and for a little while her misery became only a memory.

She then told Eddard the message that she had deciphered. The details of the deal that Roose Bolton had struck with the Ice King. The reward of control of the North while the Ice King would rule the South. Eddard had snorted at that and whispered “Fools”. They had agreed to work their forces to the rear of the forces or in their midst if they could not work that. The Boltons and Freys were to position themselves to do maximum damage to the enemies of the Ice King.

When the attack started they would then turn and sow confusion and death to distract the forces of the Warden of the North and enable the Ice King to more easily defeat his enemies. Missandei showed Eddard how she had deciphered the text with her compass and the square she had made. She showed Eddard the small dot between House Frey on page seven.

Missandei did not tell Eddard of the help from her benefactor. She would only share this knowledge with Dany and by extension Arya. Eddard was most impressed. “I am forever indebted to you for this Missandei of Naath. The losses we would have incurred would have been most grievous.”

He shook his head. “The Fools. To think they believe the Ice King’s lies. The Ice Wright means to kill us all.”

Eddard again looked at Missandei. “I and the North will forever be in your debt. I hope someday in some way to repay you for this service.”

The conversation had then moved over to the plans on how to thwart the plans of the Boltons and the Freys. Missandei had followed the conversations but her attention soon drifted. She was not interested in war strategy when it did not involve planning, tracking and the moving of forces. It was the numbers and equations they engendered that caught and held the small black interpreter’s attention.

She got up and made her parting remarks and slunk back to her sleeping furs by the fire. She was not inured to the cold too. Missandei crawled underneath the furs and shivered hard. Her sweet Shadowclaw snuggled into the furs with her meowing and purring as she rubbed her cat’s head. The cat riding a pack horse in a swath of furs that had been made into a nest for her. The caracal had quickly adjusted and able to sleep despite the gait of the horse she was riding on. Missandei was feeling so weak and like a failure despite the praise she had received. Her thoughts kept going back to the fact that she had been abandoned.

Her pain was returning with the elation passing with the giving of her brief. She was still proud of herself. She could still remember her sense of hopelessness she had felt in Qarth when Dany came swooping in saving her from a life of slavery. She owed her everything.

She slowly fell into a restless sleep.

She was awoken way too early. The sun was had not yet lightened the Eastern horizon. She staggered to the fire. Her limbs felt like stiff wood and her back ached. She sullenly ate her meal. She had fumed and fretted until she fell into an exhausted sleep. She again felt her anger and depression setting in. To be nothing more than a tool was angering her no end. She had felt so special and that feeling was nothing but ashes now.
Dany and Eddard tried to engage her in conversation. Dany wanted to fill her in on their strategy they had developed for the traitors and Eddard wanted to again thank her and hear her thoughts on their plans. She had demurred and turned away.

“Missandei, what is wrong with you? This is not like you!”

She had sullenly looked into the flames.

Her misery had been bad in the morning when they started out. By the midmorning it was beyond agonizing. Her blisters had burst and the raw skin rubbing against the riding leathers had been horrendous. She could not control the screams of pain that ripped from her throat. Missandei saw the looks of concern on Dany and Arya’s face. Eddard had looked alarmed as did the other high Lords. Her humiliation only deepened.

Dany had immediately called a halt to the march. She called the doctor and Maester with them. Daenerys had some horses circled around Missandei who they had put on the ground and put blankets on the horses sideways to make a screen. Daenerys had no problem showing her body but knew Missandei was shy. Missandei cried out feeling Dany starting to gently pull on the fabric and loosen the ties to her riding leathers. Arya put her head in her lap and stroked her hair singing a lullaby to her. Missandei writhed in pain.

Dany slowly peeled her riding leathers off Missandei. The interpreter cried out in pain and wept. Dany gently dabbed the ointment onto the burst blisters. The Queen then put bandages on the wounds and wrapped them in long strips of cloth. They then put on a louse line trouser on her body.

Dany insisted she take a few droughts of diluted wine. The drink made her drowsy.

They gently put her back up on her horse. Dany had Aggo and Rakharo on either side of Missandei’s horse to keep her safe on her horse. Missandei felt humiliated. She saw the concern on the Dothrak’s faces. She knew these men respected strength. Their looks of concern was just a mask she thought in her misery. These men must think she was a weak silly little girl. She could not see the truth of their genuine concern. They had come to treasure the smalls scribe. They understood her body was not inured to horseback riding. Missandei had simply not known what she was getting herself into. The column put out again but a much reduced rate.

Missandei did not remember much of the travel that day. The sun felt like a furnace on her body. She was feverish and a little delirious. She was a failure. She had insisted that she come on this journey so Eddard could get back to his wife as soon as possible and now she was hobbling that journey.

When it was time to change horses Eddard and Barristan had gently pulled her up out of the saddle and as softly as possibly moved her to the new mount. She had still cried out in pain. She saw the men and her Queen and Arya look on her with pity. Pity for the weak willed and soft bodied interpreter that had overstepped her limits. Gods she was so angry with herself. She was making a fool of herself.

It was late in the afternoon. She was feverish now. Through a haze Missandei saw Eddard regarding her.

Suddenly he called out that they needed to make camp early for the day. Many riding murmured wondering why.

“My horse has been favoring his right front leg.”
Stannis barked out “There is nothing wrong with your horse Eddard. Hell, we will get a new one at the camp.”

Missandei in a fog saw Eddard glare at Stannis and then motion his head at her.

Stannis then looked at her and she saw his jaw grinding. Gods he probably hated her for being so weak.

Stannis reached back and gripped his back “Now that you say it my back has been stiffening up for the last hour. I could use the extra rest.”

Missandei felt humiliated. They were only stopping because of her and were trying to not show it.

She had been lifted off her horse like a useless baby. She was put onto her sleeping furs by a hot fire. Her caracal crawled in with her after eating a bowl of chopped meat the Dothraki prepared for the small feline.

She whined and turned away from Daenerys when she tried to talk to her and give her some soup.

“Damnit I am getting tired of this Missandei” Daenerys barked at her in frustration. Missandei wined more. “Oh Missandei I am so sorry. I just wish I knew what is upsetting you so.”

Missandei stared at the fire. She was in agony in both her body and soul.

As the sun was going down Daenerys came up to her with a cup. It was the Milk of the Poppy. The liquid was white. It was full strength. Again the Queen was showing Missandei just how weak she was. The Queen saw just how weak her scribe was.

She tried to refuse but the Queen made it a direct order her violet eyes blazing. The two women glared at each other. Even in her much weakened state Missandei tried to defy her Queen in her misery. With a pain filled gaze Missandei watched Arya come up to her. Arya tried to get Dany to back off but Daenerys told Arya to back off herself. Dany had used her royal command tone. It broke no argument. Arya bowed her head and stepped back. They may be in love with each other but Dany was the Queen and Arya bowed before her Queen when she used that tone.

To prolong the contest of wills was useless. Dany was the Queen. With locked eyes Missandei drank her drink. When Daenerys was like this one had to obey her. She had already decided that tomorrow she would have the column move on without her. She was broken. With a sullen look Missandei drank deep droughts from the cup filled with the milk of the poppy. She was defeated in all ways.

Missandei sank into a deep sleep. The milk of the poppy doing its work. She knew her body would in time mend. She wondered if her soul would.

She drifted on rivers of dreamless thoughts and formless desires.

Then it changed. Missandei felt the presence. She was dreaming of her lover again. Her lover was stroking her feverish brow. Missandei frowned. She was tired of such senseless dreams. Her lover had abandon her. She did not let her love rise up at the soft loving caresses. Missandei kept her thoughts like this. Missandei felt the presence relax in her guard as she stroked Missandei’s feverish face. Missandei lulled her tormentor into a false sense of confidence.

Her hands shot up like striking cobras and gripped two thin small forearms. She felt alarm from the woman whose arms she gripped. The arms were jerked back forcefully. Missandei refused to let go. Her body was jerked hard but she did not care. This woman could shatter mountains. If she truly wanted free herself of Missandei’s human grip she could with but a thought shatter every bone in Missandei’s body. Missandei felt sudden anger and hate boiling the very air she breathed. Missandei felt the power that her small hoped for lover kept buried in her small diminutive body.

“Let go of me! I will not be shackled!” Missandei heard screamed in her air and more in her mind. She heard the pain and fear. “I will never be chained again!”

She said the only thing she could with her mind. “I love you.” She let her soul be shown in those three words. She had to let her woman know just how much she loved and needed her.

The arms suddenly stilled. Then they jerked hard again. The small scribe’s body was jerked about lifted off the furs. Somehow Shadowclaw was rolled away but continued sleeping deeply. Missandei in her logical mind noted that this wild jerking about of her body was not increasing her misery.

Also, Missandei knew that no one sensed this tableau occurring in their midst as they slept. The guards working the perimeter of the camp saw and heard nothing. Her lover was truly a goddess bending the rules of nature to keep her unaware by all but Missandei.

“I can shatter mountains! Release me!”

“I know of your power. You will have to kill me first. I love you” Missandei replied calmly. The arms stopped their fight immediately.

“You do not know what I am.”

“I love you. Make love to me.”

She heard the woman gasp and her body shivered. For a moment Missandei felt a raw hunger for her body and soul envelope her small black body. Missandei felt that desire immediately squashed. She felt the small woman in her grasp suppress her desires for Missandei.

“You do not know what I am. Let me show you.”

The world of the North simply faded away. All the people around her gone. Her Shadowclaw was gone as well. She was no longer in her world or her time.

She knew it was long, long ago when the world was a much younger place. Missandei looked around. Her lover still kept herself hidden. She was standing on a small circular platform. She was high above the world. She was standing on platform on a small spire of stone that rose over five hundred feet from the ground below. The air was crisp and pure. Missandei inhaled deep and felt the raw magic that filled this world.

“This is the Land” the woman told her. “This is in a time before man came to this world. Man lived to the South.”

Missandei looked around with magical sight and saw it was so. She gasped seeing a massive forest before her all around. The forest was alive! She could feel its consciousness. She looked to the north by east and saw shimmering on the horizon a massive volcanic mountain. In it she felt massive power throbbing and pulsing. On plains before the mountain she saw great horses running free and wild. Horses of great power and intelligence.

“This is the world I was born into long ago in the mists of the distant past. I am a Qualar. I was just coming into my maturity having taken my physical form. I longed to use my new found strength. I longed to shape the world. A man came to me. He told me he could help me achieve my true destiny.”

Missandei saw this man. He stood before Missandei. The sunlight fell upon this man caressing his perfect body. Missandei knew she was seeing this man as her lover had seen him long ago.
Missandei saw the man as she her lover had seen him when he first came to her. A man perfect in eyery way. He was the most comely man that Missandei had ever seen. He was perfect in every line of his form. His hair long and luxurious. His face a masterpiece of angles and planes. His shoulders wide and strong. His limbs long and perfectly formed.

Missandei saw all this as her green eyed erstwhile lover had seen him. But Missandei saw something that her lover did not. Missandei saw the man’s eyes. They were yellow. The color not the color of daffodils covering a hillside in the bright sun of a new spring morning.

No, this yellow was not that. This yellow was of rotting flesh. The color of disease and pure avarice and hatred for all things.

“I did not see what you so clearly see Missandei. I blinded myself. I fell. You are only human. I do not mean that as an insult but you do not have the senses I have. Yet I did not see. You saw at a glance what I missed through a long courtship. I was blind and a fool.”

Missandei felt what her woman had felt all those millennium ago. All these things were intoxicating but what truly snared her was his power. Strength almost shouted from his body. His body was impossibly strong but it paled to the power radiating off his id. His will was absolute. There was nothing that he could not achieve if given time. He was filled with magic and purpose. He was filled with raw will.

He had come to Missandei’s love promising her impossible pleasures. Those had attracted her attention. She wanted to know the sensual desires that she had with her newly acquired body. Her kind were born without bodies and only acquired physical form upon maturity of spirit.

She was in the first flush of power.

He asked her name. She refused. To know one’s name was to give one power over your spirit and body.

Long did A-Jeroth court her. He promised her the world and then the stars. They would rule all and bend all to their will. They would be King and Queen. They would be equals in all their endeavors.

She never noticed how his yellow eyes were filled with avarice and loathing for all things. She did not feel the disdain and evil humor he felt in seducing her. Her senses perceived but her mind did not process. In time, the new born woman came to desire that same power to control and bend all to her will.

Finally, one night she was drunk on special elixirs he had plied her with and stroked her body to a feverish pitch. She longed to be taken! She wanted to be fucked and enjoy the full pleasures of the flesh. She knew they existed but until this night she had never felt them. She was on fire.

The man had intoxicated her with desires. First they would consummate the desires of the flesh.
Then they would enjoy the pleasure that only totally dominion over others could give to beings such as they. They would recreate the world in their own image. They would use this world to launch themselves into the universe.
“What is your name my sweet? Tell me your name my future Queen.”

She had spoken her name.

She had been chained and caste into the deep abyss beneath Mount Thunder. Her screams of rage and fear filled the heavens. She was gagged as her screams threatened to tear the mountain down.

She felt the man taking the power that flowed out of her in her rage, fear and despair and crafting it to achieve his own desires and goals.

How long she raged and struggled in her chains she could not remember. Eventually she slipped the bounds of her physical flesh and became her pure spiritual self. Her rage and loathing knew no limits. She could not flee her prison. The wards were to strong and purely constructed.

They started to come then. Men seeking to either to understand or enslave her further. Those she tore asunder without a thought. Women came to her. She ripped their souls from their bodies and ate them to make them one with her. Her anger, fear, rage and loathing filled them. Her very essence became the scream of the greatest agony and hopelessness on the Earth. In all things She Who Must Not Be Named as she was now named hated one person more than all others: Herself.

For countless millennium she killed and enslaved women into herself. Her hate knew no limits. Until Linden Avery freed her with only the purity of her pained spirit. Linden had caste off her purloined souls of lost women. Linden healed the women as she freed them. Linden shattered the runes and barriers entrapping her. She Who Must Not Be Named had fled to the heavens. She abandoned the world of her torment and agony.

All this she showed and fed to Missandei as hot tears rained down on the scribe’s face. Missandei felt all the anger and hate of all things. She felt the lust for power over life and choice. She felt the glee her future wife felt in killing men. Missandei felt the screaming and insanity she filled the women she captured. All of this Missandei felt in the marrow of her bones.

Missandei also felt something else. She also felt the women leaving her lover’s soul and being healed with the power that She Who Most Not Be Named allowed Linden Avery to purloin from her body. Her hoped for lover did not even realize she had allowed it. She would not accept that knowledge if Missandei tried to impart it to her.

More hot tears rained down on Missandei’s forehead.

“Now you know why you cannot love me. I am something evil.”

Missandei pulled down hard on the small arms in her grasp. She Who Must Not Be Named gasped “Ooohhhhh.”

Missandei lifted her head and kissed the forehead her lips found.

“You are not that woman anymore” Missandei husked softly. “I see the true you. I see the woman you now are. You are good. Stop denying your true nature.”

“You do not know the anger and loathing that still burns in my body.”

“I do and I will help you control it. Make love to me. I give myself to you totally and completely. I love you and you love me. Do not deny it. Let our love for each other heal you. I will always be by your side.”

“Ohhhhhhh!”
“Let us give our virginities to each other. Let our companions hear our screams of pleasure and love. I will help you rise to your true self.”

“Ohhhhh Missandei I am not worthy of one such as you.”

The arms she had refused to release turned to mist. She suddenly felt fingers touch her head. She fell into deep slumber.

She had fled her again. It did not matter. Missandei would be patient. She Who Must Not Be Named would tell Missandei her real name. Then they would make sweet love. She would show her sweet anguished love that love can be such an exquisite thing.

Her love coming to her had restored Missandei’s faith in that love. She was happy once more. Her love had opened her heart to her. Missandei knew what that meant. She was in love with Missandei. She would have her woman. She may doubt again but in the end her pure love would win out.

Before dawn she woke up and kicked off her covers. She touched her thighs and groin. The skin was healed. The ache was gone from limbs and back. She was completely healed. Her soul had been assuaged as well. She now knew why her lover had stayed away. She did indeed love her but did not feel worthy.

Missandei started to stroke Shadowclaw as she purred and snuggled closer to Missandei. The scribe reflected on her new found knowledge of She Who Must Not Be Named. She knew that name now. She would learn her true name in time. She would show her love what it meant to love and be loved. She would show She Who Must Not Be Named what true love truly was. That in opening oneself to love that one could receive so much in return.

Missandei could wait. She could now feel her love not far off watching her. She smiled. Then her presence was gone. She smiled. Their longing for each other was putting Missandei in tune with her lover. Her lover was mighty and could hide if she wanted but in time she would come to Missandei. She had felt the love She Who Mush Not Be Named felt for her. She felt the longing to lie with her and give her body to Missandei. She felt the fear from so long ago and her betrayal by A-Jeroth. She also felt a secret desire to be loved by She Who Must Not Be Named. A desire sparked and growing because of herself. Because of Missandei.

Dany came over to her with a wary look. Missandei jumped up and hugged her dear friend and asked for forgiveness.

Dany was nonplussed at her change in both spirit and body. Missandei had been most cross. She told Dany all that had occurred last night. How her future wife had come to her and healed her. She told Dany how she was confused and how she had been betrayed in the past. She did not see the need to tell her of the pits of Mount Thunder.

When Dany examined her thighs and saw them totally healed she looked stunned. “Will I guess you mystery lover did come to you last night. I can’t wait to meet her.”

“Nor can I!”

Daenerys and Arya who had come up to listen both laughed at her enthusiasm. Missandei smiled broadly up at them.

Life was good.
Eddard

What a difference a few days could make Eddard mused to himself. He had commiserated with the Queen’s small scribe. He had watched the woman’s body quickly breakdown with the fast pace they were making to Winterfell. He had assumed that woman was inured to horseback riding. He would not have allowed her to begin the journey had he known this was not the case.

By the end of the second day her misery was so great that he called a halt to the fast gallop back to his home. He was wondering what to do. The woman was strong willed but her body was betraying her.

He had looked at the interpreter. He had been shocked at the news that she could speak over twenty languages fluently. He could not understand High Valyrian but the woman spoke it fluently to the Queen. Arya had told her father that the small dark skinned woman had started to teach her the language of their Queen. In fact Arya felt she had mastered Valyrian but was having trouble still with Dothraki but was improving finally. Eddard had smiled at that.

The dark woman was stunning beautifully. Her skin was not as dark as the few Summer Islanders he had seen and her features were sharper and not as rounded in the cheek and almond eyes of the Summer Islander. The women of that seafaring nation liked to keep their hair straight in or in long braids. Missandei preferred to keep her hair in a loose curl of long twists. She was indeed beautiful.

He had read that the Queen did not have a consort or Queen while she was still in Essos. He now wondered why Daenerys Targaryen had not chosen the woman from Naath as her Queen. He was thankful that Daenerys had not. This left it open for his daughter to capture his Queen’s heart.

He had at first wondered about the scribe’s demeanor. She had seemed morose when he first arrived at the Queen’s party. The woman on the initial part of their journey had been quiet and seemed somewhat sullen. He saw the Queen trying to talk to her and be rebuffed. Then the girl had been in such agony he had called a halt to the ride for that day even though they had maybe three more hours they could have traveled on. Such misery called to Eddard’s soul. He felt great compassion for the woman.

He had been surprised to have Stannis give an excuse and say the ride had to quit for the day. Eddard had half believed the man’s back was acting up the way he gripped it and grimaced. The man was so fucking literal and hard spirited about everything. He would have expected him to bark at Daenerys that the small woman was dead weight. She needed to be left behind. Something had seemed to soften the man slightly. He no longer seemed to have an iron pole shoved up his ass. He was still Stannis just a slightly softer more rounded version of the man he knew. He liked the change.

Eddard himself had been anguished. He knew in the morning he would have to talk to Daenerys about the small scribe slowing down their march.

The next morning the girl woke up all bubbly and smiling. He had been shocked at her change in demeanor. He was more shocked in the change of her physical appearance. She could barely move the night before. Now the small black teenager was moving freely. She was smiling and giving everyone encouraging remarks. She thanked himself and Stannis for calling a halt to the journey the day before. That day she had effortlessly climbed up on her horse.

The ride no longer weighed on the woman. Her body seemed totally accustomed to riding now. He had rode to up Daenerys. She had told him that the teenager had a secret love that watched over her. He looked around. “Where is he?”
The Queen had quirked an eyebrow and smiled. “It is a woman Eddard.”

Eddard nodded his head. It kind of made sense. The Queen was gay. Arya was gay. Why wouldn’t Missandei be gay too he supposed.

“Does that bother you Eddard Stark? A woman loving a woman?”

Eddard kept his face neutral. He was still unsure why his daughter and Queen had not bonded yet.

“No. Should it?”

The queen had looked at him nonplussed. He rode back to the other Lords and caught up with house politics.

Again Eddard worked over in his head what he could observe between Daenerys Targaryen and his daughter. He was perplexed. Daenerys was always near her daughter or if not her eyes were constantly seeking Arya out. His daughter did the same thing. When together they moved just that little bit closer to each other than decorum dictated.

They were always touching each other to make a point. He would watch one or the other one of them let their horse slip back just a little way. When they did that they would let their face drop its guard and stare with long lingering gazes. They would lick their lips and eyes go all agog staring with open lust. Then when the object of their desire would turn their head to make a comment or find where they had gone he would see the mask come back up.

Renly had come up to him one time. “You want to join in?”

“Join in?”

“Yeah. The pool.”

“Pool?”

“Yes. The pool as to when your daughter and Daenerys start fucking … they got it bad for each other but for some reason they just don’t quite seem to get to the point of doing the nasty.”

Eddard had looked at Renly. The man smiled evilly at him. Eddard briefly considered punching him in the face for speaking of his daughter and Queen so coarsely. He had immediately paused though. Had he not sent Arya South for just that reason? The prophecy had been most clear. His daughter’s open infatuation and already strong love for Daenerys had been clearly evident.

He had actually sent his daughter South with the clear hope she would capture the Queen’s heart. In capturing Daenerys’ heart Arya would both ensure her safety and that the Queen would be predisposed to hear his pleas of the true danger.

Arya had succeeded it was clear. The Queen had fulfilled Arya’s hopes and dreams. They were clearly in love with each other. Then why had they not commiserated their love? He knew the Septons would harp about the need to stay a virgin till the wedding bed. He had but he knew for a fact that Brandon had been a regular Lothario.

Brandon had always teased his younger brother in his chaste ways. He had never worried about it till the night he had to fulfill his brother’s duty. He had not even kissed a girl. Cat may have been a virgin but she definitely knew how to kiss a lot better than he had.

“You know we are talking about my daughter don’t we Renly? I ought to really thrash you for such language.”

“Oh loosen up Eddard. We have all lost a fucking fortune betting on when your daughter would be bedding Daenerys. We keep losing and having to come up with new dates. They got it bad for each other but they just keep flitting around like a bee trying to decide which flower to land on. You can almost smell the sex on them they want each other so bad.”

Oberyn had come riding up. Eddard grimaced. He was not surprised. Whenever the subject of sex was involved that man could not be far behind.

“Come on Eddard. We all know you sent your wild child down to King’s Landing to seduce and bed the Queen.” Eddard glared at Oberyn for so blatantly laying his plans open for all to see. He glanced at the Queen and his daughter. No. She did not know his plans. Thank the old gods. Once she bedded Arya it would not matter. Till then though …

Eddard could not fully stop the blush that crept up his face. To hear it so boldly put forth was a little disconcerting. He still couldn’t help but wonder if the Queen had put two and two together yet. He looked at her again mooning over Arya who was looking over the landscape. The Queen had it bad that was for sure. Why hadn’t she bedded his daughter?!

“You might as well bet. Everyone in Dorne and here were betting on when Cersei and Obara would finally start doing the nasty.” Oberyn laughed hard. “I have heard Tyrion lost a fucking fortune betting my sweet Cersei and Obara would never fuck. I wish you could have seen the look on my Ellaria’s face when we went to the officer’s sauna to fuck.” Eddard saw the man smirk seeing him grimace. Eddard knew he was stiff when it came to sex. Oberyn knew it too and was playing his cards with open glee.

“We had come waltzing in and lo and behold what do we see but Cersei sitting on her ass and nearly burying her whole face in my eldest daughter’s pussy gobbling it like her life depended on it. She was making all these obscene slurping noises and moaning like she had just seen heaven. Gods that woman can eat some mean pussy. Cersei made my daughter scream in almost agonizing pleasure.”

“Winterfell.”

“What was that Eddard?” Renly asked him with an evil look on his face.

“Winterfell. Within twenty-four hours. Ten dragons.” He rode off to get away from his tormentors as he heard the two men laughing.

Eddard grimaced. He had just laid a bet as to when his daughter would bed the Queen of Westeros and half of Essos. He would have never believed it he thought with a half-smile. Eddard Stark betting on his daughter having lesbian sex with the Queen of Westeros. The world was indeed changing.

Soon all smiles had left his face. Eddard again considered what he had heard from the Queen about Roose Bolton and Walder Frey. He had schooled his features. Never show your hot emotions was one of Eddard’s axioms. On the outside he may have appeared to be calm and controlled but on the inside he had been full of fury and rage.

He had never liked the man. His father had taught him and Brandon that the House of Bolton while strange and keeper of old ways but that they were loyal and savage warriors on the field of battle. His father had thought of them as valued allies.

Roose Bolton was three years his elder and had come to head his house one year before he had.
Eddard had quickly come to dislike the man immensely. Whatever taint ran in that family lineage had risen to the surface with the man. He was more bold and more contemptuous of the edicts of the Warden of the North. Roose made it plain that the new ways were rubbish. He said he followed the edicts that Eddard enforced. His father and he knew his brother would have been the same in not closely enforcing edicts outlawing the Ritual of First Right and the disgusting habit of flaying the skin off his enemies.

When Eddard became Warden of the North he had made it clear to Roose that the laws on the books would be enforced and those breaking them would be severely punished. Since that time he had been playing a game of cat and mouse with Roose. He knew the man was still doing the old traditions but he could never prove it. Victims would not provide testimony. Of course there were almost never any victims left to interview. He never could understand the grip that Roose had on his people.

On top of all that was Roose’s disgusting habit of leeching himself. The man was as a pale as fucking ghost and only spoke in a whisper. The man bled himself continuously. Misquotes would starve if they had to live off that man.

He had longed to have evidence to move against the vile man. Now he had been provided a godsend. Roose was going to hand himself into Eddard’s hand. The vile man was slowly making his own noose knot by knot. After the Queen and Missandei had informed him of Bolton’s treachery the Queen had told him she had an idea of how to handle the traitors.

Eddard turned to her. Arya was nearly vibrating at his side. She especially hated Ramsey Bolton the bastard son of Roose. The boy was rumored to have hunts that involved women. He hunted them like foxes. When he ran them to ground he would rape and kill them. Again it was only rumors. The young man was evil and vile tempered. He needed to be put down too.

His daughter had looked at him with fire and hate in her eyes. He knew that if they met on the field of the battle his youngest daughter would gut the cur.

“What is your plan my Queen?”

“I propose that we let them form their own noose and put their necks in them. We will be camping near the wall at Castle Black I presume?”

Eddard had told her that was his plan. The wall should provide a defense long enough for forces to move to a different point of attack if the Ice King should attack elsewhere.

The main path through the wall was at Castle Black. That was the weak point.

“I agree."

“I propose to put them on the edge our encampment. We will watch them for treachery. Their plan is to lie low until the battle starts. I propose that we inform them they are the strategic reserve. Held back to be used where and when we need. There forces would be held to staunch any breach of our defenses or to exploit any breach we make.”

“That should play into their plans. They will think their gods are listening to their prayers. That we are playing into their hands. That we are fools. I think we should have a third house held back that is loyal to us. We don’t want them to become suspicious at them alone being held back. That should play into their plans so they should readily accept that proposal. It will put them in perfect positon to attack us from the rear.”
“The camps closest to them will be held at the highest alert. We will keep as much heavy cavalry as possible near them. We will have to keep the numbers lower than I like but we must maintain the subterfuge. We will have long lances and pikes hidden in the ranks to allow the soldiers to create phalanxes. I will position the bulk of my Unsullied that I have brought on this march with the heavy cavalry. Together this will hem in the traitors. Then as they are pinned my dragons will teach them the meaning of the word ‘Dracarys!’”

Eddard was most impressed. He could not have come up with a better master stroke. His only thought was to have some longbow men leavened in with the ranks. He wanted to beef up the archery ranks to be able to overwhelm the archery of the two traitor’s houses. The arrows would both find marks and keep the enemy pinned down. He asked if her dragons need fear arrows.

Daenerys informed him that dragon’s eyelids were able to stop an arrow. She explained that dragons had many sights. One seemed to be the very energy that bodies put off. When close they could use that to aim their dragon fire and keep their eyes closed. She told Eddard she had seen the equivalent while sailing her fleet off Volantis during its siege. She had seen a large shark come up on a seal in the water from underneath. As the shark moved it in its eyes rolled back into its head for protection. Her dragons had the same attribute.

“What will you do with the traitors if they survive the battle?”

“I would want to flay the skin off Roose before his men. But then I would be committing the same atrocity he commits. One crime does not justify another.”

He saw the Queen’s eyes go far away and a haunted look come over her face.

Arya had seen it too and instinctively move to be close to Daenerys back and she rubbed it in small circles murmuring to Daenerys it was alright.

Eddard felt his heart warm. Yes indeed they were in love. Why had then not consummated their love?  He did not worry. Bran’s prophecy had been clear. It would happen. Now that he thought about it, it made sense.

Winterfell.

Eddard saw the Queen lean into Arya’s touch with a soft smile on her face and she looked at Arya with unguarded eyes. Arya did the same.

Then the Queen suddenly stiffened and looked at Eddard with a worried look. Her face became guarded and she thanked Arya for her compassion.

Eddard now understood that the Queen feared his reaction to her feelings and desires for his daughter. If they could not find their way to each other once they got to Winterfell he would talk to the Queen. Strange how such a powerful and confident woman could be so timid in matters of the heart. In a way though it comforted Eddard. She would be so good to his little girl.

Daenerys was a strange contradictions in some ways. She was so passionate. It had led her to utterly crush her enemies. She had crucified over five hundred people for what she saw on the road to Meereen. Her rising up from the sewers of that City to throw it down was legend. Daenerys seemed to feel no fear and battle and always led from the front. This was something that had immediately called to the Warden of the North. He admired a Queen or King who led by example.

Her defeat of Volantis and its vaunted defenses was so audacious it made Eddard’s head spin. The chances she took staggered him. He now saw that those victories still haunted her. His victories did too. He still woke up at night hearing the screams of the dying. He had seen too many men’s lives end on his sword.

Eddard resumed with telling the Queen what he would do with Roose Bolton. “If he or Ramsey are left alive I will chop their heads off with Ice the traditional sword of House Stark. It is a Valyrian blade my Queen.

“I know. I made a point of getting an inventory of all the known blades of Valyrian descent in Westeros. My Maester has been able to provide a list. In Essos I have Illyrio Mopatis doing that for me.”

“May I ask why?”

Daenerys chuckled. “You know I can’t really say. I guess it is just me being curious. So much of my culture disappeared with the death of my homeland.”

They had talked a little more of defense and the dealing of traitors.

“There is one more thing I need to bring to your attention my Queen. You will be told it is another myth and even I cannot be sure of its authenticity. But I believe it is real.”

“What is it?”

“The Ice King has found the true horn of Winter. It is only briefly mentioned in the oldest texts from the Age of Heroes but it was rumored to have been created by a great sorcerer from across the seas.”

“What does it do” the Queen asked curiously. “Does it invoke Winter at the blowers command?”

“I wish that was its power my Queen. If blown at the Wall it will bring the wall down.”

“How do you know this?”

“Jon’s witch wives have seen it on the Ice King’s throne or around his body. He put powerful rune magic on it to ward it. He definitely believes in its authenticity.”

“Strange they did not mention this while they were with us.”

“I think they had their focus elsewhere my Queen. They were focused on showing the truth to the Houses of Westeros in the South. That and the injuries they suffered I think clouded that truth being revealed.

The night that Eddard had arrived to meet the Queen the wives had come to Eddard in the middle of the night. The camp was quiet as they came silently walking their horses to Eddard’s sleeping furs. He liked looking up at the stars. Eddard being a soldier was a light sleeper. He saw the witches and Daenerys with them. She looked sleepy but was alert with her sword on her back.

“We have come to bid the Queen and Jon’s father goodbye.”

Daenerys had asked them why they were leaving so soon. Had they fully recovered?

The witches had informed them they had fully recovered. They longed to be back with their husband. They did not feel complete without him.

Eddard had thought how fortunate his son was to have such loving wives.

They gave their salutations. The Queen had thanked them profusely for uniting her people. She would forever be in there debt. The witches had told the Queen that John was one of her subjects and they therefore were her subjects too. They had been able to perform her a service and had been honored to do so.

They mounted their horses. Ygritte looked down at Eddard.

“When this war is over Jon will be handing in his commission. He will leave the Night’s Watch and we will leave the wall.”

“Where you go? Back to your homeland of Asshai. If so, I will miss Jon and I will miss his wives.”

“Oh hell no, we aren’t going back to that dark and dreary land. It sucks let me tell you.”

“We want to take our abode in the Sandhills. We want your blessing to live in his ‘nature preserve’ you have established. We can help protect and nurture the wildlife living in it. We can accelerate the return to health species hunted to near extinction. This way we can continue to serve in our own way.”

“Do we have your blessing in this Eddard Stark, father of Jon Snow?”

Eddard only had to think for a second. Once he would have been angered that his son was forsaken his vows. That was before his attempted assassination at the hands of the very Crows he was pledge to led and serve. This last year had forced Eddard to open his mind to new thinking. For centuries the Crows had only been populated with criminals and the destitute. With only a few nobles sprinkled in. There had to be a better way. He would talk to Oberyn.

“You have my blessing. Will you mind visits by the in-laws.”

Ygritte laughed. Melisandre sighed “It will be tolerated” but she had a soft smile on her face.

“Oh hell Eddard, I think we will be paying you some visits.”

With that they had ridden off into the rising morning fog.

“My Queen, with the Horn of Winter the Ice King will be able to bring the Wall down. A barrier that has existed for eight thousand years will be no more.”

“Are you sure it will ‘bring’ the wall down?”

Eddard paused. Now that he thought about he was not exactly sure how the wall would be destroyed. There was no scroll to reference that specially spoke on how the Horn of Winter would attack the Wall. Everyone just knew, or maybe the proper word to use was the word ‘assume’, that the Horn being blown would tear the Wall asunder.

“It has always been lore that the Wall would be torn down.”

Daenerys replied “I heard such a story in Essos. There was once a City called Heriocho. Their enemies marched around the City seven times and then sounded a horn and the walls came down. More probably a fortuitous earthquake. Have you ever laid siege warfare Eddard?”

“No I have not Daenerys (raised eyebrow) ummm Dany. My battles have always been fought on the fields of battle. Sieges are quite prolonged and messy. The causalities can be high if you do not starve your foes out.”

“I agree. I avoided siege warfare until I came to Volantis. Volantis has seamless walls of fused black dragonstone, harder than steel or diamond. It was a symbol of my people’s power and might. The walls are two hundred feet tall and wide enough for dragons to land and traverse on and actually lie and sleep on. The walls meant to stand in mute testimony to Volantis’s origins as the first Valyrian Freehold and military outpost off the Valyria peninsula.”

“I brought down a five hundred foot section of that wall. Do you know what I had in front of me?”

“No.”

“I had a big, high nearly eighty foot high and one hundred foot wide pile of rubble that would take much effort to traverse. Your ice Wall is as hard with the magic in it like the walls of Volantis and over three times as high. Do you see where I am going Eddard?”

“Yes I do Daen—Dany but but … well I don’t know. The thought of the Wall coming down is very disconcerting. How can you be so cavalier about that possibility?”

Daenerys eyes twinkled. “I was not raised to be married to that Wall at the hip. I do not want to see it come down. It is a very effective barrier to keep the Land of Always Cold separate from the rest of Westeros. Also, with this senseless war with the Wildlings it has been an effective barrier against them.”

“When the war is over I will be allowing the Wildlings to freely enter Westeros. I know they don’t bend the knee but I can work with that. The wildlings of the North have many things going for them. They deserve to experience what they wish of the land below the Wall. I suspect they will more than likely visit and go back to their native lands.” Daenerys snorted. “For the Wildlings the land below the Wall will be their summer vacation.”

The Queen stopped. She saw Eddard smirk smiling at him. “You seem to be taking this very well Eddard. I just said that this eight thousand war with the Wildlings was to be ended.”

Eddard could not help but chuckle. Seeing the Queen puffing her chest out on the issue was humorous.

“What is so funny? I am not used to be chuckled at when I make Earth shaking pronouncements Eddard Stark.” Eddard watched her pinch her nose. “Okay. Out with it.”

“My son has already allowed the Wildlings through the wall and given them the Gift. I have given him permission to allow them to settle the New Gift as well if they pledge to serve our military needs in time of war. They will form councils that meet with my Lords to discuss edicts. I am finding that they are most willing to follow well thought out and softly given edicts. They are having to get used to the concept of taxation.

“Once they were informed that this ‘taxation’ we would be health clinics, communal compounds and provide vets for their animals they suddenly saw the usefulness of this “taxation.”

Once the threat is removed many if not most want will most probably want to move back to their ancestral lands. Some of the youngest Lord’s sons want to live in the far north and are willing to follow the Wildling way. I am getting used to their “right of the hunt”. It seems when they have bedded a lass they will ‘hunt’ them and take them as their mate. I have heard that their women are quite adept at it too. This is taking some getting used to. It is strange to see a Lord’s daughter over some spearwife’s shoulder.”

“What happened in these events?”

“When the daughter breaks down sobbing she wants to be a “trophy” and the Lord is given large dowries of furs, beautifully carved wood, jade, onyx and silver most are quite happy.”

“You are okay with this Eddard?”

“I am trying to be progressive my Queen. You have opened many possibilities to Westeros. I am not shackled to the past.”

He had almost asked the Queen about her thoughts on the right of the sexes to marry whom they wished but decided that the time was not now. He did not want to upset in anyway the bond between Arya and Daenerys. He could sense they were close to consummating their love. He was sure it would happen in Winterfell. It just felt so right. His wife would have her triple wedding.

Plus, he was almost ashamed to admit he really did want to win the bet he had placed.

“I must ask why you are not worried about the Ice King bringing the wall down Dany? It would seem to be such a strategic advantage.”

“Over time yes. But we and He are obviously gearing ourselves to have a decisive battle. This battle will be sharp and quick. The wall coming down will create a huge pile of jumbled ice rocks that will be hundreds of feet tall and several hundred feet thick I deem. Their dead would find the very hard to navigate. We will be able to pick off many with from range. Their awkward balance to begin with would make them easy targets.”

“We know they have some aerial ally but I have three dragons. I have a plan on how to deploy them. I will test this soon. From what I experienced when Jon’s wives were attacked it was only one entity. I am used to how my dragons fly and attack. The attacks on the Blood Phoenix was by one creature. I am sure of it. It flew by and had to bank to attack again. It is large with the time between attacks. I will kill this ‘thing’ and then my dragons will burn our foes as they cross the jumbled mess they created.”

“We will not be able to attack in mass but neither will they. We will have to abandon the Wall.”

“What?!”

Now it was Daenerys turn to smirk and chuckle. “Don’t be married to that three hundred mile long wall of Ice Eddard. The greatest benefit the Ice King would have in bringing the wall down suddenly would be in killing the men and women manning it. It would decimate the Crows and Wildlings. The loss of life and crushing of moral would be devastating to us.”

Eddard was stunned with how easily his Queen adjusted to new information and was willing to devise new tactics. Her conquests of so many diverse enemies and civilizations in Essos had given her this gift of forming the tactics necessary to fight her foes and not let preconceived notions stop her.

Eddard shook his head. Now that she had given him her reasoning it seemed so logical that he could not now hardly remember his objections.

He had one more worry. He told the Queen about how Jon’s wives had used dead animals to spy on the Ice King in his camp in the far North. With him on the move they would not be able to safely find more hosts so spy on them from up close. With the attacks on the witches and their Blood Phoenix it was now clear that the Ice King had a vile creature that could take to the air.

How would reconnoiter they enemy.

“I have been considering that very question myself Eddard. I feel that I have a way to safely use my dragons against our enemy to spy on him. He will know it of course but I like that idea.”

She then explained to Eddard her reasoning. Again Eddard was impressed with how she had reasoned the problem out from all angels and come up with a solution. The Queen needed to write down her military theories and her battle tactics she used and make sure they were inscrolled at the Wall, the Citadel and Battleborne Academy.

Her writings would be required reading for centuries to come.

As they rode further into the North Eddard considered this woman who was Queen of all of Westeros. She had organized her forces and provided logistical support like he had never seen or read of in all the annals of Westeros. He was sure there was no such annals in Essos.

How had this barely twenty year old woman become such a military genius? She was a great general but also a great warrior. She had been long in her tent this morning before they set out. When she had come out her hair was simply full of bells. She had well over a hundred bells in her hair. Her hair was ablaze with silver and the tinkling chimes with her movements made her appear like an elf from legends.

She was tiny enough to be a tall First People. All she needed were the pointed ears and arched eyebrows.

Eddard had complimented her on her many bells. She had told Eddard that his daughter had finally convinced her to wear some of the bells she had won in combat. She had halved the number she wore since she had felt her use of dragons should make her not show the full amount of bells. Plus, Arya had convinced her that she should not treat a battle as the only victory. But each kill and tactical victory in a larger battle was worthy of a silver bell.

Daenerys had also acquired rare copper, brass and gold bells that some Dothraki wore. She preferred the silver for it enhanced the color of her platinum tresses. She did not have them in her hair now because of it.

Arya was simply staring at Daenerys with open lust. The silver of the bells and white of the Targaryen’s hair was quite beautiful Eddard had to concur. He knew who Dany’s hair would be on come her wedding day.

The Queen informed Eddard that she had picked up on the hording Dragon Glass. She had massive stores heading North to the Wall. She fretted that she wanted more. He did too. When you are letting arrows loose in formation so many missed. But still when she told him of the many thousands of obsidian tipped weapons she had had made and he added those to his counts Eddard felt much more assured.

They now had the weapons to fight the Ice King. Jon fretted with the knowledge of what might have been accomplished if the Night’s Watch had these weapons five years ago. Eddard could not change the past. They had not had the weapons. The past could not be undone. He had done the best he could do with the options he had had at the time. Eddard knew he could not have done any better.

Eddard looked behind him. They were on a walk break to rest the horses. He saw Oberyn waving his spear butt in a circle in front of Nymeria’s face. The wolf’s head moving around in a circle following the spear. Her tongue lulling out and drooling heavily. Eddard could see chew marks on the fire hardened iron wood. Eddard was impressed. Oberyn really loved his spears. For him to be playing with Arya’s direwolf spoke volumes. The wolf’s tail was a blur of agitated desires.
Oberyn stopped moving his spear and the wolf bounded forward. Oberyn jerked it back and spun it over his head and now the spear was on the other side of his horse. The wolf howled and snapped wildly at Oberyn. The man just laughed at Nymeria which made the wolf go wild jumping and flipping in frustration. Arya was laughing and egging Nymeria on to get the spear which made her wolf howl and snap even more.

Nymeria kept chasing the spear and with a feint grabbed ahold of the spear and ripped it from Oberyn. He roared in anger at the wolf and then howled at Arya for urging the “confounding wolf on”. Arya grinned at him and spurred her horse forward to her wolf. “Let’s go Nymeria!” She stuck her hand down and the Direwolf let her master take the spear and they both took off at a fast gallop with a furious Oberyn giving chase screaming curses and threats.

Eddard heard his daughter’s laughter fading down the road.

Eddard had something on his mind and decided now was the time to bring it up with the Queen while Arya was riding down the road with her direwolf beside her. Oberyn giving chase howling curses as if he was the Direwolf.

Eddard took a deep breath. He trusted in Bran’s prophecy totally but seeing the Queen up close had created the smallest worm of doubt to enter his thoughts. She had the right to know. He was unsettled with the Queen and Arya not yet being lovers. Was he letting his desires cloud his senses and judgement?

He made a coughing sound to get the Queen’s attention. He took a deep breath. “Daenerys Targaryen—“

“Dany.”

“I think I should address by your full name for this Daenerys Targaryen. I need to talk to you about your throne and the matter of succession and ascension to the throne.”

Eddard say Daenerys eyes flare with doubt. He could see that he had better get straight to the point.

“I need to tell you the true lineage of my bastard Jon Snow.”

He saw Daenerys face show confusion. She spoke with hesitancy “you are going to tell me who you fathered your child with?” he heard the tone of Daenerys voice. Why are you telling me this?

“Jon Snow is not my son my Queen.”

Daenerys Targaryen stared at him. He could see her mental gears working as she tried to decipher where he was taking this conversation.

“I told everyone that he was my son because he obviously had the look of House Stark. My wife has always accused me that Jon looks more like me than our own sons. I have suffered greatly to perpetuate this lie.”

“Then why do it?”

“Jon Snow is the son of House Stark … (he saw the Queen looking at him with rising agitation) his mother was my sweet sister Lyanna.”

A long silence. “You slept with your own sister?”

“Jon’s father was Rhaegar Targaryen your brother. I claimed Jon as mine to spare him the wrath of Robert Baratheon. Robert never could see clearly when it came to your family. If Robert had known the truth of Jon’s lineage he would have come to kill him. I would have protected Lyanna’s child with my life and I would have plunged Westeros into another war. I refused to do that. So I perpetuated the lie that Jon was my son. Jon is your nephew.”

“Oh my Gods” Daenerys mouth worked and closed. She looked around and then her vision snapped down the road looking for Arya.

“My Queen as you walked through fire to be reborn with your dragons my son too walked through fire. He tells me he made his decision thinking of you.”

“I had nothing to do with that Eddard.”

“When Jon came out of the flames he had been reborn. He is still my sweet son but he is also Azor Ahai reborn. He now has silver white hair and lilac eyes. I thought you should know. I know of the traditions of your family.”

The Queen looked at him for a long time. She looked down the road and in the distance she saw Oberyn and Arya slowly riding their horses back to the group as Arya held the spear away from Oberyn. They could not hear him but they both knew he was cursing her and her wolf.

Eddard saw the soft smile on her face. His heart beat slower. He had his answer.

“Eddard. This is between you and me. I don’t want Arya to know of this until I tell her. I know she will be fearful if she knows this with my family’s traditions.”

“Should she be?”

Daenerys laughed. “Eddard since I was thirteen I have been prophesied to endlessly. Prophecy this prophecy that. My brother was obsessed with the old ways. It got him a crown of molten gold.”

She shook her head. “Don’t take this the wrong way but I have no desire to marry your son. I play for another team.”

Eddard knew the queen thought he did not know what she implied. He hid his smile. He had a bet to win.

“Remember to let me tell her Eddard. I know the history of my family better than anyone else. It is family history after all. I just wish people would stop trying to put me in one hole or another. I choose my destiny. Not man or the gods will direct my path. I choose for myself my path.

They turned their attention back to their companions. None were within earshot of their soft conversation.

Stannis and Renly were arguing about nothing. Willis was chiming in at random moments.

Yes. Eddard’s Game of Thrones had worked. He had brought a united South to the North.

“My Queen?”

“Yes My Warden?”

“Touche. Dany. I am curious. How did my Game of Thrones go down with you? I did everything I could to drive you crazy and yet give just enough reasons to not attack. You seem very calm.”

Dany laughed. “You made a very wise decision sending your daughter to me. Having royal
The hostages in both camps calmed the waters all around. Of course your daughter did on our first meeting fire two arrows at my head as I sat on the Iron throne. The arrows I will have you know landed not an inch from ears. When I looked right and left I saw them quivering in the Iron Throne.” Eddard mouth fell open. “Then she beat the living shit out of me. She actually stomped on my cunt—that really, really hurt. Of course I gave back as good as I got. I hear it has become called “Love at First Fist”. Daenerys trailed off looking at his daughter with that love hotly flowing out her lilac eyes. Arya laughing at Nymeria did not see it.

Eddard did.

Yes indeed. His plans had been totally successful.

Ice King

He looked up into the cerulean sky. They had first appeared four days ago. They flew high up in the air. They flew so high that they could soar over the tops of the Ice Fang Mountains if they had so chosen. He stared up with icy hate. His true son on his back was filled with hate but great fear.

When the dragons had first lazily flew up from the South it had been his son who first saw them with his magically enhanced senses. The Croyel had felt them cross over the wall. The wall itself attenuated his true son’s senses. When the dragons had breached that border the Croyel’s limbs had trashed in remembered terrors. The sharp claws of his toes and fingers digging and ripping his father, the Ice King, icy flesh. The magical bond they had instantly started to heal the wounds but they were painful to endure.

He normally felt anger at his true son for such cowardice. Not with dragons. He too had felt their magical fire that had burned with the force of the sun. He and the Croyel had nearly died underneath the mighty black dragon’s savage attack. The Ice King’s body shivered as he repressed fear with hate.

Ice Fang was flying low over the forest hunting and he had sent his favorite pet away sending it away to the east. He told him to fly to the Antler River and hide in the valley along the ox box turns. He did not want to risk his pet with the three dragons flying as one.

Finally, his son pointed to the Southern horizon. His son let him slip into his skin and his senses. Then the Ice King saw them flying in. They were dizzyingly high in the sky. He doubted that his pet could reach such heights himself. His frigid nature was not inured to the cold of such heights. His body would shatter. Not these dragons. Their internal heat was like a raging forest fire even from this great distance.

Their magical fires enhanced their heat. He had found that out to his great determent. When he had first felt the magical flames of these beast of Valyria he had screamed in agony. His shields would have been blasted to shards if not for his true son strengthening his spells. Even then it had been a close thing. They had barely survived by fleeing in a desperate teleportation spell that Roger Covenant had helped a brother of his Croyel learn. Once a Croyel knew a new knowledge it was instantly shared with all his brethren through their shared racial memory.

He watched the dragons flying up the Fist of the First Men. He did not attempt to hide this time. He knew it was useless. In some way, that he nor his Croyel son could understand, the dragons were able to discern their true position despite any spells caste. The Ice King had learned that they could not hide from these dragons. The Ice King smiled. He would turn a weakness into a strength. The fact that he could not hide would be his advantage now.
He stood out in the open as the dragons approached. They saw him. He felt their hate and they felt his. He knew that though they flew as high as the heavens that the dragons saw him as if he was a short ways away from them. He unsheathed Ice Death and flashed it in the early morning sun. He did not like the light of the hot sun but it no longer weakened him like it had before his true son came to him.

Back and forth he ripped his sword above his head in defiance. His son bit harder into his neck and drank freely drawing strength and a least a little measure of bravery from his father. The Ice King used a voice he did not need with his kin and shouted threats up to the sky. His voice a shrill scream of anger and fury.

The dragons flew up to the Fist of the First Men in a lazy crisscrossing pattern. He could see that the dreaded Queen had heard of the fate of the Blood Phoenix his pet had nearly dispatched. It had been a shame for the creature to escape. He had felt two presences inside the loathsome beast. He felt the same pulse of magic that had filled the breast of Azor Ahai in that ancient past age.

The knowledge had led the Ice King to devise the perfect plan. He knew that the forces of the hot bloods would need to know of his movements. He had merely waited for the means to appear. He could feel the forces rising against him to the South. He felt them in the marrow of his frozen bones. He waited. He knew that the eyes of the hot bloods saw best in daylight.

He had his pet flying high. When the blood magic of the Blood Phoenix came racing North he felt the Shadowbender magic that had made Azor so mighty. He sent his pet even higher.

He had looked up at the Blood Phoenix with all his hate. He caught the vile beast’s full attention. He had felt such elation when Ice Fang had dived down from above and attacked again and again as the beast faltered but somehow kept aloft. He could sense that only one pass more or maybe two would kill it and the witches inside it. Somehow they had escaped.

It did not matter. The trap had been sprung. Their deaths and the death of the Blood Phoenix would have only made it all the sweeter.

Now he let the trap close tighter. He smiled up at the dragons. The dragons were drawing the noose tighter around their necks and that of their silver haired queen and did not even know it. He flashed his sword and roared his defiance.

He saw that the largest dragon was flying a thousand feet below the white and green dragons. The two smaller dragons were constantly flying in tight figure eights a thousand feet above the black dread. Their flight pattern allowing them to watch over the black dragon below them and each other. Their necks craning to look around and below themselves.

There would be no surprising them as the Blood Phoenix had been surprised. He felt the dragons’ anger. They greatly desired to dive down and rend his body and burn it to slag and melted glass. He shook his sword.

He and his Croyel son had worked on their magical wards. The spells were much stronger now. They were more attuned to the magical vibrancy of the Dragons’ fire. Their magical shields would not hold for long but they would endure long enough. He had his Giant sons by his side with their long thick ice spears. His many other sons of human origin had their swords drawn and they too flashed them up at the dragons.

For the dragons to attack him and his true son they would have to come down and attack directly. His shields would now protect him from passing attacks. He knew the dragons were too intelligent to attack alone without their mother to guide them but it was worth the effort. If they came down to attack him they would die. He would lose precious sons and undead minions but the hated beasts would die.

They did not come down to play and die. He would wait. Time was now on his side. His trap had been set in motion. Nothing could prevent it springing shut.

Now he used his enemy’s senses and their power against them. He would no longer hide from them. It did no good. He had found a way to take a weakness and make it a strength.

The Ice King had waited for the dragons to visit him. He knew in time they would appear high in the sky. The hated Dragon Queen would need to know of him and his position. He merely had to wait. Once the visits started they did not cease. They may pause but they would not stop the Ice King knew. They visited mostly during the daylight hours but also at night. He could not see them but he felt their presence high above using their far sight. They never wavered in their staying high in the air. He had to admire the Queen’s iron resolve. She would not be tempted in bringing her dragons lower. She was not one to make rash decisions or act without thinking.

The Ice King hated her for being so wise. Her wisdom would only make her death all the sweeter. The list of denizens that needed to die by his hand was growing ever longer. It did not matter that his enemies seemed to be multiplying. He would kill them all.

He looked out over his great host spread out in the river plains of the Milkwater River. Much of his force was still hidden in the great Haunted Forest shambling forward to their eventual destination. He would not be rushed into attacking before he was ready.

He had been greatly angered when the hated Crow commander had killed a raiding and scouting party he had sent out before the wall. He too needed to reconnoiter his enemy. The Ice King had not been shocked that the crows seemed to have learned of Dragon Glass. It was the one thing beside fire that he feared. Still the Ice King was sure that they had exhausted much of their stores of dragon glass in this fight.

The loss of so many sons had enraged him but the Ice King knew that sacrifice was necessary. He still remembered that from when he was still human. When his blood still ran hot instead of icy cold.

He had actively scoured the lands under his demise seeking out and destroying what dragon glass that still existed from the previous wars against man and what the first people had left. There could only be so much left. He was sure that this Jon Snow the reborn avatar of Azor Ahai had hoped to defeat his party and teach him fear and hesitation.

But the Ice King knew the truth. Jon Snow would have exhausted his limited supply of Dragon Glass. He may have achieved a victory but it would cost him dearly in the end. He would make Jon Snow’s death most heinous. He would love it. The screams of Jon Snow as he was killed and then turning into a soulless dead.

In times past he may have hesitated but he had grown strong with his true son. The Croyel gurgled feeding on his icy blue blood. He still had to wait for his expedition to get in place. He had to wait for the forces of the hot blood to form before the wall. He hoped they would pour their men onto the wall to reinforce it. When he blew the Horn of Winter it would bring the wall down. He smiled to himself seeing in his mind’s eye the falling of the wall and the death of most of the Crow’s and Wildlings manning the wall. Their shocked looks and screams of terror would be so sweet to witness.

His son began to cry out again. This fear angered the Ice King. He lashed his son with mental flails of anger and wrath. He withdrew his blood from his throat and the Croyel screamed in hunger and fear. The Croyel subsumed his bleating and again quieted down. The Ice King would use this weapon. He was the mightiest force on the Earth. Even if he was weakened he would still be mightier than any other force left to oppose him.

He could live with that bargain. He would bring down the Wall. The Croyel had prepared spells to give them the advantage for when the wall came down. Yes his time was coming. He would kill all his enemies. He would raise them up again and let them led his next assaults on Westeros and if still mobile he would use them in the first attacks on Essos until their bodies were no more.

The Ice King smiled at that thought.

The dragons flew overhead for half an hour before they banked and flew back to the South still flying in patterns of self-defense.

The Ice King considered his human “allies”. The fools would die knowing that their betrayal of their brothers had not saved them from the same death.

They had been initially spooked when their emissary party form House Bolton to House Frey had come across a strange small woman. She was more a child than a woman from what he could gather from the garbled messages. They thought she had been after the satchel that was being carried back to House Frey by Merrett Frey from Roose Bolton.

It seemed that the men wanted some sport with the woman. How typical of hot bloods the Ice King sneered to himself. They had planned on raping the woman. Their plans of rape had evidently been turned by the small woman. She had decimated the Bolton party before their numbers seemed to have driven her off. The Ice King had paused at this news. The Boltons and Freys had gone to ground but no retribution was forthcoming. The satchel had made it through and their secret was safe.

Still, it did bother the Ice King that such an incident had occurred. The woman with her bare hands had crushed and killed with ease from the reports that Roose had been able to glean from the surviving Boltons and Freys. The survivors had been gathered along with patrons who had been present for extensive interviews. What Roose and the Ice King could not fathom was why this woman attacked so savagely and then seemed to just disappear without doing anything but kill men aligned to Roose and House Frey.

Had she just wanted to kill men for the act of attempted rape? That was all they could conclude.
The satchel had been left untouched by the woman. This woman was a wildcard. She seemed to have satisfied her need for savagery and disappeared. Hopefully, she would remain so.

The Ice King sensed this woman had great magic in her. Strange how the fates worked. How paths crossed. The Ice King was frozen magic given life. He sensed other magical beings in the world. In time he would hunt them down and kill them. Only he would be allowed to reign on this Earth. He would not brook any possible challengers.

He had asked his true son if this magical woman was known to him. He described to the Croyel the small stature of the woman and the strange green eyes and her pointed ears and eyebrows. How her hair was green. Her great power.

The Croyel found the color green interesting. He knew of She Who Must Not Be Named but she was a true goddess. She had been an amorphous green entity. She had no form and was pure insanity and wrath. The Croyel told him that she had escaped the Earth when Linden Avery had awakened the Worm at the Worlds End. When it had devoured the world She Who Must Not Be Named had made good her escape. The Croyel told the Ice King the woman goddess had with one blow incapacitated Lord Foul.

It had taken the Croyel a long time to fully explain this A-jeroth who also called himself Lord Foul to the Ice King. It had angered the Ice King no end that despite his threats to his true son the Croyel insisted his might and power paled against that of Lord Foul. When the Ice King half entertained that this Lord Foul might be near his equal he insisted on knowing where this entity abided.

He had been informed that Thomas Covenant had taken the despiser into himself and thus garroted and controlled him. Lord Foul in effect was no more. He was controlled and placated. His self-loathing and hate of the Earth was tamped down.

As powerful as this Lord Foul had been, She Who Must Not Be Named was many times greater. She had been all green. She had long vanished from the Earth. She had been imprisoned in the Earth since near its birth and wanted no more to do with it.

The Ice King considered. His Croyel son allayed his fears. This strange woman was gone from the Earth. He would not have to contend with her. Even if he had to face her he would kill her in the end. None could stand before him he knew. All his plans were coming together. He had tasted defeat. Soon his enemies would know the bitter dregs of defeat. They would know it and then die.

The battle was looming between Ice and Fire. The battle was near on the horizon. The forces of light and dark would do battle and the forces of night would prevail. He could not fully discern his enemies but he felt their power coming North. He knew that the magically inclined among them felt his presence.

They were antithetical to each other. They called him evil but he was not. He was the natural order of true night. He most seek out this “good” as they must seek him out that they in their ignorance called “evil”. They must clash and do combat.

The current generation of men would fail as their fathers had failed before him so long ago. The Ice King smiled. His enemies needed to defeat the forces of “evil” again and again. He merely needed to succeed but once to achieve his aims and goals.

He felt it in the morrow of his frozen bones. This clash would be victory for him. This time it would be his forces that would be victorious. The forces of night would have the victory they had so long sought.

The Shadowbenders claimed that light overcame darkness. They were wrong. They could only hold it back. The time of ‘holding back’ was coming to an end.

A great “evil” from the Southern hemisphere had come to the North to align with him. Together they would first conquer the Ice King’s ancient homeland of Westeros. The magic in this land was near gone. Only the magic of Ashai and the hated god of light R’hllo was left to oppose him. Magic from the Far East. He had been weakened by the mages of Westeros before and then Azor had come upon him and his weakened body and slew him.

Those mages were dead and gone. The bleating hot bloods had forgotten their own weapons! A couple of witches from that cursed land and a human turned into a surrogate of Azor Ahai would not be enough.

This dragon Queen was mighty with her strange glowing sword and the sword of her accomplice was also mighty but the traitors in league with the Ice King had answered his inquiries into these weapons. That they were few in number. The kingdom that had produced them had exploded into myth five hundred years ago. Their magic ripped asunder with the destruction of their homeland of Valyria.

No more weapons would ever be made. His traitors had been given specific instructions to seek and out kill all holders of such weapons. They were to hold onto them until he could arrive to take them. Of course they did not know that he planned to kill them with selfsame weapons. There would be a certain justice killing the traitors with their own weapons. He smiled at the “poetic justice” of it all as the humans called it.

Yes. All the forces were coming together in his favor. This time Ice and Darkness would overcome Sun and Light.

He had the “wildcard”. He reached back and petted his true son. His son cooed and wiggled his deformed small body into the back of his father. His teeth sinking deeper into his father both feeding and giving sustenance back to his father.

The Croyel knew that with his father he would in time take him across the Soulbiter and Soulcrusher to the Land. He had survived the journey when he was weak. He would be so much more powerful with his father. True the storms would rise in anger against their magic. They were tuned to such magic and sought to prevent beings such as he free passage. He and his father would prevail.

The denizens of the land had much to speak for. Only beings from the Land of Croyel’s birth had ever succeeded in killing what should never know death. He would avenge all his lost brothers. The Croyel drank deep from his father. They both worshiped and sought the same thing.

Soon night would cover the world.

Daenerys

Daenerys was sitting on the cushions in her little tent that was erected each night for her on their “forced” march up to Winterfell. She had decided to move to a tent with her beloved and healed trusted confident. She wanted to be near her sweet Arya and have her trusted scribe nearby. Having the Direwolf and caracal in the tent added foot warming warmth. Now that Missandei had developed her ‘horse’ legs she was back to her normal cheerful self and wanted to be near her Queen. She and Arya were not lovers yet so she was not sacrificing anything. Damnit!

Daenerys had visions of her days back when she was Khaleesi of Khal Drogo’s Khalasar. She remembered fondly the harem she had formed. For a little while her thirteen and fourteen year self had thought she had the best of all worlds.

She had conquered and subsumed Drogo to her will and his Khalasar was following her will. She did not mind fucking him as long as he allowed her to mount her fillies at will. He had found it amusing how his wife was so enthusiastic in her bedding her handmaidens. That was a pleasant memory of her former “light of my life.” It had cost Daenerys nothing to give the Khal the platitudes he craved. It kept him under her sway and control. Daenerys had considered it a small price to pay in fucking Drogo and giving him sweet platitudes. It allowed her to have her harem.

He would call her his ‘star and moon’. She had said the words back. He was convinced she felt the same. Maybe in a way she did. He was, for a Dothraki, remarkably progressive. Now, Daenerys saw that in the end he was still limited in his thinking and world view. He did not have the ability to think outside the box. He was brawn and cunning but lacked the sheer intellect to break his cultural norms.
Daenerys realized now with more life experiences few were. Men rarely thought beyond their limits thinking brute force and traditions gave them their rights to lead nations and the hearth. Women were conditioned to be meek and raised to be subservient by family and tradition.

Daenerys Targaryen had broken those chains. She would lead her own life as she choose. She had met on one like herself on her conquests. The closest she had met were Tyrion Lannister, Olenna Tyrell and Eddard Stark. Each of them were still bound to old ways and could see only partially new paths but they were the most observant of their environment and willing to change to meet the new world that was forming. They were willing to forge destinies that few others would grasp for.

Daenerys grimaced. Eddard Stark had definitely forced a reality on her she would not have chosen. It had in the end been for the realm that he had played his Game of Thrones. What she admired about the man was that he would never have played this Game of Thrones if not for the need to confront the Ice King. The Game of Thrones was the antithesis of Eddard Stark and yet he had played it when he needed to unite the realm to his just cause.

In fact Eddard had played his Game of Thrones so well it had been Daenerys on the end of his marionette strings. She grimaced at that memory. Best to move on and make sure that never happened again the Queen groused to herself.

He had thought outside his box. He had been willing to move beyond his comfort zone. So many would not even conceive of the thought. Daenerys smirked to herself. In many ways she lived outside the box.

She controlled herself around her two companions. Missandei and Arya were animated chattering as they wove the Dothraki bells into her hair. She sat there luxuriating in the feel of their fingers running through her long tresses and the feel of their bodies pressed into hers. She loved the feel of the female body.

Missandei was a beautiful woman, but, it was Arya’s body that set her blood to simmering with repressed lust and raging fuck hunger for her young nubile body.

Men were not ugly or abhorrent to Daenerys. Khal Drogo had been a damn good looking man. Once he stopped treating her as a mare to fuck and produce a son he had proven a good lover. He had made her cum hard and scream to the Khalasar in her gut wrenching pleasure. Daario Naharis had been a good looking man if banal. He had been pleasing to look upon until he opened his mouth and the male ego tripe had started to spew. She had quickly lost interest in him. Daenerys had quickly lost interest in men totally.

It was her fillies fucking her relentlessly night after night that the Khalasar heard. They made her scream as she nearly lost her mind with pleasure. Her mouth, fingers and strap-on had made her mares wail in delight. The Khalasar would gather around her as she fucked her harem to exhaustion with her long thick strap-on cock. She had started to plant the notion then she now realized that it was she who would mount the world to the Dothraki.

It had angered her that society and politics kept fostering men on her. She had decided that she would not accept that fate again. She was Queen of half the known world for crying out loud. She had thought of marring someone like Loras or Renly for cover so they could all pursue their true romantic and lascivious interests behind the proverbial throne curtains.

On her journey, Daenerys had come to a new conclusion though. Fuck that! Maybe Tyrion was right. She would not deny herself true love now that it had appeared before her. Delivered to her by Eddard Stark. The man had sent his daughter as her royal hostage as an act of good faith. He could not have known of her homosexual desires so it was pure serendipity. He had sent her the perfect mate. Arya was pure contradiction in many ways but she was deep down so good and decent that Daenerys could not help but fall in love with her. The sheer audacity to fire arrows at her on the Iron Throne and then to punch her head nearly off her shoulders had made her fall in love with teenager on the spot she now knew.

She had meet Eddard and he was so good himself that she had hope that he would allow her to woo and win his daughter’s hand in marriage. She was becoming more and more sure that Arya played for her team. Didn’t she? But then maybe she didn’t. Arrggghhh! She would be sure she saw Arya looking at her with wanton desire out of the corner of her eye but when her head darted around to look harder all she saw was friendly comradery of two women who had quickly become besties. It was fucking maddening. Feeling hope and elation and then having it dashed with leaden reality.

Like now. She would have never guessed Missandei was as gay as they come. Daenerys was a little sheepish considering that she had never thought of her precious interpreter as anything other than a valued friend. To be truthful she had thought of Missandei as almost asexual. She had never shown any desire that Dany could remember until her mystery lover had made her appearance.

Daenerys was a little embarrassed to admit it to herself but she had found Missandei to be almost mousy. She had not caught her eye because she had never looked at her as just a bed partner to fuck and forget. She did not want a harem anymore. She simply had thought of Missandei as almost a blank board when it came to things sexual. No more.

Missandei had proven her young teenage self to be a woman of raging desires.

Her little girl had grown up. She spoke openly now of masturbating hard and repeatedly thinking of how she was going to fuck her dream lover. Daenerys mouth had nearly unhinged and fell off when Missandei had shown great knowledge in lesbian love making. She had not been embarrassed just shocked. Arya had been shocked and blushed heavily though. Daenerys had immediately picked up that Arya was not repulsed and in fact asked questions on technique and style while looking at her nervously. “What girl is not curious about such things Dany!” she had exclaimed. She fanned herself and claimed she had the vapors all the while asking for more details.

Details Missandei was more than happy to give to give those details as her body shivered and her eyes glittered with repressed lust. Missandei went into great details from the texts she had discovered from the lands of Yi Ti. She really loved one book called the Karma Sutra of Sapphic love. It had pages and pages of very detailed drawings. Daenerys was trying to figure out how to get that book! Purely for curiosity sake of course.

Daenerys was sure she had mastered all aspects of lesbian lovemaking but it would not hurt so compare experience with what was in those books that had Missandei all hot and bothered.

Daenerys saw that lust in Arya’s eyes. She knew it was in her eyes. Daenerys knew she had to grip her courage and make her play at Winterfell. She had to stop being a spineless shit. What did she have to worry? Only that Arya’s father was the one man outside her two generals who could gut her on his sword. Any sword duel with that man would be a dicey proposition at best. Damnit! Why couldn’t he be a wuss like Mace!

So here she sat while bells were woven into her hair. Daenerys had always been partial to the silver bells since they made her hair glow she thought. Also, she had not worn them all thinking that a victory such as conquering Astapor had only deserved one bell. When Arya heard the story and how all of Dany’s exploits that night and day she had told her “My gods Dany … you fucking kicked ass and kicked more ass … my gods that deserves twenty fucking bells!”

Now Dany had decided to start wearing more of her bells. She had too many really. If all were put into her hair she would be nothing but bells. No one would be able to see her hair! So she had decided on one hundred and forty-three bells. With consultations with Arya and Andi they could weave that many in and make her hair a vision of loveliness.

Damn she sometimes wished she was six foot six like Drogo. She needed a bigger head for more bells. With her tiny head she was maxed out hair wise for her bells godsdamnit! Daenerys was also finding out it took a lot of time to weave that many bells in her hair! Her scribe and hoped for soon to be lover patiently stitched the tiny eyelets to her hair with fine silk thread. The teenagers giggling and gossiping about who was fucking who (Oberyn figured prominently of course) and laughed at the antics of Oberyn and Nymeria or the barbs between the Baratheon brothers. Arya twittered how her father blanched when Oberyn went on about his previous night’s conquests and did he want to join him for tonight’s debauchery. Maybe learn some new techniques to pleasure Cat with.

Her father would always blanche and run away like a wolf with his tail tucked between his tail as if he had been scalded.

Suddenly, Andi stopped sewing in the bell she was putting in Daenerys hair. Missandei gasped. “I got a great idea Dany. Let’s make flowers out of these bells. We can make the petals out of the silver bells and use the gold, bronze and copper as the pistil and the stamen. Arya squealed in excitement. Daenerys evidently did not get a say in the manner. The girls were excited as they worked in a very animated manner. She could feel many bells being sowed in back to back in various angles. The girls worked to create a flower over each ear. The spare bells they formed ribbons of braided hair and bells pulled back with a tie wrap.

They had now finished and Arya handed her Queen a hand mirror while gnawing her lower lip.

Daenerys gasped at what she saw. My gods it was beautiful. Over her right ear was a resplendent rose with petals with gold pistil and copper stamen. Over her left ear was an orchid with silver petals and bronze stamen and pistil. They seemed to be almost real and the tinkling they made with her head movements were almost magical. Daenerys felt a lump in her throat at the love and thought put into the adornment of her head with her bells.

Daenerys let her thoughts drift on the progress of the North and South coming together. She had brought with them ravens to communicate back to King’s Landing to keep her small council and Tyrion and Olenna up to date with the latest developments. When Eddard had made contact with her and she finally had his pledge of allegiance the Queen had sent ravens to King’s Landing announcing this. She had also sent ravens to all the major Lord holds. She wanted all to know that the North and South were united.

She was elated to finally know with one hundred percent assuredness that Eddard was not a traitor. That would have been very depressing to the young Queen. She was sure that it was impossible for House Stark to even conceive such a thing. She had especially enjoyed sending ravens to Casterly Rock. Whatever nefarious plans that old fox Tywin may have been hatching had just gotten more complicated.

She had told all the houses that Westeros was united. Eddard was and forever more would be the Warden of the North. She had ordered that all the Lords receiving her ravens would send their ravens to their fellow Lords in their lands that pledged alliance to them. She knew that most of the lords, their heirs and knights were in the field but she wanted their whole houses to be united.

Daenerys had told Eddard that she would like to meet Edmure Tully and Jon Arryn as soon as possible if that was possible. Eddard had told them they had come to Winterfell with is departure to meet her. In case the meeting had gone badly they would have to decide how to respond to the unexpected situation.
Dany knew she would have her meeting soon. She wanted to let them know of the traitors and to gauge the men. She knew they had sterling reputations but wanted to meet the great lords of the mighty houses of Tully and Arryn.

Daenerys had fretted about her lack of reconnaissance to Arya, Missandei and her trusted generals Syrio and Barristan. She normally relied on her dragons but with the attack on the Blood Phoenix she would not have her dragons flying over the lands beyond the wall unless they were together and protecting each other. This limited her ability to learn as much as she normally wanted of her foes.
She had her dragons fly over the Ice King at the Fist of the First Men several times a day. She varied the times her dragons always riding high up in the sky. She would then have them skip a day to throw off any routine the Ice King may pick up on. She would then let her dragons fly off to come back South of the Wall. It was a short flight for a dragon.

What she saw heartened her. The enemy was gathering in one place and not marching forward it seemed.

Eddard had told her that Jon’s wives had been spying on them for months. When he told her how she had to admire both their courage and resourcefulness. To walk again and again in the camp of their enemy had been so brave. She would have to thank them yet again for their bravery and service to the realm.

She had heard that they wished to live in the Sandhills they had traversed through. They wanted to help preserve and restore the wildlife that man had decimated. The instant Daenerys heard this she knew she had a new priority in her kingdom. She would do all in her power to help man and nature to live as one.

She had told her truest confidents her concerns over now not having her dragons to fly over the lands like she normally did. Her dragons had to focus on beyond the Wall. They feed and rested. Flying so high did drain them of strength. Even their heat at that height would in time dissipate. She asked for ideas. Missandei, Syrio and Barristan could not help. Arya paused and then spoke up softly.

“I can use Nymeria Dany.” I can communicate with her and convey our need. Nymeria can communicate to the wolves in the land around her. I will let her run free to the North. She will meet the local wolves and those wolves will run to their pack mates. They find ways beyond the Wall.
How we have never figured out. With Nymeria’s will the packs will declare a truce. I can have them watch for us. It is imprecise. The wolves are free and wild but all wolves bow down before Nym.”

“Do you have to fully warg into Nymeria to see and hear what the wolves do?”

“Yes for that kind of information I would. I can get glimpses but when I fully warg into Nymeria I have her thoughts and instincts. When they communicate to her they will be communicating to me.”

“It will leave me totally vulnerable … will you watch over me Dany?” Arya asked Daenerys softly.
Daenerys felt a rush of warmth with the trust and desire to have Dany look over her.”

That dusk as camp was made Arya had got on her knees and spoke softly to Nymeria as they pressed foreheads together. Soon the wolf was racing off into the gloom heading north. The direwolf howled and a distant mournful wail answered back.

Late that night and for the next two nights near midnight Arya laid down in Dany’s tent with her head resting in Dany’s lap. She relaxed and her body went limp. Her eyes slowly closed and Arya appeared to go into a deep sleep. If Dany had come upon Arya like this she would have feared she had slipped into a coma. Arya’s body would twitch and jerk randomly. Daenerys watched her love’s eyes roll back into her head several times. Her limbs would thrash at times like she was trying to run like her wolf.

After several hours she would gently shake Arya out of her trance as they had agreed. Arya would slowly sit up and Dany gave her water for her parched throat. Arya told her that the wolves now had all the roads observed. On the second night Arya had seen through her direwolf’s eyes a group of northern pack men riding south with the banners of the fish and the falcon. House Tully and House Arryn was heading south.

On the fourth day the wolf returned. Dany would have her meeting two days out from Winterfell at the pace they were setting. The column heading South was moving at normal march speed.

Now Dany was sitting down with her handmaiden and soon to be wife (she was freely saying that to herself now. Daenerys always imagined victory in her mind and then made reality match her dreams and desires) as they chattered and talked about Missandei’s mystery lover and how hot Arya thought that was. Yes. Daenerys had rising hope.

Daenerys felt like a hedonistic cat being stroked as the two beautiful women ran their fingers through her hair lifting it and shifting it as they held up the gold, bronze and copper bells. She let them stitch the bells into her hair since they were receiving so much enjoyment from it. They were definitely getting faster at it. The soft tinkle chimes soothing to the ears. The girls would select a bell and a location and they would grab a needle and the fine silk thread. The two women would work as team one holding the bell in place and the other running thread through the eyelet and sewed the bell with the silk thread woven into her tresses to hold the bell in place. When the bells were to be removed small scissors with long blades would be run into the eyelet and carefully cut the threads to remove the bells.

In another forty-five minutes the last of the bells had been woven in. One hundred and forty-three bells weaved into her hair. She looked in the mirror and again gasped at the beauty of the flower creations they had sown into her hair. She had already decided that this was to be her “look” when in full regal mode. She stood and smiled hearing a symphony with each movement of her head of various notes of a sweet tinkled melody. It was a long tiring effort but it was worth it. She wanted to impress the Lords of the High Houses and their vassel lords of the North. She left her tent and put her sword on her back as did Arya.

Daenerys saw the admiring looks of the men as they again saw the beautiful flowers woven in her hair. Daenerys had learned early on to use her innate beauty to benefit her. She was beautiful and would use it help her achieve her ends.

Eddard and her Lords were a horse. They then lined up on the King’s Highway. Daenerys looked at the standards of the Lords aligned with her. Eddard waited patiently.

He had come to her the night before. He wanted to repeat his act of obedience to her before the other High Lords of the Riverlands and the Arryn. He felt it necessary to show her the respect she deserved. He wanted to show all again that she was the true Queen of Westeros and he but the Warden of the North by her leave.

Daenerys had refused. She had made clear in her scrolls sent out that all had been forgiven. It had been a simple misunderstanding and all were in alignment now.

They waited and soon in the distance Daenerys could see the host of the North coming down the King’s Landing. The breeze had picked up from the north. The cold wind gusting with sudden breaths. Her hair was caught in the gusts the light bells not heavy enough to weigh her hair down. The tinkling of her hair filled the morning air. The flowers created by Missandei and Arya glittering in the sunlight. She felt like a faery from legend.

The men came closer now. She could see their large banners now of the houses as they approached. It seemed like the stuff of legends. The Lords and their knights had dressed in their plate armor that had burnished to reflections of the sun in the bright morning light. The angled sun striking the metal and sending off wild flashes and spangles of light.

Daenerys had always been a little girl when it came to seeing knights in their plate armor of burnished metal or enamel paint. She herself eschewed such metal. She wore her dark flat black dragon chain mail. She knew that the contrast with her pale skin and white hair made for a brilliant contrast. White and black in conflict and in harmony on her person. She knew the effect was enhanced by the bells in her hair catching and throwing off the sun in bursts of colored light.

The party advancing down the road was closer now. She looked at the banners whipping in the breezes. She saw the banner of House Tully with its leaping silver trout on a field of blue and mud red. The breeze actually had the fish seeming to leap out the water. She saw off to the side and behind the sigil of House Blackwood. Their standard a flock of ravens surrounding a black shield charged with a dead weirwood, on a scarlet field.

She had to smile at the flag of House Piper with a pink dancing maiden in a swirl of white silk, on a blue field. Daenerys leered at the pretty lass. She liked that house!

She saw the standard of House Arryn with its sky-blue falcon soaring against a white moon, on a sky-blue field. She knew the sigils but had not as yet learned the history of the symbols. She saw the flag of House Waynwood and could not help wonder why it was a broken black wheel, on a green field.

The Queen saw two standards that made her blood boil. The flag of House Bolton with its red flayed man on pink de sang. She saw the standard of the Frey’s. The two blue towers, united by a bridge, on a silver-grey field whipping in the breeze. Daenerys carefully schooled her features. The Houses had not yet committed treason. She wanted to catch them as much as possible in the act. They were a festering wound that she would make sure to cauterize from the Riverlands and the North.

As the knights and Lords came closer she inspected their armor. The armor was as varied as the personalities that wore the armor. Some of the armor was plain and almost drab while others were as colorful as a royal garden. Some knights had on heavy plate armor while others only had chainmail and some with a hybrid of both. Some wanted strength and protection while others valued speed and quickness.

Some wore full helms and others half helms while some chose to not wear any at all. She liked looking at some of the ornamentation on the helms. She saw various angry predators in repose of attack. Mauling bears and pouncing lions. She saw raging bulls and racks of rutting stags and elks. Some were of fanciful demons.

Much of the plate armor was burnished to a glittering shine. Others had painted their armor in bright colors of enamel paint. Some with images of the sun or various animals. Some of the paint was in colored patterns denoting their houses or personal attributes.

Daenerys had spent much time learning the meanings of such things being fascinated by the history and meanings of shapes and symbols. These schemes were on both armor and shield. She looked from mounted rider to mounted rider seeing what each man’s armor said about the man. What colors and devices they wore on their person and shields.
The queen knew that the helmet represented Wise Defense and the heart represented Sincerity or Charity. The crown was Authority while a Tower represented Society or Wealth.

She looked at the lines on the plate or shield. Zigzag Lines represented Fire; Wavy Line represented Sea or Water; Bumpy Line represented Earth or Land and Crenulated Lines represented a Town or Wall. The Diagonal Cross (Saltire) meant Resolve while Horizontal Stripes (Fess) showed one had Honor. The Vertical Stripe (Pale) denoted Military Strength but Diagonal Stripes (Bend) showed that the knight or lord was renowned for Defense. The Angled Stripe - (Chevron) was Protection or Faithful Service.

Even the colors had meaning. The color red stood for love and emotion; white peace and innocence; yellow happiness and energy; blue tranquility and calmness; green freshness and vitality; orange joy, creativity, enthusiasm and even revolutionary ideas; purple passion and wealth and last black darkness, mystery, power and strength. With herself it also meant “I kick ass!”

The combination of colors was dizzying in possible meanings. She would save that for another day. She smiled at how some riders had no capes and some with shoulder capes adorned with animal fur. For some reason she thought it made them appear feminine. It seemed more a thing for the royal court and not the battlefield. Some knights wore long flowing capes of heavy velvet that flowed off the horses haunches almost down to the ground. The added fifteen pounds a waste she thought.

One man’s armor totally caught her attention and disgusted her. Roose Bolton. She grimly remembered her father’s past with the father of Eddard. She shuddered but could not stop that thought seeing Roose Bolton in dragon fire being roasted in his own armor. He had on a suit of dark grey plate armor over a quilted tunic of blood-red leather. Its rondels were shaped like human heads whose mouths were open in agony. His helmet had streamers of red silk which fluttered in the wind. With all this Roose was wearing his usual pink woolen cloak embroidered with droplets of blood.

He was totally unremarkable as a physical specimen. He was of average size with a soft and hairless body. Roose’s face was plain, beardless and ordinary. The only thing Daenerys found notable was his eyes. They were eerie, they were pale and strange as two white moons.

She hated this man intensely. She looked over at Edwyn Frey. Edwyn was a pale, slender man, with a pinched nose and lank dark hair. Daenerys folder on the man said his attitude was cold, according to Ser Daven Lannister, he is full of hate.

They would both receive the justice they so richly deserved. She would let Eddard and Edmure dispense justice if the men survived the coming battle. If they happened to get in the way of her shining sword then she would just have to apologize to Eddard and Edmure for robbing them of the satisfaction.

The two parties met and salutations were exchanged. She passed among the new party tilting her head in acknowledgement with the lords showing her obeisance. She liked their politeness and direct eye contact. She had become an excellent judge of character and liked what she saw.

With two notable exceptions. Edwyn was sullen and he radiated off an angry air. Roose looked her directly in the eye and talked to her in a thin whispery voice. He was silky in his demeanor but her skin felt like it was covered in the leeches that Roose was said to favor. The man literally made her skin crawl.

She had a parlay on the side of the road. They had dismounted and the Lords and Knights formed a three quarter circle around their Queen. She told them that they now understood the full gravitas of the situation and that the forces of the South would be marching straight to the Wall. There would be no laying siege to any city of the North. She would have her blocking forces now move to the Wall too.

The united forces of Westeros would meet and fight the Ice King. They would stand united and defeat their common enemy. She looked at Roose out of the corner of her eye. Most men would let their faces slip at times with a tick of sly humor or show a contempt to the proceedings. Roose was good. He seemed the focused loyal subject.

It only took Daenerys and hour to give her speech and ask if all were clear on their stated goals. The meeting broke up. She asked to speak to the Lords of the Riverlands and the Arryn as the Titular Lords of their provinces.

The rest of the party was now stripping off their armor to have the baggage train pick up and take back to Winterfell. One only wore such heavy armor in battle or ceremonial situations as this one.

She had huddled around her Eddard, Edmure and Jon. “Keep your voices down and do not show any reactions. Do I make myself clear?” She looked at Edmure and Jon and they nodded in agreement.

She then told them of the treachery of House Bolton and House Frey. She saw the raw anger blazing out of Edmure’s blue eyes. He cursed under his breath and gripped the pummel of his sword. He wanted to exact vengeance now! Eddard told him to control himself. Edmure was angry that the men were not to be executed on the spot.

Eddard had to remind him several times that they needed more proof of these explosive claims. Any action now would result in unnecessary bloodshed. The House of Bolton and Frey would rise up if their Lords were assaulted. Daenerys was very thankful that Eddard was the Warden of the North and not Edmure.

The Queen laid out her plans for the traitors houses. Edmure was still sullen at having to wait but Jon Arryn whistled softly. “I like it. Give them the rope and let them fashion the noose to be fitted around their own necks.”

They then disbanded. Soon Daenerys and the Lords who would be joining her on her fast march North were ready.

The fast march to Winterfell resumed.
Winterfell - Part II

Daenerys / Margaery / Arya

Daenerys

The day had finally arrived. She was about to arrive at Winterfell. She had been getting more and more excited at the prospect. She had been so full of throbbing energy and possibilities when she had flown into King’s Landing and disposed the Baratheons without bloodshed. She had achieved her dreams since they had awakened in the Dothraki Sea in what seemed like a different life time ago.

She was of course the same woman but in others way she was completely different. She had been sold off as a sex slave basically by her brother to procure him an army to invade Westeros. His dreams had far exceeded his grasp. She had entered the grass sea without any desires beyond to stay safe and sound at the house with red door and a lemon tree in the yard. She never wanted the life she was thrown into. She wanted to remain the small girl with no burdens placed upon her. She had wanted to hold onto her innocence.

Of course that had not happened. How she had changed.

Her brother’s dream had become hers. Khal Drogo had thought he or his soon would become the stallion who would mount the world. Both were long dead and riding the skies on their mighty steeds. It was not Drogo or his son that would be the stallion. It was she Daenerys Targaryen that was the stallion. She was so much more than a stallion. She was a dragon. She was magic reborn. She had dreamed to conquer her homeland. That she had done. Done so without bloodshed.

She had shed plenty of blood in Essos. She had conquered that continent from the land of Yi Ti east. She now held sway over all that continent from the Dothraki Sea to the Free Cities. She had become mightier than any other Valyrian before her. She was mightier than any ruler before in Westeros.

Others had the dream initially. Only she remained. She had taken all their dreams into herself and forged her own desire for greatness and destiny. The others did not have the reach or grasp to achieve the greatness they sought. She had taken their dreams and made them her own. She had both the reach and the strength to grasp ahold of what they could only dream of. She had conquered half of Essos. She had made Westeros her own. House Targaryen once more ruled Westeros. It was her rule and guidance that would lead her ancestral homeland.

She had far exceeded her brother or first husband’s visions. She was not only Queen of Westeros, she was the Khal that ruled the Dothraki Sea. All the major Khalasars were now hers. A few small rouge Khalasars still ran free on the periphery of the grass sea. One day she would bring them to heel. It had not been a Stallion that subdued and united the Dothraki. It had been the Mare Who Mounted the World that conquered them.

She had conquered the West and the East where no one had before. That had not been enough for Daenerys Targaryen and her ambition. Daenerys had conquered all the City States between Qarth and Braavos. Not one city state had not been conquered or surrendered in place. She had taken the continent. Nothing was not hears from Vars Dothrak to Western shores of Westeros.

She had made allies of the Summer Islands and the lands of Yi Ti. They had no slavery in their lands. She had no reason to conquer them. They had seen her greatness and aligned themselves with the Dragon Queen.

Never had such a homogeny been created. Daenerys had made herself into the stuff of legends. She knew the bards would sign of her in future ages. She was not finished. She had taken what was hers. Now she had a vision to fulfill. She would remake the world into a better place.

Now she was flying into Winterfell. It was already part of her kingdom but she felt a buzz running through her body and spirit. Her flying into King’s Landing had been the restoration of throne. It had been the culmination of her dreams of conquest. Her flying into Winterfell was much more intimate and personal. This was about matters of the heart. This was about love. About a lovely comely wolf lass. A woman she would one day soon marry.

It was there she hoped to show the world the woman she would make her Queen. She had already found the girl of her dream. The girl had come to her with arrows and her fist Daenerys thought with a smile. The “wild wolf” she heard the men of the North call Arya when they thought no one was listening. Arya was going to be her Queen. She just had to be. It was time for Daenerys to claim what was hers by right. She had been thinking deeply of all the interactions between her and Arya and was now surer than ever that her feelings were reciprocated.

She squirmed as her indecisiveness again tried to jump up but she tamped it down. She was tired of being indecisive. She would trust her instincts. She had been sorely tempted to take Arya in her tent but wanted to have their first time in Winterfell now that they were almost at the home of Arya’s birth. With her new found confidence in her judgement Daenerys felt her blood run hot for Arya. But she would not take her love in a war tent. She would take Arya in her ancestral home of Winterfell.

Arya just had to love her like she loved the girl. She could feel it. She just had too. It was not her imagination and hope. She would no longer doubt those side glances she had seen from Arya. She would no longer doubt the touches and glances they shared that said so much more than familiar friendship.

Her father would just have to grant me her hand in marriage. He was wise and compassionate. Surely he could overcome any latent homophobia he would have. He seemed like a man who could rise above himself. Surely he would grant his permission for them to wed. He was a man that loved his children dearly. He could see that in the way he interacted with Arya.

They had had another conversation last night. He had again come to her saying it was important that he bent the knee before her at Winterfell. She had again informed her Steward of the North that once was enough.

She told him she would make her own appearance at Winterfell. It would get everyone’s attention. One advantage of Eddard being isolated in the North was that he was not yet familiar with all her signatures. “I will make an entrance that will captivate. We will meet together before your gates as Queen to loyal Warden. Your Lords know of your innocence and now the Lords of the South do too.”

“Innocence?” Eddard had said strangely. “Another said that to me recently. She was a strange woman. I doubt she was even human. Maybe a fairy. She did not think like you and me I think. How do you say I am innocent?”
Daenerys had smiled at her Warden of the North. “You are free of the avarice and lust for power that fills must great men and women. I am guilty of it. I work to control it. You simply do not have it. Thus, your innocence.”

Eddard shook his not sure he really believed what his Queen was telling him.

“I think you will see my point in my introduction to Winterfell. It is too bad about your fear of great heights.”

Eddard had grimaced. “I have gotten used to standing on the wall of castles. The thick walls help I think. I sometimes think I might pass out standing on my toes.”

Daenerys had looked at him askance. Was that a joke? Naawwww.

Daenerys was feeling more and more comfortable with Eddard. She had come to realize that all the Great Lords were special men except for Tywin Lannister and Euron Greyjoy. She had not found near this many good leaders in Essos. The men she had allied with in the South had been conniving and sometimes venial with each other but she found a basic honesty to them that was refreshing.

Eddard Stark was a paragon though. She had found her equal in moral rectitude and cunning. Her face grimaced at their finished Game of Thrones. She had lost that game. If he had been after her throne … she did not want to think of what might have happened.

The man had no desire for the power of the Iron Throne. He was more than content to be Warden of the North. She had the impression he would in the not too great future be giving that title to his eldest son.

She was not sure she would accept that. She needed his wisdom and firm guidance controlling the North of her far flung kingdom.

Arya was talking and laughing with Renly and Oberyn. They were both pleasure hounds and liked each other’s company. She saw Stannis talking with Mace and his sons. She cocked her head sure she could hear him grinding his teeth. She loved the purity of Arya’s laugh. It was like the girl herself. Arya was in so many ways still an innocent even though she was most definitely a grown woman.

She had first thought the girl was not interested in her or women even. But with months and her rising confidence Dany knew that Arya was just not worldly enough yet to go for what she wanted. She wants me Daenerys told herself. It was not arrogance just her resurgent confidence. Arya’s glances and touches told Daenerys the truth. She was tired of hiding from those truths.

Daenerys had been reflecting back on her interactions with Arya and was now sure she understood what had separated them. Much of it was her own blame Daenerys knew. She was the “woman” with Arya being the “child”. It should have been incumbent upon her to lead Arya to her bed. To seduce the teen who she was now certain hungered for her touch. She was not indeed a “woman of the world”. She had partaken of the sweet pleasures of the female body. She had become a master a plucking the female body to the heights of ecstasy.

It was now time to take those techniques and talents to her sweet wolf in their bed of amore. She would rock Arya’s world to the core of her very soul. She would blow Arya’s mind with overwhelming pleasure. The two would bind their bodies and souls together with the pleasures of the flesh. It was possible to love without the physical of course but the only way two could be become one was with great sex.
Daenerys shivered with her raging hormones. Yes. In Winterfell the Wolf would lie with the Dragon.

Arya had not had the confidence to show her true feelings to her Queen. The Targaryen could understand that. She knew she exuded worldliness and had been so forceful in her conquests of Esso. Yes, it was incumbent for her to lead her Arya to her bed, her loving arms. It was Daenerys that must lead Arya to her bed and to have Arya become her consort.

It seemed like another life ago when she herself had been like Arya. A young innocent unsure of herself and how to take what she wanted. She had been forced to travel paths she would never have chosen for herself. She had had to overcome so much. In many ways her sexuality was almost forced upon her being sold off to Khal Drogo as payment for an army. She had had to grow up fast.

Her Arya had been shielded and protected by Eddard Stark. She had not pried but it was obvious that the father had protected his daughter as much from her own mother as anyone else. Daenerys would have wished for such a father. She had thought on that. She would have to have refused such succor. It was only by going through the fire that she could become what she had become. It had been in the furnace of a cruel fate that forged her into Valyrian steel.

She knew she had one more slight hurdle to leap. Arya was confident in herself in one way. She was confident with her swordsmanship and her bowman ship. Arya had arrived to Dany as a bowman of supreme skill already. With the guardianship of Syrio and Barristan they had taken the raw ore of Arya Stark and molded it into unbreakable Valyrian steel. Arya was now on of the greatest swordsman in all of Westeros and Essos. Daenerys knew she was good but she was not quite that good. Arya had transcended herself. She had become some rare and precious blade when it came to the skills of swordsmanship.

Arya could hold her own when it came to giving shade and coming back with quick rejoinders. The girl able to converse with both the high and the low. She had the common touch that so many sought and never achieved. She did not have to pretend in her concern for all of the realm. She came by it naturally.

The one thing Arya did not have confidence in was her own beautiful body. Several times Daenerys had heard Arya mumble about her flat chest or lack of hips. Daenerys had tried to reassure her that she was indeed beautiful. One did not need large breast and ass to be considered beautiful. Compared to Arianne and Obara Daenerys was downright anemic compared to them. It did not bother Daenerys one wit. She was beautiful and knew it. So was Arya. Daenerys just needed the girl to be able to see it.

She had seen Arya naked many times now looking in her carefully positioned small mirror. She had felt guilty at first but she reasoned a girl had to do what a girl had to do. What Daenerys had seen in that mirror made her core clench in wanton need and her pussy flood with fuck nectars. It had made her masturbate to soul stunning orgasms that threatened to rip her cunt inside out.

She had loved everything about Arya. Her body was so fucking hot to Daenerys. She had loved many women with the classic hourglass shape. Women with flaring hips and large bosom. She loved them of course. They had been sweet.

But there was something about a warrior’s body that called to the marital spirit in Daenerys. When Arya had disrobed and reveled her muscular body to Daenerys she felt like her pussy was going to spasm itself inside out. She had to grip the edge of the dresser many times as her body folded over with her stomach contracting so hard as her womb flipped deep in her belly. Her body literally rocking with each pulse of her pussy. Her body shaking with her want for Arya.
The wolf girl’s legs were thick with muscle. Her calves so developed that it made Daenerys wet. Her belly was flat and ripped with a muscles forming a washboard. Dany had moaned softly with thoughts of rubbing her pussy on that hard rippled stomach to orgasm. Her arms when fully exposed left the pale Valyrian almost panting. The way the muscles flowed from wrist to elbow and from elbow to shoulder.

Then there was Arya’s shoulders. They were thick for such a small frame girl. She had developed trapezes and laterals that gave Arya just that hint of triangle of her upper body. Daenerys loved muscles on a woman. Ayra had that in spades! Her back when she went to walk into the royal bath suite had made Daenerys nipples and clit hammer Daenerys to a near swooning state. The way her back muscles played and her ass cheeks switched with each step had the Queen’s mouth watering. That was her muscles. That had setup Daenerys to be nearly stunned by Arya’s nipples and vulva. Her pussy was big and a nice juicy slit with her inner lips all bloomed out her slit all brown and usually glistening. Daenerys knew she was stimulated by hard physical training and so was Arya. She loved how Arya must have followed her ritual and now shaved her pussy smooth. It made her inner lips so prevalent as they bloomed out her slit. She had a prominent clitoral hood that rode high and proud and was covered in folds of skin but yet her clit peaked through. It all made Daenerys nearly swoon.

Then there was Arya’s nipples. The girl did not really have breast. She had just the slightest of hillocks that was maybe a quarter inch up off her chest. The rest was all thick pulpy nipples. In the middle of their sparring Daenerys could see through Arya’s thin top how erect they became in her exertions and excitement of hard training. Her nipples engorged to thick plums that were about to burst. They swelled up and capped her breast several inches and were so large and pulpy looking.

Daenerys knew they would feel so good in her mouth all engorged as she vacuumed sucked and see-sawed her teeth into that pulpy sweetness.

Yes. Arya’s body was simply fucking hot. She was a warrior and yet all woman. She was perfect to Daenerys. She wanted Arya desperately. That had been Daenerys ogling Arya. The Queen surreptitiously looking at the body of her royal hostage.

Of course the shoe had been on the other foot. The royal hostage had been doing some spying of her own. Daenerys had caught onto Arya’s naughty warging with Nymeria. The Queen had an affinity for animals. She had quickly deduced that her royal hostage was hiding in the Direwolf when the great beast began to visit her chambers at night. It had been too good a possibility to pass up. Daenerys had begun to masturbate in front of the Direwolf. She had fucked herself to near exhaustion night after night in front of Nymeria before she let the great beast out of her chambers.

Daenerys did not consider herself necessarily vain. She knew she was beautiful but did not preen or spend time in front of the mirror. That had never stopped the young woman from using her wily charms to help her achieve her goals. Her goals with Arya were simple. Make the girl fall in love with her and then bed the girl.

She had fun in King’s Landing working to achieve those goals. She knew she was being spied on by Arya and used that knowledge. She knew that the girl may only be a voyeur who loved watching an act of sex. She did not mind watching women and men couple when she was part of the Khalasar. Hot sex was hot sex.

What made it better was when she discovered that when warged into an animal the person became immobile. Daenerys could imagine the heat that must have filled Arya’s body with hot need. The need to relieve the pressure from what she was seeing. Arya was young, vital and strong. She must be a horny girl. What girl wasn’t? Daenerys could not wait to have Arya in her bed and watch her new love fuck herself to wailing, screaming orgasms.

Daenerys just knew that Arya had the kind of orgasms she herself had. The young Valyrian was a screamer. The Dothraki women never hide their pleasure when fucking before the Khalasar. They would wail and scream their heads off. She always smiled remembering seeing those hot blooded women’s ankles kicking wildly over their stallion’s asses if on the bottom or wildly bucking and jackknifing when riding their stallion’s cowgirl.

That was how she hoped Arya cummed. Somehow Daenerys was sure that Arya was that kind of woman. That in her bed she would be screaming her head off in orgasm and flying all around their bed or furs like a fish out of water.

Knowing Arya was watching her masturbate night after night made it easier to spy on the Stark girl. It was just turnabout. Right?

Arya had grown more with their awkward dance. The girl was slowly loosening up and letting her true hot sexual nature slip out around her Queen. She started to hear Arya take advantage of the warm running water when she bathed in Daenerys royal quarters. Maybe the girl had discovered the advantage of hot running water under pressure. She would hear Arya splashing more and more wildly. Daenerys had excellent hearing. Hearing Arya’s half strangled wails of ecstasy were definitely intoxicating. She would here the water splashing out the sunken bath and splashing on the tiled steps. She felt too unsure spying on the girl to make a move on Arya at those moments.

She would have died from embarrassment if she went into the bathing quarters to fuck Arya and then been rebuffed. To offer herself and find out that Arya was masturbating to visions of some fucking odious man. No that vision would not work at all. Daenerys could maybe handle Arya masturbating to the vision of some other woman but not a man. That would kill the young Queen.

Daenerys had come to realize that Arya was probably throttled in her own desires for her Queen’s body knowing she was spying on supposed innocent Queen. Arya being an innocent probably felt a great sense of shame spying on Daenerys like she had been with Nymeria. She was too innocent to grasp the idea that the woman she was spying on knew this. The Valyrian was so blatant in her obvious stripping down and Jilling off she at first wondered how Arya could not see that Daenerys wanted to be watched by her.

Then she had started to realize that Arya was an innocent in the ways of amore and love. Daenerys would smile evilly thinking of the two of them spying on each other. Their masturbating while thinking of the other. Daenerys was more than ready to stop masturbating and start fucking! She was sure that Arya was as well. She just had togirl the hell up and take what was right before her.

Daenerys snorted at the thought. Both of them were being bad little girls. They were both too naughty and to honorable. That was going to end soon.

Daenerys had to show Arya just how hot she was. Daenerys had been right about Arya’s nipples. Several times she had spied Arya’s nipples after Jilling off under the water faucet. Arya had come out of the bath chambers confident Daenerys would keep her honor and not turn to look. All the while her Queen was spying on her with her mirror.

Daenerys had nearly cum seeing Arya’s still fully engorged nipples from her just finished orgasm(s). The girl would look at her making sure Dany was not looking at her. Arya would twist and pull on her spongy, rubbery plum nipples. Her face slashing with hard pleasure and her breath gagging out clenched teeth. Several times she had watched Arya cup her hands and strike her nipples hard pounding them into her chest pulping them into her ribcage. The look of shocking pleasure and how Arya’s body folded over as she sat or stood up from the pleasure had made Daenerys pussy gush fuck nectars all over her mound and inner thighs.

This had told the Queen Arya liked hard sex. So did the Queen. Daenerys could not wait to pulp Arya’s nipples and have Arya throttle and pound Daenerys own tits into Daenerys ribcage. Daenerys wanted to fuck Arya hard and long.

Daenerys mind was hooked on boobs. Her mouth watered to have them. She saw those sweet delectable morsels in her dreams. Arya’s nipples were indeed like plums on her barely their breast that just rose off her chest the slightest fraction of an inch. The rest were nipples that bulged up nearly two inches all bulbous and dark brown with blood rush. When not excited her nipples were light brown with light brown nipples half buried in the thick pulpy areolas.

Daenerys mouth watered thinking about them now. She would suck and teeth those divine teats. She would roll them and mash them with her palms and hard squeeze with her fingers that itched to love the delicious bulbs of perfection.

After Arya’s little forays in the sunken tub or clawed tub masturbating had shown Dany something else. She had seen Arya’s cute fat pussy before sex. When Arya came out of the bathroom suite drying her hair now safe in the supposed knowledge that her Queen was not avidly spying on her she let her pussy be on full display. A pussy that was extremely happy.

Arya’s cunt would be all swollen and glistening with fuck nectars. Her pussy so wet looking even if dried off. Her inner lips all engorged out her slit and hanging down. She had long inner lips that made Dany’s mouth water with the need to suck and torment those lips. The girl’s pussy would be so red from arousal and blood rush. Her twat so lovely. Her inner lips medium to darker brown. Her clitoral hood all wrapped in folds but her excited clit still hard. All whitish pink and rock hard. That sweet clt all jutting out its sheath all shiny and begging to be sucked off to yet another orgasm.

That clit had Daenerys mesmerized. She would hurry to the bath suite and fuck herself to soul crushing orgasms fighting her need to scream by nearly swallowing her tongue. Then the need to not nearly flip out of the sunken basin had her limbs clenched to the sides of her body as her toes curled painfully and her fingers clawed into her thighs. Her suppressing her natural body’s desire to scream and wildly flip and jackknife made the orgasms so intense in their own manner.

She had been sure her eyeballs would pop out her head as her cunt tore itself inside out scalding her soul and brain with pure fucking bliss thinking of going down on Arya’s sweet pussy and hot asshole. She really, really needed to have Arya.

She had denied herself long enough. She would now let the confidence she normally felt win out and take her wolf. It was time.

Daenerys would make Arya realize just how fucking hot she was. She would have Arya soon loving her own body as her Queen ravaged that body.

The Queen knew once she ripped away the veils of self-deceptions that they entwined themselves in they would come together and simply ravish each other. Their love for each other would find perfect expression.

She just had to get them to Winterfell and a chance to be alone. She would confess all to her Arya and she in return would confess her love to Daenerys. It was written. It was almost prophesized she thought. It had a nice ring to it. The prophecy she had created for her and her wolf: And the Dragon shall lie with wolf.

It was time. The time for reflection had passed for now. Daenerys called her dragons. They were only three hours out from Winterfell. She had instructed her sons to circle wide and come to her from the South. She wanted her arrival to be a surprise as she came up over the horizon.

Her sons had been watching the Ice King for weeks now. He was obviously gathering his forces at the Fist of the First men. He was cautious by nature by all reports. Her reconnaissance with her high flying dragons bore those reports out. He was gathering his forces and milling around aimlessly like he had for years in the far North. He still had the same proclivities. She had time to orderly march her forces north to the wall to join Eddard’s forces already marshalled there. She could afford to leave the Ice King unwatched for a day. His forces were slow moving at their best speed. The true dead could only shamble forward at their best effort.

Also, by gathering what was obviously the vast bulk of his army he made it clear what his target was. The wall was his target and Eddard and herself knew it would be Castle Black where the attack would occur. True the Fist of the First of was to the west near the Milkwater River. To come down the river basin would make sense in many ways. But it had one main drawback. His forces would be open to the sky and her dragons. No the best course would be to move through the haunted forest to come east and south under cover of the forest canopy.

The Ice King did not want to roll the defenses up along the Wall. That icy hoary host would not want to waste time rolling up the defenses of the wall from the Shadow Tower. Daenerys was sure that was not the Ice King’s goal. He intended to smash the traditional seat of power of the Night’s Watch. Legend had it that Azor Ahai slew the Ice King’s body eight thousand years ago on the spot that Castle Black had been erected when the Wall was first being raised.

He could not refuse that siren call.

She heard her travel companions getting excited. Her dragons had appeared on the horizon their wings beating hard and coming in low and fast. She saw that they were flying in a loose triangle with Drogon in the lead and Viserion and Rhaegal on each wing off fifty feet. They were flying over the grasslands and few low trees in their flight path.

The sun was out and the light glinted off the highlights of her dragons. Spangles of red off Drogon’s black body, the hint of bronze off Rhaegal’s green body and, finally, the gold bursts of light from Viserion’s body made the eye shine and face smile. The dragons flying fast and furious to come to their mother’s beckoning. She heard the Lords of the North excitedly talking and they were pointing to the black comet and glowing white and green stars on his wingtips coming low and fast.

Daenerys had definitely formed the opinion that they were indeed showoffs now. The Queen smiled. Her dragons were showoffs and relished any time they could show off their might and agility. When she had first sent out her summons her dragons had been flying high up in the sky lazily flying the thermals like the condors making slow circles below them.

This was not how they were flying in now. She had not asked them to fly in like this. They had been at fifty feet to keep from having to juke up over heavy cover of trees but the final distance between them and their group was only flatlands.

Her sons were being ostentatious. They kept lowering their flight path to now their wings were just stopping over the ground they were rushing over with each fast wingbeat. Their legs tucked to their bodies for aerodynamics but their mighty claws still only feet from the ground. She chuckled seeing the Lords and Knights getting agitated with some horses beginning to scream in terror and fighting their own frightened masters.

The grass underneath her beasts were like seas of writhing vipers in the wild whipping air currents the dragon wings stirred up. A host of dirt devils kicked up into the air trailing wildly behind the mighty beasts. Daenerys and Arya marveled at their beauty. The way their bodies undulated slightly up and down as their wings pinioned to drive their large mighty bodies forward. Their necks fully extended their massive heads like arrowhead on longbow shafts.

At the last moment the dragons gained twenty feet of attitude. RROOOAARRRRRRR! ROOAAARRRRR! RRRRRROOOAARRRRRR! Three mighty dragon bugles filled the air as her dragons roared overhead. Men were cursing their bucking horses. Even her Lords of the South were wide eyed and fighting their horses. A hurricane of wind buffeted all. Flags and capes were sent into wild dances like writhing serpents. Horses cantered under the gusts with some knights and lords falling off yelling.

Only Eddard remained calm. He had stared down Drogon and herself when he had no idea if she meant to burn him to ash. Oberyn was his wild self, shaking his spear and laughing enjoying the spectacle immensely.

Her dragons roared overhead. It filled Daenerys heart that Arya was not the least bit perturbed. In fact she was up in her stirrups with her hand up trying to brush Drogon’s scales as he flashed over her and Dany. The Queen glanced back at Edward who was smiling at his daughter’s antics. Yes, daughter was very much like father. So brave and so grounded in the meanings of life and honor.

Her dragons flew on and then swooped up into the sky. It was so beautiful seeing her dragons angle their bodies to seemingly twist back on themselves to come swooping back down to low over the ground. They came back in but now backwashing their wings. They were slowing sending up mighty backwashes as they shed speed. Drogon landed near the Queen and Arya. The black behemoth roared his neck tilted back to bugle his dominance.

Viserion landed near Barristan his body bounding forward his head looking and finding his enemies. Viserion roared his jealousy and ran forward his mouth hissing threats. Viserion immediately placed his body between the knight and Nymeria. Viserion glared at the Direwolf and shook his tail in warning. Nymeria sat down on her haunches and looked bored at Viserion who slowly lowered his head to Barristan for his scratching. The old knight complied scratching the scales underneath the white dragon’s lower lip. His tail was soon thrashing in pleasure.

Rhaegal landed and looked around. He spotted Belwas and roared his greeting. The big fat bald eunuch came over and petted the dragon who was almost cooing.

Daenerys had had the riding saddles and riding gear for Barristan and Strong Belwas pulled out. Her two champions were putting them onto their dragon’s backs. They had on their riding chaps and gloves supplied by Illyrio Mopatis. Daenerys mused that event seemed like a lifetime ago and in another age that no longer existed on this Earth.

Eddard came up to her. He looked at Drogon as the Queen scratched along his gums. The dragon’s lips rippling with pleasure and hot gusts blowing out his nostrils. Eddard looked from the Queen and then too his daughter. He gave them both a soft squint smile. The man was nothing if not a charmer.

“I almost envy you Arya not having a problem with heights. It must be exhilarating to ride with the Queen on her black dread.”

“Oh it is father. It is a rush to look down and see the trees and houses so small beneath you.”

“Does the Queen keep you safe and close to her body? We don’t want you falling off my daughter. It would cause much consternation between our Houses.” Eddard smile even bigger. Was his teasing sexual in nature Daenerys almost gasped? It couldn’t be could it?
“I will make sure Arya does not fall off my Warden of the North. I will pull her close to my body to keep her safe Eddard.”

Arya eyes went wide with hope and then a blush formed on her ears and crept down her throat.

Eddard chuckled with a squint smile. Arya was blushing too much to see her father first look at her pointedly and then tilt his head to Daenerys with a penetrating look. He marched his eyes to his daughter and nodded. Again Daenerys was almost stunned. Was he giving me permission? No it couldn’t be. Eddard turned his horse to the road.

He had a bet to win.

Daenerys stared at Eddard Stark as he rode off her mind racing with possible imports and coming up with only one answer. He knows. He knows and he smiled! Daenerys felt her heart beat harder. She was now even more assured that she and Arya would consummate their love at Winterfell.

Missandei came up to her and Arya. She hugged Arya and then came over to Daenerys. As she hugged the Queen close she put her mouth near Daenerys ear “Make your dream come true Dany. There can be no better place than Winterfell to take Arya. Stop this ‘Dance with Dragons and Wolves’ Dany. Consume your love. Now is the time.”

Missandei backed up and smiled her brilliant smile.

Daenerys smiled back. Even her best friend knew it was time. She returned her friend’s smile and shook her head ‘yes’ subtly. It was indeed past time.

The Lords, generals and knights saluted and bowed to the Queen in obeisance. They began their march down the King’s Road towards Winterfell. The Queen felt her heart beat hard again. Westeros was forming up behind her. She had indeed conquered her homeland and made it hers. She had one more conquest to make. A much more pleasurable conquest. She looked at Arya and stopped hiding her feelings from her face.

Arya stared at her and licked her lips and the nervously looked away and looked back and smiled tremulously. Daenerys felt her inner predator twitch and arouse itself. Yes. Soon Arya. Soon you will be mine. Mine in our bed making glorious love.

Daenerys eyed the object of her amorous thoughts. “Arya let’s eat a quick meal before we take to the air.” They sat down on Drogon’s tail as they ate some beef jerky, hard tack and radishes. Now Daenerys made sure their bodies contacted each other from hip to shoulder. Several times she reached out and pushed a few stray stands of Arya’s beautiful brunette hair behind her ear. Daenerys smiled feeling her young sweet wolf shiver at her touch. Soon Arya soon.

They washed down with swigs of water from a canteen. Nymeria had jumped up on Drogon’s back as the dragon stretched out and soon was asleep on her side. They had laughed at the mighty wolf padding around in a tight circle preparing her bed of warm scales. Instinct having the wolf pad out a bed where only hard scales were below her. The wolf did not care. Nymeria laid out absorbing the heat of Drogon’s body with her tongue lulled out in happy wolf dreams.

The group of horse and riders were fading down the road on their way to Winterfell. Daenerys was letting the riders move on up the King’s Highway. It would take the riders three hours to reach Winterfell where her and her dragons could be there in fifteen if not ten minutes easily. She and Arya watched the banners slowly disappear into the distance. She did not want to fly aimlessly. She wanted the exhilaration of a fast ride up to Winterfell. Daenerys was focused on her goals now.
She would impress Winterfell and the Lords with her dragons. She would meet the family of Eddard Stark and feel them out. She then would set about seducing a certain wolf girl and making Arya her queen. It was high time she thought to herself. In a way Daenerys was amazed at how all her plans were coming together. Her plans for Westeros and her plans for Arya Stark. Her body shivered again her belly clenching in wanton desires. She had waited so long!

The pale Targaryen looked over at Strong Belwas. He had tilted a big bag of salted pork belly chunks up to his face. Daenerys grimaced as the big eunuch filled his mouth with the pork bellies chunks falling into his open maw. He chomped noisily on the product with drool running down his cheeks and chin. Gross! Daenerys thought to herself but smiled. Belwas was cute in his rough bald, fat, eunuch way. All the while he stuffed himself yet again the fat eunuch groused that he was starving to death on this “death” march. How could the Queen starve him like this? Having asked his rhetorical question he stuffed a spiced slab of salmon into his mouth and took huge bits chomping and moaning in happiness.

Daenerys eyed Arya out of the corner of her eyes. She was dressed in tight riding leathers that hugged her hips, legs and torso. She love seeing Arya’s muscular body caressed by the tight leather. She loved the fact that Arya was small of bosom. It just fit her body. She knew Arya’s leathers were pressed on tight on those pulpy nipples. She longed to rip Arya’s riding vest open and siphon those nipples into her mouth and feel them swell up in her mouth all large and rubbery underneath her rasping tongue and seesawing teeth grazing those engorged nipples. She would show Arya just how much she hungered to suck on her bursting plum nipples. Arya would be screaming so hard in their bed as her cunt filled her mouth with hot cum or soaked her hard thrusting fingers as she tried to suck Arya’s nipples down her throat. Dany felt a delicious tension beginning to fill her body.

She would rock her wolf’s mind with her amorous skills. She could feel her body humping and tribbing Arya’s sweat soaked body. She would fist her wolf’s cunt so well with her twisting plunging fist. Then she would slam her fist up her love’s hot tight asshole so deep and hard. Then Arya would fist her cunny and shithole so hard and deep. Dany’s eyes glazed over slightly feeling Arya’s fist in her mind’s eye twisting deep into her belly. Their lovemaking would be sooooo fucking good.

While the Queen lusted so hard for Arya’s sweet ripe body there was so much more to admire about her soon to be wife. Daenerys had to admire Arya’s focus and dedication. She had trained with Barristan and Syrio with total focus. She never once questioned her training but did it with rapt attention and complete focus. She had been extremely skilled when she arrived. Now she was a true master. Her skills were actually better than her own Daenerys determined. She had no problem accepting that. The greatest warriors knew their own limits and conversely could thoroughly appraise the skills of an opponent.

Anymore, Arya had her teachers on the defensive and they as often lost to her as she to them. In fact it had reached the point that a defeat of Arya by Barristan and Syrio was rare. It was them that were struck or slashed by Arya’s blade. She had become the master. Arya had told her that she had joked with Syrio one afternoon just before they left King’s Landing telling him “When last we met I was but the student now I am the master!” She laughed saying she had said it in a deep voice.

“What happened?”

Arya looked sheepish “The fucker got lucky!” She had gotten up making a show of slashing and parrying sword strokes crowing she would have her revenge!

It was that kind impish attitude that had so completely caught Daenerys heart. She girl was sweet but fiery. She was a warrior but still not hardened. With herself having Arya to love she would never become like the bitter female warriors she had so often met in her march across Essos. Daenerys knew in her heart that Arya’s love would keep her from becoming a bitter harpy who found no joy in life.

Together they would keep each other’s spirits alive, healthy and full of love. Arya laughed gaily looking up at Nymeria on Drogon’s back. The wolf was in a happy dream. The direwolf was woofing and her legs twitching as her snout and lips worked.

Arya eyes went slightly unfocused. Her eyes came back into focus. Arya informed her that Nymeria was chasing an antelope in her dreams her tongue lulling out in the chase. Arya looked at Dany with a soft smile that made Daenerys belly clench. Soon. Soon she would make Arya hers. Dany touched Arya’s arm and smiled at the girl. The girl smiled back so big it made Daenerys heart tremble in her chest.

Daenerys idled away some more time. She looked forward to her campaign against the Ice King. She would finish what she had started at the Tree of Life. She hoped that some of the Boltons and Freys lords survived the coming battle. She would have no compunction severing heads from shoulders. They were vile villainous traitors who deserved death.

Dany and Arya leaned against the rear haunch of Drogon as he lounged on the ground absorbing the sunlight. The three dragons were half asleep in the bright sunlight. Daenerys found herself dozing off for a short while. She felt her mind wandering.

She pondered her meeting with the Stark family in Winterfell. She wanted to make a good first impression. She always wanted to put a sense of her greatness in her subjects. With Winterfell, she had additional motivation for the aerial ballet she planned to perform over the ancient castle. She smiled. She wanted to put awe in the people of Winterfell and the Starks. She wanted them in awe of her and her dragons. When people were in awe they were more pliable. She would start feeling them out on her taking their daughter and sister as her lover. She was confident that she could bend them to her will.

The Targaryen wondered if Margaery would cause any problems. She smirked in her mind’s eye remembering the parade of roses. Yes. She was sure Margaery was on her team or at least was willing to change teams. She wondered how the girl had fared being a royal hostage. Was she angry at being taken there? Had she made trouble? Was she sullen waiting to go back home? The Queen would find out.

It had been over two hours that had passed. It was time to leave now. They would need to gain some attitude to make their grand entrance. She wanted to arrive before Eddard’s party and have plenty time to have some fun before she landed to greet the party moving up the King’s Highway at the gates of Winterfell. Daenerys always planned out her efforts. She had been planning this for a week as they neared the home of Arya.

Also, she was anxious to look close upon Winterfell. She had either seen the castle from on high or the one time she came in low she had been on a mission and had sailed over the castle without truly noticing it except to not hit the castle’s towers as she flashed over the castle to land and confront Eddard Stark nearly a year ago now. She had been so focused on Eddard she hardly remembered the castle.

She had gone into her dragon’s mind when they had already landed to investigate the excitable girl that had called them down. They were already on the grounds of the castle though so she could not see its layout from up in the air low above Winterfell. Her attention lay elsewhere. She had been captivated by the brown haired girl that had no fear of her dragons. She had found the girl so alluring. Now she was in love with that selfsame girl. Soon she would make love to that girl.
Daenerys smiled thinking that her first times making love to Arya would be in her home of Winterfell.

She only remembered it was a large compound unlike other castles. It had large open spaces and the main keep was built up on a small rise of ground. She also remembered the walls and buildings were made of dark granite. She could not wait to buzz the castle.

“Come Arya lets mount Drogon. Belwas! Barristan! It is time!”

The men put on thick fur lined jackets for the cold. The weather was cold but not bitingly so. They would not be rising over two thousand feet. The temperature was in the lower forty degrees and the additional height would have the temperature in the mid thirty degree range. Not cold in and of itself but the wind chill would be much colder. The men put on scarves to cover their faces and tucked them in their jackets.

Belwas had complained of the leg leathers until he nearly froze his balless ass off the last time he had ridden in cold weather.

Drogon roused himself flexing and Nymeria went rolling down his back and off his side. “Whoof?!” the wolf barked out twisting to land and roll on the ground. The Direwolf turned and barked furiously at the dragon for disturbing her dream. Slaver flung out her jaws as her howls of rage and affronted pride filled the air. Drogon ignored the Direwolf that only made her bark harder. She had been about to get that damn rabbit!

“Enough Nymeria” Arya gently scolded her wolf. The wolf immediately calmed down and panted looking up at Drogon. The dragon snorted at the wolf. Nymeria was all bark. Drogon still had not forgiven the Direwolf, Shaggydog, for pissing all over his claws!

The riders quickly mounted their dragons. They grabbed ahold of scales with hands and worked feet into ledges or rifts between the dragon’s scales to pull themselves up onto the dragons. Barristan and Strong Belwas gripped the reigns of their saddles and folded the straps tight in their hands. They used jerks of the reigns that were looped over scales forward of the saddles. The reigns came back to attach to the saddles to signal to the dragons their desires in directions. The dragons seemed to have a sixth sense in knowing their riders desires.

Dany and Arya being resistant to the heat of Drogon eschewed the need for a saddle. Dany sat down spreading her legs out and jamming her feet between large back scales on Drogon’s back. She wedged them in tight getting a tight snug fit. She had Arya get behind her and slide in behind her so their bodies were touching. Then Ayra slide her own shod feet into grooves along Drogon’s scales.

Ayra had a jacket that was open on the front. Her tight riding vest pressed to her Queen’s body. Dany’s body radiated heat that Arya would lean into to help keep her warm. The heat radiating up into Arya’s body from her bottom and feet would help warm her too. The heat from Daenerys and Drogon sufficient at these attitudes to keep her from freezing.

This worked at lower elevations but only Daenerys could survive the true heights that her dragons could fly at. This was especially true in the colder seasons.

Arya loosely fitted her body against Daenerys back. Not good enough!

“Lean into my Arya. Hold me tight. I want to feel your body against mine. We will be doing wild acrobatics and I need to feel your body tight to know you are safe.” It was a safety precaution to be sure but it was also to feel her woman’s body pressed tight to hers. It would be a prelude of what was to come. She would soon be naked with Arya their sweaty and cum soaked bodies entwined and pressed tight and so sticky with smeared cum and sweat. Their bellies and thighs pressed tight as tongue languidly flowed deep into groaning throats. The body contact and deep kissing reviving seemingly spent bodies with fuck hunger and the need for yet more hot fucking.

Daenerys could sense that Arya was a total slut in bed who had the insatiable appetite for the female body that Daenerys herself had. Gods the cum the two of them would be drinking down each night as cunts ruptured and flooded out hot cum to be gulped down by greedy sucking mouths.

“Yes Dany!” was the deep sultry replay. Arya was showing her desires more. Good. Arya leaned in hard and snaked her arms around the Queen. Her cheek came to rest on Dany’s back and Daenerys was sure she felt Arya purr. Soon my love. She reached down and gripped Arya’s arms and pulled down to snake around her belly then synched them extra tight to her body. Yes. That felt much better.

Arya’s tight leathers felt so good against she blouse top. She did not need warmth and needed to feel Arya’s body against hers. She had waited long enough. The only thing better than this close contact would be such contact without clothing and in a bed or furs as they fucked each other senseless.

The Queen raised her voice “Drogon, Viserion, Rhaegal … Yn aderi, mōrī, aöt māzīli se hēnkirī īlvi biarvī manaerili!” With that the dragons took flight. Drogon flexed down his mighty talons sinking deep into the Earth. His body tensed like an overwrought spring. Viserion and Rhaegal took bounding leaps and then jumped up into the sky gaining attitude with their beautiful wings stroking the cold air. Drogon exploded up his legs extending and pushing off the Earth.

Daenerys loved the acceleration she felt with Drogon’s explosive take off. She was jammed down hard into Drogon’s scales from his powerful launch. Arya held her even tighter. The thin leather did not hide from Daenerys the fact that Arya’s nipples were fully erect and pressed into her back. The girl was rubbing her back with her nipples and her groin was flexing on her sacrum. Oh gods she was showing more of her desires. Dany smiled. Arya did not know she felt her nutting on her body. Soon they would be naked and rubbing while bodies pulled tight. Dany’s own nipples went rock hard and her puss was wet. She felt pure elation about to begin riding up the King’s Highway and Winterfell.

The dragons swirled around each other doing loose turns. The dragons’ bodies tilted over.
Daenerys could see Barristan and Strong Belwas looking at her as the dragons swirled around in their circle. The bodies of the dragons rising and falling slightly with the pinion of their wings to rise the dragons up and accelerate their pace of flight. The dragons bulged to each other. The white and green dragon seemed to be almost chasing Drogon as he flew.

Daenerys almost wondered if this was some kind of mating dance. She remembered that dragons could change sex. She chuckled at her wayward thoughts. She was not sure if that was myth or not. The dragons suddenly half rolled out of the circular dance and now flew up the King’s Road.

They stayed at several hundred until they quickly came up on the party heading to Winterfell. Her dragons roared which was answered by the riders below.

Daenerys chest swelled. Westeros was hers! Her people accepted her as their ruler! She would be all that Rhaegar Targaryen was prophesized to be. She had known for some time that A Song of Fire and Ice had been her prophecy. Daenerys had no use for prophecies—unless they were right!

Now the dragons angled their bodies up as they gained attitude. The dragons now flying at near vertical as their wings beat furiously to claw for attitude against the pull of gravity. They were soon at two thousand feet and a minute later Winterfell was there on the horizon. Her dragons flew at two thousand feet. Dany touched her dragons’ minds and they moved close to Drogon and as he slowed his pace. Daenerys looked to her right and saw Barristan on Viserion. The Queen’s gaze turned to her left and nodded to Strong Belwas on Rhaegal.

“Lo ziry arlī jaelāt, jemēlo syt ziry mazemagon jemo bēvilza.” What did I just call out Arya. She and Missandei had been giving her future wife tutoring in learning High Valyrian. Like everything else she put her mind to Arya was a quick study.

She felt Arya wiggling into her body hugging Dany again. “Ummm … you told them to circle for a minute … no for a short while … the word jemo has several meaning but here it means short duration.”

Dany’s heart swelled. Gods she longed to scream her passion in her native tongue and have Arya understand … she needed to hear Arya scream her orgasms in High Valyrian. Dany had decided she would reach for the stars in all her desires.

The dragons circled a mile off from Winterfell. Daenerys saw through Drogon’s eyes that the inhabitants of Winterfell were gathering on the walls. They were excited but not fearful. She looked behind her. Eddard’s party was steadily moving up the King’s Highway at a steady moderate pace. They were picking up their pace getting into the excitement of the moment. The Lords of the South knew the spectacular show the Queen would be putting on with her dragons.

It was time! Daenerys thought. She needed to make a grand appearance.

“Tell my dragons what to do Arya” she softly husked back making eye contact with Arya her lilac eyes unguarded showing her raw passion for Arya.

Dany smiled seeing Arya stare at her first guardedly then she let the raw passion burn in her orbs. The grey of her eyes catching fire. She pressed her chest into Daenerys. The girl actually moaned pressing her again swollen nipples into her Queen’s back and her eyelids fluttered shut. Gods this girl was so fucking awesome. She is letting her guard down and showing me her love! If they were not two thousand feet in the air …

Dany moaned softly herself feeling Arya’s thick nipples rubbing her back through the thin skin tight leathers Arya wore. Gods she wanted Arya! But she had other duties to perform first. Soon Arya. Soon.

Arya pushed back slightly her body tensing with concentration. “Zaldrīzes!” All three dragons turned their head to Arya. Drogon’s head craned back on a neck half twisted half around. Daenerys felt her heart hammering again. Like Nymeria had accepted her, Daenerys, into her wolf heart her dragons now thought of Arya as their mother too. Daenerys smiled. Even Drogon loved the girl deeply now.

In a commanding voice “Drogon, Rhaegal, Viserion” they all stared at Arya with single minded focus waiting to do her will. “Winterfell et ātlis” she pointed at her home “Mirri ōdria uēpi dōrī drēji zgiēñisi, sepār hen mibājyr udir ānogrosa anehussi Winterfell. Elēni ūhe jogeltigon sylutis, sepār jevon jogeltigon sylussi. Yn kostosy daor.”

Daenerys felt such pride. Arya’s speak had been almost flawless.

The dragons roared as one and dove down towards Winterfell at a steep glide path. The air whistling by their wings as the dragons picked up speed. The dragons beat their wings to keep the camber of their wings tight as the dragons plummeted towards Winterfell. She gripped Drogon’s scales tight as she saw Barristan and Strong Belwas hunch down leaning forward gripping their saddles tight.
Drogon and his brothers were picking up speed as their wings beat with hard beats and gravity increased their speed fast.

Daenerys had her initial impressions of Winterfell. She had seen it from up high and once from low but then she had other matters on her mind.

Now she focused on the castle and its massive walls quickly coming up on her and Arya. She saw that the castle had an eighty foot high outer wall with the inner walls up to one hundred feet in height. She had noticed the dark granite before but as she raced toward the old castle she noticed just how truly black the stones were. The stones may technically been called dark grey but coming up on the walls they were black. She could sense their ancient age and the magic used to hewn them. The stones of the ancient keep distinct and well fitted but not with an imperfect fit unlike Highgarden or Casterly Rock.

This was a fortress for defense and the look and feel of the castle reflected that. The circular guard towers at the gate entrances were made of grey slate on the pointed turrets adorning the top of each guard gate tower. The drum towers projected off the wall in half circles that stood out roughly ten feet with arrow loops for archers to fire on invaders. The Queen saw that the base of the curtain wall had batters built along the base. The angled stone set in such a manner to make dropped stones bounce away from the curtain wall and into the enemy. The batters also adding strength to the base of the wall walk. These walls would be hard to breech and the damage done to the enemy attempting such a feat would be grievous to them.

Daenerys knew that her dragons were a glorious sight as they dropped out of sky like comets giving life from the celestial night sky. Her black dread in the lead with a white and green star on her wingtips. The highlights that adorned her dragon’s bodies were catching the sun and throwing them off in dancing spangles. The dragons bugled loudly their trumpets echoing off the castle walls and the surrounding trees.

They were almost on the castle now. The ground around the castle were kept clear of the trees. They were coming in from the opposite side of Winter Town. They were coming up the King’s Road. Her dragons had looped down to the cleared ground in front of the main East Gate in a sever glide path. The air pressure from the ground gave the dragons an uprush of air underneath their wings. Daenerys felt the tension in Drogon’s body as he strained his spine to begin angling his body upwards. His brothers mimicking his actions. The dragons immediately lifting their neck and pulling neck muscles pulling for altitude. The dragons jerked their front legs up into their bodies as their wings canted hard to gain altitude.

Daenerys, Barristan, and Strong Belwas had total trust in their steeds as the wall of Winterface raced up to greet them with a fatal embrace. The three dragons whooshed over the heads of the on lookers with only ten feet to spare. Daenerys and Arya glanced to right and left to see faces staring up at them in awe and shock at the audacity they were seeing. The raw skill and verve of the three dragons and their riders. The wind they generated creating small wind devils and unbalancing gusts of wind. The onlookers wildly buffeted and caste into the embrasure and merions on the outside of the wall walk. The Queen heard brief squeals and shouts of excitement as they winged by.

She and Barristan flew to the right of the great keep itself while Strong Belwas banked Rhaegal to the left and disappeared behind the Great Keep and the Great Hall that abutted it to the West. One would think that Rhaegal had plowed into the ground or ancient Keep itself. Then the great dragon appeared on the other side flying sideways as it passed over the other side of Winterfell only then righting itself and beating its wings furiously to gain altitude for another pass.

Daenerys flew her black dragon on straight ahead and whipped over the east wall in a streak among cheers and shouts. She saw adults waving wildly and children jumping up and down in excitement. Barristan had peeled Viserion to the right and angled off over the corner of the castle wall and dove back down out of sight. Women were casting their favors up to the strong looking man with his flowing white hair whipping in the white dragon’s slipstream.

Past the castle she gained altitude fast. The black dragon’s body rising and falling with the beating of its long strong wings. Its tail swinging right and left behind him sometimes rising and falling slightly keeping his body in perfect trim. He had risen back to a thousand feet fast. Now the pale Targaryen had Drogon wing over and again she raced towards the castle. She saw that the castle was on a small rise that gave the walls additional height compared to the curtain wall. The Great Keep was the same black stone with four massive square turrets on each corner. The building had narrow horizontal windows with some filled with colored glass. She assumed that would be royal quarters.

Daenerys flashed by the Great Keep her dragon’s tail almost swishing over the edges of the north tower on the Great Keep. She felt the back pressure of the wind pushing against the ancient black stoned building and pressing into Drogon’s body. Daenerys used that to angle her dragon away and as the dragon angled over now flying upside down as she and Arya held on tight. They were over the curtain wall just twenty feet above it. Just beyond the wall Drogon whip barrel rolled back to normal horizontal flight. She had Drogon drop down beyond the wall and fly out half a mile before she gained altitude for another high speed pass.

She looked over her shoulder and saw Barristan and Belwas as they flew in a nose to tail flight path from the South and split at the last possible second to avoid the massive Great Keep. Daenerys saw that a stand of tall Fir trees near the Great Keep with their broad boughs covered by melting snow weighing the drooping branched down. She knew this was not the famous Godswood. She dropped her jaw seeing Rhaegal flying sideways between a gap between two mighty firs. His body totally sideways and his bottom wing nearly hitting the ground and his top wing near the tops of the trees. Now Rhaegal was rising again. She wondered if Strong Belwas still had his lunch. She need not worry. The Queen saw he was laughing in happy glee.

Something was not quite right but she could not quite put her finger on it. They had reached two thousand feet again. “Hold on!” she whooped to Arya. Her lover gripped her body tight and hummed rubbing her cheek into Dany’s back. Daenerys felt so fucking alive! Yes! Arya was her lover!

Her dragon dropped like a stone and pulled up at the last moment pulling what Maester Lape called G forces as the one hundred and ten foot dragon pulled up flashing over the Fir trees to the North of the Great Keep. Daenerys knew that the Great Hall could house over five hundred people. The great hall attached to the keep. She looked down at a massive square that had a wild growth of trees and in the center of it was a massive canopy of red leaves.

That was the Godswood with its ancient Weirwood tree with the face carved into it. She was slightly confused. She had developed a good ability to judge spaces and distances. She had read that the Godwood was only four acres. This massive expanse of wild seeming growth must be closer to fifty or fifty-five acres. There was thick luxuriant growth of trees and brambles that thickly covered the ground. She felt ancient power wafting up from those woods. The old gods had a presence her yet Daenerys thought.

She suddenly registered where Belwas was taking Rhaegal!

“What the fuck!” she shouted and Arya looked down and had time just to gasp.

They saw Rhaegal headed towards the covered bridge he was coming in fast from north his wings beating fast. Then fast the green dragon folded his wings tight to his body at the last second. The dragon disappeared between the Great Keep and the Armory. They both gasped and held their breath expecting to see dragon parts flying out the other side. A split second Rhaegal appeared from underneath the other side of the covered bridge unhurt with a laughing Belwas.

“I kill that idiot!” Daenerys shouted. “If that wood had an extra coat of turpentine they would have crashed into it!”

“Easy Dany” Arya soothed up to her Queen. “Rhaegal will not do something he knows he can’t do.” Arya patted Daenerys stomach gently and Dany immediately calmed. Arya her sweet was right. Her dragons were very intelligent and like birds simply knew what they could and could not accomplish in flight. She had Drogon once more fly up to a thousand feet to prepare for another pass.

She saw Barristan flying down the south wall upside down waving at the people staring up at him. He had Viserion in a slow glide. The dragon’s wings flexing to keep its glide path perfect and smooth for his beloved rider. Daenerys groused to herself. Is everyone a showoff? As they flew inverted Daenerys and Arya looked down into the upturned faces of the people on the roof of the keep now. The two groups staring at each other. The men and women on the roof top whooping loudly with big smiles on their faces. The men laughing and the women swooning from the vapors! Teach them to be a showoffs!

As they flew over Winterfell more she was convinced of her initial observation. Whoever mapped out Winterfell simply did not know trigonometry. The measurements were all wrong. The person had simply under represented the true dimensions of the ancient castle.

She flew her dragon up into an Immelmann turn gaining attitude and turning one hundred degrees.

“Arya! The measurements in the books I read are all off. Way to small. Why?”

She heard and felt Arya chuckle pressed into her back. “About the time of Aegon Conquests a Maester from the Citadel traveled over Westeros to get surveys of the great castles and get the recent history to update their tomes. They had never truly survived the North and meant to make amends. It had been many, many years since the Maesters visited the great castles.”

“He came to use last. He was rotund and had a big beard. He came to Winterfell and looked around from the Great Keep. He started to write down distances and positions of buildings in the keep. He did not seem that focused on his work. He really did like to eat and drink though or so our legends say.”

“He told us that the Godswood was only four acres when everyone knew it was almost sixty acres. He just smiled and shook his head at us. He reminded us he was a Maester as he stuffed a turkey leg in his mouth while he wrote on his parchment. He got many things wrong for some reason when he did his measurements and wrote down our history. We were last on his journey. We thought that he was ready to go home to the Citadel.”
“We assumed he had grown tired of his task. He was sooooo slowwww! in his writing” It took him nearly two years to finish half way what he started. In fact we are convinced he never did finish his work.”

“Is his name recorded?”

“Yes. He had the strange name of George Martin. He was nice but as a scribe he left something to be desired. To get such simple things as measurements wrong. And when we tried to explain to him that military forces could not march as fast as he was writing down his eyes glazed over.

“Legends have it he was quite knowledgeable about Dragons and Valyria so I think he was cool. When you came out of the desert I reread the tome he left on old Valyria. I found it must illuminating. I mastur—I read the tome many times.” She felt Arya squirm in embarrassment. Soon Arya. Soon.

“I did read that the scribes and prophets, David Benioff and D.B. Weiss, who wrote A Song of Fire and Ice used his works as the text to craft the prophecy. I guess they didn’t care if many pages of his work was left blank.

“We just go with the flow. We know what the true measurements are and that is all that matters.”

Daenerys circled Drogon back around again. She noticed winter town. She found the town interesting getting its name from the fact that it lies mostly deserted during summer. It was where smallfolk gathered in winter. They would work their small holdfasts in the warm months raising crops to eat and sell and then moved into town with the coming winter snows which were always heavy in the North.

The town was located outside the walls of Winterfell on the other side of the King’s Highway on the east side of Winterfell. She saw that its market square was filled with wooden stalls for merchants, while its streets were muddy and lined with rows of houses made from log and undressed stone.

She saw that the roads, squares and rooftops filled with people wildly waving their arms many jumping up and down. She sent Drogon into a dive and angled towards the town. She made a hot, fast pass down low over the buildings of the backwash making children squeal, women clutch their skirts and men to stare. She zoomed up into the sky and half rolled out at a thousand feet.

She saw that Belwas had Rhaegal flying a tight circle keeping his circle within the circumference of the castle walls. The dragon flying on its side his wings flapping lazily keeping his circle tight. Barristan had Version leaping from tower to tower on the great keep. Viserion was keeping his talons on the top of the merions and away from the people on the tops of the towers howling with glee.

Show off! Daenerys roared to herself. She looked down at Winterfell. Inside the walls, was a complex of dozens of courtyards and small open spaces used for weapons training and practices that took place in those yards. Off to one side was an inner ward with its second, much older open space in the castle where archery practice took place. It was located next to the broken tower.

She looked at the buildings. She had seen something on the beaches of Volantis. She spotted the perfect building. She showed Drogon what she had in mind. She asked her son if he could do it.

She felt his fiery response. He was pissed. Of course he could do it! he raged back at his mother. He snapped dived down. Both women snatched forward as the dragon dove straight down. Dany held on hard to Drogon’s scales. She relished feeling Arya hugging her hard her body pressed into her made Dany wet. They broke out of the dive at the last moment as they headed for the peaked roof of the Guest House. Drogon came in fast his body aligned with the apex line of the building.

The dragon extended his lower legs and his feet. He angled his feet back slightly to expose his toe pads. The black dragon arched his talons so they barely touched the roof slate sending out showers of sparks. The dragon spread out its wings for balance. The wings flitting up and down as they dragon moved down the line of the roof top. Arya squealed “What is he doing?” as the dragoon slide down the roof line keeping his weight fully off the roof.

“It’s called surfing!”

They reached the end of the building and the dragon dipped down and Drogon pumped his wings hard once more gaining altitude.

People were screaming in glee! The people had maybe caught glimpses of her dragons and that was with them usually flying on high but now the dragons were barely flying over their heads! She took Drogon back up to two thousand feet. She looked down the King’s Highway and saw Eddard’s party coming up the road. They would appear around the bend in the road soon.

She spoke to her dragons. Viserion and Rhaegal rose up to a thousand feet and all three dove down. They trumpeted and now bellowed out great gouts of fiery flame. The long tongues of flame reaching out seemingly to touch buildings and people but flaming out well short safely for the dragons had the ultimate control over their fiery breath. Now the people were in shock and awe at the power added on top of the crazy acrobatics on full display. The dragons continued to buzz Winterfell and Winter Town. She and her other dragons spun and pirouetted in the sky cavorting in fast dives, twisting spinning descents and wild twisting, turning rolls. The dragons bellowing long tongues of flame.

At one time Dany was doing a big loop in the sky. She had flown Drogon up and then over the top with negative Gs had their hair hanging down. They were in the middle of the loop at their slowest moment just before the descent. Daenerys and Arya looking back down at the ground. They began the down curve of the inverted loop.

“That was fucking close!

Arya cried out “I think I pissed myself!” with the near miss flybys.

Eddard was nearing the gates of Winterfell now. The three dragons now winged down to land before the gates. A huge crowd had gathered on the walls and in the area before the gates. The people were unsure seeing the behemoths coming into land. Their back peddling wings sending up huge gouts of convoluted wind currents and dust storms. The dragons landed lightly and looked around unperturbed. The crowd immediately relaxed sensing no danger from the great beasts as they settled down onto their legs and tails.

Daenerys smiled at the excited milling. She had succeeded. She slipped off Drogon turned and held up her arms. Arya had been about to climb down but smiled and slowly slid down to Daenerys hands as they gripped her ribs and brought her down to the ground. The two shared a smoky look of barely hidden desires. The time for subterfuge was ending. The two women were both tired of denying their desires. They stood side by side but separated when Eddard came up to them.

He slapped Daenerys hard on the back laughing at her audacity. “I loved it!” He did not normally show emotion so Daenerys took that as a compliment.
She heard a familiar voice “Your back!” Daenerys turned as Margaery and the tall red head she had seen in her dragons’ eyes: Sansa Stark. The Queen’s eyes shocked wide open. They were holding hands with interlocked fingers! That is how lovers hold hands. What!

“Father!” Margaery shouted and hugged Eddard as he swirled her in the Air. Daenerys saw Sansa smile with pure love at Margaery.

“How is my new daughter doing Margaery?”

Margaery began telling Eddard the recent news of Winterfell. Sansa came up and wrapped her arms around Margaery’s waist and bent down kissing her temple.

_Oh Gods!_ Eddard looked over at Daenerys as he put his arms over both women’s shoulders and hugged the women to him.

Robb and Alys Karstark came up and hugged Eddard Stark. Robb hugged both Sansa and Margaery with obvious deep affection.

Daenerys was stunned. _What is going on here?_

Margaery was jumping up and down and kissed Sansa on the lips soundly. Sansa blushed but pulled the smaller woman to her and kissed her hotly on the lips. Now Daenerys mouth was hanging open.

No one even looked at them. It was as if everyone considered it normal! Sansa and Margaery continued to kiss as Sansa picked up a squealing Margaery and spun her in a slow circle still kissing her deeply now. Her aerial had definitely gotten everyone excited Daenerys mused.

She heard Rob and Alys telling Eddard and Arya about his wife. They both looked a little shaken at the news they were receiving. Arya looked at her and asked if she could go see her mother. She had not seen her in so long.

Daenerys smiled and told her to go see her mother. Daenerys started to meet and greet her subjects of the North. She had her duty as Queen to first perform.

Eddard came up to her. “Sansa and Margaery will be wed in the Godswood Daenerys. Robb and Alys will be wed at the same time. We are hoping for a third wedding my Queen” he told her softly and walked on to see his wife.

Daenerys stood their stunned. She suddenly saw that Eddard Stark had played a Game of Thrones within a Game of Thrones.

He had sent his daughter to her as both an emissary of the Warden of the North but also letting his daughter come south to pursue Daenerys Targaryen. He had sent his little girl who had been in love with the Queen. Her hopes had been right! _My gods_ she whispered to herself _I have Eddard’s blessing to romantically pursue his daughter_. She turned to a knight talking to her not hearing his words as he talked to her excitedly about meeting the Breaker of Chains. _Eddard wanted her to wed Arya!_

Margaery

Margaery was in her future mother-in-law’s room. She squeezed Catelyn’s hand gently. She was worried. It had been a very difficult pregnancy for the older woman. Her pervious pregnancies had been easy but this one had been anything but easy on the woman. It was clearly wearing the woman down. Her body seemed to be failing and had all worried and were on edge.

Maester Luwin with his expert care had made sure that Catelyn stayed off her feet and had total bed rest. His care and potions had gotten the wife of Eddard Stark slightly through the middle of the third month of her third trimester. They wanted Catelyn to reach full term but the Maester felt that if childbirth came early now the child would survive. His answer about Catelyn’s health had been less than convincing to Margaery. She was very afraid.

Maester Luwin had given Cat potions to settle her stomach and to replenish her vitamins and minerals. Cat had a hard time keeping any food down and her digestive track was always upset now. She had had to clean her sweet mother-in-law many times. The woman weakly protested at being as weak as invalid or new born babe but Margaery and the woman she was to marry did not mind. Sansa gladly helped in the care of her stricken mother.

She would never had imagined herself ever doing something like that in her life at Highgarden. She did not mind. Catelyn had been so supportive of her and Sansa and their wedding to be in the Godwood. It made her smile at how Sansa’s mother had changed so much. She had once been hell bent on marrying Sansa off to some stupid insipid male Lord or even a Knight if necessary.

Now the woman had actively been planning her and Sansa’s wedding. She had come up with a beautiful ceremony. It did not matter that Catelyn was tired and worn with her difficulty pregnancy. Catelyn Stark spent much of her time when she had strength planning the marriage of her eldest daughter to Margaery Tyrell. This made the young scion of Highgarden love the woman fiercely. They had spent hours talking of the coming nuptials. Margaery had more and more time to be with Catelyn with the planning phase of the coming war being over.

The castle had largely emptied of the Lords, generals and knights that would be fighting the war. They had gone to the field. That had changed over the last few days. Her new father had ridden south to meet the Queen and fully explain to her his Game of Throne. When the ravens came winging in saying the North and South were united as one elation had filled Margaery’s heart. The news had been most excellent. All had been forgiven. Daenerys had made it clear that Eddard was still firmly ensconced as the Warden of the North. The local Northmen and closest young lords too young to go to war and thus not travelled to the wall had been pouring into Winterfell to greet their new Queen.

The news had been so good but it was tempered. Over the last few days her mother-in-law’s health had deteriorated. Her strength weakened further and her color had become paler. Now, Cat murmured in her sleep and grimaced with pain. Maester Luwin had preserved Cat and the baby’s life but he was worried. She felt the same fear. The Maester could not explain this slow deterioration of Cat’s health and that alone put fear in everyone’s heart.

Her mother-in-law looked so drawn and pale. Her face and hands were so deathly pale. Blue veins visible where none should be. Her face was lined with lines of pain and rue. She had not put on nearly enough weight considering she was heavy with child. Her cheeks were drawn and her hands had deep gullies between her knuckles. Her hair was lank and when she looked at you her eyes seemed hollowed out. She had the look of one fading away.

Catelyn spoke lightly of her condition expressing full confidence of delivering another healthy son to her beloved husband. Margaery knew she was doing it for her loved ones. Catelyn too had a haunted look in her eyes.

Maester Luwin hoped that if they could get Catelyn into labor they would then be out of danger. This would be her sixth child. Maester Luwin told the gathered family that each birth came easier for a woman. He put it that the “plumbing is primed. It remember the previous births.” He hoped that now that she was nearing her due date that the dire danger was past.

She squeezed Catelyn’s hand and looked at her mother-in-law. She was so drawn. She squeezed the hand gently again. Her mother-in-law’s hand was too cold. Margaery pursed her lips and told herself yet again all would be well. She had come to totally love this woman. Catelyn had changed so much sense she accepted her daughter’s homosexual love for herself. Cat had been her biggest defender when the more conservative elements expressed their concerns.

Catelyn Stark made it clear she totally supported Sansa and her love for Margaery. When it was understood that both mother and father supported the union the protest quickly faded. Margaery was not naïve. She knew many still did not approve but they did not dare oppose the Warden of the North. The North was still not very enlightened in matters of the right to love whom you loved.

It had made her heart beat with pride for the older woman. She had worked out her opposition to her and Sansa’s marriage and was now their biggest supporter. She had in return been happy to support Catelyn in her pregnancy. She had been happy to care for and pamper the mother of Sansa.

She was happy to wash her mother-in-law’s body when she was too exhausted too. It put a big smile on her face to feed the woman her favorite ice cream or get her pickles and cucumbers slices long after dinner. She and Sansa would take turns watching over Sansa’s mother after they had made love. They sat with Catelyn so Maester Luwin could get needed rest and perform his other duties.

Margaery and Sansa had taken to staying long into the night with Cat. They had a small bed pallet setup in the corner of the room that they would sleep in. They were forgoing lovemaking to make time to be with Catelyn. Both young women loved being there to care and comfort the older women when she would wake up in pain or if she was craving some snack. They loved caring for her.

Margaery fretted worrying over her mother-in-law. If they could just get through this pregnancy then all would be alright. Once they had a new girl in the Stark fold then Catelyn would recover her strength and they could enjoy the new child and start planning their weddings. Margaery just knew that that the baby was in fact a girl.

Margaery’s thoughts turned to more pleasant thoughts. She knew the Queen and Arya would be arriving here back with Eddard Stark the man she considered her second father. She could not wait to see the queen wrapped around Arya’s little finger. The little she-wolf had that rouge charm that would capture a bad ass warrior like Daenerys Targaryen. The queen needed the fiery spirit heavily laced with innocence that was Arya Stark.

Then, when Arya had gotten her Queen in her bed and went down on Daenerys she would rock the Targaryen’s world. Margaery remembered the sage advice she had given Arya when she left to head south to her Queen and destiny. “Remember, first suck her clit slow and deep, then suck on it with harsh, fast sucks as you flutter your tongue over it, and then lap, still sucking hard so you can tongue lash the Queen clit’s with the flat of your tongue. When you do that, push your tongue down hard into her clit so you can rasp it with the length of your tongue as you lick it. Just keep licking and sucking hard - she’ll die from it.” There was so many ways to eat pussy but that was a guarantee love kill. Margaery wished she could have been there the first time Arya went down on the Queen.

Margaery heard the door quietly opened and then closed. Sansa came into the room. She paused looking at her mother lying in her bed looking so pale and weak. One thing Sansa never thought she would see was her mother so weak and frail. It was unnerving. Catelyn Stark was always a force of nature full of strength and vigor. Sansa took a deep breath and walked over to the chair that Margaery had had placed beside her mother’s bed. She looked down at her lover with a fond smile.
“How is she doing Margaery?”

“She is well considering everything. She has grimaced in her sleep but nothing untoward. I will just be happy when the birth has come. I worry for her Sansa. I truly do. I just found her as my second mother and I don’t want to lose her” Margaery spoke passionately.

She saw her love smile sadly. She motioned for Margaery to stand up. Margaery did quickly. Sansa sat down adjusting the chair slightly. She then motioned for Margaery to sit down on her lap. Margaery loved how Sansa was so much bigger than her and she could sit on her love and snuggled into her warm solid body. Margaery happily sat down on Sansa’s lap and leaned back into the taunt stout body of her lover. Sansa’s body always gave her a feeling of security when Sansa wrapped her long strong around her body like now.

“Do you think she will be alright Sansa?” she asked her love. She wiggled into Sansa as Sansa stroked her back and kissed her forehead. The Tyrell cooed feeling her lover stroke her body comfortingly. Normally, this would lead to sex but not in this room. Here it offered comfort for two frightened young women caring for a beloved mother.

“She has to be Margaery. She is such a powerful and dynamic woman. I feel that this pregnancy would have done in a less robust and strong woman. She should deliver any day now. You heard Maester Lewin. Once she has had the baby then Mother should recover.”

Margaery thought she heard the slightest worm of doubt in her lover’s voice. She knew she had the same fear. Sansa’s mother seemed to grow more wane and drawn every day. Catelyn Tully needed to have her child as soon as possible.

Sansa had turned so she could reach out her free hand and touch her mother’s arm. Margaery saw the grimace flash over her lover’s face. She had felt how cool her mother’s skin was to the touch. Something was gravely wrong with her mother-in-law pregnancy. All knew it and were hopeless to do anything about it. They could only hope that her mother would have her child sooner than later and her body could begin to heal.

That was Margaery’s hope. That was what her heart said. Margaery’s mind told her another truth.

They stayed that way for a half an hour. They talked softly about Cat and how she had come to support them so strongly. Sansa had told Margaery how adamant her mother had been that Sansa marry a man. It was Sansa’s duty to make House Stark stronger by marrying the right man. This made Sansa’s mother’s support for them now all the sweeter. They smiled talking of the wedding Catelyn had planned. It was truly beautiful. Neither of them could remember a triple marriage.

“Do you think my sister has wrapped the Queen around her finger Margaery?”

“I really don’t know how she couldn’t. They are both so passionate and impulsive. I only saw a little of Daenerys Targaryen but she simply exuded passion and sex. She definitely had control of herself but I just now that once your sister got under her skin it was conquest over and out. I can’t see either woman long denying their love. Your sister has wanted Daenerys since she was only a legend marching east across Essos. Her passion for the pale Targaryen only grew. Yes. They are lovers now” Margaery pronounced. One thing she knew was lesbian amore. Those two women were simply made for each other.

“I guess you are right.” Sansa chuckled.

“What’s so funny my love?”
“I was just remembering her defying our mother no end. Arya driving me crazy with her antics and refusing to sew, take etiquette lessons, refusing to wear dresses, her fowl mouth when she wanted to, her running out and playing in the dirt and coming back covered in mud. I could go on for hours.”

Margaery chuckled. “Like I said Arya is definitely a wild one. It is that wildness that has by now long since captured a certain Targaryen’s heart. I offered myself to Daenerys along with my hens. We were rejected. I was pissed and hurt but I knew as we paraded before her it was a lost cause.”

“How so?” Sansa asked. Margaery had not talked of this to her before.

“I could see it looking at her Sansa. This was a warrior. This was a woman who still soft by appearances but she was also Valyrian steel at her core. I knew only a warrior could capture that woman’s heart. You and I are warriors of the bedroom. Daenerys Targaryen needs a true warrior of the battlefield. She needed a woman of marital prowess.”

“Thus, your sister.”

Sansa chuckled again nodding again at Margaery’s sage assessment of her sister and Daenerys.

“My father used to yell out ‘She is possessed by the wolf’. She is definitely half wolf. They heard a loud whine at the door and hard scratching.

Margaery got up and lightly stepped to the door and opened it up and smiled at the Direwolf that easily came up to her shoulder. The great wolf licked Margaery all over face with wolfie kisses. The wolf rubbed her flank into Margaery and whined in pleasure when her second master scratched behind her ears and rubbed her underneath her neck. The wolf shuddered in pleasure. Lady whined in pleasure and pressed into Margaery seeking even more contact with her other mistress.

Margaery walked back to her lover with Lady at her hip and sat back down in Sansa’s lap. Sansa reached out to pet and scratch Lady. The direwolf whined more in happy pleasure her long tongue lulling out. After a minute the direwolf gently stepped up on the bed and laid down beside Catelyn. The large wolf wiggled in close to Catelyn her body pressed into the side of her master’s mother. She shared her body’s heat with Catelyn. The pale woman murmured and smiled a small smile feeling the warmth on her side. Lady put her snout down on her forepaws and went to sleep.

It touched both young women how the Direwolf did all she could to bring comfort to Sansa’s mother.

They sat and murmured at the day’s events to each other and watched over Catelyn. They both knew that Sansa’s mother was very ill. They could only hope that Maester Luwin skills and medicinal poultices saw their mother through. Margaery had just come to know the woman and already loved her so deeply. She turned from such unsettling thoughts.

“Are you anxious to see Arya?” Sansa asked her lover in a conspiratorial tone.

Margaery smirked snuggling closer into her lover’s ample bosom. “Yeah. I can’t wait to hear how my cunninglingus advice worked. It sure has made you scream many a night” Margaery leered at her sweet love. “I want all the details on how hard the Queen cummed in Arya’s mouth.”

She felt the fingers in her hair stop massaging her scalp for a moment.

“You know you are a horndog don’t you Margaery” her lover chuckled down to her.

“Tell me you wouldn’t listen to all the juicy details. When you see my hens tell me you won’t want to watch them fuck?”
She felt a shiver run through her lover. “Yeessss!” Sansa whimpered. The fingers that had resumed massaging her hair were just that little bit more aggressive. Yes her lover was coming along. She was slowly but surely getting Sansa to accept the possibility of a polygamous relationship. Margaery loved Sansa dearly but she also loved the women she had grown up with. She would sacrifice them if she must to have Sansa’s love. She had feared that but that fear was slowly fading.

Sansa was proving to be quite the voracious slut. Sansa would have the heart to love Margaery and her hens as well. It would be so glorious.

Margaery moved her mouth up and nipped her lover’s throat. Sansa gasped. So responsive. Now was not the time to let nature to take its course though. She had to ask though. She had been slowly opening up Sansa’s horizons on matters of sex and partaking of pleasure and accepting open relationships. She needed reassurance that her hopes were indeed based on reality and not wishful thinking.

“You know I got more letters from them don’t you? My hens.” Margaery had regaled Sansa with long descriptive tales of her past debauchery with her hens. It got Sansa so hot and aggressive. She always fucked Margaery hard after a few tails of hot fucking. Sansa simply wore Margaery’s pussy and butthole out with her 11” strap-on. Then there were the times Sansa filled Margaery’s cunt with her twisting plunging fist. Margaery then shivered remembering the feel of Sansa’s fist slamming up her asshole burying it so deep with twisting thrusts that had Margaery screaming so hard and falling into half comatose stated of hard cumming that tore her belly open with womb clawing out her belly the contractions were so hard and many.

“Yeessss!” was Sansa’s sibilant reply.

“They want you Sansa. They want us to be one big happy brood of hens. They want to bow down before you as I do. You are the cock and we are you hens if you want us. I am yours no matter and will forgo if you demand it. I’m yours totally.”

She wiggled into her lover sighing.

“It would be so beautiful. I grew up and came of age with them. I do miss them so but my life is with you Sansa. I will not jepord— “ she stopped when Sansa put her finger on her lips.

Sansa rocked her body to give Margaery the soft motions she liked and rubbed her back. Margaery cooed. She supposed it was too much to ask for.

Sansa brought her mouth to Margaery’s ear and traced the delicate shell with her tongue tip.
Margaery shivered in primal want. Gods what this woman did to her. Sansa breathed warm breath into her ear making Margaery whimper. Then she spoke softly. “I can’t wait to meet your brood Margaery … and fuck them soooo good. I will suck them off in turn and claim them as I claim you my sweet slut! I am brave and sure enough in our love to share both you and myself with your brood. It will be soooo good.”

Margaery softly wept in such happiness. Sansa tilted Margaery body away from her body. Sansa leaned down and kissed away Margaery’s tears of pure happiness. Sansa was her perfect mate!
Sansa hummed rubbing Margaery’s back. Sansa was so happy but for her concern for her mother.

Sansa reached out and stroked her mother’s pale forearm. She had had her conflicts with her mother but she had resolved them when her mother accepted her homosexuality and her love for Margaery so completely. Catelyn had softened so much recently. Her father getting her mother to accept her daughters’ true natures seemed to have made her mother reevaluate so many things.
Her mother had literally thrown herself into her efforts when she had the strength on planning their weddings. Her mother just had to be at the weddings. Sansa knew life moved on and all must die but her mother was still so young. She could not go down that road with her thoughts.

She and Margaery sat in their chair and Sansa smiled feeling Margaery asleep her face snuggled onto her bosom. Her sweet love snored softly. Her lover helped her with castle duties, war planning when necessary and still carved out major portions of her day and nights to care for her mother. It only made her love Margaery all the more.

Sansa would be exhausted after intense lovemaking. She would snuggle with Margaery and go to sleep. When she would awake in the night she would feel Margaery missing. She panicked the first few times getting up and searching desperately for her love fearing she had grown tired of her. Her insecurities flooding her body and shattering her new found confidence like a dropped fine porcelain cup.

She found her lover with her mother comforting her and talking to her mother. A few times she had gotten on the bed and gone to asleep beside Catelyn gently holding her increasingly frail mother. Her mother had soaked up the love. Sansa was so grateful for her lover’s great big heart.

Sansa had decided if Margaery could love so many so could she. She was satisfied that Margaery’s hens and herself were the only ones that would touch Margaery’s heart and soul. Their sex was just a manifestation of that love. Margaery relayed how her hens were fucking the maid staff bowlegged in King’s Landing. Sansa had been at first shocked but her thoughts had changed totally. Now she hungered to fuck these women along with Margaery and their hens. Pleasure should be shared with many. The love would be for Sansa and her hens with Margaery being her Queen Hen.

An hour later Maester Luwin came in. He came up to Sansa who looked up at him. Margaery woke up and smiled at the kindly man.

He smiled gently. “Let me sit awhile with your mother. An outrider has just returned from the picket line. Your father is coming. He saw the Queen’s dragons take to the air. Rumor from my Maester brothers is that the Queen likes to make a grand entrance.”

Margaery got up and stretched. She helped Sansa up. Catelyn was still asleep. She slept too much Margaery worried. Still the Maester thought the gravest danger had passed with Catelyn reaching full term with the baby.

She and Sansa hurried to the kitchen and grabbed a chicken pot pie and a glass of milk each and took their food to the castle walls and stood over the main east gate. They chatted and feed each other. If their father was coming home and the Queen was with them then it could only mean Arya was with them.

Margaery was excited. Things between her and the wild wolf child had calmed down greatly since she had tried to rip Arya’s hair out for daring to pluck her sweet Sansa’s ear. The girl was charming and nice once you got past her rough tomboy ways.

They finished their meal and were drinking their milk when they appeared on the Southern horizon. People on the walkway were suddenly pointing and tension mounted in the air. Sansa’s breath caught. She saw off several miles a black star that swallowed the light with two glowing stars circling off to either side. The stars come down from the heavens floating effortlessly in the sky.

The dragons circled for a time marking time. Then she gasped as the dragons suddenly picked up speed and started a sharp glide down. The dragons were angling in their direction and she realized that the dragons were aiming for the East Gate. The gate they were standing over. The dragons now were just over the ground and coming impossibly fast towards the castle wall.

They were too low! They were below the top of the curtain wall of Winterfell. Margaery had lost sight of them. The crash would be horrible! Sansa squealed and buried her face in Margaery’s hair. At the last possible moment the dragon’s glided up just over castle walls fast like crossbow bolts in a hurricane of wind that buffeted and shook the young lovers. The people around them were screaming in happiness at the audacity and skill of the Queen and her dragons. Margaery’s eyes had bulged out seeing the dragons’ bellies, legs and tails whipping by just above their heads.

The dragons roared over her head the heat from Drogon like hot summer breeze as he flashed past. “Holy shit!” she exclaimed. Sansa squealed again as Margaery turned her head to track the dragons split and zoomed around the Great Keep and disappeared for a moment only to appear further on gaining altitude. Holy snap they had balls!

For the next forty minutes the dragons performed wild acrobatics. Slowly Sansa got comfortable enough with the aerial feats to not constantly push her face into Margaery’s hair and not squeal like a stuck pig. That was reserved for their bedroom! Margaery groused to herself. She was the only who should be able to make Sansa squeal like that! Well her hens too but they were in King’s Landing.

On the third pass by the black dragon over the east gate they finally saw what they had hoped to see. The dragon’s body was tilted over flying between the bell and library tower. The black dragon flashing behind the library tower like a mirage and then it was over the south wall and again flying up.

Sansa was squealing again. “Did you see? Did you see??”

“Yes I did my love!”

On Drogon’s back was the Queen with her long white hair whipping in the slipstream of the dragon’s fast flying body. On the Queen’s back was a woman with shoulder blade length brown hair hugging the Queen’s body tight as she leaned into the Targaryen.

Margaery was elated. Arya had bed the Queen! She couldn’t wait to hear all the juicy wet details. Gods she loved having sex described to her almost as much as seeing and doing it!

Sansa was squealing and jumping up and down in her happiness for her sister. Sansa’s breast bouncing on her chest was doing very pleasant things to Margaery’s pussy and nipples! Gods she was going to ab-so-fucking-ly devour her sweetie tonight!

Margaery and her sweet wolf were thoroughly entertained by the dragons and their riders. The way they dove and barely missed the edifices of Winterfell and Winter town. One time Viserion actually plowed a field in the compound he flew so low with his dangling claws. You would be looking at one dragon and suddenly from behind another dragon or maybe two! would swoop by.

One time the dragons flew in a loose triangle keeping perfect formation on several passes and then flew straight up and at thousand feet went off in different directions as they rolled to upright and flew off to gather speed for another pass.

Then the dragons stated to roar with near ear splitting roars and bugling. Soon long peals of fire filled the sky. Each mighty roar of fire made loud screams of joy erupt around the large Winterfell compound and in Wintertown.

All too soon her new father’s party had arrived at the East gate and the dragons were landing. Sansa was filled with energy and passion. Gods she was going to be so randy tonight Margaery thought lasciviously. Margaery shivered at what sweet debaucheries she and her sweet would do tonight. She knew she would be on her knees giving head to Sansa’s thick long strap-on gagging on it as she did deep throat. She prided herself on her oral skills. She had thought that if she had had to marry some male she had better get good orally to make them come fast so she could get back to her hens.

Then Sansa would pound the living shit out her happy pussy and ass. Margaery shivered again as Sansa jerked her along behind her and down to the ground. Margaery loved it when Sansa controlled her body so easily. She looked at Sansa’s ass as her love dragged her along. Then they were hugging her father and he was so happy to see her. HER! Gods she loved that man. She looked over at Daenerys and Arya. She frowned.

Something was most definitely not right. With that wild ride they should be so pumped up they would be all over each other. Both women were flushed and covered with sweat from all the exertions of holding on for dear life from the wild gyrations of the dragons. Wild exertions got the blood to flowing and the libido a rocking Margaery knew. The two should be all over each other in a hot lover’s clench with arms wrapped around each other pulling each other tight to their lover’s body. Margaery was waiting to see some hot tongue actions and then … welllll … nothing? What the fuck!

They stood close but not close enough. Daenerys was eating Arya alive with her eyes but not her hands and mouth. Eddard said something to Daenerys and her mouth nearly unhinged but a look of elation quickly filled her face. Arya moved into Winterfell to go see her mother.

She left Sansa who was staring agog at Rhaegal who lowered his head and she was petting his head. Geez! Sansa was squealing again. She was only supposed to squeal like that for her and in the future with their hens. She sounded like she was having a freaking orgasm!

Arya was nearing the Great Keep entryway when she caught up to Arya.

Arya hugged her. While they embraced “What is wrong Arya? Why aren’t you and the Queen fucking … okay let me calm down … why haven’t you bed the Queen?” as they walked into the keep.

“Oh Margaery!” Arya exclaimed. “I have been so unsure. I was convinced she did not love me. Well I would think she did but then I was sure she did not love me! It has been so fucking frustrating.”

Margaery was godssmacked. Arya was not a wolf but a Chihuahua! This was unacceptable! Had Arya been all blather?!

“But that changed today. She looked at me with raw lust! Dany looked at me like she never has before. It was direct and I felt a connection with her that was so fucking primal!” Arya nearly panted.

Margaery did not hear that. She was still processing that Arya and Daenerys had not been shagging for months.

“Arya my gods! She is eating you alive with her eyes. She wants you so bad it is almost painful to see.”

They were walking slowly moving up to the royal quarters talking softly.

“You think so? She seems to have really changed today! Am I fooling myself?” Arya asked with rising hope.

“Arya one thing I know is desire … it pouring off her in waves and all of it directed towards you … my gods Arya when she fucks you—you are going to scream so loud. That woman exudes sexual prowess and animal skills … you do remember what I told you don’t you?”

Arya blushed hard “Yes” she replied bashfully.

“Good. I want you to give as well as you get. Make her scream and fill your mouth with her cum Arya. You hear me!”

Arya

“Yes! Yes Margaery. I feel more confident already. If I had had you in King’s Landing I would have bedded her long ago!” Arya spoke confidently but she feared she would wilt again once separated from her coach. True she had seen a fire in Daenerys eyes today that had her body on fire. It was just that Daenerys was so worldly and knowing while she felt so innocent, sheltered and provincial.

She walked deeper into the Great Keep heading up the stairs to the royal quarters. She already felt her confidence waning a little.

“Margaery? Why hasn’t Dany taken me if she is so hot for me? Shouldn’t she have forced herself on me if she wanted me so bad? Seduced me?”

The two walked on and Arya could see Margaery thinking hard on the subject. “You know I can see your viewpoint … but I think I know why not.” She looked at Arya with a thoughtful look.

“I have read all the files your father has gathered on your Queen. She was sold off to Khal Drogo at age thirteen and raped and taken as his wife. I think that would have broken must innocents as all the reports made clear Daenerys was at that point. She was small, sacred young girl sold into slavery basically. She was taken by a man she did not love every night. She was only a fuck toy for his enjoyment to begin with. The Willy woman soon bent the Khal to her will but that was not how that relationship started. No. To begin, Daenerys Targaryen was a scared little girl.

“I think that has made her extremely hesitant to ever ‘force’ herself on a woman. She knows to intimately what it means to be raped.”

Arya nodded her head. She could definitely see that in Daenerys. She was always so solicitous towards her. It warmed her heart just thinking on it. Daenerys was quick to offer support and give her shoulders rubs she did not need. She always wanted to hear her thoughts and share their meals. Daenerys listened to all Arya had to say and Arya could tell that Daenerys always gave Arya her full attention.

“What I can’t fathom is why she ignored your overtures?”

They walked down the hall in silence. Arya saw Margaery look at her with at first a questioning look and then one of rising frustration.

“You did signal your desires to her by flirting with her … shamelessly?” Margaery asked Arya with a tone of shocked wonder.

Arya continued to walk down the hall looking down and in silence.
Margaery slapped her forehead with her palm. “Arya Arya … my sweet little Chihuahua …” Margaery repeated Chihuahua several times under her breath shaking her head in disbelief.

“Stop calling me that!” Arya retorted hotly.

Margaery turned her head slightly and arched a perfect eyebrow “How many times did you show Daenerys affections or desires … did you ever flirt with her?”

“Nooooooo!” Arya whined. “I expected her to lead us!”

“Yes that is strange. I guess the ghost of the Dothraki Sea still haunts her. I feel though that the way I saw her looking at you outside the gates that she has decided to make her desires known to you Arya. … Please don’t blow it when she does.”

“Aarrggggg!” Arya ground out. She promised herself she would be ready.

They reached the door to her parent’s chambers. Margaery gripped her arm lightly.

“Arya. Your mother’s pregnancy has been rough on her. She is worn down but Maester Luwin tells us that the worst is passed. She should give birth at any time now. Then she can heal. Your mother is still young but somewhat old to be with child.”

Arya nodded her head and Margaery opened the door. She saw Maester Luwin sitting by the bed. He obscured her full view of her mother as she stepped into the room.

She noticed her father was gone. He must have done a quick check on his wife and seen her okay and then rushed off doing important Warden duties.

“Hhhuuunnggggg!” Arya gasped stepping around the Maester and seeing her mother for the first time since she left nearly seven months ago. She shivered hard. When she had left her mother was full of strength and vigor and her body strong and pink with health.

This was not the woman she saw lying on the bed with Lady lying beside that woman. The wolf looking worried at the woman’s drawn sleeping face. This woman resembled her mother but was only a shadow of her. Her skin was pale and callow. Her hair lank and lifeless. Her eyes were sunken as were her cheeks. Her hands looked skeletal. Her belly was big with child but her arms and legs were too thin.

Arya felt alarm in the marrow of her bones.

Maester Luwin got up and came to Arya and gripped her shoulders gently. “Child it is not as bad as it seems. Your mother has had a difficult pregnancy but she has stabilized over the last several weeks. I feel that once the child is delivered she will mend.”

“The child is healthy and strong. It kicks constantly and changing positions. It has lowered in her womb positioning itself for its birth.”

“I cannot be sure but some Maesters have written of this condition. It is rare and not all believe in it. In some way the blood of the child and the mother is mixing and the baby is in effect poisoning your mother. All women go through this. This is why women have morning sickness and their stomachs as so nauseous. But the woman’s body adjusts. Unfortunately, sometimes it does not as in your mother’s case.”

“Once the child, the source of the ‘poison’ is removed, then the mother’s body can heal. Soon your mother will be healing.”
“Are you sure?” Arya asked worriedly.

“Nothing is certain in this life sweet child … but women recover from cases as severe as this. I don’t see why your mother should not be one of those women.

Margaery looked at Maester Luwin. “You never said this before. Why not?”

“I did not want to worry everyone with something we cannot change. I did not want to plant the seeds that the child itself was the malady. It would not have changed anything knowing this and some may have said to force the pregnancy before the baby was ready. No. Catelyn Stark will give birth soon and the crises will have passed.”

Arya clung to that. She sat down in the chair that the Maester had been sitting in. Her worries over Dany temporarily forgotten. She took her mother’s hand and stroked it gently.

Arya now felt extreme guilt for every cross word she had ever had with her mother. Maybe she could have been less angry and tried to at least see her mother’s side.

Margaery and Maester Luwin pulled over several more chairs. Margaery joined Arya and they made small talk watching Arya’s mother.

Half an hour later Lady raised her head and her tail swished excitedly. Sansa came in. She talked to Maester Luwin who had gone to meet Sansa by the door. They talked quietly. She then came into the room.

Arya stood up and hugged her sister tightly. Seeing her mother like this made her appreciate her sister like she had never before. Sansa sat in the chair on the other side of Margaery and joined in the vigil over Catelyn Stark.

After another fifteen minutes the Maester came over with a bowl of cool water and he gently toweled Arya’s mother’s forehead with it.

Catelyn’s eyelids fluttered and she came awake. She looked at the three women sitting beside her. She smiled weakly at Sansa and Margaery. Then her eyes registered Arya and her smile suddenly became stronger and brighter. “Arya” she spoke weakly “Oh my sweet child. You’ve come back in time to greet your new brother into the world. Oh how I have prayed for this Arya.”

Arya felt a lump form in her throat. “I would not miss the blessed event for anything mother. You are looking good.”

Catelyn smiled weakly. “I do feel better. I feel I am recovering. Maester Luwin has been taking very good care of me. But it has been Margaery Tyrell that has made this pregnancy bearable. She has been a godsend sent by the seven.”

Margaery blushed and then blushed harder when Catelyn gripped her hand with both of her bony hands.

“My daughter could never have made a better choice in a mate than you my sweet Margaery Tyrell. I will ever thank the Mother for sending you here to Winterfell.”

The Maester sat down on the other side of Catelyn. Lady jumped off the bed and sat down between Margaery and Sansa and woofed softly when both women scratched her head and ears.

Margaery, Sansa and Arya helped her mother sit up as they piled pillows behind her. Maester Luwin spoon fed their mother a warm broth of chicken soup and medicinal herbs. Some color returned to Catelyn’s cheeks. Catelyn seemed to have her strength returning.

Maybe the Maester was right. Arya heard the door opening again and being gently closed. She sensed two presences that were a part of her. Her father and the love of her life stepped into view beside on the open side of the bed.

Arya’s mother saw her husband and reached out to her husband. Her eyes leaked several tears. “I can feel the baby kicking Ned. Your son is so strong. Just like you my husband.”

Eddard gave his wife his most winning squint smile and came beside the bed and got down on one knee and took her hand and gently kissed it. All the women in the room knew that this was true love between two souls. All longed for such love. Two knew they had it and two more longed to be sure of such love.

As her father talked gently to her mother Arya looked at Daenerys. She had seen the shock register on Daenerys face when she first saw her mother. She was sure her face had registered such a shock. She knew she had the same thought that she had first seen her mother.

She is dying. She had been rocked to her core. Dany had hid it immediately with her face of regal calm and control but Arya had seen. She watched Dany move to the other side of the bed. Her mother was indeed looking stronger. The broth was reviving her. Arya felt better. Maybe their initial observations had been incorrect.

The Queen of Westeros went down to one knee beside her mother’s bed. Catelyn looked at her and then registered who this must be. She started to try and get up.

‘No Catelyn! Stay in bed and conserve your strength. I have come to pay homage to the wife of the Warden of the North and to give my salutations and my blessing on the miracle of life you are about to bring forth into the world.”

“When is the girl due?”

“My son should be born at any time” Arya’s mother replied. Arya sighed. Somethings never changed. Arya smiled softly. “I will give my husband another fine strong son. A son who will become a strong Lord or Knight. My husband deserves another fine son.”

“Of course my loyal Queen of the North. My mistake. I once had a daughter so I guess my heart always leans that way.”

All saw the pain that crossed the Queen’s face.

Arya longed to take Dany into her arms and kiss away her hurt.

Catelyn looked unsure afraid she had upset the Queen.

“Do not worry Catelyn. We all have our preferences for a child and it was a long time ago now.”

The Maester had brought over several more chairs. Eddard and the Queen sat down. Eddard near his wife and the Queen by Arya.

Dany took Arya’s hand and squeezed it. “I’m sure your mother will be alright Arya. She is under expert care. She is looking better” Daenerys spoke softly to Arya. The Queen went to release her hand and Arya reached over with her other hand to take Dany’s hand in both of her hands. She ran her thumb along the top of Dany’s hand. She watched Dany’s body relax and eyelids flutter closed. Yes. She needed to show Daenerys her true feelings.
The Maester was able to feed Arya’s mother two bowls of the medicinal broth and her mother did indeed look better. She now had color to her cheeks. She seemed stronger. Her voice talking to them was stronger. Her husband made her chuckle and his insights made her nod in agreement.

Arya was thrilled hearing her mother ask Sansa and Margaery if they were thinking of their bridal gowns. They then talked of that for fifteen minutes. Arya saw her mother looking at her and Dany. She saw her father catch her mother’s eyes and shake his head subtly ‘no’. Now was not the time.

Half an hour later Eddard and Daenerys had to excuse themselves. They had more war meetings to attend. He gently called to Sansa. She got up and left with them. Arya and Margaery moved in closer to be near their mother.

An hour later Catelyn had gone to sleep. Color had returned to her face and hands. Arya felt great relief. Maester Luwin must be right.

She went down to the kitchen and ate with the staff and some maids. Margaery had gone to join in the war meetings. All were getting ready for the final push to the wall and war. Arya knew that Eddard and her Queen were busy working on strategy. Her sister and her lover had gone to join them.

Those things did not interest Arya in the least. She heard a whoof and Nymeria had came bounding in and ate the chicken off Arya’s plate. With the wild acrobatics they had done today Nymeria had not been able to be on the ride. Arya had sent her wolf off the night before to run with her Northern brothers and sisters.

Arya picked out pine needles and brambles from her wolf’s fur. She then scratched her ears as she asked for a big plate of chicken legs and breast. Nymeria dug into the plate happily wolfing down the food.

As Arya scratched her wolf Arya thought she was like her Direwolf. She was a warrior and not a general. She wanted to be pointed toward her Dany’s enemies and she would dispatch them. She was more than happy to let her Queen, father and siblings plan the war. She would fight in it. That was enough for her.

Arya looked around the kitchen. All was as she had left it. The people were happy and full of gaiety. Her father’s realm was well. She knew that Robb would continue the good rule of the North.

Now Westeros had a chance to know the same type of wise benevolent rule. Dany would be a great Queen that minstrels would sing about. She only hoped that the minstrels would sing of her beautiful warrior Queen at Daenerys’s side who was always beside Daenerys in her Queen’s battles. Or off in on special mission serving her Queen.

She wondered again about what her mission in Braavos would entail. She did not want to leave Dany but she also wanted to prove herself to Dany. You can depend on me Dany to do your service Arya thought to herself. She wanted to show Dany she able to meet any challenge set before them.

Her talk with Margaery had bucked up her backbone. It was time for her and Dany to become lovers. She would try and not be a “chicken shit” anymore. She smiled at her derogatory term for herself.

It was hard to keep your confidence when the object of your lust is so fucking hot. She would grip her courage and not shy away when the opportunity arose again.
She was sure she would not falter. She was positive. Well pretty sure. Kinda sure. Arrraggggg!

Arya yawned. It had been a long day. She got up and a chambermaid greeted her.

“You are tired my lady. Your bedchambers have been refreshed and the fire lit.”

Arya shook her head. She was tired. Nymeria came up beside Arya as she walked out the kitchen.

Tomorrow was another day full of possibilities.
Revelations

Chapter Notes

AN #1: had major brain freeze setting up to post next chapter and wound out deleting first two chapters. Had to restore so you may be getting prompt i have published today.

Posting chapter 45 a day early.

Revelations

Sansa / Eddard / Daenerys / Arya / Daenerys

Sansa

Sansa was standing on the walkway on the curtain wall over the east gate. Sansa loved looking out over the land of her birth. The air was cold and crisp. The air was still and she could hear the sounds of birds chirping in their roosts along the eves of the buildings. Other birds flitting in the bushes looked for any unpicked berries. She smelled wood and coal oil in the air. Sansa looked at the chimneys of Winter Town. Smoke curling out the brick chimneys. The smoke spreading out forming layers in the still air. She counted three layers Master Luwin had told her that the reason for the different layers were the different properties of wood and coal oil. Each being different from the other and thus picked a different height to settle out. Each type of wood drifting out to its own layer in the damp morning air. She loved this smell. She called it the smell of ‘morning’. The air heavy with moisture from the previous night’s condensate trapping the night’s burn of heating fuel. She had always smelt this smell since she was a little girl. To Sansa this was the smell of home.

Sansa looked up at the bright sun burning low in sky. The rays of sunlight making the trees of the Wolfswood seem to be magical with how they glowed a vibrant green. The stands of trees marching off to the horizon. The conifers like pillars reaching up to the heavens. She had always wondered if magical creatures still walked those woods. She doubted it but she did wonder.

She agreed whole heartedly with her father’s decree that all predator species were to be protected. She hoped to one day have other Direwolves running wild and free below the wall. She felt Lady brush up against her leg. The wolf whined when she was not patted. Sansa reached out absentely and scratched Lady’s ear. The Wolf whined in pleasure pressing into the fingers. Her long tongue licking the hand giving her so much pleasure. The wolf sat down and leaned into the hand giving her the scratches she craved from her mistress.

Sansa had so much to be happy about. Her love had come to her and she would never have to worry about Margaery again being taken from her. Her father and now mother would have them wed. Sansa shivered just thinking of the triple wedding that her parents were planning. She rested her elbows on the embrasure and basked in the warm sun. She had on a cape of sable that highlighted her auburn hair that ran down her back.
Her mother had made a miraculous recovery it seemed. She had been fading away and it had set a pall over the castle. All had been so afraid that she would not bring her baby to term and both would perish. It seemed like Arya and Daenerys sudden appearance had caused her mother to rebound. Sansa smiled at the sight of her mother cooing and all lovey-dovey with Arya. It seemed the rancor of the past had been swept underneath the rugs. Sansa was happy for that.

Sansa again reflected on how much improved her mother’s health had become. She had been so wane. Her skin pallor made Sansa and Margaery think of death. Her mother had not been able to eat. Caitlyn Stark was eating the broth that she was fed and eating a little chicken now. Her color had started to return. Sansa had been saying prayers to both the old gods and to the Seven especially the Mother. She was not sure she believed in the gods but she was thankful for whatever had allowed her mother to rebound.

There had been meetings long into the night. Her father had wanted to work immediately to get the Queen up to speed on his plans and vice versa. She had been impressed with Daenerys. The pale Queen had immediately grasped all she was told. Her father had asked Sansa to give the Queen an update on her schedule on getting troops and material to the wall in the most expeditious manner. This was an honor and Sansa looked at her father gratefully. It was so nice to have her father fully supporting her and Margaery.

The Queen had smiled at her with a dazzling smile and congratulated Sansa on her excellent grasp on logistics and ability to schedule movements of troop and material. She told Sansa she wanted her to meet Missandei. She was sure they could assist each other. It was obvious from the way Daenerys talked of her scribe that she felt a deep friendship for the woman. Sansa wondered if this woman had somehow come between Arya and Daenerys. She had been able to dispel those doubts when she saw Daenerys devouring Arya with her eyes.

Sansa had felt the charisma flowing off the small woman. She seemed much taller than her barely five foot stature. Her power and prowess made her seem much taller. She would never seem like six foot six inches though. Sansa still chuckled with how Arya thought Daenerys was some tall mythological warrior from the hidden isles off the west coast of Sothoryos. Supposedly, there was an archipelago of islands ruled by a race of Amazon women. The warriors fierce in combat. They were reclusive not wanting the interference of man in their Sapphic society. Sansa wondered if the legends were true.

She would have to talk to Arya about what she thought when she first met the Queen and her future wife. It must have been quite the shock seeing your future wife not quite what you had imagined her to be. Losing eighteen inches in height had to be a shock. Still, having eighteen inches difference in height would present challenges in the bedroom Sansa thought evilly. She loved the four inches in height with Margaery but that was quite enough. There was only three inches difference between Arya and the Queen.

Perfect for hot sixty-nine pussy gobbling Sansa leered. The bigger the height difference the more one had to work the angles and bend ones neck. Sansa was becoming the expert in lesbian lovemaking. She had definitely caught up with her sweet love. She did have a flock of hens to pluck and devour Sansa thought evilly. Margaery had totally liberated Sansa and she was thankful. Margaery and she had a great future together along with their hens and other women they would draw into their web.

She had talked to Margaery last night when they got to their chambers about her little sister.

“Did you find out why they are aren’t lovers? Gods they have it so bad for each other. They were undressing each other with their eyes. Their fuck hunger for each other is so evident.” Sansa had been almost flabbergasted at how such lust could not be consummated. She had so quickly fallen to Margaery’s charms and the Queen was a known lothario when it came to seducing and fucking women while on her march across Essos.

Olenna moths had reported that Daenerys had worn out the whores of King’s Landing. That had stopped once a certain young Direwolf bitch had made an appearance. Margaery and Sansa had not received any reports of the coupling of a certain Dragon and Direwolf but assumed Olenna was for some reason parsing that information out in her missives to Margaery. Probably making the pair of lover’s stew in their juices wanting the juicy details. Sansa had learned she loved reading and hearing about great hot lesbo sex.

Margaery had told Sansa that Arya talked a good game but in some ways she was still an innocent. “Arya did not know how to bed Daenerys, Sansa. When I knew you were the one I set about seducing you. You were mine and I made sure you were soon in my arms and your sweet pussy in my mouth.” Sansa blushed at the sweet memories. Margaery was right. Margaery had strummed her like a minstrel playing his lute.

Arya was four years younger than the Queen and it showed. Daenerys was worldly in her manner and knowledge of sex. Arya was still innocent and a novice to matters of the heart and of the body. The young wolf cub did not have the knowledge or belief in her charms and wiles to seduce her Dragon Queen.

A smirk crossed Margaery’s face and Sansa cocked an eyebrow asking for an explanation.

“Your family banner is the Direwolf. Arya is living up to your banner or should I say down in this case.” Sansa flexed up her eyebrow again. “Your little sister is all bark and no bite. She simply wilted around the Queen. I fear she is too much like you when I found you my sweet” Margaery husked stroking Sansa’s arm. The touch sweet and sensual. “I fear your sister is still a pup. She is not the mature bitch you are my sweet.”

Sansa smiled. Margaery said the sweetest things. Sansa had to agree with Margaery’s assessment of the situation. She too had been the shy pup when Margaery came to her.

Sansa could understand that. It had been Margaery that led her seduction into the beautiful world of lesbian lovemaking. Margaery had been so subtle as she built the fire in Sansa’s belly. Sansa had been so ready to give her woman her maidenhead. Sansa still cringed at her debacle at that moment but thank the gods Margaery loved her so much she forgave it.

How could she have let her mother cow her so much she nearly threw away paradise!

“Why hasn’t the Queen seduced my little sister like you seduced me? You had me so ready to spread my legs like a Lysian whore. I was so fucking wet for your baby!” Sansa could feel her nipples hardening and her pussy getting wet with desire. Merely thinking back to their first night together had Sansa’s short clothes sopping wet with her flowing twat juice. She wanted Margaery so bad. Sansa had been tired from the last day’s excitement but she felt her body reviving. All this talk of Arya and the Queen not having sex had ignited the fire in her loins. She ached to again have her sweet Margaery. She needed to fuck her sweet rose.

They had been sitting on the bed discussing matters. She stood up and started to take off her dress. She turned to face Margaery as she worked the laces and buttons on her dress. Her eyes telling her lover what she needed. Margaery slowly stood up and began to undress her own hot body. They maintained eye contact as they disrobed for each other. Hands trembled undoing buttons and knots of lace and fabric.

Margaery told Sansa her theory of the Queen’s strange reticence. “I am confused like you as to why Daenerys has not seduced your sister. But I have been putting a lot of thought into it. You would have thought she would have led your sister to her bed and her mouth as easily as I did you.”

Sansa felt her body shake remembering with sweet shivers how Margaery had plucked her body like a minstrel plucking his lute. Like a minstrel made his instrument vibrate and produce sweet melodies Margaery had made her body sing a song of lust and love. The notes quickly scaling up to shrieks of agonizing fucking bliss. Gods Margaery always made Sansa cum so fucking hard!

“I think I know though. Daenerys was sold off as a prize by her brother Viserys to Khal Drogo as payment for his services. It is hard to think of the confident woman we see as a shy thirteen year old girl but she had been that when she was sold into slavery in all but name. From what my grandmother has found out, Daenerys was treated like shit by the Khal at first. He fucked her like a heifer. Viserys boasted how Daenerys was just a piece of shit in his designs to regain his thrown. Then Khal Drogo raped her night after night.”

“I shake in fear and ire to think of that Sansa. To be degraded by my brother. That is horrible. Loras has only been the best to me. Then it only got worse for the poor girl.”

Margaery shivered as did Sansa. “I think that would have broken me. To be raped like that night after night.”

Sansa saw the fire go out of Margaery’s eyes and she moved in quick to hug her lover. They wrapped their arms around each other tight. Sansa wondered if she could have survived that treatment herself. To be viciously attacked by Robb demeaning and demoralizing her and then selling her off as throwaway trinket. To be sold to a man who only viewed her as a toy for his cock. How had Daenerys done it? To be a whore slave in all but name and then to become the mightiest warrior and cunning leader of this age and maybe any age.

She kissed Margaery on the temple. Recovered they separated and started to undress again eyeing each other hungrily.

“Thank you love” Margaery cooed to Sansa “you always know when to give me some sugar to make me strong again.” Sansa dropped her dress and then shucked down her short clothes to stand naked and proud before Margaery.

“Uunngggggg!” Margaery moaned seeing Sansa’s long thick nipples so hard and waiting for her mouth. Sansa’s pale skin flushed around the throat with arousal for her. She looked down at a wet swollen bald pussy with lips swelling and blooming out her sweetie’s slit like a beautiful orchid. She felt her own nipples and pussy on fire. Her twat so wet.

With shaky fingers Margaery plucked at her buttons feebly. Her knees were wobbly with desire for her sweet red haired wolf. Margaery felt cum soaking her silk short clothes. Sansa came up to her and helped her to undo the sties, hoops and strings of Margaery’s dress. “I’m going to fuck you with my strap-on tonight Margaery. I’m going to plow you doggy. I love how our lips cling to my big thick dick as I slam it home deep up that hot tight cunt. I’m going to make you cum hard on my cock. Then I’m going to nail your ass to the bed with my big always hard cock.”

Sansa saw Margaery’s eyes go glassy her breathing hitched and was raspy with fuck want.

“I will bark at you to reach back and pull you ass cheeks apart so I can watch my dick slam balls deep up your shithole. I will fuck your ass so hard and then pull out and let you suck your ass off my dick. I will fist your hair and pull you around to my dick waving in front of you. I then will jam my dickhead into your pink lips demanding you to suck your hot sweet asshole off my dick. You love that don’t you my anal slut” Sansa cooed to her lover. She smiled seeing the lust hot in Margaery’s eyes.

“Yessssss!” I love sucking my sweet shit juice off your love dick Sansa. I need it!“ Margaery croaked to her lover.

Sansa loved seeing the love and lust shivers shake Margaery’s body. Margaery loved to talk “shit” and encouraged Sansa at every turn to talk to her like that. It made them both so hot for it.

“After your ass explodes on my dick I will then take your tight pussy again and fuck both holes back and forth. I know how much you love A2P and doing ATM over and over. I will mount you Septa and slam my dick so hard balls deep up your tight clinging cunt. My cockhead bashing your cervix. You will explode on my dick buried up your tight cunt.”

“Oohhhhhh!” Margaery bleated dazed by how good Sansa talked dirty and potty mouth now. Gods she loved it when her wolf took her and rode her like a bitch in heat. She loved how Sansa, her once shy wolf, now was so adult and grown up. She reveled in talking sweet hot slutty words to Margaery. It made her cunt sloppy wet. It made her asshole spasm in wanton need.

Sansa saw the effect her words had on her beautiful rose. She wanted to make things wait a moment and she did want to hear Margaery’s ideas on why her sister and the Queen had not shagged yet.

“Finish your theory my sweet rose.”

“Oh Sansa—you bitch you. Making me wait for it—but I like it you hot temptress you” Margaery took a breath to collect her thoughts … “I think Daenerys still remembers her vile treatment deep in her bones. She is overcompensating I think. She will never force herself on an innocent. Our Arya may be rash and aggressive but she is still an innocent in the matters of love. That comes crashing through. You were too but I had no crimes hindering my desires. I wanted you as my mate and claimed you.”

Sansa groaned at the hot loving words. She felt her nipples pulse and her pussy sopping wet with desire. Sansa felt cum begin to trickle down her strong muscular thighs. Legs that slightly spasm with the desire to start fucking. Sansa thanked the seven every night that out of all the women Margaery could have chosen she chose her.

“Daenerys fears to move to hard or fast on Arya because she herself was once that girl. She fears to impose her will on an ‘innocent’”.

“But Arya is soooo in love with her. She is practically drooling over Daenerys.”

“Yes. I asked Arya about that.”

“And.”

“Your sister talks a good game but she is really a wussee. I asked her if she had let Daenerys know of her love. Had she flirted or responded to any overtures from the Queen.”

“What did she say?”

“She basically looked at her shoes. I fear Sansa, that you little sister despite all her boasting is quite the shy flower when in the Queen’s presence. She told me she never flirted with Daenerys. She never let the Queen know of her carnal desires for her hot body. I can see Daenerys with her hesitancy wilting when in Arya’s presence and not having Arya respond to her overtures. I am sure Daenerys sent out signals and your fool sister either missed them or was too timid to respond to the Queen’s overtures.”
“Oh my gods” Sansa groused. “I am so going to rub her nose in it after all that trash talking about making the Queen hers!” Sansa started laughing. Her chuckles turned to groans seeing Margaery’s dress fall to the floor. They both eschew short clothes usually being naughty but they hadn’t because of the meetings with the Queen. Plus, it made it easy to cop a feel.

Margaery hooked her fingers at the top of her short clothes and jerked them first off her hips and then down her thighs were they fell to the floor around her feet. The Tyrell woman stepped out of them.

Sansa started to pant seeing Margaery’s hot body on full display in front of her. She looked at Margaery’s small up titled doves with their sweet brown nipples. The little nips rock hard and her areolas steeple. Sansa’s eyes traveled down the sweet lithesome body. Her eyes devoured the swell of the Tyrell’s hips and then feasted on the shaved snatch all wet and swollen. Margaery’s pussy was slicked with cum. Her inner lips bloomed out Margaery’s slit. The inner lips medium brown with the mound all pink and swollen. Margaery’s cunt said only one thing to Sansa.

Devour me. She was up to the challenge.

They slowly walked together and pressed heated bodies into each other. Their arms started to snake around each other’s torsos and begin to pull each other into their bodies. Their perfect skin melding as they pressed into each other. Sansa looked down at Margaery as she snaked her arms around her rose’s slender waist. Her rose gripped her ass and breast possessively and roughly massaged Sansa’s ass cheek and breast filling her body with aching fiery heat. Sansa moaned hard feeling her lover’s hands roughly massaging her ass and tit. The fingers sinking in deep mauling her body like she carved it. Margaery looked up at her with pure lust.

“Oh more thing my sweet … something my grandmother theorizes.”

Sansa kissed her love on her face anxious for Margaery to stop talking so she could devour her with her mouth and then her cock.

“She feels that Daenerys confidence has been harmed by her running into such prejudice to her true desires. Her and Varys sparrows have heard tales of the young Mare Who Mounts the World boasting at the beginning of her conquests how she would take a Queen but got constantly beat down that she must take a man to rule as her consort if she expected to rule. My grandmother feels that has made Daenerys hesitant in the matters of the heart.”

“Her eyes did not say that today. They were on fire looking at my little sister.”

“I agree. I think our Queen has worked it out. Daenerys is now ready to say ‘fuck the world; I will take what I want and deserve.’”

Sansa agreed and had heard enough of theories about her sister and the Queen for now.

She took her rose’s lips between her teeth and nibbled on them as she sucked them in and out her lips. Her own hands now hooked her fingers into Margaery’s firm ass cheek. She roughly gripped Margaery’s ass and humped her rose into her body feeling their wet cunts start to press into each other’s bodies. Sansa dropped her head and claimed the lips she would never stop desiring. She kissed her Rose with soft nips and sucking in of Margaery’s lips. She started to rotate Margaery’s groin forward to grind her swollen cunt into Sansa’s hip. Margaery’s eyes flared with hot lust. The Tyrell hands gripped harder onto Sansa’s ass and breast. Both women latching onto their women with rising fuck hunger.

“Hhhunggg nnggg ohhhhhh!” Margaery whimpered. They could discuss her sister in the morrow Sansa had decided. Now she was going to fuck her Margaery within an inch of her life. All this talk of Daenerys and her little sister had put the fire in Sansa. They had fucked deep into the night. Both women orgasming hard over and over.

Sansa felt the warm sun on her face. Sansa smirked remembering last night as she looked out over the fields. She had moved to the south wall and stood over the South gate. She loved seeing the empty land and the Wolfswood off to the West. Her land was so primal and one could still feel connected to it.

She leaned against the wall and remembered last night feeling her nipples hardening. Margaery had cummed so hard in her mouth as she gripped Margaery’s hips hard to keep her mouth glued to her lover’s cunt as Margaery spasm wildly her body jackknifing with wild flips. Gods Margaery had tasted so good gushing hot cum into Sansa’s mouth. Sansa could still hear the loud noises her mouth made sucking off Margaery. She sounds of a sodden cunt devoured. Her loud gulps filling the room as she drank down the hot gushes spewing out Margaery’s rupturing cunt. Gods she was totally addicted to Margaery’s hot creamy cum! She never would tire of gulping it down again and again.

She had loved how Margaery planted her feet in the mattress the third time Sansa sucked her off last night. Margaery had arched her back to lift her ass off the bed. Sansa had gripped her loves flexing ass cheeks rising up on her knees to keep her love suck on Margaery’s exploding cunt. Margaery had wailed her head thrashing right and left. Spittle sprayed out the Tyrell’s clenched teeth her eyes squeezed tight shut. Sansa had relished each hard ram of Margaery’s snatch into her mouth as she sucked on the bursting clit in her mouth with long ragged deep throat love sucks.

She had then fucked her slut in doggy from behind. Margaery loved getting fucked from behind. She had groaned gutturally feeling Sansa slip her bulbous cockhead into her tight clinging cunt. She whimpered feeling her pussy stretched out tight on the leather sand filled cock sliding deep up into her cunt. Margaery felt so connected to Sansa when her lover slammed her ten inch cock balls deep into her cunt filling her with dick.

Sansa loved looking down and seeing Margaery’s ass and hips ripple with the power of her hips slamming into Margaery’s ass as she slammed her cock deep into her lover’s cunt. She pounded Margaery to a hard orgasm. As she had fucked Margaery, Sansa had pulled on Margaery’s hair with vicious hard neck snapping jerks and slapped the Tyrell’s ass so hard. Her sweet rose groaning and choking in ecstasy. Her hand smacks on Margaery’s ass so loud in the room. Those cheeks now fiery red. Margaery really loved to have her ass smacked and whipped. She also loved to have it fucked but Sansa would take it another night when they had both taken nice warm enemas to get them nice and clean on the inside as on the outside. They had gotten their bodies regulated but it never hurt to be safe.

Margaery had been her bitch as she writhed on Sansa’s dick as she slammed all ten thick inches hard and deep up her woman’s squishing cunt. She wished she could feel the heat and spasming tightness of her lover’s exploding cunt but she thought it a small price to pay. It allowed her totally focus on Margaery. The friction and pressure on her cunny from the harness was enough to keep her stoked.

Margaery had cawed and thrashed as her ass was smacked cherry red and hair pulled hard. The slut rubbed her clit furiously as the orgasm built in her belly. The animalistic groans cawing out from Margaery’s throat was intoxicating to hear. Margaery had simply exploded as she screamed so loud and sweetly as Sansa continued to pound her lover’s exploding box. She could feel Margaery’s cunt juice splattering out around the thick pole hammer fucking Margaery’s twat.

Sansa then decide to take her woman Septon style face to face as strong aftershocks gripped and shook Margaery so hard. Sansa had pulled out of the spasming love box and gripped her groggy lover and roughly pushed her down onto the bed. Margaery landing face first her legs spread obscenely akimbo. Margaery mewled into the sheets her body hitching as strong aftershocks ripped out her slack cunny hole. Sansa smiled seeing creamy snail snot dribbling out Margaery’s pussy hole and soaking the bed. Her seam all bright red and open.

The sight filling Sansa with more raw fuck hunger for Margaery’s hot tight body. She gripped Margaery’s right hip with both hands and jerked Margaery over onto her back. Sansa looked down hungrily at the couchie she had just been fucking like a rabid rabbit. She wanted it again. It was so beautiful all dark red now with orgasmic blood rush. Margaery’s slicked cunt hole still partially open and begging to be fucked again. Sansa got between Margaery’s legs and kneed them out.

Sansa feel forward onto her palm as her other hand guided her thick shaft with its bulbous septon helmet to Margaery’s cunny hole. With a slow love stroke Sansa buried her prick deep into her lover’s belly. She relished seeing Margaery’s face twist with primal pleasure. Sansa settled down to her knees and elbows and began to slow stroke her dick in and out Margaery’s hot tight cunt. Her shaft sliding easily in and out the slicked buttery fuck hole. Sansa slowly picked up her pace now ramming her cock hard and deep up into her sweetie’s tight snatch. Her hips slamming down impaling Margaery’s belly with ram thrusts of hard pure love.

Sansa lowered her body slowly so their bodies melded and ground against each other. Their sweaty bodies slipped and slide as their tits mashed and flattened while their bellies slapped and wallowed against each other in a primal love fuck. Their nipples dug into their mate’s breast as their tits rolled over each other and on their sweaty chests. Sansa loved how their sweaty bodies worked against each other in slippery friction.

Sansa prided herself with just how good she had gotten. Sansa smacked her groin into Margaery’s working her clit with impact and friction. Sansa rotated her hips back and slammed forward to ram her cock hard into Margaery’s cunt balls deep. Her thrusts jerking Margaery’s body forward that little fraction. Margaery groaning deep in her chest. Margaery’s hands gripped Sansa’s body just behind her armpits. Her legs spread to let her wolf fully take her drooling pussy with savage strokes of slamming hips and plunging cock up into her tight snatch.

Sansa varied her technique driving Margaery wild. She had started face to face but had risen up on her palms stroking her lover’s drooling clam shell. She used the angle to slam her strap-on cock savagely deep into the groaning woman’s cunt. Margaery’s face slashed with primal bliss. Sansa then gradually lowered her body again so her weight was on Margaery as she worked her hips to spear her cock hard into Margaery cunt punching her cervix. Margaery had told her deep penetration triggered a response that numbed the cervix and triggered other nerves to kick in.

Sansa loved feeling her full cone shaped tits mashed flat into Margaery’s sweaty upswept doves. Sansa shook her head to get the sweat out of her eyes as it poured off her body in streams now. Their nipples digging and dragging over each other’s tits. Nipples sparking pulses of pleasure when their sweat slicked wallowing bodies had their nipples dragging over each other. The sound loud of sweaty bodies slapping into each other as the two women rutted and fucked each other with total abandon and pure love.

They kissed deeply. Sansa gripped Margaery and rolled the over so Margaery could fuck her top. Margaery rose up on her palms that were by Sansa’s head. Her little doves whipping around on her body as Margaery lunged back to take her lover’s strap-on cock hard and deep up her tight spasming cunt.

Sansa loved gripping Margaery’s waist just above her hips and holding her in place as she speared her cock so hard and deep into Margaery. Then she would relax and Margaery would take over. The slut rotating her hips and then slamming down on the back stroke impaling her trembling cunt on Sansa’s cock. The force of her hips rotations so hot with that snapping motion Margaery had taught Sansa. Sansa reached up and cupped Margaery’s tits grinding them with her palm. The look on Margaery’s face showed the raw pulses of pleasure hammering her brain with ecstasy.

After five minutes Sansa rolled a squealing Margaery back underneath herself and proceeded to slam fuck her slut. Sansa’s hips flexing up, back and slamming forward to impale Margaery on her leather cock. Margaery’s thighs gripped Sansa’s hips and Margaery clipped nails gripped Sansa’s back. Sansa had been kissing Margaery senseless. Their tongues coiled and flipping around deep in Margaery’s mouth. Now Sansa pulled back to see Margaery’s eyes that were open but unseeing as she cawed in ecstasy.

Sansa pounded her lover and Margaery’s body began to spasm and buck her eyes now filled with almost anguished ecstasy. Sansa lifting her hips higher now to slam every inch of her love into Margaery’s trim. Margaery back ached grinding her small tits into Sansa’s heavier tits. Their bodies now sopping wet with sweat again. Their hair dark and lank with sweat that had their hair plastered to their faces, shoulders and back.

Sansa watched Margaery’s throat cording up. Sansa knew Margaery was on the precipice of falling off the cliff into shocking ecstasy. Sansa lifted her hips even higher and harpooned fucked the cunt of her lover. A cunt that now sloshed and slurped thickly as the thick dick plunged savagely into the swollen cum filled fuck hole.

Then Margaery was screaming and convulsing wildly as a harrowing orgasm destroyed her with fucking bliss. Her body surged up slapping and grinding into Sansa’s hard body pressing Margaery into the bed as she slammed fucked her baby like she needed it. Sansa enjoyed seeing Margaery’s face up so close as spasms and hard slashes filled her lover’s face as she kept spearing her dick into Margaery’s exploding twat.

Margaery had been so boneless afterwards. Sansa took her trembling and crying lover in her arms and soothed the overwhelmed Tyrell. Sansa kissed her lover deeply. At the end of the fuck Margaery had enfolded Sansa with her arms looped around Sansa’s sweat soaked back and her legs gripping Sansa’s hips as her lover had speared her dick savagely into the exploding couchie she was fucking. The legs falling off Sansa’s hips to land on the bed spread obscenely akimbo.

Margaery was fucked out for the nonce. That did not last long.

Soon Margaery had recovered and sucked Sansa off three times as Sansa wailed and her cunt exploded in her lover’s expert hot gobbling mouth.

Yes. Last night had been most fulfilling.

She had gotten up with Margaery and they both ate breakfast with their father. He had more meetings planned for the early morning with the generals and Daenerys. Sansa and Margaery sat in as they went over the chain of command. Eddard made it clear that Daenerys was in overall command of the forces of Westeros and the forces she had brought in from Essos.

The Queen told them that her main strategy had been in getting her forces to the North as quickly and efficiently as possible. Now those forces were moving up to the wall as fast as possible while maintaining fitness and moral.

She told them that as far as she was concerned she would let Eddard lead the specific tactics at the wall. She would only give ideas and counsel when she might add something useful.

Sansa had been impressed with Daenerys ability to cede control over the combined forces of Westeros. It took a strong leader to not want to have total control. The Queen must have total confidence in herself and her ability to read people. Westeros was fortunate to have two great leaders ruling it at this time of great danger.

The meeting had been quick. They had gone to check on her mother again. She looked much better with color returning to her face. She would be drawn for a long time but once the child was born she could begin to heal proper.

Margaery stayed while Sansa had gone to walk the castle perimeter like she liked to do first thing in the morning before meetings and duties called her away. It helped her feel linked to her homeland. The North was still wild and primal.

She had noticed that the dragons were gone when she first went out with the sun still just over the trees. The Direwolves were all outside sleeping on a big pile of straw cuddled together in the courtyard by the Great Keep. Sansa found it strange to see such fearsome beasts in such a cute pose. They were all from the same mother and pack animals so it made sense but it was still an amusing sight to see all them half lying on each other and asleep.

What was even cuter was the Queen’s interpreter’s Caracal curled up on Nymeria’s flank asleep too. The cat was snoozing happily her ears twitching. Lady had thrown her head up on Nymeria’s flank and her muzzle was pressed into the Caracal’s back feet. Who said wolves and cats can’t get along Sansa thought with a smile.

From the morning sun she soon saw three great black dots coming their way. The dots rapidly growing larger. It was Queen’s dragons coming back to Winterfell. She saw as they came close that each dragon came bearing a large deer in their claws. The deer hanging limp in the dragon’s large rear claws. The dragons bugled loudly while still a little ways out from the castle walls. She looked back into the inner yard. The Direwolves were rousing themselves. They stretched and looked around.

Shadowclaw jumped away with Nymeria getting up. She looked affronted having her pillow taken away from her. She walked around meowing while lifting her snout up showing her pique at being woken up.

As she watched, Sansa observed the dragons descend slowly into the courtyard their wings back beating creating a mini windstorm. The dragons landed lightly the deer in their hind claws.

Sansa wrung her hands moving down the wall towards the possible conflict. Suddenly, the dragons lifted off the ground leaving the large deer behind. Sansa stared dumbfounded as Rhaegal beat his wings until he reached the broken tower. He alighted lightly on the tower testing its soundness and seemed to find it suitable. The green dragon made a tight circle with its body. The dragon tamped down on the brick and broken timbers until he had made a nest and then settled down. He coiled up wrapping his tail around itself

Drogon angled up and circled around the old castle grounds before he angled his body down to the Great Keep. The black dragon mirrored Rhaegal tamping down his feet testing his bed. He then slowly laid down curling his body up on the main tower his tail hanging down the wall swishing lazily. Slowly his red eyes lidded and then closed as he fell into slumber.

Viserion did not fly as far and spread his weight out on the roof of the Great Hall. His wings extended and legs sprawled out and his tail down the sloop of the roof. The tip hanging off the ledge. He breathed deep a few times as his body wiggled as he settled down. Soon he was asleep with his tongue hanging out. His lips quivering as he slept.
The dragons were sleepy and were obviously going into a deep drowsy state. She stared at them. Their trust of their environment was truly touching. They were willing to go to sleep surrounded by strange humans. Their trust must have been from their Queen. The dragons were said to be linked to their mother through a mental link. This seemed to be borne out by their current behavior.

Sansa looked back down into the yard. The four Direwolves were happily tearing into the carcasses. They were ‘wolfing’ down big chunks of meat. The other hounds had come over and were whining but knew that they had to wait their turn. Even Lady could get most un lady like when she was eating a nice juicy deer.

Sansa smiled seeing Nymeria tearing off a big chunk of thigh from the deer she was chomping on. The Caracal had been meowing afraid to get in the middle of the scrum. The small cat had been pacing back and forth giving cat wails of distress. She kept looking at all the food only a short distance away. The small Caracal had been giving her Direwolf looks of distress. She meowed loudly, pitifully. Nymeria paced over to Shadowclaw and placed the big chunk of raw meat in front of the cat.

Nymeria looked at the small cat as it excitedly came over to the chunk of meat. Now its meows were of happiness as it settled down and bit out a dainty chunk of meat and chewed it a few times before it swallowed the meat. What was name of Missandei’s cat? She thought the cats name was Shadowcat or something like that. The now happy cat had stretched out and meowed loudly. She tore off another chunk of meat and heartily chewed it in contentment.

Only when Nymeria saw that the Caracal was fully taken care of did she move off to rejoin the pack in their own feast.

Sansa went to look back to look out over the fields. She had inhaled in deep the clean air of the North.

Fifteen minutes later, Sansa had gone back into Winterfell for another meeting. The meeting did not last long. The meeting being on the logistics of moving all the supplies coming up the King’s Highway. She worked with Missandei and found her very nice and charming. She liked her dark skin color and the tight rings in her hair.

She told the small woman about how Nymeria was so kind to her cat. The woman smiled great big hearing that. Missandei told Sansa of the antics of Nymeria chasing the Caracal. Sansa had to laugh at the Direwolf barking up a tree that had no Caracal in it.

Sansa had found the Queen’s scribe, interpreter and handmaiden to be extremely smart and very quick to pick up all the information and stratagems that Sansa had developed. Most of the Lords had not been anywhere near as quick. Sansa found she liked the teenager immensely.

She realized she might have access to some inside info. Sansa looked around to see if anyone was close by. She asked Missandei about her little sister and the Queen. She was subtle trying to not to be too obvious. The small black woman looked at Sansa with a smile and cocked eyebrow.

The scribe had burst out laughing “Are you trying to ask me if they have made love?”

Sansa had not seen Margaery come up behind her. “She means have they fucked yet?”

Both Sansa and Missandei had blushed at that making Margaery chuckle at her ability to make her wife to be and this woman she already liked, Missandei, blanch. Sansa her sweet self still got so flustered when they talked sex in public. Margaery liked that about Sansa. She was such a Lysian whore in their bed and yet still innocent out in the world. The contrast was intoxicating.
She could not wait to set Sansa loose in her henhouse. To see this reserved shy almost twenty year old woman turn into the proverbial wolf devouring hens right and left. She felt herself shiver at the thought. She had every intention of being one of those devoured hens! She longed to have her direwolf consume her pussy and asshole with her tongue, fingers, cock and fist!

Missandei had told them how the Queen and Arya had been giving each other bedroom eyes almost from the moment they met.

“What was their first meeting like? Was it love at first sight? Even if they didn’t know it?” Sansa asked.

Missandei laughed great big she then gave them a big white brilliant smile. “You say ‘love at first sight’ I think it was more “Love at first fist!”

Missandei laughed again seeing the confused look on Sansa and Margaery’s face. Sansa was seeing that Olenna had definitely been withholding information from Margaery.

“If you call firing two arrows up at Dany while sitting on the Iron Throne love at first sight then yes it was. I can still see those arrows quivering half an inch from Dany’s ears. Then all hell broke loose.”

Sansa had felt her jaw nearly fall off and even her implacable Margaery was staring slacked jaw. Margaery winched when Missandei described the sucker punch Arya threw at Daenerys at the Queen’s attempted victory speech. They both covered their pussies and winced hard at the way Arya and then Daenerys stomped on each other’s cunts in the heat of battle. They winced at the vivid descriptions of savage punches landing in faces and bruising ribs.

Margaery had looked at her “Don’t ever get that idea Sansa!”

Sansa stared back at her lover. She thought. I’m a lover not a warrior. She may rough up Margaery and whip her ass and body till it was criss-crossed with red marks but she would never punch, kick, stomp and slam her sweetie into the hard marble floor like Arya and Daenerys had done to each other.

Missandei finished the tale. “Daenerys had your sister in a cross arm bar about to tear your sister’s arm off demanding for her to surrender.

“Let me guess—Arya refused to give in” Sansa said. That would be so Arya. To allow her arm to be ripped off just so she would not have to surrender. Thank the gods Daenerys had shown mercy.

Then a thought hit Sansa. If events had been reversed it would have been Arya giving up to save Daenerys. They both had that fire to win at all costs burning in their souls. Still, they had an innate sense of mercy and compassion for others.

“Yes. You are right. The Queen saw the fire in your younger sister. Daenerys surrendered and gave the victory to your sister. I am sure from that moment forward your Arya had captured my Queen’s heart! It is amazing how a left cross will win a woman’s heart. Even if it is her face taking that fist.”

They then asked her why they had not consummated their love for each other. They had their theory but they wanted to hear from a woman who had been with the two women in question from the start of their association. What the interpreter told them had verified that their hypothesis had all been on target. Arya and Daenerys were both chicken shits when it came to matters of the heart.

“I think something has changed though on our ride to the North. Dany has been much more assertive and your sister is finally giving signals she wants Dany. I think it will happen here in Winterfell. I can’t wait!” the little scribe clapped her hands all excited.

Sansa was excited. She wanted her sister to find happiness with the woman of her dreams. Sansa had come to long for the triple wedding in the Godswood. Arya had to get her act together for that to happen. In a way Arya was even more lucky than Sansa. Sansa’s dream lover just sort of fell in her lap. It had almost been serendipity.

Arya went to go to her love and punched her love’s lights out. It did have a sort of Arya charm about it. Why give your love sonnets and flowers when you could beat the shit out of her and prove your love that way. Sansa shook her head at her silly thoughts.

After the meeting Sansa and Margaery had a light meal in the kitchen. Margaery was dispensing more of her advice. Mereya was slow and not following Margaery’s sage advice and it was royally pissing off her sweet rose.

“Damnit Mereya! How many times do I have to tell you to take what is yours. I have seen this lass in that shop making fine dresses for the nobles and merchants in Wintertown. I went two days ago and mentioned I knew you. She nearly creamed herself just hearing your name. Her dress showed her swaying breast and let me tell you her nipples were fully erect thinking of you! All she did was ask questions about you. I had gone in requesting measurements for a new dress. I got no measurements. All she did was ask about you. She is so mooning over you.”

“I want you to go to her at seven tonight. She closes up the shop on the midweek. I want you to fuck her in the fitting rooms. Got that!”

“Yeah! Yeah! Grow some cunt hairs. Got it. Uhhhh, how do I know she will let me in?” A look of concern crossed Mereya’s face. “What if she refuses to see me?”

Margaery glared her eyes at the comely lass. She was smoking hot but a little bit of wuss when it came to matters of the heart.

“Believe you me she will be throwing the door open for you. Since her husband died she had been waiting for you or some other lass. She was married off by her parents. Now she wants to choose her own mate. That mate being you!”

“Okay. Okay. Got it. She will throw door open for me. Uh, what do I do then? Tell me what to do Margaery!”

“Damnit get her on the padded bench. Use those expert hands to knead her big tits and rub her swollen pussy girl. Eat her out like your life depends on it. She is an obvious submissive. Sit on her face. She’ll love it.”

“Yeah! Yeah! Knead tits. Rub pussy! Eat out desperately! Sit on her face. Got it!”

The baker went off rubbing her hands in anticipation.

Sansa smiled at her Margaery. She gave such good love advice.

Margaery was going to see her father and eldest brother again. She told Sansa she would meet her on the curtain wall over the east gate in an hour.

Sansa was back on the wall waiting for her wife to be to join her on the wall. She shivered feeling so alive. The cold air only enhanced the sharpness of her emotions. These were great times and she was a major player in them. She again thanked both the gods of her father and mother for having Eddard Stark as her father. She knew he was the only father of a noble house who would have thrown convention out on its head to let his two royal princesses to truly follow their hearts to become all they could possibly be.

Her father had pulled her and Margaery aside last night after they had grabbed a quick meal in the kitchen. They had waited for him to speak as he paused.

“I have been thinking. The coming battle that we go to fight will be decisive one way or the other. We cannot fail. We must stop the Ice King at the Wall else he will do nothing but only grow stronger and stronger. Each new victory will only increase the size of his army of the undead. This cannot be permitted.”

“Also, the fashioning of dragon glass is time consuming to make and the supply is constricted with its import from the land of Asshai or from Dragonstone. I fear that a protracted war will deplete our resources of dragon glass.”

“The war must be won at the wall. I would take all of my valuable assets with me.”

Sansa and her love looked at Edgar leaning in waiting for him to continue.

He looked at them and waited. After a pause he added “The Queen will of course be taking Arya to the wall with her. She will not be separated from the woman she loves. They haven’t even consummated their love yet though I hope for that to change shortly.”

Sansa felt a thrill run through her hearing her father talk so openly of his hopes of her little sister bedding the Queen of Westeros.

Sansa watched her father shake his head in wonderment. “I have ten crown saying that today the Queen and Arya will make love. I would like to be proven right.”

“Father!” Sansa exclaimed shocked. The times were indeed changing for her father to make such statements!

Margaery had a different reaction. “You go father!” she had extended her hand up and palm out for a high five. Sansa’s father had looked confused and then understood and brought his hand forward to smack into Margaery’s palm.

Her sweetie was not used to such strength. She waved her hand around grimacing. Eddard apologized profusely. Sansa thought reasonably that she needed to be a bad girl a lot more often to toughen up Margaery’s palm. She would sacrifice her rump for the greater good. She really would Sansa thought evilly.

Chuckling Eddard got back to point. “We must win this war. Will you come to the wall with me?” he concluded looking unsure.

She had whooped along with Margaery throwing themselves in his arms. Her father had proven beyond a doubt that he truly valued her and Margaery’s judgement and wisdom. They had both jumped into her father’s strong arms. Sansa’s father easily caught them and held them up as he slowly spun them around. He was laughing as Margaery and Sansa squealed in giddy happiness. Sansa’s father had again proven just how wonderful a father he was. Sansa broke down and cried she was so happy.

Sansa’s happy reverie was broken when Margaery appeared and took her proper space beside her lover. Sansa felt Margaery press into her side. Sansa snaked her arm around Margaery’s waist and pulled her even closer to her body. They shared delicious body heat. The warmth lulling Sansa with happiness. She again marveled how perfectly Margaery fit into her body when they stood like this together or when they were making sweet hot love all covered in sweat and cum.

Margaery looked up at her with a brilliant smile.

“What is it love?” Sansa asked getting excited. Margaery was literally vibrating into her side.

“I saw the Queen in the hall. She said she wanted to talk to us about the future. It makes me so happy to say she is extremely glad to hear that we would be going to the wall with her. Daenerys said she would need all the wise council she could get. She then remarked that she could never get enough good council in King’s Landing. She needed all the wise minds she could find when she returned to King’s Landing.”

Sansa took that in. “You mean she wants us to go to King’s Landing with her after the war.”

Margaery was grinning like the cat that ate the canary. “Yes! Oh Sansa we can go and help make a better future for Westeros and Essos.”

Sansa liked the sounds of that.

“And guess what my love?”

“What?”

“I had not told you this because it was not important really but now it is.”

“What is it my sweet rose?”

“My hens are already in King’s Landing. My grandmother brought them with her to King’s Landing when the Queen summoned my grandmother to her.”

Sansa looked out over the castle wall.

Margaery shivered and asked “Are you alright with that? I—I thought you wanted that.”

Sansa heard the rising fear in her lover’s sweet voice. She needed to dispel those thoughts. Sansa gripped her woman and gently spun Margaery to face her. She then pulled her lover tight to her body. Sansa’s hands drifted to Margaery’s ass cheeks and roughly massaged them and pulled Margaery’s mound into her thigh. She slowly rotated her love’s cunny into her hard muscled leg. Margaery jolted and mewled in sweet need to her Direwolf. The sweet rose of Tyrell looked up at Sansa with limpid eyes.

“I have some questions I need answered first?” Sansa coyly husked down to her love. Margaery’s eyes dark with repressed desires.

“Yes?” Margaery answered unsure. Desire was flooding her veins but fear still had her unsure.

With hot heat in her eyes Sansa asked her sweet rose “Will I be eating you and all your hen’s succulent pussies at my demand? Will I be fucking them and you with my strap-on banging tight pussies and hot tight assholes?” Margaery gasped and sagged into Sansa. Sansa gripped Margaery’s ass cheeks harder and rode her lover’s pussy up and down her strong thigh. She knew Margaery’s cunt was so sloppy wet and swollen now. Her nipples hidden in her bodice would be rock hard and begging to be sucked.

“Will you suck your ass and cunt off my dick I rip out your spasming fuck holes? Will you do the same when I rip my dick out of your hens’ cunts and assholes—suck their pussy and ass juice off my dick? Will you love it when I drag you and your hens around by your hair and ‘force’ you all to clean your pussies and shitholes off my dick slavered with you and your hens fuck juice?” Margaery whimpered sagging harder into Sansa’s body. Her soft mews intoxicating.

“Will I be tribbing you and your hens as we hump wet swollen cunts hard into each the other? Will I be lying on my back having your hens and you nesting on my face as I gobble sweet gash? Will I and your hens be fucking you in all your holes at once? Will we be ramming our dicks in balls deep fucking you air tight? Will you be cleaning your pussy and asshole off our cocks? Hummmm? I think I want some of that double vag and anal action you been telling me about to get me so wet and hot for you. I want to feel my cunt and asshole stretched out. I want to feel filled by my roosters’ cocks.”

She looked down at Margaery. She was glassy eyed. Sansa sensually rode Margaery’s swollen pussy up and down her leg. All Margaery could do was shake her head ‘yes’ up and down with a dreamy look on her face.

Sansa was proud of herself. Margaery had been after her to learn how to talk shit better when it came to sex. She had to say her marks were definitely improving.

She hugged Margaery to her tightly. Sansa jerked up with her hands that were clawed into her love’s ass. She rode her woman’s cunt hard up and down her leg. She was so in love with her sweet but nasty rose of Tyrell. She thanked both the gods of the North and the South for bringing Margaery Tyrell into her life and bed and not some stupid odious man.

Gods she wanted to throw up just thinking about it. How could she had ever been so delusional to want to be some stupid man’s cow and only think her self-worth was tied up in how many male heirs she could crap out for him. Thank the gods Margaery had come into her life!

Margaery wiggled into Sansa’s body with hot simmering repressed fuck hunger. Sansa raised a hand to stroke Margaery’s ribs and belly. This was an erogenous zone for Margaery. Sansa rubbed Margaery in that circular motion with one hand and while her other hand continued to ride Margery’s snatch into her leg. She knew her slut was so wet for her.

“Oh gods Sansa lets go back to your room. I want to fuck you sooooo bad!”

Sansa was about to reply when she was startled. Up on the Great Keep Drogon suddenly came awake. His eyes opened filled with roiling red light. Then his head shot straight up to full extension looking around. On the broken tower and on the Great Hall both Rhaegal and Viserion came instantly awake and obviously on full alert. All their tails were shaking like agitated snakes. Their nostrils flaring as they tasted the air. They rose up on their legs their wings unfurling as their heads looked around in agitation.

The Direwolves who had stuffed themselves with deer meat and gone asleep again awoke at the same time from their communal nest they enjoyed in the hay. They too sniffed the air. The hackles over their shoulders stood on end. Their tales down low in agitation. Nymeria lifted her head along with Shaggydog and howled to the heavens. Grey Wind followed suit and Lady too added her howls to the sky.

Sansa looked at Margaery. Their first thought was betrayal. That could not be though because Roose Bolton forces where in the far North at the Wall by now. That could not be the threat.

Sansa’s next thought was more frightening. All knew dragons were magical creatures. Anything that could fly and breath fire was by definition was magical. Sansa sensed too that the Direwolves also had the hint of magical about them. Something had stirred their senses. Something magical. That thought led to one being.

The Ice King.

The three dragons were now on their feet on the structures they had nested on. Their wings were flaring wildly. Their heads swiveled around obviously looking for a danger they sensed but could not locate. Their tails swishing along the sides of the structures they were on.

The lovers looked out over the walls of Winterfell but they saw nothing. Had the Ice King ambushed them unawares!

Drogon’s body stiffened as he roared his anger at something. He roared again and then his two brothers joined in their loud bugles of angry. The dragons were clearly getting more and more agitated. Their screams of distress echoing throughout the ancient castle grounds. Viserion was partially lifting up off the Great Hall only to settle again.

The Direwolves had begun to snap wildly and run around in circles. Sansa saw that even Lady was snapping at her fellow pack mates. Lady never did that! The other hounds now had joined their larger brethren howling at the tops of their lungs. All were looking and barking to the east. Their howls filled the air. Drogon was up on his claws gripping the tower top his neck compressing and then stretching out as he roared up into the heavens. Rhaegal and Viserion were fanning their wings as they bugled.

The dragons had joined the Direwolves in scanning the eastern edge of Winterfell. Their gazes questing to see beyond the ancient granite walls. The very air was reverberating with the roars and howls of the dragons and Direwolves.

People were now running out onto the grounds and appearing on the curtain walls looking up and out over the walls of the castle. They saw nothing and turned to look at the screaming beasts. Confusion was beginning to run riot in Winterfell.

Sansa put her hand over her ears to try and occlude the roars echoing through the air and making the very stones themselves vibrate in distress.

Suddenly, Drogon gave forth a mighty roar and took off into the air with a mighty up thrust of his legs. He bugled another mighty roar. Drogon’s wings beat heavily as his massive body clawed for altitude. Viserion and Rhaegal also took to the air bugling loudly. Their wings beating hard and fast gaining altitude. The air now filled with the sounds of their wings creating a hurricane of wind and sound to add to the cacophony of discordant notes ringing throughout the ancient keep.

The Direwolves started to howl louder. The fur on their shoulder girdles and on their backs stood up on end bristled. Slaver flung from their massive jaws. Their eyes alight with urgency. They jumped around in circles snapping at each other. The dragons circled the ancient castle gathering speed and looking around to the east seeking what their arcane senses had felt.

For a minute the dragons flew in tight spirals over the castle grounds bugling wildly. The people outside gaped at the clearly angry dragons circling over the large grounds of Winterfell. The three behemoths circling low as they continued to roar out their deafening bugles. Then they as one, the three dragons banked over and headed east rising to gain attitude. Like arrows they dragons flashed over the walls of Winterfell and disappeared as they swung their bodies lower their long tails whipping in the air only to disappear also.

The dirwolves howled and pelted out of the courtyard yard they had been roosting in. They ran as one their tongues hanging out their mouths. Their goal clear. They were charging for the open east gate.

Now Sansa and Margaery were running down the curtain wall to get to the east side of the castle. They soon lost sight of the Direwolves. Their loud howls getting fainter as the wolves ran at full gallop out the east gate. Sansa knew the mighty animals had by now disappeared into Winter Town their howls echoing off the walls of the narrow allies heading east.

Suddenly a huge swatch of blue light erupted a half mile to the east of Winter Town. It exploded out from nowhere. It was not large maybe a half mile wide and rising up several thousand feet. The air crackled with energy.

BBBOOOMMMMMMMMMM!

A mighty concussion of force rolled over the castle. The blue wall was gone.

Sansa and Margaery rounded the curvature of the castle walls. Sansa screamed. Drogon was tumbling through the air backwards. Rhaegal and Viserion flew forward at reckless speed forward.

Then the blue light was back. It rippled and now the two women could mighty eldritch power radiating from that blue wall of light. They could see hazily through the wall of blue. Margaery pointed.

Suddenly the wall erupted into wild swirls and gyrations. The blue light intensified a thousand fold as the two dragons crashed into the light. The two dragons roared as they impacted the blue wall of magical force.

KKKKAAAAABBBOOOMMMMMM!

Another shockwave howled into existence. The two dragons bodies seemed to be gripped in a vice grip as the dragons kicked and thrashed. Then they were thrown back tumbling wildly through the air. They roared their anger while they twisted their bodies to right themselves. Their mighty wings pinioning hard to claw back the altitude the blue wall had stolen from the wall. The blue wall nearly shimmered out but left a thin gauze film in the air. The blue wall almost vanished but left an afterglow.

Again and again the dragons attacked down on something only to have the blue wall appear fully formed again and rebuff their attacks. The dragons circled off their rebuffed attacks making them hesitate.

Now Sansa saw before her beyond Wintertown a small force of men, horses and … and Giants! But these were not like the Giants she had read of in Maester Luwin’s books. Sansa knew she was gaping at these tall mighty men and … and women! Almost all of the Giants were women! The horses now trumpeted loudly. The sound for some reason made Sansa’s heart beat hard in her chest.
She felt joy and triumph flare in her soul. Sansa turned to look at Margaery and it was clear she too felt it.

War horns were sounding all over Winterfell as the call to arms was sounded. The plains were filled with troops that were bivouac as they transitioned north. They too blew their war horns at the enemy suddenly in their midst. Sansa saw the commanders calling men to formation. Confusion reigned seeing this small group in their midst.

The commanders in the fields had the same thought crossing Sansa’s mind. How had this force marched right through their ranks unseen or unheard?
It was the Giants that really threw all into confusion. My gods Sansa thought. Some of them were fourteen feet tall if not taller. They were perfectly formed and comely to the eye. These Giant men and women were not from the north off Westeros.

Margaery spoke Sansa’s thought “They must have journeyed here from some far distant land! But are they friend or foe!”

Somehow the invaders had passed unseen by all. Confusion reigned in the camps and in Winterfell.

A woman was in front of the rest of the small force. She rode on one of the impossibly beautiful horses. She stopped as did all her companions. They stood still before Winterfell and the forces arrayed around them. They seemed to be showing they were no threat. The woman in front of the main force was dressed in a simple blue tunic. She had a staff across her thighs. She looked around her. Sansa saw the riders on these mighty horses had not saddle or tact. How did they ride the powerful horses Sansa wondered?

The woman gripped her horses flank with her knees and rose up. In an impossibly strong voice she shouted.

“WE COME IN PEACE! WE COME TO ALIGN WITH THE DRAGONTANE!”

The woman had a foreign accent but her words were clear.

Sansa looked at Margaery “I hear dragon but what is a ‘thane’?” Sansa asked Margaery.

“I am not sure but I think it must be an honorific. They must be friends come to aid our cause!” Margaery jumped up and down smiling.

Sansa was not so sure yet. What better way to get them to lower their guard for an attack.

The woman below them on the horse took the staff up she had had on her lap. She now twirled it above her head so fast it became a blur. The staff caught blue fire and glowed like the sun. Long tongues of eldritch power flared off the wooden staff and whirled off to rise up and only then slowly fade leaving spangles behind before completely disappearing.

The woman then gripped her staff smoothly at one end and slammed it down into the ground.

KKKKAABBOOOMMMM!

Another shockwave of power rolled over Winterfell and buffeted dragons in the air.

The dragons roared in challenge and again dove down at the interlopers. The curved blue wall suddenly sprang back to full life again. Rhaegal had gained the most altitude and now he flew almost straight down into the blue wall. The dragon trying to use height and momentum to crash through the blue barrier. Like a green comet Rhaegal plummeted down. His body slammed into the blue incandescence. This time his body hit the blue wall and his momentum was shunted up and over the curved blue force. His claws tried to find purchase but found none as his body tumbled over the curved wall. Rhaegal was stunned but otherwise unhurt as he flew off. Sansa saw the Dirwolves appear out of the east side of Wintertown and run at break neck speed toward the force of strange people before her.

Both women screamed at Lady to stop but the wolf could not hear them from such a distance and she would not have stopped anyways. Her dander was up and the need to defend her home to great.

Shaggydog and Nymeria hit the wall at the same time. The translucent blue had dimmed with the repulsion of Rhaegal’s attack suddenly surged a bright rippling blue again. The Direwolves were hurled back spinning wildly. They landed hard and rolled. They snapped back to their feet and shook their heads but were otherwise unhurt. They began to howl furiously at the wall and the people and giants beyond.

Drogon came down from the heights. His head cantered back and then surged forward as he bellowed a mighty fiery ball of white hot fiery death. His flames hit the blue wall and was instantly snuffed out. The dragon jet of flame was long as he continued to spit out fire as he descended. Finally, he was out of flame. Drogon banked off roaring in fury.

The other two dragons dove down and jetted huge gouts of their flame at the blue wall but it was absorbed and defeated. The mighty black dragon had flown up two thousand feet and now dived straight down his hind legs brought forward his talons extended. Drogon slammed into the wall his feet making the wall sag in. He roared in triumph as the blue wall vibrated and flared a brighter blue.

The woman wielding the staff had been singing it seemed. She changed the pitch of her melody. The wall strengthened and threw the dragon back. Drogon again tumbling back through the air.

For the next minute, the dragons roaring wildly as they now circled the blue wall of force that had stymied their efforts to defeat it. Drogon suddenly spun off and flew at breakneck speed back towards the castle.

The woman who had slammed her staff into the ground lifted her body up and stood on her beautiful horse. Sansa now noticed that the horse seemed to almost ripple with power and strength. This was like no horse Sansa had ever read of. This horse was imbued with strength, grace and agility.

The blue wall was still there but without assault it had dimmed to a shimmering force that was ready to flare up again to provide protection to this force if needed. Sansa and Margaery could easily see through the blue rippling wall.

“My gods look at how the star on the horse’s head glows!” Margaery exclaimed pointing at the horse the woman was sitting on. Sansa gasped seeing it too. Sansa knew she was looking upon something precious.

The woman looked at Wintefell. In an impossibly loud voice the woman shouted.

“I am Lustera! A Lord on the High Council of Revelstone! I repeat my early entreaty. I and my companion have traveled far to come offer our aid to the Dragonthane. We see her dragons. We have traveled far. I have come in peace and offer our strength against your ancient foe. I, Giants, Haruchai, Ranychyn and Ramen have come to fight by your side.”

Her words echoed off into the distance.

Sansa and Margaery looked at each other. Could the last twenty-four hours get any more exciting!

Eddard

Eddard was running down a corridor in the cellar warrens of the Great Keep. He had just had a meeting with Daenerys showing her the craftsmanship of the dragon glass weapons he was making. There was a large warren of mainly unused rooms and several large chambers in the five levels of cellars below the Great Keep. The rooms located on the north by west side of the hill. The rest of the hill had the hot springs with water bubbling up that kept the Great Keep warm even in the depth of winter.

The Great Keep had been built into a hill that rose up roughly fifty feet from the ground level at the castle walls. The land slopping up to the northeast walls of the castle. The original construction had taken advantage of this to make a large underground complex that would be protected from any type of siege assault.

Eddard had converted the two lowest levels for dragon glass weapon creation with artisans he had hired from Essos. They had not worked with obsidian in their home cities but worked with jade, turquoise and shale that some cultures valued. They were thus used to working with rock one had to work with care.

He had made sure that the warrens had been thoroughly cleaned out. All droppings and rats that could be possibly eradicated were. He had extra torches installed and brazier pots put in each room and filled with coal and coke to provide light and warmth. He brought in hay and fresh cut peppermint sprigs to freshen the air.

He knew happy workers were productive workers. He was paying the artisans top dollar. He paid them as well he paid his local workers. He had heard of the practice of “sweat shops” being used. It had been long decreed by his Stark ancestors that no trade would knowingly be done with the Slave Cities. When his father had discovered the use of “forced labor” at barely subsistence wages he had outlawed trade with those entities.

Eddard had been more than happy to continue that policy. He would never countenance such practices in the North. As in all things he led by example.

The Queen had been most impressed with the high standards he had initiated and enforced. She informed him that she too had the same high quality of work being done. She had then gripped his arm in a surprisingly strong grip. She made direct contact eye contact with the Warden of the North.

“I also admire how you treat those you employee and how you eat with the common folk. I hope to one day institute that policy but things are still too new and untried in King’s Landing.” Eddard watched her sigh.

“What is it about the North?” the Queen mused in a tone that made it sound rhetorical.

“My Queen?”

“Dany please.”

“Dany.”

“Your people … I can’t put a finger on it. Your subjects are not more pure or noble than what resides in King’s Landing but … I don’t know … the avarice, the pettiness, the way the strong do not dispose the weak. I have to judge so many cases of this in King’s Landing. It can be depressing seeing so much avarice.”

Daenerys snorted and then chuckled.

Eddard asked her what she found so funny.

“There was this man who wanted to use my dragons to tow large banners across the sky advertising products for erectile dysfunction.” The Queen shook her head. Then she looked again at Eddard with a questioning gaze.
“Why do you not have such pettiness here in the North Eddard? Do you know? Can it be known?”

Eddard took a deep breath considering. “I cannot be sure my—Dany. I think life is harder in the North and that engenders working together more. Also, our cities are smaller and we have more room I guess I would call it. It helps reduce tension. But believe me Dany, we have our petty squabbles and thievery both between people and with businesses. It is just less and not out in the open like your situation. You are dealing with major trade and businesses.”

“Manderly in White Harbor has his fair share of such issues I assure you my Queen” he held up his hand when Dany started to protest. “I use your title Dany because I sense you feel you are lacking. You are not. I would not have survived very long in King’s Landing.”

“I would have to disagree Eddard.” The Queen cocked her head “I ask why you think not. You have proven must adept at the Game of Thrones.”

“I just don’t have the temperament. I am too lenient and I assure you forces that you control and even bend to your will would consume me. I feel it in my bones. I would have tried to work with Cersei Lannister and Robert to get them to fix what could not be fixed. Everything in King’s Landing was broken beyond mending. If I had tried to be Hand I would have been like a lamb among wolves.”

Now Eddard snorted. A wry smile came on his face. “I can just see it now. Robert gored by a boar. Cersei imprisoning me and that fool eldest son of hers chopping my head off.”

Dany chuckled “Such imagination Eddard. You should have been a scribe for the Murmurs.”

Eddard smiled “Maybe I should have … I doubt I would have the patience or fortitude to finish such a play though. I would only probably write five of seven acts.”

They had finished inspecting the dragon glass proclaiming it first rate. She asked his pardon and went to have a meeting with her Klatch of Confidents. She had explained who and why she had such a group. Eddard supposed he had the same thing with his son and two daughters.

He had gone up to the first level of the cellars. He went to the two large rooms on the south end of the Great Keep. He opened the door to the second the room. He looked down the room and the long lines of wine cellar racks. The varnished maple racks stretching down the room. There was fifteen rows of such racks. Each row of wine was made of racks on each side of the row. The racks themselves were six feet tall and four feet wide and nine inches deep. The bottles stored horizontal to the floor. Each rack stored one hundred and five bottles nearly four inches in diameter. The last two rack on each row had larger bens to hold bottles up to five inches 1/8 inch diameter. These slots were for Large Champagne, Magnum Bordeaux, Magnum Champagne, and Double Magnum bottles.

He saw the clipboard on the peg of the closest rack to the door. He took it down and looked at the bottle lists for the racks. He knew Winterfell had a first rate distilled spirits collection. He did not know of any of it. He had never drank, smoked or done any recreational drugs that some lords partook of. He looked at the selections of wines both red and white. He looked at the many types of champagne. He read the bourbons, whiskeys, vodkas, cognacs and other hard spirits.

He was not even sure what wines went with what. He looked at the charts to select wine or spirits for various meals and various situations. He studied it for a few minutes. He started to get a headache.

The campaign he rode in during Robert’s Rebellion was child’s play compared to trying to decipher this arcane code. He put the clipboard back on the peg. He would have to ask Sansa and Margaery to help with this. He would have a banquet before they left for Winterfell to march north to the all.

Eddard feared that if he selected the spirits they would somehow be so wrong that the Queen would choke and spit out what he had selected.

He was just about to leave the wine cellar when he heard it. The whole building was shaking with the bottles in the racks rattling. The various bottle sizes and makeup of alcohol making various notes in a discordant symphony. He looked up at the ceiling. The bass notes of Drogon’s trumpets reverberating through the room. Eddard could feel that Drogon must had have roosted on top of the Great Keep again.

It had been off putting at first to look up and see the mighty black dragon resting nonchalantly on the tower of his home. He had not been sure at first. He had quickly adjusted. The dragon actually looked domesticated all curled up on itself its tail swishing against the stones of the Great Keep.

Now Viserion and Rhaegal were joining in a cacophony of agitated notes of challenge. The walls were literally vibrating with all the trumpets filling the air. Eddard looked at all the bottle dancing in their bins. Fortunately, the construction was good and the bottles stayed in their private nooks. He walked out the cellar closing the door. He could feel the dragon’s anger in the very walls of the Great Keep.

The dragon roars did not stop. A sudden terrifying thought surged through his veins. Had the Ice King already come? Had he somehow ambushed his forces and annihilated them and now was at the gates of Winterfell.

Had the final battle already begun! Was he already defeated!

He felt a mighty bass trumpet from Drogon and the Great Keep shook hard. Eddard instinctively knew the great dragon had launched his body airborne. Eddard ran down the hall and up the stairs to the first floor and ran at a sprint down the hall and into the side hall that ran along the east side of the castle wall. He heard the dragons bugling but the sounds no longer vibrated through the stone. They had taken to the air. At first the sounds had been near but the mighty roars were fading in and out. He thought the dragons were moving off to confront what had made them take flight.

Eddard reached the entryway to the stairs leading up to the walkway of the inner bailey wall near the guard tower at the Great Hall. He ran furiously up the steps taking them two at time. He was thankful he was not wearing his chain mail. He would need it in combat and be terribly expose without it but he needed to see what the hell was happening as he bounded up the seemingly interminable steps.

He suddenly realized he didn’t have his FUCKING SWORD! No matter. He had to see what the hell was happening. He now heard the Direwolves howling as if the stars of heaven were falling from the sky. The dragons were still bellowing with mighty roars. Even with distance the bugles of the dragons echoed throughout the castle grounds. As Eddard rose up the compound he heard the dragon calls clearer now. The way the sounds of the dragons came and went he knew the dragons were circling their agitation in a circle above Winterfell. What the hell was going on out there?

He was almost at the doorway thank the gods. The door was wide open. He saw men been running back and forth in a melee of cross purposes. He heard troops storming up behind him.

He heard Stannis roar “What the fucking hell is going on godsdamnit!”

Renly’s voice chimed in “Get your fucking ass in gear brother. You are blocking the stair!”
That made Eddard feel better calming himself slightly. It was what he needed to hear. If Stannis was cursing then it really was a frantic situation!

He burst up on the walkway of the inner wall. Just as he did so he saw the three dragons of Daenerys bank over the east castle walls. The mighty beasts just clearing the curtain wall and immediately dove down hard their tails whipping to counterbalance their sudden descent. In an instant their bodies were gone from sight. Their bugles of challenge still loud in the air.

He ran to a crosswalk and ran to the outer wall. He heard the Direwolves howling. He was still some distance from the east gate. He looked out pas the castle and saw the dragons gaining altitude to the east. He leaned out an embrasure and looked to the East Gate. He spotted the Direwolves bursting out into view pelting furiously into Winter Town howling the whole way. He resumed running down the curtain wall.

He looked off to the east. What! Was the air rippling with a blue wall of light? Drogon came into view flying straight at the blue wall of rippling light. Then the light suddenly flared. Eddard’s mouth fell open. It seemed like blue lightening from wall of blue light enclosed Drogon folding around his body. Then the body of the mighty dragon was sent tumbling back through the air away from the blue wall of shimmering light.

Eddard at first had feared for the dragon. But Eddard saw Drogon right his body and flew up and away. His bugles of anger echoing in the cold air.

Stannis and Renly came up beside Eddard and then Oberyn was there and he pointed to what they all saw. The air seemed it was full of hanging rippling snakes undulating. Then the very air seemed exploded into bright dark blue light. All on the walls recoiled back. Did the Ice King have magic they nothing of? They all three watched slack jawed. The other two dragons of the Queen easily repelled by the shimmering blue light. The dragons screaming their rage as they flew off to circle back. The men watched several more attacks by the mighty dragons easily repulsed.

Was their defeat imminent? What could so easily defeat the dragons of Daenerys? If the Ice King could repel so easily the might dragons what chance did they have?

The blue light then seemed to explode into a million shards of sparkling light. A hard force slammed into Eddard’s chest staggering him. The dragons wobbled in the air but regained their balance and flew on. The first attacks had been survived.

Eddard and his fellow High House Lords ran again down the curtain wall of Winterfell to get to the east wall to see what was happening to the east. What force was attacking Winterfell? They finally ran around the curvature of the wall.

Eddard looked and expected to see Ice Wrights and undead to the horizon. WHAT?! That was not what he saw at all. Before him stood a very small party of men, horses and … and GIANTS but not giants like were in the far north. They were like regular men no wait—they were women in armor. He noticed a rider at the fore on an impossibly muscular beautiful horse. He saw other riders of normal dimension on other of the mighty horses.

The rider was a woman with a staff. She suddenly spun her staff that glowed light blue from end to end but the fire did not touch her hands. The staff seemed was spun so fast that Eddard could not follow it. The woman then slammed her staff into the ground. Another blue wall of flame rose up and circled over her and her companions.

A second detonation of mighty power washed over the castle staggering all making many fall to their knees.
“Go Rheagal!” Oberyn shouted jumping up and down like a little boy. “Death to the enemies of the Queen!”

Eddard saw the wall of blue had been erected just in time. Rhaegal dove into the wall meaning to attack the forces on the ground. Blue force gripped the dragon and then threw it back. He saw the Direwolves burst into view and beat a furious pace to the wall. The gathered men watched as the Direwolves Shaggydog and Nymeria slammed into the wall and were easily repulsed. Their bodies flung high and back. Like the Dragons, the Direwolves seemed unhurt when repulsed by the blue wall of light.

Men were cheering the attacks.

Eddard watched the attacks and the defense. This was not attack but a defense. These were warriors in armor and had slipped the defenses of Eddard but now had chosen to expose themselves.

The blue shield held up under the dragons breathing fire and slamming into it. The wall repulsed but did not kill.

Then he saw Drogon rise up and bank back towards the castle. Then he saw the Queen and his daughter come bursting into the inner courtyard from the great keep. The mighty black dragon swooped down to the ground and the queen and his daughter gripped his scales. Eddard was impressed with how easily both Daenerys and his daughter gripped the hot scales and worked up the black dragon’s body and seated themselves. Then the dragon roared and took to the air. She was flying to the confrontation.

She had reasoned it out.

He shouted at a man in the courtyard to hold his horse he was riding around in a circle. Eddard flew back down the castle steps. Stannis and Oberyn were right behind him. Oberyn was screaming he needed his spear and a fucking horse to ride into combat.

Eddard started again. He was too excited! He still didn’t have his sword! No matter! His queen had flown off without her sword. It was speed he needed.

He reached the courtyard and yelled at the man to get off his horse. The man riding the horse was wild eyed.

"Get the fuck off the godsdamned horse!” Eddard roared.

Eddard had heard the woman’s speech. It had a strange lilt but the words were clear.

He had been right. Damn the air was full of war horns. He needed to get there!

The man got off. Eddard was up on the horse in a flash and flew to the East gate and was out it in moments. He did not normally whip a horse but he did now slapping the horse’s shoulders with the extra reins on the bridle. The horse flew down the roads of Winter Town. Eddard saw the dragons were no longer attacking but circling moving up. Drogon was crisscrossing tightly above the blue wall with the Queen and his daughter on his mighty back.

The Queen was waiting for him he was sure. Thank you my Queen!

In a minute he burst out the other side of Winter Town and let the horse take its full head.

In another minute he was at the blue wall. The woman stood just behind the wall of blue rippling magical light. She held her blazing staff unhurt. Her other companions stared down at him. Eddard looked up at them wonderment. He could not believe what his eyes saw. These giants were perfectly formed unlike giants of the far north above the wall.

The giants were smiling at him. Eddard saw the Giants were mainly women and covered with some strange style of armor made of granite if Eddard was right. There were other strangers to this force. The more normally sized humans seemed impassive. They looked at Eddard with unreadable faces. The woman who seemed to be the leader reminded him of Stannis for some reason. Her face was stern and her body rigid.

They looked beyond him. He felt the mighty backwash of wings behind and he knew that the Queen had arrived. Her heard Daenerys and his daughter quickly scrabbling down off the mighty black dragon’s back. Drogon roared a mighty bugle of challenge and soared back into the sky.

“Father!” he heard and then his body staggered with the impact of Arya’s body into his and her hugging him.

Eddard smiled and patted his daughter’s back. Daenerys came up beside him in full royal presence calmly looking forward and up at the woman who looked down at her from atop her horse with her staff blazing bright blue in her hands.

The woman’s lips moved and the blue wall simply disappeared.

A loud silence filled the air. Eddard had not fully realized how much noise the blue wall had been emitting.

Eddard stepped back and bent the knee facing his Queen. He wanted it made clear that Daenerys Targaryen was the leader of Westeros. He was not sure what the mores of these various people were. But the fact that women predominated spoke volumes without a word being said. It was clear that women were leading this strange party.

The woman on the horse slide off. It was then that Eddard saw that the horse had no saddle. He looked at the other mounted horses. None of them had saddles, bridles or reins. The riders were all bare of feet except for the woman with the staff and she only wore simple sandals. The women Giants wore war sandals. The two Giant men had on sailor deck shoes.

Eddard returned his gaze to the persons riding these powerful horses. How could they control their horses? Eddard started when he sensed the horse of the woman with the staff was looking directly at him. The horse he swore was laughing at him as it neigh loudly and shook its head.

A woman on the left spoke pushing her horse forward. “You do the Ranyhyn disservice” she barked “no Ranyhyn would ever let their rider fall off. You insult them!” There was outright anger in the woman’s voice. In fact her body was shaking with suppressed anger.

Eddard cocked an eyebrow at the woman. Her anger was totally uncalled for. He was nonplussed by such a hostile reaction when no offense was given. The woman with the staff held up her hand in the direction of the dark brown skinned woman. The woman seemed to control her ire with a visible effort.

His Queen spoke up “We are strangers. Please forgive our strange and seeming rudeness. I assure you no insult is meant. Teach us how to honor you” Daenerys spoke in a calm clear voice.

This was why Daenerys was meant to rule and not he. He was not a diplomat who knew how to handle such awkward moments. His Queen was able to handle this situations with easy aplomb.

One of the Giant stepped forward. He looked up and he could not believe his eyes. The woman was at least thirteen feet tall and he saw that she was not the tallest by far. She came forward and her eyes were alive with mirth. These were definitely not the giants of the far North covered in fur and club like limbs. They were totally human but were twice the size of a normal sized man and then some. Their visages were beautiful to behold. The tall Giant woman’s face was filled with a gentle smile.

“I am Braveheart Tillerkeel. I am first of this quest. First, I must apologize for Shapa of the Ramen. They are tenders to the great horses of the plains of Ra. She is a Manethrall and is fiercely protective of the Ranyhyn she serves. They are the sky and earth given flesh. They are as intelligent as any of us and braver. They have always carried the Land’s defenders into combat for millennium for those that they have deemed worthy. To ride a Ranyhyn is the greatest honor that can bestowed in the Land.”

“We have journeyed across the world to join you. I and my people represent our races. We come from the south of our world. We have crossed the Soulbiter and Soulcrusher to reach this far distant land. We are anxious to serve the need of the world.” The Giant looked at Eddard.

Then her gaze shifted to Daenerys Targaryen and to the woman at her shoulder Arya Stark. The Giant made a deep bow to the pale Targaryen. “We have journeyed far to meet the Dragonthane. We assume you must be the woman prophesied of. You are white of hair and ride strange beasts called dragons. You will fight Ice and Death. We are here to support you.”

The Giant and the Queen looked at each other.

“Would you tell us your name?” the Giant inquired softly with a smile still on her face. Eddard felt that laughter and gaiety came easily to these tall folk.

“I am Daenerys Targaryen. I do not believe in prophecies.”

“As it was prophesized.”

The Warden of the North was impressed. The jib subtle and given in a good natured tone. Eddard smiled inside seeing the Queen start and then seethe. Her hatred of prophecies was well know.

“You will defeat the Ice King in this land. Then you will journey to the East and in the ruined land of volcanos and shattered cities you will then restore magic. You will enable the restoration of the Earthroot and renewal of the Blood of the Earth. You will take the Scribe to the One Tree and she will somehow take from that hoary tree a limb and fashion a new staff of law. Then you will return and fight the Demon Stone and the Raver who holds it.”

The words was spoken matter-of-factly.

“I know nothing of this.”

“You will in time. But first we must meet this Ice Death at the blue line in the sky.”

Eddard now spoke up. “What you call the ‘blue line in the sky’ we call the Wall. It is a solid wall of Ice three hundred miles long and up to seven hundred feet in height. It is to protect us against the foe that is named the Ice King by us. He is an elemental being of ice and cold.

The woman with the blue staff spoke up. “He has a Croyel with him. It is that vile pestilence that called to us to come to your aid. This was added to by the prophecies concerning this time. One of these Croyels was once paired with an Arghuleh in our Land to the far North of our Land. It too tried to build a kingdom of ice that would have consumed the Land. Hamoko sacrificed his life defeating and killing the Arghuleh and its loathsome host. The Croyels are a vile and noisome race.
They are evil personified.

Braveheart spoke up again. “We are representatives of the forces that serve and protect the Land. We have journeyed from the south of the world to come to the northern hemisphere to do battle against this bane of the Earth and its Croyel ally. If it is not contained and defeated her we fear it will try and consume the Earth. This Ice King must be met and defeated.”

“I speak for the Giants. Though the Giants home is far away we have always served the Land and now the Earth in its time of need. As Thomas Covenant and Linde Avery journeyed across worlds and time to save the world we have journeyed across the Soulbiter and Soulcrusher to come and lend our aid. We have been told by the old seers to align with the pale haired woman who rides beast that fly the air. You are that woman Daenerys Targaryen. We have come with allies who also align with you. We are mighty. They also are mighty.”

The giant looked at a woman maybe an inch taller than Daenerys. She had jet black hair that was cut in bangs and parted over her ears covering half the length of the woman’s ears. Hair down to her neck in the back. The other women of this race wore their hair similarly. The men of this race had very short haircuts. All this Eddard took in as he stood looking on passively. His instincts told him to trust these strange denizens from a faraway land but his caution still held him in check.

Eddard’s eyes took in the medium brown color of these peoples skin. These people in some respects seemed like they were from the land of Dorne but their almond eyes and facial features were not of Westeros. Eddard had met a few people of the far away land of Yi Ti and Leng. These people generally looked like them but the plains of their faces did match those people.

These people were not of Westeros or Essos.

Eddard could sense strength in the woman but she and the men with her did not have the build to be warriors that could fight anyone with a weapon. They had nothing on but tunics belted at the waist. He could barely see a strap lashed over the woman’s chest to compress her breast to keep them in place in combat. He subtly cocked his head to observe their feet. They wore nothing on their feet. They had no weapons on their persons that he could see.

Eddard wondered on these supposed warriors. They would not last long against any armed opponent.

The Giant, Braveheart Tillerkeel, motioned with her hand for the small brown woman to come forward. The woman brought her Ranyhyn forward. The woman had no emotion on her face. She stared flatly at Eddard. The Giant bowed deeply to the woman with a large smile on her face. The Giant found humor in introducing with a flourish this taciturn woman. “This is Brail of the Haruchai. She is First Mark. She commands the Haruchai and is Bloodguard to Lord Lustera. Do not underestimate the Haruchai. Their strength rivals our own strength.”

Eddard wondered why the Giant was exaggerating these peoples strength. They were small of stature compared to Eddard and he was no giant like Stannis.

“You have met Manethrall Shapa and her Ranyhyn Fohn whom you accidently slighted.” The giant chuckled. The named woman looked at Eddard with a flat face too. Her body was rigid though. Eddard knew the woman still harbored ill will for Eddard’s unintended slight of the Ranyhyn.

Braveheart Tillerkeel looked back at Winterfell. “We would journey to the owner of the castle before us. The Giants respect the crafting of all rock and we see greatness in those blocks and mighty walls. There we can make proper greeting of all our members and come to know you.”
Eddard could not help but feel his chest swell with pride.

Eddard told the Giant “That is Winterfell. This is my home. We Starks have lived in this castle for almost eight thousand years. I am Eddard Stark and the Warden of the North. I am vassal to Daenerys Targaryen. She is the Breaker of Chains.”

The Giant looked perplexed. “Do chains have great magic here?”

“No it represents that she freed the slaves of Slavers Bay and in the Free cities.”

“What is this slavery?” Lustra asked. She clearly was confused by the word. “I have never heard the word before.”

“It is when men force other men to serve as chattel and all freedom it taken from them.”

Lustra looked at her companions who looked perplexed back at her.

“How is this possible? Wars are fought we understand but why does was one man take another man’s freedom after the war is over. The conflict is settled one way or the other. How do you allow such a heinous act to occur?”

It took Eddard five minutes to fully get the concept across. The queen watched this with silence. She never talked of her defeat of slavery.

The Giants seemed almost stunned. Braveheart asked “How long was this allowed?”

“Five thousand years.”

The giants started shouting and some pulled their swords out of scarabs on hips and backs all faces drained of laughter and now filled with fury.

The Manethrall ripped a length of rope out of her hair and gripped the length of rope in both hands. Her teeth bared in rage at this concept.

Eddard was both surprised that the mere concept of slavery could be so strange to these travelers from the South of the world. Almost as surprising was their visceral reaction to their new found knowledge of slavery.

The Haurchai First Mark on her Ranyhyn stepped her horse forward. She asked impassively. “How was this allowed to stand?”

“None desired to end it until my Queen put an end to it. What stood for five thousand years is no more because of her.”

The Haruchai tilted her head. She then dismounted and came to stand before the queen. She walked with a martial prowess Eddard observed. Another Haruchai came forward and jumped off his Ranyhyn. He stood beside Brail.

Brail acknowledge the other Haruchai with the slightest inflection of her head. They looked at each other. Eddard could have sworn they were somehow communicating without words. As one they turned back to Daenerys. In unison they came to stand before the Queen with rigid backs and flexed knees. They looked ready to meet any challenge that their strength could match. Brail turned to face the Queen. Her visage was flat and expressed no emotion.

“You have ended a great evil that others allowed to stand for five thousand years. This act must be answered” Brail spoke in a flat voice that showed no emotion. Her tonal lilt suppressing her words.

“This is Bannor. He will be your Bloodguard as long as we are in this land of Westeros.”

“I do not need his service”

“Never the less you have it.” The man came before Daenerys. He looked at her impassively. He stood five foot six inches tall. His dark almond eyes regarded the Queen flatly. His bare feet did not seem to feel the cold Earth he was standing on. His body was toned and fit. He then bowed the smallest fraction toward Daenerys Targaryen.

He slammed his fist into his chest. Eddard was shocked at the force of the balled hand striking flesh. It sounded like his fist could crush granite to Eddard. Eddard began to wonder of his first impression of these brown skinned flat mien people. The man spoke with a flat voice that yet had a strange lilt to it like the woman. “Fist and Faith. There is only victory or death.” His speech and manner impassive. The repressed lilt of the man’s speech made Eddard think that the Haruchai found Westeros a difficult speech to utter for these strange warriors.

“I refuse this service” was Daenerys prompt reply. Her tone broke no argument.

The two Haruchai cocked their heads toward each other fractionally. Eddard was somehow sure they were communicating somehow without words. Eddard noticed the ‘Lord’ looked alarm and now urged her Ranyhyn forward.

The two Haruchai turned and gave Daenerys their full attention again.

Brail spoke “You are the Dragonthane. You have broken the horror that is this ‘slavery’. You are the locus of much that is and will come. We offer our service. Bannor will be your Bloodguard. We find this necessary as our ancestors found it necessary with High Lord Kevin of the High Council.”

“I do not need it’ was the Queen’s short answer.

Bannor regarded Daenerys closely. Eddard saw that the rest of the Haruchai had slowly brought their Ranyhyn forward silently. Bannor looked fractionally at Brail. She nodded. “Need has nothing to do with our offer. We will serve. I am now your Bloodguard. I will protect you to my last breath if necessary. Service is necessary. High Lord Kevin attempted to resist our offer of service.”

Eddard saw the Lord, Lustra, start and he now saw fear for some reason on her face. She stared at Brail and Bannor gnawing her lip. The Lord was no longer taciturn in her agitation.

“I still must refuse your offer. I am touched but I will not accept this service” Daenerys spoke calmly. Arya touched her shoulder to give Daenerys her support.

Eddard saw that the Lord was becoming greatly upset now. She started to speak but hesitated. Lustra was truly fearful now for some reason Eddard could not understand.

The two Haruchai again seemed to communicate somehow between themselves. The other Haruchai had now dismounted their horses and formed behind their two comrades. It was obvious to Eddard the Haruchai were showing solidarity for and with Brail and Bannor. The Haruchai stood impassively but Eddard felt great tension in the air.

“Would you require us to speak the words of the Vow to show our intent? Must we invoke the Earthpower to prove our worth?” Bannor asked the Queen.
It was clear that Daenerys did not understand what the Haruchai were implying. He himself did not understand. What was this “vow”? Eddard could see Daenerys trying to understand what the Haruchai were implying.

“So be it then” Brail said flatly. Eddard watched as the Haruchai formed up behind Brail and Bannor. The Haruchai began to speak in unison in a loud voice. They spoke in a language never before heard in the land of Westeros.

“Auri kakneena na leslra lo—“ The air had begun shimmer and the ground to ripple underneath the feet of the Haruchai. “Urakane foralum zatum na kelialum—“ Eddard felt great power in the air.

Then the Lord screamed “NOOOOO!”

She rushed her Ranyhyn up to the Queen and dismounted in a smooth motion and came up before Daenerys. Her face filled with a panic that was sharp and intense. “Please Daenerys Targaryen accept their service. Do not require them to speak the Vow. The price is too horrible to contemplate. The sacrifice is too great! I beg you!” The Lord looked wildly between the Queen and Brail.

The Haruchai had stopped whatever they had begun. The ground beneath the Haruchai had begun to ripple and blue light glowed up from the Earth. The First Mark looked at Daenerys with absolutely no emotion on her face. Whatever had the Lord so upset did not seem to bother the Haruchai.

“I do not understand” Daenerys breathed out.

“If you force the Haruchai to prove their worth they will speak the Vow yet again as they did for High Lord Kevin. They will seal their lives to death. They will no longer age. Even here the Earthpower will answer their call and need. They will forgo love and life to serve you and your descendents to the end of time. Do not force them to do this! Their service knows no limits. Great harm will come of this!” the Lord nearly screamed. “Do not force them!” she pleaded.

Eddard saw the Queen rebound. She looked at Bannor. He stared flatly back at Daenerys. Eddard watched the Queen process all she had just heard. She bowed her head. “May I prove worthy of your service.”

“You have freed slaves. I will protect you from all harm to the limit of my strength” Bannor spoke without inflection. Brail nodded her ascent. The power that had been imminent in the Earth slowly faded away.

“It is good” Brail intoned.

Eddard wondered. One would never know the Haruchai had been about to sacrifice their lives for Daenerys to prove their worth. What kind of people are these Haruchai he mused. They show no passion and yet their souls are filled with it.

Brail spoke again. “To her mate we offer Jeertel as Bloodguard” a woman came forward from the group behind Brail. She repeated the same vow to Arya as Banner had to Daenerys. Arya blushed at the proclamation.

The Ranyhyn began to trumpet and rise up on their hind legs and paw the air. They too seemed to be giving promises of service.

Eddard had to smile. Daenerys beamed at the simple pronouncement made by these strangers while his daughter seemed stunned to hear her love so easily observed. Dany hugged Arya to her and kissed her temple. Arya nearly stumbled.
Yes Eddard thought to himself. I think I will be winning that bet. He would use the Gold Dragons for the wedding.

Daenerys

Daenerys had come out of the cellar complex below the Great Keep. She walked around looking at the massive stone blocks that made the castle. She was a little enthralled with the almost black stone that Winterfell was made of. It was amazing how the color of stone lent so much to the personality of a building. She ran her fingers along the seams of the stone. She almost felt she could hear the stone whispering to her. The pale Queen bent here head to the stone. She heard nothing. It was there. Ancient power and magic just out of reach of her senses.

The stones seemed to have a mindset. The stones were not angry. What was the word Daenerys tried to find? Then it came to her: Brooding. The Red Keep with its red stone seemed almost gay compared to these dark brooding stones.

It was not a depressing atmosphere but one of a brooding contemplation of the past. The castle of the Red Keep and the very city of King’s Landing was less than four hundred years old. That City was merely an infant’s first awareness compared to the history of this eight thousand year old castle. True little stood from the original castle but his spot had seen so much history. To think this existed before there was a wall made Daenerys head spin. She paused when she realized that his castle was older than the civilization that had given her birth.

Such age was almost impossible to grasp. She walked on down the hall hearing the murmuring always just beyond her conscious grasp. Did others hear it?

This very keep was over five thousand years old. It was still as strong and vital as it was when it was first erected. She reached out and touched the stone and listened. She sighed. She had hoped to feel and hear the history these stones had seen. The stones refused to tell her their secrets. They wished to hold onto them. She felt Jhogo and Rakharo on her shoulders. They too looked around reverently at the stones of this castle.

Her Bloodriders were bred for the open sky and endless grass seas felt the history of this place. It would be here long after all them had turned to dust back in the embrace of the Earth. She heard their bells tinkle as their heads moved looking at the ancient stones.

They walked down several more corridors. They entered the Keep proper. Now they started to find adornments on the walls. The Queen and her Dothraki gazed up at the tapestries on the wall. The cloth providing warmth to the cold stone and give the residents color to look upon. She saw several suits of armors on stands. She walked up to them and looked for weak points to attack. The warrior in her always looked for weakness. She chuckled. Once a warrior always a warrior.

She stopped at a tapestry. Her ridders did not know the significance of the scene that had been stitched into the fabric. It was a large tapestry that was on dark fabric. She walked up closer to the tapestry. It was well crafted with tight needle work. The colors were still vibrant depicting the scene the artisans had crafted.

The scene was on the side of the sea with the viewpoint out to sea. The tide was low with tide pools all round. The sun was still low in the sky and the sunlight shining brightly off the waves crashing to shore and the sea mist rising up from the impacting waves. The water slicked rocks glinting brightly.
A tall man with white hair and a tiara on his head looked down at a man kneeling before him. The man standing had armor that was silver and black. He had on a cloak synched on his shoulders that went down to his heels. His sword sheathed at his waist. The cape blowing in the wind.

The man kneeling had his head bowed down in submission. His wolf cape draped on his shoulders and running down his back. His attire dark grey and black. His armor with plate on legs, arms and upper chest with chain mail underneath. On the right behind the standing man who looked down calmly at the kneeling man where men on horses. They were mounted facing with red standards that rippled in the morning wind.

A dragon with black body and red wings the sun shining through his thin wings flew proudly beneath the bright sun. Low cloud banks were on the horizon and haze inland with rising hills behind the mounted horse. Low mountains jutted out in the horizon. A man dressed in North leather and fur stood with a lance. The kneeling man’s personal guard.

Daenerys stepped back several steps. The artisans had created a masterpiece of balance. The scene centered perfectly with the contrast of light and dark. The tapestry had a romantic feel to it. The scene was almost too perfect in its balance and symmetry.

Daenerys wondered about what she saw. This was a scene of subjugation and yet the Starks had commissioned the creation of an act that she heard snickers of in King’s Landing. The Starks had knelt when all of the other Great Houses had resisted. The other Great Houses said the House of Stark was a house of cowards. What had their bravery achieved? Daenerys knew.

The Houses of the South had been burned Daenerys thought for their supposed bravery. Or had it been stupidity.

True, Dorne was never conquered and took their “pound of flesh” but they had suffered grievously for it. Daenerys did not feel like snickering looking at the tapestry. She saw a profound wisdom sadly lacking in her house or the Houses below the North. Only the House of Stark tried to avoid battles and wars that others rushed into. They were not always successful but they seemed to avoid most of the petty squabbles that plagued Westeros. Daenerys with her conquest of Essos had learned it was not a malady unique to her homeland.

She had come to admire this restraint. House Stark was satisfied with its lot in life. They were warden of the North and that seemed to be enough for them. Only once had they involved themselves in matters of House Targaryen politics.

She remembered her history of the civil war during the time of Queen Rhaenyra when Prince Jacaerys Velaryon flew to the North to gain House Stark for the cause of his mother the Queen Rhaenyra Targaryen.

Daenerys grimaced that of course part of the alliance had called for a royal princess to marry into the family of Lord Cregan Stark. Why are women always battered off a chattel damnit?! Lord Cregan himself led a host to King’s Landing near the end of the war, but they arrived after the death of King Aegon II Targaryen.

Her mind wondered. She remembered her Maester bring up the question that some Maesters spent much time working on. Which came first: The chicken or the egg.

How had House Stark evolved so differently? Was it the world they lived in and it fashioned them or had it been the Starks who came to be and then molded the world around them to be a reflection of their temperament and sense of self. This primitive land seem to engender a purity of spirit that was lacking in the South of Westeros. She wondered if the harsh life in this cold clime made the people living in it find something rare and precious within themselves.

Daenerys had definitely seen a difference between “South” and “North”. The people of the North were more taciturn and reserved. She snorted. Probably all do to statistics. There was a hell of a lot more people in the South and much more chance of associations to be formed and with people being people, well, as the great Maesters taught “shit happens”.

Eddard did seem different though. He had a calmness and sense of being centered about him. She knew instinctively that she could trust her life and her kingdom into his care and not worry. To be truthful she had come to feel the same with House of Dorne, and Baratheon. She could trust Highgarden as long as they clearly knew she was in control. They were honorable but opportunistic.

She could live with that. She would never give them a reason to doubt her rule or the surety of it. There was one House she could never trust with its current ruler. She knew she could never trust House Lannister. Its currently leader precluded that. Tyrion was too crafty and conniving. His actions during Robert’s Rebellion told her all she needed to know. If he had performed his duties as she should have history would be so different.

She would not be here looking at this tapestry for one thing. She snorted again. Maybe things turned out the way they were supposed to. House Greatjoy was a problem until itself. One she would have to deal with. She had to worry about Essos and the Dothraki too. She still had a few Khalasars to bring to heel and with the City States she knew that believers of the old ways still thrived in the shadows. They in time would cause her problems.

Her mind returned to problems closer to home. She wondered if Lancel or Kevin would be more tractable if Tywin was no longer among the living. She toyed with the idea of hiring the faceless men again. Like before it must appear a natural death or accident. She immediately discarded that idea. The price for her one use of that order was proving to be too high.

Also she found that solution untasteful. It left a bitter taste in her mouth. She wanted to beat her foes herself. She wanted her fights to be in the open. She had come to hate court intrigue. Fights on the field of battle carried their own honor.

She would work this problem when things had settled after this war with the Ice Wright King. She needed Tyrion as her Hand. Unfortunately, he had no desire to be the Warden of the West. Cersei and Jamie had made it clear they wanted nothing to do with their ancestral seat of power.

Daenerys sighed. The siblings at one time were totally unworthy of such power and now that both were absolutely worthy of such power and responsibility they both shunned it. They were perfect for the high chair of their House. She smiled. They were happy and in love. She would not gainsay them that.

Still, maybe she could persuade one or the other to take the yoke of leadership. Only time would tell. They both had highly capable wives to support and guide them.

Daenerys looked again at the humility of Eddard’s ancestor. The same humility she had seen in Eddard. She needed him in King’s Landing but sadly rejected that idea. That court was full of hyenas in human form. Hyenas would at least attack honorably if in great numbers. Their human brethren hid in the shadows and only attacked you in the back.

Unfortunately, it seemed as if House Lannister was more hyena at heart than the noble lion on their banners.

She had cleaned out the human hyenas though by using the Master of them all Varys. Slowly they had weeded out the unsavory souls from her court. With Olenna working with him she was safe on that front. They would ferret out any further rats and she would exterminate as necessary.

She had decided the North was the largest territory in Westeros and wanted to know that she could always depend on that land as being safe.

She thought again of what Eddard had said yesterday. It made her smile at what Eddard had whispered into her yesterday. She shivered. She had his blessing to wed his daughter! Her mind shouted to her. She had waited long enough. She would take Arya to her bed and make her hers. She felt her nipples throb and pussy aching with long suppressed desire. She longed to bury her face in her sweet love’s wet cunt and suck her off to screaming orgasms.

The pale Queen licked her lips tasting in her mind already the sweet cum that she would be swallowing when she sucked her sweet wolf off. Repeatedly! Her mouth watered thinking of swallowing the plum nipples of her sweet Arya. She would suck them down her throat as her fingers ram fucked the sloshing tight greasy cunt of her lover. The Queen would revel in feeling Arya’s cunt spasming and locking down on her plunging fingers in and out the pussy she would suck to such sweet orgasms. Daenerys shivered thinking such sweet thoughts.

It was high time she take her woman! She had wasted too much time already. Everything had been so crazy the last few days. She had thought to invite Arya to her chambers last night but meetings and Arya wanting to spend time with her recovering mother had nixed that. She was happy that that Arya wanted to spend time with a mother who had not been the most supportive of Arya and her desires. Her Arya had such a big heart!

Daenerys had gotten up at her usual time but she was informed by a chamber maid that Arya was still sleeping from being up late. She wanted to see her sweet love’s face but she let her thoughts wander. Maybe it was a good thing. If the Queen had her way, Arya would need all her strength and rest for what the Valyrian had planned for her woman.

Daenerys chuckled. Yesterday had been a long one. She wanted Arya fully rested for when she took her. It was time for the … for the what … she thought and then she knew. It was time for the dragon to lie with the wolf.

She started to image Arya naked as she had viewed her in her surreptitiously hidden mirror. It was time to see her delicious Arya’s naked body without the imaged reversed in the mirror. She longed to see her Arya aroused body before her. To See Arya’s eyes filled with the same hunger for her body that she felt for Arya’s beautiful perfect warrior toned body. Daenerys Targaryen needed so see raw naked fuck hunger in Arya’s eyes. Fuck hunger for herself. She needed that passion from Arya. She absolutely needed Arya’s love.

She had just decide to stalk her wolf down and take her when she felt Drogon suddenly come wide awake sensing danger. Daenerys focused on her son’s distress. Now Viserion and Rhaegal had come awake. The Great Keep began to tremble with the loud bugles that Drogon roared from the tower he had rested on. The screams of rage deafening even through many levels of the keep. Now his brothers’ roars came echoing into the Great Keep.

The dragons sensed something that should not be there. They were unsure of the direction. They were unsure what to do. The danger was still some ways off. Daenerys felt their minds questioning her for guidance.

The only problem at the moment was the fact that Daenerys only had one thought in her mind. Arya! If the enemy had somehow penetrated all the way to Winterfell unseen and not attacked she needed to reach Arya now. She had left her weapons in her quarters not wanting to wear her weapons in a bastion of safety.

Her dragons receiving no guidance from their Queen but her general sense of agitation had had risen up from their nests and roared their distress. They sensed danger only. They were not sure at first where the danger came from but their senses as they fully woke up sensed the danger was to the east.

Daenerys could feel her dragons coiling up with tense energy. She felt in her mind them fanning their wings in agitation. Drogon’s mighty bass drum bugles vibrated through the pale Valyrian’s body. Now all three dragon’s bugles echoed through the stone of the Great Keep. The sounds of three dragons bugling at full volume made it hard to think!

She started to run down the hall and skidded to a stop in her soft sole leather booties. Where the fuck is Arya! Daenerys thought urgently.

Then she felt her dragons launched themselves into the air. They would defend their mother as they went to confront the danger. They could feel her need to find her mate and they approved.

She looked back at her Bloodriders three paces behind her. “Jhogo, Rakharo—where is my Arya! I need my wife!” Daenerys realized what she had just said out loud. She would not take it back! Arya was her wife as far as she was concerned. It was time to take what was hers. Well, after taking care of whatever the hell had just cropped up. Damnit! The timing sucked!

They looked at her with big eyes. They had no answer. For the next few minutes were a whirlwind of running in fits and starts down halls. The three running up and down stairs. Daenerys had not begun to remember the layout of his ancient venerable castle. Her voice carrying down the halls “ARYA! ARYA!”

For the next several minutes Daenerys became more and more desperate looking for her Arya. She had seen a murmur play in Pentos when she cowed them and took their allegiance. The theater had been beautiful and had a large stage. It had allowed for a set to be constructed that was three stories tall. It had stairways between the floors.

In the second act it had the main characters running up and down the stage halls and stairs running in and out doors. They must have had corridors connecting all the doors behind the set since the actors would go in a door on the third floor and appear on the first floor only ten seconds later. Around and around the characters had run in a riot of confusion.

It had been funny then. Now it was not so funny she thought grimily as she ran grimly going up yet another set of stairs calling for her sweet Arya! Where was her woman! She needed her!

Dany would stop at intersections looking in all directions. She did not where the fuck Arya was! Her eyes darted down each hallway desperate to see her sweet wolf. She gnawed her lip. She again exploded into motion. You would never confuse her running for a damsel who flailed her pale, gangly limbs stuck in a changing amore. She was a warrior and ran with the grace of shadowcat pursing its prey.

She had heard her dragons take flight as she ran here and there. She had gone back down two floors yelling for Arya. She was running fast when she skidded along the floor when she heard her heart’s desire. “DAANNNYYYY!” she heard Arya yell.

She yelled back and they collided hard rounding a corner into each other. Their hard warrior bodies rebounded off each other. The breath whooshed out of lungs. Both women tumbled back from the collision and fell back onto their asses on the castle floor. The hard stone bruising their asses. The pain unfelt with elation running through their bodies seeing each other. They smiled great big seeing each other for the first time this day. In a welter of confusion they helped each other up. Arya gripped Daenerys’ hand and she took off for a door leading to the inner court.

Daenerys could not help but smile. Her sweet wolf knew what her dragon needed. She wanted a good morning kiss but the situation would have to make that wait! They burst outside into the cold invigorating sunlight. They looked around. Dany felt her dragon coming back for her. Daenerys pointed to the east curtain wall telling Arya that Drogon was coming for them. She loved the feral smile she saw on Arya’s face. No fear in her face. She was ready to meet any challenge at Dany’s side. Arya was indeed the perfect woman to be her mate Daenerys thought as her heart beat rapidly both in love and in the anxiousness of this moment.

The mighty black steed flew fast over the curtain wall. Drogon came down to alight just in front of them. She and Arya quickly scrambled up onto his back. The two women gripped the black scales and stuck their feet between scales further down his back. Arya was now used to riding on Drogon. She hunched her body down as did Daenerys. The mighty dragon coiled down and dug his claws into the Earth. Then with a mighty push off from his powerful legs Drogon threw himself in the air. The force of his body surging up exhilarating.

In moments they were up and over the castle wall. Drogon beat his wings to climb up several hundred feet and then leaned over to gain speed gliding down to the force of men and women that had seemed to appear from nowhere.

Daenerys had not looked through her dragon’s eyes with her focus on finding Arya. That need had been paramount. She needed her Queen by her side. Then she been focused on running fast through the Great Keep and then the fast run out into the courtyard. Now she saw that had made her dragons so agitated. Below her and Arya was a wall of blue force. It was obviously magical in construction. The wall was thinly opaque and they could see the forces protected behind it.

She saw Shaggydog and Greywind throw themselves at the blue wall. The wall surged into brilliance at the impact point. Blue flashes of light gripped the Direwolves and threw the massive beasts back. Daenerys saw the beasts flips through the air and roll with the impact of their landing. At that moment Viserion came plummeting down and his feet struck the blue sphere. A hundred feet away Rhaegal’s body slammed into the blue wall with his hind legs. The impact frightful. They were trying to overwhelm the wall of blue with brute strength.

The sphere sagged slightly but held strong. Then the dragons were flung backwards. Their bodies tumbling through the air. The dragons twisted their bodies to right themselves to fly away for another pass at the wall.

Daenerys could see a woman beneath the sphere gripping a staff that blazed. The Queen saw blue strobes of light that lightening up out of her staff and into the blue wall. She was giving the wall strength. Her dragons came in for another attack on the blue wall. They were filled with rage at their lack of success of penetrating the wall.

They all struck the blue wall of light that rose several thousand feet up into the air and arched over the force that had appeared. Daenerys watched as blue light rode up over her dragon’s bodies as their talons and now striking teeth tried to work through the blue wall. Suddenly, the dragons were hurled back and up with a surge of blue power. Their bodies tumbling in the air before they righted themselves and flew up to gain attitude for another attack.

As her dragons had attacked the wall the Direwolves had thrown themselves repeatedly at the blue wall with equal lack of success.

Daenerys had noted one thing. All the attacks on the wall by her dragons and the Direwolves of the Starks were repulsed without harm to the attacking animals. The force with which the dragons and Direwolves were thrown back could have easily harmed the beasts. Especially the much smaller Direwolves. The repulsion of the animals was only enough to prevent their success in breeching the blue wall.

“Zaldrīzes! Ōño jorepi, se morghūltas li qēlītsos sikagon!” Viserion and Rhaegal flew higher as Drogon circled lower over the blue magical wall to let his master see up close the forces below.
Daenerys relaxed. She knew that Eddard would soon make his appearance. This was not an attack.
It was his home and she wanted him to have first contact with what she sure were unlooked for allies.

She circled as her dragons looked down balefully. Having their will thwarted had put them in a foul mood.

She finally spied Eddard riding up. It had not been long but she was full of nervous energy at these strange visitors. She had Drogon fly down and she got off with her wolf. She relished gripping Arya’s waist to help her down and the way Arya flushed her body into hers as she got her balance.
The little minx pressed her body hotly into Daenerys. The Queen wanted to moan at the delicious body contact. Arya was signaling her desires. Desires mirrored in the Queen’s body.

Soon Arya. Very soon I will take you as my woman, my mate, my wife. I will claim you soon. So soon the Queen thought. She would bed her sweet Arya and show her the pleasures of the flesh.
Daenerys shook her head to clear such thoughts. She had this immediate situation to manager.

Daenerys let Eddard make the introductions and was again reminded of the humility of the Starks with how quickly Eddard made it completely clear Daenerys was the ruler of Westeros. He showed no hesitation in bowing before her to show his obeisance to her.

With their conversation it became clear to the Queen that these people knew of her. Sigh. Of course more damned prophecies! She was a “dragonthane”. What in the hell is a thane?

She had been offered personal service by these Haruchai. She had tried to deny that service. That denial had been rejected. Evidently, her refusal of their service touched some deep cord in these women and men. The chord once plucked and the note sounded could not be taken back. She had her Bloodriders and anyways she could protect herself.

First Daenerys had been taken aback when the these Haruchai started to speak in their native language and the very Earth began to ripple and glow blue as if answering some summoning. The Queen had been more shocked by Lustra’s outburst and the emotional words. What kind of vow were they speaking of and what could be so bad about simple spoken words. The Lord hand nearly become hysterical. She had sensed the situation required her to accept the offer and she had.

The power she had seen and felt manifesting itself beneath the Haruchai as they spoke in their own language had been shocking to feel in the marrow of her bones. She sensed something mighty was being invoked. The Lord losing it had convinced Daenerys to accept the offer of service.

She knew something horrible had barely been avoided. Service without end? No death? No love?
What kind of people would make such a vow of commitment?

She was not looking forward to her Bloodriders reaction. It would not be good. Her consternation was eased when the offer of a Bloodguard was offered to her “mate”. The feeling she felt surging through her body was thrilling. Gods even these strangers saw it. Her desire to move on her desire for Arya only grew. Arya’s shaken reaction and leaning into her made Daenerys body feel on fire.

The calling of Arya as her mate and Arya’s reaction fired up the Queen’s desires. She gripped Arya gently and spun the teenager into her body and snaked her arms around the beautiful girl’s waist. She looked deep into Ayra’s steel blue eyes with her lilac irises burning with desire. She started to lower her head and smiled hearing Arya whimper.

Their lips met and melded. They kissed sweetly with lips gliding and then the Queen sucked on Arya’s lower lip. Arya gasped and opened her mouth wide in offering. The Valyrian did not hesitate. She speared her tongue in deep into Arya’s mouth. Her tongue finding Arya’s where they twined and flipped around in Arya’s mouth. Arya’s hands rose up to grip the Queen’s hips tightly. Both women moaned gutturally as their tongues wetly wrestled in wet slippery love.

Their sounds of snogging was wet and sweet. Daenerys broke the kiss. Both women breathing heavy. The Queen was on fire for her young wolf. Kissing Arya for the first time in public felt exhilarating. She looked over to Arya’s father. She had to see his reaction to this obvious lesbian desires between her and his daughter. The approval in Eddard’s eyes made her feel shaky. He wanted this to happen! She was getting overwhelmed with emotion. She wanted Arya so bad! Damnit everything seemed to be happening at once.

The woman with the light blue tunic came before her. It was a simple garment. She had a severe face that could be very pretty if she did not look so aggrieved. It was clear something had robbed happiness from her life. The Haruchai and Ramen were taciturn by nature Daenerys perceived. Not so with this woman. Something had taken her happiness away. She had the quality of repressed anger and frustration about her. She reminded Daenerys of Stannis Baratheon. This woman did not have happiness in her life Daenerys thought.

“I am Lord Lustera on the Council of Lords at Revelstone. I speak for the Land. We are honored to serve the Dragonthane.”

“What is a ‘thane’?”

“It is a honorific. Linden Avery is the Ringthane as is her husband. They are named Giantfriend and Earthfriend. Thrice they have redeemed the world from ruin.”

“Yes! I know that name. She gave me the dirk that I summoned the Ur-Viles with.”

She saw Lustera stare at her “You know of Linden Avery? Ur-Viles? They died out over forty thousand years ago. The last of that sad race become the new Forsestals. They are no more.”

Daenerys was stunned at this news. Then she felt a shock as her memories of the day of her death suddenly came into greater clarity. She now remember facts of that day. How could the people from this Land be so mistaken? She felt Arya rubbing her back and leaning into her. “Are alright baby?!” she asked comfortingly. Arya’s gentle touched centered Daenerys.

The Queen then told Lustera, Arya, Eddard and the others gathered around her of her suddenly restored memories of the day of her death in the deserts of the Red Waste. As she told them her tale many of the other denizens of the Land came closer. The Haruchai on their Ranyhyn brought the steeds closer to hear what the Valyrian had to say. The Queen’s Bloodriders came pelting up on horses and joined the audience.

All listened to her tale. She told all gathered of her battle in the Dothraki Sea and how the Ur-Viles came to her aid in her hour of need. Daenerys saw how the tale captured all’s attention. Lustera was stunned that Ur-Viles still lived. She was even more stunned to hear the name of Infelice.

“She was involved?”

“Yes. So?”

“The Elohim never involve themselves with humans. Only with Linden Avery have the Elohim communicated so directly. The Elohim hold themselves above the common cares of the world. They are an arrogant and fey race. They are Earthpower given form and sentience.” Daenerys watched Lustera look at Braveheart Tillerkeel.

The giant laughed gently. “It would appear that Daenerys Targaryen is a very important person in the future of the Earth. Infelice is insufferable and aloof and yet she came to you to give succor. You are indeed the Dragonthane.”

The Giant and Lustera came up to Daenerys and bowed to her. “We will give our lives if it is required to serve you Dragonthane. You have been touched by the Elohim. You are prophesized. Now we know that the Elohim also see your importance. We have chosen wisely.”

“Now we see why you are filled to almost overflowing with Earthpower. We were told we find three such females of this land. It makes sense that you would be one of them. You are the wise Queen of a mighty land and you are clearly a mighty warrior in your own right.” The giant woman then looked at Arya. “We can see why your wife is filled with Earthpower since she is a mighty warrior too.”

The Queen looked at Arya and saw the look of awe and wonder on her face.

“We wonder who the third woman is. Do you know Dragonthane? We were told to look for a Dragon and a Wolf. I see those two animals in you and your mate Daenerys.

“I fear I do not” Daenerys answered. “Hopefully, in time she will reveal herself.”

The Giant sighed. “A shame. I would like to meet this third woman. It is said she is a great Lion.”

Daenerys did not say anything but she looked over at Eddard and then Arya. She saw it in their eyes.

Cersei Sand was the other woman. By the gods. Daenerys was thankful she had not killed the then arrogant and vain woman. She would have to think on this. She was in Dorne far away. She could never arrive in time. She must be part of the later labors that the Lord and Giants had mentioned.

Lustera went back to the Ur-Viles. She told Daenerys that indeed these had to be the Ur-Viles of the Land’s past. They had the same appearance and their fighting tactics were the Ur-Viles of the past. The Lord told Daenerys how the Ur-Viles served Lord foul in the far distant past. They committed many atrocities and then stunningly had reformed themselves and chose to serve light and right. The Ur-Viles had totally redeemed themselves. For that service Lord Foul had annihilated the race during the Sunbane.

Lustera was happy to hear that they still lived and she was not quite as sever looking.

They started to walk back to Winterfell and Banner came up beside her as they all walked back to Winterfell. She let her dragons fly off but they choose to swoop back to Winterfell. The Direwolves were lulling around the gathered giants smelling their sandals. The wolves’ tails were wagging as they sniffed hard at the new scents. The wolves were excited at all these people and scents.

Arya spied Shaggydog moving into positon. He was looking around with a mischievous look on his face. He was starting to lift his hind leg.

“Shaggydog!” she yelled at the Direwolf.

The large wolf suddenly looked very innocent as he walked around spying the legs he dearly wanted to mark as his territory.

Daenerys was happy to see the gathered Westerosi talking to these visitors from the “Land”. The giants were laughing constantly making lame jokes that had Oberyn rolling his eyes and Eddard grimacing.

Bannor and Jerteel were at her and Arya’s shoulders. They had moved in like silent ghosts. They tread was silent. The Bloodguard matched the stride of the women they had pledge to defend with their lives. Dany looked over her shoulder at her Bloodriders seething on their mounts. Her proud Bloodriders could and would not accept this usurping of their cherished roles as the Khalessi’s protectors.

She knew what was coming. She knew the two Bloodguards had to sense the rising tension in the three riders who were wheeling their horses around in front of Daenerys and her new personal protectors.

As one they dismounted their horses.

“Me laz odothrae kimi mae she Rhaeshi Ajjalani avvos” Aggo barked.

“Affa. Kisha amariki vorsqoy ha maan Khalessi. Majin anha astak yeraan asqoy” Rakharo added.

The Dothraki were filled with righteous fury and planned on dispatching these small framed scum. Only they belonged at the Khalessi’s side. They pulled their Arakhs off the pummels of their saddles. They slashed the air with their weapons. They continued to shot curses and threats at the Haruchai.

The Haruchai only added to the Dothraki’s anger by not responding in any manner to the threatening behavior of the Dothraki towards them. The Haruchai only glanced at Daenerys Bloodguard. They seemed to be totally relaxed but Daenerys sensed the Haruchai were ready to confront her Bloodriders. The Valyrian did not want these Haruchai’s maimed or worse killed by her Dothraki. The Haruchai would be easy to take down with their lack of weapons.

The two Haruchai fractionally tilted their heads towards each other. Again Daenerys sensed they were communicating without words.

Banner moved from her shoulder and moved off into the flattened grass that had been trampled down by troops and their horses. He turned with a flat expression to face the Bloodriders. They had their Arakhs out and slashing the air in a very menacing fashion. They shouted and made slashing motions at the Bloodguard with their Arakhs that whistled through the air menacingly. As she watched Bannor did crouch down ever so slightly and moved to the balls of his feet. Otherwise he seemed relaxed. One would not think he was about to be in a fight where he could easily be maimed or killed.
Daenerys called out to her Bloodriders. “Don’t hurt Bannor. He does not know your skill and strength.” She did not want his death on her conscious.

She heard the Lord on her Ranyhyn snort.

Aggo shouted out in his thickly accented Westerosi “We will show this dog his place! He will rue the day he walked by your side in our steed.” The three Bloodriders clanged their Arakhs together sending out sparks. Aggo then charged the Haruchai screaming at the top of his lungs his Arakh ready to slash out mayhem.

He charged Banner and was upon him in a rush. Aggo pulled his shoulder back to deliver a blow that would be devastating to the Haruchai. The Arakh of Aggo swung in a tight arc in a blinding flash. Daenerys started to scream at him to stop but it was too late.

Bannor easily ducked away from the slash with a simple sidestep and slight duck of his upper torso. The blade whistled by his face. The Haruchai pivoted off to the right. Aggo off balance started to turn his body to match Bannor’s movement. Aggo was still off balance from his wild slash. The Haruchai moved in like a panther. Aggo tried to adjust his stance but he was too slow. A punch was lashed out by Banner so fast Daenerys barely followed it. The punch landed into his shoulder and Aggo was slammed off his feet. He landed hard and rolled to his feet.

Bannor adjusted his stance to face Aggo impassively. His breathing was still completely calm. His face betrayed no emotion.

Aggo grimaced in pain and rage and charged again in a bull rush. This time he slowed at the last moment. He gave a controlled half circle chop but the Haruchai ducked low and pivoted forward on his left foot while his right lashed out with a kick so fast again Daenerys barely followed his speed. The Bloodrider barked in surprise but he could not avoid the Haruchai moving shockingly fast into his personal space. Aggo was just barely beginning to react when the kick hit Aggo in the thigh. Aggo was flung backward as if kicked by a horse as he fell to the ground. The impact of flesh was shockingly loud. The power of the kick obvious to Daenerys.

The Bloodguard did not attack but moved back and with knees slightly bent. He awaited the next attack calmly. Aggo painfully got back up to his feet. When he got up he had an obvious limp. He moved in a very slow controlled manner now. He had learned a new respect for this foe. Still, this foreigner had dared to affront the honor of the Dothraki and he had to be shown his place. This dog’s place was not at the Khaleesi’s side. That was reserved for her Bloodriders!

Aggo now moved in carefully and attacked in a controlled manner. He swung vicious blows at Banner but he easily dodged the slashes. The Haruchai using minimal motion and effort to duck and juke out of the arc of the deadly Arakh. Aggo slashed to the right and then rotated his wrist and reversed the slash. Banner foot came up and kicked the Arakh flush with the ball of his bare foot on the blade as it whistled though the air. Daenerys was stunned at the perfect timing and form to hit the flat of the Arakh blade with Bannor’s foot.

The blade ripped from Aggo’s hand twisting his wrist cruelly. Aggo was spun around by the force of the Arakh ripped from his grip. The bladed weapon spinning off into the grass. Bannor was on him instantly a double punch to the face and Aggo was lying on the ground unconscious. The Haruchai then stepped back calmly. He turned to the other two Bloodriders. Daenerys now felt fear.

Fear for her Bloodriders. This Haruchai she realized could kill her Bloodriders in an instant if he choose. She started to speak to stop this but decided she needed to let this play out. The Haruchai was showing restraint and Daenerys now knew her Bloodriders could not touch these Haruchai.
Bannor was not even breathing hard. Rakharo and Jhogo came charging in with animal fury their Arakhs a blur in the air. They moved to come in on Bannor from his left and right. They hoped a pincer attack at once would quickly defeat the Haruchai. Daenerys watched dumfounded as the Bloodguard easily blocked, dodged and parried their blows. His speed was shocking. His control precise. Bannor seemed to anticipate each attack and be two steps ahead with his counterattacks.

The man seemed to use minimal effort in avoiding the swings and chops of her Dothraki. His hands and feet would strike their weapons at the perfect angle to deflect the weapons up and away from his body. Other times Bannor would strike the Arakh and slam the weapon into the ground throwing her Bloodriders totally off balance.

How the man did not shatter the bones in his hands and feet striking forged steel with such violence over and over perplexed Daenerys. It should have been impossible. Human hands and feet could not survive such repeated brutal impacts. The sounds of flesh striking metal shocking in its loudness and intensity.

In return to the attacks of the Dothraki the Haruchai launched attacks that were impossibly effective with him only using his body as a weapon. It seemed the Haruchai was able to launch assaults with his feet and fists from any angle that still had great power to the strikes. The Queen’s Bloodguards were soon covered with bruises and bleeding from cuts to their faces and both had two black eyes.

What truly frightened Daenerys was the gut understanding that Bannor was holding himself back. Not only was he holding himself back she thought he was greatly restraining his attacks.

Banner then in two seconds disarmed and knocked out her two last Bloodguard. He slapped Rakharo’s blade up when the Dothraki swiped at him with a sidearm swipe. Bannor’s foot came straight up and hit Rakharo underneath his chin sending him flying back unconscious. Jhogo used the opportunity to come in on Bannor’s side with a deadly down chop of his Arakh. The Haruchai had sensed the attack and pivoted to the right. Jhogo lurched forward with his mighty down chop finding only air. Jhogo’s missing Banner threw him off balance his body jerking down with the force of his powerful down swipe of his Arakh. Bannor chopped Jhogo on the neck and the Dothraki fell down unconscious.

From her Ranyhyn the Lord informed Daenerys “You must let your Bloodriders know that none but the Giants can fight the Haruchai one or a few to one. Their prowess is legendary in our world. They can actually use weapons with equal skill but choose not to. It takes great numbers or vast strength to prevail against them. They can be defeated and killed like any other living entity it just takes great effort and skill.”

“At the battle in the Cavewright warrens at the End of the Earth they died by the score but they killed by the hundreds and hundreds and then the thousands. A Cavewright is the size of a Giant.”

Daenerys would make her Bloodriders understand. My gods she thought. What kind of allies were these … who cares! They fight for me like the Ur-Viles before them!

Arya

Arya saw her Queen and hoped to be soon lover look over at her. They both turned to look at Jhogo’s horse that had their weapons hanging from the pommel of his small saddle. The Bloodriders performing their duties as always bringing the weapons the two women had not had time to acquire in their rush to meet these new now allies. They looked at each other again. The honor of Westeros had been impugned. They were two of the greatest swordsmen in all of Westeros and Essos. They had to test themselves against these supreme warriors that fought with no weapons but their body.

They would challenge their Bloodguard. As one they dismounted their horses and walked towards Jhogo’s horse and took down the scabbards and removed their swords. Daenerys Foe Hammer instantly leaping to fiery blue life. The blade glowing incandescent.

Arya looked over at their Haruchai. They sensed the challenge. They stepped off the road and stood together looking at the two women with a neutral expression. She could feel them sizing them up. They were absolutely focused on them though you could never tell it be their demeanor. They seemed unimpressed by Dany’s blazing sword.

Arya would have to remember to ask why Daenerys would stare at the blade up close with a soft smile on her face like now. She knew the blade was rune etched but something about them always made Dany smile. Dany turned her head to look at Arya. She saw the Dany mouth “I love you” to her.

Arya did not remember falling on her butt! She was elated. She had said the words she had dreamed of her saying for years! Oh gods! She was pumped! She quickly got on her feet and they both swirled and swished their swords in the air in lightning fast strikes, blocking moves and ripostes.

“I see that you and your mate are filled with Earthpower as are the Haruchai” Lustera told Dany. She looked at her and nodded her head. “It will be interesting to see your might and skill. Know the Haruchai see it too. They will test your mettle. They consider it an honor.”

Arya looked over at the Haruchai. The only emotion she saw in them was … well … nothing. They stood with a nonchalance that would have exuded boredom if these people had any emotions they would display to the outside world.

Dany came over to her and stroked her cheek and ran her hand through Arya’s hair with such an affectionate look that Arya felt her heart thump hard in her chest. She nearly swooned when Dany moved in and kissed her softly on her lipps. “Mmmnnnggggggg!” Arya whimpered. Gods the sweet tension was ratcheting up. Arya wanted Dany so bad!

“Let’s avenge my Bloodriders. Watch your attack. They are most effective counterpunchers. Don’t let emotion rule your attacks.”

Arya wanted Daenerys something fierce but she first needed to measure herself against these strange Haruchai that had attached themselves to her herself and Dany. Arya looked over at Jeertel. The Haruchai regarded her flatly. The woman definitely gave nothing away! Arya thought to herself.

Arya and her Queen marched resolutely over to where the Haruchai watched them with no emotions and with still bodies. The two women came up to the Haruchai.

She was before Jeertel as Dany was before Bannor. The Haruchai stood before them seemingly totally relaxed. She looked closer and saw that Jeertel was on the balls of her feet subtly. Arya knew she was coiled to attack. She slowly circled her Bloodguard as Dany circled Bannor. The Haruchai only moving enough to keep themselves centered on the circling Westerosi.

Arya felt her emotions running wild and adrenaline pumping hard in her veins. She was bouncing on her feet. Still Jeertel showed absolutely no emotion. She might as well have been strolling serenely through the Glass Gardens. How could she be so calm!

Arya studied her opponent. After a minute of circling she understood that the Haruchai was not going to attack her. She had the edge weapon and a commitment of attack would put the Haruchai at a large disadvantage. If the Haruchai attacked her and Dany they merely had to block with the edge of their weapons to have their opponents harm themselves with their attacks.

So be it. Arya gripped her two swords in a vice grip. She steadied herself as her sword masters had taught her.

Keeping her body relaxed and face neutral she launched a sudden slashing attack with her broadsword and a fencing lunge with needle. She noticed out of the edge of her eye Dany launching her own attack. Her sword a blur as she moved forward slashing high and low. The rune sword leaving blue arcs in the air.

Jeertel blocked her broadsword slash with her palm hitting the side of her blade in mid-strike. The Haruchai dodged to the right avoiding her thrust of Needle. Arya advanced slashing right and left angling her blade towards her side stepping foe. Jeertel’s feet and hands whipped out almost faster than her eyes could follow. Only her constant practice with her sword masters and Dany had trained her mind to see these impossibly fast warriors. Arya was shocked at how easily the Haruchai struck her weapons in such a way as to not injury themselves. Her strikes on Arya’s weapons shockingly powerful.

She saw Dany’s head snap back from a glancing blow to her cheek. She swung her sword out and the up slice nearly catching Banner as he advanced on her making him juke to the left and then roll away as Dany down hacked at his body that was frustratingly just out of reach. He kicked up with a side heel kick that had Dany ducking and jerking back and now Bannor was back on the attack. Dany chopped down and then stabbed out with Foe Hammer. Bannor blocked the sword thrust with his wrist and let the fiery blade travel down his body.

Somehow his “Earthpower” shielded his body from the blade’s heat. He stepped forward fast and gripped Dany’s tunic. He then lunged his head forward for a vicious head butt. Dany had seen it and gripped his arm with her free hand she had released off her sword and stepped in herself and flipped Bannor over her hip.

The Haruchai used his free hand to grip Dany’s hip and flipped himself off and away from Daenerys to land on his feet eight feet away. He was in a crouch and immediately launched his next assault.

Jeertel blocked her own blows with her feet and hands. Arya was stunned at the skill Jeertel used to block her edge weapon on the non-edged side. How her toes and fingers were not all broken Arya had no idea. Again and again Arya attacked with her two swords. Both of her swords swiping deadly arcs in the air. She was not holding back. She did not need to with this Jeertel. The Haruchai body bent and flexed to avoid swords strikes.

Jeertel’s feet and fist either blocked Arya’s strikes or lashed out at Arya with lightning fast speed and shocking power. A blow hit Arya in the hip and she grimaced in pain. She did a double slash with both swords to drive Jeertel back who attempted to press her momentary advantage.

Arya saw that a large group of Lords had gathered. Her father, Oberyn, Stannis and Renly in the forefront. Her father watched with a small smile. It was obvious in his pride of her skills. Stannis watched intently while Oberyn and Renly wildly cheered her and Dany on.

“Kick their ass!” Renly called out. Stannis body was jerking as he fought with them with his body. His body moving with the counterstrokes Arya and Dany used.

“Don’t hurt her face—I want to fuck her!” Oberyn jabbed out. Hopefully, Jeertel had better taste than the blowhard Oberyn Arya and back stepped wildly to avoid a spinning heel kick that would have knocked her senseless if it had connected. She balanced herself. “I want a pretty face to look at when I fuck her silly!” Oberyn crowed. He was cute yeah but he was such a horn dog. Her wandering mind was brought back to focus when she slashed out and cut the Haruchai’s tunic but received a hard chop on her upper arm just above her elbow.

She bit her lip at the pain. Gods the Haruchai woman was almost as small as Dany but she punched like her father or Stannis. How could such a small body generate so much power! Jeertel always seemed to be in perfect balance and ready to block all of Arya’s attacks and launch counterattacks from any angle.

Arya swung and Jeertel ducked underneath the slash and Arya lunged down with needle to stab Jeertel. The Haruchai side swiped her arm knocking Needle aside. At the same time the woman leaped up past Arya’s eye level and kicked out. Arya was able to react in time to juke back and lessen the blow but her head still snapped back as she yelped in pain. The Haruchai twisted in the air keeping her gaze on Arya till she landed on her feet. She instantly charged Arya again.

Pissed off Arya advance with both blades blurring in the air she swung so fast with controlled swings of her blades. The Haruchai blocked and dodged her sword attack always just out of range or knocking her blade aside throwing Arya just enough off balance she would have to change to a defensive stance and again work to the offense as the Haruchai circled her like a hawk looking for a dropping of Arya’s guard. Jeertel would launch attacks so fast that Arya barely had time to register them and block.

Arya knew they were moving so fast that most would perceive them as more a blur. The two assailants attacking now without abandon. Arya used her swords to chop high and low at the same time and still Jeertel was able to either avoid or block the attacks from the two vectors. Worse, she often blocked Arya’s sword strokes in such a manner that it allowed her to penetrate Arya’s defensive sphere and launch attacks that Arya had to work desperately to fend off with her blade striking the fast feet and fist attempting to punch her lights out.

The Haruchai somehow adjusting her blows at the last split instant to not cut herself on Arya’s blades and hit them precisely to knock the blades away. The blocks always immediately followed with complicated and swift counterattacks of kicking feet, stunning knee thrusts and hands that slashed and punched with lightning speed and devastating power if they fully connected.

As she and Jeertel circled each other with feints and blocking of each other’s forays of offense and then back to defense Arya was able to watch Dany and her opponent.

Dany was having the same problem as she was. Dany’s opponent was every bit as fast as they were. He too was impossibly effective at hitting the non-edged part of Daenerys sword. He blocked Daenerys’s sword and would move in for an immediate attack but Dany was able to counterstroke to keep Bannor at bay to forestall any attack and put him back on the defense.

The Haruchai were constantly prowling around the two women of Westeros. They would launch attacks when they sensed an opening. Their feet and fist were like sledgehammers when they connected even a glancing blow. Daenerys staggered when Bannor heel clipped her cheek as she dodged back. The glancing blow still sent the Queen whirling back. She dove to the left as Bannor leaped up in the air and landed down with a lashing kick striking the ground were Daenerys had been a moment before.

Arya saw that it was their speed and strength as much as it was their sword skill that were keeping the Bloodguard at bay. If the Haruchai used weapons they may have been unbeatable. Arya went to a water dancer attack mode using both swords like rapiers thrusting and making small swirling strokes. Jeertel watched with seeming disinterest her body lurching and moving aside from each sword thrust that only Dany, Barristan, Brienne, and Syrio had ever avoided. What scared Arya a little was the instinctive knowledge that all the Haruchai were equally capable. This was the baseline for their whole people!

Jeertel seemed content at first to learn this new style of attack. That was until her body exploded into attack with vicious skill and speed. Jeertel’s body exploded into motion and Arya was hacking wildly to keep the Haruchai at a distance. The Haruchai woman threw punches in combinations always varied and perfectly executed. The flat mien woman launching kicks with no fore warning.

This went on for five minutes. The Haruchai had several red lines from blade strikes nearly finding their mark. Arya and Dany had aching bodies from hard kicks and punches that were mostly blocked or had been rolled with to lessen the impact. Their faces now had several bruises and contusions. Many more were hidden underneath their clothing.

Arya was circling Jeertel warily when she saw Dany move in fast swiping high and then ducking underneath a spinning kick of Bannor. She jabbed up with her blade and slashed down from her crouch to keep Bannor back. She then took her hand down to the ground and flung her blade up and out letting it go. The released blade spun up in a looping circle at Bannor. He leaned back to the left and struck up with his fist knocking the blade away.

In that moment, Bannor’s focus on knocking the blade away while leaned back on one foot had his complete attention. Dany used that brief heartbeat of time to grip her long dagger she always wore on her right thigh. In a flash, her hand moved in a blur stabbing down. The blade burying four inches into the ground beside the Haruchai’s foot.

Bannor looked down at the blade buried in the ground by his foot. His right eyebrow cocked up. He then stepped back and brought the heels of both hands to his forehead and bowed.

Lustera spoke up from her Ranyhyn “Bannor concedes that that injury would have compromised his speed and ability to use that foot effectively. Against your strength and skill he would fall to you. His wound would prove fatal if this contest was real. He concedes.”

Arya was so happy for Dany but could not spare a moment to contemplate her sweet dragon’s victory. She attacked and pressed her attack but could not break through Jeertel’ s defense. Her own defense held firm and kept her from serious harm from the Haruchai’s attacks.

Ten minutes later “Stop! We can see that this battle is a draw!” Dany called out.

Arya was sweating profusely as was Jeertel. Arya was breathing hard but her strength was not close to being spent. She saw that Jeertel’ s body was soaked with sweat though her breathing was only slightly elevated.

Arya was happy to call it a draw. She bowed at her ‘foe’ fractionally. The Haruchai observed her flatly. She then cocked an eyebrow and then bowed deeply. Arya was starting to see that such subtle signs were all the emotion the Haruchai were willing to show.

“I am honored that I was allowed to fight with you. Your sword process is impeccable. The Haruchai have always admired great martial skill. I am honored to be at your shoulder in the conflict to come.”

Dany came up to her and hugged her. Arya pouted. Where is my kiss! Then Dany swung Arya into her arms that enfolded Arya tightly. Their lips met and Arya felt giddy feeling their lips glide and smooch. She gripped Dany’s ass possessively and gagged when she parted her teeth and Dany wasted no time lunging her tongue down Arya’s throat.
Arya felt her knees weaken but Dany held her up as the Queen’s tongue explored Arya’s mouth hungrily. Arya cried out into Dany’s mouth her mewls swallowed by Dany’s devouring mouth. Then the kiss was broken and Arya was swooning. Her body was on fire!

Dany gave her nose a sweet kiss. Then Dany was moving off to be the diplomat with her new allies. This frustrated Arya mightily but she understood the duties that Dany had to perform. She easily talked to the Westerosi Lords and to the Giants. These Giants laughed at the slightest thing that was only marginally funny. They were so beautiful to gaze upon with their blond, brown, black and red hair. Their mighty statures had her neck hurting to take in their height up to fourteen feet tall.

Their legs were like tree trunks and their arms were roped with thick muscle but still had a feminine quality. She smiled seeing Giants with large bosom that their stone armor seemed had a hard time encasing the ample bounty while other Giant women had flat chest armor with no bosom to worry about. It was nice to see that all races had her lack of bosom in at least some of their women.

The Haruchai and Ramen were roughly of her and Dany’s height. The Haruchai extremely toned but did not have the musculature of House Baratheon. They had the wiry muscles of Oberyn or Loras. The Ramen were giving most of their focus to the Ranyhyn. When someone came over to look and touch the Ranyhyn the Ramen started to smile. The love of these people for these horses that seemed to radiate power and intelligence was obvious. The Ranyhyn allowed all to approach and touch them. The horses throwing their heads and shaking their manes as they nickered gaily.

Dany was with her Bloodriders and was consoling them and gripping their arms to prevent them from cutting off their hair. They were humiliated. She could hear Dany arguing with them in Dothraki.

Braveheart Tillerkeel came up to Dany and her Bloodriders. She slowly pulled her mighty seven foot flacheon out of its scabbard. The stone blade was so sharp it caught the sun and sent off strong spangles of light.

The Giant woman exploded into motion her sword swirling in an exotic dance of death. The granite of the blade glowing with red glints of quartz buried deep in the blade. The giant leaped around with perfect balance her blade now whistling through the air with her lightning fast slashes and blocking motions.

Arya thought it was impossible that such a large woman could move with the grace of Giselle. Her blade moved in motions that the eye had a hard time to follow. This woman was more than twice Dany’s height and many times heavier was still as fast and nimble as the smaller women. It was beautiful to behold and yet frightening at the same time. That such power could have such grace and speed was magical.

Braveheart stilled and looked at the Bloodriders.

“The Haruchai are our equals in fighting prowess. I challenge you now.”

The Bloodriders blanched. The blade was longer than their bodies.

The Giant’s grim demeanor then brightened into a soft smile. “Do not feel bad about losing to the Haruchai. Only the mightiest of physical warriors or warriors filled with Earthpower like the Queen and her mate are can fight against them and hope to win. Only great numbers can overcome them and give the attacker a reasonable chance to leave the fight alive. When Giants and Haruchai spar the victor is always in doubt.”
“Put aside this unseemly doubt and chagrin.”

The Bloodriders still looked crestfallen but were beginning to understand why they had lost. They put up their daggers no longer feeling the need to cut their hair. No other Dothraki would have won against the fierce Haruchai.

Everyone that had horses got back on their mounts. Dany and Arya held hands and walked down the road towards Winterfell. Arya felt her pulse hammering with Dany’s open affection. She looked back at her father as he talked to some of the Giants.

He saw her looking and smiled and then winked at her. Her face went red. He wanted her to take Dany as her lover! Gods she literally bouncing on her feet.

Oberyn was in front of her with two of the female Haruchai. Dany looked at Arya and rolled her eyes. Oberyn was in full hard come-on mode. He was looking for new partners to fuck tonight. Somethings never changed. She smiled at Dany. They both chuckled. Oberyn had to be Oberyn. They watched to see if he would be successful. He rarely did not get his mark into the sack.

He rode his horse up to the two Haruchai on their Ranyhyn. They looked at him with their typical flat expressions. This did not deter the Prince of Dorne at all. “What are your names my pretty warriors?”

“I am Ranrika.”

“I am Ferna”

The flat response did not deter the Lothario at all. Even Arya could feel the disdain flowing off these women even if they were showing no emotion at all.

“I am named Oberyn Martell.” He then went on laying it on thick about how skilled he was both on the battlefield and in the bedchamber. He crowed about his long cock and his ability to keep it up and he would love to fuck them. “I make my women and men scream in world shaking pleasure. My skills legendary. My endurance a marvel of the world. My ability to give pleasure is a gift from the gods.”

Ranrika and Ferna glanced at each other and continued to look ahead. They continued to move sedately down the path back to Winterfell. They were obviously ignoring Oberyn.

Oberyn looked perplexed. He was not used to not having his marks immediately swooning from his attentions. Arya had heard enough tales from enough people. Oberyn was really that good in the sack. He did not let these taciturn women dissuade his blatant overtures.

“Well I see you have not heard of my legendary prowess though how this is possible I do not know” he spoke in a soft seductive voice.” He wagged his eyebrows. The women still stared back at him with no emotion.

Oberyn plowed on full speed ahead. “Come back to my chambers tonight for some awesome orgasms. I will fuck you two so well. I love to give head. I suck off my paramour again and again as she screams in ecstasy. I would love to bury my face in both of your hot wet muffs and suck you off again and again. I am not selfish. I will do both of you. I will make you die from it. I will make you both so grateful and dying to return the favors. I am really that good” this said with more eyebrow waggles.

The women continued on down the road with a bored air. Oberyn was not anything if not persistent. He kept his horse keeping pace with the slow walking Ranyhyn.
“Don’t play hard to get. I am a legend in Dorne for the pleasure I give my bed partners. None have ever left my bed with nothing but a beatific smile.”

Ferna turned to Oberyn. “We find you to be a pompous and overbearing odious man. Ranrika is my wife and while we do take partners back to our bed rolls we do not find you alluring. We will be choosing partners to share with our stay here at Wintefell. You will not be one of them.”

Ranrika spoke now “We are hungry for companionship.”

Oberyn started to puff up. Maybe they were just playing hard to get.

“Just not with you” Ranrika spoke flatly.

“Hey! Easy on the ego there lack of a personality. You are not exactly miss congeniality. You two have the personality of grains of sand in an hour glass! Fuck you! Who the hell do you want if you don’t want this hot burning hunk of love?” Oberyn asked hotly.

“We do find another of your group alluring though. We prefer women but sometimes we like to try a taste of cock. We see a man who we know will totally satisfy us. We long to have his cock buried in our hot tight cunts and clenching assholes.” Oberyn looked around truly perplexed as to who the women could possibly be speaking of.

Arya was sort of nonplussed. How could these two Haruchai women be talking about such hot sex and make it seem so bland and boring. Did they ever show any emotion or have any timbre to their voices?!

“Who the fuck is more alluring than me!” Oberyn barked out truly and genuinely confused at this turn of events.

Ranrika and Ferna turned Frohnhyn and Whrany away from Oberyn and circled back. Arya and Daenerys watched the two taciturn Haruchai pass by them and bring their Ranyhyn on either side of Stannis. Stannis was clearly shocked by their sudden appearance on each side of his steed.

Oberyn, Daenerys and Arya stared dumbfounded at this turn of events too. Even they would have chosen Oberyn over Stannis. Oberyn looked almost apoplectic.

“No. No. No this can’t be” Oberyn spoke in a small choked voice. He looked up at the sun as if he was afraid it might disappear from the sky. “Ain’t no fucking way they would chose him over me? This is not right. This is fucking heinous!” Oberyn strangled out through shocked clenched teeth.

Ranrika spoke to Stannis “We find your brooding quite certitude to be most alluring. We are enamored with your tall body and large muscled legs and arms. We feel that you could fuck us most pleasingly in our beds while we are here in your country of Westeros. We long to feel your large cock fucking us to exhaustion. We have examined your groin. You are most endowed. We need to feel your dick deep in our bellies.”

Arya grimaced. Ranrika made the sex sound more like a dissertation before the board of the Citadel. The two Haruchai still showed no outright emotion even talking about the most intimate act between two or more people.

“Hey! I’m endowed damnit!” Oberyn cried out. “Let me fuck you deep damnit! I got just the cock for you, you stupid bitches!” Oberyn was fuming hotly now.

Way to seduce them Arya thought wickedly. Arya looked over at Dany. She was clearly enjoying seeing Oberyn getting destroyed by these stoic women.
Stannis was spluttering at the sudden attention that had been totally unlooked for. He looked around confused. He looked towards Renly for support.

“Hey brother. I prefer the other team bro. You lucky dog. You got two hot babes waiting for you tonight! How do you like that Oberyn!” Renly crowed looking at Oberyn.

Arya agreed. The Haruchai were a most comely people. The men were drop dead handsome. The women could be pleasure slaves in Myr or Lys. The lack of emotion or personality would be a definite thrill kill though.

Oberyn glared at Renly and flipped him off still staring aghast at the tableau between Stannis and the two Haruchai women.

“We are most skilled in bed. We fuck mainly women but our skills with men are equally great. The Haruchai always master everything we set our mind too” Ferna told Stannis in a flat voice. One would think she was discussing the weather.

Oberyn was staring slacked jaw. “Are you two blind? That is Stannis Baratheon! He is a fucking prude!”

The Haruchai ignored Oberyn “We will give you endless pleasure” Ranrika cooed. Was that a hint of desire that Arya heard. Finally!

Oberyn was really worked up now. “You two have lost your fucking minds! That is Stannis fucking Baratheon. He has a rod up his ass!”

“I’m married!” Stannis barked looking like a trapped animal between the two Haruchai who had brought their Ranyhyn up close to Stannis’s horse. They started to stroke the tall man’s body. Their hands travelled all over his body. Their hands gripping his arms and manly chest and roaming down his back and along his tree like legs.

“Bring your wife to our bed. We will love her as well and make her scream. Haruchai are the most passionate of lovers. We are fierce in bed. We will take all of your cock in our hungry cunts and assholes. We will deep throat your massive cock down below our collarbones.” Ranrika spoke again.

Wow! Arya thought hearing that boast!

“My wife would never approve! She is an honorable woman!” Stannis barked out in desperation.

“When I get my mouth on her sweet cunt and suck her off to a screaming orgasm she will feel differently” Frena spoke up to Stannis. Finally, Arya was hearing passion in the Haruchai’s voices. They must be getting excited though you could never tell it by looking at their flat miens.

“Your wife will die from it when I ram my fist deep into her hot tight pussy ram fucking her cervix till she explodes and wails in shocking pleasure” Ranrika told Stannis stoically. “She will then beg to let us all three fuck her the night long.”

Now their hands began to stroke down to Stannis’ groin from his arms and stomach and up from his upper thigh. Their hands gripping and stroking his manhood. His eyes became large moonstones.

Stannis suddenly spurred his horse into a gallop back to Winterfell.

The Haruchai pursued on their Ranyhyn who easily kept pace with Stannis’s horse. The way the Ranyhyns shook their heads reminded Arya of laughter.
Oberyn stared at the rapidly growing smaller figures heading toward Winterfell. The Haruchai were gripping Stannis’s body pulling on him trying to make their point.

“Obviously, those two have suffered major concussions in past combat. Their brains have been severally addled” Oberyn groused. He shook his head still in disbelief at the turn of events.

The Lord on her Ranyhyn came up. “I assure you that they are in excellent health. I hope this Stannis Baratheon is in excellent health and stamina. The Haruchai give themselves totally when they fuck outside their people but they also demand greatly in their beds. They demand your all” the lord intoned seriously.

“Fuck!” Oberyn shouted. “They don’t understand he will never fuck outside his marriage. Hell, he won’t fuck in his marriage! This is fucking unreal.”

“I would not be so sure Oberyn” Lustra spoke in her grim way. “The Haruchai can be most persuasive when they set their minds to it. It is evident they want Stannis. I feel that soon Stannis and his wife will be happily fucking away in the bed of Ranrika and Ferna.

“Fuck! My gods, Ellaria will never let me hear the end of it! Fuck!”

Oberyn was brooding. He had taken the time to fetch and bring his spear that was lying across his saddle.

Out of nowhere Nymeria jumped up and snatched his spear off Oberyn’s saddle. She started to run off and Shaggydog bit into the spear on the other end and they ran off towards Winterfell. The wolves had slaver flinging out their mouths. Their faces filled with a happy smile with their jaws locked on the spear.

“Fuccckkkkkk! I swear I will skin that godsdamned direwolf of yours Arya and hang her pelt on my bed post!” he screamed talking off after the wolves.

Arya saw the wolves looking back with the spear still in their mouths and put on a burst of speed easily keeping in front of Oberyn. The wolves running at a loop constantly looking back taunting Oberyn who cursed them loudly as they all three retreated back to Winterfell.

Arya and Daenerys followed at a sedate pace watching the forces around Winterfell relax after all the excitement. Dany took her hand and interlaced their fingers as they walked. Arya felt her heart race and her pussy get wet.

Oh gods she just knew they would soon be making love finally. She ached in her core to give herself to Dany and to devour that sweet cunt she had seen while Dany Jilled off over and over again in front of Nymeria. She had smelled Dany’s sweet cunt intoxicating her through Nymeria’s nostrils.

She wanted to be the one making Daenerys Targaryen screaming in helpless pleasure. Arya wanted to give Dany pleasure and not her own fingers. They would masturbate each other or together! Arya longed to feel Dany’s wet cunt in her mouth instead of dirty warging to see her women Jilling off or watching other women making love.

They slowly walked to Winterfell. A giant came up to them. She introduced herself as Morningmist Ironfist.

She told them that she was very happy to finally meet the Dragonthane. She found Daenerys dragons to be very beautiful. She told them that she could not wait to touch the stone of Winterfell. She could see the ancient age of the stone and yet it was so finely cut and fitted together. She laughed telling them that Giants knew stone.

Arya had to agree with it. Both the Giant’s armor and their swords were made of it. Arya asked if she could see the blade that Morningmist used.

The Giant female gladly agreed pulling the mighty falchion sword out of its stone scabbard. Morningmist was nearly fourteen feet tall and her sword was eight feet in length and nearly eighteen inches across. The blade was impossibly sharp Arya could see just looking at the wicked edge. The top of the blade had a wave and then scallop down to the tip at a forty percent gradient.

She put the pummel by Arya’s hand. Arya gripped the pommel and gasped. The blade had to weigh two and half stone. Arya gritted her teeth adjusting to the massive weight of the sword. She swung it tentatively at first and then slashed it more forcefully before handing it back. It was simply too heavy for her or any man. Arya looked at the solid muscled frames of the Giants. They had the musculature to handle such a heavy weapon.

“How do you forge such a weapon? You can’t heat it can you?”

“We have forgers that use mallets and chisels to slowly carve the blades out of massive blocks of granite. They use song and magic so fuse the stone to itself and give it great strength. Never has one of our swords shattered in battle because of the hardness of the weapon it has fought. No magic has ever conquered one of our blades.

Arya could see the pride the woman had for her weapon. Morningmist laughed at the antics of Greywind and Lady chasing each other. Lady gripped Greywind’s tail and jerked on it playfully.

Arya bumped into Dany who had suddenly stopped. They saw a group of horses with two riders on them approaching the road.

Arya knew who they were but was surprised. They had said they needed to get back to her brother. They came up to them as they neared the gates.

The shorter woman pulled her hood back when they stopped. It was Ygritte.

Arya heard Daenerys tell Ygritte she was happy to see them but wondered why they were here. Was everything all alright with their desire to be back with their husband? Why were they not on their way back to Jon?

“A week ago we made a fire to look into the flames and see if R’hlhor had any insights he wanted to shed on his humble priestesses. We saw Winterfell and understood that we need to be here at this time.”

Melisandre added “When the flames are so clear in their insight we must act.”

“Do you know your purpose?”

“No” Ygritte responded. “We just know that our services will be needed. Then we can return home to Jon. It will make him hornier anyways. He will tear us a new one when we get back home. I can feel his cock spurtting hot and hard buried up my tight ass. Then Melisandre will be hungrily lapping up his jism leaking out my worn out slack but happy shithole.”

Arya felt her face on fire. She looked at Dany and was relieved to see her face scarlet too. Dany may be a worldly woman but Ygritte’s potty mouth had her confounded too. Arya looked at Melisandre.
She seemed unfazed. “This is true Ygritte. I do love sucking Jon’s cum out your pussy and your sweet ‘shithole’. Melisandre had made the comment with half amused look on her face. She must be used to Ygritte’s tart mouth. “Of course I remember your face buried in my ass cleft your mouth glued to my rosebud your tongue deep up my own shithole your mouth sucking out Jon’s sweet hot spunk. You sounded like a kitten nursing.”

Ygritte had a dreamy look on her face. “Yeah!” she said in a soft happy tone.

Daenerys and Arya shook their heads at the two redheaded witches. Jon definitely had his hands full with these two. He could see that these two redheads were as hungry for Jon as she was for Dany. Arya smirked. She hoped Jon got fucked as well as she knew Dany would fuck her.

They all entered into Winterfell.

The two Shadowbinder witches told them that they would find a place in the Godswood to shelter in. They wanted to be alone if the Queen did not mind. Arya could sense that the great numbers of strangers to them had them uneasy. Since the Godswood was available they would use it.

Arya knew the at least sixty-five acre expanse of the Godsdwoood had many wild areas in it. This would let the two witches get lost in the Godsdwoood away from the Weirwood and its pool. The women dismounted and took three large fur rolls each and moved off towards the Godsdwoood compound.

Stable hands came out and got the witches horses and took them towards the stable.

“Let’s go visit your mother Arya. Then after that I want you to return with me to my chambers. We have much to discuss Arya.” Arya shivered at the smoky timbre to Dany’s voice. It dripped sex!

Arya gulped at the fire in the Queen’s eyes. The lilac color seemed to pulse with sexual hunger. Gods her cunt was so fucking wet. Arya’s nipples had swelled to aching plums that begged to be devoured.

Arya thought Dany was so considerate. She wanted to make sure her mother was still recovering before they consummated their love. Arya’s body calmed.

Arya led her Queen to her parent’s chamber. She slowly opened the door and smiled seeing her mother sitting up in bed. She was being fed spoonfuls of broth by Margaery and then small forkfuls of chicken. Her mother still looked weak but so much better. Color had returned to her face and hands.

She definitely looked like she was recovering. Arya was so thankful. She and Dany went to join Margaery at the bedside.

Catelyn smiled softly and asked the Queen’s forgiveness for not performing her duty as hostess of Winterfell. Margaery clucked and told Catelyn that she had more important things to do. She needed to give her husband another strong son to be a Lord or brave knight. At first Arya was slightly confused. Margaery was always telling her mother that the baby would be a daughter. Then she understood.

Arya admired Margaery. She knew how to distract her mother. With her mentioning another son for her father her mother smiled and beamed and started to go on how she could feel how strong her son was and he would make Eddard so proud.

Sansa came into the bedchamber. Sansa went over and hugged Arya and gently embraced the Queen. She then went over to Margaery and kissed her soundly on the lips. Arya felt a rush go through her. Her mother did not bat an eyelash and in fact seemed happy that her eldest daughter so easily expressed her love for another woman freely. Arya saw that her mother had completely accepted her eldest daughter’s homosexuality.

If their mother accepted Sansa being gay then Arya knew her mother would fully support her union with Daenerys Targaryen the Queen of Westeros.

Arya shivered again. She was so close to achieving all she had dreamed of.

She begged her mother’s pardon but she and Daenerys needed to leave and discuss some personal matters.

Arya saw the three women look at each other and smirk. Arya felt her face flush.

Her queen gripped her hand and let her out of her parent’s quarters. “Take me to my quarters my sweet wolf. We have matters of the heart to discuss” she spoke in hot pulsing voice dripping sex. Daenerys still did not know her way around Winterfell and Arya led them forward down the halls. She kept glancing back at Dany who smiled at her with a sultry smile that promised so much great hot sex.

Arya’s nipples were so erect and swollen and her pussy so fucking wet. She could feel the tension in Dany’s body through their linked hands. Her pulse hammered in Arya’s veins. That pulse also in her dripping pussy and aching swollen nipples.

“Are you nervous Arya?” Dany asked her.

Arya did not try to hide her nervousness and rising desire “Yes! I am so fucking nervous. Is that a bad thing” she asked worriedly. She felt Dany squeeze her hand hard.

“No baby. That is a good thing. With the last twenty-four I feel like an overwrought spring about to break. It’s a good thing. It is desire. I want you with all my heart and soul honey. I have waited so long for you to come into my life.” Arya felt herself gulp at such sweet pure love.

Daenerys

Daenerys felt her body coursing with fire. This was so unlike her “wedding” night with Khal Drogo. Then she had been sold against her desire and raped against her will. True, Drogo had been surprisingly gentle in his way working to make sure he had aroused an inexperienced thirteen year old girl. He could have just taken and fucked her virgin vagina without arousing her and fucking her dry. He had had at least that amount of decency.

She had had to endure his nightly visits and treated like a piece of meat. He may not have beat her but he fucked her hard and without any emotion. She was just a receptacle for his sperm and womb for his son who would mount world.

Fortunately, Doreah had come to her and taught her how to use her body as a weapon. Very soon it had been her leading the Khalasar through Drogo. She was the puppeteer and he the puppet.

She still remembered that first night. This would be so different. Now she was freely giving her body to the woman she loved. A woman. Tonight would be about desire. Tonight would be about love.

Arya had her at her door, no, their door. Daenerys took a deep breath. She had not been lying to Arya. She was wrought up and felt like she might explode. The pale Valyrian had so much pent up love and passion in her body. The events of the last twenty-four hours had only built up the throbbing in her body. Daenerys felt like she might explode. She was going to love Arya so good!

They entered the guest bedroom that had been given for the Queen’s use. The room was nicely adorned but not ostentatious. Just like her sweet wolf. She spied the large king sized bed. The bed they would be fucking in soon. Her body jolted in acknowledgement of that fact. The thought also flashed through her mind. Eddard Stark wanted her to use this bed to deflower his precious daughter and make Arya’s hers.

This she would do so. Now.

Arya fidgeted as did Daenerys. Now that the moment had arrived she was herself suddenly dry mouthed and feeling so nervous she was momentarily nonplussed and not able to move. Her long desire to have Arya in this way overwhelmed the confident Queen.

Arya fidgeted and her eyes darted around. Then they light up. She turned and went over to the head of Daenerys bed. It had not been desire that had taken Arya over to the bed. Daenerys had seen what had captured her attention. She had been working her wet stone on her sword to calm herself this morning. She had then pulled Aegon’s sword, Blackfyre, out to sharpen it. There she had left it when finished sharpening the Rune Sword.

She saw Arya move over to it. Daenerys rolled her eyes. She would have to delay her lovemaking to her wolf just for a few more minutes. A warrior simply could not refuse the sight of a fine sword.

“Can I?” Arya asked Daenerys with hope in her eyes. Daenerys came over and gripped her sword and grabbed the oil rag and oil bottle. She smiled at Arya. “Please do.” Daenerys turned to walk to a chair so she could care for her own sword while Arya played the warrior. Daenerys smirked. She could wait a few minutes before she took her wolf.

Arya whooped loudly and picked up Aegon’s sword and ripped it out the scabbard. Daenerys watched Arya slice and hack with Aegon’s sword pretending she was attacking and defending herself against unseen foes. In Arya’s hand the sword was only a normal sword.

Daenerys sat down and pulled her sword out and felt it light up bright blue and begin to pulse with heat. She began to wipe it down with oil. She started to focus on her sword making sure it was well oiled and needed no nicks to be ground out. It never did but she never stopped her inspection. It calmed her.

She had heard Arya whoop and slice Aegon’s sword through the air. “Whoa?” she heard Arya call out.

“What is it? Did you pull something?” Serve her right Daenerys thought with a smirk for delaying their lovemaking.

“No. It’s just my hand is tingling.” Arya looked at the pommel in her grip. “That is so strange.
Cool but strange.” She again started to go through the intricate steps her sword masters had taught her.

Daenerys smiled seeing Arya enjoy the sword so much. She began to consider the fate of her progenitor’s sword.

Daenerys mind drifted back to a conversation she had with Viserys shortly before she had been bartered off to Khal Drogo. Her brother had been obsessed with finding a rune sword. "Sister, they say that as the ghost runes bind with its owner their power becomes greater and greater ... the blade burns truer and hotter ... that the blades knows the heart of its owner ... that even ones soul mate could grip and use the sword ... you have become so beautiful Daenerys ... (his index finger traced the line of her jaw as he leaned in) my lovely dragon qu--"

"There you two are Viserys" Illyrio appeared suddenly in the empty hall. "come we must discuss Daenerys forthcoming marriage". Her brother distracted allowed Daenerys to make her escape. She had learned more from Illyrio and then more from the Maester Lape about her sword and its properties. She discovered that House Tarygaryen had never had known a Dragon Lord. A dragon rider so powerful that they could fire up another’s rune sword. Each sword tuned for its owner. This tuning would reject any other’s grip. Only the most powerful of Dragon Lords could overcome the initial binding of owner to sword.

There had never been a true Dragon Lord in House Targaryen. That was until the birth of Daenerys Targaryen. Finally, a Dragon Lord had come to House Targaryen.

Daenerys had not been nonplussed at this news. She easily accepted that she would be the first in her House to have that power. Since Drogo had awakened ambition and desire for greatness in her breast she had accepted that she was meant for a great destiny. When she was told that she had true greatness to fire up the sword that was now hers she had not been surprised. She merely accepted it as a further representation of her greatness.

Daenerys was looking at Arya’s back. It was time to put these swords down and make love Daenerys thought. She saw Arya thrusting and parrying with Aegon’s sword. Suddenly Arya stilled. In a playful tone Arya called back over her shoulder at her.

"You lied to me Dany!"

"What do you mean Arya?"

“You told me that only a true dragon lord could see the runes Dany! That a great Valyrian could make the sword glow blue." Arya was talking in a sarcastic tone. Daenerys wondered why.

"Of coarse you can Arya, the sword is covered in runes" she laughed back. Don’t be obtuse. All can see the runes not etched in magic. You see my sword all the time. I have shown you the runes all can see no matter who grips my sword and the ones only I can light up.”

"Not those runes Dany ... The blue ones ... the ones buried in the metal" Daenerys could tell Arya was turning her hand slowly twisting the sword to look at. “And I am not holding your sword silly. Anyways blue runes are starting to glow on Aegon’s sword.”

"Wh - what did you say?” Daenerys asked stunned. She had many times held Aegon’s sword and never had any hidden runes fired up. The blade had ignited but no runes were raised.

"You told me only a "Great Dragon Lord" could make the ghost runes light and the sword glow blue," Arya said laughing as she turned around. Daenerys felt her eyes go large. The sword of Aegon was afire. It blazed as bright as if she was holding the hilt. Oh sweet gods! This was impossible. The blue fire was licking high up off the blade and leaving blue ghosts behind. My gods! Arya is firing up Aegon’s sword as if I held it!

Arya with a gleeful look slashed and stabbed with a rune sword now blazing blue in eldritch fire. That should have been impossible. Blue lightening arcs left in the air.

Arya walked over grinning.
“I guess that makes me a great Dragon Lord!” she crowed playfully.

Daenerys looked at Arya aghast. Arya was a great Dragon Lord! How was this possible!”

Arya had come to show Daenerys the sword. On Foe Hammer above the double entwined Ouroboros and the runes of love and commitment between Visenya and Rhaenys Targaryen was an exquisite etching of two female dragons circling each other with clouds backlight with a setting sun. Female dragons had wings slightly larger but with more scoops on the trailing edge of their wings. Those had been the runes on her rune sword.

Daenerys had seen when she fired up Aegon’s sword that he had no Ouroboros or runes of love or the traditional etching that showed something of importance to him. She had assumed, that for Aegon, the sword was merely an implement of war and the maker of the sword had not felt the need to have additional runes added other than stating the greatness of House Targaryen.

“Owwwww … damn my palm is tingling again! … I mean it is really tingling!” Arya called out looking down at the sword she had impossibly light up.

As she and Arya looked at Aegon’s sword the bottom of the sword where important runes would be engraved to owner of the sword begin to shimmer and glow even brighter. What had been barely seen and not truly able to be deciphered they had been so ghostly suddenly began to glow brighter growing stronger and brighter.

Daenerys felt her eyes bulge. She had not fired up what was now beginning to come alive. She stared aghast at Arya. What the hell was happening! She was a Dragon Lord and even she could not fire up the runes that Arya was now easily lighting up.

“Arya reach out and take my sword. Be careful it gets hot in my hand. I don’t want you to burn your—noooooo!” she cried out when Arya snatched her sword from her hand. It blazed as if she held it.

Arya was not burned and … and the … her runes was still alight and all her runes were alive and dancing. Even the Ouroboros were dancing. Only great love and passion could fire that that rune alive.

Arya crowed “I’m making the two snakes dance and the runes dance!” Arya was hopping around proud of herself for lighting up the runes and the Ouroboros. She did not understand that what she was doing was simply impossible! Arya was using both swords now play fighting her unseen enemies.

She did not understand what she was doing. Daenerys head was beginning to spin.

Then an even greater shock made Daenerys eyes bulge yet again

Before her and Arya’s eyes more runes and icons that even Daenerys had not been able to fire up began to emerge from deep within the metal.

On Aegon’s sword where there had been no Ouroboros, now had two that danced and writhed together. The two female snakes sensually twined and flowing over each other in obvious longing and lust. Just like on her sword! Her eyes went to two images that now glowed an ethereal bright blue.

“That is so fucking cool! I did not know the Direwolf was an image of importance to Valyrians” Arya gleefully called out seeing the dragon and direwolf now blazing a bright blue. Runes and images that even she herself, a true Dragon Lord, had not been able to raise from the metal. *This was impossible!

Now on Aegon’s sword, Aegon’s fucking sword! Daenerys saw the impossible. A female dragon was flying banked over in the sky and below it the stylized head of the Stark Direwolf howling up to the dragon in obvious longing and love. The metalsmith had somehow made it plain the Direwolf was female with just its pose. The dragon’s head canted down to gaze upon the howling Direwolf with desire evident. Its body angling down to join the wolf on the ground.

It was the runes below that finished her shock.

The dragon shall lie with the wolf

Over four hundred years ago a great sword smith had fashioned a sword and hidden runes from the person who was merely the caretaker for the sword until the true owner could come to claim it as her own.

Arya Stark.

“Dany! Why are looking like that!” You should be happy!

Daenerys was going into shock. Her own culture had foreseen this. She would marry one Arya Stark. It was her destiny. She who did not believe in prophecy had been given swords that spoke of sheer prophecy.

How could that smith have known to make these swords and carve the images and runes that would speak to two women in deep passionate love over four centuries later?

“Dany you’re scaring me! Is this something bad! I thought this was something wonderful!”

Daenerys heard Arya’s distress but she was simply overwhelmed. She wanted and needed to reply but her mind was trying to process what was impossible. She had been wound up tight by events of the last twenty-four hours and now seeing that her own people had called for this union with a non Valyrian. She had felt herself doomed. Now she felt pure elation. She was totally discombobulated and shocked.

Dany’s soul and body overwhelmed hiccupped and fainted dead away.
A Time of Truth

Daenerys / Arya / Daenerys

Daenerys

Slowly Daenerys climbed back to reality. Her mind was lightly clouded, but it was a pleasant feeling – her body woke aglow with love. She now knew the truth; her wolf’s love was every bit as intense as her own. Her intuition had been true after all. Arya’s heart beat only for Daenerys Targaryen, an unquestionable certainty her rune sword had revealed to her.

Not only had Arya’s true desires had been revealed but so had her might. Daenerys was still stunned at what the sword of Aegon—No … the sword that now belonged to Arya had showed her. Arya was as powerful as she. She had known it but to see it so evident in a Valyrian rune sword had been world shaking to the Valyrian Queen.

“Arya,” Dany called out softly, stretching. She felt the light weight of covers on top of her. Her wolf had taken care of her, though she found it unfortunate that she was still clothed. “Arya,” Dany called, stretching again with a soft smile on her face. She wondered how it was possible for everything to change so completely between one heartbeat and the next.

Between two beats of her heart, her life had been utterly changed. Dany had been working her way towards the wolf girl since she had first met Arya but events of the past hour had brought everything to crystal clarity. It was like on the first beat of her heart her life was dread, dread of unwanted caresses, and a passionless marriage bed. A life with no love, and a bleak hopeless future. On the next beat, she suddenly saw a future of boundless love and possibilities, full of sweet caresses and intimate touches that would ignite her very soul.

She was not a woman of doubts but if there were any they had been burned away by the glow of the rune swords that Arya had alight by the power of her passion and magic. Yes. Her Wolf had proven every bit her equal. An equal she longed to take as her Queen in body as well as spirit.

Dany shivered at the thought in hungry anticipation.

“Arya, Arya, to me my love.” Dany called out. She wanted to forever caress her love’s ears with sweet endearments. She would whisper her love and be always be gentle with her sweet wolf. “Arya!” she called out more forcefully. Where was her love?

She slowly opened her eyes and looked to the window, seeing sunlight beaming through the panes of glass. Her martial training told her by the change in angle of light that less than an hour had passed since her wolf had innocently overwhelmed her. She had seen the lust in Arya’s eyes, but her body had given away her trepidation. This was proven by Daenerys waking alone. The girl is so raw and passionate, but, so virginal, Dany thought with a wicked gleam. She planned on changing that immediately.

Dany looked over at the bathroom suite, then the large alcove at the front of the room. Where was the girl? She slowly sat up and looked around more closely. Surely Arya had not fled after what they had just shared?
It had been so such a revelatory moment. There had been such passion and love in Arya’s eyes. Her eyes unguarded – eyes that showed burning love for her Dragon. The time for lovemaking had arrived. There had been such love in Arya’s eyes when Daenerys looked into them now. The time of hiding emotions was gone. It was time to consummate their love. She had seen it in Arya’s eyes. She hungered for her Dragon as she hungered for her Wolf.

Looking around at the emptiness of the room a stray thought entered her mind and refused to leave. Did Arya trust her instincts as Daenerys trusted her own? Or did she doubt them and run? She found she already desperately missed her love. It was so easy to say that now! It was time to say the words aloud. Repeatedly. Loud and clear for the whole world to hear.

“Arya… Arya! Where are you?!” Dany called, her voice rising in frustration and the strain of rising trepidation. She got up and went quickly into the bath suite. Had she fallen asleep taking a bath while waiting for her Queen to awake, making her body ready for sweet lovemaking?

No. The room was empty, no hot bath drawn from the hot spring water. She walked quickly to the large alcove and found nothing as well. Daenerys pinched the bridge of her nose. How could the girl run away? She had seen the raw desire in Arya’s eyes. True, the Direwolf pup had been distracted by Daenerys’ swords but that was past now.

Daenerys remembered the overwhelming shock of seeing Arya light up the rune swords. Then reading the runes that lay hidden for over four centuries. Dany had seen the truth in those runes. So had Arya. They both had seen the perfectness of their love. Daenerys ancestors had foreseen it. The smiths had definitely known the truth.

Who had told them? That did not matter now. The Queen remembered almost sobbing and shaking with the intensity of her love for Arya and seeing the truth that lay written and for four centuries hidden in Aegon’s former sword. But did the girl see the truth? Did the innocent accept what her eyes told her? These questions circled in Daenerys head with no sight of Arya.

I have been fooling both her and myself from the moment I saw her Dany thought to herself. For too long she had been willing to accept she must see Arya as only a friend and not as her Queen and lover. That was no more! She was Queen of Westeros and she would take what was hers. The insights she had heard whispered in her ear had taken flight and come to fruition.

She would now openly declare her love for Arya Stark and take her as her Queen.

She went back to the bed and sat down on it. She longed to have Arya in her arms. She wanted to kiss her - kiss her deeply and roll her onto the bed beneath her as she stared into those steel grey eyes, falling into them as she lowered herself to kiss Arya’s beautiful face until the girl was crying out for her more intimate touches.

She had waited too long! It was time to be a Queen and take what was hers!

Frustrated Dany slammed the palms of her hands down onto the bed. She wanted Arya! All of Arya, and she wanted her now! A few strands of her platinum hair had fallen across her face and she blew them to the side. She was frustrated and horny. She pounded the bed again.

How could Arya do this to them? She had run off and only delayed the inevitable. Why had she run? Arya had learned to read the runes of Valyria from her and Missandei. The destiny was clear to them both. In the last few days they had finally allowed each other to see the love they had kept hidden in their breast. True. Daenerys had been overcome. Overcome with joy.

Daenerys fumed again. Out loud she groused, “And all this time wasted when we could have been making love!” Why had they hidden what they had felt?! There would be no more hiding of their true feelings. “This is so—so fucking unfair!” she finished with a shout, her fists slamming down on the bed again. She wanted her wolf and she had run off!

Then the Targaryen’s shoulders hunched slightly and a sheepish look came over her beautiful features. Daenerys was acting like a five year old. She needed to girl up and go find her woman. She was coming to realize that maybe fainting dead away had spooked Arya. Daenerys was now remembering Arya calling out to her worried by her actions. She couldn’t help it! She had been overwhelmed by the shocking revelations of the Valyrian swords.

Why had Arya run off? Dany’s insight continued to press thoughts into her mind. I am over four years older than my sweet Arya, Daenerys thought, perusing the roiling scenarios and memories she held in her mind. I have seen so much more, done so much more … I have taken lovers … been scared and hunted … all Arya has known is safety and love. I am in so many ways more worldly than Arya, and more in tune with my thoughts, my body … my sexual hungers and desires…

She must have misread the situation.

Even with all of her experience, she too had missed the obvious signs of Arya’s growing attraction to her for too long. She had fooled herself. Deluded herself by listening too much to the counsel of men. No more! Dany continued her train of thought. Could Arya truly have somehow seen what just happened as a negative? No non Valyrian had ever done what she had just done … she did not know that. Daenerys pondered over what had just happened.

Surely, the sword revealed the truth to Arya, as it did to me. The Targaryen gave pause. I am of Valyria. I understand what exactly the portents of the ghost runes would mean. But would a person of Westeros? …a sixteen year old innocent girl? A girl who was still unsure of herself. A young woman who had just seen the woman she loved freak out and faint dead away on her.

She realized that she had been thinking of Arya in sexual terms ever since she had acknowledged her hunger for the wolf. That hunger from their first meeting. Daenerys rubbed her chin smiling at the fist punches of her sweet lover.

Sweet innocent Arya - a condition the Targaryen planned to change, very quickly.

Daenerys sat back and reconsidered her view on fate. How she, a worldly woman, had deluded herself. Allowed herself to play a fool, sure that the gods were against her desires for the wolf girl. She had wasted too much time overcoming those stupid fears and doubts. She had listened to supposedly wise counsel harping in her ear to find a man to make her rule complete.

Fools!

She was a fool too! She felt her body become rigid. The gods had not sent her signs to deny herself but had actually been slapping her in the face with portents of her destiny. The dream of the snarling Direwolf that she had thought threatened her, but instead jumped over her to fight some faceless man. Even then she had instinctively known the wolf was female, but disregarded it as unimportant.

She had assumed that with Eddard racing North to fight for her kingdom, this was what the wolf had symbolized. The wolf bending down and submissively bowing to her seemed to be House Stark making obeisance. Now she clearly understood it was Arya submitting to her. Two becoming one.

She suddenly felt a hot rush race through her body. That was right. The dreams had stopped the day she had discovered Eddard Stark was calling his banners - but, that was also the day Arya had appeared in her court. Appeared in her court, and fired two arrows at her on her own throne! The day they had clashed swords, and the day Arya had given her several left crosses that left her with a split lip and black eye. Punches followed up with kicks, head buttes and vicious flips onto hard marble floors.

Yes, that had been the day Arya Stark had totally captured her heart.

Then there was the way Nymeria would hunch down on her mighty haunches and launch herself onto Drogon’s broad back. Her dragon would launch them both into the air, flying them through the sky as the wolf howled long peals. Drogon had always taken care never unseat his precious passenger. She and Arya had both smiled and laughed, missing the obvious.

The dragon and direwolf were acting as one. Their animals showing their mistresses the truth. The Dragon and Direwolf metaphorically lying together.

Daenerys shook her head sadly. So much time wasted. She remembered back to the first day she set down on Dorne as Westeros’s true queen. She had asked Tyrion then, “Cannot the Dragon learn to lie with Direwolf?” She herself had been speaking prophecy.

So if she had deluded herself, maybe Arya still was? That she would have to change, and change now. She felt her smile curve into a leer. She would have her wolf girl. Their love would no longer be delayed or denied.

Energized and determined, Dany sprung off the bed and went to the door, swinging it open. She started to step out, then spied her sword on the chair by the window, back in its scabbard. She was in Winterfell and had nothing to fear. She started to walk out again, hesitating. Dany’s instincts told her to bring her sword, and she would listen to them. She had survived countless battles listening to her instincts.

She pivoted and retrieved her sword, then rushed out the door.

She stopped. She looked at Aggo who was standing guard at her door. The Queen started sensing someone at the other side of her door. This person was not a Dothraki. She whipped around with her hand on the pommel of her sword. She started seeing who it was. It was Bannor of the Haruchai. He seemed unperturbed at her actions. He cocked an eyebrow at her hand on the pommel of her sword.

Daenerys relaxed. She turned to Aggo.

"Where did Arya go?" He looked at her surprised. The Queen's Dothraki Bloodriders primary duty was her safety. She had never tasked that one of them always stay with Arya. There had been no need with so much of Arya's time spent with the Queen. She turned to glare at the Haruchai. Again he merely cocked an eyebrow at her.

"I am your Bloodguard" was his answer to the Queen's glare. His voice bland and with no emotion in the timbre of his response. The Queen remembered Jeertel was Arya's Bloodguard.

"Jeertel. She is with my Aray?" she asked Bannor.

":"Yes." The simple answer delivered with no emotion made the Queen glare at Bannor. She wanted to snap at the taciturn man. She held her tongue. The Haruchai simply did not show emotion.

"Let's go!" she called out running down the hall. Her Bloodrider and Bloodguard following in her wake like leaves in an autumn storm. Daenerys headed to the lower levels of Winterfell. Maybe she had gone to the kitchen Daenerys thought. Or maybe she has sought out her father in one of the meeting halls. She sought Arya out but she had not been to any of these locations. The queen tore down the halls calling for Arya but she did not find her love. The Queen then headed out to the grounds.

She had heard Arya talk wistfully of the solarium called the Glass Gardens. She had noticed the structure the day before doing acrobatics on Drogon’s back. Daenerys ran all the way there. She entered the beautiful glass structure. There she had found Sansa and Margaery walking around the rows of flowers, vegetables and fruit trees holding hands. Arya had not been there. They told her to try the Godswood.

The pale Valyrian Queen tore out of Glass Gardens and ran full out to the entrance to the Godswood. She found a group of Giants and Haruchai sitting around a bonfire. They were eating a meal. The Giants laughing and jesting with each other and their Haruchai compatriots. The Giants laughing at their own jests and the Haruchai politely answering quietly. Daenerys again noted the very reserved nature of the Haruchai.

The Queen noticed how the Haruchai sat looking at each other. They did not speak among themselves. The Queen was sure now the Haruchai spoke mind to mind.

She was informed that Arya had not come this way. Daenerys thanked them and ran off at full tilt running to the stables. Arya had not been there to take a horse. The Queen ran to all the grounds. No Arya. Stratified that Arya had not come out of the Great Keep tore off back to that structure.

Ten minutes later, Daenerys was about to blow like an erupting volcano in her ancestral homeland. She had looked everywhere she could think of that Arya may have hid. Unless she was down in the crypts or up high in the turret of a tower she could not fathom where the girl had gone. She asked everyone she passed if they had seen the wolf princess. None had seen the girl. She was feeling the blood of the dragon surging frustrated through her veins. She took a moment to stop and calm her mind as Syrio had trained her to do in moments of great stress. Where would she hide … what if she was not hiding? … Daenerys ran down the hall.

As she ran she had a sudden thought.

"Do you know where Arya is?" she asked Bannor.

"Yes."

She wanted to scream at the man but controlled herself. "Why the hell did you not tell me!"

"You did not ask" was the answer. An answer delivered with no emotion. The man felt no guilt at withholding the information from the Queen.

"That is all you have to say?!"

"She is in no danger. Jeertel is with her."

Daenerys was furious but controlled herself. Not only was the withholding of information pissing her off but it also angered her that she and Aggo were sheen in sweat and breathing heavily while Bannor had no sweat on his brow or was even breathing heavily at all. It was as if he had been standing still all the time. She would chew his ass off but she knew it would be useless on the reticent man. Anything she could hurl against him would bounce off his granite like countenance.

She would have to remember to ask very direct questions in the future when dealing the Haruchai.

Arya
Why? Why had Dany acted like that? Arya worried that thought over in her mind. It was like she had seen a ghost… or the new runes had some metaphorical meaning she did not grasp. She had been so happy but Daenerys had been seemingly in shock! Dany had refused to answer her cries!

Arya buried her face in the pillow already soaked in her tears. She had been alright hiding her love from Dany. She had been happy to just be in Dany’s presence, to love her from afar…

No. No she hadn’t—she had been dying by degrees each day she was in Dany’s presence; uninvited to caress and stroke her beautiful body. Her beginning time with the Queen had been so dreadful.

She cringed every time some new male suitor arrived at the Red Keep to woo Daenerys. Dany never seemed to pay them much mind, and was stiff and formal with them but Arya knew that one day the right man, she sneered, would appear and take Dany away from her forever. Each time she thought ‘this is it’, was like a knife going through her heart.

Why couldn’t things just stay the way they were? It was a slow death to be sure, but at least she could have another day in Dany’s presence.

Then everything seemed to have changed over the last few days. They had crossed some invisible barrier and Arya had been sure Daenerys was in love with her. Now something in the rune swords had changed it. Ruined! Arya pounded her fists in her pillows.

Arya couldn’t help but think about how her beautiful Queen always made time for her. She practiced with her every day as Arya felt her body and mind melding with her weapons - becoming one with them. At first, Dany had pushed her, and beat her. Now Ayra pushed, and beat the queen. The Targaryen had always extended her hand to be pulled up when Arya had unarmed and threw her to the ground. Always with equanimity, saying ‘next time, Wolf Girl!’ It always made Arya laugh. The queen had always laughed at her jokes, moaned at her pitiful puns, listened intently to her stories of home and laughed at Nan’s old tales right along with Arya.

As Arya remembered, she smiled into the pillow. Her love for Daenerys only grew each day. Grew with each interaction with the pale beautiful Valyrian.

Over the last few days, Arya had become sure that the Queen loved her and was about to take her. The incident in the Queen’s chambers had shattered that belief. Strange how a few minutes could change one’s destiny and one’s surety.

A sad smile crossed Arya’s features. She remembered her special times with her Queen.

Arya remembered the thrill of practicing with Dany, or when they rubbed liniment into each other’s tired bodies, the Northern girl could almost feel like they were bonding and becoming more than companions. But then Arya reminded herself the queen was a chameleon.

Arya had watched Daenerys charm nobles and bewitch the heads of noble houses. The queen had reduced hardened emissaries from the Iron Bank to docile kittens. A few moments with her, and their roars turned to quiet purrs.

Dany had mastered the mummer’s dance. She could make anyone think they were the center of her universe. She truly was the center of Arya’s universe. The wolf loved her dragon Queen completely. Occasionally she had seen Dany almost catch her longing, heartfelt glances and had to quickly school her features, just as she learned from her queen.

It seemed that the time of hiding had passed. Now she knew better. All was lost now. The rune swords had revealed some terrible truth to Dany.
“I ruined it!” Arya cried into the pillow she had buried her face into as her sobs wracked her body. Why did I ever pick that sword up?! Arya’s mind cried out to the distressed teenager.

Dany had been her legendary Targaryen queen come down from the heavens of legend. Gods, she had loved the woman from the first moment she had stepped into the Iron Throne audience chamber.

For a few more minutes, Arya cried inconsolably. Everything had seemed so close. Now it was gone! When she finally cried herself out mostly, Arya sat up, her face swollen and eyes red and puffy. Tears still ran down her cheeks randomly as she hiccupped and tried to control her weeping.

She thought back to earlier that afternoon. She had been so happy practicing with the Valeryian swords. Dany’s sword was so incredible with the slowly dancing runes before watching Dany with her sword. For the life of her, Arya could not figure out her Queen’s frightening behavior when Arya had somehow fired up some hidden runes in Aegon’s sword.

She had seen, but not really understood Dany’s unnerved behavior. She had fretted and worried about it ever since she covered up the unconscious queen and fled, knowing she had ruined everything. Something about Aegon’s sword had shown the Queen a horrible truth. A truth that had destroyed Arya’s world. Arya felt her heart quiver in her chest. She felt like she was underwater and could not surface. Her heart ached!

She had wanted so badly to shake Dany awake and make love to her. Just as she had wanted to from the first moment she had met the beautiful dragon queen. She wanted to make love to Dany and erase whatever fear had been instilled in her Queen’s heart.

All of Arya’s old fears and insecurities were flowing hot in Arya’s veins. The queen who now knew how Arya felt towards her. Arya had been so sure that her love was reciprocated! It just had to be but it had been so easily crushed by those damn runes!

Arya paused in her sobs. She had seen Dany’s face in her room. She had been so sure she saw her own love reflected back at her the last two days. It had all changed so fast. The way Daenerys had stared aghast at those damn swords Arya stormed! Daenerys had looked terrified … then she had fainted. The spell had been broken.

The runes had revealed some terrible truth Arya was sure of it. All of Arya’s insecurities came rushing in with a vengeance. Her Queen no longer loved her! The sword of Aegon had shown her some terrible truth. Maybe she was indeed destined to marry a man! The thought made Arya ill.

Arya Stark also couldn’t but help remember how she had used the Queen for own selfish pleasures. She had accidently stumbled upon Nymeria visiting the Queen when she was late coming back to her. She had reveled in feeling the Queen’s hands scratching and rubbing Nymeria’s belly. The way she rubbed noses with her direwolf.

It had started out so innocent. Who could blame her for sharing these sweet moments between wolf and Queen. Arya smiled at those memories.

Then everything had changed. The Queen not knowing Arya was hidden within the beast had masturbated in front of the wolf. The Queen felt so safe and comfortable with the wolf that she started to take care of her needs in front of Nymeria.

That first time had been a revelation. The beautiful Queen was such a primal beautiful creature stroking her body with expert skills. The way Dany had screamed and screamed her body in convulsions from searing orgasms. The way her body had flipped and jackknifed so violently had intoxicated Arya.
The first time she had been unprepared to see the Queens naked body being so hedonistically self-pleasured. If it had only been the once, then she could be forgiven. But it had not been the one time only. The old gods were punishing her for her sinful behavior!

Night after night she melted into Nymeria’s flesh and encouraged the direwolf to go to her Queens’s suite. The Queen always accepting her wolf with open welcoming arms. She would play with wolf and scratch underneath the wolf’s ears and stomach like the wolf craved.

Then the Queen who was now comfortable with the wolf in her chambers while she self-pleasured her body would drop her silk robe and climb onto her bed. Arya learned her Queen had an insatiable sexual hunger. Fortunately, the Queen never questioned the wolf sitting up watching her intently masturbating to wailing after wailing orgasm.

Arya was hooked on the Queen’s body. And who was she hurting she had reasoned. Now she knew she had invalidated the very integrity of their relationship spying on her Queen’s desires and needs. Her father would be shamed by Arya’s behavior.

More hot tears ran down her face. She had known it was wrong but she just couldn’t control herself. She desperately thought that this was the only way she could have even a sliver of her Queen.

Arya miserably gnawed on how everyone at court whispered that Daenerys was going to marry that high Lord, or that mighty Knight. What chance did a young, skinny daughter of Stark have against the Knight of Flowers? Or some high lord or other mighty knight? Tears fell in pain and frustration.

Worse yet, she knew the Queens secret. Her voyeurism had revealed the secret the Queen held close to her beautiful bosom. The Lords and Knights did not have a chance. When the Queen masturbated and fantasized about her dream lover it was not ‘him’ or ‘he’ it was ‘her’ and ‘she’.

The queen had Arya’s desires.

A part of her sneered at the foolish men who made fools of themselves seeking the Queens attention. The Queen was waiting for her fair Princess to come to her. But the simple fact remained, she had violated a basic trust between her and Dany. She had soiled the very core of their relationship. These thoughts had helped propel her out the door after the Queen fainted.

When she had first swung Aegon’s blade, and then Dany’s own blade she had felt so alive so wild. She had felt anything was possible. Seeing the runes shift and the Ouroboros writhing in their sibilant, entwining dance had both set her blood on fire and wet her core. She felt intoxicated with love for Dany. She felt like even Dany’s swords saw they were destined for each other.

It had been almost magical. It was almost as if the sword itself had put her under a spell. That magic had first waned and then flamed out seeing the look of almost horror in Dany’s eyes. Something about her being able to do what she had done to the magical swords had filled Dany with horror. The look of shock and disbelief on her face had ruined the elation that Arya felt. Then Daenerys had been so aggrieved and horrified by what she had seen she had fainted with fright!

Even now Arya felt a thrill run through her body remembering those dancing runes and Ouroboros had her blood boiling again for Dany. Oh by the Old Gods, she wanted her so bad! Why had her love reacted so badly!

Then the Queen had fainted, and the spell was broken. Just like that.

Arya knew it as a warning from the gods. She is not for you, little girl!
Dany had seen something in her swords that had ruined everything! Arya had lost! Arya knew Dany would continue to be kind to Arya. Probably pity her, and try and make her understand that their love could never be. Her ancestors had showed her the truth. She was to be a mighty Queen with a mighty King by her side. Dejectedly, Arya reflected that Dany may have thought she wanted Arya at her side as Queen but reality had showed its ugly head. Dany had to marry a man to make her kingdom whole. Arya felt her heart break little more, her shoulders slumping.

That was something that Arya absolutely could not take. Dany’s pity. Dany now knew the depths of her feelings, and she would not be treated like a lovesick teenager. Her feelings were the feelings of an adult, and just as powerful. Arya would not accept expediency in her relationship with Dany. She would not stand there and watch Dany take a fucking man as her King! She was supposed to be Dany’s side!

She could not stay here anymore. She would do the adult thing. She would do the noble thing, the Stark thing. She would stay here in Winterfell and let the Queen go back to the Red Keep and her destiny. A destiny that did not involve her she now sadly understood. She would leave tomorrow morning for the Wall and prepare to fight the Ice Wrights and the Others. No longer would she burden the queen, forcing her to deal with someone whom she saw as a child rather than an equal. Obviously, the Queen valued duty over love.

Arya felt tears brimming in her eyes again.

Yes. That is what she would do. She was so tired, but she had to find the strength. She would need to bind up some clothes and provisions, then fly to the Wall. She would let Daenerys have her destiny. It was her duty to let her queen, her sweet beautiful queen, find her fate without feeling like she had to deal with a girl who had nothing more than a hero worship complex. The little wolf girl who tried, and failed, to love the dragon queen.

Yes, she would walk out that door

SLAM!

The door flew open.

Daenerys

“There you are!” the white haired Targaryen roared at the younger teen as she surged into the room. The Queen saw shock and surprise in Arya’s eyes.

The door slammed shut again with a loud boom. Daenerys was worked up and needed to work out some of her agitation. Her running all over Winterfell had her on edge. She had run up to Arya’s door. Jeertel stood beside the door to Arya’s room stoically. She had glared at the Haruchai as Bannor joined her and Aggo took guard at the other side of the door. She wanted to rant at the Haruchai but knew now that it would be wasted. These people were simply immune to invective. It did not matter now. She had finally found her Arya. She rushed into the room of her sweet dear love.

“What the fuck are you doing?!” the Queen barked at the shaken wolf. Dany’s agitation had her barking at the girl, even as it tore at her soul. She was so filled with adrenaline after chasing endless halls looking for her sweet love! Her love for Arya had her emotions racing, unchecked.

The Targaryen stood in front of the door in an offensive stance, the sword in its scabbard held in her left hand by her hip. Arya would never get past her guard of the door. Daenerys would never let her love flee from her again.

“Dany—I mean Daen—My queen” the Stark said meekly, bowing in deference. Dany stared at the girl. It was obvious she had been crying - the teen’s face was red and swollen; her eyes bloodshot and puffy, with dark bags beneath. Her hair was an unruly mess like the monsters from the stories a nanny told their charges at night in order to scare an errant child.

My gods she is beautiful, Dany thought to herself.

Daenerys saw that she had frightened her love, and her ire was gone in an instant. “Arya,” she breathed out a shaky breath, running her hand through her long tresses. She walked over to the table in the middle of the room, setting her sword down. She took a long, calming breath. Obviously, something had upset Arya greatly. What it could be she had no idea. The runes lighting up at Arya’s touch had been a gift from the gods. The prophecy of her elders divine.

Once she was steadied herself, Daenerys turned around to look at the Stark princess. The girl had visibly relaxed when she saw all of the anger had fled from the Targaryen’s face, leaving a soft vulnerable, expression.

“I didn’t mean to bark at you, Arya. I have been running up and down and all around this damn castle for seems like an hour. I was most distressed.”

“Why? I have been right here.”

Dany laughed gently, coming to stand before the young Stark girl. “That you have Arya, that you have,” she chuckled. She sensed she had to go slowly with the wolf or she might bolt, judging from the way she was looking past her at the door, longingly.

Dany had to remember that the girl, though a fierce fighter and emerging as a passionate woman, was still innocent in so many ways. That something had upset her greatly. She had to find out and put to rest her wolf’s fears and doubts. She loved Arya so much with every beat of her heart.

“Why did you leave me Arya? …I was upset to awake alone.” Daenerys asked Arya softly, looking directly into her eyes.

“What do you mean?” the wolf girl answered shakily, trying to be evasive and failing miserably.

“No more lies, Arya.”

“Lies?”

“Why did you leave me, Arya?”

“I don’t kn—“

“No more evasions, Arya. Why did you leave me?” Dany asked, calmly moving to stand right in front of the trembling girl. This had to be resolved now. “You felt it Arya … I saw it in your eyes.”

Arya let out a quiet gasp, her face betraying her fear.

“You know what I saw Arya … say it Arya … tell me what I saw in your eyes … what has frightened you so … what the runes showed us was something wonderful Arya” Daenerys softly told the young woman she loved with all her heart. She saw Arya start.
“Something wonderful?” Arya spoke with a soft almost surprised tone. She looked up at Daenerys questioningly.

The Queen was beginning to have an idea what was troubling Arya. It pained her greatly to know she was the cause of Arya’s pain. She had been overwhelmed.

“Tell me what has upset you Arya. Tell me” Daenerys softly pressed her love.

Arya begin to tremble slightly. “The look on your face. It frightened me Daenerys. I kept asking you what was wrong and you did not answer me. I assumed you must have seen something in the sword that told you that we could not be. That my love for you was doomed.”

Daenerys noticed Arya using her full name. She really was upset.

“You don’t have to. I know what is to be Dany … you are to marry some great Prince, or some Lord or some mighty Knight. Not some plain little girl from the North. The very gods have spoken. I can never have you Dany.” Arya answered, broken, to the woman whose face radiated love that the Stark could not see in her distress.

Dany looked at her with a knowing glint in her violet eyes. “Gods, omens and portents …” the blond Targaryen mused as she smiled softly. “Are you telling me that the gods tell us our destiny through these things, Arya?”

“Yes. You are meant for another. I know I have no right to expect your love.”

“I see.” Dany said. She slowly walked back towards the table, keeping her eyes locked with the Stark girl. She did not want to risk her bolting, followed by another long chase.

She picked up her sword and walked back to the younger girl. She slowly pulled the sword from her scabbard and it lit with fiery runes, causing the blade to glow brightly. They could both hear the sword humming as a wisp of magical ether coiled up from the Ouroboros. Daenerys smiled at Arya. The snakes responded, feeling the passion between the two.

“I love you, Arya Stark.”

The girl briefly glanced at her with hope but, then shook her head ‘no’, refusing to believe, only to have it crushed.

Dany moved in to stand just in front of Arya, showing her the love runes and Ouroboros dancing gaily. “You see these runes and Ouroboros dancing?”

“You know I do, Dany.”

“They are so beautiful the way they dance. Did you know that they did not always dance? …”

“What..? Haven’t they always danced? What changed?”

“I received these swords a few months past my fourteenth name day. When I first pulled this sword out of its scabbard these ruins,” Dany pointed at the love runes and the dancing snakes, “were as still as the rest of the ghost runes. They were inert.”

“For four years…?”
“Yes.”

“What changed?”

“I fell in love with you, Arya … more should I say that I fully let me myself love you … that is the day they started to dance. And when you hold the sword, they dance because you love me just as fiercely, Arya.” the Targaryen told her love softly. “The same with Aegon’s sword. Not even I rose those runes hidden in the metal. You did Arya. Your love for me rose the runes out of the metal.
The swords speak of our love. They are not omens of ill my love. They are omens of our eternal love.

The sixteen year old felt tears well in her eyes, and broke down into a quiet sob. Her entire body shook, the love she felt again burning brightly through her eyes. “I love you so, so much, Dany…”
she husked through her sobs.

Daenerys put the sword slowly back in its scabbard and bent down while keeping eye contact with her soon-to-be-lover. Dany placed the sword on the floor, then slowly rose back up before the wolf as lust began to surge though her body, making her loins ache. She was already sopping wet for her intended lover.

Arya watched, hypnotized as Dany slowly worked her hand into her trousers, the fabric bulging as she worked her fingers slowly up and down. The Targaryen’s head rocked back with hedonistic pleasure as Dany let out a guttural moan, rocking her groin into her grinding fingertips in her drenched trench. Arya watched as the Dragon Queen slowly pulled her fingers up and out her trousers. All four digits were smeared with creamy dollops of cum. They were sopping wet, and glistened in the soft sunlight from the window to Arya’s room.

Arya felt her entire body set ablaze. She let out a quiet groan as she saw clearly and without doubt the searing love from her sweet dragon. Her fears had been groundless. Dany longed to love and fuck her! Arya watched the Queen slowly push her middle finger between her sensual lips. Dany softly sucked her middle finger with a quiet wet sound, gasping lewdly as her lidded eyes locked with Arya’s. Then slowly Dany withdrew her long finger from her mouth and pink lips.

Dany now extended her hand to her new lover. Arya’s nostrils flared and her body shook with a primal desire as she caught the scent of Dany’s musk on Dany’s hand. Dany’s index finger traced Arya’s lips. Arya moaned as she flicked her tongue out and tasted her lover for the first time. The young wolf’s eyes began to burn with their own rising lust. The scent inflamed her body as she parted her lips and Dany’s sweet taste exploded on her tongue. The Queen subtly pushing her index finger in and out of the lips that nipped and sucked greedily on the offered digit. Arya’s entire being was on fire!

Arya watched as the Targaryen slowly pulled her finger from Arya’s mouth, her lips instinctively chasing the digit. The hand that coaxed and teased now slowly moved along Arya’s cheek, caressing it. Then her palm smoothed the hair over Arya’s ear before cupping the back of Arya’s head and bringing her head down. Their eyes met, and the intensity of their raw passionate need arced like lightening between them. Their lips came together slowly as they melded and nestled one to the other. Two souls becoming one, as their lips sought each other.

Breath heavy, Dany broke their kiss for a moment. “I’m home now, Arya” she told her wolf.

“Where is home, Dany?” Arya asked, smiling against Dany’s lips.

“It’s wherever you are, Arya.” Dany answered huskily as she took her lover in her arms and kissed her deeply with all of the love she had for her wolf as their tongues met and swept over each other.
Their bodies melded one to the other as arms and legs pulled the new lovers tight, their breaths ragged with need as they fell onto Arya’s bed.
Daenerys and Arya were on their sides kissing with the Queen gently sliding her lips over Arya’s lips and gently nibbling on her lower lip. The sixteen year old was almost vibrating in Daenerys’ arms as the Queen held her lover in loosely enfolding arms. How good to finally say those words! She worried Arya’s bottom lip between her lips and gently nibbling teeth. Arya was whimpering like a puppy wiggling forward to get her body closer to Daenerys. They chuffed as they felt dragon fire flow through their veins.

Daenerys slit her eyes open and Arya had a dreamy look on her face. Dany ran her right hand down and jerked on Arya’s top to get it out of her trousers. She ran her fingers up underneath the fabric and slowly traced her fingers up Arya’s heated flesh. Her fingertips made small circles on Arya’s back. The sweet girl jerked and moaned hard for her new lover. Dany ran her fingers in circles first in one direction and then the other. Her other hand came up and slide underneath Arya’s shirt over her stomach. Her fingertips gliding over heated flesh. Her wolf juddering feeling her body stroked both on her back and belly.

Daenerys smiled into her kiss. She released Arya’s lip and ran her lips over each of Arya’s lips with hers and licked them making Arya whimper again.

Daenerys pulled back slowly and Arya eyelids slowly fluttered open. Dany’s felt a shock run through her body seeing the pulsing fire burning in Arya’s grey eyes. She looked both so innocent and yet so full of lust. Dany felt her pussy get so wet with instant soaking heat. Gods she was going to devour her sweet wolf and make her wail and scream in helpless pleasure. More juice gushed out her cunny weeping over her perineum and down her ass crack soaking her anus. Feeling herself getting so sloppy wet only inflamed Daenerys passion for Arya.

Dany started to move her face forward for another sweet kiss. Arya surged her head forward with the same idea. A loud thunk occurred when foreheads rapt together. Dany grimaced pulling back her forehead stinging. She smiled and moved forward again this time Arya led with her mouth and their teeth clinked hard into each other.

Both pulled back with stinging lips and teeth.

“Oh gods I’m ruining it!” Arya wailed in rising destress and worry.

Dany ran her fingers more sensually along Arya’s back trying to calm her. “I’m a fucking idiot!” Arya whined in frustration and fear of running the magical moment.

“Arya, Arya calm down sweetie!” Dany spoke softly moving into Arya to kiss her nose. Her hand running soothing circles on Arya’s body. Fingertips that promised scorching lovemaking to Arya.

“I want it to be perfect Dany!”

“It is perfect my sweet.”

“But I am ruining it!”

“No. You are not my sweet. Why are you so anxious?”

“I am so nervous!”

“That is a good thing my love—we’re supposed to be nervous …”

“I want you so baddddd!” Arya trilled out.

Dany smiled hearing that “Arya, It makes me feel so fucking sexy to be desired this much.”

Arya smiled tremulously at Dany. Dany now moved her other hand to Arya’s back underneath Arya’s top and circling her fingertips on her back soothing her over anxious wolf. Arya was purring in pleasure. Dany slowly pulled their bodies closer. Their body heat igniting a fire deep in their bellies. Daenerys knew she needed to lead the lovemaking for a while. Her sweet Direwolf was still a pup when it came to the carnal pursuits of women making love to each other. Arya a neophyte to actual lovemaking. Dany would lead her into the sweet world of sweet lesbian lovemaking.

“I have a suggestion … let me lead for a while … let me love this hot sexy body … let me make you cum so hard Arya!”

“Ummmhhnnggggg!” Arya whimpered her grey eyes almost black with her blown pupils.

“I’m going to fuck you so good Arya … I have dreamed so many nights of burying my face in your hot wet cunt and devouring your sweet wet cunny till you scream” Dany softly husked to her new lover. “Let me pleasure you with all my skills my sweet.”

“Mmmmnnnggg!” whimpered again shaking all over. She watched Dany move in and kiss her all over her face with sweet wet lips. Arya felt her core on fire for her Dany. The teenager felt her cunny pumping out hot wet slimy fuck juice soaking her mound and running down her perineum.

“I’m going to make you mine Arya. Totally. I’m going to rock your word” the Queen softly told her lover putting her deeper under her spell. “Just relax for now and let me fuck you my love … then it will be your turn to make me scream … to feel your mouth sucking me off Arya. I have dreamed of this from the moment I first saw you in the throne room” Dany told Arya softly.

Arya moaned loudly again and her eyes rolled back into her head. So passionate Dany thought feeling Arya’s hot skin underneath her fingers.

Dany gripped her love’s back and brought Arya forward again slowly. Arya was now plaint. Dany kissed her love gently on the lips gently lipping them and running her lips over Arya’s lips and then using her lips to suck and nibble as Arya mewled and body jerked in helpless pleasure. She pulled Arya hard against her body. The sounds of smooching and wet kisses filled Arya’s bedroom. Dany moved her head back and loved the soft light in Arya’s eyes. She moved in and kissed Arya sweetly again. Their mouths made wet smacks and slurps as their lips melded and sucked on sweet pouting lips.

Dany groaned hard feeling Arya’s plum nipples all swollen and bursting ripe pressed hard into her full rounded breast. She had one hand on Arya’s upper back pressing her fingertips into the firm hot skin. Her other hand ran all over Arya’s lower back and exposed ribs. Arya mewled and started to wallow into Dany’s body in primal want. Arya was pressing her body into Dany’s body her body instinctively undulating her hips sweeping her mound against Dany’s hip and upper thigh. Arya’s throat cawing.

Dany kissed Arya sweetly for another few minutes enjoying the closeness and breathing in finally up close the essence of Arya. The Queen relished the feel of Arya’s body pressed into hers. Arya instinctually humping her body trying to meet the rising need in her core and belly. Dany longed to smell Arya’s ripe cunt as well. She wanted to see Arya! but controlled her rising ardor. She loved how Arya was instinctively grinding her muff on her thigh now with harder sweeps of her hips. Dany was so happy! Arya had calmed down and was letting Daenerys guided their lovemaking but Arya’s body and soul were instinctively seeking the Queen’s body out. They were truly made for each other.

She lowered her one hand to Arya’s lower back and the other hand left from underneath Arya’s blouse top and reached down and gripped her lover’s firm ass cheek and urged her on to nut on her thigh. Dany’s fingers digging into Arya’s taunt ass cheek. Arya moaned into Dany’s mouth louder as she short jerked her hips putting pressure on her muffin her body jerking in rising pleasure.

Dany needed more. It was time to increase the heat of their lovemaking. The Valyrian slithered her tongue between Arya’s lips and brushed her teeth. The gates remained closed. Dany smirked into the kiss hearing Arya mewl. Dany withdrew her tongue so she could again launch her assault against the closed gates of Arya’s teeth. Again Dany ran her tongue between Arya’s lips and gums slowly sensually back and forth as the teenager began to jerk and writhe against her. Dany clawed aggressively into Arya’s ass urging Arya to grind her cunt through the fabric separating their skin into the Queen’s thigh. Dany moved her hand up and jerked on the bindings to Arya’s trousers loosening them. Then her right hand snaked underneath the hem of the pants and gripped the hot flesh of her lover’s ass. Her fingers roughly massaging the taunt muscular ass cheek. Arya’s moans becoming more harsh.

Arya was moaning constantly now in a guttural way. Dany gently chuckled as she swiped Arya’s gums more aggressively and Arya chuffed harder. She knew it was time to knock the door down. She took her tongue and aggressively pressed into Arya’s teeth hard her tongue slipping back and forth seeking entrance into Arya’s sweet mouth. Dany loved the wet heat and the taking of innocence. Dany was about to make Arya a woman. Her woman!

Arya finally understood. Dany had been denied to long. The instant Arya’s teeth parted, Dany’s tongue surged into Arya’s mouth lunging in deep and wrapping around Arya’s tongue squeezing. Dany mated their tongues tight as they flipped around in Arya’s groaning mouth wetly wrestling. The Dany shoved Arya’s tongue down to wetly explore Arya’s mouth. “Ummnnngggggppffffff! Mmmpphhhhhhffffff!” Arya chuffed hard into Dany’s mouth. Dany explored Arya’s mouth swiping her gums, tongue and cheeks. She enjoyed the feel of Arya’s body hard undulating against hers.

Suddenly, Arya’s hands were in her hair. Arya threaded her long fingers into the queen’s blond white tresses. Then her fingers gripped into Dany’s scalp. The young Direwolf pulled their mouths tight surprising the white haired Queen. Arya’s tongue had been passive but no more. Their tongues now coiled and flipped around in Arya’s mouth wetly entwined. Dany thrilled to Arya’s instinctive aggressive nature. It made Dany’s core melt in burning need and want. Her short clothes soaked now in slimy snail snot.

Dany felt her blood catch fire feeling her wolf come alive with want and confidence. They kissed deeply trading spit. Dany pulled Arya tight to her and wetly shoved her tongue down her teenager’s lover’s throat conquering it. She slit her eyes open and lunged her long tongue down Arya’s throat again and again. Dany felt her body sing seeing Arya’s face slash and crunch up in ecstasy. Dany tilted her head over to meld lips as tight as possible. Again and again she speared her tongue down Arya’s throat. She enjoyed seeing her lover’s body jolt with fervid need. Arya’s swallowed cries and mewls filled her bedroom. Daenerys relished the sound of her lover in her mind. She loved making Arya sound like a wanton slut.

“Mmmggfff uumppff ummppff!!!” Arya chuffed hard into Dany’s conquering mouth. Dany moved her right hand from Arya’s ass cheek to ass cheek massaging the hot globes. The sweat building. She glided her fingers down into Arya’s ass cleft stroking the depths of her ass cleft. Her fingers almost brushing the girl’s anus.

The Queen smiled seeing Arya’s eyelids bulge and roll as her eyes rolled into her skull and short jerked. Arya fingers clawed into Dany’s scalp to keep their lip lock hot and tight. Dany finally broke for breath gasping. Arya was gasping too her mouth open and spit covering her chin and cheeks. Dany moved in again locking lips and slamming her tongue again down Arya’s throat. She was on fire for Arya. She had been denied for too long! Their lips made wet slurps, sucks and smooching noises as they kissed fervidly.

Arya’s tongue wetly pushed against and wrestled with hers. Dany slowly pulled her tongue back wiggling it as she pulled her tongue back into her mouth. Dany moaned hard when Arya’s tongue flowed into her mouth after Dany’s retreating tongue. The Valyrian so happy her Arya was growing in confidence and fuck need. Now their tongues were wetly wrestling in the Queen’s mouth. Dany was ecstatic feeling her wolf growing bolder. Now Dany’s eyes rolled back when she discovered Arya had an equally long tongue that flowed down over her tonsils and into her throat thrusting deep.

The two young lovers snogged fiercely with dueling tongues that slip and slide over each other. Nostrils flared with their chuffing breaths. They were still on their sides but now the lovers were pressed into each other. Their legs skittering against each other’s legs. Their breaths getting ragged with rising need. They broke for air several times panting getting breath back. They gazed deeply into each other’s eyes before mouths mated tight again and tongues wetly wrestled as they shoved from mouth to mouth. Heads tilted over now to let noses glide against each other so mouths could try and push into their mate’s mouth. The deep intimate lip lock letting tongues surge deep into groaning mouths. Tongues exploring with wet licks and spearing thrusts down groaning throats.

Arya’s room was warm with the hot water flowing through the pipes in the walls. The warm air heating up their bodies that had begun to film with perspiration. Their clothing trapping their rising body heat.

“Oh gods baby” Dany panted when they broke for oxygen again. “You are making me so fucking wet!” It was true. Her silk short clothes were soaking wet in her snail snot. Her ass and pelvis soaked in her weeping fuck juice.

“Uuummggggg!” Arya whimpered hearing Dany’s heated words.

Dany reached down and gripped Arya’s right wrist and brought the hand to her face and kissed the fingers with locked eyes with Arya. Dany brushed Arya’s fingers over her face and smiled as did Arya. Then Dany trailed the fingers down her chest and then her stomach. She worked Arya’s fingers underneath her blouse top and first circled the teen’s fingers over her hard muscled stomach. The Queen guided the fingers up and down and in loose circles. Then Dany pushed the fingertips down to her lower belly.

Arya’s breath caught when she realized where Dany was taking her fingers. She whimpered when the fingers went underneath the waist band of Dany’s pants that the draw strings had come loose with their rolling around. Dany slowly worked Arya’s fingers right and left above her mound before guiding them lower to her soaked mound. “Oohhhhh!” Arya gasped when her fingertips rubbed first felt the wet clitoral hood and then slit of her woman. Then with Dany’s guiding her hand, Arya rubbed up and down over Dany’s wet bald slit.

Arya looked at Dany with large eyes as Dany rubbed her fingers up and down her cunt working Arya’s fingers into her cunny working her labia lips open. Arya was in heaven feeling the greasy thick lips work between her slow up and down rubbing fingers. The lips oily and rubbery working between her stroking fingers.

“Feel the truth of my desires for you Arya. Feel it in my sopping wet cunt. My cunt wet for you Arya. Only for you baby.” The Queen’s face grimaced and slashed with the sweet pleasure her wolf was giving her. Her throat beginning to moan softly at the sweet sensations Arya was stroking from her core.

Arya whimpered feeling her fingers soaked in Dany’s flowing fuck juice. How greasy her fingers felt, creamed with Dany’s slimy beautiful cunt cream Arya thought. Arya knew what she liked. She started to circle Dany’s clit rubbing into the hard nodule hidden by slimy folds. Dany’s hips bucked into the fingers pleasing her so sweetly. Arya thought with a smug remembrance how she had seen the Queen pleasure herself so many nights while warged into Nymeria. She knew what the Queen liked too. Arya enjoyed feeling Dany’s hand guide hers as their hands rubbed the Queen’s kitty.

Dany rolled the fingers over in her drooling snatch soaking both hands with her hot flowing twat juice. She rubbed her clit with Arya’s fingers making it jangle with pleasure. Their fingertips jacking her clitoral hood sending scalding pulses of pleasure to Dany’s brain and throbbing nipples. Dany angled Arya’s fingers to jam her clitoral hood harder making her gag in raw pleasure. Their fingers masturbating the Queen. The Queen relaxed her grip on Arya’s hand. She wanted to see if Arya would take the lead now.

Her hopes were rewarded when Arya started to jerk her pussy off so fucking good. “Mmngggg uunnggg oohhhhh ohhhh Arya what you do to me … mngggg hnnnggggg!” Dany whimpered feeling Arya’s fingers work her cunt lips and rub into her clitoral hood as she gasped. Arya teased the tip of Dany’s clit making Dany jolt and her throat cry out in pleasure. Then her fingers forked Dany’s clitoral hood and jerked up and down shooting ecstasy into Dany’s clit. Arya was a fast learner!

The Queen wanted to slow things down for the moment. She then drew their hands back out. They both looked at their fingers that were glistening with Dany’s juices. Dany released Arya’s hand and extended her hand to Arya’s mouth. Arya understood and extended her hand to Dany’s mouth. The two women traced lips teasing them with cum soaked fingertips. They slowly pushed their long glistening wet fingers into each other’s mouths. Loud moans filled the room as both women tasted Dany’s hot sweet pussy on the other’s hand.

Then they were kissing ravenously rolling around on the bed with legs around legs and ankles hooked over the other’s ankles and claves. Each woman enjoying the taste of Dany’s on their lips. Their arms looped around strong backs. They kissed deeply with battling tongues swallowing hot moans of pure passion. The bodies rolled first from one hip to their other hip as they kissed ravenously. Their bodies wrapped tight. Perspiration now beading on foreheads and upper lips.

Then Dany sat up pulling Arya up with her. The two stared at each other with pupils blown with raw wanton fuck hunger. She gripped the bottom of Arya’s top. She saw Arya’s eyes flare with fear. Dany knew now was not the time to let Arya know she had been spying on Arya as the teenager had been on her through her dirty warging with Nymeria. Arya had no idea the Queen had seen her beautiful tits and needed to feast on them with her staving mouth. Her many times watching Arya through the mirror in her room had given Dany an intimate knowledge of Arya’s body.

“Dany—my breast—well you can see I’m flat cheste—“

Dany placed her index finger on Arya’s lips to quiet her. “Sshhnnnn my love … you are so beautiful to me … I think your body is perfect … let me see baby—pleaseee!” she softly pleaded.

Arya melted raising her arms. She was still nervous. She looked at Dany intently as the Queen slowly pulled her top up and over her head. Arya felt her hair being caught and pooled in her top above her head. The shirt went higher the hair fighting its way free. She felt her brown hair cascade from the neck onto her shoulders. She had closed her eyes with the top going over her head.

When she opened them Arya gasped. Dany was staring at her small breast with her plump bursting plum like nipples so swollen they felt like they would burst. Dany was so thankful to finally see her love’s breast up close. They were fucking perfect. Arya had only a small line of breast that merged with her pulpy nipples that jutted up almost two inches her areolas all plump and rubbery. Arya had a thick stubby nipple jutted out the sweet pulpy areola. The color of her pulpy areolas medium brown with darker nips poking up the rubbery cones. Her nipples were shaped like plump rounded cones so thick and circular. Dany felt drool run down her chin.

“My gods your tits are so fucking beautiful Arya” Dany husked her head lowering. Arya was trembling with frozen want. She watched Dany lower her face and her mouth opened to suck in her left nipple. The pink lips of the Valyrian slowly worked down the thick plump two inch high nipple. Slowly Dany sucked the plum tittie into her mouth deeper and deeper with slow sweet sucked tight friction. Then the nipple had been sucked deep into the Queen’s mouth. Dany locked her lips on Arya’s chest and sucked with a long ragged love suck. The long sucks repeated long and hard. Dany’s tongue lathed the thick bulb nipple in her mouth.

Gods Arya thought to herself. Her own fingers had never made her nipples feel so good!

“Oh! Unnggg hhnnggg!” Arya gasped in shocking pleasure. Gods the pleasure flooding Arya’s nipple nearly overwhelmed her while hard pulses arched to her clit in a direct line of want and need. The pulses shocked Arya with pure fucking ecstasy. Arya whimpered, tossing her head, as she watched Dany move her head over to her other engorged nipple and siphoned it deep into her mouth and wolfed sucked with cheek hollowing sucks while her tongue slithered all over the sweet puffy nipple. "Unh! Unh! Unh!” Arya gasped with helpless pleasure.

She watched Dany’s hand come up to pinch and stretch out the nipple she had just been feasting on. The spittle letting Dany’s fingers glide over the wet bulb she pinched and squeezed in pulp squeezes. Her fingers squeezing in hard on her nipple as the Valyrian pinched her fingers into Arya’s swollen bulging nipples. Her fingers pulling and stretching Arya’s nipples and then compressing the engorged teats with hard squeezes. Then Arya cried out when she felt Dany’s lips hook underneath the edge of her bursting nipple on her breast. Hooked in with her lips, Dany vacuum sucked voraciously stretching out the plump plump nipple in her mouth filling it with heat and suction friction. Her other nipple worked with Dany’s fingers. Fingers that now sunk into the rubbery wet nipple compressing and bulging the nipple out around the squeezing fingers.

Arya’s face twisted with shocking pleasure. Her legs scissor on the bed as her hips jumped up helplessly feeling arcs of ecstasy shooting straight from her nipples to her hard throbbing clit.

Dany moved her head back and forth sucking with cheek hollowing sucks hooking her lips underneath the edge of Arya’s double bottle cap nipples and pulling her head up as she sucked with deep fuck hunger. "Unhh! Oh gods ... oh yes, Dany! Oh shit ... that feels so good! Yes ... gods, I love it when you do it hard! Unhhh!" Arya mewed in helpless pleasure her head thrashing as burning pulses hammered out her nipples flooding her body with sweet hot ecstasy. Dany’s hands working the nipple not currently being sucked hot and hard. Her fingers pulling and squeezing on the rubbery teats.

Arya’s body jerked and writhed at the dual assault of mouth and fingers moving back and forth between the spittle soaked nipples. The wet suction and pulping pinches were shocking Arya and filling her body with pleasure. Pleasure that rivaled her masturbatory pleasure. The love between them making the pleasure so much more intense!

Dany looked up loving the way her lover’s face twisted with primal need and pleasure. Pleasure that she was giving her sweet wolf. Arya’s body quaked and had sudden flips of searing ecstasy. Her back arching to drive her nearly two inches of nipples deeper into Dany’s hot sucking mouth. Dany decided to up the heat. She looked up at Arya’s face. She needed to see her love’s face react more to her loving. She started to gently teeth the pulpy bulbs she sucked on voraciously.

She was rewarded seeing Arya’s face slash as if in agony her head snapping forward her eyes squeezed tight shut in helpless searing pleasure. “Awwgggg augggg unggg gods don’t stop— aarruuggg! ... Hunnnnggg hhnnnnggg Fffuuuccckkkk—goddssdammnn that feels so fuuuucckiinnnggg good! … harder harder uuunnggg uuunnggg … harder aarrunngg uuunnggg hhnnnnggg!”

Dany complied to her woman’s needs. She sunk her teeth deep into Arya’s pulpy nipple and see sawed her teeth. Arya threw her head back and cried out loudly her face slashed with helpless pleasure. The pain and pleasure making a heady aphrodisiac. She cupped the back of Dany’s head pulling her tight into her bosom. Dany loved hooking her lips underneath the crown of Arya’s bursting nipples. She sucked so hard her head lifted with the force of her deep throat love sucks. Her teeth biting into the pulp nipple with moderate hard force.

Dany pulled back and raised her head and hungrily brought her mouth to Arya’s mouth and gave her a long scorching kiss. She went to move back down to Arya’s breast again but Arya gripped her arm stopping her. “Take your top off. I need to see your breast Dany—plleaaassееee! I have dreamed of seeing them with my own eyes.”

Dany caught the ‘with my own eyes’ remembering Arya’s warging in Nymeria to watch her masturbate night after night. Dany shivered at the want in Arya’s voice. She had dreamed endlessly of hearing this tone from Arya; the want and the desire. Dany loved that she had driven Arya so wild with need she did not even catch herself letting out her not so secret.

Dany slowly reached down and pulled her top out of her trousers and then slowly lifted it up her body. She smiled as the material rose up to cover her face and she heard Arya moaning seeing her pale skin come into view. Her skin beaded with sweat that was dribbling down her pale flesh. She felt the fabric of her top catch on the bottom of the swale of her rounded tits. Dany was a natural tease and let the material bunch underneath her tits. She worked the fabric back and forth but did not pull her top up higher.

“Dannyaayyyyyy ppleeaaasseeeeee! Don’t tease me!” Arya whined.

Dany relented and pulled her top up her torso.

“Ooohhhhh yeeaeeesssssss! Mmmnnggggg!” Arya whimpered seeing Dany’s full rounded slightly upswept nearly C cup breast come into view. The fabric slowly rising up still exposing more and more of the Queen’s milky breast. The breast lifted up as the fabric was rolled up her upper chest. The fabric rising up to slowly reveal Dany’s engorged nipples and steeple areolas. Dany’s tits flopped down on her chest falling out her top. Arya saw Dany’s gold dragon sized light brown areolas and hard erect nipples that stuck out a quarter inch were on full display. Her areolas in their excitement were covered with little steeples around her nipples. Dany pulled her top off and threw it to the floor. The movement made her firm breasts jiggle invitingly on her chest.

Arya started to move in but Dany put out her hand on Arya’s forearm to stop Arya who pouted cutely. Both of their breathing elevated with sensual need. Their eyes devouring each other chests. “Let’s remove the rest of our clothes why don’t we. They are in the way I would say.”

The Queen reached down and gripped the waist band of her trousers and stared to shimmy them down hers hips. She loved watching Arya watch her with hot hungry eyes. Keeping her eyes on Dany, Arya jerked up to her knees. Dany smiled seeing Arya lean and nearly topple over in her haste. Arya caught her balance. Dany had shimmied her pants down to the top of her mound. Dany watched Arya rip her pants down to her knees in one hard jerk her eyes staring at Dany’s groin area with hot pulsing eyes. Dany finished the job of pushing her pants down to expose her mound clasped by her short cloth that was dark with her cunt cream soaking it.

Arya had no short clothes on. Dany’s own eyes flared with fuck hunger. Arya’s mound bald a beautiful sight to the young Queen. Arya’s pussy was so swollen and glistening with wetness. Her mons pubis was dark pink trending very light brown to her outer labia lips were light brown and her inner dark pink and brownish lips blooming out her slit and a nice fat clitoral hood. Cum was already slavered over her mons and groin. Arya whimpered. “Dany pleaseeee! Get you fucking short clothes off! I need to see your cunt baby!”

She saw Arya looking at her silk covered slit with her own hot fuck hunger. The fabric pressed into her wet seam in an indentation in the shimmering darkened with cum silk. Dany smiled at Arya and snaked her fingers under the edge of her short clothes and ripped them down to her knees jammed into the bed. Arya moaned loudly seeing Dany’s cunt for the first time with her own eyes. Dany’s mons was nice and pink and her lips were long and dark pink with a hint of brown on the thickest parts of her cunt lips.

“Mmmnnuuunnggg!” Dany moaned smelling Arya’s sweet cunt for the first time. Her musk intoxicating and nearly driving her insane with want for Arya. Arya’s eyes were fully blown now and her breathing ragged. Her own senses overwhelmed by the scent of Dany’s musk. “Oh gods Dany you cunt smells soooooo fucking hot—sooooo good” Arya softly husked breathing deep as she stared at Dany’s twat while finishing removing the rest of clothes as Dany finished stripping naked.

They both remained motionless for a short minute. Eyes traveling all over the other. Eyes taking in the pale body of their lover. Their eyes feasting on swollen pussies and breast with engorged nipples full of hot pumping blood. Nipples rock hard. Arya’s nipples like overripe plums ready to burst as they bulged over the barely there breasts.

Dany scooted over to Arya and got her to sit back down and enfolded her love in her arms pulling her tight to her body. The Queen sitting down beside her love and half turning her torso to face her love. She moved in to press their heated bodies together. They both shivered hard feeling naked skin for the first time. Their arms coming up to enfold their lover and gently stroke and caress the body of their mate.

Dany’s full breast mashing into Arya’s torso and side as her own pulpy nipples squashed into Dany’s hard but oh so feminine body. Dany loved looking up slightly at Arya. Arya cupped the back of her head pulling it back slightly so they stared hard into each other’s irises. Their bodies melded as heated flesh pressed into heated flesh. Their lips meet in sweet pressure. Their mouths parted and wet tongues came out to play and writhe. Their tongues slipping and sliding over the other as they twined between their lips. Then their lips locked and both tongues wrestled wetly in Arya’s mouth.

Arya moaned hard feeling the sweet slippery tongue of her sweet Dany wetly wrestling her tongue. Their tongues flipping wildly in her mouth. Then Dany’s tongue explored the depths of Arya mouth. Her tongue tracing the gums, tongue and roof of Arya’s mouth making her cries chuff into Dany’s mouth. Then Dany’s tongue wormed underneath Arya’s tongue drilling hard. Arya’s muffled squeals swallowed by Dany’s mouth.

Then Dany pulled Arya hard into her body feeling the hot bulbs of Arya’s nipples pressed hard into her firm tits. Her tits flattened and compressed into Arya’s body. Her nipples digging into Arya’s nipples and chest. They kissed ravenously as they mewled and hitched feeling naked skin on skin. Their arms around each other and pulling heated bodies tight and kissed so deeply. Dany could feel perspiration starting to bead on their bodies and she felt it on her upper lip and forehead as raw naked desire pumped in her veins. Arms pulled bodies tight. The women’s bodies adjusting to face each other more fully. Their bellies wallowed and pussies found hips and thighs to mash and jerk on. Hot snail snot drooling out on hard muscled bodies.

Slowly Dany tilted Arya’s back and down until she had Arya on her back looking up at her as she broke their kiss. Dany half lying on her new lover. At first Dany only backed up an inch. Spittle roped between their lips swaying. Arya’s eyes full of such love and desperate fuck hunger that it made Dany’s heart pound in her chest for her love.

“I'm going to love you so good Arya … I'm going to make you scream”

“Ooohhh yeessssssss!” was Arya’s sibilant reply.

Dany leaned in and kissed Arya deeply again their tongues deep in Arya’s mouth as Dany pressed into the Stark teenager and her right hand came up to trace her fingertips up and down Arya’s body. The Queen’s tits pressed into and dragging over Arya’s sweaty flesh. The friction on her nipples exquisite. First her fingers running along Arya’s arms and then her belly and ribs, back to her arms and then around her huge nipples and then her upper thighs and back to her belly. Slowly she mapped out Arya’s body with her feathery fingertips brushes. All they while they kissed deeply only breaking long enough to gulp oxygen before mouths mated tight yet again. Tongues wetly wrestling from mouth to mouth.

She loved how Arya’s body jolted and jerked feeling the feathery touch of her lover tracing her firm tight body. The feel of her nipples dragging on Arya’s body making her chuff hotly in Arya’s mouth. Arya humped her twat up in the air in instinctive fuck need. Dany moaned into Arya’s mouth smelling Arya’ rich thick cunt musk flooding the room along with her own excited scent. Dany so loved the smell of her own pussy and the intoxicating scent of other woman’s cunts drove the Queen wild with the need to fuck hard and long.

But all paled compared to the sweet musk of her one true love’s sweet swollen snatch. Arya’s rich musk was intoxicating. Dany was already permanently hooked on it. She was hooked on Arya Stark.

She had stopped kissing Arya as she plied her lover with her fingertips. Arya was writhing on the bed moaning and cawing. Again Dany thought how she loved Arya’s response to her slightest touch. Her breathing was getting ragged. Dany slowly traced her fingertips around and around Arya’s nipples all bursting and so dark pink swirled with all hues of medium and darker brown.

“You have beautiful tits Arya … my gods I going to devour them” Dany said lowering her head and siphoning in the right bulb and wolfed sucked with cheek hollowing deep throat love sucks. “Uunngggg! Unngggg! Awwoggg!” Arya cried out with the friction and suction on her nipple. Dany sunk her teeth deep into the pulpary mass of Arya’s plum nipple. She gently see sawed her teeth filling Arya’s nipples with squirts of pain that merged with pleasure driving the girl wild.

After a round of sweet gnawing, Dany soothed the love tormented nipples. The Queen’s tongue lathing the engorged rubbery teats circling and slapping them hard. Dany’s hand pressed and squeezed into the other nipple she was not orally loving and rolling her palm over the engorged bulb. Arya’s legs scissor on the bed with snap jerks and her heels kicked the bed as raw aching pleasure flooded her body. Dany kept glancing up to see her lover’s face. A face slashed with harsh fuck bliss. Her head jerking up her tendons jutting out her throat as Arya’s neck jerked up hard in spastic jerks.

Dany moved her head right and left sucking in the nipple and teething it and sucked so hard on the nipple anchoring her lips at the base of the bulb and pumping her head filling it with hot heat and wet tongue swipes. Her hand compressing and rolling the pulpary nipple not in her mouth. The slimy salvia letting her palm rub smoothly on the nearly two inch bulb of sweet nipple and areola. Dany jammed down with her palm to wetly rub and compress the thick nipples. Arya’s head jerking up and her face twisted with searing ecstasy burning and pulsing out her expertly worked nipples.

“Dany pleaseeeeee!” Arya cried out. “My pussy my pussy pleeeaseeeeee!”

Dany thought of teasing Arya but that would be denying herself. In a flash she was between Arya’s legs pushing her legs out. The Queen’s body settling down onto the mattress. She breathed deep her face mere inches from Arya’s wet swollen cunt. Her lilac eyes taking in the beauty of Arya’s pussy up close for the first time. The smell up close intoxicated Dany with Arya’s rich thick musk flooding her nostrils with the heady scent of Arya’s quim. The smell from Arya’s wellspring so pure and intense this close. Dany looked at the engorged mound and wet lips all gnarled and waiting for her tongue and mouth. She loved the different hues of brown flowing to pink along Arya’s labia lips. The lips splayed out on Arya’s mound all wet and slimy.

Dany moved her head down and slowly licked up and down the gooey slit and moaned tasting her sweet wolf for the first time. The Valyrian dragged her tongue slowly up and down Arya’s slit tonguing the slimy labia lips. Her mouth sucking lightly on the lips as she licked. Dany moaned deep in her chest tasting the sweet elixir of Arya’s cunt. The taste pure and exquisite. Arya whimpering rotated her groin up into Dany’s mouth. Dany wagged her head opening up her love’s slit with her long tongue. She teased out Arya’s inner lips working them out to lie splayed out on Arya’s big camel toe.

Dany lifted her head a moment to look at the sheer perfection of the center of her woman’s essence. A woman’s pussy the center of her womanhood. The Queen had never tired of looking at a woman’s pussy. Each one a masterpiece to her eyes. Dany sucked in each labia lip and rolled it in her mouth and pulled on it gently. Arya moaned gutturally her hips jolting up in helpless pleasure. Finished with Arya’s lips she spit out her left rubbery pussy lip. Dany then licked up fast so her tongue touched Arya’s clit. Arya’s eyes flared with her hips jumping up cutely and a loud moan filled the room. Arya’s face looked like she had been branded with an white hot iron poker. Arya’s pussy smelling so sweet and overpowering her musk intoxicating the Queen.

Dany licked over Arya’s clitoral hood. Her tongue slowly teasing out her Direwolf’s clit from its sheath. The tip all shiny pinkish white and slimy wet. The Queen slow licked her tongue over the throbbing nubbin. The sweet wet friction making Arya cry out in shocking ecstasy. Dany drooling out ribbons of spit to baste the hard clit and clitoral hood in her spit. She siphoned in the spit only to drool it out again all over her woman’s clit. Her lips sucking in spit and siphoning on the clitoral hood of her slut making Arya whinny in helpless pleasure. The queen lifted her head spying the sweet clit of her Direwolf.

“Unnggg hhnnng hhnnng … oohhhh Dany! You suck pussy so fucking good! Unnggg hhnnnggg!”

Dany was in heaven as she slowly sucked in Arya’s clit deep into her mouth for the first time. Her eyes rolled into her skull as she suckled on paradise. Her tongue wetly explored the cum slicked clitoral hood. The Queen’s pink tongue lathing all over the slimy hood. Dany expertly teased back the folded labia lips more fully exposing the shiny nubbin beneath.

Dany rocked her head to suck and lap at the nodule she had teased out its hood with long ragged love sucks. Dany groaned gutturally deep in her chest. Dany loved the feel of Arya’s clt between her lips and underneath her rasping tongue. Her lover’s sweet pungent taste filling her mouth and throat for the first time. This was heaven Dany thought as her lips suckled on the rigid clt of her soulmate for the first time. She jetted Arya’s hard clt in and out her hot sucking lips. Arya’s moans so sweet to Dany’s ears.

Arya was swirling her hips instinctively up into her mouth lifting Dany’s head that small fraction. Dany had her hands on her lover’s thigh and hip holding her lover in place so she could dine on sweet wet cunt meat. The taste so divine in her mouth. The Queen’s tongue drilling and slapping the hard nodule that was Arya’s essence. The teenager’s hands were scrabbling over the bed and then one found her nipples and Dany saw that Arya was roughly rolling her palm into her nipples mashing them half flat and lifting her palm and smacking down to fill them with heat and friction. She likes it hard and rough. Good. I love my sex hot and hard.

"Ohhhnnnn gods ...ohh gods!" Arya moaned, swirling her wet quim into Dany’s mouth. Her face slashed hard and her teeth clenched with fierce pleasure. Dany sucked Arya’s clt hard in and out her lips and then locked her lips on Arya’s clitoral hood and rolled it with her lips and tongue. She gigged the hard nubbin with spearing thrusts of her tongue into the clt. "Ungghh! Oh! Unhhh! Oh yes! … unggg Dany you sssuuuccccckkkk soooo gooooooodddd!" Dany had been short sucking with vicious sucks and now went to long ragged sucks with slightly loose lips to add more friction. Arya was crying out constantly in pleasure now. This technique had Dany’s mouth making wet slurs and smooches on the clt meat in her mouth. Dany working to make the noise louder and more obscene. The pure sounds of a woman devouring her woman’s cunt.

Arya’s hands now had her fingers pinching and rolling of her nipples with hard squeezes. Arya’s face twisted and clenched with the shocking pulses filling her thick rubbery nipples and shooting straight to her clt which made her legs scissor in spastic jerks. The teenager’s head jerked up off the bed and thrashed from side to side feeling such pleasure filling her drooling quim. Her pelvis and ass crack soaked in her cum dribbling out her love box. Dany loved the wetness now soaking here lower face and running down her throat.

Dany backed off on her oral feasting. This made Arya cry out in want. She gently lathed Arya’s snatch running her tongue up and down the creamy slit licking up sweet cum. Dany’s tongue plowing the wet trench licking out sweet creamy girl cum. She then lowered her face extending her long tongue and slowly buried her tongue into Arya’s fiery core her face moving in till her nose was pressed into Arya’s slit and clt. Her mouth engulfed by Arya’s swollen mound. Arya’s wetness and heat divine feeling on the Queen’s mouth and lips.

Dany groaned deep in her chest feeling Arya’s heat and her taste flooding her taste buds. She slow tongue fucked Arya’s love box. Dany loved the wet slippery folds sliding up and down her tongue as she tongue fucked her love deep. She had started out slow but soon Dany was pounding her head up and down spearing her tongue deep into Arya’s honey hole her tongue scooping hot dollops of sweet cum she gulped down. Her nose plowing and jacking into Arya’s slit and clit driving her woman wild with pleasure. Dany wiggled her tongue as she speared the slippery folds and whorls of her slut’s cunt hole.

"Ohhnnnn god ...unngghhh ...oh shit!" Arya gasped. She was up on her elbows looking down her now sweaty torso and belly her face slashing with hard pleasure. She watched Dany tongue fuck her cunny hole with strong strokes of her head. Both of Arya’s hands now pinched and pulled her own nipples hard. "Ohhhnnnn ...oh shit, I’m going to cum Dany!"

The Valyrian smiled hearing her Direwolf cry out the obvious. She could feel the tension filling Arya’s body. How her sweetie’s body was stiffening and her face slashed with such harsh rising ecstasy. The juices flowing out of Arya’s core was heavier and creamery now. It was time to take Arya and make her cum so fucking hard. Dany needed to show her woman how exquisitely skilled in bed she was.

Dany moved her head up in a flash and sucked Arya’s clit deep into her mouth and vacuumed sucked with harsh deep throat love sucks. Dany wormed her hands palm up underneath Arya’s flexing ass cheeks and her clipped nails clawed in deep into firm taunt ass cheeks. Dany pulled and jammed Arya’s pelvis up with hard up jerks of her clawed fingers in Arya’s ass to grind her love’s swollen muff into her devouring mouth.

Arya was squealing now her head jerking forward and back a stricken look on her face. Dany loved helping Arya hump up into her gobbling mouth. She felt Arya’s cunny compress into her face as the teen’s pubic bone ground Arya’s cunt into her mouth. Dany slapped and gigged the diamond hard clit in her mouth. She looked up at Arya looking down at Dany. Arya’s head thrashed and contorted with ecstatic slashes and grimaces.

Suddenly Arya’s head jerked hard forward. Her eyes squeezed tight shut. Her face had frozen in a slash of almost horrible pleasure. Her features all contorted with the dire pleasure filling her core and belly. Pleasure ready to explode throughout her body. Then Arya’s head snapped back as shrieks of almost agonizing pleasure filled her bedroom.

“AAAWWOOOOGGGGGG! HHHUUUUNNGGGGGGGGGG!” Arya screamed as her body flipped and jackknifed violently her body flipping back onto the mattress and convulsing. Dany sucked with a pure deep throat love suck on her lover’s exploding clitor. Her grip tight on Arya’s body to keep her mouth glued to Arya’s exploding snatch. "MMNNNGGAUUUNNGGGGGIEE!" Arya cried out, now flipping and surging even more wildly up into Dany’s mouth. "Ohhngggmmngg! Oh shit! AUUNNGGGHH!” Arya’s head lifted off the mattress and slammed down again and again as pure fucking bliss throttled her with burning ecstasy.

Arya’s face looked like she had had boiling oil poured down on her head from on high. Her small tits jerked in their stiffness as her body bucked and jackknifed violently. Arya’s eyes had shocked wide open as her head thrashed. Dany saw a sweet loving stricken look in her love’s eyes as her tongue slapped Arya’s clitoris and her lips glued to her clitoral hood. The Queen gripping Arya’s ass cheeks hard with clenched fingers as she pressed her head down hard to control Arya’s groin so she could continue feasting on exploding gash. The Queen’s lips glued to Arya’s exploding clitor.

“Uungghhiieeeeee! Mmmnnngghhhhiieeeeee! Mmmmhhiieeeeee! ... unnggg hhnggg oohhhhnmmn Aaaaawwwooooggggg!” Arya continued to scream as searing fucking bliss poured out her ruptured cunt and searing her veins in ecstasy. Dany knew that Arya’s inner whorls and petals were clenching down hard with each orgasmic wave crashing through her love’s body.

Dany kept her love suck on hard for the height of Arya’s orgasm. She swore she could feel Arya’s pulse hammering through her clitor as each orgasmic wave hit and hammered the sixteen year old so fucking hard. Dany backed off when she felt her lover weakening as her orgasm began to wane. Dany now gently ran her tongue up and down the cum filled trench of her lover’s slit and dipped her tongue deep into Arya’s honey hole scooping out hot tongue fulls of sweet hot creamy cum.

The Queen could feel the dying pulses of Arya’s orgasm in her pussy as it weakly sucked on her deep probing tongue. A tongue that found a thick creamy butter of hot girl cum that she was eagerly scooping out and swallowing greedily.

She looked up Arya’s now sweat soaked belly and saw Arya’s head lulling form side to side as she cawed and gagged in strong aftershocks. Dany watched Arya bring her palms up and roll crush her nipples and her legs now stiffened and her heels kicked the bed. Good Dany thought. Arya is a greedy slut milking her orgasm for all the pleasure she could. Arya listened to her body and went for every drop of pleasure possible. Just like Dany.

After several minutes of licking and kissing Arya’s mons she softly started to lick Arya’s clit again and was happy to see that Arya was responsive her clit recovered. She suckled on the slimy morsel that rapidly went rock hard again under her loving oral ministrations. Dany lapped her head to run her tongue over the hard clit and its hood. She bent down and gave it hard sucks before again tongue raking with her firm tongue.

Arya was moaning deep in her chest again swirling her hips up into Dany’s mouth grinding her sodden trim up into Dany’s hot gobbling mouth. Her vulva engulfing the Queen’s mouth as Dany pleasured her lover’s swollen slimy couchie. The smell of Arya’s excited cunt filled the room thickly with her musk. The smell of a woman in the throes of soul deep passion. The teen’s face scrunched up and her throat gagged out helpless caws of shocking pleasure. Each hard spasm rocking Arya’s body twisted her face into a beautiful mosaic of sweet pleasure.

Dany was in heaven swallowing every drop of Arya’s sweet cum she could. She tongue raked Arya’s clit making the sixteen year old’s hips buck and shimmy underneath her tongue. She brought up her right hand. She slowly ran her fingertips over her baby’s honey hole and massaged the opening and lips around Arya’s fuck hole. The teen’s hips bucking harder instinctively seeking sweet penetration like the wanton slut she was. Dany’s fingers instantly soaked in the slimy effluent leaking out copiously from her baby’s hot fuck hole.

Dany smiled seeing her honey’s body striving for more and more pleasure. Pleasure she was eager to give. Dany brought her long fingers up to Arya’s fuck hole her fingers aligned with the drooling fuck hole. She slowly pushed her first two fingers deep into her lover’s cunt. Arya gagged and whimpered in pure pleasure and Dany moaned hard feeling the wet heat grip down tight on her invading fingers. She had known that Arya’s hard physical warrior training and avid horseback riding would have taken her hymen and she was right.

That mattered not one wit to the Queen. She relished the hot cauldron her fingers were now buried in. The wet slimy heat of Arya’s inner cunt petals gripping and squeezing tight her long digits she began to slow pump her long fingers in out the buttery cunt hole of her sweetie. Dany moaned feeling the oily slimy coating instantly soaking her fingers as she finger fucked her lover’s fuck hole. Arya’s face had been twisting and grimacing from the pleasure from her lover. But it now ratcheted up feeling Dany sinking her fingers deep into her drooling honey pit. Her face started to slash and grimace harshly with intense pleasure filling her love hole from her Queen’s fingers pumping in and out her hungry cunt.

Dany slowly stroked her fingers in and out the wet fiery cauldron of Arya’s cunt. Her fingers greasy instantly with slick cum coating the digits pumping harder now into the wet twat. Arya moaned sweetly “Uunnggg mmmngggg mmmnhhh unngg ohhhh dannnyyyyyy!” Dany loved the hard squeezes on her deep probing fingers from the contractions deep in Arya’s core. Arya looked at her with hot throbbing eyes conveying the intense pleasure being given to her by her hot Dragon.

Dany was in heaven now ramming her fingers hard and deep up Arya’s hot twat. She loved the feel of her knuckles ramming Arya’s vulva. The Valyrian loved the feel of Arya’s slimy wet cunt folds sucking and gripping her pumping fingers. The Queen had been watching her Direwolf’s face slash and jolt with pleasure from her hard driving fingers now plunging deep into Arya’s belly. Her hard strokes making Arya cry out in ecstasy.

"Ohhnnnn ... yes yes! Aarruunngg uungeeg hhhnnnnn!" Arya panted now swirling her hips to lift her pussy up into the long fingers now slam fucking her drooling clamshell. Her face twisted with primal fuck bliss. "Ohhhnnnn shit yeah baby! Pound my cunt good Dany! Arrruuunngg hhnnnggg hhnmmm hhnmmm pound my cunt hole!" she gasped. Dany smiled at her wolf expressing her naughty needs. She slammed her fingers even harder into Arya’s sloppy wet quim that squished and sloshed. "Ohh! Unngghhhhh! Ohhhnnnn! Ahhhnnnmm!" Arya moaned, her pelvis shaking, her hips churning up into Dany’s hard driving fingers as her knuckles pounded Arya’s mons. "Oh goddsssss!" Arya whimpered.

All the while the Queen was wolf sucking on her wolf’s rigid clit and upper slit. Dany lashed the hard nodule with rapid and then slow tongue licks and gigs of Dany’s strong tongue. The Queen alternated her sucks between quick and fast and slow and long. The friction intense on Arya’s clit. Dany loved the feel of that divine nubbin between her lips and on her tongue.

Dany slowed her finger stroke and then paused. Arya lifted her head and looked at Dany with a stricken look of raw need. With a smirk Dany pulled her fingers back till only the tips were in Arya’s hot cunny hole. Then the Queen slammed her forearm forward and harpooned Arya’s cunt with a spearng thrust. Her bent knuckles pounding Arya’s mound denting in the pink mons with violent force of her slam thrust. Dany slammed fucked Arya with four savage strokes. Arya cried out in ecstasy. Loving the rough fuck. Dany slowed and moderately stroked Arya’s tight sleeve and then paused again. After the short pause Dany harpooned stroked her fingers again slam fucking Arya’s cunt with four or five savage strokes of pure love.

Dany rose up to watch Arya’s body react to her to her loving ministrations. Dany enjoyed the feel of her fingers fucking Arya hot and hard. Her fingers pounding in deep up her baby’s belly. She loved seeing the stricken look on Arya’s features feeling her pussy pleasured by Dany’s long fingers.

The Queen was making Arya cry out in savage joy. The pale Valyrian slowly lowered her face back to her woman’s pussy. She slide her lips down the tent of Arya’s clitoral hood. She began to suckle on the knotted clitoral hood with steady loving sucks. "Ungghh!" Arya groaned. "Gods yyeessssss ... suck suck it hard Dany! Ohnn!" Arya’s head jerked up off the bed. Her face twisted with primal fuck pleasure. "Mnngg! Unh! Oh yes!" Arya gasped. Dany smiled and sucked hard on her baby’s clit giving it the friction and suction Arya craved. Dany swirled her hips up harder into the mouth making sweet love to her pussy. Dany sucked and tongue lashed the rock hard clit in her mouth. The Queen loved the feel of Arya’s clit on her tongue. She relentlessly gigged the shiny nodule.

Arya lifted her head to watch Dany lap her head to rake her tongue relentlessly over and over Arya’s rigid clit. The flat tongue licks raking her clit relentlessly. The Valyrian’s eyes watched Arya intently enjoying her effect on her woman. Dany would move her head down to give short vicious love sucks on Arya’s clit before lifting her head to stab and tongue rake up and over Arya’s clitoral hood. Her fingers twisting as she rammed them home with loving force. Arya whimpered and cried out in shocking roiling pleasure. Arya’s cunt was making wet slurps and gurgling splattering sounds now. Dany felt Arya’s cunt getting watery with her next approaching orgasm.
Dany wanted to see Arya’s orgasm up close. Arya was whinnying loudly throwing her hips up and forward to grind her clit into Dany’s mouth and thrust her cunt into the fingers finger fucking her third knuckle deep.

Dany lifted herself up on her knees and lifted her left hand and placed it by Arya’s head. Dany shifted her body forward so her face was near Arya’s. She was snuggled close her breast pressed into Arya’s side. Her right hand was hammering her first two fingers into Arya’s streaming hot tight cunt with slamming thrusts. Dany looked down at her hand pounding Arya’s cunt—third knuckle deep. Dany’s fingers were creamy colored slavered with Arya’s fuck batter. Her cunt filled with buttery cum.

“Cum on my fingers Arya … let go and cum so fucking hard on my hand Arya—cum for me” Dany husked to her lover. She slowed her motion to a crawl and wormed in a third finger. She moaned feeling the tight heat on her fingers as her fingers stretched out Arya’s quim. The hot cauldron of Arya’s cunt soaking the Queen’s fingers. Dany quickly built up her rhythm slamming her fingers hard and deep in her love’s tight sucking pussy.

Dany grunted and chuffed as she started finger banging her lover’s hot splattering box. Dany slammed her fingers home into Arya’s cunt that splattered cum everywhere. Her pounding knuckles compressing the sweaty cum soaked vulva of her lover. The Queen adjusting her posture to allow her really slam fuck Arya’s slurping cunt. Sweat was dripping off Dany’s face now and off her tits that swirled and jerked with her hard pumping harpooning fingers pounding in deep up Arya’s trim and knuckles slamming into the girl’s mons.

Arya’s face had again a stricken caste her face scrunching with soul deep pleasure. Her head lifted off the bed staring up at Dany with eyes squint but staring hard into the lilac eyes of her woman. The tendons in her neck jutted out with the harsh up jerks of Arya’s head as her throat was taunt with strain. Her breathing was labored now. Sweat poured off Arya’s face and down her ribs with sweat pooling on her belly.

Then her head surged up as her shoulder blades lifted off the bed an inch. “Auunnggghh! Hunnnggg hhinnnggg uunnggg! Oh gods ...Dany! Oh gods, it's so good. I ...I ...yes yes ...AUUNNGGGHHHH!” Dany slammed her three fingers in all the way into Arya’s couchie. Dany paused a moment. She now violently jerked them around in Arya’s cunt that sounded like someone was splashing their feet in a puddle of rainwater. Dany gritted her teeth jerking her hand in a blur back and forth. Her fingers churned deep in Arya’s cunt vibrating wildly Arya’s inner cunt folds and whorls. Dany loved the feel of Arya’s oily inner cunt lips churned by her fast ripping fingers buried in Arya’s cunt. “Fffffffuuuccckkk!” Arya cried out slamming her head back down hard on the mattress her head now lulling first right and then left her face still slashing as if she was being garroted.

Arya’s back arched high off the bed and her fingers clawed the sheets and pulled them up into her balled up fists. She chuffed harshly her body rapidly scrabbling up the ladder of shocking ecstasy. Her heels jammed into the mattress her body shaking violently all over now. Her eye were shocked wide open with searing agonizing pleasure staring up at Dany with pure love.

Dany brought her thumb into play lowering it and now it too bashed Arya’s clit right to left and back in a blur as the Queen’s fingers churned her inner cunt petals in relentless blender motion. Her thumb squirting the hard nubbin of Arya’s clit first one way and then the other. Dany glanced down to see the rock hard nubbin being tormented by her mashing thumb. Her eyes traveled up Arya’s body jerking and stiffening in raw need.

Dany saw Arya’s eyes pulse as they opened wide as possible in shock with scalding bliss. Her head jerked up off the mattress and jerked up in the air on her spasming neck. Arya’s womb exploded. “AUUNNGGGHHHH! AAARRRRRUUNNGGHHHHH! UUNNGGGHHHHIIIEEEEEE!” Arya screamed in raw agonizing pleasure. Her body bucked and flipped as Dany continued to pound hard Arya’s pussy with her churning fingers. Her lover’s exploding cunt gripping and squeezing Dany’s churning fingers with vice like squeeze of soaked love. “Oouuugggghhhhh! Ahhhnngggg uunnnn uunnggg OOWWWGGGGGGGGGG! Mnnnggggee! Hhnngggginniiieeeee!” Arya wailed, jackknifing wildly beneath Dany as she continued to cum in a torrents of crippling spasms.

Dany was in heaven feeling the hard hammer blows of Arya’s orgasm making her cunt grip and squeeze at the fingers wildly jerking around in the sloshing cunt petals deep into Arya’s twat. Arya’s face looked like she was being boiled in oil it twisted and slashed so hard. Again and again, Dany wildly jerked her fingers savagely into her lover’s exploding twat. “Ffuuuuuccckkkkk! Aarruuunnggggggg! Oh oh … shit—fuckkkk! Hhhuuuunngggggggggg!” Arya shrieked feeling her womb seize up and spasm deep in her belly.

Arya shrieked and flipped like a fish out of water as stunning crippling hammer strikes of her orgasm wrung her out. Dany’s rammed her fingers forward and buried them in Arya’s twat to keep Arya’s body anchored down on the bed in place. Arya suddenly collapsed to the bed soaked in sweat her belly that been clenched into rippled steel was now relaxed with her harsh breathing. Sweat was pouring off her body. Her head lulled to the side as she mewled feeling strong aftershocks ripple out her ruined womb. Her breathing hitching as fierce aftershocks had her clit jangling mightily and her nipples throbbing hotly with spent fucking bliss.

She looked up at Dany with a beatific smile plastered on her face as strong aftershocks still gripped and shook her body hard. Dany with buried her fingers in Arya’s cunt, felt the pulses of Arya’s fading orgasm drift away. Dany slowly churned her fingers around in Arya’s buttery cream filled cunt hole loving the wet slimy feeling of a cum drenched cunt. Dany could not but help feel so proud of her herself making her sweet Direwolf cum so fucking hard. The first of countless more Dany thought to herself with a smirk.

Arya weakly lifted her left hand and caressed Dany’s cheek. “I love you. I love you with all my heart Dany” Arya softly spoke with solemn eyes. Dany pressed her cheek into the softly caressing fingers. The love she felt for Arya radiated hotly like the sun in her body. Her soul was even more in love with Arya if that was possible.

“Ohhh Arya I love you so much too. I have waited my whole life for you to come into it.” Arya hiccupped and shed a tear. Dany slowly removed her fingers from Arya’s worn out quim and brought her hand up as she settled down half on Ayra. She brought her cum soaked fingers up between them. The two new lovers looked at the digits smeared thickly with creamy buttery cum. The feeling slimy on Dany’s fingers. It felt like heaven to the Valyrian.

“I want you to su—auuannggggg!” Dany moaned hard with Arya not waiting to be told to suck the cum soaked fingers of her Queen Arya’s hand came up to grip the Queen’s wrist and draw her hand down to her lips. Her head came up off the mattress and her lips parted to slide Dany’s cum soaked fingers into her mouth. “Mmmnnngggg mmmhhhhhh mmmnnngggg!” Arya moaned sucking her own cum off Dany’s fingers with slow sensual pumps of her head. All the while looking heatedly into her lover’s eyes. “Oh Arya you are so fucking hot. I love you baby.”

Arya smiled lewdly around the fingers she sucked up and down her tongue. Dany settled more into Arya and played with Arya’s sweaty hair pushing it back off her forehead. She kissed Arya on her forehead and cheeks loving to see her lover slurp on her fingers like the pure slut she had always known Arya to be. Her dirty warging had proven that.

Arya pulled Dany’s fingers from her mouth. Arya looked up at Dany with pure love. “I love the taste of my own cunt so much Dany. I am total slut for you Dany” Arya softly husked up to her Queen and mate. Arya’s hand then moved up and threaded her fingers into Dany’s sweaty lank hair and pulled the Queen’s mouth to hers and melded their lips. They kissed sweetly for a minute as Arya having learned her lessons well nibbled and sucked on Dany’s lips. Arya pulled on the sensual lips of her woman pulling and rolling them between her lips. Her tongue tracing the bee stung lips of Daenerys Targaryen. The sweet sensations made the Targaryen mewl in pleasure.

Then Dany squealed with Arya suddenly moving her hands down and gripping the Queen’s body and rolling her onto her back. The teenager straddling her Queen’s body supporting her weight on her knees and elbows. She looked down at the woman she loved with all her heart. Their bodies resting gently against each other. Arya reveling in feeling Dany’s breast pushed into her plump nipples. The fell of their sweaty bellies lightly brushing and wallowing against each other. Arya’s wet mound resting on Dany’s lower belly just above her mound. Arya’s wetness slicking the skin of the Queen.

“It is time I now get to have some sweet gash Dany. I want—no—I need to feel you cum hard in my mouth. I have dreamed of you since that first report of the Dragon rising in the East. I have always loved everything about your House Dany. Now I love you. Totally. Completely.”

“Huuunnggg mmmnngggg!” Dany whimpered looking up with her lilac eyes into the steel grey of Arya’s showing her complete giving of her body, mind and soul to her Stark lover. Arya’s words were like the fabled words of her long lost first brother. In the heart of Arya Stark beat the heart of a poet.

Arya lowered her face and started giving feathery kisses to Dany all over her face. The light kisses had the Queen wiggling her ass into the bed in pleasure. She reached up to grip Arya’s head but Arya gripped Dany’s hand and put it back on the bed.

“I’m in control now sweet dragon. It is the wolf’s turn to make her dragon wail in pleasure … uuhhhhhh that is alright isn’t it?”

Dany beamed up at Arya “Devour me any way you want Arya. I surrender my all to you” Dany spoke softly letting her eyes speak the truth of her submitting to Arya. “Making love is about giving but also about taking Arya. I submit to you. Ravish me.” The Queen took Arya’s hand and moved it down to her groin and ran Arya’s fingers up and down her drooling slit. Arya feeling the wet heat of her lover copiously soaking her hand and her lover’s cunt mound.

“Feel the truth of my desire in my wetness for you Arya Stark!” Dany softly husked.

“Uunnggrrrr!” Arya growled lowering her head and now locking lips with Dany. Her tongue licked and her lips worked Dany’s sweet sensual lips in turn making Dany mewl and her legs scissor on the bed. Then Arya aggressively wiped her tongue along Dany’s teeth and leapt her tongue deep into Dany’s mouth the instant Dany parted her teeth for her lover.

Arya moaned hard into Dany’s mouth when she speared her tongue in deep and found Dany’s tongue and they wrapped around each other flipping around in Dany’s mouth aggressively. Arya pressed her body down into Dany’s as they kissed heatedly. She groaned feeling her engorged nipples pressed into Dany’s ribs and tits. She pulled Dany up into her body seeking more delicious skin contact. Arya loved the feel of their tits mashed into each other’s bodies. Their tongues flipping and rolling around in Dany’s mouth. The wet slippery heat of their mated tongues filled Arya with fire for her Dragon.

Arya settled more of her weight down onto the Queen’s body jamming her engorged bulb nipples into Dany’s breast and now mashing their bellies together. Arya swirled her cunt all over Dany’s lower belly just above her mound. Their sweaty slicked flesh easily slipping and sliding against each other.

Arya worked her arms underneath her woman’s upper back and looped them up to grip Dany’s trapezes. Arya dug her fingers into the muscled area between the Valyrian’s neck and end of Dany’s shoulders. Arya pulled Dany up into her down pressing body to wallow and hump their bodies tighter. All the while Arya kissed her slut in heated love.

Now bellies slapped into each other as they began to hump in instinctual love. Their mounds now finding each other directly and rubbing up and down in sweet trib rocking sweeps of their hips. Both women worked their bodies to more perfectly align their drooling quims to let their camel toes hump and jam over their mate in rising desperate need. Arya settling down between Dany’s spread legs. The position allowing the young Stark girl to hump her pussy over her Queen’s drooling clamshell.

Arya wetly wrestled Dany’s tongue and jammed it down and rammed her long tongue down her woman’s throat. “Mmmgppfff mmppppfff uummppppfffff!” Dany gag chuffed into Arya’s devouring mouth. Arya slit her eyes open and smiled seeing Dany’s eyelids jerking her eyes rolling in her skull. She reveled in feeling Dany’s body spasming beneath hers as she supported her weight just enough to not put too much weight on her small boned lover. The Queen spreading her legs fully exposing her charms to so as to let her wolf take her fully. Dany’s submission to her made Arya feel so sexy and powerful.

They kissed heatedly with Arya now pulling her hands from underneath Dany. The two women had gotten their rut humping in sync. Arya ran her hands up and down Dany’s ribs and along the sides of Dany’s back with her fingers enjoying he skin contact pulling her lover up harder into her body. Her fingers massaging the firm muscles. She loved how Dany’s full tits mashed all over her engorged bulbs smothering them. Her nipples digging into Dany’s full nearly C cup tits. She kissed down Dany’s face and licked and nibbled on Dany’s ear making Dany whimper before she started to lick and nip the Queen’s throat.

All the while the two horny lovers gripped each other. The Queen had looped her arms over Arya’s muscled back and pulled her woman down harder into her submissive supine body. She humped up with her hips to roll and drag her aching drooling cunny up and over Arya’s down riding humping cunt. Their pussies flowing out snail snot letting mounds easily slide and jam over its mate. The two cunts basted in mingled flowing twat juice.

Dany was moaning like a Lysian whore turning Arya on no end. She nipped Dany’s throat and loved how the woman jammed her wet camel toe up into her wet humping cunt. Their humping becoming more desperate. Muscled stomachs flexing so both women could lift and grind sodden cunts over their mates. Their groins swirling in harder tight circles grinding cunnies over each. Arya now slamming her twat down into Dany’s twat and grinding down hard so her pussy worked up over the full length of Dany’s pussy grinding up over her clit and her lower groin. Then swirling her hips up and back instinctively to again surge forward and down to slam cunts into each other and once again sweep up Dany’s sloppy wet cunt. Arya loved the heat and wetness and how sticky their skin was getting as stomachs wallowed and jerked over the other.

She really wanted to mark Dany as her slut. She had dreamed of it—thinking of Dany submitting to her … being her complete slut in her bed … Queen out of it and whore in their bed Arya thought hotly. Arya would gladly be Dany’s love slut giving Dany every orifice she may desire freely and often. She wanted the same offered in return.

Arya nibbled on Dany’s throat afraid to mark her with her mouth but needing to so bad! She lifted her head slightly from Dany’s throat with her face still just above Dany’s neck. “Dany I want to mark you as my bitch. Is that right to——“
She felt Dany’s hand worm into her hair and claw in. Dany clenched and jerked Arya’s head to still her speech. She lifted Arya’s head to make hot eye contact with her teen lover.

“I love you Arya … in our bed the dragon will lie with the wolf and submit to her desires and needs … take me Arya … I am yours. I want—no—I need you to mark me as your bitch.” The Queen’s purple eyes pulsed with hot throbbing need. Her face sheened and now streaked with dribbles of sweat.

Arya felt fire surge through her veins with raw desire to take what was hers. She felt the Direwolf of her House’s heritage howl in her soul in power and lust. She loved the wanton whorish look in Dany’s hot throbbing eyes. Yes! She did want to submit to Arya! Arya felt elation running hot through her veins.

Arya was on fire and need. She would not be gentle marking her dragon as her slut. She growled moving her head down the short distance to Dany’s throat and locked her mouth on Dany’s throat and sucked a mouthful of sweet tender throat flesh deep into her mouth and viciously see-sawed her teeth on the pale flesh marking Dany as her slut. The tender flesh cruelly bruised and crushed between grinding teeth.

“UUNNGGHHHIIIEEEEEE! FFFFUUCCCKKKKKK! Yes yes oh gods yeeessssssssssss!” the Queen shrieked as raw pleasure hammered her near senseless with pleasure. Her body spasm rigid in raw honeyfire sweeping through her veins scalding her in primal fuck bliss. Arya now lathed the bruised flesh with her tongue. Dany mewled with pleasure. “Ooohhh Arya I love you so much … I give myself to you totally baby!” she softly whimpered.

Arya’s earlier awkwardness was gone. She smiled as she brought their mouths together again and slithered her tongue deep into Dany’s mouth and their tongues again wetly slithered and dueled deep in Dany’s mouth. She stroked her dragon’s cheeks, gums and teeth while her lover whimpered and wallowed her naked body down into Arya’s strong warrior body. Their tits mashed with Arya’s plum nipples digging and jamming down into Dany’s firm breast filling both tits with hot pulses of pleasure.

Arya was lifting her hips higher getting into the fuck rut. She had established a hard thrusting groove jamming her trim into and over Dany’s swollen runny cunt. The Queen mewling as Arya rode her like the total slut she was. Her fingers grasping Arya’s back with her clipped nails digging into and dragging over Arya’s back. Arya feeling those nails raking her back had Arya in a frenzy now jamming her pussy down into her sweet fucking slut. Arya felt fire in her veins as she took her Dragon. Sweat dripped off her face and down off her back and along her ribs to drip off onto Dany and the bed.

“I am your Direwolf, Daenerys Tragaryen” she softly husked down to Dany. Dany looked up at her with her lilac orbs pulsing with hot passion. “I will feast on your body … I will consume you and take what I need and deserve” Arya husked down to her lover.

“Uummmggeeegee!!!” Dany whimpered. “Yes baby yes! I need you to take me … no one has had the strength and passion to tame me … only you Arya only you can truly claim the dragon only you!”

Arya was in the rut now. She could hear her pussy hitting Dany’s slurping trim. Each jamming thrust hitting Dany’s now sloshing trim rising up to orgasm. Arya feeling her woman’s cunt flood with fuck juice inspired Arya to lift her hips higher and slam down harder with her groin pounding her snatch into and over Dany’s swollen cum slavered cunt.

She felt Dany’s legs come up to clasp her hips while the Queen’s head lifted from the bed and jammed her forehead into the crook of Arya’s neck. The Queen held her body close to Arya as the teenager slammed her cunt down into and over the Queen’s now wildly spasm cunt. "Oh gods, yes yeessssssss unnggh hhnnnggg! Ohnnng gods ... yessss!!" Dany gurgled her body shuddering and jolting as ecstasy multiplied deep in her belly and now clenching her watery spasming fuck hole. “Huunnggg uunggg uuhhnn—ooohhhhh fuuuuuccckk! Aarrnggg oohhh shit yeah! Fuck me baby fuck me!” Dany chuffed to her lover.

Arya slammed fucked Dany with her snatch hard as she arched her body to more forcefully pound her pussy into Dany’s. Dany’s head kept jamming Arya’s neck. Arya felt Dany pulling her body closer to hers. The Queen’s body constantly jerking and spasming beneath Arya now. Dany locked her ankles over Arya’s back her legs kicking as she both opened her pussy to Arya’s down slamming cunt and lifting her sodden trim up to Arya’s hard tribbing couchie.

Dany was chuffling hard now her face jamming the crook of Arya’s neck.

Arya gripped the back of Dany’s head threading her fingers into Dany’s long white locks. She jerked Dany’s head back from her neck with a sharp back jerk. Dany’s eyes were wide at the show of dominance. Arya needed to see her woman’s face when she made her cum hard. Arya was swirling her hips up and back and then jerking down and forward with tight swirls of her hips. Their cunts slamming into each other with Arya’s trim riding over and grinding Dany’s sodden cunt with hard crushing sweeps of Arya’s cunt down into Dany’s cunt.

Arya watched Dany’s head jerk in her tight grip in Dany’s hair. The Queen’s jerking and her eyes open but unseeing as her body skyrocketed up the slopes of orgasm. The Queen’s face froze up and then her face shattered as her womb exploded deep in her belly.

“AAARRGGGHIIHHHHAAAATTTAATTTEEEAAANNN! AAARRRUUUUNNGGGGGMGGGG! UUNNGGGGNNNNNNNNN!” the white haired queen screamed her cries of pure joy and love filling the room. Her body flipped and jackknifed violently up into Arya’s down pressing humping body. Dany’s face slashing as her eyes half rolled back and her eyelids fluttered softly. Her hands gripping Arya’s back with clawed fingers spasically. The Queen’s body slapping up into Arya’s down surging body. The two young women surged and pressed into each other as they fucked sweetly with intense surging bodies into each other. “Anngghiiiiiiieee! Anngghhiiiiiieeee! Mmmnnngggiiiiieeeeee!” Dany shrieked out over and over in shattering bliss. Her orgasm finally started to abet.

Arya reveled in seeing her woman cum so hard from her loving ministrations. Dany’s eyes were unfocused and her breathing ragged and deep. Sweat dripped off Dany’s features as her throat cowed out soft mewls. Arya stilled her hips and rested her swollen puss down into Dany’s wet swollen trim and let her pussies baste in sweet fuck juice. Arya looked down at the Queen stunned from her womb rending orgasm.

“Oohhhhhhh Arya … so good so fucking good baby … unngggggg hluunnggg … yessssssssss— aaauugggggg!” Dany gurgled as strong aftershocks gripped and shook her sweaty body.

Arya smiled down at Dany. This was but the start Arya thought to herself. She bent her head down and found Dany’s mouth and kissed her slut deeply. Dany chuffed into her mouth. For several minutes they kissed with languid tongues wrestling from mouth to mouth. Arya loved the feel of Dany’s sweaty body all pressed against her body beneath her.

Arya needed more. “I am going to suck you off now Dany” she softly husked down to Dany. “I need to have you come in my mouth Dany” Arya softly told her woman.

“Oooooohhhhhhhhhhh!!” Dany mewled.
Arya smiled and moved her body down. Her pussy missed its intimate kiss with Dany’s pussy but she had work to do Arya thought to herself with a smirk. Arya’s hands now roughly throttled Dany’s tits and moved her head down. She gave long sucks on the rigid stubby thick nipples. The teen moving her head right and left sucking voraciously on sweet rigid nips. Her lips gliding over the steeples of Dany’s areolas. Arya’s head pulled up with her vacuum suck tenting her slut’s areolas with her loving sucks. She tented Dany’s areolas making her keen her face twisted in primal fucking pleasure. Her nipples pulsing arcs straight to her rigid throbbing clit. A clit recovered and hungry for more pleasure. Dany whimpered as she humped her wet cunt into Arya’s lower stomach sliming it with love snot.

Dany jammed her swollen camel toe urgently into Arya’s muscled stomach. Arya felt her eyelids flutter with both ramming her tongue down Dany’s throat with spearing thrusts of her tongue and feeling Dany’s cunt sliming her stomach with hot pussy juice that was soaking her belly in flowing cum. She could feel their bellies sticking together with Dany’s cum.

Arya stretched out to kiss Dany deeply for another minute as the Queen mewled and moaned. Arya pulled her tongue out of Dany’s mouth and kissed up her cheek to Dany’s ear and sucked in an earlobe and nibbled on it. She felt Dany jam her cunt harder into her stomach and swish it around. Arya felt more cum soak her belly. Arya breathed into Dany ear with hot air.

“Uumnnnggg!” Dany cried out in pleasure. Arya drilled her tongue into Dany’s ear and tongue fucked her ear softly. Dany started crying out and wallowing all over Arya. Arya encased her love in her strong arms holding her wiggling lover close. Arya breathed in her ear again and then nibbled her earlobe before tongue fucking her ear again. She loved the constant mewling and humping from Dany nutting on her stomach. Gods Arya thought to herself. Dany is such a slut!

Arya kissed down Dany’s throat again and licked it sensually before lipping it. Dany humped harder still into her stomach telling Arya what to do. “OOOWWWGGGGGG!” Dany screamed with Arya again sucking her throat into her mouth and rolling her tender throat through her gnawing teeth. Dany spasm and moaned so deep in her chest. Arya kissed all over Dany’s gasping throat loving the spasms underneath her lips. She kissed up Dany’s throat and over her chin to again mated mouths tight. Tongues finding each other and wetly wrestling in hot love.

