The Jinn had seen more of its brethren disappear after becoming infatuated with humans. The Jinn felt the blood pumping in the humans fast beating hearts and the hot cocktail of enzymes, hormones and endocrine chemicals in their blood. The excitement of the fighting humans could not but help capture the Jinn’s total focus. It tried to refuse the siren call but it was so hard.

A man fell into the water bleeding profusely. His human’s life blood escaped his body through multiple puncture wounds.

The blood in the water mushroomed out from it’s source in a red cloud that already coagulated in the water. The blood making red swirls in the water some darker than others twisting in on themselves while the lighter colored ones flowed off in the currents. The cloud of blood and death ever expanding in the brackish swirling currents. The Jinn could feel the wrongness of this man’s death. This death was not part of the cycle of life. The very wrongness of the man’s death was what made it so shocking and yet vitalizing to the Jinn. It was unnatural. It was deadly. It was unholy. It was wrong on every conceivable level of existence. It was so wrong and yet men embraced this need for death.

The Jinn felt elation and agitation in the man’s dissipated blood. The blood was starting too touch it! The Jinn felt wild elation and violence coursing through its essence. It fled in a panic.

20 years ago

The Jinn flowed over the Red Mountains. It had watched a golden eagle circling in the sky and then diving down and down to pounce upon a hare that at the last moment sensed its danger and jerked to the right and then shot off at another angle. The eagle’s talons striking only earth. The Jinn had felt the eagle’s animalistic frustration as it rose back up into the sky.

The Jinn flowed along the thermals riding the currents to the east. It saw in the distant a manmade edifice of stone rising high in the air. The currents took the Jinn to the tower in the sky.

As the Jinn closed in on the edifice, it saw that humans were in front of it. They were fighting! The Jinn tried to resist but it willed its essence down towards the ground. More and more of late the Jinn had become infatuated with the passions of these violent humans. The sounds of metal colliding with metal filled the air. Bright glints of sunlight off the metal men wore dazzled in bright flashes. All the emotions of fear, rage, hope, duty and jealousy thick in the air. The Jinn tried to resist but he had become attracted to the potent elixir of these emotions over the last two centuries. The touch of the dying man’s blood in the marsh that day had altered the Jinn in ways it could not undo.

The Jinn had over the recent decades become more and more attracted to the violence of man. Nature provided sensations and insights but nature could not compare to the violent cocktail of emotions and sensations of man. Man’s avarice and greed generated emotions and sensations that dwarfed anything that nature could produce.

The Jinn knew it should flee but it could not. The emotions coming up from the men were so powerful! The waves of spiritual energy hitting the Jinn like the waves of a tsunami. Forces it could not really understand slammed into the incorporeal essence of the Jinn. He understood why his lost brothers had floundered. The emotions slamming into the Jinn as his essence floated among the combatants unseen and unfelt was overpowering. He could not flee. He had become addicted to the rush of sensations washing over him.

Ten men were fighting in a wild melee of colliding metal and metal bouncing and sliding off metal. Men stumbled and righted themselves. Curses and shouts filled the air, but, it was the emotions that intoxicated the Jinn. The emotions brought into such sharp focus by the thought of death just one slash or thrust of the sword away from each person fighting for survival.

Fear smashed into its being. This emotion being the most predominate and powerful one though other emotions of passion also careened into the Jinn as it floated among the combatants. His being large enough to take in all the fighters as they tried to kill each other. Elation and anger hit the Jinn like punches. Determination and purpose washed over the Jinn. Agonizing pain robbed it of its senses as bodies were cruelly hacked and pierced.

Death in nature had a cleanness to it. The animals involved felt no true emotion beyond the striving for life and raw fear. Here those emotions were only the beginning of emotions put out by these fighting humans. It was all the other emotions mixed into the fight for life that intoxicated and made the Jinn drunk on the fast flowing rivers of emotions flowing in all directions. The violence and raw emotions would have suffocated the Jinn if it did not find them so exhilarating and beautiful to feel.

The screams of the dying stunned the Jinn. This went on for what seemed an eternity. The emotions ebbing and surging with the fight.

Then the smell of blood sent the Jinn into a frenzy. It tried to resist the siren call but there was too much. Hot blood was everywhere. The blood filled with chemicals and emotions of the dying men. The Jinn instinctively knew it was the blood that had snared his fallen brothers. More men fell until only two were left standing. The life in the last two fallen men on the ground left them as blood poured out their mangled bodies.

The Jinn vaguely sensed one man walk off towards the manmade tower. The Jinn did not care as overwhelmed by the intoxicating emotions it had absorbed dove into the dead men and the blood soaked Earth.
Emotions and senses like its kind had never known smashed into the Jinn. It saw with eyes it never had, memories it never experienced. It heard sounds like it had never heard as he relived the past of each of the dead men. The Jinn felt the emotions and memories of each fallen man before the man’s mind’s synapsis totally failed and their souls fled the hacked and pierced bodies. The Jinn reeled from corpse to corpse and back experiencing everything in that man’s just fled life.

The Jinn reveled in how stark their vision was and yet how limited. It basked in the warmth on skin it never had. The Jinn missed the feel of energy form the sun infusing its very molecules. It saw light from a unique perspective. The Jinn missed the wide panoramic view it had of the Earth in his native form. The Jinn felt confusion as a linear corporal view of life warred with his non corporal eternal view of the world and the life therein.

It truly felt for the first time the fear, anger, pain it had only felt viscerally of these humans. Now it felt these things intimately. These emotions were now in the core of his being. He had been forever changed and would never again ride the currents of the world. He would never again be able to be part of nature or his fellow Jinn. He had become garroted by limitations that his kind should never experience.

It now understood the emotions of jealousy, hatred, love, passion for a cause, lust, craving for what it could never have.

In an instant it knew all these things and so much more.

The Jinn reeled into an insentient state.

When the Jinn rose groggily back to sentience it looked around. The two surviving men were riding off into the distance at speed on their horses.

The Jinn could still feel the pulse of life from within the tower however faint it might be. The Jinn rose up and passed through the stone walls. It had not lost that ability yet. He had been changed and was changing more. He now needed a host to survive. He could no longer live as before. He looked down upon the woman lying in a pool of blood and covered in blue rose petals. The woman barely clung to life.

Only to his still sharpened senses could he see the faint reedy pulse of life stubbornly beating through her failing body.

The bed and the body was soaked in blood. The Jinn did not even try to halt itself as it flowed onto the bed, over the dying body and into the human drinking the blood that liberally soaked the environs.

More emotions surged into the Jinn. It felt the elation of giving birth and the fear of approaching death. The Jinn felt the pulse of hot passion and the warm touch of affection. The Jinn felt the concept of honor breed deep into the body it flowed into.

The Jinn was stunned with the feel of orgasm and the shock of feeling one’s life slip away. The Jinn saw the image of new life that had sprung from this body and this life given to a man that looked much like this woman.

Words of promises and love were exchanged. The Jinn felt the afterimages of the love the man felt for this woman and the grief he felt when the woman died to his senses.

Only she had not died. She had slipped to the very door of death but had not crossed over. The departed man’s limited senses could not see what the Jinn was still able to perceive.
The Jinn felt the binding between the body of this human female and its own essence start. It did not even try to flee. It was his fate to bind with this woman. He accepted his fate and mourned the passing of his past self.

Early in the evening the woman awoke. The sun was just setting. Her whole body ached and she felt strange. She looked down at her now naked body and gasped. She could not tell she had ever been pregnant.

She sat up and spread her legs. Her vagina had been torn asunder with the birth of her son but it seemed unmarred and she did not feel the horrible pain in her lower abdomen.

She had been weak as a kitten but now felt alive with strength and vitality. It was dark in the room but she easily saw all the furniture and blood stained sheets and quilts haphazardly strewn about.

The woman stood up and walked to the window. She saw the bodies of men outside. She ran down the tower and out to the dead men. She recognized the bodies of her guard Ser Arthur Dayne, Ser Oswell Whent, and Ser Gerold Hightower. Of the other men she recognized Martyn Cassel and Ethan Glover.

She knew from her brother that her love was dead. She had nothing left here. What had seemed important now had no hold on her. Her son and her brother were safe. Eddard would protect her son. She turned away. She spied the mountains off in the distance. She started to walk. Her steps steady. She felt exhilarated. Her pace increased to a fast loop that ate up the leagues. She did not tire as she ran toward the peaks slowing growing larger.

She reached the base of the mountains. Her body instinctively knew the path higher and began her climb. Her strength and new insights allowed her to easily climb the defiles and move over boulder strewn paths. She climbed higher into the mountains. The rocky paths and sharp edges of stone were no barrier to her now. Her hands and feet easily found purchase and held on tight. The sharp stone edges did not cut her flesh. She easily pulled herself higher into the mountains and did not tire.

She moved upwards into the mountains for several hours wondering what was to become of her. What course should she take? She felt no connection to her past. She looked around at this land. She climbed higher still into the mountains. She spotted a perch and sat down overlooking a high mountain glade. There she sat down to reflect this new thing she had become. She was once two but now was one.

The sky was dark now and she looked up at the stars glittering up in the sky. She saw many more stars in the heavens than she had ever before. The Jinn within her making her senses much sharper than before. The warriors girdle in the sky seemed to literally shimmer now.

She reflected on the many memories flowing through her consciousness. She had memories of playing in the snow as a child. She remembered two male big horn sheep smashing their horns into each other in the rut. She remembered being scared in the crypts as her brothers laughed and teased her. A smile crossed her face when she turned the tables on her brothers. She remembered the run of shad up the river in a frenzy of instinctual need to mate and spawn.

The woman felt the elation of receiving blue roses at a tourney. The woman felt the pulse of a flash flood careening down a high mountain valley. She felt the impact of water from boulder to boulder and the feel of dead wood and uprooted bushes flinging down the blind valley. She longed for her lover’s touch.

The woman felt the birth of her son and she felt the dying of an ibex with its jugular bitten and the flow of blood stopped by a shadowcat.
The woman reflected on these myriad of thoughts and emotions for several hours. She instinctively knew she was not as before. Her mind was coming to grips with the two sets of memories that were trying to coalesce into a whole new viewpoint. What once was two was now becoming one.

Then she felt an unease fill her body. A burning was building in her bones and her skin felt like it was alive with crawling ants. Her stomach rebelled. Her blood was on fire. Her very joints screamed in burning agony.

The woman jumped up and then doubled over while agonizing pain flooded her body. She was on fire. Every pore of body shrieked with agony. Her head tilted back and she screamed her agony to the world. Her screams echoed by the mountains.

As she looked on the full moon started to crest over the horizon of the plains before the mountains. The woman’s brain exploded into a frenzy of raw animal instinct and fire.

The woman threw her head back and screamed at the moon in primal need. He bones snapped in the middle and grew as her limbs stretched and digits elongated. Her fingers and toes snapped and then surged out with talons forming. The bones in her torso and back changed shape and elongated. The sounds of bones snapping shockingly loud in the nighttime desert air.

She looked at her limbs as fur sprouted out and multiplied in an orgy of growth. Her skin felt the agony of hair growth where no hair had ever been. She felt her skull crack and her face form a snot as her teeth erupted in their sockets and rapidly grew and drawled into fangs. Her ears migrated up her skull and formed into triangles. Her shoulders drifted in and a haunch formed on her back as her shoulder girdle reformed.

The woman’s body snapped and reshaped as first screams filled the air that slowly changed to howls of pain and rage. Finally, the transformation was complete.

A dark brown were-direwolf stood on its hind legs and howled to the moon.

AAARRRWWOOOOOOOOOOOO! AARRWWOOOOOOOOOOO!

Its transformation was complete.

The present

The Jinn moved out from her cave. It was the dark of the moon but it no longer matter. The were-direwolf had full control of its body and mind now. The were-direwolf looped on all fours enjoying the feel of the air flowing over its fur. The creature felt elation at her long looping gait. Her form easily eating the leagues as she ran through her territory.

It had not always been thus. In the beginning she had fought with the primal nature of her second self. She had felt the Jinn reveling in the raw untrammeled emotions. It tried to break her human control and spirit. It had failed. She was Lyanna Stark. Her iron will was ascendant and it was she who won the battle of wills for control of her body.

Lyanna leapt up onto a thirty foot tall boulder. She looked around down onto the plain before her. She had a large territory she patrolled. She went to a small cactus and squatted down beside it marking her territory. She did not want any other Jinn in her territory. She moved forward slightly and scratched dirt to spread her mark on the ground.

The Jinn lopped forward. She went onto the desert plain. She generally avoided humans. She had no real purpose with them anymore.
She only interacted when she felt one of her kind behaving badly in or near her territory or when she came upon men being their evil vile selves.

She had been on the trail of innocents for two days now. They needed her protection. Other less savory men had also found their spore. It was a small family that was moving from a dried up well to a new location. She had felt the bandits tracking them. Lyanna increased her speed. The miscreants were nearing ready to attack. She saw the small fire of the family and the man and wife huddled with two small children beneath their oxen drawn cart.

She saw the four men preparing to attack and kill the man and rape the woman and take the children to put into servitude. She could easily read their evil emotions and the flow of particles off their bodies that shimmered in her heat sight. Her snout told her of their evil intent. Their bodies literally rippled with their vileness.

They never heard her approach as she leapt down on them in their hiding place. Their screams and flailing bodies had been most pleasing to feel and hear as she tore them limb from limb quickly and efficiently.

She drank their blood and then ran off. The humans she saved huddling beneath their cart fearing that they would be next. She had no concern for them now that she had saved them. She ran off to further patrol her territory.

Lyanna had learned full control. It had taken years. The first time she killed a vile man raping a woman she had nearly torn the woman’s throat out too.

The emotions and pheromones of fright and lust blinding to her Jinn self. That wash of emotions and desires had almost overwhelmed her but she had exerted her iron will. A Stark does not harm the innocent. She would never forget her true self no matter what she may become. She would always be Lyanna Stark underneath her fur and sinew.

She had slowly learned to control he baser instincts of her Jinn self. The Jinn was not evil it just did not know how to understand or control the mad rush of emotions and feelings that extreme human actions and reactions caused. It was easy to lose oneself to them.

The were-hyena had been such a case. That Jinn reveled in the uncontrolled emotions of an obviously stunted man or maybe woman. With hyenas it was so hard to tell. She had stumbled upon its scent and into a battle. The battle had been of no concern to her. She cared not for the petty battles of men now. Only her fight with her brethren had mattered to Lyanna. The Were-Hyena had given into its baser instincts. The human it had bound itself with was a weak and a cruel thing Lyanna felt in her snout when she whiffed its scent.

She would right the causes on an individual basis. She had heard it called the Game of Thrones this play of the grand forces of man. Such things were nothing to her. They had not been in her human life and they were definitely not so in her Were life.

Lyanna Stark had no use for such trivial human emotions. She had a territory to protect and humans within her sphere she would protect but no more. She had chased the were-hyena two days out of her territory before she gave up the chase. She had made her statement.

Still seeing all those humans had awakened something within her. She knew her mate had been killed. But sometimes, she still wondered about Eddard and the son she had given up.

What had become of them?
Back in human form and in her cave Lyanna cooked a meal of tubers and a spawning trout from the river. She ate her meal and leaned back against the wall on her furs.

Lyanna snuggled into her furs. She was complete and content in her life. She was one with her environs and loved roaming in her preserve. She yawned. She wondered what her future would bring.

She had a sense that the times were changing. Something was coming; a destiny unlooked or planed for. In her mind she saw the images of lions. One image stood out above the others. A mighty golden female lion with a snake as a mate. Lyanna shook her head. The Lioness was most beautiful and she felt an attraction to his mighty lioness. Strange. She was not attracted to her own sex. Her visions were like prophecies. Blurry and misleading to be sure. She wondered on that. She harrumphed. She would meet this new future when it arrived. Lyanna Stark went to sleep peacefully.

Unholy Pact

The slow clop of iron shod feet hitting the paving stones lulled Archmaester Castor into a drowsy state. The midday sun was beating down on his neck. It may be winter officially but in Oldtown the weather generally was still warm. The warm waters of the Sunset Sea filled Whispering Bay whose waters warmed the old City like a mother’s embrace.

Castor looked at the old buildings that had for the most part been here for well over two thousand years. Major fires had raced through Oldtown during a major drought that had burned down many of the warrens. Even the Citadel had received some damage.

The Archmaester looked at the buildings that were close set to the roads except for the major thoroughfare like the one he was traveling down. Main Street. What a boring name the Maester thought to himself. The wagon moved off the rough paving stones to the large well fitted tiles of the Bedouin quarter. The area settled eight hundred years ago by Bedouins fleeing the persecution of the Martells. The predominate family of Dorne pushing into the eastern high plateaus before the Fire Mountains named for the iron content in the rock that made them glow hot red when the summer setting sun shone on the rocks.

The Mountains located between Skyreach and Hellholt. Skyreach fed by artesian wells and Hellhot fed by the River Brimstone. The Bedouins thrived in the dry headlands before the mountains living off the milk of their camels and the wells they guarded closely. They had waged a hotly contested war with the Martells over the land. Many refugees had fled the conflict and settled in Oldtown and never returned when the Martells had left the land a generation later with their tails between their legs.

The Bedouins waging constant insurgency. They did not fight the Martell’s directly but instead attacked in small numbers unlooked for. The desert dwellers killing in small numbers. Numbers that had individually been small but added together had bled the House of Martell dry. The constant deaths not worth the effort to control a land not really worth it to begin with.

The Archmaester contemplated the follies of the Major Houses.

The carriage went from its jarring motion to a smooth gliding of the seat with the precisely fitted tiles. Castor looked down as his want to look at the complicated tile patterns. He saw in this section diamonds in diagonal rows going from right to left. The diamond shapes made of purple and blue rectangle stones that were of two sizes. The larger size stone at the apex of each diamond. Inside the outline was a layer of orange and beige tiles with each center with blue vertical horizontal tiles surrounding a black center tile. All to give the impression of flowers.

It was quite lovely. The Archmaester asked the carriage driver to halt. To his right were three story structures with arched and horizontal door portals with transom windows above them of various number of panes. The buildings covered with stucco and painted beige with one a dull yellow. Three of the windows on the second floor of two of the buildings had balconies with wrought iron railings. Further down where the road started to bend an arch had been built as an entryway to the building at that location. The arches looked like traditional Bedouin entryway to their sacred temples.

On the other side of the street were covered sidewalks that had food stalls and several outdoor barbeque and shish kabob vendors. There were fewer doorway and windows on this side of the street since this was businesses like the restaurants he was currently beside. A man came out to the carriage.

Castor asked for a spear of shish kabob. This vendor used tender goat meat and was most tasty. He handed down an eight of a silver stag he had had cut to make such purchases. He knew the vendor would collect all the cutup silver coin bits and when he had enough he would make another spoon, fork or knife of silver. The poorer residents building and saving their wealth thus. Some even saved enough silver if successful enough to make urns and pitchers. The then heirlooms passed down to the next generation. Thus, their wealth slowly accumulated.

After a few minutes the man returned with Castor’s purchase. The Archmaester pulled off several pieces of sweet goat meat and a mushroom cap and enjoyed the meal as the carriage proceeded apace down the lane. He looked down smiling at the new tiled image he was traveling over. The colors pleasing to the eye. He was returning from a meeting beneath the base of the Hightower. The ancient seat of House Hightower, one of the most powerful families of the Reach. The castle and lighthouse located atop Battle Island, where the Honeywine widens into the Whispering Sound.

The city had grown out from around the old venerable castle and lighthouse. He glanced back at the massive stepped tower with its beacon on top to guide ships into port. It was the tallest structure in the Seven Kingdoms even topping the height of the seven-hundred-foot Wall. The people of Oldtown used its shadow to tell the time of the day.

The Archmaester looked forward over the front of the carriage as it travelled down this main lane that would take him to his home in the Citadel. He was returning from a meeting with emissaries from the Oligarch (slavers bay), The Landless Lords – Pentos and disputed lands along the shore and step stones – pirates. He had spoken to a spokesperson from the Iron Bank. They were the intermediaries to the House of Black and White.

The world had become an unsettled place. Of course the world had wars but Daenerys Targaryen had changed everything with her conquests. She had stormed across Essos from Qarth to the Narrow Sea. Unlike past rulers who merely fought and killed and did not change the system the Targaryen had obliterated the old world order. The Slave Trade was simply no more. Sure there was vestiges and small outposts that still existed but they were not waiting to metastasis. No they merely hoped to survive. They lived in dread and fear of her return to finish what she had started.

She had then without a single battle conquered Westeros. Now she was racing North to confront what his brothers said was fables and myths. He knew better. He and his two true brothers knew the truth. The Ice King cometh and if the white haired Queen did not slay him life in Westeros and probably the rest of the world would end.

She had proven herself to be a mighty warrior and devastating tactician. She had joined forces with Eddard Stark. Both were leaders the land Westeros had never seen. They were simply beyond compare when it came to the Game of Thrones. Marry that with an adept grasp of field combat maneuvers you had the recipe for leaders that none could stand against. The Archmaester hoped they had what was needed to defeat the Ice King.

He and his two true brothers in spirit would have to wait to deal with them. If they lost it did not matter really. Eventually, all would be reduced to an everlasting frozen dark. His brothers in the Citadel and the citizens of Westeros lived in bliss. He was resigned that what would be would be. The Citadel was powerless against such an arcane foe that the Queen and the Warden of the North were rushing to confront.

They may be enemies to his grand designs but the Archmaester could not help but be impressed and maybe even enamored a little seeing such bravery. Daenerys Targaryen and Eddard Stark did not hesitate to throw themselves into the breech of Westeros’s need.

He contemplated all this while he ate. His mouth savored tasty pepper and another slice of goat.

He felt life had to win out over death. It had too or what was the meaning of that life. Thus, he had to plan on for what would come after the defeat of the Ice King.

Daenerys Targaryen had done a great service to the world he supposed in destroying the slave trade. But in doing so she was disrupting all that had existed in equilibrium for over five thousand years. Now all was in flux and major powers were vying to fill the vacuum the Pale Queen had created. Powers that were ecumenical to the order that the Maesters supported. The Citadel wanted placid order that worked through the major Lords of Westeros to achieve and maintain their goals for the continent.

The Maesters through their influences over their Lords could control their actions and responses to the changing world. The Citadel could make peace with them he supposed but these new forces being birthed had aspirations that the Maesters might not be able to ameliorate or control if they reached the shores of Westeros.

Now the Queen was unleashing changes in Westeros and bringing forth magic that the Maesters had been sure was disappearing for good. Of course the Troika used magic in its work but it was only to use the reprehensible tools to ensure their eventual disappearance.

The Valyrian’s dragons were powerful but not as powerful as the populace assumed. The Maesters had removed them once and they would do so again. They were developing a new means to that end. If that was blocked they would use their service to the Queen to get in close and do their work slowly but inevitably lead to the dragons’ demise.

Most thought dragons could produce fire in unlimited supply but that was a misnomer. Their fire was deadly but it was limited. Much of their damage was with their sheer size and bulk used to devastating effect. In the ruin of Harrenhal it was the siege of a week that had weakened the walls and created cave ins that allowed the dragon fire to get inside to the combustibles. The dragons had fired off fast and furious to begin with to ignite the blaze but soon were exhausted and only worked to keep the fire hot with occasional bursts of added dragon fire.

They had done autopsies on several dragons and determined that much of the fires creation was by chemical interactions that ceased when they died. Once dead they could no longer produce fire. Like the rest of life, the dragon’s fire was based on chemical reactions.

The dragons they could handle but now Daenerys Targaryen had brought to the world of Westeros strange creatures called Ur-viles and Waynhim that were not even close to human Maester Luwin.
reported. The creatures did not even have eyes! The creatures capable of great potent magic. Their brother had come into contact with horses with human intellect and met Giants who were twelve to fourteen feet tall. There were Haruchai who could fight one and half ton bulls to a standstill.

Maester Luwin instead of being appalled was enamored with these new denizens to Westeros. He had met two ShadowBender witches and had come to admire them and was partitioning the Citadel to form alliance with the vile whores. Yes, the Valyrian was corrupting the very fabric of Westeros. She was bringing back magic and seducing all to not only accepting it but longing for it.

This could not be allowed to continue. Daenerys was some kind of catalyst that was bringing great magical might to life. It was only with her rising from the Red Wastes that magic seemed to be surging from out of the shadows. They were striving for the proverbial light. Threats that made the Pale Queen pail to insignificance.

He pulled off another two mushrooms and two slices of grease dripping goat. He was eating this perusing his surrounding and pondering the rising threats. Ancient magic that only their oldest manuscripts spoke of were rising again. As bad as the magic the Targaryen was unleashing, as insidious if not more so, were the Queen’s evil thoughts on the place of women. The Queen did not accept the subservience of women. She dared think that they could lead! The mere thought made the Maester shudder in disgust at the unnatural thought.

It had been so since the dawn of time that women were the weaker sex and needed to be guided by man. Not so for this woman. She was a proven leader that was well and truly ferocious on the battlefield. She was a mutant. The problem was she was not satisfied with being a one off. She had decreed that from her reign forward the lay of Westeros would be equal primogeniture. That was detestable enough but it had been reported across Essos that the Valyrian female was barren.

That was no longer the case. Maester Luwin reported that a daughter was indeed in the queen’s life. She was adopted but she was being raised as Daenerys child. Thus, she would arise to the Iron Throne in time.

That could not be allowed. Women could not come to expect to lead. Women were born incapable of it. Nature bore that out. He chose to forget the examples of the hyena and the great raptor birds.

Dorne had always had their own perverted ways but the Maesters had worked hard to keep that poison contained in that dry dusty land. Not only did Dorne practice equal primogeniture they allowed the practices of homosexuality to run rampant in that land. Again, if it was contained to Dorne then the Citadel and the Septons could tolerate that. The Citadel had to for one thousand years tolerated Dorne.

Dorne had proven to be unconquerable both physically and spiritually.

Now, this Daenerys Targaryen was tearing that fabric of society asunder across Westeros. She had declared she was going to marry Arya Stark. Worse yet, Eddard fully supported this Maester Luwin reported. Not only that but the Maester of Winterfell reported that Sansa Stark was to wed Margaery Tyrell again with Eddard’s full support. As of yet, word had not spread. That spread must be stopped at any cost. It was a contagion that seemed to be capable of spreading fast. It was too dangerous. It must be exterminated with extreme prejudice.

The Maester of Winterfell had been corrupted as it well it seemed. He fully supported the unions. What had gotten into Luwin. He knew the precepts of his order! He would have to be replaced at great haste. He would be brought back to the Citadel. A grim line formed on the Archmaester’s face. He knew what must be done with the heretical Maester.
The Archmaester shook his head negatively. The Pale Queen had sent Cersei into exile in Dorne and now she had married Obara Sand and taken her last name. The illness was spreading. All the most eligible High Princesses had turned into homosexuals. Not only that but some kind of Hen Coop of Margaery’s handmaidens were copulating with the females of the Red Keep in wild orgies. The women of King’s Landing flocking to their bed to copulate in nightly orgies of female homosexuality. The vision in his mind filled Castor with anger. There seemed to be no end to the disease. The Archmaester blanched contemplating it all.

On top of this, a threat that made those pale had appeared when the Pale Queen had appeared on the beach of Dorne. The Green Scourge had appeared in their land. The Troika and their confidant minions had been spying on the Queen using Dragon Glass since her arrival. They knew of her magical leanings so had their Dragon Pupils always in hand or near. The magical constructs of old Valyria. They had noticed almost immediately a green glow that came and went in the trapezchedron shaped crystals that had come from an old holdfast discovered in Volantis two hundred and thirty years back.

The crystals that fit in your palm had been designed to let the user know of magical might and threats that were near. The crystals also gave one the ability to use magic while using the Dragon Glass to feel the magic of those you observed. You could see and hear what the ones being observed heard and saw. The Dragon Pupils glowed hotter the closer the magic came to the person palming the crystal. It had the ability to ward and shield one from magic. The crystals created to be a shield of magic to resist other magic. The crystals dampened and suppressed magic.

The Troika had learned how to use the Dragon Pupils to ward themselves from magic and prevent any with skills of Dragon Glass to spy on them. Or so they had thought. This entity that caused a green glow in their Dragon Pupils seemed to come and go and did not come near to Oldtown to begin with. Then the Troika had learned the meaning of terror.

Six months ago near the midnight hour their dragon pupils had suddenly glowed direly hot. The crystals going from a soft pink color to blazing green suns that were so bright they were painful to gaze upon. Fortunately, Bryce their leader and Castor himself had not been holding their Dragon Pupils but laying on their work desks as they slept.

Now so for Archmaester Vaelyn Castor reflected. He had been studying with his crystal beside him. When it blazed up he instinctively gripped it to have its protection in hand. His hand immediately dropped the crystal with its green blazing heat. In that instant touch he suffered second degree burns over his hand with two spots on his palm third degree burns. He had recovered mostly but he would never have full use of that hand again. He definitely earned his name “Vinegar Vaelyn” his acid tongue in full force since that event.

The force had been very close they deemed to flare their crystals so bright and hot.

The Troika had three supporters that followed their lead. One was Maester Asten who was stationed at Honeyholt. He was the most accomplished with the Dragon Glass. They had tasked him to track and see if he could ‘see’ this Green force. Thrice more the Dragon Pupils had burned green hot. The Troika members had wrapped the crystals in Dragon Scales that absorbed heat. The crystals when they flared bright green were still too hot to be held but they did not burn at a mere touch. Whatever it was it was in Oldtown or maybe even in the Citadel when the crystals glowed so hot and green was dire.

Two weeks ago disaster had struck again. Maester Asten reported afterwards he had spied her at Winterfell. He had found her more by luck than any skill. She was standing on the Great Keep atop the dragon Drogon. The dragon did not sense the small woman standing on its back as it dozed.
She was staring down at the ground intently. There was the Queen and her entourage on the grounds. It was them this small woman was looking at.

Master Asten reported that she was small and wore a bright green tunic that flapped in the strong cold winds that did not seem to touch her. For a minute Asten had observed the woman. Then she had turned her head to look him in the eyes. He became frozen. She slowly removed her cowl. She had elven ears and eyebrows with long bright green hair that matched her large lidless green eyes that caught Asten’s gaze and held him.

Her head had tilted right and left regarding him. Then their Maester reported green beams seemed to shoot out her eyes. The result had been horrible. Somehow she had travelled her energies down the Dragon Glass connection and burned his eyes out. The man’s eyes incinerated with scar tissue sealing the orbits shut. Their compatriot blinded permanently. That was when they named this woman the Green Scourge.

Her power seemed unfathomable. More magic. No doubt unleashed again by Daenerys Targaryen. The woman must be removed. It was imperative.

He spied off to the right the spires of the Starry Sept. The original home of the Faith of the Seven the home of the High Septon for a thousand years before the War of Conquest. He spied its marbled walls and arched windows. It had taken the Septon of Oldtown starving himself for a week to realize he had better side with Aegon I. It had saved the order. Aegon took the faith when he became Lord of the Seven Kingdoms.

Power and necessity indeed made strange bedfellows Castor deduced.

The man suddenly flinched hard a look of anguish lighting his face. His feet shot straight out and kicked the front of the cabin he was resting in. The driver of the carriage looked back asking if the Archmaester needed assistance. Castor, with a pained grimace, shook his head in the negative. The man turned back around. The carriage proceeded down the now again cobble stone street. The coachman could not help him.

Even wrapped with many layers of Dragon Scales the Dragon Pupil burned hot in his deep pocket of his robe. The magically rune inscribed dragon scales and hide was tightly wound around his crystal and yet the heat was painful in the extreme. He grit his teeth and endured. Since her attack on Maester Asten they had greatly feared the next appearance of the Green Scourge.

Again a woman Castor thought angrily. What had gone wrong in the world?

The stone glared hot and angry in his pocket. Again she had come to Oldtown. Before Asten had been blinded their adversary had been in Winterfell with the Queen. Castor sensed this green woman was a rogue agent but she had aligned with the Dragon Queen. Damn the Valyrian. She had become way too dangerous to the order that Troika sought to establish and was leading the world too.

Finally, after ten minutes the green heat simply disappeared. She was gone. For now.

Five minutes later he had arrived before the entrance of the Citadel. He looked up at the two enormous Dragon Sphinxes that were on each side of the great entrance to his home. The great beasts in repose and their wings folded back. One was male and the other female. The two obelisk symbolically guarding the Citadel. He got out of the carriage and paid the driver well. He remembered that from his youth.

He did not notice the small green haired woman staring down at him. She stood upon the head of the female sphinx unseen by all. The green haired woman bent tachyon light particles around her form rendering her invisible. Her cowl pulled back and her long green hair snapping in the windless air. Her green eyes misting as she stared down at him. Her gaze cool and calculating. Then her body seemed to collapse to a dark green horizontal bar only inches wide that then collapsed upon itself and was gone.

The strange apparition unnoticed by Castor he walked into the Citadel. He proceeded down the high arched entranceway that led to the Scribe's Hearth. He observed the novices and acolytes writing letters and contracts for the illiterate. He stopped for a minute watching the anxious patrons and the eager scribes at work remembering his time there.

He moved on. He had a meeting to attend. He would meet with his fellow Troika members Archmaesters Vaellyn and Bryce. It had been Bryce that had recruited the members of their secret order and their three supporters who followed their lead. Asten had journeyed down by boat down the Honeywine since his injury and would be sitting in on their meeting.

He was soon in the small meeting room with the other three members of their secret society. The other two men away on Troika business.

He could not help but stare at Asten. His eyes were gone. Burned out and only deep pits in his eyes socket with deep red scar tissue at the base. The man was not in pain strangely. It seemed this Green Scourge had some mercy to her. The power to do what she did from afar had filled all the members of the Troika with fear. This woman was obviously powerful. To be able to strike from afar frightening. From what Asten could report she had not needed any magical implement to do her attack. That could only mean one thing. This small woman’s magic came from within her. They knew if she chose to attack she would be unstoppable. They had no idea what motivated the small woman. That was as frightening as her raw strength.

The men around the table looked at each other. Bryce the Maester with his Valyrian steel link spoke first.

“The Dragon Queen has left Winterfell and is marching to the Wall. There she will defeat the Ice King. She must. All depends on that. One magic will destroy the other. It is what we must do after that that we must prepare for. Magic is returning and we must stop that from occurring. We all agree with our vision. It is paramount that we guide man down the path of science.”

The other men agreed. They had all shared Bryce’s vision through the Dragon Glass. They knew this was the true path of mankind. To reach that prophecy Magic must die.

The prophecy was clear. It was glorious. Man had a destiny that would first take man to the planets that orbited the sun with the Earth. Then man would journey to those twinkling lights in the night time sky. The Maesters of the Troika had deduced these stars were like unto the Sun in their sky but far away. Man would journey to those stars and make them their own.

To reach that hollowed dream the Earth would have to be sacrificed by the mad rush of science unchecked. The world would be raped, much of the life on the Earth would be killed off, the world poisoned and the climate ruined but man would reach out into space. Where there was now only one world to rule, in the future there would be many worlds to rule in this glorious future. Of course their order would be in the lead. They would lead the best of humanity to the stars. The rabble would be left behind to survive as best they could in the shattered world left behind.

Sacrifices had to be made. Did not the strong prey on the weak. They would ameliorate the damage as much as possible but the Maesters would not shirk their duty to reach their prophecy of true greatness. They would be benevolent in their future rule. They did not desire power for themselves but to help guide mankind to their true great potential.

This true vision of the leaders of the Citadel was kept from their lesser brethren. They would not be able to grasp the grandness of their vision. They did not understand that sometimes sacrifices had to be made to achieve the full potential of mankind.

Bryce continued. “We must as always keep our true purpose close to our hearts. We must not let Maester Marwyn know of our true goals. He actually wants magic to return. Fool.”

“Castor. How is the Dragon Bane proceeding? We do not want to have to slowly poison the dragon eggs and the slow poison of their food like before. It took generations to remove them before.”

“It proceeding apace Bryce but I fear trouble is on the horizon.”

“How so?” Bryce asked with concern in his voice.

“As you know, the Faceless men are helping us in the making of the Dragon Bane but Jaqen H’ghar has become evasive in his answers to our queries. I am not sure he fully means to meet our contract.”

There was stunned silence.

“But they signed the contract” Vaellyn said in a shocked voice.

“I know” Castor replied “but I sense he now hesitates for some reason. I am concerned. We can proceed without them. They have given us enough that we can complete the work but this is their specialty.”

Bryce considered “I will send an envoy to Braavos and see if we can get them back on board. They signed a contract. They will honor it. What is the world coming too?” he asked rhetorically.

Castor again wondered to himself. To many they might seem like hypocrites. Their small order was using magic while they were actively working to see its demise. To achieve the glorious vision they had all shared they would do what was necessary to achieve that dream. If it meant soiling themselves in the now for the future so be it.

The four men continued to discuss matters of their vision and also addressed the more mundane issues of their Order. The classes were going well with training the next generation. Many promising students were quickly forging their links. The Troika always on the lookout for future members. All men aged and died. They would need to find the next generation of leaders of their scared order.

A novice came in and whispered in Castor’s ear. The teenager quickly left.

“Our other ally has arrived.” Castor noticed the looks of disdain that crossed his fellow Maesters faces. Again to achieve a grand design one had to sometimes associate with persons you found unsavory.

He heard a snort from Asten. Vaellyn sneered.

“Let us be civil. We need the High Septon in this. He too has many grievances brewing with our Dragon Queen. She is unnatural to both the laws of our Science but also to the Faith’s religious order. We have a common goal and will work with the Faith of the Seven to achieve our goals. Daenerys Targaryen must be removed. Sacrifices must be made. Her death will serve the greater good. It is necessary.”
All the men nodded their heads in solemn agreement. There was a knock at the door.

Bryce got up from the table and opened the door and with gracious decorum invited in High Septon Pious to the room. The fellow men in the room bowed deeply to the man and had looks of earnest focus on their faces. The disdain they felt did not show on their faces.

“I am happy you could join us High Septon. Our order is most happy that you were selected to rule your religious order with the death of Septon ‘Fat One’. We know you will bring much needed reforms to your order. Your name denotes the fervor you will bring to your faith. We have common cause. The world order is changing in ways that both of our orders cannot countenance. We must make common cause.”

The High Septon nodded. “I agree. Daenerys Targaryen is bringing most unholy notions to Westeros. We have worked for centuries to keep such heretical thoughts out of Westeros. The infection long ago took root in Dorne I fear but they are an insular people and have no desire to spread their vile notions of the equality of women. Their open mores on homosexual love is hideous. We must not allow the Queen to plant those seeds in the rest of Westeros.”

Castor agreed “The natural order is that the male of the species controls the females of that species. The females are weak and inferior. That is clear. It is also clear that man must lay with woman to produce offspring. That man must and will lead the family unit. That the woman will submit to his will. This is the way of nature and the way of man. I will admit that Daenerys Targaryen is a mutant. She is something unique. We cannot let this mutationn take root. It will upset the natural order of things. Women cannot begin to think they are our equal.”

High Septon Pious spoke up his voice upset and high pitched. “This woman is unnatural I say!” he cried out hitting his fist on the table.

The Maesters looked at each other. So much for his religion giving the man a sense of calm.

“We agree with everything you have said” Castor answered showing solidarity with the man.

The Septon was not finished in his pronouncements.

“Our god makes it clear that the man leads and the woman supports. Daenerys has refused to take a husband to let him rule with her support. NO! She is taking a wife. That is abhorrent!” the man shouted again. “Eddard Stark and Maester Luwin have lost their minds. Sansa Stark is going to marry Margaery Tyrell. I hear rumors that Loras Tyrell will marry Renly Baratheon. Now reports come from Dorne that Cersei Lannister lies with Obara Sand. The world is spinning off its axis I say.”

The man sat back looking a little piqued.

Bryce continued on with the Septon’s reasoning. “I agree Pious. If women see these unnatural acts go unpunished and worse supported by men in power and influence then the world will change for the worse. Our Maesters have journeyed the world and only seen women take the reins of power in Dorne and the Summer Islands. This cannot be allowed to spread. Women are weak. They bleed every month. We are strong and hale. We will put the proverbial genie back in the bottle.”

“We will remove the symbolic power of the Dragon Queen’s dragons. Then we will work behind the scenes to remove her from power. We will have to deal with these unholy unions. Hopefully, we can get Eddard Stark to see the errors of his ways. We will work with the Faith of the Seven to stop this prevision of the natural order of things.”
“It is against the will of the Seven Faced God!” the High Septon roared.

It was clear to the Troika that the High Septon was clearly in league with them for the current time. The threat of the pale Valyrian Queen was so great that it had made the Citadel and the Faith allies. How long it would last Castor had no idea. The two orders were antithetical to each other but maybe they could continue to work together in the future. One giving support to the other. As long as the Septons understood that they would be subordinate to the Maesters.

Only time would tell.

The meeting soon broke up. Each party planning on subverting the other and if not possible eliminating the threat to their order. It was the nature of things for each order to think themselves ascendant in all things. The Queen had setup a unique set of circumstances. This new environment may allow for new world orders to take root. Had not the Pale Queen done as much in Essos?

The men slowly filled out of the meeting hall. The room was now empty.

From the shadows Jaqen H’ghar stepped out. He had watched the entire meeting with interest. He deemed he had been wise to wonder of his alliance with the Citadel. These men were as craven as what they claimed to be against. The High Septon was blinded by his own faith to the truth and reality of this rising new world. He may still honor his contract but with each passing day and new information gleaned he wondered more and more if he would. The world was changing so might the House of Black and White have to change as well.

When Daenerys Targaryen was married off to Khal Drogo she had been a trifling thing. The order of Black and White had watched her and Viserys since they arrived in Braavos. The boy was clearly mad and of no import. Indeed he had only succeeded in having molten gold poured on his head.

But his sister. That had been the surprise. The very great surprise.

They had both been observed in the house with the red door.

She had been a mere trifling thing. She was weak and meek. She had gone to her wedding bleating it was reported. She had no strength. She was only an ornament. The Faceless man who had spied on her in Braavos assumed a new identity when she joined the Khal’s Khalasar. She had seemed to grow to become an adequate Khaleesi in support of her Khal but then her Khal had died and with it his Khalasar. That Khalasar had turned against the fourteen year old. The witch Mirri Maz Duur had killed her child. The young Khaleesi had become of no account.

Without a Khal to give the woman credence, Daenerys Targaryen was abandon to meet her fate. She had fled into the Red Wastes to escape her enemies. Her flight into the Red Wastes had only one outcome. Her death. The Faceless Man had come back to Braavos. The mission ended.

The only problem to the supposed end of the mission was that Daenerys Targaryen had not died in the trackless Red Wastes. By the time their order knew of her again she had conquered both Qarth and Astrophor. She was leading the army she had formed. The leader of this army was fearless and a mighty warrior.

They sent the Faceless Man back so see if this was indeed the young child they had discounted nearly two years ago. Their agent arrived after she had smashed Yunkai and was marching onto Meereen. It had been debated if this was the same woman or a man in disguise as her. Some clever rouse or glamour being worked. The agent reported that no it was the same person as impossible as it seemed. At first Jaqen had deemed she most die. Their order had been created in their fight against the Valyrians.
But something was different this time. She was indeed conquering each City State she came to and ended the slave owners rule. Jaqen waited for her to institute a new slave trade with her at the head of it. But that did not happen. She was in fact City by City dismantling the Slave Trade till she had fought her way to the Free Cities and compelled them to surrender their slaves as well making them truly free cities in fact as well as name.

She had destroyed the slave trade after five thousand years. She truly was the “Breaker of Chains”. The child was a Phoenix reborn. Something new and glorious it would seem.

Now she had jumped continents and was continuing to change the world order. She was replacing conflict and strife with peace and harmony.

Jaqen H’ghar wondered as he walked around the room touching the table and chairs.

The Maesters wanted Science to rule the world that may lead to a bright future in the stars. He doubted that. He had read their visions they had written down only for themselves to read or so they thought. The forces they hoped to create would probably lead to the destruction of the world long before mankind could flee the world to journey to the stars. It was fool’s gold. It was a chimera on the horizon leading man to its doom.

The Maesters of the Trioka like the Valyrians before them disdained the common man. He could not countenance that.

The problem with magic is that it tended toward the static. A static environment could easily become stagnant which led to decay.

Which path was the right one?

Jaqen H’ghar suspected it was a blend. He had much to contemplate as he disappeared into the shadows.
Eddard

All around Eddard were the sounds of children laughing and bickering with each other. As he stood looking around a little boy was running wildly around with a little girl chasing him threatening to tear his hair out. In a corner was a little girl crying because the chief miller’s daughter had taken her doll. Two boys were trying to stack blocks and failing miserably. Another boy was pretending to sword fight a dragon which was a shadow from the hanging lamp.

The sounds of raucous children filled the room. Another father came in with twins two years old (both girls) and one five year old boy. The noise level went up to the sound of a full scale charge of full armored knights charging a wall of lancers. Their own lances lowered with bright colored streamers attached to the tips fluttering wildly in the slipstream created by the charge of war horses.

Eddard smiled at the raucous noises all around him. The warrior in him thought the high pitched squeals and banging of various items was a discordant opera full of mistimed notes. He shook his head smiling seeing a girl pretending to pour tea in cups and a boy crying in another corner as a girl teased him.

Yes indeed. He much preferred the sounds of combat. He smiled to those memories of a generation ago. The trumpet bugle of warhorses as they charged a line of pike men. Their beauty as they charged line abreast their hooves pounding the turf. The sound of his men pounding their swords on their fellows swords and the sound of metal on metal it had made. The sight of the sun glinting off their weapons. The sound of war drums drumming out a martial march and the notes of war horns being blown to full long drawn out notes. The beauty of the House flags carried by the standard bearers and the bright colored uniforms they wore.

Then his smile faltered and became a sad melancholy reflection of that past. He now remember his memories as they truly had been and not the romanticized words of the poets or strummed cords of the wandering minstrels.

Now to his mind’s eyes and ears came the true visions of warfare and combat. The beautiful sight of lines arrayed in formation had almost immediately devolved into discordant chaos. He saw the sight of men’s arms and legs severed from their bodies. The ground soaked in blood and gore. The sight of men’s head cleaved with horrible wounds and the watching men trying to hold their guts in their torsos.

But it was the sounds that most lived with Eddard and sometimes still woke him up at night eyes wide and body shaking. His body beaded with sweat. The screams of horses feathered with arrows and pierced by those pikes he had just romanticized. The poets and minstrels never mentioned the screams of men who had been hacked apart and bones shattered. The poets always wrote that warriors suffered in silence.

It was lie. Men screamed in agony. Their throats again and again screaming in raw pain and the terror of approaching death.
Memories such as these had slowly over time taught Eddard wisdom, forbearance and tolerance. Eddard put such melancholy thoughts in there place. To dwell on them would rob him of sanity and the ability to lead. He knew the truth now. He would do his duty but he would never again revere combat and the mayhem it left behind.

He spied Kiserri coming up to the boy with his imaginary sword. She challenged him to a duel pulling her dirk out from her Dothraki belt. He smiled his big squint smile. She of course dropped the fake blade crying out in dismay chasing it around the floor and then kicking it underneath the big building blocks in the corner. She charged into the edifice. The fort had been abandoned so no child cried at their art piece being brought down as Kiserri threw blocks right and left looking for her blade crying out in Dothraki.

Catelyn told the girl “Kiserri shiqethi finaan neva ave maisi mae.” The precious little dark haired girl pivoted to the left and kicked the blocks away and cried out in triumph.” Eddard smiled at his wife who come into the play room after leaving the babies in the nursery for the new babes.

“Granma Granma” she cried out in Westerosi proudly holding up her dirk “valloshak azh akka.”

His wife answered “Me zigeree Kiserri. Qual ma sajosoon disse.” The little precocious Dothraki girl threw out her little chest strutting around chittering in her native tongue. Eddard stared at his wife. Kiserri was teaching Catelyn Dothraki and High Valyrian which the little girl spoke fluently having learned it from mother. The girl learned languages almost instantly it would appear. She chose to speak in her native tongue of course but could switch when she chose to.

Eddard was keeping his thoughts to himself but it was obvious the little girl had picked up magic from her time with these Elohim. He was sure his daughter and the Queen had made the same observation. He wondered if the girl hid other talents yet to be discovered. The Elohim from what he had learned were like the strange green haired woman that had been in that glade. The fairies had magic he was sure but the tales that Daenerys told him of her time in the Dothraki Sea and then in Arya’s room had shown the warrior that there were forces with great magical might that lived in the world.

The Maesters were completely wrong. Eddard had seen a small seeming woman chop a tree down with one stroke of his sword as if it was a match stick. The Elohim brought Daenerys and Kiserri back from death. Yes, magic indeed lived in the world. He had had his vision of ‘mist vampires’. The world was filled with magic. It merely lay hidden from the eyes of man. There were forces out in the world that dwarfed man.

He had finally pieced together that this woman spoken of in whispered dread was the woman he had met in the glade. She Who Must Not Be Named. He had met this woman that others spoke of with great trepidation. He talked to Lustra the Lord from the Land and the topic had come up somehow. The Lord had shivered. She told Eddard of her insanity and great hate for all things that lived. She related how She Who Must Not Be Named had fought a Linden Avery trying to drive her insane. Then this woman had fought her Land’s equivalent of the Ice King and with one blow laid him low.

“She Who Much Not Named is an abomination. We do not believe in killing Eddard Stark but this creature is foul and must be put down” Lustra told Eddard with a solemn earnest voice and sad demeanor.

Eddard had squinted at the woman. He hated to say it but the woman was full of shit. He had not told her this of course. It amazed him how people always made snap judgements with people they had never met. Even these people of the Southern world who seemed free of the avarice of normal men was still able to judge rashly. This woman who was named She Who Must Not Be Named had saved them from treachery. It was obvious to Eddard this was the woman that had enamored Missandei. Any woman this sweet young woman of Naath loved could not be bad in his book.

She Who Must Not Be Named acted in their behalf when she had no reason to. Eddard had seen her strength. He knew that this woman could defeat all the forces of the Queen and the Ice King together if she chose. She choose not to. She seemed to be almost neutral in her efforts and yet she was helping however subtly.

The fairies he had encountered in the glade when he met She Who Must Not Be Named also accepted the strange small woman. The fairies obviously were of no danger. The green haired woman seemed to have an affinity with them. All these facts were enough for Eddard to form his judgement of the green haired and eyed woman.

He listened to his wife continue to converse with Kiserri in Dothraki and broken High Valyrian. If this kept up he would not need a translator for those two languages in the future. Eddard was not bothered. He was not spooked by his wife’s new ability to learn languages. Powerful magic had been performed on his sweet wife to save her life. Some of it had changed her. He still shivered seeing the wives of Jon and the Demondim spawn performing impossible magic to save Catelyn.

He would always be in their debt. The Ur-viles and Waynhim had come all the way from Essos to save his wife. His son’s wives had stopped their journey home to turn around and come to Winterfell to save Catelyn. He was just thankful. Any doubts of magic he might have had were gone now.

He remembered the fairy he saw in that wooden glade. He supposed he would try and save them too. He had been doing extensive research in the library and having books sent from the Citadel on the Fairy folk. They were supposed to be legends and make believe to scare and delight children according to the situation. The Maesters treated them as whimsy and mere folklore without merit. He knew better now.

Eddard knew he must first begin to restore the Weirwood trees to the North. They were the basis of everything he would start to rehabilitate and restore. He would plant Weirwood trees in the Sand Hills and Barrowlands to begin with.

They would anchor the nature preserves he hoped to establish there. If Jon and his wives indeed decided to live there then they could nurture them and help their growth.

He had talked to Jon Arryn. He had agreed to begin the repopulation of the Weirwood trees in his Ward. He knew many trees existed still in remote valleys and high mountain glades but he would work to restore their full reach.

He hoped that Daenerys would agree to continue the repopulation further south.

Of course he had one glaring problem with his grandiose plans of renewal. Where he would get the saplings he had little idea. He had been researching this and was currently stymied. The trees did not generate seedlings from sending sperm in the air like normal conifers or producing flowers like deciduous trees. They seemed to be a cross of the two and he was not sure how to propagate the trees. He feared his plans would be slow to come to fruition.

He needed saplings!

He needed to find the first people. He grimaced knowing his House was greatly responsible for their slaughter. He hiccupped softly fighting tears. It still tore him up this new found knowledge. He breathed deep controlling his emotions. He longed to start to make restitution. He sighed. That would be a task for a later time after the war was won.

For now he would enjoy the new life around him. Children really were the blessing of today and the promise of tomorrow.

Eddard looked around at all the energy of the young children. Eddard noticed that his wife spent a lot of her time fussing with her newborns making sure they were comfortable and that the young women working the nursery knew exactly what the needs of Brandon and Lyanna were. Eddard smiled. It was the same every morning.

Kiserri came up to Catelyn and held up her arms. Catelyn did not hesitate to pick up the girl and put her on her hip. Kiserri put her head in Cat’s neck and snuggled in. Eddard was thankful that Cat so easily accepted Kiserri into her heart. The girl being the daughter of Arya made all the difference of the world. She was part of the family Arya had formed and thus was part of Cat’s world.

Eddard sighed inside. He wished had had the freedom to tell Cat the truth about Jon. He had done what he thought he must. He was not so sure now. His son had missed out on having a loving mother. He was thankful that Jon had not let it make him bitter and full of spit. It seemed as if the hardships had brought out only the best in Jon. Eddard hoped his love and support had been enough for Jon. It seemed to have been but he sighed knowing what had been lost with his deceptions.

Still, the man Jon had become was most definitely a good, decent, kind man. It had definitely allowed him to capture not only one wife but two. And not any normal high borne lasses that were brought up in court to stitch and dance only. His wives were strong powerful women. One was a wildling girl that was in reality a two thousand year old witch. The other was a pure ShadowBender witch. He still found it strange that Jon towered over the one and the second he had taken to wife he had to look up to at least four if not five inches too.

Being redheads did not hurt either looking at Catelyn at her still rich auburn locks.

Eddard felt a bump on his leg. He looked down and saw the son of Benam Peat, Derren, looking up at him with big solemn eyes. The boy was quiet like his father who was a hard worker. The boy was four and not very assertive. Eddard knew about being shy. He smiled down at the four year old boy.

Cat may concentrate on her “own” but Eddard felt an affinity for all children.

“What is your name?” he asked the small boy.

“Derren” the boy spoke softly.

Eddard bent down so he could be more at the boy’s eye level. “Your father is a good smith. He will one day be a master at his craft. Do you plan to help your father when you get older?”

The boy nodded his head ‘yes’. He smiled shyly at Eddard.

Eddard spent several minutes talking to the boy gently trying to give him a little confidence and love. The boy was a sponge for affection. Cat was ready to leave. Eddard got up and the boy hugged his leg. Eddard patted his back and pulled out a wrapped lemon cake morsel filled with cream and handed it to the boy. He had planned on eating it later but he decided the boy needed it more. The boy took it with his big solemn brown eyes and smiled.

Eddard went to the main nursery maid and requested that she make sure the boy got extra attention and positive reinforcement. The woman smiled at Eddard and told him she would make sure that occurred. As Eddard left with his wife he turned back and saw the boy watching him already eating the treat. Eddard waved at the boy who smiled shyly and waved back.

They left the nursery and entered one of the main corridors on the first floor of the Great Keep. The halls were bustling with activity. Eddard would be marching to war in two days and Winterfell was active as final planning and meetings were occurring to send the remaining forces off to war to fight the Ice King. He saw many persons from the South.

He was still surprised and happy that he and Daenerys Targaryen had succeeded in getting the Great Houses of the South to march north to come to his aid. He had feared he would only have his House and the House of Arryn and Tully to back up his efforts. Now he had the full might of Westeros at his back. He would have Houses that could be trusted fully. The Queen had accomplished that. He fully supported her decision to keep House Lannister safely ensconced in Caterly Rock. Tywin Lannister could not be trusted to do what was in the Realm’s best interest.

The last thing Eddard and the Queen needed to worry over was another traitorous House. They had enough to worry about with House Frey and Bolton being in league with the Ice King. House Lannister had many numbers they could have added to the fight … or … allied with the Ice King. He fully agreed with the Queen leaving them in Casterly Rock.

If they lost the upcoming war it probably would not matter whether or not Tywin Lannister was trustworthy. The Ice King had no true allies among the living. If the Ice King won, Eddard knew that House Frey and Bolton would be slaughtered along with the rest of the Houses. Eddard understood evil.

Eddard knew that Tywin could not be trusted. His three offspring had no use for the man. That spoke volumes. The offspring of Tywin Lannister knew what their father was. None of the man’s children wanted to even be in any part of the territory their father controlled. At this rate, it seemed the bloodline would fall to Lancel. He seemed weak but was not filled with the drive and avarice of his uncle.

Eddard would never forget the two dead bodies of Elia’s children. Seeing Elia’s broken body underneath the bloody sheet. The cloth covering those bodies had been soaked in blood. Eddard had insisted on looking upon the bodies having the fabric pealed back. He still had nightmares seeing those broken bodies. The boy’s head destroyed and the girl’s body run through with multiple sword wounds. At night, in his dreams, Eddard still dreamt of confronting Robert for his easy acceptance of their tragic and heinous deaths. His blatant disregard for right and justice had made him ill.

Why hadn’t he confronted Robert? He had enough of war he supposed. He had lost his beloved sister. His father and brother killed most heinously. He had seen dear friends killed. He had a secret to keep. He simply had had enough of war. A war he already was coming to regret and question his part in it. Eddard now knew a generation too late that Robert’s Rebellion should never have been. It had only been a tragic waste.

He sometimes still wondered if he should not have put Robert down then. He was a demon with his Warhammer but Eddard had full faith in his skills with the sword. It would have been a close thing but he would have prevailed. Robert had been injured even if slightly. It would have affected his abilities. All great warriors have to think they are the best to prevail on the battlefield. Eddard knew he would have slain his best friend in any battle.

He scowled to himself. He had made mistakes. Robert Baratheon and not turning on him at King’s Landing chief among them. Not taking the throne at least temporarily to give it to a better head. He would have given it to Jon Arryn. He may be old but he was wise and just. His lack of an Heir would have been a problem but it would have been better than what Robert did to the Kingdom of Westeros. He had dissipated both Westeros and himself one day at a time till both were disheveled and at risk.

He still hated killing Arthur Dayne the best of his generation. He was not sure what he could have done to save Lyanna but he knew deep in his bones she deserved the chance to become what she desired to be. A warrior. He had given that chance to Arya and his faith in his daughter had been handsomely rewarded. Arya had indeed become a great swordsman. With her rune sword he wondered now if he could win against her.

He was an honest man. He was sure they would draw with an occasional victor to one or the other. He had assumed it would be Robb that would be the next swordsman of his family line. It was his middle daughter. He smiled at that. He was thankful he let Arya seek her destiny. She had won a Queen as well with her sword prowess and with her left cross. He smiled again with seemingly incongruent thought.

Eddard sighed. Enough of the past. He had a future that absolutely had to be won.

Catelyn pushed into his side and he pulled her close. She wanted to go the royal kitchen to make sure that “all was in order”. Eddard liked how his wife made sure that all the workings Winterfell were up to par and to her high specifications.

“Our new children are doing so well Ned. I was so afraid during my pregnancy that I would not be able to bring them to term. Thank the gods for Jon’s wives and the Ur-viles and Waynhim.”

There was a long pause. Eddard pulled his wife close to his body. He knew truly that his wife had come to regret her actions towards Jon. Once his wife had been told the truth of Jon’s lineage all her animosity had disappeared. In its place guilt had quickly built up. She realized now just how wrong she had been.

They had discussed this and Eddard had hoped he had made it clear to Catelyn that he had to shoulder as much of the blame if not more than his wife. He had chosen to speak a lie and then perpetuate that lie for almost twenty years. He had seen no other recourse but to keep the secret that Jon was in fact Rhaegar Targaryen and his sister Lyanna’s child. Their progeny from their illicit union.

A union forced on them by society and the strict rules that high royals were forced to abide by. If they had been free to love whom they choose history would have been different. Maybe Rhaegar would have married Elia anyways but with their heritage of House Dorne and Targaryen he could have taken a second wife. Elia was bisexual at the least the rumors said. Maybe that would have worked.

That had rankled Eddard over the years. Why had Rhaegar not taken a second wife? Did one or both of the women refuse? Had Rhaegar not loved Elia at all? Did he hate the woman for being forced to marry her? Maybe his mad father would not have accepted that. Too have two non Valyrian’s as wives.

Eddard did not know and would never know. He only knew that Rhaegar had been forced to marry Elia for duty and not for love. He read that the same was true of Aegon and his wives. One for duty and one for love. He had mentioned this to Daenerys during a conversation at dinner. She had smirked. The next day after a meeting she had pulled Eddard aside. She unsheathed her rune sword that glowed blue and spit out tendrils of radiant light and heat.

She read to him the runes that made it clear that the sisters had married each other out of love and Aegon out of duty. They had not loved him at all. He was arrogant and a buffoon according to the provenance that Illyrio had provided with the swords.

Eddard was reminded that the victors wrote the history of any conflict. They would twist and obfuscate the truth. Over time the truth might leak through or might not. That had been eye opening considering how the history books went to great pains to state supposedly clearly the love relationship of the three siblings.

A man’s ego was a strong thing. Most men would rather die than admit that the woman they loved did not love them but instead loved another woman. You can compete with what a man may offer but a woman offered what no man could.

Eddard had shook his head at the news. He smiled at the Queen. The truth inscribed into the Rune sword played exactly into Eddard’s thoughts. He was thankful he had sent Arya and not Robb. He had not let societal conditioning hide the reality of Arya’s destiny to be the Queen’s wife. He had heard the rumors of the Queen’s homosexuality and seen his own daughter’s sexual orientation and accepted it. He looked at the situation as it was and not as society had told him it should be. Eddard did not let expectation blind himself to reality.

He had chosen wisely. He now had a very happy daughter and Queen. It had surprised him though when he discovered that Sansa was also gay. He had been surprised but easily accepted that truth too.

The death of his sister and Elia had changed Eddard. It had not occurred overnight and instead had taken years but it had changed Eddard. He had learned to see that the minorities of society had as much right as the majority. He still had to navigate the world he lived in but he would uphold those rights with all his might and guile.

Eddard felt his wife’s body tensing and sensed what was coming “I want you to know again Ned I am so sorry for the way I treated Jon.”

He pulled Catelyn into his side and hugged her hard.

“You would not have treated Jon as you did if I had ever took you in my confidence. I should have had faith in you. In your ability to be able to handle the truth. I, at first I fear, I must confess, did not think you had the strength to handle the truth. You soon showed me that you had that strength. Still, I choose to hide the truth from you. I did not want you in a position of knowing the truth and Robert suspecting you had been in on the secret and torturing you to get that information.”

“Do you think Robert Baratheon would have done such a deed Ned? He grew up with you and he knows me. The two of you were best friends in your youth.”

“I don’t know Cat. When it came to all things Targaryen he was unbalanced. The way he treated Cersei was reprehensible. I am ashamed to say that I suspected his treatment of the woman was cruel and bordering on pure rape but I choose to look the other way. It was not my concern. Robert has never held his marriage vow seriously and his inability to not lie with any pretty woman he met was known by all. He was a bad man when it came to women. He let his fears of succession to the Iron Throne he had won unhinge his moral code.”

Eddard stopped speaking and his eyes seemed to be seeing something that was not in the room. His wife knew her husband was working through his thoughts.

“I had no use for the woman and considered Cersei’s situation a just repayment for her cruel mendacious ways. Now I see what she has become in Dorne and I wonder. I now know she was in many ways like our Arya. She had her dreams of taking up the sword constantly suppressed and crushed. Now she is being allowed to achieve her childhood dream and she is a totally different woman. I have come to see what the crushing of a dream can do to a person. To a woman.”

He felt his wife stiffen and then relax.

“That was not an attack Cat. I was just connecting the dots in my mind. It had not really hit me to just now how much Cersei’s childhood and Arya’s were the same in so many ways. The difference is in Winterfell Arya was allowed to achieve her dream.”

“No thanks to me.”

Eddard paused a moment. He wanted to choose his words carefully here. In many ways his wife had been in the wrong with their children but he had not made it easier on her. He should have been more truthful with his intense and prideful wife. Eddard knew even as he told his wife the lies of Jon’s lineage he was being unfair to his bride wife and putting her in a situation that her pride would be offended and make her react badly. He had still made the decision to lie to his wife.

To his everlasting shame.

“Catelyn, we were raised by parents that made us follow the paths they selected for us. We got very lucky. I have come to be very wary of such guidance of the destiny of high royal children. I got very lucky in marrying you Catelyn. What if I had married your sister Lyssa” Eddard paused and shuddered. Eddard heard his wife chuckle and felt the vibrations against his side. He pulled his Cat closer to his body. “We both know she is unstable. If I had taken the steps to the Iron Throne and I had delayed in taking you as wife I may have married Cersei.”

He shuddered. Cersei had redeemed herself in Dorne seeking the warrior’s path. With Eddard Stark there would have been no warrior’s path. She would have been bitter and angry. She and Jamie would have continued their illicit affair and he was no Robert Baratheon. He would have discovered their affair. Eddard knew that Robert chose to not see the truth of Cersei’s incestuous infidelity. Surely he would have seen that Cersei’s children were not his own. Then what?

“What if you had married Robert Baratheon?” Eddard felt Catelyn shudder beside him. “A man bitter that the woman he claimed he loved—and we both know he did not love Lyanna any more than Cersei. He just thought he had a claim on her. He would have had just as many illegitimate children with Lyanna or you as his wife as he did with Cersei.”

“With our children I can see scenarios where maybe Sansa would have been betrothed to Joffrey Baratheon. He is a psychotic little shit. Forgive my language Cat but no other phrase accurately captures the little boy who would be king. He is weak and is a small thing.”

“Cat” Eddard paused to make sure he had his wife’s full attention “as I mentioned a moment ago you were raised to follow the path of duty as I was. I told you that I feel I rolled the dice and hit snake eyes with you becoming my wife. I know you had longed to marry my brother and I was a conciliation prize.”

“Ned stop that this moment. I am so thankful that I married you and not Brandon. I am so sorry he died the way he did. It was a truly heinous death. Same as your father. I would never wish that on anyone. But it happened Ned.”

“Yes. Your bother was very handsome—as your are!”

Eddard grimaced.
“I don’t know how many times I have to keep telling you that my husband. I was promised to Brandon three years before I was to marry him. So yes, I was looking forward to marrying your brother. I had been promised to him and I made him into my dream and living embodiment of perfection.”

“But let’s be serious Ned. We both know he was vain and conceited. He was not a bad man. Far from it. But he had very large glaring deficiencies in his personality Ned. He would have been an adequate husband I suppose though I have a feeling he had some of Robert Baratheon in him. Maybe a lot of Robert in him.”

“I will admit that like many young fair maidens your brother cut a dashing figure and had that … how do they say it … he was a bad boy and I was attracted to it as a teenage girl often is. He was dangerous and exciting. What we fail to take into account with these ‘bad boys’ is that this is their true selves. They are not hiding what they are. They will not stop being ‘dangerous and exciting’ just because they have married you. They will continue in their Lothario ways and continue to be selfish and self-serving. It simply is their nature.

“Not you Ned. That was the reason I had such a hard time with Jon, Ned. It was just so out of character for you to commit adultery that I just could not handle it. With Brandon I might have accepted it because I would not have been so surprised and disappointed. I could tell from the first moment I met you that you were honor personified.

“Cat please.”

“No Eddard Stark. You breathe and piss honor.”

Ned threw his head back and laughed at that.

The tension was broken.

“Lets agree Cat that we both could have done better.”

His wife made a deprecating snort. “Agreed though we both know that I have many more marks on my side of the ledger. I will strive to make amends to Jon, Sansa and Arya. I am just thankful that you were in their lives to let them achieve their sought for destinies. That in the end our children were allowed to seek their true desire and destiny. I drove our son away and would have led our daughters into marriages that would have crushed them down. I have to accept that legacy and I do. I will strive to make amends my husband.”

Eddard smiled down at his wife. “You had a hand Cat in helping them achieve their destiny. You shaped all four of our eldest children into young men and women that have captured the hearts of willing mates. Mates who love and cherish them. They all have much more personality than I do. That came from you Cat. Let’s be completely truthful here Cat. I am a stick in the mud. I am bland and boring.”

“Ned. Stop that! You have plenty of personality. You just have to get to know you to see it! Especially of late. You are becoming quiet the Direwolf in our bed I must say. You have become quite adventurous and demanding. I like it Ned. I love being taken hard my husband.”

Ned’s face went beet red and he gave his wife his flustered squint smile.

Catelyn laughed at her husband’s discomfiture.

“I can’t wait to have our triple wedding Ned. One thing I sorely missed in our marriage was the lack of a bedding ceremony. I really wanted the whole bawdy antics. I was not always this prude I have become Eddard Stark I would have you know.”

Eddard grimaced on the inside. His reserve really did limit him he knew. He was trying to make amends in the bedroom with Cat. She had been most receptive and was like a young filly in their bed. He was hanging on for dear life. Not that he was complaining.

“I can’t wait to see Sansa, Alys and Arya drunk and stripped naked and taken up the stairs to their bedrooms to be taken by their new husband and wives. They all might not be virgins but it won’t matter. They will have never experienced the public humiliation of the bedding ceremony. It will get them and their mates all fired up Ned!”

“I have great plans for using the Glass Gardens and the Weirwood. Then we will have the wedding feast and the alcohol will flow freely. Then I get to see my eldest children taken up the stairs like I had hoped to be.” Catelyn paused in her thoughts. She now spoke in a faraway voice “I had hoped for the full ceremony for us Eddard. I know the war precluded that but had wished it. Like I say. I was not always this prude that now stands at your side.

An idea struck Ned. He just had to talk himself into it.

“Cat” Eddard smiled down at his wife. “Again, let us be honest. I am the prude. I am trying to make amends.” The smile that Cat gave Eddard made him feel happy and content.

“Our newest children and grandchild are doing well Ned.”

“Yes they are Cat.” Eddard laughed softly. “I will have to teach Kiserri after the war how to handle her dirk. She seems totally incapable in holding it properly. She is so cute dropping and chasing it everywhere. She is totally precious. She is so fortunate to have Dany and now Arya as her mothers. We had Arya as our daughter. They both chose to make Kiserri their daughter. Dany could have turned aside in the desert when that precious little girl came to her to be her mother. Arya could have rejected the child. Instead both let the Dothraki Bloodrider into their hearts.

Cat hugged him tighter. “She is definitely in my heart. She is so cute and loving. She makes my heart flutter when she snuggles into me and calls me ‘granmama’”. When she looks up at me with those big dark eyes my heart just melts. I hope I learned my lesson with Jon.”

“I know you have Cat” Ned spoke and bent down to kiss his wife’s temple. Cat was the type of woman to learn her lessons.

“I will say the little girl has taken to our two newborns. She takes her duty as their Bloodrider very seriously. She loves them as if they were her true brother and sister.”

“I see that too Cat.”

“I can’t wait for Brandon to grow up and become a great knight or Lord of a new strong holdfast. Lyanna will be some strong price’s strong wife giving him beautiful sons.”

Eddard hugged his wife again. “Or maybe he will become a diplomat in Daenerys service. She has a vast kingdom to manage. He might become like Arya and doing service for the Queen directly. And Lyanna. Maybe she will be like Arya or Cersei and will take up the sword and become a great warrior.”

Catelyn walked on in silence.

“It is Arya who is my heir with the sword. It is not Robb but Arya who is my equal if not my better.”
“You so easily accept the untried and unaccepted path Ned. How do you do it?”

“I let my children choose their destiny. They may choose poorly but at least it will be their choice. I will say again I struck gold with you Catelyn Tully. All other eligible women my age were nothing but dross compared to you my sweet wife. I can still vividly your nude body before me Cat and wondering how lucky I was. You were and are hot!”

“You are becoming quite the flatterer of late husband.” Now it was Catelyn Stark’s time to turn a little crimson. She leaned a little more into her husband.

Eddard snorted.

“If you had a choice Eddard what would you want Lyanna to be. Arya took up your path and Sansa choose my path. And yes I agree with her choice in wife. The only man worthy of her would be Robb and we are not Targaryen!”

They both had to laugh at that.

When they stopped laughing Eddard answered his wife’s question.

“I would want Lyanna to make her own choices. It is as simple as that for me. My sister was denied that right. Seeing Cersei totally change being allowed to find her destiny has touched me Cat. She has gripped this new path with both hands and throttled it. She has convinced me even more that we need to let our children be what they can be. That each of our children must be free to seek their true destiny. We are Starks and I know I sound vain but it seems our children are meant for greatness. I will let them reach for it.”

“Lyanna was like a repressed wolf who howled at the moon deep in the night in her frustration. She was like some mythical werewolf screaming in rage at her plight. Arya was going down that same path but she would never have accepted the path like Lyanna did. We would have lost her Cat. I fear what might have happened had we forced our plans and desires on her. If we had let society dictate how we treated and led Arya.”

“I wish my sister had had those choices. She would probably still be alive. I want our daughter to take the path that that my sister was denied. I wanted Arya to become a warrior Cat. She has achieved that. Her speed and skill is actually frightening. So is Daenerys. The reports say that Cersei is if anything even faster and far stronger. They were meant for greatness. They strove for that greatness and achieved it.”

His wife took his hand and squeezed it. “I will let our new daughter make her own choices Eddard. I have learned my lesson with our elder children Ned. Lyanna will seek her own path. We will guide and support her but she will have the freedom to seek her destiny.

Ned was happy as they walked to the kitchen and sat down at the royal table in the rear that were not being used.

“So dear husband. You fully support our children’s decisions.” The tone had Eddard on guard.

Eddard sensed a trap but was not sure what it could be. He eyed his wife but she had on a face of bland innocence. He could not read where his wife was going.

“Of course Cat. They will make wise and just decisions. As long as their choices are just and harm no others I will fully support them.”

Cat smirked.
“What has Arya done?”

Cat laughed softly. “It is not Arya. It is Sansa”

Eddard was perplexed that Sansa could be the source of any possible consternation.

“Our sweet daughter will marry Margaery before the Weirwood. It will be a holy union between two souls deeply in love. Then Sansa will go to King’s Landing and in a pagan ritual she will marry also all of Margaery’s handmaidens along with Margaery again. They say they have enough love for all. It will be a full wedding Eddard. Sansa will be sleeping with not one woman but with Margaery and all of her handmaidens and a Septa to make it even better every night. She will be having sex with them Eddard. I also have the impression that other women will be brought to their bed to share amongst themselves.”

Eddard squinted at his wife contemplating. He chuckled. “You almost had me fooled there Cat.”

“I’m not joking Ned.”

“But that is …” Eddard paused his forehead creasing as he tried to wrap his mind around what he had just heard. He knew that Margaery had more than one or two female attendants. He kept trying to count them but stopped his attempts at accounting for Margaery’s handmaidens. He kept getting confused. He knew she had a lot of them and weren’t some of them her first cousins. That would be incest. He had known from reports that Margaery was ah—ahem, partaking of their bodies but he had chosen to try and ignore it. He just assumed she would leave them behind now that she was marrying Sansa. That Sansa would make an “honest” woman of Margaery. Not that Sansa would join Margaery in her—her, he was not sure what to call it. Freewheeling sex sort of discombobulated Eddard. “Is it six handmaidens?”

“Eight Eddard if you count the fallen Septa they fuck every night.”

“CAT!”

“Just telling it like it is Eddard. I fully support Sansa by the way.”

“CAT!”

“Ned if we are going to support our children then we need to fully support them. Like you say they are not hurting anyone and they are sharing love and life. If Sansa and Margaery can make it work and I admit I don’t see how they can do it, but, I will support them. You have seen how Sansa has blossomed with Margaery. I hate to say it but I have to be honest with myself now. I cowed and beat down our eldest daughter. I made her docile and weak.”

“Margaery has brought out Sansa’s natural strength and backbone. I like it. I like Sansa being strong and not doting and simpering. I did that to her and Margaery has undone the damage I did to my own daughter. I can never repay her for that. If Sansa wants to marry not only Margaery but her handmaidens too then I will not gainsay it. I want Sansa to be happy.”

“I see you and see Margaery and I realized I needed to change. I needed to be more like the two of you in being accepting and supportive of those I love. I have had an epiphany Eddard. I have thought about many things my husband. My near death experience and all these momentous events of the last year have changed me. I fully support Sansa and Margaery sharing of themselves so openly and freely. How they can make it work I don’t know. That is an awful lot of estrogen.”

Eddard smirked at that. “I say. My gods … that is a lot of menstrual cycles to deal with. Ahem … you know … PMS and all that” Eddard ended lamely. His wife looked at him with a benevolent smile on her face. Eddard was trying to be funny but his bashfulness hampered him.

'I have talked to both Margaery and Sansa. Margaery and Sansa are very much in love and will love each other deeply and totally but they will freely sleep with the other handmaidens. I think a lot of the time they will have multiple partners. But it seems that Margaery is partial to the Septa Nystierica. She loves her aggressiveness. It seems our sweet Sansa is quite the Direwolf with Margaery. She does the mounting in their relationship. She is the man in the relationship when it comes to things sexual and Magarey loves it. She wants to be dominated by two strong dominate women.'

"Of course every bitch has her night and many times it is Sansa getting mounted and fucked in her pussy deep and up her tight ass"

"CAT!" Eddard exclaimed near swooning. Gods Eddard thought. Had Stannis gotten ahold of his sweet wife and infected her with his new randy ways?!

Eddard was stunned with all this new information and how casually his wife was relying this news to him. She seemed to have fully accepted the idea of open relationship.

"Sansa eagerly awaits arriving in King’s Landing to take all the hens as her own. She is like you Ned. She will be the fox in the henhouse. She had made it clear though she is no fox but a Direwolf. I like the idea of our Sansa being dominate with all those women. Sansa tells me she loves using a strap-on on Margaery and will use it on all the maidens and plans on breaking the Septa to her will. Margaery tells me that she feels that Sansa may have bit off more than she can chew with the Septa. Margaery can’t wait to see it" Catelyn chuckled evilly.

Eddard stared at his wife. He was shocked that she was so easily accepting this new side of Sansa. He grimaced and nodded. He needed to practice what he preached.

"Wow Cat. This is quite the surprise. Our children are really choosing unique paths for themselves. Let’s see where it takes them."

///////////

Eddard was walking down the main meeting table in the largest meeting hall in the Great Keep. He had the Lords of the South, the leaders of the factions from the Land and Rickard Karstark, Wylis Manderly, Maege Mormont and Halys Hornwood of the North.

The meeting was the final meeting of all the Lords and leaders present in Winterfell before they marked in two days. The forces were ready and were highly motivated and of one mind but he and the Queen were in concurrence that this final meeting of minds and souls was necessary. Every great army marching to war needed to have this meeting to unite once more before their coming battle. There could be no dissension in their ranks; especially with the two traitorous Houses that would have to be taken down.

Eddard made eye contact around the room. “We will be leaving in two days to begin our march to the Wall. We have striven hard to reach this point. We will be the last main force to arrive. We have the might of Westeros and much of Essos arrayed to meet the Ice King. He will be met and destroyed.”

“We have the weapons to defeat our enemies. The Queen and I are sure that the Ice King does not realize that we come to him with literally mountains of obsidian tipped weapons. We have worked hard to make sure that House Bolton and Frey are not aware of this. With our strategy we will be able to decimate the undead Others. These weapons are also anathema to the Ice Wrights. We have dragons. We have Valyrian steel. We will annihilate our enemies at the Wall.”

“We are united as one except for two Houses that have chosen to align for some gods unknown reason with the enemy who means to slay us all. House Frey and Bolton will be dealt with when the time has come. It is their treachery that has led me and the Queen to have only a few of my fellow Lords of the North here now. We needed the other Lords at the wall so House Frey and Bolton will not become suspicious.”

“Those two houses can bring three and a half thousand cavalry and seven thousand foot to their treachery. The Queen has brought with her five thousand of her Unsullied with her. These forces are world renowned for being able to withstand any charge. Their lances will pierce and crush the cavalry charge of the two traitors houses. We will then fall on them in their disarray and on their flanks.”

“Fortunately, Missandei of Naathi has discovered their treachery and we are prepared. We will crush these traitors while still keeping the bulk of our forces aligned towards the wall.”

“As you know, the Ice King seems to have found the Horn of Winter. I fear the Wall will be brought down. This will be physiological blow but a fallen wall is still a terrible obstacle to overcome. The dead and the Ice Wrights will have to traverse over the wreckage of the Wall. They will be slow and awkward moving over the ice detritus of the wrecked Wall. We will kill the walking dead and the Ice Wrights with our obsidian arrows and spears. It does not matter where we kill them. Before, over, or after the Wall. We will rain obsidian and fire arrows upon our foes.”

“This battle will be fierce and no quarter will be given. All the foes of Westeros will be defeated and annihilated.”

Edmur asked if any quarter would be given to the two traitorous houses.

Eddard looked at him grimly “On the field of battle—No, they will be annihilated. Any who survive I and Daenerys Targaryen will judge on a case by case basis. All traitors caught will be executed if so judged. They have made their choice. If you attack the forces of light and life and have chosen death over life then you deserve your fate.”

“Does Westeros stand with the Warden of the North and the First of Her Name of Daenerys Targaryen The Breaker Of Chains.”

The roar was deafening. The Lords unsheathed their swords and pounded the pommels down upon the oaken wood table. Eddard was happy. He and the Queen had united Westeros behind them to face their mortal threat. Tomorrow would bring its own set of problems amongst the Houses of Westeros but for today they stood united. Those that were not with them were known and warded against. They would in time be dealt with.

Eddard sat down and watched the Queen of Westeros and most of Essos stand up. She was slight and small and yet she command the room. Every face followed her every movement and the caste of her face. The woman used her voice as a tool. Her chosen words, the cadence of her voice and how she carried herself as she rose to speak further put the Lords under her spell Eddard observed. The faces were in awe of this woman. She had conquered the known world and brought the rest under her control through treaty.

The emissaries from the Land did not have the raw zeal and fervor of the Lords of Westeros but Eddard felt their resolve and strength. They were few in number but he felt that they brought a strength of a Great House to the Battlefield. He had grown used to their strength and their abilities. The enemies of life had not. They would be a tidal wave on the battlefield.
The Queen spent a little time covering the ground that Eddard had gone over to show the unity of the North and the South.

Eddard watched his Arya. It was clear she was mesmerized by the Queen. He smiled. Finally, someone had put Arya under her spell. Arya hung on the Queen’s every word and her eyes worshipped every movement of the woman she loved. Arya was never phased by anything or anyone growing up. She was now totally entranced and in love with Daenerys Targaryen. His middle daughter had chosen well. To her right Sansa and Margaery held hands on the table with interlocked fingers of lovers and no one cared. The world was becoming a better place.

“We will leave on the rising of the sun the day after next. I have setup camps for to us rest at each evening all the way to the Wall. They will be well stocked with food and water. Dry clothing will be provided if needed and shelter for the night from the elements and warm meals provide every night now that we are approaching our destination and the weather is turning colder as we move north. Horses will be tended and cared for.”

“We are six hundred and eighty miles from the wall. With three or four days set aside to rest we can be at the wall in no more than thirty-eight days. We will arrive rested and refreshed.”

“My dragons are constantly overflying the Enemy Camp at the Fist of the First Men. The enemy seems to be making a slow pivot to the South but the vast majority of his forces are still there or in the forests to the North it seems. They are closer to the wall but their army is not organized and will take many months to straggle down to the Wall and then coalesce into a fighting force with any gravitas.”

“The spying of Jon’s wives and the experience of the Rangers of the Night’s Watch show that these Others move slowly and aimless if they have no foes before them. We have much time to arrive at the Wall and prepare for the Ice King and his forces.”

We will arrive before them and be prepared for their assault. I agree with Eddard. It does not matter if the Wall comes down or not. It will slow the enemy no matter what and make them easy to destroy. Hopefully, after the war we can make peace with the wildlings or make a détente and can live in peace with each other. But, again, that is a problem for another day.”

“I agree that the Ice King feels compelled to fight us on the same ground he lost on before. Castle Black marks that spot. We will fight the war there. There we will defeat our foe.”

“Let us put forth all our energy and focus on meeting the Ice King. He has chosen the spot of the battle but it will not matter. He has waited eight thousand years to rise from the dead. When he meets our force he will rue that he chose this time and the location of his past defeat to face us. As he was slain eight thousand years ago he will be slain again. And this time he will stay dead!”

The table erupted in wild cheers. Eddard joined in the cheers. He was not sure if they could actually kill such a being tied so intimately to the land but he would settle for another eight thousand years before his reappearance.

The meeting soon broke up after that. All stoked to go forth to the Wall and kill the enemies of Westeros.

He caught Daenerys eyes and asked her to stay with him.

Soon they were left alone others sensing they wanted to be alone together before the coming storm.

“I feel compelled to tell you my Queen a dreadful truth.”
The Queen looked at him calmly waiting for him to speak. She could sense that he was about to cast some aspersion upon himself. He was easy to read that way.

“It was House Stark that caused the First People to create the Ice King and his brothers. Brandon Stark led the genocide. Of the original Ice Wrights, one created by those faery people was a Lord from my House. Only he survives from the originals. Alas, he has found a way to make new Ice Wrights. It was my House’s unrelenting campaign against the true heirs of this land that forced them to create the horror we now face.”

“Why do you tell me this Warden of the North?” Daenerys asked Eddard Stark.

“It was my family that created this horror. I am responsible for this war.”

“When did Brandon Stark do this harm to the Children of the Forest?”

“In the Age of Heroes eight thousand years ago.”

“I thought so. Eddard Stark. If you had been alive eight thousand years ago we would not be fighting this war now. The First People would have found peace with you and the Ice Wrights would never have been created.”

“You were not alive then. You are alive now. We will undo the harm of the past and create a better tomorrow. Missandei had told me of your plans for the restoration of wildlife to the North and long to replant the Weirwood trees. I fully support this in the North. Your land is unpopulated by and large. In the South there are still large tracts of unvarnished lands. I will begin programs there of restoration.”

“But that is for another day. Today we go north to the Wall to fight and win a war. Let this be a time of Reclamation.”

Daenerys

The Queen of Westeros sat on Arya’s bed with a happy smile on her face. Life was so good for her now. Last night she and Arya had made wild love deep into the night. She shivered remembering just how good the sex was between them. It left her exhausted and satiated. Arya was a fast learner in everything she set her mind too. She pleasured Dany now like she was a skilled whore in the brothels of Lyse that catered to women of the Sapphic persuasion.

A woman knows when another woman loves pussy and Arya loved pussy. Her pussy! Only her pussy! Dany had only desire for Arya now that she had finally found her soulmate. She had worried at first that Arya may find her less desirable because of her extensive past with other women and her couplings with men.

She had been thankful and supremely pleased that Arya could care less about her lover’s past sexual exploits. Arya was of the mindset that they made Dany into the wonderful lover that drove her crazy in bed and made her cunt scream in agonizing pleasure. Arya was in fact thankful for Dany’s past. She hungered to take their lovemaking to even further limits. She had made it clear to Dany that all of Arya’s body was the Queen’s.

Daenerys shivered at the implications. Dany had discovered she had a definite kinky side to her sexual nature. It seemed that Arya had the same nature and hungered to explore those aspects of lesbian sex. Dany longed to take Arya to those realms of hard sex and rougher sex and the use of strap-ons and toys. She longed to take Arya’s anal virginity but she held off.
She wanted to revel in those discoveries with Arya and fully enjoy it. She did not feel like this was the time yet for those aspects of their lovemaking. She and Arya were still discovering and reveling in the more traditional aspects of lesbian lovemaking. But when the time came they would begin to explore other aspects of what women could do with each other in bed.

Dany smiled down at Arya. Arya was waiting but was making it clear that she longed to start using toys and to partake of BDSM. Dany was a switch and it had become obvious to the Queen that Arya was one too. That made the Queen shiver at the implications. Dany loved to use the whip on her lovers when it was time to get kinky, but, she loved to be on the receiving end of the cattail as well.

With Arya she would be able to partake of it all. What was that saying? … Yes … she would have her cake and eat it too. She knew the meaning but sometimes wonder how it got that meaning … I mean, if you had your cake of course you would eat it. Idioms were sometimes strange.

Daenerys gentle stroked Arya’s bangs away from her eyebrows. Dany loved a woman’s eyebrows and Arya’s were strong, thick and dark. She loved them. Hers were so pail!

Arya was a strong and confident lover who fucked Dany hard like she needed it. Dany had been so thankful that Arya liked to be fucked hard in return. They were often gentle in their love but when the fuck hunger was raging in their blood they would fuck each other hard to make the orgasms as explosive and wonderful as possible. They would fuck hard to begin with and then move to gentle. Then of course they started gentle and moved to hard. Daenerys loved the variability in their lovemaking. It would keep their sex lives strong and vital.

Daenerys would not allow their lovemaking to become stilted and staid. She would keep it hot and dynamic. She knew that Arya would help in that. Arya was not passive in their lovemaking. Arya fully engaged with Daenerys in their sexual trysts. The Queen felt her so fortunate that her soul mate was perfect in all ways. Daenerys would not have to pull back or hide her natural wants and desires with her Direwolf.

The two simply could not keep their hands off each other. They had to have each other. Their hunger flaring each night for each other. It also burned during the day when they could find time to have sweet sexual romps. They could not wait to couple yet again and express their deep abiding love for each other. But the rest of their relationships were proving to be so perfect too. Arya was simply perfect for the Queen.

She had her lover, best friend and confident all in one person.

Many women that Dany had met and fucked simply had no curiosity about the world. They were focused on living their immediate life. When she tried to engage them in discussions of policy or philosophy they would ask her “how will that but food on my table; who does this help me support my children”. She could understand their view. They were about their immediate life and providing for themselves, their children and their loved ones.

The Queen realized that only women who came from powerful families in royalty or from rich families in the mercantile classes could women find the resources to not worry about day to day worries. She found that even in such women a lack of curiosity. Why couldn’t women be curious about the world around them? She had found the same lack of curiosity in men but she did not worry about them. She had no desire for any man.

Arya was intensely curious of the world and how Dany was navigating the world of Game of Thrones. She loved to discuss Dany’s thoughts and plans that she was developing. Arya was happy to hear Dany wax philosophical about the world and man’s place in it. When Dany told her a factoid about the world Arya hungrily listened and often asked probing questions seeking more knowledge. Daenerys loved that about her future wife.

After they had exhausted themselves fucking each other till their pussies were exhausted and purring Dany would go over her thoughts and fears with Arya. Arya and would listen and give her thoughts. She only offered her insights and thoughts. She made it clear that Dany was the Queen and she would support Dany. She had absolute faith that Dany would weigh the factors and make the right decision. She thought that Dany was like her father. That touched the Queen deeply. For Arya, that was the highest praise.

“My father is a great man. I did not think he had an equal but now I know he does. It is you Dany. You both seek always the greater good. You seek to make the world a better place. Your like is sadly lacking in this world Dany. If the world was more like you and my father this world would be a much better place. You both seek to lift up and not tear down. I have seen enough to know that is so rare. To truly put the realm and its citizen first. I fear you two are unique and thus precious.”

That had made Dany feel so good. She admired Eddard Stark greatly and knowing Arya saw her as his equal in conscious and deeds was a good feeling. Eddard Stark was a great ideal to hold oneself up to.

They would discuss events and her thoughts on courses of action. Arya was insightful and thought before she spoke. Dany loved seeing those steel grey eyes glint with the thoughts whirring behind those orbs. Arya gave her answers and then would go back and forth with Dany to help the Queen form a decision. It helped Dany so much to have a strong, intelligent confident to go over her thoughts and future actions with. It helped the Queen immensely to be able to speak of her thoughts and desires with someone she knew would never betray her.

Dany had her trusted advisors but it helped her immensely to bounce ideas off of Arya first in their bed when she was totally relaxed after great sex and she could let her mind drift and think outside the box. She did not have to fear ridicule or senseless arguments. Arya was always rational and reasoned in her thoughts and advice.

The one thing that Arya made clear was that she wanted no part of the actual Game of Thrones. She hated trying to decipher hidden motives and the mendacity of people. It made her head hurt. She wanted to trust people but too many had proven her trust was unwarranted. She did not want the burden of having to make those judgements. She would leave that to Dany. Arya told her Queen that she could pierce their deceptions easily and knew how to deal with them. Arya wanted to ‘beat the shit out of them.’

Arya wanted to be the weapon, the tool, which Dany could use to achieve her goals and policies.

“I see myself as your Queensguard but also … like … I don’t know—a faceless man. An assassin working in the shadows to help achieve your aims and goals Dany. I am to go to Braavos after the war to fulfill your debt to the Iron Bank.” She felt Dany squirm. “We are sizably reducing the debt of the Iron Throne to the Iron Bank Dany. So stop wiggling. I long to help you remove the yoke of Westeros’s debt to the Iron Bank. The enemy to your rule come in many guises Dany. We will strike them all down!” Arya had crowed. It had made Daenerys smile.

Dany kissed Arya’s forehead and stroked her loves back as Arya snuggled into her side and adjusted her cheek on Dany’s shoulder. Arya kissed Arya’s neck and she murmured in her sleep. Dany continued to reflect on her conversation on Arya’s coming mission to Braavos and the Iron Bank.

“We both know I am not going there to be a diplomat. You have told me and Varys and Tyrion have briefed me on Braavos with their scrolls of what we know of Iron Bank and the House of Black and White. There is tension there and building. We have the Sea Lord and all the wantabes constantly vying with each other. Their quarrels both public and clandestine. You have the primary crime organization the Autarchy and the smaller organizations vying to usurp them. The city of Braavos is full of Bravos itching for a fight and a night life ripe with death and avarice.”

“I much prefer all that Dany than the Iron Throne and all the subterfuge that revolves around it. You have to work with these miscreants. You have to use diplomacy to keep the peace. Give me an enemy who is at least honest enough to confront you head on. I plan on kicking some ass in Braavos Dany. I and my team will achieve all of your needs and goals my Queen. I swear it!” Dany again had laughed. Her Arya could be so cheesy when she wanted to be.

Dany did not want to send Arya to Braavos without her but she knew she needed to govern. This war was distracting her from her goals and objectives. If a strong leader was not present guiding the levers all would come apart quickly. Also, the Iron Bank had made it clear that they did not want Daenerys present with Arya. Arya was an unknown to the world of Braavos. Dany had simply become too great and well known to be effective in any clandestine operation.

Varys, Olenna and the Jackals of Dorne were working all their sparrows, canines and moths while Tyrion worked his contacts and insights. It was clear that major forces were at play in Braavos. The truly free city was a locus point in the changing world. Forces were coming to the fore that had been hidden for many years. New entities were rising up that would in time challenge the Queen. These corporations sounded subtle and dangerous.

A rouge agent named the Wharf King had made contact with one of Varys’ agent. He wanted to work with the Queen. He knew she or her agent was coming. Could he be trusted? The Queen sighed. Only the future would tell.

Dany played with Arya’s hair as she went to sleep. Yes, Arya was the perfect lover and confident to Daenerys Targaryen.

Arya, also, was the perfect mate in their personal lives outside of their bed and the throne room. Arya was funny (in a restrained way with the subtle ripostes and snarky comments). Her humor made Dany smile and chuckle. She was a keen observer and squired peoples false fronts and pretensions.

She had a good attitude about what was possible but kept a jaundice eye on people and was prepared for the worst if necessary. Arya tried to see events and goals from all angles. Just like Dany did. Arya wanted the best outcome that produced the most good for the people but realized that it might be difficult to get there. So many people had silly side games and outright nefarious intents.

Dany had learned that hard lesson in her conquest of Slaver’s Bay.

Arya was good to people and that warmed the heart of Dany. In fact, every Stark had that quality. Their father had it and had succeeded in imparting that quality to his children. All of them. That was impressive Dany thought to herself. To have five children old enough to show their true personalities and all of them were great human beings. Dany knew that Catelyn Stark had been instrumental in raising their children but she knew the greatness she saw in the next generation of Starks came from one source and that source was Eddard Stark.

That openness of spirit and accepting heart was manifest in Arya’s complete and immediate acceptance of Kiserri. Arya had loved her sweet daughter from the moment she saw Kiserri. There had been no hesitation in Arya to love Kiserri. Her daughter had sensed that total acceptance of her by Arya and fallen completely trustingly in love with her new mommy.
Daenerys had not any choice but to love her daughter when she appeared at her hip on her march into exile. Arya had every reason to not accept Kiserri as her daughter. Arya was barely sixteen and just becoming a woman herself and Daenerys had asked her to accept the full responsibility of helping her to raise a girl going on six years of age.

Dany smiled and she pulled her sleeping woman tighter to her body remembering how Arya just loved Kiserri from the moment she saw the little Dothraki girl in her bed. Dany had tried to give Arya and out. That Kiserri was her daughter and her responsibility and she would understand if Arya did not want to be part of Kiserri’s upbringing.

Arya had flown hot with Dany at that. “I love this girl with all my heart. You heard her. She calls me momma! She is my daughter too! I will not be denied being her mother too!”

Daenerys had broken down and cried at that. They had made heated love yet again. Daenerys had thought she was exhausted but seeing Arya accept her daughter so totally and unconditionally had filled her body with fire for Arya. The sex wonderful and so binding. It really was two souls becoming one.

They were in the nursery dropping off Kiserri. They would be leaving in the morning to march forth to destiny. Both Dany and Arya were filled with excitement to finally be setting off to meet the Ice King and to defeat him. They were prepared both mentally and physically for the challenge of the coming war. As she moved, the bells in her hair tinkled while they gleamed in the light. She had added bells of gold and bronze to the collection of bells in her hair. Daenerys had long ago passed the point that she could wear all the bells she had earned in battle and conquest.

Arya was walking around with Kiserri on her hip. Their daughter excitedly talking to Arya in her native Dothraki tongue. It was a blessing that Infelice had given Arya the gift of speaking Dothraki fluently. Arya had been very good with High Valyrian but she now spoke it fluently and understood all the idioms and trick of phrases. That had been a gift to Daenerys as well this gift of tongues from the Elohim.

She loved screaming out in her two first languages her passion and love for Arya when she was fucking her to killer orgasms. It was really rad to be able to talk to you woman in three languages and have her fully understand you. Her daughter called Daenerys mother or mommy in Dothraki and Arya mother or momma in her tongue. It was so endearing.

Yes, Arya was the perfect lover, confident, consort and mother. Arya sat Kiserri down on a chair. The little girl looking around the nursery looking for playmates. Wehhi had then picked up Kiserri. Daenerys had pulled the woman from the supply train following the movement of the Lords marching north to Winterfell and soon to the Wall.

Wehhi had taken a seamstress as her wife in King’s Landing. Aurola Norridge was a beautiful brunette with a slender frame. She had formed a union or so she thought with a knight from the Stormlands. He had left Aurola with child and quickly disappeared upon hearing the news. Dany when she heard it had been furious but Wehhi did not want the man found.

The Dothraki lass had fallen for the beautiful brunette woman upon first sight and quickly seduced the woman. She had happily taken the unexpected pregnancy in stride. She had hovered over her wife the whole trip up the King’s Road while still performing her duties tending to the horses in need of care and helping to cook meals at night in the camps. Aurola making sure that uniforms were mended and making new clothing as necessary.
They were now working in the nursery since Aurola had given birth to a beautiful blond girl soon after arriving in Winterfell. Wehhi was ecstatic. Aurola had named their new girl Hoyalli which meant to sing in Dothraki. Wehhi had wept at that. That her wife gave their daughter a Dothraki name with no last name. The Westerosi had made Dothraki garb for herself and was quite proficient in speaking Wehhi’s tongue though not fluent yet. Aurola came over with their newborn and talked to Kiserri in her accented Dothraki. Kiserri loved the accent and happily corrected Aurola’s mistakes. The sweet woman taking the corrections in step with a smile on her face. Kiserri felt even more important throwing out her chest with her new duty of language instructor.

The two women would remain behind in Winterfell. They would join the nursery staff and help with Kiserri. Catelyn was very attentive to Kiserri but she had many duties as wife to the Warden of Winterfell and to care for her own newborn. It was Catelyn’s duty to make sure the day to day operations of Winterfell were performed to the utmost efficiency. Catelyn Stark was most excellent at that those duties. She needed the help and Wehhi and her wife could give Kiserri a pair of women who could teach Kiserri more of the culture of her people whom roamed the Dothraki Sea. Aurola for all extents and purposes had become Dothraki herself.

Kiserri was anxious to help Aurola and Wehhi change the newborn’s diapers. Dany smiled seeing Arya keep her distance. Arya still started to wretch when she attempted to change a diaper with number two in it. She looked positively ill at the mere mention of attempting the feat.

Kiserri finished “helping” with changing the diaper had started to interact with all the other children in the room. With Wehhi and Aurola to interpret the little Dothraki girl was quickly fitting in. Her natural sunny disposition and giving heart made all the other kids instantly bond with the black haired dark skinned girl.

Dany smiled. They saw only the girl and her actions. Her differences from them meant nothing. She loved it here in Winterfell. A bastion free of prejudice. Winterfell was indeed a magical place to reside in. Daenerys knew that King’s Landing could never be like this idyllic place but maybe over time she could at least ameliorate its worse tendencies.

Dany called a meeting for all the Lords and the Land representatives this morning. She told them she had a short ceremony she wanted to perform. She considered it very important. She had had Arya and Missandei thread her bells into her hair this morning. They had crafted a beautiful orchid over her left ear to signal she was spoken for. She was Arya’s mate and had made it clear that Arya would be her Queen. Daenerys had marveled again at the beautiful creations they made of her bells in her hair.

The Lords of the South easily accepted her wishes and she knew that the Lords of the North were following Eddard’s lead. He was to marry off both of his eldest daughters to women. She hoped that the victory in the coming war would further cement their acceptance of her marriage and the marriage of Sansa to Margaery. She would deal with any resistance if and when it reared its ugly head. Nothing would deter the Queen from instituting equal rights for homosexuals and equal progenitor for future heirs to the Iron Throne.

Woe would it be to any who would oppose her wishes on this.

She had on a fine linen top and tight slacks to accentuate her femininity. She was all woman and wanted all the men to know it. It would reinforce her decrees on her marriage and her decree she was about to give.

She entered the large meeting hall with Arya. She walked confidently and took the head of the table. All eyes followed her. Arya took a seat to her father’s left while Eddard Stark sat to her immediate right in highest honor.
“We have discussed the forthcoming war. I will not rehash that. In all wars there are causalities. We have worked hard to minimize those for our side. I hope with our diligent efforts that we will crush the enemy with minimal loss of life.”

She reached underneath the table to retrieve the two swords she had put there this morning.

“In these scabbards are the swords of Rhaenys Targaryen and her brother Aegon Targaryen. The runes name the swords Foe Hammer and Blackfyre. You have seen my sword Foe Hammer. I have taken it as mine.” She pulled it from its sheath and it fired up a bright blue filling the air around the Queen. “It is a rune sword that most did not know existed in Westeros. Only the greatest smiths could create them. Only the owner of the sword could fire up the runes. It is tuned to your ‘soul’.”

“The exception are the greatest of Dragon Lords. We have the power to fire up any weapon made from such skilled smiths. I am a Dragon Lord. I have the power and strength to fire up the runes. It is my destiny.”

She stopped talking. She handed the sword of Aegon to Eddard. “Please remove the sword.”

Eddard smiled shyly. He knew he did not have the power. He pulled the steel out of its beautiful scabbard. The beautiful blue Valyrian steel was on view for all to see. It was a normal sword.

“Eddard Stark the greatest swordsman in Westeros except his equal Barristan Selmy.” The room was silent.

“Eddard. Please hand the sword of Aegon Targaryen the Conqueror of Westeros to Arya. It was this sword my great progenitor wore when Torrhen Stark, known as the King Who Knelt, bowed to Aegon.”

Eddard handled the hilt to Arya. He smiled at his daughter.

Loud gasps filled the room. Many had seen Arya with the sword glowing. What they had not known was the power needed to light it. They just assumed the sword would light up with anyone who grasped it. The instant Arya’s hand closed on the hilt the sword burst into blue fire the ghost runes burning brightly. Blue wisps of eldritch magic leaked from the blade and curled up.

“Arya Stark can hold a rune sword and fire it. Arya Stark can ride my dragons and not feel their heat. Arya Stark can communicate with them as I do. Arya Stark is a Dragon Lord as I am.”

Daenerys held out her hand for Arya’s sword. Her lover did not hesitate to give it to her. The woman had no guile or lust for power. In that she was her father’s child.

Daenerys Targaryen took the sword. She looked around the table making eye contact with all the lords and the representatives from the land.

“I fell in love with Arya Stark from the moment I met her. I knew I had found my soulmate but I hesitated. I hesitated because of tradition, expectations and political expediency. I am not a woman who hesitates in taking what is hers. Arya Stark is mine as I am hers. For the realm I hesitated. When she first grasped Aegon’s sword and fired it I knew I had indeed found my mate. I will take Arya Stark to wife.”

The Queen looked around the table. Eddard was smiling of course. Oberyn was beaming too. She looked at the Baratheon brothers. Renly was smiling big too. He knew this meant he could wed Loras Tyrell. Stannis was giving her a soft smile as well. The Lords of House Tyrell were giving her a look acceptance. Where not two of the next generation homosexuals. Mace and his first two sons nodded their agreement. Most of the other Lords were while not smiling with large smiles she could read their acceptance in their countenance. She saw only a small number with a look of quickly hidden discomfiture. Only two showed any disgust and they blanched when her violet eyes locked with theirs.

The Queen was satisfied. She had the support she needed. With time, more and more would accept her decrees in these matters with complete acceptance. If the church of the Holy Sept fought her on this she would take them on and if necessary take them down. She had brought down all who had opposed her in Essos. She would do so here to if she must. Her will to take Arya as her mate would not be denied. Besides, it was the right thing to do.

Daenerys felt confident to continue. “Arya, as your grandfather so many times removed did for my grandsire I do for you Arya Stark wife of my heart.” Daenerys Targaryen bent the knee and handed up the sword of Aegon with both hands to a now crying Arya Stark. She took the sword and hugged it to her chest. “Henceforth this sword is of the House of Stark. If I can find a smith who still works the runes it will be given a new lineage.”

Daenerys rose back up. “We go to war. If I should fall in battle then Arya Stark will be Queen.” Arya started to protest. Daenerys with her eyes asked Arya to demure and she complied. Daenerys went on. “If we both fall in battle then Eddard Stark shall be king. If he falls then Stannis Baratheon will be king. If we all fall then Tyrion Lannister and Olenna Tyrell will be co-regents till Kiserri comes of age.”

“I plan on us all returning so hopefully it will not come to that. When the war is won I will soon marry Arya Stark as my Queen. At that time Sansa Stark will marry Margaery Tyrell and Robb Stark will marry Alys Karstark. We three couples will be wed here in Winterfell.”

The room was silent. She looked around and she saw acceptance on the vast numbers of the faces looking back at her. The few exceptions would have to get with the program. She would work on them. She knew she had strong allies in this. She would win out and do so without having to use force. Her victory over the Ice King would give her immense stature and coin with the Lords. She would use it.

“This meeting is adjourned.” She left the meeting with her wife to be. She wanted her edict ringing in the air. She had spoken and her will would be done.

/////////

Dany was eating lunch with the other couples that would be wedding soon. The light banter, jokes and acceptance all around warmed Dany’s heart. She loved Margaery, Sansa and Alys like sisters and couldn’t wait to be wedded with them to their spouses. She liked Robb. He was much like his father and may in time grow to become like Eddard Stark though in Dany’s mind there would only ever be one Eddard.

The man had definitely raised wonderful compassionate and loving children. She laughed at Margaery being bawdy and Sansa’s face going red. Dany wondered if Sansa would always blush in public. From what Arya and Margaery told the Queen, Sansa was all slut in bed and excitedly partook of all straight forward lesbian lovemaking. She also loved the toys and strap-on sex. She loved BDSM sex and being roughed up and as much, if not more, roughing up Margaery. She loved it in the ass. All and all behind closed doors Sansa was quite the liberated lesbian slut. Good girl Daenerys thought.

Dany shivered hard. Gods she hoped Arya was into all that as avidly as Sansa was. Arya said she was. Hopefully once she tried those things she would indeed find out she loved what her sister loved. Sometimes a woman might think she was into something until she tried it. Then she found it was not quite what she thought it might be and would not want to partake of it anymore. Maybe over time she might come to like it but it would be a process. Dany hoped that Arya would indeed be as adventurous as she claimed she wanted to be. Gods they would be completely compatible in bed if that was so.

She ate more of the brown rice in a chicken broth. She loved the chicken cooked so long it almost melted off the bone. She had never had dumplings before but the flour soaked in the soup made of chicken broth and flour was exquisite. She loved the food of the North. She laughed at Alys blushing when Margaery got Robb to admit he couldn’t wait to see his wife stripped naked and carried up the stairs of Winterfell of their bedchamber.

She glanced over at Sansa who was blushing. Arya was busy eating fast and low her mouth just over her food. She would not look up at Dany. Dany patted her on the back and whispered to her “I will cure you of that shyness my wolf … one day I will fuck you before Khalasar on the Dothraki plains. The Dothraki will want their Khaleesi to fuck her mare before them. I will make you howl as I lunge my strap-on balls deep into your womb and rip you ass wide open on my love dick. You will scream in ecstasy my sweet Wolfling.

Arya’s face was so red she looked like she might catch fire. Daenerys smiled. Arya looked embarrassed but she also saw a hot fuck hunger in Arya’s blown pupils. She wanted to be fucked like that! Margaery was patting Sansa hard on the back with her own sweet Dirwolf swallowing something down the wrong path.

Dany had heard something about fisting Sansa in front of Tyrion who was after the hens to fuck before him. Margaery told Sansa “Sooner or later he has to succeed against my grandmother. With Tyrion watching, you can be the one initially fucking me in the ass as I get TP fucked and you get in front of me so I can suck my ass off your dick.” Margaery was stroking Sansa saying this in a coy voice fluttering her eyelashes.

Dany laughed at how Margaery managed to look so much like an ingénue while being a pure sweet depraved lesbian slut. Dany smiled to Margaery. They both knew that soon both of the Starks would be equally depraved. Soon they would love to fuck their women in front of others. It was written in the stars Dany knew. Her old Dothraki cultural immersion coming to the surface again.

From what Alys was telling them Robb had been very narrow minded when they lost their virginities together. She had older friends and now exposure to Margaery and Daenerys. Robb had loved the new things that Alys wanted them to do in bed. Daenerys had to smirk. What man did not want a depraved slut in his bed that craved hot ‘nasty’ sex? The man would think he had died and gone to heaven.

Dany was very happy with the progress the Stark scions were making in the bedroom. All three were quite willing to learn to be much more depraved in bed than they had ever imagined when their women first came into their lives.

After lunch Arya took her hand and they slowly walked towards the Godswood.

“I want to share it with you Dany. Just you and me.”

As they slowly walked up the gentle slope towards the sacred woods they saw the Lord Lustra coming out hand in hand with Brail her Bloodguard. The Haruchai said something and Lustra laughed great big. She laughed and smiled now. They were happy for the formally sad and angry woman. She picked up Brail and swirled her around in a circle kissing her passionately. The smaller woman looped her arms and legs around the strong Lord and they snogged fiercely.
They finally broke for air and hurried to the Guards Hall where the Haruchai bivouacked when keeping to their own people. They were rushing hand and hand with Lustra laughing and jerking the stoic Haruchai along behind. They saw the briefest of smile on the Haruchai’s face. That was a shout of love for that demure people. All knew that the Lord and Bloodguard fucked almost every day in the Godswood. Must be nice to be immune to the cold like she and Arya were immune to fire. Dany herself because of her hot nature could endure the cold fairly well but Arya did not have that natural affinity unfortunately.

You can fuck in the cold but not a fire. What a strange thought Daenerys mused to herself.

Dany walked into the Godswood hand in hand with Arya their fingers interlocked. She loved holding her lover’s hand in such a way that all could see they were lovers. She had hated conquering her way across Essos always being told she would have to marry a man to solidify her power. She had had the worry of an heir in her subconscious but now with Kiserri returned to her that problem was removed.

She would raise up her daughter with Arya to be just and magnanimous but also have the ability to judge when force would be needed to keep the peace.

They entered the Godswood and the outside world in some ways ceased to exist. The world was still here. The concerns and tribulations of the outside world seemed to slough off the Queen’s shoulders and instead peace and comfort enfolded the pale haired Valyrian. She looked back out the path they had entered the Godswood and saw the Great Keep in the distance and other structures but it was as if they were in a hazy dream far off. They were no longer important in this scared groove. She could feel the pulse of old magic in this place. It was a potent magic of life and purity unlike the corruption and decay of the House of the Undying.

They walked deeper into the grove and felt the ambient temperature rising as they approached the Weirwood tree. The Queen smirked. No wonder the Lord and the Haruchai loved to fuck here. The temperature had moderated at least twenty-five degrees warmer if not thirty. One would think that a Dream of a Spring was near. The air seemed to warm even more with her pleasant thoughts.

Her head turned. Did she hear a faint melody? She swore she heard the murmur of whispers far off. She looked at Arya. Daenerys could see that Arya did not feel it.

Daenerys looked around at the thick brush and brambles that filled the space between the trees. She heard songbirds singing and sparrows were on the ground picking up seeds and grit. She looked deeper into the woods and saw a silver back fox looking at her before disappearing. The fox had shown no fear only curiosity. Looking off to the left she saw a badger lifting its head from its burrow beneath a blackberry patch of twisted branches with their thorns. The badger staring at her unafraid.

The wildlife here was not afraid of man. A testament of the Starks. Dany pulled Arya to her body tight enjoying the feel of her soon to be wife against her. She looked up at the Dornish moss hanging from the branches of the maples and birch trees. She noticed many of the leaves still clung to the branches though they had lost their green. Again she felt like she was lost in a Dream of a Spring yet to come. They would conquer the Ice King and then spring could spring forth the Queen thought with a smile.

They walked on till they were before the Weirwood tree and its carved face. She looked at the eyes and mouth that wept red sap. The tongues of sap running down the bark towards the roots of the tree. She felt peace emanating from the Weirwood tree. The face seemed natural to the tree. One might think it grotesque, the face carved in the bark but to the Queen it felt right.
The rays of light that filtered through the tree boughs made this place feel like the center of the world. She supposed the Tree of Life was the true center of life in Westeros but this was close. She had read in a tome Missandei gave her that in some mystical way all the Weirwood trees were connected to the Tree of Life in the North above the Wall. That Greenseers such as Bran had become could see out through the trees across Westeros.

Those that survive she thought sadly. Her eyes widened and she shook her head.

“What is it Dany?” Arya asked her.

“It was most strange my love. I was thinking how sad it is that so many of the Weirwood trees have been felled. Your father wants to restore them but is not sure how. For some reason I had a vison of Ur-viles and Waynhim in a large cavern. They were arguing with each other as is their norm and doing wild acrobatics. They were doing something important I sensed. Strange.” Daenerys shook her head wondering why such a strange errant thought came to her.

She looked around at the moths and other insects flying though the wafting shafts of light. A robin snatched a moth out of the air. A blue jay cried out its warning. A small antelope scurried down on an animal path to take another through the luxuriant growth to the north of the Weirwood tree. Eddard refused to have any game shot in Winterfell and a small herd of Pronghorn Antelope thrived in and around the environs of Winterfell. She had seen a few taken down by the Direwolves but that was nature at work and not man. The antelope running around on the grounds and out the gates at their free will.

They were now before the pool that lay at the roots of the Weirwood tree looking at the face. The face was inscrutable Dany thought. The emotion you saw in the carved wood was what the watcher brought in their heart. Dany looked up at the tree with its five-pointed red leaves whose color was the same as the red sap leaking from the cut face on the tree. The smooth bark on its wide trunk and long limbs were bone white.

A Weirwood will live forever if undisturbed Dany had read. She found that hard to believe since all things die. While they could live forever they were still vulnerable. They could be chopped down, burned or poisoned. So much had been lost. Like Eddard she hoped to restore the trees across Westeros.

She had read from the books that Tyrion had brought back from the Citadel how Greenseers of the children of the forest could see through the eyes of Weirwoods with carved faces. Since trees have no sense of time, the greenseer could see into the past or present when looking through the eyes of a tree. It was said that through the faces on the Weirwoods the old gods watched over the followers of the old ways and bore witness to important events.

Thus, Weirwoods were used to bear witness to important ceremonies such as marriages. It said that it is impossible to lie in the presence of a heart tree. Dany liked that thought. She and Arya had no secrets in their hearts. Their love for each other was pure and sacred as this groove. There would be peace in their marriage as there was in this sacred groove. There would be fights to be sure as there were storms. They would weather them as the Weirwood trees weathered the fierce storms that blew in from the north.

Weirwoods once grew throughout Westeros and Daenerys planned on that happening again. She was not sure how to make it happen but she longed to make it so. She hoped the surviving Children of the Forest would carve faces in the new grown Weirwoods in future generations when the trees grew large enough. Let there be new Greenseerers to promote the old ways Daenerys fervently hoped.
The two lovers skittered around the shallow pool to stand before the Weirwood tree. The leaves rustling even though there was no wind. The two women observed the long strands of moss tendrils hanging from the limbs. The moss swaying back and forth gently on invisible unfelt currents.

“Can you feel it Dany? Can you feel the scared air and the feel of the Earth sighing? It is so strong.”

Dany could feel it “Yes I do Arya. This is the most sacred ground I have stepped upon. At the Tree of Life I was in a life and death struggle. I felt nothing there but I feel it here. There is something magical here in this place. When I was guided through here before with others by Eddard I sensed it but here with just the two of us I feel it like a bass drum rhythmically being pounded.”

“I can feel it too Dany. I feel so connected to the Earth in this place. All that is good about life flows through groves like this.”

The leaves began to rustle more and the moss strands moved more forcefully. Both women stood still as deer. The branches in the now rising breeze bent down. The wind was not strong enough to bend the branches and yet they bent low. Their leaves brushing over the face of Daenerys Targaryen. The moss sweeping over her shoulders and coming to rest for a long moment like a royal mantel. Then the moss would blow off her shoulders. The breezes carrying the moss to and fro but always they came back to rest on Daenerys Targaryen’s shoulders.

“The old gods recognize you Dany” Arya whispered reverently.

Dany was about to argue when she and Arya heard loud cawing. They looked up at a large crow staring down at them from the Weirwood tree. It had three eyes that stared at the Queen intensely. I screamed out its qworks and tilted its head singing its unknowable song.

The two women hand and hand looked up at the large black bird transfixed. Its head worked back and forward as the bird cawed and crowed loudly. The bird cawed hard its feather’s ruffled out. It stared down at the two women. It would hop from foot to foot moving its head like it expected an answer.

Dany and Arya had none to give. The leaves rustled harder and brushed over Dany’s face. The moss now hanging down off her shoulders. The strands holding in place.

“My gods Dany. It as if the old gods are crowning you as their Queen.”

Daenerys looked up at the three eyed crow letting it know she was not afraid. She would meet her destiny but she did not think she was being crowned. Her world was the world of man. She would partner with the old gods to restore the land but she was not their Queen. Not in this time and this place.

The crow cawed for another minute hopping from branch to branch all the time staring down at the two women but it was clear that the bird was focused on the Queen. The bird stopped cawing. It bobbed its head as if in agreement. The three eyed crow then flew off flying through the branches to clear the scared grove. It was flying straight north.

The two lovers hugged each other mulling over the portents they had just witnessed.

Oberyn

Snorting and pushing a leg off his face the Red Viper unceremoniously rolled out of bed and landed with a loud thump on his side on the floor. He sat up rubbing his face and rocking on his ass cheeks. He was nude. It was the middle of the night. He saw Stannis and Renly snoring with Fohn snuggled on Stannis’s broad body. Her legs hanging over his ribs her head on his shoulder sleeping and snuggling in close.

Oberyn shook his head to get the fuzzies out. He smiled thinking back to earlier this night while looking around himself. Such sweet memories filled his mind.

Renly had his arms wrapped Char on his right and Trami on his left as they slept. Earlier they had tagged teamed Renly making him howl on the cock fucking his throat while his asshole had been plundered again and again. Oberyn, was brought back to the present. He saw Fohn start to slip off Stannis’s body but he reached up in his sleep and pushed Fohn back onto his chest and stomach. The girl wiggled her pussy on his hard stomach sighing in spent contentment. Oberyn snorted his thoughts going back to last night.

Loras and Stannis had fucked all of Fohn’s holes hard and deep with Harrnor joining the fun. Renly only wanted to fuck males where Loras was a true one hundred percent bisexual. He was in love with Renly but when they wanted to have playmates. Renly only wanted cock where Loras loved whatever he could fuck.

“Hey, a hole is a hole” was Loras’s mantra.

Fohn had loved sucking the three men to hardness and then being fucked up hard and hung up wet. Three men slamming their thick long cock hard up her ass and pussy in DP with the third shoving their long schlong deep down the sweet slut’s throat. The three men gripping the cord’s body and lunging their pricks deep up her pussy, ass and down her throat. Her lithesome body jolting and roughly held place so three hard dicks could slam deep into her willing hungry fuck holes.

The slut cried out she could feel their dickheads jacking over each other in her belly. Her face twisted and slashed with the ecstasy she felt having two cocks furiously slammed deep into her belly hard and deep with spearing thrusts that jolted her body hard. She had cummed screaming twice. The last time her spasming fuck holes had both Stannis and Loras roaring as they speared the Ramen Cord deep their dicks spewing hot ribbons of sperm into her womb and up her ass.

Harrnor had let the cord scream out her orgasm when he gripped her hair and jerked her head up. The groggy slut opened her mouth and started to suck his cock like she was dying from thirst. Harrnor no longer kept his control and soon his head ripped back and screamed as the cord sucked semen up his thick long shaft with deep throat love sucks. His body convulsing hard with throttling bliss. His face no longer stoic but twisted with almost agonizing pleasure.

The four were temporarily spent. After a few minutes, Loras moved on to find a new partner. Oberyn was more than happy to move in to replace his absence. Fohn all soaked in sweat and her hair plastered to her face and neck. They rested and drank water and ate raisins. Fohn recovered and looked at her fuck mates with doe eyes. She was soon on her knees sucking the three men to hardness again.

The Haruchai sure could fuck. When they were fucking they growled, groaned and screamed out with the best of them. Fohn had squealed like a filly as Harrnor held her up easily with his grip on her ass cheeks. She had her arms and legs wrapped around his torso. The Haruchai flexing his hips and working his knees to ram his cock with virulent force up into the slut’s spasming cunt. The Ramen and Haruchai kissing with fuck hunger. Fohn gagging her eyes rolling into her skull with Harrnor ramming his tongue down her throat.

Oberyn and his now close friend moved in to join the fun. First Stannis moved and slapped Fohn’s ass hard making her squeal into Harrmor’s neck. He stilled his fucking. Stannis moved in as Oberyn watched approvingly. Stannis pulled Fohn’s ass cheek back and pressed his massive bulbous dickhead into her rosebud. He growled and slammed up impaling Fohn’s shithole with his thick towering prick. The slut crying out in pain but much more pleasure feeling her ass torn in two with thick veined cock.

All knew now of Fohn’s love for anal sex. The slut’s sphincter rings loosened with her starfish nice and loose from recent hard anal fucking. It made for easy invasion and slamming thick dick balls deep up Fohn’s hungry shithole. The sweet teenager groaning so hard deep in her chest as her asshole was fucked with sweet feverish strokes of deep anal plundering.

With a smile on his face, Oberyn watched the two strong buff men jerk Fohn up and letting her body drop impaling her fuck holes on their thick hard ramming cocks up her cunt and ass. Their shafts soaked in her fuck juice. The men pulling out her cunt and ass with sweet fuck juice splattering out. Fohn jammed down to her knees forcefully like she liked it. She loved to be controlled while fucking.

The slut dove on the cocks soaked in her cunt and shit juice. The veined shafts slavered with the effluent from her hard fucked pussy and asshole. Fohn sucked with cheek hollowing sucks cleaning her fuck holes off the shafts. When she was pulled up Stannis stepped aside as Fohn jumped backup on Harrnor. Harrnor guided his cock to her drooling clamshell and slammed it home balls deep making Fohn gurgle and whinny her face torn with ecstasy. Oberyn watched for a minute Fohn’s body jolting hard with dick savaging her tight cunny her small tits wallowing on Harrnor’s pecs.

The strong man easily lifting the small Ramen woman up his thick shaft that stretched out her pussy into a tight O ring around his veined shaft. Then slamming her down with savage force. The slut’s face tore with ecstasy as her body jolted hard with the dick slamming deep into her belly. Again and again Harrnor heaved the woman up and slammed her down impaling her cunny with hard rampaging cock. Her small tits whiplashing up add down with the force of hard dick lunging deep into her belly.

The Red Viper moved in. He slapped her ass cheeks hard for a minute with loud smacks making her cry out in pain and pleasure. Fohn’s ass cheeks now red. Then Harrnor stopped his fuck motion and Oberyn torpedo rammed his cock up Fohn’s ass pipe fully sheathing it up into her tight ass. The two men immediately started to stroke their dicks hard in and out Fohn’s pussy and asshole. Fohn cried out in pleasure her face slashing with her ecstasy. Her throat cawed and moaned like the slut she was. The two men fucked the sweet lass hard. Her body jerked and vibrated with two shafts slamming home with feral force buffeting the slut’s tight fuck holes with thick hard cock.

Then the two men sat Fohn down. She immediately fell to her knees. She eagerly sucked her pussy and ass off their cock with happy slurps and moans. Her head bobbed fast her lank hair jerking with her cheeks hollowing out with her fuck hunger to suck her pussy and ass off the dicks giving her such sweat pleasure. Then she rose up to be mounted again. Now it was Stannis fucking her pussy while Harrnor ripped her asshole to shreds making Fohn shriek with pulses of anal ecstasy. Both men arching their backs to lunge their pricks up into their fuck slut filling her fuck holes with hot dick.

Back and forth Fohn was taken by the three men. Their strong bodies easily holding her up. Only letting her down to clean their cocks of her cunny and butthole juice. The slut came hard with her arms around Harrnor and Oberyn’s shoulders her body levered between the two men lunging their pricks up into her exploding fuck holes. Her body bucked and convulsed with the orgasmic waves ripping through her body. Her head whipped around her face slashed as she shrieked her ecstasy.

They let her down to clean the shafts soaked in her fuck juices. She sucked first her ass off Oberyn’s dick and then slurped her pussy off the Haruchai’s cock. Her mouth twirled on their cockheads hungrily sucking as she looked up with doe eyes at the man whose dick she was sucking on with vacuum sucks. They then took the still cum groggy slut between Harrnor and Oberyn again. They filled her belly with hard dick. The men flexing their knees to ram their dicks balls deep up into her drooling fuck holes. The cocks soon reviving the slut with fuck hunger as she gripped their shoulders to lunge down impaling her fuck holes on sweet dick.

Stannis and Oberyn took turns pounding her asshole with their up ripping cocks slamming deep up into her hot pinching asshole. The men taking turns pounding her booty hole. Harrnor then lowered Fohn’s body as the man not fucking her asshole currently held Fohn up horizontal as she leaned her head down and sucked on the dick just plundering her busted asshole.

Then the strong men helped Fohn back up to drape arms and legs around the Haruchai’s body. Then Stannis and Oberyn again pounded Fohn’s asshole while Harrnor banged her cunt. Harrnor lunging his own thick long cock hard up into her tight teenage cunt with bent knees and violent up thrusts. Soon Fohn was screaming again in stunning orgasm. The Haruchai’s dickhead pounding her cervix. Her spasming pussy milked the Haruchai’s dick plundering her exploding couchie. He had roared as his cock spurted hard flooding her womb with long pearly jets of jizm.

Fhon had wailed cumming so hard as Stannis screamed flooding her ass with deep thrusts of his spurting cock. Stannis emptied his nut sack into Fohn’s ass. He then slipped his dick out Fohn’s asshole. Sperm leaking out in slimy tendrils. Good ole Harrnor did not tire as he held the filly up so Oberyn could slip his cock up into Fohn’s asshole when Stannis pulled out.

It was so hot seeing sperm and shit juice splattering out her slack asshole before he could harpoon his cock up her plundered asshole. Harrnor still hard prick slam fucked the teenager’s hot tight cunt fisting his up and down slamming cock. Oberyn pounded her hard in the ass for a minute and let his control slip. His head rocked back as she screamed himself as hot semen boiled up his dick and spurted hard and deep up Fohn’s colon. The sweet girl had a second anal ‘gam that flowed into vaginal orgasm throttling her with fucking bliss. Then Harrnor roared his body convulsing as he cum again flooded the teenager’s womb with what seed remained in his balls.

Oberyn wished Ellaria could be here to see what a lesbian slut Selyse Florent had turned into. She was asleep her cheek resting on Ranrika shaved mound. It was cute seeing Selyse’s cheek pressed into the Haruchai’s camel toe compressing it with her face. Selyse drooling onto the pretty plump pussy.

The Haruchai had one hand threaded Selyse’s hair possessively. Ferna had her head resting on Selyse’s rump snoring softly. Jeertel and Murel had joined the fun. Seregrom warding Arya as she and the Queen fucked in Arya’s room. Bannor maintaining his post. The Queen also guarded by her Bloodriders and a small contingent of Unsullied.

Jeertel had her head on Ranrika’s bosom her head moving now to snuggle in more. Murel had her body pressed into Jeertel’s body spoon her medium tits pressed into Jeertel’s back. Her pussy pressed into the Haruchai’s ass and her arm holding both Jeertel and Ranrika. The room was thick with the smell of happy pussy. The Haruchai cummed hard their bodies flipping and convulsing on the beds and furs on the floor. They had nicely proven to be insatiable needing to devour pussy relentlessly and then spreading their legs wide to be devoured in return.

All were exhausted by Selyse Florent of all people. She had sucked and finger banged them off repeatedly. The Haruchai women wailing and jackknifing wildly as Selyse’s now awesome lesbian lovemaking skills stunned the strong vibrant women of the Haruchai. When the women were all wet and their pussies distended she had then fisted them in turn hard and deep. She twisted her fist in so hard their couchies riding up their wrist as she fucked them almost savagely.

Selyse was kinky rotating her fist up to bulge up the bellies of her Haruchai lovers. Selyse growling and chuffing to work her fist with a twisting motion that plundered her Haruchai lovers cunts with pounding relentless arm ramming thrusts of pure love. The women’s pussy clinging to her wrist and lower forearm as she rammed fucked their pussies relentlessly with feral force. Just like they loved it.

The Haruchai had screamed so hard in their orgasms he heard the Direwolves faraway howl in answer. Selyse did not seem to tire as she sometimes did the Haruchai two a time. The wife of Stannis had both of her fists twisting slamming up two drooling clamshells. Murel and Ranrika had grunted with the deep thrusts. Their fists clenched in the sheets to jerk their bodies forward to take Selyse’s fist even harder into their sloppy wet quims.

Their bodies had slowly started to stiffen. Their faces slashed and mouths cried out in ecstasy. Then their wombs detonated and both women screamed and screamed as Selyse gritted her teeth to hunch down and keep her fists ramming their exploding couchies helping to prolong their orgasms throttling the female Haruchai senseless with soul crushing pleasure.

Selyse had become quite dominate when she wanted to be. She pulled her fists out of the Haruchai’s tired slack pussies. Hot gushes of trapped cum spurting out the tired pussies as Haruchai women cried out in pleasure. Then they were moaning like Lysian whores with Selyse slapping her hands onto their faces and slavering their own cum all over their faces, throats and up into their hair.

Then she roughly got the still groggy Haruchai sluts up into doggy. The two beautiful brown skinned women turned their heads to watch Selyse as she got behind them. They squealed when Selyse viciously slapped their asses hard and cooed when she kissed their abused bums. Selyse went back and forth slapping and then kissing Murel and Ranrika’s asses making them squeal and then moan repeatedly.

The women watched with limpid eyes when Selyse again fisted their spent cunts. Their bodies shivering and shuddering as they groaned deep in their chests. But Selyse had other plans. Soon she pulled out her hands all milky in female cum. Oberyn watched those hands fist worm two fingers up the Haruchai’s assholes. Soon all four fingers were in their starfishes with the thumb soon wormed in as well. Then Selyse concentrated and pressed her hands into the Haruchai’s shitholes. She rocked her hands loosening the women’s sphincter rings. The two Haruchai women gurgling with stuffed assholes. The brown skinned women chuffing as the pushed back onto the fists in their rectums.

Oberyn saw Selyse’s forearms flexing as she formed her fists in the Haruchai’s rectum. Both Haruchai women groaning hard in their throats their faces slammed with Selyse starting to pump her fists deeper and deeper up their asses. Stannis’s wife now adding more force as she jacked her fists into Murel and Ranrika’s inner sphincter rings and then lunged her fists deep up the Haruchai’s spasming bellies making them screech out their ecstasy in raucous wails of sheer ecstasy.

Selyse lovingly growled ramming her forearms up the Haruchai’s hungry assholes till her elbow rammed into their taunt ass cheeks. Their body shaking with the force of Selyse’s elbow slamming into their asses as she twisted her fist viciously up their shit pipes. The Haruchai women sagging down to their forearms with shocking pleasure overwhelming their bodies. Their faces twisted with sublime bliss. Their eyes slit open but unseeing as they groaned deep in their throats.

Several times Selyse collapsed her hands and pulled them out the asses of her lovers. Hot gushes of ass juice poured out their assholes and drooled into their cunnies and their clutching pussies drinking in the shit juice. The Haruchai keened and shuddered hard. Then Selyse was in front of them taking her hands and smearing their creamy ass cream all over a moaning Murel and Ranrika’s faces. Then she was licking off that shit juice making all three women moan in slut happiness. Then Selyse quickly wormed her hands back up weakened sphincter quickly forming her love fists again and lunging them fiercely up the asses of the beautiful brown skinned warrior women.

Oberyn loved watching the hot anal fisting show. After several more minutes the two Haruchai women were clearly ramping up to asshole shredding orgasms. Selyse was in heaven plundering her women’s sweet asses with her plunging fists up their assholes. Stannis’s wife grunting as she twisted her fists up till her elbows rammed hard tight asses.

Murel and Ranrika’s assholes exploded on the same savage thrusts up their shithole with Selyse’s elbows jamming into taunt ass cheeks simultaneously. Both women screamed in shocking orgasmic bliss as if being boiled in oil. Their bodies flipped and jackknifed violently as their throats kept screaming harrowing ecstasy. Oberyn was surprised Selyse’s shoulders were not wrenched out of their sockets with the wild flips and jackknifes of the Haruchai women as their assholes exploded on the fist and forearms pounding their booty holes.

The women’s bodies would snap up and down their backs arching deep. Their heads snapped around and up and down as their faces crumpled and slashed with seeming horrible pain but was really on extreme pleasure that was harrowing. Their fingers clawing and tearing at the sheets. Their pelvises were shuddering and rippling with the orgasmic spasms tearing at their beautiful bodies.

It was funny. Oberyn had once thought Selyse to be an almost ugly woman with her big ears and sour demeanor and face. Now with her smiling all the time with her laughing and jesting she seemed pretty to Oberyn and her ears were actually quite pretty now that he liked the woman. All the Haruchai women sure found her beautiful and begged to suck her off and groaned so gutturally when she filled their mouths with her hot slimy snail snot.

He had come to love fucking Selyse. Her pussy was damn fucking tight and when she rode you cowgirl she really worked her hips to slam her pussy down on your up thrusting dick. She growled and jammed back when you fucked her doggy. When fucking her Septa face to face she clenched her legs on your hips with her arms looped around your back pulling you close as she worked her hips to work her pussy to take your dick balls deep. The slut striving to tilt her pussy so you could deep dick her with all of your love dick. The slut fucked so hungrily.

Selyse hungrily mating her mouth to Oberyn’s. She moaned so hard when Oberyn rammed his tongue down her throat. Their bellies slapping and her tits ground into his down pressing chest. The woman working her hips to lift her cunt take all of Oberyn’s cock into her tight snatch.

Earlier this night Oberyn had fucked her thus and her screams of cumming as he slammed her down into the bed and the way she held him tight to her writhing body as she bucked and writhed had sent Oberyn to the edge of the precipice. Stannis had encouraged Oberyn on “pound my wife Oberyn! Slam your dickhead into her womb man! She’ll cum again feeling your dick spurting hard as you slam your dick into her womb man! Do it! Do it!”

Oberyn had lifted his hips even higher with Stannis urging him on. He loved the feel of his body slapping down hard into Selyse’s beautiful body. The sound of their sweaty bodies loud in the room and urging both on to fuck exuberantly. Selyse grunting begging Oberyn to fuck her harder. Her urgings surrounded by slutty groans and desperate whinnies of striving. Then her head jerked up and pressed into Oberyn’s neck as she cried out in approaching orgasm. Her body convulsing wildly with killing shocks of womb rending violence that throttled her with fucking bliss. Her screams now loud in the room.

This sent Oberyn over the edge “AAAARRUUUNNGGGGGGGG! FFFFFUUUCCKKKKKKKKK!” Oberyn had screamed with his dick convulsing as he pulled his hips back again and again to savagely slam his dick into Selyse’s womb while it spurted hard flooding her womb with a fresh load of sperm that the Haruchai women would hungrily lick up as it leaked out her worn out slack cunt.

Oberyn smiled with Selyse fulfilling Stannis’s prophecy. Selyse cummed hard again feeling his dick flooding her womb with his potent seed. “OOWWWGGGGGGGGGGGGG! AAAAWWWOOGGGGGGGG! … Mmmmmnngghhiieeeeee! Unngghhiieeeeee! Aarrguuuunngggggggggggg! … oh oh … FFFFFUUCCCCKKKKKKKKKKK!” Selyse screamed her body flipping and jackknifing up into Oberyn’s hard pressing body as he continued spurt hot semen into her womb. Oberyn felt her cunt gushing cum down her spasming fuck sleeve soaking his cock as her cunt fisted and squeezed his dick hard with each killing pulse of nirvana tearing her cunt inside out.

Her arms around his back were squeezing like a constrictor as each killing pulse of cumming ripped out her rupturing womb. Oberyn’s dick continued to spear Selyse’s twat as her feet kicked wildly in the air over his hips. Oberyn grunted and snarled as he kept his hips working sensing Selyse would cum again if kept fucking her hard. He was right. Selyse’s body shook in a violent spasm and she did indeed cum hard yet again on Oberyn’s spurring dick. She tilted her pelvis up to keep taking Oberyn’s spearing thrusts impaling her womb. “GGOOODDAMMMNNNNN I LOVE YOUR DICK FUCKING MEEEEEEMMM EBERYNNNNNNNN! Aarruuunnggggggg! Ooowwwggggggggg! Mmmnnngghhhhiieeeeee!”

Wow, Selyse was indeed one hot fuck! Her pussy had milked his dick dry so hot and tight with wet slippery squeezes of her velvety cunt fist. Her body undulated and wallowed up into Oberyn’s body. Their sweaty bodies slipped and slide against each other sensually. Sweaty bodies wallowing and slapping.

He could not wait for them to sail to Sunspear and fuck Ellaria and himself. Ellaria had read his scrolls and was hungrily awaiting their visit also. Ellaria had taken Oberyn’s words to heart and could not wait to fuck Stannis but especially Selyse.

Oberyn shifted and got up to walk to the table to get water. He stopped and smiled. All the Haruchai had opened an eye to track his movement for a second to make sure all was safe. The damn Haruchai slept like mice in the seven spired temple.

He drank water to replenish all the sweat and semen his cock had spurted deep in wombs and hot tight assholes.

The door opened silently. He turned to see Tass enter the room. He knew the Haruchai felt safe to allow so many members of their people in one room with their guard down. He knew their mind link had them all in communication with each other. He wondered if they were sharing the sex in this room. Just how far did that mind link go he wondered.

Tass slowly moved her head. She surveyed the room. She untied the belt holding her tunic to her hips. She pulled the tunic over her head. Her small high brown tits so enticing. His cock was rapidly hardening and lengthening. She walked over to Oberyn and fell to her knees. She grabbed his cock and guided his half hard cock to her mouth and hungrily swallowed his cock bobbing hard. The Haruchai he had learned were very oral. He soon had a raging boner again.

The Haruchai were loud lovers. Her slurps and hungry sucks wet and loud in the room. The woman gripped Oberyn’s ass cheeks to anchor her body to let her head fly up and down his shaft with her lips glued to his thick veined shaft. Her mouth sucking like a succubus had Oberyn groaning hard.
She gave sloppy wonderful head drooling on his shaft using the lubrication to pump his cock with her two fists pumping up and down his shaft her head bobbing on just his cockhead. He had to exert all his control to keep from ejaculating down her throat. She would pause in her bobbing and begin to swirl her head on Oberyn’s cockhead in tight circles her cheeks hollowing out as she hard sucked. Oberyn smiled down at Tass when she sucked his balls into her mouth and swished his testicles in her hot sucking mouth. Then licking up his shaft all around before she tilted her over and swallowed his mushroom cockhead again and started to bob hard again.

Soon he was doing Tass doggy. Her small tits whipped forward and back as the loud slaps of their sweaty bodies smacking hard. The sounds of sweet fucking filled the bedroom. Tass turned to look at Oberyn with heated eyes and a slutty smile on her face as she groaned hard deep in her throat. She rubbed her clt as she pounded her twat. Oberyn gripped her hips hard to jam her back into his hard plunging dick slamming deep into her couchie and slamming her cervix. The Martell loved seeing the Haruchai’s hips and ass rippling with each powerful impact of their surging bodies.

Tass cummed hard screaming. Her head thrashed as it looked like she was being garroted. Her eyes squeezed tight shut while her face slashed as if in agony. Her short hair plastered all over her forehead and neck. Sweat dripped off her body from her ass to her face. Oberyn shoved the slut forward and flipped the willing whore over to her back. She looked up at him with limpid submissive eyes. He knew she was much stronger than Oberyn and it turned him on immensely that she let him easily control her body.

He then took her Septa. Her legs gripping his hips and her arms looped around his back as she locked her ankles over his back. He pounded her ass down into the furs on the floor. Their mouths came together to kiss deeply with their tongues wildly flipping around in Tass’s mouth as she continued to be submissive for Oberyn. He had found the Haruchai females generally seemed to want to be the bottom. He lunged his dick savagely into Tass’s tight gripping slurping pussy. He pulled out several times of her squishy trim and moved forward on his palms and bent feet. His dick now above Tass’s face. She gripped his hips while he gripped the back of her head to lift her head to his prick. She swallowed his dick and bobbed fiercely sucking her slimy white cum off his dick.

They fucked gloriously for ten minutes as he fucked her hard and fast and then slow and sensual. He bent his head down to siphone in her hard nipples and stretched out the small titties tenting her nipples as she cried out in searing pleasure. Then he was kissing her deeply fucking her fast and furious. Oberyn fucked her hard and deep sometimes up on his palms to change angles and fuck with more force. She had cummed screaming her strong hands gripping his upper arms painfully but she controlled her great strength as her body wildly bucked in orgasmic bliss.

Then he would slow and hesitate between strokes for small random seconds before coiling his hips back and then lunging down and forward to impale Tass’s cunt on his thick shaft splitting her fuck hole in two. Her inner lips pulled out her couchie on the back stroke before those lips were again shoved back into the woman’s tight quim. Her couchie spread out into a tight O ring around his pumping prick slamming balls deep again and again into her drooling spasming clamshell.

Now he was slam fucking Tass as she jammed her hips up to take all his manhood balls deep into her hot tight milking cunt. Oberyn felt his control slip. He had roared and then Tass screamed when she cummed again feeling his dick spurt hard in her belly flooding her womb with his hot seed.

Then he would slow and hesitate between strokes for small random seconds before coiling his hips back and then lunging down and forward to impale Tass’s cunt on his thick shaft splitting her fuck hole in two. Her inner lips pulled out her couchie on the back stroke before those lips were again shoved back into the woman’s tight quim. Her couchie spread out into a tight O ring around his pumping prick slamming balls deep again and again into her drooling spasming clamshell.

She needed more so he happily sucked his sperm out her cunt and sucked her off three times as she wailed and threw her cunt up into his mouth as he sucked her off. He might not be Ellaria but he was just behind her with his oral skills. His cock was up again and he fucked Tass in the ass hard. She sucked her ass off his cock again and again and he slipped his dick into her cunt soaked in her ass. She cummed hard from that. Then he was on his back and the woman rode his dick in her asshole cowgirl.

He gripped her hips slamming her down as he lunged up with his thick long dick impaling her asshole. She would dismount sitting between his spread legs and bent her body forward to suck her ass off his dick. Then she mounted her ass on his dick again. She did this several times moaning sucking her sweet ass juice off Oberyn’s cock.

Now she was cumming again. She rubbed her clit furiously as her small tits whiplashed up and down her torso. Sweat poured off her face and her torso running down her hard body in rivulets. Her tight pinching sphincter gripped his cock tight with hot spasms. He slammed his head into the furs feeling hot semen again shooting up his shaft spurting deep up the Haruchai’s asshole. The woman screamed in another anal ‘gasm of awesome strength.

He fell asleep with Tass sprawled all over his body. He loved feeling her sweat and cum soaked body draped all over his. He knew that this idyllic time of rest and relaxation was coming to an end. It was time to march off to war. He stroked Tass’s strong back and she murmured kissing his shoulder. This time in Winterfell had been a most interesting time.

He was wondering about the seeming strange new twists his relationships had taken since the arrival of Daenerys Targaryen to Westeros. She had sent Cersei to Dorne to become the warrior she had always whined she was meant to be. He argued against it. Vociferously. He had not been happy when the Queen smiled at him and overrode his strenuous objections.

He was sure Cersei would fail. In fact Master Marion had damn near killed the stubborn woman when she would not stop striving to perform the impossible tasks he had heaped on her shoulders. She had survived and now had conquered Battleborne Academy. She was the top cadet now and all were in awe of her. He now knew she was the Lion that the Sand Witch had prophesized of those many years ago. She would take the sword of House Dawyne when the time came.

She had married his eldest daughter. Obara was simply besotted with the woman. Ellaria was besotted with Cersei. She was almost desperate with her desire to fuck the woman. Oberyn shook his head. He had been told by Ellaria that Myrcella was whining to fuck her mother. Myrcella had hated her mother as much as much as Oberyn had. Cersei had been such a bitch back then. Not anymore.

Oberyn wondered. He once wanted to rape Cersei to break her spirit. She had opened his eyes. In her tired anger she had relayed to Oberyn her story on their way to the ship that took her into exile. That story had changed Oberyn. He would never rape again. It was disgusting and nor would he allow any in the Dorne military. The women in the Dorne forces were not predisposed to it but many men and some women did it in the battle lust. The men of course thought it was a right and ritual of warfare.

No more.

He thought of Cersei again. He chuckled. It seemed his whole freaking family was thinking of the woman anymore. His wife’s constant chirping about getting Cersei in their bed and her going on and on how hot she was sucking off Obara in the Officer’s Sauna. They had fucked in their again many times and Ellaria still hurried off to the sauna when she heard they were in the sauna rutting again. She had it bad. He had it bad. Ellaria assured Oberyn that when she had Cersei in their bed she would get Cersei to see the light.

“Oberyn, you are my mate. She will fuck you too. Wait and see.”

He doubted it but he could hope. That led to thoughts of Stannis. He shook his head wondering. It was amazing how his perceptions of people were changing of late.

He had not hated the man per se but he and his wife were so straight laced and had sticks rammed up their asses that they made him want to throw up. No more. He looked over at the man and his wife. They had finally let go and gods they could fuck. He actually liked the man. Out in the “world” he was still stiff and glared all around but Oberyn accepted that. Stannis just dealt with the world in that way.

His wife had gone from a ‘homely bitch’ in his mind to a ‘smoking hot bitch I want to fuck!’ The change in his thinking sometimes still surprised the Red Viper. To call Selyse a ‘hot slut’ was a real high compliment in his mind. Selyse actually had a sweet demeanor now that she and Stannis were actually happy and had a nice non biting sense of humor. Personally, Oberyn liked ‘biting’ but not a lot of men could handle a woman who was funnier or smarter than himself. Oberyn could care less.

But when Stannis felt he did not have to be filled with honor and rectitude and could show his human side he was actually funny in a dry drool way. And Selyse was an absolute bisexual slut now. She sucked cock like a succubus and buried her face so deep in pussy she was like Cersei. Two nights ago three male Haruchai, Stannis, Loras and himself had gangbanged the slut. She was constantly cumming and screaming as they fucked her air tight filling all her fuck holes. They had done Double Anal on her for the first time. She had nearly passed out she cummed so hard. Gods, the slut loved ATM and A2P with an almost evangelical fervor.

You used to have to yank words out of her mouth. Not anymore. She was engaging and laughing a lot now. It was amazing what hot good sex did to a woman. In the bed, she was constantly cawing “Fill my fuck holes with cock!” “Gods let me suck my shithole off your big cock!” “Gods I love having all my holes fucked air tight!” “Pound my shit good!” “Stretch out my cunt with two cocks!” “Pound my ass till I can’t shit for a month!” Oberyn smiled big. Yes, Selyse had become his kind of woman.

Ellaria would die and think she had gone to heaven when she got to fuck this new Selyse. Oberyn had been sending Ellaria ravens raving of Selyse’s now ravenous (he chuckled to himself writing that) appetites. Ellaria had a new slut in her line of sight down her arrow shaft. Soon Ellaria would be sampling these new Baratheons.

They were going to visit Dorne for a month and then in the next six months Oberyn and Ellaria would visit Dragonstone. Selyse had her eyes on a lot of nubile young lasses she planned on deflowering and making into depraved bisexual sluts when she returned to Dragon Stone. Yes. Oberyn had come too really like this new woman Selyse had become.

///////////

Oberyn had finished dressing for the beginning of the trip to the Wall. He had on his light mail shirt and leggings. He was a fighter who relied on speed and skill to survive and kill on the battlefield. Let others weight themselves down with armor that he would pick apart and like praying mantis attacking a beetle, he would find the weak spots to attack and defeat his opponents.

The Haruchai and Ramen had of course melted away sometime in the early morning light from Oberyn’s room. He was an extremely light sleeper as was Stannis and Renly. When you are a warrior you learned that talent. One never knew when you might be awoken in the middle of the night fighting for your life on the battlefield. Surprise was always an advantage any commander sought on the battlefield. Despite this, and trying to catch the persons from the Land leaving them he and the Baratheon brothers never heard or felt them leave. It was unnerving how they could move so silently.
Stannis and Renly had put on their mail and plate armor. They did look impressive with their height and large broad shoulders. Renly he knew he could take fairly easily. It was Stannis he would have a hard time with. He was lightning fast and so fucking strong. He was sure he would take him. Of course he knew Stannis thought the same thing.

Oberyn smiled a soft smile. Again he could not believe how he had changed his thinking with Stannis and Selyse. I was like his thoughts on Cersei. They had gone from enemies to people he genuinely cared for and loved to fuck. Well, Stannis was still one hundred percent heterosexual. That did not prevent them from fucking his wife and Stannis watching her get fucked. It turned on Stannis to see Selyse fucked hard by other men.

Like last night. Gods Stannis wife had become totally insatiable. A fact that made both Oberyn and now Stannis happy. They wanted one last great fuck before taking to the King’s Road. Last night the new nursery minders had joined in the hot orgy of intense fucking yet again. Selyse had fallen on them the first time they appeared like a famished wolf. She was like Ellaria in that way. Always wanting new dick and especially new hot wet pussy.

Oberyn couldn’t wait for them to meet now! Ellaria felt the same. How things had changed. Great sex had drawn them all so close now. Now they were all close friends. He and Stannis had watched his wife simply devour Wehhi and Aurola like she was starving. She sucked them off each twice as they lay side by side on the bed their legs on Selyse’s shoulders. The two lovers snogging and hard sucking on rock hard nipples on their mate’s small B cup tits.

It had been so hot to see the two women’s legs kicking out behind Selyse in their orgasms. The last time Hehhi orgasmed her feet slammed into Selyse’s lower back like a kicking filly. Selyse grimaced but with a happy smile as she drank down the hot gushes of female cum flooding her mouth as the Dothraki slut screamed hard her body filled with harrowing convulsions. Aurola helped Selsye give Hehhi pleasure by trying to suck her engorged right teat down her throat.

Then they had watched the two women who had entered Oberyn’s bedchambers dressed in Dothraki gear that had quickly been shed fell upon Selyse like lionesses devouring a love kill. They sucked and finger banged Stannis’s wife to the edge of a soul crushing orgasm quickly. Stannis was encouraging on the young sluts to “fuck his wife hard—she’s a filthy fucking MILF! Bang her hard!” he had joyfully encouraged the sluts in defiling his wife.

The two women did just that.

“AAAWWOOGGGGGGGG! HHHHNNNGGGGGGGG! HHHHNNNGGGGGGGG!” Seylse screamed as her body convulsed and jackknifed violently on the bed. Whenever Aurola and Wehhi did not have duty in the nursey they often came to Oberyn’s quarters. They were both bisexuals but only wanted to sport fuck men as “a taste of strange” Aurola had told them. They came for the females and especially Selyse. Wehhi had her face buried in Selyse’s exploding cunt her mouth glued to the woman’s fuck hole drinking down the hot slimy gushes of creamy white cum.

Aurola was lying beside Selyse sucking furiously on her left breast tenting her nipple and areola with her feverish deep throat love sucks. Her head lifting with her sucks. Her right hand was a blur rubbing Selyse’s clit in a furious back and forth motion. Gods Selyse’s cunt sounded so sodden and watery to Oberyn. It was like a sweet symphony, Oberyn shook his head. Selyse was very happy now. She would miss her husband and her other fuck mates but she was absolutely addicted to pussy now. Wehhi was like a famished lamprey sucking Stanni’s wife off. Aurola like a good lesbian slut sensed Selyse’s clit getting sensitive and now had Selyse’s left tit pushed up with her hands and was trying to suck the nipple down her throat with long ragged deep throat sucks her head lifting even higher with each long ragged love suck.

“Ram two fingers up her asshole and slam fuck her shithole—it will make her cum again” Stannis casually told Wehhi. Oberyn smiled at Stannis. The man had really come a long way. Wehhi immediately started to comply. Stannis’s wife’s anus was lubricated liberally with sweat and cum that had leaked out her clamshell and wicked own her ass cleft soaking her anus.

The Dothraki maid worked her fingers into Selyse’s ass cleft unerringly finding her shithole and twist rammed her first two fingers deep up into Selyse’s well fucked anus. “Uunnggggggggg! Ohhhhh shit that feels so fucking good—uunnggg aaarrngg … hhnnn hhnnn unnggggg!” Selyse jabbered her pussy and asshole flooding her with ecstasy. Wehhi fucked Selyse’s asshole furiously while swallowing her whole upper cunt into her mouth. Wehhi pumped her head up and down stretching out her cunt meat nearly an inch. All wet and dark pink Oberyn and the Baratheon brothers watched Stannis’s wife get her pussy devoured. Aurola own head was pumping stretching out Seylse tit and nipple with voracious wolf sucks.

Selyse’s head lifted off the mattress pumping up on a neck stiff with raw need. The tendons in her neck jutting up and looking like they might snap. The woman’s dark hair plastered over her forehead and along her neck and shoulders. Her face slashed with almost crippling pleasure. Then her eyes flared wide open and her mouth fell open into an O of helpless scalding agonizing pleasure. Her head jammed up hard several times as the breath was knocked out of her then.

She gasped hard getting her breath back and then her screams filled the room "Oh! Oh AAAARRUUUNNGGGGGG! AAAWWOOOGGGGGGGG! Hhnnn hhnn ohhhhhh—fuuuucckkkkkkkk! Godsssdddddmmnmnnnnnnn—Owwwwwwggggghhhaaaaa! Mmmmmmmmmgggg ... oh GODS! GODDSSSSDDDAAMMNNNNIIITTTTTT! " Selyse cried out, as another wave of orgasmic shockwaves wrenched her beautiful body. Her body was pulverized with horrific convulsions and flips of shocking bliss. The women made her orgasms roll through the dark haired woman’s body. Her heels slamming the bed and her hands clawing and tearing at the sheets her head jerking up off the mattress her eyes unseeing as searing bliss tore her cunt inside out.

She finally went limp temporarily exhausted. She was mewling limbs kicking as the two sluts kept randomly licking her throbbing nipples and clit. Stannis bent down and gripped his wife’s sweat soaked face. He kissed her hard ramming his tongue down her throat that made her aftershocks surge and had her jerking wildly on the bed. Stannis broke the kiss and smirked down at his cum rattled wife.

“Take care of my sweet wife you two” they lifted their faces smiling at Stannis. “Make sure you repay Aurola and Wehhi with your sweet tongue, fingers, fist and strap-on cock Selyse” he chuckled at his not so funny remark. “I expect all the details of the pussy and cock you partake of while I am gone sweet wife. When I return I will fuck you for a week along with Oberyn and others Selyse.” His wife tiredly smiled sluttiy at her husband.

Yes, Stannis had indeed loosened up. He was pretty cool now Oberyn thought to himself.

“Ummngggggppppfff mnnngggg yessssss oonnngggggg” was Selyse blasted reply. She had cummed really hard Oberyn could clearly see. She was groggy still out of it with a beatific smile on her face. Yes she and Ellaria needed to meet soon.

He and the Stannis brothers left his quarters. They adjusted their armor that had been polished and their leathers stropped to give them a sheen. They wanted to make an impression for the citizens of Winterfell and Winter Town as they departed to go forth to war. They would instill confidence in the people that they would indeed reign victorious on the battlefield.

He saw Eddard coming down the hall making sure his black armor was all aligned and properly fitting. He looked up and saw Oberyn and the Baratheon brothers. He stopped walking.
“Eddard … you missed quite the orgy last night—you got to loosen up man!” Stannis shouted out to the Warden of the North. The three men chuckled seeing Eddard blanch and look nervous.

Eddard made an I forget something motion “Danm I forget my glove liners. Sorry you guys. I will catch up with you later.” He turned around and scurried back up the hall to his quarters. He looked back several times with a harried look.

Oberyn chuckled. The day was starting off well.

He and the Baratheon brothers headed outside. They left the Great Keep and walked to the East Gate. He passed underneath the thick arch looking up at the dark granite. He could feel the age of Winterfell here. The weathered rock ancient looking to his eyes. He walked through the arch into the bright light. He smiled when his eyes adjusted to the light.

All the knights were in their polished armor. The sun glinting off the plate metal or made their dark grey or black chain mail glow. Some of the knights had painted armor that glowed in the intense sunlight. Their sercoats brightly colored with their house colors. Many nights had long lances with brightly colored streamers tied to the tips that whipped in the breeze.

The horses of the knights had quilts on that had their houses heraldry emblazoned on them. Of course he saw the Coat of Arms for the main houses of the north: Direwolf; A white sunburst on black with the words The Sun of Winter for house Karstark; A black bear in a green wood with the motto “Here We Stand”; A brown bullmoose with black antlers on orange and the words Righteous in Wrath of House Hornwood.

Gods Oberyn loved the pageantry of it all. The colors and bright glinting light off armor reminded of him of how he felt seeing warriors when he was a little boy. He remembered feeling so elated seeing those warriors as a youth and vowing to become one himself. He had become one and earned the name of Red Viper for his deadly strike. He smiled. He did indeed use poison on then sword and now spear tip.

He looked at the heraldry at the Houses of the South. He loved the multiple colors and the pageant of it all. He spotted the many banners of Dorne. The lords proud and standing tall in the saddle. He was presented his horse and he mounted it. He moved to be beneath his bannermen. He looked up at the banner of a gold spear piercing a red sun on an orange field and the words beneath Unbowed, Unbent, Unbroken.

He looked to the right and saw a red cockatrice with black snake in its beak on gold of House Gargalen and behind that he saw the House of Wyl with its banner of a black adder biting a heel on yellow. To his immediate left he saw the banner of Qorgyle. He looked at the three scorpions in a triangle on a circular red circle.

Oberyn looked further away on the grassy plains. He saw the colorful flowers of all the Houses. He was proud to be part of Daenerys Targaryen’s army. She and Eddard Stark had united the whole of Westeros for the forthcoming war. Never before had all of Westeros marched united against a threat. Even in the age of Heroes there had been mini wars between houses even as they met the threat of the Ice King.

He admired his Queen so greatly. She had done this. Eddard had helped and been the catalyst but it had been her will and guile that had brought it all together.

Oberyn spotted Eddard astride his warhorse. Oberyn wondered how the man had gotten to his horse so fast. Lost my glove liners my ass Oberyn snorted. He spotted the Queen and her future wife riding their horses up the line. As they passed, Daenerys smiled at him. It was a smile that was just that little bit larger than almost anyone else got. He was happy inside seeing that acknowledgement of his special place in her entourage. He was indeed a most valuable ally to his Queen.

He joined up behind his Queen as did Eddard and Stannis and Renly. Up at the head of the column he spotted Garland Tyrell and Edmure Tully leaders of the other great houses of Westeros. Jon Arryn was already at the Wall keeping an eye on Houses Frey and Bolten.

He looked around. The Giants were at the head of the column off to the right. The Giants towering over all. They were like columns of granite with their strong bodies. Their granite armor covering them from helm to armor down over the tops of their feet. They wore war sandals on their feet. The Giants mighty swords mainly on backs but a few of the women carried them on their hips. Two male Giants were with them. He had asked what weapons they would use.

Braveheart Tillerkeel answer was two words “Their fist”. Oberyn could believe that. A Giant’s balled up hand looked like a sledgehammer head.

Oberyn wondered where the Haruchai were. The ramen were also not visible. He thought that they would form their own group also. The Queen had almost reached the head of the line. Like the mist evaporating in the morning it seemed the Haruchai and Ramen had melted away from the milling forces of Westeros.

This group was mainly knights, cavalry and wagons that was transporting and providing support for the cavalry. It seemed as if the Haruchai and Ramen could disappear into anything be it nature or groups of people. He knew they had warded all the banquets and meal times of the Queen and Arya and yet he rarely saw them.

Then the Haruchai and the Ramen were seen walking in from the flanks. They came to stand with the Lord of Revelstone. They conversed softly. It looked like some kind of agreement was reached.

The Ramen moved off in a loose formation. Oberyn saw Lustra with Brail as the Haruchai moved off fifty yards from the column. He and the Queen were at the head of the column. All had turned to focus on the Haruchai and the Lord. They stood up tall and looked off to the north. The sky was clear. There were low rolling hills that the King’s Road twisted and turned slightly to pass between. A few corpses of trees of birch and maple stood denuded of leaves but thick with brambles.

That was when Oberyn noticed the Ranyhyn were not present. How that was possible with the party ready to leave he wondered. The Ranyhyn always seemed to be present when their riders would need them. Would they have to wait for the mighty horses to appear? He was shocked by this since the horses seemed to have a link with their riders. Fohn had moved over to be near him and the Baratheon brothers.

She reached up and stroked Oberyn’s leg.

“Where are they? I thought the Ranyhyn would be here” he softly called down to the woman with a smile. She had been a great fuck.

“They are loyalty given flesh. They will answer the summons.”

Oberyn kept quiet. He wondered what this summons was. He saw the Haruchai and Lord raise their right hand to their mouths. A loud piercing whistle filled the air from multiple throats. Again and yet again the loud whistle was issued. The sound slowly faded from the air.

The forces of Westeros looked around curiously. Then from the North the air was filled with low rumbling thunder that slowly built up to a pounding fury of mighty hooves pounding the Earth.
From around the curve of the King’s Road on the left of the first rolling hill a line of Ranyhyn exploded into view. They were still a league distant. The stars on their foreheads caught the morning light and glowed like the full moon close to the horizon. The horses were pounding out a mighty pace. Their bodies bunching and stretching as they ran at a furious pace.

Oberyn wondered why they were running so fast. They would tire before they reached them. He watched the display of speed. A Sandsteed would tire at about two miles and have to slow to a fast canter. The horses kept a perfect line as they galloped at a furious pace. They did not stumble or break their perfect formation. They kept flying forward. Already they were halfway to them. Their speed seemed to increase. Nothing could run that fast! They were flying like the wind! They were running half again faster than the mightiest Sand Steed could gallop for maybe two furloughs. They had already ran eight. They kept running forward as if tiring was not possible.

All were staring slack jawed at this impossible feat. Only Eddard seemed unfazed but then Oberyn remembered that the Ranyhyn had run multiple leagues to get him back to Winterfell to save his wife in her hour of need. Hearing of the feat was one thing. To see it in the flesh made it into a truly awe inspiring event.

Then the Ranyhyn were before them slowing with dirt raising back kicks of their legs. The individual Ranyhyn moved to their riders. They came forward nickering and throwing their heads in exuberance. They pushed their heads into their riders cupping hands and enjoyed the bonding of the moment. The great horses showed no sign of being even slightly winded. Then the Haruchai bowed deeply to their horses and easily jumped onto her backs. Five Ranyhyn immediately ran back up the King’s Road to the North with their Haruchai riders. Three pelted to down the Road to the South. Two ran off to the east and west.

The Haruchai were forming a picket line around the advancing column. Oberyn knew of their mind speak now. They would be constantly communicating to each other and to Brail their leader forming a strategic picture of the land and the forces around the advancing column. Gods he wished he could have such a tool in his marches and battles!

Fohn gripped his leg looking up at Oberyn. “The horses of the Plains of Ra will always answer the call. Believe.” With that she was gone. She ran off to the North at a fast loop her body dwindling until she disappeared into the rolling land.

The Queen watched the Haruchai disappear. By her side was Bannor of course. He was surprised to see Seregrom by her other side. By the Lord Lustra was her lover Brail and near Arya was Jeertel. Oberyn was impressed. The Haruchai also knew who was the most important person in Westeros was. Daenerys Targaryen the Breaker of Chains and the First of her name.

Everyone was looking at her. She looked resplendent in her flat black dragon bone mail. Arya had on bright chain mail with plate armor on her shoulders in the colors of House Stark. The Queen looked over at Arya. Together they pulled their Rune swords from their scabbards. They both exploded into life. They glowed their ghostly blue with thin tendrils of eldritch magic that wisped up into the air several feet above the blades before the magical ether winked out.

The Lord of Revelstone beside them lifted up her body gripping the Ranyhyn with her thighs. She was stronger physically than she looked Oberyn mused. She took her staff in her hands and began to twirl it above her head in a blur. She was more coordinated than she seemed too Oberyn observed. She did this for fifteen seconds. A bright blue haze began to surround her body like a nimbus of gauzy mist. She then jabbed the staff up. It exploded into blue though a darker richer hue than the rune swords’ blue. A thick lightning bolt from the end of the staff shot up into the sky rising several thousand feet.
Then it exploded in a blinding flash of dark blue that shocked the eyes. Thousands upon thousands of arcs and tendrils spread out several miles in all directions sizzling the very air. A concussion of force roiled over the column like a fist that hit animal and man. A shocking loud clap of thunder reverberated over the column. If that bolt had been aimed at the column—she was much more powerful than she seemed.

The Queen and Arya still had their swords lifted and now turned their horses and put their swords away. There were not speeches. None were needed. They had heard what they needed to hear. They were moving up the King’s Road headed to war. A war that Daenerys and Eddard had prepared them as well as they could be prepared.

The column moved out from Winterfell in full armor and regalia. The citizens of the castle and Winter Town by the road cheering them on. Their spirits lifted by the martial display. The riders’ hearts filled with pride and desire to meet the threat and defeat it.

Soon they left the castle and town behind. They kept moving down the road for a league and passed around the low hill. They continued on for another mile. The Queen then called a halt to the column. Fifteen large freight wagons pulled up being drawn by oxen. These wagons would fall behind and be guarded by the mercenary company of the Black Panthers and a troop of Dothraki running picket. The knights unmounted and removed their armor. The display for the citizens of Winterfell and Wintertown was done. Their mission to install a last bolt of confidence accomplished.

The Queen refused to have the men and their mounts exhausted wearing armor that would not be needed. She had Dothraki and Mercenary companies prowling the lands below the Wall looking for any spies or raiding parties of the Ice King. There had been none found. Again all signs pointed towards a decisive battle at the Wall and Castle Black.

Soon all the knights and heavy cavalry had divested themselves of their armor. Stewards were busy marking the armor as to House and person and neatly bounding up and stacking in the wagons. The riders put on their normal clothing that had been unpacked for them.

Two hours later they were again riding down the King’s road to the first bivouac. They would have to ride into the dark to reach it but they would have hot meals ready for them and a dry spot underneath the tents erected. The queen had massive quantity of her mercenary companies riding up and down on the flanks of the King’s Road. The camps safe in the shields around the King’s Road. There would be no ambush of unprepared troops. The Queen had learned her lessons well in Essos.

They started up the King’s Road once more. Oberyn was talking to the Lords of Dorne. All were excited to be part of this large endeavor. Dorne tended to not involve themselves fully in the matters of Westeros. They had sent forces to support Rhaegar Targaryen but they had not fully committed. In the wars of the recent past one or several of the large Noble Houses of Dorne would not commit to the endeavor.

Oberyn supposed that was happening this time too. The Lannisters had been left behind. They could have brought many warriors to the field but Oberyn knew that as long as Tywin was the leader of the West they could not be relied upon. The might of Casterly Rock must remain there. It could not be trusted elsewhere in Westeros. It had been Tywin’s machinations that had led to sweet Elia’s death. He longed to get revenge for her death. One day he would corner the Mountain and chop him low.

As they road forth up the road he observed that the Giants and Ramen easily kept pace with the march of the horses. The Giants were constantly laughing and telling long stories that seemed to ramble and lose their ways before they came back to the main point. If there was one. They would pull huge jugs out of their backpacks and drink deep draughts of Diamonddraught. After a few deep drinks they would be walking with a more lively step and their voices louder.

Oberyn and many others had learned the errors of their ways while at Winterfell. The Giants would be in the inner yards or in the feast hall and drinking their liquid fire. Many men had taken the draughts the Giants freely offered. Oberyn could hold his liquor. He remember taking a long deep draught. It had not affected him at all he was positive at the time. Was he not the Rid Viper?

In fact he felt great. He never felt better. He was singing and making loud jibs to all his fellow seat mates. He carped and japed at one and all. He had always wanted to score with Sansa. He tried to run his hand down Sansa’s bodice. Margaery had nearly clawed his face off. For some reason he could not seem to block her hands but Sansa had come to his defense. The last thing he saw was the big bowl of mash potatoes coming towards his face for some reason.

He awoke later in his chambers with the laughing and smirking Manethrall Shapa and Char licking his face clean of mashed potatoes and gravy. Fohn was licking his neck clean while Trami was giving him hot deep throat as Oberyn grabbed his head to encourage him to suck and keep deep throat his long thick cock. He had been rather passive in the fucking that night.

Oberyn still found it hard to believe that one fucking drought of the Diamonddraught had put him under. The Haruchai who came in later that night inquired with their serious mien. “How can a warrior such as yourself be so flyweight?” “Do you drink milk all the time?” “You looked weird with drool coming out both sides of your mouth” “Are you normally wall eyed?”

Oberyn had made sour faces and flipped them off and gripped his throbbing head. “Fuck you all!”
Fortunately, they had taken his words literally. He soon forgot all about his headache getting his brains fucked out.

The sun felt good on Oberyn’s face and shoulder as the column rode north. The Giants were easily keeping up with their long legs. A Ramen would come in from the field and come up beside the Lord of Revelstone. The two speaking in soft words. The Ramen would sprint ahead and check the immediate path to make sure all was safe for the horses. Then they would race off into the distance.

Throughout the day a Cord would run back to the column and talk to the Lord on her Ranyhyn.
They would cycle by the Ranyhyn and Oberyn knew they were somehow communicating the intelligent horses.

From time to time a Haruchai and their Ranyhyn would come galloping in. They would communicate with Brail and Lord Lustra before riding back off in the direction from which they had come. Oberyn knew that they were completely safe with this picket guarding the way ahead and behind and their flanks. He knew the Haruchai were in constant communication amongst themselves.

There would be no ambush of this column.

The Direwolves of Robb, Arya and Sansa were running around and moving off to the woods off to the side and looping ahead of the advancing column. Oberyn knew their keen senses were on full alert. Robb was riding with his father while Sansa and Margaery were in a special wagon that was sized for them to have comfortable sleeping quarters. The wagon as spacious as the one the Queen had constructed for Missandei. The wagons had benches and large bins for scrolls, messages and maps. The two High Princesses and Missandei were all the time calculating supplies and the column spacing. The women planning to keep men and supplies moving apace up the King’s Road.

More supply trains were heading up the road. Also, Oberyn had heard that after the war Eddard was planning on creating something called a “nature preserve” in the Sand Hills and the Barrowlands. It seemed that Jon Arryn wanted to do so in the deep mountain ranges of the Vale. Places that animals were to have absolute protection. Some of the pure breed animals would be released into these preserves to repopulate the species in the wild.

Oberyn was not too sure about this idea but he would be willing to listen. He was sure Arianne and Myrcella would instantly buy into this idea of protecting nature so he knew he had better get used to the idea. Arianne would one day be leading Dorne. This led Oberyn to think of his brother. He worried about his brother’s health. He feared that Arianne would be the leader of Dorne sooner than later.

Later in the day, Oberyn spotted Nymeria “innocently” lopping closer to his mount. She was looking around nonchalantly acting like she did not know that Oberyn was near her and his spear was balanced on his saddle both ends of the spear jutting out from the flanks of the horse. The wolf’s eyes looking with longing at the spear of the Dorne man.

The wolf would sniff hard. Her lips rippled and her nose snorted. Oberyn had leached out the cinnamon with water and vinegar but it still smelled of the spice. He knew the Direwolf’s sensitive nose picked up the cinnamon just fine and had her worried. He was not wearing gloves anymore so that should let Nymeria know the wood was not hot any longer. It had taken two days of constant runs to the pool before the Weirwood tree before Nymeria’s mouth stopped slavering constantly and made the wolf howl in pain, frustration and the need for revenge.

It had all been worth it for Oberyn. He would take the wolf’s retribution when it came. For now he was enjoying getting over on the infernal beast. He deliberately made his spear haft tilt down enticing the Direwolf. Nymeria eyed the wood with an intense look of longing. She looked at the spear and then up at Oberyn calculating. The great wolf was calculating reward versus possible burning slavering mouth. She would shy off. Evidently, her ordeal had made her a coward Oberyn smirked wiggling his spear end at the wolf. Her snout sniffed and she shied back shaking her head in fear and worry.

The wolf had trailed Oberyn around Winterfell but had yet to screw up her courage to again try and take the spear from Oberyn. The wolf was again working on her verve and courage. She would slowly creep up on Oberyn that he observed out of the corner of his eye. He had gotten very good at that. Nymeria would first slink from horse to horse and then retreat back. She would race forward and lie in the tall grass. Oberyn had gotten good at spotting the wolf’s snout jutting out the grass or brush. As he passed her Oberyn saw Nymeria’s snout sniffing hard. The cinnamon had filled her heart with fear. She did not charge him trying to get his spear.

He smirked. All day Nymeria had been trying to screw up her courage and failing miserably. The wolf really, really wanted his spear and would advance on Oberyn from the rear yet again. Her belly almost brushing the ground. Her tail held straight out and low brushing right and left agitatedly. She knew something was not right with Oberyn not reacting to her evil intent.

By the late afternoon the wolf’s nerves were frayed with frustration. Nymeria on her last stalk had again chickened out when she got close to Oberyn. She had straightened up her fur all risen up bristled on end. The Direwolf’s tail swishing hard back and forth he fur fluffed out like a duster. She barked at Oberyn furiously. Her jaws snapped angrily at Oberyn promising him retribution. He only cocked an eyebrow down at the furious Direwolf. He offered her his spear.

Nymeria’s eyes flared with desire and then fear. She had thrown another fit. She barked and did wild flips in her anger and frustration. Slaver again flung out her mouth with her wild barks and howls. Oberyn noted it was not slimy like it had been with the cinnamon infestation in Nymeria’s mouth. Pissed off Nymeria then run off into the distance. Her head had been cocked back her hot eyes promising him the matter was not settled.

He couldn’t wait. He would never admit it but he loved this game with Nymeria.

Sansa

Sansa bumped up and down on her cushioned seat. She was beginning to see that going on the ‘campaign’ definitely had its disadvantages. Her rump at times was taking a beating as they wagon wheels went in and out ruts. She did not complain. She still preferred the occasional bumps and sudden jolts in their wagon than sitting on a horse all day and having her ass mauled, spine rattled and her poor pussy sawed in half.

They were four days out from Winterfell. Sansa was really happy with events. She was actually part of the war effort. The Queen was a warrior as was Arya so no one could argue that women did not belong. The rest of the company had a small sprinkling of other female warriors to leaven the bread so to speak. Barristan had his Marleya Blackmyre and we had of course Dacey Mormont to represent the North. But the greatest of them was Daenerys Targaryen the Queen of Westeros and over half of Essos.

What made Dany so special was she was both. She was of the elite warrior class in both Westeros and Essos. When she choose to wear her Dothraki bells her hair was aglow with them and in the heavy wind her hair literally tinkled with the sounds of sweet chimes. She had fought her own battles. She had killed and crushed enemies to get those bells in her hair. She had earned every one of them. In fact, she had so many she could not wear them all anymore.

Not only had she fought on the battlefield she had shaped the battlefield itself to ensure her victories. She was the master strategis that made the plans on how to conflict the battlefield. How to envelope the armies of her enemy on the field of battle. She developed tactics that allowed her to conquer the walled cities she had quickly defeated in Essos.

Many Kings and a few Queens had been that strategis that led from the rear. The war leader who fought from the safety of the rear and had their Field Marshalls lead the battle.

Not Dany. She implemented her plans she had developed from the front lines. She was the general who led the charges. Her exploits in Essos had become the stuff of legends. She had one by one conquered the Slave City States and she had led each of those battle from the frontlines. She had led the charges into attacking armies and led the sappers taking down the walled cities.

Sansa had only seen one other person that seemed to have all the qualities of a great war time leader. Her own father, Eddard Stark. He too came up with grand strategies, made the tactical decisions when the battle was joined and everything went to shit and plans had to be changed. Her father and Dany always seemed to be able to process the confusion of combat and develop the tactics necessary for victory. Then lead the troops under their command in implementing those decisions. Eddard was the great warrior on the field of battle who would bring down his foe and inspire his followers to victory. Dany was his equal in this in every way.

Sansa thought on this as she adjusted her seat on the cushioned bench. Beside her was her wife in all but name. She hugged the woman she loved Margaery Tyrell. She looked at her wife in her simple dress she wore in the comfort of their wagon. They had several small braziers with coal burning to keep the wagon warm. The tight construction keeping the warmth in.
Her father had taken a large transportation wagon and outfitted it so she and Margaery could ride and sleep in it at night. Missandei had such a wagon from the Queen. There were several other such wagons for seamstresses and women good at the intricate work of clasps and delicate metal work to keep clasps and buckles working correctly. Sansa knew they were lucky to have their wagon fitted out with the nicest upholstery and goose down stuffed bed and thick cushion seats.

Missandei had the same accruements in her wagon. Sansa was not ashamed to be taking advantage of the fact that her father was the Warden of the North. Nor was Missandei feeling any guilt with her fine phat ride. They were providing invaluable service to the Queen and the Warden of the North.

The wagons had other benefits as well. They were free of having to worry about riding a horse and being out in the open and the elements. They were valuable to the war effort but they were definitely not warriors. It was midafternoon and they had had the whole morning free since their meeting with Missandei had not been scheduled till after lunch. The troops ate mostly in the saddle or ate quick meals of beef jerky, whey bread or trail mix when stopping to let the horses rest and crop grass or eat oats offered them by the Dothraki and now Ramen tenders.

That had ate a nice tasty meal of left over pheasant and rabbit in a rice and green bean broth. Towards evening Arya moved out from the column with her bow and brought down rabbits and shot pheasants and quail out of the sky when she spooked them into flight. She did this just for Sansa, Margaery and Missandei. Arya preferred to eat with her fellow warriors and ate their fare.

The queen had special meals made for the other women in the other wagons but Sansa, her wife and Missandei got to eat fresh succulent meat every night. Her sister was very thoughtful in her own way. She found it hard to believe they once could not stand each other. Too bad she was so conservative in matters of the sex. She and Margaery would love to fuck Arya and Dany but they were in a committed one on one relationship. There loss.

This morning Sansa had been on her knees in front of the bunk in their wagon. They were both nude as their name day. Margaery’s legs on her shoulders. She was noisily eating Margaery out. Her mouth made obscene wet slurping and snuffing sounds as she devoured sweet swollen dripping wet dark pink cunt meat. Sansa would use a lose lip lock just to make sure her mouth made much obscene noises while dining on Margaery’s drooling clamshell.

Gods she would never tire eating out Margaery. She tongue raked her love’s slit and clt. She would then suck her upper cunt deep into her mouth and pump her head in and out stretching her wife’s upper labia lips and clitoral hood all stretched out. She loved the slimy feel of Margaery’s labia lips rolling around in her mouth when she sucked them in for sweet munching. Then back to licking Margaery’s sweet muffin with her mouth off her love’s pussy. Her tongue flat tongue licking and then flicking like a viper’s tongue over her love’s shiny clt.

Then burying her face deep in her woman’s vulva again making it flare out around her mouth in a wet kiss. She loved to feel Margaery’s cunt swallowing her mouth as she devoured it. The wet heat of the intimate kiss almost as pleasurable to the redhead as the woman she was sucking off. Gods Sansa thought she loved eating pussy! Sansa interspersing wet quick noisy sucks that put hot suction and friction on Margaery’s clitoral hood making her whoop and hips buck up into Sansa’s mouth.

Margaery gurgled how hot it looked so see her slimy wet cunt meat stretched out over an inch from vulva. “Unngg hhnnng hhnnn oohhhhh shit baby! Godsssdamm that is so fucking hot … hhhngg auuugg shit! Snap it out your mouth Sansa—pull my cunt out your mouth baby!” Margaery rose up on her elbows looking down her taunt belly. Margaery pleaded her eyes on fire.

Sansa smirked her mouth filled with hot slimy wet sweet pussy meat. Sansa sucked with all her pure love on the clt deep in her mouth and tongue lashed the rigid slimy wet nubbin. She then pulled her head back and up slowly stretching out Margaery’s wet trim in her mouth. Margaery’s eyes flared and Sansa moaned feeling the cunt meat stretched taunt and then snapping out through her lips whiplashing back down to Margaery’s wet vulva.

Sansa loved looking up and seeing Margaery’s face torn with sharp pleasure. Pleasure her mouth was giving her love’s steamy cunt. Margaery’s feet kicking beside Sansa as raw pleasure wracked her body. Margaery’s hands were roughly cupping and mauling her own breasts compressing and rolling her little doves. Her clenching fingers sinking deep into her small firm boobs. Her palms grinding down torturing small rigid nipples with grinding motions pressing hot friction into the rigid nips gagging Margaery with hot gouts of shocking ecstasy filling her tits and arching to her harsh sucked clit.

"Ohhhggnn sweet gods!" Margaery moaned softly. The princess of Highgarden watched Sansa’s head dive down and started a lapping motion tongue raking her shiny clit and sucking in briefly for quick short love sucks before tongue lashing and then “hhhuurrssssllppppp”. Sansa sucked Margaery’s upper cunt back into her mouth. Sansa pumped her head stretching her slut’s sweet snatch in and out with her pumping head motions. Then Sansa pulled her head higher that snapped the wet folds and whorls trough her lips with a wet snapping of over wrought sweet cunt meat out the vacuum suck of Sansa’s mouth sucked tight to the trim filling Sansa’s mouth.

"Ohhhnnnnn unngg hhnnng hhnnng hhnnn oohhhhhh fuccckkkkkk!" Margaery moaned in primal bliss. Sansa was back to tongue lapping her drooling slit and clit. Then hhhuuurrrrrssssppppppp as Sansa sucked Margaery’s cunt back deep into her hot sucking gobbling mouth. "Ohhhnnnn uunnggg uuuhhnnn fuck—shit baby! Godsdaammnnn it feels so fucking good . . . godsssss!" Margaery got up on her elbows and watched Sansa suck and devour her pussy. The Tyrell’s fingers now pinching her diamond hard nipples and tightly squeezing. The bolts staggering the brunette beauty. She watched Sansa’s head pumping up with her hard sucking mouth. Then Sansa jerked up snapping Margaery’s wet pussy out her mouth making Margaery cry out in ecstasy.

For the next few minutes both women were in heaven. They were both sweat and cum soaked from early orgasms and Margaery reveled in the slow buildup of pressure deep in her womb and the delicious increase of spasms deep in her cunt. Sansa was in the heaven of giving pleasure that Margaery was in her heaven taking.

Margaery’s head was on the mattress rolling right and left. Demented moans cawed out her pleasure stricken throat. Margaery’s body began to judder and her thighs clamped hard on Sansa’s face. Her heels digging into her wife’s back. She used her heels to lift her trembling snatch up to her wife’s hot sucking mouth. Sansa cupped her woman’s ass cheeks with clawed fingers jerking up to grind Margaery’s sodden cunt into her devouring mouth.

Sansa groaned deep in her chest feeling the “moment”. Margaery went from tensing and straining to falling off the precipice of searing agonizing ecstasy. "AAARRRUNNGGGGGGG! AAWWOOGGGGGGG! … oh oh hhnnn hhnnngg … Anngghhnmmnnmmgiiieee! Unnnmnggghiiee! Unngghnnmmggeeeeee!" Margaery shrieked feeling her womb explode.

Margaery’s body exploded in a rupturing orgasm, gagging and squirming uncontrollably on the mattress as wave after wave of shattering pleasure broke over her shuddering body. “Fffffuuuccckkkkkkk! Hhnnng hhnnn hhnnnn Oooowwggggggggggg! Arruuungggggggggg! Shit baby shit—Oooowwggggggggggg!" Margaery screamed feeling womb tear itself apart deep in her belly and sending scalding bliss into her veins. Her hands slamming the mattress and her heels pounding Sansa’s lower back. Her lover did not care grunting as she continued sucking her wife off. Sansa had lowered her mouth and sucked in sweet cunt meat and gulped down the hot gushes of sweet girl cum broiling out Margaery’s spasming fuck hole. The overflowing running down Sansa’s lower face and now her throat.

Sansa drank deep as Margaery’s orgasm slowly faded. Gods the smell of fresh ripe pussy flooded their wagon again with Margaery’s orgasm. Sansa would never tire of the sweet musk.

Several hours later they were finally satiated for the morning at least Sansa smirked. She left the wagon as they were at a rest break. She walked down the line two wagons to Missandei’s wagon. She approached the rear of the wagon. She walked up to the door slowly listening. Two mornings ago she had gone to Missandei’s wagon at the first rest break for the horses to see if the scribe wanted to eat a late breakfast with her and Margaery.

As she was about to knock on the door she heard Missandei moaning loudly. She put her ear to the door. She smiled loving having caught the small shy Naathi Jilling off. Missandei was moaning louder and louder quickly. Sansa felt a rush run through her body hearing the sounds of sexual excitement. She couldn’t wait to tell Margaery. She had not really gotten to know the small woman. Guttural caws and sibilant moans were constant now.

“Oh baby! Yessss! Unngg hnnngg uungggg … oh shit!” Sansa smirked. The composed teenager never cursed or even got riled that Sansa had seen. “I’m going to cum baby! Keep sucking keep sucking baby!” That got Sansa’s attention. “Ummnggg yesss that right … oh baby move around move around uunggg huuunggggg … lets do sixty-nine mash that hot cunt in my mouth baby!” Missandei chuffed out through her labored breathing.

She was gay! That immediately made Missandei’s stock go up with Sansa. She definitely needed to talk to Margaery. Sansa did not care if she looked like a perv she pressed her ear hard to the wooden door. She heard the loud groans of rising ecstasy and the sound of a palm smacking a wet pussy.

“OOOWWWWGGGGGGG! UUNNGGHHHIIIIEEEEE! MMNNNGGHHIEEEEEEEE! NNNNHHHEEEIIIIIIII!” the beautiful black girl screamed in almost soul blistering agony of hard cumming. She had listened intently as she heard Missandei work hard to prolong her orgasm for another thirty seconds of shrieks and piercing wails of shocked bliss.

She had hurried back to Margaery. Margaery had listened raptly. Sansa saw desire rapidly igniting in Margaery’s eyes. A light meal was available at the rest top for the women in the wagons. It had been postponed as she dined on succulent wet pussy!

Later, she and Margaery had Missandei in their wagon heading up the King’s highway. It was just after noon and they had shared a meal of oats and toast with raisins mixed in. The meal chased down with sweet goats milk. They had cleaned off the plates and set them outside to be picked up by the camp followers who were doing general cleanup and running errands and supplies up and down the column.

They had the ledgers out and were going over supplies. The Queen was fretting over not having enough obsisian tipped arrows. Margaery and Sansa pulled out the books that showed the shipments leaving from Winterfell to the Wall. Missandei had brought a scroll from her wagon with the numbers she had pulled from her ledgers.

Then Sansa had sat agog as the girl started writing strange symbols on a blank scroll. She excitedly looked at the ledgers. The two women watched Missandei look over her ledgers and roll her quill in her fingers. She turned to engage the two women with her.

“I asked Arya and Marleya Blackmyre how fast they could shoot arrows and how accurately. Then you factor in windage – I looked up records for the average speed of wind during winter at Castle Black – having a Maester is so cool; provides lots of good info – like the humidly which affects the bowstring. They can be made of linen, hemp, other vegetable fibers, sinew, silk, and rawhide.

Missandei had worked out formulas to see how many arrows would miss based on fear, adrenalin rush, environmental factors. She had read Jon’s report of the major skirmish between him and the force of undead. How larger bodies needed multiple arrow strikes to bring down quickly.

She then excitedly started doing “algebra” working out the number of arrows that would be shot in the conflict.

Sansa looked at Margaery. Her head was spinning too. They just smiled at the small black sixteen year old as she chirped and hummed working her “algebra” and coming up with answers with her strange symbols on the parchment. She then solved for how many troops it would take to block the tunnels leading through the wall.

It made the black teenager endearing … and alluring. Intelligence was sexy.

Sansa had discussed with Margaery about the Naathi girl and what she had heard in the moaning. She was obviously gay and she had no attachment. She was always alone. She had told Margaery she found her so attractive. “You want her don’t you, you slut?” Margaery had asked her with a big smile.

Sansa had shook her head ‘yes’.

“I want her too. You are becoming quite the fox in the hen house aren’t you my love. My hens are going to love you Sansa. Missandei will be at King’s Landing with the Queen. Maybe we can add her to our hens.”

Sansa had heartily agreed. Her dark skin and kinky hair was so exotic. Her dark skin and midnight eyes intoxicating. She was sweet and nice. A perfect mate for them and the fellow hens. Sansa was so happy to have made the discovery of Missandei’s homosexuality. She and Margaery had fucked themselves out thinking of Andi between their legs sucking them off. They talked of how they would suck her off to wailing orgasms and trib her to soul crushing orgasms. They would then fuck her in the pussy and ass to scalding orgasms.

Talking of fucking Missandei so good and long had them fucking again heatedly.

Now they looked at each other over Missandei’s head and smiled to each other knowingly. Missandei had just solved her last problem and was almost bouncing using her use of “algebra”.

Seeing Missandei so excited had her wagon mates horny. The scribe’s excitement with her algebra had her nipples poking out her dress. The sight had the two women nearly drooling with desire to fuck the beautiful black girl.

Sansa filled with the rush of conquest saddled up against Missandei. Missandei shivered and shied away. She and Margaery would make her lesbian fantasies come true. They would show her such soul shattering pleasure. It was time to take the girl and make her a woman.

She started rub Missandei’s inner thigh as the girl trembled. “Stop” she weakly croaked out. Sansa stroked her fingers up higher. She remembered Margaery plucking her body like a harp filling her with fuck hunger for the female body. Margaery now pressed into Missandei on her other side. “Oooohhhhhhh!” Missandei mewled feeling Margaery pressing into her side. Sansa could imagine the desires filling the young scribe’s body. Missandei weakly mewled “Please stop”.

Sansa smiled. Margaery was right. Seducing a sweet virgin was intoxicating. Margaery leaned her head down and started to nibble on Missandei’s earlobe. She would soon be theirs.
“I SAID FUCKING STOP!” Missandei screamed out.

Shocked Sansa pulled back as did an equally stunned Margaery.

“My gods Missandei I’m sorry!” Sansa blurted out. “I heard you masturbating two mornings ago and I heard you begging for your imaginary lover to jam her pussy in your mouth. I—we thought we would make your fantasies a reality. We were obviously mistaken. We apologize.”

Missandei started to cry softly. “I am saving myself but she won’t come to me!” the girl cried out. Sansa looked at Margaery. Who could it be? The girls torment touched the two would be seducers. They now wanted to comfort the distraught teenager.

“You mean Dany? Arya?” those were the only two women the young interpreter interacted with.

“No! My dream lover!” Sansa looked at Margaery. Okay. This had just gotten officially weird. Missandei seeing their confusion spoke her love’s name. “She Who Must Not Be Named”. Now it was even weirder.

“Dream lover?” Margaery asked.

“Yes. She gives me green roses every morning again but I grow tired of waiting.” The black girl slammed her fist on the table. “Why won’t she come to me and love me. I am smart and beautiful. I am saving myself for her to give her my virginity as she will give me hers.”

“What is her name?”

“I just told you!”

“That is her name?”

“Yes!”

“Missandei, tell us from the beginning if you can sweetie about this special lover of yours” Margaery encouraged Missandei.

The scribe took a deep breath collecting her thoughts. She gave them a tremulous smile to them. Andi took another deep breath and started to them about how She Who Must Not Be Named had come into her life when she bought to her the purloined scrolls from House Frey that exposed their treachery.

She told them of the several times they had touched minds and she learned some of She Who Must Not Be Named past. Missandei told them what she learned of her lady love’s fear that Missandei would harm her from Kiserri. The little girl’s revelations of the mystery woman’s fears shocking.

“Where is this Krill now Missandei?” Sansa asked the sniffling girl.

The little black woman face took on a look of concentration. Sansa and Margaery gaped seeing a long dagger flow out the left hand of the scribe and suddenly the room was filled with blinding light. When the light faded they both stared open mouthed at the Krill. Its edges so sharp they seemed to almost glow in the air. The gem shone like the sun come down to Earth. They could feel heat radiating off the gem.

Missandei told them how she had found she could keep the Krill and manacles within her body. The small scribe pulling the manacles out of her torso. The two astounded over what they saw as Missandei put the manacles back in her body. It had just kind of happened Missandei explained to them. She was able to translocate the items without conscious thought.

Only her desire to protect her love had caused the weapon to flow into her body. The manacles would trap her lover and the Krill could kill her. Missandei was sure her desire to protect She Who Must Not Be Named had caused the weapons to flow into her body. There she could keep them safe and away from anyone who use them to hurt her love.

Missandei turned the blade over and titled it so that her friends could see it from all sides. It radiated out heat that kept Sansa and Margaery back from the weapon. The edges of the Krill were impossibly sharp. The gem in its center blazed a pure argent that was beautiful to behold.

Missandei’s face was filled with a look of concentration and the blade melted back into her hand. The room lost its radiance.

The three women sat silently at the table. Missandei was calm for a minute. That changed in an instant. Her fist slammed down into the table again. “Where is she? I want my woman! It isn’t fare! You two have each other and Dany has Arya. I want mine!” the little scribe whined in frustration. She was looking around tears in her eyes. ‘Why won’t she come to me?’

Sansa and Margaery looked at each other.

“Missandei … you are in love with a goddess sweetie. She is so powerful. It sounds like she is afraid of falling in love again. She was hurt to the point of insanity. Now she thinks you will kill her —“

“I would never kill her!” Andi yelled at the messengers who tried to comfort her.

Sansa and Margaery recoiled from Missandei’s venom but understood her hurt. “We know that Missandei but maybe she just needs more time to see that. Let her come to you Missandei. If she is giving you magical roses she is saying she is in love with you.”

Missandei eyes went dreamy. “She is giving me a rose each morning. She is near and watching.”

Again the two lovers looked at each other. Now with fear!

“Uh Missandei … we are sorry for coming on to you. We did not know you were spoken for. You will let your girlfriend know that. Right?!?” Sansa asked urgently.

Missandei was distracted with her thoughts.

“Missandei?” Margaery asked more urgently. She looked over at Sansa. They both were really afraid they might have pissed off Missandei’s ‘dream lover’.

“What? Oh … uummm … don’t worry Sansa, Margaery … I will make sure she realizes you didn’t mean anything. She will not consume you and drive you insane or ripe the flesh from your bones as you scream in agony” the little scribe said distractedly. She was processing her desires and the words of Sansa and Margaery were only a tangent to the small black scribe.

They both gulped looking around. Again they asked for reassurance from Missandei. She was more focused now and assured the women she knew that her secret lover would not harm them. They were safe. She spoke with an assurance that relaxed them.

They worked some more on troop movements and they came to stop to let the horses rest and let the mounted troops to take any calls of nature.
Missandei was getting nervous and twitchy. Sansa looked over at Margaery with a sly smile. Missandei hurried back to her wagon to “do some much needed research”. The girl was going to do some more intense masturbation. The girl was proving to be like her caracal. A real hell cat in heat.

“Wow!” Sansa exclaimed. “We almost stepped in it there love. Who would have thought that shy, quiet and demure Missandei has a goddess wrapped around her little finger. I wonder when this goddess will come to Missandei.”

“I don’t know Sansa. It is strange she hesitates. She is so powerful. Sometimes having the strength to love is a hard thing to do. I am thankful I had the courage to take what I wanted” Margaery spoke with limpid eyes.

Their clothes were soon shed and on the floor of the wagon and they were again fucking heatedly with the smell of pussy so thick in the small space intoxicating the young lovers. They devoured sweet pussy and then took turns with their strap-on pounding swollen pussies. Soon the women were shrieking as stupendous orgasms throttled their beautiful bodies with fucking ecstasy.

/////////

They were at the campfire in the early evening gloom. The fires were raging providing light and heat. They were seated with the Queen and her consort and Missandei. The interpreter looked at them and smiled. All was forgiven Sansa sighed relieved. If she held no rancor in her heart she had to believe that Missandei’s woman with the long name would not come after her and Margaery.

As they waited for the food to be ladle out Sansa looked around the camp. There was still enough light to see all the standards softly rippling in the light breeze blowing down the King’s Road. The grass on the hills gently swaying in the soft wind. The various colors and various shapes and words on the banners were so colorful and exciting to see. It was like the grassy plains and low hills had become a high desert plain in spring and a thunderstorm had come across the plain.

The nurturing rains causing a riot of wildly colorful flowers to spout in the nighttime air. The flags gently flapping in the soft gusts. Houses from across Westeros were represented. She again marveled at what her father and the Queen had accomplished. They had brought most of the might of Westeros with them to fight the Ice King.

Sansa enjoyed the comradery she felt around this fire with the women of Queen’s inner circle. Her father was at the next fire over with nobles of the High Noble Houses. Lords and knights were around the many other campfires. The might of Westeros was united in the cause of the Ice King’s defeat.

Because of Missandei and her strange lover they knew of the treachery of House Frey and Bolton. She hated Roose Bolton and his bastard son Ramsey. The fucking bastards were going to give her father the excuse he needed to take down the rabid dogs. Soon that House would be exterminated. She couldn’t wait.

She saw Missandei looking out into the darkness with longing clearly written on her face. She was looking for her lover. The sweet little black teenager deserved to have her love. Too bad about her being spoken for Sansa thought. She would have been a great fuck she was sure. Sansa looked up and saw the Warrior’s Girdle glinting up in the night time sky. Its light slighting up the middle of the sky down to the horizon.

Sansa was so happy and exhilarated to be so intimately involved in history. She knew they would be victorious. She would be part of the songs they would write of this time. She might not be named in song but she would have been part of it. That was enough for Sansa.
She pulled Margaery to her as they waited for their meal. Soon the food arrived and they all ate heartily. Everyone was friendly and laughter filled the night time air. Sansa soaked up the comradery of her compatriots. There was singing and made rabidly jokes which produced peals of laughter.

Giants were walking around laughing and joking with each other and the persons sitting around the fires. The Giants telling loud stories that while they rambled in their storytelling the laughter and zeal of the Giants had everyone laughing.

The Haruchai walked around the edges of the periphery keeping their eternal watch over the camp. She heard Lady howl and Nymeria and Grey Wind answered. She heard the loud neighs of the Ranyhyn as they joined the Haruchai in patrolling the edges of the camp. Sansa felt safe with all the protection around her and the Queen. The Bloodriders were eating with the Queen but they were alert.

Wormtail and his honor guard were arrayed around the Queen and by proxy she and Margaery were also protected.

The meal ended about an hour later. Sansa and Margaery made their goodbyes. They walked hand in hand back to their wagon. They looked up at the glittering stars filling the sky and half full moon in the East low in the sky. As they slowly walked back to their wagon Margaery snuggled into Sansa.

“I am sure that Dany will be asking us to come back to King’s Landing Sansa. When I got out of the wagon this morning she was walking by with Arya. She told me this morning when you were still in the wagon that she truly valued all that we have done for the realm. Your father has told her how instrumental we were to his war effort. He told her of your sly ideas we used to help fool her scouts and the use of the double agent spy. She was most impressed.”

“She said she needed such skills in King’s Landing. She asked if we were up for a voyage South after the war was over. You hear that Sansa. We will be going back to King’s Landing. She sees us as valuable assets she wants near her. She needs us Sansa. She had officially asked us in her subtle way. I am so excited” Margaery had exclaimed.

Sansa was smiling from ear to ear. She hugged Margaery tighter to her body. All her dreams were coming true. She would be married to her sweet love and be able to walk proud with Margaery on her arm. She would be a valuable tool for the Queen. She shuddered to think how once she was destined to be some breeder for some dullard Lord or another.

“You know what else that means don’t you Sansa?” Margaery asked with coy tone to her voice.

“Yes I do my love” Sansa replied now groping Margaery’s ass. “Ummnnggg” she shivered hearing Margaery moan and shiver pressed into her side.

“It means I will finally get to meet the hens. It is going to happen. I must say I have come to long for his meeting. I plan on devouring said hens. You are my hen now Margaery. When I get to King’s Landing I will be the proverbial Direwolf in the chicken coop. I will be devouring all the hens Margaery … first you and then all your sweet handmaidens. The first night in King’s Landing I will devour all of you. I will have you lying on the bed with your legs spread and pushed back. I will be between your legs feasting on hot wet dripping sweet cunt. Then I will move down the line of the other hens devouring sweet couchies. I will suck you all off again and again till the sun comes up.”

Margaery whimpered.
“I will suck you all off so well. I am getting very horny Margaery. I think I will pound your asshole till it gapes and I give you sweet anal ‘gams of soul crushing pleasure. After you clean your ass off my dick I will then slam my dick up your cunt till you come wailing as I rub your clit. Is that what you want my pretty little hen?”

Sansa looked down at Margaery. She was glassy eyed and her breathing was getting ragged. She nodded silently up at Sansa. Sansa smiled. Margaery was teaching her well.

They arrived at the back of their wagon. They paused. Lady was sitting by the steps to the door. She looked at them and woofed. She pranced over and licked their faces and woofed happily. They scratched her ears and under her neck. They opened the door to their wagon and Lady bounded in and leapt up on the bed and circled around on the bed. She kicked until she had made a nest of the now haphazardly piled furs. Half of the furs now on the floor. She then plopped down and tucked her nose underneath her front leg and was already dozing off.

Lady could be selfish sometimes. Normally she liked to sleep on the floors on the furs laid out for her but after a long day of running around and getting tired the Direwolf needed to sleep on the bed it seemed.

Sansa laughed her head tilting back. Margaery and she chuckled as they straightened out the furs on the floor. They pulled others out of their storage bins above their bed and threw them down on the floor too. They threw one over Lady and tucked in the Direwolf. Lady was already twitching. Her muzzle and her lips quivered as she chased some rabbit or maybe was running in a pack.

They quickly stripped their clothes and fell down on the floor and were soon making heated love. Sansa was so happy.
“AAAARRRUUUNGGGGG! OOWWWWGGGGGGG! FFFFUUCCKKKKKKK!” Arya screamed like a banshee not caring who heard outside of the Queen’s tent. Each night after they had made camp from traveling up the King’s Road Dany had fucked her brains out. Arya loved fucking her lover and no longer cared who knew it. At first she had been embarrassed knowing others could hear her screams of hard orgasm.

Discovering that Sansa who was once every bit as shy as her did not hold it in when she cummed had been liberating for Arya. Sure they both still blushed in public when their sweeties were salacious but when it came time to fuck Sansa and now Arya lost their inhibitions.

Dany had made it clear that when time was found she would fly Arya back to the Dothraki Sea and make love to Arya before the Khalasars that were under the Khalasee’s control. Dany had five large Khalasars under her control and would put them all under her complete sway after this war. Dany had made it clear she would take Arya before each one. Her Queen would throw furs on the ground and fuck Arya before all as they watched and shouted obscene jests and instructions on how to fuck each other.

At first Arya had blanched but no more. She was happy to fuck in Dany’s tent. It was cold outside! Also, her father was a prude and the idea of him knowing she was fucking Dany for all to see was … well … just too weird for her. Sansa yes. She was a bigger perv than Arya was becoming and by the gods Stannis and Selyse had gone wild and could now give Oberyn a run for his money. But good old Dad was still so shy and reserved that doing the nasty in front of him was not possible.

Arya wondered. She was becoming more liberated all the time. She would wait to see what the future had her doing. Her mind stopped wondering with all the wonderful things that Dany was doing to her.

Dany was behind Arya eating her out doggy. Her face buried deep in her red wet seam. The Queen of much of the known world snuffling and groaning into the pussy she was devouring. Her nose wallowing in Arya’s anus as her tongue lapped and lashed up and down in Arya’s honey hole. The Queen’s long tongue probing and licking around in her slimy fuck butter filled fuck hole. Dany making obscene dining noises eating her slut out. Dany then punching her head to tongue fuck her Wolfing’s cunny.

Then Dany was licking her tongue up and down Arya’s drooling slit. Her lips giving short sucks to torment and stretch Arya’s inner lips and lick the smooth red seam. Dany’s face mashed into her twat her nose like a plow working her seam from top to bottom. Her right hand she had looped around Arya’s groin and was rubbing her shrieking clit. Arya was gripping the furs jamming her groin back into the face of the Queen mashing her clamshell into Dany’s face hard. The Queen’s muffled moans swallowed by Arya’s vulva engulfing Dany’s mouth.

Arya was again on the precipice of orgasm her body stiffening and that wondrous tension filling her belly and making her thighs clench. Sweat poured off both of their bodies. Arya could feel her hair plastered on her forehead and cheeks and down her back and upper ribs. Her breathing ragged as she gasped and whimpered in aching need. She had her eyes closed tight as she fought off her orgasm to prolong the ecstasy Dany filled her body with. The feel of Dany’s fingers whipsawing Arya’s clit had the teenager whimpering and shuddering with primal fuck bliss.

Dany mashed her mouth tight to Arya’s fuck hole and sucked in a mouthful of sweet cunt meat and munched groaning like a whore. She jerked Arya’s clit harder and faster. The teen’s pussy now making wet watery sounds of a cunt rising to orgasm. Arya’s eyes shocked wide open as her body fell off the cliff face into searing agonizing ecstasy. Her breath knocked out of her body for a handful of heartbeats. Arya’s body bucked and jackknifed wildly up and down her back arching up and snapping down again and again as fucking convulsions of searing bliss ripped her cunt inside out.

Arya took a deep ragged breath to get her air back. "Aaaaarrruuuuunngggggg! Auuhgghnnnmmm! Unngggghhiiiiiieeee! Uuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuuntttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttttt
“You fucking slut!” Arya play snarled her body still locking up with strong aftershocks. Her body would freeze up and her arms thrashed with harsh short jerks beyond her control. Her face locking up in a snarl of receding ecstasy. “I’m going to make you scream so all your generals know I am fucking you so good Dany!” Arya husked looking down at Dany as she crawled between Dany’s legs. She leaned forward and fell to her palms that were beside Dany’s head.

Arya looked down on Dany. The pale Queen’s face dripping with sweat and smeared with her cum on her lower face and nose. Dany’s snow white hair plastered in strands on her face and shoulders. She looked up at Arya with raw fuck hunger. The slut still humping her pulled open pussy at her love. Arya lowered her head and their mouths came together hungrily.

Both women moaned loudly feeling their tongues coil and wetly wrestle deep in Dany’s mouth. The appendages slippery and wet as they squirmed around deep in Dany’s mouth. Then Arya conquered the Queen’s tongue and slammed her tongue down the Queen’s throat with spearing thrusts of pure love. Arya slit her eyes opened and smiled into the devouring kiss seeing her love’s face slash and her eyelids bugle and jerk showing her eyes rolled back into her skull and convulsing hard.

The sounds of wet snogging filled the Queen’s tent. They would break for a quick breath. They would then kiss sweetly for a moment making wet smooches and slurps before locking lips again for deep Dorne kissing. Arya had lowered her body so both women could enjoy the slippery wet sliding and jerking of their sweaty bodies over each other.

As they continued to kiss, Arya wallowed her lower body down onto her lover. Their bellies wallowing and now slapping as Arya added a sensual humping motion to get that sweet slapping of sweat soaked flesh. She supported her weight on her knees and her forearms beside Dany’s shoulders enough to not crush her slight lover. Dany liked it rough but Arya did not want to tax her slight frame with all her weight.

They had both tilted their heads to mate mouths as tight as possible. Their tongues wetly wrestling from mouth to mouth. Arya and Dany exploring fully each other’s oral orifices when their tongues were not coiled around each other. Arya loved the feel of Dany’s sweaty body pressed the length of her torso. Their sweaty skin slipping and sliding against each other. They took turns sucking on each other’s tongues which was a huge turn on for both women. To feel their tongues receiving hot head went straight to their nipples and clit.

They snogged fiercely with Dany’s arms looping over Arya’s shoulders and her thighs coming up to clasp the Stark teenager’s ribs her heels resting on Arya’s ass. Dany held her tight as Arya broke the kiss and smiled as Dany chased her lips. That smiled turned to an evil leer as she lowered her mouth to Dany’s throat. She licked and nipped the tender flesh she found there. Her tongue rasping the Queen’s pulse point. Dany gurgled feeling Arya suckle her throat.

Then Arya mashed her face hard into Dany’s throat which made her gasp. Then Dany shrieked. “AAWWWOOGGGGGGGG!” Dany screamed as Arya for the third time this night marked Dany as her bitch placing a vicious hickey on her neck at her pulse point. Her teeth seesawing the sweet tender flesh sucked in and out her grinding teeth. Dany convulsed her limbs pulling Arya down harder into her body and her pussy wallowed on Arya’s lower belly sliming it with fuck need.

Arya locked their mouths tight again and tilted her head over to get a deep kiss while she tried to ram her tongue down Dany’s convulsing throat. Their tongues wrapped around each other, Arya pulled her tongue out of Dany’s mouth wetly. She loved the strands of slimy spit roped between their lips. Dany pouted lifted her head to try and catch Arya’s lips just above hers but Arya pulled back chuckling with a smile. She kissed Dany’s nose which stopped her pout with a smile.

Then she was kissing down Dany’s cawing throat and her hands cupped her love’s full breast and pushed them in and up. Her head moved right and left sucking thirstily on rigid stiff nubbin nipples. Her tongue rasping light brown stems and steeple areolas. Dany’s head jerked back into the furs her face contorted in fierce pleasure feeling the rasping tongue licking her throbbing nipples so well. Arya’s hands pumped the warm orbs in her fingers pumping the udders hard like Dany loved it. Her fingers sinking deep into the Queen’s breast.

"Ohhhh . . . god, you do that so well . . ." Dany moaned her lilac eyes looking down at Arya who looked up at her as she pressed her lips to the Queen’s areola and vacuumed sucked. "Oh! Oh . . . yesssss! Unnggg hhnnnnggg . . . shit—yeeesssss!" Dany groaned softly, looking down at Arya’s mouth on her wet, pointing, throbbing nipples. Arya worked both nipples before kissing up Dany’s flushed throat and locked lips again with Dany for more deep Dorne kissing. Both women chuffing into their heated kisses.

Back and forth Arya worked Dany’s cawing mouth and rigid nipples. Now she was kissing down Dany’s palpating belly. She smelled the thick rich musk of her lover’s wet cunt. It smelled like heaven to Arya. Dany’s legs had fallen off her hips while kissing and now the Queen spread her legs wide whimpering in anticipation. Arya smirked kissing firm abs nipping sweet firm flesh. She kissed down Dany’s belly sucking on her belly button which made the white haired woman whoop and her hips jolt.

Arya now kissed down Dany’s lower belly as she mewedled “yessss yesssss oooh yes!” Arya continued kissing as she worked straight down the bald camel toe smiling hearing Dany sigh and then the change of tone to WTF as Arya now kissed up Dany’s thigh. She kissed and licked up Dany’s muscled upper leg to her knee. “Unngg Baby pleaseeeeee! Don’t tease me baby!” Arya smiled gripping Dany’s lower leg and rising up to sit on her ass with Dany’s right leg in her grasp.

She kissed up the quivering calf and then Dany’s ankle. “Oohhhhhhh yeeessssss!” Dany gurgled and then sighed feeling Arya kiss her instep and up to her toes. Two nights before Dany had shown Arya how to worship a love’s feet. She had loved it. Now she was going to show Dany what she had learned.

Arya looked down at her woman with smoky eyes making the twenty year old mewl. Keeping eye contact Arya sucked in Dany’s big toe. Her lips closed tight and she swirled her mouth on the toe. Dany moaned and her toes curled and flexed in pleasure. Then Arya sucked in the next toes and slowly gave them head with her warm mouth and lathing tongue. Up and down Dany’s toes Arya pumped her head. "Oohhhhhnnnnn . . . uunnnhhhhhhnnn . . ." Dany moaned, almost melodically, but her moans increased in intensity with nearly each second. "Unhhh! Unhhh!" the Queen began to pant more rapidly.

Arya sucked hard her head moving over to suck in Dany’s four small toes and bobbed on them and then slowly wormed her tongue between the digits and circled them and used her hands to spread Dany’s toes sucking on each one individually as her woman looked at her with slit slut eyes. The Valyrian’s lilac eyes looking up at Arya with slutty intensity.

Arya kissed down Dany’s leg as her slut humped her pussy up in wanton need. She smiled hearing Dany gag moan and then curse her as she kissed down Dany’s inner thigh and over her wet twat and now up her other leg. She reached Dany’s toes and made love to them with her wet sucking mouth. She had no desire to suck a man off but she could understand the love of sucking a phallic shape. She wished Dany would stop delaying fucking her with her strap-on dicks.

Arya took a deep breath sucking on Dany’s big toe sensually. She had plenty of time. Soon Dany would fuck her in her cunt and then deflower her willing asshole with her dick. Through Nymeria Arya had seen Sansa and Margaery fucking in the hayloft over the stables. Sansa had become quite adventurous it seemed. Arya watched through Nymeria’s wolfish eyes Margaery fucking Sansa septa style face to face and Sansa cummed so hard her ankles kicking over Margaery’s hips.

Arya loved to watch women fuck through Nymeria. Her wolf moving silently as she spied on the women in the rut. The wolf knew her master enjoyed watching women fuck and enjoyed it in a curious way. Making her master happy made Nymeria happy. Arya found it hot to watch her sister fuck. She found it hard to believe now how much she used to really dislike Sansa.

It had never gotten to the level of a hate but it had trended that way for a short while. Thank the gods those days were over. Arya was a one woman woman. Arya knew that if the she and the Queen were willing Sansa and Margaery would happily fuck them. They were totally into open relationships. They knew who they truly loved but evidently wanted to bring other women to their bed.

Sansa had told Arya of her plans with Magarey and her hens. Arya had blushed hard with her mouth hanging open when her formerly stiff and prudish sister had told her those hot juicy details of what she would do to her ‘hens’. The Sansa had intimated something else to Arya that at first had stunned her. Sansa had hinted that she and Margaery would love to have a “close intimate relationship” with Dany and Arya. Sansa had told Arya that with a direct smoky eye contact. It was clear what Sansa offered. Her sister stroking her arm slowly, sensually.

Arya was not upset or put off. In fact she had been touched by the offer. Arya had politely told Sansa that she and Dany wanted only each other. They completed each other. It was a sweet tempting offer but she only had eyes for Dany and Dany for her.

Sansa had smiled and tipped her head. She left saying the offer would still be there. Yes, indeed Sansa had changed mightily. She remembered seeing her sister being a hot slut with Margaery in the hayloft several weeks before they left Winterfell. Watching them fuck surreptitiously had turned Arya on immensely. She could not practice all the time while Dany was in her interminable meetings. A little snippy around by Nymeria usually found Arya some hot sex to watch somewhere on the immense castle grounds. The grounds filled with people in the prime of life and extremely horny!

Yes. Arya had enjoyed immensely watching Sansa and Margaery fuck. She watched Margaery fuck her sister down into the furs on the straw. Her hips lifting and snapping forward and down to impale her sisters hot tight twat with spearing thrusts. Their sweaty bodies slapping hard. With Nymeria’s sensitive nose she smelled their pussies so strongly it had the teenager drooling. The Sansa cummed so hard screaming while her body jackknifed and flipped hard underneath Margaery as she continued to slam fuck her sister’s hot drooling love box.

Then Sansa sucked her pussy off the cock hotly driving Arya wild with desires to do the same with Dany. Then Margaery had gotten Sansa spoon and slowly invaded Sansa’s asshole with her dick. Of course Arya knew of anal sex and observed it often through Nymeria, Arya felt her body on fire seeing again through her wolf’s eyes her sister fuck. The fact that it was her own sister taking at thick eleven inch strap-on up her ass “balls deep” was so fucking hot. Margaery was soon fucking Sansa so hard in the ass. Sansa’s voluptuous ass cheeks shaking with the pounding they were taking.

Both women making such sweet slutty sounds. Margaery snarling and chuffing as she arched her back and slightly changed positions to work her slut’s asshole from different angles. Her sweaty legs slapping hard into Sansa’s lower back and ass cheeks. Sansa was moaning and whinnying constantly her face slashed with anal bliss feeling her woman’s dick ram fuck fully up her tight spasming shithole. Their bodies slapping with each impaling thrust.
It turned Arya so much when Margaery would pull her dick out her sister’s asshole. The cock slavered with sweet shit juice in thick smears. Especially underneath the crown of the cockhead. The Tyrell rolled on her back cupping the back of Sansa’s head. With her hand controlling Sansa she rolled her sister over and pushed the redhead down to her dick. Sansa reached down to the base of Margaery’s dick and lifted it off Margaery’s belly.

Sansa stared at the shaft slavered in her sweet shit juice. Sansa looked up at Margaery. “Clean your shithole off my cock slut!” she barked down at Sansa. Arya felt a thrill run through her body. She wanted to be in Sansa’s position with Dany barking down at her to clean her ass off Dany’s dick. Shivering Arya watched Sansa’s head dive down to clean Margaery’s asshole of her dick.

Arya was masturbating watching the hot show. Dany had been in another boring meeting with some of her mercenary commanders who had come to Winterfell to give reports. Arya had cummed screaming seeing her sister suck her ass juice off Margaery’s cock hungrily through Nymeria’s eyes. Arya had seen ATM and A2P before but seeing Sansa doing it had forever hooked Arya on ATM. Seeing Sansa’s lips glued to Margaery’s cock and how Sansa moaned cleaning her ass off her lover’s dick was heaven to Arya. It was so fucking lewd and deviant seeing Sansa do it. She loved it! She wanted it with Dany!

She knew her experienced lover was analy adventurous. She had hinted at it and Arya was tired of waiting. Watching Margaery fuck Sansa in the ass made Arya a total believer in anal sex. Again and again Sansa sucked her ass off Margaery’s cock with sweet ass juice ringed down at the base of Margaery’s black leather cock. Sansa bobbed so hard sucking her ass off the black shaft. She would cup the shaft and suck up slowly from base all around and then tilt her head down and swallow the cockhead and shaft and pump her head hard. Her sweaty lank hair jerking with her head bobs. Then Sansa pulled off pumping the shaft with her fist. She looked at Margaery with pure slut eyes. “Gods I love sucking my shithole off your dick Margaery!” Sansa’s shocking lewdness had sent Arya into orgasm again.

She wanted that with Dany but would be patient. She loved what she had learned so far and Dany was slowly bringing her forward. She would be patient. Arya had so much to look forward too. Her mind stopped drifting and came back to the present.

Arya sucked on each of Dany’s toes and then was able to get all four small toes and almost the big toe in her mouth. Arya bobbed her head on the toes giving them head. The toes and foot stretching out her mouth wide. She knew she looked lewd with her mouth stretched out like that but she didn’t give a fuck. She was pleasuring her woman and that was the only important thing. Arya hungrily sucked on them and went back to the four smaller toes and gave them wet lewd slurpy head on each individual toe. Dany moaned and pleaded. “Unnggg unnggg oohhh shittttttt! Baby baby—suck me off Arya! My pussy is on fire for you baby! Pppplleeesseeeeee!”

Arya needed some wet gash herself and slowly kissed back down Dany’s leg and settled between her lover’s spread legs. She inhaled deep the sweet pungent musk of her lover and looked at the swollen snatch of her woman. Arya wasted no time burying her face in her lover’s sweet snatch and hungrily licked up and down her wet dark pink seam. Dany’s neck ached ramming the back of her head into the furs hard moaning like the slut she was. “Ohhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhh! Ohhhhhhhhhhhhh gods” Dany moaned deep in her chest feeling Arya tongue lap her slit and lash her rigid throbbing clit. “Aauugggg hhhhhhhh mmmmmnggggg . . . ohhhhh gods . . . Arya!” she gasped.

Her head rose and she looked at Arya with cum bleary eyes staring at her in their purple intensity. Arya wiggled her head to get her face deep into Dany’s mons. Dany’s vulva hungrily enfolding Arya’s mouth as she tongue lashed Dany’s clit relentlessly. Her tongue running roughly over the rigid nubbin again and again. Then Arya lifted her head so she could extend her tongue folding it on her chin and roughly flat tongue lick Dany’s engorged shiny wet clit. Dany whopped and gurgled. Arya moving her mouth down and giving the nubbin short hot suck kisses that noisily popped off the turgid shiny button. Dany was crying out throwing her hips up into Arya’s hot gobbling mouth.

Arya would stop her licking to give her sweetie’s clit hot short sucks followed by wet sucking kisses. The sounds wet and sloppy filled the tent with the obscene sounds of a wet pussy being devoured hotly. Arya drooled spit onto the feast before she slurped that spit back up all merged with sweet slimy love snail snot. Arya would suck in a mouthful of sweet cunt meat and roll it around in her mouth while her tongue batted and speared the sweet bud in her mouth. Then she would back off enough to flick and spear her tongue into Dany’s clit and work her face up and down Dany’s slit inhaling sweet cunt meat to roll around in her starving mouth.

Arya could feel the tension rising up hotly in Dany’s jerking body. She sucked Dany’s clit deep into her mouth and rolled it with her tongue while vacuum sucking on it. Dany was crying out louder and louder as she rotated her hips up into Arya’s hot sucking mouth. Arya had been gripping Dany’s hips to anchor herself but moved her hands to cup Dany’s ass cheeks as they flexed and rolled. She loved the feel of Dany’s taunt ass cheeks contracting and flexing as Dany rotated her wet cunt up into Arya’s hot sucking mouth.

Arya scooted up to jam her elbow into the furs to help Dany fuck her mouth. Her hands lifting Dany’s pussy harder up into her gobbling mouth. She sucked and tongue lashed sweet cunt meat. She then sucked Dany’s clit so hard she hoped she might tear it off her sweetie’s cunt with her deep throat love sucks. Dany froze and her hands slammed on Arya’s head and clawed in. Her face contorted in almost agonizing pleasure. “Don’t stop Arya! Gods suck harder! Sucksucksuck—aaarruunnnggg oh ohhh so close so close …”

Arya took a deep breath and deep throat love sucked on the clit deep in her mouth her tongue polishing the Diamond hard tip of Dany’s now shrieking clit.

“GGOODSSSSAAAMMMNNNNNNN! OOOWWWGGHHHHAAA! AAWWOOOGGGGGGGG! …SSSHIIITTTTTTTTTT!” Dany screamed as if she was being butchered alive her cunt jerking up hard into Arya’s hot sucking mouth. The Queen’s body wildly flipped up and down grinding her immolating camel toe in Arya’ mouth. Arya sucked with cheek hollowing sucks now wiggling her head to tongue lash the shiny clit. Dany grunted and snuffled fucking Arya’s face with her exploding cunt. Arya worked with total focus to keep Dany’s orgasm running on. “AWWWOOOGGGGGGGG! Hhnnggg hhnnn hhnnn uummggggg Owwwwwwggggggggg! Unngghhhiiiiinngggggg!” Dany continued to screech out her shocking pulses of hard cumming.

Arya moved her left hand from cupping Dany’s ass up to her drooling fuck hole. Arya lined her fingers up slammed three fingers in Dany’s tight fuck sleeve. Her fingers instantly soaked again in the creamy buttery cum flooded in Dany’s fuck hole. Arya pumped them hard in and out for a long moment and then flipped them up and found Dany’s g-spot she knew intimately having long ago mapped the sweet spongy hillock. Arya would never tire of the feel of that raspy nerve bundle.

She harpooned the spongy hillock and rubbed furiously. Dany’s body had stiffened as killing convulsions tore through her sweet pale body. Then suddenly the tenor of Dany’s weakening moans changed. A second orgasm exploded out her clit being sucked viciously and her g-spot being harpooned savagely. Now her upper body exploded forward and snapped back into the furs repeatedly. Dany’s full firm tits whiplashing on her flipping chest. Killing convulsions ripped through the Queen’s body.
Her body folded forward again. All the while her shrieks filled the room
"FFFFUUCCKKKKKKKKKUUNNGGGRRRRRRRR! AARRUUNNGGGGGG!
HHHNNNGGGG! HHHNNNGGGGGGGG! … Unnhhhuunnnhhhh! Unnhhhuunnnnhhh! Oh . . .
unghhhhh . . . oh yes!" Dany cried out, her body jackknifing violently as her orgasm up surged through her young tight body like a shooting star orgasm. Her body snapped back slamming back down to the furs. "Unnngghh! Oh! Auunngghhhhhhhhh! Ooohhmmmmngggg!
Auungghhmmnnngggggeeeeel!" Gods Arya thought watching Dany’s young warrior body torn apart with ecstasy from her ministrations was so fucking beautiful!

Dany’s orgasm started to wane now. Arya stopped giving oral ministrations to Dany’s now sloppy wet trim. She now gently lathed the spent pussy of her lover. Arya moaned slurping up creamy dollops of cum smeared on Dany’s spent cunny, inner thighs and belly. Dany mewled feeling Arya’s tongue rasping up her body licking up sweet cum.

To Arya, Dany’s sweet cum was like manna from the gods. She licked over Dany’s clit several times making the Queens’s hips jolt with sharp pleasure her sensitive clit jangling. Sweet aftershocks gripping and shaking the Queen’s lithesome body. Arya now kissed up the sweat soaked hard belly and detoured to suck each of Dany’s nipples thirstily making the pale haired Valyrian cry out in sharp pleasure.

Then the lovers were in a lover’s clench rolling around on the furs. Their bodies pulled tight by looped arms and hooked legs on the back of their lover’s legs. Right and left the bodies rolled with heads titled over to allow mouths to lock tight and let long tongues snake down cawing chuffing throats. Arya felt her eyes roll back feeling Dany’s long tongue drilling underneath her tongue and then swirling over her tonsils before spearing repeatedly down her throat.

Dany got Arya on her back with her on top. Dany wiggled down on Arya letting her future wife and Queen feel the length of her toned body wallowing down on Arya. Arya griped Dany’s ass to help the twenty year old grind her body down on the barely sixteen year old teenager. They kissed ravenously. Arya’s plum nipples fully engorged with fuck need as Dany stroked her body and mouth with her tongue and pressing body.

Dany broke the kiss and her lips found the shell of Arya’s left ear. She nipped and sucked on Arya’s earlobe. That had Arya’s legs scissoring on the furs. She then drilled Arya’s ear with her wet tongue and breathed hot air into the shell. Arya cried out in pleasure. Dany kissed over to her temple and then down her face with hot kisses and wet tongue licks. Then Dany’s mouth was on her throat below her ear.

“AARRUUNNGGGGGG! AAAAAWOOOGGGGGGGG!” Arya screamed feeling Dany mark her with a vicious bruising hickey sucking the tender flesh deep in her mouth cruelly between the pearly white teeth of the Queen. Arya’s body jolted up into the Queen’s body pressed down on her. Arya pulled Dany’s body tight to her body as she whinnied and jolted. Then Dany was kissing down Arya’s chest and kissed over to Arya’s left plum nipple. She kissed around the bulging nipple nearly an inch thick and bulging up like a bursting plum slightly turnip shape the middle bulging out slightly.

Then Dany sucked the engorged hot bulb deep into her mouth. Dany’s cheeks hollowed out with her hot hungry sucks on the delicious pulpy nipple. "Unhhh! Unhhhh!" Arya panted, her eyes wild with excitement. Dany caught Arya's eyes instantly telegraphing to Dany how good she was making her young slut feel. Arya’s head started to thrash as Dany hooked her lips on the bulging bottom of Arya’s nipple and areola where it met the barely there breast of Arya.

"Dany . . . Dany . . ." Arya moaned, saying her lover’s name with infinite love since she could say nothing else at this moment. "Ohhhhh . . . Dany . . ." Arya’s helpless caws inspired Dany. She sucked so hard her head lifted stretching out the plum nipple in her mouth. Arya lifted her head and pounded it into furs over and over as her nipple filled with hot pulsing pleasure. Dany quickly moved over to the other engorged teat and swallowed it deep and hooked her lips on the crown and wolf sucked the engorged teat. Then her tongue stabbed the pulpy nipple all over and then lathing it in a circular motion.

Dany moved back and forth working both plum nipples. Her elbows on the furs her hands squeezing the pulpy nipple not deep in her mouth. Now Dany’s head was back over Arya and she looked down at Arya with glittering lilac eyes. Her fingers hard pinching and squeezing the engorged bulbs of Arya’s nipples her fingers sinking deep into the rubbery teats.

She could feel Arya’s soupy cunt humping her lower stomach and sliming it with fuck need. She wanted her love’s well fucked cunt lubricated with fresh fuck juice. She had something so sweet planned for her sweetie. A new pleasure to share. Dany spent another several minutes loving Arya’s sweet plum nipples. She loved to vacuum suck with long ragged love sucks while she slapped the engorged teats with her tongue.

When not sucking on a sweet plum she squeezed hard with her fingers pulping them with hard squeezes that had Arya’s head jerking up from the furs her face twisted with primal ecstasy. Her body soaked in sweat with her rising fuck need. Dany smiled seeing Arya reduced to a wanton slut.

Arya groaned feeling Dany kiss down her sweaty heaving body. She felt Dany sit up and lifted her head to see why her sweetie was delaying sucking her off. Her cunt was on fire! She was about to whine when she saw Dany reach for a small urn she had placed near it when they had entered her tent. Dany picked it up now and turned to face Arya.

Dany had used the special lubricant form Lyse a few times before to make her fingers extra slippery when she fucked Arya in the ass with her fingers. It felt so greasy and sensual. Arya was excited to get her ass penetrated but her eyes narrowed when Dany tilted the urn and the liquid fell on her right hand she held over Arya’s snatch. The liquid that missed the hand or rolled off it falling on her cunt. “Ummmngggggeeeessssssss!” Arya moaned in a sibilant hiss feeling the warm liquid land on her mound. She loved the feeling of the greasy concoction. It tasted a little of coconut milk and loved it.

Arya whimpered feeling the tip of Dany’s tongue and needing more. She humped up her pussy enticingly to her lover. She was about to plead for it like a fucking whore when Dany sucked her entire upper cunt deep into her mouth and suckled voraciously and her right hand slipped two and then quickly a third finger into her frothing quim and fucked her sensually in and out with slow thrusts of her long pale fingers. Her greasy fingers sliding deep up into her twat sensually. In and out Dany thrust her fingers into Arya’s aching quim. The lubricant had the fingers easily sliding in all the way in deep. Dany’s knuckles hard pounding Arya’s mount.

Arya was in heaven. She felt Dany slip in a fourth finger into her sloppy wet trim and slow stroke her aching core with sensual hard thrust that jammed knuckles into vulva. Dany suckled and lapped her head to tongue lash Arya’s clit with loving strokes of pure love. Arya humped her hips to grind her mouth into Dany’s hot sucking mouth and lift her drooling spasming couchie into the fingers stretching her out and fucking her quim so fucking good.

"Anngghh! Oh yes!" Arya gagged feeling her pussy stretched out so good. In and out Dany pumped her fingers into Arya’s tight cunt. Her pussy felt so good with its sensual fuck of Dany’s long fingers and her hot mouth sucking fiercely on her love aching clit. Then Dany started to fuck her with more force. She felt Dany’s hand start to ram her pussy with hard jolting thrusts. The forward part of Dany’s hand mashing into her drooling clamshell. Then Dany slowed her hand pumps. She again started her slow sensual fuck of Arya’s cunt. Dany slipping her fingers out near the first knuckle and forcefully sliding them back in deep.

Arya felt her pussy clenching on the fingers and sucking on them as fucked her drooling clamshell. Her slimy inner folds wetly sucking on the digits. Dany started to slowly twist her wrist moving her fingers right and left in Arya’s cunt churning her inner folds sweetly. "Unnhhh! Unnnhhhh! Ohhhngg! Fuck! Ungggghhh!" Arya jabbered. She then gagged and hissed when Dany slipped her hand from Arya’s cunt. A hot gush of creamy cum leaking out her fuck hole and running now her ass cleft soaking her rosebud. "Unh! Unh! Unh!" she whimpered at the intense sensations.

Dany ran her hand up Arya’s body and slapped her hand down on Arya’s face running it around on her face as she extended her tongue licking the digits as the Queen rubbed her cum saturated fingers all over the teenager’s face. Arya reveled in it. “Ooggggg uuunnggg … shit! So fucking hot! Mmmnggg uuunnggg hngggg!” Arya chased the slimy fingers and palm with her tongue.

Dany pulled her hand back down Arya’s body and slipped all her fingers back into Arya’s pussy and slowed churned them plowing Arya’s inner petals twisting and sluicing through them. Twice more she pulled her hand out Arya’s twat and slapped it on her lover’s face soaking her face and hairline in her own cum. Arya loved it licking desperately the hand rubbing her face and the cum from around her lips. Her dilated eyes blown black with lust. "Oh yes . . . oh yes!" Arya panted, her back arching, her pelvis quivering as she jammed her pussy down on the fingers fucking it. "Oh yes!"

Dany paused and reached for the small urn again and dribbled out a slimy stream of lubricant that soaked Dany’s hand again. Arya was up on her elbows staring down her belly transfixed. Dany sat the urn down and still up on her elbow looking at Arya’s pussy she slowly folded her thumb up along her palm while pulling her right hand back. Now she slowly pushed her hand forward again burying her fingers and resting thumb into Arya’s snatch.

Arya gasped realizing what Dany was doing. Dany sensed this and looked up at Arya. She was pausing to let Arya stop her. Arya shook her head ‘yes’ enthusiastically. Dany smiled great back at Arya with a great big smile and turned her head back down to focus on her task at hand. She pushed her hand forward. Arya gagged feeling Dany’s thumb sliding up into her cunt slowly until Dany’s knuckles were brushing her vaginal opening.

Dany paused drooling put long ribbons of bubbly spit to land on the back of her hand and run into Arya’s bulging cunt hole. Slowly but forcefully she pushed her hand forward pushing her knuckles into Arya’s mound stretching her love’s pussy out.

“A Danny I don’t know … your hand! … oh baby you filling me up!” Arya wanted it desperately but was still shocked seeing Dany’s hand pushing into her cunt. The sensations so intense and flooding out her squired pussy. She humped her groin up to encourage Dany to continue.

Dany paused and drooled out more spit. Arya looked down her muscled belly and her breath caught. She felt Dany push hard and her hand and knuckles bulged out her vaginal opening and her hand slipped into her cunt her inner folds gripping the hand tight. Arya’s head thumped hard on the mattress. Her pussy was so stretched out and full. "Unngghh . . . oh shit!" Arya gasped. "Ungghh . . . aungghhhh!" Her pussy felt so full. She loved the intense sensations of her lover’s hand in her snatch.

Dany slowly worked her hand in and out in a gentle rocking motion stretching her lover’s pussy out. Arya moaned at the sweet sensations. She loved feeling so stretched out. The feel of Dany’s fingers pushing in deeper up her cunt was heavenly. The sight of her pussy tightly gripping the Queen’s wrist turned Arya on no end. For a several minutes the Valyrian pumped her hand slowly in and out Arya’s cunt slowly stretching out her baby’s trim. Then Dany stopped pumping her hand.

Arya felt her sweet Queen slowly fold her fingers up and formed a fist in her pussy. She was back up on her elbows gasping looking down at her cunt impaled on Dany’s fist. She gurgled and then groaned deep in her throat. She slowly lifted her pussy up with her now rotating hips. She whimpered feeling Dany start to slowly pump her fist almost imperceptibly. Her knuckles rubbing along her vaginal walls. Her pussy felt so full! “Uunnggg hhnggg … oh shit! Fuckkkkkkk!” Arya whimpered.

Arya so loved the look of concentration and hot lust in Dany’s eyes. She began to pump her hand slowly in and out Arya’s twat. Her fist slowly twisting into her fuck canal. Dany would push her fist in deeper and deeper into Arya’s belly before slowly pulling her fist back out Arya’s quim till her fist was near Arya’s vaginal opening. Dany worked her fist deeper into Arya’s belly till her fist thumped Arya’s cervix hard making it shriek but numbing it making it ready to be rammed fucked. Dany pulled her fist slowly back till the knuckles were near Arya’s vaginal opening. The bottom of the Queen’s hand jutted out Arya’s cunt all soaked in cum slime. Then Dany twisted her fist and rammed it home sinking it into Arya’s cunt her pussy lips enfolding Dany’s wrist wetly almost two and a half inches down her forearm.

Again and again Dany almost pulled her fist out to Arya’s love hole and then twisting it forward hard and deep fulling burying it into Arya’s spasming cunt and clenching belly. Her forearm ramming forward with Arya’s drooling cunt tightly clinging to Dany’s forearm. Dany bent her head down to siphon Arya’s clit back into her suckling mouth. Dany rhythmically sucked with long ragged love sucks her fist twisting deep in and out Arya’s cunt. "Awwonngg!" Arya groaned, looking down her body at Dany’s wrist protruding from her pussy. "Oh shit! Unghh! Oh gods, yes! Give me your love fist honey! Ram it home deep baby! Fuck my cunt hard—aaawwoggg hhhnnggg uuunnggg with you fist! . . . Fuck me. Hard! Dany, harder godsdamnit! Pound my cunt Dany. Aauuuggg uuunnggg mmmnnnnnn mmmnggggg ungggg!"

Dany whimpered twisting and slamming her fist in deep fully burying it up Arya’s stretched out cunt. They both looked at the Queen’s wrist. It was soaked in Arya’s fuck cream that was leaving a fuck ring of cum on her wrist that dripped cum down onto the furs. Arya was almost hypnotized seeing Dany’s wrist pull back and then lunge forward and burying her fist deep into Arya’s belly. The teen gagged and cried out in ecstasy feeling her inner folds and swirls churned by Dany’s twisting fist lunging up into her cunt and pounding her cervix sending her paroxysms of gut wrenching pleasure.

Arya felt her belly tensing up with raw pleasure now flooding out her squired pussy. Again and again Dany lunged her twisting fist up into her belly. Her cunt was spasming harder now. Then her cunt gripped Dany’s lunging fist in a velvet fist of wet heat. Dany felt the wild spasms and twisted her fist buried in deep up Arya’s exploding cunt as it ruptured on the fist rotating right and left buried in deep knuckles rasping Arya’s cervix and vaginal walls.

The intense pressure and pleasure sent Arya’s body crashing off the cliff face into shattering ecstasy as her head jammed back into the furs and her mouth shocked wide open. “FFFFUUUUUUCCKKKKKK! AAARRUUUNGGGGGGGGG! HHHUNNNGGGGGGGGGG! … eeigggghhiiieeee! Mmmnnngggghhhhiieeee!!” Arya screamed so loud she feared Jeertel would run into the tent to save her from seeming death. Her body flipped wildly lurching up and down. Arya felt her engorged nipples throbbing with blood rush and felt like they might burst. Dany kept lunging her fist up deep into her woman’s exploding snatch.
Arya screeched feeling her pussy pumping out hot cum around the fist and wrist plundering her stretched out pussy. She felt her orgasm beginning to wane. Her body was flipping and jackknifing violently almost as her head slammed into the furs. She felt cum flooding out around the forearm in her twat and soaking her ass crack and anus.

Her orgasm began to wane. Her belly felt like it was filled with melted butter that sloshed around in her belly. She felt so fucking good. Dany grunted and moaned drinking down the hot gushes of cum flooding out Arya’s pussy around her buried forearm. Dany rolled her face in the cum to smear it on her face. Dany gauged Arya’s body seeing it coming down from her orgasm. She sensed Arya could cum again. She slowly pulled her fist back to the entrance of Arya’s vagina. Arya was quivering all over with the dying waves of her orgasm.

She bent her head down and sucked Arya’s shiny clit deep into her mouth and deep throat sucked with all her pure love while tongue polishing the shiny nubbin. Her fist slammed back up Arya’s cunt into her cervix. She quickly pulled her fist back and slammed forward again and again. Arya’s clit and pussy exploded tearing themselves to shreds her cunt imploding and twisting before exploding yet again. Her legs and arms shot out and went rigid.

“FFFFFFUCCKKKKKKK! AAWWOOGGGGGGGG! FFFFFFFUUUUUUUUCECCKKKKK! AARRRUUNNGGGGHHHH! Arya screamed as her belly clawed open and sent hot gushes into her veins scalding her limbs and brain with fucking shocking bliss. Her rigid wrist and heels pounded the furs in a staccato helpless rhythm. Arya’s toes curled painfully while her fingers clawed desperately at the furs. Her body was mini convulsing all over. Ecstasy continued to rip her womb to shreds. "Ooohmmmmnggg! Ahnnngggg! Oh Goddamnmmm—my cunt is tearing itsellllffffff insiiddee ouutttt-TARRUUNNGGGHHHHHH AAWWOOGGGGGGGGG Oh Oh AARRRUUNNGGGHHHHHHH!".

Her body bucked wildly again while six or seven killing convulsions of agonizing pleasure tore her wildly shaking body. Then the seizures of hard cumming ramped up as a third orgasm ripped through her hard muscle toned flesh. Her whole body quacked so beautifully while her face looked like it was being electrocuted. Her screams loud and deafening. Finally, the third orgasm fled and Arya went nerveless down into the furs. Her eye open but unseeing as she gasped hard while sweat poured down her body from her hairline to her toes. "Oh ... Dany oh Dany oh Dany . . ."

Arya began to weep as pure pleasure and love flooded her body. Dany started to pull her fist from Arya’s spent happy pussy. “No baby! Leave it in me for a minute … I feel so connected to you.” Strong aftershocks rippled through her body.

Dany left her fist buried deep in Arya’s belly for several minutes. Arya started to weep softly she was so much in love. She felt Dany slip her hand from her satiated pussy. She moved Arya’s body and enfolded Arya in here arms and cooed down to her lover. She ran her hands into Arya’s hair slicking it with cum. They kissed deeply. Arya was so happy, satiated and fulfilled. She quickly went to sleep enfolded in Dany’s loving embrace and the warmth of her weight lying half on her.

///////////

It was the next morning and Arya rode on her horse feeling happy and satiated. Her body was aching but in that wonderful way of being well and truly fucked. Her joints felt used and abused but in a way that invigorated the teenager. Her pussy was worn out but purring contentedly. She shivered remembering last night. She remember again the feel of Dany’s fist filling and slamming so hard and deep into her pussy.

She licked her lips. Tonight it would be her turn. She couldn’t wait!
This morning Dany had asked her with a lidded look how she felt. “Wonderful!” had been Arya’s response. Making Dany beam.

She did have a folded blanket on her saddle. Her pussy was happy but so worn out and tender. She remembered wearing out her pussy growing up with marathon masturbations sessions. By tonight it would be purring and ready again for my womb rending orgasms. Dany would have to be easy on her kitty but it would be ready for lots of licking!

She looked over at Dany who was talking to her father. Dany felt her love’s eyes on her and turned to look at her. Arya brought up her fist and twisted it making hot eye contact. Dany gulped loudly and shook her ‘yes’ hungrily. Tonight would be so good.

She looked at her father who looked at her curiously. He had not picked up on the subtle hand motions. Plus, she doubted her father knew too much about fisting.

They were three weeks up the King’s road now. She smiled thinking of her father’s prudish nature. The first four nights he had had his tent pitched beside the Queen’s tent. Her and Dany’s screams of rapturous ecstasy had proved too much for her father. He had made the mistake of pitching his tent by Sansa and Missandei’s wagons.

Sansa was a screamer like herself as was Margaery and it was amazing how much noise Missandei could make all by herself.

Her father had decided to move his tent away from the wagons. It seemed that Stannis and Oberyn were still enjoying the Haruchai and Ramen and some of the camp followers. Her father had moved his tent yet again to the outskirts of the camps away from the more adventurous and loud members of the company moving north.

All were getting as much sex and love as they could before they reached the Wall and assuming a combat position. Now was the time to relax and partake of the pleasures of the flesh. The Queen’s mercenary companies and roving bands of Dothraki had the columns moving nearer to the wall in a cocoon of safety. The safety increased by the pickets each column sent out to scout for any possible danger.

Arya could feel the tension slowly rising in her body. They were over half way to the Wall now. Dany’s dragons had made another sweep over the The Fist of the First Men last week and still the enemy seemed to be milling around aimlessly. It made no sense and it was filling the leaders of the forces of Westeros with agitation. It simply made no sense this dallying around doing nothing by the Ice King. Why move south at all if the enemy had no designs to strike at the Wall.

Dany had sent her dragons north again to scout the Fist of the First Men this morning. They would be over the Fist of the Men in a few hours and Dany could see through their eyes what their enemy was doing. They should return this evening with the latest reconnaissance flyover completed. Dany still felt nervous keeping her dragons high not wanting to be attacked by what had hit the wives of Jon Snow. She also kept her dragons high to avoid any hurled projectiles from below. The Targaryens knew the danger of scorpions and the bolts they could hurl.

All knew something was afoot but no one knew just what. Arya was happy to let Dany, her father, Sansa, Margaery and everyone else worry about it. She just fretted with her desire to prove herself the warrior she wanted Dany to see in her. She had proved herself on the river frigate she knew but this coming battle was going to be epic. She could feel it. She wanted to prove herself before all she loved.

She practiced with Barristan and Syrio when they made camp in the evening and the meal was being prepared and the royal tents erected. She felt sharp. All of Westeros was sharp and anxious to put the Ice King down.

Arya was sure the Wall gave them the defense they needed to decimate the Ice King. Even if it came to the Wall being brought down the dead were slow moving and awkward in their motions. The copious arrows, javelins, bolts and spears tipped with obsidian would bring their enemies down in droves as they milled before the standing Wall or over its shattered remains. She had a Valyrian steel sword and she would be able to hack the Ice Wrights down. Her Valyrian sword more than a match for the icy swords of her foes.

She could not wait to take the fight to the enemy. Then she looked off to the distance. She would be journeying to Braavos to do the Queen’s work. She was sure her sword skills would be tested their as well. She would prove herself there as well.

Arya saw the Giants walking easily beside the column laughing and jesting as they always did. The Giants stamina did not really surprise Arya. Though they wore stone armor and their long broad swords were weighty in themselves. The Giants carried the hundred pounds of armor, sword and their camp clothing and the items necessary to setup their lean-tos with ease. They did not tire.
Their long strides and legs like tree trunks roped in veins gave them the strength and stamina to easily do their march day in and day out. Their Diamonddraught they said also gave them magical healing. They would arrive at the Wall ready to go to war.

The ramen she wondered more about. They were constantly moving out to scout around the column and running in and fore searching the corpses they passed and would run with the Ranyhyn that would come in with their Haruchai riders to make direct reports to Lord Lustra and Brail. She marveled how the Ramen seemed to be holding up so well. At all stops the Ramen came in from their sweeps to tend to the horses with the Dothraki tenders and horse handlers from King’s Landing that had been augmented by tenders from Winterfell.

The Ramen had bonded with Dothraki. The Giants gift for tongues allowing the two desperate people to communicate. The Manethrall and her Cords obvious love for horses captured the Dothraki’s hearts. The Dothraki asking questions constantly about the powerful Ranyhyn they would stare at with open awe when the mighty horses came running in and thundering away at speeds no horse could even begin to touch.

The ramen seemed to have formed a fascination with Oberyn and going to his tent that Stannis was staying in. The men fucking the hell out of the Ramen and now a steady stream of young filly and colt Dothraki to their tent. Arya had chuckled seeing her father shake his head and scowl at the display of carnal pursuits. He was a prude. What could she say? He would eat his meal with his fellow lords and smiled and talked genially. That was until the randy Lords and denizens headed to their tents. That was when her father quickly made his salutations and retreated. He always left muttering under his breath.

The Haruchai were equally refreshed Arya observed. They were riding true but they were constantly patrolling up to five leagues away. This seemed to be the limit of the reach of their mind speech. They could extend the range if they had more of them to station at intervals to increase the reach of their mind to mind speech. They were able to somehow process all the myriad viewpoints and the information this brought to their mental minds. They were able to process one and all views and keep it coherent. Another marvel of these strange and powerful people.

Unlike the Ramen and Giants, the Haruchai patrolled day and night. They could ride on the Ranyhyn and sleep in a light state to refresh their bodies. The Ranyhyn themselves the Ramen told them only needed to rest for several hours at need such as the march. They would gather in small groups of two or three to rest and let the brothers and sister watch over them as they patrolled for danger.

Arya felt that the forces of Westeros were truly fortunate to have such allies at their side. She had asked her father what he thought of these powerful new allies.

He had looked at the Giants laughing marching beside them. The Manethrall had come up to Lustra on her Ranyhyn to report on something and then run off at a fast loop to disappear into the swaying grass.

The Haruchai visible for a moment as one appeared on a hill ridge atop their Ranyhyn. Arya would look at the column and when she looked back at the ridge line the Haruchai and their mount would be gone. Like a ghost who was never really there.

“I feel we are truly fortunate Arya. I can feel great power in the Lord. My sword, Eveningstar, shivers in its scabbard when I am near her.”

Arya was not so sure. Making pretty lights with her staff was not that impressive to her.

“The Giants, Haruchai, Ramen and Ranyhyn are all mighty that is plain to see. I just wish there was more of them. Still, they will add much to our war effort. They are magical in some way. I hope they will be a counterweight to the magic of the Ice King and his icy brothers.”

Arya was happy to have this additional might marching with them.

Arya eyed her Direwolf. Nymeria was up to something. She was sure of it. She had been looping near Oberyn the last three weeks. She would feint in just to keep Oberyn on his toes but she would not bite his spear. Her cinnamon burnt tongue had taught her caution.

But there was something about her actions the last few days that told her that the battle was about to be joined again. She could tell Oberyn was on edge too waiting sensing the coming storm.

Grey Wind and Lady tended to mind their own business really. Grey Wind looping off into the hills and corpses or by Robb’s side. Lady would lope along the column her body alert but she rarely ran off. She would come up to Arya, Eddard or Daenerys for some rubs and scratches. She would spend hours sleeping in Sansa and Margaery’s wagon. Sansa told her the wolf had grown accustomed to their noisy lovemaking and slept through it snoring.

Now Robb’s great wolf was with Nymeria as they came in on Oberyn and they worked to cut him out of the troop. They were working Oberyn like he was a diseased Elk isolating him to take him down. His horse was no longer nervous having Direwolves around or even barking at it furiously which hadn’t happened recently. Oberyn curious let the Direwolves slowly push him away from the column. The man kept his spear angled away from the two wolves.

This changed. Suddenly, Nymeria and Grey Wind were barking furiously at Oberyn and his mount their fur bristling and snouts slavering. They were side by side howling taking turns charging forward the mount of Oberyn. The horse was nervous with this increase of the antics of the two wolves and Oberyn had to work his reigns to keep the horse settled. The two Direwolves snarled and jumped at him twisting back at the last moment trying to intimidate the man. He was unfazed. He offered Nymeria his spear haft. The wolf shied back and barked even more furiously snarling at the shaft eyeing it suspiciously. She was spooked.

This went on with Oberyn laughing at Nymeria which pissed her off even more. This terribly upset the Direwolf and sent her into a fit of wild twisting jumps and rolling around on the grass in a fit.
Her feet kicking the ground propelling the mighty Direwolf around in circles. Her mouth snapping at nothing her eyes slightly addled. Grey Wind had stopped his antics and looked at Nymeria like she had lost her mind. Nymeria’s feet kicked the air in frustration. Her body writhed on the ground rolling around her mouth foaming. Grey Wind woofed at Nymeria asking her if she was alright.

Oberyn was laughing at Nymeria holding his spear on the opposite of his horse from her wildly gyrating wolf throwing a fit of frustration. He had a triumphant look on his face knowing his cinnamon prank was still affecting Nymeria all these weeks later.

Then Arya saw Nymeria’s ploy. He had his spear on the other side of the horse from Nymeria and her antics. From nowhere Lady came running in and snatched Oberyn’s spear from his grasp while he hurled abuse at Nymeria.

Oberyn gasped “What!” His body had been jerked hard by Lady taking his spear. His body twisted around. He looked at Lady aggrieved. “You fucking traitorous bitch!” Oberyn shouted at the pristine gentle loving Direwolf of Sansa Stark. “How dare you side with that bitch Nymeria!” the Red Viper roared.

Lady just stood there looking around with Oberyn’s spear in her mouth. She was clueless as to what to do with her purloined spear. She just stood their smiling doing nothing with the spear in her mouth. Oberyn saw this and was moving his horse to get his spear back. He did not see Nymeria snap roll to her feet and eyed Lady with an intense look of calculation. Arya understood. Her wolf was gauging Lady’s reaction to the spear’s wood. Nymeria had talked Lady into taking Oberyn’s spear to see it was safe to bit into.

Nymeria was crouched down her tail swishing back and forth. She had seen enough. It was safe!

In a bolt she ran underneath Oberyn’s horse all slunk low and snapped her teeth on the spear haft. Lady let go of the spear as Nymeria went tearing off. She looked back at a now storming Oberyn with a big wide happy wolf smile.

Off she went running with Oberyn giving chase howling his rage. Both wolf and man on horse flying down the King’s Road. Oberyn’s howls filled the air. Score one for team Direwolf Arya thought.

That late afternoon as the tents were being raised her and Dany challenged Jeetel and Bannor to sparring. The two Haruchai bowed their heads slightly. They walked away off into the flattened grass. They stood before Dany and Arya.

Then in unison the male and female Haruchai slammed their fight fists into their upper chest “Fist and Faith. There is only victory or death.” Arya had seen and heard this display before from the Haruchai. She knew it was a ritual they performed before every contest but it was still intimidating. She did not have long to contemplate it. The Haruchai then came running at the Arya and Dany.

Arya and Dany in a flash pulled their rune swords out of their scabbards. The swords glowing bright blue throwing out mystical sparks and tongues of eldritch magic that wafted several feet up into the air before they began to dissipate and fray before fading away. As the women moved their swords the air was filled with blue arcs and afterimages their swords left in the cold air. Arya had Needle in her right hand. Arya while extremely strong did not use her strength like Barristan. She would use both swords. They did not use practice swords with the Haruchai. To do so would have insulted them.
Arya made a sweeping swipe to her left and Dany to their forefront making the Haruchai split and twist to the side. Then the Haruchai were on them. Arya and Dany kept together to guard each other’s backs. The Haruchai were impossibly quick. Their abilities to twist their bodies at impossible angles and to jump almost ten feet in the air had their attack coming at them from all angles. The two Haruchai kept coming at them in opposed angles trying to separate the two. The Queen and her Queen not allowing that to occur.

Dany sliced the sleeve of Bannor who rolled underneath her guard and came up kicking her hard sending Dany flying back. Arya screamed and came in furiously chopping and swiping at the Haruchai who had to back off. Her two swords slashing and swirling so fast no one but Haruchai could track them. Jeertel moved in to attack Arya’s unguarded flank. Dany came up and used her sword held crossways in front of her to make Jeertel jerk her windmill kick up and away to keep her foot being cutoff.

The fight went on and on. Dany and Arya were soaked in sweat and gasping but they kept their guard up and counterattacked viciously keeping the Haruchai off balance and having to feint and fall back when they thought they had an advantage. Even though their swords glowed hot the Haruchai were able to endure the heat in the instant their feet and fists struck the Rune swords knocking them aside with each swipe and parry of Arya and Dany. Again Arya was struck by the supreme skill of the Haruchai. Their abilities to strike with such precise effort from all angles and state of balance was shocking. She had grown used to it though and continued to block and parry their assaults and launch her own.

The sparring continued. Arya made a chop at Bannor when he was spinning to the left to get at Dany’s flank. Faster than she could follow Jeertel came in on her. She kicked Arya’s right hand when she thrust Needle at Jeertel’s heart. Arya brought Blackfyre around in arch in a flash of shining blue light. Jeertel swooped in low and used her forearm to block the sword up as it whistled by above her head. The Haruchai could endure the heat for the flash of instantaneous contact. Her foot came up at an impossible angle and lightly tapped Arya’s throat. The battle was over. That would have been a kill shot if Jeertel had wanted it to be.

For the second time she had lost to Jeertel who had lost to her twice. They were even again in their recent sparring matches. Dany and Bannor had again fought to a draw. Arya fumed but Dany had gotten after her for acting like a baby when she lost so she swallowed her tongue. She hated to lose!

They walked back to the now fairly well set up camp. Dany detoured to talk to the High Lords present. She was always working and talking with them to further build up rapport with them. She was working to make sure she had buy in for her polices and plans for after the war.

She had Jeertel still walking beside her. She knew her Bloodgaurd and Bannor would eat quick meals separately when Dany and Arya were back together so one would always be on guard protecting them. Most of the night they would be prowling around their tent making sure they were safe. The same way their sisters and brothers were patrolling around the camp at distance providing protection against any surprise attack. The Ranyhyn adding their own supernatural perceptions to their protection.

“Jeertel, can I ask you some questions about your people?”

“Of course. We have nothing to hide. We are Haruchai.”

Arya smiled softly. The Haruchai were so solid and dedicated. They were like the permanence of granite with the protection such stone gave one.

“I know you say that using weapons diminish you. Weapons do not allow the Haruchai to truly prove their own worth against their foes. But still, if you used weapons you would be unstoppable. In this coming war you would be able to take down so many more foes.”

Jeertel did not answer for a moment. Arya had the feeling she was consulting her fellow countrymen.

“We must be true to our nature. From the moment we can first leave our parents succor we must begin to strive and prove ourselves. In the high passes of the Westeron Mountains life is harsh and deadly. Many of us do not survive the travails and threats we face in those high mountain passes. There we must meet the challenges of our life face to face. To do any less diminishes our people and ourselves.”

“We must prove ourselves. It is necessary. But we know caution. Once only our men went forth out of our native mountains and into the wide world. They went too far. They were never able to distinguish service for service sake. They always tried to do too much. They gave allegiance to men and ideals that could not be matched by our rectitude. They lost sight of the purity of the service itself. Stave came back to our people after the slumber of the Worm at World’s End. After Thomas Covenant, Linden Avery and her son Jeremey redeemed the world from utter destruction.”

“It was a close thing Arya Stark. Almost they failed their heroic effort. In the battles beneath Mount Thunder in the warrens of the Cavewrights we determined that we needed to take up weapons. The need of the Earth was simply too great. We picked up the swords of fallen Giants and the weapons of the Cavewrights we killed. We were indeed able to kill many more of the foes we had to face.”

“Still, we were diminished. We have not used weapons since. If the time proves right again we will take up weapons. We deem this is not that time. The Worm sleeps.”

Arya processed what she had just heard. She respected their being true to their nature.

“We deem that some among you if raised from childhood could have taken up our ways and become Haruchai as Lustra will in time now that she has bonded with Brail.”

Curious Arya asked “Who?”

“The Dragonthane and her mate. That is obviously you and Daenerys Targaryen. You two have been filled with Earthpower. Those of us from the Land can see it easily. It radiates within the two of you.”

Arya could not help but be proud of that. She had felt since she was a little girl she was destined for greatness. Thank the old gods her father had let her achieve her destiny.

“There is one other the old storytellers spoke of. A Lioness in the desert. She is filled with even more Earthpower than you and the Queen. She has become mighty and Amok has visited her already as foretold. She will contend with great horrors. She will prevail. She will eventually show herself though now she is still hidden.”

Arya knew who it was though she could not believe the transformation that the harpy had gone through. The woman had been a royal cunt; totally worthless. Now she had married Oberyn’s eldest child, the man gushed about her, his wife in all but name wanted to fuck her desperately. Oberyn had told her father that she was to take up the sword of House Dayne. Her father worshipped Arthur still and never really forgiven himself for helping cause that man’s death.

How could Cersei Lannister become all this she had no idea. She shook her head.

“You father could have become Haruchai as well Arya Stark. We deem that Oberyn and Stannis
“I have one more question if you don’t mind. Why did not more of you come to our aid if you traveled half the world to help us? With an army of your people, Giants, the mighty Ranyhyn and their Ramen tenders and these Lords of Revelstone our victory would be assured.”

Jeertel looked at Arya with her unreadable face. “We hear your words. The Soulbiter and Soulcrusher were erected by Loric Vilesilencer to forever separate our world from yours. He deemed that the Viles and Demondim could not again set foot in the land of their birth. These mighty storms repel all who enter them.”

“Only the Giants have the ships and the fortitude to contend with these preternatural storms. These storms seek out magical inclined beings such as ourselves and our companions. The storms will resist us or any we may bring with us. We barely won through the storm. More of the Giant Dromond ships and the storms would have fully taken notice of us and destroyed us. We barely won through with our two ships.”

Arya sighed. These people of the Land were indeed mighty. She just wish there was more of them. She was thankful for them. She felt they would tip the balance of the coming conflict in their favor.

Another question came to Arya. “I have one more question Jeertel.” The woman inclined her head. “This Worm at the World’s End—is it as dangerous as you say? How can it destroy the world?”

“The world is built upon the Worm by the Creator of the universe. How he accomplished this we do not know. He put her into a slumberous state and built our world upon it. Only in sleep can the world live.”

“So it is unstoppable?”

“Yes. By mortal man yes. Even Lord Foul or the Ice King is a paltry thing compared to the Worm. The Elohim flee in terror before it for the Worm eats them for strength and sustenance. Only one being could contend with the Worm of the World’s End.”

“Who?”

“She Who Must Not be Named armed with the Krill. The weapon can channel any might and she has the raw power to do the deed. If she succeeded the world would still end though. Our world is tied to the Worm. If it dies our world dies.”

“Well that sucks” Arya snorted.

“Indeed” Jeertel replied drolly. Arya looked at the woman. They could show humor Arya thought amused.

Dany soon joined Arya having finished talking to the High Nobles. They discussed the exhilaration of their fighting the Haruchai. They reviewed what Dany had to say to the Noble of the High Houses. Arya was always interested in the words and actions of the meetings that Dany had with all the nobles, generals and others she met with to run her kingdom. Given a synopsis was enough for Arya. Sitting in those meetings were a personal definition of hell for Arya.

Arya was happy to provide a sounding board for Dany to run her ideas by and to help Dany work through thorny issues or to help her divine which course of action might be best. Her lover always had a good grasp of the reality of the situation. Arya found that Dany most often in discussing issues with Arya came to her decision fairly quickly. Arya allowed the Queen to “think out loud” and ask Arya questions about her thoughts and decisions. Dany knew the course of actions she must take but being able to talk on them helped the Queen’s heart and soul and Arya was happy to provide that counsel.

Arya had a very good grasp of all the things that Dany had to deal with. She just knew she never could handle all the competing demands. Having to divine who was telling the truth. How to deal with motherfuckers like Tywin Lannister without gutting the bastard on the spot.

Arya loved being there for Dany. Dany had told her many times that she cherished having someone she could talk to one on one and confide in her worries and concerns. She trusted all in her Clatch of Confidents but she cherished being able to go to Arya first and sound out her ideas.

Arya found it easy. Dany was very intelligent and had a good conscious that led her to the right decisions. But Arya was finding that in the Game of Thrones and in politics in general that many times the optimal solution from a philosophical viewpoint in reality did not bring the most desirable answer. Dany had to almost divine what the best answer was that satisfied the most people and would move policy or projects forward.

What angered Arya was the peevishness and greed of people that she saw again and again. She had seen it while the Queen heard supplications before the Iron Throne. She sensed that the High Lords could easily devolve into discord and maybe outright war without a strong hand to control their avarice. They were so unlike Dany and her father. They did not seek the greater good in all things but instead were selfish and greedy. How Dany put up these people she would never know. Dany just smiled softly when Arya ranted and raved about these “callous sons of bitches” and told her that to govern you must often find the least objectionable path among many choices that none were optimal and some not even good.

Thank the gods that Dany was Queen. Arya would put herself into exile trying to rule Westeros.

They were eating their evening victuals with the other Nobles. The troops were eating around fires by their companies and squads. There was much jesting and ribald jokes. Her father was squirming as he normally did when sexual innuendo and outright talking of fucking was present. His face actually turned red. She supposed hers did too but she found that lessening being with Dany. Dany was sexually liberating Arya from her prudish nature.

Arya idly wondered if her mother ever wished her father was more adventurous in things sexual.

Dany leaned into Arya speaking softly “How is your cunny my sweet? I hope your kitty is purring. My tongue is feeling like lapping up some sweet cream tonight.”

The first week she was with Dany she would have died at such a comment. Not now. “I assure you my kitty is feeling most frisky. I used to wear my cunt out with masturbation marathons. Most of them dreaming of you I may add. I would Jill off till my pussy was raw and felt like it was on fire with the last few cums I stroked out my spasming cunt.”

Dany looked at her with a cocked eyebrow “Gods I love it when you talk dirty baby! It makes me wet for you.” she husked to Arya.

That made Arya feel so good knowing she was making Dany happy and horny. She was about to make her even more of both. Arya returned Dany’s intense lilac stare. She slowly brought up her left hand and made it into a fist. “Tonight I will slide my hand into your pussy Daenerys. Then I will ram my fist hard and deep up into your belly, slut, and pound your cervix till you cum screaming in helpless shocking ecstasy.”
Dany slowly reached up and gripped Arya’s wrist and brought her fist forward and slowly licked it with her sensual tongue. “I can’t wait Arya—fuck me hard and truly make me your slut!”

“Ohhhhh” Arya gasped. Dany was so fucking hot! Then Dany upped the ante.

“When we get back to King’s Landing my sweet slut. Your asshole has a date with my strap-on. I will deflower that hot tight anus and fuck you so hard and balls deep. I will pull out your ass and make you suck your sweet ass off it. I will do A2P and make you scream from it Arya.”

Arya was glassy eyed longing to have her ass deflowered. She longed to feel what Sansa felt with Margaery slam fucking her asshole so good and hard.

“Then my sweet wolf … I will work my fist into that hot tight ass of yours and fuck you so good with my fist baby! I will make you die from it! You will love it … then Arya … it will be my turn” Dany murmured to her future wife.

Arya could not speak with all the desires she was feeling. Dany pulled Arya to her and they snogged deeply moaning as they primed their libidos for some hot debauchery this night when they went to the Queens tent. Arya loved the Queen’s Dothraki leanings toward her willingness to fuck Arya and not caring who heard them.

Dany stopped their necking ten minutes later when she felt her dragons coming back from their most recent reconnaissance over the Fist of the First Men. As Arya got up with Dany she saw her father give her his squint smile and shook his head. She loved her father. He was so cute in his consternation.

She saddled up beside him. “Embarrassed father?”

“Yes, a little. I am trying to do better. I am finding your mother is most adventurous. It is, well, shocking really. I am what I am Arya.” He smirked down at his daughter and hugged her.

Arya was interested in what her father and mother were experimenting on. Arya knew what that might be she smirked. Her mother was getting some new action! She wondered if she could somehow get Nymeria in there. Inquiring minds did want to know she smirked to herself.

Soon Dany and Arya with Eddard, Barristan and Lustra with her Bloodguard Brail were standing off in the large field by the large camp. The other nobles and those riding with the Queen had come to find the dragons almost normal and maybe even somewhat routine. If they not were doing acrobatics in the air or scaring the shit out of you they soon blended into the background like the Stark’s Direwolves.

In the dark sky the dragons came flying in unseen with the new moon in the sky. All was silent till one heard the mighty backbeat of wings and small windstorm blew up with the backwash of the dragons settling down to land.

The three dragons landed in front of the Queen. Barristan walked forward and greeted Viserion who whined and shook seeing Barristan and his head launched forward for affectionate ear scratches and rubbing of cheeks. Barristan looked stern but it was obvious he enjoyed pleasuring Viserion. His tail now thrashing and rising up to shake like a baby’s rattle. Rhaegal looked around and curled up to catch a snooze.

Drogon slowly brought his massive head forward to have it before the Queen’s face. Dany reached out and patted her black dread on the head between his horns and scratched around the base of his ear. The mighty dragon rumbling in satisfaction.
Lustra moved to stand beside Daenerys. She looked up at the dragon calmly. Her Haruchai Bloodguard at her side. Arya could see the Haruchai poised to throw Lustra aside in an instant and sacrifice her life if needed to give her charge a chance to live. It had nothing to do with the fact they were now lovers.

Dany spoke to the Lord “You want me to get Drogon to focus on the scene at the Fist of the First Men and then you will touch my forehead with your Lords Staff.”

“Yes. If you open up your thoughts to my Staff it will see your thoughts and I will then be able to see what your dragon saw through you. We both know that something is not right. I am hoping I might see something. Anything. The Ice King cannot win any war if he does not fight.”

“Maybe he seeks to draw us to him. To make us travel to him an attack our flanks.”

“Do you feel that is the case Daenerys Targaryen?”

“No Lustra I do not. He will attack us. I can feel it.”

“I too feel the approach of evil. I know we draw closer every day to his evil presence but I feel something more. Some other approaching evil. Some subterfuge.

“As do I” answered the Queen.

“Are you ready Daenerys?”

“Yes” was the simple answer.

The Lord brought her staff up to her forehead holding it with her hands just outside the width of her head. She rested her head on the staff and began a soft chant. The Queen waited until the Lord shook her head “yes”. The Lord herself was only two inches taller than the Queen. She had tilted her head down and the Queen rose up slightly and pressed her forehead up into the staff.

They were both silent for a minute till they broke their contact with the Lord’s staff. They both looked dissatisfied.

The Lord spoke first “I did not doubt you Daenerys Targaryen but I had hoped maybe I would see something that had been missed. Something does not feel right but I cannot perceive anything other than what you dragon saw. He is high up but the army of the Ice King is fully visible. He is definitely not trying to hide his forces but why should he. He wants to intimidate us with his vast forces.”

“I agree Lord Lustra. It is just illogical for him to leave the high north and its perpetual night and bring his forces this far south and contend with the light of day. Since the age of heroes it has been known they prefer to attack at night. It makes no sense.”

Arya listened to them discuss matters for another few minutes without coming to a satisfying conclusion.

The night was getting on now. Finally, the meeting ended and Dany came to Arya.

“Come my sweet love. Let us go to our furs.” Dany grabbed Arya’s left hand and made it into a fist and ran her tongue all over it with her purple eyes hypnotic as they stared into Arya’s eyes with hot promises of scorching sex. Dany’s eyes seemed to dance in the reflective fire light. “My cunt aches for your fist to pound deep up into my belly and make me cum so hard Arya. Fuck me honey. Make me howl.”
What this woman does to me! Arya thought now dragging a very willing Daenerys Targaryen behind to their tent. Howl Daenerys Targaryen would Arya thought with rampant lust.

Ice King

The Wall stood towering over the Ice King. He looked up the blue face of the titan that divided the wild North from the South. He fingered the ribbed horn that hung around his neck. Soon that Wall would come crashing down. He looked at the medium blue that dominated the color of the Wall in the bright sun. He was hiding in the deep shadow of massive titans of pine, spruce and fir. He stood unseen in the thick underbrush that thrived under the canopy of the primeval forest.

He and his kind hated the sun but they could fight in it if they must. They would use that to their advantage. He planned to hit his enemies in ways they had never thought of. He would attack in the light of day and not in the middle of the night as he had always done in the past. He would surprise and destroy his enemies.

His plans were coming to fruition exactly as he planned. The crows were sending out a few patrols but they stayed close to the tunnels that ran to Castle Black. He harassed the two patrols that sought to penetrate the forest. He had blooded them. They had killed a handful of his dead. He was surprised that they had dragon glass weapons but he was sure their supplies were limited. Only the First People had truly understood the potency of that weapon against him and his sons and the Dead he had raised.

The dead were fired by the same magic that gave him and his progeny life and were thus susceptible to the same deleterious effect of obsidian. The enemy knew of the susceptibility of his dead to fire but they would not be handle his vast army of Dead. He would use his dead army to absorb the enemy’s limited dragon glass tipped weapons supply and then his sons could attack free of that fear.

He had come to fear greatly the Dragon Queen. Daenerys Targaryen had proven to be a most fierce and deadly opponent. She had two things that he now knew were extremely deadly. Her dragons were a force beyond all measure. Those three hideous beasts alone could defeat his plans. He would eliminate that threat. That part of his plan had been delayed but it was moving forward now.

The journey he had sent his strike force on had proven to be much more arduous than he had at first thought. He had told his sons to move with great caution. They could not be discovered by the forces of man patrolling the Wall and its environs. With the arrival of the Dragon Queen might the forces patrolling before the Wall had greatly increased. They had to move in depths of night and away from the easy pathways around the Wall and back down. Also, their numbers were limited. They had to be remain hidden.

He had given them three magical signal flares. When they invoked the runes on the earthen ware basins the liquid in it would resonant in magical timbre and vibrations that he could sense with the aid of his true son the Croyel. He had felt the first pulse when his sons had passed around the Wall. The second one had come last week. They were so much closer. They had not been detected. His little surprise for the Dragon Queen would work.

Without her dragons she would only be a nuisance. A deadly nuisance though. The sword on her back that lit up like the sky given life was a most horrible weapon. Its blade was both impossibly sharp and strong. The Croyel had considered itself immune to all steel weapons. He had been sadly mistaken. Valyrian steel was the full equal of his blades of Ice. The cold did not make those blades brittle as I did normal steel. His true Son would still start gibbering and drooling unseemly remembering the cut of its blade.

He had no understanding of the magic in the blade but he feared it. He was not able to find out how many such weapons existed with the enemy. He only knew the number was low. He would have to endure losses from those blades until their masters could be brought down and made to rise again as dead for his army. He doubted he and his kind could ever touch the steel of Valyria and survive. He would destroy the blades or if nothing else take them to the sea and dump them into its depths.

The Ice King stared at the Wall in the afternoon sun. The reflection blinding as the light was refracted back in beams of piercing light and rainbows of spangles that caught the eye. Maybe once he would have found such a sight beautiful. He might have thought so when he was still just a man. No more. That was a different age and a different man. He felt lethargy wash over him.

His son was feeding ravenously. He reached back and petted the Croyel on his head. His son hummed in happiness. The situation of impending combat had his son nervous. This filled the Croyel with the need to feed to calm himself. The Croyel felt the Lord of Revelstone approaching towards the Wall. He whined and shook gibbering about the Lore of High Lord Kevin. The lore was deadly. The Ice King was not afraid of any one woman. Daenerys Targaryen may be strong but she had to be the exception. Were not men born to be superior?

His son’s spittle and enzymes coursing in the Ice King’s blood made him drowsy at times. The sunlight playing on his retinas and sending echoes of the past reverberating through the ghosts of his mind. The echoes of his almost forgotten past. A past he sought to expunge from his mind and consciousness.

He remember a man. A Stark. He remembered a man running. Darick Stark. He was running for his life. He had no choice. His wife Tanea and their two young sons had been a millstone around his neck holding him down. They suffocated and drowned him. They kept him from the life he had deserved. He thought their murder had been perfectly planned and executed. Gods it had felt so good to be free of their weight dragging him down to an early grave.

He had loved seeing his uncle Brandon falling for his lies and false platitudes. The man was insipid. He should be leading House Stark!

He had not meant to kill the minor lord’s daughter. Ellya Rane had loved her sex to be rough. It was not his fault that she had died while he choked her during sex. It was an accident. She had wanted it! He was a Stark and it should have been swept underneath the furs! Then the knife he had slit his wife and children’s throat had been found. He had kept it as a trophy. He could not fight the desire to keep the weapon that showed his superiority. His secret discovered, he ran to the north to lose himself in the wilds.

He was misunderstood. The world could not fathom the greatness of Darik Stark. He was a great man and it should be understood he had to take care of his needs. He had the right by birthright to take from those lesser than he. He flew to the North in his desperation. He had felt no qualms killing the miller’s daughter and baby girl. She had been so boring and wanted to cling to him. He needed his freedom.

Brandon would not let go of his scent. He kept fleeing into the dreaded North. He had to choose between his uncle and the hated First People. He had enjoyed killing them. Killing them following his Uncle’s directions. They had screamed so sweetly on his blade.

No! No! The Ice King shook his head. He saw again in his mind’s eye his body restrained and the blade held by the Queen of the First People.
“You are filled with hate. Good. You hate all that live and breathe in your cowardly way. There are others like you coming to us even now. You will be our weapons.”

“Noooooooooo!” the Ice King screamed in his mind. His body felt the freezing cold of the stabbing blade piercing his heart.

The Ice King was on his knees. He did not remember getting there. He looked around confused. His son was humming feeding on him contentedly. He felt anger. His son was feasting on his distress. He rose back up onto his feet. The Ice King took a breath he did not need calming his thoughts filled with ire. He needed his true son. He reached back and patted his son on his head. It hummed in contentment. His son knew how much he needed him. He could overlook this slight. He would use his remembered past to fuel his hate. A hate that would allow him in time to kill the last of the First People and in time conquer the world and all that live in it.

The Ice King could feel the Stark coming to him. He still had that link to his past. He could feel his hated family moving to him to die. He felt the half breed in the Crows. He hoped to kill both in the coming battle. He would see their life leave their hacked bodies and he would raise them and keep them close by his side so he could see their ruined bodies near him. Always.

It worried the Ice King that Azor Ahai had been reborn in the half breed but the past would not repeat itself. Magic had for all intents and purpose left this world. The present only had this paltry Lord from the far southern hemisphere. The Croyel kept whining that she was powerful but she only had a staff. She was a female. He would quickly and easily dispatch the bitch. Once she had been vanquished the true magic would be finished. Brandon had had a whole order of powerful mages fighting at his side.

The fools of his lineage and the rise of these Maesters had either forgotten or actively worked to remove magic from the grasp of man. He, who was once Darik Stark, would use that ignorance to totally crush and kill his enemies.

The wives of the half breed could only play with shadows. They were of no consequence. He hated women. They were weak and pathetic. He had always loved killing women. He would kill the witches personally he determined. The fact they were of the homeland of his hated foe Azor Ahai only made their impending deaths all the sweeter.

The Ice King turned and looked back into the depths of the dark ancient forest. He had fought hard to keep the patrols of the crows hedged into the entrance to the tunnels to Castle Black. He was sure his enemy still thought the vast bulk of his forces were still at the Fist of the First Men. They were not. His deception had worked perfectly. His son’s magic had worked exactly like he said it would. It was magic unknown to this land.

The dragons did not know what they saw. It was beyond their kin to fathom and understand.

It had his chill heart beat with rapid beats knowing soon he would kill all his hated foes and then Westeros would lie exposed for his taking at his leisure. All his plans and deceptions were coming to fruition.

The Ice King walked back into the depths of the sentinels guarding the ancient forest. The trees were up to eight feet thick here with their boughs interlocked shoulder to shoulder fifty feet up off the ground. No one could see through the thick canopy to see the truth. With no Crow patrols he was safe with his secrets.

He soon came upon the leading edge of the sea of dead that wavered on their feet or hooves. The dead waiting for the command to move again. The dead were always arriving and steaming in from the North. The journey had been slow and arduous.

The dead were mindless and were guided by the will of the Ice King. Still the dead was as vast as the sea. The waves of their movements were relentless but like the waves crashing ashore were mindless and heedless of all before them. A thick tree or small gully had brought streams of dead to a standstill. The lead dead of the stream of moving zombies would stop at a large blocking tree, mound or rocks or small gully. The ones following piling up and milling around always capturing more and more milling dead. They were like a stream blocked by a beaver’s dam. Progress was halted.

His strongest and most adroit Ice Wright sons would find the proverbial logjam and use their influence and guidance to move the lead dead around the obstruction to again get that stream moving forward. This had to be done again and again with his sons constantly moving from blockage to blockage to move the dead forward. His sons moving all along the leading face of the flotsam of dead to again get the tide moving. His dead minions were moving forward like the relentless waves of the pounding sea. The advance slow but as sure as the moon tide.

Those waves would bring down the Wall. Nothing could withstand the storm he was bringing. The Ice King walked deeper into the old growth forest. He was now in the sea of his dead. He looked right and left at the multitude of dead. He saw small animals like wolverines and doe deer up to giant bears and mastodons. He smiled his cold smile seeing dead walking crows. He always loved adding crows to his dead army. Soon he would add a flock of crows. He would have laughed at his jest if could remember how.

He walked on for a mile easily pushing his way through the sea of dead that waited his will. This was but one wave in the sea that was gathering to sweep through Westeros and change all into his image. This sea of dead ran for miles above and below Castle Black. The wave of dead was miles and miles deep. He would move them forward to the wall when the assault was near. He would use his will to bring them tight together for the final surge. He would use the same magic he was using at the Fist of the First Men to hide his forces though the forest. This close to his enemies he had to be careful. Their senses sharp. He would be wary. He was too close to his goals to take chances.

He would sound the Horn of Winter and bring down the Wall. His son would do the rest. His son would provide access to the crows. With his surprise attack he would kill most of the crows and their new wildling allies on the Wall. Its collapse would crush those fools in one fell swoop. They had no idea what was coming. With them gone and with them their limited knowledge of his kind and how to fight them the rest of the Dragon Queen’s forces would be helpless before him. He would annihilate her army first and then her.

He felt grim satisfaction run in his icy veins. He would avenge himself on all but his greatest wrath was reserved for the Starks. They would suffer greatly for the ignominy of his original death. True, the Starks had made him great but his nightmares still remembered his terror and the pain of his death. The world, but especially the Starks, would and must suffer for that crime. He had been born for greatness and been denied what was his birthright.

This time he would kill Azor Ahai. Their battle would not be how it had been in the past. He would take care of his hateful wives. With his opponent’s magic support gone he would gut and chop the bastard of the Starks into a thousand wiggling pieces. He would leave him there to forever writhe in a futile bid to do his will.

The Ice King felt Ice Fang afar off. He had formed a bond with him through the magic of the Croyel. Ice Fang would do his father’s will. He knew that it was three against one but he would remove that threat and then he would be able to deliver death unfurled from the heights. He would have his victory. The Ice King had done all in his power to assure his victory. Soon his enemies would be at the Wall. He would first bring the Wall down and then his enemies.

He moved on for several more miles into the depths of the forest. He stopped. He and his true son looked up at the interlocked boughs overhead. Though they could not see the dragons flying overhead they could feel their power as they winged beyond the Wall. The Ice King still marveled at their sheer power. Even from this distance he could feel their might. His son shivered. They both remembered the dragons impossibly shattering their mystical shields. The feel of their claws trying to tear them asunder. The feel of the sun burning down on them with each gout of their magical fire. They both calmed with the dragons passing.

The dragons were focused elsewhere and did not feel their mortal enemy just below them. Father and son both had shivered in fear and now felt anger at having been shivering in their fright. Soon they would kill these abominations and raise them again in their own images.

Then his true son was gibbering again about the Lord yet again. She had fused her mind with the Dragon Queen and tried to pierce the glamour he had laid. The Croyel writhed sinking his teeth deeper into his father’s throat. The Ice King had frozen. If the truth was found out his plans could come crashing down.

He was not ready yet! His strike force still had leagues to travel. It was not right! He had unbidden memories of his distant past and being hunted when he should have been exalted. Finally, the Croyel relaxed. He sensed no alarm being raised.

The crisis had been passed. The hated warm bloods were overconfident. He would swamp and kill them when the time arrived.

He walked on and soon came to a small circular clearing of brush that had no dead milling around in it. In the middle of the circle the Ice King saw his throne. He stepped forward and turned around and sat down on it. He pulled the horn of winter from around his neck and put it up on the spire that came off one shoulder of his seat. He relaxed back and looked out over her kingdom. Soon it would be so much more vast. Soon he would have the world as his throne.

It was assured. He again thought of all his plans and machinations. The allegiance of the traitorous humans was the final part of his plan. He would attack the front of his enemy unawares and throw them into disarray. Then the traitors’ houses of Frey and Bolton would fall on the rear of the enemy and throw that into confusion. The armed and fully mobilized traitorous Houses’ forces falling on the hated warm bloods and slaughtering them as they tried to form up to repel his frontal attack.

They would be hit from two sides unawares at once. The death toll would be staggering and glorious. He could see in his mind’s eye the vast sea of dead before him. Dead he would soon raise up to add to his army. More men, horses and oxen to add to his army. He sat back. He thought and planned. He could see no flaw in his plan. He would take losses but in any war there was losses. He would more than replenish his losses with the mountain of dead he would cause.

He relaxed back putting one foot on the seat of his throne. He looked around. First Westeros and then Essos. He had known of Essos in his human days but it had only been a name on the map. Now his ambition had been fired. Daenerys Targaryen had conquered her way across it to reach Westeros. He would reverse the march till he had reached the land of Asshai. Then beyond it to find more humans to kill. He would conquer the known world. Nothing could withstand him.

Then he would contemplate the riddle of these storms called Soulbiter and Soulcruhser. He was sure there was a way around them. There always was. Then it was on to the Land and its destruction. The Croyel was nervous with his thoughts of going to the South of the world but he assured his father that other Croyel would join him. With his brothers they would have the might to overcome Revelstone and its High Council. They would succeed.

The Ice King would rule the world.

Daenerys

Dany was groaning deep in her throat feeling Arya’s body wallowing into hers and the way Arya swirled her hips back and up to ram down impacting her groan hard into her lover’s swollen muffin. The impact so delicious and perfect. Arya was settled down on her woman’s body. Her belly wallowing on Dany’s belly as the Queen knew there were a countless thousands of glistening tendrils of cum webbing their bellies together whenever they separated in their humping. Both relishing their sweaty bodies wallowing all over each other. Their sweaty cum soaked bodies slipping and sliding all over each other.

The Queen loved the feel of her body soaked in sweat and cum. Dany had watched women fuck up close like this and when the light struck those little sweet cum filaments they would glow with so many blues, reds and some greens. It was beautiful. She knew those sweet filaments were now roped between her and Arya’s sweaty belly, groin and thighs. They were deep into their second fuck tryst of the night. They had fucked hard and long and then broke to drink water and eat some plums and berries in sweet goat’s milk. They had giggled like little girls feeding each other the berries.

Their bodies replenished they had felt the fuck hunger surge in their bodies yet again. Dany had shivered seeing Arya’s grey eye turn dark with her blown pupils showing her hunger for her lover’s body. It had made Dany feel so loved and hot. Arya desired her ravenously in the way that Dany needed to be desired.

Dany was an insatiable slut in bed or furs and needed her woman to be. She needed many orgasms to put the fire out in her couchee. Khal Drogo had tried but he simply did not have the stamina or skills necessary to really and truly give Dany the pleasure and orgasms she needed to feel fulfilled.

Only women had given her that. Even when she was thirteen it had been Dorea and then her other handmaidens that had ever truly given her the pleasure she craved and given themselves to her again and again to truly satisfy the Khaleesi. Khal Drogo had made her cum but her handmaidens had made her womb explode and her belly tear open in agonizing pleasure that had told her even then she would only ever connect with women. Not only physically but mentally and spiritually. Men at best were toys to sport fuck. They could never truly satisfy her. With women she had the need to go down on them repeatedly and trib fuck them relentlessly. With women she needed to give pleasure as well as receive it.

With men it was simple really. Let them poke your pussy and asshole and suck on their cocks and they were satisfied. Drogo had given her pleasure but she had known that it was his own pleasure that was paramount in his mind. His ego led him to try and satisfy Daenerys needs but that was always secondary to his needs.

With women it was different. Of course a woman wanted her orgasms. But for a woman pleasing her mate was paramount. A woman strove to make her man happy. It was a woman’s nature. But when it came to women making love to each other both women strove to give as well as take pleasure. It was this nature at the core of women that made them superior lovers. When women made love with their innate desire to give as well as take the sex simply could not be matched. Men may bone well but they were simply too selfish to truly give pleasure like lesbian and bisexual women did with their female partners.

Daenerys needed a woman who was a slut in bed. A woman with insatiable appetites for lesbian sex. A woman who desired, no needed, many, many orgasms to truly satisfy her need to cum hard and often. She would have loved Arya anyways if she had not been a complete slut in bed who needed to feel her pussy cum many times in the night. Dany would never get enough of the taste of Arya cumming hot in her mouth and seeing her young tight body jackknife and flip so violently in orgasm as she screamed loud and long not caring who heard her wails of hard cumming.

One day she would take Arya to her Khalasars and they would fuck beneath the stars as any who wanted to watch them fuck could. They could watch but not touch! Dany would fly them to all to her Khalasars to show the Dothraki she was the Khaleesi that mounted the world and her filly, her Queen, was Arya Stark.

Fortunately, Dany would never have to worry about Arya not satisfying her needs in bed. Arya was the perfect woman for her. A fierce warrior who longed to fight alongside Dany where she would prove her mettle to be the Queen’s consort. Dany pouted with thoughts of Arya going to Braavos but she had no other options that she could see. Arya could accomplish so many tasks and goals for Dany that she had to let her go to Braavos. The Queen had too many tasks to fulfill in Westeros to go with her love.

Yes, Arya, was the perfect confident who would never betray Dany’s thoughts, hopes and fears. Arya was smart and intelligent and often gave insights and answers to questions that plagued Dany. Arya would leave Dany to do her duty in Braavos. Dany would long for her return to her arms.

Lastly, she was perfect in bed. Dany had been a little worried with how provincial Arya had come to her when they fucked in Arya’s bed the first time. That fear had been allayed from the first night. Arya hungered to fuck in all the ways that Dany knew of and simply loved to fuck. In fact, it was Daenerys herself that slowed the teaching of Arya. She wanted to make sure the girl was ready. She was, but Dany wanted to fully explore other aspects of lesbian sex she craved with Arya back in her Queen’s chamber in King’s Landing. There they would fully explore other aspects of sex like anal sex, BDSM and rough sex. She shivered at the thought.

Now her body was physically shivering because of her Wolfling. Her Arya was proving yet again she was a Direwolf given human form. Her body shivered with the impact of Arya wallowing and riding her cunt down into Dany’s aching love chute of her Queen and roughly dragging her sloppy wet camel toe up over Dany’s cunt. Arya’s vulva mashed into hers hard. Their labia lips stretched and rolled while their clits jacked through and over their wet slits.

Both women shrieked out ecstasy when they hard ground their sodden muffins over each other. They were humping like two bitches in heat. Arya working her groin to drag her drooling pussy up and down Dany’s pussy with hard and fast jerks of her hips. Their cunts wallowing and stretching labia lips and jacking into rigid clits.

Yes . . . oh yes!” Dany breathed hotly luxuriating in their mashed quims rubbing over each other so hard and wetly. “Unhhh! Oh . . . oh gods!” Dany moaned, shivering uncontrollably as raw aching pleasure pulsed out her ground into snatch "Oh! Unhhh!” Dany had always loved trib sex. The feel of her mound compressed and mashed by a woman’s mound pounding down and over hers was heavenly to the Queen. Arya had taken to trib sex like a seasoned Lysian whose schooled in the arts of lesbian fucking.

Arya had been up on her palms angling her drooling clamshell into Dany’s supine muffin roughly dragging her swollen muff down into Dany’s cunt she opened up with her spread legs. She took the offering of her lover’s total access to the core of her essence. Arya had chuffed and snarled lifting her twat on the back stroke and moving forward to slam down again and again pounding their sloppy wets cunt into each other so deliciously hard. Then Arya wallowed down grinding her sloppy wet pussy up and down over her lover’s swollen snatch. Arya’s body dripping sweat off her torso and contorting face. Arya snarling and cawing as she fucked her woman with her pussy.

Arya had tired several times from arching her back and working her hips in a tight swirl to ride down so hard repeatedly driving Dany and herself insane with pleasure. Arya would settle down like she was now her body supported partially with her knees and elbows with bellies rubbing and their tits mashed into each other. Arya now humping down into Dany with short strokes of her hips working her pussy into Dany’s. Their cunts working into each so labia lips were pulled and stretched and opened up to allow slits to slide wetly over each other. The slimy wet contact heavenly to both women.

The close skin contact intoxicating to both women. Their pussies drooling cum into each other’s snatch. The two women’s bellies wallowing and slapping while their muffins ground up and down over each other. Their sloppy wet cunts easily sliding up and down over each other. The friction and pressure exquisite to the humping sluts. Dany loved feeling her cunt mashed and contorted by Arya’s hard rubbing muff.

Dany loved Arya’s hard swollen bulb nipples. Her tits rolling and mashing with Arya’s plum bursting nipples. They roughly dragged and furrowed over Dany’s tits. The rubbery stiff nearly two inch nipples jamming and roughly rubbing over Dany’s now flattened tits that Arya’s pressed down on with her sweat soaked dripping body. Dany loved how their sweat allowed their bodies to easily slip and slide over each other in this face to face tight trib position.

Arya had her fingers clenched in Dany’s now dark white hair that was sweat soaked. The hair twisted and matted with strands glued to her sweaty face, shoulders and throat. Arya was anchoring herself down as she stared into Dany’s lilac eyes her hips lifting down with short up humps of her twat immolating her Queen’s cunt with hard impacts and fierce rubbing. Dany cried out at the sharp impact of their groins colliding. The Valyrian lifting her hips to take each sweet loving down slam thrust of Arya’s goin down into hers. The sound of sweaty bodies slapping hard filling the tent. Their cuffs of exertion sweet music to each other’s ears.

Then Arya was back to wildling riding her cunny up and down over Dany’s pussy. Their muffins wallowing and compressing over each other. Labia lips stretched and rolled while their clits furrowed and jammed into their mate at random gagging the two striving women with bolts of ecstasy. Dany was gurgling and chuffing her face twisting up with ecstasy feeling her cunt pulped and the hot friction of constant hard rubbing.

Her breasts on fire with Arya’s engorged bulb nipples plowing over her heated sweaty tits. Dany’s tits filled with pulses of gagging pleasure. Then her eyes rolled back into her skull and jerked violently feeling Arya mate their lips tight with heads tilted to let Arya ram her tongue hotly down Dany’s deep groaning throat. She knew she looked like some demoness the red capillaries showing and jerking obscenely as her pupils stared into her skull and jerked violently.

Arya kept grunting like a sow in heat harshly jamming their swollen couchies into each other and roughly sweeping her pussy up and down Dany’s jerking spasming twat. Arya was constantly ramming her tongue down Dany’s chuffing gagging throat. Dany’s arms and thighs had come up to instinctively clasp her lover to her. Dany relished the sweaty and cum soaked skin contact. Arya’s tongue down her throat kept her eyes rolling in her skull.

Dany was in heaven feeling all the delicious wallowing sweaty skin contact. For another minute the two women rutted like rabid dogs. Arya was again looking down into her eyes their mouths barely plagued and spit roped between swollen lips. Dany cried out with an uprush of ecstasy. She had felt the first uprush of ecstasy that is so much more than throbbing aching pleasure deep in her cunt. She had felt the first spasms of a huge orgasm building deep in her belly. Now those notes were reaching a crescendo of sweet shattering ecstasy.

Arya had sensed it too. She rose up on her palms to angle her groin down over her lover’s mound. Arya had a look of focus and striving as she chuffed as she angled her groin to mash and grind her sodden twat down hard into Dany’s soaked muffin. She rode her pussy roughly over Dany’s swollen cum soaked vulva. “Unnnggg uunnggg … unnnggg hhnggg!” Arya moaned as she lifted her hips and slammed down to grind up Dany’s now wildly spasming cunt. The Stark teenager loved how she controlled the fuck. Her hips pushing the Queen’s legs apart so she could take what was hers with her swollen soaked snatch.

“Cum for me cunt … cum you godsdammed fucking slut—huunngg uunggg!” Arya growled down at Dany knowing how such hot words spoken harshly set Dany off when she was near cumming during hard rough sex. Arya had been shocked when Dany first requested that Arya talk to her like a Lysian whore when they were in the fuck rut like now.

Dany felt her belly spasm and tighten. She had spread her legs wide to open her cunny up for the hard loving grind from Arya’s cunt. The hard mashing pressure hitting her like a sledgehammer. The impact of Arya’s humping body down into hers jolting her body and jerking it forward that small fraction. Dany’s body being fucked so hard and hot like she wanted and needed it. Her thighs began to tremble wildly and her stomach kept contracting hard as her body tensed up like an overwrought coil. Her head thrashed on the furs. Her hands reached up to grip Arya’s upper arms. Her head jerking up off the furs in helpless pleasure.

“Ooohhh uunggg hhnggg … oh fuckkkkkkk! Shit! Aawwgggg uuunnggg hhhnnn mmmnngggg!” Dany chuffed and moaned as her belly tensed and she felt her womb spasm so hard and tense up as spasms rocked her womb. Then deep in her belly Dany felt her core explode like old Valyria at the moment of its Doom.

Dany felt her belly spasms and tighten. She had spread her legs wide to open her cunny up for the hard loving grind from Arya’s cunt. The hard mashing pressure hitting her like a sledgehammer. The impact of Arya’s humping body down into hers jolting her body and jerking it forward that small fraction. Dany’s body being fucked so hard and hot like she wanted and needed it. Her thighs began to tremble wildly and her stomach kept contracting hard as her body tensed up like an overwrought coil. Her head thrashed on the furs. Her hands reached up to grip Arya’s upper arms. Her head jerking up off the furs in helpless pleasure.

She jackknifed and jolted as Arya ground her cunt into Dany’s exploding box. Arya roughly working her pussy up and down grinding down into Dany’s immolating cunt. ”Aaarrrggghhhunnnnnn! Uunngghhhnnngggggg! Aununghh! … Unnghhmnnngnggeeeee!” Dany cried out, erupting in a sharp, violent flips and jackknifes. Her body bucked up and down as her womb ruptured spasming out scalding spurts of burning cum. The hot gushes burbling out her cunt filled her veins with burning ecstasy. The hard spasms gushed out hot cum soaking her mound and slavering Arya’s mound. Only now did Arya lessen the force of her hard rubbing and grinding on Dany’s wildly trembling twat and clit that was so engorged and shiny jutting out its sheath. Dany could feel hot cum leaking down her perineum and soaking her asshole and then her ass cleft.

Dany saw Arya studying her face as it locked up and then wildly grimaced with the fierce aftershocks now flowing out Dany’s ruptured womb and jangling clit. Dany felt her face freeze and snarl before relaxing and her limbs scissor on the thick layer of furs and her belly tensed up to steal feeling wondrous pleasure ripple out from deep within her belly. Pleasure so intense it burned in her veins and made her toes and fingers stiffen and curl. The same pulses hammering her clit and nipples with throbbing fucking ecstasy.

“Baby, roll over onto your back baby—Arya! I need your sweet gash honey!” Dany saw the fire flash in Arya’s eyes and she lifted herself up in a quick jerk and thudded down on the furs beside Dany her one leg lying over Dany’s closest still kicking leg. Dany was on a mission. She rolled the other way feeling Arya’s leg roll off her leg. Dany with a body still jerking with aftershocks rose up on palms and knees and with a herky-jerky motion moved over to get between Arya’s legs that Arya spread pulling her knees back enough to fold her legs out.

Dany eyed Arya’s swollen love chute all fiery red, wet and engorged from the hard pounding that muffin had been giving Dany’s cunt. Dany flopped down onto her belly and quickly sucked Arya’s clitoral hood deep into her mouth her left hand gripping Arya’s hip and her right hand worming three fingers into the fiery cauldron that was Arya’s hot tight cunt.

Dany wasted no time in feasting. She suckled Arya’s clit deep into her mouth and began to roll and twist her sweetie’s clitoral hood with her tongue and lips. Her three fingers started a slow pumping rhythm running deep into Arya’s cunny. The heat and greasy fuck channel felt so slimy and hot to the Queen. She loved the oily feel enveloping her pumping fingers. Arya’s tight pussy clenching down on the digits invading deep up the tight hot couchie.

"Ohhhhhh . . . oh Dany" Arya sighed feeling her woman rhythmically suckle on her shiny throbbing clit and her three fingers sinking deep and slow in and out her tight pussy. Dany moaned into the quim she was devouring feeling the hot pulses on her deep pumping fingers. The Queen intoxicated by the sweet taste of Arya’s cunt in her mouth. Each lick and suck brought more sweet ambrosia into her mouth for her taste buds to savor before she swallowed the sweet pungent elixir. Dany was totally addicted to Arya’s pussy and the taste of her cum.

The blond lifted her head to tongue lick and flick her love’s clit and then ran her tongue up and down the juicy slit licking over engorged labia lips. Lips she the sucked into her mouth in turn and rolled them before stretching out to snap through her lips in turn. The friction and tension of her ministrations had Arya whooping and hips lurching up into Dany’s mouth and pumping fingers. Then Dany used Margaery’s butterfly kiss her tongue flicking all over Arya’s clit with feathery bats and lashes.

Arya’s hands rolled and bent her nearly two inch plum nipples. The teenager rolled her palms over her nipples compressing and pulping them. The callouses on her palms rasping her pulpy nipples sending arcs of pleasure deep into her breast and arching to her rigid clit. Her face slashed with fucking ecstasy. Her hips jolted up mashing her pubic bone into Dany’s mouth. Then hard smacks of Arya pounding her nipples filled the tent. Arya lifting her palms up and smacking down hard pulping her nipples into her ribs and grinding her palms into her swollen bursting plums. Arya head jerking up off the furs. Her face contorted in the agony of ecstasy. Dany watched Arya lift her cupped hands and hard slap her engorged teats pulping and grinding them again and again.

Arya was wound up from her tribbing of Dany. Dany now was slamming her three fingers in and out the hot tight greasy fuck hole. Her fingers already creamed with thick milky cum. Dany reveled feeling Arya’s hot cunt gripping her pumping fingers tight and hard spasms rocking her sweetie’s core. Cum dripping off the Dany’s hand. Her mouth harsh sucked the hard nubbin buried deep in her mouth. Dany began to waggle her head tongue lashing the rigid clit underneath her sideswiping tongue that lashed and clat clat tip jutted out its sheath.

"Oh! Oh gods! Ungghhh! Oh Dany hhhnggg hhhnggg oohhh gaawwdss so fucking good!”
sucked harder now having captured Arya’s clit between her lips her head still waggling her tongue tip polishing the shiny tip. “Wwoooogggg! Aawwwooogggg! Oh sweet gods! Yes! Yes! Hard . . . harder! Suck baby! Yes yes!” Arya was rolling from shoulder to shoulder now her hands that had been rolling and pulping her nipples now in Dany’s hair clawing here scalp.

The fingers pumping hard to drive the pale Valyrian’s face into Arya’s quim. A pussy basted in hot buttery cum that splattered out Arya’s pierced and hard fucked cunt. Dany was slamming her knuckles into her lover’s mons fast and furious. “Unghhh! Yes! Oh God, yes!”

Then a horrific spam wrenched Arya’s body hard her head jamming into furs and her hips lifting her tightening cunt up in love offering to Dany’s hot gobbling mouth and plunging fingers. Spasms deep in her womb and belly made her pussy feel like it was being clenched in a tightening vise. The teenager’s eyes squeezed tight shut with sweet pleasure building in her core. The tendons in her throat now tensed and jutting out her throat with her head jerking up off the furs now as her orgasm was on the precipice of ripping her womb to shreds deep in her belly.

The tension built and built. Arya’s head plopped back down onto the furs. Dany paused in her sucks and took a deep breath and then sucked with a deep throat love suck that was long and continuous. Arya’s eyes shocked wide open. Then her cunt exploded.

A loud piercing scream of agonizing pleasure was ripped from Arya’s throat as her head snapped up on a neck gone rigid her tendons out in stark relief again “AAAARRUUUUNNGGGGG! OOOOOOWWWGGGGGGGGG! AAARRUUUNNGGGGGG!” the sixteen year screamed as her belly was ripped open and her cunt torn inside out scalding her veins with blistering excoriating fucking bliss. Dany slammed her hand in and out Arya’s imolating snatch her knuckles slamming into the cum slavered mound. "Aunnngghhh! Aaaunnggghghhhhhhhh!" Arya cried out. Horrible convulsions tore through her teenage body hammering her with fucking bliss. "Ohnggg! Unghhhngghghiieeee! Oh fucking godddssssss unngghmmnnniieeee! Aunnngg! Unh! Oh! Unh! Ungh!"

Dany moaned around the clit she was now only lathing in her mouth as she felt the hot gushes of cum out Arya’s barely sixteen year old cunt. Her fingers felt the spasms ripping through her Wolfling’s spasming love hole. The heat and wetness on her fingers and palm felt heavenly to the Queen. The fuck slime soaking her hand showed the Queen that Arya was coming so hard for her. Arya’s body was repeatedly violently shook with her horrific orgasm that raked her beautiful teenage body.

Dany felt Arya’s body jolting continuously as her orgasm rolled on weakly only very slowly dissipating. She knew the time was perfect to deliver the perfect love kill. She pulled her fingers out her lover’s swollen cum filled pussy and scooped up quickly to hunch down over her lover’s groin. She flattened her cum soaked fingers and rubbed them fast and furious back and forth over Arya’s clit and slit pressing in hard. She jammed in with all her pure love.

Her blurring fingers churned engorged slimy wet labia lips and whiplashed Arya’s still diamond hard clit. Immediately Arya’s flooded cunt splattered and made rich watery squishy sounds and cum splattered like a fountain.

Dany smiled evilly down at Arya’s whose head shot up off the furs her eyes shocked with horrific ecstasy. She never had a chance as her cunt exploded violently again. Her pussy simply tore itself to shreds in violent convulsive spasms of dire fucking bliss.

" OHNNNGGYIIIIEEE! AAAARRUUUNNGGGGG! AUUNNGHHHH! OHNNNGGYIIIIIIEEE!" Arya screamed pummeled relentlessly by exploding waves of scalding spasms turning her pussy inside out. Her head now jerked up and slammed down on the furs in a paroxysm of womb rending bliss. Dany was in heaven rubbing Arya’s greasy cum soaked mound knowing she was giving her lover such pure fucking bliss. Such soul binding pure love. It was this kind of intense hard fucking that was long and drawn out that truly bound two souls into one.

"Aaaarruuunggg! Mmmhhhhiiiiieee! Mmmngghhhiiiiieee! … hhnn hhnnnggg hhnnngg … Onngghh! Oh shit . . . yes! Ohhh . . . auungghiiiiieee!" Arya moaned, her body clenching and trembling as Dany now only lightly massaged her clit with her cum soaked palm. Dany then stopped as Arya went limp exhausted from hard gut wrenching cumming. Her legs and arms had been wildly scrabbling over the furs her elbows and heels kicking frantically into the furs were now limp and akimbo her legs spread out opening her drooling cunny like a Lysian whore. Her cunt dark red from cumming. Arya’s face, throat and upper chest scarlet from her orgasm. Her body simply soaked in sweat her hair dark and lank. Her eyes stared at the top of the tent unseeing.

She was softly weeping tears running down her cheeks. “I love you. I just love you” she softly husked out.

Dany moved up and saddled onto her lover’s side and ran her hands in Arya’s hair. She loved the idea of soaking Arya’s hair in her own cum. They usually had to wash out their hair in the morning and let the air dry it after the tangles had been combed out. The advantages of being Queen and high royal.

She held Arya tight and kissed her all over her face and neck cooing to her lover that she had her. That she would never let her go now that Arya had finally come into her life. She told Arya “I love with you with all my heart. I have since that day in the throne room. Your fire and fists captured my heart and soul.”

They snuggled. Then Arya started to kiss and suck on her neck softly. Dany felt the fire resurging again in her love aching cunt. She pushed Arya onto her back and got up straddling Arya’s face with her knees. Arya stared up at her hungrily. The fucking minx licking her lips with her pink tongue her cum smeared face so beautiful and her steel grey eyes throbbing.

“Eat me out bitch. You Queen needs servicing. If you keep sucking me off good whore I will fuck you with my dick when we return to King’s Landing. I will first pound your cunt so good and deep and then I will role you over and take that sweet tight asshole and make it mine. You will cum so had slut. You will beg to suck your ass off my black cock and have me lunge it balls deep into your tight cunt straight from your shithole you fucking cunt.”

“I wi—Aaaaruuuunnggggg” Dany cried out with Arya shooting her head up off the furs the same time her arms looped over Dany’s strong thighs and pulled her down roughly onto her stabbing tongue. Arya stabbed her tongue deep up Dany’s cunny hole her lips locking on her cunt and sucking voraciously her tongue fluttering deep into her twat. “Ooohhh oh oh Uunnggggg! Oh babyyyyyy—yeessss you suck me do good baby!” Dany gurgled feeling Arya worm her tongue deep up into her so wet pussy.

Dany started to swirl her hips working her groin to grind her aching cunt down into the mouth devouring her quim. Arya used her grip on Dany’s legs to help pound her head up to spear her tongue again and again deep into her hot drooling cunt hole. Arya growled and snuffled deep in her chest as she slurped down sweet hot creamy cum flowing from Dany’s honey hole. Dany whinnied feeling Arya suck in her cunt petals and munched on them rolling them with her lips and licking aggressively the slimy folds.

Dany’s body jolted and jerked with the hot pulses shooting into her belly and into her limbs from Arya’s hot mouth on her pussy. Dany worried her lower lip rolling it with her teeth watching Arya devour her pussy. She was now riding Arya’s mouth her hips working forward and back grinding her twat over the Stark girl’s lashing tongue and sucking lips.
The Queen ran her hands hedonistically up and down her body. Dany loved to rub her calloused palms all over body. She loved the feel of her palms sliding over her sweaty belly, ribs and ribcage of her body. Those hands then riding up and cupping and hard squeezing her swollen breast and then working up to pinch and jerk her engorged light brown nipples making the Queen cry out with the hard pulses of pleasure this produced in her tits.

Then one hand still worked her tits back and forth while the other ran all over her neck and face ghosting over her skin filling her skin with pleasure. Then she ran those fingers through her sweaty lank hair enjoying the feel of her sweaty hair working through her fingers till the last strands had run through her sweaty fingers. Then the hand again stroked her face and throat like the slut she was.

Arya moved her head up and sucked in Dany’s clit and upper cunt deep into her mouth. Arya pumped here head pulling and stretching out Dany’s cunt meat. Then she spit out Dany’s pussy and gave it wet kisses that made sloppy wet noises and pulled her clit and lips out. The stretching and friction filling her pussy with aching pleasure. The white haired Queen stopped working her hips and settled down enjoying Arya devouring her sweet cunny.

Arya sucked the sweet cunt meat out and then would pull her back and lick the sweet red cunt meat aggressively with her long pink tongue lashing rock hard shiny pink clit and deep pink inner lips. Then her head moved in to wet kiss and suck before pulling back to tongue lash with her flat tongue and then swiping with her fast side swiping tongue and then back to harsh pulling suck kisses.

"Oh gods . . . what you do to me with your mouth!" Dany gasped. "It feels so good! Shit, it feels so good, Arya! Ohnnnn! Yes!" Dany leaned back to put her hands back by Arya’s hips. The change in angle adding pressure to her belly and groin. She grimaced and chuffed feeling Arya swallow her clt deep into her hot sucking mouth her locked lips rolling her clt as Arya lashed it with her wet slapping tongue. "Oh gods, yes! … auunnggg hhnnggg Fffffuccckkkk! Unnggg hhhhnnn mnnnggg ohhh shit! Mnnnggggggg!" Dany moaned as she felt the first delicious spasms rising that were so much more in force and quickness deep in her belly.

Dany humped up and down her fingers clawed into the furs to keep her balance and grind her twat down into the mouth gobbling her hot drooling gash. Arya whimpered as she suck hard and lifted her head enough to wild tongue lick and slap Dany’s clt hard and then tongue lap again before swallowing deep into her mouth and locking her lips on Dany’s clitoral hood and rolling it while her tongue drilled the stiff throbbing nodule.

Dany was working her hips rolling her pussy over Arya’s mouth. Arya licked feverishly whining as she devoured succulent red sopping wet cunt meat. Dany felt her couchie spasming and clenching. She arched her back to grind her cunt harder into Arya’s hot sucking mouth now locked onto her clt and deep throat sucking. Dany reached down with her right hand and fisted Arya’s long hair to pull her face deeper into her pussy as the teen sucked and tongue raked the clit deep in her mouth. Dany groaned gutturally and cawed as her face twisted up and slashed horribly as sheer ecstasy flowed out her sucked twat.

The tension rose and rose. Her cunt was making wet obscene noises in Arya’s hot sucking mouth. Dany saw her nipples on her chest rock hard and dark pink brown and her chest and neck were flushed pink. Sweat rolled down off her face and ribs. Her tits swirled and jolted on her chest as she humped. Dany was humping desperately her back arched deep and her hand snap jerking to pull Arya’s hot sucking mouth tighter to her now spasming out of control snatch. Her cunt exploded.

“Uuuummmgghhiieeeee! Mmmnnhhhhhiiiieeeeee! Nnnhhhhiiiiieeeeee!” Dany screamed snapping her hips down to mash her exploding trim harder into the mouth devouring it. Horrific convulsions tore through her body jolting her hard making her firm tits whiplash on her chest. The Valyrian kept jerking her hair knot she had fisted in Arya’s hair up to keep Arya’s mouth glued to her exploding fuck hole. Arya had gripped Dany’s ass cheeks hard to keep Dany somewhat in place so she could continue to wolf suck on her love’s throbbing clit. "OOOOWWWGGGG! Oooowwnnng! Auooowwnngghhh!" Dany shrieked, her whole body undulating in shockwaves of hard cumming.

Arya had moved her mouth now and sucked in hard on Dany’s cunny hole groaning hard swallowing mouth fulls of sweet delicious creamy cum. Her nose pressed into Dany’s clit jacking into it as she worked her mouth keeping her love suck tight on Dany’s cunt hole. Dany looked down her flexing belly watching her future wife nearly swoon slurping down Dany’s love juice.

Arya had lifted her head and tilted it forward as far as possible to keep her lip lock on Dany’s fuck hole drinking down each precious drop of cum she could. Gradually the spasms wracking Dany’s body weakened and her body sagged down and back as she laid down on the bed beside Arya her body shaking and convulsing with dying aftershocks. Dany felt Arya roll over and move up her body bringing up the sheet with her. Dany snuggled in as Arya pulled her sweat soaked body in close to hers. They kissed deep in languid love and they quickly dozed off in pure love snuggling into each other’s bodies.

Dany was in love. Pure and simple.

////////

The next morning as the sun started to approach the horizon Dany left her tent. Arya was just finishing her morning ablutions. Dany had woken up an hour before and had sucked Arya off three times back to back drinking down sweet hot cum. Her sweetie had cum so hard with loud shrieks and wild flips and jackknifes.

Arya had been a little groggy this morning as Dany washed her hair out and then combed it out for her lover. She had already done her morning rituals feeling so invigorated and fucking happy! Arya had felt so good pressed into her boobs and pussy as Dany combed out her hair and kissed her neck. If it had not for the fact they were marching to war she would have taken Arya again.

The Queen had a light step. She looked off to the north by east. There was a large corpse of tall pine trees. The sky was beginning to turn the light purple of before dawn. The air was filled with loud caws of waking crows and ravens. The birds waking up and announcing their desire for food and flight to each other. The tree looked alive as the black shapes in the boughs were milling around and flapping their wings limbering up for flight.

Other birds were just beginning to stir. The first black birds to take flight exploded up into the air but did not rise up. Instead the birds flew wild circles over the pine tree tops and some would go swooping down dodging in and out the outreached arms of the mighty tree limbs. The sound of raucous caws and quorks filled the air in a rising crescendo of a discordant symphony of riotous noises. Eddard and Oberyn had come to stand beside her. Together they watched the rookery coming fully awake.

“Damn fuckers are noisy!” Oberyn growled.

“You would think they would have some decorum” Daenerys snorted in reply.

“Oh puulleeaaazzzeeee” Eddard barked back at the two persons to his left. “You make more noise than that rookery and all the others in the North when you all fuck! … Look at these bags underneath my eyes! (pointing underneath his eyes with angry jabs of his index finger) I sleep on the other side of the camp and I still hear you and Arya (looking at Daenerys with a glare) and you Oberyn are trying to wear out our champions from the South of the World (Oberyn was standing straighter—proud of himself) and my other daughter makes Margaery howl as if the furies of hell are after her ass and that interpreter of yours, Daenerys, screams as if she is having boiling oil poured on her! How can that small scribe of yours scream like that … for hours! I swear to the gods her left hand is going to fall off!"

Eddard glared at Oberyn and herself. Dany gave him her most innocent smile batting her eyelashes.

Oberyn looked at Eddard “You know if you would join us we could take care of that problem you are having with sleeping. We would wear you out and you would sleep like a happy babe. I know you are not bisexual but Ranrika and Ferna of the Haruchai are still at me to get you to join us. They both want me and Stannis holding them up with their arms and legs wrapped around us as we pound their cunts hard and bash their cervixes with our cocks and have you in between moving back and forth pounding their assholes in turn as we DP them standing. They both long to feel you cock shooting off hot loads of semen deep up their buttholes and then sucking your sperm out their slack assholes and off your still hard cock.”

Daenerys noticed in the lightening sky that Eddard somehow looked pale and blushing mightily at the same time. He stared at Oberyn aghast. He was fidgeting. “I think I hear Robb calling for me” Eddard said lamely turning to leave. Daenerys felt sorry for the prude. All you had to do to get the upper hand with the Warden of the North was start talking about hot and nasty sex. The man always folded like a house of cards hit by a gust of strong wind.

Oberyn followed him “ShAPA the Manethrall and her cord Fohn told me last night they long to have you on your back on the furs in my tent and let them take turns riding your cock hard with their tight twats as the other is riding your face as you eat their pussy—you do like eating out a hot cunt don’t Eddard (Eddard started walking faster looking most agitated) their goal is to get you to lose control as they take turns changing positions and see whose womb you flood with your hot seed!”

Eddard was running now as Oberyn kept after laughing still giving him smut as Eddard retreated in defeat.

Daenerys felt Arya come up beside her. She felt her taller lover loop her arm around her waist and pull her to her body. Dany wiggled in. She loved having Arya pull her to her body. It comforted her. She wanted all to know she was Arya Stark’s mate. She had chosen her Queen.

“The crows and ravens are about to fly off for the days foraging” Arya announced softly. Dany gripped her love’s ass cheek. Arya’s was hers and wanted all to know. Those Haruchai and Ramen and her own Dothraki were a very randy people. She was making sure again and again that all realized that Arya belonged to her and her alone.

The Queen snorted seeing Eddard swatting at Oberyn who was trying to grip his arm to make further points about all the great sex he was missing. Eddard rushed into his tent. Oberyn followed him but his body came flying back out a few seconds later. He stumbled and turned laughing as he catcalled into the tent. The flap of the tent was snapped shut.

“Don’t take this wrong way my love but I am happy you are not an uptight prude when it comes to sex like your father.”

“Me too Dany! My father is just old fashion I fear. My mother plays it close to the vest herself but she has hinted that my father has become more adventurous of late. Maybe we are influencing my father in a good way.” She hugged Dany to her body. “He has a long way to go though” Arya told her lover waggling her eyebrows.
The two women turned to look at the rookery. The black birds now were fully awake and the cacophony of their calls filled the air. More and more of the birds were flying around the corpse of trees. They were waiting for more of their brothers and sisters to awake and take flight. They seemed to be waiting for some critical mass to be met. The birds had formed a cone above the tree stand and more were flying wildly around the corpse. It was amazing how fast they flew and the way they flew in between the limbs of the boughs. The birds whirling the air tightly packed together in their wild flights. How they did not collide into each other the Queen had no idea.

The air was screaming with the birds now. It reminded Dany of the black birds that had come to her aid at the Tree of Life. She gave the birds a silent prayer of thanks.

As the two watched, some balance was crossed. The birds still in the trees were flying straight up out of the trees. The cyclone above the corpse of trees unraveled with the back birds flying off in all directions initially before coalescing to a road in the sky. Their wings striking a furious beat. They gained altitude and crying wildly they formed a highway in the sky of black shapes heading to the west. The birds looked like black bricks in the sky forming a road a hundred yards wide in the sky. For ten minutes the birds took flight and headed off to feed. The sight was only nature at work and yet it had a mystical touch to it.

When the last of the birds had departed Arya turned to Dany and kissed her deeply and sweetly. It was a kiss of love and possession. Dany pressed into Arya’s relaxing. She loved having her lover being a warrior. Yes, indeed, Arya was the perfect lover.

“We will be at the Wall in eight days Arya. We will meet our destiny there”

Arya looked down at her “I know. I can’t wait to test myself Dany. I want to challenge myself against your foes. I will strike them down for you Dany.”

“I know you will” Dany told Arya. She fretted for the danger that Arya faced but she knew that Arya would chaff at any mention of this. Dany kept her peace. She had wanted a warrior Queen at her side and she had her wish. Now she had to let her love fight by her side. She knew that Arya held the same concern for her in return. She pulled her love closer.

The camp was breaking and the horses prepared to be ridden. The Giants were already up and laughing and jesting as was their want. Dany had never seen a people who were so ready to laugh and always have a smile on their face. She saw them standing together with their armor on except for the two male giants who were the first captain and navigator of the ships the Giants had ridden on their quest to the shores of Westeros.

Dany had wondered if the male Giants would be useful in a fight. That was until she had seen them fight the Haruchai. Like the Haruchai they eschewed weapons. Daenerys had asked their captain Saltheart Starchaser why they did not use weapons like the woman of the Search. He had looked at her strangely with a glint in his eyes. “We are not warriors. Our muscles are sculpted for working the tiller and sail rigging. We rely on our fists. What more do we need?”

The Queen had smiled politely all the while thinking oh, I don’t know ... maybe armor, shield and a weapon.

The two men were not as well muscled as the women not working constantly on their strength and conditioning. They were lean and mean Dany thought looking at them. Still she had expected complete defeat in combat. They were not Haruchai after all.

That was until she had watched the male Giants spar with the Haruchai. What the male Giants lacked in raw strength they made it up with speed. They did not have a hundred pounds of armor on their bodies. They were somehow lightning fast. Daenerys was shocked at how such large bodies could move so fast and with such fluidity.

The Haruchai and the male Giants attacked each other with reckless abandon. The Giants met their attacks head on. The Giants had the size and strength to contend with the Haruchai. The Giants were able to catch many of the attacks that were launched up at them. The Swordmainnir let their armor accept the blows of the Haruchai to get them in range of their swords. The sailors would attempt to catch the Haruchai when they launched themselves at the sailors. The Haruchai with their total control of their bodies would twist and go with the Giants momentum to not let the Giants grapple with them.

That was the goal of the Haruchai and yet still the Giant sailors had been actually able to catch a limb or loop an arm around a torso. Of course this brought them within range of Haruchai’s fists and feet and vice versa.

Dany had gasped along with Arya when the Giants and Haruchai landed blows on each other. The Giant’s blows could shatter granite but the Haruchai were so fast they always parried and rolled with the punches. As a rule but there were exceptions. The sound of fists and feet that were not dodged striking flesh was like sledgehammers striking boulders. The Haruchai would be covered in bruises and swollen contusions that they ignored and the Giants had their bruises on their faces and shinners around their eyes which they equally ignored.

Dany had formed a whole new opinion of the Giant sailors.

The Direwolves came running in with the rising sun. The three Direwolves on the prowl at night with local wolf packs. They would communicate with the lesser wolves and they would spread out and range about the perimeter. If anything had been found untoward the Dirwolves would let their humans know of the danger. There had been none.

The Ranyhyn also ran along the perimeter always on search for any danger. The mighty horses were able to doze while they stood or even walked slowly the Ramen told them. Their Haruchai riders on alert as the mighty horses dozed.

This allowed the Haruchai to stand down at night with only three or four out riding with the Ranyhyn adding their preternatural senses to the watchful defense of the camp.

Dany had to smirk. This definitely made Stannis, Renly and Oberyn happy. The Haruchai and Ramen had seemed to form a close bond with the men.

As Dany thoughts ran along those lines she saw Ranrika and Ferna come out of Stannis’s tent hand in hand. They shared a quick kiss and moved away from the camp with the rest of Haruchai. As one the Haruchai who would form the patrol picket raised their hands to their mouths and in succession gave three long whistles. As the echo of the last whistle was still dying in the calm air the sound of mighty hooves could be heard striking the ground. The sun was just cresting the line of the Earth.

The mighty horses were coming in from the gloom of the West. Their dark shapes taking form out of the lessening shadows. The sun struck their white stars that were on each horse’s forehead. Dany heard Arya gasp and she felt a rush herself. The rising sun’s rays caught the star on the horses’ heads and seemed to catch fire and literally glow with promises of fidelity. The horses thundered across the grasslands and came to a stop before the Haruchai they had chosen to bear.

They had seen this many times now and it still made one’s heart beat louder in one’s chest. The horses were simply beautiful to behold as they charged into the camp to accept their riders.
They had heard the tales from the Ramen how the Haruchai and Lords would travel to the plains of Ra that lay between Andelain and Mount Thunder. The Ranyhyn would come to consider those seeking to ride them. The riders would be chosen by a Ranyhyn. Or maybe they would not be. It was sad event to not be chosen. It had torn marriages apart between Lords of Revelstone when one was chosen and not the other. Only the Ranyhyn knew what they saw in a person that made them worthy to be borne by that Ranyhyn.

In all the history of the Land and the Haruchai in it, they had never been refused. Sometimes a Lord may have two or three Ranyhyn consider them. The mighty horses almost seeming to debate who among them would have the honor of taking the Lord as their rider. Only Ur-lord Thomas Covenant had had more Ranyhyn offer their services to him. The Ramen still spoke in awe when nearly one hundred Ranyhyn came to offer him his service and he had refused. The man was revered to this day for refusing their offer of fealty.

Now the Queen saw the fealty of the mighty horses for herself yet again. The tall powerful horse pawed the Earth and shook their heads their manes jerking behind their heads. The horses moved forward and nuzzled their riders. The Haruchai petted their steeds for a brief moment and then bowed deeply and sprung onto the Ranyhyn’s backs.

As one the magical horses wheeled around and were flying off to the four points of the compass running furiously to set the picket around the traveling company. Every morning it was thus.

The Queen had gone to the tent that Lord Lustra shared with her Bloodguard Brail five nights past. She had gone and eaten a light meal with Arya by her side. She noticed that both women now wore rings on their right thumbs that they did not have when last she saw their hands. She smiled at that. The Queen could not wait to give Arya her wedding ring.

She had told the Lord and the leader of the Haruchai that they did not need to keep sending out their patrols. This close to the Wall the Queen had established corridor on each side of the King’s Road. The closer to the Wall the wider the corridor of protection. There would be no ambushes of the columns this close to the Wall. She had over ten mercenary companies on each side of the King’s Road in two flanking columns one thirty miles out and one eight miles.

Brail had listened to all this. She had looked at Lustra. Dany felt that the Lord could now communicate to her new wife this close to her. She wondered how long it would before Lustra had the gift of the full mind speech of the Haruchai.

“We know caution” the Haruchai spoke flatly. “We will not shirk our responsibility to protect the Lord of Revelstone and the Queen of Westeros and Essos. We have pledged our very lives with your protection. We will do our utmost to ensure that trust. We have done thus and will continue in our duty.”

“Do you not worry that you wear yourselves down with this relentless vigilance.”

The Lord chuckled. “You do not know the Haruchai well yet Daenerys Targaryen. They have not begun to test the limits of their strength or endurance. Do not worry with the diligence of their efforts to protect us. If we find time someday in the future I will regale you with stories of the mighty accomplishments of the Haruchai.” Lustra leaned into Brail and snuggled in. The stoic woman snaked her arm around the Lord and held her in a possessive clench to her body.

Dany was not sure but she swore she saw a ghost of a smile on the taciturn woman’s face “The Lord … Lustra exaggerates our mettle. We merely strive to the limit of our strength to perform our duties. Thus it was when we first came to the Land and challenged High Lord Kevin to combat. He could have annihilated us with no effort but instead welcomed us with open arms. As did the Ramen, Ranyhyn and Giants. We learned the wonders of the Land. We still strive to be worthy.”

Lustra did smile softly and openly at her new wife. “That your people have done again and again and will do so to the end of time.” The Queen had left their tent satisfied. She would accept the full measure of the Haruchai’s service.

Daenerys watched the Ranyhyn disappear into the distance as they added their senses to the forces warding the column.

The Ramen took off a fast loop. They too patrolled though the Lord told them they were just out of sight. They scouted the way ahead making sure all was safe for the horses of the column.

The Queen liked the service that these Ramen felt towards the Ranyhyn and their own horses. They were always with her Dothraki tenders working to feed the horses that needed additional nutrition of oats or barley. They curried their coats and worked to make sure their hooves were in prime condition.

The Ramen were fierce warriors in their own right with their cords that they formed garrotes with to break a foe’s neck and limbs and to use the knots in their ropes to bash in skulls and break bones. They did not have the raw granite like strength of the Haruchai but they were as strong as any warrior and had an endurance that no man or woman of Westeros or Essos could match. They could range all day and still not be truly tired. The Queen knew they too had been touched by this Earthpower that seemed to infuse all that came from the Land in the Southern hemisphere.

The Queen noticed that the Ramen had a plethora of Dothraki suitors. She liked that. That dissipate people could bond with their common love of horses. The Ramen for the most part ignored the overtures having already found companionship with Stannis and Oberyn. They did bring back Dothraki to the tents that the two men shared. Of course the men were more than happy to invite the mainly Dothraki women who were the main tenders of horses in camp. In their culture this freed the warriors to focus on their duties as warriors and defenders of the Khalasar and of their Khaleesi.

The Dothraki women especially were forming permanent pairings. Sometimes with men but usually with women. The Dothraki women were powerful personalities and many women from Westeros were falling under their sway most willingly. The Dothraki reveling in being dominate in their new unions. They knew the Queen would defend these same sex marriages and were anxiously forming unions with willing women looking to be loved and pampered and protected without having males dominate and try and crush their will.

The new pairs openly necking and feeling each other up out in public. Daenerys smiled seeing this. The Dothraki women knew their Khaleesi’s desires for the female flesh. They knew that in her army they were free to pursue their true heart’s desire. Their county men leaving them be. The will of the Khaleesi was paramount to the horse riders of the Dothraki Sea. Daenerys and Arya would watch the women getting all worked up and rushing off to their tents to start their lovemaking. The two smiled at each other loving all the new lesbian pairings they were witnessing.

Both parties highly satisfied with their unions. The Queen liked making it possible and protecting these fledgling new unions of woman with woman. To Daenerys Targaryen it seemed natural. She would fight to preserve this new way of thinking. Westeros needed to change in many ways. She wondered how much resistance she would receive. Having the High Lords so closely aligned with her and being so open now in their thinking she had great hopes.

She knew she would meet resistance but had she not crushed all resistance in the past? She would do so in the future.
Soon the column was mounted and again moving north to the next way point on the King’s Road. After tonight it would be only one more week till she was at the Wall. There the fate of Westeros and maybe the entirety of the world would be decided.

Dany knew their victory was assured. She had assembled an overwhelming force. She was prepared to meet the Ice King at Castle Black. Legend had it he died at that spot and he would be drawn back to the spot of his defeat and death to avenge his previous death at that same site.

But, if she was wrong she had strong garrisons at the other forts along the Wall. They would delay and harass the enemy till she could bring her main army to bear against the enemy if they did attack elsewhere. She knew the Ice King had an aerial threat. Once she brought it down her three dragons would be free to attack the vast hordes of the dead that the Ice King had raised. She would have them attack the Others to reduce their ranks. With Dragon Glass and iron arrows to break the Ice Wrights ice armor her warriors would take care of the Ice Wrights.

She would have plenty of time to burn them down and deprive the Ice King of his vast numerical superiority. With the copious amounts of dragon glass tipped weapons the dead would fall in droves.

Yes her victory was assured. She was already concerned with the aftermath. She was the Queen of Westeros but that ended at the Wall. That had been the tradition. Jon Snow had changed that. He had given the traditional Gifts of the Crows to the Wildlings. Many of the Lords especially those of the North were not happy with this. Though the land was abandoned and not in active use the Lords did not like the idea of lifetime enemies being gifted land near them.

For millennium the Wildlings had raided the South. They would steal livestock and sometimes young adults or teens to become wives and husbands captured in their ‘hunt’ they seemed to use to claim a mate. There was time to time skirmishes and a few outright wars. Still all in all the fight between the Lords of Westeros and the Wildling were more fiction and history than a current problem.

Dany thought that once the Ice King was put down, that most of the Wilding would choose to return to the homes of their births. She had been an exile from Westeros from her birth and yet she had felt the land of her birth calling to her. So it would be with the vast majority of the Wildlings. She would let them go freely.

She had decided to honor the traditional boundary between the North above the Wall and Westeros. She would not try to extend her rule further north than the Wall. This boundary had been honored for over eight thousand years and she would honor it still. The wildlings had been greatly reduced in numbers from the predations of the Ice King and his forces and there battles with the crows. She would not take advantage of that.

The Queen felt no need to conquer the whole world. She had formed the need to end the slave trade in her youth and had made it happen. The only way to impose her will was to conquer and then rule the Slave States. The Dothraki were a force of destruction and offered nothing of value to civilization. She had had to bring them to task. She could not allow such senseless destruction and slaughter of innocents to continue.

She did not want to break the Dothraki but their carnage of innocents would come to an end. They did not even put to use the loot they plundered from the civilizations they ransacked. Those statues and arches from destroyed cities sitting like obscene obelisks on the road to Vaes Dothraki were a travesty. No more would she allow that. In her time, Kiserri would not allow it.

She had formed alliances with those civilizations and cultures that valued peace and building up instead of destroying. The kingdoms of Yi Ti, the Summer Islands and the Kingdom of Leng had gladly signed peace and mutual support treaties with the Queen. She would do so with the Wildlings. She would work with them. The Wildling wanted to live in peace and to have enough to live well and know their children could grow up safe and well cared for.

Some though would want to settle in the Gift of Brandon and the New Gift. These unpopulated lands could easily accept the numbers that would want to settle there. She thought maybe ten or fifteen percent would want to stay. That would only number several thousand at most. That would still leave this vast amount of land thinly populated.

Daenerys had an idea she had shared with Eddard. He had smiled hearing it.

Eddard’s Stark idea of creating “nature preserves” in the Sand Hills and the Barrowlands had fired the Queen’s imagination. She had admired that Jon Snow had allowed the Giants of the North to come south beyond the Wall along with the Wildlings.

These Giants were not like the Giants from the Land. Those Giants were just as human as her but easily twice to nearly two and half times her height. They were proportioned in limbs and torso as her just on a grander scale. They were as advanced technological and culturally as any other race of men.

Not so the Giants of the North. These giants were generally about ten to twelve feet in height. The giants of the north generally a few feet shorter in stature than the Giants of the Land. That was where the similarity ended. They were capable of great feats of strength. They were covered by a shaggy pelt of fur that was thicker below their waists than above. The fur of older giants became grey and streaked with white. Their heads were thrust forward from their shoulder blades. They had squashed-in faces with square teeth and tiny eyes amidst folds of horny flesh. Their eyesight was poor and they snuffled constantly, smelling as much as they saw.

The giants of the North had sloped chests, and their lower torsos were about half again as wide as their upper torsos. Their arms hung lower than a man’s, while their legs were shorter than their arms, ending in splayed and horny feet that needed no shoes even in the coldest weather. The female giants looked similar to the men.

These giants also differed from the Land Giants in that they did not use much technology. They wielded huge clubs that were often no more than logs, though some did tie boulders to the end to make crude mauls. They rode mammoths as steeds. They spoke the Old Tongue of the First Men.
Songs of the wildlings tell that giants were at one time more plentiful, but they were hunted by men and driven from their stone halls. Now in this time it was said that there were only several hundred remaining. Giants do not have kings, but Mag the Mighty was considered their greatest warrior at this time.

She had read that the giants of the North once had stone hall but they had been ruined. She would rebuild them for the Giants as payment for past sins. It would not expunge those sins but it would help to begin to make a new better future. A future of peace and not warfare between the two sides of the Wall.

Dany had read all this from the reports that Jon Snow had sent south to bring the new Queen up to speed on events at the Wall and beyond.

It was this last part that she intended to remedy. She would bring the Maesters of the Citadel to study why the Giants, Direwolves and Mammoths were dying out. She was sure most of it was predation by man which Eddard was going to put a stop to and she would enforce this across Westeros. She hoped to make contact with the First People and make peace with them and help Eddard in restocking Westeros with Weirwood trees and create Godswoods to allow the First People to again
The Queen would learn what the giants of the north needed to survive and thrive. The same would be done with the Mammoths, Direwolves, Cave Bears, Shadow cats, and Sabre tooth cats. The Maesters would study the creatures and their environs and devise policies to promote their restoration.

She thought that the North above wall would be a perfect place to help restock the animals that had been depleted bellows the wall. She figured the animals adapted to the cold of the North would not thrive below the Wall if they were in conflict with man. But maybe in the Gifts they could survive and thrive if protected. The climate was basically the same as above the Wall. She planned on asking the Wildlings who decided to stay to become wardens of this preserve. Here man and the wildlife would live in harmony.

The Wildlings knew how to live as one with nature. They would be natural wardens. They would quickly learn the ways of the wild predatory and large herbivores of more southern climes. Maybe the Gifts could be used as their preserves to breed the animals threatened by man to increase their numbers to be released back into the wild. The Queen would work with Eddard, the Maesters and the Wildings to start forming a strategy.

She knew that many nobles, lords and rich businessmen and merchants and their families would pay good money to see wildlife they could never see in their own lands currently. She had plans of establishing a thriving tourist trade in Essos. She planned in studying the wildlife of Essos and see what could be done on that continent to preserve the wildlife and the traditions of all its people.

She would require the wildlings south of the Wall to pay taxes and pledge allegiance to the Warden of the North. Eddard had told her he had no need for them to bend the knee to him. He would only require that they rise in defense of the North from any invasion. The Queen was of the same mind. She would establish trade with the Wildlings and open cultural attaches.

The Queen knew that in time the Wildlings would be absorbed into the Houses of Westeros. She knew that over the generations of intermarriage the divisions would slowly disappear. Of course some of Westeros would take the Wilding way. She was not worried. The cultural interchange would invigorate both cultures. The land above the Wall would remain a bastion of Wilding culture.

She would work tirelessly once she found what the native giants needed to increase their numbers. She would task Maesters to fully master their language and study their culture. She would use her resources to rebuild their stone halls and gift it to them. She would rebuild their numbers and it would become a high crime to assault the giants. The direwolf, shadow and sabre cats and cave hyenas and bears would be protected.

Eddard hoped to reintroduce them into the Gifts. Robb fully planned to carry on his father’s plans. The ecotourism that this would bring would bring Golden Dragons and trade to the North. It would establish new industries to support the wildlife and the tourists that would be visiting. Once the wildlife had value to the people they could see and understand how the wildlife could bring prosperity to them and their children. The people would come to cherish and protect the wildlife.

Dany could not wait to build up the wildlife of Westeros as she planned. This in turn would allow her to improve the lives of her common subjects who lived in small farms and holdfasts in the less traveled and populated areas of Westeros. They had been neglected long enough.

She had done enough destroying to last a lifetime she deemed. Now she wanted to rebuild and make wealth for the common man. She mused on such things as the column marched ever north to the Wall.
The morning march was easy and the air had warmed slightly. They had a meal of way bread and beef jerky washed down with invigorating spring water.

On the afternoon march her mind tuned to what else awaited her at the Wall. The now revealed heritage of Jon Snow or was it Stark or maybe Targaryen. Dany shook her head. Arya had ridden ahead to chide Nymeria who was barking furiously at Oberyn. The man had come up with some wire construction that held this spear up on his head crossways. He did not have to use his hands to keep it up on his head. This freed the Red Viper to heap scorn down on the highly frustrated and pissed off Direwolf.

Nymeria was throwing a fit currently. Nymeria could jump up high enough to get the spear but she had to crouch down to launch herself up and this gave Oberyn time to duck his head to the right or left. This tilted the spear on Nymeria’s side up high to keep his spear out of the reach of the Direwolf’s snapping jaws. It was driving the poor wolf mad with frustration. She would make a handful of wild leaps up to get the spear but come up empty.

These failures would send the wolf into a fit of wild barking and slaver flinging everywhere. Arya was placating the mad wolf. The wolf slowly calmed down. Oberyn then tilted his head over and brought his spear haft down. The wolf went mad again with the temptation again nearly within reach. Nymeria simply had to try and get Oberyn’s spear in her greedy jaws. Oberyn tilted his head back up and back with the wolf missing again. Oberyn’s laugh of derision sent the wolf into yet another fit of wild anger and half crazed flips and twists in the air.

Arya gave up and came back with a big smile on her face. Dany felt her heart go pitter patter hard in her chest seeing that smile. She was so in love with Arya.

She kept delaying telling Arya the true linage of Jon Snow. Why did he have to be her nephew! Why!

She did not care. Eddard Stark did not care. Jon Snow did not care. Daenerys had inquired of Eddard, Arya and Sansa about Jon and his manners and demeanor. She had sent ravens to King’s Landing asking Tyrion, Varys and Olenna to see what their spies had to say. The reports all came back the same.

Jon Snow was like Robb Stark. He was a very good copy of his father. He had taken two wives. The ShadowBender witches of Asshai. Two redheads. This assured Dany. Starks tended to want to pair off with one mate. Jon had done that except with two wives. Well, Sansa was the exception to the rule and brother what an exception.

Yes, Daenerys was sure that Jon would only want to love his two wives. She had met the two witches. They were obviously lesbian lovers and totally in love with Jon Snow too. They would not even allow him to have the thought of marrying or lying with Daenerys. She shivered what they might do with their shadow powers. She had sensed their power when they showed the Lords of the South the truth of the Ice King and again when they helped save Catelyn Stark from death with her pregnancy.

How could you fight shadows that could morph and change shape and yet had the power of a raging bull in the rut. She had heard enough tales to know those shadows could take enough substance to rend and tear men literally apart. Their parts found all over a room. Or bodies hacked and pierced by shadow weapons. The Queen shivered. Yes. Jon was spoken for and he knew it. Anyways he was a Stark. He had bonded with the two women on a soul deep level.

Still, she knew how people thought. Many would want her to lie with Jon to have an heir of pure Valyrian descent as possible to be heir to the Iron Throne. She rejected that idea out of hand. She had her heir and her name was Kiserri. The history of the Targaryens was not good when there had been more than one possible heir to the throne. With only Kiserri that would be one less problem with succession.

Also, even if she was not barren she would greatly hesitate to lay with Jon to produce an heir. With the last of the heirs of House Targaryen it seemed that it was a fifty-fifty proposition on the insanity card. Her father had been mad. Rheagar had not. Viserys had been mad and she was not. The way she reasoned it, the next child was due to have the burden of insanity dealt them.

No, Daenerys Targaryen thought. It was time for the line of Targaryen to come to an end. She would never sleep with anyone other than Arya Stark. She had found her Queen and would never allow another to touch her, especially a man. She had enough of that a lifetime ago in Essos.

She could not understand why people were so worried about lineage anyways. She knew that heritage was important but how one was raised was more important in her thinking. Kiserri would be a great Queen because she and Arya would raise her to be strong, brave and compassionate.

Yes, she needed to tell Arya the full truth of Jon’s linage. She still had time though. She would tell Arya just before they reached the Wall.

Dany was in heavenly bliss with Arya as her lover and fellow warrior. She knew how intense and honorable Arya could be. She did not want any conflict with Arya as long as she could put it off. Dany had come to think of her time Arya since their coupling as a sweet honeymoon. They were so happy and compatible.

Dany knew she had nothing to fear really but she did not want any conflict with Arya for as long as possible. She had wasted too many precious months worrying and fretting when she should have taken Arya to her bed and made Arya her lover and future wife form the beginning.

Yes, she would tell Arya when they approached the Wall. Why put a fly in the ointment when everything was going so well. She looked over at Arya who was talking to her father who had ridden his horse to be beside his daughter so they could converse. She looked at the daughter and father. She had seen the other siblings of Arya and they tended to favor their mother. Not Arya. She was of the North through and through. Honor was breed into all the children of Eddard Stark but its most pure reflection was in his daughter Arya Stark.

She had read that Jon Snow looked like the North also. He had the same caste of the face as his father and same color hair and eyes. Jon was a man of honor. She would have no problem with one Jon Snow. He had his own mates and he truly loved them. Starks were honorable beyond compare.

Dany looked over at Arya and then up at her standard flapping in the breeze. The three headed dragon. It made sense then. Three siblings marrying each other. Two for love and one for duty. That dynamic in time had caused conflict and strife. No more Daenerys thought. In this generation the dragon would only have two heads. She would actively oppose all other voices. She figured she would have enough battles to fight with equal primogeniture and total equality for all gays and the right for homosexuals to marry. She would let the right to marry one’s sister and or brother for another queen.

Dany satisfied with her thoughts breathed the cold air deep into her lungs. She shivered. The cold did not affect the Queen. Her hot blood kept her warm. She was not immune to it like she was to fire but the heat of her blood allowed her ride with only a light tunic on where all others were riding with furs and multiple layers of woolen clothes.

Her three dragons flew overhead. Tomorrow they would fly north again to see that once more the Ice King was not moving. She shook her head. Her dragons were like their mother. They too relished the cold of the north. Their great heat warmed them easily. They were seeking out great snow banks to lie in and let the melting snow cool their heated scales. She supposed it was the equivalent of Northerners going south to “soak up the rays” in the south of Westeros.

She would worry about the blasted Ice King sitting on his frozen ass tomorrow. Today she would enjoy the clean Northern air and the feel of the sun on her skin. She saw her dragons now high in the air lazily flying the thermals. The sun glinted off their mighty scales putting out multicolored glints of radiant light.

“They are so beautiful Dany.”

The Queen turned to look at Arya. She was looking up at her dragons with that childlike wonder she had shown at Winterfell.

Yes. Daenerys Targaryen had chosen most wisely.

Ygritte

The wind seemed to always blow in from the North now. The wind while not a northeast gale from off the Shivering Sea was still biting. It was steady blow that always blew with the scent of evil on it. The air was thick with it. It bit at the skin like an angry dog. Ygritte looked down the Wall and looked at the crows and her former countrymen. They did not smell the evil that clung to the wind as it blew in from the top of the world. Of course they didn’t. They were not a ShadowBender witch.

The evil was close. She could feel it but her senses did not find the Ice King though she was sure he was near. She read the reports the Queen sent to Jon on her dragons’ reconnaissance flights over the Fist of the First Men. The enemy was still there and yet her instincts said he was upon them. She sent out her senses but picked up nothing. She would have felt the Ice King was near. She was sure of it. She was unsettled with the war her intellect and intuition said was nearly upon them.

It was strange to Ygritte to have her instinct and intellect at war with each other. Ygritte had been in the enemy’s camp. With Melisandre she had seen the Ice King and his minions up close. Maybe that was swaying her thoughts. She was afraid. She could admit it. His army of the dead was vast and since it was dead it could not be killed a normal death again. She took a deep breath and a grim smile settled on her features. They had a surprise for their foe. Dragon Glass. Lots and lots of Dragon Glass.

Ygritte wore a light cloak over her full length dress that she wore now. She no longer wore the leggings and blouse tops with vests and fur coats that she once did. Ygritte only felt the biting cold as a nuisance. She was immune largely to the cold that blew in from the North. It only nipped at her heels where the Crows and her former countrymen felt its full bite. The Wildlings who knew her when she was one of them whispered behind her back. “Witch … unnatural … evil … working of the darkness” she heard the words spoken in fear.

People always were afraid of what they did not understand and of people that had great strength and power within them. She and Melisandre were both powerful witches. She smiled out into the night. The Wildlings were very liberal as a people. They were proud of their libertarian views. All were allowed to find their own meaning to life as long as they did not harm others. And yet, still, when confronted by the unknown and seemingly unknowable the same old human fears and frailties reared their ugly head.
Sad was the human condition Ygritte mused to herself. Fear was a powerful motivator. Both for bad and for good. Still, her former people in many ways optimized the best in the human spirit. Like their acceptance in the right to choose a mate of your own choice. There was none of the battering and selling off of women as chattel as done below the wall. Ygritte felt her face scowl. Below the Wall women could not even truly conceive of charting their own destiny.

Hopefully, Daenerys Targaryen would begin to change that. She loved how the Wildlings cared not a wit for one’s choice in a mate.

Many choose same sex partners and no one cared. She had won Melisandre by the “right” of the “hunt”. She smiled broader. She had also captured with Melisandre by her side the Lord Commander of the Crows with another “hunt’. She had done very well for herself she thought smugly. She had both a beautiful wife and a handsome husband. The witch stood just a little straighter thinking such thoughts.

She had spent nineteen years of her life as a Wildling but to her those were distant memories now. Her home was not in foothills of the Frostfangs Mountains anymore. The images she saw in her sleep were of Asshai and the Morn Mountains. She loved the land of her birth with its dark skies and the dark fog rolling in off the mountains with magic pulsing in each droplet of water. The dark city and its dark streets.

She remembered the city of her birth. She remembered how Asshai was often called "the Shadow". A city that had always existed and always would. She had loved those shadows. It helped give rise to the witches who practiced the dark arts. She had been so lonely though. The people of Asshai were a tall and perfect race. Melisandre was living proof of that. Tigreti had not been that. Ygritte snorted at her old self. What was that saying, she searched her memory to call it up ‘the exception that proved the rule.’ She was short and her teeth not perfect and face not beautifully formed like others of her people.

It had set her apart from her people but it had also opened her heart to seeing that maybe power was in and of itself not a means that justified its use. Maybe in following R’hllor one should not be dogmatic. Melisandre had forgotten that in their long separation. She was learning those lessons again. Thinking of her wife fondly brought memories of their first encounter.

When she had taken Melony under her wing she had thought simply that she had taken in a disciple that would leave her as she sought her own truths as ShadowBender witches were want to do. Instead her beautiful student had taken her as her lover. Ygritte still shivered at that thought after all these centuries later. Why the beautiful and more accomplished witch had wanted her she never knew. Ygritte only knew she had and that was enough.

Then they had come for Melisandre and she had given her life to save her wife. She had gladly done it. The Wildling had lost her true self until she was awaken to her true self when Melisandre saved her from the crows. Of course Melisandre had meant to have Jon kill her. Melisandre had forgotten her. She could understand why. It had been over two thousand years since her death. The shock and grief of her death had caused Melisandre to bury those idyllic memories of their shared time together.

The people of Asshai did not believe in reincarnation. Nor did the Wildlings. For Melisandre the death of Tigreti had been the closing of a chapter of her life.

Ygritte looked out over the ancient forest thinking on her past still. Thank the gods Melisandre had chosen to love her. Her life had no longer been alone. She was changed and yet the same. She was both Ygritte and Tigreti. Now instead of a wife she had both a wife and husband. Again with a smug satisfaction the witch thought she had wanted both and taken both. As it was meant to be she preened to herself.

She was reincarnated Tigreti. She still went by Ygritte but she was Tigreti in her heart and soul. No. That was not quite true. She was still Ygritte deep in her bones. She was both now. The past and present at peace with each other.

She remembered looking in the fires in the cabin Melisandre had taken her too. Her memories came flooding back. Their shared love instantly took root in her heart and bloomed in her soul. She had her wife back! She had been given a second chance to love her tall dark brooding woman!

The stubborn witch had refused at first to acknowledge her own awakening memories. This of course pissed off the fiery redhead. She was no longer simply Tigreti. She was also Ygritte and she would not be denied. She may be a ShadowBender witch once more but she still was part Wildling deep down. She had most enjoyed her “hunt” and taking Melisandre as her lover.

Gods her woman still tasted so sweet when her cunt exploded in her mouth or how Melisandre’s asshole felt when it pinched her tongue so hard when she rammed her tongue in deep. Melony had been a slut in bed and it had taken a short while for Melisandre to remember her true self. Now the woman was again the slut Ygritte sweetly remembered.

Then of course Melisandre had still known nothing! She had determined to throw herself on Jon’s sword to become Nissa Nissa. Silly woman! Jon Snow had figured out a much better way. A pure way to become Azor Ahai. Ygritte felt very smug looking out over the tall sentient pines that were the first brothers of the Haunted Forest. As a Wilding she had captured the heart of Jon Snow. She was not about to relinquish that love now that she had Melisandre again in her heart and her bed. Jon Snow was slow but her sweet Melisandre had been even more daft.

She still chuckled remembering the look on Melisandre’s face. She had fallen to her knees with her bosom exposed to take Longclaw into her heart so it would become Lightbringer. Jon had already transformed it with the strength of will and raw desire. Melisandre had been so blind in her duty to sacrifice herself she had not seen the blade’s transformation. She had been so melodramatic her head thrown back crying out her need to sacrifice herself.

She had looked so cute looking confused when she opened her eyes and seeing she was alone. Her head swiveling around looking for them. She had been bleating about destiny and some such. She knew nothing! It had been even cuter watching her histrionics in trying to convince them to kill her so Jon could become what he had already become. They had taken her in their cabin. There they had fucked Melisandre bowlegged! She saw the light after that along with plenty of stars from coming so hard in her mouth and on Jon’s cock!

Ygritte wanted the war over with and the Ice King once more bound to the Earth. Azor Ahai had taken the carcass of the physically dead body of the Ice King to the far north. There he had buried his magical sword into the icy cold bog through the body of the Ice King. There he left the buried the Ice King in his icy grave. His body pinned in his icy grave with the force of Lightbringer. Someone had removed the sword long ago or the Ice King would still be trapped. The sword had disappeared from the historical record.

Jon’s new sword would do the same in this time. Better yet they would find a way to truly kill the foul fucker for good this time. They would be free then to chart a new path.

Ygritte planned to take her wife and husband to the Sandhills and make a life there away from man. Melisandre was a loner and Jon had had his fill of the Crows. He wanted away from men and their ability to do evil. His Stark nature would never fully forgive his brothers for his attempted murder. Ygritte had no connection any more with her Wildling brethren. She only wanted to be with her wife and husband and lead a quiet peaceful life.

Like Lightbringer they would pass from the historical record; at least for a while. They would make a home and become the wardens of the nature preserve that Jon’s father would setup after the war.

Ygritte would look forward to helping to restore the natural balance of the land.

She got into the basket attached to the crane and rode it down to the base of the Wall. Even with the Wall blocking the wind it still swayed in the breezes that wicked down the wall of ice. She walked past the crows milling around after the dinner time meal. The Wildlings were also milling about but around their own fires. Ygritte felt the tension between the two camps. The tension had lessoned since Jon’s return but it was still there. They tolerated each other.

She looked between the two camps. Millennium of mistrust was not going to go away overnight or in a generation. It would take long years of not shooting arrows in each other to fully dissipate the distrust between the two groups.

The Crows knew to be on their best behavior though. With their betrayal of Jon they knew he would not tolerate any actions that dared cross the line of disrespect towards the Wildlings and especially the giants. Won Won had taken several months to convince himself and then his people to again work with humans. Jon had made it very clear that any disrespect to the Giants or the Wildlings would be dealt with most harshly. His blazing sword tended to make Crows and Wildlings alike want to follow his decrees.

Her new Jon took no shit! Gods it made her and Melisandre weak in the knees and wet of pussy when Jon showed his dominating side! Of course he was still his normal nice complimentary feminine self in their quarters. He still groused at Melisandre that he wanted to do the household chores and Melisandre whining back that was her duty. Sometimes she had to order them onto the bed after she had stripped and laid back with her legs spread wide. “Satisfy your wife!” she would shout her command. That was one command they had no problem following.

Ygritte went to the entrance to the underground catacombs. Her hand traced the walls as she walked down the steps. She immediately felt the ancientness of the air and the history in the walls she walked down. She had felt the same history when she walked the halls of Winterfell. She could feel the events of thousands of years that had soaked into these walls. If she had the time to sit and listen she was sure she could decipher the whispers she heard.

She did not have the time as she walked down the corridors that led to their bed chambers. They had chosen a neglected set of tunnels to dwell in. These corridors and rooms were deep underneath the Wall. She loved the pressure she felt form all the Ice overhead. Even though torches were lit down the corridors at regular intervals the oppressive pressure above made the air thick and the dense atmosphere seem to absorb the light of the torches leaving the halls in half gloom.

Such light tended to make lesser men blanch and avoid these tunnels. They were left alone.

Jon was at first unsettled by this air but had grown used to it. He would always be a creature of the air and light. Ygritte and Melisandre loved this oppressive darkness because it reminded them of the home of their youth and their first love together. Asshai was a beautiful land but it was perpetually dark and dire. The inhabitants of Azor tended to bore into the mountains of Morn to get out of the dank air and strange magics that wafted down the mountains. The two ShadowBender witches loved the close in feeling of the catacombs of the Crows.

She planned to find someplace like this in the Sandhills to bore into. It would take great effort but she and Melisandre were both powerful witches. She had spied several locations that should prove good locations to build their new home. She planned on both boring into the side of a hill and to form rooms from the thick groove of trees she had spied at the end of blind gullies in the complex hills complexes located deep in the Sand Hills.

Ygritte finally reached the door to their apartment complex. She and Melisandre had put shadow locks on the door. They would not be surprised by unexpected visitors. None of them had forgotten the treachery of the Crows. Though the traitors had either been killed or sent into exile to the other forts lining the Wall it never hurt to be safe.

The lock was midnight black. It lined the seam of the door and glowed in a pulsing black that was only visible to her and Melisandre’s eyes when quiescent. Word had been let out that any who touched it would die. The magic of their shadow lock sensed a presence and pulsed in a rhythmic heartbeat waiting to strike or admit becoming barely visible to human eyes. The magic coiled to strike if not assuaged with the proper counter spells.

“Dh’òl Iain bainne chluich ì anns an taigh dh’òl i sùgh. Tha mi airson Gàidhlig ionnsachadh” Ygritte spoke the spell of admittance in the tongue of ancient Asshai. The language only the ShadowBenders knew and now one other. Their language was held sacred by their order. It was forbidden to teach it to any but their order. Ygritte didn’t give a rat’s ass what the old rules were.

The seam around the door glowed hot black and then settled down and disappeared. Ygritte gripped the door handle and entered the room. Outside the seam reappeared and glowed its subtle sullen black waiting to challenge the next person who would enter the room. The spell needed to hear both the words and feel the rightness of the speaker. The spell recognized its creators in the witches and had taught Jon the spell. Their essence permeated his essence now and the door recognized him as well. Even if his stress points on certain syllables was still off. His Asshai was improving daily since they only spoke the ancient language in their humble abode.

Jon’s willingness to learn their vowel rich language which most found very difficult to speak another feather in his cape. Jon had actually been anxious to learn their native tongue. “It makes me feel more connected to you and Melisandre, Ygritte. You learned my language and I should learn yours. She spoke in that language now.

“I like what I am seeing” Ygritte spoke smiling as she looked into her apartment complex. There was three fireplaces that were burning hot with piled up logs. Vents taking away the smoke. The warmth radiating out into the large communal living area. Two large braziers were filled with coke and glowed a sullen red putting out warmth.

Melisandre and Jon were both naked and working in the kitchen cooking a meal of fresh mutton, boiled potatoes and cabbage with a plate of hot biscuits setting on the stove near the back keeping warm. Jon was bent over looking at a cake he was baking in the oven with his butt jutted out and dimpling as his ass cheeks flexed while he moved around. Melisandre was pulling the potatoes out of the pot they had boiled in. Her large heavy tits swaying on her chest as she worked. The sight filled Ygritte with another kind of hunger.

Jon loved his hearty meals. Ygritte and Melisandre did not need to eat but a little. Still, they enjoyed the taste of food. Her husband and wife turned to look at her and smiled watching their diminutive wife stripe out of her clothes throwing them on the floor.

“Ygritte!” Jon said aggrieved. Jon left the oven rushing over to pick up Ygritte’s discarded clothes. “Do you know how long it takes me to press out the wrinkles!” he groused taking the dress and light tunic into their bedroom to hang up. Melisandre glared at her wife. “How many times do we have to tell you to pick up after yourself!” she chirped at her wife. Ygritte gave her wife a saucy smile and Melisandre smiled still huffing at her wife’s sloppy ways.
Ygritte smirked moving over to kiss her wife affectionately and grope her ass making her tall beautiful wife squeal in delight though she shooed Ygritte away telling her she needed to finish cooking their meal. Jon was hungry! Ygritte wanted to eat some substance too! even if she did not need to eat. Gods she loved her domesticated wife and husband. She loved being doted on!

Ygritte went and sat at the table where they ate their meals. She watched Jon come back in and he detoured to kiss her a sweet kiss. She tried to slip him the tongue but he backed off as he tisked.

“We need to finish dinner sweet wife … always so horny!” he snickered.

“Damn right I am … I expect some sweet gash and hard cock after dinner!”

Melisandre and Jon both blushed a little at her declaration of her basic needs. Ygritte wondered why they still blushed. She just wanted to make sure they understood she had her needs that had to be satisfied. You did not want a frustrated Ygritte in the bedroom. Actually, she was happy that they both blushed. They were so cute!

Soon dinner was on the table and they all started to eat. Melisandre fussed over the meal till Jon had pronounced it “superb” and gave Melisandre a scorching kiss and a nice grope on her full rounded breast making her breathless and her face and throat flushed with rising need. Melisandre preened when she was complimented.

Ygritte smiled at them. She needed them nice and horny for later.

They silently ate for a few minutes as Jon tucked into his delicious fare. He then looked at Ygritte “Did you feel him again Ygritte. I know you and Melisandre feel him close.”

“Yes he feels close but my and Melisandre’s other senses cannot feel him. Our shadow powers should tell us too that he is near. They are attuned to magic. It is strange and unsettling. I trust my intuition but my powers tell me he is not near. I am not sure what to believe.”

“I agree” Melisandre reached over and gripped her wife’s hand. She squeezed tight making Ygritte feel all soft inside. Melisandre was always making sure to empower her wife. “I know some trick is being played on us but I cannot pierce the deception either. It is like he is there and not there at the same time. A contradiction that can’t be. We can only wait for his move.”

Jon chimed in looking at both wives with his grey eyes looking at them intently. “I fully concur. Dany’s dragons fly over his camp every third or fourth day and report that the forces of the Ice King are still at the Fist of the First Men. It makes no sense. He would not move from his seat of power to only come half way to the fight. His dead are mere husks doing his command. They do not tire or consume supplies. His Ice Wrights are more magical than alive it seems and probably can survive indefinitely. Why move only move halfway?” Jon mused over the seeming strangeness of his foe’s actions.

“I wonder if he will try to tire and wear us out? Drive us to distraction by a long endless wait and make us attack him. Make us come to him in the Haunted Forest and fight our way to the Fist of the First Men. It makes no sense. He would not move from his seat of power to only come half way to the fight. His dead are mere husks doing his command. They do not tire or consume supplies. His Ice Wrights are more magical than alive it seems and probably can survive indefinitely. Why move only move halfway?” Jon mused over the seeming strangeness of his foe’s actions.

Jon’s back straightened. “I refuse to do that. He has whittled the Crows down by constantly preying on our patrols and adding their souls to his army. We have weapons now that can kill them but I will not take the losses it would take to fight him at his place of choosing.”
“The Wall is our greatest defense. We need to make use of it. It calls to him like a lodestone. He will come to us. We will remain vigilant. He will not catch us unawares.”

“We have seen the Horn of Winter Jon” Melisandre told her husband. “Our greatest strength may be for naught.”

“I doubt that it is the horn of legend Melisandre. It is a myth. You saw how small it is. I think he wastes himself and his time and effort in his belief on a horn that when he blows it will leave him enraged. Rage causes mistakes. I hope to be on the Wall staring down at him when it happens. I will laugh at him which will only enrage him further.”

“What if you are wrong?” Ygritte asked her husband.

“I am not. It is only a legend. No horn could do what that horn is supposed to do. You two are mighty ShadowBenders. Can you bring down a Wall that is solid ice and up to seven hundred feet tall and stretches there hundred miles?”

“You know we can’t Jon.”

“I rest my case.”

Melisandre caught Ygritte’s eye. Just because they could not did not meant there was not greater magic in the world.

“I feel we are ready for whatever our foe can throw at us. With the might of Westeros now here or soon to be here plus the forces of Essos we will defeat the Ice King. The forces the Queen and my father have assembled and brought north are well trained and disciplined. The march orderly and paced out. The army is refreshed and ready for war. I am very happy at how well those forces already at the Wall have integrated into our forces.”

“We now have weapons that we have proven kill the walking dead and the Ice Wrights. The dead should be easy. They have no brains to understand the fact that we can now kill them. We have plenty of dragon glass tipped weapons to bring them down. The ice wrights are fast and dangerous. We will take losses from them I know. I wish it was not so. We will ran death down on them. They will try for the tunnels. Even if they win through they will face an unrelenting barrage of obsidian tipped weapons. It will be a slaughter.”

Ygritte could understand Jon’s confidence. It made all the sense in the world. Still doubt gnawed at her bones.

Jon then went on to express again his vexation that the Ice King was sitting on his ass for no good reason. How can you conquer if you just twiddle your thumbs? Jon fumed to his wives.

That was the confounding question that vexed all. What was the Ice King up to? Jon, the Queen nor the Warden of the North were going to attack the Ice King. That was a given. Were they to fall into a long protracted stalemate? Ygritte doubted it. The Ice King had been aggressive in beating back the patrols of the Crows and driving the Wildlings out of the far North. With Westeros united it had the resources to wait him out.

The Ice King had shown aggressiveness up till he reached the Fist of the Men. True he seemed cautious but he still had unrelenting pursued his objectives. He had more planned than just sitting on his pretty throne accomplishing nothing.

The Jon touched on the other subject that was like a thorn in his paw.
“I don’t like the Queen coming up to the Wall and demanding an audience with me.”

“She is not demanding anything Jon” Melisandre told her husband reasonably stroking his back with her soft hand.

“I am the Commander of the Night’s Watch. The Wall is my responsibility” Jon spoke testily.

“She knows that Jon. She wishes to consult with you. She has not ordered you to meet with her. She knows the Night’s Watch is yours to command.”

“Bullshit! The Queen may crouch it as a request but it is an order. I will not be told how to run my command!

I am the Lord Commander of the Night’s Watch!” Jon pounded his fist on the table startling Melisandre.

“Oh Jon, control your balls dear husband. You know nothing!” Ygritte barked at her husband. His testosterone would show its ugly head from time to time. She didn’t mind it when they were in bed but not here and now. “The Queen wishes to consult with you. That is all my dear husband. She has proven wise and competent beyond all measure. Listen to her husband. Save all that testosterone for our pussies and assholes when we go to bed after this.” She looked at her husband pointedly and rolled her eyes toward their wife.

He glared back and then looked at Melisandre who looked mildly upset at this rancor at their table. Melisandre needed calm in their home. Jon and Ygritte could storm at each other and not think anything of it. It led to great makeup sex but Melisandre was a gentle soul. She would start to wring her hands her face showing her upset. She simply did not like conflict. She was strong willed when it came to accomplishing their goals and confronting the world outside their chambers but inside the door when it was just them she craved and needed peace.

Ygritte knew she was the one most likely to show a temper and get bent out of shape. She was thankful she had Jon to cool her hot temper. She returned the favor by helping Jon to cool his ire now. Jon saw that Melisandre was upset and immediately calmed where Ygritte knew she would have wanted to rage a little more. He put his arm around Melisandre’s waist and pulled her onto his lap and stroked her hair and kissed her on the lips.

“I love you Melisandre. I just … I don’t know. The Crows have been abandoned for so long that it is unsettling to finally have the Iron Throne’s notice. I welcome the aid and succor I just need to get used to having the Queen also want a say in the defense of the Wall.”

“I will listen to her Melisandre. She has proven herself conquering across Essos and then taking Westeros without war.”

Ygritte smiled seeing her wife wiggle into Jon. She was such a softy. Hell she was with Melisandre too. She was just so sweet.

The discussed a few more minutes about the Wall and its preparations for the coming war.

“I for one will be glad to get this war behind us” Ygritte told her spouses. “I am getting excited for our new life in the Sand Hills. Lots of open space and no people. It will be heavenly” Ygritte told her spouses.

Jon agreed “I too long to leave this all behind. I will would be done with my duty. I will try and establish a new way of duty for the Crows but they will decide if they follow or not. I will resign my commission soon after the war.”
“Do you think your honor bound father will countenance your forsaking your vows?”

“He will have not have a choice. I will not serve with men who tried to kill me for showing simple human decency. They lost any claim to my honor and loyalty with their attempt to kill me. My father will support me. He has no choice. He has already accepted you two as my wife.”

Jon chuckled. “My father is having to really bend in the wind with his children. His two eldest daughters are gay, Bran has gone off to the Tree of Life and I have forsaken my vows of chastity. My father is a great man though. He wants what is best for his children. You and Melisandre are what is best for me.”

Ygritte felt her heart flutter in her chest. Their Jon could be so sweet.

Melisandre looked at Jon “I too long to leave this place. I detest being with men who would dare harm you Jon Snow! In the Sand Hills we can give service to the land itself and help succor life. It is a noble endeavor. I look forward to it.”

“So do I!” Ygritte chimed in. “I want to find some hill in a thick wicket of trees and brambles before it and burrow into the hill and make a home like in Asshai and still have the feel of life and nature at the front door. We will make a winding magical path through the undergrowth to defend our portal.”

Jon smiled. “I like that. Maybe I can build some platforms up in the boughs and we can stay up there when the weather is nice. To feel the breeze blowing over us and hear the birds as they awake in the morning.”

Melisandre kissed Jon on his neck cooing. “I will like that. You fucking us hard underneath the full moon. Screaming as your cock shots off hot and deep in our tight cunts and assholes.” Her body shivered. Her eyes going distant as she saw it all in her mind’s eye. “Going down on Ygritte again and again as you rest and drinking down her sweet creamy cum … feeling her tongue deep in my pussy and up my hot tight asshole … fisting her cunt … her asshole …” Melisandre’s eyes were blown with lust. Her nipples erect and her pussy was wet filling the air with sweet pungent musk.

Ygritte was squirming listening to Melisandre waxing poetic about them fucking. Her arousal stoking Ygritte’s lust.

Jon patted Melisandre. “Yes Melisandre … we will make love deep into the night and during the day. We will fuck whenever wherever we feel like it!” Jon spoke with force. Both of his wives smiled at his declaration. “We will take on the duties of park attendants to the nature preserve. That is a service I can give myself totally too. Nature will never betray us.” He looked at them evilly. “That should leave me plenty of time to fuck you two bowlegged” he spoke in a humorous tone waggling his eyebrows.

Jon switched topics excited by what his wives had told him. “I can’t wait to see these Giants, Haruchai and these Ranyhyn that are tended by these Ramen. You say that these Giants are as tall or taller than the Giants of the North and are totally human like in appearance and actions.”

Melisandre and Ygritte again told Jon of these strange people from down on the bottom half of the world. It seemed so mystical having people come from across the world to help them in their hour of need.

Ygritte enjoyed seeing the wonder and childlike happiness in Jon hearing them talk about these travelers from the south of the world.

Jon wanted to see the Haruchai and how they fought with only their fist and feet. Could they even survive a moment against knights if they were in full armor? The two witches had seen the truth of such a confrontation. They would let Jon see for himself. Jon now spoke of the Ramen. The ramen and their ability to use rope as their weapon. To see a Giant actually use a sword as a deadly weapon with great skill. The giants that Jon knew could only use a club crudely and simply smash things in a crude wild way that was only the application of sheer power.

Jon was especially fascinated with these people’s ability to supposedly see evil in a person. They had devised a test when they arrived at the Wall. It would be interesting to see if such a thing was possible.

Ygritte and Melisandre told Jon again how these people from the Land seemed incapable of lying or being false with anyone. They all seemed to be focused only on doing good. They had seen no greed or avarice in any of the denizens from the Southern half of the world.

They all agreed that seemed almost impossible to believe. Jon couldn’t wait to see them.

They had long finished their meal and Melisandre and Jon got up to clean off the table and wash the dishes. Melisandre of course was telling Jon to go and sit before the fire with Ygritte. She was relaxing putting her feet out to enjoy the warmth of the fire on her toes. She was the queen of this humble abode and knew it. She loved to be pampered and have others do the mundane chores!

She did not clean dishes she thought smugly. She was most fortunate to have two spouses who loved doing the mundane chores of keeping house.

She heard Jon speak up as he washed dishes and Melisandre dried them and put them in the cabinet.

“I think we will ride out and meet them before they get to the Wall. I am not grousing but I want to hear what the Queen’s thoughts are before we get to the Wall. I want us on the same page when we go before my command and the Wildlings.”

Ygritte heard the sounds of dishes and silverware clanking as they were being washed and put away.

“With the problems of the past between my Command and the Wildlings I want to present a unified front when we have the meeting with the Queen. I also would like you to talk to the Queen Ygritte. To explain to her and make sure she understands the Wildling way. That your people will not bow to any King or Queen.”

“I will Jon though I don’t think that will be a problem with her.”

“I don’t think she will be an ass about it Ygritte but she is a Queen and will expect obeisance of some sort. She almost has to demand it. She has to worry about it. To be great you have to demand loyalty from ones subjects. You cannot show weakness. You can make sure that she and Mance Ryder come to an understanding that will be agreeable to both sides. I want to have peace with Westeros and the Wildlings when I resign. I want that to be a lasting legacy of my time as Lord Commander. Peace between our people.

Ygritte loved Jon for his compassionate ways. He was so gentle and giving. He wanted what was best for his fellow man. If the rest of the world was like Jon Snow it would be a much better world.

“I will make sure that Mance Ryder is not being stupid dear husband. Daenerys Targaryen is a woman who is just and fair. She will seek a path that is aggregable to both sides. I know it.”

Ygritte had half turned to look back over the sofa talking to her husband.

“I can’t wait to see my sister. Arya. It has been so long. I miss her. I loved Robb for he always accepted me no matter how his mother acted but it was Arya that truly loved me as a brother. She never once thought of me as a bastard. I wish I could say it was the same with Sansa.”

“I think you will find Sansa a changed woman Jon. When you left for the Wall she was but a child.
Margaery has brought out her inner wolf. She has learned the errors of her ways. She sees she should have done better I am told. She will accept you with open arms. She has become a strong confident woman who follows her own path now and not the path determined by others.”

Jon smiled at that. “I hope so. But still, it is Arya I long to see. I always felt close to her and she loved me pure. It will nice to see her again. I am happy that she won the Queen’s love.”

He paused a moment and smiled great big. “I can’t wait for her to see my eyes and hair. I bet it will blow her mind seeing me looking like the Targaryen’s she was always fantasying about. It is cute and amazing she actually succeeded in capturing and bedding the last of the line. She must be so full of herself.”

Jon laughed in a sweet laugh. “Still hearing of my change and seeing will be two different things. It will blow her mind to see me looking like Rhaegar Targaryen my father.”

Ygritte’s spouses were finishing their chores in the kitchen area. Ygritte turned back to look at the fire. The warmth felt good. She may be immune to the cold but feeling the heat of the fire still made her feel so good and relaxed. A fire always felt good. She tilted her head back on the sofa her body spread out before the fire soaking up its warmth.

She let her eyes close and float in her happiness. Life was good for her here in their sanctuary away from man. She felt the sofa settle beside her. Ygritte’s smile broadened on her relaxed face. Let the good times begin! She thought to herself.

She felt Jon’s hand cupped on the side of her head. His fingers threading in her long fiery red locks.
He fisted her hair and using his male strength he pulled her body over and down. Her torso sliding down along the sofa back to settle first into Jon’s side and then she was pushed down his hard naked body. She moaned feeling his bulbous cockhead jamming her cheek demanding that it be serviced.
His thick long dick rock hard and so warm against her face. Ygritte moaned. She was dominate till it came time to fuck Jon. She loved to feel his male strength when he felt like being dominate and fucking her with that male strength.

She opened her eyes into a slit and looked up at Jon with hot lust. His dick was jerking above his stomach like an adder. His bulbous cock crown so pink with a dollop of precum leaking out his pisshole. His foreskin up over half his bulbous dickhead. Her one cheek on Jon’s hard stomach she moved her head over and down. Her lips parted and her mouth opened wide to slide Jon’s beautiful cock into her mouth. Her lips again tracing the thick veins roped along his towering shaft. She started to bob sensually up and down his shaft enjoying the heat of his manhood in her mouth.

She tasted a drip of pre-cum in his piss hole and savored it. She loved the taste of Jon’s sweat, cum and his pure maleness. She started slow swirling his head on his dickhead sucking hard her cheeks dimpling. Then she started a slow sensual bob as she rode his prick into the back of her throat sucking all the time. Her eyelids had fluttered shut sucking on her sweet candy stick. She started to bob harder taking his cock into the back of her throat with force while her glued lips had her sucking hard.

She felt Melisandre get between her legs and push them out. She felt her wife’s solid body moving in to settle before her drooling gash. Then her wife’s mouth was on her pussy licking her labia lips open and tongues her groove sensually up and down. “Ummggppfff! Mmppfff! Mmmppfff!
Mmunnggff!” Ygritte moaned feeling Melisandre working her face deep into her clamshell and lapping sweetly up and down her slit and over her clit. Jon’s hands were on her head now helping her ride up and down his cock while he moaned in pleasure.

Ygritte chuffed on the cock she was giving hot sucking head to feeling her wife suck her clit deep into her mouth. Melisandre began to rhythmically suck on her shiny throbbing nubbin. She felt Melisandre bobbing her head stretching out Ygritte’s cunt meat in her mouth and her tongue lashing her clit hard with fervid swipes of her tongue. All the while Melisandre chuffed and moaned dining on her wife’s sloppy wet gash.

Ygritte sucked even harder on Jon’s cock feeling her pussy being expertly being eaten out. Ygritte felt in balance in both giving and receiving such sweet pleasure.

Life was indeed good.
AN #1: If you are reading this story you know i have put a lot sex in the story. This chapter has hardcore BDSM and role playing.
Her uncle was more than happy to let women be who they wanted to be. He was bisexual as was Ellaria. They both sought bed partners to seek the most pleasure possible. Arianne was bisexual as well though her tastes had definitely turned towards the female form exclusively of late. She smiled. Having three insatiable sluts as wives tended to make one a dedicated lesbian slut. So much pussy, breasts and assholes to partake of and devour.

Just thinking these thoughts had her dark brown nipples hardening with arousal. Her teats jangling with pulses of want. Those pulses arching to her hardening clit that rested above her shaved bald juicing slit and fuck hole. With those thoughts coursing through her body Arianne shivered remembering great past fucks that had her body jackknifing violently as her cunt and or asshole exploded in shocking bliss. Her breathing accelerated slightly becoming breathy. Her pupils slightly dilated with lust. Arianne reveled in her memories of past great fucks.

The heir of Dorne had an almost eidetic memory when it came to sex. She loved reliving those fucks in her mind. Her body responding to the mental images as she relived the sounds, sights, smells and the way her body was taken and used and she in turn used her bed partners to achieve heaven on Earth. She loved using her memories to fill her masturbation marathons with mental images to take her pleasure higher. She would never stop masturbating! She loved plucking her own body to achieve awesome orgasms!

She had easily seduced many men and women to her bed. She used her wiles and charms to bend them to her will. The beautiful woman had found it all rather easy in fact. People almost always wanted to be seduced by her charms. Men of course were easy. Just flash them your tits and pussy and they were slavering horndogs. Women she had to sometimes work to bring them to her bed. It made those conquests all the sweeter. She did not mind the fact that she was controlling them and using them to achieve her goals and aims. True, most of the time she just loved to fuck. A woman should never say no to an orgasm was Arianne’s strong personal belief.

What woman should not seek to have as many orgasms as she craved. Arianne was highly sexed with her wives but she still masturbated at least twice a day. She loved plucking her body with her own hedonistic fingers. No one knew their own body as well as that person. Arianne knew where all her sweet spots were. Gods she loved plucking her body to womb shattering orgasms that had her body flipping wildly around on her bed as she shrieked her ecstasy as her fingers and toys pleased her exploding pussy and or asshole.

Morsh Allyrion had told her she had a body “made to be fucked” and he had been right. She had loved giving her body to the man who was old enough to be her father. Gods he had fucked her so good. When his wife had joined in and she buried her face in her cunt as her husband fucked her in the ass she thought she had found heaven. She had been only just turned twelve and relished giving her cherries to the couple.

She was thankful to have such wonderful teachers of the wonders of sex. She was shown that both sexes could give her great pleasure. She learned she loved both dick and pussy. She soon figured she liked pussy better but craved both. Delylah Allyrion had been an exquisite lover that had permanently addicted Arianne from age twelve to pussy. And lots of it! Arianne smirked to herself.

She had matured earlier than her peers. Her breasts first beginning to bud at age eight. She had her first period just before her eleventh birthday. She had discovered masturbating in earnest three years before her flowering. She had had to work for those first orgasms. In fact she could not remember not masturbating. Playing with her ‘kitty’ felt wonderful. She had not discovered orgasms at first but once she had she never looked back.

Arianne often wondered if her masturbating at such a young age had spurred her body’s maturity at such a young age. She had asked her Maester soon after her deflowering. He did not think so. He thought that a woman’s body developed at the pace natural for each woman. Arianne had simply flowered early. She had then easily seduced the supposed celibate Maester. Or had he seduced her? They had both wanted it!

The man could bone like an incubus Arianne remembered. She loved going to his tower or him sneaking into her chambers to fuck her gloriously for long hours. He wore her asshole out! She still fucked him at times though not since her marriage to her sweet pride mates. He had matured into a fine elder man. His dick ever ready to fuck all the young lasses who loved bedding the forbidden fruit.

By the time she was fourteen she was an accomplished lover of both sexes. She was not ashamed of her desires and already a skilled lover of both male and female. She loved the differences between the sexes. One soft, one hard. One dominate (as a rule) the other submissive. She would play in any combination that was offered to her. To fuck both sexes was fabulous to the young woman. It was in many ways the best of both worlds.

She had reveled in sex and learning how to use her power to control women and especially men. She knew she would one day be the leader of Dorne and made sure she would know how to use her intellect, wiles and her body to rule the land of Dorne. She found that using her body to enrapture her conquests made them so much more pliable to her will. Why have to fight a person if you could bring them into your orbit merely by fucking them blind and making them slavish to your wants and desires.

It made ruling so much easier if you used sex as a weapon. Arianne paused here. A weapon was not the right word she thought. Sex was a . . . tool to be used. You could coax and subtly lead your opponent to your view if you went down on their cock or pussy. And then there was the simple fact she loved to fuck and to experience womb rending orgasms. She loved to fuck! She was making a passion into a tool to further her future rule.

Arianne would never tire of being fucked good and hard. She loved fucking throughout the night feeling her womb rupture and her pussy scalding her with fucking bliss. She loved having her pussy fucked hard and feeling it fisting a hard dick or delicious thick ever hard strap-on cock. She loved feeling her cunt spasm and milk a phallic shaft of fist ramming deep into her belly and bashing her cervix with repeated savage love taps.

She loved vaginal orgasms of course but the heir to Dorne truly adored and worshiped anal orgasms. There was just an intensity and shocking power to anal ‘gasms. She loved that feeling of being filled up with dick up her ass. The initial pain of penetration that gave way to fucking ecstasy. Her belly felt like it was stuffed to overflowing when a hard thick long shaft was rammed balls deep into her colon. Then the sweet anal ’gasms. Her sphincter rings spasming wildly in orgasm. The rending convulsions made her asshole scream in ecstasy. When her shithole exploded in orgasm it simply scalded her with fuck bliss so intense she sometimes actually passed out in shocking pleasure the spasms were so strong.

Often her asshole tearing itself inside out as it ripped apart triggered an epic womb shattering vaginal orgasm. The dual orgasms feeding off each other. Her body bucking wildly. Her pelvis lurching forward and back as her womb and asshole simply ruptured so hard scalding Arianne with searing fucking bliss. One orgasm triggering the next often sending her into multiple orgasms that rolled on and on pummeling her with fuck bliss. Arianne craved such pleasure intensely.

Arianne smiled. She called it “having both doors kicked in”. Getting hit from the rear and front was awesome!
She had asked her Maester why anal ‘gasms were so hard and intense. He had read of a Maester doing research on cadavers. He had been interested in the white web of nerve ganglia that ran through the human body. They were the pathways to pain and pleasure he had deduced. The Maester had observed that there was many more nerve ending in the anus region of the human body than were present in the sexual organs of man or woman.

This Maester had theorized that with so many more nerve endings in the anus that if one could somehow turn them from pain to pleasure then the orgasms naturally would be much more intense. Men found anal sex pleasurable but the Maester research showed that he rubbing of the prostrate gland by the penis in anal intercourse helped in producing the pleasurable sensations of male intercourse. Why women craved anal penetration he could not theorize.

He had written “it must me be a mental thing”. Arianne had to agree. Focus on pleasure and wanting to get fucked up the ass and the pleasure would naturally follow.

She loved fucking men but the brass ring could only be found with another woman. She laughed at men who said you could only find sexual happiness with their cock. She would hold up her strap-on and rotate her hips in a sweet fuck motion. “It’s all in the hips” she would tell them. She had seduced many so called straight women when they refused to believe she could fuck them better than their husbands or lovers.

Only a few men could match her skills. She had just received a parchment from one of those few minutes ago. It was on her dresser. She had read it through. She was waiting for Myrcella to come back from her duties as her wife greeting dignitaries from the Marchlands. Arianne wanted Myrcella speaking for her in her absences. She wanted all to see her sweet wife being able to perform all her duties.

This would get the people of Dorne used to thinking of Myrcella as one of their Queens. It would be them together speaking for Dorne. She wanted all to know that her wives were her equal. She would be the Warden of the South. She would have three queens that would be right at her side advising and supporting her. Myrcella would be her Game of Thrones Queen while Loreza and Dorea would be her fierce Sand Snakes that would be her hammer.

Everything had changed when Myrcella came into her life. She had come to Arianne so innocent and naïve. She was good natured, sweet, and pure. Arianne had, for some reason she still could not fully fathom, fallen under the spell of the teen. The spell caste upon their first meeting.

Arianne had planned on quickly seducing the girl and making Myrcella her thrall. She had planned to hook the teen on her womanly charms and having her jumping to her whispered commands. She would use Myrcella to work her way closer to the Lannisters. The crime of Elia her Aunt’s death would be avenged. She would use Myrcella to drive a wedge in House Lannister and arrange the death of Joffrey.

Also, she was tired of men ruling the world. Why not have equal primogeniture in all of Westeros and not just Dorne. Myrcella would take the Iron Throne and she would then marry Myrcella and not some stupid odious man. Together they would rule Westeros as Queen and Queen. That had been her plan.

Then word had been sent to her by Olenna that Joffrey would be taken care of. She realized other potent forces were at play. That had changed her calculus. She had already started to fall for the innocent teen. She should have seduced the teen and made her love slut upon her arrival in Dorne. She was to be educated the then Queen Cersei had demanded. Arianne had smirked reading that scroll. Oh she would educate the sweet innocent teen. Instead, she kept delaying and finding reasons to delay the seduction. For some reason she could not bring herself to seduce the innocent teen simply for sex. She had no desire to try and bend this sweet lass to her will.

Finally, she had to accept she had fallen madly in love with the innocent teen. The teen had done nothing to ensnare the Martell’s heart except be her pure sweet self. She had taught the teen and been amazed. The girl immediately grasped all she was taught and had staggering insights that Arianne sometimes had not her herself conceived of. This blossoming woman was not a thrall or dupe. The young woman was her equal in the Game of Throne. She was adept and cunning but she was not corrupted like Arianne now knew she was. Myrcella desired to be the best for any people she might come to hold sway over. Arianne only thought of how to manipulate them.

Arianne became ashamed of herself. She had seriously considered sending Myrcella away or have another finish her education. The mere thought of this nearly made her heart freeze and wither in her chest. She could not be separated from her student. She would die without her. She wanted the girl desperately now. Not as a dupe but as woman she wanted to love with all her heart. She longed to give herself completely to the teenager. For the first time in her life Arianne Martell was well and truly in love.

Then the night had come when their eyes locked and their passions exploded. Their mutual hidden love exploding to the forefront of passion and need for each other. She had taken Myrcella and made her a woman and fallen the last step into total love. She was hopeless before Myrcella and now knew how those she had put in thrall felt.

Thank the gods that Myrcella had not been cruel to her but loved her with a pure heart. Instead of manipulating and controlling Arianne as she could have easily done Myrcella loved her totally and sought a true partnership between them. If possible Arianne fell even deeper in love with the beguiling teenager.

Still Myrcella was not through showing Arianne the true meaning of love. She had brought her two youngest nieces to her. She had always admired the children of Oberyn for their beauty and fierceness but had shied away from the youngest of the Red Viper. They had too much passion and fiery spirit. She was afraid she would be burned by the fire that burned in their souls. The young women were not women who could be cowed or duped.

Myrcella had easily captured their hearts as well and brought them to Arianne. She had taken the gifts of love that had freely been offered to her. Myrcella had seemingly without effort or forethought forged the Pride of Dorne between the four of them. Gods, the sex was divine. So much sweet pussy to be devoured every night. She was fucked nearly senseless every night by the three teenagers. She considered herself bisexual but much preferred the touch of a woman. A woman knew how a woman wanted to be touched and how to make her body quiver with raw wanton need with but a touch. Then to go down on a woman or trib fuck her to heaven.

She quickly came to long only for the touch of her new wives. She longed to fuck women only now. They seemed to complete each other. Their raging libidos put out by their mate’s own intense deep abiding sexual hunger for the female flesh.

The Sand Snakes and now Myrcella knew how to use a strap-on. Maybe a strap-on cock could not thrill her with bolts of hot cum but that was a trifle. Their cocks never grew soft! Many a night her three wives spent hours wearing her fuck holes out. Their thick long shafts slammed so hard and deep up her clutching cunt and pinching shithole. A dick fucking her throat as her fuck holes were plundered. Arianne shivered with remembrances of being fucked airtight. Gods she loved to be TP fucked!

Arianne had forgotten the desire to fuck males. That was until she had received this scroll and read its offer. Old memories of past great fucks with men came flooding back. Her body remembered their strength and the skills of a true cocksman.

She picked up the scroll and read it again. She and Myrcella had wanted to give the Queen a gift so precious that they would have to be considered her most trusted of advisors and acolytes. That had been the plan when Queen first landed on the shores of Dorne.

Myrcella and herself had wanted to leave Dorne and seek to further her rise in King’s Landing. Two things had changed her thoughts on that. First, the rise of Eddard Stark in his machinations and his mastery of the Game of Thrones had been a shocking revelation. That had led the Queen to bring Olenna into her inner sphere. The woman was crafty and sage. She was a master of the Game of Thrones herself. The Queen had taken Arya Stark as her consort and future Queen. A further tie to the family of Stark.

Then it was discovered that Sansa Stark had taken Margaery Tyrell as her fiancé. A further tie to the House of Stark. They would be mighty in the court of the Queen. The Pride of Dorne would be surrounded by powerful women. These women allied with Eddard Stark. All these powerful women would reduce greatly the opportunity to rise above the cream of the others. That task would prove very difficult if not impossible.

That had tempered Myrcella and hers desire to go to King’s Landing.

Arianne’s desire for revenge had long ago been tempered. Her father and uncle kept planning, planning and planning on bringing vengeance down on House Lannister. Her father being ever cautious kept delaying and changing the plans. Her father always finding new angles to analyze. It reminded Arianne of the old adage “Paralysis by analysis”. Her father never seemed to be to pull the trigger on his crossbow.

He had first planned on marrying her to Viserys but the fool had gotten himself killed with gold poured on his fucking idiot head. Her younger brother Quentyn somehow succeeded in getting himself roasted by the Queen’s dragons. To say her father’s efforts did not go according to plan was a vast understatement.

Those plans were useless anyways. When Daenerys Targaryen had been married off to Khal Drogo all including herself had written the girl off. She was a soft weak girl according to all reports. Nothing more than breeding stock. That is how the frail Valyrian went into the Dothraki Sea.

That was not what came out. She came out transformed. She had come out a great warrior. Arianne had been shocked at the first reports on this Targaryen warrior queen. She did not fight as Arianne, Olenna Tyrell or how Cersei Lannister tried to rule using their bodies to bend weak men to their will. No. Daenerys Targaryen did not need any man to do her will. She came out of the Red Wastes a force of nature that demolished all before her. She was a warrior supreme now who fought her own battles. She was now armed with a fearsome sword that glowed blue death to all her enemies.

She was Nymeria reborn. No. She was not. She was much greater than Nymeria had ever been. Oberyn and her father had watched in awe as this slip of a girl shattered Khalasars and brought Slave city states low that had existed for thousands of years. She smashed the slave holders and then had the audacity to free ALL the slaves and was rebuilding what she had destroyed.

Her many conquests and then governing them should have slowed her march west to a crawl and then stopped it. But that did not slow her down. The generals of Dorne were stunned at the speed of her conquests and bringing the wild Dothraki to heel so quickly and seemingly easily. Master Myrion Dwellen and the lead instructors at Battleborne academy along with her uncle had chuckled when she confronted Volantis.
Oberyn had joked “Well there goes her lightening quick campaign. She is overextending herself.” Word had come in that the united Dothraki hordes were sweeping across upper Essos smashing all the inland slave cities and were impossibly quickly at the gates of Qohor. Reports had the Queen and Barristan and a fat bald eunuch name Big Belwas flying off several times from the siege of Volantis. It seemed that a Khalasar had risen up in revolt to the new Khaleesi’s rule of the Dothraki. Barritan and this Belwas dispatched the Blood Riders and Daenerys herself killed the Dothraki Khal or wannabe with her own sword. End of rebellion.

She then flew back to Volantis to continue the siege.

“It will take her ten years to defeat that City and her forces will be ground into dust” Oberyn confidently told the war council of Dorne. Her uncle had been smug in his predictions.

In two months Volantis’s defenses had been annihilated and proud Volantis whimpered for peace. Never before or since had Arianne seen Oberyn speechless and dumbfounded when that news reached Dorne.

That was when Arianne had seen the change. Doran had immediately sent emissaries to the Queen. Soon Oberyn and Tyrion were on their way to their first meetings with the Queen who was obviously coming back to Westeros to reclaim what was from her eyes rightfully hers.

The Queen continued her lightning fast conquest of the rest of Essos and had soon crossed the Narrow Sea.

Arianne had hoped to put Myrcella on the throne after Olenna and Margaery killed that little shit Joffrey. They had it all mapped out. They had been delaying the wedding using parasitic worms. How poetic. A worm to bring a worm down low.

The House of Martell had been ecstatic. The Targaryen was coming for her throne. Who sat on the throne but the hated Baratheon and his loathsome wife. The Queen would come and dispatch the fat King and his vile Queen and that would be that. Much of the longed for revenge done for them.

There was only problem; it had not turned out that way. The Queen had totally upset all their plans by pardoning all the members of family Baratheon. Her father and uncle had no choice but to accept her edicts. The Queen had totally changed all the rules. It was useless to fight her. This Targaryen would conquer Dorne where Aegon could not. Her lightning fast of conquest Essos had proven that. She would succeed if they caused her problems.

Dorne had no desire to fight this new Queen. Doran and Oberyn accepted the reality of the situation. They would build on the close relationship that House Martell and Targaryen had formed over the centuries. They would elevate their House through alliance and allegiance.

That had been the first reason for not wanting to leave Dorne. The second reason was much more personal and touching to her heart. Her father’s health was failing. Doran Martell’s body was breaking down. His crippling gout and arthritis had worn his body down. His heart had started to fail. His strength fading and breathing beginning to become difficult as water built up in his body.

Myrcella was spending much of her free time caring for Arianne’s father. Her father was thankful for Arianne’s sweet wife. She spent many hours of with her father too. Often with Myrcella and her sweet Sand Snakes Dorea and Loreza. They were attentive and kind to her father and their uncle. She was thankful that she had her wives to ease the father’s distress.

Another woman came to dote on Arianne’s father. The woman she had hated along with all of House Martell visited Doran her father almost every third or fourth day along with her wife! Her wife of Obara Sand! As Myrcella had Arianne and Dorea and Loreza Sand eating out of the palm of her hand so had Cersei caused Obara Sand to fall in love with her.

Arianne had been sure the vile, evil, loathsome, harpy Cersei was merely playing a murmur’s plot. Arianne was sure the woman would revert to form. Except it never happened. She continued to be this new beguiling woman she had become. It was no ruse. Cersei the Warrior had become a totally different woman than the harpy that had existed in King’s Landing.

Cersei was a completely changed woman. It was obvious when you looked at Cersei. She was nearly moonstruck over Obara. She worshiped the ground her eldest niece walked on. She cooked and cleaned their home for god’s sake. No high born noble woman did that! Not even a high born bastard would clean house! Yet Cersei did it willingly and happily. She had been in their home and seeing Cersei smiling and happily chirping as she cleaned house. If it wasn’t so sweet it would be cloying. To see a high born woman on her knees scrubbing the kitchen floor was … well … shocking.

Who the hell wouldn’t love that kind of devotion! Cersei had won over Obara. Ellaria longed to fuck her. Her uncle was enamored of the woman. She wanted to continue hating the woman but she was so gentle and attentive to her father it made her cry. Cersei had sealed the deal with Arianne when Cersei forsook her name. She had come before Doran saying she needed to make amends. All wondered what she could be speaking of.

“I ask that I take the name Sand, Doran. My family has committed so many sins. I have. Can you forgive me? I will go into exile if you deem it necessary.” Obara had nearly fainted and her Uncle blanched. Her father had wept. He broke down and forgave Cersei completely. He looked forward to each of her visits and the way she tenderly bathed him and listened to all his stories of the Water Gardens with rapt attention. Nothing was fake. Arianne knew all about false guile and lying platitudes. Cersei was none of that. She had thought about it. She forgave the woman too. How could she do any less than all the rest of Dorne?

Her own wives were becoming besotted with this new Lioness of Dorne. She had kicked everyone’s ass. Some multiple times. She was worshipped at the academy. Physical prowess was a powerful aphrodisiac to the martial people of Dorne. Master Myrion Dwellen had ceased challenging her with the battle staff. She easily whipped his staff out of his hands now. She had become something fierce and near magical now. All could see that the woman was becoming supernatural. Everyone but Cersei it seemed. She just kicked ass when necessary with increasing ease. In fact with total ease now. She let the fights go on longer than necessary to not totally humiliate the combatant.

The only exception was when anyone dared insult Obara. Then it was nighty night time for the stupid man. Cersei wasting no time punching or kicking them unconscious. Women were to smart to insult Cersei and especially Obara. No. They all wanted in Cersei’s short cloth. They were whining to Obara when she and Cersei would start fucking them. The women and teenage sluts were getting a little nasty about it in their frustration.

Arianne had watched her wives fall for Cersei too. Myrcella eyed her own mother hungrily. She was openly lusting to bed her. It was clear with the hungry gaze Myrcella followed Cersei’s movements when in her presence. Arianne had confronted her on that and she had confessed her desires. Arianne had smiled at the news. Cersei had indeed become very desirable. She too looked at the woman with a new light herself.

In Dorne incest between consenting persons of age and polygamous relationships were easily accepted. Arianne had no issue with her Lannister wife lusting after her own mother and wanting to fuck her. She had told Arianne she desperately desired to go down on Cersei as her other wives rode her mother’s face to screaming orgasms. Myrcella longed to make her mother scream into her wives cunts as Cersei ate them out. Myrcella deeply desired to fuck her mother’s hot tight cunt and butthole with her long thick strap-on dick. She wanted Cersei to fuck her the same way. The daughter wanted her mother to use her vaunted strength to fuck her and her wives senseless with hard grudge fucks that were really deep expressions of love.

Myrcella waxed poetic with fantasies of how they would fuck Cersei. Myrcella wanted to sit on the bed and watch her mother suck each of her wives off. Multiple times. She wanted to see her mother between their legs eating out their sloppy wet cunts and then riding her mother’s face hard like Obara said Cersei loved it. Then the four women of the Pride of Dorne would spend the rest of the night devouring Cersei.

And that was only one of Myrcella’s fantasies.

It was contagious this desire for Cersei Arianne snorted to herself. She too wanted to fuck Cersei’s brains out. The woman had always been known for her mouth. She was still caustic as hell but it was sweet now her snarky humor. It made every woman’s pussy wet. Arianne’s included. Humor, strength and beauty made women want to drop their short cloth for anyone who had any of those attributes. Cersei had all three in spades. In the past all Arianne wanted to do was skin Cersei alive. Now she dreamed of burying her face in Cersei’s hot wet snatch and suck her off like a feverish whore. Her daughter had a succulent cunt and she knew her mother’s would be equally sweet and juicy.

Obara had been over two nights ago. She was excited for the plan her father had hatched to get Cersei more liberated when it came to partaking of the incestuous pussy longing, waiting and dreaming of fucking Cersei with her sisters and aunt. Arianne was impressed with how her uncle had devised a plan to kill two birds with one stone.

Obara had waxed poetic talking to the Pride of Dorne. “Oh gods I can’t wait” Obara had husked. “It will be so hot when I bring my sweet wife over to your lair. We will fuck her sooooo good! I want her first gangbang to be with you Arianne and Myrcella along with my youngest sisters. We will get the juices flowing with plenty of pussy gobbling and finger banging. Then we will get strapped in with our thick long cocks.”

Her eyes had become unfocused. “It will be so good. I will be on my back slam fucking my dick balls deep up Cersei’s tight oily cunt. While I am banging her pussy you all will be fucking her ass so hard and deep. I want to see and feel her body jolting over mine as we pound the living shit out of her. Gods Cersei is an anal whore. She loves to be filled with dick deep up her ass. I will love watching you do ring around the asshole fucking her sweet shithole and pulling out to feed her your cocks soaked in her shit grease. She is such an ATM whore” Obara spoke in a dreamy tone “she moans and groans sucking her ass off my dick and will with yours.”

“I can’t wait to do double vag and anal on my hot slut” Obara husked her eyes distant her nipples pocking out her sheer top. ”She loves my ramming my fist into her cervix and elbow deep up her ass. Cersei will die for it when she feels two dicks savaging her cunt and asshole” Obara husked her voice now clotted with need. It was the middle of the afternoon. Cersei was busy performing her tasks for Master Maryln. Soon Obara was stripped naked with Arianne and her wives strapped in with their 9 ½ to 11” cocks pounding the living hell out of Obara.

“Unngggegg shiitttt yeah! Pound my ass—arrggnnnnnnn unnggg unnggg oohhh … ummmggg-ppppfffff” Obara gibbered like a Lysian whore. Her voluptuous body rippled with the taunt groins slapping hard into her stout body to ram dicks balls deep into her spasming pussy and asshole. "Unngggegg oohhh shittttt ... aaauuggg nnggg nngggg" Obara babbled out her belly impaled with thick dick. That was till Myrcella slide her prick soaked in Obara’s ass juice down her throat and skull fucked Obara with her hands clenched in Obara’s dark locks jamming her head forward while her hips pumped hard forward ramming her dick down Obara’s throat. Arianne swooned almost seeing Obara's throat bulge out around the cock pushed balls deep into her gullet. Myrcella slow pumping her hips impaling Obara airway deep throat. Obara choking and drooling spit as she happily took Myrcella's cock fully down her throat.

All the while Dorea was straddling Obara’s hips while the Sand Snake rammed as much of her 11” dick up into Obara's tight asshole as she could. Obara’s sister, Loreza, was underneath Obara’s juddering body slamming her dick viciously up and forward impaling her eldest sister’s tight trim. Loreza’s hands gripping Obara’s ribs to anchor her body as she surged her dick balls deep into the tight cunt of her sweet eldest incestuous sister. Arianne on her knees by Obara’s ass waiting her turn to again take her niece’s hot tight shithole. Dorea growled as she hunched over Obara ramming down with pure savage love slam fucking her sister's asshole with rampaging balls deep thrusts.

Arianne got off seeing Obara’s stout body ripple and jerk with the force of three dicks ramming deep down her three fuck holes. The slut fucked airtight. Myrcella arching her back in a slow sensual rhythm sliding her dick down Obara’s chocking gullet making her throat bulge out around her ears showing the shaft down her throat. Obara’s youngest sisters panting and growling as they slam fucked their older sister’s cunt and shithole so savagely but sweetly like they all liked it. Obara whinnied and cawed feeling nearly three feet of dick pumped balls deep into her belly and down her spit spewing mouth.

Obara opened her mouth around the shaft Myrcella pumped in and out her mouth and down Obara's throat. Myrcella working her hips to ride her dickhead down the gullet of Obara. "Hhurrkkk uurrkk uurrkk uurrkk aawwookkk ... aawwkkkk nnggg nnggg hhurrkkkkk hhurrkkkkk" Obara choked and groaned with spit spewing out her mouth in slimy hanging tendrils. Then roping off with Myrcella jamming her groin into Obara's face pile driving her dick down her beautiful slut's throat.

They all wanted to feel their fucks the next day! Everyday!

The sweet fuck continued with the partners changing the holes they were plundering. Dorea jacked her cock out of Obara's gaped wrecked asshole and kneed around to get in front of Obara with Myrcella kneeling back. Arianne got behind Obara. She eyed he gaped shithole slowly closing up. Arianne gripped Obara's ass cheeks running her fingers down the cleft and pulled back easily making Obara's asshole gape again. Arianne pushed her face into her niece's sweaty ass cleft and snaked her long tongue deep into Obara's rectum and licked all the sweet runnels and soft colon folds. She sucked the folds into her mouth and moaned running her tongue over the sweet undulations. Obara's shit cream like manna from heaven.

Obara moaned hard around Dorea's dick now fucking her throat deep throat. Arianne now torpedo rammed her dick with brutally love up Obara's shit pipe with a killing stroke of pure savage cruel love. Obara crying out around the dick in her throat. Arianne pounded her eldest niece's ass good and hard. Her hips pounding the slut's ass cheeks making them and her hips giggle had with the impact of striving bodies seeking pure love and exquisite pleasure. Then she pulled out and moved to get to Obara’s mouth and proceeded to deep throat fuck her niece's throat with hard strokes of her dick. The fuck continuing sweetly.

Loreza was behind Obara now slamming her dick up Obara’s spasming asshole. Each collision of bodies had the voluptuous body of Obara jiggling so hotly. The sounds of sweaty bodies slapping loud and in the room. That sound encouraged all to fuck harder and kept the fires of lust burning hotly in all their bodies. Obara's sweaty body dripped sweat from her face to her shaking ass cheeks. An opaque ring of sweet ass cream was slavered around the plundered anus and smeared up and down the shaft slamming in balls deep. Mingled fuck juice slavered all over Obara's groin, inner thighs and up and down her ass cleft and up her ass cheeks. The savage strokes of incestuous love jolting Obara's cawing body forward onto the dicks fucking her pussy and throat. Loreza had her fist in Obara's hair too helping Obara to suck on Myrcella's cock. Soon she pulled out Obara's asshole.

The sweet orifice gaped a beautiful round hole. Obara's asshole gushed out shit juice liberally that ran down onto the cock plundering her tight pussy. Loreza moved off to let Arianne move in. She did and guided her cockhead to Obara's clenching gaped shithole. With a harsh forward lunge Arianne torpedo fucked her shaft up into Obara's ass with one killing stroke of 11" inches of pure anal love. Their bodies slapped wetly which was loud in their bedroom. Obara's long sweaty hair hung lankly about her head jerking with impact of a hot tight body into hers.

Obara cried out as she moved her head right and left now sucking her ass off Myrcella and Loreza's cock. Arianne was in heaven slamming her dick up her eldest niece's clenching butthole. Ass juice now weeping out her squired butthole and running down her perineum to dribble into her fucked cunt. Arianne ripping her dick out Obara's ass and holding her ass cheeks tight for a few seconds watching the gape and ass juice dribbled out her squired asshole and down into her hard fucked pussy.

Only then slamming her dick back home making Obara cry out. It had been so sweet. Obara's asshole gaped so large that she now could let her dickhead find her niece's asshole and slide up into her ass and ram home without her hands. That was hot! Again Arianne pulled out Obara's ass only to slam her dick home again up her eldest niece's ass. Again and again Arianne pulled her dick out Obara's gaped asshole and paused watching the gaped orifice clutch and pulse before ramming her dick savagely back up her niece's asshole. Her niece crying out in raw pleasure around the dicks sliding in and out fuck holes and her hot sucking mouth.

Obara's screams of many orgasms made Arianne smile then and now. Obara was very vocal in her orgasms like all Martells seemed to be. Obara was one sweet hot fuck.

The heir to Dorne smiled even broader. Life was becoming more perfect to Arianne. Recently her other nieces had formed their own pride and come up with the Viper’s Liar as their moniker with a little help. It was cute and Arianne liked it. They had seen the happiness of their two youngest siblings being married to women and each other. They did not have to worry being married off for political gain since they were bastards. This had given them the freedom to choose their own destiny. They had chosen each other. Even the supposedly straight Sarella Sand. “I grow tired of men and their bleating. They never give me what I want, need or desire.”

The newly married nieces had come over to celebrate three weeks ago. Wine and champagne was consumed to celebrate. Well … one thing had led to another. Gods the sex had been wonderful. She had feasted on her other nieces again and again savoring their sweet wet cunts. They had eaten her out to ruin along with Myrcella. And gods they knew how to use strap-ons. All the sisters had happily tag teamed their Aunt and Myrcella. Hey had worn her and Myrcella out with rough TP sex.

It had been a gangbang of epic proportions. Arianne was in heaven having dicks pumped in all her fuck holes at once. She loved being fucked air tight with thick cock. It had been natural for the eight sisters to fuck their aunt and Myrcella together. The sisters ever changing which slut they were fucking and which hole they were currently fucking with total focus and love.

Arianne shivered remembering the cries of ecstasy of herself and Myrcella when her nieces had taken them with sweet double anal and vag fucking. It was so rad to feel one of the Sand Sankes slipping their cock out their stretched out pussy and move their dickhead soaked in pussy slime and push that mushroom cockhead onto the shaft already buried up their ass. The thrill of feeling that bulbous dickhead worming around on their sphincter seeking purchase.

The intense rush when that thick septa helmet found purchase and pried their shitters open and the second cockhead slipped into their rectum stretching their sphincter ring’s out. The pain intense but so fucking pleasurable as ecstasy poured out their double pierced shitholes. She and Myrcella had cum so hard they nearly passed out. Then sweet back and forth with dicks soaked in pussy and ass. Their cunts fucked with dicks soaked in ass juice and then two dicks in stretched out pussies soaked in ass cream. That had been a sweet fuck!

Then the heir to Dorne and the High Princess of House Lannister had been double anal ring around the asshole fucked with four sisters around Arianne and four around Myrcella. The sweet sadistic sluts worming in two dicks up the beautiful women’s asses and see-sawing their thick strap-on cocks in and out squired assholes. The shafts soaked in sweet ass juice for the fucked sluts to slurp and suck clean when offered to their hungry slutty mouths.

Needless to say the new grouping of incestuous sisters had visited twice more and they had gone to their quarters three times. Plus, the two loving groups were freely moving from bed chamber to chamber suite fucking in whatever combination pleased them for that night. It was heaven on Earth. All the great sex was truly bonding the women ever tighter together. All the incest was making Myrcella a sex crazed maniac. She found incest supper hot!

This made Arianne so happy. Incest was the best! Keep it in the family! The only thing that could make it better would be to add Cersei to the mix!

This had led Obara to come over to her the last time she and Cersei visited her father. She guided Obara away from the group and off to the side as Cersei and her wives talked to her father making him chuckle.

“Myrcella is really dying to fuck your wife Obara. I hope she can wait until your father’s plan comes to fruition.” Obara gave her a brilliant smile before leaning in and locking their lips. Their tongues dueling wetly from mouth to mouth. Gods Obara was so fucking hot Arianne thought. She could not wait to fuck her and Cersei’s sweet succulent pussies together! To move her mouth from cunt to cunt would be a heavenly dream.

“I know” Obara husked dreamily her eyes filled with desire to share Cersei with her family.

Arianne continued her narration “Cersei has cast a spell over all of the Battleborne Academy. She was always beautiful and now she has the personality that is equally as beautiful and alluring. I and your sisters long to bury our faces deep in Cersei’s succulent cunt and suck her off. We all have witnessed you and her fucking exuberantly in the Officer’s Sauna and behind the practice grounds. Everyone loves to watch you two fuck.”

Obara smiled hearing that. She was an exhibitionist who loved fucking in front of others.

“We want to watch you fuck Cersei senseless before us as you take and abuse all her fuck holes. We love the fact that Cersei is so powerful and yet totally submissive to you.”

“Do you have a problem with that?” Arianne asked Obara coyly. “The fact that my wives and I want to fuck Cersei in front of you. They and I will make her scream as if the demons of hell are after her. She will beg us to fuck her again and again.” Arianne smirked. She already knew the answer to her questions about sharing Cersei with Obara. All knew Obara’s desires regarding Cersei.
Obara’s return smile had been radiant. “I do not. I would love to share Cersei with the Pride of Dorne. I long to share Cersei with my father and Ellaria. She is still prudish but I am breaking down those barriers. My father’s plan should speed that process up greatly. He fully supports our efforts to hurry along the shredding of my sweet wife’s inhibitions. I look forward to the future Warden of the South fucking my wife often. Both with me and alone. I want Cersei to love my entire family completely. I want her fucking you, my sisters and her own daughter as often as possible. I want Cersei totally open with her love with us.”

Arianne was so happy to hear this. She had been sure but to hear Obara speak the words reassured Arianne. Cersei was a special prize and she had feared that maybe some jealousy might creep into Obara and not have her want to share Cersei with her sisters, daughter and aunt. Competitiveness was a strong trait in family of Martell.

Arianne smiled and again they snogged heatedly longing for the day when Cersei was totally in the fold. Their family dynamic would be so much stronger when Cersei was freely fucking them all.

They finally broke their lip lock. “As I said, I can’t wait to share Cersei with you and my sisters Arianne. It is very loving.” Arianne smile became larger.

Now Arianne spoke in a dreamy tone “I can’t wait to watch Loreza, Dorea and Myrcella dine on Cersei’s succulent body all night and day. I want us to watch them fuck Cersei blind. I want to see their mouths devour your wife Obara. Then they will fuck her cunt and ass out with their long, thick hard dicks.”

“We will watch as her daughter, Myrcella, bangs her mother’s ass and then ‘make’ Cersei suck her ass off Myrcella’s cock. We will watch my wives savagely ram their long thick dicks into Cersei’s belly and down her throat fucking her airtight.”

“Then it will be our turn as they watch us take and fuck Cersei like the Lysian whore she is!” Arianne crowed. She was getting wet just thinking of it.

“One of us will be lying on our back as she rotates and slams her hips back and down impaling her cunt on the dick. The other watching and then moving in and ramming our cock hungrily up her clenching butthole. We will ravage her asshole and then move forward as we all watch her sucking her shithole off our dicks as she moans like the whore she is. We will make her scream before her daughter as we savagely DP fuck your slutty wife.”

“We will make her cum screaming to multiple orgasms again and again” Obara chimed in finishing the thought totally caught up in the dreamy scenario they had built up.

“Then it will be your turn to just watch, Obara, while I and your younger sisters torpedo slam our cocks up Cersei’s tight asshole and pussy. We will fuck her with savage deep thrusts of pure love. Her asshole and pussy coating our dicks with thick smears of cunt and ass juice that she we all know she loves to suck off your strap-on dick. We have all seen you ravage her ass in the Officer’s Sauna. I tell you we will wear her out and make her beg for more.”

Obara shivered hard and smiled. “All this talk of fucking Cersei has me so wet” Obara whined. I can’t wait to fuck you again. It feels like forever since we fucked!” she pouted though it had just been two days ago. “I love fucking you. I love your voluptuous body. So much like mine.”

Arianne smiled they indeed did look like sisters. They had shared many great fucks aunt to niece and shared so many great orgasms binding the Martell family ever closer.

She kissed Obara with a hard kiss her body inflamed with remembered passion shared with her niece. She knew they would have plenty time later for sweet incestuous debauchery. “I long to fuck you again Obara. It always feels like it has been too long since I sucked you off and fisted your hot tight pussy and steamy asshole niece. I will again make you scream as you eat out Cersei and she has her daughter sitting on her face and eating out to orgasm.”

“We have all heard and seen her enormous skills in bed. She had become the Lion of Dorne in all things. We will fuck gloriously with you and your wife Obara.”

Obara had kissed her deeply then with lots of tongue to seal the deal. Arianne could not wait.

Arianne shook her head clearing out thoughts of sweet incestuous lesbian debauchery to come. She couldn’t wait!

She looked again at the parchment from the Maester of Magic, Marwyn, of the Citadel. In it he detailed how he had important news that needed to be shared with the Queen. He was most sure that the Queen would want to hear what news he had for her. He also told Arianne in the scroll that he would come bearing gifts that the Queen would find most advantageous and alluring. They were from her homeland and culture of Valyria. She would be most satisfied with his news and gifts. He had heard how they longed to be first among the Queens provincial advisors. This would assure it.

Arianne had been excited by this news. She knew that Myrcella and her reports were shining at the Queen’s Small Council meeting. They were by far the most insightful and researched reports provided by the Wardens of Westeros. Their reports shined brightest at the small council. Their jackals had made that clear. Other Houses were trying to catch up to them but they never would.
She and Myrcella were like the Queen in trying to solve problems for her people. They were trying to serve others and not themselves. This would always give them the advantage with the Dragon Queen.

She and Myrcella had commissioned a grid survey of the Shadow City. When finished they would start putting in public latrines with running water. The running water to be provided by water towers that the Queen had given them blueprints of from Volantis. Seawater would be used to cleanse the sewers with the water pressure created from the water towers. Using gravity lines they would run the sewage to the marshes dispersing the waste to let the marsh cleanse it. The waste should actually feed the fish and shellfish nurseries if closely regulated out into the delicate environment.

There would be a second set of towers erected to provide fresh water. People would be hired to build and maintain the towers. This would give employment to artisans. People with low education and unemployed would be hired to keep the water levels up in the towers and keep the sewer feed lines cleaned and flowing. These low skilled persons would be trained to spot problems that would be reported to the artisans and engineers for repair.

It was the type of project that would better the life of Arianne’s people and catch the Queen’s attention. Arianne smiled at this. The Queen was quick to learn and take to new ways. Arianne was sure that the Queen would start to use some of the ideas that Dorne were developing. She admitted to herself that she liked having the Queen’s attention. She knew that this “news” that the Maester of Magic had to offer the Queen could be big. Very big.

She took up the parchment and snorted. Of course he had his price tag. Marwyn never did anything for pure altruistic reasons. He made it clear he expected one thousand gold dragons. He said he needed the gold to further his acquisition of rare books and artifacts. Arianne was sure that was true.
The man was true to his specialty of Magic. He had a genuine passion and love for that arcane link he wore around his neck. He did scour the world looking for anything magical related. The man especially sought out books. The books teaching insight and knowledge of magic itself.

Arianne smiled seeing his other demand. Arianne had always thought it funny how orders that had vows of chastity were always looking for cock and pussy. The young silent sisters were famous for their lesbian orgies amongst themselves. They were always seducing young maidens and relieving them of their maidenheads. The excess daughters of Lords sent to the monasteries of the Faith of the Seven. The women were quickly taught the ways of the Church to satisfy the hierarchy.

That hierarchy turning a blind eye to the deflowering of the young maidens (most often) by the septas. The lesbian sex tolerated since it kept the young women’s libidos in check. Many a Lord’s wife and daughters went to visit septas for religious guidance. That was the guise used to get plenty of hot sex that actually satisfied their usually unsatisfied selves. Getting your brains fucked out tended to calm a woman’s agitated state which made for a calm castle or holdfast. Arianne snorted. The stupid men never knew. They simply could not conceive of women finding true satisfaction in another woman’s arms.

The septas skills in the oral arts were famous. Their skills with strap-ons and dildos legendary to those who knew where to look and listen. The septas were willing to spend long arduous nights helping the women of a Lord’s household find the path to enlightenment and service to the seven faced god.

Translation. The women visiting the septas or having them come to them in their very own beds while their husbands were off on business or wenching. The women fucked to a near comatose state of bliss. The women anxiously waiting for their next lessons in piety. The septas helped keep the peace by keeping all these horny and desperate for pleasure women satisfied. Many men vainly secure in their inept skills. Fools and assholes Arianne noted for the millionth time.

Arianne often wondered if the women might not revolt if deprived of their religious counseling from their septas. The septas willing to bury their faces in dripping wet pussies and clenching ass clefts to make sure their pious messages were truly received. It was amazing how often they had to repeat their sermons Arianne joked to herself.

Men could be so dense the heir to Dorne mused to herself. Arianne had fucked many a woman right under a Lord or knights nose and they never suspected. Even when they were almost caught in the adultery. They always explained it away to themselves. They could not even conceive that their woman (who was supposedly satisfied) would find comfort and love in another woman’s arms. Let their blissful ignorance blind the men to the truth. It made it so much easier for women to commit adultery with their women lovers.

As for the septons, they were famous for buggering young boys and fucking the women they were supposed to give religious guidance to. Arianne supposed it got their supplicant’s closer to their seven faced god. It was a rare septon that kept his vows. It was asking for the impossible. Humans were sexual animals and they could not fight their natures. If they did succeed in blocking there natural instincts and desires many broke down with neurosis that made them unstable and unable to perform their religious order tasks and sometimes any other.

When one tried to block the core instincts of the human animal it did not usually turn out good. On the surface all may seem calm but underneath the seeming placid surface of the body water the currents were most often roiled and unsettled.

Sure there was the few exceptions but they were exceptions. If you fought the basic instincts of your nature you were asking for trouble.

When it came to their vows of chastity, the Maesters were some of the worst. They loved to fuck. It was unnatural to ask humans to give up sex. The drive to survive was the strongest: food, water and shelter were essential and people would do what they needed to acquire enough to survive. Wars often started for such reasons. After one’s survival was assured sex was by far the strongest motivator. The basic human desire to procreate made people randy. Maester Marwyn was a prime example.

He may be short and had a hard ale belly Arianne mused but the man could fuck like a raging bull. She smiled remembering the hair in his ears and nose. None of that mattered when he was slam fucking Arianne with his long hard thick cock. Gods he had made her cum so hard. Over and over. She loved feeling his long hard cock buried deep in her pussy or up her ass ejaculating hard sending spurts of his pearly jizm flooding her womb or colon.

When he went on voyages overseas he traveled through Sunspear to get to the port on the coast. The man always first went to Lys first to meet his contacts he maintained there. From there his contacts scoured Essos for artifacts and books on magic. The heir of Dorne knew he visited many of the whore houses as well. She supposed mixing work and pleasure had its benefits Arianne joked to herself.

She had been fascinated by the man. He was so different from the other pompous Maesters who were self-righteous and sanctimonious. He was actually courteous and was reported to be civil to those lower than himself in the Citadel. He was raw and forthright with all but fair.

He was very intelligent and adroit. Arianne loved his curiosity and his desire to know the world and had an open mind. She had talked to the man for hours. He was funny and made her laugh. He would actually listen to her ideas and thoughts which was very rare in a man. Of course talking was only a prelude. He then would take her to bed and fuck the living hell out of her. She preferred pussy but a man who could bone was a fuck not to be missed.

Men had a power and roughness to them that gave them a particular allure. Of course their male ego tended to ruin it for her. Their insecure bleating only turned her off. She could put up with their insecure chest thumping if they knew how to fuck. If their skill in the sack was lacking and she did not need their influence or strength then she quickly caste them aside.

The Maester had evidently not traveled through Sunspear to parts unknown of late. She had not thought of him since her heart was captured by Myrcella and her two youngest nieces now. Myrcella would like the man. The teenager also valued intellect and curiosity about the world. She had never planned to fuck him again but she always loved his intellect.

Arianne smiled. His chewing of Red Leaf would be a no go around Myrcella. Myrcella hated people who chewed tobacco and Red Leaf was even worse. Those red teeth were a definite no go but she had not cared when she was giving the man a blow job or he was pounding her pussy and fucking her asshole inside out and making her cum so fucking hard.

Arianne knew that if Marywn delivered what he implied she would be very powerful with the Queen. She wondered what it was the Maester of Magic had to offer. She was waiting for Myrcella to come to her. She had sent a servant to fetch her when she was done with her current duty. She knew that her wife would want to go for it. This information would be a gold mine of influence and status building.

Myrcella made it clear that she wanted them to remain in Dorne now. She kept telling Arianne that the more they curried the Queen’s favor the more likely they could get resources sent to Dorne. When trade deals and alliances were being formed they would be at the table and would get favorable clauses and legislation. The largesse of the Iron Throne could be used to make Dorne ever greater and be able to provide more to the populace of Dorne.

Arianne had been and always would be touched by the change of Myrcella’s focus. When their Pride first formed Myrcella had wanted to go to King’s Landing to further the power of the Pride she had formed. Now her focus was on Dorne and supporting Arianne. She wanted to be great in Dorne. It made Arianne and her nieces love the scion of House Lannister even more.

Her father was a great leader but he was a cautious man Arianne reflected. He was reluctant to take risks. She would be careful and husband her resources but she would strive to make connections in the greater world and form new alliances. She hoped to form new ties with Highgarden that she had fostered with the successful venture in vineyards east of Nightsong. The land reclaimed and already showing great promise of profits for both Houses. Profits the grease that eased many tensions.

She saw so many chances for profit and cultural exchanges from the birth place of Nymeria. The Queen was setting up a new world order in Essos. Huge profits could be made and still help the new world form a better template than the old slave trade.

The door opened and her wife came in. Myrcella smiled at her. Her beautiful lioness Arianne thought as she gazed upon her beautiful golden haired wife. When it came to Game of Thrones it was Myrcella she relied on. When the sword was needed that was when they talked to Loreza and Dorea. Arianne with her wives would prove to be an unstoppable force in Dorne.

Myrcella shivered seeing her naked wife her hair gleaming from the brushing Arianne had given it while contemplating the parchment. Myrcella quickly unhooked and undid the ties to her own dress and let it fell to the floor. Her silk panties followed. Nude she walked over to Arianne and bent to down to her wife and kissed her on the lips. The kiss lingered with a touch of tongue. A hint of what was to come. She sat down beside Arianne. They turned to look at each other. Ariane felt her pulse quicken seeing raw naked desire for her in Myrcella’s eyes.

Myrcella started to move in to initiate lovemaking. Arianne felt her desire burning through her body but she wanted to get Myrcella’s take in the parchment and give her opinion on it first. Her pussy quivered with want but she knew she would be satisfied shortly. She put her finger to Myrcella’s lips. She made eye contact with her wife and Myrcella saw that her wife had something serious she wanted to discuss and sat back and patiently waited. This willingness to follow Arianne’s lead always made the daughter of Dorian so happy and feeling totally loved. Arianne smiled at her and held up the parchment.

Myrcella took it with a questioning look in her eyes. She started to unroll he scroll reading it as she worked her wrists unfurling and rolling up the scroll as she read it. Arianne loved reading Myrcella’s face as she digested what the Maester of Magic had written. She saw curiosity, calculation and finally possibilities running across Myrcella’s face.

Myrcella finished reading the scroll and set it down. She looked up at Arianne. She smiled at her wife. “You know what this could bring us. It would really be a huge benefice that we could bring the Queen. We would have so much cache with her if this Maester delivers what he promises. My gods what we could do with that backing behind us. We would be able to advance the interests of Dorne so much.”

Arianne felt her heart bursting with love for Myrcella. The woman was of Dorne now. She looked at all things through the prism of what was best for Dorne. She loved Arianne with all her heart and now focused all her effort on making sure the Pride of Dorne supported the Queen and sought to make Dorne the first of all the Houses in the Queen’s eyes. Myrcella wanted to make Arianne shine before the Houses of Dorne and in the Queen’s court. The Queen would value them above all others.

They would use that cache for the good of Dorne.

Arianne had gotten so lucky she knew. The seven gods had given her the perfect spouse who had been so loving she brought Arianne two additional wives.

“Can this man be trusted in what he says Arianne? Will he deliver?” Myrcella asked her with searching eyes.

“Yes. The man is honorable I have found. Not only that but I think in his own way he is being true to the Dragon Queen. He wants her to succeed” Arianne answered her wife’s question.

“I know you are bisexual Arianne. I have never slept with a man. I will if it I must. Your other wives also do not crave the touch of any man.” She looked at Arianne intensely. Arianne saw her wife’s eyes cloud with doubt. “I have not harmed you have I wife? I … I have been sleeping with our other wives and now we are sleeping with your other nieces but— … have I denied you something that you have craved my dear sweet wife. Do you miss the touch of a man? I do not desire men but I know in the past you freely slept with both sexes.”

Arianne enfolded Myrcella with her arms and pulled her slender wife onto her lap. She loved how Myrcella wiggled her slender body into her voluptuous body. Her perfect pale skin pressed into Arianne’s deeply dusky skin. They looked at each other deeply and their breathing deepened. Myrcella shivered and mewled making Arianne smile wickedly.

She bent her head in and kissed Myrcella. The kiss started sweetly but fuck hunger raged thought their bodies. Arianne swiped Myrcella’s lips hard demanding entrance to her sweet mouth. The instant Myrcella parted her lips Arianne’s tongue speared into her slut’s mouth making her love jolt hard. The kissed turned deep with her tongue wetly exploring her wife’s mouth and wrestling Myrcella’s tongue hotly. Their bodies instinctively pressed into each other. Myrcella whimpering with Arianne ramming her tongue again and again down her throat. Their tits mashed into the other’s breast flattening as they held each other tight.

Arianne broke the kiss and put her forehead to her wife’s forehead. Spit roped between their lips swayed and then broke off to land on their throats. Both women still held each other tight relishing their naked bodies pressed tight into each other. “You have denied me nothing my sweet wife. You and my sweet Loreza and Dorea satisfy me. Now my other nieces are giving me sweet pleasure and their own familial love. I have not missed cock. But I will not lie to you. I will enjoy fucking Marwyn. He can definitely bone. Almost as well as you my sweet Lioness.”

Arianne saw Myrcella preen at the compliment. It was true. Like the lioness she was, Myrcella had become quite the cocksman in bed. Arianne had taught Myrcella it was all in the hips. One worked your pelvis to work one’s hips to pound your strap-on shaft hard and deep into your squealing woman’s pussy or ass. You swirled and snapped your hips to give yourself torque to harpoon your dick into your slut’s fuck holes. The motion sliding one’s strap-on cock smoothly in and out the hot wet fuck hole you were currently taking. Arianne shivered at the thoughts of Myrcella’s skills with a strap-on.

Still, Arianne had to admit that a man’s body had a strength and power that women with few exceptions could match. Even her sweet Dorea and Lorenza could only generate so much power. Men were heavier and more solid of build. Weight gave power. Arianne had always relished that power in a man who actually had the skills to use his cock to truly pleasure a woman.

Most men only poked at a woman’s pussy. They brought no skill or imagination to the bed. They made fucking boring. But. A man who knew how to truly bone was a divine fuck. The Maester of Magic was such a man.

“Will you have a problem with this Myrcella? Me taking pleasure fucking a man. I have not missed fucking men since you and I became lovers with Dorea and Loreza. But now that the opportunity has arisen I will take it. Will it bother you Myrcella? I want to be sure in this before I meet Marwyn. You know Obara’s plans with Cersei and Oberyn and how she wants to draw us into the sweet fucking. Will you have a problem with that Myrcella? Knowing that my uncle will be fucking me in all my fuck holes. That his hot spunk will be flooding my womb and asshole.”

Myrcella smiled at her. “No my sweet wife. It is only you who will find pleasure with a man in our Pride Arianne. It will be like you fucking your other nieces, my mother, Ellaria or your uncle Oberyn. You will be taking pleasure with lovers you crave. I love new sweet sluts we bring to our bed or will in the future. I will be happy to watch you fucking Oberyn as I fuck my mother or Ellaria. I plan on sucking Oberyn’s sperm out of your slack cunt and asshole.”

Arianne felt a hot rush run through her body at that declaration. She had fantasied about that. Life was about seeking new pleasures and expanding one’s perspectives. Maybe she could cajole and tempt her wives to fuck Oberyn. It would be so hot. If not she could live with that. She hoped to get them to accept a taste of strange from time to time.

“I will be watching you fuck Marwyn” Myrcella told Arianne with hot eye contact and a firm voice. Her tone had no rancor only open lust. Arianne shivered knowing her wife wanted to watch her get banged hard by a man she had made clear knew how to bone a woman. Hard and deep.

“You wicked little pervert you. I love it!”

Myrcella smiled evilly at her. “If Marwyn bones as well as you say he does then I want to see it. Hot sex is hot sex my sweet. When we fuck in the Officer’s sauna I love watching hets fuck. It is hot to watch. I just don’t wish to partake.”

Arianne smiled. Again Arianne hoped that just maybe she could get her wives to fuck Oberyn. She longed to seduce them into taking of her uncle’s sweet cock. It would be beyond rad to see Oberyn taking his youngest daughter’s hot tight cunts while their mother, Ellaria, banged their tight pinching shitholes and moved around again and again to let her youngest daughters suck their sweet ass juice off her cock. It did not matter really if it did not happen but it would be so sweet if it did come to pass.

Then in Arianne’s imagination it was first Cersei and then Myrcella being DP fucked by her uncle and his paramour. It would be so hot to see their shafts lunging balls deep up into their hot tight cunts and assholes. Arianne shivered picturing Ellaria and Oberyn doing double anal on the hopefully by then incestuous mother and daughter sluts.

Myrcella spoke “Plus, I can see you trust him but I will not take any chances. We will arrange a safe place for you to meet him. A place that we will have our Sand Snakes positioned for any danger. We will have Cersei with her strength. We will bring along the most skilled of the female cadets too to make sure we have the womanpower to meet any possible threat. Which of course means we will have to be able to observe all that occurs during your meeting.”

Arianne loved the coy smirk on Myrcella’s face. She had indeed chosen wisely in her choice of a mate.

Their arms enfolded around heated bodies and their mouths came together tight tongues dueling wetly. Arianne pulled Myrcella tight into her bosom as they snagged with coiled tongue fighting desperately in their hungrily mated mouths. Hands in hair pulling tilted heads tight allowing tongues to spear down deep groaning throats. Both women’s bodies heated and their breathing ragged as sweat started to film on their bodies.

Soon they were on their bed in a hot sixty-nine eating sweet pussy. They would devour each other till their other wives arrived and the fucking would truly soar.

Myrcella

Myrcella sat at her desk in the elegant sitting room of the suite of rooms she had taken out on the penthouse fifth floor of the old hotel on the Sunrise Boulevard. The grand edifice on the shore of Summer Sea a short distance to the South of the Water Gardens. Over the centuries the wealthy of Dorne had built grand retreats here on the beach below the Water Gardens. Families coming to visit the children they had fostered in the grand gardens of the Martells.

From those beginnings a thriving hotel industry had taken root. The hotels needing other businesses to keep them in business had sprung up. Thus, a whole eco system had sprouted that gave employment to many in Sunspear and the Shadow City around it. More and more businesses taking root supporting its kindred.

The hotels and businesses that had sprouted up catered to the rich and famous from all over Westeros and from the now truly Free Cities of Essos. The southern clime seemed to engender a looser set of morals than the rest of staid Westeros. Prime and proper Lords and their chaste wives would come to this spot on Dorne and “let their hair down”. This spot had come to be known as Nightowl Isle. It was said that “what happened in Nightowl stayed in Nightowl. Who would be the wiser.” One emphasized the word ‘who’ like an owl.

People from across the known world came to the hotels, gambling parlors, swanky bars and brothels to have fun and commit all manners of debaucheries. They would let loose and fornicate and partake of gluttony and drunken revelry. Men and women fucking freely and partaking of the ‘sins of the flesh’ with glee and abandon. Then at the end of the stay they would once more don their conservative air, dress and speech and return to their boring lives. They would again live the lie till their next visit to the City of Sin.

Myrcella shook her head. Hypocrites. She had learned the truth from her wives. In Dorne people did not try to suppress their desires. It was a much more healthy way to live. Still, she supposed it was better that the hypocrites blew off ‘steam’ and not blow like an overheated pressure cooker. Better to get it out of the system than let pent up frustrations extrude into areas where it might cause problems in the staid northern Constituencies. By letting off this ‘steam’ problems were reduced back home.

The former Lannister knew that those urges would still be in the hearts of the returned personage when they travelled home. Then it was back to the shadows and deceptions with ones desires. Frustrations would mount with the lack of freedom they craved in Dorne. The skullduggery pressing in on them till they could once more migrate south for succor and soothing.

Myrcella thanked the gods she did not believe in that she had come to Dorne and Arianne. She had been freed of a ‘fate worse than death’ she smirked to herself.

She was in the luxury suite in Nymeria’s Eyrie. In the next suite Arianne waited for the Master of Magic Marwyn to appear. All was ready.

Arianne and Myrcella had had the man under observation for the last week on his journey to them from Oldtown and the Citadel. When he had contacted Arianne and they had decided to accept his offer they had contacted their jackals in Godsgrace by ravens to keep the Maester under surveillance. He had waited till he had gotten close to Sunspear to communicate.
It was from there the Maester had sent a raven to Arianne. He was there making arrangements with a merchant in antiquities to travel to the great inland grass seas in the Disputed Lands inland of Myr. He thought there was an ancient lost city of early Valyria there he wanted to explore. The references were vague but he was sure of his translations. The gold he wanted as payment would help pay for the expedition.

He had often fucked Arianne in one or the other high end hotels of Nightowl Isle. The man luxuriating in the high life for a day or two as he transitioned from various points across the two continents. It was the closest he would ever get to luxury living. A night or two was all a Maester could hope for if he continued to wear his chains. This time they would be in the establishment owned clandestinely by the Martells. The hotel was setup up give it clients the best of all the sins they may hope to have. The hotel was also setup to allow for maximum espionage to be done in the name of the House of Martell. The rooms had plenty of spy holes and hidden halls behind the wall to allow easy access to various rooms. The staff all well trained in spy craft.

The family of Martell had formed working professional relationships with the best brothels. The women were hired on a rotating basis to work in Nymeria’s Lair. The women trained up in spy craft and how to coax out a man or woman’s secrets.

The whores in the employee of the madam who went by the name of the Shady Lady were the most beautiful in all of Dorne with many of the best whores cycling in from King’s Landing and the Whore Houses of Lys. Her whore house went by the same name. She made sure she kept her house stocked with new women. The cliental always had new women to choose from. This kept her services in high demand.

The madam made it a policy to make sure the whores in her hire were experts in the arts of lovemaking. She had two teenage sons that the women had to fuck to prove their skills in the arts of boning a male. Her sons always anxious to show off their skills and get fucked!

The women were then tested in their arts of Sapphic lovemaking. It was the Madam that did this testing. Her standards high. The new whores had to prove themselves to the Madam over a weekend of continued sweet fucking. Her living quarters thick with the smell of happy pussy by the end of the weekend.

This arrangement of keeping new women in her establishment had ancillary benefits for the women. It allowed the high end whores to travel and explore new climes and cultures. It was a benefit working in the high end brothels of Sunspear, Kings Landing, Pentos, Tyrosh, Myr, Braavos and of course Lys. The ability to travel and live life the best in multiple locations. The whores sought after and respected. These women were valued assets and were treated as such.

The women for the most part fucked their clients for the money it brought them. The more money they brought in the higher they were valued. The women loved being oversexed and getting boned. These women were highly sexually and craved orgasms.

True many of the men were not that skilled and much fakery was employed. The ones who could bone were almost fought over. Many a whore was steamed when a true cocksman selected another whore to bone.

The women who sought out the whores were often novices to lesbian love. The whores knew they could quickly be trained up to become expert pussy gobblers if novices. Women once shown the wonders of lesbian lovemaking were so anxious to learn to suck and fuck women. The whores happy to do the training. The whore always happy to convert another woman into a bisexual slut. A woman who continued fucking her ‘man’ because she must but who secretly craved the touch of a woman. The whores thrilled in teaching women the Sapphic arts. The newly converted lesbo sluts almost famished in their need to gobble sweet gash. For the whores it was the best of all worlds. Women, often quite lovely, anxious to be eaten out and nearly drooling to eat out the whores. All night!

Most of the whores were bisexual with a very strong leaning towards women or outright lesbians fucking men as work only. If they received orgasms from their work all the better. Many of the whores married each other and moved around the upper end whore houses as a pair. The women committed to each other but fully in the polyamours lifestyle. It was the best all worlds for these women.

Some of the whores had once been trapped wives locked in marriages they detested. The forced marriages sapping their very essence. They had been liberated the first time they went down on one of whores. They had become addicted to lesbian sex. They had become addicted to women. Many of the women were able to live with their clandestine meetings. Their husbands usually glad their woman had made friends with a woman. The man felt relived she was out of his hair (if he had any).

Some of the aggressive women making arrangements with the Madam to have them disappear. Some rouse formed to throw the man off the scent. It was easy enough to hire a man to act as the cad lover on the side that the woman had 'run away' with. In truth the woman leaving for one of the high end brothels in another city far away. There to live a life she chose.

There was the situations where a whore fell in love with her client. Then the both women were sent to another local to live together as wife and wife. The woman almost always joining her new wife in her work at the oldest profession. In Lys especially, but in other major cities too, one found whore houses catering to only women. It was here these newlyweds often flocked too. The newbie lesbian living the high life gobbling all the pussy her tired mouth could feast on.

Myrcella had loved this when she discovered how many of the whores were lesbians like herself. Women who had found freedom with other women. It made her smile. Of course the whores who worked at Nymeria’s Lair had so many other talents.

The whores who worked here had talents other than only purely fucking. The women were very skilled in prying information from drunk on liquor or sex clients, pick pocketing documents and keys from clients (copies hastily made and returned while the clients were fucked into comas of spent pleasure). The art of pickpocketing and lock picking taught to the whores. The women would plant thoughts that the clients would swear were their own the next morning. They were practiced at the arts of influence peddling, recruitment of diplomates, emissaries to defect and the recruitment of spies.

The staff of the establishments of Nightowl Isle were most accommodating in helping their clients be at ease and ready to be seduced and coerced by the women and men they would be fucking that night with. This setup was mirrored across Westeros and Essos. With a few exceptions, no one had setup up their spy craft as fully executed as in Dorne. Dorne had both the moral liberal climate and the aggressive national security apparatus to achieve the highest results with their espionage.

The State used these establishments to gather information they used to set and execute State policy. Of course everyone was trying to get the advantage on everyone else. It was Dorne’s security and spy agencies job to be the best. Nightowl Isle filled with spies from across the world seeking information as well.

The agencies both working with and against each other where it made sense for each entity. It could all get very confusing actually. The art of the double cross thrived in Nightowl. The one thing that was not tolerated was murder. With so many spies and operatives it was literally hard to get away with murder. The culprits discovered and dealt with.
Myrcella was looking over the security and dossiers on one Maester Marwyn. Myrcella had read through the paperwork on the Maester to get a better feel for the man. Who was he and how did he comport himself. By all reports he was arrogant but fair. Myrcella felt the man could indeed be worked with. Maybe in the future as well.

Arianne had wanted to know what he had to offer beyond promises of “something good” and the “Queen needs to know”.

On the threat to the Queen and the realm he would not say more than that the “status quo” was being upset and that forces were aligning that wanted “new and unsettling ideas and customs” put down. Myrcella and Arianne read that as the conservative elements of Westeros did not like the more liberal ideas and ideals that Daenerys Targaryen was bringing to the Iron Throne and in time across Westeros.

Dorne was allowed its “proclivities” in its remote Southern part of the country. Many in the north considered Dorne an arid wasteland. Most of the stuck up Northerners thought that Dorne was full of ‘rubes’ who lived in dusty tents and dirty cities. Myrcella knew she had been raised to think thus. She had heard the snickers herself growing up. The gods knew her mother used to say that all the time in a derisive tone. Myrcella shook her head. Now her mother was as Dorne as one could get. Just like her daughter.

Myrcella reflected on this. On how providence had guided both daughter and mother to Dorne. One a willing a teenager and the other an unwilling exiled Queen. Now both were extremely happy and so thankful they had been sent to Dorne. Myrcella shivered. It would become more perfect once she and her mother had become incestuous lovers. She dreamed and fantasied many times a day of going down on her mother. Myrcella shivered again. Gods her mother’s cunt was going to taste so good in her mouth when Myrcella went down on her mother. Repeatedly!

Yes, Dorne kept their ideas and culture to themselves for the most part. Rarely did Dorne go on wars of conquest. They may honor treaties and fidelity to House politics but when the wars were over the forces of Dorne were more than happy to return home to their dry southern climes. If the North did not want to learn the ways of Dorne the people of Dorne did not care. They had found a better way and if the rest of Westeros did not want to learn from Dorne then that was there lose.

On the gifts, Maester Marwyn was offering, he was more forthcoming. He had gifts from old Valyria that he thought the new Queen would find most beneficial. On a recent trip to Tyrosh and Volantis he had acquired knowledge of certain magical ‘items’. His research had led him to several dealers of questionable reputations in the field of artifacts collection.

They had found a treasure trove of items from the failed freehold of Valyria. The dealers had found the remains of a consignment store in the basement of an exchequers office for the Iron Bank in Tyrosh. This had led to many finds and paperwork that led to an old abandon warehouse on the docks of Volantis. The runes had led the adventurous intrepid collectors to a hidden room. Only seven of them had died breaking the magical seals. The ‘dealers’ had made to get away with their largesse.

The merchant mercenaries had moved up the Dragon Road to the ruined city of Sar Mell. There they crossed the Roynar and went to Volon Therys. The fallen stronghold of Valyria now under control of Volantis. The artifact mercenaries put together a camel caravan to haul away their finds to The Orange Shore to avoid any authorities that patrolled the Dragon Road and the environs around Volantis especially the docks.

It was at this stage that the Maester had stumbled across their find and his knowledge let him know just how valuable the finds were. He had acted immediately. It helped immensely to have ravens at his disposal.

It had been worth it. Maester Marwyn had hired a small company of mercenaries to hit the caravan with the express orders to use only minimal force. There had been a few survivors of the raid. Marwyn said a few prayers for the dearly departed. He had some of the items sent to him that he knew of and how to activate and use. He was on his way to pick up main bulk of the items he had purloined. He had inventoried what he had and had pulled out five items that he knew the Queen would find beneficial and sent them ahead. The rest had been sent to back to Tyrosh. It was there that the Maester was travelling to pick up his ‘purchases’.

The items he had wanted sent to him had arrived in Godsgrace. He did not want his ‘precious’ magical items getting to close to the Citadel. He would be bringing them to Arianne. Myrcella read over the items. Dragon Glass she knew of. It had become almost as synonymous of old Valyria as dragons and even more mysterious. They were said to have great power.

She remember reading in her studies with Arianne on Valyria to prepare for this meeting (the study delayed to make time for some heated fucking Myrcella thought shivering with remembered delights then more hot fucking after the their study time with their sweet wives joining in now off duty). Many facts of the Dragon Glass left behind after the Doom of Valyria were known. Most who observed the candles and left accounts on them were not of Valyria. They found the candles gave off a bright light that were unpleasant to the eyes. It was said there was something queer about the light. It left viewers unsettled.

The flames did not flicker even in a strong draft of a hard closed door that would blow papers off the table top the Dragon Glass candles were placed on. The light did something strange to colors too. Whites were bright as fresh-fallen snow, yellow shone like gold, reds turned to flame, but the shadows were so black they looked like holes in the world. The candles themselves were three feet tall and slender as a sword, ridged and twisted, glittering black.

It was said the sorcerers of the Freehold could see across mountains, seas, and deserts with one of these glass candles. They could enter a man’s dreams and give him visions, and speak to one another half a world apart, seated before their candles.

The Maester had several candles already in his possession in the Citadel. In his scroll Marwyn said that other Maesters had Dragon Glass and were using them in their limited ways.

Maester Marwyn asked if the Queen might find such tools useful. She was a true Dragon Lord. She could easily fire them up where he had to concentrate and use many arcane spells to even light the candles. He was able to communicate easily within the Citadel but across distance he found extremely difficult and limited. He tested his abilities with his few trusted acolytes. He suspected that Arya would have the same ability with her unnatural powers she was evidencing. He suspected from the rumors of Cersei Lannister transformation she too could use the old artifacts but that was conjecture on his part.

He was certain Daenerys would not be limited. He almost certain Arya would be like her mate. They would be like the Sorcerers and Dragon Lords of old. Their might enhanced by the items from the doomed land of Valyria.

The next two items Myrcella had not heard of and were not mentioned in the text she and Arianne had read. The first were Dragon Glass Eyes. These were magical gems that were within two hexagons one within the other. The dimensions exact copies of one within the other. The stones were either pink or violet the scroll said. The smaller hexagon encrusted with zirconia that had hidden glyphs to channel the magic.
It was said that Olenna Tyrell had a set of three though this was doubted by the Citadel and anyways she would not have the knowledge or strength to fire up the magical elixir one put in the magical scrying dish. Only a very skilled Maester or Valyrian sorcerer or Dragon Lord could succeed in using any magical artifact of old Valyria.

The Dragon Glass Eyes allowed you to see, hear and even smell if attuned all that touched the gems within their hexagons. They had been given as gifts to the unsuspecting and used to spy on them. The more powerful the viewer the greater the distance they could be used. They could reach across continents like the Dragon Glass. One had to bind the Dragon Glass Eyes to oneself but again Daenerys was a Dragon Lord. The Maester was sure she would easily be able to use them.

The next item he was going to gift them with were Oscillating Dragon Bone Hoops. These she found fascinating reading of them. They were roughly twelve to eighteen inches across from edge to edge cut from great powerful dead dragon femur bones. They rings themselves were one inch from top to bottom and only a 1/32 inch thick. They were inlaid with Valyrian steel that had been poured into glyphs cut into the bone. They looked like oversized doughnuts that she found in the specialty shops bakers from Myr. Only the holes were much bigger with the Dragon Bone Hoops. The bakers were from a guild of bakers called Krispy Kreme. Gods they were so good fresh out of the fryer! Myrcella thought licking her lips.

Maester Marwyn had written that the disks when properly spun and the right incantations spoken could displace anything in their path. He had tested them on solid granite and could attest to their ability to cut through solid rock. He had succeeded in cutting through six feet before he fell exhausted. He was sure again a Dragon Lord of Daenerys strength could use them without becoming so weakened.

His research said they had been extremely rare and used mainly in warfare and espionage. The Valyrians had had slaves to do their mining operations. Thus, the rare artifacts were not used for such mundane task.

Marwyn had requested that a wall be available to demonstrate. Arianne had spoken to the owner telling him any damage would be repaired and additional repairs and minor renovations he might have planned would be done with the wall restoration. He had gladly accepted the offer. He had sent in a “small” list of slight improvements. Myrcella wondered what the definition of “small” was with the owner after perusing the list.

Arianne did not quibble and nor would Myrcella.

The Maester said he had several other items of interest he would bring.

Loreza came into the room. She came over and gave her wife a quick kiss on the lips. “He comes.” The Sand Snakes were never loquacious and taciturn by nature but she was a little more stiff than normal. She always became focused when she was on a mission to protect her wives. She started to move off. Myrcella gripped her wrist gently.

“Where is he?”

“He just got off the barge from Godsgrace. It is at the far docks as we requested. The Greenblood River is running fast and they are having trouble tying up the barge.”

Good Myrcella thought. She pulled Loreza onto her lap. The Sand Snake could easily have resisted her efforts but she came willingly. “Don’t fret my love. Let Arianne have her time with the ‘man’. It is for our benefit she is sleeping with Maester Marwyn. It will increase our status and power within Dorne and in the Queen’s Small Council.”
“I know. I just don’t like it Myrcella!” her sweet Sand Snake whined. Loreza was so cute when she was jealous. Her wife had on her combat leathers so access to her delectable body was limited. Myrcella smiled wickedly. That would not stop her quest! The thick leggings and vest of leather were strapped in place. She had become most adept with the Sand Snakes armor and its laces, clasps and hooks. She patiently but quickly undid the hooks, buttons and loosened laces that allowed her access to her wife’s groin area. Loreza watched her intently with her dark eyes her body limpid leaned into Myrcella’s body. Loreza’s body complaint. The fierce warrior shivering in want for her wife.

The warrior cupped the back of Myrcella’s head and brought Myrcella’s mouth to Loreza’s. Their lips first melded and sucked gently on. The sounds of wet smooching filled the room. The sweet bee stung lips a sweet offering but the Sand Snake was filled with fuck hunger. She needed much more. Her tongue swiped hard on Myrcella’s teeth. The blonde beauty parted her teeth and gagged in hard love feeling her wife surge her tongue into her mouth. Their tongues meeting and twining in a slippery dance of wet wiggling and flipping love in Myrcella’s mouth. Both women jolting hard with the sweet sensations.

With awkward hand movements, Myrcella’s mind clouded with lust, she worked her hand to slip between Loreza’s leathers and snaked underneath her trousers and short cloth. Myrcella twisted the silk short cloth to get out of the way of her fingers. She found a waiting cunt sopping wet. The labia lips swollen and slimy with oily fuck juice. Up and down Myrcella ran her long fingers stroking he wet slit and rigid clit. The blonde beauty loved the feel of Loreza's bulging clitoral hood underneath her fingertips and the slimy engorged labia lips rolled between her stroking fingers. Myrcella using her first two fingers to pinch and squeeze Loreza' clit in its nest and jerk squeeze her wet labia lips. Loreza cried out and Myrcella used the opportunity to surge her tongue into Loreza’s chuffing mouth. Their tongues meeting and twining in a slippery dance of wet wiggling and flipping love in Myrcella’s mouth. Both women jolting hard with the sweet sensations.

Myrcella started to fork and rub her wife’s sopping wet pussy harder with her rubbing fingers. Her fingertips now jacking hard her sweet Sand Snakes rock hard clit. She rolled Loreza’s thick inner lips and rubbed over her clit aggressively. The blonde beauty loved the feel of her Sand Snake’s clit jacked by her harsh rubbing fingers. The impact of fingers into and over the knotted clitoral hood. Loreza’s body jolted as she gurgled. Her eyes glazed with lust. Myrcella needed to be fast. They had to be in place to protect Arianne but they still had time for a quickie. She loved the feel of Loreza’s hard pea sized clit squirting and jerking between her rubbing fingers and how her labia lips slimily slide over her jerking forking fingers working up and down in a fast piston rhythm. Loreza groaned deep in her throat and kissed Myrcella fiercely her hands threaded into her wife’s hair holding their mouths tight as tongues dueled wetly. The Sand Snake broke their kiss as they both needed air. Her face slashed with fierce shocks of pleasure as she felt her woman fork and rub over her now slobbery wet clit. Myrcella feeling cunt cream pooling around her wife's groin making it opaque with snail snot. The sodden cunt making squishy obscene wet noises so hot to hear. Myrcella rubbed Loreza’s clit harder with her fingers pressing in on the sides of Loreza’s clitoral hood as she jerked her wife off. Myrcella knew what her sweet Sand Snakes needed.

Myrcella and Arianne had had to talk and talk to the daughters of Oberyn. They were fierce and very, very gay like Myrcella. They did not like it one bit that a man would be touching their wife. They did not mind other women touching their wives and they did not mind if their father fucked any of them but that was as far as they could countenance.

Myrcella kept reminding them that Arianne was bisexual and they should be thankful that they had Arianne who could do this for them. Otherwise one of them would have to have soiled themselves with the Maester. No matter how well he fucked them they could never truly enjoy it. They may have epic orgasms for a body always craved pleasure but their souls would not be touched. They would have to enjoy laying with Marwyn or really fake it. Arianne had none of those limitations in sleeping with the man.

They had whined and bitched incessantly about the situation. The twins knew it was necessary but that did not stop them from complaining vociferously.

Dorea had been furious and wanted to force the man to give them the information. “I say we fillet the bastard with our bullwhips! He will beg to give us the information!”

Loreza snarled “The fucking pig! I dare he demand compensation. He should beg us to take his meager offerings!”

Myrcella had told them they would not harm anyone. They had read the books and took classes at Battleborne Academy. Any information from torture was unreliable at best and outright lies otherwise. When a person was in great pain and fear they would say anything to save themselves. No. Arianne’s way was the best way. She would get the unvarnished truth and get a great fuck on top of that. “One should never say no to an orgasm” Myrcella told her two fierce wives.

Still her two Sand Snakes were not mollified. They still snarled and bitched.

When Arianne started to snuffle and her eyes got that unsure look Myrcella had been furious and glared at her two Sand Snakes. Seeing Arianne crying and knowing they were the cause of it finally broke through their silly rancor. They had gone to Arianne and begged forgiveness. She of course accepted their contrition but it was the sweet hard intense fucking they gave her and then her sucking them of so many time their cunts were worn out and on fire that finally allayed her hurt. The Sand Snakes had been most solicitous towards Arianne since making amends.

The normally fierce Sand Snakes hovering around Arianne doing all her bidding and seeking to do for her to make up for their surly actions. Letting Arianne pound their fuck holes to ruin had helped all around into a much better mood. Myrcella had loved watching the Sand Snakes all docile and submissive. It was beautiful watching Arianne straddling their hips on her feet slamming her thick shaft straight down Loreza and Dorea’s shit pipes with their bodies on their knees faces pressed into the mattress. Arianne snarling leaned over them gripping their hair and slamming their faces into the mattress repeatedly and rubbing their faces savagely into the sheets.

The Sand Snakes crying out and cawing hard. Their faces all dark with blood rush from their facial abuse. It was so hot seeing Loreza’s eyes all crossed and vacant with Arianne jerking her neck back cruelly and slamming her face into the bed viciously. Loreza’s wails and repeated screams of orgasm sweet. Dorea had gotten a huge dose of face slamming and Arianne rotating her face into mattress pressing down hard with her hair knot. Dorea’s screams of her orgasms swallowed by the sheets jammed into her face and mouth. Around and around Arianne ground her niece’s face into the bed as she cummed hard with full body spasms all the while her face slammed and ground into the bed.

The twin sisters were tops but every once in a while they enjoyed being topped themselves and wanted it hard and cruel. Myrcella and Arianne were more than happy to give me them pain and abuse they required at those times.

Loreza and Dorea had accepted the situation but it still made them cross with Myrcella at times. They were careful to give Arianne their full support. The whole situation still fired them up. This of course made them very horny. Myrcella suspected Loreza’s little bitch fest had been just for this reason. To get some sweet fucking from her wife.

Thinking on this the blonde teen slipped two fingers into the tight greasy fuck sleeve of her Sand
Snake. The well lubricated fuck hole hungrily taking the full length of Myrcella’s long fingers. The wet heat gripping tight her fingers working in and out her drooling quim. Myrcella wormed her fingers deep up into her sweetie’s tight cunt. Loreza threw her head keening in pleasure. The blonde worked her fingers in and out her slut’s twat with slow sensual strokes. She used her bent thumb to hammer Loreza’s clit again and again with powerful strikes. Loreza’s tight pussy sucking down and gripping the fingers fucking the dark hued woman’s cunt expertly. Myrcella looking down and up to see the sloppy wet cunt she harpoon fucked and the face of her wife twisting in shocking bliss.

Slowly now, the almost eighteen year old blonde stroked her wife’s kitty. Her fingers pausing on the out stroke and slam fucking in harder into the sloppy wet couchie. Loreza’s groin now slavered with fuck juice and her cunt a soupy mess that slurped with the digits pumping harder into her spasming quim. In and out Myrcella pumped her fuck juice soaked digits. The force of the piston motion increasing in speed and force now harpoon fucking her wife’s dripping wet trim. Loreza’s mound compressed and contorted with the hard knuckle wraps pounding into the wet cunt.

“Unnggg oh oh yessssssss!” Loreza gurgled her body jolting and hitching hard. Her ass wiggling on Myrcella’s lap. Her groin rotating up and grinding her cunt up into the fingers pounding her love box. Her hips humping hard to take Myrcella’s fingers deep into her snatch. The sweet fuck flowing as both women now sweated in sweet love. Cum wept down Loreza's ass crack and slavered all over her groin and inner twitching thighs. Myrcella grit her teeth ram fucking the burbling cunt of her wife. Her bent knuckles of her free fingers pounding her slut's vulva.

Myrcella was slam fucking Loreza with three fingers now her mouth locked tight to Loreza’s groaning mouth and her tongue down Loreza’s throat. Myrcella slit her eyes open. She loved seeing Loreza’s brown face grimacing and snarling. Her throat cawing in helpless chuffs and moans that were swallowed by her devouring mouth. Loreza’s closed eyelids showed he eyes rolled back in her skull and rolling around in spastic jerks her pupils half rolling down before rolling up again with harsh jerks. The motions bulging her eyelids.

They broke their kiss gasping for needed oxygen. Loreza gripped Myrcella’s shoulders hard her fingers clenched. She stared into Myrcella’s eyes hard. She was chuffing with her body jerking with sudden spasms of bliss. Myrcella grunted slamming her fingers like battering rams up into her sweet wife’s hot flowing cunt. Her fingers and wrist now milky with female love snail snot. Her bent thumb hammering the rock hard clit nestled in its slimmed love nest.

“Hunngg hhnngg uummmggg …” Loreza groaned and then a look of concentration came on her face “Look at me when—auggg nnnngg shit—fuck nngrrrrrr nnnnggg … look—look—at me—hhhhnnnggg nnnngggg when I cum Myrcella. Oh shit! Goodssdaamnnnn—aauunnggggg! … Watch me cum baby! I want you to see the ‘shock’ when I I—I—I—I—oohhhhhhh godssdaammnnnn nnnnggg nnnnggg … watch me cum Myrcella.”

Myrcella loved watching her sluts cum so she was totally focused on Loreza’s face. She needed to see the ‘shock’ of Loreza cumming hard on her fingers.

Then a hard spasm gripped and shook Loreza violently. Her eyes shocked wide open her mouth falling open in an O of searing fucking bliss. Their eyes were indeed locked together as ecstasy gripped and throttled Loreza with searing burning shocking pleasure. Myrcella saw the jolts hit Loreza hard her whole body filled with hard spasms. Her face was slashed and twisted with womb rending bliss.

Her head whipping around Loreza screamed her shattering ecstasy ripping her cunt inside out. “GGGOOODOODSSDDDDAAAMMNNNNNNNN! UUNNGHHHHIIIIIEEEEEEEE!
UUNNGGHHNNGGGGIIIII! AAAWWWWOOGGGGGGGG!" Loreza screamed long blood curdling screams as her body folded and unfolded. Her body contracting and jackknifing hard on Myrcella’s lap. The Sand Snake’s body spasming and slapping into the blonde’s body in the throes of her killing orgasm. Myrcella used her free arm to help Loreza on her lap. Her right hand slamming the exploding trim of her wife. Her fingers squiring a cauldron of slurping wet and hot sucking folds of Loreza's rupturing cunt. The hot gushing love cream felt so good soaking Myrcella's long fingers.

More seeming horrendous convulsions tore at the Sand Snakes body. Myrcella cupped the back of Loreza’s head having seen the shock. She mated their mouths tight. Their heads tilted over. Loreza instinctively opening her mouth wide for her wife’s long tongue. Her sweet wife screamed and screamed into her mouth as the ferocious orgasm pummeled Loreza senseless for a minute. “Uunngggfffff! Mmnnggggffff mmpphhhhfffff … hmmfff hmmffff ooowwwnnmmmmmmmmffffff!” the screams swallowed by Myrcella’s hot hungry mouth mated tight to Loreza’s mouth.

Loreza went boneless and sagged into the beautiful blonde seventeen year old with her limp body. Myrcella pulled her fingers out Loreza now slack twat and fed her wife her cum soaked fingers.

The goggy Sand Snake gripped Myrcella’s wrist. Myrcella moaned feeling Loreza’s greedy lips clenched tight to her fingers sucking Loreza’s own cum off them. Her coochie happy and purring Loreza let Myrcella hook and tie her leathers back tight as she nibbled on her wife’s throat purring. “I can’t wait to fuck Arianne after all this. That murmur’s play she has in mind is so fucking hot!” Loreza told her wife.

Myrcella knew how to calm the savage beast in her sweet Sand Snakes breast. A hard orgasm always calmed them down and made them tractable.

Myrcella agreed with Loreza with what Arianne had planned. It was indeed sizzling.

Loreza got up after her breeches and leathers were tight and closed. “I love feeling my cunt and ass soaked in my cum” Loreza hummed while Myrcella synched up her leather armor.

She walked over to the spy hole in the wall that allowed her to see into the room next door. There Loreza observed Arianne sitting on her bed patiently waiting for her erstwhile agent and lover to arrive. She had washed and groomed herself to perfection. “Godsdamn she is so fucking beautiful Myrcella” Loreza husked over to Myrcella. Loreza had been watching her wife off and on since they had arrived two hours ago in the room taking their guard stations. Arianne patiently waiting to make sure she was ready for Marwyn when he showed up to fulfill their mutually agreed to contract.

Arianne had convinced Myrcella that Maester Marwyn was no threat but he might be trailed unawares and it never hurt to be safe. They had master keys to all the rooms. The owner had been happy to agree to that when he was offered an extra fifty gold dragons on top of the steep price they were paying for their rooms.

The Pride of Dorne had a well-established and furnished suite at Sunspear. The Viper’s Liar was still new and they had not finished furbishing their new layout at Sunspear. Cersei and Obara preferred to live in Obara’s modest abode.

The Viper’s had rented a honeymoon suite on the second floor of Nymeria’s Liar for three days and four nights for glorious fucking. Oberyn’s eldest daughter had come to visit on the third morning and early afternoon. Obara knew how to describe the hot fucking she partook of with her new wife. Her descriptions of fucking Cersei had the Pride of Dorne in heat. The elder Sand Snakes then telling the Pride of Dorne all the sweet details of all the hot fucking.
Obara had told the rest of her sisters they would have to wait to get at Cersei’s sweet hot body. She was still working on her prudish nature but soon it would happen she promised all her sisters and aunt. All had pouted including Myrcella. She wanted her mother’s hot gash gushing hot sweet cum into her mouth from a rupturing womb into her greedy hot sucking mouth. Cersei had put the fuck fever in all around Sunspear by now. All wanted to devour Cersei’s now hard warrior body.

Myrcella had stared hotly at Cersei the last two times her mother had visited them in their rooms. Cersei had gotten flustered and nervous seeing her daughter looking at her with obvious lust. Arianne found it all humorous. All the gay and bisexual women of Battleborne Academy and Sunspear wanted desperately to lie with Cersei. They all wanted to say they had slept with “Lioness of Dorne”. All knew her physical prowess on the training fields would translate into scorching sex in Cersei’s bed.

Obara promised them that Oberyn’s plan would work. Myrcella would hold Cersei’s wife to that promise. It was frustrating her no end to not be fucking her mother. Arianne, Dorea and Loreza would fuck Myrcella’s mother blind when they finally got their claws in her. Myrcella saw it all so clearly in her mind’s eye.

She and her wives sucking her mother off as her wives rode her mother’s hot sucking mouth to multiple orgasms taking turns riding Cersei’s face. Then the strap-on cocks would be strapped on and they would fuck Myrcella’s mother airtight filling her pussy, ass and throat with hard leather sand filled cocks. Their ten and elven inch shafts sliding deep in her belly and down her mother’s throat.

Her mother had loved fucking Jaime. Robert Baratheon had taken the fun and verve of het fucking away from Cersei with his cruelty and ineptness when he came to Cersei’s bed drunk and still angry that Cersei was not Lyanna. Now with Obara’s strap-on she had revived Cersei’s love of being fucked with hard dick. Cersei would go wild when she had her first DP and TP fucks the daughter knew. Myrcella couldn’t wait! Obara had promised they would the first to partake in a gangbang of Cersei and Myrcella was ecstatic with the news.

Speaking of her mother she was in the room across the hall with Dorea. They were both armed with spears. Dorea had a short sword along with her whip. They had offered Cersei a sword too but she had refused saying “My Master Trainer Myrion Dwellen has not allowed it. I will not go against his wishes. I am fine with this spear.”

What had happened to her mother and who was this imposter? Myrcella still found herself thinking. This woman was kind, loving, gentle, a prude and followed the rules religiously. Her mother loved to cook and clean Obara and hers home. When Myrella had first heard all this she had nearly fallen on her face. True her mother’s tongue was still acidic and vitriolic when pissed off and it was fun to watch but most of the time she was sweet and gentle now. Gods she wanted her mother so bad! She could almost taste her mother’s succulent trim in her hot gobbling mouth. That cunt exploding and filling Myrcella’s mouth with hot sweet mommy cum! The thought nearly had Myrcella swooning.

Cersei was the muscle in any relationship. She truly had become something almost otherworldly now. Her strength and speed on the practice fields matched and exceeded all others now. But that did not change Cersei’s love of Obara. She was gentle as Obara wanted though she roughed up her wife with the best of them when Obarra was in sub mode and needed some masochistic fun and games.

Obara had regaled the Pride of Dorne with tales of Cersei slapping, whipping, flogging, caning and punching Obara in the stomach, upper chest and thighs like she loved it. The beautiful blonde pulling her punches but still delivering blows that Obara felt hard. The eldest Sand Snake loving the abuse! Cersei threw Obara into the walls, doors making them rattle in their frames and hitting the furniture hard.

The blonde MILF beauty slapped Obara’s body so hard and often when in sadistic mode she left Obara’s dark skin all reddish dark brown and splotchy from all the cruel slaps on her face and down her body to her legs down to her knees. The burning pain setting Obara’s blood on fire. It made Cersei’s deep dicking of her pussy and asshole all the better. Obara nearly passed out she cummed so hard.

Obara had waxed poetic telling the Pride of Dorne all the breath play she did with Myrcella’s mother. Obara had passed out several times when Cersei choked her out. The tight squeezing of her throat cutting off her oxygen till she had tunnel vision and her throat screamed soundless screams as her hands clawed at the hands around her throat strangling her just like she liked it. Gods Obara loved to be gasped.

Cersei loved it too. Obara choking her out. Cersei was so strong now she could easily break Obara’s choke hold on her throat with almost negligently ease now. Obara was sure Cersei now had the strength to twenty men if she exerted her full strength in a dire situation. She had simply become something magical. Despite all that raw strength no matter how much her body instinctively needed oxygen and her vision was tunneling as unconsciousness was fast approaching Cersei never broke Obara’s strangle hold from around her throat.

True, her hands tore at Obara’s fingers but she never overcome Obara’s grip. The total trust Cersei showed in Obara made Obara’s heart do pitter-patter in her chest. Being choked out in orgasm made it so much more intense as adrenaline rushed into your brain as it instinctively fought for oxygen.

Seeing Cersei’s eyes bulge and mouth shriek soundlessly and then her tongue lulling out as she started to slip into unconscious her body torn apart with massive killing seizures of hard cumming.
Only then letting Cersei breath again as her body instinctively took in chest rattling heaving breaths her body still convulsing wildly as she rode her orgasm on the edge of consciousness riding the waves of pure fucking bliss her body bucking in seizures of still hard cumming. Sometimes Cersei passing out her body going limp pressed down on Obara’s body. The hard muscled body still convulsing hard as Cersei made demented choked whinnies as she struggled back to consciousness still cumming hard. Her face still torn with ecstasy searing Cersei’s mind with pure fucking bliss.

Obara loved it all. She craved and loved the abuse and humiliation when she was in the mood to be sub and totally topped. Of course Cersei wanted it back even harder. Myrcella longed to give and receive such abuse from her mother. Myrcella was a total switch like Obara and loved to give and receive pain and humiliation. Myrcella shook her head to clear such pleasant thoughts.

That had been something new to the Pride of Dorne. The art of the choke out. Myrcella had nearly lost her mind the first time Obara choked her out to just the edge of unconsciousness and maybe over it. She had nearly died she cummed so hard. It was so hot to feel yourself strangled and loving it! To make it hotter one would pretend to try and break the hold. As the lack of oxygen grew greater the fight to breath became stronger and one really tore at the fingers around one’s throat.

Her womb had ripped out her belly while Dorea pounded her asshole and Obara fucked her cunt with Myrcella straddling her. Then Obara had reached up as her orgasm exploded and throttled her throat with both hands choking off all her air. She had fought the hands around her throat as her brain shrieked for oxygen and her eyes bulged and tongue lulled out her mouth as her world started to go black. Gods the adrenaline rush had made her cunt and asshole tear themselves inside out.
Now they choked each other out when they wanted to be dirty and ultra kinky.
She couldn’t wait to choke her mother out! The still seventeen year old shivered with thoughts of choking her mother out in orgasm. She smiled returning her mind to the present and watching over Arianne.

They had master keys to Arianne’s room but if the shit hit the fans they would need that door to come off the frame in a hurry. Her mother did not really realize how strong she had become. She was always unconsciously holding herself back until you pissed her off and then bodies went flying all over the academy grounds and the legend of Cersei Sand grew. She was still holding back but quick unconsciousness was usually your fate if you fought Myrcella’s mother now.

Cersei’s daughter and the Sand Snakes knew that the thick oaken door would not last two seconds against Myrcella’s mother’s fists. Cersei had laughed when they told her this. Cersei did not believe her own strength.

The rest of the Sand Snakes were on the other side of the suite that Arianne awaited the Maester in. They were in the room off the pallor that bordered the wall that housed Arianne. The room’s furniture had been pulled back away from the wall for the demonstration that the Maester planned to provide. Dorea and her sisters were at the spy holes but would pull back into the bedrooms when the Dragon Hoops were used.

The Sand Snakes were poised in the bedroom and small atrium awaiting their need if needed. They were armed with their whips, swords and spears.

None expected any trouble but they would be wary till the Maester had left. Obara had pulled in some of the senior female cadets to pose as patrons and whores in the main pallor downstairs and stationed in some of the rooms they had rented on the first floor. They had many spies out in the streets for the last three days watching over everything. No unusual foot traffic was observed. The ledgers were studied for any unusual pattern of long term rentals of rooms back to back which might signal an operation taking place.

All the patrons were scoped out for appearance and luggage brought that might hide weapons had been searched by the hotel staff. Nothing had been found amiss. All seemed safe but they would not relax their vigilance until the Maester had left. He would be leaving with the morning tide to procure the items he had acquired in Essos.

Myrcella heard a knock on the door. Loreza rushed to answer it before Myrcella being her protective self. Gods that made her pussy wet for her wife. She loved being protected and coddled. A Captain of the cadets was at the door. She was from the Wyl and had some of the Marchlands in her blood. Her hair brunette and skin of moderate hue. She was tall and athletic. She was a rising star at the Academy. She was also a hot fuck that the Viper’s Lair had fucked senseless the two nights before and last night she had come before the Pride of Dorne proud and naked. Hey had fucked her completely out with their strap-on cocks after sucking her off multiple times.

Gods Myrcella remember how they fucked her air tight with cocks in her three fuck holes and hot double anal and vaginal fucking. The seventeen year old had thrust back so hard to take their shafts so deep up her ass and belly as she wailed and cummed so hard for her love sluts. The slut hungrily sucking her pussy and ass of the shafts plundering her fuck holes.

Poor Obara was almost whining forgoing such pleasures until she could get Cersei loosened up. She only had extramarital trysts when Cersei was busy. Cersei gave her the freedom to fuck more but Obara wanted as much of Cersei as could get. Obara wanted to fuck others with her wife. Gods Myrcella hoped Oberyn’s plan worked. Everyone was tired of Cersei making them wait to fuck her!

Tiffally Baerley reported that the Maester was downstairs signing into the hotel. He had two novices with him and they were lugging carry bags into the hotel. That would be the items that the Maester was bringing as good faith items to bribe his way in the Queen’s good graces. He would be up soon. Myrcella thought she saw a light hitch in the filly’s giddy-up. The blonde smirked. The slut was still feeling her hard sweet fuck!

Myrcella gave the cadet a quick kiss on the lips and a firm rump squeeze that had her squealing in pleasure. Gods she couldn’t wait to suck her off again! The Cadet moved down the hall and went up the stairs. They had a room above the suite that Arianne was in. She and seven other cadets would be watching from spy holes to make sure all was well with Arianne (and also getting nice and wet for later fucking). Myrcella knew it would be a good show. Arianne could bone!

Other cadets that Tiffally had brought were in the hidden access hall behind the north wall. They too would be using spy holes to track events on the lookout for danger. Myrcella knew they too would be enjoying the show. The Maester was harmless and they had made sure no agents provocateurs had invaded the hotel. All would be safe but they would take no chances with her wife. One had to prepare for the impossible even knowing it would not happen. They would not take any risks with Arianne’s safety. They would kill two birds with the proverbial single stone.

The hot sex show much anticipated by all.

Myrcella left the desk and walked to the wall to the other spyhole in the painting that Loreza was looking through. She heard the knock on Arianne’s door. The show was about to start. They watched Arianne take a deep breath and get up from the bed and opened the door. She took a surprised breath.

Both Myrcella and Loreza pushed their eye to their spy holes. This was not the man that Arianne had describe to them. He was indeed short but he no hard ail belly. He was not skinny but stout without any protruding gut. His hair was well kempt. He had no hair that Myrcella could see in his ears or nose. The man smiled at Arianne. His smile while not blinding white was not red either. The man was famous for his slovenly appearance and being drunk most of the time. This man was sharp and focused.

Myrcella watched her wife look the man over with obvious surprise. “Forgive me for saying this Marwyn but what the fuck happened to you. You look hot man!”

The man smiled bigger and came up to Arianne hugged her tightly his right hand moving around Arianne to cup and massage Arianne’s ass cheek sensually. Arianne moaned hard. The voluptuous woman leaning into the hard bodied man. A wanton look on her face.

“You still know how to treat a woman I see” Arianne husked. He was an inch taller than Arianne Myrcella observed. He was short for a man but still taller than her wife. Myrcella felt the current of hot desire already building between Arianne and the Maester. That heat already settling in her loins making her moist. She glanced over at Lorenza. She had her eye glued to the peep hole. Her look totally focused her breathing slightly hitched as was Myrcella. Seeing Arianne aroused made all of them aroused. Myrcella knew all watching this tableau were getting hot watching.

Intently, Myrcella watched their mouths come together and kissed hungrily. The Maester was a confident man and took what was freely offered to him. His tongue immediately prying apart Arianne’s lips and then teeth open and slamming his tongue deep into the slut’s mouth. Arianne moaned hard in wanton lust. Her body sagging into hard the now hard body of the Maester. Marwyn looping his strong arms around Arianne’s voluptuous body to his body mashing her full tits into his hard manly chest.

Myrcella could see their tongues flipping around in Arianne’s mouth. She sagged into the Maester as he tilted his head over and slammed his tongue down Arianne’s throat with hard spearing thrusts. Her knees turned to jelly and the Maester held her to his body. The man now gripped Arianne’s ass cheeks and ground her twat into his large hard cock bulging out his trousers at his groin and down his left thigh. He rode Arianne up and down his hard shaft her cunt dragging on the thick long shaft that would soon be plundering her fuck holes. Their moans filled the room.

Several cadets were in the room as well now. They had slipped in to supplement Loreza in case trouble should arise. It wouldn’t but again extreme prudence was being exercised. Their eyes glued to their peep holes located in another painting in Arianne’s room. The girls all lesbian sluts but who did not enjoy watching a woman being seduced to be fucked hard and deep. One of the cadets after a minute made a whiny noise her eye pressed hard into her peep hole. Her face slightly flushed with desire.

Arianne was surrounded by a rings of steel that extended out beyond the hotel. She was safe. Many were on full alert letting the heir of Dorne and the inner ring relax and enjoy the hot show about to be shown them.

The two lovers broke their kiss. Arianne sucked on Marwyn’s tongue as he withdrew it form her mouth. Her lips clenched on the long appendage sucking greedily. As they broke apart spit roped from his tongue to Arianne’s lips. The spit bridge breaking and falling onto her chin glinting obscenely in the soft lantern light. Their eyes hungrily eyed each other.

Seeing that Marwyn had gotten his body in shape was definitely turning Arianne on. Myrcella glanced over at Loreza. She looked at Myrcella. Her eyes were dilated. “That is fucking hot” her wife spoke to her softly. Myrcella smiled at her wife. This was going to be one hot fuck to watch! They went back to looking at the events in Arianne’s room.

“Let us finish the business transaction why don’t we Arianne. I want our time together to be unhindered. You agree?” the Maester asked Arianne.

The voluptuous slut mutely shook her head yes. Her long thick nipples jutting out her sheer top.

The Maester opened the door to the suite and called his two young novices into the room lugging their bags. The boys set them down on the carpeted floor and fidgeted. They moved from foot to foot. The Maester bent down and opened the bags and riffled through them. He looked up and smiled. “You did well Gerrad—Warrek. You can go to the room reserved for you on the first floor. The youths bowed slightly and rushed out of the room giggling.

Myrcella had paid a room for the two novices per the Maester’s request. She suspected why they had been so anxious.

“Why were your charges so anxious Marwyn?” Arianne asked with a sly tone and a smile on her face.

The Maester laughed “Young love. They don’t think I know they are fucking every chance they get. They will be down their sucking each other’s cocks and banging booty the whole night through I am sure. They probably think they have died and gone to the heavens we teach them to not believe in.”

Arianne smiled and went to the bed and sat down on it her hand stroking the silk sheets. The Maester sat down beside her. “So what brought on this new Marwyn. I must say it looks quite good on you.” Arianne

The man saw Arianne’s hungry eyes wandering over his now hard handsome body. The Maester of Magic preened at the intimate inspection. He then sobered “I had a health scare last year. My heart was racing and my legs aching. I was starting to retain water. Our Maesters specializing in medicine told me I would probably have a heart attack soon. These are great times. I wanted to be around to live and affect these times of possible great change. I dedicated myself to losing weight and getting back in shape. I must say I have not felt this good in two decades.”

“I gave up the drink and the red leaf. It was hard and I went through withdrawal but I was determined. I never lost my faculties but I feel so clear headed and focused now. I will never go back.”

Arianne was genuinely happy for the man. She had always liked Marwyn. “I’m happy for you. Life is short enough without putting ourselves in the grave before we need to. So are going to show me what you have?”

The Maester laughed. He took her hand and placed it at the thick protrusion in his breeches. “You know what I have my sweet Arianne. You will see that soon enough. We both know why I am here.” Arianne rolled her eyes at the man’s narcissism. Her hand still squeezed his thick hard cock and stroked the python that would soon be giving her so much pleasure. He knew what she wanted to see first. “You will not be disappointed. I do not mind parting with these items I have brought. I will be replenishing my stocks with my trip to Essos. I made quite the haul I must confess. Humbly of course.”

Arianne snorted. He still had his sense of humor she saw. Her mouth watered with thoughts of again sucking on his thick veined shaft. The feel of his foreskin riding up and down his shaft as her lips sucked hard on his uncircumcised dick. She couldn’t wait to take his cock deep into her tight pussy and asshole. She had a task to perform first though. She knew with these items and the news he had to give her that the Pride of Dorne would place them highest on the Queen’s personal list of trusted and valuable advisors.

The man went to the first bag and started to unloosen the laces. It was much longer than the first bag. He reached in and pulled out one by one six three foot long Dragon Glass Candles. Even inert they seemed to glow with an unearthly brilliance. The air was filled with static even in Myrcella and Loreza’s room. Myrcella wondered if others felt it too. She noticed the six candles were indeed slender as a sword, ridged and twisted, glittering black. The Maester picked one up and procured from the bag a holder sized to hold the candle.

He put it on the table in the center of the room. Arianne looked at the candle holder and then the Maester with a raised eyebrow. “It is pretty but I am not sure that is worth my pretty pussy and ass Marwyn.”

The man leered at her. “Everything comes with a price with you doesn’t it Arianne” the man chortled.

Arianne laughed with great mirth. “That is like the pot calling the kettle black. You have never given anything away in your fucking life Marwyn. Nothing is given only bartered.” Arianne laughed again. “Not that my pussy and ass are complaining mind you. Can you light it?”

“Yes I can” the Maester spoke while putting the candle in its holder. “It takes me great effort. I must warn you that a group has formed in the Citadel. They too are using magic. They are using it to destroy it but they are using magic all the same. They do not realize that to truly use magic to its fullest you must come to it with your heart open to possibilities, and, thus, they limit themselves. I am sure Daenerys can easily light the candle though, as can Arya and Cersei I suspect. Time will tell if my hypothesis is correct.”
“What is your hypothesis?”

“Magic has chosen them for some great purpose. The Dragon Queen and the forces she has aligned with her will put down the Ice King but I feel she has other tasks ahead of her as do Arya and Cersei but that is a conversation for another day.”

“I have left a candle lit in my study in the Citadel. The Trioka do not realize that I am onto them. They have no idea I have it. I have left it in care of my most gifted student.” The man took a deep breath. “I will now speak some spells in High Valyrian. I will have to concentrate hard. The Valyrians seemed to have a natural affinity to magic that the rest of us do not.”

He started to speak in a soft murmur the language of the now long dead empire. He spoke the spells staring hard at the candle sweat already beaded on his forehead and then running down his face.

Suddenly, the candle was burning with flames that jumped up nearly two feet. The flames filled with colors and shapes that writhed all over each in a serpentine dance. The flames were silent and gave off no heat. The colors seemed to shimmer and burn with an intensity that was clearly not natural.

“Arianne come here please” the Maester held out his hand. Arianne came to him. He pulled her tight to his body. “Look deep into the flame.”

Arianne did and then gasped “I see it. I see our quarters and your student! I can see you still live like a slob!”

“Be quiet please” Marwyn spoke to Arianne. “Landar … Landar can you hear me?”

From a far away place Arianne and Mrycella heard faintly somehow “I hear you Maester. The candle is flaming bright and the flames are writhing sensually.”

“I will be shutting down the candle Landar. Good work.”

Marwyn spoke a loud word in High Valyarian and traced a glyph in the air. The flames seemed to resist for a moment and then were no more. The Maester was obviously taxed.

“I will regain my strength in a minute. If I was to keep the link open for ten minutes I would be totally exhausted and it would take me a full day to recover. This distance between Oldtown and here is my limit I feel. The Troika is using Glass Candles but their distance is more limited I think and can only pass quick messages. The Lords of old Valyrian had no such restrictions. The passages clearly state they could communicate across the known world easily for as long as they wished. They could perform magic through the links formed between the candles.”

“We cannot. I am not sure if you have to be Valyrian to be able to truly use the candles or were the Valyrians merely astute in magic. It is probably a mix of the two. Daenerys is of pure Valyrian blood. I am sure she can use any and all magical artifacts of her homeland and culture. She is untrained I know but I think that can be overcome. How quickly I do not know. We have no one to teach her.”

“Still I am sure that Daenerys will have no problem or Arya for that matter if given time and guidance. Arya Stark has the innate strength and has learned the language of Valyria. They both are able to light rune swords that were tuned for others. In all of Valyrian history that I have been able to read of only a handful of the strongest Dragon riders were so powerful. It is strange that two would appear at one time. I am sure that Cersei would light one herself though according to a Sand Witch I met she will soon take up the Sword of Dayne.”

The man shook his head. “I wonder if we are entering into a new age of not Heroes but of “You have a problem with that Marwyn?” Arianne asked in an aggrieved tone.

The Maester laughed boisterously. “Hell no! I love it. Stuff it up my superiors’ assholes! I for one have no use for science” he paused “I got a little carried away there … we need a balance is my thought. The one counterbalancing the other. I for one hope that Daenerys Targaryen issues in a new age where magic is equal if not ascendant to science. Magic is ruled by the heart and science by the mind. I will always trust the heart over the mind.”

“But science has a purpose. It propels man forward in the world. There have been paintings found in caves that are thought to be tens of thousands of years old. They show a world where man was in fear of the animals of the world and worshiped them. If not for our natural curiosity and seeking of knowledge we might still be in those caves. It is science that led man out of the caves.”

The Maester went back to the first bag. He reached into the opened bag. He pulled out a purple trapezchedron shaped crystal that easily fit in the palm of his closed hand if he chose. He showed the small crystal to Arianne who took it when he shook his hand encouraging her to take it.

Myrcella watched Arianne take up the crystal. She watched her wife look at the crystal held between her thumb and index finger. Arianne turned it around and over looking at it curiously before looking back at the Maester.

“This is called a Dragon Pupil. It is a talisman meant to detect the use of magic near the holder of the crystal. The history of the Targaryen’s in Westeros is bloody and deadly. The House of Daenerys lineage was considered the lowest in Valyria. The Great Houses in that dead land were just as vicious with each other as they were with their foes. They could be as cruel to each other as they were to those they conquered. They were always attacking each other’s Houses with direct physical and magical attacks.”

“These crystals are easy to use and require little magical potency. I have the spells necessary to activate the crystal in the carrying bag. Children carried these crystals to warn of imminent magical attack. I think Daenerys should carry this. I have one on my person. It will forewarn the Queen and let her know she may be about to be attacked.”

Myrcella listened to the man finish describing the Dragon Pupil.

He went over to the next bag and pulled out four pendants. It had the jewelry and chains that were in the notes he had sent to them. The purple and pink baubles beautiful. He then pulled out two shallow basins and two medium sized flasks with stoppers.

He set one basin on the table and unstopped the flask and poured out a purplish liquid that seemed almost solid as it slowly fell out of the flask and into the basin. The liquid slowly spreading out in the dish. He then stood up and put a chain around Arianne’s neck and led her to the dresser. He asked her to turn her back to him and pick something up and hold it in front of the bauble. He asked her to not let him see it.

He then spoke in High Valyrian and moved the liquid with a small stirring spoon made of bronze he had pulled out of the carry bag. He looked down murmuring. “You are holding before the jewel not one thing but two things you sneaked off the dresser. One is your hair brush—you need to clean it I might add and you are also holding a pearl hair clasp. It has engraving on it—please bring it closer to the jewel … yes—“form your loving Sand Snakes. Loreza—Dorea.”

Arianne turned around. “I am impressed. These will be most useful in espionage.”
The Maester was sweating but only lightly this time. He held up the basin and tilted it over the flask. Arianne was about to tell Marwyn that his aim was off but the thick liquid angled out thirty degrees to flow back into the flask with not one drop spilled.

Myrcella was very impressed. Four sets of the jewels. The Queen would not need all four. Myrcella thought that the Pride of Dorne should claim one of the necklaces to use in service of Dorne.

“The next thing I have to gift are Dragon Bone Hoops.” He reached into the bag and pulled out hoops with both hands. They were twelve inches in diameter. The hoops were thin in thickness. He stood up and twisted his hands as he flung the hoops down towards the wooden floor and fine spun Dorne rugs. Myrcella expected the hoops to fall over especially on the rugs. Instead they spun lightly on the thin sliver of metal touching wood or fabric. The hoops were jet black except for where the dark blue of Valyrian steel rippled in the cut bone.

“These were cut from the thigh bones of mighty dredd dragons of the most High and powerful Dragon Lords once they had died. The Valyrian steel poured into the glyph shapes cut into the bone. These glyph pull out the magic innate in the bones of dragons.”

Arianne gasped along with her wives in the next room. The hoops were now spinning into each other and forming spheres with the spinning hoops somehow constantly flowing through each other to make larger spheres. The circumferences of the spheres impossibly passing through each other. Soon the spheres that were roughly eighteen inches in diameter were touching and forming larger spheres that formed and broke apart. The twirling circles now making a pulsing sound and the air around them rippled distorting the images behind them.

The Maester went to the first larger carry bag and pulled out two rods of Valyrian steel a quarter inch round. They were covered the length of their three foot long length with Valyrian runes. The Maester put one rod in each hand.

“Stand back Arianne. Is there anyone in the apartment next door?”

Arianne easily lied “No it is abandoned per your request. You can control those rings? I told the owner only the wall would be damaged.”

Myrcella admired how Arianne was checking to make sure her nieces were safe in the adjoining rooms. She knew they would be retreating to other rooms in the suite but she was still cautious with their safety. Her question to the Maester giving them time to move away from the wall and hide themselves.

“Yes. I can control the Hoops.”

He slowly lowered the rods to touch the spinning hoops. Arianne in the room watched with wide eyes. Myrcella and Loreza in the next room also watched with large eyes. They all watched the Maester use his rods to skim along the edge of one of the orbs spinning on an unknown axis. The Maester ran the rods along the circumference of the sphere and lifted it up impossibly on its edges. He moved it till it was spinning on another sphere. The two spheres had been spinning in their own orbits at different angles and speeds but were now perfectly synched with each. The spheres spinning with seeming great speed. The column impossibly was stable resting on the thin metal rods they rested on.

They now spun in the air in perfect synch. Arianne gasped when he removed the rods and the discs remained in the air spinning in perfect sync. Marwyn spoke softly in Valyrian. The discs remained spinning.
The Maester then used the rods to corral the third sphere and lifted it off the ground. Marwyn maintained the merest metal to metal contact ninety degrees apart on the spinning orb. Slowly he lifted the third disk up from the floor. He placed it on the first two orbs.

They now hummed loudly and speed up. The air around them rippling and seeming to fold in on itself. Objects behind them blurred and indistinct. The Maester now with his rods touched on the edge the three perfectly synched spinning orbs by the middle sphere. He held them out at his chest level. The air was filled with energy that was felt but unseen.

He walked towards the wall. Arianne cringed away expecting the rings to explode apart. Instead where the whirling disks touched the wall it took the wall away with each spinning cycle of the spinning disks. The rings ate through the wall effortlessly with each spin of the hoops. A hole had been eaten that was four and half feet tall and eighteen inches wide. He moved the rings around until a door roughly four by eight feet had been cut through the plaster and wood.

The material of the wall not splintered and on the floor. Instead the material was gone as if eaten by the spinning discs of ancient Valyria.

He walked back and put one rod on the bottom of the spinning hoops supporting them easily. He took the other rod in his right hand and slapped it down hard on the top of the rings. They immediately stopped spinning and fell lifeless to the floor.

“I have cut through eight feet of granite in five minutes underneath the Citadel. That was my limit, exhausted by the effort. There is nothing except Valyrain steel that can resist the spinning hopes. No defensive fortification is safe.”

All were impressed. The Queen could easily penetrate any enemy’s defense with those hoops.

The Maester was tired and sat down in a chair. He was sweating heavily.

“I need to rest.”

“I have one more gift. There are two rods about two feet long and three inches in diameter. They are called Lightning Rods. They absorb energy. I have set them out in fields during electrical storms. They seem to attract lightning. The lightning strikes the rods repeatedly. They glow hot and bright and then fade back to their native black. For up to a week they will be hot to the touch.”

“They will also absorb the heat of fires. They seem able to hold onto energy. In text I have read how they were used as weapons to hurl electrical attacks on enemies. They were also used to power magical spells. I cannot use them. Maybe the Queen can use them.”

Arianne thanked the man for the gifts for the Queen. She had no desire to not give them to Daenerys. She was not a mage anyways. She needed to discover what the Maester had learned of threats to the Queen. “Tell me of the threats to the Queen Marwyn.”

“I come to you Arianne and not the Queen because I fear I had some part in this.”

“I see. You want us to speak for you to the Queen. Speak of your help. Make intercession with her in your change of heart.” Arianne spoke searching the man’s face. She was satisfied with what she saw. He had not needed to tell Arianne how he had once worked against the Queen’s interest.

Myrcella too was satisfied with what she saw. He would still be watched in case he was an accomplished liar but she was confident he would prove himself true.

“Yes. She is famous for most harshly dealing with those who have attacked her or her dragons.”
“Dragons?”

“Yes. We have developed with help from the Sea Lord of Braavos a poisonous gas that can bring down the Queen’s dragons. He was given support of the House of Black and White. They have developed a formula that should negate the dragon’s strength and their ability to fly. They will die if they breathe enough of the gas or be left weak as newborn kittens if they survive the gas itself. They can then be easily dispatched.”

“Why would Braavos attack the Queen? It makes no sense.”

The Maester of Magic gave Arianne the eye with a look that said ‘you do not know? How could you not?’

“Two reasons. One, they started this project when she first appeared from the Red Wastes. They feared she might be trying to institute a new slave trade with her as the leader. She was proving herself to be greatest Field Marshall Essos had ever seen. They feared she might set her sight on Braavos.”

“Her conquest of the Khalasars on the Dothraki Sea and then her one by one conquering of the Slave Cities filled Braavos with fear. She was doing with three dragons what Valyria had not been able to accomplish with the sky full of dragons. Her tactics were brilliant and all fell before her.”

“When that fear was allayed another new fear rose to take its place. Whose side would she choose?” He saw the look of question in Arianne’s face. “Braavos is very unsettled with the conflict between the Iron Bank and the House of Black and White. The Sea Lord favors the Faceless Men but many of his most powerful adversaries favor the Iron Bank. What side will the Queen fall on? The lessor Sea Lord seek the poison gas as a weapon in case the queen comes with her dragons to defend the Iron Bank.”

“Also, the lessor sea lords have formed liaisons with the sect of the Skull Walkers as a counterbalance. They had been gone many millennium but have again appeared. We know they have returned as does the House of Black and White but they have hidden themselves away. They are a vile and contemptible religion that long ago forsook their humanity for power and a perverted immortality. The ShadowBenders were thought to have annihilated them three thousand years ago. Evidently not.”

The Maester sighed. “Also, the septons of Balor have been talking with the Grand Maester. The Queen is bringing too much change to Westeros to fast. They seek to work with my order to bring her down. Our Maesters are no friends of the church but the church has a secret sect of ancient warriors called the Illuminati. They are adapt at all fighting skills and dark magics. They are a most dastardly order. I hate them. They seek to again raise up the Septons to be a mighty force in Westeros. That cannot be allowed to happen.”

“Do you have any proof of these Illuminati? I thought the Faith of the Seven had the Faith Militant for matters of military concern. I know they have been disbanded but wouldn’t they reconstitute that order? Why form a new order?”

With a grim smile Maester Marwyn answered “The Faith Militant is a blunt instrument Arianne. Also, to form the Faith Militant again would be an overt action. It would take time to form and then train up to stand against the might the Queen has formed. She would crush it even as it was formed. The Trioka needs to work in the shadows to achieve their goals.”

“The Illumanit have exited for some time but have only been used for the most delicate of missions. They have been used to keep their own order in line following the will of the High Septon. They are only shadows and whispers but they exist I assure you Arianne. They have been saved for use in only times of great crisis. The Faith of the Seven deem that Daenerys Targaryen is such a threat.”

“Our order does not support the Septons but there are rogue Masters in my order who are working with the High Septons. I am sure of it. We must be on our guard against them. They are still solidifying their ties to these traitors and making their plans but I think they will strike after the Wright War is fought and won. They know to let the Queen take on the threat that might annihilate all life.”

Myrcella believed the man and she knew that Arianne did too. Myrcella was even surer now that the man could be fully trusted. His aims might not purely align with theirs or the Queens but they aligned enough to form a profitable alliance for both sides.

Myrcella saw that the Maester had recovered his strength. He stood up. He had a hungry look in his eyes. Myrcella smirked. It was time to complete the transaction.

“I believe you have special payment for me sweet Arianne.”

Arianne

Arianne was in the royal bath suite that was near their suite of rooms that she shared with her three wives. Her body was pristine with a nice thorough cleaning with cloth and soft squeegee. Up and down she had run the cloth and sponge along the swelling curves of her body cleaning it till her skin glowed. The soft fabric caressing her breast and over her shaved bald pussy. Her body tingling. She had shaved her limbs. Another advantage of being a royal with all the accruements of the royal life. She sat up from shaving her legs.

Normally, her wives were with her if they were present. Bathing a time for shared grooming and bonding. They would bath together cleaning and shaving each other making it much faster and easier. Bathing together was a special time. It was nice and sweet having your mound and anus shaved by your wives. The intimate act of shaving each other’s pussy and anus almost always led to hot sex in the bath. Water splashed everywhere with their screams echoing off the tiled walls.

But that was not for today. She was preparing herself. Arianne shivered thinking of her soon to be abuse and humiliation. Gods she loved it so. They were going to use the mission with the Maester to add spice the scenario and up the heat. Arianne got off on acting a part and keeping in character as she was ‘fucked up’ by her wives. Myrcella craved such abuse herself too but not as much as she. Arianne preferred the classic sub position by temperament but was a switch for Myrcella since the craved the same rough sex she did.

She Sand Snakes generally had the disposition of their father. They were almost always the top and sadist in their relationships. They were simply born to be dominate and aggressive. Arianne had taken on much more the submissive demeanor of her father.

Arianne gave herself a warm enema to clean herself on the inside like she had on the outside. She was about to have every orifice taken hard and rough. She moaned letting the warm water out and gave herself a second warm enema. The water filling her colon and cleansing it. She would be doing much ATM and A2P tonight. Lots of it. She was sure double anal and vag fucking would be wearing out her fuck holes. One had to prepare for such fun to get maximum pleasure. She loved being a fucking kink slut. Totally being a slut for her wives. They would pound her fuck holes so good with their thick long strap-on cocks. Cocks she never had to worry with getting soft!
Some straight women wondered why lesbians loved to be penetrated. They thought you had to give up being penetrated by a phallus. Shouldn’t lesbians be satisfied with simply going down on each other? That lesbians were only rug munchers. Penetration felt good! Most straight women did not even know of tribbing she chuckled to herself. Arianne knew that homosexuality was not anywhere near as accepted in Westeros North of Dorne. Here it was openly accepted and not discouraged by parents. Children were allowed to find their true sexual nature. They were encouraged to explore and change sexuality if that was their desire.

People changed as they grew and matured. Why couldn’t one’s concept of self. In Dorne one was free to explore one’s changing sexuality.

Arianne shivered evacuating her second enema. She was ready to be her true submissive self. She did not want it every night but she craved rough humiliating sex often. Tonight Myrcella would join in with her other wives in being the sadist. Usually, it was her with Arianne being fucked over by their Sand Snakes. Myrcella said she loved the feel of the whip!

Dorea and Loreza were tops and that was the end of that. Arianne smiled. Of course they were. They were Sand Snakes of Oberyn’s lineage after all.

That made her think of her other nieces. She smiled big. It seemed the fact that their two youngest sisters had married their aunt and a royal scion of a mighty House had got their attention. Then the princess of Lannister married their eldest sister and then taken the last name of “Sand” in honor of her wife. She was in line for the royal throne however distant and gave it all away to marry a bastard.

The older Sand Snakes had never found anyone worthy of their love. They had from time to time fucked each other but it had been mainly sport fucking. Recently, they had all seemed to come to the same conclusion at the same time. The path to happiness lie with each other. Now there was new pack though they called themselves the Viper’s Liar. Arianne had grimaced at their first choice of name of “Snake Pit”. They got so much flack they then came up with the “Adder’s lair”. It was better. Still it just lacked that roll off of the tongue quality. She had suggested the name “Viper’s Lair” and they had liked it and took it as their namesake. The name also play on their father’s nickname.

They had quickly torn the wall down between Nymeria Sand and Sarella’s royal suites and made one huge bedroom and living quarters with a large communal living area and plenty of alcoves to allow for areas to have some privacy if desired. The alcoves furnished with nice tables and divans for more intimate fucking and general relaxing around their new home.

They then made a hall to Obella’s apartment suite. This was converted to be a pair of large sitting rooms and a nice spacious kitchen with a dining area attached. They had one huge bed constructed in the larger sitting room to let all five sisters sleep together and more importantly fuck with plenty of space. Having two huge beds to fuck in made them happy. They had amores and large sofas for sitting and fucking. Arianne had smiled seeing how happy Tyene Sand and Elia were now. They had been the most unhappy and aggressive because of their lack of satisfaction in their pursuit of love.

The sisters had always been queens of the one night stands. The sex was great but as the matured they had wanted more. Sarella had once considered herself straight but over the last few years drifted into bisexuality and slowly lost interest in men. Nymeria had been like that in her youth but had decided she was gay seven years ago.

Arianne smiled when passing their suite of rooms and hearing the wails and screams of pure incestuous love. They were besotted with each other for this night, but soon the Pride of Dorne would be fucking them again. The two groups of women striving to exhaust the other. The sisters were competitive in all things. It led too much happy fucking! Arianne loved having so much pussy at her beck and call! Now many nights the sisters freely migrated from lair to lair to fuck in ever changing pairings. Arianne never tired of sucking off her many nieces. It was sooooo good to be able to suck off so many different pussies in one night!

Arianne loved all orgasms of course but she could feast on pussy all night and want more in the morning. Arianne mused on that as she walked to the entry door to the lair of the Pride of Dorne. For women it was all about giving. Sure you were taking but for lesbians the act of giving gave as much enjoyment as the taking. To look up a woman’s spasming belly and seeing her body reacting to your mouth sucking her off was just magical.

A woman felt so connected to the woman she was sucking off. To feel her grinding her sodden pussy you’re your mouth made for that intimate connection that could not be matched in het fucking. Your mouth feasting on her essence till her body exploded and her cunt ruptured filling your mouth with her pure essence. Arianne would never tire of the sweet taste of the sweet cum of women.

She was sure Obara would soon have Cersei in the family “totally” and they and the Viper’s Liar would be fucking her too. Arianne longed to have that pair in her bed. Obara looked much like herself and she liked that dynamic. And Cersei … well everyone wanted Cersei. Her now hard muscular body and great strength had all the men rock hard and women creaming their short cloths.

Life was so good for all the sisters, their aunt and the princess of Lannister. It was funny. Myrcella had wanted to go to King’s Landing and now she wanted to stay in Dorne. It was Arianne who had then wanted to go King’s Landing. That had changed of late. She had wanted to prove herself on the largest stage. Myrcella wanted to live in Dorne so Arianne would be near the Dorne throne. She had taken the name Martell and was thinking herself more and more of the Roynar.

Of late Arianne had come to agree with Myrcella. Her true destiny belonged here in Dorne. Here she could accomplish the greatest good. Here she was among people she understood and had the same shared demeanor, views and outlook on life. Here people enjoyed life and the pleasures the human body was designed to give a human. The people of Dorne did not put shame on the desires of pleasure and the desire to embrace them more fully.

She loved her homeland for fully accepting homosexual love. Here she did not have to hide her true self and neither did her nieces or Myrcella. Yes. Dorne was truly a special land.

It made Arianne’s heart beat hard in her chest thinking these thoughts. She was getting hot. She was in love and her sweet Pride was about to give her the fucking abuse she craved. They would be pounding the living shit out of her. The scion of Dorne was shaking just thinking of it. She loved to be abused by her wives. She was a strong woman but submitting herself to her wives filled her with raw aching lust. There was a power that came from submitting to your wives. Letting them abuse and humiliate her simply turned Arianne on no end.

Only with women in general and her wives specifically could she let herself go and have total trust to give her the BDSM abuse she craved and needed. She had never trusted men to satisfy this need. She had never felt connected enough to any man to ask for this most sublime and intimate giving of herself. She had let other women “rough” her up some but never like the BDSM that her Pride mates gave her.

She craved the pain and humiliation that her wives gave her. She felt totally safe with them. It turned on Arianne wildly to have her body writing with pain and humiliation they gave her. It was so hard describe to those who did not crave the whip to understand the pleasure of submitting to pain and humiliation. It was a turn on that made Arianne’s body literally throb with need and intense bursting pleasure.

She did not care that many would not understand the family dynamics of House Martell. She thanked the gods she took after her uncle and not her father. He was such a prude. She loved the joys of the flesh and sought them out.

She did not care that many if not most outside of Dorne would not understand her love of loving abuse and being fucked hard and hung up wet as they said in Dorne. Only in Dorne was all forms of expressing and taking pleasure so openly accepted. The Dorne people with their Essos heritage were a lusty people. She loved sex period but sex with women was absolutely the brass ring. She had enjoyed fucking Maester Marwyn. He had given her orgasms. Many and hard but they still missed that something special. There was no emotional depth to their sex. The sex with her pride was nothing but pure emotion and sanctified love.

When great emotion was tied to the physical pleasure of great sex the pleasure reached another sublime level. Marwyn had given her orgasms that stunned her and throttled her with fucking bliss but she had still not felt that soul deep connection with the Maester that she shared with women.

She left the bathing chamber and walked into the small antechamber where a large mirror was on one wall. She walked before it. She smiled seeing her beautiful voluptuous body in front of the mirror. She had large full rounded D cup breast and swelling hips. Her pussy was already wet and engorged and her nipples rock hard. She loved how her teats were so long and thick. Her firm large tits had a nice up tilt angle to their caste. Her nipples ready to be sucked and teeth raked. She shivered at the thought. She turned around admiring her beautiful body from all angles. She had been blessed with great beauty and knew it. She would not deny it.

Her large breast were rounded and pillowed out on her chest to large hillocks when she lay on her back. Her belly flat with just a hint of muscle underneath. She smiled. Lots of hard fucking kept one in shape! Her legs were stout and strong. Her skin a medium dusky hue. The skin perfection. She twisted to look at her ass. The firm globes flexing with her movements. Her ass taunt as were the back of her legs. Yes indeed she was totally hot.

Her limbs, pussy and anus region were shaved and waxed baby smooth. She traced her fingertips over her smooth mound and traced down over her perineum to her anus. The feel silky smooth to her sensitive fingertips. Tonight was going to be so special. She had acquired information that would make the Pride of Dorne much more valuable to the Queen. The threat to her dragons had to be addressed. The Queen would be indebted to them for the information. This would give them much valuable coin of trust and influence with the Queen.

She came out of the antechamber and walked to the clothing rack on the back wall. On it was the exquisitely beautiful dress she would wear. It was finally made of rich silks and lace. It would soon be ripped to shreds and torn from body. Arianne and Myrcella had three large closets for their clothes. One section had nine dresses Arianne had worn and six that Myrcella had worn. Dresses that had been ripped from their bodies. Dresses torn to shreds. They kept them since they still had plenty of room as souvenirs. The dresses trophies of hot mean cruel grudge fucks that had been sadistic. The dresses worn for roleplaying their roles. Arianne and Myrcella had reveled in each savage faked rape. They loved it. It made them all hot just looking at the tattered remains of the fine ball quality dresses. It made the two High Princesses crave more such fucks.

They would often come in and look at the destroyed dresses together. The remembered fucks heating their bodies up. They had blankets on shelves they would throw on the floor before the ripped up dresses. If clothing was worn it was quickly shed like a snake shedding its skin. They would fall on each other nearly ripping their own clothes off and devouring each other to wailing bucking orgasms.

Arianne had been into role play since her two cousins Arrely and Kiyana Martell had introduced her to such sex when she was fourteen and they were eighteen and nineteen. She had instantly been hooked on it ever since. The abuse had turned her on no end. Her cousins had been so sadistic in how they abused Arianne’s body. They had abused and controlled Arianne with sweet fuck abuse she craved from the first time. It had driven her wild and the orgasms had been shattering they were so intense.

The now adult women remembered those sweet fucks with a happy smile on her face. She had instantly loved being slapped, thrown around and fucked like a cheap worthless whore. The roleplaying was so hot and dynamic. Her cousins had hooked her completely on masochistic sex.

First Arianne put on her silk short cloth. The silk cool on her already heated pussy. A pussy quivering in anticipation. She then put on her light blue dress and pulled the ties tight and hooked the buttons down the side of the dress. The white and off green lace so beautiful covering her ample cleavage pressed up against the gauzy fabric with the support from the wire in the cups of the dress. She put on silk slippers that enfolded and caressed her perfect feet

She was ready. The excitement in her body increased tenfold. Her body responding to her thoughts. Her body shaking in excitement at what was about to befall her. She stepped out into the hall from the rear entrance of the bathing chambers. She started the short trek to the door to the bedroom of the Pride of Dorne. She knew the instant she went through the door she would be attacked. Her nipples were so stiff and throbbing and her pussy wet and swollen with cum running down her legs already. Her wives would ignore her obvious arousal to keep to the game that she had scripted out. The pain and humiliation she was about to receive had her breathing accelerated and her pulse pounding. Knowing her wives would pounce on her the moment she walked through the door had her body shivered in anticipation.

Arianne had worked out the whole scenario to their roleplay in the late afternoon. She had been happy with their excitement when she explained the scenario to her wives. It was always fun and hot to work the real world into their BDSM sex. Her wives would use the recent past to make the sex so much hotter and wetter for their submissive bottom wife. They would hurl it in her face verbally as that same face was ‘attacked’ physically. Her body shivered again in anticipation. Would a person not into such BDSM role play ever understand the excitement thundering through her veins Arianne wondered? She doubted it.

Arianne reached the door to the bed chamber of the Pride of Dorne. Her sweet ferocious wives waited on the other side to fuck her up and give her the pain and humiliation she craved. Myrcella would be in full top mode. Her hand gripped the door lever. A fresh flood of fuck juice rushed out her engorged twat. The dress trapping her musk hiding for the moment her extreme excitement.

Arianne took a deep breath and slipped into the role she had devised for herself. Her pleasure and excitement would be enhanced by taking on the character she had devised for tonight. By playing this role to the hilt she would be able to get the most excitement and pleasure from the sex and abuse about to occur. With her playing her role to the hilt, her three sweet wives could play their own roles to the maximum and, thus, increase their fun and excitement from their roles as sadistic bitches.

Arianne felt her body shake and her eyes glaze over with lust. She took another deep breath steadying herself and preparing herself for her role. She turned the lever.

She opened the door slipping into the mindset of the unsuspecting cheating wife who thinks she has pulled off her adulteress adventures to get the necessary information from Maester Marwyn. He had fucked her so good but not nearly as good as she was about to be fucked by her three “vengeful”
Arianne buried that thought now. Arianne had a character to play. A role to assume to make her excitement and pleasure greater. She was now purely the smug conniving adulteress slut wife who had gotten over on her dolt wives. She was so superior to them. Her nose rose up with her thoughts.

Arianne walked into the room with a big smile on her face already totally submerged into her role. A lot of the excitement besides the humiliation and pain she was about to receive was the not knowing exactly how it would play out. She did not even truly think of it though getting into character to fully enjoy the next few hours. She had setup the scenario to play and her wives had total freedom on how to play out their parts. Arianne had no idea what her wives would inflict on her.

The not knowing what her abuse would be made her so wet. She was now the cheating wife who was smug in her satisfaction of fucking Marwyn behind her unsuspecting wives. She was superior to her wives in her new character. She tried to completely get into that mindset playing her character for all it was worth.

She walked into the room with a big beatific smile on her face. She was in control. She had gotten over on her stupid trusting wives. She was beaming. Her head turned to look at her sweet doltish wives. She felt so confident in her superiority. That was until she saw her wives.

She felt fear settle into her belly seeing the evil looks on her wives faces. Their bodies were stiff and their faces hard set. What could be wrong? They couldn’t know could they? Arianne was totally lost in her character now but still she knew what was about to occur and her pussy throbbed in anticipation her mound and groin already sopping wet. Gods she was a pain slut and loved it.

She saw that her Sand Snakes were dressed in the traditional ceremonial outfits of “Outriders”. Not truly military attire but used on the military parade grounds. Worn to impress visiting parents when deciding if they wanted to send their children to the war academy or for dignitaries when they visited to impress them with Dorne’s military prowess.

Dorea and Lorenza were wearing bombachas. The trousers made with strong cotton fabric. They were the traditional black of the Dorne military. The trousers easily identified because of the buttons they have at the ankle which was used to narrow them. They were stuffed into the tops of the military riding boots they had on with spurs clinking as they moved from foot to foot.

They had on loose blouses unbuttoned and leather vests not buttoned and open exposing the insides of their small high firm medium brown breast. Arianne could not help but feel lust boil in her veins despite the fear pricking her thoughts that her character would be feeling in this situation. A situation where danger is sensed but not fully understood. Playing the role had Arianne shivering in anticipation and lust. She kept her face in character showing confidence but the first hints of consternation.

Each Sand Snake had a flogger tucked into their wide ceremonial belts with the traditional ceremonial coins of the many cities and holds of Dorne that they had visited. The colorful metal medallions glued to the leather of the belts. The tassels of the floggers hanging down as well as the strap to wrap around one’s wrist to help secure your hold on the flogger as you savagely whipped your slut.

They both glared at Arianne with harsh pulsing eyes.

What could be wrong Arianne fretted? They could not possibly know she had fucked the Maester hard throughout the night his cock exploding deep in her cunt and ass giving her scalding orgasms.
She had had the right to take his seed deep into her belly she thought defiantly. She was the heir to Dorne and she had the right to do as she pleased she harrumphed to herself.

She had taken precautions. She had drank moon tea to make sure no issue was produced. Gods he had fucked her so good for a man. His cock slamming deep into her tight cunt and up her tight pinching asshole. He was a bull his nutsack quickly producing more sperm to rise up his cock rock hard again and again. A cock that had slam fucked her spasming pussy and clenching shithole so good so many times throughout the afternoon and through the long night.

Her secret had to be safe. She was totally in character. She had told her witless wives that they had no need to watch over her as she met with the Maester. Arianne and the Maester would just recollect over past times and share the plutonic relationship they had always had. Her stupid wives had bought it hook, line and sinker she snarked to herself smug in her superiority.

She turned slightly to see her last wife Myrcella. She sat calmly in a thick upholstered chair done in light green velvet stuffed thickly with dried seaweed. She had sucked off her wives so many times in that chair their legs up on the arms of the thickly upholstered arms. Their spread legs had their sweet pussies and assholes open for her mouth, tongue, tribbing pussy and dildos.

For some reason Myrcella too had a cruel mean look on her face. She had on wide green legged slacks and a sleeveless blouse half unbuttoned. Her feet bare. Arianne gulped seeing the flogger sitting across her lap.

“What is wrong Myrcella” Arianne spoke in a slightly tremulous voice. She looked over at Dorea and Lorenza “my sweet Sand Snakes?” Arianne’s voice laced with confusion. Why were her Sand Snakes dressed so and what with the cruel look on Myrcella’s face? Her secret was safe. Arianne was sure of it.

“Get your fucking skanky ass over her Arianne” Myrcella sneered at her vilely.

She hesitated fear making her heart do palpitations. What was wrong? They couldn’t know! Arianne unconsciously licked her lips her head turning to take in all her wives faces that regarded her coldly with glaring eyes.

“NOW you fucking godsdamn cheating fucking slut!” Myrcella screamed as she jumped up and snatching the flogger to hand the tassels rustling like hissing snakes. Arianne’s body instinctively jerked at the harsh cruel tone. The slender blond stood her body shaking with righteous fury. Her jade eyes spitting daggers at Arianne. The hand holding the flogger jerked with anger making the tassels whisper in the silent room.

Arianna’s eyes went wide with fear as she hesitantly stepped before her pride mates and leading lioness of their Pride. She was suddenly very afraid. Myrcella green eyes spat fire and contemptuous disdain down on Arianne. The slender blonde’s body seemed to almost be shaking with ire. Her hand holding her flogger twitched with repressed fury. Arianne gulped. How had they found out?! She was so sure of herself! Her stupid wives trusted her implicitly.

“What is wrong my sweet wife” Arianne soothed her wife with a placating tone. She would calm her stupid wives with her velvet tone and words. “I got the information from Maester Marwyn. We now know the secrets of the Citadel against the Queen and her dragons now. My mission a complete success. We have discovered the plots against the Queen. We have boons to offer Daenerys Targaryen. We can now take these to the Queen and increase our status greatly.” She had started her words tremulously but gained confidence. She had succeeded with the plan to acquire the information from the Maester of Magic. Maybe just not the way her wives thought she had procured the information. She felt a sneaky pride in getting over on her wives. It added so much spice to her adultery.

“We only sat at the table and talked chastely of times past. We discussed how we could help Daenerys Targaryen. I told him of my unending love for my sweet wives. I told him in no uncertain terms I was pure and chaste to only my wives. He easily accepted that my sweet wives.” Her lies spilled easily from her lips making her feel more confident. Her smile back on her face. A smile filled with sweet memories of Marwyn’s dick slamming balls deep up her ass and him pulling out and fisting her hair to turn her around to ‘make’ her suck her ass cream off his prick.

“Is that so? Are you sure of this Arianne. Tell us on your honor and your love for us that you did not sleep with a fucking man!” Myrcella snarled at Arianne. The repressed fury startled Arianne. This was so unlike Myrcella!

“I swear it my sweet Myrcella” Arianne’s head turned to her other wives “Dorea and Lorenza. I am pure. I would never cheat on you! I swear it!”

“You swear it?” Myrcella asked her slowly. Arianne heard the anger but was sure she could soothe this over.

“Yes” she spoke looking them all in the eye easily lying. She was adept at the Game of Thrones. She had won she thought sweetly to herself.

“You lying whore! Our spies watched you!”

“What?!” Arianne cried out in sudden shocking fear. Spies?! There had been spies?! This news was shocking!

“Our spies watched you fucking Maester Marwyen to get this information. Why did you not just give him the money as we agreed? We insisted and you agreed that you would not let his vile man even touch you and instead you let him fuck you! Our spies told us how he again and again slammed his cock deep into your worthless cunt and cheating ass. The way you moaned at him manhandling you as he moved you from position to position. The way he pulled your hair and slapped your face and tits and how loudly you moaned begging for him to do you harder!”

Arianne’s eyes were large now with fear. Her body beginning to shake in that fear. Arianne was totally in character. She loved it! Thinking like her character was sending such a rush through her body. The false fear she let rush through her body was intoxicating.

“Your screams of ecstasy were not faked you godsdamn slut!” Myrcella was suddenly screaming. “The spies were quite clear in how your body exploded in multiple orgasms. How you hungrily sucked your cunt and shithole off his dick with avid fuck hunger! You SLUT!” Myrcella roared. “You told us nothing of him fucking you!”

That was an outright lie of course Arianne knew. It had been understood by the raven Marwyen had sent them he would only part with the information he had gleaned by both fucking one of the Pride of Dorne and a large bag of golden dragons. They could have negotiated but did not want to risk the man not giving them what he said would be Earth shaking news to the Queen.

As they had read the scroll Arianne knew she was the woman for the task and had immediately started fantasying and planning for the sweet moment of fucking Marwyn and again feeling hard cock pounding her fuck holes and making her howl with soul wrenching orgasms of fucking bliss. To feel a man’s cock spurting hotly in her fuck hole or all over her face soaking it in semen.
Her next thought had been of this moment here. She had known as she read the scroll through from the Maester that she could not only fuck the stud but also get a sweet savage masochistic humiliation fuck from her wives using her meeting with the Maester as the basis for the scenario of the cruel mean grudge fuck she was now experiencing.

“Are you sure that is how events occurred sweet Arianne? The spies reported how they watched and heard you moaning when his cock spurted his hot seed all over your face. You did not try and move your face as his cock spurted hard splashing his jizzm all over your face. You moaned when he clawed his hand in your hair so his fingers came down your face and held your eyelids open while he spurted his sperm into your eyes. You only moaned harder and croaked “yessssss yessssss!” When he finally emptied his nutsack your tongue licked what it could off your lips and chin.”

Arianne loved how Myrcella made sure to describe all she had seen and now threw that back in Arianne’s face. Myrcella’s nipples rock hard her face slightly flushed. It was from excitement though all pretended it was from righteous anger.

An evil sneer came over Myrcella’s face “Are you sure you did not cheat on us?”

Arianne was in shock. She had to convince them they were wrong. She had no other recourse. “These spies are in hire with a rival House! I swear it! They mean to bring us down so they can rise up” Arianne spewed out her lies as they came to her. “I swear it Myrcella. I swear it. I got him to take the money only. He was quite easy to manipulate. These spies are probably from Highgarden.”

She saw Myrcella thinking that over. She knew her Sand Snakes would follow Myrcella’s lead. The voluptuous woman started to relax. She had won she thought smugly.

Men were easy. They all wanted was to fuck her. She had wanted his cock she thought evilly staying in her character’s mindset. She was the master of deception. Myrcella only thought she was Arianne’s equal.

She loved getting over on Myrcella. Myrcella was way too smug by half Arianne thought evilly. She would get away with her night of illicit sex with Marwyn and none would be the wiser. The Sand Snakes were so childish in their infantile jealousy. They deserved to be cheated on. Arianne smiled congratulating herself. She would have had a night of sweet het sex and explosive orgasms feeling hot sperm pumping hot, hard and deep up her belly and ass and she had gotten away with adultery. The thought made her shiver.

She was already planning future adulterous affairs.

“We had a spy trailing you and she went to the room beside the one we rented for you.”

“I tell you Myrcella, dammit, that nothing happened! I grow tired of having my innocence questioned! I demand an apology from you Myrcella” Arianne ended in a haughty tone.

"I fear i lied to you Arianne" Myrcella told Arianne in a strangled snarl. Her normally placid loving jade eyes now filled with a shocking fury.

“Ohhhhh …” Arianne felt her heart trip in rising fear. The way Myrcella had said that had the hackles on the back of Arianne’s neck on end. “I assure nothing happened we merely neg—” Myrcella cut off her words.

“We had a spy hole drilled in the wall indeed Arianne. Only it was not spies who observed you willingly give our dear Maester hot head till he cummed all over your slutty fucking face! You moaned how good his semen tasted as you greedily licked it off your face.”
“That is a lie!” Arianne cried out in rising panic.

“That was only the start of the sex I fear … how many times did he fuck you in your couchie and up your tight ass my sweet Arianne?” Myrcella worked her wrist which made her flogger hiss as the blonde worked her flogger forward and back making the tassels jerk hard.

“Do you wish to guess Arianne who it was who observed you cheating on us you fucking godsdamn slut!” Myrcella roared.

Arianne felt sweat breaking out on her lip and brow in her fear (and hidden excitement). She knew she was in deep shit.

She stared at her wife who was snarling at her. Myrcella moved to get in front of Arianne. Arianne’s breathing hitched. Oh yes she moaned in her mind. It was so close! She was shaking now. To all who might have been spying on them would think it was fear. It was since Arianne was feeling what her character felt but it was much more anticipation and lust of the about to start grudge fuck. Her nipples were literally throbbing as her clit jolted her hard. Her silk short cloth soaked and drooling snail snot down her legs.

“It was your loving wives who watched you cheat on us you godsdamn whore! We watched you fuck that man for hours! We all watched you wail and shriek as his cock plundered your fuck holes repeatedly and filled your belly and colon with hot sperm. We had to watch you for hours as he pumped sperm into your cheating holes and then watch it leak out running down your legs and soaking your groin and belly you godsdamn slut! You will pay for this betrayal of our love and trust you fucking slut!” Myrcella bellowed her body swaying with the force of her supposedly heartfelt declarations of betrayal.

Without warning Myrcella dropped her flogger and her right hand lashed out smacking Arianne’s face hard making it jerk over. Her brown skin darkening. Another slap landed with a loud smack. Myrcella spit in her face and then slapped her with both hands. The handprints showed on the brown cheeks from the vicious slaps. Each cheek taking stinging slaps that staggered the voluptuous woman. She then felt hands roughly grabbing her from behind holding her in place.

In a panic she realized she had not seen her Sand Snakes move in behind her with her focus on her now riled and violent Myrcella. More vicious slaps landed on her face and then Myrcella spit in her face again followed by wallowing her palm in Arianne’s face soaking it in the former Lannister’s spittle.

“Oohhh hhunggg hhnnnggg … oh Myrcella baby … please—“ Arianne gasped out in shock at the turn of events. Her face pulsing with hot pain. The spit mashed into her face. More spit splattered onto her face. Some of the spittle half blinding her. Myrcella wallowed this spit into her face and up into her hair wetting and ruining her perfectly coiffed hair.

*Smack*Smack*Smack* More vicious slaps stung Arianne’s cheek. Arianne tried to speak—
*Smack*Smack*Smack*Smack*Smack* Arianne’s head exploded from side to side from the vicious slaps from Myrcella’s palm. Her cheeks now darkening to a darker brownish hue. The blood rush running down her throat and up her face.

“Shut your mouth you lying cunt!” Myrcella screamed at her adulteress wife.

Arianne felt hands gripping the fabric of her dress at her shoulders at the seam. The Sand Snakes fingers dug into the fabric and began to viciously rip down on the dress sleeves with violent jerks. The fabric had been sown with only the third normal stitching in the seams. The dress designed to be easily ripped apart.
They bought their dresses from a seamstress who specialized in such dresses. She was busy constantly making new dresses for the BDSM craving sluts who were a large part of her cliental. The seamstress was such a slut herself who had tested many of her creations to make sure they flew apart easily by her sadistic lady lovers. The seamstress coming up with new designs that her lovers tested by ripping off her body and abusing her. Then fucking her into a senseless coma of happy fucked out bliss. Her works masterpieces that had her cliental demanding more and more of the specially made dresses.

Her current creation a perfect success. The fabric quickly tearing loose at the shoulders. Arianne’s body jerked around by the strong hands ruining her dress. Her head snapping with the cruel jerks. Huge tears appeared. Myrcella looked evilly at Arianne as her two Sand Snake wives manhandled the voluptuous cheating slut. Then Lorenza and Dorea gripped hand holds of her dress from behind and jerked wildly. Loud tearing sounds were heard from the beautiful expensive fabric but poorly put together material. The motions continuing to jostle Arianne’s body hard.

The twenty-five year old woman’s body was jerked to and fro like flotsam in a violent storm. Her body lurching forward and back and dragged to the sides as her Sand Snakes shredded her seemingly beautifully made dress. Arianne had learned lessons when she and her cousins played their first games of ‘raping’ each other. They had been very frustrated and the damsel being attacked had vertigo from her body spun and violently jerked in all directions. A well made dress was hard to destroy! The incestuous cousins quickly figured out how to have their ‘rape fantasy’ dresses made to be easily ripped apart. This had led to several seamstresses taking up the task in the Shadow City making such dresses. Now there was a small cadre of women who specialized in the trade.

Arianne’s mind smiled at her remembrance as she felt her body buffeted in the here and now. Her cunt was a complete sopping wet mess now. Her pussy all swollen and wet. Her lips fully engorged and gusset up in her silk short clothing. Her nipples fully erect and throbbing as her clit shrieked in happy pleasure from her pain and humiliation. She was beyond turned on!

“Arrruunnggggg!” Arianne cried out feeling Dorea grip her arm and twisting it behind her back and jerking it up to cause the joint to screech in pain. Dorea jerked up hard (but not really too hard – no damage would be done – only the pain that Arianne craved). Dorea had expert control of how much force to apply to give the treatment that her wife craved. Arianne rose up on her toes trying to relieve the painful pressure in her arm. Loreza gripped Arianne’s beautiful lustrous black hair and fisted a hair knot. She jerked back hard pulling Arianne’s neck taunt her eyes looking at the ceiling. The rough jerks half choking their adulteress aunt and wife.

Arianne’s cunt was drooling. The gusset of her short cloth soaked and slimed with her snail snot. Her pussy was a sloshing mess now. Loreza pulled hard on her hair knot tilting Arianne’s head back till her eyes looked up at the ceiling. Loreza now jammed her hand down pulling Arianne’s throat taunt choking her wife. “Unggffff mmphhfff fffmmppfff!” Arianne choked gasping for breath her throat cruelly stretched. She was so fucking hot for it. The pain making her womb melt with churning cum. Loreza threw her head forward letting her adulteress wife breathe.

Her face back down she felt her cheek harshly slapped again. Her head jerking to the right from Myrcella’s cupped palm striking her face. Her face now dark brown from blood rush from Myrcella’s cupped hand violently smacking her cheeks. Tears ran down her cheeks from her pain and humiliation. Arianne watched Myrcella stop slapping her and then reach into a fold of her dress. She pulled out a small dagger of Valyrian steel. The blade impossible sharp and glinting. Arianne stilled her heart racing in fear. What is she going to do?!

Arianne froze in fright completely in character to get the most out of their hot sadistic murmur play. Myrcella slowly and very carefully positioned the blade so it was facing out and the point pressed into the bodice. The Sand Snakes held her completely still no longer jerking on her. Arianne’s full bosom heaved with her exertions. Slowly Myrcella hooked the razor sharp edge of the blade underneath fabric.

With everything right Arianne nodded her head almost imperceptibly. Myrcella ripped the blade down and away from Arianne cutting the lacy bodice and then the front of Arianne’s dress to her belly. With the blade away from Arianne’s body the Sand Snakes finished ripping the back of her dress to tattered pieces. Arianne felt like she was being ripped in two directions at once her body buffeted as she was violently jerked around. Then Dorea and Loreza gripped her arms again twisting them behind her back. The cruel Sand Snakes pulled up hard making her scream in pain. The scream greatly exaggerated but it sounded so hot to all the participants in their act. The Sand Snakes had Arianne’s body pulled taunt and kept jerking on their wife’s arms to give her the pain and humiliations she craved.

Myrcella had put the knife on an end table and turned back to Arianne. She eyed the disheveled state of her wife. Her hair in disarray around her face and shoulders. She eyed her pussy still covered by its short cloth. The fabric dark and glistening with the cum soaking it. Myrcella stepped up to her cheating wife. Her hand rose up and back. The vicious slap rocked Arianne staggering her. Her cry of pain loud in the room.

“Pleasseeee plleeasee—I’m sorry! I love youuuuuuu!” Arianne pleaded. Her head rocked over with another hard slap.

“You should have thought of that before you cheated on us!” Myrcella screamed at her adulteress wife.

Loreza and Dorea pulled hard on Arianne’s arms stretching her body out making Arianne cry out in pain from her stretched out shoulders. She rose up on the balls of her feet trying to relieve the pain in her arms and shoulders. The Sand Snakes called her a fucking slut and worthless fucking whore. They told Arianne they hated her for cheating on them.

The insults and humiliation going straight to Arianne’s pussy making it clench and pump more fuck juice into the soaked fabric covering it. Loreza and Dorea jerked Arianne forward and back jerking her shoulder joints which made Arianne screech in pain and cry fat tears down her cheeks.

Myrcella now reached out and gripped the dress at the sides of the rent in the fabric and tore her hands out ripping the dress wide open. Arianne’s full heavy rounded tits spilled out her dress and flipped to her chest and juggled down in place. Her tits swishing back and forth as her Sand Snakes jerked her around by her arms. Sneering Myrcella gripped the short cloth at the hips and jerked down hard with twisting jerks that bucked Arianne’s body like a toy doll. The fabric jerked down to her knees. Arianne’s swollen dripping snatch on full display. Her exposed pussy had flooded the room with her fuck musk.

Arianne was whimpering in her humiliation but could not help but notice Myrcella breathe in hard taking Arianne’s sweet cunt musk deep into her lungs intoxicating and exciting the young woman. She glared at Arianne vilely and backed up a step.

Myrcella spit in her face several more times and then slapped her viciously. *Slap*Smack*Smack*Slap* Her hand wallowing the spit into Arianne’s face and smearing it up into her glistening black locks. She spit again in Arianne’s face her bubbly spit splashing over Arianne’s nose, forehead and eyes. Then she slapped Arianne several more times the stinging slaps loud in the room.

Then Myrcella was back at the ruined dress. She tore the fabric of her ruined dress down and it ripped away. Her dress was in tatters hanging around Arianne’s hips her upper body fully exposed. She had felt her Sand Snake wives move away from her arms. She went to cover her exposed breast. She was shivering in fear at what would happen next. She had no idea what her sweet wives would do her next. The not knowing made her womb quiver and her pussy clench wetly. Her nipples throbbing hard with sweet pulses of hot pleasure.

She stood their shivering in fear. Myrcella played her part of the murmurs play to perfection. Her face contorted with righteous rage.

Myrcella sneered at her. “You’re a piece of shit Arianne. Cheating on us like a cheap whore. We are just getting started you fucking cunt!” Arianne stared hard at Myrcella.

“Baby I’m sorr—Aaaagggiiieee! Mmmngghhhiiieeee!” her body jerked and writhed in agony.

“Aaaarruuunngggg! Unnggghhiiieeee! Eeeeeeiiiiii!” Arianne arched her back and was on the balls of her feet her body instinctively arching away from the sudden inrush of pain. This was stopped by Myrcella as she moved in and gripped Arianne’s upper arms roughly and held her in place with hard cruel jerks. Her head snapped with the force of Myrcella’s cruel jerking grip on her upper arms. The voluptuous woman loved feeling her upper arms throttled by her slender wife’s hard grip on her biceps. It would leave bruises but she loved it so much! Arianne had lost track of her two niece wives.

Her two nieces had pulled out their floggers and moved behind their distracted aunt unseen. Now their arms were wind milling whipping their flogger tassels in tight arcs. The long leather tassels whipped down slashing over the body of their beautiful aunt cruelly. The leather tassels striking harshly across the silky smooth brown skin. The leather leaving brownish streaks all up and down the perfect back and ass cheek globes. Again and again the nieces whipped their arms down to deliver vicious strikes of leather tassels on smooth perfect flesh.

“Arrrgggggg hhnn hnnn unngghhiiiiii! Mmmngghhiiiiii! Eeeiiiiiiii! Nggghhhiiii!” Arianne screamed feeling the leather tassels bit into her flesh. Each stinging slash filling her body with pain. Pain that excited and filled the voluptuous body with harsh pulsing pleasure rocking her throbbing nipples and clit.

*Slash*Slash*Smack*Slash*Slash*Slash* the loud sounds of the floggers being yielded hitting the scion of Dorne on her back, ass and back of her arms. Myrcella grimacing as some of the tassels hit her fingers. She didn’t care. She was so turned on seeing up close her wife’s face filled with pain and her body jolting from each impact of tassels on her body. Each strike so loud and shocking in the room. She envied the pain and humiliation Arianne was receiving. The way Arianne’s face slashed and grimaced with pain turned on Myrcella greatly. She contented herself knowing soon she would be on the receiving end of the harsh but loving abuse.

“Aaaruuunngggg uunnggg … oohhh harder harder, please babies harder” Arianne gurgled needing more and harder. “Unngghhiiieeee Aaaaiieeee Aaaaiiieeee Eeeeiieiiiiii!” Arianne wailed as the floggers bit harder into her sweet perfect flesh. Sometimes you had to break character for a moment to get what you needed in a sweet vicious BDSM fuck.

Her Sand Snake wives lifting their arms higher and taking them back further to generate more power as their arms lashed forward to strike leather over sweet perfect flesh. Arianne shrieked her body bucking and flexing as the leather bit into her flesh. Myrcella spit in her face again several times humiliating her wife in her anguish. The spit running down her face in rivulets. Myrcella called Arianne a fucking piece of shit and worthless slut. More spit splattered on Arianne’s face.

“You fucking cunt!” Myrcella snarled at her wife. “You are nothing but a piece of shit you slut.
You are nothing but cheap trash you godsdamn whore!” Myrcella spit out at her voluptuous wife. Arianne was weeping in pain but heard each humiliating word that only added to her pained ecstasy. She watched Myrcella’s head rear back and then she was spit on in the face several more times by her blonde wife who slapped her face a few times before again wallowing the copious spit into her wife’s face and up into her hair.

The Sand Snakes behind were working their arms to slash their flogger tassels harshly across Arianne’s back again and again. Each strike on Arianne’s body loud in the room. The voluptuous beauty’s body lurched and jerked hard with each vicious strike of leather tassels on her body.

She was wailing as fire filled her back and ass. The pain went straight to her clit and nipples making them hammer Arianne’s brain with pleasure. In her distress she did not see Myrcella step over and bend down to the floor with her hand. The scion of Dorne swayed her body jerking feeling one of her Sand Snakes concentrate on her big firm ass cheeks with cruel strikes going back and forth on the clenching globes. The other Sand Snake whipping her tassels up and down her back and shoulders.

“Ohhh plleasssseeee stop stop pleaseeeeee stop—aaggghhieeee eeggiiiiii nnhiiiii aaaaaiiiii!” Arianne screamed. Her pleas for mercy had only elicited even harder strikes of the flogger tassels along her back and ass. Her body swayed now lurching again and again as the floggers were whipped down to lash her cruelly.

Suddenly Arianne was howling louder in anguish as Myrcella wind milled her arms slashing the tassels of her own flogger across the voluptuous woman’s tits and flat belly. Again and again Myrcella lashed her adulteress wife with her flogger. The scion of Dorne staggered forward and lurched back as leather tassels slashed her body front and back. Arianne watched the tassels lash across her large tits and flat belly. She loved seeing the tassel ends ricochet off her body as they delivered so much exquisite pain to her body.

Arianne looked down her brown body and saw dark brown marks running down from her chest above her tits to her belly where the remains of her dress hung in tatters on the front. They had ripped away her dress in the back to fully expose her back and ass. Her body hitched and spasmed feeling the leather tassels bit into her flesh leaving more and more dark brown reddish streaks across her body. She staggered around the room as her body twisted and jerked away from the cruel strikes of the flogger. Her wives following closely to continue cruelly whipping their lying, cheating adulteress wife.

“Arruunnggg hhnngg … shit! Ungggg nnggg Aaaaggiieeee!” Arianne cried out as her body was lashed savagely front and back by the leather tassels. Her ass cheeks clenching hard with the impacts on them. Her tits sloshed over on her chest when Myrcella lashed them with her flogger leather tassels. Her next strike over Arianne’s belly making it clench then Myrcella adjusted her positioning and the tassels whipped down and then up into Arianne’s wet cunt. The remains of her dress absorbed much of the strikes but the pain was intense. She sagged down to her knees weeping.

No mercy was given. The three women standing around Arianne continued to whip their cheating wife mercilessly with their floggers. Arianne fell to her palms screaming in pain. Her wives surrounding her and slashing down cruelly on her writhing body. The whapping sounds of leather on flesh shocking loud in the room.

The strikes stopped. She was jerked up cruelly to her feet. She swayed crying hard now her body flooded with pain. Pain that had her nipples pulsing hard and her cunt leaking fuck juice down her legs. She gasped feeling hands grip the tattered remains of her dress hugging her hips. Hard jerks quickly jerked the ruined dress down off her hips and the ruined dress pooled around her ankles.
Arianne was now totally nude.

Myrcella suddenly reached out with her left hand and fisted a knot of Arianne’s long glossy black hair. She savagely jerked down flinging the stumbling woman down half bent over. Arianne’s full tits swaying underneath her folded down body. Myrcella jerked her head around making the voluptuous women stagger behind Myrcella.

She screamed in agony when Dorea and Lorenza had their floggers slashing their tassels over her now fully exposed ass and legs. She jerked and involuntarily jumped feeling her ass and legs put on fire. Myrcella jerked down with her hair knot hard twisting her hand sending the Martell stumbling to the floor on all four. The former Lannister had released Arianne’s hair. She took her flogger back in hand shaking out the tassels.

“Get ready to suffer bitch!” Myrcella snarled. Arianne screamed in supposed agony. She was not close to saying her safe word of “red” or even yellow to slow down. The pain made her feel on edge and so alive!

Myrcella’s arm slashed down over and over down whipping savagely her wife’s back with the tassels of her flogger. “Unngghiieee! Mmmngggiiiii! Aaaaaiiieeee! Eeeiiiiiiiiii! Aaaaiiiiiii!” Arianne screamed in pain and humiliation. Her other two wives focused on her ass and the backs of her legs, calves and feet. Her long hair was flagged down around her hanging head. A head jerking around and back as agony twisted her face as her ass was blistered and her body cruelly whipped like a mule. Her shrieks loud and whimpers for mercy ignored.

Myrcella enjoyed watching Arianne’s body jerk and writhe with the sever flogging it was receiving. The sounds of leather on flesh loud. Arianne’s screams and weeping music to Myrcella’s ears. When she was in sadistic mode she loved hearing Arianne’s sounds of distress. Next it would be her weeping and shrieking and Arianne reveling in giving Myrcella agony and pleasure.

All the while Arianne’s pussy was a soupy mess with cum running down her thighs and dripping off her distended hanging labia lips. Her rigid nipples screamed and pulsed pain and pleasure straight to her diamond hard clit. The future Warden of the South gasped and wheezed as raw aching pain filled her body. Arianne’s body jerked with each strike of the tassels on her body. The pain was cruel but it filled Arianne’s body with such exquisite pleasure. Pleasure that was shown in the tears running down her cheeks and throat. Tears of pain but with sweet pleasure all jumbled in.

Myrcella put her flogger on the floor and stepped up to her wife. Arianna was jerking and writhing as she was whipped with floggers on her back, ass and legs by the Sand Snakes. She did not see Dorea step in and fist her hair. Suddenly her head was ripped back and up viciously. Her eyes seeing only the ceiling as she wheezed in constricted breath. The gasping only adding to her pleasure. Myrcella had gathered the remains of her ruined dress and wallowed the shredded fabric roughly all over her face as she cried and whimpered. Her pussy was so swollen and covered in cum that trickled down her thighs.

The Sand Snakes ceased their abuse for the moment. Arianna was still crying looking at Myrcella. Her wife looked at her with disgust and threw the ruined dress down. The look on Myrcella’s face made her pussy spasm and juice out fresh fuck slime. Her pussy coated in fuck juice liberally. The opaque creamy effluent slavering her mound, lower belly and inner thighs. Myrcella gripped her face cruelly by her jaw and spit in her face. Arianna moaned.

Her two Sand Snakes pulled Arianne up to her knees fully and held her in place with rough grip on her arms. Myrcella looked down at her with contempt and hateful spit. She stepped close to her cheating wife. Myrcella studied her for a long moment. She bent down slightly to look her more directly in the eye. “You always think you are better than us don’t you. You fucking cunt!” Then Arianne cried out with Myrcella lifting her hands up and smacking down hard on her tits again and again making her tits jolt and flip. Now hand prints joined the tassel marks that covered her tits all over. Again and again Myrcella slapped Arianne’s breast hard with cupped hands. The impact compressing her tits and making them flop on her chest.

She cried out in pain and raw fucking pleasure. Her heavy udders were full of fire now. Fire that was hammering her with harsh pleasure as well. The intoxicating mix of pain and pleasure besotting the twenty-five year old. Her cunt was pulsing now. The pain was harsh but gods she loved it so. She felt alive and filled with the sweet energy of masochistic pain and pleasure. The sound of the cupped hands smacking her tits loud in the room.

Loreza and Dorea had gotten out their floggers again with Arianna focused on Myrcella. They had released the voluptuous beauty unnoticed as Arianna focused on Myrcella. Their wife did not even think to move as Myrcella abused her tits now dark brown with blood rush. The smacks of palms striking firm tits filling the room again and again. *Smack*Smack*Slap*Slap*Smack*Smack* The scion of Dorne bleating in pain. That changed in the next instant.

Loreza and Dorea slashed their arms down floggers whipping tassels through the air. The floggers slashed their tassels over Arianna’s back and ass cheeks. “Eeeiiii! Eeeiiii! Aaaaaii! Eeeiiii!” Arianna wailed in pain. Myrcella bent down to squat before her writhing wife. Myrcella gripped Arianna’s arm roughly holding her still. With her other hand she lowered it to below her cheating wife’s groin. Myrcella turned her hand palm up. She cupped her hand and started to smack her wife’s sloppy wet twat with hard smacks. “Arrunnggg! Nngggiiieee mnhhiieee aaaaaii!” Arianna cried out with the fresh new pain flooding her body. Arianna was jolting forward and back as her body was assaulted from the front and the back. Her screams sweet music to abusers and abused alike.

The sound of a sodden cunt being slapped merged with the sound of leather lashing over sweet exposed flesh. Again and again the blond teenager smacked her wife’s drooling clamshell. The impacts making wet squishy sounds as palm compressed sodden cunt. Myrcella paused to lift her hand cum slimed hand before Arianna’s face. She now slapped Arianna hard in the face on both cheeks with her cunt slimed hand and then smacked the heavy tits of her wife. Arianna was panting heavily now. Her body was soaked in sweat and tears. Myrcella went back to smacking her drooling clamshell. Arianna shrieked with the hard smacks on her drooling cunt and the slashes on her ass, legs and now up and down her ass.

Her legs were getting shaky as her body shook with rising need. Her eyes weeping tears of raw lust and pure love. The tears filled with her agony as well.

“Hhuunggggggg!” she cried out and then whimpered feeling Myrcella slide two fingers deep up into her greasy fuck canal. Her cunt was filled with buttery lubricating cum. Myrcella set up a hard rhythm immediately fucking the drooling honey hole. Cum splattering out in hot creamy droplets. Tassels slashed Arainne’s back relentlessly making her body jerk into the fingers banging her twat.

Myrcella then slipped in her third finger into her adulterous wife’s cunt stretching out the hot cunt that clenched down on the fingers that finger blasted her hungry cunt hole. Myrcella pumped her fingers hard and deep up the slimy cum filled fuck canal. Arianna cried out and moaned feeling her cunt stretched out tight and her inner folds gripping tight the long digits banging her drooling quim.

Myrcella took her left hand and rubbed her wife’s clit. The fingers whipping sideways in a blur. The slimy cum lubricated fingers hitting the rigid clit hard from both sides. The slimy lubricating the sweet fuck. He slimy cum let the former Lannister’ fingers whir in a blur over the rigid clit they were jacking off. All the while Arianne’s body jerked and jolted with the floggers slashing across her back repeatedly. The slut both crying out in pain and pleasure.

“Cum for us you fucking slut! Show us what a fucking back alley whore you are! Show us how you cummed for the Maester!”

“Auungghhhh! Oh oh gods oh oh auungghhhh!” Arianna gagged with Myrcella wiggling her buried fingers furiously in her twat and her left hand’s fingers buzzed her clit. The merciless flogging of her back and ass had ceased. Her nieces moved in on Arianne. Their hands started to give Arianne’s back rough massaging squeezes. The hands rough but soothing as they worked up and down her back from the top of her shoulder blades and down to her ass. The stroking hands soothing in a rough calloused way.

Myrcella watched Dorea bend down to bit Arianne in the middle of her back to leave dark love bites. Loreza bent her head in now too and began to leave other love bites on Arianne’s marked and dark brown streaked back. Their hands roughly kneading the abused flesh of the twenty-five old. Their hands as the massaged held Arianne up to be fucked by Mrycella.

“Ohhh unngg unngggg ohhhh shitttttt!” Arianna cawed and gasped her belly clenching. The taunt belly showed the muscles in her flat belly. She began to shake violently. Myrcella was slamming her fingers in and out her stretched out twat her wife’s bent thumb hammered her slit and clit. The wet cunt being fucked hard relentlessly slurped and squelched with the buttery cum being churned hot and fast by Myrcella’s long fingers pounding her wife’s twat.

Myrcella’s free hand moved up to pinch and twist the engorged teats of her wife. Arianna had gripped Myrcella’s shoulders to keep her balance. Myrcella was staring hard into her midnight eyes with her green orbs. Arianne felt her nieces urging her to get up fully on her knees. Her weak body shakily complied with the harsh hands jerking her up. All the while Myrcella banged her twat with her three harpoon fucking fingers.

Arianne gagged in lust feeling Loreza pull her ass cheeks wide open exposing her shithole. Her anus clenched in spasmodic clenches. Her ass cleft and starfish shiny with her sweat and the cum that had wicked back over her perineum and soaked her asshole. Dorea slowly slipped and twirled an oiled anal ribbed dildo up into her spasming starfish. The bulb head jacking her clenching shithole open. Dorea pushed in and Arianne’s asshole was penetrated by the glass dildo. Dorea slowly pumped her arm in and out as the oiled shaft quickly loosened up the sphincter rings and the glass slide ever deeper up into Arianne’s hot hungry ass. The ribs rippling Arianne’s sphincter rings gagging her with raw pulsing anal pleasure.

Lorenza was massaging her back and shoulders while she kissed the hot abused skin all over. Myrcella watched it all as she slipped her small finger into Arianne’s tight cunt stretching it out around the wedge now slam fucking the drooling couchie. Wet slobbery sounds of a drooling cunt being harpoon fucked. Watery sounds of a well fucked cunt filled the bedroom along with the labored breathing of women fucking hard.

Dorea worked her ribbed dildo rippling the asshole of her wife. The ribbed glass shocking Arianne with hot pulsing bolts of pleasure. Soon the Sand Snake had pushed in deep with a foot of cool glass buried up Arianne’s wanton tight asshole. The glass ribs rippling her spasming shithole shocking Arianne with pulses of anal bliss. Her niece started to push and pull the ribbed dildo in and out her spasming asshole. The love rhythm was quickly set and the thick dildo ripped in and out her hot tight pinching butthole. Arianna was becoming delirious. She could feel the dildo head brushing against Myrcella’s hard pumping fingers plumbing deep into her frothing cunt.

Her body began to shake violently. The blond brought her left hand back down and whipsawed her fingers over Arianne’s clit fast and furious. Myrcella pressed in harder with her fingers rubbing her clit and her right hand harpooned her fingers all the way up her wife’s twat. Myrcella moaned feeling the tight oily heat of Arianne’s tight cunny spasming on her hard pumping fingers. She smiled feeling Dorea slamming her dildo up her aunt’s asshole. Dorea’s body was flexing as she worked her forearm to jerk the anal dildo half out her wife’s asshole and then slam it back up her ass till her fist pounded Arianne’s ass jiggling butt cheeks.

Myrcella was looking intently at her wife’s face seeing it slash and contort with aching pleasure. She looked deep into the midnight eyes to see the “flare”. Then she saw it. The magical moment of Arianna falling off the precipice into pure fucking ecstasy.

“AIINNGGHHIIIIEEEE!” Arianna suddenly shrieked, like a murder victim. It was such a blood-curdling shriek that Myrcella was sure their bodyguards would pound the door down if they had not grown used to such screams from their charges. “OOWWWGGGGGGG! ARRUUUNNNGGGG! UUNNGHHIIIEEEEEE! MMNNGHHIIIEEEEEE!” Arianna screamed full throated screams of shattering bliss and almost crippling pleasure. Dorea and Myrcella continued to slam fuck their wife’s spasming fuck holes.

Loreza had moved around and roughly gripped Arianna’s heavy left tit. She throttled it and stuffed the half inch long thick nipple deep into her mouth and long sucked on it as her tongue slapped hard from all angles. A second orgasm exploded out on top of the first orgasm. “OOOWWWGGGGGGG! HHHUUUNNGGGRRRRR! Ummnngggiiieee!” Arianna howled again, as fresh convulsions tore her body apart. “Ohnnggg! Mnnnggg! Oh! Oh! AUUUNNNNGGGHHH! AAWWOOOGGGGGG! HHUUNNNGGGNNRRRRRRR! Ungghh! Ungghh! AUUUNNNGGGGGHHHH!” Arianna simply roared, wincing and arching her back again, pushing forward with her pelvis, as if to draw Myrcella’s fingers deeper into her body then jerking her ass back to take the dildo as deep as possible up her exploding butthole. Her body pumped and spasmed so hard her free tit whiplashed on her body. “Aunngghh! Oh . . . shit! Unngghhmmmm! Oh sweet fucking gods and jinns hhnnng hhnnngg Ooowwwwwggggggggg! Awwwooggggggggg!” Arianna screamed feeling the last killing spasms of her orgasms hit her and now fade away.

Arianna was floating on a cloud of pure fucking bliss. The pain had made her orgasms so much better and hotter. She was weak her body felt like jelly as it quivered and jolted with strong dying shocks of her orgasms. Myrcella pulled her fingers out of her wife’s drooling snatch that dripped cum out around the fingers jammed up into her hot honey hole. When Myrcella removed her fingers cum trapped in the plugged cunny came gushing out in a hot splatter.

Then the fingers were smearing Arianna’s twat juice all over her face. The voluptuous woman moaned at the humiliating treatment. Then Myrcella roughly started to fuck her mouth with a wedge of her fingers. Arianna gagged and moaned. The sweet taste of her cunt slavered all over the long fingers. The wedge of Myrcella’s fingers filled her mouth stretching it around the fingers pumping up and down her tongue and jamming her uvula. She made choking noises feeling the fingers fill her mouth and rap the back of her throat. Strands of spit streamed out her mouth and flooded down her chin and roped off her chin and ran down her throat in slimy tendrils of bubbly spit.

Dorea pulled her dildo out Arianna’s hot asshole. It was soaked in ass juice to the base of the shaft. Myrcella took her fingers from Arianne’s mouth. Dorea leaned around Arianne’s body. She took her anal dildo and pressed it to her aunt’s lips. Arianne moaned hard opening her mouth. Dorea ran her glass dildo up her incestuous aunt’s tongue. Arianne hungrily sucked her sweet ass off the shaft sliding up and down her tongue. Her lips clamped tight to the ribbed glass shaft. The ribs now rippling through her sucking lips. Arianna felt like such a depraved slut savoring her hot ass on the shaft.
“What does your asshole taste like bitch?!” Dorea snarled at Arianna pulling the shaft out her wife’s greedily sucking mouth.

“Oohhhhh … it tastes like sweet dark chocolate baby!”

She was shoved to the ground. Her body crumpled down to the ground but she slowly rolled over and levered herself up to her knees. Her sweaty hair hung down. She shivered waiting with ragged breathing. Sweat dripped off her face and belly as she hungered for more pain and humiliation that would lead to such sweet pleasure.

Then Arianna was screaming again as she felt her three wives again flogging her mercilessly with their floggers. Her body surged and rocked her back arching away from the cruel whipping. This went on for a minute when it was stopped. Arianna cried out when one of her nieces fisted her hair pulling her up and put her crooked arm around her throat and roughly held her up half chocking her.

Arianna watched with large eyes as Myrcella attached nipple clamps to her long thick nipples the teeth biting into her thick teats. Her head ripped back into her niece’s body. Arianne watched Myrcella pick up little circular weights she attached to the nipple clamps the weight tugging on her nipples filling them with heat and pain. She was choked hard and then thrown forward. The scion of Drone stumbled to her palms. Her breathing harsh and ragged. Her hanging tits swayed rocking the nipple clamps and weights pulling on her screaming nipples. The pain intoxicating Arianne with raw fuck hunger.

As she looked on Arianne saw her three wives quickly divest themselves of their clothing. The slut moaned hard seeing their delectable teenage flesh exposed to her slutty eyes. Their nipples were swollen and their cunts were swollen as well. Their pussies showing their arousal. Myrcella’s pussy was a medium red. Her Sand Snakes pussies were a darker hued brown. Their inner lips engorged and half bloomed out their slits.

Myrcella had gotten on her knees in front of Arianne and turned around so her ass was facing Arianne. The blonde then got on all fours. The blonde beauty moved back till her ass was right in front of Arianne’s face. She wiggled her ass in front of Arianne’s face. Her wet seam in front of Arianne’s face.

Myrcella looked back over her shoulder with a slutty look on her face. She presented her wet swollen wet seam to Arianne like a bitch in heat. The heir to Dorne moaned hard deep in her chest. Myrcella slowly backed her body up till her gash was right in front of Arianne’s face with only a small space separating mouth and pussy. Arianne’s eyes crossed seeing Myrcella’s young hot pussy in front of her. The sweet hot musk wafting up from the drooling seam was pure heaven to the twenty-five year old. Myrcella’s sweet teenage pussy smelled so ripe and heady.

“Suck me off you fucking cunt!” Myrcella snarled back at Arianna and shimmed her ass. Arianne knew her pupils were blown with raw lust and need. Arianne scooted forward fast removing the last separating distance between her mouth and her blonde’s drooling snatch. She loved the sexy lust in the blonde’s eyes. She saw off to the side her two nieces eyeing her with hot staring eyes. They loved to watch their two wives fuck.

As they watched their Aunt they began to stroke their drooling clamshells and reach up to their little firm titties and rolled their tits and tweak their nipples hard making Dorea and Loreza gag with intense bolts of hot pleasure.

Arianne felt her swaying breast jerking the heavy balls clamped to her nipples. The pain so exquisite as her nipples were roughly pulled and jerked with her movements. She felt and heard the balls actually clank into each other with her wiggling hooters jerking with her rash movement forward to get to Myrcella’s succulent gash right in front of her face.

Then her mouth buried itself in her wife’s cunt and pure happiness flooded Arianne’s body tasting her wife’s hot snail snot flooding her mouth as she licked and slurped her tongue up and down Myrcella’s greasy groove. She sucked on labia lips and licked up and down sweet red swollen cunt meat. Myrcella’s seam so wet and red. The slit soaked in hot cum that Arianne slurped up groaning at the sweet taste. Her head rocking to let her tongue work the delicious seam and rake her tongue over the teen’s clit making her body jerk and throat warble in pleasure.

Arianne’s nose plowed the wet seam and as she worked her head up and down. She pressed in harder to get more sweet cunt meat pressed into her mouth and face. Arianne felt her nose slide over Myrcella’s perineum and sweet clenching shithole. She would pause to rub her nose all over the sweet asshole. Arianne pressing in to show off the depraved slut she was. Arianne worked the sweet seam and then licked over Myrcella’s asshole making her gurgle and shimmy her ass. Arianne then lowered her head and sucked Myrcella’s clit deep into her mouth and deep throat sucked on the divine nubbin polishing it with her tongue.

Myrcella’s body jolted and shivered hard feeling her pussy eaten out with the expert oral skills of Arianne. She moaned and pushed her pussy into the mouth eating her out. She groaned deep in her chest when she felt Arianne start to tongue fuck her cunt hole with her long tongue. The tongue shoving deep into her drooling clamshell. The long tongue plowing her fuck hole exquisitely. Arianne’s lips gluing to her fuck hole and Dorne kissing her pussy with lots of deep wiggling tongue action and sucking lips.

“Mmmggfffff! Uunnggiieefff! Mmpphhhff! Aaggiieeffff!” Arianna squealed into the cunt she was devouring when she felt a cane whipping her ass with a tap-tap-whack-tap-tap-wap-whack-tap-tap rhythm that was repeated. Her face scrunched up and knotted with the fierce pain flooding her voluptuous ass cheeks. Her screams of pain swallowed by Myrcella’s hot pussy she continued to focus on as she sucked and slurped on through her pain. Her eyes squeezed tight shut with the pain filling her ass. The pain made her head surge forward burying her mouth into the hot pussy humping back into her mouth.

She knew her ass, back and back of her legs were going to have marks on them that would take a week to fully disappear. As Arianne continued eating Myrcella’s twat out she saw up close the red marks from Myrcella’s caning of five days ago. They were pale ghosts that would be gone by tomorrow night or the next morn. She moaned hard feeling the cane biting her ass and back. Her face constantly twisting and crumpling with the pain searing out her caned ass and back.

Then she felt her right foot lifted up and placed on a sweaty thigh. Arianna’s eyes went wide. She screamed hard into Myrcella’s drooling clam shell when she felt the cane on the sole of her foot. She squirmed and wailed into the twat she hungrily devoured. Her head jerking hard in a lapping motion helped by the pain of the cane striking her ass, back and legs hard enough to leave welts but no blood. The marks dark with blood rush and raw in throbbing pain. The cane striking the bottom of her foot made it kick hard but the hand on her ankle kept it in place for more cruel strikes of the wooden cane on the bottom of her foot.

Her mouth was screaming as she ate Myrcella out. Her mouth surging forward to bury itself deep in the quim engulfing it. Her tongue slashing and her lips sucking wildly the sweet snatch of her blonde wife. Her eyes bulging out and then squeezed tight shut with tears running down her face with the pain flooding her body. Her mouth active. The pain inspiring Arianne to devour Myrcella’s drooling cunt.

The caning of her ass, back and legs stopped. Relief flooded her mind but it changed to terror when she felt her other foot lifted up. Her eyes bulged large as she buried her tongue in her wife’s honey hole and flailed her tongue in the soupy mess sucking out mouthfuls of sweet hot creamy cum. Her screams vibrating into Myrcella’s cunt hot and deep. Myrcella was jamming her ass back desperately into Arianna’s mouth grinding her quim into the Martell’s sucking mouth that had sucked sweet cunt meat deep into her mouth where the future leader of Dorne worked the wet cunt meat in her mouth. Arianna loved her nose jammed into Myrcella’s hot sweaty asshole as she lapped at the sweet cunny hole.

Her wails increased though they were swallowed and muffled by wet pussy. Now both feet were being canned with hard raps surrounded by soft taps. She wailed and screamed as the canes worked up and down her feet. The strikes on the arch of her feet especially agonizing. She never faltered in her eating out her wife.

Myrcella reached back and fisted Arianna’s sweaty disheveled hair and wallowed the dusky skinned beauty’s face even deeper into her sloppy wet snatch. Her fist snatched forward burying Arianna’s face deep into her camel toe. Arianna groaned feeling her heavy tits jerked hard by her tits gyrations. Her body’s harsh motions caused by her being caned and eating out Myrcella. The weights hooked to the clamps on her nipples pulling and jerking on her aching nipples sending pain and pleasure to her clit and happy besotted brain. The clank of metal jerking in clasps and weights hitting each other turning on Arianne immensely.

Arianna could feel the tension building in her Lannister wife’s body. Over the sweat on the teenager’s back Arianna saw Myrcella’s head rip back and the Lannister’s fistful of hair slammed Arianna’s face hard into her cunt. Arianna was in heaven now. The Sand Snakes were rubbing soothing lotion on her inflamed ass, back, legs and the soles of feet. The aloe vera based gel soothing and starting to take the heat out of her skin and abused muscles. The anti-inflammatory properties working to reduce swelling and inflammation. The relief had Arianne working even harder to suck and munch on sweet sopping wet red cunt meat.

Myrcella was grunting like a whore in heat ramming her couachie back into Arianna’s mouth engulfing the Martell’s mouth with her camel toe. The heir to Dorne head snatched forward with the hair knot Myrcella had in her sweaty lank lustrous black hair. “Unnggg hhnmmn hhnnn hhnnnggg suck it you godsdammed fucking aldultress cunt—aawwooggggg! Hhnnnngggggg! Ooowwgggggg!” Myrcella cried out feeling her wife lowering her face and trying to suck her clit down her throat. Myrcella felt the delicious spasms of rising orgasm starting deep in her womb and mashed her wife’s face harder into her spasming cunt.

Myrcella was throwing her head around her faced slashed with primal fuck ecstasy. The former Lannister felt her cunt spasming so hard her belly contracting to steel with each hard pulse of searing bliss pulsing out her clit. Then her womb exploded and tore itself apart deep in her belly. “FFFFUUUUCCCKKKKKKK! Hhnmm hhnn hhnnnn AAWWWOOOGGGGGG! AARRUUUNNGGGGGGGG! Arruunngggggggg! Oh! Oh! Auungghhiieeee!” Myrcella cried out as fierce undulations began to wrench her flesh.

Arianna rammed her face forward to get a good love suck on her woman’s clit and sucked with pure deep throat love sucks. The nearly eighteen year olds body flipped and her back snapped up and down as killing convulsions tore through her body. “Oohnngghmmngghhhiieeee! Mmmngghhhiiiee! Nnnngghhhiieeee!” Myrcella wailed, her body convulsing from head to toe in gut wrenching spasms of pure fucking bliss. The princesses body began to weaken as her orgasm spent itself leaving her to instinctively twitch and pump her cunt back into the mouth now running a long smooth tongue up and down a cum filled slit.

Myrcella slumped down onto her forearms quivering and jolting with fierce aftershocks searing her with pure fucking bliss. Those sweet aftershocks that makes a woman’s clit burn with ecstasy and nipples throb with searing bliss. Arianna rose up slowly gripping her wife’s ass cheeks lifting her mouth to lip lock her wife’s cunny hole and shoved her tongue in deep lapping out sweet tongue fulls of sweet creamy cum as her wife gurgled and shuddered feeling Arianna’s long tongue wiggling deep in her sensitive twat.

Arianna moaned in pure happiness swallowing sweet girlie cum. Her tongue licking Myrcella’s love hole feeling the dying spasms and fresh cunt cream slavering her tongue she brought back to her mouth and savored. She moaned and hummed drinking sweet female cum. She loved sucking hot sperm out of Master Marwyn’s cock and feeling the hard pulses hitting the back of her throat and filling her mouth. But it paled to sucking a woman off and having her delicious cunt explode in your mouth and gushing hot sweet cum into your gulping mouth.

She was relishing Myrcella’s spent pussy when her scalp was suddenly flooded with pain. Her face jerked back with a hard jerk on her hair. She looked back and saw that she was flanked by her two nieces Loreza and Dorea. Her two loving nieces had each fisted a hair knot of Arianna’s lustrous black hair. They each pulled up hard and high making the future ruler of Dorne cry out in pain. Her hands came up off the floor and her neck was pulled taut by the hard pulling on her hair.

The weights hooked to her nipple clamps swung around wildly and pulled mercilessly on her throbbing nipples making them pulse so painfully. The throbs hitting her clit hard making it jangle. As she was pulled up the weights thudded into her breast and rolled around and jerked hard as her nieces jerked their hair knots viciously making their aunt’s body whiplash back and forward.

Arianna tried to reach up to grip the hands pulling so hard in her hair but her blindly searching hands were gripped hard and thrown down. Then stinging slaps hit her face making her cry out in pain and humiliation. They spit in her face and Dorea wallowed her palm all over Arianna’s face. Then she and Loreza slapped down on their aunt’s breast. The stinging slaps making her tits whiplash and they started to slap her nipples cackling as they made the weights wipe up and down flopping around. The lead weights jerking up and hitting Arianne’s tits hard. The weights rolling around on the big tits before flipping up again with another hard jerk of the voluptuous body. When gravity and momentum had the weights jerk down hard the weight pulled mercilessly on Arianne’s nipples making them shriek with pain but oh so sweet pleasure all jumbled in with piercing pain.

“Ohhhh ... nnggg! Oh! Oh god, Loreza—Dorea, please!” Arianna whimpered as she was abused. Her clit was throbbing like a Warhammer and her nipples screamed in fiery pain and ecstasy. Gods she was loving the abuse so much. Her face and tits were slapped so hard her head jolting and tits wildly giggling. “Ungh! Ungh! Ownncchh! Unghh! … hhhnnngg uunggg Unnggmhhhhmgmm!” She saw Dorea bend down and she gripped the clips to the clamps and released them on her aunt’s nipples.

“AAARRUUUUNGGGG! EEEEIIIGGGG! AAAIIIEEEEE!” Arianna screamed feeling the blood rush back into her abused nipples. The pain hitting her clit so fucking good. Her body writhed and flipped wildly. Her flat stomach clenching with the pulses of pain hammering the scion of Dorne’s voluptuous body. Then her head was snapped hard and she cruelly jerked forward towards the divan sized for two on the South wall of their bed suite. The arms wide and slopped out fashionably. The light red material soft and inviting. Arianne’s hair roots shrieking in pain from the cruel jerks of the hair knots the Sand Snakes had fisted.

Arianna gasped and choked being dragged forward her head pulled up hard. She gibbered and Loreza spun around and slapped her hard in the face. Arianna gasped at the fresh flood of pain in her cheek sent a rush of pleasure to her clit. She was sobbing now in pain and humiliation and hardly remembered being dragged and then pushed down to her ass in front of the divan. Her hair was released with her nieces sitting down on the divan.

She saw the twins had sat side by side. Loreza had placed her leg over her twin sister’s inner leg. Their outer legs spread wide over the arm of the divan. Their hips on the edge of the divan and their drooling clam shells swollen and labia lips all dark brown and dripping sweet girl cum.

Her pain while still throbbing in her face, tits and ass faded as she stared at heaven on Earth. Her thoughts were focused elsewhere. The way she had been positioned she was in front of Dorea’s sweet drooling gash. The Sand Snake reached forward and fist Arianna’s hair again and roughly brought her aunt’s face forward and mashed it deep into her swollen love box.

“Huunnggggggg!” Dorea groaned feeling her aunt suck her clit into her mouth and feverishly attack her clit with ravenous fuck hunger. She watched her aunt with slit eyes devour her swollen cunny excited from abusing her aunt. Arianna’s face darker from the hard slaps and shiny from the blood rush to her cheeks and nose. Arianna head lapped hard as she sucked and tongue raked the hard nubbin jacked out its sheath and being hard flat tongue licked with gusto. Dorea watched Arianna suck in her clit with a harsh love suck and her head pumped as she lavished her skills on the clit she rolled and tongue slapped in her mouth.

Her head made a soft lapping motion rolling the sweet clit around in her mouth. Her cheeks dimpling with her love sucks as her tongue raked over the hard shinny nubbin. She pulled her head back and flat tongue licked over the pea sized clit. Arianna loved the feel of her tongue as it raked over the hard nubbin. She then swallowed the clit again sucking with short vicious love sucks with her tongue slashing over the hard bud.

Ariana loved eating her nieces’ cunts out every night. It felt so right and so perfect. Thank the gods Myrcella came into her life to give Arianna her sweet nubile body and to open the way for her to be able love Loreza and Dorea every night in their wedding bed.

She looked up and saw the fierce pleasure she was giving Dorea written all over her face by the hard slashes and fierce grimaces working over her face. Her body jolting as her head jerked right and left. Loreza was squeezing her small tits and pulling on her own nipples making her chuff and body writhe on the divan back. Loreza’s pussy all swollen and dripping wet. Arianna gave the sweet pussy wet sucking kisses worrying sweet cunt meat in her hard sucking mouth.

She rolled Dorea’s clit around with her tongue and sucked with fuck hunger. Her cheeks hollowing showing her tongue feverishly licking her niece’s clit again and again with lightening licks. She loved how Dorea instinctively humped her pussy up into her starving mouth. The force of Dorea’s humping twat mashed her vulva fully onto Arianna’s mouth engulfing her lips as she feverishly devoured her niece’s hot burbling snatch. Each swallow of her sweet Dorea’s intoxicating cum filled Arianna with more fuck hunger. It made Arianna’s belly purr in happiness tasting her niece’s cunt.

She pulled her head back lowering her face and began a slow sensual tongue fuck of the sweet tight pussy of her niece. Her tongue working in deep. The wet heat and tight pulses on her tongue so sweet to Arianna. She slowly worked her rhythm up and now plunged her tongue in hard and deep. Her nose burying itself in the wet slit of her Sand Snake. Dorea’s cum flooding her nostrils. Arianna’s neck tired and she buried her face paradise and sucked in a mouthful of sweet slimy sopping red cunt meat and happily munched on it.

She rolled her tongue over the slimy petals sucked into her mouth. The slippery oily feel of Dorea’s labia lips in her mouth felt exquisite to Arianna. Her nose buried in Dorea’s slit that soaked Arianne’s nostrils in sweet slimy snail snot. Arianne’s face soaked in her niece’s cum by now. Her mouth rolling in the cunt meat she had sucked in and now pumped her head to stretch and love torment the slimy lips in her mouth before lapping her head up again to suck and tongue lash her niece’s shiny hard clit.

Arianna looking up saw that the identical sisters had slumped into each other their upper bodies pressed together. Their heads cantered over and mouths locked tight with hands in each other hair. They were kissing deeply with heads tilted over. Arianna saw their tongues twined and twisting around in each other’s mouth wetly wrestling.

Dorea dropped one hand to cup and hard squeeze her sister’s firm plaint little peach breast. Her fingers pulping the firm dove making Loreza chuff hard into the mouth devouring it. Loreza whimpered and shook with such love for her sister. Arianna slowly pulled her head back still sucking hard until the sweet cunt meat snapped out her mouth. Dorea’s head snapped back “Awooggg … hhnnn hhnnnggg hhnnnggg hhnnnn!” Dorea groaned and then squealed when her aunt slowly siphoned her clit back deep into her warm wet mouth.

Arianna brought up her right hand and slide two fingers into Dorea’s buttery cunt and started to hard fuck the greasy fuck hole. Arianne pumped her fingers in hard twisting them in and out of the wet cunt that was quickly starting to make wet watery noises being expertly fucked. She saw Loreza move her head down. She cupped both of Dorea’s peach tits and pulped squeezed while her mouth hard sucked her identical twin’s rock hard nipples. Her tongue lashed the hard buds making Dorea’s body pulse and jerk with rising ecstasy.

The wet heat enfolding her hard pumping fingers intoxicated Arianne. Dorea’s hot cunt spasmed and clutched on the fingers plunging deep up her cunny. Arianne licked up and down the juicy slit her mouth munching on slimy labia lips and sucking in the sweet love cream soaking the slit. Then her mouth again found Dorea’s tender shiny bud jutting out its sheath. She sucked the hard pinkish nubbin deep into her mouth. She began a rhythmic deep throat love suck her tongue polishing the hard clit. All the while her fingers slammed deep and hard up Dorea’s tight teenage cunt with spearing thrusts.

Dorea’s pussy went from rhythmically pulsing on her fingers to wildly spasming on her hard pumping fingers. Arianna felt her cheeks hollow out with hard voracious deep throat love sucks on her wife’s clit. Her tongue relentlessly gigging the rock hard shiny bud jutted fully out its sheath. Arianne’s head lifted with the force of her love sucks stretching out Dorea’s sweet cunt meat in her mouth. Dorea’s head was twisting on her neck her face constantly slashing her eyes slit with her searing ecstasy. Her mouth was twisted making caws and whinnies of excoriating pleasure.

Dorea’s womb exploded and ruptured her cunt tearing it inside out. Her body stiffened and her face slashed horribly while her throat screamed ecstasy “GGGOODDDSSDDDAAMNNN! HHWWOOOGGGGGGGG! OOOWWWGGGGGGGGG!” Dorea shrieked her hands jamming down on her sister’s head to help her suck her nipple down her throat. Arianna whimpered sucking with all her strength and pure love. She pumped her fingers into the steamy cauldron of her lover’s exploding cunt. Hot milking spasms worked up and down her plunging fingers. Loreza was sucking as hard as she could her mouth stretching out Dorea’s left tit. Her mouth tenting the puffy brown nipple.

Hot white cum sloshed out of Dorea’s ruptured womb and flooded down her fuck channel. The creamy white effluent sliming down the fingers pumping hard and fast into the spasming cauldron of Dorea’s cunt. Arianne’s hand soaked in cum now. Slimy dollops of cum jerking off to the floor. White slimy tendrils working down her pumping forearm. All the while, Arianne’s tongue swiped and slapped the rock hard clit in her voraciously sucking mouth.

She felt Dorea’s body go rigid the tension rising exponentially feeling a second orgasm forming and exploding over top of the first orgasm. “Ahhn . . . ahhnn . . . ahnn AUUUNNGGGHHHHH!
OOOWWWG GGGGGGGG!” Dorea suddenly cried out again, a fierce cry of ecstasy that filled their bedroom. Her body jolted and ripped apart with spasms of fucking bliss “AUUNNGGHHIEEEEEE!” Dorea continue to wail. Her voice scaled down as she was throttled with savage throttling spasms. The orgasm gripping her body and shaking it violently with relentless force. “Oh! Oh! Unnggghhieeeeee! Mmmngghgghhieeeeee! Mmmuuunngghghiieeeeee!” shrieked as her cunt filled with melted cum butter that splattered out her exploding cunt.

Arianne was in heaven seeing how devastated Dorea was from the orgasms she was giving her sweet Sand Snake with the help of her other Sand Snake wife. Her mouth was filled with sweet cum burbling out the fuck hole she was squiring. Her fingers churning in melted buttery cum pouring out Dorea’s cunt hole. Her niece’s mound and lower belly soaked in opaque cum.

Dorea’s body went rigid as a board and shook with micro tremors the length of her torso her arms and legs shaking violently with clawed fingers and curled toes. Dorea’s dark eyes staring at the ceiling unseeing. Then her body went slack her orgasms fading rapidly, now that they had finished savaging the Sand Snake.

Arianna removed her fingers from the pussy that was now spent. She lifted her hand up to Dorea’s mouth and her slut niece hungrily sucked in the fingers and mewled sucking her own pussy off them. She gasped when her aunt glued her mouth to her spent twat and sucked out sweet mouthfuls of hot cum from her quivering trim. Her tongue exploring deep to pull out hot tongue fulls of hot cum.

Arianna spent several minutes slurping out creamy incestuous cum from her niece’s cunt hole. She slowly moved over to get between Loreza legs and dived her face in to get it buried in her other’s niece’s hot honey hole and started to suck and lick feverishly. Dorea had toppled over onto the extended arm of the divan mewling and still hitching with strong aftershocks.

Myrcella had recovered from her orgasm a while ago. She had first watched the sweet hot fucking on the divan lying on her back luxuriating in the warm fuzzy feeling deep in her belly. Her body tingling and purring in the happiness that a hard orgasm gives a woman. She felt so beautiful and hot at the moment. She had now pushed herself to sit up on her ass and watched Arianne suck Dorea off to wailing thrashing orgasm that was so beautiful to watch. Now she watched Arianne move to settle between Loreza’s spread legs.

Arianna sucked her other niece’s clit into her mouth and devoured sweet hot wet cunt meat with gusto. She lapped her head to rack her tongue over her woman’s clit and upper slit. She moaned and chuffed eating out beautiful sweet pussy. Loreza was writhing her back into the divan her face slashed. Her hands cupped and roughly massaged her B cup aching tits. Her fingers moving up to squeeze her small nipples against her thumbs and index fingers. Loreza pulled on her little nipples with harsh up jerks of her hands making her face slash.

Arianne moved in and now lifting her body up slightly. She attacked Loreza’s clit from on high her head bent down. She locked her lips on Loreza pea sized clit and sucked voraciously while she jerked her head right and left. Her tongue whiplashing over the hard nubbin in her mouth. Now Arianne rose up to her knees lifting her mouth off Loreza’s sloppy wet cunt.

She brought up her right hand. With her palm she wildly circled her palm on Loreza’s cunt pressing in hard compressing and rolling the swollen juicy wet cunt. The well lubricated pussy soaked Arianne’s palm immediately. Arianne pressed in with her cum soaked palm and hard masturbated her niece’s soaked quim with her grinding circling palm. She jacked off her sweet niece with her hard in pressing palm on her sloshing splattering pussy. She loved how Loreza cried out and jammed her back into the divan back and rotated her pussy up into the palm jerking her off.
Arianne did this for a minute watching both her palm jerk off her niece and watching Loreza’s face slash and crumple with searing fuck bliss. After another minute of his Arianne removed her hand. She sagged her body back down and first wiggled her tongue over the slimy cunt and clit before mashing her face back into the clitoral hood. She gave it quick love suck kisses and wiggled her face wiggling her tongue over the shiny nubbin before sucking it back into her mouth and voraciously deep throat love sucking with cheek hollowing forceful sucks.

Arianne felt her breath catch when she felt Myrcella behind her. She gripped Arianne’s abused ass cheeks making the heir to Dorne cry out into Loreza wet cunt. Myrcella now poured peach flavored lubricant onto her anus. She moaned hard into the twat she was eating out. Then she felt her breath catch when Myrcella inserted into her asshole a two and half inch thick anal bead. Arianne gagged into Loreza’s cunt sucking even harder on the wet red cunt meat in her mouth. The thick bead bulging out the sphincter rings of the Dorne Princess before her asshole jerked to swallow the bead up into her rectum.

Myrcella massaged Arianne’s aching ass which had Arianne cooing and moaning into Loreza’s pussy the vibrations hitting Lorena hard. Myrcella poured more lubricant onto Arianne’s anus. She swirled the vicious liquid into her anus with two fingers. Myrcella smiled seeing the twenty-five year olds ass cheeks jiggling from the sweet sensations she was giving her wife. Arianne whimpered into the sloppy wet pussy she was devouring. Dorea had recovered and leaned over to siphon her sister’s breast deep into her mouth. Arianna loved how the Pride of Dorne always worked to give each wife ever more pleasure.

Arianne felt her body shimmy and shake as four more anal beads were stuffed up her spasming anus. Myrcella had made a sweet play of working the beads through Arianne’s clenching anus. The blond teenager pushed and pulled the beads in and out the tight sphincter rings and used her grip on the circumference of the bead to twirl it right and left. Myrcella used her fingers to penetrate Arianne’s asshole and push the anal beads deep up her wife’s asshole.

She would tease and then jam the thick ivory bead back into the sweet shithole of her lover making Arianne cry out. Myrcella loved the tension of the anal bead caught in Arianne’s sphincter and then how her pulling hand jerked back when the bead slipped free out her wife’s hot ass. Sweet shit cream slavered all over the anal bead and coating her anus with sweet glistening ass juice. Arianne jolting hard and chuffing into the pussy she was devouring. Twice the sensations were so intense that Arianne had to lift her head and rest it on Lorenza’s groin to cry out her pleasure as her face twisted with fucking bliss.

Lorenza roughly fisting Arianne’s hair and jammed her aunt’s face back into her cunt and roughly jerking said face to bury it back into her drooling clamshell. Lorenza grinding Arianne’s face deep into her pussy burying her aunt’s face in her spasming quim. This encouraged her aunt to again suck and slurp her gash dragging the beautiful woman’s face roughly up and down her swollen drooling clamshell. Arianne avidly resuming devouring sweet sloppy wet succulent cunt meat.

Arianne now felt all five beads in her rectum again rolling around in her colon. She shivered feeling Myrcella throw the drawstring up on her back. The next moment Myrcella had buried her face in her muff and was avidly sucking her off. Arianaa sucked Loreza snatch deep into her mouth and lashed the sweet clit in her mouth. She loved looking up her niece’s muscled stomach and seeing Dorea trying to suck her sister’s boob down her throat. Above Dorea’s head Loreza’s head thrashed and her face looked like she was being garroted the way it slashed and contorted with sheer ecstasy.

She felt her own eyes rolled up into her skull feeling Myrcella harsh suck her clit. Myrcella’s mouth was glued to her clit pulling on it sweetly with her bee stung lips. Myrcella sucked so hard and tongue lashed her nubbin with relentless love. Myrcella moved up and pressed her face into her twat hole and tongue fucked her wife with deep slow strokes of her tongue. She worked her wife’s honey pit licking out dollops of sweet cum. Her right hand came up to work Arianne’s rigid clit jutting out its sheath. Her fingers rolling and squeezing her clit that throbbed and spasmed with rising need and want.

Then Myrcella licked up and over Arianne’s perineum to lick and rim her sweet Arianne’s anus. Her fingers clawing into abused buns to expose her wife’s asshole clenching around the string hanging out her shithole. Myrcella circled the darker brown starfish of her wife’s butthole with her pink tongue. Round and round Myrcella worked her tongue rimming Arianne’s asshole with her rasping tongue. Then she licked hard up and down over the quivering starfish.

Myrcella paused for a brief moment looking at the sweet anus clenching before her hungry gaze. Myrcella then stiffened her tongue and drove it deep up into Arianne’s loosened asshole and lick around on Arianne’s wet red rectum. Arianne chuffing and whinnying into Lorenza’s pussy feeling the blonde teenager’s tongue driving in deep up her ass and doing a sweet sensual tongue fuck of her spasming shithole. Myrcella glued her mouth to her slut’s anus. She sucked and tongued hungrily the puckering shithole. Her tongue wiggling deep and brushing over the rear must anal bead stuffed up Arianne’s shit pipe. The string hanging out her slut’s ass a sweet chaser.

The teen smiled feeling the last ivory bead on the tip of the tongue she worked deep up her wife’s asshole. The teen pumping her head to work her tongue deep up Arianne’s ass. Myrcella loved the wet steamy heat of her slut’s ass cleft intoxicating her as Myrcella sweetly tongue fucked her eldest wife’s asshole with focus and fuck hunger.

Arianne felt her eyes roll into her skull in helpless pleasure. Myrcella driving her tongue in and out her asshole was intoxicating the heir of Dorne. The silky stiff feel of Myrcella’s tongue was heaven in her asshole. Myrcella was again rubbing her fingertips up and down the drooling slit of Arianne’s quim. The fingers soaked in slimy opaque cum. The slick cum letting Myrcella’s fingers easily slide back and forth over Arianne’s rigid clit jutting out its sheath.

For the next minutes it was pure heaven of giving and receiving for Arianne. Arianne was eating out Loreza with all her verve and skills. Her mouth had latched onto her woman’s upper pussy and sucked it deep into her mouth and rolled the sweet cunt meat in her mouth. She stretched the quim sucked deep into her mouth while her tongue lashed and giggled the shiny nubbin. Dorea was pulping her sister’s tits with both hands her palms grinding rigid small nipples. Her mouth licked and nibbled on Loreza’s sweet spots on her throat.

Arianne lifted her head several times to tongue lash the rigid clit. Then her mouth lowering to suck in sweet rubbery slimy labia lips. The expert slut prolonging her niece’s pleasure by giving her clit short rests to let it settle. Arianne munched on the medium brown lips rolling and stretching them around in her mouth. The twenty-five year old moving down to tongue fuck the drooling fuck hole of her Loreza and would lip lock the honey hole to suck out mouthfuls of sweet slimy cum and swallow with glee before moving up to torment her niece’s clit again. The respite prolonging Arianne’s feast of sodden cunt meat.

Myrcella was working Arianne’s pussy and asshole with her sweet mouth and long tongue. It was simple heaven for Arianne to feel her wife’s tongue fucking her snatch and asshole with fervor. Then Myrcella gluing her mouth to her clit, fuck hole or shithole and sucking and Dorne kissing to drive her tongue deep up cunt and ass. Or moving her head down to give veracious sucks on Arianne’s hot pulsing clit. Myrcella moving her face to constantly pleasure both pussy and asshole to prolong her own dining.

Arianne felt the spasms intensifying in Loreza’s sweet body. Loreza’s hands were now in Arianne’s hair grinding her face into Loreza’s rotating trim mashing itself hard into her mouth. Arianna was in heaven feeling that sweet muffin totally engulfing her mouth and clapping tight to her cheeks. Her head rocked back that slight fraction by the force of the cunt fucking her mouth. Dorea had gripped her twin’s tits and mash squeezed them pulping Loreza’s firm tits. Loreza chuffing and head thrashed as her hips rotated even harder mashing her muffin into Arianna’s mouth driving her pulsing bud deeper into the mouth sucking on it.

Myrcella sensing Loreza getting close was now buzzing Arianna clit with her fingers all cum slicked. She had sucked Arianna’s cunt hole into her mouth and munched on the sweet red sopping wet cunt meat petals and whorls deep into her mouth. She rolled the slimy meat with her tongue and pulled on it with her lips. Arianna felt her body begin to convulse with that delicious tension forming deep in her belly. She concentrated in sucking her niece off.

Arianne looked up at Loreza who was jamming her back into the divan back and was jamming her snatch hard into her aunt’s mouth. Her face looked like she was being tortured. Her mouth feel open into a helpless O of shocking bliss. Then the hurricane of her orgasm gripped and throttled Loreza. “OOUNNGGHHIIIIIEEEEEE! OOOWWWWWGGGHHHHHHH! AARRRUUNNGGGGGG!” Loreza screamed feeling her womb rip itself to shreds deep in belly and flood her cunt and limbs with shocking bliss. Her body thrashed and flipped but Dorea pressed down on Loreza’s torso to keep her pinned down as she pulped her sister’s tits with grinding palms into her sister’s small doves. “Oh . . . oh shit . . . auunngghhhh! … Aaarruuuunngggggg! Unnghhiieeereeeeee!

Mmmnnggghhiieeeeee! Nnnnnhhhhhiieeeeee!” Loreza screamed feeling her cunt rupture and flooded her aunt’s mouth with hot gushes of steamy creamy cum.

Arianne swallowed the first two gushes moaning in pure happiness. Then suddenly her womb exploded in her own belly and her screams were swallowed by Loreza’s hot steamy couchie. “AAUGGPPFFFFFF! OOWWGGMMFFFFFFF! MMPHHHHFFFFFFF! Hhnnggg hnnngg ooohh Shhhiitttttttt!” Arianna’s screams swallowed by the wet cunt swelling her hot sucking mouth. Both aunt and niece screamed and wailed in scorching ecstasy. Loreza’s screams now scaling up as a second orgasm exploded in her pussy tearing itself inside out. Arianna was wailing and then her head ripped up away from the sweetness of Loreza’s gushing pussy.

“Myrcella paused for a few seconds her hand gripping the string to the anal beads. Then Myrcella jerked the next four beads out in quick succession.

Arianne’s asshole exploded in anal ‘gasm of epic strength. “FFFFFUUCCKKKKKK! AARRRUUNNGGGGGGG! AAWWWOOOGGGG! Hhnnggg hnnngg ooohh Shhhiitttttttt!” Arianna screamed feeling the first anal bead jerked out her tight anus. Her head snapped back her eyes shocked wide open. Myrcella paused for a few seconds her hand gripping the string to the anal beads. Then Myrcella jerked the next four beads out Arianna’s ass in quick succession.

Arianne fall into a sweet place where there was only pleasure. She felt her very veins awash with fucking fire of ecstasy. She and Loreza were both screaming in agonizing pleasure. Arianna was rendered nearly comatose with pleasure. She slumped down onto the floor spent and floating in a cloud of fucking bliss. She felt movement around but she did not care. Her body was tingling all over. Her feet and ass throbbed in pain that flowed into her pleasure making her shiver and mewl in spent bliss.
She suddenly felt her body pulled up roughly by her hair. She cried out in pain but she already felt her body reviving. Gods she was a pain slut! she thought to herself. She was roughly jerked over to the south side of the bedroom suite. Her feet ached and her wives were supporting her weight subtly through their cruel jerks on her body. She spied the construct made of metal bars that she and her wives had constructed last night. The tubes connected by interlocking joints the pipes fitted into the joints. The connected parts giving the whole construct strength. Key points had wing nuts on tightened to give it strength.

The tubes had been placed together so that the construct had a seat and the back leaned back with legs and arms splayed out. The seat and back were padded.

The tubes constructed by a business that worked strictly in the world of constructing implements to be used in hardcore BDSM. The business quite busy in the city of Lys on that island city state. People from all over Westeros and Essos buying from that establishment. The rich and powerful constantly sending emissaries back to the business to give requests. The clients giving detailed descriptions and often detailed drawings of what was desired. The emissaries waiting for the items to be crafted. The cliental coming back to buy more of his finely crafted items.

She was jerked into position before the construct and spun around. Her body listing and swaying with both pain and pleasure from her hard cum. She was put on the seat and roughly pushed back in the leaned back part of the construct. She was roughly strapped into the apparatus by her wrists and ankles with thin leather straps to hold her limbs in place. She squirmed her ass aching but she relished the pain. Her nipples were throbbing and fully erect yet again. Her pussy was reviving and her clit was spasming in its sheath and jutting out the knotted flesh of its nest.

She looked around silently. She knew what was coming and shivered in eager anticipation. She had done this for many years and Myrcella was addicted to it now too. She had specifically told her wives what she wanted from her “punishment” for her “adultery”. She had felt so alive seeing her wives eyes going glassy eyed with the thoughts of what was going to happen tomorrow. She did not know how they would work it into the sadistic sex. That was half the fun. To know it was coming but not when or exactly how.

Arianne remembered thinking that tomorrow she would be the focus of everyone’s attention. She had wanted to save her couchie for tomorrow. The pain would be so much more intense if her pussy was on edge from lack of attention. Arianne was thankful her three wives were like herself. If she did not have three or four orgasms at least a day she was a jangly mess. She would get snappy and easily pissed off. She had been so wound up this morning. By forgoing sex yesterday she had been primed to feel all the sensations of the play drama of today.

The only thing that had kept her calm throughout the day was all the pussy and sweet asshole she had fucked with her mouth and fingers last night. She might have been saving herself but that was not the case with Myrcella, Loreza and Dorea. Her mouth had ached by the time she finished sucking off her three wives over and over and snaking her tongue so deep up hot tight assholes. Now she was groggy from her abuse and hard orgasms. She was placed in the metal tube construct they had purchased from Lyse. The tubes could be interchanged to allow for different configurations. Today they were not going for anything exotic. She was sat down on the cushioned seat made of thick plush velvet. The back had been leaned back and she was pressed into it. She saw her wives get out thick hemp rope that was so scratchy. Her arms were roughly tied to the tubes. She looked up with limpid eyed at her wives.

Any defiance had been flogged and caned out of Arianne. Sometimes she tried to put up a fight but she was a caught adulteress slut and was being made to ‘suffer’ for her indiscretions. She watched her wives tying her up into the tubed chair. The thin leather straps came off now with the hemp rope being tied around her limbs. Her body thrumming for the next act in their little play. The rough hemp roped looped around her thighs and calves. The rope not needed to keep in place but used to press in hard into her body and let her feel the rough rope digging into her skin when she moved.

“Don’t think you are getting off so easy you adulteress hag! We need to make sure realize that you can’t go whoring around when we send you on a mission.” Myrcella told Arianne crossly. Arianne watched Myrcella lift her hand. A hand that delivered a vicious half slap to her cheek. Arianne cried out in pain as her face was slapped hard by Myrcella. Her nieces moved so they could slap her heavy breasts hard. “Aiiiieee! Oowwchh! Owwchh! Eeeiiii!” Arianne cried out as her tits were soon darker brown with the blood rush.

Her wives did not strike her with the force they had initially. Her body already abused and not as much force was necessary to give Arianne the desired pain. They were not out to batter and bruise their mate but only give her the pain and humiliation she craved. Some women craved true bruising and blood sport but not the Pride of Dorne.

Arianne was already on edge. Her nerves jangly from pervious abuse immediately started pulsing and throbbing in remembered pain. Arianne writhed but she was tied securely into the apparatus constructed to be her seat of torment. They all spit in her face and slapped her face harshly again and then walloped their palms all over her face and fist her hair and cruelly jerked her head around. Tears again running down her cheeks and down her throat as she wept in pain and humiliation.

The rough rope tied to her arms and legs and now across the middle of her belly was scratchy and roughly rode around on her sweaty flesh.

Her legs were spread out and she shrieked when Loreza slapped her exposed pussy hard. The impacts making her cunt scream in pain but her clit was throbbing so hard sending hot ecstasy to her nipples and her brain was drunk on the pleasure that only BDSM sex can give a woman. Her legs were tied to the tubes to restrain her lower body. Her legs spread out to fully expose her couchie for abuse from her wives.

Her face was slapped hard more by Myrcella as the Sand Snakes slapped her heavy tits making them flip and flop. Her pussy was struck with hard stinging slaps. Loreza’s hand now wet and glistening from her hot drooling cunt as her cupped hand pounded Arianne’s heavily flowing cunt. Cum dripping off her pussy lips and trickling down her thighs to hang in slimy tendrils before breaking off to fling down to the floor.

Her wives left her and went to the dresser table. They had also purchased some special candles from Lyse. The wax was a special formula that melted at a much lower temperature. They were designed to melt at one hundred and twenty degrees. This let one get closer to your slut to let the melted wax drip on her body. By not getting closer than eighteen inches the wax had a chance to cool before it splattered onto the human body. For sensitive areas one pulled the candle up higher to let the wax cool more. The candles melted down fast and were not useful for giving light. They had been designed for hot wax play. Her wives moved over to her slowly holding their lit candles. The light of the flames wiggling as they moved.

Arianne was squirming now but her immobilized body could not move. “Please no! No, I beg you, not that! It will hurt too much!” Her wives stood around her holding their candles letting the wax build up. Arianne was jerking immobilized limbs. Her eyes large with the fear she was projecting to stay in character. Her cunt was drooling juice down her legs and her nipples were fully engorged and rock hard. Her wives had surrounded her now.

“You are going to suffer cunt!” Myrcella snarled down at Arianne. The Sand Snakes did not talk much. They just delivered pain. Myrcella looked at her two Sand Snakes. The candles were bowled out at the top to let the melted wax build up. All three gave small almost imperceptible head nods they were ready to proceed.

Myrcella watched Arianne stare at the candles as they were slowly tilted over. The red wax dripping out bowls on the top of the candles and falling first onto Arianne’s breasts. The hot wax splattering onto her heavy tits all over with three candles pouring hot wax onto medium dusky skin all marked with dark brown streaks from her abuse. It was clear that Arianne loved feeling her tits hit with hot wax. The hot wax splattering and running down the full globes till it cooled.

Of course she could not show that. Instead “Aaargggg! Eeeiii! Please st—aawwgggg! Eeeiii! Hhhnnnggg hhnnnnmppp Eeeiii!” Arianne cried out and writhed seeing the melted wax splattering on her breast and starting to dry clinging to her skin. Her body jerked with pain. Her torso twisted as much as possible as she cried out in agony feeling the hot wax now traveling on her body. Her limbs jerked involuntarily. Her arms and legs spasmodically jerking hard with the rough hemp rope digging into her struggling flesh. Arianne’s face twisted and her throat shrieking her pain.

Dorea ran her candle down Arianne’s body in a slow motion. The red wax striking her belly and then her mons as her niece avoided her clit that was fully engorged and sticking out its sheath. Up and down Dorea moved her candle leaving red trails over Arianne’s tits and heaving belly. Arianne loved having such a large clit. It gave her wives something to suck on voraciously. Now it gave them a target to hit with their melted wax.

Loreza was running her hand up and down over Arianne’s immobilized body right and left. The Sand Snake dripped hot wax onto her aunt. First she drooled wax from candle to splatter Arianne’s upper chest with red streamers of hot wax. Then she lowered her hand while moving it down slightly over Arianne’s locked in place body. The long streams of hot wax splattered directly on Arianne’s large steeple areolas and on her on long thick nipples.

“Awwwoggg aagggiieeeee! Stop! Stop! Pleeeassee——arruuunngggg! Aaiieee eeeiiiiii eeeiiiiii nnggghhiiii!” Arianne wailed as Loreza ran her candle right and leg splattering hot wax directly onto her aunt’s nipples and then up to her throat. Arianne’s legs tried to kick and her arms jerked but the rough hemp rope dug into her body as her legs tried to kick and her arms jerked up from the arms of her tube chair. She screamed in pain as she thrashed in agony. Her teeth gnashed with her searing pain.

The pain sent agonizing arrows to her mind but also her clit and nipples. Arianne thrashed and heaved as much as she could in her immobilized position. Her body rocked with her body’s gyrations. Her eyes would first bulge out and then squeeze tight shut with the pain flooding her veins. The pain was harsh but just right for Arianne. She loved it hard and rough but her sweet wives knew her limits and did not cross them. She and Myrcella were extreme pain sluts and reveled in the pain, abuse and humiliation.

“Ssssttooopppp! Arruuunngggg! Unngghhiiii aaaaaiiiiii aaaaaaiiiii ooohhhhh ggoodddsss stopppppp … godssss I’m beggginnggg youuuuuuuu! Aarruuunngggg! aauuuuggggg!” Arianne first shrieked loudly but weakened as pain flooded her mind. Never once did she come close to saying ‘red’.

Then Dorea was running hot wax down Arianne’s inner thighs and over her wet cunt making Arianne’s groin jerk and jump on her seat. “Oowwggggg! Nngghhhiiii eegghhiiii! Aaaaiii aaaaaii nnhhiiiiii!” Arianne shrieked in agony her restrained body twisting in its immobilized state. The pain was delicious but the pain was a bitch! The two Sand Snakes leaving long trails on her body of splattered red wax.

The beauteous blonde had been watching her Sand Snakes play with their adulteress wife. Then Myrcella worked her arm to run her hot wax down Arianne’s belly the red wax splattering and leaving trails on the jerking belly. Myrcella lifted her candle up to let the hot wax cool a minute fraction before she let the hot wax fall from the candle. The wax falling down to splatter onto Arianne’s shiny clit.

Arianne screamed in pain and pleasure that rocked her soul. Her arms and legs tried to jerk and kick wildly as pain seared through her body from her clit taking direct splatters of hot wax. The metal construct rattle and shook loudly with Arianne’s wild jerks.

Loreza let hot wax run down Arianne’s arms and then back up. Then the hot wax was dripping onto her convulsing throat and again on her nipples as she screamed in agony. Dorea dripped hot wax onto the tops of her feet and shins. Arianne could not stop her arms and legs kicking hard though the rope kept them in place. The rough rope digging into her flesh marking her hard with dark brown marks. The rough rope hurt but also turned Arianne on no end. Her head ripped back and she screamed when more hot wax splashed onto her pussy and covered it with hot wax.

Myrcella concentrated on Arianne’s clit and nipples holding her candle up to build up wax before again letting long streams dribble down to splatter on nipples and clit. Arianne shrieking with her tied down body wildly jerking and writhing in her restraints. The rough hemp rope digging into her voluptuous flesh so deliciously into Arianne’s jerking body.

“Aaarrrungggg! Oohhhhh fuucckkk—nngghhiieeee! … ppleeeassee stop stop I’m begging you SSTTOOPPPP-AAARUUUNNGGGGGGG! OOWWWGGGGG! nngghhiieeee!! Uunngghhiieeee!” Arianne wailed when Myrcella and Dorea lowered their candles and dripped hotter wax all over her fat drooling camel toe and shiny hard clit.

For the next ten minutes Arianne was covered with hot wax from her chest down to her shins. Her wives would stop after several minutes to light new candles. This also allowed Arianne to rest between torture sessions. Arianne’s head was lulled over as she watched her wives with bleary eyes. She begged them to stop when they would approach with fresh candles. Once more hot wax was splattering all over her body. Loreza sneered at her wife. She put hand up higher to drip hot wax on Arianne’s forehead and cheeks making sure to keep away from her eyes. Arianne keeping her eyelids squeezed tight shut at the moment.

“Auuuggggg! Nnngghhiieeee!  Stop I’m beggi

Arianne shrieked as no respite was given. She wailed and bucked as her wives cackled at her. She was in so much pain and her pussy was a soupy mess in masochistic pain and pleasure. Her breathing was ragged as she cried and gasped for breath. Her wives would avoid her sensitive nipples, pussy, throat, face and inner thighs for a short while before again splashing hot wax on those areas making Arianne wail in agony.

The voluptuous slut loved feeling the cooled wax all over her body. The dried wax making her skin feel tight with the waxes contraction with its cooling. Then more streamers of hot wax landed on her body covering untouched areas or adding more and more layers to the wax already dried on her body.

Arianne’s eyes tracking the red streams of hot red wax as they left the tilted over candles. The streams running up and down her torso or limbs. At other moments the candles held steady to let a steady stream of the searing wax splatter in place on a certain part of her body. Her nipples and clit taking long streams of the wax. The previous layers somewhat shielding her sensitive nipples and clit. Several times her tits and cunt were slapped hard to fling off melted wax. The again exposed nipples and clit again hit directly with hot wax. The pain had her shrieking and kicking wildly with her head thrashing. Her eyes first squeezed tight shut and then bulging as hot wax seared her nipples and clit with exquisite shocking pain.

The candles were melted down now. Her wives went back to the dresser. Arianne groaned in pain and pleasure. Her mind and clit were a jangling mess now. She saw her wives pick up short handled floggers with leather tassels. The tassels only half as long as the full handled floggers. She started to squirm in her seat.

“Please no more! Please have mercy! Show me merc—Aaaahhh! Uuggghhh! Mmmmmgghhhii!
Owwch! Arrrgggnnn!” Arianne cried out feeling the short tassels slap down into her tits, belly and groin. Her wives working their floggers and down her arms and legs. The hard strikes on her body had the wax flinging off her body in all directions with each hard strike on her body. Again and again the leather tassels lashed into her body the leather digging in with stinging strikes. Her body lurched and jerked as much as the rope allowed her too. Arianne cried out in pain and begged for mercy that was not given. The red wax flung in all directions. The rough hemp biting into her flesh making her pleasure soar even harder.

Her head snapped back the tendons in her neck standing out with her screams of pained pleasure. In a long minute the vast majority of the wax had been whipped off her body. She was punch drunk on pleasure and pain now. She sat back in her tubular chair and watched her wives with bleary eyes as they walked back to the dresser table and they hurriedly strapped on their thick long cocks. The shafts over one and half inches thick with Dorea’s nearing two inches thick. All three shafts long that had bulbous cockheads. They were made of black leather filled with balsa wood and sand. The shafts a little over ten inches in length.

Myrcella watched Arianne as she looked at her wives pour lubricating oil up and down the black leather. Their cocks glistening now. She groaned hard seeing her wives thick cocks waving in front of their bodies as they approached her. She stared with limpid eyes at the thick cocks. She was roughly untied from the tubular chair. Myrcella smiled seeing that Arianne’s marked up body was still ready for more hot sex. Arianne loved abuse and was more than ready for the play to continue.

Myrcella was the same way. It took a lot of hard fucking to wear her out. Pain and humiliation only wound Myrcella up to be fucked hard and deeper more and more. Myrcella was a masochistic pain slut who craved more and more. She nor Arianne had ever used the safe word of ‘red’ or even ‘yellow’ to slow down. Her Sand Snakes and each other knew how to dish out the pain and abuse and yet stay within safe limits.

Loreza and Dorea fisted their aunt’s disheveled hair. They jerked Arianne as she cried out in pain. Her body lurched up and out of the tubular chair she had been immobilized in. Arianne stumbled out of the chair onto her knees. Weeping she was dragged over too their bed with rough jerks of the hair knots the Sand Snakes had fisted in her hair. Her knees stumbled as she was jerked along behind her nieces. Arianne’s folded body was jerked forward as Arianne wept and cried out in pain. She was thrown up on the bed.

“Get on your hands and knees bitch!” Dorea snarled at her aunt. Arianne obeyed her abused body moving in slow motion as she got up on her knees and palms. Her hanging udders swaying beneath her. Her head hung down her sweaty matted hair flagged around her face. “You like cock so much we want you to show us how much you like dick you adulteress slut!” The three aggrieved wives of Arianne got up on the bed on their knees in an arc in front of Arianne. She slowly rose up her hanging head up to look at her wives and their dicks waving in front of her.

Arianne was surrounded by her wives who had gotten upon their feet up on the bed before her. Her hair was fisted by Myrcella and her head cruelly jerked up. Arianne reached up to try and relieve the pain in her scalp but her hand was thrown down. She was now up on her knees staring up at her still ‘angry’ wives. Her neck turned so she saw all three dicks waving in front of her face all black and glistening with the lubrication on them.

“Suck you whore!” Myrcella roared at Arianne. The scion of Dorne looked at the three dicks waver ing around in front of her face. The leather filled cocks were rigid packed with their filling material. Her eyes moved from cock to cock her mouth watering at the thought of giving sloppy head. The humiliation hurled at her went straight to her rigid engorged clit and nipples.

Myrcella threw Arianne’s head aside in disgust. Dorea reached down next gripping a handful of hair and jerked her adulteress wife’s head to get her mouth in front of her black cock. “Suck” was her one word command. The Sand Snake gripping the base of her long shaft and jerking it in front of Arianne’s face. Arianne looked at the thick beautiful phallic shaft hotly.

With a whimper Arianne’s mouth dove down on Dorea’s cock swallowing it. Her lips clamped tight on the slicked leather shaft and she bobbed hard. The liquid had a peach taste that Arianne craved her lips sliding up and down the black shaft. She moaned sucking hard her eyes rolled up to look at Dorea. Her sweaty lank hair jerked with her fierce head bobbing. Her lips sliding up and down the slicked leather shaft. Dorea’s hot glare was so hot to Arianne. She loved the hard glitter in her Sand Snake’s dark eyes.

Arianne knew her wives did not feel the pleasure a man felt with her hard love sucks on their cocks but they were enjoying the show and seeing her so avidly suck on their strap-on cocks. The lubricating oil was peach and tasted yummy Arianne thought. Her head bobbed hard her mouth quickly lubricating the thick lather shaft with her spit on top of the oil already on the shaft. Her wet sucks and slurps obscene in the room as she bobbed with cheek hollowing long sucks up and down the shafts she was giving fellitio to.

The voluptuous beauty leaned forward gripping the front of Dorea’s strong slender legs to anchor herself. Her mouth glued to the shaft. She bobbed first fast and then slow changing her tempo. Then she was swirling her head on the cockhead in a tight spiral. Her moans of happy sucking head filled the room. She would pump her head on just the cockhead like it was a man’s real dick pleasuring the sensitive glans. Then back to head bobbing sucking up and down the shaft.

First Loreza and then Myrcella fist ed her hair and jerked Arianne’s head over to service their cocks. She dove on each shaft in turn bobbing hungrily. Her abused body reviving thinking of the great TP fuck about to be administered to her body. She would suck hard and then pull the cock out her mouth and lick up and down the shafts and circle her tongue on the bulbous dickheads. She looked up with kitten eyes moving from cock to cock. She fist ed each cock now and twisted her head on their dickheads and then bobbed first slow, then fast and back to slow giving each shaft all her skills as if a real dick.

She moved her body slightly to give each cock head in turn now. The slut bobbing hard on each shaft. Then slowing to slow suck and twist her head off the mushroom cockheads with wet lewd plops. Arianne reached out with her fists to pump the shafts her mouth was not currently sucking on. Her fist squeezing the slicked shafts as if they were real cocks. Her hands loved pumping the slicked shafts while her mouth bobbed hot and tight on the dickhead in her mouth.

Arianne loved oral. She twirled her head in a tight swirl on the dick she was currently sucking after a session of hard bobbing. She swirled head first one way and then the next. Her sweaty hair jerking hard. She would then pull her head off the mushroom cockhead she was sucking on. Her mouth popping off with an obscene plop sound. She sucked fiercely while pulling her mouth off the dick. Spit roped to the dick and breaking off to soak her lower face and throat.

Her sloppy head had spittle drooling out her avidly sucking mouth. The spit leaking out the corners of her mouth as she sucked with rabid sucks. She would jam the dick in the side of her mouth. Arianne twisted her head so the cockhead bulged out the side of her cheek. She worked her head so the cockhead bulged out her cheek down to the corner of her mouth. Arianne then jerked the dickhead out the corner of her mouth. The cockhead jacking out her mouth sending spit flinging.

Repeatedly Arianne did this to show what a lewd slut she was. Spit now soaking her whole face. Her wives fisting her hair and working their hips as they jerked her head forward to take their cocks hard into the back of her throat. Spit pouring out her choking mouth. Bubbly spit running down her face to drool off onto her throat and hanging tits. Her hands pumping hard shafts with tight jerks.

The slut paused in her head giving. She looked up at the woman whose dick was in her mouth. Myrcella looked down at her with hot eyes. The voluptuous women released her grips on the other cocks to grip Myrcella's hips. Arianne took a deep breath and slowly worked her throat down the thick shaft. She was able to get the shaft half way down her throat. She pumped her head down on the shaft working two more inches down her throat the cock filling her throat. She paused and pressed down again until her nose was pressed into Myrcella’s flat belly. Her lips massaging the smooth skin of the blonde’s belly. Arianne gag drooled out spit when she lifted off the dick filling her throat. Her body heaving for breath while spit poured out her mouth and ran down her face and onto her tits and belly.

Again she took Myrcella's cock down her throat. The slut loved feeling her throat bulge out with the dick sliding down her throat. The dickhead riding down over tonsils bulging out her throat beneath her ears before sliding down her throat till the mushroom cockhead was down beneath her Adam's apple. Myrcella pumped her hips to mash Arianne's nose into Myrcella's belly with hard thumps. Arianne now gripped the blonde's ass cheeks keeping her throat filled with her cock. She would rise up and choke out spit heaving for breath.

She took turns doing deep throat on her wives dicks. She sucked them like she had the Maester’s thick veined prick. She loved taking the dicks of her wives into her throat worming the mushroom cockheads as deep as she could into her throat. Her head pressing and pumping down till her nose was pressed into flat bellies. The feel of her throat bulged out made Arianne feel so fucking hot and slutty. Arianne pumping her head up and down riding their cocks in her dick filled throat. She rose up choking out rivers of bubbly spit as she choked for breath.

Arianne knew the thick shaft was bulging out her throat with the log down it. It always turned on Arianne watching a woman take a dick or strap-on down her throat. To see the throat bulge out below a woman’s ears as the shaft slide into her gullet and then the throat bulging out if a thick dick. She in the past watched her uncle fucking men seeing the same thing. It was hot.

Arianne turned her body so she could again and again do deep throat on her wives cocks in turn. She loved choking off her air on their thick dicks filling her throat. She rose up off Loreza cock again gasping after deep throat her dick again. Thick streams of slimy spit poured out her mouth while her body rocked taking deep breaths to get oxygen into her lungs. Her face and throat soaked in spit. Her tits and belly covered in long streams of bubbly spit slowly running down her body.

Arianne knew she looked like a total whore and loved it. She felt slutty and it empowered her to know she was reaching for maximum pleasure and taking it. Giving head always excited the Heir to Dorne.

Loreza now fisted her hair and jerked her head back from her thick shaft. She barked at her aunt to open her mouth. She ordered her aunt to keep her hands by her sides. Arianne docilely complied looking up at Loreza with doe eyes. Loreza guided her thick shaft to Arianne’s lips. Then she slammed her hips forward ramming her cock hard into Arianne’s mouth. The shaft sliding up her
First Loreza and then her other wives took turns skull fucking Arianne. The three standing women snarling at Arianne what an adulteress slut she was. How they hated her for cheating on them. Arianne’s hands gripped thighs or hips to hold her body in place while her head jerked back slightly with the force of the cocks being rammed into her throat fast and hard.

She loved how her wives gripped her hair and slammed her head up and down their cocks. Their dicks slamming into the back of her throat making her choke and spew out mouthfuls of spit around the shaft lunging up her tongue and slamming her throat again and again. Arianne choking and gasping as she grudge fucked hard. “Urrrkk hhhrkk aawwookkk hhnnkkk unhrrkk hhrrrrkkk” Arianne gurgled as her throat was pounded with slam fucking bulbous cockheads.

She gripped the body of the wife fucking her throat viciously. Her mouth open to let the sounds fill the room of her skull fuck “Hrrkkk hhrrkkk uuukkk … aauukkk hhrrrrkkk uuukkk”. Her head jacked back by the shaft ramming her throat. Arianne loved the feel of being absolutely controlled. Her body now soaked in her spit flowing heavily out her mouth. The spit now running down her lower belly and slavering her mound and dripping off her mound and groin in slimy tendrils.

She spent sweet minutes giving hot sloppy head as her wives used her like a piece of shit. The humiliation and rough treatment making her hot beyond reason. She would lift her head and drool out hot mouthfuls of spit on the black shafts and pump the cocks with her fists that she was not currently sucking avidly on. Her eyes looking up at the wife’s whose dick she was fisting and keeping eye contact slowly sliding her mouth down the mushroom cockhead and siphon suck it with deep cheek hollowing love sucks.

The wife she was sucking fiercely on again gripping her head and pumping her face hard up and down the cock she pumped her hips savagely to grudge fuck the cheating wife they supposedly hated for cheating on them. Her throat choking out rivers of bubbly spit while she gasped for breath. All the while her mouth sucking as hard and good on the dick in her mouth riding hard and fast up and down her tongue and into the back of her throat. She loved giving head no matter if the cock was not real.

Then she would open her mouth again to let the full sounds of her skull fuck fill the room. To let the spit flow freely out her mouth and down her body. To excite her sadistic wives with the full sound of her choking and wheezing for breath with the dick assaulting her throat mercilessly. Hot slimy strands of spit roped off her chin and jaw line wiggling before breaking off and flinging onto her chest, tits and belly.

Arianne serviced all of her wives dicks as they stared down at her with hot eyes. The women constantly calling her a slut and adulteress whore. That she was a worthless piece of shit for cheating on them. They called her a pig fucker for sleeping with a man. Arianne loved all the humiliation.

The voluptuous twenty-five year was leaned forward her hands gripping Dorea’s legs to anchor herself as she pumped her head hard up and down the Sand Snake’s long thick strap-on. Dorea helping her slut wife pump her head with her hair fists. Her hands jerking hard to slam Arianne down on her cock that her hips pumped up hard into the back of Arianne’s throat. Then Dorea roughly jerked Arianne’s head back ripping her head off her pumping dick. Arianne gasped for breath, rivers of spit flowing out her mouth that ran down her chin and down her throat in fresh streams of bubbly drool.

Suddenly, Dorea gripped her shoulder and hip and roughly pushed Arianne back. The voluptuous women chuffed in surprise as she flopped back onto the bed. Her body landing with a loud umphff and bouncing once. Arianne looked up at Dorea with slut doe eyes. Her body spread out for her niece to take as she chose. Dorea got down on her knees and picked up a bottle of the lubricant they had all poured on their strap-on cocks.

Arianne looked up at Dorea with limpid eyes her breathing elevating in fuck slut need. She watched her Sand Snake unstop the bottle of lubricant and poured a long stream of the clear slightly gelatinous liquid on her thick shaft and poured some on her hand. Dorea fisted her strap-on cock working the lubricant all over cock soaking it in the slimy effluent. The dusky Sand Snake now poured a stream of the liquid down onto her shivering and now breathy slut wife’s slit and over her clit.

She handed the bottle to her twin sister. Dorea reached down with her slimy hand. She rubbed Arianne’s couchie and rubbed it hard mashing her fingers into her wife’s slit. Up and down the long digits worked the slimy trench. Arianne gasping and her hips lurching at the sweet sensations especially when Dorea circled her clt. Dorea smiled down at Arianne with a slut smile. She loved fucking face to face.

She pushed Arianne’s legs out with hers and leaned down onto her knees and elbow. She guided her bulbous dickhead to her aunt’s drooling clamshell. She rubbed her dickhead up and down the slit making Arianne mewl. She made sure to use her bulbous dickhead to plow Arianne’s long wavy labia lips and over the rigid clit in its clitoral hood. Arianne humped her hips up into the sweet appendage jacking her couchie. The cockhead plowing her clit sending jolts through the voluptuous slut.

Then Dorea stilled her motion. She aimed her mushroom cockhead at her wife’s drooling fuck hole. She looked down at her dick at the entrance to her wife’s love box. Then Dorea leaned down and forward. She slide her cock slow and deep into Arianne’s hot tight cunny. The long thick shaft splitting her wife’s trim in two sinking in balls deep. Arianne arched her back and moaned like the whore she was feeling the thick long shaft filling and stretching her pussy out. Slowly Dorea impaled her aunt with her dick stretching her aunt’s couchie out tight on their thick black leather prick. She pushed in till her shaft was fully buried in her aunt’s hot tight cunt.

“Unnggg yesssssss! Fuck me Dorea like only you can baby!” Arianne gurgle chuffed feeling her belly stuffed with sweet hard dick. Dorea slowly started to work her hips forward and back plowing her mushroom cockhead in and out her wife’s tight clutching pussy. The thick shaft stretching out Arianne’s trim the cockhead plowing through tight folds and whorls of Arianne’s hungry cunt. In and out the shaft plumbed the depths of Arianne’s couchie. “Unnnnggg nnnng oohhhh shit! Yessssssss” Arianne moaned sibilantly. "Unnhhh ... ohmmmnt!” she cawed her face slashing with sublime pleasure. "Yes! Unghhhh! Gods—yeessss plough my cunt baby ... yes—godssssss yes—auuugg ghhnnn hnnn hhnnng, fuck me hard! Unghhhhh! Oohhhhh nnnnggg oooohh fuccckkkkkk!” the voluptuous the beauty moaned like a Lysian whore.

Slowly Dorea picked up her rhythm. She worked her hips to slide her thick shaft in and out her aunt’s quim harder and harder. The thick shaft stretching her wife’s cunt out tight into an O ring around her shaft. The Sand Snake pumped her hips slowly faster driving her cock deep into Arianne’s belly. The penetration had Arianne moaning deep in her chest. Her face contracted and slashed with the primal pleasure she was feeling having her cunny expertly fucked balls deep. Her throat cawing her soul deep pleasure.

Arianne’s inner lips clung to the thick black shaft on the out stroke the red wet lips so delicious looking all tight on the shaft until the hard strap-on cock slammed into Arianne’s belly taking her wet inner lips back into her tight greasy cunt. Dorea lifting her hips and rotating them to drive her dick hard into her aunt’s belly making her incestuous love slut groan deep in her chest. Her head twisting and face contorting with the pleasure her niece was giving her fucking her fuck hole with deep love strokes their groins slapping hard with each impaling stroke.

Their bellies slapped and wallowed with their instinctual love rhythm. Arianne arms looped around Dorea’s back pulling her to her body as she gurgled and groaned deep in her chest. Her hips humping up to take her niece’s dick deeper and harder into her belly. After a minute Dorea rose up.

Dorea was on her knees and fists sliding her cock in and out her aunt’s drooling quim. Dorea arched her back now to increase the force. The sounds of sweaty bodies slapping as Dorea’s groin jacked down into Arianne’s mound and belly. The sounds loud in the room. The shock of impact so sweet on Arianne’s clit. Her head lulling over her face slashing constantly while her throat moaned like the pure slut she was.

Arianne felt the bed settle on each side of her body. She had her eyes closed but opened them and smiled sluttily. She saw Myrcella and Loreza’s cock by either side of her face. Her other two wives on their sides and bodies cocked to get their dicks near her face. She tilted her head right to siphon in Myrcella’s cock. Her head pumping softly to suck on the sweet lubricated dick. Her face slashing with the pleasure she was receiving from her beautiful niece plowing her cunt.

Arianne slurped and moaned around the shaft she was undulating her head on. Her face twisting with the pleasure she was feeling from her niece plowing her trim. Her lips siphoned tight on the shaft she was sucking on. The peach lubricant so tasty as her cheeks hollowed out with her love sucks.

Loreza fisted her hair to pull her mouth off Myrcella’s dick and pull her head to the left. Arianne smiled like a whore up at Loreza sucking in her cock and undulating her head up and down the cockhead and upper shaft. Her dark eyes locked with her niece. She sucked fiercely on Loreza’s dick with cheek hollowing love sucks making kitten eyes at her fierce Sand Snake.

Back and forth her head was tilted by her two greedy wives. Both Myrcella and Loreza tilting over roughly Arianne’s head to suck on their black shaft and bulbous dickhead. The voluptuous beauty sucking hungrily on the proffered cock pumped up and down her tongue by working hips and her own head pumping to take the dick to the back of her throat with glued lips and hard cheek hollowing love sucks.

All the while she sucked on the proffered cocks Arianne chuffed and her face slashed feeling Dorea pump her thick shaft deep into her belly. The bulbous septa helmet plowing her inner fuck folds and whorls. The dickhead punching deep into her belly. The delicious friction and slapping of groins intoxicating to the voluptuous brunette. The sensations shocking her clit with sweet hard jolts and friction as their bodies slapped wetly into each other. Both women soaked in their sweat of sweet fucking.

Myrcella and Loreza flexed their hips to slide their cocks in and out her tight sucking lips. Their cockheads jacking into the back of Arianne’s throat jerking her head with each hard thrust into her throat. Her mouth drooling out spit all over her face and onto the sheets as she gave wet slobbery suck with her tilted over head.

Arianne mewled feeling Dorea starting to stroke her harder. Her body jolted with the force of the shaft squiring her sloshing quim. Arianne reached up with her hands to grip Myrcella and Loreza’s body when she leaned their way to anchor her body while she bobbed fiercely on their dicks. Her lank hair jerking as she half rolled over to her shoulder to let her give even more fierce head. Her head bobbing harder while Dorea held herself up on her feet now and her palms on the bed to harpoon fuck the buttery cum filled fuck hole of her sweet Arianne.

Fierce pleasure filled Arianne as she jerked her head off Myrcella’s cock. "Unhhh ... ohnnnn!"
Arianne moaned feeling her couchie expertly fucked with thick hard dick rammed into her belly balls deep. Her trim stretched out with her inner lips clinging to the black shaft plunging hard and deep into the squishy cunt that made wet slurpy sounds as it was fucked hard and deep. "Yes! Ungghhh! Gods ... yes, fuck me hard! Ungghhh! Yes—Dorea pound my ass! Auuggg nnnngg hhnnnn hhnnn hnggg!" Arianne gurgled from Dorea’s expert deep dicking of her tight cunt.

After another minute her other two wives pulled back after a quick head shake from Dorea. Arianne settled fully onto her back looking up at her Sand Snake fucking her hard and deep. Their groins jamming hard and lower bellies slapping. Sweat pouring off the brown skin of Dorea and splattering all over Arianne’s own sweat drenched body.

Dorea settled down onto her elbows by Arianne’s head and melded her lean warrior body into the voluptuous body of her aunt. She worked her hips to pull her cock out her aunt’s pussy and slam in hard and deep. Their sweaty bodies had their bodies slipping and sliding over each other. Their bellies slapping while Dorea pounded her groin down into Arianne’s with loud smacks that seemed to echo off the walls. Arianne moaned and groaned her body jolting with the force of her powerful wife fucking her with her dick stretching out and plundering the dark haired beauty’s tight cunt. Her pussy sloshing and slurping as it was deep dicked with plunging strokes of pure love.

Arianne’s legs came up to clasp her niece’s hips and locked her ankles over her ass. Arianne moaned hard feeling her body pressed into the bed and Dorea’s groin slamming down into her pussy the shock and friction working her clit. Dorea fisted her hair and mated their mouths tight and kissed her aunt deeply lifting her hips to impale her aunt’s womb on her dickhead with each violent down thrust of her hips. Arianne’s body jolted with savage thrusts up into her tight cunt. Her mouth chuffing into the mouth devouring hers. Dorea’s tongue like a serpent twining with her tongue. Their long coiled tongues flipping around in Arianne’s mouth.

They were both sweaty and soaked from head to toe. Sweat dropping off Dorea’s body onto Arianne whose body was covered with rivulets of sweat running down Arianne’s face and ribs. Their dark black hair matted and lank. Their bodies slipped and slide over the other’s body. Arianne loved feeling her niece’s nipples digging into her full bosom with her fuck motions. Their tongues wetly wrestling in her groaning mouth. Her body jolted forward that small fraction by the power of her niece’s hard full on slam fuck of her aunt’s hungry cunt. The thick shaft slamming in balls deep. Groins smacking and bellies wallowing. Sweat and cum slavering bellies and groins.

Dorea broke the kiss and stared down into her aunt’s eyes. The throbbing current of pure sex connected the two women. Dorea loved the look of sheer pleasure flashing across Arianne’s face. Both women loved the impact of Dorea snapping her hips down and impaling Arianne’s tight juicy slurping quim and their sweaty bellies slapping and their tits mashed into the other’s tits. Dorea’s smallish B cup tits swallowed by the large hillocks of Arianne’s ample nearly DD tits.

Arianne tilted her cunt up into the impaling thrusts of pure love from Dorea. Her face was slashing fiercely now. Her forehead pressed into Dorea’s neck. Her body was being slammed fucked so hard and good. The feel of the thick cock stretching out her cunt heavenly. Each thrust had her seeing stars as Arianne’s body started to tighten up with the first hints of an orgasm forming deep in her belly.

Arianne with her grip on Dorea’s hips with her locked ankles over Dorea’s ass had the dark haired beauty titling her couchie up to be impaled. Her cunt open for deep dick thrusts. Her body humped up into the down thrusts to take all of Dorea’s dick deep into her sweaty belly and drooling trim.

The pain in her abused bum only added to her pleasure. Arianne’s body bouncing off the bed and rebounding into Dorea’s down thrusting body. The Sand Snake’s dick slamming balls deep into her aunt’s belly again and again with savage strokes of pure love. Arianne’s cunt filled with cum and made wet sloshing and squishing sounds of a sodden cunt fucked well. The strap-on bulbous dickhead plowing Arianne’s inner cunt whorls and petals with powerful strokes.

“Unhhh! Oh yes ... unh! Do it hard ... fast!” Arianne encouraged her lover to pound her ass into the bed. Her hands were gripping Dorea’s ribs and her face was slashing as a stunning orgasm was forming deep in her belly. “Pound my Ass! Fuck me hard!” Dorea chuffed in a guttural voice hard now. Dorea’s sweat dripping on Arianne’s face. Dorea worked her arms underneath Arianne’s shoulders and fisted her aunt’s hair to anchor her body down. Their tits and bellies wallowing and slapping. Dorea lunging down and forward. The power of her stroke jerking Arianne’s voluptuous body forward a fraction with each womb impaling stroke of the Sand Snakes hips.

“Oh oh I’m going to cum so fucking hard ... hnnng huuunng hhnnnggg” the orgasm slowly gathering force in her belly. Each savage stroke of Dorea’s cock took Arianne higher up the rungs of ecstasy. The voluptuous woman’s face slashed and twisted with the ecstasy building in her womb. Dorea grunted and growled lifting her hips higher to slam down with even more force pounding Arianne’s cunt with vicious strokes of love.

Arianne’s face shocked into a rictus of wondrous rapture. Her orgasm had still felt off still building but suddenly her orgasm exploded out of nowhere rupturing her womb and tearing her snatch inside out. Arianne’s eyes shocked wide open and her mouth opened wide. “GOODDSSDDDAAMMNNNNN! AAAARRUUUUNNNGGGGGG! OOOWWWGGGGGGG! AAWWOOOGGGGGGGG!” Arianne shrieked as she cummed so hard and exquisitely.

Dorea chuffed and grunted working her hips to impale her wife’s womb on her dickhead slamming in balls deep. The cockhead plowing the gushing cunt hole that spasmed and milked the hard thrusting dick filling the tight fuck sleeve. Arianne felt her cunt was tearing itself inside out on the long shaft plumbing the depths of Arianne’s tightcouchie. Her head slammed up into Dorea’s neck. “IIIIII love youuuuuuuuuuu—OOOWWWGGHHHHHHH!” Arianne screamed feeling her womb rip out her belly. She convulsed and screamed in blistering agonizing pleasure. Her veins filled with burning ecstasy that had her toes curled and her fingers digging into Dorea’s back with her very short clipped nails.

“Auuoonngggg! Ohnnnggg shit uungghhh!” she groaned, cumming, arching, shuddering, biting her lip and swearing again as a new sweet set of spasms wrenched her flesh. She felt like a fist had gripped her body and was shaking her with harsh jerks jolting her body hard. The hard contractions shook her body violently with each searing spasm. Maester Marwyn had fucked her good and made her cum so hard but it could not give her this pleasure. Love married with great sex made her cum so fucking hard.

Dorea fucked her through her orgasm. Her dick savagely plunging balls deep into the couchie fisting the shaft slamming in all the way home. The shaft churning the cum filled love box making obscene slurping noises. Dorea then slowed and rested for a minute their sweaty bodies melded together as their tits mashed together. Their hard breathing rocked their bodies making their tits wallow into each other. Harden nipples digging into soft but firm titties.

They kissed in languid love their tongues coiled and flipping around in Arianne’s cawing mouth. Dorea tilted her head over to get their lips mashed tight and let her tongue slip down Arianne’s throat as Dorea’s voluptuous slut convulsed with searing aftershocks shaking the beauteous woman’s body hard with random gagging shocks of the purest ecstasy that aftershocks gives a woman.

Then Dorea pulled her cock slowly out her wife’s spent tired but happy pussy. Arianne gagging in sweet sensations feeling the thick shaft that had been buried deep in her belly slide free out of her twat hole. Hot cum spewing and flooding down her perineum and soaking her anus, ass cleft and the bed beneath.

Dorea on her toes and palms moved up Arianne’s body her cock waving beneath her. The cockhead soaked in creamy pussy slime. She cupped the back of her aunt’s head and lifted it her fingers threading in lank sweat soaked hair. Arianne moaned hard seeing Dorea’s dick soaked in her cum down to the base just above her face. The twenty-five year old gripped the base of the strap-on and lunged her head up and forward while her hand tilted the shaft down to her slavering mouth. Her lips sliding up over the bulbous cockhead and down the shaft soaked in cum.

Arianne sucked hard her cheeks hollowing as she sucked her cunt off Dorea’s black cock. She pumped her head hard her lank hair jerking with her bobs. Sweat dripped off Arianne’s body all over soaking the sheets in her love sweat. Arianne’s head bobs helped by the fisted hair clenched by Dorea to drive her aunt’s head harder up and down her shaft. Arianne loved the creamy white cum soaking the shaft and worked her mouth and tongue to clean her effluent off the beautiful shaft that had just taken her to heaven and back.

Dorea pulled away. Arianne chased the shaft like the slut she was. Dorea pulled a still cum groggy Arianne up onto her knees and palms. A languid Arianne was guided to straddle Myrcella who had lubricated her cock again with a fresh stream of peach lubricant and was lying on her back. She looked up at her twenty-five year old wife with slut eyes. Eyes that promised to fuck Arianne so good. The voluptuous woman’s pussy already reviving and hungry for more pleasure.

Myrcella held the glistening shaft aloft at its base. Myrcella smiled a pure slut smile making her dick swirl in the air inviting Arianne to impale her drooling clamshell on the thick nearly 11” shaft. The mushroom dickhead soaked in oil and waiting to penetrate Arianne’s cunt with its thick shaft capped with a mushroom cockhead that was slightly exaggerated to pleasure the slut fucking it. Arianne moaned seeing that thick turgid shaft being jerked my Myrcella. The jerking dick hypnotizing her like a waving cobra. Her pussy clenching needing to ride another cock to orgasm.

With a happy moan, Arianne reached down and gripped Myrcella’s strap-on taking it from Myrcella. She wanted to impale her tight wet cunt on the delicious dick of her blonde wife. She guided the bulbous dickhead to her drooling fuck hole. The slut swirled the dickhead around her fuck hole and up and down her slit teasing herself for a short minute. Then Arianne pressed down and back as she gagged feeling the mushroom cockhead slowly penetrating her fuck canal.

The oversized dickhead heavenly feeling as it stretched out her pussy hole and then slide slowly up her twat till the shaft was buried balls deep in her belly. Her stretched out just fucked pussy hungrily eating the thick shaft stretching out her couchie tight around the thick log penetrating deep up into her spasming belly. The oversized cockhead plowing her inner folds sweetly gagging Arianne in ecstasy. Her pussy stretched out wide on the thick shaft. Her buttery cunt gripping tight the shaft splitting the tight pussy in two. Arianne’s head ripped back feeling her pussy stretched out.

"Ungghh! Oh! Yes! Aunngghh!" she cried out feeling her twat filled and split in two by Myrcella’s love dick sinking fully up into her buttery cum filled fuck sleeve. Myrcella started a slow sensual rhythm pushing and pulling her dick in and out of Arianne’s pussy. The voluptuous woman rocking her body to take the dick deeper into her tight cunny. The dickhead sunk deep into her belly. “Oh! Oh! Ungghh unnggg hhhnmm hnnnn! Oh gods! Aunngghh!” Arianne groaned, feeling her flesh throb and ache with sublime pleasure flowing out her pierced cunt.

Her cunt already filled with buttery cum the shaft sliding sensually in and out her twat was quickly slimed with snail snot. A ring forming at the point at the deepest point of penetration. Their bodies wallowed into each other with Arianne looking down at Myrcella who looked up at Arianne with a big bright smile. All the while working her hips to slide her dick deep into her lover’s tight oily cunt with long strokes.

Myrcella began to pump her hips harder up while Arianne rotated her hips back and down slapping her groin down into Myrcella’s up thrusts. Arianne’s heavy tits swirling and scraping over Myrcella’s slender frame beneath her. Arianne’s smiling down at Myrcella her face twisting and slashing with raw aching pleasure.

"Auunnggghh! Oh! Oh ... gods—of fffuuuccckkkk! Oh oh yes unngghhhh! Oh” Arianne jabbered feeling her pussy stretched out fucked deep with the thick shaft sliding harder and deeper up into her quivering snatch. “Oohhhngghhhh! Oh! Oh! Shit! Hhhnnggg hhnnn hhnnnggg hhnnn ... Auuggnnn!” Arianne gag whimpered feeling the thick shaft sliding more forcefully in and out her drooling fuck hole. Her lubricated cunt letting the dick slide easily deliciously in and out her burbling cunt. Myrcella grunted accelerating her rhythm gripping Arianne’s hips to more forcefully slam her dick up into Arianne’s hungry twat.

The shaft now ram fucking Arianne’s pussy hard with deep plunging strokes. Her cum filled twat sloshing and slurping. Arianne had taught Myrcella it was all in the hips to work your strap-on in and out your woman’s cunt. Arianne pumped up and down to take her lover’s dick harder into her spasming milking cunt. She had hooked her feet over the tops of Myrcella’s thighs to anchor herself down. She whinnied working her couchie on Myrcella’s cock. Both women working to get in sync so Myrcella’s cock slammed hard and deep up Arianne’s hot tight clenching cunt. Arianne cried out and gurgled. She needed more orgasms!

"Gods, yes!” Arianne gasped. She felt her cunny spasm and grip the thick shaft splitting her cunt in two. Her cunt stretched out into a tight O ring around the thick cock slamming deep up into her cunt. "Anngghhh! Oh ... oh yes! Do it hard!” Arianne’s body surged forward and back to take all of Myrcella’s cock that the slender blonde worked her ass and hips to lift and ram up and forward impaling the juicy quim fucking Arianne with her pleasure rod. "Ohhh!” Arianne gasped "Oh gods... Myrcella ... oh the sweet seven—your dick is fuckinggggg me so deep and good baby!” Arianne panted.

She had been half crouched down on her forearms jacking back to take her wife’s dick hard into her pussy. The feel of their sweaty bodies slipping and sliding so sweet and intimate. Their sweat letting bodies jack and slap wetly up and down each other. Myrcella grunting as she flexed her hips to impale Arianne’s drooling clamshell on her thick plunging cock.

Arianne rose up onto her palms to more forcefully jam back with her body to take Myrcella’s dick harder into her slobbering cunt. The shock of colliding bodies reverberating through Arianne’s voluptuous body. Her ass and hips rippling with the powerful collision of colliding bodies. Bodies fucking hotly to slam their groins into each other to impale Arianne’s fat camel toe and ram the bulbous dickhead balls deep up the tight greasy fuck hole being rammed fucked with slapping impaling thrusts by Myrcella.

Arianne loved her big rounded gourd tits. They flipped and slapped into each other as Arianne fucked herself on Myrcella’s cock. She felt her tits lift off her chest and slap into each other to whip down and pound her sweaty chest. A change in angles had her heavy hooters whipping forward and snapping back the shockwaves making her tits compress and fold with Arianne’s wild gyrations of hot fucking. She whooped and gurgled feeling the bulbous dickhead slamming in so deep up her wet swollen love box. She tired and she settled forward on her elbows and lowered her groin. Myrcella took over and gripped her hips and lifted her hips off the bed to plunge her shaft fully up her wife’s squishy watery cunt.
The two Sand Snakes watched the fuck with glittering eyes. They loved to watch sex and were pumping their oiled shafts getting more horny. Their breathing elevated and sweat beaded and running down their bodies.

Arianne was in heaven. Myrcella tired and she took over and rose back up on her palms and slammed her love aching pussy down on the shaft that Myrcella short jerked up to fully impale her wife’s tight cunt. Arianne’s eyes widened as an orgasm was suddenly rising up in her spasming womb. Myrcella saw it and now worked her hips furiously to slam her dick savagely into the now wildly spasming fuck hole. The blonde’s strength renewed seeing her wife approach to orgasm. Her strap-on cock a blur as she whipped her hips in a frenzy to impale her wife’s spasming cougie with a sizzling fuck. Arianne was clenching the sheets with her hands and slamming her hips back into the cock impaling her heavily flowing twat that leaked out streams of creamy cum that slavered Myrcella’s hard pumping dick.

Out of nowhere the orgasm forming in Arianne’s womb went from forming to exploding.

"AUUNGGHIIEEE! UNGGH! OH! UUNNGGMMNNIIIEEEE!" Arianne screamed out, cumming fiercely, her lovely voluptuous body wrenched by sharp spasms of ecstasy. Her womb felt like it was being wrenched in the fists of the gods and first twisted and then ripped out her belly scalding her with dire fucking bliss. "Arrruuunngggggggggggg! Auuungghhhhh! Oh ... fucking godss— yesssssssst! Oh ohngghgh! Auuugggnnnmnggeee!" she wailed, her body surging forward and back as spasm after spasm of nearly unbearable pleasure wracked her. "Oh! Nnnnnnggeeeeee! Unnnngggngngghhh! Shhhhhhiitttttt ... uummmmngghgeeeee!" she cried out, flipping and straining, shuddering violently as the spasms ripped through her.

Her body convulsed with killing waves of pleasure that nearly robbed her sanity as her cunt shrieked with pleasure so intense that it was painful. Her body shuddered taking in gasping breaths like a bellows. Her strength fled and she sagged down onto Myrcella still crying out with the dying waves of her soul crushing orgasm. Her big heavy hooters splayed out on Myrcella’s slender frame. Myrcella loved to have her small doves smothered by Arianne’s big firm tits. Their sweaty bellies now pressed hard into each other. Their elevated breathing made their sweat slippery skin wallow, slip and slide over each other.

With a throttled mewling Arianne felt Myrcella thread her fingers into the sweat soaked black lank hair of her lover. Myrcella roughly guided Arianne’s mouth to hers and they first melded lips kissing sweetly tracing lips with tongues and sucking on bee stung lips before Myrcella roughly demanded entrance to Arianne’s mouth. The instant the twenty-five parted her teeth Myrcella’s hungry tongue lunged into the voluptuous beauty’s mouth and wetly wrestled with Arianne’s tongue. The woman lying spent on top of Myrcella mewled and hitched feeling their tongues flip around in her mouth dueling in wet slippery twined love.

Arianne had felt her aftershocks dipping but they surged with the sweet tongue action in her mouth. Her nipples poking into Myrcella’s tits and chest sent sparks that made her aftershocks ripple on with that searing pleasure that was so heavenly.

They continued to kiss deeply with Myrcella now tracing her fingertips up and down Arianne’s back beaded with sweat that came together to form rivulets and run down her ribs. Arianne’s body still rocked by strong aftershocks that were slowly fading away. Each shock making her gag into Myrcella hot devouring mouth. Slowly Arianne’s body began to unwind from the delicious pummeling fuck.

After a minute Loreza came forward and pulled Arianne back up into a doggy position. A still cum drunk Arianne looked back at her niece. She whimpered feeling her full tits gripped and massaged roughly by Myrcella. The pulping of her tits and pulling on her engorged teats rocking the voluptuous woman. Arianne felt her body rush with fresh fuck need. She felt lubrication being squirted in on her anus. She looked back as Loreza slavered her thick shaft with lubrication.

Arianne felt Loreza worm her middle finger up her hot tight anus. Her hot tight asshole clenching down on the invading digit. Loreza started to slow fuck the tight shithole of her aunt. Her butthole soaked with the lubricant, sweat and her own cum. “Unhh! Oh!” Arianne gasped feeling Loreza bury her middle finger fully up her ass. Loreza began to pump the finger sensually in and out the puckered anus of her sweet aunt. The long digit sliding easily in and out the spasming starfish.

Arianne felt her face contort feeling her asshole squired. Loreza ramming her middle finger up her ass hard and then pausing. The Sand Snake then slipped her index finger into her hot pinching asshole and started to stroke her fingers hard and fast in and out the hot clenching butthole of her wife. Arianne gurgled feeling Lorza pound her shit so good. “Ohhhnn! Ohhnnn yes! Blast my ass baby!” she panted in raw need. The Sand Snake worked her fingers in and out while she twisted her fingers pounding Arianne’s butthole with fast hard thrusts. Loreza pulled her fingers out Arianne’s ass. Arianne mewled missing the fingers fucking her ass so sweetly.

Arianne felt Loreza moving and now her body straddled hers and she leaned down. She had her fingers fresh out Arianne’s asshole at her lips. Arianne looked up with a loopy smile and parted her mouth hungrily took the fingers Loreza slide into her mouth. Her lips clenched on the digits that Loreza worked them in and out her sucking mouth letting her aunt suck her sweet shit juice off the long brown digits.

After cleaning her fingers Loreza moved back and again squired her aunt’s asshole with her two fingers and fucked it deep with a twisting in and out motion.

Myrcella loved looking up at Arianne’s face when fucking her. She had been slow pumping her hips to slide her cock in and out the cunt she had just fucked to paradise. She loved seeing Arianne reviving as fuck hunger again started to fill her slutty voluptuous wife. Her hands ran all over the sweaty body of her sweet stout wife luxuriating in her sweaty hot skin.

The blonde was enraptured watching the spasms of anal pleasure rock through Arianne’s face with Loreza fucking her asshole with her fingers. Myrcella could see Loreza adjusting her stance behind them getting in position. She stilled her hips to let Loreza take Arianne’s clutching shithole with her love dick.

Arianne felt Loreza getting behind her lining up her dick to invade her shit canal. She felt Loreza slap her ass with her strap-on. Her tender ass cheeks throbbing with the whacks of Loreza’s heavy cock. Arianne got a breathy sensation feeling Loreza circle her mushroom cockhead into her sphincter rings. Then Arianne was keening feeling the bulbous head of Loreza’s cock penetrate her asshole and sink into her rectum. Her body shuddered with sweet anal invasion of a thick shaft in her ass. The bulbous dickhead plowing her tender colon folds.

Her butthole still not pinched tight from the pounding the Maester of Magic had delivered to Arianne’s hot hungry asshole. His massive shaft repeatedly pounding her booty hole ravaging her sphincter rings that had them loosened. Her starfish winking not fully shut.

Her asshole loosened easily to take in the thick shaft penetrating her ass. “Unnggggggggg! Oh fuck yeeahhhhh! Gods I love it when you DP and TP fuck me!” Arianne cried out feeling Loreza slowly push her shaft deeper up her butthole. Myrcella was short stroking her cock in and out her wife’s pussy again. Loreza now had her hips pressed into Arianne’s ass cheeks having fully buried her thick shaft up her aunt’s asshole. Arianne reveled feeling Loreza shaft buried deep up in her bowels. The teenager started to work her hips working her thick cock in and out her aunt’s tight pinching asshole.

Myrcella worked her hips slowly to slide her dick in and out the hot buttery cum filled fuck sleeve. The bulbous dickhead plowing her slimy petals and whorls of her cunt. The dickheads felt so good pumping in and out her belly Arianne thought in a cloud of induced hazy ecstasy. Arianne’s two teenage lovers working their cocks in and out her fuck holes in a seesawing motion.

Slowly Myrcella and Loreza picked up their rhythm working their shafts in and out Arianne’s tight fuck holes. The two women seesawing their cocks in and out Arianne’s ass and cunt. The lubed shafts sliding easily in and out the greasy fuck holes. Loreza working her hips and arching her back to drive her dick harder up into Arianne’s ass. Myrcella gripping Arianne’s tits and pulping them as she short jerked her cock in and out Arianne’s steamy pussy. The twenty-five year old’s body jolting and jacking forward with the force of two dicks now slamming deep up her twat and ass.

The twenty-five year old observed Dorea fisting her cock waiting till she was ready to join the festivities.

Arianne was moaning and gurgling feeling the two shafts sliding in and out her pussy and ass. She loved feeling so full and the cockheads thumping over each other in her belly. The two women fucking her working a see-saw motion of one shaft in and one shaft sliding out. The tension and slimy friction felt exquisite to the twenty-five year old.

Arianne was expertly fucked by her sweet wives. Dorea was waiting her turn. “Oh! Unggghhh! Oh babies, yes, oh yes,” Arianne panted, moving her hips rhythmically pushing back to take their cocks hard and deep up her pussy and ass. Her body now buffeted by the slapping of sweaty bodies into her body to impale her on thick hard shafts.

She reveled feeling strong hands grip her voluptuous ass cheeks, hips and around her ribs. Hands clutching her body to propel her back into the thick shafts slamming hard now into her willing body. Arianne’s body jolting forward with the power of Loreza’s body slapping hard into her ass cheeks making them and her hips ripple with force of impact of their sweaty bodies. Myrcella was lifting her hips and jacking forward and up impaling the tight trim of Arianne with her thick dick slamming fully up into the tight fuck hole of the heir of Dorne.

Arianne bit her lower lip. “Ungh! Oh gods! Keep fucking my honeys! Pound my fuck holes! Owngg! Auunggg unungg hhnnnn hhnggg!” Arianne gagged feeling two thick shafts ripped up into her willing fuck holes. She could feel her pussy leaking hot cum all over Myrcella’s groin and harness. Her asshole had slavered ass juice all over the cock slamming in balls deep. “Ohhhngg shit!” Arianne gasped. “Shit, your cocks are so big!” Arianne gagged feeling seeping ass juice slaver her butthole and along her inner thighs and ass crack.

“Aunngghhh, oh fuck me ram me deep babies! Do it, do it hard and fast!” she panted deliriously to them. “Fuck me, deep, do it!” Her body bucked and writhed in primal bliss. She felt Loreza pull out her spasming asshole. Hot ass juice gushed out her squired asshole and ran down her perineum down into her pussy. The hot gush of shit juice pouring down over her perineum made Arianne groan like a whore as she felt the slimy cocktail weeping down to her squired cunt. Myrcella was nibbling on her neck now as she pumped her dick hard into her juicy quim.

Dorea was behind Arianne in a flash on her knees. Myrcella stilled to let Dorea take what was hers. Dorea swished her mouth and then tilted her head down to let long streams of bubbly spit rope down out her mouth and land on Arianne’s loose asshole. The spit pooled on the clenching anus. Dorea roped out more spit to pool on the clenching anus.

She lined up cock with Arianne’s clenching asshole. Then with her gripping the base of her nearly eleven inch cock she slammed her dick balls deep up Arianne’s asshole with a savage torpedo stroke her hips slamming into Arianne’s hot sweat dripping ass cheeks. Dorea wasted no time setting up a punishing rhythm arching her back to slap her hips hard into Arianne’s ass to slam her dick fully up her aunt’s hot tight ass. Dorea pounded her aunt’s ass savagely just like Arianne liked it.

Arianne threw her head back and keened feeling her butthole fucked savagely. The cockhead plundering her shithole hard and deep just like she craved it. The feel of Dorea’s hips and thighs slapping into her ass cheeks thrilled the slut. Her body sliding and jolting over Myrcella’s body as the slender blonde worked her hips to impale her slut’s drooling clamshell with powerful short jabs of her thick cock.

The Sand Snake loved watching her aunt’s ass cheeks and hips ripple with the force of her groin impacting her aunt’s ass. Again and again Dorea slammed her dick home burying it balls deep into Arianne’s shithole. The force of impact lurching Arianne’s voluptuous body forward an inch. Dorea would slap Arianne’s ass randomly making her squeal and then grip the big firm hips of her aunt to anchor her body to lunge her dick savagely up the asshole of her sweet hot aunt.

Myrcella loved the feel of Arianne’s sweat soaked body wallowing and lurching forward on her own. The weight and delicious skin to skin contact intoxicating. Her slut’s heavy tits wallowing and roughly sliding on her own chest and small titties. Their breast mashed and wallowing all over each other.

Loreza was in front of Arianne now. She brushed her cock around on Arianne’s lips who opened her mouth wide to let her sweet Sand Snake shove her cock up her tongue. The slut clamped her lips tight to moan as she sucked her sweet ass off Loreza’s thick prick. Arianne sucked happily on her sweetie’s cock soaked in her sweet ass.

Loreza had found it hot as always seeing Arianne’s eyes watch her intently as she kneed on the bed to get in front of Arianne with her dick soaked in sweet shit juice of her aunt. Her aunt drooling eyeing her thick shaft soaked in her aunt’s ass cream. Then watching Arianne take in the cock circling her lips and then bobbing hard and fast on her cock. Arianne sucking hungrily as her glued lips worked up and down her shaft fiercely. Arianne’s lank sweat soaked hair jerking lankily with her fast hard head bobs. The slut groaning as she sucked her sweet ass off Loreza dick.

Arianne’s body jolted and shook from the savage slamming of dicks hard and deep up into her belly. Her body tightening up as sheer ecstasy started to pour out her squired asshole and cunt. Both fuck holes feeding off each other. Arianne felt her face twist and snarl as the pleasure started to rise exponentially in her straining body. Her head pulled back letting Loreza’s cock slip from her mouth.

Her body started to shake all over her asshole wildly spasming now on the shaft torpedo fucking it with savage glee. Dorea had a tight grip on her aunt’s hips to jerk her back hard into her body slapping into Arianne’s body working every inch of her love up Arianne’s ass. Arianne body tensed up like a board her eyes squeezed shut and then her face shocked with twisting grimaces and her eyes shot wide open her mouth open wide.

"OOOWWWWGGGGGGG! ARRUUUNNNGGGGGGG! … hhnggg hhnnn hhnnn … Oh Fuck Godsdarn shittttt—UUUUNNGGGHHHIIIEEEEEE! MMNNNGGGHIIIEEEEEE! … Owwwwngghhhhhiiiiiiiiii! Nngghhh! Anngghiieeee!!" Arianne cried out, cumming violently. Her body jackknifed and flipped with hard killing spasms of searing bliss. She wailed and hunched down her back arching up and down hard with each killing spasm ripping out her exploding asshole that had caused her womb to explode scalding her with fucking bliss.

Her head thrashed around her teeth now clenched tight with spittle spraying out her locked teeth. Her eyes squeezed shut her body quacking like an earthquake. Her cunt and asshole clenched and clamped down on cocks plundering her cunt and ass. Dorea and Myrcella still lunging their cocks viciously into her immolating fuck holes.

Slowly Arianne came down from her throttling cum. Her body gasping for breath raggedly. Myrcella and Dorea only now slowly pumping their shafts in and out of Arianne’s trembling fuck holes. The two Sand Snakes and Myrcella letting Arianne bask in the afterglow of her pummeling orgasm. For a minute Arianne cooed as her wives slow stroked her sweaty flesh. The two knew that Arianne had more hard cums in her and started to work their hips riding their shafts in the slack for the moment fuck holes that were spasm in hard aftershocks.

Myrcella was working her hips to work her cock in and out the drooling clamshell of her sweet dusky skin slut. For a minute Arianne mewled her body resting heavily on Myrcella. Her throat cooing and her sweat soaked body rubbed down into her wife’s slender body. Slowly, though her strength ebbed back into her stout body. Her pussy and asshole hungry for more pleasure. The pleasure only womb rending and asshole shredding orgasms can give a woman.

Dorea and Myrcella could sense that Arianne was reviving and began to work their hips harder driving their thick stalks harder and deeper into the cunny and butt hole of their sweet sweat soaked slut. Their flesh beginning to again slap into the voluptuous body of their slut. Hard cock again plundering hot tight drooling fuck holes.

Arianne had slowly revived and was up fully on her palms working her body to slam back into the cocks plundering her fuck holes. The blonde reached underneath Arianne. The twenty-five year old’s tits giggling and swaying her rigid nipples dragging all over Myrcella’s sweat covered body. The heavy jugs felt warm and divine sliding around on Myrcella’s tight upper belly and small tits.

Myrcella roughly gripped Arianne’s jerking udders and throttled them dragging the tits up and forward. The engorged nipples aimed forward now at Myrcella’s mouth. The blonde lifted her head up and forward and swallowed a thick turgid nipple and roughly nursed with sucking lips and her tongue swirling over the steeple areola. The blonde slut moved her head right and left feasting on thick dark brown nipples her cheeks hollowing out with her deep throat love sucks.

All the while Myrcella short stroked her hips sliding her cock in and out her wife’s sloppy wet couchie. Dorea had leaned forward and fist Arianne’s hair. She had again siphoned in Loreza’s cock and was bobbing on the thick black leather shaft. Dorea jammed Arianne’s head forward to help her slut taking Loreza’s cock into her throat.

As Myrcella feasted on the thick turgid nipple. Her head moving right and left to suck long on the thick lips siphon sucking. The hot friction filling Arianne’s tits with hot pulses of searing pleasure. All the while Myrcella worked her hips to stroke her prick in and out her wife’s wet spasming quim. As she pleased her eldest wife the Sand Snakes changed positions. Loreza moving back and Dorea forward on opposite sides of their voluptuous wife. Dorea had her dick soaked in ass juice in front of Arianne’s face. Her aunt’s face grimaced and slashed with the pleasure the blonde nymphet was giving her aunt with her thirsty sucks on Arianne’s turgid nipples.

She brushed her soaked dick in ass cream around Arianne’s lips. The slut slit opened her eyes smiling sluttily. She opened her mouth and swallowed Dorea’s dick hungrily and purring as she bobbed her head up and down sucking her asshole off Dorea’s dick. Her sweaty lank hair jerking with her hard head bobs.

Arianne cried out in ecstasy feeling her asshole roughly taken. Loreza had pried one ass cheek back and with her other hand aimed her cock up with her aunt’s butt hole. She rammed her hips forward and slammed her dick savagely up her aunt’s asshole. Arianne cried out in slutty heaven feeling her ass pipe filled with hard dick and quickly furiously fucked hard and deep.
Loreza gripped her hips and Myrcella gripped her left ribs having released that tit to slam Arianne back into the shafts plowing her fuck holes. Loreza growled jerking Arianne’s body back to slam Arianne’s ass into her forward slamming body. The dicks savaging Arianne’s fuck holes ramming home balls deep. Dorea was working her hips to run her dick up and down the tongue of her slutty aunt. Dorea watching with glittering dark eyes as her aunt sucked her sweet shit juice of Dorea’s cock.

For several minutes they fucked Arianne like this. The voluptuous twenty-five fucked air tight. Her pussy and asshole filled with long thick cock balls deep. Her mouth full of thick cock she sucked on fiercely. Her cheeks hollowing out with the force of her hard sucks. Her body lurched and rippled with the impact of three bodies fucking her forcefully. Three women taking her and using Arianne as their willing fuck toy.

Now the Sand Snakes switched up positions again. Loreza kneed forward to get her dick in front of Arianne’s sweaty face. The sweat pouring off in rivulets. Her lustrous hair lank and matted with sweat and spit. “Suck your ass off my dick slut!” The Sand Snake’s dick jerked in front of Arianne’s mouth the shaft slavered with shit juice. Arianne whinnied diving down on Loreza cock her mouth clamping tight on the soaked in ass juice prick. Arianne circled her head on the mushroom cockhead sucking fiercely.

Dorea was behind her aunt now. She pulled her aunt’s ass cheek back and torpedo fucked Arianne’s asshole with a savage stroke. Instead of starting up a rhythm she ripped her dick back out of Arianne’s asshole and immediately rammed it back up her ass with a hard forceful slam fuck. In and out Dorea fucked her aunt’s clenching butthole. Arianne thrusting her groin back to take her niece’s dick hard up her quaking ass.

“Mnnngggggg ummmgggg mmmmmm” Arianne purred savoring the sweet taste of her shit juice slavered thickly over Loreza’s dick. Her lank hair flouncing as she started to bob hard up and down the shaft her lips glued to the thick leather cock her cheeks dimpling as she moaned slurping up her tasty asshole on Loreza’s dick. Her head lurching down the shaft with the force of the dicks slamming home up into her snatch and butthole. Her voluptuous ass cheeks and hips rippling with the force of colliding bodies.

Dorea stopped torpedo fucking the now gaping asshole. She started to work her thick cock in and out Arianne’s asshole pulling three or four inches out the clenching starfish and ramming back in balls deep. Her dark skin slapping the skin of her wife’s dusky rippling ass cheeks. Dorea arched her back to get more force in the thick shaft she slammed up her aunt’s ass.

Arianne’s head pumped up and down the shaft of her sweet Loreza. Her lank hair jerking with her hard head bobs. The slut’s face twisted and grimaced with the ecstasy she felt. All three of fuck hole giving her sweet pleasure. Her body overwhelmed with sweet sensations. Her lips glued to the shaft as she sucked and twisted her head on the shaft. She hummed and moaned and she felt her eyes roll back into her skull sucking her asshole off her woman’s dick. It was so nasty it made Arianne’s womb flip in her belly. She loved doing ATM. It was hot and slutty.

Dorea pulled out her ass. Myrcella dropped the tit she was nursing on again and now gripped both of Arianne’s fleshy but firm hips and gripped hard. The blonde used the freedom of movement to sizzle her cock in and out Arianne’s pussy making it sing in ecstasy. Arianne’s body juddering with the slam of Myrcella’s groin into her mound. “Unnggg mmnnngggg yes yeessss! Unnggg oohhhh unnggg!” Arianne gurgled feeling her pussy fucked expertly.

Loreza had moved away and now Dorea was before her. Dorea’s dick soaked in ass juice to the base with a ring of creamy sweet shit juice at the base. She started to dive on Dorea’s cock but she titled her dick back. Arianne whined in frustration. Arianne paused looking at Dorea with pleading eyes to suck her sweet shithole off Dorea’s cock.

The Sand Snake leaned in and pressed the bulbous cockhead to her aunt’s lips. Dorea traced her mushroom cock around the thick sensual lips of her hot aunt. She did this several times before centering her dickhead on Arianne’s lips. Arianne’s mouth opened wide to swallow the shaft clamping her lips tight to the cock. She bob slurping happily sucking her ass off the cock being pumped up and down her tongue. She cried out and keened when Loreza slammed her thick shaft up her tight asshole. The Sand Snakes pounded Arianne’s ass so good and let her feast on their cocks soaked in her ass grease.

The Sand Snakes played ring around the asshole taking turns pounding their twenty-five year old aunt’s ass. The twins switching out with them kneeling around the voluptuous body of their aunt and offering Arianne their dicks soaked in ass juice. The beautiful twenty-five year’s mouth opened wide to swallow the sweet dick soaked in creamy ass juice. Her head bobbing hard as she sucked the sweetness of her shithole off her niece’s cocks.

The nieces moving from their aunt’s ass to her mouth and back. Arianne crying out when a Sand Snake torpedo slammed her strap-on shaft balls deep up her tight asshole with a savage stroke burying her dick back up her aunt’s ass. Then gripping Arianne’s hips to anchor their body as they slammed fucked Arianne up her shit pipe. Arianne crying out around the dick in her mouth. Myrcella gripping her ribs as she slammed her cock up into the tight pussy she was fucking with avid fuck hunger.

Arianne was in heaven. Her abused ass cheeks and her whole body throbbed with pain from her early abuse but it only added to her pleasure. The pain from the grips on her ass and hips only added to the pleasure of her sweet savage fuck. The pleasure of masochistic sex so exquisite.

“Uuggmmffff! Uumpff!!! Aaauggfffff mmppffff mmppff Unnrregmmppff!!!” the twenty-five year old whinnied around the dick fucking her mouth as she was exquisitely TP fucked. All her holes filled with beautiful ever hard strap-on cock. She sucked happily till the cock was pulled from her mouth. Arianne’s head was now hanging down sweat dripping off her face and throat as her sweet savage Sand Snakes were kneeling around opposite sides of her body to switch fucking their aunt’s mouth and tight ass yet again.

Myrcella took advantage of the switch in positions of Dorea and Loreza to slip her cock out Arianne’s drooling pussy. She got up on her heels. She took her right hand and slipped her mushroom cockhead up over Arianne’s perineum to press her dickhead into the tired quivering starfish of her sweet Arianne. Her cock aligned Myrcella slammed her dick up Arianne’s asshole. Arianne ripped her head back keening in ecstasy. Her face twisted up with fierce ecstasy her throat keening in raw pleasure.

Myrcella humped her groin up and forward slamming her dick home up Arianne’s spasming asshole. The blond setting up a fast sizzling rhythm to work her shaft deep in and out her lover’s spasming asshole. She savaged the clenching butthole for a minute while Arianne sucked on both of her nieces’ cocks thoroughly cleaning both dicks of her ass cream. The older woman’s ass cheeks jiggling with the force Myrcella was putting in her ass fuck of her sweet wife. Then Myrcella pulled her dick out of Arianne’s asshole and slide down her perineum and aligned her cock and slammed it in balls deep splitting Arianne’s cunt in two.

"Ohhhh! Unh! Unh!" Arianne moaned. her hips twitching involuntarily. Myrcella pounded her shaft hard in and out her wife’s pussy. Her dick soaked in Arianne’s sweet ass juice. The thick shaft splitting her wife’s pussy in two so that it formed a tight O ring around her shaft. Her inner lips pulled out on the out stroke and shoved back in the drooling fuck hole on the in stroke. Myrcella’s thighs slapping hard the voluptuous ass cheeks of her stout wife. The impacts jiggling her firm globes.

Then Myrcella paused again to pull her dick out of Arianne’s pussy that gushed cum. The opaque snail snot webbing between their bellies and groin. The effluent making spidery tendrils between their bodies when their bodies separated as they fucked. Myrcella slide the cockhead up and punched her dick back deep into Arianne’s asshole burying it and working her hips hard and fast to pound Arianne’s booty hole hard and deep. Myrcella’s hips slapping up into Arianne’s body making it jolt and shudder.

The two Sand Snakes paused as they watched their blond wife pound their aunt’s booty hard with a fast furious ass fuck. Arianne’s head jerked around on her neck her face contorted with slashes and gnashing of teeth as anal bliss flowed out her pounded shithole. Myrcella slam fucked Arianne’s ass savagely making her body jerk and jolt. Myrcella grunted and snarled as she worked her hips and dug her feet into the bed to slam her dick balls deep up into her crying out wife’s clenching butthole.

When Dorea was back at her ass Myrcella pulled her cock out Arianne’s asshole and slide down her perineum and slammed it balls deep back up Arianne’s hot cunt. Ass juice pulsed out the slack asshole and flooded down Arianne’s perineum and soaked her cunt hole with sweet ass juice. Dorea gripped her aunt’s ass cheek with one hand prying it back and the her other hand torpedo slammed her dick fully up Arianne’s asshole making the heir of Dorne cry out in pained pleasure. Those cries stifled when Loreza rode her ass juice slicked cock up into her aunt’s mouth. Arianne’s mouth glued to the thick shaft pumped up and down her tongue. Her lips glued to the prick and sucked her sweet ass off the cock fucking her mouth. Arianne was in heaven feeling all three fuck holes being hard fucked in what she liked to call a “love rape”. She simply loved to be fucked hard and deep.

Loreza hooked her fingers into Arianne’s mouth to open it up. She was beginning to chuff around Loreza’s cock fucking her wide open mouth making her choke and drool all over the sheets. Arianne choked and drooled out of copious strands of bubbly spit that flowed down her face and roped off her jaw line. The pleasure was rising exponentially in her pussy and asshole. She pulled her head back freeing her mouth from the cock fucking her throat. She keened slamming back to take the dicks pounding her fuck holes harder into her now wildly spasming pussy hole and clenching shithole.

Her eyes shock wide open feeling her cunt and asshole explode simultaneously. Each hole scalding her with fucking bliss. Her cunt and asshole feeding off each other as they tried to tear themselves inside out. “FFFFFFUUUUCKKKKKK! ARRRRRUNNGGGGGGG! OOWWWGGGGGGGGG!” Arianne wailed feeling her two fuck holes erupt in scalding spasms of pure fucking bliss. Her body felt like it was exploding. The voluptuous woman’s body flipped and jackknifed with killing convulsions of fucking bliss. Her asshole pinched down on the dick pounding her booty and her trim fisted the cock slamming in and out her flooding cunt.

“Awwoonggg!” Arianne howled, writhing between wives hard toned bodies. Their bodies relentlessly pounded Arianne’s voluptuous body. The beautiful black haired woman loved feeling four strong hands gripping her body so her wives could harpoon fuck her pussy and ass driving her insane with pleasure.

Her body jolting forward hard with each slam fuck up her snatch and ass. Arianne continued to cum in wild, throbbing spasms. “Ohhhnn gods! Auungghhiieeee! Mmmnnngghhiieeee! Uummmgghhiieeee! Unngghhhiieeee!” Arianne screamed feeling her womb ripped to shreds deep in her belly scalding her in shattering ecstasy. She loved how her two wives lunged their dicks up her exploding fuck holes prolonging her blissful fuck and ecstasy. The thick cocks making her fuck holes continue to spasm had rend themselves harshly.

Arianne slowly came down from her shocking orgasm. Loreza pulled out her asshole and kneed around to her head. Arianne tiredly opened her mouth and Loreza slide her dick up her tongue where Arianne clamped her lips on the shaft soaked in her shithole and tiredly but happily pumped her head up and down the shaft savoring her ass cream soaking the shaft.

She gurgled feeling Myrcella slide her cock from her pussy that gushed out slimy cum that soaked their bellies in cum. The blonde moved her cock back up the perineum of Arianne and slide her dick deep up into Arianne’s ass and started to pump her shaft in and out the tired put purring asshole. The voluptuous woman’s asshole was spent but already reviving hungry for more anal ‘gasms.

The voluptuous woman feasted on her sweet ass grease on the dick sliding up and down her tongue. Her eyelids fluttered closed as she pumped her head up and down the cock in her mouth. She felt Dorea at her ass watching Myrcella still fucking her asshole with violent lunges of her prick up her shit pipe. Her body jolting from the force of Myrcella ramming in her cock up into Arianne’s ass burying the full length of her shaft of her dick up into Arianne’s colon.

Myrcella saw Dorea get behind them straddling their legs. Dorea and she locked eyes and smiled. Dorea moved in guiding her cock to Arianne’s asshole. The Sand Snake pressed her cockhead into the already stretched out asshole gripping Myrcella’s dick. Myrcella stopped her motions to let Dorea work her dick into Arianne’s voluptuous ass. Arianne whimpered feeling Dorea’s cockhead riding around on the shaft buried in her ass. Her breath juddered and her jaw shook as Dorea’s cockhead found purchase and pried her asshole back and slide up into her ass.

Dorea loved seeing her dick slowly pry her aunt’s asshole up and the bulbous dickhead slowly worm up into Arianne’s asshole. The two thick stalks jutting out the voluptuous woman’s ass obscenely.

“Aaaaahh … unnggg ohhh gods your wrecking my asshole” Arianne cried out feeling her asshole stretched out cruelly with two thick shafts sliding up deep into her ass. The shafts worked up deep into her ass till she felt Dorea pressed into her ass cheeks. Dorea paused letting Arianne’s asshole stretch out on the two dick shoved up her turd canal.

Arianne’s head juddered back on her stiff neck her teeth grit in sweet pain and flooding pleasure. Her asshole cruelly stretched out. Arianne gurgled as she now felt the in and out strokes of the two dicks stuffed up her ass. The sweet double anal penetration painful but also raw pleasure flooded Arianne’s very veins with searing bliss. Hot pulses radiating out her squired and stretched out asshole.

Soon her body was jolting forward with two dicks seesawing in and out her ass. The two cockheads thumping over each other as they plunged up and down her asshole. Her ass drooling out ass juice that dribbled down flooding her cunt hole with her ass cream. The slicked shafts slamming deep up her ass. The dickheads plowing her wet red colon folds. Her sphincter rings spasm hard with the two shafts jerking in and out the voluptuous woman’s shithole. Myrcella and Dorea seesawed their cocks in and out their slut’s asshole so their dickheads thumped over each other as they worked deep up into Arianne’s belly.

"Unh! Oh! Ungghh … anngghh! Yes ... yes! Oh gods yes ... annuungghiiee! … Godsdamnnnn your ruining my shitholeeeeee” Arianne cried out, feeling the two dicks now viciously slamming in and out her asshole in a staccato rhythm. Dorea pulled her dick out of Arianne’s asshole and then cruelly wormed it back into Arianne’s ass and shoved its length up her asshole on top of Myrcella’s punching dick up Arianne’s ass. Her sphincter rings shrieking out pain but so much more pleasure that was besotting Arianne with ecstasy. The pain only adding to the hot pleasure flooding her veins with throttling bliss.

Loreza watched the hot show before her. Arianne’s stout body rippled and jiggled with the hard deep dicking her asshole was receiving. Dorea and Myrcella gripping Arianne’s body to lunge their dicks savagely up twenty-five year old’s asshole. Arianne cried out in shocking pleasure all jumbled up with sweet pain. The cocktail intoxicating. Her face a constant mask of grimaces, slashes, twists and face contorting scrunches as her asshole flooded Arianne with anal fuck bliss.

Arianne felt her body pushed forward the two dicks slipping out her ass. She cried out at the intense sensations. A gush of ass juice flooded out her asshole and rushed down her perineum into her cunt and splattered down on Myrcella’s belly. Arianne loved feeling so slutty with the shit juice flooding out her gaped asshole.

The stout beautiful woman was dumped down on the bed. Her body askew as she thumped down onto the mattress. She felt Myrcella fist her sweaty matted hair in a cruel knot. Roughly Myrcella jerked her tired voluptuous body around making Arianne whimper and cry out in pain with her hair roots shrieking. Myrcella dragged Arianne’s head down Myrcella’ sweaty belly. Arianne’s chin riding down the blonde’s toned abdomen.

Her blonde wife dragged Arianne around with hard mean jerks so her cheating wife’s face was by the two dicks of her wives soaked in her ass cream. Arianne gripped the shafts at the base and shoved both dickheads into her greedy mouth. Her mouth stretched out by the bulbous dickhead pressed into the front of her mouth. Arianne’s tongue working over both cockheads before she cleaned the cocks in turn savoring her ass on them.

Arianne pumped her head on each shaft sucking her sweet ass off the cocks. She loved having her three wives watch her with glittering eyes watching Arianne suck hungrily her asshole off the two cocks that had been savaging her ass. Arianne purred and cooed sucking her ass off the cocks. She looked up at her wives with kitten eyes.

Now Loreza laid on her back with Arianne moving to straddle her body. Arianne reached down to guide Loreza’s dick into her hot cunt and impaled her pussy on it and began to pump her body back into the shaft fucking her pussy so good and deep. Now Myrcella got up on her feet and straddled Arianne’s supine body. Myrcella rammed her dick into the hot asshole of her wife. Myrcella worked her hips and fucked Arianne hard and viciously. Now it was Dorea and Myrcella who took turns plundering her asshole and then feeding the thick shaft to Arianne for her to hungrily clean.

The two teenagers fucked hard the ass of their supposedly adulteress wife. The two women working in concert to pound the fuck holes of Arianne. Dorea had moved to Arianne’s head and fed her dick to give her aunt a cock pacifier to suck on hungrily.

After a few minutes Loreza moved her cock up into Arianne’s ass while Myrcella was feeding Arianne her dick soaked in her ass grease. Dorea quickly moved in and fed her dick into Arianne’s asshole on top of her twins. Both Sand Snakes gripping their aunt’s hips and ribs to jack her back into the dicks slamming up into her shithole. The twins pumped their hips with Dorea arching her back to ram her dick furiously up into Arianne’s shit pipe on top of her twin’s short jerking in and out cock plundering Arianne’s asshole.

The twins pulling their cocks out their aunt’s now gaped asshole that winked and did not close up. Dorea reaching down to pull back Arianne’s ass cheeks to gape her aunt’s ass wide open. The gaping orifice full of runnels and clutching. Dorea moaned and bent down and Dorne kissed the gaped orifice sliding her tongue deep into Arianne’s wide open asshole licking her rectum slowly with her swirling tongue as the niece moaned rimming out her aunt’s wet red rectum.
The twins switched positions pushing Arianne off their cocks and feeding her their dicks. The older woman tiredly but hurriedly turning her body around unguided to again feast of cocks soaked in her ass cream. The older woman first jamming both cockheads into her mouth stretching it out as she worked her tongue over both dickheads. Only then working each shaft up and down her tongue sucking with cheek hollowing sucks savoring again her sweet ass juice.

Then the aunt mounted her nieces with now Dorea on her back and fucking her pussy. Loreza and Myrcella taking her asshole with sweet vicious fucking.

Soon Loreza was at Arianne’s head feeding her dick soaked in Arianne’s ass. The slut moaning sucking her ass off the offered cock. She cried out around the dick in her mouth with Myrcella riding her dick double anal up Arianne’s stretched out asshole. Dorea arched her back on the bed with her feet planted on the bed to punch her dick up deep into her aunt’s asshole. She was dumped on the bed several more times to clean both cocks fucking her asshole with hard and deep thrusts of cock up her asshole. Then she was mounted again. They switched things up having Loreza on her back with Arianne’s back to her and her ass resting on Loreza’s groin. Her dick fucking her ass hard. Now Dorea and Myrcella moved in from the front and first fucked her pussy and then did double anal from this position. Their dicks ramming hard and deep up into Arianne’s ass.

Arianne supporting her weight leaned back with her hands by Loreza’s shoulders. Her head looking down at the cocks fucking her couchie and asshole and then doing double anal on her. She gurgled when Loreza reached up and worked her hands underneath her arm pits and then locked her fingers behind her aunt’s head. She ripped Arianne’s head down with vicious jerks. Arianne chuffing with the rough control of her neck and head. Her head jammed down so her eyes could fully see the dicks plunging hard into her pussy and ass.

The Loreza moved her cock to Arianne’s pussy while Arianne feasted on the dicks that were offered to her by Myrcella and Dorea on either side of her body the women on their knees. Then they slipped their cock into her pussy and fucked her double vaginal in turn. The two women on their knees slipping out her pussy to then feed it to Arianne as the other moved in to double vag fuck Arianne.

Then Arianne was flipped back over to straddle Myrcella again and she was DP, double anal and vag fucked mercilessly. The dicks slamming hard and deep up into her stretched asshole and cunt.

Soon after Arianne felt her body again rising in harsh spasms of fucking bliss as her body rose up in shrieking pleasure blurred with sweet pain.

Her double fucked asshole exploded wildly.

Arianne’s eyes shocked wide open when her cries of pleasure flooded the room like a death wail of blistering scalding ecstasy. Her asshole simply tearing itself inside out ripping her sphincter to shreds it felt like. "AWOONNNNGGHHHHH! MNNNGGHIIIIIIIIEEE! AWWONNNGGGG!" she roared, her whole pelvis shaking and quaking in wild jolts as a scalding ecstasy gripped her flesh. "Oooohhhhhh ... uuuoonnnnnnhhhh!" she moaned more softly in the troughs of her orgasm, but then geared up for another earsplitting scream. "HHHAAAUNNGGHHHH! OH SHIT! OH FUUUUUUCK! MMNNNGGGHHHIIIIIIIE!" Her body bucked and flopped wildly like she was being struck by lightning filled with a million killing volts of ecstasy.

A groggy Arianne was dumped back down to the bed and her hair fisted to be dragged around to the dicks that had just plundered her asshole to such pure shocking pure bliss and searing ecstasy. Her body jerking wildly with harsh aftershocks as she sucked her ass off the dicks that had fucked her asshole so sweetly. Her body filled with molten ecstasy that pulsed in her veins. Her mouth purring as she sucked her ass off the dicks.

For the next hour she was passed around by her wives as they took turns fucking all three of here fuck holes in all manner of pairings. Her pussy and asshole ripped apart by more intense double anal and vag fucking that sent Arianne over the precipice of shattering vaginal and anal ‘gasm shredding orgasms.

She loved sucking her pussy and ass off the thick shafts plundering her pussy and ass and then rammed into her mouth to suck her sweet pussy and ass off the thick black leather shafts. She was laid on the bed and rolled right and left as her wives took her from behind to fuck her ass and pussy so hard and deep. Arianne taken spoon by her wives who attacked her worn out fuck holes from all angles from behind. Then rolled over as her wife fucking her ass moved up on her side so she could do sweet ATM. The wife on the other side of her body taking her worn out fuck holes. She had cum several more times yet again screaming her voice now getting raw.

She loved how her body was flipping so wildly her hips jerking to ram her groin back to take her wives cocks balls deep up her ass and burying the shaft deep up her cunt. Each orgasm made her asshole and cunt feel like they were being seared in broiling ecstasy. Her last vaginal orgasm had made her howl in burning agony that made her toes curl and fingers claw for almost a minute of along drawn harrowing orgasm. Her hands slammed the bed and her head jerk back as her blistering screams filled the room. Her cunt felt destroyed with ecstasy. She tingled all over now basking in nirvana on Earth.

Finally, she was fucked out. She was in that happy place that only her wives could take her too. She was satiated and at peace with the world. She loved the feel of her cunt and asshole throbbing with her still elevated pulse. Her pussy especially had that burn a pussy gets when it has been fucked beyond all endurance. Her asshole throbbing in pain and pleasure as the pulses slowly ebbed way.

Arianne had been ‘ridden hard and hung up wet. She had totally absolutely fucking relished the harsh sweet supposed grudge fuck. She was well and truly fucked out she felt. Her slut needs finally filled she yawned with a beatific smile on her face.

Sand Snakes

Dorea looked down at Arianne sweetly. She loved her wife so much. She so enjoyed these games that Myrcella and Arianne would dream up. They in the past just would bring out the whips and other implements of pain and start wailing away on their willing and moaning partners. They felt such a sadistic rush giving pain to willing sluts who were pain sluts and addicted to masochistic sex. It was a rush to look upon a woman’s body marked with the marks from her whip, flogger or cane had left on the woman’s body.

It had at first surprised her at how many woman loved to be abused sexually. The sluts constantly coming back to her and her twin for more sweet pain. Pain they craved and begged for. She and her sister were always happy to give the sluts what they wanted and need. They were so happy that Arianne their aunt and Myrcella were such hot willing pain sluts.

There was so many ways to abuse willing women the twins had learned. The rush of hearing their palms slapping willing flesh or the sound of leather whipping writhing women’s bodies was such a turn on. But with their wives they took to a whole other level of realism by putting a story to the rough sex. It was so easy to get into character with Arianne being the adulterous slut caught in the act. To feel the anger of betrayal and to see her pathetic attempts to lie her way out of the situation.
Arianne was always going back to that scenario. It turned Arianne on no end to play the adulterous wife caught and punished.

Myrcella had another scenario she liked to play. The tableau played out more than once. She had told them her mother’s former self had inspired her desires to play out that dynamic. Her beautiful blonde wife loved to play the stuck up Queen who lorded it over all with a snooty and pompous air. Then she, Loreza and Arianne would rise up in rebellion and totally fuck Myrcella over as she plead for mercy and of course none was ever given.

Another difference between Myrcella and Arianne was that their blonde wife would often try and fight back. She would try to thwart the will of her attacking wives. The extra force and abuse required to subdue Myrcella was fucking hot. Having to whip Myrcella even more savagely, punch her in the stomach to take the wind from her snotty mouth and throw her around the room and into walls and drag her by her hair till she finally was beaten and submitted was super rad!

The twin sisters had often discussed how lucky they were. Not once had the safe word ‘red’ been spoken or even the slow down word ‘yellow’. Both of their switch wives wanted it hardcore to the max when receiving pain and humiliation. The two sadist sisters were more than happy to deliver that pain.

Dorea smiled over at her twin sister Loreza. She had enjoyed this last murmur’s play too. It was so hot to play the vengeful wives seeking just revenge. It let you really get into the mean cruel revenge fuck scenario. They never knew when either of their docile wives would crave a hard flogging / whipping and then roughly fucked. It kept it fresh and hot never knowing when their wives would crave a session of hard BDSM sex. Usually, one or the other of them would want to be the center of attention but often both just wanted to be fucked over without any elaborate role playing. Often Arianne or Myrcella would switch to the dom and help in the royal abuse like now during the next play session.

It was always so hot to the identical twin sisters when both of their wives came to their Sand Snakes for some hard rough sex. Many times they would just fuck them mercilessly but the spice of adding in story lines was intoxicating but Arianne and Myrcella did not overdo these “situations”. They did not become burdensome coming up with new scenarios or redoing the same ones over and over to close together and making them boring. Their wives brought the Game of Thrones into their bedroom enough to make the sex always scorching.

One thing Dorea had noticed was the difference in the Sand Snakes general character and disposition. The twins and the other daughters of Ellaria, Elia and Obella were hardcore sadist who did not enjoy being on the receiving end of pain except when they needed a taste of strange. They were all pure sadist. But the other daughters of Oberyn with different mothers than Ellaria were all switches with maybe leanings towards being masochistic. Obara, Sarella were total switches going with the flow while Nymeria and Tyene were switches but were clearly on the masochistic side of the balance.

It was all strange. Oberyn was their father and he was all stud and sadist she supposed but it was only Ellaria’s children that were the hardcore sadist. And yet their mother was a switch who preferred to be the bottom. Strange. Shouldn’t their mother, Ellaria, be a hardcore sadist bitch like her daughters?

Dorea smiled. In the end it did not matter.

It was funny in a way. The Sand Snakes were free lovers but the daughters of Ellaria had never fucked their own mother. They were all headstrong and butted heads continuously. Each woman wanting to get her way and being way too willing to be stubborn about it. Ellaria had been a woman that the twins had never desired to bed and fuck. Their own mother’s iron will being their mother had subsumed any such desires. Their mother’s iron discipline much too much like being a top. Major turnoff!

That could not be said of Myrcella and Arianne. They had fucked their mother, Ellaria, into a coma many times now. They could not get enough of their mother’s couchie. They had both made it clear that they fully expected Loreza and Dorea to start joining them. “Stop being selfish!” Arianne had whined. Myrcella had pouted cutely.

They had discussed it between themselves and Elia and Obella. They had come to an agreement that the past was the past. They were all adults now with all the responsibilities that came with it. Ellaria had mellowed with the years. Now that she was not the mother hen clucking over them the tension had largely faded. It was time to put the past behind them.

They would soon be fucking their mother. Their two wives had regaled them at how good in the sack their mother was and how sweet her pussy and asshole tasted. They especially loved hearing that their mother loved to be fisted in her pussy and deep up her ass to the elbow. She loved the whip too. They had thought evilly at that. The dramas they could play! Time for some payback the twins thought evilly. They got hot and wet thinking of turning the tables on their mother and first whipping her senseless and then devouring her and then rampaging her sweet fuck holes with their strap-ons and fists. It would be heavenly they had agreed.

Dorea stopped musing about what was to be and focused on the here and now.

The two Sand Snakes removed their strap-ons and threw them on the floor. Myrcella was doing the same as she stretched out. Their attendant would retrieve them in night when they were sleeping to wash and lubricate to make them supple and shiny for their next use.

Arianne was stretching out and luxuriating in her great fuck. Her body was red all over from their loving abuse. Her skin all splotchy from the harsh abuse that she so craved. Arianne scooted up gingerly and put a few pillows underneath her head. She held out her arms to her lovely fierce wives. They came up to her body and snuggled in.

“I love you so much Dorea and Loreza. You always fuck me so good. I feel so worn out and good. Gods I love how you abuse me my sweet nieces. I am so happy that I married you. I was born to be your wife.” Arianne smiled seeing the big smile on her nieces’ faces. They were not loquacious and let their actions speak of their deep abiding incestuous love for their aunt. They loved her and would never let her go.

Arianne shivered and started to weep softly coming down from the high of rough sex. The Sand Snakes kissed and gently stroked Arianne’s voluptuous body soothing her from her emotional high. The future leader of Dorne wept softly remembering how great she felt being fucked so hard on and on. How her wives gave her just what she needed. Loreza and Dorea knew that when a woman was taken to such highs on BDSM sex that she usually was overcome with sweet emotions when the session was over. They needed to be stroked and loved with intimate caresses. Which they were happy to do feeling Arianne’s warm body pressed into theirs.

Loreza saw Myrcella at her desk studying some of the sheaths of parchment and scrolls that the Maester had given them. She smiled thinking of how getting those scrolls had led to such hot intense loving fucking. They had been told the spells were in High Valyrian. She knew that her two Game of Thrones of wives would be learning that language post haste to take advantage of the new weapons of espionage and direct force that Marwyn had given them.

Loreza knew her talented wives would master what those odious and stupid men in the Citadel were not able to truly master. Her wives would prove their superiority. They were women after all.

Loreza and her sister had been at first so jealous of the man touching Arianne but now admitted that it had been so hot to see Arianne fucking the man so exuberantly. They would never understand what any woman saw in a man’s body but would never again make Arianne feel ashamed of her love for cock. Being fair, Loreza had to admit that men looked okay but she just was not attracted to them in the least. Still the Maester did have a massive thick uncircumcised cock. He had proven he knew how to use that phallic shaft too.

She had to admit it had been hot to see the Maester roughly strip Arianne of her clothes as she fumbled with his hooks and laces getting his long thick cock out of his trousers. Loreza was used to seeing Arianne and Myrcella give head to their strap-ons but it was hot watching in the almost third person like it had been looking out through the spy holes in the wall. She had felt like one of Dorne’s jackals on a clandestine mission.

It had been hot to see Arianne fist the Maester’s cock and jerk his foreskin up and down his shaft and then siphoning his cockhead in that was half covered with his foreskin. She sucked his cockhead and fisted his shaft working his foreskin down. Loreza reflected her strap-on couldn’t do that. Damnit! She watched Arianne bob so hard her hair flouncing. She sucked with cheek hollowing sucks with her mouth traveling up and down the thick veined shaft. She would twist her head on his dickhead. Arianne sucked off his cockhead with loud plops. Then diving back down to hard suck his hard dick. Her lips glued to his shaft as she double fisted his thick cock. Her mouth making wet obscene sucking noises feasting on male cock.

Dorea had to admit it was not so bad watching Arianne fucking a guy after all. She was still jealous as hell but she had gotten so fucking wet. Great sex was great sex after all.

Then he was on the bed lying back while Arianne was sucking him off fiercely. Her aunt was folded down on her legs her tits resting on this highs as she sucked with obvious joy on Marywn throbbing dick. He had taken his right hand and gripped Arianne’s hair like Loreza did when Arianne was pumping her head hard on her shaft. Gods she enjoyed that visual. Arianne chuffed and moaned sucking hot dick. She would lift her head and butterfly stroke her tongue all over his dickhead before swallowing again and bobbing hard with lips glued to his hot cock.

Arianne was over his groin one hand pumping his shaft the other gripping the Maester’s hip to anchor her body as she bobbed furiously on his dick sucking with all her strength. Listening to his groans of pleasure in retrospect had been so hot to listen too. He had both hands on Arianne’s head now. His fingers clawed through her long black hair and clawed into her scalp. He was helping the woman slam her head up and down his dick his cockhead slamming into the back of Arianne’s throat making her choke and caw as she concentrated to keep sucking fiercely.

Then the Maester did what she could not do Loreza lamented. Damnit! He had roared and he pulled Arianne’s head up off his cock. He took his fingers of his right hand and worked his fingers down Arianne’s forehead. He pulled Arianne’s eyelids open. He fisted his dick with his other hand tilting his shaft to point his pisshole at Arianne’s face. He had his cock only six inches in front of Arianne’s face. His fist stroking his cock hard and fast as his body began to shake and convulse.

“FFFFFFUUUCCKKKKKKKKKK! AAAAWOOOGGGGGGG! FFFFFFFUUUUCCKKKKKKKK!" The Maester screamed as hot semen boiled up his thick veined shaft and spurted out his pisshole on his bulbous dickhead. He blasted his cum all over Arianne’s face with powerful spurts. His semen hit Arianne in her nose and eyes the semen splattering with the powerful spurts hitting her face at point blank range. The Maester roared again his hips jerking up his dick firing off long ribbons of semen that hit hard Arianne’s face. She groaned gutturally her eyelids jerking but unable to close as more semen pulsed into her eyes. Her face was soaked in semen and her hair soaked and mated with semen from the Maester’s copious hot spurts. She looked so fucking slutty and hot! Gods she was beautiful with her face and hair soaked with slimy pearly semen.

Arianne had told her and Dorea he had the constitution of a bull in the rut and he took herbal supplements that kept the Maester hard and ready for action. He proved Arianne’s prognostication correct. He was soon hard again.

He fucked Arianne so hard in her cunt and ass. The Sand Snakes’ wife howling with orgasms as he slapped his body down into her body face to face impaling her womb on his dick. Arianne gripped his body to her with looped arms and ankles locked above his hard pumping hips.

Then she did him cowgirl. Arianne on her knees her feet hooked on the tops of his thick thighs. Her heavy tits whiplashing up and slapping down as she rode him in a ride of wild exuberance. They fucked hard with bodies slapping. The Maester was then cumming in her aunt’s cunt as he howled and she screamed in orgasm feeling his cock spurt hot and hard into her womb. That was something that Loreza could never do and she thought that really sucked. She had to admit it had been hot to see both of their faces torn apart with crippling pleasure. The Maester’s body jerking up as Arianne slammed down to impale her womb on his spurting dick.

Loreza smiled nestling against Arianne who had gotten her crying jag out of her system and was cooing feeling her Sand Snakes against her. Not feeling their cocks pleasured by Arianne’s hot tight cunt made them better lovers. Their total focus was on their wife and her ultimate pleasure. They had pleased their aunt’s pussy and ass with expert skills. They had the power to give their wife the hard long loving fucks she craved.

Yes, watching Arianne, she was her usual insatiable slut self with the Maester. She fucked the Maester as soon as his cock hardened again. Arianne sucked his hardening cock back to full erection with obvious fuck hunger. He fucked her spoon and pile driver to a screaming orgasm. Then she rode him cowgirl and rode him up her tight asshole. Loreza loved how her tits would whip up with her hard fuck rhythm and ripple with their momentum before her heavy tits whiplashed back down to slap hare into her chest over and over with her exuberant fuck. Her tits flinging off sweat and her body soaked in sweat and cum.

Gods, Arianne’s screams of orgasm were so loud it seemed like they echoed off the tapestries covered walls. Her body convulsing with killing orgasms of shocking bliss.

Loreza had loved watching Arianne sucking feverishly on the Maester’s cock. Arianne had hunched down and looked up at the Maester with slit slut eyes. “Oh gods I need to suck my sweet ass off your dick Marwyn!” He looked at her with glittering eyes and then growled.

“She’s a true slit slut!… of the Maester’s cock!” Arianne’s whole body shivered and her eyes went even more limpid with fuck hunger. The Maester cried out watching her suck his cock deep into her mouth and bob hard sucking her sweet ass off his dick. “Oh Gods that is so fucking hot Arianne!” the Maester gagged his hips up thrusting driving his dick up into Arianne’s hot sucking mouth. Arianne drooled spit as she sucked her asshole off the thick veined shaft. Loreza thought anyone would find that so hot and alluring.

They had fucked for hours cumming hard again and again. Loreza was alright with that now. They had just shown Arianne that her wives could fuck her every bit as good as that Maester could. Hell that fucked her way better!

Still, watching that show had had an affect on the Sand Snakes and Myrcella. They still did not desire to fuck men. Not men but one man. They had started to discuss the possibilities of fucking their father Oberyn. The older Sand Snakes regularly fucked their father and mother. Why not fuck their father and mother when a taste of strange rose up in their bellies and couchies. To feel a cock spurt deep up their ass or in their womb would be so rad. To suck a cock off and have it spurt hard into your face.

Also, with their father they would be submissive. They would submit to both him and Ellaria as his paramour. The possibilities made the Sand Snakes of the Pride of Dorne shiver. In the future they would have to make this happen. They were still lesbians but fucking their father sometimes would be hot.

Loreza looked over at Dorea who was pulled in tight by Arianne on that side of her body. They knew their wife well. She only thought she was fucked out. As one the twins bent in and siphoned in a turgid nipple deep into their mouth. They sucked sweetly their cheeks drawing as their tongue lathed the hardening teat. Arianne began to gurgle her legs scissoring on the bed. Her breathe hitching and accelerating. Loreza began to hard suck on her teat. She looked over at Dorea who was equally sucking hard.

They both loved the look of searing pleasure they were sucking out of their wife’s hard long thick medium brown nipples. Their feverish sucks tenting the sweet areolas and their fingers sinking deep into firm but yielding heavy tits.

They got up on their knees hunched over and gripped Arianne’s heavy full gourd tits with both hands and pumped them hard. Dark fingers sinking deep into the medium brown tits pulping them hard filling them with harsh pleasure that hard milking gave Arianne. They had their mouth latched onto thick stiff nipples and steeple areolas that they deep throat sucked on the nipples. The rigid stems so delightful to lick and teeth rake as Arianne’s body jolted and convulsed with sweet fuck need.

Their fingers sunk deep into Arianne’s full firm tits. Their hands pumping as their heads drawled up with their harsh love sucks on the nipples now sucked deep in starving mouths. They plopped their mouths off the engorged teats with loud noises before sucking in again repeating as Arianne convulsed and played with their hair. They drooled spit out all over the tits they were love mauling. The dark Sand Snakes kissing the heavy udders all over and leaving bit marks that turned the skin more brown.

The twins lifted her heavy udders. The twins licking and kissing the heavy orbs on their undersides and licking along the secret crease where their aunt’s breast met her chest. The Sand Snakes slowly kissing all around the orbs with sweet kisses hitting all their slut’s hot spots. They then worked up the slopes of Arianne’s tits till they again siphoned in her turgid nipples and fiercely suckled like starving babes.

They continued to pleasure their aunt’s tits. While doing this one or the other would kiss up their aunt’s cawing throat and kiss her deeply their tongues ramming down their submissive slut’s throat with repeated hard spearing thrusts. Their aunt’s eyes rolling back again and again into her skull overwhelmed with ecstasy and pure love. The sister doing the kissing was still pulping the heavy udder she would soon be nursing on again. This went on for several minutes as they feasted and Arianne whimpered and jolted with sweet ecstasy.

Her voluptuous body jolted and writhed on she sheets. Her face slashed with harsh pleasure. Arianne’s breathing now ragged and clotted with fuck need. Her body beginning to film with fuck sweat again.

“Unnggg oohhhhh yessssssssss! Babies oh babies—my cunt is on fire babies … suck me off again—make me cum so fucking hard!” Arianne gasped her head thrashed right and left. Her face slashed with ecstasy. Loreza was just moving to comply when her twin, Dorea the slut, was in between Arianne’s thighs in a flash. So selfish she groused to herself with a smile.

Loreza watched Dorea wiggle down to get comfortable and her face in the right position to dine on sodden dripping wet red cunt meat. Her face bent down and buried deep into Arianne’s snatch her head lapping so her tongue lashed and raked her wife’s now rigid clit and drooling slit. Her tongue lapped the slit already wet and sucked in long labia lips and rolled around in her mouth before moving up and sucking on the rigid clit with short sucks and rapid tongue lashes.

Dorea sucked her aunt’s grape sized clit deep into her mouth. Her cheeks dimpled in with her deep throat love sucks and showed her tongue slapping the hard nodule. Then Dorea lifted her head to lick over her aunt’s rigid clit with slow flat tongue licks and then went to fast a rhythm of flat tongue licks. She gave wet noisy kisses to Arianne’s shiny wet clit before again tongue lick and giving siphon sucks making Arianne whoop and cry out in raw aching pleasure.

Loreza watched Dorea work her head to slide her tongue over Arianne’s clit again and again and then she sucked in a mouthful of cunt meat and sucked on it with wet sucks her tongue lashing over the rigid bud all hard and shiny. Wet snuffling sounds filled the room as Dorea dined. Dorea herself chuffing and moaning herself as she dined on the sweetest taste on Earth. Slimy wet cunt meat. A dreamy look on Dorea’s face as she sucked and munched on that slimy snail snot soaked cunt meat. Then Dorea was giving her aunt’s pussy wet kisses that were noisy and stretched out the clit meat with wet loving sucks.

Loreza watched as she gripped both of her aunt’s heavy tits and hefted them up with milking squeezes and wolfed sucked on the thick long teats with drawing long love sucks. The friction and suction had Arianne’s face slashed and twisted with the fierce hot pulses racing out her sucked nipples. Loreza moved her head back and forth licking and stabbing the engorged turgid teats and sucking the nips deep into her mouth and deep throat love sucking her mouth glued to the areolas and tenting them up with her voracious sucks.

Arianne gurgled and moaned like the slut she was. Dorea mashed her face in deep and swirled her face in a tight swirl sucking and licking the sweet clit meat sucked deep into her mouth. Dorea moaned and cawed dining on sweet sopping wet cunt meat. Her eyelids heavily lidded her mouth making obscene wet smooches and slurps eating out her aunt wife. Cum soaking her entire wallowing lower face.

The heir to Dorne swirled her hips up grinding her cunt into her niece’s face mashing her vulva hard into her lover’s hot sucking mouth. Her camel toe engulfing and compressed around the mouth devouring it. Dorea’s nose, mouth and cheeks soaked in the cum of her wife she was devouring.

Loreza leaned back to watch the show. She watched Dorea lift her head to lick sensual circles over the sloppy wet jutting up clitoral hood with her circling tongue. The engorged clit jutted out fully from it hood. The shiny bud harshly licked with strong tongue lashing licks. In between the sweet licks Dorea gave Arianne’s quim wet sucks that had Arianne gagging in helpless pleasure her face filled with a soft wanton slut look.

Dorea moved up so her head was more over than in front of Arianne’s slobbery wet quim. Her head angled down licking strong strokes and then working her tongue up and down the drooling slit and sucking in labia lips and munched on them. Arianne gagged and love jolted with sweet throttling pleasure. Dorea drooled spit onto her wet feast and then sucked in mouthfuls of sweet cunt meat and feasted.

Arianne had cummed so many times this long night. Her couachie was spent and this allowed Dorea to feast to her heart’s content. Her mouth munching on wet cunt meat and her lips glued around the thick bulbous clit of her aunt and giving strong deep throated love sucks making her aunt’s face crumple in shocking pleasure and her aunt’s throat to cry out in shocking fuck ecstasy.

Loreza watched for a few minutes stroking her drooling snatch. Her fingers soaked in her snail snot. She would bring up her fingers and suck them clean of her own cum. Her belly clenching at the self-induced pleasure and watching her sister and aunt fuck. Dorea was now lapping her head both lifting it and mashing it in hard into Arianne’s wet mound. The back and forth letting her tongue work the slit and clit differently. Loreza especially loved watching Dorea bury her tongue bulging out her aunt’s vulva as it stroked up and down in the drooling slit.

Loreza needed relief. She moved to straddle Arianne’s body. Her knees near the middle of Arianne’s ribs. With a moan sigh Loreza lowered her wet pussy on her wife’s stomach. She started to sweep her hips forward and back dragging her swollen muffin up and down Arianne’s flat softly muscled stomach. Her aunt looked up at her with a besotted slut smile. Her face torn with flashes of ecstasy that Dorea was giving her.

Loreza felt her pussy seizing up with the sweet friction and pressure. Her drooling cunt nutting on her aunt’s stomach. Her body hitched and lurched with the sweet sensations flowing out her tribbed couchie that drooled snail snot all over her beautiful aunt’s stomach. The slimy snot letting her cunt easily glide back and forth on the smooth plain.

Loreza looked back and down to glance at Dorea. She had lifted her head and her tongue first flicked over Arianne’s clit striking from all angles before going to down pressing flat tongue licks interspersed with wet kisses that sucked hard on the rigid shiny grape jutting out its sheath. Then Dorea was back to flicking the pinkish white clit with her tongue starting another round of sweet torment. The tongue flicks reminded Loreza of an adder’s flicking tongue. The rapid light tongue strokes all over your clit was simply so fucking rad!

Loreza grunted mashing down to press her clit harder into the firm stomach of her aunt. Up and down the Sand Snake dragged her drooling cunt on her aunt’s stomach. The pleasure shocking Loreza with hot stabs of pleasure pouring her lubricating cunt coating Arianne’s stomach with now tendrils of hot cum as well mixing with her clear effluent.

She was bent down her hands cupping her wife’s spread out tits to push them up off her ribs and together. Loreza had them pushed them into each other the nipples side by side as she compressed her wife’s firm titties. She looked down at Arianne’s face as it twisted and slashed with the harsh pleasure Dorea was sucking from her couchie. She bent her head down to add to her aunt’s incestuous pleasure.

Loreza wolfed sucked on the engorged teats and tongue lashed mercilessly and stabbed with her tongue hard. Her head moved right and left to feast on each nipple her hands squeezing the firm globes making the areola bulge up for her mouth. Loreza pressed in harder making her aunt’s tits compress to get her nipples side by side.

She now did figure eights around both nipples with her wet tongue. Loreza worked them in tandem her tongue loving the steeple on her wife’s areolas. Loreza hands gripped and pulped Arianne’s heavy tits her fingers sinking deep with her rhythmic clenches of her hands. She felt Arianne rocking her hips to grind her sodden trim up into Dorea’s hot gobbling mouth. Her motions getting rougher and more desperate. That motion working Arianne’s stomach which in turn made the pussy fucking it compress and ride over the changing cambers.

She heard Dorea dining on sodden cunt meat. Her lips making wet suck noises and her mouth now swallowing Arianne’s entire upper plump cunt and voraciously love sucking with deep throat love sucks. Her tongue swiping and polishing her wife’s diamond hard clit. She looked back over her shoulder at her twin. She was pumping her head with her love sucks stretching out Arianne’s upper pussy in her mouth. The sodden trim so red and wet. She turned her back to her aunt.

Looking into Arianne’s eyes she lowered her head and siphoned in the thick rigid nipples and again harsh deep throat love sucked on the rubbery teats. Her mouth moving right and left. Her hands had moved up the tits she was pulping to work her fingers jerking and squeezing the nipple she was not currently sucking on feverishly.

All the while Loreza worked her hips in a circle swirl grinding her drooling snatch on Arianne’s stomach. Loreza chuffing around the nipples in her mouth feeling her pussy clench and pulse with hot pleasure. Her pussy drooling copious dollops of cum down onto her aunt’s light brown belly.

From her hunched over position Loreza saw Arianne’s face contort and slash with constant searing pulses of ecstasy. Her breathing was ragged and sweat again pouring off her face and ribs as her body reheated. Arianne’s eyes went opaque and her throat stretched taunt and a shocked devastated look filled her face. Her head suddenly jammed back down hard into the pillows. Her wife’s sweet voluptuous body began to flip up and down restrained by Loreza’s body sitting on her stomach. Loreza loved the feel of her aunt’s body jacking up and down underneath her wet pussy.

Both Loreza and Dorea felt the rising tension cording tight in their aunt’s body. Both sisters redoubled their voracious love sucks. Their heads both lifting in unplanned union. One trying to suck a clit down her throat and the other trying to do the same to her aunt’s rigid thick long nipples.

Arienne’s eyes went opaque and her throat stretched taunt and a shocked devastated look filled her face. Her head suddenly jammed back down hard into the pillows. Her wife’s sweet voluptuous body began to flip up and down restrained by Loreza’s body sitting on her stomach. Loreza loved the feel of her aunt’s body jacking up and down underneath her wet pussy.

Eyes shocked wide open her mouth followed suit to rip out loud screams of almost agonizing pleasure. “AARRUUUNNNGGGGGGGG! HHHHNNNGGGGNNNNNNNNNNNNN! Auugg unnggg GGGOOOODSSSSSSSSDDDDDAAAMMNNNNNNNNNNNNNN!” Arianne screamed pure screams of pleasure as her womb tore itself apart deep in her belly with shattering twisting convulsions. Her body flipped and jackknifed violently now. Her aunt’s stomach and upper chest mashing Loreza’s tits and her groin. Arianne’s pussy jerked up into Dorea’s mouth. Her vulva totally engulfing her niece’s hot gobbling mouth.

Both of Arianne’s hands clawed into Loreza’s scalp now. The niece had throttled Arianne’s tits and slammed them against each other compressing the tits in Loreza’s throttling hands. Loreza had sucked both nipples deep into her mouth mashing Arianne’s gourd tits into each other with her clenching fingers. She sucked with long ragged deep throat sucks of pure love on the engorged teats in her mouth.

Arienne flexed her ass as her body twisted right and left on her clenching ass cheeks. She heaved her hips up as much as she could to mash her camel toe into the mouth devouring it. Loreza’s weight kept Arianne from wildly bucking. Loreza still sucked hard on the teats stuffed deep into her mouth. She saw that Arianne had lifted her head to watch her wolf suck her nipples. Her eyes wild with pleasure flooding her veins with searing bliss.

Loreza smiled seeing Arianne’s eyes roll back into her skull and lock up in violent convulsions in the back of her skull. The red blood vessels in the whites of her eyes obscene with their wild rolling right and left and then up and down. Her aunt’s head slammed back into the mattress. She heard Dorea growling behind her sucking with pure vicious deep throat sucks trying to suck her aunt’s clit down her throat. Loreza’s head lifted with her harsh love sucks on the nipples stuffed deep in her mouth. Her head lifting with her own deep throat love sucks.

Arianne arched her back with her neck also arched jamming the back of Arianne’s head hard into the bed. Her mouth opened wide to scream as a second orgasm rolled through her body. Her head jammed down hard into the mattress as she screamed as if being boiled in oil.

“FFFFFFUUCCCKKKKKKKKKK! OOOOWWGGGGGGGGG! ARRRRRUUNNNGGGGGG! … Oh oh unngg hhnn hnnnngg … Arruunngggggg! Oowwwgghhhaaa! Unh! Unh! Oh … sweet gods!” Arianne cried out. “Auunngghhhhiiee! Uummgghhiieeeeeee! Fffuuccckkkk—gooddssseaammnnnnnn!” as she felt her womb tear itself open again with three more rending convulsions of rending bliss. Her pussy cummed so long and hard. Arianne’s wives knew exactly how to give their wife maximum pleasure.

Loreza reveled when she felt Arianne’s belly nearly rend itself with the force of the killer convulsions that ripped through Arianne’s voluptuous body. Her toes curling with the dire ecstasy. Arianne finally collapsed onto the mattress a soaking wet mess. Her hair disheveled. Arianne was a bleary eyed and a very satisfied slut.

“Oohhhhhh babiieesss … my cunt is on fire … hurtssss so fucking good!” she weakly cawed out her body soaked in sweat again. Her eyes were lidded now and her head lulled over on her pillow. “I love my Sand Snakes with all my heart! I love you Loreza—Dorea with all my heart!” she hiccupped her eyes now closed. Her wives pulled up the sheets and tucked her in. Arianne was asleep. She looked so lovely and happy with a soft smile on her lips.

The Sand Snakes spied Myrcella writing at her desk. Fuck hunger burned in their eyes as they walked to their other wife. Myrcella had been watching them off and on while she looked over the scrolls from the Maester. The Sand Snakes knew their blond wife was waiting for them to take her. They moved in to satisfy their slutty blond wife’s needs.

//////////

It was two hours later. Twenty minutes ago they had led a wobbly legged and cum drunk blond wife to their bed. They had lifted the sheets up off of Arianne’s snoring body. Myrcella snuggled in placing her head in the crook of Arianne’s arm and ribs. Their sweet lioness threw her leg over her wife’s hips and her left arm gripped Arianne’s gourd tit possessively. She was asleep in less than a minute her sweat and cum soaked body pressed tight into the Martells’ body.

The two sisters tucked she sheets back in as Myrcella mewled and snuggled in tight as a bedbug into Arianne’s voluptuous body.

They had then returned to the thick pile of furs they kept in front of the fire place to fuck gloriously before the raging flames. Both of their own bodies soaked in sweat and cum from Myrcella and each other’s bodies.

Of the twin sisters, Dorea was the dominate one and by that right got to feast first. Like most lesbians she derived as much ecstasy from the giving of pleasure as the receiving. She laid out Loreza who looked down at her with lidded eyes and elevated breath. Her pussy rotating up instinctively in wanton need to be devoured and fucked.

With a happy moan Dorea lowered her face to wallow into her sister’s sloppy wet quim till her lips were engulfed by Loreza’s vulva and labia lips. The wet slimy heat intoxicating to the Sand Snake. Dorea quickly working her tongue up and down the gooey slit and raking over Loreza’s rigid clit. Her hands gripping her slut’s legs to spread them out wide to open her sister’s gash to be sloppily devoured.

Dorea worked her mouth lower to tongue fuck her twin’s cunt hole. Her long tongue spearing in deep again and again feeling the drooling wet heat of her sister’s couchie. Dorea pressing her lips in and Dorne kissing her sister’s cunny driving her wiggling tongue in deep loving the wetness and heat. Feeling her sister’s trim sucking on her long fucking tongue. Then back to working her sister’s clit and slit. The sister working her sister’s quim with all her skills.

The hot look in Loreza’s eyes drew Dorea up her twin’s body. She kissed and nipped the brown flesh. When she reached Loreza’s small titties she vacuum sucked the rock hard little nips and worked her tongue around on the small areolas. Then she was kissing her identical twin deeply their tongues wetly wrestling and flipping around in Loreza’s chuffing mouth. Dorea ramming her tongue down her sister’s throat. Dorea watched through slit eyes as Loreza convulsed her eyes half rolled back into her skull and jerking obscenely up and down.

Then Dorea was feasting again on the sodden trim of her identical twin sister with hot fuck hunger. She moaned at how Loreza slow swirled her hips up into Dorea’s hot gobbling mouth. Dorea was feasting on slimy wet cunt meat sucking first one thick inner lip into her mouth and sucking and licking clean before sucking in the other lip to munch and suck clean. Then lapping the drooling slit and raking her sister’s rigid clit jutting out its sheaf. She made her sister’s eighteen year old twat drool heavily. Then back to lipping her sister’s cunt lips clean again. A perfect dance of lesbian rug munching.

Loreza was whinnying loudly now swirling her hips harder up into her twin’s mouth. Her feet planted on the furs. Her ass dimpling as she lifted her hips off the floor jamming her cunt into Dorea’s mouth. Dorea sucking feverishly on sodden quim. She had her hands on her sister’s ass now helping her sister to fuck her mouth with her rotating cunt. The up and down motion of Loreza’s hips made Dorea so hot for it feeling Loreza work her snatch hard up and down her lower face. This gave Dorea total access to the hot wet cunt she was devouring in gluttonous glee.

“Oohhhh Doreaaaaaaa you eat my cunt so good sweetie auuggg unnggg oohhhh yeessssss! Unnggg hhngggg! Eat my wet cunt sis!” Loreza’s head lulled first left and then right her face slashed with primal ecstasy her identical twin was giving her. Flashes of almost shocking searing pleasure flooding her veins with sweet wrenching bliss. Her toes curling with the force of the pleasure pulses burning through her veins.

Dorea felt her head rising and falling with the force of her sister’s desperate humping. Dorea brought her legs forward folding them underneath herself and gripped Loreza’s ass hard. Now Dorea rose up slowly the balls of her wrist jammed into Loreza ass and her fingers clawing taunt ass cheeks. Dorea rose up to her knees and brought Loreza up with her. Now Loreza’s body was at ninety degrees her ass on Dorea’s collarbones and her back resting on Dorea’s sweaty belly and tits. Dorea gripped Loreza’s sweat dripping ass cheeks as her sister ran her legs up on her shoulders her bent knees had her heels tapping Dorea’s back.

Dorea was in heaven looking down Loreza’s accordion folded body and wet open couchie just below her mouth. Dorea jammed her face down deep and hard to mash her face into her identical twin’s vulva. The wet camel swallowing her hot mouth. Dorea lapped her head to work her tongue raking slit and clit before she moved her head back and down and spearing her long tongue deep up into her sister’s frothing fuck hole. Back and forth the Sand Snake worked her mouth pleasuring her sister’s hot box and her rigid throbbing clit.

The Sand Snake sucking in mouthfuls of sweet slimy cunt meat and munched on the sodden folds in her mouth. Her head pumping up to stretch out the slimy folds before releasing and tongue fucking hot and hard the drooling fuck hole. Her tongue scooping out sweet slimy delicious curled tongue fulls of cum and swallowing with convulsive gulps of guttural moaning happiness.

“Nnnnnn . . . unhhghh . . . oh! Auungghhhhh!” Loreza love gurgled. “Oh sis you eat my fucking
pussy so fucking goodddd!” Dorea felt her sister’s thighs squeezing her ears as she humped up into her hot sucking mouth. “Unnggg hhnnngg hhnnnn hhnnn hhngggg!” Loreza wheezed in ecstasy. Her slit humping up into Dorea’s mouth with hot humps and grinding motions. Dorea was in heaven eating heavenly gash. Her long tongue now slow tongue fucking Loreza’s gooey honey hole. Her tongue scooping hot sweet hot cum to swallow convulsively in happy glutony.

She was looking down at Loreza with slit eyes now moving her head up to wolf suck on her shiny clit. Her head lifted with the force of her love sucks. She watched Loreza face twist and slash with hot pleasure her compressed body chuffing hard. Her sister’s hands had come up to grip and mash her small titties into her ribs rolling her palms to mash and roll her little doves hard and cruelly. The woman giving herself sweet pleasure.

“Oh Gods sis … so close so close … oh gods my cunt is going to cum so hard … suck my clit suck my clit suck my clit!” her sister chuffed fast her voice desperate with striving. Loreza heels suddenly slammed into Dorea’s back and dug in as her sister’s body went to Valyrian steel. The ass cheeks she was gripping hard to keep her love suck tight on Loreza’s cunt were rock hard now and flexing wildly. Looking down Dorea saw her sister’s body lock up her eyes shocked wide open as her orgasm bloomed and then exploded deep in her belly.

Loreza’s head started to thrash violently and face seemed to shatter and her eyes snapped rolled back into her skull. “GGGOODDAMNNNNN! OOOWWWWGGHHAAAAA! Auugnooonnngg! Unghh! Unghh!” Loreza screamed in pure love. Her screams of love echoing off the walls. Her pelvis writhing as she slammed up with spastic heaves of her hips her heels digging into her twin’s back to ram her immolating cunt up into Dorea’s hot sucking mouth. “Aaanngghhuummmnngn! Unngghmmniee!” she shrieked as Dorea sucked hungrily on her identical twin’s hard pulsing clit sucked deep into Dorea’s mouth and being gigged by her spearing tongue.

“Oh my fucking godssssss—aauugggggggg mnngghiieee “ Loreza cried out, her body jackknifing and flipping as much as her compressed body would allow. Her heels slamming into Dorea’s back spasmodically. Dorea loved the pain knowing the pleasure she was giving her sister. “Oh! Oh Dorea godddssss Doreaaaaaa! Unngghmnnnghiieeee! Aarrruunngggggggnnnn! Fffffuuuccckkkkk!” Hard spasms ripped her body apart her body spasming from her hair to her curling toes on the feet again digging hard into Dorea’s sweaty body. Her thighs squeezing hard on Dorea’s ears as she concentrated on sucking her sister off so fucking well.

Dorea felt her sister weakening now her body going limp her back and ass pressed wetly and weakly into chest and tits. Loreza was still having mini convulsions from her harrowing orgasm her eyes open but unseeing as her face locked up in fierce snarls of aftershocks. Dorea looked down her sister’s hard belly still licking the sweet pussy in her mouth gently slurping up the sweet cum cream leaking out Loreza’s twat hole.

After a minute of sisterly bonding with locked eyes and a slow stroking tongue swiping up and down languidly sweet cum Dorea slowly lowered her sister’s limp body to the furs. Her sister stretched out and weakly mewed with pleasure. Dorea was still in need and she knew her twin like herself. Her sister’s pussy had one more hard cum in it. Dorea half rolled over reaching for the two headed dildo they had brought back to the furs when putting Myrcella to bed with Arianne. Dorea gripped the roughly twenty inch long double headed cock.

The core of the cock was a rubber tube about an inch and a half thick. The rubber was expensive from the land of Sothoryos. It was hard to collect and then process into the desired shape. The rubber gave the shaft some flexibility. The center of the shaft had fake testicles facing out in both directions and the heads on each end of the shaft was extra bulbous much thicker than a normal cockhead crown. The rubber had had supple layers of black leather fashioned and sewed around the shafts and cockheads. Multiple layers added up to increase the thickness and give it more rigidity.

Both of their cunts were sloppy wet and loose from their hard orgasms over the last several hours. Dorea moved in pushing her left leg underneath Loreza’s right leg and putting her right leg over her sister’s groin and hip on the other side. She maneuvered the dickhead on one end of the shaft to her wet wanton cunt and slowly wormed the nearly nine inches into her cunt with slow steady pressure. “Uunngggg mmmnnnggggg! Goddssdammmnn that feels so good!” Dorea groaned her pussy lips now thumping the fake balls. She gurgled and worked the shaft to bend enough to insert the dickhead on the other end of the shaft at her sister’s honey hole and pushed her groin forward.

The black shaft impaled her sister’s still drooling cunny hole and sank in the full nine inches bottoming out as the fake balls mashed into Loreza’s sloppy wet vulva. Loreza’s head jerked over her face slashed with fuck bliss. She pushed down grinding her fuck hole on the shaft buried in her snatch balls deep. Loreza instinctively rolled her hips and pushed her body back and then forward working the thick shaft in and out her wet cum filled trim. The motion working the other end of the cock in Dorea’s tight greasy fuck channel. Wet slurpy sounds burbled from their sodden squired cunts.

“Anngghhh! Oh! Anngghhh!” Loreza groaned, wincing as stabbing spasms of pleasure wracked her lovely, straining body. “Goddssdammmnn that feels so fucking good Dorea.” Both sisters began to pump their hips pulling back so several inches of cum slpped shaft were exposed and then hips jerked forward impaling sodden cunts on the hard shaft. The bulbous dickheads churning and plowing wet cunt whorls and folds sweeetly.

“Oh Loreza you fuck me so good baby!” Dorea chuffed to her sister. She watched her sister’s small tits roll on her chest with her fuck rhythm. She felt their groins colliding pounding the shafts hard and deep up into tight wet clutching couchies. Dorea was seeing stars with the dickhead lunging deep up her love box and the fake balls pounding her soaked mons. Her tits roughly jerking forward and back with her now primal fuck rhythm.

She saw her sister’s tits whiplash on her chest. Loreza’s tits looked so cute. The way they partially folded and flipped as she gyrated her body to impale her cunny on the thick shaft. Both sisters moaning and shuddering feeling their pussies stretched out and impaled by their double headed dildo ramming in deep into their muscledd bellies. The fake balls pounding their cum slavered muffins. The shock of impact jangling rock hard clits with fucking bolts of ecstasy.

The sisters’ bodies were in perfect love sync. They pulled back in unison and lunged forward pounding their slurping cunts into the fake balls mashing their mounds and rubbing into and shocking their shiny rigid clits. Their cunts making watery fuck noises. In that wordless way of lovers in sync they would slam their snatchs into each other separated only by the fake balls. They would sweep their pussies up and down desperately worming the shafts buried in their cunts around plowing the depths of their cum filled cunts with the twisting bulbous dickheads.

One sister or the other would push themselves up with a palm and reach down to massage and roll their sodden cunt lips with their fingers and flick both of their clits shocking both with hot bolts of pleasure. The sister would work her digital magic till her body became weak with fuck need and she collapsed back down to the furs to hump more urgently driving the dickheads deep into their snatches.

Both sisters rolling on their backs as their faces grimaced and slashed with strving and primal pleasure. Hands gripping sheets for leverage as bellies tensed to help propel groins forward to ram the sweet thick shaft hard and deep up spasming pussies. The sister’s hips striving and pumping in instinctive fuck need. Their rhythm in perfect sync.

“Ahhnnnggg!” Dorea cried out with an especially sharp thrust from Loreza impaling their cunts on the thick hard shafts. “Ungh! Awwonngg! Oh! Oh gods! Ungh! Please . . . unghhh!” she gasped and panted as they hammered their groins together with fierce, stabbing strokes. The sisters had gripped each other legs pressed into her their bellies and torsos holding on tight with twisted faces. Using their sister’s legs as fulcrums to work their swollen muffs hard into each other with pounding strokes of pure love. The locked cunts wildly sweeping up and down grinding the sodden snatchs hard into the fake balls before again thrusting hard back and forth to impale cunts on the thick stalk stuffed deep up in drooling clamshells.

Dorea’s head was thrashing harshly from side to side her face locked in a fierce rictus of striving and searing almost agonizing pleasure pounding out her twat that her sister was fucking manically. Loreza worked her hips up and down and surged forward to slam forward to impale their squishy cunts on the thick shafts. “Ohhhhhmm . . . ohhmmm . . . gods, it’s so good!” Loreza moaned, twisting, her body rocked with shocking spasms of rising ecstasy.

The sounds of two sweat soaked bodies slapping into each other hard and fast filled the room now. Their bodies slamming forward. The sisters pulling back and ramming forward again and again. Sweat flinging off bodies. Their faces snarled up with love effort. Dorea felt her tits whiplash on her chest as she fucked herself and her sister hard. They slammed their groins now into each other with fierce effort with loud wet smacks. Loreza was crying out in constant anguish now of rising ecstasy.

Loreza felt her eyes bulge hard as an orgasm exploded out of her cunt suddenly. “AAARRUUUNNGGGGNNN!! Aaaaiiiyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyyy . . . Godsdamn—fuck . . . “Mnnngggiiieeeeee! Unghhh! Ohnngg! . . . Ummgngnnggmmniieeee!” she wailed her shrieks filling the room. She slammed her groin forward locking her cunt with Dorea’s their cunny’s ground into the fake balls. She surged and flipped shocked by fierce seizures of ecstasy. Her whole body rocked by crushing spasms of bliss. Now both sisters were wildly fucking impaling their cunts on the shafts pounding muffins into the fake balls.

Loreza would freeze up in the middle of each killer spasm her body shaking violently. Her body stiffened and writhed and then the spasm weakened and she convulsed as if I was being electrocuted. Her body flipped and jackknifed violently her tits whiplashing on her chest violently. Her body gleaming in the fire light with light refracting off the sweat running off her body in rivulets. “Ooohhnnaggunngghh!” Loreza cried out as the last convulsion felt like it tore her womb out her belly. Her eyes rolled up, her head falling back and convulsing in hard spasms that snapped her neck flipping her head up and then snapping down as the orgasm finished its searing orgasm. “Ooohhhh ... unhhhhh!” she sighed, twisting as her body slowly came down after her orgasmic heights.

Dorea had been following her sister close in her body’s striving to cum hard. Her sister’s exploding and grinding body immediately sending her to the very precipice of shattering ecstasy. She felt her eyes shock wide open and her throat spasm rigid rocking her head up off the furs with spastic jerks on her cored neck.

Dorea had paused her hard fuck rhythm letting her sister finish riding out her shattering orgasm. Now Dorea picked up her rhythm again surging her body forward and back impaling her pussy on the thick long black shaft and shocking her mound and clit on the fake rigid balls in the middle of the shaft. Dorea’s small firm tits rolled and jerked hard on her surging body.

Her throat made strange cawing sounds her eyes staring at nothing her head jerking up as a horrible pressure of rising ecstasy filled her womb. Then her whole body tensed for several torturous seconds as her clit and cunt suddenly exploded. Her pussy felt like it was going to tear itself inside. Her throat had been shocked closed with the searing ecstasy hammering her hard toned body.

That now passed.

“AAAARRRGGGGGUUUUUU! … FFFUUCCCCKKKK! Annghhiieee!” Dorea finally screamed, as scalding shattering waves of ecstasy ruptured out her snatch pierced again and again by the thick shaft she was harpooning her cunt with her bucking and surging hips. “Ummngggnneeeneee! Oh! Oh! Ggggoooddssdddammnnn!” she continued to shriek as her soul was fried alive with pure fucking ecstasy. Her body flipped and surged her tits whiplashing violently. The back of her head pounding he furs her eyes now slit while her face shattered with dire slashes of pure fucking ecstasy.

Dorea’s hips bucked and jerked wildly as she impaled her twat on the thick shaft that Loreza’s gyrations slammed up her immolating trim. Her whole body spasmed and bucked like lightening had struck her body. “Unhhhhhh! Oh! Ungghhh! Annngghhh!” she now grunted softly, her eyes streaked by delirious fires of unbelievable sexual pleasure. She was sapped of strength as her orgasm finally began to wane.

The sisters collapsed spent on the furs. Dorea gagged at the intense sensations when Loreza pulled the shafts from their stretched out and satiated pussies. She purred feeling Loreza crawling up her twins body pulling a fur up to cover them before the fire.

She hugged her twin tight to her sweaty and cum slavered body. Loreza kissed her deeply their twined tongues speaking of pure love. The Sand Snake wiggled down onto Dorea’s body tracing her fingertip up and down her sister’s muscled belly, chest and still sensitive areolas and nipples.

“I love you Dorea. I always have. I can’t live without you or Myrcella and Arianne. Life is so good baby!” she softly husked.

“I know sister of my heart.” They rested for a long while.

“It seems threats are gathering on the horizon” Loreza sleepily told her sister kissing her shoulder.

“Yes it would seem. Good. I look forward to slaying our foes. We will gut all who challenge the Pride of Dorne” Dorea replied.

Loreza smiled at her sister’s fierceness. “I too am happy. Arianne and Myrcella excel at the Game of Thrones but I crave a foe I can gut and kill with my weapons and not the shadows they fight and defeat.”

Dorea kissed her wife’s temple. No matter how great the rule of Daenerys Targaryen would be there would always be forces that would rise to oppose her just rule. They would stand ready to fight for the Iron Throne and for their homeland of Dorne. They would kill their enemies.

Loreza was asleep and softly snoring in her sex exhaustion. Dorea loved feeling her sister’s little dove tits pressed into her side and her wet pussy pressed into her hip. She pulled the furs up a little more and followed her sister into sweet dreams of their wives, hot fucking and combat against their foes.

Arianne

Arianne was awaken by a noise. She slowly roses up from the sea of sweet dreams to the shore of consciousness. Her internal clock told the Heir of Dorne that the sun was at the horizon. She felt a warmth pressed into her lower side and legs. She slowly opened her eyes. The fire had been recently stoked and the light from several lamps that had been lit filled the room an ethereal glow of warmth and sensual love. Arianne looked down her body. The covers had been pulled down from her body. The warm air had kept her from getting chilled.

Myrcella was half curled up with her cheek resting on Arianne’s flat stomach. Her body pressed into her hip and legs. The beautiful former Lannister looked like a Jinn come down to Earth. Arianne reached down with her right hand and played with Myrcella’s long golden locks. Her hair even matted with sweat and cum was still silky and felt so heavenly running through her fingers. She looked to the source of the noise that had awaken her.

She looked at the fireplace that had a refreshed fire roaring in the pit. On the furs the Sand Snakes and their chamber maid of two months Kayse Quagg were in a daisy chain on their sides. Hot hungry mouths were jammed between thighs and hungrily eating out sodden pussies that were jerked and jammed into hot devouring mouths. The wet sounds of pussies being gobbled had sweet notes wafting in the warm air. Thighs clasped cheeks and ears and legs kicked in helpless pleasure. Mouths hungrily tore at sloppy wet quims devouring labia lips and rigid clits. Tongues fucking drooling wet cunt holes.

The way the furs were strewn about and the thick smell of fresh pussy juice in the air Arianne easily deduced they had been fucking for a while. Before Arianne had been roused by their sweet lewd fornication. Arianne observed that all three women’s bodies were simply soaked in sweat and hair totally matted and lank with sweat and cum. Yes, they had been fucking for a while. The thought made Arianne smile.

Kaysie had come from Wyl. She had much of the Stormlands in her with her parentage. Her father from Bronzegate the seat of House Buckler in the Stormlands. Her skin was a light brown more dusky of hue. She was a brunette and had wavy hair to her shoulders. She was of medium build. She had a big firm ass and medium sized breast with small nipples and areolas made to be sucked voraciously.

The girl had traveled to Sunspear looking for a new life away from her dead opportunities in her homeland. She wanted to live in warmer climes. She had caught Arianne’s attention when shopping in the bazaar. The seventeen year old was obviously hungry and afraid. Her heart was touched. She felt a maternal instinct for some reason. She brought the girl back to the castle and fed her and gave her a place to sleep in the warrens for the staff. The cooks liked her and she went to work in the kitchen.

She was soon fucking the female cooks and maids like a mule deer in the rut. Five weeks after she had arrived the Pride heard a knock on their door after dinner. They had just started fucking. In a huff Myrcella went to the door and whipped it open. There stood a very nervous Kaysie. Myrcella liked what she saw and invited the girl into their lair.

The Pride of Dorne encircled the girl. She told them she wanted to fuck them. The Pride admired her forwardness. She stood their shaking with nerves her blue eyes imploring them to fuck and love her. She told them with heartfelt entreaties that she found them beautiful and wanted to give herself to them and to fuck them. They admired her courage to come to them.

Impressed by her forward nature - - the four women looked among selves. Wolfish grins appeared on their faces.

They fell on her and devoured her sweet cunt and fucked her hard in the pussy and took her anal virginity with their cocks. They had made her their personal chambermaid. She was a great fuck in bed. The seventeen year old voracious in her appetites and her endless stamina a perfect match for the Pride of Dorne and their voracious need to devour pussy and sweet asshole. She simply went wild in their bed.

Kaysie had great fuck stamina and like the Pride mates needed lots of orgasms to make her pussy and asshole happy. She would come into their chambers in the early morn as the sun was nearing the horizon. She would fuck exuberantly with the pride and then clean their toys and generally clean up the suite from the hard fucking of the night before. Her visits often earlier waking them up to have a long round of intense hot fucking.

Kaysie was also fucking Grayce Martell a cousin twice removed from Arianne. She was a widow. She was plump and not the prettiest woman. She had been lonely and easily fell prey to the wiles of Kaysie. The seventeen year old had simply fallen hard for the demure and shy woman.

Grayce was thirty-two but Kaysie was sweet on her to the point she was now falling totally in love with the woman. She had easily seduced the woman and turned her into an insatiable slut. Kaysie had offered the slut to them. The more they looked a Grayce with clear vision the prettier she became to them. Now that she a total bisexual slut the Pride of Drone would soon devour her too they had decided. They would make her want women as her lovers with men as only a sport fuck.

They had already started to have a suite of rooms down the second hall from their hall repaired and done up for the two women to move into. It was obvious they were a pair now. Fortunately, a pair of minxes that they would soon be fucking sweetly.

Loud grunts and moans filled the room as sweet pussy musk filled the room with fresh funk. Arianne looked down on the sweet wife sleeping like a babe on her stomach. Myrcella’s head rising and falling with Arianne’s breathing. A soft smile on the blonde’s face.

She contemplated the items and news they had received from Maester Marwyn. She saw so much potential with the information and insights the Maester had given them. The threats to the Dragons of the Queen had already been sent to Tyrion and Olenna. They would relay it to the Queen. The threat was still not imminent but it must be dealt with as soon as possible.

Arianne had gotten Marwyn to continue to spy. The Maester more than happy to comply with the request. For the price of another one thousand gold dragons. The price seemed worth it for the intelligence on the rogue elements in the Citadel. Also, Arianne and Myrcella admired the man willing to take the risk to spy and sabotage on his fellow Maesters.

Myrcella had joined her the next morning and together they told the Maester to sabotage the Citadel’s efforts. They told him to not be foolish but changing the formulas even a little cold throw off the concoction and force them to reformulate and delay the delivery of the poison. They also advised the Maester to keep his ears open. Learn who the players were. Who was funding the efforts? Learn more of this risen sect from the ashes of the past.

She heard Loreza cry out in orgasm her wails sweet music to her ears. She was still filled with sweet lassitude. Her pussy and asshole were still throbbing and tingling sweetly. She pulled Myrcella to her more firmly with her enfolding arm. She relished the sweet teen snuggled into her side.

The Sand Snakes eyes had fired up with the promise of foes to be put down. Loreza and Dorea were no good at the Game of Thrones that Myrcella and she excelled at. They were warriors. They would love fighting Arianne’s foes. They hungered to prove themselves to their wives. They had done so, so bravely out in the dunes of Dorne.

Recently the Forks of Eastern Dorne had suffered raids from corsairs that hid in the archipelago of islands roped between Dorne and Tyrosh and the Disputed lands. The Steeping Stones were many and diverse. Many small harbors and havens for cutthroats and thieves to hid and strive in. It was a lawless region that had become bold of late.

They had discussed this situation with the Queen and she had told them after the Wright War she would send Solaja Xo to them and plan a campaign to suppress the perdition of the raiders. The Queen was not too concerned with corsairs but wanted to help Dorne fend them off. She told them she would make sure that her favored allies had the resources and expertise needed to send the Corsairs back deep into their lairs.

Arianne and Myrcella had sent off their initial report to Tyrion and Olenna. They would give in depth analysis of what the Maester had told them. It seemed that Arya would be heading into a cesspool of corruption and power dynamics when she arrived in Braavos. They would make sure the Queen knew all they knew to make sure Arya was prepared. This cult of the Flaming Skulls sounded nasty and deadly.

It seemed that more than dragons and Ice Wrights were awakening. The world was becoming more dangerous in the shadows. The political intrigue in Braavos with the Iron Bank, Sea Lord and the First Lords vying to become Sea Lord was unsettling. The fact the House of Black and White was in the middle of it all only made it more dangerous.

Dorne had much trade with Braavos. Arianne and Myrcella had already sent emissaries on ships sailing for that port to begin intelligence gathering and attempting to get the lay of the land. They were sure that the spiders and sparrows of Varys would be scurrying around or flitting in the air before windows. Olenna’s moths silently beating the air as they invaded rooms and lairs at night.

They should be able to give the intelligence the Queen would need to send her wife into that adder’s pit. Again the Queen would be indebted to Dorne and Arianne for any information and processed analysis they could provide.

Stroking Myrcella’s soft back Arianne thought on the damn Faith of the Seven. She was getting tired of the antiquated dictates and mores of the religion of Westeros. She felt like telling the High Septon to cram it up his overtight asshole. She had no idea why the Seven Kingdoms still followed the bastards. The Iron Islands were full of shit with their stupid drowned god. She liked what she knew of the old gods of the north. Those gods did not want to interfere in your day to day life like a good religion should.

The damn religion of the seven faced god was to heavily integrated into the laws and culture of Westeros. The Faith had a great many moral teachings she mused. It frowned on gambling, preached against bastardy, and cursed things like incest and kin slaying. Some were not bad. She had seen the sin that children were made to feel with being bastards. The damn church preached against bastardy and then blamed the innocent progeny of that illicit union. Hell many of the bastards came from septs and silent sisters. Hypocrites.

Nothing wrong with gambling if one controlled oneself. The casinos of Dorne closely monitored the gamblers in their dens and cut off the limits of persons who could not afford any more dept. When it came to incest: FUCK THEM! They were harming no one in their choice of who to love.

This Illuminati sounded very dangerous. When you had religious fanatics involved the danger they posed was exponentially greater. The faith militants she could understand. Warriors wanted to live to see another day. A zealot wanted to die for the cause. They would go to any lengths to succeed and if they had to kill themselves in the process then all the better. They would awaken in paradise. Idiots. It did make them extremely dangerous though.
She contemplated in how to penetrate the secret order. It might not be possible. It would take years to infiltrate a supposed acolyte into their midst. Myrcella and herself had discussed it and had no solution. Tyrion was crafty and sly. Maybe he would come up with some way to infiltrate this mysterious religious order. A thought crossed her mind.

It was said that Dragon Glass could control the thoughts of the unsuspecting. The Illuminati leaders were not weak of will or stupid. They would be filled with intelligent leaders. Their foot soldiers may be not so bright though. Good foot soldiers who were stupid zealots ready to die for the cause. But, if they could be tricked into thinking they had control of the situation.

Arianne turned it over in her mind. It might work. She would talk to Myrcella about it tomorrow.

Myrcella and she had discussed the largesse that the Maester had provided. Arianne had already sent word to the lead Maester of Dorne to provide Maesters who could teach herself and Myrcella High Valyrian. They would teach each other as they mastered the language. The Maesters would lay the foundation that they would then build upon. It would not take them long to learn the language. She smiled. That would be another marker in their till speaking the Queen’s mother tongue.

The items would prove must useful. The Dragon Glass would be a means for the Queen to communicate to her most trusted advisors. She knew that they themselves, Stannis Baratheon and Eddard Stark would have one. Who would get the rest she wondered?

Arianne was a little worried if they could master the Valyrian magic. She knew it could be done. On their way back to Sunspear Arianne had told her wives she had seen the Dragon Eyes before. Maester Marwyn was wrong.

Five years ago she and Oberyn had visited Highgarden to tamp down the tensions running high then. Oberyn groused and bitched against Highgarden all the time but he did not crave a war against the much more powerful foe. When she had gone to court at the nightly balls she had seen two ladies of the court wearing what she now knew were Dragon Glass Eyes. They were distinctive with their large gems and the hexagonal within hexagonal setting and rune covered chains.

She remembered at the time asking where they had gotten the identical necklaces. The young courtesans had twittered that Olenna had given them to wear at the balls to make them shine at court. It was a status symbol to be loaned the necklaces by the old crone.

Now Arianne and Myrcella knew Olenna had been spying on the women and their powerful husbands. The bitch! It was brilliant and now they and the Queen could do the same! They would have to be careful to not have too many of the baubles at one place at the same time though. One did not want to rouse suspicions with the same exact necklace being worn in the same environs.

It would make spying so much easier. It would be easy to blend the necklaces into the background of a bedroom and easily spy on the occupants of the room.

Myrcella had been worried that they would not have the strength to use the Valyrian artifacts. Arianne was not worried.

“How can you think that Arianne?” her wife had asked her. Myrcella was fretting “The Maester was a big strong burly man and we saw how it drained him to use them even for a little while. To be useful we would need to be able to use the necklaces much longer” Myrcella had told Arianne.

“I don’t fear love. If Olenna can use two Dragon Glass eyes at the same time I know we can master them. She must have taught herself as we well.”
“But how does she do it if it exhausts Maester. You saw how exhausted Marwyn became after only a short use of the Dragon Eyes made him?”

“I believe it is because he is a Maester actually. He is believes in magic but his training inhibits him. I believe. Magic is of the heart and not of the mind. Our hearts are large enough and filled with passion. Maester Marwyn’s extensive training in the sciences and ways of logic inhibit and deflect his focus. It distracts and thus weakens his efforts. We will not have those impediments. We will succeed my sweet wife. Mark my words.”

She had loved how Myrcella looked at her with such love and trust. Then it was time for Myrcella to give good counsel.

Arianne had told Myrcella that they should keep one set of Dragon Glass Eyes for themselves. The Queen would never know. They had brought the Queen this large largesse and they deserved to pay themselves.

Myrcella had convinced Arianne to instead tell the Queen the true number of Eyes but make a plea to let them keep one set. A Dorne forever strong and loyal on her lower flank would be an invaluable asset to the Dragon Queen. Eventually, Arianne had agreed with her wife. So far their relationship with the Queen had been based on total trust. Best not to jeopardize that trust.

History was littered with unexpected revelations that ruined relationship and treaties. They had proven themselves again and again in loyal support of the Queen. Arianne was sure the Queen would give them one set.

The Dragon Bone Hoops were a weapon that they had no use for. The Queen on the other hand may need such an item to easily penetrate a supposedly impenetrable defense. She had used out right brute force or devious tactics to bring down the City States of the Slavers Bay and the supposed free cities. Now she had another option. No wall could keep her out.

Such a weapon was useless to the Pride of Dorne. They would never lay siege to a castle.

They would prepare for the future. Her father was failing and in so much pain. It hurt all their hearts. He seemed to have recovered some with the happiness of his daughter and his nieces. Oberyn had stopped crying for vengeance against Cersei and now wanted to fuck her. Joffrey was in exile and sure to die miserably.

That had only left Gregor Clegane to seek vengeance on but he had disappeared eight months ago. Tywin had had a royal shit so it was not some subterfuge on his part. The Mountain had simply disappeared for parts unknown.

Her father would hopefully live for many more years but she had to prepare for eventuality that he might die tomorrow. Arianne was ready to take the seat of Warden of the South when that time came. With Myrcella at her side she would be more than capable of handling any Game of Thrones that may come up in Dorne. Arianne had all the faith that Daenerys Targaryen would keep the rest of Westeros calm and at bay.

Arianne would keep her finger on the pulse of Dorne and take care of any internal strife. That she was ready for. Dorian had been a wise and just ruler. The population was not agitating for revolution. She had her Sand Snake wives to deal with any such strife that might arise.

It was the larger world that Arianne and Myrcella were preparing for. Their close association with the Queen had prepared them for the new world. Since Oberyn had first started meeting with Daenerys, he had been reporting that Rhaegar and his line was not the fulfillment of the A Song Of Ice And Fire. It was the Chain Breaker, Dragon Queen and first of her name Daenerys Targaryen.

Because Dorne had seen it early they already had emissaries and ambassadors of culture and business in the ports of the true Free Cities and the wrecked cities around the rim of Slaver’s Bay and inland across the Grass Seas and the land of Qohor.

The Queen had smashed the old ways and new ways were taking root. It was a time of upheaval but stress produced change and change caused new systems to take root. Dorne would be there to take root from the start in the new world of Essos. Dorne would be the first of Westeros to bridge the distance of leagues and culture. Dorne would provide a helping hand and reap great rewards for its efforts.

The profits would be staggering and Dorne would be first at the trough. Arianne and Myrcella with their Sand Snakes would lead Dorne into new prosperity and influence. They would be first among the Queens’ Houses. She and her Queens would make it so.

Highgarden and Casterly Rock would be late to the game. Dorne would let them in at the table but they would be at the head of the table. So it would be written.

Sudden shrieking screams of loud ecstasy filled the room as three women orgasmed simultaneously. Arianne enjoyed the shrieks and bodies convulsing like they were swallowing their tongues. The powerful elixir smell of pussy became much stronger in the room as pussy juice overflowed gulping mouths. The three women trying to swallow the couchies exploding in their mouths filling to overflow those mouths with sweet slimy cum.

It took several minutes for the orgasms to fully fade away as the three lovers succeeded in making the woman they were sucking off go multiple with staggering womb rending and belly tearing spasms of fucking bliss. Arianne found it cute how legs stiffened and their feet all stiff on kicking ankles that had their feet tilling the air. Hands gripping asses and legs to anchor down the women so they could continue to gobble pussy and swallow all the sweet cum gushing into their starving mouths.

The three women went limp. They cooed and stroked each other sweetly. The identical twins on each side of their chambermaid. They stroked her still convulsing with aftershocks body. The woman gagging with the hard pulses of searing pleasure rocking her body from her clit. Dorea and Loreza kissing the shoulders and neck of their new lover.

An exhausted Kaysie started to weakly rise to perform her chambermaid duties. Arianne smiled at the Sand Snakes who pulled the staggering girl back down and pulled the furs over their bodies as they snuggled into each of her sides with their heads tucked underneath the crook of her arms. The slut pulled the Sand Snakes tight to her sweaty body possessively. They threw their legs over her torso and lower legs possessively in return. The chambermaid would have plenty of time to perform her duties long after the sun had risen.

Kaysie had a loopy smile on her face going to sleep feeling the warm bodies of her sweat soaked lovers pressed tight to her sides. The twin sisters quickly following their lover into the land of dreams.

Normally, seeing such hot sex would revive Arianne but she was still worn out. Her pussy still tingling and her asshole pulsing still remembering sweet hot anal ‘gams. Her abused body throbbed sweetly. She was in pain but this level of pain was only a chaser to the tough slut. She would not be ready to shag again to the afternoon she determined. It would strictly be oral for the next day or two with some finger banging of her pussy maybe.

She needed to let her bum settle a little more. Her pussy was simply worn out to any deep penetration. It would be four or five days before her booty recovered enough to again partake of the joys of anal sex. Her pussy and ass could take beating but they had been taxed. She smiled. She had been worn out and loved it! The sex rush past, her body ached and needed rest. She closed her eyes stroking her sweet Myrcella.

Arianne smiled. It may her four or five days before she could partake of sweet anal sex but her booty had given her so much pleasure. Gods she loved anal sex! Her bum was worn out and needed time to recover. Arianne smirked. She may have to shave off a day that schedule. She loved anal sex!

There was nothing on the schedule for today that they had to attend too. The Sand Snakes were on their off cycle of duty at the Academy so they had several days to relax. She would rest up this morning. This afternoon she decided it was time Kaysie bring her sweet slut Grayce Martell to them. She shivered at the prospect of fresh pussy and asshole to take and devour.

She was content. Life was perfect for the Pride of Dorne.
The wind always blew cold now. It was like a wolf howling from the North. The currents in the air were not a gale but a steady dirge of icy wrath and bitter warning. Something evil this way comes. The wind clawing at the unwary and the weak of heart. The wind sapping strength and will. There was something in the wind besides nature. Something was mixed in with the wind now that made the gusts cloying to both mind and body.

It was the Ice King’s hate. It permeated the very air now Jon thought to himself. He was coming.

Jon was not worried. Not now. His father and the Queen of Westeros had indeed come through for the Crows in their hour of need. His father had done the impossible and had the bulk of the forces of Westeros at the Wall or soon to be. He was riding out from Castle Black to reach the last main contingent of forces coming up the King’s highway. Their would be more supply trains of food and war material and support personal to man the burgeoning war camps around the Castle Black and up and down the Wall for its three hundred mile long run across the northern neck of the North.

At Castle Black the forces were predominately those of Westeros. The Queen had spread out her forces from Essos along the rest of the Wall. They would be strong enough to fight a delaying rear guard action to bleed the undead down and hopefully whistle away at the Ice Wrights themselves if a breach was made away from the stronghold of the Crows. The orders were to not directly engage but to send off ravens immediately and commence fighting from distance if at all possible. Even now more long lines of supplies were riding along both axis along the Wall from Castle Black and down from East Watch by the Sea.

The supplies were being stockpiled at each fort along the Wall but especially at Castle Black. The supplies flowing in from the shore at East Watch and the previous beach heads the Queen had established were pouring ever more supplies to the east of Castle Black. Camps were established between the forts. These camps manned mainly by Mercenary Companies from Essos, contingents the Free Cities had sent and Dothraki. Some Houses of Westeros were also being sent along the Wall in small contingents. The Queen wanted the burden to be felt by all.

The Westerosi also mixed into the elements from Essos. The men of Essos needed to be leavened with those soldiers who had the greatest stake in the game. For the men and few women from Essos this was merely a military campaign. For the forces of Westeros they were fighting for their homes and their very lives.

Not only had the Queen provide the weapons necessary to kill her enemies she had brought her army North at a controlled march. Her forces were arriving well rested and ready to fight. The time spent by Daenerys Targaryen and Jon’s father to train their armies had them ready to fight. Jon had no need to train the newly arriving troops.

Jon smirked thinking of the dregs the Crows were made to do with from Westeros in the past. Poor people forced into conscription, emptied out of jails, men fleeing bad pasts, young lost souls were the backbone of the Crows. Almost every man had to be trained up hard to be able to perform his duty. Not so with these arrivals. He smiled thinking it was nice to have men who arrived ready to fight.

Not only had the Queen sent her forces North ready to fight she was bivouacking them like a true Field Marshall should. Jon had read too many stories in his readings on tactics in the library of the Crows just how badly the common man was treated in the armies they were forced to serve in. They were as a rule mistreated and looked down upon by the Lords and officers who commanded them.

Not so with this army that now was encamped before the Wall.

Jon’s father demanded that all men in his army be treated with respect. It was not hard with the North. Men were respected in the North as a rule. His father would fall upon any Lord, Knight or officer who badly treated his men. His father was beyond fair and the men under his command worshipped him for it. It seemed, thankfully, that Daenerys Targaryen the Queen of Westeros shared the same ethos as his father. She too was fair and demanded it of all who reported to her.

All had heard of her rapid conquest of Essos and her utter destruction of the armies before her. The Dothraki Khalasars that had fallen before her. The great walled Slave Cities fell before her. The Free Cities fell, those that opposed her. Volantis had supposedly been invulnerable with its great Black Wall left behind by Daenerys forbearers.

In less two months she had crushed them with minimal loss of life on her side and the decimation of her enemies on the field of battle.

All had heard the whispers of how she had ruthlessly put down and disposed of the ruling Slave Lords. Meereen was whispered of at night. Westeros knew of the Queen’s past indeed. It knew she could be reckless in battle conquering forces that had never been conquered since the fall of Valyria. The leaders of Westeros knew that if she was betrayed she would annihilate those perpetrators. Her wrath was legendary.

It had helped Westeros to accept her peaceful overtures. No one really wanted to risk her dragons and her potential wrath.

Now she had united Westeros through peace and it had marched north in full force. They had arrived united and ready for the coming war.

The Queen had first brought her forces to the Wall intact but she had also planned for their upkeep while they waited for the war. Large quantities of food, stock to erect large camp tents and many tons of coal to heat the tents and to cook the food. More dried meat, vegetables and fruits was arriving with each supply train. Herds of goats, sheep, pigs and cattle had been brought north and purchased from locale farmers.

The fresh meat would be eaten every fourth date to give the troops fresh protein and lift spirits. All the tents were tight fitting and securely tied to the ground. With the braziers constantly fueled with coal the temperature was comfortable in the tents. This helped keep the men healthy and less prone to disease.

The Queen had learned in her campaigns across Essos to keep the latrines away from the camp and away from the water supply. Some of the ancient guides and company commanders of the Mercenary companies had observed how the placement of latrines near water seemed to coincide with the outbreak of disease. Almost all of Daenerys commanders had scoffed at this. Daenerys had listened and believed in their wisdom.

Disease had not broken out in the camps of the Queen from that time forward. She had made sure the camps that had been erected before the Wall followed the same plans she had used in Essos. The forces of Man were ready.

The Queen had two plans that Jon had fully agreed with. The Crows and Wildlings would use the Wall to bleed the enemy from on high with clouds of arrows, javelins and spears tipped with obsidian to kill the Others and Ice Wrights. His skirmish had shown that Dragon Glass was indeed effective against both forces of the Ice King. For the Walking Dead fire arrows would also rain down. Jon had seen the dead light up like bonfires. The fire instantly jumped to any Others they happened to touch.

Jon smiled at the death they would rain down on their enemies.

They also had a plan in case the enemy breached the Wall at a point other than Castle Black. The forces the Queen had arrayed behind the Wall would engage the enemy that would come through the breach. The mercenary and Westerosi would provide the foot soldiers while the Dothraki would be the mounted troop. The goal would be for the foot soldiers to slow and bunch the walking dead of the enemy. To make the Ice Wrights engage the phalanx of shields and lances. This would let the archers behind the lines of the foot soldiers and the mounted Dothraki to unleash an unceasing rain of arrows tipped with Dragon Glass and fire tipped arrows.

The Ice King had a big surprise awaiting him. Jon had sent out other patrols since his major skirmish before the gates of the Wall at Castle Back. They had kept close and fled the enemy if they appeared from the woods. No more Dragon Glass was fired. Fire arrows yes but no more Dragon Glass. The message would be to the Ice King that the Crows had used up a limited supply when in reality there were mountains of the tipped weapons now.

And yet more were arriving every day from Winterfell, Dragonstone and Essos. The Ice King’s forces would be decimated by the blizzard of dragon glass fired into their midst. The slaughter would be great Jon thought with a happy smile. Deprived of his dead to overwhelm the forces of Man his Ice Wrights and Ice Giants would be much easier to deal with.

The forts were maned by Crows and Wildlings now. They had come to work well together if still not fully trusting each other. Jon could live with that. The distances between the forts had been secured by a large contingent of armed forces from the continent of Essos. The Free Cities had most of their troops along the eastern part of the Wall. They would be the rearguard delaying the advance of the Ice King’s forces if a breach occurred there.

The forces had moved inland to heavily reinforce the garrisons of the forts along the Wall up to Rimegate. The forces under the local command of Crows or Wildling who knew the land and its environment better than the armed forces of Essos. They had brought large shipments of Obsidian tipped weapons with them and were falling into large stockpiles already left by ships carrying the precious cargo from veins located in Essos.

Other shipments of Dragon Glass had gone up the King’s Road from Winterfell and Dragonstone or overland from the beachheads the Queen had established on the Eastern Shore of Westeros. These supplies had gone primarily to Castle Black but also to the forts west of Rimegate. Those garrisons would have plenty of weapons to fire at the slow moving dead and send out clouds of arrows to pierce and kill the Ice Wrights. If not outright killing them then there advance would be greatly slowed as they sought cover.

Again the Queen and his father had come through. He had blooded the Ice King’s nose with the use of dragon glass weapons. He was sure the Ice King would feel that Jon had depleted his stocks. He had not sent out any more aggressive patrols hoping to make his adversary feel that he had exhausted his supply of obsidian tipped weapons. He made it seem he was merely doing reconnaissance trying Jon could not see any reason why the Ice King would think otherwise. A year ago he had little dragon glass but because of the massive efforts of his father and the Queen the forces of Westeros and their allies had mountains of dragon glass tipped weapons. The weapons dispersed to the troops. They would decimate the enemy.

Even in the Age of Heroes only the First People had truly used weapons made of obsidian against the Ice Wrights. They had created them, thus, they knew how to kill them. They understood their enemy and how to defeat them. Man did not.

Knowing that the First People had created the Ice King and his first minions had been a shock to the Commander of the Crows. Worse had been the even more recent revelation that the Ice King was indeed a Stark. Jon had been shocked and then angered that one of his ancestors could be so base. That made it personal indeed.

Fools! When he had been told this by Sam Tarly he had been shocked. How could the Children of the Forest have been so foolish? Then he stopped. If he was desperate enough and felt his very people were about to killed off would he not try any weapon to save his people. Still. To create a weapon you could not control was beyond folly. It had almost proven to be suicide to the First People. Jon sighed. One always seemed to overestimate their own abilities. Present company included Jon snorted to himself.

It was sad his ancestors were the people who put such desperation into the First People. He shook his head. That was a sin committed long ago and he could not undo that sin now. He could only try and make amends in any way he could in the present. He would pay any price to achieve that absolution of past sins.

He looked off to his left and smiled. His two wives were riding their horses. They were softly talking to each other. He saw the serious looks on their faces as they tilted their heads up to the sky to look at the sullen dark woolen skies. The dark clouds were not evil but they had been touched by evil. The very air of the North beyond the Wall was permeated by the stench of the Ice King.

He may still have the bulk of his forces at the Fist of the First Men but Jon and his wives knew he had many of his forces near. They could not actually see or sense them directly but they could feel them. He was acquiring new talents and strengths from his wives. With these abilities he now sensed the Walking Dead and Wrights. Their stench was real. Jon could now feel the throb of their evil hearts beating. The iciness of the blood that pumped through their veins. They were close. He and his wives could feel them.

Jon would stand on the Wall and feel it with each exhalation of the wind touching his face. The common soldier or conscript did not worry why the Ice King was still north at the Fist of the First Men. Their leaders did. All gnawed on the fact like a dog on its bone. It made no sense. The military leaders knew it. Even if the Ice King’s army did not need to eat and have need of shelter all armies fragmented if not used. Even his forces must follow that rule if given time to atrophy.

Jon too gnawed on that fact. He had stood on the Wall three nights ago and talked to Jon Arryn beside him. They both looked to the North and the snowflakes that flew in the wind. The white flakes like magical fairies flitting down to their death on the ground far below. The flakes falling but not sticking long on the ground. That too disturbed Jon. Nothing made sense with what the Ice King was doing. Even nature seemed confused.

He asked Arryn why the snow was not sticking to the ground. Jon had looked at him sadly “Heavy snow would hinder the progress of the Ice King’s when he attacks. He wants to get at us when he finally does attack.”

Jon had digested that insight. He saw the logic in that. Again why the delay if he could control the weather?

“What do you see when you look at the Haunted Forest Jon?” the commander of the Crows asked his father’s old friend.

His father’s old friend and mentor looked out over the forest. This was a man long in years and acquired wisdom. Jon watched the old man. His body still unbent by the years of his life. Jon slowly turned his head as he looked out over the tall pines, spruce and firs of the Haunted Forest. The man scanned the mighty boughs intently. The man knew the Lord Commander wanted him to see something. He continued to peer intently at the forest before him.

He finally shook his head. “I only see the forest Jon. I know he is out there. The dragons say he is at the Fist to the Fist of the First Men but my heart tells me otherwise. With you asking the question with that tone of voice Jon Snow I know you feel something. I alas do not. I only know what I feel in my old bones.”

Jon Snow smiled at the Warden of the Vale. “You are not that old my friend. Your body is still unbowed by the years.”

The older man smiled back with thanks in his eyes for the polite platitude. “I am curious what do you see Commander of the Nights Watch?”

Jon looked back out over the Haunted Forest. What he saw haunted his heart. “I am surprised Jon that you cannot see the evil that permeates the very flakes in the air. That you cannot feel the rot in the wind that blows from the north. Can you not hear the anguish and anger in the howls of wind currents that buffet the Wall and our faces? Do you feel nothing Jon Arryn? I know you tell me you do not my old friend. But I wonder how this can be. My skin throbs with his evil intent. Each flake that touches my skin, each gust of wind brings his evilness upon me. It fills the very air with his evil stench.”

Jon looked at him curiously. “No, alas I do not. I do not hear this ‘anguish or anger’ on the wind Jon Snow or is it Jon Targaryen. Maybe the Valyrian blood in you is attuned to things magical now son. I am only a man from the Vale. I only see and feel nature on my face. In my bones. My senses do not warn me. It is my soul that is troubled.”

The Warden of the Vale looked at Jon closely. “You do know you are in line for the Iron Throne by custom. You are older than Daenerys Targaryen. You are male.”

Jon Snow sighed. “I may have the blood of Dragons pulsing in my veins old friend. But I hear only the howls of wolves in my dreams. I am of the North. I have ever been, am now and forever more will be a Stark. I will leave the throne and any thoughts of it to the Queen.”

“But you look so much like Rhaegar. He was not too much older than you are now when he died on the Trident Jon. You look so much like him. The hair and eyes of course make me see it now. But I see it in the caste of your face. The angles that look back at me. I now wonder if there is not blood of the dragon that flows in the veins of Starks.”

Jon Snow laughed. “I doubt that Jon of the Vale. There is only one Dragon in our House and that is Arya. She was the one always enamored with stories of dragons and their Queens. Never the Kings!”
Jon Arryn paused a moment and he responded pensively. “Yes. It would seem that Myrcella has the same proclivity.”

Jon Snow picked up on this. “Does that upset you Jon?”

The old man took a long time to answer letting the wind blow his long grey hair in streamers behind his still unbent back. The snowflakes brushed over his face or collected in his hair. He looked at Jon Snow. “I do not approve if you are asking that. But I will leave that to others to worry over. The Queen is ruler of all of Westeros. I may not think this is right or normal but is it worth fighting and dying over? I think not. I will let the younger generations worry about this.”

“I for one support my sister!” Jon barked at the man.

Jon Arryn held up his hand to placate the leader of the Crows. “You will have no problem with me Jon. I may not approve but I will stir up no hate or discontent. I wish I could say there will be no others. I can tell you that many in the Faith of Westeros will oppose this. They will oppose the Queen’s desire for equal progenimatory. Westeros is not Dorne. They would oppose our Queen and you having two wives but you are beyond them I sense. These are exciting times Jon. I hope to see some of them through.”

Jon looked out at the forest. To know that Jon Arryn did not support his sister and her choice in mate upset Jon but like Jon Arryn had said; “It was not worthy fighting over”. He sighed.

The Warden of the Vale again paused in his perusal of the Haunted Forest. “I want you to tell the Queen to beware of the more conservative elements of the Faith and maybe some Houses. The Houses will probably quickly accept her new ways and thoughts. Daenerys Targaryen is the legends come to life. She is a walking force of nature and all see it. They will come around. Hell I might if I was not so old. But the Faith, I have serious doubts with them. Religion and politics go to the core of a person. Beware of them.”

“I will old friend.” The matter of one’s love was dropped. Maybe Jon Arryn would see how silly he was in time the Crow commander thought. “The Queen is bringing new ways to Westeros and Essos. She plans on being around for a long time. Her ways will take root Jon. I know it.”

Jon Snow bent the conversation back to the matter of the coming war and heritage. “I doubt it is my Valyrian blood Jon that lets me ‘see’ the evil of the Ice King. I only look the part” the Lord Commander told Jon Arryn with a touch of humor in his voice. “It probably has more to do with my wives. Having a relationship with two ShadowBender witches from Asshai has opened my senses I believe. The three of us feel the evil in the air. The nearness of the Ice Wrights.” He looked down at the Haunted Forest. “They are there. I can feel it. How many I do not know, but, they are there. I can feel it. They watch us with hate in their hearts.”

Jon Arryn shook his head. He told Jon again he could not perceive anything out in the forest. The old man sighed and spoke wistfully “It would be a nice gift to have.”

Jon Snow had seen a few Lords or knights up on the Wall staring with an unsettled look at the Haunted Forest. He had seen more of the Wildings but still only a handful whose faces had that “look”. A sense of unease and a look of loathing. They too felt the evilness in the air. Persons attuned to magic as he had become with his wives and his sword the recast Longclaw into Lightbringer. His wives and his weapon now giving the Lord Commander an affinity for magic.”

He could not practice it but he could definitely sense its presence. He had felt the ‘evilness’ increasing over the last months. It seemed as if every day the weight of evil increased out there in the Haunted Forest.
He felt it now as he rode away from the Wall. He planned on meeting the Queen at her camp two days travel from the Wall. He wanted to make sure that he and the Queen were on the same page when they spoke as one unified command before the forces opposing the Ice King. If there was to be discord he did not want it evidenced before his Command and the gathered forces of Westeros. It would only damage moral. He would not have that.

Jon looked out ahead of them as their small party moved down the King’s Road. Ghost had come out of a corpse of trees. The wolf turned it red eyes back towards Jon and his wives. The great white Direwolf looked at his master and then went running off over the low ranging hills. The wolf’s tail high in the air as it disappeared into the tall prairie grass that still existed in this land of the far north. No plow shares had touched this part of the Earth.

Jon had seen the unease increase in Ghost. He had taken his Direwolf to the top of the Wall several times. The great wolf had looked to the north. The great beast’s red eyes focused on the tall sentinels before them. His tail erect and bristly. His fur on end. The wolf was silent but his snout rippled. Yes. His wolf felt the approaching evil too.

Jon looked over at his wives as they rode down the King’s Road. Jon smiled. Ygritte was her horndog self. She was pawing at Melisandre lustily. She had gotten her hand in her wife’s bodice and the tall redhead looked scandalized but she was moaning as Ygritte massaged her wife’s heavy breast and rolled her wife’s long teats squeezing and jerking on them. Melisandre was glassy eyed and riding on pure instinct as her face kept slashing and she chuffed.

Ygritte was the fire in their threesome. Her audacity and willingness to be forward and horny brought out the inner sluts in her spouses. Melisandre would act aggrieved and put upon but she made sure to make her body available for defilement by her always horny wife.

Jon shook his head and looked down the King’s Highway. He knew he would be fucking the hell out of the both of them tonight in a tent that the Queen had setup at her camps for the royalty and high commander. He looked back at his wives. His cock stiffened seeing Ygritte had worked her other hand underneath Melisandre’s dress and her pumping hand told Jon that Melisandre’s cunt was being expertly finger fucked.

Melisandre had her hands clawed in her horse’s mane. Her body was jolting and a sheen of perspiration had formed on her forehead and upper lip. Her moans sweet music to Jon’s ears. The sight of her face filled with grimaces and snarls of ecstasy could not help but turn Jon something fierce. Melisandre’s face locked up her teeth clenched as a hard tremor ran through her body as her throat groaned gutturally.

They would travel out to the next camp to meet the Queen and her high royals coming up from the south. He wanted to make sure he and the Queen did not go into the war with differing views. For some reason, Jon felt sure that he and the Queen would have a conflict. It was a feeling but he trusted it. He had kept this council to himself. He had not wanted to show concern to his Command and did not want to upset his wives needlessly.

He did not like the idea of not manning the Wall. The very idea repulsed him. He did not want the Ice King’s forces having free access to the Wall. Jon wanted to make his enemy bleed heavily before the Wall. That was why the Wall had been constructed! If he abandon the Wall, he would be blind except for the Queen’s dragons and they could not patrol the whole of the Wall all the time.
There would be large sections of the Wall at any one time that would be unwatched on its North side if Wall was not manned.

He did not really believe the Ice King had found the true Horn of Winter. It had never been seen or used. If it had it would have been recorded by some Maester. It was all legend. It was all hearsay Jon was sure. Why had it been created and not used when first created. He had to admit he was peeved at the thought of abandoning what he felt was invulnerable. He was the Lord Commander and the Lord Commander did not abandon the Wall!

He glanced over at his wives. Melisandre face was locked in a rictus of passion with Ygritte hands working her tits and pussy hard. It calmed Jon to see his wives fucking. Their hot interaction was about life and love. He felt it was both a little humorous and a lot obscene to see Ygritte’s hands at work. The humor was the mere fact of them fucking on the King’s Road. It was obscene the way Ygritte’s hands bulged out Melisandre’s loosened bodice and Ygritte’s other hand pumped in and out made Melisandre’s dress at her groin jerk up in a fast rhythm.

Jon watched his taller wife’s body jerk and spasm hard. Her face twisted up into a rictus of striving need. Then Melisandre’s had ripped back and she screamed as her body orgasmed hard. The tall dark auburn haired beauty’s body rocked forward and back. Her booted feet pressing into her horse’s ribs to keep her erect on her horse as her cunt exploded scalding the ShadowBender’s body with fucking ecstasy. The waves of ecstasy searing through her veins had the tall redhead bucking and shaking violently. Her voice scaling up in shrieks of shattering pleasure.

Ygritte urged her on “Cum Baby, cum hard on my fingers … yes yes! I can feel your hot cunt gripping my fingers so hot and wet. Cum for me baby! Scream out your pleasure.” The Wildling grunting as she ram fucked her wife’s hot gushing couchie. Jon watched Ygritte lean into Melisandre to harpoon fuck her wife’s cunt tight squeezing on the finger banging Melisandre’s love box.

Melisandre wailed and convulsed as Ygritte worked her magic on her wife. A second orgasm now exploded out of the tall woman’s spasming cunt rocking her body and making her whole body convulse violently. Her body snapping forward and back in uncontrollably throes of blistering bliss.

They were riding alone. Another party was following three hours back. They preferred to ride alone. The Queen had mercenary companies and Dothrak light cavalry thick here. They would appear on the horizon and then disappear. They were being watched and warded as all travelers were this close to the Wall. Jon enjoyed their being protected. It was nice to let one’s guard down. The forces of the Queen watching but keeping a distance honoring the privacy of the riders on the King’s Road.

His thoughts went back to the Queen. Yes he was peeved with her desires to give him orders about his command. He had learned to keep his feelings to himself on this matter. To speak his thoughts caused discord and rancor. Why rile the nest when there was no need he had concluded after again riling his wives with his concerns that Daenerys was overstepping her bounds with the Night’s Watch.

It rankled him that Westeros had ignored the Wall and the Night’s Watch for thousands of years and let the command wither and nearly die out. He knew that Daenerys and his father were flooding in men and material. They were definitely undoing the centuries of neglect. For the first time in more than a millennium the Wall was fully restored and in pristine shape.

He remembered all the faded shields in the mess hall. Once the Crows had been honored. Then they had been forgotten and neglected. Now, at the last moment, they had once more been remembered. What would have happened if not for the conquering Queen coming to their aid? Jon did not want to contemplate that possible eventuality.

Jon thought it was merely the Night’s Watch just due. Making up for countless centuries of neglect. He felt it was the duty of Westeros to support the Crows who sacrificed so much to protect the unsuspecting South. Jon felt what every Lord Commander had felt for the last two thousand years.
Westeros was providing that support in the last effort.

There was only one problem with this support. Now the Queen was telling him how to run his Command. The Wall existed for a reason. He did not like the idea at all of not manning it. That was how it was designed to be used dammit! The coming conflict worried Jon like a thorn in a lion’s paw. The Queen had yet to truly visit the Wall as anything more than a waypoint between two destinations.

He was afraid to let the enemy get to the Wall unopposed. What magic could they use against the Wall if allowed to approach it unopposed and attack while not being attacked? It made no sense to Jon Snow. He did not like it one bit. It went against all of his military training. You used all the advantages you were given on the field of battle.

The Queen would have to convince him. Jon had decided to listen to her though. Daenerys Targaryen was the Queen of Westeros after all. Hell, she was Queen of well over half of the known world. The Queen was both a ruthless warrior and a cunning tactician. He knew he had to truly listen to her. He needed to have an open mind. Jon was a man who prided himself in not letting his ‘male ego’ cloud his judgement. He felt it yammering now. It just burned him up that his command was being challenged. In the dark corners of his heart he knew the fact that a petite woman was the one challenging him made him angrier.

He had decided he would not allow that to occur. He would suppress this immaturity he despised in other men. It angered Jon how inferior men attacked women because they were little men filled with no confidence. Men who compensated for smallness of heart and mind by terrorizing women. Those thoughts had stiffened Jon’s resolve to be a better man. If the Queen was right he needed to let her persuade him. He smiled wryly to himself. He was sure that Ygritte would tell him “You know nothing” in front of all and Melisandre would say softly “I think she is right husband.”

Jon knew when both of his wives weighed in against him he was almost certainly in the wrong. He valued his wives insight. Ygritte’s passion allowed her to cut through the detritus of specious arguments. Melisandre’s cool intellect would look at the arguments from all angles and then deduce the right answer. When they both reached the same conclusion from different angles then Jon knew that was the right answer.

He just had to make sure that his male ego did not get in the way. His father seemed to always have his in check and he wondered how he did it. That was yet one more reason why Jon Snow worshiped the ground the father of his heart walked on. Jon knew that Eddard Stark had faults. He had just never seen them manifest themselves. His father always listened to all equally. His father controlled his ‘male ego’ at all times.

Jon did suppose his father withholding the truth of his heritage and perpetuating that lie for twenty was a pretty big flaw. Yes, all men came up short at one time or another.

Fortunately for Jon, Ygritte had come into his life. Jon would feel his own ego starting to roar and then Ygritte would cut him down to size yet again. He was happy she was so aggressive about it. It kept him in check.

Yes he would listen to the Queen and let her persuade him if her arguments were good.

He felt Ygritte riding up behind him and now she was beside him smiling sweetly. He eyed her warily. His wife with the head of fiery hair was always up to no good. Jon eyed Ygritte’s awful supposed innocent look on her face. Yup. Ygritte was up to her no good ways that in were actually quite good. Good if you liked sweet fucks and perversion.
His diminutive wife brought up her right hand. Her fingers glistening with Melisandre’s cum that liberally soaked the digits. Slowly, Ygritte brought the fingers up to her mouth. All the while she had locked eyes with her husband. With slow sensuality Ygritte pushed her fingers through her lips and slowly ran her fingers up and down her tongue while she sucked on the digits.

Jon could only moan at the hot sight. He had to at least make the effort at decency and decorum. “Ygritte” he husked aggrieved. “Can’t you control your slutty desires for at least a day?”

The Wilding pulled her fingers from her mouth. “Ppphhffttttt!” was her cheeky response before sliding her fingers back into her mouth and resuming sucking Melisandre’s creamy sweet cum off them. Ygritte made a show of finishing the cleaning of Melisandre’s cum from her fingers. Then she pulled them very slowly from her mouth. The smiled naughtily at her husband. “Most tasty. In answer to your question I have two answers. First: You know nothing. Second: Nope!” with a shit eating grin on her face.

Jon rolled his eyes in resignation. He had tried he reasoned with himself. He watched Ygritte. Jon warily waiting for her next move. With Ygritte there was always a next move when she was in heat.

She hummed leaning over. He watched her hands reaching for the laces of his trousers. Ygritte smiled saucily up at Jon. Then she was undoing them to his trouser jerking the fly open. He sighed dramatically several times. He had to put on the show. It was required. It made Ygritte feel scandalous which she craved.

“Stop huffing and puffing damnit!” Ygritte groused. “You love it and I know it. You damn Starks and that straight laced formality. I will have you know both of your eldest sisters are total lesbian sluts now. Sansa and Margaery are heading for a polyamours marriage with eight other women and that is not counting all the women they will be seducing and bringing to their shared bed. It will be glorious” Ygritte said dreamily.

“So stop your fucking bitching damnit and perform your husbandly duties. I have needs you know!” Ygritte crowed. Jon was beyond turned on by what Sansa had become. He had no desire to lie with her but gods that would be hot to watch! The old gods knew that Ygritte and Melisandre were hoping to get an eyeful somehow.

As Ygritte had made her pronouncements her eyes had been on her task. A look of thoughtful introspection crossed her face “You know Jon Snow. You are a slut too. Banging two wives in all our holes almost every night. Stop pretending you are something you are not!” Ygritte told Jon glancing up at him with a triumphant look. His sun kissed wife chuckled. She had won. Jon smiled looking at the freckles on her nose and cheek. They made her look so beautiful to Jon.

His trousers were loosened now and she jerked his fly open and pulled out his now painfully erect cock. “Yip! Total slut!” Ygritte snarked pumping his long thick shaft pulling his foreskin up and down his shaft. Her hand squeezed his shaft and her hand rose up to fist just his dickhead in a circular motion her palm compressing over his throbbing cockhead and then pumping his upper shaft before she again fistied his dickhead rolling his foreskin up over his bulbous dickhead before pumping the sliding hot skin wet with precum down his shaft again.

Jon could not stop his moans of pleasure. It was hot watching Ygritte pump his dick and the hot look of lust on her face made his cock jerk and throb with need.

He had not noticed Melisandre riding up on his other side close. He had been outflanked Jon thought. She smiled at Jon with an evil leer. Her greater height gave her an air of intimidation Jon noted to himself. Ygritte did all the talking. Melisandre acted. He watched her head slowly lowering to his shaft. Ygritte was still pumping his cock but had moved her hand to the base of his towering thick shaft. Her fists making tight short jerks on his thick veined shaft.

Melisandre’s head lowered with her long deep red hair flaring around her head like an oriflamme. She swallowed his bulbous dickhead slowly. Jon threw his head back groaning hard feeling Melisandre’s lush lips locking on his dickhead and twisting back and forth her mouth sucking hard. Her head then slowly worked down his shaft with locked lips. She sucked and twisted her head on Jon’s glans her head sucking up and down his glans and dickhead filling the Lord Commander with shuddering pulses of ecstasy.

Her mouth glued to his dick Melisandre began to suck wetly on his thick prick sliding the shaft up her tongue so his mushroom dickhead jammed the back of her throat. Slowly the ShadowBender witch increased the pace of her head rising and falling on his prick. Jon groaned deep in his chest feeling Melisandre’s mouth suck voraciously on the dick sliding up and down her tongue. Her head bobbing up and down as she paused to lick his dickhead on the up stroke and sucked voraciously.

The horses moving slowly down the King’s Road while their riders fucked. Jon had to admit this was all so fucking hot!

Ygritte had removed her hand since Melisandre was sucking up and down on Jon’s now wet shaft. Her mouth letting bubbly spit drool out to lubricate his cock.

“Yesssss! Gods you two are so beautiful together!” Ygritte husked. Her blue-grey eyes dark with her blown pupils. Ygritte had leaned down looking up close at her wife sucking wetly on Jon’s cock. Melisandre’s mouth making obscene wet sucking and slurping noises. Melisandre now spinning her head on Jon’s dickhead sucking with deep cheek hollowing sucks. Her head lifting enough to let her lick her tongue all over his bulbous cockhead and glans with her slithering tongue.

Melisandre was in heaven being fucked rough. She loved it Jon could see by the slutty look on his tall wife’s face. Jon then slowed his jerking of her head and slow rode her mouth up and down his dick. “Suck my dick you fucking slut! Suck it hard you fucking whore!” Jon spoke the words because Melisandre and Ygritte craved them.

“Ummmmnggg! Mmmmmnggg!” Melisandre happily hummed in her gullet her head twisting as she sucked with all her love for her man. Her lips literally glued to Jon’s cock as she sucked like a famished succubus. Jon groaned deep in his chest again and again feeling his cock expertly sucked with fuck hunger. One might think Melisandre was a cold fish in bed with her reserved demeanor when in public but she was just as depraved as the fiery outspoken Ygritte when it came to sex between the three of them.

Jon removed his hand from Melisandre’s head. He enjoyed her hot head and wanted to let her guide her actions at this moment.
Melisandre sucked hotly. She plopped her mouth off Jon’s cock wetly. She kept her head just over his bulbous cockhead. Her tongue came out like a snake’s and flicked all over Jon’s cock with fast tongue swipes. She then lathed his cock crown with her slithering tongue rasping all over the pink bulbous dickhead. Around and around Melisandre worked her tongue all over Jon’s cockhead and bowing her head down to give it fierce short suck kisses on just the upper half of his mushroom cockhead. Jon’s body jolting with ecstasy that his wife’s mouth gave his dick.

She then sucked her lips up and down his dickhead with a slow head bob. Melisandre began to work her head in an undulation motion to work Jon’s cock around on her tongue as she continued bobbing on his prick. She sucked with a voracious suck before she lifted her head again to let her tongue swirl over his dickhead now slithering all over it and giving it wet slurp kisses.

All the while Jon moaned hard with the pleasure his wife gave him with her wet head. Then her lips glued to Jon’s bulbous dickhead. Her lips locking underneath his cock crown and sucking voraciously while she twisted her head up Jon’s cockhead slowly. Her head popping off with wet jerks. She immediately dove back down on Jon’s cock and again worked his dickhead and sensitive glans. Melisandre’s head jerked off his cock again and again after giving Jon’s dickhead hot twisting sucks.

Jon loved how his wives gave him head. They were always so forceful in their sucking him off. They gave their all whenever they fucked. It turned Jon on no end seeing Melisandre all twisted down on her horse to give him hot sloppy head. Her hair flagged down around her head jerking and swaying with her head bobs. Jon did not feel guilty in thinking how slutty Melisandre looked giving him head like this.

It was beautiful. Jon knew he and Melisandre had come a long way under Ygritte’s tutelage. Both had been uptight and repressed when Ygritte came to them. Ygritte had liberated both of them and they were both grateful for it.

Melisandre again pumped her head furiously up and down Jon’s cock. He felt his control begin to slip when Melisandre sucked off his dick. He groaned in frustration. He was about to jam her mouth back down on his throbbing prick when he felt Melisandre grip his cock tight and titled his jerking shaft towards Ygritte. The Wildling had been watching the entire fellatio session up close enjoying the show with intense glittering eyes.

Melisandre now had Jon’s cockhead in front of Ygritte’s lips. Ygritte leaned in and down the last inch. She hungrily swallowed her husband’s cockhead and twirled her head twisting her lips around his septa helmet. She bobbed hard up and down his upper shaft for a minute before then rising up and tongue licking his dickhead like a hungry cat. Ygritte mewled and moaned swirling her tongue all over Jon’s prick before swallowing it again and slow bobbing with long ragged love sucks.

Jon moaned and now used both hands to grip Ygritte’s head and slammed her up and down his dick. Ygritte gripped his thighs to anchor her head so Jon could ram his dick in and out her mouth. Ygritte choked and moaned as she loved being controlled while sucking her man off. Jon worked her mouth down his thick shaft. His cock slipped into the top of her throat bugling her neck underneath her ears. Melisandre was leaning down like Ygritte before watching her touched by the sun wife give their husband sloppy head. Jon pumped his dick into his wife’s throat.

Wet sounds of sucking was loud in the quiet air. Slurps and gurgling noises flowed out of Ygritte’s throat. Then the slut opened her mouth and the sounds were amplified. The tenor as the sounds of Jon’s cock ramming her throat were now easily heard. “Hurrkk aauurrkk hhrrkkk aawwookkk aawwkkk hhrrggnn hhuurkkk” Ygritte’s throat made sweet lewd sound with Jon’s cock riding fast up and down her tongue and ramming the back of her throat. Spittle roping out Ygritte’s mouth and drooling down her chin and cheeks and dripping off her face.

Jon now slowed the fiery redhead’s bobs with his fist in her hair.  Ygritte easily complied moaning at Jon controlling her for his wants and needs.  Now Jon put a hand on the back of Ygritte’s head and slowly rode his dick down Ygritte’s throat.  Her neck bulging out as his dick slide down her throat till her nose was near his thighs.  He pumped his hips fucking his wife’s throat.  Ygritte clenching Jon’s thighs to anchor her body in position.

Jon now pulled his dick out of Ygritte’s throat.  He clenched her hair and started to again fast pump Ygritte’s head up and down the dick sliding forcefully along her long pink tongue.  His prick slamming into the back of her throat with repeated forceful jabs.  Her head jolting with the force of impact.  Ygritte opened her mouth so she made more obscene choking noises as spit drooled and splattered out her mouth as she was skull fucked.  Her hands still gripped Jon’s thighs to keep her head anchored down so Jon could ram fuck her mouth and throat.

“Oh gods Ygritte that is so fucking hot!” Melisandre husked hotly watching Jon’s cock slamming into Ygritte’s throat and the spit copiously flowing out her half opened mouth.

Jon could not believe he, Ygritte, Melisandre were fucking on the King’s Road for all to see who might be near.  Now Ygritte rose up and tilted his throbbing cock over so his tall beautiful wife could swallow his thick shaft.  Melisandre swallowed his cock and started to give it wet hard sucks.  Her lips glued to his dick.  Melisandre moaned and gurgled sucking hotly on Jon’s cock.

His wives were taking turns going down on him sucking hungrily.  They would sense his control slipping.  The wife giving him head would suck off his cock and tilt his dick to the other side so the wife that had been watching up close could now give Jon hot head.  The pause in switching off between the women giving Jon an opportunity to regain control.  The wife that had been sucking on Jon’s cock now pumping the shaft all slicked with slobbery spit for a minute.  Only then would the other wife suck in Jon’s dick and resume giving him hot head.  The small breaks letting Jon concentrate to get his control back.  Jon was enjoying his dick being sucked with a happy slutty smile on his face.

He could not believe that he was letting his wives do this to him in the open.  He had been so staid and uptight before they came into his life.  Jon knew his father would be dying from it if Catelyn was going down on him while riding down the King’s Road.

In fact a small wagon train filled with dragon glass passed them by.  The drivers snorting and whooping at the sight.  “Lucky dog!” “Ho Ho give him head Ho!” were called out along with other catcalls.  Jon smiled weakly back.  He was flushed with embarrassment but was not about to stop the divine head he was receiving by his two redheaded wives.  Both of his wives bent down and titling his cock back and forth hungrily sucking on it.  The two women enjoying giving the strange men a hot show.  Jon had his hood up and his silver hair and purple eyes were hidden so the drivers did not think too much of it beside the hot show.

There were no brigands on the King’s Road with all the manpower under his father and Queen’s rule patrolling up and down the road’s flanks.  He had nothing to fear.  As the wagon train passed them by and went up the road he still heard the men whooping and going on about what they had just witnessed.  Having given the men a show and being an exhibitionist had thrilled Jon and his two redheaded wives.  Melisandre sucked fiercely on Jon’s cock while Ygritte urged her on.

“Suck hard Mel … suck his dick and make it cum hard in your mouth!  Make Jon wail from it baby!” Ygritte spoke hotly to Melisandre.

Jon felt his balls tightening and Melisandre felt the tension and pumped her head up and down on just his dickhead and sucked with all her pure love. Her lips glued to his dickhead sucked fiercely just on his cock crown. Her mouth sucking and stretching his crown just that little fraction. Her cheeks hollowing deeply with her long ragged deep throat love sucks. Ygritte had somehow wormed her right hand into Jon’s trousers and was massaging his nutsack rolling his testicles in her hand. Their spit had soaked Jon’s nutsack and had his balls rolling easily around in her hand. She squeezed gently while Melisandre sucked like a starving lamprey on Jon’s mushroom dickhead.

Jon started to shake violently as his head ripped back. Jon screamed feeling hot semen jetting up his thick long cock. Melisandre sucked and rotated her head as she still bobbed her deep red hair flouncing with her head jerks. She moaned hard feeling Jon’s semen blast hard into the back of her throat. She half choked on his hard spurts. Some spewed out her parted lips from her chokes, but she was able to keep much of his semen in her mouth. Jon’s body bucked as fiery ecstasy filled his shaft as each hot bolt of cum spurted out his piss hole. He had to fight his body to not topple off his horse as his body convulsed with each spasm of his fierce orgasm.

Melisandre kept sucking till all of Jon’s semen had spurted out his piss hole emptying his nutsack. Only then did Melisandre rise up from her task. Her face sultry looking her lips closed. A tired but happy Jon watched Melisandre rise up. Then the tall witched leaned over and locked lips with Ygritte. Their hands came up to cup the back of each other’s head with fingers threaded in long flowing red locks. Their working cheeks showed Jon’s semen being worked back and forth in their mouths and slowly being swallowed.

Jon loved it. He loved watching his wives being hot and slutty.

Soon he was left to tie his strings backup tight to his trousers. His wives smiled at him smugly. Yes, Ygritte was a wonderful bad influence on himself and Melisandre Jon thought again. She was such a force of nature and made both of her spouses loosen up and enjoy life and good hot sex.

Jon was more relaxed as they rode down the King’s Road. He had a happy loopy smile face on his face. Great sex would make a man feel good. Slowly though, his thoughts turned more maudlin thinking of his future. His betrayal by the Crows was always wearing away at him like a millstone. He would be happy to be done with his command and disappear into the Sand Hills. He did not truly hide his identity but he knew people would come to him trying to get him to ‘assume his true destiny. He totally rejected them. He had seen what his future would be if he remained among men.

He would forever be a Stark. He was raised a Stark. He would never be a Targaryen.

He kept his true looks under cover most of the time now. He had become a little maniacal in keeping his hair and eyes hidden. It was not the stares and long stares that bothered him. He could smile at that. People of obvious Valyrian descent were not common. A person who looked of pure lineage was much rarer still. He could understand those looks. It was the whispers that caused him pause. Slowly word was spreading he was the son of Rhaegar Targaryen and Lyanna Stark. People who were sharp of mind and could think outside the box put two and two together.

He was the right age and Eddard Stark the stiff prig would never have cheated on his wife. The man doesn’t even know how to think the thought. Of course Jon was Rhaegar’s son. It had taken them nearly twenty years to realize this but they were starting to now. Having the living representation of Rhaegar walking beside you helped in making those deductions.

Jon understood why his father had lied about his lineage. It had made his life miserable with how Catelyn Stark had treated him. He understood mostly why she had acted like she did. She was like her husband. Duty before all else. She had performed her duty without question when his uncle Brandon had been killed and she did not speak a word of protest when she had to marry Eddard Stark. It must have been hard for her to have to marry Eddard Stark.
She had gotten to know Bandon. From what Jon had heard, Brandon was charismatic, charming and very pleasing to the eye. He was good looking, knew it, and acted accordingly. Then he up and was killed. Eddard stepped in and he was nothing like Brandon. That had to be hard on Catelyn Tully. Despite all that she had not hesitated to perform her duty. She married a man she did know. A man who was not charismatic and only had a rough hewn good look.

Jon had to admire that in Catelyn.

She had done her duty and laid with a man she did not know and conceived Robb. Then her new husband came home with a bastard. In some ways Jon was surprised she could ever come to love his father with her ramrod sense of duty and honor. He could see her point of view better now after his betrayal by his Command. To think you understand how you relate to somebody or something and then be betrayed by it. That was tough.

He had heard she had softened. He hoped to find out that himself one day. He knew he had softened in his views of Catelyn Stark.

With his lineage coming into public knowledge he heard the whispers. Would he want the Iron Throne? His lineage was more direct. He was Rhaegar’s son. The Iron Throne should be his. He was a man too. Daenerys Targaryen was a woman. Males took precedent. Hadn’t it always been so.

He had told those he heard directly from that no, Daenerys Targaryen, was the true heir to the throne. He may look like a Targaryen but he was Stark deep down to the marrow of his bones. He obviously had Valyrian blood in his veins but his blood did not run lilac but steel grey. He wanted no part of the Iron Throne. He once only wanted to be Lord Commander of the Night’s Watch. That had been slain by his fellow Crows.

Now Jon just wanted to finish his duty and disappear into the wastes of the Sand Hills. He wanted to live a simple life with his two wives. He would like communing with nature. Nature was primal and true. Nature did not play games and try to hide what it was not. He could trust nature. There were simply too few people like his father.

Ygritte was chirping constantly now about the home she wanted to make. They would find a small blind canyon with a thick corpse of trees filling it. They would go to the rear of the canyon and bore into the sandy hill and make rooms. Melisandre wanted to bend the trees to make rooms up in the branches of the trees and spend the warm nights up in the breeze and beneath the stars. She wanted to make love beneath the moon.

Jon had to smile at that. Melisandre had the touch of the romantic to her.

Jon wanted to just disappear and let all who thought he should be on the Iron Throne look for him but never find the missing man who would not be king. He wanted no part of the Iron Throne and the Game of Thrones that came with it.

He wanted to disappear before the whispers rose up to a cacophony of supposed plots and aspirations. He did not desire to force Daenerys Targaryen to have to wonder about all the rumors sure to rise. If one hears lies long enough they start to take on the ring of truth. The Queen would be forced to wonder about all the rumors concerning Jon Snow the son of Rhaegar.

Jon Snow would make sure it would never get to that stage. He would disappear soon after the war.

He did long so see his father, Robb, Sansa and Theon. He missed them. But the person he wanted to see the most was his sweet sister Arya. His father and brother had always treated him well and Sansa did as much as she could wilting underneath her mother’s withering gaze. It had been Arya, though, who fought her mother fiercely to love Jon as not the bastard but as the full brother of her heart. He would always cherish the now young woman because of it.

He could not wait to show her his silver hair and lilac eyes. He smiled. She always had a thing for all things Targaryen. She would have a love towards him but he was now in many ways the mirror reflection of the Queen she so loved. He smiled thinking of her reaction to his new look. He looked forward to getting over on Arya. To know something was completely different than experiencing it.

He had heard enough times now that he had the caste of Rhaegar and, thus, Targaryens in his visage now. He must look at least a little like her love the Queen. That ought to confuse the hell out his little wolf sister. It would be amusing to see her consternation. She had even as a child been enamored with the Targaryen sisters. Arya always wanting to hear again of the warrior wives of Aegon.

Jon shook his head. To think his little fiery sister had seduced and bedded the last true pure blooded Targaryen Heir. He figured the Queen never even knew what hit her. Well, he snickered, she had known what had hit her. He had heard the tale. Arya’s strong left fist had made quite the impression on the Queen. Who would have known the way to win the Queen’s heart was to try and knock her teeth out. And the Queen had nearly ripped his sister’s arm off. Yes it was true love at first sight.

He laughed out loud. His wives looked at him curiously. Jon never laughed out loud for no reason.

///////////

It was early the next morning. A thick mist filled the land. Jon loved the mist wafting onto his face and hair. With the land shrouded in fog he felt free to keep his cowl down. He tilted his head back and enjoyed the cool mist on his face. He could smell the wood and coal that had been used to keep domiciles warm the previous night. The smell would always make him think of his ancestral home of Winterfell.

Ghost was still beside his horse. The great direwolf head up near the base of the horse’s neck. The horse had long ago come to accept Jon’s wolf. Last night the Direwolf came to their camp soon after they had arrived at the spot. The wolf had sat down on its haunches and looked around silently. The Direwolf’s gaze steady and unknowable. Ghost partaking of the beef jerky thrown his way lying down to chew on the long strips happily.

The horses nickered softly. The horses were a little tired but their riders were not pushing them to hard. The horses hobbled and eating from the grain bags that had been put around their necks. Their tails whisking back and forth in contentment. Jon had curried the horses’ coats and removed any rocks from their hooves. He liked the routine and caring for the animals that so faithfully served their masters. Jon found comfort in performing routines of the hearth and giving care to horses. It did not bother his sense of manhood. He shook his head thinking of men and their fragile egos.

They had ridden till midnight bypassing the Queen’s camp nearest the Wall. Jon had wanted to press on so they would arrive early at the next camp the Queen would be reaching on the morrow. He wanted to arrive first and rest waiting for her arrival. He knew the Queen had positioned the camps far enough apart to allow for a full days march. He wanted to be refreshed when he met the Queen.

He was not looking for an advantage per se. He just wanted to make sure that he was meeting the Queen on a level field. He wanted to be well rested to be able to discern the proper path to take. If one was tired it was much easier to make poor decisions and let ones insecurities get the best of them. Jon did not want that to occur.
He was getting excited. He would be seeing so many of his family. He was most excited that he would be reunited with Arya. He had remembered last night the times they had sat together to talk and dream of what might be with his precious sister. He would ruffle her hair. It was easy to bond with Arya. She loved him true and he, thus, loved her true in return. He wondered if she still had needle. It would be nice if she still did have it or maybe she had felt it was a sword for child. Maybe the sword he had crafted for his sister was moldering forgotten in some lost field or abandon building. More likely left behind forgotten in Winterfell. His little wolf sister had grown up. She was a woman with a woman’s appetites. Those appetites had captured her the Queen of Westeros.

Ygritte was happy and bumping into Melisandre. Melisandre was grousing but had a smile on her face. They were both happy and worn out this morning Jon mused. They had found a small stand of tree and brambles covering a bed of moss. His witch wives used their shadows to push the brambles back and erected their magical damping field. No light or sound would leave their little covey.

As they finished their work the white silent wolf came up to the brambles and curled up in front of it. Jon and his wives would have their guard at the doorstep to their small bivouac. The horses left hobbled slept peacefully. They were fed and watered. The horses had grown to know that the great white Direwolf would protect them.

Jon always felt a rush passing through the glamour that his wives erected. The feel of ants crawling all over his body. Little black sparkles erupting up and down his body and before his vision and then he would be through the magical veil. It was always warm and pleasant inside his wives invisibility spell. Jon could look up and see the moon and stars but all light was bent around the spell and was unseen.

They put their furs down. The furs piled up to form a nest. Jon still felt randy from his blowjob during the day. He eyed his wives. He felt his libido raging. He barked at his wives that he was going to fuck them bowlegged. The two women’s breathing hitched hearing their husband barking at them. Like many strong personalities the two powerful ShadowBender switches felt their knees going weak at the commanding tone. Jon was normally sweet and docile so when he showed this side of his personality it made his wives wet and horny for some nice commanding sex from their husband.

He roughly stripped his wives of their dresses and their silks. His hands jerked their docile bodies around. It still amused Jon how Ygritte could go from fiery spitfire to submissive slut when he or Melisandre went into top mode. Almost in the blink of an eye. She looked at him with docile limpid eyes waiting to be taken hard. He ripped a few buttons off but he would sow them back on later. He liked doing fabric repairs. He was used to maintaining his Crow attire and had happily mended his wives clothes. Jon had to admit it was an immense turn on seeing his wives all doe like before him waiting to submit to his manly desires and needs.

They were now naked before him. Their bodies visibly shaking with lust. Their nipples were engorged and their pussies sopping wet. Their labia lips and clitoral hoods swollen and shiny with fuck juice. Their breathing was shaky and shallow their pupils blown with lust. He smirked to himself. He had not known he had such a domineering side to his personality till his wives teased it out of hiding. He had to admit it was hot to control and ‘fuck over’ his wives. The craved and lapped it up.

He gripped them roughly by their arms and jammed them down to the furs. They looked up at him with slit slut eyes. Their bodies shaking harder now with raw lust. He barked at them to remove his trousers, socks and boots. They complied with shaky hands and constant looks up at him. With them down on their knees taking his boots, socks and trousers off. Jon ripped his top layers of clothes off staring down at this wives. He now stood before them totally nude.
He called them sluts and whores. He again shivered and smiled to himself seeing these powerful women submitting to him and loving it. They loved it when he talked rough and dirty to them. His long thick shaft jerked before his body. His uncircumcised cock rock hard. His foreskin covering almost all of his bulbous pink septa helmet. He loved how his wives stared hungrily at his thick veined shaft. Their eyes following his jerking prick before his groin.

They were powerful women but craved being dominated. He knew some of his Crows went to the whores of Mole’s Town for some rough treatment. The men craven the whip and the humiliation the women were most happy to put them through. He himself did not crave it. He did not like being led and controlled in sex. He did not get turned by being submissive and a bottom bitch.

He stared down at his wives with lilac eyes. He gripped the base of his cock. He jerked his shaft up and down menacingly. The two redheaded women moaned looking up at him submissively. He smiled evilly down at his wives. He whipped them both across their faces with his heavy thick cock. The impact of flesh on flesh loud in the glamour of the witches spell. The women groaning feeling the humiliation of Jon’s cock whiplashing across their noses, foreheads, cheeks and lips. The impact sharp. Jon’s cock jerking with the impact of dick on face. Jon whipped their faces using his cock as a truncheon moving his hips to slash his cock across both women’s faces back and forth. Jon was turned on big time hearing his wives gasp and moan as his dick slashed over their faces. The impact making them wince and gurgle. Not once did the women try to turn their faces away but instead kept their faces up tilted so their husband could continue to dick whip their slutty faces. Jon loved the feel of impact and seeing the red marks his dick left on his wives’ faces. The way his cock rebounded with the sharp harsh impact on their faces.

Soon his wives faces were crisscrossed with red marks from where his cock slashed over their facial features. They both moaned and kept their faces upturned eyelids fluttered closed. The sound of impact shockingly loud in their glamour. Melisandre gave soft caws and groans while Ygritte whimpered, growled and cawed with each strike of her husband’s prick down over her nose and cheeks.

Both women clearly showing how they loved the rough treatment. Then Jon barked at them to suck him off again. He shoved his cock into Melisandre’s mouth. She sucked hungrily her head bobbing hard up and down the thick veined shaft. She gripped Jon’s muscular thighs to anchor her body as she bobbed hard. Then Jon’s jammed his cock into the tall auburn haired woman’s cheek. He roughly dragged his cockhead down to the corner of her mouth and jacked it out her mouth sending saliva flinging. He shoved his dick back into her mouth repeatedly. He bulged out her cheek like an obscene mushroom seeking the sky. He slowly dragged his cock down Melisandre’s cheek and out her mouth. His dick jacking hard when it was forcefully pulled out the corner of her mouth. He did this again and again showing his slut who was in control. Melisandre moaning deep in her chest. Her dark red eyes pulsing as they looked up at him with hot fuck hunger. Her eyes and body language urging Jon on in his love abuse.

Jon then fed Ygritte his cock and she growled sucking feverishly on his eleven inch shaft. Her head twisting on Jon’s bulbous dickhead before bobbing hard again. Her hand reached around to grip Jon’s taunt ass cheeks. Jon rammed his cock into Ygritte’s throat. Then he slowed his hips thrusts and slowly rode his cock into and down Ygritte’s throat. His dick bulging out her throat showing his dickhead riding down her gullet till his cockhead was past her Adam’s apple and Ygritte’s nose pressed into his stomach. Then she rode back up his dick and chocked out mouthfuls of spit gasping for breath when his dick slipped out her mouth.
Jon let Ygritte get her breath back with heavy heaving gasps and then slowly rode his cock down Ygritte’s gullet. The fiery redhead gripped Jon’s ass cheeks hard as her throat bulged out with the thick cock sliding down her gullet. He jammed Ygritte’s face into his stomach repeatedly roughly loving how Ygritte’s fingers clawed his ass. Spittle pouring out the corners of her mouth. Only when Ygritte’s body began to jerk and she choked did he pull his dick back up her throat.

His dick slipped free as Ygritte bent over heaving for breath. She drooled out rivers of spit and gasped for breath. She then lowered her head and tilted it over and sucked in one of Jon’s heavy testicles and slurped it around in her mouth. She drooled it out and sucked in his other heavy nut and slobbered over it in her mouth. She went back and forth rolling Jon’s heavy balls around in her mouth before licking up his cock and bending her head over and sucked his cockhead back into her mouth and rotated her head on it sucking voraciously.

Jon groaned hard feeling the suction on his cock. Melisandre had scooted near watching the hot oral action. She reached in and fondled Jon’s heavy nutsack rolling his balls in her hand. She smiled up at Jon while her wife’s head bobbed hard sucking fiercely on the thick shaft riding up and down her tongue. For another minute Ygritte sucked hard on Jon’s cock before pulling off. She tilted the spit slimed shaft over to Melisandre.

Then Melisandre took over. First the tall voluptuous witch bobbed equally hard on Jon’s cock sucking with cheek hollowing deep throat love sucks her head slow riding up and down Jon’s dick but slowly increasing the speed and force of her bobbing.

Then she slowed again. Now the auburn headed woman did deep throat on Jon’s dick. Jon loved seeing his dick sliding down his wives’ throats. First seeing Melisandre’s throat bugle out around her ears and then her gullet stretched out with the thick cock sliding down her gullet. Down Melisandre worked her head till her nose was jammed into Jon’s belly. Her throat all bulged out around the dick down her gullet. Her throat now in a bulged half circle showing Jon’s dick down her throat.

Jon gripped the back of Melisandre’s head and flexed his hips pounding his dickhead up and down Melisandre’s throat. His bulbous dickhead jacking deep down Melisandre’s throat as Jon fucked her throat. She gripped Jon’s muscled thighs to hold herself in place. She chuffed as her throat was fucked hard. Then Jon pulled out of Melisandre’s mouth and fed his cock to Ygritte.

Ygritte started to suck with fuck hunger as her wife gasped for breath. Rivers of bubbly spit drooling out Melisandre’s mouth soaking her tits and belly with fresh spittle. They took turns deep throating Jon. Finally, Jon howled as Ygritte gripped Jon’s hips and worked his dick down her throat and bobbed with his dickhead riding up and down her windpipe near her clavicles.

Jon screamed feeling hot spunk broiling up his shaft and then spurting hard out his pisshole with his dick buried down Ygritte’s throat. Again and again his body bucked while his cock spurted his cum down Ygritte’s throat. Jon loved the pressure of Ygritte’s throat on his cock as he convulsed and continued screaming feeling each heavenly spurt of his dick and the ecstasy it gave him.

Jon reveled in his hard cum. He looked down at his wives. Ygritte slowly pulled up his still hard shaft. They snogged fiercely sharing his spunk with tongues flipping between mouths. They had finished drinking down his copious discharge. They were again looking up at him docilely waiting to be used by their husband. Jon gripped their shoulders and threw them down on the furs. The breath whooshing out their lung when they hit the furs.

Jon fell to his knees first and then down onto his stomach. He buried his face in Ygritte’s muffin and started to feast on sloppy wet gash. His mouth making obscene wet slurping noises as he devoured wet trim. Jon was not a man who ate pussy just to get the woman wet for his manhood. He genuinely loved eating pussy. He loved the taste and the wet heat that engulfed his mouth. He loved to spend happy hours eating hot wet pussy. He totally got into eating his wives out. He was soon on his knees and forearms leaned down so he could really mash his face down into Ygritte’s camel toe.

He had watched his wives suck each other off so many times now. It was true art watching them suck each other off. They ate pussy wildly of course but sometimes it was like watching great artists at work with how they made love to each other’s pussies.

Jon knew he was a natural pussy gobbler but he preferred the straight ahead devouring of a pussy like a starving lion. He groaned and grunted sucking, stretching, slurping, tongue fucking fuck holes and clit and sucking in mouthfuls of cunt meat and munching on happily while he pumped his head up stretching out Ygritte’s trim. He loved to aggressively lick his tongue over his sluts’ cunts and clits. Being aggressive and sucking in Ygritte’s clit deep and giving it harsh long ragged vicious love sucks. Ygritte yelping and moaning deep in her chest.

He soon had Ygritte wailing as her body flipped and jackknifed violently. He had loved how Ygritte growled and gripped his head with both hands and used his face like a fuck post. Her flowing cunt riding roughly up and down over his mouth as he tongue lashed and sucked on sweet cunt meat. He drank down the sweet slimy effluent of Ygritte’s cunt. Her cum tasted like ambrosia to Jon. Ygritte screams reached a crescendo and her body went limp as mini convulsions ripped through her small body.

Jon needed more sweet slimy snail snot. He rolled between Melisandre’s legs. She was up on her elbows looking down at Jon with a sultry look. Jon wasted no time lowering his mouth to her fat pussy. He started to devour her clamshell with equal gusto. His mouth sucking voraciously while his tongue gigged and slapped his wife’s rigid clit. He first buried his face in deep sucking hard and then lifted his head so his tongue had full motion to lick over the tall voluptuous woman’s cunt. His tongue loving the feel of her jutting clit underneath his rasping and stabbing tongue.

Jon loved the differences in his wives clits. Melisandre had a fat grape sized clit that bulged out its clitoral hood and would rise up out of its nest like a sweet orchid half bloomed out. All shiny and glistening. The sweet grape so sweet as he rolled it in his mouth. Ygritte’s clit was a sweet slender nubbin that he would have to work a little to tease out its hood. Seeing the tip all jutted out and shiny begging to be sucked. He loved pulling back the folds of his Ygritte’s clitoral hood to full expose her clit so his mouth could inhale and ingest the sweet nubbin.

He pushed Melisandre’s legs out with his elbows. He loved opening up his wives cunny for sweet devouring. Melisandre was more sanguine while Jon ate her out. She whinnied and mewled her pussy rotating up into Jon’s hot sucking mouth. Jon loved the wet heat enveloping his mouth with the intimate kiss of his wives cunts grinding up into his mouth. He groaned happily feeling her slimy trim. He loved feeling their clits on his tongue as he slapped and gigged them.

He would first lick Melisandre’s rigid clit fast and then slow. Then Jon sucked the bursting grape deep into his mouth and rolled it around with his tongue. His pink tongue stabbing and lathing the hard bud as Melisandre cried out in ecstasy.

Soon Melisandre was screaming humping up desperately into Jon’s devouring mouth. Jon loved how she bucked and heaved her cunt up into his mouth in her orgasms. Her back arching and her beautiful voluptuous body jolting with shockwaves of crushing bliss. Her full tits sloshing and jerking as her body gyrated in orgasms. Her flips and jackknifes making shockwaves ripple and fold her tits so hot on her sweaty chest.

Jon sucked them off again and again. Their nest smelled so rich and thick with pussy. He had added finger banging after he made them cum the first time. His wives now adding to their wife’s pleasure sucking on turgid nipples and ramming tongues down groaning throats. Jon loved drinking down the sweet mouthfuls of hot cum gushing out his wives exploding cunts.

His cock was rock hard again. Then he laid on his back and his wives took turns riding his cock to orgasm in their pussies and assholes. He gripped their hips to lunge his prick up balls deep into their hot tight pussies and clenching assholes. He loved how different they looked up over him. One so small and slender and the other so tall and voluptuous. Ygritte’s small tits whiplashing up and down on her chest so firm. Melisandre’s heavy full gourd shaped tits whipped off her chest and slapped down hard with wet smacks. It was cool to Jon how their hair darkened so when their manes became soaked in sweat.

He had the best of both worlds!

He had enjoyed their tight cunts fisting his cock and wildly spasming in orgasm. He love fucking them in the ass with them above him or doing them doggy. The wife he was fucking in the ass groaning and pounding her fist in the furs in pleasure. The other wife pulling his cock out their wife’s ass and sucking her shit juice off his prick and then shoving Jon’s dick back in her wife’s ass so Jon could pound it hard and deep. Again and again his wives did hot nasty ATM which turned on all three of them no end. He cummed hard in each of their hot assholes and groaned so hard when they cleaned their asses and jizm off his cock.

Now the next day they were all feeling refreshed and happy. They moved on pushing forward to their destinies. Jon reflected on what his father and Queen had accomplished.

Soon the full forces of Westeros and Essos would be at the Wall ready for war. The forces of the Queen and Eddard Stark trained up and ready for war. The forces arrived in such a manner that they were fresh and not worn down from the long march north. Sooner or later the Ice King would have to come south to fight. The forces of Man would be ready for them. When the Ice King did finally march south from the Fist of the First Men the forces of a united Westeros would annihilate the Ice King and his force. Jon now had the numbers and more importantly the weapons to fight and kill the enemy.

They arrived at the camp soon after noon. Ghost had appeared from the hazy distance and quickly ran up to Jon and his wives. The wolf easily looping beside the three riders. Ghost looked up at Jon with his intelligent red eyes. Jon knew his wolf too wanted to meet the enemy and rend them. The wolf of course moved forward with no sound. The easy pace did not tax the wolf at all.

They approached the camp. Jon smiled seeing the confusion and fear of those in the camp seeing the great wolf. Jon called Ghost to come close to his side. Ghost obeyed. Jon wanted all to see the wolf was with him.

He entered the camp and revealed his identity and told them that the Direwolf at his side was no threat and would be staying with him and his wives. The camp attendants quickly became used to the giant Direwolf when it made no threatening actions. The wolf walking near its masters his tongue hanging out as the wolf panted.

When the camp saw that he was Jon Snow the Lord Commander of the Crows he was given a royal tent. He thanked them profusely. He would be happy with a normal tent or sleeping under the stars but was thankful for his wives. Their glamour would keep them warm and dry but his wives preferred to not use and flaunt their magic in front of others. His wives knew and Jon had seen how magic made most people uneasy.

He had his cowl up. He did not any word whispered about his appearance. There was no need to stir up contemplation on what his appearance might mean or cause outright baseless gossip. It would not be fair to the Queen. In truth it would not be fair to himself. She would not care but he saw no need to start the whispers. He had long ago tired of the ceaseless speculation when he walked showing his lineage at Castle Black.

He knew that they would need to put this problem to bed in the near future. How to fight tradition and expectation he had no idea. He was a simple warrior. He could care less about his lineage and how he was in line to the Iron Throne. He remembered the tale that Maester Aemon Targaryen had told him. He would have none of it. He would let the Queen worry about that matters of ascension to the Iron Throne. She was adept and adroit at the Game of Thrones. She would find a solution. She always seemed to find the answers to any problems that came before her.

He would help her like a ghost disappearing as a mirage over the horizon. He wanted no part of any throne. He had first thought of going to the Frost Fangs but he was coming around to wanting to live in the Sand Hills. He would still be near his ancestral home and yet far away from man. He had seen this land before and longed to return to it. His wives made it sound magical. Maybe it was.

He and his wives went into the tent with Ghost scooting in behind them. Ygritte whooped seeing the low bed pilled with furs and pillows. Ghost went over to the braziers and their glowing red embers. Jon and Melisandre put furs and thick blankets down on the ground before the fire. Ghost watched them intently as they worked. Ygritte was bouncing on the bed stroking the furs on the bed. The great wolf circled around on the furs before the braziers. The wolf using its paws to pat down the fur to make its bed. The Direwolf inspecting its work silently. Satisfied the great white wolf plopped down and curled up putting his muzzle on his paws before the brazier. The wolf taking advantage of the warmth instantly fell asleep. Ghost sensed he was safe in this habitation of his humans.

Ygritte was pulling her clothes off at a rapid pace. Her eyes hungrily eyeing Melisandre. Said clothes were being flung willy-nilly around the tent. Jon huffed chasing the articles of clothing and picking them. “Damnit! How many times do I have to tell you that they will wrinkle like that!” Jon huffed.

“You didn’t seem too concerned about wrinkled clothing when you stripped and banged our tight asses last night Jon. Geez, don’t be a hypocrite” Ygritte snarked back at her husband.

Jon paused in his mission of clothing retrieval. He shrugged. “Don’t do as I do. Do as I say.” He resumed picking up clothing and placing the garments over the back of chairs.

Melisandre was erecting spells of silence.

“What are you doing woman! Let them hear!” Ygritte shouted as was hungrily removed Melisandre’s dress off her wife’s hot body.

Melisandre merely cocked and auburn eyebrow finishing the spells.

“Please Ygritte. Have some decorum. These are total strangers.”

Ygritte made a harrumph sound. Her smile cheeky.

Ygritte was Melisandre were both naked now. Their eyes hungrily looking over each other with raw hunger.

“You know nothing Melisandre! I’m horny!” Jon huffed picking up a second set of clothes. He was really happy though. He loved seeing his two wives so happy. Their happiness made the man happy. While he was performing his duty of cleaning up his wives mess he watched Ygritte throw a squealing Melisandre down on the bed and jumped on her wife. They were immediately in a clench rolling around on the bed snogging fiercely. Arms and legs twined around bodies to pull them tight
He stood watching them for a long minute. They would first roll to the right and then back to the left. Their bodies mated tight like wiggling snakes in a rut. Ygritte wiggling into Melisandre and the tall voluptuous witch undulated her body against her smaller wife. Melisandre’s large tits engulfing her smaller wife’s small tits as their tits mashed out between tight pressed bodies. Their mouths locked tight with tongues dueling wetly from mouth to mouth.

Jon smiled. He casually walked towards the large braziers filled with coke shimmering with heat. He moved over to them and the furs in front of them. He looked down at Ghost who had partially awoken sensing his human near. The Direwolf looked up at him with his red eyes barely slit open. He heard his wives moaning and cawing now as they rolled around on the bed. Jon needed to nap to feel refreshed for when he met the Queen and his family. He lay down on the furs beside his wolf. It large body sending out additional heat into the cool air.

Jon luxuriated in the warmth of braziers and Direwolf. He smiled hearing Melisandre cry out and the wet sounds of Ygritte devouring her sodden cunt and snuffling happily. Jon closed his eyes and quickly fell towards sleep. He had much practice going to sleep with two rutting wives beside him. He had learned to tune out their obscene noises of pussy gobbling and banging each other with fingers, fists and strap-ons when he was sleepy.

Soon he was snoring while shrieks of hard cumming filled the tent as Melisandre convulsed and screamed on the bed and Ygritte moaned hard drinking down sweet hot gushes of sweet female cum.

The two hot redheads were only getting started.

Daenerys

Dany came out the tent reserved for and Arya and herself. She stretched like a satisfied big ole Tom that was master of all it surveyed. She felt like meowing and strutting around to show her dominance but knew she would look silly doing that. Making love to Arya always put the Queen in that state of mind. Dany was insatiable and Arya was insatiable which meant awesome sex!

The time before turning into one’s tent was a time to share comradery and build ties to the Houses and people she hope to finally rule and lead after this war was put behind her. Daenerys knew she had her queenly duties to perform. She had to interact with her subjects to always further build her rapport with her subjects. She would perform her duty. In the back of her mind though, were the thoughts of ravishing a certain Direwolf. As soon as the Queen and her consort turned in for the night after eating a meal around the main camp fire and commiserating with the Lords and Generals they were back in the Queen’s tent at each other like cats in heat.

The Queen had lost nearly a year now to this war and the preparation for it. She smiled grimly seeing Eddard come out of his tent across the camp. He glared and his eldest daughter’s wagon and then the wagon of Missandei the Queen’s small scribe. The Queen shivered. She and Arya had finally put the fire out in their couchies. She smiled knocking Arya out with the last multiple orgasm she had given her love sucking her off and rubbing her g-spot with a come hither motion. Eddard saw her and grimaced looking peeved. Daenerys smiled at the man. He walked off huffing. It was all an act the Queen knew. They both liked playing their part of the game.

She felt sorry for Eddard Stark but not really. The man was a prude and deserved to be surrounded by people who enjoyed sex and lots of it. It was an advantage the High Lords were taking advantage of with the denizens of the Land. They were reserved in the performance of their duties but once those duties were finished they loved to fuck. Boy did they love to fuck and were quite vocal about. Lucky lesser lords, camp attendants and Dothraki getting to enjoy the fun.

Poor Eddard Stark had gotten as far away as he could from the more vocal fuckers in the camp. Many of the nights he had ridden off for a corpse of trees on the horizon and slept under the stars. “At least I can have some piece and quite. Except for those damn Giants. I can hear them miles away!”

The Queen had decided to step out of her tent. The hot sex with Arya had not exhausted her but filled her with a jangly energy. Fucking Arya filled her with energy and passion. Her body was satiated but her mind was still active. She slowly dressed reveling in a body well fucked. The Queen went out. She enjoyed the cool night time air on her face as she looked up at the stars. The light so pure and so far away. She wondered again what those twinkling lights were. She started to walk to stretch her limbs. As she started to walk the Queen enjoyed stretching her limbs and twisting her torso to stretch her back. Daenerys reveled in the feel of her worn out pussy.

Arya had fisted her so fucking good and kept ramming her fist up into Dany’s cervix through her orgasm and made a second one bloom and explode overtop the first when she kept twisting her fist home with hard plunging thrusts and then bending down to give Dany’s clit wet loose kisses with her sucking lips hot and fast. Dany had exploded into a million shards of glittering diamonds that seemed to float up into the air and only slowly gently waft back to the Earth.

She had put on breaches and a loose tunic only. Her hot blood kept her warm in the cold. She truly was the Dragon. She had walked around her tent and its local environs. Nymeria had come out with the Queen. She rubbed into the Queen for some ear scratches and then tore off into the night after receiving them. The Queen smiled seeing the great Direwolf disappearing into the night. She guessed the great Direwolf was running off to seek her cousins among the hills and woods.

She had seen Bannor and Jeertel at the front of the tent and Seregrom had disappeared around the side. Aggo was at the other side of the tent and Wormtail with five of her honor guard were out ten yards in a loose perimeter. Dany was indeed very safe. She started to walk away from her tent.

She walked on and Bannor and Seregrom were beside her now with Aggo trailing. The Haruchai moved like shadows making no noise. They walked around the camp quietly as people slept. It was late in the night now. The Queens small procession approached the wagons of Sansa and Missandei. Suddenly, Bannor moved from the side of the Queen to just in front of her off to the side. The Bloodguard thrust out his arm in front of the Queen. She hit it and it felt like hitting a bar of iron. Her body rebounded back.

“You cannot go any further” Bannor spoke flatly.

She looked at him crossly. She was not used to not being allowed to go where she would. She rubbed her arm and shoulder where she had run into Bannor’s arm. Daenereys was still mildly surprised at the solidity of the Haruchai. Hitting his arm had been like hitting granite.

“Why not” she softly barked at the man. Her eyes challenged the taciturn man. He returned her glare without emotion.

“She Who Must Not Be Named is in front of Missandei wagon door.”

“Wwwwhattttttt! … How long has she been there?!” Daenerys yelped. She felt a squirt of raw naked fear shoot through her veins. She had heard enough tales from Missandei of this woman’s power. She could not help herself looking around with eyes large with fear.
“For over an hour” was the flat spoken statement.

“My gods—wh-h-h-yyyy haven’t you sounded the alarm!” Dany spoke softly looking at the wagons. The Queen calmed her breathing and, thus, her pulse rate. She needed to be calm with this situation.

Bannor regarded her flatly. He marginally cocked an eyebrow. “The Haruchai know caution. There are five Haruchai arrayed around She Who Must Not Be Named. They will attack at any indication of danger. What would it accomplish to attack her? She could kill us all with but a thought. We do not wish to provoke She Who Must Not Be Named. She merely looks at the door with longing. She has done this off and on during our entire trip up the King’s Road. She Who Must Not Be Named is clearly enamored with your scribe.”

The Queen processed all this. She was as safe as could be. She glared at Bannor. He returned her gaze flatly. The Haruchai were not fazed by her anger in the least.

“I want to see her.” It bothered her greatly that the Haruchai had not told her of this. She had come to know them well enough to understand their thinking. What would it accomplish telling the Queen? They observed and would fight this goddess if they must and all be slaughtered. Therefore, why tell the Queen when it would not change anything. She sighed to herself. These Haruchai would die for her at moment’s notice if required. She could not find fault in them.

The Haruchai titled his head conversing with is countrymen. Dany was guided to the left and made a wide shallow circle like shadows within the night. She now could see between two supply wagons that had been sighted to be shields to the royal wagons and tents.

She felt her eyes narrow. My gods it was not possible. She was expecting some seven foot tall muscle bound warrior looking woman with a beautiful but dire face. Missandei had thought of her ‘shadow’ lover as a small woman but the Queen had been sure the woman would be a mighty warrior. Such power just had to be housed in a mighty warrior’s body didn’t it the Queen had reasoned to herself. What she saw was not that. Missandei had been totally right.

The woman she saw looked more like a prepubescent girl. She was definitely shorter than Missandei by several inches and Andi was tiny! Her interpreter had the body of a woman but this woman looked like a girl not yet flowered. A girl that had yet to develop any maturity to her body. She was slender and small of limbs. The Queen saw no musculature on the woman’s limbs that were exposed. The woman before her for all appearances was merely a slip of a girl.

The woman’s cowl to her robe was back. Her legs were exposed as well with her tunic only coming slightly below her knees. Daenerys observed She Who Must Not Be Named hands and they too were small and childlike delicate. The woman stared intently at the door of Missandei’s wagon. Daenerys felt the longing in the woman. The queen was both hopeful for Missandei and yet fearful. Though this small female looked harmless the Haruchai made it abundantly clear that this woman was every bit as powerful as Missandei had said she was.

Still Daenerys could not help but wonder. How could such a body have the power to supposedly lay mountains low? Defeat this supposedly unstoppable Lord Foul with but a backhand? How had she ever been chained? By love Missandei told her. Could Missandei control such a woman with nothing but her love? Had not the woman helped them already?

All these thoughts crashed through the Queen’s head as she continued to regard this She Who Must Not Be Named.

Her body was unremarkable but that was the only thing. There was no wind nor any breeze in the night air. The air dead with no movement. One would think that the air was filled with a very strong angry wind looking at She Who Must Not Be Named. The woman’s hair was silky but instead of blond or black it was bright green that seemed to have a glow about it. It reminded her of the fireflies she saw as a little girl flitting around the courtyard of the house with the red door. The woman’s hair was flowing out behind her in streamers of green tresses. Her hair undulating and whipping as if caught in a strong wind.

The woman had eyes that were completely circular and appeared to have no eyelids. Her eyes did not blink. The eyes bright green. They seemed to glow but provided no illumination to her environment. The sight was unnerving seeing eyes that did not blink and glowed. She Who Must Not Be Named eyebrows were also green and angled up from the bridge of her nose to near her hairline low on her forehead. The woman had ears that jutted out her hair and came to a set of double of points angled back. The Queen had seen paintings and wood carvings of elves and demons. To the Queen this woman had the caste much more like the latter.

“She looks like a demon” Daenerys softly spoke to Bannor.

“You show your prejudices. Just because she does not look like us does not mean she is a demon. In many ways she is just a woman. Albeit a very powerful woman” Bannor answered the Queen, his charge, in a calm voice. There was no scolding in the tone yet the Queen knew it was in those words.

Daenerys tensed her lips and closed her eyes. She hated being corrected but Bannor was right. She had let preconceptions cloud her judgment. She studied this green haired woman again.

Her body was the body of a girl and so was her face when you went beyond the strange features. No caste of a wrinkle marred the perfect features. The face still had a trace of what one would call baby fat it. Daenerys could not get over how She Who Must Not Be Named looked like a maiden. A very young maiden. It was disconcerting to look at. From what Daenerys could gather from all she had been told she knew this woman had to be at least one hundred thousand years old and yet she looked to be ten years of age maybe nine. This green haired demigod for all appearances was still a girl yet to flower. She had no womanly aspect to her body or face.

“She looks like a girl … she can’t be this terrible force of nature” Daenerys spoke softly to Bannor. She knew this green haired woman heard all they were saying and knew she was there and where all the Haruchai were. She simply chose to ignore them. Her focus was totally on Missandei in her wagon. It seemed nothing else mattered to the Lady In Green, Daenerys coined her personal name for the woman. She immediately wondered if She Who Must Not Be Named could read her thoughts. Maybe she would call the woman by her proper name Daenerys decided hastily.

Bannor looked at the Queen. “You appear weak at first glance and yet you are mighty.”

That pissed Daenerys off. She was mighty and anyone could see that! Damn the Haruchai for making that observation!

The Haruchai could see her fit of pique. “No offense was meant Dragonthane. I merely speak the truth. You are petite. Would you be afraid of yourself if you knew nothing of yourself?” He spoke in that strange flat lilt that showed no emotion.

“Ohay. I understand. Still. She can’t be that powerful. Can she?” It was so incongruent to the Queen to be told that so much power was packed into such a small body.

“She Who Must Not Be Name defeated Lord Foul. Lord Foul repeatedly overcame all who opposed him with the mightiest lore and weapons. She crushed him while merely passing by him in Kiril Threndor deep underneath Mount Thunder as she roared in her freedom. Stave reports that that her attack on Lord Foul was almost an afterthought as She Who Must Not Be Named raced to her freedom.”

“We have mused over the millennia over She Who Must Not Be Named actions that day. She could have killed Lord Foul easily if she had chosen. We have debated long among ourselves why she showed mercy for all the millennium Lord Foul had tortured She Who Must Not Be Named with her chaining in the deep abyss in the heart of Mount Thunder. Maybe she was good even then. Just buried under torment and youthful indiscretions.”

“You must understand Dragon Queen. This small woman before us could contend with all of the Elohim. Would she win? We do not know but we feel the probabilities are much in her favor. It was the Elohim queen with Linden Avery who brought you back from death. Consider the might you have felt with Infelice. Alone, the Haruchai deem that this small woman would instantaneously defeat and dispatch the Queen of the Elohim if She Who Must Not Be Named so chose. She does not chose that.”

“She is death given life if she so chooses. Stave told the Haruchai what She Who Must Not Be Named was like when she was a green incorporeal cloud of hate and insanity. We have been granted a reprieve. The Haruchai believe that She Who Must Not Be Named has forsaken her past ways. In the forty-seven thousand years since she left our world she has learned control.”

The Queen studied the Haruchai. They knew more than they let on. Their memory back to the beginning of their people gave them a power of knowledge that none could match.

“So it is impossible to fight her?” the Queen asked her Bloodguard.

“Yes, by ones such as those gathered in your army. We are truly nothing to her. We do not understand her obsession with Missandei of Naath. She is enamored of the woman. You are most fortunate. She has chosen to aid our cause. From what we have heard She Who Must Not Be Named chose to aid you before she met Missandei. It would seem in aiding you She Who Must Not Be Named met and fell in love with Missandei of Naath.

“We find this strange. She Who Must Not Be Named should be so far above us that we don’t even prick her awareness.”

The Queen processed that information.

“Is she a god then?”

Bannor looked at her for a long time. The Queen could sense he was conversing mentally with his brethren. “I know how you mean the word. In that context she is not a god. She is not divine. She was born and can die though none of us have the power to kill or even harm her. We know that Missandei holds the Krill within her. That weapon can kill even the Worm at the End of the World if one like She Who Must Not Be Named wielded the weapon. She can be killed.”

Daenerys looked at Bannor. She, Arya and Missandei had not told anyone that she carried the Krill within and yet the Haruchai knew it. Again the Queen wondered what the Haruchai were able to perceive. “Missandei will never hurt the woman.”

“We know. We are not sure what they are but She Who Must Not Be Named has many tasks before her. Tasks that will be tied to your destiny. If not for her love for Missandei you would not be able to complete all of your tasks.”
There was a flash of green. Out of the corner of the Queen’s eye she saw that She Who Must Be Named seemed to fold in upon herself. It looked like squares imploding till there was a bright flash as the green eyed woman folded in on herself from her head and feet. When those two collapsing squares met there had been a bright green flash. Then nothing.

“She has left.”

“Where has she gone?”

“We do not know. She has left the world we perceive. She can travel through time and the very fabric of what is and what is possible” Bannor told the Queen with a flat voice. Again the Queen wondered at the full perceptions of the Haruchai.

The Valyrian tried to process all she had just heard and seen. Her people were a magical race. She had seen magic and felt it within her but she instinctively understood that she was a paltry thing compared to She Who Must Not Be Named. It was humbling thought to the proud woman.

Again she was thankful that this woman had aligned herself however tenuously with her and not with the Ice King or as a force of evil onto herself. From what Missandei and Bannor had told the Queen that could have been a realistic possibility.

Dany’s head spun hearing and seeing what she had just experienced. The Valyrian attempted to process it all. She slowly went back to her royal tent. She quickly shed her clothes. She went back to Arya and snuggled into her lover who instinctively pulled Dany to her shoulder and the Queen cleared her head of distracting thoughts and soon fell asleep. She had learned in the red wastes to conquer her wayward thoughts.

When Daenerys awoke this early morning before the sun had lit the eastern horizon she had been extremely horny. Her nighttime encounter with Missandei’s would be lover had her filled with energy. She was still in Arya’s arms holding her possessively. The Queen felt loved and safe. Her doubt and misgivings from the previous night behind her.

She slowly disengaged her body from Arya’s supine slumbering body and slipped between her love’s legs and slowly pushed them out. She started to slowly lap at her Wolfing’s sweet pussy and enjoyed feeling it swell and juice in her mouth. In the quiet of the tent Daenerys could hear her tongue working the slit that was getting wetter as she licked. She licked up higher and felt Arya’s clit swelling underneath her tongue. Wet sounds of a sodden pussy being eaten filled the room.

Looking up Arya’s nude body she saw her nipples swelling with blood rush.

Arya slowly came awake moaning and rotating her pussy up into Dany’s mouth. Arya mewled wakening feeling her Queen eating her out. Dany loved the rising moans from Arya. Her woman started to deliberate hump her pussy up and down grinding her now sodden muffin into Dany’s mouth. The Queen loved feeling her head pushed against by Arya’s swollen cunt now grinding up into her mouth. She loved how Arya writhed against her mouth. She always felt connected to Arya when she humped her wet snatch into her lover’s mouth.

Soon Daenerys had Arya chuffing and crying out as she took her slut to the heavens of ecstasy. Arya had both hands in Dany’s hair mashing her face down into the teenager’s pussy. The pale blond sucked with total focus her tongue lashing and gigging Arya’s rigid throbbing clit.

Daenerys had sucked her sweet wolf off twice to soul crushing orgasms of wailing bliss. Dany had happily gulped down the sweet gushes of hot cum sloshing out her sweeties rupturing cunt hole. Arya screaming in her ecstasy. The Valyrian loved to make her sweet wolf howl with her soul crushing orgasms.
Then Arya had returned the favor. She was considerate that way.

Now she was outside her tent with a big shit eating grin on her face as she looked at Arya’s father sweetly. He happened to be near their tent talking to Stannis. The eastern sky just starting to lighten with the approaching sun. Eddard scowled at her. He did not seem to appreciate the screams of his daughters or their lovers and adding Missandei’s high pitched screams to the mix seemed to make him cross for some reason.

“You just couldn’t help yourself could you” Eddard growled. “My two daughters caterwauling like cats in heat. Of course you two are not alone. Gods what in the hell has gotten into Stannis. Oberyn I can understand but not Stannis. They are old fogpies like me damnit! Renly and Loras and the other young Lords and Knights the Haruchai and Ramen are making love too—oh fuck it—are fucking … I can forgive their screams I guess … but—well … oh fuck it” Eddard ran out of words it seemed.

The Queen had continued to smile sweetly at the fuming Warden of the North. He did look tired.

Dany knew it would take a short while yet for Arya to recover and get dressed. Dany felt the North come awake. Birds were chirping in the distant trees and in their lairs in the prairie grass.

Eddard turned but she saw the small smile on his face. Softie.

She saw Nymeria coming looping in from lifting darkness and sat beside the entrance of the tent that Stannis and Oberyn were sharing. The wolf was staring intently at the flap of the tent. Dany stopped to watch what would happen this morning. Nymeria had been getting the short end of the spear the last few weeks with a couple of exceptions. With the wire contraption that Oberyn had devised to hold his spear on the top of his head had totally foiled the Direwolf. Oberyn had been preening much and Daenerys was sure it was really pissing off the great Direwolf.

Nymeria was not used to losing that was for sure. The great wolf made that obvious. She acted like a big baby really whenever she was bested.

Nymeria would throw fits when she was not able get the spear. She would flip around in the air and bark furiously at the Spearmen who taunted and laughed at the distressed Direwolf that produced only more furious barking and whining. A few times it had gotten so bad that she and Arya had worried for Nymeria. She would be rolling around on her back kicking her legs wildly slaver and foam rolling out of the Direwolf’s mouth in rivers. Nymeria would roll onto her side and use her legs to dig into the ground and slowly spin her writhing body around in circles. The wolf’s dark golden eyes half rolling in her head as she whined and howled in frustration.

It was really remarkable the fits the wolf could throw.

Nymeria had taken to running up to Arya and looking at her plaintively and then looking back at Oberyn with first pleading eyes. The wolf’s head looking back and forth between Oberyn and Nymeria’s master. The message was quite clear. Punish the bastard for thwarting Nymeria’s will. When that did not work Nymeria barked furiously at Arya trying to get her to understand the urgency of the situation. When that did not work the wolf threw fits of howling and rolling all over the ground her legs kicking furiously as she had yet another wolfie tantrum.

A few of Nymeria’s tantrums had left her exhausted lying on her side panting heavily her tongue lulled out. Her eyes addled and not able to focus. She always recovered quickly though. She made sure to give Oberyn a piece of her mind before running off to parts unknown to sulk and plan her revenge. Her head turning back to glare evil promises to the Red Viper as she disappeared. The man flipping her off and blowing her raspberries. Nymeria’s howls scaling up at the abuse.
The Queen had seen Nymeria try and enlist Grey Wind but he had grown bored of it all. Lady was helpless. All she wanted was to be petted.

Then a week ago Nymeria had lurked around Oberyn’s tent in the early morning. Before the Direwolf had always assaulted the man when he was on his horse or during breaks on the march. Obviously, the wolf had devised a new tactic. She ambushed the spearmen the instant he came through the flap his tent. The man was one with his spear and liked to take it everywhere he went. His wire hat in his other hand. He had not thought it needed to put it on his head yet. A shocked Oberyn was caught unawares. The two had wrested over his spear.

Nymeria with her superior weight had won. She tore the spear away from Oberyn before he could get up on his horse. She ran off with a happy wolf grin on her face.

“You fucking bitch!” Oberyn had yelled at the wolf. He was furious. He had gotten used to winning!

An hour down the path they found his spear on the King’s road. The hardened ironwood baked in a kiln had resisted Nymeria’s bite marks as per usual. As per usual, also, Nymeria had pissed all over the spear and then kicked grass on it.

Cursing Oberyn used water and vinegar to cleanse his spear. Daenerys could hear the muttered “fucking bitch” “I will teach that fucking wolf—you mark my words”. Yes the battle had been joined again.

The next morning Oberyn had stuck his head out his tent flap looking both ways for the vile wolf. He did not notice the large stack of furs and blankets that were haphazardly stacked near the tent front. It did not register as a threat. He had not seen the Direwolf working for the past hour pulling furs and blankets it had raided from a wagon to stack before Oberyn’s tent. The wolf had then crawled underneath the liar it had created and waited with just her nostrils jutting from beneath a fur.

Oberyn had looked around but not down. As he passed the pile of furs and blankets Nymeria had exploded out of the pile. Her teeth locking on the shaft of Oberyn’s precious spear. The furious wrestling match for the spear had been epic.

Oberyn refused to release the spear as man and wolf rolled on the ground both howling and gnashing teeth. Finally, Nymeria got a bite hold on the spear and ripped Oberyn off balance. She started to run off but was thwarted. Her movements slowed by Oberyn who had ahold of the other end of the spear. He shouted curses at the wolf refusing to let go. Then the wolf spun around whipping Oberyn off balance to the right. Then she dragged Oberyn over a fire. The flames catching on his clothes. That set Oberyn to really howling. Victory to Nymeria.

Dany remembered the next morning Nymeria was by the door waiting for her spear. Her confidence now restored. She had received a shock. This morning the tent flap was flung back with haughty disregard for Nymeria perched outside ready to attack.

Oberyn came out with an escort of Haruchai and Ramen who walked him to his horse in between the phalanxes of his protectors. Nymeria had watched stunned. Her hair instantly rose up in hackles. Her tail snaking underneath her ass. Nymeria glared at Oberyn and his entourage. She dare not attack. All the Direwolves had learned that you did not mess with Haruchai and Ramen.

Oberyn had walked by a poleaxed Nymeria. As he passed the Direwolf he blew her a raspberry. The Ramen had smirked at the Direwolf. The Haruchai in unison had only cocked an eyebrow at Nymeria.
That had done it.

The Queen had actually been afraid for the wolf’s health after that event. Nymeria threw a fit that was worthy of one of Dany’s royal temper tantrums. The flips, rolls, summersaults and just general wild contortions had went on for fifteen minutes. Her howls answered by the wolves in the far away woods. When she was finished she was exhausted. She actually fell asleep in her exhaustion.

The column broke ranks and started down the road. Arya chewed her lip and told Dany she would catch up to them with Nymeria. Half an hour later Arya came up to the column at a fast canter with a pissed off Nymeria.

Nymeria had barked furiously at Oberyn for an hour up the King’s Road.

The next morning Nymeria did not seem stunned or rankled by the turn of events. It seemed to the Queen that Nymeria was ready to show she was the Queen of the spear. She was aggressive barking furiously and lunging at Oberyn’s protectors. Faster than the eye could follow Manethrall Shapa ripped the cord out of her hair. She spun it up in a flash and then the knotted end snapped out and flicked the Direwolf’s nose. Hard. It was not enough to damage but it definitely stung.

Nymeria had run off fifty yards yammering with her tail between her legs whining and pawing her nose. She did that until she saw Grey Wind looking at her with contempt. Nymeria stopped with a sudden digging of feet. She looked at Grey Wind who turned his rump to her in disgust. Nymeria woofed and her eyes alight with righteous indignation. She had face to save! She ran back up to Oberyn who was on his horse now with is spear safely clasped on his head. Nymeria threw a fit. She barked furiously at the Haruchai and the Ramen and snapped at their heels. They ignored the big baby. Daenerys noticed the one person she did not try and intimidate was Manethrall Shapa.

The Direwolf did this all the time glancing back at where Grey Wind was observing her. Nymeria kept this up until Grey Wind seemed to be satisfied that Nymeria was not a big woose and gambled off. Nymeria immediately stopped and sat down panting. She had saved face and was exhausted from it.

Now this morning the Haruchai and the Ramen walked out of Oberyn’s tent but there was no Oberyn. The phalanx of protectors moved off. Daenerys saw the direwolf come to attention. Hope was in her eyes burning furiously. She crouched down. Oberyn walked out holding his spear. Triumph glowed hot in her golden orbs. The wolf leaped up knocking him aside and snatched the spear from his grasp and started to run off with a look of triumph.

The spear snapped in two. The wolf stopped running and looked confused at the two ends. Woof? She stared a second and then snatched up the half of the spear with spear head and started off running. It snapped in two. The wolf stopped confused again and then picked up the part of the spear with the Valyrian steel spear point. The wood snapped again. Woof? Woof?

Now Nymeria stopped and looked at the spear point and the little bit of the wood haft remaining. She smelled the spear point. Then she howled biting the painted balsa wood spear tip and it splintered. Oberyn was up on his horse now laughing at Nymeria. In his hand was his real spear.

“Ha!” Oberyn laughed at the wolf. He blew Nymeria a big long wet raspberry at the Direwolf. His real spear now safely ensconced on this wire contraption on his head.

Arya turned to Daenerys and smiled great big. Now that was original. They wondered how long it had taken Oberyn to have the fake spear made.

Needless to say Nymeria did not take the ruse very well. The Direwolf’s fit of flips, summersaults and belly rolls had been truly frightening to witness. She would lie on her back her legs kicking furiously in the air as her body undulated her howls of rage truly hideous to hear. Foam constantly running out her mouth in her crazed state. Nymeria’s face was soaked in slaver. It was not a pretty look. The poor wolf exhausted herself.

The Queen had nearly laughed her ass off. They left the sleeping exhausted wolf behind knowing she would quickly catch up when she had recovered.

With the rising of the sun they were off. The advantage of not having to break camp they were able to move off and let the staff at the camps take care of the camp. Since the camps were being maintained for the multiple of trains moving up the King’s Road the tenders could immediately start making preparations for the next arrivals. With Sansa, Margaery and Missandei’s planning the camps and their maintenance the tenders knew when each column would be arriving, and, thus, ready to tend to their needs. The break in trains giving the camp attendants time to restore the camps to pristine order and give them to rest themselves. The rest allowed them to be ready to serve the next train moving up the King’s Road to the Wall.

As she moved down the road Arya had moved off to talk to her father. This left Daenerys alone to contemplate what was about to occur. After camp tonight it was one was more camp and then they would be at Wall. The fortune and future of Westeros would be fought there. The fight would be soon. She felt it in her bones. She knew what her dragons saw but something in her bones told her that the war would be soon.

Why hadn’t had the Ice King moved forward?! It was the question that perplexed them all.

She looked forward to this war. Unlike the fights in Esso there was no ambiguity in her foe. No hidden sliver of good or decency. This foe was implacable. She would crush this enemy and worry not for any future nightmares. The Ice King was a being of pure evil. His Ice Wrights may have started as pure innocents but he had corrupted them long ago into beings of pure evil like himself. For the good of the world they had to be put down. She would see that that was done.

She heard the new songs crafted to speak of her triumphs across Essos. Those were the ones sung at court. Varys sparrows and Olenna’s mouth brought back reports of the songs crafted along the rim of Slavers Bay and in the Dothraki Sea and the lands surrounding Qohor.

Those songs were not so flattering or painted a picture of the conqueror all fair and beautiful. The songs hinted at or maybe outright said of the beauty hiding the cruel ugly truth beneath a fair visage. The words of these songs painted a much darker visage. A woman not on a conquest with a holy mission. No these songs were of the Conqueror who smashed and destroyed all that was good. Songs spoke of how she had utterly crushed her foes without mercy and butchered whole noble families.

The songs on the face of them spoke true. She had had her reasons. Valid reasons. She would not countenance savagery and butchery of the innocents. Still. Today she would hopefully at least try another path. She would do what she must to achieve her goals. If she could not do so by a more peaceful means she would not avoid the use of her iron fist.

She had the iron glove ready to don if she must. She would then form a fist and the glove would be used. Evil would be crushed.

She would have to let history decide if what she had done and accomplished had truly been worth it. That the means had justified the ends. Daenerys knew they had. She had ended the Slave Trade and ended its cruelty that existed for over five thousand years. She had ended a system that her people may not have started but definitely fostered and nurtured.
She hated the way she had had to end the slave trade but she simply had no recourse. She had been too weak to have any other course when she started her war of liberation. She had barely survived her early campaigns. The cruelty she faced had to be met and punished. She had to match them and in some cases exceed what she faced to emerge victorious. She had won the day with far fewer causalities than Barristan had predicted. He was still amazed at how fast and how little bloodshed the Queen had used to achieve her goals. How she had accomplished her conquests so swiftly and with minimal losses for her side.

Daenerys knew that had been in the aggregate. The means had justified the outcome. The ones crushed and killed may not agree with the Queen’s assessment but in the end that did not matter. The losses could have been more by Barristan’s reckoning but they were still grievous for her enemies. They had been absolutely necessary Daenerys knew. She had swept out the old ways and instituted new ways that were far superior. Let the sins be hers but she had accomplished her goals. The Slave cities were no more. The Free Cities were now truly free in practice.

The Queen was not naïve. She knew she had more work to do to fully root out the old ways completely. The fragments of the old ways now had to hide in the shadows to survive. Over time she would root them out.

Yes, the Queen thought to herself. Her sheer speed and audacity had won the day. That speed had saved many lives on all sides.

She hoped that she and Eddard had come up with a plan to slaughter and kill the Ice King and his army of the dead with minimal casualties. The songs from this war could only have one refrain.

Victory. Total and complete.

Eddard had told Daenerys that his son was not liable to agree to pull his forces from the Wall. It rankled the Queen that the Crows and their Lord Commander reported to no one other than themselves. It made her life more difficult than it needed to be.

Eddard had told her to understand the thinking behind the Nights Watch. It had survived eight thousand years. All other kingdoms and great Houses had risen, fallen and many times risen again. Through bad and good the leaders of the Nights Watch had continued on. Even starved for several thousands of years of the resources they deserved it still endured.

It had been that independence that had allowed the Crows to continue on. They gave an allegiance to an institution and not a person. They fought for an ideal and not a king or queen. Thus, they endured. Still, if this war had been delayed a hundred years maybe two the Crows would have faltered. The Crows had long ceased to be an honorable use of one’s life. Instead of nobility and men seeking to serve a cause, the Night’s Watch was now largely composed of criminals emptied out of dungeons, drunkards collected from ditches and the simply desperate.

Jon Snow was the anomaly. Benjen Stark had served before him was also such. You had Jeor Mormont. They were like diamonds in the mound of the proverbial garbage. The metaphor was not apt Daenerys knew. All men had value but most were forced into the watch. And one had to be honest. By the norms of society they were the least desirable to serve. It was amazing the Lord Commanders made it work. They somehow formed a cohesive force out of the dregs of society.

Still. The Night’s Watch was dying. The old ways were faltering. The true threat had been too distant for too long.

A new way had to be found that was still built on the concept of service to an ideal but not totally dependent on the largesse of a world that would again forget. This forgetfulness led to the current situation. One could not let this continue. The forming of an army from prisons of Westeros and the unfortunate duped or forced into service they did not want.

She, Eddard Stark and Jon Snow would find a new way. She turned her thoughts from the men serving in the Night’s Watch to the institution itself.

The independence of the Night’s Watch had allowed it to still exist with its harsh neglect. But now the Queen had to deal with this independence. This independence allowed a Lord Commander to refuse her orders. She did not like that at all. She was the Queen of Westeros. She had fought hard to be able to come to the Wall to save it. She knew she was right. She just had to get Jon to see the rightness of her thoughts and perceptions.

Daenerys snorted. It was a pain in her ass that she could not simply tell Jon Snow what to do. She had fought hard to put herself in a position to impose her will in all situations. She trusted her instincts and her ability to choose the right path for her people. She had found few in Essos who were both a leader and a person of a moral code. It had forced her to rely upon herself. Barristan, Syrio and Missandei were followers and not leaders. They wanted to serve an ideal and let it lead them trusting in her judgement.

She thought again on the current leaders of Westeros. Who would be a good commander of the Crows beside Jon Snow? Daenerys knew she was great and could accomplish great things. Still, she was only one person. She needed others to help her achieve her dreams and goals. She wondered of the leaders of the Great Houses. The Wardens of Westeros.

Eddard of course was as great as herself … well almost as great. There was only one Daenerys Targaryen First of Her Name after all she thought smugly. She went over some of her favorite titles she had gathered: The Unburnt Queen of the Andals, the Rhoynar, and of the First Men, Queen of Meereen, Khaleesi of the Great Grass Sea, Breaker of Chains, Mother of Dragons. She had earned all of them herself. She had no surrogates or generals fighting her wars for her. She had been on the frontline of every war and battle. She had thrown herself at her enemies and many died on her sword.

She was a force of nature and she knew it and fully accepted it. It was not vanity. It was simply fact. She had conquered two continents.

She went over the list of her wardens. Of course Eddard was first among them. He had proven unexpectedly to be most adept at the Game of Thrones. In fact, this quality of Eddard Stark had totally surprised everyone. He had seemed so provincial stuck in his Wardenship of the North. She had read the reports of Varys that had painted Eddard as a neophyte when it came to politics and manipulation. How wrong they had been.

It still rankled her no end that it had been Eddard Stark Warden of the North that had gotten the better of the exchange between them. She had been reacting to him from the start as he drew her to gather her forces and then take them north. He had played her masterfully. Of course being willing to use his own daughter on the board of the Game of Thrones had been a grand stroke. He had thrown his daughter into the den of dragons totally innocent of what was happening around her.

That innocence and the girl’s burning fire to succeed had captured Dany’s heart from the moment she entered her throne room. In a flash, Arya had seemingly been magically transformed from a seeming docile sheep of the Lamb people of the Dothraki Sea to a pure hellion that had given the Queen as good as she got as they fought each other like hellcats before the Iron Throne.

Daenerys smiled at the sweet memories. Sure they had beat the shit out of each other but it had been pure love the Queen thought in a reverie of nostalgia.
Daenerys wished she had not wasted so much time in claiming what was hers. Arya Stark was her Queen, better yet, she was a fierce warrior who was her equal with the sword. She paused in her thinking. Arya was like her father. She was better than Daenerys with the sword. The Queen always analyzed everything including herself. When she met someone with a superior skill to hers she acknowledge it.

She was just like her father though. She could never achieve the greatness on her own that Daenerys Targaryen had. They had the strength and intelligence. They lacked one key ingredient to true greatness though. Without that ingredient they could never reach the greatness that was herself.

Eddard and his daughter lacked the burning over weening ambition to succeed and impose their will on society and of history. Dany had longed since her journey into the Dothraki Sea to take back what was hers. It had started as her brother’s ambition, then Khal Drogo’s. They had the dream but not the ability. Finally, the dream had passed on to her. Finally, the prophecy of A Song Of Ice And Fire had found its vessel.

The prophecy of destiny had found Daenerys Targaryen. She had first conquered and found her revenge on the Khal that had turned on her. Then she had truly understood the Slave Trade and decided it must go. There had been no other option or recourse to Daenerys. In crushing the Slave Trade it became clear to her that she must rule not only Westeros but Essos as well to achieve her true destiny and the dreams that she had birthed within herself.

She would transform Westeros and Essos into a better place. Her visions and ability to translate them to reality would suffice to make this happen.

Eddard and his daughter lacked that vision and desire. Eddard just wanted to guide and gently shepherd his people. In the past, Eddard had had ambitions to keep his people safe but no more than that simple desire. He administrated his rule fairly and justly. Until of late, Eddard had been the perfect Warden who never thought outside of his lands.

His daughter had even less ambition than her father if that was possible. She just wanted to fight by her Queen’s side. The Queen felt her heart beat faster with that knowledge. Arya was hers and the fierce Wolf only wanted her Dragon. Daenerys felt so lucky. Especially at night when Arya was between her legs and absolutely devouring her swollen quim and ramming her tongue deep up her spasming asshole. Gods that girl could fuck the Queen thought dreamily.

So the Starks were capable of greatness but lacked the ambition. Oberyn was not the heir to Dorne. Just as well. He was too hotheaded by nature. He was a great warrior but he never considered the politics to a situation. He always wanted to challenge anyone how crossed him to a duel. At least he was not an asshole about it. He could not see the forest for the trees though. He was a little too confident also. She could see him challenging the Mountain she had read about. Defeating the man with superior skill and still somehow getting his head crushed like a grape.

Oberyn’s brother Dorian had the same problem but exactly in the opposite direction. The brothers were like opposite sides of the same coin. Dorian had spent a generation planning revenge on House Lannister and did not do anything. He kept adjusting his plans and fine tuning his stratagems. The end result was that nothing was ever accomplished on his revenge.

Daenerys shook her head. Life could indeed be strange. Now, the House of Lannister had infiltrated the House of Martell in a silent coup. A coup of love. Cersei and her daughter had the royal females of House Martell wrapped around their little fingers and Oberyn himself singing the praises of Cersei. The woman he wanted to rape and kill outright now was married to his eldest daughter and the lecher wanted to fuck the woman along with his consort and gods knew how many of his daughters. Probably all of them.
Cersei with her newfound sweetness had won over Dorian himself. He loved the woman dearly himself now. Cersei listened to him talk of the past and watched the children play in the Garden pools with the man. She was willing to set with him for hours after she had done her training or on the traditional day of rest in Dorne.

The Martells were nothing if not lusty. Dorian was crafty and had guided Dorne well but these were great times and changing dynamics. Arianne his heir was ready to take that leadership when the time came. In fact, she had done so in all but name. Dorian was happy to spend his time in the Water Gardens watching the children play while his daughter assumed more and more of the duties of being a Warden. Arianne saw the opportunities that Daenerys had created and was seizing the trade opportunities now available in Essos. Dorian never would have been so bold.

Arianne though was like Eddard. She was satisfied with Dorne now that she had her three wives and Myrcella had made it clear she wanted her wife to be the Warden of Dorne. She had no desire for the Iron Throne. They had ambition but it was again truncated to only their province.

Stannis was capable but he had the imagination of a worm. He would go leading his troops into a fight they could not win. He would set his mind on the honorable goal as he saw it and blind himself to all else. Stannis was set in his ways and would not change. Eddard had seen the need to change and done so. Stannis could not. It was that simple.

The Queen paused. Stannis had made one change though. The Haruchai had definitely loosened up the man about sex. They had changed his wife Selyse as well. It had been humorous to see the change in the two. They had been the butt of jokes for having sticks up their ass with their staid ways in regards to sex. Now they were total swingers. Stannis may have changed in his mores in regards to sex but he was still not capable of thinking out the box when it came to matters of state or tactics. He was also a man who did not want to try and change society. He had been totally accepting of social norms showing no desire to change them for the better. He was mister status quo.

The Queen did wonder if Stannis’s new openness towards sex may have opened other possibilities in Stannis. Only time would tell.

Being a great leader was about striving for greatness. She had yet to find that in her list.

Mace Tyrell. Well, we will skip over Mace, Daenerys thought to herself.

Edmure had only been the lead of his Great House for a little over four years. He was a strange mixture the Queen thought to herself. Sometimes he was said to go off charging without looking at the larger strategic picture. He would fight fights that maybe provided a short term gain but harmed the larger picture. He was a man who could not see the forest because of the trees. He was too rash to be a good tactician and too limited in his vision to be a strategist.

Edmure would let too much information completely immobilize him from acting. What was that phrase she heard in Braavos? Paralysis by analysis.

He would vacillate too much and give his command whiplash. That was a flaw that led to armies being routed and then slaughtered.

That led to the dearly loathed Tywin Lannister. The warden of the West. The man was crafty and very intelligent. He was not a megalomaniac in the standard definition. It was not his own power or standing that motivated Tywin. It was an overarching desire to propel House Lannister to ever greater power and grandeur.
Tyrion told Daenerys that his father had found his own father to be weak and ineffectual. Tywin may have been right in that assessment but it had warped the man into a vile loathsome insect of a man. In trying to assuage perceived past slights Tywin had let himself became a vile reprehensible man. Tyrion said that while his mother lived Tywin had been milder but she had died. With that death Tywin had become the embittered man he was now.

He had not ordered or outright gave countenance to the killing of the Queen’s father, sister in law and her niece and nephew. Tywin had not punished those had gone beyond his orders. It had not bothered Tywin Lannister one wit. He was in fact rewarded for his heinous crimes by Robert Baratheon. It removed one more troubling problem for the new crowned king. Many had speculated over the last two decades what exactly Tywin had known and not known on that fateful day. The man was the master of ‘plausible deniability’.

If only Elia and her children had survived long enough for their survival to become known to Eddard Stark. She knew that once Eddard knew those children and mother were alive he would have protected them. If Robert had attempted their demise, well, Robert would have died twenty years ago and Eddard would have become King.

She wondered what her destiny would have been then. But that was not what had not happened. It would not now. It was the past and could not be changed.

Tywin was isolated and closely watched by moths, spiders, jackals and sparrows. The man was loathed and spies aplenty were easily found. The man had treated his three children so vilely that the two eldest had renounced their birth names. Tyrion was done with the man.

The man’s attitude had probably led the twins, Cersei and Jamie, to finding love and comfort in each other’s arms. That did not bother the Queen at all. With the Valyrian custom of marrying one’s close relatives incest did not bother the Queen in the least. The man was such a poor father that both twins had fallen into obsession with themselves. That had eventually led to the dissolution of their relationship.

It amazed the Queen what the two siblings had become. They had totally transformed themselves like phoenixes rising from the ashes of their past failures.

Tyrion had been tormented by Cersei as he grew up. It had made the man strong though. Varys and Olenna had reported of Cersei’s revenge upon Tyrion for his talking shit about Cersei. Daenerys and Arya had laughed at the humiliation of the dwarf. Daenerys and Arya had laughed at the humiliation of the dwarf. Tyrion needed to be put in his place at times the Queens thought. Varys reported with glee of Tyrion’s failures pitting himself against Olenna and falling miserably short. Heck, even Tyrion’s personal bodyguards were always getting over on the supposedly crafty dwarf.

Daenerys suspected that Tyrion did not mind his losses and humiliation by Olenna and his bodyguards. He kept tilting at Olenna and was always rewarding his bodyguards with raises and bonuses. Yes, it seemed Tyrion had a secret craving for humiliation. The Queen suspected he loved them all dearly but would never admit it.

Of course he failed going against Olenna. He was a man after all. That thought pleased Daenerys immensely.

All three children had renounced their heritage. Tywin now had no heirs of his direct lineage.

Daenerys found that unfortunate in some ways. Sooner or later Tywin would be out of the picture. The man had the constitution of a bull though. He would probably out live her the Queen thought sourly. Then the Queen chuckled. She could see someone putting a bolt into his guts while he took a shit. It would be fitting justice. How better to take care of a shit than while he was on the shitter.

With the review of the West that left the last land of Westeros. The Iron Islands. That land of anachronistic ideas and customs. In many ways those islands seemed like they belonged to some far off continent. Their customs were unique.

She did not think much of Euron. To the Queen he was just a piece of shit. He lacked the intelligence or guile of Tywin. He was base and crass with no couth. He was just a pain in her ass. Theon was the heir to the Iron Islands but reports found him lacking. His sister though, Asha, had possibilities. Daenerys had kicked the Iron Islanders’ asses once and would so again if needed.

Solaja Xo longed to fight them. She wanted to pit her fleet against theirs. The admiral crowed how her Swan ships would crush the Iron Islands ships. While the outcome was sure to the Queen’s mind she had other concerns.

She wanted to avoid wars where she could but she might make an exception in this case. She would have to see if Euron made too much trouble. The man was stupid enough to force the Queen’s hand. If he did then he would be crushed. If he did not learn the lessons of Essos then he would deserve his fate. When Daenerys Targaryen made a decision to be ruthless that was a terrible thing to behold.

Daenerys heard her lover laughing and she snapped out of her reverie. She would revisit her thoughts on House rulers another time. Daenerys saw that they had reached a waypoint and were taking a break on the march.

She looked over where Arya was looking. She saw that Oberyn was changing out the spear he had on the metal contraption he had devised on his head. One of his stewards rode off to put the spear away. Arya glared at the man wondering if he was going back to the cinnamon trick. Oberyn winked at her. Daenerys saw her lover relax. She was trusting Oberyn to not hurt Nymeria again.

“Oberyn has seen that Nymeria likes to run off after we stop at midday and sniff the surrounding environment. Let’s see what happens?!” Arya asked with an evil glint in her eyes. She did not mind seeing her wolf get her comeuppance in her war of wits with Oberyn and his spear. Oberyn was making a show of talking to one of his generals.

A few minutes later Nymeria came loping in from the east. Nymeria saw Oberyn talking intently to the general. The wolf stood their surveying the situation. Oberyn was vulnerable. The Queen and Arya could see the gears turning in Nymeria’s head. The column formed up again and began its march up the King’s Road.

Nymeria had slunk away to the rear of the column and now came up the column slowly. Her lips quivering in anticipation as she worked up the column. Her body slunk low her tail out behind her stiff with anticipation. She would slink up a few horses and then stop and look intently at Oberyn and then slink up a few more horses. Her ears were back against her head and her tail twitching as she closed in. Oberyn was talking to the rider beside him.

Nymeria had slunk to within striking range. Then she was leaping through the air and snatched the spear at the highest point of her leap. The spear came off the contraption on Oberyn’s head as the wolf landed and slashed its head back and forth in triumph. The wire holder was flung off into the grass. Suddenly, the wolf was snapping her head around. The spear broke but hung limply out of each side of the Direwolf’s mouth. Nymeria tried to spit the spear down but the spear seemed to be stuck in her mouth. She wiggled her head hard but the concoction had her mouth gummed up.

The wolf’s head worked up and down as the thick taffy like material stuck to her teeth and gums.
The wolf tried to howl her rage but they were muffled with her mouthful of taffy gunk.

Oberyn was laughing his ass off and pointing at the Direwolf and heaped ridicule down on the Direwolf. Of course Nymeria took it all in a foul bad mood. She was trying to bark furiously and was terribly frustrated in doing so. This of course led Nymeria to doing her now patented flips and wild rolls on the ground her feet kicking wildly in the air. The large wolf doing pivots on the ground with her kicking legs. Nymeria rubbing her snout in the grass working the taffy out of her mouth.

It seemed as if this contest of wills had no end in sight. Each victory or defeat urging the contestants on.

Looking at her young lover the Queen felt her heart beating faster. She so loved her young wolf. She again thought how lucky her life was to have Arya Stark come into it. They were so compatible. She had her warrior Queen to sit beside her on the Iron Throne. If she could get her to sit there. During high ceremonies she would sit in her armor beside Dany on the Iron Throne. She doubted she would be able to convince Arya to spend any more time up on that dais.

The family line of the Starks generally did not clamor for adulation. They were happy to keep to the shadows and do their duty. They would even let others take the credit. That was not Daenerys Targaryen’s way!

Dany gnawed her lip. Arya was getting excited. She knew that her brother waited for her at the Wall. She had commented several times that she and Jon were the Starks of the children of Eddard Stark. All the others had the Tully look about them. The newborns had the angles of the Starks on their faces but had the blue eyes of House Tully. The truth of the statement was evident in the difference between Sansa and Arya. If one did not know they were sisters you would not believe they were related. They could marry and live as wife and wife and no one suspect they were incestuous sisters.

Dany could not blame her wife for being so excited to see her brother. Arya told the Queen many times now that Robb had been good to Jon growing up but he would not fight his mother on her making Jon sit with the commoners. He did not like it but he said nothing. Sansa had been in her own world of princes back then. It was not till Margaery came into her life that Sansa discovered her inner strength. Until Margaery appeared Sansa had been spineless. Bran had been too young to know the conflict in the Stark household.

It had been Arya defending Jon and Jon helping Arya reach for her dreams before any other. He had given Arya Needle despite the taboo of doing so. Eddard was just beginning to realize that his daughter was filled with the same wolf as his sister. To the man’s everlasting credit Eddard allowed those dreams to take root and in time came to nurture the girl’s dreams and ambitions. Eddard had determined that he would not let the same thing occur to his daughter as had happened to his sister. That proved to Daenerys the greatness of Eddard Stark. He totally threw convention to the wind.

The Queen doubted that any other noble father would have done it. Again Eddard Stark showed his greatness in the little things. He had seen what happened to his sister and made sure that history did not repeat itself with his daughter. He learned from history. So many did not.

They continued to march down the King’s Road. Daenerys knew she needed to have her talk with Arya about the fact that Jon was in fact her own nephew. That his father was Rhaegar Targaryen and his mother Lyanna Stark. It was from the mother that the Stark look came from and not Eddard Stark, Arya’s father. Arya’s father using that fact to play out a deception against Robert Baratheon and his insane fear of all things Targaryen. A fear aimed at a young innocent girl in Essos.

She had delayed imparting this hidden knowledge to Arya about as long as she could. She had two more nights in the future to tell Arya the truth. She hesitated because the girl was so enamored with the past of House Targaryen. She was especially smitten with the stories of the conquest of Westeros. With how Aegon flew in from Dragonstone with his two sisters Visenya and Rhaenys Targaryen. Sisters the brother was married to.

The sigil of the house that was emblazoned on the standard for her House symbolized this. The red three headed dragon on black background. The very symbol representing the incestuous paring of the siblings. House Targaryen practiced the traditions of the Great Houses of old Valyria. Her House had been the least of the Houses of the old empire but they had practiced the same tradition of marrying within the family that the Great Houses had followed. To keep the lines pure and to help to reduce the wars for succession. Love, Daenerys knew usually had little to do with the pairings. The unions usually politically motivated.

The kingdom of Valyria kept all the other nations beat down. They ensured their dominance with brutality against all possible foes. The main threats to the dynasties of old Valyria came from within. The battles for succession when dragons were involved led to great destruction and high mortality rates. The belief that if siblings married this would reduce such wars. It did reduce the wars but not entirely. House Targaryen knew all about that with the War of Dragons.

Yes, Daenerys knew she had to finally tell Arya this. With Arya’s love for the old stories she knew what the tradition of Valyria was with royal lines and their marriage practices. It was expected that close family members were to marry. Daenerys had had her fill of following traditions and following the rules for marrying off women in noble houses like cattle.

The Queen felt her face contort. She had read how her own mother been forced to marry her brother. The man who was Daenerys father. The Valyrians took the practice of forced marriage to a higher level. It was known that neither had wanted to marry the other. The Queen now smiled. She could just see Sansa and Arya being forced to marry each other when they were young. They would have been found dead the morning after their Bedding Ceremony. The two having strangled each other in their marriage bed. Yes. For many, marrying a sibling could be a recipe for disaster.

The Queen focused again on her future. She would never be chattel again. She had come to detest the traditions of treating women like property. She had been sold off like a heifer. Then she had married to help her conquest of Essos. Then she had considered marrying a man yet again to help in her conquest of Westeros. The poor boy who had come to her had instead gotten himself roasted by her dragons. The boy had been an innocent really.

The old ways would be ending soon if she had her way. Daenerys would go to war on this if she must. She prayed it did not come to this. Maybe, with men like Eddard, Oberyn and now, even Stannis, she could achieve her goals by cajoling and subterfuge. Not all of the games of the Game of Thrones had to be so violent.

There was another reason why she would not lie with Jon. She was gay. She was in a position that she would never again be compelled to sleep with anyone other than whom she choose. In the past she had lain with men because she must. She was compelled by tradition and convention to give her body to men she had detested. Khal Drogo had proven to not be so bad she supposed. In his own Dothraki way he did have a gentle side. Still, he had been but a tool to Daenerys when she had achieved her true stature. Her second husband, Hizdahr zo Loraq, well, the less thought about him the better. Poor Quentyn Martell was in above his head.

That was all the past now.

She had her wife now and she would never sleep with anyone else. The idea of laying with a man made her skin crawl. She could be true to herself now. She had fought too hard and sacrificed too much to reach this point. She had achieved her might for this moment. To throw convention to the wind and take the mate she had chosen. Never again would anyone tell Daenerys Targaryen who to marry.

She had seen the reports form Varys and Olenna. The whispers in some Noble Houses especially in the Stormlands and the Crownlands. These were lands most closely aligned with House Targaryen. There were some whispers in Dorne as well that anyway to make the lines more pure for the succession of the throne was paramount. These Houses were stuck in the past Daenerys groused to herself.

There was talk of finding the most pure Blackfyre decedents to be her king. There were many of pure Valyrian blood in the world. They were just not from the High Noble Houses of that doomed land. These nobles had stayed close to home. When Valyria had exploded they had perished with it. It was in those lines that the magic had run the strongest. She laughed at such thoughts of those who wanted Daenerys to marry a white hair just because they had the right color hair and eyes.

There was more to it than just marrying the ‘right man’. She hated the thought of women as breeding stock. They wanted to make the choice of who Daenerys Targaryen would marry. This was the plight of women across the world except in a few enlightened cultures such as the Summer Islanders. In Westeros and most of Essos women had no choice in who they were married off too. The common girl was chattel. It was even worse for the high born noble women. They were married off for purely political reasons to men they most often came to detest. Married solely to produce male heirs and belittled if the issue was girls instead of boys.

She felt her blood pressure rising at just the thought of it.

Now with word of Jon’s true lineage slowly leaking out the rumors were increasing. A true heir had been found. He may not be of pure blood but with Jon’s transformed look he looked the part. Those whispered thoughts would soon become a deluge openly spoke when the truth was fully revealed. Eddard saw no reason to hide it anymore. Robert Baratheon was out of the picture. He was tired of the lie he had been forced to live for nearly twenty years.

Eddard had fully rejected the past ways of Westeros. He had allowed both of his daughters to pursue their true desires and marry a woman. He would no longer hide Jon’s lineage. He would fully support Jon in his choices. Jon may only be Eddard’s nephew by lineage but he was Eddard’s son where it mattered most. In Eddard’s heart. Daenerys knew Jon felt the same towards Eddard Stark.

Daenerys also knew that having children with Jon would be playing with fire. It did not matter that she was barren. The forces of tradition would hope for an heir. A male heir. Could not those wanting purity of bloodlines understand that her line had become unstable at best. It was a good thing she was now barren. The insanity of her family line needed to stop with her. Her father had been killed by Jaime because of it. Her brother was dead because of the taint. She feared what any child of her body might become. If the blood was made more pure by sleeping with Jon she knew the chances of having a scion like her father or brother to deal with would grow many fold.

No. All the reasons of logic and nature said ‘no’ to marrying Jon Snow. She had her heir in Kiserri. Her daughter was smart and fierce. If a little inept at her age with her physical prowess. That would come. She had a big heart. Her daughter had a good heart.

Daenerys had fallen in love with the girl on the march into the Red Wastes because of the girl’s pure heart. Arya and she would teach Kiserri what she needed to become Queen one day. They would encourage the good in Kiserri and teach her to overcome the base impulses all children had. Children were not born angels for sure. To survive in the wild animals had to be selfish. Children were born with that instinct. Some had it more than other. Witness Joffrey Baratheon. She had Arya to help the Queen make sure to teach Kiserri the right way.

No, she would never lay with Jon Snow. She would only lie with his sister.

She continued down the road. Yes. She would probably tell Arya tonight. She had delayed long enough. She would ally any fears that Arya had and she would have to process it quick with Jon only being a day away. She had delayed long enough. She hated the idea of putting any hurt in Arya’s heart. She knew Arya would be insecure with this knowledge but she was sure she could handle it.

Handling conflicts were her specialty.

---

Arya

Arya was happy as she road down the King’s Road. She was till surprised a little that she had achieved all of her dreams. Since her early childhood, she had always been enamored with the dragon lords of House Targaryen. Even with the dragons having died out she was still fascinated with the tales of how Prince Aegon had come to Westeros and conquered it with his dragons. And the part that had truly captured her imagination? His two sisters who had been his wives also. The whole concept even as a little girl had thrilled Arya. Warrior women had always excited Arya.

Arya remembered the stories she first heard and then read growing up. How Aegon had married Visenya Targaryen out of duty and Rhaenys Targaryen out of love. It had seemed all so romantic to her childhood heart. That had changed as she got older and better understood her own heart and her own desires. Arya had changed the narrative to the sisters marrying out of love and marrying Aegon out of duty. Of course the sisters would want to marry each other and not the brother Arya reasoned. Why would a woman marry a man when she could marry a woman Arya thought in her heart in secret as she grew into adolescent.

She saw her thoughts were unique. With her limited world she saw no woman like herself. She saw the way of the world and kept her desires hidden away. Sansa had seemed the epitome of what she detested in submitting to men. It had definitely fueled their rivalry and bickering.

Arya smiled great big. Now she knew her sister was a lesbo like herself. Hell she was even more so!

That was her desire. To be with women. Now with only one woman now that she had captured the Queen’s heart and she hers. She realized as a little girl she liked her own sex “in that way”. It had been so difficult growing up knowing you are different. It had not helped that Sansa was queen of the straight girl club and was always pining over this or that prince. Her mother was a royal shrew on the subject. It had been very difficult for many years. She and Jon had much too commensurate about.

Arya still could not believe really that her childhood fantasies had indeed become the truth. Visenya and Rhaenys had indeed been the pair that married out of love. It had been the need to give an heir to the Targaryen line had been the only reason that they married their brother. Tradition had trumped all in the end. The need for an heir. Arya wondered if their mother, Valaena Velaryon, was as much as a shrew as her own mother about performing ones duty.

By the old gods Arya had hated that refrain growing up. Her duty to marry a man she knew nothing about. It was playing with fire. Would the man be like Jon or Robb or would he be like that shit Joffrey Baratheon or maybe a Greyjoy shit. Theon was okay, barely, but his father and uncles were pure assholes from what she heard.

Worse, what if she didn’t want to marry a man! What if she wanted to marry a woman! Her early years had been filled with fear of being forced to marry a man. She had picked up early on through her mother’s words and actions what her destiny was to be.

She again thanked her father silently for seeing beyond all the social norms of the world he had grown up in. Her father was not loquacious but on their ride to the Wall she had come to understand that the experiences of his sister Lyanna had greatly shaped his thinking. He had seen the grief and harm it caused a whole generation of people in Westeros. Being a great man he had changed his thoughts and actions. Her father had been willing to change the very root of his id and being.

With Lyanna not being allowed to follow her heart, the result had led to the death of many great men and the killing of so many innocents. True, Lyanna had been selfish in following her desires but Arya thought her aunt had almost been forced into her rash actions. Her strong will needed expression. Unfortunately, that expression had led to disastrous results. It had led Robert Baratheon to take the throne when he was unfit for it. He had only become a drunken fool that had spent the continent into nearly unrecoverable debt. It had put the Lannister’s almost on the throne.

Arya paused in her thoughts. Tyrion had proven himself to be a great benefice to the Queen. He was smart, wily and totally loyal. Jamie and Cersei when allowed to be free of their father and in Cersei’s case had been allowed to pursue her dreams they had changed into great people from all accounts. She knew her father was still having a hard time accepting it but Arya had no problem with it. She knew all about dreams being suppressed.

She turned her thoughts to Jon. A smile came over Arya’s face. She had always been attracted to Jon the most out of all her siblings. Probably a case of misery loves company. Both Jon and Arya were made to feel like outsiders by their mother. Jon because he was her father’s bastard child and Arya because she refused to be like Sansa.

Jon had fled to the Wall to get away from Catelyn Stark. She could never be a mother to Jon. It had pained Arya no end to see Jon hurt so. He always took it with such good grace and that had only rankled Arya all the more. Arya had wanted Jon to rage at his situation. She had wanted to rage. To be put into a box you never wanted to be in was a crime no child should have to endure. Their mother had made their lives cruel and unsettled.

Arya had been happy that Jon had been able to flee his situation. It might have been the Night’s Watch with all that that entailed but it had been escape. Arya had not been allowed that option even. She had truly felt trapped when she was a little girl. Her father had only slowly and subtly given his daughter the freedom to pursue the sword and the bow. He had slowly given her more and more leeway and ran interference with Arya’s mother. He had done it so deftly that Arya’s mother had been helpless against Eddard subtle manipulation in allowing Arya to pursue her dream.

Thank the old gods that Sansa had fallen in love with Margaery. When she stopped bleating about wanting to marry some prince or another and instead became more and more defiant about not wanting to be paired up with whatever male heir her mother wanted Sansa to consider had the tide truly changed. It had begun over time to divide her mother’s attentions. She could no longer focus on only Arya. Sansa was smarter than Arya had been. Sansa had used guile and subterfuge to throw her mother off the scent she now realized.

Maybe being a master at the Game of Thrones was not such a bad thing. Her father and Dany had proven that.

They rode on into the afternoon as the sun started to angle towards the western horizon. The air was definitely colder as they approached the Wall but it invigorated Arya. She enjoyed it thoroughly. Arya had been bred to love this cold weather. She feared that she may not get to experience this biting cold much more in her life.

Her life would be in the South of Westeros in King’s Landing. She would be become an adult of the South and forced to leave behind the North of her youth. It was a trade she would gladly make to be with her wife the Queen of Westeros. Dany made it clear that that they would be visiting Winterfell often to ameliorate Arya’s loss. She liked that idea.

_Having dragons was rad!_ A trip that took months could be done easily in less than four days with dragons. Hopefully, they could get Arya’s family to ride dragons to King’s Landing. The Queen did have three dragons!

It was a big advantage to have as your wife the Queen of Westeros. A Queen who had dragons! They kicked ass. It was roughly a little over two thousand miles from King’s Landing to Winterfell by the King’s Road. If making ten miles a day by a caravan of royal drawn carriages it would take roughly three and half months and that was if the weather was good. Rainy weather and the gods only knew how long the trip would take.

That was a concern that Arya and her Queen did not have to worry about. Drogon could easily do forty-five miles per hour and not tax himself. That was three and half days if they traveled ten hours a day. If speed was at a premium then the journey could be shortened to little more than two days but Drogon would be taxed. She would prefer not to tire out the dragon if there was no true need. Drogon would meet his mother’s need but she would not ask him of it. This all meant she would be able to see her parents and sibling often. Those that stayed at Winterfell.

Bran had gone to the Tree of Life and only the gods knew when he might return. Dany had told Arya as they lay in bed cuddling after mind blowing sex that she would have Sansa and Margaery come to King’s Landing to join them. Their intelligence and acumen was too great to let waste in the North.

She had hesitated the first time she said that.

“I mean no offense … it’s just that I can much better use their talents if they are at King’s Landing. I have spoken to Sansa and Margaery and they agree.”

Arya had put her finger to her love’s lips. She told Dany she was happy to have Sansa come back with them to King’s Landing. Arya too agreed that Sansa and Margaery had talents that could best be used in King’s Landing. There would be no problem between the sisters. The rancor between sisters had long ago dissipated and ameliorated. She actually liked Sansa now. She liked Margaery.

Arya had seen how Sansa and Margaery looked at the two of them when they thought she was not looking. She had asked Daenerys soon after their trek started up the King’s Road.

“Dany … I have to ask. My sister has become quite … um—liberated with Margaery. I have seen how they look at us. They want us. Both of us. I don’t want to share you Dany. I am a one woman—woman Dany. They are beautiful but I only want you. Am I enough for you Dany? You are so beautiful. You have the beauty that the minstrels sing of. I know you have slept with many women.” Her voice was a little unsure.

Dany and her had fucked hard and were soaked in sweat and cum. Arya had thought her body was satiated along with her lover. Dany was pressed into her side and her head tucked underneath her chin. The next moment Arya was thrust onto of her back. She looked up as Dany gripped her hair hard and stared down at her with those gods beautiful lilac eyes. She saw again the pale thin scar that ran from hair line down her face to her jaw. It only added to her beautiful allure. She was beautiful and an avatar of death. She was the conqueror of Essos and Westeros and the Queen had chosen her, Arya Stark, as her mate.

“I want only you Arya Stark. All other women’s beauty pales before your perfection. You were created by the gods from the dust of this mortal coil for only one woman. ME! All of the other women in my past pale when compared to you Arya. It is you I want. No other!” Dany hotly declared.

Dany had kissed her with such fire and passion that all her doubts were obliterated. Dany kissed her deeply. Her tongue ramming down Arya’s throat again and again as Dany humped her like a bitch in heat. Arya felt her body sing and revive and filled with renewed fuck hunger. They were in a lover’s clench rolling around on their furs. Their bodies pulled tight and legs hooked over ankles.

Soon Arya was on her back with her legs pushed wide and back. Dany was between her legs her face buried deep in her gash eating her out with a feverish intent. She sucked Arya off three times hard back to back. Her cunt was already exhausted and the first two tore her cunt inside and scalced Arya in fiery searing spasms of fucking bliss. Each pulse of cum sloshing down her fuck canal scalced her with agonizing pleasure. Her cunt was on fire and it burned so fucking good.

Arya was still convulsing with supper strong aftershocks when Dany again sucked her clit deep into her mouth and hooked it with her lips and jetted it in and out her sensual lips while her tongue polished its shiny tip. Dany rammed fucked her pussy with her right hand. The fingers plunging deep into the sloshing pussy hole. The fingers ramming in to the third knuckle fully burying themselves in Arya’s trim.

Then Dany slowed and pulled her fingers back slightly and started to make wild come hither motion with those fingers. The fingertips then alternated with a strong furious back and forth rubbing that gigged and harpooned Arya’s spongy g-spot. It drove Arya wild when Dany moaned how she could feel Arya’s raspy g-spot. Dany looking up at Arya as she roughly rasped her fingertips over Arya’s g-spot.

Arya watched Dany slowly lower her head all the while keeping their eyes locked. Dany slowly sucked Arya’s clit between her lips. The Queen started to suck voraciously on Arya’s clit while she jetted it in and out her sensual lips. The Valyrian rasped her tongue over Arya’s clit like a carpenter working a piece of piece of wood in a lathe.

Arya’s screams of agonized blistering ecstasy tore through the night. She was up on the balls of her feet her ass high off the furs that Dany supported with one hand the other hand piston hard forward and back still rubbing and compressing hard into her spongy g-spot. Arya could hear her cunt now slurping and splattering cum everywhere as it was hammer fucked. Dany’s knuckles slamming into her muff the shockwaves going straight to her shrieking clit being hard sucked in her lover’s mouth.

The pleasure had risen out of Arya’s belly in shocking convulsions of womb rending bliss. Dany had been watching Arya’s face intently up on her left elbow. Her lilac eyes locked with Arya’s steel grey eyes. Arya felt her face scrunching up and her breathing was deep and ragged. Her whole body shook all over. Her toes started to curl and her fingers clenched handfuls of the sheets.

“Oh gods Dany … I’m going to cum again so fucking hard!” Arya gasped her body going rigid as hard pulses roiled out her belly and pulsed through her throbbing clit and now flooding pussy. Dany’s fingers working her g-spot making sloshing watery sounds in Arya’s cunt. Arya was breathing like a bellows with sweat pouring off her face and body. Her neck weakened and her head thudded down onto the furs.
Both hand flew down to the blonde’s head and clenched in. Arya’s eyes squeezed shut tight. Her face crumpled in the agony of ecstasy. Arya rode Dany face up and down and in and out grinding Dany’s mouth down onto her clit that was now shrieking. Then her world exploded as her body orgasmed with a soul crushing orgasm of womb exploding bliss.

Arya screamed and her eyes rolled back into her head as her cunt was ripped inside out agonizing inch by inch her blood on fire. She had both hands in Dany’s hair wallowing Dany’s face deep into her immolating cunt. Dany was making wet obscene sucking noises. Her head lifting and jacking in and out stretching Arya’s clit in its clitoral hood. Hammering blows of fucking bliss after fiery shockwave of bliss tore through the teenager’s body. Arya’s body convulsed hard with each searing wave pummeling Arya with bliss. Her legs scissoring on each side of Dany’s legs. Her heels kicking the Queen’s legs randomly in helpless pleasure.

Her plum nipples hammered Arya with harsh pulses or scorching bliss. Each hard pulse felt to Arya like her nipples might threaten to burst in fiery eruptions of pure fucking euphoric pulses. Arya fainted into a half conscious state while her body still flipped hard up and down her toes curled in agony and her fingers clawed hard into Dany’s scalp. Dany whinnied and moaned drinking down the copious cum that was wicking up into her mouth. Dany felt the waves of cum pouring out Arya’s pussy.

Dany pulled her fingers out of the splattering pussy and moved her mouth down to drink the nirvana that poured out Arya’s fuck hole and into her greedy mouth. Dany felt the cum she could not drink down trickle down her cheeks and chin. Her throat made obscene gulps as she drank down every precious drop of Arya’s sweet cum she could get on her tongue and in her mouth.

When Arya could think again she was enfolded in Dany’s arms as she rested her cheek on Dany’s firm soft breast. Dany stroked her sweat soaked body. “Let that show you my pure love that burns only for you Arya. You are the only woman for me. I have never loved any woman as I love you. Never.”

Arya had floated on a sweet cloud of delightful lassitude of pure love. Dany was hers. No woman could come between them. When Dany made love to Arya with such focus and love Arya could not doubt the Queen’s words. She did not doubt the purity of Dany’s love. Arya had indeed achieved all her childhood dreams.

A raptor’s call brought Arya out of her reflections. She looked up and saw a Kite flying off with a dove in its grasp. She saw feathers floating down from where the Kite had struck its prey. Arya smiled. She loved watching nature. Predator and prey. The cycle of life.

The sun was getting lower in the sky. They would be at the next camp in a few hours. Arya looked around and took in the land of the birth. It was beautiful. Arya simply enjoyed the North. The land was still so primeval here in the North. She supposed the Kingswood was still wild and untamed in its heart but it was not like in her homeland. The whole land was still wild and untamed and human habitations were the oddity in the landscape.

The inverse was true further south.

Arya enjoyed how the shadows still had life her in the North. Mighty and fell creatures still lived deep in the Wolf’s wood. The legends still held truth in the North.

The sun continued onwards with its march to the western horizon. The air was cooling with the sun’s angled light. Arya watched as crows and ravens came flying down into a stand of trees. The birds flying in crazy circles as they prepared to roost. The sight was pretty. The birds seeming wild in their flight but they never collided into each other. As the light weakened the birds began to fly into the trees to roost.

The shadows lengthening as the trees and low rolling hilltops sent long shadow sentinels across the King’s Road. The next camp was not too far distant now.

The march continued on towards the next camp. She began to notice a change in Nymeria. Her great Direwolf was not agitated with fear Arya thought but something had put a tension into Nymeria’s body. She was pawing the ground as she walked fast to keep pace. She was constantly staring off into the distance down the King’s Road. Her tail held low. The long hair of her shoulder girdle standing up. This went on for ten minutes.

Soon Grey Wind joined her wolf. Grey Wind barred his teeth as he looped on the side of Arya’s Direwolf. Nymeria snapped at Grey Wind her teeth barred. Grey Wind snarled and snapped back. The Direwolves’ dander was up. Robb came riding up.

“Has Nymeria been acting funny the last ten minutes?”

“Yes she has Robb.”

As they spoke Lady came looping up to her two littermates. She often rode up on the wagon her master rode in lounging on the box seat and the foot rest beside the driver dozing. Lady was not one much for prowling the countryside smelling the wilds around her. Lady had her nights out but she clearly preferred to be with Sansa and Margaery. She preferred to be near her masters most of the time. Many nights the gentle Direwolf slept in Sansa’s wagon somehow sleeping through the antics of Sansa and Margaery.

That was not the case now. Now Lady had joined Nymeria and Grey Wind. She was looking around and then down the King’s Road with an intense focused gaze. She was excited but not showing the agitation of her littermates. Again Arya noticed how sweet and calm Lady was compared to her other brothers and sisters. Whatever her brother and sister had sensed Sansa’s Direwolf also sensed it but Lady remained her sweet self.

Her father also attuned to the Direwolves had reigned his horse back from the head of the column. He looked at the three Direwolves curiously.

“I wonder what has gotten into them. Has Oberyn come up with some new devilish torment that has Nymeria riling up her siblings?”

Arya snorted “No father. They were pissed off with each other yesterday for some reason but today has been quiet between the two. I don’t know. They keep looking forward toward the camp we are approaching I think. I wonder what they sense.”

Dany had been conversing with Lustra and Brail who were riding back about one hundred yards from Arya. She had ridden up to see what had the Direwolves acting strange. Dany came up beside Arya and leaned over and kissed Arya on the lips sweetly.

Arya felt a warmth flush through her being. She loved it that Dany did not hesitate to show her affection towards Arya in front of others. She kissed her back and played with her long flowing white hair. Dany pulled back and Arya saw her father looking forward with a small squint smile. He was still the eternal prude but Arya was learning to loosen up. She had to catch up to Sansa!

They watched the Direwolves looping forward with tension in their body. Grey Wind and Nymeria were snapping at each other. Lady even had her hair on end.

Then they saw a large shape running towards them. The Haruchai had not sounded the alarm and with the many forces of the Queen patrolling their flanks it could not be a danger. Still it was a large animal running at them at a good clip.

They watched the shape gradually grow larger.

“Well I will be damned” Eddard softly intoned.

Arya broke out into a big smile when she finally recognized what she saw fast approaching. The large white shape was now sprinting forward and the three Direwolves of the Starks were howling and running around in circles. The snow white Direwolf running towards them looked at his pack mates and their masters with his large red eyes. Ghost had come to greet his brother and two sisters.

Arya felt elation run through her. If ghost was here then her brother could not be far away. Her brother had come out from the Wall to see his family and to greet the Queen. Her favorite brother and Lord Commander of the Crows was no more than a mile or mile and half away. She felt elation surging through her body.

Dany looked on amazed at the size if Ghost. Even though Nymeria was a female she was bigger than Grey Wind or Shaggydog. She was an alpha in every way. Ghost came up to his long separated brothers and sisters and Arya saw that Ghost had grown mighty indeed. He was a full hand and half taller at the shoulders than Nymeria. His body thicker and stronger. Ghost had grown to become a force of nature to be reckoned with.

The three Direwolves who greeted Ghost where whining in their excitement and giving off short howls of wolf pleasure. The wolves ran around each other yipping. Arya saw that Ghost was still silent even though he was making the yipping motions with his head. The wolves then settled down and sniffed each other like canines do taking in their scent and reacquainting themselves with each other. The circling wolves sniffing each other’s cheeks and ass where their scent glands were located.

Arya in her excitement had urged her horse forward to get closer to the Direwolves. They were so happy to see each other. One thought kept going through Arya’s mind. My brother is near! My brother is near! He must be at the camp. The thought ran through Arya that thrilled her to her core. After all these years I will finally get to see Jon once more. Arya had feared she would never see him again.

Arya looked behind her and saw that her father had his soft smile on his face seeing the Direwolf reunion. The wolves were sniffing hard now and Ghost jerked his massive head back down the King’s Road in the direction from which he had come from. She looked over at Dany and saw her chuckling at the wolf’s antics. Nymeria was snapping her jaws. Nymeria would always be aggressive Arya supposed.

Suddenly, the reconstituted pack went tearing off down the King’s Road heading due north. Lady had hesitated a moment looking back at the wagon that Sansa was in. Then she too took off down the King’s Road chasing after her brethren. Arya laughed seeing the Direwolves running down the King’s Road full of life and gaiety.

Arya made a snap decision. She kicked her horse in the flank and the horse bolted down the road. She was laughing and riding high in her stirrups urging her horse on. She was so close. She whooped and felt the cold air rushing over her face exhilarating her. Her shoulder length brown hair whipping behind her in the breeze.

She looked back seeing her father and Dany talking looking at each other. They would arrive when they arrived. She had a brother to see! She urged the horse on. She spied Jeertel on her mighty Ranyhyn steed Frohnyn quickly catching up. The horse from the Plains of Ra easily closing the distance with no effort.

The King’s Road made a slow turn to the left and she saw the day’s camp come into view. It was filled with pin yards for horses that needed care. Livestock pins for pigs and goats for fresh meat and she saw chickens flying lazily in the air with others that were picking scratch at the edge of the encampment.

The wolves were running in their long looping strides; all four paws leaving the ground in their long ground eating strides. The wolves disappeared into the camp. Arya smiled at the wolves. It was so good to see Ghost again. It reminded Arya of the few happy moments they had had as a whole family. Each Stark child with their own Direwolf that seemed meant just for their new owners. She let the horse slow its pace slightly as the beast began to sweat and slaver.

She was in the camp now and slowed her pace and let the horse walk down the King’s Road between the many tents. She spotted Nymeria and Grey Wind running around the fields to the left barking and jumping around. The camp attendants did not react. They had obviously grown accustomed to Ghost.

Then she saw Lady by a large tent sitting down panting and looking around curiously. She got off her horse and a Dothraki horse tender took the reins. Arya smiled at the man. She ran off towards the tent. She was so close to seeing Jon!

Arya reached the tent and patted Lady on the head. The gentle Direwolf had gotten up and came to Arya’s side. She rushed into the tent with Lady by her side. She looked around. Across the tent she saw Ghost. She saw the two wives of Jon. They were beside a man with white blond hair like Dany’s. Why were they talking to a Valyrian and what was such a man doing in their camp.

There was something strangely familiar about the man though. That was strange.

The tall ShadowBender witch turned her head slightly and smiled at Arya with a shy smile. She reached out and touched the man beside her. The man looked at her and then turned his head around. The smaller woman followed suite.

Arya felt a roar in her ears. No this was no possible. What was going on!

“Sister!” the man shouted with elation “Arya it has been so long!” The man was coming towards her. She stared aghast at the man who both did and not look like Jon her brother. What was this? His hair was silver. He was closer now. NO! His eyes were the same color as Dany’s. They were lilac.

“Your eyes Jon … your hair” Arya spoke in a small shocked voice.

“I know. I had not expected that when I took my walk in fire. It was your wife to be that gave me the idea. Her walk that gave her, her dragons. I had not expected my hair to turn white and my eyes to turn purple. But looking back on it, it makes perfect sense. Rhaegar was my father.”

“Father?”

“Yes. You know that.”

Arya heard the tent flap being ripped back and loud rustling sounds. She turned back around. Daenerys stood there with a fearful look on her face. She looked guilty! She felt her anger igniting. Had everything Dany said been subterfuge. She only mentioned loving women. She had said she would never lie with a man again. Then why had she mentioned the change in Jon and the … the fact that he was her nephew!

Then her father bolted into the room his hair disheveled. Eddard did a quick scan of the inside of the command tent. A look of bewilderment and consternation came onto his face. He looked at Jon with his steady calculating eyes, then Daenerys and then finally at Arya. He turned back to look at Daenerys. He had a sad look on his face.

“You haven’t told her?” Arya watched her father ask the Queen in a scolding tone.

Dany face went scarlet. Arya’s anger boiled into rage.
The tent was warm. The tall witch held her hands out soaking in the warmth. Melisandre stood before the brazier filled with coke that glowed a dull red. She looked down in the embers glowing hot red with bright yellows in the labyrinth of piled coals. Her red eyes focused. The ShadowBender looked at the embers seeing if embers gave visions. With an intense stare she looked at the shimmering coals that seemed to dance in the heat waves radiating up from the brazier. There were no visions. It seemed that the visions only came in actual flames. Melisandre knew this but it would have been nice.

She put her hands down. She did not feel the cold really. Still it was nice to feel the warmth soaking into her pours. She was a priestess of R’hllor and much preferred flames and light than the darkness of night and a dead fire. She looked around the tent with the low bed and furniture put out to sit in. Wooden chairs and tables nicely carved and sturdy but not of a Lord quality’s. Utilitarian. Fit for a military camp.

She turned her head and watched her wife and husband looking at the low table before them that had maps on them. Jon was always analyzing maps and reports. She was not sure why. The man had it all memorized now and any additional information only changed things a fraction. Still he read and planned. It comforted him he told his wives this constant checking of facts and then adjusting his plans to take into account the new information no matter how small the tidbits and insights provided had been. He always had his plans up to date accounting for everything Jon could think of.

Ygritte with her Wildling background was also interested in such things. She would point out something on the maps and then she and Jon would discuss the point before again falling silent studying the maps again. They would read all the scrolls and parchments trying to glean new insights. Such things actually bored Melisandre. She was not a tactician or general. She fought the small battles that made great victories possible. She fought battles and not campaigns.

Melisandre turned back to the fire. The war was coming soon. She could feel it. Her senses tried to tell the ShadowBender that the war was still some ways off but her intuition told her otherwise. Her two thousand plus years of life told her otherwise. The Ice King had a plan and it did not entail endless waiting at the Fist of the First Men. He would leave that abode soon. She felt it. Had he already left it? If so, how had he fooled them? She was sure that much of his forces were near. Their enemy hidden in the forest.

The Wall, even if it came down would still be a formidable barrier. If it fell it would still be hundreds of feet tall. If it was melted then it would wash away the host of the enemy. Either way, there would be plenty of time to form up and meet the enemy’s advance. The forces that the Queen had brought up to the Wall were indeed formidable. The allies from the Land were indeed powerful. They had Dragon Glass weapons aplenty. They would be arrayed against the invaders. The traitors would be dealt with most harshly.

Then why did she feel so worried in the marrow of her bones.
She feared the coming conflict. Fear would be controlled. She would meet the challenges of the coming conflict and give her all. She could do no more than this. She and Ygritte would expend their life essences if necessary to help in the defeat of the Ice King, his Wrights and the vast sea of his shambling dead.

She was sure now that would not be required. When she thought of the mighty forces that would be well armed with dragon glass, fire and iron she didn’t really see how they could be defeated. They had dragons. True the Ice King had some beast she was sure or maybe magic but it would be three against one. If magic was used it would add to the confusion of war. That would distract the Ice King.

He was a being of magic but he did not seem to be able to project magic himself. His Croyel did this in his stead. She and Ygritte would deal with that foul denizen of the deep if they must. They would kill the vile lithesome thing if given the chance.

Melisandre looked again at her wife and husband. They too were mighty. Her wife was still the most powerful ShadowBender who had ever lived. Ygritte constantly claimed that she, Melisandre, was the greatest but she knew the truth. Jon was even more powerful now that his sword had become Lightbringer. Their shadow monsters were fearsome constructs but their strength would ebb in the heat of battle. Lightbringer had become like onto Valyrian steel but its active magic made it even more deadly. No armor could withstand it. Especially, the ice armor of the Ice Wrights and Giants.

They had seen the Ice King constructing armor after his defeat from the Dragon Queen’s hands. They had seen it was laborious work so few would have such armor. That armor would provide protection but the iron tipped weapons should be able to shatter the Ice Armor. It would take time though and in that time men and women would die.

Melisandre and her wife found that unacceptable. They had sifted through their lore for the right spells. They had then for the last several months when they were at the Wall had the archers bring their quivers loaded with arrows to them. Wagon trains that were moving between the forts had been loaded with their arrows to come back to the witches first.

At night they prepared their spells. Then during the day they walked among piles of arrows neatly stacked and performed their spells. Black writhing clouds of Shadow magic forming above the stacked arrow quivers. The clouds would writhe for a minute as the witches finished their incantations. Then the clouds settled on the stacks of arrows. The mist seemed to coalesce and then melted down the stacks of arrows.

Those gathered to watch murmured and talked among themselves. Even the least superstitious of them knew to fear ShadowBender witches. They eyed the women with suspicion but they were the wives of the Lord Commander. Surely, they were in his service and true in their service to him.

When the black ichor had disappeared the archers went to the stack of arrows and examined them. Each arrow tip now was inscribed with encircling Asshai glyphs.

The archers had taken the arrows to the practice ranges. The archers had taken frozen blocks of ice and set them up to figure how best to strike the ice to break it. It took many normal arrow strikes to begin to fracture the ice and then shatter it. When they fired the glyph inscribed arrows the arrows struck with enhanced force. Instead of only sinking and inch or two the arrows now sunk four to six inches and each strike produce cracks and large chips.

The archers were most pleased and word spread of the work of the witches. The fear was much reduced.
The first magically infused arrows were for the furthest forts to make sure they had the additional weapons necessary to fight the Ice Wrights and their armor if they were encountered away from Castle Black. As the furthest forts were supplied they then sent fresh glyph arrows to the next nearest forts. The witches could work all day inscribing arrows tips. Now they were working on the stockpiles for Castle Black where all assumed the breech in the Wall would be made.

To while away the time black smiths with their forges were producing even more iron tipped weapons in their spare time when finished with daily repairs and the making of daily items necessary for camp life. As they made piles of iron tipped arrows, javelins, pikes and spears the witches put their Shadow runes on them.

They had started to put runes on battleaxes and swords of the fighters deemed their most capable fighters. The glyphs would help with the ice armor and maybe help in killing the undead. The witches were not sure of that not having tested their glyph magic on them. Their shadow weapons and monsters killed all they touched. The Dead would die again. They would not arise a second time.

The Queen and Eddard had also sent blocks of obsidian up to the wall. With the obsidian they had also sent artisans skilled in the making of weapons from the fragile stone. The artisans now made Dragon Glass daggers for those who asked for them. They had also began to make bolts for crossbows for close in combat. They were kept busy making the weapons that would be used as a last ditch weapon if the fighting came to close in combat or hand to hand with the dead or Ice Wrights. They would be a weapon of last resort.

The ShadowBender witches doing all they could to help the forces of Westeros to be able to kill the forces of the Ice King. The common man needed all the assistance they could get. Not so their husband.

Jon’s sword would shatter all before it. It would be his sword that would deliver the death blow to the Ice King. The flames had made that clear. Jon just had to get in the position to deliver the killing blow. The flames were full of confusion and fear. Others would wound the Ice King but it would be Jon’s hand that delivered the killing stroke. The battle would be epic and dire.

Other outcomes were glimpsed. Outcomes of defeat and death to Jon and the forces of Westeros. The witches would do all in their power to have their husband deliver the killing blow to the Ice King. The ShadowBender witches would not let those visions come to pass.

Another vision had come to appear in the flames of late. A wall of yellow and black hate rising from the top of the world and coming South with rage and hunger. A force that would kill all. The two witches saw a green wall rising up to fight the black. The battle epic and titanic. What it meant the two witches had no idea.

Melisandre walked away from the flames and came to stand on their other side of her husband from Ygritte. She looked down at the maps. The pieces of parchment looked the same as the last time she looked at them with Ygritte and Jon. She smiled softly. They kept gnawing at the same facts over and over and no new insights had come. She smiled at the consternation on their faces. She was willing to let the enemy come to them. She would deal with it when the time came.

The Ice King was the aggressor. He would strike the first blow by that right. It was their job to make the counterpunch so devastating that his forces would shatter. Melisandre hoped to do her share of the mayhem.

“He has something planned. I can feel it” Jon spoke plainly.
“We have the Wall Jon” Ygritte answered. “It will do its job. The gods know it worked against the Wildlings. We hated it much as the Ice King.”

Jon nodded. “Yes, but he has magical powers and that Croyel on his back makes those powers even greater. We cannot be sure what powers he may now have. We have read the reports that Lord Lustra gave to my father and he has forward to us. It is just so frustrating to let him get in the first blow unopposed.”

“Yes Jon but we will slaughter his dead army with dragon glass, fire and dragon fire. Without that limitless sea of dead at his back he will be an armored fist without substance. It is the Walking Dead’s weight that gives his army its substance. There numbers and relentless drive to kill the living makes them formidable especially when we could not kill them. We have taken that away from him. It is the Walking Dead that give him the advantage. Your father and the Queen have seen that advantage is no more.”

Melisandre nodded in agreement. She had nothing to say so she kept quiet.

That was when she felt a rush of emotion from outside the tent. She heard the loud barks and yips of wolves. She closed her eyes and felt three other presences similar to Ghost outside the tent. It would seem the Starks had arrived. Melisandre was anxious to see this Arya that Jon spoke so much of. It was so clear that Jon loved his little sister the greatest. It had been the two siblings relying on each other to survive bad times.

She felt the tent flap jerked open and felt a bundle of raw energy behind her. ShadowBender witches were attuned to the strength in the blood of a person. Royals with their purity of bloodlines tended to be so much more powerful than the commoner. Jon had that power. The Queen had even more in her slender frame. Her Valyrian descent had purified that blood and made her a force of nature. It would seem that this Earthpower from the Land had enhanced the Queen’s magic even further.

She felt great power in the body behind her. A power that rivaled that of the Queen. One of the Direwolves had followed the presence in. It had to be Arya. It would seem that the consort of the Queen was mighty in her own right.

She had waited a long time to see the sister of Jon Snow. She turned to look at the sixteen year old girl and smiled at her. She was not short but not tall either. She was at least three inches taller than her sweet Ygritte. She was not slender like Ygritte though. Her body was stocky and filled out with muscle with especially thick legs. She had large shoulders and her forearms were large from her sword work. On her back she carried a sword. Her sharp eyesight saw the Valyrian runes on it and knew that it was that rarest of rare swords. A rune sword.

Even rarer and supposedly impossible the rune sword had been set alight by Arya Stark. That report had filled both Ygritte and herself alight with the possibilities. The sword that had conquered Westeros, “Blackfyr” was now the sword of Jon’s sister. The impossible had happened. That had to be a good import.

Melisandre studied the teenager before her. Her hair was pulled straight back like Eddard Stark tended to wear his hair. Melisandre smiled slightly broader. She liked that. She had the same band in the same position too. Arya mimicked her father, Eddard Stark, in the way she kept her hair back. The tall witch doubted the girl even knew she mimicked her father in this. The teenager’s steel grey eyes scanned the room.

That was when she saw it and felt it too. Confusion. Why? What could cause such a confusion of emotions in the teenage girl? She had finally seen her brother again after nearly six years. Her aurora should be giddy with happiness the witch thought to herself. The new Direwolf came over and sat beside Ghost and they rubbed their muzzles. They were happy to see each other and their auroras showed this. But Arya’s aurora was starting to show agitation for some reason.

Jon’s sister took a step forward but stopped staring at the three of them.

Jon and Ygritte were so focused on looking down at the map they had not felt the commotion about them. Melisandre reached out and touched Jon’s arm getting his attention. Ygritte looked over at her. She used her eyes to let them know they needed to turn around.

Jon saw his sister and exclaimed and went towards Arya with open arms. Something was most definitely not right. Arya face did not mirror radiant happiness that came off Jon like rays of the sun. No. Arya face now looked on at her brother with rising horror. Her face literally aghast.

She mentioned his eyes. Why would she do that? He was half Valyrian. He had walked through the fire and now his true heritage was plain to see to all he allowed to see his true heritage.

Melisandre gasped and Ygritte grimaced when Arya gasped out weakly when Jon recited that his sister should already know this. Melisandre had a sinking feeling. It was becoming painfully obvious that certain truths had been withheld from Arya. Then she saw the look of horror forming on the sixteen year old’s face.

Melisandre paused then. This reaction was too strong. It was a surprise to the young woman but why was her aurora so confused, full of fear and now rising anger. It made no sense. It was all out of proportion to the situation. Melisandre was starting to get upset. She did not like strong negative emotions buffeting her. Ygritte sensing her wife’s distress immediately moved beside her and hugged Melisandre making her feel loved. She now could face the coming cyclone. She could feel the dark emotions swirling out of Arya’s heart.

The Queen burst into the tent. Her face red from exertion. She looked around wildly and then tensed seeing the look on Arya’s face. Arya’s emotions surged up higher Melisandre felt. Now raw anger was boiling in the young woman’s veins. Her frame starting to shake with righteous fury. Again Melisandre wondered what dynamic was at work here. Why the violent negative reaction?

Then Eddard almost stumbled into the tent in his haste. He looked around surveying the scene taking it in. There was confusion, fear and anger swirling in a maelstrom of dark emotions. Jon was confused and flummoxed by this reaction by his sister. He had waited six years almost to see her and now she was radiating out anger towards him. He glanced to his wives for understanding. They had none to give him.

“You haven’t told her?” Eddard asked the Queen with a note sadness and a hint of aspersion. Melisandre felt Arya’s anger flare higher. It was obvious to the ShadowBender that Arya felt like everyone but she knew of Jon’s transformation and true heritage. But for the life of Melisandre she could not understand why it mattered so to Arya. The teenager’s reactions were way out of proportion to the revelation. What was so important about Jon’s lineage?

Melisandre reasoned the girl while an adult was still a teenager. That could be the only explanation. She was surprised to see Daenerys Targaryen indecisive though. The woman was famous for being a decisive dynamo of actions and decisions. Not now. She gnawed her lip and she hesitated and looked back to Eddard for support.

Eddard looked at the Queen and his daughter. He was clearly processing the situation. He looked at the Queen hard. He then looked Arya. She was glaring at the Queen and then her eyes locked with her father.
“When did you know father?” she asked in a low quiet voice.

To Eddard’s credit Melisandre thought, Eddard kept his eyes locked with his daughter. He kept his shoulders square and met his daughter’s ire head on. This man seemed to have the strength to meet any situation. She could see the man trying to form the right answer. She could feel the tension in the air. To Melisandre’s shock Daenerys was actually wringing her hands. Her eyes darting between father and daughter.

“I knew before you left for King’s Landing.” Eddard spoke in a calm voice. His gaze did not waver from Arya’s fiery look.

“And you did not tell me? Your own daughter?” Arya’s tone was hurt and aggrieved.

“I did not think it was important Arya. He came to me shortly before you went south. It was a busy time Arya. I did not foresee this moment else I would have said something to you.”

Arya stared at her father. “Oh my gods” she whispered. “You made Jon suffer for all those years from mother. What the hell were you thinking!” she half yelled at her father. “I see you like keeping secrets. The pain you caused mother … Jon … the pain you are causing me! How could you justify that?!”

“Arya, it is not that simple” Jon interjected.

“Stop it Jon just stop it! You did not even come and see me! As much as I worship you, you did not think enough of me to come and see me!” Arya turned her head to bark savagely at Jon.

“Arya it is not that simple … I needed to keep my identity a secret.”

“Not from me! … Why did you keep it a secret Jon? You know what this means” Arya almost snarled.

The tone had Jon drawing back. He stood still. Jon looked totally confused by the words he was hearing. “Arya—“ “Shut up!” Arya screamed it out. Her voice carried raw hurt and betrayal in it.

“What the hell is going on?!” Jon barked as he looked around with a confused look on his face. Melisandre could see that Jon was totally flummoxed by what going down around him.

Arya turned her attention back to her father “Well father” Arya asked her father.

Again Melisandre admired Eddard. He did not blanch and held his daughter’s eyes. He did not exhibit anger or consternation. Only a sense of focus and calm. Where had this man learned this calm? A storm raged around him, and yet, like the eye of the hurricane he stayed calm.

“Arya” Eddard started “I have nothing to apologize for in the sense of the decisions I had to make with Jon and his parentage. It is clear to me that we cannot talk on this now—“

“Like hell we can’t!” Arya yelled.

“—we will not talk of this at this time daughter. I had to make hard decisions. I did what I had to do to protect Jon, your mother and all my family which included you. Maybe I could have made another decision but at the time I did what I thought I had to do. Robert Baratheon was half crazed when it came to the dynasty of Targaryens. He could not know of Jon’s existence.”
“You could have told mother and then we could have been told us as we became old enough to understand father.”

“I did not think so.”

“You are wrong” Arya stated with certitude.

“I could not take the chance Arya. One slip of the tongue and we call could have died. A truth known by too many is too easy to let slip. I refused to take that chance. Once the lie I had created took root I felt I had to let it continue. The benefit outweighed the wrong. Arya—let the sin be mine.”

“Bullshit! You are playing word games!” Arya then paused. “Oh my gods … you sent me to King’s Landing as a pawn. I was only a Cyvasse piece to you … oh gods …”

Eddard paused at that. He took a deep breath. “I will say that is partially true—“ “Godsdamn!” Arya yelled out.

“That is part of the truth Arya I admit!” Eddard overrode his daughter. “I knew of your desires and the Queen’s proclivities. I took a calculated risk. Bran’s prophecy on his sickbed guided me Arya. ‘The Wolf will lie with the Dragon.’ I knew it was you Arya that would lie with Daenerys. But consider this Arya” Eddard said softly to his daughter. “I sent you to achieve your destiny. I sent you to achieve your dreams. Dreams you have succeed in making reality.”

Melisandre saw the Queen grimace. The tall redheaded witch felt the Queen’s consternation to have her desires taken by Eddard and used against her.

“Oh gods” Arya gasped weakly. Melisandre saw the Queen listing with this information. Arya was shaking with anger.

“You bastard!” Arya snarled softly. The teenager’s face a mask of hurt and anger.

“Arya stop attacking your father!” the Queen suddenly spoke up. Melisandre saw that the Queen was starting recover from her shock. “The fault for not telling you falls to me and not your father. This news of your father’s calculations are jarring but I can see his goals and ambitions. They were noble. He is right. He brought us together and I will always be in his debt for that.”

The Queen looked around. “Your father has been with us true. He has kept his counsel to himself. But— it is I that has been with you. I that has laid with you. You are my woman. I delayed in the inevitable and I am now paying the price.”

Daenerys words caused Arya to turn and face her. Arya’s full focus now back on the Queen.

“What are your plans Dany? Why didn’t you tell me Dany! Did you think me a child incapable of handling the truth?” The look of pain on Arya’s face touched the core of Melisandre’s heart.

“NO! Of course not!” The Queen paused pinching her nose with her fingers clearly gathering her thoughts. “I did not want to ruin the beautiful dynamic we have Arya. I wanted to avoid any conflict with you. I thought I had two more days.”

“You are treating me like a little girl damnit! You treat me as if I might break at the slightest touch! I hate that!”

“I am sorry. I should have been braver.”
"When were you going to tell me that you intended to sleep with my brother while I was expected to raise his heir?" Arya grated out. "Do you think that sleeping with Jon will make your womb quicken Dany? Or did you expect me to sleep with him to give you another heir? Possibly a male heir? The dragon has always had three heads, after all. Was I supposed to just accept this?"

“What?” Dany asked stunned. Her lilac eyes wide in shock at what she had just head from Arya’s mouth.

“What? What are you two discussing?” Jon asked confused. He had slowly edged closer to Arya but now took a step back hearing Arya’s words.

“What the hell Jon Snow?” Ygritte yelled.

Arya spat at the Queen “We all know that the Targaryen line, hell all Valyrian noble houses kept their Bloodlines pure Dany! Is that is why you delayed telling me? Till you and Jon could make some contract. Got to keep those Bloodlines pure don’t we Daenerys.”

“What in the hell are you talking about Arya?!” Jon yelled.

Melisandre heard Jon but now her heart knew doubt. She had not known this about the Noble houses of Valyria. She had studied their magic. She had not studied their culture. Why had Jon not said anything?

The ShadowBender watched Eddard as he studied the dynamics around him. He was letting everyone have their say.

Arya was still focused totally on Daenerys. Her steel grey eyes burning like molten iron ingots.

“Why didn’t you say anything to me Daenerys? Are you trying to make the prophecies come true? I can’t see any other reason why you wouldn’t tell me.”

The Queen’s back stiffened and her royal air that had slipped began to reappear “I make my own destiny Arya. I have told you that more than once. In matter of fact, I have told you that many times. I don’t give a fuck about words. It is actions that matter.”

“Yours were sorely lacking my Queen” Arya spitefully shot back.

Melisandre was simply confused and distraught at all these revelations. Not so her wife. Melisandre felt her wife’s anger taking flame. “Are you planning on marrying Daenerys Targaryen Jon? I didn’t sign up for that!” Ygritte yelled at Jon who was looking all around. His face a seeming mask of confusion and bewilderment at this turn of events. Melisandre wanted to believe Jon. He was acting totally flummoxed at the situation he found himself in. Still, why hadn’t he said anything?

“Who said anything about me marrying Daenerys? I don’t even know the woman. Why would I marry her?”

“For duty Jon. For Bloodlines. To give the Queen an Heir. For you to take the throne. You are before Daenerys in succession” Melisandre solemnly told Jon.

“What the Fuck?! Who said anything about sleeping with anybody … that—that … ahhh … I sleep only with you two damnit! … and I DON’T WANT THE THRONE!” Jon roared.

Melisandre noticed the Queen did not even hear the remark of possible sedition that all sovereigns had to be attuned to. She was focused on Arya.
She had a look of consternation on her face but also resolve. “You are right Arya. I can’t deny it. I did not tell you. But not for the reasons you are thinking. I love you Arya. Totally.”

“Then you would have told me of this. We all know the traditions of the Targaryens. Your family fought more than one war over it.”

“I am not my past” Daenerys riposte. She was no longer wilting under Arya’s assault.

“I refuse to share you with the Queen!” Ygritte roared.

“Who the fuck said anything about me sleeping with anyone but you and Melisandre dammit! Stop yelling at me Ygritte!” Jon shouted back at his agitated wife.

Ygritte glared up at her husband. Melisandre was sure she saw steam coming out her wife’s ears.

“Traditions are a hard thing to shake Dany. You know Westeros will want you and Jon to lie together to produce an heir with direct lineage” Arya grated out to Daenerys.

Jon jumped in “What is so important that I sleep with Daenerys anyways?” Though he was hearing the words they were so foreign to him he could not take them in and process their import.

“So you do want to sleep with her!” Ygritte yelled.

“No I do not! Stop putting words in my mouth Ygritte!” Jon threw his arms up in the air. He glared here and there. “What the fucking hell is going on! Has the world lost its FUCKING MIND!” Jon screamed out.

“Don’t tell me how to think Jon Snow! You know nothing!”

“How could you not tell me Dany?! I deserved to know!” Arya cried out her voice breaking just a little.

Melisandre watched the Queen flinch.

“I’m sorry Arya. I delayed—“

“You should have told me!”

“I know my love—“

“You know the tradition of your House!” Arya screamed at Daenerys.

“I repeat Arya—I am not my family’s past. I have made my own future” the Queen calmly replied. Melisandre knew Daenerys was keeping calm to hopefully calm the hurt in her lover.

“What the hell is going on” Jon roared again.

Eddard spoke up now in his calm voice. “Son. The history books state that Aegon married Visenya out of duty but Rhaenys out of love.”

“So?”

“The Targaryen siblings or close relatives were expected to marry and produce heirs. You are the Queen’s nephew son. Some will say you should marry her and produce heirs to the throne. You are the direct descendent of Rhaegar. Many would say that you should sit on the Iron Throne.”
Melisandre watched her husband process this information. Now anger began to show on his face.

“I am not a Targaryen. I am a Stark. I am a Snow. I choose my destiny. No—I and my wives choose my destiny and no one else.”

“I know you are son. You have always made me proud Jon. You are making me proud now.”

Melisandre felt her heart begin to thaw. Jon Snow had spoken the words she needed to hear. Ygritte would hear them too. When she calmed down.

“You know nothing Jon Snow! Arrruunggggg! Gods I hate men! I thought you were different. In touch with your feminine side.”

“I am damnit! I love to cook and clean for god’s sake! Which you are more than happy to take advantage of I might add!” Jon snarked at Ygritte.

Melisandre smiled inside seeing Ygritte’s dander rise up higher at the jib. She did take advantage of the fact that her wife and husband waited on her hand and foot.

“You hurt me Dany. You hurt me deeply” Arya told her Queen softly.

“I know Arya. Let me explain!”

“Not here. Not now. I need to get away before I saw something I will regret” Arya spoke softly. With that she was gone.

Daenerys closed her eyes and took several deep breaths. Melisandre watched Eddard put his hand on her shoulder.

Jon and Ygritte were yelling at each other now with arms gesticulating wildly. She was poking his chest. “I will not have you being some sperm donor! You belong to me and Melisandre! We are your bitches! You fuck only us!”

“Stop the fuck putting words in my mouth! I know that Ygritte godsdamnit! Gods don’t I prove that to you every night! I’m going to fuck the living hell out of you and Melisandre tonight! I hate you putting words in my mouth damnit! You are going to get yours tonight! You mark my words!”

Melisandre chuckled seeing Ygritte’s eyes go glassy for a second before she remembered she was furious and went back to yelling at Jon.

Melisandre was glad she was more like Eddard Stark who controlled his emotions. It allowed one to see things clearly. He gripped the Queen’s shoulder and gave it a reassuring squeeze.

The Warden of the North spoke calmly to the Queen “Don’t worry Daenerys—(a deep breath) Dany. My daughter loves you very deeply. With all her heart. I would scold you for not telling her but then I am guiltier of the sins of omission than anyone else in this tent. We all do the best we can at the time. We all make decisions that we must live with. For good or ill. Wait a few minutes and then go to her. Arya will listen to reason. She will listen to you. She loves you.”

“Just please be gentle with her. She has the wolf in her but you have tamed that spirit. Go to her and talk to her. You will work past this. Just don’t do it again. Hopefully I have learned that lesson as well.” Eddard squeezed the Queen’s shoulder again and gave her a sad squint smile. He released her shoulder.

For the next five minutes Melisandre, Daenerys, Eddard and two half snoozing direwolves watched the best murmur show on earth. Jon and Ygritte stormed at each other. Melisandre knew they had both by now grasped the truth of the situation. Ygritte was still angry for sure but the jibs were getting more sexual. Jon was letting his dander rise up.

The two had moved from really arguing to working each other up for what would come next. The makeup sex would be really, really good tonight. Melisandre was getting wet thinking about it. A certain kissed by the sun Wilding was going to get it. Big time. Melisandre licked her lips. She could not wait.

Daenerys quietly left the tent to go and repair her own relationship. Melisandre was sure their makeup sex would be quite spectacular if less extreme than what she was looking forward to.

Daenerys

Daenerys walked out of Jon’s tent. She had had time to center herself. She looked up into the dark sky. Not much time had passed and yet if felt like she had been through a maelstrom riding the raging waves for days. She was prepared to make it right with Arya. She looked around and saw that Arya had indeed gone from the area of Jon’s tent. She had not waited for Daenerys. She gnawed her lip. Arya had been so furious with her. She had every right to be. Daenerys had blown it by being indecisive. She would never make that mistake again with Arya.

She looked around. She spied the tents of House Stark and House Targaryen. Each Center tent pole had the standard of their house weakly moving in the soft breeze. The Wolf and Dragon both tired and not moving in their exhaustion.

Which tent would Arya have gone to? Dany looked at both standards and made her decision. Arya loved her.

She walked slowly to her tent. She replayed recent events. She had laughed at Arya bolting off after the Direwolves. She had not been surprised that Arya would go after her Direwolf tearing off down the King’s Road towards the next camp not far off in the distance. Jeertel had ridden by in a flash on her Ranyhyn to get by her charge as Arya stormed down the King’s Road. The Haruchai were always on their duty.

She had heard Eddard exclaim softly “Oh shit!” She had turned towards him and saw a look of deep consternation on his face. Her face asked him to elaborate.

“That white Direwolf was Ghost.”

“So.”

“That is Jon’s Direwolf. That can only mean one thing Daenerys.”

Instantly the Queen made the connection. She had kicked here horse hard and galloped wildly down the King’s Road after her lover. Immediately at her side were Bannor and Seregrom on their mighty Ranyhyn. Behind her she was sure her three Bloodriders were quick to follow.

If Jon was here only the seven hells knew what could happen. She had feared the worse as she stormed up the King’s Road. She looked over at Bannor. He returned her gaze flatly and yet she was sure she saw just a hint of support in his gaze. When she entered Jon’s tent she had seen the truth. The worse had come to pass.

Now she had to make it right.
The Queen entered her royal tent. She felt nervous energy rush through her. Arya was on the far side of the tent facing the outer wall. She was rigid with her back to Dany. She had her arms crossed in front of her. Arya’s keen hearing heard Dany slip into the tent she knew. The Stark stared at the back wall of the tent as if seeking the cipher to some unknowable secret in the dark blue fabric. Arya’s back was filled with tension that radiated out to the Queen.

The fact that Arya was here in her tent relieved Daenerys greatly. If she had found their tent empty she would have known that Arya’s heart had been truly and deeply wounded. If the Queen had been forced to go Eddard’s tent to retrieve her love she would have known that the damage had truly run deep to the core of their relationship. That maybe she had harmed their relationship and love irreparably. Arya being in their tent flooded Daenerys with relief that left her weak for a moment.

Arya loved her. Daenerys would be able to make amends. Arya’s love for her would salve the hurt now in Arya’s heart.

Daenerys knew she had messed up and that she had hurt and angered her lover greatly but Arya being here and in this tent spoke volumes to the girl’s heart. Arya Stark loved her dearly as she loved the woman back. Their love would guide them past these shoals. Shoals the Queen determined to never again seek passage through. She was a captain who learned from her mistakes. She would keep their relationship in the channel from now on. No more secrets.

She needed to be the Conqueror with her wife and show the world and Arya that for Daenerys Targaryen there truly was only one soul for her. Arya Stark.

Daenerys paused considering her options. She had fucked up royally. She should have told Arya long ago about Jon’s true lineage it was now clear to see. She had wanted to delay this moment fearing something just like this. She took a deep breath. One thing Daenerys had thought she had learned was to take what was hers. Evidently she had not quit learned that lesson in regards to the woman who held her heart.

Again with Arya Stark she broke this primal rule. Her being aggressive had always worked to her advantage. Strike quick and take what is yours; that was Daenerys stratagem. She had conquered Essos with that strategy. That mindset had made her so powerful she was able to conquer Westeros without going to war. Her aggressiveness had blooded the Ice King’s face and sent the Iron Islanders back to their Isles with their tails between their legs.

Yet, with this woman before her, she hesitated and doubted herself. She let the fear of tradition and bucking it whither her heart. A heart that Arya’s fiery passion had restored. Every time she made love to her Wolfling she felt her spirit soar on the currents of their love. The Queen had wasted precious time and now she had caused the love of her life so much pain. She took a deep breath. She had a plan to make it up to Arya.

She had thought to delay this until after their victory over the Ice King but decided now was the time. Margaery had told her how the sex had been so mind blowing good between her and Sansa (not that it isn’t always great Margaery was quick to add). She had given Daenerys the small flask. Dany took a deep breath. Yes. Now was the time most definitely.

She looked at the rigid body of her lover. Though Arya had her back to her lover Dany knew the girl was focused on her. Her senses attuned to her lover. Arya was waiting for Daenerys to start making it up to her.

Dany was prepared. She needed to make a tactical retreat for a moment first.

“I will be right back Arya. I have to retrieve something from a saddle bag.” Arya slightly nodded her head. That too was a good sign. She was not going to be totally an ass with the situation. Arya was not going to rub the Queen’s nose it. That was one reason she loved the girl so. She may lose her temper and throw a mean left hook but at her core, Arya, was a sweet reasonable woman. She merely had to touch that part of Arya and let her know that her indecisiveness was past. She, the Queen, had to assure her Queen that she was the only person that Daenerys not only loved but would only sleep with her.

The Queen would never sleep with Jon Snow for procreation or for political expediency. She did not love the man. She had no reason to lie with the man. Daenerys Targaryen the First of Her Name had left those days behind her in Essos. They would never return.

She left the tent and called out to the camp attendants. She asked where her horse was. Bannor appeared from nowhere as the Haruchai were won’t to do. He guided her to a hobble line where her horse was hobbled and happily eating handfuls of hay piled down before him. Her horse had already had its saddle removed. She asked where it was. Bannor took her to where her saddle was on a post. Of course the Haruchai would know where it was the Queen thought to herself. She went to the left side and unhooked the hoops of the main bag. She reached in and moved the stuffing and pulled out the flask with its stopper.

“Most wise” was Bannor’s observation.

Daenerys looked at the stoic Haruchai. The man knew what the liquid in the flask was for somehow. She was not surprised. He was Haruchai. She hurried back to her tent. She saw that her Bloodriders along with Worm Tail and his guard had arrived and encircled the tent. She could not help but smirk. She saw Jeertel and Seregrom on the backsides of the tent moving silently. She must be the most protected person in Westeros. She snorted. The world.

She would be giving them their nightly show. Hopefully, shortly. She bowed her head to Aggo who pulled the tent flap back. Her Bloodrider who had been with her from the beginning of her quest for greatness looked at her with soft understanding eyes. “Make amends Khaleesi.” It seemed all knew already she had been at fault. They were correct. She nodded with her violet eyes looking into his earnestly. He was satisfied with what he saw. He reached out and squeezed his Khal’s shoulder.

Dany entered the tent and saw that Nymeria had come into the tent while she had been to her horse. The wolf was sitting down by Arya. Her love was scratching the wolf’s ears. The wolf’s tongue lulled out in pleasure. Nymeria saw Dany and woofed happily and got up immediately. She sat before Dany and whined. The wolf looking up at her with earnest eyes. Daenerys laughed and sat the flask down and scratched Nymeria’s ears and along her jaws underneath her lips like she liked.

Daenerys felt another flood of relief rush through her body. Arya’s Direwolf had not turned against her. Daenerys was sure that if Arya had turned against her Nymeria would have as well. This too was a good sign.

She heard Arya whisper “Traitor”. More relief shot through Dany’s body. Arya was taciturn but she had a quiet, dry wit to her. Being able to show it now told Dany that Arya was ready to forgive. She only had to be honest and sincere with the teenager.

She scratched the great wolf’s head and up along her shoulder girdle. The hair standing up on end with the pleasure the wolf was feeling from the clipped nails rubbing in hard between her shoulder blades. Dany did this for a minute. Finally, Nymeria pulled her head back and looked at the Queen with her dark golden eyes. The plea was simple. Make it up with my original master.

Nymeria turned around and brushed past Arya leaning into her before walking back behind the braziers. The attendants had left a large space behind them. The Direwolf took advantage of this. Nymeria kneed the furs she found there. The camp attendants knew to pile furs high behind the braziers just for Nymeria. She lay down her jaws stretching in long wolf yawns. The wolf wiggled down to get the furs just right beneath her for maximum comfort. The wolf now relaxed and put her muzzle on her forelegs and looked up at her two masters.

Nymeria was waiting for Daenerys to begin her task.

The Queen bent down and picked up her flask and walked over to the braziers. She knelt down to one knee and put the flask into folds of the furs near the braziers. She sat the flask down up right so the liquid in the flask could heat. Arya had turned around and she felt Arya’s eyes boring into her back. Arya was watching her lover intently waiting for her woman to make the first move in reconciliation. Daenerys knew she desired that as well.

The Queen stood up and turned to face Arya Stark. They locked eyes. There was still challenge in Arya’s eyes but also hunger for reconciliation Dany saw. She had been in the wrong totally. Her fears had caused this. Arya had been hurt and she hurt Dany in return but Arya had had the maturity to remove herself from the confrontation and allow them both to calm down. They were both composed most of the time but their tempers could flare hot and furious. The Queen was thankful for Arya’s wise maturity. Again the Stark teenager proved she was the right woman for the Queen.

She looked up into Arya’s steady steel grey eyes.

Arya spoke first. “You hurt me Dany. You should have told me. There can be no hidden spaces in our hearts between us Dany. I need total honesty between us. I want—no need to share my all with you Dany and I demand it back. You made me feel that all we had shared was a sham. You put doubt into my heart. I know of the Bloodlines in your House.”

The queen dipped her head in acknowledgement. She was in the wrong. She would not deny that.

“I am going to do something I have never done before Arya. Only for you. I will only do this for you. … I was wrong. Totally and completely. I admit my failure to you. I cannot and will not do that with any other. I let my fears and doubts restrain me Arya. I have done that with you from the start. I am indeed the Conqueror that I hear whispered behind my back. I smashed my way across Essos boldly and without doubt.”

“But then I meet you and I suddenly become fearful and doubt filled. I do not heed prophecies but I let their ghosts haunt me with you. I know all the reasons why I or you should sleep with Jon. I heard the prophecies that may or may not have spoken of that.”

“I will tell you again what I told them who spoke those prophecies to me. I. Do. Not. Care—I am my own prophecy. Essos is indeed littered with the graves with those who were sure their prophecies would have them prevail against me. They died on my sword or beneath my dragons or smashed against my armies.”

“And despite this I hesitate with you and become unsure.”

Dany was relieved to see Arya’s eyes already softening. The tension leaving her body.

Arya cocked her head wondering of this doubt in her Queen “But why? … Why this timid nature with me Dany. I love you. I have always loved you.”

Dany paused considering how to phrase the myriad thoughts running around in her brain like a swarm of flitting locust. Loud, incessant, flying in so many directions. She took a breath. “It is hard to express Arya. First and foremost I love you so much it hurts. I look at you and my whole body thrums with love for you. I have worshiped you from the moment you shot those arrows at me on the Iron Throne. The wild fire that came into those gods beautiful eyes, the Passion, the sheer audacity of that act stole my heart.”

The Queen chuckled softly “then you sealed the contract with a left cross to my cheek. I was yours from that moment Arya.”

She saw Arya smile ever so softly. It had truly been love at first fist.

“I love you so much Arya that I so feared to take advantage of you.”

Arya snorted “Yeah right Dany. I wanted you to ravish me since I was nine.”

Dany smiled wanly. “I knew you wanted me too love but I still feared.”

“But why?” Arya asked again.

“I let my own past cloud my thoughts and desires. You and Sansa were very lucky growing up as high born princesses. You both were loved and cherished by a man who was beyond the norm. I will put Margaery in the same context with Olenna shepherding her. Myrcella in a strange way fell into the same category.”

“What do you mean?”

“You had at least some choice. This is not the norm Arya. I was auctioned off and raped so my brother could have his army. The fucking bastard would have raped me and ruined his own plans if not for Illyrio. I was just a bauble to my dear departed brother. Something to be used. Khal Drogo was not really so bad after I broke him to my will. Maybe with time I could have actually come to love him but I doubt it. I would have always resented him treating me like nothing more than a breeding heifer at the start of our union. A receptacle to produce his heir ‘The Stallion Who Mounts The World’. I was just breeding stock to Drogo in the end. He accepted me as his Khaleesi. His inferior woman.”

“I soon realized I was superior to him. To all men really. But that is not how it started for me Arya. I was nothing.”

“This is how it has been for women since the dawn of time. Royal women like us Arya have it even worse as the rule. Sent off when we are twelve or thirteen is the norm. Cersei was older but her fate was the same in the end. Sent to men who are almost never worthy of the precious gift they are granted. We are, as a rule, treated like shit, made to be breeding cows, cheated on as our beauty fades and generally ignored.”

“Of course there are exceptions to every rule. Catelyn Tully was one. She married your father though she had been betrothed to your uncle. She did so without a word. I do not agree with her actions on many things but I try to see things from all angles. She had performed her “duty” in marrying the brother of the slain man she had been betrothed too. Thus, she expected her daughters to do the same. Fortunately, a man of the ages stepped in.

Eddard Stark. Your father is truly unique Arya. He is so much more than any of his contemporaries. It will probably be many millennium if then for your father to become the norm. To put his wife and children truly first.”

“It is humbling actually” Dany finished.
Arya spoke softly “I had never considered it like that before.” She paused for a long moment “Sansa and I are truly lucky.”

Arya thought for a moment. “But you are the Queen of Westeros and Essos. I still don’t understand this hesitation you speak of Dany. You can take whatever you want.”

Dany grimaced slightly. “I did not want to take from you Arya. I will not become a despot or abuse my power and position like Robert Baratheon fathering bastards all over Westeros or like this Roose Bolton with his First Right tradition. I would never treat my woman like Cersei had been treated or how I had been with Drogo. I want to earn what I receive. I wanted to win your love Arya. Not take it. Especially against you will.”

“I wanted you Arya but I wanted you to come to me on your own terms. I was not going to rip this kingdom apart like Robert Baratheon had. Sparking a war for a woman who did not love him. A war fought for a woman who had fled him. That tempered me Arya. The thought of repeating what Robert did a generation before. I was not about to become the Robert Baratheon of this generation.”

“Also, I was beaten down by the time I arrived here in Westeros Arya. I had come to doubt my desires and what was achievable.”

Arya was enthralled now. Dany opening up to her was drawing her back to her lover.

“How were you beaten? You are the Conqueror of Westeros and Essos. Beaten down? That makes no sense to me.”

Dany reached out tentatively and took Arya’s hand. She felt relief that Arya let her take her hand. She felt them reconnecting.

“It was not warfare that beat me down Arya. It was the traditions and moors of society. When I came out of the Red Wastes I proudly proclaimed I would take a wife and would change the world. Obviously, that did not happen. As I conquered the city states around Slavers Bay and brought the Dothraki to heal, I ran into the same stigma and dogma against my right to take a Queen. They did not defy me or challenge me. They just let me know that I had no choice but to follow the ways of the world. I was one woman. No matter how powerful I became I was still only a woman. A woman alone trying to change the moors of the world.”

“I could fought and demanded the right but I would have only built up resentment and eventually open warfare. I had to marry a man I hated in Meereen. He died on my dagger when I would not submit. I was about to marry poor innocent Quinten Martell even though I loathed him. The idiot got himself roasted by my dragons instead. The fool.”

Dany felt her mind drift away for a few moments. She came back to the present.

“I refused to do to the land of my birth, what Robert Baratheon did to it to have the woman he wanted. A woman who rode away with another man because she had no love for that man. A man I feel she had come to loath. I swore I would never do that to Westeros.”

“So Arya … with you I am not the Conqueror. You are my wife. I will forever treat you as my equal. I have learned from this Arya. I will never hesitate again to tell you all Arya. I was in the wrong in this. I did not trust you to see events clearly. I did not trust enough in your love for me. I feared the very conventions I have contended with since I came out of the Red Wastes transformed. I feared to love whom I desired to love.”

“Essos wore me down. I knew the homophobic mores also existed in Westeros. There is some toleration for the lowborn to love whom they will but not the highborn. We have a destiny we are supposed to fulfill. We have little recourse.” Dany snorted. “Of course we have the anomaly of Dorne but the powerhouses of Westeros the Westerlands, the Reach, Crownlands and the Stormlands were not Dorne. They are conservative to their core. The North is even more conservative. Your father is single handedly changing that and it gives me hope.”

“I came to Westeros defeated in my heart. Society and its mores, stigmas, discriminations and simple expectation exhausted me. No matter where I went I came up against the same resistance. It simply wore me out. I was so terrified that I would have to marry a man to cement my rule. I was dying inside. I was constantly trying to figure out how to keep my sanity. I kept turning it over in my head what to do. The thought of having to marry a man to solidify my rule made my heart freeze.”

“I have told you how I gave into my craving for the touch of women and had Tyrion fill the void with whores that my body needed to survive but my soul was still dying. My soul withering. I felt trapped.”

“Then you came to me. You saved me from a slow death Arya. I knew that I had found my Queen the day you came to me. I knew it but I feared to embrace it. I had to slowly conqueror my fears and doubts. I still had doubts over the world trying to destroy what we have. I know factions will try and bend me to their will. They will not.”

“I am the Conqueror. It is they who will bow to my will. I will make more graves if I must. You are mine Arya. I will not give you up.”

Arya sobbed and came into Dany’s arms. Dany enfolded her love in her arms. “I will never again have you doubt my love for you, or, myself, doubt my right to have you as my Queen. I should have had the courage to tell you of Jon and our lineage. I should have truly trusted you to understand and not care. You will be my Queen that I will proudly have beside me at all times while we are in Court. We may have other duties that will separate us at times but in Court we are together for all to see.” She felt Arya tuck her head into her neck. She was sniffling but now her arms were around Dany and holding her tight.

Dany luxuriated in again having her sweet Arya in her arms.

“Take your clothes off Arya” Dany husked.

Arya hesitated still.

“Arya pushed slightly away from Dany. “I have just forgiven you Dany. Aren’t we being a little quick here?” Daenerys could see that Arya while having forgiven Dany was not quite yet completely mollified.

“I have something that I think you will find quite enjoyable Arya. I was going to save this till after we are victorious over the Ice King but I think now is the time.”

Arya hesitated still.

“Please Arya. I need to make love to you. I need to show you in the purest form that I am totally in love with you. I need to have you cum hard in my mouth and on my fingers Arya. I need to connect deeply with you. Let me prove to you my pure undying love Arya. I need you! Desperately” the Queen spoke with her eyes locked earnestly with Arya’s.

Arya looked at Dany with eyes that were beginning to throb with passion. She reached for her laces. Dany smiled and began to undo her own laces, buttons and hooks. The two women stared at each other as vests, blouses, riding trousers, boots and socks were quickly divested. The articles of clothing falling to the floor as their short clothes were dropped to the floors. Their now wet cunts on full evidence to each other. Rigid nipples throbbing with passion. The smell of sweet pussy filling the air with their thick rich pungent musk.

They stared hard at each other. Arya’s plum nipples were ¾ erect and swelling sweetly turning dark brownish pink. Her labia lips bloomed out her slit. The Queen nipples were erect and her areolas steeple with desire. Her own slit red and wet her mons turning the light pinkish brown around slit and the rest of her mons turning medium red. Her pussy swollen, wet and filled with blood in her excitement. Her own thick labia lips bloomed out her slit and hanging down begging to be munched and sucked on. The tent was warm and a light film of perspiration was already on Arya’s upper lip and forehead.

Their eyes now dilated with fuck hunger. Arya started to move in but Dany held up her hand. Arya squinted at the Queen in vexation. First Arya had complained for Dany moving fast and now the Queen was delaying her. She cocked an eyebrow at her Queen. Dany smiled and pointed to the side. She had spied some rolled up rawhide mats used to put food and liquid refreshments on.

“Wait a second my love. I want to give you something special. It can be messy though so I need to do a little prep work my sweet Wolfling. It is something Margaery told me of and gave me that flask by the braziers.” She saw Arya turn her head to look down at the flask.

Arya turned her head back to Dany her body shook with lust. “If it is from that slut and my now slut sister I can’t wait! … Gods I can’t believe how my sister has changed … for the better. Margaery has been so good for her.”

Dany nodded her head in agreement. Sansa had evidently been very repressed and docile before Margaery came into her life and brought out the tall redhead’s inner wolf. The tall Stark had Arya’s appetites but she also had the desire to fuck many other women along with her soon to be wife. That was not the Queen’s cup of tea. She wanted only one woman in her bed. Arya Stark.

Dany went to the rolled up rawhide mats. She brought them over before the braziers and laid them out edge to edge so Arya could lie on them. The furs would still get wet but they could be washed out later. It would probably make the sex even hotter. The mats surrounded by piled up furs. Dany felt her cunt throb with desire for her sweet wolf. She felt her cunny filled with sweet fuck nectars.
Nectars that were starting to run down her thighs in trickles. Their pussies had filled the tent with the thick sweet musk of female excitement.

Both women were breathing hard in wanton need. Their excited cunts filling their lungs with the sweet elixir of sweet pungent pussy. It was a scent all women craved though way too many women suppressed their natural desire for the female body. This was not a problem that the Queen and Arya shared.

“Lay down on your stomach Arya. Relax. Let me show you my full love baby” Daenerys husked to her beautiful lover. Her voice filled with a smoky timbre and her violet eyes throbbing with sexual desire for her sixteen year old lover.

Arya complied with a smirk. She laid down on her stomach and Dany slowly fell to her knees beside her lover. She reached over Arya’s body and picked up the flask. Arya turned her head to track Dany’s movements. She had put it together and was shivering in excitement. Arya watched the Queen reach out for the flask. It was hot but her hands did not feel the heat. She was the Blood of the Dragon after all. There was a small low table to the left of the braziers with medium sized bowls waiting to be filled with food and drink.

Dany picked one up and sat it beside herself. She undid the cork in the flask and a sweet aroma filled the room.
“What is that smell Dany?” Arya asked lifting her head to look up at her lover. “It smells good.”

“That is coconut my sweet. It is common on the Southern coasts of Essos on its western rim. There are forests of the trees I am told in Sothoryos, Ulthus and Great Moraq. The milk of the fruit is very nutritious and one can live off of it I am told. Coconut is the base oil in this massage elixir. It also has the essential oils of Lavender, Rosemary and Bergamot. It is a blend that Margaery came up with. It is sweet smelling and quite therapeutic too she says. I am not so interested in that quality at the moment though” the Queen smirked down at her wolf.

She poured out the liquid into the wide bowl. It was not scalding hot but she would let it cool a few minutes. “Margaery tells me that she loves massaging Sansa’s body before they have sex sometimes. She says it adds a whole new dimension to the tactile sensations. It lubricates and makes penetration so sweet. I can’t wait to see and feel it. Lay back down my sweet. Let me soak your body in this liquid. It will be soooooo good.”

Arya smiled and put her cheek back on the furs that the mats did not reach. She wiggled her firm big ass at Dany. Dany slapped it lightly and she smiled seeing Arya’s hips jerk.

“Hey! You are supposed to kiss and lick my ass not slap it!” Arya chuckled. Daenerys knew her wolf had a kinky side but this was about love and bonding.

Dany smiled at the reply. She was tempted to smack Arya’s ass hard but refrained. She was slowly getting Arya comfortable with spanking and slapping during their lovemaking. She had begged Arya to slap her ass hard during sex a few times. Arya hesitated mightily the first time but had been more into it the last couple of times. Dany convincing her lover by her loud moans and gyrations that she enjoyed the pain. Arya had blistered Daenerys ass and then she had gotten Arya to slap her tits and face with some force. Not too hard really but it was a start.

The abuse and humiliation had turned Daenerys on no end. It had turned Arya on as well. The sex had been explosive. The Queen could not wait to take that sex to the next level. It would spice their lovemaking up to the heights of ecstasy. BDSM was a nice change of pace. Daenerys knew she was a total switch and sensed that Arya was too. That her teenage lover would easily move from sadistic to masochistic in the giving and receiving of pain and humiliation.

She would work Arya up to slapping her face and tits hard during rough sex and pulling her hair hard. The Valyrian craved having her sopping wet cunt slapped hard with the cupped palm, riding crop or maybe the cattail. She loved to be roughed up at times during sex. She was a switch so she craved giving out some love abuse too. She was sure Arya was into it as well. Arya had said several times she was a total woman and wanted all that Dany could give her. The heat in Arya’s eyes and lilt of her voice made it clear she wanted to be roughed up herself.

Daenerys longed to ‘fuck over’ Arya. She wanted to feel Arya’s ass under her striking palms. She wanted to blister her Wolfling’s ass as she mewled, cawed and screamed in pain. She wanted to pulp her love’s nipples pouting them into her ribcage. Dany would get so excited slapping Arya’s face so hard making it rock over and dragging Arya around by her beautiful hair and throwing into the walls, door and furniture of her royal suite. To punch Arya in her stomach, chest and thighs. It would be so hot.

She was getting Arya used to roughing the Queen up. Arya was now comfortable slapping the Queen around some. Daenerys hungered to have Arya slap her face and body till it was splotchy and red with blood rush. She wanted her ass, tits and cheeks cherry red, throbbing and filled with hot heat from sweet sadistic abuse. She longed for Arya to punch the wind out of her stomach and pound her chest and thighs with controlled punches. She wanted Arya to slam her body into the doors and curtained walls of her domicile in the Red Keep. It would be so hot with Arya dragging her around by her hair as she wept and pleaded for the mercy that would not come. Gods it would be so hot and sweet.

When they were safely back in King’s Landing the Queen fully intended to explore more sides of lovemaking with Arya. She longed for rough sex and the thrill of hot anal sex and the awesome anal ‘gasms they gave a woman. Being nasty like a Lysian whore and doing ATM and A2P. She shivered at the thoughts but she had plenty of sex to explore with Arya before they returned to King’s Landing and Arya’s initiation to more aspects of what was possible between two women.

Dany ran her hand between Arya’s back and her beautiful thick brown hair that came down to the top of her shoulder blades and swept the mane up and back over her shoulder. The hair would get saturated with oil but that would be later after they had commenced heated rutting and sweet fucking. Dany moaned seeing Arya’s strong back and lateral muscles making the subtle triangle between Arya’s armpits and her upper back. Arya’s awesome ass flexing as she looked up at Dany impishly. Arya knew Dany was an ass girl. The back of her thick legs so enticing.

Arya had good control of her ass and made each ass cheek clench and flex in turn. Then she made them jerk and jiggle into each other. Daenerys moaned at the hot sight. Arya looked back at her with a shit eating grin.

“See something you want Dany?” Arya teased the pale blonde woman.

Daenerys moaned and pushed Arya’s head down. Arya smirked.

Dany picked up the bowl and swished the liquid. It had cooled down considerably but she knew the liquid was still hot. “Look at me Arya.” The teenager had closed her eyes relaxing. They opened and looked at Dany. Their eyes locked. Dany slowly titled the bowl over and a slightly milky oil poured over the lip of the bowl and first landed on Dany’s face and then she changed the angle and changed the trickle from a rivulet to a small stream hitting her upper chest and then down to her full breast and finally her muscled belly and shaved cunt.

Back and forth the pale Valyrian moved the bowl right and left. Only then did the Queen set the now empty bowl down. The liquid glinted in the light of the braziers and oil lamps on their poles and hanging off cross wires supporting the tent. The liquid immediately started to spread and run down the Queen’s beautiful face and her hard torso. The liquid running down in slow moving rivulets.

“Mmnggggg oh Dany you are so fucking hot!” Arya moaned. Dany’s eyes throbbing with hot sex. She took her hands and first touched her fingers to her face rolling the massage oil into her face and up her forehead into her hair making them gleam. She smiled down with her lilac eyes on fire with the promises of sweet fucking. Again and again Dany ran her fingers over her face and into her long tresses soaking them in the sex massage oil. Her hair darkening with oil saturating hair follicles and scalp. The Queen’s face showing her pleasure in pleasuring herself with her sensual touch.

Arya watched with throbbing eyes as her lover slowly used her palms to massage the oil onto her own body with hedonistic pleasure. Dany’s hands slowly circled up and down her body her fingers sensually massaging the oil into her skin and over her hard muscled body. The slicked palms slippery with oil rubbing and pressing into the Queen’s firm tits and hard belly. The Queen shivered feeling the delicious tension and pressure of her hands rubbing over body. The slow up and down motion of Dany’s hands on her own body was hypnotic to Arya. It was hot seeing Dany’s fingertips loving her own body with sensual swirls of her fingers on perfect pale flesh.

“Unnnggg mmmngggg … shit!—auugg hhnegg hhnegg hhnnn!” Dany moaned rotating her palms over her breast. The oil slicked skin rubbing over rock hard nipples. Dany gasped in pleasure. Arya watched her woman cup and then massage her full medium sized breast. The hands compressing and rolling the high firm tits. The fingers started to clench in and pulp the perfect globes. The Queen’s body jolting as she hard squeezed her tits and pinched her nipples and jerked on them making her body gag and throat caw with raw hedonistic pleasure.

The teenager smiled sluttily watching her slut move her fingers up her glistening tits and pinch and jerk on her own nipples. The sharp squeezes gagged Dany with raw sensual pleasure. Her face slashing and body jolting as the Queen squeezed and stretched out her nipples tenting her light brown areolas with hard jerks. Then the hands cupping and pulping her oil slicked hooters her fingers sinking deep into the pliant hillocks. The white blonde moaning like a Lysian whore.

Then her left hand slide from breast to breast rubbing and pressing down hard on the firm globes. The oil made the hard gripped and rolled breast gleam in the brazier light as they were worked in turn. Dany saw that Arya’s head had lifted her eyes intense as they followed Dany’s right hand sliding down her slippery belly and Targaryen’s fingers slipped into the Queen’s gash and rubbed up and down the oiled slicked vulva. "Unnhhhhh!” Dany gasped helplessly. "Unnhhhhh!"

“Dany! Don’t you dare jerk off … you are supposed to be fucking me!” Arya barked in humor but also selfish need. Her pupils blown with raw naked need. Dany pouted and then smiled down at her slutty wife to be. It was good to be selfish during love making. As long as your remembered to give back of course. And Arya always gave back more than she received.

Dany rubbed her pussy slit and rolled her inner lips open exposing her dripping wet slit. “Ohhhhh baby … your sooooo greedy!” Dany play pouted sticking out her lower lip. Her fingers continued to play with her inner labia lips rolling and pulling them taunt and spreading them back and showing off her wet pink seam to Arya who groaned at the juicy red slit. Daenerys bald mound all slavered with opaque love snot.

The Valyrian picked up the flask again. It had cooled enough for her to pour the liquid on Arya’s back. She tilted the flask over and a thin stream of heated liquid poured out onto Arya’s supple white skin. The Stark girl gasped and then mewled feeling the warm liquid hit her back. Daenerys ran the liquid down and up Arya’s back twice. The white liquid glinting in the warm light.

Dany rose up on her knees and straddled the sacrum of her lover and pressed her wet pussy down into the small swale feeling her wet cunt compress and mash into Arya’s strong back. She shivered and she felt Arya shake. “Oh Dany! Your cunt is so goddamn wet for me! I can’t wait to suck you off!” Dany felt her body jerk with primal fuck want but now was about her baby. She began to massage the oil into Arya’s strong back.

Dany worked her fingers into Arya’s muscled upper back pressing and rotating and then using her palm to relax the muscles. The Queen luxuriated in the feel of the strong muscles underneath her fingers and palms. The strong muscles felt so good underneath Dany’s tactile touch. Arya was cooing and moaning at the sensual massage. Dany slowly worked her way down her lover’s back. Her hands moving down to rub up and down Arya’s ribs. Dany felt the girl relaxing and becoming boneless beneath her.

“I give you about a thousand years to stop that Dany … it feels so fucking good.” Arya began to flex her hips humping her groin up and down pressing her pussy into the rawhide beneath it. Her swollen dripping snatch lubricating the leather. “Unnggg mmmmmhhhh mnngggg oohhhhhfuck yeah! Unnggg hhnnnggg” Arya gurgled feeling Dany work her back. The sixteen year old nutting her pussy into the leather beneath her drooling quim. The pressure and friction sweet to the teenager. She loved feeling her camel toe compress and contort as she humped her mound into the rawhide and furs beneath.

“Now look who is greedy Arya” the Queen softly joked down to her lover nutting on the leather beneath her. Arya’s working hips was driving her back up into Dany’s pussy. Arya’s ass grinding in on Dany’s swollen muffin and compressing her clit and rolling it in its sheath. The pressure and friction exquisite to the Queen.

Sweet pungent pussy musk thickly filled the tent now. “Oh baby I smell our cunts—its smells so fucking good!” Dany softly husked. She lifted herself and plopped her pussy on Arya’s ass and gagged at the pressure the cheeks still flexing as Arya jammed her drooling clam shell into the leather beneath her pussy. The pressure on Dany’s pussy more intense against Arya’s firm ass globes.

Dany picked up the flask and poured a line of the sweet smelling oil onto Ayra’s lower back. She put the flask down and rubbed the oil into Arya’s lower back as he sixteen year old sighed and mewled. Dany then started working up the swale of her lover’s ass. Arya had now started to swirl her hips grinding her cunt down into the soaked with cum rawhide leather. The teenager working her hips harder grinding muffin down into the raw hide to increase the pressure on her slobbering cunny. “Ummmmggg hhhnmm hhhnmm oohhhhh fuckkkkkkk!” Arya mewled sweetly for her Valyrian lover.

Next Dany moved back again plopping her ass down on Arya’s legs that were side by side. She again picked up the flask yet again. She now poured long streams of the massage oil all over the big tight ass globes. Now the Queen began to massage the firm tight ass globes. The Queen worked each ass cheek with her deep massaging fingers. She kneaded the globes in turn working her fingers into the taunt globes. Her fingers relishing massaging the firm globes.

Arya groaned deep in her chest. She flexed her ass cheeks up into the fingers and palms massaging her ass cheeks again and again. It was obvious to the Queen that Arya was luxuriating in the massaging fingers working her ass. For the next five minutes, the Valyrian worked her woman’s ass with total focus and love.

Dany rose and pivoted off her lower. Arya whined at the lack of heat and wetness of her lover’s pussy on her body. Dany stilled her whinnies by pouring line of oil on each leg. The Queen then worked her hands down from Arya’s left leg starting at her ass cheek and slowly worked down the leg massaging and rolling the muscles relaxing them. Dany then did the other leg. She then did Araya’s feet. She bent them up with the Stark’s knee in the rawhide. She worked the girl’s instep and ankles. Arya’s eyes were heavily lidded now.

Arya was still humping the leather lightly with her drooling clamshell that dripped heavy drops of milky cum onto the slicked leather. Her grinding twat smearing her love juice on the rawhide underneath her nutting pussy. Having her legs worked reduced her leverage and she wanted to luxuriate in having Dany loving her whole body.

“Huuunngggg! Mmnnggggg!” Arya groaned hard feeling Dany suck her large toe on her left foot into her mouth and sensually give it blow job bobbing her head with her lips sucked tight to the digit. The Queen’s long tongue worming around the toe and then back to sucking it. “Shit! Oh gods Dany—you’re making my cunt sooooo fucking wet!” Dany smirked sucking on Arya’s toe and then slowly working down the foot from the big to the little toe. She slowly sucked on each toe in turn and running her tongue between Arya’s toes before sucking a digit back into her mouth for hot bobs. Dany loved the taste of the sweet massaging elixir mixed with Arya’s sweet skin.

The Queen finished the left leg of her sweetie and then repeated the same massage to her right leg and foot. After working the tension out of Arya’s right foot Dany spent five minutes making oral love to her foot. She sucked the toes individual and jammed all five toes into her mouth stretching her mouth out and slowly bobbed up and down while her lover gurgled and moaned wantonly. She would then worm her tongue in figure eights around the toes up and down her foot.

Arya by now was drooling mess. Her pussy humping the rawhide. Her leaking twat that had long ago soaked the leather. Now cum was puddled beneath the teenager as she used the lubrication to grind her clit into the animal skin. “Dany pleassee! Stop teasing me!”

Pouting, the Queen put the foot down and sat down beside her love’s hips. She picked up the vase and poured more of the massage oil on her loves ass. She had placed the flask near the brazier to keep the liquid warm. Arya moaned like a slut. Dany licked her lips. “Spread your legs for me my slut!” she softly husked down to Arya. She moaned herself with Arya spreading her legs like a Lysian whore opening up her ass cleft and exposing her pussy seam. Her slit all wet and red. “Gods you are a slut Arya. I love how you open yourself to me” Dany moaned seeing the cum soaked slit all wet and red.

Dany smiled and began to roughly knead her lover’s ass cheeks with her hands circling the firm taunt half hemispheres of her love’s ass. Her fingers sinking deep into the toned muscles. Her hands working up and down the slopes of her love’s ass her fingers working in deep. Dany rolled the firm flesh between her fingers and the cup of her hands. The hard globes half squirting out her hard massaging fingers. Her hands rolled as she massaged the hard taunt spheres.

Arya had pressed her face into the furs she had pulled down to press her face into. She moaned as her ass humped up to rotate her globes into the fingers making them feel so good. Her head jerked up. Dany had ran her hands down on the insides of her upper thighs and used the edge of her hands so press in on Arya’s ass cleft and down along the swollen muff. Up and down the Queen seesawed her hands. Dany loved the feel of her slut’s ass globes compressing between her see-sawing hands on the up stroke and her down stroke working Arya’s drooling clamshell with pressure and slicked friction. The mounds so wet and hot with oil and sweat.

The Queen loved seeing Arya work her hips to both lift her ass to be massaged by her and on the down stroke working her cunt into the rawhide. The teenager’s clit jacked into the rawhide. The teenager whinnied in raw pleasure feeling the pressure and friction on her clit.

"Oh gods . . . yes," Arya panted, her eyes fluttering open, turning her head to look up at Dany. She nodded rapidly. "Yes." Dany bent her body on her knees to get a better angle and started to press in harder and used one hand to pull Arya’s leg out further and her right hand began to rub her lover’s now sloppy wet quim with her slender fingers. Dany reached over to the flask and poured more oil in Arya’s ass crack and over her hand and palm rubbing her love’s muff. Dany sat the flask down and started to rub harder into her lover’s cunt pressing in and rolling labia lips and jacking over the rigid clit.

Both women moaned with the Queen slowly working her slender fingers up and down the sopping wet clamshell. Arya was moaning hard her body shivering at the sweet sensations. Daenerys loved the wet slicked feel of Arya’s sopping wet cunt seam underneath her up and down slow masturbating fingers. Her fingers plowing and rolling Arya’s long labia lips. The Queen at moments scissoring the thick lips and jerking on them making Arya’s body jolt and her throat groan gutturally like the pure slut she was.

Her fingers now squeezed in to begin rubbing on Arya’s clitoral hood. The fingers loosely squeezing on the knotted flesh putting pressure and friction on Arya’s clit. The sixteen year old gurgling and wheezing feeling her clit expertly worked by her lover’s fingers.

Her other hand worked Arya’s ass cheeks in turn compressing and clenching the hard globes. Her hand enjoying the hardness and yet softness of Arya’s ass. Her fingers clenching and rolling the firm gloves. Her other hand working up and down Arya’s clamshell luxuriating in the feel of Arya’s slimy inner lips soaked in snail snot. Her fingers rubbing and tormenting the rubbery lips. Dany rolled and stretched the brownish pink lips and rubbed sensually up and down Arya’s juicy slit. Now her fingers brushing over and jacking down into Arya’s clitoral hood. The pressure and friction had Arya’s hips jolting and rotating up into the hands fucking her pussy and ass.

"Oooooohhhhh—shittttt! Unngg unnngg hhnnngg hhnnnggg, that feels good! Don’t stop! Gods don’t stop baby!" Arya was humping back hard on the hand masturbating her swollen muff. Dany rubbed in harder pulling and rolling her lover’s labia lips and making sure her fingers forked and squeezed Arya’s clitoral hood with her pumping fingers. She slowly speed up her ministrations. Dany loved the feel of Arya’s knotted clitoral hood squirting between her forked rubbing fingers and when those fingers rose up she pulled the labia lips taunt. Daenerys loved the feel of Arya’s long labia lips pulled and stretched by those fingers.

Up and down the Queen worked Arya’s cunt seam. Her fingers now circling the teenager’s fuck hole and teasing it before working back down the juicy slit to play with the rigid clit with rubs and forked squeezes. Arya was moaning like a rabid whore now her hips rotating to increase her pleasure. Her clit rubbed but also nutting on the leathers beneath. The rawhide now covered with pooled massage oil and girl cum.

Dany wormed her left hand fingers into her lover’s ass cleft and found her lover’s anus soaked in massage oil. Her fingers liberally coated with fresh massage oil. Dany smiled hearing Arya gasp and hump harder. Dany saw no need to tease Arya in this. With slow deliberate motion, the Queen centered her middle and index fingers on Arya’s shithole. Dany twisted her fingers in hard and pierced Arya’s hot hunger asshole deep.

“Arruunnngggg—ffffuuuccckkkkkk!” Arya sighed moaned feeling her anus penetrated and Dany’s long fingers sinking deep into her hungry asshole. The teenager was hooked on anal penetration now and moaned with each stroke up into her rectum. The fingers working her sphincter rings and rubbing her rectum. “Ohhhhh Dannyyyyy … unngg hhnnngg hhnnnggg … I love it when you fuck my hot tight shithole babyyyyy!”

“Mnnnnggggg!” Dany moaned hearing the hot spoken words. Arya smiled. She knew Dany loved it when she spoke with a potty mouth. Dany had started slow with her fingers fucking Arya’s ass but began to pump them harder. Her fingers sinking now forcefully up Arya’s ass squirting her anus with powerful forceful strokes. Her hand making a wet smacking sound hitting into Arya’s ass cleft.

Dany twisted her fingers hard and fully up into Arya’s hungry greedy asshole. Her digits buried up Arya’s ass Dany began twist them in and out the spasming sphincter rings. Arya’s wet rectum clutching the invading fingers. The Queen had started with a slow sensual stroke working her fingers fully in and out the asshole of her lover. Now the Valyrian increased the speed and force of her fingers fucking Arya’s ass. Dany pulled the digits nearly out Arya’s tight ass and only then plunging them in too the third knuckles with savage twisting thrusts. The affect was immediate.

"Awwoooggggg! Fuck yeahhhhhh! Pump my shithole baby—arruunnnggg (Arya cried out with Dany now slamming her twisting fingers in and out her lover’s hot tight asshole in a fast rhythm) Unhhhh! Oh . . . shit!" Arya gasped softly. Her head was jerking up on a spasming neck now her eyes glassy. She was breathing heavily with sweat beading and glinting with oil and rolling off her writhing body. The Queen’s other hand sliding fast up and down jerking off Arya’s hot flowing cunt seam. The Queen’s hand soaked in Arya’s hot snail snot.

Dany was slamming her left hand’s first two fingers up her Arya’s hot tight asshole fast and furious her hand slamming into Arya’s ass cleft driving her fingers forward with harpoon thrusts up Arya’s pinching asshole. The cheeks giggling with fierce impact. The sound of wet flesh soaked in sweat and oil slapping loud in the tent.

She loved the wet heat soaking the fingers plundering Arya’s ass. Her lover’s rectum so sweet feeling on her plunging digits up Arya’s shithole. Her right hand now a blur rubbing her love’s swollen cunt. Her hand soaked in steamy streaming opaque cum. She felt Arya’s body tightening up. “Dany! Dany—harpoon my ass—pound my shit! Do me baby!” Dany’s lilac eyes flared and she slammed her fingers in twisting them wildly as she savagely fucked her lover’s asshole hard and deep like she needed it.

Arya grunted with each harpoon thrust up her love’s spasming asshole. Arya’s body jerking forward with the strength of the thrusts up her ass. Her oil and cum slicked body spasming on the rawhide leather now as her orgasm began to form deep in her belly and fucked asshole. Arya’s cunt singing as she felt Dany’s fingers fast and furious pumping up and down her slit and jacking over Arya’s clt. The jacks of her clt pummeling Arya with fucking ecstasy.

“Unnggg unnggg shit shit—fuck! OH GODS Dany!” Arya’s breath seemed to whoosh out of her lungs and Arya jammed her face into the furs. Her whole body began to shake violently and she flexed her hips pounding her pussy down into the fingers masturbating it fast and furious and her hips up jerked impaling her asshole on the two twisting fingers harpooning her asshole. Suddenly, Arya’s head jerked up and back on a neck spasming hard. The tendons in her neck jutted out like cables drawn tight in a sea storm. Arya’s eyes shocked wide open. Her hands reached out and clawed the furs lining the sides of the rawhide desperately. Choked off caw escaped her throat.

Dany watched Arya and felt a hot rush of pure love seeing Arya’s shock wide open eyes. Her pupils blown with pure lust. Hot cum gushed out Arya’s cunt soaking Dany’s rubbing fingers in creamy white cum that pulsed liberally out Arya’s rupturing snatch. Now, blistering screams of womb rending ecstasy ripped form Arya’s throat. “AAWWWOOGGGGGGGG! UUUNNGGHHHNNNNN! Ooonngghhiiiieee! Hhnngg uunngg hhnnnn OOOWWWGGGGGGGGG!” she cried out in shrieking wails of pure fucking bliss.

Arya’s head jerked back with her wails of ecstasy. Her whole pelvis quaked and churned wildly slamming up and down into the hands taking her to the heavens. Horrible convulsions rent Arya’s body shaking and throttling her with spine snapping spasms of fucking bliss. Daenerys right hand had rubbed hard pressing in on the immolating cunt of her screaming sixteen year old lover. More gushes of hot cum totally soaking the Queen’s right hand. The cum slicked rapid hand motions allowed the Queen to jerk off of her lover even easier.

Dany kept slamming fucking her lover’s exploding asshole with her left hand. Arya’s sphincter pinched down hard on the fingers pumping in deep and jerking nearly out and slamming back home again and again. Dany’s rough fucking of Arya prolonged her punishing orgasm. The back of Arya’s feet slammed the rawhide mat beneath it. Arya’s head now up and jacked back on her spasming neck her face torn asunder with crippling pleasure.

"Oh Sweet gods! Uunnngghhhiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiee! Anngghhh! Oh! Aunngghhhmnnnggiieeel!" Arya screamed as her body flipped and jackknifed with the last crippling blow of her sweet orgasm. Arya’s head snapped back and forward with her eyes rolled back into her skull. The whites showed them jerking around in her skull with hard spasms jerks.

Dany thought that was not good enough. She needed to make Arya cum even harder. She needed to show her sweet Wolfling her pure untainted love. Love only for Arya Stark. She angled her hand and vigorously rubbed the edge up and down over Arya’s clt. Her fingers twisting as she rammed fucked Arya’s shithole with vicious strokes of savage love. The twin forceful assault shocked Arya’s clit and asshole. Her dying orgasm suddenly went multiple when the Queen hard forked Arya’s clit and violently jerked her hand up and down hard squeezing Arya’s clit in its sheath.

Arya let forth a full throated scream of pleasure that filled the tent. "AAAARRUUUNNGGGGG! ANNGGGHHIIIEEEEEE! UNGH! OH ... SHIT SHIT! ANNGGGHHIIIEEEE!!" Her body convulsed so sweetly for Dany. Dany felt Arya’s cunt spasming and clenching with gut wrenching tearing convulsions of fucking bliss. Arya’s body jackknifed violently up and down her hips instinctively driving her pussy and asshole up and back into the hands driving her insane with pleasure. Arya’s eyes had rolled back into her skull again as she jackknifed violently against Dany’s divine ministration hands jerking her off to the heavens. “Auungghhh! Oh! Unngghiiiee! Oh Dany—babyyyyy … oh! Auungnh! Unngggghhhiiieeeeee!” Arya cried out, coming exultantly, smiling as each fierce spasm wrenched her. Her young body cummed with violent jackknifes and shudders.

Arya’s body suddenly weakened and Arya’s head thudded down into the furs for the moment spent. Her body spasming all over with aftershocks throttling her sweet hard warrior’s body. Dany removed her fingers from her lover’s asshole and stuffed them into her mouth and sucked sensually savoring her woman's sweet asshole. She saw Arya had rolled her head to watch her. “Gods you are a slut Dany! I love you.” She moaned watching Dany as she removed her right hand from between Arya’s thighs and stuffed the hand into her mouth and stared at Arya sucking Arya’s pussy off the long digits she ran up and down her tongue.

Dany watched Arya mewl and shake with her dying orgasm. She needed more. She removed her right hand from her mouth. The fingers clean of the sweet snail snot from her teenage lover’s soaked slack pussy. She gently rolled Arya over and got her centered on the rawhide mats. Arya looked up at her with lidded eyes. Dany looked at her still swollen darkened nipples and dark pink pussy and reddish brown pussy lips all splayed out on her mound. Dany was nowhere through with this hot tight body.

Dany smiled down at her lover. She needed a lot more of this sweet warrior body. Arya’s muscles a huge turn on to the Queen. She licked her lips unconsciously and Arya moaned at the sensual display. Dany picked up the flask again and poured a stream of the sensual massage liquid up and down her lover’s torso several times. The Queen made sure that the stream of oil flowed over Arya’s swollen plum nipples. Arya gagged and then whimpered feeling Dany pour a heavy steam all over her shaved cunt and soaking into her swollen cunny.

The Queen sat down the flask and immediately her hands went to Arya’s chest and started to rub her hands all over Arya’s upper chest. Her palms sliding over the slicked body. She pressed in with hands enjoying how the oil let her hands slide slippery and fast over Arya’s chest and ribs. She circled the bulb nipples all engorged and bursting with blood rush. The nipples jutting out the pulpy areolas begging to be massaged roughly and hard sucked. Arya’s eyes were glassy and her breathy raspy her body already revived from her hard orgasm. The teenage body hungry for more soul crushing orgasms.

Dany spent a minute working the oil into Arya’s chest and now along her ribs. Arya was mewing hard now. Her eyes locked with Dany’s and her hands captured Dany’s hands and slide them over to her nearly two inch nipples all rubbbery and pulpy. Dany smiled and ground her slippery palms down into the plum like nipples grinding and folding the areolas and pulping the spongy nipples.

Arya’s body jolted hard and she gasped her legs scissoring on the bed feeling her bursting plum nipples compressed and rolled by Dany’s hard dragging circling palms. Hot squirts of raw burning pleasure pulsed out the roughly worked nipples gagging Arya with fucking pure scorching bliss. The teenager mewled and moaned her head lulled over. The Valyrian loved feeling Arya’s unique bulb nipples folding and squirming underneath her rasping palms. Daenerys pushed in harder.
pulping the bulbs like she knew Arya loved it. Both liked their titties and nipples roughly squeezed and pulped.

“Unnggg yes yesssss aauunggg … oh shit!—unnggg fffuuucckkkkkkkk yeah aarrrnggg uunnggg” Arya mewled in raw pleasure Dany was filling her swollen bursting nipples with. The pressure and friction exquisite.

Dany worked her hands down off the jutting nipples and then roughly side her palms into the side of Arya’s nipples and roughly compress the nipples sliding her palms roughly back up onto the engorged bulbs and rough circle her palms pressing in hard to pulp the succulent nipples. The back to jamming in from the sides pushing in on the thick pulpy nipples contorting and compressing them. The pressure making Arya cry out in ecstasy.

"Unhhhh! Oh gods! Hhnnnggg! Hhnngggg … unnggg uunnnn uunngggg … Oh gods yes, you can do it harder," Arya panted, looking up at Dany, who was now hooking her fingers around the spongy nipples she was working. Dany roughly squeezed the plump plums loving how the juicy bulbs compress and squirted underneath her fingers. Dany worked back and forth between rubbing and rolling the nipples and then taking her fingers and squeezing in with all her fingers surrounding the puffy nipples and hard squeezing them. The Queen’s squeezing fingers filling Arya’s nipples with friction and fire. "Ungh! Unghhh! Ohnnnggg!” Arya groaned softly with each hard squeeze of Dany’s fingers in on her bursting nipples.

Then the Queen lifted her hands four inches above Arya’s nipple cupping them. She struck her hands down fast and hard thumping them down into Arya’s bulb nipples. Thump thump thwok thump thwok thwok thump Daenerys hammered Arya’s nipples compressing and pulping them down into the Stark girl’s ribcage.

“Auuurrnnggg oowwww ghhn hhnnnggg hhnnn hhnnn unnggggggggg—ffuccckkkkkkkkkkkkk!” Arya groaned deep in her chest her face slashing hard her eyes squeezed tight shut feeling her pulpy nipples pulped. “Ohhhhh fuuccckkkk yeesssss!” Arya hissed. The teen’s legs scissor on the rawhide while her fingers clawed and raked the rawhide. Arya sibilantly gurgled as Dany pounded her nipples more * thwok thump thwok thwok thump thump thwok * Arya’s head thrashed as her face contorted and slashed with pain but so much sweet pleasure.

The Queen stopped torturing her baby’s bugling nipples and went back to gently massaging them. Arya whinnied and gurgled in her throat as Dany lovingly now massaged her stinging nipples filling them with sweet pulsing pings of ecstasy.

Dany wanted to bring Arya off again with just her fingers working Arya’s nipples but she could not deny herself any longer. Dany pulled over some furs to be beside Arya’s supine body. She folded down on the furs now beside Arya. She slide her right hand down Arya’s heaving belly and traced over her lover’s swollen sloppy wet mound. Up and down Dany stroked the slimy slit. Her fingers rolling and pulling on the rubbery inner lips. Arya was chuffing rotating her pussy up into the fingers pleasing her swollen snatch.

Then Dany’s oiled fingers found Arya’s fuck hole and two oily fingers slowly slide deep up Arya’s cum filled cunt and stroked in slow and deep. Arya’s head jerked up off the fur. In and out, Dany stroked her fingers deep into her lover’s swollen squishy love box. In and out Daenerys pumped her fingers deep into Arya’s sodden trim. The pussy sucking and slurping on the long digits pumping deep into the hot slick cauldron of Arya’s drooling clamshe.

The Queen now added a third finger stretching out her lover’s cunny on her pumping fingers. The fingers soaked in creamy cum and squeezed by tight slimy sucking folds. The Queen luxuriated in slimy sucking embrace of Arya’s soupy couchie. Arya’s pussy gripping the long digits as they slowly pumped hard into the teen’s sodden cunt. Dany’s knuckles rapping hard into the cum soaked mons of her love slut.

Arya stared at Dany who locked eyes with Arya and lowered her head. “Mmmnggggggg! Fuckkk yyeeaaahhhhh!” Arya cried out feeling Dany slowly siphon and an engorged bulb nipple deep into her mouth and began to nurse with hungry love sucks. Dany slowly increased the force of the fingers she thurst hard and deep up into Arya’s cunt. The Queen adding a slow twisting motion to her finger thrust. The Queen whorled Arya’s fuck folds with her pumping fingers. “Unnggg hhnnng hhnnngg uunnggg!” Arya moaned in raw primal pleasure.

Dany sucked with cheek hollowing voracious sucks her tongue stabbing and lathing the fat nipple sucked deep into her mouth. She moaned tasting her lover and the sweet oils she had on Arya’s skin. The Targaryen kept glancing up seeing fierce pleasure slashing over Arya’s face. She went back to slow pumping her lover’s cunt with her fingers sliding easily in and out the hot tight sixteen year old cunny of her lover. She slow stroked her fingers pumping in and out. The fingers already creamy with cum. Her knuckles rapping the engorged brown reddish mons hard compressing and squeezing in on Arya’s clit with repeated raps of shocking impacts.

"Do the other one. Pleaseeeeee!" Arya croaked down to Dany with desperate fuck hunger. Arya’s face twisted with sublime pleasure. Dany was only too happy to comply lifting her head and rolling her body more into Arya’s warrior’s body and sucked her other nipple deep into her mouth and wolfed sucked with short vicious love sucks. She sucked and slapped the engorged teat with her tongue all over. The blond hooking her lips on the rim of Arya’s nipple on breast to anchor her head as she deep throat love sucked on the pulpy nipple sucked deep in her mouth.

Dany increased again the force and pace of the fingers she was pumping into her lover’s sodden cunt. The sweet pussy making watery sounds. The inner folds sucking on and gripping the fingers sliding so deliciously deep in the sixteen year old’s twat. Dany’s knuckles hard rapping the cum soaked mons of her slut.

Dany’s head moved right and left to siphon in a turgid nipple and deep throat love suck as her tongue lathed and wormed all over the spongy rubbery nipples. Her own full breast pressed into Arya’s ribs as she nursed. The Queen loved feeling her nipples rasping along Arya’s oil slicked ribs. Her hand a piston stroking her fingers hard into the cauldron that was Arya’s love box. The pussy making wet slurping sounds of being well fucked.

“Yes! Unhhh! Shit! Unnggg hhnnnnn hhnnnn uunnggg hhnnngggg ffffffffucccccckkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkk
Arya’s head had lulled over her eyes unseeing as her face slashed and grimaced with pleasure that was so intense it seemed painful but was only ecstasy. She was breathing heavily now and sweat beaded on her oil slick skin and rolled down her face and down her ribs. Sweat beaded on her belly and thighs and pooled in her quivering innie belly button. Her feet with stiff her toes curling. Her arms spread wide and her hands clawed into the furs. Arya’s head thrashed slowly first to one side and then lulled to the other side her face slashed with primordial fuck ecstasy.

Her head jerked up a shocked look of soul crushing pleasure consuming Arya. "Ummnnngghhhiiieeee! Mmmnnngghhhiiieeee! … aarrgnnnn hhnggg … oh oh hhnggg … ooowwwggggaaaaaaaarrrrghhhhhhhhh!" Arya cried out, her hands tearing at the furs her legs juddering like a cable in a storm. Her pussy jerked up into the fingers now slam fucking her immolating snatch. Her head kept jumping up on her taunt neck the tendons in her throat jutting up in stark relief. Arya’s body bucked and flipped as searing bliss burned through her veins curling toes and clawing fingers.

Dany pounded Arya’s exploding cunt with her fingers and her mouth tried to suck the nipple in her mouth down her throat. Arya’s body convulsed and bucked as killer volts of killing ecstasy ripped through her strong body. "Ungghh! Oh! Aunngghhhh!! Unngghmmmmnggiieeee! Oh shit! Oh! Unngghhhhiieeee!" Arya’s wails still had her throat corded up tendons jutting out her throat. Her face, throat and upper chest flushed pink. Her body convulsed from head to toe in agonizing seizures of fucking bliss.

"Oh gods . . . baby . . . baby!" Arya gasped. "Oh god, I love you, Dany! Unghh! Oh yes! Unngghhh! Aunngghhhhiieeee!" Arya whole body shook violently as her orgasm waned away now. She was panting and a blasted look was in her eyes. Sweat poured off her body. Hard aftershocks rocked the Starks’s body with searing ecstasy.

Dany was not finished with her lover. She sat up and urged a groggy Arya to sit up. Arya was still be gripped by hard aftershocks. Dany slide behind Arya and pulled Arya back into her body. She sagged into Dany. The Valyrian’s breasts compressed by Arya’s back with her ass pressed into the Queen’s wet pussy. Arya’s head lulled back on Dany’s shoulder her head turned to look at Dany with a beatific smile on her face. Dany’s legs were bent up to nestle Arya between them and keep her body in place.

The Queen picked up the flask and poured out more of the liquid and let the liquid drool all over Arya’s throat, upper chest and her breast. Dany loved watching the liquid form streamers and run down Arya’s hard body. Then she ran streamers down Arya’s belly and over her cunt again. Arya watched with limpid eyes. Dany put the flask down.

Daenerys spent a languid several minutes massaging the liquid into her lover’s glistening skin. Her fingers massaged and rotated over the glowing skin. Her hands stroking sensual patterns on Arya’s body. The Queen paying special attention to Arya’s nipples again fully engorged and rubbery stiff. The Queen pulling and hard squeezing the bulb teats. Arya gagging and hissing her raw aching pleasure. Then Dany pushed her love’s head over and back on her shoulder. The Valyrian lowered her head.

“AAAWWOOOGGGGGGGGGG!” Arya screamed feeling Dany suck her throat deep into her mouth and viciously suck in and out through her teeth. At the same time she slide her four fingers down Arya’s belly and penetrated her slut’s hot tight slurpy cunt. The position was awkward but the Queen adjusted her body angle. She started up a slow and deep stroke into Arya’s cum filled distended cum happy cunt fully burying them. Dany’s wedge sinking fully up into her lover’s drooling clamshell. Arya chuffed over Dany’s head. “AARRUUUNNNNGGGGG!” Arya screamed anew with the new cruel hickie that Dany was giving Arya lower down on her throat. The Queen began to slow stroke her wedge in and out Arya’s stretched out slimy cunt hole.
Dany raised her head and used her free hand to grip Arya’s sweat soaked hair now dark brown almost black with sweat and oil. Dany turned Arya’s head back and titled it up. She brought her lover’s mouth to hers and sucked Arya’s lower lip between hers. She rolled the lips between hers and then nipped the lips. Then her tongue was demanding entrance to Arya’s mouth with her tongue drilling Arya’s teeth. Arya parted her teeth and Dany’s tongue lunged in. Her tongue wetly wrestled Arya’s tongue before untangling and spearing down Arya’s throat. The Queen relished how Arya’s oily body pressed back into her own oily body and squirmed.

“Mmpffff! Ppphhffff! Mmpphfff!” Arya chuffed into her lover’s mouth. Her belly melting feeling Dany’s long fingers sliding so deliciously into her already revived pussy. Her trim hungry for more orgasms. Dany slowly pumped her wedge up and into Arya’s tight snatch her knuckles ramming the Stark girl’s vulva with each full deep thrust. Dany looped her left arm around and underneath Arya’s armpit and brought her hand up and cupped Arya’s swollen engorged nipple and roughly massaged the rubbery bulb. Arya’s body giving hard jerks and spasms of pure fucking bliss.

Dany plucked her lover’s body like a harp. Her right hand would slowly pull back till her fingertips were at the entrance to Arya’s vagina and only then harpoon back in fast, hard and deep fully burying them into the hot tight oily velvet glove of Arya’s snatch. Her left hand moving from spongy nipple to nipple grinding and squeezing the engorged spongy nipples. Arya’s pussy made wet sucking noises on the long fingers fucking it so exquisitely.

“Ohhhhh oohhhhh uunnggg … yessssss! Hhnnggg hhnnnn hhnnnn oohhhhhhhh!” Arya groaned sibilantly in raw aching pleasure. Her lover keeping to the slow pace and paused strokes to ram fuck Arya’s bubbling and drooling clamshell. Her cum leaking out soaking her vulva and down her ass cleft. Her asshole soaked in oil, sweat and cum. Again Arya longed for hard deep anal dicking and fisting.

Dany plucked her lover’s body like a harp. Her right hand would slowly pull back till her fingertips were at the entrance to Arya’s vagina and only then harpoon back in fast, hard and deep fully burying them into the hot tight oily velvet glove of Arya’s snatch. Her left hand moving from spongy nipple to nipple grinding and squeezing the engorged spongy nipples. Arya’s pussy made wet sucking noises on the long fingers fucking it so exquisitely.

"Hhhhh! Hhhhh! Oh!" Arya panted, her eyes rolling up. Her face twisted and snarled with fierce pleasure feeling her couchie exactly fucking. Her nipples rolled and mashed filling them with fire and ecstasy. "Gods, Dany, you’re so fuckkkkingg good! Oh my . . . oh gods, it feels wonderful! Keep fucking me baby!"

Dany had every intention of doing that. With a wicked smile she speed up her pumping forearm. She slammed her fingers in hot and fast into the now sloshing pussy of her sweet love. Then she slowed and harpooned them in fast and deep and held them there at the end of each deep harpoon stroke into the sweet sloppy cauldron of Arya’s snatch.

Dany wiggled her fingers wildly to churn Arya’s inner cunt folds making her pussy slurp and slosh. Cum splattering as Arya rose up to orgasm again. Only then pulling her fingers back out the buttery cunt to pause at the entrance of Arya’s slobbering clamshell. Then fast slamming her fingers back up Arya’s spasming quim with shocking force to begin churning the slimy fuck folds.

"Oh! Oh!" Arya gasped, leaning her head back against Dany’s shoulder. "Yes! Yes! Oh . . . Dany! Unhhhnhh!"

“Look at me Arya” Dany reached up with her hand and fisted Arya’s hair and tilted her head back. “Look into my eyes when you cum this time. Keep them open as you cum. I want to see the shock hit you baby. Give it to me.”
Dany fucked her lover hard and fast then. Then she slammed her fingers in deep and held her buried fingers in wiggling her digits plowing slimy cunt folds. Dany saw her lover’s face twist and shock with hard pulses of ecstasy. She moved her left hand back down to Arya’s chest and ground her palm into Arya’s left pulpy nipple crushing the bulb into her chest. Arya’s breathing was ragged and her face twisted and blasted with soul searing pleasure. Dany kept their eyes locked. Her thumb now rolling and squirting Arya’s shiny clit around jamming it into its sheath. Her fingers plowing the depths of the teenagers sloppy wet trim.

Arya’s head began to thrash and jerk. Still, the teenager kept her eyes locked with Dany as ordered even as her face was slashed apart with ecstasy. Her breathing somehow became even more ragged. Sweat poured down Arya face. Dany then saw it. The ‘shock’ of that first pulse that is more than pleasure and the heaven of orgasm. Arya’s eyes flared that little more round and open. Her breathing hitched and her body short jerked. Then Arya’s cunt gripped tight Dany’s twirling fingers buried in deep in a velvet fist.

Arya’s cunt exploded on the fingers buried deep up it and spasm hard on the thrashing digits. Arya’s cunt spasm wildly sending out pulses that scalded the sixteen year old with shocking bliss. Her head slammed back into the Queen’s muscled shoulder "ARRUUNGGGGGGGGG! OOWWWGHAAAAAAA! AUNNGGHIIEEEE!" Arya screamed out, shrieking loudly as a fierce, shattering orgasm wrenched her writhing body. Her cunt tearing itself inside out. Arya complied with Dany’s wish and kept their eyes locked.

Dany enjoyed seeing the fucking bliss ripping her Wolfling apart. Each pulse so clear in Arya’s steel grey eyes. It was fucking hot! to see Arya’s orgasm in her eyes so close to hers Dany thought.

Dany was wiggling her hand now churning the pussy splattering cum droplets all over Arya’s belly and mound. Drops splashing on Arya’s thighs. "Onnngghhh! Awwwnnnngggg! Ungghh! Oh Gods ... Godddssssmmmm—Aaagghhhieeeeee! ohhhh! Auungghhiieeeeee!" Arya shrieked in scalding bliss. Her body flipped and jackknifed violently back into Dany’s body as searing waves of euphoria erupted out her spasming pussy and scalded her clit making it shriek out in ecstasy. Arya’s head kept jerking forward and slamming back into Dany’s shoulder.

Arya orgasm spent itself on Dany’s fingers buried in her twat. Dany’s fingers and now wrist and forearm soaked in the cum that had spasm and sloshed out the Stark’s teenage cunny. Arya’s head suddenly hung limp on her worn out neck as she mewled. Arya slumped back into Dany gasping for breath her body limp with sweet lassitude. Arya’s head lulled into Dany’s neck as Arya’s body jolted with powerful aftershocks. Dany smiled seeing drool out the left corner of Arya’s slack mouth. The drool soaking the Queen’s neck and running down in trickles. Arya’s face twisted and contorted with the hard aftershocks now pummeling her spent clit and made her nipples throb with hot pulses of pure fucking ecstasy as she hissed through strong aftershocks.

Dany held her convulsing lover relishing the dying aftershocks filling her lover’s body still. Those vibrations telegraphed back into Dany’s body that Arya was slumped against. She had enjoyed feeling each shockwave of hard cumming wrack through Arya’s body pummeling her nearly senseless with pleasure. She enjoyed the now dying pulses of Arya’s pussy on her buried fingers. She waited a minute to let the last of the aftershocks fade away.

Only now did Dany slowly pull her cum soaked fingers from her lover’s slack pussy. She loved how Arya’s body jolted and her breath hissed. Her pussy sensitive now after another stunning orgasm. Arya was looking up at Dany from Dany’s shoulder. She had a soft loving look on her face.

Dany brought her hand up. It was soaked in cum. She looked at it as did Arya. She slowly brought her hand to Arya’s mouth. The happy teenager opened her mouth wide. Dany slowly pushed her fingers into Arya’s open mouth. Arya clamped her lips on the fingers slow pumping up and down her tongue. Arya moaned happily loving the taste of her own cum on the Queen’s fingers. She sucked slow and sensual her eyes pulsing hot love and sex at Dany. Dany now worked her thumb into Arya’s mouth filling it with her digits.

Dany ran her fingers all the way into Arya’s mouth doing a soft wedge fuck of her lover’s hot mouth. She angled her fingers to thoroughly fuck her woman’s throat with her fingers. Arya moaned lewdly. Dany was excited to see her lover reviving. Arya reached up to grip Dany’s wrist and pushed Dany’s wedge harder into her own mouth pounding the back of the teen’s throat. Arya making obscene whore sounds as she choked on the fingers now making her drool all down her face.

All the while Arya looked at Dany like the pure slut she was.

Dany needed relief and knew just how to get it. She pulled her hand from Arya’s mouth and scooted out from behind Arya. She pushed her complaint lover back down and onto her back on the rawhide mats. Arya stared up at her Queen with complaint eyes. She was ready for whatever Dany had in mind. Arya watched Dany reach behind her pulling some furs onto the edge of the mat on her side. Arya smiled knowing Dany was making a little nest to lie her upper body on to hump her drooling snatch into Arya’s swollen cunt.

Dany moved to get in front of Arya between the Stark teenager’s legs. Dany put one leg over Arya’s hip and the other leg she forced underneath Arya’s other leg. She scooted forward but stopped. She picked up the flask and poured out a thick column of massage oil all over her mound and then Arya’s mound. Both pussies oil slicked with a thick slavering of the coconut massage oil. Dany put the flask down and urgently slide her body forward.

Both women watched their pussies merge and then jammed into each other. The massage oil making both quims so slippery. Arya whimpered feeling the hot wet kiss of her Queen’s pussy jammed into hers. Dany gagged feeling their labia lips mashed and rolled over each other’s sloppy wet cunts. Both young women slide their bodies forward mashing their cunnies hard into each other sliding legs up along their mate’s body. Dany gripped Arya’s leg in front of her had pulled it tight to her body and used it as an anchor.

They both began to sweep their hips up and down grinding swollen cunnies into each other. The message oil let their pussies kiss wetly and easily slip up and down against each other. Dany felt her pussy on fire as she began to hump her sodden snatch into Arya sloppy wet cunt. Arya had again revived and was humping hard against Dany’s pussy. The oil letting their pussies hump easily against each other. Arya gripped Dany’s leg around the knee and concentrated on humping hard into the pussy grinding her already revived pussy.

Both women were instantly into the hot trib fuck. The two women’s bodies undulated up and down like writhing snakes. Their pussies locked together in a wet kiss. Their cunnies ground into each other tight. Their clits jacked and shocked by rubbing over their mate’s clit, pubic bones and the shock of mons hitting the inner thighs of the woman they were grinding against. Up and down the women worked their groins to sweep their sodden cunts over and against each other. The sluts chuffing and moaning deep in their throats.

Dany growled and snarled humping her twat hard into Arya’s swollen pussy. A pussy that was jamming and riding up and down her pussy with hot sweeps of Arya’s hips up and down. Dany gagged feeling her clit pounded and rode hard over by Arya’s pussy. Their labia lips ground and stretched by the other’s pussy. Their clits shocked by the impacts of pubic bones ground into each other. The two women working their hips that separated groins that small distance that was instantly closed with ramming bodies grinding and pulping sweet camel toes.

“Unnggg mmmnnnggg … fuck yessssss! Yes!” Dany gagged gripping Arya’s leg into her oil slicked body. Their slippery torsos rubbing against the lover’s slippery torso and gripped leg. “Uunnggg … auuggg nnggg nnggg—ooohhhhhnnnnn nnggg hhhnnggg hhnnnggg hhnnnn” Arya whinnied pumping her hips hard to grind her sodden couchie up and down over her slut’s slippery wet cunt.

Dany felt her pussy jangling and her clit pulsing with ecstasy as she felt her pussy mashed and ground by Arya’s sweeping pussy. Their clits pulsed and screamed as their wild motions had their clits jacking over each other at sweet random moments. She jerked on Arya’s leg up along her torso pounding it with jerks into her rolling titties sloshing around on her chest with her gyrations. Her light brown areolas steeple her stubby nipples fully painfully erect. Her firm tits rocking hard on her chest in up and down jerks.

Both women’s strong bodies undulated and shook with their bodies colliding and sweeping up and down grinding their groins into each other. Their stomachs flexing up to rippled muscle. Their ass cheeks clenching and wallowing on the rawhide.

Dany had risen up to one elbow to get more force with her humping. Her body flexing hard to sweep her pussy up and down hard into Arya’s forward grinding cunt. Shocks of ecstasy hit Dany hard her breath whooshing out her lungs with the flares of ecstasy shocking her mind with bliss. Another shock hit the Queen and her head lulled backed on her now nerveless neck. Loud moans from her throat trilled into the room.

Arya was in heaven humping hard into the pussy kissing and wallowing over her sweeping cunt. She gritted her teeth and humped harder into her slut’s cunny. She heard Dany cry out in aching pleasure. Her body shuddered hard and she collapsed back down to the mats and gripped Arya’s leg harder to her oil and sweat slicked body. Dany ground desperately up and down with her cunt immolating their two pussies hard into each other.

"Oh! Yes . . . oh Arya . . . oh it feels so good!" Dany chuffed feeling her pussy sing to her. She jammed and swept her pussy in the V of their locked groins. Their pussies rubbing furiously over each other their groins jacking hard back and forth into the inner thighs of their locked groins. The hard pounding of their locked pussies and the slamming into each other’s thighs was sending shockwaves of pleasure directly to her swollen rigid clit. Both women short jerked their hips to keep their pussies locked and grinding manically into each other.

She felt Arya’s hard nubbin jacking over her throbbing clit. The jolts of those impacts had both women cry out in helpless pleasure. Dany was in a hard rhythm with their locked groins humping fast up and down over its mate. Hot weeping cum basting pussies in hot sweet cum. The hot cum adding another layer of lubricant to the already liberally applied coconut based massage oil. Each hard sweep of their drooling pussies soaked their mate’s cunt in their hot cum seeping out the swollen cunnies.

Their flexing and striving bodies had their groins separating a small distance and then jamming hard into each other again and again before kissing tight and wallowing against each other in an intimate lock. The two women humping like bitches in heat. The changing angles again had groins slapping into each other at random intervals before humping in a tight kiss again.

"Ohhhnnnn! Shit! Unnggg hhnnnggg hhnnn hhnnnnn!" Dany moaned. She was grunting working her hips to grind and smash her love aching cunt into Arya’s swollen quim. She was in heaven feeling their two mounds grinding and bashing into each other. "Oh gods . . . oh gods, yes, Arya! Oh gods! Unhhhh!" she panted, her breath whistling as she sucked it past her clenched teeth.
Dany moaned feeling their sweaty and oiled up bodies slipping and sliding against each other. She felt Arya’s leg flexing and brushing over her belly and breast. The leg she held onto for dear life to help her sweep and jam her pussy into her lover’s twat hard again and again. Their grinding pussies rolling labia lips and plowing hard clits over sopping wet quims and sending shocks into their bodies when they jacked over the other’s clt.

For the next several minutes they humped like bitches in heat. Dany felt the tension building in her body. Her groin swept frantically now up and down Arya’s love chute. Dany’s eyes were squeezed shut tight, spitte spraying out her clenched teeth. Her C cup tits whipping and rolling around on her chest. Their bodies slightly rolling as they sought to get maximum pressure on their twats as they humped.

Dany felt the tension rising now in her belly. Her chuffs getting more and more desperate and pitched higher in tone. Her face had scrunched up tight, spittle spraying out her clenched teeth. Her C cup tits whipping and rolling around on her chest. Their bodies slightly rolling as they sought to get maximum pressure on their twats as they humped.

“Cum for Dany!” Arya barked out sensing her mate was close. “Cum for me you godsdamn cunt! You fucking Bitch! Gods your cunt is flooding Dany! Cum for me hard slut!” Arya cried out knowing how Dany loved to be talked to like a whore when she was about to cum. Their pussies now flooded with flowing fuck juice from their drooling fuck holes.

“Hhhuunngg hhuunngg … huunnn hhnnngg … Oh Shit!” Dany chuffed. The tension in her womb kept building and building. Dany was almost weeping feeling the scalding pressure building deep in her belly. Both women were whinnying loudly as they fucked desperately to cum hard. Then Dany felt her womb explode.

Her womb shredded deep in her belly scalding Dany with shocking bliss. Her head lifting and slamming down into the furs with short hard jerks on her spasming neck.

"AIINNNGGHHHIIIEEEE! AAARRUUUNNGGGGGG! OOOOWWWWGGGGGGG!" Dany shrieked, like a murder victim. It was blood-curdling screams that filled Arya with wild energy to slam her cunt harder into Dany’s exploding snatch. She was crying out dragging her cunt roughly up and down on lover’s gushing cunt. Dany’s head now snapped forward and back as her eyes rolled back and spasm hard in her skull.

Dany’s body was now filled with full body seizures that shook her violently. Her groin bucked wildly working her twat into Arya’s hard slamming and up and down grinding couchie. Arya holding onto the bucking leg of her lover to keep their pussies in their intimate kiss of grinding sodden love. She felt Dany weakening but kept grinding hard hoping to give her love another orgasm. She gritted her teeth and jammed in hard pulping their cunts into each other. The friction intense as labia lips were twisted and rolled and clits mashed so hard.

Dany was stunned as the spasms waned and she felt like pure fucking ecstasy was incinerating her veins with blistering bliss. Arya’s efforts rewarded her mate. She watched Dany’s head snap up from the furs her eyes shocked wide open. A second orgasm exploded out on top of the dying first orgasm. “OOOWWWNNGGGG!" Dany screamed her head jerking up and slamming down into the furs as she again wildly humped into Arya’s slamming grinding cunt.

Dany wailed in shocking ecstasy. "Ummnnngggiiieee! Mmnnngghhhiiiiiiii! Nnnhhiiiiieeeeeeeeee!" Her body was again flippin and jackknife as her body surged forward again and again pulping her love chute into Arya’s hard surging pussy. Finally, the spasms began to wane as Dany’s body shuddered and jerked on her side her stunned pussy still humping Arya’s trim. The Queen felt fuck juice dribbling out her spent pussy soaking her groin, belly, ass crack and inner thighs in hot slimy cum. Dany cooed. Her body lurched hard as strong aftershocks rippled out her spent couchie.
For a long minute the two women lay with their pussies kissing. Dany’s body hitching with the last of her aftershocks. Their bodies still titled over for their classic scissors fuck. The hot cum pulsing out the Queen’s cunt soaking their locked mounds in opaque love juice.

Dany was for now at least temporarily satiated. Her legs splayed out and her body soaked in sweat. Her pussy was purring in pure happiness. She felt so close to Arya again. Great sex had healed the hurt to her their hearts.

Dany lazily watched Arya scoot back decoupling their legs and rise up on her knees between Dany’s legs. She reached down and gripped Dany’s legs pulling them up to bend her knees and feet on the bed. Arya pushed Dany’s leg out. The Queen watched Arya knee over her groin so one knee was between her legs and the other beside Dany’s ribs.

Arya reached down and jacked up Dany’s leg against her rib and angled slightly putting her other hand on the Queen’s leg lying on the furs. She started to aggressively hump her pussy up and down and over the Queen’s spent pussy. Arya grunted humping hard. Dany though worn out began to swirl her pussy up into Arya’s thrusts to give her woman more pleasure with increased pressure on her grinding twat.

“Huunnggg hhnnggg hhnngg … oohhhh uunggg hhnggg!” Arya chuffed fucking her pussy down into Dany’s twat her body bouncing to grind pubic bones into each other. Arya’s head thrashed and her face slashed the pleasure flooding out her grinding trim. Both women groaned feeling Arya’s cunt heavily lubricating basting both of their trim in sweet slimy fuck juice. The massage oil already and previous cums had their pussies soaked. Their love juice letting their pussies hump extra easily back and forth over each other.

Arya leaned back and swirled her pussy in a tight circle grinding her cunt down into Dany’s dark red spent pussy. Her engorged bulb nipples jerking ever so slightly up and down with her wild gyrations. Her all areola and nipple breast simply jerking with her hot fucking. Dany’s own tits sloshed and swirled on her chest. She was humping up into Arya and her lover’s grip on her body had Arya urging Dany’s body to roll up into her grinding cunt.

The sounds of slapping bodies filled the tent as cunts and groins rammed into each other and ground in before their bodies swirled apart again and slammed each other again and again pulping cunts into each. Dany’s pussy was spent for now but she loved looking up at Arya. Her lover would throw her head back and cry out grinding down into lover’s pussy so hard.

"Gods . . . yes!" Arya moaned. Her head leaned back up to vertical and had gripped Dany’s leg with both arms and held it tight against her belly as an anchor. She fucked hard down into Dany’s cunt. Their locked pussies grinding hard into each other. The sound of sodden pussies jacking into and over each other filled the tent with their loud smacking collisions. Arya’s face slashed and tore with primal ecstasy. "Gods, yes . . . I am getting so fucking close! Oh Dany . . . oh oh!"

Dany was humping up hard into her lover’s ramming twat slamming down into her spent pussy "Oh gods, yes! Do it hard! Hard! Ungghhh!" Their sodden pussies were making wet obscene slurping and wet sucking gargling noises. The women grinding their snatches hard into their drooling mate.

Arya’s body began to convulse with mini convulsions her face slashed with aching pleasure. Her breathing was loud and labored. Her squeals of straining ramping up in pitch. Arya’s upper body jerked back as her back arched with each of their ramming thrusts of groins into each other mashing and crushing pussies and clits. Sweat dripped off Arya’s face and body as she strove for womb rending ecstasy. Arya jerked manically on Dany’s leg as her head rocked back as she groaned down in striving.
Then Arya’s body surged back wildly her back arching deep. Arya cried out as her cunt ruptured and exploded flooding Arya’s body with scalding agonizing ecstasy. “FFFFFUUUUCCKKKKKK! Uunnggh hhnnng uunnggg AAAAWWWWOOGGGGG!” Arya screamed as her belly was ripped open and her cunt spasm and tore itself inside out. ”Auunngghiimmnngghiieeeeee! Mmmnnngghiieeeeee! Mmmuuunngggghhiieeeeee!” Arya screamed, undulating, churning, groaning, cumming hard and long her body convulsing wildly up above Dany.

Dany was in heaven feeling Arya’s pussy spasm and gush hot gushes of cum that soaked her mound and belly with splashes of sweet creamy cum. Arya’s warrior body froze for a half second and then would convulse wildly as killing volts of ecstasy tore through her thrashing and flipping body. Again and again epic convulsions tore through Arya’s body. Dany loved watching Arya’s body buck back and to mash her cunt hard down into her pussy pulping them as more creamy cum poured out Arya’s cunt hole further soaking their cunnies in sweet love juice.

Arya suddenly weakened and sagged down gasping hard. Her body soaked in sweat. Her body still jerking with aftershocks. A still cum groggy Arya decoupled from Dany shakily. She sat on her ass behind Dany’s ass. Her body still not fully obeying her will. Arya moved back scooting back on the furs. Dany loved seeing Arya’s arms thrash and her face slashed so hard as strong aftershocks still pummeled the Direwolf of Winterfell with that searing fucking bliss that only aftershocks give a woman. That pleasure that comes from throbbing clit and nipples.

She pushed Dany’s legs out opening her dark pink pussy all wet and drooling with leaking cum. The teenager moved to lift her body over Dany’s leg and sat down between the Queen’s spread legs. Arya body’s still hitching weakly with her waning orgasm flowed down to her belly. She slithered forward her face now just above Dany’s swollen cunny.

She inhaled deeply groaning “Uunngggggg! Godsdammnnnnn Dany your cunt smells so fucking sweet baby!” Arya moaned burying her face deep in Dany’s gash. “Mmmngggggpphhffff!” Arya’s moans muffled by the hot snatch engulfing her mouth as she started to lap over the rigid clit beneath her tongue.

Dany cried out feeling Arya’s long pink tongue rake over her clit. The flat tongue licks hard on her nubbin. Then Arya was flicking her tongue all over her clit with fast wipes. Then Arya sucked her clit between her lips and sucked it in and out her lips while her tongue polished the shiny bud. The teens head pumping up and down stretching the wet trim in her mouth. Arya’s cheeks hollowing out deeply showing her tongue flailing Dany’s clit with gigging thrusts. Then Arya spit out the clit and began to flat tongue lick over again.

Dany felt her body jolt feeling Arya’s tongue rasp over her clit again and again with hard flat tongue licks. Dany’s hands came up to her tits and began to roughly massage them. Her pale fingers sunk deep into her bosom rolling her breast and squeezing hard and working her palms over her nipples to rasp them and jam down with her hands go grind her tits into her ribcage the pressure and friction so fucking exquisite.

Dany spread her legs further apart opening her honey hole for her wolf who was lapping hard up and down her drooling slit. Arya had worked an arm underneath Dany’s leg and her hand gripped her lover’s hip her other hand came up to Dany’s cunt hole and she slipped two fingers slow and deep into the Valyrian’s love box fully burying her long digits into the hot cauldron of Dany’s tight slippery folds.

"Unnhhh! Oh gods! Ungghh!" Dany grunt moaned feeling her lover slow pumping her fuck hole. Arya’s fingers punched deep into the tight cunny she deep stroked with hard thrusts. The friction delicious. The long fingers plowing through the Queen’s cum soaked inner whorls and folds. Arya was snuffling her mouth now locked on Dany’s clitoral hood which she had sucked between her lips and sucked in and out between her lips. Dany gagged feeling her clit working in and out through Arya’s lips the tip of her nubbin slapped relentlessly by Arya’s tongue. “Ohhhhh gods! … Unngggg auuggg Shit! Motherfuckkkkkk! Hhnnggg hhnnnn hhnnnnnn unnnnggg!”

Arya pulled her head back till Dany’s clit snapped out her mouth and whiplashed back down to its nest in its clitoral hood all knotted up and sloppy wet. Arya now wet loose sucked up and down Dany’s slit. She slurped up sweet slimy love snail snot and worked Dany’s labia lips in turn into her mouth. She sucked and stretched the slimy lips out and sucked clean of sweet cum. Her loose lips making sweet obscene fuck noises. The wolf girl worked her head back stretching out the inner lips of her lover and had them snap out her lips and whiplash back to Dany’s vulva. The Targaryen whooping with shocking pulses of sheer ecstasy.

"Ohhhhh Arya . . . ohhhh Arya! Unhhh! Oh!" Dany gurgled feeling her pussy expertly fucked so well. Arya was fucking her pussy harder now with her left hand. The knuckles of her hand pounding the Queen’s mound hard and relentless. The shocks working up her wet slit to her clit. Arya slammed her fingers home then slow pulled back and slammed in hard and fast again and again. The teenager alternating between fast and slow driving her lover wild with pleasure.

Arya moved her head over and started to lick up and down her lover’s swollen mons that was covered in opaque cum slavered over her cunt. Arya’s moaned licking up the sweet love cream. She looked up at Dany’s whose head was lulled over her eyes squeezing shut and face twisted with sweet fuck bliss. Arya again kissed and sucked in the Valyrian’s reddish—pink with hints of light brown labia lips and happily munched and sucked on the sweet morsels rolling and stretching them in mouth. Her tongue rolling and lapping the sweet slimy treats sucked deep into her mouth.

Arya was back to Dany’s clit and wolf sucking the rock hard shiny nodule with long ragged wet loose sucks. The sounds loud in the tent of loose lips rippling on Dany’s clit and the hot friction of the sucks were sending Dany to the stars. She was humping her hips harder now jamming her pussy into Arya’s mouth. After a minute Arya sucked Dany’s clit deep into her mouth. Dany cried out feeling Arya trying to suck her clit down her throat while her tongue gigged the rigid nubbin sucked out its hood.

Arya paused a moment in her finger fucking and worked a third finger into Dany’s quim stretching her twat out. “Aawwwogg! Oohhhnnnn oooohhh uunngggg hhnnnggg!” Dany gurgled feeling her twat stretched out tight on Arya’s fingers that resumed pounding her snatch. Dany was in heaven. She felt her pussy fucked hard and clit sucked so hard and worked so good by Arya’s now expert tongue work.

The teenager loved the tight wet heat sliding over her fingers that she pumped in and out the sodden fuck hole. Her fingers basted in sweet snail snot. The hot pulses of Dany’s cunt gripping and spasming up and down her fingers so exquisite to feel.

Arya was snuffling and moaning deep in her throat dinning on succulent sopping wet red cunt meat. She formed a loose lip lock on Dany’s clitoral hood. “Hhhhrrrrssssssssppp! Hhhrrrrllssssssppp! Sssssrrrrllllpppp!” Arya made wet obscene suck noises working Dany’s clit with pure focus and total love. Dany cried out as raw shocking pleasure filled her clit and radiated out her groin and down her limbs. The pleasure soaring through her torso and down her arms to her clawed fingers dragging on the rawhide. Her legs scissor on the animal skins. Her arms suddenly shot out wide. Her hands now on the furs. Those hands scrabbled all over the furs.

Arya felt Dany’s body freeze and then she was humping harder up into Arya’s mouth. Dany arched here back deeply to work her sodden cunt forward into her lover’s gobbling mouth. Arya felt Arya's hands slap onto her head and her fingers claw in hard. Arya pumped her three fingers harder into her slut's burbling fuck hole. The pussy making watery sodden noises. Arya focused and slammed her fingers harder into her baby’s cunt harpoon fucking it now. Her knuckles slamming into the vulva of her fuck slut.

Arya had her tongue flailing the rock hard nubbin of her love slut. She loved the feel of the harden diamond her tongue was flailing and gigging with repeated stabs. Her lips lathing up and down Dany’s clitoral hood sucking tight and adding friction with her deep throat love sucks.

Dany’s head thrashed from side to side. “Suck! Suck! Oh baby—I’m so fucking close … hhnnng hhnnnn hhnnnn Shit! Suckkkkkkk sucksucksuck!” Arya did while her left hand slammed fucked her lover’s wildly trembling pussy hole. Arya moaned into the pussy she was gobbling feeling Dany’s hot pussy hole spasm and grip down on her hard pumping fingers stretching her twat out.

Arya paused and took a deep breath and then sucked Dany’s entire upper cunt into her mouth. She sucked with all her strength and pure love. Her tongue polishing the clit deep in her mouth.

Dany never had a chance. Her cunt exploded in Arya’s mouth as her womb tore itself inside out deep in her belly.

"AUUNNGGHHHHH! OHNNGGHH! OH AAAARRRRYYAAA! AUUNGGGHHHHH!" The Queen cried out, completely shattered by a surging, convulsive orgasm that shook her entire sweat and oil soaked body violently. Arya felt Dany’s honey hole lock down on her hard pounding fingers as each killing spasm of dire fucking bliss ripped through the Queen’s body. Each spasm felt so hot on Arya’s fingers as Dany’s pussy milked the digits pumping now slow in and out the drooling fuck hole.

Dany’s finger dug into Arya’s scalp as her body flipped and jackknife violently. Her upper torso jerking up six inches off the furs and slamming down. She did this again and again as her body was throttled with pure fucking bliss. Ecstasy so intense it felt like her veins were on fire. Her heels pounded the furs helplessly while her fingers kept jerking Arya’s mouth tight to her pussy burying it deep in her vulva. Her inner lips engulfing Arya’s lips totally as she continued to suck so hard and deep on her love’s shrieking clit.

Awwonnnnggg! Oooowwwnnngggghiieeee! Anngghiieee!” Dany continued to shriek, completely destroyed by the piercing jolts of ecstasy wracking her flexing and flipping body. Her body bucked and jackknifed for thirty more seconds as her sweet lover prolonged her orgasm into a long rolling orgasm of searing fucking ecstasy.

Arya was in heaven sucking down cum that got into her mouth and feeling her lover’s hot wet cunt milking her pumping fingers. Finally, Arya felt Dany’s orgasm begin to wane. "Ahhhnnnggg! Ohnnnggg! Oh . . . shit! Unghhhnnnnngghh!" Dany groaned, stunned by the aftermath of her violent climax, her lovely young body stretching and flexing.

Arya felt Dany’s temporarily satiated body relax underneath her. Dany’s fingers now gently massaging her scalp lovingly. Dany knew the crisis was over. She would never again delay telling Arya anything. She was her Queen, lover, advisor and confident. She would never lose sight of that again. She was the conqueror. She would remember that with Arya and never forget again.

Jon

Jon was in the meeting tent with his father. It was still thirty minutes till the meeting with the Queen.
Jon wanted this meeting to find them all coming to the same page. Whatever conflict he would have with the Queen he would have it here two days out from the Wall.

He had asked for the Queen to spend an extra day here. He did not want a rushed meeting on his. That would have put undue pressure on everyone. This would have potentially caused unneeded conflict.

Also, there had been need to resolve conflict of a more personal kind. A small wicked small crossed Jon’s face.

He and his father were comparing their swords. Both now had truly unique weapons. He had unsheathed Lightbringer for his father. His Valyrian sword had been transformed as he had been during his walk in the flames. His sword had gone in as Longclaw and come out Lightbringer. His sword now as he held before his father was wreathed in red and yellow flames. The flames rising to two feet above the blade and radiating out six inches to a foot around the blade in writhing tongues. The heat rippling up off the blade and making mirages in the air. The blade literally wreathed in magical flames.

“Are you immune to fire now son” Eddard asked his son. Eddard watched flames ripple up several feet over the end of the blade and writhe out in twisting snakes a foot out from the side of blade. The flames rippling and dancing to slowly fade away only to have new snakes birthed in the heart of the blade and replace their lost brethren.

As Eddard watched several tendrils of fire were constantly flowing down the pummel and swirling around to enfold Jon’s fist holding onto the sword pommel. The flames circling and caressing Jon’s fist before they faded away only to be replaced my new tongues of flames.

“No father, I am not immune to fire. It is only Lightbringer’s flames that I do not feel. Ygritte and Melisandre can get right up before the flames in our fireplace when they are reading their portents. I can get no closer to the flames in a fire pit now than I could before Lightbringer was born.”

Eddard nodded. He had pulled out EveningStar for his son to look at. The sword had been milky blue when he first received it. It had been beautiful to begin with. The icy blue unique and eye catching like its older brother Morningstar in Dorne.

Eddard had told his son that when the Wraiths of Andelain had danced on his sword it had changed. Now the robin blue of his sword and an unearthly glow to it. The sword was luminescent emitting an ethereal glow that illuminated his father’s face when near it with a blue halo. The glow of his sword was slowly increasing with time. At times Eddard swore the sword was flowing strength into his body.

Jon looked at his father’s sword with intense interest. “I have found that normal steel cannot withstand but a few impacts with my sword. I hear this happens to swords against the Ice Wraiths swords. I am hoping my sword is their equal or better now. Valyrian steel is their equal too. Do you wish to test your swords mettle against mine? Let us see what our swords’ magic can do to each other.”

His father had considered and then agreed. He knew he should vet his sword against a known magical blade.

They had then squared off in the large open area in Jon’s command tent. Jon swirled his sword back flames leaping up into the air. Eddard lifted his sword crossways and held it ready. Jon slashed his blade down. The collision was mighty. Flames splashed off Lightbinger and EveningStar flared a bright blue that filled the tent with ghostly hue. The swords screamed as magic met magic. Both men backed up and looked at their blades.

There had been no damage. Jon stepped back and for a minute delivered savage blows to EveningStar. The sword easily took the blows. The sword was not damaged and did not become brittle from repeated strikes from the superheated blade of Jon. In fact, EveningStar shone brighter and brighter as it was struck as if it was taking the magic and power of Jon’s sword and feeding off it. Eddard felt invigorated as his sword now hummed an ethereal high pitched hum.

Jon looked at his father. “It seems you have a singing sword father?” he lightly jibbed. Eddard snorted. It seemed he did.

Now it was Eddard’s turn to ‘attack’ Jon’s sword. His blows a blur that whipped up and down against Lightbringer with repeated savage strikes. Evening Star hummed louder and left lift blue trails in its wake that took time to fade away. The up and down strikes by Eddard had the air between the two swords filled with light blue arcs.

They then lowered their swords. Eddard came up to Jon as he sheathed his sword.

“How can your scabbard not melt or fall asunder with the swords extreme heat Jon” Eddard asked his son.

Jon smiled. “It helps to have witches as your wives father” Jon replied smiling. He picked up his normal looking harden steel scabbard. He brought the tip of his sword to the edge of the slit for the blade. When Lightbringer’s blade touched the metal of the scabbard black runes appeared written around the scabbard in a spiral path from top to bottom. The runes glowing black and somehow pulsing midnight black. The flames of the sword swallowed in shadows that misted around the scabbard and blade.

When the crossguard slammed into the top of the scabbard the runes pulsed once creating a penumbra of black mist around the scabbard and when it cleared no one would ever know the nature of Jon’s blade.

“Yes son indeed. Having ShadowBender wives is a definite plus” Eddard said gripping his son’s shoulder.

Jon smiled back at his father. He truly had the greatest father Jon thought.

Jon then took his father to the main meeting table and they reviewed the maps and the latest logistical reports. Jon also told his father of his little test he had devised. He wanted to expose the treachery which he was told the Land forces would be able to expose. He wanted to see if it was truly possible for evil to be seen. His father was intrigued as well.

As they reviewed the documents and prepared for the meeting Jon’s mind drifted back to last night. He was sitting before the small fire in the big brazier looking at the flames. He was idly running his sharpening stone down the blade. Sparks and flames splashed away from the leading edge of his sharpening stone. His sword did not need the sharpening but he had acquired the habit from watching his father sharpening the family sword Ice as he had grown up. It calmed him as it had his father before him. It allowed him to think clearly and see the patterns that swirled in life.

Running his stone down the blade of his sword listening to the ring of stone on steel and for Jon he had the added show of leaping and swirling flames. This ritual allowed Jon to think and to see the forest for the trees. He was ready for the Ice King. No more could be done.

He looked over at their bed against the wall. Ygritte was fully on top of Melisandre her cheek on a full bosom snoring happily. The soft smile on her face precious. Ygritte’s face and back still all red and splotchy from the abuse she had endured. Abuse the little spitfire craved and sought out. Melisandre had one hand holding Ygritte’s hand on the bed her other arm around Ygritte’s back holding her down close to her body. Their bodies half covered in furs.

He had shook his head wondering how misunderstandings could seemingly arise out of nowhere like the nighty mist on the fields surrounding their tents. Arya had entered his tent and what should have been a joyful reunion had turned to a shit fest before he could even take a breath and greet his favorite sibling.

The next thing that Jon had known was first Arya and then Ygritte were yelling at him that he wanted to sleep with Arya so they could produce children for the throne. Then it was Daenerys Targaryen he supposedly would be sleeping with. That he wanted the Iron Throne. An Iron Throne he never once thought of as his. He in fact hated the thing. He had heard enough stories of the damn barbs and points as a kid to convince him it was not worth the damn effort to sit on it.

If he had had aspirations for holding such power the betrayal of his fellow Crows had broken him of any such dreams. These fellow men had taken the same Oath as Jon and still they had turned on him for merely trying to be humane and compassionate to the Wildlings. He was only trying to save a whole people from extinction. If not for his wives they would have killed him. He would have died. Not killed by the Ice King but by the very people he was serving with.

He could only imagine how people would be in King’s Landing with absolutely no such oath like the Crows took when they joined the Night’s Watch. He could only imagine the avarice and greed that must exist in that court. He did not have the acumen and patience that Daenerys Targaryen seemed to have for such an environment. The court life was not for Jon.

No, he was done with any trapping of power and the entanglements that came with such power.

So he had been almost giddy with seeing his sister and instead he found himself being attacked from all sides. He was even attacked by Melisandre in her diffuse way. He rarely let his anger get the better of him. He had always admired that quality in his father. He had failed. Getting attacked by his favorite sibling and his kissed by the sun wife could do that to him. He had argued vociferously with Ygritte.

Arya had finally had enough and left. That made things much simpler. At least he now only had to fight on one front. He and Ygritte raged at each other. He had had “Jon Snow you know nothing” thrown at him many times.

Fortunately, the argument was dampened when his father forcefully interjected himself into the conversation. He then relayed the history of the Targaryen’s in Westeros. It had been a story of infighting and lots of marriage of siblings with a liberal sprinkling of nieces, nephews and close cousins. It had been the Valyrian way. The idea seemed to be that if siblings or close relatives married then the risk of conflict for the throne would be reduced. Also, by this incest the blood of that House would be kept pure.

Unfortunately, in practice the practice did not seem to have reduce warfare with the passing of the generations and a strain of madness had appeared in the Targaryen line. A madness that seemed to be increasing in frequency.

Jon had never been interested in these “fairytales” as he had thought of them. His Wildling wife and ShadowBender witch from Asshai were not historians either. This knowledge calmed Ygritte down and explained Arya’s behavior. Arya knowing this had assumed that the two Targaryen’s at the least would want to produce children if not marry to further the Targaryen line.
The fact that Jon had no knowledge of this, and more, no desire, to make it happen had been lost on everyone. When his father had interjected himself and explained these facts it calmed the waters.

Jon had been finally able to get Ygritte to listen to him. She had calmed down the rest of the way. Melisandre had merely cocked her eyebrow at them. Of course his calm and collected wife had not gotten carried away too much by the milieu of contention.

They had gone back to their tent soon after that. Ygritte was looking contrite but still defiant if that was possible. The kiss by the sun woman mumbling darkly. Melisandre looked at Jon over their wife’s head. Her eyes were on fire. Jon was filled with the same fire himself. Jon knew Ygritte was filled with the same fire herself. Makeup sex was hot! Especially the kind of makeup sex Ygritte craved.

Now that he finally understood all the dynamics he thought he understood Arya’s thoughts. Jon thought evilly That was Daenerys problem. He was sure they would work out their problems. The Queen and his sister were obviously deeply in love with each other. They would come to an understanding. No one knew more about the Targaryen history than the Targaryen Queen.

He and Melisandre would give their fiery spitfire wife what she wanted. Her temper and dander had been ignited. Ygritte would sometimes pick a fight just so her husband and wife could “put her in her place”. Jon had sensed along with Melisandre that Ygritte was keeping her anger going to fill Jon with ire that he would then take out on her in the privacy of their Lord Commander tent. Ygritte knew that Melisandre would be joining in putting “Ygritte in her place” as the Wildling called it. They had played this act and scene quite a few times before. Ygritte craved masochistic sex. The strong woman simply went wild when Jon and Melisandre ‘fucked her over’ as Ygritte liked to call their rough sex.

It made Jon rock hard and both witches sopping wet. The mere thoughts of such sex made them all very horny. Ygritte nearly shaking with desires to be roughed up.

Jon nodded to Melisandre. By the old gods Ygritte did need to be put in her place Jon fumed to himself getting his own dander up. This had been no “play” fight. This had been genuine conflict. Jon was happy in a way that it had happened now and not later. The question of the line of succession had been put to bed. He smiled at that choice of word. Maybe ‘rest’ would be better he thought.

Now it was time to put Ygritte to bed he smirked. He was letting his emotions roil in him to get in the right mood to give Ygritte what she deserved. What she craved. Melisandre was normally calm, cool and collected but she was fired up too. The tall ShadowBender fed off the passion of her partners. She felt their passion and allowed it to flow into her and bring out a hidden aggressive side. A side that Ygritte and Melisandre often loved to partake in. At times, they needed Jon to be aggressive and “mean” to give them the excitement and degradation they craved at times from their mates. Those outside of their marriage had to meet their demands to be met with respect and acknowledgement of their power, talent and knowledge. Those outside of their marriage met a unified unbreakable wall of common purpose and will.

It was only with each other that the two ShadowBender witches would expose their kinky side and the need to be dominated and fucked rough by their spouses. Tonight it would be Ygritte alone fucked hard and deep. It would be Ygritte humiliated and abused. With total consensual consent of course.

Ygritte had walked to the tent with an intent look. She licked her lips several times in unconscious anticipation of the upcoming “festivities” as she liked to call their rough sex. Jon could see the crouched excitement in Ygritte’s small frame. Her face set and angry looking.

Melisandre would chide Ygritte “Geez, Ygritte, call it what it is. You want us to fuck you up.”

“You know nothing!” Ygritte would growl back all the while love shaking in anticipation of the coming harsh abuse she so craved from her spouses.

They entered into the tent. Ygritte putting on a burst of speed to get in front of Jon and Melisandre. The small woman made sure to bump hard into her spouses in getting ahead of them. The two stumbled from the hard shoulder thrown into them. They both looked at each other smirking. Ygritte had rushed to get ahead of them to let them attack her from behind. The administrated shoulder thump given to rile her spouses that little bit more. Yes, she wanted it rough. She was greedy that way.

The two ShadowBender witches had caste invisible runes of silence into the tent fabric. None would hear their rutting. None would hear the abuse about to come Ygritte’s way and think she was actually in need. That the small spitfire in fact craved the humiliation and pain she was about to receive.

Ygritte entered the tent followed immediately by her spouses. Ygritte turned around in a flash. She had a sneer on her face. “I don’t like your attitude one bit Jon Snow! And you Melisandre supporting him like a lowing heifer. You are so fucking weak Melisandre! Jon acts like a fucking bastard and you support him like a marionette jerking on Jon’s strings. I am tired of it!” Ygritte spoke in a hot growl at her tall wife.

The small Wildling’s eyes were almost aglow with anticipation. She pointed a finger a Jon. “How dare you want to sleep with Daenerys Targaryen! You are my bitch!”

Melisandre rolled her eyes at Jon. Jon shook his head at the sad display. Ygritte glared at them. Her body was so tense with excitement Jon could see her little body thrumming like a plucked bowstring. They made her wait. Ygritte paused. She was clearly waiting. “Do I have put you two in your place all the time. You are both are weak and docile. I am the head of this house! I am the top wolf in this pack. You both are my bitches!” Ygritte crowed. Her blue-grey eyes ablaze with fire and desire.

Jon shook his head. She was but it was time to start the “festivities”. Ygritte was clearly waiting.

Jon reached out his hand like a striking adder and fisted a handful of bright red hair. He snapped his wrist knocking a supposedly shocked Ygritte off balance. He then snapped her body around and jerked her torso down with cruel snaps of his arm. The Wildling gasped and looked with large eyes staying in character.

“What the fuc—“ Ygritte started to bark at Jon.

His right hand slapped Ygritte hard in her cheek. The sound shocking loud in the tent. His hand cupped to deliver a stinging slap that already had Ygritte’s left cheek red. She staggered over and stumbled against Melisandre who had moved over to her. Ygritte acted shocked and her breath knocked out of her in her supposed surprise. She acted startled.

“What—Arrrrrrnggggg!” Ygritte cried out. *Slap*Smack*Slap*Slap*Smack*Smack*Slap*

“Aaiiiii! Eeeeiuii uungghhii! Mmgghhiii!” Ygritte squalled in pain. Her head rocking over with the force of Jon’s hand striking here face on each cheek. Jon released Ygritte’s hair as she pressed up against Melisandre’s body. Unseen by Ygritte Melisandre balled up her fist and looped her arm around and punched Ygritte hard in the stomach.
“Aarruunnggpphhfffff!” the air expelled from Ygritte’s mouth. Her body folded down with the pain and sudden lack of air. The fiery redhead wheezing. She wretched for breath while her two lovers regarded her with scorn now into their roles. Ygritte started to get her wind back.

“Fuck you bitch!” Ygritte half wheezed—snarled “I’ll get yo—aaiiieeee nnggiieeeee! … uuunnggmmmpffff!” Ygritte suddenly cried out in pain and seeming fright and the air left her lungs again.

Melisandre had fisted Ygritte’s hair and jerked her around in a tight swirl again knocking Ygritte totally off balance. The tall auburn haired beauty used her hair knot of Ygritte’s long hair to snap Ygritte to an upright position before her tall stout body. She punched Ygritte hard again in the stomach folding her down but she jerked the Wilding erect again. Ygritte wheezing and panting to get her breath back.

Now Melisandre whirled the stumbling fiery redhead around to face her directly before the snarling tall voluptuous witch. Ygritte gasping to get her breath back. The Wildling face was filled with fire and rage. She started to open her mouth to hurl vitriol.

Her head rocked over to the side with vicious slaps across both cheeks from Melisandre. The tall witch using both hands to deliver cruel stinging slaps to her spiteful wife. Ygritte screeched in shock and pain. Melisandre repeatedly slapped her wife’s face hard with both of her hands. Then Melisandre fisted a handful of hair again. Her left hand jerked hard on Ygritte’s hair knot in her hand making her wife stumble right and left all the while slapping her viciously. Ygritte was now spluttering and beginning to cry with the supposedly savage assault upon her person. Her cheeks bright red now. Her nose also turning red from the harsh slaps.

To outsiders the abuse would seem harsh and violent but Jon and Melisandre were actually pulling their strikes on Ygritte while making it seem much more violent than it actually was. Ygritte wanted it all so all had to stay in character and do their part to make it all seem violent and not the consensual sex it really was. Jon knew that Ygritte was literally lapping up all the pain and humiliation.

Ygritte’s head jacked over from the hard vicious slaps. Melisandre was a strong woman and used a modicum of her strength now. She was holding back from truly hurting Ygritte but her little spitfire was definitely in raw pain now. The fiery redhead’s hair was now a disheveled mess. Her cheeks wet with the tears of pain and supposed fright. Her cheeks bright red and starting to get splotchy from the repeated harsh slaps. Melisandre lifted her hand higher and whipped across Ygritte’s cheeks hard back and forth. Each strike delivering pain.

Pain Ygritte craved and needed. Her breathing now ragged and her eyes dilated with raw lust and need. Her eyes saw her husband standing off to the side observing her getting fucked up with a bemused air. The sight turned her on immensely. Her cheeks were burning with fire. The pain going straight to erect throbbing nipples and her erect clit pulsing with her hammering pulse. Her cunt a soupy mess. Her short cloth sopping wet.

Jon did not mind giving Ygritte the abuse she craved but liked to let Melisandre deliver most of the corporal punishment. He would start the show and let Melisandre take over which she was always ready and anxious to do. Melisandre definitely had a strong sadistic streak she liked to let loose from time to time. Jon saved his dispensing corporal punishment for when they both craved mutual abuse and humiliation and he had to deliver it to both of them.

He was striping his clothes down. Ygritte was crying out her act of being stunned shocked self. She cried out “What you doing to me Melisandre! *Smack*Smack*Slap*Slap* Ygritte was beginning to sob hard now as she was being slapped down. Melisandre pulled up on Ygritte’s hair cruelly making Ygritte squall in pain. “Baby pleasssseeeee! Baby stop—stoppmmm!”
*Smack*Smack*Smack*Slap*Slap*Smack*Slap* Ygritte’s cries of pain and sobbing filled the tent. She was crying but also panting with the pleasure her pain and humiliation was giving her.

Melisandre pushed Ygritte to Jon. She stumbled over to him and he gripped her arms hard. Melisandre moved in and spit in Ygritte’s face and swallowed her palm in the Wilding’s face. Her palm making Ygritte’s head roll with the force of it. The humiliation was turning Jon on big time. He felt Ygritte shuddering and she was moaning now. He smiled. He knew she felt his thick hard dick pressed into her back. Ygritte never could stay in character once they started abusing her. Her body shaking with desire for more abuse and humiliation.

Hands of her husband and wife started to roughly undo the laces, hooks and buttons to Ygritte’s dress. The fabric stretched and a few buttons sent flying. Jon did not mind. He would enjoy sowing them back on. Soon they had the formerly mouthy redhead naked. She stood there between Jon and Melisandre. She looked docile but a fire was coming back to her eyes.

That was unacceptable. At the same time Jon smacked Ygritte’s ass cheeks and lower back hard with his palms while Melisandre smacked Ygritte’s face hard. Then Melisandre smacked viciously down on Ygritte’s small B cup tits. The blows compressing and flipping her tits and making them start to glow red. Ygritte bleated and cried out in pain. Melisandre pushed Ygritte back into Jon’s torso. The tall redhead began to languidly undo the hoops, buttons and hooks of her dress. Melisandre’s full tits swaying with the motions of her body.

Her dress loosened Melisandre paused in her undressing. The auburn haired beauty again smacked down hard on Ygritte’s small doves with cruel repeated streaks. Ygritte’s tits now cherry red and splotchy. Then she smacked Ygritte’s face hard several times making the Wilding’s head rock over.

Ygritte moaned feeling Jon’s thick long cock jammed into her lower back. The shaft throbbing pressed into her. Ygritte’s eyes hungrily ate up the body in front of her being divested of clothes in front of her. Ygritte’s eyes hungrily watched Melisandre’s full rack lifted up by the dress being pulled up over her head. The heavy tits lifted up and then spilling out to flop down onto the tall woman’s chest. The heavy hooters jiggling as they settled. Ygritte moaned hard when Melisandre hooked her thumbs into her short cloth and jerked it down off her voluptuous hips and it fell to her feet. Melisandre’s fat camel toe all wet and swollen. Her pussy a bright pink.

Jon shoved Ygritte hard into Melisandre. The tall auburn haired woman again roughly manhandling Ygritte. “You are always embarrassing us you fucking twat!” Jon barked at the diminutive woman. “Acting like a fucking asshole! You fucking sawed off runt! We need to put you in your fucking place again godsdamnit Ygritte! Why can’t you learn you fucking place!” Jon smiled seeing Ygritte’s body shake with lust her pupils blown with desire.

Ygritte was hurled back to Jon her body again knocked off balance. Jon snatched his wife into a grip holding her biceps. He roughly turned her around to face him. He spit in Ygritte’s face. The sweet slut moaning. He slapped her face and then her tits and back to her face. He had to give out some corporal punishment or Ygritte would bitch about it later. He had to admit the sounds and feel of his palm striking Ygritte turned him on with hot heat and desire. His cock jerking before him.

He whipped her around to face Melisandre. Ygritte shivered and groaned loving the fact her body was being manhandled and controlled roughly. The fiery redhead was a switch that needed to be topped hard when she was bottom being the bitch.

“Mmmnggggggg!” Ygritte moaned in heat. Her eyes watched Melisandre move back in on Ygritte with an evil sneer on her face. Ygritte saw the look and acted like she was in terror. She tried to jerk out of Jon’s grip but he was too strong for her. Ygritte could have thrown Jon off. She was strong enough in reality but that was not what she wanted. Her true desire was to be abused and humiliated.
Jon watched Melisandre lift her right hand. Ygritte’s head rocked to the side again and again with Melisandre’s hard slaps. She moved back and Jon whipped Ygritte around so he could slap her face hard on both cheeks. He was required to give out some abuse or Ygritte would feel cheated. The sounds were loud and shocking but neither were slapping Ygritte as hard as they could. Ygritte was moaning in rising pleasure that masochist sex gave her. Ygritte loved it when Jon and Melisandre gave her sadistic pain.

He eyed her now reddened tits. The pale skin now all splotchy from the repeated strikes on her soft pale skin. He smacked down with hands cruelly onto the small doves. The harsh smacks loud as he abused her breast with hard repeated smacks. His hand compressed and folded Ygritte’s small titties with the cupped palms striking down into them. Jon loved feeling Ygritte’s small tits compressing and then whipping up and down after the strikes. Her tits now even more cherry red.

Melisandre had ahold of Ygritte’s shoulders in a strong grip. Ygritte loved feeling hands roughly gripping and controlling her roughly. Jon balled his fist and rapped Ygritte hard in the stomach knocking the air out of her. Her body would have collapsed but Melisandre held up Ygritte with rough jerks on her body. Ygritte wheezed to get her breath back.

Jon moved back with a last few stinging hard slaps to Ygritte’s now splotchy face on both cheeks, nose and now her forehead. Melisandre now roughly shoved and jerked Ygritte over to the main tent pole and twisted Ygritte’s arm behind her back and jerking up making Ygritte shriek in pain. Melisandre used her grip to jack Ygritte into the thick pole again and again making the Wilding rebound back from the impacts. The Wilding crying out in pain and humiliation.

Melisandre pulled up on her arm bar to make Ygritte body lurch up to try and reduce the pain. Ygritte had made it clear to Melisandre and Jon that they needed to rough her up hard to give her the enjoyment she craved when she the bitch. She craved high levels of pain. It turned her on and made her pussy a sopping wet mess. Ygritte’s pussy had by now filled the tent with her fuck musk. Her inner thighs glistening with the cum wicking down her legs.

Jon’s thick cock bobbed in front of him as he moved around enjoying the spectacle of Ygritte’s sweet abuse. He had first been shocked when Ygritte made her desires known. He had hesitated at first; no more. He now enjoyed playing the sadist and giving his wives the pain and humiliation they craved. It turned him on immensely.

Melisandre threw Ygritte into Jon and he gripped her spun her around. He jerked Ygritte arms up behind her back and jerked them painfully. Ygritte cried out in pain. Jon lowered her crossed arms slightly and he watched Melisandre make runes in the air and chant in Asshai.

"Se do bheatha. Mar sin leibh an dràsda."

No rough hemp rope today. Saved a lot of time and effort Jon thought. This was hotter anyways. The rope would stay put away. Black ribbons appeared around Ygritte’s arms binding them tight together against her body. The magical rope pulling Ygritte’s lower arms behind her back one on top of the other. The spell devised to make the bindings rough and prickly like hemp rope. The magical tendrils writhing to dig and scratch harshly into skin. The spell designed to torment one’s skin.

Ygritte’s eyes went large as she struggled with her bonds. Of course she knew the counter spell but would not be using it. Slut Jon thought to himself with a chuckle.

Jon jammed Ygritte down hard on her knees. More bands formed around Ygritte’s torso. One black shadow rope snaked around Ygritte’s body above and below her small breast. The ropes synched in hard suddenly biting into Ygritte’s tits making them jut out between the ropes constricting her breast making them jut out and turning red from the harsh constriction. More ropes appeared around her waist and one looped her hair and another black roped appeared between the band in Ygritte’s hair down to the ones around her waist and pulled back so Ygritte’s head was pulled stiff past vertical. Another strand appeared to wrap around Ygritte’s throat. The black magical ropes constricting to put pressure on Ygritte’s windpipe.

Her eyes looking up at Jon and Melisandre. Her breathing slightly constricted. Her tits strangled between the ropes jutting down and up into her tits. Her tits bright red with a slight purplish hue to them. Ygritte gurgled and moaned as she writhed in her bindings. She jerked trying to free herself knowing the whole time the bindings would only dig harder into her skin abusing her with pain. She continued her struggles loving the pain and irritation of the digging magical rope.

Ygritte was whimpering and moaning. She was trying to look scared but her eyes were lidded looking at Jon’s raging boner jerking in front of her wet lips. Jon stepped in and slashed his cock across Ygritte’s face hard leaving red line marks. Again and again Jon whipped his dick down viciously over Ygritte’s cheeks, nose, forehead, mouth and chin. Ygritte’s face already red and splotchy but the new abuse made new red darker red marks on her face. Red lines left behind with each loud whack of dick on pale face.

Before Ygritte and Melisandre had left Winterfell Margaery had gifted them with toys. Melisandre was now in her strap-on all synched in tight. Her ten inch cock thick and black. She stepped in to get in front of Ygritte angled off from Jon. Melisandre gripped her shaft and joined in dick whipping Ygritte’s face as she cried out and wept. She not once tried to move her face from their dicks slashing her face. Each impact shockingly loud in the tent. The heavy cocks rebounding off Ygritte’s face with each savage strike of cock over up turned face.

The two tormentors slashed their heavy dicks meanly across Ygritte’s cawing and moaning face. Jon took his cock and rubbed his dickhead into Ygritte’s eyelids roughly. The slut moaning deep in her chest. Melisandre took her shaft and hooked it underneath Ygritte’s chin and jerked up gripping her cockhead to constrict Ygritte’s breathing. The magical rope and strap-on cock had the Wildling gasping for breath. The Wilding wheezing. Her sloe eyes looking up with total submission and fuck hunger.

Melisandre jerked up with her shaft pressed into Ygritte’s windpipe making her gasp and choke with her breathing further constricted. Then she and Jon dick whipped Ygritte’s face again with savage jerked down strikes of their cocks. Each whack of shaft across face obscene and loud in the tent. Melisandre modified the spell of the rope around Ygritte’s neck loosening it to let Ygritte breath but still feel it. Ygritte now had cocks to feast on.

Jon fed Ygritte his cock. He jammed his prick into Ygritte’s sensual lips. She dove on it sucking fiercely. His bulbous dickhead sliding between her lips riding up her long pink tongue. Her lips sucked tight to the hot veined shaft. Ygritte swooned feeling Jon’s dick sliding up and down her tongue his foreskin rolling up and down his shaft as she sucked with long ragged love sucks.

She bobbed hard. Her lips sliding up and down the shaft. Her fiery red hair jerked with her hard bobs. Her lips sucked tight to Jon’s cock making wet slurping suck noises. Jon moaned in hot pleasure. Ygritte’s cheeks hollowing with her forceful sucks on his throbbing prick. Ygritte paused her bobbing to twist her head right and left on his mushroom cockhead. Ygritte’s head lifting with the force of her hard short love sucks. Her lips swirling on the edge of Jon’s cock crown and glans filling his dick with sweet pleasure.

After a minute Jon fists his hands into the long wavy hair of his Wilding wife. He slammed his dick into the Wildling’s throat making her gurgle and drool spittle out her mouth with her half chokes. Jon flexed his hips to hammer the back of Ygritte’s throat. Her head rocking back with the forceful skull fuck. Ygritte opened her mouth to let the sounds of her skull fuck fill the tent and let spit freely flow out her mouth and drool down her face and fling to her tits and torso.

Melisandre watched for a minute more before roughly jerking Ygritte’s head back off Jon’s cock with a knotted fist of hair and rammed her cock deep into Ygritte’s mouth. She fisted Ygritte’s hair and gripped her chin with her other hand clenching Ygritte’s chin and jaw. With her rough grip Melisandre kept her wife’s mouth wide open fucking her throat with hard strokes of her dick with her pumping hips. Melisandre swirled her torso to ram her dick into her slut wife’s throat.

Ygritte’s open mouth making choking sounds. Spit drooled down Ygritte’s face and flung off her chin and jaw. “Urrrk hhrrkkk uullkkk hhrrkkkk!” Ygritte choked as she was skull fucked. Ygritte’s kept her head still looking up at Melisandre with throbbing eyes showing she loved her hard skull fuck. Melisandre stared down at Ygritte with her red pupils. Her dick slamming into Ygritte’s throat as spit poured out Ygritte’s mouth and flooded down her cheeks and chin to rope off and splatter down onto her strangled tits and flexing belly. The spit running down over her swollen red slit.

Jon fisted Ygritte’s hair to jack her head back off Melisandre’s cock. Ygritte squealed in pain as her body was twisted around making her scream on her knees to get in front of Jon. He barked at her to keep her mouth open and used both hands in Ygritte’s bright red hair to jack Ygritte’s head violently forward and back. Ygritte moaned as Jon skull fucked her hard. “Yurrkkkk hhrrrrkkkk … auk auukkkk hhrrkkkk aauukkkkk!” Ygritte gurgled from her cruel skull fuck. The fiery redhead’s head jacked back by the thick pole slamming into the back of her throat.

Ygritte’s spit soaked her lower face and now chest and tits. Jon had to admit it was hot seeing spit rope off his wife’s face and fling down to her chest. Back and forth Ygritte’s spouses fucked Ygritte’s mouth and throat. Without the shadow ropes the small witch would have had her small hands gripping their thighs or clawing their ass cheeks to anchor herself to keep her hard throat fuck going. Instead they were tied together behind her back tightly.

Jon roughly pulled Ygritte up by her hair with hard jerks making her scream in pain. He got on the bed and laid down and roughly guided Ygritte to straddle his hips. Melisandre shoved Ygritte’s trussed body forward down onto Jon’s hard muscular body. The Crow guided his cock to his wife’s slicked cunny and rubbed the bulbous dickhead around Ygritte’s cunt hole.

With a slow stroke, Jon slide his long thick cock deep up his wife’s slippery cum filled cunt. Ygritte cried out in raw pleasure. Her body squirmed all over Jon’s body. He began to work his hips sliding his manhood in and out Ygritte’s trim. His dickhead plowing her inner whorls and folds. He quickly built up his rhythm plowing his small wife’s tight cunt. He gripped her ribs and slam fucked her already sloshing cunt. Her body jolting forward on his chest.

“Unnnggg mmmmmnn oohhh fuck yeah! Fuck me deep! Arrrrgggnnnn hhnngg hhnngg oohhh oohhh shit!” Ygritte groaned feeling Jon’s thick long shaft slamming deep up into her cunny hole. Her body rocking forward with Jon’s hips and groin slamming up into her ass and groin. Her face slashed with sweet fuck ecstasy. Her hungry pussy taking his powerful strokes. Jon’s bulbous dickhead ramming Ygritte’s cervix and piercing her womb with sweet hard deep dicking thrusts of pure love.

Melisandre waited a minute. She enjoyed watching her wife’s tight cunt split into an O ring gripping wetly Jon’s thick veined shaft plunging in hard and deep up into Ygritte’s moaning body. The tall witch knelt behind the hotly fucking pair. Melisandre slapped Ygritte’s ass hard making her squeal.
Melisandre had a bottle of lubricant from Margaery too and soaked her cock in the fluid. The deep red haired witch eyed Ygritte’s asshole hungrily. She was going to fuck it so good.
Jon and Ygritte had stillled. The ShadowBender witch swirled her cockhead over her wife’s starfish that clenched wetly before Melisandre’s red pulsing eyes. Ygritte gurgled waiting to have her shithole invaded. The tall woman pushed forward her hand holding her mushroom dickhead at Ygritte’s anus and pushing in.

Ygritte cried out feeling her sphincter pierced by the thick shaft invading her ass. Ygritte’s body shuddered with the feel of a thick rod lurching into her rectum her anus pried wide open. Ygritte gibbered and shuddered feeling the sweet pain and pleasure of anal invasion. Jon started up his rhythm again while Melisandre worked her hips and started to ride her thick prick deeper into her wife’s hot ass with each stroke. Melisandre gripped her wife’s ass cheeks to jerk Ygritte back into the cock she was lunging deeper up Ygritte’s ass.

The sounds of sweaty flesh slapping filled the tent. Melisandre’s full tits sloshed around on her chest as she worked her hips to punch her dick deep up Ygritte’s hot tight ass. The tall woman enjoying watching her dick now slide in balls deep up her wife’s shithole. Her sweet asshole already lubricating her dick with sweet shit juice.

Melisandre slide her ten inch leather dick with an extra-large mushroom cockhead slowly in and out her wife’s pinching asshole. Ygritte’s head jerked up and back her eyes lost in pleasure. Ygritte loving the feel of her ass stuffed with thick prick and the feel of the bulbous dickhead sliding deep up into her belly. Melisandre’s thighs now rapping her wife’s ass cheeks to ram her dick fully up the tight shit pipe of her diminutive wife.

Both witches loved penetration. Melisandre gripped her shaft and jerked her cock out of Ygritte’s ass. The anus pinching shut. Melisandre rammed her shaft back up Ygritte’s ass. The Wilding crying out in raw pleasure. Melisandre ripped her dick in and out the Wilding’s asshole that soon gaped wetly with repeated hard penetrations. She would pause watching Ygritte’s asshole begin to clutch sweetly to her. Her vision throbbing seeing Ygritte’s sweet rectum all wet and red. Then the tall witch again slammed her thick rod back up her wife’s tight asshole.

Ygritte’s jaw was juddering her face twisted up feeling her butthole invaded with Melisandre’s bulbous dickhead prying out and then jacking back into her rectum. Ygritte moaned deep in her chest. Jon began to pump his hips hard again driving his dick in and out his wife’s buttery cunt hole. Melisandre worked her hips snaking her dick deep up Ygritte’s hot tight ass.

Ygritte’s asshole tightly clung to Melisandre’s cock to begin with but it quickly loosened with the tall witch’s hip thrusts. The witch’s dick sinking all the way up Ygritte’s ass. The witch fucking her witch wife with balls deep thrusts. Her dick slicked with ass juice. The tall witch loved watching Ygritte’s body jerking and sliding up and down Jon’s body as the pummeled her fuck holes with hard lunging dick. Her trussed body dripping sweat as fucked her hard and deep.

Melisandre began to pump her dick harder with snap rolls of her hips. Her cock lunging in and out her wife’s tight asshole. Melisandre gripped her wife’s hips and jerked her back into her punishing thrusts her hips slamming into Ygritte’s taunt ass cheeks making them jiggle hard. Jon was gripping Ygritte’s ribs as he lunged his dick up the Wildling’s tight pussy. The two mates of Ygritte’s had their cocks savaging her drooling fuck holes.

Ygritte cried out she could feel their cock heads hitting each other in her belly. Ygritte was moaning loudly constantly now her body buffeted by two powerful lovers slamming their phallic shafts up into Ygritte’s tight fuck holes. The two bodies fucking Ygritte gripped her body hard to jam her back into the shafts they were slamming balls deep up into her groaning and mewling body.

After a minute more of the sweet hard fuck Ygritte’s body was beginning to tighten up and spasm all over Jon’s hard body. Melisandre and Jon arched their backs to fuck Ygritte even harder. She cummed hard screaming and convulsing lying on Jon’s body all trussed up. “AARRRGGGGUUNNGGGGG! UNNGGGGHHNUNNNNNH! OOWWWGGGHHHAAAAAAA!” Ygritte’s screams of pure ecstasy scaling up and ringing in the tent.

Jon and Melisandre gripped Ygritte harder and slammed their dicks as deep as they could into her exploding fuck holes to prolong her ecstasy. “OOOWWWGGGHHHNNNNN! Unngghhiieeeeeeeeee! Uuummmnnhhhiieeeeeeeeee!” Ygritte screamed with renewed love and killing ecstasy as her asshole and cunt continued to explode in fucking bliss and gut wrenching tearing spasms of fucking ecstasy.

Jon and Melisandre now slow stroked their dicks letting Ygritte recover. The wildling’s body flipping and jerking with shocks of ecstasy. Ygritte’s face had slashed and grimaced as if being filleted alive. Now the Wilding was slumped down on Jon’s body. Her body gasping for breath as sweat poured off her trussed up body. Jon and Melisandre left their dicks buried deep in the fiery redhead’s belly. They watched their wife’s body slowly relaxing the aftershocks fading away.

Melisandre and Jon shared a look. It was time to take their slut to the land of nirvana again. The two pulled their thick shafts almost out of Ygritte’s fuck holes and then slammed them savagely back up into her cum filled cunt and shithole. They slammed fucked Ygritte again with furious strokes of their dicks fucking her balls deep again. Ygritte cried out her body jolting while her face slashed with primal fuck bliss.

Ygritte, for ten minutes was DP fuck classic position till she came wailing again. Her body flipped and jackknifed as hard as it could all trussed up in the magical black rope binding the Wildling’s body.

They pushed Ygritte off their cum soaked dicks. Ygritte’s body thumping down onto the furs. Her body still hitching with strong aftershocks. Neither Jon nor Melisandre had to say anything. They watched Ygritte slowly turn over to her knees and then scoot around. Her body hunched over with her arms bound behind her back. She looked up at her spouses with doe eyes all submissive and slut hungry. She looked so hot moving around with her arms trussed up behind her back by the glowing black bindings.

Her head lowered to the dick jerking above Jon’s stomach. Her mouth swallowed the shaft and hungrily sucked it clean of her pussy. Ygritte then turned her head to the dick waving before Melisandre. Ygritte sucked her ass off the thick strap-on cock of her wife. The wildling moved her head back and forth to completely clean the cocks that her spouses held up for her. Her lips first latched onto Melisandre’s strap-on and she sucked moaning tasting her sweet ass on it. She moved to Jon’s cock and savored her sweet pussy now. Ygritte head bobbed hard up and down the cum slicked cocks in turn now.

They then got Ygritte up on her feet. Jon now lifted her up and she wrapped her legs around Melisandre waist and titled her body into Melisandre who gripped her wife to her. Jon guided Melisandre’s strap-on to Ygritte’s pussy as they lifted the Wildling’s body up. They then let Ygritte’s body down to impale her pussy on Melisandre’s dick.

Ygritte’s head lulled back her face slashed with primal fuck bliss. “Aaruuunnggggg … hhnngg hhnnggg uungg … oohhhh fuck—unngggg nnggggg!” the Wildling cawed in her throat feeling her wife’s dick sliding deep up into her belly. Melisandre started to lift and drop Ygritte on her thick cock she worked her hips to ram her dick hard up into Ygritte’s cum clicked trim.

Ygritte cried out her head thrashing feeling her pussy split in two with thick dick. Her tits half strangled with black rune rope worked up and down Melisandre’s sweaty tits. The pressure on Ygritte’s nipples had the small woman’s face twisted with pleasure. Melisandre holding Ygritte to her with her arms around the body of Ygritte.

Jon moved in and gripped Ygritte’s ass prying her ass cheek back. Melisandre still her fuck motion. Jon guided his dick to Ygritte’s asshole with his right hand and found Ygritte’s starfish. He then hard lunged his dick up Ygritte’s asshole. The fiery redhead cried out in pained ecstasy. They then fucked Ygritte standing. Melisandre and Jon flexing their knees to lunge up impaling Ygritte’s pussy and ass with thick hard cock.

“Unngggg mmnnnnggg … oohhhhh fuckkk … mmnngggg hhnn hnnn hhnnngg … fuck me hard—harder … pound my shit—arrunnggg!” Ygritte gibbered with her two spouses fucking her harder with her encouragement.

They lifted her up and let gravity drop her small body on their hard up lunging dick. They impaled her cunt and ass again and again with hard lunging thrusts fully burying their thick cocks up Ygritte’s hungry asshole and cunt. Ygritte’s body jolted hard with each bottoming out of her downward plummet on the thick cocks hammering up deep into her belly.

They let her down several times as she excitedly fell to her knees and sucked her pussy and ass off their dicks. Then she was reversed so Jon could fuck her pussy and Melisandre fucked her ass. They fucked her like this a minute and then sat her down and reversed to do A2P direct and fucked her hard with Melisandre savagely fucking her wife’s asshole. Then they let her down to do ATM as she moaned how sweet her ass tasted on Jon and Melisandre’s dick.

Then they hefted her up again Jon fucking her ass with Melisandre pounding her pussy. Ygritte came howling. Her body flipped and slammed back and forth into her bodies as convulsion threatened to tear Ygritte apart. Both Jon and Melisandre relished the feel of their small wife’s body bucking wildly between them. Her bound body jerking spasmodically; legs kicking wildly in the air behind Melisandre’s back. Her constricted tits jammed into their bodies her nipples diamond hard and her pale tits scarlet with a slight purple cast from blood constriction. They then let her down and she chased their cockheads with her slavering mouth to swallow their bulbous dickheads in turn. She cleaned their dicks hungrily of her creamy ass and cunt juice.

Melisandre reached down and fisted a squealing Ygritte’s hair and threw her on the low slung bed. She spoke in the tongue of Asshai and the shadow ropes disappeared. Ygritte looked up at Melisandre with limpid eyes now. The defiance fucked out her. Now she was complaint looking at them hungrily for more hot fucking.

Melisandre got up on the bed on her back and barked at Ygritte to mount her. Ygritte moaned hard rolling over and straddling Melisandre. Ygritte reached down and guided Melisandre’s thick strap-on to her swollen dripping snatch and impaled herself on the long thick leather cock. Ygritte groaned hard shaking all over feeling her pussy stretched out tight on the thick shaft. Ygritte sunk down so their bodies were pressed into each other. Each woman enjoying the delicious sweaty skin to skin contact.

The tall redhead started working her hips as Ygritte surged back to take her wife’s strap-on hard and deep up her drooling clamshell. Their tits rolled and compressed against the other’s tits. Ygritte’s face twisted and scrunchied with the primal pleasure filling her cunny and nipples. The tall redhead slammed her cock into her wife’s sloshing drooling pussy. Ygritte yelping and moaning in deep pleasure. Her face constantly slashing with soul deep pleasure.

Melisandre fucked Ygritte hard for a minute. Her thighs and groin slapping hard into Ygritte’s ass giggling her cheeks and shocking her mons and clit with the force of their colliding bodies. Jon had watched but now he got up on the pallet bed. He slapped Ygritte’s ass cheeks hard making them glow red and had the Wildling keening in pain that was all infused with raw pulsing pleasure.
The Lord Commander of the Crows pulled Ygritte’s ass cheek back with his left hand. He guided his bulbous dickhead down her ass cleft and pressed into her slackened quivering anus. Ygritte’s sphincter muscles stretched out and tired. She groaned feeling Jon circle his dickhead over her shithole. Jon then centered his thick shaft and slide his thick long shaft up deep into Ygritte’s tight asshole.

Ygritte’s head jerked back as she keened in pleasure feeling her ravaged asshole again filled with hard throbbing cock. Both women loved being fucked up the ass as much as in the pussy. The pleasure was so intense and primal getting fucked up the ass. Jon arched his back to slam his cock up Ygritte’s asshole the way she liked it. His hips slapping hard into Ygritte’s shaking ass. His fingers sinking into the taunt ass cheeks he was pounding with his prick. Jon gripping Ygritte’s ass with his forearms crossed to get a good trip to jack his diminutive wife back into the thick poles impaling her drooling fuck holes.

They pounded her fuck holes hard and deep. Melisandre gripped her slut’s ribs to jam her back while Jon now gripped her ass cheek and hair with his other hand and slammed his dick up his wife’s ass. Ygritte yammered and cawed her pleasure. The sound of sweaty flesh filled the tent with Jon’s slamming his thighs into Ygritte’s ass cheeks to hammer her bunghole balls deep.

Jon pulled out her ass and kneed to her head. His dick slavered with ass juice jerked before the sweat dripping face of the Wildling. Ygritte dove on Jon’s dickhead he jammed into her lips. She siphoned his dick deep into her mouth and bobbed hard. A sublime look of pleasure filled Ygritte’s tasting her yummy shithole all over Jon’s cock. Her lips glued to the shaft she bobbed on with hard pumps of her head. Then stilling her bobs to twist her head on Jon’s cockhead with tight short bobs and swirls of her lips on his cock’s glans.

She cried out a muffled cry of ecstasy when Melisandre slipped her cock out Ygritte’s pussy and up her perineum and rammed it home savagely up her wife’s hot wet tight shithole. Ygritte moaned and groaned on the dick she slobbered on cleaning her ass off Jon’s thick dick.

Jon watched his wife bob hard and furious on his dick. He asked Ygritte if she loved the taste of her ass on his dick and she gutturally moaned it was “so fucking sweet” around the dick in her mouth. Jon pulled his cock out his wife’s mouth as she chased his cock wanting more ATM. Jon kneed back behind Ygritte. Melisandre pulled her dick out Ygritte’s spasming asshole and slammed her dick back up Ygritte’s tight pussy A2P. Jon jammed his dick into Ygritte’s ass and pounded his wife hard.

Soon Ygritte was howling as she cummed hard her fingers digging into the sheets slamming her body back into the cocks impaling her fuck holes balls deep. Then she collapsed in spent gibbering pleasure. She was pushed off the cocks that had just taken her to the heavens. She was pulled down to their cocks by her spouses and she hungrily gripped their cocks diving down to jam both dickheads into her mouth and sucked on the dickheads. She then cleaned each shaft with loud obscene sucks and slurps of hot head.

Now Ygritte’s spouses rolled the small Wildling on her side and Melisandre moved in spoon and slide her dick up Ygritte’s ass and fucked her hard the Wildling recovering already. Ygritte’s face slashed with fuck bliss as her body juddered feeling her asshole invaded with thick strap-on leather cock. Jon was in front of Ygritte on his side. He guided his dick to her lips and the slut hungrily swallowed his dick. Ygritte sucked hungrily on his dick plopping her mouth off his bulbous dickhead again and again. She sucked with fierce bobs and moaned tasting her ass and pussy on his dick.

Melisandre pounded her ass and then her cunt. She took turns pounding her wife’s fuck holes in turn. Then she pulled her dick out Ygritte’s asshole as it gushed shit juice down her perineum and soaking her cunt hole. She fisted Ygritte’s fiery red hair and pulled her over and pushed her down body to her dick jerking on her stomach. She pushed Ygritte’s cheek into her sweat soaked belly and moaned harder seeing Ygritte slide her head forward and swallow Melisandre’s ass juice creamed leather cock head. Ygritte rose up on her elbow her other hand gripping the shaft she slow bobbed up and down the shaft moaning in slut happiness.

Jon invaded Ygritte’s ass spoon. He slide his dick fully up her spasming asshole. Jon then gripped her hips and pounded her hard. This had Ygritte crying out on Melisandre’s strap-on cock. Jon pounded both her fuck holes. Jon arched his back to slam his dick hard up into Ygritte’s pussy and ass. He savaged both of Ygritte’s with punishing strokes that jolted the fiery redhead’s ass. His sweaty body slapping hard into Ygritte’s ass cheeks all glistening with sweat.

Jon was pounding Ygritte’s booty hole when he pulled out her spasming asshole. He fisted Ygritte’s hair to roll his wife over as Melisandre had. He scooted up some and pulled Ygritte’s head down roughly to his jerking dick soaked in his wife’s sweet shithole. Ygritte groaned seeing Jon’s cock jerk waving angled up off his stomach. Ygritte gripped the shaft and screamed in raw pleasure feeling Melisandre slam her cock up her wife’s pussy. Ygritte dove on Jon’s cock and slurped and bobbed happily sucking Jon’s dick ATM.

Several more times the husband and wife passed Ygritte back and forth between them. Now Jon was chuffing as he pounded Ygritte’s asshole feeling her sphincter grip and pinch his slamming cock. He could feel Ygritte fucked body rising to orgasm again. He let his control slip and roared his cock jerking and spurting hot semen up his shaft and spurting hard up his wife’s asshole with his cock buried in his wife’s butthole. Ygritte was pushed off the precipice of striving and fell headlong into gut wrenching ecstasy and started to scream having pulled her mouth off Melisandre’s cock.

The sex had been so hot after that. Ygritte cleaned their cocks again. Jon was weak but he was ready to get between Ygritte’s legs and eat out some sweet gash. Gods he loved pussy! His greedy wife, Melisandre, had beat him stripping off her strap-on literally jumping between Ygritte’s legs. Greedy slut Jon smiled to himself. Melisandre buried her face deep in Ygritte’s quim feasting on sloppy wet quim.

For the next half hour Jon recovered while watching Melisandre suck Ygritte off to a wailing and bucking orgasm. Now Melisandre pushed Ygritte’s legs back by her grip behind Ygritte’s knees. Melisandre pushed the legs back and down till Ygritte’s knees were by Ygritte’s ears. Melisandre moaned spying her wife’s red abused anus. Her asshole leaking out the semen Jon had pumped up deep into her colon. She pushed her long tongue in deep up into Ygritte’s ass and into her rectum. Ygritte seemed to swoon feeling Melisandre’s long tongue sliding in deep into her rectum.

Slowly the auburn haired woman stroked her tongue in and out the spasming starfish of her wife. Her tongue loving the tight squeezes of Ygritte’s anus on the tongue she pumped deep up Ygritte’s shithole. Then Melisandre stilled her tongue fuck of Ygritte’s asshole. She then started to lap and rim Ygritte’s shithole licking up any semen burbling out her wife’s rectum. Melisandre locked her lips on Ygritte’s starfish and Dorne kissed the puckered anus slow licking and driving her tongue deep into Ygritte’s abused ass licking Ygritte’s rectum with her long tongue.

Melisandre tongue fucked her wife’s asshole with avid love. Melisandre picked up her pace burying her face in her wife’s cleft to spike her tongue as deep as possible in Ygritte’s ass. Melisandre slurped and licked up Jon’s semen leaking out Ygritte’s red stretched out asshole. She would lock her lips on Ygritte’s anus to Dorne kiss as she tongued and sucked on the sweet abused asshole. The tall voluptuous slut sucking out all the pearly semen she could from Ygritte’s asshole.
She let Ygritte’s pussy rest before she again buried her face in Ygritte’s slack cunt and moaned feasting on sweet sodden cunt meat. Melisandre worked her head to drag her tongue aggressively over Ygritte’s clitoral hood again and again. The Witch worked her head fast to drag her tongue aggressively over Ygritte’s clit. The auburn haired woman pressing her head in at seeming random moments to suck fiercely on Ygritte’s clit. Then back to working her head up and down to plow Ygritte’s sloppy wet slit with her rigid tongue plowing sweet cunt meat.

Melisandre would raise her head to flick her tongue like an adder all over and around Ygritte’s clit and hood. Jon loved how fast Melisandre worked her tongue. The tongue a blur. Ygritte was gurgling her face slashed with primal fuck bliss. Then Melisandre was flat tongue licking over Ygritte’s clit with faster and faster tongue licks before she siphoned the rigid slimy morsel back between her lips to suck the clit in and out her lips while her tongue polished the hard shiny clit now in her mouth.

Jon had recovered and got on his knees by Ygritte’s shoulder and pulled her up on one arm. Her hand behind her body jammed into the bed to prop her upper body up. She gripped Jon’s ass with her other clawed hand to allow her to pull her body to Jon’s. She swallowed his again hard dick hungrily her lips glued to his veined shaft. Ygritte sucked Jon off with all her oral skills. She bobbed her head fast on the shaft in her mouth. Her sweat soaked red hair now dark with that sweat. Her sopping wet hair hung lankily and jerked with her head bobs. Her cheeks hollowed out as she sucked with fuck hunger. Her cheeks hollowing out with her fierce deep throat sucks.

Jon did not try to hold out and three minutes later he screamed and screamed as Ygritte sucked on just his dickhead with short bobs. The friction of her tight lips on his dickhead so heavenly it was painful. His cock jetting hot spurts flooding his wife’s mouth with his hot cum. His back arched deep his whole body shuddering as the semen burning up his shaft and spurtting out his piss hole filled his body with agonizing pleasure.

Ygritte grunted and moaned feeling the hard spurts from his cock splash hard into the back of her throat flooding her mouth and throat with Jon’s hot spunk. She half choked with semen leaking down her chin that she was not able to swallow hungrily.

Jon toppled over gasping. Ygritte upper body toppled back down to the bed. Her wife buried her face deep back into Ygritte’s drooling gash. Melisandre had paused to watch Jon cum hard which always turned her on. Jon watched Melisandre suck Ygritte off again. The fiery redhead’s body bucked wildly up into her wife’s devouring mouth. Melisandre’s head lifting with her wolf sucks on her wife’s hard clit. Jon loved seeing Ygritte’s head thrashing from side to side with eyes screwed shut tight as the tendons in her throat corded up hard jutting out her throat as she screamed in agonizing ecstasy that seemed to rip and tear at her face.

The wildling’s body flipped and jackknifed violently with her orgasms that went multiple when Melisandre wormed in three fingers into Ygritte’s pussy and furiously rubbed her wife’s g-spot with fast a gigging motion and then a come hither motion to rasp the spongy nerve bundle. Ygritte’s body seemed to explode and fly apart as one searing convulsion after another ripped her body apart with limbs kicking wildly and her face ripped apart with searing fucking bliss.

Ygritte’s wails of ecstasy filled the tent as her hips bucked hard driving her cunt up into Melisandre mouth. A mouth that sucked Ygritte’s clit deep into her mouth and was lashing the hard bud with wild lashes of her tongue. Melisandre’s cheeks hollowing out with her harsh love sucks. “AAARRRGGUUNNGGGG! AAAAWWWOOOGGGGG! UUNNGGHHHIIEEEEEE!” Ygritte’s body flipped and jackknifed. Melisandre slurped up sweet cum moaning as her wife cummed so hard for her. "Aiieeeeee! Unngghgiaaiiiieeee! Ohh oh oh Oooooooggggaaaaaaa! Aaaagggguunnnngggggggg!" she continued to cry out, Ygritte was finally wiped after that last multiple orgasm. Melisandre pulled her cum soaked face out of her wife’s slack spent cunt. Melisandre was in need now. She rolled over onto her back and looked expectantly at Jon with heated eyes. The tall woman pressed on the sides of her mound to make it flare out like a ripe flower dripping with sweet love juice.

Jon spied Melisandre’s labia lips all bloomed out her bulged out slit. The lips covered in slimy opaque effluent. Her breast giggled and rolled with Melisandre’s movements. Her firm tits making sweet hillocks on his voluptuous wife’s chest. She stared up at Jon with pure slut eyes. Jon moved to get between his tall wife’s legs. A bee seeking to sip sweet cum nectars.

Jon was happy to bury his face in her big fat pussy and devoured Melisandre’s sweet snatch hungrily. Melisandre’s pussy a deep red around her fuck slit that lightened slightly to her outer mons. He sucked her clit feverishly. He would lick it in his mouth and then lift his head to tongue lick with strong strokes or use a hard slapping motion whipsawing his tongue over the grape sized clit.

He would then lower his head and tongue fuck the voluptuous woman’s cunt hole. Jon loved the wet sloppy heat enveloping his long tongue while tongue fucking Melisandre’s hot twat. Then he rolled the tall woman’s hips back to bring up her hot pulsing asshole. He gripped her stout legs behind her knees and pushed her legs back her feet up in the air.

Jon first slowly invaded his wife’s shithole with a long strong stroke of his tongue. The anus pinching down on his tongue. Then he was moaning spearing Melisandre’s asshole hungrily. He groaned feeling her anus pinching down tight on the invading appendage fucking it deep licking her rectum. In and out he worked his tongue loving the wet heat enveloping it. He would bury his tongue in deep and lick Melisandre’s rectum all around moaning at the sweet taste.

Back and forth Jon tongue fucked Melisandre’s pussy and rectum with his wiggling licking tongue.

Jon loved the fiery heat of Melisandre’s snatch he feverishly sucked into his mouth. The slimy creamy effluent so sweet in his mouth. He moaned feeling her hard grape sized clit underneath his rasping tongue. He would again push her legs back and tongue fuck her sweet hot asshole hard with his long tongue feeling her sphincter spasms and pinch tight on his tongue. He first slow stroked his tongue up her shithole and then pounded it hard and fast deep up Melisandre’s rectum.

Three times he sucked his tall witch wife off. Melisandre came with gut wrenching flips and jackknifes that lurched her body over the furs as Jon held on to continue to feasting on sweet succulent gash. Melisandre’s body now soaked in sweat and cum. Her shrieks of cumming so beautiful to hear.

He still had not had enough. He pushed her back onto her shoulders on the bed and her torso on his stomach and lower chest. Her heavy full tits rolling back on her upper chest and pressing into her throat. The slut gripped her tits and stuffed her thick long engorged teats into her mouth in turn and hard sucked on her nipples her lips locked tight. Her head pulling back stretching out the teats she hard sucked on. Her red eyes looking up at Jon with fiery heat. Her cheeks hollowed out as she sucked and tongued her engorged teats.

Jon tongue fucked her asshole hard again and now slammed three fingers hard and deep into her burbling and sloshing cunt. Her wet cunt slurped and squished as he fucked it avidly. His knuckles pounding her muffin the shocks going straight to her clit with friction and pressure shocks of his knuckles slamming her cunt. He lipped lock her asshole and long sucked on her rosebud rimming it sweetly before sliding his tongue deep into her asshole with sweet slow strokes.

He enjoyed the feel of Melisandre’s silky sphincter sliding up and down his tongue. He adjusted the angle of his face and now had his nose buried in her cunt hole. His mouth glued to her brown starfish his tongue stroking her rectum. Jon moaned feeling Melisandre’s anus hard pulsing on the tongue fucking her shithole. Jon had his left hand supporting his wife’s sacrum to keep her in place. His right hand blurred masturbating her throbbing turgid clit. Jon worked his head first fast slamming his long tongue up into his wife’s asshole. Then he would slow his head to luxuriate in the feel of Melisandre’s shithole milking his tongue with hard squeezes of her anus.

He loved the feel of that hard grape sized stalk clit being hit hard by his blurring fingers and reverberating with the shocks of impact and his cum greased fingers easily sliding up and over the juicy clit. His fingers oscillating furiously back and forth over the clit. Jon enjoyed seeing Melisandre’s face slash and seem to crumple with the ecstasy flooding her stout voluptuous body. Her belly contracting with her breathing in her accordion compressed by her body resting upside down on Jon’s hard warrior body.

Melisandre had had her legs drooped over his shoulder her ankles kicking and wallowing on his back. Jon loved the skin to skin contact. His eyes feasted on Melisandre hedonistically sucking her own nipples while he face twisted and slashed soul crushing bliss. Suddenly, her hands ripped off her tits to flop on the furs and now her fists slammed the bed. A long loud scream of agony that was only pure pleasure ecstasy echoed off the walls of the tent.

Then her legs shoot straight up over his head went ramrod stiff her feet arched and toes curled nearly to the breaking point. Loud screams of pure love filled their Lord Commander’s tent as Melisandre’s legs kicked wildly her ankles swirling the air with spastic jerks. Hot cum gushed up his nose intoxicating Jon while his tongue was seized by Melisandre’s sweet shithole. Her sphincter rings squeezing and spasming on his buried tongue deep up her asshole. Her body convulsed hard. Her throes of ecstasy rocked her body forward hard and then jammed back suddenly slapping sweat soaked bodies hard into each other again and again.

Jon loved feeling his wife’s tall voluptuous body slapping his body so hard. Her screams sweet music to his ears. Jon felt his body rocked and jerked by Melisandre’s body as it was ripped apart with fucking bliss her wildly kicking legs making him rock to and fro like a tree in a storm. Jon held onto her body with his free hand to keep Melisandre in place as he feasted on her sweet asshole and worked her clit. Her body slowly ceased its wild gyrations as her orgasm began to fade.

Melisandre was spent now and he let her down on the bed. They cuddled for a minute and he moaned when Melisandre slide down his body. Feeling Melisandre’s body pressed into his body had him hard again. She gripped Jon’s thick hard shaft and swallowed his dick and moaned. First, she sucked sensually up and down his veined shaft her lips tight on Jon’s dick. She began to bob hard on his thick shaft. She would pause to swirl her lips on just his cock crown and then short bob her head to work his dickhead and glans with fierce twisting sucking head.

Melisandre gave hot head to his cock with hot hungry bobs. The woman taking his cock out her mouth to lick up his shaft all around. Then she ran her tongue up his dick and tilted her head down and again swallowed Jon’s turgid dick and sucked with cheek hollowing sucks. She would swirl her head on just his dickhead in tight swirls. Then back to hard bobbing and then just sucks on his dickhead.

Several times she pulled Jon’s dick out her mouth and licked down his thick towering shaft. Melisandre tilted her head over and siphoned in one of Jon’s heavy testicles and rolled the heavy nut around in her mouth loving how large it was as she rolled it from one side of her mouth to the other side. Then she drooled out that heavy ball and sucked in Jon’s other testicle and lathed it around in her mouth while sucking on it hard stretching and rolling it around in her mouth. Melisandre worked Jon’s heavy nuts around in her mouth in turn. Then she sucked on his scrotum and licked it before licking back up his shaft. She hungrily started to bob hard on her husband’s dick again.

His boner was raging and he croaked to Melisandre he needed to feel her hot cunt and asshole on his dick. She looked at him with fuck hungry eyes. Her eyes flared sucking on his dickhead. She rose up and quickly straddled his hips and guided his hard veined shaft up to her cunny. She slammed down crying out in pleasure feeling her husband’s dick stretching out her twat so deliciously. His thick rod fully buried up her tight drooling clamshell.

Melisandre rode him cowgirl her heavy tits flipping and slapping each other with her hot fuck rhythm. Jon gripped Melisandre’s hips to help ram her down on his up lunging cock splitting her tight pussy in two. His dick stretching out his wife’s sweet quim tight around his shaft. Jon loved the feel of his wife’s voluptuous hips in his strong grip compressing as he stabbed her cunt with his long shaft. The tall woman’s body jolting as sweaty groins collide to impale tight snatch on thick dick.

Ygritte was snoring away happily beside a smiling Jon. Jon fucked hard up into his deep auburn haired wife’s pussy she swirled and slammed back and down. Their bodies slapping wetly with both bodies soaked in sweat. Melisandre moaned hard and deep in her chest feeling her husband’s thick dickhead plowing her inner whores and folds with savage deep thrusting dick strokes. Melisandre was stroking her body all over with her hedonistic hands. The sounds of sweaty bodies slapping loud in the tent.

Then the witch rose up and gripped Jon’s shaft as it slipped free. Jon moaned feeling pussy juice splash his belly and groin. He watched Melisandre guide his mushroom cockhead up to her asshole and pushed down. She gagged in raw pleasure feeling his bulbous dickhead pry her asshole open and sink deep up her ass. Both moaned as Melisandre pushed down and Jon up thrust fully burying his dick up his wife’s hot tight asshole. Jon let Melisandre fuck her ass till she tired. She would lean forward onto her palms by his head. He would take over tilting his pelvis and planting his heels to slam fuck Melisandre’s asshole with a fast hard punishing stroke.

His thrusts rippling her ass cheeks and hips. The sounds of slapping bodies shockingly loud. Melisandre’s tits riding over Jon’s chest. Their mouths coming together to kiss deeply with Jon’s tongue deep in Melisandre’s mouth and spearng down her throat. Her eyes rolling back into her skull and rolling violently in ecstasy. Then she would recover and rise back up and pound her body down onto the dick buried up her asshole. Her tits whiplashing on her chest with her hard cowgirl rhythm. Her ass slapping Jon’s thighs hard to take his dick balls deep up her spasming butthole.

Melisandre fucked her pussy and ass on his dick. She was fucking her ass hard on Jon’s shaft when she pulled off and sat back between his legs. Her ass coming to rest between Jon’s splayed out legs. She reached forward to grip Jon’s cock pulsing on his stomach. Her body folding down as she tilted his dick up and back. Melisandre’s body folding down further leaning forward. She swallowed Jon’s dickhead and shaft soaked in her ass juice. Purring in happiness Melisandre sucked her ass hungrily off his cock.

Her head bobbed hard on Jon’s cock sucking her ass off it. Her lank sweaty flagged around her face as she bobbed on her cock lollipop. Then she got up and mounted Jon again taking his cock to her pussy and pushing down to impale her snatch on Jon’s long thick cock. She rode him like this doing ATM and A2P before she cummed howling.

Jon then rolled her onto the bed and mounted her septa style face to face. He slipped his dick soaked in her hot ass cream and buried it in her pussy. Melisandre groaned gutturally feeling her cunt stretched on Jon’s dick soaked in her ass cream. Jon started up a rhythm that quickly built up force and speed. His hips lifting high to slam his dick forward hard and fast impaling his wife’s cunt on his thick long shaft. His dick spearing her cunny relentlessly.

Melisandre’s body jolted forward that small fraction with the force of Jon’s spearing trusts up into her hot tight love box. Her cunt making wet watery noises constantly now. Her pussy creamed Jon’s cock to the base of his shaft. He pressed his body down into his wife’s body mashing her tits flat. Their bellies and groins slapping hard into each other as they fucked. Melisandre looped her arms around Jon’s back her legs coming up to grip his hips. Her ankles up in the air jerking as she was sweetly fucked. Melisandre throwing her hips up impaling her cunt on Jon’s cock slamming her cervix.

They kissed heatedly their tongues coiled around each other and shoving from mouth to mouth. They would break for air and stare deeply into each other’s eyes. They felt the current of pure love. Then they would be kissing deeply and Jon rammed his tongue down wife’s throat making her gag and her eyes roll back into her skull and jerk obscenely her whites rolling violently.

They fucked hard and deep for ten minutes both bodies in the groove of a hard loving fuck.

Now Jon heard Melisandre’s wild chuffing. Her head thrashed and her face was twisted in the agony of rising ecstasy. He lifted his hips higher and slam fucked his wife into the bed. Melisandre’s head lifted off the bed and jammed into Jon’s neck on her spasming neck. Her thighs gripped his ribs hard as her arms pulled him down hard into her bucking body. Then she was screaming in Jon’s ear again and again as she cummed so fucking hard. Her pussy gripping his cock in a velvet fist milking his dick sent Jon over the edge and he screamed flooding Melisandre’s womb with his hot semen. Each hard spurt of semen out his pisshole made Jon’s body buck and spasm slamming his dick even harder into his wife’s exploding love box.

Jon relished feeling his wife’s body jack up into his hard down pressing body as her body convulsed with womb rending spasms of fucking bliss. Her tits wallowing all over his hard chest her nipples dragging on his sweaty flesh as she screamed blood curdling screams as he slammed his dick so hard into her exploding love chute that her body rebounded off he bed slapping their groins into each other.

Melisandre collapsed back into the bed. Her limbs went limp and flopped down onto the bed soaked in their sweet love sweat. Jon loved letting most of his weight rest on his voluptuous wife’s strong body. Her voluptuous body so delicious feeling pressed into his body. They kissed deeply in languid love. Her hands stroking the sweat pouring off his back and ribs.

She murmured how much she loved Jon.

He gripped Melisandre’s spent body and rolled them onto his back after that. Ygritte had instinctively half rolled onto his body and Melisandre had done the same on the other side. Jon was in heaven he decided. Having two beautiful women lying on him after long exhausting sex was simply as much heaven as you could get on this Earth he thought.

Jon came back to the present when he saw first his wives come into the tent. Ygritte and Melisandre were pressed into each other with Ygritte rubbing into Melisandre literally purring. Right after that Daenerys Targaryen came in with his sister. They had interlocked fingers of lovers and the Queen was leaned into Arya. All four women had that well fucked look. It was a glow that seemed to diffuse out their very pours. All four women were beaming.

Jon was happy for his sister. He instinctively knew that she and Daenerys had fucked each other’s brains out like he and his wives had. All the rancor was gone. Great sex after the fight had ended the rancor and forgiveness given all around had rinsed away the hurt of conflict. The discontent sponged away. The sense of peace cemented with their intense lovemaking. Fucking to literal exhaustion opened up souls to the healing power of sex and love and made souls twine even tighter in love. Jon knew it was true and was happy that Arya had discovered that truth with the Queen of Westeros.

The tent flap was held back and next entered Sansa, Margaery and Missandei. The three women were talking and laughing together.

Jon eyes first were caught by the exotic beauty of the interpreter and scribe to the Queen of Westeros. The woman from the land of Naath. Jon knew of course of dark skinned persons but she was the first he had seen with his own eyes. She was dark and beautiful to behold. Her skin seemed to glisten and her smile and eyes brilliant. She was a small woman. Her hair in long loose ringlets gave her the appearance of a little more height he saw.

He looked beyond the small black woman and took in his sister and her lover. His wives were right. Sansa had been transformed. She had grown since Jon had seen her. She was easily his own height now. Her bearing had changed mightily. Where in the past her shoulders were hunched and rounded now they were straight and square. Where in the past Sansa would not meet and hold your eyes now she looked back at Jon confidently. She kept eye contact with Jon and smiled gently.

Yes, Jon could see the new strength in Sansa. Now she walked with a confidence and stride becoming of a strong leader. Sansa had discovered ‘backbone’. Jon watched Sansa lead Margaery Tyrell down the table and pulled out a chair for her to sit in with chivalry flair. The beautiful brunette looked up at the tall redhead with total love. Sansa smiled great big and sat by the woman that she loved with all here heart.

The old Sansa was gone Jon saw. He liked what he saw in this new version of his sister. Good he thought with a smile on his face. Arya had always been strong and it was nice to see this strength in Sansa.

The rest of the Lords of the South were soon streaming into the tent. The leaders of the forces from this “Land” came in last. He was stunned when the Giants bent over mightly to walk into the tent. When they stood back up their heads nearly brushed the top of the tent. Four had come into the tent. Two were women clad in stone armor. The two men were dressed as sailormen. None of the Giants seemed affected by the cold outside. None wore furs or jackets to protect them from the cold.

Jon could not get over how perfectly cast the features of these Giants from the south of the world were. He had come to intimately know the giants of his land and their seeming bestial appearance and ways. Jon had long learned to see beyond human preconceptions and see the giants of the far north as the vital and intelligent beings they were. They were different to be sure but deserving of all the respect of any other being.

Still, these new Giants were impressive. Their complete human caste and immense height and muscled bodies could not but help to fill one with awe. They seemed to give an aura of permanence and strength that none in Westeros could ever hope to match.

A woman with a stern visage entered the tent. She had a staff. She was the “Lord” from the “Land” from the reports he had received. She carried a staff in her right hand that was capped with iron on both ends. She wore a simple tunic synched around her waist. She stood leaning on her staff. She wore only simple sandals on her feet. On her elbow was a woman that Jon had read was from a race named Haruchai.

More of the brown skinned persons entered the tent. All of these Haruchai had the same hue of skin color and facial features that seemed a cross between Leng and Dorne. There was now six of the Haruchai in the tent. Jon had read that both the women and men were warriors. The women almost as strong as their men but faster and more agile.

The Haruchai too only wore simple tunics. He could see the women had a wide strap over their chest synced to keep their breast compressed on their chests. Jon saw the Haruchai move to perform their taken guard duties. Two came behind the Queen and one behind his sister. The remaining Haruchai moved to the back of the tent taking a guard stance. Jon looked at these flat faced people who fought with feet and fist only.

His father had told him they were more than the equal of any knight. He still found that hard to believe. His father had written to his son how three of the Haruchai fought to a standstill a group of eight angry bulls saving a young boy. Jon shook his head looking at the rather smallish people. It was hard to believe that their lithesome bodies hid such strength.

He saw a group of four come into the tent last. Their skin dark brown but from a deep tan. These two women and two men also wore simple tunics. These would be the Ramen who tended the magical Ranyhyn. Like the Haruchai they wore no shoes or sandals. Did none of these people feel the cold! Jon groused to himself.

Looking at the Ramen, Jon remembered he had not believed that horses could be more than a horse till he left his tent this morning at dawn and saw the Haruchai getting on their Ranyhyn that had come thundering to the camp after the Haruchai had whistled thrice. The sun had glowed on the star on each other the horses’ foreheads. It had looked like the sun come down to the earth. He had been stunned by the strength and obvious intelligence of the horses. They came into the camp with a proud canter and throwing of their manes. The Ranyhyn picked up their riders who rode without saddles and then pounded out to all points of the compass till they disappeared. The speed of these horses stunning.

Jon was ready to begin the meeting. He first made greetings with all the leaders of the various houses of the South. He had very little knowledge of Houses south of the Vale and the Riverlands. He was courteous and showed the knowledge he had learned of all the houses of each constituency of Westeros. All were polite and courteous. All hailed the bravery of the Wall and the Crows that manned it.

Inwardly Jon rolled his eyes at the bullshit. Their disdain and neglect had reduced the Crows to mostly the criminal and poor dregs of society.

They then went over the latest reports on troop movements and supplies. He emphasized that because of the Queen and his father they were amply supplied for a furious war with the Ice King. More dragon glass weapons arriving at the Wall every day and dispersed along the wall but the bulk at Castle Black.

He told the assembled that he would have lunch provided. He had several key allies riding in from Wall this afternoon. He wanted them to meet the forces of the South. The news of the traitors was still not generally dispersed among the forces of the South as a rule. Jon, his father and the Queen wanted everyone in their planned encampments before news was given. They wanted no word leaking to the traitors.

Finally, the moment had arrived.

Jon looked over at the Queen. He did not stand up to seem like he was trying to use height to intimidate.

“I have been told that my Queen wishes to tell me that you want me to not have my forces on the Wall. Is this true?”
Daenerys easily met his gaze. “This is true. If the Ice King has the Horn of Winter the Wall will come down. All the legends speak thus of the weapon. If he blows this horn when we are not ready then the loss of to your forces primarily will be grievous. My forces I will not allow near the Wall as you have seen with our camps. I wish to avoid that senseless loss of life.”

Jon was ready with his reply. “If we do not man the Wall we lose the chance the do grave damage to the enemy before they can come near us. The Wall’s great height will allow us to attack our enemy while they are still far distant. I do not believe in this Horn of Winter. It is a fanciful imagination of Wildlings wanting to bolster their hopes and lift their fears.” Jon looked at his smaller wife. “Did your people ever have any idea where this weapon was? Have any seen it in the long history of your people Ygritte.”

Ygritte looked thoughtful. “I have to admit that is true Jon. We have looked for that weapon for millennium. We have longed for that weapon. When I was only a Wildling we hated the Wall for preventing us access to the South. Mance looked in all the known grave sites in the North of ancient chieftains. We found a horn we were sure was it. It was over eight feet long. Mance finally decided it was a fake. That doesn’t mean that the horn doesn’t exist though Jon. The Ice King believes he has the Horn of Winter. When Melisandre and I spied on him in his camp he was always stroking it and keep it with him or on his throne that was heavily guarded.”

Jon smiled. “Even the Ice King believes in myths and lies.” Jon looked at his wife smiling. He valued her judgement but he felt her Wildling past clouded her judgement in this area.

“Melisandre, you have seen this horn too. With your two thousand years of experience did you feel any magic emanating from the horn? You are attuned to magic—did you feel anything?”

“No Jon I did not. I am attuned to magic this is true. But there are many types of magic. It is obvious that the denizens of the Land are filled with magic and yet I do not feel it. We only know the magic we are attuned too and trained in Jon. I just don’t know. The Ice King is very powerful magical being along with that abomination on his back. Their actions tell me they believe in it. Ygritte and I can feel their magic but it is too vague and diffuse to make any judgements. Their magic is based on precepts we do not understand.”

“From what we have been told and gleaned from the flames this is magic of the Children of the Forest and some source totally foreign to us. This magic we do not know or understand. If we could study with them that would change but we have not had that opportunity. This Croyel is totally beyond our kin.”

Jon looked at the Queen. “I trust my wives but they are not sure on this horn’s magic. To lose the advantage of the height of the Wall is too crucial of our efforts. We can decimate the dead of our enemy. Without his sea of dead his Ice Wrights will be easy for us to dispatch. Even if some are armored with Ice Armor our iron weapons and fire will take that apart so our dragon glass can slay them.”

“To keep our losses as minimal as possible I want to keep my forces on the Wall.”

“I feel this not wise Lord Commander. If the Horn of Winter is real the loss to your forces and the Wildling will be grievous.”

“I disagree. I do not want to lose this opportunity to do grievous damage to the enemy while still at distance. We all know he has something planned. If we allow him to breach the wall before we have decimated his dead our losses will be heinous. I know losses in war are to be expected. I accept that. I wish to minimize our losses if at all possible. This guides my thoughts and commands.”
“We can re-man the Wall if he blows the Horn of Winter and the Wall does not come down then start our campaign of killing his forces” the Queen answered.

“I feel, my Queen, that the Ice King wants us to do that. By us knowing he has this horn he expects us to retreat from the Wall. My wives were attacked from above the last time they spied on him. I feel he knows we were spying on him at the end. He wants us to pull back from the Wall so he can reach it to do whatever he has planned. With him at the Fist of the First Men still, we have plenty of time to prepare for his assault.”

“Lord Commander is it worth the risk. If the Wall comes down your forts will be destroyed. I have the tents to keep all your forces safe, feed and warm at night. Do not risk what need not be risked. I do not wish to offend but to risk such loss seems foolish."

Jon closed his lilac eyes. He was obviously calming himself at the subtle jab. “I disagree my Queen. It is my command.”

The Queen pinched her nose. “I have battled my way across Essos destroying my enemies all along the way. I think I have, by far, more experience at war than all but a handful of you.” She paused. “Hell—none of you at this table have a fourth of my experience at war. Only those involved in Robert’s Rebellion have experienced war on a great scale. That was a generation ago.”

My experience is recent and fresh in my memory. My campaigns have taught me the art of warfare. I have learned many lessons. One is to be cautious when necessary. It has been a generation since Westeros had war. Only small skirmishes since. Trust my judgement. Let me lead your forces. I have proven myself over and over. I conquered a whole continent in three and half years. Can you say that Lord Commander?”

Jon paused. He felt Ygritte grip his thigh underneath the table.

“I am the Lord Commander of the Crows my Queen. For eight thousand years we have stood alone. We were once supported by Westeros. Once we were strong. Now through neglect and ridicule we are but a ghost of our former selves. If we were sitting her fifty years from now we might not be here at all. One century from now there surely would have been no Crows. But this meeting thank the gods was not delayed. The Crows are here to meet the need of Westeros.”

“I repeat that I am the Lord Commander of the Night’s Watch. We bend to no sovereign of Westeros. Even your forbearer Aegon the First did not seek to make us bend the knee my majesty. Are you going to be the first?”

The Queen looked at Arya who looked at her earnestly and Jon knew she was squeezing Daenerys’ leg like Ygritte was his. The Queen turned to look at Jon again. She took a breath obviously controlling herself.

“I will not try and command you Jon. I will not do what Aegon did not. I will agree that by freeing the Night’s Watch of sovereignty to of the Iron Throne has merits and is even wise. The wars of the Kingdoms of the past has left your institution untouched and unaffected. Thus, it has endured as dynasties have risen and fallen. I will not upset that balance.” The Queen looked around the table. “I have fought my way across a continent and shattered armies. I did it by being bold and attacking unexpectedly. Don’t let the Ice King attack us unexpectedly by bringing the Wall down on our very heads.”

“If the Ice King brings the Wall down it will leave a mass of jumbled ice boulders and shards hundreds of feet tall and as many hundred feet across. If the Wall is not shattered the only other way to destroy it is to melt it. That would wash away the army of the Others. That would shatter the cohesion of the Ice King’s army.”

“The dead have no will or violation. They will shamble up the ruins of the wall. We will kill them as they stumble and shamble across the ruins. If the destruction of the Wall is by turning it to water they will be dispersed and we can kill at our leisure. My dragons will burn them as they slip and slide on the jumbled wall or the sea of mud. The Ice Wrights are made of Ice. Let them traverse what is natural for them. We will have phalanxes ready to hold and delay as fire and dragon glass slay them.”

“In some ways I see tactical advantages to the Wall coming down. Still I do not wish to see it dropped. It has great physiological advantages to us.”

Jon felt his ire rise up again but he controlled it. To have the Queen speak of the Wall as only a physiological advantage burned his ass but he controlled his rising temper. He now had both of his wives gripping his thighs. The Queen continued on with her logic.

“Even if they have Ice Armor we have proven that iron tipped weapons will shatter them. I have seen the reports of how you wives have put spells on the iron tuning them to be more affect against the Ice Armor of the Ice Wrights and Giants. The armor may delay the affect of our weapons but we will still decimate the icy abominations. AND if I am wrong and the Wall does not come down by magic then the Wall will remain.”

“If the Wall does not fall, our foe has two choices. He will force his way through the tunnels at Castle Black or attempt a breach elsewhere. A breach will take time. We will have time to counterattack no matter where the breech may be. The Ice King may breach one part of the Wall but it will be a choke point. Again an advantage. We will then return to the Wall and attack from above again as the sea of dead wait to come through the breach point.”

“We will still decimate the enemy. It will just take longer. Jon consider this. With the reduced Crows for you the Wall is an all or nothing proposition. If the Wall is breached an army is behind you. He will have forced his way through the Wall only to meet an army prepared physically and mentally for war. An army armed to the teeth with weapons tuned to kill his soldiers. He will not be expecting that.”

“Trust me Jon and we will shatter his army. I guarantee it.”

Jon was impressed with the Queen’s thinking. He had not considered that the Ice King could only make small breaches in the Wall if he failed in his use of the Horn of Winter. Magic or no magic it would take time to make breaches. The forces of the dead would have to go through a choke point. He had to remember he had the might of Westeros at his back. An army full of archers. The blizzard of dragon glass and fire arrows would still kill the enemy. Even if the Ice Wrights came through first it would only be a few thousand against close to three hundred thousand combined forces.

The Queen and his father had indeed brought the vast majority of Westeros and much of Essos might to meet the foe. He indeed had an army backing him up. He had almost an embarrassment of riches when it came to armed might and stockpiles of weapons to kill his enemy.

He hated to lose the advantage of height at all but maybe he could follow the Queen’s advice. She was letting him decide. His wives did think the Horn of Winter was real. If he caused the needless death of his Crows and the Wildlings it would haunt him to his dying day. He made his decision. If he was right he would simply once more man the Wall.

“I will pull back my Queen. It pains me to give up the high ground but I do not want needless deaths on my conscious if you are correct. I had not considered the limited choke points and the army you have brought to handle any breach or breaches. We Crows have become used to being forgotten and starved of deserved resources. You have indeed brought a vast armored fist to our aid. The concept of the Wall coming down is so foreign to me that I did not factor the ability to let the enemy through and still being able to dispatch from a position of strength.”

The meeting went on for another hour discussing the logistics of making their decisions come to fruition. The Queen said she would get her logistical liaisons working on it. The Crows and Wildling would have to be housed away from the Wall. Ravens would be sent out after this meeting with word to pull back from the Wall to all the other forts before the Wall. Everywhere the Queen had her forces pulled back from the Wall behind berms and deep ditches in case the Wall was somehow destroyed by melting it. They would use night to pull the Crows and Wildlings off the Wall at Castle Black. The traitors would not know of it.

The Queen looked at Sansa, Margaery and Missandei. Jon had learned that Sansa had become quite accomplished. She had definitely changed. He again judged his eldest sister.

Before Sansa had been meek and a docile girl. She walked with her shoulders slumped and rounded. She did not make eye contact and never spoke her mind. She was cowed by their mother and timid. This was not that girl. Sansa had grown up to be a tall woman who walked with a straight back and shoulders thrown back. Her gaze was direct and it was clear she would speak her mind. His father had told Jon how brilliant a tactician Sansa had proven to be. It seemed that Margaery had uncovered the diamond that Sansa truly was.

Jon now had two strong sisters. He liked that idea.

The tent then was served a meal of roast beef, potatoes and turnips. The meal was genial with the four Giants jesting and singing songs about Thelma Twofist and her quest for love. Jon was looking around the tent. A runner had come in half an hour ago and whispered in his ear that the two Lords were about forty-five minutes out.

A few minutes later he spotted the first change in the persons from the Land. He wanted to test their supposed ability to sense the rightness in people and their environment. The change he spotted was in the Haruchai. They had been walking at the back of tent prowling around. They were relaxed but it was clear they were poised to attack at a moment’s notice to defend their charges.

The Haruchai had seemed at ease with their guarding duties. This now changed. The six Haruchai in the room ceased their prowling and came to stand behind their charges. They did not look any different on their faces. They were still totally flat of mien showing no emotions. Still, Jon could feel their tenseness. Eddard and Stannis caught Jon’s eyes. They had seen it too. Jon could tell his sister and the Queen too knew something was up. They remained relaxed like Jon, Eddard and Stannis.

Ten minutes later a Haruchai entered the tent. If Jon had not been looking for it he would have missed it. It was amazing how she just seemed to appear inside the tent. Over the next twenty minutes seven more Haruchai had entered the tent. Reports from the Queen and his father had wrote that the Haruchai not guarding their charges were out riding picket on their Ranyhyn steeds. This had ceased. Most were now in this tent.

The Haruchai did not speak. They did not need to. It was obvious to Jon that they were prepared for possible trouble. Now all the Lords at in the large meeting tent could sense that something was up. This many stoic Haruchai in one place was a rarity.

The Giants and Ramen had picked up from the Haruchai that something was about to happen. The Lord was looking troubled.

Twenty minutes later a runner came in and came and came up to Jon. He heard that the Lords of the North had arrived. He stood up.

“My Queen and fellow Lords. I have asked some of the Lords representing the forces already at the Wall to come to this meeting. I want the Lords of the South to meet some of the best of the North. I introduce Harrion Karstark of the North, Yohn Royce of the Vale, Edwyn Frey of the Riverlands and Roose Bolton of the North.

The men filed in with Karstark and Yohn in the lead. They had a small honor guard from their House around them. Jon, his father and the Queen eyed the persons from the Land. They showed no reaction to their entrance. Then Edwyn followed by Roose entered the tent with their retinue.

The Giants had been laughing and jesting with the Lords sitting next to them. The Giants immediately ceased talking and glared at the two Lords who had entered last.

The Haruchai had subtly moved to stand near the last two Lords and their honor guard entering the tent. They did so in such a way that no one noticed their movements if not watching them already. They were like ghosts. The Haruchai had subtly changed their posture. They had flexed their knees ever so slightly their weight on the balls of their feet. They were poised on the cusp of great violence.

The woman who had been identified to Jon as a Lord of Revelstone sat stone faced her hands on the table balled up into fists. Her face was flat like the Haruchai but Jon could see the suppressed anger of the woman.

The denizens who reacted to the entrance of Edwyn and Roose were the Ramen. They gasped at the men’s appearance into the tent. The cords immediate went to grip their cords from around their waists. Their Manethrall Fohn jerked upright and glared at the men. The woman had been seated beside Eddard. He reached over and gripped her wrist gently. She glared down at him. He motioned with his head for her to seat. She did so but her body was trembling with ire.

Fortunately, the men had their focus on the Queen. They were making obeisance to their liege. Jon, Eddard, Daenerys had seen enough. The men were evil. The rest of the meeting seemingly went well for all involved. The men from the Wall gave their reports and then were escorted out to have a meal at the tent set up for the Royals of the North to eat and warm themselves.

The tent was quiet for a minute while the men were led away. The Giants stood up.

The Giants pulled their swords from their scabbards. Their faces were hard. “Explain yourselves!” Their swords were leveled. While not aimed at anyone specific they were ready for use. The Giants were poised ready for violence.

Lord Lustra had stood as well her eyes glaring “What is the meaning of this! Roose Bolton and Edwyn Frey are men of evil. Their hearts are black! The men with them have darkened hearts. How can you consort with them?” She had her hands on her staff her knuckles white.

Manethrall Fohn had jumped up as well ripping the cord from her hair. “These men must be killed. They are evil!” She glared at the men around the table “How can you consort with them. I am not sure we can any longer support you.”

Eddard stood up. The rest of the Lords of Westeros in the room were shocked by this change in the people of the Land. Even the Queen and Jon were stunned by the passion from the denizens of the far away Land. They had always shown the upmost control of their emotions when away from their tents and at rest. They always displayed the most restraint and decorum. Not now.

Brail surprised Jon by speaking. “They cannot see their evil. We have spoken of this. They are not of the Land.”

The Lord Lustra calmed hearing this. She paused a long moment considering and then she spoke “We must remember that they cannot see the rightness of things like we can. I must admit I cannot fathom how this is so.” She looked at Eddard. “You truly cannot see their evilness? It radiates out of their very pores. The reek of evil pervades these men. You are most like us. We just assumed you had our insights. We are surprised.”

Eddard blushed at the compliment. “I cannot see it. They make my skin crawl but I have dealt with Roose for close to twenty years. I have known Walder Frey but only by association. He quite simply is an asshole. But without that exposure I am not sure how I would feel about them. I sense something wrong with them but not anything like what you evidently see.

Jon then led the discussion to get the persons from the Land to explain how they could literally see the evil intent of the Houses of Frey and Bolton. The way could not be shown or proven. It was something the people of the Land were simply born with. The Giants and Haruchai acquired this ability when they journeyed to the Land.

None now doubted that House Bolton and Frey were traitors. They would fall on those two House with a vengeance.

As the meeting broke up the Queen came up to Jon with Arya. The Queen looked at Jon approvingly. “You take after your father. You too can play the Game of Thrones. This was a master stroke to fully prove the traitorous ways of those two Houses. We are prepared.”

Jon felt a sense of pride flow through him. The forces of Westeros were prepared as they could be.

Arya

Arya looked ahead of her feeling her breath catch. The Wall was a solid line across the horizon
now. The sky was clear and the sun in the afternoon sky was beating down on the South face of the Wall. The line stretched from horizon to horizon. The wall glowing bright deep medium blue in the light. It was hard to image that much of the ice she was looking at was thousands of years old.

The Wall was far older than the trees they rode by. It was a humbling thought. It was permanence giving form.

She had been riding her horse yesterday on the ride after their midmorning break to let the horses rest and crop grass supplemented with oats. The King’s Road was running through a line of low hills the road undulating right and left running between the low rolling hills. There were small stands of trees lining the hills.

This was the North Arya felt. She loved how the North was still so wild and untamed. The North was still wild. Dany rode beside Arya breathing in deep the cold air. Her hot blood kept her warm.
Arya was slightly envious of her lover’s body being so hot blooded. Of course that had its advantages in bed she smirked to herself.

Then it had happened. They had slowly gone through a curve of the King’s Road and the hills fell away before them. There it was before her. They were still a day away but the lack of hills and trees could no longer hide the Wall. It was there across the horizon glowing in the cloudy light. It was a solid line across the world from right to left. It was low on the horizon but it was there. It was as permanent as the sky above it.

The sight had been breathtaking. Arya heard gasps and sounds of wonder all around her. The Lords of the South were stunned at the sight. Still a day away and the Wall dominated the horizon. They rode higher in their saddles. This was a wonder of the world. This was the equal of the Sept of Boror in King's Landing or the Titan of Braavos.

The denizens of the Land were of two minds Arya determined. The Haruchai of course showed no emotion. The ramen looked up at the Wall and seemed to consider it but then ignored it instead scouting the ground ahead to make sure all was safe for the horses' safe passage.

The Giants were grinning and talking excitedly. They were saying what a marvel it was. Arya had learned they loved the crafting of stone into beautiful edifices and stone ships. To them the Wall was a construction to marvel at. They were anxious to get up and touch the wall to determine its construction and see the excellence of the work. They could tell the Wall was a marvel though they were more than a day away.

Lustra was riding her Ranyhyn and marveled at the ice Wall slowly rising up in the sky as they approached. She had a small smile on her face. She had changed much since Arya first saw her at Winterfell. Last night she had been wailing in ecstasy in her tent with Brail. She had been dour and angry when Arya first met her. She was still taciturn and quiet but her face was not set in stone. She did not show overly much emotion. Smiles though small did cross her face now. This was probably a good thing with her lover being Haruchai.

Brail was like the Wall in some ways Arya thought. She was quiet and showed no emotions unless she was behind her charge gently massaging her shoulders as the Lord ate. Her face showing just a trace of the love she obviously felt for her Lord. Of course at night Arya had heard her screams as Lustra sucked and finger banged her wife to orgasm again and again.

Of course Dany had been screaming the last two nights as her cunt gushed hot cum into Arya's tummy making her happy. She really loved how Dany would plant her feet in the furs and claw her fingers into Arya's scalp and lift her exploding cunt up off the furs her pelvis jumping up high with each spasm wracking her body. Arya scooting up and gripping her lover's ass cheeks helping Dany lift her ass high off the furs her pubic bone grinding into Arya's mouth as she gulped down hot gushes of sweet cum.

Her father had ridden by her early this morning with a sour look on his face. He stared at her.

"I am happy you made up with your wife to be Arya. But godsdamnit I have slept like shit this whole journey up to the Wall. And excuse my Braavosi. Stannis and Oberyn are bad enough with those fucking—excuse my Baraavosi—orgies they are keep having with Haruchai, Ramen and now the Dothraki. It is maddening!"

"Then you, your sister and that freaking Lord are howling like Direwolves! That blasted Missandei is caterwauling like her Caracal. I still can't understand how masturbating alone can produce so much noise. Her blasted wagon is rocking on its springs by the old gods!"

"I for one am thankful tonight we make the camp of the Wall. I will make sure my tent is far away from you all. I am Warden of the North and will invoke the right to have separation from you and your horny lot! I need my sleep!"

Arya merely smiled at her father. She brought up her first two fingers in a V and placed them on her lips and wiggled her tongue between the fingers all around. She had an evil look on her face.

Her father had first looked shocked, then royally peeved and finally he smiled wanly. He then shook his head and rode off muttering “youth” to himself.

That had been this morning. The clouds had blown off to the east and now the Wall was a sentinel on the horizon that towered over them.

Arya looked up at the Wall. It was here she would meet her immediate destiny. It was where Westeros would meet its destiny.

Nymeria came running by with Oberyn’s spear in her mouth. She was grinning her wolf smile her eyes alight with happy mischief. Oberyn came pounding by fifteen seconds later cursing her Direwolf. He cursed Arya as he rode by. Arya laughed.

She was ready to meet her destiny. With Dany and her father’s efforts so was Westeros.
Ice King

“Noooooo! Noooooo!” the Ice King awoke shaking with fear. He had dreamed again. It was eight thousand years ago and the cursed Azor Ahai had pierced his dead cold heart mortally wounding him. He looked up as the killing blow came down to cleave his head.

The dreams had intensified of late. He had heard distant echoes of his past since his awakening. Up to now he had been able to suppress them. Not now.

He remembered running from those who hunted him. He remembered his stark fear and rage that he felt when he was only Darick Stark. His own people hunted him like a common criminal or a mongrel dog. He was meant for greatness and no one saw it. So he had run. In his dreams he remembered his thundering heart and constantly looking back behind and to the sides. Raw fear beating in his chest while sweat soaked his clothing and furs. His breathing labored while he felt the sweat running down his face despite the freezing weather.

Darick had thought he knew terror. He had not. He had been captured by the First People. The fucking scum had snared him in one of their traps. He had cursed the subhuman scum as they cut him out of their trap. He had been taken north. His curses and demands to be released ignored.

Then he had met her. The Queen of the Children of the Forest. She called herself by the stupid name of Leaf. He had spit in her face and told her he would garrote her worthless self.

“You are most vile and evil. You will do nicely” the trash had told Darick.

He remembered his eyes going round with terror when the Queen bitch produced an obsidian dagger that glowed ice blue. The slut had wasted no time stabbing him in the heart. He remembered screaming in agony feeling his blood freeze and his mind turned to snow.

His dream always jumped over his transformation and his coming into his true awareness and power. His slaughter of the Children of the Forest. Their deaths on his Ice Sword had been sweet. Then he had fought the warm bloods that he once had been. He relished slaughtering the bastards.

No his nightmare jumped to his fight with Azor Ahai at the site that Castle Black now stood. He and Azor had slaughtered each other’s honor guard. Then the two had squared off against each other. He had been so confident. He was sure of his victory over the usurper from the foreign land of Asshai. All knew that the people of Essos were degenerates and scum.

His victory had not been assured. He still remembered in his dreams with crystal clarity as if it was just a moment ago. He could still feel the agony of the bastard’s sword penetrating his body. The fire of the blade igniting his icy blood till it burned in his torso and his very limbs. He had pulled himself off his foe’s blow staggering back. He remembered looking up as the flaming sword came down to cleave his skull in two. The pain of the first sword wound had been nothing compared to the agony of the second blow.
Then only darkness.

He jerked up off the throne in the clearing. He walked around shaking. His sons watched him intently. They felt his fear but did not understand it. They were totally loyal to him. They were truly the issue of his body. A pure reflection of his cold heart. The Ice King eyed his sons. They showed only devout worship. Still the Ice King worried. Would his show weakness in time inspire a usurper?

He had grown them all in his image. This weakness would cease once he had killed the new Azor Ahai. Jon Snow would die this time. The damn Dragon King would perish. He would kill both of his most hated enemies at the same time. It would be exquisite. Then his full strength would be revealed. His sons would only see strength and their obedience would be total and complete.

That had to be the reasons for the unsettling dreams. The nearness of the coming battle. He was assured of his victory but the approaching battle had heightened his anticipation. He would emerge victorious. Still in the hidden chambers of his heart he remembered defeat and naked fear.

He stamped down on the hated emotions. He would soon avenge all and put the cursed past completely behind him.

The Ice King reached up and patted his curious son on his bald head. The Croyel drinking from his father. Their symbiotic bond as strong as ever. They would conqueror the world in time. His son purred his teeth digging into his father’s throat.

It was not only the Ice King feeling pangs of fear and doubt. The Croyel too had been biting his neck harder of late drinking more heavily. His son shaking with fear for this Lord of Revelstone. His son afraid of her mastery of the Lore of High Lord Kevin. His son at times yammering of the Lore’s potency. The Ice King felt no fear from mere words and knowledge. It was swords and strategy that won wars.

“They have mastered the Lore of High Lord Kevin. The hated Lords of Revelstone have remembered the passion necessary to make the Old Lords magic truly powerful. They have unlocked the magic of the Old High Lords. She is most dangerous. You must slay her father!” his son had spoken to his mind in shrill tones of terror. His son’s terror mirroring the terror of the Ice King’s dreams.

He would kill this “Lord” after he had killed Azor Ahai reborn and the slut Daenerys Targaryen. It did not matter now to him if he killed the Dragon Queen before or after. If his plan worked as hoped maybe they would all be dead before he even reached them. He wanted his sword to be the one to kill them but why put himself in danger if his plan worked.

He had planned his surprise and with his son’s magical lore and strength he was close to fulfilling his plans. It would be glorious.

His enemies no longer had the Mages of old that had slaughtered his dead army. His implacable foes, the Children of the Forest, in the past had stockpiles of Dragon Glass. They were united against him eight thousand years ago. The Children of the past were almost extinct now. The Mages were no more.

Now they had none of this. The fools had forgotten magic. The ShadowBender witches were like onto Azor Ahai but their magic was limited in use for the coming grand campaign. The fool Nights Watch commander had expended what Dragon Glass he had. The patrols after the skirmish before the gates before Castle Black no more Dragon Glass had been shot at his Sons and walking dead. Only fire tipped arrows.
His foes had united themselves it seemed but he had his traitors to fall upon the rear of his enemy. Two mighty Houses were not at the Wall. They were still reduced. He smiled.

His victory was assured.

One more time the Ice King scanned his sons. He saw all only beatific smiles on their faces. He sensed no sedition. His momentary weaknesses had not yet caused any thoughts of ill ease among his sons. They expected unquestionable strength from their father. In their loyalty they demanded it. He knew for now all was well. Once he killed his enemies he would cease to be haunted by visions of the past that undermined his will now.

He walked over to his throne. He gripped the Horn of Winter and the leather line that ran from the rim of the horn to its tip. The leather run through eyelets punched into the horn. As he started to put the Horn of Winter around his neck the Ice King again marveled at how plain the horn looked. It looked like any ordinary war horn. The Ice King put it around his neck. The line brushing over his son who complained with whimpers. He reached back and patted his son on his head again. The Croyel purring in contentment his discomfiture forgotten at the horn’s touch with his father’s loving touch.

The Ice King was not going to be separated with his horn. It was his key to his success. He had taught his son to cease his prattling about destroying the Horn of Winter. He would take the risks that the Croyel whined about. He was the greatest force in this world. He would reign supreme. He would be using this horn soon. It would bring down the Wall and lead him to his enemies. There was no way he would not use this weapon. It had waited for him to find and use it. It had been created for this time. The Ice King knew it.

He walked out of the small hidden glade underneath the tree boughs. He walked into a sea of dead. They had been filling up the Haunted Forest. The dead were milling around and piling up on each other. The dead were filling the forest up to within several hundred yards of the leading edge of the forest. His army of the dead were like flotsam bobbing on the ocean’s tide. They had no will or directive beyond the one he had given them when his will rose them up from the dead. The directive simple. Kill the enemies of the Ice King.

Now his will had the flotsam of Walking Dead standing in place. He had suppressed the compulsion to move forward. The dead would simply shuffle in place till his will once more moved them forward. That time would be coming soon.

This was why he had worked so hard to drive the Wildlings before him emptying the North of humans. He had focused on killing any Crow patrols no matter the cost to his forces. The loss of life had cowed the Crows. They no longer sent out any patrols that extended into the lands above the Wall. They had been taught the error of that thought. Now the Crows did not even venture out into the Haunted Forest. Their one major clash in the last few months had been a blow against him. It still filled him with wrath at that taste of defeat.

Evidently, the Crows had built up a supply of Dragon Glass tipped arrows and other hurled weapons. He had lost two sons and a paltry number of his dead. He knew that the Crows had harvested many of his weapons from his dead minions but many more had been destroyed. The Nights Watch sent out a few more patrols soon after. They had stayed very close to the gates of Wall. When harassed by his forces with no more Dragon Glass being shot. Then the patrol of the Crows ceased altogether.

They must have consumed much of their obsidian weapons. It must have taken them years to gather that much obsidian from grave sites of the North dead and from lost caches of the hated First People who had been his creators. Without those weapons the Crows had fallen back to the defense of the Wall. The hated Crows husbanding the few obsidian weapons they had left. They thought themselves safe behind their Wall. A Wall he would soon destroy. With his true son he would soon fall like a hawk on the unsuspecting rabbit from on high.

The Crows and Wildlings were few in numbers. The rest of Westeros lacked the knowledge on how to fight his forces. He would butcher their army and make their dead a part of his own army. It was a beautiful symmetry that the Ice King found pleasing. He would conquer Westeros and bring it fully under his control.

Before he crossed the narrow sea to conquer Essos he would head back north with no threat from the humans. He would then hunt the First People down one by one if needed. He hated them as much as he hated the humans he had once been. He had shown them the mistake they had made in creating him. He would love killing the Queen of the Children of the Forest. She who had plunged the dagger into his once human heart. Again symmetry. It would be poetic justice for he who was once Darick Stark thought with a grim smile on his face.

He would never thank the elf for giving him all this. He was given the gift of immortality and the strength to conquer the world. It had not been the Queen of the First Peoples intent. He laughed within himself. The horror in their eyes as he slaughtered all the Children of the Forest he could find delighted the Ice King. It had been glorious. He had been on the cusp of complete victory. It would have been his. He was on the verge of achieving all his goals and desires.

If R’hhlor had not sent an emissary he would have succeeded eight thousand years ago. Why the hell had they become involved in a conflict half a world away the man who had been Darik Stark raged. They should have thought themselves safe. At the time of their first meeting he had no desire to conquer more than Westeros. He had met this man from Asshai with no fear. He had underestimated the man of Asshai. It had been Azor Aha’s sword that had been superior shattering his own sword.

The Ice King fumed reliving past failures. This time it would be the reborn Azor Aha’s sword that would shatter. His true son had strengthened his sword with his strange alien magic. This time history would flow in its proper channel. Total victory for himself, Dark Stark.

He had fashioned his new sword with hate and magic. He had forged his blade in a deep crevice in the heart of a glacier. It was far stronger than his original blade. He had hammered his blade from ice that was ten thousand years old. Ice older than his original incarnation. This blade would not shatter. This blade was pure ice formed from the heart of the North. Then his true son added his own incantations to further harden his sword.

He moved slowly through the Haunted Forest brushing past the dead. The dead ranged from small woodland vermin to great Mastodons and Cave Bears. The animals sufficed with countless dead humans from centuries past frozen and waiting for him to reanimate. The ancient human dead supplanted by the many Wildlings and Crows he had killed over the last decade.

The Ice King smiled a grim frozen thing. He loved the idea of the dead humans killing their former brethren.

All the dead he had risen he had filled with a need to attack the living. He animated the dead. He did not control them only filled them with the imperative to attack that which lived. Thus, his dead army needed to shepherd from one point to another. But once there, their imperative to attack the living would suffice to lead them to attack with unrelenting fury against the living.

His army was before the Wall now. He had the Haunted Forest teaming with his dead ready to attack the hated Crows and their allies. His son’s glamour had done its work. His enemies still thought his army was at the Fist of the First Men. His sons spying the wall told him of the hated dragons flying north every four to five days heading straight north. They could only be heading to one location. They could only be heading there for only one reason. To confirm he was still where he was not.

The Ice King had left a few of his Ice Wrights sons back at the Fist of the First Men. They were able to let their father know when the dragons arrived and how long they stayed above the Fist. It seemed the dragons sprinted up to the Fist of the First Men. Four hours after the dragons would disappear to the north from the Wall. The dragons flying at a furious pace they would be at the Fist of the First of the First Men.

The dragons did not stay long. No more than ten minutes his few sons reported back to their father.
Then in roughly four hours they were back. They saw his glamour and immediately flew back.
Now the dragons were taking turns flying up and down the Wall. The dragons flying high and a mile back from the Wall. The Ice Wrights communicating through magical wands made of pure glacier ice the Croyel had enchanted to allow short messages to be sent to the Croyel. He then relayed what he heard from the Wrights to his beloved father.

The Ice King cursed the dragons of the pale Queen. They flew simply too high and to far back from the Wall for him in any way to attack them from the ground or the air. They were too high and back for him to fire any scorpion bolt at them. He had an ice javelin he could throw at them but the Dragon Queen kept them to far away for that. It enraged him.

This Dragon Queen seemed to always think of his stratagems and had counter strategies ready to thwart his will. It did not matter. He was soon so spring his trap shut upon her and her forces that she simply could not conceive of. His true son, the Croyel, had magic that was beyond the kin of the pale Queen.

As he walked slowly among his dead heading south to the edge of the Haunted Forest he contemplated the coming war. His son still maintained the glamour to the North but was already forming his next glamour. When it was prepared and the time was right his son would allow the first one to dissipate and form the new one. His son’s second glamour would allow the Ice King to get his forces the last distance they needed to travel to make his surprise complete.

The Crows had cut down the forest for a mile before the Wall at a minimum. From atop the Wall the fire they could rain down on his forces would be hateful. The catapults and trebuchets would rain pitch and flame down on his dead. His sons of man and giants could dodge most of these projectiles but the dead had no true sense. Especially a sense of danger. They would walk blindly into any flaming death raining down from above. They would walk blankly into existing fires. They had no fear of a second death. This was good when killing the Ice King’s enemies. It was bad when his walking dead aimlessly walked into fire and death.

Worse, he had never been able to stop his dead from so easily catching fire. It was maddening in fact. He had tried to alter his magic when animating the dead but the result remained the same. The dead ignited in searing flame at the merest spark. Their bodies instantly combusting. It was perplexing to the Ice King. They were animated by hate, ice and cold. Yet their bodies instantly catch fire and would not stop burning till they had been completely incinerated.

His exasperation and anger was only increased because when the dead caught fire they seemed to become disorientated. If they were not actively engaged fighting a living person they would stumble around aimlessly. They felt no pain and had no fear and yet they would wonder all around ignoring other of his dead afire. The dead lighting each other in a configuration.

That was the reason he needed his son to perform another glamour before the Wall. He could not have the Crows and Wildlings firing down fire arrows on his walking dead as they advanced on the Wall in mass. The destruction to his dead would be staggering.

He and his Ice Wright sons looked up at the top of the Wall. The Crows and Wildlings still manned the Wall. They were there to kill his minions. Instead when the Wall collapsed it would lead to their deaths. The Ice King smiled at the thought. It would be so sweet to turn a supposed boon to a means of death.

The smile soured slightly. He was angry at the magic that animated his dead. This anomaly of the dead igniting to easily when touched by fire meant that he would not be able to use the dragon’s ability to spew fire after he killed them. Their very bodies would ignite if they tried to spit out fire. The dead when they caught fire burned to grease and ash. No matter if human or animal the dead burned the same. It would be the same with dragons. Even if they did not ignite from within they made for very large targets.

Once the dead ignited the fire could not be put out till the fire had totally consumed the dead. One fire arrow would set his dragon alight. It might take time for the fire to consume the dragons but burn they would. He was sure that multiple arrow strikes would greatly speed up the process.

What a waste of ability the Ice King mused.

He walked on feeling the dead pressing him in on all sides. Maybe once he would have felt unnerved by what he saw, heard and felt. The sounds the dead made with air passing through body cavities and the sounds of dragging legs and listless arms brushing through the underbrush would have unnerved him once. No more. He was the father of the dead. They were his children. He looked off into the depths of the forest. The dead like new saplings pushing up from the cold earth and seeking to push aside the old growth with new growth of dead beings to replace the sentinel pines.

The saplings of his dead thick underneath the canopy. His own forest of the dead would soon emerge from underneath the mighty boughs of the conifers of the Haunted Forest. They would march south to the furthest reaches of Westeros along the marge of the Summer Sea.

Then he would conquer the continent of Essos and the mighty island continents of Sothoryos and Ulthos. With the knowledge of his true son the Croyel he would then go to the South of the World and conquer the lands of that part of the world.

The Ice King slowly walked forward in the deep of the night. He loved the night but his enemy knew it. He would attack when they least expected it. It was all coming together. He would attack his enemy when at a time not of their choosing. He would be victorious. He had cautiously worked to this point. The time for caution and subterfuge was almost over.

He spent an hour pushing his way forward through the dead. The dead awaiting his will. He approached the edge of the forest the trees thinning. He moved more slowly moving only in the deepest shadows. He did not want his foes to know he was present. He assumed his enemies thought he had patrols out but not that he had his whole army at hand.

The Croyel and his glamour assured they thought the vast bulk of his army was still over one hundred and fifty miles away. They were in fact only a mile distant. His army would crash upon his enemies like an unstoppable tsunami. All would be swept away before him.

He moved forward from tree to tree at the forest edge. He looked up at the Wall. It had not truly existed when he first lived. It was just being created but already it had been filled with magic that was antithetical to him. The magic buried deep in the Wall to anchor it. He hated it. Without the Horn of Winter he was powerless to bring the Wall down.

The Horn of Winter changed everything.

He looked up at the defenses on the top of the Wall. With his enhanced vision he could easily see the top of the Wall from the edge of the Haunted Forest. His vision with the half-moon easily had the light to see clearly. It had scorpions and catapults up and down the length. The Dragon Queen had given the Crows the resources to construct scorpions and trebuchets beyond count. The devices like trees on top of the Wall that marched off to the horizon. It would not matter. The top of the Wall covered with iron and wood works to shield the weapons and the humans who would be shooting arrows and launching shots from the scorpions and trebuchets down at him and his forces.

He peered up at the fortifications. He knew the Crows and Wildling hide behind their fortifications. They would cower behind their bulwarks and think themselves safe. He knew they planned of raining fire down on his forces and maybe some obsidian.

They would think themselves safe up there on high. Safe above his forces raining hateful death on his various sons.

They would be laughing thinking themselves safe. He would sound the Horn of Winter and they would die screaming.

He knew his losses would be grievous if he had to force his way through the tunnels. He would not be doing that. His son gibbered softly. His clawed toes and fingers digging into his body painfully. His son was agitated this close to the Wall. His son felt the magic in the Wall attuned to his body. Magic now mysteriously enhanced. His son felt this Lord of Revelstone that had arrived a handful of days ago.

His own force had set off their third magical flare just last night. He had felt the magical construct and attuned his focus on it. He now knew where his expeditionary force was located. It was moving in place. Their own glamour in effect. His son’s spells of invisibility working perfectly. His created sons and their companions blending perfectly into their surroundings unseen. They would soon be ready to strike.

When they did they would deprive the Queen of her most precious assets. Her dragons. Once they had been killed he would be free of their aerial attack. He could unleash Ice Fang unopposed. If his sons attacked at an opportune time they may kill more than the dragons. His hidden Ice Wrights and Ice Giants would reap death among the hapless humans. They pale of battle would gradually break the spell of invisibility and he would lose many of them. Hopefully, serendipity would allow them to kill the Queen and this Lord from the South of the world. If that occurred the battle would be over.

The deaths of his created sons and giants would be mourned and avenged. Their sacrifice not made in vain. He would have many, many children to convert to his new Ice Wright sons. He would hunt down any surviving Giant young and convert them as well. His numbers would be replenished. His count of Walking Dead to swell to near unimaginable numbers. These thoughts filled the Ice King with pleasure. He had other advantages.

His human traitors would sow distraction, death, and destruction in the rear of his enemy. The Dragon Queen would have to meet that traitorous attack. It would break her ranks and her concentration. She would be ripe for his main attack. They would then draw the enemy back to them as he came surging forward.

He would blow the Horn of Winter and the Wall would come crashing down. His son would provide the ability to move through the ruin of the wall. He would fall on the humans as they tried to crush the traitors within their own ranks.

His true son now knew that the battle was at hand had stopped opposing his father’s will. The Croyel wanted to see the magic of the Wall destroyed and the Lord of Revelstone slain. With those immediate threats to the Croyel removed it would allow his son to relax and feel safe. That would make his father very happy. He reached back again and petted the Croyel on its yellow bald head. Its curious eyes squint shut as his son purred in satisfaction. The deformed body clung tight to the Ice King as it drank the icy blood of his father and half dreamed visions of destruction and hate.

Again the Ice King patted his son. The war would soon be upon them. He could not wait.

His victory would be total and complete. His losses would be more than made up the multitude of dead he would add to his army. Hundreds of thousands of dead men and thousands of horses would make his army that much greater.

The Ice King fingered the Horn of Winter. He longed to blow it and bring the Wall down. He put it back down. The time was not right. Soon it would be time. He tried to suppress his old human emotions but it was hard at times like these.

He felt elation that all his plans were coming together. The pieces of the puzzle were fitting together perfectly. He smiled at the Wall. He would relish falling on Winterfell and slaughtering his decedents personally. He fervently hoped that he would find young male heirs he would convert to be his new sons. He was once a Stark. No more. He would annihilate the line. It was his ancestors that sent him into the hands of the First People. He had decimated the hated First People. Soon he would finish both the Stark line and the last of the Children of the Forest.

It was destiny. Had he not been born to achieve greatness? It was his birthright.

He had harassed the crows and killed them hoping they would call the forces of Westeros to their defense. The fools had succeeded in this. He would now not have to fight endless wars killing his enemies as he marched down the continent of Westeros. Each battle costing him forces. Each battle opening the possibilities that his enemies might discover some way to defeat him.

He doubted it greatly but why take the chance. He had manipulated his foes to bring all their force north to face him at the Wall. In one battle it would be all over. Those left would easily be overwhelmed and defeated.

He who was once Darick Stark wanted one cataclysmic battle that would finish his enemies in one fell stroke. The clash would be the greatest battle to ever occur in any age of Westeros. He would enjoy the slaughter. His enemies had done exactly as he planned. He would kill them all. He had made it inevitable with his intellect, verve and cunning. His victory would prove his greatness.

He had waited eight thousand years for his revenge and now it was at hand. It would only be a short time, no more than two weeks before he sprung his brilliant trap. His destiny was at hand.

His son suddenly jabbered louder. His mind in turmoil. Just when he thought his true son had stopped his bleating and prattle he would suddenly have another panic attack. The Ice King loved his son but these bursts of mindless fear were maddening. Fortunately, only he knew his son’s weakness. The sons of his blood did not see his movements for the fear that it was. His formed sons could not hear the blather and fear. Only he did with his symbiotic link with the Croyel. His other sons would doubt their father for allowing the Croyel to be weak and not punish severely or kill if necessary.

His distant sons could not see what he did. Therefore he could be magnanimous with his true son.
He could and did forgive. He must. He derived so much power from his true son. He tried to refrain from punishing his son by depriving him of his blood. When he did this his son was instantly cowed.

He needed to end this war once and for. The Ice King feared deep down his son’s bouts of fear were triggering his nightmares of ages past. He had not started to dream of his second birth and subsequent death till his son started having his own nightmares of these forces from the Land.

He simply could not understand why his son was so fearful of these strange visitors of his homeland. They were paltry in numbers.

He had worked with his son on his fear of the “Forbidding buried in the Wall.” He had repeated again and again that the Forbidding was entwined with the Wall and when it came down the links would be severed and the danger to his son would cease. He had his son calmed and accepting his logic. Was it not he the Ice King who mastered all that challenged him? The Croyel had finally come to accept the infallibility of his father.

Well, mostly. The Croyel still had seemingly random bouts of fear. He assured his true son again and again that with their mighty army they would quickly annihilate this paltry force from the homeland of his true son. The fools had come with few numbers. He laughed at their stupidity. To face his greatness with such numbers was insulating. He hoped to kill some of them himself.

The Ice King had just gotten the Croyel over the Forbidding in the Wall. Then the forces from the Land had come ashore on the shores of Westeros. His son had lost it again and he had to work on reinforcing his son’s confidence. He found it perplexing that his son was so distressed over such a paltry force. He had again worked on his son’s illogic. Had they not come up with plans that would slay their enemies with minimal loss of their forces? There was a good chance they may be killed before they took the battlefield themselves.

This made the Croyel smile into his throat. His son drinking deeply from his blood gurgling in happiness at the thoughts of their demise. The Ice King again patted his true son on the head. The Croyel would never admit that it hoped that all the denizens of the Land were killed before the Ice King took the field beyond the fallen Wall.

He had thought they had put the issue behind them. They had gone nearly two weeks without his true son losing it again. That changed yesterday in the early morning.

He had left his glade and walked to the west. He did that from time to time. The Ice King enjoyed the walk among his dead army. It was the army in death he had been hatefully denied while living. He had his most mature and trusted Lieutenants walking amongst the dead to make sure his will controlled the dead. He still felt the need to make sure that his will reigned supreme among both walking dead and his Ice Wright sons.

He had been shamed and humiliated in his distant past when he was still only a man. A hated the House of Stark. He would never allow that humiliation to occur again. His will would reign supreme. His creators the Children of the Forest had learned that lesson. They thought they had created a weapon to use and then caste aside. He had taught them the error of their ways. Between him and his ancestors they had reduce the First People to a shadow of their former power and numbers.

He was ten miles to the west of the glade he had set his throne up in. He had tended several miles North away from the Wall. He enjoyed his long walk amongst his dead. He was in a low wadi. The sand dry. It had been a long while since the last heavy rains. He was walking past a group of dead mastodons when his son went insane. The Croyel started to scream in his mind loud mindless shrieks of shocking terror. His talons kicked and tore into his side. His son’s physical screams muffled by the Croyel’s mouth gnawing on his throat.

The Croyel screamed in his mind. His son’s thoughts were inchoate. He could not make any sense out of his son’s thoughts. He had not had to resort to starving his son of late but he did so now increasing the flow of ice crystals into his carotid arteries stopping the flow of the blood to his son.

To his shock his son still resisted. Normally, the instant his blood was cutoff to his son he capitulated. Not yesterday. The shock of blood loss made his son vicious. He had attacked his father with the full force of his own magic. He had been enraged at this attack upon his person by his true son. His angered tempered though. He needed the Croyel too much to truly harm the entity.

The Ice King had been shocked at the raw power. Feeling the Croyel’s might he truly understood his power. But, his son was already weakened by blood starvation. The Ice King had deduced that if Croyel was denied sustenance they instantly started to weaken. They needed to feed continuously. His true son had been deeply shocked over whatever vision he had had. His son tried to compel him to run away. Simply run away. He had contended with his son. His son fought him mightily but weakened over the next minute as he was starved of the blood he craved and needed.

The Croyel capitulated. He whimpered in defeat. The Ice King restored his blood flow to his son. His son only cried in fear and did not rebel again against his father. He wanted to punish the Croyel his true son. He did not. The battle was too near and he wanted his son love and loyalty. Attacking the Croyel now would be counterproductive. He had spent twenty minutes patiently calming his true son and teasing out the information he needed to see what had distressed the Croyel so.

He was able to finally ascertain what had put such fear in this son’s heart. The Forbidding had been invoked the full length of the Wall. It had flared to full life. Worse, from his son’s thoughts the Forbidding had been restored impossibly to full potency. It would in time weaken again but for the next years it would be as strong as it was when it was invoked.

It bothered the Ice King greatly that he had not sensed this in the least. He had come to accept that the magic that was birthed in the southern hemisphere of this world was beyond him. It was alien to his magic and he could not conquer or subsume it. He now knew that in many ways he could not even sense it.

When his true first son had come to him the Ice King had seen his might. He had thought to somehow take the magic of the Croyel and make it his own. He had quickly came to the conclusion that this was not possible. First, the Croyel was truly powerful. He would win a fight he was assured but the cost would be so prohibitive it would not have been worth it.

Second, the magic of the Croyel as was the case of this Forbidding was beyond his ability to overcome it. It was foreign to him to such a degree he could not deal with it.

With that knowledge the Ice King had instead made a union with his true son. He again reached back and petted his son on his misshapen head. His son purred in contentment. The Ice King had finally found a true son worthy of him.

He would protect his son.

One touch from the Wall would incinerate his true son now. He had to spend several hours calming his son and again over the logic of their plans. They would never even come near the Wall until they had already shattered and destroyed the Forbidding hidden in it. Gradually, he had again calmed and soothed his son. His son had calmed down.
The shattering of the Wall was now paramount. He would use the Horn of Winter. The Wall would come down.

The Ice King was thankful that his son’s unseemly actions had been far from the throne and his Ice Wright sons. They did not need to see his true son being so weak.

That had been yesterday. Today his son was back to his normal fears and bleatings that the Ice King had come to accept. His son was not as strong as he. The denizens of the Land and their Giant allies had rattled his little son. It was precious in a way the Ice King sighed. He was the Croyel’s true father and would protect his precious Croyel from all their foes. Let the father calm the child. It had a certain symmetry to it the Ice King thought.

The Croyel whimpered that their numbers of the denizens from the Land may be few but their strength was staggering. The Giants Blades were like the Valyrian swords that had cut him. They were fashioned by the strongest of magic. The dead would die from their blade cuts. His sons would die on their blades.

The Ice King was not disturbed. He was human once. He understood the loss of life in a campaign. One had to sacrifice forces to achieve a goal. He would lose some sons but he would have a whole continent of young babes and small boys to convert to new sons and all the time needed to raise them in his image. He would lose sons but would acquire a thousand time their numbers. He had the great strategic mind to see this. Lose today for much greater gain tomorrow.

He had seen the visions of his son when these visitors came to the land. They were only a handful. The Giants may be great but they were simply too few. No matter how mighty they were they would quickly be overwhelmed. They may kill by the score but they would fall. Maybe many would fall with the first strike of his expeditionary force when they were struck unawares. His strike force was led by some of his strongest and most aware of his adopted sons. They would see the greatest threats and cut them down. He was not worried.

The Haruchai were also few. The horses and the ones who tended them did not concern the Ice King in anyway. The dead could not have their necks broken again or limbs broken again. They felt no pain and were already dead.

The Lord was only one woman. All knew women were paltry things. Women only existed so men could use them for their needs. He was no longer prey to those needs. He did not share them anymore but he remembered his past prejudices with great clarity. He would make that woman suffer greatly if he fought her. The temerity to think she had power. It angered him greatly. All she had was a staff. It could only kill when you came in reach of her staff.

The Croyel had argued vociferously with the Ice King. The Croyel tried to explain to his father the danger of this Lord of Revelstone. He could see what his son saw in the here and now but he could not see the remembrances of his son. His mind was too alien for that. His true son kept saying that a Lord’s staff was a truly horrifying frightening weapon. She could shatter any of his adopted sons easily and destroy his dead by the hundreds at a time.

The Ice King merely benignly patted his son again humoring his son. His son in his fears greatly exaggerated this woman.

No, his Lord was not worth worrying over. This Lord was alone. More, this Lord was only a woman. She would be weak in the face of combat. She would wilt in the fire of combat. She was only a human and a woman on top of that. These Giants and Haruchai he could see were different but this Lord was only a woman. Maybe he would kill her personally.
He felt the echo of past times. Once he would have raped her first and then killed her. That desire was no more. He would be satisfied with killing this Lord in a most savage manner. He would make her scream for days before he killed her and then raised her to be part of his army of the walking dead. Maybe he would make her a personal attendant to carry his Horn of Winter. Let her work like a lowing cow.

He mused that the corpses of these denizens from the Southern half of the world would be mighty additions to his army. It would be interesting to see if these minions would prove formidable when serving him.

He reached back and petted his son’s bald knotted head. His son whimpered. His son begged his father to go back into the forest. He wanted to be far away from this Lord. He kept going on about the Seven Wards of High Lord Kevin. The new Lords had unlocked all their secrets. The Lords of Revelstone had relearned that powerful passions unlocked the potent power of the Old Lord’s magic.

Twenty thousand years ago a Croyel had found a flake of the Illearth Stone and taken the body of an Ungungliot. The body made of solid dense granite. It was a denizen of the deep. The being was an Ancient from the beginning of the world. It was said they were created when the Quirim were still young. All beings from the Ancient Age before man were mighty and dire. All the Croyel knew of the Quirim that had become She Who Must Be Named. She could have conquered the world if Lord Foul had not chained and enslaved her deep in the abyss.

She Who Must Not Be Named had lost her mind. The Ringwielder Linden Avery had foolishly bargained with the insane goddess. For some reason the Quirim had not taken over the world when Linden Avery freed her. She had left for some other dimension. The same dimension his brother had tried to travel to with Roger Covenant. Anele killed him. The Croyel still raged at his death.

The Ice King’s Croyel spoke of his brother from twenty thousand years ago. He had felt mighty beyond belief. Had not he joined with an Ungungliot. Did he not have in his possession a flake of the Illearth Stone? In his hands was not that the equivalent as a major fragment of the ancient bane. The flake bellowing green smoke full of magical import. Was his brother not himself mighty. The marriage a perfect trifecta of magical might. The Croyel’s brother would go to Revelstone and bring it down along with the High Council.

She Who Must Not Be Named had fled. His brother would not. He had gone to Revelstone to kill the hated High Council. He had died. The Croyel’s brothers had felt their brother being blasted apart. His mystical shields shattered. His body battered and the shattered into a million shards. His brother’s annihilation had been felt by every Croyel.

His son gibbered that the Lords were fearsome evil vile entities that needed to be killed! Killed! Killed!

The Croyel gibbered and actually drooled in his fright. The Ice King was forgiving of his son’s fear and plight. He could afford to let his son show weakness and fear when none could see it. With his true son tightly clinging to his body with his clawed hands and feet and his mouth clamped to his throat none could see by his jerking limbs and hot sucking mouth his terror. It was masked. His screams of terror were only in the Ice King’s mind.

The Ice King could not show his fears and show any weakness. The sons of Ice King were breed to hate weakness.

His sons were blindly obedient but they would turn on him if they sensed weakness. It is what he would have done if he were they. They were the reflection of their father in that way.
He walked slowly back to his throne in the deep glade. He was soon surrounded by his dead army. They stretched away into the distance far to the north. They stretched out like a sea of flotsam to the east and west. They would slam against the Wall like a howling cyclone and bring it down. Their numbers comforted him. They were his ground fodder. He would sacrifice his walking dead in great numbers to save his Ice Wrights and Ice Giants. They would take the brunt of the attack from his foes.

He walked on feeling the dead brush up against him. He did not have a vast army of the dead with him during his first conquest. It was a new power that slowly manifested itself as he grew and matured. He walked on seeing the blue eyes of the dead. They would be unstoppable. He would conquer the world with this army. The beauty of his power to raise the dead was that when he killed his foes he would replenish his losses. In fact with the slaughter of a major army, its support personal and the animals with the army would swell his army of the walking dead. He could afford any loss to his host of the walking dead. It would always be replenished with his assured victory.

The Ice King was moving back into the heart of his might. He saw his Ice Wright sons moving among the dead keeping them herded deep in the forest. He did not need to have them shambling out of the forest mindlessly. Their presence calling their enemy to attention. Even though he had calmed their compulsion to move forward the Walking Dead were mindless and would ramble around if not herded by his sons.

He moved on deeper into the forest. He was soon in his glade. He went and sat down on his throne. His son had settled down with their increasing distance from the Wall. As they walked on the Ice King went over his tactics that would defeat his enemies. They were brilliant. Of course they were. He had devised them and no one else. His victory was most assured.

He did not worry about his son. He was fearful but he too bought in totally with the plan their father had devised. It would succeed. Link by link his son began to form the new spell.

Soon all would be ready.

The Ice King pulled the Horn of Winter off from around his neck and ran his fingers up and down the ridges of the black horn. It was hard to believe that such a small horn could do so much damage.

He would thank these Insequent when he met them. He would thank them and then kill them.

In time he would kill all human life on the Earth. Only he deserved life. He was meant to rule. He had always been meant to rule.

Daenerys

The Queen walked before the Wall. Arya was by her side. She looked around and up at the Wall with general interest. To the Queen the Wall was primarily a tool to be used in the coming fight. She looked up at the impressive height of the Wall. Its height making even the Titan of Braavos look small in comparison. She reached out and touched the ice. Its blue hue pretty. There was no other word for it. The Wall gave off an impression of impossible strength. The feel of the Wall was absolute smoothness. Glass could be no smoother. Block by block the Wall had been constructed and yet it held no lines in it. It was if a Titan glass blower had formed the Wall whole at the birth of the world.

She had seen the Wall of course with her flights over upper Westeros. She had even landed on it briefly when she flew Bran Stark to his destiny at the Tree of Life. It had been fleeting though. This was her first real contact with the Wall. It was impressive.

Daenerys continued to run her hand over the ice. She was immune to the cold as she was to the fire. Her body heated by her dragon blood offset the bitter cold radiating off the wall. She felt something in the Wall. Was it magic? She did not know.

Arya looked at her with “are you kidding me look” watching her lover and the Giants especially reaching out and touching the Wall reverently.

With the Queen, was Braveheart Tillerkeel the First of the Quest and her second in command and wife Zephyrstar Forecastle. With them was the lead captain the Giant ships of the quest Saltheart Starchaser. Also with her was the Lord of the quest from the Land. Lustra had with her ever present Bloodguard and now lover Brail of the Haruchai. They had been walking the line of the Wall impressed by its mighty construction.

The Giants especially had been struck by the purity of the Walls construction. Their race were seafarers by trade and recourse but they had a natural instinct to build from stone. They had tried to convey to Daenerys the sublime beauty of Revelstone or the restored Coercie the Grieve on the Eastern shore of the Land. The beauty of the soaring towers and massive quays of their homeland.

Daenerys saw images of beauty in her mind but she was sure they paled compared to their true beauty. Daenerys thought the Wall was beautiful in appearance and tint but the Giants saw something more in it. They saw a perfection that surpassed mere construction. To them the Wall was also an expression of striving for perfection and having achieved that goal.

They touched the wall and placed their cheeks on the Wall. They would place their face near the Wall and looked down the line of the Wall. Daenerys was not sure what they saw. She had done the same thing and only saw a straight line that ran on for miles beyond the line of sight. The Giants had seen something that almost made them swoon.

Saltheart Starchaser had murmured “Perfection. Sheer Perfection.”

Arya perplexed, looked up at the Giants. Zephyrstar had her face almost pressed into the Wall her head moving up and down looking at the blue ice. What she was looking for Daenerys and Arya were not sure.

“What is so fascinating about the Wall?” Daenerys had asked the Giants. “I admit it is an engineering marvel. To be so high and so well built but it is only a Wall made of Ice. It did not start this high by the way. It was only three hundred feet high or so to begin with. It was added to slowly over the first several millennium of its creation.

Zephyrstar Forecastle turned her face from the wall and looked down at the human beside her. “A wall is only as good or as strong as its foundation. This Wall is perfect in every way that can be measured. We are masters at the forming of granite into habitations, armor, weapons, ships, furniture and all other facets of our lives. We know rock. This Ice is like the purest and noblest of granite from our quarries.”

“To have pure stone is one thing but to build perfect structures from blocks of ice is another thing altogether. We can perceive no flaw to the ice along this Wall’s base. It is like Revelstone. This Wall exceeds itself. The Ice is perfection as is the magic within the Wall.”

“How this was achieved in the manner it was constructed we do not know” Braveheart Tillerkeel spoke looking down at the Queen and Arya. “When our builders, shipwrights and armorers craft their ships, implements, swords they do so by flowing the stone into the shape they desire. This Wall was constructed so that it flows inward beyond eyesight from one side to the next. This Wall is sheer perfection in all axis and quadrants. How this was done in the manner it was risen up we do not comprehend. To make perfection one block at a time is beyond us. The magic required was substantial.”

Arya looked at the Queen and the Wall. Daenerys peered at the Wall harder. She could see the perfection of the construction of the Wall if not this “perfect” nature of it. But she could not see any magic in it. She was a warrior and not a sorcery.

“What would you have magic in a Wall? It is a barrier. It was constructed to keep physical beings on the other side away from human habitation on this side of the Wall. I have read that magic existed during the Age of Heroes. It has sadly been lost to us in this age.”

Arya reminded her that the Wildling normally lived above the Wall.

This made the Queen pause. She wondered again why the Wildlings were considered such a threat. Why had it always been so. Was it merely because they would not bend the knee? They refused to assimilate as most people did when they were conquered? A process that over time usually blended the defeated and conquerors into a people that became one where there had been two.

No one had been able to explain this schism to her.

“The Wall has stood for eight thousand years so I suppose this magic helps in that” Daenerys mused out loud. “Was it used in its construction I wonder? Legend says so though the Maesters dispute this.”

Arya spoke up. “The actual construction of the Wall was done by masons of stone and ice. I have read the Maesters dispute if the base of the Wall was made of stone but we in the North know it is so. It was in this stone that much of the magic in the Wall was wrought. We do not know what the magic was for but there was magic. After the foundation was laid the builders of the Watch and the Wall used sledges to transport ice cut from frozen lakes in the haunted forest.”

“This was done quickly according to legend. The Wall was built by Brandon the Builder one of the founders of the line of Stark. He had the assistance of Children of the Forest and giants. Deep in its core, the Wall is protected with ancient spells and sorcery of great mages. It is said that a mighty mage of some sort came to assist in its initial construction. We do not have any legend to say where this sorcerer came from though” Arya told Daenerys.

“I know the Maesters discount the magic in the world and tell us it is not so. But we in the North do not forget. A great magi came to the Heroes in that long ago age and helped fight the great fell beasts and Ice Wrights of that dark time.”

“He was said to have a staff much like yours Lustra. It was capped in iron but was covered in runes that covered the wood from top to bottom. The runes were said to be part of the wood. They were not carved or burned into the wood. It was as if they had been formed into the wood itself somehow.”

Lustra who had been studying the Wall curiously suddenly turned and looked at Arya with large eyes. Daenerys watched the Lord walking over quickly to them. Daenerys was unnerved seeing the Haruchai subtly tilt to the balls of their feet. Her own Haruchai were also poised for combat. She knew they took their vow to her security as sacrosanct so it unnerved Daenerys greatly his change in attitude. She had come to think of the Haruchai as granite. Unchangeable.

If she had not spent the past several months with them the Queen would not have been aware of the subtle change in the demeanor of the Haruchai. They were on the cusp of action. Daenerys could not understand the reason for the tension in the Haruchai. Brail had come up to Lustra’s shoulder. She now moved to get in front of Lustra. The other Haruchai had moved back slightly. Jeertel, Seregrom and Bannor watched Arya intently.

Lustra was becoming upset.

“Stand down Brail! They are not a threat!”

The Haruchai paused and then stepped back. Their bodies did not relax though.

“She cannot know of the Staff of Law. It is of the Land. We know a Croyel walks this land” Brail told the Lord flatly.

“Do you see any harm in her!” the Lord asked exasperated.

“We are Haruchai. We know caution.”

The Lord sighed. She gripped her staff hard and placed her forehead on it for a moment. Daenerys had heard of counting to seven and thought the Lord was doing that now. She removed her forehead from the staff and turned to look at Brail. “Do you love me Brail?”

“Yes” Brail said immediately and in a tone that broke no argument though the voice was flat. The First of the Haruchai face was impassive and her body betrayed no emotion.

“Then trust the woman you love.” Brail looked at her for a second and then the Haruchai fell back to their original positions. The crisis had passed.

“What was that all about?!” Daenerys spoke up. She was furious that the Haruchai would dare think her Arya was ever a threat!

Arya gripped her shoulder. “It is okay Dany. They are supposed to protect their Lord above all else. I trust them and so do you. I am no threat Jeertel.”

The taciturn Haruchai looked at Arya “I know you are not Arya. We only err on the side of caution. We have not acted in the past when we were not sure. We believed High Lord Kevin when he went to do the Ritual of Desecration with Lord Foul. Much was lost. We should have been there to oppose them both. We do not wish to make that mistake again.”

The Lord was speaking to Brail “You would have been slaughtered Brail. You know that.”

Brail regarded her lover with flat eyes. She bowed fractionally. “Perhaps. Maybe even likely. Still, we should have been there to strike a blow for the Land.”

“I can see that Brail. Has your race ever fully forgiven yourselves for something you could not change?”

“No” was the absolute answer.

Lustra sighed. The past she could not contend with the Queen could see in her face and carriage. Lustra turned to Arya.

“How is it you know of a Staff of Law? It is clear that is what you describe. The original was destroyed. It looked exactly as you describe. A new one was formed with the perfect synthesis of Ur-vile lore through their construct Vain and the sacrifice of Findail the Elohim. It is perfectly smooth with no blemish. It looks like polished stone in its perfection.”

“Thirty thousand years ago Sumetra journeyed to the One Tree. Instead of taking he asked the One Tree for a limb. The request was granted. The Worm of the World’s End was not roused. The Council formed the Staff of Law the High Lord uses now in Revelstone. This one had its runes etched by Elena Covenant the Forestal of Garroting Deep.”

“Since the wood was not taken through travail the new Staff of Law of Revelstone is smooth too as the one formed from Vain and Findail.”

“We have no lore of a fourth Staff of Law being formed. We did not feel its creation.”

“I do not of any Staff of Law” Arya answered. “That was eight thousand years ago and remembered only in family lore.”

“How tall was the staff? Was it taller than mine?” The lord held out her staff. “Was it shod with iron on both ends?” It was approximately six feet tall.

Arya paused remembering the family lore and stories of old Nan.

“I am not sure. I think it was taller though. Just an impression from the stories and how they were told to me. It was said to look like a normal wooden staff except for the runes on it. The runes that were carved into the wood and yet had no depth. The iron bands on the ends of the staff had fluted columns up the iron endcaps. That is recorded somewhere I think.”

The Lord paused looking at Arya. She breathed out. “That is the description of the two Staff of Laws formed by Lords of Revelstone. But that is impossible. Jeremy’s Staff of law was formed by the merging of Findel and Vain. The new Staff of law from the One Tree was formed roughly fifteen thousand years later. It has always been in the possession of the High Lord of the Council of Revelstone. Was the man from your Westeros?”

“The stories only say he was a sorcerer who journeyed to us from a foreign land” Arya answered.

The Lord walked back to the Wall and studied it again. The small group stood around her in a semi-circle watching the Lord of Revelstone inspect the Wall.

The Lord took her staff and murmured in the language of the Old Lords. Then in a violent motion she cocked her staff over her shoulder and swung her staff so the iron shod end slammed against the ice wall of the Wall. The iron on ice rang out wildly with a shrill reverberating scream.

Daenerys and Arya gasped stepping back several feet. Soundlessly the Wall had exploded into dark blue light that rippled and rolled from the base of the Wall to the very top. The source shimmered out from the core of the Wall. The undulation of magical power rolling down the Wall east and west as far as the eye could sigh. As the first modulations of magic faded out new ones rippled out from the core of the Wall. All instinctively knew the entire Wall had taken on the blue rippling caste. The wall rippled and seemed to flex with power. All this was without a sound.

For a minute the entire Wall seemed to be alive with eldritch magic. The air seemed to be filled with static electricity and the smell of ozone was thick in the air. Then over the next minute the Wall’s shimmering slowly faded and then was gone.

“A Forbidding” Brail announced softly. Daenerys saw a slight look of wonder on the woman’s face. “It is definitely from the Staff of Law.” Lustra looked at her Haruchai lover.
“What is this Forbidding?” Daenerys asked.

“It is a magical spell designed to prevent passage. This one is exceedingly powerful and ancient. I can see that the Forbidding is anchored to magical waypoints. These waypoints are in the original blocks of stone used to anchor the wall. The power in this Forbidding is awe inspiring. Only a Staff of Law could have erected such a Forbidding. It rides from one end of the Wall to the other.”

“The Forbidding has been mystically fused to another form of magic. One that is different than ours. It has kept the forbidding tuned and alive for over eight thousand years. This forbidding is different than the ones we create” Lustra said.

“It is refined. It is tuned to corrupted forms of Earthpower. Like the Croyel that feds on the Ice King. How could have Bran the Builder known of a Croyel? Whoever possessed this unknown Staff of Law did not tune it to the Ice King but to entities from the Land. That means he came from our world.”

The lord looked up at the Wall. “Why? Our lore says that Soulbiter and Soulcrusher prevent such passage of beings like the Croyel. Obviously our lore is mistaken.” The Lord touched the Wall. There was no reaction by the Forbidding.

“The Forbidding while still strong had frayed. It had …” the Lord of Revelstone searched for the right word “lost its focus. I have restored that focus. If the Croyel in any way touches the Wall it will die. The Croyel are symbiotic parasites that reside on the bodies of their hosts. Even if this host thinks to shield the Croyel by carrying it the Forbidding will sense it and destroy both entities.”

Lustra shook her head in wonder “This Forbidding surpasses anything I have ever seen. To be alive eight thousand years after its creation. Only High Lord Kevin could achieve such purity and power. I am humbled.”

“I wonder of the other magic that has married itself to the Forbidding. Can you tell me of it Arya Stark” the Lord asked the teenager.

“I cannot I fear” was Arya’s humble response.

“The pity” the Lord answered and wandered off lost in thought. Brail at her shoulder.

The whole camp was abuzz over the Wall’s sudden alighting with blue fire buried within it. There was milling around but the camp was already returning to normal with no new displays of magical pyrotechnics.

Daenerys did not have the answer to mysteries from eight thousand years ago. She was only concerned with the here and now. She was focused on fighting and defeating the current threat of the reincarnated Ice King and his unholy alliance with the Croyel. She would have the Maesters study this. She would have to make sure to find Maesters that were free of their dogma against magic.

Dany looked up at the Wall again. Jon had pulled his forces down off the Wall. She had sent Rhaegal and Viserion down the Wall in opposite directions flying low below the wall. The dragons and their riders’ first flying south till out of sight and only then winging back to the Wall beyond the eye sight of the traitors of House Frey and Bolton. There would be no reports back to the Ice King. The dragons had flown with Strong Belwas and Barristan on their backs. The men had dropped off scrolls from the Night Commander and from the Queen at each Fort. The dragons flying out to the Shadow Tower in the west and Eastwatch to the East. The Crows and Wildlings ordered to come off the Wall.
She had gone up on the Wall the night of her arrival at the Wall. The Queen had made the laborious trip up the spinning basket. The swaying in the wind unsettling. Normally when she was alight she had full control of her flight. Not here though. She was happy to reach the top.

She had been impressed with what she saw. If the Wall did indeed stay up the forces of Westeros would rain death upon forces of the Ice King. The top of the Wall was filled with catapults and trebuchets. Jon had put in a line along the whole of the front face of the Wall with Iron and hardwood shields. She shields were tall with slits cut in to allow archers to let fly dragon glass arrows while the machines would hurl fire down among the advancing hordes.

What the Queen liked was that the bulwarks were high. The enemy would not be able to see that they had pulled their forces off the Wall. She wanted the Ice King to feel the Crows were still on the Wall. If he thought that the Ice King would continue forward with his plans.

She looked out in the moonlight towards the Haunted Forest. It was nearly two miles to the Haunted Forest in front of Castle Black’s position. A nice killing field. The Ice King’s walking dead were relentless in their pursuit of achieving death to those they sought but they were extremely slow. They seemed to have supernatural strength but it was their continuous assault and not turning aside no matter their new wounds that made them so unnerving and a force to be reckoned with.

No more. With fire and Dragon Glass the Queen’s forces would devastate this Walking Dead.

Whatever the Ice King had devised she wanted it to occur sooner than later. The forces of Westeros were finely honed and ready to be used. Eddard and she had made the forces of Westeros into a Valyrian steel sword. They would slaughter the forces of the Ice King and then the Ice King himself.

For hours the Queen looked out over the snow covered ground. The Ice King was there. Somewhere. The overflights of her dragons told the Queen he was still far distant. Her instincts told her another tale. He was near. She could feel it. It did not matter if the Wall was up or brought down. It would still be a massive barrier. A barrier she would use to rain death down on his slow moving forces. She had two miles of killing space. She planned on using every inch of it.

The sun had risen now off her right shoulder. It was time to go back down.

Satisfied the Queen rode the swaying nauseating basket back down to the ground seven hundred feet below. With a slow deliberate step the Queen walked away from the Wall. She looked out over the massive camp of her forces. They stretched for miles to the west and east and were several miles deep. She had them in organized camps with wide thoroughfares between the camp tents. Her forces would be able to move very quickly to the Wall if necessary.

The Queen looked around. She saw armed formation practicing group formations. She witnessed knights fighting one and one. She saw archery ranges filled with archers honing their skills. The practice arrows firing continuously.

The traitorous houses of Frey and Bolton were up against a creek that ran down from the west two miles from the Wall. The creek was in a gully that ran eight feet deep to the water below. The gulley was ten to fifteen feet wide. The walls to the gully severe on both sides. The water of the gulley itself was at least ten feet deep. This site had been chosen because it hemmed in the traitors. Their movements would be limited. They would only be able to move forward and not retreat to make flanking movements. The traitors could only move forward. Forward into defenses secretly risen up against them.

She had put the Houses of Drone on the right flank and the some of the Stormlands on the left flank.
The area in front of the traitors was filled with her Unsullied. She had brought seventy-five hundred of her Unsullied with her. She had put six thousand of them in front of the traitors. Their iron discipline would allow them to form up at a moment’s notice. She had Worm Tail select his best captains to put in charge of these men. They had the authority to call their forces into line and form up their phalanxes at their discretion.

In all her campaigns across Essos they had never let her down. Their commanders’ judgements sound and rock solid. She trusted them implicitly.

The Dorne and the Stormlands men were the most martial and would also form up the quickest. They would be able to from combat formations with great haste in case of emergency. She would not have the traitors fall on her forces unawares. She wanted the traitors to show themselves. Both Houses had been able to survive for generations despite their dissipation and vile morals. Their true evilness hidden. Soon they would expose their degeneracy and be put down.

They would expose themselves and in doing so she would be able to smash them. Their leadership eviscerated and new nobles installed.

The two traitorous Houses would be able to put on the field maybe three thousand knights. Her Unsullied would be able to handle that number of knights easily. Their phalanxes and lances would impale and decimate the Horse of House Frey and Bolton with any horse charge they might be able to mount. The men of Dorne and Stormlands were excellent on horse and would fall on their flanks.

The Queen had several mercenary companies interspersed with the forces of Westeros near the traitors. These two companies the Falcons and the Screaming Shrikes were famous in Essos for their skill with their bows. These were roughly four thousand men and women. They were stationed closer to the traitorous houses. She had several wide lanes in front of them to allow them to move toward the Wall quickly if necessary.

The archers positioned to counterattack the traitorous houses when they revealed their black hearts and nefarious intentions. Still, the Queen had lanes setup to allow them to come to the front lines quickly if some greater need came up.

She had stockpiles of dragon glass weapons all around her camp. She wanted her men quickly armed with obsidian when necessary. The only place where no obsidian had been put out was with the two traitorous Houses. They had been put into an information midnight. The House of Frey and Bolton were fed false information that made no mention of obsidian. The reports designed to make the two Houses think the Queen’s forces were slack and ill prepared to meet the Ice King. The two Houses were guarded and did not know it. The leaders of the traitorous Houses naturally wanted to keep to themselves if at all possible. They were traitors after all.

The Queen did not know if the traitors were still able to communicate with the Ice King. To have formed their alliance with the ill King, they had clearly had past communication with the Wright. The traitors were being watched closely. No ravens had been sent by them. Jon Snow had ordered that all communication to forces outside of the Castle Black area to cease. Most of the Houses had no ravens anyways. They were too far from their homes for the Ravens to know their way back to their roosts. If the traitors had a more magical means of communication the Queen did not know of them. Thus, the lack of information given to the traitors. The Ice King could not come to know that his foes were armed to the teeth with obsidian glass.

This was their trump card. The Queen smiled to herself. When obsidian started to rain down his forces the Ice King would be shocked. She wished she could see his face when the realization hit him.
The Queen had the Dragon Glass weapons hidden among the iron tipped weapons. The beauty of arrows they were placed weapon tip first into their quivers. Her Unsullied kept continuous watch over the traitors and made sure that no archers showed their arrows to the traitors. Unless the leaders of the traitors were looking for such weapons they would never know they were in the camp. They probably would not even grasp the importance of the weapons.

The Queen would crush the vermin of House Bolton and Frey when the time came.

The forces of the Land were to be kept as a reserve force. They were as powerful as large companies of knights and wanted to use them where she could get the most benefit from their weapons and strength. The Giants with magical swords would most probably have the same effect on the dead as Valyrian steel. Their enormous swords would cleave through the dead like a scythe through ripe wheat.

The Haruchai would be able to smash and break the limbs of the dead and make them slow and clumsy. They were so fast the Ice Wrights would not be fast to them. She wondered what their strength would do against the Ice Wrights.

The Ramen were fierce warriors but was not quite sure how to use the four Ramen. They were so few.

The Lord she was still not sure about. She did not seem to have any great power that she could see. The woman must be a like a war shaman that guided her companions. She hoped that Lustra would not need too much defending.

The Dragon Queen was not quite sure why the denizens of the Land were so differential to the Lord of Revelstone. Daenerys smirked. Well, she could understand Brail. She now had to live with the woman as a lover. The Lord had definitely lost her sour face. Love and lots of pussy would do that for a woman Daenerys snickered to herself.

Her thoughts returned from such carnal thoughts. She had her logistical forces in the middle of Highgarden with their large numbers of warriors to protect them. The Queen was not worried by large formations of moving troops with her enemy. The enemy would not be moving in fast large formations. The enemy would try and envelop them with their sheer numbers. The walking dead moved slow but they did not waver and simply moved forward till they could reach their enemy and rend them limb from limb.

That could not be said for the Ice creatures in the Ice King’s army. The ice wrights were very dangerous with their magical ice blades. They were fast and strong. They were not inhumanely strong but they were as strong as a well-conditioned knight of at least normal height. It was their blades that gave them their great advantage.

Word from the Crows and Wildlings made it clear the icy blue blades of the Ice Wrights and Giants were too much for normal steel. Normal steel was quickly fatigued and became brittle. The Ice Wrights blades soon shattered the steel of their foes.

The Ice Wrights were fast and strong but not overly so. If a warrior was armed with the proper weapon then the fight might be fairly even. The Ice Wrights had another advantage. They did not seem to tire. Fortunately, she had plenty of warriors. They would not overwhelm her forces.

She planned on her obsidian arrows, spears and javelins to kill many of them at distance. Some would be armored but iron tipped weapons would shatter the ice armor. The iron mystically enhanced by Jon’s wives. It would take time to break their ice armor down but the air would be thick with arrows.
She hoped to meet their charge with herself and the High Lords she had armed with Valyrian steel. The Giants with their magical greives would sow death all around.

She saw her dragons flying high up in the air riding the high thermals. The dragons conserving their strength. She had brought a large herd of aurochs to keep her dragons fed without expending energy in the hunt. The dragons wanted to be a wing as much as possible. She had them flying in pairs at night up high away from the wall. Their great height allowed them to see down beyond the Wall and stay out of the range of any weapons they Ice King may have.

The Ice King had propensity to attack at night. She had her dragons aloft watching with their heat and in this case cold vision. During the day the dragons fed and rested.

If the Ice King attacked during the day his immense slow moving army would be seen. She had a small company of men on the wall watching over the empty land up to the tree line two miles distant. She would send up her dragons at the first sign of danger to not waste a single life. The men were moving around on the top of the Wall. Occasionally showing themselves through breaks in the shield wall. They also moved the straw dummies around that were positioned in cracks in the shield wall to be seen. The dummies dressed in Crow blacks and Wildling gear. Slight adjustments were made to the war machines to move slightly as if being setup to better firing angles. The movements seen. To the observers far below they would definitely think the Wall was manned.

Once the warriors were removed from the Wall her dragons would fly up high and seek the airborne threat. She knew the Ice King had an airborne threat. The two wives of Jon Snow had almost paid with their lives from it. It had not been fire that attacked the women’s magical phoenix. It had been freezing ice that had attacked the ShadowBender wives instead of fire.

Surely, it would appear at the time of the assault. Once it was dealt with then her dragons would burn the Walking Dead on the margins. She wanted to deny the Ice King the weight of his dead. She would take care of the Ice Wrights and Giants with her army.

Daenerys had her fears as to what had attacked the women. She did not know what could have been done to produce the monstrosity but she was sure deep in her guts what she faced. Still it was only one and she had her three dragons. They would kill the perversion and then be free to sweep down on the enemy. They would attack the flanks of the enemy and burn the dead down. This should keep them away from any scorpion types of bolts or any ice weapons of the Wrights or their King.

She had learned her lesson on the Dothraki Sea. Rhaenys Targaryen had learned the lesson at the cost of her life.

She thought the enemy would attack at night. So did Eddard and Jon as did most of her generals. The legends said that the Ice Wrights always attacked at night. Their recent behavior said the same. Her forces were on a twelve/twelve shift but the numbers were skewed towards more of her forces being up at night.

She had tried to keep the number near fifty percent. That was simply not possible. She had to weight the possibilities and that said the Ice Wright would attack at night. Their vision was tuned to the night but she had enough oil pits and trenches cut into the fields filled with oil to alight during the attack to burn throughout the night. The fires providing illumination and fires to drive the dead into.

Oberyn argued that since all knew the Ice wrights would attack at night he thought they would attack during the day. Wear out the enemy and finish them off during the next night fall.

Daenerys saw the logic in Oberyn’s reasoned thoughts. She had to make a choice and she had to choose the most probable attack. She should have enough time no matter which course the Ice King followed to devastate the enemy as they approached. If the Wall stayed up the enemy would force their way through the tunnels at the base of the Wall. They would pour fire into the tunnels to burn the dead and rain obsidian on their forces from murder holes and at their two entrances if possible. Any that emerged through the tunnels on the Castle Black side would quickly be cut down.

If the Wall came down their archers would kill the dead as they haphazardly stumbled and fell through the ice blocks, boulders and shards. The walking dead had a hard enough navigating their environment when it was smooth and obstacle free. They would only be able to attack as a straggle. Her dragons could see in the dark as well as the day. They would burn.

The Queen was prepared as she could be. She had to let the Ice King make the first move. He had devoid the Haunted Forest of all humans. It had become his domain. No, she would not go to him. He would come to her and thus ensure his defeat. His aggression would be the first step in his downfall. She would show the patience to wait her foe out. She would not come to his kingdom.

Jon’s wives had been studying the flames intently. They reported to Jon that the attack would commence soon. The Ice King was here. They had no proof physical proof to back up their visions though. The Queen needed actionable intelligence to act on. As they approached the Wall on the last day of their march, she sent her dragons up to the Fist of the First Men for one last reconnaissance. Their eyesight reported the same. The enormous army of the Dead was still at the site. Ice Wrights clearly moving in their midst.

Her dragon’s vision was acute. The force of the Ice King was still there. With the slow shambling pace of his dead it would take more than a month for his army to even begin to form up before the Wall having to march aimlessly through the thick forest of trees of the Haunted Forest.

It was maddening. Her senses told her that her enemy was far away and her intuition told her he was near. She trusted her instincts. The battle would be soon. No matter what her senses tried to tell her. She would keep her guard up. She and Eddard each day kept their forces training. Archers fired at butts. Swordsmen practiced their craft. The foot soldiers practiced forming up phalanxes to keep the walking dead and Ice Wrights away from the forces of Westeros while Dragon Glass cut their foes down.

Drogon came spiraling down to Earth. He landed before the camps leading edge facing the Wall. The Queen walked over quickly to meet her largest son. He saw her coming and trumpeted loudly. Arya and the Queen went up to Drogon. He was clearly agitated. They both petted the great black dragon. He accepted their affection but he was clearly still upset.

This too bothered both her and Arya. The Direwolves and her dragons had started getting anxious yesterday. For a lack of a better world the animals had become “jittery”. The animals were snapping at each other and anyone who came near but their masters or riders. Drogon was stepping from foot to foot looking around with his red smoldering eyes. His tails swished from side to side. His head constantly scanning the fields around the large encampment.

Nymeria came up to Arya whining. Her tail was down and her shoulder girdle hair up on end. A clear sign to the Queen that the Direwolf was upset and on guard.

The Haruchai had fanned out ten miles around the camp. They reported back to Brail that they spotted nothing ill. But they were like the dragons and Direwolves. The Queen had heard enough times now the phrase of the Haruchai “We know caution.” The Haruchai too sensed something was wrong. The environment had become unsettled.

Something evil this was coming the Queen thought to herself.
“We sense great evil near but we cannot find it. We know something evil is coming but we cannot discern its location. Our vision is clouded. We find this troubling” Bannor told the Dragon Queen.

Daenerys looked up at the Wall. She looked around her camp and beyond to the edge of her vision. All looked normal. It must be that the magical inclined animals sensed the approaching evil on the other side of the Wall. The enemy was indeed close. The fact that the Haruchai sensed the evil too did not surprise the Queen. She has happy they were on guard protecting herself and her army.

The Haruchai rode their Ranyhyn constantly on patrol. The Haruchai and Ranyhyn did not need to rest like humans and regular horses did. Ranyhyn and Haruchai had endurance that far exceeded that of normal men and horses. They continued to patrol for what so far eluded them.

The Queen looked out over her immense camp. Nothing could be approaching unseen and yet she feared that was just what was happening.

The Lord of Revelstone came up to her. “I feel the evil of the Croyel. He is near.” She looked at the three dragons now on the ground. All were agitated. Barristan and Strong Belwas were comforting their dragons.

A thought occurred to Daenerys. She asked the Queen of invisibility spells. Lustra had looked at her strangely.

“How would that possible? We have never seen such a spell.”

That allayed that fear of the Queen.

She had raised these fears with Eddard and his children with Margaery and Missandei. She had with her the High Lords she knew she could depend on: Stannis and Renly Baratheon, Oberyn. They all came to the same conclusion. It was folly to meet the enemy on his battlefield. They simply had to wait. And yes, they all agreed that the enemy was near. They had no proof but all felt it in their bones.

That made the Queen feel much better. They felt what she felt. She had talked to the Lord Lustra about this feeling of dread that she felt. The Lord of Revelstone felt the enemy was near also. She told the Queen the evil was so pervasive now that it almost overwhelmed the forces of the Land’s denizen’s ability to discern any one threat. She felt some force clouding their perceptions. She feared it was the work of the Croyel but she could not pierce the veil that evil spawn may have risen. She felt she should be able to pierce its magic but she did not have the key.

“It is strange. This pervasive feeling of evil. It seems closer than my senses tell me. I will admit that we have not faced the type of army you are facing. With the defeat of Lord Foul such armies are not raised anymore. Our battles are smaller. Lord Mhorma was the last to face an army such as we face now. It must be overwhelming our Land Sense. Also, having the thorn of the traitors in our midst must be clouding our vision.”

So, the Queen had seen that all knew evil was near. She would just have to wait for the attack. Whenever it came.

She had come to trust the power and insight of her dragons. If they reported the forces of the Ice King were at the Fist of the First Men then they must be. Men’s minds could be touched and bent by beings of magical import. The dragons were like the Giants and Haruchai. None of those races had ever been taken by a Raver without great magic. Men were not like that. Their wills could be bent. The dragons were iron willed. They could not have their minds clouded.
The Queen did what any good general did when faced with a force that had the tactical advantage. She prepared and waited. She would annihilate them when they attacked.

She was prepared.

Eddard

Eddard pushed back the flap to his tent and stepped outside with the sun rising over the horizon. He stretched and breathed in the cold air. He loved the chill that filled his lungs. He was of the North and cherished the cold and the wildness of his land. He looked at the Wall that was before him. Its seven hundred foot height imposing being so close it. He had erected his tent on the north side of the encampment to be near the Wall.

He had chosen the site to be near the Wall in case he needed to be ready to fight. He wanted to be on the front line of any conflict. He was positioned to do just that. He was the Warden of the North and he would defend his home with his dying breath if necessary.

There was another reason for this choice of location. The Queen had put her tent up in the center of the encampment to let her royal personage be in the middle of the Westeros forces. She needed to be seen by as many of her subjects as possible. The Queen wanted to be seen as sharing in the burden she was asking her subject to accept and endure.

If the Queen had chosen to erect her tent in this location then Eddard would most definitely now pitch his tent in that area. He really had no choice in the matter. He was not a young man anymore. He needed his rest! He had carefully scanned the location around the camp. He had surveyed the sites furthest away from the Queen’s royal tent with her three headed dragon standard proudly flapping off the center tent post. It was good one of his choices had allowed him to be near the Wall.

Eddard knew where the Queen went there too went his two daughters as well. One near because of love and the other near to be of service to the Queen of Westeros. Sansa’s royal wagon would be near the Queen’s tent. The Queen wanted her close advisors at her side and Eddard was very pleased with that. Of course Arya was her wife to be and would be in the tent of the Queen. Sansa was a trusted advisor that the Queen relied on to make sure her supplies and men were moved where they needed to be when they needed to be there.

Missandei was also a trusted advisor that was near the Queen always. Eddard was pleased to see that the camp had been laid out in such a way that the High Lords were located near the Queen also. Eddard was the one High Lord who had not positioned his tent near the Queen’s tent. He had not been asked but his answer would have been that he needed to be near the Wall. He was the Warden of the North. His place was at the Wall. He needed to be the tip of the spear.

He smirked. He had absolutely needed to get away from the Love Shacks. Eddard could not think of another term to call the antics that had been occurring. He had been so tired when they arrived at the Wall. He had slept like a baby since they had arrived at the Wall. He felt refreshed and invigorated. It was amazing how much better he felt and how much more clear headed he was now that he was able to get a full night sleep.

He made a sour face. Of course as soon as he pitched his tent away from the Queen it seemed that the noise level had gone way down. He just could not win. He chuckled. It was not really such a bad problem. He was happy that his daughters were so happy and in love. He looked at Missandei’s wagon. He wished her lady love would come to her. He had learned of her sought after love. She Who Must Not Be Named. What a name. He hoped the woman was wise in her choice of mates.

What did it mean to love a goddess? He knew he had met this woman that Missandei loved. That had been the woman he met in the glade. The people from the Land said that She Who Must Not Be Named was evil. They were all sure of their assessment. He knew this was most definitely not the case. The woman from the glade was not that. She was clearly most strange but she was not evil.

The Power he had seen that night still filled him with wonder and maybe a slight touch of dread. He wondered what would happen if She Who Must Not Be Named and the Ice King fought each other. He was just happy she had not chosen to align with the Ice King or dispose of him and herself try and take over the world.

He walked away from his tent and walked towards the Wall. He saw Jon walking in the marge that had been setup between the Wall and the forces of Westeros. Ghost was by his side walking along silently. The Direwolf rubbing up against his human familiar. Jon had his sword on his back like he did. Eddard smiled at that. Like father like son. That thought pleased Eddard deeply.

Eddard was so proud of his son. He had taken the Nights Watch that was falling apart and reinvigorated it. He had fought in many battles and proved himself over and over as a great fighter and cagy tactician. Eddard was equally proud of the compassion that his son had shown the Wildlings. Eddard knew many would have let them all die. They would not have opened the tunnels beneath the Wall to the refugees from the depredations of the Ice King.

It had nearly cost Jon his life. If had not found the love of two ancient ShadowBender witches he would have been killed by his own command. They had saved Jon’s life. Jon had been changed by his experiences but was still serving nobly as the Lord Commander of the Nights Watch.

He walked up to Jon and fell in beside his son.

“Father.”

“Son.”

The two waked in companionable silence for several minutes. The men looked at the Wall, Castle Black and the mighty forces arrayed against the evil of the Ice King.

“You did well with the Nights Watch son. I wished you had sent me a raven when they turned on you.”

“And you would have come north and waged war on them. You would have broken them. Shattered what still remained. No father. I was able to kill just the persons who led the revolt. I did not even kill all of those. No father. You follow the letter of the Law just a little too much. I still remember that man you executed for deserting the Night Watch. We know now why he lost nerve. He did not deserve death father.”

Eddard listened to his son’s words. He did not agree with his son but he had learned that many of his actions could have been done differently. He had killed so many good men. He had helped put a man on the Iron Throne that in no way deserved to sit on that Iron Throne. Then he allowed that man to remain on that seat of power.

“I think I did right my son. I have done many things that seemed right at the time. Now, with years to reflect on those events I have my doubts. Maybe that man did not deserve death.” He took a deep breath. The man had broken his vows. Could you trust such a man to not harm others if he broke his vows? He would never break his vows. He looked askance at Jon. He had broken his vows. Eddard sighed. It made it very difficult for Eddard to understand others who did break their oaths.

“Do you plan on abolishing the vows of the Nights Watch son?”

“I will suggest it. The Vows keep many men away. Forcing a man to give up love and supposedly sex is too much father. I get tired of seeing men breaking their vows of chastity. It is a cruel burden to ask humans to give up their sexuality. Asking me to ask them to give up their old life is cruel too.”

“I understand that giving an oath to something greater than yourself is a noble thing. But father, we do not have the nobles and the well to do volunteering to be in the Nights Watch. No. Westeros sends us the dregs of society against their will to add to the sin. I grow tired of it.”

“I think Dorne has the right of it. Having a trained military force cycling through on tours of duty. Having men serve here for two to four years and then allowing them to return to their lives. We do not live in the Age of Heroes. Men will not give up their lives in this time father. We need to find a new way.”

“I hear what you are saying about the Nights Watch” Eddard replied to his son. “My brother Benjen came here and so did you but I know you both did so not because of purely noble desires to serve. The Nights Watch is indeed dying. I agree that a new way must be found.”

“I can also understand you compassion son towards the Wildlings. It is commendable. I fear the decisions I may have made regarding the Wildlings. I hear you spent time among them. It softened you towards them.”

Jon started to protest. Eddard held up his hand asking his son to let him continue. Jon controlled himself and let his father continue uninterrupted.

“As I was saying it softened you towards them. This is a good thing son. It allowed you to see them as a people. I fear I see them as only as the traditional threat. I can see in Ygritte that was, and is, a simplistic view. I see Wildlings functioning well with the Nights Watch. They are performing as well as the Crows in service to the Wall. They are not causing any problems and integrating with the people below the Wall. I guess you have seen some of your Brothers consorting with Wildling women.”

“Yes father. They have my blessing. I do not give public support or condemnation, but, in my heart I support them. I repeat again these vows of chastity that men and women take are foolish. One can serve and still have a life. The Wildlings are performing well without any vows of chastity.”

Eddard smiled his half smile. “That is how you met Ygritte is it not Jon? Spying on them?”

Jon did not blink and actually smiled. “Actually she was the aggressor father. I did try to follow my vows. I am sure you would not have forsaken your vows but I was not that strong. You are truly one in a million father.”

Eddard blushed now. “No son. I am just a man who is stumbling from one event and crisis to the next trying to do the best he can do. To make the right decision and show as much compassion as I can. You surpass me in that son.”

Eddard looked his son in his now lilac eyes. “It was your personality and honor that captured Ygritte’s heart. That led you to Melisandre. That led them to helping the forces of Westeros. Their service to you and to Westeros has been invaluable. Also, I will never forget your two wives came to my wife in her hour of need.”
Eddard considered. “Son, remember one thing about the Nights Watch. Having the men take their vows and having the men separate themselves from their old lives. If frees them from their old lives. It frees them from the politics of their old Houses. You plan will cause them to now be influenced by the politics and intrigues of Iron Throne and the Great Houses.”

“The Nights Watch is free of that. The North is free of the wrangling that you see in the South. Daenerys Targaryen seems like she will put this wrangling and backstabbing to an end. But son, her reign will one day end. What will replace it? Thus, I fear to say what the future may portend. Consider this Jon. What if Tywin Lannister sat on the throne son? Remember those considerations in your deliberations son.”

Jon looked at him and gave his father a grimace smile. Eddard smiled seeing Jon mimic a smile Eddard knew he gave.

“I know father. We need some form of military that is free of House politics. Can that be achieved? I do not know. We need an independent and highly trained military who owes allegiance to no House but to Westeros. We both know though that something must change. The Night Watch is dying father. You know it. Only we in the North truly believe in the Wall and its defense. If this war was one hundred years from now I doubt the Nights Watch would still exist.”

“It is time father that the Night Watch no longer be filled with criminals emptied out of prisons and poor sent to us against their will. We need more. We need better.”

Eddard could not say his son was wrong. He was just not sure his son’s plans was the proper one. He would let the next Lord Commander and the Queen make those decisions.

They came upon a training ground. Crows and wildlings were training together. Eddard saw that they had good sword skills but nothing approaching great. Eddard worried about that. The Crows and Wildlings were both anxious to fight on the front lines. Most were going to be archers. The best of the swordsmen would support the knights and well trained forces of the Houses.

Eddard knew it would be the archers that would win or lose the coming conflict.

Eddard planned to have most of the damage done to the enemy by obsidian tipped arrows, javelins and spears. Scorpions had been constructed to hurl large obsidian bolts that would rain havoc on the Ice Wrights and especially the Ice Giants. With the waking dead’s propensity to burning like a torch the air would be filled with flaming arrows as well. The camp of the Queen and forces of her Wall were almost walking on arrows now. He and the Queen had done their duty in supplying the weapons necessary in defeating their implacable foe.

If all the forces had Valyrian swords he would be much more willing to engage in sword combat with the walking dead and Ice Wrights. Regular swords did not kill the Walking Dead and the swords of the Ice Wrights were so cold they tended to shatter all but the most hardened steel after but a handful of strikes.

In all of their forces they may have had maybe fifty Valyrian steel weapons. His own sword was unique but it was fully the equal of Valyrian steel if not better.

He and his son stopped and watched the training. Jon shook his head. He asked his leave to go and train with his forces. He would see if he could help the best of his swordsmen improve their skills.

Eddard walked back down the line of the encampment. He too thought that Nights Watch had to find a new way.
Eddard moved towards the training ground that had been set up for the knights and the Lords. He saw that the High Lords had gathered along with Daenerys and his daughter. He saw Barristan, Syrio and Strong Belwas. He saw Haruchai and the Giants were easy to see with their great height.

He walked over to watch the practice pitch. Eddard smiled. Barristan was fighting both Stannis and Renly. They all looked like whirling dervishes. The sounds of Valyrian steel colliding with violent impacts. Their collisions rung across the trampled grasslands.

Barristan was swinging Hammer of Doom against the brothers Valyrian steel swords. Renly was laughing wielding Nightfang and Stannis was his grim-self slashing and parrying with his Edge of Doom sword. The blades colliding again and again.

Eddard admired Barristan and his skill in holding off two men at one time with seeming ease. Magic was definitely in the air Eddard thought. His daughter and Queen were extremely skilled. His daughter may be his equal and Daenerys was only a sliver less than his skill. That did not surprise him. Their abilities to use their swords with equal skill to his was not something he questioned.

It was their raw strength that always surprised the Warden of the North. He would lock swords with his much shorter daughter and with her even smaller lover the Queen Daenerys Targaryen. Their skill equal or so near it did not matter. They would lock swords and when he went to use his superior size he found quickly that they were able to hold him at bay. He would lean into them trying to use his superior size and strength to bend them back. That did not happen. They were every bit as strong as he. Sometimes he wondered if they were stronger.

He smiled at that. He could live with a woman being stronger than him. He knew the Haruchai were stronger than any man of Westeros or Essos. Their women basically as strong as the men but a little more quick of motion. He smiled to himself. He could only do the best he could. What more could be asked of a man.

He remembered back to his fight with the great Arthur Dayne. He was just Arya’s age then. He had yet to grow into his adult body. Arthur Dayne skill was not truly greater than Eddard. It was that he was a man mature. His strength nullified Eddard’s equal or greater sword skill. He still remembered how his arm soon ached from the blows that Arthur delivered with Morning Star. They would lock swords and his superior strength would throw Eddard off balance and once more Eddard had to fight feverishly to slowly once more gain the advantage.

The mature man was slowly wearing down the boy just reaching his first flush of manhood. He had slowly analyzed Arthur’s fighting style and found a weakness. He was about to wound and take him prisoner when Howland Reed had delivered a killing blow from the rear. Eddard had no choice then but to put the man out of his death throes.

Still, twenty years later it haunted him not being able to save that man’s life. In many ways it had been Arthur’s death that started Eddard down the path that had led him to be here now before the Wall. He had learned in Arthur and Lyanna’s deaths that maybe “honor” for honor sake was not always the most important thing. That change was further cemented when he was not able to gather his sister’s dead body for internment in Winterfell.

He was sure forces loyal to the Targaryen line had gathered her body for burial. He had quietly asked the gathered homes that surrounded he Tower of Joy, homes that had been loyal to House Targaryen but no one knew or would admit to the act. He still squirmed with the finding and giving of a young woman’s dead body to the Silent Sisters. They never knew the difference. The stripping of the body to the bone made the further subterfuge easy to play out till those bones were interned in Lyanna’s supposed tomb.
He hoped her body was not taken by the wolves. He stopped and looked up at the Wall. Why had he started dreaming of wolves in Dorne? Of Lions and Wolves lying together. Lyanna was dead. Eddard supposed it was Arya taking a Dragon to wife that had caused such dreams.

He snapped out of his musings of the past. Thinking of his daughter and House Targaryen had his eyes trained on Arya and Daenerys. They were fighting together against Syrio and Strong Belwas. The former First Sword and pit fighter were whirling and jumping around with their gifted Valyrian weapons. Eddard was still shocked that a man the size of Strong Belwas was able to jump like a gazelle and spin with the grace of a dancer. How so much jiggling fat could move in concert and purpose was beyond Eddard.

Dany and now his sweet daughter fought with Rune Swords against Syrio and the fat bald eunuch Strong Belwas. Again the impossible had happened Eddard reflected. His daughter had fired up a hidden from normal human eyes a Valyrian Rune Sword. The two women were circling around on an unseen pivot point protecting each other’s back form attack. Daenerys Foe Hammer and Arya’s Blackfyr were leaving blue trails through the air. Their swords like fireflies on a summer night weaving beautiful unknowable patterns in the air. The arcs, circles, parabolas and triangles beautiful to behold.

Syrio was doing his water dance that Arya easily matched and maybe excelled. Daenerys was almost as graceful but she favored the more classic style of fighting with a broadsword. She would slash and parry and slash again always blocking but advancing as well. Strong Belwas was using his great bulk to push and shove the two women around but they pivoted around to keep him on the defense.

He heard young female laughter. His daughter and her twenty year old lover were enjoying the sheer exuberance of the joy of hard strenuous physical combat. When one practiced in the arts of death there was exhilaration that non warriors could never understand.

Eddard was happy that he let his daughter achieve the dream she had cherished. The dream denied to his own sister. He saw now what Lyanna could have been. Why did she have to die twenty years ago? His mind was playing tricks on him of late. Again he dreamed of his sister howling at the moon. He wondered what it meant.

He was moving towards the High Lords to join in their sparring. He wanted to test himself and his sword again. These men were the best that Westeros had to offer. He watched Barristan. He had fought Stannis and Renly to a draw. Stannis was very, very good. If he had more imagination and did not fight more by rote he would be truly dangerous. Renly was good but would never be great.

Now Barristan was resting. Loras was warming up to take his turn with Barristan. Loras was better than Renly. Maybe he would one day be great but not today. He was practicing diligently though and slowly improving. He smiled. Renly came over and they kissed on the lips but thank the gods no snogging. Eddard knew he was still a prude! Why did people kiss in public he never knew? A sweet chaste kiss to Cat in public was okay but all this snooging made Eddard squirm.

Barristan was resting on a camp bench with Marleya Blackmyre. More precisely Marleya was sitting on Barristan’s lap. They were snooging. Fiercely. Her bodice was loose and he was feeling her up as she cuffed and squirmed around on his lap. Eddard felt his lips purse and took a deep breath.

How the universe had upended itself he would never know. Barristan had been part of the King’s Guard for the old god’s sake. Okay Eddard thought. He had abandoned his vows but he did not have to become a strumpet always groping his woman did he? A woman now panting like a bitch in heat Eddard observed before turning away embarrassed.
Eddard was happy for the man though. Barristan was in his mid-sixties now and yet he was a vigorous as when Eddard first met him twenty years ago. He suspected that magic was at play again. He was just thankful. The Queen needed such a man at her side. Loyal and extremely skilled with the sword. The Queen was equally skilled but the leader of Westeros needed as much loyal protection as possible. The world of the person who sat on the Iron Throne was filled with danger. Always.

Having one of the greatest swordsman as her lover was also a plus Eddard mused. Eddard chuckled softly. He pitied the fool that tried to ambush Daenerys and his daughter in their bedroom. He was sure they kept blades at hand even in their bed.

Marleya’s squeals brought Eddard back to the immediate present. Eddard’s curiosity got the better of him and he looked back at her and Barristan. Barristan had his other hand in his woman’s now unlaced breeches and the fabric was jerking as he worked her pussy. Eddard felt his face blush furiously. Stannis and Renly were urging Barristan on.

Marleya’s body was beginning to shake violently as she gripped Barristan’s long hair into her now fisted hands. Her eyes locked with his.

Eddard turned his back. When had the North become Dorne! Eddard wondered.

And what was it with Stannis. He had been his brother in prude but no more. He was telling Barristan “make the fucking cunt cum hard man! I want to hear her scream!” Boy, she sure complied Eddard groused his ears ringing.

He had to admit though that all the sex around him had gotten him to thinking. He smirked to himself. Maybe an old dog could learn new tricks. His daughters being lesbians had made him wonder if they were onto something. He had awkwardly worked around to going down Cat. The results had been wild. More to the point Cat had gone wild. She cum screaming like the bed was on fire. She had fisted his hair and rode her wet pussy up and down Eddard’s face screaming as her body cummed with violent seizures of pleasure.

Eddard had smiled great big at that. Pussy tasted great! He looked around making sure no one knew he was having fornicating thoughts. He did have a persona to maintain after all.

That was something else he had tried to loosen up on. He had started expressing the pleasure his wife was giving him freely. He moaned loudly and screamed in orgasm not controlling himself. Next thing he knew Cat was screaming her head off during her orgasms. He and moaning and groaning as they fucked and encouraging Eddard to “fuck her harder” and suggesting different positions and places to fuck. Eddard liked that!

Then he had again suggested anal sex to his wife. Listening to Stannis, Renly, Oberyn had gotten him to thinking again. The women they, Eddard paused, oh hell … fucked up the ass seemed to love it. The men kept telling Eddard of their acts. He tried to run away but they followed him as he fled. The men still hitting him with all the details. The women kept pulling their ass cheeks back for more anal sex. They must like it didn’t they? He had stammered in asking Cat if she had ever thought of anal sex.

He had feared Cat would slap his face. That had not been her response. An excited ‘yes’ was Cat’s answer. Instead her ass was quickly shaking suggestively in front of his face with her moaning to take her “fucking asshole”. He had. Gods she had cum so hard. She had screamed like a banshee.

She later told her husband that she had talked to Sansa and Margaery about anal sex and if they partook of it. Catelyn had laughed telling Eddard that boy did their oldest daughter partake of anal sex.

He had feared Cat would slap his face. That had not been her response. An excited ‘yes’ was Cat’s answer. Instead her ass was quickly shaking suggestively in front of his face with her moaning to take her “fucking asshole”. He had. Gods she had cum so hard. She had screamed like a banshee.

She later told her husband that she had talked to Sansa and Margaery about anal sex and if they partook of it. Catelyn had laughed telling Eddard that boy did their oldest daughter partake of anal sex.
sex. Margaery could not get enough of it either.

Eddard blushed hotly. His wife had learned many things from his eldest daughter and her lover it seemed. He had been fucking Catelyn up her asshole balls deep (man—talking like this made even the memory of sex hot! Eddard thought to himself) her body jerking forward as their sweaty bodies impacted hard making Cat’s ass cheeks and hips jiggle hard with each powerful impact of surging bodies.

Gods, Cat’s asshole felt so good on his dick. So hot and tight. Then Cat had pulled forward and slowly kneed around in her doggy poise so she faced Eddard. He remembered looking down the first time she did this. He looked down at her with a question in his eyes. Then Cat had reached out and gripped the base of his cock and her mouth had swallowed his cockhead and stated to bob and soon she was taking his shaft to the back of her throat her sweaty lank hair jerking with her avid bobbing.

Eddard had nearly lost his mind at the nastiness of it. It was hot! Cat had pulled off his cock “You like Ed. It is called Ass to Mouth. My shithole tastes so fucking sweet Ned” Cat had husked before swallowing his dick again and sucking fiercely. “Ummmmm nnggg nnggg nnggg” Cat moaned sucking her ass off his cock. Eddard had lost it and cummed in his wife’s hot sucking mouth.

Cat loved it in the ass and Eddard loved her sucking her ass juice off his prick. Then the next night Eddard was fucking Cat in the ass in spoon with Cat turning over to clean his cock of her ass cream. Again and again Cat eagerly rolled over to suck her ass cream off his dick. His cock slaved with her ‘shit cream’ as Cat loved to call it. His wife’s new nastiness blowing Eddard’s mind. In a good way mind you Eddard smiled to himself. Cat had sucked with such passion and twisting head motions on his mushroom cockhead.

Then she reached back while he pounded her asshole hard and gripped the base of his shaft. He paused expecting more sweet ATM. Again Cat shocked him. She guide his cock down her perineum and slide his dick straight out her asshole to her tight cunt. He had moaned so hard feeling her wet cunt envelope his dick soaked in his wife’s ass cream. She moaned and jabbered as he savaged fucked her cunt. They both came howling within a minute. Cat told him that was called to Ass to Pussy. They both loved it! Their sex life had definitely taken a turn for the better. So he really could understand everyone else he supposed.

He had become instantly addicted to this elevation in his and Cat’s sex life. They both loved it! But for everything there was a place he snarked to himself. A place that was nice and private. A place where others would not hear you fucking. Eddard paused and excused his Braavosi. He was indeed loosening up he grimaced.

His daughters, their lovers, and that horndog Oberyn had corrupted Stannis and his wife. They all were like a freaking Khalasar. Eddard could understand Daenerys and her proclivities. She had been a Khaleesi at the age of thirteen. She may have been sheltered before that but she definitely took to the liberated sexual mores of the Dothraki.

He wondered about that. Why was it that societies so often made sexual relations so taboo and made people feel guilty about it? He shook his head. Marleya let loose a loud scream. Eddard sighed as Barristan finger fucked his woman to a second gut wrenching orgasm. Marleya had no problem with taboo or mores.

Barristan was definitely active and full of vigor. In a few minutes he was up and fighting with Loras. Barristan was fast as lightening. He was not one step slower than he was in Robert’s Rebellion. Three times Loras was disarmed and four times Barristan delivered what would have been killing strokes if it had been true combat.
Loras took his defeats in good grace. That was a good thing. It meant that Loras was open to improvement.

Barristan nodded to Eddard. He went to Marleya and she gave him a mug of water and dabbed the sweat off his forehead all the time cooing to him. Eddard pursed his lips. He hated public sappiness almost as much as lewdness. Marleya giving Barristan sweet smacking kisses to Barristan’s puckered lips.

Geez Eddard thought.

Eddard looked out across the plain in front of the Wall. Most of the troops were resting. The night watch shift had taken to their cots. The troops for the day shift of the rotation were milling around with general exercises and troop formations being practiced.

Both Daenerys and he had done the heavy training in the local holdfasts. They both wanted their troops trained up before they traveled to the Wall. Now the troops were trained and ready. The troops now practicing to remember routines already committed to muscle memory. The conscripts trained in military formations and understanding what the banners and horn notes meant in the heat of battle.

If the war was soon minimal training was necessary. All felt that the war would be soon. Even though the evidence pointed otherwise all felt it was coming soon. Eddard felt it.

The enemy was near. He could feel it. He spent the next hour talking to Lords and knights boding with his bannermen and getting to know some more of the Lords of the South.

Barristan was refreshed and came out to where Eddard was located on the practice field. Eddard saw that the Baratheon brothers and Loras were following and watching them intently. He was surprised to see that Daenerys and Arya along with their combatants Syrio Forel and Strong Belwas. He also saw that Lord Lustra and Brail had come up.

Eddard was taken slightly aback. He felt his pride rise up. Barristan was the equal of Arthur Dayne. He had to be very, very careful. The two men sized each other up. Barristan’s Valyrian steel sword was one of the precious swords that had blue ripples along its length.

Eddard pulled his sword from his scabbard. Its light blue steel glowed effervescently. The blade almost had a sheen. It did not glow like a Rune Sword but a halo surrounded it and the hand that gripped it. Eddard snarled at his sword. It was razor sharp. It did not dull itself like it had with the hussy Haruchai women. Had the sword wanted him to fornicate with the Haruchai? He eyed his blade suspiciously.

The sword began to keen in anticipation with a soft melodic hum. The sword’s brightness picked up in its intensity. The blade had a subtle pulse to it now. Eddard put his silly thoughts aside. The sword almost seemed to be singing. Eddard looked at his sword. His sword had not done that before. He understood somehow that the sword was picking up on Eddard’s eagerness to prove himself before all. It was if the sword shared Eddard’s desires. Barristan heard it too and his natural wariness showed on his face. He was in a defensive crouch.

The two men circled each other with their swords swirling and making patterns in the air to keep them in the best position to attack or defend.

Eddard noticed that his blade now left light blue trails in air like the Rune swords. Where the Rune swords glows slowly disappeared like a torch slowly going out his sword’s tendrils seemed to fray, mist apart and dissipate like fog burning off.
The two men charged and their swords slammed into each other. Their swords slammed into each other again and again. They would lock swords and the locked blades swirled around in circles the blades pressed into each other. Then they pushed each other away to only have them again attack with blades swirling and slashing hard and fast. Blades hitting each other at angled vectors to block and deflect. Both men pushing and pulling on their swords to unbalance each other but they were both too skilled for that.

Eddard’s sword was humming louder in combat. The air around the impromptu combat arena filled with ethereal ghost trails left by Eveningstar as the two combatants fought on.

At times one or the other would pivot away with a spin their blades slashing out to keep their foe away. Eddard tripped Barristan who fell to his back but he had his sword up to block Eddard’s down chop. With Eddard’s second down chop Barristan rolled to the left and slapped his blade down on Eddard’s locking it to the ground. His foot kicked out and hit Eddard hard in the chest flinging him back. The old knight instantly back up on his feet.

Barristan made a stabbing stroke at Eddard’s face. Eddard hit the blade and slide his sword up against it. Both men pressed their swords into the other’s swords. The blades screaming as metal slide against metal. The blades slide over each other back and forth as each man sought advantage. Sparks sprung off the blades. Eveningstar was now singing in a loud tenor voice.

Eddard felt strength flowing into him from the sword. He did not tire. Nor did Barristan.

Barristan jerked his blade back and then forward hard the blades screaming and the men broke apart to again strike and counterstrikes with blades hitting violently first high and then low.

For ten more minutes the men fought till by mutual agreement the ceased their combat. It had been a draw. Both men bowed to the other. They were equals. The two men smiled slightly in acknowledge of the prowess of the other man.

Eddard walked on. He wanted to see more of the camp. He was proud of what he and the Queen had accomplished. He walked to another practice field and watched the Giants and Haruchai practicing.

He was again stunned at what he saw. The Giants were well over twice his height and built like oak trees. Despite their immense size they moved as fast as he and Barristan had just moved. As skilled as he was, Eddard knew he had little chance fighting a woman with a blade that was almost eight feet long and wielded as fast as he wielded his own blade.

He saw the Giants practicing with big iron shields that had been fashioned for them. The blacksmiths had loved the challenge of crafting the unusual sized shields. It had been a challenge they loved meeting. It had been Stannis that suggested that they use the immense square shields. He had come up with the idea of the immense Giants using the one hundred pound shields to not only shield themselves from arrows and pikes but as much if not more to use as battering rams. When the Giants ran into each other with their massive shields it was frightening the loud sound of the violent collisions. The Giants merely laughed shaking their heads.

The Haruchai were fighting each other or the Giants. They needed no other practice. They were indeed living weapons. Their strength was staggering. He wondered again about Cersei who was said to have become a force of nature down in Dorne. He could not believe it still. He knew he was seeing what Cersei had become with these Haruchai. Only she used a weapon. That cemented it for Eddard. He made a decision.

The Ramen were not present but he knew they were moving through the camp tending to horses or the Ranyhyn wherever they may be in need.

They were ready. He felt it in his bones. The Ice King was near.

He heard the Direwolves suddenly howling again. That made Eddard nervous. The Direwolves and the Dragons had both been edgy the last three days. They seemed to be getting more agitated. Lady was up howling into the air. For even the most gentle of Direwolf to be growling and snapping at hands that came near her was a bad omen. For that to happen then evil was indeed near.

Eddard looked over at the dragons. The dragons shifting from foot to foot. Their massive tails sweeping the ground. Their necks extending up and bugling loudly.

Yes. The Ice King was near.

The Wall would stand or fall but either way it would prove an effective barrier. They would have time to decimate the enemy before their armies ever contacted each other.

He looked up at the Wall. His eyes scanned the abandoned battlements at the top. Only a few men or women on the top of the Wall to keep watch. The dragons ready to take wing to fly up and pull them off in a moment’s notice.

His eyes suddenly stopped their scanning motion. He was looking up at the top of the Wall. When had a person from Tyrosh become part of the guard up on the Wall? The person seemed to be a woman but one could not be sure with that people. Long green hair whipped around in the air currents at that height. The person seemed awful small. The figure staring down at the center of their encampment.

Then he knew. It was She Who Must Be Named. The woman from the glade. Eddard took a deep breath. He looked around. No one else had seen her. He saw no need to say anything. But it steeled him further. For this woman to be here at this time then he knew that the war was soon.

He looked down to see what she looking at. He could not be sure but he had a strong suspicion. He looked back up but the green haired woman was gone. He smiled his squint smile. He indeed knew who the goddess had looked down upon. Missandei. He wished this seeming like unto a goddess woman would just come down and love the woman. Missandei deserved that kind of love. That was beyond his purview. He shrugged and moved on.

Sansa

Sansa was going over the most recent tally sheets from the shipments that had arrived this morning. They had been at the Wall for eight days now. Four more supply trains had come up to the Wall since their arrival. The first train had been full of woolen coats and undershirts and pants. The forces from the South were not used to the winter climes. They did not have the clothes with them by course.

The second train had come with more food stores. Dried beans, jerked beef, hard tack, beets, turnips and barrels full of various nuts. The Queen was a big believer that an army fights on its stomach. Too many campaigns had been lost by hungry and tired troops facing an enemy that was refreshed and well fed. The outcomes were always the same. The Queen would not make that mistake.

The camp followers had moved up to. They were kept at the rear of the encampment and well away from the traitorous houses. Their wagons were in the middle of the encampment but Sansa had read up on the Unsullied and had many knights between them and the traitors. The traitors would be annihilated when they attempted to ambush the Queen’s forces unawares. The Queen’s had two mercenary companies filled with archers stationed near the traitors to help decimate the scum when the time came. Sansa was not worried.

The Houses of Frey and Bolton would not be allowed to fall on the non-warriors and cause panic and send them into flight and confusion.

The last two wagon trains had come bringing more iron and obsidian tipped weapons. Of course the mix was heavily weighted to dragon glass weapons. Ten of the wagons had gone to the front of the encampment. The dragon glass weapons were of course being distributed away from the traitorous houses. Sansa smiled with thoughts of the coming battle. The sky would be darkened by the clouds of dragon glass arrows falling among the Ice King’s forces. The enemy would be decimated from afar.

The Ice Wrights were fast but still you can only dodge so many arrows. The Ice Wrights and of course the dead could not shoot bows. That was a major deficiency to the enemy’s strategy. The Ice King relied on the dead enveloping the enemy. Fire had been effective but in the past there had not been enough archers and arrows with flaming tips to attack the enemy. In the past the Ice King’s forces had always attacked with advantage.

This was not the situation now. The oil brought up north did not evaporate. Troughs had been dug where the fire archers were to be stationed. The trenches filled with oil. The front of the encampment had special large ditches built filled with oil. There were hills all around of normal arrows with hemp wrapped around the arrow tips. The archers in their rows would only have to dip their arrow tips into the oil to fire. The large ditches at the front of the camp would be alight to burn the dead.

It seemed some of the Ice Wrights would have Ice Armor. That would protect their forces but slow the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants down. The ice was heavy and not flexible from what Melisandre and Ygritte reported. Heavy spears with iron tips and repeated long bow shots with iron tipped arrow heads should shatter the Ice Blocks. The iron magically enhanced by the wives of Jon. It may take time but the iron tipped weapons would breakdown the ice armor of the Wrights. Again the Queen had the quantity of arrows necessary to fire off without regard to numbers.

Their best archers had been trained by Marleya Blackmyre to further increase their accuracy to hit small targets. She was of the mind that only the best would try and hit specific panels of ice. She was telling her archers to aim for the torso and keep hitting those areas with their arrows. The Ice would break. Once their bodies were vulnerable they could be killed by dragon glass.

Jon had proven that the obsidian was indeed fatal to the Ice Wrights and the Walking Dead. Since the kill was magical even a shot to the leg or hand would eventually kill. The Ice Wrights would still be able to kill as they were poisoned slowly but surely. The dead would still march forward to kill all they could reach till the obsidian tipped weapons unbound the magic animating their dead bodies.

The idea was to make each Ice Wright and walking dead look like porcupines until they fell to the ground and died. The Ice Wrights and Giants would mist away. It seemed the walking dead simply unbound as their bodies rotted away. Eeeewwww! Sansa thought.

Quick kills were possible with Ice Wrights and the walking dead. They died immediately with a head shot or to the former dead heart. Otherwise it took time but the magic would kill them. The Ice Wrights would dodge and use their armor. The dead would not.

This was not even counting the flaming arrows. The dead went up like Pentos Candles when a flame arrow(s) hit the enemy. She looked forward to seeing them burn. If the Wall did not come down then she wanted to be up on the Wall to witness the death being hurled down on the enemy.

If the enemy breeched the tunnels then they would face line upon lines of archers. The knights would charge into dead and disrupt their moment and allows the archers to continue feathering the walking dead with flame and obsidian.

The Ice Wrights should be dodging obsidian just to survive. That would make them ineffective in their attack. The Giants with their magical Blades and the Valyrian steel of the few knights that had them would create mayhem among them. The Queen had taught the Ice King the deadliness of Valyrian steel to him and his kind. Even the Croyel had been cut by her blade. Jon Snow’s sword had done damage.

Sansa was a little worried with the uniqueness of the blades. Dany’s sword was a Rune Sword and Jon’s sword had become Lightbringer reborn as he had become Azor Ahai reborn. Still, it was the magic of the blades that made them so dangerous. The magical swords would deal death to the enemy.

Sansa could feel the tension rising in the High Lords and the generals. They seemed to feel the enemy near. Sansa and Margaery did not have any of these premonitions. They were logisticians and now warriors. Her sister and Dany were getting full of nervous energy waiting for the coming battle. She and Margaery felt the same energy in her father. He was calm seeming to any who did not know Eddard Stark. Sansa was not just anyone. Her father was tight with anticipation.

Stannis’s teeth might shatter with how hard he was grinding his teeth. Renly had stopped jesting. Loras and Renly were quiet now and holding hands when they sat.

Barristan was edgy. He had snapped at his woman Marelya Blackmyre. She had been shocked and it was surprising to see such a powerful woman hurt like that. She did not cry but the hurt was evident in every line of her body. Barristan had followed her retreating back and called her name. She had turned prepared to give him hell. He had fallen to his knees and put his forehead on her feet asking for forgiveness. She had looked down at him with eyes that instantly softened. She fell to her knees and took her man in her arms fully forgiving him.

“Just don’t act like an ass okay?” Marelya asked Barristan softly.

“I promise I will not. I have shamed myself my love” Barristan softly intoned back.

Wow! That was all Sansa could think of. That was an apology. She doubted her pride would let her no such a show of contrition. She doubted Margaery would do such an act. Both were heroes in their own mind Sansa knew. They would think instinctively they were in the right with their thoughts and reactions. That act of Barristan gave Sansa a lot to think on.

The tension was evident even in the dragons and Direwolves. The dragons would bugle suddenly hopping from foot to foot and then take to wing and fly furiously around. The Direwolves were howling during the day and especially at night.

Even Lady was edgy. Lady would come to their door in the mid evening and scratch the wood with her sharp claws and whining. It was not so bad when she and Margaery were reviewing data, eating a late night repast or some lemon cake that was made just for Sansa and Margaery who had developed a taste for the treats.

They would let Lady in and she would immediately hop up on the bed and pad her a nest and flop down whining for attention. They would throw a fur over the wolf who wiggled underneath enjoying the pampering. Lady looking at them with her beautiful eyes showing her need for reassurance. Lady was so ladylike Sansa thought to herself. They would then pet and scratch the agitated wolf until she calmed down. Lady’s eyes slowly drooping closed till she went to sleep. It was then furs on the floor and fuck to exhaustion on the floor and snuggling close all wrapped in furs in the narrow passage way on the floor.

That was how they handled Lady on most nights. Sometimes though it was harder to be understanding like last night. Lady had come later and Sansa had her face buried in some sweet gash slurping and tongue fucking a sweet hot wet honey hole. Sansa was on her knees by the bed her body bent down eating out sweet pussy! Margaery chuffing and writhing to orgasm. That was when Lady had come to the door! Sansa had tried to ignore the wolf but the whining became loud and piteous then. Margaery pulled back and told Sansa to let Lady in.

Sansa had lifted her face wet with Margaery’s cum and her dripping sweat.

“Damnit! Let her whine. I need your pussy baby!”

“Can’t you hear her need?”

“What about my need!” Sansa had stood and stomped her foot. Margaery had cocked an eyebrow at her. Sansa knew she was pussy whipped.

She went to the door of the wagon and let in Lady. The large Direwolf had come into the wagon and saw Margaery on the bed. She started whining loudly. Lady’s head whipping around showing her displeasure at seeing her bed already taken. More piteous yammers followed.

Sansa did not know how Margaery could be so good natured about it! She had been about to cum! Margaery got up and Lady jumped up on the bed sniffing their sex musk and cum on the bed while settling down. She then flopped down and whined for her attention. They started to sit down to placate the wolf but Lady started whipping her head around while whining.

Margaery sighed. She got up fetched the fur they used for Lady. Margaery put the fur over the Direwolf that she had come to expect and need when she slept on the bed. The Direwolf wiggled and made happy wolf sounds as she settled down into the bed that was now her nest.

Sansa exasperated joined in with Margaery to sooth her wolf who whimpered and snuffled getting comfortable. They lovingly stroked the sweet Direwolf. When Lady chuffed in pleasure she was indeed so lovable. Soon she was asleep.

Sansa was still miffed until Margaery threw the furs on floor and got down on them. Margaery titled her pelvis up and hooked her fingers along her seam and spread her wet pussy open showing her honey pit all wet and pulsing. Sansa felt her breath catch seeing Margaery’s beautiful cunt opened up wide and seeing the red wet folds pulsing with Margaery’s breathing and flexing stomach. Sansa fell on her like a famished supplicant and devoured sweet gash till it exploded in her mouth flooding her sucking mouth with sweet hot gushes of hot cum.

Sansa thought that Lady hadn’t been that big a pain in her ass now with Margaery ramming her spasming cunt hard into her mouth giving her hot sweet pussy juice to gulp down.

Thinking of that she understood Missandei’s issues when it came to the matters of the sweet scribe’s heart.

Missandei was wrought up but for another reason. She was upset again that her mystery lover was not coming to her to consummate their love. Quite frankly Sansa could not understand how the gentle but at times fiery translator and mathematician supreme could love this woman. She was evidently an actual goddess who once had lost her body and become some supreme evil being that killed men on sight and ate women.

And that was not eating out women—that was eating women. Sansa shivered at the thought. Sansa remembered Missandei’s defense of the woman she loved.

“Why Sansa! … Margaery! I love She Who Must Not Be Named with all my heart! She had every reason to butcher men and drive women insane by consuming them! She did let them go! It doesn’t matter that some of those women were in her for countless millennium. She has changed!”

Sansa and Margaery looked over Missandei’s head. They had thought to make Missandei part of their hens but had decided that was not a very good plan. Being consumed alive and driven insane was not a thought to set one’s libido on fire.

“I agree” Margaery said patting Missandei on the shoulder but making very sure to not make it sexual. Sansa was looking around carefully.

“I can feel her now when she is near … she comes and goes. It is maddening! I want her!” Missandei roared in great sexual frustration.

It was really a shame. Margaery and she could help take the edge off for Missandei. The only problem with that idea was that it was a death sentence!

“Missandei give her time—“ Sansa started to say.

“NO!” Missandei shouted slamming her fist down on the table top. “I want her now … my loins ache for her!”

Sansa winced at that. Sometimes it did not pay to have an overly developed vocabulary. Sansa after Margaery’s tutelage preferred the word “cunt” or a fallback to “pussy or twat, snatch, couchie, quim and other nice dirty words” but not freaking “loins”. Sansa sure hoped Missandei learned how to talk with a potty mouth when she and She Who Must Not Be Named finally started doing the nasty.

She patted Missandei’s forearm in a very nonsexual way. “I know you want her Missandei. Maybe she is waiting till after the war to come to you. She may have some code of honor that prevents her from coming to you till the war is over. Not getting too involved maybe. Remember your longed for lover is not human. Who knows what codes of ethics drive her.”

“I don’t think that is it my love” Margaery responded. “From what Missandei knows we know that She Who Must Not Be Named was cruelly treated and went insane. That this Lord Foul chained her in a deep abyss and the poor young woman went insane. That has got to mess with your proverbial head. Goddess or not. I think she is still traumatized.”

Sansa answered back. “She is no woman Margaery. She is a godsdamn actual goddess or as close as you can get.” Sansa had heard the stories from Missandei of the goddess’s past and what she had done to expose the traitors.

“You are wrong there Sansa” Margaery answered. “She may be more physically powerful than you and I but in her soul she is a fearful woman who has been greatly wronged and spiritually harmed. She is a virgin. I can feel it. She is afraid to give herself. To lower all her shields and guards. She did once and look what happened to her.”

Missandei watched Sansa and Margaery talk about her and her lover. Missandei’s head turning to look at each woman as they spoke.
“I think that when She Who Must Not Be Named gives her love it is total and complete. Thus she hesitates because she was harmed so badly in the distant past.

Sansa had watched the frustration mount in Missandei as she and Margaery discussed her lady love.

“But I love her!” Missandei yowled in a high pitched whinny. “I would never hurt her. I only want to love her!” The small black woman slammed her fist on the table again but grimaced this time snatching her fist back and kissing her bruised hand. “She knows this” Missandei said this softly.

Margaery hugged the small black woman. “I hate to say this Missandei, but, if you love her like you say you do then you will have wait for her. I know she loves you. Are you still getting green roses every morning?”

“Yes” the small scribe said sullenly. Tears ran down her cheeks.

“She loves you” Margaery told the Queen’s interpreter confidently. “She will come to you. Mark my words. The wait will make your two’s coming together magical Missandei.”

“I am tired of waiting! I want my magic now!” Missandei yelled. She started to slam her left fist onto the desk again but stopped her fist’s flight down. She pulled her hand back. Missandei had learned her lesson it seemed.

Sansa observed the young woman. She shook her head. Too bad this She Who Must Not Be Named had come onto the scene. Missandei would have been a great “hen”. Sansa also thought again for not the first time we have to find out that woman’s real name. Evidently, that name gave great power to control this green hued woman that Missandei loved with all her heart.

Margaery was still trying to console the scribe telling her all the reasons why she needed to wait.

“I want her pussy in my mouth! I want to suck her off and feel her cunt explode in my hard sucking mouth and drink down her sweet hot cum!”

_That was more like it_ thought Sansa. Sansa loved hearing women talking dirty. Missandei did have it in her Sansa thought relieved.

They finally started to get Missandei calmed down about her lady love after a few more minutes of soothing consoling.

They then started talking about the nervousness in the camp. They themselves were not feeling the edginess that fallen on the Queen’s camp but they not being warriors explained that. The supporters of the combatants had an easier time falling into a wait mode. The three of them were nervous though. They had all wanted to come and be part of the war effort. They knew that this war would be won or lost here.

They felt safe being near the middle of the Queen’s forces. They were in the area where all the High Royals were located. They had the best warriors in all the realm surrounding them. They had company after company of knights bivouacked around them. They were protected from all sides.

They were confident of their situation but they knew they were useless in a fight.

Missandei had gone off three days ago about her absent lover. Margaery and she were convinced that Missandei could now sense her absent lover because of what she kept in her body. The Krill was a weapon that the Lord Lustra said could defeat any enemy. With this new ability Missandei knew when She Who Must Not Named had moved far away. This both upset and pissed Missandei off greatly.
When they had first arrived at the Wall the Lord of Revelstone had come to them as they had their first meetings. Missandei again with Sansa and Margaery. The Lord had knocked on their wagon door and asked to join them. She and Brail had entered the wagon. The wagon was large but it was still cramped.

Sansa and Margaery were happy to see the obvious love between the Lord and the Haruchai. The Lord no longer looked like she was constantly biting into a sour lemon. She now had a soft smile on her face. Brail was touching her lover subtly as she stood behind her lover. For a Haruchai this was a declaration of love.

The Lord was differential towards Missandei. They made pleasantries but the three women of Westeros knew why the Lord was here.

“I would like to see the Krill Missandei. I am told you have mastery of it. This is a great weapon of my homeland. We knew that Linden Avery had taken it from its place of keeping. It is a weapon of limitless might. It took Loric Vilesilencer four hundred years to craft it.”

Margaery and Sansa had respected Missandei’s privacy on the Krill but the Lord came from the Land of its birth. This woman had the right to ask of it.

Missandei eyed the woman cautiously. “I am not sure. I know that in your world She Who Must Not Be Named is considered evil. I will not have anyone caste dispersions on her. I love her!”

The Lord bowed her head slightly, differentially. Brail started to step forward at Missandei’s declaration but Lustra stopped the Bloodguard with a light touch on Brail’s forearm.

“I can see that Missandei. Yes. In her long ago past she did do great evil. But she had redeemed herself. She released all the women she had consumed and they are now Forestals. She enabled the RingWielders to subdue and defeat Lord Foul. She is not the enemy of the Land or here it would seem. She has done nothing but serve the forces of light and right. I see that and acknowledge it Missandei of Naath. I have no rancor against She Who Must Not Be Named.”

Missandei was mollified. Sansa had held Margaery’s hand when Missandei stood up. She could feel something big about to happen. Missandei placed her hand on her stomach and as she pulled her hand away a brilliant white light seemed to pour out her stomach and flowed into her hand. The hand came back and a large dagger appeared.

Sansa gasped. The blade was ethereal almost. The sides on each side of the large dagger were so sharp she could actually see the keenness of the edges. They gleamed and refracted off light. The light that poured out of the white gem in the middle of the dagger and crossguards was brilliant beyond all measure and yet she could still look at it. The Gem was literally exploding out white light that should have been blinding but wasn’t. The brilliant light protected her vision Sansa sensed.

Missandei’s small hand holding the hilt could barely be seen through the white light surrounding the blade in a penumbra of magic. Magic full of portent and power.

Sansa turned and looked at a stunned Margaery. She saw it too. This blade could destroy the world if wielded by the wrong person. It’s ability to channel any might limitless. How Sansa and her lover knew this Sansa did not know but the truth was in Missandei’s hand.

“It is true then” Brail spoke. Sansa could hear the slightest trace of wonder in the Haruchai’s voice.

“Yes.” The Lord answered. “This has never happened before. Only a Ringweilder or a Lord with full mastery of the heart of Lord Kevin’s lore can hold the Krill and have it active. You have gone far beyond that. You actually carry the blade inside you. I would have said this impossible if I had not seen this. How do you do it if I may ask?”

“I don’t know. Arya and Dany could not remove it from the wall when Linden Avery buried it in Arya’s wall. This ‘Krill’ looked like a fake. The gem was dead and it looked like the blade had never been sharp. They told me that it was a mighty weapon. I thought they were joking. I went up to the Krill and easily pulled it out and then it scared the shit out of me when it exploded into light.”

The lord studied the blade. “The blade is charged to overflowing with wild magic. Do you feel its heat?”

“No.”

“Amazing. The Blade is so hot it mirrors the force of the Krill when the blade maimed Thomas Covenant’s hands. You should not be able to hold the Krill when it radiates with this much force. You fell nothing? No heat?”

“No. I do not” Missandei answered.

The Lord mused for a moment. “I do not know how you can hold and then keep it inside you. The Krill was never recorded to have that power. I feel no magic in you. This should not be.”

“I know how this is possible” Margaery spoke up softly.

All turned to see what Sansa’s future wife had to say.

“Love” was her one word answer. “It is Missandei’s desire to protect She Who Must Not Be Named from harm. That is where Missandei’s power comes from.”

The Lord heard this and cocked her head thinking. “Maybe it is but the Krill never showed this trait before. It has always been held by a great hero.”

“Are you going to try and take it from me? I will not allow you to take it and harm my lover!” Missandei had snarled.

Margaery smiled at Sansa who returned the smile. It was cute to see this fierce side of Missandei. Maybe she was a Caracal in a former life.

“You love is admirable but I will not allow you to harm my Lord” Brail spoke flatly.

Again the Lord touched her Bloodguard to assuage her need to confront any harm directed towards her Lord. “She will not harm me Brail. We would fall before her easily if she used the blade. Lord Foul would fall before that blade. Even Missandei would cause his fall if she was able to bury the blade in his body. The Krill would most probably protect her to make it so.” She reached back and gripped Brail’s hand and brought it up for a kiss. The Haruchai eyes gleamed with pure love.

“You have become a mighty warrior Missandei” the Lord told the small woman from Naath.

“I am a lover not a fighter” the small black woman said. “I only took the blade into myself to keep it way from any who would dare to harm my lover.”

The Lord digested that pronouncement. “I cannot gainsay love Missandei. She Who Must Not Be Named is very lucky. I do not fear her like the Elohim do. They fear her because she is greater than they. Even Infelice cannot contend with her. Though maybe in mass they might overcome her but she would just pick them off one at a time instead.”
“No Missandei. I just wanted to see the weapon of legend. I do find it strange that a gentle soul like you have come in possession of it but I will not gainsay the fates.”

Missandei’s face had a look of concentration for a moment and the Krill seemed to turn to mercury and flowed up Missandei’s hand and was gone.

After a little more small talk the Lord left them.

Now Sansa considered the import of those words. Hopefully, if the time came and the Krill was needed for their defense Missandei would discover she could be a warrior if needed.

Margaery sighed. “We will win this war. I wonder what will happen after the war.”

“We will serve the Queen” was Missandei’s simple response.

Sansa smiled. “We know that Andi—oh I am sorry. I am being to forward.”

“No Sansa. I consider you and Margaery my friend. You can call me by that name. I like it.”

That made Sansa feel good.

“We know you have your duty Missandei. The Queen thought so much of you to bring you with her to the war. You are with her in the Court. You are part of her inner circle. We just wonder what we will do. After the war we will not have a task to perform. My father is the Warden and Robb will take his place when the time comes. We fear we will be forgotten. The Queen says she will bring us to King’s Landing. We look forward to that.”

Missandei smirked “I hear that there are a lot of hens waiting for a certain wolf to fall on them and consume them.”

Sansa blushed just a little. She was still embarrassed to hear her sexual exploits and fuck hunger mentioned by others.

Margaery saw her embarrassment. “Yes we look forward to fucking my cousins and childhood friends. We will marry here in the North in Winterfell to each other. We will then marry my handmaiden in an open marriage. You can join us if you wish along with She Who Must Not Be Named.” Sansa heard a roaring in her ears.

Sansa wondered why she was looking up at the ceiling of the wagon. She was on the floor. Missandei was laughing at her and Margaery had a chagrined look on her face leaning over Sansa to look down at Sansa.

“You fainted dead away my love” Margaery said as she leaned over her with a concerned look.

Missandei was chuckling. “You lover is quite bold Sansa. I don’t think I will be sharing my lover. Not for a while at least. If after we have consummated our love and She Who Must Not Be Named has such desires we will join you. It will be her decision. I would love to fuck the two of you with my love. Her let me help you up.”

Sansa was helped up to a sitting position. “Wow Sansa. You are a big girl there.” Sansa scowled up at her friend. Still she was excited. Missandei had given her and Margaery a hope that maybe one day she would join them and their hens for sweet debauchery along with her green eyed lover who could consume the world. A woman like that had to be hot in bed!

“I like a woman with some meat on her bones Andi” Margaery told Missandei in a conspirator’s voice. “When she is slamming her dick up my ass I can feel it all the way up to my throat. I feel so impaled on her eleven inch strap-on pounding my booty and she is slapping my ass hard and pulling my hair so hard. I recommend you fuck the living shit out of She Who Must Not Be Named. She will love your for it.”

Even though Missandei’s skin was too dark to turn red it was glowing with her own blush now. Margaery winked at Sansa as Andi acted flustered helping Sansa back to her seat at the table.

Missandei looked at them both seriously now. Sansa was nervous. Had Margaery gone too far? Then she calmed her fear. Had not Missandei just said she would join them in bed if She Who Must Not Be Named wanted it as well. Of course the green goddess would. She and Margaery were hot! And knew how to bone!

“The Queen wants you in King’s Landing because you are both so adept at the Game of Thrones and have proven yourselves as master tacticians and logisticians. Also, you are both wily and brilliant. She needs your abilities. She is going to wait till you get to Winterfell to officially tell you so I want you two to act surprised.”

She had Sansa and Margaery’s total attention.

“Promise.”

They both gave her their word.

The interpreter smiled. “You will become part of her Klatch of Confidents and the Small Council. You helped to enable Eddard Stark play her in the Game of Thrones. We need that ability serving the throne.

Sansa and Margaery were crying as Missandei beamed. Sansa was so happy. It was official now. She and Margaery would indeed be able to show all their talents and abilities. She couldn’t wait. Then the two women looked at each other with carnal intent. They just knew that soon Missandei and She Who Must Not Be Named would be in their hen’s nest.

Arya

Arya was walking away from the practice field. She and Dany had been fighting their Bloodguard Bannor and Jeertel. At times Seregrom stepping in to take one of his fellow countrymen’s place. The two of them had gotten used to coming up with a draw when fighting their Haruchai guards. Sometimes they would land what would be a killing blow sometimes it would the Haruchai. Those were the exceptions.

It pissed off both of the very competitive women that the Haruchai were so good without using weapons of any sort other than their own bodies. Jeertel, Seregrom and Bannor’s ability to strike and deflect their Rune swords without injury or feeling the heat of their blades for the brief moment of contact still astounded them. Win, lose or draw the Haruchai remained flat faced. Not Dany or Arya. They slapped each other on the back and hooted their victories and gave each other sweet kisses in elation of kicking ass.

Arya was still in shock sometimes just how fast and strong these people were. To look at them you would never think that moved like the lightening in the night sky. In an instant they were on you. The impact of their fists landed like blocks of granite. In fact Jeertel had landed a punch to her jaw this day. Arya had been able to roll with the blow but her jaw ached. Arya worked her jaw all back and forward. Yes, it still was working just fine despite the ache.

She would be able to go down on Dany tonight. All was still right in Arya’s world.

Arya smiled seeing Dany’s Bloodriders looking approvingly at the Bloodguard. Seeing the Haruchai kick everyone’s ass but for a small handful of fighters had uplifted their spirits. They no longer saw their quick defeat humiliating since almost everyone else from Westeros shared the same fate. The Haruchai did not seem to hold grudges. The Bloodrider not on guard duty was often found in Stannis and Oberyn’s tent now. The Haruchai accepting the Dothraki into the festivities.

Dany was sparing with Barristan now. Arya had enough of fighting for the nonce. Her jaw was aching but the pain was already fading. She walked among the practice fields.

She saw Brail fighting with Ice. She smiled at that. Her father was always amazing her.

Yesterday they had been practicing in the late afternoon when her father came up to them. He was carrying on his back the ancestral Valyrian sword Ice of House Stark. The sword was too large for even her father to use effectively. The blade was not extremely heavy because of its forge in old Valyria and made of Valyrian steel. It was no heavier than most well-made heavy broadswords. It was just too big to use effectively in melee type of combat. Her father told Arya he felt he had to use too much strength to keep the blade balanced. The blade was easy to throw one off balance because of its length in proportion to her father’s height. Too much energy was used to just control the blade. Thus, the blade was used mainly as a ceremonial blade.

Brail and Jeertel were fighting each other. Arya and Dany were watching with awe at the sheer power and speed of the two women. They were literally blurs attacking and blocking blows with hands and legs that moved so fast the eyes had a hard time seeing.

Jeertel was definitely getting the worse of the match. Brail was death walking. Jeertel grabbed Brail’s tunic and pressed in and gave Brail a vicious head butt that made the First Mark’s head snap back put her right fist came up in a short arc and stunned Jeertel with a shot to the solar plexus. They had pivoted away from each other but wasted no time in attacking each other again.

The fight went on for several more minutes. It was close but Brail was the clear winner of the sparing match. They had faced each other and bowed deeply in mutual respect.

Eddard had been watching with Ice in its scabbard over his shoulder. He made a sound of getting everyone’s attention.

“Brail?” he called out softly.

The Haruchai turned to face him. She cocked an eyebrow her jet black hair gleaming in the afternoon sun. The hair down half way on her ears and down to the nape of her neck. The woman’s hair sopping wet with her sweat. Arya felt the cold of the air but the Haruchai did not feel it. Their thin tunics and bare feet offering no protection from the biting cold of the air.

Lustra was watching them closely. The Lord had grimaced with each blow that Brail took. She had stood up as soon as the fight was over to take her Haruchai in her arms and coo over her. The Haruchai was stoic but she did lean into Lustra when the Lord showed her affection. Though she tried to not to show it the Haruchai basked in the affections of her woman.

All the women now gave Eddard Stark their full attention. Arya wondered what he was doing with Ice on his back. He never carried that sword with him. Its use was strictly ceremonial.

He took the scabbard off his back and held it in both hands before him. Arya watched her father’s right hand move to grip the pummel of Ice. He then slowly unsheathed the massive blade. The sword was about five inches past five feet in length. The pummel adding nearly another foot to its length. Eddard slowly turned the blade around showing off the massive blade. It thickness massive and the breadth of the blade was more than a hand’s width. The dark Valyrian steel rippling in the sunlight.

Eddard looked up to see if he had everyone’s attention. He did.

“This sword is four hundred years old. It was forged to honor the sword my House had in the age of Heroes. The original was supposedly in our House since its inception. It is our ancestral sword and used for ceremonial duties and executions. It is too massive for a Warden of the North to use in combat effectively. It is too long and too heavy for a normal sized man to use” Eddard told the Haruchai who regarded him with expressionless faces.

“For me it would be effective in a one-on-one combat situation but it is too massive to be used in chaotic combat where I may be assaulted from any direction by uncounted foes. I would not be able to wield this sword like I would need with opponents coming at me from all sides. It is unwieldly. I need a sword sized for me. This sword is not.”

“It is a sword made of Valyrian Steel. It was made with magic and is an excellent sword. The Giants have magical weapons. The Stannis and Renly with their height and build could use this sword but the Queen has gifted them with their own Valyrian swords. This sword is Valyrian steel and needs to be used against the enemy we are about to face. Valyrian steel can kill the dead with its blade where normal forged steel cannot. Ice Wrights and Giants fall before Valyrian steel.”

“For this blade to not be used would be a crime. Needless deaths will occur if this blade is not used. It needs to be used” Eddard spoke in a solemn voice. He was looking squarely at Brail. She did not show any reaction to the obvious direct eye contact.

“We do not have enough Valyrian steel or other magical blades. We need as much as we can get to fight the Ice Wrights and cut down the Walking Dead. Again I say this blade cannot go to waste. I have heard the story of how Haruchai took up fallen Giant swords and the weapons of Cavewrigths in the battle in the Cavewright warrens beneath Mount Thunder.”

“You are the leader of the Haruchai Brail. I wish to have you use my Ice in the upcoming battle. It cannot be allowed to not be used. We must use it. I can see no one else who has the strength and innate skill other than Haruchai.”

The Haruchai looked at Eddard flatly. The Lord looked at her Bloodguard. Bannor and Seregrom had turned to look at their leader. Their faces unreadable.

Brail looked at Eddard for a long time without speaking. Finally she spoke “The Haruchai do not use weapons. They diminish us” Brail spoke flatly. “You speak true of the battle beneath Mount Thunder in the Cavewright warrens. We did take up weapons. The life of the world hung in the balance. That is not the case now.” Brail spoke with finality. Her mind obviously made up.

“I have come to know some of the major points of your people’s history in the Land. The stories of the Giants are quite in depth. I in no way mean to intend any slight or bring dishonor to you Brail. I only wish to use every weapon we have at our disposal.”

“I cannot.”

Eddard pursed his lips. His face had a look of resolve. He again spoke to Brail directly “I ask you to use my blade during this war. I have my own blade that is sized for me. Ice is simply too large for any man of normal size to use. Do not let this blade lay fallow in the upcoming war. We need it to be used. This blade can bring much death and mayhem to our enemies.”

Brail did not hesitate in her answer “The Haruchai do not use weapons. We are sufficient to every challenge. Fist and faith. There is only victory or death.” Arya rolled her eyes at the words of the Haruchai. It was obvious that everything to these stoic people was black and white. Right and wrong. They had no grey to their mettle. Of course Arya groaned to herself the Haruchai always thought they were one hundred percent right. They never doubted themselves. Always.

Arya rolled her eyes. The Giants had told her other stories as well. She had heard enough stories to learn that the Haruchai could be quite arrogant and not always right in their decisions or pronouncements. Stave had made institutional changes among his people. After over forty thousand years it was obvious those lessons were still to be learned by each generation in turn. To such a proud people the lessons were hard to learn.

Arya watched her father think for a second contending with the Haruchai’s arguments.

“You have once before.”

“The world was coming to an end. If we did not get the RingWielders into the throne room of Kiril Threndor in time to contend with Lord Foul the world would have ended when the Worm at the World’s End drank from the Blood of the Earth beneath Melkurin Skyweir. If we lose this war the world will not end. We do not need to take up weapons.”

“As the leader of the Haruchai I am asking you to Brail. Let the dishonor be mine for asking you of this.”

“No.”

Eddard took a breath. “You must reconsider. Countless male children across Westeros will be converted to Ice Wrights if we fail here. Take this blade and help make that not happen. I have seen your people’s skill. With this sword you will be death incarnate to the forces of the Ice King. Please help to make that sin not occur. I implore you. Do not allow innocents to be made servants of evil.”

Eddard motioned Ice towards the leader of the Haruchai.

“Take it Brail. Let Ice be more than a ceremonial sword. Let the dead be piled up before you with this sword.”

Arya had not noticed till now that most of the Haruchai had gathered around her father. As was their want they had moved silently and somehow unseen till they were ready to be seen. It was clear to Arya they were totally focused on the conversation taking place between her father and their First Mark. The leader of their people on this quest. They stared at him and Brail with eyes that glittered. Arya could not read their emotions of course since they showed none.

“Help me to save the male children of Westeros from a fate worse than death. Take my old sword for this fight and use it to strike down the enemies of light and life.”

The Haruchai stared at Eddard with no emotion on her face. The Haruchai did not move. Arya noticed that the other Haruchai were not moving at all. The seemed to be barely breathing. Arya knew instinctively that the Haruchai were conversing with the mind speak that Arya had heard.

As Arya watched, Lustra came up to her lover and laid her hand on Brail’s shoulder. Her eyes closed and Arya knew the Lord had joined the conversation with her own mind as the link formed stronger with her lover. For the next fifteen seconds the Haruchai were motionless communing on the issue of one of them taking up Ice in the upcoming war.

Finally, Brail turned to face Arya’s father. Her gaze was direct and now had a timbre to it that was not present mere moments ago.

“I will accept. This evil indeed needs to be stopped here. Now. We will not have any more male children, toddler and young boys hideously transformed. I will take Ice to not let this weapon like fallow in the upcoming battle. I will slay our enemies with it.”

“We do this to also honor the greatness that is you Eddard Stark. All with eyes can see it. You have many tasks ahead of you. You will prevent great evils and save lives beyond count. We must be worthy of you and the service you give.”

“This more we will do. As we slay the Ice Wrights we will take up their swords to arm the rest of our people. We have heard the story of their cold. We are breed for cold. It will not affect us as the heat of the Rune Swords do not affect our people when struck by the blades.”

“We will defend the defenseless with our last breath.” Brail and all the other Haruchai present slammed their fists into their chests. “Fist and Faith! There is only victory or death!” The Haruchai all shouted out in unison. Their voices flat but there was a trill there that was not normally there. They had chosen to do this which they would not because of her father. Again Arya was humbled. Her father truly was a great man.

Brail held out her hand and Eddard put the face of the blade on his left arm and pivoted it around so the hilt faced Brail. Though she was six inches shorter than Eddard she grasped the blade and easily held it aloft. She stepped away from the Lord and began to swipe, thrust and parry with the blade. She was already comfortable with the blade. She did not seem awkward at all with the blade as moved and parried with the massive sword. Brail looked at Ice. “This is most excellent. I will slay the enemies of Westeros and the world with it.”

Arya had been shocked with how the woman was able to act like she already knew how to use the sword.

In one night and morning of practice Brail now used her sword like a master. Her balance as she swiped and slashed with Ice was perfect. The Haruchai was fighting her fellow Haruchai as they attempted to breach her defense with the sword. She easily kept them at bay where she would had to accept damage to meet out even more damage in return. With Ice, Brail was untouchable. Only the Giants could contend with the Haruchai so armed.

Arya wondered what an army of such people could do on the battlefield if armed with Valyrian steel.

Arya continued walking down the orderly pathways the Queen had setup in the camp. Missandei had worked out algebraic formulas on how best to setup up the grid of the major encampment. Troops, camp tenders and supplies easily moved around the camp.

She looked to the west. As the Queen and her father had thought the Freys and the Boltons were keeping to themselves. The traitors keeping their own council. The Houses tended to keep to themselves anyways so all seemed normal. The Houses were keeping their secrets as the Queen’s forces were keeping theirs. Arya smirked. The traitors safe in their delusions of safety were making it easier for the Queen to plan for their demise.

Arya had so many foes she wanted to kill. She wanted to gut the head of the House of Frey. She wanted to slowly skin Roose Bolton alive. She wanted him to scream as his victims must have. No proof could ever be found but House Stark knew that Roose was doing heinous acts in his holdfast. He would pay at last for his sins.

Arya wanted to kill the Ice Wright King. To run him through and then chop off his head with Blackfyre. She wanted to disembowel the monstrosity on the Ice King’s back. She wanted to chop his Ice Wrights down like wheat chaff. She wanted to chop the walking dead down by the score.

So many to kill. She would kill whomever came before her. She only hoped the old gods would bring to her the foes she wanted to kill so bad.

Arya had been blooded on the Green Fork. She knew now she would not freeze on the battlefield. She was not a coward. She would fight the foes of her Queen. She may feel fear but she would be like her father. It would motivate her to fight harder and to fight wiser.

Like everyone else in the encampment loyal to the Queen she felt the rising pressure and angst of waiting for the enemy to attack. All wanted the battle to start. Everyone was confident of victory. Arya looked at the Wall and imagined the Ice King beyond that Wall of blue ice. She was sure he too was confident in his plans for victory.

The Queen had planned carefully. She was prepared. She and her father had all their forces well trained for the coming fight. The army was rested and well nourished. The army had marched North in a controlled orderly march that had not broken down the soldiers.

Arya too felt the Ice King was near. He would attack soon. That was a good thing. The spear had been sharpened to a razor sharpness. The Steel hardened and ready to pierce the heart of the enemy. Dragon glass would fly through the air like a swarm of locusts to lay bare the Walking Dead before the storm.

Arya looked back at Dany. She saw the two Haruchai Bloodguard hovering near. To Arya’s right was Jeertel. Her lover had her Bloodriders with her as well as Worm Tail with an honor guard. She would be near to her Queen as well. She did not have to worry about being near the fight if she was by the Queen’s side. Dany would be at the front lines.

Arya knew Dany would most probably take to the air on Drogon’s back once the battle commenced. She could accept that. She would not be going up with her. She was a ground pounder as she heard soldiers call themselves. She wanted to be able to find many foes for her sword. Her rune sword would sow death in all directions around her. She was a master archer. She would kill the enemy till she could reach them with her rune sword.

Dany would be a force multiplier up in the air with Drogon and his brothers. Dragons were a force beyond all measure. Whatever the airborne threat was the dragons would clear it from the sky and the dragon fire would burn the dead by the score with each gout of dragon fire. The dragon’s fire would reduce the Ice Wrights to pools of slag.

The Queen and Eddard had pounded it into the Lords and generals heads that the major forces were to harass the dead and try and shunt the Ice Wrights to the Giants, Haruchai and the Lords with Valyrian steel. They would be a small phalanx to slice and dice the Ice Wrights to death.

The main goal of the bulk of the army of Westeros was to hold the Ice King’s forces at bay so the archers would do most of the killing. Arya was one of those archers. She was looking forward to first killing from afar with her arrows and then killing up close with her rune sword.

The Queen had talked to her Bloodriders more than once about the need to not charge into the enemy. Dany emphasized again and again the dead did not die from wounds and that the Ice Wrights were fast and their blades would shatter normal steel if struck to many times. They were to delay and guide the enemy forces to where they could efficiently be killed.

She started walking back to Dany. Her jaw had ceased aching. She saw her father up on a small stack of crates. He was looking all around. The steady wind caught in his hair and made it stream behind him. He had on his old wolf cloak. Evening Star on his back. The base of the blade a bright soft blue glow out the edges of its scabbard. She looked around and saw Jon with a group of Crows in their black clothes and capes.

She saw the red hair of his wives near him. She wondered what they might bring to the fight. She had only vague notions of what ShadowBenders could do in a fight. How could shadows fight Arya wondered to herself?

Arya stopped and let her senses reach out. She felt the unease that was spooking the dragons and Direwolves. The animals were calm at the moment but they would probably soon be anxious again.

Arya knew the enemy was near though they were supposed to be over a hundred and fifty miles away at the Fist of the First Men. She felt them. She looked at the Wall and what lay beyond. The enemy was there most definitely beyond it. But they were much closer than the Fist of the First Men. She felt it. The touch of the air insidious with the approaching evil. She looked around the encampment and beyond it.

She saw nothing amiss. Nothing pricked her unease specifically. She could not put her finger on it but something was not right. The camp felt it.

Dany had put out word last night to reduce the number of troops up on the Wall to only a few. Arya’s lover ordered the rotation of the troops to maintain its order to keep everyone fresh. She added though that all must be ready to mobilize at a moment’s notice. War was coming.

The Queen had given the Lords and generals permission to call their formations to arms without her express orders. They were allowed to exercise their judgement. The Queen hoped that there would not be any false alarms. Her forces did not need to taxed with false alarms. They had trained for over six months to avoid that before the march up the King’s Road had begun.

Arya saw several stands of trees in the distance. For some reason a large gaggle of crows and ravens had formed a rookery in it yesterday. Most be some food nearby. Or maybe they sensed that fresh carrion was about to be found aplenty on the ground before the Wall. Arya shuddered at that thought.

Even nature was uneasy Arya mused. War was coming. The carrion eaters had sensed it. Yes indeed. War was coming.

Oberyn

Oberyn came out of his tent. He stretched his back and looked at the stands of trees in the distance. The crows and ravens that had alighted there starting two days ago were taking flight. Black clouds were boiling up off the bare trees taking a wing. The birds were squawking loudly. The birds taking off looking for their days food.

The red viper was amazed at how nature always seemed to know when carnage was coming. The birds were waiting for the war to start so they could come and feast on the dead that would litter the battlefield. Oberyn paused to say a brief prayer to the Warrior to let it be the enemy who littered the battle field.

He looked up high in the sky. Up above in the heavens circled the carrion birds. The vultures waiting to spiral down and feast on the flesh of the dead. They had started arriving three days ago. The first day there had been but a few. Over the next two days more and more vultures had joined their brothers waiting to feast.

Oberyn had been surprised when the day before yesterday he noticed other wing shapes up high in the sky. Great eagles were also up higher even than the vultures lazily circling. The eagles were riding the high thermals. The man from Dorne wondered about that. He supposed that even raptors would not pass up easy meat.

Near noon yesterday he noticed that hawks, kites, kestrels and ospreys had also joined in the circling at lower altitudes. This disturbed Oberyn. He had not fought on that many battlefields but he had fought on enough to know this was not natural. He pursed his lips looking up at the great multitude of raptors circling overhead. He shook his head. He had no answer to the strange anomaly.

The slaughter would be great. He hoped to add immensely to the piles of the walking dead that would be slaughtered for the birds to feast on. He looked back up. Still, to see so many raptors in the sky above Castle Black was unsettling. What had compelled such strange behavior?

Oberyn shook his head. It did not matter really. He felt ready. It did not matter that the dragons had reported that the Ice King’s forces were still at the Fist of the First Men. They were here. He could feel it. They may strike today. They may not strike for another two weeks but they were near.

Everyone knew it in their bones. The war would happen soon. No one doubted that. The Queen had men on duty at night but they were doing smaller shifts in smaller numbers. The Queen wanted her troops refreshed and ready to fight.

The last four nights Oberyn’s tent had been empty of the persons that had been keeping him company and making the nights festive. The Haruchai were out prowling the night constantly on the move. They sensed trouble was near. Ranrika and Ferna had told him that Corruption was near. Their senses felt it but their eyes did not. They found that very disconcerting. They had been out in the night on their Ranyhyn riding picket around the encampment. Having the Wall on one side made the pickets easier.

Not only were the Haruchai out but the Ramen were out in the night. Oberyn had learned that both people from the Land could go for long stretches without sleep when necessary. They did not become sleepy and their senses dulled with the lack of sleep. Oberyn wished he could stay days on full alert without rest. He was strong and fit but he needed to sleep like all men to stay alert and at his full capabilities.

With combat on the immediate horizon he and his new partner in debauchery Stannis Baratheon had decided to forgo their nightly sexual escapades. They needed their strength. They needed to be ready. Also, with the enemy near he did not want to get caught with literally with his breeches down. He needed to be ready to move at a moment’s notice.

When he had slept the last few nights it had been restless. It was not fear that caused his unease. He kept thinking the war horns would start blaring in the middle of the night. It kept him on edge and he was sure it had the rest of the camp on edge. Even with the Queen’s best efforts it was dragging the men down. She was ameliorating the effect but it was still happening.

He walked towards the command tent. The camp was alert but not wasting effort. The troops that had been up were now settling into their furs and tents. He saw that the dragons were down form their nightly patrolling of the skies to make sure the Queen’s forces were not taken by surprise. Their keen night vision had not detected anything.

The dragons had been becoming more and more agitated and it had become much worse this morning. Drogon was prancing from foot to foot as if the ground was burning his feet. His neck swiveling to look out around the flat grounds. He was clearly looking for an unseen threat. Oberyn trusted the dragon’s senses but he saw nothing either.

Rhaegal was fanning his wings his eyes swirling with his unease. The green dragon making dust devils. The white dragon Viserion was jumping up in the air flapping his wings to rise up to a hundred feet and looking around and then landing again. His body twisting and uncoiling. All their tails were swishing over the ground back and forth. The dragons felt the evil approaching.

The Direwolves were also on edge. The four Direwolves were outside the meeting tent. The wolves mirroring the presence of their human masters. Nymeria the alpha bitch was snapping at her litter mates and snarling at anyone who came to close. She would not have bitten them if they had ventured to close. At least Oberyn thought she wouldn’t.

The Direwolves would be sitting on their haunches and then get up snapping at the air and growling. The hair on their tails and shoulder girdles standing up on end. The Direwolves like the dragons were becoming more upset by the day. The enemy was near.

Why couldn’t anyone man or beast see what they felt?! The enemy was near and yet the reports said that could not be.

As Oberyn watched the Direwolves running around he noticed the breeze pickup to a strong wind from the North. The wind cold and strong. Coming on the wind were high scudding clouds. The leading edge of the rolling mass like fingers groping to consume the bright sunshine with gloom.

The Red Viper felt his unease increase. They most likely were only clouds but the dark grey mass only added to his unease. The front of cold air was moving fast heading south by southeast. The high clouds were thick and ominous looking. He checked his emotions. He was not a little boy scared at nothing. He saw the rolling moving clouds clawing south. He shook his head. The sky began to darken.

Oberyn pulled the flap back on the command tent with the three headed red dragon on black background standard jerking in the rising wind. The tent flap now flapping in the strong steady breeze. The breeze made the stylized dragon seem alive with its neck snapping at unseen foes and its flapping wings working hard in the wind. Even the battle standards felt the evil in the air and were prepared for combat.

He shook his head trying to shake shaky metaphors out of his overactive mind. He entered the tent and stopped. He did a quick count. Eighteen. All the Haruchai were in the tent. The two Giant commanders were standing with their arms folded over their chest and their war helms on. The iron shields on their backs. They now carried their swords high on their hips. The four Ramen were there as well. They were not tending horses.

Outside he heard the loud trumpets of the Ranyhyn and the sound of thunder as their mighty hooves beat the earth as they came up to the tent. He heard their nervous neighing outside the tent.

All of Oberyn’s metaphors came roaring back to life. For the Haruchai to be in this tent to guard the Queen and the Lord of Revelstone spoke volumes.

The Lord was up gripping her staff with both hands. “There is evil in this wind. The enemy is here.” The Lord looked around the table and the men and women standing around it.

Daenerys stood up. “I know the enemy is here. We all can feel it. But we are handicapped. We feel it but we do not see it. We must continue to wait and let them strike the first blow. I had the watchmen pulled from the Wall a few minutes ago. We still have the Wall between us and the enemy. We are prepared as we can be. We will destroy the enemy no matter what.”

Oberyn noticed Jon at the end of the long table. He had his two wives sitting either side of him. He looked around full of nervous energy. Oberyn knew he did not want to abandon the Wall but the risk to his forces was too great. Also, the fallen Wall would still be a high imposing barrier.

The Lord lifted her staff and jammed it down. Blue flame wisped around the wood. It was pretty but that was all. He wondered again why the Haruchai were so reverential to the Lord.

“The wind is like the clouds that Drool Rockworm sent out from Mount Thunder when he had the Staff of Law. This wind is evil. It blocks the sun and puts us in gloom. It is evil. I feel an attack is imminent. You say the enemy prefers the dark to attack?” the Lord asked those of Westeros.

“The enemy has always attacked at night. They did eight thousand years ago and they do so now” Eddard spoke from his position at the table.

“The sky is darkening but it is still light. It is still morning. I do not feel the attack is imminent. We still have time” the Queen pronounced.

“I do not know. I feel the enemy is closer than that. I can feel it in the marrow of my bones. I feel the enemy is among us” the Lord of Revelstone replied to the Queen’s pronouncement.

Brail spoke up behind the Lord’s left shoulder. “I do not concur Lord Lustra. We have been vigilant. The Ramen and the Ranyhyn have been constantly patrolling. This does not count the constant patrols the Queen of Westeros has on patrol.”

“We know caution. We have been watchful. We do not believe the enemy could be among us.”

The Lord looked at the First Mark of the Haruchai. “I trust my instincts. We are in grave danger.”

Oberyn looked at the Queen. She was standing rigid. Oberyn could see her calculating. Daenerys was processing all the information flooding in to her.

“I do not want to sound the war horns yet. I feel the unease you feel. But senseless mobilization of our forces will wear ourselves out if it is repeated. Also, if we have too many false alarms the troops will may not focus and assemble quickly when the true crisis occurs. We need to keep our forces sharp for the true battle.”

“These clouds could be sent only to fill us with unease and make us wear ourselves out for nothing. I have worked hard to keep my troops fresh and ready for war. I will not wear them out now that we have arrived at the Wall. I have planned too much to do that.”

The Lord clearly did not agree Oberyn saw. She twisted her hands on the staff. She ground her teeth like Stannis. “I disagree. I fell the attack is imminent. The Ice King has waited long enough. He knows we are here. He wants to slay us all. Now. I can feel it.”

Oberyn listened to the two women go back and forth. Neither fully sure of their assessment.

Finally, the Queen turned to look directly at first Brail and then Braveheart Tillerkeel First of the Search of the Giants. The two warriors were silent for a moment.
The Giant spoke first. “I too feel the enemy is too close. We too can feel the rightness of the environment and of people. We do not feel rightness now.”

The tent flap was pushed back and a runner came in. The young man moved quickly over to the Queen. He handed her a handwritten note. She read it.

“They seemed to be more active than they have been. They are not forming up but they are out of their tents exercising and practicing with a focus they have not shown before. Their knights are practicing on horseback.”

The Queen paused digesting this new information. “Again it could mean they are preparing for attack or merely exercising after not doing so for a week.”

The Queen pinched her nose. “What say you Brail? The Haruchai “know caution”. Do we mobilize?”

The Haruchai tilted her head. She was speaking to her brothers and sisters.

“We know caution. We have been alert. We have not seen or heard anything amiss. We have been vigilant. We too sense this evilness near us. The enemy must be massed beyond the Wall. Maybe we sense that. We cannot be sure. We do not like marshalling our forces for no effect.”

The Queen had heard enough. “I want to pass word by mouth to be on alert. I want all the troops who have not been on the most recent cycle of duty to be up and fed. I want the troops ready. Also pass on that I trust the judgement of my generals and Lords. If they feel they must call their war horns then sound the call. I may throw a fit at the time if it proves a false alarm but we must not be caught off guard.”

“Pass word to the unsullied to have their armor on and pikes near. Do not form up and take to the field. It will take time for the traitors to form up. Have the knights from Dorne and the Stormlands match the traitors. Get their horses saddled and start ‘practicing’ so they can form up quickly if necessary. We should be able to form up almost as quickly as the traitors. My unsullied will hold them long enough to allow our knights to attack from their flanks. The unsullied specialize in killing mounted troops. Westeros has not seen the like.”

Oberyn listened to the Queen for the next ten minutes give more commands to partially mobilize the forces of Westeros for possible attack.

They went outside. The Clouds had lowered and looked angry and full of rage. Great dark rolling masses of darkness rolled across the sky and marched south. The air was full of tension and a strange smell that his Maester had told him was ozone. Great energy was in the air.

For the next several hours the sky seemed live with the angry clouds that slowly lowered in height. It started to rain steadily. The temperature had risen slightly. That too was strange and unsettling.

The whole encampment was huddled down anticipating. The Queen had the oil barrels lit. Obstinate, to provide light and heat but really to be ready to light the flaming arrows if the need arose. The reports said that once the dead took afire they would burn furiously. The cloth on the arrows were soaked in tar so they would stay lit.

Oberyn gathered near the other gathered Lords and generals by Daenerys tent. All were outside looking at the dark sky. The clouds were roiling and seemed to be quivering. Then from all directions the sky below the fast moving clouds seemed to be alive. The sky boiling and rolling with motion. The wall coming closer. From all quadrants a new wall of clouds seem to be collapsing towards the Wall. Oberyn was joined by the others around him staring at this strange apparition rapidly approaching from every point.

All gathered at the strange circular cyclone that approached both with and against the wind. The sky roiling as this new wall rapidly approached. The roiling cloud below the cloud wall above was still a mile off. Then the bottom of the cloud cover seemed to explode down. From the sky birds came falling like the rain itself. The birds filling the air with their calls. The rain of birds did not stop but fell unremittent in dark torrents.

Oberyn gaped as raptors or all sizes along with carrion birds came slashing through the clouds. Their destination was clearly seen. They were beating their wings furiously to circle over the wall and to the north of it. The walls coming at them suddenly became seen for what they were.

The sky was filled with fast approaching birds. Crows, ravens, starlings, grackles were furiously moving up from the south. The same birds and other species furiously flying in from the north, west and east with equal fury. The birds were flying from just above the Wall to the lowest edge of the clouds. Oberyn turned his head in the opposite direction and saw the same mountain in the air of nothing but birds. The birds flying furiously. Now their loud calls filled the sky with rage.

A circling cyclone of birds were now screaming just beyond the Wall. The storm of birds shrieking rage. More birds diving through the clouds continuously and winging in from all points of the compass. The birds rising in numbers exponentially. The buildup of birds shockingly fast.

Daenerys gaped at the sky.

War horns were sounding all across the encampment calling the troops of Westeros to war. The generals and Lords were using the freedom the Queen had given them.

Birds were everywhere now. They were slashing overhead screaming in fury. Oberyn was shocked. He saw songbirds from Dorne and even small sparrows. My gods he thought. Were all the birds of Westeros coming here? How long had they been flying to get her now? They would only be coming here now for one reason. The birds flying furious in from all directions. The fowl reaching just the other side of the Wall and then winging over to dive straight down. All the time the birds screamed in loud raucous fury.

He heard Daenerys shake off her shock. “I have seen this before!”

The Lord cried out “Even the birds know!”

Oberyn saw the birds screaming and the cyclone growing ever larger. The dragons started bulging wildly and the Direwolves were howling up to the sky and jumping around snapping wildly.

Lightening started.

More birds came diving out of the clouds unseen. The storms of birds diving down before the Wall to the north of their encampment. It looked like the sky was raining birds as they plummeted down with a seeming singular purpose. It seemed as if all the birds were shrieking in rage as they dove. The screams made it almost impossible to think.

Oberyn looked at the camp as men formed up and armed themselves. He looked at the birds diving down with seeming reckless abandon. Birds large and small diving down like arrows just beyond the Wall. They could only be doing so with one reason.

“I got a bad feeling about this” Oberyn spoke up. The enemy had arrived at the literal gates unseen.
Let There Be War - Part I

Chapter Notes

AN#1: In my world dragons have four legs.

AN#2: This chapter is huge. I am breaking into three parts and will drop them with several days of separation to make them more readable.

Reclamation

Let There Be War - Part I

Red Tailed Hawk: The hawk beat his wings in the most efficient manner to propel himself to his destination. It came instinctual to him. His body striving to reach the goal that he had been traveling to for almost two weeks now. He was close now. He could feel it. He felt the compulsion to fly to the continent of Westeros though it was not the time to mate with a female and produce young. He felt deep in his mind the compelling need to fly forward. He knew deep down in his instinctual brain that if he did not heed the compulsion within him he would never mate again. He would not produce offspring to carry forward his legacy.

That was unacceptable so he flew on.

He had started to notice that many of this brothers and sisters were also flying with him to Westeros. They too had felt the compulsion. It was not time to mate so he did not feel the territorial need to fight and proclaim a territory against his brothers. Since it was not time to mate he did not feel the overpowering compulsion to mate with the females of his species he saw flying north by west. He did not feel the need to fight and mate. More and more of his brothers and sisters joined him in his flight to the north of Westeros.

He saw other raptors flying to the west and north as he was. In normal times, he would feel compelled to fight them if they approached to near. At first it had not mattered that other species of hawks, ospreys, eagles, kites, falcons, harriers, shrikes, kestrels, frigates and other birds of prey he did not recognize were on the flight way with him. At the beginning of his journey it did not matter since they were few. The competitors to his food and flight space did not trigger his instincts. That had changed as he flew on each day doggedly flying north.

With each hour more raptors were joining him along the flight path to northern Westeros. Birds of prey from Essos and Westeros were forming a flyway thick with birds that flew on to the north. The Red Tailed Hawk could see raptors flying in from East having crossed the Narrow Sea between the two continents. Other raptors were coming in from the west and south of Westeros to join in the growing mass of birds.

Not only were there raptors such as him but all manner of other birds. The crows and ravens flew on outdistancing him as they winged north. Large vultures and condors were steadily flying to the north riding the high thermals and flapping their wings to propel them forward.
In their midst were all manner of grackles, starlings, various jays, robins, juncos, cardinals and various songbirds. Even the little sparrows, finches and tit mouse were furiously pumping their wings to fly north. All the birds that heeded the call to migrate during the later winter and early spring to their breeding grounds were doing so now in the dead of winter. All manner of seabirds such as gulls, terns, puffins, albatrosses, plovers, sandpipers and curlews were in the flyway also flying north.

The great long legged egrets, spoonbills, flamingos, ibises, storks, and herons were in the flight as well.

From all directions all manner of birds were flying into the flyway heading to the north of Westeros. The sky dotted from the west and east with birds flying with one goal. The goal to join the flyway and head north.

The Red Tailed Hawk had crossed the Narrow Sea between Tyrosh and Cape Wrath. He had then worked his way north. He only rested when the sun dropped towards the horizon finding a tall tree to alight in. He hunted when he hungered. The fields had not been harvested as closely this year it noticed. The fields filled with mice, rodents, squirrels, muskrats. The air was full of birds it loved to feast on. The raptors had plenty of food to keep their bodies strong.

The birds that ate seed and insects found plenty of the former on the stalk and on the ground. The Earth full of worms and insect larvae eating the plant seeds. Food to feed the flight north was plentiful enough to feed all the birds now streaming ever northward each day. The humans had not harvested as close to the Earth this year the hawk observed. The birds not lingering but long enough to eat to fuel their drive north. Then they were in the air again heading north. The birds beginning to pile up in the sky.

Some unbidden command making the first birds to heed the call to slow down as its brothers and sisters joined them as they flew into the cold north. The birds being massed together by some unseen but felt compulsion. The air was becoming thick with birds of all the species of both Westeros and the birds of Essos that nested in Westeros. The birds stacked at all various heights as they moved ever north.

Now the sky was filled to almost overflowing with birds. The low riding clouds were topped by a massive swirling cloud of fowl gathering as they flew north by instinct. The Red Tailed Hawk knew they were near the edifice constructed by man. The long tall wall of blue ice. It had been there for many, many generations of his kind his instinct told him. The hawk saw a blizzard of birds circling above the Wall screaming in rage. The birds flying over the clouds. He felt the rage too. For half an hour he circled. He felt instructions imprinted on his brain. His instincts for life honed to a razor’s edge.

Avoid the walking blue glows of death. Attack that which seemed dead and yet walked. It must kill them again or it would never mate again. Tear and rend muscle and tendon. Cripple, gauge out eyes, tear to pieces the jerking bodies were the thoughts placed in his mind. If he did not act he would not be able to mate ever again.

That could not be allowed. He looked down at the low rolling clouds being pushed south by the north winds. He could not see through the clouds of course but he knew what lay below those clouds. Walking Dead. Something unnatural that threatened all life. This could not be allowed.

The Red Tailed Hawk banked over and down through the swirling rained filled clouds. The cold rain beaded on his feathers and sloughed off. Quickly he was through the clouds. He was half a mile before the Wall. All around him birds were plummeting towards the rolling sea of shapes that was massed from the Wall to the forest edge over a mile away. The ground could not be seen for the sea of shambling human and animal shapes slowly jerking and ambling against each other.

Other birds were flying in from all directions below the clouds. The very air seemed alive with birds. The many shapes flying wildly put confusion in the air. The very air a cacophony of various notes and melodies. So many they made for a discordant symphony.

Birds were already attacking all over the dead. The hawk’s senses told him the dead walked though that was impossible. It did not matter. He needed to attack them to survive to produce offspring. He spiraled down picking a target to attack. He felt in his brain the need to avoid at any cost the bright blue men that moved unlike the dead. The undead walked with no purpose not so the men of blue. They were dangerous. They were not his target. Only the shambling husks of what once lived were his target.

He was almost upon the man he had chosen to attack. Near his target he saw a bear covered with all manner of birds attacking with claw and beak. Hair was savagely being pulled out and throw away. Strips of muscle torn and spit out. Beaks and claws seeking skin and muscle to rend. The tendons and ligaments sought out to sever with talon. The birds on their prey wildly kicked talons and beaks tore at anything they could reach. Eyes and ears torn from bodies.

With a hard impact his claws tore into the back and neck of the figure he had chosen to attack. His claws and beak slashing. Strips of the undead man’s black body ripped and shredded. The dead man did not react. He tore and slashed at his target. The hawk’s beak sank deep into cold flesh and tore out a chunk of skin and muscle he threw away. Again and again he tore at the dead man ripping away at his head. He saw an elk beside him with song birds clawing out its opaque but bright blue eyes. An egret had alighted near it and stabbed at his legs putting deep gashes into the muscles. Then its beak hit tendon and the leg went limp. The elk still advanced but more slowly with one leg dragged now.

The Red Tail Hawk saw an arm reach up and back. The arm moved slowly and seemed to wander. He flew up and back. Other birds were gripped and torn apart. They would never mate. Losses did not matter. He noted that only those that walked with two legs could defend themselves if they chose. The four legs needed them to move forward. He saw a wolf being savaged by vultures and kestrels. The body torn apart. The limbs severed from the body still writhed and seemed to move towards the Wall of ice.

To mate again he had to attack these abominations. The future depended on success in ripping these dead things apart. He fluttered twenty feet in the air getting his strength back and then dived on a muskrat and began to tear into its fur and then ripping an ear off and threw it away. The ear jerking on the snow covered ground. He now went for the neck attempting to sever the head from its torso. A junco was pecking furiously at the muskrat hind left limb pecking out chunks of meat.

All the fowl of the world fought for their right to live. The Red Tailed Hawk screamed out its defiance.

Ice King: What was happening the once man thought as the clouds above rained birds as if they were hail. He was confused. All had been in place. His strike force was in place and ready to strike. His prized pet was only a little way off and ready to strike. He had smiled knowing all his long set plans were coming to fruition. Then he noticed the strange sight that had once before plagued him. Rage filled his heart. Again, it seemed as if nature itself warred against him.

He had seen them coming in for hours with his far sight scanning the horizon forty miles away. They circled. The birds of the world piling up in the sky. His anger had simmered and then boiled at this affront. He could understand the local birds around the Tree of Life joining that fight. This was different. He sensed the birds flying in from all points of the compass. They ceased their circling at distance and now furiously came in upon the Wall flying with abandon. The birds mostly flying high above the clouds. He could not truly see them but he sensed them. Now more and more of the fowl were flying in wild circles below the clouds.

More birds were now flying just below the clouds lowering their seeming height with the roiling bodies of birds flying and screaming down at his army. At him. He could feel their hate.

They were waiting. He could not do anything about it as he felt anger boil in his cold veins. Then the waiting was no more. The birds that had been circling off in the distance had arrived.

He looked up at the sky that had begun to rain birds out of the clouds like a deluge from a maelstrom. The shapes diving down with reckless abandon into his sea of dead bodies. His true son’s glamour had worked perfectly. First at the Fist of the First Men to make his foes think he was still there while he had marched his army to the edge of the Haunted Forest before the reviled Wall. He had arrived unremarked and not attacked.

He was ready to spring his trap and end the reign of man in Westeros. It was time for the Ice King to achieve his deserved glory.

His son had dropped the glamour above the Fist of the First Men several hours before the sun reached for the eastern horizon. The Croyel had then raised a second glamour. The first glamour had been to make the looker see what they expected to see. This second glamour was a magical spell to render his forces invisible to any who may be gazing down upon them from the Wall. Once the glamour had been raised above his host the Ice King had prodded his army of the walking dead to again begin their tireless march forward from the Haunted Forest.

His forces standing shoulder to shoulder awaiting his prodding to move forward. With the rising of the sun he gave the command to his undead to begin moving forward. He gave the command knowing that he was safe beneath the new glamour of the Croyel.

The dead shambled forward with halting awkward steps but never losing their focus on moving forward. In a little over an hour and half the first waves of his tide of the undead had approached the Wall. They were all angled towards three locations before the Wall that he had selected. The walking dead again shuffling when their compulsion to move forward had been lifted partially. He would fill them with the need to move forward again when it was time.

The dead now piling up behind the leading edge of the dead husks now at the Wall. The whole open area between the Haunted Forest and Wall had in the rising sunlight begun to fill up with dead. Now two hours later the whole open marge was filled with bumping and swaying dead. The remaining army of the dead back in the Haunted Forest for miles waiting to move forward. Their way blocked by their dead brothers and sisters.

The Ice King had gazed upon the lovely construct that he had made. The construct he had wielded so expertly. His gaze lovingly caressed what he had accomplished. His soul soaring with his greatness. He had formed greatness with his greatness.

For reasons he could not define he felt the first tinges of unease creep into his soul as he called for the clouds and rains with his true son’s help. The clouds rolling in quickly darkening the sky. The darkness comforting him and his Ice Wright creations. The dead did not care either way but he had always sensed his undead preferred to walk out of the sun’s direct sunlight like their creator.

He had been looking up at the clouds for hours wondering what brought the ill omen on the air. The very sky was obeying his will. Why did he feel his unease in his soul? He understood the tension one felt before combat. That was still in him from his past human core. This was different.
He sensed some force he had not counted on or reckoned with was rising up to fight him. What could it be? His mortal foes were simpering fools. They did not know he was before the Wall and about to bring it down. He felt his skin prick and the hackles of his hair rise up. He continued to look up at the clouds he had summoned and stared at them. What was the code he had to decipher?

Then he saw them and his righteous anger sparked and an inferno boiled in his soul. No! This was not possible. He was too far away! He had seen this all before at the Tree of Life. A tree over one hundred miles distant. He was away from the Greenseer’s seat of power. He could not reach this far!

From all points of the compass he saw a second storm front below his own clouds. A roiling mass was approaching from all directions. The sky had become filled with every manner of birds of both Westeros and Essos. At first they had kept their distance as more birds arrived. They no longer held back. His sensitive hearing now heard their furious caws and chirps of rage. Rage directed at him and his host. The birds were flying in at a dizzying speed. He knew many more were above the clouds. For a short while they circled gathering numbers. Then they attacked.

They were soon upon his mighty host. Birds had started to drop from sky to the north and east. The clouds themselves precipitated out bird of every species. The birds flying straight down with vengeance. The birds flitting through the air as they plummeted. He knew the birds were already seeking out his walking dead. The birds descending quickly all around. Many falling into the Haunted Forest to attack his dead hidden among its mighty trunks.

More birds flying in from all points of the compass. The birds coming in at all heights. Some just below the clouds and other just above the forest with all manner of birds in between. All screaming wildly as they reached his host and dove down.

He watched with mounting anger the attack of the birds on his beloved undead. The birds pecking with beak and tearing with talon. The birds attacking with a vengeance. With a hell bent fury. The leading edge of the swarms now reached the marge between the Wall and tall forest beyond it. The shapes of his Walking Dead soon clouded with the shapes of the many birds attacking them. The birds wild in their furious slashes and beak strikes on his undead.

His eyes wide, the Ice King saw strips of hair, fur, meat, muscle and tendon ripped and torn from the bodies of his shambling host. The damage small with each strike but the cumulative effect mounting with the continued fury of the attacking birds.

The anger ever present in the Ice King ratcheted up to another higher level. From the clouds unseen another deluge of birds fell from the sky and landed on his vast army of the dead. The birds as thick as a downpour. These birds had flown in above the clouds. The birds immediately attacked his immense host with fury. He had known they were there but to see the vast numbers coming down inflamed his rage. Like raindrops the clouds poured a deluge of attacking birds down upon his host.

The birds individually were nothing but in the numbers he saw dropping out of the sky … they could do damage if given time.

He was astounded at the seeming avalanche of birds dropping from the sky to do harm to his host. The birds had used his own cloud cover to come up on him unawares in such numbers as he had done to the land locked Crows and their allies. The thought of that enraged the Ice King. To use his own device used against him unholy. Another crime he must seek restitution for.

The birds attacked with savage abandon. They were unremitting in their fury. The birds tearing and ripping into his dead. The dead ignored the birds until they were before their faces where their dead senses finally noticed them. The Walking Dead reaching out with slow hands and clumsy fingers questing for the birds attacking them. Their hands often missing but when they found a bird it was instantly torn apart. The birds did not seem to care at any of their losses.

Worse yet, the sounds of war horns now reverberated from the other side of the Wall. His surprise was being blunted and diffused. The arrival of the birds was warning his enemy. His rage only increased at that. It did not matter he calmed himself with that thought. It only delayed the inevitable. He burned with anger and raged at how this could have happen. His eyes saw that birds did not attack his Ice Wright sons and giants. The birds attacking wherever they were not. The birds actively flying off when they approached.

He watched some of the damned fowl being slain but the birds falling down upon his walking dead seemed unending. His adopted sons looked up confused. Some of his oldest and brightest moved to attack the birds. Many saw them coming and would cease attacking. The birds taking wing and flying off to attack his dead where his sons were not. The birds somehow warned of his sons’ approach. Despite the warning some were killed by the Ice blades of his sons.

How were they being coordinated so far from the Tree of Life the Ice King wondered? It should be impossible. He could not compel his dead unless they were fairly close and still he had have his Wright sons to help guide and shepherd his shambling undead forward. The din of the birds was loud and raucous. He looked up at the dark maelstrom of birds and shook his fist at them. The deluge seemed unending. Then he saw it and his anger soared to a new higher level.

Above him circling at roughly the height of the tallest sentinel pines over the flat land before the Wall was the Three Eyed Crow. It looked down on him as it circled. It was cawing but it was drowned out by the screams of the other birds in the sky. The two locked eyes. The deviant bird flying in a large circle always looking down at him. The message was clear from both combatants. I will kill you.

Even as the two protagonists glared spit at each other, more and more birds were plummeting down towards the Ice King’s army of the walking dead. The birds tearing at the flesh of his host. Already the ground was strewn with fur, hair and strips of rotting meat. The birds going for the joints of the dead. The birds tearing at tendon and ligaments. Now limbs were falling to the ground unremarked. The birds’ beaks and talons ripped out any tendons and ligaments they reached. The dead did not feel it or even care when a ligature was cut. The limb ceased to function slowing the dead’s advance. When a limb was severed the animal titling over and now having to crawl forward.

The Ice King had several ice javelins with him. He was a sword fighter but they may come of use he had reasoned. He now had a reason. He jerked one out of the ground. The three eye crow was circling lower now and seemingly jeering at him enraging the Ice King. The dragons flew up too high for him to reach but not the damnable black bird. He cocked back his arm and flung the javelin up at the bird. Its death imminent, the Ice King smiled as he hurled his shaft.

The smile immediately disappeared when the bird easily flitted out of the javelin’s path. The missile passing by the bird unremarked. He flung the second of his three javelins and it too missed. The bird cawed hard and then flew up into the maelstrom of birds and clouds. The scorn of its calls enraged the Ice King. Though the bird was unseen the Ice King knew it was near. The three eyed crow directing the attack against him.

He who had once been Darick Stark started to reach for the thew that penetrated the Horn of Winter front and back to remove it from his shoulders. It was time.

Daenerys: The Queen of Westeros looked up into the sky at the rain of birds falling from the clouds and the rivers of birds winging in from every point of the compass and throwing themselves down on the other side of the Wall. She had seen this before. It could only mean one thing. The Ice King had arrived at the Wall unremarked and was launching his attack.
The surprise was his. “Damnit!” she screamed.

“I got a really bad feeling about this” Oberyn repeated his complaint.

Lord Lustra was before her “What does this mean!” she shouted at the Queen.

Daenerys told her quickly how she had been aided by the birds of the far north when she took Bran Stark to the Tree of Life. The numbers had seemed great then but that event paled to what was falling from the sky now. It appeared to be a blizzard of birds falling from the heavens. A blizzard that continued on. The screams of the countless birds deafening.

The two women gaped at the sky. They were joined by Eddard and Oberyn. The Baratheons, Tyrells and Arryns were hurrying back to their forces making sure they were marshalling in all haste and organizing in the welter of confusion. War horns were echoing off the Wall up and down the camp. The Queen looked back over her host. She saw intense milling around but it seemed organized.

Thank the gods she and Eddard had trained extensively and allowed their commanders the freedom to act independently. She saw Stannis running back.

“Renly and Loras can handle our forces” he shouted. He looked around. “Evil is near I can feel it!”

For even Stannis to feel the evil, Daenerys knew something foul was closer than it seemed. She looked all around as did Eddard, Arya, Oberyn, Stannis and Lord Lustra. The Giants and Haruchai had spread out. The giants pulling out their glaive swords. On their other arms they put on the immense iron shields that had been forged for them. The Giant women hefting the weight and getting it centered on their arms.

The Haruchai looked around from the backs of the Ranyhyn. The great horses spreading out with the Haruchai stoically looking about. The mighty horses pawing the ground and neighing loudly shaking their heads and manes. The Haruchai guarding Dany and Arya moved their mounts to be close to them. The Ramen had pulled their cords off and were clenched in their fists. Everyone was tense. Arya and Marleya Blackmyre had their bows strung and a dragon glass arrow notched.

The Revelstone Lord murmured to herself “how … how have they come upon us unawares.”

Daenerys was nonplussed by the situation. She had thought they could decimate the dead host as they left the Haunted Forest. The birds were diving all around on the other side of the Wall. What terrified her most was the avalanche of birds falling down just in front of the Wall. That could only mean one thing. The host of their enemy was before the Wall. His forces in place and ready to strike. If the Ice King was going to bring down the Wall he would be doing it shortly.

The feeling of evil only grew. The rain was falling from the sky steadily now. The birds still dropping from the sky like hail upon their foe. At least the birds were striking a blow against the evil coming to make war Daenerys thought in a trill. The birds attacking her foe while she could not. The thought of not being able to strike out at her foe who was only fifty yards away was maddening to the pale Valyrian.

“I’m telling you I have a really bad feeling about this!” Oberyn observed again.

The Queen really wanted to shout at Oberyn to shut the fuck up but she had more pressing worries harrying her at present. More and more war horns were sounding. She heard many war horns screaming where the traitors were. Damnit! They had taken them by surprise too! All her plans were coming to ashes in her mouth. Eddard was shouting at his banner men to form up around the Queen. Wormtail and his detail had surrounded the Queen as well as her three Bloodriders. Her two Bloodguard along with Arya’s were on their Ranyhyn who pranced and pawed the cold ground with their hooves.

The Lord looked up at the birds falling from the sky. “We have been deceived. But how … I’m missing something …”

Daenerys looked out over her camp. She saw that her dragons were extremely agitated. Viserion and Rhaegal had on their saddles for Barristan and Strong Belwas to ride. The bald eunuch came running up with locusts falling out his mouth. “I am famished but ready to kill my Queen’s enemies” he got out through the locusts he was finishing masticating. The dragons were craning their necks looking for something no one could see including themselves. The Direwolves were up and running around in circles now howling a cacophony of discordant barks and howls.

All felt the evil among them. It could not be seen. It was near though all knew.

The Queen looked back up at the sky. Thank the gods for the birds arrival. They had been warned because of it. She knew they were in danger beyond the foe being just beyond the Wall. She looked around. She knew they were in grave danger but she could not see anything amiss. She felt the wrong but could not see the wrong.

“Deception …” the Lord was still talking to herself in a low voice. She had the look of mulling over a great question. She continued to masticate her thoughts. Then her body stiffened. “No—“ the Lord paused. “Roger Covenant and the Croyel on Jeremey had hidden the truth from Linden Avery … Daenerys!” she barked. Her Ranyhyn walked quickly over to the Queen. She extended down her staff to be in front of the blond woman’s forehead. “Can you have Drogon show to you in your mind his visits to the Fist of the First Men. Have him show you the visits one on top of another can he do that? Does his memory work that way?”

The queen looked at the Lord quizzically. She asked Drogon if he could call up the individual memories of his visits up to the Fist of the First Men. He huffed back of course he could. The Queen informed the Lord of this.

“Like before put your forehead to my staff and I will be able to see what you see from your dragon. Hurry!”

Daenerys wanted to snap at the Lord she knew that dammit but controlled her biting tongue in the stressful situation. All around her the other defenders of Westeros milled around waiting.

“I really, really have a bad feeling about this!” Oberyn reminded everyone as he gripped his spear with both hands ready to use his spear at a moment’s notice. He looked all around but saw nothing to strike out at. The First of the Search, Braveheart Tillerkeel, swished her sword through the air her face anxious. She like everyone else was anxious to fight. The sounds of war horns being blow all throughout the army of the Queen, howling Direwolves and now bugling dragons filled the air along with the constant screams of enraged birds. The dragons’ necks extending out straight with each mighty bulge of the three dragons.

The air was filled with a discordant symphony of tunes and notes at war with each other.

Daenerys put her forehead to the smooth wood of the Lord’s staff and flowed the visions entering her mind from Drogon. The images the same. The army of the Ice King milling around the Fist of the First Men. The forces aimless moving with no seeming purpose. Her dragons had only two days ago been to the Fist of the First Men and the army had clearly still been there. How they were here now she could not explain. The images of multiple visits flowed from dragon to master to Lord.
After only fifteen seconds the Lord broke the contact.

“I have been duped” Lustra screamed in shocked rage. “I should have seen this but I did not!” she cried out in distress. Brail in an instant moved her Ranyhyn to beside the Lord’s mount and gently gripped her shoulder.

“You have not failed in anyway. I see through our mind link the forces of the Ice King at his camp to the North. It is an army at rest. What is amiss? Why are you in such distress Lustra?” Brail asked her mate.

“I am telling you all I have a really, really, really bad feeling about this” Oberyn reminded everyone yet again.

“Tell me Lustra” the Haruchai softly asked her Lord to tell her what she feared.

“Roger Covenant with the hand of Kastenessen and the Croyel who tapped Jeremey’s might to form a glamour that was able to fool Linden Avery even though she is a white gold wielder. They appeared to be her husband and son when they were not. The glamour complete. Lord Foul hid his heart from the High Council before its fall during the time of High Lord Kevin. He merely appeared as he once was. A man. Roger and the Croyel totally altered their appearance. What has been done to us is akin to that.”

“What your dragon saw Daenerys was the same image over and over. It is some kind of temporal loop. From up high, it appeared as if each time your dragons flew over the army of the Ice King that the figures on the ground were moving randomly like an army at rest. That was a rouse. When viewed one image on top the other images of your dragon’s flight over the Fist of the First Men the truth becomes evident. It is the same image over twenty minutes in length. Your dragons would fly over and see what they thought they should see. An army at rest and milling around in its camp. They had no reason to think any other. Only when viewed together can one see that the same motions are done over and over by the same figures.”

“Our enemy took what we expected to see and used it against us! “I should have seen this!” Lord Lustra shouted in anger and fear.

Daenerys thought not “I would argue. It does not matter now though. We all were fooled. I too sensed it was a rouse and I too was fooled.”

Brail looked around. “Evil is near.” She slowly turned her Ranyhyn around looking for an enemy that was not there. All around Daenerys were looking around but also seeing nothing. The Haruchai slowly walked her Ranyhyn in a tight circle. Ice in its scabbard on her back. “Evil is closer than it appears” the Haruchai said. Daenerys saw Bannor, Seregrom and Jeertel also looking around intently. Their bodies tense poised for immediate combat. Their Ranyhyn pawed the ground with their hooves and whinnied loudly shaking their manes their heads moving right and left also looking for an unseen foe.

“I know that” the Queen of Westeros shouted out in fear and frustration.

“I have a bad feeling about this. I really do” Oberyn spoke again his mantra looking around.

“Shut up!” Eddard shouted glaring at the man. He too looked around. Daenerys looked at her lover. Arya seemed relaxed with her bow notched. She was a warrior waiting to fight. Daenerys looked around the camp. It was forming up fast. She thanked again her insistence on training upon training. Still her army was surprised and not ready to fight. The hackles on her neck were standing on end.
“Okay Eddard. But I really do have a super bad feeling about this” Oberyn let everyone know yet again.

The Direwolves were restive and snapping at each other and anyone near them. Her dragons were roaring and looking all around. The Direwolves charging forward ten steps and stopping to growl before hurtling in a new direction repeating their actions. Their eyes searching and nostrils breathing heavy trying to pick up any sent that did not seem right. Their growls filled the air. Their fur standing on end. Their tails all bushed out and swishing between their legs in fast sweeps. Even Lady was in vicious state.

The Queen saw her dragons were stepping from foot to foot all the time bugling wildly. Their shouts of anger echoing off the Wall. All the sounds of rage and distress merging into an almost overpowering cacophony of discord. Their necks swept right and left. Their eyes swirled with their agitation. Their wings beat in a fast feathery motion that raised dust devils without lifting their bodies more than ten feet off the ground.

Daenerys decided she needed to take to the air. She was about to move on that thought when she was stopped.

Suddenly, the Lord sat up straight on the back of the Ranyhyn she was seated on. Her body was stiff as dried bone. Frinny trumpeted with a loud whinny. The Lord of Revelstone began to twirl her staff above her head her hand rotating on the staff in a fast motion to keep it spinning over her head. The Staff began to glow bright blue and wreathed itself and the lord in a bright glow. The glow seemed to begin to light the body of the Lord from within.

The Queen was not impressed. How the hell was a light show supposed to do help now! The lord making a pyrotechnical display was not going to help them in this moment of crisis! She wondered again why the forces of the Land held this woman as their leader. Since their appearance she had not shown much use in a fight. She never fought with her staff. She seemed to be some kind of shaman. They were about to start to fight the old fashion way. Face to face in wild mayhem and destruction. She feared Lustra would be useless and in need of much protection. Protection they could not afford to give!

Daenerys continued to watch Lustra as her light show began to almost burn the air with its dark blue brightness. The Queen watched the light show transfixed. What was she trying to do Daenerys wondered? She may not be able to fight but she could put on a show she thought with derision. The woman was now blazing a wild blue. Daenerys looked at the Lord with fascination. She watched the Lord impossibly rise up onto her Ranyhyn’s back onto her feet. All the time twirling her staff so fast it was a blur now of wild spewing blue light that now seemed to sizzle the air.

Daenerys had begun to be impressed. Still, she could not understand what all this was supposed to accomplish. As Daenerys watched, Lustra hunched herself down on her mount’s back. She then jumped high into the air off her Ranyhyn mount’s back. She stopped the spinning of her staff and put it over her right shoulder. It and her body was wreathed with an intense dark blue light that pulsed hotly and increased in intensity with each heartbeat.

As Lustra’s body began to arc back down to the ground she shouted out with an impossibly loud voice. She shouted out the Seven Words of Power. The very air seemed to detonate with shocking power. The world tilted.

“MELENKURION ABATHA, DUROC MINAS MIL. HARAD KHABAL!” The words shattered the air like thunder from a lightning strike that had landed right beside one’s body. The explosion of might deafening.
From over her shoulder the staff of the descending Lord arched down as her body rushed towards the ground. Her feet landed on the ground as her staff arched down to strike the ground like a lightning bolt of bright blue from the gods of old. Wild blue fire seemed to explode out of the Lord’s staff and her very body. The fire exploding out in all directions. The Lord’s magic flowing over everyone and detonating up to the heavens.

A concussive force rocked over the Queen’s inner circle and rolled out over the camp and slammed into the Wall. For a brief moment in time the world seemed to turn blue and then normal sight returned. Daenerys watched as the shockwave rushed over everyone buffeting them and distorting the very air as it rolled out in a mighty circle form the Lord’s body. The ground shook as if in the grip of a mighty earthquake.

Ice King: The Ice King had removed his Horn of Winter from around his neck. He looked up at the sky with the birds still dropping out of the clouds and flying in from every direction. The walking dead were defending themselves somewhat now since their bodies were covered with birds tearing at them. If the birds attacked from the front and around their upper torsos or heads they triggered a reflexive instinct to fight back as they would attacking a living man or animal of the Ice King’s enemies.

It was like gnats attacking a mighty animal. They were having an affect but nothing disastrous. He watched some of his dead torn to ribbons. The dead may lose limbs but they still shambled forward with their severed limbs still striving to advance to the foes Ice King. His adopted sons were killing any bird they could reach. The birds avoided them as much as possible but in their focus on attacking his Walking Dead his Ice Wrights were often able to kill the birds they reached as they focused on their task.

It angered him though how many of the birds sensed his Ice Wright sons approaching and flitted off to find others to attack. Also, he saw the birds learning. Now the fowl only attacked his Walking Dead from the side and rear more and more. Something was guiding them and he knew who. Damn the Greenseerer of the Tree of Life. He would pay for this affront!

Now he heard the mighty roar of the dragons of the bitch Queen. They were alerted to the danger. It made no difference. They could not know that their enemy was upon them. Soon they would be put down.

He had called in Ice Fang. He smiled as he approached in from the northwest where he had been feeding and lying low to avoid detection. He flew in fast and opened his mouth. From his mouth a blizzard of foot long ice daggers erupted from his gaped mouth. The icy daggers shooting out his mouth at great velocity. Death spewed out killing birds in flight as he passed by over the Ice King.

The spray of icy daggers only killed a minute fraction of the birds diving down in a blizzard of screaming flakes. He would have endure their assault. The Ice King knew they were warm bloods. They would tire out and then his undead could attack his foes in peace.

It was time to drop the Wall. The trap was ready to be sprung. He heard the war horns of his enemy being sounded. He was losing the advantage of surprise. His enemy was organizing as he thought on this. His forces were at their assigned choke points. It was time to do his part of the attack. To join his strike force with his mighty massed army. His army waiting for the Wall to come crashing down. To come crashing down by his mighty command. He started to raise the Horn of Winter to his lips.

“MELENKURION ABATHA, DUROC MINAS MIL. HARAD KHALAB!”

The Ice King staggered nearly losing his balance. The world shook violently. He felt immense powerful magic washing over him. A wild blue filled the sky swallowing all other colors and the world turned a bright blue for a long moment. The shocking blue reaching up to the heights of the heavens. Loud retorts of magical thunder rolled across the Haunted Forest.

From over the wall a wash of mighty force flowed and rushed down his side the Wall and then flowed with great haste into the Haunted Forest and beyond. The force seemed to make everybody all around to glow and shimmer for a moment and then the world went back to normal.

The Croyel started to scream and kick wildly. The pain and fear from his son distracted the Ice King. His son had shown fear before but nothing like this. He was beside himself. His talons tore into his father’s back and sides. He shrilled more screams of naked terror.

Suddenly, from the other side of the Wall loud booms and shattering concussions could be heard echoing off the Wall. The sky bloomed with sudden shouts of royal blue that filled the sky. It looked like thunderheads of blue magic erupted into existence reaching for the heavens. The thunderhead of magic taking many heartbeats to dissipate. The blue would finally wink out of existence only to be followed by another massive shockwave that echoed off the Wall and the sky again filled with a bright blue flash that only slowly faded leaving afterglow in the air. The explosions of sound and blue light did not stop but happened one after another.

The Ice King gaped at the raw power being manifested on the other side of the Wall. As he looked on another massive concussive force exploded into existence. The world turning blue for several moments before fading into ghosts of fading blue. Strange hideous words shouted out that increased the shocking might he was witnessing on the other side of the Wall.

In his soul the Ice King felt his adopted sons being killed. He felt the pulse of their death. He had felt a few killed in the past eight years. Their deaths drawn out. Not these deaths. One moment he felt that string of connection he had each of his adopted sons. In the next moment it was cut. Not cut—no—they were obliterated. His sons barely beginning to scream in terror; then nothing. They were gone.

“The Lord’s fire!” the Croyel screamed in panic. “The Lord is attacking!” The Croyel bit hard into his father’s neck and drank deep from the Ice King. The Croyel clung tight to the Ice King whimpering. “Save me father!” He shouted at his true son he would save him. From what the Ice King was still trying to fathom.

This power he was seeing and feeling being manifested was shocking. It in some ways it made dragon fire pale by comparison. This power he saw was simply overwhelming. All powerful and consuming. The world staggered again with another explosion of royal blue filling the air. The hideous words again spoken. He heard the death scream of another of his adopted sons.

For a minute he watched the display from the other side of the Wall. Again and again huge explosions of blue light erupted on the other side of the Wall. The bright blue swallowing all other colors in the sky for a long moment before fading. Rolling shockwaves of magical might rippled up over the Wall and rolled off into the Haunted Forest. The Earth shook and mighty booms of terrible thunder filled the trembling world. Another massive concussive shockwave erupted in blue on the far side of the wall tilting the Earth. He had underestimated this Lord of Revelstone. No matter.

The Croyel kicked and wailed each time the blue light washed over their bodies. His true son shrieking the Lord’s Fire burned his skin as it flowed over their conjoined bodies and then was past them.

“Ice Fang!” the former Stark roared in his mind. “To my sons’ aid!” He heard his Ice Dragon answer. He flew by overhead flying to the Wall and then was over it.
The Ice King felt his stomach roiling and seething anger flowing hot in his veins. His sons on the other side were being butchered! Their glamour had been pierced. More explosions of bright blue were rising thousands feet into the air. The Ice King could see that he was only seeing the echoes of the fire. Some unbelievable destructive force was shattering his Ice Wright sons and Ice Giants. He felt their bodies being obliterated.

He did not understand how a woman could generate so much power. It was against the natural order of the world. He would deal with her when he reached the other side of the Wall he was about to bring down.

His eyes flared. This close to his adopted sons he could start to feel the poison of dragon glass starting to infest his sons. “Noooo!” he shouted.

Again he lifted the Horn of Winter to his lips.

Oberyn: Oberyn kept looking up at the sky that was raining birds like it was the most natural thing in the world. The birds screaming as they fell from the sky. Their destination just beyond the Wall. It was really obvious what was on the other side.

He again let everyone know the seriousness of the situation. “I don’t know if you know this but I really, really, have a bad feeling about this!”

He looked all around him. Something more than what was on the other side of the Wall was near. He did not have the ability to ‘feel’ that the denizens of the Land did but even he felt it. The hairs on his neck and arms were standing up on end.

The Direwolves were on full alert snapping and howling their legs spread their bodies lowered in full combat stance. Their eyes glowing with anger. The dragons were in an equal state. Their necks sweeping right and left their eyes searching for something that they could feel. Viserion was jumping high in the air his wings feathering but coming back down. Drogon was filling the air with deafening peels of his mighty bugles.

All were waiting for whatever they felt near to reveal itself. The only problem was that it was not revealing itself. Oberyn had both hands on his spear. He kept his body pivoting from side to side. He saw nothing. He was not even sure there was something near or if the horde on the other side of the Wall was overwhelming his senses on the nearness of the enemy.

Then the Lord of Revelstone stood up on the back of her Ranyhyn. She had begun to spin her staff over her head. It began to glow bright blue and soon that glow had spread to cover her whole body. After their initial appearance the Lord had not really demonstrated a power. Sure she had put up a shield to keep Dany’s dragons away but that was not what they needed here. They needed to have the enemy come to them so they could destroy them.
You had to reach out to your enemy to kill them the old fashion way. With hardened steel.

The Lord did not have the ability to fight one on one. She had proven that by not joining in the combat sparring that had occurred at Winterfell and in the evenings after they had made camp.

Lord Lustra was now a blue flame on top of the Ranyhyn. She suddenly jumped up high in the air. She shouted out words that seemed to shock the very air with unimaginable power. Oberyn’s eyes widened at this seeming display of power. Her staff whipped down the instant her feet hit the ground. Her body seemed to explode with blue light that radiated out from her body in all directions. Oberyn watched poleaxed as the shockwave washed over them. For several heartbeats the world turned royal blue and then it was gone with only afterimages in the air. It was not a physical assault but he felt eldritch power wash over his body his whole body shimmering. The bodies of everyone around had the power wash over them the very air seeming to shimmer and bend in reflections of blue light.

The shockwave had passed through the local environs and rolled off to the horizon. The shockwave of rippling blue light shooting up to the heavens and rebounding off the Wall and then folding over it and racing off to the north. The light on their side racing to all points of the compass.

Oberyn’s eyes widened. Before him in locations all around Oberyn he saw blue shimmers that did not dissipate but instead seemed to be gathering in intensity. The blue sparkles he first detected grew stronger and stronger quickly. In seconds it became clear the sparkles were outlining shapes. Many of the shapes were vaguely human shaped and sized while another smaller but still large group was much larger. Both sets had way too many members freezing Oberyn’s heart with fear. There were many of these shimmering shapes around the Queen and dragons but many more were dispersed. He knew what these shapes were.

The shapes had been moving but they stopped. The shimmering seemed to be quickly growing brighter as the dancing lights seem to cover the various hidden shapes. The flittering reflections multiplying on the forms they had found. Then the lights flared to a bright blue intensity in a quick crescendo. Each of the sparkles seeming to merge into each other until blue flames were all about the wavering shapes with the blue sparkles now interconnected. With one last intense pulse the light was gone.

In their place was Ice Wrights and Ice Giants. The icy beings incased in ice armor as warned and their weapons at their ready. The Wrights and Giants looked around shocked that their glamour of invisibility had been shredded. The shock only lasted for a handful of stunned seconds. Both sides dazed at what they were now seeing.

Oberyn watched in horror as an Ice Giant lifted his sword on high beside Rhaegal. The mighty beast lunging down his massive sword. The glamour pierced, Rhaegal sensed his danger. His talons gripped into the Earth and he jerked his body to the side but an instant too late. The Ice Giant was not fast enough to adjust but his blade slashed down. Instead of plunging into Rhaegal’s body the blade pierced his right thigh of his hind leg sinking in deep.

The dragon screamed in pain. The blade of the Ice Giant’s sword sunk in deep into the hapless leg of Rhaegal. The Ice Giant jerked up with his arms trying to free his sword for another stroke.

All around Oberyn the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants moved to attack their shocked adversaries.

Oberyn shouted. He whipped his spear down into a combat stance. He had no enemy near to strike at. Drogon had extended his neck up and back. His head instantly orientating on the threat to his brother. His head came down his maul opening wide. A mighty blast of his dragon’s fire erupted from his mouth. The flames hit the Ice Giant that had just freed his blade from Rhaegal’s thigh. Rhaegal was screaming in pain from both the wound and he icy cold flowing into his veins. He was not able to defend himself in his pain.

There was no defense for this Ice Giant. Drogon’s flame burned over the Rhaegal’s side and the Ice Giant. The thick ice armor blocked the initial flame burst but was rapidly melting. The Ice Giant’s body weaved back and forth under the inferno’s assault. The Giant’s ice sword sizzling and beginning to mist. The Ice Giant staggered feeling the intense heat.

The heat from Drogon’s flame ameliorated the icy poison in Rhaegal’s veins. As Drogon’s flame ceased the wavering Ice Giant lifted his now badly pitted sword. He never saw Rhaegal’s head lunge forward his massive fang line mouth closing over his body. Rhaegal’s teeth crashed through the weakened armor and punctured the Ice Giant’s skull and body.

Its scream high pitched and pitiful sounding though Oberyn would have cheered its death as Rhaegal lifted his head to slam down the Ice Giant into the hard ground shattering its body. Oberyn could not cheer because of what he saw.

As Rhaegal’s tableau played out with Drogon coming to his rescue the great black dragon did not feel that two other Ice Giants were about to plunge their Ice Swords into his body with killing strokes.

There was no time for anyone to reach them to stop his death. Oberyn saw Daenerys seeing this scream in rage and terror.

Daenerys: Confusion was running riot all around the Queen of Westeros. She saw Drogon save Rhaegal but then saw with horror that he had left himself open to attack from two Ice Giants that had been stripped of their glamour of invisibility but not before they had gotten beside Drogon and had lifted their swords that were now descending to deliver killing blows into Drogon’s side.

From her side vision she saw the Lord of Revelstone flip her staff into a battle grip in front of her. She had seen Drogon’s plight but she was much too far away to come to Drogon’s aid as were all those around the Queen. Both the Queen and Lord of Revelstone were too far away to save Drogon. She saw the Lord plant her feet apart.

Daenerys screamed seeing her beloved dragon about to be killed.

The Lord screamed as well but they were words of Old Lord’s magic “Melenkuion Abatha”. The words made the world quake and tilt. Her staff and her body suddenly glowed with blue flashing sparkles. Her staff erupted with a blue column of fire that blasted out the end of her staff. The flame nearly six feet wide and ten feet tall. The blue fire exploded out with thunder that shook the ground and struck the Ice Giants with a shattering concussive force. The impact of the blue column of magical might impacting on the Ice Giants like a battering ram.

The Queen was stunned. The Ice Giants had simply ceased to exist. The fire from the Lords staff had impacted the Ice Giants and instantly obliterated the foul abominations. Their bodies were simply pulverized to ice fragments. The Ice Giants bodies exploded into ice shards that shot out in every direction. Where the Ice Giants had been there was now an expanding cloud of light blue mist. The Valyrian instinctively understood the mist was the Ice Giant’s blood boiled to mist. Their ice forged metal swords also exploded into shards.

The fire did not affect Drogon impossibly. The Queen gaped stunned. She started to scream again. Two Ice Wrights was charging the Lord from the side. Brail had seen this assault and wheeled her Ranyhyn around while instantly standing on the mighty horse’s back. She launched herself forward high in the air with seeming no effort. She came down with her body poised for combat.

Daenerys screamed at Brail to take Ice from off her back to use it in her attack but the words were swallowed by the sounds of battle. She was sure that Brail would not heed her anyways.

Brail’s foot shot out to engage the first Ice Wright. As fast as the Ice Wright was it was slow compared to the Haruchai’s assault. It reacted to the approaching Haruchai. It brought up its icy sword for defense. Brail kicked out with her left foot impossibly striking the flat of the Wright’s icy blade. The blade knocked aside. Her momentum carried Brail’s body into the Ice Wright. She slammed into the Ice Wright with her right knee knocking it off balance and down to one knee.

The Haruchai was upon the Ice Wright. Her savage blows a blur. The impossible to see fists and feet striking the vile spawn. The ice armor cracking and a few blocks shattering. The force of the Haruchai’s strikes staggering the Ice Wright. Daenerys had become used to the speed and strength of the Haruchai but seeing the icy blocks of armor shattering under Brail’s blows was still shocking. The Ice Wright slashed at the Haruchai but Brail easily ducked sword swipes and blocked others aside with hands and forearms. The woman stepping in close again to land impossibly powerful blows. Brail knocked the Ice Wright back and then off his feet.

The second Ice Wright had rushed in upon the Lord of Revelstone its sword cocked back to swipe at the Lord. The Lord was ready. Lustra bent low as she held her staff with her hands in the center of the six foot staff shod with end iron caps. The swipe of the sword of the second Ice Wright swishing over her head. The Lord adjusted her grip on her staff to grip it with both hands on the end near the iron shod end. She swung her staff around her in a tight arc the staff glowing hotly in a bright deep blue.

The wood slammed into the side of the Ice Wright. His armor shattered and ribs imploded from the force of the wood and magic in the Lord’s staff impacting his ribs. The Ice Wright stumbled to the ground its blue-white blood spewing out its ruined ribs. Fifteen feet away Brail gripped the first Ice Wright’s head with both heads and twisted her arms in a savage motion. The Wright’s head ripped off his body icy blue blood gushing out its ruined neck. The body kicking wildly like a dead chicken that had not realized it was dead yet.

Brail slamming the head down into the hard ground shattering and pulping the vile spawn’s brain. The look of hate on Brail’s face said she wanted to kill the Ice Wright that had dared attack her lover with her own hands. Only now did Brail unsheathe Ice from its scabbard. The Lord pivoted up and back her staff now down chopped across the wounded Ice Wright’s back. The icy being gasping for breath vile blue blood spewing out his mouth. Her blue glowing staff simply cut the Ice Wright body in two killing it instantly.

Daenerys forgot about the Lord of Revelstone when eight Icewrights charged her at once. She sensed the icy spawn knew that she and her dragons were the prime target of their wrath. She felt her steely resolve take hold. She felt no fear. She saw Arya was focused on an Ice Wright that was attacking Grey Wind. She let loose with her arrow. The shot impossible. Even though the Ice Wright was moving fast Arya still put her arrow between the sides of its helm. Her arrow buried in its left eye. The thing staggered rigid and began to scream loudly. Its hand dropped its sword its body beginning to convulse. Its scream stilled and it fell face down onto the ground. It was dead.

“Melenkuion Abatha” boomed in the air again the world turning blue for a heartbeat. The echo of massive power echoed across the battlefield. Daenerys saw without seeing a mighty column of blue Lord’s fire shooting across her field of vision. She saw ice shards flying in all directions.

Off to her left her Unsullied honor guard were stabbing out at Icewrights. There weapons having no affect on the Ice Wrights harrying them. Several of the Unsullied were cut down. Two Giants of the Land came rushing in and began to chop down the Ice Wrights. The Ice Wrights had to turn on their new foes and fight for survival.

Behind them she saw an Ice Giant slashing it massive blade into a group of knights and foot soldiers under the banner of Hardyng from the Vale. The Ice Giant kicking hapless men high in the air bodies broken. She felt impotent rage in not being able to help the men being overwhelmed.

Suddenly a violent burst of thunder sounded near and a mighty blue flash of concentrated lightening erupted to Daenerys left. The world around her went blue for a moment before clearing. The pulse of violent dark blue magic angled up hit the Ice Giant attacking the knights above its waist. The shockwave made Daenerys and the Ice Wrights assaulting her stumble. The upper half of the Ice Giant was simply gone. Pulverized by the Lord’s Fire. It legs still stood with blood gushing up in founts of blue ichor before toppling over.

The Queen could no longer focus on anything else but her immediate foes. She was in for a fight for survival. She knew she would be overwhelmed but did not care prepared to meet her fate. From the right Bannor and Seregrom on their Ranyhyns Sarunal and Hallyn came riding in fast. The two men standing on their horses backs. They launched themselves like stones from a trebuchet. They slammed into the two closet Ice Wrights taking them down to the ground. The mighty horses immediately kicking and stomping on the Ice Wrights near them as the two Haruchai righted themselves and threw furious blows down on their foes.

The Ranyhyn impossibly fast avoiding the fast swords swipes of the Ice Wrights. One had maneuvered to come in from the right side of one of the Ranyhyn. An arrow with white hawk fletching pierced its eye killing it instantly. Dany felt a feral smile on her face. Arya had scored another kill!

Daenerys was slashing furiously with her rune sword. The blue glowing blade blocking the sword thrusts and chops of her Ice Wright foes. From behind them Nymeria came up and bite around an Ice Wrights calve and armor and upended the monstrosity and whipped it right and left so fast it could nothing but be whipped around. One of the Ice rights had pivoted and attacked Bannor. He twirled to meet the new attack. He and Sarunal had pulverized much of the Ice Wrights’ armor they had been attacking leaving the Wright spawn stunned and disoriented.

The feet and fist of the Haruchai and the hooves of The Ranyhyn delivering pulverizing punishment to the Ice Wright.
The remaining four Ice Wrights came on rushing in to overwhelm the pale haired Valyrian. Her exemplary sword work kept them at bay. She noticed the Ice Wrights jerked about as magically enhanced iron tipped arrows hit their bodies with shocking force. The impact loud on their ice armor. The blows did not penetrate the armor but Daenerys saw cracks forming. Dragon glass arrows exploding on the armor as well as arrows now started to whistle out from all directions. The firing unorganized but Daenerys did not care! The enemy was in their midst.

Robb appeared from the left and attacked an Ice Wright from behind. With him were Jhogo and Rakharo. They slashed wildly on the Ice Wrights armor. The Ice Wright had to turn to fight the new attack. More and more arrows were flying through the air. The three men had to give ground as the Ice Wright’s blade stressed their metal weapons. The Ice Wrights bodies jerking as more and more arrows were filling the air. The dragon glass striking their ice armor shattering. The magically inscribed iron tipped arrows hitting the ice armor blocks hard. Fractures and large pits appearing. The momentum of arrows fired at point blank range making the Ice Wrights jerk and stumble.

From the periphery of her version Daenerys saw a tall Ranyhyn come running in with a Haruchai as usual impossibly standing tall on its back. Rholm came flying into the fray launching off his Ranyhyn and impacted his foe to the ground. He wrestled it to the ground immobilizing the Ice Wrights limbs. The Ranyhyn kicking down on the armor of the trapped Ice Wright fracturing it.

It kicked wildly but was pinned. Robb ran in with a long dagger made of obsidian in his hand he knelt down while Rholm continued to control the Ice Wright. The thing whipped its head right and left so fast that Robb could not stab it. Rholm whipped his head down head butting the Ice Wright. Stunned it moved much slower. Now Robb slammed his dragon glass dagger through its right cheek into its brain. The thing’s scream loud and high pitched. Its body now released convulsed wildly in its death throws.

The last three were upon her again. She blocked the first one’s sword chop. Her rune sword easily repelling the ice cold of the Ice Wright’s blade. The collision of blades made her rune sword flare up in a strong medium blue pulse. The Queen pivoted down to the left and up swung her blade blocking the second Ice Wright’s sword stroke. The third was closing fast. She hacked right and left desperately parring their swords strokes. She slammed her Valyrian blade into the shoulder of one of the Ice Wright but its ice armor stopped the sword stroke. The block of ice cracked and webbed all over with chunks falling off.

She swirled and hacked her sword flashing blue glowing arcs all around as she hacked, stabbed and parried the blows aimed at her. She was as strong as the Ice Wrights and as fast. The four combatants circling and attacking. Daenerys staggered several times with blows striking her jet black dragon bone chainmail. The ancient dragon blow repelling the strikes of the Ice Wrights with ease. One of the Ice Wrights armor had been savaged by repeated magically enhanced iron strikes. Holes now in its armor.

One of the Ice Wright charged her again its sword strokes fast. Suddenly, its head whipped back. A Dragon Glass arrow had feathered the Ice Wright between the sides of its ice helm. The Ice Wright was making high pitched screams as it flipped on the ground its body kicking violently. Daenerys felt elation seeing the white fletching of Arya’s arrow that had killed the now still Icy spawn. The Ice Wright steaming as it dissipated.

She staggered to the side. She had been hit on the left shoulder. She grimaced but was unharmed. Her jet black dragon bone armor had resisted the bone deep cold and eldritch magic of the Ice Wright’s blade. The Ice Wright that had attacked her flinched back as more arrows slammed into its ice armor. She saw dragon glass arrows shatter but she saw more iron tipped arrows whisk by to hit the two remaining Ice Wrights.
One came in on her again. She knocked the blade up. She saw two blocks of ice side by side filled with dark cracks. She rammed her sword between the two blocks. Her sword slamming clear through the Ice Wright. It wailed and wildly bucked as she jerked her blade up gutting the admonition before her. Boiling blood spewed out its mouth, eyes and ears. It screams of dying sweet music to Daenerys’ ears.

Daenerys ripped her blade out and swirled to the right and lashed her blade out in a tight arc around her body. Her aim perfect. Her rune blade, Foe Hammer, cutting the head of the Ice Wright off as the blade hit the juncture between the spawn’s ice helm and body arm. Blue blood gushing out in all directions.

Eddard: Evening Star was leaving robin blue streaks in the air. The blade humming in high soprano notes. Two Ice Wrights had charged Eddard. He blocked their swords thrusts. They were fast but he was faster. His sword slamming into their ice armor. His sword strikes exploding the ice disks he had struck. He was saw that Drogon and Viserion had lifted up into the air and were breathing their deadly fire down on Ice Giants as they milled around trying to get at Rhaegal. The wounded dragon rear leg was limp. He was constantly having to shift his body to avoid the attacks coming at him.

An Ice Giant to the left of Rhaegal was running in. The world turned blue for a moment and loud ground shaking thunder rocked the world. The Ice Giant simply exploded when a mighty column of blue magical fire from Lord Lustra’s staff impacted its body. It was shocking the power of the woman. She was chopping down any Ice Wright or Ice Giant she could get a clear shot at. Her power to great to be used with any forces of Westeros near her intended targets.

He and one of the Ice Wrights hacked and parried each other’s sword strokes. Eddard slammed his sword through a weakened ice armor disk his sword slamming clear through the Ice Wright. It went into a wild death dance the thing’s wild jerks and flips kept the Warden of the North off balance. The second Ice Wright was moving in. Eddard cursed his sword arm as it jerked wildly.

From the left a silent Ghost leapt high through the air and slammed into the second Ice Wright. His massive body held the Ice Wright down as his massive jaws snapped down on the thing’s head and shoulders. Ghost’s muscles flexing his fangs sinking into the ice armor slowly shattering the ice armor with loud reports. Eddard had freed his sword. In a few bounds he was by Ghost. He stabbed down through a chink in the armor and disemboweled the Ice Wright.

Again the monstrosity went into a wild death dance his blood spraying out as the Ice Wright started to turn to mist.

Bedlam had broken out everywhere. Eddard saw the Lord of the Land gripping her staff. She was sweating but seemed full of vigor. She hesitated he saw. She was looking all around on her Ranyhyn mount. He understood. Her weapon was like a massive war hammer. She had to be careful using her Lord’s Fire with the enemy and friendlies all jumbled together. The Lord looking all around to find a target she could attack without harm to her fellow defenders. She found a target. Her staff erupting again with blue fire. A Ice Wright exploded.

Eddard looked around. He cursed. He saw Ice Giants and Ice Wrights moving into the forces of Westeros attacking formations still forming up. Men cut down. He saw that more and more arrows were firing at the Ice creatures. Dragon Glass was shattering on the armor but Iron tipped arrows were being fired as well. Ice Armor started to explode and fracture from multiple hits.

Eddard was happy to see the archers quickly switching over to iron tipped arrows as their weapon of choice. They understood the ice armor the Wrights and Giants were wearing had to be broken down. More and more ice armor was showing clear signs of damage now.
Eddard could see when Dragon Glass found a chink in the armor or got in a head shot. An Ice Wright would suddenly go into a wild dance macabre with Dragon Glass sunk deep into his body. Head shots killed them immediately while body shots or arrow hits to limbs began to poison the Ice beings. Black lines beginning to spread out from the point of where their body had been pierced. Still the icy beings were able to fight on. Their bodies only slowly weakening.

The Wrights felt the poison screaming in agony as they continued to fight. Their screams loud in the air. He ran at full speed to get at some Ice Wrights attacking a group of knights. The Ice Wrights moving like quicksilver. The knights’ armor blocked the force of the Ice Blades but the metal became more brittle with each strike and was beginning to shatter. The knights cut down.

As he ran he saw the Lord had ridden her Ranyhyn towards three Ice Giants killing men right and left. The Ice Giants height and strength too much for the men to deal with. The giants were also so massive the Lord could attack them without fear of hurting those she sought to protect. She was able to angle her columns of Lord’s Fire up at the tall foes. The Lord fired her staff off and a huge column of blue fire nearly eight feet tall slammed into the second Ice Giant and it simply blew up into shards.

The mighty blast of force sending out blue shockwaves that rippled over the battlefield lighting up the sky to the heavens in incandescent halos of magical might. Each blast of magical might echoed over the battlefield.

Brail was right behind her. She engaged the second Ice Giant with Ice. She used Ice with impossible skill. The large blade easily controlled by the Haruchai. She easily deflected the blade of the Ice Giant. Each impact made a loud ringing scream that filled the air. The Valyrian steel easily withstood the cold of the Icy blades it contended with.

Eddard was shocked at the woman’s skill. Her blade easily blocked each strike of the Ice Giant. Her counterstrikes slashed into the Ice Giant’s blade knocking it aside. Her next attacks hammering ice armor blocks and the helm of the Ice Giant. The Ranyhyn circling the Ice Giant to allow Brail to attack the tall foe from angles that put the Ice Giant at disadvantage. The armor of the Ice Giant now fractured all over from the powerful sword strikes and increasing iron tipped arrows striking it and its brothers.

An Ice Wright came over to engage Brail. The Haruchai and Ranyhyn saw it coming and twisted away with Brail blocking its sword slash. The Ranyhyn was leaping around avoiding the blades of their enemies. Brail was leaning right and left using Ice to block the blades of her foes while lashing out at her enemies. Lustra seeing her lover being attacked by two foes had ridden over fast.

One of the original Ice Giants she had engaged was now screaming in agony. Drogon had taken to the air and found a target for his dragon’s fire. He had the same issue as the Lord of Revelstone. He had to find targets he could attack without harming the forces he was allied with. The area around the Ice Giant had cleared. It was steaming and beginning to melt under the furnace fires spewing from Drogon’s mouth.

Lustra had her staff on her left shoulder. Frinny juked to the left and the Lord slashed down with her staff that glowed a hot bright dark blue the eldritch magic rippling up and down the wood and writhing on the iron shod ends. The staff end slammed into the Ice Wrights helm from the left side. Its head exploded into shards and gore. The body falling down like a puppet with its strings cut.

Eddard saw the Lord’s mount kick out with its hind feet hitting the Ice Giant attacking Brail. The Kick fracturing ice armor disks and staggering the Ice Giant. Another Ice Wright came in on Lustra stabbing at her wildly with its icy blade. Frinny leaped over and then spun around to avoid the fast moving Ice Wright. Lord Lustra was thrown around on her mount but she kept her balance. Brail followed the staggered Ice Giant atop Frahanoryl.

She slammed Ice into the Ice Giant’s body twice and then again. The thick ice armor exploded from the impossible strong strokes of the massive Valyrian steel blade. The ice armor now totally compromised. Brail then did a forward thrust her blade easily penetrating through the body of the Ice Giant. The Ice Giant’s head ripped back as it screamed in agony. Its icy blood gushing out the wound the Haruchai had inflicted upon it. The blood splashing over Brail. The cold did not affect her. She ripped the blade out of the Ice Giant that had fallen to its knees. Blood now pouring out its mouth as well as its side.

Eddard saw an Ice Wright stalking towards him. Still more arrows were in the air all the time now. He started when two arrows whisked by his head flying out to seek Ice Wrights and Giants. In fact, arrows were flying in all directions. Many finding their targets. All around where Ice Wrights and Giants walking and running around with iron tipped arrows jutting out their armor. When Dragon Glass impacted the armor the arrows exploded.

Eddard did not care. They had mountains of arrows of all types to fire off. The Ice Wright charging him had three arrows jutting out its ice armor. Two more hit near its shoulder. The Ice block exploded. Dragon glass arrows were exploding all over its icy armor. Then one found the just made hole in its armor sinking into its shoulder. It screamed in pain. The arm going dead.

Eddard did not hesitate he leapt forward and rammed his sword through the gap in the ice armor running his blade up through the vile things shoulder and out its neck on the opposite side of its body. It shrieked and convulsed wildly blood spewing out its orifices as it died.

The Lord of Revelstone obliterated the third Ice Giant with a mighty blast of blue Lord’s fire. The explosion of might sending royal blue light bolting off to the heavens and mighty peals of thunder echoing over the battlefield. Eddard shook his head at the Lord’s power. She was but one of many in her homeland. He had vastly underestimated her strength, power and resolve. She rode off looking for more foes to engage. Brail on her heels protecting her back.

Arya: Arya was running around firing her bow at her enemies. She and Marleya Blackmyre had gathered seven of their best marksmen bowmen. The men having shaken off their initial shock at finding the enemy in their midst. The very best archers having formed a loose association and hung together when time was slack. That paid dividends now. The group staying close together to give them the ability to communicate on targets and to give them volume of fire to overcome ice armor and through mass firing of arrows finding chinks in armor to get Dragon Glass through for fatal shots or wounding shots to poison.

Jeertel was always on her right shoulder defending Arya and attacking when possible the foes attacking them. Jeertel easily blocking the sword attacks against her. Her fist and feet fracturing and at times shattering ice blocks of the Icy spawn’s armor. Other bowmen were running around firing off at the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants with the magically iron tipped arrows at the Icy creatures. The bowmen firing their weapons as fast as they could. They had runners following them with many quivers hooked over their shoulders. They were staying near Rhaegal. The Ice Wrights and Ice Giants seemed intent on killing the wounded dragon.

The vile spawn wanted a major victory and desperately sought to finish off the dragon. The Ice Wrights and Giants focused on finishing the wounded dragon with almost a maniacal focus. Rhaegal in his shock was not able to lift off the ground and was whipping his body around defending himself.

Drogon and Viserion were burning Ice Wrights and Giants that were near to their wounded brethren. All the humans had cleared out from around Rhaegal and were firing off their bows and throwing javelins at the Icy spawn of the Ice King from thirty yards and further out. The Ice Wrights bodies could not take direct blasts of the dragon’s fire. Their ice armor not thick or heavy enough to withstand the broiling hot magical flame at point blank range. The Ice Giants thick armor blocks were able to withstand one or two gouts of dragon fire but each blast melted and fractured the thick Ice armor.

The Ice Giants may have survived the initial droughts of fire but they staggered around and swayed clearly addled by the immense heat.

The Direwolves were engaging Ice Wrights keeping their attention. The Direwolves were as fast as the Ice Wrights. They were staying just outside of the range of the swords of the Ice Wrights. There was at least twenty Ice Wrights attacking around the wounded dragon. Drogon came slamming down from two hundred feet up obliterating two Ice Wrights with his massive weight. His head shot out to bite an Ice Wright that had dove out of the way of Drogon’s crashing body.

The ground shook violently from the impact. Arya had lost all track of the massive black dragon and was shocked when its enormous body slammed back down to earth. She righted herself. Viserion circled around in a tight spiral when his head shot out and a mighty gout of flame poured out his mouth. Two Ice Wrights were incinerated. Their ice armor exploded and then their bodies exploded as their blood boiled. Off in the distance Arya saw and felt another massive royal blue shockwave detonate. The magical explosions of brute force shouting to the heavens and bouncing off the Wall. She could see the Lord of Revelstone on her Ranyhyn with her staff in her hands.

The staff rippling with bright dark blue power. Then the staff seemed to ignite into a bonfire and a pillar of the blue Lord’s Fire came erupting out its iron shod end. The magical words she sometimes spoke echoing across the battlefield now. The force slamming into an unseen enemy like a battering ram assaulting a castle gate. Brail was at her side with Ice in her hand keeping the Lord’s back protected. Several Ice Wrights simply ceased to exist upon impact of the Lord’s fire. Their bodies shattered and completely blown apart.

Arya was firing her bow striking the ice armor of her foes. The armor becoming fractured and chunks starting to fall off. Five Giants from the Land came charging in and engaged the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants. The Ice Giants moved forward to engage the Giants. The Giants of the southern hemisphere first slammed into the Ice Giants with the iron shields on their non-dominate arms. The Ice Giants staggered from the powerful bulrush.

The sounds of massive blades slamming into each other rang loudly in the air. The Giants granite blades were easily the equal of the Ice Wright and Giants blades. The Ice Giants gave way and retreated from the Giants. Three were felled by the sword work of the Giants from the southern hemisphere. The armor of the Icy spawn already compromised by the repeated magical iron tipped arrows. The Giants exploding ice blocks of their icy perverted brothers and stabbing into the opening their swords had created. The Ice Giants pierced clean through by the thick long blades of the Giants.

The sword strikes and thrusts ruining the organs of the Ice Giants. One Ice Giant head sent spinning off into the distance.

The Giants used their massive iron shields to block many of the strokes of their icy foes. The bodies of the mighty contestants staggering back from the strength of their titanic blows. The sound of iron being crashed into granite echoed and the colliding blades made shrill screams of protest. The giants of Westeros fighting with only pure strength while the Giants of the southern hemisphere also fought with supreme skill married to their own prodigious strength.

A Giant’s armor was pierced by a sword thrust of an Ice Giant. She fell back her upper body bleeding. The Ice Giant had no time to celebrate its small victory. Its head sent spinning by the sword swing of a Giant that caught it at the juncture of head and throat.

The blade of the foes colliding violently. Sparks flew off the contestants swords with their mighty collisions. The giants of Westeros were strong but had not trained as warriors. They were quickly on the defense. Two more Ice Giants were chopped down. Their bodies wildly flipping on the ground. Their screams of dying loud and heinous.

A Giant was wounded in the leg and was about to have her head cleaved in two when a female Haruchai came flying through the air from behind the fight. The Haruchai’s foot kicking the Ice Giant in the head sending it spinning. Another Haruchai came in. He had picked up a fallen Ice Wright sword. Arya felt elations seeing the Haruchai keeping their promise to use weapons to help kill their enemies. They deemed the balance of life in Westeros hung in the balance.

He found holes that had been punched in the ice armor of the Ice Giant. The ice forged blade piercing the Ice Giant again and again in its thighs and groin. Its icy blood pulsing out in gouts. The Ice Giant fell to its knees. The Haruchai stabbed it in the face with its purloined ice blade. The blade ripped out its head the Giant fell down dead.

Arya saw an opportunity. She pulled out a dragon glass arrow. Marleya Blackmyre had seen it too along with another archer. They all let fly their Dragon Glass arrows. An Ice Wright looked down at its stomach where its ice armor had been destroyed. Three Dragon Glass arrows jutted out its stomach. It began to scream as black tendrils quickly travelled all over its body that began web together. The foul spawn began to convulse. It fell to the ground wildly convulsing as it died.

Arya looked around to survey the current situation. She saw a Giant shatter an Ice Wright’s helm and with her Glaive. She fired off a snap shot with a Dragon Glass arrow that slammed into its head from the back the Dragon Glass shattering in its skull. It dropped down dead.

Arya quickly notched another iron tipped arrow. The runners were scurrying around the Ice Wrights to bring more arrows to the archers. Arrows that were flying thick now into the Ice creatures. Many of the bowmen were not marksmen like Arya and Marleya. They were to fly arrows in mass at the sea of walking dead and advancing Ice Wrights and Giants at distance. That had been the plan. Now they had to contend with them in their midst. It was a deadly situation having so many arrows fired so wild and fast but it could not be helped.

The Ice creatures were cutting down foot soldiers and bowmen but they were definitely taking heavy damage to their armor and more were dropping dead. Arya ducked her head when an iron tipped arrow whizzed by over her head. She saw some arrows bounding off knights that were trying to engage the Ice Giants and Wrights. The Dragon Glass shattering on the armor.

As she watched, Jon was fighting three Ice Giants that had advanced on him. The Ice Wrights had given Jon a wide berth not wanting any parts of Lightbringer reborn. Arya saw three dead Ice Wright bodies around Jon. Their deaths teaching the surviving Ice Wrights to stay back from Azor Ahai reborn. Those slain were already misting away. Jon was blocking blows and dodging the Ice Giants non graceful sword strikes. His wives were behind him protecting his back. Their fingers would shot out Shadow Daggers that slammed into the thick blocks of ice on the Ice Giants shattering them.

An Ice Wright had discovered courage and tried to sneak up on Jon from the left rear but nearly twenty Shadow Daggers slammed into his armor and body. The initial shadow daggers exploded its ice armor. The remaining shadow sunk deep into the Ice Wright’s body. His body immediately boiling as it screamed its death throe.
A Haruchai jumped on the back of one of the Ice Giants. He quickly climbed the icy armor. His body immune to the intense cold radiating off the tall body and armor. He gripped the Ice Giant’s head with one hand. With his other fist the Haruchai hammered the Ice Giant’s helm that began to fracture and then shattered. The Haruchai jumped off and rolled away. A blizzard of Dragon Glass arrows flew out at the Ice Giant’s head. Many missed but at least five hit their target. It fell back dead on its feet. Its mighty crash unremarked in the confusion of battle.

Jon chopped the leg off the third Ice Giant sending it crashing to the ground. Its sword falling from its grip. The Haruchai rushed in picking up the sword and rammed it down the Ice Giant’s throat into its body. Its bellows of agony and death echoing in the air. The male Haruchai left the Ice Giant pinned to the Earth with its own sword.

Daenerys: The Queen was a running around Rhaegal defending her wounded dragon. His brothers were vicious attacking the Ice creatures that attempted to move in to attack the green dragon. Their fiery breath killing Ice Wrights outright and either wounding or killing the Ice Giants. The icy creatures now hesitating to move in again on Rhaegal.

It seemed clear to the Queen that the Ice creatures had banked on being invisible and their opponents not having weapons that could truly hurt them. The creations of the Ice King banking on invisibility to attack their foes unawares. The Ice Wrights and Giants not focusing on Rhaegal had spread out and were creating mayhem but they too were being cut down one by one. It seemed as if the air had become a blizzard of arrows.

Daenerys jerked her head to the side suddenly. An arrow and then another when whizzing by her head. She knew some degree of friendly fire were killing of her own troops. The accidental fratricide of her own men by their brethren filled the Queen with rage but had to accept that reality. This ambush had to be dealt with. All possible force exerted to kill these assassins post haste.

The real army of the enemy was on the other side of the Wall waiting to get at them. Daenerys feared the Wall might come down at any moment. Her head whipped around to look at the Wall. She now wondered why the Ice King was not felling the Wall. Why spring this surprise attack and not launch the assault on the Wall with the Horn of Winter and bring it down. She wondered and had no answer. She was only thankful that no coordinated attacked seemed to be about to commence.

She engaged another Ice Wright. Their swords colliding. Her rune sword slamming into the ice forged blade. Her blue glowing blade flared with their sword strikes. Both blades screaming but it was the Ice Wright’s blade that shattered. Daenerys shouted in triumph and stabbed the Ice Wright through the throat. She jerked her sword back to let it die jackknifing on the ground. Great gouts of blue blood gushing out its pierced throat choking its screams of death.

Six Giants of the southern continent had spread out to defend Rhaegal. Their swords too much for the Ice Wrights who had quickly learned to fall back. A Giant fell back with a leg wound when an Ice Wright’s blade found a weakness and stabbed her thigh. The wounded Giant fell back hobbled but supported her sisters by stabbing out and keeping Ice Wrights back while her sisters swirled their mighty stone blades in tight arcs against the ice armor of the Ice Giants.

She saw Stannis fight another Ice Wright off in front of her to the right. She saw that his large size seemed to overwhelm the Ice Wright. She had noticed from her first battle with the Icy spawn of the Ice King that they were tall but slight of build. They were strong but it was their magical blades and the cold of their being that was their true strength.

Stannis’s Valyrian blade and his size cancelled out any advantage the Ice Wright may have thought it had. She saw with satisfaction that Valyrian steel was superior. With a mighty down chop of Stannis’s sword, the blade shattered the blade of his foe. The thing looked with large eyes at its ruined sword. The next down chop found a crease in the things ice armor. The blade shattering the ice blocks and slamming into its arm at the shoulder.

The blade cleaved clear through the thin appendage. The arm falling to the ground with the ruined sword still in hand. Blue white blood pumped out its body at the missing joint. The hand holding the blade on the ground twitched. Stannis then sent its head spinning off its body. He moved to join a Haruchai fighting a group of five Ice Wrights that had attacked a line of soldiers forming a phalanx.

The Ice Wrights had killed at least twenty men before they could organize a solid defensive wall of steel. But now, the Ice Wrights were fighting for their own lives. The female Haruchai easily blocked any attacks at herself and was able to land blows that staggered the Ice Wrights. The thin beings fighting to get their balance back. The Haruchai totally unaffected by the cold of the ice blades she slapped aside.

Now iron tipped arrows were flying in at the Ice Wrights and Giants in ever growing numbers. The shock of the unexpected attack had died and now her archers were formed up and firing rapidly at the enemy in their midst. Their iron tipped arrows kept hammering into their foes bodies slowly destroying their armor. An Ice Giant came running in to aid its smaller brothers. Two Haruchai had appeared to engage the Ice Giant. Their strikes of fist and feet slowly cracking the ice armor. Iron tipped arrows were shattering other ice blocks of armor higher up on its body.

Then the Queen heard it. A roar like her dragons but yet not like them at all. She looked up and she felt raw anger flush her face. What she had feared had indeed come to pass. A dragon came flying over the wall and descended towards her troops. The Ice Dragon was about the size of Viserion. His body the light blue of glaciers. His scales had slightly darker blue highlights.

The Queen saw the dragon’s mouth open wide. She had expected fire to come out of its mouth. That was not what spewed forth. Instead it was a blizzard of ice daggers about four inches long that burst forth from its maul and flew towards the ground at a dizzying speed. Men fell dead squired by ice daggers.

The ice had to have magical properties. The ice hardened and able to penetrate coke forged steel armor. It was shocking to see the icy daggers so easily pierce steel armor. Many slammed the ground not finding a target but at least as many if not more found a target. Men lay dead, dying or wounded in the path of the ice daggers.

The dragon roared as it flew up to bank over. The things mighty wings pumped hard lifting the body up. It looked back down at her. It was staying well away from Drogon and Viserion. Both dragons turned their heads to look at the light blue dragon as it did another pass spewing out icy death to the hapless men that happened to be in the path of its ice daggers. The two hale dragons still needed to stay close to Rhaegal.

Daenerys sent a command to her two unhurt dragons to not engage the Ice Dragon without her with them to guide them. They huffed in anger but obeyed their mother and their need to defend Rhaegal strong.

Daenerys was enraged. She knew that dragons could only spew out so much fire or in this case ice before they depleted their fuel. This was why dragons ate so much to fuel their ability to breathe fire or ice. It took much food and energy. That was why her dragons did much of their damage using their size and bulk. This new dragon could not dare to come down to the ground with two healthy dragons waiting to engage it in mortal combat.
She watched the dragon make another pass in the thick of her camp. Men were raising shields now but it was still able to pierce the shields but the energy of the down flung ice daggers was much reduced. Now their armor was able to resist the ice daggers. Still, this aerial assault was disrupting the organization of her army. She did not like that!

Daenerys was torn. She needed to defend her sons but her army was under threat. She yelled seeing a Ranyhyn cut down. The Haruchai thrown off but she landed on her feet and rushed to the Ranyhyn’s defense as the Ice Wright moved in. She was too far away to help the mighty Ranyhyn. From nowhere Eddard appeared to engage the Ice Wright. His sword left blue trailers in the air as he parried and then slowly drove the Ice Wright back. Each strike of his blade on the Ice Wrights blade made it flare bright blue. Each blow pulsing harder. The Haruchai went to the Ranyhyn to aid it.

Eddard and the Ice Wright circled each other. The two blocking each other’s blows till Eddard sliced his sword through a gap in his foe’s armor that had been punched through by the magically enhanced iron tipped arrows. His blade buried all the way to the hilt in the torso of the Ice Wright. The thing started to scream but that was cut off when Eddard yelled using both hands to rip his sword up and back. The blade cutting the thing nearly in two killing it instantly before ripping his blade out its dead body. Eddard’s sword impossibly sharp and filled with powerful magic.

In the distance Daenerys saw Jon fighting an Ice Giant. His magical blade easily blocking the mighty chops and swings of the Ice Giant’s massive blade. The sword of Azor Ahai giving Jon strength that a man did not normally have. He parried the blows till he could move in close to attack the body of the Ice Giant. His magical blade of fire and heat seemed to both melt and shatter the thick blocks of ice the blade met. With the armor opened up Jon cut the Ice Giant across its unprotected belly. The split torso gushed out guts intestines and ichor. Its icy blue blood welling out in ice cold gushes.

Daenerys eyes widened seeing another effect of Jon’s sword on his icy foe. The fire of his sword set the blood of the Ice Giant afire. The thing had dropped its sword to try and hold its guts in but now blue steam pulsed out its cut open torso. Blue steam poured outs its mouth, eyes and ears. The Ice Giant fell to its knees where Jon beheaded it.

Drogon slammed down to the Earth again from a hundred feet up crushing an ice wright. Its body lay on the ground broken with blue blood spilling out the ruined body. An Ice Giant had picked up the sword of a fallen Ice Giant and thrown it up at Viserion as he hovered at two hundred feet. The Ice Giant did not have the power of a scorpion behind the throw. Gravity sucking the energy from the throw itself. The ice sword hit Viserion’s thick scales and bounced off. The Giants were strong but not that strong. The Ice Wights and Ice King would have even less strength being so much smaller. Physics was physics Daenerys thought to herself.

The Queen engaged two Ice Wights that had suddenly appeared. She desperately fought them off. Their speed was truly frightening. From behind the Ice Wright to her left Strong Belwas appeared and his Valyrian scimitar sliced hard into its back of the Ice Wright to her right. His blade shattered the ice blocks on its back. The Ice Wright staggered and turned to face Strong Belwas. Bannor came flying in with a heel kick that stunned the Ice Wright with an impact in its face. It fell to its knees. Bannor moved in landing blows fast and furious.

Seregrom appeared and gripped the Ice Wright from behind and threw him back to Strong Belwas. The Haruchai moved on knowing Strong Belwas was more than a match for the Ice Wright. The two fought trading blows. The Ice Wright was tiring with the relentless punishment it had taken. Still, Belwas had to perform his damn ritual Daenerys fumed. The fool let the damn Ice Wright lightly cut him across his belly before he decapitated it. Sometime Belwas really stemmed her ass Daenerys thought in a huff.
The second Ice Wright was skilled and fast. Daenerys was impressed. This must be an older Ice Wright that had learned actual sword fighting skills. She was being careful. Her rune sword slamming into the Ice Wright’s blade. Her rune sword glowing hotly blue. It was the Ice Wright blade that screamed in protest nearly shattering under her blows.

A Haruchai came in riding on his Ranyhyn at a suicidal fast pace towards her Daenerys saw. The Ranyhyn at the last moment angled its body away. The Haruchai stood up on the horse’s back impossibly keeping her balance on the Ranyhyn’s wildly jostling body. Daenerys had gotten used to the displays of impossible skill and strength of the Haruchai. Damn show offs!

The Haruchai came flying off her Ranyhyn that had ridden up at a fast gallop. The Haruchai slammed into the Ice Wright taking it to the ground. In a fury punches and kicks she pummeled the Ice Wright. The Ice Wright was stunned. In that moment the Haruchai ripped the Ice Wright’s sword from its gash and slammed the blade through its eye pinning it to the ground as it body went wild kicking and jerking in its death.

The cold had no effect on the Haruchai. Daenerys had a moment to think on the Haruchai mind speech. Her personal guard Bannor and Seregrom had moved on to fight other battles knowing that (she thought for a moment—yes, Howsrul) would come up to take out the Ice Wright attacking her. How these people could keep track of themselves and their enemies in such a confused battlefield was totally beyond Daenerys.

As Daenerys, watched Howsrul gripped the mane of the Ranyhyn that had come up to her and she mounted the Ranyhyn and moved off to find more foes to fight. She took with her the ice sword of the Ice Wright she had just killed.

Bannor and Seregrom were fighting an Ice Wright. The Ice Wright fighting for its life.

Arya came running up to Daenerys. She fired off a Dragon Glass arrow that imbedded into the thigh of an Ice Giant where its armor had been destroyed. It screamed in pain. Daenerys already saw black tendrils spreading behind the clear ice armor still remaining. The poison spreading slowly. More arrows hammered the Ice Giant from all sides now as more and more archers were forming up and firing off at will.

Many archers now lined up in companies of phalanxes that allowed them to fire off in mass. This increased the effectiveness of their fire. Arrows being fired off in volleys that flew out to land like a downpour on their targets.

Daenerys’s grimaced again seeing arrows flying in every which direction but it could not be helped at the moment. The fire was more organized but still it was disconcerting ducking to the right with an arrow whizzing by. This strike force had to be put down. Fast! Fortunately, probably most of the arrows were dragon glass and easily shattered on both ice and steel armor. This kept her losses from fratricide down.

Daenerys caught her breath as Arya fired off two more iron tipped arrows breaking ice armor of a wright and then sent a Dragon glass arrow into a hole in the Ice Wright’s armor on its back the arrow sinking in deep. It was not an instant kill but it slowed the Ice Wright that now gasped. Four knights descended on it and soon hacked it to death. The poison of the obsidian in its blood now made it susceptible to the deadly steel of the knights. Only two of the swords shattered with the cold.

There was plenty of swords lying around with the dead and wounded now. The knights picked up a new blades to further the fight. With the shock now worn off the men of Westeros were forming up to make iron phalanxes that would hold the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants in place long enough for arrows, Valyrian Steel, Dragons and Direwolves to put them down.
Daenerys looked up at the sky again at the … what … ice dragon? It had swooped back down for another pass spewing out ice daggers. Men fell down pierced by the ice projectiles penetrating their bodies. Dammit Daenerys swore. The Ice Dragon had magical properties to what it spewed forth from its mouth. The Queen looked at the tableau around her dragons. Ice Wrights and Ice Giants were still attacking in earnest.

The Valyrian gnawed her lip. She needed to be in two places at once.

Arya was at her side from nowhere seemingly.

“Go on Drogon and fight that Ice Dragon Dany. We will handle the danger her on the ground. The dragons are attracting the Ice Wrights and Giants to us for killing.” Arya had her bow notched but relaxed. That changed in an instant. She brought the bow up. It had a Dragon Glass tipped arrow on the string. The string was pulled back and the string released sending the arrow whistling off towards it target. Daenerys did not know if it hit its mark.

Behind her she saw Viserion pumping his wings hard hovering his body at fifty feet. His mouth let out a mighty gout of flames. Loud high pitched screams came from where the flames were hitting the ground.

“Go and slay that abomination Dany. Put it down and put it out of its misery.” Arya made intense eye contact with her Queen. “That thing up there should never have been. Go and kill it my Queen.” Arya gave her a cheeky smile. The Queen loved her Arya!

The Queen of Westeros nodded once and ran off to the left.

Daenerys looked up. Her dragon was up in the air hovering. Drogon had an Ice Wright in his mouth chewing on him. She sent her command to him. Drogon spit out the ruined body of the Ice Wright body parts going in all directions. Drogon came down from two hundred feet. His rear legs touched down on the ground. Daenerys ran up to him sheathing her rune sword on her back as she gripped his hot scales and quickly started to climb up his body.

Her body snatched forward as his body lunched up into the air. Drogon knew his mistress was strong and capable. He needed to attack his enemy in the sky. Ancient instincts kicked in. Drogon felt rage boil in his veins at this dragon that challenged his right to supremacy. Daenerys held on tight to her dragon’s body as it strived to gain attitude. She slowly climbed up onto his back as he gained attitude.

Drogon’s mighty roar of rage at the abomination flying above him echoed in the air. Drogon quickly rose up in the air gaining altitude fast moving towards the foe he meant to kill. Daenerys looked down as her dragon rose up to meet his foe awaiting him. She saw many Ice Wrights and Ice Giants fighting but she saw that many were dead already. Her forces forming up and attacking the surprise attack force with a vengeance now. The remaining Ice spawn would be quickly dispatched.

She turned her gaze back skywards. Off ahead of her and rising up was the Ice Dragon. She and Drogon both screamed their challenge. Drogon pinioned his mighty wings gaining attitude and speed. Daenerys had climbed onto his back and settled into her favorite spot. Her hands worked in between scales and held on tight. They had an Ice dragon to kill.

Ice King: The Ice King stared at the Horn of Winter. He had blown into the horn. He had felt a low powerful rumbling and low bass sound but nothing had happened beyond that. Surprisingly, there was little sound from the horn. Several times he had blown the horn with a powerful breath but beyond the rumbling and low bass note nothing else happened. He stared aghast at the horn.
He turned the Horn of Winter over in his hands examining it. The runes cut into it foreign to his eyes. The Croyel was jabbering wildly. Each time the sky to the south flared bright royal blue the Croyel cried out in terror. His fangs sinking painfully deep into his throat while the Croyel’s short limbs kicked and its talons raked his body drawing blood.

He ignored the pain. He was starting to feel the terror he had felt those millennium ago. The fear prickling down his spine. He saw another blue flare on the other side of the Wall. It lit up the darkened sky like a bolt of blue lightening. He felt another of his adopted children crying out in terror that was cutoff. The echoes of Lord’s mighty Lords fire echoing off the Wall and reverberating in the air around him.

He stared again in rising horror at the useless horn in his hands. He had been so sure. All his plans revolved around the Wall coming down and falling upon his hapless foes. If the Wall stood he would have to force his way through the tunnels and be savaged by the damnable dragons. He felt his own dragon killing his foes right and left but he needed so much more.

Another mighty blast of blue Lord’s fire splashed across the sky and he felt two more Ice Giants slain. Her fire simply shattered their bodies and splashed their boiled blood to the sky.

His son had warned him of her power but he had no concept of this kind of power. The mages of old had not been able to project such concentrated force and devastation. The wizards of eight thousand years ago cast spells but did not project raw naked power like he was seeing now from the other side of the Wall. His true son cried out in terror. Another blue flare of impossible might surged high up into the sky. The Ice King felt several of his Ice Wright sons obliterated. He had to get to them but how? How?!

He turned on his true son in a savage mental assault. He cut off the flow of blood to his son. The Croyel immediately screaming in new raw personal terror and raw hungry need.

“Father! Why do you assault me! I need you! We are one!” the Croyel yammered in panic to the man he had formed a symbiotic parasitic relationship with him. The Croyel sucked desperately for the blood he needed to survive. None was to be found. His little limbs kicked in panic. The Croyel screamed to his father’s mind. The two had become one. The Croyel was loyal he screamed to his father’s mind.

“You lied to me! You said this is the Horn of Winter. The horn of legend! I will kill you!”

“If I die you die father! It is the Horn of Winter. I have not lied to you!”

“The Wall still stands! I need to bring down the fucking Wall! Now! Our Ice Wrights and Giants are being cut down. We need to bring in our dead and their brothers to the fray. Why is the Wall still standing?!”

The Ice King felt his son writhing on his back. His son was near weeping now with blood loss. The Ice King took a deep breath to calm his anger and nerves. His son was weakening fast. He relented and let blood flow back to where the Croyel’s small fangs were sunk into his throat.

His son whimpered and drank deeply the blood flow restored to him. The small yellow body shuddered as the Croyel luxuriated in the blood flow returned to its mouth. The Croyel whimpered his loyalty and cried out to his father why had he attacked him. He was trying to serve him the Croyel wept.
The Ice King felt his true son reviving as he drank his father’s blood. The Croyel’s thoughts had become frayed and weak. Now his son’s thoughts were becoming strong and sure again. His son hummed as he thought. The Ice King could feel his son truly trying to solve this riddle. This calmed the frayed nerves of the Ice King.

After a minute the Croyel spoke to his father. “I see the problem father” the Croyel spoke to his father’s mind. “You are blowing the Horn of Winter as if you were trying to summon an army to battle formation. That is not the purpose of the Horn of Winter. You are blowing a short powerful note. That is not how the Horn of Winter is to be used. The Wall is mighty and imposing structure. It will take a sustained musical note to bring it down.”

“I feel that the Horn of Winter must be blown again and again continuously to setup a harmonic that will tear the Wall apart.”

The Ice King listened taking in the information and tried to process it. It was in many ways beyond him. Then suspicion flared hot in his soul again. Had not his true son fought against the use of the Horn of Winter and now he was telling his father how to use it? Was his son somehow trying to betray him?!

“What are you doing son?” the Ice King thought to his son.

The Croyel ceased his explanation of his thoughts. He was fearful again. He had heard the threatening tone in his father’s voice.

“What do you mean father! I am serving you!” screamed in his father’s mind. Why was his father turning on him now yet again as he tried to help him?! The Croyel thought wildly in its fear.

“In the past you have actively fought against me about the use of the Horn but now in my hour of crisis you suddenly support me. Do you seek to betray me while I am distracted?” the Ice King thought silently to his true son. He was distraught at the situation and lashing out.

His son shivered with fear. They both felt another shockwave of power as the sky again flared blue on the other side of the Wall. The clouds scudding by at several thousand feet reflecting back the blue of the Lord’s fire. The echo of its might now reverberating down over the forces on the other side of the Wall.

The Ice King felt another Ice Wright son obliterated. One moment he was alive and the next he had ceased to exist.

The two looked up at the blue that now faded. Five seconds later another mighty explosion of blue light and sound shocked the air and lite the sky. Another Ice Wright had been annihilated.

“Father, listen to me. In ages past when Lord Foul brought down the Council of the Old Lords he did not do it through might. He achieved his victory through guile. He was able to disguise himself somehow to appear as one of them. He then led the High Council to ambush and death. High Lord Kevin sensed a trap and did not go but his despair from not going led him to the folly of the Ritual of Desecration.”

“So powerful was that rite that several of my brothers died in that maelstrom of destruction. Lord Foul achieved his victory through deception not through brute strength. I can enhance magic but I cannot do what I was not born to do unless my host grants me those abilities.”

“You are not Roger Covenant or Jeremy” the Croyel explained to his father. “We learn from each union but your magic is different. I cannot change our appearance to fool others. The denizens of the Land would sense our true nature anyways.”

“No father. We will not win by deception or chicanery. You can see the Lord’s might. We avoided working our magic in the Land during the reign of the Old Lords. They were too powerful. I had almost forgotten their might. I told you I feared them. The Elohim make them pale by comparison. Maybe now you see my concerns for your desires to go South to wage war on forces that have access to magic this world long forgot or maybe never knew.”

“This Lord of Revelstone is mighty and yet in Revelstone she is only one of many. She does not hold the Staff of Law. The power you see …” they both paused as another mighty detonation of magical might erupted lighting the sky bright blue and then the echo and rumbling of loud thunder flowed over the Wall “is only a hundredth of what the Staff of Law can produce. Maybe more.”

The Ice King was listening intently. He had indeed underestimated the woman who was killing his sons and giants. Another Ice Giant and two Ice Wrights had died in that last blast. Worse, and what the Croyel could not sense was the poisoning of his created Sons and Giants. Evidently, the Crows still had stores of Dragon Glass tipped weapons. He felt his Sons dying from the cursed obsidian tipped weapons. Somehow their ice armor was being breached.

He needed to get to the other side! His son was continuing his explanation.

“I do fear the repercussions of using the Horn of Winter but feeling the Lord’s might we need to attack and kill her immediately. My fear of what is possible is overridden by the present. The Lord is too powerful. We need to bring down the Wall so we can attack with our full force while the enemy is distracted. If our strike force is decimated and they have time to mount the wall and attack from above then all may well be lost.”

“I fear your Ice Dragon will be neutralized by the Queen’s dragons if we do not attack now. Thus, I will throw my might and knowledge fully into using the Horn of Winter. We must survive the threat of today to worry about the threats of tomorrow.”

“You will need to blow the Horn of Winter continuously to setup the harmonics that will bring the Wall down. The notes must be continuous and full of strength.”

“How am I am supposed to be able to blow continuously and yet breathe to get the air to blow into the horn?” the Ice King asked in exasperation. His true son was asking for the impossible.

“It is called circular breathing father. Relax and let me guide you in your breathing. Just concentrate on blowing into the lip of the horn and I will regulate your breath to keep you blowing into the Horn of Winter.”

The Ice King did not relish giving control of any sort to another. Even his true son. He had merged with the Croyel long enough now to know it was totally symbiotic with him. It would never again try to control him. The Croyel had tried and failed. He had punished his true son most severely. Since then they had truly become one.

The Ice King took a deep breath.

Oberyn: It was chaos all around Oberyn. He had seen the Lord of Revelstone decimate the immediate threat to the dragons. He had no more time to devote to them. An Ice Wright was charging him. He stabbed out with his spear deflecting the sword of the Ice Wright and the Valyrian steel tip of his spear slammed into a block of its ice armor over its heart. The ice cracked heavily but stayed in place. The two circled each other with one swinging a sword and the other thrusting with a spear. The two negating each other.
Two arrows with iron tips hit the Ice Wright on his right shoulder shattering the ice armor that had already been weakened by several strikes of magically enhanced iron tipped arrows. Oberyn took advantage stabbing his spear clear through the fucker’s body at that point. The Ice Wright screamed and began to jerk wildly. It then moved forward driving the spear through its body but coming closer to Oberyn its sword lifted up to strike him. It wanted to kill the man who had killed it.

Oberyn twisted the spear flipping the Ice Wright over to the ground. Some knight he had never seen before appeared and chopped off its head that spewed out blue steaming blood. Oberyn was impressed. A Valyrian steel blade. Most be a family heirloom. The man ran off to engage the next ice wright before Oberyn could stop him to thank him.

He looked around. He saw off in the distance Grey Wind and Lady tearing an Ice Wright limb from limb blue blood spaying out in wild gushes. He looked to the left. Syrio had squired an Ice Wright through its eye killing it. The Ice Wright wildly flipping on the sword point. Syrio flicked his sword to jerk out of the Ice Wright’s skull.

He saw an Ice Wright killing some conscripts from the Stormlands going by the standard in their midst. Their weapons useless against the ice steel of the Ice Wright’s sword. Oberyn took his spear and hefted taking aim. He threw his spear. His aim was true. The spear slammed into the back of the creature’s neck between helm and body armor. The spear point exploded out its throat. It fell down dead. Oberyn ran up to the dead Ice Wright and jerked his spear free.

The men recovering from shock thanked him.

He cursed. He heard a wild cacophony of war horns from the rear of the camp. The traitors were attacking. Oberyn could not see the state of that battle. Dany had her Unsullied there. They were beyond reproach. They did not let their concentration lap but they still had to been caught off guard by the sudden attack. He saw a horse bucking around. He went and grabbed its tack and started to control the horse. He would go and aid them.

It seemed that the Queen had plenty of defenders around her dragons.

He noted Lord Lustra. In the area the Lord was at, Oberyn saw the surviving Ice Rights had enveloped their enemies fighting in close. This protected them from Lustra’s massive power and kept as many arrows from attacking them. He watched Frinny bull her way through the host of his Queen getting the Lord of Revelstone close to the Ice Rights. She now used her flaming staff like a long mace. Her staff was a fearsome weapon. The Ice Rights having to give way against her.

Her staff was burning blue up and down the wood in shimmering ripples of magical might. Instead of using her staff to project power she slammed her staff into her foes when she reached them. The staff come mace was a devastating weapon. Ice armor exploded with one strike. The next strike shattering the Icy body of the Ice Wright.

Brail while protecting her Lord. This allowed the Lord to be able to surge forward. The Haruchai savage in her attack with Ice. The Ice Rights having to defend themselves from Brail. This prevented the Ice Rights from attacking the defenders of Westeros. It also distracted them from attacking Lustra and made it easier for the Lord to attack the Ice Rights. Brail’s mighty heavy Valyrian sword doing massive damage to the ice armor of the Ice Rights. Oberyn saw Brail down chop with Ice splitting an Ice Rights helm and head clean in two down to its chin.

Oberyn heard the thunder of hooves. He looked back and saw seven Haruchai on their Ranyhyn mounts ride up to him. Ferna brought her Ranyhyn up beside the horse Oberyn was trying to corral to settle it. Ten Giants came running up too. Eight were their warrior women and the two men from the crew of the Giant ships. Oberyn saw Ranrika circling on her Ranyhyn. In her left hand an ice sword of a fallen Ice Wright.

Ferna spoke to Oberyn. “We go the aid of the Unsullied too. We wish to strike a blow against these vile traitors. Let us ride.”

Oberyn had gotten up on the horse. He spun around several times getting his horse under control. He saw the Giants hefting their iron shields. Their massive swords being gripped hard. The look in their eyes promised death to the camps of the Freys and the Boltons. He finally got his horse under control. He nodded his head to Ferna. His mouth nearly fell off when she gave him a slight smile turning her Ranyhyn around.

He cursed when the Ranyhyn galloped off with an acceleration that his horse could never hope to match leaving him behind. He kicked his horse to get him moving fast. As his horse picked up speed the Giants easily kept pace beside his charging warhorse. Oberyn was impressed with the warrior women’s speed carrying all that armor, massive iron shields and their heavy glaive swords. There was wide lanes in the camp that even in the confusion of the surprise attack were still fairly clear as no one was panicking as formations were taking shape.

Arrows were flying thick and fast now at the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants that had attacked in this direction. Most of the armor of the Icy spawn of the Ice King now ragged with missing links of ice armor and helms shattered. More and more spell tipped iron arrows were cracking and exploding ice armor links. He did give the Icy spawn credit. They fought on with all their might. Fear did not seem to be in their lexicon.

In the openings punched into the ice armor, Dragon Glass tipped arrows and javelins were slamming into cold flesh. The shafts to head and heart killing the Ice creatures quickly. The torso and limb hits were poisoning the Ice Wrights and Giants killing them slowly. The poison slowing their movements allowing more iron tip weapons to shatter ice armor which in turn allowed more Dragon Glass weapons to hit their targets furthering poisoning or outright killing the scions of the Ice King.

Oberyn shouted when he saw a massive bolt from a scorpion go from his left to his right. It missed its target but two more followed. One scorpion bolt of dragon glass hit the leg of an Ice Wright. The leg ripped off. The abomination screamed and flipped on the ground blue blood gushing out is horrific wound.

The surprise attack was failing because of the Lord of Revelstone removing their invisibility and because Daenerys and Eddard had made sure to provide the armies of Westeros with all the Dragon Glass necessary to fire off at the minions of the Ice King without fear of running out of ammunition.

Their enemy had made assumptions that were costing them dearly now. He shuddered to think what would be now occurring if the Lord of Revelstone was not with them. If their foes had enjoyed their invisibility as they attacked it would have devastated their forces. He looked ahead now.

Behind him another explosion of blue filled the sky and booming thunder washed over Oberyn and his mount. The Lord of Revelstone still dispensing death from her staff.

They were approaching the camps of the Boltons and the Freys. The traitorous Houses had charged their knights into the Unsullied. They had held but because they had not been able to fully form their phalanxes there taking serious losses and falling back. Their line wavering. They had killed many horse and knight but not nearly enough. They were being overwhelmed before they could fully form up. Unsullied cut down right and left. Oberyn saw scores of the valiant warriors on the ground dead and wounded.

Oberyn shouted in rage. To see these brave men cut down made his blood boil. They had had their lives ruined to make them into the weapon they had become. He cherished these men for their honesty and bravery. He wanted, no needed, to come to their aid.

Arrows were flying through the air like locusts in both directions. Traitors and patriots firing off arrows in mass at each other. Again the Queen’s planning was saving the day. Her Mercenary companies had lined up in their rows along with many houses of Dorne and were firing off arrows in clouds to answer the fire of the traitors. Both sides were using shields to block many of the arrows but men were dying on both sides from the clouds of arrows falling on them. The armies of Dorne famous with their prowess of archery especially on horseback.

He knew that two of the Mercenary companies, the Falcons and Screaming Shrikes were specialists in archery. They were relatively small in size. One was only eight hundred in number and the second twelve hundred in size but their ability to fire arrows fast and accurately made up for their small sizes. They had already formed up and were firing clouds of angry hissing arrows into the camps of the traitorous houses.

Again surprise was giving the traitors the advantage. Losses were being incurred that should not be happening. Flights of enemy arrows were whizzing into the still forming up Unsullied and the various companies of Dorne and Mercenary companies. Many blocked by armor or shields but, still, too many found bodies to wound and kill. Again Oberyn felt his anger racket up.

The traitors had seen them coming and some arrows were flying their way. Oberyn shouted in anger. The Ranyhyn were running into clouds of arrows. He expected to see some of the mighty horses stumble and fall down with bodies pierced by deadly arrows. Oberyn’s mouth fell open. The Ranyhyn bodies seemed to ripple and flow. No arrows found their bodies. The Haruchai on the horses protected as well. Somehow the mighty horses made their bodies where the arrows were not. The mighty horses of the Plains of Ra controlling time and space itself.

Again the magic of the forces of the South of the World astounded the man from Dorne.

Pikemen were forming up with their deadly weapons lined out in front of them. The Ranyhyn and Haruchai did not understand the danger. They had not seen this kind of warfare before. They did not have knights and the defensive walls of pointed iron used against them in the Land. Magic was their weapon used to shatter massed defenses.

Oberyn cursed falling behind. The mighty horses were about to impale themselves on the lines of pikes outthrust between interlinked shields. The Ranyhyn were not slowing down. These were trained pikemen. They would not break ranks. Oberyn screamed about to see the Haruchai and Ranyhyn he had come to care for so deeply be slain before his very eyes.

Oberyn watched the mighty horses of the Plains of Ra not breaking stride bunch their bodies. The Haruchai at the same time stood up on the backs of the full striding Ranyhyn. Oberyn was impressed with their skill and balance. Some arrows reached out for them but the Haruchai easily flicked the arrows away with the backs of their hands. He gaped at the speed of their hands easily flicking arrows away from their bodies.

Oberyn’s eyes widened in shock. Oberyn watched slack jawed when the mighty Ranyhyn now jumped up with mighty push offs of their rear legs. Their forelimbs now tucked tight to their bodies. The bodies of the Ranyhyn at least nine feet in the air with some even higher! They jumped clear over the lines of the pikemen. The pikemen could only gape at the impossible feat. They were too confused by the jump of the mighty Ranyhyn to think of trying to jerk their pikes up to stab at the horses flying up and over them.

They had another reason to not be able to adjust to the attack.
The Haruchai dove off their mounts when over the pikemen and slammed into them from above like rocks from catapults. The Haruchai flying down perpendicular to the lines of the traitors. Their bodies collapsing the lines where they impacted. The Ranyhyn kicked out with their rear hooves kicking men in the head killing them as they passed by.

The Ranyhyn upon their adroit landing immediately turned and attacked the traitorous pikemen of House Frey and Bolton from the rear. The mighty horses surging forward to attack the lines of the phalanx of the traitors from behind. Their Ranyhyn were kicking and biting viciously on the men of the rear of the phalanx. The large horses ramming their bodies into the traitors to slam down and trample. The men desperately trying to turn and face this sudden attack from behind. The Haruchai had instantly come up on their feet. They were kicking and punching men all around felling them. Their fists landing like warhammers.

Nearly half of the Haruchai had picked up swords of the slain Ice Wrights. The men and women who only fought with feet and fist were impossibly skilled in using their stolen swords. Men from House Frey and Bolton cut down all around.

The Haruchai’s hands and feet did not seem to feel the fact that they were often impacting harden steel. The Haruchai were whirling death. Some of the Haruchai still fighting with only their bodies bent to pick up swords and their killing only increased. He saw a Haruchai speared by two pikes. He screamed in rage seeing her body pierced. The Haruchai seemed to increase the ferocity of their attacks seeing one their countrymen cut down. Ferna with her ice sword was a whirlwind of death chopping men down all around her.

Oberyn’s horse had reached the battle. The Red Viper reigned his horse in. He threw his spear and killed one of the pikemen who had pierced the Haruchai.

The Giants now slammed into the pikeman where the Haruchai had weakened their wall. The iron shields on their non-dominate arm rammed into the lines of the pikemen like battering rams. The weight of Giants and their iron shields too much for the men. Their lines instantly falling into chaos. The Giants mighty granite swords shattered many pikes and knocked the others aside. Their bodies and shields hitting the men like mighty boulders hurled from the trebuchets. Their granite armor deflecting the blows delivered by the pikemen. Their glaves arced around cleaving men in two and shattering shields and pikes all around.

Three of the Giant warriors broke through the phalanx wall and stormed forward their shields held up to block incoming arrows and javelins. They were now into the next wave of Boltons and were swirling their massive swords all around chopping men down and sending them reeling back. Armor blocking the swords from cutting into the men but the blows stunning them nearly senseless.

The two Giant sailors dove into the melee in the gap created by their sisters in arms. Their fists like battering rams smashing men down and pulping brains and hearts with their sledgehammer blows. Oberyn followed the path of the Giants to reach the wounded Haruchai. She was gasping for breath. He retrieved his spear and jabbed all around keeping men back and killing when he found an opening.

Their attack had stunned the traitors. The Giants had moved to attack the rear of the knights who had charged into the Unsullied throwing them into disarray. The knights having to turn to meet the new attack. The knights in heavy armor and on their heavy war horses were able to return the force of the Giants attack with a force of their own. A Giant went down overwhelmed by knights who hacked wildly. Four Ranyhyn came screaming into the attack kicking wildly. Two Giants came in also. Oberyn moved in as well spearing horses to throw the knights to the ground.

The Unsullied given time to reform now charged forward to come to the aid of the forces that had Oberyn felt elation when he saw knights of Dorne storming in now. They were not formed up but they charged into the fray. Some of them did not have their full armor on. Still they charged in to come to their comrades’ aid. Oberyn felt such pride in his countrymen. Two of his countrymen dismounted from their horses. They had medical training and started to give aid to the Haruchai woman.

He saw a Giant simply run over a group of Bolton foot soldiers with her iron shield. Now in close her sword swirled around in invisible arcs. Limbs and heads sent flying. More Dorne foot soldiers and now men from the mercenary company of Roaring Lions from their standards were running in to lend their might to the counterattack of the forces of the Land.

Oberyn stabbed his spear through the back of an archer and ripped it back and stabbed another in the back before they realized they were under attack from the rear. They broke ranks and retreated. A group of Frey knights came charging in. Oberyn flexed his knees and prepared to meet the new assault.

Red Tailed Hawk: Fatigue was beginning to fill the body of the red tailed hawk. He had been furiously attacking the foes of the very Earth. He had only known on his flight north and to Westeros that an enemy of life itself existed there and he must go there to defeat it if he could.

When he fell from the heavens to strike blows for the Earth he felt the unnatural nature of what he attacked. The abominations must be removed from the face of the Earth. He also saw that the magnitude of his task was beyond him. The sea of evil as simply too great. It did not matter.

He must strike blows for the Earth. If he did not he would never mate again. He would produce no more offspring. Those he had sired would in time perish. That was unacceptable. Thus he continued to strike the unnatural things that walked like they had life and yet had none.

He ripped the eyes out of a giant bear. It did not feel any pain. It senses dulled by death. It did seem to affect its way though. The blinded bear wandering around aimlessly until one of the pale walking men with glowing metal sticks came in his direction. He lifted up sensing death approaching. He flew up to fifty feet and screamed down at the blue glowing walking man.

The blue glowing man was alive the red tailed hawk felt though it was not life as he knew it. The red tailed hawk must avoid them at all cost. He was tiring now. Suddenly, another mighty explosion of dark blue erupted on the other side of the massive Wall of ice he fought before. The sound of mighty thunder filled the sky and the earth trembled. The light reaching up to where the sun lived with after washes flowing down his side of the Wall and flowing out to the forest a short way off.

The blue washed over him. He felt elation. This blue light was everything that was good and right with the world. It lifted his body up and filled him with a brief burst of strength. He dove back down and tore at two dead men. He tore off great chunks of meat off their backs and on one of their throats.

He flew back up his strength ebbing. He needed to rest. He flew higher and gazed down from five hundred feet. On the ground were many of the formerly walking dead. They rolled on the ground kicking around but unable to advance. Legs and arms had been severed by repeated bits of beak and tearing of talons. Others were still upright but barely able to move with severed tendons and ligaments. He saw the limbs still trying to move forward. Some of the Walking Dead had hardly any meat left on their bones. They still moved but were reduced. Some of the undead clawing the ground with nails and hooves to move forward.
He needed to rest. He had used much energy to come here and had attacked relentlessly. The compulsion to attack was gone. The force that had guided him did not want him to die. He was now free to do as he willed. He flew to the massive forest and went in a mile. He found a branch high up and lit on it. He calmed his breathing and rested.

He and his brothers and sisters had done all they could for the moment. They had reduced the army of the unnatural. More they could not do. The compulsion whispered to him that he had done well. He had played his part to perfection. Now others must take up the cause.

Sansa: Sansa and Margaery looked all around at the mass confusion all around them. Reading of combat and strategies could not prepare one for the actual reality of war. Especially, when one’s force had been attacked unawares. Sansa and her wife did not understand exactly what was happening. First the sky was filled with birds that were diving wildly beyond the Wall. That could only mean one thing. The Ice King had arrived unannounced and was commencing his attack. He had won the element of surprise.

The surprise was his. The Queen Westeros had lost the initiative. This could not be good.

They were in the central camp area where the royal tents and wagons were located. The wagons circled around the tents to provide an added layer of protection to those located within. They hugged each other in fear. They saw Missandei off a short ways in front of her wagon. She looked around too in fear. Her little body shaking with her terror.

The camp attendants were shouting and screaming in fear as well. The Attendants, nor Sansa, her love or Missandei were warriors. They were strategists and logisticians that supported the war effort. They were supposed to be well behind the frontlines of the battle. That had been the plan. The Queen’s forces would meet the enemy at distance and begin chopping down their enemies from afar.

Sansa knew that the frontlines had suddenly arrived on their wagon step. Somehow, the enemy had been able to move right into the camp of the Dragon and the Direwolf.

There was chaos all around. They had seen the Lord of Revelstone rise up on her horse. The woman’s body had begun to burn blue as she spun her staff over her head it too glowing bright dark royal blue. Her body and staff began to glow in a sharp dark incandescent blue. The Lord’s body literally pulsed with magical might. Her staff seemed to vibrate in her hands trying to contain the magic building in it. Then the woman had jumped off her Ranyhyn swinging her staff down from over her shoulder to slam the iron shod end into the hard Earth.

She felt Margaery grip her hand tight. As they watched a blue wave disrupted the air. A blue shockwave of dark blue magical might erupted high into the air and flowed out over the camp in a fast rush. Missandei squealed when the light washed over her. The three women and the other attendants around them gasped as they saw the wave of force rushing off into the distance. It had felt like a million ants crawling all over their bodies but nothing else. They were not harmed.

Sansa looked around wondering what the light show had been for. She had heard the talk that the Lord was not truly that powerful.

Then the tall redhead gaped. She felt Margaery grip her hand. All around them shapes began to shimmer. The blue force of the wave had passed on but some residue was clinging to something. The blue intensified in its brightness and intensity. The sparkling blue traveling up and down the now visible if diffuse shapes. Some shapes human sized others were much, much taller.

Sansa heard Margaery gasp. They both realized at the same moment what they saw materializing before their eyes. Quickly some spell of invisibility was being stripped off beings.

Those beings being Ice Wrights and Ice Giants. Both women thinking the same thing too. We are in trouble!

The spell of invisibility was now stripped off the once hidden beings. They both cried out in fear. The Ice Wrights looked around with their pale blue eyes and long white hair. Their bodies were thin. In their dominate hand was a wicked looking pale sword of ice forged iron. Their bodies were encased with interwoven plates of ice armor. The hair they observed was flowing out from beneath ice helms that covered their heads.

The Ice Wrights had stopped making any aggressive move for the moment. The Ice Wrights looked right and left in total confusion.

The taller shapes were Ice Giants. They looked much like the painting and wood carvings depicted them. They were blunt of face with small eyes. Eyes now also pale blue. Their arms were long. These Giants though were armed with long pale broadswords. Not the crude clubs their normal brothers would use. The Ice Giants also had on armor but it was clearly much thicker. The blocks looked to be three to five inches thick where the Ice Wrights armor was only an inch thick maybe two inches on chest and back.

The Ice Giants large bodies could take the weight of the massive blocks of ice that made up their armor.

As the women, watched the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants looked around with stunned looks on their faces. Obviously, their spells of invisibility had been stripped from them unawares. They gaped surprised. That only lasted for ten seconds or so. The Ice Wrights shook their heads and barked at the Ice Giants. Already, arrows were flying out to strike the Wrights and Giants in their armor. The Dragon Glass arrows shattering where the spell enhanced iron tipped arrows sunk into ice armor disks cracking and in some cases exploding the armor.

The Ice Wrights in a rush moved into attack. The Ice Giants seemed more confused but slowly they shook off their temporary paralysis and lumbered forward quickly to engage their foes. The Icy spawn realized that with the advantage of surprise stripped from them the ice creations of the Ice King had to move into attack to survive. They could now be seen. What could be seen could be attacked. More arrows were in the air with each passing moment.

Fortunately, the Queen and Sansa’s father had insisted on heavy training rotations before marching north. The surprised troops of Westeros were quickly forming up. Still they had been caught totally by surprise. The one fortunate thing had been the arrival of the mass of birds still plummeting down on the other side of the Wall. That had warned the forces of Westeros that something foul was afoot.

Now war horns were blaring wildly all around the camp of the Queen. The various Houses had distinctive notes and timbre of horns. The horns crying out to their men to form up and prepare to fight the enemy. Foot soldiers and knights struggling to form up phalanxes and legions while the knights struggled to armor up and get their horses ready for combat.

The archers were more free. Normally, they would also form up into lines or boxes to fire but many were running out with quivers and firing at the suddenly in their midst enemy. The men and some women firing fast and furious. The runners running to stockpiles and hurrying to bring fresh quivers filled with dragon glass and magically enhanced iron tipped arrows.

It quickly became evident that the primary goal of the attackers were to take out Daenerys dragons. They saw and heard Rhaegal being injured. Sansa thanked the old gods and the seven that their invisibility had been stripped. If not the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants would have been attacking with almost impunity.

As they watched they saw Drogon and Viserion coming to their brother’s aid. Ice Wrights and Giants burned with dragon fire, crushed by stomping dragons or having their bodies chomped on by dragons. Legs, arms and heads falling to the ground randomly. Sansa squealed seeing Lady almost tabbed but Barristan came out of nowhere to engage the Ice Wright. Soon its head was spinning off separated from its body.

That was the primary focus of the invaders. Unfortunately, it was not their only focus. Many other Ice Wrights and Ice Giants were spreading out to create mayhem. Many individual battles for survival occurring all around. The sounds of warfare deafening. All around was the sound of metal striking metal and hardened ice.

Sansa and Margaery screamed when six Ice Giants and three Ice Wrights appeared rushing fast at the circle of wagons. The rush coming right at Missandei. In their shock they had not really register seeing the small black woman from Naath. She was just outside the wagons staring at the confusion before her. Her eyes large and mouth wide open in shock.

There was no defenders in front of the small black scribe. Sansa and Margaery screamed. Missandei screamed and hunched down covering her head in terror continuing to scream. They were no warriors around to come to Missandei’s aid. Sansa and Margaery could only watch the impending death. Their screams echoing off the wagons. Their eyes wanted to look away but the horror before them had them in its grip. They would witness sweet Missandei’s death.

Sansa’s eyes flared her head rocking back at what she saw now. A bright green point flashed into existence fifteen feet in front of Missandei. One moment it had not been there then it was. Then a bright green horizontal bar appeared from within the flash. The bar extended up and down the rectangle only about two inches thick. In a moment it was nearly as tall as Missandei. Then the horizontal bar started to expand out sideways.

The bar began to twist and distort with arms and legs jutting out and a head appeared on the top of the bar. The head filled with green hair that whipped around despite the calm air and drizzle falling from the sky. The woman that had appeared was smaller than Missandei. She had ears that came up to double points through her long green hair and her eyebrows were elven like that went up to nearly her hairline. Her eyes perfect circles and bright green. The eyes unblinking because the woman had no eyelids.

Those eyes now glowing hot green. Tendrils of green mist writhed up from the woman’s orbs and curled up a foot over her head before dissipating. Sansa could feel the raw anger radiating off that small form of a preteen girl. The girl in actuality a goddess.

Sansa understood that She Who Must Not Be Named had come to save her love.

She Who Must Not Be Named eyes were swirling with dark green hues that formed in the unblinking glowing pools of the small woman’s green orbs. The swirls looked like a gyre in the speed of the swirls. The mist boiling out her orbs in green streamers now rose up into the air in twisting ribbons nearly five feet. The mist pulsing hotly. Sansa could feel he small woman gathering her power.

Then her eyes flared hotly with a green aura erupting around her eye sockets. Twins beams flashed out at the Ice Giant that had lifted his heavy sword to chop Missandei two. The beams impacted the Ice Giant in the center of his chest. The Ice Giant exploded into a million small ice shards and the shock of the impact of light and Ice Giant shocked the very air with a thunderous boom. The small green haired seeming girl head moved slightly. Her eyes still shooting out their green beams. Those beams impacted the next two Ice Giants exploding their bodies into small shards and viscera.

The wagons were bucking with the explosion of magical might. Missandei squealing in terror. The small black teenager had her arms over her head. Her whole body trembling with terror. Missandei hunched down more making a tight ball on the ground. There was simply nothing left of the Ice Giants. They had been obliterated down to its very feet.

The Ice Giant beside the three just exploded had lifted his sword up high over its shoulder and whistled it down at the small green haired woman. She moved her left arm up bent at the elbow presenting her forearm before the descending massive sword blade. Sansa saw no fear in the woman. She had to be insane! She was not even attempting to avoid the massive sword and the power behind its downward arc.

Sansa felt Margaery grip her body hard. Surely that massive blade would cleave the small green haired woman in two!

The descending blade struck the small arm. The blade shattered violently. Shards of ice harden steel flying in all directions. The small green woman did not even flinch. Her body did not rebound even a fraction of an inch from the mighty impact of the heavy blade on She Who Must Not Be Named forearm. She seemed to not even feel the impact of the blade on her unprotected arm the slightest. The Ice Giant staggered back. Half of his fingers were clearly broken and shooting out at unnatural angles.

An Ice Wright came in swirling its blade so fast that Sansa’s eyes could not follow it. The blade now went to remove She Who Must Not Be Named head from her body. The green haired seeming child caught the blade between her index finger and thumb stopping the vicious descent of the blade with no effort. The Ice Wright had a look of total disbelief on its face. Its body jerked wildly with all his momentum stopped his body whiplashed first forward and then back in a violent motion.

The lovers watched slack jawed as She Who Must Not Be Named jerked the blade out of the Ice Wright’s hand and flipped the blade around in a flash and gripped the hilt. Moving even faster than the quick Ice Wright the green haired goddess whipped her left arm forward. The blade now rammed through the Ice Wright’s head its screams loud in the air.

Sansa was shocked at the speed of this seeming green haired little girl. This woman whom Missandei loved was indeed a goddess of unimaginable power.

Another Ice Giant had lifted its massive sword over its head. Sansa did not really see the green haired small woman step forward she moved so fast. The woman slashed out her with right arm in an arc in front of her body. The arm now leaving a green glow in the path of its travel.

Her arm impacted the thick left leg of the Ice Giant in front of She Who Must Not Be Named. The thin almost adolescent arm easily cut through both the thick ice armor and the thick leg of the Ice Giant. Then the arm continued its arc from right to left. The small green haired woman’s arm slashed into the Ice Giant’s other leg cutting it off just below its knees. She Who Must Be Named arm did not slow in the slightest in its arch easily cutting thick armored legs in half.

The Ice Giant fell straight down having its legs chopped off as if cleaved off with a mighty two headed battleax. The leg stumps gushing bright blue blood. The leg stumps jammed into the frozen Earth blue blood forming pools around the leg stumps. The Ice Giant now screaming in raw agonizing pain. It had dropped its sword unremarked on the ground. Its head whipped right and left its screams hideous sounding.
Sansa was stunned at the raw power of this small slip of a woman. She must truly be a goddess. Now the woman jumped up without even bending her knees. Her left arm slammed through the thick nearly five inches of ice armor that covered the Ice Giant’s torso. She had buried her arm up into the Ice Giant’s body to half way up She Who Must Not Be Named’s bicep. The arm buried in the Ice Giant’s body at the sternum. Blue blood liberally running down her arm. Then the green haired woman’s other arm slammed up in overhead arc and buried that arm into the Ice Giant’s body in its upper chest region.

Then the She Who Must Not Be Named body began to lift in the air. Her feet left the ground. Below each foot was a bright green disk appeared that pulsed and roiled. The small green haired woman rose up to twenty feet in the air quickly on the green disks she created for each step. The surviving Ice Giants and two Ice Wrights could not help but look up at the small woman easily floating in the air while holding a nearly seven hundred pound Ice Giant up in the air now over her head.

The Ice Giant weakly kicked its chopped off legs that gushed out cold pulses of its icy blue blood. Blood ran liberally down She Who Must Not Be Named’s arms soaking them and now her tunic in the blood of the dying Ice Giant. For a moment the green haired small woman held her foe easily above her head. She snarled in a loud growl.

As all watched, the small green haired goddess arched her back and swirled her arms down with a motion too fast to see. The Ice Giant came ripping off her arm with mighty gouts of light blue blood erupting from the now massive two holes in its upper torso. The limp broken Ice Giant’s body went hurling back to the ground.

The Ice Wright beneath the descending body had no time to move. The Ice Giant’s body impacting its body with the force of a falling meteorite from the heavens. Both bodies shattered with limbs, ribs, and viscera splattering off violently in all directions. The Ice Wright shattered by the battering ram of the dead Ice Giant. The site of the impacted bodies only a bloody mess of broken bodies and bright blue blood.

She Who Must Not Be Named flowed back down to the Earth right behind the Ice Giant she had hurled down with devastating effect.

Sansa saw terror now in the last Ice Wright and two remaining Ice Giant’s eyes. The three entities knew they were dealing with something totally beyond their kin. The Ice Giants was confused. The one closet to the seeming green haired girl gaped at She Who Must Not Be Named. With its weapon wandering around aimlessly its stump head looked around for direction. The Ice Wright had none to give as it turned and started to run away. The second Ice Giant started to run off as fast as its legs could take it.

Again faster than the eye could follow, She Who Must Not Be Named put on a burst of speed. One instant the green haired girl was not moving then she was sprinting faster than a cheetah. The Ice Wright had taken no more than five steps when She Who Must Not Be Named jumped up and jammed her fingers effortlessly into its two inch thick ice armor on its back. She lifted the wildly kicking Ice Wright over her head with her arms extended high over her head and spread apart. She had jammed her hands into its lower and upper back.

With no effort she pulled her arms down on each side of her head. The ice armor locked in her fingers buried in the icy armor. A loud crack exploded in the air as the green haired dynamo of destruction bent the Ice Wright into an upside down U. Its back shattered blood gushed out the mouth of the Ice Wright. Its arms and legs kicking wildly in its death throes.

She Who Must Not Be Named whirled around and threw the Ice Wright from off her arms sending its body flying horizontal to the ground like an oversized javelin. Blue blood leaving a trail in the air as it rushed toward the Ice Giant. The head of the screaming Ice Wright slammed into the upper chest of the Ice Giant who was still looking around confusedly. Its small brain still trying to decide what to do with a force that many times dwarfed its might or magic.

The thick ice armor of the Ice Giant was no match for the force of the hurled body that impacted into the Ice Giant’s upper torso. The body of the Ice Wright rammed clear through the body of the Ice Giant.

The Ice Giant looked down at the legs jutting out its chest hanging limp. The ruined head of the Ice Wright hung down the back of the Ice Giant on its now limp lifeless torso. It fell to the ground with a mighty crash.

As Sansa watched, the green haired seeming girl picked up one of the fallen Ice Giant’s swords. The blade was massive compared to the slip of a seeming girl. She rose up five feet off the ground on green disks and with an overhead motion hurled the massive sword forward. The sword moving so fast it was a blur. The blade impaled the fleeing Ice Giant that had rushed out fifty yards. The blade impaled the massive ice armored body to the hilt in its upper back. The Ice Giant fell down dead on its face.

Sansa was in shock. All this mayhem had happened in less than twenty seconds.

She Who Must Not Be Named looked back at Missandei who was still on the ground on her knees and forearms huddled down. Her arms over her head quaking with fear. She had not seen any of the melee that had occurred around her body. A feral look had been on the green haired woman’s face. Looking at Missandei a soft longing look came over She Who Must Not Be Name’s face.

Her body suddenly collapsed back into a bright green tall rectangle. The rectangle compressed to the middle from the top and bottom. The two sides met and a small green circle formed for a heartbeat. A single pulse occurred and then She Who Must Not Be Named was gone.

Margaery turned to look at Sansa. Her face clearly showed her shock at the might they had just witnessed. They both understood that this woman could single handedly destroy both the armies of Westeros and the Ice King. They knew that they had seen only the smallest fraction of her strength and power. Why she choose to fight hand to hand limiting her strength they had no idea. If she used her magic like the Lord of Revelstone all would be defeated by her.

Sansa thought that this strange green haired woman followed an ethic that was not human.

They saw the Lord off in the distance slaying Ice Wrights and Ice Giants. Her power was but a speck compared to She Who Must Not Be Named. Sansa knew it. Missandei’s longed for lover was pure magic walking.

Sansa pulled Margaery after her.

“Where are you taking us?!” Margaery shouted out as her body was dragged forward.

“To Missandei!”

“Why”

“You saw what I just saw. She Who Must Not Be Named will let no harm come to Missandei. If we are beside her then we will safe as well. Missandei has a guardian angel.”

The two women ran to the shaking black scribe getting on their knees beside the shaking and crying
“You are safe Missandei. The Ice Wrights and Ice Giants have been killed.”

Missandei uncurled and looked around herself. She was stunned seeing the broken bodies of the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants that had attacked her. She looked at Margaery and Sansa for explanation.

Margaery laughed. “While you were hiding underneath your arms She Who Must Not Be Named came out of nowhere and saved you. She killed them all in twenty seconds.”

Missandei’s face showed her absorbing the information. Then a smile came over her face.

“Tell me every detail! Tell me how my love saved me!”

Sansa had to smile at the transformation that came over Missandei.

Eddard: The Warden of the North watched the Queen rising up in the air on Drogon’s back. The mighty black dredd rising up with powerful beats of his wings. The Ice Dragon had wheeled over and was making another run over the camp on the far side of their encampment. The ice daggers spewing from its mouth forming a rain of death. Eddard cursed seeing men fall down dead or wounded. The massive wave of ice daggers leaving formations of men ravaged and disorganized.

The Ice Dragon saw the Queen rising up on Drogon to give chase and combat. The Ice Dragon screamed a mighty high pitched roar and pumped its own wings rising up into the lowering clouds and disappearing. Drogon returned is own challenge and pumped his wings hard gaining attitude. Queen and dragon rising in challenge.

Eddard turned his gaze away. That was a battle he had no part of. His combat was here on the ground. He surveyed the ground around him. There was definitely less of the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants attacking Rhaegal. The removal of the Icy creatures’ cloak of invisibility had opened them to devastating counterattack. Arrows were flying thickly through the air now. The Ice Wrights were now very aware of their danger. They had seen that these arrows were a great danger to them. They had their heads on a swivel and using their speed to dodge most of the missiles flying at them.

The Ice Wrights dodged many of the arrows with their fast movements. Despite their speed and quick movements many arrows still found their target. There was simply too many aerial projects to dodge them all. Many arrows and now thrown javelins striking out at the Icy spawn. The Ice Wrights dodging to avoid head shots. Their ice armor easily broke the dragon glass arrows that struck them. The ice armor took many hits from the magically enhanced iron tipped arrows. The arrows sticking out of their armor like porcupine quills. The arrows fracturing the ice blocks and causing them to destabilize. Additional strikes causing the thick ice disks to explode with loud clacks.

The Ice Wrights knew that their armor was being compromised. They rushed to engage their enemy in close to begin up tight fighting with the forces of the Queen. The Wrights advantage were speed and they needed space to take full advantage of their quickness. This saved them from being struck but it also prevented them from attacking with their full effectiveness. Being in the open was becoming too great a danger to them. There was simply too many arrows and javelins now to avoid them all. More and more of the projectiles were now finding their targets.

Now that the Queen’s forces were forming up into their formations they were able to present a line of armor to the Ice Wrights. The design to hold them in place while archers continued to fire at the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants with rising blizzards of arrows.
Eddard saw Lady biting savagely a lower arm of an Ice Wright. Her great size jerking the Ice Wright off balance. He could not get his balance enough to strike out at the Direwolf. The Ice Wright being jerked off balance. The Wright did not see Strong Belwas come up behind itself in its struggle. His sweeping scimitar parted the Ice Wright of his head. The Valyrian blade easily chopping through the vile things vertebra between helm and upper body armor.

Blood went spurting out the now headless corpse that flipped and jerked down to the ground its body quickly starting to steam. He saw Lady pelt off her objective clear. Nymeria was snarling circling an Ice Wright who kept her at bay with his sword. His body lurched when iron tipped arrows slammed into its back. Ice disks exploded but the Ice Wright was unharmed. Lady launched herself through the air and landed on the Ice Wright’s back driving it to the ground.

Together the two Direwolves pinned the Ice Wright to the ground. The Dirwolves jaws and claws tearing at the Ice Wright. Its damaged armor began to give way but still protected the Ice Wright. Syrio came running up out of nowhere seemingly and used his rapier to stab the Ice Wright repeatedly through the holes in its armor. The Ice Wight screamed as its body was pierced again and again by Valyrian steel. Its body began to convulse with blood squirting out the various rapier wounds. The body beginning to steam.

Sensing the Ice Wright was dying the two Direwolves moved off seeking new foes to attack as did Syrio.

Eddard saw an Ice Giant attacking a line of archer his mighty sword killing men with each mighty swipe of its arms. The Ice Giant had gotten up on the men who were not able to fire off at it with the Ice Giant in their ranks. He ran in screaming to get the Ice Giant’s attention. It turned its head its small blue glowing eyes seeing Eddard charging.

It started to turn towards Eddard. Eddard was upon the Ice Giant before it could brace itself. His sword met the down chop of the Ice Giant’s massive sword. Evening Star easily repelled the massive blade. His sword humming a high noted song of exhilaration and love of combat. Eddard moved in close to get underneath the tall abomination’s reach.

Eddard’s sword slammed into the Ice Giant’s legs again and again as he easily dodged the unskilled swings of the Ice Giant’s large broadsword. To the archers the Ice Giant had seemed an unstoppable mountain of death and destruction. To Eddard it was more a clumsy wannabe assassin. The blade of the Ice Giant slamming into the Earth missing its mark with each easy dodge by Eddard. The Ice Giant growling as it slammed its blade down again and again missing its target.

Eddard was not attempting to attack the chest or head of the Ice Giant. It was simply too tall. He was working methodically to bring the Ice Giant down to his size. His fallen star sword hacked and chopped the Ice Giants armor apart that covered its legs. The beast swinging wildly at Eddard but missing badly as he dodged around the side the Ice Giant moving to the side the Ice Giant wasn’t facing. His sword biting deep into the thick ice blocks fracturing and now beginning to slice off great hunks of ice.

Eddard felt strength flowing into his sword arm as he used his blade Evening Star. The sword was literally singing now in a high soprano voice. The notes rising and falling according to how Eddard was using his sword. The notes rising when steel met steel. The sword was glowing and putting out a penumbra of eldritch possibilities as Eddard fought on. There was blue circular and odd geometric shapes left by Evening Star as Eddard fought on. The glowing magical pathways in the air only slowly fading away.

Even as he fought for his life and for the Earth he could not help but see on some basic level the beauty his sword was leaving in the air as he fought on. His sword had done its work as it weaved its beautiful tapestry in the air.

The Ice Giants ice armor on its legs were now in ruins. The blocks shattered and broken.

Eddard stabbed the Ice Giant clean through its left knee cap and out the back of its leg. He twisted his blade and jerked his blade free totally ruining the joint. The Ice Giant screamed as it staggered trying to keep its balance. Eddard pivoted around to the rear of the Ice Giant who was in too much agony to track his movements anymore. With a downward mighty arching swipe Eddard cut both of the Ice Giants Achilles tendons from off the heel bone. Shrieking the Ice Giant crashed to Earth unable anymore to support its weight.

Its helm went careening off its head. Eddard wasted no time on jumping on the Ice Giant’s back and running up to its shoulder blades and stabbing Evening Star down through the Ice Giant’s skull piercing its brain and ramming the magical blade out its forehead. The magical sword singing in high notes celebrating its current victory. The sword glowing even brighter. The cold made his feet ache but he felt strength flow into his body from his sword.

Eddard felt the elation his sword felt. It was almost as if his blade was alive. Of course that could not be. He shook the strange thought away. He went to look for more foes to dispatch.

Ygritte: The wife of Jon protected her man so he could concentrate on the enemies before him. They had killed many Ice Wrights and Ice Giants. They had been near the dragons since they were a locus attracting the vile creations of the Ice King. Jon’s sword seemed to fill the Ice Wrights and Giants with terror now. They had to chase them down now to fight them. The icy spawn were more willing to engage their other foes. Those they would square off against and were willing fight. Not so with Jon now.

That proved to the ShadowBender witches that Jon was indeed Azor Ahai reborn. The creations of the Ice King had his instinctual fear of what Jon had become.

She and her wife Melisandre had refrained from creating any shadow monsters from their wombs. They were indeed powerful creations that could have killed many of the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants quickly but their creations always left the woman weak as a newborn kitten. The strength to create them dire and expensive.

Thus, the two witches had contented themselves to use their shadow daggers from their fingertips to guard Jon as he did the necessary killing. The projections of their shadow daggers were not terribly expensive of strength and will. If they controlled their use they could continue on using them. They only used them when they had clear shots and Jon was engaged with a foe. Their daggers opening up holes in the icy monster’s armor.

Their daggers shattering ice armor disks easily and if finding unprotected flesh sank deep into their Ice foes and killed them quickly. Their magic as antithetical to their life force as Dragon Glass or Valyrian steel.

Ygritte and her wife rushed behind Jon as he engaged two Ice Wrights that had decimated a group of wildlings. They had not had time to form up properly. Barristan’s woman, Marleya Blackmyre, had jumped up on a wagon looking around. She saw the Wildlings dilemma. From nearly two hundred years away the woman let her bowstring loose.

The arrow tipped in Dragon Glass whistled through the air its aim true. The Ice Wright was hacking at a hasty raised shield wall that was shattering from the icy blade’s impact. The magic and cold of the icy blade breaking apart leather and magic making metal brittle and then easily broken. But the defense shield had done its work. This had kept the Ice Wright in place. The Dragon Glass slammed into the chin of the first Ice Wright and buried into its skull. The Ice Wright made its high pitched death wail as it body went into wild convulsions of death.

Ygritte no longer used the bow but she knew not even she could have made the shot Marleya had just made.

Jon arrived upon the surviving Ice Wright. It had seen its brother and sensing its threat whirled around in time to meet Jon’s advance upon it. They could see the fear in its eyes but it knew if it broke and ran it would be killed as it ran. Instead it bravely stood and fought. It truly had no other option Ygritte thought.

It raised its sword in time to meet Jon’s attack. Jon swung his flaming sword down onto the Ice Wright’s blade. Jon and his wives had quickly divined that the ice forged of the Wrights and Giants were as susceptible to Lightbringer’s heat as regular steel was to the Ice Wright’s blades of cold and rue.

After only ten sword strikes the Ice Wright’s blade shattered into a hundred shards with a loud shriek of protest. The Ice Wright was thrown back at his blade’s destruction. The Ice Wright off balance Jon rushed in. Jon chopped his sword down onto his foe’s helm splitting it in two. The ruined helm falling to the Earth. The helm had saved the Ice Wright from harm miraculously. Terror filled its eyes.

Jon advanced but the Ice Wright turned and fled. For all the good it did him. Melisandre flung two shadow daggers into the back of his skull. The Ice Wright fell to the ground flipping around violently in its death’s throws. Steam already pouring out its orifices in his head and wounds left by the dissipating Shadow Daggers.

The three stood looking around them. The three persons whose essence was of Asshai. They saw death and confusion. They smiled. The Ice Wrights and Ice Giants were being taken down.

Off to their right four Giants of the Land were fighting four Ice Giants. It was not a fair fight in any aspect. The Ice Giants had arrows sticking out of their ice armor all over. More arrows impacting them all the time from all angles. More and more of the ice armor was exploded or shattered off their bodies. The ice falling like icicles off the eaves of a house.

The Giants were as strong as the Ice Giants if not stronger. Where they Land Giants excelled was their sheer speed and their skill with their swords. They were precise with their weapons.

The Ice Giants swung their massive blades with strong strokes but they were basic and had no imagination to their strokes. The Giants form the Land used their blades deftly to deflect and put their foes on the defense and off balance. The Giants of the Land landing massive strokes onto the Ice Giants bodies shattering their armor even more. Soon all four Ice Giants were dispatched with killing strokes to body or cleaving of Ice Giant’s heads in two.

The three then looked around again. The Ice Giants and Ice Wrights were being shot down one by one. Their numbers much reduced and now they were isolated. Their attempts to kill the dragons had led many to their slaughter.

Something was not right. The Ice Giants and Ice Wrights attack had been like a drop in the ocean. They were being cut down. If they had not had their invisibility stripped and the forces of Westeros not armed to overflowing with Dragon Glass the result would be much different. Ygritte was thankful that the Lord of Revelstone was with them. She was most definitely not weak. With a feral look on her face she watched the Lord of Revelstone on her Ranyhyn, Frinny, run down an Ice Wright trying to flee. It was fast but Frinny was much faster. Her Bloodgaurd and lover was right behind her on her own Ranyhyn. The Haruchai always there to protect her charge.

The Ranyhyn did not run down the Ice Wright. Lord Lustra cocked her staff over her shoulder. The wood bursting into blue fire yet again. She swung her staff down impacting the Ice Wright on the top of his left shoulder. The Lords Fire shattered the Ice Wright’s body. Most of its bones broken it flopped down to the ground and lay their shattered.

The Lord whirled her Ranyhyn around several times before tearing off to the north. Ygritte with her short height did not see what the Lord saw. Brail close behind her of course.

Ygritte looked up at the scream from the heavens. Drogon had roared his rage again. The Queen was chasing the Ice Dragon still up in the heavens. The beast diving down to spew ice daggers at the forces on the ground before pumping its wings hard to disappear again into the lowering clouds. The mighty black dragon bugled loudly and angled to give chase. Drogon and Daenerys flying up into the clouds giving chase.

The three turned to look at the Wall. It was still standing. Again Ygritte thought that this was not right. The fact that it remained standing made no sense.

The effectiveness of this surprise assault was diluted with the Wall not coming down.

“Why isn’t the Wall coming down Jon? I saw how the Ice King interacted with these Ice Wrights and Ice Giants. To some degree he cares for them. They are not a trifle to him. He is letting them be slaughtered. It doesn’t feel right to me Jon” Ygritte asked her husband.

Jon looked down at his Wilding wife and then back up at the Wall.

“I am hoping that I am right and that what the Ice King has discovered that indeed the Horn of Winter is a fake. Maybe though, the use of the Horn is more difficult than we all thought including him. I agree with you Ygritte. Launching this attack by itself is not logical and poor tactics.”

He looked around again. There was even fewer of the Ice based creatures.

“I am thankful that there was not a coordinated attack. It is allowing us to deal with each threat in turn. Maybe we have gotten lucky.”

Daenerys: Beneath her, Daenerys Targaryen felt her mighty dragon pinioning his black wings gaining altitude towards the Ice Dragon rising up from another pass over her army breathing out death with his icy breath. The dragon of the Ice King the antithesis of her dragons. It was an abomination raised and corrupted on hate. She would put it out its unknown misery.

As her dragon rose up into the air the Queen of Westeros and half of Essos looked down upon her camp. She saw that her dragons were surrounded by Ice Wrights and Dragons but many of those were dead and more were dying. Viserion plummeted to the ground with claws extended and an Ice Giant’s body was shattered. Immediately, Viserion ran to launch himself back into the air. Rhaegal protected by his brother and the Direwolves of the Starks.

An Ice Giant in frustration threw his sword at the white dragon but the scales easily deflected the blade away. Gravity and distance taking the energy out of the blade. Without his weapon the great brute charged into a company of foot soldiers. The Ice Giant stomped and tore apart any men it reached but a blizzard of arrows were flying at it. Its armor shattered with now Dragon Glass arrows piercing its body up high and low. The beast fell back down to the Earth convulsing in death.

She saw that the birds across the Wall were still dropping from the clouds and winging in from all directions. In fact more birds were passing her now to head to the other side of the Wall. What had been a deluge had reduced to a steady drizzle of late arriving birds that upon passing over the Wall wheeled over to begin their descent to the fight below.

She was able to glimpse the sea of the walking dead beyond the Wall. They seemed like the sea itself. The sea though was roiling with unrest. The birds she had seen flying in from all points of the compass were wildly tearing at the dead as they had at the Tree of Life. Individually, the birds were nothing but attacking in mass they were doing damage.

They would not be enough. Their attacks too small to stop such a mass of walking dead. Some were being killed as they attacked. The Walking Dead did not have a strong compulsion of self-protection but if the attack was high and from their front they would often respond to the direct threat. Their movements jerky and uncoordinated. Birds avoided the hands groping for them but not all. Daenerys felt anger seeing birds torn apart.

She longed to go to them and give protection to the valiant birds. The birds seemed to be concentrating their attack before the gates of the Wall. She had no doubt that Ice King was somewhere there. Daenerys caste her gaze back to the other side of the Wall.

She saw a group of Haruchai on their Ranyhyn with Giants closely following. The troop rushing to the aid of her Unsullied being attacked by the traitors. The unexpected assault hitting her stalwart defenders from Astraphor before they could fully form up.

The attack had caught them partially unawares. Thank the gods the birds had brought advance warning of the impending assault. Then the Lord of Revelstone had stripped the attacking Ice Giants and Ice Wrights of their invisibility. The Lord was riding from one Ice Wright or Ice Giant to the next. Her staff erupting with an almost unimaginable force. Her Lord’s fire obliterating her foes with the devastating impact of her Lord’s Fire.

Daenerys hated taking to the air and leaving her army below but the abomination flying above was her responsibility. Only she could deal with it. It was killing and wounding her men and women by the score with each pass. Its use of ice instead of fire was proving equally deadly.

She knew she had to reach it and kill the Ice Dragon. She urged Drogon on. He roared his challenge in his deep bass roar. She felt her mighty dragon’s body undulate as the massive beast worked his wings to increase his speed. Drogon roared again in frustration in not being able to confront his corrupted brother.

The Ice Dragon had seen them launch themselves from the ground. It had made another quick pass spewing out more icy death. Then it had used the momentum of its dive to swoop back up gaining altitude fast. The Ice Dragon angling way from Drogon’s approach heading for the clouds.

Daenerys cursed as the dragon disappeared into the roiling clouds. She banked away circling to the left. She would not enter right behind the Ice Dragon in case it had reversed course to surprise her with a head on assault upon her entry into the cloud bank. She now rose up into the clouds angled off from where the Ice Dragon had entered. The rain became more intense. She could see nothing beyond five feet. She took Drogon up several hundred feet but the clouds were at least as thick as when she entered the cloud bank.

She had Drogon bank over and she dove back down through the clouds. She looked around but did not see the Ice Dragon. Then behind her the Ice Dragon dove down through the clouds heading in the opposite direction towards the ground.

Daenerys cursed banking Drogon over into a tight pivot turn to give chase. The Ice Dragon had great momentum and made its pass over her camp its mouth spread wide bellowing out a cloud of ice daggers that flung death into her camp. Some of the men were able to use shields to block the ice daggers but they were few.

As she watched the Ice Dragon swooped up from its dive beating its wings furiously again gaining altitude. She was giving chase. Drogon closing the distance as they both now gained altitude. She felt her dragon’s body coil up and tense. Then Drogon’s neck surged forward and stilled in rigid tension. His mouth breathed out fire that almost reached the Ice Dragon before it disappeared into the clouds. She banked over and circle back down several hundred feet. She had Drogon doing fast zig zags in the air to prevent the Ice Dragon from drawing a line on them and attacking from above.

Both she and her dragon craning their necks from side to side looking up searching for their nemesis. They could not see it through the clouds. Her camp was miles wide and maybe five miles long with all the Houses of Westeros and her mercenary companies from Essos along with troops she considered loyal from the Free Cities. She had spread out her camp to give them plenty of room to not create squalor among her camp and to give her troops room to maneuver to meet any attack.

This was now proving to be a hindrance. Her camp was so large it would take at least several minutes to traverse it flying so low. She screamed out in frustration when a mile away the Ice Dragon dropped from the sky like a stone to attack her camp. The Ice Dragon only pulling up when two hundred feet above her camp to fire off its icy breath of ice daggers. The sweep of its ice breath fast and then it was rising up to the sky again. The Queen gave chase but it reached the clouds before she could reach her foe and deal with it.

She shook her fist seeing scorpion bolts fired up at the beast. The machines did not have much angle of attack but the scorpion operators were feverishly working their platforms to get the ability to aim up into the air. Their shots were wild but they had to put caution in the Ice Dragon. It would have to be more careful in its further strafing runs.

This went on again and again as the Ice Dragon dove out of the clouds far enough away to avoid her counterattack. She had flown into the clouds and had Drogon fly just above the lowest bellowing clouds. She could see below through the hazy nimbus of the lowest clouds. She had tried to surprise the Ice Dragon by hiding in the dark clouds as they roiled by just over her head. Her dragon’s black body blending into the dark grey mass roiling just over their heads.

The problem was that her camp was simply too vast. Random luck seemed to be favoring the Ice Dragon. The perversion of a dragon always diving out of the clouds far enough away to rise back up into the clouds before she could reach it to deal with it. The momentum of its dive allowed it to then swoop back up at speed. The Ice Dragon always angling its body away from Drogon as it strove to again reenter the clouds to hide.

She cursed the fates. She was enraged that the Ice Dragon refused to fight her. Its constant attacks on her forces made her blood boil. She needed to engage the Ice Dragon to kill it. It refused to fight her.

Then it dawned on her the solution to the problem. She knew of a way to draw the Ice Dragon to her. She turned Drogon up to the sky and had him enter the mass of dark angry clouds. She had him fly for two minutes at a furious pace. The rain pelting her face cooled her rage. The Valyrian had always had a good instinct for the distance traveled on her dragon. She had flown far enough. She gave the command for Drogon to again descend through the clouds.

She broke through the clouds and yelled in triumph. She plummeted Drogon down towards the ground below. The black dragon’s body hurtling down and rolled out of its dive just above the trees. They came flying in just over the tops of the mighty trees of the Haunted forest. Just after passing over the last trees she dove Drogon down again. The dragon only forty feet over the heads of milling army of the Ice King. She smiled. Time to meat out some payback!

Drogon opened his maul wide and his long tongue of flame flew down and set the walking dead afire. His flame licking over the backs and head of the shambling mass of dead. The dead instantly catching fire and burning fiercely despite the falling rain. The dead continued to move bumping into neighbors making them catch fire. She traveled a hundred yards before Drogon’s breath ran out.

Drogon roared as she took him up immediately after his breath had ceased. She would take no chances. She had Drogon roll to the right and then left as they gained attitude to throw off any aim. She flew up into the clouds letting Drogon recharge his breath. She played the same game as the Ice Giant. The Walking Dead army of the Ice King was even more vast than her own army. She flew a distance before she dove out of the clouds again. Her dive had her nearly a mile away from her first attack vector. Drogon levelled out and bellowed out his deadly dragon fire. His flame setting another long swath of the walking dead afire.

Drogon bellowed again in challenge to his enemy. The echoes off the Wall and forest reverberating. Daenerys own scream filled the air. The army of the Walking Dead vast. Drogon let loose another mighty gout of flame to burn the undead before rising up from just above the milling undead.

Again the Queen rose up with her dragon and flew off into the clouds to move off and attack from a new location. She dove out of the clouds far away from her last attack. Drogon came diving back down from the cloud bank at great speed spewing death upon the undead. She yelled in triumph. She was burning the army of the Ice King. She saw in the distance before the Wall the Ice Wrights glowing bright blue. She would burn his army from the rear back towards him.

Attacking from the rear she felt safer. Any defense the Ice King may have had against aerial assault would be by the Wall.

The Ice King had assumed all her dragons would be dead by now. His failure would be her triumph. She was sure he was even now calling in his winged son to deal with her. Just what she wanted.

Ice King: Frustration filled the icy heart of the Ice King. He had been blowing the Horn of Winter for over fifteen minutes now and still the Wall was still standing. He raged at the fates. He raged at the Croyel on his back. He raged at the forces opposed to him on the other side of the Wall killing his sons he had created and raised in his image.

The one person he did not rage against was himself.

“Father” the Croyel soothed in his troubled mind. The mental touch gentle and soothing. “You must concentrate. You keep distracting yourself and break the harmonic of the Horn of Winter. It must be worked continuous and consistent if you are to bring down the Wall.”

“Why is it taking so long!” he raged at his son. “The Wall should have fallen once I blew the Horn of Winter. Yet it is still standing. Tell me?!”

“I cannot be sure father but I feel it is the fact that you are not in tune with the Horn of Winter. It was formed by an Insequent. The magic it produces is tuned to that strange and fey race. My race has had its confrontations with the Insequent and we have learned of some of their magic. It is still foreign to me but I am able to translate our need with its ability.”

“You must concentrate father. You keep letting your concentration slip. All our work is wasted when you let your mind wander and the tune to falter. Focus!”
The Ice King swallowed bile having the Croyel tell him to focus. His true son had resisted his father on the felling of the Wall and now in the moment of truth it was himself, the Ice King, who was faltering. He could not keep his focus.

The death of his adopted sons on the other side of the Wall was driving him almost mad with frustration and made his ever present rage burble and rile his cold soul. His anger overcoming his ability to focus. The eruptions of blue were coming less frequent now. The dome of blue that lit up the clouds and produced long peals of thunder occurred less and less frequent. There was fewer of his creations to kill by the cursed Lord.

He had felt the death of each of his sons. It did not pain his soul with grief but he had formed and nurtured each Ice Wright and Giant since their transformation. Still he felt each loss. He had expected losses. All wars had losses but never the number and speed of their deaths he was experiencing now. It made him lose focus as he seethed and mourned the passing of so many when he could not come to their aid.

It galled the Ice King to his core to know that the two strongest and most fierce warriors facing him were women. Women! It was against nature and his right to rule over the frail useless sex. He produced only sons and no daughters. Women were weak and beneath him. They were not worthy to be part of the future he was going to create.

Suddenly, the world exploded in another massive explosion of blue light that reached to the heavens turning the grey world briefly bright dark blue. Words of the vile language of the Lord reverberating in the air. The magical residue of the magical detonation came rushing over the Wall and washed over the Ice King before rushing on into the Haunted Forest. The world rocked violently. The son on his back wailed at the mighty detonation of magical might. Its teeth and nails tearing at his body in its terror.

There had been less of these mighty eruptions of magic. The Lord’s fire more muted as she killed the Ice King’s sons up close and persona. The Ice King knew that this Lord had found one of his Ice Wright son’s at distance and away from her allies. She had used her total might on him. The Ice Wright had exploded with only time to begin its death scream.

His control faltered yet again. He raged and his true son, the Croyel, cajoled his father to concentrate. It was hard. The Croyel felt the might of the Lord of Revelstone as he did. His true son could not feel the deaths of his adopted sons. He did not hear their screams. The shocking fast deaths administered by the female Lord of Revelstone was bad enough. The Ice King feeling the poison of Dragon Glass in his infested sons was even more shocking and vile. The Ice King through his mental link with his sons felt their slow poisoning.

His true son was not tuned to the creations he had been creating for nearly ten years now. He had formed them by spewing a little of his essence into each of his beautiful creations done in his image. He could not talk to them per se but he felt what they felt in a diffuse way.

He was feeling their bodies pierced by the cursed Dragon Glass that the Children of the Forest had used to fight him in the first war eight thousand years ago. He felt the poison coursing through their bodies undoing the magic he had used to create and bind his adopted sons and giants to him. It was a Dragon Glass blade that had created him and it was Dragon Glass that most easily killed his scions. Other things could kill them but it was Dragon Glass that was the anathema that filled his heart with palpable fear.

The Ice King had been sure that the Crows had used all their Dragon Glass in the skirmish before the gates of the Wall before Castle Black. After that night there had been no use of the cursed material by the crows. That had been a ruse. Anger swelled in the heart of the Ice King contemplating the loss of his creations beyond his ability to give succor.

The damn Wall that refused to fall was between him and his sons. It had not supposed to be this way he raged to himself. His control again slipping. He heard his true son, the Croyel, cooing to him to keep his focus. It was hard. He felt both great rage and greater frustration. Why wouldn’t the Wall fall?!

It had become obvious that the spell of subterfuge had been pierced. He had raged at the Croyel but his son had bleated that the Lord of Revelstone was indeed mighty. The Croyel whimpered that he had warned his father of this. He wanted to rage but tamped down his anger. His son spoken true. Again his control had frayed and the notes to bring the Wall down faded away.

The mere mentioning of the woman enraged him. It was against the natural laws of man and nature for a woman to be so powerful. When he had won this war he would not raise up this Lord of Revelstone. He would grind her very body into dust. His heel grinding her ruined body into the hard frozen ground. The thought calmed the rage in his seething heart.

With their spell of invisibility removed and with the forces of the Crows and the Dragon Queen having Dragon Glass his adopted sons were being been butchered. It drove him insane with rage not being able to come to their aid.

They were supposed to launch their assault while cloaked in the Croyel’s spells of invisibility. As they sowed the seeds of confusion and death he would bring down the Wall and with his true son’s spells fall upon the forces Westeros and butcher them.

That had not happened.

The only thing that seemed to have gone well was the killing of two of the Queen’s dragons. Her mightiest black dragon had risen up to give battle to his own Ice Dragon. He did not worry. His dragon son was like himself. He was the mightiest of his kind. The other two had not risen also to come over the Wall and assault his forces. He was sure they would have if they were alive.

He needed to bring down the Wall.

He again brought his tattered concentration to bear and focused on blowing the Horn of Winter. He worked his circular breathing to be able to breathe in air as he blew the inhaled breath out to keep the Horn of Winter blowing continuously. The Croyel at his throat softly coaching him in his breathing and concentration in his thoughts. He was starting to feel again a rumble in his chest. He could just hear at the lowest range of his hearing the low reverberating notes of the Horn of Winter. It was beginning to bend to his will.

He could feel the harmonic increasing in force and resonance. He felt his conscious and will getting in tune with the Horn. It and he were coming into focus. He felt the vibrations increasing in his body and air around his body. He heard the Wall begin to hum with the vibrations the Horn of Winter was setting up in reverberating harmonics along the three hundred mile edifice.

He heard his true son crooning in his mind.

“Good. Good Father. I can feel it. The Wall is starting to feel the effects of Horn of Winter. The force is building Father. Soon we can reach the cursed Lord of Revelstone and slay herrrrr!” the Croyel ended his thoughts with a wail.

The Ice King would be glad to kill the abomination of a bitch. It was unnatural all these powerful women. He would correct nature soon enough.
The Croyel wailed in frustration when the Ice King again lost his concentration. The harmonics began to subside.

“Father!” the Croyel wailed in the Ice King’s mind.

He had seen near the tree line of the Haunted Forest the gigantic black dragon swooping low over his army. On its massive back the cursed Valyrian Queen. Her dragon breathing a long tongue of fire into his Walking Dead by the line of the haunted forest. For a hundred yards the dragon’s breath ignited his walking dead. The dead alighting as their want and burning like bonfires. Worse the dead stumble into their brothers igniting them too.

The rain did not douse the fires that magically consumed the dead. The dragon flew on and then swooped up into the clouds. It came back down a mile away to let loose another mighty gout of flame setting another swath of his undead army afire. The dragon then flew up to five hundred feet and swept back down. Another long tongue of fire swept across the dead setting them to burning wildly. Her dragon was pumping its wings and rose up to disappear into the clouds.

The Croyel compelled his father to continue breathing and blowing into the Horn of Winter but even the Croyel’s focus was distracted by the Queen and her dragon. They both remembered the hellish fire that had almost killed them at the Tree of Life. Then a couple minutes later the bitch Queen plummeted down two miles away from her first attack and started to set more of the Ice King’s walking dead alight.

The Croyel felt his father calling in Ice Fang to come to the defense of the walking dead. In making the summons to his dragon, the Croyel’s father had let his concentration again slip.

He touched his father’s mind with a deliberate probe.

“Let Ice Fang do his duty father. Let us bring down the Wall. Focus father!”

The Ice King shook his head. He knew he had to focus. He had begun to get in sync with the Horn of Winter yet again. He focused on his desire to bring the Wall down.

Oberyn: With hard flicks of his wrist Oberyn jammed his spear out at the mass of Freys and Boltons all around him. He was fighting to back up the Giants that had thrown the knights of the traitors into disarray. Now the Unsullied were slowly advancing having formed up into their phalanxes. The reserves of the traitors mounted knights came charging in and slammed into the melee. Forces from Dorne and the mercenary companies of Essos coming to the battle to engage the traitors.

The Giants had braced themselves. Despite the size and weight of the Giants, the immense size of war horses and armored knights was even greater. Their lowered lances giving the weight of the charge a focus. The Giants body absorbed the mighty impact of colliding forces. Their blades slashed out and cut down the four lead horses making them stumble down. The stone glaives sheared several of the lances in half. Two of the dead horses still slammed into the Giant shields. The immense weight and momentum had the Giants stumbling back fighting to keep their footing.

One lance came through the defensive shields with the Giants off balance and hit Oakentree Harborchannel in her temple. The stone helm taking the blow and shattering. The force of the lance blow taken by the stone armor. The Giant knocked out by the blow. She fell back unconscious. She was held up by Stratus Headwind who jerked her back from the front of the melee. The Giants had formed up around her and were swirling their massive swords around killing any who came to close.
A wall of dead knights and horses helped to keep the attackers off them. The Haruchai fought like wildcats protecting their severely wounded countryman. There feet and fists striking out with deadly force. One of the Haruchai who had picked up a dead Ice Wright sword was slaying all that came near him. The icy cold did not affect his natural immunity to freezing temperatures. The bronzed Haruchai fought to where the Giants had formed their protective ring around their own injured sister.

The speared Haruchai was carried by her countrymen to lie beside the fallen Giant. Oberyn saw a knight of House Bolton about to hack the back of the sailor Giant Loadstone Horizonscan. The mighty Giant’s fist were like battering rams. Focused on the foes before him he did not see the danger behind him. His fists crushing skulls and sending knights reeling back when his fists struck their armor. With all his strength Oberyn threw his spear. His aim was true. The spear slammed into the space between the man’s helm and body armor. The spear penetrating the thin metal plate armor at that point. The spear now jutting out two feet from the throat of the dead knight who toppled off his horse.

He was weaponless. He picked up a fallen pike. He resumed fighting. He used the weapon to jab out at his enemies. He saw the flank of a Frey’s knight’s horse and threw his pike. The shaft penetrated the horse’s body between its ribs the head of the pike buried deep in its belly. The horse fell over crushing the knight to the ground. Oberyn was suddenly set upon by two knights and a knot of foot soldiers. Looking down he picked up a fallen sword. He was a poor swordsmen but he could defend himself.

Oberyn juked around deflecting sword swipes and battleaxes that were swiped down hard at him. He was falling back with the forces of the traitors closing in. There was no greater honor than to fall in combat fighting bravely. He screamed out at his foes to come to him to die. They seemed anxious to take him up on his offer.

He was in big trouble and knew it but he would take as many of the scum down with him as he could. Two knights were hacking at Oberyn furiously keeping him off balance allowing foot soldiers armed with swords and battleaxes to close on him.

A mighty shout of strength and anger washed over Oberyn and his assailants. Loadstone Horizonscan slammed into one of the mounted knights bowling over the horse and sending the knight flying through the air. He charged into the next mounted knight but he had seen the initial attack and had charged his warhorse at the Giant. The kicking horse and slashing knight kept the Giant at bay. Men attacked from the side of the Giant. He was about to be hacked down.

Scend Surehand came rushing in. Her sword a tornado of destruction. She chopped the knight with her glaive. Her blade partially penetrating his plate armor and cracking his ribs. The man fell off his horse. More knights came at the Giants. Two more Giants came running in. One was bleeding from her face from a head wound near her hairline. Another had cuts along her arm where the armor had been slammed into her flesh. One Giant had had her armor ruined. One leg and had a deep thigh wound.

The battle was even but the forces of the traitors were taking causalities. Loadstone Horizonscan took an arrow to his shoulder and one to his right side down near his hip. The arrows not sinking deep through their tough bodies but he was injured and fell back. More knights were charging along with men on foot swarming forward. The sailor Giant fighting the traitors pressing in on him.

Oberyn glanced over at the Unsullied but their charge had been blunted. They were on their own. He was blocking and parrying sword thrusts. He was a spearman. He did find an opening and sliced one Frey along the back of his leg crippling him. Loadstone took a sword thrust to his belly. Blood pouring out the wound. He fell to one knee.
Oberyn screamed as a knight on a horse was preparing to cleave the Giant’s head in two.

Ranrika and Ferna had somehow found their Ranyhyn mounts, Phaharhn and Sarunal. They charged back into the fray. The two Haruchai had taken up dropped broadswords. The Ranyhyn slammed into the warhorses of the knights attacking them. The Ranyhyn turning their shoulders into the armored horses. The two large warhorses of the knights were still a hand and more shorter and not as muscled and robust as the Ranyhyn. The warhorses went careening down to the ground throwing their knights into the air. The knights landing hard and knocked senseless.

The Ranyhyn turned and kicked and bite all around them. A pike pierced Sarunal in the whithers making her collapse down on that side. A Giant sword lifted that man’s head off his shoulders. The Giant and one of her sisters in arms charged into the pikemen. They had ditched their iron shields to freely use their stone swords. Their armor making the pike heads glance off. The Giant’s glaives slamming into the pike and swordsman. Their blades dealing out mayhem.

Ranrika and Ferna had launched themselves through the air and decapitated a knight each with precise furious sword swipes. The women landing lightly and were whirling dervishes with their swords whistling through the air. Right and left the women hacked and parried. Their foes having to give ground or die. He saw Ranrika bend down gripping something. Suddenly, Oberyn’s spear came through the air and into Oberyn’s hand. Oberyn was back in the fight proper!

War horns were sounding and Oberyn’s heart lifted. The war horns were of Dorne. He looked to his left and behind him. He saw two companies of Dorne knights of the House Toland. The forty mounted knights came charging in at full gallop with lances lowered. In the confusion of combat the enemy combatants did not see the new attack coming upon them.

Oberyn felt elation seeing his countrymen charging into the fray. The mighty horse charge filled the Red Viper with exhilaration. He watched the lances of the men of Toland reaching out for their enemy. Their impact on the disorganized traitors was devastating. Horse and man impaled. The corpses or severely injured horses and men fell to the ground. The knights threw down their lances and pulled their swords to join the melee.

The impact of horse against horse and man was frightening. The screams of pain and death echoed in Oberyn’s ears. Oberyn shouted his own war shout. It was for this that he had trained his whole life for. He speared a foot soldier through his belly out his back through his leather armor. He ripped his spear back. He was still off balance with two fighters from House Bolton coming at him with mighty double headed battleaxes. He deflected their initial chops. He jabbed out with his spear and was able to keep them at bay. They started to separate to come at him from two sides.

Ranrika had jumped up on a warhorse. Oberyn could not but help but be impressed at the woman’s effortless strength and balance. She easily jumped up high and landed with perfect balance on the startled horse’s back. Ranrika immediately jumped off the horse’s back flying through the air. Her sword slammed through the back of the first man with a battleax severing his spine as she flew by the man. She ripped the sword out his back and rolled twice and came up on her feet. The woman finding her balance immediately. She swiveled and disemboweled the second man with a lightning fast sword swipe. She looked around once seeing no more foes she ran forward to a knot of swordsmen fighting the Unsullied who had formed up more ranks now and were advancing relentlessly. Their spears unwavering.

Their phalanx now that it was formed up was unshakable. Their shields interlocked. Their spears thrusting out to find the bodies of the traitorous Houses. They were like a breakwater turning back the relentless surging sea.

Oberyn looked around. The traitors attack was faltering. It was obvious that they were to attack while the invisible Ice Wrights and ice Giants were sowing confusion around the camp the Queen. Together they would have thrown the camp of Westeros into disarray.

That plan had faltered. First, the birds appearing in the sky to attack beyond the Wall had altered the forces of the Queen of the impending attack. Then the Lord of Revelstone had stripped the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants of their invisibility. These two events were allowing the forces of Westeros to counterattack and dispatch their enemies.

He looked up at the Wall that was still standing. It was clear that this surprise attack was to be timed to have the Wall come during this surprise attack. Then all three events at once would have shocked and overwhelmed the forces of the Queen Westeros.

Maybe this supposed Horn of Winter was a fake.

Arya: Arya stood on the berm that had been erected a mile from the Wall. The deep ditch before it filled with oil and pitch. It would be lit if the Wall came down and the walking dead came forward to try and overwhelm their position.

The daughter of Eddard Stark looked at the pale edifice. It was still towering majestic before them. Maybe the Ice King did indeed have a fake of the Horn of Winter. She smiled at that thought. She sincerely hoped so. If the Wall stayed up the devastation to the Ice King’s army was predestinated. They would rain death down on the army of the Ice King from on high. The murder holes in the ceilings of the tunnels would annihilate the enemy if they attempted passage.

It had been a wild half hour. The initial shock of the attack had quickly given way to counterattack. True it had raged at first but once the forces of Westeros had recovered from the initial shock the outcome had never been in doubt. Of course, the Lord of Revelstone lifting the spell of invisibility had been key. If they had not been able to see their enemies in their attack … Arya shuddered at the thought.

Then Lord Lustra of Revelstone had finally revealed her true might. It had been her Lord’s Fire that had thrown back the initial surge of Ice Giants and Ice Wrights that had attempted to kill Dany’s dragons. If not for Lord Lustra most likely all three dragons would be dead now. Only Rhaegal had been injured. His wounds not life threatening.

Arya was thankful for the Lord. To not be able to aim her arrows and not know an Ice Wright or Ice Giant was upon you until you felt their weapon striking your body was a frightening thought.

Fortunately, that had not come to pass.

She saw out in the expanse between the Wall and the forces of the Westeros eight bodies of Ice Wrights. Four were still alive though they seemed to be wounded to at least some degree. She looked out across the plain left and right. She saw other Ice Wrights that had retreated back from the forces of Westeros. The Ice spawn licking their wounds.

They had had the sense to abandon the fight and flee into the no man’s zone between the berm and the Wall. The forces of the Ice King had fought hard and long but with their invisibility stripped they had not been able to weather the storm of iron and dragon glass tipped arrows, javelins and some spears fired or hurled at them. The iron shattered their ice armor. Their armor compromised allowed the use of the Queen’s obsidian weapons.

Her father refused to allow anyone to go forth and attack the surviving Ice Wrights. He would not risk a further unexpected attack. Let the enemy come to us had been her father’s pronouncement.
The sneak attack had been repulsed. Once the bodies of their icy foes were exposed then Dragon Glass tipped weapons slew the Ice based creatures of the Ice King.

Most of the archers of Westeros were not extremely skilled such as herself and Marleya Blackmyre. Of course there were others. Twenty of the best had formed up with Arya and Marleya. There were others spread throughout the forces of the Queen.

These archers like Arya were skilled enough to fire at the faces of the Ice Wrights and Giants. They also fired at the chinks of the armor exposed by the iron tipped weapons. The arrows sometimes missing but usually finding their mark. If no targets of opportunity existed then Arya fired off magically enhanced iron tipped arrows to further along the destruction of the ice armor of the Wrights and Giants of the Ice King.

The rest of the archers were skilled enough to get their arrows on target. The men who threw javelins and spears were not as skilled as Oberyn by and large but a few were. The rest were like the archers. They aimed to get their weapons on target. The dragon glass shattering when hitting ice. Many missed altogether.

But, the ones that struck home and true did their work. The projectiles that found head or heart instantly killed their mark. The hits to the upper chest were usually quick kills. The hits lower on the thoracic cavity or on limbs started to work immediately poisoning the Ice Wright or Giant. The spreading of black tendrils of poison slowly working throughout their bodies and up over the faces.

As the obsidian poison spread, the Ice Wright or Giants slowed and became lethargic. The strokes of their weapons clumsy and slow. They became ever easier to kill. Arrows and other projectiles slamming into their bodies breaking armor with iron or further poisoning them with dragon glass. The creatures did not die quietly. They screamed and shrieked out the agony of their deaths.

Arya had enjoyed her kill shots. She had equally enjoyed seeing them die more slowly. The pleasure was not personal. It did not excite her. It merely meant another Ice Wright or Giant had expired. It was what they had trained for. To have the less skilled archers fire at their targets and let the mass of arrows perform their work. Then the marksmen such as herself could go about the work of hitting the bodies of the now exposed icy spawn to kill outright or poison with obsidian for a slower death.

They had all the arrows they needed. They had only fired off the smallest fraction even now. The archers were still born scavengers. When Arya or the other archers found a useable Dragon Glass tipped arrow they plucked it from the ground and stuffed in a quiver. The same was done with the iron tipped magically rune inscribed arrows. The runners following close.

The runners running back to the depot points to get fresh quivers stuffed full of arrows. Other runners wheeling wheelbarrows heaped high with quivers to dispersion points. They would be dispensed as needed. The archers needed to have all the arrows they would need. Their job was to fire fast and furious and not worry about the arrows remaining. They had mountains of arrows to fire!

More quivers were being rushed to the berm and to all the other parties of the archers. The battle was not won. It had only just begun. Arya chuckled at the enthusiasm of the runners. Before the battle they would grumble practicing the wheeling of their carts heaped high with quivers or snark at having to run to the archers to dispense individual quivers to the archers. The battle had given them the fervor of the converted. Now they were pushing their carts and running around at breakneck speed.

The teenager looked up hearing the screams of the two dragons flying through the air. The dragons flying up into the clouds only to plummet back down out of them. Dany with her white hair flying giving chase to the Ice Dragon that was attacking their forces. It was clear the first dragon wanted no parts of Drogon. The two dragons twisting and doing swirls in the air. One avoiding and one giving chase.

Arya had felt her mouth drop when she saw the Ice Dragon make its first pass over the army of the Queen. It was not flames that had spewed out the dragon’s mouth but a blizzard of ice daggers. She had not been near any of the paths of destruction from the Ice Dragon’s icy daggers but she saw men and horses fall from being impaled by the daggers.

It enraged Arya. She cursed the abomination flying above her. The large size of the camp worked to the Ice Dragon’s advantage. Dany could never quite catch up to the Ice Dragon. It would plummet out of the clouds and dive down on the Queen’s forces. It would spew out its icy breath spewing death below. The destruction from the beast dispensed it would immediately start to pump its wings to gain attitude and again disappear into the clouds.

Dany and Drogon in their turn dropping from the clouds looking for their elusive prey. The great black dragon roaring his challenge but always too far away to intervene. Drogon would beat his mighty wings but could never quite catch up. Both dragons using the clouds scudding by overhead as cover to hide their flight paths.

Twice the Ice Dragon had flown close to Arya as it wheeled over after its pass to head back up to the low clouds roiling over their heads. Her first shot had barely reached the dragon as it rose up. The arrow bounced off its thick scales. Her second shot was aimed at its left wing but the moving target and turbulence of wind rushing over the monstrosity’s wings sent her shot awry.

It was evident to Arya that a human arm simply did not have the strength to do harm to a dragon unless one could get right up on the dragon.

Arya watched Dany suddenly wheel Drogon around and flew straight towards the Wall disappearing into the clouds just before she reached the Wall. Just before reaching the clouds Drogon gave a mighty bellow of challenge that echoed over the battlefield. Arya knew her mate. Dany had gone to take the fight to Ice King’s army and give it a taste of what his Ice Dragon was doing to the forces of Westeros. The teenager knew Dany was banking on the Ice King calling his creation to come to the aid of his forces.

The crows had spread the word that the Walking Dead once touched by flame went up like raging bonfires that could not be quenched. She would be killing the Walking Dead of the Ice King by the hundreds. The thought made a feral smile come across her face.

Arya looked again at the Wall. Why was it still up? This attack had to have been supposed to be coordinate with the dropping of the Wall. If that had occurred, even with their spell of invisibility removed the surprise attack would have been much more effective. The defenders pulled in three directions at once when considering the actions of the traitors.

Arya looked back and to her left. Rhaegal had not been harmed any more after the initial assault upon him. Again she had to thank the Lord of Revelstone for that. Rhaegal was clearly injured but seemed to basically hale. He was not in danger of toppling over from his injury. Viserion was near him walking around his mighty tail swishing the ground and rattling in the air.

All around Rhaegal was the ruined remains of the Ice Wrights and Giants armor. Most of the actual bodies having vaporized away as was the icy spawn’s want when they were slain. She knew Viserion was ready for more combat. She hoped Rhaegal would be able to contribute too. Her vision went back to the soaring heights of the Wall.
As she gazed up at the azure blue of the Wall and its grandeur that even the sullen rain could not diminish. Arya was joined atop the berm by her father and Stannis Baratheon. Both men were hale but their armor now had dents and scratches from combat. Both of their blades were still drawn.

Stannis’s Valyrian blade dripped the pale blue blood of the Ice Wrights and Giants he had pierced and slashed. The blade showed no wear from combat. The Crows had made it clear that normal steel shattered against the ice forged blades of the Ice Wrights and Giants. Not so Valyrian steel blades. They were immune to the cold of the ice blades of their foes.

Her father’s blade was clean of any blue ice blood or gore. It was humming loudly and tendrils of light blue eldritch might peeled off the blade and twisted up her father’s arm. Other tendrils wiggling up off the blade into the air before dissipating. Evening Star was aglow with whispering magical might and seemed to be anxious to spill more blood of the icy creatures it had cut down.

Stannis looked tired but still totally fit. Arya was also tired but more than ready to continue fighting. The training of the great swordsmen had them extremely fit and ready for more battle. Arya saw though that her father was looking refreshed. He had no apparent weariness about him.

She saw the tendrils working up her father’s arm and seeming to melt into his armor. That was when she realized that her father’s blade was sustaining him and invigorating her father. That was good. A smile crossed Arya’s face with a sudden realization.

She had wanted since she was a little girl to become a true sword master like her father. With her coming to Dany she had trained with Dany’s sword masters. Arya had achieved her dreams of becoming a sword master the equal of her father and Dany. Syrio and Barristan had honed her skills to a razor sharp edge. It was just that the current combat dictated that she used her supreme skills as an archer. She could do more damage with her bow than her sword at present.

Yes, she had achieved all her dreams. She looked over her right shoulder. She had both of her swords pummels sticking out over her shoulder. Blackfyre that was now her rune sword and her trusty Needle. Both swords ready to use at a moment’s notice. She had not once pulled her Valyrian sword from its scabbard in the wild melee she had just experienced.

It had not been needed.

Her true value in this scenario was her bow she thought. She was one of the best marksmen in all of Westeros or Essos. She had done her damage through her bow and the iron tipped arrows she shot to destroy the Ice Wright and Giant armor. Then through the ruined armor or direct head shots she killed the Icy creations of the Ice King with obsidian tipped arrows.

Arya saw her father look at her with clear pride in his eyes that made his daughter throw out her chest in pride.

“You have done well Arya” her father told her. “You have more than proved yourself this day. You have become the warrior I always knew you could be. You have become what Lyanna should have been. I am truly proud of you. You have slain many of our enemies this day.”

Her father looked at the Wall. He looked back at Arya.

“I fear that you will have ample opportunities this day to kill more of our enemy.”

Stannis came over and clapped Arya on the shoulder. He smiled down at her.

She winked at him and he blushed.
“Why hasn’t the Wall come down father? You feel that the Ice King indeed has the real Horn of Winter.”

“I don’t know Arya. I still feel that he means to use the Horn of Winter. Maybe there is something preventing him from using it. The Ice King is mighty as is the Croyel on his back. I feel they will succeed. We do not have the ability to thwart the Horn of Winter’s use. He has succeeded in getting to the edge of the Wall. It is a shame. For eight thousand years it has stood as a barrier to protect us.” The three of them continued to look at the beauty of the Wall.

As they stood on the berm they were joined by the Lord of Revelstone atop her Ranyhyn, Frinny. Brail was beside her of course atop Frahanoryl. The ancestral Valyrian sword that Eddard had given the Haruchai was unsheathed and soaked in the light blue blood of the Ice Wrights and Giants the stoic Haruchai had killed with the massive sword.

They all looked at the Wall.

“Do you feel it?” the Lord of Revelstone asked her companions.

“Feel what?” Eddard asked the Lord looking up at her on her mighty Ranyhyn. Arya felt nothing herself.

“The Wall is being assaulted. It will not stand.”

Syrio: The former First Sword of Braavos was heading back towards the front line. He could see Eddard and the Lord of Revelstone standing on the berm looking up at the Wall. He was surprised it was still up. It made no sense for the Ice King to have sent in this shock troop of Ice Wrights and Ice Giants and not commence his assault on the Wall and bring it down. The confusion would have been overwhelming.

He was thankful for the Lord of Revelstone, Lustra. If she had not stripped the Ice Wrights and Giants of their invisibility the battle would have gone very differently. The Ice Wrights had been wicked fast. The Ice Giants … well they had been Giants. Their sheer size had been intimidating. They were not near as fast as the Giants from the southern hemisphere but their sheer size and power made them difficult to deal with.

If they had been invisible …

The ice armor of the Ice Wright and Giants was strong but the arrows tipped with magically enhanced iron had slowly but surely cracked and exploded the ice disks of the creations of the Ice King. Then the Dragon Glass did its work. Many of the Dragon Glass tipped arrows shattered on the remaining ice blocks but the air was thick with arrows. The holes were found.

It had been most gratifying to see one of the monstrosities drop straight down with a head shot or a Dragon Glass projectile through the heart.

The hits to the lower chest and stomach and limbs were slower kills for sure. It was interesting in a way to see the poison spread with the black lines tracing through their bodies. Some of their eyes turning black as the poison reached their heads. The bodies then going into a wild death dance. Oberyn smiled. The idea of poison killing an enemy he found appealing.

What had been more enjoyable was using his new Valyrian steel rapier. Cobra Fang had performed most excellently. The ice armor had been a hindrance most definitely but after five minutes of arrows flying thick and fast at the Ice Wrights and Giants he had plenty of opportunities for Cobra Fang to find holes and crevasses to punch through to pierce and kill his foes.
The thrusts to eyes and heart killed instantly but the other wounds he administered were like the Dragon Glass tipped weapons. The magic in the Valyrian steel also was anathema to the creatures. The wounds quickly festering and poisoning the foul creations of the Ice King. The beasts slowing as the poison took hold. This allowed Syrio to pierce their bodies gain and again quickening their demise.

Strong Belwas came up to him and fell in step. He was smiling thumbing the blade of his Valyrian scimitar. Like his blade it dripped blue blood. He had at least ten new cuts on his big belly. His insistence on letting is foes cut him once if at all possible before dying was quite mad Syrio groused to himself.

“I keep telling you Belwas that this habit of yours of letting yourself be cut will be death of you.”

The big eunuch snorted. “Ha Butter Knife! You are just jealous of my skills!”

Syrio grind his teeth. The fat eunuch had only recently come up that dreadful nickname in their bantering.

“The only thing that will kill me is I am famished. I need nourishment. I have killed many of my Queen’s foes without sustenance. I am only a ghost of myself.”

Syrio glared at the eunuch and looked at his jiggling belly.

Strong Belwas saw that and patted his ample girth. “My extoplasma is piqued.”

“That is protoplasm you mean.”

“Whatever” the eunuch eyed Syrio’s arm as if it was a prime rib. “I need locust!” Strong Belwas whined.

Syrrio shook his head as they moved back towards the frontline of the Queen’s camp. In chasing his foes he had travelled far from his starting point.

The former First Sword of Braavos was happy with what he saw. Now that the scourge of the Ice Wrights and Giants had been removed the troops were forming up into their formations and moving forward. The archers were armed and their followers were loaded down with quivers loaded up with Dragon Glass tipped arrows in preponderance. They had plenty of magical enhanced iron tipped arrows but the thought was that the Walking Dead vastly outnumbered the Ice Wrights and Giants.

The host moving up to the berm. From its height they would bring death to the approaching army of the Walking Dead.

Also, the reconnaissance of the ShadowBender witches seemed to show that the production of ice armor was laborious and slowed down the wearer of the armor. Past fights with the Ice Wrights with the Crows and Wildlings had shown that the Ice Wrights valued speed and quickness above all else.

They would deal with anymore armored Ice spawn of the Ice King if needed. The chances of that were slim. Syrio was sure that the remaining Ice Wrights and Giants would be unarmored. They would be more vulnerable to long range fire but would be much quicker, and, thus harder to hit. If they got in close they would be deadly.

At least five companies of mercenaries from Essos had been training extensively in firing off flame tipped arrows. They would add their own weight to the coming fight. They would fire off volleys of flaming arrows when the enemy had come close to their fortifications.
As he continued to move forward Syrio saw companies of heavily armed knights and pikemen forming up to create their phalanxes.

These formations were not for attack but defense. The undead, Ice Wrights and their Giant brothers could only be killed by Dragon Glass, fire in case of the undead or those with magical blades which were few in their numbers.

No, these forces had a purely defensive function. They would hold the advancing Walking Dead and the Icy creations of the Ice King at bay while the deluge of Dragon Glass and fire did their work. These forces were to engage and hold in place the forces of the Ice King. By preference, this was to be a battle at distance. They had the weapons and tactics to decimate the enemy at distance.

The steel of man could not survive long against the ice blades of the Ice King’s wrights and giants but they would not have too. The foe would be decimated by the time their host could reach them. The steel presented to the Ice Wrights and Giants would hold them in place while the archers riddled the icy spawn.

Slowly, Syrio and his bald friend moved forward. Strong rubbing his belly and licking his lips begging all he passed for food. “I’m famished!” “You can almost see my backbone I am so emaciated.”

Belwas was handed a satchel full of salted beef jerky and several loafs of hard tack for his efforts. He ate most noisily and messily. He did not whine as loud. He was still starving he made sure all knew though.

As Syrio walked forward Barristan appeared from behind a catapult. The attendants making sure the weapon was in tip top shape and ready for use. He had a cut on his forehead that had someone had wrapped a bandage around. The bandages red with his blood. He had his Valyrian sword out, Hammer of Doom, it was dripping pale blue blood. There was blue blood staining Barristan’s armor from head to toe. He had evidently made at least one kill up close and personal.

“What happened to you man?” Syrio asked the old knight who was still as spry as any knight in his thirties.

Barristan looked himself over and grimaced. “I was fighting an Ice Giant and he was towering over me. I tripped over a dead soldier and as he raised his sword to cleave my head I saw that his ice armor had been compromised with iron tipped arrows. I was able to stab my sword into his lower belly and ripped up with my sword. I disemboweled him and you see the result” Barristan said as he motioned his free hand over his body showing the gore that had soaked his armor and helm.

The three old friends from the beginning of Daenerys’ quest for greatness walked on towards the frontline of the Queen’s forces. They had reached the first line of catapults and trebuchets. The Crows had brought down about a half of their catapults from the Wall. The numbers augmenting those created by the sappers. The rest had been left on the Wall in case it was not brought down and they needed to rush back up to the heights to begin firing down on the Walking Dead of the Ice King.

Of course all had planned on having plenty of time seeing the enemy emerge from Haunted Forest and begin to be able to attack them as soon as they came in range of the catapults. Being seven hundred feet in the air would increase their range by at least five hundred yards.

Most of the catapults and trebuchets they now passed had been built with the engineers and sappers that had traveled up to the Wall with the Queen’s march north. It had been the engineers from the Dorne military academies especially, Battleborne Academy, that had led in their construction.
There was nearly six hundred catapults spread out along the front lines of the Queen’s forces. The first line fifty yards behind the berm. There was near fifty of the more massive trebuchets. The catapults able to fire an eight pound sandstone wrapped in linen soaked in tar and pitch. Before each shot the concoction would be set on fire. The constructs would hurl their rock at the enemy. The catapults could fire out to three hundred yards. The light rock would explode on contact with the ground sending out shards of flaming material to set the Walking Dead alight.

The trebuchets were much more massive. They could reach out to five hundred yards. They could fire up to two hundred pounds. Heavy boulders to crush and pulp and smaller projectiles that would be on fire to set the dead alight and to burning. It would take much longer to reload and pull the tension tight for the trebuchets. It was a quantity over quality Syrio smirked to himself. The three men angled their approach to the berm to be near to Eddard.

As they reached the berm and started to walk up it they heard the Ice Dragon that had harried their position scream in rage. The men looked up at it. It had dropped out of the clouds. It was flying straight for the Wall. The light blue dragon beat its wings furiously and crested over the Wall and dove out of sight. Evidently, its master had a new task for it. All were sure what that task was.

Syrio looked across the expanse to the Wall. He saw a few Ice Wrights moving around out of range of arrows. They were clearly confused and waiting for succor that had not yet happened. Syrio started to feel a low rumble in his chest.

“What is that?” he asked looking around. He started to hear a low bass note in the air. The note repeating itself continuously.

The Lord of Revelstone spoke “It is the Horn of Winter. I can feel the magic of the Insequent in the air. I fear the Wall is about to fall.”

Suddenly, loud cracks and booms started to be heard up and down the Wall. With large eyes, all present watched cracks start to form on the wall. More loud cracks and shouts of protest were heard as more and larger cracks started to form on the Wall. The cracks starting to web out and interlock.

Daenerys: Daenerys was flying over the Walking Dead. She was having Drogon only give out short gouts of flame as they attacked the Walking Dead now. They had gotten the Ice King’s attention. Daenerys looked below as they flew over the army of the Ice King. Even in the rain the dead were burning brightly. The rain did not douse the flames at all. When the dead touched one of their brethren they too alight.

It was sweet to the pale Valyrian that the Walking Dead did some of the work for her. Their burning bodies shambling around as they burned. Each touch of one of their undead brothers and sisters set them afire. She needed to conserve Drogon’s fire. That would be needed when they were visited by the monstrosity that the Ice King had created.

The Queen frowned. It did seem the Dead sensed the heat of the flames and did not blindly walk into the flames but would stop walking forward and try to move around. It slowed the spread of the fires Drogon spit out at them. The massed enemy worked against the Walking Dead though. The undead had a compulsion to move forward. Those away from the fires wanting to move forward. They then pushed the ones closest to the burning Walking Dead into them. Still, she had burned hundreds and hundreds of the dead.

She saw the initial long burn marks that were littered thick with smoking corpses. Other undead lying out like petals from the burn tracks.

She could have done much more damage but she was saving Drogon’s breath. She was waiting for their dance partner to join them. She flew Drogon up into the clouds to fall out far afield from where she entered and burned more of the Walking Dead. She was sending out an invitation to the ball. She needed her dance partner. She did not see the Ice King in his milling army by the Wall but she knew he was there and saw her burning his precious cannon fodder. He needed his Walking Dead to absorb much of the effort of her forces.

She was conserving Drogon’s breath. Most persons thought that dragon’s fire was unlimited. It was not so. They had to eat plenty of food and have time to have the chemical reactions to make a large reservoir of fire. She knew the Ice Dragon would have the same constraints but even more so. He was breathing out ice. That had to be depleting his own reservoir. He had been breathing out mighty gouts of ice daggers at her army. He had to be consuming what he had in his stomach.

She had Drogon give out a long one hundred yard long gout of flame on an especially thick concentration of milling Walking Dead. They went up like bonfires. This much fire had many of the Walking Dead shambling into their brethren. She had left below her a large funeral pyre burning. She needed to fill the Ice King with anger at their deaths.

The Queen contemplated magic as she waited. Magic from what she had read and observed bent the laws of nature. It could not ignore and subvert those laws. Magic only enhanced certain aspects of natural law and suppress other laws of nature. Like the law of conservation of mass. That law said that the fighting dragons could only breathe out so much fire or water. She knew the dragons in this contest were consuming all the fire and ice they had generated from their prodigious consummation of meat.

They had built their reservoirs from the meals before this combat. They would not be eating again until the fight was over one way or the other. They could only fight with what was already within them. She hoped the Ice Dragon had consumed most of his resources already.

She had snorted at an older bard who had a great tale he was writing. One of her dragons would be slain and risen up to do the Ice King’s bidding and melt the Wall. She had laughed along with the Maesters in her army. If her dragon, Viserion let’s say, was dead he could no longer produce fire or ice. The chemical reactions of life had ceased. Plus, he could no longer eat. Each time he breathed out fire or water he would be consuming himself. Matter and energy could not be created from nothing. Magic had to obey the rough strictures of physics and thermal dynamics.

Then the scribe had her dead dragon bringing down the whole Wall with a few fire breaths. Again impossible. The Wall had some magic in it but it was primarily a physical construct. The original magic meant as anchors for the Wall and the warding of certain doors built into the Wall. The magic of the Staff of Law meant to fight denizens of the Southern continent.

There was no magic that supported the Wall itself for the dragon breath to undo. The Wall had been raised over the centuries by the might of human muscle and will. The Wall raised up block by block. The heat of dragon’s fire was intense but a gout of ten seconds would do little damage to the Wall. It was simply too massive. Dragon fire was magical and super intense but against the Wall it was still a small thing. Its sheer massive cold a counterbalance to dragon fire.

The scribe had left in a huff. When he had tried to tell them a tale of the Faceless Men having no emotions and easily allowing heinous treatment of their students. All had laughed at the scribe wannabe. All that would have produced was an Order of lunatics and psychopaths more likely to explode against those that harmed them than any foe. The damage more severe when perpetuated on the young. It warped them into monsters with no conscious. No conscious for anyone or anything. Psychopaths anxious to kill any who crossed them for the slightest reason.

Humans were social animals that needed nurture, basic fair treatment and a basically good ordered structure or they would become worthless as fighters. The men and women too unbalanced to be relied on. The operatives as liable to kill their masters and innocents as any desired targets.

Every author it seemed loved that idea but the reality was hogwash. She had read tales of children pressed into monstrous warfare and dispensing of cruel treatment upon those children. They became unruly and untrustworthy fighters that quickly cracked and fractured in combat when the fight went against them. The children neurotic and showing the strangest behaviors at the most inopportune times. The children unable to integrate into society.

That the Faceless Men were not.

Her musings were interrupted. She saw motion to her right over the Wall. Finally. The Ice Dragon came winging over the Wall and dove down. It saw Drogon and came furiously towards them. It was time to end this Daenerys thought to herself, but, first a few more pirouettes needed to be performed.

She had Drogon tilt his neck down and another small gout of flame erupted out his mouth and another several score of Walking Dead lit up like over dry pine logs burning furiously. She then wheeled Dragon into a fast climb. She had kept herself close to the Haunted Forest to both avoid the Ice King and to keep distance from the charge of the Ice Dragon. She looked back. They had the total focus of the Ice Dragon. Its wings beat furiously closing with them. Daenerys smiled. It was too far away. She entered into the bank of clouds pelting the ground with rain.

Satisfaction ran through her hearing the Ice Dragon scream in rage at their disappearance. Paybacks were sweet Daenerys thought to herself. The Queen had deduced how the Ice Dragon had avoided her earlier and now used the same tactic against it. Drogon was skimming just above the lowest marge of the flowing clouds. His wings cantering high to keep them hidden. Drogon had his neck cantered down his head just peeking out through the clouds looking all around. His head blending in with the clouds.

Through his eyes the Queen saw the Ice Dragon wheeling around in circles looking for them. The pale blue dragon’s neck cantering back and forth looking around its body. The Ice Dragon was zigzagging its body in the air to make it a difficult target if they dove down on it. This showed the Ice Dragon was not stupid but intelligent like her Drogon. That would make it tougher the Queen thought to herself. Then it made a decision and zoomed up into the clouds itself.

The two playing cat and mouse with each other. Both dragons risking an unexpected collision unseen. The chance though small still existed. The need to fight was too great to not take risks. Also, height gave advantage. No dragon wanted to be attacked from above. Such attacks gave the down plunging dragon speed and momentum as it dove down on its foe. The increased speed giving it greater ability to maneuver.

The Queen turned her dragon left and headed towards the Wall. Then she plummeted down like a black comet to the milling mass below. She was only a quarter of the mile from the Wall three miles from the gates. The cold rain cooled her body on fire with the thrill of primal combat. Combat as her ancestors fought first in Valyria and then in Westeros.

Drogon pulled up at the last moment and let forth a long tongue of flame. Daenerys shouted and pumped her fist seeing Walking Dead, an Ice Giant and several Ice Wrights go up in the magically intense dragon fire. Drogon pulled up at the end of his strafing run and pumped his wings hard entering the clouds yet again. All the while as Drogon attacked Daenerys had had her head on a swivel looking up. She could not afford to have the Ice Dragon get directly above her and close the distance between them before Drogon could effectively fly into a defensive pose.
Just as they were entering the clouds the Queen saw the Ice Dragon come down half a mile away pivoting around to fly at them but they were gone back into the clouds. Another mighty tenor scream of rage chased after them. Grimly the Queen smiled. They were enraging the dragon. She wanted it enraged. Hopefully, anger would cloud its judgement. She hated risking strafing runs on the Walking Dead but she needed to get the Ice Dragon to act rashly.

Neither dragon nor rider wanted to play this cat and mouse game all day. Still, both dragons wanted to attack from a position of strength so the game continued.

Drogon with his Valyrian rider were skimming the lowest clouds again when she felt and heard it. A rumble in her chest and a low bass note in her ears. She then heard the loud retorts of tortured ice screaming.

It was beginning. She had Drogon lower his head below the clouds. Through his eyes the Queen saw that the Wall now had deep cracks forming on it from its base to its seven hundred foot height. She thought she saw vibrations in the Wall but that might be her imagination adding sight to what she heard and felt. As she and Drogon looked on more cracks appeared in the Wall. The Wall now webbed with more and more cracks.

Determination flowed in the slight Queen’s body. She had known this was a possibility. She had planned for it. Still to go from a possibility to a reality was jarring. She gritted her teeth. There was nothing for it. Bringing down the Wall had both determents and benefits. She would use the benefits of the Wall coming down to her advantage.

She flew on. She could not save the Wall now. She had to defeat the Ice Dragon to free the skies of its scourge. The rumbling in her chest grew as did the bass note now clearly heard in the air. She had flown back towards the Haunted Forest. She raced a mile down east from the point she had last flown down.

She dived Drogon again but this time at an angling attitude. Drogon winging over his body angled over his body picking up momentum fast as they dived down. She had her head craned up looking for danger from above. Her head craning to look at all points on the compass. Attack from above was always a dragon’s most vulnerable aspect. Drogon only let out a small gout of flame to set a score of Walking Dead afire. She was mainly still burning the dead and any Wrights and Giants unlucky enough to be in the fire’s path to anger the Ice King and have him in turn goad his Ice Dragon to come to her and fight her.

She had seen its ice daggers. They were deadly in their own right. Especially, if they came down from above. Drogon was armored. She had her dragon bone chainmail but she did not know if it could withstand the ice daggers of their foe. Did they have magical properties like dragon fire? Magic that enhanced them. Magic that might more easily penetrate her dragon bone chain mail. She did not know. She had to plan as if it might have the ability to harm her.

Dragons were mostly immune to fire but she was not sure in this case with the Ice Dragon. The two dragons in this tableau were antithetical to each other. She did not want those ice daggers striking Drogon’s wings. He could not afford to have his lift diminished. That would give the Ice Dragon a great advantage. If attacking from above she feared the Ice Dragon’s ice daggers would give it a greater range of attack.

Drogon assured his rider that he knew how to protect himself. Daenerys knew he was supremely confident in his abilities. She would worry for both of them and make sure they reigned supreme in the coming contest. She had a plan to kill the Ice Dragon. It would require them to get close. Very close. Dragons usually killed each other in close. The two combatants in claw to claw combat whether in the air or on the ground. Each dragon trying to get a death grip on their foe with their mouth. Holding in place while crushing with their bite and raking their foe’s body with their kicking claws. If the opportunity presented itself they would use fire.

The Ice Dragon was not a behemoth. He build was more svelte which probably made him more maneuverable and faster. Drogon was more robust and powerful. In close this would be to his advantage.

Just as they were about to enter the clouds the pale blue Ice Dragon punched through the clouds only four hundred yards away. It turned is neck towards them and let loose a mighty blast of its ice daggers. The daggers flew below them as they entered the clouds. The ice daggers already had lost much of their speed and were falling to earth. The Queen now knew its range was no greater than Drogon’s fire. At least in level flight.

Much beyond one hundred yards the fire and ice lost its momentum and began to dissipate as it expanded. Unless you were firing down and letting gravity work for you. Still, she thought that had been a little too close. This game of cat and mouse was definitely unnerving but it had to be played.

She heard more loud retorts from the Wall. It was a massive structure and would require some time to bring down but down it would come down the Queen mourned. Eight thousand years of history was about to become history. It was sad.

She dived out of the clouds again four miles down the line of the Haunted forest. She hit the left most marge of the Walking Dead milling around waiting to advance. Again she had Drogon only use a small gout to burn a handful of dead. The milling dead did seem to sense the flame but still many bumped into those already alight and themselves caught fire. She rose up to a hundred yards below the clouds circling fast. Drogon’s neck careening around while his rider looked up.

A mile away the Ice Dragon’s pale blue body dove out of the clouds. Its neck craning looking for them. Daenerys saw the ludicrous sight of two dragons diving in and out clouds their necks craning looking for each other with necks almost whiplashing in all directions looking for each other.

The Ice Dragon’s gaze found them. It screamed at them and flew at them straight as an arrow. Drogon continued to circle and screamed back. Quickly the ice dragon closed the range. Then as it closed Daenerys saw its body tensing as all dragon’s body did to expel their breath. She had Drogon jerk up fast and they flew into the clouds. Drogon instinctively juked hard to the right and changed his angle of ascent. The ice daggers flew by beneath them and off to the left. A scream of frustrated rage chased them into the clouds.

Several more times the cat and mouse came continued. Daenerys flying to a new spot to dive down. She would burn a small spot saving Drogon’s reserves. The Ice Dragon had stayed below the clouds now. As it had observed her from the clouds on the other side of the Wall she now did the same to it on this side of the Wall.

She made sure to not drop out of the clouds unless they were at least two miles away from their last spot of descent through the clouds. Drogon would plummet down and burn a handful of hapless Dead and the occasional Ice Wright or Giant. They then zoomed back up to be near the clouds and goading the Ice Dragon into giving chase and firing off its breath at her. The agitated Ice dragon obliged in giving chase. But she was too fast and they would zoom up into the clouds and then immediately pivot over hard to change directions in case the Ice Dragon attempted to fire its ice daggers at her last known location and follow her angle of ascent into the clouds.

As this had occurred, the Wall had suffered more and more damage. The Wall now was covered thickly in cracks. The loud retorts of the birth of the cracks filled the air. The cracks were deepening and joining to create deeper cracks. Chunks were now beginning to fall from the Wall. The Queen was pissed off but she could do nothing. She would not risk Drogon with a direct assault on the Ice King when he was prepared.

She needed the confusion of a melee to ambush her foe.

The tit for tat between the two dragons continued. The Queen was achieving her goal. Dragons could only produce so much fire or in this case ice before they needed more sustenance and in the Ice Dragon’s case lots of water to form its Ice Daggers. Dragons needed to feed and let their bodies create the fire and ice they needed to breathe out.

Daenerys had seen that the last few gouts from the Ice Dragon had been less substantial. The amount of ice it spewed out its mouth were less and the ice daggers were smaller. The clouds were smaller and more dispersed. The danger was lessening. The Ice Dragon seemed to be a little slower too. It was chasing them and constantly trying to bring them down with its icy breath. It was giving its all while she and Drogon were pacing themselves.

It was time.

She flew around in the clouds with Drogon peeking down. The Ice Dragon had flown up into the clouds again. She flew up over the wall and flew a mile to the right of the gates. She did most of her damage out from the Wall. She rose up to five thousand feet. Her mighty dragon passing through the thick clouds. She did not break through the top layer of clouds. She then threw Drogon down into a plummet dive. He burst forth from the clouds now only two thousand feet above the ground.

Straight down like a comet he flew on. Only at the last moment did Drogon pull out the dive. No flame was used this time. His tail whipped up and down and pulverized the walking dead. His claws reaching down and gripping the undead. His mighty talons cut the undead to ribbons the broken bodies falling from his claws. Drogon flew on. An Ice Giant stared at them roaring in defiance. It was slashing his sword. It was not prepared for their speed and Drogon’s one hundred and ten foot body.

They flew over the Ice Giant. Drogon’s fore claws knocked aside the clumsy sword slash up over the Ice Giant’s head. Drogon’s tail smashed down shattering the Ice Giant into a thousand shards in a blue cloud of blood mist marking its demise. She had done enough for this pass. She had her head looking up but as yet did not see the Ice Dragon.

The Queen had Drogon fly on gaining attitude. She flew back towards the Haunted forest at eight hundred feet. A half mile away the Ice Dragon slashed its way down out of the clouds. It roared and flew straight at the Queen. Both she and Drogon roared and flew straight at the Ice Dragon.

Both dragons rushing towards each other at a shocking fast pace. Neither dragon turning away. The dragons were ready. The instincts of their kind now kicked in. This was how dragons fought for dominance. In the air rushing at each other seeking that one opening they needed to kill their opponent.

Both dragons tensed and their necks stiffened. At two hundred yards they let loose. The Ice Dragon spewed out its ice daggers. They were diminished the Queen exalted. The Ice Dragon weapon was more physical while Drogon’s fire was more chemical. Drogon let out a full gout of fire.

Drogon’s fire evaporated the Ice Dragon’s ice daggers while the misting ice daggers dispersed Drogon’s fiery breath. The two dragons flashed by each other at breakneck speed. The two dragons immediately banking over to gain altitude and speed while craning necks to see what their adversaries were doing. The dragons separating to get distance to swing around again and come at each other.
The two dragons adjusted their flight path angling back at each other. Daenerys reminded Drogon to pull his wings in as they neared the Ice Dragon if he started to swivel his head to disperse his spray pattern. Drogon would need to keep his wings in to keep out of the flight path of any ice daggers. Dragons were born with not an immunity to each other’s fire but a strong resistance to it. That was except for the delicate wing membranes.

The ice daggers of the Ice Dragon was another thing all together. They were purely physical and easily able to shred Drogon’s wings if they were caught in a full spray of the daggers.

The two dragons flew hell bent at each other again. The two behemoths flying head on. When two hundred yards away they both let out their breath with mighty bellows. Flame and ice cancelling each other out. Flame and ice creating a mixture of mist and dying fire. The two dragons raced by each other. The Valyrian felt the rush of the air as the Ice Dragon paced by the Queen only fifteen feet above her. It’s swinging tail barely missing her head.

Daenerys pulled Drogon up into a banking turn and Drogon rolled over tight to come back out of the turn facing the opposite direction. The black dragon pumping his wings to gain speed. The Ice Dragon had flown on gaining altitude and did a sweeping turn diving down. They aligned their bodies to make another head on pass at each other. Again, as the two dragons approached each other, the two blasted each other with their breaths of death. At the last moment Daenerys pulled her rune sword out and had Drogon jerk up in his flight path. Her rune sword glowing brightly in the cold pouring rain. She swiped her sword up at the Ice Dragon but just missed his belly as it flashed overhead.

The Ice Dragon screamed in surprise feeling the heat of the blade pass near it. It flew on and again rushed up to gain altitude. So did Drogon. The two dragons now leveled out just below the roiling clouds circling each other eyeing the other seeking advantage. Neither had fought another dragon before but they instinctively knew how to fight each other. The two dragons eyeing each other trying to discern a weakness.

Around and around the dragons circled each other trying to get on the other dragon’s tail to attack from behind. The Ice Dragon suddenly tried to square the circle and come in on Drogon at a sever angle of attack. The maneuver bleeding off speed. Drogon saw it and pumped his wings hard to rise up over the flight path of the Ice Dragon. Drogon breathed down on the Ice Dragon but it had realized its error and twisted its neck down and angled its head up and let loose a gout of ice daggers. Only twenty feet over its head the two opposing forces hit each other.

Drogon’s flame was beat back but still tongues of flame licked over the lower neck and body of the Ice Dragon. It screamed in pain and rage but no damage was done. The opposing natures of the dragons again cancelling each other out. The dragons flew apart gathering speed for another attack. Most of the ice daggers destroyed but some zoomed through the fire cloud and hit Drogon on his flank. Fortunately, there his scales were at their most thick and the ice daggers ricocheted off. One glanced off Daenerys dragon bone chainmail. The blow stunning but no damage done. Again she thanked Illyrio for the gift.

The twisting turning fight continued. In the middle of it the Wall came crashing down. The Queen could only note it and had no worry for it. She had planned for this and had the tactics to deal with the fall of the Wall. She would kill this abomination done to a dragon. She would right the wrong of its perversion. She would have loved to get to it before its perversion had become complete but that was not to be.

It was in complete thrall to the Ice King as were the Ice Wrights and Giants below. How had it been created? She wondered even more where the egg had been found and how such an icy being as the Ice King could have hatched it.

As the two foes fought, flame would lick over the Ice Dragon or ice daggers would glance off of Drogon’s scales. The mighty black dragon always making sure to meet the attack head on or as near as possible. His thickest scales on his main torso and head. When close to the Ice Dragon, Drogon jerked his wings tight to his body till he flashed by it only then extending his wings and beating them hard. Drogon’s breath destroyed the vast majority of the ice daggers flung his way. The few that made it through deflecting off his angled scales. The angles wrong to give the ice daggers a chance to penetrate the thick iron based scales.

Drogon always cantering his wings to the opposite side of his body as much as possible when the two dragons closed to the range of using their breath. At this close range the spray of ice daggers did not disperse much and Drogon was able to angle his body to protect his wings trusting his scales to protect him from the ice daggers that got through his gouts of dragon fire.

Daenerys noticed the cloud of ice daggers had definitely lessened more. So had Drogon’s fiery breath but the ratios were much in her favor. Drogon could still fire off a full blast or two if necessary. The Queen noted that both dragons speed and agility were lessening. They had tried to kill each other at distance. Dragons trying to get lucky in their kill of their opponent at distance.

This was not how dragons normally finalized fights to the death. The two dragons now roared and charged together. It was time to finish it both dragons thought. Like arrows unable to alter their paths the two dragons flew straight at each other. Only at the last possible moment did the smaller dragon juke down and twist over as Drogon threw his body down twisting over. Their bodies colliding with a mighty crash. Legs grappling with their foes body claws kicking. Necks craned and heads lunged with mouths snapping at each other. Wings beating furiously to keep the fight in the air.

On Drogon’s back the Queen hung on for dear life. She had sensed in Drogon’s thoughts that this was the moment. Her studies of the Targaryen civil wars and those battles for dominance had prepared the young Queen. She had hunkered down and jammed her feet and hands between her dragon’s scales body pressed tight to Drogon’s back.

The two dragons rolling through the air striving to master the other. Drogon tried to use his superior weight and strength while the Ice Dragon used its agility to stay out of Drogon’s mighty grasp while kicking and biting fast and furious to keep Drogon back. Drogon sought an opening to get his mouth on his foe’s throat or head. The Ice Dragon’s own mouth seeking the throat or head of his enemy. Their tails whipped wildly in the air to keep their balance as the dragons fought on.

Ice King: The Ice King was feeling exhalation coursing through his frozen veins. The Wall was now filled with cracks from its base to the top. The cracks ever growing and joining their brothers. The cracks as they joined went deeper into the Wall. Now deep fissures were all over the pale blue edifice. Loud booms and retorts were sweet music to the former Stark’s ears.

The Wall was dying before his eyes. It was a glorious sight. A sight created by his own hand.

He continued blowing in the Horn of Winter. His true son helping to continue his circular breathing. The Croyel whispering to him the tune he needed to repeat. Again and again the Ice King repeated he tune the Croyel whispered to his mind. The Croyel also spoke words encouraging his father to keep strong and to continue blowing continuously into the lip of the Horn of Winter. The Ice King’s son had seen that his father was easily distracted.

The Croyel helped his father to focus when his concentration wanted to slip seeing the hateful bitch of a Valyrian fly over the Wall and went swooping down to start firing up the Walking Dead of the Ice King. He felt his father’s ire rise seeing the Valyrian and then the damage she did to his standing army of the walking dead.

The Croyel had in turns cajoled and yelled at his father to control his rampant emotions. Now was not the time to let his thoughts rampage and distract him from his goal of dropping the Wall. Let revenge wait a little while he whispered to his father. The time for vengeance was close at hand. Instead of such raw emotions the Croyel encouraged his father to continue his steady blowing into the Horn of Winter. The Croyel preaching calm and patience. The notes continued to flow from the Horn of Winter. The Croyel forcing his father to submit to his guidance. The Ice King did because he knew his goal was now his son’s true goal.

The Croyel did not have the power to subvert the Ice King’s will or goals. In reality they were now the Croyel’s. They had in truth became his when they merged. In the merging of a Croyel with his host the Croyel always submitted to the will of their host if they had one. The exception being Jeremy Avery. This Croyel merely helped the greatest of the Ice Wrights to focus on the raw need before him now. His need had become the Croyel’s need. They needed to bring the Wall down and fight the forces on the other side. For the Croyel that was paramount. The Lord of Revelstone must be met and bested. If not she would in time kill him. That was not acceptable.

The Croyel were not meant to die. It was an abomination against the very roots of the Earth when one of his kin was slain. The shock of one’s death felt by all the dead Croyel’s brothers. He would not see his hidden name added to that list.

He forced his father to continue blowing the Horn of Winter unabated. The Wall itself was shaking now. The vibrations becoming more and more violent as the harmonics setup by the Horn of Winter sought to tear the Wall apart. The notes of the horn tearing at the very heart of the Wall now.

The Croyel felt the ancient magic at the heart of the Wall resisting but it was not replenished as it was assaulted. Each breath into the Horn of Winter renewed the assault upon the heart of the Wall. It now had deep cracks all along its breadth. The whole Wall was assaulted. From one end of the Wall to the other the same cracks had appeared and were tearing the Wall apart.

With its fall of the Wall the Forbidding placed in it would be rip asunder. It would no longer threaten the Croyel. The Forbidding had not be constructed to uphold but to repel entities such as himself. It could not help the Wall in this fight for survival.

As the Ice King worked towards the culmination of his efforts, they had both seen from the corner of their eyes the continued fight between the Queen and her black dredd dragon and Ice Fang. The black dragon seemed to always be one step ahead of the Ice Dragon. The two dragons playing a dance macabre in the air. In and out of the clouds the two dragons wove their dance.

The Croyel forced his father to concentrate when not only his eyes but his mind wanted to wander to closely watch the two opposing dragons fight each other. The Croyel knew his father had come to love his icy dragon. The Croyel could not let that emotion from his father break his concentration. The two had observed that the black dragon and its rider at first seemed to want to avoid Ice Fang.

That changed. Now the dragons were making passes at each other from opposing flight paths. The two dragons worked to not let the other get the advantage of height and or speed. The two dragons opposite natures worked to neutralize the other’s strength. The fire and ice cancelling the other out.

Loud resounding booms now occurred from the Wall. Their thoughts now totally on the Wall. Success was near! Large pieces of the Wall were now falling away from the great edifice. Deep fissures now ran into the heart of the Wall. The cracks running deep into the seventy foot wide breadth of the Wall at its top and nearly one hundred feet at the base. More chunks of the Wall were falling off now as the booms and shrieks of the Wall being torn apart filled the air.

Massive boulders and whole sections of the Wall splintered off and fell down to the earth landing with mighty crashes. Ice crystals were starting to fill the air from the shattering and falling ice. The ice chunks slamming into each other pulverizing themselves into ice dust. The small particles shooting up into the air. The air now filled with the ice crystals. The ice grinding itself into fine particles that wafted in the air currents stirred up by the shattering ice of the Wall.

There was one resounding shrieking boom that echoed off to be lost in the distances of the Haunted Forest.

The Wall now fell in earnest. Its heart shattered. The ancient magic of its creation stressed beyond its ability to survive. The Wall simply fell. Huge chunks and slabs of the Wall fell apart and crashed to the ground.

The Croyel had guided his father with his lore. Now it was time for him to do what he needed to do.

His father had supplied the magic and strength to bring the Wall down. That magic was beyond him. He had only guided.

He now tapped into the lore the Croyel who had fed off of Jeremey had learned from the autistic youth. That brother had captured in their parasitic bonding with the son of Linden Avery many secrets. Jeremey was a master at the construct of almost any edifice. His mastery was beyond the ability of this Croyel to understand. Only on the edges did that Croyel comprehend what and how Jeremey formed his edifices. The Croyel attached to Jeremey with its parasitic connection to the teenager had learned much though and passed on to his brothers all that he could. That Croyel passing on the basic knowledge. Any subtleties was lost in translation through their shared link with each other that all Croyel shared in by right of birth.

Still the Croyel attached to Jeremey Avery had passed on the most basic rudimentary skills and concepts from its symbiosis with the autistic child to his brothers. The Croyel shared all they could with any knowledge gleaned with their brothers through their mystical magical link. It was instinctual this sharing of knowledge. The Croyel were all individuals but they shared all knowledge and their basic state of self-awareness. No matter the distance this knowledge was given to its brothers.

Thus, the Croyel learned from each other. This allowed their kind to become ever greater. They also felt the passing of one of their kin. The shock of those crimes reverberating through the millennium.

This Croyel would not be one of them. He would help his father reach the Lord of Revelstone and slay the vile monstrous women who would kill him. The Haruchai and Giants he could deal with but not a woman sufficed with the power of the Seven Wards of High Lord Kevin. That was another matter entirely. His kind had hide themselves away deep in the mountain caves in the depths of Mount Thunder or in the mountains to the north and east of the Giants Wood while the Old Lords walked their Earth.

Their magic was unstoppable. None could fight it directly. Lord Foul had used subterfuge and deceit to bring that High Council down.

Still this was only one Lord and she was half a world away from the Land. Together he and his father could throw her down to her death. He had to do his part and he had. The Wall was falling down.
As the Wall fell to its death the Croyel threw up his constructs to shunt the falling ice back in on itself to prevent it from falling on his father’s host. The Croyel using the purloined knowledge gleaned from Jeremey to raise the sickly yellow hued shields. His constructs strong. They resisted the countless tons falling against them. They held back the countless tons of ice. The yellows shields rippling.

The mighty weight falling back in on itself as it hit his shields. The weight was great but his father’s blood was potent. He prevailed. He shunted the colossal weight of the Wall in upon itself. He rammed his three constructs through the falling debris of the Wall. The massive shards of ice hitting the top of his constructs and sliding off and to the sides. He exalted in the power his father was able to bless him with. He was proud to do his part.

He too longed to slay and rend his enemies. He felt the ice of the Wall falling all around his constructs. The ice piling up and forming great mounds around them.

As he did this he performed the other part of the plan. He needed to get their forces upon the defenders post haste. The delay in bringing down he Wall had already thrown their plans awry. Now he needed to make sure any more hateful delays were banished.

The Croyel drank heavily from his father. His father was tired from his part in bringing down the Wall. He had his hands on his knees in an almost trance like state. His breathing deep and regularly as he sought to recover his strength from the long effort of blowing into the Horn of Winter. His father now fell to his palms. The Ice King in a near comatose state. His father had no need to use his might now. He was not in the state to do anything. The Croyel was free to take from his father to achieve their shared dream of death to all of Westeros.

All about the Croyel and his father the air was thick with ice particles. One could not see beyond a foot in front of their faces. The Croyel were breed in the deepest dank dark hearts of the caves deep beneath the Earth. The Croyel could not see the army of his father all around them. His eyes breed for the deepest dark could not penetrate this new world of white. The fallen Wall had disappeared into the fog of the ice snow created by the falling Wall.

The Croyel did not need to see. He could feel his constructs as they finished shunting aside the last of the fallen detritus of the fallen Wall. He knew where to spread the ichor.

He started to hum a new tune that only the Croyel knew and had the throat to produce. His song discordant and full of dissonance. The language of the Croyels would kill any other denizen if they tried to speak the malevolent words. A callow yellow ichor started to pour out from around the feet and palms of the Ice King. The Croyel bringing to life the ichor within the tune he sang. The vile Croyel using magic to bring the elements it needed to perform his next act of greatness. The magic merging deep within himself and then flowing out from the core of his being.

The malefic ichor pulsed out of the Croyel symbiotic link between the two. This new magic flowed from his mouth through the throat of the Ice King. The pulses writhed through the blood of the Ice King. Each pulse pushing the ichor out before the new pulse down the Ice King’s body. The unholy magic flowed from son to father.

The suppuration flowed ever down his father’s body. The putrescent ichor flowed through the body of his father. It beaded and wept out of the feet and palms of the Croyel’s father. It began as a trickle but was soon a gush of vile magic that now erupted from the Ice King’s feet and hands placed on the ground. The yellowish liquid moving off all around in a quick flood. The ichor pouring out of his father’s appendages like a rushing mountain river. The yellow fluid flowing out at an impossible pace.
The Croyel drank deep from his father as he hummed into existence the magical ether that flowed out from their connected bodies. The Croyel tapping into a hidden dimension of dark dank magic that existed deep in the heart of Mount Thunder. It was a place only hospitable to the Croyel. The elixir that this Croyel was transporting to this location. The Croyel took the ether and magically changed it to suit the Croyel’s current need.

The Croyel began to guide the ichor. It had been flowing out fast in all directions. He borrowed more strength from his father and bent the ichor to his will. The Croyel slowly turned the flows to the south. All the new formed ichor now flowing south once it had erupted from the Ice King’s feet and hands. What had been initially produced the Croyel pushed out before the Wall back into the marge of the Haunted Forest. The liquid on a fraction of an inch thick. That was all that was needed to perform the task the Croyel and his father needed performed.

The liquid flowed out fast slipping underneath the feet of the walking dead as the liquid wormed between feet and other body parts touching the ground. The liquid moving quicker when feet were lifted to let the flow proceed on out from the joined together Croyel and his father. The sickly yellow ether flowing out fast to get beneath the feet of the Walking Dead.

The Croyel hummed his tune. The blood his father gave to him exalted the Croyel. More and more of the magical ichor gushed from the appendages of the somnolent Ice King. The Ice Wright supreme murmuring as he very, very slowly recovered his strength. The fluid of the Croyel poured out and spread quickly out from the font of its source. The fluid forming a skin beneath the feet of the army of the Ice King. Soon the army of the Walking Dead and the Ice Wrights and Giants near the Ice King were standing on a thin layer of the yellow ichor.

The adopted sons of the Croyel’s father were quite mobile. Still they stood upon the new yellowish film. It was for the dead that the Croyel did his work. The Croyel sent the yellow magic fluid flowing before the fallen Wall to pool and spread out before the three constructs he had made. The ichor spreading out back into the army of his father. The ichor worming beneath the feet of the undead and icy spawn of the Ice King. The Croyel hummed his tunes. He now created and guided the yellow rank magic to where it needed to be. He kept producing more and more yellow ichor.

His work was fast but it still took time to do what was needed. More and more ichor spewed from the feet and palms of the Ice King and pulsed towards the Wall. The fresh ichor pushing forward on the ichor formed before the most recent pulses. The ichor flowing out from the Ice King. The Croyel concentrating on creating the first needed wedges. Finally, the Croyel felt satisfaction. He had sent his ichor beneath a large arc around the constructs he had created. Still the tide of his magical fluid flowed out from his father’s feet and hands. The ichor spreading out ever more beneath the army of the Ice King. The force of the Walking Dead standing atop the Croyel’s magical carpet ever growing.

The Croyel slowed that flow out behind the Wall. He now directed the flow of his ichor out through the three constructs. The liquid flowing fast through the narrow chutes he had constructed. The liquid surging forward. The liquid as it surged forward leaving only a thin film over the ground. The ichor spreading out in all directions. No more would be needed once it covered a spot of ground. The Croyel had been planning his spell in his mind for almost four years. It would spread out in a thin film where it needed to be.

When they had found the Horn of Winter a plan had to be devised to get their army from the north side of the Wall to the south side. The army of his father had to get to the Queen’s forces as quick as possible. The Croyel had been preparing this spell since then. It was a beautiful construction that was elegant and complex.
The Croyel continued to hum his tune that modulated and flexed as he changed the flow of his ichor. The ice crystals in the air hiding his work from their enemies. He sent his ichor surging forward towards the lines of the Crows and their allies. The pulverized ice in the air hiding his construct flowing towards the pale woman’s army.

The ichor flowed like a river at flood stage. The ichor did not attempt to move what it encountered but flowed over small hindrances and flowed on. If the obstructions were large it flowed around the base of them. This magic carpet was not a force in and of itself. It was a means of transport. He felt the ichor surging over the ground till it came to a massive ditch. The fluid flowing into the ditch and up against the berm that the ichor lapped against.

The Croyel could feel the breath of the humans he meant to kill wafting over his magical ichor. He smelled their stench as the particles of their skin floated onto his ichor that was rapidly spreading east and west before the berm of their hated enemy.

He hummed hard taking advantage of the ice snow created by the fallen Wall. The ichor now had flowed out to half of the army that had spewed out of the Haunted Forest. Still more ichor surged to the north. The Croyel singing his song. He wanted to get his magical carpet out as far as he could before he had to change his tune.

The Croyel spent another minute now surging his gushing callow yellow liquid flowing north, east and west to get more of his father’s army up upon the yellow ichor.

He had no more time. They needed to strike fast. The delay in the falling of the Wall had thrown the timing of their plan off. The Croyel and his father needed to strike fast to keep their enemies off balance.

The tune the Croyel sang modulated. The liquid spewing out from the feet and hands of the Ice King slowed though it did continue to flow out. The spread of the liquid continuing but at a much reduced rate. The liquid at the feet and hands of the Ice King with the Croyel on his back began to modulate and ripple. Small waves only a quarter of an inch high began to form.

The waves flowing out from the position of the stooped over Ice King. In rapid pulses the waves spread out over the ocean of yellow liquid that covered the ground before the Wall out to the Haunted Forest. The waves rippled and wavered. The waves pulsed and built upon each other. Then they began to flow and march forward. The waves moving through the three constructions. The waves rippling like the incoming tide. Each wave seeking to crash upon the shore of its destination. The direction south. The direction towards the forces of the hated Valyrian and Lord of Revelstone who would kill the Croyel and his father.

The Croyel smiled seeing the waves and what they carried surging through his constructs. The waves relentless in their march. The waves picking up speed as they modulated and splashed forward. The waves small but as powerful as the lunar tide that swept over the Earth twice each day. The waves picking up speed as they passed though the constructs through the fallen Wall.

The waves spreading out as they passed through the constructs. The detritus upon the waves swept along. The detritus roiling and falling over. It did not matter. It just needed to reach its destination. The listless driftwood upon the sea the Croyel had created would know what to do when they arrived at their destination.

Oberyn: A sword swished over Oberyn’s head as he moved in on the knight of House Frey. The Red Viper stabbed out with his spear. He had attached a Redtail Hawk’s feather to the end of his spear. The ornament catching the eye and distracting his opponent. That was the theory anyways. He jabbed at the weak joints of the knight’s armor. Oberyn went for those weak points and then aimed for the knight’s face and throat. The up and down jabs keeping the Frey back. The knight deflected his spear thrusts.

The Frey knight never saw it coming.

Longwrath Keelstone came up behind the knight and with a mighty two handed arching stroke of her glaive. The massive sword slammed into the man’s side. The thick stone blade slicing through the plate armor. The blade sinking deep into the man’s body. The blade three quarters of the way through his armored body. A hideous scream spilled from the man’s mouth as well as a river of bright red blood from his cut in two lungs.

Oberyn was already moving on. A company of his countrymen from the House of Wyl had rushed up and joined Oberyn and the forces of the Land. They were in a wild melee of slashing swords, sweeping battleaxes, thrown javelins and jabbing spears.

A man beside Oberyn went down with a javelin through his groin. He shrieked in agony. To the other side of Oberyn two men dropped with arrows jutting out their bodies. One was dead with the arrow through his eye and the other wounded with the arrow shot clean through his left forearm. The man gritting his teeth in pain trying to focus.

Arrows were flying back in the traitor’s direction. The Arrows flying straight or clouds falling from the sky from archers further back firing up to arc their arrows. Those fire in mass. Oberyn started feeling the swish of arrows passing by his ears heading towards the traitors. Arrows falling short a danger to the attacking forces but it could not be helped.

Oberyn moved past a dead Ranyhyn her neck cut with a deep wound half through. She had five arrows in her that Oberyn could see. Around her were at least five dead Freys and Boltons with crushed heads and dented armor. The men also had a few arrows in them. The Ranyhyn had given its life for the cause.

Enraged Oberyn moved on. In the periphery of his conscious he started to hear mighty booms and the sounds of shattering. He glanced behind him. The Wall was now filled with deep cracks. As he looked at the Wall more cracks appeared. The cracks increasing in number and seeming to deepen.

Well, I will be damned … the Horn of Winter was real Oberyn thought to himself. That was not his problem. He had traitors to kill and to avenge the loss of his brothers in arms.

More knights and now a company of mercenaries had joined Oberyn in their attack on the forces of the traitorous houses of Frey and Boltons. Three Giants had formed up. Their swinging glaives a whirlwind of death. Their sheer size and the power of their massive blades was simply terrifying to behold. Men were chopped down all around. Their armor and swords no match for the massive length of the Giant’s swords. The warhorses that came up to contend with the Giants cleaved apart. The horses screams of pain something horrible to hear.

The Giants were not invulnerable though. The Giants were most adept at tracking their environment as they fought. The Giant’s heads jerking to avoid arrows or deflecting with their swords. Still, they were not immune to danger and death. Forecastle Starkissed simply collapsed straight down boneless.

An arrow had found her eye and sunk deep into her brain. She was dead before her body hit the ground the Giant sprawled out. Her glaive lying on the ground.

Foamsurge Oakenspar screamed in agony seeing her wife killed. She charged wildly into the forces of the Freys that had fired off the arrows. Her long legs quickly carrying her to the knot of archers.
Arrows hit her armor and bounced off. Her screams truly frightful to hear.

Oberyn was right behind her. The seven still mobile Giants were yelling following. Four of Haruchai were rushing forward as well. Two were staying behind to guard the wounded Giants and Haruchai. One was down maybe dead. Tass as she ran by Forecastle’s dropped sword bent down and swooped it up in her right hand. The Haruchai ran forward with grim faces. They too easily deflected all arrows flying at them.

Behind Oberyn he heard the forces of his homeland flowing forward shouting Dornish curses and shouts from the various academies of Dorne shouting out pride in the academy of their training. The Scorpion Tail and the Manticore mercenary companies had rushed in behind them with drawn swords and battleaxes. That was several thousand men. They had not formed into strong Legions of a hundred for cohesive movement. That was not needed here. It was a mad headlong rush into the enemy’s lines.

The Freys faces were filled with large eyes of terror seeing the wall of screaming forces advancing on them.

Again Oberyn marveled at the Ranyhyn rushing forward and only at the last moment bunching their muscles and propelling their bodies up and over the shield wall that had been erected before the archers of House Frey. The mighty horses easily crested over both shield wall and the archers themselves. The archers did not have on helms or any armor more than leather. Archers needed to be mobile more than protected from attacks of swords and battleaxes. If their enemy was upon them then they were in trouble. Archers struck from afar.

The Freys could not turn to fight the threat behind them. The Unsullied had organized and were advancing. Their march forward relentless. Other houses had now had time to form up and were moving to flank the wall of the Unsullied and were beating back the gains of House Bolton and Frey. Their archers had had time to arm up and had punished the cavalry and foot of the two traitor Houses.

Those traitorous Houses had done damage in their own right but there was much more of their enemies. Mercenary companies of Essos were not charging forward along with the forces of Westeros. They formed up a defensive line. The combined forces of the denizens of the Land and Dorne rushed forward. The clash of the two opposing forces a melee of death and mayhem.

Oberyn took this in but he did not care. He was focused on his own battles and those around him. His legs pumping hard. He wanted to strike more blows against the traitors. He again cursed the sheer speed of his compatriots from the Land. When they rushed forward they left him behind which pissed him off greatly!

The Giants and Haruchai slammed through the shield wall as it was not there. The Giant’s bodies slammed into the traitors like battering rams colliding with a castle gate. Like a gate splintering, the line before the Giants gave way. The Giants shattered the shield wall and flew into the archers. Men were sent flying through the air, cut down or simply trampled by the women over twice the height of the men they were fighting.

The Ranyhyn using the confusion in the ranks of the traitors to attack with vicious focus. They too sought revenge for brethren lost.
The armor of the Giants blocked most the arrows from doing damage. Still some arrows found unarmored skin. The arrows biting deep into flesh and muscle but the Giant women did not seem to feel their new wounds. Arrows jutting out arms and legs. Their glaives were swirling around their bodies in arcs of death. Blood and limbs were being thrown into the air. The enraged Giants were killing all before them. Blood and gore was soon thick upon the ground.

The Haruchai now all had swords of one sort or another. It was hard to follow the movements of the Haruchai as they swung their weapons in all directions. Their swords killed all around them. In shock almost, Oberyn wondered how a people who only fought with fist and foot could be so impossibly skilled with swords. Oberyn shouted seeing Ranrika take an arrows to her leg. She did not seem to feel it fighting on. Oberyn gritted his teeth. The Haruchai could suppress pain he had learned.

Oberyn reached the Frey archers now. Those that remained. He stabbed the first one he came to come through his neck his Valyrian spear head punching out the other side of his throat. Oberyn ripped it back out the man’s neck and pivoted it around. The Archers had been decimated and the survivors were trying to flee. Oberyn threw his spear impaling a man who fell down dead his heart ruined by the spear passing through it.

Oberyn ran up to the man lying prostrate on the ground and ripped his spear out the man’s body. The mercenary companies had rushed on by and slammed into the armed companies of the Frey and Boltons. The forces engaging each other. The traitors were being pressed in from all sides now.

Without surprise on their side they were doomed. Oberyn needed to help that doom along.

The Giants and Haruchai surged forward as well. They split going to add their might where the mercenaries and the forces of Dorne were meeting the heaviest resistance. Each Haruchai and Giant fighting with the impact of a company of men from Westeros.

A knight of House Bolton was before Oberyn suddenly. The Red Viper crouched down. The two circled each other. Oberyn used his speed to avoid the man’s sword swipes and slashes. His spear jamming into the weak points of the man’s armor. The man was skilled and Oberyn was not able to penetrate the armor at the joints as the man worked to keep Oberyn at distance. His spear point glancing off well forged steel. Oberyn got frustrated when three men from the Manticore company fell on the knight. Their battleaxes pounding the man. He gutted one of the Manticore before his helm was split and his head was cleaved in two.

Oberyn shouted out his thanks and moved on. A kill was a kill.

He paused in his advance. He heard a mighty echoing boom behind that screamed and shook the very bones. He looked back. The Wall was collapsing amidst a mighty cloud of ice pulverized into fine snow. Oberyn turned back around. There was nothing to do for that. He focused on what he could affect.

Jon: With a deep breath Jon gathered his thoughts. He had been fighting wildly for what seemed an eternity. He had killed many Ice Wrights and Ice Giants. His face was grim but a hint of a smile was on it. As the Lord Commander of the Night’s Watch he had done his share in killing the minions of the Ice King. He had met the initial challenge of his time. He and his wives had worked hard to save as many as possible from the Ice creations of the Ice King.

Jon had been pleasantly surprised and happy to find that his sword, Lightbringer, reborn was an anathema to the blades of the Ice Wrights and Giants. All Crows and Wildlings had heard the stories of how normally forged steel soon shattered when matched against the ice forged metal blades of the Ice Wrights and Giants. After just a handful of strikes the steel became brittle and quickly shattered when struck again.

It had been the opposite going against his Icy foes. It was their blades that soon shattered with repeated strikes of his Valyrian blade reborn to Azor Ahai’s ancient blade. Jon did not relish killing but he could not but help smiling grimly when he saw again and again the look of shock and then fear when his fiery blade soon vanquished and shattered the blades of his foes. His blade easily hacked and broke apart the ice armor of his foes.

The leader of the Crows had hacked down his foes rather easily. The Ice Giants were slow and relatively unskilled. Their strength was amazing but that was to be expected with the great height and weight. The Ice Wrights had been skilled but not supremely so. They were amazingly fast though and Jon had to concentrate and use all his skills to keep them in front of him. The Ice Wrights always trying to come in from the side to attack him unawares. He had been too quick for that. Well mostly.

Ruefully, Jon thought he had failed at least three times. There might have been a few more times. At the start of the ambush there had been many of the Ice Wrights flitting around attacking in all directions. He was at first shocked at their speed. Thankfully, the ice armor seemed to make their movements slightly stiff and awkward.

He had been attacked by multiple Ice Wrights several times. They sensed that he was the leader of the Crows Jon thought. He was happy with that. Instead of attacking others many attacked him keeping them from attacking men who had no defense against their weapons. That was not his case. He had Lightbringer reborn.

He had killed most of them but some had slipped through his guard. He could have blocked their attacks in time. He thought. He could not be sure. He hoped he would have. Fortunately, he had two ShadowBender witches covering his rear quadrants. Several times he had turned at the last moment to meet the attacks that had gotten in close from his side or rear.

Each time the Ice Wright was already dying. His wives having fired off their shadow daggers at the threat. The first ones to strike the Ice Wright’s armor exploded the squares of ice that protected the Ice Wrights. The exploded ice armor now filled with holes. The next Shadow Daggers sailing through the air to punch into the Ice Wrights through the holes in their ice armor. Their shadow daggers always finding the new holes in the icy armor. Always. Jon would see the hands of his wives writhe with black shadows that had them seem to ripple. Then black daggers shot out their fingers and at their targets. The Ice Wrights attacking Jon.

The effect was immediate. The hits they took to their hearts killed them outright. The hits to their torso or groins immediately started to poison the Ice Wright’s body. Unlike the poison from the Dragon Glass, which was slow acting and spread slowly through the Ice Wrights body to do its deadly work, the poison from the Shadow Daggers of his wives was fast spreading and immediate.

The Ice Wrights body instantly webbed with dark streaks and their eyes discoloring from icy blue to a sickly grey and then black. Their bodies immediately started to convulse which only grew stronger and stronger till their whole bodies shook as if in a violent gale. Their bodies falling to the Earth to flip wildly and then lie still. Finally, blue blood tinted thickly black poured out of all their orifices and their bodies began to dissolve and mist away.

The first rush of the battle was over. As they had fought on Jon and his wives had seen the assault on the Wall begin. It had been hard on Jon to see the Wall begin its death throes. His wives shouted to Jon that they could feel great magic in the air. It had gripped the Wall and was shaking it apart.

Jon was sure the forces that resided below the Neck of Westeros thought the sight of the Wall being destroyed was impressive but it was not touching them to the core like it was to those who lived their lives in the North. To the people of the South of Westeros, the Wall was only a faraway place they scarcely concerned themselves with. To the people of the North, the Wall was part of the core of who they were. They knew the Wall and believed in its purpose. To see it being assaulted was distressing and hurt the heart.

He had fought on while the damage to the Wall grew and increased. He had to focus on the task at hand. It had galled him as the Lord Commander to be able to do nothing to defend the Wall as it was being assaulted. Now the first skirmish was over and Jon and his wives were fast walking to the front lines of the Queen’s camp to get to the berm. His eyes riveted on the Wall now. None in the Queen’s camp could look away. The impossible was happening before their eyes.

The wall was shaking violently about. Huge cracks were burrowing into the heart of the great ice edifice. More were appearing the cracks now webbed together. Huge slabs of ice were falling off the Wall everywhere now. Ice dust rising up into the rainy sky.

The trio walked more quickly back to the berm. Jon spotted his father on the berm. A son could always tell when he was looking at his father. He had beside him Stannis, Arya and the Lord of Revelstone. The three Haruchai who guarded the Queen and Arya sitting at relaxed attention on their Ranyhyn a short distance from Arya. They like Jon were watching the wall. The Wall visibly shaking now. A low base note in the air that could be felt and barely heard but not placed.

While Jon and his wives approached the berm the Wall gave a mighty boom. All were hypnotized. The Wall came crashing down. Mighty cracks had joined together and seemed to ripe the heart out of the Wall. Now huge slabs and chunks of the Wall burst asunder and came crashing down. The falling ice created a cloud of ice dust that obscure the final fall of the Wall. The ice crystals bellowed up making strange beguiling shapes in the air and rushing away from the icy pyre of the fallen Wall.

The sight of the destruction of the Wall was obscured. The sound of its death was not hidden. The booms and shouts of its fall were mighty and echoed off into the distance.

It sickened Jon to see the Wall come down. With its destruction he knew that Castle Black was no more and all the other forts before the Wall must have fallen as well. Eight thousand years of history removed in a flash. It made Jon’s heart hurt as it beat in his chest. He felt gratitude to the Queen of Westeros. If his command had been on the Wall …

He walked up the berm with his wives to stand beside his father. His father smiled at his son grimly. They all turned back to the Wall to witness its final destruction. Ice dust had bellowed out and was wafting out to create a surreal kaleidoscope of swirling whites. It was amazing how fast the ice cloud spread out. The ice cloud reaching them and wafting over them dimming the world to fairytale hues of white and mystery.

As they watched the surreal show of ice fairies dancing in the air Renly and Loras came up to them. Renly had a bloody bandage around his head. Otherwise he seemed fine. The two lovers leaned into each other. Then Jon Arryn stepped up to them. All their swords were coated in ice blue blood. Their Valyrian swords having dispensed much death to the Icy spawn of the Ice King.

Silence reigned over the group. It was the end of an era. What would replace it they all wondered?

The Lord of Revelstone, Lustra, spoke up. Her blue tunic hanging limp against her body. Her sweat and rain soaking her tunic robe. “I feel the evil of the Croyel. It is closing in on us.”

“You mean the Croyel is coming forth to challenge us?” Jon’s father asked the Lord.
The woman snorted. “No. Croyels are craven cowards. They fight through others. It is the Ice King that will challenge us not the Croyel.” She paused. “I guess in a way he will. He will share the Ice King’s fate for good or for ill I suppose.”

The Lord leaned forward peering into the dust eddies. The ice dust in the air obscuring all to the onlookers. “No. This evil is diffuse and coming closer.” Again the Lord leaned forward her grip on her staff sure. The iron shod ends gleaming in the half light. The wood of her staff gleaming. “I feel its magic but it is … different” The Lord was alert. She had been fooled once. Her head turned her gaze intent studying the ice crystals now flowing past them.

Jon still could not believe the columns of mighty blue power that the Lord had sent forth from her Staff. The mighty pillars of blue writhing force had obliterated all that came before it. The woman was only of medium build. Jon realized that this woman could lay waste to all of them if she chose. Her magic trumped their prowess with the sword. He had seen Ice Wrights and Giants simply cease to exist when her magical fire hit them. To have a world with many such men and women was almost unfathomable Jon thought to himself.

Lustra leaned forward as if that might help her senses pierce the snowy twilight that covered the Wall. “It is approaching rapidly. It is not in the air. I am confused. It does not threaten us directly I feel it on my skin. It is diffuse but it grows stronger as we speak. It approaches quickly. I have no idea what its purpose is. We must be on guard.”

Jon looked around too. He knew it would take time for the ice crystals in the air to filter back down to the ground. The rain would definitely help in that.

Jon heard his wives talking in their native tongue of Asshai. They had stepped back down the berm ten paces. He was learning that old arcane language but their low voices and fast speech overwhelmed his still nascent knowledge of his wives native tongue. Jon watched his two wives talk intently. They seemed to be going back and forth about something. They reached a decision. They had been standing close together with Melisandre bent down. Her traditional gown robe of Asshai with its runes embroidered along the hems of her dress at her feet and hands moving slightly with her movements.

They reached a decision and stepped apart and approached the group. The two women came to stand before the group. All turned their focus from the misty mysteries swirling before them to look at the two ShadowBender witches. The looks on their miens and their rigid attention drew everyone’s attention.

Ygritte spoke “Melisandre and I feel we are about to be besieged. The flames showed us fighting in a sea of enemies. A wild melee of Walking Dead and Ice Wrights and Giants. We did not see how it would happen but now it has” the Shadowbender paused to look at those gathered around her. “The Wall has fallen. We sense our enemies will be upon us soon. Much quicker than we have thought possible.” She again turned her gaze upon all those gathered around them.

“Our most potent magic is blood magic. It is dire and powerful. The most powerful manifestation of that power is achieved when the blood of royals is involved. Our sun god R’hllor blesses such blood. I and my wife are surrounded by such blood. We need to take advantage of it. Normally, the taking of this blood weakens the giver. That will not be the case now. We are surrounded by potent blood. The burden can be shared between you gathered here.”

“You mean to cut us and take our blood?” Eddard asked neutrally.

Stepping in to back up his wives, Jon spoke “Yes father that is what she is asking. I have seen the result of the blood magic she is talking of invoking. It is terribly powerful. It weakened Melisandre greatly creating it herself. I have not seen the process but they have told me of it. By taking our blood we can share the burden and not weaken any one of us. Usually, this spell involves the taking of one person’s blood. A specific person to achieve a specific purpose. This is a need on a grand scale. A need we all share.”

“Ygritte and Melisandre will do it alone if they must. But I am asking that you help my wives. I of course will give my blood to them for the need we face. If the Wall is breached and our enemy can get at us we will need every advantage we can seek. Ygritte will give birth to the shadow demon.”

Stannis guffaw at that.

“What do you find this humorous?” Melisandre asked the man calmly with a cocked eyebrow. Her stiff body showed she was offended by the snort.

Stannis stifled his action and looked serious. “I ask to be forgiven but … she is so small and you are a giant of a woman Melisandre.”

Jon shook his head glaring at the Lord of Dragonstone. “Don’t let size fool you” Jon spoke. “Melisandre has told me from the beginning that Ygritte is the greater between them. Her fiery nature gives her stature that is much more than her height.”

Ygritte was tamping her foot glaring at Stannis. Under breadth she muttered “He knows nothing.” She gave Stannis the stink eye.

Jon felt a small smile come over him watching his small wife. He turned serious again looking around him at the royalty of Westeros “If we each share in this burden, Ygritte will be able to raise a fearsome shadow demon construct that will be most formidable. It will be much more deadly if we share the burden. It will be greater. I have seen a Shadow Monster raised by Melisandre. It was a fearsome thing. If you join in their construct will be able to fight for us for much longer than if the blood comes only from one or two. I ask this of you. Who will join me?”

The High Lords and Heirs were silent. Blood magic did not have a good name among these people. Stannis looked around. He then took a step forward.

“I apologize for my unseemly actions. I will give my blood. I agree. We will need every advantage we can take.”

Eddard then stepped forward. Jon could tell he was shamed by Stannis stepping forward before he did and now offered his blood. A moment later Arya stepped forward too. Quickly Renly, Loras and Jon Arryn called out their support and stepped forward to show their willingness to offer their blood as well. Soon all those of royal blood had raised their voice in ascent.

Melisandre turned to the Lord of Revelstone. “We would ask that you give blood too. You and your mate Brail have powerful potent blood like onto Royal blood. Will you give?”

“Of course” Lustra spoke “but I can only speak for me”. She looked at Brail. The Lord knew how private the Haruchai were.

“I will give for my people” Brail answered. “With our mind speech we can all give our due.”

The Ranyhyn the two women from the Land sat on suddenly bugled and stomped their feet. Their intent was clear. They too would give their blood.

Jon felt his eyes go large. The idea of an animal giving their blood to such a rite was shocking. He had learned the might of these horses. Could a non-human blood be given? How could a horse, no matter how powerful, be considered royal blood? He looked to his wives to see their answer to the offer.

Melisandre turned to look at Ygritte. She nodded her head ‘yes’. Melisandre turned her gaze back to the mighty horses and nodded her head. The great Ranyhyn shook their heads in the affirmative. The horses again stamped their feet into the dirt. They seemed anxious to give.

Melisandre looked down at her left palm that was upturned. She murmured and a cup made of shadows formed in her hand. The cup writhed in an unnatural manner. The sight made one feel a grip of vertigo Jon thought. He saw the same look on those around them. He could see even darker runes etched on the side of the dark eldritch cup.

The fingers of the tall redhead closed around the cup. Her right hand went into the pocket of her long gown and reached in deep. She pulled her hand back out and a short curved dagger was produced. The dagger was razor sharp and covered in glowing black runes of Asshai as well. The runes made of straight and curved lines that formed a flowing script accented by the bars, dots and slash accent marks of that language.

She went to Jon and he offered her his right hand having sheathed Lightbringer. As their husband he would always go first. Jon and his wives wanted all to see they were willing to give as well. They would share in the burden. She sliced the blade down the palm of his hand. Jon looked surprised. It was obvious the blade cut had produced no pain. Blood flood down his palm into the roiling cup. After ten seconds the blood flow slowed and then stopped. The wound on his palm quickly closed and no scar was left.

Jon flexed his hand. It was totally functional with no pain. Melisandre murmured louder and handed Jon the shadow cup. He took it while Melisandre cut her own palm to give her blood to the cup. He noticed the runes of the dagger pulsed once as the blade made its cut. Jon watched the Melisandre’s blood run off the edge of her hand into the cup he now held. He saw her blood pour into the bottom of the cup. The blood already in the cup had started writhe and burble.

Soon the wound on her hand healed and she took the cup back. Melisandre first went to Stannis since he had first volunteered. He locked eyes with Melisandre and did not flinch with the dagger cut. Surprise showed on his face at the lack of pain. Then she went to the other Lords of Westeros and Arya. Then she walked between the Lord and Haruchai on their respective Ranyhyn. Each women reached down with their hands to offer their blood.

The shadow dagger slashed across their palms and they gave their blood. The cup was three quarters filled now.

Melisandre turned to look at Frinny. The Horse again shook its head hard in the affirmative. She cut the horse on its shoulder. Its potent blood flooded into the cup in a hot gush before the wound healed. Then the Shadowbender turned to Frahanoryl, Brail’s mount. She took that Ranyhyn’s blood.

The cup was full now. She turned to her wife. Jon could see into the cup clearly again. The blood burbled and sputtered up in rivulets that collapsed down into the cup without any splatter. The blood writhing in swirls that seemed to have a great depth. In those depths, Jon could see the inky dark glowed an even more intense black. Jon could never understand that. It seemed impossible.

Ygritte had already loosened the buttons and ties to her upper dress and was starting to remove it. More buttons and draw strings loosened. Soon Ygritte’s high peach sized breast were on view. Then the dress was loosened more and the fiery redhead’s flat belly and then shaved smooth vagina was on display. Her slit with its large labia lips and knotted clitoral hood open for everyone to see.

“Oh yeah!” Stannis hummed staring at Ygritte. He smacked his lips staring at the taut young body on display before him. His eyes went up and down gazing at Ygritte’s small tits that sloshed around on her chest as she moved finishing the removal of her long dress. Then his eyes staring hungrily at her plump camel tongue. The tall man licked his hips with obvious fuck hunger.

“Gods Stannis!” Eddard groused “I miss the old Stannis if that is possible” Eddard groaned.

“I sure as hell don’t” Stannis answered as he continued to stare hungrily at the hot tight body that had been revealed. “Don’t tell me Eddard you wouldn’t love to tap that sweet cunt and hot tight shithole.” He spoke in a smoky timbre. “Selyse would devour that sweet cunt with relish.” He spoke in a dreamy voice.

“You have got to be shitting me!” Jon’s father barked. “We are in the middle of a fucking war!”

“Yeah?” Stannis answered. “That is what I want to do after we fight” Stannis drooled at Eddard. “I bet the two of us along with Jon could make Ygritte and Melisandre howl with pleasure as we fuck them airtight.”

Jon found it humorous seeing his father blanch at that. He decided he needed to put in his claim though. He wanted the horndog that Stannis had become to know who Ygritte and Melisandre belonged too “She is hot Stannis but she is all mine and Melisandre’s. She is the jealous one.”

Jon’s face did not show it but he found Stannis’s offer oddly appealing. Fucking his wives with his father would be hot. If Stannis and Selyse … Catelyn … his mother was a beautiful woman … watching those women suck his mother off … and then … the three of them fucking Catelyn airtight … gods her asshole must be so tight … Jon shook his head. He smiled. His wives had definitely made into a pervert. He shook his head again. Twenty minutes ago he was fighting for his life and now he laughing at sexual innuendo and dirty thoughts. Strange how the human mind found relief where it could.

Jon watched his tall wife. Stannis saw Melisandre glaring at him. He was not rebuffed. Jon liked seeing Melisandre jealous.

“Hey I’m only looking” Stannis smirked at Melisandre holding up his hands in peace. “It is Oberyn you should worry about.” He looked around. “Hey, where did he get to by the way?” he asked.

No one was really sure.

Barristan: The drama that was being played out by the ShadowBender witches and those of Royal blood had no import to Barristan. He was a common man. Syrio was of low birth too. The sexual banter of Stannis made him blush and feel uneasy. He shied away from them with Syrio following. He looked over at the bald eunuch. Strong Belwas, well, he was definitely not in the pool that the witches could work with. The large man weaving around seemingly lightheaded from hunger.

In the shadowy ice filled air Barristan looked at the fat eunuch Belwas. He had to smile. The man was a great fighter but also childlike in so many ways.

“Ooohhhhhh oohhhhh!” Strong Belwas moaned. “I’m famished. All work and no food is turning me to skin and bones” the eunuch twittered out in his high tenor voice. The man patting his ample belly. He sure knew how to put on a murmur show Barristan thought looking at the large warrior with fresh cuts on his immense belly. He sighed. The man really had not guile and yet he knew how to put on a show.

From nowhere a runner appeared with an urn filled with roasted locusts. The Queen had brought in a huge shipment from Volantis of the roasted locust that had been soaked in salt and spices to preserve them. With a big happy grin Belwas took the proffered urn and started to stuff locusts into his mouth. His sloppy munching quite disgusting to hear but Barristan smiled. It was so Belwas.

“Finally” the eunuch got out between locusts “sustenance to give Strong Belwas strength to kill my Queen’s foes” the eunuch purred stuffing more locusts into his large mouth. Belwas smacking is lips as he ate.

Barristan looked back over the camp as he and his companions moved along the ten foot tall berm. It undulated slightly since it was following a low creek that had been deepened to form a ditch that had been filled with oil and tar pitch. The concoction would be set afire to act as a barrier to the advancing dead. One touch of flame set the oil alight like a bonfire. The flames should be a most effective barrier.

The old but hale knight led the party to where the berm jutted out thirty yards making a small peninsula. It allowed one to get that little bit closer to the Wall and now seething cloud of ice crystals pulverized into the air by the destruction of the Wall. The rain was beating the ice down and slowly the fog was dissipating. Barristan was of the south but he felt sorrow for the destroying of something that had existed for over eight thousand years.

Barristan saw that the archers had formed up into their ranks now. Many advancing to get closer to the berm to get the furthest reach of the arrows out into the plain between the berm and the Wall. The Walking Dead were a slow moving thing. They would be able to decimate them at range. Behind them the catapults and trebuchets were loaded and ready to be fired.

Daenerys and Eddard had done well in training up their respective now merged forces. Never before had Barristan seen so many troops so well trained. The common man given full training to make them truly effective warriors. This had been proven in the just finished skirmish. He knew the main assault was about to commence.

The initial waves of arrows and projectiles would be devastating to the advancing dead and Ice Wrights and Giants. He saw many small winking lights in various rows of archers. Flaming death would be joining the Dragon Glass arrows flying through the air like the locusts that Strong Belwas was now consuming. He was whining he needed more ‘sustenance’ that he was ‘emaciated most cruelly.’

Geez Barristan thought to himself of the eunuch’s prostrations of starvation and deprivation.

Barristan’s small party moved to the small promontory. The Knight squinted his eyes trying to pierce the veil of the icy crystals in the air. The rain was definitely beating the ice crystals from the air. The air was clearing. The ice of the Wall still settling with groans and protests echoing across the flat space before the berm.

It was still shocking to know that the Wall had actually been brought down. To think that a simple horn had accomplished the feat astounded the knight.

He looked down. The air was definitely clearing of the icy crystals swirling about. He started. What?! He felt great fear pricking his spine.

He was looking down do into the trough that had been dug before the berm. The trough filled with oil and tar pitch to be alight when the Walking Dead reached the berm. The problem was that the liquid in the trough was no longer visible. It was covered with a yellow liquid with more pouring into the trough. It was not thick but it definitely covered the liquid beneath. It seemed as if the liquid was rolling into the trough with small waves. He looked up beyond the ditch and saw that the whole ground was covered with the sickly yellowish ichor.

He jerked his head right and left. His eyes flared. The yellow ichor was all up and down before the berm as far as he could see in each direction in the diminished light. He knew that this yellow substance stretched all before the Queen’s forces and back to the wall. It was the work of their enemy. What the hell?!

The ice was subsiding from the air with the rain constantly falling. The swirls of ice for some reason seemed less here. A trick of the air currents. He and his companions almost leaned forward trying to pierce the swirling white veil before them.

Barristan thought he saw movement. His companions must had seen it too. Syrio and Strong Belwas were too intently appearing into the lessening gloom. Belwas was so enraptured by the strange air that he had forgotten to stuff locust in his mouth. The air seemed to clear before their very eyes.

“What the fuck!” Syrio shouted.

Barristan understood. Syrio was like him. A taciturn man. What they saw filled his heart with dread.

He turned around and shouted at the top of his lungs.

“Fire! Fire! Everyone fire your arrows! Fire the catapults and trebuchets! Set off the scorpions. Sound the horns to fire all arrows and war machines. Scream into your horns. Fire! Fire! Fire” Barristan screamed with all his might. He jumped up and down repeating his shouts. “Sound the war horns to fire the arrows! Fire everything!”

The closest archers did not question the venerable knight. The might and honor of Barristan Selmy was known throughout the camp of the Queen of Westeros. A mighty thrum filled the sky as hundreds of arrows took flight. War horns started to be sounded with the clarion call to fire off their arrows and to keep firing. More flights of arrows were sent off in angry clouds. Thick flights of arrows being shot off in storms of angry wasps. The archers reaching back to their quivers or arrows jammed into the soft Earth in front of them. Again the thrum of flights of arrows filled the air.

The first horns close by were sounding off. The calls soon repeated off to the left and right. Again the Queen’s orders had been prescient. Leaders of their sections had been given the freedom of initiative. Instinct guiding others to heed the call to fire.

The mighty shock of arms hitting stops filled the air as the catapults and trebuchets fired off their projectiles in their cups or slings. The heavy objects firing off into the air. Only some their contents set afire in the operators haste to heed the sudden call to fire. Barristan watched the projectiles lift and arc towards the remains of the Wall.

Now all up and down the frontlines of the forces of Westeros mighty clouds of arrows were taking flight. The war engines further down the lines now having the pegs holding the arms in place pulled. Projectiles taking flight to join the arrows in flight.

Eddard looked back towards the berm. He ripped his sword out of his scabbard and waved it around. Barristan’s two friends from the beginning of Daenerys Targaryen’s quest joined him. More arrows were hissing as they were set loose. The arrows arching high in the air. Barristan heard the Warden of the North shouting commands to fire all arrows and siege engines.

He watched Eddard grab a squire running by and turned him to face himself. Eddard yelled “We need archers here now!” He shoved the boy with wide eyes off to spread the word. The archers needed to come forward. Again the enemy were upon them unawares! Barristan shrilly thought to himself. Again the forces of Westeros had been caught flatfooted.

The ice flakes were settling fast now. Before their very ranks only ten yards away were the Walking Dead. Barristan felt adrenalin surging into his body. The old knight knew everyone was feeling the same rush of frightful energy filling their bodies.

Archers had run up beside him and quickly lined the top of the berm. They were firing wildly down before them. There would be no killing of the enemy leisurely at distance. The flights of arrows arching into the air and away would thin the ranks of the advancing Walking Dead but way too many were almost upon them.

How the hell had this happened! Barristan’s mind shouted to himself. There simply had not been enough time for such slow moving objects as the undead to cover so much ground. It was impossible! He looked at the remains of the Wall now visible and his mouth dropped open. There was three gaps in the fallen debris that were several hundred yards wide each. The channels through the fallen debris lined with yellow. Barristan knew what it was. Magic. Magic that had shunted aside the falling Wall and now kept the debris back.

All this hidden by the crush of ice thrown up into the air by the collapse of the Wall. This had hidden the coming plague. Physics had worked against them.

The gaps in the fallen Wall were only half the mystery. He looked down at the Walking Dead. They were unbalanced falling into each other and stumbling over to the ground. They were not moving forward completely on their own. The little waves that Barristan had seen lapping into the trough before the berm was impossibly carrying the Walking Dead forward. The army of the dead stumbling and fumbling its way to the camp of the enemy. This yellow like carpet of ichor had moved the Walking Dead at almost a fast canter. Magic held the fallen debris of the destroyed Wall back to allow invasion and magic was now transporting the Walking Dead to be upon them impossibly quick.

The undead reached the ditch and fell in. They immediately started to try and climb the ditch and berm in their clumsy fashion. The slope was not that severe. More and more dead fell into the ditch. The new undead walking on the shoulders of the dead brothers. The undead reached the berm and clawed their way up relentlessly.

In a panic almost, Barristan observed that the oil and pitch in the ditch had been completely covered up by the yellow ichor. There would be no burning of the undead. Barristan knew they were in trouble. His head turned right and left. A sea of Walking Dead was about to crash upon the berm. The rising tide may wash them away he feared.

Twenty more archers ran up. The rank of archers on the berm itself still desperately thin. They stopped in shock. Their bows hung limp in their hands. The dead had reached the top of the berm and were starting to advance. This promontory was the first place they had reached. The area between the berm and the fallen Wall was thick the dead being carried forward. They were packed against each other so thick this tide of unholy dead.

Barristan and Syrio screamed at the new arrivals to fire now! The men shook off their shock and began to fire at the targets that were just before them. The dragon glass cutting down the leading edge of the advancing enemy. The problem was the sea behind those cut down pressing forward to Barristan grimly smiled seeing more flights of arrows falling in the walking dead at distance. It would help but not the immediate threat. Many only found dirt but as many found hosts to bury themselves in. The first flaming projectiles from the catapults and trebuchets came arching down. Their impacts splattering the dead beneath them. They were set on fire as well as their closest dead brothers. Other catching fire as they touched their ambling dead brothers.

Behind him Barristan heard men cursing and shouting reloading their siege engines with projectiles. A flight of scorpion bolts came whistling overhead. The men able to more easily lower the aim point of these weapons. Massive bolts slammed into the Walking Dead. The bolts tipped with dragon glass that instantly killed the impaled Walking Dead. The massive bolts often killing more than one Walking Dead. The heavy thick bolts ripping from host to host shattering multiple undead bodies.

The archers on the berm had shaken off their shock and began to fire with abandon. The slow moving targets almost impossible to miss at this short range. The Walking Dead pierced by dragon glass and some flaming arrows. The dead hit by fire going up like tar soaked dummies. The dragon glass killing those hit in the head or heart. Hits to other parts of the body of the undead instantly beginning to spread poison into the undead. Multiple arrow hits speeding up the poison process.

The archers reaching back and firing off wildly. The first wave of the undead impossible to miss at this close range. The leading undead falling down dead. Some outright and others slowly with arrows sticking out all over their bodies. The next leading edge of undead feathered and killed. The initial quivers ran empty. Many of the archers had only brought their one personal quiver in their rush forward. Thankfully, some had brought additional quivers and quickly pulled off the first and donned the second and began firing hot and fast. More undead stumbled down dead.

Barristan screamed for the attendants moving quivers about to rush forward. They were needed here now! The undead was moving forward like a nightmare. Too many had come upon them unawares. They runners started to now bringing fresh quivers that the archers immediately snatched up and slung across shoulders discarding the empty ones. More quivers being rushed forward now to supply the archers on the berm. Archers now reloaded were able to again kill the leading edges of the shambling undead. There was just too many of them Barristan saw.

The undead was upon them. The three men from the beginning of Daenerys Targaryen’s quest stepped forward to meet them.

Syrio stabbed a Walking Dead in the eye that had shambled forward from the berm crest. The undead reaching out to him. His Valyrian rapier unbinding the magic animating it. Barristan and Belwas chopped limbs off and severed heads as they backed up. The promontory was rapidly being filled with undead. Their own Valyrian weapons dealing instant death to the Walking Dead they struck. Still, the undead poured up and over the berm. War horns were screaming in the air. The archers around Barristan firing off in a controlled steady pace. They had more attendants running up to them bringing them fresh quivers to continue fire off fast and furious.

The undead were falling down dead all around. Their bodies pierced with multiple dragon glass tipped arrows. The undead were slow and did not try in any manner to avoid the fire coming their way. Nor did they rush their attack on the unprepared defenders. The defenders given time to mount a defense. Another volley of scorpion bolts flew in flinging the undead off their feet and back by the impact of the large wooden bolts.

The training of the attendants kicking in. They now instinctively knew to go where archers were firing and supply them with the arrows they needed. The arrows supplied now being fired off to kill more of the advancing Walking Dead. The attendants running back to the stockpiles to bring up more fresh quivers of arrows to be fired off. The young men running at breakneck speeds.

The Walking Dead kept pouring forward. They had the reached the ditch and berm on the rest of the camp now and were starting to fill the ditch and beginning their climb out of the trough up the berm.

An Ice Wright appeared on the crest of the berm. He received a welcoming gift of five Dragon Glass arrows in his body. He looked down and screamed in agony as blue blood poured out of all his orifices and black tendrils raced through his body. He fell back into the trough to die. More undead emerged and were spreading out to find targets to engage and kill. Their eyes glowing unnatural blue. The arms of the undead humans reaching out. The animals seeking to close with the warm bloods before them to rend apart.

Barristan understood the thought of the Ice King. The sea of undead meant to absorb the brunt of the Queen’s counterattack. The undead leavened with Ice Wrights mainly to take advantage of any opportunity to rise up in the mayhem. He knew that soon more of the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants would be upon them.

Arrows were ripping into shambling undead. The problem was the forces of Westeros were not arrayed to handle this. They had been arrayed to kill at distance and then rearrange formations in a controlled manner as the enemy closed. The blinding ice snow had covered the enemy’s approach. This yellow carpet had brought the enemy to them in minutes instead of the hours the undead would have normally needed to get to the Wall to the berm. The whole plain between the Wall and the Queen’s camp was filled with unsteady dead being brought forward to fight and kill.

“Fall back! Fall Back!” Barristan shouted as he hacked and diced the dead reaching for him. They did not feel his cuts and hacks. The humans and smaller animals fell down dead. The larger animals did not die immediately. Where he struck the black tendrils of magical poisoning started to spread. The cuts he had made to head or into their hearts killed the undead but their brothers kept relentlessly surging forward. Arrows were flying in but not even beginning to be enough. Another Ice Wright appeared. It rushed forward. Strong Belwas engaged it. Their two weapons clanged as they hit each other again and again.

Syrio was killing the undead near him. He brought down a wolverine that almost bit his leg as he fought a dead Wildling. He fell back. Two Dragon Glass arrows hit the Ice Wright engaged with Strong Belwas. The arrows imbedded in the Ice Wright’s leg and belly with others whizzing by its body. It screamed in pain but still kept attacking Belwas but it was slower now. Belwas parted its head from its shoulders.

Barristan shouted at Strong Belwas to fall back. The eunuch ignored Barristan holding his ground. The idiot! Thank the gods his woman Marleya Blackmyre appeared beside him. In rapid fire she shot off arrows. Her fire was pinpoint accurate. Her arrows penetrating eyes felling the Walking Dead like their strings had been cut off from their puppet masters.

Barristan ran in with the dead being thinned out for a moment. He gripped Strong Belwas by the arm and dragged him back screaming at him to fall back. The eunuch wanted to stay and fight but he followed Barristan back.

The undead were spreading out on the top of the berm at the promontory. Three more Ice Wrights appeared. They rushed forward. They were fast and dodged the first arrows whizzing their way. One came at them. Barristan moved forward and engaged. Their swords slammed into each other. The Ice Wright was fast but not truly skilled. Barristan felt the cold radiating off the Wright. He gritted his teeth and locked up their swords and got his body close to its body. The cold was bitter and was beginning to sap his strength. But he succeeded in his efforts.
With their swords locked, Marleya put an arrow into the body of the Ice Wright. It staggered and her next arrow went through its neck. Its body went out of control screaming and vomiting blood. As it died Barristan looked around and saw undead falling down dead or others slow spinning and stumbling around with dragon glass arrows impacting their bodies all over. The pricked undead falling down to die as obsidian poison filled their bodies. Others were hit with flaming arrows that sent them up like volcanos. The burning undead often impacting others setting them to burn brightly in the falling rain.

The second Ice Wright was locked in combat with Strong Belwas. The large fat eunuch impossibly fast. His sword cut off the arm of the Ice Wright. It wailed with the bloody stump spitting out gouts of blue blood. Belwas’s next stroke nearly cut the Ice Wright in half at the waist.

The other Ice Wright had avoided them and fell on the archers. Their fire not accurate but more archers had come up. Five archers were killed before an arrow found the juiking Ice Wright hitting it in the upper arm. Black tendrils starting to spread. It killed two more archers before a blizzard of arrows went at it with six hitting it. It died immediately already starting to turn to mist.

Still the Walking Dead walked into them. The archers behind them had to keep firing to kill off their foes wildly without taking time to truly aim. Fortunately, the archers further back were firing off at the undead at distance. Barristan had noted angry hissing as flight after flight of arrows were let loose. More dead poured into the breach on the top of the berm. Dead were topping the berm all up and down the front line of the forces of Westeros now but on this promontory they had a beachhead and were starting to spread out.

The forces of the Queen had to fall back which exposed the flanks around them. The Walking Dead were swarming up where Barristan had been a minute ago. Without knowing it the Walking Dead were turning the flank of the Queen’s force. Their surge reaching out for the living on all three sides that they could reach.

If this was not stopped the Dead would truly turn the flanks on each side and roll back the forces of Westeros. This would allow the undead to hit forces not ready to fight them. If this happened slaughter would begin on forces not prepared to deal with the swarm of undead surging forward into their midst.

The archers had to fall back firing all the while but between their movement and terror their fire was not accurate. Foot soldiers were moving up to engage but their blades were not Valyrian steel and did not kill. They caused grievous wounds that may slow the undead but did not stop them. The undead felt no pain.

When the undead got ahold of a man they tore him apart as he screamed in agony.

The breach was turning deadly. The archers and his Marleya had run out of arrows. Even the small time to change out quivers was deadly allowing the undead to advance without interference. More quivers were coming forward but any delay was working against them.

They had to retreat even more and faster. More runners were finally arriving to the front most area to bring more arrows but the delay was proving deadly. The unexpected attack had not allowed for the orderly setup of attendants to bring forward arrows in a timely manner. The most skilled archers wasted precious time waiting for resupply of precious obsidian tipped arrows.

Arya had come running up now. She was firing off arrows all around fast and furious. Her aim true as undead after undead dropped down dead with arrows to the eye. She was soon out of arrows but an attendant handed her another quiver she quickly donned. Even that small delay forced Arya to retreat before the relentless onslaught of steadily pressing forward undead.
Barristan was desperate. They did not have the forces to counterattack. He wanted to rush the advancing dead but his death would be senseless.

Suddenly, he whirled around. It couldn’t be. A sound assaulted his senses he had not heard in years. A sound now repeated from many quadrants behind him. His heart had been filled with rising dread but now felt hope flaring. It was impossible but he knew that sound. He looked around for the source of the new sounds on the battlefield.

He heard wild discordant roynish barking. It sounded like all the hounds of Westeros were wildly barking at each other and for no reason at all. The sound quickly coming closer. The sound coming up the many lanes that the Queen had laid out for her forces to move from one point to another.

Again, Barristan was being stunned. Before his eyes running between the forces of Daenerys Targaryen were small bodies between four and half and five feet tall. These new visitors running on all fours. They were not deep black like the Ur-viles he had fought with on the plains of the Dothraki Sea. The bodies of these creatures with arms and legs of equal length and no eyes in their faces rushed forward. Their faces dominated by huge fleshy nostrils. Their mouths small slits lined with needle sharp teeth. They had pointed ears sitting high on their heads.

Barristan had seen their like before. In Winterfell when they had appeared to save Catelyn Stark. They were Waynhim. They had come to aid the Queen of Westeros. Barristan saw the forces of the Queen looking at these strange creatures running pell-mell through their ranks. The men too shocked to react to the creatures that were by them in a flash. Somehow everyone seemed to sense they had come to their aid and did not attack these strange creatures now in their midst.

As they rushed forward Barristan noticed they had staves in their hands like their Ur-vile cousins carried. How the Waynhim were able to run fast even though they carried staves in one hand was beyond Barristan. Most of the staves were made of black iron but some of the Waynhim had ones made of pale bone. All the tips were glowing red. The old knight could see the power emanating from the depths of the staves.

The lead Waynhim rushed up to form a line in front of the advancing Walking Dead. The Waynhim stopped ten feet in front of the undead and let them come to them. The Waynhim formed a wall fifty feet across in front of the undead. The creatures lined up tightly shoulder to shoulder. The grey bodied Waynhim had the tips of their staves of bone and iron resting on the ground.

The Walking Dead were only a step away from the Waynhim now. Barristan wondered if they had gone daft! They were not defending themselves. That thought died the next instant. As one over forty staves whipped up in unison. The staves whipped up and then down. Bodies of the undead were cut in two and limbs easily cleaved off. The Waynhim now wildly chopping the undead as they advanced upon the Waynhim. Body parts of the Walking Dead flying in all directions.

The bodies when they fell to the ground did not move. The magic of the Demondim spawn also unbound the dead. The Waynhim were as fast as the Ice wrights. Waynhim appeared from all directions behind Barristan. They were impossibly successful in killing the Walking Dead with quick efficiency. Their staves of seemingly unsharpened iron and bone impossibly hacking apart the undead.

The new Waynhim as they arrived on the scene rose up on their hind limbs and added their staves to the wholesale slaughter of the undead. The Waynhim had great strength for such small bodies. Their staves easily cleaving the undead apart.

The undead were quickly butchered that had advanced into the Queen’s forces. The Waynhim did not advance as they killed the initial surge of the Walking Dead. More and more of the Waynhim rushed up into the clearing the leading Waynhim had made. These did not immediately join the attack. Instead they piled up behind the initial line of Waynhim and the first arrivals behind the front line of Waynhim. Those first arrivals had decimated the initial crush of the Walking Dead.

Barristan knew what they were doing. As he watched the gathering force of Waynhim began to form their fighting wedge. Barristan had seen the fighting wedges of the Ur-viles on the Dothraki Sea when they attacked the Khalasar of Khal Jhaqoh. They had been a devastating fighting force. Barristan prayed to the seven that Waynhim were equally adept at this style of warfare as their larger black Ur-vile cousins.

The world suddenly exploded in blue and a huge shockwave surged over the battlefield accompanied by mighty thunder. The Lord of Revelstone had joined the battlefield. Another wild pulse of blue filled the air. The world turning blue for a moment. The words “Melenkurion abatha!” boomed across the landscape with the thunder. The mighty peel of power echoed in the air.

With intense interest Barristan watched the Waynhim fighting wedge forming up. He saw the wedge increasing in size. The Ur-vile wedges had been roughly two hundred individuals in each fighting wedge. This wedge had already at least three hundred individuals in it already. Still it grew.

Marleya had returned with ten archers with full quivers plus several spare quivers each. Barristan saw runners now running up carrying more quivers. The surprise was wearing off. The archers began firing again holding off the next surge of the Walking Dead. Marleya fire was deadly accurate. The other archers not so much with many misses. Still the dead were being killed yet again in great numbers. So close they were hard to miss. The fallen dead had the ones behind them stumbling and fighting to get over their now fallen dead twice brothers and sisters. This noticeably slowed their advance.

More clouds of arrows were launching to kill the dead before the berm. The projectile throwing apparatuses firing off as quickly as they could be reloaded. Archers further back aiming up to arch their flights of arrows into the enemy. Barristan felt elation seeing scorpion bolts flying forth impaling multiple Walking Dead before losing momentum. The dragon glass tipped weapon killing all the Walking Dead impaled. Each time he heard catapults and trebuchets hitting their stops he pumped his fist.

Still more Waynhim kept appearing to join the fighting wedge. Now at least nine hundred and fifty if not a thousand individuals had joined the wedge Barristan estimated. Compared to the wedges of the Ur-viles this wedge was very large but still compact with the tightly packed bodies standing shoulder to shoulder within it. The leading Waynhim had their staves extended. The tallest Waynhim had moved to the apex of the fighting wedge that looked like a huge triangle. This would be most powerful of the Waynhim. Their Loremaster. Others could take its place if needed but he was the strongest.

Wild barking filled the wedge with the inner Waynhim near the edge of the wedge placing their staves on the shoulders of their brethren. Barristan knew they were sharing their strength and increasing it by sharing it. That those on the edge would be able to project the power of all its brothers by this sharing.

The wedge of the Waynhim surged forward at a moderate walk. Barristan hoped that the Loremaster of the Waynhim had the same abilities of its Ur-vile cousins in its ability to project out with the Waynhim’s power.

“Yes!” Barristan shouted.
From the tip of the Loremaster iron stave that glowed a hot red, a long arc of black acid flowed thickly out its tip. The Loremaster slashed its blade right and left. The acid arching out in long undulating waves. The larger wedge made the arc of liquid thick and traveled further than what the smaller Ur-vile wedges had been able to produce. Barristan shouted again when the acid hit the dead and immediately ate their bodies away. Bodies torn apart and reduce to sludge. The undead quickly died the second death and did not move. The acid splashes took out great swaths of the Walking Dead. Unfortunately, there was a boundless sea behind those just slain.

The wedge moved forward. Another sweeping arc of acid killed all the undead it landed on. The wedge hit the advancing wall of the Walking Dead. The Waynhim on the leading edge whipped their staves up and sliced down easily chopping the dead apart. The Waynhim with bones staves stabbed the dead and their bodies burst into flames and caught their neighboring dead on fire. Flames shooting out their mouths, noses and ears. The undead did not know how to attempt to fight this organized defense. They came forward to be immediately cut down.

The Waynhim pushed forward walking over the dead they had slain a second time.

“Marleya get your archers and form on the rear flank of the Waynhim like we did with the Ur-viles on the Dothraki Sea. We need to thin out the ranks of the dead and engage the Wrights and Ice Giants when they attack the Waynhim wedge. They will be coming soon. I can feel it!” She nodded her head and shouted at the archers with her to get more of their brothers. Fortunately, more and more archers were now coming forward. They had large eyes but they were ready to fight for their homelands.

Arya was there firing off arrows rapidly. On her right shoulder Jerteel with a taken up Ice Wright sword. The cold did not affect the Haruchai’s immunity to cold. The Haruchai ready to fight and kill.

Barristan rushed forward with Syrio and Belwas to help kill the dead on the right flank of the fighting wedge. Arya had moved to the left taking her Haruchai with her. The fighting wedge had slaughtered their way back to the edge of the promontory. They paused there. Three Ice Giants came lumbering up along with five Ice Wrights. They immediately attacked the fighting wedge. The leading Ice Giant took a splash of acid from the Loremaster. The great beast simply dissolved down as it melted into slush in a quick moment. The Ice Wrights slashed wildly at the leading edge of the fighting wedge. The Waynhim blocked the strokes of the Icy spawn with their staves not shattering with repeated strikes.

A few Waynhim were felled by the swords of the Ice Wrights but three of Ice Wrights were felled by stabbing thrusts or slashes of the Waynhim. The two remaining Ice Giants with their great height was attracting the fire of archers form distance. These Ice Giants wore no armor thankfully. The close in archers firing at them too feathering them up and down their bodies. They had not expected to have Dragon Glass striking them. They were being poisoned but fought on pounding down with their might swords. The Waynhim lifting their blades on the edge and behind them. They blocked the strikes but were staggering under the immense power of the strikes.

The Loremaster splashed the second Ice Giant and it died immediately melting away. An Ice Wright had its arm chopped off by a Waynhim. Its blood spurting as it wailed in pain. Another Waynhim was killed but so was the last of the Ice Wrights.

Arya had shot her arrows too helping in felling the Ice Giants. Jerteel had moved forward to cut down the leading edge of the undead before her.

Marleya had returned with twenty archers well organized now. They all carried multiple quivers filled with Dragon Glass. This area had been secured. Two more Ice Wrights tried to rush the fighting wedge of the Waynhim but were cut down by blizzard of dragon glass tipped arrows.

Eddard: Transfixed Eddard watched the arcane rite being performed before his eyes. Ygritte had stripped out of her long dress. She had then sat down up on the dress she had laid out. Her skin had goose bumped and her nipples hardened. She felt the cold but she suppressed it. The light rain hitting her body and now running down her pale body in rivulets. She leaned back on her palms behind her back. She spread out her legs.

Jon had mentioned in passing to his father of the magical rite. Jon had not gone into detail. Eddard had assumed that when it was said that a ‘shadow monster’ was birthed it was metaphorical expression. Now the Warden of the North knew it was literal. He watched transfixed as Melisandre kneeled down beside the nude Ygritte. In Melisandre’s left hand was her shadow cup full of the mingled blood of those that Melisandre’s blade had cut.

Eddard moved to stand by his son also staring down transfixed by what was occurring.

“What have you seen this before son?”

Jon looked up at his father. He seemed a little dazed. “No I have not father. They have talked of it but I have not seen it. It is …” Jon trailed off still staring down at his two wives. As they watched Melisandre began to hum a tune in the land of Asshai. The notes seemed a little off to Eddard his ears tuned to the music of Westeros.

That was when he heard Barristan shouting off in the distance. It was faint but he was definitely excited. Eddard forced himself to back up from the semi-circle around the ShadowBender witches. He walked back up the berm halfway and looked off to his right.

There he saw that Barristan, Syrio Forel and Strong Belwas had walked out to the promontory that was nearly two hundred yards away. Barristan was shouting. Was that something about archers firing off their arrows and the siege weapons firing? Why? He looked back towards at the Wall hidden by the cloud of pulverized ice in the air. It was definitely less but he still could not see anything of import.

Then he started to hear war horns sounding off first around Barristan and then the chorus started up and down the line of the Queen’s camp. The notes being blown was to fire off arrows. The urgency of the blows on the war horns made Eddard’s blood run cold. Then the war horn notes for the siege engines to be fired were sounded. He heard the engines firing off. The sappers not hesitating to follow the blown notes. Their discipline solid following orders that may have been questioned.

Barristan had pushed a steward off towards the camp. A mighty whoosh filled Eddard’s ears. The archers behind him had let loose their arrows. The sounds of war horns sounding the notes to fire arrows and launch projectiles from the catapults and trebuchets were being sounded stridently all up and down the forces of Westeros. All up and down the camp of the Queen of Westeros war horns sounded stridently their various commands to attack or defend.

The mighty whoosh of trebuchets being fired off filled the air. The arms hitting their stops loud in the rain laden air. Eddard turned back to the camp and saw more of the arms of many of the siege weapons arching forward to hit their stops sending their projectiles firing off to the north towards the Wall. Scorpions were firing off their bolts.

There could only be one reason for this sudden firing off of arrows and projectiles. It was impossible but he trusted Barristan implicitly. He would not sound a false alarm.

Eddard ran the distance to the top of the berm that was nearest him. Still the ice dust was too thick here to see anything. He turned back to look at Barristan and where he stood on the promontory. He felt his blood run cold. The Walking Dead were cresting to the top of the berm. That was impossible Eddard thought shrilly. He looked back out in front of him. The ice snow was definitely lessening. He began to see shapes in front of him. He looked down in the trough. No! It was filled with dead clawing up the embankment. How?!!

He noticed they yellow cast to the ground but had no time to process that information. He then felt it. His sword was literally vibrating in its scabbard. Eldritch blue tendrils leaked out from the scabbard and wafted up into the air. His sword Evening Star humming in a loud high tenor. Eddard knew what his sword was saying. Release me to kill your enemies!

Eddard obliged ripping the sword forged from a fallen star out of its scabbard. The immaculate blade glowed a bright robin egg blue. It was not fiery like Daenerys Rune sword but it glowed like the full moon come down to Earth. The sword was literally bleeding off bright blue tendrils of its magic. Most of the tendrils wafting up to four feet in the air. Other tendrils circling up his forearm and clinging tight.

Eddard felt strength flow into his body. His sword was singing to him. Let me kill our enemies it hummed to him. Eddard stared at his blade unsure. Was that merely his thought or did his sword say the words on its own. He had no time to try and science it out. He looked down again.

Yes, the ground was covered with yellow ichor of some sort. More was flowing down into the ditch before the berm. More of the undead were piling in the large ditch. The unholy undead striving to climb up to the berm top. He had a few moments yet. He shouted out calling for men to join him. He needed archers now!

He looked back and his eyes bulged. Melisandre had painted Asshai runes all over Ygritte’s body but especially her belly. A belly that was now swollen as if she was six months pregnant. Melisandre sang melodies that were at once jarring and yet hauntingly beautiful. She put the cup to Ygritte’s lips. The small woman began to drink the mixed blood of the royals of Westeros and representatives of the southern hemisphere. Ygritte’s stomach grew slowly before Eddard’s eyes. All the men around her and Arya had totally forgotten what was happening around them. The magical spectacle before them had them enraptured.

Jon had his mouth hanging open. He was almost in shock seeing Ygritte belly begin to truly distend.

War horns were screaming all around now with the order to fire arrows and the siege engines. Arya shook off the trance she was in and ran off as fast as her legs could carry her to the frontlines.

The air hissed with clouds of arrows winging in the direction of the Wall. The only problem was the undead that were before the clouds of descending arrows landing hundreds of yards before the berm. No one had planned for the enemy being upon them unawares. He was jumping up and down screaming for archers. Archers who now began to appear in small groups upon the top of the berm. Their eyes going large but already beginning to fire off their bows. The arrows almost impossible to miss the broiling mass before the berm.

He heard the sound of the arms of catapults and trebuchets hitting their stops and then the sound of men and women working the gears to pull the arms back for reload. He watched men and women rushing to put more stones and iron balls into the cups and slings. Fires were now being applied to the tar soaked projectiles. The first shots sent off unlighted in the haste to shoot.

He turned back to look out over the berm. The first Walking Dead clawed their way to the top of the berm. Eddard wasted no time. He moved forward and slashed down easily cleaving heads in two and cutting off the limbs of the dead striving to move up. His blade sliced through the dead like they were made of butter. His blade easily cut through muscle and bone.

When his blade cut the Walking Dead they instantly went limp. Dead. His sword’s touch seemed to kill them instantly. No slow poison kill for his weapon. It did not matter where his blade struck the undead they died their permanent second death. Eddard moved right and left ten yards killing the initial dead moving up the berm in his area. The archers around firing off desperately with large eyes. The archers cleared off the berm the initial surge of the undead. The archers moved forward. They started firing down the berm as fast as they could draw their bow strings and let arrows loose again and again. The shots to head and heart instant kills. The rest started the poisoning of the dead.

In their rush though many of the archers had only on their one quiver. Eddard looked back. He had yet to see … no, thank the old gods runners were rushing forward now with quivers. Several wheelbarrows filled with quivers being pushed forward. One tilted over the quivers spilling out. It would be funny if they did not need those arrows now! Runners on foot were now streaming forward. Some grabbed the fallen quivers and rushed forward. He turned around and cut down a large bear. His sword sliced through shoulder to the bottom of the beast easily. It collapsed and did not move. The flesh rapidly turning putrid with the magic binding it now dead.

The initial rush of the undead killed by Eddard he could afford to look around. The ice dust had settled now. Up and down the berm he looked. The trough before it was filled with dead clawing their way to the top. He looked quickly out to the plain before the Wall. Mighty swarms of arrows were flying down into the roiling mass of Walking Dead. Many arrows missed but many found targets. The ground was littered with now dead Walking Dead. Others were moving but erratic as the poison of the Dragon Glass did its work.

He heard the sound of the siege engines firing off their next rounds of projectiles. He felt a thrill seeing fiery globes launching into the sky. Fire was their friend he thought to himself with grim humor. He watched the little stars flung off to sail high in the air. He followed their arcs. He saw little moons following their larger planet siblings. Fiery arrows and projectiles arching off to find undead to set aflame.

The fiery projectiles from the siege engines impacted into the milling dead beyond the range of the arrows. The heavy projectiles crushed some with direct hits. The fire of the projectiles lighting many dead afire. The undead staggering around burning brightly. The rain did not touch the fire that had been ignited in the undead bodies. The flames clearly magical in nature. When a Walking Dead on fire touched a kindred body they too caught fire and went up like a raging bonfire.

The initial plan was working perfectly. The dead were being decimated at range but they had penetrated in on them unawares and the numbers before Eddard’s eyes was staggering. He had never imagined that there could be so many of the Walking Dead. More clouds of angry buzzing arrows went flying north. Now fire arrows were being fired into the roiling mass of milling dead. He saw dragon glass hitting the undead. He saw flaming arrows likewise impacting the undead.

The only problem was the forces of the Ice King that already come in under the umbrella of arrows and projectiles being fired off with rapidity by the forces under Daenerys’s and his command. They would just have deal with it he thought gloomily cutting down more of the undead.

In a break of the advancing undead, Eddard looked out before the now fallen Wall. He had simply not conceived of such numbers. The ground before him was literally covered with the undead back to the fallen Wall and as far as he could see to his left and right. At the passes in the fallen Wall, more undead could be seen streaming in. The yellow ichor carrying the undead impossibly quickly forward.
He knew that yellow seemed to be color associated with the Croyel. This must be his magic bringing the Walking Dead forward quickly. Damn it Eddard cursed to himself. The undead were supposed to clumsily navigate the shattered remains of the Wall. Easily picked off and then when they met the flat ground with their slow movements.

Even with the channels through the fallen Wall the slow advance of the undead should have allowed for them to be butchered as the forces of Westeros slowly retreated to the berm. They could have moved out and engaged in a controlled manner. That plan was no more.

He had seen the danger that Barristan was in at the promontory but was unable to go to his aid. He could not allow the Walking Dead to come up the berm here. He glanced back at the promontory. Anger filled his body. It was clear that Barristan, Strong Belwas and Syrio and the few defenders around them were going to be overwhelmed. He could not go to them and allow the undead to breech here as well. To allow penetration of their lines here would prove equally catastrophic.

To his left mighty explosion of magical might went off turning the world blue. Lustra had joined the fight.

Eddard glanced back to Ygritte. He felt his body go tense his eyes wide. He was constantly being shocked by unbelievable sights. Expect they were real! Ygritte’s belly was greatly bloated now. Melisandre had moved behind Ygritte now and had her left arm around her wife with her right hand. She was still holding up the shadow cup to her wife’s lips. Ygritte steadily drank the rest of the blood from the cup. The tall auburn headed witch was singing still in her native tongue.

Foot soldiers came running up with shields, lances and pikes. They were to delay the advancing dead and try and bunch them up so Dragon Glass could dispatch the dead. They started to form up behind Eddard. More archers were running up in ones and twos. The surprise had ruined the formations that been trained for. That did not matter her on the berm. Arrows were needed to be fired as quickly as possible. At targets at point blank range.

Two large bodies flashed by overhead. The bodies of immense size. He smiled. Viserion and Rhaegal had both taken to the air. They rose up to just below the cloud cover and rolled over and came back down at immense speed. This made them hard to hit if aimed at but also allowed the breath they now spewed out their open mauls to cover more ground. Large swaths of the undead went up like roaring candles from Leng. Long lines of magical fire consumed all they touched. The white and green dragon rose back up into the air. Rhaegal’s wounded leg hanging limp but it did not prevent him from flight and fight.

The next batch of dead were rising up as they clawed their way up the berm. Archers cut the majority down. Eddard moved forward and cut down those that rose up before him and were not feathered. He relied the skill of the archers and his armor to protect him. He heard Ygritte yell out in her advanced pregnancy. He did not have time to look back.

To their left Viserion suddenly appeared in a fast down dive. His throat issuing a mighty bugle. He flew down the line of the berm firing his breath down into the trough before it. He seemed to be controlling his breath and firing out a thin jet of flame. Eddard was impressed. The white dragon flew down the line of the berm setting the dead alight that were before the berm. For several hundred yards the white dragon burned the Walking Dead. His constricted flame allowed him to continue his jet of flame for a greater distance.

Further down the berm Rhaegal appeared. His right rear leg hung limply but he was still able to fly and he burned the dead in the trough as well with his fiery breath. The dragons flew on and banked away to gain attitude looking out over the battlefield. The dragons banking over the forces of Westeros. This allowed them to fly in safety and not have to worry about attack. The dragons surveying where they were needed next. They now rose up into the sky to get attitude to dive down for their next attacks. Their attack next to the berm reduced the immediate pressure of the undead attack where they had attacked.

The two dragons heading to the west. Their wings pumping hard gaining attitude as they moved north to attack undead closer to the fallen Wall.

Eddard saw that the yellow ichor already in the ditch would prevent the oil and pitch beneath the sheet of ichor from igniting. Damnit! Another foil to their plans. The undead moving forward slogging through the liquid and crawling over the bodies of their fallen compatriots.

The Direwolves had run up and were surrounding the ShadowBender witches. They too seemed mesmerized by what was happening. The mighty wolves facing out quickly. They were obviously providing their protections to the witches.

Eddard turned around and started to kill the next wave of the dead clawing up to reach the top of the berm. Eddard felt arrows whizzing by his sides and head. The shambling dead falling dead or staggering as Dragon Glass arrows slammed into their bodies from point blank range. Eddard felt grim satisfaction seeing the blue light leave the Walking Dead’s eyes as they died a second permanent death. He felt like some great Titan in the middle of the tempestuous seas.

He cursed when his body recoiled with dragon glass arrows exploding on his plate armor. He said a quick prayer to the old gods that he was not hit in the head. At least he would never know what hit him he thought in gallows humor.

He looked back at Ygritte. Her belly was terribly bloated now. She cried out as if in the travails of childbirth. He thought darkly that she was. Just that she about to birth a monster. Melisandre held Ygritte’s body to hers with both arms now. Her body had moved behind her wife’s small body. Her knees on each side of the fiery redhead cradling Ygritte to her body. Jon started to move in to help his wife but Melisandre waved him off with an angry shake of her head. Jon heeded her warning and moved back.

Eddard again looked over at the promontory. He cursed loudly. Barristan and his group were having to give way and some of the undead were now slaughtering those they could now reach. The undead bullying their way through the forces of Westeros and unknowingly turning the flank. If this caving in of their lines became large it would lead to the slaughter of many of his men. A full scale retreat would have to be called. They could be catastrophic.

What did he hear? Eddard looked around. He heard strange barking in the air. It seemed to be coming from everywhere at once. The sound sounded like dogs but it was not. The pitch too high and strident for hounds. The Direwolves had a much deeper bark.

Behind the knot of people around the ShadowBender witches Eddard saw a shape run by. He started yet again. What the hell was that? He murmured to himself. As he gaped at the receding figure running on all fours. Two more of the grey shapes rushed by. They were running towards Barristan on the promontory. As he turned to look back from where those figures had appeared two more of the figures went running by from the opposite direction. Then one ran by right behind him running down the berm to get to the promontory.

The figures were shaped faintly like a dog. They were wearing medium and dark grey tunics that covered the top of their four limbs. Then he saw their faces. They had no eyes and massive nostrils with ears high on their heads. They were Ur-viles … no these were grey … they were Waynhim. They and the Ur-viles had saved his wife. The figures were barking wildly.
His mouth fell open. The small denizens of the Land rushed on towards the promontory. Waynhim were surging to Barristan forming up in front of him. More and more of the Demondim spawn appeared running to the promontory from all the lanes in the queen’s camp it seemed. The tumultuous confusion of combat had the men the creatures ran by hardly even noticing as the men focused on the advancing Walking Dead.

Eddard was shocked. The Waynhim were supposed to retiring creatures who did not try to affect the course of history like the Ur-viles were willing to do according to Lord Lustra. The creatures supposedly more pacifist. The Waynhim supporting the Land behind the scenes.

Again he had to give thanks to these strange denizens of the Southern Continent who were fighting in his cause. He counted himself extremely fortunate. More and more arrows were being fired at the advancing tide of undead. The various siege engines now firing in a continuous rhythm hurling objects at the sea of approaching death. All platforms now fully manned and in rhythm of fire and reload.

The Waynhim were definitely running up to Barristan’s position. They were coming to his aid. He felt an inner rush knowing this. Daenerys had told all of them the tales of the Ur-viles coming to her aid on the Dothraki Sea and the great destruction they had caused to the Dothraki. He hoped the Waynhim proved as destructive.

For a moment he had doubts. The Waynhim formed a line in front of Barristan and the small knot of fighters around him. The Waynhim did not seem ready to fight with their staves down. In a flash nearly forty or so staves were ripped up slicing the undead before them apart. The blades chopping limbs off and bodies in half.

He had no more time for them. It looked like Barristan’s situation had been stabilized. He had his immediate problems to take care. He saw Rhaegal swoop by and over the leading edge of the dead surging forward towards the trough before the berm. His fiery breath set a huge swath of the dead alight. The fire intense even from a distance. The green dragon banked bank over the forces of the Queen.

He looked further down the line. Viserion was letting out long jets of his flaming breath. From distance he saw the long tongues of flame consuming whole swaths of the advancing undead. He noted that dragon’s fire seemed to cling to what it touched. One jet was nearly fifty yards long. Viserion flying fast to extend the path of his destruction.

Daenerys had informed all in meetings that dragons did not have an unlimited ability to spew fire and the Ice Dragon could probably only send out so much ice. Once they had exhausted the fuel they had acquired by eating and chemical reactions then they were unable to breathe more fire. That was the reason dragons did much of their damage with their weight and talons flying down to crush their foes and tearing apart with claws and teeth.

Eddard turned around. He saw more undead appearing. The yellow ichor constantly bringing the undead forward at a quick pace. The archers firing wildly at them filling them with Dragon Glass. Their bodies feathered repeatedly killing them quickly. The leading undead toppling over.

Unfortunately, more were right behind them brought forward by the magical rolling ichor. An Ice Wright appeared suddenly in front of Eddard. The archers were reloading and the Ice Wright rushed forward to fight Eddard. He stepped forward and engaged the Ice Wright.

Their swords slammed into each other repeatedly. The sharp retorts ringing in the air. Evening Star singing its song louder as it fought the sword of their foe. The Ice Wright was fast but Eddard was faster. He had trained his whole life for these fights. He concentrated and swung his sword hard with all his might. His heart filled with anger at the abomination that the Ice King had created. His sword cleaved the Ice Wright's sword in two knocking it off balance. Evening Star shrieked in triumph Eddard swore. He came back with a back handed sword swipe. The Ice Wright's head went spinning off into the air.

“AAARRRRRUUNNGGGGGG!” a loud feminine scream tore the air.

The Wright dispensed with Eddard turned to look back to where Jon and his wives were. He again started at what greeted his sight. From Ygritte’s vagina a monstrous head emerged. It was absolutely black and seemed to twist and writhe as it pushed out from her vagina. The monstrosity of a black head swelled the instant it pushed forth from Ygritte’s birth canal. The head elongating. Ygritte was yelling pushing down. The shoulders of the thing pushed through Ygritte’s birth canal and immediately swelled. All that emerged was as dark as the night between the stars in the sky at night.

The head was narrow with sunken cheeks and sunken portals where the eyes were. The face full of angles. The thing being birthed had high cheekbones. It had ears that were pointed and close set to the side of its head.

With its shoulders free the shadow monster Ygritte was birthing forced its thin spindly arms from the Wildling’s vagina. Fingers first and then forearms. The fingers once free jerked and swirled around. The fingers quickly extended in length. The arms jerked around obscenely. The two arms grew in size but not as much as the head and shoulders that were still growing. The limbs spindly and obscene looking. The things elongated head twisted and turned. Eddard saw that it did have huge black pupil less eyes in its sunken orbits. It had a slit mouth that were lined with black razor sharp teeth. It had no hair with ridges on its forehead and with a long neck.

The arms writhed about wildly but seemed to calm. They had grown obscenely long. The limbs corded with thin muscles that wrapped around the appendages. The fingers on the hands long tipped with wicked looking claws. The arms now turned back in and down and gripped Ygritte’s hips. The monstrosity pushed and wiggled its way forward out of Ygritte’s body. The arms clenching its claws wrapped around Ygritte’s body but did not harm her. Ygritte yelled with each contraction that gripped and shook her body. The spawning creature helping with its own birth.

Ygritte screamed again pushing down as Melisandre hugged Ygritte tight to her body. The monster shadow body lurched out of Ygritte’s body and plopped down onto the ground wetly. Its legs were long but immediately started to grow in length. The limbs writhing. The feet of the thing still half in Ygritte’s birth canal. Black ichor dripping off its body. Blood trickles ran out of Ygritte’s vagina. The blood hissed when it splattered onto the ground. The black pulsing afterbirth spewed onto the ground steaming.

Eddard watched the black monstrosity hiss while the body shuddered with its birth. The midnight black creature rolled from shoulder to shoulder. Its hands clawed into the earth and pulled its body forward enough to fully pull its body out of Ygritte’s vagina. A hot gush of blackish red blood pulsed out of Ygritte’s birth canal. It was silent.

Eddard instinctively wanted to attack the seeming monster that had just been birthed. It had to be a monster meant to harm all. He felt his sword vibrate and jerk his body back. Again this day Eddard was surprised. His sword was telling him that this creation of the ShadowBender witches was no enemy. Eddard suppressed his instinctive dread of what he saw.

For many breaths, the body of the just born monstrosity continued to elongate and now began to fill in its body cavity and limbs. The beast seemed to take a deep breath. It rose unsteadily on its feet. It grew in height immediately with its dark black body roiling and morphing as it grew. Its head grew and elongated more with sharp fangs now jutting out both gums. Its arms and legs grew before their eyes. The hands and feet had long claws jutting out each finger and toe. The claws were doubled edged and obviously razor sharp. It stood erect. The newborn beast seemed to sway on its oddly jointed legs. Its legs were canted back at an inhuman angle.

The beast was now over twenty-eight feet tall. It looked around. As Eddard watched, the beast became steady on its feet. This spawn of the deepest pits of hell flexed it shoulders and worked its arms about testing them out. The monstrosity turned around and gazed at the sea of Walking Dead and the occasional ice blue body of an Ice Wright and Ice Giant.

Eddard saw two hundred yards off to their right a huge knot of Walking Dead and then Ice Wrights and An Ice Giant reach the top of the berm and surge forward. The forces of Westeros had not had time to form up yet in that area. Men were attempting to form up but they were being decimated by the dead and Wrights. Arrows were flying into the enemy but nowhere enough to stop them as more crested the berm. The Walking Dead shambling forward and the Ice Wrights and the Ice Giant moved forward at speed.

Ygritte was spent. Melisandre would not leave her wife and nor would Jon. The others did not have that hold on them. They all started to rush toward the break in their lines. Eddard cursed knowing they would not arrive before mayhem would be done to the troops before this sudden onslaught.

The shadow monster let out a horrible high pitched scream. It ran forward on impossibly spindly legs. In only ten second it had covered the distance to the breach. The others left behind by the rush of the shadow monster. While the creature had run towards the breech Rhaegal had flown by at speed. His injured leg hanging down obviously injured. He let out a mighty bellow of flame out on the plain just in front of the ditch. His flames consuming all before it.

More of the undead were cresting the berm top where Eddard and his countrymen were at. Eddard and those around rushed into this new breech to the lines of Westeros. Eddard, Stannis, Renly and Loras moved in to engage the advancing forces of the Ice King. Their Valyrian steel blades cutting into the undead with devastating effect.

Eddard cut off a dead boar’s head that had tried to gore him and stepped back. Stannis was slicing two dead crows to pieces. His Valyrian blade cutting the magic binding the undead. They fell to the ground and did not move. Eddard glanced at the shadow monster that had just been birthed. It was at the major breech. It was attacking its foes with wild abandon. Its mighty arms swept out around it and simply cut the undead to ribbons. The mutilated dead were still alive judging by their wiggling but they were now just bits and pieces. The monster’s head bent down and swallowed an undead stag into its mouth. The former stag ripped apart in its mouth before spitting out in bloody sprays of viscera and bone fragments.

The shadow demon jumped up high. Its right foot kicked out in swirl. Its talon feet slashed undead to ribbons. It landed its long arms swirling around it shredding undead to ribbons all around it. The undead felt no fear and moved in constantly attacking the monstrosity birthed by Ygritte. The shadow monster did not have to move to engage its enemies. The men who had been attacked were able to fall back now and reform their lines without being savaged.

The undead tried to grasp the Shadow Monster’s body and limbs but their limbs, claws, antlers, mouths only passed through shadows and had no effect on the shadowy creation of the ShadowBender witches. Their attacks literally finding only shadows. Their attacks meaningless. The creation of Ygritte swung its arms around its body cutting undead bodies to ribbons and disemboweling its foes with easy.

The Ice Wrights and Ice Giant turned from attacking men to the shadow demon amongst them. The first Ice Wright came up to the tall shadow demon. Faster than the eye could follow, the twenty-eight foot tall demon whipped out its right arm. Its long fingers and claws closed around the thin body of the Ice Wright its arms pinned to its body. For something so large the Shadow Monster was impossibly fast. The Ice Wright squirmed and screamed but it did not good.

With his mouth open Eddard watched the shadow demon squeeze its fist harder. The Ice Wright’s head ripped back and it screamed in agony. Then its body exploded. The icy spawn’s head shattering along with its body. The shadow demon slammed the ruined body to the ground. It was now surrounded by four Ice Rights and the Ice Giant up close to the Shadow Monster.

The other Ice Wrights and Ice Giant surrounding the shadow monster and slashing wildly at it. The shadow monster arms and legs slashed by the blades. They passed through the shadows. The blades seemed to deflect but wisps of shadow swirled off the arms and legs of the shadow monster. The shadow monster’s mouth opened wide to scream in pain. The sound echoed over the battlefield.

None of the contestants hesitated to attack the other. Eddard engaged more of the Walking Dead slicing them apart. His sword leaving light blue after shadows with each slice and chop of his sword. Loras and Renly were fighting together dispatching the undead they engaged. Stannis roared with his mighty sword chops on the undead that were before him. Loras sliced a mountain goat clear in two and Renly sliced the legs off a large hound coming at him.

The attack of the shadow demon had given the forces of Westeros time to recover where the breech had occurred. Glass Dragon arrows were beginning to fly out towards the Ice creations of the Ice King. The Ice Rights had to spend a lot of their focus dodging arrows. The Ice Giants were not so bright. The one closest to the Shadow Monster had its body now looking like a pin cushion with Dragon Glass arrows jutting out its body. It was wobbling on its feet. In a flash the shadow demon surged forward and gripped the Ice Giant in its Talons and lifted it high over its head with its impossibly long slender black arms and slammed it down on an Ice Wright shattering its body and finishing off the Ice Giant at the same time.

The surviving Ice Rights slashed at the shadow demon. It dodged most of the sword swipes but some landed. It screamed in pain as the blades passed through its body. Black shadows wisped off its body like blood.

The shadow demon stabbed another Ice Wright with its talons. The Ice Wright convulsing on the talons. Blue blood boiled out its mouth and blood poured out its nose, eyes and ears.

The other two Ice Rights and Ice Giant had been feathered with Dragon Glass arrows now and were weakening fast with black tendrils roping their body. The shadow demon spawned by Ygritte quickly stabbed the wounded Ice Rights killing them. The Ice Giant fell back with arrows in each eye. The shadow demon lifted its arms high lifting the limp bodies of the dead Ice Rights and slammed them down to the ground shattering their bodies with limbs flung off ruined bodies. The shadow monster looked around. The immediate threat had been killed in its area.

Eddard and the high lords finished dispatching the Walking Dead before them. Eddard saw in the distance Arya running around killing the Walking Dead with head or throat shots at the promontory. Her arrows with their white fletching of the north jutting out the dead’s bodies. She and other archers rushed to the edge of the berm now and fired their bows down at the undead moving up the berm. Runners rushing up with resupplies of quivers.

The immediate surge had been stemmed. Eddard looked out past the berm. Wave upon wave of the enemy were quickly approaching. The battle had just been joined. He took a deep grim breath. The sea of undead seemed endless.

Daenerys: Daenerys remembered as a little girl standing in the courtyard of the house with the red door and looking up in early spring. There she watched the ospreys that fished the lagoon of Braavos up high in the air. The raptors fighting each other. Later she would learn that it was the mating season and the birds were fighting for mates and territories. The male birds turning towards each other talons raised in defense and attack.

The birds would come at each other from opposing directions fast and furious. At the last moment the birds would throw their bodies over to bring their talons up to oppose each other. The birds clasing and jerking their claws at each other. The birds sometimes missing totally but many times their claws hooked into each and would send the birds spinning off. They would flap their wings gaining attitude and separating and then coming together again for another round of the aerial joust tournament.

A few times the young girl would see feathers bloom when claws raked the body of their opponent. Sometimes their talons would intertwine between the battling birds and their bodies would swing around in wild circles. Their bodies descending as their twined and contorted bodies prevented them effectively using their wings. Finally, the birds breaking apart. Then pumping their wings wildly to regain speed and gain attitude. The birds fighting to gain control of themselves for their next pass at each other.

These fights would continue for long minutes until one bird of the other had had enough and flew off conceding the contest to the other. The battles for dominance and access to resources. The battles only extremely rarely came to one of the bird’s death.

She had wondered as a little girl what it would feel like to be free and fighting so wild and with total abandon. Now she knew. It was terrifying!

Drogon and the Ice Dragon were slashing with their claws and lunging at each other with snapping necks mouths biting and trying to tear great chunks out of the other. Daenerys had hunched down low to keep her body pressed to Drogon’s body tight.

She had read the histories of the Targaryen’s in Westeros. The great areal battles between dragons with their riders upon their backs. She never read of the rider being thrown off the backs of their mounts. She greatly feared she might be the first! Her body was whiplashed right and left as Drogon’s body flexed and surged seeking advantage against his foe.

Their full throated bugles of the two fighting dragon’s deafening. The dragons’ were so close that they could not truly rake their foe with their talons. Their thick mature scales easily deflecting the short kicks of their limbs pressed into each other. Their necks reared back and lunged forward to try and get the other dragon’s neck or head in its mouth to bite and crush the neck vertebra, tendons and arteries.

The dragons had an instinct for survival. The dragons twisted and jerked their bodies at the last moment to avoid the talons and teeth of their foes. Strikes deflected or avoided at the last moment. Several times Daenerys screamed feeling the Ice Dragon’s head shoot over her body as it lunged at her and Drogon. She felt the rush of air over her head. She could smell the Ice dragon’s breath.

Then the dragons broke apart literally pushing each other away with powerful hind legs. The two dragons spinning off away from each other but immediately balancing themselves and righting their bodies beating their wings powerfully, instinctively gaining attitude. The two dragons craning necks to keep each other in sight. Then when some unspoken distance had been achieved they levelled out and dove at shallow angles toward each other yet again.

The black dragon with red streaks and the ice cold blue dragon with white comets in its scales flew fast at each other. Daenerys held on tight when Drogon’s body went perpendicular to the ground so he could slash at the Ice Dragon as it flew by in the opposite dragon its own claws raking and stabbing. The two dragons missed and flew on.

This happened twice more. On the third pass Daenerys childhood memory came back to her in crystal clarity. The two dragons fore claws interlocked as they passed each other. The hooked talons synched in between the other’s claws. The two dragons had their bodies snatched out of their flight path they had been flying and now spun in a dizzying downward spiral. Necks lunging at each other as the other dragon dodged and snapped back with snapping jaws. The world was a vertigo to the Valyrian as she held on tight to Drogon’s scales.

Daenerys’s hands were thrust deep between Drogon’s scales as she pressed herself tight to his body. Still her body was whiplashed to and fore. She gritted her teeth holding on tight. Her world a spinning confusion of first clouds and then the forest and Walking Dead and back to clouds again. Her hands ached with her tight grip of Drogon’s inner scales. The dragons’ bodies jerked wildly with their interlocked claws trying to throw the other off balance to enable it to get a good attack vector.

The two dragon’s bodies juddered and shook as necks slammed into each other. Daenerys felt her eyes go large seeing the Ice Dragon’s mouth descending towards her body. In a flash Drogon’s head slammed in the side of the Ice Dragon’s neck in the middle making it whiplash off to the side its head snapping hard.

With a loud scream of pain the Ice Dragon pushed their bodies away from each other.

Daenerys took a deep breath. That had been close. The two dragons circled each other now evaluating the other for weakness or perceived flaw in their body or attack strategy. Each dragon looking to see if they had inflicted wounds that had compromised their foe.

Unlike the raptor fights Daenerys witnessed in her youth, dragon fights were usually to the death. Their instinctive combat natures demanded it. They would avoid fights in most circumstances but once the choice to fight had been joined it was almost always led to the death of the vanquished dragon. Their human masters goading on this instinct.

The two dragons flew in on each other again on a level keel. This time both dragon’s attacked the other with their breath. Drogon spat out a mighty gout of fire. The Ice Dragon spat out ice daggers. Daenerys smiled smugly. The storm of ice daggers had been a tempest before but now were only a summer rain. The number and thickness had been greatly reduced.

Their breaths mostly cancelling each other the two dragons passed each other bellowing. Some of Drogon’s flame did lick the Ice Dragon but it was too diffuse to do any damage with the limited time of contact. The two dragons snapping at each other in spite as they passed by each other in opposite directions. They circled up and away and again came in on each other in a steep glide path. Again the dragons angled their bodies at the last moment to bring their claws up to face the other’s body. Their legs kicked at each other with their feet meeting as claws worked against each other with loud scraping noises. Now necks slammed into each other and heads reared back to have fanged mouths savagely attack the other.

Twisting necks and back jerking heads had teeth raking harmless against scales. The dragon’s mouth unable to get a tight lock on their opponent’s throats. Drogon tried to use his superior size to overwhelm his opponent but the Ice Dragon was strong in his own right but used his quickness to mainly offset Drogon’s superior strength. Their bodies rolled and swirled in the air before they broke apart again the dragon’s circling away from each other yet again to get separation and height for another pass.
Neither dragon willing to try and spew its breath at each other in this close in combat. A dragon had to concentrate and tightening its muscle to bellow out its flaming or icy breath in this case. This made the neck rigid and unable to defend itself from physical attack. The dragons would only risk the maneuver if it felt it had its foe totally under control. That was not the case now.

The Queen was not able to bring her sword to the fight. She had first to hold on for dear life. Second she was learning that dragons instinctively attacked with claws toward each other and where their thickest scales face each other to resist the rake of their opponent’s claws. This kept her away from the Ice Dragon’s body.

The two dragons if they were tiring did not show it. The two dragons fired by hormones that kept their bodies energized. Both dragons anxious and ready to continue the attack. This attack by both behemoths cancelled out the dragons’ energy achieved in their glide in on each other. They then surged apart and flew off to gain altitude and speed for the next pass.

Daenerys felt the thrill of acceleration as the two dragons surged towards each other. The shock of colliding bodies and the terror of holding on tight. The two dragons buffeting each other with raking claws and lunging jaws. The sound was deafening. The roars by her head felt like thunder exploding in her head. The shock of colliding bodies had her body whiplashing. The sight of large teeth barely missing her body had terror coursing through Daenerys’ veins.

Suddenly, Daenerys saw the Ice Dragon had maneuvered its head to lunge at her with its mouth. It had gotten inside of Drogon’s neck pushing it back with the bend of its own neck. Daenerys saw its mouth coming at her. Again sheer terror filled her but this time she was ready. In one motion she leaned up pulling her rune sword from its scabbard. It fired up immediately in hot fire of licking flames and intense heat. She lunged her body up as the Ice Dragon’s head came down.

Her sword swiped through the air. Her sword swiping across the teeth coming at her fast. Her sword slashed horizontally across the down lunging teeth trying to snap her in two. The Queen of Westeros leaning back as she swiped at the teeth trying to kill her. Her sword slashed through the Ice Dragon’s teeth that reached for her. Three teeth sliced apart two inches from their tips went flying. The Ice Dragon jerked his head back in pain.

The dragon started to breathe its icy breath but Daenerys lunged forward with her sword. The Ice Dragon with three bleeding teeth jerked its head back and juke it to the side. The Ice Dragon had learned that she too had a deadly fang!

The two dragons separated and again circled up to seek advantage before their next pass at each other. Three more times the dragons made passes at each other. The second time their claws again found each other. Fortunately, the Valyrian had sheathed her sword. She hung for her life as her world spun in a wild gyre of twisting and jerking. Her body whiplashed around by the surging and juking dragon bodies. The world again spinning in a wild confusion of out of control spins.

She had not tried to guide Drogon at all during this aerial melee of twisting and surging heavy bodies. She knew her dragon instinctively knew how to fight and survive this fight with its brethren. It had been breed into their very minds how to fight this fight to the death.

Still, Daenerys had seen that the Ice Dragon had slowed in its motion. So had Drogon’s movements slowed. Their reactions a fraction slower. She thought it was time. She told Drogon what she needed. He did not answer keeping his gaze intently on his foe. The Queen knew that her steed would do her bidding when the opportunity afforded itself.

Twice more the dragons made passes at each other. The two dragons slashing claws at each other the sounds of claws scraping along thick scales loud in the air. The two dragons grappled with each other trying to gain advantage as they passed each other. Their bodies jolted hard with their claws partially interlocking. The resulting whiplash jerked bodies hard. The grips not tight had their bodies jerk apart. The two dragons flew on past each other again doing no true damage. Any wounds so far had been only slight.

The third pass the two dragons fore claws found each other and locked tight. Each dragon lunged their bodies into each other to both allow them to kick with their hind legs but also to protect their own bodies from full powerful kicks that could cut through their scales and the muscle underneath.

The two dragons roared and lunged at each other with their twisting necks and lunging heads. Heads snapping forward and back. Their wings beating furiously too keep themselves aloft. Their bodies instinctively rolling trying to get their enemy at disadvantage. Teeth trying to grip ahold of the foes neck or head to rip off scales and rend flesh. The two dragons snorting and screaming in rage, anger and lust for the other’s death.

Daenerys again held on tight. Then Drogon snapped his head forward and lunged his neck around the Ice Dragon’s neck. Drogon mouth scrabbled and was able to get a bite on the Ice Dragon’s horns. The bite did no true damage. The Ice Dragon jerked his head wildly trying to free his head.

Daenerys body got its balance as the two dragon’s wiggled and bucked against each other. Her moment had come. Daenerys released her grip on Drogon’s scales and hurled her body upon the side of the Ice Dragon. For a brief moment the Valyrian’s body in the air between the dragons. The wiggling Ice Dragons body came close and the Queen kicked her feet against Drogon’s body. This allowed the Queen to get her balance and grip on the Ice Dragon’s ice cold scales. The cold would have burned with cold her hands but her hot blooded nature counteracted the cold. To some degree. The Ice Dragon’s scales were bitterly cold but the Queen could endure the pain.

She quickly scaled up the Ice Dragon’s scales on its neck. She held on tight jamming her hands into the small crevices of its scales. She looped her legs around the sinewy neck of her foe and clenched and pushed up the neck of the Ice Dragon as she crawled forward. Daenerys grunted as she climbed up from the base of the Ice Dragon’s neck. Drogon with his neck wrapped around the Ice Dragon’s neck prevented it from whiplashing its neck. It could not throw her off. Daenerys clung tight to the cold neck of her enemy with her arms and legs.

Daenerys used both twined necks to find purchase and get a grip and used her feet to push off the pulsing necks of both dragons. The pale white haired woman moved up the necks. She only used Drogon’s neck for purchase to work up. She kept her hands gripping tight the neck of the Ice Dragon as she shoved her hands between scales and gripped the edges of the cold scales to move up several more feet. The Queen worming over Drogon’s neck when it twisted across her path.

Still, the Ice Dragon was able to give a mighty convulsion that unsettled Daenerys. She yelled grabbing ahold tight to the scales between her fingers. She got her balance centered again. She grit her teeth and resumed her climb up the neck of the Ice Dragon in earnest. She was able to move faster now. As she climbed the neck of the Ice Dragon it narrowed as she approached its head. Her face in a rictus of concentration and striving. She was not sure how much longer Drogon could keep his hold on the Ice Dragon and restrain its movements.

With quick motions the Queen crawled up the rest of the way up the neck of the Ice Dragon. It sensed Daenerys on his neck. He writhed and tried to get free of Drogon’s grip on his horns but was unsuccessful. The Queen was soon at the juncture of the Ice Dragon’s neck and head. She continued climbing moving over Drogon’s hot mouth and teeth. His heat felt good after the searing cold of the Ice Dragon.

She wasted no time moving the top half of her body over the head of Drogon. With both hands she reached back and pulled off two of the Valyrian daggers she kept strapped to her thighs. The Ice Dragon jerked its head wildly but Drogon refused to let go.

The Queen raised her hands high and stabbed down. Her two daggers flashed down. A dagger in each hand Daenerys stabbed the ancient blades down. The Valyrian steel penetrated he eyes of the Ice Dragon to the hilt. The blades did not stop till Daenerys fist jammed into the eye sockets of the Ice Dragon with violent force. The blades penetrating the brain of the Ice Dragon sinking in deep. Its eyes ruined.

The body of the Ice Dragon went limp. It was dead. The beast’s wings went limp and no longer beat. The entwined bodies of the two dragons staggered in the air and now plummeted to the Earth. Drogon could not support both of their weight. Nor could it untangle their bodies. Their claws still clasped together. The Ice Dragon rigid in death had a death grip on Drogon’s claws. Their twined necks tightly bond.

The bodies of the two dragons plummeted down into the Haunted Forest. Mighty tree tops had their trunks snapped off as the dragon bodies passed through them to slam into the next tree. Their massive bodies shattering and exploding trees with their passing. Echoes of the mighty collision of bodies boomed into the air.

A mighty cloud of birds erupted from the canopy of trees around the impact sight. Birds shooting off in every direction from the sudden comet that had plummeted down in their midst. The birds screaming in alarm at the sudden intrusion. It looked like a volcano had erupted with the limbs, branches and needles suddenly thrown up into the air in all direction.

The smell of sap and crushed needles suddenly thick in the air like after a tornado had torn through a stand of coniferous trees. The detritus from the ruined trees quickly settled back into the canopy around the impact sight of the large bodies. The birds more slowly recovered from the shock and returned to the limbs of the undamaged trees to the side of the impact zone. Their squawks of alarm quickly quieting.

Then there was only relative silence.

Red Tailed Hawk: The red tailed hawk sat on a high branch in a towering fir. It ran its beak through the barbs of its vane. The raptor working to get his flight feathers back in perfect order. Again and again the raptor ran its beak along the rachis of each of its main flight feathers to get them properly aligned. It looked around and then went back to grooming. The hawk also preened to remove dust, dirt, and parasites from its feathers.

It had alight in the trees after its initial assault upon the enemies of the Earth. It had tired and flew up into the trees. The trees now filled with the chirping and warbling of countless species of birds. His cousins still excited in their attack on the strange walking dead below. The branches heavy with the various species of two continents lodged in the forest’s canopy.

He sensed the unnatural order of the walking things below. They were dead and yet had life. It did not think more on it. He had regained some strength preening its feathers. He had taken off and went back towards the Earth. He had looked around as he descended. More birds were constantly falling in a slow drizzle. Late arrivals. The birds arriving and diving down to attack anything they found. Other refreshed birds deciding to attack just a little more like himself.

More and more of the unnatural dead streamed out of the massive forest before this tall Wall of fallen ice. The initial dead they had attacked had been carried away the red tailed hawk saw. Some strange yellow fluid was carrying the undead forward. No matter. It had plenty of new undead to attack as they shambled out of the forest and onto the yellow carpet.
He flew down and alight on the shoulder of a walking man that had rotted greatly. He tore at its neck with his beak and claw. Soon the neck was half removed. The rotten flesh easy to tear asunder. The head hung over on the opposite shoulder. It tore at the shoulder repeatedly till the arm was barely hanging on. He flew up and back. He saw a large dead wolverine moving forward.

It had two buzzards tearing at its limbs. He joined them and helped them rip the things limbs off. It was soon only a body with no limbs. It writhed as did the limbs. Still it was less than it had been.

He was tired again. He flapped his wings and ascended to the heights of the canopy of the forest near him. He alit on the tallest limbs of a mighty fir. He again went to work on his feathers aligning them. It soothed him.

Without warning the red tailed hawk’s world exploded. Only twenty yards in front of him something massive had come hurtling out of the sky without warning. Its approach silent. His world filled with mighty crashes with shattered remains of limbs and needles pelting his body.

The red tailed hawk shook its head. It seemed uninjured and propelled himself into the sky. He noticed all around him roosting birds were joining him in taking to the air. Their screams of fright joining his in the air as he flapped his wings fast and furious. He looked all around and up but saw nothing else in the sky.

He gained more attitude. He looked down again. He saw that whatever had hurtled out of the sky had come in at an angle. The large body topping the immediate trees before where the red tailed hawk had roosted. The large thing had slammed into the next trees lower down and then further down as it hurtled to the ground. By happenstance the large body had blasted its way through trees to fall into a partial glade caused by two ancient trees falling down and knocking down other trees from a recent mighty wind storm.

The red tail hawk looked down into the partially obscure glade with his long sight. He saw two immense bodies close together. One black with red highlights and the other light blue with even lighter blue streaks on its body. Neither moved. He circled around but the bodies on the ground did not move and no more fell from the sky.

He cautiously lite back down on the canopy top near the gash in the treetops caused by the falling large bodies. He was slowly joined by his cousins back in the trees. All wondered what had just happened.
Arya: Arya ran up and down the berm. Her swords and quivers on her back slapping with her rapid motions. She would stop and pull her bow up. The arrow already notched. She used torque to keep the arrow in place. The arrow merely waiting to be used. A target spotted Arya would stop her slow run and plant her feet. She pulled her bow up and pulled the string back taunt. She took a deep breath and steadied herself. She released her breath as she waited for that moment between heartbeats to fire her arrow off at her next target.

Her arrow invariably finding its target. The arrow burying itself into the eye or throat of her enemies. The arrow sinking deep into her target’s flesh. The Dragon Glass tipped weapon immediately killing the target. Sometimes her aim was slightly off and the arrow would slam into the skull of the enemy. The arrow not sinking in deep. The shot often killed immediately but sometimes it took a small amount of time for the poison to kill her target.

The first rush of the enemy had been beaten back. There had been losses and more were occurring. Seeing any of the forces of Westeros killed filled Arya with anger. Several miles down the berm at the edge of their camp the Walking Dead with some Ice Wrights and Giants mixed in were assaulting those forces. Here in the middle and to the other end of the camp with additional support the lines were holding.

The Waynhim had totally stopped the forces of the Ice King before them. They had established their island that rotated its apex to face each threat as they approached the fighting wedge of the Waynhim. The Loremaster firing off long ribbons of dark black acid. The acid instantly ate the undead into nothing. Their bodies simply melting down to slag. Any Ice Wright or Ice Giant that tried to assault the wedge now that it was set got splashed with the Loremaster’s acid.

The Icy spawn of the Ice King had no defense for the acid of the Demondim spawn either. The acid landed on them and began to immediately attack their bodies. Their bodies blistered with their icy flesh burbling and popping as the blisters exploded. The acid quickly eating deeper into their bodies. The bodies soon falling apart with their bluish blood exploding out the orifices of the Ice Wrights and Giants.

Arya saw the small creatures pressed tight together in their fighting wedge. The Loremaster projected their power up to thirty yards in front of the apex of the wedge. The Loremaster worked his stave to make it jerk right and left with up and down motions to disperse his acid. Other Waynhim on the edge of the fighting wedge facing the undead used their iron and bone staves to slash and hack apart any Walking Dead that came up upon them. The small creatures on the interior of the wedge pressed into the backs of their outer brothers. This somehow allowed the Waynhim to pass on their strength to the Waynhim on the edges of their fighting wedge.

The effect of the Waynhim acid was devastating. Arya was thrilled to see the effects of the Waynhim acid on her foes. The icy creations of the Ice King were as vulnerable to the acid as the risen up undead. The acid would splash over the Wright or Giant. Their bodies immediately pitted and bubbling into mist. The acid eating deep till the Icy creations were screaming and falling apart.

A few avoided the acid baths but were engaged by the Waynhim on the edge. The Ice Rights wildly attacking the edge of the fighting wedge with their slashing ice forged swords. The Demondim spawn iron and bone staves blocking the ice forged blades. The weapons a standoff. The multiple blades of the wedge proved superior. The Waynhim would find an opening in the Ice Rights defense.
A stave would stab into the chest of the Ice Wright or hack the edge of their stave deep into the Icy bodies of the Ice King spawn. The blows devastating. Often the Ice Wright dropped dead instantly. The others rocked back to die a little slower. Acid consuming them or flames erupting out the orifices of their heads. An Ice Giant had gotten to the Wedge but the crossed staves of the Waynhim impossibly blocked the mighty blade of the Ice Giant. The strength of the smallish creatures indeed great. The edge Waynhim chopped and stabbed the legs of the Ice Giant till they shattered and it fell back with one leg missing and the other shattered. The Waynhim hacked it to ribbons on the ground.

Barristan was shouting still gathering archers on the left and right rear edge of the fighting wedge. Archers streaming forward to join the fray. He, Strong Belwas and Syrio were on the right flank. Marleya Blackmyre running around shouting at the archers to stay close to the strange creatures. This was to both provide fire to provide support for the Waynhim but to also use them as protection against their common foe.

With Arya of course was Jerteel. She did not stay too close to Arya. She knew she was relatively safe behind and on the rear flanks of the Waynhim fighting wedge. The Haruchai moved out to attack with her purloined Ice Wright sword the undead attempting to move in on the Waynhim and Arya. Her blade work impossible to track. Her slashes devastating to the bodies of the undead.

Arya made a snap shot her arrow hitting a half rotted mammoth that was jerking up to the pile of dead that slopped before the berm now. This allowed the dead to shamble up the gentle slope. The huge body was hit again and again by arrows. It stumbled to its knees. More arrows hit the rotting body. The mammoth fell over to its side. Black lines all over it and its rotted flesh flowed off its bones. Arrows still striking the body.

Arya smiled. Thanks to her mate and her father they had all the Dragon Glass tipped weapons they would need to win this war. The archers of Westeros were firing off arrows without regard. They had no fear they would run out. Runners now, some with wheelbarrows filled with quivers, were flowing up to the berm now, bringing more precious arrows. The archers discarding empty quivers and putting on fresh ones filled with arrows to continue firing.

Arya looked up. She had been doing this continuously to hopefully catch glimpses of her lover, Daenerys Targaryen, as she fought against the Ice Dragon. She saw the two dragon far off swirling through the air. She gnawed her lip. They had been playing cat and mouse for a while now. The Wall having fallen lowered the line of sight by nearly five hundred feet. She could see much further to the north now. Arya knew that she had no place in that fight. If she had gone with Dany her mate would have had to worry about her and not concentrate on the fight with the cruel perversion in the sky.

To know a dragon had been perverted like that most have wounded Dany deeply. She would kill this monstrosity birthed by the Ice King. She glanced up again and they had disappeared once more into the dark roiling rolling clouds that scudded across the sky.

She turned her head back down. Her fight was here. She knew Dany would win her fight. She had too!

As she watched the Lord of Revelstone and the Haruchai that had not ridden off to fight the traitors were charging to the north of the camp. The Giants and Ramen were rushing along behind them. The forces of Westeros were slowing the march forward of the Walking Dead and the Ice Wrights and Giants out on the plains. But the leading edge of the enemies’ advance had gotten into the forces of Westeros before they had been able to form up before the forces clashed.

The lines of phalanxes and legions were fighting desperately. The dead surging forward always. Their sword and battleaxes gave grievous injuries but the dead continued to move forward always reaching for the living. When they grabbed them they tore them apart.

The dragons were out of the fight now; exhausted. They had used all their fuel to belch out fire. The dragons had exhausted themselves fighting the enemies of their mother. They had swooped to the rear of the camp. There was a large paddock that had several pens built into it. The pen to the back end had a small group of large bulls in it. The bulls had not even seen it coming. Viserion fell on the bull at the rear of the pin. Its mouth biting the bull nearly in half. Rhaegal came swooping using the last of his flame to roast the bull he had selected.

The bull screamed in pain that was cutoff when Rhaegal gingerly landed to protect its wounded rear leg and bit the head off the bull. He chewed it cracking the skull open and chewed it a minute before swallowing the high protein brain. The two dragons ate ravenously. They quickly consumed the two bulls they had selected. Their heads came up and spotted two more bulls screaming in terror. The two dragons launched themselves in the air and fell on the two bulls they had selected.

The two bulls were brought down immediately, killed and consumed.

The two dragons then flew off behind the camp and landed again and settled down beside each other sharing their body heat. They fell asleep on the spot. Their bodies recovering from their huge expenditure of energy and fire.

Arya looked out past the berm. The blizzards of Dragon Glass and fire arrows were culling out huge numbers of the enemy. The catapults and trebuchets were firing off regularly their projects crushing and setting afire the Dead. The trebuchets were firing off huge pouches filled with the shards and broken pieces of obsidian that had flaked off when making the weapons being used to kill their enemies. The whirling shards of Dragon Glass cutting the dead and occasional Ice Wrights or Giants. The shards on the ground cutting into the feet of the unheeding Walking Dead. The poison slowly spreading up the Walking Dead’s legs. It was hundreds of yards for the undead to reach the berm under the withering fire from the forces of Westeros.

The field was still covered with the yellow liquid but it no longer rippled. It seemed it had been used to get the forces of the Ice King to the berm. Now that the forces of the Ice King were at the berm the waves were no longer needed for rapid transport. Also, this magic must be draining Arya thought. Another thought hit her. She wondered if the Ice King sensed that moving his forces forward in a rush was moving them into a killing zone.

Arya hoped that the Ice King had been caught unawares that the forces of the Queen of Westeros and the Crows of the Wall had huge stockpiles of obsidian arrows. That huge stocks of tar pitch tipped arrows were ready to be fired at the forces of the Ice King as well.

The arrows and projectiles thinned out the forces of the Ice King. It was clear to Arya that the Ice King had not planned on the forces of Westeros having such a stockpile of Dragon Glass. The weapons tipped with the Dragon Glass was decimating his forces. The flaming projectiles hurled by the siege engines were lighting up the Walking Dead. Their stumbling bodies burning brightly. The magical flames could never be doused by any amount of rain.

She saw a dead badger climbing over the dead and surged forward as fast as it dead legs could carry it forward. Arya feathered its eye and it dropped dead. She then shot off at distance and put another into a dead wildling that was staggering with two Dragon Glass arrows buried in it. The Wildling woman feel to her palms and knees. Then a fire arrow hit her body and she stayed on all fours and burned furiously till she collapsed down onto the ground and burned brightly.

Arya moved back towards Melisandre and Ygritte with the initial surge of the enemy stemmed. The fiery little redhead was still weak. Melisandre held her worn out wife gently. Jon stood beside them looking around. The battle was in a lull and he did not need to move off at the moment. Jon had brought over several thick furs that he and Melisandre wrapped around their diminutive wife. She shivered and leaned back into Melisandre snuggling down to conserve and hopefully regain her strength.

The shadow monster that Ygritte had created from her body had seemed to fold in on itself. The monster had returned from the breech it had filled. It had sat down on its butt and then pulled its long spindly legs tight to the front of its body. The head pressed into its legs on a cheek and it looped it arms around its long legs and its body. The now twenty-five foot tall shadow monster compressed into a ten foot tall rolled up ball.

It was waiting and conserving its strength for battle. Arya saw that the shadow monster did not breathe.

Arya relaxed partially. This area on the berm had settled for the moment. She knew that other areas of her Queen’s line was being severely tested. She could not run to them and be of aid. She would be exhausted in the effort. She needed to guard where she was at and hope that the hard pressed forces could rally.

“Melenkurion abatha, Duroc minas mil. Harad khabaal!” echoed across the landscape. The world seem to turn bright blue for a few heartbeats. The color of blue washed out all other colors. Arya along with everyone else of Westeros had become used to these sudden bursts of startling blue dominating the world for a brief moment. The Lord of Revelstone producing them continuously in ebbs and flows since the start of the conflict. Then the mighty boom of unimaginable force rolled over Arya and echoed off the fallen Wall. The ground shook violently as if in the grip of a Titan freed from the foundation of the Earth.

The Lord of Revelstone had joined the fight again. Another bright blue surge of magic exploded into the air. It was not as mighty as the one just before it. It was clear that the language of the Old Lords greatly amplified the might of the Lord. The words must be taxing to use Arya thought or Lustra would say them all the time.

The Lord spoke the first two words of power. Arya watched a pillar of bright blue Lord’s Fire blast out of the end of the Lord’s staff. The Lord’s body pulsed with blue as she sent her power down into her shaft to spit out the iron shod end. The fire erupting from the end of her staff surged forward for more than two hundred yards. The fire enhanced by the magical words. The bright dark blue swirling magical fire looked like a battering ram swinging into the forces of the Ice King.

All before that column of fire that was at least ten yards wide were simply obliterated. They were there before the Lord’s Fire reached them. The moment before her fire reached them they existed. The instant her fire reached them they ceased to exist. The forces of the Ice King now had a huge hole in their forces. The Haruchai on their Ranyhyn surged in. They all now were holding fallen swords of fallen Ice Wrights. Their arms swirling right and left cutting down the dead.

The Haruchai and Ranyhyn not diving into the undead. Haruchai and Ranyhyn working the edges of the gap created by the Lord’s fire to chop down more of the undead. They used the free space to kill scores of the undead on all sides of the newly formed gap.

The Giants came rushing in their mighty glaives cutting the undead in half and chopping limbs off with effortless easy it seemed. The tall pillars that were the Giants of the Southern Continent whirled their blades around them in a large arcs. The undead cut and diced by their mighty blades. Like Valyrian steel their blades were magical. When their blades cut into the undead the magic was unbound that animated them. The Walking Dead fell down. The strings of their unnatural second life cut. They did not move.
The Ramen were there to keep the dead away from the Ranyhyn with their whirring cords. The Ramen kept back and used their cords to deflect the undead with the powerful strikes of their cords. The Ramen did not have magic but only their human skills. They had to stay back from the magical forces they fought against. They helped the Ranyhyn. The Ramen suppressed the undead to allow the Ranyhyn to kick and block down the undead. They too had to be very careful to not allow the undead to grasp them. The mighty horses slowing the undead to be killed by the magic of their allies.

The Lord fired off her staff repeatedly decimating the Walking Dead. Her staff erupted again and again with her Lord’s Fire that slammed into the Walking Dead obliterating them. Where everyone had to kill the undead one by one the Lord of Revelstone was able to kill her enemy by the scores with each eruption of her staff. Her Lord’s Fire punching large holes into the advancing undead. The mighty killing blasts gave the forces of Westeros a reprieve to rearm and took the pressure off the archers if only for a moment.

The undead kept advancing. The dead felt no fear. They only felt the compulsion to move forward and attack the foes of their creator, the Ice King. This unremitting movement forward was slowly closing the large hole the Lord of Revelstone had blown into their frontline of advance.

Lustra, fortunately, did not seem to tire quickly. The Lore that fired her staff seemed to sustain her. She was sweating heavily Arya saw but she her back was unbowed. Her fire did not lessen as the battle continued. She rode forward into the breech she had made in the undead. Once more she shouted out all seven words of power. “Melenkurion abatha, Duroc minas mil, Harad khabaal!” Her body and staff turned blue. The world exploded in blue light and booming sound that seemed to rock the foundations of the Earth. The fire that erupted from her staff was like the sun come down to earth. The world turned blue for several heartbeats and mighty thunder rolled off to the horizons.

Her staff bucked in Lord Lustra’s hands. The mighty column of blue Lord’s Fire that blasted out the end of her staff was like a mighty tsunami. The blue wave mighty and broad. It crashed into the undead and annihilated all the undead in front of her in a mighty swath that was nearly fifty yards wide and one hundred fifty yards deep.

Arya’s eyes nearly popped out her head at that massive display of power. Lustra fell back. This mighty blast seemed to tax even her. The Icy spawn had held back seeing the Lord of Revelstone attack. They had learned to fear her greatly when she expended her Lord’s fire. With her retreating they surged forward.

The Ice Wrights and Giants moved in to engage the forces of the Land. Arya had noticed the Ice creations of the Ice King had changed their tactics as the battle evolved. At first they had surged forward with the undead. They had caused death and mayhem on the forces they fell upon. Then the storm of dragon glass arrows had increased. The air at times becoming thick with arrows.

The Ice Wrights especially were mercurial quick. The Ice Giants were quick for their size but could not avoid so many arrows in air at once. The Ice Wrights were able to dodge many of the arrows with a speed no human could match. The Ice Wrights especially used their swords with quick flicks to cut and block the dragon glass arrows out of the end. There were iron tipped arrows also flying in. Those arrows had no effect on them. The iron tipped weapons even inscribed with magical runes exploded hitting their icy bodies. The magic not tuned to their icy bodies.

In the end it did not matter. When the Icy sons of the Ice King were upon the forces of Westeros the numbers of arrows became untenable for them. The arrows coming in screaming flights and from various angles. No matter how many arrows the Ice Wrights dodged or cut down more came in to feather them. Though the dragon glass tipped arrows were fragile they easily penetrated and sank deep into their bodies to kill outright or to begin the poisoning of their bodies.

Thus, after the initial surge the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants had begun to hang back. They let the undead continue to come forward. Their hope clear. Let the Walking Dead absorb the dragon glass tipped weapons of their enemies. Fortunately, the forces of Westeros had an unending supply of dragon glass tipped weapons.

The Ice Wrights were shepherding the Ice Giants keeping them roughly three hundred yards and greater from the berm. That kept them out of range of all but the most skilled longbow men. Arya would glance out at them. Arya wondered when they would come to the conclusion that their enemy had an unlimited supply of dragon glass.

The last mighty blast and then retreat of the Lord of Revelstone seemed to goad many of the Ice Wrights to again join the battle. They and the Ice Giants came forward. Now the Ice Wrights came forward bent low using the undead as cover. The Icy spawn juiking right and left fast and furious. The Ice Giants were fast but not as fast. They used their blades gripped sideways before them and were able to block most of the arrows that reached out towards them while still at distance.

A large group of the Ice Giants got behind several mammoths that happened to be shambling forward. The mammoths thick coats of long hair absorbed many of the dragon glass arrow strikes preventing the obsidian from poisoning them deeply. A blizzard of arrows were soon flying out at the mammoths. With that many arrows striking them soft spots were found and the poisoning began.

Two hundred yards down the berm Arya saw the undead with Ice Wrights and a few Ice Giants had bulled their way up onto the top the berm and attempting to bull their way forward into the forces arrayed before them. The archers were firing wildly at the approaching undead and the Icy creations of the Ice King.

Knights and pikemen engaged the advancing tide of the enemy. Their weapons embedded into the Walking Dead and had no effect. The pikemen had to jerk their weapons hard trying to dislodge them. The knights slashed their swords. The undead chopped and impaled but still coming forward. The Swords of the Ice Wrights shattering the swords of the knights and foot soldiers that rushed up.

This close the archers had a hard time firing at the Ice Wrights who juked and ducked down low to use the men of Westeros as shields. Their unnatural cold swords quickly shattering the weapons striking their blades.

Lord Lustra shouted out and her mount Frinny shot off down the berm galloping fast to the gap on the berm that was threatening to widen precipitously at any moment. Brail close behind. Ice held in her right hand. The Lord and her Haruchai closed the distance quickly.

When she neared the incursion, the Lord shouted out “Melenkurion abatha!” in a loud shout as she approached the inflection point of the enemies’ incursion on the berm. Her voice impossibly loud powered by the magical words. Her body pulsed a dark blue as did her staff. Mighty Lord’s Fire erupted out the end of her staff. Her column of magical fire blasted into the undead. They were simply obliterated.

She closed in on the remaining undead and Icy spawn. Brail was right behind her and peeled off to the left. Ice swirled down on an Ice Wright. Their blades collided. The great broadsword chopped the Ice Wright’s sword clean in two. The Ice Wright was surprised its eyes large. Brail had reversed her stroke and Ice cleaved the Ice Wright’s head from its shoulders. Great gouts of blood fountaining into the air.
Lustra was now using her staff in close in combat against the Ice spawn. Her staff seemed to buck in her two handed grip that sent out hot bolts of blue fire that shattered Ice Wrights and Giants with ease. Each pulse short and controlled. The short blast of blue writhing magical fire shattering Ice Wrights or sent the Wright diving right or left frantically to live.

Arya could no longer follow the battle that Lustra was pitching down the berm. She ran back to the berm in front of her to the side of the promontory. The Ice Wrights and then Ice Giants were again at the berm and coming up to attack the forces of Westeros. By using the undead as shields the Icy enemy had reached them with relatively small losses.

The Giants and Haruchai engaged the icy creations. The Haruchai jumped off their Ranyhyn to engage the Ice Wrights. The mighty horses understood that against the Ice Wrights and Giants they were at a decided disadvantage. The forces colliding like mighty rolling waves crashing into a bluff cliff face.

The forces of the Ice King and of the Land fought each other to an initial standstill. The swords of each force able to withstand the initial strikes of the other’s weapons. With the Haruchai using fallen Ice Wright’s swords against their brethren. The Haruchai bred for the high mountain passes of the Western Mountains were immune to the cold generated by the swords of the Ice Wrights. Both foes wiry of build and fast.

The Giants of the Southern hemisphere were fast but not lightning fast like their Haruchai allies. They used their immense size and strength to try and dominate their foes. The Giants were so strong that their glaives actually shattered the swords of the Ice Giants if hit dead on. The Ice Giants were not stupid and were learning to deflect the blows of the Giants of the Southern hemisphere. The two groups of titans circling each other.

The two opposing forces impossibly fast compared to normal human reflexes. The Haruchai were obviously more skilled than all their foes. The Haruchai impossibly skilled using weapons they had not used before. Arya thought it had to be some inbred magic allowing the Haruchai to accomplish this seeming impossible feat.

The Haruchai slowly pushed the Ice Wrights back and felled them one by one when an opening in their defense was found. The Haruchai and Giants aided by the arrows constantly being shot off at the Ice Wrights and Giants. The Ice Wrights were short enough to blend in somewhat with the foes they were fighting. This prevented as many good shots at them. Still arrows found them eventually. The Ice Giants being so tall were like lightning rods attracting the fire of the archers.

Arya herself was focusing more on the next wave of undead advancing on the berm. She knew the Haruchai and Giants could take care of themselves. She was firing arrows off fast and furious. She had long ago shot out her supply of white eagle feathered arrows. She saw arms and hands clawing up the face of the berm. Dismembered bodies tried to crawl up the berm.

She began to shoot this human detritus coming slowly closer. The dismembered bodies could sneak up on the forces of Westeros unawares. She feathered them with dragon glass. The small mass of these limbs and dismembered bodies died almost instantly when feathered. She shoot right and left. Other archers had noticed her targets and joined in while still shooting at the more traditional undead. Arya did as well with the initial quell of limbs taken care of and already rotting away in their second death.

The forces of Westeros had recovered in this area and now several lines of archers had formed up. They were firing off repeated volleys of Dragon Glass and fire arrows at the close in enemy. Their arrows not arching up but flying in straight lines at the close in targets. The dead falling dead with kill shots or obsidian poisoning or lighting up like bonfires. The Ice Wrights and Ice Giants were engaged with the forces of the Land and were not able to defend themselves from that assault.

The spawn of the Ice King in front of Arya were overwhelmed with the blizzard of arrows and some scorpion bolts that came screaming in. When a scorpion bolt found an Icy spawn the being was hurled back impaled. The massive dragon glass tipped weapon simply killing whatever they struck.

The icy sons of the Ice King feathered again and again with Dragon glass tipped arrows and javelins. Their bodies weakened and quickly dispatched by the Giants and Haruchai fighting them. Further away Arya saw that the Lord had moved to a new breech and blasted her way to the edge of the berm and was firing her staff off down the slope of the berm and into the trough and beyond. Her Lord’s fire incinerating and blowing apart the bodies of her enemies. Brail chopping down all that dared come near.

Arya could not believe the might of the woman of the Land. She heard from the Lord that in ancient times past the Lords often fought the Ur-viles and their wedges before the Ur-viles turned to the side of good. The battles epic and often in doubt. What really amazed Arya was that there was currently thirty-three other such lords in this Revelstone of the Lustra’s homeland. And the strongest Lord had a staff she called the Staff of Law that dwarfed the power of her staff.

Such a force would be unstoppable in Westeros or Essos. Even Dragons could not stand against that might. The ability to project so much magical might so far was impossible to fight. From what Missandei told Arya there was once such magic in their world but it had been lost. Not in the Land Arya mused.

She looked up again and gasped. Drogon and the Ice Dragon were high up in the sky now. The fallen Wall let Arya to see high up in the sky now back towards to the Haunted Forest. They had stopped circling and were now rushing each other slashing with claws and trying to bite each other as their bodies passed by each other. One dragon lunging forward to bite and claw and the other dragon twisting neck to avoid the bites and the dragon’s angling their bodies to project their thick belly and side armored scales to each other to send the claws of the other dragon scraping along thick scales.

On some of their passes by each other the two dragons roared out their breaths of fire and ice. The dragons’ breath either cancelled out when they collided or avoided. Other times they missed the wildly gyrating bodies of their foes. Some parts of their breaths found each other but was too limited to do any true damage.

Arya watched as the two dragons again passed each other flying on to soar up and then back around to again come at each other. The savagery of the attacks were shocking to see. She had read histories of such battles. Seeing them now in person made Arya realize she had not given the duels in the air for dominance full credit. She now feared greatly for Dany’s safety. The power of the two dragons attacking each other was shocking to witness.

Her attention was pulled back down to Earth. Another group of undead and Ice creatures had made it through the killing field before the berm. Their foes moving between volleys of projectiles raining down on them.

She and the archers on the lip of the berm took them under fire. Their arrows whistling down impacting the slow moving Walking Dead. The slow moving dead were easy to hit. The Dragon Glass quickly doing its work. Those shots not to head or heart that killed instantly. Shots to other part of the undead bodies set to work poisoning the body of the undead. Black tendrils quickly spreading to poison the body of the undead.

More and more arrows impacting the bodies of the Walking Dead killing them as the poison unbound the magic of the Ice King. Soon this group of shambling dead had fallen into a permanent second death.

Arya looked up again to see how Dany was doing. She screamed a long heart rending wail. From the sky plummeted the two now twined dragons out of sight towards the Haunted Forest. It was clear they would not be pulling up from the fall.

*In her shock she did not see the Ice Giant that had climbed up the berm. He had arrows sticking out his body but the dragon glass poison was only now starting to affect it. It raised its sword to cut Arya in two. She was not moving. Her face shattered by what she had just witnessed.

A volley of scorpion bolts shot off from behind Arya. The massive wooden shafts tipped by large spear tips of dragon glass. Three of the massive bolts hit the Ice Giant in the chest and stomach. The Ice Giant staggered back and collapsed back down the berm. It screamed in agony with blue blood beginning to gout out its screaming mouth.

Two Ice Wrights came up the berm and rushed Arya. She did not notice them. She was in total shock.

Jeertel jumped before Arya. Her picked up Ice Wright blade blocked the sword strikes of the Ice Wrights. The Haruchai’s raw power sent the Ice Wrights staggering back. The Haruchai kicking out with her feet. The strikes stunning the Ice Wrights. She gutted one when her kick stunned it. Her blade disemboweling the Ice Wright. She whirled around in a tight arc to meet the attack of the second Ice Wright. Back and forth they traded blows till her blade chopped off its right arm at the elbow. The Ice Wright began to scream but was cut off by Jeertel’s blade ramming through its mouth and exploding out the back of it skull.

Jeertel gripped Arya by the arm and pulled her back to safety.

Arya heard and felt none of it. She saw only the path that Drogon had taken falling out of the sky.

Ice King: Slowly the Ice King came back to himself. He had completely drained himself both blowing the Horn of Winter and feeding his Croyel his blood so his son could guide and lead his father to successfully bring the Wall down. The Ice King felt a new stronger bond of love for the Croyel. In his time of need his true son had given himself completely to his father. He reached back and petted the top of the callow yellow head pressed to his neck. The Croyel cooed in happiness. He too felt much closer to his father now.

The Ice King had given his all to the Horn of Winter. It had been so hard. The horn had not fought or resisted him but the Horn of Winter had not wanted to bend itself to his will. If it had not been for the Croyel on his back and his fangs in his neck he would not have succeeded. The Croyel had drank heavily from his father to empower him in leading his father. The Croyel’s strength to lent to his father to allow him to successfully use the Horn of Winter.

The Croyel had guided and empowered his adopted father. The Croyel whispering to his mind that the Insequent who had made the Horn of Winter had of course tuned it for his people. The use of the horn was not natural to the Ice King or the Croyel. Its magic was foreign to them. Still it was an implement meant to be used. It had not had wards placed on it to prevent its use. The Insequent had never considered another would ever dare to use their weapon or have the strength to actually bend the Horn of Winter to their will.

It had not fought the one trying to use it. It merely did not know how to respond to a user who did not know the magic of the Insequent or their language. It was foreign to all who were not of that queer people. Each Insequent seeking knowledge unique to that Insequent.
The Insequent were not immortal. The man or woman who had fashioned this horn had long ago passed away. He or she created the Horn of Winter to be used. Each Insequent’s knowledge was unique to themselves alone. The wizards did not share their knowledge, in fact jealously guarding the secrets they had learned. Their knowledge held close.

All who tried would have had trouble using their implements. The advantage that an Insequent would have in trying to use the Horn of Winter would be the basic knowledge of the horn’s magic and use. They would know the consonants and vowels of the magic necessary to use it. Its use while hard would not have been the horrible burden to another Insequent that it had been for the Ice King. It would have been hard but not the almost impossible task the Ice King had run into.

The Croyel were mighty magical beings. The parasitic beings who formed symbiotic relationships with their hosts. This nature to meld and to take from their hosts opened the Croyel to the deciphering of magic that was not their own. They had to form a bond and merge with each host. Taking and giving to become greater than both alone.

The Croyel used this ability to adept and learn in the use of the Horn of Winter. The Croyel had felt how the Horn of Winter responded to their attempts of its use. He had slowly guided his father to the right tune and the right notes to blow.

Not only had the Croyel guided his father in how to use the horn itself but it had also helped his father to focus. Deep down the Ice King was still Darick Stark and he still had all his faults and weaknesses. The Croyel’s father had been easily distracted by the events around him. The death of his Icy sons had pained his father. The might of the Lord of Revelstone had shocked and upset him.

It was the Croyel that forced his father to focus. Again and again his father let his mind wander. It had been the Croyel that forced discipline on the Ice King. It had gotten to the point that the Croyel had to impose his will on the Ice King. He had touched his mind directly and forced calmness on the master Ice Wright. Slowly, his father had calmed and focused on what his son was telling him.

Once the Ice King truly focused and closed out the outside world they had been able to setup the resonances necessary to literally shake the Wall apart. The shaking was the physical manifestation of the unbinding of the magic at the heart of the Wall. The Horn of Winter, also, as it pulled the Wall apart, destroyed the dreadful Forbidding that had been placed in the wall and then revitalized by the Lord of Revelstone.

That fact alone had energized and exalted the Croyel. To use the magic of the Insequent and then destroy a construct of a Staff of Law was intoxicating to the Croyel. It inspired the Croyel to bravery.

He had taken from his father to enable him to bring the Wall down. The Croyel feared the unbinding this act had set in motion but he knew it must be done. The Lord of Revelstone with her full knowledge of the Seven Wards of High Lord Kevin was a terrible force to be reckoned with.

It had been her use of her staff and the mighty power she projected that had most distracted his father. The Croyel through his symbiotic link with his father knew he was feeling the loss of the sons he had created from the male youth he had acquired over the last decade. The Croyel coming from the Land knew of the Lord’s true power and abilities.

It was her might and lore that had stripped his glamour away that he had laid over the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants that they had sent as a strike force. This strike force meant to attack behind the cloak of invisibility. They should have been unstoppable. This Lord had somehow removed the glamour and then with her cursed staff had obliterated the adopted sons of his father. The explosions of unimaginable magic beyond the Wall shocking in their power.
The Croyel knew his father felt each of those deaths though he did not. They shared power and strength but not emotions.

The final thing distracting his father had been the battle between Ice Fang and the black dragon of the white haired Queen of Westeros. Finally, the Croyel had been able to block that distraction from his father’s mind. He had whispered soothing words of victory and conquest. Then the work of the destruction of the Wall had begun in earnest.

It had taken time, effort and much expenditure of their combined might but they had forced the Horn of Winter to obey their will. The notes were played and sustained. The Wall had come down.

As it came down the Croyel had made his constructs to give passage through the debris of the fallen Wall. The gift gleaned from the mind of Jeremy Avery used to do the Croyel’s will. He had sent out the ichor he had devised to transport his father’s forces quickly from the fallen Wall to the front lines of the Queen.

This was needed. The stripping of invisibility from their strike force and then the long delay in the successful use of the Horn of Winter had torn their carefully laid plans asunder. Now they needed to rush their forces forward to hopefully overwhelm the forces of Westeros before they had the chance to form up and resist their will.

They would have had time if all their plans had fallen into place. Now the need to rush the undead forward was paramount.

The Croyel had been stuck in place. His father was totally exhausted by the using of the Horn of Winter. The use of the foreign implement had required great magical might. Together he and his father had the might. It had been a close thing though. Only through sheer will and their combined might did they succeed. They barely had the might to find success but that was past now. They had succeeded. Now it was time to attack.

The Ice King had remained in his posture of exhaustion. He was still on his knees and palms after the successful use of the Horn of Winter. The horn dropped unremarked. It had served its purpose. The Ice King breathing deeply. He did not need air as humans did but his body was still human deep down at its core. The Croyel did not speak it but he could already feel magic fraying on the edges of his consciousness. It was still minute and would take time to fully unbind. They had much to accomplish quickly.

More than one thing had been torn apart this hour.

For over four hours the Croyel let his power flow back into his father. He did not have the vision to achieve the conquests that his father dreamed of. He slavered to achieve the great things his father wanted but he did not have the strength or courage to achieve them. Nor did he have the vision to meet he unexpected that was sure to arise. The Croyel was powerful but in many ways a shallow thing. It was his father, the Ice King, who must supply those missing elements to greatness.

The Croyel patiently waited as he felt his father slowly recover. The Ice King was exhausted and filled with bone weary lassitude. Precious time was being lost the Croyel knew but there was nothing to do for it. The Croyel could support but would never lead. It was not their way. It would be the Ice King that would lead them to victory or there would be no victory. The Croyel’s father was the locus point around which all revolved around.

In this time of waiting the Croyel felt the army of the undead advance to contest with the forces of the fallen Queen of white hair. The undead absorbing the might and firepower of Westeros. He had time. When his father recovered then they could move forward and defeat their shared foes.
Slowly the Ice King returned back to himself. The use of the Horn of Winter had totally spent his being. The horn had been so hard to use. It did not fight him but it had been so hard. The now inert thing had simply not wanted to obey his will. If not for the Croyel on his back he would have failed. His true son was magic. It was the Croyel that knew how to apply magic. How to manipulate and use it.

The Ice King knew he had chosen wisely. In his extreme weakness the Croyel could have forced his will upon him. The Croyel had not. He was his true son indeed.

Again the Ice King could think and move. He slowly pushed himself up to his knees. He could tell some time had passed. He felt his strength renewing as his son gave back to him as he had freely gave to his son. A true symbiosis. The Croyel forced their shared blood to flow into his father. The Ice King looked around with eyes no longer glazed.

“I fear I have most unpleasant news to impart my father” the Croyel softly spoke to his father’s mind.

The Ice King took a deep breath. He looked at the breeches in the Wall. His forces of the Walking Dead still flowing through. A large group of Ice Wrights and a handful of Ice Giants waited near the broken Wall looking at him. They stared at him waiting for his will to enforce itself upon them.

“What is wrong my son? How long have I been incapacitated?”

The Croyel answered the second question first. “It has been over four hours since you brought the Wall down father. Our forces have been attacking relentlessly since your great success.” The Croyel could sense the Lord using her staff but he could not really tell much more. He had no link to the Walking Dead his father had animated and had no part in the creation of the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants.

The Croyel hesitated to tell his father the second item but steeled himself. “Ice Fang has died. He and the great black dragon of the Dragon Queen fought high up in the air. She climbed up his neck and stabbed both of his eyes out killing him. Their bodies were tangled together. Their fall from the sky was mighty. The bodies crashed into the Haunted Forest. Both are dead.”

The Ice King took a deep breath he did not need. He had been so incapacitated he had not felt his passing.

He looked back at the Haunted Forest. The mighty trees hide the path of their fall. He searched for Ice Fang but his mind did not respond. He was truly dead.

At least he had killed the bitch from hell with his death.

Slowly the Ice King levered himself to his feet. He swayed to and fro as his world swirled around him. He hunched down with his hands on his knees. His adopted sons had seen his mighty act. They did not feel any chagrin at this display of weakness. They knew their father had achieved greatness. He had brought down what existed for over eight millennium.

He took his time as more strength was flowed into his body by the Croyel. He was soon able to rise back up fully erect with his back straight. He looked around. The dead he had risen for over ten years still moved forward. More were even now thickly emerging from the Haunted Forest. His army of the undead indeed vast. They were shambling forward on their own. The yellow carpet of the Croyel’s ichor was still present but not compelling the Walking Dead. Once contact was made with the now dead bitch Queen’s forces the flow of undead upon them continuous.

The first had already engaged the forces of the dead Queen. He slowly walked to his adopted sons. He clapped the ones closest to him on the back. They looked to him seeking to see confidence in his eyes. They were reassured by what they saw in the Ice King’s light pale blue eyes.

The Ice King felt his strength returning to him faster now. His steps as he moved became steadier. He had a war to win. He stepped around the corner of the construct his son had erected to hold the broken ice of the Wall back and in place. The walls of restrained ice rippling behind a yellow skin of magical webbing. His son had down well the Ice King thought. He reached back and petted his son on his bald yellow furrowed head. The Croyel hummed in contentment.

Now the Croyel began to drink from his father as his strength returned. The Croyel hummed in contentment. Both strengthening again.

The Ice King walked through the construct and stopped to observe the battlefield before him. He was most displeased by what he saw. He had hoped to see the forces of the dead Queen in totally disarray. This was not what lay before him. His first sight of the battlefield was a shock.

The Queen’s forces were still intact. He could see where his forces had made forays into her formations but had been repelled. He was enraged to see his Walking Dead heaped before and on top of the berm that the Queen’s forces had erected. With his far seeing eyes he saw that the Queen’s forces had suffered heavy losses in several areas but that his own forces lay thick on the ground. Those attacking the frontlines of Westeros had been decimated.

Equally disconcerting he saw great numbers of the Walking Dead lying on the ground before the Queen’s fortifications. Most of the undead he saw lying on the ground did not move. Across the fields starting near three hundred yards before the berm and increasing as they neared the berm the dead had been feathered and had fallen. Many of the dead feathered many multiple times.

He saw fiery projectiles being launched from catapults and trebuchets. The objects slamming into his forces or exploding on contact with the ground and sending fire out in all directions. Many of the trebuchets shot off huge rocks that pulverized and crushed his undead if landed upon. The bodies pulped to gore.

He saw his Walking Dead shambling into the area that was within the range of the archers. They were approaching all along the front of the dead Queen’s fortification line. As swarms of arrows took flight from behind the Queen’s front lines. Flight after flight were fired off. The arrows buzzing as they cut through the air. The arrows arching over now and plummeting to the Earth.

The lines were short enough he saw and her army great enough to allow a rotation of archers. Her army heavily tilted towards archers. He saw with his long vision armored men holding his forces back to allow the archers to do their evil cowardly work when his forces were able to reach the front lines of the fallen Queen. The archers firing at his undead at pointblank range. The affect devastating to his forces.

The Ice King watched the current flights of arrows shot up and out arc down towards his army. The arrows striking the ground all over. The dead had been thinned greatly. Many arrows missed but those that found their targets sunk in deep. The Walking Dead had no fear or no sense to avoid danger. Some of the undead fell down dead on the spot where others staggered forward only to fall down as they advanced.

He growled noting the dots of fire arrows being let loose. They were the minority of arrows being fired by there was still way to many such arrows. The arrows when they found one of his undead lit the undead up like a bonfire. The undead sometimes bumping into a neighboring Walking Dead and setting them on fire. Each fire of his undead enraged the creature that was once a man.

He felt rage at how the forces of Westeros seemed to have no fear of running out of dragon glass tipped weapons. They fired with wild abandon with no seeming care of conversation. How had they acquired so much obsidian he raged to himself?

It was then he saw the pale shapes of his sons. They were not trying to advance upon the forces of the now dead white haired queen. He had felt the deaths of so many of his adopted sons. The issue of his body had learned caution. Most were hanging back out of range of the archers.

Still some had advanced into range of the archers. He wanted to rage at them. They were acting rash and foolish! They were running around avoiding the arrows. They seemed to be goading the archers to strike them down. Or was it game to them?? He saw two take arrows tipped with the dastardly dragon glass. Neither shot was to the head or heart. The shots not instant kills.

Still he knew the poison of the substance that had created him was now poisoning the Ice Wrights. They began to stumble and then fell to their knees. The two Ice Wrights started to convulse with mist weeping out their eyes and mouths. One collapsed onto his face his body jerking obscenely. The second took another arrow to his gut. It now did a wild death dance bouncing on the hard ground. The Ice King’s face set hard at the injustice of what he had just witnessed.

He saw fiery comets take off from behind the enemy lines as catapults and trebuchets were cut loose. By themselves they were beautiful arching through the sky. The fiery objects angled far and smashing to the ground. Some dead pulped to shattered bone and viscera. The balls exploding sending out tendrils of fire that lit the dead alight and making them burn furiously. He felt his teeth clench seeing more of his undead dying to no good affect.

He became enraged knowing his delay in bringing down the Wall had allowed this killing ground to develop. He would have his vengeance.

He then saw a new swarm of arrows taking flight. Many were fire arrows. They were approaching a large formation of dead moving forward. They did not appear decimated. From a single point on the battlefield, purple lightening shot up from the ground in a spidery web. The lightening hit many of the arrows incinerating them but some shot through. Many missed but some of the fireflies found targets to bury themselves in. Those undead immediately igniting. Others were hit by arrows that were invisible at distance. These were the dragon glass tipped arrows. Walking Dead fell down permanently dead or black webbing forming that showed the poison spreading throughout their body.

More flights of arrows arched through the air at the Walking Dead but the purple lightening knocked many of them down. Not all of them though. More of his dead were feathered. The Ice King’s brow furrowed. What was causing this lightning? What was saving his undead creations?

The Ice King zoomed his far sight in and saw that the point of lightening were from four of his Ice Wrights that had been part of the initial strike group. They still had on their bodies the ragged remains of their ice armor. He sensed they were the only survivors of that force. Their ice armor they still wore fractured and decimated. Somehow they had devised this new tactic. He saw that they were using an Ice Giant with his blade upraised to send out the arcs.

As he watched three other Ice Wrights came in from different points on the compass to join the survivors and together sending up even more of the lightening to knock many the arrows down. It was fortunate that the new Ice Wrights had arrived.
He also saw that the Ice Wrights exhausted themselves supplying the power to fire up the lightning. The Ice Wrights switching out with other icewrights that had gone in on the next assault. They were enabling a much larger percentage in this area to reach the berm and start their assault. The Ice Wrights retreated having warded this group to the berm. The undead that had been shepherded forward started to climb up the berm.

It was not good enough. A blizzard of Dragon Glass and fire arrows rained down on the advancing dead. He could see rows of archers lined up on the berm. Their bodies leaned forward with feet on the top of the slope facing down. The archers firing fast and furious. There was simply too many arrows to deal with. The Ice King wondered how his foes had gotten such a prodigious supply of dragon glass. The Children of the Forest never had this kind of supply of obsidian.

The undead quickly cut down. In frustration he turned his gaze to the east. He saw some undead advance on a promontory that jutted out slightly.

He watched fascinated as long ribbons of black ichor appear and splash down onto the dead attempting to climb up the berm in that area. His eyes flared open wide in shock. Where the black liquid landed all dissolved beneath it. A large cave bear had been clawing up the incline. When the liquid hit it instantly started to melt and was soon cut in two in the middle of its body. It did not move after that.

This was not dragon glass or fire. He had never seen such magic. It was direly potent he could tell. He knew if that liquid were to splash on his body he would at the least be severely burned by it. His eyes looked harder and saw strange shaped creatures closely bunched together. The formation they were in seemed to have an apex. The lead creature was the one who sent out this liquid. He saw another long ribbon of it spew out the point of an iron stave it appeared. The creature whipped its weapon back and forth. He watched as the liquid made an undulating pattern in the air.

The thing that was once Darick Stark watched the thick liquid fall to the earth and land on the undead beneath the ribbons of convoluted liquid. The Walking Dead it landed on instantaneously began to melt as if dipped in … acid? Potent acid that burned through anything it touched.

The Croyel growled menacingly on his back.

“What are they my son?” the Ice King queried his son. He could tell that the Croyel knew what had made this seeming potent acid.

“Waynhim” the Croyel spit out. “They, over fifty-three thousand years ago contended with one of my brothers. Waynhim and one Stonedowner named Hamoko killed this one’s brother when he had bonded with an Aruguhl. They were attempting to create a winter paradise in the north of the Land. In time they would have spread that paradise across all the Land. A paradise like you want to create father!” the Croyel exclaimed.

“What happened my son?” the Ice King asked his true son.

“They melted my brother!” the Croyel wailed in anger and fear. “They are evil! They need to be exterminated!” his son whined to his father. “When they form their fighting wedges they are terrible to contend with. Our kindred have never known of the Waynhim to create such a large fighting wedge.”

He spent the next several minutes learning a fast lesson on what Demondim spawn were and roughly what they were capable of.

The Ice King learned they were a great danger too. He cursed again this Land from the far south of the world for sending such denizens to fight him. The Croyel had thought them extinct but obviously they were not.

He looked out across the battlefield scanning the width and length of it.

He made a most disquieting observation that reinforced his gut feelings. More flights of arrows tipped with Dragon Glass were constantly being sent flying out towards his forces. He had been duped. The forces of the Crows not only had Dragon Glass they had a seemingly unlimited supply of the cursed obsidian. They were willing to fire in mass after hours of battle. They had plenty to fire. Fire arrows were flying in abundance too.

In his mind he wondered where they had acquired such huge amounts of obsidian. Was there that much in the world?

He asked if the other two dragons had been slain but his son had no answer. He barked at the Ice Wright closest to him. The Ice Wright did not know. They had created mayhem but had disappeared from the battlefield. The Ice King listened to what he was told thinking. The Ice Wright doubted they had been killed. Why they had disappeared the Ice Wright had no idea. The Ice King was equally unsure.

He had vast numbers of undead still to pour out from behind the Wall and the edge of the Haunted Forest and still deep into it. He would send out another wave of dead in thick numbers and move in behind them as he evaluated the tactics of the forces of Westeros.

He had to stress the forces of the fallen Queen. Surely, they had to be tiring. They were still human and had to tire. It was their bodies’ nature.

His eyes went wide when the sky suddenly bloomed into a blue cloud that expanded up to the heavens. The air seemed to turn into a blue sun that swallowed all other colors making the camp of the fallen Queen invisible for several seconds. “Melenkurion abatha” now was heard rolling over them like thunder. The ground shaking and his son now screaming in shrill shrieks in his mind. He saw a mighty column of blue fire appear and lash out nearly a hundred yards. All in that arch of blue fire all of his forces contacted by the mighty blue column of magical might simply ceased to exist.

The Ice King felt his mouth hanging open. He suddenly understood the fear his son felt for this woman from Revelstone. He knew he could easily die under such an attack. It would take his son’s strongest shields to survive such an attack. He needed to again sally forth his forces and overwhelm the enemy. The battle had been joined and he must achieve victory.

“Can you send forth waves again to surge the Walking Dead forward my son?”

His son responded in the affirmative.

“Can you construct a shield to protect our forces? Like you did to protect us from the dragons at the Tree of Life?”

“No father! We are too far away.” His tone was fearful. His son feared he would be angry with him for the admission. He reached back and petted his son on his yellow callow head. He projected he was not angry to his true son. His son could only do so much.

“If were closer?” He asked the Croyel.

“I can maybe shield a half a mile but I would not be able to hold it long.”

The Ice King processed this. He started forming his plans. He gave his son his thoughts on how to modify his shields to maximum effect. His son smiled in the Ice King’s mind. He thought he could do what his father wanted.

“Send in the undead my son.”

The yellow ichor on the ground began to shimmer again and little wavelets formed and once more the Walking Dead were shunted forward at speed. The Ice King looked back behind him. He felt grim satisfaction. In his ten years of preparation he had formed a mighty army of the undead indeed. The forces of the fallen Queen and Eddard Stark had to have limits. He would stress them and then break them.

Oberyn: A weary Oberyn stopped again to rest against this spear whose butt he had jammed into the Earth. He was most weary and rested his cheek against the wood harden by the kiln. He reflected on the last hours. The victory over the traitors was complete but the price? The price had been steep.

Again he snarled at his frustrations in both their grievous losses and in the fact that several of the largest slimy slugs had most probably escaped. In Dorne serpents were revered. The likes of Roose and Ramsay Bolton seemingly escaping their net galled Oberyn. He had been so close to killing Ramsay and he slipped through his fingers. It was galling to the Red Viper. Of course the vermin had fled instead of fighting honorably.

His mind drifted back to earlier.

The initial charge of the traitors had been blunted. The death of Forecastle Starkkissed had enraged the Giants of the Land. They went berserk throwing themselves at the roiling mass of Boltons and Freys. Their charge into the forces of traitors was devastating. The Giants showed no fear in their need for just vengeance.

The massive Giants that towered over even knights on horses used their glaives to dispense death all around. The mighty warrior women swirling their massive great swords around their bodies in whirlwinds of death. Oberyn saw men’s body chopped clean in two. The two halves flying apart. Great gouts of blood and gore flung in all directions.

The Haruchai had been right behind them diving into the din of death and destruction. They were using blades of the Ice Wrights that had been killed earlier. Where the Giants used sheer unfathomable strength the Haruchai used strength but also impossible speed and reflexes. They easily chopped aside sword and battleax strokes and charged in with precise cuts and chops that cleaved heads and chopped limbs off.

Though the Haruchai showed no emotions on their faces Oberyn had had enough association with them to know they too were enraged at the death of the Giant. It was impossible to follow them at times they struck so fast.

The Giants blades sliced into armored knight and horse. The blades slamming into armor and at the least denting severely jamming metal into bodies or into limbs crippling them. Often the blades were swung so powerfully and the blades so keen that they were able to slice through the hardened amour to cleave deep into man or horse. Limbs crippled, left to dangle at awkward angles or cut clean off.

When the blades had sliced into man or horse the Giants of the Land would plant their feet and with a mighty bunching of their shoulders rip the blades back out of their now slain opponent or their mount. The gouts of blood spray mighty. The screams of the traitors meant nothing to Oberyn but he felt for the horses. They always suffered for the sins of men.
The Giants immediately seeking their next opponent. They cared nothing for the carnage they left in their wake. The Haruchai were dispensing their own carnage all around but they only did so guarding the flanks of the Giant warrior women. This gave them the freedom to charge headlong into their foes.

The Giants while massive compared to an armored war horse they were still outweighed by a ratio of three or four to one. The horses trained to charge a foe no matter how large. The collisions between such antagonists were spectacular to witness. The sounds of impacting bodies deafening and dreadful to hear.

The screams of the horses and the roars of the Giants filling the air with a deafening din. The two opposing forces not hesitating to throw themselves at each other in a deadly awkward ballet of mayhem and death. The Giants were trained to withstand the collisions of such opposing force. The Giants giving way when necessary and replanting their feet.

Several went down to one knee. The Giants hacking and jabbing their massive swords at the advancing horses. Their blades not swung with full force in this position. Still, men and horses’ legs were severely cut or clean cleaved in two. Crownest Morningwinds was bowled over. Farhal jumped in from the left. The height of his jump astounded Oberyn. He slashed at the advancing knights with his stolen Ice sword. He knocked aside sword chops and hacks. Crownest had been stunned.

Then Loadstone Horizonscan was there. His fists like Warhammers that slammed into knights and horses sending them reeling. Several knights killed outright with sledgehammer blows to the head by mighty Giant fists.

The knights of House Bolton and Frey threw themselves into the Giants and at the advancing wall of the now organized Unsullied. The men fought with a clear desperation seeking to down their foes as the noose of the forces opposing the traitors tightened in a slow constriction of their forces.

A large charge of knights had formed up behind the general melee that Oberyn was fighting in. He was with forces from his homeland and the mercenary companies that the Queen had assigned to deal with the traitors. He looked around him seeing the standards of the Scorpion Tails, Manticores and now the Golden Leopards & Walking Death. The last mercenary company was dear to Oberyn. Their main weapon the spear!

Men and animals were all around attacking each other. The Giants like the giant sequoias from the coastal mountains that lined the northern shore of the Broken arm across from Godsgrace. The Giants surrounded by mounted knights in plate armor trying to hack them down like the mighty trees felled for their timber. The knights sending their warhorses at the Giants in full gallops.

The Giants were huge imposing figures towering over the battlefield. Still, when assaulted by a charge of mounted knights charging in line abreast with lances lowered they were in a desperate situation. Oberyn was sure that the Giants of the Land had never faced such a charge of knights with armor and heavy horse also armored.

The two opposing forces meet with a mighty crash of slashing and grinding metal. The Giants with perfect timing swirled their glaives about them cutting lances in two and a few horses losing their heads the beasts toppling forward dislodging their riders to careen into the forces they had been charging into.

Oberyn had bent low and stabbed up as an armored horse went past. He had his spear ripped out his hands with the passing horse but his spear point stabbed deep into the beast’s neck from underneath severing its windpipe and arteries. The beast immediately reared and then fell over to its side gasping its death with sickening whinnies. Oberyn ran up gripping his spear and ripping it out of the horses neck making it scream in its dying agony.

Oberyn hated it but he did what he must. He jumped over the beast and came up on the downed Frey knight. His helm had been thrown off. He stabbed his spear through the man’s forehead for a quick kill and moved on. He looked around surveying the current battlefield.

The Giants had absorbed the brunt of the mounted cavalry. Oberyn raged seeing Sablehair Seaheart take a lance clear through her lower belly. The horse and knight’s momentum so great and aim perfect that the lance penetrated the granite armor of the Giant. She staggered falling back gripping the lance as it impaled her. Oberyn screamed his rage.

A Haruchai came flying through the air and with his purloined Ice Wright sword slammed his sword into the man’s helm cutting the sword three quarters through his skull. The sword ripped from his grip as he landed adroitly. The Haruchai kicked and punched out in a blur deflecting horses and knights from around the stricken Giant. The warhorses tried to bulrush and stomp on the Haruchai but he was too fast for them. His fists striking armored heads and shoulders of the horses made the animals stagger and swerve aside.

Gibbousspar Ebbtide had been bull rushed by a knot of knights and trampled upon cruelly. She killed the first two horses with a doublehanded stroke of her glaive. The horses whither cut deep through to their chest cavities. The horses tumbling down throwing their riders. One horse as it tumbled slammed into Gibbousspar knocking her off balance. Then several more knights smashed here horses into here taking her to the ground.

The Giant instinctively rolled up into a fetal position to protect herself from the stomping iron shod feet. Her stone armor protecting her somewhat from the kicking hooves. The Giant throwing her arm over her face. Her body jerked with the force of the kicks.

Longwrath Keelstone came in screaming to the aid of her fallen wife. Her glaive swung decapitating a knight and on the backhand stroke her glaive nearly chopped another knight in two her sword cutting through his armor at the waist. Then her body slammed into the other horses and knights. She was followed by two other Giants who hit the knights like massive stones from a trebuchets. The impact of their bodies running into them devastating to the knights. Saltheart Starchaser was there then and he landed punches that caused horses to collapse.

Oberyn and his countrymen and forces from the mercenary companies now surged into the knights and swept past them to engage the forces of the traitors. The Golden Leopards had several squads of crossbowmen that fired their weapons at close range at the mounted and now the fallen knights on the ground thrown from their horses. Many of the bolts did not fully penetrate the harden steel but some did. But at his close range the bolts hit like mallets of a blacksmith. The hits staggering the traitors and head shots concussing their targets. Oberyn saw a knight from House Bolton take a bolt through the slits in his visor. The bolt slamming through the thin metal and into his face killing him instantly.

Oberyn yelled as he ran into the melee. He had retrieved his spear. He caught a broadsword stroke and lifted it up slide up his shaft and then flicked his wrist to throw the sword up. He jammed his spear point forward catching the man at the seam of his Cuirass and gorget his Valyrian steel spear point finding the seam between and jabbing in several inches damaging the man’s shoulder and clavicle. The man could no longer grip his sword dropping it as he yelled in pain.

Oberyn moved on. The man was no longer a threat and he needed to wound or kill more traitors. He engaged several men with battleaxes. They swirled around each other. The men only wore chainmail and leather armor. His spear found elbow and knee joints. The men moved slower as he circled in and out jabbing his spear into the men. One man fell down dead with several crossbow bolts in his upper chest. The chainmail no match for the bolts at close range. The other man ate his spear that jabbed deep into his head.

The Red Viper lost track of time as the battle raged on and on. All were anxious to put down the traitors of Westeros. The desire to take down men who would betray their very race burned in the hearts of the forces of the Queen. The mercenary companies had the wisdom to not side with a force that hated the very concept of humanity. The forces of the Land could actually see the evilness that lay in the heart of the men of House Frey and Bolton. They were fighting with extreme prejudice against the traitors.

A grimace came on Oberyn’s face. He saw a mighty man with House Frey regalia on his surcoat. The man was swinging a large two headed battleax. The tall knight was using controlled swings of his weapon chopping and slashing with deadly cuts. He cut down men to the right and left of him. He was a true skilled warrior.

Oberyn yelled his challenge. The man turned to look at him. His arm swung out killing a mercenary from the Golden Leopards. Oberyn was even more incensed. He rushed at the man. The two now truly faced each other. The two attacked with extreme violence. The man was much larger than Oberyn. Oberyn met his attacks with his spear tip hitting the battleax face to deflect up or away or swatting the ax with precise counterstrokes to deflect.

The two men circling each other at a standoff. The men moving in and then back attacking and then counterattacking. Oberyn could attack from distance but the man would charge in and get in close enough to take deadly swings at Oberyn. Oberyn smiled when three spears impaled the man thrown by men for the mercenary company Walking Death. The man looking down in shock at the shafts jutting out his body. Oberyn distracting the man as the mercenary’s lined up take their shot at his sides where his chainmail armor was its weakest. At close range they easily penetrated the man’s chain mail and incomplete plate armor. Oberyn did not care how his opponents were killed as long as they were killed.

He moved on stabbing and jabbing wounding and killing when he could. The Freys and Boltons slowly being driven back in a controlled manner against the large creek behind them. The traitors fighting more and more desperately as the noose tightened around their necks. They did not break and fought bravely. Oberyn had to give them that. They gave a good account of themselves killing the forces of the Queen as the traitors grudgingly gave up ground.

Oberyn was fighting foot soldiers who had broadswords and shields now. He used his lightning fast reflexes to find that momentary opening in their shield work and sword play to lunge forward to stab his opponent in their torsos or head shots when the opportunity presented itself. These men were not wearing plate armor. The men mainly wore chain mail over leather. Some had bits and pieces of plate armor they had purchased or acquired on past battlefields.

The Giants had moved in on other foes. The Haruchai staying close to them. Oberyn did not mind. This left these men to be killed by him and the forces of the Queen.

He bent at the waist a sword swipe traveling where his chest had been. Oberyn felt the blade rustle over his leather armor. The Red Viper relied on speed and not plate armor to protect him. The feel of steel barely missing sent a squirt of fear into the man. The fear inspiring Oberyn to move faster and with more surety of movement.

He swirled his spear around his body using it as a pivot feeling the wood swirl over his ribs, back and then his other set of ribs. His hands moving their grip on his spear as it whirled around his body. He thrust out with his spear as he came up from his crouch. His spear impaling the swordsman through her groin and out his back. His screams hideous to hear as Oberyn ripped his spear back and out his body.

His battle instinct kicking in Oberyn dove forward and rolled twice to come up in a low crouch. Five Freys had surround him. He eyed the men as they communicated between themselves with short barked shouts. They all started to rush him at once. From their left rear, Ferna came rushing in. Her body a blur.

Her stolen Ice Wright slashed and danced cutting down a Frey. Her thin ice forged blade cut through the man’s throat. She whirled to engage another Frey. The man having to desperately block her sword swipes. The sword work of the Haruchai lightning fast. It was hard to follow sword chops and thrusts they were so fast. Oberyn stabbed out with his spear in his crouch. His spear impaling a man’s calf. He jerked it back as the man tilted. His next spear thrust ruined his knee shattering it. The man toppled to the ground screaming in agony both hands gripping his ruined knee.

Another of the Frey’s foot soldiers came at him with his broadsword doing a down chop with both hands. With timing born of decades of hard training Oberyn gripped his spear in the middle just outside the width of his body and up thrust his arms. He met the sword thrust and with impeccable timing let his right arm slide down the shaft while lowering it. The blade of Frey followed the lowered shaft taking it down throwing the man off balance staggering.

Ferna went leaping by Oberyn engaging a knight running up to attack Oberyn from his blind side. Their swords clashing and the metal of the knight’s sword already shrieking in protest from the ice forged blade that Ferna slammed against his blade. Oberyn focused on his immediate opponent.

With the end of his spear, Oberyn whipped the man’s face with a fast whiplash motion of his hands on his spear. The hard wood broke the man’s nose. Blood spaying out in hot gouts. The man cried out in pain staggered back. Oberyn now pivoted his arms in reverse direction and worked them to his left side and back before jabbing hard forward in an upward plane. His spear point impacting the man’s rib shattering it but deflecting his spear thrust. The man screamed in pain.

He saw out the corner of his eyes Ferna in a blur. Her purloined Ice Wright sword in down chops on the blade the Frey knight. The steel forged blade shattered in an explosion of metal fragments flying in all directions being no match for the magically ice forged blade. Oberyn saw red appear on Ferna’s face. She did not notice. She now slammed her blade into the knight’s body and head. He reeled back from the power of the blows.

The Haruchai bull rushed the knight. She slammed her shoulder into him sending him crashing back into the ground. She followed the fallen man. She was on her knee in an instant. She gripped the visor of the knight and jerked it back with her left hand. Her right hand stabbed down driving the tip of her ice sword down through his skull the tip slamming into the back of the man’s helm. His body went limp. She jumped high her knees bent. She jumped higher than all those around her.

Her foot came down kicking another knight in the face sending him flying back onto his back. She landed lightly and swirled to her left moving off to engage several foot moving up with pikes.

Oberyn reversed his arms again wind milling to again whiplash the end of his spear across the man’s face which shattered his left cheek bone. Again Oberyn reversed the motion of his arms to bring his spear against the left side of his body and jabbed up again. This time his outreaching spear slipped between the man’s ribs. The spear point and shaft penetrating the man’s lower left lung, slamming through his liver and into the upper lobe of his right lung.

Before the man could fully register his mortal wound Oberyn back jerked his spear from the man’s body. The man falling away with bubbly froth escaping his lips. He collapsed to the ground on his knees. His body jerking and blood now pouring out his mouth. He then feel to his palms. Blood pouring out his mouth and nose.

Oberyn fought on. Time losing itself into a long melody of move and countermove. Foes and friends falling in pain and death. He felt his limbs screaming in protest but he fought on. Like all trained warriors, Oberyn knew how to fight on letting adrenaline keep the body moving. All were tired now and moving slower.

Then Oberyn was at the edge of the traitor’s encampment against the deep creek that bordered the traitors’ encampment. He looked behind him. The traitors’ formations had been broken. They were being carved up into smaller and smaller cords. Each cord being dismantled and chopped to kindling wood. The surviving knights and foot soldiers fighting desperately as they were now assaulted from all sides. The forces of the Land were still whirling dervishes dispensing death all around them.

The Giants still in a berserker rage from the death of their sister and maybe others by the Traitors. They did not seem to tire. Their swords were swirling and doing mighty chops that cleaved men’s bodies in two. Heads sent spinning far across the battlefield. The Haruchai definitely did not seem to tire. They did not have the raw power of the Giants but their speed, precision and brute strength cut down traitors with ruthless efficiency.

The forces of Dorne and Crownlands heavily leavened with the multiple mercenary companies from Essos continued their assaults. The forces of Frey and Bolton being attacked with no quarter for their willingness to betray the forces of Westeros and of life itself. The islands of traitors becoming smaller even as Oberyn looked.

He looked at the creek and started. Ramsay Bolton was in his armor swimming his horse across the wide deep creek. The man was fleeing his command! He thought he saw Roose Bolton swimming his horse which was almost at the other bank. Oberyn saw the rider glance back. The man’s pale eyes looking all around. He now fought his horse up forward onto the far bank.

As the horse rose up on the bank the man’s armor came into clear view. The dark grey plate armor over a quilted tunic of blood-red leather. Its rondels were shaped like human heads whose mouths are open in agony. Its helmet had streamers of red silk which would flutter in the wind if not soaked. Oberyn saw the man’s pink woolen cloak embroidered with droplets of blood.

The garish armor attracted many archers. The arrows bouncing off the armor and the armor of the horse.

“Coward!” Oberyn roared. He hefted up his spear and hurled it at the closer target thirty yards away. Roose was too far away to effectively be taken down with his spear. Oberyn cursed. The horse of Ramsay Bolton surged forward kicking its legs. The horse’s sudden surge threw off Oberyn’s aim point. He was too far in his throwing motion to change his throw. Oberyn had meant to throw his spear through Ramsay’s thigh and into his horse pinning the man to his horse. To die together in the deep creek.

Instead his spear slammed into Ramsay’s horse a foot behind his leg. The spear penetrated deep into the horse piercing the horse’s spleen, lung and perforated its colon. The wound causing massive internal bleeding. The horse immediately started to scream in pain a bubbly froth coming out its nostrils. Ramsay looked around terrified seeing his horse speared.

Ramsey jumped off the horse and started to kick furiously to the far shore. The horse wildly kicked its legs fighting to stay above water. The horse thrashed but it was no use. It quickly sank below the surface of the agitated water.
Oberyn shouted in frustration seeing Ramsay making his escape. Without thinking he dived into the creek in a shallow dive. The cold water shocked the man but he kicked furiously towards where the horse had disappeared and Ramsay’s body beyond that spot. He quickly reached the spot where the horse disappeared. Adrenaline pumped hard in his veins. The cold shocking his body.

He started when a sharp splash occurred just in front of his face. Then another slap of water just in front of his face occurred. He shouted when a sharp pain laced his shoulder. He gritted his teeth. He looked up on the distant shore and saw five Bolton men with crossbows. Another fired their bolt which barely missed Oberyn. The men rapidly reloading their crossbows.

Oberyn kicked to get to get to a floating wooden shield. He gripped it with his left hand and slipped the shield onto his left arm. He whipped the shield up just in time. The shield half up out of the water his head behind it. The crossbowmen had reloaded their weapons and fired off at Oberyn. Three of the bolts hit the shield. The bolts splintering the wood but the shield held and protected Oberyn from the bolts.

To keep himself away from the crossbowmen Oberyn kicked his legs straining to get distance from the shore. He was tiring. His shield was weakened by the first bolt hits. He grit his teeth and dove down into the bone cold water to lower his body. He felt his wooden shield shudder with the accurate fire from the crossbow men. His shield disintegrated under the impact of the additional iron bolts. He needed to breathe. His head came up and he took in air. He shook the water out of his face.

Oberyn saw the crossbowmen bringing up their weapons having reloaded again. Without warning a flurry of arrows pierced three of the bowmen multiple times killing them as they toppled down the embankment of the creek. The other two twirled around. The men never had a chance with Ranrika and Ferna sending their heads flying through the air with their Ice Wright swords they had taken from the slain abominations.

Both Haruchai women soaking wet having swum across the creek. Oberyn weakly knew the female Haruchai had crossed the creek to save him. Again he was in the Haruchai’s debt. Not that it mattered he realized. His limbs felt like lead. He couldn’t keep swimming much longer.

Oberyn was weakening and only vaguely saw Ferna dive into the water and quickly swim to the weakening Red Viper. She with ease supported his now limp body swimming back to shore.

Ranrika pulled him up the embankment with Ferna below pushing his body up to her lover. Oberyn was totally limp. His body exhausted. He was thankful to be alive but could barely move or speak his thanks for his salvation.

“You are most brave Oberyn but foolish” Ranrika told the Dorne man in her flat atonal voice. “You are not breed for this cold as the Haruchai are. We thrive in this environment growing up in the high tors of the Western Mountains to the west of the Land.” Oberyn looked at them with a smirk. Of course the Haruchai would lecture him. It made them cute.

Oberyn looked at them stupidly his body succumbing to hypothermia.

“We will not let you die Oberyn of Dorne” Ferna told him with her face flat. They showed no emotion but he knew they truly cared for him. He passed out.

/////////

Oberyn came to his senses. He was drinking out of a cup and a strong liquor that was making his throat burn but he felt his wits coming back and a warmth flooding his body. He was sitting before a mighty bonfire. He saw his countrymen cutting down and chopping up the royal tents of House Frey and Bolton and burning them for fuel.

Before him knelt down Crestdancer Shipsprow. “You are drinking Diamonddraught. It will help restore you. The Haruchai told us of your fighting acumen and valor diving in icy cold water after your foe. Brave but foolish.”

“Did he get away?”

“Who?”

“Ramsay Bolton.”

“I fear the name means nothing to us Oberyn.”

Oberyn sighed. Hopefully, his body was on the bottom of the waterway but he could not know. He could only hope. He looked around.

“Are the traitors crushed?”

The Giant smiled grimly. “Yes. They are crushed. They did fight bravely but they betrayed the trust of their countrymen and to life itself. I do not mourn their passing. Some we have taken prisoner when they surrendered and others are being tended to too who were wounded.”

The Giant then looked out with a pained look.

“How many of your sisters did you lose?” Oberyn asked quietly.

The Giant started to cry silently. She spoke through her tears “We lost Forecastle Starkissed and Crestdancer Shipsprow. Gibbousspar Ebbtide has been severely trampled and may die. Sablehair Seaheart was speared but we think she will live. Your Maesters are tending to her and we have hope. Yardarm Morningstar was also took a lance but her wound is not as severe and will definitely live. Loadstone Horizonscan has been severely injured but should recover with time. Saltheart Starchaser and Oakentree Harborchannel are also gravely injured but should heal well. The rest of us are injured to one degree or another but are ready and able to land more blows for Westeros. We will mourn for them when the battle is won.” A fierce look came over the Giant’s face.

Oberyn sipped his Diamonddraught. “I grieve for their loss. What of the Haruchai and Ranyhyn?”

“Soral and Hail of the Haruchai were slain. Others were injured but they can fight. Of the Ranyhyn, we lost Cynyn and Shelen. Whrany, Frohm and Hrama were severally injured. The rest injured but will fight on. The Manethrall has come to tend to their wounds. They will most likely survive. We have paid a heavy price Oberyn. I know your countrymen and the Unsullied took heavy losses throwing back the traitors. House Frey and Bolton as a fighting force are no more.” Crestdancer looked off into the distance again communing with her inner pain.

Ranrika and Ferna came up to Oberyn. The arrow from Ranrika’s thigh had finally been removed and a binding put around the wound. She did not limp. Ferna had a bandage around her torso. She ignored her wound. Damn proud Haruchai snorted to himself. He realized just how tough the Haruchai were. They disdained any injury that did not incapacitate them.

He noted Ferna was holding his spear in her right hand. The Ice Wright swords had been sheathed in stolen scabbards dropped by the dead Ice Wrights. Ferna saw the question in Oberyn’s eyes.

“I dove in the creek and retrieved it. We have watched you fight Nymeria for it in Winterfell and on
“We will escort you back to the frontlines. Eddard Stark wants you with him. He feels the next assault will occur soon. He wants to consult with the other High Lords of Westeros.”

“What about the Queen?” Oberyn queried.

He saw hesitation from the Haruchai. He felt dread course through his body. For them to hesitate … “She fell from the sky with her steed. They were killed as they killed the Ice Dragon” Ranrika told Oberyn flatly. She paused. “I am sorry to bear this news to you.”

Oberyn sat stunned. That was impossible but the flat faces of the Haruchai did not hide any truth. They did not know how to even slightly slant the truth.

“How can you be sure?”

“Our countrymen saw the two dragons fighting entwined. The Ice Dragon was killed but its body was entwined with Drogon’s. They plummeted down nearly two thousand feet to crash into the Haunted Forest. Nothing could survive that fall.”

Oberyn closed his eyes and took a deep breathe. What now he wondered? He knew Eddard would never take the throne. Oberyn had hoped for a great golden age with a great leader on the Iron Throne. That dream was but ashes now. For a great age to grow it needed a truly great leader to lead it. That would not happen now.

There was nothing for it.

He needed to work with Eddard to defeat the army of the Ice King. Then he would have to worry about Westeros. He could not believe it. Daenerys dead. She had seemed invincible. He sighed. He guessed the prophecies of her demise were true after all. A suddenly world weary Oberyn stood up. The fire had dried his clothes and the Diamonddraught had restored his body and lifted the stupor off his thoughts.

Slowly Oberyn moved back to the front lines of Daenerys camp. He stopped himself. Whose camp was it now? Probably Eddard’s for now. He had been equally instrumental bringing the might of Westeros to the Wall to fight this war. He would help the Warden of the North kill the bastard and his illegitimate spawn.

Oberyn moved on weary in his soul. His body had been restored but his soul grieved. Several times he rested against his spear he planted into the ground. He was nearing Eddard. He was studying the alignment of the enemy forces he saw. He slowly went to the man who now led the forces of Westeros.

Eddard: Up on the berm Eddard Stark looked out over the expanse between the berm which was their frontline and the fallen wall. The three channels were still there. The sickening yellow glow on the sides holding the massive ice chunks back. Those channels allowing the enemy to get at his forces.

Eddard thinking like that now. The Queen was gone. He had a war to finish. His eyes again scanned the battle lines.
The Lord of Revelstone had told Eddard several hours ago that the channels was the work of the Croyel. The carpet of yellow ichor that had coated the ground from the trough before the berm to the Wall and probably beyond was also the work of the foul denizen of the deep. The carpet was dormant now. The waves he had observed that brought the Walking Dead forward at a quick pace no longer present. He expected that to change at any moment.

The reason being they were at a stalemate. Both sides had been bloodied but no clear victory achieved. A stalemate would be good enough for Eddard at the moment. Their plans carefully laid out had been shattered. He smiled grimly. Did any plan survive first contact with the enemy? Never had. This time had been no different.

He sighed and looked back behind him over his left shoulder. His face set in grim lines. Ygritte had recovered partially. She had put her dress back on and the color had started to return to her small body. She was a pale woman besides her touch by the sun hair. Her face had looked pasty and drawn but that had passed. The Maesters had given her several droughts that seemed to have helped the diminutive woman recover from her ordeal of giving birth. Now she was just tired looking. Melisandre and Jon were with Ygritte. Ygritte and Melisandre sitting on the ground with Ygritte’s back pressed into her wife’s body. Jon was on one knee talking to them softly. The sight tender.

That was not what he truly looked at though. Near them sat Arya. Her face had a blank look. Her eyes red and swollen. Her shoulders slumped. Her hair disheveled. She was broken. Eddard knew not what to do. The love of her life had fallen from the sky giving her life for the realm. He sighed. What to do? By unspoken word he had communicated with Jon. Watch over your little sister—she might do something rash. Jon had nodded in understanding his compassionate gaze upon his slumped over sister.

He saw Jeertel standing near Arya. He knew the Haruchai would give her life to save Arya even if his daughter would not lift a hand in her defense.

He was a little surprised by Arya’s actions. Eddard would have been able to carry on he thought. He hesitated on that thought. That was not a fear he had to worry about. Catelyn would never be in the thick of battle with the possibility of death at any moment. He felt for his daughter. She was lost without her lover the Queen.

Eddard could give Arya no more time at this moment. His gazed out upon his enemy. He had seen during the initial assault that their defensive position had one glaring deficiency. The enemy had most of the expanse between the berm and the fallen Wall as a safe haven. Their best archers could only reach out maybe out to three hundred yards with barrage arrow fire. The catapults a little beyond that. The trebuchets could reach out to five hundred yards. Beyond that was nearly a thousand yards of safety for the forces of the Ice King.

The idea had been to engage the enemy on the fallen Wall and only slowly retreat as needed. They would savage the enemy all the way back to the berm and under cover of the siege engines. Instead, the forces of the Ice King had over a half mile of safety to maneuverer in.

A sigh escaped Eddard’s lips. He could do nothing about it. He would let the enemy come to him. If he was to charge forward without purpose he would suffer causalities needlessly. He would decimate the enemy when they came in range. The berm was a demarcation that gave the forces of Westeros the advantage of height. The enemy had one major weakness.

The undead had no will beyond the compulsion to move forward and attack the living. They had no strategy to meet that compulsion. They blindly came forward. The Walking Dead made no move to shy away from the arrow fire and the missiles from the siege weapon. The way they slowly tried to climb up the incline of the berm made for a slaughter ground.
The problem was their endless numbers. The relentless advance of the undead could simply overwhelm the defenders. Fortunately, between the dragons Viserion and Rhaegal, the unlooked for appearance of the Waynhim and the Lord of Westeros they had been able to beat back any incursion into their lines. Eddard was not sure he would have all of those bulwarks to rely upon for the next assault wave.

The two dragons were still in a deep somnolent sleep. They had fed ravenously and then went into a torpor. They had not moved it was reported to him. How long did it take dragon’s recover from severe exhaustion? He hoped he lived long enough to find out. Daenerys had told him that while the common thought was that dragons could fight on indefinitely they were mortal and had clear limits. They could only produce so much fire with the food they had taken in.

He hoped they would recover quickly. Their dragon’s breath had been devastating to the advancing undead. Their long gouts of flame incinerated countless scores of the Walking Dead. The huge swaths of burnt dead giving the forces of Westeros a space to recover and meet the charge behind the burnt dead.

His gaze returned to the spot in the sky that had seen the Queen fall to her death. The two dragons entangled as they plummeted from the air. The Ice Dragon clearly dead its head hanging limp while Drogon’s body had been not moving either from what Eddard saw. Drogon had twirled his neck around the neck of his foe. He replayed the final aerial battle in his mind.

The fall had been from great height and neither dragon was trying to flap their wings or disengage their tangled up bodies. They were both dead. He wondered if Daenerys body would ever be found or would her body be lost forever to become a mystery like her distant ancestor Rhaenys Targaryen. He hoped to find Daenerys body so it could be given the proper funeral pyre that Valyrian nobility preferred.

He turned his gaze away. He had a battle to win. The Ice King would be stopped here. Now.

He swept his vision over the battlefield before the berm and then turned his gaze back upon his own forces. The two forces were definitely in a lull. The lull now over three hours. He had taken losses that galled his soul. He had not planned for the enemy being upon him so quickly. The Ice King had overcome the advantage of a killing field that could be fully exploited.

Behind him he had reorganized his forces to meet the reality of the current situation. The plan had been if the Wall indeed did come down they would advance to the Wall quickly. They would send up their best archers and start firing on any forces trying to scale the Wall from the fallen edifice. The forces of Westeros attacking their foes as soon as the crossed from the other side of the fallen Wall.

The Walking Dead were fortunately extremely slow at best. Their bodies moved with slightly clumsy jerks and starts. The climbing of a jumbled mess of shattered ice would make any advancement up and then down that slope laborious and slow for the Walking Dead. The feathering of their bodies would have been almost laughably easy. It would have been a pleasure seeing them killed like ducks in a shooting gallery.

The Ice Wrights would have been another matter. They were fast and nimble. For them the massed archers would have fired in mass while their marksmen took single aimed shots. The Ice Wrights would have been at a severe disadvantage having to navigate the massive jumbled mess of the fallen Wall. They would have been plucked off one by one. The dragons could have leisurely burned them on the south face of the fallen Wall. This would protect the dragons from any weapons on the other side of the fallen Wall. The remaining mass of shattered ice was between two and three hundred feet in height. They would be shielded from attack from north face of the fallen Wall.
He wondered if the undead and Icy spawn of the Ice King could have even fought away from the fallen Wall. If they had the Queen and he had a plan for that.

They would form up long lines of locked shields and lances backed by knights to hold the Icy spawn of the Ice King back while archers and dragon fire devastated them and slowly retreat back to the berm. With the Lord of Revelstone revealed to be such a devastating force they would have decimated their enemies at the fallen Wall.

The idea had been fight a slow retreat back to the range of the trebuchets and then catapults. Then back into the range of the massed archers that had been left behind the berm. Only the best archers taken forward from Westeros. The mercenary companies of archers taken forward as well. That way they would have been able to kill the dead the length of the plain between the Wall and the berm.

Heavy knights and phalanxes of pikemen aligned to slow down the attack of the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants so they could be feathered with dragon glass. They would have held up the advance of the dead and Ice Wrights while heavy projectiles crushed and fire set the Walking Dead aflame. Blizzards of Dragon Glass arrows killing the Ice Wrights and Giants.

Eddard sighed shaking his head. No plan survives first contact with the enemy he reminded himself again. Now both sides were licking their wounds waiting for the next assault to occur. Again the Ice King had the advantage of making the next move. Eddard would not sacrifice men for a senseless attack. He would not force his way into the undead. He would not allow his force to get intermingled with the forces of the Ice King. At close range hemmed in from all sides would be a disaster for his forces.

He would not do it.

Eddard had ordered that the first lines of archers to be brought to only twenty-yards from the berm. They needed to reach out as far as possible with their arrows. He then had the lines staggered back in legions back to one hundred and seventy five yards. He wanted the flights of arrows falling down all throughout the ranks of the next attack wave.

The orderlies were stacking up piles of quivers around the groupings of archers. The archers grabbing quivers and putting them near their feet. Large piles were stacked up behind each legion. Runners would run them forward them as needed to keep the archers supplied. They would be fire as fast as their endurance allowed.

The Warden of the North shook his head. The serendipity of war. A wagon train came up into the camp. It was ten wagons. Four wagons filled with barrels of sardines and shade. One wagon was filled with hard tack bread. The other wagons were filled with arrows. Four were filled to the tops of the beds with dragon glass. The last wagon was filled with arrows tipped with pine tar wrapped linen to be fired off as fire arrows.

The wagons filled with arrows went right up to where the archers were and the arrows taken by runners to add to the stockpiles being plied up around the groupings of archers. The piles of quivers getting high. Eddard knew they would be shot off fast. More was constantly being pulled up to the front lines from the stock piles from the center of the Queen’s encampment.

He grimaced thinking again of the fall of Daenerys Targaryen from the sky.

He had asked that half of the catapults and one in five trebuchets to adjust their arms to fire their projectiles in more of a flat line to make their projectiles hop and skip through the enemy lines. This hopefully spread the fire through the enemy ranks more effectively when they got close. He was sure that when the next assault came the yellow ichor would again make waves that would bring the undead and Icy spawn upon them quickly.

Fire was most assuredly their friend. He would make the undead burn.

He had all the fire arrows and projectiles stopped being fired off. He did not need to save them but he noticed something that he wanted to use to his advantage.

The area before him was covered with the fallen bodies of the Walking Dead. The dead not moving in their second death. The dead waiting to burn. Eddard smiled. Burn they would. The yellow ichor had covered up the first layer of oil and tar that had been laid down.

He had tar and pitch barrels moved up and quivers filled with the hemp covered heads of fire arrows. Ten of the Trebuchets had large skins that had been tied off. The skins filled with oil. When they hit the ground the oil would splash all around. Large wicks would be light on the bundles to light the oil when the skins exploded hitting the ground. The trebuchets would throw them high in the air to reduce their forward range.

He would use the many dead lying dead on the ground to burn the new arriving dead. He had barrels of oil at the top of the berm chopped apart and rolled down the berm. The oil splashing over the piled up dead. He needed a hot bonfire that would ignite instantly.

He watched runners moving all around the Queen’s camp near the front lines. They were finding Dragon Glass arrows that had missed their targets or removing the arrows from their fallen targets. Many of the arrows had been ruined but those that were not were plucked up and put in quivers. Archers always looking for arrows to reuse. He had the arrow makers making more. An army could never have enough. Also, this task kept the camp attendants busy. It kept them from fretting upon the next assault.

The bodies of the Walking Dead slain behind the berm were being carried if possible and thrown down into the ditch their bodies soaked in oil. The large bodies hacked apart to be brought forward. They would be used as a weapon in the next assault. Also, the removal of the bodies freed up the lanes between the forces of Westeros.

Eddard had seen how quickly the undead burned to ash and a charred mound of viscera. Each body as it burned like a bonfire for five to ten minutes could be a weapon. He had examined the bodies of the undead. They had turned black and putrid but the bodies were basically intact. He had attendants picking up the severed limbs and heads of the former Walking Dead and heaved off the berm into the ditch. If still animated the attendants stabbed the appendages and heads with obsidian daggers to kill the detritus of the undead.

The Warden of the North saw the remains of dead Ice Wrights and Giants all about. Puddles of blue slime was what obsidian had reduced their bodies too. He had splashed the blue puddles with his armored boot. He wondered if they may have some harmful affect. There was none that he could fathom. There was many blue pools. He did not smile. They had once been human and giant. The cruel perversions put out of their unknown misery.

To know that a Stark was doing this filled his soul with a muted anger and sadness.

He had observed strange anomalies in the fighting of the Icy creatures created by the Ice King.

Iron tipped weapons were only able to penetrate their bodies a quarter an inch at most before their cold bodies froze the metal to such a degree that they shattered. The iron tipped arrows forged in fire. The Ice Wrights pulling the useless weapons from their bodies if they did not shatter. Bodies that did not bleed from those wounds. Many such arrows hit their bodies after their ice armor had been shattered. The arrows that lodged into their bodies did no damage.

And yet. Dragon Glass easily penetrated their bodies. In fact it was almost like a hot knife in butter with how easily the Dragon Glass penetrated their bodies. The Dragon Glass weapons easily sunk deep into their bodies lodging there. This should have been completely impossible.

Dragon Glass, or obsidian by its true name, only had a fifth at best, the tensile strength of forged Iron. If iron shattered and cracked when penetrating the outer bodies of the Ice Wrights the dragon glass should have exploded into a million shards just touching their icy bodies.

That had definitely not been the case. The reverse was true. The Ice Wrights and Giants bodies were completely susceptible and endangered by the dragon glass. He could not remember one such tipped weapon not sinking in deep into their icy bodies.

How? Why? Eddard’s analytical mind wondered. He thought he might have an answer but it was only conjecture.

Legends said that the Ice King was created by the Children of the Forest. That made sense. They were being butchered by the ancestors of the men and some women he stood with in this very camp. It had been their ancestors who committed genocide. Why the genocide? The answer was easy to Eddard. They wanted the First People’s land. They committed genocide to acquire it.

Worse, it had been revealed to Eddard that the Ice King was none other than a Stark. A cruel reprehensible man. His crimes condemned to death. The crimes against man. Eddard knew that his killing by the Children of the Forest had probably been applauded. Not the thought of the former Stark being cut down by the Children of the Forest had caused anger. The man was an animal. An animal put down.

That thought sickened Eddard. The fact that the Children of the Forest had been in the right. They had did as they had done because of the genocide of the humans waged against them. To add to that, Darrick Stark had been a mad, venial, evil man that needed to be taken down. Why had not his past ancestors been able to put that man down?

With that knowledge Eddard had been able to extrapolate to the truth. The Children of the Forest had fought two wars. The initial war with the First Men and then the Andals. The First Men had fashioned their weapons of bronze. The Andals came armed with iron and forged steel. Each wave of humans pushing the Children of the Forest further north. The humans chopping down the Weirwood trees that had been left behind.

Eddard mused that his race had not been satisfied with the genocide against one race, The Children of the Forest but also the Weirwood trees. They had both been immortals his race had killed. Would he ever be able to make restitution for such crimes?

Yes, the obsidian of the Children of the Forest had been no match for the bronze of the First Men much less the weapons of the Andals. The lack of weapons that could contend with man ensured the original inhabitants of Westeros would lose.

How sad that his race used such an advantage for such heinous effect. The legends said that the Children of the Forest tried to live in peace with the human interlopers at first. But the greed and avarice of the human invaders had been insatiable. They did not want part of Westeros but the whole continent. So they had taken it by the tip of the sword and spear.

The man who now led the forces of Westeros shook his head. He did not have time to work over the sins of the past. He had a war to prosecute and win.

So Eddard turned it over in his mind the current riddle. Obsidian, Dragon Glass, was the material that the First People had used. They had led simple lives trying to live as one with the land. Living in harmony with the land and not trying to subjugate and defile their world. They would never have delved into the Earth and harmed it to make weapons of metal.

The Children of the Forest weapon of defense was obsidian. Therefore, Eddard reasoned, the Children of the Forest must have used obsidian in the transformation of his past ancestor into the Ice King. There had supposedly been seven others Missandei had recently reported to Eddard. He had asked the Queen’s scribe to impart any new information to him as she discovered it.

The men turned into Ice Wrights by the magic of the Children of the Forest. Eddard reasoned that the Children of the Forest had used their weapon of obsidian as the tool to make the transformation. Their magic must have been fused to their weapon of defense and offense. It was that creation by obsidian that was now their salivation.

Somehow, the magic of the current Ice Wrights was still tied eight thousand years later to that original act. Obsidian now after their creation had become their anathema. It would be their downfall. Why this was he had no idea. He was only thankful. Magic and how it worked was beyond Eddard’s ability to understand.

He had spoken to both Lord Lustra of Revelstone and to Barristan Selmy at the beginning of the lull.

With the Lord, he asked her to be his tactical spear point. With her on her speedy Ranyhyn she could quickly travel to any breach in their defensive bulwark. Her Lord’s Fire was devastating. Nothing could stand against it. Where Dragon Glass killed the body with the piercing of a frozen brain or heart or slow poisoning the Lord’s Fire simply obliterated the bodies of the Ice Wrights and Giants.

They were blown into a million shards that were scattered to the winds. She had with her the Giants and Haruchai that had not gone with Oberyn to fight the traitors been their shock troop to heal any breech. The Giants, Haruchai and Ranyhyn who were still hale were filtering back to augment their brothers and sisters. They were an unstoppable force. There was just not enough of them unfortunately. They could only plug one hole in the dike at a time.

Eddard heard of their grievous losses in fighting for a world they did not live in. He face set in a grime line. He would take down the Ice King to avenge their deaths. The Ice King was a Stark. He was Eddard’s responsibility.

He had talked to Barristan who in turn was using Braveheart Tillerkeel as interpreter with the Waynhim. Eddard had gone to listen in. He had put had put his foot down commanding Barristan to not plunge the wedge of the Waynhim into the forces of the dead until Eddard and Jon had setup the right situation.

Barristan had argued against Eddard. With archers on their flanks and with men armed with Valyrian swords they could do great harm to their enemy. Eddard refused. He would not risk the vagaries of combat and having some situation arise that would see the decimation of such a potent fighting force.

While the two men argued Eddard looked over the large grouping of Waynhim. He was told the roughly triangular shape was called a ‘fighting wedge’. The Loremaster at the tip of the triangle. The focus of all the individuals focused through to the Loremaster. The others could fight individually but the focus was always to project strength power to the Loremaster.
The Loremaster amplifying their combined shared power and able to project it out as black acid. He had caught glimpses of this acid during the fight. The acid had been devastating.

During the battle the Waynhim had been very active in attacking and in their defense. That could not be said now. The creatures were sitting straight down on their rear ends. Their knees up by their ears and their arms hugging their staves close to their bodies. They compressed tight into each other. They seemed asleep. The did not move or even seem to breath.

Only the Loremaster had risen up to converse with the Giant. The small Waynhim barking stridently back and forth with the Giant. When the Waynhim understood and agreed to Eddard’s insights the creatures sat back down and folded in on itself and seemed go back into a deep somnolent state.

They were seemingly conserving their strength for the next round of combat. He looked back at the Shadow Monster of the Melisandre and Ygritte. It sat in the same exact same pose. How strange he thought. He looked away.

He relayed to Barristan what he hoped to setup. Then it would be the proper time to use the Waynhim as a spear thrust deep into the heart of the enemies force. But, the situation had to be setup.

Barristan demurred grumbling. He wanted to strike more fully upon the enemy. Eddard gripped his shoulder.

“Trust me Barristan. I will bring our enemy to us. He is vain and conceited. I will lure him in.”

Barristan locked eyes with Eddard gauging him. He finally nodded relenting.

“Do you think our Queen is dead” Barristan asked Eddard.

“Yes” was Eddard’s simple reply. He would not lie. They had to move on and meet the challenge of Ice King. Daenerys would not be coming to their aid.

He walked away from Barristan unwilling to talk of it further. He had pinned everything on Daenerys Targaryen taking the Iron Throne. He was sure she would lead in a golden age. Now all was in doubt. Who would rise up to take the throne? He had no desire for it. He feared what would happen in the vacuum caused by the Queen’s death.

He walked back to be near his son Jon and his wives. The High Lords of the Houses of Westeros had assembled there. The other warriors and lords who had Valyrian weapons were gathered too. Eddard now had his own strike force.

His sad eyes looked down at Arya. She was sitting down with slumped shoulders. Tears randomly running down her cheeks. She sat still and listless. Her eyes vacant. Eddard knew Arya would most probably fight mightily on the battlefield if the time for it came. He just needed to make sure she did not rush headlong into death seeking to join Daenerys in the afterlife. Killing her enemy right and left until she herself was cut down.

Jon, Melisandre and a recovering Ygritte had all agreed to keep her close. Her weapon of choice in this conflict was the bow giving her the ability to reach out and touch her enemies with a deadly kiss. It lay unstrung beside her. It was ready for use but Eddard doubted his daughter would ever use it again. Eddard knew she would pull her rune sword and rush into their foe to her death. He looked down at Arya. She was near catatonic now. He doubted she would do anything now. She was simply broken.

Those around Arya would keep an eye on her for any sudden rousing and rash actions taken.
It was after the battle that caused Eddard gave concern with his daughter. Arya did not have the will to carry on. How would he give his daughter the strength to carry on? Her focus for living had become Daenerys Targaryen.

Motion caught Eddard’s attention out of the corner of his eye. He looked back over the plain between their camp and the fallen Wall. He studied the actions of his enemy. They had definitely changed their tactics. He stood on the top of the berm taking in all before him.

He noticed that the sun was running towards the western horizon. Dark was coming on. It was still off a ways but it was coming. Darkness was a friend to their enemy. Their senses attuned to the dark. Eddard was sure the Ice King had attacked in the early morning in the hope of catching them unawares.

Thank the old gods for the birds coming to attack their foes. They had been forewarned. If that had not occurred, Eddard feared what the result would have been. It would have gone poorly. If Lord Lustra had not been warned she would not have cast her counter spell to strip the invisibility of the Ice Wrights and Giants. The death they would have caused well may have been catastrophic.

The balance of power tipped to the Ice King.

Other random events had gone in their favor. Something had prevented the Ice King from dropping the Wall in a timely manner. He knew the Ice King had to plan on dropping the Wall as his strike force launched their surprise attack. Something had prevented it.

That had been a godsend from the old gods. Still, when the Wall had come down the forces of Westeros had received another mighty shock. The Ice King and his vile son the Croyel had devised a means to get their forces from the fallen Wall to the berm in only a fraction of the time that it should have taken. This had again almost been fatal.

Eddard was again thankful that the plans of Ice King had not gone as he planned. If he had been coordinate his attacks it would have gone much more poorly for the forces of Westeros.

The forces of the Ice King had attempted to bulrush and overwhelm their lines with a sudden supreme push. The forces had penetrated their lines in several places. They had been repulsed. It could have been much worse than it had been. They had been able to repulse each incursion into their frontlines giving the forces of the Ice King heavy losses.

Eddard knew they had been lucky in both chance and having the forces of the Land in their midst. The Croyel on the Ice King’s back had been able to produce a glamour that hide a strike force of Ice Wrights and Ice Giants. They had just been moving into position when the Lord of Revelstone had been able to strip that invisibility away.

The spell probably would have been broken once combat had been truly joined and arrows and swords started to impact the glamour induced invisibility. Still, the damage would have already been done. While invisible they would have killed all three dragons and many of the High House Lords before they had truly realized that they had an enemy in their midst.

But that had not occurred. With their invisibility ripped from them the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants had been dealt with.

The old gods had smiled on the forces of Westeros. For some reason the Ice King had delayed his assault on the Wall and then the forces of Westeros. With the breeches in the Wall and the yellow ichor that had transported the dead to their front lines in a few minutes instead of an hour would have been devastating if properly coordinated.
It had not been. The delay in that attack allowed the forces of Westeros to first deal with the surprise attack and when the delayed main assault commenced the first attack had been dealt with. The forces of Westeros then able to focus on the horde of Walking Dead sprinkled with Ice Wrights and Giants. They had suffered losses not having time to fully form up but they had decimated the forces of the Ice King.

Where there had been breaches the two remaining dragons, Viserion and Rhaegal, and the forces of the Land had been able to repel the breeches and drive the Walking Dead and Icy spawn back from the lip of the berm and back down its incline. Once repelled the archers were able to deal with the threat. Dragon glass and flaming arrows killing their foes granting a permanent second death.

Now the forces of Westeros were fully lined up and prepared. Troops were already cycling back to eat and rest. The troops affecting any needed repairs to their kit. The first set of archers had pulled back and were resting. They would need days to fully get their strength back but they would not have that. They would have the strength necessary to fire their arrows at close range.

Eddard had adjusted his forces to increase the efficacy of their fire on the enemy when the next major assault occur.

He had talked to the sappers in charge of the siege weapons. He had instructed the scorpions to concentrate their fire to just beyond the berm and the first fifty yards before the berm. He would rely on the catapults and trebuchets to do damage at distance. He needed the scorpions to handle the Icy spawn that got in close and to impale the undead if they attempted to swarm the forces of Westeros.

That was his forces. The commander of the forces of Westeros looked out over the plain before him. The forces of their foe had learned and were making tactical changes as well. The Ice Wrights were holding back most of the Walking Dead now. Eddard could see the Wrights commanding the Ice Giants to not advance into the killing range of the forces of Westeros. They were by and large holding back out of range of the forces of Westeros. The main force was just outside the range of the large trebuchets.

There was Walking Dead milling around in the killing ground. Eddard had posted observers with war horns on the front lines. The Walking Dead seemed to have lost their compulsion to move forward and attack. The massed firing of arrows would not be launched again until the next major assault. It was not a matter of the fear of running out of arrows but the tiring of the archers. From time to time more skilled archers were taking down the undead when they ventured closer to the front lines but overall the forces of Westeros were conserving their strength for the next assault.

There would be another major assault. Of that Eddard was sure. The matter had not been settled between him and the Ice King. His enemy had not journeyed and initiated this war only to have a stalemate. He needed total victory to achieve his aims. Eddard could live with a draw and then plan a series of attacks to slowly drive the Ice King back and trap him by the sea on either end of the continent. Or up into the icy wastes of the far north. He was not sure what to do if that happened.

No. The Ice King needed his victory now. He now knew that the forces of Westeros had the one weapon he could not fight against. Dragon Glass. It was a total game changer. Eddard knew his enemy knew he would not be given a respite. He would be hunted relentlessly. He would be given no rest to regroup and devise other nefarious plans.

It had been nearly three and half hours since the last major attack had ceased now. The Dragon Glass had worked beyond anyone’s dreams. Obsidian was indeed a total anathema to the both the Walking dead and the Ice sons of the Ice King.

When the undead shambled in range of the sharp shooting archers they were shot down. They did not try to dodge any of the arrows fired at them. They truly dead attacked with no care or sense of danger. The Walking Dead lurching forward until feathered with dragon glass and dying the second death that was permanent. This had been an advantage to the undead when only fire was their foe.
This innate compulsion to advance no matter the damage done to their bodies. It gave them a ferocity that made them at times unstoppable. Now they merely moved forward to be slaughtered.

He saw the four Ice Wrights that had somehow developed the ability to send up a spidery web of magical tendrils that was able to knock out many of the massed arrows but not all. Fortunately, the cloud they sent up was relatively small compared to the length and breadth of the battlefield. Enough arrows fell through the tendrils seeking them out. Many still fell back to earth. Of course many found the Earth but enough were killing both the Walking Dead and the Ice creations of the Ice King.

It kept the forces Ice Wrights and Giants in an excited state and a showing a real unwillingness to charge forward. The question Eddard wondered was how much longer would this lull last. Again he looked up at the sky. The world had not darken yet but the time for the glooming of the world would be begin soon. Then it would be the season of the witch according to the old wives tales.

Eddard seeing this new phenome of the spider web had word spread to the archer commanders how to fire off their arrows to deal with this new ability. He asked if anyone knew who these four Ice Wrights were. What made them special? He was told that these were four survivors from the first surprise assault. The remaining pieces of shattered ice armor still clung to their bodies. Evidently, being hidden by the spell of the Croyel had given them a new ability.

Some of the Walking Dead were still trying to press forward. The Ice Wrights worked to hold them back but the compulsion that the Ice King had filled the undead with compelled them to move forward to confront the enemies of the Ice King. The Ice Wrights had to work to hold them back.
The undead did not attack their Ice Wright masters and seemed to somewhat follow their lead.

Eddard looked back to where Arya was still sitting in a lost daze. She was sitting like a broken marionette that could never stand again. She started to sob again brokenly. The sight tore at his heart. Eddard Stark had no idea what to do. He was a man that had little familiarity in giving comfort in such circumstances. He was stunted emotional. He prayed that Sansa would be able to reach Arya.

Twenty yards behind where Arya sat, the Shadow Monster that Ygritte had created with the blood of royalty and magically powerful denizens of the Land was still sitting with its limbs all folded up tight around its body. It did not breathe that he could see. The shadows of its torso and limbs seemed to ripple and flow. It made his stomach roil looking at the body writhing before him. It was awaiting enemies to rend and tear apart. He could live with his discomfiture. The Shadow Monster had been death given form against his enemies Eddard thought.

His gaze moved back to Barristan and the Waynhim wedge. The creatures were squatted down onto their haunches with their staves resting on the shoulders of their brethren. They were motionless like the ShadowBender monster. Both waiting to rouse themselves to fight their enemies. Barristan’s woman was moving around to the archers on both flanks. She was retelling her instructions making sure they were followed when the fight commenced once more.

The forces of Westeros waited patiently. The archers relaxed eating food brought to them by the cooks and runners feeding and giving water to the warriors. The knights and phalanxes of shield and pikes waiting to stand up and engage the Ice Wrights and Giants to delay while arrows and javelins pierced their bodies. The men jesting amongst themselves. Making light of the danger they faced.
Using ribald humor to calm nerves.
Another half hour passed when Eddard saw the change. He jumped up telling his steward to sound the war horn alerting the archers to form up and prepare to fire in mass and repeat. That action triggering the catapult and trebuchets to prepare to launch their first projectiles. The scorpion operators rushing to and climbing up the steps of the mini towers the scorpions sat upon. The men and women of Dorne nervously awaiting the firing off of their first salvo of weapons. The catapults and trebuchets would kill at range. The scorpions would do their killing up close and persona.

The second assault was commencing. Round two Eddard thought grimly. This time they were ready. He hoped it would be enough.

Barristan: Barristan heard the war horns sounding. He had been conversing with Marleya Blackmyre and Syrio Forel when he heard the notes cutting into the still air. The rain making all sounds muted, thus, the high pitched war horns sounded like peals from the gods. The plaintive notes echoing in the air. Barristan took a deep breath. He was prepared. He clapped Syrio on the back before the man walked off fast. He would send Strong Belwas to Syrio in time for him to join the fight. The fat eunuch snoring away just behind Barristan. The man now comatose after ramming two urns of locust down his gullet. He complained until he passed out that still hungered to the core of his being. Barristan shook his head at the sight of the fat bald snoring eunuch.

Marleya came up to him. He embraced her chastely. She had none of that. She hugged Barristan fiercely and kissed him with adore.

“Keep yourself safe Barristan. I don’t want to have to nurse you back to health. I just found you and will not lose you!” she spoke with fire in her words.

“I will prevail my love. You have the more dangerous task. Please, please keep yourself safe Marleya Blackmyre. I thought loved had passed me by. You have given me so much. I could not bear to lose you.”

The woman hugged him fiercely again and gave him another hard kiss. Then she moved off to the right flank of the Waynhim fighting wedge. The beasts … Barristan stopped himself in disgust—his fierce allies stilled seemed to be a state of somnolence. They had to know that the enemy was about to attack and yet they sat down unmoving. It was unnerving. Barristan took a deep breath. The Demondim spawn had proved faithful beyond compare. They would rouse themselves when the time came.

He would trust in that. He hoped. A grimace crossed his face.

The three looked out over the expanse before them from their new positions. A rush of adrenaline rushed through the old knight’s body. The elixir filling Barristan with nervous energy. The battlefield before them was littered with countless Walking Dead that had died the permanent second death. Their bodies lying where they fell. Their bodies filled with arrows or javelins tipped with obsidian. Their bodies turning black.

Those Walking Dead hit by flaming arrows and the flaming missiles fired from the catapults and trebuchets had burned like stars fallen from the night time sky. Their bodies reduced to piles of char and ash.

The weapon of choice was Dragon Glass because it was deadly to both the Walking Dead and to the Ice Wrights and Giants. Barristan had seen both icy spawn of the Ice King shrug off the fire tipped arrows. They merely bounced off their hard icy body. The iron tipped had been able to penetrate but a quarter of an inch at most before the metal became brittle and shattered. Neither fire nor iron seemed to have any effect on the Ice Wright or Giants.
Without dragon glass the forces of their fallen Queen would have been at severe disadvantage.

Eddard thought a prolonged hot fire would harm them. Daenerys had relayed to them how her Dragon’s fire burned the Ice Wrights and Giant with ease. But that was magical fire. She had also proven that the magic woven into Valyrian blades was equally deadly to them. The knowledge of her first fight with the forces of the Ice King were being used now against his forces.

Barristan and the others armed with Valyrian steel had proven that in the first assault. Barristan was thankful that the Queen had gifted her most trusted protectors with such weapons. He had only wished that she had had enough to arm all. The fight would have been finished long ago if that had been true. The forces of Westeros unstoppable. Instead they had to fight from distance if at all possible.

The yellow ichor was now filled with waves that advanced like the incoming tide. The waves lapping forward.

Well I’ll be damned Barristan thought. Eddard had predicted this.

The waves were picking up the vast numbers of the killed Walking Dead and was bringing their limp unresponsive bodies forward on the tide like driftwood thrown up the shores during a violent shore. The bodies rolled and jerked along. The bodies advancing towards the berm.

With the still animated undead and Icy spawn hanging back this allowed the dead detritus to advance alone towards the berm. It was a sickening sight to see the shapes of men and women rolled forward unceremoniously. True, they had long ceased to be human but he still felt for the forlorn bodies rolled forward like discarded garbage. Countless other bodies of fallen animals also rolled forward on the lapping yellow waves.

The horns had been used to alert the archers to be ready to fire. The note to fire was not given yet. The training of the forces of Westeros held. Eddard and their beloved Queen’s training paying huge dividends now.

Eddard was going to use the dead against their enemies. Barristan watched the dead roll and flip towards them. The old knight was impressed by the speed with which the beings out in the plain before them were being brought forward. Still there was a large separation between the two opposing forces. But that would not last long.

Syrio pointed. Yes, Barristan thought. Here they come. The Ice Wrights had been holding back the Walking Dead and the Ice Giants back at approximately seven hundred yards. The Wrights were intelligent enough to avoid wasting their fodder. They had a sea behind them that they had held back.

Barristan was sure that the Ice King had devised his strategy for his next assault. It would be different from the first if their foe had a human mind to guide his actions.

The old knight smiled. They were prepared now. The first assault had been repelled but just barely. If the attacks of the cloaked strike force, the traitorous Freys and Boltons and the full on frontal assault had been coordinated Barristan shivered at the thought. All three attacks occurring simultaneously would have been much harder to repel if not outright devastating.

That was not the case now. They were ready.

Again Barristan thanked the seven that the birds had alerted them to the Ice King being at the Wall. The birds flying in furiously from all points on the compass. He had seen species that lived in Essos and only came to Westeros in the spring to bare their young. For the birds to attack now showed the old knight that even the birds knew the urgency of their assault.

It had also been their fortune to also have the Lord of Revelstone with them. She had been able to strip away the spell of invisibility of the surprise attack force before they had been able to fall on them unprepared. After that she had showed her true power finally. Her attacks on the undead and Icy spawn had staggered the mind. The woman had the power of the gods it seemed like to Barristan. Her blue Lord’s Fire simply obliterated her foes.

This woman could single handily destroy the great castles of Westeros if protected by Giants and Haruchai. He again thanked the heavens that the forces of the Land had come to their aid.

The camp had been alerted by the birds but being assaulted by foes you could not see would have been heinous. Eddard thought that the effect of weapons striking the glamour would have broken the glamour but by then the damage would have been done.

Only Rhaegal had been injured. His leg could not support his weight but he could fly. Viserion was hale and whole. Unfortunately, they were exhausted and currently in a deep sleep. Drogon had fallen to his death but he and the Queen had been able to fly up to engage and defeat the Ice Dragon before they too had had been killed in the aerial duel. The threat from the air had been removed.

Barristan still could not believe it. Daenerys Targaryen had seem untouchable. The pale Queen a force of nature that nothing had been able to contend with. To find out she was mortal after all was a shock.

The man pushed those thoughts aside. The battle was about to commence again.

The first flotsam had reached the heaped dead that filled the ditch before the berm. The detritus starting to pile up on itself. The dead piling up more and more and starting to climb up the slope of the berm. There was a few surviving Walking Dead that had somehow survived the killing field. They immediately followed their compulsion to attack and moved up the slope of dead in a clumsy manner their movement slow and awkward.

Still no arrows flew out at them. Eddard had made it clear he would give the command to fire the arrows. Barristan was impressed with the discipline that had been instilled into the army of Westeros.

The plan was simple and elegant. He would use the very undead against them. The main tide of the second assault was riding the yellow waves lapping at the flotsam before the berm. It would take several minutes to reach the berm. He could see that the Ice Wrights had opened the gates to the seven hells. The undead again advanced in their stumbling dance of the macabre. Their approach steady. The lapping yellow ichor turning a journey that should have taken way more than an hour instead last only minutes.

Barristan and Syrio watched them come. Marleya had moved off to make sure the archers around the quiescent Waynhim fighting wedge were ready. They had all hunkered down on their haunches with their staves on their brothers shoulders. The massive wedge of over nine hundred individuals was still a compact thing. Nearly a hundred had been slain in the earlier combat. Barristan had faith in the Demondim spawn. Still, with the closer the approach of the undead became Barristan could not help but feel his unease increase and in turn his terror ratcheted up as he looked at the unmoving Demondim spawn.

He needed the Waynhim to wake up!
The wedge no more than thirty yards across and maybe thirty-five yards deep. The wedge tip facing the advancing tide. The Waynhim on the edges had their staves of iron and bone resting on the ground. Even their tallest member at the tip of the wedge, their Loremaster, was seeming asleep with his stave of iron resting its tip on the ground.

Marleya went first to the far side of the Waynhim wedge talking to that commander of the nearly three hundred archers on that side. She then ran to the close side of the wedge and talked to that commander of two hundred and fifty archers. These men and some women were the most accurate of their archers. She then rushed behind the wedge and talked to the commander of the Black Panthers a mercenary company from the island of Great Moraq. They were five hundred archers who were famed for their skill and accuracy. They would fire where and when needed. If not needed for close in support they would fire ahead of the wedge to thin out the ranks attacking the Loremaster.

Now Marleya ran around behind the wedge and the mercenary company yelling at the camp attendants that would be wheeling wheelbarrows filled with quivers. They had to keep up. Both to supply the archers but to also survive. They had runners that would run quivers out to where they were needed.

Barristan was proud of Marleya. She had trained the archers of the Queen. She had picked their best archers to be her company of deadly skilled archers. She had then picked the best archers from the north to add to her force with Eddard’s blessing.

She called her fighting force the Scorpion’s Tail. The snap of their tail devastating.

Barristan and Syrio were most satisfied. On the Dothraki plains they had not been able to truly protect the flanks of the Ur-vile wedges. They had been able to deflect and lessen attacks but too many Ur-viles had died because they had not been able to fully protect them from attack.

Not this time. Now that they had formed up the archers of Westeros would be able to defend the Waynhim so they could attack at will their mutual enemies. That was if the damn Waynhim woke up Barristan said nervously to himself. The enemy was approaching!

Following behind at a distance of one hundred yards from the fighting wedge where three legions of archers from Essos. These companies had their own camp attendants following with wheelbarrows filled with quivers of Dragon Glass arrows. A small wagon was behind the Black Panthers filled with urns of oil. They had quivers filled with arrows tipped with hemp and tar pitch tied around the arrow points.

Now the small urns were light. Barristan walked over to the pile of furs and bent down.

“Wake up, Wake up” he shook the shoulder he was grabbing.

“I’m sooooo hungry! I need more locusts!” Strong Belwas sleepily protested. Engorged the fat eunuch had suddenly had a sleepy spell. The old knight had let him sleep. He had furs brought to cover the bald man. He earned his idiosyncratic behaviors. They were endearing with the immense but fast fighter.

“You ate two whole large urns two hours ago man! That is the reason you fell asleep so suddenly Belwas. The enemy comes.”

Strong Belwas was instantly awake and stood up casting off the furs he had been sleeping in. He unsheathed his scimitar. He no longer looked or acted like the child he did when they were at peace. Now he looked like the stone cold killer he had trained to be in the fighting pits of Meereen.
He walked up to join Syrio Forel. The two ran to the other side of the wedge. Renly and Loras were there with them. On his side was Javer Brander of House Hawick and Alon Merser of House Vyrwel of Darkdell. They both had Valyrian steel forged weapons. Javer had a two head battle while Alon had the traditional broadsword that rippled blue in the dull light. They had men around them with heavy iron shields. Their job to hold the Walking Dead back so they could be killed by the magical weapons arrayed against them.

Barristan looked out at the approaching undead and in their midst ducking low Ice Wrights and the Ice Giants hiding behind some mammoths and a large cave bear.

“Gaaaaaaaaaa!” Barristan shouted and jumped forward with a bunny hop.

With a start the Waynhim had jumped up to their feet. The Waynhim on the edge of the fighting wedge whipping up their staves in a two handed grip. The initial wave of the Walking Dead was only a hundred and fifty yards out now. The Waynhim had been silent as they waited but now their roynish barking filled the air. The Waynhim seemingly arguing with each other jabbing elbows and jamming shoulders into each other.

Barristan had learned this was natural for them. The cohesion of the fighting wedge not compromised but enhanced Barristan knew. Arguing seemed to be the state that the Demondim spawn enjoyed the most.

Some of the dead that had been milling around in the kill zone still alive had now reached the top of the berm having navigated the heaped dead. Single arrows shot out to pierce eye or mouth. Others took arrows to the heart and sinking deep into their bodies. The Walking Dead toppling back down to the slope of the berm. Their bodies added to the dead undead already there.

Eddard had his hand on the shoulder of the horn blower. He was waiting.

The dead were almost at the berm now. The Waynhim were jumping up and down in excitement. The promontory they were on was surrounded by both sides with the Walking Dead. The undead beginning to navigate over the heaped bodies of their undead brothers who had been granted their second death. A second death they would not arise again from.

Still Eddard waited as the Walking Dead began to scale the mounds of their second killed brothers and sisters. The plain before them was now thick with the Walking dead propelled forward by the yellow waves on the ichor. The closest undead scrambling up the embankment of the berm.

No arrows had been fired in volleys yet. Barristan could see the nervousness in everyone. He felt it too.

Eddard still waited. Barristan knew his plan was simple but devastating. He had been using the last two hours dousing the killed walking dead before the berm in oil that he had thrown on them by the pitcher full. This was done up and down the berm all the entire length. The work done on a small scale to hopefully go undetected. Eddard wanted to make sure that there was no chance his plan would not work.

Eddard was going to use the properties of the Walking Dead against them. He would use one death to create another. He wanted to make sure the inferno burned as hot and bright as possible. He wanted the undead to be instantly alight and totally consumed by fire quickly.

The second wave of Walking Dead was nearing the top of the wall of dead that had heaped up before the berm. Their clumsy efforts finally being rewarded. They would soon fall upon the forces of the Westeros.
Barristan watched Eddard squeeze the shoulder of the squire beside him. The youth lifted the horn to his lips and blew the clarion call. The call picked up and repeated up and down the lines of the forces of Westeros. Now the air echoed with the repeated notes. The sound exhilarating to the old knight.

Archers stepped forward and fired off their dragon glass tipped arrows. Blizzards flying down the slope of the berm. The shambling dead instantly cut down with the massed firing off of volleys of dragon glass tipped arrows. They stepped back having thinned out the ranks of undead. The bodies tumbling back down the slope.

Now other archers stepped forward. On their bows were arrows whose tips burned hotly. Their hot glows thick along the berm. The archers fired off their flaming arrows into the mound of dead that was heaped up to near the top of the berm now. The undead lying intertwined in twisted heaps. Flights of arrows up and down the front lines impacting the oil soaked dead.

The conflagration that immediately erupted was amazing to Barristan. The dead burned instantly. The fire racing from body to body of the second killed. Their bodies had rotted with their second death from Dragon Glass but they still burned like bonfires. The oil soaked bodies burning even brighter and hotter than normally would. The heat of the fires of the undead radiated out in waves making the cold air shimmer.

The flames roared to life quickly consuming the second kill and spreading to their slain brethren next to them. The flames racing up and down the line of the berm. The small islands forming continents that quickly bridged together to the whole line of the berm was burning fiercely.

That was the beauty of Eddard’s plan. The still Walking Dead climbing up the wall their slain brothers had made. The slain undead and the Walking Dead were now burning hotly. The lapping wave motion of yellow ichor was pushing the next Walking Dead into the configuration. They had no intellect or will to avoid the danger they were being led to. Even if they somehow sensed their dangers their brothers on their backs pushed them forward to their doom.

Each new arriving Walking Dead pushed forward by his arriving brothers behind the undead before them pushing their brothers forward to be burned and incinerated. Eddard was using the forces of the undead and their compulsions and the yellow ichor against the Ice King. The Warden of the North was turning a threat into an advantage.

The dead did burn fast though. The bodies crackling and popping as the flesh, hair, muscle, tendons and then bone quickly ignited and was reduced to slag and ash before finally going down to move no more. Bodies reduced to slimy char and smoky ash from the more intense flames. The bodies consumed in raging infernos that consumed the bodies of the undead in quick haste.

Barristan was impressed. For fifteen minutes a wild raging bonfire burned before the forces of Westeros. The yellow waves had stopped so the Walking Dead were no longer forced forward but their compulsion to move forward to attack the living could not be dampened it seemed and they still staggered forward to be incinerated. They could not stop themselves. It was just that they arrived slower.

Barristan had enjoyed the show. Seeing the undead compel their brothers to fiery destruction was sweet. The Waynhim seemed to be enjoying the show too but Barristan could not be sure. They maintained their fighting wedge which was impressive with all their jumping around and wild barking at everything and nothing one would think.

Now Barristan watched the Warden of the North turn to his steward again. A different note was played. The note picked up by other war horns till it rippled up and down the lines of the forces of Westeros by answering war horns.

A grim smile on his face Barristan watched the lines of archers who had been at rest pull an arrow from their quivers and notched them. The bowstrings pulled back and the bows angled up. As one the sounds of thousands of bowstrings being released from the variously arrayed bowmen. The loud angry hissing of those thousands of arrows taking flight made the heart soar. All up and down the line of Westeros countless thousands of arrows were sent into the air. The very air filled with angry shrill whistles of uncounted arrows flying out to the forces of the Ice King.

The archers wasted no time notching their next arrows and letting loose. Now the various companies were all moving at their own internal rhythm. All working together within their own units. Once all had notched their arrows the bows were again lifted to let loose the next swarm.

The original volleys had been strictly been Dragon Glass arrows but now the swarms were filled with fireflies to add their own unique sting to the Walking Dead before them. Eddard had staggered the position of the archers so that they now had their arrows arching down from near the berm to the furthest reach of the longbows.

Barristan felt elation running through his blood feeling the constant release of arrows. He looked up the clouds of arrows arching out to their enemy. It was almost unfair in away Barristan thought. The undead could not fire back and the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants only fought with swords. It was beyond sweet that one did not have to worry with return arrow fire.

Arrows whistling down in the late afternoon light dulled by the clouds. The rain had turned to snow now. The snow not truly obscuring the massive mass of targets. The old knight was satisfied to see the Walking Dead staggering all along their forward march as Dragon Glass penetrated their bodies. Some fell straight down dead with head and heart shots. Others poisoned with arrows hits that would slowly cut the magical strings still giving their bodies their second unnatural life. These undead stumbled and gyrated to a deadly dance of slow death.

Now the air was filled with the sounds of siege engines letting lose their missiles at the advancing horde. Barristan heard the arms whooshing forward and then the loud smack of those arms hitting their stops. The trebuchets sent their massive projectiles or massed smaller ones arching high. The catapults did not fire as high with their projectiles.

Barristan watched the various projectiles of the trebuchets arching high to then fall upon the advancing mass of undead. The large heavy stones landing on the undead simply pulping bodies to viscera that could do nothing but quiver. Smaller projects tumbled through the air on fire. Those that struck undead light them up to burn brightly. Invisible to the naked eye in the dimming light were shards of discarded obsidian. The projectiles cutting the undead and Icy spawn of the Ice King.

The nicks and cuts of dragon glass did not kill but it poisoned. The effects slow but sure.

The trebuchets that had large skins of oil were fired off. The bags undulating through the air. These trebuchets shooting high in the air to reduce their reach. The bags tumbled to the ground sending oil everywhere. On the outside of the skins had been sew in fire pots. The oil burst into flame with the shattering of the fire pots sending flaming coils in all directions. Masses of the undead going up in towering flames.

Many of the catapults fired in almost flat lines. In fact, Eddard had many adjusted to fire low over their heads. The air whirled just over their heads as the projectiles passed close by their heads. Barristan heard war fighters shout fearing some of the projectiles might actually impact upon them. None did. The sappers too skilled for that to happen.
The flaming projectiles slammed into the ground only twenty to forty yards in front of the berm. The flaming projectiles hopped and skipped on the ground as they rolled forward fast. The missiles impacting multiple bodies. The first bodies smashed and rolled over. They got up slowly but their bodies now alight were burning furiously. The projectiles skipping forward to smash into other walking dead setting them alight before their forward momentum was exhausted.

Barristan smiled hearing the closest siege operators cursing and grunting as they reloaded the cups and slings of their weapons and pulled the ropes taught to pull arms back to once more fling forward to hurl death and destruction upon the advancing horde. The sounds of stops being jammed hard echoed up and down the lines of Westeros.

In a way Barristan almost felt bad for the Walking Dead. They had not asked to be turned into the monstrosities they had become. They had no mind and simply walked forward to destruction. It was like shooting arrows at fish in a small barrel. Barristan quickly dispelled any such thoughts. The Walking Dead had only one compulsion. To rend and kill all that lived and breathed.

The Walking Dead were falling all around up and down the line of the berm. The yellow ichor and the guidance of the Ice Wrights beyond the furthest reach of the trebuchets dispersed the Walking Dead to attack along the whole front of the forces of Westeros.

Barristan was sure their lines were being tested. The assault hoping to tax the full forces of Westeros and find a weakness. Now that they had been properly arrayed and had time to form up the fire from the forces of Westeros was deadly. Barristan hoped that no weakness would be revealed.

As the Walking Dead who survived the flights of arrows and projectiles started to climb up the berm now cleared of dead by their consumption through fire archers popped up and shot down. Their arrows finding their marks. It did not matter if they missed. Archers were moving up and firing and then retreating for cover as their mates stepped up and fired down.

They had the numbers to have the archers keep up a steady stream of arrows being fired off. Already the closest archers to the edge of the berm were moving back to rest as fresh archers moved forward to take up the fight. The men had trained for nearly a year now on this tactic. They were performing flawlessly.

The Walking Dead did not use weapons. Their bodies were their weapons. This meant they had limited reach. They could not reach out and touch their foes from distance. They literally had to get their hands on their foes to rend and kill. Still, Eddard and Daenerys had trained their respective armies to take no chances. The archers stayed undercover as much as possible. When they loitered on the top of the berm their company commanders snatched them back down. There would be no needless deaths.

If one was not actively engaged in killing the enemy then they were to retreat. Only those ready to kill were to up at the front of the berm.

The Ice Wrights and Ice Giants had shown themselves to use only swords so far. That had been the lore given to the forces of the south and north from the Wildlings and Crows. The Icy spawn of the Ice King relied on their cold nature and speed to bring their enemies down. Normal weapons had no effect on them. Their weapons and their very icy natures quickly shattered the steel of normal weapons.

This had always worked in the past for the spawn of the Ice King. Their very nature antithetical to the weapons of man.

Fortunately, the forces of Westeros were not fighting with normal weapons. They were fighting with...
Dragon Glass and fire. The results were devastating. Now it was the forces of Westeros that were fighting at advantage. Barristan thought it was more than time.

There was a large contingent of Walking Dead that had reached the promontory now and were attempting to swarm up the slopes. Marleya Blackmyre shouted out her command and hundreds of Dragon Glass tipped arrows shot out. The front lines of the Walking Dead toppled over dead. The front lines riddled with multiple hits to their bodies. Many falling down dead with seven or eight arrows in them.

It did not matter to Marelya and her archers that so many arrows found one target. They had plenty of arrows to fire off at their enemy. The first dead were slowing their brothers behind them as they stumbled and crawled over the new obstacles of their fallen brethren. The archers filled with adrenaline fired off fast and furious. The undead in falling down dead hindered those behind them moving forward. The falling down of the feathered undead opened the next line of undead to be feathered. Row after row killed in his manner.

Fire arrows came whistling in to ignite the Walking Dead and set alight the undead now truly dead sprawled on the ground unmoving.

The Wanyhim suddenly tightened their wedge up. The small Demondim spawn at full attention. Their Loremaster swung his iron stave that glowed red on its tip. A large swath of Demondim spawn acid flung out the tip arching out thirty yards spreading out into a web of acid death. The substance immediately ate away at the Walking Dead. The acid simply eating into their bodies down to the core if fully splashed.

The acid also had the same effect as Dragon Glass. Even a small splash that only ate away slowly and a small spot on the Walking Dead sent out the black tendrils that signaled that the Walking Dead were being poisoned. The undead uncaring. The ‘wounded’ Walking Dead still stumbling forward in their attempt to reach the living. Barristan watched the Loremaster swirl his stave sending out another long splash of their acid that was deadly to all that it touched.

Arrows and Demondim spawn acid simply obliterated the enemy trying to scale the Promontory. Soon the initial wave had all been destroyed. More were coming and they were ready for them. It was a slaughter ground for their enemies. Just the way that Barristan liked it. He did not relish killing but if it came between his forces and his enemies then they must simply die to the last man or undead if necessary.

He watched flights of arrows flying off now all up and down the frontlines of the forces of Westeros. The archers up on the berm firing down on the enemy advancing upon them up the berm. The undead falling dead with multiple arrows of dragon glass penetrated their body. Some of the archers firing off fire tipped arrows to set undead alight. The archers firing off fire arrows into the now undead who had embraced true death a second time. Their bodies lighting up and burning. Those undead trying to stumble forward over their fallen burning brothers and sisters also lighting up and burning.

As Barristan watched he saw multiple massive clouds of arrows were being fired up to arch down on the advancing tide of undead riding the yellow ichor carrying them forward. While the ichor was not lapping it still seemed to help the undead advance much quicker than they otherwise could. All along the frontlines of Westeros the enemy were now fully engaged. The siege engines now fully joined the fray. Projectiles flying. The second phase of the battle was in full force.

The scorpion platforms had joined the fray with the enemy now at point blank range. The massive bolts being fired off not in random but at specific targets. Eddard wanted their fire to be used to clear away those forces of the Ice King trying to penetrate the front lines of Westeros. To see the undead flung back like ragdolls was a sight to see Barristan thought.

Barristan and the fellow Valyrian steel armed knights had time to look around. Barristan let his sight roam the forces behind and before him. He saw Jon and his wives with a still despondent Arya sitting between them. Ygritte was sitting up and she looked more hale. Poor Arya did not look hale. She was weeping again hard. Her shoulders shaking with her sobs. Her eyes red and swollen. Her shoulders slumped in defeat. He feared she might never recover.

The Shadow Demon the ShadowBender witches had created was still sitting on its haunches folded in on itself. The beast was clearly conserving its strength for when it was needed. He watched strange ripples work up and down its body. He realized that this Shadow Monster was in some ways like the Waynhim. Neither were born like a man but created. He shook his head at that realization.

Barristan saw the Direwolves of the Starks by Arya. Nymeria licking an unresponsive Arya’s face. The Direwolf did not look happy. The wolves stalking around the Stark teenager. Barristan knew they were waiting to attack. They and Barristan sensed they would have targets to attack soon enough.

The forces of the Land were near Eddard. It had been determined that they would stay near Eddard and be used in case of a breech. The Lord from Revelstone had proven to be an unstoppable force. Her Lord’s Fire was unstoppable and completely obliterated both the Walking Dead and any Ice Wright or Giant that was unfortunate to be before her Lord’s Fire.

She had been able to produce her Lord’s Fire for the length of the first wave of attack. She was exhausted by the end of it. Like Daenerys dragons, Lord Lustra had limits. Fortunately, she had hours to recover. She had consumed large amounts of Diamonddraught of the Giants. Her lover, Brail, also gave her a small amount of rillinlure. Wood dust from the heart of the Gilden Trees that populated the Land. The rillinlure had magical healing properties.

Between the two healing draughts the Lord seemed ready to again give herself mightily in the defense of Westeros.

Looking up and down the lines on and behind the berm Barristan inspected the forces of Westeros. The lines were holding except eight hundred yards to the east. There the dead had gained the berm top and were slowly advancing. Men with heavy shields had formed up and interlocked their shields. The undead were relentless with their surging forward. The shields held the Walking Dead back but also kept the archers from getting accurate shots. Many arrows flying over the heads the dead.

The Lord of Revelstone took off down behind the berm in the lane that was kept open to allow troops to move east and west where necessary. She only had Brail, Bannor, Seregrom, and one other Haruchai with her. She only needed to be protected. She was a force unto herself. Barristan thought sadly that the personal guard of Daenerys had now attached themselves to the Lord of Revelstone. They had lost their charge to protect. Now they protected the person the considered the next most important.

The Giants of the Southern hemisphere running behind the Lord. If needed they would arrive soon behind the Lord of Revelstone. Barristan knew they would refuse to be not involved with the defense of Westeros.

The mighty horses of the Plains of Ra ran furiously towards to the breech. Atop their Ranyhyn the group was soon at the breech. The Lord of Revelstone screamed at the forces before to part and give way. The commanders were able to get the frightened men to give way which seemed counter intuitive to the scared men. To cease fighting and back away. That seemed to invite death. Their training held sway. They did as they were ordered.

The undead surged forward their hands and paws outstretched seeking warm blooded bodies to kill. Two giant cave bears were in the lead. Their hide peppered with arrows but they were still shambling forward. If they had been alive they would have been eager to kill. In death they were simply following their compulsion to move forward and kill. Their movements slow and awkward but ever forward.

Behind them more dead were surging forward. The edges of the shield wall that had not given way for the Lord of Revelstone began to crumble under the weight of the relentless assault of the undead. The shield wall had lasted long enough.

Even from eight hundred yards away Barristan could see and hear the Lord’s actions. She placed her staff against her ribs and her Ranyhyn’s flank and kicked her mounts ribs. Frinny surged forward on the top of the berm. Ranyhyn and Lord now almost in the grip of the shambling forward undead. The Lord showed no fear.

The Lord shouted out “Melenkurion abatha, Duroc minas mil, Harad khabaal.” The words echoing down the line. A massive blue bubble seemed to burst up into the air and for two heartbeats the world simply turned a deep royal blue. From the heart of the blue a massive column of Lord’s fire erupted from the towering bell of blue. Barristan knew the Lord’s staff had erupted into a mighty fountain of magical might. The colossal column of magical fire rolled mercilessly into the advancing dead.

The dead were gone. The Lord’s fire simply blew them to bits so fine they ceased to exist. The world tilted as mighty peals of thunder rolled off to the horizons. The Lord was visible again.

Barristan still could not get used to such power. The column of bright medium blue force impacted the advancing Walking dead. In the flash of impact, the Walking Dead ceased to exist back for nearly a hundred and twenty yards. Their bodies had simply been obliterated. The ground cleared as if they had never existed. One moment they were there and the next they had blown apart into viscera and bone fragments.

Lustra wheeled Frinny around and now shot out hot bolts of Lord’s Fire from the iron cap of her staff. She fired out her magical fire out at angles from her first massive blast of magical fire. This Lord’s Fire not enable and exponentially expanded by the magical words she had said. Still the magical might hit the undead like a battering ram shattering bodies and sending limbs and viscera flying in all directions.

The Lord surged down the berm and was now in the ditch. She kicked Frinny forward. There was no dead near her. They had been blown to bits. She was flanked by her Haruchai Bloodgaurd. She had wanted to get close to the next wall of advancing Walking Dead.

She blasted the Walking Dead as they shambled towards the berm. Lord Lustra shouted “Melenkurion abatha” with three more mighty blasts of her Lord’s Foul she had totally decimated the forces advancing before her. She retreated back up the berm. The archers again forming ranks and firing down at the Walking Dead. The immediate threat removed.

Lusta was on her way back where she would be ready to surge into the next incursion of the enemy’s forces.

Barristan was satisfied so far. Still he knew the true assault had yet to commence. He worried what would happen when multiple breeches started to occur. Lord Lustra could not be in two places at once. She was revitalized but he feared she would tire more quickly with this round of warfare. He fretted hoping that Viserion and Rhaegal would quickly revive. They were force multipliers like the Lord of Revelstone.

Ice King: Rage filled the heart of the Ice King. He was filled with anger for Eddard Stark. The man who was now the titular head of House Stark. The man seemed to be one step ahead of him at every turn. It was not fair! The former Stark raged in his soul. Darrick Stark hated this man. The Queen was dead. If he but could kill this man all would be well. He was the locus around which the forces of Westeros orientated themselves on.

With Daenerys Targaryen dead, if he could but kill Eddard Stark the will of Westeros would be broken.

He calmed himself. He cast off his doubts. He would kill Eddard Stark. He would kill Jon Snow the supposed Azor Ahai reborn. He would kill this Lord of Revelstone. Once he had removed them and better yet raised them into his service the rest would fall. The Queen he had already killed.

When he had commenced his second assault he had felt elation. He had stationed himself on the other side of the Wall and advanced several hundred yards. There was a small hill that allowed him to see over the field of combat. His far seeing eyes taking in the length and breadth of the battlefield.

He saw the vast sea of undead slain by Dragon Glass and fire. Many bodies in range of the archers lie on the ground unmoving. Their bodies sometimes filled with arrows like a porcupine. He seethed. How had they acquired so much dragon glass he again raged to himself? This thought again and again came to his mind. The Ice King had not known there was so much obsidian in the world. The forces of Eddard Stark shot their arrows off like they had no fear of running out.

Surely they had to be reaching the end of their stockpiles. They must be firing in a panic knowing their supplies were being exhausted. They had to be. Didn’t they?

The numbers of his undead he saw lying on the ground stunned him at first. He had never seen his Walking Dead so decimated. He was used to them simply marching forward on his foes and slowly and relentlessly tearing his foes apart. Some would die by fire but they were few and the damage usually already done. Never had he seen dragon glass used in such mighty numbers. He thought back. He was not sure he had seen any until the last four months.

Again the man who had been Darrick Stark wondered where Eddard and Daenerys had acquired the obsidian they used with a surfeit manner. He saw more clouds of arrows being fired off and arching through the sky. As with any flight of arrows many hit the ground but too many found his undead to sink their shafts into. In the past, this had been of no import. Now he watched some of his Walking Dead simply fall down in a heap. The magic animating them cut with head or heart shots.

Others of his undead staggered with an arrow or arrows jutting out their bodies. He could see small black lines radiating out from the arrow strikes. He knew the obsidian was slowly breaking the magical bonds animating his dead. He gritted his teeth and slammed his right hand fist into his left palm. He hated the ignominy of it.

His foes were supposed to be helpless before him he raged to himself. He felt his Croyel son whimpering. He did not like seeing his father confused. The Ice King took a deep breath he did not need. It calmed him the remembered reflex of when he was still just a man.

His foes had never had the weapons to oppose him before. They were almost always annihilated when they confronted his forces. His adopted sons singing the song of frozen rebirth that made the dead rise to serve him. Any losses suffered replaced with more to the good. His army had grown vast over the last ten years fighting like this. Killing all the men and wildlife he and his sons came across to ever increase his army.

He had walked the length and breadth of the land above the Wall. He rose the dead from the frozen earth. If their bodies were anywhere near the surface of the Earth or under sheets of ice in bodies of water they rose to his command. He had plucked the dead from their graves to create a mighty army. They had become like unto the grains of sand on the beach.

His army had indeed grown vast beyond number. Vast like the grains of sand on the shores of the shivering sea.

He had expected to take losses but nothing like this with nothing to show for it. He had been assured in his greatness that he would have crushed his enemy hours ago. Those that survived scattered and running south in abject terror. He would have all the time in the world to hunt them down and kill them.

Any losses he had suffered he was sure he would replace many times over. He would have added well over a two hundred thousand men and women. The warriors and camp attendants all killed except for those few who escaped his forces initially. He would kill all their horses and livestock. He would raise the three dragons. Yes he had thought. Any losses replaced many times over.

His losses were supposed to be few. The numbers easily replaced. He had expected his army to grow much more mighty in numbers. Instead, he would need the killed army of Westeros to simply replace the horrendous losses he was absorbing in this attack. His losses still exceeding what he could raise from the army before him. He felt great anger. He would enjoy killing all down the continent of Westeros replacing his fallen numbers.

Once their dragon glass was exhausted he would see his losses plummet.

He smiled with the thought of when he and his army would sweep south killing all in their farms, holdfasts and small castles as he marched his army south unopposed. His army growing fast and vast.

That was most definitely not happening now. He saw his forces being crushed. His forces being pummeled by the black smith’s mallet striking malleable metal against an anvil. He had simply never conceived of the thought even that his enemy would have dragon glass.

It kept coming back to that. The seeming unlimited stocks of dragon glass had tilted the battlefield against him. His blood boiled at those thoughts.

He ordered his true son to keep propelling his assault against the bulwark of the forces of Westeros. Surely, a second sustained assault would crack the defenses of Westeros. Once his forces were intermingled with those of his enemy their advantage of striking at distance with dragon glass would be removed.

His thoughts wandered back to the beginning of his second assault. He had not seen how the first wave had fared against the defenses prepared by Daenerys Targaryen and Eddard Stark. He had watched intently as the waves generated by his Croyel began to radiate out and wash quickly towards the berm before them three quarters of a mile away.

The Ice King noted the already slain undead washing and rolling forward to the berm. Their stiff bodies rolling and flipping forward like cast off wood in the waves at the shoreline. The dead soon piling up against the berm to join the mounds of dead killed before it during the first assault.

The Walking Dead that his Ice Wright sons had been holding back were allowed to be driven forward by the yellow ichor. The Ice Wrights knew how to step back through the waves to maintain their position. They restrained the Ice Giants.

The undead was not a limitless resource of the Ice King but he still had well over fourth fifths of his Walking Dead still to be used. He needed to assault the forces of Eddard Stark to wear them out and to continue using up his Dragon Glass stores. He knew his undead would take the brunt of the casualties. They were simply fodder to absorb the blows of the enemy.

The Ice King could not believe how flight after flight of obsidian tipped arrows were flying out from the berm. The arrows first arching up and then flying down. The undead that were hit cut down. More flights of such arrows ceaselessly taking light. He saw many fire tipped arrows also flying. Between the two his losses were grievous. It could not helped. He needed to exhaust their damn supplies!

Surely, they had to be close to exhausting their supply of the damnable insidious obsidian that had been cursed magically to create him. The Ice King had learned near the start of his rebirth that he and his brethren were deadly allergic to obsidian. Nothing else could truly harm them. But the slightest cut from Dragon Glass was death to them. It was a total anathema. What created them would also kill them.

His original seven brothers all slain by it. Only he had survived.

Dragon glass had always been limited. Even the Children of the Forest had limited supplies. Where in the hell had Eddard Stark and Daenerys Targaryen gotten the seemingly unlimited supply of the infernal material he raged to himself yet again? He had not known of any such stores when he was alive eight thousand years ago. This thought kept returning to his mind. It was like a tragic flaw constantly being revisited.

He watched the arrows fired off without a care in the world it seemed. Those arrows were decimating his assaults. He understood now why the first assault had failed. Dragon glass gave the advantage to Eddard Stark. He cursed the man. The man of his lineage played games with him.

When he had begun his second assault the Ice King had initially felt an increasing elation building in his icy heart. He watched his second major assault commence. The forces opposed to him did not fire their damnable clouds of Dragon Glass tipped weapons. The angry hissing clouds falling down upon his forces cutting them down like a scythe cutting through a field of wheat did not happen. He continued to watch as the new major assault neared the berm. Still no flights of dragon glass arrows occurred.

Hope bloomed in his dead frozen heart that the forces of Westeros had exhausted their supply of Dragon Glass. They did not let any fly. He now began to think that his first assault had indeed exhausted the supply of obsidian to the forces of the now fallen Queen and Eddard Stark.

The Ice King’s forces had reached the berm and were climbing up the wall of the embankment. His forces no longer being cut down mercilessly. Now his undead were almost upon the forces of the living. He actually smiled. Finally, his forces could finally begin killing his foes in earnest. The former Darik Stark felt giddy excitement running through his icy veins. He still had that much humanness within his dead heart.

Then the dead before the berm were set upon by archers who had remained hidden. The archers suddenly standing up and firing their arrows down the slope. The first advancing undead cut down like a scythe throw ripening wheat. Now archers with flaming arrows were up on the berm. They fired down into the ditch at the fallen undead.
Hot fires immediately shot up. The undead that had been cut down by dragon glass adding fuel to the rising flames. More archers stepped to fire their flaming arrows down into the ditch before the berm. Their arrows ignited undead all around and they burned hotly. They ignited the piled up undead from the first assault. The Ice King with his far vision now noticed that the dead had been soaked in oil. The adding of oil made the dead burn as if a volcano. The flames quickly spread to up and down the length of the berm. The individual fires that had been lit quickly joining each other to merge into a towering configuration. The dead burned with an unholy intensity and heat.

The Ice King knew that his undead burned with a bright and hot intensity until they were no more. Knowing this and seeing it on a small scale had not affected the Ice King. Losses were to be expected. But to see this concentrated burn of his undead would have been awe inspiring if it was not his precious Walking Dead being burned. The flames were jumping nearly fifty feet into the air. The flames bright orange, white and blue. The victory the Ice king had felt just a moment before was now turning bitter in his mouth.

He realized that Eddard Stark was using his very undead against him. The descendant of his lineage was using his own forces against him. Eddard Stark had waited to this exact moment to spring his trap. The timing so to make the losses on his forces grievous. All without firing a shot at his forces. The press of the advancing dead riding the waves of his true son’s ichor that they had produced pushed all forward. Push forward again into a killing field. Only this one was made of fire and not piercing objects made of dragon glass.

The flames roaring before the berm burned both the already killed undead and the fresh Walking Dead being carried forward by the Croyel. The Walking Dead did not know how to avoid sure incineration. The Ice King had screamed at his son to cease the yellow ichor lapping. He needed to stop the slaughter! Fortunately, the dead burned hot and fast. In only fifteen minutes, the mounds of dead gathered before the berm were consumed.

It had raged the Ice King to lose so many dead when they were killed by the very mechanics he had set in motion. His foe was most wily. Still, with the fires burning themselves out, he could now, finally, get at his enemy and butcher them. He had begun to feel elation. No obsidian had been fired off at his army. He told his Croyel to again send their forces forward.

Then his simmering rage which was always just beneath the surface had truly ignited. He heard the distant call of war horns. With the dying echoes of the initial war horn blasts again the clouds of arrows started to fill the sky. He had hoped they were iron tipped arrows. That the Dragon Glass of the forces of Westeros had finally been exhausted. The different flights of arrows arranged to fall from just in front of the berm to their furthest reach of the longbows.

His pale blue eyes followed the flights as they clawed for attitude. Then the arrows tipped over at their apex and speed up in their descent. The arrows flashing down through the ranks of the Walking Dead. The far seeing eyes of the Ice King looked at the undead shambling forward.

Would they fall?

His shouts of anger washed over his icy sons that surrounded him. The arrows that hit his Walking Dead in the head or in the heart immediately dropped them. The simply fell forward onto their face or crumpled straight down as if the strings of the magic binding them had been cut. More arrow clouds now taking flight. He saw the fiery arc of projectiles from catapults and trebuchets launched. Their missiles setting his Walking Dead alight.

He raged and fumed at how Eddard Stark killed his risen dead with savage efficiency. The missiles from the siege engines setting his Walking Dead hundreds of yards beyond the range of the arrows on fire. Other projectiles fired high in the air from further back and crashed into his undead forces within the hail of arrows that themselves now had many fire arrows. He saw many islands of fire burning in the ranks of his undead.

His forces being decimated again. The Ice King was feeling shock and the first canker of fear. Where had they found so much Dragon Glass? He kept waiting for them to run out of the infernal rock and still they fired their arrows with no seeming fear of running out. The Ice King had simply assumed that his enemies did not even know of the damnable efficacious material. Even if they knew of it they would not have more than enough to be nothing more than be a pin prick to him.

Even the Children of the Forest had only limited supplies. This seemingly unlimited supply of Dragon Glass changed everything. His eyes seeing flight after flight of arrows tipped with obsidian being fired off. It was maddening.

The Ice King raged. His carefully planned simultaneous attack had fallen through. Now he was having to use brute force and the results were grievous losses for his forces. It wasn’t fair! He would kill this Eddard Stark himself! He had to break them. Then with forces of Westeros defeated he could restock the numbers of his undead.

He saw a break in the lines on the berm. He had seen it start to enlarge. Finally, his forces were making the breach that would enable his soldiers to wreak havoc on the warm bloods. That was when he heard Melenkurion abatha, Duroc minas mil. Harad khabaal. The words echoing through the world in a mighty shout. The language had no meaning to him but the Ice King now on this side of the fallen Wall could feel the raw power they generated. His true son was screaming again in fear in his mind.

The world turned a bright royal blue for several heartbeats. The pulse raging to the heavens and expanding out. From within the core of that pulse a mighty blue column of fire erupted from behind the top of the berm and shot out into the air several hundred yards. All his Walking Dead before that blue fire were simply obliterated. Their bodies blown apart with limbs and heads sent flying and bodies torn apart into splattered organs, bones and viscera. The damnable Lord of Revelstone then rode into clear view on the top of the berm. Her staff bucked in her hands as more gouts of power magic might blasted out the end of her staff and decimated all the undead scaling the berm in that area.

The incursion of his forces in that area was eliminated. The Ice King shook his fist at the woman. Her death was of paramount need. He fumed looking out over the battlefield. It was a standoff. He was putting pressure on the forces of his descendent but he could not do more.

The Dragon Glass of his enemy not only leveled the war field it tilted it in the favor of his descendent. The obsidian was too deadly to contend with. Their ability to add fire to the mix only added to his disadvantage. He mulled over his options. The two opposing forces had been engaged. His had shown the weakness. If he tried to pull back he knew that his enemy would pursue and prosecute with extreme vengeance. They would have the advantage and they would know it.

Still, for a brief moment he considered retreat in his fear. He quickly discarded that idea. He was not a coward! He was engaged with the enemy now and he had to force his way to victory. He had depopulated the lands above the Wall. He could not build up his army the Walking Dead in that now barren land. He needed to defeat this army and then move south to build up his army again. To make his army even more vast!

His enemy, Eddard Stark, would not allow his escape. He would not let him disengage. He would follow. He would become the aggressor. If he had the stores of Dragon Glass he seemed to have he would quickly strip him of his Walking Dead. Then the numbers game swung in the favor of his descendent. He would become the hunted.

No. He was committed now the Ice King knew. He had ordered his true son to stop his ichor sweeping the undead forward but had him commence again now that the mounds of dead before the berm were burned away.

The Ice King hoped that Eddard Stark and the fallen Queen had planned an all or nothing strategy. Once this army was defeated he would have no true organized defense to deal with. That the prepared dragon glass was all here. He would destroy those stocks to the last arrow tip he raged to himself. Then he would be free of that threat. He would move fast to suppress the North. He would repopulate his undead. Then he could move south.

His undead had the limitation of being slow. He would have to think on that limitation and come up with other strategies.

He now sent forward his adopted sons with specific instructions. The sun was angling towards the western horizon now. His surprise attack in daylight had failed. He would keep pressure on the forces of Westeros throughout the remaining daylight hours and then make his next massive attack after dark. He and his sons could see well at night. Not so man. The advantage would slip back to him.

He watched his runners move quickly to his front lines just beyond range of the trebuchets. They began to talk to their brethren in front of the Ice King and then Ice Wrights ran west and east to spread the word. More Ice Wrights and Ice Giants moved forward. They would mass just behind the range of the trebuchets. Most would wait for nightfall to attack.

More Walking Dead streamed forward to keep pressure on the forces of Westeros. He was working to tire out their forces with constant attack. He had raised he walking dead to be his catapult fodder. Let them bear the brunt of the counterattack of Westeros. He had never dreamed they would be cut down to their second complete death through Dragon Glass in such huge numbers but it was necessary.

He felt his confidence returning. Darkness was his friend. There he would flip the battlefield.

He would reign triumphant—WWWHHAATTTTT! The Ice King screamed in confusion and fear.
Let There Be War - Part III

Haunted Forest: The Red Tail Hawk flew around the open area before the Haunted Forest. He had roosted for hours after him and his feathered brothers and sisters attacked the abominations in their initial assault upon the unholy Walking Dead. Several times more he flew out to raid for a short while tearing at the abominations always moving south. They had not been able to kill them. They had hurt many of his kin and cousins though.

He felt rested again enough to again take the fight to the unholy things below. He had spotted an elk that did not have the look of decay and rot. It had not been dead long before it was brought forth to wicked second life. He had flown down with other raptors and scavenger birds and tore into the carcass. He had to fight to get several beak fills of flesh that he swallowed. He got several more before he jumped up into the air and few back in the air.

He then went back down and tore at the limbs and face of the elk. It had no hands to fight back with. Soon its eyes were no more and two limbs were dragging with massive chunks of meat torn from the carcass that still lurched south following its compulsion. He had his own. He attacked till tired again and flew back up into the sky. He looked down.

From that location the red tailed hawk watched still more dead walking forward. Their compulsion still strong to always move south. The Red Tail Hawk circled the open area. It was littered with limbs of the dead that walked and with carcasses that had their ligaments and tendons cut. Their bodies had crashed to the ground their limbs no longer able to obey the compulsion to move forward. The ground covered with them.

The dead that walked stepped on the slithering dead. If the bodies were large the undead that walked bumped into the fallen dead and stumbled around them. Those that could no longer walk clawed themselves forward. Their slow gate slowed even more. He saw arms clawing the ground moving forward. The unnatural sight roiled his instincts.

The compulsion to attack had been lifted from his mind. He desired to attack but he had exhausted himself in flaying flesh of the undead that walked and tearing their tendons and ligatures from the bone. He looked around.

It noted that the bodies jerked and pulled themselves forward. The limbs wiggling and themselves striving to move forward. It did not matter. It knew that the undead in this plain would never reach their destination. The Red Tail Hawk had done all he could for the Earth. He hoped to one day mate again. The numbers of the undead moving forward had been reduced.

The tired male hawk flew several miles into the Haunted Forest. The forest of tall trees was filled with birds that were resting and many nursing wounds. Feathers had been ripped from many of his cousins’ bodies. Some had broken limbs and wings that would never let them fly home. They would die without mating.

He knew they had given their lives. He himself had had many of his pinion feathers jerked out of his left wing. His flying was unsteady but he would be able to make it home he thought. He worried in acquiring a mate though. That was a worry for another day. He was alive and that thought thrilled his instinctual mind. He had hope to again father chicks.

As he flew on he spotted other male red tailed hawks. Most of them showed damage to their plumage. Yes. He would have a chance to mate again.
He saw his roosting spot. It was obvious from above but hidden from the ground. He flew in on it. His roost was where the two large bodies had fallen from the sky. Their impact in the trees truly frightening. It started angled in from the fallen Wall of ice. The tops of trees were clipped off. As he approached the anomaly the Red Tail Hawk could see that the next trees in line to the north and east were also clipped but further down. The closer he came to the anomaly the more he could see into it.

Massive trees and the surrounding branches of titans had been sheared off. Massive trees broken. Their splintered trunks like the trees he had seen after tornados had ripped through stands of trees in the land he nested in. Trees in line with the descent of the bodies were devastated. Like the trees clipped in a tornado the damage started and ended abruptly.

It was the same here.

The destruction he saw in his nesting grounds left no evidence of the force that had caused the devastation to the trees there. That was not the case here. At the end of the groove cut into the trees the Red Tailed Hawk saw the evidence of what had cut these trees down. The fallen bodies by happenstance had finished their descent into a thinned area of the forest caused by fallen trees felled in a windstorm most probably.

Two large bodies of strange creatures were resting on the shattered trunks and limbs of the last trees they had cut in half and the last trees only partially shattered. The bodies were impossibly large to the Red Tail Hawk. How bodies so large could fly he could not fathom. The largest condors he saw in his winter range were nothing compared to these behemoths. They would barely even be chicks to such massive bodies.

The Red Tail Hawk circled over the anomaly. One of the bodies was a pale blue like the sky on a cloudless day. It had darker streaks of blue running over its body. The other body was dark black like the sky between the points of light in the night time sky. The black body had red streaks on it. Some of the red he knew were natural to its coloring. Much of the other red on its body was dried blood. Its body was covered with it.

The body beneath it was covered in pale blue dried blood. The Red Tail Hawk cocked its head from side to side looking at the pale blue body covered in blue blood. The hawk knew that this blue blood was unnatural. All life had red blood. The hawk knew it when he fed. The red tailed hawk saw the large blue body had black bones jutted out its body in several places. Its body had landed beneath the second body. It had definitely hit first as they two twined bodies slashed through the trees. The blue body looked like the damage he sometimes caused when his strike was perfect on his prey when he fell on them from above. The body shattered from the impact of his talons.

He circled for a minute longer. He had chosen this place to roost because it was easy to spot from above. He had rested here for hours and only recently went out to again attack the unnatural foes below and also to look for food. He was still hungry but his stomach no longer complained. He was not a carrion eater but the elk flesh kept his body fueled until he could feed properly again. He would begin his flight home tomorrow morning.

He landed on a tree near where the two massive bodies had finished their descent to the ground. His mind was curious. What were they? They had the appearance of birds and yet were not. Their wings made for flight but with bodies that were so large they should never have left the ground. Strange. His far seeing eyes saw much damage. He wondered. They must have been beautiful when the lived soaring through the sky. He turned his head still observing the strange wondrous sight below.

There had been no movement. There was none now. His curiosity peaked he decided to get closer.
He swooped down into the anomaly. He alighted on a shattered fir limb and looked down at the shattered bodies. The sun was now on its final arc to the horizon now. There was only two or so hours of sunlight left. There was more dead moving forward through the tree trunks. Their numbers were still great but he could see that their numbers were less than they had been.

High tide had been reached. The tide would not be this strong again. Still the forest had many Walking Dead in them. The compulsion to move forward still animating them. Their bodies shambling forward. Always south these undead walked. The Red Tailed Hawk saw that the dead that still walked did not pay any heed to the broken bodies. The hawk reasoned that if the dead that walked sensed no motion they ignored a body. The large bodies had not moved in many hours now. The many undead brushed by the fallen bodies moving always south in their migration to points unknown.

\\\\\\\\\\\%

Daenerys moaned and attempted to roll but her body was pinned. Her body could not move where it was jammed between her dragon and the dead body of the Ice Dragon. For a long time she just lay there her body throbbing all over. Her thoughts were at first diffuse and muzzy. Slowly her thoughts started to coalesce. She moaned again. She was able to move her body a little this time. Her body stiff all over. She was a warrior. She sensed her injuries were not onerous. She could still fight.

Her thoughts were fuzzy but they started to become focused again. Her mind drifted back to memories of the savage battle in the sky. The mighty clashes of dragon bodies seeking the other’s death. She remembered driving her Valyrian daggers into the eyes of the Ice Dragon. The daggers sinking into its brain killing it instantly. She had felt jubilation but that died immediately.

The Ice Dragon became dead weight in the space of a single heartbeat. Its body went limp and its wings made no more effort to beat to stay aloft. The two combatants locked together. Their locked together bodies beginning to plummet from the sky. Their bodies rolling in the air currents. Drogon tried to break free but the two bodies were locked together. The air whipped by the two bodies as they plummeted back down to Earth. The sound of air rushing by faster and faster now a roar in the Queen’s ears. The swirling bodies prevented Drogon from disengaging their bodies.

The Queen remembered screaming to Drogon. The two dragons locked together. She felt Drogon striving to break free but their claws interlocked with each other or jammed in between scales. Their necks pressed into each other twined like they were mating. Drogon biting into the horns of the Ice Dragon.

There was no time for Drogon to attempt to disengage from the dead dragon in this wild freefall. He was disorientated by being upside down with the Ice dragon jammed into his body. The Queen screamed into Drogon’s mind. She yelled at her mount to twist his body and swing his tail. The motion swung the dead Ice Dragon to be beneath the locked together dragons. The speed of their descent accelerating. Daenerys looked down frantically. They were heading down towards the Haunted Forest. The mighty titans of the forest quickly coming up to reach for them. The limbs and trunks now clearly visible as they plummeted.

Daenerys now yelled at Drogon to snake his head back around the neck of the dead Ice Dragon. She yelled into Drogon’s mind to pull his wings as tight as possible to his body. She next yelled at Drogo to whip his tail around the body of the Ice Dragon to use its body to shield his tail from the coming plunge into the forest. The Queen was desperate and let her body slide down between the base of the necks of the dragons. Drogon released his grip on the Ice dragon’s horns and slithered his head around the dead Ice Dragon’s neck behind this foe’s head. Then the head of the Ice Dragon started to fall away but Drogon bit it to hold it in place. Fortunately, the Queen had reached the bodies of the two dragons locked tight against each other.

She wiggled down to lodge her body between the two bodies. She felt the air rush over the bodies of the dragons. She knew they were falling down to the forest below. They would be hitting the massive trees at any moment. She had seen that they were not plummeting straight down. Their fight had ended as they angled through the sky. This continued as they plummeted down from the sky.

The Queen hoped that this angled descent would save them. They had a chance that the energy of their descent would be bleed off with angled strikes on the trees they were hurtling down towards. That each impact on the Ice Dragon’s body now beneath them would absorb the energy of descent and slow it. A crash straight into the earth would have been fatal.

Then a massive jolt ran through the bodies pressed into each other. The loud sound of tree limbs shattering filled Daenerys world. The dragons entering the canopy of the evergreen forest. The sound so loud and shocking. Now the upper tree trunks began to be impacted. The weight and velocity of the two falling dragon bodies exploding each trunk and jutting tree limbs struck in turn. The wild jerking of bodies accompanied with the mighty boom and sounds of wood splintering with mighty cracks. Wood fragments were whipping around in all directions along with the needles of the trees.

Again and again the Queen felt the massive impact of the Ice Dragon’s body hitting tree after tree. Their combined weight and the speed they had reached with their free fall splintering each tree as their twined bodies plummeted lower down into the forest. A mighty boom with each collision of bodies against the next tree in line. Each tree they struck was lower down than the last tree they had struck. Each impact bone rattling and the concussive force like the beating of a bass drum right beside one’s head. The sound deafening.

Tree limbs were sheared off and whipsawing through the air. The splintered limbs cutting across thick scales. The Queen pressed her body into the crevice between the dragons. She heard the crash and boom of limbs and trunks broken and sent cartwheeling in the air. Three massive impacts rocked through the Queen’s body shaking her body and head with massive shakes. Then he impacts seemed to lessen. Her body snapped as the organs in her body and head were snapped to and fro. There was one last mighty impact. Blackness overcame the Valyrian.

Now she was struggling back to consciousness. Daenerys willed her limbs to move. At first they did not obey her command. Her body was stiff and unresponsive. Had she died and this was some nether world or purgatory where you had thought but nothing else. She willed her body to move and this time her right arm twitched and then her legs kicked slightly. Pain flooded her body. Her left ribs throbbed. Her left ankle felt like it was swollen. She took stock. They were not severely injured.

She felt sensations coming into her consciousness. She felt scales pressed against her from all sides. Yes. She was till pressed into the crevice between the two bodies. She willed her eyes open. She saw black scales before her. She moved her head and saw splintered limbs all around lying on all their bodies. Everything was covered with broken branches and sheared off needles. The smell of pine resin thick in the air. Her body began to obey her commands. The Queen slowly wiggled around between the bodies. She saw the sky above her. It was still light but it appeared weak. It was late in the day or early in the morning she deemed.

Daenerys took a deep breath. She felt the icy body of the dead Ice Dragon on her back. Her hot blooded nature had kept her from getting hypothermia. She braced her feet and hands and worked to get her body into a sitting position. Needles and small bits of branches fell off her body. The snow that had started to build slide off. She looked at the scales of Drogon. They did not move.

“Drogon! Drogon!” called out. Her mind screaming at her dragon. He did not respond.

The Queen repeated her calls becoming desperate.

The thought that said “I live” came to the Queen’s mind. Daenerys felt relief flooding through her body. For the next ten minutes the Queen rested. Her violet eyes seeing the snowflakes fall from the heavens. They were pretty. She felt her senses returning to her now. She could now feel the subtle heat of Drogon and the slight rising and falling of his scales. It was very subtle but it was there. She again tested her limbs. They now obeyed her will. She struggled out of the crevice she had wedged herself into between the two dragons in mortal combat.

She lifted herself out of the crevice between the two massive bodies. She had to scrabble to get a grip on the scales of the dead Ice Dragon. She looked down. They were fifteen feet up in the air. The two interlocked dragons had come to rest on a massive pile of ripped up branches and shattered tree trunks. Their bodies covered with the detritus of their descent through the Haunted Forest. The Ice Dragon’s body was draped over a shattered tree trunk. Its upper body and its front legs and neck sprawled out on the ground. Drogon was sprawled on top of the dead dragon with his neck resting on the back side of the dead Ice Dragon.

She looked to where the Ice Dragon’s eyes had been. One of the Valyrian daggers had been ripped out of the socket she had buried it in. The wild descent knocking it out. The other though was still buried into the hilt in the eye socket she had buried it in. She hated having to kill the Ice Dragon but it was necessary. It had become an abomination.

Daenerys looked out over the ground below her. She felt her breath catch. Fear clutching at her heart. Walking Dead were shambling by. Her breath released. They were being ignored. She puzzled over that for a moment before she science it out. The three bodies of herself and the dragons were not moving. The Walking Dead evidently were drawn to movement. The white blond woman surveyed the scene below her.

She noticed immediately that the number of Walking Dead was not limitless seeming now. They were still thick as they shambled ever south but she could see a diminution of their numbers even if it was only slight. The Ice King did not have limitless numbers. Of course she knew this but to see it confirmed made her feel better. The undead were passing before her in a steady stream now but they was definite separation between the shambling bodies now. They tide of Walking Dead had a limit. They would be defeated.

This was good news. If their tactics had a chance to be implemented then they would achieve victory. The Ice King did not have a limitless supply of Walking Dead to throw at her forces. She needed to survey the situation she now found herself in. Drogon still needed time to hopefully recover enough to fly out of the Haunted Forest. She took a deep breath. She thought positive. Drogon would recover.

Slowly the Queen slide down the body of the dead Ice Dragon till her feet found a massive branch and used a grip on the dead dragon’s scales to drop to the ground. The closest Walking Dead pivoted towards her. Damn Daenerys thought. It was a wildling. The dead man stretched out his arms toward Daenerys and shambled forward. She pulled out the other Valyrian dagger on her left thigh and threw it. The dagger buried in the Walking Dead’s skull between his eyes. He fell down dead.

She had hoped to be unnoticed by any others. She did not want to have to fight here on the ground surrounded by the undead separated from her forces. Her wishes were not to be though she saw.

There was more undead gravitating towards her but she had time. The next closest were still some ways off by happenstance. Also, most did not sense her. She walked around the two dragon bodies slowly staying close to the dragons’ bodies. Yes! She thought. Most of the undead did not sense her movements as yet. Their main compulsion was to move south to engage her army. She looked over the two massive bodies before her.

The Ice Dragon’s body had massive wood struts jammed into his body. His body had definitely taken the brunt of the damage of the impacts with the trees and jutting out limbs. The Ice Dragon’s wings had been torn asunder. She saw that Drogon’s wings had tears and rents but she saw no massive wounds or broken wing bones. By folding his wings tight to his body and being on top of the plummeting Ice Dragon he had not had his wings ripped apart. The same could not be said of the Ice Dragon. His right wing had nearly been torn off. The left wing was folded back in on itself at an unnatural angle. Most of the skin between the bones shredded and hanging in ribbons.

The Queen saw several deep cuts along the flanks of Drogon and down his right thigh. Blood clotted in the wounds. He had many scales ripped off exposing the raw skin beneath. The wounds crusted with blood. Drogon had lost three claws on his right rear foot. Ichor still dripping out. The wounds looked bad the Queen knew but they would grow back in time. Dragon bodies had an amazing ability to regenerate. It was any internal injuries that worried the Valyrian.

Had any of Drogon’s organs been ruptured or torn? She prayed not. She hoped that those injuries had been sustained by the Ice Dragon.

The pale Queen looked over Drogon from tail to head and along both sides of his exposed body. He seemed intact. No tree limbs had been jammed violently into his body. She had to hope he had no severe internal injuries. While she had made her walk around the body of Drogon more undead had started to close in on her. She saw a dead wolf and moose coming in from her left and two dead crows still in their black tattered robes coming in from her right. Fortunately, like all the Walking Dead they were slow and cumbersome in their movements.

She looked around. It seemed more of the undead were now shambling towards her. No more time for subterfuge.

Her hand reached up and gripped the pummel of her Rune Sword Foe Clever. It was now time for action. She ripped it out and faced the closest dead. Her rune sword flared to life burning in a bright light blue. Her sword seemingly anxious to again kill the enemies of its master.

The small pale woman slashed her sword back and then down beheading the wolf trying to bite her knee. She did not have to worry of further attack. The Valyrian steel unbinding the magic animating the dead wolf’s body. Daenerys pivoted to the right and swung her blade out and around her body in a sharp arc. It cut across the front of the moose. Her blade slicing through the front of the withers of the animal. Her sword cutting muscle, bone and tendons. The moose collapsed to its knees and then toppled over. It was crippled and flipped on the ground. Its movements becoming less frantic by the second. The Valyrian steel unbinding the magic of the Ice King.

The Queen moved to the two dead crows. She felt sorrow for the two men killed doing their duty and then raised from death to become abominations. Her first sword arc sent the first man’s head spinning through the air. The second swipe of her sword cut the second man’s head in two. He fell dead. The magic in her Valyrian sword had by now completely unbound the magic compelling the moose. It lay still.

She saw many more dead moving in on her position. They were not a sea but still they were forming a swirl like gnats in the turgid summer air. The sun glittering off their wings. The former humans had outstretched hands questing to grip her body and rend her limb from limb.

Daenerys felt no fear. With her rune sword she would be able to dispatch the advancing Walking Dead as they came into range of her sword. Their numbers were not so vast she could not handle them. Her left ankle already feeling better. Her body’s ability to heal quickly again arising to give her succor.

Suddenly, the air was filled with the screams of birds. All manner of bird caws, screeches and shrieks filled the air. The shapes of all sorts of birds flew at the dead from all angles and heights. The birds landing on the dead tearing at their flesh and hair. The birds pecking and swiping with claws. Daenerys saw birds swarming the length and breadth of the dead that had started to advance upon her. The dead became distracted fighting the birds. The dead moved slowly reaching with clumsy hands and paws. The birds fast but still some of the birds were found and torn apart.

The birds were trying to attack from on high and behind but there was so many desiring to attack that many had to come from in front of the undead. Many were ignored but randomly almost the Walking Dead reacted to the attacks upon. Their hands reaching out and grasping birds to tear apart.

Raw unbridled anger filled the heart of the Valyrian. Daenerys screamed and charged forward. Her sword left blue arcs all around as she cut down the distracted Walking Dead. Foe Hammer sliced and diced the undead before her. She screamed while her shimmering sword sent heads flying and limbs flung off undead bodies.

Daenerys moved right and left, forward and back, cleaving and chopping down the undead. When she saw a bird in danger of being grasped she charged in. They were saving her and she would return the favor. The pale warrior swiped and hacked killing the undead with thrusts to hearts and cleaved heads. She cut legs off to send the abominations toppling to the ground. She killed the initial group but more were coming in from the forest.

Daenerys looked around analyzing the situation. The birds were flitting around waiting to come to her defense. She was still full of energy but she was human and would tire eventually.

She now ran back to the fallen dragons and climbed up the limbs and over the body of the dead Ice Dragon. She slide in between the two dragon bodies. Daenerys looked down unmoving. The dead were circling clumsily. Then they started to move off. Without movement to attract them they moved on. They were dead. They had no thought to look up. She smiled seeing the birds flying back up into the branches.

She was needed elsewhere. She needed to get back to her army. She needed to get back to Arya.

“Can you fly Drogon? We need to get back to our forces and to your brothers” the Queen thought to her dragon.

She felt the body of Drogon rumble. His body flexed and began to push up and away from the fallen Ice Dragon. Drogon worked his neck free. He rolled his body partially to right himself in orientation to the ground. Drogon slowly pushed his mighty body up and away from the dead Ice Dragon. He was unsteady. Daenerys could feel the pain throbbing in many places in her dragon’s body. His body tottered and collapsed back down on the dead Ice Dragon. He rested a minute and then slowly pushed his body erect once more. His body leaning back to the right where his right hind leg would not fully extend.

Daenerys looked around them. The undead were being attracted by the motions of the great black dragon. The Queen was not worried. The dragon too large for the undead to contend with. If they moved away their compulsion to move on in them would cease. She did not plan on sticking around.

Drogon slowly unfurled his wings. They were filled with rents and tears but none of them long or wide. He started to slowly beat his wings. The body of the two plunging dragons had cleared out enough space for Drogon to spread his wings but not to fully pinion his wings to get lift. Drogon turned to look up the path their falling bodies had made through the trees.

Daenerys let her mind flow into Drogon’s. She travelled her awareness through his body. She could not discern any internal injuries to organs and bones. She was thankful. By turning their bodies so the Ice Dragon was on the bottom of their descent they had survived relatively unscathed. She looked up.

Snowflakes swirled down from the leaden sky. Drogon told his Queen and mother he was ready. She heard the pain in his thoughts but also his determination and his pride. She quickly scaled up his body with her strong sure grip. His heat was rising again. His red eyes swirled with intent. Daenerys got on her spot on his back near where his neck muscles where anchored to his body. She jammed her hands and feet in between his scales.

Daenerys looked up. She was not sure how they would fly out of her. There was no room for Drogon to work his wings fully. He would not be able to generate enough lift to fly out of this well they had made with their descent. She felt only confidence in Drogon. He was sure he would be able to fly out of his well.

His muscles bunching beneath the Queen she felt Drogon’s body coiling. She felt his pain but he ignored it. He surged up with his hind legs. He pulled his claws away from the fallen body of his foe. Drogon was leaned over not able to fully use his right rear leg. Drogon surged up and his body uncoiled. Daenerys body whiplashed with the sudden up movement.

Daenerys watched her dragon’s forelegs reach out. She watched his claws wrap around the shattered ends of massive limbs to the right and his left front leg stepped onto the top of a fir tree that had been cut off by the plummet of the two dragon bodies. Daenerys looked back down. They were already over thirty feet up from the ground.

Drogon pulled his body up and surged forward again his body reaching the next tree they had been chopped off at a higher elevation. Drogon’s hind feet rested on the shattered tree trunk and wrapped around a mighty bough of a neighboring tree that had only been partially sheared off to push up with a mighty heave. Birds were taking to the air screaming. The birds frightened by the massive body that surged up and through their roosts.

Drogon jammed his tail into a tree trunk for balance and to push off with. The mighty dragon did this several times moving back up the path the falling dragons had made through the forest. The upper canopy of the trees thinning out. With more space Drogon started to beat his wings with short clipped off motions.

The pale Valyrian waved her arms frantically. Needles of the chopped up trees filled the air with the beating wings of Drogon. The air now filled with air currents as her dragon beat his wings more strongly. The higher they climbed up the shattered trees the more room he had to work his wings.

He surged forward and up again to grip the next tree they had clipped off. He repeated the motion yet again lifting his body up and forward to get to the next set of shattered trees. Their bodies rising back up through the canopy of the Haunted Forest.

His body surged up over the tree line and he now beat his mighty wings fully. His body screamed in pain but Drogon ignored it. His muscles loosening with the beating of his mighty wings. His body slowly started to rise up from his perch on shattered trees. He roared a mighty scream. He slowly gained altitude. The Queen had him angle his body away from the fallen Wall. She slowly had Drogon gain altitude. She wanted to give her mighty steed time to recover more from his injuries.

As he moved Drogon body and limbs loosened and his flying was much less stressed. She asked her dragon if any fire was still in him. She waited while Drogon assessed his situation. He informed the Queen that the time he had been down and out he had produced more flame but it was limited. She knew he would have to feed to give him raw materials to make more fire. She would use what he had.

Daenerys needed to get back to her forces. She was certain that with Eddard’s leadership and their hard training of their forces that would still be holding the line if not better. Any other outcome she would not allow her mind to even contemplate. She would not let her mind even conceive that anything had happened to her Arya.

She had Drogon fly up into the clouds. The moisture in the clouds pelted her face and cooled her. She had Drogon fly up to five thousand feet before she had him turn over and dive back down. She could fly above the clouds back to her lines but that was not the way of Daenerys Targaryen! She would strike out at her enemies. She had a wicked smile on her face. She would give some back to her enemy.

Drogon plummeted back down through the clouds a mile behind the fallen Wall. She saw that the Walking Dead were still pouring through the breeches that had been magically created. She scanned below herself but saw no Ice Wrights or Ice Giants. She had seen that by the diffuse light that it was late in the afternoon. The fight had been going on all day. The Ice King had moved forward to the other side she was sure. She saw no evidence of him on the North side of the fallen Wall.

Like in any good commander he had moved to get closer to his enemy. To better be able to judge his next strategies.

She aimed for the middle breach in the Wall. She flew over it a hundred feet above the jumbled mess of ice blocks and shattered shards. She did a quick scan. Yes. There was a thick mass of Ice Wrights and Ice Giants just beyond range of the trebuchets.

It was what she would have done. She could not see the Ice King. It did not matter. She had Drogon fly on at his best speed in his battered state. The enemy was looking away from them. The mighty dragon lowered his glide path as he beat his wings to maintain his speed. She was silent death coming in on her enemy from the rear. A fierce grin speared over face. She felt elation within Drogon.

Drogon let loose a mighty roar of mighty roiling flame. This was followed immediately by a second mighty roar of defiance.

RRRRRRRRRRRRRROOOOOOOOOOOOOOARRRRRRRRRRRRRRR!

His magical flame flashed down onto the midst of the Ice King’s forces. Daenerys added her own roar seeing Drogon’s fire splash down on Ice Wrights, Ice Giants and Walking Dead. The long gout of flame finished. As they sped past the knot of Icy spawn of the Ice King. Daenerys could not see the damage done but she knew many of her foes were burning.

She looked down quickly on her right and back. Yes! She saw Ice Wrights and Ice Giants writhing in agony as their bodies burned. Regular fire may not affect them but magical Dragon Fire light them up like bonfires. The flames clinging to their bodies like the alchemists Wildfire. The flames not letting go and burning the Icy spawn. She smiled seeing flames shooting out the mouth and eyes of some of the Icy spawn.

The undead simply burned. They did not scream in pain. They merely shambled around. If they touched another of the undead they too were set alight. The undead slowly losing their grip on their unholy second life and stumbling down to the ground. They may have writhed but eventually they fell to the ground. They did not get back up.

The mighty dragon lifted his neck and now slashed it from right to left. He did this as another mighty gout of flame poured out his mouth. His flame spitting down to set all it touched up into flaming pyres. All touched by the flames instantly burning down to slag or steaming puddles. One more mighty blast Drogon belched out as he came near the berm. His flames burning the forest of Walking Dead before him.

Drogon flashed over the front lines of Westeros. Both dragon and warrior atop him screamed as they flashed over the top of the Queen’s forces.

Arya: The world had become fog to Arya. It was thick and made the world diffuse and shapeless to the teenager. She heard people talking to her and felt them touching her but nothing truly registered. They meant nothing to her. Her life had no meaning anymore. It had ceased to matter when she saw Dany fall from the sky with Drogon.

Her Dany had removed the threat of the Ice Dragon that was raking their forces causing calamitous causalities. Dany had risen into the air to do battle with the aerial assailant. Arya knew her Queen would vanquish the foe in the sky. It had just never occurred to Arya that Dany would have to give her life in the process. Dany had seemed invincible. The idea that Daenerys Targaryen the Breaker of Chains would die seemed inconceivable. The thought that she could die was not even a consideration to the Stark teenager.

But she had died. Arya had screamed at the horrific sight and her heart had shattered.

She breathed. Her chest rose and fell. Her body continued but her soul had withered and died. She could not live without her Dragon. There was no one else in this world for Arya but Daenerys Targaryen. She had loved the woman since the first rumors of her rising from the Red Wastes. There was no other woman that she could love.

Her body and mind were numb. She had screamed and cried uncontrollably at first but that storm had passed. One could only rage for so long against the cruel gods. They did not listen anyways.

Her father had come to her soon after the fall of Dany from the sky. He had spoken to her but she had not really heard him. She noddedwoodenly when she needed to. She did not hear what he said and had no desire to understand his words. They meant nothing to her without her Dany there.

She knew she should care. They had a battle to fight. They had to defend Westeros against the Ice King. She had a duty. It did not matter. The shock of Dany’s loss had put her in gyre she did not how to escape from. She raged within herself. She needed to rouse herself. Dany would want her to. The problem was that life beyond the needs of this fight had no meaning to the teenager.

Jon, Melisandre and Ygritte were staying close to her. She knew they were warding her. They were afraid that she might kill herself. She would not do that now. No. She had foes to kill. She sensed that her talents were not needed. The lines around her were holding she could tell without knowing how. She guessed it was the lack of panic. If the enemy started to break their lines she would rouse herself to fight them.
She had her duty and would perform it. When she needed to. She was a Stark. The young woman wanted to strike blows against the hated enemy. She now burned with the need for revenge. She just needed a little bit more time to recover from her loss.

She noted that Jon and his two wives were milling around her. She was unmoving herself. She would have crying jags with tears running silently down her cheeks unremarked. Her small body shivering with her gentle sobs. It had been awhile since she last shed tears. Arya did not know when she would start to cry again. The teenager would cry till she had no more tears to bleed out. She would then sit there. She had been given several cups of water and she would sip from them. Food she turned her head away from. Her stomach rebelled at the mere sight of food.

She had been near Ygritte and Melisandre for hours. Ygritte had had the look of the totally exhausted about her. Slowly over time Arya vaguely registered the fact that Ygritte had recovered from birthing whatever the hell that it was that had come out her pussy Arya diffusely mused.

Arya in her rambling thoughts turned her red swollen eyes to the left. She looked at the strange child of the ShadowBender witches. It was sitting still ten yards away from Arya. It did not move at all. It had wrapped itself all around itself somehow. It had been nearly twenty-five feet tall and now it was no taller than her father with its body folded in on itself. She idly wondered without intent how something so large could shrink to something so small.

It did not breathe. Strange ripples seemed to run up and down its body. The sight would have made her queasy if she had her full facilities. As it was, she only found it curious.

Nymeria was resting nearby. She had tried to engage Arya but without Dany even her Direwolf could not reach Arya.

Ygritte had recovered slowly. She was dressed now. One would never know to look at Ygritte that only short hours ago her belly had been monstrously bloated. That she had birthed a monster. Her body had recovered as if none of those events had just occurred. The teenage Stark had noted that Ygritte had a beautiful body. She had started to weep again thinking of Dany’s hot body. A body forever gone from her now. Her body shook with sorry at her loss.

She vaguely felt Jon and his wives moving to her. They talked to her and took her in their arms to comfort her. In a removed way she appreciated their concern. Their words and touches meant nothing to her. Only the touch of one person could touch her dead soul and she was dead. She did not respond to their words or actions.

Time passed. She sensed that another attack had commenced but Dany and her father had prepared well. The battle was going well she was able to tell. The sounds of fighting was able to cut through her personal fog. The sounds were what they should be. There was no sounds of panic or the sounds of lines faltering and giving way.

She was not needed, thus, she sat there. Arya’s mind again tried to process what had occurred. It was still impossible for Arya to believe that Dany and Drogon could be thrown down. It was impossible! Yet her eyes had seen the impossible happen.

The battle raged. Still everything was well enough. Her services were not needed. Arya cried again. Her soul was withering away and nothing could change that.

RRRRRRRRROOOOOOAAAAARRRRRRRRRRR!

Arya was up in a flash. That was impossible! All of Dany’s dragons had mighty roars but Viserion and Rhaegal did not have the deep bass boom of Drogon’s mighty roars. How was she hearing that roar now if he was dead. She took in her surroundings fully now. All were looking out over the front lines towards the fallen Wall. She had unconsciously picked up her bow.

The eyes in Arya’s head nearly bulged out with what she was seeing. It was Drogon! He was flying towards them fast. She saw flames leaping up from the ground in the distance. As she watched Drogon whipped his head from side to side his mighty breath scorching out his mouth and lashing the ground. He kept flying closer and he let out another mighty belch of his flaming breath. His flames bright with reds, yellows and shades of white to burn across the ground.

All before her Arya saw the undead and Ice Wrights with their brother Ice Giants going up in bright flames. The undead burned silently. Not so the Ice Wrights and Giants. They screamed loudly in their dying.

Then Drogon was flashing over their heads only a hundred feet up. His massive body occluding the sky as he passed overhead. He passed on. A mighty backwash buffeted over the forces of Westeros with Drogon’s passing. Arya’s eyes on him staring intently. The massive black dragon had passed their camp and banked up and half rolled over to come back.

“YYYYEEEESSSSSSS! Yessssssss! Yes! Yes!” Arya shouted jumping up and down her little body thrumming like a plucked bowstring. On Drogon’s black back was a flag of white that was whipping in the slipstream of his flight. Arya’s heart soared. Dany was on Drogon’s back. She was alive!

She was jumping up and down punching her fist in the air whooping. Her life was not over!

DANY WAS ALIVE!

The young Stark was like her Nymeria throwing a fit when she could not get Oberyn’s spear. Arya was jumping and spinning around shouting out “Dany” excitedly. She watched Drogon bank over and come flying back.

Approaching, Arya could see his body had scales missing and long cuts up and down his body. His wings had rents and tears in them. His right rear leg was hanging down at unnatural angle. She noticed his right rear foot had nails missing. The mighty dragon was near her now. A large pathway was near that allowed troops to move from one point to another. The black dragon backwashed his wings and gently came down to lite on his rear legs. He clearly favored his right side as he settled down onto his forelegs and folded down to the ground.

In a flash Arya ran up to Drogon. “DANY!” Arya yelled quickly scaling up Drogon’s side. Her hands skilled now in finding hand holds on the hot scales and quickly pulling herself up his side and to his back. Arya was on Dany in a flash. She did not care about decorum. She was all over Dany throwing her arms around Dany and raining kisses all over her face while whimpering in relief.

The Queen hugged Arya back and laughed at the exuberance of her lover. She pulled Arya tight to her body relishing the close contact. Arya literally vibrated in her excitement. She hugged Dany tight to her body. Dany always felt so good against her body. Arya reveled in the kisses that Dany rained back down on her upturned face. Her arms felt so good around her. Arms that were strong and filled with life.

With her head resting on Dany’s shoulder. She looked down at the people on the ground. She saw Jon and his wives looking up at her with smiles on her face. She saw her father running up. Relief plain on his face.

“I am thankful to see you my Queen” Eddard told the Valyrian. “I feared the worst when I saw you and Drogon plummet from the sky entangled with the body of the Ice Dragon you slew.” He looked up at them with his soft squint smile.

Arya hugged Dany tight to her body. Relief rushed through her. Her Dany was alive. She pulled back from Dany. They had a battle to win. Westeros had its Queen. Its supreme leader had returned to the field of battle. Together the two women worked down the side of Drogon.

When they alight on the ground the mighty black dragon roared and pushed himself up into the air beating his wings hard. The detritus of the battlefield lifted up by the wind devils setup by Drogon’s wings. The dragon pivoted over and flew off towards the animal pens. It was obvious the mighty dragon was going to feed and then fall into the deep healing sleep his brothers were currently in.

Arya kept her arm around her Queen. Now that Dany was back she needed her touch against her body to remind her that her woman was alive and hale. All was right with Arya’s world again. She now felt shame at her earlier actions but she could not help it. She needed her Dany in her life. She was back now. She should have known that the Queen of her heart would survive. Arya knew all had thought her love was dead.

That would be a story to tell around the table at the next klatch meeting. She would find out first when she was alone with her lover.

Arya listened to her father relay to Dany the news of the battle since she had taken off to fight the Ice Dragon. Daenerys listened intently to what the Warden of the North had to say.

“That is where we stand Daenerys” Eddard told the Queen. “At this level we are holding our lines rather easily. Thrice the Lord of Revelstone has ridden her Ranyhyn to a breech with a Haruchai screening force. She easily repels the incursions into our lines. With them occurring singly we are able to easily able to push them back.”

“I think the Ice King is trying to wear us down. His supply of the Walking Dead seems limitless. That cannot be of course. It is fortunate that the two of us worked so hard to build up our stocks of obsidian my Queen” Eddard told his sovereign. “We are able to fire at will. We are slaying the Ice King’s undead as fast as they come in range. We do not have to worry about misses. We simply fire again and again. Of course we are also using fire to kill our foes. We are winning so far.”

Arya watched her father look up at the sky. He then looked back down at the Queen. “It is only little more than an hour and a quarter till nightfall.”

Eddard ended his words with that simple statement. Arya knew the night was the domain of the Ice King. Arya was not worried. The enemy had to come to them and not the other way around. The Ice King had chosen to join the battle and he had to do it on the terms of Dany and her father had set.

“I know Ned” Dany answered Arya’s father. “The night is to their advantage but they do have to come to us. The fires that are burning now will provide illumination when the sun sets. At least up close to our lines. We will launch oil barrels into their midst after dark and light the oil. It will at least provide some illumination away from the berm. It is not perfect but it should let us know what is coming. When we set the dead on fire near the berm we will be able to see our targets clearly I think. I see they are piling up again before the berm.”

Eddard smiled grimly. “Yes. More tender to use against the Ice King. It is fortunate that the magic that animates the dead makes them burn so. We are able to use it against him.”

They paused with the arrival of the Lord of Revelstone riding up on her mighty Ranyhyn steed. She slide off her horse along with Brail. The Haruchai had Ice sheathed on her back. They walked up to the little party gathered around the Queen. The Queen greeted the stern Lord.

“I am happy to see you alive Queen Daenerys. This reunion is most fortuitous. Your might is needed and your return will lift the spirits of your forces. I have struck blows against our foes. I long to strike more. I sense our enemy will make his push after the sun sets. I have heard the stories that they see as well at night as we do in the day.”

She chuckled slightly. This made Arya start. The Lord was not a woman to find humor. Everyone looked at her strangely except her Bloodguard lover Brail. She remained passive.

“What is so funny?” Daenerys asked with a look of both confusion and slight pique at finding humor in such a stressful situation. War was not humorous Arya thought.

“I am sorry. The Waynhim were … I mean are denizens of the deep dark caves beneath Mount Thunder. Wherever these have come from I have no idea but they are still Demondim spawn. You see they have no eyes. Their sense of smell is most acute. Between their smell, hearing and other senses we cannot be sure of they are at home in pitch black. I would not be surprised if the Waynhim look forward to the coming darkness. Their deadliness will only increase tenfold in the dark. The Ice Wrights have eyes. The Waynhim do not. They will decimate them if they meet.”

In the conversation that ensued the Lord understood the trouble the coming darkness would bring. The undead and Icy spawn had caused much calamity to the Wildlings and Crows in the dark of night.

“I can help but only for short bursts of time. I can send out branching Lord’s Fire high in the sky and arch it out over the battlefield. The cloud cover will actually help reflect the light back down. For a few minutes I can illuminate the battlefield. If I am doing this I cannot attack but at the right time this may help.

The Queen and Eddard thanked her. Jon came up and tilted his head towards the Queen of Westeros. Jon did not report to the Queen and he kept a stiff formality between them. Arya knew that Dany did not like it but she accepted it. She respected the power structure that had been established between Westeros and the Night’s Watch. It had kept the force alive for eight thousand years. No other institution from that time still remained and remained basically unchanged. It had survived the centuries when little else had.

He reported formerly to Daenerys that the Crows and Wildlings were fighting well. He had went ravens to the forts of Queensgate and Oakenshield. From there the word would be sent to the forts further down the fallen Wall in both directions. The forces put on high alert and to be prepared to move towards Castle Black.

It had been agreed that the forces of Essos the Queen had stationed behind the forts would make ready to move in towards Castle Black if ordered. Arya doubted those forces would be needed. The fight would be decided by the forces in the fight in the here and now.

Arya looked out over the plain before the berm. Out to the furthest range of arrows, it was littered with the fallen bodies of the Walking Dead. More were coming in. Arya found it amazing that that so many arrows missed. She saw a sea of shafts sticking out of the ground. The fletching showing all the colors of the various Houses of Westeros, Crows, Mercenary Companies and Wildlings. They looked like flowers in a disturbing way.

Now Arya had to chuckle herself. The field of arrows stuck in the ground like denuded flowers was having an unexpected benefit. The Walking Dead did not see their surroundings in any detail. They seemed to merely have the compulsion to move forward and to attack anything living. They did not look down. The undead were constantly tripping and falling flat on their faces or knocking each other down as they stumbled over an arrow and toppled into the Walking Dead beside them.

The bodies slowly struggling back to their feet or some on all fours now but still moving forward. It slowed them down and gave more time for Dragon Glass or Fire arrows to find them. While she watched she saw dragon glass arrows slamming into some of those undead. The ones moving on all fours taking them in the back. Some carried on till more arrows struck them. They would then topple over and move no more. Arya felt her blood running hearing the next flight of arrows being launched. Other bodies lighting up and burning brightly after fire arrows found them.

Revitalized, Arya kissed Dany on the lips and ran to the promontory. She found a big mound of quivers there filled with Dragon Glass. She strung her bow up and excitedly pulled an arrow from the quiver she had placed on her back. She saw a gopher fifty yards away. Its eyes glowing the bright blue of the undead. She let loose and hit it in the head. It dropped dead. She pulled another arrow out her arrow and put it to her bowstring. She saw a fox stumbling forward. It had received an arrow in its rear leg. It was dragging that leg. She hit it in the neck. The fox staggered and fell other. Its small legs kicked for ten seconds and then went still. The light of the undead slowly fading from its dead orbs.

A large wild goat was coming into range. She joined other archers and fired off at the undead beast. It was hit multiple times and toppled over dead. Its body had at least seven arrows jutting out it. It was flooded with deadly obsidian poison that was anathema to the Walking Dead.

Arya smiled again. Her father and her woman had provided so well for the forces of Westeros. She and her fellow archers were firing their arrows with abandon. She felt a runner drop several quivers by her feet. The runner moving off to drop quivers at the feet of the next archer. Empty handed he ran back to grab more.

She looked back at Dany and her father talking with Jon. She was happy again. Her world was complete. She turned and fired off at a hound. Her arrows was followed by another and it toppled dead. Two men were shot down and a large man behind those two came forward. He had been a large man in life. He staggered. Three arrows now jutted out his chest. Black tendrils spreading out across his body. Arrows whistled by his head. Arya took careful aim at the man seventy-five yards away. She released the string. Her arrow flashed out to its target.

Her aim was true. Her arrow sunk into his skull through his right eye. The energy of the impact whipped his head back. His body toppled back with several more arrows hitting his body. He did not move.

Arya looked at the Waynhim. They were slashing any undead that made it to the top of the promontory. Their Lorermaster was sending out long ribbons of their black acid when an aggregate of the shambling dead stumbled together to form a group within range of the Waynhim. The Loremaster able to cast his acid out to thirty yards. They Waynhim were barking incessantly.

Those on the edge of the fighting wedge facing their enemy were totally focused on the task. That could not be said of those in the interior of their grey wedge. The denizens of the Land turned their heads to argue and bicker with each other. They never lost focus in keeping their staves on the shoulders of the brothers in front of them. In this way the Waynhim channeled their power forward to their Loremaster and the Waynhim on the edge of the fighting wedge. Their roynish barks of supposed discord loud in the air.

Arya noted the sky was beginning to dim. It was less than hour to sunset now.

Jon: The air was filled with the sound of angry wasps. Jon watched yet another flight of arrows winging through the air. The individual arrows wiggling slightly as they flew off to their target. The long arcs beautiful to watch. He heard the loud thwacks of catapult and trebuchets hitting their stops. The sudden stopping of motion sending their projectiles off platforms and slings.

Many of the objects aflame as they spun and tottered toward their enemies. Most of the shots flung to land hundreds of yards away. Many of the catapults though shot just over the heads of the forces manning the berm. The flaming objects seeming just missing their heads and shooting forward to bounce their shots over the ground to jump and leap into the undead that shambled all around before the berm.

The arrows and projectiles from the siege engines doing great damage to the forces of the Ice King. He looked back at the phalanxes of archers. They waited long enough for all the men and some women in their ranks to load up their bows. Then as one they lifted their bows and fired as one with a shout from their commander. The arrows taking flight with an angry buzz. It was beautiful to see such coordinated work. The arrows themselves beautiful in their own right.

Jon looked back out over the plain. The just launched arrows now impacting anything in their flight path. The Lord Commander still marveled that the Ice King had so many Walking Dead to throw at them. The light was fading but he saw more undead fall down and move no more. Others were stumbling down with multiple arrows jutting out their undead bodies. The larger animated dead needed many arrows to put them down. Others were stumbling and twirling as their bodies burned brightly with fire that would not cease till they had been burned to ash and sludge.

It had been an hour since the reappearance of the Queen. His heart had been elated to see her return to the battlefield. How she had cheated death he was not sure. It did not matter. She had. He had seen how everyone gazed at her with wonder and stood just that little straighter. She was indeed a charismatic leader. Her purple eyes fired up one’s courage and steadfastness.

Jon had been especially happy for his sister. Arya was like a love stuck teenager. In actuality she was. Jon smiled. The return of Daenerys Targaryen and risen her from the realm of the spiritually dead. She was firing off arrows at a steady rate now. Her body actually jumping around as she looked for her next target. She and the best archers looked for targets to engage.

The Queen had gone to the promontory to survive the situation. Jon and his wives stayed where they had been since the start of the battle about three hundred yards to the west. Ygritte’s shadow monster was still folded down on itself. She and Melisandre wanted to be near it. They would rouse the beast when the time came. Even though it was a being of black shadows those shadows continuously rippled and seemed to fold in on themselves.

The Direwolves had gathered around Jon and Ghost. The mighty wolves understood they were more mighty as a pack. The four mighty beasts were like the shadow monster. They rested and waited for when the battle reached them.

Jon knew the shadow monster would be needed. The sky was beginning to darken. They were slaughtering the forces of the Ice King but Jon knew he would sometime soon mount his true assault. It was near time for him to do his little murmur play. His father had talked to him with the Queen.

“I think we need to goad the Ice King son” his father spoke to him as Daenerys looked on. “You are indeed Azor Ahai reborn.” Jon had started to argue. No he was Jon Snow. His father held up his hand to forestall his son’s protest. “I know you are not literally that man reborn from the land of Asshai but we cannot deny that spiritually you are. You sword proves it. I merely wish to use that to our advantage.”
“How will Jon do that?” Daenerys asked Eddard Stark.

“How will Jon do that?” Daenerys asked Eddard Stark.

“To the Ice King, Jon, you are Azor Ahai. He cannot help but think that. The two of you are linked. For him, you are that man from eight thousand years past. He will long to exact revenge against you son. I wish to use that hatred to our advantage. The sun will be setting soon. Sometime before sunrise he will make his major attack. He will hit us with everything he has. We have been decimating his forces since the battle began. He has risen many dead but that is a finite number. It has to have a limitation. Even if he has a vast sea of more undead he must be fearing the rate of their slaughter.”

The Queen had spoken up then “I think you are right Eddard. When I first awoke several miles into the Haunted Forest I found that there is still Walking Dead in those woods to that depth but they were not as dense as I saw when I first took flight on Drogon. They were still great in number but definitely reduced in numbers. The Ice King has many undead to throw at us yet but we are winnowing them down. We have the weapons to kill them at distance finally. That has tilted the battlefield in our advantage.”

“Yes it has. But he has been throwing only his Walking Dead at us in great numbers. He has been having us expend our strength on his projectile fodder. We have the forces to rotate our archers but still they are taxing themselves. The foot soldiers and knights have been on guard all day. They have to be weary. Adrenaline will have them ready for any rush but still we feel fatigue. The Ice King knows of our weaknesses. He will attack in mass with his Ice Wrights and Giants soon.”

“The Ice King knows he must attack while he has walking dead to distract our fire from his precious Wrights and Giants. Daenerys has seen the beginning of the limits of his undead. He will have to mass his attack soon. Tonight. He knows we will not allow him to disengage without pursuit. If they retreat they will be able to ambush and turn and fight at their choosing but we will be aggressors then.”

“If he attempts to retreat his slow Walking Dead we will decimate. He will be stripped of his most advantageous resource. He also must know that if we take the initiative of attack from him we will not stop in our pursuit of him. He must win the fight here. Now. With our dragon glass we will hunt them down and kill them.”

“So I want to focus his attack here Jon, Daenerys!” Eddard told the two with direct eye contact. “We have our most potent force here. The Waynhim are a mighty force. They are first cousins of the Ur-viles who fought for you on the Dothraki Sea Daenerys. They are still even with their losses over four hundred more than you had then. We have the Giants and Haruchai massed here. We need to have the Lord of Revelstone here with us unless she is needed elsewhere. Most of our Valyrian weapons are here.”

“We need to have the locus of the Ice King’s focus here. I do not want to have to try and move our resources to the west or east to engage if we can help it.”

“I do not know how much of my ancestor’s lineage is a conscious part of the Ice King. I know very little of this man. He has been lost to the annals of history. But he sounds like he was a venial man in life. I may be wrong but I doubt he had a great military mind” Jon saw his father hesitate. “I know he did launch an amazingly complicated initial attack but I am hoping that now that his initial attack did not succeed he will be reactionary. He knows he must attack tonight but I must hope he has no more great tactical strokes. He will attack in mass. He must force a breech in our lines of size and roll back our flanks.”

“I want him to make that attempt here.”
“How will you get him to do that? How will you guarantee that?” Daenerys asked Eddard.

“With Jon. We will construct a platform here son and when the sky begins to darken at dusk you will mount the platform and unsheathe your sword Lightbringer. If you wives can enhance your voice that would be good. I want you to get on the platform and wave your sword about. In the darkening sky it will be most dramatic. I want you to challenge and hurl insults at the Ice King son. Call him a coward.”

Jon felt himself squirming inside. He was not braggadocios. His father had taught him that.

“You will call him out Jon. A great leader cannot show weakness. He will be enraged at any insult to his prowess. It is a failing of men I fear” Eddard said shaking his head. “His Ice Wrights have shown will and decision making. He will have to prove to them he will meet the challenge. He called for this war and has to see it through or he will risk mutiny.”

Daenerys spoke “I agree. You restored order to the Night’s Watch when you showed your wrath and your strength of will. It will be same for the Ice King. He cannot show weakness. He rules with his force of personality from what your wives have told us. They were created by him but that means they must share his traits. They would not tolerate him showing weakness or cowardice.”

Jon had to agree with the assessment of his father and the Queen.

He had watched the fight for an hour now since that meeting. He could see in the distance the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants waiting safely beyond range of the catapults and trebuchets. The scorpions did not have the range to threaten them that far out. The scorpions weapons were being saved for when the major assault occurred for the forces of the enemy that were close in on the berm.

Ygritte had felt a great tiredness come upon her. She was still recovering from her ordeal. A lean to was created for her and she crawled underneath it to be shielded from the snow. Several furs were spread beneath her and placed over her. She did not need them normally but in her weakened state she relished the warmth they provided. Melisandre had a couple more furs brought and laid them lovingly over her tired wife. She stood stoically nearby guarding her still exhausted wife.

Jon saw the four Ice Wrights that had survived the initial assault and seemed to have acquired a new ability. They had taken to the battlefield again. Their spidery tendrils of purple arching up from the sword of an Ice Giant. The power they shot up was able to knock down many arrows. They had advanced forward into the outer range of arrow fire and sent up their webs. It took all four of the Wrights working their swords together to achieve their webs. Many arrows were knocked down but others flew through. The undead were still feathered though in greatly reduced numbers.

Fortunately, Jon thought, they had plenty of arrows and archers to fire them off. He heard randomly the whooshing sound of some of the scorpions being fired off. Their range was out to four hundred yards but their accuracy was poor at that range. The scorpion bolts fired off at closer range to keep the Ice Wrights on their proverbial toes. Almost none found and Icy spawn to impale. When any Undead were hit they were thrown twenty feet back by the impact. The large obsidian tipped weapon instantly killing any Walking Dead they struck.

The four Ice Wrights with their spidery webs were throwing them up to knock out arrows and had moved to within two hundred and fifty yards now and were still coming closer. Their confidence growing in their ability to protect themselves and the undead underneath the arc of their purplish web of protections.

Jon pumped his fist and whooped when one of the Dragon Glass tipped scorpion bolts slammed into one of the Ice Wrights making the purple spidery webs. His body thrown back already dead.
had become too confident and finally came close enough to be fired on accurately on by the scorpions. The other Ice Wrights putting up the purple webs started at the loss of one of their brothers.

Other Ice Wrights that had congregated around the four Ice Wrights throwing up the magic spider webs were thrown back with scorpion bolts in them. They were flung back and crashed to the ground. The scorpion bolts had come in at flatter trajectory and thus underneath the main webbing that the Ice Wrights were throwing up. Some of the bolts hit the base of the spidery web and shattered.

The three surviving Ice Wrights seeing their danger immediately fell back with their surviving brothers in the rings. Their concentration broken the web of protection winked out of existence. The arrows could now fall on the shambling undead with freedom and they started to die quicker and sooner their second permanent death.

Another small victory Jon thought. It was small victories added on top of each other that led to the ultimate victory.

Melisandre was beside him now. Ygritte was sleeping under the pile of furs and covered by a heap others that Jon had ordered brought forward seeing Melisandre put more furs on their wife. He did not want to be outdone in the caring department! She was still recovering from her effort in creating the shadow monster that rested waiting to be roused. Melisandre assured her husband that Ygritte was nearly recovered. After this cat nap she should be fully recovered. They would be ready for the great battle.

The two looked at each other. “I feel it too Jon. The Ice King will attack tonight with everything he has at his disposal. He has stopped his ichor from lapping forward. The dead still come at us and we must take them out. Our forces are rotating but they are tiring. I am sure the Croyel will again send out the waves to send the undead forward in mass. He will follow in on that tide. The Croyel and his master know that the battle must be decided tonight.”

Melisandre looked out over the mass of roiling Walking Dead constantly ambling forward in their disjointed manner. They were dying in droves and yet they come forward. They truly did not fear death. She felt grim satisfaction seeing them fall down dead with Dragon Glass in them or stumbling forward when a fire arrow lodge into their bodies and set them afire to burn bright and not to a quick death.

When a burning undead ran into another Walking Dead they set them afire. Sometimes, when they finally collapsed they would fall on already killed undead with Dragon Glass and a small pyre would ignite hotly to burn until the bodies had been reduced to slag and ash.

It was only a quarter of an hour till the sun would begin to touch the horizon if there was no clouds in the sky. The snow was falling heavily now. The darkness was like onto dusk already. The flakes sticking and beginning to build where they were not touched. Most of the snow on the ground was ground into the mud and slosh underneath both striving armies. Still, where it was not trampled down the snow was sticking. It was reflecting all the light that it caught. It was providing additional illumination. Any additional light this night would be used by the forces of Westeros.

Jon looked at Melisandre. It was time. Sappers had constructed the platform he would climb up to shout his challenge to the Ice King. He felt kind of silly with what he was about to do. He was a modest man and tried to comport himself as such.

The ShadowBender witch moved closer to her husband murmuring in her native tongue. Her hands traced Asshai glyphs in the air. The black runes not dissipating but slowly revolved around each other. The additional runes that the tall auburn haired woman traced in the air joined the circling band of black glowing runes. Melisandre slowly added to the glyphs that glowed dark black in the air before her and her husband.

With fascination Jon watched the ribbon of runes circling faster and beginning to glow black. Jon had come to see that when the runes started to glow they were nearing ready for use. Jon calmed himself. He trusted his wives completely but he had just seen his small wife give birth to a shadow monster from her birth canal. That kind of magic made a person take note. It took some willpower to not transfer the fear of one magical construct to another.

Melisandre’s chants changed in tenor and tone. The band of runes now lifted from up above her hands that had spawned them. A choker of black runes had been formed. The Night’s Commander watched the runes drift up towards his throat. His eyes tracking the revolving band of ShadowBender magic. The choker unclasped and came forward and angled around his throat. He felt the runes touch the skin of his throat. He started feeling the band of runes flow around his throat and meld to his skin. He felt a hot pulse and then nothing.

Jon reached up and touched his throat. He felt nothing and looked over at Melisandre with a question in his eyes.

“It is there my husband. It looks quite good actually. It makes a pretty choker. I may leave it there.”

Jon gave her a dubious look. With Melisandre’s poker face he was never sure when his tall wife was joking or being serious.

Jon smiled at her. He looked over and down at Ygritte. The touched by the sun woman was snoring. Her body wrapped in furs and protected from the snow by the lean to that had been constructed too keep the snow off her. The snow was nearly an inch deep on the taunt canvass.

“It is good Ygritte is sleeping. I won’t have to hear her telling me ‘I know nothing’ as I make my grand pronouncements.”

The tall auburn haired woman smiled at her husband’s humor.

Jon turned and stepped up on the platform that his father had had quickly constructed. It was not a grand affair and a little rickety but it would serve its purpose. He turned to look out beyond the berm. He scanned the air that was darkening as true dusk approached. He could not see the Ice King specifically. Still he knew he was before him. He was not that distant. He could feel him. He was sure that the Ice King in turn could feel him. Azor Ahai reborn.

Jon took a long calming breath. He had tried to think out a speech to shout out but he kept getting the lines all jumbled up and confused. He had finally decided to just wing it and say whatever came to his mind. He just hope that he did not make a total fool of himself. He threw his chest out getting into the mindset he needed to talk major shit.

“Ice King! I know you are out there you sniveling pig. You craven dog who hides behind his army and lets them die for him. You are a craven coward!”

Jon eyebrows knotted. His voice sounded normal to him. He looked down at Melisandre in confusion. The auburn haired witch looked up at him with small smirk.

“Oh I assure you my husband. You voice is quite loud. It is booming across the battlefield.”

The skeptical Lord Commander lifted an eyebrow. Ygritte was still snoring sawing away at logs.
“You know she ignores you my husband.”

Shaking his head in agreement Jon had to agree with his tall wife’s summation of their short wife. She did tend to ignore Jon when she did not want to hear what he had to say. Jon looked around at the forces of Westeros near him. Most who were not actively engaged fighting the forces of the Ice King had turned to look at him. Their faces showed mild shock and their attention was clearly focused on him.

Jon shrugged. He may not hear it but obviously others did. He was not boisterous by nature but it would be good and dare he say it fun to throw shade at his nemesis. The man was supposedly a Stark in his first life. He had and was bringing infinite shame to the Stark name. He had to be put down.

Jon squared his shoulders and went with it saying the first thing that came to his mind. He knew he would stumble over any prepared remarks. He would just say whatever came to him. He was kind of curious to see what he would come up with. When he talked smack to his wives when abusing them like they craved he just talked shit so he would do so now.

“I stand here on this platform and call you out to fight me you worthless prig. You are a spineless craven piece of shit. It was I with this sword” Jon made a show of reaching back behind him and pulling Lightbringer out of its scabbard with a dramatic jerk of his hand. The sword pulled out of its scabbard was swirled around over Jon’s head. The blade bleeding off long tongues of flame that glowed bright red, yellow with hints of blue and white mixed into the flames. Jon made a show of swirling the blade back and forth. The Lord Commander made mighty down chops with his sword.

“Soon this sword will again cleave your head in two. It will gut you like a slaughtered pig!”

Jon had no idea how Azor Ahai had killed the Ice King eight thousand years ago. It had to be something like he had just said. Whoa! Jon had nearly toppled off the stage making his last mighty down swipe of his sword. He looked around hoping no one noticed how clumsy he was. All who were not fighting were giving Jon their rapt attention. He saw no ridicule on their faces so all was well he thought.

“I so clearly remember seeing the shock and agony in your pale eyes as I gutted you like a fish! As I sent your head flying!” Jon was lying through his teeth. He had no clear memories of any past battle. He would awake from dreams with vague afterimages of him fighting and killing the Ice King. In the dreams though, it was not he Jon Snow that killed the Ice Wright King. It was a man with long black hair and an angular face. It was Azor Ahai. All he could vaguely remembering after awakening from those dreams was that he killed the Ice King. He merely had no specific memories other than chaotic combat.

“Come to me sniveling coward. Come before me again. History has already been written my foe. I killed you in the past and I will do so again. Once history was and is written it will be as it must be. I killed you before and I will kill you again. I will enjoy seeing the light leave your eyes again my small foe. I have no fear of you pig!”

Bullshit Jon thought. He again had no memory of anything beyond that he won. They were just dreams. He knew he would win. He was not alone. Still he was afraid of the coming confrontation. That was normal. His father had told him he always felt fear in combat. His father had told him to use that fear to focus oneself. Let the fear hone your skills and instinct.

“I will await you here my old foe. Can you scrape up the courage from the depths of your dissipated soul to stop your knees from knocking together? You have spent the entire day sending in others to do your fighting.” Jon was walking around the platform making hacks, thrusts and parries with Lightbringer. The sword leaving afterimages behind Jon. “You do not have the courage to fight you own battles. Your Ice Wright sons need to ask why. Are you what you proclaim yourself to be? You are a Coward! Come to me my long dead ancestor. Come to me to die again!"

Jon had run out of things to say. He ended with a flourish of sword swipes and hacks for a grand ending flourish. He sheathed his sword with a grand motion. Anymore and he would be repeating himself. It would dilute what he had already said. Hopefully, it would be enough. This fight when you stripped away everything else about this fight it was personal. He was the modern avatar that had fought the Ice King eight thousand years ago.

They would fight to the death. Jon felt it.

He was curious though. He turned to look at Ygritte in her furs. She was still snoring away. She snored extra loud. She jerked her head and brushed her nose and mouth with her hand. She wiggled around and turned onto her side. She settled back down. She resumed snoring loudly. Jon’s speech had been totally missed by the little spitfire. He shook his head.

Then a thought came to him. He could use this the next time he fucked over Ygritte. She was after him to use any slight she and Melisandre did against him. To use those slights as reasons to fuck them over. He smiled filing this incident thought away for future lascivious use.

Ice King: Frustration ran through the icy veins of the Ice King. His elegant initial assault had fallen for naught. He looked around at his adopted sons. None of them looked at him with doubt or concern. It gnawed at his dead icy bones that his initial failure to be able to use the Horn of Winter had thrown off the brilliance of his initial strike. He was to hit his enemies with a three fisted strike. A blow by the traitors from the rear while his strike force reigned confusion and death in their midst. The Wall coming down at the same time would have filled his enemy with fear and doubt. It had been so brilliant. It had been for naught.

Again the Ice King looked around at his spawn that he had produced over the last ten years. He looked for any doubt or calculation. He perceived none. His rule and judgements had not as yet been questioned. The Ice King knew that it had been his difficulty in mastering the Horn of Winter that had thrown off the timing of his initial assault.

It had never occurred to him that it would take more to bring the Wall down than simply blowing into the Horn of Winter. Nothing in the legends of the Horn of Winter had led him or his true son to suspect that it would be difficult to use. The Croyel had only warned him of the ramifications of the use of the Horn of Winter. That the horn would unbind more than merely the Wall. The Croyel had not foreseen how hard the use of the Horn of Winter would be either.

The nature of the Horn of Winter and how it was to be used had precluded it being tested. Its use was a onetime thing. That lack of a test had cost the Ice King dearly.

It was not till he tried to use the Horn of Winter and failed continuously that the Croyel was able to discern what the difficulty was in using the horn. In fact, if it had not been for his true son, he would still be blowing the Horn even now. It had been with his son’s guidance and helping his father to focus that had led eventually to the Ice King being successful in the horn’s use. Yes, it was his son that had enable the Ice King to succeed in bringing down the Wall.

The Ice King had secretly watched his son’s actions and monitored his emotions. The two could not read each other’s minds. They could project their thoughts to each other but no more. As they remain bonded though they had developed an empathetic understanding of each other’s basic moods and emotions. The Ice King could feel no sense of betrayal from the Croyel. The Croyel had indeed tied his life to the Ice King. The Croyel was relying on his father for victory and life. His Croyel when he needed him had been there for the Ice King.
The two were bound to each other even tighter now. His son was nervous but that was all. The Ice King was nervous but he dare not show it to anyone but himself. The Croyel may sense his father’s gnawing fear rising in his belly but the Croyel knew its fate was tied to him. None of his adopted sons had the power that the Croyel needed. The Croyel needed potent powerful magic when a Croyel bounded with its host.

The Ice King was safe from that quarter. The Croyel had no other to bind to. One of his Ice Wright sons may come to desire such a union but the Croyel would find it lacking. The Ice Wright insufficient to the Croyel’s need. He was still safe with his son and his subordinates. He needed to make sure it remained that way. He needed victory.

The only problem was that in his heart he was starting to worry. There was two forces that had arisen and were now working to throw all his careful plans asunder. The first and foremost was the seemingly unlimited supply of Dragon Glass. He was still stupefied that the forces of Jon Snow and the risen again Dragon Queen had so much Dragon Glass.

Not even his creators had had much of the hateful obsidian. Yet his foes of this time, eight thousand years later, seemed to have an unlimited supply. After a full day of fighting, the enemy were still firing off obsidian arrows without letup. The flights of arrows were like angry hornets the buzzing arrows made cutting through the air. The swarms of arrows never ceasing. The catapults and trebuchets were adding to the destruction of his forces that they could reach. The damn siege engines hurling fire and obsidian at his forces. The fire they hurled setting his Walking Dead alight when they reached them.

That was the primary thing throwing his plans awry. As it was eight thousand years ago it was so now. Dragon Glass was total anathema to the Ice King’s magic. He was created by it and his creations were killed by it. It would kill him as well.

The second thing that had totally thrown his plans into disarray was this Lord of Revelstone. The woman from the land of the Croyel in the southern hemisphere. His son had constantly told him of her danger. Of her great power. He had lashed his son repeatedly for those seeming bleating. He had fought mages during the Long Night. Eight thousand years ago he had fought mages. They had been powerful but not overwhelming. They were like the ShadowBenders that was in the enemy’s camp of his enemy now.

The magic of the mages of old had been powerful but did not have the ability to project their magical might. This Lord of Revelstone was something totally different. He had seen and felt the power of this Lord from beyond the Wall. The continuous blasts of what the Croyel called Lord’s Fire had been shocking. He felt his Ice Wrights and Giants dying when each mighty bloom of blue light occurred beyond the Wall that was followed by the mighty echo of the discharge of the Lord’s might.

Once they had passed the broken Wall he had seen her Lord’s Fire first hand. The blue fire was like a battering ram. He had watched the woman ride on a mighty horse that rushed the Lord to several breeches that his Walking Dead had forced on the berm. When the Lord reached the breech she had used her Lord’s Fire to simply obliterate the forces trying to bull rush their way through the lines of the Queen and Crows.

The fire from the Lord’s staff had blasted all before her for at least fifty yards. She was able to shout words in a language he did not understand that added to her power. When she added those words to her staff and the fire it discharged the results had been spectacular. The fire from her staff reaching out to a hundred and fifty yards and sometimes more. There was simply nothing left of the forces that the fire impacted into. It reduced all before it to viscera and fragments.
Those words the Lord spoke made the Croyel wail in his mind. This Lord of Revelstone plugged any breech that was made in the lines of the forces of Westeros. She was simply unstoppable. He needed multiple breeches to overcome this woman’s abilities. She could only be in one place at any moment.

He had attempted to understand this phrase that the Lord spoke. Could he take her staff and say the words himself. His son had screamed in his mind of the ludicrousness of such thoughts. Even saying the first word of power would burn them from the inside into ash. The words this Lord spoke were from the foundation of the world. They were the pure essence of Earthpower.

The Croyel had whimpered and actually cried contemplating these words of ‘Earthpower’. The Ice King decided he would be unable to glean any further information on the subject from his true son at the moment. After victory they could analyze the issues of Earthpower in depth.

The only thing that ameliorated this Lord affect was the fact that she was only one person. She could be overwhelmed.

Those things were bad enough. He would have to simply overwhelm and envelope his enemy. His losses would be grievous but it could not be helped.

Those had been bad enough. Then his one true victory in the battle had turned into ash in his mouth. He had been studying the forces of Westeros when a mighty bass roar sounded right behind him. Then not one hundred yards to his right a mighty gout of flame slammed into his forces. The gout had come from behind them. The sudden onslaught had filled the Ice King with great untrammeled fear.

His Croyel screamed in his mind a long wail of complete fear and shock. The Ice King himself had been shocked speechless. His eyes widened in pure terror and awe. He knew that flame. It was the magical flame of a dragon! The flames lashed into the heart of his force of Ice Wrights and Giants gathered beyond the range limit of the trebuchets.

The father and son shivered uncontrollably. The dragon’s fire was as devastating as the Lord’s Fire. Where the fire touched down onto the ground and over his adopted sons had been sheer devastation. His created sons screamed in agony as they were instantly incinerated. Where the Lord’s Fire instantly obliterated those it touched it took time for those touched by the dragon fire to burn to death. It was not long but it was a hideously long enough. His adopted sons screamed and wailed in agony. Their deaths were not an easy thing to watch. The fire of the dragon seemed to cling and slither all over whatever it touched. Some of Ice Wright sons had tried to beat the flames off to no avail.

The screams of his Ice Wrights and Giants dying was a hideous wail on the winds and down drifting snow. The walking dead set alight shambled around unfeeling before falling down to die. Not so those he had created in his own image. They screamed and ran around flailing their arms and clawing their burning faces as they died.

The Ice King did not feel true remorse at their death. He was connected to them and felt their deaths. Their deaths touched his mind but not his soul. It was the thwarting of his will that drove him truly mad. That and the fear of dragons that motivated the Ice King.

The dragon and the Queen he saw on the dragon’s retreating back were flying back to her forces. The sudden reappearance of the black dragon upset him greatly. The black dragon had roared his defiance as he twice more belched out his mighty magical flames. The flames now licking over the Walking Dead and not his precious adopted sons for the most point. The flames sitting his undead alight by the score. The husks stumbling into their brothers and sisters setting them alight. How the undead took more of themselves down to their second death.

The Ice King had to calm his son. He was screaming again and again in abject terror. He was a warrior born and quickly calmed himself. He then calmed his true son. He filled his son with his confidence.

What he did not tell his son was that they had just been very lucky.

He had not sensed the Queen flying up on them from behind. She had flown fast and silently and caught him and his true son completely unawares. Their total focus had been on the forces of Westeros before them. The Queen most not have been able to distinguish him from his creations. He thanked the old gods he hated that he did not wear an ornate crown. He looked much like his created sons. Nothing about his stature or attire made him stand out from his creations.

This had saved him. Luck had saved him. One hundred yards to the left. That was all the Queen would have to have adjusted her aim and he would have died. The Croyel would not have had time to setup up his magical wards of protection. He would have died screaming like his adopted sons.

He had stood there watching the dragon and Queen fly back to the lines of Westeros.

His mind and body still recovering from the shock of simple luck being his savior.

The dragon had landed and then flew off to the rear of the camp. With his far seeing eyes the Ice King had seen the deep wounds up and down the flanks and belly of the great black dragon. Ice Fang had died. He could not reach out and touch his mind. It dumfounded and enraged the Ice King that the black dragon and his bitch Queen had survived the battle. How could they have survived such a great fall he stormed to himself and not his son?

He had been enraged but he controlled his anger. He continued his assault against the forces arrayed against him. They may have limitless Dragon Glass but they were mortal like he had once been. They had to be tiring as he forced them to constantly fight. His undead were constantly advancing forward. Still in the back of his mind the Ice King kept thinking that the forces of the returned bitch Queen would exhaust their supply of Dragon Glass. It had not happened yet.

He had the Croyel to stop the lapping of his ichor that covered the ground up to the berm. The Walking Dead were now covered over the whole plain. He did not want to try and overwhelm his enemies at the moment. He only wanted them to keep them fighting constantly. He needed to tire them out. He glanced behind him. He saw an endless sea of the undead facing to the South. With their brothers bunched up before them had ceased their compulsion to move forward. They were blocked and shuffled waiting for the opportunity to move forward again. He had plenty more fodder to use against his foes.

He watched while grinding his teeth the archers of Westeros constantly firing their swarms of arrows. The siege engine operators constantly at work. The knight and foot soldiers were kept constantly at the ready for possible use. Adrenaline rush long ago burned off that sapped strength. Yes, all this effort had to be taxing his enemy. They tired. His forces did not. He would use that advantage.

On a promontory of the berm was a dark stain. It was small and had an odd triangular shape to it. He could just detect faint movements within the dark grey stain. They were Waynhim the Croyel had told him. They were powerful magical constructs that had consciousness. He was informed that the Demondim spawn had created them over sixty thousand years ago. That Ur-viles had replenished their numbers. The Croyel told his father they were very powerful but could be killed.

The Croyel had thought both species were instinct but it was obvious that the Waynhim at least lived on in great numbers.

The Ice King shook his head at this new news. He did not care of the lineage of this stain. Demondim and Ur-viles meant nothing to him.

The Croyel further informed his father that these were creatures of the deep caves underneath the Earth. They did not even have eyes. He may see well at night but the Waynhim and their cousins Ur-viles had perfect knowledge of their surroundings in pitch blackness. They too would be at home fighting in the darkness. They would be most dangerous.

Another thing became clear to the Ice King listening to his son explain the Demondim spawn. They were magical constructs. They were not born of a mother and a father. These denizens of the deep were created. They were immortal in the sense they would not age. Nor would they tire. These Waynhim would be able to fight with full vigor until they were killed off. The Croyel told his father the way to defeat the Waynhim was to break up their fighting wedge. It was the fighting wedge that amplified greatly their power.

The Ice King felt his whole body clench at the news. What in the hell was it with these denizens of the Southern hemisphere. First he had the damned Azor Ahai coming from half way across the world traveling from far Essos to come to Westeros to fight both now and eight thousand years past. Now he had to contend with all these powerful beings from the south of the world. It was not fair he raged to himself.

Deep in his soul he considered his options. A strong part of him wanted to disengage with his enemies and retreat to plan for another attack. There was only one problem. His enemies would not let him run away unpursued. They would definitely slaughter all his undead. With obsidian they would quickly kill any new dead he may raise. With obsidian they would hunt him day and night. The black dragon would eventually recover. The Ice King was sure the black dragon’s two brothers lived yet unseen. They would hunt him and his adopted sons relentlessly.

No. He had win here and now. He had cast his lot and must see it through. His resolved stiffened.

For the next hour plus he continued his assault with his walking dead. His most senior son near his front lines had used the four surviving Ice Wrights from the initial strike force. Somehow, them being cloaked by the Croyel’s magic for months had allowed them to develop a new talent. This talent discovered in the desperation of battle.

He watched them advance. They had gotten too confident. They came in range of the scorpions and archers now able to fire at a much flatter trajectory. One of the Ice Wrights with the new ability killed. The attack faltered.

He watched the three survivors hastily move back. They then moved among their brothers and selected five of them. The three survivors then split into two groups of one and two. They used the selected brothers to form quartets. The Wrights with the special ability somehow using the selected Ice Wrights to augment their strength.

The Ice King was happy with the initiative he saw. After he had won this battle he would have to science out this new ability and build upon it. This was a mighty boon to his forces. He would hone the knowledge and increase the efficacy of it and make it mighty defensive shield. He watched the two quartets advance slowly now. They had learned caution.

They were advancing cautiously forward shielding the Walking Dead around them from the storms of Dragon Glass flying their way. They had an Ice Giant in the center of each quartet. The Ice Giant had his sword raised. The four Ice Wrights had their swords aimed up at the Ice Giant’s sword. Purple lighting shot from their blades to strike the Ice Giant’s blade. From the Ice Giant’s blade spidery purple lightening shot into the sky and branched out like a spider’s web. The purple streaks able to reach out, snag and then destroy most of the obsidian tipped arrows in the sky that arched through the umbrella of purple lightning. Arrows were breaking through the webs they put up but they were much reduced. Walking Dead were falling down dead from arrow strikes but the losses were greatly reduced.

The Ice King watched the purple spidery webs with grim satisfaction. He had ordered a change of tactics during the next assault that should protect his adopted sons but he was satisfied to see more of the Walking Dead under the purple umbrellas were able to advance to the berm of the Queen’s forces relatively intact. The two quartets shepherding a large contingent of the Ice King’s undead forward to attack the berm.

His satisfaction had turned to raging anger. The archers had sent up cloud after cloud of arrows at the advancing forces warded by this eight special sons. They knocked out most of the arrows. This made him smile. That smile had ceased the next moment. The Queen’s forces had fired the occasional scorpion bolt tipped with an obsidian head. Those mostly missed their targets but some found an undead to impale and kill. His quick reacting adopted sons able to dodge those that came at them.

His special sons were improving the use of their magic. They had been able to destroy several scorpion bolts sent their way with thick tendrils of purple lightning thrown in front of them like close sets of bars in a jail door.

Unfortunately, the forces of the bitch Queen changed tactics to compensate for the new tactic they had come up against. They had been firing their scorpions singly at his Icy spawn. Not this time. At least two hundred scorpion bolts came flashing out towards the advancing force in a mighty salvo of the thick obsidian tipped missiles. The operators of the scorpions not firing off to save themselves for this mighty salvo. The bolts travelling in a much flatter arc than the arrows. Instead of a few now the air was thick with them.

These flew underneath the spidery web of protection being sent up by his sons. His sons sent up their purple vertical bars to protect themselves. The problem was that there was too many scorpion projectiles in the air at one time. The Ice King now noticed that when projectiles hit the purple web that filament winked out of existence. It destroyed the projectile and itself. More tendrils forming to reestablish the barrier. The problem was that the scorpions were shattering the bars of protection. More were forming but it took precious seconds for them to wink into full existence. In that pause of protection scorpion bolts came screaming through the defensive web to seek targets.

Now another barrage of over a hundred scorpion bolts were unleashed. The damn bastards had to be firing off most of their scorpions in this sector to amass this many projectiles. The operators of the siege weapons had definitely improve their aim through constant combat. Now missiles streaked through the gaps in the protection for the Icy spawn.

One of the recruited Ice Wright was killed with a body shot by one of the massive missiles. The Ice Wright thrown back twenty-five feet. He was not one of the original three still left thankfully. The Ice Giant of the other quartet was standing with three of the large shafts buried in his body the obsidian tips killing the Ice Giant as he fell first two his knees and then now onto his face. Other of the non-magical Ice Wrights were killed with large poles jammed deep into their bodies or shot clean through their bodies. Once penetrated by dragon glass his precious Icy spawn would die. The massive bolts insured quick deaths.

The four quartets had to retreat. With the spidery web of protection removed the clouds of arrows decimated the advancing forces of his Walking Dead.

The Ice King had forced himself to calm down. He needed to wait till dark. The humans did not see like he and his spawn could in the dark. Their aim would lessen. That was a fact. He stomped back and forth vexed by the tactics of his enemy. They seemed to have a counterstrike for his every move.

Now he looked up at the sky. Soon it would be totally dark. He had worn the defenders down. He would attack in mass and overwhelm them. Yes they had tactics but they were mortal. He would grind them down like wheat kernels beneath the grindstone.

It was then that Jon Snow climbed up on platform and shouted threats and aspersions against him. His voice magically enhanced so that his voice echoed and all could hear him across the battlefield. He felt his blood boil in both anger and freeze in terror. Jon Snow the reborn Azor Ahai flashed his sword Lightbringer above his head and all around.

The sword was the original. He could sense it from this great distance. It was not the blade of Azor Ahai directly but the essence of that blade was in the hands of the Lord Commander. The Crow Commander shouted threats and called him a coward. He challenged him to direct combat. In fact, the fire of Lightbringer seemed even more intense than it had eight millennium ago.

The Ice King and surreptitiously looked at his created sons. He knew what the Crow Commander was trying to do. The Ice Giants did not seemed phased by what they heard. They were from Giant stock after all and not very intelligent. The Walking Dead were dead and not care for anything but the compulsion he had filled them with. It was the Ice Wrights that looked back at him. Not all of them but the eldest were definitely gauging him. He had to respond and act. They were looking at him gauging him for any weakness. He despised that trait and they inherited it as well.

He pulled out his blue ice sword and waved it above his head.

“Hear me my sons. I will answer this challenge and put this dog down. We will wait till it is dark and then we will strike. The night is our friend and we will embrace it. We have tired out our foes and weakened their numbers. We will use what we have learned and overwhelm them. We will kill these dogs and then raise them up to be our new Walking Dead army.”

“We will sweep south. We will raid all the farms, homesteads, towns and cities. There we will find thousands upon thousands of male children to raise up as your new brothers. Our victory is assured. The enemy’s entire army is here. Here we will defeat them. This spot will mark the beginning of our triumph of all of Westeros.”

“Victory is assured! I guarantee it!”

His adopted sons lifted their swords and shouted their support for their father. They had seen the confidence they needed to see. They would support their father with their all. Those that had any doubts felt them dispelled. They longed to kill the warm bloods before them and make them undead and their servants. They would kill all who had murdered so many of their kindred. They would be merciless.

Slowly the sky darkened with the falling of the sun below the horizon. The snow fell heavier. Still the Walking Dead advanced in a steady stream to the forces of the Queen and Lord Commander. The response from the Queen’s forces was mighty with flights of arrows tipped with Dragon Glass. The arrows never ceasing in their massed flights.

The Ice King had spread the word through his lieutenants that the assault was to commence soon.
He spoke to his Croyel son. His son was ready. The Croyel wanted an end to the Lord of Revelstone. Soon the final assault would commence. He would force his way to the leaders of Westeros and cut them down. Without them the will of the forces of Westeros would break. In the darkness his forces would breach the frontline of the enemy and spread out among the enemy and shatter their formations.

Once they were among their foes then their advantage of Dragon Glass tipped weapons would be taken away. The forces of the Queen had been fighting all day. They had to be tired. Their fighting efficiency reduced.

The Ice King would force his victory. He simply had too.

Sansa: Sansa was eating a meal with her lover, Margaery and Missandei in their wagon. The sounds of war continuing outside. There was a large trebuchet not thirty yards away. They did not hear the rope being pulled that released the peg stop but the sound of the mighty arm swirling through its arc told her it had been. The sound of the sling whipping through the air and the sound of the arm hitting its stop resounded through the wagon.

The shouts of men and women barking at each other to do their tasks and reload the siege machine wafted through the air muffled but somehow still distinct. The she heard the loud voice of a Dorne woman shouting “fire” and the sound of angry hornets was vaguely heard. Another flight of arrows was streaking off towards the enemy.

Her father had staggered the archer legions throughout the camp to give depth of fire over the fields before the berm. She heard the shouts of commanders demanding more Dragon Glass arrows. The shouts of runner answering. From all quadrants, the sounds of feet running in all directions down the lanes between camps and formations. The sounds of war had waxed and waned throughout the day. It had waxed near an hour ago with the falling of night.

The three women looked at each other. This was war. They were happy to be here but this waiting and not able to actually strike out at the enemy now was a little nerve wracking. The sounds of scorpions firing in mass filled the wagon. More shouts of the re-loaders cranking back the arms and loading up the next bolts now filled the air. The curses of commanders telling their sappers to hurry faster and the sappers shouting back ‘shut the fuck up!” Combat forgave many indiscretions it seemed.

Shadowclaw was resting with her head on Missandei’s lap. She kept butting Missandei’s hand when she stopped scratching her cheek. Sansa noted that Lady was not with them. The Direwolf was with her pack mates fighting. Sansa felt a little guilty in not being part of the actual fighting but she was no Arya. Her strength was in planning and strategy. She prayed that Lady would not be harmed. Her Direwolf was the gentlest of souls but her Direwolf sensed the need to fight and was outside fighting.

After Missandei’s goddess lover had saved her, the three women had huddled behind a stack of crates. For the next twenty minutes sheer pandemonium was everywhere it seemed. Ice Wrights and Giant seemed to be everywhere and nowhere. They would see one and then duck their heads. When they peeked again they were not there. Everyone was running to and fro screaming and shouting out.

Sansa was glassy eyed seeing arrows flying in all directions. Scorpions being firing wildly. The roar of dragons and howl of Direwolves echoed in the air. Several times Viserion had gone swooping by low overhead. The sounds of his dragon breathe being spewed horrifying to hear so close. She was very thankful that the flame was not directed at her and the forces of Westeros.
Sansa decided to look out and froze in terror. An Ice Wright had spotted them and was running towards them. They did not know what to do. They were overwhelmed with terror. Sansa remembered wildly thinking just before the Ice Wright was on them that She Who Must Not Be Named was not going to save them!

At the last moment, a loud mighty roar that was feminine came in from the left. The Ice Wright pivoted immediately. It braced itself but it did not matter. It was bowled over by a mighty Giant from the Land with her iron shield held before her. Sansa thought it was Stormsurgence Mistweave with her strawberry blond hair. The Giant braced herself as the Ice Wright rolled four times and came up in a defensive stance.

The tall Giant from the southern hemisphere threw down her iron shield. She shouted out in her native tongue. The magic of the Elohim let Sansa understand that the Giant was telling the Ice Giant she would make its death quick.

Stormsurgence was on the Ice Wright in a flash. Sansa was shocked at how fast the Giant from the Land was. She was impossibly as fast as her father or Oberyn. Sansa had seen the Mountain at Tourney before the ruined castle of Harrenhal when she was ten. Gregor Clegane was only eight feet tall where Stormsurgence Mistweave was at least twelve and half feet tall. She was taller and yet much faster. Gregor had been fast for so large a man but he was slow compared to someone like her father.

Not the Giant from the Land. She was on the Ice Wright immediately her sword slashing down from multiple angles. The sound of stone and ice forged metal colliding ringing in the air. The Giant was twice as tall and her sword five times as massive as the Ice Wright’s sword. The Ice Wright tried to move in from the side of the Giant but Stormsurgence easily pivoted to meet those movements. The stone glaive of the Giant did not feel the cold of the Ice Wright. The blades colliding with mighty shrieks and sparks flung out in all directions.

The Giant’s sword slammed into the Ice Wright’s blade driving it back and knocking the Ice Wright off balance. Stormsurgence’s glaive slammed into the side of the Ice Wright. Its Ice armor blocked the blade but all the ice blocks shattered on that side and along its ribs to its stomach. The Wright screamed in pain. The blade did not cut but the force of the strike had done damage. Stormsurgence moved in and her sword slammed down again and again against the Ice Wright’s blade that was held up crossways by the Ice Wright that was driven to its knees.

The next down swing of the Giant’s glaive shattered the Ice Wright’s blade with the glaive. The Giant’s blade speedily traveling down. The massive thick blade cleaved through the ice helm the Ice Wright wore. Its head cut in two to the collarbones. The Giant ripped her blade free and ran on to find her next foe to put down. The now boneless Icy spawn collapsed to the ground. The Ice Wright’s body already steaming its body beginning to dissipate.

Sansa had made a discovery. She Who Must Not Be Named would only come to their aid if she must. She had somehow sensed that they would be saved by the Giant and, thus, had not appeared. Sansa again wondered at this goddess’s strange code of ethics.

The three watched the surprise attack slowly being put down. The Ice Wrights and Giants were able to cause many causalities falling on foot soldiers and archers. Their speed, ice armor and ice swords were deadly. Still, the Ice Wrights and Giants were quickly put down.

The storm of iron tipped arrows magically enhanced slowly shattered off the ice armor of the Icy creatures. Then the Dragon Glass arrows started to pierce their bodies killing them fast or slow. The Dragon Glass so toxic to the Icy creations of the Ice King that even a shot to the ankle of one of them would eventually poison them to death. The more dragon glass penetrating their bodies the quicker their deaths.

It galled Sansa to see any of the forces of Westeros killed by the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants. One thing she was thankful that they did not rise from death to become the Walking Dead. She asked Margaery and Missandei why this was. The stories of the Crows and Wildlings made it seem that upon death they would quickly rise to serve the Ice King and yet it was not happening now. The three discussed it looking over a stack of crates they were hiding behind.

The consensus was that the Ice Wrights needed to perform some spell or ritual to make the dead rise up. They did not have the time. They fought desperately merely to survive. It was a simple lack of time. It would not have mattered anyways. If the dead had risen up they would have been feathered with Dragon Glass or a fire arrow and immediately taken back down to a second permanent death.

The three had felt relief when the last of the Ice Wrights and Giants had been dispatched. They came out of their hiding spot. They looked around. There was too many dead among the forces of Westeros but it could have been so much worse. Much, much worse. They had gotten lucky. Thank the seven Sansa thought that the birds had arrived to warn them.

They still heard the sounds of combat behind them but it was lessening. The traitors were being put down. By a half hour later the fighting had ceased there too.

The three women gravitated to the medical tents. They wanted to help in some way. They made themselves available to take supplies where they were needed. They put compresses where they were told too. They put cold towels on foreheads to cool fevered brows.

Loadstone Horizonscan and Gibbousspar Ebbtide were brought into the tent. The Giants brought in by their countrymen on makeshift gurneys. Loadstone had classic battle wounds. Gibbousspar had clearly been trampled by warhorses. The two Giants were moaning and talking incoherently. They were given Diamonddraught that soon had both Giants asleep. The medical staff patched the wounds of the Giant sailor. The other Giant they drilled a hole in her skull and removed the bone cap over a bad horse kick.

Blood gushed out from a hematoma. The color of the Giant slowly improved. Her armor was removed and medicinal poultices were put on the cuts where the armor had been driven into her flesh and muscle. The bone cap placed on the open brain but not sown up yet.

A male and female Haruchai came into the tent. One had a severe cut down her thigh. The male had a sword cut to his ribs and his left hand had been mangled with three fingers cut off. Both Haruchai did not make any sounds of protest. Their faces were flat. There was a sheen of sweat on their faces that showed they were suffering but refused to show it.

The doctors and Maesters worked on their wounds. The Haruchai only cocked an eyebrow as their wounds were sewed up. The female Haruchai had an iron slapped on her wound to staunch any infection. She grit her teeth and her eyes squinted but that was the limit of her reaction. The male Haruchai refused any wine as his ribs were bound and a heavy wrap put around his torso. His left hand was treated and the wounds sewed up. His hand soaked in a cream to promote healing and prevent infection. The hand then bound up.

The two Haruchai then refused doctor’s orders and began to prowl around the tent setting up a guard.

Sansa had seen enough of these stoic warriors to know they needed to be of service. That was paramount to these silent heroic people. She had heard them say on the practice fields “Fist and faith, there is only victory or death.” For the Haruchai combat was really that simple.
The rush of wounded was tended too. After that the wounded only came in slowly as the frontlines held up and the wounded were few.

The women then ate a quick meal in Missandei’s wagon. They had then headed back out to observe the battle in the afternoon air. The snowflakes falling heavier in the cold air. It was fascinating to watch the archers firing off their masses of arrows that were dark angry buzzing insects winging towards their enemy. The catapults and trebuchets were working constantly. Their projectiles flung off to hurtle towards the force of the Ice King.

The fiery objects twirling in the air as they arched away. The archers were working in unison. The archers would all line up their bows. They held their fire till to their company commander barked out their order and the bowstrings were released. It was a kind of poetry in motion. Most of the arrows were dragon glass but enough were fire tipped arrows to make pretty displays in the sky as they arched towards their enemy.

The archers were rotated off station after an hour to let another legion of archers to take over the firing off of arrows. The commanders trying their best to keep the archers fresh. Once the importance of dragon glass had become known many foot soldiers had been converted to archers. The need for accuracy limited. Only the need to fire off straight and true. The undead were easy targets.

The women had seen the forces that had been aligned against the traitorous houses of Frey and Bolton move into new locations. The Unsullied were moved off to the left flank and the mercenary companies were moved off to the right flank. The pikemen were being put there to hold off any flanking attack. The archers were being aligned that had been used to strike at the traitors were arranged behind them. The forces of Westeros that had been arrayed against the traitors were brought forward to supplement the forces facing the main assault.

The women had been shocked at the sea of shambling undead always stumbling forward. They were always coming forward. They were being killed relentlessly but they relentlessly came forward all the same. Their numbers seemed unceasing. All three woman were fascinated by the beauty of massed arrows being cut loose and seeing the projectiles fired off by the siege engines. The flaming objects adding more beauty to the displays. It was even more fascinating to see the arrows and projectiles landing among the undead and killing those struck.

For the whole afternoon the fighting almost became routine. Archers firing off their arrows at regular intervals. The firing was lessened or even stopped when the forces before them had been shot down to such a degree to not warrant the firing off of arrows at them. Then the war horns to fire were sounded again and the archers resumed firing off in mass.

The siege engines were constantly firing even if at a reduced rate. The crews manning them rotated in and out like the archers. The forces of Westeros striving to keep those on the frontlines as fresh as possible. Tired worn out warriors would be counterproductive.

Sansa knew that when the main assault occurred all would be called up and working in a mad frenetic pace to fire off their engines and arrows at break neck speed. Sansa and her wife to be and Missandei knew that the Ice King must try and force the issue. Too much effort had been expended by him to not seek total victory this night.

Dusk was occurring when they heard the rousing words of Jon Snow, Sansa’s brother. He had indeed become a great man and leader like her father. His words filled with invective for the Ice King. The man had been vain in life and the words would have to cut him to the marrow.

The women had then retired to Sansa and Margaery’s wagon with Missandei to eat their meal. They felt that the main battle was to occur soon. The sounds of arrows being fired and siege engines shooting off their projectiles had definitely picked up.

The woman looked around nervously. They were not warriors. One advantage of being a warrior they were discovering was the fact that the warrior remained busy. A warrior performed their duty. It focused their mind and kept their thoughts to the here and now. The three women’s thoughts had the freedom to wander. The three women talked quietly about what they had seen and spoke softly of the coming main assault.

Missandei kept asking Margaery and Sansa to tell her every detail of She Who Mush Not Be Named saving of her life. Missandei getting all dreamy eyed hearing it for the tenth time. Sansa and Margaery smiled at each other. Missandei had it real bad for the goddess. Also, the green haired child god had put a mighty display saving her sought after lover.

“She is so mighty and she is all mine” Missandei spoke dreamily. Then her tone changed “I am damn tired of waiting damnit! I want my woman!” the small black teenager pounded her fist on the table. Missandei was cute when she got pissed Sansa thought. It was funny to see the little cute seemingly innocent barely fifteen year old go from an ingénue to a fucking hellcat hungry for her woman to be. Missandei was definitely a volcano of Sothoryos primed and ready to explode. The beautiful black young woman was filled with fuck hunger for her longed for green haired lover.

They finished their meal and went back outside. There was tension in the air and the wagon while warm and cozy felt oppressive with the threat of major battle lying thick in the air. The three women moved about in the rear of the camp. They knew they would be a hindrance if the battle became chaotic on the frontlines. They would be defenseless and needed to be protected. They, therefore, were lines of men behind the frontlines.

More archers were coming up now. The men and women at rest no more. The archers being beefed up. The runners were busy running to and fro taking arrow quivers to the legions of archers. The young men with large eyes, the quivers slapping their bodies as they ran to deliver yet more Dragon Glass and fire arrows to the archers.

The siege engine operators were crawling all over their engines inspecting and make adjustments for their coming high speed use. Sansa saw that the scorpion operators were primed. They had been used at only a moderate pace so far. The bolts they would fire off tipped with massive obsidian tips were stacked up all around the raised platforms that the machines had been constructed on.

The scorpion platforms and the weapons themselves were of medium size. Their cross arms nearly six feet. The operators using rackets to pull the massive string back. There were loaders standing on each side of the stands to hand up the six foot long bolts. The skilled engineers and loaders able to fire their Ballista at the rate of four bolts per minute. These had been setup by the forces mainly from Dorne. They were experts in the making and use of siege engines.

They were difficult to build and required extreme skill to get the mechanics right and working smoothly. The heavy bolts were for the Ice Wrights and Giants. They would kill the Walking Dead of course but these weapons sought out high value targets.

Sansa looked around. Massive bonfires had been set. Large metal troughs filled with oil were lite as well. The fires burning hotly. The warmth radiating out but more importantly adding light to help the defenders to see what they were doing. She looked out over the front lines. It was dark but she could see small fires from burning Walking Dead and the projectiles fired off by the trebuchets and catapults. The fires slowly burning out with new ones taking light but they were like the stars in the dark inky sky.
Snow was swirling down heavy now. It did not matter. There was plenty light and the constant action of the forces of Westeros kept the snow from building up in their camp. Also, in a small degree the snow reflected light back down upon the camp.

The three women walked towards the rear of the camp. The troops were milling around here. Knights were moving forward. Their job to engage the Walking dead and Ice Wrights and Giants. To try and hold in place while the archers did their work. The plans that had been formed seemed to be working to perfection.

They had heard the reports. Eddard had come to them several hours ago to see how they were holding up. Sansa had spoken for them. She was truthful and told her father they were all scared. He hugged the three women petting them on the back. He pulled back and gave them his squint smile.

“That is good Sansa, Margaery, Missandei. I have only nearly pissed myself thrice today.”

Sansa laughed.

“I’m not joking” Eddard smiled back at them. He reported to them that the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants that had been attacking were not armored. This was helping immensely. It had been theorized that they would not fight in armor. Fortunately, those assumptions had proven correctly. The Icy spawn relied on speed and skill. Also, smithy skills were not prevalent above the Wall. Iron ore not available. The skills to use it did not exist. It seemed this had bled over to the Ice King.

The battles that had occurred between the Icy Spawn and the Wildlings and Crows had shown that the Wrights and Ice Giants relied on speed. They had always been basically immune to the weapons used against them. Thus, they had not felt the need for armor. It had not been needed. The Ice King had never considered that his enemy would find the means to kill his Icy creations with ease if but struck.

Without Dragon Glass the forces of the Ice King would have proven to be unstoppable. It was this false assumption that Sansa’s father and their Queen Daenerys Targaryen had relied on. Jon had proven the efficacy of obsidian with his skirmishes with the Ice King’s forces. Jon had worked hard to make the Ice King think he had consumed his dragon glass. Thankfully, the ruse seemed to have worked. The Ice King did not see the need for armor beyond his already used strike force.

It would lead to his ruin.

“We have the Ice King” Eddard told them. “He is not prepared for us having Dragon Glass. Even if he breaks off and retreats we will have the advantage. He is vain. He has to be to be a great leader.”

Sansa started to argue.

Eddard held up his hand. “He has formed a great army. They might be mindless dead but he created it. It seems the Ice Wrights and Giants follow his lead explicitly. His initial attack was brilliant. If not for the Lord of Revelstone and his strange delay in breaking down the Wall … well, I don’t want to think on it.”

“But that did not happen” Margaery told Sansa’s father.

“You are right. And because of it we will win. Now I just want to achieve it with minimal causalities. That is why I had Jon give his little speech earlier. That had to prick the Ice King’s overweening ego. Also, he cannot show weakness to his subordinates. The Ice Wrights were once human as babies and children. I am banking that they still have human emotions and will not respect weakness.”

“He must attack to keep their allegiance.”

They talked for a few more minutes before Eddard left.

The women went to observe the dragons of Daenerys. They were all curled up with their snouts tucked underneath their wings. The dragons in a deep somnolent healing sleep.

They all remarked on the multiple wounds that covered Drogon’s body. Rhaegal’s wound on his rear leg was raw looking but it had clotted and looked hale. Their breathing was deep and steady.

Suddenly, the sounds of war horns echoed throughout the night up and down the frontlines of the Queen’s forces. The horns sounded repeatedly. Sansa heard the notes to form up and be on full alert. Then she heard the notes for the firing of arrows and the siege engines.

The three women turned to look towards the fallen Wall. It was too dark to see the arrows being loosed in mass but the fiery projectiles being launched were easy to see though. They were beautiful in their arcs but also deadly. Now flights of fire tipped arrows were joining the cacophony of death.

Loud rumbles sounded behind the three women. They turned to see what was happening. Big smiles appeared on their faces.

Before their eyes the green and white bodies of Rhaegal and Viserion started to slowly unfold. The necks pulled back. The motion exposed their heads. Their eyes whirled. Slowly the dragons shook their bodies out and stretched out their necks. Their heads swiveled around taking in their environs. The two dragons looked over at Drogon who slept on. They shook their bodies again and again their whole bodies flexing. They were strangely silent. Then the dragons turned their bodies to face the south and launched themselves in the air.

Rhaegal was favoring his injured leg but that did not slow him down. The dragons quickly disappeared into the night. They were gaining altitude as they disappeared.

Missandei turned towards her companions “Why were they so silent. They normally bugle when they take flight.”

Margaery smiled “Can you say sneak attack.”

Daenerys: The Queen looked out over the darkness before her. She felt it. The main attack was coming. The Ice King was engaged. He needed to fight through to victory or lose. The night was to his advantage. He would attack. He had to achieve victory this night or forever lose the opportunity of that victory. She knew this and she was sure he knew it as well. She was prepared. She thought back to her arrival back with her forces and a smile came over her face.

She had been both pleased and embarrassed by the reaction of Arya upon her return. She had been like a puppy with the way she rained kisses on her face and thrummed in Daenerys embrace. All had embraced her so heartily when she returned.

It had taken her a few minutes to understand their exuberance at her return. She had fought the battle with the Ice Dragon. Her only goal to slay the abomination and then surviving the plummet back to the Earth. She had only focused on that. When she did indeed survive she only thought on that. She had been in a fight to the death.

For her lover, most trusted advisors and the rest of her forces they had witnessed the fight from afar. They had had to watch her supposed death. Her sudden appearance alive had overwhelmed Arya.
Eddard had actually hugged her fiercely.

She remembered that fondly. She had spent the late afternoon conferring with Eddard. They had once more gone over the deployment of their forces. There was not much more that could be done. They were as ready as they could be. They did redeploy the Unsullied and Mercenary Companies from Essos to strengthen their flanks. They did not want to have a surprise on their flanks give them another unpleasant surprise.

Daenerys was sure this would not be the case. The Ice King had to force the issue. The battle for him must be won this night. He would try to pierce their frontlines and then roll their flanks up. He wanted to take out Jon Snow and he was at middle of the frontline. Jon Snow had called him out. The Ice King must answer that challenge.

She had ridden up and down her frontlines as sun settled towards the horizon. She was sure the Ice King would wait till it was completely dark before he attacked. She had time to do a quick ride checking her forces. She heard their loud cheers when she rode by and stopped to talk to local commanders. She saw the light in the men and women’s eyes. They trusted her and relied on her will to lift up their spirits.

Several times she had taken her rune sword out of its sheath and slashed Foe Hammer in the air. The rune sword leaving trailing arcs in the air. She was more than satisfied with what she had seen in her forces. They were confident and ready to continue the fight. The believed in her. That gave a warm lift to the Valyrian’s heart. She felt vindicated in all she had done to put herself in this moment. She would crush the ancient enemy of Westeros.

She wondered what name they would give her for putting down the Ice King. She might not deliver the killing stroke but it was her and Eddard’s Stark will that would make his death happen. She wondered about Wright Wrecker. She snorted at her humor.

She had asked Arya to ride with her but her young lover had wanted to stay at the Waynhim wedge that was waiting patiently for the coming attack. She did not want to risk not being there if the attack started suddenly. Arya felt guilt over not fighting actively while she thought that her lover had died. That touched the Queen’s heart. She was very happy to return to Arya very much alive.

The Queen arrived back at the forward impromptu command post that had formed down the line from the promontory that seemed to be a focal point of the enemies attack. Most of the present High Lords and their heirs apparent were presently there. Jon Snow the Crow commander was there as well. The Wildlings kept to themselves not wanting to be associated to closely to the Queen.

Jon had told her that the Wildlings had no desire force the issue of their refusal to bend the knee to her. They wanted to fight their common enemy. That had steamed the Queen but she controlled her consternation. She had not even required that of them. They had simply assumed she would demand it. She shook that off. She would have to form an alliance with them that both could accept and respect. That would be after the fight.

They all looked out over the berm at the darkness before them. They were joined by Braveheart Tillerkeel the first of the Giant’s Search. Lord Lustra and Brail of the Haruchai was with the Lord. They each spoke with their respective people.

The Giants and Haruchai had powerful eyesight. Daenerys asked them what they saw.

Braveheart looked back and forth. “The enemy is milling around. I see that the Walking Dead are building up beyond range of the trebuchets. They are pressed shoulder to shoulder tightly. Their numbers are indeed vast. I can see a multitude of Ice Wrights and Giants. They have massed. We expected that of course. Everything points to the attack commencing soon.”

Daenerys looked beside and behind her. Banner, Seregrom and her Bloodriders were there. They had not left her side since her return. She felt safe with their protection. The Haruchai all had now taken up Ice Wright blades. Their native resistance to cold made them immune to the cold of the blades. The Dothraki had been instructed most clearly to not engage the Ice Wrights due to their ice blades ability to shatter steel. They would chop the arms and legs off the Walking Dead.

The forces of Westeros had been drilled for months that if they were opposed by Walking Dead that dismemberment was the best tactic if fought with sword, battleax or Warhammer. They could not be killed by steel but if they were chopped to pieces they could much more easily be dealt with till stabbed with Dragon Glass or burned by fire.

“When do you think they will attack Eddard?” Daenerys asked her Warden of the North.

“I do not know” was his answer. He looked out over the battlefield with a steady gaze.

Daenerys pinched her nose. Sometimes Eddard’s flat honesty was aggravating.

“Your best guess then Eddard”

The man turned to her and saw her peevish state. He gave her his disarming squint smile. The torchlight and bonfires behind them made his eyes twinkle.

“I would guess sooner than later. We have proven that we can handle his assaults of just the Walking Dead. Your time in the Haunted Forest tells us that we tapping out his supply of Walking Dead. We have killed many since. His supply is not infinite. Our supply of Dragon Glass exceeds his supply of the undead. Thus, he must attack sooner than later. A commander who hesitates risks losing the battlefield. He knows this.”

The Queen was pleased that his assessment agreed with hers. She had reached out earlier and touched her dragons with her mind. Drogon was still out of it. It would be some time at least before he would be able to roused from his healing sleep she thought. He might not be able to achieve flight in his limited state. She understood that. He had given himself mightily in the defeat of the Ice Dragon. Then surviving the fall from the sky into the Haunted Forest.

Drogon had given his all.

Her other two dragons had responded to her mental touch. They answered her sluggishly but with strength. They had assured her that when the time came they would rise to her call. They both were anxious to strike more blows against their enemies that had dared to attack them. Rhaegal was especially anxious to attack. He hungered for revenge against those who had harmed him.

Daenerys and the other High Lords of Westeros waited with her patiently on the berm. There would be no counterattack while the Ice King lived. He had the right of initiative by his design. He had taken the initiative of the battlefield. Daenerys respected that. The undead were wafting forward. From time to time swarms of arrows were flung out at the plain before them. The catapults and trebuchets firing off randomly to keep the enemy stirred up. The explosion of their projectiles providing brief illumination. Walking Dead when hit would light up and burn brightly for a few minutes shambling around till they fell down to the ground to finish burning.

It was a basic stalemate. That was about to change. All could feel it.

“You ready Stannis, Renly” Oberyn asked the brothers. “If my tally is correct you have about five hundred more kills to go to match my total” the Red Viper spoke in a smug tone.

Stannis ground his teeth and flipped off Oberyn. He nervously twisted his hand on the pommel of his Valyrian sword Edge of Doom.

Renly rose to the bait “Nightfang has killed more foes than your puny spear Oberyn. You kill count is like your cock size Oberyn. Both great exaggerations.”

Oberyn eyes squinted at the jibe. He was just getting ready to throw a barb when Renly added to his remark.

“Ferna and Ranrika told me the truth ‘little man’.”

Oberyn shut his mouth wondering just what those two Haruchai hussies may have said. The Haruchai said they never lie but they may know how to tell a lie without telling a lie. They had busted his nuts enough to make the Red Viper hold his mouth. They would somehow make his length and girth into a small sausage. Not being sure what they may have said he kept his mouth shut. He would fuck the hell out of them later for this ignobility. Oberyn smiled at his lascivious thoughts.

Daenerys had a smile on her face looking out past the berm. The killed again undead were piled high before the risen up dirt up and down it. It had been observed that the dead bodies were difficult for the Walking Dead to traverse with the constant shifting of dead bodies. It slowed them down which gave the defenders more time to feather them.

They would catch fire soon enough when fire was used to kill the next assault. The Ice Wrights and Giants seemed to be immune to fire or at least fire they could quickly knock off their bodies or bull rush their way through. That could not be said of dragon fire. The magical properties was deadly to the icy spawn. Nothing that the Queen knew of could withstand the fire of her dragons.

She paused. She thought sourly that She Who Must Not Be Named would simply shrug off the flames and thank her dragons for amusing her. What must it be like to have limitless power?

She felt her body tense. She was joined by her companion High Lords in her tense state. They had seen it too in the light of their fires.

The yellow ichor had started to lap again. The last assault had begun.

Syrio: Syrio was tired. He had fought hard at the beginning of the fight but since then he had to only fight a few times with the archers doing most of the damage. He was tired but not dull. Being on constant edge would wear any man down. He had to be ready to fight at moment’s notice. He knew this emotion was prevalent across the forces of Westeros. Adrenaline had pumped him up and it would again. Everyone felt that the final assault would commence soon.

He had watched the Queen work up and down the frontlines. He had acknowledge her as she rode by. He too had felt relief and elation when she flown back to them on a battered but equally alive Drogon.

He knew something was up twenty minutes ago. He noticed a change had come over the Waynhim. Before, they had only risen up to fight when necessary. Else, they would sit back down on their haunches. Their equal length arms and legs looked weird to human sensibilities with their limbs pulled tight to their bodies. The Waynhim had their staves resting on their brother’s shoulders. He assumed they were brothers. Hum. He wondered now. He wondered if they were all females like a beehive.
He snorted. He had too much free time on his hands.

That had changed twenty minutes ago. The Waynhim as one rose up to their feet. They were not agitated more so than normal. Now that they were up, they started to bark and snap at each other with seemed like vitriol and rancor. This was normal for them Syrio had come to know.

Their reaction was different now than what he had observed in the past. They did not take their crouched combat stances he had observed them take earlier today or that their Ur-vile cousins had assumed back on the Dothraki Sea six years ago. No. There was no attack about to commence immediately.

Still, a change had come over the Waynhim. They all stood. Their heads with no eyes and large noses turned right and left. They were barking softly to each other now. They had settled down from their bickering. Something was engaging their collective. He soon heard a chant taking form in their ranks. It was soft. They were not arguing incessantly like the Demondim spawn tended to do. The chant was both melodic and oddly off key.

Syrio knew that they were working on something in unison. Their singing together had to be for a reason. All the members of the wedge focused on a task. Syrio simply had no idea what it might be. He felt immense power building in the air. He looked around. Barristan and Marleya Blackmyre felt it too. The air was charged with static. To him it felt like ants were crawling over his exposed flesh. Strong Belwas was busy stuffing more locusts into mouth since a runner had brought him another urn filled with them. The only thing the bald fat eunuch felt was more locusts being constantly stuffed in his mouth.

He noticed after five minutes that the Waynhim had started to subtly move their bodies so that it seemed to be a wave rippling back and forth over the wedge. Their dark grey bodies moving in unison. The rhythm strangely fluid and yet staccato.

A childhood memory of Braavos came to Syrio. He remembered the hot swirling breezes that would blow in on the lagoon of Braavos from off the hot arid lands to the east. The winds confused. The wind would ruffle the flat brackish water of the lagoon first in one direction and then in another direction. The water had seemed alive with how the waves undulated. The younger version of Syrio had watched the rippling waves for hours trying to decipher the arcane patterns for meaning. He never did figure out their riddle.

For the next ten minutes the Waynhim continued with this behavior. The only change that Syrio could perceive was the waves within their wedge were higher with the Waynhim jumping higher. Their chants getting louder subtly. The feeling of power coalescing in the air around the Waynhim. Syrio almost thought he saw the air shimmering above the tight fighting wedge.

Barristan came over to him and they watched the strange dance.

“The battle is coming soon” Barristan told him. Syrio nodded focused on the Waynhim. “I think they are preparing for the battle. It reminds me of when the Ur-viles created their cloud of death. This is different though. I wonder what they have in mind.”

Barristan told his old friend he had no freaking idea. They both could only wait.

Five minutes later their Loremaster suddenly turned around. He looked back at his wedge behind him. Syrio was curious. He had never seen this behavior before. He smirked. It was not like he was an expert on the Demondim spawn. The Loremaster held his iron stave out that glowed purple on its tip. It pulsed brighter with dire magic. The pulse started slow but quickly picked up rhythm.
From within the wedge at least fifteen bone staves were lifted up. The tips glowed green. The Waynhim near there brothers holding up their staves reoriented themselves to face the Waynhim with bone staves lifted up. The reoriented Waynhim placed their own staves on those Waynhim shoulders forming small pyramids.

The bone staves took on a garish greenish hue. The color almost seemed luminescent to Syrio’s eyes.

Syrio looked at Barristan with a questioning look. Barristan’s face showed he had no answer. The behavior of the Waynhim always fantastical seeming.

“I have never seen green associated with either Waynhim or Ur-vile. What in the hell are they getting at” Syrio posited to no one. As he and Barristan watched the tip of the Loremaster’s stave tip turned green also. The Loremaster started to bark stridently jerking his stave up and down. By now all the humans around the fighting wedge were transfixed by what they were seeing.

Both men watched with large eyes. Arya and Marleya stared at what was transpiring before them with large eyes and open mouths. The Demondim spawn were most strange beings. They all gasped.

From the tip of the Loremaster’s stave a green globe appeared. It was only four inches across. The Loremaster jerked his stave back and down. The green globe broke free of the stave that had created it. It bobbed in the air and then wafted back towards the wedge. Immediately, another circular green pulse appeared on the Loremaster’s stave and began to enlarge into a small globe.

Meanwhile the first globe had floated over to a stave tip being held up in the small pyramids within the fighting wedge. It attached itself to it and began to grow upon contact with the stave. The green orb slowly grew in size and seemed to take on an inner luminescence.

Syrio and Barristan watched transfixed while the Loremaster created more of the green globes that then floated back into the wedge and attached to a lifted up stave that glowed green themselves. The globes upon that union began to grow and pulse green. The Loremaster created a green globe for each uplifted stave. This took several more minutes. The Loremaster now finished creating the globes seemed to urge the wedge to chant a new rhythm and the waves undulating through the wedge increased. They also subtly changed rhythm.

The green globes now quickly grew to nearly three feet in diameter. They were glowing bright green now. Everything near the wedge took on an eerie green caste. For a minute the globes remained attached to the uplifted staves glowing brighter. The sight eerie with fifteen globes bobbing. The green globes bobbed like fledglings refusing to leave the nest. Then as one the all the green circles of pulsing light broke free of the stave tips that had nourished them. The lifted staves now lowered.

When they did their luminescence increased greatly. The circles began to rotate first in one direction and then in the opposite direction. The surface of the orbs shimmered and wavered but did lose their cohesiveness. The globes floated up to nearly fifty feet in the air spreading out past the wedge. Five of the globes floated out to nearly a hundred feet in front of the wedge. The rest divided and floated back and out to the sides of the Waynhim Wedge.

The glow increased for a minute and then grew steady. Syrio looked out and whistled.

“We I’ll be damned” he softly exclaimed.

Before he had been able to see clearly only a little ways in front of the berm. The shadows of night quickly swallowed all light and made the world unreadable beyond them. That had change. He could now see clearly too nearly two hundred yards beyond the berm. Everything was green hued but everything was able to be seen easily. The light was defuse and fuzzy but he could see the dead undead and the yellow ichor lapping again. The light was brighter on sides and the rear of the wedge. The falling snowflakes glowed green in their lazy paths down to the ground.

Syrio was again impressed with the Demondim spawn. They were providing light for their human accomplices. They were aiding the humans who would in turn aid them in the coming battle.

War horns began to ring out all over the camp giving their different commands. The lapping yellow ichor had come to mean imminent attack. For a minute he saw nothing but then he saw them. The next wall of undead being carried forward by the motion of the small lapping waves. The Waynhim crouched down with all of them now focused outward again to defend and give their power to their Loremaster.

Barristan went running off to the other side of the wedge to control the human response on that side. Syrio heard Marleya Blackmyre barking orders for her archers to form up and fire at will once she gave the command to fire. She told the runners behind them with wheelbarrows full of quivers to stay between the archers and the wedge. To fall behind would be death in the coming fight. All knew instinctively the Waynhim would not outstrip the humans’ ability to keep up with them.

Syrio started to bounce on the balls of his feet.

Suddenly, he heard the sounds of archers in their formations behind them letting loose with their Dragon Glass tipped arrows. Now other companies fired off with flame tipped arrows. The sounds of the catapults and trebuchets hurling their missiles again filled the air. The sounds of arms hitting stops and the whoosh of fiery projectiles lifted up Syrio’s heart.

The Walking Dead or in this case Stumbling Dead were only twenty yards from the edge the promontory. The Loremaster withheld his wedge’s attack.

“Fire!” Marleya screamed at her archers. The archers standing rigid. They were able to pick out targets in the garish green light instead of firing blindly into the night. The thrum of bowstrings released filled the air around Syrio. He watched in the greenish light arrows impacting into the shambling and off balance undead. The arrows slamming into the first bodies. Syrio saw all manner of undead staggering and then falling down to not move anymore. The archers were reloading with the undead still advancing and with the ichor were now at the very foot of the berm lapping again. More waves of arrows fired at point blank range whistled out. More lines of the undead fell down feathered and killed in their permanent second death. They undead began to clumsily climb the heap of dead. The shifting bodies slowing their advance. More waves of arrows were unleashed at the undead. The obscene caricatures of past life falling down dead once more.

As the undead contended with their dead brothers to climb up to reach their foes, the archers by the fighting wedge fired down into the roiling mass. More of the undead fell down straightaways or stumbled with lower torso or limb hits. The poisoning of obsidian beginning to unbind the magic of the Ice King. Syrio was bouncing hard now with the enemy getting ever close. Arya, Marleya and the most skilled archers making head shots instantly killing the undead.

Still the Waynhim did not counterattack. The six and then seventh flight of arrows were shot off both out into the plain before the berm and down the berm itself. The arrows feathered the killed undead all around. Of course many arrows missed their target but more than not found their targets up close to the berm. Further out it became more problematic. That was the reason for the clouds of arrows being fired off unremittingly.
Syrio saw undead humans of all sizes and both sexes spinning and knocked back with arrow strikes. The head and heart shots instant kills with the strikes to other parts of their bodies knocking the Walking Dead down and pushed to the side. They resumed their forward march but the black lines of obsidian poisoning quickly spread across their bodies. Their march forward more and more labored. The animals that comprised the undead performed the same in their dance macabre.

Syrio was getting antsy. The WaynhimLoremaster still had not attacked. The fallen First Sword’s eyes went large.

“Fuck!” He understood now. He saw coming into range of the strange green light at two hundred yards what had withheld the Waynhim’s acid attacks. He saw groups of two Ice Giants carrying between them the large bodies of undead elk, moose and large mule deer. The bodies pressed together to make a solid barrier before them. The large bodies protecting them from arrow fire. Behind them came ice wrights holding undead human bodies as their shields. The bodies of the already unbound Walking Dead absorbing arrows with rapidity. The arrows expending their magic on bodies that had already fallen into a second death.

Syrio was grim. This was an effective tactic.

Then he noticed that yellow ribbons had appeared high in the sky. They were as straight as drawn by a ruler. The yellow lines at the perfect height to intercept the projectiles being fired off at the forces of the Ice King. They seemed to be a hundred yards across. The ribbons seemed to be knocking out many of the arrows and projectiles being fired at them. These protective barriers did not dissipate as they blocked the arrows and missiles of the forces of Westeros.

Syrio saw that the ribbons were a thousand yards long. There was only six of them thankfully. The ribbons centered on the center of the frontlines. The Ice King was not going to attempt a flanking maneuver. He was going to bull his way through the center of the Queen’s forces by brute strength.

It was going to be might against might.

Suddenly blue lightening exploded into the sky and formed an impressive tree with a wide blue canopy. In the blue light Syrio could see the whole plain. Masses of undead were attacking the flanks of the Queen’s forces but the vast majority of the Ice Wrights and Giants were storming the center of her lines. He saw some Icy spawn on the flanks to give gravitas to those assaults but most were coming right at them. All had gripped the undead as shields to get close in on the forces of Westeros.

This was not good. As they reacted to their foes their foes were reacting to them.

Eddard: He felt the coming attack in his bones. He had had enough combat experience to develop a feel for it. The enemy was coming. Everyone was tense with anticipation. The archers had their bows armed behind him. He stared out into the dark. There were fires scattered about across the plains from burning dead and projectiles still burning themselves out.

The reserves were ready to join the combat. The air was about to become even thicker with arrows. He hoped that the sheer volume would overwhelm any defense the forces of the Ice King had devised. He knew that the siege engines had been firing at a sedate rate. They would soon be firing as if the hounds of hell were nipping at their heels.

He strained to see more but his human eyes were limited. He had seen the strange globes created by the Waynhim that floated over the promontory and the forces arrayed beside and behind them. The strange green light illuminated all around the Waynhim wedge out to two hundred yards. He saw the mass of Walking Dead being propelled forward by the again lapping yellow ichor.
He wished that that illumination could be extended. The tree of lightning that the Lord of Revelstone had put up would be fading soon. He took a deep breath. The plain before them was swarming with undead. The center of the advance was filled with Ice Wrights and Giants Eddard saw.

Total chaos was about to ensue.

War horns echoed up and down the line. Archers and the siege engines started to fire in mass. The sound of arrows winging above their heads was heard with their angry buzzing. The projectiles made hissing sounds as the fiery objects took flight. Again and again the archers released their bow strings. Even though sight was limited on the flanks of the promontory all knew the forces of the Ice King was attacking all along the front lines of Westeros. They would want to keep all busy as they pressed in at their desired point of focus. It would be where the main attacks had been before. The promontory.

Eddard was again thankful for the Dragon Glass he and Daenerys had produced in great unending abundance. They had the weapons to fight back.

Suddenly yellow ribbons appeared in the sky. The rectangular yellow ribbons maybe hundred yards wide and a thousand yards long. There was maybe six of them in the sky. Eddard cursed when he saw bright flares where arrows and the siege engine projectiles impacting against the ribbons. Each flare was the destruction of arrows and projectiles. Many got through but they were being greatly reduced.

Eddard saw the Lord of Revelstone swirling her staff above her head. It began to glow a bright blue. When it glowed like a blue sun she adjusted her grip and slammed the heel into the Earth while shouting “Melenkurion abatha”. The words echoing across the land. Blue lightning erupted out the top of the Lustra’s staff. A thick column of blue light shot up to the snow clouds above.

The blue force then branched out on just below the bottom bank of the roiling mass of clouds. From nowhere a mass of bright medium webs formed and expanded. The strings of the webs pulsed and slowly grew brighter. The tracery glowing bright. The spidery web work spread over the length and breadth of the battlefield. The light illuminated the battlefield before them once more. Eddard was sure that this would be last illumination the Lord of Revelstone would be able to produce. Soon her focus would be on attack and defense.

Eddard curse with what he saw before him at his location on the berm. The archers had taken out a swarm of Walking Dead but behind them was a plethora of Ice Giants, many of them in tandem carrying large undead animals before them. The Ice Wrights held undead humans before them. Eddard gnawed his bottom lip. Between the yellow ribbons in the sky and this new tactic of using the undead to shield their bodies the Ice sons of the Ice King were advancing in great numbers.

Then he saw the earlier purple tracery again being projected up into the sky. The purple tendrils adding yet more protection to the advancing forces. He took a breath. The protection was mainly projected up to protect from the mass of arrows arching down on them and shots from the catapults and trebuchets. The protection high in the sky and not down low. At least not all attack vectors were being blocked Eddard thought thankfully.

Fortunately, all this defense against their fire was centered on the promontory. The rest of the forces of Westeros were able to fire at the forces of the Ice King without having their fire diminished by the yellow lines or purple lightning. On the flanks the forces of Westeros were able to slaughter in mass the advance of undead.

And yet, despite this slaughter, the forces kept coming forward. The undead cared less for their horrendous losses.
At the center of the Queen’s lines, the advancing forces got closer to the berm, archers were able to fire at flatter trajectories thus sending their arrows below the shields protecting the advancing forces of the Ice King. The scorpions would be able to fire beneath the protective bars of yellow and purple umbrella erupting up into the sky. Some of the catapults had been setup titled forward to give their shots flat trajectories.

He gnawed his lip. It would have to be enough. He hoped that the protective webs in the sky would dissipate. The yellow bars were obviously from the Croyel. Hopefully, they were taxing to project.

The battle had just gotten a lot more dangerous. Archers and siege engines were firing off as fast as possible. Eddard felt elation when he saw projectiles get through the yellow ribbons and slam into the forces of the Ice King. Bodies shattered by heavy stone or set alight by fire missiles. Many of the arrows shot in mass were still getting through and felling Walking Dead. It was just not enough he thought angrily to himself.

The bodies being carried by the Ice Wrights and Giants now looked like pin cushions. The bodies black with obsidian poisoning. He heard the sounds of scorpions firing off their bolts. The sound of metal and stressed wood released from their draw. The scorpions on their platforms firing ten feet over his head arching down.

The massive bolts slammed into the bodies being used as shields. The Giants were staggered by the heavy force hitting their shields. The undead bodies ripped hard by the large shafts hitting their bodies. He saw one bolt ram through the body an Ice Giant team was holding. The Ice Giant squired by the heavy bolt buried halfway through his chest. He staggered and fell to his knees pulling the body of the undead from the grip of the other Ice Giant. The now exposed Ice Giant was almost immediately riddled with Dragon Glass arrows perforating his body from groin to his head.

He fell flat down on his face dead. Arrows were flying thick and fast. The scorpions were being ratcheted back for the next shot. Some of the Ice Wrights had been squired through their undead shields and others had their shields ripped out of their hands. The Ice Wrights moving fast to avoid the arrows shot their way. There was simply too many arrows coming at them at this close range. They were soon feathered for outright kills or poisoned with obsidian darkening their blood from blue to black.

The lead Icy spawn were cut down but their brothers behind them still came on. The ones behind holding up their own shields of undead. The bodies absorbing hits that allowed the Ice Wrights and Giants to still come forward. The tide coming ever closer to the forward lines on the top of the berm. The massive hail of arrows and volleys of scorpion bolts were cutting down the lead elements of the advance but each wave of the Icy spawn came closer to the berm.

They would reach the berm in numbers. Eddard cursed. He steeled himself.

The undead were still shambling forward and now climbing the already unbound walking dead before the berm. Archers were firing fire arrows down at them. Eddard had saved fire arrows for this. It did not matter if they hit or missed. The arrows either striking walking undead or hitting the piled up bodies that had built up in the ditch before the berm. Soon conflagrations were flaming hot consuming the unbound undead and the living Walking Dead trying to climb the heaped up shot down undead.

They burned quick and would only hold them back for ten minutes if that long. They shot more undead dead with Dragon Glass. Eddard watched the undead jerk and weave around in the flames. He was thankful that they did not feel death by fire. The flames cooking them from the outside in. The Walking Dead stumbling down to their knees as they were consumed and then to lie on the ground as fire finished consuming their bodies.
The Ice Giants had reached the start of the heaped up undead before the berm now. They were not affected by the fires. They surged up the burning pile of dead. They continued to hold onto their now burning shields. They crested the berm.

A blizzard of scorpion bolts were released having waited for this moment. The operators not firing their bolts for the last several minutes seeing the tide about to crest. The bolts slammed into the shields still held. Many Ice Giants had thrown down their burning shields to grip their swords to pull out their scabbards. Many looked down at their chests that had sprouted one, two or three scorpion bolts. Some had their heads ripped off by shots to the head. They fell back dead. The initial rush shot dead but more were coming up.

It was time. Eddard pulled out his sword Evening Star. Beside him Stannis, Renly, Loras and Jon Arryn pulled their Valyrian swords. Theirs were weapons that could contend with the advancing foes. They moved forward.

Ice Wrights were now reaching the berm top. The second set of scorpion bolt stands let loose. Many Ice Wright were nearly ripped in half by the Dragon Glass tipped bolts ripping clear through their bodies at this close range. Even the brief touch of the obsidian tipped bolts ripping through their bodies killed and poisoned. Still many bolts missed the darkened and elusive targets. The living Ice Wrights surged forward.

The Archers were moving back as swordsmen moved forward behind shield walls. Still more arrows were fired out by the retreating archers as more archers took up behind the shield wall and began firing.

The Ice Wrights ran forward.

A huge bright blue column of Lord’s Fire stormed across the field “Melenkurion abatha, Duroc minas mil. Harad khabaal” echoed across the battlefield. For several heartbeats the world seemed to turn bright royal blue. Lord Lustra ripped her staff back and forth her Lord’s Fire obliterating the rushing Ice Wrights in the area she was defending. For thirty yards across the front of her sector the enemy had simply ceased to exist. All foes obliteraled into shards of ice and viscera.

Now undead and the next wave of Ice Wrights and Ice Giants advanced forward. Eddard thought savagely that there was always more waves coming forward to contend with.

Melisandre: The ShadowBender witch saw the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants swarming forward. They were using shields of the undead to protect their bodies till they got up close. Only then did they throw down the undead. The need to grasp and use their weapons. To attack more important than self-defense. They would rush forward to get into the forces of Westeros. The Wrights were fast and the Ice Giants were strong and still fairly fast. They were causing casualties.

Once in close the archers were no longer able to fire at will and in mass. They had to slow their rate of fire and pick out targets of opportunity. The archers further back had the freedom to continue firing in mass at the advancing tide of the enemy that were further back from the berm. The siege engines firing as fast as their operators could work the apparatuses.

The archers who had been at the top of the berm were falling back and pikemen with heavy shields in their left hands were interlocking their shields. There was heavy horse and knight ready to charge forward. They could not kill the Ice Wrights but the heavy weight would throw them down and disorganize them.

It was time to act. She looked at Ygritte. She had awaken ten minutes ago and was ready now. Her eyes fully alert. Jon had already rushed forward. His sword flaming as he ran. They nodded at each other. They looked forward. They felt both feel for and pride in their husband. They could see Lighthbringer as he crashed it against the blade of an Ice Giant. The fiery blade seemed to repel the blades of the Icy spawn of the Ice King. He met the blade again and again of the Ice Giant. Jon ducked underneath the next down stroke of the Ice Giant.

Jon rammed his blade into the groin of the Ice Giant and ripped it up and then back out. He had split the belly of the Ice Giant wide open. Guts and blue blood sprayed everywhere. Jon was soaked in the bluish gore. He juked to the side as the massive titan crashed to the ground. Its body flipped with its screams of death loud in the air. Its body already beginning to steam

Screams were everywhere now. Men screaming in agony and fear. A large company of warhorses and knights collided violently into ten or so Ice Wrights that had slipped the pikemen somehow.
Their ice swords cut into horse heads and sliced into their bodies. The armor of the horses only partially successful in repelling the blades of the Ice Wrights.

The slashing swords of the Ice Wrights hit the disorganized knights. The knights slashed back.
Their blades blocked in part but other blades found their mark. The blades somehow did not cut the Ice Wrights but it did knock them off balance. Melisandre saw how normal forged steel had no true effect on the Icy spawn of the Ice King. The weight and height of the knights gave them an advantage of angles and momentum. Still the immunity of the Ice Wrights to metal blades would soon change that.

“Let’s go kill those fucking bastards!” Ygritte shrieked in her high pitched voice. “I am in a kick ass mood”. With a smile on her face, Melisandre nodded her head in her quiet way. The two women advanced forward. They lifted their hands as they advanced. The fingers out in a clawed position.
Both women were at full strength with Ygritte fully recovered. Their fingers began to glow black and thick shadows flowed down their fingers to form daggers with razor sharp pointed tips jutting out their fingertips. The blades rippling and shifting on their edges of their fingers.

The Direwolves of the Starks came forward growling. The mighty beasts sensed the witches would lead them to the prey they sought. The wolves snarling with fur bristled.

They came up to the knights desperately hacking down on the Ice Wrights. The Ice Wrights haven arisen from being trampled unharmed. Their icy blades hacking on iron blades and armor. The metal becoming brittle and shattering. The now helpless knights then cut down.

With a scream both women snapped their wrists. The motion flinging off twenty shadow daggers.
The magical constructs seeking out their prey with unerring magical fury. The closest Ice Wright had just beheaded a knight and turned to hack his blade deep into the haunches of a warhorse. The Ice Wright never saw the three shadow daggers easily penetrate his body. His body instantly poisoned and killed dropping straight down in a heap.

His body already steaming and bubbling on the ground as it started to dissolve. Three other Ice Wrights had toppled over with multiple shadow dagger strikes. The ShadowBender magic unraveling the magic that had created them. One the equal or greater of the other. The witches’ magic stronger than the magic of the Ice King.

The witches were at full strength. Another set of twenty shadow daggers were formed in only ten seconds. More knights had died and the women screamed as they flicked their wrists. The black daggers shot out like scorpion bolts. The magical daggers could not miss. One Ice Wright took two ice daggers. One in each eye. His eyes gushed out blue-black blood then his head melted down to his shoulders his body toppling over.

Their other daggers took out four more Ice Wrights. The other four had realized they were in mortal danger. They rushed the ShadowBender witches in a quick rush that was inhuman fast. Their ice blue eyes alight with fury. The women were still forming their shadow daggers. They did not have the time to form the next set of their weapons.

From the half-light a spear came flashing through the air. The spear easily penetrated the body of the closest Ice Wright from the left side. The Valyrian steel tip a foot in front of the Ice Wright torso. It looked down with its pale blue eyes. It started to scream with blood gushing out its mouth in cold spews. Archers had reformed and a blizzard of Dragon Glass arrows feathered its body. It was instantly killed with four arrows in its head and at least seven in its body.

The Dirwolves moved in. They were cautious snapping at the Ice Wrights and juking to the sides and leaping back to avoid their swiping swords. The Direwolves making the Ice Wrights pay attention to them and not their surroundings.

The archers furious at the loss of the knights protecting them. They fired off their bows with a vengeance. The other three Ice Wrights bodies spun and jerked to the sides and back with the impact of multiple dragon glass tipped arrows and a few hurled javelins ripping into their bodies. The bodies of the Icy spawn looked like a sapling with many young shoots jutting out its body. But these limbs did not give life but put death into the Ice Wrights. They were cut down.

Oberyn came running up and ripped his spear out the dead Ice Wright.

“Now that is what I like! Plenty of enemies to kill! Let’s go get some more!” he shouted with a happy shout.

They all turned to the frontlines. The Ice Giants and Wrights behind them were assaulting the heavy shield wall. The pikes and shields quickly being reduced to cleaved metal and broken shields.

The shield wall was doing its work though. Scorpion bolts were fired in rapid staccato rhythms. The operators firing as fast they could load and re-cock their weapons. Another small volley was let loose. Two Ice Giants were flung off their feet with multiple bolts buried in their bodies with some of the heads of Dragon Glass a foot or two out their back. No matter the mere touch of obsidian deadly but that took time. The Ice Giants naturally attracted the aim of the scorpion operators. They made for such easy targets to spot and shoot.

Another wave of Ice Giants came up the berm. They had their swords out and surged forward. The massive brutes were actually able to cut down the first wave of scorpion bolts with their ice forged swords and quick reflexes.

Ygritte yelled “Hu'DI' loD puqwI' woDDI' DaH! jagh Qaw’! DeH loQ chaH 'ej Da'oghlaHneSchugh chuH tovadoq!”

The Shadow Monster she had birthed this very morning with an instant motion unfolded his body and stood upright to his now twenty-five foot height. His head turned towards the frontlines. His black eyes instantly took in the situation. His limbs strong and hale. The strange ripples and undulations along its limbs and bodies made the shadow creation seem to waver like a mirage.

With a hideous scream of primal rage and hate the Shadow Monster folded down on its unnaturally angled legs and jumped up high in the air. The leap easily took it over the heads of the defenders and even the heads of the Ice Giants. It came down between two Ice Giants. The Ice Giants barely had time to register the presence of the ebony shadow now between them as they fought. The pitch black monstrosity had come down with its two arms cocked to the side of its body. Its long claws extended and angled down.
The Ice Giants were engaged hacking men down with their blades. They never truly saw the monster now ready to strike them down. The claws of the Shadow Monster sliced through their bodies. The three foot long sabers easily cut through the hard icy bodies. The Ice Giants were simply dead in a heartbeat. Their ruined bodies feel apart into sections from the full down cuts of the Shadow Monster that sliced through their bodies in diagonal cuts.

The dark as midnight monstrosity whirled around. Its hands slashing out taking out the next Ice Giant chopping it to ribbons with both hands slashing through it. The other Ice Giants stopped attacking the shield wall and the disarmed humans. They moved in on the Shadow Monster. They realized the danger they were in. The Ice Wrights joining in the attack.

The Ice Giants quickly ringed around the monstrosity that had fallen into their midst. The Ice Wrights moved in from all sides to fight the monster attacking them. All the Icy spawn now on full alert and holding their swords ready for attack and defense. They all feinted and jabbed in with their weapons from all sides. The blades penetrating the Shadow Monster’s body. The blades stabbing in and out and slashing through its body with seeming little or no effect.

The two witches had now formed their shadow daggers and cut loose. The magical daggers flung seeking bodies to bury themselves in. An Ice Giant took five and toppled over already dead. Another took five as well and fell down its body convulsing with gouts of blue black blood coming from its mouth. Three of the Ice Wrights taken down with shadow daggers burying fully into their bodies killing them almost instantly.

The Direwolves still snapping at the Ice Wrights and darting in to bit savagely the lower legs and feet of the Ice Giants. Their long fangs sinking in deep to rend frozen flesh. The massively strong jaws able to rend muscle and in a few cases to cut tendons crippling the leg of an Ice Giant. The Direwolves quick to retreat when necessary to get out range of the icy spawn’s weapons.

Archers were firing into the now distracted Icy spawn. Their arrows impacting up and down bodies of Ice Wrights and Ice Giants. More were cresting the berm but scorpion bolts and dragon glass arrows were already lashing out at them. Some of the Icy spawn falling down dead with head and heart. Others sent spinning with shots to body and limbs.

The Shadow monster’s face twisted and snarled from the blades cutting through its shadowy body. From its black rippling throat grimaces and then shouts of pain were heard. The Icy spawn encouraged by these sounds pressed their attack. Though their weapons seemed to cause no true damage each time their weapons ripped through large Shadow Monster they pulled a little of its essence away. Ripples of shadows ripped from its body. Each rip pulled a little more of its essence away from itself.

The creation of the ShadowBender witches was not accepting damage without a deadly retort. The Shadow Monster’s body tilted down and its mouth filled with black dagger teeth chomped down on the head of the nearest Ice Giant. The shadowy entity’s mouth closed its teeth easily piercing the head of the Giant. The Shadow Monster ripped its head back ripping the head of the Ice Giant off its body. Blue blood gushed out like a geyser from the neck stump. The black head spit out the severed head. Melisandre watched Eddard watch it tumble through the air. The Shadow Monster attacked the Ice Wrights around it chopping into its body. The blades passing easily through its shadowy body but its screams spoke of the pain they caused.

Melisandre looked around the battlefield. She saw Eddard attacking with his mighty sword. She saw Eddard stare at the Shadow monster as it fought. He was obviously fascinated watching the blades of the Icy creations of the Ice King pass through the Shadow Monster or she Shadow Monster pierced and the sword pulled back. The sword thrust caused small eddies of shadows to be pulled from the ShadowBender’s creation. The screams of the Shadow Monster made it clear to all that the creation of the witches could be hurt and harmed. The attacks on it were slowly dissipating its body.

Eddard chopped down an Ice Wright that had started to charge the ShadowBender witches. Melisandre and Ygritte who had backed up from the battle between their creation and the Icy spawn of the Ice King. They had formed up their shadow daggers and again flicked their wrists. Six Ice Wrights fell down dead with multiple shadow daggers penetrating their bodies.

Oberyn ran forward with a tight grip his spear. Even though the Shadow Monster was not alive it was an ally. He rushed to its defense. He placed his second hand higher up on his spear as he neared his target. His spear rammed deep into the body of the Ice Giant before him. His spear ramming through its back. The Valyrian steel buried in its icy lung. Oberyn ripped it out as blue blood sprayed out the Ice Giant’s mouth. The witches flung more of their shadow daggers that slammed into Ice Wrights felling those it hit. The daggers adjusting their flight in air to ensure their embedding into their targets.

The archers had reformed again and a blizzard of arrows were now slamming into the icy creations. The problem was that the next waves of the Ice Wrights and Giants were themselves surging forward and now almost upon the forces of Westeros. Only throwing down their impromptu shields when they were ready to pull their swords to fight.

While all this was happening the Walking Dead were pouring up and flowing forward into the front lines. The undead relentlessly attacking all they reached. Men chopping off limbs to reduce their effectiveness. One had to keep stepping back as even severed hands tried to grip bodies to crawl up and strangle or sink fingers into bellies or backs.

The Direwolves moved into the undead. Their massive jaws crippling legs and mauling arms to useless hanging appendages. The wolves slowly retreat as they dispensed mayhem. The Undead despite the harm done to their brethren kept on steadily advancing regardless of losses.

Archers assigned to fire at the undead when they made the berm were firing relentless waves of arrows into the undead. The ones at the front of the press falling down dead. The problem Melisandre saw that there seemed to be ten to replace each one feathered.

Arya: Arya felt the arrow fletching brush off her first two fingers and thumb as she let her next arrow loose. She reached back but her quiver was empty. She cursed throwing it down on the ground and ran to her right to get behind the Waynhim wedge. That was where the arrow attendants were that were carrying the full quivers. Thank the gods they had at least twenty wheelbarrows filled to over flowing with quivers. The stacks in the wheelbarrows were not so high now. Arya had already fired off three full quivers.

She had watched with horror the new tactic of the Ice Giants and Ice Wrights. They were using the undead as shields to protect them from direct arrow fire. The large dead animals of the Ice Giants and humans or farm sized animals of the Ice Wrights were feathered with multiple arrows. Those bodies turning black with obsidian poison. Some so poisoned they the bodies began to fall apart. This was allowing the Icy spawn to advance up to the berm relatively unscathed.

The illumination the Lord of Revelstone had provided had faded away now. She would not be able to regenerate it. She was actively engaged fighting the advancing tide of the undead army before where she was stationed currently.

The Loremaster barked wildly his stave extended. Arya watched as she shot off arrows her skill so great as her arrows pocked the bodies used as shields adding to the poison filling the undead bodies.
She had heard the stories from Dany of the Ur-viles on the Dothraki Sea when she attacked the Khalasar of her enemy Khal Jhaqo.

In Dany’s story the Loremaster whipped his stave to fling a long ribbon of acid out to cover as much ground as possible. Not this time. The black acid shot straight with great velocity. It splashed onto the body of the shield animals directly in front of it. The acid hit the already rotting body and dissolved it immediately. The two Ice Giants behind it were next immediately splashed heavily with black acid ichor of the Waynhim wedge.

The Ice Giants only had time to look down shocked as their bodies were shockingly fast eaten away by the acid. The next moment the bodies collapsed their torsos no more. The Loremaster turned the last of his acid liquid stream at the next pair of giants and the elk they were carrying as a shield.
Only enough acid was left in this gout to eat away the elk.

This was all Arya and her archer mates needed. It seemed as if all the archers fired at once on her side of the Waynhim fighting wedge at those two Ice Giants. They fell down dead with each having at least fifteen arrows sunk deep up and down their bodies. The Loremaster was barking wildly his stave tip again burning deep red. The Ice Wrights had spread out to come at the archers. Syrio and Belwas were on her side of the wedge. They ran forward crouched low to hopefully avoid being feathered. The heavy arrow fire forcing the Ice Wrights to hold onto their shields as they came up the berm.

Fire arrows were fired down into the heaped up dead setting them on fire. The Ice Wrights came on through the fire rushing quickly. Now fire arrows began to impact the undead being used as shields of some of the Ice Wrights. The bodies lighting up immediately. The Icy spawn holding onto the burning bodies as if they were precious.

The heavy arrow fire kept the Ice Wrights gripping their undead shields tight to them. The Ice Wrights hurrying to get in close to the berm and then up it.

Syrio rushed forward and went low and slashed his Valyrian rapier across the knees of the two Ice Wrights that were before him. His cut below the undead shields they were carrying. His blade severed tendons and ligaments. Their bodies crashing to the ground. The Ice Wrights screaming feeling the Valyrian steel cut already unbinding their magic if albeit slowly. Syrio was able to stab one in the eye killing it as it trashed before he had to pull back.

Strong Belwas chopped the head off one undead shield and his next swipe cut off the surprised head of the Ice Wright. The bald eunuch was able to pirouette his immense bulk and side cut an Ice Wright across its ribs. Icy blood poured out and bones were exposed. Blue blood started to pour out its mouth.

The other Ice Wrights were close now and threw down their shield reaching for scabbards to pull out swords. The Ice Giants threw their undead animal shields into the middle of the wedge. The animals chopped apart for the most part but large pieces of the animals hit the Waynhim disrupting the harmony of the wedge as they fought to throw the dead animals off. The Ice Giants were falling on the Waynhim wedge as did many Ice Wrights but many others were charging the archers.
Arrows were flying out in blizzards.

Arya saw more Ice Wrights running their way. They were going to be overwhelmed Arya thought as she fired off arrows fast and furious. She saw Ice Wrights stagger taking dragon glass arrows.
They were fast but there was too many to dodge or even keep count of.

The Waynhim wedge was under extreme assault. The tall Ice Giants towered over the somewhat diminutive Waynhim. Their massive blades raining down on the Waynhim at the edges of the wedge. Their height allowed their blades to chop down on the small Demondim spawn from severe angles. Ice Wrights had converged and were stabbing and slashing with their own ice blades. Blades and staves blocked each other and sought to find openings to deliver injury and death. The Waynhim impossibly fast and strong blocking blows.

The Waynhim barked with strident barks. Their staves on the edge of the fighting wedge slashed hotly up and down. When they touched the body of an Ice Wright the hot iron or bone cut through the body of the Icy spawn like butter. The heat of the Waynhim was deadly to the Ice Spawn. The Waynhim were taking causalities. The small creatures were chopped apart and heads cleaved by the attacking Wrights and Giants. The small grey creatures were giving out much more death than they were receiving. When one fell on its brothers from within the wedge stepped up to the edge of the triangle and seamlessly took up the defense of the fighting wedge.

The archers were not able to fully support their Waynhim partners as they were being swarmed by both Ice Wrights and the Walking Dead. Arya was looking around and taking shots when she had opportunities. The floating green orbs still shinning bright with the Waynhim magic. The eerie light made everything seem diffuse and like mist. The light though allowed the archers to easily find targets to feather. It was also helping the scorpion operators find their targets to take shots at. She shot at an Ice Wright but its juking body had her arrow missing.

Scorpion bolts came whirring in to squire Ice Giants and Ice Wrights. Their bodies thrown back or folding over like rag dolls from the massive poles ripping into their bodies. The operators cursing as they cranked back the arm of the scorpion apparatus and others manhandled the next bolt into its firing slot.

The Ice Giants were able to slay Waynhim with their large blades. The massive blades cleaving bodies when they worked past the crossed the staves of the grey bodied Demondim spawn. The Loremaster was kept busy fending off attacks by Ice Giants. Other Waynhim were slain by rapier like thrusts of their swords or lightning fast swipes of the swords.

The Waynhim were giving it back. The Waynhim on the edge stabbing out with their staves faster than the eye could follow. The Ice Wrights were able to block many blows but not all. When an iron stave stabbed an Ice Wright almost immediately block gore gushed out their orifices their bodies steaming while convulsions started to rip through their bodies.

Where bone staves stabbed the Ice Wrights fire seemed to suddenly explode out the pours of the Ice Wright. The Wrights dropping their blade screaming in agony as they burned from the inside out.

The Loremaster had locked blades with one of the Ice Giant with his stave aimed up. Acid gushed up the blade of the blade of the Ice Giant. The acid splashed up into the Ice Giant’s face. It was instantly eaten away the body falling back dead already steaming. The Loremaster swirled and gushed acid onto the other Ice Giant attacking it. It died screaming as it was eaten to slag.

An Ice Wright was about to stab its blade through the Loremaster’s side. A yellow tailed arrow from Marleya Blackmyre pierced its temple instantly killing the Ice Wright. Then an Ice Giant that had come forward to slam its ice blade into the Loremaster splitting it nearly in two.

Arya watched stunned. She was afraid the wedge would fall apart without its Loremaster killed but one of the Waynhim stepped up taking the stave of the fallen Loremaster and became the tip of the wedge. It was having to spend all its efforts to defend itself from the Ice Giants blade strikes. This prevented the Waynhim from using their acid.

Arya saw the swarm undead was almost fully upon them. Without warning a mighty gout of flame came down from the sky. The flame clearly from a dragon. The flame slammed into the ground fifteen yards wide and continued on for nearly fifty yards. The dragon silent. Arya had looked up to see just a hint of green and a trailing tail. Then it was gone. A split second later she saw another mighty gout of flame from the sky. She could just make out a white body that disappeared into the night when the flames ceased.

Elation shot through Arya. The dragons were back in the fight! The flames had set all the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants they touched afire. They were burning brightly screaming and fell to the ground to flip and jackknife as they died. The undead caught in the mighty gouts simply burned with their bodies twisting and jerking. They made no sound dying. The assaulting forces had been thinned. The pressure immediately lessened.

The reprieve from the assault gave the wedge and archers the space they needed to focus on their current attackers. The Waynhim now able to attack. The Ice Wrights had pressed into the archers on the other side of the wedge. Barristan was chopping them down right and left his body a blur. The archers on that side firing fast and furious. A fusillade of scorpion bolts tipped with Dragon Glass flashed into the Ice Wrights and Giants from that side. Four Ice Giants and at least eight Ice Wrights had been squired by the massive bolts. The aim of the scorpion operators improving. Sheer terror increased ones accuracy.

This gave the archers the advantage now and they could fire in deadly volleys taking out Walking Dead and the Icy spawn of the Ice King.

Daenerys: The Queen jumped down off the Scorpion platform back down to the ground. The yellow barriers in the sky had reduced the effectiveness of their fire out into the fields of her enemies. The damn bastards using the Walking Dead as undead shields to protect the Ice Giants and Wrights until they were on them was a damnable revelation.

The Scorpions were firing as fast as they could be rearmed. The massive bolts able to take out the undead shields and sometimes the Wright or Giant behind it. The force of impact sometimes ripping the dead shields out of tight clenching fingers. With the reduction of the killing of the forces of the Ice King at range they had been able to start to envelope their lines at the center of her lines.

She had felt a large thrill of elation when Rhaegal and Viserion rejoined the fight. They were flying silent. The dark sky was now their friend. They would fly high and come screaming down fast and belch out a fifty yard line of flames. The fire destroying all that they touched. Speed elongating the tongue of fire they belched out.

The undead walking around aimless as they burned sometimes setting their undead brethren alight as well. Her dragons instantly winking out of sight once their flames ceased. They could see at night. Not so the humans. Her dragons flying at breakneck speed with wings tight to their bodies as they had done on the Dothraki Sea. Their bodies first here and then in a flash gone having already dispensed death to the undead and Icy spawn.

The death of the Ice Wrights and Giants was a much more violent affair Daenerys observed. These beings did not die quietly or without histrionics. The Icy spawn of the Ice King screamed and screamed as they died. Their bodies flipping and wallowing on the ground while the dragon fire finished roasting the Ice Wrights and Giants down to bubbly slag that quickly started to evaporate away.

Her dragons flying up into the sky to disappear. She had them attack from all different vectors and do so without their normal roaring. Silence was their weapon this night. She did not want anything hurled up at them. The dragons flashed by at maximum speed with wings folded up against their bodies for speed and safety. The constant changing of attack vectors kept any of the Icy spawn from knowing the next angle of attack. The dragons burned all before them in a flash before they soared back up to the sky to disappear to prepare for another pass.

They were to a degree making up for the barriers blocking their fire out at their enemies. Her dragons making sure to fly clear of the yellow and purple in the sky. They were able to attack at vectors that the yellow ribbons could not defend. The yellow ribbons orientated to prevent fire from her front lines to fully impact the advancing tide on the center of her lines.

The Lord of Revelstone had ridden off with the Haruchai and Giants heading to the east to fight a major rupture in the line of the defenders of Westeros. The Ranyhyn galloping fast to rush to the rupture and give succor. There had been a contingent of Ice Giants and Wrights leading the assault in that area. Their might had forced a tear in the forces of the Queen. Into that tear the undead poured through. This allowed the undead to break through the front lines and spread out. Men were fighting desperately for their lives.

The Lord and her Haruchai escort arrived before the running Giants. The Ranyhyn back stepping as they slowed to allow their riders to act. The Haruchai spread out. With their taken up ice forged swords they immediately began to cut down the undead and forced the Ice Wrights and Giants to stop their advance and contend with them.

From the scorpion platform the Queen had climbed up she saw the Lords fire flashing out again and again. There would be bright pulse that seemed to make the world turn blue for a heartbeat. When that vanished she saw the large column of magical fire erupting out the end of the Lord’s shaft. The magical blasts shattering all that were before it.

Melenkurion abatha! Duroc minas mill harad khabaal! Echoed across the battlefield. The world not only turned blue for two heartbeats but the world seemed to tilt as mighty thunder pummeled the forces of friend and foe. The blast of Lord’s fire was truly devastating eviscerating a large contingent of the advancing forces of the Ice King before the Lord of Revelstone.

The battle continued. Rarely did the Lord of Revelstone use the full seven words. It seemed there was a limitation of how much she could use their full power. Probably, her body could only channel so much might.

Sometimes the first two words of power were heard shouted out. The shout of those words echoed across the battlefield. The ground shook and the air boomed with the mighty words echoing off into the distance. It was just not as overwhelming as when she used the full seven words.

Daenerys had seen that when the Lord of Revelstone shouted her words of power that the fire from her staff intensified greatly. The thickness and reach of her Lord’s Fire much greater. Her Lord’s Fire was like a massive battering ram that totally obliterated her enemies. Daenerys thought nothing would be safe against this Lord and her magical fire. Maybe the Black Wall of Volantis would be able to withstand that fire for any length of time. Maybe.

The Giants of the Search were like ancient titans striding the battlefield. Their sheer size and granite armor made them walking pillars of death to the forces of the Ice King. The archers and knights of Westeros protecting their backs and flanks. The Giants glaives were whirling around their bodies sending body parts and whole undead cut in two flying far through the air. The Giants stormed into the forces of the Ice King creating mayhem around themselves. Their blades magically killed all the undead their blades cleaved into.
Daenerys knew that the Haruchai on their Ranyhyn mounts with their stolen Ice Wright sword were like whirling dervishes of death. Archers and scorpion operators firing fast and furious to guard the Giants back and flanks. Losses were being taken but with the forces of Revelstone to reinforce the forces of the Ice King was being cut down and pushed back.

They were aided when Rhaegal had come flashing by at a frightening speed burning out a fifty yard long line of burning death in front to the battle. The dragon fire alighting all the undead and Icy sons of the Ice King. The break in the tide letting the forces of Westeros stabilize their lines. Her dragon had been their one moment and then seemed to wink out of existence with his arching back up into the darkness. The darkness cloaking her dragons while they gained attitude and flew out to come in from a new angle of attack.

Then Viserion had come flashing in from the South. His flame hitting the advancing tide head on and burning back for fifty yards with his mighty forward speed. Both dragons gone. The fight now turned back into the favor of the forces of Westeros. The rupture repaired the lines again established. Once more the archers and siege engine operators could fire at their steady pace.

Off in the distance near the fallen Wall Viserion flamed the Walking Dead for fifty yards before tilting his head over and somehow continuing his long drought of fire setting those undead on fire. He did not try and get lower to use his talons or tail on his enemy. He was using speed and surprise to keep himself safe. He finished his current assault. He now soared up into the nighttime sky disappearing into the falling snow as he had never existed.

Far off to the west she saw another line of dragon fire erupt from seeming nowhere. That was Rhaegal. He was here and then gone.

The Queen was back on the ground and ran forward. In this area the lines were stable but now under great stress. The undead had climbed over the berm and advanced. There was Ice Wrights and Ice Giants among them but they had one big disadvantage in attempting to make a breach at this point. Valyrian Steel was present here. The pale Queen had wanted to concentrate the power of this magical steel. If spread out through her forces it would have been to diffuse to be of a tactical advantage. Daenerys had made the strategic decision to concentrate them with her.

It was paying dividends now. She wished she had Arya here with Blackfyr but she was more valuable with her archery skills. She was reaching out and killing their enemies at distance. Again and again.

Daenerys ran fast forward unsheathing Foe Hammer. The blade lighting up to blaze forth like a star come down from the heavens. She saw two other blades like hers but of totally different origins. Jon with Lightbringer was a madman on the battlefield. He seemed to have actually instilled raw fear in the Ice Wrights and Giants. As the battle had progressed the blade of Azor Ahai reformed had become brighter and stronger. The Icy spawn desperate in their attacks on the Lord Commander. They sensed he and his sword must be put down to save their father.

First Jon’s arm had been wreathed in flames. Now his whole upper body was licked by flames that he did not feel or even seem to know he was covered with. His sword now screaming melodies in the discordant rhythms of Asshai. His sword leaving flames in the air behind the arc of his swings.

His blade now had the effect on the Ice Wright’s blades as theirs on normal iron blades. With only three or four collisions of their blades the blades of the Wrights shattered with louds screams of protest. It seemed that light and heat was the better of darkness and cold. Shorn of their blades they were quickly dispatched. Jon moved on to kill the Walking Dead reaching for him as if he was a flame attracting moths. His sword not only chopped them to chunks they were lit on fire to burn brightly.
Eddard’s blade glowed a bright light robin blue. His blade leaving trails in the air that lasted for over a minute. Daenerys had moved through those arcs as she fought. She moved through them and they remained after her passage. His sword also sung melodies that were much more pleasing to the ear. His Evening Star did not shatter the blades of the Ice Wrights and Giants. It simply cut them in two as if a knife through butter. The glowing blue sword pitch rising when it dueled with its foes swords as if exalted.

The Queen enjoyed seeing the shocked look on Eddard’s foes face looking at a blade they thought invulnerable that had been cut in half. The next slash by Eddard’s sword sent heads flying or disemboweled the Ice Giants he was fighting. He was soaked in blue gore now his hair matted and beard soaked in Ice Giant guts and blood. He did not seem to mind. Daenerys had the clear impression that his sword was flowing the strength of the blows of swords into Eddard’s body invigorating the man.

Daenerys ran up to a gaggle of undead attacking a line of conscripts fighting them with small battleaxes and pikes. The men were doing damage but taking losses losing their discipline in the panic of war. They were letting the Walking Dead get in close where grasping hands and biting teeth tore and ripped bodies apart.

Screaming Daenerys hit the Walking Dead with her rune sword. It was covered in flames as Jon’s but they were contained to the blade and her fist on the pommel. The blade burning bright blue but more a medium blue.

With deft strokes the Valyrian started to chop down the Walking Dead. When her blade cut their bodies they were hacked severely or clean through. More importantly, the undead instantly died a second death if a head shot or through the heart. Otherwise, the magic of her blade started to unbind the magic of the Ice King. Daenerys would gauge the wound. If another hack was needed to hasten the poisoning she would administer one more slash or stab so the undead would not attack anyone else before the poisoning killed them.

With the Ice Wrights she was their better in skill. They were fast and had basic skills she deemed but she had been trained by two of the best swordsmen of this age. She was like an angel of death among her foes. Her body moving with angelic grace dispensing death all around to her foes. Her sword lashed out at all angles and easily blocked the counterstrokes of her enemy. Her blade pulsing brighter with each collision of dragon fire forged and ice forged steel.

She was confronted by an Ice Wright. The two locked eyes for an instant. Hate snarled on both of their faces. They rushed each other. Their swords slammed together. Daenerys slashed her sword with fast angled right and left strokes. Her speed and strength immediately had the Ice Wright on the defense. She slashed forward at the Ice Wright’s head. It instinctively rushed its sword up to block the Queen’s burning rune sword up and over his head.

She dove down to her haunches and extended her left leg to pivot around. Her sword swirled out in a deadly arc. Her Ice Wright was not very skilled. He was able to handle an attack on high coming forward. He did react to her being so low before her sword sliced clear through his left knee. The rune sword traveling on slicing into his right knee nearly cleaving it in two. Daenerys pivoted up ripping her blade free.

The Ice Wright toppled to the ground screaming in agony blue blood gushing out his leg stump and spurting out his ruined right knee. It flipped and wailed. Daenerys could care less as she moved on to her next foes.

She was dispatching more Walking Dead. She heard scorpions firing off in a staccato rhythm. The tall Ice Giants natural targets. The Ice Giant to her right staggered and then fell down dead with three long scorpion bolts jutting out its upper chest.

She saw a man with a Valyrian bastard sword fighting an Ice Wright. The man was fast but the man was clearly tiring. The Ice Wright’s cold sapping his strength. She cleaved in two the head of deer trying to gore her with its antlers. She then ran forward her rune sword slamming in the back of the unawares Ice Wright. Her blade surging out its chest below its sternum. It immediately began its death dance. The Queen ripped her sword free the foe. It was already dead it would just take a short while for the corpse to realize it.

Out of the corner of her eyes she saw the two wives of Jon standing back by the line of pikemen. They were blending in. They would step out with fingers cloaked in shadows. They would flex their hands jamming their wrists forward. Three or four shadow daggers would shoot off their fingers. The daggers slamming into the bodies of an Ice Wright or Giant.

The Ice Rights simply fell down dead with black ichor gushing out the orifices of their face. The black liquid running down their face and neck. Their bodies jerking and spinning as they crashed down to the ground. With the Ice Giants their larger size had them lasting longer. The ice daggers easily sinking deep into their bodies. The Ice Giants would look around stupidly if they did not drop down dead quickly. Their eyes, nose and ears starting to bleed heavily black gore that stained their face, neck and then down their bodies. They would stumble around dropping their sword before crashing to their knees and then down to the ground.

The Direwolves running out and biting at an Ice Wright or Giant lower leg. They would rip out a chunk of flesh or tendons and then dart back. The wolves wounding and maiming. It was clear that the Direwolves themselves had some magical properties to their existence. Their fangs able to harm the magical creations of the Ice King.

She observed a man with a Valyrian two-headed battleax nearly cleave the leg off an ice giant with a full two handed strike. He ripped his blade out.

He reminded the Queen of an early fight between another knight with Valyrian broadsword and an Ice Wright. They had both stabbed each other clear through their bodies. The man taking it to the heart dying immediately. The Ice Wright had been spitted in the center of his chest. It dropped its sword and then gripped the pommel of the Valyrian sword jammed deep into its body the tip jutting a foot out its back.

The dying Ice Wright gripped the sword to pull it out of his body. It started to jerkily pull it out and then ripped its hands back. The steel of the pommel had burned its hands severely from its tight grip.

An insight came to the Queen. The Valyrian steel did unbind the magic of the Ice King but it was more than that. Valyria of the Freehold had been a people that honored and worshipped the sun. They worshipped the fire it brought. They may have perverted themselves but they were followers of light and fire. This magic of sun and light was forged into any piece of Valyrian steel.

This infusion of light and heat was the antithesis of the darkness and cold of the magic of the Ice King. The Priests of R’hllor said that light would always overcome night. Daenerys saw it in the burning of the Ice Wright’s hands when it gripped that sword. Light fought night and the victor was light. Valyrian steel by the very nature of its forging made it superior to the magic of the Ice Rights.

It was not an absolute advantage but it was one that could be used by a skilled fighter to overcome and defeat your enemy.

She spun around and spotted an Ice Wright. He saw her. They rushed each other.
Ice King: Pale blue eyes scanned the battlefield. There was savage combat all up and down the lines of the bitch Dragon Queen. His true son, the Croyel, shields up in the sky had reduced enough of his enemies fire to allow his forces to reach the berm of the Queen’s forces and force their way up.

His loses were still staggering. The trebuchets were flinging huge skins filled with some kind of tar and oil blend that even if exploded by the Croyel’s yellow barriers up in the sky the droplets fell down igniting his walking dead to burn like bonfires.

The yellow barriers were high. They did not stop the direct fire from the archers. The scorpions were now firing as fast as they could be reloaded. A good percentage of the catapults were firing on flat trajectories to bounce their projectiles through his forces bouncing wildly on the ground. The missiles burning and squiring his undead and Icy spawn.

It could not be helped. He had to engage the enemy in depth. His forces had gained the berm and were streaming forward. He knew his losses were grievous. It enraged him but a commander must be willing to accept losses no matter how bad to achieve victory. He was finally killing his foes by the score. He would soon be raising them to create a new army of Walking Dead. He had a whole continent to make an army of.

He had slowly moved forward towards the Queen’s forces. He did not want to attack till he could rush forward and kill the leaders of Westeros. The Croyel would bring his shields down from the sky and recast them. He knew his might. None could stand against him if he could but get to his enemies. He would force his way to the leaders of Westeros. With them dead their arm would panic and, thus, be dispatched. Then he could raise them to his cause.

The sudden blooms of dragon fire had sent a trill of terror through him. The damnable fire was completely unbearable. He still shivered with memories of the battle at the Tree of Life. The fire of the dragons was unimaginable hot. The heat far exceeded any natural fire. Worse, the fire sought to unbind any magic it encountered. His true son had devised a shield that could withstand that fire. For a time. If he the attack was sustained he would eventually be in grave danger. If other dragons joined in the attack then he would be in quick danger. Also, other attacks of magic would be deadly if the Croyel was under strain repelling dragon fire. He had to get in among the forces of the Queen to keep her dragons from attacking him.

As he inched forward, he and the Croyel at his neck had their eyes constantly looking up with the Ice King turning his head looking at the leaden sky. The snow falling down like forlorn lovers drifting with no purpose. There was a countless sea of fires among his forces from burning undead. Other fires from the casks of oil and bladders flung onto his forces and set on fire by the pots of tar and pitch hurled after to alight.

The forces of the Dragon Queen had multiple fires raging in their midst to provide light for their forces. Still, those fires only illuminated up into the sky a hundred feet at the most. Small penumbras in an inky sea of bleak darkness. The dark reduced the vision of his human enemies. That was the reason he had pressed his major assault after dark. He was discovering though that even with his superior night vision he could not spot the dragons attacks on his forces until they were already upon on him and then past his forces.

The dragons were flying silent. They must be flying up to a great height and then diving down at steep angles and pulling out at the last moment. They breathed their fire down from only forty to sixty feet. The fire devastating upon impact. They were simply flying to fast to be able to get a bead on them to hurl projectiles back up at them in return. The damned beasts coming in on his forces from all angles of the compass. They even came in from the same angle a few times just to throw off their pattern of attack. The Ice King gave up trying to contest with them. He would have to accept his losses.

He had to rely on providence that he would not be in the path of an unexpected attack. The Croyel on his back was concentrating on his yellow shields high up in the sky and what he had to do next. He could not afford to hold up shields tuned to dragon fire when there was none to contend with.

He would barely catch the ghost of their dragons’ bodies as they flashed by. The bare sketch of their green or white scales visible from the fires below and the backlight from the flames blazing out their open maws. Then the fire was gone and they disappeared. The dragons flying by at nearly eighty or ninety miles he thought. Steep dives adding momentum on their passes. Such speed truly impossible to accurately gauge. The speed was dizzying. The flame was so deadly though, that the briefest touch of the magical flame still caused everything it touched to ignite and burn fiercely.

It unnerved the Ice King that it was merely luck that kept him from getting burned down to slag and death. He had to let his true son keep the barriers erect in the sky to achieve the critical mass he needed to get to the leaders of Westeros and cut them down. He would then immediately raise them from the dead. He could then afford to pause his assault to cast the spells of rising. He had the might to both fight and raise from the dead his foes. He just had to get in among his enemy to achieve this.

The sight of their bodies rising up in his service should break the will of his enemies. He could then dispatch his foes. He would work to raise the dead his undead had made and keep up the assault. His forces were making inroads in four places now. The center was holding true because that was where the most magical might was. Only one of those inroads had made a deep incursion into the forces of the Bitch Queen.

The other bitch, the Lord of Revelstone was decimating his one true rupture of the Queen’s forces. She was harried. Even she had limits it appeared. Her Lord’s Fire as the Croyel called it was coming much less often now. She had not spoken the heinous words that enhanced her power in a while now. They must tax her in the saying of them.

The bastard Giants from the Southern Hemisphere were near unstoppable it seemed. Their sheer size, immense blade and granite armor too much to deal with. Their swords swirled around their bodies so fast that were invisible even to his sight. They stood shoulder to shoulder and were like an unmovable mountain. They were held in place though with his swarming undead. His undead and Icy spawn could not come at them from an unprotected side with the damnable Haruchai guarding their flanks with swords stolen from his murdered Ice Wright adopted sons.

He was both enraged and perplexed by how these small brown skinned people did even feel the cold that made up his essence and the essence of those he created in his image. It should have been impossible. All the humans of Westeros were unable to withstand the cold that was his very nature and essence. The Haruchai almost seemed to revel in his cold. It was an affront!

he had killed the leaders of Westeros he would confront and kill the weakened Lord of Revelstone. With his true son on his back he would be able to take down the Giants. They too had to be tiring.

He looked back at the center of the lines. The Waynhim were holding but talking losses as sell. He would kill them too.

He knew where the leaders of the forces of Westeros were. It was not hard to see. The three swords of his most hated foes were lighting up the night where they fought. Jon Snow was wreathed in flames now as he struck down all before him. The Queen’s rune sword he had fought before. It was as the sun with her slashes and parries. The strange sword of Eddard Stark left light blue trailers in the sky that lasted forever it seemed before they slowly faded.

When his sword slammed into the blades of his risen adopted sons the sword would burst in blue flashes that too lasted for a long time. His blade too was deadly to his scions. The fucking blade was cleaving the swords that he had forged clean in two. The sword was singing in a high tenor pitch. The Ice King with his magical ears heard joy and determined purpose in the tunes that Eddard Stark’s sword sung.

The Ice King continued to move forward. He still had a plethora of force to bring forward. He would come up over the berm in the midst of a sea of Walking Dead and adopted Wrights and Giants. The Ice King with his true son on his back would then be in the midst of his most formidable foes. He would end it then.

Barristan: Sheer chaos and pandemonium raged all around Barristan. From everywhere he saw foes and had to react and attack or be killed. His sword was a constant avatar of his soul and will. He was staying close to the Waynhim wedge to cover his flank. He had to only focus on one side for defense. He and his two compatriots who had been with Daenerys since the beginning had learned that from their battle on the Dothraki Sea and fighting alongside the Ur-viles that had come to their aid at that time.

He sliced the head off of an undead and gutted another. His Valyrian blade, Hammer of Doom, was living up to its name as he slayed his Queen’s enemies right and left. The magic in the Valyrian blade killing both the Walking Dead and the Icy spawn of the Ice King. Again and again he clashed blades with the Icy spawn. The Valyrian steel easily resisting the cold of their enemy’s blades. The blades sending off hot and ice cold sparks with the collision of blades forged with opposite properties.

He would push and maneuver his undead foes into the wedge of the Waynhim. The small denizens of the Land slicing and stabbing the undead. The chopping slices cleaved them to pieces. The stabs sent acid and fire surging into the bodies sending acid or fire out their orifices as they burned from the inside out.

Barristan was both grateful and a tinge of guilt killing the Walking Dead who had no means of defense. He did not let that slow him down in chopping them down like a scythe cutting through a field of wheat. They needed to be released from this hellish second life they had been forced to endure.

The Ice Wrights and Giants were another matter. He had to fight them to kill them. The Ice Wrights were very fast. To an average swordsman he knew they would seem probably supernatural fast. Barristan was himself superhuman fast to a lesser swordsman. They came to him to caste him down but they that were the ones cut down. Finally, Barristan had foes who truly deserved the death he dispensed.

He fought the Wrights easily blocking their attacks and piercing their defense. Their only true skill was speed and he was their equal. Syrio was his equal in speed if not a little faster. His whole fighting style was predicated on speed and deflection. Strong Belwas was despite his immense girth blessed with speed that was near the equal of Barristan himself. All three men had left dead Icy spawn in their wake. The steaming pools of their dissipation the only proof of their death a few minutes after their slaying.

Barristan and his longtime friends had the speed to deal with the Ice Wrights. The Ice Giants were to slow to be of concern. The only danger they gave was if they attacked while you were engaged. One had to be able to either dodge or be braced to deflect that massive sword strokes with skill and precise timing. Fortunately, the Ice Giants did not fight with guile or calculation. They were fighters of brute strength only. This limited their ability to fight men and women of true skill.

Barristan was helped as were all the swordsmen by the blizzard of arrows streaking through the air in all directions now. Many of the arrows streaking off into the darkness missing intended targets. But for all the forlorn missiles that missed a target others found their mark.

This feathered the Icy spawn or had them constantly ducking and dancing about to save themselves. This allowed Barristan to move in and attack with better advantage.

The three men helping to reduce the numbers of foes attacking the Waynhim wedge. This allowed the Demondim spawn to more effectively fight. That and the archers that his woman, Marleya Blackmyre, had organized. They were the best archers of both Westeros and Essos. They did not have to rely on massive arrow volleys to kill. Each archer in her company were skilled to shoot for a head or body shot with little worry of missing. In the confusion of battle many shots missed but enough found their mark. Their arrows keeping the Icy spawn on defense.

The Loremaster of the Waynhim fighting wedge would sometimes hurl his acid out in wavy lines or stab his stave forward and fire hot acid straight out the tip to blast the face or body of the Icy spawn he was contending with. The acid immediately eating away the body or bodies splashed.

The mercenary company behind the fighting wedge hung back a small distance. The archers firing off over the head of the diminutive Waynhim who fought in a crouch that had them fairly low to the ground. This allowed the Black Panthers to fire arrows in streams over the heads of the grey Waynhim. Their dragon glassed tipped arrows decimating the undead moving forward.

Still the undead came forward. Their numbers allowed them to take grievous losses and still come forward and attempt to scale the promontory. The archers of Marleya on the flanks of the fighting wedge of the Waynhim firing ahead and off to the flank on their side taking down undead all around. They also fired off at the Ice Wrights attempting to rush them. Their accurate fire keeping them back and feathering those who slowed in the least.

The Icy spawn had to release their shields to attack. This opened them to counterattack.

The assault by the Ice Wright and Giants using the undead as shields had been a most unpleasant shock. That and the yellow shields that had been erected high in the air by the Croyel most likely judging by the yellow of the shields. The Croyel’s magic seemed to invoke that color. Those shields blocked much of the enveloping fire of the archers and siege engines.

This all allowed the Ice Wrights and Giants to be able to reach the lines of Westeros in much greater numbers.

This had allowed the Waynhim wedge to be attacked in mass while the archers were heavily engaged as well. The Ice Giants hacking down savagely attacking the Waynhim one to two rows back in the wedge. They had succeeding in felling the Loremaster but the next Waynhim in line took his place immediately snatching up the fallen Loremaster’s Stave. The Ice Giants took heavy causalities as well. Their bodies splashed and sliced by the Waynhim.

The new Loremaster burned down Ice Giants with acid splashes and his brethren stabbed the behemoths when they came in range. The Giants slow and clumsy compared to the speed of the Wrights. When in range the Waynhim if not defending themselves was easily able to pierce their tormentor’s bodies. The iron staves injecting acid it seemed eating the Ice Giants from the inside out. Acid soon pouring from all its orifices. The penetration of a bone stave into an Icy spawn immediately set the Ice Giant or Wrights body to steaming and literally bubbling as if being broiled alive. Water gushing out mouths, ears and eyes.
The screams of both deaths loud and hideous. Those screams ignored by all. They had ceased to truly be alive upon their conversion by the Ice Kings.

The Ice Wrights had flowed into the Waynhim wedge but also attacked the archers with pure savagery. The Ice Wrights rushing forward once they had thrown their human shields down. Some only able to advance a few steps before their bodies stumbled with dragon glass tipped jutting out their bodies. Other made it through the maelstrom to come upon the Waynhim and archers.

The Ice Wrights coming at the archers with fierce abandon. They knew they had to get in on the archers to avoid being feathered. The archers yelling as they fell back firing off wildly at the wildly dodging and juking Ice Wrights.

Barristan, Syrio and Belwas threw themselves at the Ice Wrights keeping the Waynhim wedge to their flank. Their swords stabbing the backs and sides of the distracted Ice Wrights attacking the archers. The ones that turned to fight them relieved the pressure on the archers.

Barristan ducked underneath a sword swipe and backed up. The Ice Wright followed intent on killing Barristan. It lost track of his body in relationship to his environment. The Ice Wright now near the Waynhim wedge. A Waynhim lunged out and speared the Ice Wright with his bone stave. The Ice Wright shrieked his body undulating as it started to boil. Blue water gushed out its mouth and then his head exploded and his body split in two his steaming guts falling to the ground.

With a glance he saw Syrio squire an Ice Wright through the eye but in that instant his rapier was locked away from him with it embedded in the Icy spawn’s skull. He was not able to use rapier for defense as two Ice Wrights came at him. Strong Belwas jumped in like a gazelle and cut one of the Wright’s head in two. Five arrows punctured the body of the other Ice Wright instantly killing it.

Finally, the assault had been beaten back.

Barristan cursed. He counted probably seventy-five dead Waynhim and maybe forty-five archers. The losses galled him. He saw mounds of undead heaped all around. The bodies of decaying Ice Wrights and Giants heavily littered the battlefield. He was tired but still ready to fight with abandon. He would need it. Another wave of Ice Giants and Wrights bearing undead shields were moving forward in the green eerie light.

That was when Barristan noticed it. The green orbs were moving forward.

“Prepare to move forward!” he bellowed. The green orbs continued to move forward slowly.

The new Loremaster now threw his iron stave back and forth gushing out massive quantities of a viscous liquid that soaked the bodies of all the dead before the Waynhim wedge. The undead and Waynhim alike. Then as he sent another mighty jet of acid arching forward the Waynhim with their bone staves sent out white hot flames onto the now soaked dead.

An instant conflagration ignited that was scalding hot to Barristan who was twenty yards from the edge of the berm. The Waynhim did not seem affected. A minute later the fire was burned out and cool air came rushing forward. A huge clear area had been carved out of the battlefield. Everything before the fighting wedge had been consumed to ash.

The Waynhim went down to all fours and rushed down the berm in a wild mass. Barristan again roared for all to follow. He, Syrio and Strong Belwas let the wedge surge past as they went to the edge of the berm. All the undead were burned away and the fallen Waynhim reduced to grey puddles. Their brothers quickly reforming their wedge at the base of the berm. The advancing Ice Giants and Wrights with their held undead shields were still forty yards away moving forward.
slowly.

The Waynhim had changed tactics. They evidently were tired of being passive. They now on all fours surged forward but making no sound. They seemed to almost float over the ground carrying their staves in their dominate hands as they ran on all fours silent as they grave.

Barristan was rushing down the embankment followed by Syrio and Strong Belwas. His woman Marleya Blackmyre following making sure her camp attendants with their wheelbarrows safely navigated down the angle of the berm and formed up her archers with bows notched and ready to fire off at a moment’s notice. The Black Panthers remained on the berm top. They held their arrows at the ready. The mercenaries waited to see what the Waynhim were about to do. They would provide cover fire from the advantage of height.

With his head cocked Barristan wondered what the Waynhim had in mind. They stopped effortless ten yards in front of the oncoming Ice Wright and Giants. They had their vision occluded by the bodies they were using as shield. The Waynhim were short already and crouched down they were barely two feet above the ground at the shoulders.

The Loremaster rose up in a tight crouch. Again the old knight was flat out amazed at how fast the hard charging Waynhim behind him not only stopped their forward momentum but did so in such a way to form up their wedge but in the same sever squat as their new Loremaster. The line of approaching Icy spawn of the Ice King was only ten feet in front of them oblivious in their steady march forward. They just assumed their enemy was still on the top of the berm. The Waynhim had advanced forward in only fifteen seconds.

The blizzard of arrows coming at them hid this new tactic of the Demondim spawn. Archers on the berm and scorpion bolts keeping the advancing Ice Wrights and Giants occupied.

The Loremaster cocked his new stave back on his shoulder his muscles bunching.

“The sneaky bastard” Barristan spoke softly marveling at the Waynhim craftiness. The Waynhim Loremaster swung his stave in a full half circle arch in front of his body the tip sending out a long steady stream of their black acid with the whole arc of the swing of the stave. The tip of his stave arching just in front of the legs of the advancing tide of Icy spawn

The Acid hit the Ice Giants on their lower shines and the Ice Wrights in their knees. The lower legs not covered since the Icy spawn were thinking the assault would come down on them from the berm not realizing the Waynhim had taken the fight to them.

The archers and their attendants were just now forming up after coming down the berm in the clear area created by the Waynhim. Barristan, Syrio and Belwas keeping near the archers to protect them.

The acid of the Loremaster splashed over their legs of the Icy spawn with devastating effect. Legs instantly cut in two like a medical surgeon had cut them off with an oversized scalpel. The spawn of the Ice King simply crashed to the ground. The Waynhim had splashed his acid over all of their legs of the leading wave making the assault. The Wrights and Giants wailing in agony as their bodies toppled over. Their icy blue blood gushing out the stumps of their ruined legs. The Ice Giants were wailing rolling right and left.

Some of the Ice Wrights tried to right themselves. For all the good it did them. The Waynhim had risen up to their normal stance and now surged forward. The leading edge of the wedge angled towards the foes of Westeros. The Waynhim rushed past the crippled Icy spawn. The Waynhim on the leading edge of the wedge had lowered their staves to the ground. Now as the moved past the crippled Wrights and Giants the Waynhim staves ripped up in lightning slashes. Their staves simply cut the Wrights and Giants to ribbons their bodies falling apart as they were filleted alive. Screams cut short.

The Waynhim surged forward. Their Loremaster now throwing long ribbons of their Demondim acid all around. The acid decimating all that it touched. The Ice Wrights now veered away. The Ice Giants were not so wise. They lumbered forward with their large undead shields of large herbivores and carnivores. The acid started to immediately eat away at the shields. The wedge slammed into the next wave of Ice Giants and the Ice Wrights trying to flank them.

Barristan had an insight. The larger number of Waynhim present in the fighting wedge allowed its Loremaster to spew more acid out his stave and project it further than what the Ur-viles had been able to project on the grasses of the Dothraki Sea. Also, their combined strength seemed to strengthen their Loremaster enabling him to continue to fling acid from his iron stave. Even with their heavy losses the wedge was still much larger than the two individual Ur-vile wedges that had fought on the Dothraki Grass sea.

Barristan had run forward and was slicing down undead shambling around right and left. So was Strong Belwas while Syrio squired his foes with his rapier point. The archers were rushing forward behind the fighting wedge. The archers now had targets from all angles to fire off at. The attendants running fast with big eyes to keep the wheelbarrows near the fighting wedge. Other attendants running right and left delivering fresh quivers to the archers to allow them to keep firing at a fast almost reckless rate.

Barristan saw Arya running around firing off her bow whenever she found a target. There was plenty to choose from. The small Stark girl would fire off her current arrow and then immediately pull another from her quiver and fire off at her next target. She ran out of arrows and cursed. She started pelting to an attendant to her left to get another quiver.

Her Haurchai guard, Jerteel, was spinning around slicing the undead down all around her. She was like a scythe cutting through whole fields of wheat. The woman slicing and chopping on both sides of her body with shocking speed and skill. Her blade killing any undead that came near.

The mercenaries on the berm were firing off themselves at a wild rate. Their arrows whistling over the forces of the archers and Waynhim. Their arrows adding their carnage to the undead and making the Icy spawn of the Ice King dodge, fall back or be feathered.

The Demondim wedge now ceased surging forward and started to rotate to the left letting the Loremaster get at more of the Ice Wrights. The Ice Wrights rushed forward. Their blades slammed into the staves of the Waynhim. Both weapons moving at lightning speed. Most strikes blocked but not all. An Ice Wright or Waynhim would fall down dead from a fatal slash of chopping heads off or in two or squired through upper thoracic cavity.

Marleya Blackmyre companies of arches were firing their bows off in all directions. There were undead milling around everywhere that now gravitated to the movement they sensed. Barristan came in on them from the side chopping and slicing letting his Valyrian blade poison the undead. Even if the blow was not a clean kill the black lines of poisoning started to spread gradually slowing the undead and making them even more clumsy and unable to grasp their foes to rend apart.

More Ice Giants were coming forward but some were spitted on the massive bolts that the scorpions were firing off at four rounds a minute. The green globes illuminating the battlefield around the Waynhim. The Ice Giants great height made them a natural target. Their height made them standout on the battlefield. The human eye of the scorpion operators naturally gravitating to them and firing off at the tall easily seen targets.
Suddenly the night time sky erupted in a bright medium blue that made the scudding clouds glow in reflection of the mighty eruption of magical might. For a brief moment the world turned to blue and then a heartbeat later the real world appeared again from blue mist. The world stilled tinged blue but all visible again. The sounds of the words spoken caused the ground to shake and the air to vibrate.

“Melenkurion abatha, Duroc minas mil. Harad khabaal.” Echoed and reverberated across the plains before the fallen Wall. The shouted words seemed to ride on the mighty echoes and booms of the mighty release of the Lord of Revelstone’s Lord’s fire. The sound of echoes deafening.

Barristan smiled grimly as he chopped down more of the undead. He knew that a large swath of the Ice King’s forces had just been obliterated. The bright blue light slowly faded away as did the echoes of might. The Lord of Revelstone was using her power less now and spoke the ancient words rarely. She must have had great need to utter all seven words.

The Waynhim wedge had started to move to the left while its apex faced out the base of the wedge protecting the archers. The Archers firing off arrows as fast as they could draw back and fire. Their arrows striking down undead and the Icy spawn of the Ice King. The Ice Wrights were juking fast and furious to avoid being hit. They made many arrows miss but arrows were still finding their targets. The arrow barrages kept the Ice Wrights at bay and not able to attack as they sought to live. The air filled with arrows. Many arrows came whistling in from the berm. The fighting wedge just within effective range of archers firing from the frontlines just behind the berm.

The mercenary company, Black Panthers, firing off in a steady rhythm of constant pull and fire. The archers arrows whistling in in a constant stream to help reduce the heavy crush of undead and keeping the Ice Wrights on the defense as they attempted to close in on the Waynhim and the archers on its flanks. Their soul goal to protect the Waynhim fighting wedge and the humans fighting along side them.

Barristan saw Arya running right and left behind the fighting wedge. Eddard Stark’s daughter anxiously peering about looking for Icy spawn to shoot at. When none were readily available the teenager shot her arrow at the undead. Her arrows unerringly penetrating an eye for an instant kill. The human or animal falling straight down like a puppet with its strings cut.

Another wave of undead was shambling forward at them attracted to all the movement of combat. The Ice Wrights had tried to advance on the archers but the storm of arrows were keeping them back as they juked and used the flat sides of the blades of their swords to flick arrows from the sky. The motions of defense kept them from attacking.

The Barristan and Strong Belwas charged into a mass of the undead side by side. The two mighty warriors sliced and chopped. Many sword swipes and thrusts instant kills. Those that were not killed instantly had been left behind with Valyrian steel cuts to poison their bodies. Despite all the mayhem being perpetrated on the army of the Ice King their numbers were massing into a formula they could not withstand.

“Holy shit!” Barristan screamed. A bloom of dragon’s fire exploded in front of his face. The tongue of flame flashing from right to left as the dragon sped by. He had no idea which one it was. The heat was scorching but was not harmful at this distance. The margin for error had been razor thin. He wanted to both curse and hug the dragon for being willing to cut the margin so close. The dragon had just saved their lives.

The Walking Dead were now spinning and pivoting around as they burned down to slag at a furious fast clip. The dragon had to be doing at least ninety miles per hour as it passed by. The wake it left behind had Barristan’s body swaying hard in the wind devils. He looked around but it was already gone. The dragon having already slipped back into darkness that protected it.
He staggered back with Strong Belwas. He had been closer. Both men shocked from seeing flames instantaneously bloom only fifteen feet in front of them. The flame splashing away from the two men to incinerate their common foe.

“Good thing I am bald” the bald eunuch informed Barristan blandly.

From the other direction a mighty bloom of dragon’s fire erupted that was two hundred yards further away. The breath exploding all below it into steaming burning walking bonfires. The undead made no noises of protest as they burned away. Not so the Ice Wrights and Giants. Their screams echoed in the night as their bodies boiled and often exploded in blue geysers.

Barristan saw just a hint of green before the dragon had flashed by. He caught just the hint of Rhaegal rising up as his wings unfurled from his body beating hard gaining altitude. It had been Viserion that nearly roasted his ass Barristan groused. Good boy, good boy he amended his thoughts.

Then a mighty roar that was deep and resonate split the night in two. He turned to look at the berm. That part of the berm line was near the paddock area. A giant black shape had risen up like mists from the swamps near his home as a child. Drogon had roused himself. He was breathing fire all around him burning all down that his flame reached. Then he was running around stomping and jumping up to land down hard pulverizing all below him. His neck rose up and then snapped down. His head rose up again with an Ice Giant in his mighty mouth. His teeth ripped and tore the Ice Giant apart his body falling out both sides of Drogon’s mouth.

The dragon spitting out what remained of the Ice Giant and again bellowing a mighty gout of magical dragon fire burning another swath of the army of the Ice King. The dragon then rose back beating his wings when a swarm of Ice Wrights came at him. Arrows and scorpion bolts landing into them. Drogon alight twenty yards back and again breathed out a mighty gout of flame. Another swath of Walking Dead alight like fireflies. Except this flame consumed the undead. First stumbling to their knees and then toppling over to the ground to finish burning away.

The Waynhim wedge was pivoting again and now slowly moving back to the berm to shield their rear and protect the archers and began a slow march one hundred yards from the berm killing all they could reach with their staves. The Loremaster throwing out long ribbons of acid that dissolved Icy spawn and Walking Dead alike.

Barristan, Syrio and Strong Belwas moved to the rear themselves to rest for a few minutes. The archers grabbing fresh quivers. The fire of the dragons had given them a respite. For the moment.

Daenerys: The fight was wild and chaotic. Daenerys killed all that came before her. She was currently fighting an Ice Giant that had accosted her. The behemoth was faster than his ilk generally were but he was still slow. She had been dodging his blows while contending with an Ice Wright that had come at her from her side.

Bannor and Seregrom were off to her left along with her three Bloodriders. They had formed a wall against a surge of the Walking Dead. Their swords and Arakhs were dispatching foes right and left. The Haruchai with their picked up Ice Wright blades chopped and hacked the Walking Dead to pieces. The undead were unbound by the magic in the Ice Wright’s blades as well.

Her three Bloodriders did not try to deliver killing shots since their blades were not magical in nature. They chopped off hands and cut across legs to sever muscle and tendons. Their goal to slow and if possible topple over the Walking Dead. The undead would still move forward with their compulsion to attack but they would be slowed and often left crawling on the ground.
The five men working to shield the Queen from a rush of Walking Dead. They all knew of her skill and that she would be able to handle the Ice Wrights and Ice Giants she was facing. They kept the forces of the Ice King back to give Daenerys the room she needed to dispatch her foes.

Flights of arrows were thick in the air cutting down the forces of the Ice King with Dragon Glass. Obsidian tipped javelins and bolts fired from the raised scorpion platforms were siring the forces of the Ice King. The close proximity made the percentage of bolts hitting their targets much higher now. That and the fact that the operators of the scorpions had had plenty of practice now in aiming their weapons.

The arrows and siege engine bolts kept the Icy spawn distracted. The Wrights and Giants having to constantly jerk and dive to avoid being squired. This allowed Daenerys to come at them with advantage.

The Valyrian slashed and parried the blade of the Ice Wright using the body of the Ice Giant as a prop to help her dodge the Ice Wright’s attack. She would flit between the Ice Giant’s legs between his mighty down chops of his blade. The blade sinking deep into the ground and forcing the Ice Giant to have to pause and rip the blade back out of the Earth.

Daenerys had a wild thought. Their combat looked like some play for children with a small child running around and between the legs of their adult parents trying to catch them to admonish their errant child.

While the Ice Giant worked to pull his sword free again from the churned up ground Daenerys ducked back and forth behind its legs forcing the Ice Wright to work around the legs of the Ice Giant. Several times the Queen had had to chop down a Walking Dead that would stumble onto the tableau and want to cut into the dance macabre. Instead Daenerys cut its head off with a flick of her sword as she swept past the stumbling foe.

The air by now alive the afterimages left by her sword. This only added to the sight of making this queer drama seem like a play put on for squealing in delight children.

Twice the Ice Giant had almost cleaved the Ice Wright’s head in two with his sword by mistake. The Queen would have found it humorous if she was not fighting for her life.

Finally, the opening appeared. The Ice Wright had lunged at her as she pivoted around the Ice Giant’s left leg as again the elven foot high body struggled to remove his blade where he had jammed the blade deep into the Earth. The Ice Wright stumbled over something on the ground and he had to windmill his arms for a moment to keep from falling while still trying to pivot with the Queen around the Ice Giant’s leg.

Daenerys had been waiting for just such an opening and struck fast. Her sword slashed down in a savage arc with her sword raised above her right shoulder. Her blade arched down and sliced into the Ice Wright’s sword bearing arm several inches above its wrist.

The Valyrian steel slashed easily through his icy appendage cutting it clean off. The hand spinning down to the ground with the sword still in it. Light blue blood gushed from the Ice Wright’s stump as black tendrils already were spreading up from the severed forearm. The Ice Wright put its hand over the wound trying to stop the gushes of icy blood. Daenerys cut it across its abdomen slicing it open. More blood roiling out the cut. The Ice Wright falling to its knees screaming in pain.

She dove forward ducking underneath the next mighty down chop of the Ice Giant. She dodged it for a few more swipes before her blade stabbed it clear through its right thigh. She jerked her blade back and stabbed it in the calf muscle as it staggered. The black tendrils forming and spreading. The Ice Giant was limping badly leaning in that direction. Its slowed motion attracted attention. Two scorpion bolts slammed into his chest flinging it to the ground. It wailed and thrashed but quickly got weaker.

Daenerys looked out at her frontline. It had been sagging back for the last hour. The weight of the dead and Icy spawn of the Ice King had simply become too great to hold the berm. Many areas had simply been forced back or face being overwhelmed. That made the areas that were holding have to fall back to keep them from being flanked and attacked in enfiladed. She could not risk fighting the enemy in front of her and then be hit from both flanks.

She had to fall back. The forces of the Land seemed to understand that concept as well. Lord Lustra with her staff was still completely devastating. Her Lord’s Fire was still blasting out the end of her staff in long bright medium blue bolts of pure destruction. It was just much less frequent now. The bolts lashing out fifty yards and up to twenty yards wide. Where those bolts of magical might lashed out there was nothing left but pulverized Walking Dead and the shards of Ice Wrights and Giants.

She would shout her magical words which greatly magnified her magical fire. Still, as mighty as the Lord of Revelstone may be even she was tiring. Her bolts of Lord’s Fire was less now. At the start of the battle Lord Lustra was constantly using her staff to send out her magical bolts of destruction from her staff.

She seemed to be much more judicious in the use of her staff now. She would only set off her staff when it was absolutely needed. When the forces of the Ice King started to overwhelm the forces Lustra was defending only then she would use her staff. But with the lessening of her staff’s use the forces of the Ice King were pushing her back as well. She could not top the force of undead making a breech in the lines before the retreating Lord.

The Giants and Haruchai did not seem to be tiring. Their endurance was limitless it seemed. The Giants of the Search with their great height and weight were devastating with their seven to eight feet long glaives. They were whirling around their blades slicing bodies apart or disemboweling or chopping arms and legs off by the score. Their granite armor protected them from the random blade that was able to strike them.

The Haruchai on their Ranyhyn stayed just out of the reach of the undead. The mighty horses had an innate skill in just keeping out of reach of the grasping, clutching hands. The stoic Haruchai swirled around the Ice Wrights and Giants. Their stolen ice blades as devastating to their former masters as to the living. The Haruchai easily blocked all strikes at them.

Their return strikes forcing the Icy spawn to defend themselves against their own blades. This did not allow them to fully attack. Any that tried to press an attack on the Haruchai were killed by the small brown skinned warriors.

With the archers of Westeros, the army of the Queen were able to keep the forces of the land from being overwhelmed. Their constant flights of arrows killing both the undead and the Icy spawn. Huge swarms constantly in the air flying toward the army of the Ice King

The forces of Westeros that guarded their flanks tired though. They simply were not able to continue guarding the flanks of the Giants, Haruchai and Ranyhyn. The Giants and Haruchai also fell back as they needed to keep in line with the forces surrounding them. The forces of the Land left the ground littered thick with the dead soldiers of the Ice King.

An enterprising group of sappers from Dorne, Daenerys thought looking at their uniform spilled a large barrel of oil on the front edge of the field of dead on the ground in front of them. The oil soaking the front most pile of fallen undead. Torches were thrown on the dead soaked in oil. The dead lit immediately and burned up high the flames bright red, yellow and white with the intense heat of the Walking Dead burning off the magic that had infused their flesh.

The Walking Dead in front of the fire paused in their march forward. They somehow seemed to sense the danger. Probably the light and heat. Daenerys saw humor in the fact that the Walking Dead behind them seeking to come forward pushed their brethren forward into the flames to be lit on fire and consumed.

The dead burned fast so it would last maybe ten minutes. The undead now dead again burned with magical speed till there was only ashes and viscera slag making an ugly concoction on the ground. The pause in advance was valuable though. It allowed the forces to fall back in an orderly fashion.

Seeing this, sappers furiously worked to set the fallen dead on fire. Archers armed with flaming arrows stopped shooting at the walking undead and now took aim at individual undead who had been slain out of their unnatural second life. Setting individual bodies on fire. The smaller fires did not seem to alert the Walking Dead and they would blunder into the fires setting themselves in fire.

Still, the forces of the Queen were being manhandled into falling back. They were taking hard losses. The men and knights were falling back. They could not hold the forces of the Ice King back so the archers, javelin throwers and scorpion bolt operators had more time to kill the Icy spawn and the walking dead.

Around the Queen was sheer pandemonium. The Ice Wrights and Giants seemed to sense that this group of their master’s enemies were important and were attacking in mass with great verve and viciousness.

It pissed the Queen off that she did not have Valyrian weapons for all. If she had been able to arm all with the metal of her forbearers the battle would have been over hours ago. They could have gone on the attack.

Because normal metal blades did not outright kill the Walking Dead and soon shattered with repeated strikes on the bodies of the Ice Wrights and Giants the forces of Westeros could not take the fight to the enemy but had to play defense and work to give the archers and siege operators the opportunity to take them out.

If they could have attacked with Valyrian weapons and Dragon Glass through the air the battle would have been a route against the enemy.

Daenerys shuddered at the thought of the Crows and the Wildlings fighting the Others as they called the forces of the Ice King without Dragon Glass or Valyrian steel. It had not been a fair fight. They never had a chance. They simply could not kill their enemy. The Walking Dead could be taken out with fire but that was problematic. The Wrights and Giants of the Ice King had been totally immune to the weapons of their original foes.

In a way the Queen supposed that this was now working to their advantage. The past sacrifice of the Crows and Wildlings fighting the Others as they called the forces of the Ice King without Dragon Glass or Valyrian steel. It had not been a fair fight. They never had a chance. They simply could not kill their enemy. The Walking Dead could be taken out with fire but that was problematic. The Wrights and Giants of the Ice King had been totally immune to the weapons of their original foes.

In a way the Queen supposed that this was now working to their advantage. The past sacrifice of the Crows and Wildlings fighting the Others as they called the forces of the Ice King without Dragon Glass or Valyrian steel. It had not been a fair fight. They never had a chance. They simply could not kill their enemy. The Walking Dead could be taken out with fire but that was problematic. The Wrights and Giants of the Ice King had been totally immune to the weapons of their original foes.

Only the strike force the Ice King had sent in had ice armor. Fortunately, that attacked had been thwarted. Now, with the true assault the Ice King had felt comfortable to attack as he had always attacked. With no armor because they had no need for armor. He must have been convinced that the forces of Westeros did not have much if any Dragon Glass and he probably knew that Valyrian weapons were a rare commodity in Westeros.

The sheer numbers of the Ice King were overwhelming the forces of Westeros and forcing their controlled falling back. The yellow bands in the sky from the Croyel had blocked much of their fire into the milling forces of the Ice King and allowed their forces to attack in much higher numbers. The two groups of Ice Wrights that had devised their own means of protection helped as well in getting the forces of the Ice King to the berm. Then the Ice Wrights and Giants had used the tactic of using the bodies of the Walking Dead held up before them to block the arrows and javelins shot and hurled their way.

All of these new tactics had had their effect. The forces of Westeros faced much greater numbers of the attacking undead and Icy spawn than they had in the first assaults.

The scorpion bolts were able to some degree to either shoot through the undead body and into bodies of the Ice spawn or sometimes ripping the undead body from their grasp. This took their shield away and opened them up to arrow and javelin fire.

It was fortunate that for the Ice Wrights and Giants to attack they had to throw down their undead shields to pull their weapons out to attack the forces of Westeros. This then opened them up deadly fire with obsidian tipped weapons.

The forces of the Queen were falling back but killing their foes in mass. The forces of Westeros were tiring though. Humans had mortal limits that the dead did not feel. The Ice spawn were magical in origin and had limits that far exceeded those of living man. To counteract this the Queen and Eddard had trained for the rotation of their forces. Those exhausted by combat would fall back and fresh troops surged forward. That was not completely possible for the Valyrian armed Lords and knights. They had to keep fighting to hold the enemy at bay before them. They would fall back to rest for five minutes before again moving forward to fight.

Daenerys had trained hard for great endurance. She was told she was filled with Earthpower. She was sure now that this power was keeping her energized to keep on fighting without truly tiring. She would feel weary then suddenly be filled with energy again. She saw her lover Arya Stark running all over the battlefield behind the Waynhim fighting wedge constantly firing her bow. Her arm never tiring. She too was filled with this Earthpower. The Earth having chosen them to be its defender in this hour of need.

She noticed that two others were fighting on without showing any signs of tiring, Jon’s body was now completely wreathed in flames from head to toe. The flames had spread out form his sword to now writhe up and down his body. The flames seeming to dance from his pores. The flames of his sword were now flaring up to five or six feet. The flames on his body was only a foot or two. His body rippled with the heat pouring off his body.

His blade was leaving flames licking in the sky as it ripped right and left. His blade was absolutely shattering the blades of the Ice Wrights and Giants now. Jon had indeed become Azor Ahai reborn now Daenerys thought. She was sure that the Ice spawn had come to that conclusion. They seemed to have learned a healthy respect for Lightbringer. They would avoid him. The Icy spawn letting the Walking Dead assault Jon. While engaged with them they would try to rush him from the side or rear.

Those attacks were thwarted by both his speed and the devastating effect of his blade on their blades and on their bodies. His wives were supporting their husband. Their hands shooting off shadow daggers when they absolutely needed to protect their husband from harm. They too were tired. They kept Jon’s flank and back protected. They had another weapon. A weapon that did not tire and could take sword strikes and still live and fight on. The ShadowBender witches shadow construct aided by the Direwolves racing to bite at the Icy Spawn distracting them before moving back.

Their shadow demon was still alive and fighting like a crazed Jinn infested man. It had started out the second assault at twenty-five feet tall. It had slowly dissipated away as it struck out the enemies of the ShadowBenders and was struck back in return. It had taken many sword stabs and slashes of the Icy spawn. The strikes of the enemy’s blades slowly taking away the essence of the shadow monster. Daenerys had seen shadows slowly ripped and pulled from its body.

The creation of the ShadowBender witches had slowly shrunk over the length of the battle since it had joined in. It had towered over the battlefield at twenty-eight feet when it was born. Now it was down to a little more than fifteen feet. Its magic too was superior to the magic of the Icy spawn and the Walking Dead. That was still potent. The Shadow weapons of the ShadowBender witches killed the Queen’s enemies with absolute certainty. When their shadow daggers or the claws of the shadow monster struck the forces of the Ice King they died. The magic of the Ice King cut as if by obsidian or Valyrian steel.

The witches had the monster beside them now and sent it out to protect Jon’s back when needed as he assaulted the forces of the Ice King with wild abandon.

The other person that Daenerys saw who did not tire was Eddard Stark. His sword Evening Star was now glowing light like the full moon in a robin blue glow that created a penumbra around Eddard as he fought. He looked like the star Polaris come down to Earth with its blue tint. The battleground around him was filled with the arcs and penumbras left by his attacking sword. Bright flare pulses left in the air when his sword collided with a blade of any Ice spawn.

The space around Eddard looked like a magical faery playground now. The whole area glowed a bright light blue with all the magical markings left in the air by Evening Star. At times its tenor hum and melodic notes heard over the crazed confused battlefield.

He was absolutely not tiring in the least. Eddard ran around chopping down all before him. The blades of his compatriots were deadly with their effect against their foes but they were not as absolute as Eddard’s blade. They would have to pull their blades out of bodies they had been buried in. Many blows did not cleave their foes bodies in two.

Not so with Evening Star. When Eddard hacked the bodies of his foes they were cut as if they were butter and his blade was red hot even though the blade glowed blue and not hot red. If it did not cut clean through he was able to easily pull the blade back out of their bodies without difficulty. The blade was cutting with a magical edge as well as with forged steel.

She saw this firsthand when he dueled an Ice Wright for ten quick back and forth slashes. Then his blade cut in half the blade of the Ice Wright in a clean chop. Then in a backhanded chop Eddard’s blade sliced the head of his foe in two just below its eyes. The top half of his head jacked off. The Ice Wright’s brains unraveling and spilling all over the muddy slosh of the ground.

This had allowed an undead grizzly bear to nearly come up on Eddard. He had seen it though. Daenerys wondered if his sword was also warning him of all approaching foes. He easily pivoted around and slashed down with his blade in a diagonal cut from high to low going to his left. The robin blue glowing blade leaving a bright blue trail in the air. The blade cut into the massive body at the top of its left shoulder of the massive beast. The blade easily slicing through the body and exiting underneath its massive head.
The cut of Evening Star had cut the tendons on that foreleg. The bear jolted down onto that leg’s elbow not able to support its weight now without tendons to work the joint. Eddard stepped back and slashed down with his sword made from a fallen star it was said. The blade hit the bear and its massive skull on the top of its head. The blade easily sliced through the thick skull, muscle and thick fur. The blade cutting the beast’s head in two. The jaws falling apart.

The magic of the blade killing the bear. The strength that Eddard was displaying was completely supernatural now. The blade somehow fueling Eddard’s strength. He whirled around in a tight arch his sword glowing. Two heads of undead Crows went spinning in the air.

They fought on. She heard Renly scream. Loras had been cut from his shoulder to his elbow. He dropped his sword and stumbled back. Renly and Stannis surged forward. Renly picked up Loras and pressed him to his body and fell back to get treatment for Loras. Stannis fought the Ice Wright that had injured Loras. Their blades slamming into each other high and then low before Stannis rammed his blade through the stomach of the Ice Wright.

With his height and weight he ripped his Valyrian Sword up with all his strength. The blade whipped up and slammed into the sternum of the Ice Wright and cut through and ripped up through ribs and collar bone to rip free of the Ice Wright. Bones, blood and viscera splattered out. The Ice Wright fell down on its face dead.

The time to kill the Ice Wright had allowed an Ice Giant that seemed to just materialize from the darkness to come up on Stannis while he was still off balance.

Both Daenerys and Eddard yelled seeing the Ice Giant raise its blade to kill Stannis.

“Nooooooooo!” Eddard yelled. He had started to run forward with his sword held out before him. He would never reach Stannis in time Daenerys saw. Her anger seething seeing Stannis about to die. Only he did not die.

From Eddard’s blade a seeming lightning bolt of sky blue erupted from the tip of Evening Star. The bolt did not shoot out straight but was zig zagging like the lighting in the nighttime sky. The lightning bolt of magic arced up in semicircle to land into the heart of the Ice Giant. The lightning bolt of magic seemed to instantly bore into the Ice Giant. In an instant the behemoth exploded. It was not pulverized like the Lord’s Fire did to those it touched. The Ice Giant exploded from within. His arms and legs sent flying in four different directions. The eyes of the Ice Giant burned out by the lightning pouring out its eye sockets that then gushed blue blood.

Eddard staggered and fell to his knees. He rose unsteadily. Stannis had just started to turn towards the Giant when it exploded. He rushed back to safety pulling Eddard up and pushed them back to the protection of the fellow Valyrian weapon bearers. It was clear that the expenditure of such magical force had taxed her Warden of the North. Daenerys saw that Eddard was mighty but not immortal.

The Queen noticed something out of the corner of her eyes. It took a moment for her to process what it was as she hacked at more of the Walking Dead grasping for her. She had been pushed back to the first line of scorpions and siege engines. The platforms abandon. Their abandonment meant the amount of fire going out was reduced which in turn meant that more of the forces of the Ice King could now reach the berm and come over it to continue the assault.

Her forces were tiring. It could not be helped. Terror was fueling everyone’s body with adrenaline pumping in everyone’s veins. The crash would be mighty when their bodies had a chance to attempt to begin to recover.
The archers fortunately were still energized firing off rapidly. The sky thick with the arrows taking flight like angry wasps noisily winging towards the forces of the Ice King. She kept glancing at the berm they were being pushed back from. It was till in range of the arrows and definitely the scorpions.

Many of the undead were being feathered with Dragon Glass or fire arrows. The Ice Giants and Ice Wrights carrying their undead shields held up in their arms. These blocked the arrows flung their way. The archers had figured out to use fire arrows to light up the undead in the Icy spawn’s grip.

The Wrights and Giants had shown a general immunity to fire when passing through it. Dragon fire was another matter with its basis of magic. That fire burned all it touched. Fire arrows did not do damage to them when they struck the Ice Wrights and Giants. The arrows shattering soon after sinking a quarter of an inch into their bodies. The fire not having time to do any damage.

Daenerys could not help but observe the effect the burning bodies had on the Icy spawn as they gripped the undead bodies that burned bright with a ferocity stoked by the consumption of the magic that had animated their bodies. Now the Icy spawn felt the heat. It did not burn them severely because they threw them down when their bodies blazing up in a raging inferno became too great.

Unfortunately, they were usually able to hold on long enough to make it over the berm and down out of easy sight lines. Those that were not able to hang onto their undead shields were quickly filled with Dragon Glass arrows.

Now the Queen was able to piece together what she had seen unconsciously. The yellow barriers had winked out of the sky. She knew that was an ominous development. They were needed no more. She could think of another reason why that would be so.

Her forces fought on. They were decimating the forces of the Ice King but were taking heavy losses themselves now. The sheer numbers of the Ice King’s forces were bulling their ways into her forces and now causing heavy causalities.

She saw one benefit though with the yellow barriers disappearing. They were no longer there to intercept the projectiles flinging out towards the forces of the Ice King.

The Queen’s archers certainly noticed it. They fired off clouds of Dragon Glass arrows to hopefully thin out the ranks of the Walking Dead. The only problem was that they had been pushed back several hundred yards. Now the enemy forces were able to get much closer before the rain of death fell among them.

The sounds of catapults, trebuchets and scorpions firing off were like a staccato rhythm from a Bedouin sitar player. The only problem there was less of the engines firing off. The forward most deployed catapults, trebuchets and scorpions abandoned. Fortunately, there were more lines of the siege engines and they were firing off as fast as possible.

That was when she saw him. He wore a small crown of ice around his brow. His hair white like hers and with sky blue eyes.

The Ice King had arrived.

Jon: The world was all wavering and rippling to Jon now. His body totally engulfed in the flames that had been spawned by his sword and now taken up residence on his body. The flames seemed to be pouring out of his pores now. He did not feel the heat but he knew his body radiated great heat into the air surrounding him.

In a momentary lull in the fighting he had approached his wives to converse on the flow of the battle. They had both shied away from him. These two women used to pressing their faces close to the flames in their fireplace to see the will of R’hllor had backed away putting up their hands. The witches telling Jon that his body was like an inferno.

He had doubted that at first thinking that for some reason in the middle of battle they had decided to play a joke on him. The look of pain that came over their faces with his still continued advance had convinced him of the truth. His body was indeed as hot at the sun.

He had shouted at his wives from a safe distance. He told them he felt exalted and was in a high euphoria. His sword was cleaving the enemies of the Crows and Westeros itself like the scythe through ripen fields of wheat.

It was the Ice Wrights and Giants that fell back when they dueled. It was their blades that shattered when they struck together repeatedly. He knew deep down that in some ways that he was indeed Azor Ahai reborn but he still Jon Snow.

He would never stop being that man. A man who led the Crows of the Night’s Watch. A man married to two redheaded ShadowBender witches. A man who was the son of Eddard Stark. Nothing would ever change that paradigm. He would forever be a Stark.

He turned and rushed the next wave of assaulting forces of the Ice King. The Walking Dead were like chaff to him now. His blade slashed and cleaved their bodies in two. His sword glowing ever hotter. Now his blade instantly set the Walking Dead afire when his blade bit into their dead flesh.

The flames of the burning undead did not affect Jon in the slightest. He at this time had become immune to fire and heat. He had a forest fire of staggered Walking Dead stumbling around him or they had fallen to the ground truly dead once more. Their bodies their own funeral pyres.

He saw two Ice Wrights come up onto the battle plain and were trying to edge away from him to attack elsewhere. That he would not allow. He rushed forward.

“AAARRRRGGGHHHHHHH!” Jon roared both to exalt in his might but to also put the fear of the old gods in the Ice Wrights. The two icy beings turned to face him knowing they would have to fight him to live. Jon roared again seeing the raw naked fear in their faces.

He was the predator here and not they. Jon roared again knowing that he was avenging his fallen Crow brothers. He slammed into the first Ice Wright easily knocking his icy blade up and away. His shoulder knocked the wind out of the Ice Wright if that was possible. It screamed in pain at his heated body slamming into it. It was flipped back to land on its back. Jon turned and with a mighty circular slash of his sword shattered the ice sword of the second Ice Wright.

It stared agape at the shards of its icy blade that jutted out the ruin of the remaining blade and cross-guard. It did not see Jon’s next overhead slash of Lightbringer. The blade hit the Ice Wright on the top of his head. The mighty on fire blade cut through the Ice Wright’s head and down to its belly. Its eyes had went opaque with the shock of death. Jon ripped his blade out of the ruined carcass of the Ice Wright. Blood and gore sprayed with the rip of his blade out of the body of the Ice Wright.

The other Ice Wright had had time to roll to its feet but it had not had an opportunity to set its balance its feet to brace for Jon’s attack he was moving so fast now. He roared again his voice filled with flames. To any who looked they would think that flames were leaping forth from Jon’s eyes and mouth. The Ice Wright brought up its sword in defense. Jon hacked and slammed his blade down on the Ice Wright’s blade with wild but controlled abandon.

The Ice Wright’s blade screamed in protest with the mighty blows landing against it. The Ice Wright had had his body forced back. The Wright placing one hand on the ground to brace himself. The Wright had his head turned to look up at Jon with terror in his bright blue eyes. It did not matter to Jon. The thing had long ceased to be human. Any humanity taken from it when the then innocent male child had been taken and converted into this monstrosity by the Ice King.

Killing it was a mercy.

Lightbringer did not hesitate. Jon lifted the blade high and slashed down with all his gall and might. The Ice Wright’s blade shattered. The Ice Wright had lifted up its arm to protect itself from Jon’s fiery sword. It did the Wright no good. Jon lifted his sword up again without hesitation and slice it down. Lightbringer easily sliced through the Ice Wright’s arm in a flash. Blue blood gushing out in cold pulses. The Ice Wright had no time to scream its agony. The next instant Jon’s sword blade slammed into the neck of the Ice Wright.

It too was severed in two. The head of the Ice Wright thudded down to the ground. The eyes unseeing. Hot steam already pulsing out the neck stump and out the headless body.

Jon had no more time for it.

He moved on. His father had recovered from the sudden outburst of his sword Evening Star. His father was once more on the field of battle. Stannis had recovered and was back. Oberyn was in view. Jon admired his skill with his Valyrian tipped spear. He was like Syrio with his ability to stab the point of his weapon into the body of his foes while remaining amazingly untouched by their weapons or the grasping hands of the Walking Dead.

He watched his father with his blade that was glowing even brighter now after its lightning display. His father attacked the next wave of Walking Dead advancing. His sword was a bright flowing orb of death as Jon’s father effortlessly cut the undead asunder. The magic of his blade so powerful now that any cut instantly killed the dead.

Jon started at a large undead Wildling of the Thenns judging by his attire gripped his father by the scruff of his neck with one hand and snatched his father back into his body the other arm wrapping around Eddard trapping his arms so that his sword was immobile. Jon was moving forward when Stannis jumped to the rescue. His sword, Edge of Doom, was lifted high and chopped own on the left shoulder of the giant Thenn. The sword chopped the arm nearly clean off the body.

Jon’s father jerked forward to safety. He whirled around and his sword slammed into the hip of the thick tall undead man. His sword cutting into the undead man. The glowing blue blade easily cutting into the undead till the sword lodge in the man’s spine. Stannis stabbed the man through his back his sword jutting out the man’s chest above his heart. The two men ripped out their swords. The undead had had its magic that animated the undead man unbound. He crashed to the Earth already dead for his second permanent death.

The press of more forces of the Ice King reaching the camp of the Queen forced them back again. They had now reached the second line of siege engines. Archers were up on the abandon scorpion platforms firing down all around them. The undead did not have the awareness or the coordination to climb the steps. They had thrown up multiple spare quivers to give them ample ammunition to fire at the undead. The archers taking slow careful aim at the point blank range Walking Dead. Their arrows not missing at this close range.

The Ice Wrights and Giants were ignoring this threat. They were trying to spread out and raise havoc with the forces of the Queen. Their ice blades too much for the iron forged swords and shields. The men opposed them with interlocked shields and wild chops of their swords. They had to fall back when their shields and weapons fractured.

A group of twenty Ice Wrights had passed to the left of the knot of Valyrian armed men and women of Westeros. Jon wanted to go fight them but he was pressed by Ice Giants and undead swarming forward.

Jon heard the sound of mighty hooves slamming the Earth. A group of nearly one hundred knights came rushing forward out of the night time gloom and shadows caste up by the multiple fires. The Ice Wrights were pressed in themselves by archers firing at them. The Ice Wright using their blades to flick arrows out of the sky and their fast reflexes to dodge arrows caste their way.

Not all were dodged and several Ice Wrights fell down dead feathered by Dragon Glass tipped arrows.

The Knights slammed into the distracted Ice Wrights. The speed and weight of the heavy warhorses trampled down the Ice Wrights the hooves hammering the monstrosities into the mire and mud. The Ice Wrights could not fight physics. The armored heavy horse had too much energy to resist.

The Ice Wrights were not truly harmed even though nearly a ton of weight slammed iron shod hooves all over their bodies. They were disorientated for a minute their bodies rammed into the Earth and rolled hard. The knights wheeling their horses around to stomp on the fallen Ice Wrights. They then rode off not wanting the Ice Wrights to chop their mounts legs off.

The somewhat dazed Ice Wrights slowly got up in disorganized manner.

Daenerys and her three Bloodgaurd, Bannor and Seregrom, came rushing into the gap created by the knights and their hard ride over the Ice Wrights. The Queen’s sword was glowing a bright blue leaving arcs as she fought. Her sword easily repelling the Ice Wrights cold forged steel. The two Bloodgaurd with their stolen Ice Wright blades easily countered all the attacks and thrusts of the Ice Wrights. The Bloodguard would lock up their blades with the Ice Wrights and move forward.

The Haruchai free arms threw fists that delivered blows that staggered the Ice Wrights throwing their thin bodies back. The Haruchai following and moving into the lowered defense of the Ice Wrights. Their blades cutting off limbs, heads and nearly chopping bodies in two with their native strength.

The three Bloodriders were hanging back and attacking on the edge the Walking Dead that were milling around this drama being played out. The Knights had dismounted and were hacking wildly on the undead trying to cut and quarter the enemy. They had been taught they could not kill the undead with normal steel but a headless man with no arms was a lot easier to deal with.

Three of the knights had gotten ahold of torches and were running around setting the chopped up dead parts on fire to take them out of the fight. No one wanted a hand crawling up your leg to your throat to strangle you. The knights worked to push the Walking Dead towards the men with the torches. Those men jabbing out their torches to touch the undead. The mere touch of the flames instantly sending the undead up like funeral pyres to burn bright and hot till they were only slag on the ground.

Jon had to turn to fight an Ice Gaint that first tried to stomp Jon and then slashed down at him. Jon easily blocked his clumsy sword strokes. He then chopped off the Giant’s right leg below the knee. The beast slammed into the Earth screaming as blue blood gushed out the stump. The Ice Giant forgetting his blade rolling right and left crying in shocking pain. His cries ceased when Jon chopped his massive head near in two from temple to temple.
When he could look out he saw that the Queen and Haruchai had dispatched half of the Ice Wrights and the rest ran off in terror to find easier targets to fight.

The fight went on till Jon saw him walking forward across the battlefield. He was not overly tall but he walked with supreme confidence. Upon his brow he wore a small crown with spires made of ice. On his back was the vile loathsome denizen from the world of the visitors from the Land. The Croyel body was naked and wrinkly its yellow body ugly and hideous. Its carious teeth jammed into the throat of the Ice King. It was obviously drinking the cold blue blood of the Ice Wright King. Its red pupils looked at Jon with obvious hate and desire to kill him.

The Croyel knew from his adopted father who the Ice King hated the most. Azor Ahai reborn.

The Ice King locked eyes with Jon. Jon’s father and the Queen came up beside Jon. Stannis and Oberyn moved to their sides. Renly had returned. Those still living with their Valyrian weapons formed up with Jon.

Behind the Ice King from the gloom a solid mass of Ice Wrights and Giants slowly advanced. A huge press of undead were behind milling around waiting to pass through.

Jon could see that the Ice King had massed a strike force to accompany him. They were going to try and overwhelm and kill the leaders of Westeros. He was following the adage that they way to kill the body of a snake is to chop off its head.

Jon, the Queen and Jon’s father were that proverbial head.

The Ice King smiled. The Croyel was busy gnawing on his father’s neck drinking his icy blood. It too had a smirk on its mouth as it feed.

“I have you now Crow. Dragon Rider. Eddard Stark you fucking scion of my lineage. I have the force with me to finish this quick.”

Daenerys Targaryen stepped forward.

“I think not” she told him with a smirk on her face.

“I will kill you last whore. Women like you disgust me. You do not know your place. That is beneath a man.”

Jon watched the Queen of Westeros act like an ingénue. “Puh-leazzeeeee … I have a present for you Ice King … sort of like one monarch to another monarch kind of thing.”

Jon had to smile. He could see the Ice King eyes shifting and his forehead furrowing as he tried to deduce what the Queen could be getting out.

The Queen had planned for this. That the Ice King would want to face Jon face to face. That he would bring with him an overwhelming force of his Icy spawn to do his killing for him and guard the Ice King. She had held back a special force for this moment. A force held in reserve just behind them. They had been chaffing to be part of the battle but the Queen had been incessant on their staying hidden behind several tall shield walls.

“You lie bitch.” He looked around at the surrounding area. Your dragons have exhausted themselves. I have seen the shadow monster dwindle. The Lord of Revelstone is off over a mile away. She will not be able to fight her way here in time to save you. You are mine.”

Daenerys gave the Ice King a coquette poise and look.
“You wound me … let me demonstrate … DOWN!”

Jon and everyone flew to the ground. Behind them tall shield walls were thrown down. Jon smiled grimly seeing the shocked look on the Ice King’s face.

Behind the Queen and her compatriots was the archer company of Bedouins from the land of the Orange Shores that lay to the east of Volantis. The Bedouins lived in the dunes and wadis of that land. The archers masters of the small composite body. Each bow a work of exquisite workmanship. The men and women were expert marksmen.

The Queen had saved them for just this moment.

The Sand Scarabs had their bows all drawn back. The front row were on one knee and the line behind them standing. Three hundred strong was the company of mercenaries. These were elite archers and only the best made the grade to join their small cadre.

The mercenary company had been ready for this moment and afraid it would never happen. The moment had arrived.

As one nearly two hundred bowstrings were released. The standing men in the second line now let loose their bowstrings. Their arrows streaking out. The kneeling bowmen stood up and in a flash pulled Dragon Glass tipped arrows from their quivers. They placed the notch on their strings and pulled back. They fired and then kneeled back down. The mercenaries of the second line fired off their arrows. Now the second bending down to reload their bows. Now it was the first line’s time to fire. They sighted down their arrows and let loose. Then the men on the back row stood up. They let loose their arrows as the front line bent to reload. Now the two lines worked in counter time to fire off their bows. Each line bending to reload as the other line fired.

A blizzard of arrows were being fired out at the Ice King and his spawn. The Sand Scarabs famous for their ability to fire a dense storm of arrows in a short amount of time. Their fire fast but also deadly accurate.

The men in the mercenary company working in perfect unison. The men on back lines rotating to keep their fire fast and furious. The men had placed many spare full quivers at their feet. This company had been held in reserve just to deliver this killing blow. They were expert marksmen and in the half light of the battlefield that skill would be sorely tested.

Since they had not fought as of yet they were fresh and were able to fire off at a fast murderous rate. Their arrows filling the air between them and the Ice King with dragon tipped arrows.

Jon saw wave after wave of arrows buzzing angrily towards the Ice King and his forces. The arrows finding targets all throughout the Ice King’s forces. The front line of Ice Wrights and Ice Giants were feathered with multiple Dragon Glass arrows. Many looked like the cacti that Jon had seen in Maester Luwin’s books when he studied Dorne when he was growing up.

The air filled with angry buzzing, Jon watched their mercenary’s arrows killing the first line of Ice Wright and the four Ice Giants that were on the front line. Their bodies killed instantly from head and heart shots and overwhelming obsidian poisoning from arrows sunk into their bodies from knee to head.

The first line of Icy spawn toppled to the ground dead. Jon heard the seven scorpions behind them fire off. The Queen had ordered them several hours back to stand down and be prepared to fire at maximum rate when the order was given. The massive missiles clanged off the rails. The projectiles ripped into the roiling mass of Icy spawn.
The Ice Wrights and Giants had been thrown into confusion by the sudden onslaught of obsidian tipped arrows and scorpion bolts flying into their formation. Javelins of obsidian came in from various angles. The seven bolts from the siege engines impacted bodies like raging bulls in the rut. Three Ice Giants were gutted with scorpion bolts. The energy of the bolts spinning their bodies. Two fell to the ground dead with heart shots. The other bolt blasted an ice wright off his feet and threw him fifteen feet back.

Unfortunately, it would be at least twenty seconds before the scorpions could be reloaded and the arm winched back.

The archers were firing off their bows as fast as they could. They had been held in reserve and were thus fresh. The archers fired their bows at a quick pace. Their draw steady and their aim true. Jon crouched down on the ground watched the arrows flying straight into the swarm of Ice Wrights and Giants. The tall Giants were receiving a lot of the attention of the arches. Their height drawing the eye.

Jon saw that they should be shooting more at the Ice Wrights. Worse he saw that the Ice King was not being feathered.

Many of the arrows being fired off were aimed at him. He had his own marker. His crown showed that he was a high value target to the archers. The arrows headed for head and heart. Where the arrows would impact the Ice King’s body yellow squares appeared in momentary flashes. They hue the color of rot.

It looked like fireflies in summer with the constant flickering of yellow squares that flashed into existence just long enough to block the projectiles being fired at the Ice King. Two javelins came flashing in from the dark and hit the ribs and back of the Ice King. Larger versions of the yellow squares appeared to block the projectiles.

Jon now knew why the yellow barriers in the sky had disappeared. The Croyel had wrapped his power around his host. The Croyel had protected the Ice King in a shield that could not be penetrated by projectiles. More arrows impacted the Ice King but the arrows shattered against the yellow barriers erected against them for the instant necessary to destroy them.

The Ice King stood there with a triumphant look on his face. The Croyel looked at all with his beady eyes.

The Archers to their credit quickly saw that their fire was wasted on the Ice King and adjusted their fire to the Icy Spawn. The next wave of the Icy spawn were falling down feathered with multiple arrows. The arrows flying through the night air like a horizontal blizzard. Jon was exhilarated seeing Ice Wrights staggering with multiple arrow strikes. The scorpions reported again with their massive missiles slamming into bodies of Ice Wrights throwing them back already dead. Some missed. Some didn’t.

The exhilaration that Jon had felt evaporated. More Ice Wrights had fallen but now they were adjusting their tactic. The Ice Wrights behind the feathered Ice Wrights now gripped the bodies of their dying brethren and held them up before them. The ice wrights using their brethren to block the incoming arrows.

The Ice Wrights did begin to dissipate when they died but it was a process that could take up to five minutes. Their bodies remaining substantial enough to be used as shields. The Ice Wrights were more than willing to use their dying brothers to protect themselves. The Ice Wrights holding onto their swords awkwardly as they gripped the arms of their dying brothers to move forward now protected.
Some of the Ice Wrights lost their grip on their dying brothers. The Ice Wrights did not go quietly into the good night. They screamed long piteous screams as their legs and arms kicked wildly in agony.

The harsh movements ripped some of the dying Ice Wrights out of the grips of the ones holding them up as shields. When they fell to the ground the Ice Wrights that held them upright were exposed and quickly feathered with Dragon Glass. They too started to die but were then in turn gripped by their brethren behind them and held up as shields while they now screamed and wildly contorted in death.

The Ice Wrights advancing relentlessly. They passed the Ice King who smiled.

More scorpion bolts were fired off squiring Ice Wrights trying to slow their advance. More and more Ice Wrights passed the Ice King. They were near to place where Jon and his compatriots were on the ground. Someone blew a war horn near Jon.

The archers suddenly split in two pulling back. The fire of arrows stopped. This too was part of Daenerys plan.

Thirty mounted knights on heavy war horses charged forward with lances leveled down at the advancing wall of the advancing Ice Wrights and Giants. The horses came rushing through at a full gallop. Jon felt the earth trembling with their passage near his body. The lances tipped with obsidian. The horses had to only charge thirty yards to impact into the Ice Wrights.

The crash was horrendous. The collision sounded like a landslide of mighty boulders colliding.

The lances slammed into the bodies of Ice Wrights impaling them clean through. Some of the lances coming through the bodies of the initial Ice Wright and impaling the one behind it. The slender bodies easily pierced. The shields of dying Ice Wrights were slammed back into the bodies of the Ice Wrights holding them up. With great momentum the horses slammed into the Ice Rights driving them back.

The knights released their lances and pulled out their heavy broadswords to engage the Ice Wrights. Their blades did not kill the Ice Wrights but they were driven back staggering from the momentum of the blows raining down on their heads and shoulders.

Jon and the rest of the Valyrian armed warriors of Westeros jumped up and rushed forward their weapons raised. The archers had instead of forming up had gripped several full quivers putting them on and rushed forward firing as they went.

Jon rushed and quickly chopped down three Ice Wrights that were still getting their bearings from the onrush of the knight charge. Jon saw his father send an Ice Wright’s head flying twenty feet up into the air. Oberyn speared one clear through hits body.

He could not see anything more. The Ice King was before him. They slammed their words into each other. The blades screaming. His blade’s flames rising five feat in the air. Jon’s sword screaming almost as if in anger at the foe it now fought. The Ice King’s own blade seemed to throw off ice splinters. The two men circled each other. From nowhere Oberyn appeared and thrust his sword into the Ice King’s back. A yellow square appeared just before the impact.

The blow sent the Ice King stumbling forward off balance. Jon slammed Lightbringer down on the Ice King’s head several times. Again the yellow barrier appeared to protect the Ice King. The blows physical strength staggered him but no harm from the blade’s sharpness or heat harmed the Ice King. The magical elements of Jon’s blade blocked.
Jon ducked and pivoted away when the Ice King cut at him with his ice sword. Jon was on the defense the Ice King following hacking down wildly at Jon. He blocked with Lightbringer but was on the defensive. There were Ice Wrights and Giants all around now. He saw a swarm of Walking Dead surging in behind the Icy spawn.

He locked swords with the Ice King who pressed forward till they were face to face. Their eyes locked.

“I will gut you!” the Ice King bellowed.

Jon released his right hand off his sword and drew his left arm down taking the weight of the Ice King with him throwing both swords off to his left. His right fist slammed into the face of the Ice King. It did not harm him but it made Jon feel good. The anger on the Ice King’s face was most satisfying. He swirled around throwing his sword out around in a mighty arc. His blade cut an Ice Wright clean in two at the waist.

He turned just in time to block the next slash of the Ice King their colliding swords screaming. Jon and the Ice King slammed their swords into each other again and again. Jon saw out the corner of his eye the rune sword of Daenerys. She gutted an Ice Wright and whipped her sword out and rolled forward to thrust her sword up through the groin of an Ice Wright that had been feathered in the stomach and thigh. Her sword thrust finished killing the Ice Wright.

The Haruchai Bannor and Seregrom were on her flanks swirling their purloined ice swords. They blocked and forced back any Ice spawn that tried to get in on Daenerys flank. Their sword work was so fast that the blades were mostly invisible in the flickering fire light and the light of burning undead. Jon caught glimpses of the Walking Dead being hacked and chopped down by the whirling and jumping Haruchai.

Off to the side Jon noted his wives standing hanging back. The two ShadowbBender witches had tired and only shooting off their shadow daggers when they sensed an Ice Wright moving into a killing position and was fairly near them. Their Shadow Monster killing the undead by the score.

Jon saw a knight go down his upper chest cleaved wide open by an Ice Wright. Another knight was stabbed through from two sides. Jon was enraged. He was being pressed back by the mighty down strokes of the Ice King. The Croyel smiling evilly at him. He stumbled over a down ice wright that was already steaming.

His eyes enlarged with the Ice King moving in. Jon was down one on knee blocking the savage down chops of the Ice King’s ice sword. The power of the Ice King forced Jon’s sword down slowly towards his body. Jon gritted his teeth blocking the strokes of his hated foe.

From the side, Jon’s father flashed in his sword Evening Star swirled in leaving a blue streak behind it. The glowing sword slammed into the ribs of the Ice King. The sword was met with a yellow barrier but the blade seemed to cut partially into the shield. The Ice King was thrown aside grunting. Jon rose up and lifted his sword and swiped down his sword leaving trails of flame in the air.

Jon’s blade reached for the Ice King’s head but again the yellow square barrier appeared just above the Ice King’s head. Jon’s sword exploded upon striking the barrier sending out flames all around. The blade chipped the barrier but was repelled. Father and son advanced on the Ice King their swords slamming into the sword and body of the Ice King. The body and head shots blocked by the shields of the Croyel.

Jon realized that the Ice King did not truly care if swords struck his body. He knew he was safe with the magical shields raised by the Croyel. The Ice King was not a superior swordsman that was obvious. He was using his great strength and little else to fight with.

The Croyel now thrust up its small stubby right arm. Both Starks were flung back flying through the air. Both men rolled with their invisible blows. Their bodies hitting the ground. Both men through long training came up with swords in blocking positions. The Ice King came after Jon hacking wildly putting Jon on the defense. His sword showering out magical fire sparks with each collision of fire and ice forged steel colliding. The two magical blades sending out mighty flame showers and sparklers of magical discharge.

Jon feinted to the left making the Ice King block it. He stabbed forward his sword point hitting the Ice King in the face. Again his sword was blocked but the yellow shield was cracked. The Ice King was flung back. Arrows were now firing into his body from all angles. The arrows blocked but the momentum of the impacts was keeping him off balance.

The magical barriers tuned to magic and blunting the sharpness of sword blades and the point of arrows. The obsidian arrows exploding hitting the yellow squares that appeared just above the skin of the Ice King to save his life. Momentum was a matter of physics and could not be magically done away with. The Ice King’s body jerked and lurched with the momentum of the weapons striking his body.

With his father’s sword glowing like the full moon come down to Earth, Jon saw his father engage an Ice Giant. He was having to dodge and weave not letting Walking Dead grip his body as they milled forward. In moves so fast Jon barely registered them, his father sliced off hands and arms reaching for him from the undead. The limbs cut as if water. The magical poison of his father’s blade sent blue white poison surging in the veins of the undead quickly unbinding the magic animating them. The undead first staggering and then falling down to their second permanent death. His father blocking the blows of the Ice Giant. Several chops of the Ice Giant instead of finding Jon’s father’s head cleaved undead to pieces.

Daenerys was whirling around like a madwoman chopping down undead all around her. She was besieged from all sides. When her defense looked like it was in jeopardy Bannor or Seregrom were there as if appearing from the foundations of the Earth to cut down or beat back the assailants. Obsidian tipped arrows and javelins were flying in from all sides. The Ice Wrights dodging and blocking. Still at random an Ice Wright was feathered and fell down dead. The Ice Giants to slow for that were taking hits that were slowly poisoning them. The undead pierced all over the plain and falling down dead or stumbling as poison coursed through their dead veins.

Stannis and Oberyn were falling back pressed in by Ice Wrights. They were able to kill undead all around them while blocking the assaults of Ice Wrights that were coming upon them. Oberyn’s spear jutting out like a striking cobra. The point of his Valyrian steel spear hitting foes in the face and ramming in instantly killing the foe.

Jon and the Ice King threw themselves apart. The two eyed each other with hate. The two antagonists ran into each other again locking swords. The two men pressed in. Jon knew that with the Ice King not able to be reached by their attacks they were in trouble. Jon was tired and could not keep fighting like this much longer. Not this total exertion. His sword was supporting him but he had mortal physical limits.

The Croyel clenched his fist and Jon was sent staggering back. The blow like a sledgehammer. He roared in anger when the Ice King chopped down a knight getting past his guard. Then the Ice King stabbed another knight down ramming his ice sword trough his back. The Ice King was forced to turn and face his father. He was definitely not tiring his sword strikes still lightning fast and powerful. The Ice King staggering back with blows blocked by the yellow shields of the Croyel. The Ice King grunting with the force of his father’s blows.

The Croyel jammed his stubby arm out. Invisible force went out at Jon’s father. Eddard Stark threw his sword up and it blocked the swirling air of the magical blow. The Croyel now threw his arm out and kicked out his leg. Multiple magical blows hammered Jon’s father stumbling him back and then he was sent wildly tumbling into a mass of undead. Now his father had to fight desperately cutting those down before they could get a good grip on his body to tear him apart.

Jon was himself swarmed with undead. He was chopping around his body to keep the undead at bay as he dismembered and gutted them. It seemed like an endless supply of Walking Dead were constantly swarming forward in their quest to end his life and the lives of all those around him. Of all those who manned the frontlines of Westeros.

They were going to be overwhelmed Jon thought desperately.

Jon saw in the distance toward the frontlines a long ribbon of something black appear in the air. It settled down out of sight. He was not sure what he had just seen. He jumped back and cut three more of the Walking Dead down. His sword setting them alight with his killing strokes.

He attempted to move toward the Ice King but an Ice Wright engaged him. They circled each other attacking with swinging strokes and last moment blocks of their swords. The Ice King had started to attack the archers near him. Their arrows not able to penetrate his shields. The Ice King killing archers to reduce the fire on his Icy spawn. Still two more Ice Wrights were spun around by multiple arrows strikes. Their screams of agony loud in the nighttime air.

Jon saw another long black stream appear in the air this time much nearer. It landed only twenty yards in front him. He heard Ice Wrights scream in pain and an Ice Giant seemed to simply fall apart at his waist. Whatever it was it was aimed at his foes. It was deadly in its affect.

Suddenly Barristan appeared. Loud roynish barking was heard behind him but also approaching. Waynhim came into view their staves stabbing and slashing apart both the Walking Dead and Icy spawn of the Ice King. The fighting wedge of the Waynhim coming into clear view. The staves of the small strange creatures were used to deadly affect. Some spewed acid as they chopped while others lit the Ice spawn and undead alight like bonfires when the staves were stabbed into their bodies.

Total confusion abounded. There was fights for survival all around Jon. Both sides defending selves and lashing out at their foes.

Arya: For the countless time Arya reached back to her quiver and gripped her next arrow with her fingers. The young woman instinctively working her fingers between the fletching. Her fingers running down to grip the shaft of the arrow. She then pulled her left hand straight up to remove the arrow from its nest in her quiver. In a fluid motions she brought the arrow down and forward while pulling her bow back slightly to get the notch on the bowstring.

With a strong confident pull of her arm she brought the bowstring taunt. It was easy to pick out a target and let her bowstring loose. Targets were all around. All her shots were point blank. Her aim point easy to spot and track. Her arrow shot out from her bow. The arrow sinking deep into a mammoth that was slowly lumbering forward. She was shooting at its side not in a position for an eye shot. Arrows were slamming into it from both sides. Its thick skull prevented arrows from penetrating its brain. It was filled with black tendrils of obsidian poison that began to encircle the dead monstrosity.
The Waynhim were dueling with several Ice Giants that had come lumbering up carrying a dead moose and another was holding an elk to protect itself from the fire coming its way. The Loremaster whipped his stave back and forth sending out a stream of black Demondim acid that undulated out at the closest Ice Giants.

The acid splashed into the moose eating away at the undead. It did not kick or react to the acid eating away at its essence. In the middle of the long stream the acid ate its way through the dead moose and started to splash on the front of the Ice Giants. The first one’s head ripped back to scream in agony and then went silent with the acid eating away its entire torso the Giant falling back dead. The blue light of its eyes dimmed out. The second had the acid land on its left side. Its ribs eaten away and its cold organs spilling out it body cavity. Its wails of agony hideous to hear.

The other Giant made it the edge of the Waynhim wedge. It threw its carcass into the wedge. The Demondim spawn in the wedge lashed out with their staves chopping the undead elk into slices the body flying apart their magic unbinding the magic animating it. The Ice Giant started to slash down with his massive broadsword. His blade blocked by the Waynhim but the massive blade found several Waynhim killing one and wounding another on the arm.

The archers fired off arrows riddling the Ice Giant. It staggered but continued to try and attack the Waynhim. It was able to slice down on more time splitting a Waynhim skull into two. More arrows impacted into the Ice Giant’s body. It fell to one knee its body leaned forward. A Waynhim stabbed out with his bone stave and it penetrated the mouth of the Ice Giant.

The Ice Giant’s head exploded into flames. The Ice Giant ripped its head back screaming in wails of shocking anguish.

The mammoth had fallen onto its front knees its body beginning to rot with obsidian poisoning. Muscle and fur sluffing off its body. It tried to rise but more arrows strikes brought it down for good. Then several flaming arrows impacted its body and it went up in a bonfire.

The Loremaster had the Waynhim wedge rotated and now heading out into the field of undead advancing towards them. Arya saw no Ice Wrights in this area. They seemed to have thinned out. The Loremaster barking loudly slashing his stave first to his right and then to his left letting out gouts of acid that splashed all over the Walking Dead. The acid immediately eating away at bodies dissolving them.

When the remaining undead came up against the edge of the fighting wedge the Waynhim manning the edge front slashed and stab out at the undead. Their staves moving like lightning to produce mayhem. The hands and arms of the undead chopped off with ruthless efficacy. The chopped limbs did not move. The torsos next stabbed or slashed. The bodies filled with acid to rot from within or set on fire in a bright blaze.

Arya again thought how the very nature of the Walking Dead was working against them now that the forces of Westeros and the Crows had the weapon to fight them. Dragon Glass had totally changed the balance. Fire was coming at the Waking Dead from all angles.

She had heard the frustration in Crow reports of the great difficulty to kill the Walking Dead or Others as they were often called. The Ice Wrights had been totally immune with not even fire affecting them. That had completely changed now.

Their Dragon Glass tipped weapons were efficiently killing all they struck. The head and heart shot instantly killing the undead and Icy spawn of the Ice King. The Walking Dead obeying their compulsion to move towards those that lived and kill them came on forward blindly. That compulsion leading them into the fields of fire. Many died with multiple dragon tipped arrows sticking out of rotting bodies.

Arya was focusing on her immediate environs. She still saw the projectiles of the catapults and trebuchets arching through the sky to land into the plain where the undead still marched forward. Arya was amazed at the sheer numbers of the shambling undead that continued to march forward to attack. They seemed countless. No matter how many were slain there was a seemingly unending supply of fresh undead coming forward.

The Walking Dead moved at a slow step. They did not react to the fire coming their way. The fire arrows raining down on them they did not try to avoid. The Dragon Glass was unseen so Arya could understand them not trying to dodge those unseen missiles. Arya could see that the Walking Dead truly were dead. They had no fear or true desire except to obey their compulsion. All over the plain before them undead would suddenly blaze up with a fire arrow striking their body. The undead stumbling as they burned sometimes taking brothers and sisters down with them into a burning death.

They were being slaughtered. She saw a trebuchet shot coming down only fifty yards ahead of them. The missiles exploded on impact on the ground and explode sending fiery projectiles flinging in all directions. Many found Walking Dead who immediately started to go up in flames.

She heard Marleya Blackmyre screaming orders to keep the archers compact near the rear edge of the Waynhim wedge. The camp attendants were still wheeling their wheelbarrows around keeping close to the rear edge of the Demondim spawn. The archers behind and to their flanks firing wildly. The wheelbarrows were now three quarters emptied.

Arya was getting worried. The undead seemed limitless.

She saw Syrio and Strong Belwas fighting along the right edge of the Waynhim wedge. The two sword masters killing all that came near them. The undead falling dead from one swipe of their Valyrian blades that unbound the magic binding the undead and keeping them animated. The two using the Waynhim wedge to protect one side of their bodies.

She saw an Ice Giant approaching but two scorpion bolts slammed into its stomach. The Ice Giant thrown off its feet. It wallowed on the ground trying to remove one of the bolts jutting up out of its body. It quickly weakened and did not move anymore.

Arya feathered a cow that was trying to get in position to gore Syrio. She shot the undead animal in the eye and it fell over killed by the magic in the Dragon Glass tipped arrow.

The Waynhim Loremaster barked loudly. The Wedge started to rotate slowly. Arya knew the creatures were much faster than their movements were now. They were moving slowly to let their human compatriots move with them. The attendants moved their wheelbarrows slowly moving over the dead bodies and detritus of the battlefield. The archers moving adroitly to keep pace with slow pivoting wedge. Arya saw that Barristan, Syrio and Strong Belwas moved adeptly keeping in range of the Waynhim staves to protect their back and sides.

The cadence of the Waynhim changed. They were constantly yelping in their native tongue that sounded discordant and roynish. The wedge did not advance. She saw the Loremaster lift his stave up in the air and then rammed it into the dirt that was still covered be the yellow ichor that the Croyel had earlier produced tough it seemed to be inert now.

Arya watched a wave of black magic flow out from the tip of the Waynhim wedge and quickly start to spread out and forward. The Demondim liquid spreading over the top of the yellow ichor. Arya wondered what the Loremaster was trying to accomplish. Then in the gauzy light of the green orbs, burning undead and the fire from the Queen’s forces Arya thought she saw the black ichor start to undulate creating small waves that lapped forward.

With raised eyebrows, Arya watched the Waynhim imitate the magic of the Croyel. She saw the multitude of slain bodies of the Walking dead and slag of dead Ice Wright and Giants being lifted up and rolled forward and shunted off to the sides. The wedge started to move forward slowly. The Waynhim on the leading of the Demondim spawn wedge pushed their staves down into the black ichor of their Loremaster and were able to add to the wave motion helping to move the dead bodies and detritus of the battlefield aside.

Marleya had most of their archers facing out towards the fallen Wall. The undead had been thinned out by the Waynhim wedge but more were slowly shambling forward to join the battle. The tide of the shambling undead thickening as they closed on the fighting wedge. They were still thirty yards away. Marleya was screaming at them to keep firing as fast as possible. Not that they needed any encouragement to fire off their arrows. The undead stumbling down killed. She yelled at Arya and the closest archers to her to face back toward the queen’s forces and take out any targets that way.

The Black Panthers had left the berm when it was over run and came down the berm and joined the archers of Marleya. Fortunately, they had their own attendants that were loaded down with quivers and others wheeling around their own wheelbarrows now only half filled with stacked quivers. All the archers firing their arrows with wild abandon. To conserve arrows would invite death. They had no recourse but to continue to fire a reckless pace and hope for resupply.

The Loremaster started to move the wedge forward. The way of the battle flow had reduced the amount of enemy that was both ahead and behind the Waynhim wedge. Arya had no idea why the Loremaster had decided to move back towards the berm and the Queen’s forces. The Stark teenager did not question the wisdom of the Waynhim. In this flickering world of half formed illusions she was trusting the instincts to denizens that lived their life in subterranean world of tunnels and caverns. A world of absolute blackness.

Arya watched amazed as the dead, broken weapons and other detritus began to roll towards the berm or pushed to the side. This smoothed out the landscape. With a shake of her head she marveled at these strange creatures. They had helped in saving her mother and were now striving to aid Westeros in its dark hours fighting the Ice King. Their magic malleable to meet the needs of the Waynhim and those they had chosen to align themselves with. Their roynish barking loud in the din of battle. The fighting wedge sped up slightly with the cleared ground and the humans able to keep pace because of the lack of obstacles in their path now.

The archers facing back towards the fallen Wall were firing their bows feathering the Walking Dead at now twenty-five yards toppling them over. They still had the ammunition to fire with abandon as they retreated back towards their frontlines. The fallen undead hindering the progress of their undead brethren still coming forward to kill and rend. Randomly, fire arrows came flying in setting animated and dead undead alight slowing the advance as Walking Dead burned.

The Wedge sped up their forward movement. The Loremaster was not using his stave to throw acid. There was undead moving forward before them but they had their back to the threat behind them. The archers facing forward were firing off with abandon doing the killing for now instead of the Waynhim. Again, Arya thought that the Walking Dead had major failings now that the forces of Westeros had Dragon Glass. She was releasing her bowstring sending arrows into the backs of undead men and women or the flanks of animals raised in to a horrid second life.

With their compulsion to move forward and attack the camp of Westeros they did not react to the attack from the rear. Arya was not even sure they could sense the attack. The Waynhim on the leading edge of the Waynhim wedge facing the berm attacked the Walking Dead as they came into range. Their staves stabbing out to stab their targets in the back of legs, lower back or their flanks.

The Loremaster was again stabbing his stave up and waving it to send out long streams of acid to either side of the wedge that flew up and forward to settle down deliver devastation to those it touch.

The Waynhim on the edges attacking all they could reach. The staves rushing either acid or fire into the bodies of the undead. The effect of the Waynhim magic immediate and devastating. The Walking Dead dissolving as acid ate them away from the inside till their bodies ruptured and fell apart with black ichor running out of all their orifices. The bone staves caused the undead to erupt into flames.

Arya observed that the area was free of Ice Wrights and Ice Giants. They were either killed off or had gained the berm and scaled it to move forward.

The wedge continued to advance. The magic of the Loremaster pushed the dead and garbage of battle forward and aside. Arya glanced behind her. The Walking Dead wave was slowly advancing. They could only move at their shambling rate. They had only one speed. They were incapable of urgency. The speed of the Waynhim was leaving them further behind.

The attendants were able to keep up with the cleared ground. The archers able to rest not having to fire at a wild clip. The three warriors of Barristan, Syrio and Belwas kept pace. Their extreme fitness powering their bodies.

The wedge reached the berm. The Loremaster changed his chant and all the dead bodies and detritus was quickly shunted to the sides of the wedge. Now the small creatures with their long bodies with arms and legs of equal length went to all fours and raced up the berm barking wildly the whole way.

Now Arya and the archers reached the foot of the berm. A few of the attendants were able to push their wheelbarrows up the berm gasping but many could not. Arya, Marleya and other archers grabbed the handles and gritted their teeth.

They reached the top looking around. Marleya barked out instructions. She told all the archers to take off their quivers and put fresh ones on their back to have a full arrow load. She set the lines. She used over seventy-five percent of the remaining archers to protect their rear.

“I want our rows faced out. The Walking Dead will be here shortly. If you see any Ice Wrights and Giants fire at them. If they are using fucking shields fall to a knee and shoot their legs. Harder to hit but we need to hit their bodies and not waste arrows on their shields.” Marelya turned around to look at the sea of confusion before them.

The Waynhim were barking wildly having reformed their fighting wedge. The small creatures were jumping up and down clearly agitated waiting to charge forward.

“Follow the wedge” Marelya said to the remaining archers in a shout. Fire at will but make fucking sure that you know what the hell you are firing at!” Barristan’s woman shouted. “Attendants … stay with the archer line. I want the rear lines to advance with us staying back twenty yards. Protect our rear. If someone runs out of arrows run back and get another quiver. If we stop moving attendants pluck any arrows you see off the ground and take out of bodies of the undead if easy to pull.”

Marelya looked at the wild combat before them. There was a mass of Walking Dead and Icy Spawn attacking what was in front of them.

The front lines had been pushed back nearly three hundred yards here. Arya centered herself. The enemy had their backs turned towards them. They would be falling on the forces of the Ice King Marelya shouted out “Attack!” She made the right guess. The Waynhim rushed forward as one. The wedge moving fast forward. The Loremaster took his shaft and made a wide arcing slash from right to left with both hands. The wedge supporting their Loremaster with their strength sent out a long ribbon of acid that spit out his stave and landed across the backs of the undead in front of them. They fell down immediately the acid eating their bodies away as if they were made of the thinnest of parchment.

In the distance Arya could see the magical swords of her lover, father and brother. Each blade distinctive in their own way. Dany’s blade flashed the deep royal blue of Valyria. Her father’s blade glowed a bright light blue while Jon’s blade was like the sun come down to Earth. In fact Jon’s very body was wreathed in flames and his sword was making mighty chopping motions.

The fighting wedge slammed into the back of the roiling mass of the Ice King’s forces. The shock of impact slowed the Waynhim. The creatures on the edge of the wedge slashed forward and down with their staves. The blades looked like they should be dull of edge and yet easily cut through flesh of the Walking Dead. Other of the Demondim spawn were jabbing out with their staves stabbing the undead setting them ablaze or filling with acid that ate them up from the inside.

Arya and her compatriots were firing off their bows at the easy targets that were barely moving with the press of forces all about. The Loremaster sent out long ribbons of their acid at the undead forces before the wedge. Now the Loremaster was aiming his stave up and projecting the acid out with force sending the arcs into the mass of Ice King’s forces.

The wedge was moving forward now in a steady rolling motion. The wedge edge slashing and stabbing. The Loremaster with the large wedge behind him was filled with their vitality. He seemed to be exalted with it assuming the rank of Loremaster. Arya was saving her arrows for targets that seemed likely to cause death to her allies.

Barristan, Syrio and Strong Belwas were walking along the rear edge of the wedge resting for the moment. Arya could see that they had covered half of the distance to the area where she saw the sword of Dany fighting. She longed to get to her lover. An Ice Wright came into view and was feathered by Arya’s follow archers before it even knew what hit it and fell down dead.

The Walking Dead with their compulsion to move forward and their seeming limited ability to take in their environs were being rolled over by the fighting wedge and archers. The Loremaster sent out another long ribbon of his acid across the whole frontal arc of the fighting wedge. The acid landing twenty yards in front of them thinning out the ranks of their enemy. The undead were finally sensing the attack from the rear but it did them no good. They were slashed down as the wedge came upon them.

Now Ice Rights and a few Ice Giants had turned to attack this sudden attack from the rear. The Loremaster took out two of the Ice Giants as they approached reducing them to bubbly steaming mass of melting flesh and ice. The Ice Rights engaged the wedge but the arrows coming their way they were easily dispatched. Arrows come in from all angles as other archers joined in and shooting at the Icy spawn at they turned their backs on the archers in front of them to attack the new threat. They were only able to kill one of the Waynhim before they were cut down. The Ice Rights could not both dodge arrows and attack the Waynhim wedge.

The Loremaster again and again sent out his acid streams as the fighting wedge moved forward at a steady clip now that they were into the forces of the Ice King. Then a mass of Ice Wright hit their wedge just as they seemed about to battle their way onto the field where Arya saw Dany fighting like a demon possessed.
Arya could see the battle clearly now. The Ice King was fighting the High Royals of Westeros along with Ice Wrights. The Ice King with his small ice crown on his head. Arya immediately took in the fact that the Ice King seemed to be protected by a barrier that would appear when a bladed weapon struck his body or when arrows found their mark. The yellow appearing just for a moment to block the bladed weapon or shatter the Dragon Glass arrows.

From the rear Arya could see the Croyel on the Ice King’s back as it clung to the Ice King as he fought. It mouth glued to the Ice King’s throat. The Lord from Revelstone had told them that the Croyel fed off their host and enhanced their combined magical might. The host and parasite lifting each other up in magical might.

Off to the side Arya saw the wives of Jon. They were near a line of pikemen and foot soldiers with swords and battleaxes. They were chopping wildly at the undead attacking them and any Ice Wrights that came their way. Her Direwolf, Nymeria, and her siblings attacking the undead.

Melisandre and Ygritte would extend an arm and off several fingers shadow daggers would shoot out and hit an Ice Wright in the body. The daggers instantly hitting and penetrating the Icy spawn’s body. The Ice Wright immediately going into convulsions with black ichor spewing form eyes, mouth and nose.

Arya observed the shadow monster they had produced while she had been out of it. It had been twenty five feet but was only ten feet tall now. It stood near the witches protecting them from direct attack. Arya saw that the shadows of its being easily sliced through the Icy spawn that dared to come to close.

The teenager looked back at the fight around the Ice King. His shields made him invulnerable but she saw that the three glowing blades were able to make the yellow magical shields crack when impacted. The shield could be penetrated but not enough force was able to be struck at any one moment.

Again she looked at the Croyel feeding as it clutched the body of the Ice King.

That was the key Arya recognized. The bond.

Arya had seen Barristan rush forward into the fray. Syrio and Strong Belwas were still near her.

“Syrio—Belwas! I need you to get me to Ygritte and Melisandre!” Arya shouted as she ran over to them. They looked at her. Without question they prepared themselves to fulfill Arya’s request. It filled Arya’s heart with love seeing these men so willing to follow her lead without with question.

Arya fired off in rapid succession ten more arrows emptying her quiver. Her shots thinning the undead in the direction she needed to go in.

She threw down her bow. She was going to miss that bow. Now was the time for her to take up the sword.

She reached to the pommel of Blackfyr the former sword of Aegon the Conqueror but was now her sword. The sword answered to her will. The sword that for Aegon had not fired up when he pulled it from its scabbard. Now it sprung to life as the rune sword that it had always been. It had remained inert till first Daenerys and then Arya came to ignite its true mystical magic.

She reached back with her other hand to rip off her quiver and make sure that Needle was still in its scabbard. She was ready.

The three rushed along the edge of the Waynhim fighting wedge as it battled the local undead and Icy spawn of the Ice King. The creatures trying to break the wedge with sheer relentless attack. The Loremaster somehow seemed to know what Arya’s plan was and sent out a mighty gout of his acid into the throng of undead and an Ice Wright that was in that vicinity moving in to attack the ShadowBender witches.

Its acid falling on them and reducing them to sludge and in the case of the Ice Wright to bubbly steaming blue mess of slag and death. A brief channel carved out for Arya to run through. She glanced back and snarled. At least four or five Waynhim had been cut down because the Loremaster had turned to aid her and not his brethren. The sacrifice inspired Arya even more with what she had planned.

Again the undead in their focus on attacking what was before them did not truly register that they were being assaulted from behind. An Ice Giant was attacking the pikemen near the ShadowBender witches. It noticed them coming and turned to attack.

Syrio shouted getting its attention foremost. It chopped down at Syrio but his water dancing skills easily allowed him to jump out of the way of the blade. Then he and Strong Belwas occupied the Ice Giant’s attention attacking it. Two Ice Wrights came to their large brother’s defense. One was shot down with Dragon Glass arrows.

Arya rushed on trusting in the skills of her teacher and Belwas to survive without her assistance. They would rush to the pikemen to get defense from that side.

Arya with her mighty rune sword easily chopped down the undead that she met. Her blade’s magic enhanced mightily by the fact that it was a rune sword. It killed the undead with one cut of her sword. The magic unbinding the magic that animated the undead.

She confronted an Ice Wright that had seen her and rushed forward to engage her. He was fast but unskilled. Arya blocked his strikes easily with her sword. She counterattacked with her blade cross hacking across the blade of the Ice Wright. She was attacking high with her assault then dropped down to one knee and slashed out with her sword. The Ice Wright desperately down chopped with his blade in defense. She caught his blade on her rune sword guiding it out away from his body.

This threw the Wright off balance. In that moment she slashed her blade slightly in to disengage his blade and stabbed up with Blackfyre. It rammed into Ice Wright’s body at his hip and traveled up slicing through his lungs and liver if they still existed. Blood gushed from the Ice Wright’s mouth its hand dropping its blade. Her blade strike was killing and the heat of her blade boiled her foe’s icy heart to pulp.

She ripped her sword out and rushed on. She arrived at the side of Melisandre. The tall witched looked down at her with her calm eyes. Ygritte was keeping an eye on Jon to see if he needed their aid. A gaggle of undead had followed Arya. She turned and chopped the first ones down. Nymeria and Ghost attacked several more ripping legs off. Ygritte sent out six shadow daggers killing the last three.

Syrio and Strong Belwas came running up and turned out. Several Walking Dead had followed them attracted by their motion. Syrio stabbed the closet one, a giant hound, through its eye killing it instantly with hits Valyrian blade. Strong Belwas sent the head of a Wildling woman spinning in the air. Her body crumpled to the ground. Again the Valyrian steel severed the magical bindings animating the body.

Arya looked back at the battle between the Ice King and her Dany, Jon and her father. They were circling around the Ice Wright leader. The Ice King blocked most of their blows but he was not able to block them all. He staggered with blows to his body but the yellow shields that appeared between the Ice King and the bladed weapons protected the Ice King. The yellow shields appearing to block the arrows and javelins that were hurled at him.

It was the Croyel that was protecting the Ice King. The Croyel was focused on protecting his host from attack. The Croyel clung tight to his host clearly feeding off the Ice King. Arya focused on the Croyel’s mouth. It was the binding between them that enabled the Ice King to fight on unhurt. That bound had to be broken. Then the two foul abominations could be taken out in turn. Arya got in front of Ygritte.

“I know how to take them out!” she yelled over the sounds of battle that echoed all around unabated.

The small kissed by the sun woman focused her gaze on Arya.

“How?”

“It the link between the Ice King and the Croyel that powers them. They feed off each other. We need to break that.”

“Again I ask how?”

Arya told her. Melisandre had turned her head to listen too.

They both looked skeptical. Ygritte looked at the battle raging around the Ice King. The Wright protected by the yellow shields erected to block each strike against its body.

“I’m telling you it will work” Arya shouted at them. “I have seen your shadow powers at work. Your shadow daggers penetrate the bodies of the Ice Wrights and Giants without a wound. They phase into the Icy spawn. I want you to imbue your shadow powers into Needle. It will work on them” Arya barked her head jerking in the Ice King’s direction. “I know their weak point. I can break it!” Arya jerked her sword that her father had had forged for her years ago out of its scabbard.

“You can do that can’t you?”

The two redheaded women looked at each other. They conferred with each other silently.

“We have observed our husband, your brother, fighting the Ice King. The Croyel would block our shadow powers. He will raise a shield in defense. How will you break their shields?”

“I will trick them—it work it! I know it!” Arya screamed.

The two witches nodded at each other. They conferred with each other silently.

“We will observe our husband, your brother, fighting the Ice King. The Croyel would block our shadow powers. He will raise a shield in defense. How will you break their shields?”

“I will trick them—it work it! I know it!” Arya screamed.

The two witches nodded at each other.

“We can force our magic into the metal. It is normal steel and will not work against our magic like Valyrian steel would. We can impart our magic into the steel and have it set. We can force our magic into the steel and morph if for a short time to become an avatar of our magic. It will remain bound for a short time only. Our shadow magic by its definition is a free form magic. It will quickly seek to unbind itself to your blade.”

“I will only need it to be bound for a brief moment. I will need your shadow monster to get me where I need to be.”

She looked back at the fight between the Ice King and those she loved the most in the world.

“Hurry! We must act!”

The two ShadowBender witches had made their decision.
“Hold out your small sword Arya” Melisandre commanded Arya.

In perfect unison the two witches chanted while weaving their hands above Arya’s weapon from her childhood.

“Jih lubaghDI' HoSghaj nuH HoS Dun HoS ra’. mup tlnwl' vu'meH Dun jagh Huplu'taHvIS. ’oH ra’ maH. vaj jatlh Huplu'taHvIS, vaj ylnISQo' Qu' ’oH!”

From their hands a stream of turbulent black shadows flowed from the witches. The thick black tendrils reached out to caress and seemingly flow into the forged steel of Needle. The witches kept singing their melody in their discordant and guttural language of their distant homeland.

More shadows flowed out of the body of the witches and into Needle. Arya kept looking over her shoulder. The Croyel had raised his hand and repelled his father and Dany who were hacking at the Ice King. Their bodies were thrown ten feet in the air their bodies tumbling to the ground. Like cats they rolled to their feet and again charged into the fray.

Oberyn was stabbing at the Ice King’s eyes making him snarl and swipe at the spear of the Red Viper but he was too fast for the Ice King to engage his spear and harm it. Stannis landed a mighty blow on the Ice King’s left shoulder but the yellow shield blocked the cutting edge. The force of the blow muted and only jolting the Ice King.

Jon was circling his foe and came rushing in to again attack the Ice King. Arya saw Dany and her father rush in again. The archers and Waynhim wedge was rotating around occupying the forces of the Ice King. The Two keeping the forces of the Ice King occupied so that the High Lords with their magical weapons could engage the Ice King.

It was time.

The two ShadowBender witches stopped their chant. Her sword was glowing black now saturated with the black shadow magic of the land of Asshai. The sword now writhed and pulsed like the Shadow Monster. The sword seemed to about to wink out of existence and then solidified. The sword of steel now also the pure expression of ShadowBender magic. Arya felt it in her hand. This perfect balance would only hold for precious few seconds.

Arya looked at the fight with the Ice King. She had a big smile on her face. She knew her plan would work. Again he was being assaulted all around but the shields while cracked were holding firm from the fiery swords.

The shadow monster was before Arya now. It had shrunk to only eight feet now. It bent down and interlocked its long dagger like fingers. Arya went to climb up on the shadow monster. Melisandre and Ygritte taking up a new chant to give the shadow monster’s hands solidity for the time necessary to fulfill Arya’s plan. Arya put her foot into the cupped hands. Arya saw Stannis hack wildly at the Ice King before the Croyel threw him back with his magic.

Jon was hacking wildly at the Ice King who blocked his blows with his sword and swirled around to meet the strikes of the magical swords of Dany and Arya’s father. Dany struck the Ice King in the ribs with her rune sword. He cursed loudly. The shield protecting him cracked with dark black lines but held. Still the force of the sword strike hurt the Ice King.

Arya had the heels of her hands on the shadow monster’s shadowy shoulders. Her hands rolling on the undulating mass of the shadow monster. In her right hand her rune sword blazing bright. She was thankful for training with both hands in this moment of need. In her left hand was Needle that undulated with the shadow magic that was rolling in the metal. She held needle close to her body so it blended into her form.

Suddenly the shadow monster crouched its body down and then sprung upright. Its arms whipped straight up above its body. The interlocked hands on its long arms shot up with Arya’s foot in it. Arya was propelled from the cupped hand towards the battle between the Ice King and her woman. Her body shooting up nearly thirty feet into the snowy air before descending picking up momentum.

Arya screamed a loud blood curdling scream her body arching through the sky and now descending down towards the Ice King. The Croyel glanced up its eyes focusing on Blackfyr sweeping down over Arya’s shoulder as she came hurtling down the blade aimed to cleave the Ice King’s head in two.

The blade slammed against the shield the Croyel erected just above his father’s crown. Eddard and Jon were slamming their blades into the body of the Ice King but the Croyel was focused on the fiery blades assaulting his father.

He did not take into account the black blade now stabbing down. Arya did this as she had hurled Blackfyr at the Ice King’s head. Her arm pulling back close to her body still shielding the blade of Needle near her body. The blade black and easily unseen in the dark. The Croyel focusing on the obvious fiery blades attacking his father. Arya stabbed down with all her might. The metal filled with the properties of the shadow magic of the witch wives of Jon Snow. The metal writhing and amorphous.

The blade not aimed at the Ice King or the body of Croyel but the mouth of the Croyel where it latched onto the throat of the Ice King. The black shadow magic of the Shadowbenders writhed in Arya’s Needle. The crude weapon stabbed down. The metal fluid. Through the skin above the Croyel’s thin lips and down the thin muscle and into the tongue and gums of the Croyel Needle plunged.

The concentrated might of the ShadowBender magic able to penetrate the thin layer of skin, muscle and teeth. The magic of Asshai able to pass through the magical skin of Croyel. The Croyel not thinking to put up a shield against such a puny seeming weapon that it had seen only at the last moment. Needle though black seemed like ordinary steel.

The shocked Croyel screamed in agony feeling the magic of the Shadowbender witches pierce its flesh. The blade expended its magic cutting the Croyel’s mouth open before Needle shattered. Arya’s body was blasted away from the Ice King’s body spinning wildly.

The Croyel’s agonizing shock and pain caused its head to reflexively jerk back. From its mouth spewed a mix of yellow and bluish blood spraying out its screaming mouth. The wound was not fatal and already healing. But the desired affect had been achieved. The Ice King and Croyel were separated.

“NNNNOOOOOOOOOOOO!” the Ice King screamed at the break of the intimate link between the Wright and the Croyel.

“AAAAAIIIIIIIIIIEEEIEEEEEE!” the Croyel screamed in fear and dread. It was their binding between them that enabled the Ice King to fight on unhurt. That bound had been broken. The Croyel’s mouth was ruined but quickly magically healing. The Croyel’s mouth moving back to reattach itself to his father’s neck.

Eddard had moved in and now instead of hacking at the Ice King slashed at the Croyel. The blade cured by the Wraiths of Andelain sliced through the flesh of the Croyel. In its weakened and shocked state it was not able to put up its mystical shields. The blade cutting open the shoulder and ribs of the yellow monstrosity.

Its screams echoed across the plains. Yellow carious blood spurted out the wound.

With the shields gone Daenerys rammed her blazing Rune Sword through the Ice King’s left ribs and out his right ribs. Jon at that same moment brought his sword, Lightbringer, down in a two handed arc from over his head. This blade slammed down onto the crown of the Ice King shattering it. A split moment later his blade cleaved into the skull of the Ice King splitting his head wide open.

Jon ripped his sword up and back. Blue blood sprayed out the wound along with fragments of bone and brain. Daenerys ripped her sword out of Ice King. He had fallen to his knees.

As one the Queen, the Warden of the North and the Lord Commander of the Night’s Watch rammed their blades clean through the body Ice King. All three fiery blades scorching the internal organs of the Ice King. His blood boiled and gushed out his mouth in gouts while rivers flowed out his eyes and ears. They ripped their blades back from the body of the Ice King.

Stannis rammed her blade through the body of Croyel spitting like a pig. He twisted the blade and ripped it out. The Croyel had begun to scream at the wound. Its head thrashing in agony. Its body kicking wildly.

At that moment Oberyn had rammed his spear clean through the head of the Croyel stopping its hideous screams mid scream. Its body went limp and did not move.

The Ice King fell down face first onto the trampled and trodden dirt. His face lying in a puddle of dirty water that quickly turned blue with the blood pouring out his ruined body. He did not move.

Epilog One

Daenerys remained in her combat crouch looking at the body of the fallen Ice King. He did not move. Nor did the Croyel on his back. The beast had mashed its mouth to the neck to the Ice King but it too seemed to be dead. It had no movement. Both bodies ruined.

The Queen rose up and looked around as did Jon and Eddard. All three looked around. Daenerys needed to run to Arya but she had to see if the battle would continue on hot with the death of the Ice King.

What she saw relieved the Queen of Westeros and half of Essos. The Walking Dead had simply ceased movement. Their eyes still glowed bright blue but their bodies did not move. Their limbs were slack. They no longer had the compulsion to attack. Their bodies swayed like sailors on a ship in a heavy sea state.

Without the Ice King’s guidance they were inert. She saw Ice Giants in the distance. They too were swaying and listing like cables in the wind. They had a confused look on their faces. They were lost without the entity that had created them. Most had dropped their swords and those that held them were slack the points pressed into the ground.

The Ice Wrights were another matter. They were more mercurial from what Daenerys saw. Many were standing around with a stunned look on their faces. They had a lost look on their miens. Heads looked right and left for guidance and were not finding any. Many were crying with shaking sobs of loss and rue.
The Queen almost felt sorry for them. Without the man who had given them life they were lost and rudderless. Unfortunately, that was not all of the Ice Wrights though.

Some were throwing fits wallowing on the ground wailing in an ululation of shocking grief. Their bodies kicking and limbs flailing. Their mouths frothing as they threw a fit. They were maddened by the loss of their link with their father. They screamed in confusion and rage.

Many of the Ice Wrights though looked around with not confusion. They were trying to understand and Daenerys knew soon make decisions. Unlike the Walking Dead and Ice Giants the Queen could see them trying to understand the situation they now found themselves in. While stunned at their father’s loss they were already recovering.

Still others Daenerys saw off in the close distant were wildly attacking all near them. These Ice Wrights taking out their confusion and anger on any near them. They fought with fervor trying to slay all around them. The undead feeling most their wrath. She feared once their wrath had been assuaged they would be able to think clearly for themselves.

A few others seemed to look at the situation they now found themselves in and were running back towards the fallen Wall. Daenerys knew they would have to be dealt with. They had chosen retreat and life.

She took this all in with a quick glance around her. She did not have to command her forces at the moment.

“ARYA! … Baby!” Daenerys cried out running to where her lover had been thrown when she used needle to stab the Croyel and it exploded in her grip.

She reached Arya on the ground falling to her knees. Her eyes looking over her lover as she reached out and pulled Arya up off the ground and leaned her upper body into her own body. Daenerys held Arya to her body “Oh baby! Are you alright—baby speak to me!” the Valyrian called out to her woman.

She felt her heart flip when Arya’s eyes opened up. Arya looked up at her and smiled.

“All those water dancing lessons came in handy Dany … rolled with the explosion” she smiled up at her woman and touched Dany’s cheek tenderly.

Daenerys sobbed and held Arya tight to her body. She held Arya close to her and hugged her warm body tightly to her own. Her world was still right. She would have died in her soul if Arya had sacrificed her life in taking out the Croyel.

Slowly, Daenerys helped Arya to her feet. The teenager was stunned but was shaking off the proverbial cobwebs. Eddard came and hugged his daughter and the Queen in his strong embrace.

They soaked in the affection for a long moment.

“What now my Queen?” Eddard asked Daenerys. “We need to start putting down the forces of the fallen Ice King. The Walking Dead have become inert and are presently no danger. This may change. The Ice Giants are addled but with guidance—I fear they may again begin to assault us. The Ice Wrights are all over the map on their reactions but they will recover from the shock of the Ice King’s death I fear.

“Some have run off” he paused for a moment his eyes watching something “another one has just run off for the Haunted Forest and beyond I think … they will have to be hunted and put down.” As he spoke two more Ice Wrights had turned and were running at a fierce pace for the gaps in the fallen Wall. The spells of the Croyel still intact holding open the breeches in the fallen Wall.

Daenerys looked first at Eddard and then around her at the milling forces. The forces of the Ice King were for the moment seemed no threat mostly but Eddard was right. The Walking Dead needed to be put back down to natural death. The Ice Giants may in a way be innocent but they had been corrupted beyond all measure.

The Ice Wrights were another matter altogether. They were still deep down had human hearts and thus had all the faults and weaknesses of the human heart. They were a real and present danger.

“I agree Eddard. We need to start putting them down. The Ice Wrights have priority. But I do not want his made into sport. They will be put down quickly and efficiently. I will have no trophy hunting.”

“Agreed” Eddard nodded. Some bannermen had run up and were awaiting orders. Daenerys and Eddard gave the orders to start the killing off the forces of the Ice King. They had long ceased to be alive and the humans and giants lost to their kin by their cruel transformation.

“What happened to the Waynhim?” Arya asked looking around. “They were right over there” Arya said looking back at the front lines. “They fought their way back her to aid you Dany.”

Daenerys looked around. She indeed did not see one of the Demondim spawn. She was not surprised. She saw this after the Ur-viles had finished in saving her and Rhaegal six years ago on the Dothraki Sea.

“This is what happened on the Dothraki Sea. After they helped me conquer the Khalasar of Khal Jhaqo and saved Rhaegal from death they simply vanished.”

From the gloom Lord Lustra came into view on the back of her mighty Ranyhyn. She looked tired and disheveled but otherwise unhurt. Behind on her own Ranyhyn was Brail. Across the Ranyhyn’s back in front of Brail was Ice. It was soaked in the blue blood of Icy spawn.

“The Demondim spawn follow their own Weird. It is how they interpret the past, present and future. The Ur-viles and Waynhim have always been strange and fey. They keep to themselves interpreting their Weird. They only interact with us, humans, when they deem that their Weird demands it.”

“We are most fortunate that they deemed it necessary here. Their aid was most substantial. They slayed many of our en—“ her speech stopped as all those gathered around the Queen had their attention caught by what was happening on the ground a short distance away.

Everyone with weapons drew them out again and pointed them at the seeming corpse of Ice King and his deformed son still attached to the fallen Ice King in a lover’s embrace. The Lord of Revelstone turned her Ranyhyn, Frinny, to let her staff level at the bodies of their slain opponents. The bodies now flipping and jerking on the ground obscenely.

Daenerys rushed to get beside the corpses. Arya was right beside with her own flaming rune sword. The Queen was followed by her fellow High Lords. They all had their weapons leveled to point at the obscene ballet occurring before them.

They all stared at the bodies jumping and flipping like fish out of water.

Suddenly, the body of the Ice King and the Croyel split wide open. Gore rushed out but then immediately seemed to be consumed by a yellow gyre of flashing exploding yellow stars. In a moment both bodies were filled by a rush of exploding yellow flashes and exploding stars. The bodies more unseemly flipped and rolled around on the ground as the magical conflagration tore at their bodies. In the space of a handful of heartbeats, the bodies were consumed by the rising swirling, convoluting yellow fire of carious yellow streamers and magical flames.

Then in immense flares, the fires consuming the bodies of the fallen foes of the Queen rose up high in the air. The fires having totally consumed the fallen bodies of the Ice King and the Croyel. The yellow flames twisted and contorted high into the nighttime sky. Then in a flash the yellow twisting yellowish flames flashed off to the north and in only seconds was gone.

Eddard poked the now empty space where the Ice King and his spawn had lain with Evening Star. The sword did not react. There was nothing left to react too. He looked up at Daenerys.

“This is not good.”

Daenerys cocked an eyebrow at the obvious.

“I got a bad feeling about this” Oberyn told everyone.

Daenerys pinched her nose. Leave it to Oberyn to express the obvious.

Eddard looked around.

“Where is Jon and his wives?”

Epilog the Second

Through the now quiet battlefield before the fallen Wall the two ShadowBender witches moved fast. They moved silently and with little fanfare among the seemingly inert Walking Dead and Ice Giants. The snow still fell heavily. The winds non-existent. The snow falling down in lazy patterns made the sight almost surreal. The Snowflakes beginning to stick on the shoulders, heads and backs of the unmoving undead and Ice Giants.

The witches turned aside to make wide swaths around the more agitated Ice Wrights. They had an imperative mission to accomplish. The Ice Wrights were not the paramount threat anymore. They did not need to waste any time dealing with unhinged Ice Wrights. They observed the more independent Icy spawn rush away back towards the far north. That was a problem for another day for another force.

They had something that only they could do. They were prepared to do what was necessary to abate what had become horrifyingly apparent to their senses attuned to magic.

Magic was fraying and dissolving. The Horn of Winter had started to rip apart the magic that flowed and permeated all life in Westeros and in time Essos. The magical Horn of Winter had brought down more than the Wall. All life that needed magic to live would soon sicken and then die.

The two witches continued to move quickly between the forests of the inert host of the fallen Ice King. They rushed forward. It did not take them long to cross the mile to the fallen Wall. They looked up at the fallen broken pieces of what once was a marvel of human ingenuity and magical construct. The Wall had anchored magic to the World the witches could now feel.

It had been erected to both repel the magic of the Ice King and to hold back more physical threats.
Great magic had been used to accomplish that repelling of the ancient evil. Ygritte told Melisandre this as they rushed forward. They both reflected on the tale of the Colossus of the Fall from the World of the Land. Lustra telling them the tale. The Wall was like to that. Mighty magic had been bound to the Wall. Over the millennium the Wall had become the magic that it entrapped.

The Witches could see the dying yellow pulsing that only their eyes could see. The magic hidden until the Wall had fallen. The yellow that they saw with their second sight was pure like the radiant sunshine of a Spring time sun. The yellow pure and radiant but fading. It was this magic that had anchored the Wall for over eight thousand years.

The witches extended shadow daggers from their fingertips and started to scale up the broken fragments of the shattered Wall. Small broken debris shifted and cantered with the climbing of the witches but they continued to scale up the broken Wall moving slightly to the West of where Castle Black had once been.

The two witches of Asshai reached the proper location. The witches now atop the fallen detritus of the fallen Wall. It was from this point that all the other magical pulse points connected to. It was the heartbeat of the magic that had become the heartbeat of magic when Valyria had fallen. It had sustained magic with the downfall of that doomed land and the rupturing of the Earthroot in this hemisphere.

Now the magic was quickly fraying. If it faded completely magic would die out to never return.

The two witches turned to look at each other. They reached out with their hands to clasp their mate’s hands.

“I will miss Jon” Melisandre told her wife softly.

“I know” Ygritte answered softly.

They began to chant in a quiet murmur in their native tongue. The two women looking into each other’s eyes sadly. For several minutes the two ShadowBender witches chanted in their native tongue.

Their bodies crumped down to the ice block they had climbed on. They did not move.

Epilog the Third

Jon rushed forward between the unmoving army of his dead opponent. He did not see them. Something in his soul had alerted him to what his wives had sensed and what they had set out to do. Their bonds had become that strong.

He had to stop them. Let magic die out if it must. He would be lost without his two wives. He moved faster.

He came across an Ice Wright with anger and raw unmitigated fear in its pale blue glowing eyes. It charged Jon with his upraised ice sword swinging down on Jon with a stroke so fast it could hardly be seen. In one motion Jon pulled Lightbringer out its scabbard on his back. The blade instantly wreathed in flames up and down the length of the blade. Jon easily blocked the Ice Wright’s stroke with one motion and the next he sent its head spinning off into the darkness.
Without a backward look Jon rushed forward to the fallen Wall. He sheathed his sword as he ran. He did not need to attract the attention of any other Ice Wrights crazed with the loss of their father.

His connection to his wives led him to where he needed to be. He started to scale up the frozen fallen fragments of the Wall. The cold was interminable but the fire of Lightbringer now infused his body and he easily turned aside the cold and continued his climb up the jumbled fragments of the Wall. Several times he had to pull out Lightbringer and use its blade to cut into the ice blocks he was traversing to pull himself up. The blade melting the ice but not before he could pull himself up to again bury his sword into the ice when necessary.

The Lord Commander traversed up the haphazard debris field climbing ever higher. In this way Jon climbed to the top of mighty chunk of ice that had landed in such a way to have its flat face facing up to the snowfall falling down in lazy spirals. The block nearly thirty feet across.

“Nooooooooooo!” Jon screamed. He rushed forward and went to his knees sliding forward to the bodies of his wives as they lay on the ice facing each other. Their hands were interlinked. Their eyes open but unseeing.

“Nooooooooooo!” Jon screamed again. He picked up his wives and clumsily held both of their slack bodies to his body. Tears streamed from his eyes in torrents. His soul was fracturing. His victory over the Ice King meant nothing to him. He would weep for his wives and then kill himself. He had nothing to live for.

“They are still alive though barely” he heard a feminine voice speak to him. It echoed as if shouted across a mighty chasm.

He looked up through his tears. His brows knitted.

Before him stood a girl but none like he had ever seen before. She was a child of maybe twelve or eleven name days. Even in his grief his eyes could not help but flare at this child’s strange appearance.

“I assure you I am no child” the girl told him.

Her green hair was flying wildly in the air though there was no breeze. Her green eyes large and round with no eyelids. Her hair long but through it two points could be seen on each side of her head. Her eyebrows arched up from her nose to her hairline. She was only in a simple shift and went barefoot not feeling the cold.

Jon did not answer this strange girl. He felt no breath from his wives for they were dead.

The strange girl stared down at Jon. The two stared at each other not speaking.

“They are dead.”

“No. They are on the cusp but not yet crossed over. They sacrificed their life essence to preserve the magic that binds the Wall to the very land it has come to represent. The two have become one. Such as your wives and yourself. Your wives are noble beyond reason. Sacrifice. Noble and pure. Can I do any less?”

Jon did not respond to this child’s fey word and questions. He felt a cold wind start and now punish his face. To his surprise he could feel hate and pure malice in that wind. The maleficence like a force of nature warped to pure evil. He looked beyond the strange green haired child. He felt his breath catch. A massive black wall of cloud that was filled with yellow in its depths was on the far horizon to the north. It was broiling down from the north at a face pace. It was roiling with angry yellow lightning firing off in its depths lighting its angry churning heart. It towered up to the heavens.

Jon in his grief still felt consternation at what he saw rapidly approaching.

“What the hell is that?” he spoke through his tears.

“The Ice King and his monstrosity of a son have become one with what they held in abeyance for over eight years. He kept it caged. The Winter that should have been birthed years ago. It has grown to a monstrous level. In their death the Croyel somehow transformed their bodies to spirit.”

She looked at the wall of hate and malignancy moving in on them at a rapid clip. The trees beneath whipped and sawed underneath the mighty winds it caused.

“They have become one with the Winter. They are becoming one with each other and feeding off each other’s hate and maleficence. The Ice King and Croyel now spiritual non corporal beings. The two forces are becoming exponentially stronger as we watch. The two evil forces feeding off each other’s hate and growing stronger. The former Ice King now seeks to raze all life from Westeros. He will freeze with temperatures that none can survive. He will precipitate mountains of snow to bury and freeze. He will send winds to strip the land bare.”

“He and his vile son have become like onto a Quaylar.”

“What is that?” Jon asked. It looked like he would not have to kill himself after all. The Ice King had won the day even in death.

“Me.” The woman stared down at Jon with her unblinking eyes. “I too must make the sacrifice. But. You have no part of this tableau. The strange child’s eyes flared slightly.

Jon started when both Ygritte and Melisandre’s bodies lurched forward their chests heaving a great body rattling breath. Then they were gasping hard. Their bodies had been cold but now they were sufficed with warmth.

Jon looked up amazed at the green haired child.

“What is your name?”

“I have gone by many names in my long life. I lost the right to my birth name at the beginning of time. My most true name is She Who Must Not Be Named.”

She turned to look at the massive cloud wall closing fast on the fallen Wall.

“I will suffice. What has been broken still can be healed. If I survive long enough. Fare thee well Jon Snow.” She completely turned to face the approaching wall of freezing hate and pure spite. The woman did not move. She spoke back to Jon. “Tell Missandei I loved her.”

Jon started to speak but he felt himself falling into a bottomless well and was gone along with the two redheaded women he clutched to his body. Only the seeming green haired child remained on the ice slab.

Epilog the Fourth
Sansa had brought her wife Margaery forward. Missandei was beside them looking at all the death and carnage. The poets and minstrels definitely never wrote or sung of the hacked and dismembered bodies or how they died in the most awful of positions. The body parts severed and strewn about on the ground. Heads and organs trampled into the mud.

The trio had to step over both the dead of Westeros and the now dead a second time the undead of the now dead Ice King. There were swords both of hot forged metal and ice forged metal that had a slight light blue caste to them lying on the ground unremarked. The fallen swords of the fallen Ice Wrights and Giants. There were rank pools of blue where the Icy spawn of the Ice King had died.

Broken siege engines lay toppled over. Caste down by Ice Giants no doubt. Broken crates and ripped tents were strewn over the battlefield. As accruements from countless items of a camp spread about had been trampled into the mire and mud of the battlefield.

The women finally came to the Queen, Arya and the High Lords standing around quietly discussing something.

They quickly heard the story of how the Ice King and the vile Croyel on his back had been transformed into some kind of ethereal magical spirit and had quickly disappeared to the North.

Sansa fretted. There had to be a reason why he had headed back to the place he had resided in for so long.

As they discussed the situation back and forth it was Margaery that noticed it first and pointed to the North. Sansa gasped. A huge cloud wall was coming down from the North in great haste. She could feel the hate radiating out from it. It made her stomach clench and twist.

Suddenly, there was a punishing wind howling down from the North. The wind strong and unremitting. The cold had a feel of evil too it even though it was only wind.

All looked at the approaching cloud wall that was black with a sickly yellowish hue.

“By the Seven” Lustra softly intoned. “I feel the Croyel … what is this?”

Eddard studied the advancing cloud wall. Already the icy winds that flowed off the advancing wall was chilling all that it touched. The temperature of the air already cold was dropping precipitously. The force of the wind increasing.

“Winter is coming … except now it is malignant and seeks our death. Winter has now become death” Sansa’s father softly intoned.

Sansa instinctively saw the truth in her father’s words. Somehow the Ice King and Croyel had merged and become one with the long dark Winter. The two feeding off each other. The cloud wall was definitely growing taller and more wild as she looked at it.

Sansa hugged Margery to her. None would survive this monster bearing down on them.

This was magic grown large and wild on a scale that no human could hope to withstand.

“We must be able to fight this” Daenerys spoke as she looked at the advancing Winter grown monstrous and evil.

No one answered her for many moments. Finally, the Lord of Revelstone spoke.
“This is beyond human kin. If I had the Staff of Law … but I do not …”

Everyone looked at the approaching wall of Winter gone mad. They watched their death rapidly approaching.

Then as if from nowhere a green light appeared upon the fallen Wall.

Missandei started to jump and down excitedly “It is She Who Must Not Be Named!” she exclaimed excited to see her longed for lover appear upon the wall. “Save me! She is going to save us!” the small black teenager spoke jumping up and down clapping her hands.

Sansa wondered what this single person was proposing to do against such monstrosity that was beyond human comprehension. She Who Must Not Be Named was still just a woman when you came down to it. It did not matter what Missandei thought her sought after lover could do.

Suddenly, the small green dot on the fallen Wall exploded into a large green glowing orb that itself was filled with strange wild green lightning that sparked and flared as the green orb grew rapidly in size and sheer unmitigated power. Still it grew. The green grown in size and in a flash had spread both west and east. The cloud growing in height till it seemed to also reach for the stars. The new green haze pulsed and roiled above the fallen Wall. Sansa sensed that the advancing Winter and the now transferred She Who Must Not Be Name had spread themselves the length of the fallen Wall.

Sansa noticed that she could see through the green haze enough to see the yellowish wall rapidly advancing. It almost seemed to be howling to advance upon them and destroy them.

From nowhere it seemed a mighty explosion of sound and a mighty wind rushed over the camp. The two opposing forces were squaring off for a confrontation. The green wall of pulsing might still grew taller and thicker. The wall of the monstrous Winter also seemed to grow and moved forward with ravenous hunger to murder.

The towering green wall roiled and seemed to fold and unfold in itself. Sansa had the insight that the transformed She Who Must Not Be Named was gathering herself. The green goddess preparing to attack the evil monstrosity before her.

From the green cloud mighty columns of pure green magical might rammed into the mighty yellow cloud. In return the yellow cloud sent out its own mighty tendrils that stabbed into the green misty wall before it. Arms of green and yellow slammed into each other and coiled around each other. The collisions of opposing magic rocked the world to its foundation throwing people and animals to their knees. The loud explosions of sound nearly deafened the gathered humans. The tentacles of opposing force whipping all around contending with each other.

The wall of the advancing Winter began to slow its advance. Sansa saw mighty jets of green shooting forward into the advancing wall of blackish yellow. The green explosions seemed to be having an effect on the advance of the Winter. The monstrosity of Winter quickly slowed its advance and then stopped. Its way was barred.

Now both entities were hurling magical might at each other. The air shrieked with explosions of green and yellow. The ground shook violently. Sansa saw columns and now strange geometric objects created in green and yellow. The objects spinning first one direction on their axis and then instantly rotated in the other direction.

The two opposing forces were attacking each other with extreme prosecution and concentrated force. The arms of opposing force questing for their enemy. The limbs grappling with each other. Now the yellow and green geometric shapes that had been created by both entities spun even faster.
The geometric shapes of both entities shot out at their foe in whirling patterns to pierce and detonate in their foe.

The yellow tendrils severed and ripped part. Green tendrils torn asunder. Green triangles propagated and spun into the yellow cloud exploding in its depths. Yellow concentric circles spun out of the black and yellow wall to fly into the green nebulous cloud where they seemed to implode and then explode. The geometric patterns never ceasing in their creation and flying in opposite directions to attack.

The approaching blackish yellow now stopped writhed and roiled in trying to advance but was rebuffed by the wall of green. The wall of green was preventing its advance further south. With a mile of separation the two opposing forces savagely attacked each other. Now the air between the two filled with whirling triangles, squares, circles, horizontals that flipped, trapezoids, pentagons and other sided shapes sent flying right and left. Both green and yellow geometric shapes flung forward at impossible speeds.

Many of the geometric shapes collided between the two opposing forces annihilating themselves in staggering concussive explosions of green versus yellow. The thunder produced shook the ground violently. Other shapes flew on to penetrate deep into the opposing clouds where they detonated making both clouds glow in their opposing colors.

Wild winds rushed over the camp of Westeros. Explosions of sound rocked the bodies and deafened ears. Now even the heaviest siege engines were toppled over. The detritus of the camp whipped up and flung around. Wild screams filled the air. Some low and rumbling and others long high pitched screams of the very air being torn apart.

Sansa had rushed with Margaery and Missandei behind a massive toppled trebuchet and peaked out at the fallen wall and the war between two gods.

Missandei kept moaning “oh my love” softly. Tears running down her cheeks.

The three watched massive tendrils reach out from each cloud wall. Pure green fought with carious yellow tendrils from the Winter now turned into an avatar of the fallen Ice King and Croyel.

The tendrils contended with each other and ripped each other asunder only to spawn more tendrils.

The Earth began to tremble and shake violently. The wind wild and blowing in all directions now.

The strange geometric shapes were continuously spawned in either yellow or green and hurled at each other. Tendrils formed and were ripped apart. The geometric shapes mostly annihilating each other but the survivors flashed into the cloud of opposing color to detonate with shocking force that shook the foundations of the Earth. Massive columns of power rose up in green and yellow and slammed down into the opposing force.

For hours the battle raged between the two titans in the sky. The green and yellow contending with each other for dominance. The sky above the Earth seemed to boil with the power being blasted in both directions. The clouds had been blasted from the sky and the mighty gouts of power seemed to race off to the stars.

It was beautiful in way Sansa thought. The strange geometric shapes that would form and rotate pulsing in the colors of their creator and then race forward to dive into the opposing cloud and explode in shockingly loud sounds that made the ground shake and roil violently. At times the very dirt seemed about to turn to water and swallow them with the violent shaking that gripped the land.
Sansa was not sure but it seemed as if the yellow wall had been pushed back.

In a blink of an eye the green surged forward and seemed to blast its way into the heart of the sickly yellow cloud. The forces seemed to explode in a mad riot of struggle and rage.

The two diametrically opposed entities contended with each other. It was green-yellow—savage, wild-mounting hugely toward its apocalypse.

But the green dominated and prevailed.

With one loud continuous explosion of force the wind howled and the Earth rolled. An instant later all was still. The air did not move.

“By the old gods” Eddard softly spoke. “She Who Must Not Be Named totally consumed the Ice King and Winter. They are no more.”

The Lord of Revelstone came to stand beside him. “They are both gone. I cannot sense them at all.”

“NOOOOOOOOOOOO!” echoed across the landscape. An explosion of pure white light the sky with a radiance that could challenge the sun. Sansa swirled and with shock. She observed Missandei. In her hand was the Krill of Loric that blazed with a white hot fury.

The small black scribe screamed and slashed the small sword through the air. Mighty gouts of power flashed from the gem of the Krill frying the air making thunder explode. Missandei’s power flashing up to the heavens challenging the stars. The concussive force throwing people, animals and camp items around in the mighty winds stirred up.

Mighty gout after gout of pure unrestrained White Gold Magic rushed up into the heavens making the world turn white. The might the small scribe threw out was easily the equal of what all had just witnessed. More violent bursts were cast out by Missandei from the Krill of Loric Vilesilencer. The power she generated growing exponentially.

Lustra was now screaming “By the gods she will rose the Worm at World’s End if she does not desist. She is tearing the fabric of Life and Death asunder. The laws have already been damaged. They cannot be harmed anymore and survive!”

The Haruchai tried to advance on the screaming black teenager but were thrown back.

Daenerys ran up to Missandei. She was allowed to pass through the maelstrom that Missandei had created.

“Missandei stop! She is gone. You cannot bring her back!”

In a flash Missandei pivoted her wrist and stabbed the Krill down into her heart.

The instant the blade touched her skin it melted and flowed into her body. The scribe left unharmed. Missandei collapsed sobbing brokenly.

Epilog the Fifth

The Ice King and Croyel screamed in impotent rage. They did not have bodies but their essences shrieked and fought.

The green easily controlled them. The Ice King saw they were above the ice bog that he had lain trapped in for thousands of years. He laughed. He would be free again. He was stronger now with his true son.

His essence and the Croyel’s plunged into the bog. He did not care … WHAT!

Their essence was flowing through solid rock and granite. He felt the oppressive weight off the Earth crushing them. Rock all about and in him.

Suddenly a chamber was formed and the yellowish essence of the Ice King and his vile son were circled in green chains that were thick and unbreakable. The chains were pinned to the solid granite around the new chamber with mighty unbreakable nails of solid green magical force.

Then the rock enfolded down on the Ice King and his son. The rock pressed tight to the green coils binding their magical essence.

They screamed and railed but they could not move and the rock did not listen.

Enjoy your new home

The Ice King and Croyel screamed in impotent rage.

Miles above them the bog erupted.

On its shore lay a small green haired girl. She stared up at the fading stars. Slowly the light in her eyes faded away.

Epilog the Sixth

Daenerys looked up at the sky. It was filled with bright green Northern lights but they seemed so intense and they looked like they were touching the trees.

From nowhere the earth shook with violent spasms throwing all into chaos again. For only a handful of heartbeats did it last. Then all was calm again. Everyone picked themselves up from the ground.

“Well I’ll be fucking!” Oberyn exclaimed.

Arya gripped her lover’s shoulders and turned her to face the fallen Wall.

Only it was fallen no more. It stood once more. It was filled with a green interweave like onto a spider’s web. The silken strands worked all through the Wall. From one heartbeat to the next the wrecked Wall had been transformed from shattered fragments strewn about to once more its mighty seven hundred foot high majestic Wall. Castle Black before it was again hale and whole though it too was lined with green interleave.

She Who Must Not Be Named had raised the Wall again with her essence. She was holding it together. The message was clear. I have applied a tourniquet. Now you must heal it.

“By the Seven” Lord Lustra spoke in a voice of awe. “The fragments … the ground dust … all has been put back as it was—Look!”
As they did they saw a deep blue glow pulse deep within the reformed Wall. At the base yellow pulses of pure sunshine could be seen throbbing with renewed life.

“It is impossible. I can feel it. The Forbidding of the Staff of Law has been restored … the original magic is alive again … they are weak—but they live … the power …” the Lord trailed off.

This strange woman had given her all. Daenerys could do no less.

Heal the Wall Daenerys would.

Please drop by the archive and comment to let the author know if you enjoyed their work!